Nuclear Testing Force Is Ready For Biggest Blast

HONOLULU (AP)—The U.S. nuclear testing force made ready today to fire its highest and biggest blast over the Pacific after dark tonight—about dawn Tuesday in the eastern United States.

It was scheduled for firing between 11 p.m. tonight—4 a.m. Tuesday EST—and 2:30 a.m. Tuesday—7:30 a.m. EST.

Scientists say communications throughout the Pacific will be disrupted for almost two days after the shot, 50 to 500 times as powerful as the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima. It will be exploded some 200 miles above the Pacific.

Goldberg Renews Airline Peace Try

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg opened new peace talks today aimed at averting a threatened flight engineers' strike Tuesday afternoon on Trans World Airlines.

At Goldberg's request the Air Line Pilots Association, rival to the flight engineers in a dispute over jet plane cockpit jobs, sent along a team of negotiators.

The 20th announced detonation in the current series in the Pacific was exploded Sunday in the area of Christmas Island, some 1,200 miles south of Honolulu. It was an intermediate-range device of a force equal to that of 20,000 to one million tons of TNT.

Skyscraper Dorm Seen For ECC

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer If plans materialize as expected, East Carolina College will soon own Greenville's tallest building—a seven-story dormitory for women on the school's near-future construction schedule.

The planned "skyscraper" by Greenville Standards is to be erected on pilings driven into the wooded hillside just west of Garrett Dormitory for women on the western fringe of ECC's original campus.

Duncan said present specifications call for the seven floor housing unit, to be built of concrete and steel, to accommodate 404 women students. Involved in the college's decision to build the tall dorm, Duncan said, included these factors:

Kenneth Whichard, blood program chairman for Pitt, today issued an appeal to residents of the Farmville and Greenville areas to give enough blood to end a successful year. He has asked those who are unable to give blood themselves to have someone give in their places.

The bloodmobile will visit Farmville at the National Guard Armory on Tuesday, June 26, from 12 noon until 6 p.m. The next day, Wednesday, it will move to Greenville at the Moose Lodge and will be stationed there from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Written Agreement Would Help

Now that possible sites in Bladen and Pender Counties have been ruled out as possible Air Force practice ranges, eyes again are turned to Hyde County.

If Air Force officials are able to make firm agreements with the State Wildlife Resources Commission or some other comparable state agency to assure safeguards of wildlife in the Lake Mattamuskeet area, they will find much less opposition to their proposed practice range than now exists.

Air Force officials at a press conference in Greenville several days ago said their agency is prepared to forego use of the proposed range for a period of up to three months each year during the time when the heaviest concentration of waterfowl is in the Lake Mattamuskeet area. They also asserted that the Air Force will see that use of the range for practice by its planes will not in any way be harmful to the ducks and geese which flock to this major wintering ground on the Atlantic flyway. Further, they said, they will be governed by opinions of wildlife experts in determining what use should be made of the range when waterfowl are in the Mattamuskeet area.

The location of commercial airways and other practice ranges for use by military in Eastern Carolina, plus the fact that these ranges already are used to capacity by other planes, severely limits possible locations for a new range to be used by planes from Seymour Johnson base. According to Air Force spokesmen, the proposed range is the only location which is practical for consideration for its use.

It is generally recognized, we believe, that the Air Force faces a critical problem in finding a suitable site for a practice range which obviously is needed. Though many sportsmen have expressed opposition to the location the Air Force has chosen for its range in Hyde County, this does not stem from a desire to prevent the Air Force from having a range in this section. Rather it stems from a sincere desire to see that the great natural asset at Lake Mattamuskeet is not injured as a result of the location of a practice range.

An agreement in writing between the Air Force and the Wildlife Resources Commission to safeguard against possible harmful effects upon wildlife in the Mattamuskeet area would ease the minds of thousands of people throughout North Carolina who do not want to take any chance that the fabulous wintering grounds for waterfowl in Hyde County might be ruined.

Narrow Victory Giving President Debt Boost

It was a narrow victory for President Kennedy, but a major one that gave approval to an $8 billion increase in the national debt limit.

In spite of voiced opposition to the measure proposed by the administration, its approval fitted nicely into the pattern which has been established for a decade or more. There are outcries against increasing the ceiling on the national debt almost every time Congress meets, but in the final analysis the ceiling is upped, the term "temporary" is attached, and things roll merrily along.

It has become almost routine for Congress to debate the matter, then go along with the administration recommendation. Perhaps it is the routine manner in which the debt ceiling has been consistently upped that causes us almost as much concern as the staggering height of the debt ceiling.

Is congressional discussion of the matter every year or so primarily for public consumption? Has Congress really put its mind to a serious study of the federal government's debt situation to determine how high the ceiling might go or what positive steps might be taken to lower — rather than raise — the ceiling?

Sooner or later the federal government will arrive at the point where it is unwise and unsound to push the debt ceiling higher. Indeed many citizens contend this point already has been reached. The big question is whether Congress will recognize this point when it comes, if it already has not been reached. Will Congress hold the line against increasing the federal debt beyond the danger point, or will the routine of upping the limit have become such a habit that it will be almost automatic?

Tax Reform Not A Fresh Topic

By RALPH ROBEY

Much ado has been made over the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Dillon on tax reform. Newspapers have given it top space and Washington special letters have been having a field day.

The Dillon statement was contained in a speech he made to the New York Financial Writers Association. All he said was that the President will propose a "top-to-bottom" lowering of income tax rates for action by the Congress next year. No details of any kind were given. President Kennedy has confirmed the Dillon prediction but he used only the most general terms.

Now there is nothing really new about this. For months there has been talk and discussion in Washington about what the President would recommend in the way of tax reform for next year. There has been no question that an overall bill of some kind was on its way for 1963. But no one yet knows what changes are going to be suggested — not even anyone within the Administration.

On the one side are those who believe that all reduction of tax rates should be for the low income brackets. The reasoning back of this point of view is that these individuals would spend the money thus saved on taxes, and this would give the economic system an upward thrust. This is the purchasing power school and many labor union leaders and some well-known economists have been preaching this theory for years.

On the other side are those who believe that our lack today is not primarily purchasing power, but is more a shortage of venture capital. This group does not oppose a tax reduction for those in the lower income groups, but it insists that percentage-wise the upper brackets must get a larger reduction. The argument back of this conclusion is that venture capital must come largely from those in the middle and higher income groups. Others may save a large amount in the aggregate. But their savings need more protection than is possible in funds used for starting a new business, or expanding an established firm through common stock. Such protection is obtained by deposits in savings banks, by purchases of good bonds, and so forth. Most business men and conservative economists belong to this school.

Then there is still a third group, and it is a large one. It holds that there should be no tax reduction until there is a surplus in the budget of the federal government, and that debt reduction is more important than tax reform. This was the opinion of the Eisenhower administration, and the same view is held by many members of the Congress, both Republicans and Democrats. These persons are opposed to governmental deficits, and they have not been convinced that sound tax-rate reform will result in larger revenues after the passage of a little time.

The final group that must be mentioned believes that we must have something along the lines of the Herlong-Baker bill. This is an extremely broad five-year tax-rate-reform program, and in our judgment it is the best suggestion in this field that has been offered in many years.

Under this bill personal income tax rates would be reduced by a stipulated amount for each of five consecutive years. The lowest bracket would be lowered from 20 to 15 percent, and all the brackets above would also be lowered. The top rate now is 91 percent, and by the end of the program this would be brought down to 47 percent. The corporate tax rate would be reduced one percentage point a year, and at the end of the period also would be 47 percent. There would be changes in the taxing of capital gains, depreciation charges would be reformed and increased, and gift and estate taxes would be adjusted in the new income tax rates.

If President Kennedy would recommend at least the principles of the Herlong-Baker bill, it would be a great step forward.

Lessons Of Experience

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

To be told, at this late date, that we shall return to the Keynesian concept of planned deficit spending and to tax cutting without balancing the budget, is discouraging because one is expected to learn by experience and experience is against any such program. President Kennedy has heretofore not given the impression that he favored deficit financing.

It is unfortunate that President Kennedy in his Yale speech gave the country this dose of Milton. We do not need to have our nerves quieted; we need to be stimulated so that we can move forward. And the economy of this country cannot move forward unless drastic steps are taken in specific directions:

1. Government spending needs to be cut to the bone, because there is no honest money available for wasteful expenditures; 2. Foreign aid must be cut to the bone because we are running out of funds to aid countries which do not need aid and do not know how to use our aid; 3. Taxes must be cut immediately both for corporations and individuals to stimulate economic activity and to restore a greater respect for the payment of taxes; postponement to April 1964 will not help much now; 4. A diligent search must be made for hidden American money and for tax evaded possessions abroad. The thief who evades taxes is as much a thief as one who steals a purse; 5. If a ceiling is put on prices, it must be put on wages; otherwise industry will become obsolescent; 6. GATT cannot be permitted to control the American tariff which must be free to function as necessary to protect American industry and the jobs of American workers from unfair competition in the American market. If this is not done, a "Buy American" campaign will progress among our people which would hamper the Administration in its foreign negotiations;

7. We cannot afford to go on playing tidlywinks with Soviet Russia or with any other country which seeks to destroy us. Our weapons must be sharp and swift.

Action along these lines will restore confidence. Inaction makes for confusion and confusion adds to fear. The President's economic advisers may know economics but not the psychology of the American people. The current recession is psychological and must be treated that way.

In his Yale speech, President Kennedy sought to restore confidence but he spoke to the Yale faculty not to the country and the Yale faculty, while undoubtedly erudite, is not enough of an audience to matter. For instance, the President treats the loss of confidence, which sent the stock market tumbling, as due to myth — the perpetuation of myths. He said:

"In recent months many have come to feel as I do that the dialogue between the parties — between business and government — between the Government and the public — is clogged by illusion and platitudes and fails to reflect the true realities of contemporary American society."

He also said: "Mythology distracts us everywhere — in government as in business, in politics as in economics, in foreign affairs as in domestic affairs."

But that is not quite the whole story. Money rushes toward profits and runs away from losses. That is the nature of the critic. There is no myth about this. To restore confidence, the President needs to assure those who work at the mechanism called money that they will not be harassed, that they will have a fair chance to do their jobs, to earn a profit, and to rebuild their plants and equipment. Those assurances do not appear in the President's speech in clear-cut, clarion tones, although a sympathetic person can say that that is what he understands the President means.

But the sympathetic person does not count as much as the unsympathetic person, particularly the frightened person who lost money in the stock market and still does not understand why.

There can be no question but that President Kennedy has (Continued on page six)

Gravity Study Values

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — My first investment was in the stock of the Niagara Power Company. I was astounded by the tremendous power of gravity which had been going to waste over Niagara Falls for thousands of years. When I was later connected with MIT, I became interested in Sir Isaac Newton and his studies of Gravity. The Babson Institute now has the second largest Newton Gravity Library in the world.

GRAVITY RESEARCH FOUNDATION

When the Gravity Research Foundation was established and endowed at New Boston, New Hampshire, I was glad to help. My first interest was aroused by Harry Vissering of Babson Park, Florida, who flew the first giant dirigible from Berlin to New York. I was then even taught that it was impossible to make heavier-than-air machines fly and not fall to the earth.

I further found that Clarence Birdseye, the discoverer of quick freezing, and Igor Sikorsky, the father of the helicopter, and Dr. Howard Stearns of Simmons College were members of the Board of Trustees. I gladly promised them my help. Up to that time no serious accidents had happened on commercial airlines; then the original idea of the Foundation was to "harness gravity". The present purpose is to make an airplane temporarily float in case of trouble and drop slowly to the ground so the passengers can safely get off.

DIFFERENT METHODS OF ACCOMPLISHING THIS FEAT

Most of the studies have thus far been along developing a semi-insulator of gravity which could cover commercial airplanes. This would require the development of some new metal, with the molecules arranged differently than exists in any present metal. I understand that the Gravity Research Foundation will send details of this proposed new metal to anyone who writes them at New Boston, New Hampshire.

A young inventor named Norman Dean, of Washington, D.C., has invented a machine to put into an automobile which will raise the automobile when the machine is operating. This idea has been discarded under the theory that it is "pulling oneself up by one's bootstraps". Hence the idea has not been adopted by helicopters or individual airplanes. However, there is no objection to this for an emergency purpose. If "Lord Howe's" friend's invention had been such that the engines of the fatal French airplane could have suddenly been used to prevent this anti-gravity fall, it might have saved the lives of these Atlanta people.

OTHER WORK OF THE GRAVITY RESEARCH FOUNDATION

The Foundation makes no experiments and has no laboratories of its own; but it is endeavoring to interest scientific departments of colleges in the problem. Up to the present time four colleges have erected monuments near their buildings with the words thereon: "This monument has been erected to remind students of the blessings forthcoming when a scientific breakthrough discovers what Gravity is, how it works, and how it may be controlled to prevent airplane accidents."

Another hopeful feature is the offering of Annual Awards of $1,000 for essays on the subject of gravity. Last week awards were made to the following five persons:

- Dr. G. M. Clemence of the U. S. Naval Observatory in Washington, D.C.;
- R. L. Forward of Hughes Laboratory, Malibu, California;
- D. W. Sciama, Department of Applied Mathematics and Theoretical Physics, Cambridge, England;
- F. J. Dyson, The Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey;
- C. Y. Wang, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

I advise those who travel much in commercial planes to take an interest in this non-profit Foundation about which I am writing this week.

H. Clifton Blue And The Press

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

BLUE — Newspapersmen all over North Carolina and especially those who cover the legislature feel close to House Speaker-apparent H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen because he is one of them.

Blue is a newspaperman, a businessman and a veteran legislator. He has served in the legislature from Moore County longer than any other man, with consecutive terms beginning in 1946. His legislative battles have been carefully prepared and well-fought, whether they were for his measures to protect the robins in Robbins or making it a bird sanctuary or an important statewide measure to require insurance companies to give notice before cancelling health, accident and hospitalization policies.

He went up the legislative ladder, serving on various committees. In 1951 he was chairman of the committee which wrote the state's water resources conservation laws.

He was a member of the governor's school study finance committee of 1957-59 and was head of the powerful House Appropriations committee in 1959.

CAMPAIGN — The chairmanship of the House Appropriations committee followed a campaign for the Speakership in 1959 which gave Blue an inside track on becoming Speaker himself someday.

Blue was campaign manager for former Rep. Addison Hewlett of New Hanover county and Hewlett was elected Speaker over former Rep. Carl Venters of Onslow County, a man backed for the job by Gov. Luther H. Hodges.

There was the core of the same legislative team which backed Hewlett supporting Blue this time against Rep. Tom Woodard of Wilson county. Woodard withdrew when it became apparent that Blue had the Speakership clinched with a heavy majority in commitments.

These came about by victories for candidates supporting Blue in several counties in the May 26 primaries. Blue had solid support in western counties.

PRESTIGE — There is an extra measure of prestige this time for the man who is Speaker of the House. He already is perhaps the most powerful man in the legislature, with the job of naming committees and running the show in the 120-man house.

The 1963 General Assembly will be the first legislature to convene in the new multi-million dollar statehouse. There will be ceremonies, dedications and other functions at which the House Speaker will be a key figure.

Virtually assured of election at the caucus of the majority party, Democrats, on Feb. 5, the eve of the convening of the General Assembly, the name of the gentleman from Moore will go down in the history books as the Speaker elected for first legislature to convene in the new statehouse.

PRESS — One important matter, among many, that Blue will deal with will be rules for press coverage of the legislature in its new quarters.

Access to the floor is the key point at issue and a question which may not be settled until the rules committees acts. Blue, a newspaperman himself, publisher of weeklies in Aberdeen and Robbins, is president this year of the North Carolina Press Association.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BRAINS WERE MEANT TO BE USED
We live in an age when whether we want to or not we are being forced to think. Centuries ago, when danger came upon the land the inhabitants' eyes turned their eyes toward the king. He would protect them. He would feed the starving. We live in a new age. The issues of life are more in our hands than they have been in the hands of any preceding generation. Success or failure is up to us today more than ever before. This means that we have to use our minds. Psychologists assure us that even the most crude and leaned only use a small portion of their brain power. Sometimes when we get tired and find ourselves capable of reason and resourcefulness which we never knew we possessed. But why wait for the crisis to bring this forth? Who are the successful people in life? Undoubtedly they are the ones who early learn to think, who see life as it really is, who learn how to put two and two together. Once in a while a stupid, no account person comes to occupy a position of trust and to have considerable influence, but not of it. The general public is hard to fool. They know who uses his brains and who doesn't. Use your "bean," as the youngsters say, for the Creator has given you one.

Other Editors Saying Would Cut Road Toll

(The Charlotte Observer)

There are no laws in North Carolina governing the use of chemical tests for suspected drunk drivers.

There should be. More and more police departments in the state are using chemical tests. Both Charlotte and Mecklenburg County police are now using the Breathalyzer, one of the simplest yet most foolproof devices on the market.

Since there are no laws, the police use the machine on a voluntary basis. The evidence obtained is used only to corroborate a policeman's testimony, not as substantive proof that a man is drunk.

Even so, the Breathalyzer helps the court both in convicting the drunk driver and allowing the innocent to go free. Experts say there are more than 60 emotional, mental and physical factors that may cause a person to look or act drunk.

A policeman arresting a driver strictly on the basis of personal observation has no way of knowing definitely whether the man he is arresting is drunk or sick.

The Breathalyzer knows immediately. It's better than a battery of lawyers. Conversely, a man may appear outwardly to be in reasonable control of his mental and physical faculties, when actually he has had enough alcohol to make him a deadly menace behind the wheel of a car. He may fool the policeman—but he can't fool the Breathalyzer.

Courts have ruled time and again that chemical tests are constitutional, that they do not invade a man's privacy or abridge his right not to be forced to testify against himself.

Experiences in many states have shown that the Breathalyzer increases the number of drunk driving convictions, and that it makes the highways safer as a result.

Many states have passed two laws concerning the use of this machine. The first law states that any person having an alcoholic concentration of more than six ounces of whisky or six beers in his bloodstream is legally intoxicated.

The second law, called the "implied consent" law, says that any man granted the privilege of driving on the public highways must consent to submit himself to a chemical test if asked; that a refusal means an automatic revocation of his license.

These laws make sense. They save lives. They inconvenience nobody, with the exception of the drunk driver and an occasional defense attorney.

The North Carolina General Assembly has consistently refused to adopt these laws. There will be another chance in 1963. The bills will be introduced again. They should be passed.

And they will be passed—if the people of North Carolina demand them for their own safety.

Tax Savings On Vacation Travel

By ELMER ROESSNER

Vacation travelers can make some neat tax savings. They won't be enough to offset the cost of the trip, even if the trip is to a dam site, but they can register in bucks when filing income tax forms.

Most of these deductions are allowable only if complete records are kept. So in this planning period, it is best to plan to take along a little notebook in which items are entered at the time at which they are paid. Be sure to note the place, including state, the item, the amount paid and the amount of tax. When you get receipts, clip those into the book.

Cigarette taxes are deductible in a larger number of states than ever this year. They are deductible when the state law provides that the retailer pays the tax. Where manufacturer, distributor or retailer pays, they're not.

TAX-BOON STATES
Prentice-Hall's tax service says cigarette taxes are now deductible in these states: Alabama, California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, West Virginia.

State gasoline taxes are also deductible. As a rule, sign on the pump gives the tax rate. If it doesn't, ask the attendant. Note: You may be offered maps to enable you to plan your trip through states with lowest gas and cigarette taxes. Don't bother. You can lose more in traveling a few extra miles than you can save.

State and city sales taxes need watching. Rates are not always posted. Always ask the salesperson the amount of the tax and write it down. Note: Rates, in California, for example, vary from town to town.

THEFT AND CASUALTY
There's rarely a motor trip without an accident or a bit of theft. At least recover the tax deduction. Two limitations: The insured part can't be deductible (although excess over insurance can be); the loss must be made a matter of record. If a hit-and-run driver does $100 damage to your car and you have a $50-deductible policy, you can deduct your loss: $50. But report the matter to the local cops; make a record of your report, and keep insurance payment and repair receipts.

If your spare is missing some morning, report it to local police. If you are asked to fill out a report, save a carbon for yourself. But be sure to keep a record.

Losses in storms, etc., are also deductible. In damages, thefts and storms, take a photo if it will add to the evidence. Interest on loans, or installment payments on vacations, are deductible.

In general, travelers abroad can make similar deductions. However, taxes in foreign languages may be harder to spot; ask your travel agent for a briefing before you go. One difference: charitable gifts in the U. S. are deductible; those abroad are generally not. Your contribution to restore a cathedral may be worthy, but it's not deductible. Note: All the deductions cited above are personal deductions; they must be itemized on your tax return. Further, the standard deduction cannot be claimed when itemized deductions are.

TAXES TOWER A VESSEL OR SOMETHING ELSE?
A Texas Tower is not a vessel. On the other hand, it may be.

A Texas Tower is one of those three-legged monsters that stand in the sea as replacements for the old Light Boats that guided ships to safety.

In litigation over the tower that collapsed off New York in a storm in January, 1961, a Federal Court has ruled that the tower was not a vessel and the government's liability could not be limited to that of a vessel. However, the Supreme Court has ruled earlier that whether a Texas Tower was a vessel was a question for a jury. This case was brought under the Jones Act; the later case was brought under the limitation of Liability Statute.

GRAHAM—The marriage of Miss Linda Pate Mann of Burlington and Walter Holt Kirkpatrick of this city was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in Graham's First Baptist Church by the Rev. William A. Poole of Winston-Salem; former pastor of the bride and the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Frank Mann of 1712 Pinecrest Street, Burlington, received guests in the social hall of the church.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kirkpatrick of 704 Staley Street.

Gladioli, pom poms and chrysanthemums filled altar vases and floor baskets for the nuptials. White tapers burned in spiral and seven-branched candelabra. Arca palms and white satin pew bows with ivy completed the setting.

Mrs. Julius F. Thompson Jr. presented organ music and Mrs. Frank Warren Jr., soprano, was soloist.

Mr. Mann gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown of white crystaletta taffeta was accented with a yoke of scalloped Alencon lace embroidered with pearls and milk beads. The high Empire bodice was fashioned with scooped neckline and long, calla-pointed sleeves, and the princess-style flared skirt cascaded into a cathedral train.

A double crown of lace and tiny ropes of pearls held her tiered veil of French illusion. She carried a white orchid on her prayer book. Her cultured pearl necklace and earrings were a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Martha Sherrill of Hudson was maid of honor. Bridesmaids, all sorority sisters of the bride, were Miss Agnes Rhue of Swansboro, college roommate, Miss Alice Star of Creswell, Miss Jannell Stegner of Waxhaw, Miss Linda Cox of Frostproof, Fla., Miss Ellie Speckmon of Charlotte and Miss Gail Elkins of Burlington.

Their dresses of white embroidered velour over taffeta were fashioned with square neckline, short sleeves, and tight Basque waistline above a bell-shaped skirt. Double bows of matching silk organza with tiny veils in back and front formed their headdresses. The bridesmaids carried Colonial nosegays of red happiness roses outlined with white pom poms. The honor attendant's bouquet was of roses, pom poms and stephanotis.

Honorary bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ann Kirkpatrick, and Mrs. Cecil Howard of Oxford, Miss Pat Lindsey, Miss Jean Zachary of Greensboro, Miss Linda Eiland of Efland and Miss Melba Rhue of Swansboro. They wore pastel colored dresses and each carried a single long-stemmed happiness rose.

Miss Marilyn Kaye Richardson was junior bridesmaid and Cathy Leley was flower girl. Both are cousins of the bride. They wore dresses of embroidered organza with headdresses similar to those of the bridesmaids. The flower girl carried a white lace basket with red rose petals. Kenny Elkins was ringbearer.

The bridegroom had his brother, J. L. Kirkpatrick of Lincoln, as best man. Grooms-men included the bride's uncle, Richard Isley; her cousin, Gary Richardson of Siler City; Don Miles of Durham, cousin of the groom; and Larry Waggoner of Burlington. John Hardy Stockard and Buddy Ivey.

For the ceremony, the bride's mother chose a dress of blue imported lace and silk organza over taffeta with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a light blue dress with pearl-embroidered neckline and matching accessories. Each pinned a white orchid to her ensemble.

Reception
Receiving guests at the reception were the newlyweds and their parents, the bridesmaids, and Mrs. John W. Garrett, aunt of the bride.

The bride's table was overlaid with a white satin cloth caught at the corners with satin roses. The all-white bridal cake was decorated with orchids and print silk, fingertip-length coat-hat. She added white accessories and candelabra holding epernettes of red carnations and white pom poms completed the table appointments.

Mrs. Fred Shaw and Mrs. Bill Meehan presided at the punch bowl. Assisting about the room were Mrs. J. C. Cheek, Mrs. Wade Dodson, Mrs. Wayne Dawkins, Miss Peggy Allison and the honorary bridesmaids.

Mrs. Riley registered guests and said the goodbyes. For a Florida wedding trip, Mrs. Kirkpatrick donned a sheath dress of imported blue print silk, fingertip-length coat-er and the orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick is a 1959 graduate of Walter Williams High School, Burlington, and received her A. B. and B. S. degrees in Spanish and English in May of this year at East Carolina College, Greenville.

A 1959 graduate of Graham High School, Mr. Kirkpatrick is employed as a salesman by Rental Uniform Company. He is also working toward his apprenticeship license with McClure Funeral Service and plans to further his education in business at Elon College.

Home Ec. Teacher Sunday Bride

Mrs. Orman Ernie Whichard

The marriage of Irene Nanette Whitehurst and Orman Ernie Whichard was solemnized in the Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church at Stokes on Sunday afternoon, June 17th, at four o'clock. Officiating were Rev. C. H. Middleton and Rev. W. H. Willis.

Miss Whitehurst is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Whitehurst of Stokes. Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Whichard of Greenville are parents of the bridegroom.

The altar was decorated with a sunburst arrangement of white delphinium and stock in a branched candelabra holding cathedral candles. This was flanked by smaller spiral candelabra and was interspersed with arca and palms and bridal greenery. The altar rail was draped with garlands of greenery and nosegays. Pews were marked with small nosegays. The couple knelt on a white kneeling bench.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Marvin Barnhill, Miss Patsy Jones, soloist, sang "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice," "I Love Thee," and "O Perfect Love."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of pure silk with a sculptured neckline of hand-clipped Chantilly lace. It featured a controlled flat front skirt panel of lace, cap sleeves and a beque waist. The back was accented with a chapel train. The bride wore a mantilla veil of hand-made Brussels lace. She carried a white Chantilly lace fan centered with angel orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Larry Whitehurst, sister-in-law of the bride, of Wilmington, was matron of honor. She wore a light blue dress of organza over taffeta with matching shoes and headpiece and carried a bouquet of yellow and purple Phalaenopsis orchids mounted on a blue lace fan.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Elbert Pritchard of Randleman and Mrs. Tom Pope of Garner. They were attired the same as the matron of honor. They carried blue lace fans centered with sprays of purple Phalaenopsis orchids.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Ray Holliman of Stokes, Miss Carolyn Harris of Pinehurst, Miss Sharon Daughtry of Williamston, Miss Alva Chauncey of Pactolus and Miss Cynthia Parker of Stokes. Each carried a long stemmed white carnation.

Mr. Whichard was his son's best man. Ushers were Warren Whitehurst of Greenville, Larry Whitehurst of Wilmington, brothers of the bride; David Adkins of Kinston and Billy Jenkins of Greenville.

Mrs. Whitehurst, mother of the bride, wore a light blue Schiffli embroidered dress with matching accessories and a white orchid.

Mrs. Whichard, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige dress of organza over taffeta and matching accessories and a purple orchid.

For a wedding trip to Western North Carolina, the bride wore a cobalt blue suit accented with white accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride teaches home economics and the bridegroom is a student at State College. They will live in Greenville during the summer.

Immediately following the wedding, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Sweet Gum Grove Community Building. The table was decorated with a cloth of white organza over satin with a drape of yellow organza tucked at the corners with small lace fans. The centerpiece was a cherub holding an arrangement of yellow roses and white stock. This was flanked by branched silver candelabra and bridal greenery. The room was decorated with a yellow acacia tree and wedding arch and greenery. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Nobles greeted the guests. Mrs. Velma Berry invited the guests to be served. Mrs. Evelyn Harris served cake and Mrs. T. G. Warren served punch from a separate table. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Ruth Mumford. Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Alexander said goodbyes.

Wedding Breakfast
On Sunday at 11 a.m., Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Whichard entertained the Whitehurst-Whichard wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast at the Olde Towne Inn.

The dining room was colorful with arrangements of yellow and white. The bridal table was centered with large white satin open hearts clustered in a bed of yellow roses.

Bride and groom dolls marked the bridal couple's places. Place cards of miniature white swans filled with tulle rice bags topped with a yellow sweetheart rosebud marked the guests' places.

Cake Cutting
Saturday night following the Whitehurst-Whichard wedding rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Nobles and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Briley entertained the party at a cake cutting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nobles.

Mr. and Mrs. Briley greeted the guests upon arrival. The refreshment table was colorful with a lovely arrangement. Mrs. Whitehurst, mother of the bride, served the wedding cake. Mrs. Whichard, mother of the groom, served the punch. Nuts and mints were also served.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Nobles.

Luncheon Fetes Miss Tadlock

Bride-elect Carol Ann Tadlock began her second week of parties Tuesday with a luncheon in the home of Mrs. A. Tyson Bilbro. Co-hostesses were Myrtle Moon Bilbro, Margaret Ann Harrell, and Mrs. J. H. Harrell.

Upon arrival the guests were served punch and hors d'oeuvres in the den. At 1 o'clock, they moved into the living room for a two-course dinner. The buffet consisted of a shrimp casserole, potatoes, and a salad congealed in grapefruit rind. For dessert, the guests had servings of ice cream molded into wedding designs.

Prosperity Figures Seem Have No Wall St. Impact

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street

and Washington seem to be talking to themselves these days. Most of the official figures coming out of the capital show the economy's health increasingly better. Most of the stock prices on the Wall Street tape were paler than the previous week despite Friday afternoon's strong rally.

Seasoned stock traders may give little heed to encouraging words as such, but they pay close attention to statistics.

But this time the figures seemed to faze the market little or not at all.

Statistics show industrial production hit a record high in May—despite a sharp decline in steel output. Personal income also rose, and so did employment, while the ratio of the jobless to the total labor force declined a bit more. Auto production gained in May and continued higher in early June—and healthy auto output and sales usually pep up the tone of the whole economy.

Wall Street didn't seem to hear—or only in passing—and then to forget.

Two reasons are given for the market's current deafness to cheerful statistics. First, the gains, except for those in autos, were only slight, or less than earlier expectations, casting doubt on the strength of their momentum. Secondly, the market looks well ahead and the official figures usually show the situation some time back.

Still, past and especially the more nearly current statistics are usually good indicators of trends. This time many in Wall Street seem to interpret the indicators as pointing down—a view rejected by most Washington officials, at least publicly.

Adding to the confusion of the conflicting views of the administration and many stock investors over the course the economy will take is the uncertainty in the market itself.

While the general course of the market has been down for several weeks, sharp fluctuations in prices from day to day and even from hour to hour, point up one fact:

Many investors aren't buying the inevitability of another recession soon—but are buying up stocks they consider have dropped to bargain prices.

In such a market, what an individual investor feels in his bones may be more important.

Ribicoff Concedes Medicare Plan Is Shaky

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff concedes the administration's medical care for the aged plan is in shaky health, and says he's ready for legislative surgery on it.

The president of the American Medical Association, meanwhile, has charged passage of the measure would undermine the nation's health care standards. Dr. Leonard W. Larson said that has been the outcome in every country that tried "politically controlled medicine."

Larson said Sunday the administration's program would swiftly mushroom into socialized medicine. He spoke in an interview on the Manion Radio Forum.

Ribicoff said Sunday night on the Manion Radio Forum, broadcast from South Bend, Ind. Ribicoff said Sunday night in a television interview—NBC—Meet the Press—that while the medical care bill is in difficulty in the Ways and Means Commitee "I really think we have an opportunity to come out with a favorable report."

Ribicoff said the administration is prepared to accept changes in the bill, but will not compromise on its central feature—financing under the Social Security System. He said that "goes to the very heart of the program. Without the Social Security approach you don't have a program."

"There are a number of alternatives that in my opinion could be very beneficial to the bill," Ribicoff said. Among them, he said, are:

Provision for coverage for some 3 million elderly persons who would not come under the current version because they are not covered by Social Security.

Participation by Blue Cross, the private hospitalization insurance firm, in some aspects of the administration of the medical care program.

An option system, under which an elderly person could choose government coverage, or take cash equal to the Social Security protection to purchase private health insurance.

The administration plan, sponsored in Congress by Rep. Cecil R. King, D-Calif., and Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., would raise Social Security taxes one-fourth of 1 per cent to finance hospitalization and nursing home care for people 65 and over. It would not cover doctors' bills.

Larson attacked the administration plan in these terms: "What would start out as socialized medicine for a small segment of our population would soon become socialized medicine for every man, woman and child in this country."

He said socialized medicine has undermined medical care in England, where many physicians are leaving the country "because they do not like the system under which they must work."

"There is no reason why we should impose that type of system upon the people in this country," Larson said. "I do not believe our people would accept it if it ever came to pass."

Ribicoff said the bill introduced by Rep. John V. Lindsay, R-N.Y., which embodies proposals of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, is the best of the Republican medical care bills, but "has basic weaknesses."

This measure would provide Social Security financing, but under it, elderly persons adequately covered by private insurance plans could draw cash instead of benefits.

"If we could make sure that there wouldn't be a concentration of all the good risks into the private insurance, or the Blue Cross insurance alternative, I think we could work this out as an alternative," Ribicoff said.

Castro, Cronies Felt The Heat

NEW YORK (AP)—Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and 17 of his bearded cronies couldn't stand the heat put on them early Sunday in Coney Island.

They softened up and melted into huge globs of wax, when fire of an undetermined origin broke out in Coney Island's World in Wax Museum.

Lillie St. Angelo, who founded the museum with her husband 34 years ago, said a wax likeness of President Abraham Lincoln, murderer Ruth Snyder and dozens of other famous and infamous people escaped undamaged.

No one was in the building when the fire broke out at about 1 a.m. The delegation presently is in Nigeria. The blaze, which firemen said was caused by a defective oil burner, was discovered by a caretaker, who lives nearby.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—National University's Academic Council has closed the school until Aug. 20 following a student strike and violence.

Authorities took the action Saturday when striking students armed with stones and clubs tried to break up classes attended by non-strikers.

The strike was called June 14 to protest the expulsion of six students accused of leading a window-smashing spree in downtown Bogota. Authorities said the strike was about 50 per cent effective.

West Breaks Tie In 13th Inning To Win 11-10

West Still Leads Series By Two Games Over East

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

Early Sunday morning the 1962 East-West All-Star game ended in Guy Smith Stadium with the West still two games in front of the East since the series began three years ago. However, the East made a good stab this year as they broke a tie in the eighth to win the opening contest 8-5. Then, again on Saturday night it looked for a while like the East would be the victors after they started eating away at the West lead and finally tied the score in the eighth and several times from there on until the West won 11-10 in the 13th inning. There is little room for doubt that these boys were well picked after watching them in action for two nights. Many will say there were other players around the state who were better. However, no All-Star squad or honorary team pleases all the people. It would be an impossibility. At the end of the third frame Saturday night the players and coaches were presented certificates by Jack Blaylock, president of the North Carolina High School Baseball Coaches Association.

As they walked out to receive their framer certificate one could see a certain amount of joy in the face of each boy, as well as the coaches. Even the East players who were behind at the time showed that little bit of something that can usually be found on anybody's face who is getting credit for a job well done. However, the certificates were far from being the big award of the night. At the end of eight and one-half innings the most valuable player trophy was presented. The recipient of this award was chosen by the 15 scouts from major league baseball clubs who were on hand to take a look at the boys. The trophy, presented by Blaylock, went to Jimmy Raynor, a pitcher for the East from Clinton. Raynor was selected for his outstanding efforts Friday night when he struck out five, walked three, gave up no runs and no hits for the winning pitcher. Then in the eighth inning he stepped up to the plate and slammed a homer over the centerfield fence for three runs, putting the East ahead 6-3. Thus his hitting and pitching were both invaluable to the East. The scouts on hand for the two-day contest from American League teams were Bill Harris of the Yankees, George Ferrell of Detroit, Mace Brown of the Red Sox, Jimmy Gruzzis of Cleveland, Red Morris of Baltimore, Clyde Klutz of Kansas City, Al Evans of Minnesota, and Harry Posto of the White Sox. The National League was also well represented with Eddie Lyons from the Cardinals, Red Hayworth from Milwaukee, Wes Liveningood of Philadelphia, Gene Hooks of Houston, Paul Campbell of Cincinnati, Sam Allen of the Mets and Pat Morrow of the Dodgers. With the talent that was displayed on the field and all those scouts at least one of those boys should have been chosen. Probably more than one. In addition to the scouts, East Carolina Coach Jim Malory talked at length with a few of the boys and gained a couple of good Pirate prospects as a result. There were probably a few other college coaches on hand at the event also. Following the final game early Sunday morning West Coach Wallace Carpenter said, "There was a lot of good hitting, but this was also good in spots." The other West coach, Jack Musten, in commenting on the game his boys just won said, "Both teams tried to win and give it away. However, all of the boys did a good job." Musten had just finished talking to an irate parent who thought her son should have played more than he did because he "traveled 250 miles down here." Commenting for the East, Coach Gilbert Ferrell said, "We were disappointed to night. We just didn't produce when we needed the base hits." The East coach also noted, "The games were well executed and we received good treatment while we were here." In all, the games this season went off well and the some 600 fans who turned out each night to watch the boys got their money's worth. There is no doubt about that, as they saw four extra innings Saturday night.

Reflector Sports Writer

The West rallied in the thirteenth inning of Saturday night's East-West All-Star game to claim victory by a score of 11-10. The East won the first game of the two game series Friday 8-5. Six pitchers were used by the East in their losing effort, while the West also used six, but one West pitcher was used twice. In a contest such as the East-West game, each pitcher is allowed to pitch only three innings. The winning pitcher was Ray Chandler while the loss was charged to Kirby Williams. West Opens Scoring The West opened the scoring in the top of the first by collecting four runs on two hits. Lannie Vessels led the frame off as he reached first safely on an infield error. Chandler followed with a walk to bring Billy Boverder to the plate. Boverder connected for his first hit of the night with a single to leftfield which scored Vessels. Herman Eaker, the next batter, rapped an infield grounder which was bobbled by the East second sacker and allowed Chandler to cross the plate. Boverder later came in to tally when Sandy Gann hit out second for the second out of the inning. Don Lemmond accounted for the West's fourth run as he hopped a single to score Eaker and give the West an early 4-0 lead. In the bottom of the first, the East found the going rough as they were able to collect only one run on one hit. With two away, Bobby Shipp connected for a homerun over the leftfield fence. This was Shipp's first home run of the series, however, on Friday night he collected two doubles. Gann opened the inning for the West in the third as he reached first after being hit by a pitched ball. Bill Davis followed with a double to advance Gann to third bringing Lemmond to the batter's box. Lemmond came through with his second hit of the night as he singled to drive in both Gann and Davis giving the West a 6-1 lead. Tally by the East The East began chipping away at the big West lead in the fourth as they picked up one run on an error and a double. The first batter Wayne Britton reached first on an infield error to bring up Bill Harris. Harris slammed a double which enabled Britton to circle the bases and set the score at 6-2. In the fifth, both the East and the West managed to tally one run and keep the contest close. The West scored when

Shipp followed with his second hit of the night by rapping a single to score Vashaw and move Dunn to third. Britton was then hit by a pitched ball which loaded the bases for the East. Harris, the next batter, collected his fourth hit of the night as he doubled to drive Dunn and Shipp across with the tying runs. Scoreless Three Innings Neither team was able to score in the ninth so the game was sent into extra innings. In the tenth and eleventh frames, both the East and West put runners on base but neither could produce a score. The West opened up the twelfth by picking up two runs on one hit to take what looked like the needed margin for victory. Whitt led the inning off as he walked to put the tie-breaking run on first. With one out, John Reeves hit a long double to centerfield scoring Whitt and putting the West in the lead 9-8. Reeves later came in to score on a catcher's error to make the score at the end of eleven and one half innings of play 12-10 in favor of the West. Tie Ball Game However, the East refused to be defeated so easily as they returned in their half of the frame to pick up two runs on two hits. Shipp opened the inning by reaching first safely on an infield error. Britton followed with a single which advanced Shipp to third. Harris followed with a walk to load the bases for the East with no outs. Don Ferrell, the next batter, came through with his only hit of the night as he singled to centerfield scoring Shipp and moving the tying run to third. Britton later came in to score after tagging up on a sacrifice fly by Wayne Vashaw. This run by Britton tied the contest once again and forced the game into the thirteenth inning. Eaker, West centerfielder, led the 13th inning off with a walk. With one out, Harold Hodge hit a ground ball which forced Eaker out at second, Lemmond followed with his third single of the game to advance Hodge to third base. Whitt, the next batter for the West, singled to leftfield scoring Hodge and giving the West a 11-10 lead. The East came back in their half of the inning to load the bases with only one out. However, they were unable to push a run across the plate. Dunn opened the frame with an infield bunt and was followed with walks by Shipp and Harris. Ferrell then popped out to short, and Biggs struck out giving the West a hard fought 11-10 victory. Raynor Most Valuable Between the third and fourth inning of play, certificates were given to all players, coaches, and managers who participated in the two game series. At the end of the ninth frame, the most valuable player award was presented to Jimmy Raynor of the East for his outstanding performance. Raynor was the winning pitcher on Friday and he hit the three-run homer that gave the East their 8-5 victory. In both appearances on Friday and Saturday, he struck out six, walked three, and allowed no runs on one hit. Duke's Bassett Opens Collegiate Tourney

By KEN ALYTA

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Richard Bassett of the host Duke University team had the honor of striking to the first tee at 7 o'clock this morning to hit the first ball of the 65th annual national collegiate golf tournament. Sometime before dusk, some 12 hours and 18,000 shots later, give or take a few hundred shots, the first round of the 36-hole qualifying grind will be over. They repeat the process Tuesday to determine the medalist and the 64 places in match play opening Wednesday over Duke's par 71 course, a 6,800 yarder. A field of 225 men from 75 colleges is after the crown won last year by Jack Nicklaus of Ohio State, now one of the top money winners on the professional circuit. Scores in the two days of qualifying also will determine the team title, defended by a veteran Purdue team which last year halted a five-year sweep by Boston's Cougars. Two match play rounds on Wednesday and Thursday will leave semifinalists for 36 more holes Friday and a final 36 Saturday. John Lotz of San Jose State, one of the pre-tournament favorites, showed why he rated that distinction as he shot a 2-under-par 69 Sunday to help the West defeat the East 2-4 in the 28th annual best-ball pre-tournament feature.

The victory was the 11th for the West against 15 for the East and two ties in the competition matching 12 two-man teams on each side. R. H. Sikes of Arkansas and Bill Burk of Oklahoma City combined for a best ball of 66 to lead the west to its victory. Houston's Fred Marti won the driving contest in a field of 39, averaging 276 yards, one foot, for his three drives. His longest went 282 yards, one foot. Second was Jon Padfield of Ball State Teachers with a 263 average. The longest single drive was a 300-yarder by husky Arnold Kirschman of Fresno State. Amateur Golf Begins Today ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The tradition-stepped Southern Amateur Golf Tournament starts a week-long grind today to name its 56th annual champion. Most of the best amateurs in Dixie are in the 160-man field except Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N. C., who decided not to defend his 1961 title because of his lumber business. Dudley Wyson of McKinney, Tex., is one of the best bets to mount the throne, particularly after shooting a pair of practice 68s over the par 72 Ellnor Village course.

Durham Defeats Wilson 6-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Durham put on a good display for visiting brass Sunday by defeating Wilson, 6-3, to remain two games in the lead of the Carolina League. General Manager Paul Richards of the Houston Colt .45s and Eddie Robinson one of his chief lieutenants, were among the satisfied fans. Raleigh made a sweep of a doubleheader with Greensboro, 25-11 and 4-2. Burlington shut out Rocky Mount, 3-0. Winston-Salem won over Kinston, 9-6. Three Durham hitters had home runs—Rusty Staub two, Leon Hartless and Tommy Murray one apiece. Raleigh collected 22 hits, got five bases on balls, and benefitted from five errors in the first game. George Deanyer pitched Burlington over Rocky Mount. He allowed only four hits for his fourth win against six defeats. Relief pitcher Mickey Sinks won his second game in two days, and hit a homer to celebrate, for Winston-Salem.

A 34-year-old Hampton, Va. man is in critical condition today following injuries received when the car he was driving in a race at the Greenville Drag Strip overturned about 4:15 p. m. Sunday.

A Pitt Memorial Hospital spokesman identified the driver of the car as Bill Cooper of 468 Algonquin Rd., Hampton, Va.

Following treatment at Pitt Memorial, Cooper was taken to Duke Hospital this morning to be under the care of a neurosurgeon. Local hospital authorities said Cooper suffered from severe brain damage, a fractured skull and broken left forearm.

Cooper was driving his 1962 Plymouth in the super-super stock class when the accident occurred.

L. T. Hardee, operator of the strip, said "The driver lost control of the car when he hit his brakes too quick as he finished a run." Hardee added, "He ran off the side of the track which caused the car to overturn."

The track operator also noted that the car was moving about 102 mph when the accident happened. However, Hardee said, "The driver had plenty of stopping room, but just lost control."

Hardee stated that cars and drivers racing on tracks are not covered by insurance by the track operator or by themselves. "Nobody can buy it (insurance) for racing," he said. However spectators are covered by insurance, Hardee said.

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Brazil fought back Sunday after being a goal down in the 11th minute and defeated Czechoslovakia 3-1 to retain the World Soccer Cup Championship.

The Brazilians won the title four years ago in Stockholm when they defeated Sweden 5-2. Only once before in the 32-year-old history of the championships has a team won two straight—Italy in 1934 and 1938.

NEW YORK (AP)—The University of Illinois Student Rehabilitation Center won the team championship for the third straight year in the sixth National Wheelchair Games Sunday, scoring 164 points to 119½ for the Bulova Watchmakers of New York.

Lions, Texaco And Elks Gain Victories Saturday

NORTH STATE.
In doubleheader action Saturday in the North State Little League the Lions walked over Coca-Cola 28-1 and Texaco downed the Jaycees 8-2.

The Lions took an early lead when they picked up three runs in the top of the first inning. From here on out their scoring never slowed down as they picked up runs in all but one inning.

The winners gained six runs in the second, three in the third, nine in the fifth and seven in the sixth for their total.

Coca-Cola's sole run came in the bottom of the fourth off an error, a single, a walk and a fielder's choice.

The winning pitcher was Frank Longino and credited with the loss was Dick Clark who hurled only the first two frames for Coca-Cola.

In the other North State contest the losing Jaycees opened up the scoring in the top of the first when Dew Forbes and Henry Briley both scored. Forbes, the lead-off batter, walked and Briley followed with a single advancing Forbes to second.

A single by Bernice Branch and a fielder's choice by Mike Harrington brought in both runs for the Jaycees.

Texaco gained one run in the bottom of the second and pulled ahead in the third when they gained two more runs giving them a run advantage. The winners came back in the fifth and scored five more runs to win the game as they held the Jaycees scoreless after the opening inning.

The winning pitcher was Leon Peaden while the losing pitchers were Branch and Ronnie Leggett.

Today's regularly scheduled North State game was between the Lions and Texaco at Elm Street Park. The Jaycees were to meet Kiwanis in a make-up game at 3 p. m.

The standings in the league to date are as follows:

TARHEEL

The Elks Little League team defeated Pepsi-Cola in the only Tar Heel League game played Saturday by a score of 7-2.

The Pepsi nine opened up the scoring in the top of the second when Jimmy Suggs got on with a walk. He advanced to third when two of his teammates walked and scored on a single by Mike Joyner.

However, the Elks began their scoring efforts in the bottom of the fourth frame when John James reached first on an error. He advanced to second on a single by Kenneth Beamen and both runners gained another base when Louis Gaylord got on with an error.

James and Beamen both scored on a single by Richard Jackson and Gaylord managed to steal home before the inning was retired.

The bottom of the fifth saw the winners strengthen their winning margin some more when they gained four more runs.

Tim Foley connected for a single and James followed with a walk. Both advanced when Beamen was safe on an error which loaded the bases. A single by Gaylord scored Foley and a fielder's choice by Jackson brought in James. An error on the shortstop and a fielder's choice by Harrison Gaskins accounted for the remainder of the runs scored by Beamen and Jackson.

The winning pitcher was Gaylord who allowed three hits, struck out seven and walked 11. Credited with the loss was Jack Gordon who allowed four hits, struck out seven and walked three.

In today's game Greenville Tobacco Company was scheduled to meet Security Life at 5 p. m. on the Guy Smith Field.

Michigan Wins NCAA Honors

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Only a wild pitch separated Michigan's new NCAA baseball champions and Santa Clara, the team it took 15 innings to beat.

The Wolverines capture college baseball's highest title Saturday night in a spine tingling marathon struggle with Santa Clara 5-4.

And in doing so, they spoiled a stout-hearted, week-long performance of brilliance by tireless Bob Garibaldi.

It was the wild pitch uncorked by the 6-5 Santa Clara right-hander that let relief pitcher Jim Bobel score Michigan's winning run from third.

Garibaldi, selected the tournament's outstanding player by sports writers, pitched in five of Santa Clara's six games. He worked 27 2-3 innings—more than three normal games—in the College World Series that started last Monday. The Bronco sophomore struck out 38 opponents, gave up only 15 hits and his fast ball and curve made major league scouts drool.

"My arm's just numb," said Garibaldi, who turned in eight innings of near perfect relief ball against Michigan and lost.

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

Dr. Catlett asked Julie Pendleton to hold his flashlight while he checked Duke Vogel, an ominously quiet figure on the ground. Britt Fabian stood by impatiently.

"He's badly hurt and in a state of intense shock," the doctor said. "Britt, will you hurry to the house, call the hospital and tell them to send an ambulance."

"All right," Britt said. He started away.

Dr. Catlett called after him. "Britt, at the same time ask the hospital to notify the police about what happened."

"I'll take care of the police," Britt said.

"I have to report it," the doctor told him. "They must be told immediately."

Britt nodded heavily and walked toward the house without undue hurry. Dr. Catlett checked Vogel's heartbeat again.

"It's been a long time since I saw a man beaten up as badly as this, Julie."

"Beaten up?" Julie asked. "He was either punched or kicked, or both, Julie. A fall, no matter how severe, didn't do this. His ribs were in bad shape from the squeezing your horse gave him some days ago, but not I'd say at least two of them are broken and have punctured something, possibly a lung. Also I think there's a rupture of either one of his kidneys or his liver. Several teeth are so loose they'll have to be extracted."

"I can't imagine Britt doing such a thing," Julie said in horror.

"Was he bleeding from the mouth right away?"

"Why—I didn't think he was bleeding at all when I left to call you."

"Then it's more than possible Britt hit him several more times after you were gone."

"Do you mean Britt hit him after I went to call you?"

"Possibly. I imagine Vogel started to get up. Maybe Britt had to hit him."

Britt returned shortly. Vogel was still unconscious. Julie went to Britt's side and he quietly put an arm around her.

"I wish it hadn't happened," he said. "I went a little mad, I guess. For the first time in my life I actually wanted to kill someone, Julie. I don't like the feeling. The ambulance is on the way. How is the poor guy?"

"Not good, Britt, did he wake up while I was gone?"

"Woke up and took a couple of passes at me. I had to hit him hard."

"The doctor thinks he was punched and kicked."

"I punched him all right. I didn't kick him. I—come to think of it, I knelt on him to hold him down. I suppose I'm pretty heavy and he was squirming around like a crazy man. You're sure he'll be all right?"

"We'll have to wait and see," Julie told him.

The ambulance arrived and two white-coated men got Vogel on the stretcher, and loaded him into the ambulance and drove off.

"The police will send someone here right away," said Britt.

"Good. They can contact me at the hospital. Good luck tomorrow, Julie. And say—I'd better wish you an equal amount of luck, Britt."

"Thanks. The race suddenly isn't as important as it was," Britt said. "I'll phone you later to ask about Vogel."

The doctor drove away and

Graham Caps Chicago Crusade With Big Crowd

CHICAGO (AP)—Billy Graham capped his Chicago "Crusade for Christ" Sunday by telling the largest American audience of his evangelistic career. "The crusade has just begun."

Some 116,000 persons—jammed elbow-to-elbow in Soldier Field in 90-degree heat—heard Graham give his final sermon of the 19-day crusade.

Graham has addressed larger crowds only twice in 15 years of evangelistic crusading, both times in Australia in 1959. He spoke to 140,000 in Melbourne and 125,000 in Sydney. More than 100,000 persons heard the evangelist preach in New York City's Yankee Stadium in 1957.

He urged members of his Chicago audience to dedicate their lives to God, to put religion into their social, economic and civic lives, and to fight what he termed "internal decadence of the culture."

"This crusade doesn't end today. It is only the beginning. Now you have heard the Gospel and you must go out and live as Christians. You are held responsible by God."

Graham listed several reasons why he thought America is backsliding morally in a manner similar to ancient Rome.

"America has gone on a sex binge that has no parallel in history. Divorce is shattering families—the heart of any nation.

"And we spend. The average American has no conception of the impending disaster caused by deficit spending.

"And our armaments. Rome was not defeated by military superiority. It was defeated by its moral and religious decay. Here in America we also have a decaying religion.

"Oh, we go to church," he continued, "but we serve God only with our lips. You believe in God with your intellects. You believe in Him with your hearts and with your consciences, but you haven't accepted Him.

"You're almost in the kingdom of heaven! But almost isn't good enough."

"You can't come to God anytime you feel like it. You can only come when God is with you spiritually. There may never be another chance."

"Vaunted, shrewd, clever, sophisticated Rome fell. America can fall also. It's up to you."

At the sermon's conclusion 1,729 persons made their way through the crowded aisles to the speaker's podium to make what Graham calls decisions for Christ.

A total of 16,451 decisions were reported by the Graham organization during the crusade which started Memorial Day. The estimated total attendance was 703,000.

Graham said he will go to his home in Montreat, N.C., for a rest before conducting a special one-day rally, July 8 at the World's Fair in Seattle, Wash.

Close Contest Indicated For Canadian Elections

By MAX HARRELSON
TORONTO (AP)—Both Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's Conservatives and the opposition Liberals predict victory as Canadians vote today in their first national election in four years.

The Gallup poll and other surveys indicate an extremely close contest. A number of unknown factors—such as the strength of the minor parties—could have an important bearing on the results.

One possibility was the failure of either major party to get a clear majority of the 265 seats in the House of Commons. This would mean that the winner—Diefenbaker or Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson—could form a government only with the cooperation of the smaller parties.

Such a situation probably would result in a new election within a year, as happened after the Conservatives in 1957 ended 22 years of Liberal rule.

Both the 67-year-old prime minister and Pearson, 65-year-old Nobel Peace prize-winner, claimed their parties would get more than the 133 seats needed for a majority in the House.

T. C. (Tommy) Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party, maintained that the Conservative government would be ousted. It appeared certain that his party and the Social Credit party, headed by Robert Thompson, would register substantial gains over the eight seats now held by the two groups.

The key to the outcome seemed to be the size of the gains the Liberals will make in populous Quebec and Ontario provinces, which together hold 160 seats in the House. It is generally agreed that the Liberals will win back many of the seats they lost in Conservative sweep in 1953.

One of the things making the forecaster more cautious was the indication in the latest Gallup poll that the popular support of the Liberals had slipped in recent weeks. The latest figure showed the Liberals only two percentage points ahead of the Conservatives. They had been 10 per cent ahead early this month.

The Conservatives had 203 seats in the last House. The Liberals had only 51.

In Canada—as in Britain—the voter does not ballot directly for a prime minister but only for a member of the House of Commons to represent his own district. The leader of the winning party becomes prime minister.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Conservation Notes

BRANTLEY SPEIGHT district supervisor, recently was host to the rising Senior Class in Agronomy at N. C. State College for a visit to his seed farm operation west of Greenville.

The class selected the Speight farm to observe the seed breeding and production in which the supervisor and his partner, Charlie Davis, are engaged. The operation includes hybrid corn and certified tobacco and soybean seed.

But in addition to an education in seed production, a model-type soil and water conservation program can also be observed on Speight's farm.

The agronomy class observed Speight's big dragline canals, tile drains, irrigation wells and ponds, pastures, soil conservation rotations and other features.

A. D. McLAWHORN of Winterville has developed an excellent soil and water conservation program on his farm.

The plan was begun in 1957 with the technical assistance of Conservationist W. C. Eagles of the Soil Conservation Service.

McLawnhorn is following two conservation cropping systems. One system on 48 acres, on the better land, includes tobacco followed by cotton and corn. McLawnhorn said he would like to add small grain and fescue grass to the system, but he doesn't have enough tobacco land to do it. So he seeds winter cover crops after tobacco and cotton, which he handles as green manure the following spring.

McLawnhorn is growing corn and soybeans in rotation on 44 acres of his Class 3 land. He is managing the residues of the soybeans and corn by leaving them on the soil surface at least four months during the winter. McLawnhorn plans to shred the corn stalks out to the ground with the rotary mower beginning this fall.

Five acres of land around the home site has been planted with fescue-Ladino clover pasture. This five-year-old pasture has been renovated once by disking, applying lime and fertilizer and reseeding.

Approximately 10,350 feet of field drain tile have been installed on the farm. McLawnhorn's father had installed some of it. A surface inlet was built last spring to carry ponded surface water quickly and safely into a tile drain where tobacco was grown last year.

McLawnhorn has dug a 5,000-cubic-yard irrigation pit near the center of his tobacco and cotton acreage. Last year he drilled a four-inch well, 127 feet deep beside the pit. An electric motor drives the well pump that delivers about 100 gallons of water per minute into the irrigation pit that serves as a reservoir.

He irrigated 21 acres of tobacco land last year with nine three-hour sets in four days. The deep well pump operated continuously and the water level in the pit fell only about 18 inches.

McLawnhorn has built one of the first open racks for irrigation equipment beside his pit in the area. Nine crescent posts and three two-by-twelve-inch cross arms hold the 1,000 feet of five-inch and 2,000 feet of three-inch aluminum pipe as well as risers and fittings.

Two additional conservation practices for erosion control are planned for this fall. McLawnhorn expects to fertilize and seed fescue grass on two field borders, and in two grassed waterways. The field borders will be about 14 feet wide on the end of fields where row water has caused erosion. Two grassed waterways are to be seeded through fields where water has collected and cut across rows as it flowed out of the fields.

JOHN F. MOYE, district cooperator in the Red Oak community, has recently planted three acres of wild re-seeding soybeans.

Planting this area in a wildlife food patch was part of his basic soil and water conservation plan.

Moye says: "By planting wild soybean I hope to induce the quail that usually feed in the woods to start feeding in the open field, which will give me better hunting."

JARVIS ALLEN of Red Oak community has a beautiful field or corn on land that formerly was poorly drained. Seldom did it produce an average crop.

In early spring the water table was so high the corn roots grew near the ground surface. Later when the soil began drying out, the corn roots were so shallow the leaves were soon twisted for lack of water. On the other hand, if the rains came in abundance the corn drowned. So in either case the yields were poor and cultivation was done at a loss.

Here's Jarvis' story today: "Several years back we realized we needed an outlet canal. We came to our Soil Conservation District office and sought technical assistance. The canal was dug that drains eight or 10 farms.

"Then we needed a lateral up to this field. A farm plan was in order. The lateral ditch and a tile system was constructed. The next two years we installed tile.

"It worked. We were in business. We started our crop rotations. Good, well-drained soil is the basis for a sound conservation program. This field of corn that promises 75 bushels per acre instead of 35 is the answer to a farmer's hope."

Allen has an appointment with SCS technicians this week to mold a farm plan for his farm near Pactolus.

The Farm Scene

Southern Stem Rot Control:

Factors affecting the outbreak of the southern stem rot disease of peanuts are not completely understood; however, experimental and demonstration tests have shown that losses from this disease can be minimized by using certain cultural practices in combination with the application of the chemical Terracolor.

Plant cultivation during the growing season is very important to prevent injury to the plants where the fungus might attack. Leafspot control is important to prevent leaf shatter and the accumulation of leaves around the base of the plant.

Several formulations of Terracolor are available for use. One of the most convenient is the Terracolor-land plaster mixture. This mixture may be applied by pegging time at 400 to 600 pounds per acre in a 12-inch band centered over the row.

Even distribution of the mixture is essential for best results. Ten, 20, and 40 per cent dust formulations, or 75 per cent wettable powder, may be applied in a 12-inch band centered over the row at pegging time as a surface band treatment. An easy flow lime spreader or dusting equipment may be used to apply the dust formulation. Do not pile untreated soil on the treated band during cultivation.

Growers should remember that Terracolor will not control the collar rot disease which in many instances is being confused with the southern stem rot disease.

Collar rot is characterized by the death of the plant during the late summer. The lower portion of the stem and tap roots decay, becoming gray to slate-colored. Stems of affected plants become blackened and rough due to formation of fruiting bodies of the fungus.

In contrast, symptoms of the southern stem rot disease are root decay and a light brown rot at the base of the stem that frequently kill the stem and foliage.

During wet periods, a cottony fungus growth forms on the dead tissue around the base of the plant. Later small, hard, yellow or light brown colored bodies resembling mustard seed form on the infected stems.

Southern Corn Root Worm: The Southern corn root worm in some areas has developed resistance to Aldrin and growers cannot depend upon this.

Taxpayer's Shirt Is Returned Him

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Alvin M. Kelley, district director of the Internal Revenue Service in St. Louis, got the shirt off a taxpayer's back Friday.

It came in a neatly-wrapped package with a note giving the sender's name and address and the notation that it was the shirt off a taxpayer's back.

"The director said a check of records showed the man had no trouble with the IRS on his tax return, except he had paid a pretty good chunk of taxes. Kelley had the shirt laundered and returned to its owner with a tongue-in-cheek note that it couldn't be classified as legal tender.

Girls Get Bad News In A Jingle

NEW YORK (AP)—Two alleged $100-a-night call girls kept a date with a couple of men, one of whom identified himself as an ad writer who composed jingles.

"Compose a jingle for us," said one of the girls. He did: "It's been quite a party, girls. We've pulled out all the stops. But we're not the guys you think we are. We're just a pair of cops."

The jingle writer was detective Frank Nallan, who had been stalling for time with his partner until uniformed police could arrive and arrest the women, aged 25 and 27. They were charged with prostitution.

Sinatra Finishes His World Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Sinatra has returned from a world singing tour which he said he raised about $1.2 million for handicapped and orphaned children. He said he hopes to make another one within the next 18 months.

The 2½-month trip took the singer to Mexico, Japan, Hong Kong, Israel, Greece, Italy, Monaco, France and England.

Tobacco

Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

chemical any longer to control this insect pest. Fortunately our experiment station has tried other insecticides for controlling this insect and has recommended Diazinon for the task.

Diazinon should be applied this week or next week at the very latest. This material will be merchandized as a granular formulation, and will require special equipment for application. The material is very unstable and to date the only carrier that has been found is ground walnut hulls, thus the granular formulation.

The application rate is 20 pounds of 10 per cent Diazinon per acre in a 16-inch band centered over the row as soon as pegs begin to appear, or 40 pounds 10 per cent Diazinon per acre for a broadcast application. Work into soil immediately after application with cultivation equipment.

This material will cost more than the Aldrin but if the Aldrin will not work then you will be net income ahead to control the root worm with Diazinon.

The amount suggested should be used as your source of nitrogen for best results. The amount suggested should be used in addition to any top dressing that has been used, or that you were planning to use.

It is realized that the amount of leaching is different in different fields. In some fields even more nitrogen in the form of nitrate of soda may be needed. I would suggest that you wait and observe the growth of tobacco for a while before using more than this amount.

If an additional amount is needed, it can be applied until the tobacco is waist high.

"Guides for Fertilizing Flue-Cured Tobacco" an Extension publication, will give you more detailed information about applying supplemental nitrogen to your tobacco crop. A copy of this folder can be obtained from the County Agricultural Agents Office.

Icen Wilson Is Civitan Speaker

Icen E. Wilson, district manager of the Greenville Social Security office, at Friday's meeting of the Greenville Civitan Club, discussed social security and the services rendered by his office in Pitt, Beaufort, Bertie, Martin, Washington, Chowan, Hyde and Tyrrell Counties.

"The idea of social security is to provide protection in advance for retirement when a worker becomes disabled or when a worker in the family dies," Wilson said.

He discussed the determination of beneficiaries of social security payments and pointed out that 17 million people are now receiving monthly benefits of about 1 billion dollars a month.

Wilson explained the basic principle is that benefits received are benefits earned through work. The worker, he said, has a right to these benefits set up according to his contribution to production.

"Thus," he said, "it is a self-help program."

Bishop Participates In Two Dedications

Dedication services took place Sunday at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and at the educational building of Saint James Methodist Church, with Bishop Paul N. Garber delivering sermons at both services.

Speaking to members of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at the 11 o'clock worship services yesterday morning, Bishop Garber expressed the idea that people must have vision to accomplish things in his sermon entitled "Dreaming Dreams."

"People need vision and then they must proceed under the leadership of God, Bishop Garber said.

He stated that church members "don't remain at a standstill; we keep growing and keep accomplishing things."

Dr. Edgar B. Fisher, pastor of Jarvis Memorial, reported a large attendance for the 11 o'clock services, which included dedication of the church building.

Participating in the service, in addition to Bishop Garber and Dr. Fisher, were Dr. A. Jarvis Hobbs, superintendent of the New Bern District; three former pastors, Dr. E. L. Hillman, the Rev. W. M. Howard Jr., and Dr. W. P. Watkins, Sam B. Underwood J. W. Watson.

Specifications indicate a style of architecture similar to the general design of other recent ECC buildings, Duncan said.

"Fairly extensive" pilings will be a requirement in the construction project. The finished product, according to plans, will be equipped with elevator service, all built-in furniture except for chairs and mattresses; a recreation room in the basement, living space for two counselors and reception rooms.

Duncan said an estimated completion date for the building stated now would be only tentative. He said occupancy of the new dorm may be expected by the opening of the Fall Quarter, 1963.

"That is a possibility," he said, "but not at all a certainty."

Opines Exchange Favors Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's space agency chief feels the United States has given more than it has received in exchanges with the Soviet Union on space flight findings.

The comment, from Director James E. Webb of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, brought demands from some members of Congress for tighter restrictions on the type of information released to the public by NASA.

Webb defended the idea of making such information generally available. He said it would be impossible to exploit all the knowledge being gained if the program were cloaked in secrecy.

He appeared before a House Appropriations subcommittee. His testimony was released Sunday.

It happened 100 YEARS ago
The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN NORTH CAROLINA arrangements were made to transfer the Confederacy's naval ordnance center from Norfolk to Charlotte because of inland safety and good railroad to Wilmington. North Carolinians saluted this new commerce with glasses of beer.

For even then, beer was North Carolina's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for North Carolinians, and a good living for many of them — not only the employees of the Brewing Industry itself, but also for North Carolina farmers and other suppliers of the materials brewers use.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.
