Prayer In Public School Is Held Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today the offering of a 22-word daily prayer in New York State public schools violates the U. S. Constitution.

Justice Douglas wrote an opinion concurring with the majority. Justices Frankfurter and White took no part.

Sixteen parents of 41 children in New Hyde Park schools intervened in the case in support of the offering of prayer.

Counsel for the school board involved argued that the schools were not trying to teach religion by prayer recitation.

Sunday's large class of Moose initiates, their sponsors, and visitors from lodges all over eastern North Carolina, comprised a wall-to-wall gathering in the Greenville Moose Lodge auditorium Sunday.

Assembled to honor visitors from the Supreme Lodge, twenty area Moose lodges had candidates for the ceremonial. The warmest day of the new summer (99 degrees) was presumed to have cut into the expected attendance, but as Lodge Governor Frank Fuller later remarked, "where would we put any more?" About 550 were in attendance.

Supreme Secretary Carl Weis quipped, "Your Carolina Moon is justly famed all over the land. But your sun deserves a place right beside it."

The setting for the ceremony was enhanced with spiral candleabra holding cathedral tapers, standing baskets of white chrysanthemums, gladiol and gypsophila, with a background of wedding palms.

Given in marriage by her uncle, the bride wore an Edythe Vincent design of silk peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The empire bodice was fashioned with portrait neckline applied with lace medallions traced with pastel sequins and seed pearls, long sleeves tapered to calla points over the hands.

The bouffant intermission length skirt terminated to a full chapel sweep in back and was appliqued with jeweled lace motifs. Her three-tier fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was caught to a scalloped pillbox of pastel sequins. She carried a bridal cascade bouquet of valley lilies and stephanotis centered with butterfly orchids.

Mrs. Edward G. Patrick of Kinston, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Mrs. Patrick wore a gown of mint green raw silk with a silk chiffon drape over a full skirt. She wore a pearl tiara circlette with veil and slippers to match. Her cascade bouquet was of white pompons with ivy streamers and tied with mint green satin.

The bridesmaids were Miss Pattie McCay of Richmond, Va., Mrs. William B. Tripp, Emporia, Va., Mrs. W. P. Sawyer of Fayetteville and Miss Rebecca Skinner of Greenville.

Their gowns were coral sheaths of raw silk with detachable flowing overskirts of silk organza. They wore matching tiara circlettes and slippers. Their cascade bouquets were similar to the matron of honor's tied with coral satin ribbon.

C. Dwight Garrett of Greenville attended the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Lyle Crumpler of Rocky Mount R. G. Darst of Greensboro and J. S. Ficklen Jr. and E. E. Rawl Jr., both of Greenville.

Mrs. Dudley's dress was a sheath of aqua chiffon and Alencon re-embroidered lace. Her accessories matched and she wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Little, mother of the bridegroom, wore a sheath dress of "Nite" blue French Chantilly lace with matching accessories and a white orchid.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley entertained with a reception in the church social hall honoring Mr. and Mrs. Little Jr. and members of the bridal party.

Proposal Merits Reconsideration

Failure of the state High School Athletic Board of Control to sanction a postseason all-star football game proposed to be held in Greenville does not mean, we trust, that members of the governing body for state high school athletics have closed their minds to such a possibility.

We urge members of the Board of Control to give consideration to the proposal between now and their next meeting and reconsider the matter officially then.

In recent years there has been a move toward eliminating postseason play by high school athletes in all sports. The move was necessary, for in some instances, the athletic programs of individual schools obviously had gotten out of hand. Steps taken in recent years by the public schools have provided the framework for a more realistic approach to the situation.

Notwithstanding the moves which have been made to keep postseason sports events for high schoolers, it seems to us the request for this additional postseason all-star game does not conflict with the policy which has been established or the best interest of the school athletes.

The idea of the postseason game was conceived some time ago and has been undertaken by the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce as a statewide project. Proceeds from the annual event would go to the Lake Waccamaw Boys Home, an institution which has gained the support of practically every civic club in the state.

The proposed all-star football game would feature players from the smaller high schools of the eastern section of the state who as a rule do not have an opportunity to participate either in the postseason Shrine Bowl game played in the fall in Charlotte or in the state all-star game played in Greensboro in August. For the most part participation in these two events is limited to players from the larger high schools of the state.

In addition to this factor, sponsors of the proposed new all-star game say the game would be scheduled not to interfere with regular school work of the participants and that further only those high school athletes with a scholastic average of C or better would be eligible to be chosen to play in the game.

The proposal for this new Eastern Carolina all-star event has sufficient merit to warrant careful reconsideration by the Athletic Association Board of Control.

His 'Ballot Box' Always Stuffed

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES JONES — It was one of those weeks when Graham Jones figured he might catch up on his work, but never does.

One reason is the "ballot box" — which is always stuffed.

Tall, blond and studious Graham Jones, 35, is press secretary to Gov. Terry Sanford. He is a student of people, politics, press relations, a former newspaper reporter and a Sanford man. He also is a busy man.

The governor has been out of town for almost a week — about as long as he's ever away from the Capitol. But even so the work for Jones and the rest of the gubernatorial staff never ceases. It's more likely to pile up.

When Sanford goes off on trips, meeting people, making speeches, mending fences and keeping close to the public pulse he keeps in frequent touch by telephone and mail.

BOX — He takes with him a large wooden box stuffed full of papers and correspondence. He works on this in spare moments. A steady stream of memos and directives flow back to the executive offices.

Someone in Asheville once noticed the governor's wooden box, dubbed it the "ballot box" and the name stuck. It's been referred to that way ever since. Jones figures it's appropriate because in a way it helps in the job of keeping the governor in close touch with the people.

Of the hundreds of pieces of mail received and routed by the governor's staff each day, a heavy percentage receives personal attention by the governor. And the governor replies to a large amount of the daily mail, in one way or another.

UNUSUAL — There are all sorts of unusual things in the governor's mail. Jones recalls that a man living in California whose parents living in Alabama celebrating their silver wedding anniversary wrote to the governor of North Carolina asking if he would send his congratulations to the people. Sanford didn't quite get the connection, but he sent congratulations anyway.

And then there is the pet peeve of perhaps all governors, the requests for designating a certain "week" to commemorate or observe something. One that was turned down recently was a request to proclaim "matchbook week" in North Carolina.

Some research is involved in deciding what should and should not be done. For example, the governor received a request to designate a certain week for something on grounds that the North Carolina chapters of the particular organization would appreciate it very much. A check showed there were no North Carolina chapters of the organization.

SUPPORTERS — Jones, a former political reporter for five years, says the job of press secretary to a governor is about what he had anticipated.

And he looked forward to it with such relish that the day after Sanford asked him in March, 1960, he quit his job and went to work handling publicity for the Sanford campaign.

At the University Jones became an ardent admirer of Dr. Frank P. Graham, and perhaps his most vivid memory in politics is of the day he drove Dr. Graham from Chapel Hill to Raleigh to see then Gov. W. Kerr Scott the day after Graham's defeat in the second Senate primary of 1949. "There was not one single word of bitterness after all that had been through," he says.

Jones cast his first vote for Sanford by proxy back in 1949 when he was active in the Young Democrats at the University in Chapel Hill and Sanford was a candidate for state YDC president. Jones intended to attend the convention and vote for Sanford, but says his sister had a wedding rehearsal instead "and the women had their way" that day. O. Max Gardner Jr. cast the proxy.

Jones later was president of the UNC chapter of the YDC and became an admirer both of Sanford and the late Kerr Scott. Jones was a machine gun section leader in the 3rd Infantry division in Korea and recalls he scratched up enough from his GI pay to send Sanford a modest contribution to Scott's campaign for the U. S. Senate in 1954.

WORK — It isn't an easy job being press secretary to a governor, but neither is being governor, Jones says. "I'm 10 years younger than he is, but my tongue is usually hanging out trying to keep up with the pace he sets."

"When I have to work nights and on Saturdays and Sundays too, I realize that the man I'm working for still has worked more hours than I week than I have," he says.

Generally, Jones feels that the press of North Carolina has been extremely favorable to the Sanford administration. Also making the job easier, he says, is the respect which North Carolina holds in the press elsewhere in the country. "This isn't because of one administration, but it has been true apparently ever since Aycock," Jones says.

Jones winced the other day at a press conference when the governor, in a petulant mood, said some reporters are obnoxious. When the conference was over, and Jones with some trepidation followed Sanford out of the room he says the governor turned to him "with those innocent blue eyes and said, 'was I too rough on them?'" "I told him, 'yes,'" Jones said.

There was some breath-holding on Jones' part to see what the editorial reaction would be. When the reaction came in, though, Jones breathed easier. "It was all very fair."

Poor Alternative To Beaten Farm Program

Defeat of the administration farm program which would have combined rigid production controls with price supports leaves the nation's farm program in a precarious position.

It keeps the door open for a continuous build-up of already staggering surpluses—particularly in grain—which sooner or later may cause the entire agricultural program as it is now known to collapse.

The administration program would have left it up to producers of individual commodities to choose between price supports and production controls, or no production controls and no price supports. Either choice would have reduced the costly tide of commodities going into storage under the government's program. It would have offered for other farm commodities the common-sense, sound approach to production and price supports that have worked so effectively for tobacco without imposing a heavy financial burden upon taxpayers.

On the heels of defeat of the new farm program there has come the stop-gap measure of continuing the present feed grain programs for another year to avoid return to the unsound Benson program of several years ago. While this alternate proposal is much less sound than the proposals which were defeated, it is much to be preferred to the old Benson program.

Dissatisfaction As To Budgeting

By RALPH ROBEY

For months there has been an obvious growing dissatisfaction within the Administration on the manner in which the Federal Budget is presented and analyzed. Finally, President Kennedy in his June 11th Commencement Address at Yale University met the issue head-on and what he said is of utmost importance.

The displeasure is with the Administrative Budget. This is the one submitted in January of each year by the President to the Congress and estimates total revenues for the period covered and expenditures for each department, agency, and so forth. This also is the budget upon which estimates are made as to whether the government will have a surplus or a deficit.

There is another budget which is not submitted for action to the Congress. This is the so-called Cash Budget. This gives a picture of the actual flow of funds into and out of the government, including trust accounts. Many persons believe this gives a much better measure of the impact of government taxing and spending upon the economic system than does the regular budget. And while this cash budget is not presented to the Congress it is published by the Budget Bureau, and kept up to date in the monthly publication of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. The Cash Budget is some $25 billion higher than the Administrative Budget.

There is still another accounting which is made and is preferred in some quarters. This is compiled by the Department of Commerce and is based upon an estimate of tax accruals, rather than actual tax payments. This accounting also excludes all capital, land, and credit transactions, on the assumption that these are mere exchanges of existing assets.

On these various budgets, or accounts covering national income and outgo, the President is most concerned over the Administrative Budget. At Yale he had this to say: "It omits our special trust funds and the effect they have on our economy. It neglects changes in assets and inventories. It cannot tell a loan from a straight expenditure. And worst of all it cannot distinguish between operating expenditures and long-term investments." The Administrative Budget, he said, "in relation to the great problems of federal fiscal policy, which are basic to our country in 1962, is not simply irrelevant; it can be actively misleading." And he insisted that too much present-day analysis of the budget is based upon "fiscal myths." One of these myths, apparently, is that deficits are necessarily dangerous, and inflationary.

Never before has a President of the United States condemned a federal budget, in such strong words. Unquestionably our budgetary process could be improved. And many suggestions have been made for so doing. But it would not be improved by the creation of a capital budget, which it appears the President would like. Such a change would be ruinous, just as it has been in country after country which has tried it.

The Administrative Budget has defects of course. One of these is that a program is introduced at small cost, and then year after year keeps on growing in size and outlays. But this, and other defects, would not be corrected by any of the ideas advanced by President Kennedy. (Continued on page six)

Strength For Today

RARE BUT INFLUENTIAL

"He's an exceptional child" "That man is one in a thousand" "Jack is the best man we have in our department" "I regard George as the best student I ever taught."

We often hear such remarks. The exceptional person stands out in everybody's mind. There are a few people in the world whom we call geniuses — that is, people who have set the feet of humanity in new pathways. The word genius comes from a word which means "to beget." Geniuses are those rare persons, like Galileo and Sir Isaac Newton and Dr. Albert Einstein, who usher humanity into new areas of learning — begat new eras of history.

But the so-called exceptional person is not necessarily a genius. He is usually just a boy or girl, man or woman, who stands out as unusually good and gifted. Most parents consider their children exceptional — and they should for it is in just such love and confidence that children find their deepest security. But after all allowance has been made for parental love, for friendship, and for the admiration people have for skill along certain lines, the exceptional person remains considerable of a rarity.

If you have an exceptional child try to cultivate his ability, although be careful that you do not drive him into distraction. If you have some unusual gift or ability yourself, be modest about it but cherish and develop it.

The exceptional person is an important person in the world's life.

Our Doctors Do Good

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When I read a paragraph such as this I find myself shocked and surprised:

"There is no sense in yearning for a long-dead world of large homes in which generations lived under one roof, in which American women had not yet entered business and industry, and devoted themselves to housework and care of the aged, simply to avoid the current problems of medical care of the aged. If we returned to that world, then the doctors would have to return to the era of dedicated doctors who cared for the aged in their homes via house calls at modest fees. Not one doctor would sacrifice his big fat income in the modern world for the life of the old-fashioned doctor to whom human lives were more important than money."

My own experience forces me to come to the defense of the medical profession. I live and, to the surprise of some, write my copy seven days a week and do many other chores, because doctors have kept me alive. I have had such illnesses as meant certain death a few years ago; as a result of medication, operations, blood transfusions and constant care, I have doubled my working time. May I say that I feel about 20 years younger than 20 years ago. I know that only a few years back, anyone with my combination of illnesses, died.

That I live is due to a large number of causes, the most important of which is research in the functions of various parts of the body and in blood chemistry. This research costs millions of dollars and thousands of man-hours for which I did not pay. In fact, I could not pay for this preliminary work done in nearby and distant laboratories and on operating tables in thousands of hospitals.

"The house call at modest fees" is not an ideal to be sought for the prolongation of life. Even the Common Cold, when a cure is found for it, and there is not one yet, will be the result of long and heart-breaking research in biochemical and blood laboratories.

We need not fever but more hospitals. It used to be that appendicitis was a dread disease. The other day, a small boy friend of mine, who had to have his appendix taken out, went into the hospital on a Sunday afternoon; was operated on Monday morning; was up on Tuesday; went home on Thursday; had already forgotten that there had been some pain before the operation. In my childhood, children died of appendicitis or of most internal operations.

I know about my heart doctor who serves a free clinic in his hospital, does special work in a Veterans Hospital and generally is on tap from about 8 to 8:45 a day. There is no 40-hour week for him.

We use a doctor in the country where we have a farm. He is a darn good general practitioner, the kind who makes house calls, doing about 100 miles of driving every summer day. The nearest hospital is about 10 miles from his house and if there is no other way, he drives a patient to the hospital. During many Winters, he goes to nearby universities for a refresher course. I regard him as an heroic character, not only

Other Editors Saying Mouthful From Florida

(Richmond News Leader)

The Supreme Court of Florida delivered itself on June 6 of one of the most refreshing judicial opinions to come our way in many months. Its author is Justice Millard F. Caldwell, one-time Governor and former national director of civil defense, who joined the Florida court in February. Excerpts from the opinion appear at right.

The case at bar was one of those high-flown forays into constitutional law beloved of civil libertarians. An agnostic, a Jew, and a Unitarian in Miami sought to enjoin all religious activities in the Dade County public schools. They especially objected to a Florida statute that requires the daily reading of a brief passage from the Bible, but they also wanted to put an end to the occasional singing of hymns in music classes, the painting of pictures on religious themes, the decoration of school rooms at Christmas time, the saying of grace or other prayers at school functions, and the holding of baccalaureate ceremonies at commencement. In brief, they wanted to wipe out every vestige of religious affirmation in the public school system, even though the Florida law specifically excuses those children who do not wish to listen to the Bible verse or to participate in other activities of a religious nature.

The plaintiffs' contention was that the very act of excusing certain children at their parents' request tends to single out these children and to discriminate against them. This affects their minds and hearts, it was argued, in a manner unlikely ever to be undone. It puts them through a "traumatic experience," and bruises their little psyches.

Justice Caldwell's tart dismissal of this line of argument carries the bell-like ring of common sense. The constitutional prohibition against state support of an "establishment of religion," he says, never on earth was intended to obliterate all references to divine power from public activities in which the state has a part. In a part of his opinion not quoted at right, he noted that Congress itself has:

—Provided chaplains for both houses of Congress, who daily invoke divine blessings

—Commissioned chaplains in the armed forces

—Approved Bible reading and the recital of the Lord's Prayer in opening activities of the District of Columbia's public schools

—Required compulsory chapel attendance on the part of cadets at the service academies

—Authorized the flying of the church flag above the national flag during services at sea by navy chaplains

—Required the President, members of Congress, and Federal judges to subscribe to an oath invoking the aid of the Deity

—Inscribed "In God We Trust" upon the nation's currency

—Designated a national anthem which proclaims the Deity

—Sanctioned the balliff's traditional "God save this honorable court" as Federal courts are opened daily

In the light of all this, as the Florida court pointed out, it is absurd to urge an interpretation of the Constitution by which all religious feeling would be expunged from the schools. An objecting minority of parents have rights that must be respected; they cannot be compelled to engage in religious activities offensive to them. But the majority of parents and taxpayers have rights as well, and it is time to rid ourselves of the notion that in every case, in the name of some frivolous assertion of "liberty," a minority tail has the right to wag the majority dog.

Credit Picture Looks A Bit Dim

By ELMER ROESSNER

The credit picture begins to look a little dim. Of course, it has been looking dim to some observers ever since the end of World War II. But now it is looking a little dimmer.

A National Industrial Conference Board study released today shows that of 183 manufacturers surveyed, many are facing increased pressure to finance customers' purchases. Customers are largely wholesalers and large retailers.

While the manufacturers don't like the idea of increasing credit to customers, many indicate they have softened considerably in the last two years. Their customers say they are being squeezed in profits and working capital, and they have to have financing.

HOW CUSTOMERS ARE CARRIED

The study shows that nearly all manufacturers extend some credit to customers through standard sales terms. Many are using less direct methods, such as carrying inventories, granting dated billings, consigning shipments and leasing products or equipment. All of these terms add up to "take delivery now, pay later."

Deeply significant is this sentence from the Conference Board report: "Many executives surveyed say their firms have involuntarily taken on additional financing burdens because some customers have not met payment terms. Also, a number of companies report that their customers are passing more of their inventory problems back to the manufacturer by reducing their own stocks, which forces the manufacturer to carry larger inventories of finished products."

"Dated billings and consignment shipments are commonly used by a number of respondents, but few say these practices have been increasing recently," the Board adds. Dated billings are those dated for sale, September 25 when the goods are shipped June 25; the manufacturer "carries" the distribution for three months. Consignment shipments are shipments sent to distributors with the understanding that the distributor pays only after the goods are sold.

LOANS TO CUSTOMERS

The textbooks say that loans to customers are generally poisonous to the lender. Nevertheless, the Board reports that while only a small number of manufacturers make direct loans, more than half of those that do report an increase in amounts.

Many firms reported that financing customers was not sound practice, yet competition forced them to do it. Others said that financing and credit policies can build strong customer relations, and that a customer saved in a financial stringency is a customer won.

Also significant in this conclusion: "Many firms agreed that while they are manufacturers first and creditors second, they must combine the two roles to maintain their competitive positions."

The growth of the practice of financing manufacturers' customers has been paralleled in the consumer credit field. For as long as observers have been decrying loose and dangerous credit practices among manufacturers, observers have been bawling the rise of consumer

A Tip For The C-o-f-C

By ROGER BASSON — In my column which appeared during the week of May 17th, I referred to the new corporations which are being formed by the Bangor & Aroostook and the Kansas City Southern railroads. (I think this Release was No. 2050, which means that I have written this number of columns for a similar number of weeks over the years.)

EVERY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SHOULD WAKE UP

These business corporations which are gradually being formed do not change the operations of the railroad passing through your city. Such a "business corporation", however, gives the railroad an opportunity to use its right-of-way, its stations, and its opportunities for business in more profitable ways. Every Chamber of Commerce should now take this matter up with the railroad passing through its city. Said railroad enlarging its facilities means a profit, which should mean an advantage to your city as well as to the stockholders of the railroad.

The railroad passenger business is dead and every community should recognize this as soon as possible. Otherwise, the railroad stockholder perhaps should consider alternatives in other transportation fields. SUGGESTIONS TO CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

Every Chamber of Commerce at its next Directors' meeting should appoint a Railroad Committee. This Railroad Committee should meet and carefully go over the property of the one or more railroads passing through its city. It further should ask the city tax assessors for a rough map of the property which these one or more railroads own in said city. In fact, it might be well to have the Chairman of the Tax Assessment Committee present at the next meeting of the Railroad Committee. I fear that the railroad would hesitate to give a Chamber of Commerce a list of all its land holdings, even in said city; hence such a list must come from the tax assessors.

One of the first things for this Railroad Committee to consider is the amount of idle track which now exists. Certainly the railroads will want no more tracks, and probably much of its present track could be abandoned, enabling land to be utilized for other purposes. If the railroad company refuses to sell or use such land, then the assessors should feel free to raise the tax assessments thereon. The Railroad Committee can explain to the railroad company authorities that it wishes to provide some additional earnings for the railroad rather than handicap them by higher taxes.

FORMATION OF "BUSINESS CORPORATION" BY A RAILROAD

As suggested above, there are many things which a railroad company can do without any additional legislation. The Bangor & Albany Railroad, which runs through Wellesley, Mass., has two beautiful stone stations built during prosperous times. One of these it has rented to a clothes cleaning establishment, with a small waiting room for passengers. The other railroad station, one mile beyond, is being demolished by the railroad company which will sell the land for various purposes.

In almost every community there is a shortage of good parking spaces at the present time. There are sections of vacant land which the railroad company has which could be rented for parking lots. The community and also give constantly increasing revenue to the railroad companies from whom it would collect money through the leases of the property.

IMPORTANCE OF EVERY RAILROAD COMPANY GETTING PERMISSION FROM THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION TO GO INTO OUTSIDE BUSINESS

Such "outside businesses" vary from the operation of buses to the leasing of supermarkets and small factories. This is a real opportunity for railroads to discover what can be done. In the case of the Bangor & (Continued on Page 6)

Harris-Flake Wedding Is Held In Conetoe

Mrs. Richard Franklin Harris

CONETOE — In wedding rites Sunday afternoon, June 24, at five-thirty o'clock in the Conetoe Methodist Church in Conetoe, Miss Dorothy Jean Flake became the bride of Richard Franklin Harris. The Rev. Robert Baldrige officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Vows were spoken before an altar with seven-branched candelabras holding white cathedral candles and emerald green palms and bridal greenery. A tall basket of white gladioli rose behind an opened Bible marked with a single white carnation. Pews were marked with white satin ribbons.

Prior to the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Ellen Knox of Tarboro, organist, and Mr. Wilbur Harris, brother of the groom, who sang "Because" and "Whither Thou Goest." For the benediction Mr. Harris sang "The Lord's Prayer," as the couple knelt on a satin covered pillow. Traditional marches were played for the processional and recessional.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ernest Louis Flake, of Greenville. She was gowning in a formal length design of imported lace on bridal taffeta with a sabrina fashioned neckline. The neckline was trimmed with rose lace appliques, re-embroidered in iridescent sequins. The long fitted sleeves buttoned with bridal buttons and formed points over the hands. Her bouffant skirt ended in a chapel train.

The fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a queen's crown of lace, outlined with pin wheel rosettes aglow with pearl tear drops. She carried a white lace covered prayer book centered with a white hybrid orchid and showered with bridal streamers extending from the center.

Miss Jessie Ellis of New Bern and Tarboro was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of emerald green crystallette, with matching bow and back bustle. The other honor attendant was Miss Karen Brown of Roduco, college roommate of the bride, who wore a similar dress. Their headpieces were matching cabbage roses, and they carried cascade bouquets of yellow mixed flowers with green and yellow streamers.

Clyde Walton Harris of Conetoe, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. Benjie Whitehurst of Conetoe and Al Averette of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Flake wore a pink nylon lace over taffeta sheath dress with matching cape and white accessories. Her costume was complimented with a pink cymbidium orchid.

Mrs. Harris, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a blue lace dress with the neckline embroidered in pearls and blue accessories. Her corsage was also a pink cymbidium orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony the bridal couple received in the vestibule of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Louis Flake of Greenville. She is a 1962 graduate of East Carolina College and was recognized at Awards Day as Outstanding Senior Woman. She was also chosen to represent East Carolina College in the 1961-1962 national publication, "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges." She will be teaching English at Tarboro High School next year.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Walton Harris of Conetoe. He is a graduate of Tarboro High School and is now employed by Conetoe Supply, Inc.

For her traveling costume, the bride changed into a white cotton dress with a full skirt of pink embroidered bouquets and matching accessories. Her corsage was the orchid lifted from her prayer book.

After-Rehearsal Party
On Saturday night, June 23, following the wedding rehearsal of Miss Jean Flake and Richard Harris, a cake-cutting was held in the Conetoe Community Building honoring the bridal party, relatives, and friends.

Hosts and hostesses for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Porter, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Harris, who presented the bridal couple with a gift.
Mr. and Mrs. Alton Parker of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. W. B. Pitt of Pinetops greeted the guests.

Traditional bridal colors of green and white were used in the decorations. The table was covered with a white satin cloth with net and lace. Three-tiered candelabras holding white candles and a center piece of crystal epergne arranged with white roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and accented with French bridal tulle were used on the table. The three-tiered wedding cake was served at one end of the table by Mrs. Clyde W. Harris, mother of the bridegroom. After the bride and bridegroom had cut the first slice, Mrs. Sam L. Flake, mother of the bride, served punch from a crystal punch bowl. The guests helped themselves to various bridal delicacies.

Parkers Chapel Scene Of Sutton Rites

Mrs. Norman Ray Sutton

Miss Linda Kay Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie F. Edwards, was married to Norman Ray Sutton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Sutton, in the Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, June 24. The Reverend Milton Worthington officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Their vows were taken before an altar of white gladioli trimmed with emerald bridal greenery, surrounded by branched wrought-iron candelabras. Miss Anglene Haddock provided the music and Lorana Stocks assisted.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with elongated bodice, medieval neckline, and the traditional long sleeves ending in rilla points over her hands. Her voluminous skirt featured taffeta bows and cascaded into a chapel length train. She wore a French illusion veil crowned with white cultured pearls. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid.

Miss Gloria Sorrells of Franklin Springs, Ga., was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Ernestine Sutton, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Mary Rose Bell of Havelock, Miss Nancy Braxton and Mrs. Maureen Evans of Greenville. They wore red taffeta dresses overlaid with matching lace backed with a red satin bow. Their hats and shoes were of matching color and they wore short white gloves they carried bouquets of peppermint carnations.

Mary Jo Saunders, carrying a basket of white rose petals, served as flower girl.

Richard Edwards, brother of the bride, served as ring bearer. He carried a white satin pillow with lilies of the valley streamers.

David Earl Tripp served as best man. Ushers were Ernest Sutton, uncle of the bridegroom, J. F. Edwards, brother of the bride, Ruben Davis, and W. L. Rollins, Jr. of Greenville.

For travel, the bride selected a yellow batiste dress with matching hat and black patent shoes and bag. She wore the orchid from her prayer book.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Sutton will reside at the corner of 9th and Washington Street, Greenville.

Cake Cutting

Following the rehearsal on Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards gave the wedding party a cake cutting in their home at 1717 Morningside Place.

The cake was served from a table entered with white and pink flowers, a white linen cloth overlaid with lace was used. Mrs. Norman F. Sutton, mother of the groom, served the punch, and Mrs. Edwards served the wedding cake.

Mrs. Mary Goulet, clinical instructor at Quincy Hospital in Massachusetts, says flatly: "There is no substitute in the world for soap and water—especially when combined with common sense."

And it must be remembered that we have not only the Administrative Budget, but also the regular publication of total cash inflow and outgo of the government. Between them we can get as much detail as to what the government, in all of its ramifications, is doing as we could under any other system. In certain areas no facts are available, for security reasons. But a new budgetary system would not change this.

We may be using myths to appraise the budget. But they are myths which have a good background.

'Fireball' Says Le Mans Race Is Too Doggone Long

LE MANS, France (AP)—American stock car star Glenn "Fireball" Roberts today had four Southern-accented words for the 24-hour Le Mans motor car endurance race:

"It's too doggone long."

The lanky driver from Daytona Beach, Fla., who appeared in the Le Mans classic for the first time Sunday, added:

"Racing in Le Mans was a great experience for me as a driver. It's a real test of skill."

Fireball, teamed with Nyack, N.Y., sportsman Bob Grossman in a 2.9-liter Ferrari, turned in a rousing performance on the twisting Le Mans circuit before quarter of a million spectators. Two heart-breaking pit-stops because of mechanical trouble in the final hours cost the Roberts-Grossman racer third place. They ended up sixth among the elite 18 finishers among the field of 55 starting cars.

The grandstand crowd in front of the pits made Fireball and Grossman sentimental favorites as the repair stops added drama to the otherwise lackluster race. The 12-cylinder factor Ferrari driven by winners Phil Hill of Santa Monica, California, and Olivier Gendebien of Belgium dominated the race from the start.

When the grind ended, the crowd poured out on the asphalt track and mobbed Fireball and the other racers as they climbed wearily from their cars.

"Fire—an-book. Fire—ah—book!" they screamed, crowding around Fireball who was leaning on his grimy racer in a sweat-soaked jumper.

"These folks are mighty friendly," said "Fireball" as he signed autographs.

Would Fireball come back to Le Mans next year?

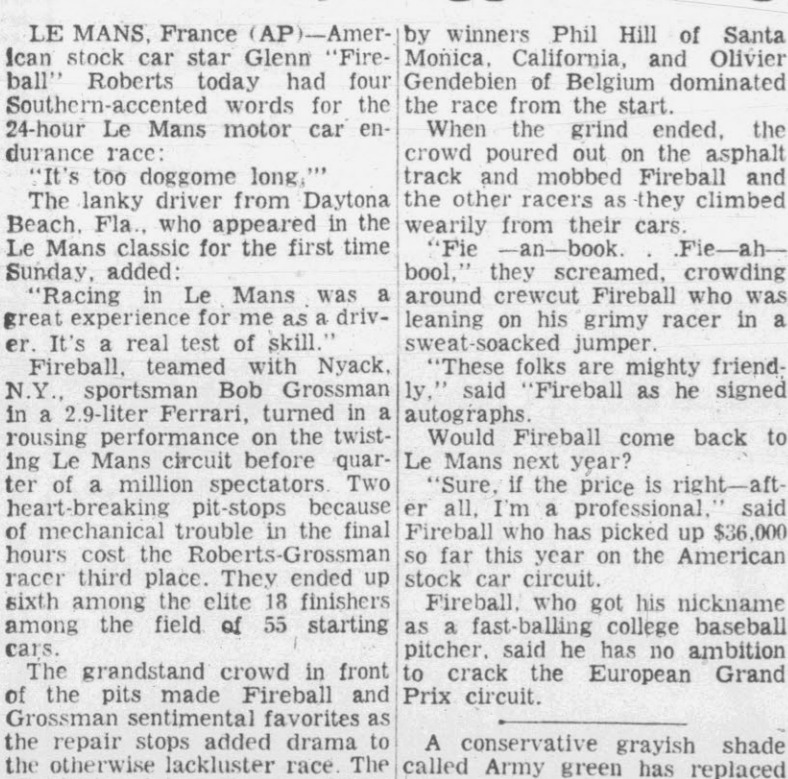

"Sure, if the price is right—after all, I'm a professional," said Fireball who has picked up $36,000 so far this year on the American stock car circuit.

Fireball, who got his nickname as a fast-balling college baseball pitcher, said he has no ambition to crack the European Grand Prix circuit.

Yanks Top Detroit In 22-Inning Drama

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
When it comes to staging a history-making baseball production, two unlikely candidates for starring roles would be a third-string outfielder named Jack Reed and a second-line relief pitcher named Jim Bouton.

But Reed and Bouton shared the spotlight Sunday as the New York Yankees overcame the Detroit Tigers in a 22-inning American League drama that lasted exactly seven hours. Reed provided the decisive punch, his first big league homer with a man on in the 22nd, and Bouton supplied the key pitching, seven innings of three-hit relief.

In time, the game at Tiger Stadium was the longest ever played in the majors. In innings only four other big league marathons have gone further. It started off as a Yankee runaway as they bombed Frank Lary for six runs in the first and another run in the second. While the Tigers were catching up and holding on, a succession of five Detroit pitchers shut out the Yankees for 19 innings before Reed blasted Phil Regan.

Long before the Yankee-Tiger duel was settled, other AL action was in the books. First-place Cleveland beat Washington 4-2 after losing the opener of the doubleheader to the Senators 3-1; Los Angeles trimmed Minnesota twice, 3-2 in 10 innings and 7-6, dropping the Twins a game and a half behind the Indians; Chicago handed Kansas City its seventh straight defeat, 6-1, then lost to the Athletics 5-2; and Boston downed Baltimore twice, 3-2 and 6-5.

In the National League—Cincinnati outscored front-running Los Angeles 12-10; San Francisco tripped Milwaukee 3-1; Chicago swept Pittsburgh 4-3 and 8-4; and Philadelphia split with St. Louis, the Phils taking the first game 3-1 and the Cardinals winning the second 5-1. Houston's doubleheader with the Mets at New York was rained out.

Clete Boyer climaxed the Yankees' big burst against Lary in the first with a three-run homer, but the Tigers quickly routed New York starter Bob Turley. He was lifted with one out in the first after yielding two walks, a homer to rookie Purnal Goldy, then another walk. Another Yankee run came across in the second, then Detroit pushed three in off Jim Coates in the third and drew even against Bill Stafford in the sixth when Bill Bruton scored on Rocky Colavito's single — his second of seven hits for the long day.

From then until the 22nd it was pitching, defense and a flurry of missed chances. In overtime, the Tigers had several opportunities to break it open—particularly in the 11th, when Colavito's triple and intentional walks filled the bases with none out. The threat, as Chico Fernandez lined out to short left and Dick Brown fouled off to a double play on a squeeze bunt.

With Regan on the mound as Detroit's seventh pitcher in the 22nd, Roger Maris drew a one-out walk and Reed—a defensive replacement for the hobbled Mickey Mantle—drove one into the seats in left. Colavito stirred the crowd in the last of the 22nd when he singled with two out, but Norm Cash filed to left for Detroit's 66th and final out.

Bouton, also the seventh pitcher for the Yankees, yielded just three singles and two walks in his seven-inning stint.

The major league record for longest game by innings is the historic 26-inning 1-1 tie between Brooklyn and Boston in 1920. The American League mark is 24 innings—Detroit-Philadelphia in 1945 and Philadelphia-Boston in 1906.

The Yanks used 21 players, had 85 official at-bats, 20 hits, 9 walks, and left 21 men on base. The Tigers used 22 men, had 82 at-bats, 19 hits, 10 walks and stranded 22.

Washington left-hander Claude Osteen held Cleveland to six hits in the Senators' victory, while Harry Bright chipped in with a homer and key single. The Indians gained a split with the aid of two unearned runs in the second game. Chuck Essegian, who homered earlier, scored the tying run on Bob Johnson's throwing error in the sixth and Bubba Phillips then singled across the clincher. Frank Funk won in relief and the loss went to Pete Burnside. Jim Perry was Cleveland's loser in the opener.

Billy Moran keyed the Angels' sweep over the Twins with a vital single in the first game and a decisive homer in the second. Albie Pearson and Moran singled in the top of the 10th of the opener, and Leon Wagner broke the 2-2 tie with a sacrifice fly. In the second game, Minnesota went ahead 6-5 in the eighth, but homers by Joe Koppe and Moran—his second of the day—won it for the Angels in the ninth. Twenty pitchers worked in the doubleheader, with Dean Chance and Jack Spring the winners. Dick Stigman and Georges Maranda the losers.

Ray Herbert scattered six hits as the White Sox whipped Kansas City, but the A's ended their losing string in the second game, felling Early Wynn's fourth bid for his 296th career victory. They chased the 42-year-old right-hander with six singles in the second for three runs, wiping out a 2-0 Chicago lead. Manny Jimenez of the A's collected four hits in the second game, boosting his league-leading average to .343 and fellow rookie Diego Segul was Kansas City's winning pitcher.

Bill Monbouquette and Gene Conley turned in complete game jobs for the Red Sox, while homers by Bob Tillman and Gary Geiger helped kavo the Orioles. Tillman connected in the ninth inning of the opener, snapping a 2-2 tie, and Geiger homered twice in the second game.

Greenville Legion Nine Roars Past Roanoke Rapids To Lead League

League II Standings

Greenville	7	1
Rocky Mount	7	2
Raleigh	3	8
Ahoskie	3	8
Roanoke Rapids	1	8

Greenville's American Legion Juniors Saturday roared past Roanoke Rapids, 16-2, and grabbed undisputed possession of first place in League II play as Ahoskie downed Rocky Mount, 9-1.

Local hurlers Jimmy Rodgers and Jesse Thomas, who relieved Rodgers in the sixth inning, limited Roanoke Rapids to five hits while Greenville banged away at two Roanoke Rapids moundmen for 14 hits, including a three-run home run by Godfrey Little.

Leading the plate assault for Greenville were Little, Rommie Brock and Bobby Hogwood. Little collected his homer, a triple and a single in four official trips to bat while Brock and Hogwood three singles each in five at-bats.

Rodgers handcuffed the visitors on two hits during his six innings. Meantime, Greenville gave the little righthander a 13-0 bulge. Little's homer sparked a five-run first inning before the locals added two in the second, five more in the third and a single run in the fourth.

Roanoke Rapids scored both their runs in the sixth frame on two safeties, a walk and two Greenville errors. Thomas then settled down to blank the visitors the rest of the way, yielding only one hit, a single in the eighth. Greenville added one run in the seventh and its final two markers in the eighth.

Coach Ray Pennington's league-leading squad was on the road today for an engagement with third-place Raleigh before moving to Roanoke Rapids for a game there Tuesday afternoon.

Rodgers' performance Saturday gained him a third straight victory of the season for the local Legionnaires. He has not yet been beaten.

Optimists And Exchange Lose In Little League

NORTH STATE
Coca-Cola went into extra innings Saturday to down Optimist, 3-2, in a North State League contest at Elm Street Park.

Ralph Vincent, who led Coca-Cola at the plate with three for five, drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the bottom of the eighth. His single scored Steve Williams who had reached first when hit by pitched ball and advanced to third on a single by Dick Clark. The winning run was the second driven in by Vincent who had doubled Clark home in the Coca-Cola third to knot the count at 2-2. Clark had reached first on a single and had been moved into scoring position by William Moye, Coke's starting pitcher.

Moye tied the local Little League record by striking out 14 batters in the six innings he worked. He walked five and yielded four hits before giving way to Vincent in the seventh. Vincent gained credit for the victory.

Al Wainwright and Tony Whitehurst shared mound duties for the Optimists. Whitehurst came on in the sixth and absorbed the loss.

Coca-Cola scored first on two hits in the second inning before the Optimists collected all their runs on a long double by Wayne Heath in the third. Heath's blow scored Wainwright and ib Roberts.

Today's North State League contest matches the Optimists and the Jaycees at 5 p.m. in Guy Smith Park.

Score by innings:

TAR HEEL
The Elks' Jackie Speight opened the eighth inning with a safety and then raced around to score on an error as his mates downed the Exchange 5-4 in Tar Heel League action at Elm Street Park Saturday.

The game went into extra innings after Exchange had knotted the score at 4-4 in the fifth on two singles, a walk and a fielder's choice.

The Elks opened the scoring with three runs in the bottom of the first on two free passes. Coca-Cola ... 011 000 01—3 12 3 a single and a two-run double by Speight. Speight and Russell Smith, each with two for four, and Harrison Gaskins, with two for three, led the Elks' seven-hit attack.

Charles King and David Springgett led Exchange with two hits each in five official at-bats. Exchange tied the score at 3-3 in the top of the third on the strength of Springgett's two-base hit following a walk, two Elks errors and a single by King.

Billy Taylor, who relieved Mike White for Exchange in the sixth inning, was charged with the loss. Russell Smith, who took over for Elks starter Louis Gaylord in the sixth, was credited with the victory.

Expansion Talk Is Before League
BOSTON (AP)—Expansion talk was expected to be the main topic of conversation today as the young American Football League opens its annual off-season meetings.

Franchise applications have been received from Atlanta, Ga., New Orleans and Kansas City. Representatives from the cities have been invited to attend the 3-day meetings.

Financier Warren Lockwood of Silver Springs, Md., who represents a Kansas City syndicate, and V. McCane Jr. of Atlanta, and David F. Dixon of New Orleans each has posted $25,000 in earnest money.

Another item of business is a decision whether to appeal a U.S. District Court ruling against the AFL in its anti-trust suit against the rival National Football League.

Aussies Favored At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The 76th Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships opened today, with the Australians favored to take the singles titles and the Americans as their principal challengers.

Rod Laver, last year's winner of the men's crown, was top seed and a heavy choice to do it again. Margaret Smith was the favorite to win the women's section, with Maria Bueno of Brazil and Darlene Hard of Long Beach, Calif., rated her most dangerous rivals.

The Australians dominated the first day's program, which was devoted entirely to the first round of the men's singles. There were 25 Australians in the first round, compared with 16 Americans and 15 Britons.

An official of the All-England Club, which runs the Wimbledon tournament, said the Australian entry is the biggest of all time.

Hole-In-One
Billy Jenkins carded a hole-in-one Saturday, the first of his golfing career, on the third hole of the Greenville Golf and Country Club course. Jenkins, playing in a four-some including Milton Williamson, Dr. Dan Wright and Julian White, saw his 3-iron tee shot drop from 140 yards away on the par three hole.

His ace was the fifth hole-in-one recorded this year on the local course.

Harold Johnson Would Try For Heavyweights
BERLIN, Germany (AP)—Harold Johnson said today he hopes to get a crack at the world heavyweight title soon.

"Before I challenge the heavyweight champ, I want to see whether it's (Floyd) Patterson or (Sonny) Liston," Johnson said. Patterson is to defend his title against Liston in September.

I hope to have some more European title defenses before then.

Johnson successfully defended his world light heavyweight title against highly rated German Gustav Scholz Saturday. The champion won a unanimous decision in a 15-rounder, outboxing the clever German fighter.

After a Naples vacation, Johnson is to sail back to the United States. His wife Mildred is with him.

The 33-year-old fighter will have little trouble switching to the heavyweight class. He tipped the scales at 172 1/2 pounds for his Saturday bout.

Pitching—Juan Marichal, Giants—Marichal pitched a four-hitter for his 11th triumph as the Giants defeated Warren Spahn and the Milwaukee Braves 3-1 on Willie Mays' two-run double in the fifth inning.

Co-Favorites In Western Open

CHICAGO (AP)—Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus are co-favorites to win the Western Open Golf Championship which begins Thursday at the tough Medinah No. 3 course.

Palmer, the Masters Champion who lost to Nicklaus in a playoff for the U.S. Open title, will be defending the Western crown he won last year at Grand Rapids, Mich.

The top golfers in the nation will be on hand including the pro circuit's top 30 money winners this year and the first 12 finishers in the U.S. Open.

This group includes Phil Rodgers, Bobby Nichols, Gay Brewer, Gary Player, Tommy Jacobs, Gene Littler, Billy Maxwell, Doug Ford, Art Wall and Doug Sanders. Medinah course No. 3 is a championship test which should give the pros a rough time. The course is long, tight and appears to be cut out of a forest of spreading oaks.

Par is 36-35-71, the same as it was in 1949 when Cary Middlecoff set the competitive course record with a 67 in winning the U.S. Open but still failed to beat par. However, in 1949 the course measured 6,936 yards. It now is 7,110 yards.

LAST CHANCE VALLEY

BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

CHAPTER 1
On the eleventh day after leaving the camp Thorpe McAfee realized they were going to die. The days before there had been the hope that they would stumble across a water hole in the barren hills, or run across a prospector with a burro load of supplies and water. Now even that possibility seemed to be gone. He and Jim Varney had finished the last of their drinking water the day before, and they'd spent the night and most of the day in the shade of a broken-down trail wagon in the foothills of the Funeral Range. Thorpe guessed it had been abandoned there years before by a party of west-bound emigrants. Probably those unfortunate men had run out of water. There had been two mounds near the stricken wagon and the bones of several oxen.

Thorpe and Jim were coming out of the Furnerals now, stumbling down a mile-wide alluvial deposit, slate-blue in color, which fanned out over the valley floor below.

Thorpe was in the lead, a tall man, over six feet, twenty-five pounds underweight now, with big shoulders, and lines around his brown eyes.

He stumbled and tripped down an ancient water course, lurching around huge boulders which had been swept down from the hills generations before.

Jim Varney was a man already three quarters dead, dehydrated, his tongue thick in his mouth, as he followed Thorpe down the watercourse to the valley floor.

Thorpe could hear Jim cursing as he'd cursed now for nearly eleven days since they'd left their camp, trying to find their way back to a settlement on foot, knowing the odds against their making it.

In the brief shade of a huge, sun-broiled boulder, Thorpe paused for a moment, waiting for Varney to come up. Jim had always been a fairer slender man, and he looked like a skeleton now; his cheeks sunken, bony nose protruding, his deep-set blue eyes bloodshot and practically blind. Thorpe had to put out a hand to stop him or he would have gone on.

"Rest here," Thorpe mumbled in a voice which did not sound human. His tongue was swollen and black in his mouth, his lips parched and cracked from the heat.

Varney sank down against the boulder as Thorpe still stood upright, trying to peer through the shimmering heat of the valley below them. There was another mountain range on the other side of the valley, which he judged to be fifteen or twenty miles wide at this point, sandy, broken up with alkali flats, treeless as far as he could see.

Thorpe tried to figure his course as they came out of the Funeral Range. They'd been moving deep west into the sun after leaving the shade of the abandoned wagon, and therefore this must be the fabulous Death Valley, dry as a bone with only a few tiny water holes scattered here and there.

Jim Varney was saying dumbly, "I'll kill them. I'll kill both of them."

Thorpe McAfee sat down in the narrowing edge of shade formed by the boulder and said nothing. He had every intention, though, of doing himself exactly what Jim Varney intended to do the day they ran across Ben Lacey and Jojo Hoagland — their partners who'd left them two months ago to return to Boulder City with the small fortune in gold dust the four had washed from a dried creek bed along the east slope of the Funeral Range.

The four had made a good strike in the Furnerals, collecting probably fifteen thousand dollars in dust. Since it appeared there was plenty more gold in the bed, Thorpe had suggested that Lacey and Hoagland go to Boulder City with the two mounts and the pack animals to pick up needed supplies, and deposit the dust in the local bank.

Thorpe knew the two men who remained would have skinny returns until the other two returned to camp with provisions. He had thought he could wait it out, and Jim Varney had agreed to stay with him. Jim had come out from Nebraska with Thorpe; they'd known each other for a long time.

Five weeks later, after having existed for more than a week on practically nothing, they had come to the conclusion that their partners had run out on them.

Varney was saying now in that strange, croaking voice, "Where the devil are we, Thorpe?"

"I figure we've stumbled into Death Valley," Thorpe told him. "Death Valley . . . the Funeral Range . . ." Jim mumbled. "Rest here," Thorpe said again. "Then we'll try to move along the west edge of the valley."

Varney was sitting with his back against the rock, scooping up handfuls of sand and letting it slide through his fingers. He said loudly, "Go ahead, Thorpe. I'll catch up with you."

Thorpe shook his head. "Whatever is ahead, we'll make it together."

Thorpe had to lift Varney to his feet when they started down the watercourse again. Reaching the floor of the valley minutes later, they turned north, moving along the west edge of the foothills of the Funeral Range.

Thorpe was again in the lead, finding the going even more difficult because of the soft sand. After a while Thorpe became conscious he was alone. Varney was down in the sand. Thorpe had to return to lift the lighter man to his feet and get him going again.

Varney repeated, "Kill them." They crossed an alkali flat and went through a thicket of mes-quite on the other side. There they had to cross a series of low sand dunes. As the two men struggled up over the last of the dunes, both fell down. This was it, Thorpe thought.

They lay in the sand, Varney almost face down, breathing heavily. With effort, Thorpe lifted his head to look around, and for a moment he fancied he saw a grove of trees off in the distance.

He stared at the trees for some time, realizing at last that he was looking at a mirage. He'd had visions of many such groves that day, groves with cool streams flowing through them; groves which proved to be empty sand wastes.

As Thorpe lay there on his stomach, raised on his elbows to stare at the mirage, he saw something more fantastic. A tall, slender girl, wearing faded blue levis, a checked shirt, topped by a hat, was striding in her boots toward them, and over her shoulder was slung a big metal canteen.

It looked bigger and bigger as Thorpe watched the girl coming closer and closer. This was the way a man died, seeing a beautiful girl with a canteen of water coming toward him, while the sun was hot enough to burst his temples.

The vision became more impossible. She had hair the color of burnished copper. She was remarkably beautiful, with a perfectly shaped nose, mocking blue eyes and a strange, contemptuous smile on her face.

He was thinking that this could not be an angel. Angels did not have such a definite shape, and mocking eyes. An angel would be kind and gentle, taking those two lost souls into custody.

Now the vision was kneeling down beside him. She unscrewed the canteen and thrust it toward him. This surely was a mirage, and he wanted to laugh, an angel in blue levis and checked shirt!

ALEXANDER, N.Y. (AP)—Harold Merle, 23, who quit high school six years ago but returned later to finish, found himself the commencement speaker when his class graduated. His advice: "Don't quit school."

"Stay in school at the proper age and take all that is offered," he told his classmates at Alexander Central School at Saturday's commencement.

Merle, married and the father of two children, plans to continue his education at a technical school for electronics.

Studying for his high school diploma, Merle got a part-time job as a mechanic to support his family.

Return To Cuba From Russia

HAVANA (AP)—Stepping ashore to the strains of the Cuban and Soviet national anthems, 948 young peasants returned home Sunday aboard the Soviet liner Gruzia after spending a year studying at Soviet Union agriculture schools.

"We return with the technical and political knowledge necessary to put ourselves at the revolution's service," said one of the leaders.

U.S. Soldier Denies He Cooperated With Reds

By MALCOLM W. BROWN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. soldier has denied Communist claims he denounced the United States while a prisoner of Viet Cong guerrillas. He charged the Reds tried to brainwash him at gunpoint.

Spec. 4 George F. Fryett Jr. of California, released Sunday after six months captivity, told U.S. officials he did not cooperate with the Communists despite their attempts to indoctrinate him politically.

The Viet Cong in a recent broadcast claimed Fryett, 26, had told them he learned he was "an accomplice of the criminal maneuver of U.S. imperialism and the Diem administration of South Viet Nam."

The broadcast quoted Fryett as saying: "The only thing I can say is that I am very sorry for having played a role in the forces that are being exploited in South Viet Nam. The truth has been concealed from the American public. This situation should not be allowed to continue."

Fryett told officials here that, other than gun threats during some of the brainwashing sessions, his captors did not mistreat him.

He said he had been under heavy guard all during his captivity and was bound most of the time. He said he had made one unsuccessful escape try. Fryett was not allowed to see newsmen. He was described as tired but apparently in good health. Officials said he had lost about 25 pounds since he disappeared Christmas Day.

The soldier said he was set free about 60 miles north of Saigon near the village of Cham Thang and put on a bus. He said he had no idea he was to be released until Sunday morning.

During his captivity, the Viet Cong moved Fryett frequently. Last week a band of about 25 armed rebels marched Fryett for four days through the woods toward Cham Thang. Near the village they freed their captive, gave him civilian clothes, handed him 100 plasters—73 cents—and flagged down a bus for him.

Fryett rode into the village where he reported to a ranger station. Later he was flown by helicopter into Saigon and given a medical checkup and preliminary interrogation.

SPY SLAIN
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—An Albanian spy was killed in a clash with Yugoslav security agents Saturday night in the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier area, Tanjug, Communist Yugoslavia's official news agency, said Sunday.

Modern Response To Challenge Of Alcoholism Shows Real Progress

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
The blight of a tragic sickness touches perhaps a majority of families across this broad land.

The sickness — alcoholism, the uncontrolled and seemingly uncontrollable drinking by nearly five million Americans.

It robs human brains, destroys homes, marriages, careers. It is the nation's fourth greatest health problem. There is no miracle pill to ease its misery. It is estimated one in every 15 teen-agers is likely to become an alcoholic.

Were this disease caused by a bug or virus — as pills is — tremendous public interest and effort might be mobilized to halt its devastating human, social and economic losses.

But its root is alcohol, the same alcohol that millions use safely. Doctors long have recognized alcoholism as a real sickness. The alcoholic simply cannot drink normally. He, or she, falls into the grip of alcoholic drink for complex emotional and physical reasons. Once there, he's enslaved by alcohol, unless he abandons it completely.

Unsuspected alcohol in a cough medicine triggered one middle-aged man — dry for many years — into an unwanted alcoholic binge. Another was seized by his old uncontrollable urge to drink when he breathed fumes on a warm day from alcoholic antifreeze in an automobile radiator.

Mankind has found comfort, conviviality, relief of tensions — and sometimes oblivion — in alcohol since he first learned some foodstuffs could be fermented or distilled into intoxicating beverages.

Down through history, a percentage of men, women and even youngsters have fallen victims to alcoholism.

Society's historic reactions toward control have been jail, ostracism, scorn, nagging, the accusation it's all due to moral weakness.

Prohibition has been tried, and missed the mark.

Now there are encouraging signs of real progress.

1. Alcoholics Anonymous has helped thousands stop their drinking, completely.

2. Allied groups, Al-Anon and Alateen, are helping wives, husbands, children, and friends understand the complexities of alcoholism and to render effective help. It inevitably becomes a family problem, says Mrs. Marty Mann, executive director of the National Council of Alcoholism.

3. Alcoholics now are seeking treatment at an earlier age, many in their late 20s or 30s, compared with an average age in the 40s and 50s a few years back. Earlier treatment improves chances of success.

4. Physicians have a few more helpful techniques of treatment, and more understanding, too. States have established 158 clinics to treat alcoholism.

5. Hidden alcoholics, especially women, are coming forward, recognizing their sickness, seeking help.

6. Industry and unions are increasingly and successfully dealing with alcoholism as a sickness, not moral degeneracy. But old attitudes still prevail in many places as represented by one paper mill president who declares, "If anyone comes to work with alcohol on his breath, he doesn't last long. If he doesn't have judgment enough not to abuse the liquor, then that is his hard luck and the quicker he's off the payroll, the better for the company."

7. National population is increasing, but the number of alcoholics per 100,000 population possibly is not increasing, says Mark Keller, editor of the authoritative Quarterly Journal for Studies of Alcohol. The total actual number of alcoholics seems to be less than would have been predicted 10 years ago according to estimates then.

8. And, says Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the National Council, "Alcoholism is not a hopeless disease, even though the alcoholic may well not succeed the first time he tries to give up drinking."

The proof is that hundreds of thousands of former alcoholics now live useful, normal, and often highly successful lives — without alcohol.

Out of the 70 to 75 million Americans who drink occasionally, or even daily, 4 1/2 to 5 million have become compulsive drinkers — although an accurate count is hard to come by. The alcoholic is defined by Mrs. Mann as "anyone whose drinking causes a continuing problem in any department of life."

The public image of alcoholics concentrated on skid row is erroneous. Actually, says the council, only 3 per cent are found there among the homeless and the chronically unemployed.

Today's alcoholic may be a businessman, lawyer, government official, doctor, bus driver, factory worker, baker, housewife — anyone, including some teen-agers.

Usually it takes years before the drinking becomes uncontrolled. A small percentage of persons leap into full-blown alcoholism after the first few drinks.

Experts say alcoholism has complex psychological, physiological and social causes. The alcoholic becomes dependent on alcohol as a way of life, even though he frequently succeeds in going on the wagon for periods of time.

Fundamentally, says Mrs. Mann only the alcoholic can truly help himself. His first step is to recognize he's ill, that drink is a severe problem. Usually he won't do this until the damage to health, home, or job becomes obvious.

His enormously difficult decision is that he must throw away the crutch he is leaning on, the crutch which is destroying him. Life without a bottle?

One helpful beginning, for himself or family, lies in the alcoholism information centers operated by many of the council's 75 local chapters, Mrs. Mann adds. "He can walk in and find neutral ground, knowing he'll just find information, not treatment. He can walk in knowing that a trap door is not about to be sprung, with a noose around his neck."

This is one of the means now by which the alcoholic and distraught family members are finding there are more and more hands stretched out to help combat the sickness.

House Damaged For Trapped Cat

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Joseph Bianchini family's pet cat wandered into a small opening in the wall of their home Saturday night and started meowing something terrible when it couldn't get out.

Bianchini took a hatchet and opened a three-foot hole in the kitchen ceiling. He took up the wall to wall carpeting and chopped through the floor in the bedroom. He made air holes along the walls.

Neighbors gathered. Early Sunday morning the police came. About 9:15 the cat came out of the wall the same way he had gone in.

Claimed He Wed 36,000 Couples

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dawson Martin Yerkes, "the marry-squy of Milbourne," who claimed to have married more couples than any single public official, died Sunday.

Yerkes, 80, a justice of the peace in suburban Milbourne since 1933, married 36,000 couples during his tenure.

He also claimed the record for marriages in a day, 44; marriages in a week, 69; and marriages in a year, 1,948.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued sharply lower in heavy trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks took a substantial loss of 2.10 to 200.40 at noon, with industrials off 3.00, rails off 1.20, and utilities off .80.

Key stocks fell along a broad front, with most losses fractional but enough ranking to a point or more to drag the averages down. The weekend news brought nothing to inspire more bullish thinking. The decline continued where last week's sharp selloff ended. Steels, motors, rails chemicals, tobacco, drugs, rubbers, electrical equipments and utilities joined the retreat. Airlines were mixed. A few of the "growth" stocks which have taken such heavy losses were up.

Ford was off a fraction despite settlement of the strike at its Cleveland stamping plant. GM was easy. Chrysler off a fraction. Losses of about 2 points were taken by Texaco and Du Pont. Down around a point were Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck, Goodrich, Liggett & Myers, Lorillard and IBM.

Johns-Manville advanced about a point. Xerox gained more than a point and Polaroid added about 2. Fractional gains were posted for Litton Industries, Radio Corp., Eastman Kodak and International Telephone.

Prices moved irregularly lower in fairly active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds declined.

Receipts increased 8.9 per cent over the corresponding quarter period last year, totaling $68,602.62 for this year and $62,981.63 for last year.

Total mail volume for the quarter this year was 3,889,000 pieces, compared to 3,711,000 pieces for the same time last year. Broken down, the outgoing mail for the quarter this year was 1,382,000 compared to 1,283,000 for the same time last year — a difference of 99,000 pieces.

Moose ...

proud of your achievements in this part of the country." He noted that the Greenville affair was one of three meetings in North Carolina, and that another was underway in South Carolina and still another in Virginia.

To the class of 271 enrollees, Weis brought a cordial welcome from the Supreme Council, and he said the Order now counts over 2,000 lodges and 1,500 chapters of Women of the Moose.

"They are all engaged in community work, social and recreational activities... fields in which the Greenville Lodge gives so good an example."

Weis averred no other organization matches protection of its members, as that proffered by the Loyalty Order of Moose as represented by Moosehaven (where aged members, no longer able to provide for themselves, find a home and security), and Mooseheart (which provides for, educates and trains orphaned children of the fraternity).

He urged his listeners to make a point of visiting one or both of these establishments when travelling in, or near, Illinois and Florida. "See for yourselves the 600 children we are caring for," he said, "who exemplify so much the meaning of our order."

In closing, he quoted Dave Garroway who once televised a Christmas season program from Mooseheart. "The Moose," said Garroway, "are not only their brother's keeper, but also the keeper of their brothers' children."

Earle Horton, Director of Civic Affairs and Grand Herder of the Legion of the Moose, likewise extended a welcome to new members of the fraternity.

"Each time you give a little of yourselves," he said, "you learn new lessons that make life fuller and richer. This is a family fraternity, and all we have today can be attributed to the millions of our members who over the past 75 years have given a small part of themselves."

Greenville Lodge Secretary E. M. Baldree extended his congratulations and appreciation to lodges who joined in putting together the large class of candidates honoring Weis and Horton. "The large class we have with us today is evidence of being able to accomplish the work we set out to do," he said.

The ceremonial was followed by a dinner for pace-setters among sponsors of the new candidates.

New Director Appointed For Foundation, Center

The Rev. James L. Hobbs of Raleigh has been named Director of the Methodist Student Center in Greenville, and the Wesley Foundation of Methodist students at East Carolina College. The appointment was made at the North Carolina Methodist Conference in its annual meeting this week in Winston. He succeeds Miss Marnie Chandler, who is retiring after nineteen years of service to the Methodist students of the college.

Prior to assuming the local Wesley Foundation duties in August, Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs will be in Evanston, Illinois, for the Garrett Seminary. This workshop experience will better prepare them for their new work with East Carolina students, according to the youthful couple.

A graduate of Wake Forest College with a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics, Mr. Hobbs was an active member of the Wesley Foundation while a student there. This interest in and participation in Methodist activities led him to attend the Duke Divinity School and later to seek the post which he has recently been appointed.

Upon graduation from Duke with a Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1961, he served first as pastor of the Pikeville Methodist Church, Pikeville, N. C., and then as associate pastor of the Hayes Barton Methodist Church in Raleigh.

tems to rehabilitate those on relief.

The administration plan is to offer this rider Saturday, the final day of the current fiscal year. The welfare bill carries funds for aid of unemployed fathers of dependent children.

Since thousands of these persons would go off the rolls Saturday if the bill is not passed by then this circumstance will be cited as a reason for quick action.

But while Mansfield and Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., author of the health care amendment, expressed belief that it will get Republican support, GOP leaders are planning an all-out fight against it.

Anderson said he will make provision in the modified proposal for aid to needy elderly persons who are not on Social Security rolls. This might quiet the criticism of some who have said the original administration proposal would leave three million persons uncovered.

However, the major opposition to the program has been based on its system of financing—an increase in the Social Security tax paid by employees and employers—and on this point the administration has said it will not budge.

In a television interview Sunday (NBC—Meet the Press), Dr. Edward R. Annis, the official spokesman for the American Medical Association, was equally adamant that his organization would not yield in its opposition to Social Security financing.
