U.S. Plans Snoop On Red Tests

Of Necessity, Will Have To Get Data From Greater Distance Than Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—With Russia expected to resume atmospheric nuclear testing soon, American experts reportedly are preparing to do a little snooping of their own.

The Russians have four instrument ships nosed around Christmas and Johnston Islands in the Pacific to gather information about the American test series which began April 25 and now has reached about the midway point.

There is every reason to believe the Russians have collected considerable data in the weeks their ships have been there.

Although neither of the great nuclear powers says anything publicly about its own snooping operations, each has kept close check on what the other has been doing in nuclear test blasts over the years of the atomic weapons race.

The new Soviet series could come at any time in view of Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's recent declaration that the American experiments have "forced us to renew our tests."

The Russians normally test in remote regions or deep in the heart of the Soviet Union.

This makes it more difficult to get a reasonably close look, but there is clear evidence this has not hampered the United States in obtaining solid scientific information about Soviet test results.

On the basis of this knowledge, President Kennedy was able to tell the nation last March that the Soviet series in late 1961 "reflected a highly sophisticated technology."

That many of those tests were aimed at improving Soviet defenses against missiles, and that one Russian device was exploded more than 100 miles aloft.

The Russian tests last fall, it is known, were conducted above uninhabited Novaya Zemlya, a crescent-shaped island on the edge of the Arctic.

So far as is known, the United States does not have the kind of instrument ships being used by the Soviets to spy on U.S. tests in the Pacific.

But it is believed U.S. nuclear submarines—which have proved their ability to operate in the Arctic even in winter—may have had a grandstand seat for the last Russian tests.

The most modern American subs carry advanced radar gear and supersensitive underwater listening equipment.

This radar can spot cloud formations—and that could include atomic and hydrogen mushroom clouds—from as much as 200 miles away.

Sound-detecting devices can pick up shock waves, of the sort a nuclear blast might send through water.

A watching sub might mark the precise time of a nuclear explosion—a factor important in later analysis of the airborne debris drifting across the world.

Certain elements thrown off in a nuclear blast decay over varying periods of time. In studying air samples, scientists compute the time lag between the blasts and the pickup of the samples. This helps account for missing elements or the degree of decay of elements found present.

The U.S. technique of using high-flying aircraft to capture samples from Soviet explosions dates back about 13 years, to a time when the Russians held their first atomic tests. The United States follows this same technique in studying its own test results.

Much of the air sampling in the wake of Russian tests is done in the Alaskan areas, which lie in the path of the radioactive debris moving with prevailing winds.

American aircraft fly into these air masses. They have nose ports which trap atomic particles flowing inside. These particles are brought back to laboratories and are subjected to microscopic, chemical and spectrochemical analysis.

All this tells American scientists what materials went into the bomb, whether or device and how efficient it was.

Widening Search For Alcatraz Trio

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The search went on today for three bank robbers who vanished from tide-swept Alcatraz Island prison in San Francisco Bay Tuesday after wriggling through cell wall vents tediously enlarged with stolen spoons.

Skillfully made dummies in their bunk beds prevented guards from discovering their absence for several hours.

Warden Olin Blackwell said he does not believe the three men, led by a convict with an IQ of 132, are alive if they tried to swim for it.

However, because of the thoroughness of the trio's planning to bust "The Rock," officials concede that the men could have made it ashore on a makeshift raft.

Nor do they discount the possibility that Frank Lee Morris, 35, the leader, and two brothers, John, 32, and Clarence Anglin, 31, are still on the island, lurking in a water's edge cave.

An ever-widening search—coordinated by the FBI—has spread over northern California.

Their escape was discovered at 7:15 a.m. Tuesday. They were last seen at 9:30 p.m. Monday.

No one is known to have survived an escape attempt from "The Rock" in its 28 years as a federal prison, although 35 men tried it in 11 separate attempts.

Warden Blackwell told how the three men escaped the attention of authorities.

At 5 p.m. Monday, as usual, the doors clanged shut in the three-tiered cell block that housed 269 prisoners, watched over by 155 guards.

At 9:30 and thereafter every hour on the hour during periodic checks, nothing was found amiss.

Then at 7:15 in the morning, at the regular showup, the three didn't get up. Guards prodded what appeared to be their sleeping forms and found dummies—

"very realistic, plaster, paint and hair heads and pillow bodies."

It was found that the trio, apparently for weeks, had been digging at plaster and cement four inches thick with bits of spoons. Their painstaking effort loosened a metal cover leading to a ventilation shaft through each cell wall.

The 8-by-12 inch openings connected the cells with a service shaft a yard wide.

From there it was 30 feet up a pipe to an air conditioner. This was dismantled, steel bars somehow torn aside and access gained to the mess hall roof.

A 50-foot-long drain pipe led to the ground, about 100 yards from the water on the San Francisco side of the island.

From this point, Warden Blackwell said, it was anybody's guess what the three desperate men did.

If they struck out for San Francisco, they had a mile and a quarter to swim or drift, with cold currents against them. On the northern side of the island it was 1 1/2 miles to Angel Island State Park. From there it was another 1 1/2 miles to the Marin County shore. To the east from Alcatraz lay the Navy's Treasure Island two miles away.

Attorneys Ask Estes Not Testify In Probe

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP)—Attorneys for Billie Sol Estes asked the court today to excuse him from testifying before the county grand jury investigating the death of Henry H. Marshall.

The state asked for dismissal of the request.

John Cofer, attorney for Estes, told newsmen he wanted the request aired in open court to remove any doubt that Estes is involved in Marshall's death.

Cofer and Douglas B. Hearned, another Estes attorney, went into conference with Judge John Barron.

The grand jury is seeking to determine whether Marshall, 52, was slain or took his own life on Marshall's ranch June 3, 1961.

The death was ruled a suicide at the time. The grand jury reopened the case three weeks ago when it was revealed that Marshall had been investigating Estes' cotton allotments.

Estes' cotton, grain storage and fertilizer empire is in receivership and he is under indictment for fraud and felony theft.

The morning alleges the county grand jury subpoena illegally restrained Estes and is illegal because Estes is under suspicion by the grand jury as a probable defendant and person under investigation in connection with the death of Marshall.

The petition asks that Estes be permitted to question each juror individually.

Estes arrived at the courthouse early and went immediately to Judge Barron's chambers.

Estes, a Pecos, Tex., financier whose farm enterprise dealt in millions of dollars, is to appear before the grand jury which has been investigating the death of Marshall.

Marshall had been shot five times. A bolt action rifle was found beside the body.

A pathologist studied the expelled blood two weeks ago and said Marshall probably was murdered.

Railway Asks To Abandon Track

WASHINGTON (AP)—The East Carolina Railway has asked permission to abandon 26 miles of track between Tarboro and Farmville, N. C.

The Interstate Commerce Commission was told Tuesday that abandonment of the track would result in substantial savings.

Clear Field For Clifton Blue

WILSON, N. C. (AP)—Rep. Thomas H. Woodard of Wilson withdrew today as a candidate for Speaker of the House in the 1963 General Assembly, leaving a clear field for Rep. H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen.

Woodard told newsmen that Blue had lined up more votes among prospective legislators than he was able to round up.

In a statement, Woodard said, "I want to thank my faithful followers who have worked so hard in my behalf and it want to congratulate Mr. Blue."

Police Review Planning For Time Of Crisis

A group of lawmen and city and county officials were on hand for the last in a state-wide series of Emergency Police Services Conferences, being sponsored by the North Carolina Highway Patrol and the North Carolina Civil Defense Agency.

Russell C. Nicholson, Intelligence Officer for the state CD agency, was here for the conference today, representing Gen. Edward H. Griffin, the director of the agency.

Nicholson said the Emergency Police Services Conference will include discussions on several topics, including the preparation for the emergency operations of the police services, explosive ordinance reconnaissance, the role of auxiliary police in emergencies and the role of sheriffs in emergencies of mutual concern.

Included on the day's program are Capt. S. H. Mitchell, Commander of Troop A, North Carolina Highway Patrol; Charles Engel, Police Service Coordinator of Region III, Office of Civil Defense; Lt. Henry C. Inglehardt of the 48th Ordnance Detachment, Fort Jackson, S. C.; Maj. Wooters of the Greenville Police Department and Sheriff Frank M. Cahoon of Dare County.

Nicholson noted law enforcement agencies must provide a line of defense against aggression and natural disaster along with the military.

Experience has shown the need for preparedness for natural and man-made disasters, he explained, adding that law enforcement agencies must be prepared to assist in these matters that affect the safety and welfare of the people.

He said that the conference is designed to help municipal, county and state officers to be better prepared to meet this need.

Today's conference is the last of six to be held in the state over the past two weeks.

Car Plunged As Bridge Snapped

SPARTANBURG (AP)—A bridge snapped near its center and plunged a car carrying four women into the flood waters of a creek in upper Spartanburg County early today. Two of the women suffered broken necks and the two others possibly broken backs.

The car dropped 22 feet and capsized.

County highway officials said the bridge built about a year ago rested upon concrete piers, one of which had been undermined by the raging flood waters of Buck Creek.

The victims were Mrs. Maggie Cantrell Greer; Mrs. Betty Lunter; Mrs. Faye McAbee and Mrs. Ellen Henderson, all of the Chesnee section.

Officers said the accident occurred about 7 a.m. as Mrs. Greer was driving the women to their jobs in a Spartanburg garment plant.

All four were in serious condition at Spartanburg Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Greer suffered a broken back; Mrs. Lunter a lumbar spine fracture, and the two others probable broken backs.

Tentative City Budget Of $1,017,928 Is Released

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor

City officials yesterday released a tentative budget calling for expenditures of $1,017,928.77 during fiscal year 1962-63, thus bringing about Greenville's first million dollar budget.

The budget was approved in an unannounced session of the City Council yesterday afternoon at 12:30. Mayor Charles M. King reported after the meeting that himself and two other councilmen, Ford McGowan and James Lee, were present for the meeting.

Councilmen M. W. Aldridge and Ralph Brimley were out of town.

In approving the budget the councilmen set a tax rate of $1.62 per $100 valuation. This is 24 cents above last year's $1.38 rate.

As an example, a taxpayer with property valued at $30,000 would have paid city taxes of $138 last year. Under the new rate he would pay $162 for an increase of $24. Taxes are based on one-third of the property valuation.

The tax increase was a whopping one, but it was the first increase since 1958. That year the rate was raised by six cents. Prior to that a rate increase had come in 1955 when taxes were raised by seven cents.

The increase reflected the money problems which have plagued city officials all year. A budget calling for expenditures of $940,671.83 was approved by the Council, which had just taken office, for 1961-62. Later in the year there was a downward revision of expected revenue.

This resulted in a revised budget calling for expenditure of $918,562.50.

Under the law the tentative budget adopted by the Council yesterday will remain open for 20 days and is available for public inspection at City Hall. Following this period the Council can adopt the budget and officially set the tax rate.

Despite the big tax increase the budget was largely given over to operating expenses. The capital outlay portion—additions of new equipment or buildings—could be considered "tight."

Largest of the capital outlay items was $11,000 for the new Carver Library building and $3,120 for equipment totaling $14,120. This is to be spent in addition to $35,980 which the city already has available from bond issue funds for the project.

Contracts for construction of the building were awarded last Thursday night.

For the Fire Department, capital outlay totaled $11,894.52. This includes $4,823 first payment on a fire truck purchased last year, $4,778.27 for the purchase of two rescue trucks formerly furnished on a loan basis, $2,293.25 for changeover of two-way radio equipment.

Police department capital outlay totals $8,382 which includes: $4,200 for trading three cars, $1,792 for radio changes, $1,400 for identification division equipment, and $1,200 to move laboratory equipment.

Capital outlay for Public Works totals $8,000 including $6,000 payment on motor grader rental, $500 for a grease gun and $1,500 for a tractor.

Another tractor costing $3,750 is included in Powell Bill expenditures for street maintenance.

Other capital outlay items are a posting and tax billing machine for the city clerk's office, $7,500; Greenfield Terrace playground equipment, replacing poles, chairs in recreation department, $8,700.

General fund expenditures in the proposed budget are set at $939,329.82. Broken down by departments, this includes: administrative and general government, $193,019.82; special appropriations, $6,400; fire department, $2,156; public works, $203,000; Powell Bill, $85,000; Carver Library, $25,000; recreation, $62,414; building inspector, $5,290; law and judicial, $14,014; police, $182,077; fire, $111,100; Sheppard Memorial Library, $35,000; health department, $10,900; consignment, $5,000.

For city debt service the councilmen approved an expenditure of $78,598.75. This was down from last year's $80,461.25 city debt service. However, six cents of the total tax increase goes to the debt service. The tax for debt service was increased from 12 cents to 18 cents.

This was due largely to a sharp change in paving fund revenue estimates given over to debt service for the upcoming year. Revenues from paving assessments for 1962-63 debt services are estimated to be $16,000. For 1961-62 they were set at $36,998.18.

JFK Informs Khrushchev He's Encouraged By Laos

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Khrushchev today that the formation of a coalition government in Laos is very encouraging.

Kennedy replied to a message from Khrushchev in which the Soviet leader said the agreement on a coalition government could serve as a guide to the solution of other problems between East and West.

"The formation of this government of national unity under Prince Souvanna Phouma marks a milestone in the sustained efforts which have been put forward toward this end, especially since our meeting in Vienna," Kennedy told Khrushchev.

"It is equally important that we should now press forward, with our associates in the Geneva conference, to complete these arrangements and to work closely together in their execution. We must continue also to do our best to persuade all concerned in Laos to work together to this same end."

"It is very important that no untoward actions anywhere be allowed to disrupt the progress which has been made."

Kennedy agreed with Khrushchev that continued progress in a settlement of the Laotian problem can be helpful in leading toward the resolution of other international difficulties.

"If together we can help in the establishment of an independent and neutral Laos, securely sustained in this status through time, this accomplishment will surely have a significant and positive effect far beyond the borders of Laos," Kennedy said in his message.

"You can count on the continued and energetic efforts of the government of the United States toward that end."

Kennedy's reply to Khrushchev's message was dated June 12 and was made public by the White House this morning.

That the little Southeast Asian country should be independent and neutral, not a cause for East-West conflict, is one point on which Kennedy and Khrushchev have agreed since they met in Vienna a year ago. But only now are the rival neutralists, pro-Western and pro-Communist Laotian princes settling on a nationwide government deemed needed to remove their land from the cold war.

Declaring this could be the pivotal event "in the cause of strengthening peace in Southeast Asia," Khrushchev told Kennedy that the results in Laos "strengthen the conviction that success in solving other international problems which now divide states and create tension can be achieved on the same road as well."

U.S. policymakers were well aware that the extent to which the cooperative venture succeeds in Laos depends on how far the Communists, who hold the stronger military position there, choose to go along with it. Washington has been unwilling to commit forces directly in the small, distant, landlocked country, although Kennedy has stationed U.S. troops in neighboring Thailand.

W. Averell Harriman, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, said that American troops in Thailand would not be withdrawn just because the Laos coalition has been formed. He said the U.S. military deployment is aimed at bolstering Western strength in all non-Communist Southeast Asian countries.

As for the withdrawal of U.S. military advisers from Laos, Harriman said this would be done simultaneously with the pullout of non-Laotian Communist forces. U.S. strategists say a most important step in the Laos settlement is the proposed withdrawal of outside forces, estimated to include up to 10,000 North Vietnamese Reds.

Speaking in a television interview—ABC—News Final—Harriman said Khrushchev joined in supporting a coalition government for Laos partly because of a desire to check Red Chinese expansion southward.

Harriman denied that Communist membership in the new coalition would lead to eventual Red takeover.

"Everybody seems to think we have to fight a war in order to keep the Communists out," he said. "I don't know why we don't have confidence in our ability to carry on the political, economic and social struggle."

In a Voice of America radio interview Secretary of State Dean Rusk indicated that the United States may soon resume large-scale economic aid to Laos.

Last February Washington halted $2 million of economic support a month to the royalist Boum Oum government in an effort to prod it into a coalition government.

"Everybody seems to think we have to fight a war in order to keep the Communists out," he said. "I don't know why we don't have confidence in our ability to carry on the political, economic and social struggle."

U.S. Soldier Is Said Defector To North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Pyongyang radio says an American soldier has taken refuge in Communist North Korea and likes what he has seen—"people leaving free, happy and peaceful lives."

The soldier was identified as Pvt. Larry A. Abshier, 18, of Cleveland, Ohio. The U.S. Army said he apparently was the first American defector to the Reds in Korea since the end of the Korean War.

Abshier, serving with a reconnaissance squadron along the armistice line, was last seen running across the no man's land toward the north on May 28. He ignored calls to turn back.

The North Koreans said they gave the young GI a reception, taking him to the capital of Pyongyang and other cities.

Pyongyang radio quoted Abshier as saying he was fed up with the "doings of the U.S. Army in South Korea" and calling on American troops to "oppose the war machinations of the American rulers and demand that they be returned to their homeland at once."

The youth's father, George, told of the comments attributed to his son, expressed doubt that his son actually made the statements. The elder Abshier said his son had written a few months ago that he liked the Army and was considering making the Army a career.

Contacted at his home in Garfield Heights, a Cleveland suburb, the father told newsmen the language used in the statement didn't sound like his son's vocabulary.

Abshier has served in Korea since May 26, 1961, two weeks after he joined the Army in Chicago. His tour of duty here was due to be completed in July.

The Pyongyang broadcast said Abshier was surprised at what he found in North Korea.

U.S. Army authorities in Seoul had no comment on Abshier's purported remarks. He was officially listed as still AWOL—absent without leave. Normally, a soldier is not considered a deserter until he has been missing a month.

Norton Critical Of Fault-Finding

GREENSBORO (AP)—Private and public health services were taken to task today by Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health officer, for what he termed "too much fault finding" of each other.

Norton said "there has been too little joint action" by the groups. He added, "The public has taken up the fault finding and increasingly we hear criticism of medical, dental, and pharmaceutical services and costs."

"We shall, as doctors and pharmacists, hang together in unselfish joint action, or paraphrasing further, we shall undoubtedly hang separately."

Norton made the remarks in a speech prepared for delivery to a luncheon session of the Old North State Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical societies.

He said, "There has never been a time of greater need for all our curative and preventive services—private, official and voluntary—to understand each other and work together toward more effective, economical and efficient promotion of health for all our people."

OAS Bombings And Fires Are Continuing

ALGIERS (AP)—As the terrorist Secret Army Organization pressed its scorched earth campaign in Algiers today, six explosions set afire a technical college and five private buildings.

Fire engines sped through the streets unencumbered by traffic because of the Moslem Achoura holiday. The holiday is observed by the administration, public services and most merchants.

Police reported three Europeans were kidnapped by Moslems in a broad daylight in Boufarik, south of Algiers. They estimate 200 Europeans have been abducted by Moslems in the past two months in the Greater Algiers area. Several dozen have been found dead, some bearing marks of torture.

The Moslem Front of National Liberation denies responsibility, but admits uncontrolled elements among the Moslem population have been carrying out the kidnappings.

Also on the agenda for the weekend are the area dairy princess contest, to be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the community room of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., and a mayor's milking contest, which will follow the breakfast.

Dr. Joe Pou, area chairman for June Dairy Month, will preside at the 8 a.m. Saturday breakfast at the Greenville Moose Lodge. At that time, the 1962 area dairy princess will be crowned.

Dr. Sylvester Green, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, will give the invocation and Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville will give the toast. Miss Barbara Morgan of Asheville, reigning North Carolina dairy princess, will make a short talk during the breakfast.

Miss Lori Hooper and Gretchen Coefield are responsible for favors.

The mayor's milking contest will be held in the Moose Lodge parking lot, with Mayor Charles King of Greenville challenging mayors of Ayden, Aurora, Belhaven, Bethel, Farmville, Grifton, Kingston, Snow Hill, Swan Quarter, Washington, and Winterville.

Representing Pitt County in the area princess contest Friday evening will be recently crowned Mary Carolyn Barnes of Rt. 1, Winterville. Other princesses participating are from Beaufort, Greene, Hyde, and Lenoir counties.

Judges for the event are R. W. Howard, Charles McLawhorn, David Whitehead II, Mrs. L. S. Ficklen and A. Hartwell Campbell.

Women's News Service
 We Schroeder girls put on shows in the garage, using Mother's red velvet drapes for a curtain and bamboo poles to hold them up. Admission price for the neighboring kids was five straight pins or one diaper pin.
 It was my job to tack up the evening's bill on the garage door, slipping the cardboard out of one of Father's shirts and printing on it in crudely formed letters: "The Schroeder Acting Company presents The Schroeder Girls in 'Something For Nothing'—a Schroeder Production" directed by Marjorie Schroeder.
 At first I was just an ignominious part of the audience, but gradually my exhibitionist soul revolved at my sisters' primping and posturing without me, and I determined to get into the act. I won them over by suggesting a takeoff on Mother and Jane which I called "Cooking With Gas." It was a smash 35-pin hit until Mother raided us in the middle of a scene and carted us off along with her red velvet drapes.
 This episode did not dim my ambition for an acting career. The most divine girl lived next door to us—Betty Ann Painter, a willowily, sensuous and brooding blonde. Betty was my ideal, my goddess. She was glamour personified to me.
 I tried to imitate her walk and talk and each nuance of her gestures (you might say I succeeded, for some years later, at 15, I had my own radio show and played roles at the Kansas City Center Theater).
 Oh, I was quite a bat in those days and made a perfect pest of myself with Betty. Her front porch was just below my bedroom window, and many a summer night I'd lean out and watch her cavort on the porch, seeing with one of her beaux, while I audibly mimicked her little-theater sighings and swoonings.
 But Betty had a forgiving sense of humor, taking me in hand and giving me many valuable hints that helped my future career. She was also an ingenious cook, and I am everlastingly grateful for her delicious dishes. Here is one:

PRESSED VEAL LOAF
 4 or 5 pounds veal shank
 1 onion
 1 green pepper
 several stalks of celery
 2 bay leaves
 salt and pepper to taste water enough to cover capers
 stuffed olives.

Cook veal with onion, pepper, celery, bay leaves and seasoning until very tender—until meat falls from bone. Strain and save liquor, which should be about half, or less, of what you start with.

Allow meat to cool. Grind and shred very fine. Arrange sliced stuffed olives on bottom of loaf pan. Mix meat, meat liquor and capers and place in loaf pan. Put in refrigerator to congeal. Serve cold. Unmold and slice into half-inch pieces.

A little meat best fits a little belle.
 As sweetly Lady, give me leave to tell ye.
 This little pickin fits this little Jellie.

—Robert Herrick

Of all the holidays on the calendar, the one I enjoyed most as a little girl was Thanksgiving Day.

The Fourth of July was all flags and fireworks and band concerts in the park; Memorial Day, gray and somber with respect for our war dead; Christmas, while joyful and cheerful, and graced with hymns and carols, was a little bit too over-commercialized and over-alcoholized for the likes of me.

But, ah, Thanksgiving Day! A genuine, simon-pure, truly American holiday, redolent of the home and family comradeship. But I'm afraid the Madison Avenue boys will get to it yet and dig up some new advertising gimmicks to despoil it.

Arthur Guiterman, in his wonderfully whimsical verses, tells of the Pilgrim Fathers who on landing at Plymouth Rock first fell on their knees and then on the aborigines. This latter act may be a slander, for I always felt the Fathers had an entente cordiale with their Indian neighbors. But I know for sure they fell on the turkeys, and I always include them in my thanks on Thanksgiving Day.

Grandmother Hebel's was the inevitable locale of our Thanksgiving feasts, and the folks would bundle us into our warm clothes for the ride out to Granny's rambling old Victorian house.

Single-handed, and working like a Trojan all week, Grandmother put on a tremendous meal for her clan that gathered about the groaning board. Uncle Frank Denver, whose main vocation was coupon-clipping fancied himself the world's most skillful potato masher and once tried to crash the kitchen to show off his art. But his spuds all turned out lumpy, and Grandmother chased him out pronto.

Grandmother Hebel, among her other dishes, turned out some scrumptious cranberry sauce—not jelly—and done in a lovely mold. I make it for my children now, and they love it.

CRANBERRY SAUCE
 4 cups cranberries
 2 cups granulated sugar
 2 cups water

Carefully wash and sort cranberries, discarding all that are not firm and crisp. Bring sugar and water slowly to boiling point, in saucepan. Continue boiling until a thin syrup is formed (about 10 minutes). Now add cranberries, cover saucepan, and simmer gently until berries are clear and transparent but unbroken. Pour into rinsed mold, and chill well before serving.

Mrs. Tripp Club Hostess

Mrs. Walter Tripp was hostess to members of the Stokes Home Demonstration Club Monday afternoon.

Mrs. J. R. Fleming, club president, called the meeting to order followed by various reports. It was decided to have a family picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Coles on June 20 at 6:30 p.m.
 Mrs. H. O. Warren and Mrs. T. L. Perkins, leaders, prepared and served a casserole of scalloped potatoes and frankfurters in connection with dairy month. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Marshall Tripp, served a frozen dessert, cake and nuts to the 11 members present. Mrs. Marshall Tripp was a guest.

Luncheon Given Barbara Taylor

Bride-elect Miss Barbara Taylor was entertained at a luncheon on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Walter Reid Perkins Sr. on Summit Street.

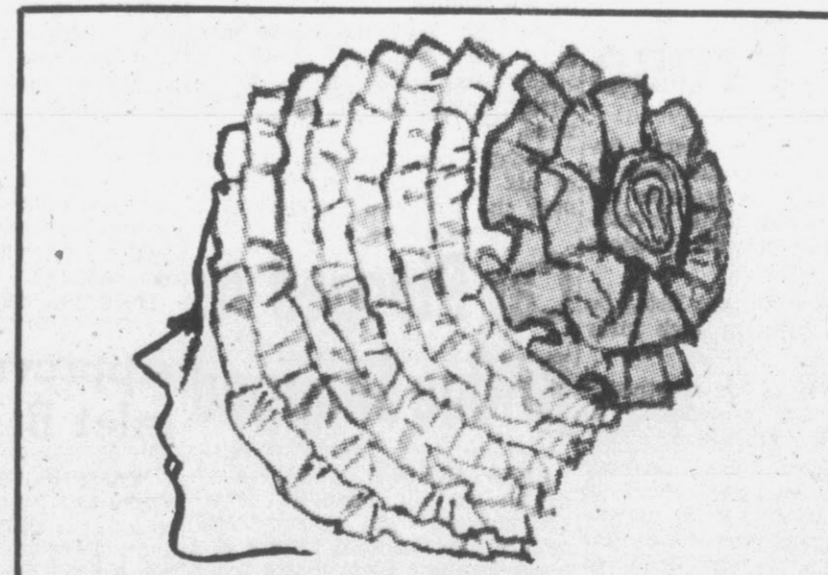

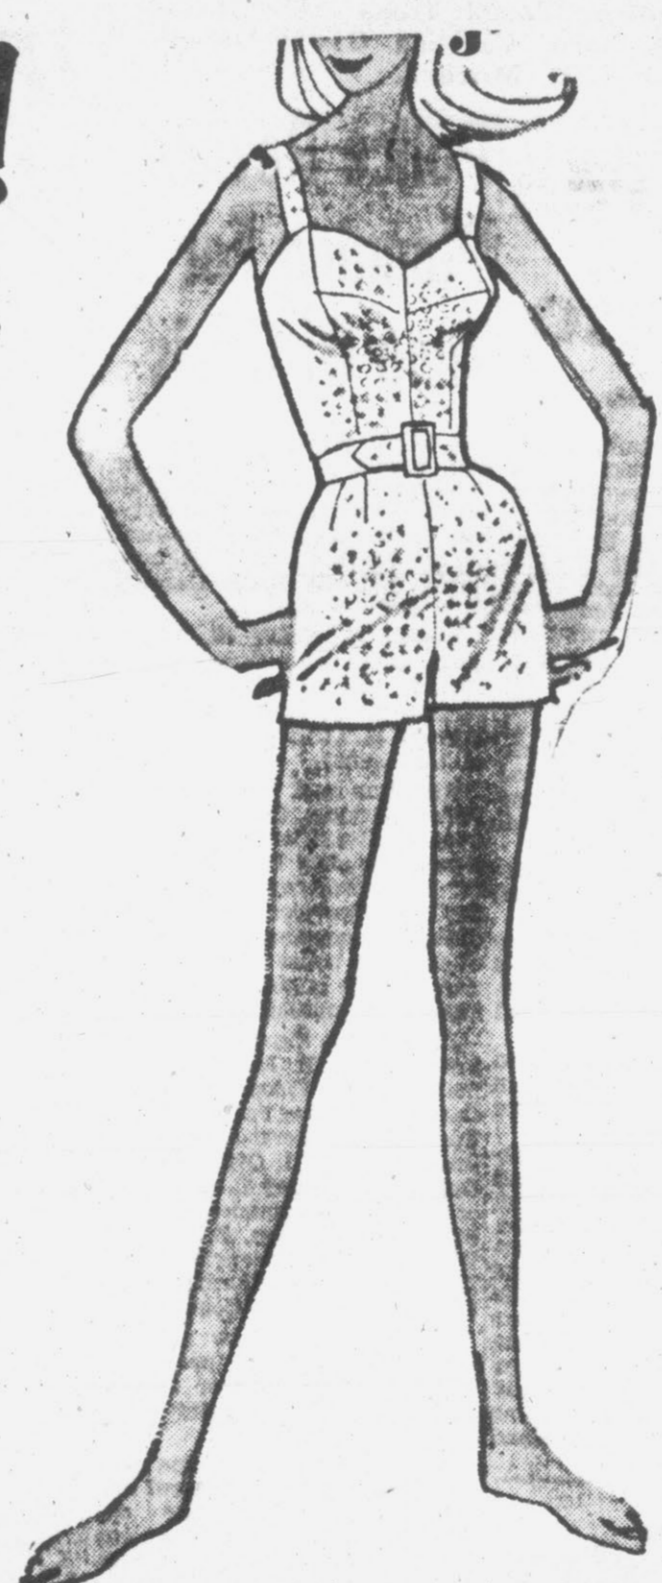

Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. W. R. Perkins Jr. were co-hostesses. The Perkins home was decorated with arrangements of garden roses, gardenias and other assorted garden flowers.
 The bride's table, in the dining room, was covered with a pink linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink roses. Auxiliary tables carried out the same color motif.
 After the luncheon two original bridal games were played and prizes given the winners.
 The hostesses remembered Miss Taylor with crystal and china in her chosen patterns.

Want To Master Art Of Baking?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

"If at first you don't succeed at fine home baking, try try again," urges Paula Peck, a gentle smiling woman with soft brown eyes and a striking determination under her delightfully feminine ways.

"If you have the slightest desire to fill your house with the delicious aromas of baked foods, please humor it. You'll never be sorry," promises Paula. "There's always been an enormous nostalgia connected with home baking. So many of the memories that people cherish go back to childhood and the breads and cakes and other desserts a mother, an aunt or a grandmother lovingly made."

Paula has every reason to encourage cooks. In the first years of her marriage, before she had learned to cook, she and her husband "ate out." But when her first child arrived, Paula discovered cooking experiments were fun, and baking a wonderfully satisfying art. Now she's the author of a remarkable cookbook and consultant to some of New York's finest restaurants.

Paula's recently published "The Fine Art of Baking" (Simon and Schuster, New York) contains recipes for exquisite cakes complete with fillings and frostings; puff paste and strudel; torten; cookies and petits fours, a few yeast breads and many coffee cakes; pastry appetizers and hors d'oeuvre. Here are generous explanations, accompanied by many line drawings, of every detail a cook needs to know in order to bake Paula's confections with success.

We have tried several recipes for the little French cakes called madeleines — immortalized by Marcel Proust in his novel "Remembrance of Things Past" — but not one so perfect as Paula's. The madeleine pans are available in the household sections of some department stores, or they may be ordered from shops specializing in kitchen equipment or from bakery supply houses. Try our small-quality adaptation of Paula's recipe.

FRENCH MADELEINES
2 eggs
3-4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
3-4 cup unsalted butter (clarified)

In a large mixing bowl stir together the eggs, sugar and lemon rind until just combined—about 1 minute. Place over 1 or 2 inches of hot water that does not touch the bowl or boil and heat, stirring 3 or 4 times, until lukewarm to touch—5 to 10 minutes. Remove from range and water and with electric mixer beat at high speed until tripled in bulk. Add vanilla. Fold in the flour, then clarified butter. Fill a pastry bag, fitted with a large plain round tube, with batter. Squeeze batter into madeleine molds well-greased with clarified butter, filling them 2-3 full. Bake in a very hot (450 degrees) oven about 10 minutes, or until tops of cakes are golden. Remove from molds immediately. Makes 24 madeleines if molds each hold 2 tablespoons.

Note: To clarify the butter, slowly cook the 3-4 cup called for in a saucepan over low heat until the foam settles in a thin layer at the top, and there is a light brown sediment on the bottom of the pan. Remove from heat; skim off crust from top. Pour through a double cheesecloth-lined strainer, leaving sediment in bottom of pan. Use the clear hot butter in the above recipe.

MARCEL PROUST, famous novelist, described the little French cakes called madeleines as looking "as though they had been molded in the fluted scallop of a pilgrim's shell."

CARROTS WITH SWEET ORANGE SAUCE

1 bunch carrots with green tops (about 1 1/2 pounds)
1 cup boiling water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 cup orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
Cut stem ends from carrots; pare; slice diagonally into very thin crosswise ovals. Cook rapidly in boiling water and salt just until tender-crisp — 5 to 8 minutes; drain, reserving carrot liquid. In a small saucepan stir together well the sugar and cornstarch; slowly stir in orange juice so mixture is smooth, then 1/4 cup carrot cooking liquid. Cook and stir constantly over medium heat until thickened and clear; mix in orange rind and cooked carrots; reheat. Makes servings.

Pitt Girls Attend F.H.A. Camp At White Lake

Future Homemakers from all over the state discovered that homemaking away from home could also be fun. Almost 400 attended F.H.A. Camp at White Lake the week of June 4th to 10th.

Members attending were: Ayden, Barbara Cannon, Sherry Long, Margaret Miller, Geraldine Patrick, Kathy Respass, Carol Anne Smith, Bonnie Turnage, and adviser Miss Joyce Byrum.

Farmville, Brenda Everette, Margaret Nelson, Rachel Wainright, and adviser Miss Elsie Seago;

Grimesland, Delois Elks, Lou Anna Haddock, Margaret Harrelson, Nelda Hudson, Sandra Payne, and adviser Mrs. June Haddock;

Stokes-Pactolus, Melva Barnhill, Peggy Eastwood, Rosalyn Fleming, Sandra Jones, Shirley Meeks, Linda Warren, Diane Whitehurst, and adviser Mrs. Sara Perkins;

Winterville, Nancy Branch, Laura Braxton, Ann Cox, Kathy Husted, and adviser Miss Alya Ray Taylor.

Mrs. Ernestine Frazier, State P.H.A. Adviser, was director of the camp. She was assisted by Miss Louise Swann along with a staff of well trained directors in crafts, music, dancing, swimming, landsports, and leadership.

The leadership classes were based upon subjects which will aid the members of P.H.A. Chapters during the coming school year such as: Purposeful Chapter Programs led by Miss Alya Ray Taylor, adviser of the Winterville Chapter; You and Your Values, Marriage Requires Preparation, Careers in Home Economics, Writing News Articles for Publication, Using Parliamentary Procedure, Enjoying One's Family and Friends.

Members in the Crafts classes made trinket boxes, necklaces, trays, zip-up bags, and vases. Each girl selected three from this list. Demonstrations in covering shoes and making decorations were given.

The day's activities included, arising at seven, followed by flag raising with devotions, calisthenics, a dip in the lake, the organized classes, and various group activities.

The Camp Council was the governing body for the week. Miss Rosalyn Fleming, member of the Stokes-Pactolus Chapter, was the Camp Council representative from Pitt County.

Various programs were enjoyed each night during the week. These programs included: Getting Acquainted Night, Dance Review Night, Stunt Night, Trip to Goldston Beach and Field Night for competitive sports.

The highlight of the week was the Friday night program led by the Stokes-Pactolus, Grimesland and Ayden Chapters. Miss Sandra Payne was mistress of ceremonies for this occasion. Skits, playlets and dramatizations depicting the work done in the leadership groups were given after which a reception and open house were held. Articles made by the girls in the crafts classes were displayed. Then the girls enjoyed recreational dancing.

Of course, the week wasn't "all play and no work." There were KP duties, cabin clean-up for inspection, and other responsibilities which were met in order to have a successful week. There were friendships made and many, many P.H.A.'ers hope to return to camp next year.

Revival To Be Held
Revival services will be conducted at the Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church June 14-17. Services will begin each night at 8:00 with the Rev. Melvin Worthington as evangelist. There will be inspirational messages and special music.

Prayer room services and children chorus time will begin at 7:45 p.m. The Rev. Luther Burns is pastor of the church which is located on Route 6, Belvoir.

The Legislative Date Is Involved

As public school officials of Greenville and Pitt County look toward the beginning of another term in September, it is evident there will be more students enrolled in schools this fall than last, and the enrollment is expected to continue its upward course in subsequent years.

It is also evident, on the basis of this increase in enrollment, that in some areas—and particularly in Greenville—additional classrooms are going to be needed to house these students.

Attempts to make adequate plans for future expansion of physical facilities for public schools in Greenville have been hampered by the problems which exist over the county's school district lines and the bonded indebtedness of the individual school districts. Until some satisfactory method is found to resolve this problem, it will be almost impossible for reasonable long-range planning for school construction to be done.

In all probability any adequate solution to the problem that may be arrived at by local officials will require concurrence by the state's legislature because of the general statutes governing school districts of the state.

School officials and the boards of education of Greenville and Pitt County should give serious and concerted attention to the problem of school district lines and come up with some solution to the problem before the legislature convenes. The problem is, without question, complex. It involves many complicated questions to which answers must be found before any solution can be effected. This will not be done in a few weeks. It will require months of careful study and evaluation.

For this reason we feel that the two school boards should immediately begin intensive study of the problem in an attempt to work out some reasonable solution.

Ignoring the problem will not make it go away. The only way it can be solved is by facing squarely the issues and resolving them. If a solution is not reached in time for it to be ratified by the legislature next winter, there will be a delay of two years before the legislature would again be in session to take any action necessary.

Already there are areas within the corporate limits of the city of Greenville that lie within the Winterville school district. As Greenville continues to grow and its corporate limits continue to expand, the problem will become more complicated. Certainly it is logical to expect continued growth of the city in the years immediately ahead. And it is just as certain that construction of new school facilities cannot be delayed for several years if increasing numbers of students are to have classroom space.

If the best interest of the school systems is to be served, it is imperative that the school boards immediately give their attention to the problems presented by school district lines.

More Than A Casual Day Of Observance

Tomorrow is Flag Day, but it isn't just a date plucked out of the calendar and set aside as another special day. It is a day of special significance for Americans everywhere because of its two-fold historical importance.

On June 14, 1775 the authorization was given for creation of 10 companies of infantry from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, and with the authorization the fledgling colonies, struggling for a new and independent way of life gave birth to what is now the U.S. Army.

Two years later on the same date the Continental Congress adopted a resolution declaring: "The flag of the United States shall be of thirteen stripes of alternate red and white, with a union of thirteen stars of white in a blue field, representing the new constellation."

Those who established the 10 companies of infantry 187 years ago could not envision the U.S. Army of today. Those who officially adopted the 13 stars and stripes for the flag of the new constellation could not envision the growth of the constellation to 50 stars, or the growth of the new and shaly nation to the most powerful known to man.

Flag Day is far more than just acknowledging the colorful piece of cloth that has become the symbol of the United States. It is a day which commands Americans to meditate upon the words of Woodrow Wilson who termed the flag "... the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other characters than that which we give it from generation to generation. The choice is ours ..."

Backtracking As To Medicare

Sen. Robert Kerr, Oklahoma Democrat, was cosponsor two years ago of the Kerr-Mills bill which became law and provides medical care for aged people but on a very limited basis.

This Kerr-Mills Act has been one of the biggest headaches of the administration's hopes of getting through its own new medical care bill. It has a lot of supporters in Congress.

Its biggest outside supporter is the AMA, which says the Kerr-Mills Act is just fine although the Kennedy administration takes the position it can't be fine because it doesn't provide coverage for enough aged people.

Nevertheless, the administration has shied away from the Kerr-Mills Act. At all times the Kennedy administration has limited itself to a gentlemanly skirmish while avoiding all-out war.

Even from the beginning the administration talked this way: "The only difference between those who favor aid to Poland and Yugoslavia and those who do not, is the question of how best to restrain communism. And how ultimately to supplant it."

What successive presidents have asked is the flexibility to give or withhold aid, at any given time, as best it suited the aims of the United States in the cold war.

We are convinced that if those who want to withdraw this option could go to Washington and sit in on the day-to-day making of foreign policy, they would change their positions. They would not wish to be deprived of this weapon in the cold war. They would not wish to be compelled to take one line of action, and one line only.

For example, recent American policy has been aimed at encouraging the opponents of Stalinism within the Communist coalition. This is not to argue that leaders like Khrushchev, particularly in meat and butter are becoming more severe. Khrushchev would like to get some assistance from the East European communist nations but they, too, are having their troubles.

Poland is importing large amounts of American grain to meet demand. To make matters worse, the extent of aid from the United States is in doubt. East Germany and Czechoslovakia are very short of dairy products. In general, East Europe is worse off agriculturally than it has been in a decade.

Still the East Europeans are better off than their Russian comrades, though in no position to help them much.

And the Common Market troubles the communists a great deal more than it does Americans. Just last week a meeting of Bloc countries was called in Moscow. Its main purpose, Russia indicated, was what to do when the European Economic Community begins raising the tariffs. One possible solution: A communist "Common Market."

Vacation Story Hazards

They say columnists generally are under some sort of obligation to describe at least moderately the vacation upon returning to the saltmine.

But there's a damper to be imposed upon any such ideas. In fact there may be several drawbacks.

For instance, a cohort Tuesday—the very morning after the return from a week or so of leisure — asked a biting question: "Tell me now, what good is a used-up vacation?"

With that in mind, the going gets tough when the same old typewriter feels the urge to describe merry vacation bits.

Then another fellow-worker used this device as a precaution: "Oh no. Don't write about your vacation. Your creditors will read it and hound you for spending THEIR money on such a spree."

That suggestion creates something of a guilt complex. But what seems to dampen enthusiastic spirits most is the knack people have for asking about the vacation which, incidentally, had been longed for during preceding months.

When a well-known and popular vacation spot has been visited, there are always friends back home who have been there on occasions. Upon the return these persons express more than casual interest in the trip.

Naturally this interest is appreciated and short conversations about the vacation spot invariably develop. There are common points—such as major highways, oceans, entire states, etc.—that every visitor to a particular vacation spot encounters.

But it's the specific, microscopic details of the resort that seem to count most in those conversations. After relating a list of spots-off-the-beaten-track visited, these interested persons relate a separate list and their question: "Certainly you went to those places. . . Didn't you?"

The answer always seems to be a simple "No."

In spite of dampened spirits, though, there's still an urge to say at least a word or two about our excursion to the Yankee South.

While it's a long, long haul by motor-car, it's worth all the wear and tear.

Briefly, during the off-season (including little more than the month of June) when rates for vacationers are at least below the clouds, Miami Beach is the place to go.

So those who have made policy, those who had all the facts in their hands during the past three administrations, Republicans and Democrats alike, have needed and used flexible instruments of policy. In order to keep the most effective pressure on communism without at the same time causing it and its nuclear weapons to blow up, they have used small safety valves here and there, and have alternated types and intensities of pressure.

This is a dangerous operation, containing a resourceful and now very powerful opponent within tight boundaries, and it has to be managed with skill and wily.

We will agree with anyone who argues there should be no ideological softness in the control rooms. We will join anyone in examining particular applications of policy at particular times. Aid to Yugoslavia has already been greatly reduced and there might be a case at some point for a cut off. But we cannot believe that responsible citizens, if they knew all the facts and problems, would cut off the ability to take useful steps at the right moment.

The 'Other Guys' In A Bad Way

By ELMER ROESSNER
With Americans and the rest of the Free World getting a little upset about the way capitalism and the free enterprise system is jouncing across a few rough spots, it might be a good time to see how the "other guys" are doing.

Communist China has been suffering through several years of near starvation. To make up for crop failures, floods and generally poor management they are as quietly as possible abandoning the commune system and importing large quantities of grain. When the Bamboo Curtain was raised temporarily at Hong Kong, thousands of hungry Chinese fled to freedom.

The Russians have had to make concessions to capitalist incentives by offering higher prices to the collective farmers. They will pay the farmers out of increased receipts from meat and butter prices, which have been raised 30 to 25 per cent, respectively.

Agricultural output has lagged in Russia and food shortages, on occasions. Upon the return these persons express more than casual interest in the trip.

Naturally this interest is appreciated and short conversations about the vacation spot invariably develop. There are common points—such as major highways, oceans, entire states, etc.—that every visitor to a particular vacation spot encounters.

What has happened in the stock market cannot be understood fully until the Christmas season of 1962. That begins in the month of August when the manufacturer and wholesaler must make a final projection as to what he can sell to the stores. And the buyers for the stores must make a final and irrefragable guess as to what the consumer will take.

It is this that worries the businessman and the labor unions. Consumer goods includes everything, steel, aluminum, wood, glass, paper, as well as the contents of containers. It naturally affects the workers in all industries. The height of consumer goods purchasing in this country is what is known as the Christmas season which runs from approximately Labor Day to Christmas and is followed by the White Goods Sales in January (textiles of various kinds).

Business to be prosperous must have a good third and fourth quarter. Unless these periods show a turn-over of capital at least 40 times (in a city like New York it runs very much higher), the revenue for the government from income taxes will fall below expectations. The flow of currency can only be maintained if there is confidence in the present and the future. When there is fear of a depression people hold on to their money.

The Kennedy Administration has committed an error in proposing a tax cut in 1963 before the 1962 tax bill has been passed. To relieve the consumer from the fears engendered by the stock market debacle, if it is possible to make a tax cut in 1962. But a tax cut, to be accepted as sound, must be accompanied by a sharp cut in government expenditures. The housekeeping operations of the government are out of line with current conditions. A tax cut should be accompanied by a balanced budget.

It is this which caused the Senate to insist on cutting Yugoslavia and Poland from the foreign aid program. Every item in that program ought to be scrutinized sharply to make sure that the aid is absolutely justified. Aid to build up competitors is like Gimbel supplying Macy with money to run a sale to put Gimbel out of business.

President Kennedy surely ought to tell the Common Market that their member countries have had all the aid from us that they will get until they remove every barrier to the sale of American goods in their markets. Otherwise, we shall put a tariff on everything they sell. It is from this position of strength that we ought to negotiate. Negotiating with Europeans from weakness will produce such unemployment here as the nation has not yet witnessed.

President Kennedy has inherited a tough situation, but it can be met by rough handling. It is no advantage to the United States as a country or to the Kennedy Administration to be sorry for the very prosperous Western Europeans. It is their turn to be sorry for us.

Another point that President Kennedy must note: while it is true that he has inherited most (Continued on page five)

Governor Will Be With Troops

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
GUARD—Gov. Terry Sanford plans to spend a full day in the field at Ft. Bragg next week with 10,000 Tar Heel National Guardsmen.

His schedule permitting, Sanford will spend Wednesday June 30 with the units of the 20th (Old Hickory) Infantry Division of which he is commander in chief.

There are 10,000 North Carolina guardsmen in summer encampment at Ft. Bragg. The division's annual summer training at Bragg began June 10.

A number of artillery and other units spent two weeks earlier in summer training at Ft. Stewart, Ga.

If Sanford's plans go through for the day in the field, it will be the first time in recent years a Tar Heel chief executive has spent a full day with the civilian-soldiers in the field. Until recently, the 30th division was shared jointly by North Carolina and Tennessee, but is now an all-North Carolina outfit.

CUTS—Sanford has said there are no plans whatever for eliminating any of the North Carolina National Guard's present units. The Pentagon had asked that two units be eliminated as part of the National Guard reorganization and cutback in strength.

Most other governors also have refused to go along with the National Guard bureau's requests for cutbacks. The governors, in peacetime, have the say about guard strength although 90 per cent of National Guard funds come from the federal government.

BUDGET TOUR—The advisory budget commission has scheduled its biennial tour of state institutions across the state for next month. The exact itinerary hasn't been worked out. But plans call for the tour by budget-planning officials to begin in early July and to be in at least two parts. After one week of the tour, it would be halted for a week to assemble and catch up on date and reports received. Then the tour would be resumed in another part of the state.

Officials of various institutions visited by the budget planners present their detailed requests for funds for operating expense and capital improvements. The tour also affords a chance for the officials to inspect the institutions and see the needs first-hand.

Some weeks after the around-the-state tour, the advisory budget commission begins hearings in Raleigh for state departments and agencies located in the capital. At the conclusion of the commission, budget officials and the governor begin the biennial task of preparing budget recommendations for the General Assembly.

These recommendations, in several thick volumes, go to the printer several weeks before the legislature convenes.

CAMERON—The name of Dan Cameron of Wilmington has been mentioned prominently in speculation in the event that state conservation and development director Hargrove W. Bowles Jr. leaves the state government.

Talk that Bowles may soon resign from his post as C&D Director has been going around for a number of weeks, and the renewed speculation was, as one source put it, "on the third time around." Bowles has not said anything about it.

Cameron presently is chairman of the Mineral Resources committee of the C&D board and the word is that Gov. Sanford has been pleased with the way he tackled the job.

Cameron, however, like Bowles, has extensive private business interests which occupy a large part of his time.

Sen. Johnston Whips Hollings In S.C.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Olin D. Johnston handed young South Carolina Gov. Ernest F. Hollings a shattering political defeat Tuesday, winning their battle for the Senate nomination by a landslide margin of nearly 2-1.

With 1,469 of the state's 1,604 precincts reporting, Johnston had 175,073 votes to 89,487 for Hollings.

Johnston will face Republican W. D. Workman Jr., syndicated newspaper columnist from Columbia, in the November general elections.

The total vote of some 263,000 was well below the 400,000 record vote that had been expected. Robert F. Chapman of Spartanburg, GOP state party chairman, said the small vote was an indication of Republican strength. A 1958 primary drew some 375,000 voters to the polls.

"I think a lot of people wanted to wait for November when they could vote for something instead of against something," said Chapman.

Republicans had been advised by Chapman not to vote in the Senate and 2nd District congressional contests, races in which Republicans have chosen nominees by the convention method.

State law and Democratic party regulations require primary voters to swear they will support the primary nominees in the general election. The so-called "loyalty oath" has been ruled unenforceable by the State Supreme Court, but attempts to get it off the books have been unsuccessful.

Primary contest was the first political test for the 65-year-old Johnston in 12 years. And it showed that the wily veteran of 18 years in the Senate still had the political skill that enabled him to win other years to defeat such formidable campaigners as Sens. Strom Thurmond and "Cotton Ed" Smith, whose 36-year career Johnston ended.

Hollings led Johnston is only one of the state's 46 counties — Little Calhoun — which has only a dozen polling places.

Johnston's strength was universal, extending even to Hollings' home county of Charleston where the incumbent piled up 13,710 votes to 9,596 for the 40-year-old governor.

The state's senior senator showed the strength he was expected to display in the textile counties, where he campaigned hard and asked workers to consider his Senate votes on matters concerning labor.

Hollings had said a prime issue was the right-to-work law, which he supported. He said Johnston had voted against federal legislation authorizing such state statutes and was backed by the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE). Hollings charged that labor leaders from other states had come to South Carolina to try to defeat him.

The campaign was a bitter one, but it ended Tuesday night in Johnston's headquarters with a hearty handshake.

The wavy-haired handsome governor walked two blocks from his campaign headquarters in downtown Columbia to Johnston at about 10 p.m. and offered his congratulations.

Johnston seized Hollings' hand said feelingly, "I will never forget you for this, Fritz."

But during the campaign, the atmosphere between the two was charged. Hollings brought up Johnston's 1955 co-authorship of a bill to block deportation of dope peddler nicolo impostato of Kansas city, Mo.

Johnston accused Hollings of "mud-slinging" and noted that a Senate Judiciary Committee had passed a resolution stating that the bill, eventually quashed, had been introduced "with justification. Republican Senate nominee Workman lost no time in drawing the battle lines for his campaign against Johnston.

He said voters will be faced "with a clear cut choice. Senator Johnston can try to defend the Kennedys. I will defend the Constitution."

everyone feels sure she didn't wander off alone, barefoot and clad only in a nightgown.

Rewards for return of Ann Marie or arrest and conviction of those responsible for her disappearance now total $5,000.

Newspapers, touched by pleas of the parents, periodically have printed pictures of the missing child. As these appear, new reports come in.

After her picture appeared in Manitoba Province papers early in June, Canadian police were told that a girl answering Ann Marie's description was seen in a cafe in the town of Portage la Prairie. The cafe operator said two women and a man were with the girl. Like other such reports, nothing came of it.

To Donald and Beverly Burr, who have tried to live a normal life with their remaining children, it is a mystery that must be resolved.

"We pray and pray," said Ann Marie's mother. "You've got to help your own little girl. You just can't give up."

Parents Pray And Pray For Missing Child, Now Gone For Nine Months

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Say you are the parents of four happy children, living in a pleasant home in a quiet neighborhood. Then one morning you awaken and find your 8-year-old daughter is gone from her bedroom.

There is a frantic search. Days, weeks and months pass and there are only false clues and dead ends.

This happened to Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Burr the morning of Aug. 31, 1961. More than nine months later the case of Ann Marie Burr still is an agonizing mystery.

It was cold and rainy that Aug. 31, Mrs. Burr, 33, awakened shortly after 5:30 a.m. She heard their youngest child, Mary, 3, crying. Mary was bothered by a cast put on her arm after an accident. The other children, Greg, 5, and Julie, 7, were asleep in abatement bedroom.

When Mrs. Burr looked in Ann Marie's bedroom, it was empty. The Burrs searched every room and closet in the two-story brick home. Then they called police.

There was ample cause for alarm. The front door, locked and latched with a night chain the evening before, was open. A small living room window, closed the night before, also was open. A bench beneath the window was overturned.

Donald and Beverly Burr live now in a tangled web of confusion, sorrow and apprehension—hoping against mounting odds that their blonde, hazel-eyed daughter may be alive. No ransom ever was asked. No ready explanation is available.

Tacoma police are just as puzzled.

More than 1,500 persons were questioned in the first 12 days of the search.

Robert J. Drost, detective captain, has a 500-page file on the Ann Marie case on a rack above his desk.

"I've read every page in that file four times," said Drost, "and it reads the same each time."

Missing person bulletins have been sent to every state and to Canada and Mexico. When Ann Marie first disappeared, hundreds of searchers combed the city's wooded areas and vacant lots.

Police made a house-to-house check of the neighborhood. All known child molesters and sex offenders were questioned.

With no proof Ann Marie was abducted, the FBI could only stand by to assist. Although police are almost certain there was an abduction, the case still has not been listed officially as kidnapping.

Ann Marie was described as a happy, intelligent child, somewhat shy. She was ready to enter the third grade in a few days.

Her parents, not wealthy, were not a likely mark for a kidnaper. The father is a warehouseman at nearby Camp Murray.

The night before the disappearance, the Burrs put their four children to bed about 8 p.m. Ann Marie and Mary both had upstairs rooms.

The parents went to bed about 11 p.m. They said they locked and chained the front door, locked the back door and made sure all the windows were closed.

Sometime during the night or early morning, Ann Marie brought Mary downstairs because she was crying. Uncertain of the time and not fully awake, Mrs. Burr sent the children back upstairs. It was the last time she saw Ann Marie.

Investigators found no sign of a struggle in Ann Marie's bedroom. Nothing was disturbed in the house.

How anyone could have gotten the girl out of the house without awakening the parents remains a mystery.

Some believe Ann Marie might have wandered into the living room and been taken quietly by someone she recognized, or that she might have stepped outside and been grabbed by a sex deviate.

Whatever happened, nearly

Accord On Laos Troika Is Scant Reason For Cheers

By ALAN CLINE

TOKYO (AP)—To the optimist, agreement to establish a neutral coalition government in Laos paves the way for unity and peace in that tiny jungle kingdom.

The leaders of the three rival factions finally got together. They decided on a government headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma and a Cabinet ostensibly dominated by his middle-of-the-road faction.

Pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong and right-winger Gen. Phoumi Nosavan agreed to become deputy premiers, on an equal footing.

But the troika clause the three leaders wrote into their pact promises to become a formidable obstacle to smooth operation of the Laotian government. The trio must agree unanimously on all decisions affecting the key ministries of defense, interior—controlling the police—and foreign affairs.

Statements after the agreement was reached indicate this will take some doing.

Tough, stubborn Gen. Phoumi gave in and agreed to the coalition only after extreme pressure from the United States. He declared he would follow the agreement "providing everyone else does the same."

Souphanouvong's statement consisted mainly of an attack on the United States. He predicted that U.S. forces in neighboring Thailand will help Laotian "reactionaries to sow, on our lands, troubles and provocations of one sort or another."

Phoumi is almost certain to tangle with Foreign Minister Quinlan Pholsena and Interior Minister

Pheng Phongsavan, close associates of Souvanna, who himself took the defense ministry.

Phoumi, the strongman in Prince Boun Oum's Vientiane government, during previous negotiations insisted on retaining the key defense and interior posts. He said he surrendered because it was the "only solution." That doesn't mean he likes the arrangement.

He is certain to have difficulty with Souvanna's military leaders, Gen. Kong Le and his deputy, Gen. Singkazo.

They were in Peiping when the June 11 agreement was reached, and their statements to the Communist press mark them as anything but neutral.

"U.S. imperialism has been trying to turn (Laos) into a military base for its aggression against the Socialist camp," Kong Le declared.

Singkazo added: "The peace, neutrality and independence of Laos can be truly guaranteed only when U.S. imperialism gives up its schemes of interference in Laos and evacuates its troops from Laos, Thailand and South Viet Nam."

of his troubles, the people of a country always blame the man who sits on the hot seat at the moment. President Coolidge will go down in history not only as a taciturn person but also as an avoicer of direct action in the Presidency. So when Herbert Hoover became President, he found that all the troubles of the world were dumped in his lap. A man of extraordinary ability, he never had a chance.

President Kennedy can learn much from that. All the talk of the Kennedy Dynasty, or of the President's Socialism is propagandistic eyewash. What will matter will be the consumers market in the third and fourth quarters of 1962. If these quarters are good, the President will be a smart man; if they are bad, he will be regarded as incompetent.

Few persons view an entire picture in perspective. They hit upon a detail and make their decisions accordingly. The Secretary of the Treasury spoke of cutting taxes in 1963. He opened the question. The time to do that is 1962. This means that by April 15, 1963, the consumer will pay less. It means the interim withholding tax (a vicious operation) will not postpone spending in 1962. It could mean a decent third and fourth quarter in 1962. The alternative could be buyers resistance which can lead to a Depression.

Cats, Cats, Cats And Dogs, Dogs In Her Dwelling

BOSTON (AP)—Cats, and cats, and cats. Dogs, and dogs, and dogs.

That's what police found in a Hyde Park dwelling when they broke down the door after neighbors complained of offensive odors.

On the ground floor, the officers counted 111 dogs of all sizes, shapes and breeds.

Upstairs, there were some 60 cats, black, calico, large, small—

Upstairs, there were some 60 cats, black, calico, large, small—all kinds.

Animal rescue league crews removed the menagerie and police took a 63-year-old widow to Boston State Hospital for mental observation.

Police said the animals were well fed but the house wasn't fit for a dog or cat to live in.

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

CHAPTER 21

"Tell me you hate me for having lied," Casey Jeffries said gently to Julie Pendleton. "Tell me to leave because you're tired of seeing me around. Tell me you couldn't possibly love me. Tell me, right now, that you never want to see me again."

"Let go of me, Casey," Julie said sharply, "and I'll tell you all these things—"

"No," he said. "Tell me while your hands are still in mine—while you're looking at me. While my eyes are watching you, because then and only then will I know if you're telling the truth."

"You—a proven liar—ask for the truth?"

"Do you hate me? That's the question I want answered."

"Of course I don't hate you," she said. "Perhaps I will answer your questions—provided you answer a couple of mine first."

"I haven't a thing to hold back. How much do I love you? Do you want to know that?"

"Why did you follow me home from the dance the night I saw the strange horse?"

"Easy. You and Britt had a fight, you left to cool off and he walked out with another girl. I'm the old-fashioned type. I think a girl should be escorted home, even here in this most civilized part of Kentucky. So I hung around and you came back. I told you Britt had left with another girl because—I'll admit it—I was jealous of him and hungry for your company."

"I wanted so much to be with you, but you weren't interested. You didn't even seem to be aware of what I'd told you. That's why I followed you to your farm. I knew something was bothering you and I wanted so much to be with you. You must admit, Julie, the short time we spent together was pleasant. At least, I got that impression."

"I concede all that, Casey," said Julie. "You just happened to be around when I needed you."

"You mean," Casey said wryly, "just a friend in need?"

Julie's brows raised questioningly. "I wonder. You could have pretended to go away and returned to shut the stall door when Big Blue tried to hurt me."

"I could have, but I didn't."

"You could even have thrown that dummy into the stall so Big Blue would be riled."

"True, but then anybody could have."

"Did you remove the dummy?"

"I did not. And I might add one more small item. That night I saw you toss a short bit of wood into Big Blue's stall. Later on, you used it as a prod to keep that animal from squeezing you. Now, if I'd wanted you harmed, I'd have been very sure to remove the prod. It probably saved a few of your ribs from being squashed."

"I—never thought of that, Casey. But what about the dry jump that was filled with water? You were quite handy when that happened."

"True—but not before it happened, my sweet, and I can prove it. When I reached the farm, that water must have been placed in the hazard a long time before. It couldn't have been done in three minutes. At the time it must have been done, I was with Claude."

"Anyhow," Julie said, "we already know who threw the dummy in Big Blue's stall and who filled in the water hazard."

His face became a mask of griminess. "Really?"

"It was a man named Duke Vogel. He worked for my father on the farm and he wasn't a very good hand. He hated Big Blue and he refused to stay out of his stall. Big Blue squeezed him and put him in the hospital. We believe Vogel sneaked back here to try and hurt Big Blue."

"Who thought up that goofy idea?" Casey asked quickly.

"A police lieutenant named Fallon. He knows his business. He said there was no motive for anyone to hurt me so we had to look for another motive concerning someone else. It turned out to be Big Blue. Vogel hates him so much he'd love to have him kick the stall down and hurt himself doing it, or refuse a water jump so he'd fall and break a leg."

"Nonsense," Casey said promptly.

"Why do you say that? It does make sense. Casey, there isn't any reason why I should be killed or hurt. Can't you understand that?"

"And can't you understand there may be? A reason nobody's thought of yet?" He gripped her by both shoulders and shook her gently. "Wake up, darling. A man like Vogel, a cruel, vindictive man—he isn't capable of anything remotely clever."

"How do you know about Vogel?" She was so astounded she forgot to free herself of his grasp.

"I checked on him, of course. If Vogel wanted to hurt Big Blue he'd have been direct about it. She said she'd had a direct way so he'd inflict the injury himself. He hasn't either the talent or the brains to think of a trick like a dummy in the stall or arranging a water jump where there was none."

"You seem to know a great deal more than you've pretended."

"How could Vogel know you were riding Big Blue that day? He was too busy being in the hospital."

"She still didn't try to free herself. She looked him straight in the eye. 'Who are you, Casey? What are you?'"

"I'm a guy in love with a girl who doesn't know enough to protect herself. What do you think I'm doing here right now? There were two attempts made on your life—or your safety. A man who tries twice has a mighty good reason and he isn't going to give up."

"You haven't answered my question."

He dropped his arms and stepped back. "And you haven't answered mine. We're at cross-purposes and it seems there's no way for us to trust one another."

"You don't trust me?" she exclaimed.

"You've certainly given me enough reason not to. Wandering about the way you do, making a target of yourself—"

"Oh," she said, "that kind of trust."

"Well, what other kind?"

"Never mind, Casey. I'm going back now. I want you to understand that I believe Lieutenant Fallon is perfectly right and no one wants to harm me. The attempts were aimed at Big Blue. Therefore, I won't need your protection again."

"After tomorrow you won't," he said. "Whatever's going on has something to do with that race. You won't be safe until it's over."

"All right," she said patiently. "I can't change your mind, but I can tell you I don't wish to see you again. Never again, is that clear? You and I have absolutely nothing in common. I appreciate your kindness to me—I know you honestly believe you've been protecting me. But that simply is not the case, because I haven't been in need of protection. Within a week after the race I'll marry Britt and I assure you I'll be very happy."

"Say that after the race and I'll believe it," Casey said. "Until then, I'll stick around."

"I told you"—her voice was sharp—"I told you I didn't want to see you again. If you come here once more, I'll have the men put you off this property."

"You're very beautiful when you get angry," he said with a chuckle.

She moved away from him and ran to Big Blue. The horse raised his head nervously at this sudden approach, but she mounted with no trouble. She looked down at Casey. "Remember—leave at once and don't come back."

There's a setback awaiting Casey in a clash with the law. Continue the story tomorrow.

Find Bomb Near Explosive Cargo

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—An antismarine bomb with 2 1/2 pounds of TNT in its nose was found on the Memphis waterfront a few feet from the anchorage of three explosive-laden barges.

The police emergency squad took the bomb to the Memphis Naval Station for checking.

The World War II type depth charge bomb was nestled on the far bank of Mud Island, opposite the heart of Memphis' downtown district.

Capt. Clyde Robinson of the tug H. E. Bowles spotted the bomb about 10 feet from his three barges. He told police his cargo consisted of two barges of ether and one of naphtha and other high explosives.

Street Gangs At Graham Meet

CHICAGO (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham's Crusade for Christ held a youth session Tuesday night and about 200 teen-agers which crusade leaders said were members of street gangs showed up.

H. E. Bowles spotted the bomb about 10 feet from his three barges. He told police his cargo consisted of two barges of ether and one of naphtha and other high explosives.

Graham, addressing the 14th meeting of his 19-day Chicago crusade, said the 200 teen-agers were his special guests. Several young girls were in the group.

A Graham aide said that members of street gangs have been attending sessions of the crusade since Saturday when the evangelist spoke to a youth group in an area of high petty crime on the South Side.

After Graham's sermon, several dozen among the 200 were in the McCormick Place officials estimated Tuesday night's crowd at 36,000, raising the attendance for the crusade to 446,000. The crusade ends Sunday with a giant rally in Soldier Field, an open-air amphitheater near McCormick Place.

Graham said "A million policemen and a thousand social centers cannot cure the problem of juvenile delinquency. There is nothing that will take the place of mother and dad teaching their sons and daughters the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount."

Iraq Promised Election In '63

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Iraq's Premier Abdel Karim Kassem has promised the Iraqi people free elections and a constitution next year. Radio Baghdad reported Tuesday.

The radio broadcast a statement by Kassem which appeared in Iraq's government newspaper Al Thawra.

Kassem's regime has been operating without a constitution or elections since the premier took power after a revolution in July 1958.

Space Capsule In Parachute Test

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A full-scale model of the Mercury space capsule used by America's astronauts was successfully parachuted into Trinity Bay here Tuesday.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration manned space craft center crews directed the operation, designed to improve the parachute system of the capsule.

Spokesmen said a model of the improved Mercury capsule will be dropped in about 20 days and the remodeled capsule itself will be tested in about a month.

The new capsule will use retro rockets instead of a parachute to lessen the impact.

In 1956, after Spain and France gave up their protectorates over Morocco, the internationally ruled zone of Tangier was turned over to Morocco.

Officials Of Firm That Bankrolled Billie Estes Called To Explain Acts

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials of the Commercial Solvents Co., the firm which bankrolled Billie Sol Estes' now collapsed fertilizer empire in West Texas, were called today to explain their actions to a House subcommittee.

Maynard C. Wheeler, president of the New York chemical company, and William Leonhardt, vice president and treasurer, were scheduled as witnesses as the subcommittee began another two days of hearings in the House caucus room.

Possible future witnesses are two Agriculture Department officials in the Eisenhower administration who resigned to take jobs with Commercial Solvents.

In addition to his huge dealings in surplus grain storage and cotton allotment transfers, Estes built up a flimsy pyramid in the liquid fertilizer business, trying to corner the market in West Texas by cutting prices below cost.

The fertilizer was anhydrous ammonia, use of which has become a way of life for farmers in sausage-shaped 1,000-gallon tanks, mounted on wheels for easy movement.

Estes bought his fertilizer from Commercial Solvents, assigning the proceeds from his government grain storage contracts as payment. The New York firm got more than $7 million in these government payments, but it was not enough to square the account.

The bankrupt Estes still owes Commercial Solvents $5.7 million. To get operating cash, Estes worked out a scheme of discounting mortgages on the fertilizer tanks, but most of the tanks did not exist. This led to his indictment on fraud charges.

The only public comment made by Commercial Solvents previously was in a letter to its stockholders on May 24. President Wheeler told the stockholders, "Our business with him (Estes) was conducted in the friendly, proper, business-like way."

He said credit extended to Estes was backed by proper security. Most of the security consisted of the assignment by Estes to the company of his government grain storage payments.

These payments were suspended on March 30 by the Agriculture Department, and the money since then has been held in escrow pending court settlement of how it should be distributed.

Commercial Solvents was named in a civil antitrust suit filed against Estes by the state of Texas, on the ground that its extension of millions of dollars in credit to Estes enabled him to run competitors out of business and corner the market by selling below cost.

One of the oddest byproducts of the Estes case came into the news again Tuesday.

It was disclosed that Mark K. Jones, 51-year-old agriculture department secretary, has asked Secretary Orville L. Freeman to clear her name and pay her restitution.

Miss Jones was hauled out of the department building and placed in a mental ward for observation for 12 days after she got into a squabble with department employees who were guarding a room where some files on Estes were stored.

Her only connection with the Estes case was that she worked for N. Battle Hales, a longtime department employee who publicly accused his superiors of showing favoritism to Estes.

Hales was shifted to another job and barred access to his old office, where the files were. Miss Jones ran into her trouble when she tried to get into Hales' old office to get a routine paper signed.

UN May Have To Borrow Again

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations may have to borrow up to $3 million within the next 10 days to meet expenses for its emergency force in the Congo and Middle East and its routine operations, officials said Tuesday night.

They said, however, that the United Nations hopes to avoid such borrowing by the sale of U.N. bonds and the receipt of new governmental contributions.

Officials said the U.N. cash position is much better than it was at this time last year because eight countries already have purchased $20,870,000 of the $200 million bond issue authorized by the General Assembly last December.

Temperatures Drop To 30's In Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temperatures dropped into the 30s in parts of the northern Midwest today as cold Canadian air spread across the northeast quarter of the nation.

The mercury edged to near freezing in Marquette, Mich. Readings were in the 40-50 range in most of the cool belt. It was warm in much of the South with temperatures in the 70-80 degree range.

As the chilly air moved eastward rain and showers broke out in many sections from the New Jersey coast through western Virginia to northern border areas of Mississippi. Thunderstorms and showers also erupted in the warm and humid regions of the Southland.

Rain splashed across Western sections, with heavy amounts in some areas. The wet belt extended across parts of the Rocky Mountain region, the northern plateau westward into western Washington and in western sections of the plains states.

A flash flood, in the wake of heavy rain and hail storms, hit an interrogation officer with the 23rd Military Intelligence Detachment.

Carpet Beetles Held Not Vermin

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Carpet beetles are not necessarily vermin, according to the state court of appeals, which upheld a lower court award of $2,000 to Jacob Sincoff of Manhattan.

Sincoff claimed $7,810 from the Liberty Mutual Fire Insurance Co. for damage carpet beetles had done to his household furnishings.

The insurance company said the policy specifically excluded damage caused by vermin.

The high court said Tuesday that "vermin" was ambiguous and that a vague exclusion in the policy did not prevent payment of loss.

HST Questions 30-Hour Week

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Harry S. Truman has expressed some doubt of the value of a four-day, 30-hour work week.

He did not flatly oppose such a proposal pending before the Office Employees International Union, however.

The former president addressed 300 delegates to a five-day convention of the union Tuesday.

On the four-day week resolution proposed by Howard A. Coughlin of New York, union president, Truman commented: "I don't think you get enough time to work."

"I work 14 to 15 hours a day and I believe the more a man works the better. The more work a man does, the less likely he is to get into devilmint."

S.C. Demos Pick Russell In Upset

By AL LANIER
 COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—South Carolina voters made Donald Russell their governor-nominate Tuesday in a runaway Democratic primary that stunned Lt. Gov. Burnet E. Maybank and political pundit throughout the state.
 Russell, 55, wealthy Spartanburg attorney and former president of the University of South Carolina, polled 162,801 votes in unofficial returns from 1,482 of the state's 1,604 precincts.
 The combined total of his four opponents was 106,868, with runner-up Maybank getting 85,514 of them. State Rep. A. W. (Red) Be-thea of Dillon had 15,133; Dero Cook, a Conway businessman who advocated liberalized liquor and gambling laws, polled 4,108; and the Rev. Milton Dukes of Charleston, a preacher-prohibitionist, had 2,113.
 No Republican opposition will be offered for governor in the November general election, so Russell is assured of embarking on a four-year term in January as South Carolina's chief executive.
 The consensus of observers was that the gubernatorial battle would be a neck-and-neck race between Maybank and Russell, with many giving Maybank a slight edge to lead the first primary. A runoff between the two on June 26 was considered a certainty.
 But Russell, making his second bid for the governorship after an unsuccessful effort in 1958, gained strength fast as the long campaign progressed despite the political magic of the Maybank name in South Carolina. Maybank, 38, is the son and namesake of the late U.S. Senator and governor, Burpet R. Maybank.

 A potent vote-getter heretofore in his own right, young Maybank served three terms in the State House of Representatives from Greenville County before winning the lieutenant governor's race in 1958 without a runoff.
 The incomplete returns gave Maybank margins in six of the smaller counties—Abbeville, Allendale, Barnwell, Chesterfield, Jasper and McCormick. He lost decisively in Charleston County, where he was born, and in Greenville County, where he now resides.
 Russell's landslide margin made it obvious he was the general favorite throughout the state, drawing broad support from management and labor, whites and Negroes.
 Negro wards in Charleston and Columbia, considered bellwethers of Negro voting in the state, favored Russell by strong margins. There had been a few party news stories that he was endorsed by labor, but Russell said he had not notified of it.
 Russell was once the law partner of former Gov. James F. Byrnes. He joined Byrnes in Washington in the early days of World War II and served as deputy director of defense mobilization and in other high government posts while Byrnes was the "assistant president" to President President Roosevelt and later secretary of state under President Truman.

Hint Of Trouble For JFK Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's a hint of trouble for President Kennedy's legislative program in the decision of House Speaker John W. McCormack to jump into the Democratic primary campaign in Massachusetts.
 McCormack is known to feel that the Washington branch of the Kennedy family already is in the party tussle—with both feet.
 Sources close to the House speaker paint this picture: McCormack believes pressure from the Washington Kennedys supplied much of the push that gave Edward M. Kennedy, the President's youngest brother, endorsement for the Senate nomination at the Massachusetts Democratic convention last week.
 Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack Jr., nephew of the speaker, will run against young Kennedy in the Sept. 18 Massachusetts primary, and his uncle doesn't intend to see him lose without a fight. To stump for young McCormack the speaker will have to be away from his job as boss of the House, unless Congress adjourns sooner than most people expect.

 About the only way Congress could wind things up quickly would be to drop a big part of Kennedy's legislative program, or bring major bills to the House floor for showdown votes before the necessary work has been done. That could mean defeat—especially if the speaker is not around to crack the whip.
 Although McCormack has said he'll do everything he can to push through the Kennedy program, he may lose some of his enthusiasm for it as the Massachusetts campaign wears on.
 For a man as high in party councils as McCormack to take an active part in someone else's primary is unusual in itself. But the childless speaker is unusually fond of his nephew. Associates say he was cut deeply by the attorney general's convention defeat.
 The speaker has declined to discuss Massachusetts politics while in Washington, but close associates expect him to have plenty to say when he gets on his home ground.
 He has a reputation as a rough and tough debater with a tongue as sharp as a razor, and friends believe he won't hesitate to use it against what they call "the Kennedy clan."

Township Asks Trading Stamps

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—The St. Clair Township supervisor, William Dixon, has hit upon a new way to obtain needed township office equipment—saving trading stamps.
 Dixon said he has asked all firms which give stamps and sell merchandise to the township to turn over the stamps to his office. He expects to net $500 a year.

Wrong Retrieve For The Golfer

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)—Terrence Leonhardy's dog, Tammy, is trained to retrieve golf balls. Leonhardy recently sent Tammy to fetch a shot into the rough. A half hour later Tammy returned. She didn't have the golf ball, but proudly placed a gopher at her master's feet.

Offers Bargain In An Old Safe

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Florida's commissioner of agriculture, Doyle Conner, has a bargain buy for someone who wants to pick up an old safe cheap.
 Conner's safe is a large walk-in type, big enough to hold a horse.
 Conner says he will consider almost any offer.
 "It would make an excellent bomb shelter," he said.

Sniping At U.S. Policies By Pro-Red Laos Prince

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Already sniping at "American warmongers," pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong will take temporary command of Laos' new coalition government late this month.

Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, premier designate of the new government, said Tuesday he and right-wing leader Gen. Phoumi Nosavan will be in Europe at the same time. During their absence, he said, "the whole burden of state affairs will fall on Souphanouvong."

Phoumi, like Souphanouvong slated to become a deputy premier, will lead a Cabinet delegation to Switzerland June 24 or 25 to ratify the 14-nation Geneva agreement on Laos pledging the little Southeast Asian nation to neutrality in the cold war.

Souvanna said he is going to France to attend the wedding of his daughter.

Just what powers Souphanouvong will be able to wield while running Laos was not clear. The bulk of the Cabinet posts are invested in neutralists, and the coalition agreement stipulates that all decisions related to the ministries of defense, interior and foreign affairs must have the unanimous agreement of the three faction leaders—Souvanna, Souphanouvong and Phoumi.

Souvanna, Souphanouvong's half brother and ally in precoalition maneuvering, welcomed the American pressure that forced the right-wing Vientiane regime to give way to the coalition. But Sou-phanouvong has shown no softening in his anti-American position. The next step in what the United States hopes will take Laos out of the cold war will be for Souvanna to present the new government to King Savang Vathana. He plans to do this in the royal capital of Luang Prabang Monday.

Prince Boum Oum, the prime minister of the pro-Western royal government in Vientiane, flew with Gen. Phoumi to Luang Prabang today to submit his government's resignation.

Phoumi's delegation to Geneva will sign a pledge of neutrality agreed upon 13 months ago by such big powers as the United States, the Soviet Union, Great Britain, Red China and France.

The Geneva accords call for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Laos within 75 days after the agreement is signed by a unified Laotian delegation. This applies to the several hundred U.S. military advisers to the royal army, and an estimated 10,000 Communist North Vietnamese troops and some Red Chinese advisers reported aiding the Pathet Lao.

Phoumi hedged, however, when asked whether as commander of the royal army he would ask the Americans to pull out. "We are prepared to follow the accords provided everyone else does the same," he said.

All foreign military personnel and civilians captured or interned during the civil war are to be released within 30 days of the signing of the agreement. Five Americans are known to be prisoners of the Pathet Lao, but Souphanouvong indicated last week he did not consider their release a matter of urgency.

The communist bloc hailed the Laotian agreement as a victory for the Pathet Lao and a step toward peace in unsettled Southeast Asia. The West took a cautious approach.

The U.S. State Department said the Laotian agreement still leaves "a lot of big, fat question marks." Secretary of State Dean Rusk said the resumption of U.S. economic aid to Laos, cut off to pressure the rightists into the coalition, would depend on whether the new government succeeds in making Laos truly neutral and independent.

Other U.S. allies looked upon the new Laotian government with less than enthusiasm.

Eddie Fisher Is Leaving Today On London Trip

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Eddie Fisher leaves today for London—his first visit to Europe since the breakup in Rome of his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor.

A spokesman said Fisher would discuss business with Frank Sinatra in London but would not visit any other city. Miss Taylor is now filming "Cleopatra" in Rome.

Later this summer Fisher is to open at the Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe, Nev. He will appear July 24 at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas. Sinatra is an owner of the Lake Tahoe resort.

The six weeks of engagements in Nevada will permit Fisher to file for divorce there against Miss Taylor.

Miss Taylor then is expected to counterfile against Fisher's suit and win the divorce decree.

Fisher recently has been dating dancer Juliet Prowse, who once was engaged to Sinatra.

Palmer Says He Is Out Of Slump; Confidence Booms

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, his confidence booming again like his rocket-ride drives, is a 5-1 favorite to gain the second leg of professional golf's grand slam in the 62nd U.S. Open championship beginning Thursday at the Rugged Oakmont Country Club course.

putting pretty well. If my finger doesn't get any worse, it's not going to restrict me at all. The only time it really hurts is when I'm signing autographs.

"Two stitches came loose Tuesday in the inch-long gash Palmer suffered on the ring finger of his right hand while he was putting juggle into the trunk of his car. 'I pulled 'em out,' he said, 'and it's a little tender but I don't think it'll need to be sewn up again.'"

Support continues strong for defending champion Gene Littler, despite an estimated 82 in his first look at Oakmont, and such other tournament-tested stars as Billy Casper, Gary Player, Dow Finsterwald, Mike Souchak, Doug Sanders, Doug Ford, Jack Nicklaus, and, of course, ol' Samuel Jackson Snead, who will make his 22nd try for his first Open title.

Palmer, who is trying to complete the Masters — U.S. Open-British Open-U.S. PGA grand slam this year, feels the winning score will be close to 280—four under par for the 72 holes.

"I think it'll be right around 280," Arnold said. "I know I'll feel more than satisfied if I can shoot that."

Packers Looking For Cage Coach

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Packers of the National Basketball Association were seeking a new head coach today after firing Jim Pollard.

Pollard was dismissed Tuesday and then was offered a job as assistant to General Manager Frank Lane. However, it was believed Pollard would refuse the new position.

The Packers also announced they would play their 1962-63 home games in the Chicago Coliseum instead of the International Amphitheatre.

Giants Defeat Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—The San Francisco Giants had just won a doubleheader, breaking a six game losing streak and climbing back to within a game of the National League lead.

Manager Alvin Dark was quietly elated at the turn in luck, which dropped the Cincinnati Reds from third to fifth place Tuesday night, but that was all. He sized up the pennant race this way:

"This is a year when you never know what will happen."

The Giants, who lost the league lead to Los Angeles during their losing streak, beat the Reds in a two-nighter, 2-1 and 7-5.

Fine pitching by Juan Marichal and Mike McCormick, and the home run hitting of Orlando Cepeda were keys to San Francisco's double victory. Cepeda got his 16th and 17th homers in the second game and drove in four runs.

Marichal not only pitched fine ball but also drove in the winning run in the first game.

"Any time you get good pitching, the team is going to look good," Dark said after the games. "Marichal was great, and so was McCormick."

Jack Molinas Is Out Under Bond

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Molinas, former Columbia University and professional basketball ace, is free on $5,000 bail today after arraignment on a fugitive from justice charge in connection with a basketball bribery indictment in North Carolina.

Molinas also is free on $5,000 bail pending trial on basketball bribery charges in New York. He was granted an adjournment Tuesday until June 20 of the extradition hearing in connection with the North Carolina indictment.

He and five other men are charged in a three-count indictment in the alleged bribery of Don Gallagher, a North Carolina State player, to shave points against Wake Forest on Dec. 5, 1959. The indictment contains two counts of conspiracy and one count of actual bribery.

The other defendants are Aaron Wagman, Joseph Green, Joseph Hacken, David Goldberg and Steve Lekemetros.

Thomas Put Up Winning Punch

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Los Angeles' board of strategy, responsible for plucking Lee Thomas from the New York Yankees in a key trade during their infant season last year, took another bow today for the acquisition of the power-hitting outfielder.

The fourth place Angels crept within a game and a half of the first-place Yankees Tuesday night and it was Thomas who provided the punch in a 7-5 victory over Minnesota.

The 26-year-old left-handed swinger, developed in the productive farm system of the perennial AL champs, hit his eighth and ninth homers against the Twins, connecting with one on in the third and tagging another with the bases empty in the seventh.

Thomas came to the Angels with pitchers Ryne Duren and Johnny James in the deal that sent pitcher Truman Clevenger and outfielder Bob Cerv to the Yanks.

Legion Team To Host Ahooskie

Greenville's American Legion baseball team was scheduled to host Ahooskie in Guy Smith Stadium tonight provided the weather does not cause postponement.

The game scheduled with Raleigh Tuesday night was not played due to rain and has been rescheduled for June 25.

So far this season Coach Ray Pennington's Post 39 team has won five straight games after an opening game loss to defending champion Rocky Mount 8-5.

In their first home contest with Raleigh the locals came out on top 13-1 and then traveled to Roanoke Rapids two days later for a second victory 1-0.

The Greenville team defeated Roanoke Rapids again in Guy Smith Stadium 13-6 and downed Raleigh 9-6 at Raleigh. Their last win was Saturday night at Ahooskie 6-3.

A game which was originally set at Greenville with Rocky Mount this coming Saturday night has been postponed because of the East-West All-Star game. The contest has not been rescheduled yet, according to Coach Pennington.

In addition to the East-West contest being played on Post home field, three boys are also involved in the All-Star attracting from the local club. Rocky Mount also has some players in this contest.

He hit .285 with 24 homers and 70 runs batted in during 1961 and currently is batting .289 with 35 RBIs.

The defeat dropped the Twins from the league lead into third place. The Yankees took over the top spot with a 2-1 triumph over Detroit. Cleveland, rained out at Washington, moved percentage points ahead of Minnesota into second place.

Kansas City edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1 on Dave Wickersham's three-hitter and Boston squeezed by Baltimore 4-3 in other games.

In the National League, second place San Francisco whipped Cincinnati twice, 2-1 and 7-5, moving within a game of first-place Los Angeles, belted by Milwaukee 15-2. Pittsburgh defeated Chicago's Cubs 4-3. St. Louis nipped Philadelphia 3-2 and Houston clipped the New York Mets 3-2.

Although Thomas provided the fireworks for the Angels, it took a three-run outburst in the sixth inning to snap a 3-3 tie and subdue the Twins. Felix Torres' single drove in the tie-breaker as the Angels got the benefit of four walks in the inning. Over-all Los Angeles managed only five hits off starter Joe Bonkowski (5-5) and his successors. Don Lee (5-3), acquired from Minnesota last week, won it in his first appearance against his former teammates with relief help from Art Fowler and Jack Spring.

Bill Stafford (6-3) held the Tigers to three hits until the ninth when singles by Rocky Colavito, Vic Wertz and Chico Fernandez scored a run and snapped a string of 25 scoreless innings compiled by the Yankee right-hander. Roger Maris hit home run No. 11, in the third inning after the Yanks had moved ahead in the first on Phil Linz' single, a sacrifice by Bobby Richardson and Johnny Blanchard's single. The loser was Yankee nemesis Frank Lary (1-4), now 28-11 lifetime against New York.

Wickersham, reliever turned starter, won his fourth against one loss as a front-liner with a three-hitter for the A's and brought his over-all record to an impressive 7-2. White Sox starter Juan Pizarro (3-5), who allowed only eight hits, lost it when a single by Manny Jimenez, Gino Cimoli's triple and a single by Joe Azcue scored two runs in the eighth. Chicago scored in the second when Floyd Robinson walked, went to third on Al Smith's single and came across on a sacrifice fly by Bob Sadowski.

Frank Malzone drove in the first three Red Sox runs with a single and two-run homer. Carroll Hardy knocked in the clincher with a double in the third and robbed Jim Gentile of a grand slam homer by leaning back into the seats in the sixth to grab a long shot by the Orioles' slugger with the bases loaded. Boston's Gary Geller cut down the potential tying run in the ninth by throwing Dick Williams out at the plate, preserving the triumph for Ike Delock (1-0). Jack Fisher (1-2) lost it.

NASCAR Limits Size Of Engines

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—NASCAR has claimed a limit on the size of engines used in stock car racing, effective in 1963.

The limit will be 428 cubic inches piston displacement. It will apply only to the Grand National Division for late model cars; but not to the modified division.

This year's cars on the NASCAR circuit are mostly over 400 cubic inches but none is beyond 428. Pontiac is largest at 421.

Bulpen Becomes Key To College Series

OMAHA (AP)—The bullpen has become a key to the College World Series, and timely hitting combined with speed are added factors in Michigan's favor in its bid for the national championship.

The Wolverines and Florida State, the only unbeaten teams remaining in the double elimination NCAA championships, have a showdown tonight in the tournament's third round. A couple of relievers, Jim Bobel of Michigan and Tom Davis of Florida State, chalked up victories Tuesday night to put their schools alone in the winner's bracket.

Bobel turned in five near perfect innings in relief and Michigan batted out 14 hits in an 11-4 rout of Holy Cross. Florida State also showed bullpen strength in its 5-4 victory that ended little

Ireland's Carr Favored To Win

HOYLAKE, England (AP)—Joe Carr, the golfing pride of Ireland, was a clear favorite today to win the British Amateur Championship for the fourth time—with 12 Americans still among those trying to stop him.

England's Michael Bonallack, last year's winner and top seed, was shocked into a 2 and 1 defeat Tuesday by a young Irishman, Jackson Taggart. The experts predicted that with Bonallack gone, no one would be able to hold the big hitting Carr on this course of long flat fairways.

The 40-year-old Irishman, who won the title in 1953, 1958 and 1960 was scheduled to meet John Langridge, a little known English player, in the third round.

Robert Sweeney, 50, of Palm Beach, Fla., who won this title in 1937, met John Glocer of Northern Ireland in the second round.

David Goldman, 53, of Dallas, Tex., who was runner up to Lawson Little in the American Amateur of 1934, was matched against R. E. Rimmer of England in the third round.

Goldman reached the final of the French Amateur last week.

Blue Marlin Tournery Begins

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—Members of 16 deep sea fishing clubs tried their luck in the game fish waters off the North Carolina coast today as the International Blue Marlin tournament got underway.

A fleet of about 25 cruisers headed for the gulf stream early today for six hours of fishing to begin the four-day tournament. About 43 participants were registered.

The tournament was formerly scheduled to open Tuesday and run through Saturday. Officials gave no reason for the postponement.

Foreign teams from Panama, South Africa and Venezuela were on hand, but Club Nautico of San Juan, Puerto Rico, dropped out Tuesday because its captain, Esteban A. Bird, was unable to participate.

An 810-pound blue marlin, an apparent world's record, was caught here by Gary Stokes of Montclair, N.J., two days before the tournament opened.

Hockey Returns To Baltimore

CLEVELAND (AP)—Professional hockey returns to Baltimore next season after a six-year absence.

The American Hockey League's board of governors Tuesday granted the city a franchise, making it the ninth team in the league.

Other teams in the league are Buffalo, Cleveland, Hershey, Pittsburgh, Providence, Quebec, Rochester and Springfield.

Billy King of Richmond, Va., Dartmouth's football captain for 1962, is the son of former U.S. Olympic figure skater Suzanne Davis of Waban, Mass.

Minoso Says He Is Not Afraid

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"It's too late for me to be afraid of the wall, to be afraid of the ball," says Minnie Minoso. "It will never happen. I could not be afraid."

He sat in the empty St. Louis Cardinal dressing room Tuesday night squeezing the handle of a bat with his right hand, trying to build up the muscles in his injured wrist.

The 40-year-old veteran fractured his head and his wrist last month when he hit the concrete left field wall in Busch Stadium while chasing a ball. He is on the disabled list.

"I got hurt on the job," he said in broken English. "There is nothing I can do. That is destiny."

"If I die on the field, it is a good place to die."

Minoso said he gets "a little lonesome. Sometimes I sit in the dressing room during the game, sometimes I sit at home. I pinch hit in my head—not that I think I do better than other men—but it is hard not to play. It makes you mad that you can't do anything for the team—just practice and hope for them."

Blue Marlin Tournery Begins

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—Members of 16 deep sea fishing clubs tried their luck in the game fish waters off the North Carolina coast today as the International Blue Marlin tournament got underway.

A fleet of about 25 cruisers headed for the gulf stream early today for six hours of fishing to begin the four-day tournament. About 43 participants were registered.

The tournament was formerly scheduled to open Tuesday and run through Saturday. Officials gave no reason for the postponement.

Foreign teams from Panama, South Africa and Venezuela were on hand, but Club Nautico of San Juan, Puerto Rico, dropped out Tuesday because its captain, Esteban A. Bird, was unable to participate.

An 810-pound blue marlin, an apparent world's record, was caught here by Gary Stokes of Montclair, N.J., two days before the tournament opened.

The San Francisco Giants seem to have recovered from that June swoon. The Los Angeles Dodgers may still be suffering from the shock of that Braves' barrage.

Halting the tailspin in which they dropped out of the National League lead, the Giants snapped their six-game losing streak Tuesday night, sweeping a doubleheader from Cincinnati 2-1 and 7-5 and moving back within a game of the first-place Dodgers.

The Dodgers, rolling with seven victories in nine games and 20 in 24, ran into a 17-hit, five-homer Milwaukee outburst behind Lew Burdette's six-hit pitching and lost a game and a half of their lead with a 15-2 clobbering by the Braves.

The defending champion Reds fell from third place to fifth. Pittsburgh moved into third, 7½ behind, by edging the Chicago Cubs 4-3 and St. Louis over Philadelphia 3-2. Houston defeated New York's Mets 3-2.

In the American League, the New York Yankees regained first place by beating Detroit 2-1 while Minnesota was losing to the Los Angeles Angels 7-5. Cleveland, rained out at Washington, jumped to second while the Twins slipped to third. Kansas City defeated the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and Boston downed Baltimore 4-3.

Juan Marichal (9-4) checked the Reds on seven hits in the opener and drove in the winning run in a two-run seventh inning surge that put it away for the Giants. Marichal clinched it with a single off Jim O'Toole (4-7) after Jim Davenport tripled, Ed Bailey hit a sacrifice fly and Jose Pagan stroked a double. The Reds scored their run in the fourth on a homer by Gordy Coleman.

Orlando Cepeda drove in four runs for the Giants in the nightcap with two homers—a three-run shot in the first and a solo in the fifth that eventually proved to be the deciding run. Hank Foiles hit a two-run homer in the fifth for the Reds, who chased Mike McCormick (3-2) in the eighth and scored two in the ninth off Stu Miller before Don Larsen came on to get Frank Robinson on a grounder to end it with the tying runs on base. Moe Drabowsky (1-5) was the loser.

Burdette, (4-4), recording his second complete game in a row and fourth consecutive triumph, retired 19 in a row at one stretch while the Braves were pounding

Johnny Podres (3-5) and two successors. Hank Aaron, who had hit home run No. 11 and Gus Bell, Frank Bolling and Tommie Aaron also connected. Mathews' homer was the 381st of his career, tying him for eighth place with the Yankees' Mickey Mantle.

Outbit by the Cubs 11-8, the Pirates scored two runs in the first and two in the second for their fourth victory in a row. Singles by Bob Skinner, Dick Stuart and Roberto Clemente plus George Altman's error accounted for the first-inning runs. The other two came across on doubles by Don Hoak and Bill Virdon and Dick Groat's single. The Pirates then held on behind Harvey Hadrix (5-2) and relief ace ElRoy Face. Glen Hobbie (1-8) lost it.

Rookie Fred Whitfield tagged a two-run homer off Paul Brown (0-5) in the eighth inning to win it for the Cardinals. Brown had opened the seventh with a double and scored to put the Phillies in front 2-1. He allowed only four singles until Julian Javier worked him for a walk and Whitfield connected. The victory, the eighth in nine games for St. Louis, went to former Phil Don Ferrarese (1-2).

Joe Amalfitano's single drove in pinch runner Roman Mejias with the winning run and climaxed a two-run uprising in the last of the ninth that gave the Colts their victory over the Mets. An infield single by Billy Goodman and Pidge Browne's pinch-hit triple off Craig Anderson (3-6) preceded Amalfitano's game-winner. Ken Johnson (4-6) was the winner.

SUCCESSFUL DAY . . . O. H. Orr of Winterville, J. C. Johnson and Joe Heath of Rt. 5, Greenville, caught 136 fish from a pier at Atlantic Beach Tuesday. Their catch consisted of 96 hog fish, 31 sea mullet, one Pampano and eight grey trout. All were caught with shrimp on bottom rigs.

Rain Postpones Carolina Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain caused postponement of the games throughout the Carolina League Tuesday night.

The postponement set a day-night doubleheader between Kingston and Burlington at Burlington today. Greensboro plays at Wilson tonight in a twin bill.

Single games tonight find Rocky Mount at Raleigh and Durham at Winston-Salem.

The highest paid baseball players in recent years have been Ted Williams and Stan Musial both of whom received in the neighborhood of $100,000 in their peak seasons.

Dear Mary Carter:

When he was courting me my husband always talked about the big, new house we'd have if I'd marry him. It had tall white columns out on the front veranda, and acres and acres of beautifully landscaped grounds. My, it was pretty the way he went on about it! Then we got married and moved into this broken-down old shack near the river, made out of weather-beaten boards, with mildew all over them.

What I'm wondering is, how much longer should I wait for that big house Alfred promised me? We've been married now for going on 52 years.

Mrs. A. R. F.

Dear Mrs. A. R. F.:

Have patience, my dear! Some men are naturally slow starters, and apparently Alfred is one of these.

In the meantime, though, even that miserable shack you've been (ugh!) living in for 52 years can be made to look like new. The paint specialists at any Mary Carter Paint Store will be pleased to show you my fine Mary Carter House Paint, for example. It won't add any columns to your front porch, but Mary Carter House Paint contains inhibitors that help keep mildew away!

Every can is quality—guaranteed and you get a second can free, at no extra cost, with every one you buy. Get Alfred to take you to a Mary Carter Paint Store today—this may be the start he needs!

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bird and bee navigation secrets, balloons for scientists, and a space jaywalker are topics in science news:

Humans have made great progress in developing guidance systems for space vehicles, but "it will take 100 years for electronics to catch up with the sophisticated guidance and sensory systems of the birds and the bees," says John L. Burns, former president of Radio Corporation of America. "Evidence now at hand suggests that in flight the bat finds his way by bouncing ultrasonic waves off solid objects; the pigeon homes on the magnetic lines of the earth; a bird flies thousands of miles from the tree branch in your backyard, and returns to the same branch, through stellar navigation.

"The eye and brain of the hungry frog filter out all discordant information except the movement of the fly his palate craves—a superb example of image recognition and interpretation.

"If we could only translate this characteristic into a mathematical formula—and then into hardware—we could endow an earth satellite with a similarly adaptable 'eye' that would select the precise information it was sent aloft to obtain."

Scientists are getting their own special balloon flight station, to be set up this summer at Palestine, Texas.

From this base, they can release balloons lofting up instruments for high altitude study of the atmosphere and weather phenomena, for astronomical studies above the clouding effects of the earth's air, and for capturing primary cosmic rays.

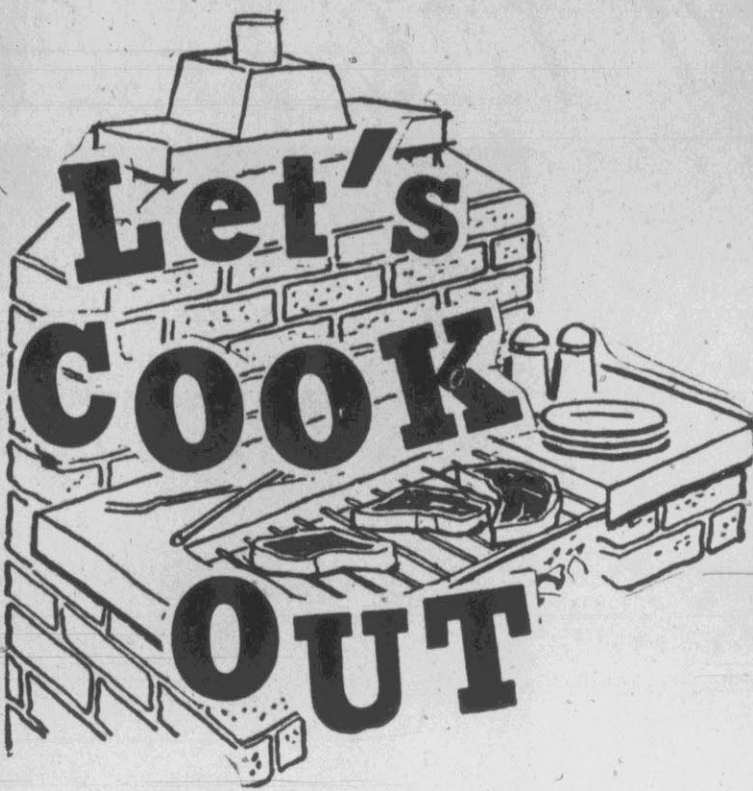

Long planned, the balloon facility will be built and operated by the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Boulder, Colo. with the tab paid by the National Science Foundation. It is part of the Center's scientific balloon program, designed to spur improvement in balloon technology for scientific research.

Hermes is the name of one of the sun's minor planets, a chunk of rock about a mile in diameter, weighing perhaps three billion tons.

Unlike other minor planets that follow orderly paths between Mars and Jupiter, Hermes has an eccentric orbit, and can actually come within about 200,000 miles of the earth, closer than the moon itself, and a near miss, cosmically speaking.

But the chance that it or similar bodies would ever collide with the earth with devastating effects is infinitesimally small, says John W. Macevey in Space Digest magazine.

Perhaps, he suggests, men in space ships one day might be able to rendezvous with one of the minor planets possessing a wide-ranging orbit, equip it with transmitters, and let it send back data on the reaches of space it visits.

Turning Point In Monroe Case

By BOB THOMAS
 AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Future historians may mark the firing of Marilyn Monroe as the turning point in the studios' relations with stars.

Offhand you might think that any studio that would fire Marilyn could be considered out of its corporate mind. But that happened last week when the famed blonde was handed a pink slip and a half-million-dollar suit for stalling "Something's Got to Give."

Marilyn said she had been ill. The studio claimed her illness wasn't physical and it could no longer afford her phobia against punctuality.

The merits of each case remain to be thrashed out, perhaps in the courts. But trend-seekers may be able to draw this conclusion: the already-ailing movie industry cannot afford temperamental any more.

Perhaps in other times 20th Century-Fox might have tried to ease Marilyn through the filming; it did so in "Let's Make Love."

But on another continent a movie titled "Cleopatra" was grinding out the company's dwindling millions. Faced with temperamental stars at two ends of its operation, something had to give.

Stars have been fired before. Distressed with Judy Garland's tardiness and tantrums, MGM summarily dismissed her from "Annie Get Your Gun." Betty Hutton got the job.

Such stern treatment of stars has disappeared in the past decade. The reasons are simple: all stars became free-lancers, independent of studio control. With studios falling to develop new talent, the established stars were more and more in demand and were given free rein.

This matter of giving stars free rein has hit some studios where it hurts—right in the profit column.

Paramount gave Marlon Brando carte blanche to make a Western. "One-Eyed Jacks" took over a year to film, making it a shaky investment in a time when no Westerns have been selling well.

The travails of "Mutiny on the Bounty" have been well documented. Whether they were caused by a star's pig-headedness or the lack of strong executive control can be debated.

Universal had a rough go with Kirk Douglas's personal effort, "Spartacus," though it seems to be coming out satisfactorily.

The studios now can pause and wonder: are some stars worth all the trouble?

Some observers say stars are not that important. They point out that "The Last Sunset" with Kirk Douglas and Rock Hudson was a bomb. "The Misfits" with Monroe, Gable, Cili, etc., was also a dud. Names don't always sell.

On the other hand, some stars can be unique. No one could play Cleopatra better than Liz Taylor. No one is a more convincing sexpot than Marilyn Monroe.

But faced with using unique stars and inviting bankruptcy, the studios may be forced to get along without them.

TV Tribute To 11 Years Of Soap Opera Acting

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
 AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—For the past 11 years, actress Mary Stuart has been learning 15 pages of dialogue a day five days a week, rehearsing all morning and acting for 15 minutes—live—in CBS' mid-day serial, "Search for Tomorrow."

As Mrs. Arthur Tate, wife, mother and solid citizen, she has suffered mightily—even gone on trial for murder (the normal lot of any soap-opera heroine).

In exchange, Miss Stuart receives a big, regular salary check and is constantly showered with home-made aprons and pot-holders from affectionate viewers.

But the professional life of the performer in the day-time serial, despite many advantages, does not have quite the status and professional chic of the prime-time actors. Therefore, Miss Stuart was especially gratified when, last month, she was nominated as one of the five candidates for a television "Emmy" in the category for best actress in a series.

She didn't win the statue—Shirley Booth did—but the recognition was immensely satisfying.

Miss Stuart, a native of Florida and in private life a wife and mother of two children aged 6 and 5, says that the trick in serial acting is to be real.

"These programs are difficult to write and to act," she reflected. "You must be the woman next door to the audience. And because they can see you—their imagination is not called into play—you can't get into the sophisticated type of thing you could do in radio."

Housewives, of course, are the bulk of the serials' audience: "women between 30 and 50—before that they are too busy with their children, and after that they go for the game and quiz shows."

Mort Sahl certainly achieved a slow start on his stint as this week's "Tonight Show" host.

Sahl's usual patter—that odd combination of introspective psychiatric jargon and swipes at politicians and world leaders—does not come off too well in a setting for conversation.

On Monday night, the program was almost completely turned over to extremely stuffy and single-minded men—a magazine publisher and a movie producer—interested only in plugging their products.

Between the free plugs of Messrs. Hugh Hefner and Otto Preminger and NBC's determination to break up the program every few minutes with as many as five commercials and promotional ads in a string, it was dull looking and listening.

Bright moments were confined to a brief appearance by Henry Morgan, who cleared the air with some vinegary comments about the abundance of plugs.

The trouble with the show these warm nights is that none of the temporary hosts seem to understand the meaning of conversation. The humor sounds more like that at the corner table at Lindy's with the comedians fighting to do monologues.

Recommended tonight: "Mystery Theatre," NBC, 9-10—first of a series of thrillers which will see Perry Como's summer replacement, this called "Close Pursuit" with Jan Sterling and Beverly Garland; Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11—"You Can't Escape," live drama with Mark ("Cain's Hundred") Richman and Alice Ghostley.

The Bilingual Scored Higher

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—What relation, if any, does the knowledge of more than one language have to intelligence?

Two McGill University psychologists say they are pondering this question after studies in which bilingual children scored significantly higher in both verbal and nonverbal intelligence tests than children knowing only one language.

The tests were given to Montreal school children of the same age and socio-economic level, Elizabeth Peal and Wallace E. Lambert reported at a convention of psychologists here.

Lake Kittagittaoloo and its twin, Lake Kookkootinnie, are located in an arid region in South Australia. They seldom hold water and are known mainly because of their euphonious aboriginal names.

Fathers Around the World

UNITED STATES: Dad plays the trombone, and his little son's entranced.

Fathers and children are much the same around the world, but only America has a Father's Day set aside to honor the head of the family.

In Africa, China or India, a father's heart beats just as strongly as that of the American father who proudly passes the cigars when the nurse says, "It's a boy," or "It's a girl."

And a father, be he in London, Paris, or Kennebunkport, Maine, will show sometimes he's more than parent and provider by feeding baby, dressing junior, or doing a chore that's proverbially mother's like washing baby clothes.

These photographs of fathers and their children around the world are from a new book, "Children and Their Fathers," published by Hill and Wang, New York.

SWITZERLAND: "O, papa, I believe you need a shave."

SPAIN: A siesta is refreshing after that long walk.

ENGLAND: A little young, but he'll grow up to be a sailor.

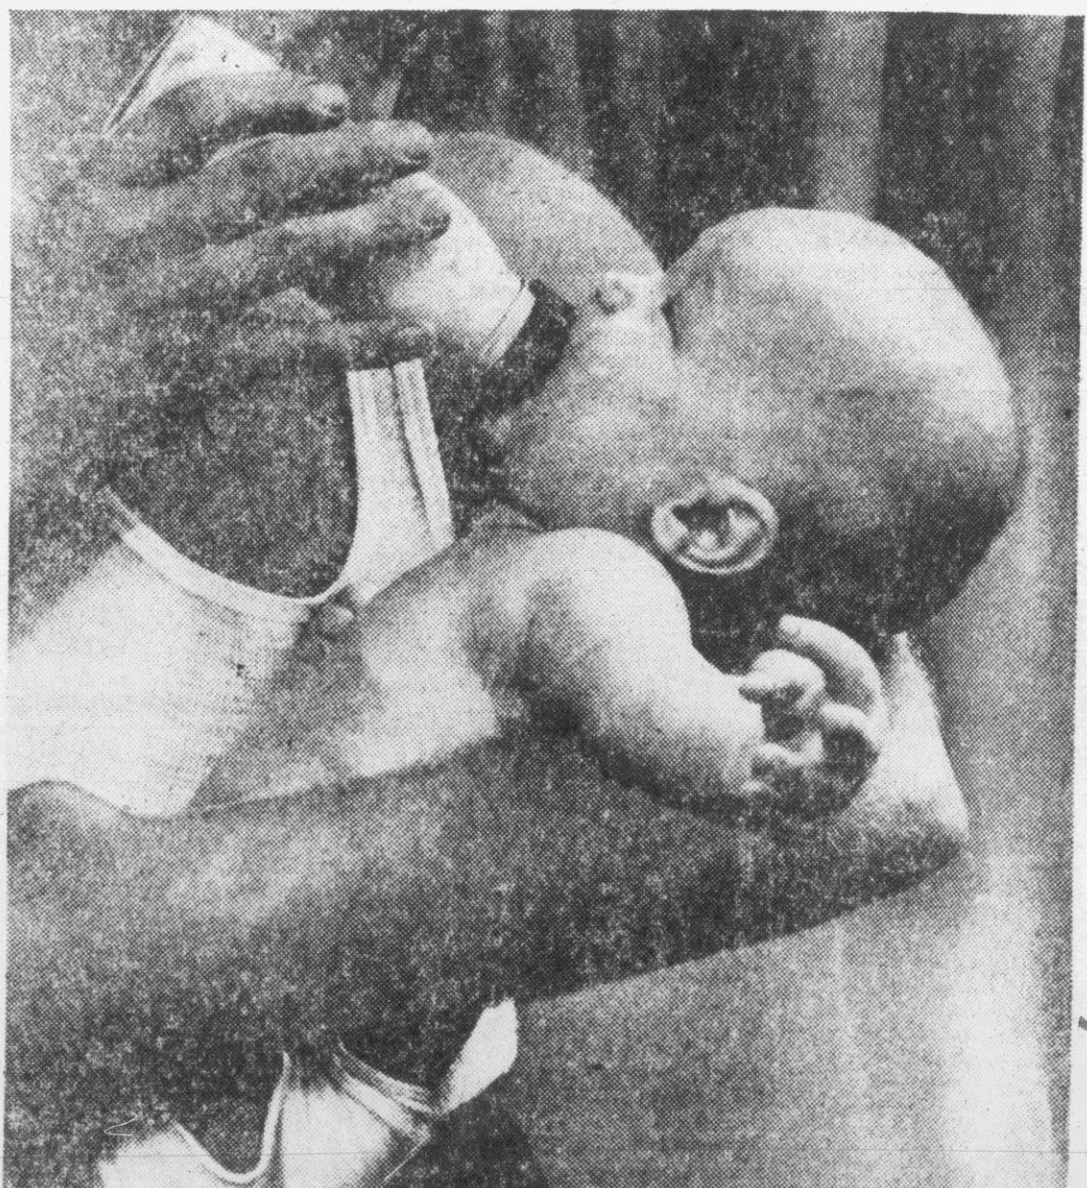

CANADA: A father's arms are so strong and warm, and so secure.

JAPAN: Father and son take a stroll, dignified and serious.

GERMANY: Like father, like sons—and clowning is so much fun.

UNITED STATES: Mama's busy, so papa does the feeding.

Algerian Nationalist Leader Declines Revising Agreements

TUNIS (AP)—Algerian nationalist Premier Youssef Ben Khedda categorically rejected today the possibility of revising the Algerian peace agreements to give further guarantees to European residents.

The head of the Algerian provisional government charged that "a series of maneuvers" is being made "in an attempt to sabotage the Evian (peace) agreements by making it appear possible they can be revised under the pretext of giving additional guarantees to the Europeans."

"My government categorically excludes this possibility," Ben

Khedda said.

Ben Khedda, who made his statement as he left for Cairo, said, "The return of real peace can only be realized through the loyal application of the accords concluded at Evian."

Ben Khedda's statement came after two weeks of contacts between representatives of Algeria's European minority and members of the Algerian provisional executive body which is governing the North African territory until the July 1 self-determination referendum.

The European Secret Army Organization, trying to preserve French rule in Algeria, let up on its killing of Moslems when the secret contacts were begun. The secret army recently intensified scorched earth tactics, destroying schools and other installations by fire and explosives.

Ben Khedda's declaration may be followed by a resumption of large-scale murder of Moslems by the European terrorists. The nationalist premier said so far France had not employed sufficient means to re-establish order in Algeria.

"In certain French political and military circles," he said, "there is complacency and complicity with colonialist extremists."

Ben Khedda flew to Cairo for a meeting of the Casablanca alliance of African states. He indicated he would seek military aid against European terrorism should France not put it down.

Tax Charges For County Judge

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—El Paso County Judge Woodrow Bean was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday for failing to file income tax returns.

Bean, defeated June 2 in a runoff for the Democratic nomination for congressman-at-large, acknowledged during the campaign that he had not reported his income to the government. He said amounts withheld from his salary more than covered what he owed.

Asserting the income tax was unconstitutional, Bean said April 30 he had been unable to get federal authorities to file a test case.

The 44-year-old judge declined comment on indictments charging willful failure to file returns for 1916 through 1960 on total income of $33,296.18.

If convicted, Bean could receive one year in prison and $10,000 on each of five counts.

William E. Fowler, the revenue service, said April 26, in answer to queries, that his office had no record of Bean's filing an income tax return for 10 years.

Lost Savings Are Returned

DETROIT (AP)—Aziz Zarou has his life savings back today.

They had gone for a ride on the fender of a car and fallen off into a downtown gutter.

Edward Kay, 19, found Zarou's savings—a stack of $100 U.S. savings bonds—and turned them over to police.

Zarou went to police headquarters with a list of serial numbers of 40 bonds. Police returned 41 bonds to him.

"Maybe I don't count so good," said Zarou who explained he had left the bonds on a car fender while he dug a coin for parking out of his pocket.

According to the Florida Alcohol Rehabilitation Program, time is the only remedy for a hangover, since the body is equipped to rid itself of alcohol at a limited rate.

Lodge Decides Against Waging Primary Fight

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP)—John Davis Lodge, calling for an end to Republican factionalism in Connecticut, has decided against waging a primary fight for the U.S. Senate nomination.

Lodge former governor and ambassador to Spain under the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration, threw his support behind Rep. Horace Seely-Brown Jr., who received the party's endorsement at the state convention last week.

Seely-Brown, an eastern Connecticut apple grower, beat Lodge 476 to 149.

Under a state law, Lodge was entitled to challenge the convention's decision in a statewide primary because he had received at least 10 per cent of the convention vote.

"Thoughtful consideration has confirmed my decision not to enter a primary for the Republican nomination," Lodge said Tuesday night.

"In light of the prolonged struggle at the recent state convention, I think it urgent, now that the delegates have made their decision, that factionalism and personal hopes be subordinated to party unity."

That was an apparent reference to the battle for the gubernatorial nomination. The convention went to a record eight ballots before nominating John Alsop of Avon, Alsop, brother of writers Stew-

Nobody's Sure Which Is Dead

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—One half of the University of Florida's alligator mascot couple is dead, but nobody's sure which half.

Accounts of the death gave readers the choice. "Albert II or Alberta I died near the University of Florida auditorium Saturday after a brief illness." The two alligators replaced Albert I last summer. University officials figured the two could protect themselves better against pranksters, who often tormented the late Albert I in his campus cage.

Threatens Halt Wedding Rites

HAWORTH, England (AP)—The Rev. Charles Manchester threatened today to stop the wedding the next time a tipsy bridegroom comes lurching up his aisle.

"At least half the bridegrooms I marry smell like a brewery," the Church of England parson complained in his parish magazine.

"If I had a couple of whiskies or a few beers as a stiffener before taking the service, the bride and bridegroom would take a dim view of it."

"What I want to do is to get rid of that saying: 'Something old, something new, something bottled and something brewed.'"

President Plans News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will hold a news conference Thursday at 4 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time.

Reversing a previous White House announcement that there would be no presidential meeting with newsmen this week, press secretary Pierre Salinger said signals were switched because Kennedy's schedule opened up, thus allowing time for the conference.

ON WATER BINGE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A desperate homeowner was nabbed here recently in a pre-dawn binge of watering his lawn. He had sneaked out in his pajamas to splash the grass and beat the city's no-sprinkling rule that resulted from a long drought.

Seat Belts Not Used; One Dead

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Evelyn Mae Wilkins, 29, a waitress at a drive-in, became Cumberland County's 16th highway death victim this year when the convertible she was driving overturned five miles north of Fayetteville Tuesday afternoon.

Her sister, Ann Wilkins, 22, was injured.

A Stat. Highway Patrolman said the car skidded during a heavy rain and overturned down a bank, and the waitress was pinned underneath the vehicle. The patrolman said the car was equipped with seat belts, but they were not in use.

WONDERING what makes the daily newspaper the top advertising buy? It's the number and quality of the people the daily newspaper reaches, and their friendly reaction to newspaper advertising. When an advertiser invests in any medium, he's buying an audience for his sales message. The newspaper audience is large. Almost 100,000,000 people read a daily newspaper every day in the U.S.* And that audience remains very constant. There's no "summer slump" in newspapers, no peak listening or viewing hours, no special moment when you must nail down an audience or miss out completely. The daily newspaper sells around the clock. Readers can study it at their leisure...enjoy it...relax with it...clip it...buy from it. And they do.

National Park's Bears Spread Garbage Around

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—What Yellowstone National Park needs is not a good 5-cent cigar—but a bear-proof garbage can.

The brown bears which abound in Yellowstone Park may amuse the tourists with their antics, but to park rangers they are litterbugs and nuisances.

So far, man hasn't been successful in coming up with a garbage can that man can open to deposit garbage—but bears can't open to spread it around.

Park officials are trying several new types of garbage cans this summer to test the ingenuity of the cagy bears. So far, the bears have won on all counts.

One of the experimental models is designed like a mail box. But it didn't take the smart bears to figure that one out.

Another model hangs from a T-frame, but Park Superintendent Lemuel A. Garrison says it isn't working too well, either.

"The bears knock it around like a punching bag," he said, "and it makes a big racket."

Old Prescription Saved Two Lives

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A 12-year-old prescription record in Akron, Ohio, helped Phoenix doctors save the lives of two small boys.

Edward Barbee, 5, and his 4-year-old brother, Timmy, were rushed to a hospital after they began stumbling and falling. Doctors suspected the boys had taken some kind of medicine, but could not determine what it was.

Finally, Edward admitted they had eaten pills from a bottle found in a neighbor's tool shed. The mother, Mrs. George Barbee, tracked down the bottle. It carried the name of an Akron drug store. A quick telephone call and doctors learned the bottle contained a hypnotic barbiturate.

With that information the doctors treated the boys for barbiturate poisoning.

NEW YORK (AP) — A turbulent stock market, resisting a selling drive that came within an ace of driving it to new 1962 lows, eared with prices mixed early in this afternoon. Reflecting a recovery of steep losses in early trading, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 30 to 215.50, with industrials up 70, rails off .20 and utilities up 10.

Once more, brokers said, it was a question of prices being driven low enough to appear as "bargains" to traders and investors. But brokers said they expected another selling drive before the day ended. Within the first half hour, prices were battered down to within a hair's breadth of the May 29 closing low, based on unofficial computations of the Dow Jones average at a large brokerage house. Technicians there said the market held and rallied above that level.

Most of the early losses were fractional. As prices recovered, IBM erased a loss and was up to a net gain of more than 3. AT&T erased its loss, then moved between a slight gain and small loss. Ford cut its loss to a fraction. Du Pont converted its decline to a gain of nearly a point. Polaroid was up more than 3. Merck about 2. International Nickel more than a point. The gold stocks backed away from their gains of the past couple of sessions. Homestake and Dome Mines were each down

AGVA Union Official Admits Rules Not Enforced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ernest Fast, former Midwest regional director of the American Guild of Variety Artists, testified today he never enforced the union's rules protecting women entertainers from having to hustle drinks. He said he has read in the news papers that through such practices some AGVA members had become involved in prostitution but that he has no personal knowledge of this. Testifying before the Senate investigations subcommittee, Fast told of negotiating contracts which forbade night clubs to require entertainers to hustle drinks, mingle with customers, or do anything unlawful.

"Was that clause ever enforced to your knowledge?" subcommittee counsel Jerome Adlerman demanded. "No, sir," Fast replied. "I never told any operator he really had to enforce it." The subcommittee is exploring the question of whether additional legislation is needed to protect union members from abuses by union officers. In two days of hearings it has received testimony that— The AGVA takes in a million dollars a year from its members; and Does not enforce contracts to as fringe benefits and convives with point by point when he testifies. Miss Singleton charged that the union doesn't enforce contracts forbidding employers to require their entertainers to mingle with the customers. She said many exotic and strip tease dancers had to become bar girls, hustling priced drinks from male customers, "or worse," as the price of getting a job. Auburn-haired Pat Lynn Hackett, a singer, and blonde Betty Joyce, who described herself as an exotic dancer, testified they had fought employment pressures to serve as B-girls. Both are from Philadelphia. Mrs. Hackett said that after time out for hospital care after she lost a leg in an automobile accident she returned to singing and was shocked to learn of the demands that entertainers hustle drinks. Police Inspector Frank Rizzo of Philadelphia, testified Miss Joyce hadn't even told half the story of B-girls' missions to fleece "visiting firemen." He said the Philadelphia police in two years have closed club joints by systematic raiding and harassing them. Rizzo testified angrily that this was achieved despite harassment of his men by club owners' lawyers, the Philadelphia branch of the American Civil Liberties Union, some frustrating efforts to lift offending clubs' liquor licenses, criticism from the courts, and less than enthusiastic support from the Philadelphia citizenry.

Griffton Board Votes Sum For Recreation Use

The Griffton Town Board voted in a meeting last night to give $50 toward the Recreation Department's request for a tennis backboard and a basketball goal and net. Permission was granted for the Griffton Rural Fire Association to move the fire siren from the police station to the water tank. George MacArthur made the request in behalf of the Fire Association.

According to the library report made at the meeting, 603 books from the categories of fiction, history, and children's literature were checked out during the past month. Arrests during the month of May totaled 28, with 27 persons being found guilty and one, not guilty.

Chiari And Rusk Confer Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Robert F. Chiari of Panama conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk today in advance of another meeting with President Kennedy on problems facing the two nations. The two presidents conferred for two hours Tuesday at the White House with top diplomatic advisers sitting in on the session. Afterward, Kennedy told newsmen the talks were "fine, very good."

Their discussions reportedly dealt primarily with Panamanian suggestions for revising the treaty which governs U.S. operation of the Panama Canal. It was last revised in 1955.

Heroic Efforts Fail Save Life In Electrocutation

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A hospital crew's heroic efforts failed yesterday to save the life of a Marine sergeant who was struck by 7,000 volts of electricity while erecting a TV antenna. The victim was Sgt. Robert E. Millington, 26, of nearby Camp Lejeune and formerly of Richmond, Ohio. Coroner Albert Jones said the metal antenna shaft touched an overhead power line and the current passed through Millington's body. Jones said a faint heart beat was detected when Millington was carried into the emergency room at the hospital here. Three physicians and seven nurses then took over. While kneeling beside the ambulance stretcher, a doctor made an incision in Millington's chest and the three doctors then took turns massaging the victim's heart. Millington was pronounced dead three hours after the accident.

Suicide Ruled In Gun Death At Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Suicide has been ruled in the death Tuesday night of a Rocky Mount lawyer, Calvin W. Bell, 34, who was a principal witness and one of the losing lawyers in a recent $1.25 million will case. The assistant Edgecombe County coroner said Bell shot himself in the head with a pistol at his home. His wife and two daughters were elsewhere in the house. Bell was one of the lawyers who represented R. E. Moore, Rocky Mount paint contractor, in a recent suit over the will of A. J. Mims, a founder of the Durham Life Insurance Co. Bell testified at the trial that Mims had called him and asked him to draft a will leaving his entire estate to Moore. However, the jury ruled that an earlier will in which Mims left his estate to his wife and son was the valid one. Funeral services for Bell were to be held at 4 p.m. today at the First Christian Church.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. Ada Johnson

Mrs. Ada Johnson, 52, died in Arlington, Va., Monday afternoon. A native of Ayden, she had been living in Arlington for several years. Funeral services will be held at the Britt Funeral Chapel Thursday at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Hubert Burress, Free Will Baptist minister of Pinetops. Burial will be in the Westview Cemetery in Kinston. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Roy Ives of the home; her mother, Mrs. Clyde McLawhorn; a sister, Mrs. Bernice Stokes of Richmond, Va.; two brothers, Hubert Newell of Arlington, Va. and Herman Newell of Ayden; two half-brothers, Warren McLawhorn and Perry McLawhorn of Jacksonville, Fla.; two half-sisters, Mrs. Edith Bowers of Ayden, Mrs. Kath. Kathleen Aimar of Arlington, Va.; and five grandchildren.
