National Guard Units Go To Fort Bragg On Sunday

National Guard units from Greenville and Farmville leave Sunday at 8 a.m. for Ft. Bragg where they will undergo their two-week annual summer encampment.

Greenville units consist of A and B batteries of the Fourth Howitzer Battalion of the 113th Artillery, members of the 30th Division, and the Farmville unit is part of Company E, Second Battle Group of the 119th Infantry.

Capt. Charles Camp, commander of B Battery, said about 150 men from the two Greenville units will be taking part in the program and estimated 100 men from Farmville.

Camp noted that this will be the first summer camp in which the entire two weeks will be spent in the field, rather than in barracks.

The units will carry all of their own weapons and other equipment with them and will be graded by the Third Army Evaluator on everything they do. A Battery will take a test under division artillery and B Battery under battalion control.

The commander also said that this is the fourth year the local units have gone to Ft. Bragg. Prior to that they went to Ft. Stuart, Ga., as part of the Fourth Corps Artillery.

An advance party of about 24 men left Greenville Friday for Ft. Bragg to get the operations set up. Other volunteers were scheduled to leave today to help set up camp. The main group will leave Sunday morning and arrive at Ft. Bragg about 1 p.m. The group will return home two weeks from Sunday.

Edw. Kennedy Endorsed By Massachusetts Demos

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Those ambitious, never-give-up Kennedys have done it again.

Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, 30-year-old brother of the President and of the attorney general, was endorsed by weary, hoarse Massachusetts Democrats Friday night as a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

In the big battle of famous political names, Kennedy piled up such a margin over Edward J. McCormack, 38, that McCormack gave up before the balloting was two-thirds completed.

With the score card showing Kennedy 691 to McCormack's 360, the voting was stopped.

McCormack came to the microphones, listened gratefully to the cheers of his supporters, and said:

"I want to thank all of those who had the courage to stand up and be counted in my behalf. . . I will now take my case to the people.

This means that even though McCormack lost here he will fight Kennedy again in the September primaries, a right he has under Massachusetts law.

Scarcely had McCormack left the platform than here came Kennedy, accompanied by his blonde wife, Joan, to get an even more rousing reception.

Kennedy said he was sure the people of Massachusetts will speak just as the convention delegates did.

"As of tonight," Kennedy said, "we're starting the campaign." They win hard, and they lose hard, up here in Massachusetts.

McCormack is the nephew of House Speaker John McCormack, and waiting restlessly in the political wings is a young representative of yet a third famous family.

George Lodge, 34, son of the former United Nations ambassador, Henry Cabot Lodge, faces Rep. Laurence Curtis in the RE today.

Even though Friday night's victory didn't prove much—it gives Teddy first place on the ballot, plus a note that the convention endorsed him—the Kennedys go into everything from touch football to conventions, aiming to win.

And young Teddy won here with a technique his brother developed in Massachusetts and perfected in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and West Virginia: bright young men in slick automobiles, pretty girls in crisp dresses, and unremitting industry behind scenes to make sure each delegate is reached again and again.

Portuguese Ask Refugee Help

MACAO (AP)—The Portuguese government has appealed to the U.N. refugee commissioner in Geneva for financial help to resettle more than 30,000 refugees from Communist China.

Sources said the Portuguese authorities plan to build a resettlement area in Macao similar to those in the neighboring British colony of Hong Kong. The project is estimated to cost $13,000.

Jaycees Man Booths To Push Airport Petition

Jaycees in Greenville, Farmville and Aiden today were manning booths to obtain signatures on a petition calling for establishment of an Eastern North Carolina area airport.

Today's efforts were to conclude the drive to obtain names on the petitions.

Friday and Saturday were proclaimed area airport petition days by the Pitt Board of Commissioners and the clubs were making their final drives on those days.

In Greenville Jaycees were manning booths at the post office and at Brodys. Jay-ettes had set up booths at Overtons and Colonial Heights Super Markets.

Co-Chairman Carlton Taylor said "People are responding well. Everyone we talk to seems to be for the area airport. We certainly appreciate the public's generous response."

Taylor said this morning he believed Greenville Jaycees had obtained 5,000 names. It was hoped that with this afternoon's efforts more than 5,000 signatures will be obtained in Greenville.

He asked that business firms which have petitions call him or Co-Chairman George Coffman and arrangements will be made to pick up the petitions.

Farmville Jaycee President Charles Joyner said his club had set up a booth in Farmville's main street which was to be manned this afternoon. He said there seems to be a lot of interest in the area airport and his club hopes to obtain more than 1,000 names.

Jaycee clubs in other counties are also working on the project. The petitions will be used before the Civil Aeronautics Board which is now considering the area airport concept.

General Views Bladen Lakes As Possible Range

SEYMOUR JOHNSON AIR FORCE BASE, N.C. (AP)—Major Gen. J. H. Moore said today the Bladen Lakes State Forest "has some possibilities" for use as a Tactical Air Command target range.

Gen. Moore made the statement after touring the forest, 65 miles south of here, with Hargrove Bowles, director of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

Meanwhile, Third District Congressman David N. Henderson of Wallace said the Pentagon formally requested that a hearing before the state Wildlife Resources Commission in Raleigh Monday be called off.

At the hearing, the Air Force was expected to renew its efforts to obtain a site in Hyde County for the target range. It also planned to formally reject a swampy area near Wallace known as Angola Bay.

Gen. Moore said there is at least one federal airway over the Bladen Lakes forest. But he said this likely could be moved.

Gov. Sanford, 3rd grad 20 Gov. Sanford offered the Bladen Lakes State Forest for use as a bombing practice range Friday in a telegram to Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert.

The offer was designed to quiet a controversy set off by the Air Force proposal to use an area near Lake Mattamuskeet in Hyde County. A storm of protest was raised, based on claims the Air Force project would damage wildlife.

Sanford's offer of the Bladen Lakes site, some 60 miles southwest of Seymour Johnson, brought new protests.

"I will do everything in my power to keep them from using this area," said Chairman Ellis Clark of the Bladen County Commissioners.

House Group Hunts Alleged List Of Officials Given Estes Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House subcommittee is reportedly trying to lay its hands on an alleged list naming congressmen and an administration official as receiving money order gifts from Billie Sol Estes.

This was reported Friday by the subcommittee's dismissed Republican counsel, Robert E. Manue. He spoke to reporters outside a hearing room where the subcommittee was taking testimony that two former agriculture department officials had received such money orders.

James T. Ralph, former assistant secretary of agriculture, told the government operations subcommittee that he and his aide, William E. Morris, each received a pair of $100 money orders from Estes, last January—and turned the money over to the Democratic party.

Both Ralph and Morris have been fired because of their connections with the indicted Texas promoter whose boom-to-bust operations under government farm programs have stirred charges he carried and got favored treatment from officials.

Ralph denied accepting gifts from Estes and also denied that he or anyone else in the agriculture department had ever granted favors to Estes.

Meanwhile Republicans blazed away at the dismissal Thursday of Manuel as the minority counsel on the subcommittee which is headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C.

The Democratic majority on the committee voted to fire him for leaking an agriculture department report on Estes to a newspaper. But the Republican congressional committee charged Manue was "dumped...when he found out Estes had chummy contacts" with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The Republican Campaign Committee called the subcommittee's hearings "a fraud upon the American people and a testimonial to the fact that America needs a Republican House to restore honesty to government."

Speaking to reporters, Manuel said Morris had a list of persons who allegedly got Estes' money orders.

"The testimony taken in executive session related to a list of individuals to whom Estes allegedly sent gifts in the form of money orders," said Manuel at an informal press conference.

The list, he said, includes the names of "certain members of Congress and at least one very high-ranking administration official."

In his testimony Ralph said the money orders he and Morris received arrived about Jan. 10 and were in $100 denominations. When he asked Morris if he had any idea what the money was for, Ralph said Morris expressed belief they were for tickets to the $100-a-plate Democratic dinner on the anniversary of President Kennedy's inauguration.

Ralph testified he sent one money order to the Democratic National Committee and the other to the Democratic party in California.

Morris, said Ralph, gave his to the Democratic National Committee and in return received two tickets to the anniversary dinner held here last January.

Morris told him he gave the tickets to Estes, Ralph said.

Asked if he thought it was proper to do anything but send the money orders back to Estes, Ralph said, "as a Democratic appointee, I have a responsibility to the party through which I secured my employment to turn over to the party any contributions I might receive."

Russians Thought Red-Faced

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials say Russia has been embarrassed by the string of refugee incidents in Berlin and has tried to shift the blame with its not accusing the West of provoking trouble along the wall.

Although the note was the strongest the Soviet Union has issued recently on Berlin, U.S. authorities said they saw no indication the statement foreshadows a Kremlin effort to start the Berlin crisis boiling again.

The dispute over the divided city has cooled off during the past several months while the United States and Russia have explored various ways of reaching a peaceful solution.

So far the talks have produced no agreement. Another meeting between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin is scheduled June 18.

The Russians threatened Friday to step into the Berlin situation, charging the United States, Britain and France with fostering "intense intrigues of the revisionists and militarists" who the note said are "trying to provoke a serious sharpening of the situation in West Berlin."

The Washington officials, noting Friday's spectacular East German escape by excursion boat, said they think the Communists feel the repeated escapes and attempted escapes are giving them a blackeye.

Thus, said the officials, the Russians are trying to pin the blame on what they call the revenge-seekers and militarists.

SBI Called Into Watauga Ballot-Stuffing Charge

RALEIGH (AP)—Reports of ballot box stuffing in two Watauga County precincts Friday spurred the State Board of Elections to call for a probe by the State Bureau of Investigation.

The charges involved the Democratic box in the Cove Creek Precinct, and the Republican box in Boone Township.

The state board advised the Watauga Board of Elections to wait until the Cove Creek Democratic box, and to do likewise with the Republican box in Boone Township if it finds evidence of sufficient ballot stuffing to prevent an accurate count of votes.

In another instance, the state board voted to turn over to the attorney general and district solicitor for investigation allegations of election irregularities in Swain County in the May 26 primary.

Chairman David McConnell of the state board was authorized to determine whether Donald E. Cooper has resigned as chairman of the Swain County Board of Elections.

John Mayo, defeated candidate for sheriff in Johnston County, was referred to the county election board with his complaint that election laws were violated in Clayton precincts. Mayo ran third in the race. Chairman Marvin Taylor of the Johnston board said Mayo would be given a hearing if he asks for it. Mayo said he was undecided.

The state board looked for a transcript of a hearing before the Watauga County Board of Elections in the Cove Creek Precinct.

Democrat Gordon Mast and Republican Mont Thomas, watchers at the Cove Creek Precinct, asserted in an affidavit that there were 206 more Democratic votes put in the box than names on the poll book.

Sweeping Edicts Are Imposed On Spaniards

MADRID (AP)—Plagued by bombings and crippling strikes, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime today suspended for two years the Spanish people's constitutional right to choose where they want to live in Spain.

Under the sweeping edict, the government can control the movement of anyone opposed to the Franco and keep agitators out of industrial centers hit by a seven-week siege of strikes that paralyzed mines and key factories.

The strike—illegal in Spain—dropped off sharply late last month after the government promised some workers pay boosts of up to 50 per cent.

Franco's cabinet approved the decree suspending a key clause in Spain's bill of rights a few hours after the second bomb incident in three days rocked the Banco Popular, a big financial institution in the heart of Madrid.

Police blamed the left-wing Popular Liberation Front for the bombings which shattered windows in the bank and caused other damage. They were linked to recent strikes.

The cabinet pointed up the decree with an announcement which said:

"The campaigns which from outside are being made to harm Spain's credit and prestige have found echo and complicity in some persons who, using the liberties which the (bill of rights) recognizes, have joined such unworthy maneuvers."

Franco has charged that Soviet subversion and "hot-headed, separatist" Catholic priests played a major role in the strikes which killed more than 60,000 workers in the provinces of Asturias, Leon, Bilbao, Barcelona and Madrid itself.

Some priests have supported the North Basque region's demands for independence. Others have openly backed the strikes for higher wages.

Franco said, however, the attitude of some priests did not alter the fundamental harmony between the church and state. Roman Catholicism is the state religion in Spain.

Extra Guards For Depot Ship

HOLY LOCH, Scotland (AP)—The Royal Navy moved today to reinforce hundreds of special police against demonstrators threatening to immobilize the U.S. nuclear submarine depot ship Proteus, based here.

The frigate Exmouth was detached from a fleet exercise and slid into the Loch where boats, communications and frogmen were deployed in cooperation with the police of Argyllshire.

More than 1,000 demonstrators—organized by Scotland's Committee of 199 which is campaigning against nuclear weapons tests and bases—announced their intention to stage a mass sitdown at Ardnadam, blocking the entrance to the pier.

If they were to succeed in doing this, the pier, and consequently the depot ship which serves the United States Polaris-carrying nuclear submarines, would be immobilized temporarily. The pier is used as a landing stage for the Proteus.

The demonstration, advertised to begin in mid-afternoon, was due to continue about 25 hours.

Two Persons Injured In Two Mishaps

TWO WRECKS NEAR CHICOD LAST NIGHT . . . driver remained at scene with fractured neck until early morning.

Two separate one-car mishaps near Chicod School caused heavy damage and injured two persons, one seriously.

Highway Patrol officials said heaviest damage resulted in a 7:10 p.m. mishap yesterday.

Trooper H. R. Winslow said a car driven by Autry Lee Haddock, 41, of Dickinson Ave., went out of control as it rounded a curve on N.C. 43 south of the Chicod School and overturned in a field.

The officer quoted Haddock as saying he pulled to the right to avoid striking a vehicle which he was meeting. The car was operating to the left of the center line, he said.

The auto then went out of control, crossed the highway and overturned in a field, causing an estimated $1,600 damage to the 1962 model auto.

Haddock was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for lacerations and bruises and released.

He was charged with exceeding a safe speed.

The second collision occurred about 3 a.m. today and involved a car driven by William Lewis Mills, 32, of Chicod.

Trooper W. L. Whitehead said the Mills vehicle was traveling on a rural paved road just east of the school, went out of control and crashed head-on into a wooded area.

Pit. Whitehead quoted Mills as saying he fell asleep at the wheel of the car.

The officer noted Mills, who was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital with a fractured neck and lacerations of the scalp, remained at the wreck scene until about 6 p.m. when he was discovered by local residents and moved to his home.

Mills was charged with careless and reckless driving. Damage to the auto, listed as a total loss, was placed at $260.

School Of Art To Be Memorial

ATLANTA (AP)—The Atlanta Art Association is planning a campaign to raise $1.5 million for a school of art as "a living memorial to the association members killed in a French airplane crash."

Association Chairman James V. Carmichael said Friday that it is "a mighty small price tag to put on the hole left in Atlanta by these tragic deaths."

Most of the 105 Atlantans killed in the crash in Paris last Sunday were association members.

Three Vehicles In Friday Wreck

An estimated $300 damage was done and one person slightly injured when three vehicles collided at the intersection of Dickson Ave., and 10th St., yesterday about 12:14 p.m.

Traffic officers said Helen Davids of 200 South Main St., Farmville suffered abrasions to her knee in the mishap. She was the operator of one of the vehicles.

Officers identified the other two drivers as Warren Wilkins Lassiter, 37 of Route 3, Mt. Olive and Grady Davies Haddock, 36 of 217 Ridge Way St.

Damage to the Davids vehicle was set at $150 while damage to the Lassiter truck was set at $100. An estimated $50 damage was done to the Haddock car.

Engagement Announced

MISS DORIS ELIZABETH DAVENPORT is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruland Wilbur Davenport of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Halcy Webster Brown Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Halcy Webster Brown of Virginia Beach, Va. The wedding will take place July 28.

Things Sweet, Sour And Hot Flavor German Supper Night

This is another in a series of articles on life and cookery by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

By MARY WHITNEY Women's News Service

On Saturday nights the Schroeder girls were strictly on their own.

Mother and Father usually escaped to some dinner party or other social function in the neighborhood, complete with bridge or mah-jongg to enjoy a well-earned respite from their giggling, chattering foursome.

So the four of us got up the Saturday meals ourselves, scurrying about the kitchen and colliding with Jane's ponderous avoirdupois.

We called it Germany Supper Night.

On one occasion Marjorie's task was to prepare the tasty, tangy Warburg Sausage, made in Warburg, Mo., and akin to homemade Italian sausage.

One Saturday Evelyn, who was only 12, tried her burgeoning culinary skill in an expensive white cake.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD 3 cups cooked potatoes, cubed 2 teaspoons grated onion 1/2 cup celery, chopped 2 teaspoons chopped green pepper celery seed 4 slices bacon, cubed 1 tablespoon prepared mustard 1 tablespoon sugar 1/4 cup vinegar 1/4 cup water Fry bacon until brown, then add vinegar and water, onion, green pepper and celery. Simmer until tender, then add potatoes, sugar, mustard and celery seed. Simmer for a few minutes and serve hot. Garnish with chopped parsley.

When Love is dead, Ambition fled, And Pleasure, lad, and Pash, You'll still enjoy a sausage, boy, A sausage, boy, and Mash.

—A. P. Herbert

Being normal, healthy American girls, we skipped rope, ice-skated (in the winter Father froze the backyard for us), played Jacks, Teeter-Totter, and Drop the Handkerchief.

We also participated in the more coeducational pastimes, such as Spin the Bottle and Post Office.

During one of the latter sportive occasions, my first beau, impish little Joey Brown from across the street, slighted me for my sister, Evelyn. I remember how ashamed and mortified I was when Joey selected her instead of me to accompany him into the adjoining, darkened room to perform those mysterious rites of letter-mailing and envelope-stamping which were our childish euphemisms for plain, old-fashioned kissing.

But of all the games the one we sisters enjoyed most was Kitchen Comanches, an original brainstorm of Marjorie's.

Marjorie organized us into a band of hungry squaws, riding the neighborhood ranges to see what was cooking on top of them.

We would swoop down alongside the various kitchen windows, inhaling the enticing aromas emanating from them, and comparing notes before we decided which kitchen we would honor with our unsolicited patronage.

During our free-loading expeditions we didn't get a single turn-down all the housewives being so delighted that we had chosen them. At Mrs. Sturtevant's we had butter cookies; at Mrs. Ellenbogen's, Pork Chops with Apples; at Mrs. Reed's, Stuffed Roast Veal Breast, and at Mrs. Brown's—the mother of that double-crossing little Joey—a delightful and very original concoction called Disguised Vegetables.

DISGUISED VEGETABLES 3 cups leftover mashed potatoes (or fresh) 6 small carrots grated cheese salt and pepper to taste cream butter

Cook carrots until well done. Mash them well with a potato-masher. Add mashed potatoes to carrots, using a little cream to blend to the right consistency.

Put in buttered ramekins or custard cups, sprinkle with grated cheese and dab of butter on each. Bake in 450-degree oven for 15 minutes.

Pray for peace and grace and spiritual food, For wisdom and guidance, for all these are good. But don't forget the potatoes.

—John Tyler Pettee

Duplicate Club Has Session

The Faculty Duplicate Club met in regular session Friday night at the Community Room of the Planters National Bank and Trust Company with four tables in play. A Howell movement was followed, and winners were, first, Mrs. Frank Moseley and Mrs. Norman Garrison; second, Mrs. Harold Forbes; and Mrs. I. G. Murphy; third, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore and Mrs. Austin Perry. The next session of the club will be June 15 at 7:30.

Personals

W. C. Harris, who has been ill for sometime, is still a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Caswell of Hartford, Conn. arrived Friday to visit Mrs. Caswell's father, Dow Beaman.

Mrs. George B. Hadley, Dr. Herbert Hadley and Howard Hadley spent the past weekend at Ocracoke.

B-C SECRETARIES CLUB . . . honored two of its secretaries Friday morning. One of the secretaries honored was Mrs. Jean Brown, left, shown with Mrs. Myrtle Roberson.

All About Town With Anne Mattox

Mrs. Aaron Baxter was guest of honor Wednesday evening at a party given her by Mrs. Anne C. Hancock at the Silo Restaurant.

Mrs. Baxter, who will move with her family to Dallas, Tex. around the first of July, was entertained at a farewell dinner party attended by some 20 couples who are friends of the Baxters.

The Baxters have made their home in Greenville the past seven years and reside at 105 North Elm Street. She has been active in St. Raphael Parochial School and was an instructor for a sewing class conducted at Elm Street Park. Mr. Baxter, who is already in Texas, is a chemical engineer associated with the Texas Power and Light Company as Soil Research Specialist in Dallas.

There is a club in town which calls itself the B-C Secretaries Club.

If you are wondering what kind of club this is, it is composed of secretaries who get together each morning before going to work for small talk and coffee in a local drug store downtown.

Yesterday morning the club honored two of its secretaries at an 8:00 o'clock coffee-doughnut affair at Morton's. Honored were Jean Brown, who has been secretary to J. Con Lanier of the U. S. Tobacco Export Association, who is retiring from his position, and Margaret Kirtrell, a former secretary to the late James Griffith, who will be secretary for Dudley and Shoe. Jean has been secretary to Mr. Lanier for approximately nine years and Margaret was associated with Mr. Griffith for approximately the same length of time.

The only male member of the club is L. T. Shotwell, who joins the girls for coffee. Attending yesterday's coffee hour were Maxine Reel, Neale Hudson, Dot Foley, Nadine Johnson, Louise Sutton, Linda Jones, Helen McArthur, Myrtle Roberson, Ruth Harris, Hilda Holland, Evelyn Harris, Ruth Mumford, Polly Dail, Lib Roebuck, and L. T. Shotwell.

Touring the Tryon Palace and grounds yesterday were Mrs. J. B. Smith Sr., Mrs. W. C. Taylor Sr., Mrs. J. Hicks Corey, and Mrs. J. E. Nobles.

Mrs. Louis W. Gaylord Sr. and her granddaughter, Camille Gaylord, left Thursday by train for Los Angeles, Calif. In California they will board the ship Matson of the Matsonia Line for Honolulu, Hawaii. They will visit with Mrs. Gaylord's daughter and husband, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Dean E. Painter. Mrs. Painter is the former Julia Gaylord. The Gaylords will be gone for six weeks.

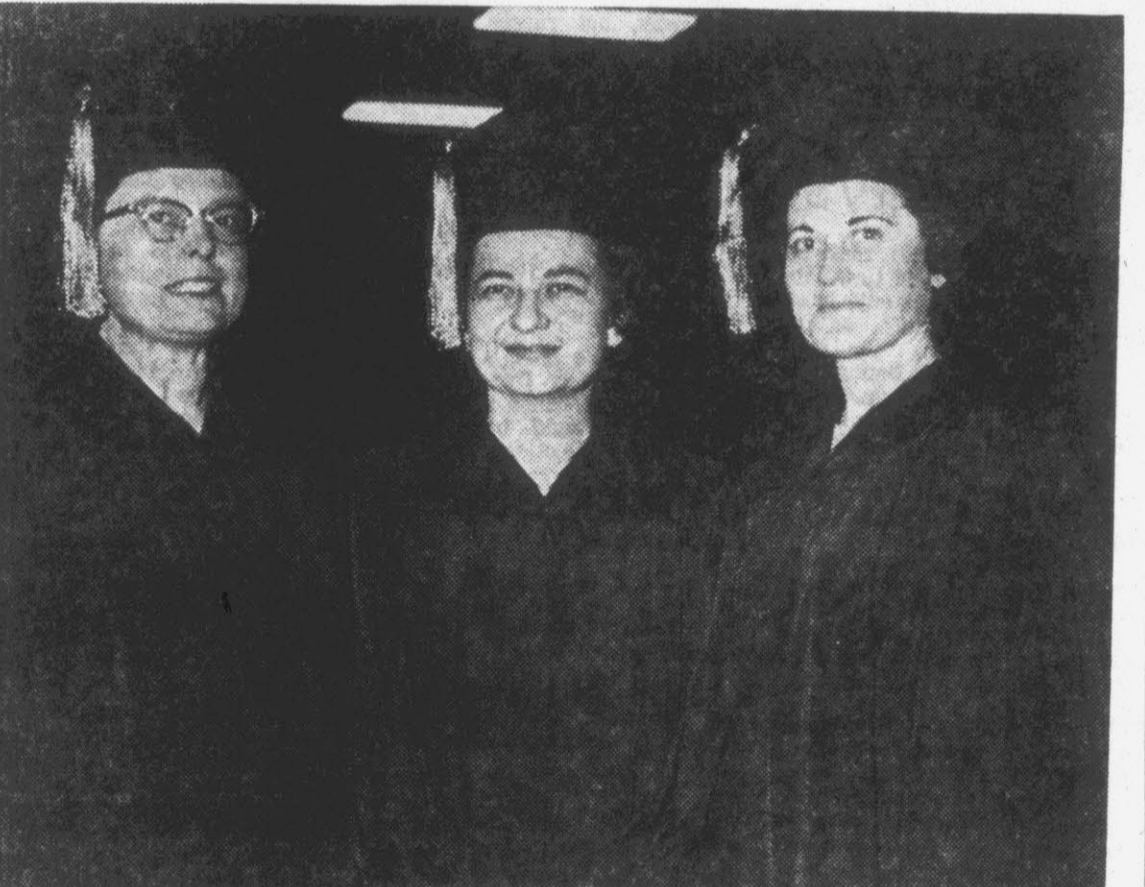

Two Pitt County school teachers will be among those touring Europe this summer. Mrs. Helen Bradley of Grifton High School and Mrs. Jane Highsmith of Bethel School.

They will sail on July 3 aboard the Flandre of the French line, for a study-travel tour. They will return on August 26.

White Chevrolet's Camp was the scene Wednesday afternoon for the annual get-together of a crowd of young couples from Greenville. They get together for an afternoon of boating, sunbathing and relaxing, climaxed by a cook-out. Joe Goodman and Jimmy Lee are the co-ordinators for the outing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Snowden Jr. plan to attend the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters three-day convention in Charlotte, which begins tomorrow.

Visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theibert Worthington in Ayden are their daughter, Mrs. Grace Armstrong, and children of Anderson, S. C.

AT MOOSEHEART TODAY—(left to right) Josephine Dees, Earline Coghill and Love Cox, to receive highest honor bestowed by Women of the Moose.

Degree Conferred On Members

The College of Regents Degree was conferred today on three members of Greenville Chapter 1308, Women of the Moose. The women receiving this highest honor of the WOTM were Earline Coghill, Jo Dees and Love Cox. They were in Mooseheart, Ill. today where the College of Regents was bestowed in the House of God. Seven members of the Greenville Chapter now hold this distinction. All three have served terms as Junior Regent, Senior Regent and Junior Graduate Regent. Earline Coghill and Jo Dees have also filled the post of Recorder. Love Cox is the only charter member of the group. Earline Coghill has been a member eight years, and Jo Dees for seven years. For two years Jo Dees won statewide recognition for sponsoring new members. They will return to Greenville Tuesday evening. The Chapter's four other members who hold the College of Regents Degree are: Betty Smith, Louise Carrigan, Bonnie Singleton and Lily Belle Briley.

Rev. Upchurch Society Speaker

Pakistan was the subject of the program given by the Rev. Percy B. Upchurch when he spoke to the Woman's Missionary Society Monday night.

The meeting, held in the Fellowship Room of the Memorial Baptist Church, was opened with the singing of a hymn followed by the devotion given by the club president, Miss Grace Smith.

Rev. Upchurch, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, took his program from the Royal Service magazine, which was the study of Pakistan.

A short business meeting followed the program and an announcement was made that the Baptist Youth Camp would be held June 25-29 at Chowan College.

Family Touch

PARIS—(WNS)—Trainers of the Racing Club, the French professional football team, have decreed that wives of players must attend the team dinner that precedes each game. Having women present removes team tension at the same time that it inspires players to go out and win.

Today's Menu

SUNDAY SUPPER

When you want a hearty spring-time dessert to serve after a light main course, this homey pudding may fill the bill.

Fish and Vegetable Chowder Crusty Cheese Bread Rhubarb Pandowdy Beverage

RHUBARB PANDOWDY 3/4 cup sifted flour 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder 1/2 teaspoon salt 1-3 cup enriched white cornmeal 3/4 cups firmly packed light brown sugar 1/4 cup shortening 2 eggs 1/4 cup milk Rhubarb Sauce

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and cornmeal. In a medium mixing bowl, beat together thoroughly the brown sugar, shortening and eggs. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, stirring well after each addition. Spoon one-half of the Rhubarb Sauce over the bottom of a buttered 8 by 8 by 2 inch baking pan. Spoon batter over the sauce; spreading evenly. Bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven 35 to 40 minutes or until tester inserted in batter comes out clean. Rhubarb Sauce will go to bottom leaving an attractive brown-red color on the top. Serve with vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

Rhubarb Sauce: In a medium saucepan, bring 3/4 cup granulated sugar and 3-4 cup water to a boil. Add 2 cups (1 pound) 1/2-inch pieces rhubarb and 1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca. Cook, stirring often, until sauce thickens—about 10 minutes.

To reduce the frequency of scrubbing floors finished with self-polishing wax, mop often and quickly with a light solution of soap or detergent suds in cool water.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr. went to Pamlico Beach last Friday for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Riddick have returned from Black Creek where they spent some time with Mrs. Lena Bass Newsome Worsley and baby Shannon. Mr. and Mrs. Steve R. and Mrs. Sam Andrews and son, Sammy were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newsome, Sr., in Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Whitley and grandson, Russ, spent some time in Vanceboro this week with Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Whitley and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst and son, Bud spent the weekend at Atlantic Beach in the Whitehurst summer home.

News And Notes From Bethel

June Meeting of Bethel Society Miss Camille Stator, president of the Bethel Woman's Society of Christian Service, opened the June meeting reading the Purpose of the Society. Mrs. J. C. Wynne, Jr., program chairman, introduced Mrs. L. G. Manning, who presented the program.

She spoke on the duties of Deaconesses and Missionaries. She was assisted by Miss Carol Manning and Miss Grace James, who through a panel discussion, described the services of these groups.

Mrs. Manning concluded her program with a prayer. The minutes were read and approved, and the treasurer's report given. Miss Stator presided over the business portion of the meeting, after which she gave a brief resume of her attendance at the General Assembly held at Atlantic City in May.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr. went to Pamlico Beach last Friday for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Riddick have returned from Black Creek where they spent some time with Mrs. Lena Bass Newsome Worsley and baby Shannon. Mr. and Mrs. Steve R. and Mrs. Sam Andrews and son, Sammy were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newsome, Sr., in Bethel.

The Neglected Items Costly, Too

This is the time of year when local government officials have to face up to the problems of balancing budget requests with anticipated revenues and weighing needs of their counties and communities against the boogaboo tax rate.

It is the season when local governments throughout North Carolina are beginning to shape their budgets for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

Most public officials are keenly aware of the needs of the communities or counties for which it is their responsibility to set policies, fix spending and provide revenue to offset the proposed spending. Some officials contend the needs of the county or city can be dealt with only in so far as the existing tax revenues will permit. Others take the attitude that the needs must be considered carefully on the basis of their merit and that revenues must be found to meet those needs which cannot be ignored.

There is always the prevailing sentiment to hold the line against tax increases. In some instances, however, this fails to give proper consideration to the needs of the community, its welfare and its future progress. It often sets the stage for the necessity of greater spending in the future to make up for items neglected in the past. It often permits a degeneration of services the community needs from its local government.

In short, as a policy for local government, it can be just as dangerous and shortsighted as the tendency to spend and tax with reckless abandon.

As officials of Pitt County and its individual municipalities approach the problem of setting budgets for the coming fiscal year, we trust they will weigh carefully all factors which should be considered in such an important task. We trust they will give due consideration both to the responsibility of local government in meeting the needs of its people and at the same time to keeping the cost of government within sound and practical limits.

The officials must reconcile the questions of what the local government can afford to do in the way of spending and what it cannot afford to neglect in meeting the needs of the community and its people.

The Price Can't Be Equated With A Life

Gov. Sanford's appeal for better highway safety in North Carolina should not fall on deaf ears among citizens of the state.

The lives that are taken on the highways of the state each year belong to citizens of North Carolina. The effort put forth to reduce this carnage on our highways must come from the citizens of the state as a whole if it is to be effective.

While the program outlined by Gov. Sanford will by no means eliminate the tragedy on our highways, it can go a long way toward reducing the terrible toll taken month after month and year after year. It represents a practical approach to getting to the real cause of most accidents, the heart of the problem North Carolina faces.

Stiffer penalties for those who violate traffic laws may not be pleasant for some citizens to contemplate. More rigid testing of some groups of citizens who apply for driver's licenses may be viewed as unfair or discriminatory. Spending funds to hire more highway patrolmen to prevent accidents and more engineers to build safer highways may appear to have too large a price tag for the state.

But what is more unpleasant than the thought of a life unnecessarily snuffed out on the highway, or a child crippled for life by a careless driver? Is it more unfair to an individual to require that he pass a stiffer test in order to obtain a driver's license, or to the public to license a person of questionable driving ability?

The price tag for more patrolmen and engineers may be high indeed, but who would attempt to set a price on the lives which are lost on our highways each year for lack of patrolmen and engineers in adequate numbers to meet the needs of the state?

North Carolina needs the kind of comprehensive and far-reaching highway safety program outlined by the state which will have such a program only if that the state will have such a program only if the people of the state lend their support to it.

Optimistic On U.S. Economy

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has made it clear — at his first news conference since the shocking stock market dip May 28 — that he is standing pat.

With one exception — a promise to ask Congress for an income tax cut for everyone but not effective before next year — he is offering no new proposals to juice up the economy.

This is the position he takes: 1. Stock market prices were too high anyway and figured to dip a bit.

2. The economy — is sound and should continue to improve.

3. He is not going to be stampeded into emergency actions. He is simply asking Congress to put through proposals he made before the stock market dive. He will make a new proposal on the income tax cut later.

4. He will insist — despite protests by some business leaders — that prices and wages be kept down to prevent inflation. It was his previous insistence on this that brought on the steel dispute.

5. Thursday's news conference he rejected any thought of excited reaction to the stock market with this statement: "I think most financial experts have realized for some time that an overpriced market could not hold up once investors recognized that inflation was ended."

This was a reminder that he had laid down his national anti-inflation policy last spring when he pressed the steel industry and the steel union into a settlement without wage or price boosts.

His purpose: To call a halt to the endless spiral of rising wages and prices.

Kennedy's optimism about steady improvement in the economy reflected the optimism of his own advisers whom he consulted in a special meeting the morning after the market plunged.

He said Thursday: "While our recovery from last year's recession has been a good one, production, profits and employment are at all time highs, and the prospects for continued economic expansion remain favorable.

"In view of corporate and consumer cash on hand, we should take every appropriate step to make certain that recovery is stronger and longer than before and is not cut short by a new recession."

Then he outlined the steps he wants to take to keep the economy sound. With one exception they were all proposals he had made before, some as long as a year ago, but which are still pending in Congress.

The exception was his promise to propose to Congress an income tax cut for everyone, but a cut which he does not want to be effective before Jan. 1. This means the cut would not affect the tax on income earned in 1962.

"Total government by whatever name we may call it which depends on forced labor instead of taxes on the earnings of free enterprise, is the enemy of human well-being, both material and spiritual." — Carl Bradburn, Current-Argus.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS ARE WE GRATEFUL?

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" asks the Psalmist; and he answers his question with the declaration: "I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord" (Psalm, 116: 12-13).

In other words, "I will thank the Lord and please Him by using what He has given me. The right use of His gifts will constitute my thanks for them."

This, of course, does not make utterances of gratitude unnecessary. Earnest words of thanksgiving should have a definite and important place in all our prayers. But words alone are not enough. There must be deeds. There must be the use of what God has given us. He gives us health of body and mind? We thank Him best for these blessings by using them in a life devoted to His service. Has He given us a successful career? We must recognize Him as the Giver, use our success to His glory, and never do anything that detracts from His glory. Do we have beauty, attractive personality, abundant means? These are, almost exclusively, His gifts. We did little if anything, to create these privileges and blessings.

Nothing pleases God so much as the right use on our part of what He has graciously given us. A grateful use of our blessings is the true indication of our gratitude.

Davies Knew China

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In the discussions about Cuba and Indonesia, Laos and elsewhere, it is clear that the State Department, when Franklin D. Roosevelt was President, developed a concept that there were good dictators and bad dictators, honest men and dishonest men and that political judgements were to be based upon such psychological considerations.

This is brought out most clearly in a memorandum dated March 9, 1943, signed by John Davies, Jr., the Second Secretary of the American Embassy in China. Discussing the Stilwell Mission to China, Davies wrote:

"We recognized before December 7, 1941, that China was endeavoring to get us to fight its battle against Japan. There has been no reason for a change in this Chinese attitude and there has in fact been no change, despite the disillusioning shock of Pearl Harbor which struck the Chinese with as great force as it did us."

This was written on March 9, 1943. The Chinese had been fighting the Japanese since 1937. The Japanese had taken Manchuria and the major commercial port of Shanghai. China has stood alone for 10 years until the United States entered the war. Beset by Communist activities, supported by Russia, China had fought valiantly and unconquered.

But Davies wrote: "We have not been enough for the liking of the Russians, the British or the Chinese. With political considerations looming so large in their calculations they are each fighting not only the common enemies but also, in a negative fashion, their allies."

What allies did China really have in 1943? Could she have regarded the Russians as allies, knowing that for centuries it had been Russian policy to conquer China? Chiang Kai-shek would have been a fool had he not realized that in the war against Japan, he would have no ally in Soviet Russia. And the fact is that Russia never came into the Far Eastern war until it was really over and then came in, for about a week, for the kill.

Davies also made a great discovery: "A second fundamental difficulty confronting General Stilwell is that, in addition to his professional military task, he is involved, whether he likes it or not, in Chinese domestic politics."

Davies also wrote: "In his efforts to short-circuit domestic politics, General Stilwell is that, in addition to his professional military task, he is involved, whether he likes it or not, in Chinese domestic politics."

General Stilwell's task was to win the war. That is what he was sent to China to do. But he really set out to change China. The Chinese people have no concept of self-government. China had never been a national state. It was, in effect, a vast congregation of local self-governments—of village self-governments. Whereas the Emperor possessed great authority, the village was much like a New England township. If a man were asked what he belonged to, he would say Canton or Ningpo or some such place. It has always taken the finest diplomacy to hold China together. I do not mean only during the regime of Chiang Kai-shek, but throughout the history of the country.

It is possible to go on quoting Davies line by line to indicate an intellectual arrogance. Not even Mao Tse-tung has been able to change China. Davies wrote: "China is badly in need of the Puritan spirit. The Chinese have not produced it themselves excepting, in a modified form, in the Generalissimo. If the Chinese Army is to be retrained (Continued on page 81)

Other Editors Saying Our Bloody Highways

(Greensboro Daily News)

In yesterday's Daily News the same front page which announced the launching of Governor Sanford's intensive highway safety campaign also proclaimed the death of three persons on Interstate 85 inside Greensboro city limits.

These highway deaths (resulting when two cars sideswiped going in the same direction) simply underscored again the treacherous nature of high-speed highways. Like narcotics, they promote a false sense of security. (Notice that a small foreign car, eastbound in the other lane of the superhighway, struck the bridge railing and was damaged, "apparently when the driver was distracted by the accident occurring in the west-bound lane.")

In the same morning paper City Planning Director Ronald Scott suggested that a new supplementary road should be built south of Interstate 85 to take care of local traffic. Heavy local traffic uses Interstate 85, with frequent right and left turns made off the high-speed highway; dangerous situations are compounded.

All of this re-emphasizes the general problem of highway safety in a North Carolina fast losing its rural flavor. New circumstances demand new ideas, and the Governor suggests five steps to save lives and property:

- 1. Special legislation for young drivers.
2. Special legislation for drinking drivers.
3. More traffic engineers.
4. More highway patrolmen.
5. Court improvement.
All these ideas have merit. Teen-age drivers produce

Unhappy Over Tax Withholding

By ELMER ROESSNER

The proposed withholding taxes on dividends and interest are due for some paring before the tax bill now before Congress becomes law.

Protests are piling up on Senators' and Representatives' desks. There are two reasons: First: People with low incomes seldom have much money in savings accounts or securities. And, in many cases, it would cost more to collect the taxes on such small amounts than the taxes would be worth.

Second: A man with a low income (there are so many of us) has just as much voice in Government as the rarer man with high income—one vote each.

Suppose all taxpayers earning less than, say $5,000 a year were exempted from withholding taxes on interest and dividends. The Government wouldn't be too unhappy because it would lose little in revenues. The vote-powerful "little man" would be happy.

The large company, with many small stockholders, and mentioned middle-man and shipping costs easing for years now. Steel Squeezed: The heavy stocks built up during the threat of a steel strike are still being worked off. While new orders aren't dropping, they aren't exactly soaring, either. Production, which is creeping along at something like 54 percent of capacity, isn't likely to make any real rise. Most likely it will dip further as the auto plants close down for summer model changeover and not get in stride again until new cars start rolling off the lines.

What's in a Name? A great deal, according to the way companies are changing their names. Design Sense, a marketing publication, reports that 133 firms listed on the New York Stock Exchange, one out of 10, have changed their names in the last six years. The main trends are towards names suggesting a broadened range of activity, towards new names and towards initials. Look for a new, fourth trend in the future — combination names to cover all the big mergers in the wind.

A CHIP OFF THE OLD STOCK "The recent shenanigans of the stock market," the Old Promoter expounded, "reminded me of a book I read some years ago. It was called A Dog's Head and was written by a Frenchman."

"The connection is obscure," I said. "No," not really. You see it was the sad story of a man who has been born with a dog's head on his shoulders instead of the usual equipment. He was of the usual equipment. He was a very unhappy man."

"Logical, so far," I said. "So, he began investing in stocks. He immediately learned the secret of how to play the market and quickly became wealthy. For a time his wealth brought him happiness. I just wonder why the investors who took such a drubbing last week never learned the one simple rule he so easily discovered."

"What was the secret?" we asked excitedly. "Sell high and buy low."

All Anxious To Clear The Air

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES BURCH-BREWER — There were sighs of relief around Raleigh when the Burch-Brewer influence peddling case went to trial, and there are likely to be more when it's over.

Many feel that whatever happens, or whatever the outcome, it will clear the air, and that until the case is aired in court the affair would continue to build up political implications and whisperings.

The case involving influence peddling charges against Raleigh businessman-politician Kidd Brewer, former state highway engineer Robert A. Burch and Burch's son, Robert M. (Bobby) Burch, has political overtones even in court.

These were hinted about even in jury selection and in the producing of lists of witnesses to be called by the state and by the defense.

Brewer himself is a familiar figure in Raleigh, with many friends and acquaintances in government and politics. He was a candidate for lieutenant governor several years ago.

TRIAL—Urgings for a speedy trial came from both sides. But district solicitor Lester Chalmers contended that more time was needed to obtain witnesses and to prepare the state's case. In the meantime, the state's case was altered and a new 12-count indictment was obtained.

Brewer's attorney opposed delay at earlier hearings in the case, and said his client was ready for trial. Judge Raymond Mallard set a firm trial date, and it began on schedule. Chalmers, who is retiring at the end of this term, has been an especially busy man during the past year—with the basketball bribe scandals, investigations and indictments and then the Burch-Brewer case.

He is being assisted in the courtroom work in the trial by his assistant, W. G. (Buck) Ransdell who will succeed him as solicitor, and by a special prosecutor, Charles T. Hagan of Greensboro. Hagan was hired and will be paid his fee by the state. Chalmers asked for the assistant and Hagan was retained.

Attorney William T. Hatch, himself a former superior court judge, remarked during the early part of the trial that it was the first time to his knowledge that the state had retained a special prosecutor. Gov. Sanford, who has a strong legal and investigative background, did much of the early investigating himself leading to his shocker of last January—the firing of Burch for being "too closely associated" with Brewer in connection with funds received from sign material companies doing business with the state.

Sanford later turned the case over to the attorney general's office, and to Chalmers, with the promise of assistance if needed.

FIGURES—If federal judge John Larkins and Dr. I. Beverly Lake appear as character witnesses for the defense, as scheduled, there will be three of the four candidates in the May, 1960, Democratic primary for governor in the same courtroom—and on the same side.

The third is former state attorney general Malcolm Seawell, defense attorney for Brewer.

The fourth candidate in the 1960 Democratic primary, of course, is the man at the head of Fayetteville street, Governor Terry Sanford.

WITNESSES—The blurbtibbon list of witnesses ready to be called in the Burch-Brewer trial had grown since Judge Raymond Mallard began the proceedings earlier this week.

On the first day, the state's list of witnesses jumped by about 25 and now totals more than 80. It is unlikely that all of them will be called.

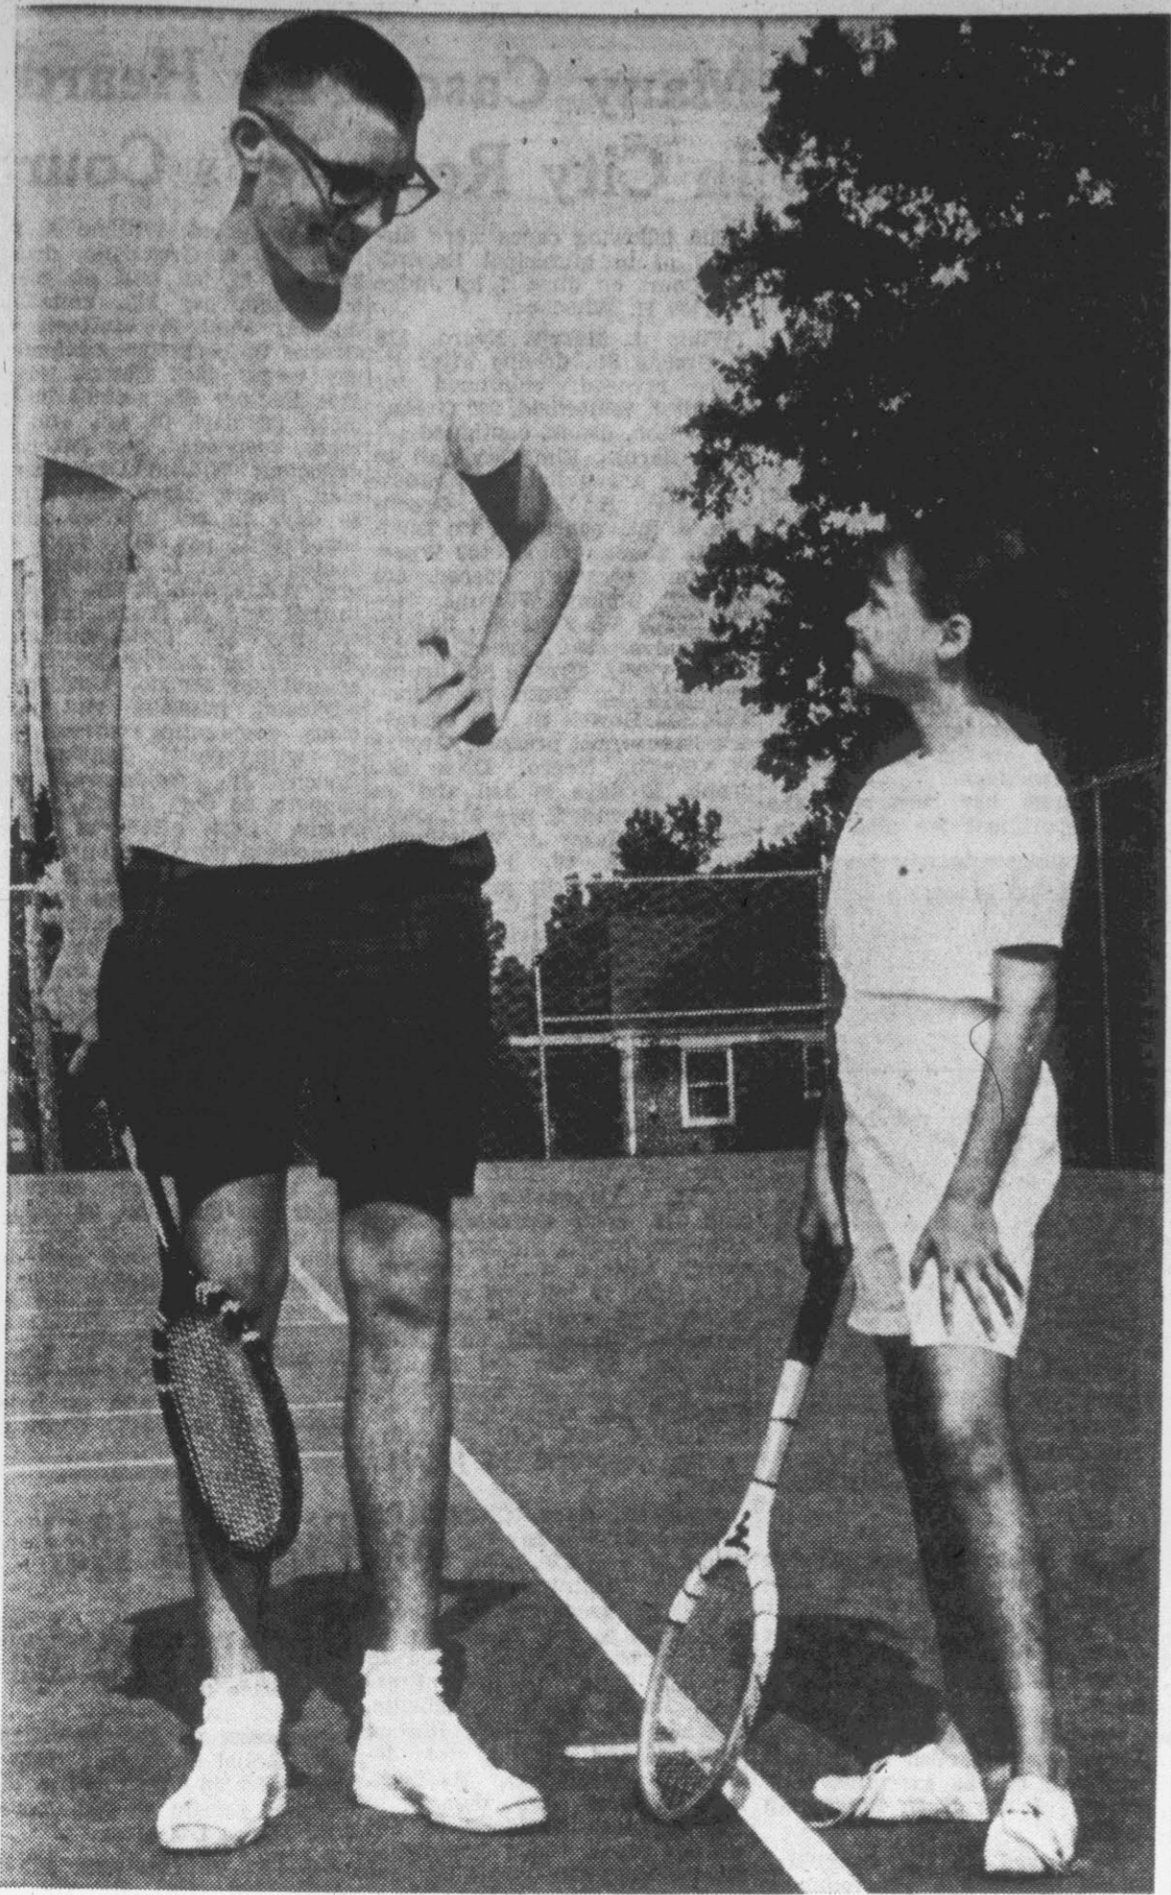

The list is a tentative one, depending on the progress of the trial. Some of those listed have not been summoned.

Those who were in court, however, included Sanford's top aide, director of administration-budget director Hugh Cannon, and W. F. Babcock, state highway director.

In addition to Larkins, former state Democratic chairman and aide to governors, Dr. Lake, who may run again for governor, the list of defense character witnesses includes the dean of elected state officials, Secretary of State Thad Eure, State agriculture commissioner L. Y. (Staz) Ballentine, and leaders in church, education and civic affairs.

Duke University officials are on the list of witnesses because of the funds Brewer deposited with Duke for scholarships for Burch's son.

Yank-Problem-Plagued Hurling Staff Finds No-Run Specialty

Jim Beatty Claims World Record For Two-Mile Run

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Explosive little Jim Beatty claimed a world record of 8:29.8 for two miles Saturday, the first by an American at this distance since 1936.

The 5-foot-6, 126-pound Beatty uncorked the run in the Southern Pacific AAU Track and Field Championships at Occidental College's Patterson Field Friday night. He races for the Los Angeles Track Club.

He bettered the recognized record of 8:32 flat made by Australia's Albert Thomas in Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 7, 1958.

Murray Halberg of Australia was credited with 8:30 flat in a race in Finland in 1951 but it was never recognized.

The 27-year-old native New Yorker, adopted son of Charlotte, N.C., and now living here, disclosed he took dead aim at the record.

"I wouldn't have started it if I didn't think I had a chance for a record," Beatty said.

It was the dark-haired, personable Beatty's first run since March 31 in the Santa Barbara Easter Relays when he clocked off 4:02.6 in the anchor lap of a medley relay. He has been sidelined with three separate leg injuries.

The last time an American's name graced the record book was that of Don Lash of Indiana, who was credited with being the first American to break nine minutes in the 2-mile grind.

En route to the 2-mile mark Beatty broke the American record of 8:40.8 set by Halberg at Palo Alto Jan. 7, 1961, and the American citizen's mark of 8:42.5 held by Dyrol Burleson of Oregon.

Carolina Dairy came from behind last night to defeat College View by a score of 9-7.

College View opened the scoring in the bottom of the first as they tallied three runs on one hit, Joyner, Mullins, and Nichols all scored for College View to provide them with a 3-0 lead.

In the top of the second, Carolina Dairy came right back in the contest on a grand slam home run by Kenneth Brown. With Bobby Yopp, Benny Hooks and Gary Fields on the bases after being walked, Brown connected with the next pitch to send it deep to centerfield. Tommy Skinner, College View's centerfielder, made a diving catch of the ball and fell over the fence. The umpires ruled the hit a home run and Carolina Dairy surged into the lead 4-3.

College View fought back in the bottom of the second to score two runs and take back the lead 5-4. However, Carolina Dairy continued to put the pressure on as they rallied for three runs in the fifth. They went on to win 9-7.

Jimmy Heath was the winning pitcher for the victors. He struck out ten, walked three, and allowed seven runs on six hits. Moye, the losing pitcher, struck out seven, walked ten, and gave up nine runs on four hits.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Georgia Southern and Portland (Ore.) State will meet tonight in the finals of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Baseball Tournament.

Georgia Southern beat Portland 5-2 Friday to remain unbeaten in the double elimination tourney.

Portland came back in the losers' bracket to thump Lewis College of Illinois 8-1, leaving Lewis in third place.

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP)—"Holy cow," said promoter Lou Durva today, "there I was in the ring and everyone is swinging at everyone else."

"It's a real donnybrook. Me, I'm in there as a peacemaker. When they start swinging at me, so I get out in a hurry. I don't want to get killed."

That's how the Don McAteer-Tom McNeely heavyweight bout wound up here Friday night—with at least 20 fans in the ring, all swinging for all they were worth.

The cops arrived on the scene and escorted McNeely, McAteer and referee Paul Cavalier out. Cavalier had just awarded the bout to McAteer after disqualifying McNeely for low blows.

But it's doubtful if anyone heard him. The 2,000-off spectators in Gladiators arena were in an uproar. Some had climbed in the ring even before he announced his decision at 2:40 of the sixth of the scheduled 10.

Cavalier, senior referee in New Jersey, warned both McNeely, who lost to Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight title last December, and McAteer for low blows and hitting. Then in the fifth, he stepped between them again and warned both.

Just as the fifth ended, a group of fans at ringside started throwing punches at each other.

In the sixth, McNeely—who hasn't won a fight since the Patterson bout—had McAteer on the ropes. He fired four low blows and that was enough for Cavalier. The New Jersey State Athletic Commission will have the final say. Commissioner Joseph F. Walker held up McNeely's purse. McNeely weighed 199, McAteer 179.

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—For once, Sam Snead wasn't complaining about his putting—he couldn't very well.

But he must have thrown a few apprehensive glances over his shoulder long after leaving the Upper Montclair Country Club where he posted a second round 66 and a 136 total for the 36-hole lead in the $100,000 Classic Golf Tournament.

Snead, who habitually moans about putts that won't drop, canned a dozen good ones early Friday. Then, with hardly a comment, he disappeared while the rest of the field tried to catch up to him.

No one succeeded in catching Sam during the long, hot afternoon, but Gene Littler, Dave Marr and Earl Stewart all came close. They tied for second at the 36-hole mark with 138s.

One stroke farther back was slender Paul Harney and at 140 were Gay Brewer, the first round leader; Dow Finsterwald, Frank Boynton, Wes Ellis and Buster Cupit, chief of a pair of sharp-shooting brothers. The younger, Jacky Cupit, was among five tied at 141.

The putts that dropped were the high spots of Snead's second round, after an opening 70. He missed seven greens, but wound up six under par for the day and eight under for two rounds over the 7,055-yard, par 72 Upper Montclair course.

He one-putted eleven greens, chipped in once and three-putted only once for a total of 24 putts on 18 holes. And that came on a day when such ordinary steady putters as Littler and Arnold Palmer weren't able to sink any good ones on the eccentric greens.

"I didn't play so badly if I could have putted at all decent," said Palmer after posting a 74 for a 147 total that barely put him among the 96 pros who survived the first cut in the field. The cutoff score was 149.

"My putting wasn't as good as yesterday but I wouldn't complain too much. You don't often hit 'em as good as I did them," said Littler. He had an opening round of 67, then had to can a 20-foot putt, his longest of the day, for a second round 71.

Security Life Tops Elks; Texaco Defeats Coca-Cola

TARHEEL

Security Life took an early lead yesterday and staved off some late runs by the Elks to win 5-3.

In the bottom of the first, Security Life tallied three runs on two hits. Tommy Cox led the frame off as he walked to bring Berry Sautler to the plate. Sautler followed with a single to advance Cox to second. With one out, Richard Spivey singled to drive Cox in with the first run of the game. Sautler scored later in the inning on an error while Spivey crossed the plate on a passed ball.

Cox led the frame off for Security Life again in the second as he received his second base on balls. Sautler collected his second hit of the day as he slammed a triple to score Cox. With one out, Spivey singled to drive in Sautler and give Security Life their 5-0 lead.

The Elks began to fight back in the top of the fourth as they scored one run on one hit. Bobby Lee led the frame off with a walk but was forced out at second on a ground ball hit by Ken Beamon. Louis Gaylord followed with a double to score Beamon and set the score at 5-1.

In the top of the fifth, the Elks continued to press for runs as they tallied two runs on two hits. Tim Foley, the first batter, reached first safely on an error to put the Elks in scoring position. With one away, Russell Smith singled to advance Foley to third. Smith moved to second later in the inning on a stolen base. With two outs, John Jones doubled to drive Foley and Smith across the plate and set the score at 5-3.

However, neither team scored in the remainder of the contest and the score ended 5-3.

NORTH STATE

Texaco scored four runs in the first inning yesterday and went on to defeat Coca-Cola by a score of 9-2.

In the top of the first, Texaco collected two hits which provided them with their four run surge. Randy Warren led the inning off with a base on balls to bring Joe West to the plate. West singled to move Warren to second. Bobby Hardy followed with a double to rightfield to drive in Warren and West and give Texaco a 2-0 advantage.

Leon Peadon, the next batter, walked to keep Texaco's rally alive. Both Hardy and Peadon later came in to score on passed balls to provide Texaco with a 4-0 first inning lead.

Texaco returned in the top of the second to gain two additional runs on two hits. Coca-Cola was unable to score in their half of the inning although William Moye singled and Trent Hill followed with a walk to put two runners on bases.

Coca-Cola produced one run in the bottom of the fourth on two hits. Mike Mills playing his second game of little league ball, opened the inning with a sharp single to rightfield. With one out, Bill Rivers walked to bring Barry Stell to the plate. Stell dropped down a perfect bunt and all runners were safe as Mills came in to score on the play.

Texaco continued their scoring surge by collecting three runs in the fifth on no hits. Alfred Tetterton, Jimmy Paize, and Peadon provided Texaco with the runs.

Coca-Cola collected one run in the bottom of the sixth, but this was not enough as Texaco went on to win 9-2.

At Elm Street Park today, the Lions met the Optimist in the first game of a doubleheader at 3:00. Pepsi-Cola and the Moose played in the second contest. Texaco 420 030-9 1 2

AAU Wrestling Is International

NEW YORK (AP)—The AAU Wrestling Committee formed an international section Friday. It was the first AAU committee to form such a group, designed to meet college objections to the handling of international competition.

Nine individual AAU committees plan to form international sections, to handle the conduct and administration of international competition. College groups, including the NCAA which is battling the AAU for control of U.S. amateur sports, are being invited to join.

Four NCAA coaches, Fendley Collins, Michigan State; Cliff Kenn, Michigan; Jim Miller, Cornell and Myron Roderick, Oklahoma State, attended the organization meeting, along with four AAU representatives and a member from the YMCA and one from the Jewish Welfare Board.

John C. Mendel of New York was elected chairman. Ray Swartz of the Naval Academy was selected to represent wrestling on the foreign relations committee of the AAU.

Snead Putts, No Moans Heard

Special Events Set For ECC Summer Term

East Carolina College, opening Monday, June 11, for the 1962 Summer Term, will present during two sessions, June 11-July 17 and July 18-August 23, a series of special educational events planned largely for public school teachers and graduate students.

Two travel-study tours are featured during the first Summer Session. The college's Third Grand Tour of Europe began Friday, June 8, when 26 members met in New York City with Mrs. Myrtle B. Clark, director, before a jet-plane flight abroad. Thirty-six members of a tour of the northwestern United States will leave Greenville June 11 for a trip across the nation, to the World's Fair in Seattle, and to various points of economic, historical, geographical, and cultural interest. Dr. R. E. Cramer, of the Department of Geography is director.

During the First Summer Session workshops to be offered include Arts and Crafts, June 25-July 6; Drawing and Painting, June 11-22, both for elementary teachers; Elementary Music Education, June 11-22; Alcoholism in Health Education, June 12-22; Church Music, June 25-29; Reading Institute, June 25-July 7; Directed Observation in the Kindergarten, presented in five one-week periods June 11-15, 18-22, 25-29, July 2-6 and 9-13.

Clinics during the First Session include Football, Basketball, and Baseball, June 28-29, and Summer Reading Clinic, June 11-17. Sponsored by the National Science Foundation, a Summer Institute for Junior High School Teachers of Earth Science, Biology, and Physics, July 16-August 24, will bring to the campus 49 teachers from North and South Carolina, Florida, Oklahoma, Kentucky, New York, Ohio, Virginia, Illinois, Tennessee, California, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Mexico, and Indiana. Dr. Frank W. Eller of the East Carolina Science Department will direct the Institute. The Ninth Annual Summer Music Camp for junior and senior high school students and for music teachers is scheduled for July 22-August 4. Approximately 500 people from states along the Atlantic seaboard have registered for the event, one of the college's most popular summer programs. Courses in fifteen departments of instruction and in the Schools of Business and Nursing will be taught during the summer.

New Principal For Ayden High School

Edward N. Warren has resigned as district principal of the Belvoir-Falkland schools to accept the principalship of the Ayden High School following the resignation of Ayden Principal E. F. Johnson.

EDWARD WARREN

European Command for three and one-half years. He received the B. S. degree from Atlantic Christian College and holds a M. A. degree from East Carolina. Warren has also done some advance graduate work at Duke University.

The new Ayden principal taught science at Belvoir-Falkland High School for two years before he was named principal at the Falkland Elementary School. He remained in this position for five years and was then named District Principal which he has held for the past four years.

Warren, who was recently elected mayor of Falkland by write-in votes, said he will resign this post when he moves to Ayden sometime in July.

"I am looking forward to working with the people of Ayden very much. They are very educational minded," Warren stated. He is a past president of the Falkland Ruritan Club; Secretary-Treasurer of the Fire Department; a member of the Board of Deacons of the Falkland Presbyterian Church; President of the Belvoir United Fund; a member of the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Mental Health Association; a member of Phi Delta Kappa education fraternity, and a member of the NCEA, and the NEA and the State Principals Association. Warren is also vice-president of the Pitt County NCEA and president of the Pitt County Athletic Association.

He is married to the former Joan Braswell.

Summer Program Talked By Recreation Directors

Summer recreation directors in Pitt County attended a Summer Recreation Workshop at Elm Street Park Thursday under the direction of Miss Virginia Gregory of the State Recreation Commission in Raleigh.

Miss Gregory discussed recreational projects, suggested activities, and illustrated how arts and crafts could be used with different age groups. Displays of free materials were exhibited at the workshop and Miss Gregory instructed the group as to places where the directors could obtain free materials to be used for the summer.

Mrs. Edith Casey, Greenville playground supervisor, said yesterday that the recreation program for children of all ages would open in Greenville on Monday, June 18. She and 13 other recreational leaders attended the summer workshop in which Greenville and Red Springs were represented.

Mrs. Casey stated that there will be a director at each Greenville park to help with the summer recreational program which will last seven weeks.

She announced that hours at the Greenville Parks for supervised recreation will be 9 a. m. to noon and 3 p. m. to 6 p. m. on Monday through Friday. The support and attendance of the Little League games which are already underway here.

On the 1962 Greenville summer recreation staff are Gordon Goodman, recreation director; Mrs. Jan Agner, recreation supervisor; W. C. James, athletic director; and Dalton Sullivan, maintenance department supervisor.

Among Grads At Morgan State

Mrs. Beulah Mae Weeks Forbes, a native of Greenville, was one of 286 students to be graduated at Morgan State College in Baltimore, Md., this week.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weeks of Greenville and graduated from the C. M. Eppes School here in 1957. She attended Shaw University in Raleigh for two years. After her marriage at the end of her sophomore year, she joined her husband, James Forbes of Pitt County, at Morgan State College.

Mrs. Forbes has now made her home in Baltimore.

Mercury Down To 54 Degrees

No rainfall has been recorded in the Greenville area in the past 24 hours according to William Mills of the Greenville Utilities Plant.

Mills stated that the temperature here at midnight last night was 64 degrees. Readings at 4 a. m. today had dropped to the 59 degree mark by 8 a. m.; the temperature had risen to 70 degrees.

The river gauge was measured at 4.3 this morning.

Dantfelt, Mrs. Earl Trevathan, Mrs. Garland Anderson, Mrs. Robert Helms and Mrs. Max Ray Joyner; Junior, Mrs. James Gilliland, Mrs. Marshall Helms, Mrs. Fred Wood, Mrs. Alison Moss and Mrs. Raymond Fleming.

Refreshments will be served by the Women of the Church during the morning break, and each day's program will be concluded at 12:00 o'clock.

Pitt Sanitarians Are Elected To Head Groups

Linwood Kilpatrick, chief sanitarian for the Pitt-Health Department, was elected president of the Eastern Affiliate of the North Carolina Public Health Association yesterday.

Fred Wood, senior sanitarian with the Pitt department, was elected president of the Sanitation Section at the same time. The Eastern affiliate comprises 35 Eastern North Carolina counties. It includes health workers, clerks, secretaries, nurses, sanitarians and health directors.

The Eastern Affiliate met at Nags Head Friday and Saturday. A general session was followed section meetings.

Kilpatrick has been with the Pitt department for nine years.

He is originally from Kinston and he graduated from East Carolina College. He served with the U. S. Public Health Service for about two years before taking a job with the Pitt Health Department.

He has been chairman of the Northeastern Section of Sanitarians and on the executive committee of the N. C. Sanitarian section.

He served on the committee which drew up a bill requiring registration of sanitarians which passed in the last General Assembly. This created the State Board of Sanitarian Examiners. He is also serving on the education committee of the N. C. Sanitation Section.

Wood has been with the Pitt department for three and a half years. He is a graduate of East Carolina College and is originally from Fayetteville. His wife is from Banner Elk and they have one son, The Woods live in Greenville.

Might Change Teaching Rules

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Education will receive at its August meeting proposed teacher certification requirements.

The main point of the new program would be to require prospective teachers to take more academic subjects, and few courses in how to teach.

Class Of 1942 Gathers Tonight

Members of the Greenville high school graduating class of 1942 will hold a 20th anniversary banquet tonight at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Of the 98 members of the graduating class, 94 are still living and 58 are expected to be present tonight. Members of the class are expected from as far away as California.

Arrangements for the reunion have been under the direction of Leonard Briley of Greenville who served as president of the class. Other class officers included Capt. James Briley of the Air Force, Leonard Briley's twin, vice president; Mrs. Rachel Fleming Edwards of Greenville, secretary; and Mrs. Lib Bridges Wilkerson of Greenville, treasurer.

In addition to members of the class, faculty members who taught the class during its high school days have been invited to the reunion. Among those attending will be Dr. Vester Mulholland of Raleigh who served as principal of the high school at the time the class graduated.

ed. It must be through General Stilwell. What he says sometimes stings the Chinese. But it has not gone wholly unappreciated. More than a score of high-ranking Chinese officers have come to him privately telling him that he was doing China a great service by his forthrightness, that he is needed, and to keep on going straight down the road. And as has been said, even his political enemies have been impressed by what he has in six months produced at Ramgarh. He may yet perform what has seemed possible — cause the launching of a Chinese offensive against the Japanese. If it happens it will have been a one-man achievement."

And that is what policy was based on!

Skilled Craftsmen in Demand in the Printing Industry

(Reprinted from the News and Observer issue of May 16.)

MURFREESBORO, N. C.—Members of the 1962 graduating class of Chowan College School of Graphic Arts are either already placed in positions or are obligated for employment, according to John McSweeney, director of the school of printing.

"It happens every year—more job opportunities than graduates," McSweeney said. "The school could place three times its present number of men and women in good-opportunity jobs with newspapers and commercial printing plants."

McSweeney said results of a recent survey made by the school of printing show employers reporting a great need in the publishing-printing industry for young men and women with education and training.

If you are a high school graduate, 18 to 40 years of age, you can study the PRINTING TRADE in an accredited college for one or two terms.

Many Memories In 41 Years Of Carrying Mail

FAMILIAR SCENE . . . W. M. Mizelle puts on his gloves and hat as he pauses before getting into the 1939 Chevrolet which he drives on his rural mail route. Snow blanketed the area in this February 1940 photograph.

By MARTI MARTIN
Reflector Staff Writer

BETHEL — With a Model "T" Ford, horse and buggy, a rather large mailbag, shovel, axe and boots, W. M. Mizelle began in 1921 a career as a rural mail carrier.

Now, after 41 years of service, Mizelle has just recently retired. But the years between his beginning and his retirement point sharply to the dedication and tradition established by the pony express riders in the 1860's.

True, there were no flying arrows, but there were days when Mizelle could have felt a little safer.

Mizelle wonders what anybody would have thought had they seen him on one such occasion: walking in waste high water, his clothes and shoes held high above his head and the old Model "T" Ford most definitely stalled in the swollen stream that crossed the road.

"There were three consecutive hills on my route," explained Mizelle, "and at the bottom of the last hill there was a little stream that meandered across the road. We didn't have a lot of bridges then and this particular stream that crossed my route had never been a problem."

"As I pulled over the last hill that September in 1923, I plunged into the stream, swollen by a great amount of rain, and the old Ford stalled quicker than a stubborn mule.

"The water started coming in the back seat of the car. I had to undress and carry my clothes across the stream and then redress and go and get help to pull out the car."

Mizelle smiled and said, "I guess I did look rather strange but all I could think about was getting the mail delivered and getting home."

Other Problems

But even before this, being a rural mail carrier presented problems. In the winter of 1927, the year prior to the stream incident, Mizelle was stopped again. This time it was snow . . . 17 inches of it.

"I had started on my mail route," said Mizelle, "and when I had driven about 10 miles from town, my car stuck in the snow. This is where the shovel and axe came in handy."

"After digging my way out, I luckily spotted a big truck that was going my way and I got behind him. I managed to get home that day without further mishap.

"The next day the weather was so bad I couldn't even get the car out of the driveway. It was two days later before I was able to make my full mail delivery," said Mizelle.

Two such memorial incidents in Mizelle's life most Pitt Counties should remember. He delivered mail during Hurricane Hazel and during the slippery six-inch snow that blanketed the area in the winter of 1958.

"The people on my mail route have always been very friendly," he recalled. "There were many times when someone would call me into their homes and give me dry socks and shoes and the warmth of a cozy fire to 'thaw out' before I started back to finish my route or to head for home."

During the early days of his career, Mizelle would switch from his car to deliver mail from a horse and buggy when weather conditions, such as mud and snow, made roads impassable.

He has driven through rain, snow, sleet, swollen streams and hurricanes and has never had an accident.

In fact, if his miles were totaled for the period of his service, he could have been around the world 25 times. As he points out, "that's a lot of miles — car or buggy."

Started in Jamesville

Mizelle began his career as a rural mail carrier in Jamesville, N. C., where he served 15 years.

The next three years were spent in the area around Columbia, N. C., and he added 23 years more to his total when he began in the Bethel area where he now resides.

In Jamesville, he served under Postmasters Alexander Corcoran, Jim Davenport, R. O. Martin and E. H. Ance. In Columbia he worked under Postmasters Ray Cohoon, Tom Armstrong and Mrs. Effie Brickhouse.

During his 23 years of service to the Bethel area, Mizelle has been under Postmaster F. L. Andrews, Jr.

Mizelle served over 3,500 persons during his career in Tyrrell, Washington, Martin, Edgecombe and Pitt Counties.

He was presented a retirement pin for 41 years of postal service, a certificate, and a letter from Postmaster General Edward Day at a recent dinner given in his honor by Bethel Postmaster F. L. Andrews, Jr. Postmaster General Day commended Mizelle for his years of faithful service. He wrote:

"I have been informed that since your appointment as a rural carrier, you have made many friends while performing your duties regardless of weather or other adverse conditions. Serving the patrons on your route over such a long period of time must be a source of considerable satisfaction to you.

"I wish to extend my warm and personal greetings and hope you will accept this honorary recognition certificate as a symbol of my deep appreciation for a lifetime of truly commendable service."

Mizelle has also received a 31 year pin for safe driving from the National Safety Council. The Safety Council began giving Safety Award pins in 1931. Years after Mizelle became a mail carrier.

Relatives are Carriers

While Mizelle was a rural carrier in Jamesville, his brother, R. L. Mizelle served as his route substitute.

Prior to beginning his career as a mail carrier, he worked on a farm in the Jamesville area where he was born. He married the former Mary Brown, also of Jamesville, in 1917.

When Mizelle became a rural mail carrier in Jamesville, he worked with another mail carrier in the area, his wife's brother, Walter L. Brown. Brown's substitute was his brother, Clyde Brown.

Whenever Mizelle is questioned about how he likes retirement, he answers that he really hasn't had enough time to try it out. He and his wife are kept busy raising and selling plants from their backyard vegetable and flower garden.

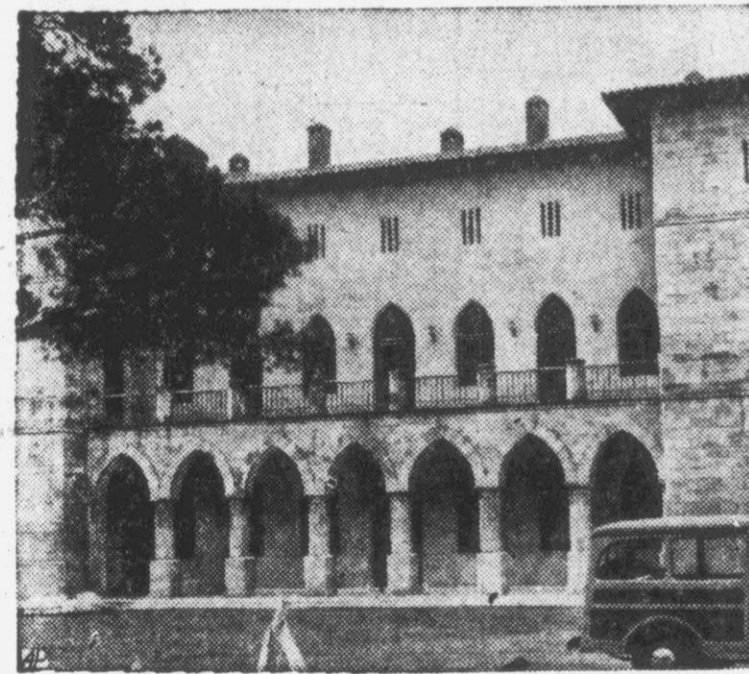

At the present, the Mizelles are raising Snapdragons, Asters, Petunias, Scarlet Sage, Sweet William, Zinnia, Marigolds, Candy Tuft and Basket-of-Gold. Besides this they are raising egg plants and a variety of tomato and pepper plants.

To top off the variety of their flower and vegetable garden, which measures 108 by 190 feet, they have a mixture of typical garden vegetables — such as beans, beats and onions.

Mizelle has erected a plastic greenhouse in his backyard in order to protect what he calls his "hobby" from those inevitable days that he remembers only too well — days that benumbed the hands and soaked his clothes.

Marble Guest House For VIP

MAIN ENTRANCE—Construction started on this marble villa, on Mt. Pentelicon outside Athens, Greece, in 1843. It has only recently been completed and will be used both by Crown Prince Constantine and as an official guest house. Architecture is Byzantine, with some gothic and Italian influence.

By D. J. TRAVIOS

ATHENS (AP) — Greece now has a marble guest house for the VIPs who visit this country in the wintertime.

They will, presumably, have to stay elsewhere in the summer, since 21-year-old Crown Prince Constantine has announced he will make it his summer residence.

The villa (some call it a palace), known as Rododaphni or the Oeanders, is on Mt. Pentelicon, only 10 miles from Athens. It was started in 1843 as a country chateau by the Duchess of Plaisance, a lady of Franco-American birth, but she never finished it.

Several Castles
Greece was ruled by the Ottoman Turks from the 15th century to the beginning of the 19th. And it was not possible during that time for noblemen to follow the European practice of building fine castles and residences. Therefore, large residences are most limited in Greece, though of modern (but more moderate) villas there are plenty. When the government decided the Oeanders could make a splendid guest house, civil engineer-architect Alexander Baltazzi offered his services gratuitously to complete the building. For the past three years he has been scouring the country to secure the various period materials that would harmonize in its completion.

The Duchess

The woman who planned the Oeander, the Duchess of Plaisance, was born in 1785, the daughter of the French charge d'affaires in Pennsylvania. In 1804 she married an aide de camp of Napoleon I, a General Lebrun who bore the title of Duke of Plaisance.

In 1824 she left her husband and established a home for herself and her daughter Elsie in Athens.

When this Athens residence burned in 1847 she built another town house, in Byzantine style like the Oeanders. It now houses the Byzantine Museum of Athens.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

To compare Lincoln with Bismarck and Lenin is not exactly American cricket. Yet this is what Edmund Wilson has done in his latest book, "Patriotic Gore," ostensibly an account of Civil War writing, but strong on controversial opinions. Mr. Wilson's Lincoln is not the sweet country boy, but a deeply intellectual, tenacious leader of the North in its power play to keep the South in its place. Southerners who minimize the importance of slavery as the cardinal issue leading to the War will receive comfort from Mr. Wilson.

More Gore

As for the picture of Lincoln, readers who have learned about him from Sandburg, Lord Charnwood, etc., will be puzzled. Mr. Wilson admits the difficulty, and roundly damns the romantic, sentimentalizing biographers. In fact, he calls Sandburg's opus insufferable.

Hard on the heels of chopping off some heads in his book, Mr. Wilson has published a self-interview in the New Yorker, where he trundles a few more reputations off to the critical guillotine. For example, Sir Winston Churchill: "A romantic American journalist infatuated with English history." Somerset Maugham: "a bad writer." C. P. Snow: "almost completely unreadable."

Among the younger American writers, he has a good word only for Salinger, Edwin O'Connor, and James Baldwin. Of the last he says: "He is not only one of the best Negro writers that we have ever had in this country, he is one of the best writers that we have."

Sick, Sick
While Wilson is representing Lincoln as an Iron Man, Dr. Abraham M. Gordon is restudying him medically. According to Dr. Gordon, Lincoln looked the way he did because he was afflicted by a disease known as Marfan's Syndrome. He believes that this rare malady not only strangely elongated Lincoln's skeleton but that it also affected his personality, contributing in very significant ways to his qualities as a leader.

Dr. Gordon has said, according to Newsweek, "I'd like to find out how much of Lincoln is Lincoln and how much is Marfan's Syndrome." If the good doctor can pull this off, he ought to go on and separate the real Milton from his blindness, Keats from his tuberculosis, and all of us from our physical liabilities which era so much a part of us.

No Children

In England, a new aspect of censorship has been revealed. Recently Malcolm Patton, a teenager, has been denied admission to the film "A Kind of Loving," which is there graded as adult entertainment. The strange twist is that Patton plays one of the leading roles in the movie.

Cousin Cult

The president of the McCall Corporation, which recently bought the Saturday Review, has announced that this magazine will be revamped to compete with the New Yorker. Rather contemptuously, he characterizes the present Saturday Review as a journal which currently "caters to a cult surrounding the editor, Norman Cousins." The trouble, of course, is that the New Yorker is out-selling the Saturday Review 4 to 1 in advertising space.

No Exaggeration

In Boston, Edward Kennedy wound up his campaign for the Senate nomination by assuring the electorate that, if sent to Washington, "I shall speak with a voice that will be heard."

The Financial Times of London pontificates on the stock market crisis: "Until confidence is restored the situation will inevitably remain anxious." (Continued on page 8)

His Puzzle-Making Began In A Prison

By BOB COOPER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Arthur Sheffield creates crossword puzzles. He maintains his occupation not only is his means of livelihood but that it once kept him from going insane.

Sherfield spent 23 years in Ohio and Kentucky prisons before being released in 1961.

He said he began making puzzles "to pass the time when I started what turned out to be 15 years in solitary confinement at the Ohio State Penitentiary.

"All I had was a Bible, a dictionary and a pencil stub with the eraser broken off," the 69-year-old Sheffield recalls. "I had to do something or I would have gone crazy. There was only 96 inches of walking space in that cell. It was five feet wide and eight feet long."

Puzzle making was only a hobby for Sheffield during his first year of confinement on a life term for bank robbery. Then he mailed puzzles to publishers. All were rejected.

After about two years, Elaine Balcomb, editor of four crossword magazines, bought a puzzle from Sheffield. Since then, Sheffield has been selling to a number of magazines, including the Balcomb publications. Currently, he does puzzles for six companies.

After 25 years at the Ohio prison, Sheffield received a parole. However, a court extradited him to Kentucky to serve three years for escape at Frankfort in 1933.

"I earned about $400 a month from puzzles, plus the eight cents a day for prison work while completing the sentence at Kentucky State Reformatory," he said.

He was freed in September 1961 and moved into a one-room efficiency apartment at Lexington, where he spends much of his time turning out puzzles.

"I can think up about five or six while I'm falling asleep at night," he said. "My income is whatever I want to make it. I can sell as many puzzles as I can produce."

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

People don't dig for treasure any more, or if they do, it isn't nosed about. But in those days before banks became the safe and trusted depositories that they are today, many people buried their money in and around their place.

A prime target for those who hoped to shovel themselves into a fortune was an abandoned home place of a person known to have money, or thought to have been rich. In no time the grounds around such a place looked like a prairie dog village — hills of dirt thrown up here and there.

According to those who have been on such a venture, or having heard people tell of being present at a digging, say it isn't a job for the faint-hearted.

His name was Clyde, and at last report, he lived near the Carolina-Virginia State line. His story can be taken with a grain of salt; but others when quizzed on the subject tell a variety of stories along the same line.

Old Chris hadn't moved out of the rocking chair on his porch for 15 years; that is, except when he was moved indoors for reasons of weather, to eat, or to be put to bed. There were a couple of young boys who used to stop by to talk to the old man who kept them open mouthed and silent with the stories he told. Soon two other boys joined the doorstep audience. This kept up for a week or more and what was going on must have been quite secret for every time anyone came within earshot, all talking ceased or turned to such things as the weather. Old Chris had been putting things into their ears that made their eyes widen and strange feelings run up and down their spine. It also gave them visions of wealth beyond their wildest dreams.

He had been telling them about buried treasure. And that is why there had to be four boys in on the scheme. Two were to tote the old man and the others the light and digging tools. He had coached the boys in the procedure of treasure digging. He told them no matter what happened, not to say a word — talking made the money sink deeper, and be sure to have a piece of "lame money" to throw in the hole when they found the treasure — it held the money box where it was. And if anything strange took place, stand their ground and look at him. If he nodded his head, keep on digging.

One night when Chris's wife, Tilly, had gone off to prayer meeting, the boys sneaked off with old Chris through the underbrush toward the place where the treasure was buried. After much heavy travel, the five reached the spot. They yanked the old man up against a tree, and after catching their wind, two of the boys started in digging.

All four of the boys were sweating — two from working, and the other two from some inner feeling that kept trying to set their feet in motion. It was an ideal night for such an undertaking — just enough moonlight to add some mysterious significance to every bush or tree and enough wind to have an eerie sound.

It was the dog that started things — a little white dog that ran out of the bushes. Work stopped and flight was on the agenda, but somehow they managed to look at old Chris. He just nodded. Work started again, but some of the early zip was gone. The little dog ran back into the underbrush but he came back and was bigger. Work stopped again. Flight became a gnawing desire but four pairs of legs had turned to ice. It took supreme effort to look at old Chris, but they did. Even though the old man was sweating too, he nodded his head. It was an effort to get the shovels going again.

At the first shoveful, things really popped. A rooster crowed right over their heads. A big bird flew off through the woods, snapping off limbs. But the thing that broke it up was a big horse snorting fire. He dashed across the clearing, straight at them, and then sailed over their heads.

Eight legs were set into frenzied motion, tearing off down the path — sans shovels, sans lamp, and sans old Chris. The four minute mile was born almost 65 years before its time.

Just before they got to old Chris's house, they stopped to catch their breath. Then they remembered the old man, but they just couldn't go back for him. So they decided to go on up to the house and tell his wife Tilly. She would be mad but she wasn't afraid of anything. She would be the courage that would be needed for them to go back to the clearing.

When they got up to the house, someone was sitting on the doorstep. It was old Chris, panting and blowing and fanning himself. They didn't even ask how he got there, or even say goodnight. The night had been too full of many strange doings already.

Nothing was ever said about the treasure hunt, and when folks wondered how old Chris deserted his rocker and took up hoeing corn again, they remembered how powerful in prayer Tilly had been one night at prayer meeting.

Anti-U.S. Feelings In South Korea Spreading

By K. C. HWANG

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Anti-American demonstrations spread in South Korea today. The U.S. Army ordered American military personnel in the Seoul area restricted to base except for official business.

A U.S. Army spokesman called the confinement order a "temporary measure to reduce the possibility of incidents" in view of the wave of demonstrations demanding the U.S. government sign a status-of-forces agreement giving South Korea court jurisdiction over American servicemen in some instances.

About 300 university students defying stern new warnings from South Korea's ruling military junta marched out of Taegu University today in the third demonstration in a week stemming from the alleged beating of a Korean civilian trespasser by two U.S. Army officers last month.

A solid wall of police halted the students about 100 yards from the main gate of the university in South Korea's third largest city, about 200 miles southeast of Seoul.

Refusing to withdraw, the students squatted in the street and turned their protest into a sit-down strike. There were no reports of violence.

The government announced Friday night that the United States has agreed in principle to resume negotiations toward a status-of-forces pact. But it said Washington had raised issues which South Korea "finds difficult to accept."

It did not elaborate on these points but said the United States has been asked to reconsider them.

Reports from Washington quoted officials there as saying "very active consideration" is being given to an agreement. These reports made clear, however, that there is a division of opinion in Washington.

U.S. military men are said to feel that an agreement should not be concluded now because a technical state of war still exists in divided Korea and that is why about 50,000 American troops are stationed in this country.

Approximately 10% On Yearly Honors List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lance Kerr could be almost any age. But he happens to be 13.

He finished his freshman year Friday at the University of California at Los Angeles. And, he admits, it went pretty well.

"It won't be an A average," he said, reviewing the grades he expects in anthropology, physics, math and Russian. "I believe I can depend on at least a strong B."

Lance is less than 5 feet tall, weighs 81 pounds, and speaks with the soft tenor voice of a youngster in his early teens.

But his vocabulary is vast, his pronunciation precise. He is quiet, poised and mannerly. He speaks like a grown-up—one disarmingly posing as a teen-age boy.

"Last semester I took 14 units," he said, reviewing the year. "I got two A's, two B's, and a C. That's what we call a 3.2 average — a B-plus. This semester I took only 13 units. There were some courses I wanted to take which just wouldn't fit into my schedule."

Lance learned to read at age 2. How he learned was a mystery to his parents, Sylvia and Leonard Kerr. "No one ever taught him," said Mrs. Kerr.

When he was just barely 4 he went to the library for a library card. The librarian made him prove he could read. He did, easily. By the time he started kindergarten, a few months later, he was reading 10 books a week.

He rushed through grade school, junior high and high school, mostly in private schools, and entered UCLA last September at 12.

"I intend to be a physicist," he said. "Everyone here (at UCLA) seems to assume I'll get a Ph.D. here. But that's too far in the future to tell about right now."

Where did Lance come by his genius?

"We don't know," said his mother. Both parents went to college, but neither showed signs of being an exceptional student. His father is a salesman, his mother an editorial employe of an electronics firm.

He has a brother, Gregory, who is four years younger, and looks enough like Lance to be his twin. But Gregory has shown no signs of particular precociousness.

What about Lance? Has he been pushed ahead beyond his time?

"No," said his mother. "I haven't been pushed. I believe that a boy should fulfill himself. We have let Lance do that, and that's all. As soon as he got in school, he seemed to always want to concentrate on school work. It was his joy. He hasn't had any other real hobbies. You can't hold a boy like that back."

Adenauer Shows No Signs Of Quitting

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Correspondent John O. Koehler covered the 1961 West German election campaign and has watched the political maneuverings of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer which have kept everyone guessing.

An AP News Analysis By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BONN, Germany (AP)—Konrad Adenauer put on a lively performance this week to answer people who keep asking:

Isn't an 86-year-old man too old to run the country? Isn't the chancellor losing his grip after nearly 13 years in office?

He showed plenty of vitality during the four taxing days his Christian Democrat party was in convention. He evidenced few if any signs of inability to concentrate while he made two one-hour speeches and held a news conference where some of the questions got tricky.

Men who were with him from 8 a.m. to midnight for four days say his stamina was unbelievable.

His keynote speech was delivered from notes without text. He received 21 ovations. Applause interrupted him 36 times, and there were 18 outbursts of laughter.

He showed tiredness during another 60-minute speech that same afternoon before a mass rally. It lacked some of the humor he displayed in the morning. At one point he paused for seconds to find one of the little cards on which he scribbles notes.

In his closing remarks, he rambled a bit.

At one point the chancellor was asked to explain how his coalition partners, the Free Democrats, could give the press a report that he would retire in 1963. Adenauer smiled benignly and said: "Haven't you ever read a false report in the press?"

Some party members and veteran political reporters say Adenauer was re-elected to head the party because there was no one groomed to do a better job.

Yet for the first time Adenauer agreed to share some of his authority with Josef Hermann Dufhues, 54, a provincial interior minister.

He accepted Dufhues in the newly created job of executive chairman because he knew the party needed an energetic man to reorganize, instill party discipline and recapture votes lost in last fall's election.

Why does Adenauer continue in the tough job of chancellor rather than quit now and tend his rose garden?

This is the most often-heard explanation: Adenauer wants to go down in history as a great European who triumphed over the Communists, as one of the fathers of a European political union.

Says Reds Force Monks To Wed

DARJEELING, India (AP) — Chinese Communist authorities in Tibet are forcing Buddhist holy men to renounce their celibacy vows and marry, a refugee reported today. They also must give written assurances they will sire at least four children.

"We wanted to escape from all that this forced marriage implied," said Lobsang Chogyen, 25, who recently fled from the Shalu Monastery near Shigaste to refuge in India.

President OKs Medal For Hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has signed a congressional resolution authorizing the award of a gold medal to comedian Bob Hope.

The award was voted in recognition of Hope's entertainment of U.S. troops around the world.

Similar medals were presented to George M. Cohan after World War I and to Irving Berlin after World War II.

Ready To Try Again For Metric System In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' most vocal advocate of the meter, the liter and the gram said today he is ready to try again to have them made standard in the United States.

And the sole remaining active member of the self-styled "Economy Party" is as determined as ever that Congress shall not authorize $500,000 for a study of the possibilities and problems of substituting the metric system for the weights and measures now standard in this country.

So another clash between Rep. George F. Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, and Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, appears inevitable.

Gross has won them all so far. But Miller says he has effective new tactics and arguments.

It isn't just scientists who are interested in having this country join most of the Western world in using the decimal-based metric system, Miller said, but there also is solid business support for the change.

"The pharmaceutical industry — which is not a small one already is on the metric system," he said.

"The big new development is the drive for us to have close trade relationships with the European Common Market. If we are to do business with them, it makes sense to use the same measures they do."

"This has great implications for our exports."

Gross insisted he isn't against the metric system — just that $500,000 expenditure. He is an expert in parliamentary techniques for blocking spending authorizations and he made up the "Economy Party" along with a kindred soul, Rep. Clare S. Hoffman R-Mich., now ailing and soon to retire.

Miller, considering the study proposals noncontroversial, tried for a year to have it passed under a procedure by which a single member could block it. Every time, Gross was that member.

"If they want to have the metric system, let them just set a date in the future for installing it," Gross said. "Everybody knows what the metric system is. We don't have to study it."

"That $500,000 could be used to help change over textbooks to the new system — if it has to be spent at all."

Miller has given up hope of persuading Gross not to block unanimous consent. But he said that "just as soon as it can be arranged" he will ask the House Rules Committee to clear his proposal for consideration in the ordinary way by the House.

"Then Mr. Gross and I will really debate it," he said.

Wife Testifies George Grappled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wrestler Gorgeous George took on his wife as an opponent after he'd had a few drinks Friday, a witness testified in court.

A witness at her Superior Court trial said she wound up with two black eyes as the result of her last non-professional bout.

Judge Leonard A. Diether granted Mrs. George, 33, resumption of her maiden name, Cherie Dupre, which she uses as a dancer and actress.

George, 47, is now a San Fernando Valley tavern owner and is having a struggle getting started in his new business, his wife testified. So she's waiving alimony. They'll have joint custody of their 2-year-old son.

To Roam Earth Seeking A Cure

NEW YORK (AP) — An impoverished Italian cobbler has again shunted aside medical evidence dooming his son to a life of blindness with a vow to roam the earth until "someone—somewhere will help my child."

Vincenzo D'Ambrosio and his 5-year-old son, Nunzio, arrived here Friday by ship from their native Italy clinging to the frail hope that a sixth operation on the boy could restore his sight.

Less than two hours after their arrival the boy had been examined by Dr. Vito La Rocca, an eye surgeon, and the father was told: "There is no operation in the world that can help."

Nunzio lost the sight of his left eye three years ago when he fell and his head struck a chair. The blow also injured his right eye. He now can only distinguish between extreme brightness or extreme darkness.

Although the 42-year-old father had received the same heart-breaking news after each of five earlier operations performed on the boy in Italy, he broke down and cried.

Later, at a Manhattan residence where he and the child will remain until their ship leaves Monday for the return journey, D'Ambrosio pledged to "keep going around the world until I satisfy myself that the sight of my son cannot fully be restored."

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

CHAPTER 18

"If I run into Vogel," Britt Fabian said harshly, "you'll be able to make your arrest at the hospital."

"Leave Vogel to us," Police Lieutenant Fallon advised him. "Who else could it be, unless there've been some shifty characters hanging around the stables."

"Lieutenant," Britt said suddenly, "do you ever hear of a man named Casey Jeffries?"

Julie Pendleton almost cried out for amusement. Lieutenant Fallon turned the name over in his mind a few times and shook his head. "Can't say I have."

"He claims to be Claude Barton's nephew," Britt added.

"Claude Barton?" Fallon asked with a frown. "I didn't know he had a nephew or — say, that's odd."

Ira Pendleton was suddenly and quietly on his feet. "Lieutenant, how'd you like to see tomorrow's winner? No matter what Britt says, I'll be Templar."

Fallon gave Ira a shrewd look. "Why, yes, I'd very much like to see Templar."

"Good. Let's go out to the stables. We're taking him to the track soon. No sense risking anything this close to the race. He's in fine form."

Ira had the detective by the arm, leading him out of the house. Julie waited until they were well on their way to the stables before she spoke.

"Britt, do you think Casey had anything to do with what happened?"

"Casey? Why, no. Of course I don't."

"Then why did you ask Lieutenant Fallon about him?"

"For heaven's sake, why not ask him? It's his job to know people and certainly we haven't found anyone else who knows Casey."

"I don't think it's very nice to ask a policeman about a man you call a friend."

He joined her on the divan where she sat, erect and angry. "Julie darling, I'm interested in Casey because you are."

"I'd bet my life on his innocence."

"Then please bear in mind whatever I do has one basic motivation. I don't want anything to happen to you. I love you. We're going to be married. Nothing is going to prevent that, so if I seem to go overboard sometimes—even as innocently as asking these questions about Casey, I'm doing it for you."

Some of the anger left Julie because she knew he was speaking with considerable sense. Now she desperately wanted to change the subject. So far, Britt hadn't remembered—or didn't know—that Claude Barton couldn't have a nephew. She'd also seen the look of doubt cross the detective's face at the mention of Claude Barton as an uncle. Lieutenant Fallon had recognized the discrepancy.

"I'm sorry, Britt," Julie said. "I'm jumpy, I suppose, with the race this close."

But Britt was thinking about Fallon's reaction and scarcely gave evidence that he heard her apology.

"Something rang a bell with Fallon. I'm going to find out what it is."

She placed her hand on his arm. "I'd rather you let the whole matter drop, Britt. The only important thing is the race tomorrow."

"Oh, no," he said. "You're more important than any race, and you've been in considerable danger."

"I'm asking you to drop it, Britt," she said sternly. "The race is enough for all of us to think about."

He regarded her thoughtfully for a moment, then nodded agreement. "Okay. You're right. I'm merely letting my nerves get the best of me. Besides—his eyes gleamed in good humor—"you like him and who am I to spoil that?"

"Sometimes," she said, "you're just about the nicest guy I've ever known."

"Thanks, darling," he replied softly. His arms gathered her close and his eyes adored her. "I know, also, sometimes I'm stubborn and cantankerous, but I do love you and I'm going to work hard at being that nice guy you love. With your help I'll make it."

Then their lips met and Julie felt all the worries and suspicions leave her in the wonder of the moment.

"When Britt finally released Julie, he said, 'I hate to leave you, but I have several matters to attend to, all of them concerning the Derby. I want to win it as much as my father does, but for a different reason. It will be my wedding present to you.'"

Julie nodded understandingly, but she wished he hadn't mentioned the race. She'd felt for a few moments that there was no one in all the world but the two of them—Britt had finally made her feel as if she came first with him. She'd even forgotten Casey. And it had been spoiled with his reference to the Derby. But she was careful not to show her disappointment and, fortunately, Ira chose that moment to return.

He was alone and he looked highly pleased. "I never saw Templar so frisky. He acts as if he knows he's going to win tomorrow."

"Somebody," Britt countered good-naturedly, "ought to whisper the facts of life into his ear."

"I don't think you've raced Lysander enough to really know what he can do," Ira said.

"We'll let Lysander prove himself."

"Of course, Britt, but from what I heard, he either didn't do very well at his last race in California—or the jockey pulled him up."

Britt laughed and shook his head. "Look, Mr. Pendleton, the horse I have to worry about tomorrow is Templar. You're very busy trying to get me to talk about Lysander, but I certainly don't hear any conversation about Templar. How is he in sprints, for instance? Can your jockey pick him up if he starts slow, or does he drift any, as he used to. I'd like to know the answer to those questions and so would my father."

Julie flashed a smile at her father and turned to Britt. "Did you ever see Templar break? Did you notice him drifting in the last race?"

"Templar breaks well, but Lysander is faster," Britt said eagerly, "and he runs in anything, including mud. He's a natural born runner and when speed is required—Why, I clocked him in six furlongs—"

Britt stopped abruptly and his face flushed. He burst out laughing and grabbed Julie and pulled her to him.

"I'm glad you're on my side," he said. "You just needed me into almost giving away everything I know about Lysander."

Ira and Julie joined in the laughter and the tension left them all.

Ira said, "Britt, it wouldn't have made any difference if you'd told all the facts of Lysander's mysterious career. You and Julie are to be married. Your family and mine will be joined—the way it should have been a long time ago. Lorne and I have had our differences. Which of us has been right or wrong is no longer of the slightest concern. If your horse wins tomorrow, I'll be as proud as if it were Templar."

"Thank you, sir," Britt said, quietly serious.

"But I won't be as happy," Ira concluded. "Possibly I won't see you again until after the race, so good luck. And I wish that for your father, too. Please tell him so."

"I'll do that. He'll like it, sir."

There's more mystery on Lysander, the Fabian Derby entry, to be revealed. The story continues here Monday.

Marilyn Monroe Fired By Studio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe is out of work today—fired by the same studio that made her a star.

The sacking, which caught almost no one by surprise, came Friday only hours after Marilyn notified 20th Century-Fox that she was "ready and eager to return to work Monday morning."

But the studio wasn't impressed and called in Lee Remick to take over.

In another development, the studio announced it had begun legal action against Marilyn to recover $500,000 allegedly lost as a result of the star's frequent absences from the set.

Marilyn's absentee record included five performance days in seven weeks of shooting for the movie "Something's Got To Give." The picture now is 32 days behind schedule and more than $2 million in debt because of Marilyn's no-show.

"It's sad," said one front-office executive. "But no studio these days can afford to have Liz Taylor and Marilyn Monroe working at the same time—especially a studio that lost $25 million last year."

Miss Taylor's absences from the set have helped run the cost of "Cleopatra" to $30 million—the all-time high in movie costs.

Couldn't Stand Another Bath In Tomato Juice

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Patrolman Jim Kenney said Saturday he just couldn't stand a repetition of the events that led to his police dog's bath in tomato juice.

Kenny's dog, Baron, jumped out of his moving patrol car and grabbed a small black animal on a lawn. With horror, Kenney saw a white stripe down its back.

"Drop it!" he yelled. Baron obeyed and the skunk promptly did what skunks do.

Baron raced back toward the patrol car. Kenney furiously cranked up the windows. He called the paddy wagon by radio to pick up the dog.

The paddy wagon driver voiced his opinion in sulphurous language. Kenney put in a frantic call to a veterinarian. The vet said to bathe the dog in tomato juice, let it dry, then apply soap and water.

The next two hours weren't pleasant for man or beast.

Eighth St. Christian Announcements

This Sunday will be observed as Pentecost Sunday. Rev. Hadden has chosen for the topic of his sermon, "Ye Are My Witnesses." The choir will sing "Let There Be Peace On Earth" by Jackson and Miller.

Vacation Church School was a huge success. Average attendance was about 80 each day. Many thanks go to our fine workers for making the success possible. Arts and crafts included the building of shelves for a Church Library Corner, making a three-dimensional map of the Holy Land, making clay figures and plaques, puppets, Bible verse scrolls, and many other activities. Each department in the Vacation Church School is displaying samples of their work in the Assembly room behind the sanctuary for viewing between church school and the worship hour Sunday morning and after the worship hour.

Church School begins at 9:45 a. m. and the worship hour is at 11:00. A nursery for small children is maintained during both church school and morning worship.

Mount Pleasant Announcements

Sunday school begins at 10 a. m., followed by the worship at 11:00. The choir special for the worship service is "Soldiers of Christ Arise." The morning sermon is entitled "A Very Special Birthday."

The C. Y. F. meeting will be at 6:30. The commencement for the Vacation Bible School will begin at 7:30.

The Mount Pleasant Ladies' Aid will meet Monday night at 7:30. Mrs. Charlie Harris, Mrs. Douglas Parker, Mrs. J. O. Teel, and Mrs. Ray A. Giles are hostesses.

There will be special service Tuesday night at 8:00 when Paul Bajko, native of Poland, will be guest speaker.

The annual Sunday school picnic will be Wednesday at the city park in Rocky Mount. There will be no prayer meeting at the church building that night.

Choir practice will be Thursday night at 7:30.

Tea was introduced to London in 1657, four decades after Shakespeare's death. Price was $30 to $50 a pound.

Durante Adopts A Baby Girl

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Comedian Jimmy Durante and his wife, Margaret, adopted a 6-month-old girl, Cecelia Alicia, Friday.

"What a feeling it was when the judge said, 'The baby is yours,'" said Durante, playing it straight for one of the relatively rare times in his life.

"What a wonderful feeling! I just started shaking."

Durante, 69, and Mrs. Durante, 42, were married Dec. 14, 1960.

Godparents of the blue-eyed baby, neither of whom was present at the adoption ceremonies, are Danny Thomas and Louella Parsons.

NO HOT DOG HE

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway and Hollywood celebrities had fun two ways this morning: They cut cake and drank champagne in a toast to the 70th birthday today of composer Cole Porter, and enjoyed a special midnight performance of an off-Broadway revival of "Anything Goes."

Among the 300 persons attending the special-occasion show were Marie McDonald, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Margaret O'Brien, Dolores Gray, Johnny Johnson, Lillian Roth, Carol Bruce, Faye Emerson, Red Buttons, Gigi Durston, Hope Hampton, Ethel Smith and Ann Corio.

Serving as hostess at the Orpheum Theater was Elsa Maxwell.

Porter, a widower, resides in Manhattan at the Waldorf Towers. He is spending the weekend at his country home in Williamstown, Mass., with no special celebration.

The cutting of the seven-tiered cake in the theater lobby was accompanied by singing of "Happy Birthday." A tape of the proceedings will be sent to Porter.

The composer has given no interviews since 1958 when his right leg was amputated after it was crushed in a horseback riding accident. But he answered some questions this week through his secretary, Mrs. Madeline Smith.

How did he happen to write some of his famous song hits?

The idea for "You're The Top" came to him while he was aboard a skiff sailing along the Rhine River.

Some of the others, and where they originated:

"It's Delovely" — aboard an ocean liner.

"Night And Day"—at a beach in Newport, R.I.

"What Is This Thing Called Love" — on crowded foreign streets.

Porter, who numbers among his Broadway hits "Du Barry Was A Lady." "Something For The Boys" and "Kiss Me Kate," said he was doing no work now but hoped to in the future.

"Kiss Me Kate," which opened in 1948, was his favorite show, he said.

His favorite song? "Begin The Beguine," part of the score of "Jubilee," produced in 1935.

Did he have any advice or did he care to say anything about his philosophy at the three score and ten mark?

"Don't worry and work hard," Porter said.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

The spiritual source of intelligence and creativity will be brought out Sunday at Christian Science church services.

"God the Only Cause" and "Creator" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon, which includes this passage from Isaiah (45): "I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this selection will be read: "All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause, and effect belong to God. These are His attributes, the eternal manifestations of the infinite divine Principle, Love. No wisdom is wise but His wisdom; no truth is true, no love is lovely, no life is Life but the divine; no good is, but the good God bestows." (p. 275)

The Golden Text is from Hebrews (3): "Every house is builded by some man; but he that built all things is God."
