Large Window Blown Out In Mishap

New Dwelling Is Damaged By Odd Explosion

A freak explosion caused heavy damage to a new dwelling on Lakewood Drive this morning, fire department officers reported. Officials said the explosion occurred about 10:20 a.m. in a dwelling under construction at the intersection of Lakewood and Dogwood Drives. No one was in the home at the time; however, one workman was under the house. He was not injured. Investigators explained the explosion by saying a coat of sealer had just been applied to the floors. Vapors from the mixture apparently traveled down heating and air conditioning ducts to a point where a workman under the house was welding refrigeration pipes. Heat from this torch was believed to have ignited the mixture, causing the explosion. The force of the blast blew a large window from the front of the home and caused heavy damage to the interior through smoke. Where windows on the front had been left open at the top, holes were burned and blown through the screens. Firemen said the workman under the home, J. C. Hamilton, was not injured by the blast. Workmen said the home was being built for Dr. and Mrs. John D. Messick, Dr. Messick is a past president of East Carolina College.

Heavy Damage By Big Rain

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Farmers and soil conservation experts have reported heavy damage in Stokes, Yadkin and Surry counties after heavy rains Tuesday. Lewis Dameron, Stokes County soil conservationist reported after a survey of his county Wednesday that damages in the Little Yadkin River watershed were about $200,000 and damages in the Town Fork Creek watershed were about $225,000. Yadkin County conservationist Ned Hood reported substantial damage to corn and tobacco in the Deep Creek watershed.

Strike Confronts 3 Major Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government efforts to settle long-standing labor disputes between three major airlines and the Flight Engineers International Association collapsed today. Ron Brown, the AFL-CIO union's president, said a strike appeared inevitable. Brown was asked whether a walkout will take place on the three carriers — Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines and Easter Air Lines. "It certainly appears so at this

Sergeant Killed In Fighting Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. Army sergeant has been killed and two other Americans wounded in a combat operation with Vietnamese troops near the Laotian frontier about 360 miles north of Saigon, a military spokesman said today. The wounded, a captain and a sergeant reportedly not in serious condition, have been taken to a field hospital at Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. Names of all three Americans were withheld until next of kin were notified. The action, details of which were not disclosed, occurred in central Viet Nam's thick forests, where U.S. Army special forces are training local Vietnamese units to defend their villages against Viet Cong guerrillas who infest the area. The sergeant is the fourth U.S. serviceman killed in combat since the United States increased its aid to President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces last December. A large Vietnamese force airlifted by 30 U.S. helicopters swept a Red-infiltrated area 40 miles north of Saigon today, killing three Viet Cong and seizing a big Communist supply depot, a military source said. One of the helicopters was forced down by engine trouble and destroyed by its crew. The crewmen reportedly were evacuated without any casualties.

Over Two Inches Of Rain For Area In Yesterday's Downpour

Yesterday's downpour of rain left Greenville with 2.06 inches of water. The rain, accumulated within a 24-hour period and much heavier than usual, didn't cause too many problems for utilities, street and police departments. The situation was a little different the day before, though. L. P. Bloxam, director of the Utilities Department, reported no problems from yesterday's rain but said a six-inch water main at Overlook Drive and Buckley Road broke shortly after midnight Wednesday due to recent rains. Some 400,000 gallons of water were lost before repairs were made. Bloxam explained that apparently rain caused the ditch to settle. The break occurred on the

N.C. Legion Is Gathering Today

RALEIGH (AP) — Members of the American Legion and the auxiliary began assembling in Raleigh today for their annual state convention. Upwards of 2,500 persons were expected. Speaking at the opening session Friday afternoon will be Horace Komegay of Greensboro, who will make the keynote address. National Legion Commander Charles L. Bacon of Kansas City, Mo., will speak at a banquet session Friday night.

Ayden Board To Take Option On Land For Well

AYDEN — Town commissioners, meeting this week, voted to take an option on property situated on High Street for possible location of a new well. The property, owned by Stancill Sumrell, is approximately 100 feet in depth with a frontage on High Street of about 400 feet. It is located between Fifth and Sixth Streets. Commissioners further agreed that the option be accompanied by a check of 10 per cent of the purchase price. On a motion by Edison Gibson, seconded by Elton McLawhorn, the Town Board agreed that in order to facilitate filling in of large drainage ditches located in the city limits, the town would assume responsibility of paying for the difference between the cost of 24-inch pipe and a larger size pipe is needed to effectively handle surface water drainage. During the meeting, Judge R. L. Davis of Ayden Recorder's Court administered the oath of office to recently elected commissioners Hall C. Miller and Elton Z. McLawhorn. Mayor S. F. Peterson named the following committees for the fiscal year 1962-63: commissioner of public safety, McLawhorn; commissioner of public works, Harry Mumford; commissioner of public utilities, Norman Dail; commissioner of public sanitation, Gibson; and commissioner of public service, Miller. In other business the board: —Agreed to meet in the Council Room at 7:30 Monday, June 18, to review color slides of the downtown area, as prepared by Grady Dixon. —Voted to advance $65 to the Fire Department for use of two delegates attending a convention in Asheville Aug. 20-24. —Adopted a resolution concerning signing of an agreement with Atlantic Coastline Railroad relative to running a water line under the tracks at the Mill Street Crossing. —Agreed that the town license plates for 1963 will remain as they are this year, with the same slogan, "A progressive community." —Approved a committee consisting of Town Manager Cleveland Paylor, Commissioner Mumford and Mayor Peterson to meet with representatives of the U.S. Army engineering district at 9 a.m. June 19 to discuss a formal application for the Flood Plain Study for Ayden. —Voted to purchase a second-hand jeep for use by the Department of Public Works for insect control purposes.

Tots Suffocated In Refrigerator

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — A four-year-old boy and his younger sister suffocated Wednesday in an old refrigerator at their home near here. The bodies of Kermit Leander Bowen and his sister, Tammy Gail, 3, were found by their mother.

Senate Unanimously Oks $48.5 Billion Defense Bill; Include RS70 Funds

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON WASHINGTON (AP) — Unanimous Senate approval of a massive $48.5-billion defense bill moved the record peacetime appropriation back to the House today. There, leaders were expected to send the bulky measure to the usual compromise session of a Senate-House Conference Committee. The bill returns to the House with nearly $500 million in Senate increases over what the House originally voted. The differences must be resolved before the bill goes to President Kennedy. The bill returns to the House with nearly $500 million in Senate increases over what the House originally voted. The differences must be resolved before the bill goes to President Kennedy. The bill returns to the House with nearly $500 million in Senate increases over what the House originally voted. The differences must be resolved before the bill goes to President Kennedy.

Appropriations Committee to hasten development of the big jet reconnaissance strike aircraft known as the RS70. Both senators were defeated by wide margins as they tried to slice RS70 margins back to the $171 million asked by President Kennedy and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to continue limited development of the huge experimental aircraft. All-minded senators backed the full $491 million asked by top Air Force leaders to develop a complete weapons system, including long-range radars, new missiles and other special subsystems. During the debate Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said Kennedy "told me Sunday that even if extra funds are voted" for the RS70 he wouldn't spend them. Robertson told the Senate, however, that McNamara had informed him privately that "it might be wise" to put some extra millions into developing the RS70 as a future weapons system. The House had voted $224 million for the RS70.

Also rejected by voice vote was an attempt by Proxmire to remove $280 million appropriated for another big aircraft carrier for the Navy. The Senate bill would require that the Army's National Guard be maintained at a strength of 400,000 and its Reserves at 300,000 a year from now. The Pentagon had proposed 367,000 for the National Guard and 275,000 for the Reserves. The House had provided an extra $60 million to avoid cutbacks but the Senate went a step more by including language to prohibit a cutback. The Senate also tacked on $11 million to expand Air Force and Navy Reserves. As the bill went back to the House it carried $19.6 billion for the Air Force, $15.5 billion for the Navy, $11.6 billion for the Army and $2 billion for numerous Defense Department agencies. The Senate made no reductions in military funds voted by the House but added a score of increases, involving more than $300 million on top of the RS70 funds.

Lawmakers See Pressure In Arguing New Debt Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — With cries of blackmail and threats of a special session ringing in their ears, House members face a decision on whether to increase the national debt limit by $8 billion or $6 billion or not at all. President Kennedy wants the $8-billion boost for one year; most Republicans favor a $6-billion raise; some members don't want any increase. Unless Congress does something in a hurry, the present temporary ceiling of $300 billion will drop to $285 billion at the end of this month. The administration claims this would put the government in a financial straitjacket.

Republicans argue the $6-billion hike would not put the Treasury in a bind although it might force some cutbacks in nondefense spending. Democrats contend the $8-billion boost is the minimum necessary to provide for seasonal variations in tax collections, assuming a balanced budget for the coming fiscal year—an assumption many Republicans claim is based on day-dreaming. Opponents of any increase, apparently in the minority, called for financial belt-tightening and a halt to any spending that could be deferred. Debate Wednesday on the controversial issue brought a threat from Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., that any increase below $8 billion might force the President to call a special session of Congress next fall to provide more financial elbow room for the Treasury. It also produced angry complaints from Republicans against what they called blackmail and threats of reprisals against members who didn't support the President. The threats, Republican members said, involved cancellation or curtailment of defense contracts in their districts. Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., who touched off the flurry, charged that a Defense Department official asked the Chrysler Corp. Washington representative to find out how Michigan Republicans stood on the issue. The defense spokesman, Ford said, warned that if the $8-billion

Pitt Fugitive Captured

STUEBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Glenn S. Orren, 48, wounded by police Wednesday, was identified today as one of 11 persons who escaped May 7 from the Pitt County, N. C., Prison Camp. Orren is in Ohio Valley Hospital with neck and scalp wounds. Doctors removed part of his right ear after the shooting in downtown Steubenville. Police said Orren was one of two men who tried to break into the Western Union office. Policemen fired when the two tried to flee in a car. The officers had stalked out the office on a tip and said they watched the two trying to break the door lock. The other man, Gary Gottschall, 28, of Steubenville, was charged as a material witness, police said. U.S. authorities notified Steubenville police a warrant accusing Orren of illegal flight to avoid prosecution was being forwarded to them.

Burch-Brewer Jury Selection Is Completed

RALEIGH (AP) — A third alternate juror was selected today, settling the stages for testimony to begin in the trial of six men and two companies on charges of influence peddling in connection with state highway sign purchases. Wallace O. Parker of Raleigh, information officer for the State Farm Bureau, was the third prospective juror questioned in Superior Court this morning. Judge Raymond Mallard ordered the selection of three alternate jurors because the trial apparently will be a lengthy one. Six days and approximately one hour was consumed in choosing the 12 regular jurors and the three alternates. Attorneys selected a 12th juror and two alternates Wednesday before they departed a special venire. More than 200 persons have been questioned in the jury selection since the trial began last Wednesday. Most of them were excused because they said they had formed an opinion in the case. The principal defendants are Kidd Brewer, Raleigh businessman and onetime candidate for lieutenant governor, and Robert A. Burch, former state highway engineer in charge of sign procurement. Also named in a 12-count indictment were Burch's son, Bobby; two New Jersey sign companies and three New Jersey men who are, or were, officials of one or both of the sign firms. They are accused of violating a law which makes it a misdemeanor to try to influence an employee in the performance of his duties by offering him a gift. Burch is the employe involved.

Ground Is Broken For New Greenville Motel

Ground-breaking ceremonies Wednesday launched construction of a new Greenville motel—a Holiday Inns of America franchised installation to be constructed and operated by G-W-D, Inc., of Greenville. The structure is scheduled to be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1, according to Don F. White, president of the financing corporation. White and his partner, Glen Grady, also operate G&W Boats, Inc., a new Greenville boat manufacturing firm. To include 66 motel units and a restaurant at the outlet, the Holiday Inn-Greenville's third motel—is under construction on a 600-by-400-foot site just south of the intersection of Memorial Drive and the Old Stantonsburg Road. As construction got underway, White and Grady also announced the new Phillips 66 service station will be constructed simultaneously with the motel. The service station will be built in the triangle formed by Memorial Drive and Stantonsburg Road and will be adjacent to the Holiday Inn. An experienced commercial manager, whose name will be announced later, has been selected for the new motel, White said. The new facility, according to G-W-D's announcement, will provide employment for 50 persons. According to plans announced by White, a later extension of facilities at the motel will add 40 more units for a total of 106. That phase of construction, he said, will also include expansion of the motel's restaurant facilities. The motel and the service station will be of fireproof masonry (Continued on page 16)

Now Nurses' Uniforms Aren't Uniform

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

Today's angel of mercy in starched white cap may carry her thermometer in a Dior-inspired dress, or a sleeveless "little nothing" blouses costume made popular by Jacqueline Kennedy. A modern day nurse has more than 100 styles of "work dresses" to choose from. These are uniform in no other way except that they are white, washable and becoming.

However, in Europe during the early centuries women who administered to the sick purposely wore quaint gowns and bonnets calculated to chasten the spirit of the most frivolous-minded.

For a brief period in the Fourth century, a time of great religious zeal, nursing garments were rich and ornately decorated, because the wearers were wealthy women caring for the sick and poor as penance.

The simplest and coarsest religious garb was worn a little later when monasticism was the prevailing influence.

Perhaps the first white angels were nurses in the Hotel Dieu in Paris in 1327. White clothing was decreed for them to promote propriety while outside of the hospital on private nursing duty.

By the 17th century strict conformity in dress was prominent in highly idealistic religious orders such as the Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul in Paris. In 1653 dress regulations for its members were gowns of rough gray-blue fabric with white headress, designed to characterize the ideals of chastity, humility and poverty.

Then a complete disorganization of all charitable work followed the political and religious revolution in England and civil authorities replaced religious orders in the hospital. Servant nurses, who were ignorant, slovenly and with loose morals were hired. Having no pride in their profession, they lacked a reason for wearing any identifying uniform.

It took the heroism of Florence Nightingale during the Crimean War to dignify nursing again.

Re-establishment of dress regulations followed. Quakeress Elizabeth Fry, an English prison reformer, founded the Institution of Nursing Sisters, specifying that the ladies wear neat and becoming uniforms.

Conforming to dress did not immediately appeal to American women. Then a prominent, fashion-conscious young lady appeared at Bellevue hospital to lend a philanthropic hand looking so fetching and all the nurses copied her dress. She was wearing a blue and white striped gown with white apron and a cap. However by the time the 20th century was well under way nursing schools and hospitals were stipulating crisp, practical, sanitary white uniforms.

Even 40 years ago there were less than a handful of sizes and styles to select from. These were made from heavy white cotton which had to be starched and laboriously ironed.

Today the nurse who wears a mite-sized 5 or a mighty-sized 52 can choose among more than 100 couturier-inspired styles, some permanently starched, almost all wash 'n' wear, and a few even stretchable.

Nonconforming uniform makers are trying hard to give the style-conscious woman one more reason why she should select a nursing career during the current critical shortage.

Miss Tadlock Entertained

Mrs. Allie Whitehurst and Mrs. Jack Minges entertained Miss Carol Ann Tadlock at a luncheon Wednesday in the Minges home on Pinecrest Drive.

Upon arrival, the honoree and her mother were presented with corsages of white pom poms. The guests were invited into the den for cocktails, after which a three course luncheon was served. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of miniature chrysanthemums and Sweetheart roses. Similar arrangements were used on auxiliary tables set up in the living room. A pink and lavender color scheme was followed throughout.

Mrs. Whitehurst and Mrs. Minges gave Miss Tadlock gifts of china and crystal.

Ellis-Saulter Vows Spoken

Miss Eloise Saulter became the bride of Freddie Ellis Friday evening, June 8, in Greenville.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Saulter of Route 2, Farmville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ellis, also of Route 2, Farmville.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta covered with Chantilly lace, and a satin sash. She wore a mantilla of matching lace, and carried a bouquet of white carnations, centered with orchids.

The bride will continue her education as a senior at Farmville High School, while the bridegroom is employed by a local contractor.

After a honeymoon to the northern part of the state, the couple will reside at Route 2, Farmville.

Clean Windows Are Decorative

Since modern buildings are constructed to show more window space than stone or steel, the architects and builders of these "glass towers" realize that their efforts toward beauty are lost unless the windows are kept clean.

That's why sudsing is a continuous process in one Newark, New Jersey, apartment development which has more than 8,000 windows. It takes management employees six weeks to wash all these windows—and then it's time to begin the wash-up over again!

It Takes A Lot Of Soap and Water!

A prominent doctor notes that probably 25 per cent of all teens who have acne can manage it successfully merely by washing their faces four or five times a day.

Soap and water helps control blemishes, as only a clean skin can be healthy.

Presents Feminine Winter Collection

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The helpless woman came back into style Wednesday as Pauline Trigere presented the feminine figure, not only as a completely disarming creature, but one completely disarmed.

Although the lovely model demonstrating Miss Trigere's winter collection at her press preview here were not Venuses, many were without arms for defense.

Their upper limbs were bound by capes rounded at the shoulders, clinging tenaciously at the sides, and flaring out slightly at the hemlines. Hands did manage to grope their ways occasionally through slashes high on the cape fronts.

But there were also capes as voluminous as a magician's and just as full of tricks. Some were in big checks, colorful plaids and bold tweeds for blustery daytime use. But others in velvet lined with more velvet sprinkled with rhinestones, or made from broad-tail fur, or vivid blue wool or rustling taffetas were meant for night's brightest lights.

Under those bulky capes and skinny capes too, Miss Trigere's models wore spare, sleeveless and beltless dresses shaped like pop bottles. Bustlines were high, waistlines were defined but not fitted, hips curved and slim skirts flared into what is called the trumpet shape.

That same controlled hem flared shape was repeated in jackets, capes and coats and even in the form of the champagne glasses after the show.

Director Vadim Has New 'Best Girl'

PARIS — (WNS) — "A man's best girl is his mother," declared Roger Vadim, director of "Les Liaisons Dangereuses" and former husband of Brigitte Bardot.

Thereupon he named 58-year-old Marie Antoinette Vadim, his grey-haired, bespectacled mother, to head Saphren Films, his new independent production company.

"Movies are gold, but they tend to destroy and rot all those who touch them as a profession," announced Mrs. Vadim, a divorcee and widow.

"I intend to protect Roger from the hordes of parasites connected with films, and to eliminate all that can injure his career, particularly starlets."

Mrs. Vadim has kept a close eye on her son's enterprises during the past 10 years while running her own secretarial employment office in Paris.

"I'm a hard businesswoman with only one weakness that I know of," she said. "My weakness is—like that of all mothers—that I'm prejudiced in favor of the genius of my son."

Princess Grace Cutlet Defined

MONTE CARLO — (WNS) — Monaco restaurateurs have agreed that "cotelette de veau Princesse Grace" (veal cutlet a la Princess Grace) must include not only a veal chop delicately served in wine sauce but also a "veritable bouquet" of fresh vegetables to make it regal. Recommended garniture: roast potatoes, asparagus, corn, mushrooms and pate de foie gras.

Sorority With Best Dessert Gets Vote Of Campus Ingenue

This is another in a series of articles on life and cooking by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

By MARY WHITNEY
Women's News Service

I was young, I was 16. I was full of a juvenescent joie de vivre and an ambitiously burning desire to star on the stage. But I was also gauche and untutored in the realms of Thespian. I had never heard of the Stanislawski method or any other method, and it was years before the Sweatshirt School of Acting, as exemplified by Marion Brando and others, would develop.

I decided my talents needed a thorough cleaning and pressing. So I left my gemutlich Kansas City menage for the more cultural pastures of the University of Iowa and enrolled in the theater arts course.

This course was developed by Edward Charles Mable, who died more than a year ago and was perhaps one of the greatest figures in the history of university theater.

The university was the first in the country to give an advanced degree in creative writing, and one of the first to obtain it was Richard Malbaum, prominent playwright and screenwriter, who returned to the campus as a visiting professor, under a $750,000 Ford Foundation grant, to establish a weekly half-hour TV series.

Instead of looking for scripts on the outside, Professor Malbaum inspired his students to turn out original scripts. He deserves great credit for encouraging creative writing.

My first role as a collegiate Thespian was that of Sally Jackson, the noseey, exuberant Southern gal in Fritz Rotter's and Allen Vincent's "Letter to Lucerne." The play was originally produced by the late Dwight Deere Wiman, a fine and sensitive man of the Deere steel-plov family, who was called "probably by Alex Woolcott" Broadway's First Gentleman-Producer.

During sorority rush week, just as in the old days of our kitchen-Camanching, I thoroughly canvassed each sorority's cooking as well as its girls before deciding which one to join. I finally wound up with Kappa Alpha Theta because of their exquisite chocolate dessert.

THETA CHOCOLATE DESSERT
5 eggs
10 tablespoons sugar (5 ounces)
2 squares melted chocolate vanilla to taste
peanut brittle
whipped cream

Separate eggs, beat yolks with sugar until creamy, then add melted chocolate and beat. Add vanilla, then fold in well-beaten egg whites. Chill in ice box three hours, cover with crushed peanut brittle and whipped cream. Add brandy or bourbon whisky to taste if peanut brittle is not available.

When making this dessert, pour melted chocolate slowly on egg mixture. Start egg yolks and sugar in mixer and add chocolate gradually. Whip egg whites by hand, and fold lightly into egg mixture by hand.

When I returned to Kansas City after a year at Iowa, I was greeted with consternation and confusion by my family and friends.

I came home speaking a jargon of three accents—one acquired from my speech course in college; a broad "A" derived from Theata Housemother Anderson, who came from Boston, and a lazy Southern drawl from my Sally Jackson role.

I still retain traces of all three, and even my four children sometimes are unable to understand me.

Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen:
Here's to the widow of fifty;
Here's to the flaunting, extravagant queen,
And here's to the housewife that's thrifty!

—Richard Brunsley Sheridan

Somebody in an expansive mood once described me as a composite of Fanny Farmer and Clare Boothe Luce.

I deny the soft-bolled impeachment, but if there is a scintilla of truth in it, I'll lay it all at the feet of my sainted mother.

No square. Mother, nor a somber Whistler's Portrait in Gray and Black, but a cook in the kitchen and a lady in the parlor—and as up-to-date as today's headlines.

An ardent clubwoman and inveterate cause-jumper, Mother was one of the original feminists and suffragettes, and she always bore the brunt of the battle for the underman.

Mother often used to have the Kansas City Young Matrons over for lunch, and they would discuss their charity drives. After a long meeting the ladies would be rewarded with Mother's very special pudding dessert—a dish that boasted the same sophisticated flair as its maker.

CREME BRULEE
vanilla pudding mix
1½ cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons Grand Marnier
1-3 cup brown sugar

Prepare pudding mix as directed on the label, using only 1½ cups milk. Fold in the cream, which has been whipped, and the Grand Marnier; pour the mixture into a casserole (1½ quart) and sprinkle brown sugar evenly over top.

Set casserole in a pan of ice, and place under broiler, about six inches beneath the flame. Broil about five minutes, or until sugar is melted. Serves six.

A housewife in old Oklahoma filled her home with the kitchen's aroma; She made excellent roast, And her pie was the most; And her pious sent the kids in a coma!

Demo Woman Of The Year

The Democratic Women of Pitt County have planned to select a "Woman Democrat of the Year" in the county who will become eligible for competition on the district and perhaps the state levels.

Miss Janice Hardison, president of the organization, said the organization's Executive Committee, scheduled to meet June 28, will name its choice for the honors and announce the selection at the chapter's quarterly meeting in July.

The president said Pitt's woman of the year will enter the nine-county district's competition for district honors. The state's 15 district winners will compete at the October state convention in Asheville for the State title.

Mrs. Russell Kirby of Wilson will head the district competition that will include county winners from Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Halifax, Wilson, Wayne, Johnston, Edgecombe and Nash Counties.

Local chapters have now been organized in 53 of North Carolina's 100 counties and other organizational movements are underway. The state convention is scheduled for Oct. 5-6.

Regular sickroom laundry, dishes, and utensils do not have to be boiled unless the doctor recommends it. They should be soaked in very hot soap or detergent suds until the water becomes comfortably cool, then washed in clean hot suds. Rinse dishes and eating utensils with actively boiling water, and let them dry in the air.

Mascots Hosts

Beverly and Alan Bell, mascots for the eighth grade at the Fountain School this year, honored the class with a Weiner roast and hayride last Thursday night.

Those attending the weiner roast, held at James Monk Park in Farmville, were Joan Baker, Dianne Bell, Mary Lois Bradshaw, J. C. Bryant, Linda Cobb, Claudius Corbett, Michael Hardison, Nancy Harris, Bill Jefferson, Evelyn Lewis, John Moore, Janet Owens, Dolly Price and Shirley Bryant. Bob Jenkins and Miss Janice Johnson of Wilson also attended.

Reedy Branch H. D. Club Meets

The Reedy Branch Community Home Demonstration Club met last week in the Educational building with 15 members present. The president, Mrs. Eugene Averette, presided. Mrs. Elwood Davenport gave the devotional.

Mrs. James Little gave a demonstration on "The Preparation of Quick and Easy Meals." She served two casserole dishes that could be frozen for later use. She stressed the importance of color and attractiveness as well as taste in preparing nourishing meals.

Mrs. Davenport urged the members to read good books, and suggested club members get an approved reading list from the home office.

After business was dispensed, Mrs. Glenn Worthington and Mrs. Pearl Worthington served refreshments, using one dairy product since June is Dairy Month.

New Pineapple Kabobs For Teenage Summer Buffet

The high school crowd is sure to go for hot dog slices combined with canned pineapple chunks in brochette. Simply heat these two teenage favorites in a mild sweet sour sauce and let guests spear their own. They're tops for a summer buffet. With them, serve a sparkling pineapple punch. A refreshing, rosy drink may be made by combining equal parts of pineapple juice, cranberry juice and ginger ale in a pretty bowl or ice bucket.

PINEAPPLE COCKTAIL KABOBS

1 (1-pound 4-ounce) can pineapple chunks	2 tablespoons dry mustard
1 tablespoon cornstarch	¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar	1 pound frankfurters
	1 teaspoon soy sauce

Drain syrup from pineapple and add water, if necessary, to make 1 cup. Mix cornstarch, brown sugar, mustard and vinegar and stir into pineapple syrup. Cook over low heat until thickened. Cut frankfurters into diagonal slices ¼-inch thick. Add to sauce along with pineapple chunks and soy sauce. Continue cooking over low heat long enough to heat through. Serve with toothpick spears.

New Colleges Offer Major Asset

A recommendation for establishment of 14 new community colleges through North Carolina may appear to some citizens as a reckless proposal to over-expand the state's facilities for higher education.

Nothing could be farther from the truth of the situation which exists in North Carolina.

If the recommendation made by the Governor's Commission on Education Beyond the High School is accepted by the state and implemented by the legislature, it will mean to college-age Tar Heels what public schools meant to the youngsters of the state almost a half-century ago.

Too many North Carolinians have failed to recognize the fact that their state ranks next to the bottom among the 50 states in the number of college-age citizens who actually attend college. Only in the state of Mississippi is the percentage of college age students actually in college lower than it is in North Carolina.

Establishment of the low-cost, two year community colleges throughout the state would open the way to college study to literally thousands of young North Carolinians who today find themselves unable to continue their formal education beyond the high school level. At the same time it would alleviate some of the pressure which is being placed on the established two-year and four-year colleges of the state for enrollment of students.

It would cost the state considerable money to establish and operate 14 additional community colleges, but the cost would be only a fraction of what it would be to handle in established institutions the thousands of students who would attend these two-year community institutions.

The experience of the five community colleges which already are in operation in North Carolina attest to the soundness of the proposed program. The funds for their operation come from tuition, state and local money. During the period they have been in operation they have proved a distinct asset to higher education in this state.

North Carolina can ill afford to remain in its present low position with regard to the number of its young people who are attending college. The establishment of more community colleges will be a major factor in North Carolina's move up the ladder of higher education.

Proper Consideration Is Certainly In Order

It is not surprising that some people of Bladen County have demanded a hearing on the proposal of Gov. Sanford that the Bladen Lakes state forest be offered the Air Force for a practice range.

The citizens of that county, however, should reserve judgment on the proposal until they have been acquainted with all the facts about the matter and what the proposal entails.

In too many instances citizens are inclined to jump to mistaken conclusions when such a proposal is made. They make broad assumptions on the basis of little or no accurate information, and these assumptions, though they are without foundation, prevent consideration of the facts involved.

The Air Force needs a range for use of its planes based at Seymour Johnson base in Goldsboro. Tentatively the Air Force has said that the site proposed by Gov. Sanford probably will meet its requirements. Further study by the Air Force, by the state and by the citizens of Bladen County will be required before a final decision is made in the matter.

We trust that those involved will give study and consideration to the matter in the light of facts rather than unfounded assumptions, and that a program which is mutually satisfactory and beneficial to the state, the people of Bladen County and the Air Force can be finalized.

First Step To Real Trouble?

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Laos has just taken its first step toward peace, but if history means anything this is just the first step toward real trouble.

For more than a year, the United States has urged the three feuding princes — one pro-Western, one neutralist, one pro-Communist — to bury the hatchet and form a coalition government in which all three could share.

Tuesday they signed an agreement and on paper it looks pleasantly reasonable.

Of the 19 Cabinet posts, 11 go to neutralists, four to members of the present pro-Western royal government, and four to the pro-Communist group. The top job and the three more important Cabinet jobs go to neutralists.

Prince Souvanna Phouma will be premier and defense minister; Phoung Phongsavan will head the Interior Ministry which controls the police; Quin Pholsena, who has made bitterly anti-American statements, will be foreign minister.

The head of the pro-Communist group, Prince Souphanouvong, will be deputy premier and economics minister. One of the leaders of the pro-Western group, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, who has been criticized by the United States, will also be a deputy premier and minister of finance.

It's unreal to think the pro-Communists will simply serve in the government, always acting like nice boys, without trying to take it over, either suddenly, in an unexpected rush, or gradually.

Seventy-five days from Tuesday's signing all foreign troops are to be withdrawn from Laos. The United States has had about 300 observers there, helping the pro-Western government. It has been estimated about 10,000 men from Communist North Viet Nam are in Laos, supporting the pro-Communist forces there.

After these foreign troops leave, the new Laotian government is supposed to merge into one national army the troops of the present opposing forces: the pro-Communists from the north, the pro-Westerners from the south.

This merger attempt may bring the first explosion, although it's possible the newly created coalition of pro-Communists, neutralists and pro-Westerners will blow up before it really gets started because of old grudges, new ambitions and permanent distrusts.

If all this were not enough cause for trouble, there is still one more, a beast, lying ahead.

Prince Souvanna Phouma said that, after the opposing troops have been integrated, he will hold nationwide elections to "determine the will of the Laotian people."

He had hardly said this when American officials in Laos were reported to have said this has many pitfalls.

In short, new peace in Laos looks like a preliminary to new trouble. And any trouble will be trouble for the United States which now is deeply involved in Southeast Asia and can hardly afford to see any of it slip away, no matter how.

Strength For Today

AND ON AND ON

Who wants war? Certainly not the common people of any country. They fight the battles, pay the debts, take the punishment. It has become a cliché to declare that nobody profits by war. But there is a group who think they profit by it. These are the leaders of certain nations. Khrushchev is asking his people to run the risk of war in order that he and less than one hundred other men may control several large European nations; and eventually the world.

War, unless it is defensive—has always been the attempt to implement the ambition of a few men. They want to use the sons of millions of homes to further their political ambitions. Do we have anything against the Russian people, or do they

Shook By Gum-Smackers

There ought to be a law, we say, against chewing gum. At least in certain circumstances.

We believe first and foremost that there is a time and place for everything, and that includes the vegetable substance of chewing gum. We are the first to admit it must serve some useful function, such as exercising the jaws.

Further, we believe that cigarettes, cigars and pipes have a place in life, like chewing gum.

It is disturbing, therefore, that the smokers are discriminated against because they are not allowed to smoke in certain places; for instance, trains. While, all this time, people are allowed to smack gum anywhere to their hearts' content.

This type situation causes terrific anxiety for those who must sit beside the gum smacker and endure mental torture.

We do not know what can be done. Obviously, this could develop into a universal problem, and we know those who dislike having chewing gum smacked in their delicate ears will heartily agree with us, while we may incur the wrath of those who love the sport.

We offer no solution because ours wouldn't work. We are, however, thankful that trains have loud wheels.

Speaking of anxiety and stressful situations, we have read in "The Science of Dreams" that some investigators believe deprivation of the nightly dream cycle may cause stress in an individual. He may become cross and emotionally upset.

This book reports that a person has a nightly dream cycle, and that it could well be an emotional outlet to maintain sleep. Persons deprived of sleep for long hours are consequently deprived of dreams. They may have hallucinations and delusions after loss of sleep amounting to 72 hours and more.

There are scientific experiments to give credence to the fact that everyone dreams nightly and in cycles.

The brain washing techniques used to secure false confessions from American soldiers during the Korean conflict were, some scientists believe, derived through depriving soldiers of sleep and the dream cycle.

Further, persons deprived of sleep for long periods of time develop psychotic tendencies.

There is much more dream research to be done, but there is a hint that these researches may be hovering on new thresholds of the ever-fascinating brain of man. Dreams may come from a less developed part of the dream, which unleashes itself while the higher-thinking part of the brain is sleeping.

One of the interesting facets is why some remember dreams and others don't.

The unexplored regions of the mind are many.

Other Editors Saying Sec. Hodges Was Right

(Greensboro Daily News)

It turns out that speculation about a rift in the Kennedy cabinet, centered around tax policy differences between Secretary of the Treasury Dillon and Secretary of Commerce Hodges, was quite premature.

Those who had Luthé, the Lionhearted out on a limb, which the White House might saw off, were farthest off base in their speculation.

The commerce secretary, in the immediate wake of the stock market's "Black Monday," saw need for a tax reduction to encourage business, help lift profits and put more spending money into the nation's economy.

Treasury Secretary Dillon, however, saw no such need. Yet within days, almost hours, of the Hodges statement, the Treasury chief made a policy speech in New York which announced an administration tax overhaul, from top to bottom, next year.

Secretary Dillon backed out of his previous position with a face-saving formula. He saw no need for hasty, ill-advised tax reduction as an offset to the market's slide. Rather he pictured next year's administration program as "a fundamental restructuring of our income tax system, designed to promote the maximum long-term economic growth." Stripped of governmentese, that simply means that Hodges' view prevailed. Whatever differences existed have been composed; and executive department and Congress appear happy over the outlook.

What led to expression of different views by two members of the Kennedy cabinet is anybody's guess. Secretary Dillon spoke from the Treasury position, Secretary Hodges from the Commerce Department which identified him as the voice of business within the government.

It is significant that the commerce secretary did not attend the economic conference at the White House at which the stock market's gyrations were discussed. He held his own conference shortly thereafter and made his statements about tax cuts. It is not beyond the realm of possibility—and certainly is politically plausible—that the White House knew something about these views, that more than one trial balloon was being unloosed and that ground was broken for action at either end of the fiscal spectrum.

But whatever rift was previously mentioned seems to be dissolved in the white light of subsequent developments. And Luthé the Lionhearted's limb is anything but truncated.

Opinions In Brief

"Reckless drivers are perhaps even worse and more perilous than those who fire off guns, but so far there has been a strange and costly reluctance to assess their punishment at what it obviously should be."—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

"The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none."—Thomas Carlyle.

"There is far more opportunity than there is ability."—Thomas A. Edison.

"Nearly everybody who gets a wage or salary finds that the government has taken a bite out of his pay check before he gets it. It will be hard for Senator Byrd to convince these people that fortunate citizens drawing incomes from dividends and interest should not be subjected to the same treatment."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Duty is what one expects from others; it is not what one does oneself."—Clifton Fadiman.

People With Fears

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The great Robert Burns spoke of our times in these two stanzas:

"We, sleekit, cow'rin, tim'rous beastie,
O wad a panic's in thy breastie!
Thou need na start awa sae hasty,
Wi' bickering brattle!
I wad be laith to rin and chase thee,
Wi' murd'ring pattle!"

"Still thou art blest, compared wi' me!
The present only toucheth thee:
But, och! I backward cast me e'e
On prospects drear!
An' forward, tho' I canna see,
I guess and fear!"

It is the enormous fear of failure that besets our people. They fear war. They fear the bomb. They fear the fall-out. They fear another Depression. They fear the consequences of history.

When a people develops a fear psychosis, there are always rational and irrational factors in the situation. We have been at war since 1914 and war has eaten away our substance. It is impossible to assess the indirect cost of our wars; the direct cost of close to 100 billion dollars year after year is beyond our capacity to sustain. As a result we have lost our gold reserve and our currency is depreciated. This no one can deny. Despite upwards of $100 billion of aid to friend and foe, we still have more enemies than friends and we have not yet learned that friendship cannot be bought.

In the economic field, wars and government controls have produced a mixed economy. Not only is the government engaged in vast enterprises formerly reserved to the private citizen but the controls set up since 1933 and greatly developed since then, in effect, make the government a partner in all basic enterprises. To this must be added that as the principal customer of many industries, departments of the government set policies, determine prices, enforce labor practices, etc.

This is one side of the coin. The other side is equally important:

We have managed since 1933 to go through these wars and economic downfalls, ups and downs again, without losing a single civil liberty guaranteed by the Constitution. Many Americans believe that they enjoy more rights than the Constitution provides for. If we stick to the Bill of Rights, we have a sure guide as to what we may or may not do. For instance, while I have the right to refer to an imaginary alerter of public opinion as a mouse with the numps, that being a non-descriptive, live and let live expression, I may not say that he is a thief unless I can prove it in a Court of Law.

It is possible to call everyone, whom I dislike, a Communist, but if challenged I must prove my point. I have the right to like or dislike people individually or collectively, but I may not take such actions against them as to deprive them of their Constitutional Rights. When the individual is assured his liberties, all lives in a wholesome way. It is difficult to understand why so many curious movements have suddenly appeared in this country and why they have such large followings. For example, although Dick Nixon won in California, the John Birch Society produced a large vote.

Actually, this country is at this moment in a hopeful state. The Cold War is lessening its uses. All the Communist countries are suffering from economic disorders and there is little question but that Khrushchev is finding his operations too costly and he does not know how to bail himself out. We have established strength in Berlin and in Southeast Asia. We have gone through a tough stock market debacle, but we were able to survive its damage. We are over-produced and while prices are formed internationally, costs are determined within the United States.

Things can happen because of the psychological factors of fear. There are those who are genuinely frightened of the President's pronounced policies.

Implication Of Tariff Fight

By ELMER ROESSNER

The tariff fight between the United States and the Common Market is, so far, a small matter in our multilateral trade. It will affect only about $27 million out of $6 billion a year.

But it is a highly relevant development in our economic relations with Europe.

It all started with President Kennedy requesting Congress for greater authority to lower tariffs so he could more readily negotiate with the Common Market. To get the needed support for this authority, particularly from the Southern wing of Congress, he had to show that he was sympathetic to American business needs and would not lower import duties indiscriminately. In other words, he had to raise tariffs on something so he could get authority to lower them on a broad scale.

Glass and carpets were picked. Higher imports on these products hit Belgium particularly. Belgium took the matter to its Common Market partners and tariffs were hiked on certain U. S. plastics, materials and paints.

U. S. COMPANIES SPLIT
The chieftains were canny. U. S. polyethylene manufacturers are particularly affected. Such exporting companies as Eastman Chemical, du Pont, Spencer Chemical and U. S. Industrial Chemicals, which were just enjoying some price improvement in European polyethylene market, will be just about closed out.

But other U. S. producers like Monsanto, with plants in England and Union Carbide, with plants in Italy, England and the Benelux countries, will benefit. So the American companies will be split on their attitudes towards the tariff increases.

The tariff fight has revealed several significant points:

1. The Common Market can and will act as a group to protect one member.
2. The Common Market will raise protective tariffs selectively only U. S. products are subject to the increase.
3. The Common Market is not afraid of the United States and seems willing to slug out toe-to-toe its disagreements with the U. S. And in public, too, PROBLEMS INDICATED

This tempest-in-a-teapot is not going to make or break our relations with the Common Market. But it is highly useful in showing what some of the problems are going to be like and the potential dangers.

For one thing, Congress has been indicating a stiffer attitude in matters economic. It resisted aid to Communist countries. It takes a dim view of assistance to countries that seize American-owned properties without proper or sufficient compensation. It doesn't like aid to those neutral countries that too frequently oppose us or snipe at us.

It might not like a market area that raises tariffs only out of retaliation and not for other causes.

The current difficulty shows, too, that the Kennedy Administration needs a little sharpening up on its economic politicking. Either the items chosen for our tariff hikes were the wrong ones or the reason for the move wasn't sufficiently explained and sold to the Common Market countries in general and Belgium in particular.

The greater danger is that this particular tempest, or a similar one, might develop into a similar round of retaliatory actions with each side striking back at the other's last affront. If that were to happen, it could further lead to repercussions in other areas of foreign relations.

JEWELRY GROUP TO FIGHT GROWING CREDIT LOSSES

History's biggest hauls by jewel thieves are trifles compared with what the jewelry trade loses every year through bad credit, according to the new Jewelry Management Board. The board has just been set up to create a modern credit interchange system to reduce an estimated $10 million-a-year loss to prime jewelry suppliers and manufacturers. Through the new service, the board hopes to stop the granting of credit to retailers "blindly and wildly on personal impression, rumors and guesses."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Any camera is capable of capturing people when they are happy or sad, thoughtful or animated, angry or peaceful. But it is up to the person behind the camera to make the picture meaningful. He must select the subject and type of lighting, study the background or surroundings, choose the best camera angle and, above all, must decide on the precise instant of shooting to record the emotion at its very peak.

When all the factors fall into position perfectly and when the emotion pictured is genuine, the photographic result can prove to be gripping beyond words—a visual blockbuster.

Such a picture was recently reproduced in the nation's newspapers.

It showed a weeping Chinese girl holding a ragged cloth over her mouth to stifle almost audible sobs. Her anguish, we learned from the picture caption, was caused by the decision of British authorities in overcrowded Hong Kong to return the girl and other refugees from Communist China back to the place they had fled.

The emotional impact of the photograph was immediately evident. Throughout the country, telephone calls and telegrams were received by newspapers and The Associated Press, distributor of the photo. They came from sympathetic readers with offers of help for the girl. The picture evoked editorials, follow-up news stories, human interest articles by columnists and TV mention.

I talked with several persons who called the AP office in New York after seeing the photo. One woman's reaction was typical. "My family was greatly disturbed last night at dinner thinking of this girl's plight. We would like to offer her a home... our home. Can you help me find her?"

Others throughout the country offered to assume responsibility or adopt her, assure her of a job or contribute to any fund set up in her behalf.

Prompt as the sympathetic reaction was, it was already too late.

The picture had been taken by P. C. Lee, a Chinese photographer for the Hong Kong Tiger Standard before worldwide distribution by The Associated Press. The girl was with a small group of refugees fleeing Communist China. They had managed to evade the border guards and had slipped through a barbed wire frontier fence at dawn.

Two short miles later, however, they were stopped by British soldiers for illegal entry.

She sobbed out her name, Lee Ying, her age, 19, but not her home village lest it bring trouble to her family.

Lee Ying's group was sent to an overnight British detention camp. Next day she was lost in a mob of 3,000 similar refugees who were trucked back to the border in army vehicles and returned to Red soil.

Lee Ying had vanished by the time the cables of inquiry and offers of assistance from a sympathetic world reached British officials and the U. S. Consulate in Hong Kong.

But Lee Ying's picture remains a symbol of all the Chinese refugees and their plight. The power of the picture in stirring the world's compassion might yet help save other Lee Yings from a similar fate.

Como Replacement Sees Good Opening Last Night

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Perry Como is a wonderful guy: He's on vacation, but instead of filling his weekly hour with the usual repeats, he is serving forth a series of new mystery shows.

The first one, on NBC Wednesday night, was well acted and interesting. Although the series is called "Mystery Theater," a mystery wasn't the right tag for the opening show. We knew whodunit—in fact, we witnessed the crime—And it was just a matter of watching events catch up with the killer, the jealous neurotic wife of the victim.

Jan Sterling convincingly played the lady with a special interest in men with an alcohol problem. Beverly Garland did another of her competent portrayals of tough girls. The story line was fairly thin and hung on a lost pair of eyeglasses and a woman's compulsion to salvage drunks.

It wasn't great, but if the rest of the series are on this level, Wednesday night will be an oasis in the TV summer desert.

During the past television season, the number of stock characters who are widowers was quite out of proportion to the real-life statistics.

There's been Lorne Greene of "Bonanza," Chuck Connors of "Rifleman," Leslie Nielsen of "The New Breed," Robert Sterling of

"Ichabod and Me," Fred MacMurray of "My Three Sons," Robert Young of "Window on Main Street," Robert Taylor of "The Detectives," and E. G. Marshall of "The Defenders."

But, as far as the plots go, there were only a couple of widows—Spring Byington playing house-mother to the "Laramie" boys, and Christine White of "Window on Main Street."

Next season four of the widowers will disappear with their shows—Nielsen, Sterling Young and Taylor. And onto the home screens will come three widows. Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance, CBS reports, will play a pair of man-hunting widows in Lucy's new CBS comedy series. And Loretta Young will portray a widow with seven daughters in her new weekly CBS program.

Miss Byington will still be around, although Miss White disappears with Robert Young.

Edie Adams, widow of Ernie Kovacs, has been signed by ABC to do a series of eight half-hour specials next season—a direct result of the response to her "Here's Edie" show of a few weeks back.

First show will be Sunday, Oct. 21. Recommended tonight: "Noah and the Flood," CBS, 9-10 (Eastern Daylight Time) — First performance of a new dance-drama by Igor Stravinsky, with choreography by George Balanchine for members of the New York City Ballet, and narration by Lawrence Harvey.

Buenos Aires is the largest city of Latin America.

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

CHAPTER 22

Julie Pendleton reached the paddock before Casey Jeffries, for she rode hard and took the direct route across the fields.

Someone was seated on the concrete bench, apparently waiting for her. She was surprised to recognize Lieutenant Fallon.

He held Big Blue's head while she dismounted and then he tipped his hat to her.

"I understand Casey Jeffries is on the premises, Miss Julie."

"Yes—I just left him. He'll be driving by in a moment."

Fallon nodded. "I see him coming now."

"How did you know he was here?"

"Britt saw him driving onto your road."

"Britt?"

"He seems to think Mr. Jeffries is showing too much interest in your farm—and his."

"But Casey—Mr. Jeffries—he's here by my invitation and my father's."

"Maybe so, Miss Julie," Fallon said, "but this time of year we have to check out everybody in the least suspicious. Isn't it true that Jeffries crashed the Fabian dance?"

"Well, yes, but—"

"I'll talk to him, that's all. If he has satisfactory answers, I won't bother him. However, you know what happens just before Derby Day here. Every grifter, bookmaker and gambler shows up, trailed closely by con men, pickpockets and almost every other form of criminal."

"I'm sure you'll find that Mr. Jeffries is none of those," Julie said.

"Good—I hope so."

Casey braked his car to a stop and got out. Lieutenant Fallon showed him a gold badge and promptly identified himself.

"This is strictly routine," he said, "but I'm a bit curious about you, Mr. Jeffries. Isn't it true you've been telling people you're Claude Barton's nephew?"

"Yes," Casey said casually.

"It's also a lie. Claude and I are not related."

"Lieutenant," Julie said, "Mr. Jeffries didn't know how seriously we consider such things here. I'm sure he meant no harm."

"Then Mr. Jeffries can prove it by explaining what he's doing here and where he comes from."

"I'm sorry, Lieutenant," Casey said. "I'm not obligated to tell you anything. Why didn't you check this out with Claude first?"

"Don't think I didn't try," Fallon said curtly. "But Claude Barton is an official of the Derby and he's impossible to contact."

"Then you'll have to accept me at face value," Casey said.

Julie seized his arm. "Casey, this man is a police officer. Don't you understand? If there's something you don't want me to know, why, I'll go off somewhere and you can talk to the Lieutenant in private."

"I've nothing more to hide from you than I have from the Lieutenant, Julie. But thanks for your concern."

Julie faced Fallon. "Lieutenant, I think I know Mr. Jeffries very well. I'm going to vouch for him."

"After what happened to you?" Fallon asked. "Miss Julie, I can't go along with you. Mr. Jeffries has refused to answer questions. I intend to take him to my office and have this out."

"Suits me," Casey said indifferently. "I suppose you can hold a man twenty-four hours for investigation?"

The Lieutenant nodded. "Without bail, too."

"Casey," Julie said frantically, "please tell him what he wants to know. There's just no sense to any of this."

Casey smiled and the warmth of it enveloped her. He made the situation all the more unbearable. "I appreciate your concern for me, Julie," he said, "but my friend the law isn't going to be satisfied unless he takes me in."

"You can drive your car, Mr. Jeffries," Fallon said. "I'll follow Let's go."

Julie sat down slowly on the concrete bench and suddenly began to cry.

Ira Pendleton replaced the telephone and glanced understandingly at Julie. "I'm sorry," he said. "I can't locate Lieutenant Fallon and nobody seems to know a thing about Casey."

"But they must have arrested him," Julie said. "It's been hours. He'd have called me if he were free. He wouldn't let me worry like this."

"He's a strange young man," Ira said, "but I have an idea he knows how to take care of himself."

"He's stubborn, that's all. Daddy, can't we go into town and see someone?"

"Julie, I talked to the Captain at police headquarters. If Casey had been booked, he'd know it."

"But maybe he wasn't formally charged with anything — is just being held."

"That's possible," Ira said. "If that's true, it still won't do us any good to inquire, because they simply won't tell us. The best thing to do is wait until I can locate Lieutenant Fallon."

Julie jumped up and paced the area in front of the fireplace. "I could murder Britt for this," she said. "He phoned the Lieutenant and said Casey was on our property."

"I know. You've told me three or four times already. Julie — does this young man mean so much to you? I've never seen you worry like this before."

"I've a feeling that if he's in trouble it's because of his wish to protect me. Even if he refuses to tell us a thing about himself I trust him."

"Do you love him?"

Julie stopped pacing. Her back was toward him and she didn't turn around for a long moment or two. Then he saw that her face was very thoughtful and serious.

"I do worry an awful lot over a man I only regard as a casual and new friend, don't I?"

"You certainly do," Ira said. "I don't know, Daddy. Before this happened — out in the pasture — I thought I couldn't stand the way he held onto this mystery of his. I even resented his telling me Britt wasn't going to marry me because he wouldn't permit it. I regarded him as presumptuous and arrogant — and then—"

"The young man got himself arrested and you began to worry. That's a sure sign you regard him as more than a friend."

"But I can't, I must not. I'm going to marry Britt. I've always been going to marry Britt and I'm sure I'm in love with him."

Ira shook his head sadly. "In this day and age I suppose a girl can love two men and be wholly undecided upon which to marry. I'm very glad I'm beyond that age. Things were not as complicated when I was a young man."

She sat down, feeling very tired. "I'm so confused. With the race tomorrow and the fact that we might lose after all these months when we've been so sure we'd win. And—and Britt acting like a spoiled boy and telling the police about Casey—"

"Now don't start blaming Britt. He's no fool. He either knows or guesses what Casey's attitude toward you is and if he wants to protect himself, that's also his privilege."

Why would Lorne Fabian want to hold back a good horse that could win the Kentucky Derby? Julie's father reveals the answer as the story reaches a climax here tomorrow.

Testimony Conflicts As To Dealings With Estes

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.
 WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators question Commercial Solvents president Maynard C. Wheeler today about a sharp conflict of testimony on the firm's dealings with Billie Sol Estes and a reported $4-million Estes cache in Switzerland.

Wheeler challenged at almost every point Wednesday testimony given before a Texas court of inquiry by Frank Cain, a lawyer representing a finance company to which Estes was heavily in debt.

After Wheeler read his prepared statement before the House Government Operations subcommittee, its members spent most of the session asking background questions.

Commercial Solvents sold Estes liquid fertilizer—ammonia and ammonia—and loaned him money to bankroll his grain storage operations. The Pecos, Tex., financier now is under indictment on charges of fraud, his business empire has collapsed and he says he is bankrupt.

Wheeler said that although Estes, 37, still owes Commercial Solvents $5.7 million the debt is amply secured by assignment of payments for surplus grain storage and other security.

The Agriculture Department has ordered removal of government-owned surplus grain from Estes' installations and payments have been impounded since Estes was indicted in April.

Estes was indicted on charges he sold chattel mortgages on fertilizer tanks that didn't exist.

Cain's client, Pacific Finance Corp. of Los Angeles, held $4.5 million in these mortgages.

At the Texas court of inquiry in Dallas, Cain told of attending a March 18 breakfast meeting at Estes' home with Estes and Wheeler.

Cain testified at Dallas that Estes, without drawing any comment from Wheeler, said the Commercial Solvents executive was visiting him because "they want to put me in business in Brazil."

Then, according to Cain's testimony, Wheeler said Estes had called him and told of assigning over $4 million to the Bank of Switzerland and said he had just returned from Europe where Commercial Solvents had arranged to do business with the Swiss bank.

Wheeler added, said Cain, that "If Billie gets too involved, we can always use him as a consultant in Switzerland."

Wheeler flatly denied any such conversation ever took place. He said neither Commercial Solvents nor any of its officers had any Swiss bank accounts "and if Estes or any associate of Estes has had any such account, we have no knowledge of it."

He told the subcommittee that much of Cain's testimony at Dallas was "false and defamatory."

"This attempt," Wheeler said, "to associate Commercial Solvents and/or its officers with a purpose of putting Estes into business in Brazil or of using him as a consultant in Switzerland, in furtherance of some criminal conspiracy, criminal intent, or other improper motive is slander of the most vicious kind."

Cain had also testified that at the breakfast Estes said Wheeler had put him in the fertilizer business and that Wheeler expressed his firm's intention to keep its share of the liquid fertilizer market in West Texas and added:

"If we have to, why we can step in here and take the place of Billie. We can keep those grain storage tanks full, too."

Wheeler denied saying anything about stepping in to replace Estes and said there was "no mention in my presence of my having put Estes in the ammonia business, no mention of the grain storage facilities of keeping them filled."

Wheeler also denied Cain's testimony that the Commercial Solvents president had "dropped several names" from the Agriculture Department.

However, Wheeler said it was possible that either he or Estes mentioned "the $400,000 that Commercial Solvents had just advanced him," as Cain testified.

At this time, Wheeler said, Commercial Solvents didn't know Estes was insolvent and trying to work out an arrangement with his creditors. In Dallas, Cain defended his testimony and said he would appear before the subcommittee about the week of June 25.

The House subcommittee and the Senate Investigations subcommittee is investigating Estes' dealings under government farm programs and whether influence from federal officials helped the Texan build his vast operations.

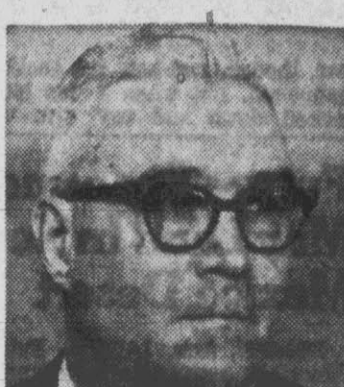

One of the allegations of favoritism was that Estes had been appointed to the National Cotton Advisory Committee, set up to advise the Agriculture Department on cotton problems.

Today the department said its records showed Estes received neither travel expenses nor the allowable $16 a day per diem expenses when he attended two meetings of the advisory committee.

The meetings were in Washington Nov. 19-23, 1961, and Feb. 11-14, 1962.

Estes was selected for the 38-member committee by Charles S. Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture, and appointed by Secretary Orville L. Freeman. Estes resigned after his arrest March 29.

The records showed that Estes and three other members indicated they did not want any money for attending the meetings and were not paid.

More Than Fifty In School Of Nursing

More than 50 freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, and four graduate nurses, from North Carolina, Virginia, and the District of Columbia, are enrolled this summer in the School of Nursing at East Carolina College.

Dean Eva Warren of the School of Nursing at East Carolina said that students are required to attend three summer terms during their four years of college work.

"The junior students are enrolled this summer term in a course in medical-surgical nursing," Dean Warren said. "The course includes principles and clinical practice in meeting health needs as they are communicated through signs and symptoms. The facilities of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital are being used for this experience."

The curriculum also includes courses in science, history, government, mathematics and English, which are required for the Bachelor of Science degree.

The School of Nursing, which began its program in 1960, is approved by the North Carolina Board of Nurse Registration and Nursing Education. Graduates are eligible for state examinations for licensure as registered nurses. Upon graduation, students are qualified for beginning positions in nursing and they will also have a background for further education and for advancement to positions of leadership.

Among area graduate nurses enrolled in the School of Nursing are Adelaide Dunn of Greenville and Roberta P. Burkley of Grifton.

Other area students include: Carol A. Cassick of Greenville Route 1; Gloria J. Crawley of Ayden; Jeanne Phillis Carr of Grifton; Margaret D. Hunevutt of Greenville; and Mary D. Smith of Greenville.

Boeing Doubts Loss Of A Bolt Caused Tragedy

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A spokesman for the Boeing Co. says the firm believes the theory that a small bolt was lost, causing the crash of a jet airliner in New York March 1, isn't supported by evidence.

The American Airlines Boeing 707 plunged into Jamaica Bay, killing 95 persons.

The Federal Aviation Agency said the bolt, which was part of the rudder mechanism, may have slipped out of place if a nut securing it fell off. The nut is held by a cotter pin, and an FAA official said the pin may have been left off by mistake.

He said information obtained from the flight recorder the plane carried produced the evidence that led to the FAA's theory, but the part of the wreckage which might prove it apparently is at the bottom of Jamaica Bay.

Boeing said it believed loss of the bolt would have made the plane snap abruptly on its back, whereas evidence indicates it rolled smoothly, although rapidly, onto its back.

A Life Sentence For Second Time

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Roy Moore, 65, Philadelphia, faced Judge Francis Shunk Brown for the second time in his life Wednesday and for the second time received a maximum sentence after being found guilty of killing someone.

In 1942, Judge Brown sentenced Moore to life imprisonment after he was found guilty of first degree murder in the stabbing death of his wife, Annie, then 31.

Police said Moore served 18 years of his life sentence and was out of prison about a year when he was involved in another stabbing. Wednesday Judge Brown sentenced Moore to 6 to 12 years on a jury conviction of voluntary manslaughter in the April 5, 1961, stabbing death of Luther Mack, 40, Philadelphia.

Severed Arm Sewn Back, Aims At A Full Recovery

BOSTON (AP)—"The first thing I'm gonna do is start exercising my arm. Then I'm gonna go down to the park and play ball."

"And if I can't do it then, I'll exercise some more."

Any ambitious Little Leaguer might say that. But it's different when it comes from Everett Knowles Jr., 12.

For "Red" Knowles' right arm was cut off by a freight train and sewed back by surgeons.

The rare operation is far from finished but doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital are cheered by progress—enough so "Red" could go home Wednesday just three weeks after his accident.

Fellow Little Leaguers swarmed around "Red" at his home in suburban Somerville. A new puppy named "Sandy"—a homecoming gift—sat beside him on the sofa. A baseball glove lay on a blanket.

"I really want to thank those doctors," the boy said. "There wasn't no other doctors in the world who could do it. They did it for me. I had the best doctors in Massachusetts—or New England."

"In the world, honey," said the boy's mother.

The talk turned to the boy's accident May 23. How did it happen?

"I was down at a bridge near the railroad tracks, just fooling around," the boy said. "I wanted to hop a train just once, just to see what it was like. I don't remember, though, just how the accident happened. But when I was hit, I looked down and my arm was hanging on by just a few threads."

Doctors said the boy told them he was riding a train and was banged against a bridge abutment.

In a daze, the boy picked himself up and walked to a nearby warehouse, holding the injured arm in place with his left hand.

The boy and his arm arrived in the operating room separately—Everett on a stretcher, the arm in a bucket of ice.

Dr. John K. Knowles, no relation, the hospital's general director, told a news conference Wednesday conditions for the rare operation were just right. He explained the patient was young with good recuperative powers, he had been brought to the hospital speedily, the arm's veins and arteries were open and the wound was such that the boy's body might not reject the arm once it had been reconnected.

The most important operation is still to come—rejoining the nerve fibres. No date has been set for this.

It's much too soon to know whether Everett will have full use of the arm.

Dr. Robert Shaw, one of the surgeons, said that if all goes well, the boy will have feeling in hand and arm, be able to pick up things "and for all we know even may be able to throw a baseball again. That remains to be seen."

Future Spacemen May Land In New Mexico Desert

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP)—Future American astronauts may land in the New Mexico desert instead of the ocean.

Dr. Russell K. Sherburne, chief scientist at White Sands Proving Grounds in New Mexico, said in an interview that as space vehicles become more sophisticated, land recovery will be preferable to water.

He said orbital vehicles hit the water at a speed of about 30 feet per second and safe ground landing could be made at 20 feet per second.

Although Sherburne did not elaborate, his reference to the New Mexico desert apparently was made because of facilities at White Sands and the wide open space of the desert.

Sherburne was here Tuesday for a lecture at Arizona State University.

Lake Titicaca, on the Peruvian-Bolivian border, is the highest lake in the world on which steamboats ply.

Infant Is Slain By Babysitter After Firing

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A 20-year-old babysitter, apparently unhappy over losing her job because of too many visits from her boy friend, told police she strangled a 14-month-old boy with a silk stocking.

Miss Rochelle Posey was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Michael Magier. She had telephoned police that she killed the child Wednesday. The boy was dead before police got him to a hospital.

"I feel sorry about it now," Miss Posey told a reporter. "I'm guilty. I don't care what happens to me."

"I didn't want to have to find another job. I knew I couldn't hold it. I got pretty upset, so I decided to take the baby's life."

Police Chief Forrest Diefendorf of Norton Village said he and two patrolmen found the child lying on a couch with a pillow over his face. A woman's silk stocking was wound tightly around his throat.

Diefendorf quoted the babysitter as saying her employer, Ruth Magier, with whom she stayed, called from work and asked if Miss Posey's boy friend was there. Told that he was, Mrs. Magier told the babysitter to order him to leave.

Mrs. Magier returned home and the boy friend was still there. She ordered him to leave, told Miss Posey it would be her last day of work there, and returned to work.

The babysitter said she took Michael from his crib, laid him on the couch and got a stocking from the bathroom.

Diefendorf quoted Miss Posey as saying she choked the baby for 20 minutes.

She was held without bond in Summit County Jail.

Mrs. Magier and her husband, Joseph, 41, were separated recently. The couple has three older children, who have been living temporarily with their grandparents.

Says Parking Meters Crooked

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Robert King High says some of Miami's parking meters are crooked and he's going to help taxpayers fight City Hall to straighten things out.

High said he personally tested meters on Biscayne Boulevard after hearing complaints from irate motorists who felt they didn't deserve $2 overtime parking tickets.

One meter High tested gave only 27 minutes for a nickel, instead of the promised 30.

"There's no telling how much money has been collected in this sneaky fashion," High said.

High is Miami's mayor.

Dallas Considers Cat Limitations

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Cat-crowded Dallas is toying with the idea of limiting four cats to each household.

Dr. J. W. Bass, city health director, confirmed Wednesday that city officials are considering such an ordinance "but this is as far as we've thought of going."

Dr. Bass said the ordinance would not include kittens. Exactly at what age a kitten becomes a cat has not been determined.

Belton P. Mouras of the humane society estimates there are 175,000 homeless cats in Dallas.

Wall St. Wizard Flees To Brazil

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street wizard Edward M. Gilbert, who has admitted unauthorized withdrawals of almost $2 million from the company he headed, has flown to extradition-proof Brazil.

Gilbert stepped off a Varig Airlines jet in Rio de Janeiro Wednesday and went into seclusion.

In Rio, officials of the International Police Agency and the U.S. Embassy said they had received no information on Gilbert. It was reported, however, that Gilbert entered Brazil with a visa valid for 30 days and that if he wanted to stay longer he would have to apply for an extension.

At Idlewild Airport in New York, Gilbert bought a one-way ticket and said he might be staying in Rio "for about six weeks," the airline said.

Gilbert, 38, who rocketed to Wall Street fame four years ago when he practically "cornered" the stock of the E. L. Bruce Co. and became its president, made company check withdrawals amounting to $1,953,000 between May 23 through June 4. It was on May 23 that the stock market started its downward plunge.

What happened to the money has not been determined.

Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan is looking into the withdrawals.

Early Tuesday night the E. L. Bruce firm, a leading manufacturer of hardwood flooring, released a statement saying Gilbert voluntarily had disclosed the unauthorized withdrawals and that he had resigned.

The company quoted Gilbert as saying his actions were directed to "the protection of an acquisition program on behalf of the corporation and, in my judgment, were in the best interests of the corporation and its stockholders."

E. L. Bruce Jr., chairman of the company, ordered a complete audit of the firm's books. Bruce, saying the withdrawals were made in the form of checks, declined to say to whom the checks were payable or how long the audit would take. However, company officials said the firm is in good financial shape. They also said it has a surety bond totaling $750,000.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—An underground nuclear explosion to learn if heavy elements can be recovered from such a blast has been scheduled for mid-1963 near Carlsbad, N.M.

The Atomic Energy Commission said Wednesday the new test, Project Cochet, would be touched off in the same potash salt dome which was used last December in the Project Gnome explosion.

Members of the Raynez Competitive Swimming team will leave for Raleigh Friday to take part in the Dixie Open Meet in the State College Pool Friday night and Saturday.

The local team is made up of boys 15-17-years-old and is coached by East Carolina's swimming coach, Ray Martinez.

Those taking part in the Raleigh meet are Russ Bartlett, Joe LeConte, Donald Pierce, Billy Brown, Jehu Taff, David Carter and Chuck Bisette.

Most of the boys entered in the meet were members of the Rose High Swimming team this past year. Pierce is the state high school backstroke champion and Brown is the freestyle champion.

All together there are 18 boys involved in the Raynez competitive swimming this summer. However, all are not entered in the Dixie Open this weekend.

On June 23 the team will host a quadrangle meet at the Raynez pool with teams from Chapel Hill, Kinston and Tarboro entered.

The Chapel Hill team, coached by Greenville's Bob Bilbro, former co-captain of the University of North Carolina team, expects to bring 50 swimmers to the Raynez event. Kinston Coach Tom Tucker plans to bring 40 contestants to the meet and Tarboro Coach Paul Godfrey has entered about 45. Tucker was a former East Carolina swimming star under Coach Martinez.

The Raynez team participated in competitive meets last summer, but this year will be their first as a host for a meet.

Other boys on the local team this summer in addition to those going to Raleigh are Ed Bartlett, Mike Aldridge, Robby Peel, Richard Pierce, Staton Martin, Scott Tabar, Lee Garcia, Robert VanVeld, Frank Longino, Terry Monroe and Tom Irons. Coach Martinez said that seats will be available for the June 23 event and noted that spectators are welcome to attend.

Rain Hinders All-Star Drills

Rain has put a damper on the practice sessions for the East-West All-Star game which is to be played at Guy Smith Stadium Friday and Saturday nights.

The players and coaches arrived here Wednesday and were able to get in a short workout before the rain halted the action Wednesday afternoon.

At press time today the teams had not been able to get out for another practice round and as a result possible starting lineups were not available.

East Carolina Coach Jim Mallory who is handling the arrangements for the annual high school contest said that he hopes the teams can get a short workout late today and two practice sessions tomorrow.

In commenting on the condition of the field Mallory noted that it drains well and if the rain stops this afternoon it should be dry enough to play on Friday night.

Mallory also said that in the event Friday's game is postponed, a doubleheader will be scheduled for Saturday night.

Allison Is Latest Hero In Twins' Rotating Cast

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bob Allison is the latest hero in the rotating cast of stars for Minnesota's surprising Twins, who again find themselves barely out of the American League lead they've been pursuing since the firing started in April.

Allison clipped Los Angeles reliever Ryne Duren for a two-run homer with two out in the eighth inning Wednesday night, powering the Twins to a come-from-behind 4-2 decision over the Angels. The victory hoisted Minnesota back to second place only 10 percentage points behind the New York Yankees, whose home game against Detroit was rained out.

Cleveland slipped back to third — but still only a half game off the pace — in a doubleheader split with Washington, winning the second game 4-1 after dropping the opener 4-2. Kansas City knocked over Chicago again, 4-3, and Don Schwall's two-hit pitching led Boston over Baltimore 4-0.

In the National League, front-running Los Angeles Dodgers beat Milwaukee, 2-1. Cincinnati shut out San Francisco 5-0. St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 6-1, and Pittsburgh beat Chicago 6-4. The New York Mets and the Colts were rained out at Houston.

Dean Chance, lined along with fellow Angel pitcher Bo Belinsky after an early-morning peccadillo, which started as advertised against the Twins and did well after being tagged for doubles by Lennie Green and Rich Rollins in the first inning. He finally was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh and Minnesota proceeded to cash in against Duren.

Minnesota reliever Ray Moore was the winner. The Angels got their two runs off Jack Kralick in the second.

Dick Donovan ran his record to 9-2 with a six-hitter for Cleveland in the second game in Washington, backed by John Romano's three-run homer in the fourth inning. The Senators won their fifth in a row in the opener as Claude Osteen and Steve Hamilton collaborated to hold the Indians to four hits.

Pedro Ramos lost the first game and Dave Stenhouse was the loser in the second.

Schwall showed the form that made him a 15-game winner and AL rookie of the year last season, handcuffing the Orioles in the wind and drizzle at Bosox's Fenway Park. Boston collected six of its eight hits and all four of its runs against Chuck Estrada, now 3-8.

The Athletics topped the White Sox with a two-run rally in the seventh.

Ed Rakow got the pitching victory with solid relief from Gordon Jones. The loss went to John Buzhardt.

Dupas Training For Griffith

MANDEVILLE, La. (AP)—Fortified with an ax and a healthy set of blisters, Ralph Dupas is carefully working on his plan to lift the world's welterweight title from Emile Griffith next month.

The 26-year-old New Orleans boxer doesn't figure he'll need the ax when he steps into the ring against Griffith at Las Vegas, Nev., on July 13. But if he socks the New York champion with the same gusto he's been attacking more than one cord of wood, it's a pretty good bet he'll get what he wants, the title.

Dupas has been working at a camp near here for several days. Roadwork along the lake, long sessions with the body bag and the ax have been the daily routine.

Nobody Trying Harder To Win Open Than Player

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, bold and confident, is a 5-1 favorite in the 62nd U.S. Open golf championship beginning today but no one will be trying harder to win than Gary Player.

"When I started out as a professional golfer I set as my goal winning the British Open, and your Masters and Open championships," the South African said today while awaiting the first round over the rain-softened Oakmont Country Club course.

"If and when I win the U.S. Open, I'll feel I've achieved what I set out to do."

Player, now 26, achieved his first major championship — the British Open — in 1959. He won the Masters championship at Augusta in 1961, so he has step three—the U.S. Open—ahead of him. Working against him is the fact that no foreign player has won the Open since Ted Ray in 1920.

Gary was among the late first round starters teeing off with PGA champion Jerry Barber at 1:30 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time).

Player had some criticism of the 6,894-yard, par 36-35-71 Oakmont course earlier in the week, particularly the furrowed sand traps and a couple of holes on which you must hit a fairway shot from a downhill lie to a heavily-trapped green that slants away from you.

But he toned down his impressions after Wednesday's drening rain, which caused officials of the U.S. Golf Association to close the course to keep it in shape for today's start.

There are 150 starters for the 62nd edition of America's prestige tournament, being held for the fourth time at Oakmont, but the pre-tournament talk has narrowed down to just a handful, including Palmer and Player along with Jack Nicklaus, defending champion Gene Littler, and the 1959 Open champion, Billy Casper.

Stasavich Has Recruited 19 Players So Far

East Carolina College Head Football Coach Clarence Stasavich has announced that 19 boys have been recruited for the fall term and that he is now negotiating with about 20 additional prospects.

The new head coach also noted that since he started his recruiting program over 400 boys have been contacted and the list has been cut to 75.

Of the 20 prospects Stasavich is negotiating with now, 10 are fairly well committed and are well along the way to being admitted, the coach noted.

Stasavich added that during the next two months he hopes to contact an additional 75 boys and he hopes to get at least five of them.

"A large number of these boys will participate in football without any grant and those receiving grants will vary from $150 to a full grant. We have offered very few full grants," Stasavich said.

In commenting on the present varsity players the coach noted that all but a few should be available this fall. However, he said, "A few weeks ago I was concerned about losing 30 per cent of our varsity football team because of academic deficiencies. We will lose a few, but it won't be as bad as I originally anticipated."

Stasavich also said that the tickets for the 1962 games have been ordered and should be ready in a few weeks. They are being printed so they can be used in the present stadium or Ficklen Stadium.

English Gain Track Victory

LONDON (AP)—A 20-year-old Oxford sprinter provided the spark as Oxford-Cambridge ran off from Cornell-Pennsylvania in the latest renewal of the Anglo-American track and field series.

The English squad won 11 events to 4 at White City Stadium Wednesday, with team captain Adrian Metcalfe setting meet records in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and helping establish a meet mark in the 440 relay.

By winning, the English universities evened the series with American schools at 19 victories each, with two ties.

Ohio Basketball Star Signed By Cleveland

By LARRY FRIEDMAN
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Will John (Hondo) Havlicek of Ohio State, one of the nation's greatest defensive basketball players, be able to switch his talents successfully to the rugged National Football League as a pass-catcher?

The Cleveland Browns, who signed the 6-foot-5 Havlicek on Wednesday feel he has a great future, although he hasn't played a football game for almost five years.

"The boy has great hands, fine speed and great coordination," said Coach Paul Brown. "In addition, he's quick mentally and there's little doubt in my mind that he has all the equipment to become a fine professional football player."

Havlicek, 22, said he passed up good offers from two champions—the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association and the Cleveland Pipers of the American Basketball League—because "I want to find out what I can do in football."

The Browns drafted Havlicek in the seventh round last December.

He saw his first pro grid game here in November and told Brown: "I'd like to try football if you're interested in me."

Havlicek already had received overtures from the Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL and the Montreal Alouettes. Brown said he talked with Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes and other Buckeye coaches about Havlicek.

"They all told us Havlicek was a tremendous athlete, probably the best all-around boy on the campus," Brown said.

Brown and club president Art Modell declined to state the amount of the contract, but both stressed the 205-pounder must make the squad on merit in training camp along with other players. He has no guarantee against being cut.

Junior Tennis Resumes Today

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—The rain-plagued Southern Junior and Boys tennis tournament was to continue here today after third round play was completed in both the junior and boys division Wednesday.

Top seeded Mickey Schad of Louisville, Ky. defeated Jack Jackson of Tuscaloosa, Ala., 5-7, 6-4, 6-4. Schad had his hands full with Jackson who put up stout opposition through each of the three sets.

Rain halted play Wednesday morning and kept the courts clear all Tuesday.

Other juniors advancing to today's quarterfinals were Eddie Carrell, No. 6, of Birmingham, Ala., who beat Hugh Haley of Atlanta, 6-1, 6-3 and Jackie Cooper, the defending champ from Louisville, seeded No. 3, who beat George Connell, 6-2, 6-2.

Seventh seeded John Pickens of Tuscaloosa beat George Meuler of Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-2.

Pedro Rossello, of Puerto Rico, ranked No. 4, beat Lee Kantrow of Baton Rouge, La., 8-6, 3-6, 6-3. Unseeded Ronnie Rothenberter of Puerto Rico beat eighth-seeded Frank Lamothe of New Orleans 6-4, 2-6, 8-6.

Fishermen Wait Out The Weather

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—Deep sea fishing enthusiasts awaited winds to calm today so that the International Blue Marlin fishing tournament could get underway.

Members of 16 fishing clubs stayed ashore Wednesday when the start of the tournament was postponed because of south-southwest winds of 20 to 24 knots.

Weather forecasts said there would be northeast winds of about the same velocity today.

Try To Rescind Sale Of Reds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A spokesman for the Ohio Attorney General said Wednesday night his office is prepared to try to rescind the sale of the Cincinnati Reds baseball club to a syndicate headed by William O. DeWitt last March 23. He said court action may be instituted by the end of this week.

Ted Saker, first assistant to Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy, said the move to rescind the sale will be made "whether there is any other buyer in sight or not."

Saker said investigation of the sale to the DeWitt interests by the Crosley Foundation "were not very advantageous." DeWitt was president of the club under the foundation ownership before the sale.

Powell Crosley Jr. willed the National League champion ball club to the foundation with the expressed desire that the club remain in Cincinnati. DeWitt, in a recent statement, guaranteed the Reds will stay in the city for at least five years.

A syndicate headed by Joseph Rippe of Cincinnati opened the question on the sale of the Reds recently when he asserted his group earlier had offered a higher price ($3.5 million vs $4.6 million) for the club than that eventually paid by the DeWitt group.

Braves Defeated By Los Angeles 2-1

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
It is not likely that Warren Spahn of the Braves will ever ask plaintively: "What do you have to do to win a game?" Since he has won 315 over the years, he knows the answer if any one does.

But he has a right to ask, anyway.

Spahn, who at 41 still shows only small signs of his age, set the Los Angeles Dodgers down with two runs in the eight innings he worked before departing for a pinch batter Wednesday night, but his Milwaukee mates got only one off Sandy Koufax, and the ancient southpaw dropped his fifth one-run decision of the year 2-1.

It was Spahn's second straight one run loss and his second of the year by a 2-1 score. It left him with a 6-7 season mark.

The win opened a two game National League lead for the Dodgers over the San Francisco Giants who could do almost nothing with Bob Purkey of the Cincinnati Reds. He beat them 5-0 on three hits.

The third place Pittsburgh Pirates feasted on the Chicago Cubs 6-4 for their fifth straight victory, and the St. Louis Cardinals romped over the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1.

The New York Mets-Houston game in the Texas city was rained out.

In the American League, the Minnesota Twins pushed back into a virtual tie for the lead by defeating the Los Angeles Angels 4-2. Cleveland split a two-night doubleheader with Washington, losing the first 4-2 and winning the second 4-1. Kansas City edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and the Boston Red Sox topped Baltimore 4-0. The New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers were rained out.

Koufax won his own game with his first major league home run in the fifth. A solo clout, it provided the deciding run, after the Dodgers got one in the second. Roy McMillan hit a homer in the sixth for the Braves' only marker.

The fireballing Los Angeles left-hander struck out six, a low total for him, and walked two. He gave up only three hits, and twice worked out of jams with men on third and one out. The win made him 9-2.

Spahn struck out seven, walked only one and three of the seven hits he allowed were bunts. Purkey threw a no-hitter at the normally potent Giants until Felipe Alou doubled with two out in the seventh, and gave only two more hits the rest of the way. The Reds got two runs in the fourth, they added one in the fifth and two in the sixth. Jack Sanford (6-6) took the loss.

Reliever Elroy Face, who has worked in four of the five straight Pirate wins, came on to retire the last four Cubs and save the win for Alvin McBean (6-3). A three-run blast by Bill Virdon broke a 2-2 deadlock in the sixth and tagged Cal Koonce (4-2) with the loss.

The Cardinals concluded a 9-1 home stand, as Bob Gibson struck out 12 Phillies and ran his record to 8-4. Dennis Bennett (2-2) lost it.

The former West Virginia University head coach died in St. Clair Memorial Hospital Wednesday night of a heart ailment. Lewis had been in critical condition since his hospitalization June 4.

At the time of his death, Lewis was personnel director and scout of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

He had played with the New York Giants and Cleveland Rams and in 1938, at 27, was named head coach of the Rams.

His West Virginia teams compiled an over-all record of 58-38-2 and had winning seasons for six straight seasons from 1952 through 1957. The 1953 team played in the Sugar Bowl.

May Hold Our Own Against Common Mart

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States has a good chance of holding its own against the much vaunted European Common Market in any world trade contest.

This optimistic reassurance of many worried American manufacturers—and of government officials handling finance and trade—is expressed today by economists of the Chase National Bank, New York. But they quickly add a big "if."

The United States can hold its own—that is, halt the sharp percentage loss of world trade suffered in recent years, with its close bearing on the strength of the dollar and the outflow of gold—if production costs can be held in line with productivity gains.

The bank economists stress that mere comparison of American and European wage scales isn't the answer to the problem.

In a report on Western Europe as a competitor, the bank economists say:

"The simple relationship between U.S. and European wage rates—how long it will take Common Market wages to catch up with American—is less important than how completely wage increases in each economy are offset by increases in productivity—whether unit labor costs move up, or down, or remain the same."

American manufacturers point out that in the 1950s, the period of the fast growth of the European industry, the Common Market's biggest advantage was unit labor costs. Hourly wages plus fringe benefits averaged about one-third of the levels in similar U.S. industries.

Offsetting this in large degree was higher American productivity—output per manhour—but total production costs per unit were still lower in Europe.

The bank says that from 1953 to 1958 hourly wage scales rose faster in the United States than did productivity.

"Since 1958, however, U.S. wages and productivity have risen at about the same rate, while European wages have outstripped productivity gains," it adds.

Some American manufacturers have been able to compete successfully all along, especially in those industries where innovation, engineering and design are most important.

The spectacular gains by Western Europe and Japan in the 1950s, moreover, have brought them back to roughly the share of world markets held before World War II.

Total American exports are much higher today than before the war; it's the U.S. percentage of the world market that has changed. But this drop in percentages from the 1948 peak of 44 per cent to 27 per cent is what worries American industrialists and government officials alike.

The bank thinks the line can now be held—if production unit costs can be brought to a level more in balance with foreign competition. And it sees a good chance of that.

Narcotics Agent Assault Victim

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Richard M. Patch, 30, a federal narcotics undercover agent, was stabbed and slugged as he stepped into his car Wednesday to drive from a narrow alleyway leading through a Negro slum area.

Patch has been in Fayetteville since Monday, and was believed to be working on a narcotics case. Sheriff W. G. Clark said the attack could have been a simple robbery attempt, or connected with the narcotics investigation.

Patch, who was reported in satisfactory condition in a hospital, was stabbed in the right shoulder, apparently with an ice pick, by a person believed to have been hiding in the rear of his car. Patch managed to pull a pistol. He was hit on the side of the head as his gun discharged. The bullet blasted a hole in the right rear window, but did not hit anyone.

Patch smashed a multimillion-dollar marijuana ring in eastern North Carolina several years ago. He also was one of two agents who disguised themselves as members of a crime syndicate and captured a Ft. Bragg soldier, his wife, and two others on heroin charge.

Killer Sent To Mental Hospital

PITTSBURGH (AP)—William Pola, 24, who went berserk and fatally shot a psychiatrist June 1, was ordered transferred Wednesday to the Fairview State Hospital for the criminally insane.

Pola, of Wilmerding, shot Dr. Daniel Thaw at the Leech Farm Veterans Administration Hospital where he was being treated as an out-patient.

He then held off police in a two-hour gun battle before being subdued by tear gas. He has been under observation at St. Francis General Hospital since his capture.

Family Killed, So Is Pet Dog

Deadlocked Geneva Disarmament Talks Recess

By DORIAN FALK
GENEVA (AP)—The 17-nation disarmament conference starts a month-long summer recess today with the Soviet Union and the Western powers still deadlocked on all key issues after three months of negotiations. Western delegates took a gloomy view of the first phase of the conference of Western, Communist and nonaligned nations. "I feel the negotiations have not been entirely useless," said one diplomat, "but on substantial mat-

U.S. Working To Avoid Pro-Red Control In Laos

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is working to head off a situation that would put pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong in temporary control of Laos' new coalition government late this month. The two other members of the three-man regime are scheduled to be out of the country, thus leaving the Red prince at the helm during the early pangs of the effort to turn the war-shattered little kingdom into a neutral nation. U.S. officials said that at the very least they consider it bad psychology to leave command—even if only nominal—in the hands of just one member of the ruling group at this budding stage of the coalition. As a result, the United States is reported to be urging that the neutralist premier designate, Prince Souvanna Phouma, head Laos' delegation to a 14-nation Geneva conference late this month. The conference is to ratify an agreement pledging Laos to neutrality in the cold war. The third member of the Laotian triumvirate, pro-Western Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, is slated to lead his country's delegation to Switzerland June 24 or 25, news-ters we have achieved absolutely nothing." The Westerners were hopeful the conference at least had served to explain some of the complexities of world disarmament to the eight nonaligned nations who joined the East-West negotiations here last March. The eight—Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden and the United Arab Republic—have no nuclear weapons, no large armies and no far-reaching military treaty obligations. Thus they had little concept of the problems that complete disarmament would pose for a major power. The West and the Communist bloc appeared as far apart as ever on two key issues—international controls and an international police force to keep the peace in a disarmed world. Both the United States and the Soviet Union advanced plans for effective verification of disarmament measures by international inspectors and for a watchdog force to replace national armies after disarmament. The Western powers—the United States, Britain, Canada and Italy—claim the Soviet Union is paying only lip service to the two concepts. They say Soviet control arrangements are watered down to prevent any reliable disarmament verification. The West insists the Soviet version of a peace force would be virtually ineoperative and too weak to protect any country from a potential aggressor secretly remaining in violation of a disarmament accord. Western diplomats claim the negotiations have made clear that the Soviet Union considers disarmament only a possible instrument to further the professed Communist goal of world domination. "The Soviets are trying to get us to disarm as quickly as possible while retaining as much of their own military strength as they can," said one Westerner. A Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valeran Zorin, backed by delegates from Poland, Romania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia, raised more than two thirds of the usual Soviet objections to the Western disarmament control demands. Diplomats say the nonaligned countries have avoided getting involved in any of the East-West disputes over disarmament or the proposed ban on nuclear weapon testing. They have been playing a passive role despite their continued appeals to the two power blocs to resolve their differences. But the eight were deeply shocked when Zorin recently repudiated his government's agreement to a joint American-Soviet declaration condemning war propaganda. Meanwhile, one agreement was hammered out separately by the 23-nation U.N. space conference. It had nothing to do with military projects. The U.N. conference's scientific and technical subcommittee ended its work Wednesday with agreement on a worldwide technical program under U.N. auspices for peaceful exploration of outer space. The plan—which must be ratified by the full committee—provides for an exchange of scientific data, encourages international space research and training projects and provides for establishment of international ranges near the equator for the launching of rockets to collect scientific data from the belt 20 to 120 miles above the earth, between the operational altitudes of balloons and satellites. Projects likely to be pushed include a survey of the earth's magnetic field, rocket and polar cat experiments, space communications, weather satellites and a program for the "international year of the quiet sun" in 1963-64. This will be a period of minimum solar activity permitting more accurate measurements in the earth's space environment. Another subcommittee is continuing a study of the legal aspects of peaceful space exploration.

Movie Actors Head For Summer Stock Riches

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the season when the gold rush begins—the eastward movement of Hollywood names to mine the riches to be found in summer theaters. All over town players are packing their greasestrip and fancy duds and setting out along the money trails on the Atlantic seaboard and through the Midwest. Summer theaters are a relatively new bonanza for top performers. For decades they were a source of revenue for more or less faded movie names who could attract a bit of change in a revival of "Our Town" or "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Now $87,000 a week in the same theater attracts bigtime names. Donald O'Connor is one. He is taking out his own concert show for a month's tour. "I can't resist the money," he said. But, he added, there are other compensations. "This is a whole new phase of show business, and I want to be a part of it," he said. "It should be very exciting. I'll be appearing in the round—with audiences on all sides. It's going to be a challenge. "The nice thing about it is the intimacy. One of the theaters I'll play has 3,600 seats, but no more than 16 rows. That means that nobody will be too far away from the stage to miss a feeling of closeness to the performance. The money will be warming, too. There's no way to estimate how much Donald will earn, since he hasn't figured out the expenses of the show which he will produce. But he remarked that last year Harry Belafonte was able to draw $87,000 a week in the same theater before expenses. "It's really like my old vaudeville days, except that I'll be doing the whole show instead of one act," said Donald. He spent most of his boyhood—from 1925, the year of his birth, until 1941—in vaudeville. The family act never played New York's Palace because child labor laws prevented it.

Plan Two More Flights In Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two more manned orbital flights around the earth are planned this year by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., associate director of NASA, told the Senate Space Committee Wednesday that plans call for both flights to be three-orbit affairs similar to those made by astronauts John H. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter.

"If we feel we have all the information we need, and if we think it will be safe, we will try for longer flights," he added.

Also scheduled this year, Seamans said, is another try at obtaining television pictures of the moon and landing an instrument package on the moon's surface. The United States has failed in eight attempts to launch a successful shot at the moon, although the last one, in April, achieved a landing on the far side of the moon.

Another project planned this

WASHINGTON AP—Names for three more Polaris submarines were announced Wednesday by the Navy.

The name of Ulysses S. Grant, leader of the Union Army and 18th president of the United States was chosen for a submarine being built at the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp., Groton, Conn.

Another, under construction at the Mare Island, Calif., Naval Shipyard, was named for Lt. Gen. Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson, the Confederacy's great general who died in the battle of Chancellorsville.

The name of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, whose tactics outsmarted the British on Revolutionary War battlefields, was assigned to the third submarine, being built at the Portsmouth, N.H., Navy Yard.

NEW YORK (AP) — In another up-and-down stock market session, prices were mixed in heavy trading early this afternoon.

Showing how little change there was on balance, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at 212.40 with industrials down .30, rails up .20 and utilities off .10.

"It's pretty much like yesterday," said one broker, "a decline at the start, a rally, then another decline."

Gloom was thick at the start; the Dow Jones industrial average set a new 1962 closing low Wednesday. However, prices were supported once again by a rush of buying at the reduced prices.

Tobacco held a string of plus signs, but the pattern was scrambled in most other groups.

As a sample of the stock action, IBM dipped fractionally to a new yearly low at the start, spurred to show a net gain of more than 9, weakened to a net loss exceeding 5 points, cut its loss to a fraction and then dipped about 3.

Blue chips wobbled continuously between gains and losses. AT&T traded barely even in early afternoon. Du Pont was down about 4 at the start, showed a fractional net rise later, then sank to a net loss exceeding 2.

General Motors was a fractional loser and Chrysler eased. Ford, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard traded about unchanged.

Losses of around a point were shown by Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical and North American Aviation.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 2.51 at 571.53. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were generally higher in fairly active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds showed some losses in quiet trading.

Theory Raised Alcatraz Escapes Had Assistance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The three convicts who fled Alcatraz Island prison in San Francisco Bay may have had outside help, it was reported today.

The San Francisco Examiner said it has learned from a reliable source that the FBI is working on the theory the three men made it over the cold, swirling waters to the mainland and is checking on recent visitors to the prison.

A widening search by government agents is strengthening speculation the three—John Anglin, 32, his brother, Clarence, 31, and Frank Morris, 35—may have engineered the first successful escape from the 28-year-old maximum security institution.

Since the disappearance was discovered early Tuesday, heavily armed soldiers, now numbering 200, have been combing Angel Island in the possibility the convicts may have landed there on a driftwood raft in their flight from Alcatraz 1 1/2 miles to the south. Alcatraz is 1 1/2 miles north of the San Francisco shoreline.

A fourth convict was reported in on the escape plot but didn't flee. He was identified as Allen Clayton West of Atlanta, Ga. The four used spoons to chisel loose ventilator covers leading to a service passage behind their cells.

From there the Anglin brothers and Morris climbed up a pipe, over a roof and a fence and then down to the water's edge.

Warden Olin Blackwell said Tuesday he didn't believe the men could have made it to freedom by swimming without aid.

At a news conference Wednesday, Fred Wilkinson, assistant federal director of prisons, revealed that authorities now believe that Morris and the Anglin brothers are off the island.

Named Winners In Talent Show

Winners of the annual talent show of M.W.A. Junior Camp No. 13885 this year were Gayle Carmon, Jackie Carmon, Landy Spain and the Turner Sisters, it was announced today.

The talent show was presented at the yearly weiner roast, held at Elm Street Park on Monday. Talent winners received cash awards.

Gayle Carmon and Jackie Carmon imitated ball playing, while Landy Spain imitated Duranite. The Turner Sisters did a play dance.

Mrs. Grace Garner and Mrs. Grace Turner were in charge of the weiner and marshmallow roast.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. "Doc" Cannon on July 9 at 7 p.m. for the annual ice cream party and tackle show.

Will Hear Talk On Recreation

AYDEN — Ayden Recreation Director Frank Hoffman will present a program on summer recreation activities before the Ayden Rotary Club, meeting tonight in the Community Building.

He will be presented by Jim Abernathy, who is in charge of the program.

Bob Booth presented last week's program on criminal law enforcement and how it can be improved. Gwynn Merritt presided and guest for the evening was Dr. Elliott Dixon, presented by Jack Quinerly.

The motel will be equipped with a swimming pool and a play area. Each room will have television, music, shower and bath and will be "elegantly furnished," White said.

Restaurant facilities will be adequate to serve 250 persons and will include private meeting rooms, according to the president. The restaurant and an accompanying snack bar will be operated by the Rio Restaurant of Rocky Mount. Rio's manager is John W. Dickens of Rocky Mount.

The new service station will be under the general management of Carl Hicks' Farmers Oil Co. of Walsenburg, G-W-D announced.

Rooney Lost His Money, But Not All His Friends

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mickey Rooney is finding that he doesn't lose his friends as easily as he lost his money.

They began rallying to his aid after he filed for bankruptcy Tuesday. He claims he's broke and $464,914 in debt.

One of Rooney's creditors, attorney Robert A. Neeb of Los Angeles, said the 39-year-old actor could forget a $5,500 bill. Neeb represented Rooney's fourth wife, Elaine, in her divorce suit.

"I hope you will look upon me as a friend and not as a claimant. And I want you to take this letter as a waiver of all sums owed by you to me," Neeb wrote Rooney.

He said he would ask other creditors to join him in waiving their claims.

Rooney reportedly has earned $12 million in 30 years of show business. He blames his financial condition on bad counsel and bad judgment.

$15,000 Damages By Little Snake

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A chicken snake apparently looking for birds' nests crawled into a voltage regulator at an electric substation near here Wednesday night. This set off a minor explosion, a fire which damaged the voltage regulator and two others at loss estimated at $15,000, and left 1,320 families without electricity for three hours.

Claxton Sutton, staff assistant at the Tri-County Electric Membership Corp., said it was the third time in three years that snakes have caused short circuits in substations of the system.

Homes in the Rosewood, Fremont, Hamlet, Grantham and Kenly areas were affected Wednesday night.

Funeral On Friday For J. Joseph Cooke

Mr. J. Joseph Cooke, 53, died at Beaufort County Hospital in Washington Wednesday night at 10:35. He had been in failing health for three years. Funeral services will be conducted at the home in Chocowinity Friday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. Robert B. Crawford, pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Cooke was born and reared at Fountain and was married to Miss Erma Lee Dixon of Greenville in 1936. He was employed by Quinn-Miller & Stroud Furniture Company in Greenville until 1940 when he moved to Norfolk, Virginia, living there until 1946 when he moved to Chocowinity, where he had operated a general store and was a farmer.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. O. Jack Dison of Norfolk, Va.; a grandson; his mother, Mrs. Geneva Cooke of Hampton, Va.; two brothers, W. James Cooke of Norfolk, Va. and Walter R. Cooke of Hampton, Va.; and a sister, Mrs. Harvey M. Curet of Hampton, Va.

Utilities Buy Three Trucks

Three trucks have been purchased by Greenville Utilities Commission through competitive bidding.

Director Leonard Bloxam said a GMC tractor for a Utilities trailer was purchased from Stafford Oldsmobile Co. for $7,362.39.

Other bids were: White Chevrolet Co., $6,300; Greenville Equipment Co., $7,398.18 and Jenkins Motor Co., $8,295.73. The Chevrolet did not meet specifications and the three unsuccessful bids included trade-in of the old tractor while Stafford's did not.

Two one-half ton pick-up trucks were purchased from Greenville Equipment Co. for $2,857.66 including trade-in of the old vehicles.

Other bids received were: White Chevrolet, $2,950; Stafford Oldsmobile, $3,200; Jenkins Motor Co., $3,427.94.

The units to be purchased by Greenville Equipment are International.

Returns After 2-Week Duty

Dr. Alvin A. Fahrner, faculty member of the Department of Social Studies at East Carolina College, has just returned to the campus after two weeks of active duty for training with the U.S. Navy in Charleston, S.C.

He has completed 22 years of service in the Naval Reserve, in which he now holds the rank of captain. He is currently affiliated with Naval Reserve Composite Company 6-26 in Greenville.

Two Couples At Kiwanis Session

Two Greenville couples were attending the 47th annual convention of Kiwanis International in Denver, Colo., that convened Sunday and was scheduled to adjourn today.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. John Barnhill and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rawl. Barnhill is governor of the Carolinas District of Kiwanis and Rawl is president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Held at Denver's City Auditorium, the convention attracted about 15,000 persons and was described as the largest such affair in the history of Kiwanis International.

Begins Series Of Art Shows

An exhibition of oil paintings by James Curtis Arledge of Kinston now hung in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl Building, at East Carolina College, is the first of a series of art shows by seniors and others to be presented during the 1962 Summer Term by the college Department of Art.

The current exhibition will continue through June 25 and is open to the public.

Included in Mr. Arledge's senior exhibitions, are eleven paintings, eight of which are figure studies.
