Tax Cut Measure Now On Shelf

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's tax revision bill will end up on a shelf—at least temporarily—unless the Senate Finance committee reaches agreement on it by July 17.

One committee member, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said a temporary shelving of the tax bill would give the President at least another month in which to consider whether a big income tax cut is needed this year.

Will Go

The Fourth of July Celebration at East Carolina College will still "go" tonight in the College Stadium, beginning at 7:45 p.m., unless the weather makes a further change.

In Honor Of Men Who Fought To Secure Independence

A SYMBOL OF INDEPENDENCE . . . is this memorial depicting the flag raising on Iwo Jima during World War II. Although named the Marine Corps War Memorial and inscribed "In honor and memory of the men of the United States Marine Corps who have given their lives to their country since 10 November 1775," it could be and, in fact, is dedicated to all free men of the United States of America who have given of themselves to make and keep this nation free . . . even before the day of our independence, July 4, 1776. What's Behind Kennedy Beauty? Most Of All, It's Discipline

By CATHERINE BREWSTER
 NEW YORK — (WNS) — No one who has seen what your political affiliation is, you will have to admit that the women of the Kennedy family, whether born Kennedy or married into the family, have a beauty quotient.

Whether it's mother Rose Kennedy, still vigorous and handsome over 70, or the youngest Kennedy wife, Mrs. Ted, blonde and slim as any model, they've all got what beauty takes.

It begins with abounding good health, quite evidently firmly based on sensible eating, since they all have good figures. Mrs. Rose Kennedy has kept her figure so stable, that she wore to her son's inauguration a Maine lobster gown made for her in 1931.

Exercise is part of the Kennedy creed, as those famous tennis matches have made evident. But the Kennedy ladies have other areas of athletic prowess, whether it be sailing, Jacqueline Kennedy's riding, or Patricia Kennedy Lawford's California tennis.

Echel Skatkal Kennedy, super-charged wife of the Attorney General, gets a lot of her exercise keeping up with seven lively children, but she recently got out of the family pool just as the first of several thousand garden party guests were arriving.

This casual approach is also part of the Kennedy beauty. All have well organized lives, a disciplined attitude toward their looks which gives them a no-fuss air.

Notable in their beauty lives is the careful attention which has been given their hair. Although all of them prefer the loose, bouffant hairdo, which is hardest to keep neat, none of them has yet to be caught with a hair straggling.

In fact, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's notably groomed look all through the rigors of two hot weeks in India had the press speculating as to how she was doing it. Bets were laid that a hair-dresser was among her entourage, but if so, the stylist must have been well disguised indeed.

Obviously, all the Kennedys must give the time and money necessary to having regular cuts and stylings, and must know how to groom their hair between salon visits.

The beauty results are notable. The ladies are not by nature any more beautiful than any dozen women you may meet in the course of a day. But they have latched onto the fact that if you are going to give time to any one thing, let that be hair.

The great Kennedy beauty lesson, in fact, is that a becoming style, always well cared for, will give the illusion of beauty all by itself. What's more, it will stand up when you want it to.

If Americans are fascinated by the Kennedy ladies, they share the weakness with the rest of the world. They fit the American beauty image that other countries cherish—the healthy, soap-and-water, leggy American beauty striding along in that marvelous sportswear.

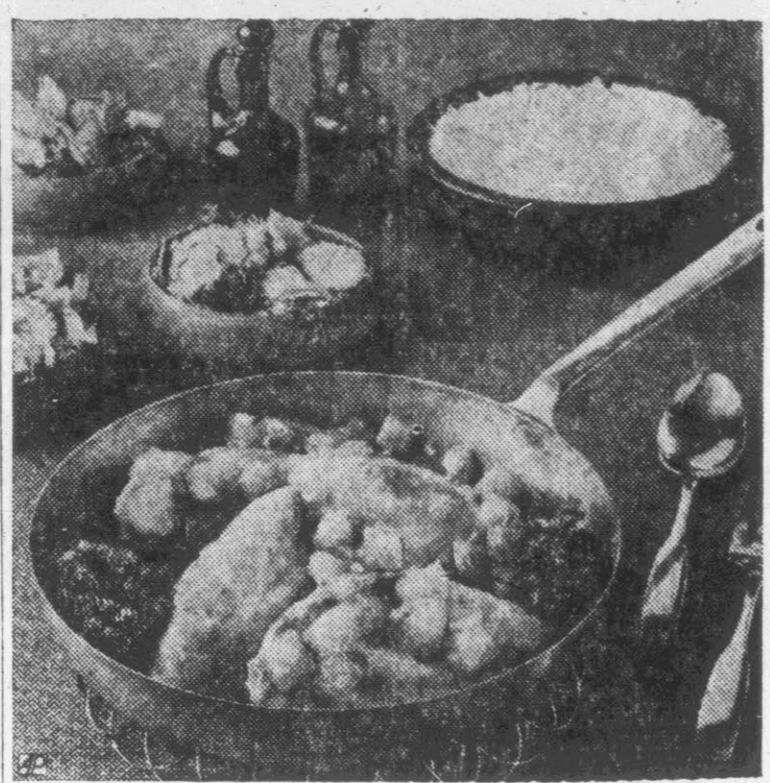

They do not pursue fads, whether of clothes or make-up. None of them, in fact, even made up, depending on good complexion as they do, and THE hairdo, they can get away nicely with just touches of this and that.

But those touches will always be the right ones. Pink lip-sticks with pink costumes, coral or goes round the world, the Kennedy looks stand up.

As any woman knows, that's the ultimate test. The system isn't unique, either. It can be followed by any woman with the will to get the habit of that daily discipline of mind and body.

Chicken, Pineapple Make Elegant Dish

A RESTAURANT SKILLET dish you can make at home—chicken breasts teamed with pineapple and flavored with ginger.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
 Associated Press Food Editor
 FOR SUMMERTIME COOKING, isn't it comforting to know that a popular chicken dish is simple to prepare?

We heard tell of a special version of Chicken Pineapple, often ordered and relished at a New York restaurant. So we went to see and taste.

No disappointment. Tender boneless chicken breast and pineapple chunks came to our table in an amber colored sauce hauntingly flavored with ginger. For diners who are tired of onion and garlic, what a relief.

Try to get fresh ginger for this dish, but if it's not available, make do with the ground spice. A meat-market man is usually willing to remove the skin bones from chicken breasts, but if he balks at skinning and boning, do it yourself this way:

- CHICKEN PINEAPPLE
- 4 small chicken breasts (skinned and boned)
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 2 tablespoons salad oil
 - 1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) pineapple chunks
 - 1/2 to 1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger root or 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- With a cleaver or the flat side of a heavy wide knife, flatten the chicken breasts with a few blows. Mix flour and salt; sprinkle over chicken. Heat oil in a large skillet (about 10 inches); add chicken. Cook gently on both sides so as to have no more than a tinge of golden-brown, until meat is white and almost cooked through. Remove chicken. Drain pineapple well and add syrup to pan with ginger; cook and stir over low heat to get up any particles in bottom of pan; pour sauce through a fine-mesh strainer so it will be clear. Return sauce to pan with pineapple chunks and chicken; simmer, spooning sauce over chicken, until meat is cooked through. Serve with wild or brown rice. Makes 4 servings.

Air-Dry Modern Lighting Effects

Is your home equipped with such modern installations as luminous ceilings, or corrugated plastic sheeting or panels which diffuse light for a daylight effect? Here is a tip from the professionals who install indirect lighting. After washing with soap or detergent suds, always let such plastic items air-dry before replacing them.

Avoid wiping because rubbing creates static electricity which acts like a magnet to attract dust from the air.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
 It is almost plant multiplication time again. The gardener will want to increase his plants. The problem that faces the gardener is the place to put his cuttings. Commercial methods are too large. Large beds and even enough flats to raise a few plants seem out of the question. So fix up a few gallon oil cans to hold that hundred or so azaleas you want to grow. Cut out the top, and punch about half a dozen holes in the side, half way between top and the bottom. Then fill can with pea gravel to within 1/2 inch of the holes. Put one inch of sphagnum moss on top of the gravel. Then fill up the rest of the can space with coarse sand. Let water run into the can until it drains through the holes. Then insert your cuttings. This space (each can) should hold about 20 cuttings of azaleas, holly or similar plants. You can then place a plastic bag over cuttings and put in a shady place. Water cuttings again in 10 days. Repeat watering until cuttings root. Put small stick in can so plastic top will keep off of plants.

Take azalea cuttings about middle of July or when wood snaps clean when bent.

needs water at once. Keep a ring around newly planted trees for at least a year.

To water tree take nozzle off of hose and place hose end on a small board. Turn on water and let it run slowly. When cup around tree fills up, cut off water. This should last for a week — but keep looking for the tell tale signs of drooping, limp leaves. Rub leaves between your fingers. When they are nice and crisp the tree doesn't need water, but get to watering when they feel stiff and lifeless.

Jap Beetle

Spray for these pests if you have a lot of them. Use Duponts Jap Beetle killer. This product contains "Sevin" and kills on contact. Use this insecticide according to directions.

If you have only a few bottles go out about sundown — they are settling down for the night then. Knock them in a fruit jar filled with about three inches of kerosene. If you are not to squeamish, you can crush the bugs between your fingers. At any rate, get rid of them. They eat fast and in no time can ruin a plant.

Step Right In, Girls

Step right into the bathtub, and see what you get for the price of admission.

First, a healthier body; second, a prettier complexion all over; third, a wonderful feeling of well-being; and last but certainly not least, social acceptance. It's that air of clean fragrance that makes you nice to have around.

Such modern installations as luminous ceilings, or corrugated plastic sheeting or panels which diffuse light for a daylight effect? Here is a tip from the professionals who install indirect lighting. After washing with soap or detergent suds, always let such plastic items air-dry before replacing them.

Avoid wiping because rubbing creates static electricity which acts like a magnet to attract dust from the air.

Layering

You can get new plants by layering large branches close to the ground. First dig out a hole (where branch is to come in contact with ground) about 6" wide and 8" deep. Fill this hole with a moisture of 1-3 woods dirt, 1-3 sand, 1-3 peat moss. Strip off all leaves along stem where plant is to touch soil. Take a sharp knife and cut under side of stem (about 1-1/2 inch long to 1/2 inch deep. Put this part on stem on top of hole pressing down slightly into soil. Then take two old fashioned clothespins and tie the stem into firm undug soil. Cover planted part with a little soil. Leave plant this way for a year. At the end of this time you should have compact plants with a good clump of roots—ready to move out to some selected spot.

Summer Hints

Watch newly planted shade trees for signs of water needs. Limp, drooping leaves in the heat of late afternoon means the tree

Drapery Care

Suds draperies often so dirt and dinginess can't get a "toehold" on the fibers. Remove them from an automatic washer before the spin cycle, so wrinkles don't get "pressed in."

Iron, if necessary, before the fabric has fully dried—but only enough to smoothen it out. Hang still slightly damp, stretch seams and edges, and finish drying on the rods.

Soapsuds and common sense help keep baby healthy and happy.

Credit Women Plan Picnic For July 11

The monthly meeting of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club was held Tuesday night.

The annual picnic of the club will be held Wednesday, July 11, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Emma Lee Schmidt, 1406 E. Wright Rd.

It was announced that the Fall Board meeting of the Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs in North Carolina will be held Nov. 10-11 at the Battery Park Hotel, Asheville. The annual convention for the clubs in the state will be held June 9-11, 1963, at the Battery Park Hotel, Asheville.

Birthday wishes were extended to Mrs. Polly Dail and Mrs. Frances Blanchard by the club.

Mrs. Sarah Stanford of Leaksville was recognized as special guest.

Sudsy Ideas Are Practical, Artful

The most versatile products in kitchen cabinets are household soaps and detergents. In addition to myriad cleanliness uses, soap or detergent also has art and craft uses. Beat either with a little water—using an egg-beater or electric mixer—to form thick suds for "drifting" and "painting."

Or stir in more soap (or detergent) to get a stiffer, clay-like consistency for molding any "sculpture" desired. This "suds-clay" hardens permanently so your creation will last indefinitely.

Wicker Furniture Can Be Washed

The best way to wash wicker furniture is with a brush dipped in soap or detergent suds. A long-handled bowl brush with stiff nylon bristles is good, supplemented by a bottle or percolator brush for coaxing dirt from interstices or small openings.

If you wash wicker furniture outdoors, rinse it with a fine spray from the garden hose. Then set it in a breezy spot to dry.

Sheets Last Longer In Frequent Change

Many households changed sheets only once a week in the days of scrub boards and wash boilers. Now homemakers realize that sheets last longer when changed more often.

Body soil and friction during sleep wears down the fibers, so it is much wiser to change sheets several times a week, launder them, and let them have a "rest period" before re-use.

Bath Break For Ma

While baby is napping, take a "break" yourself—but make it a bath break.

Just as soon as his squeals turn into snores, get right into a tub full of comfortably warm soapsuds, adding some scented bath oil on those days when you feel especially low. Then lie back on a bath pillow or a rolled up towel and play the queen or sylvan while you relax and soak away your cares and tensions.

Even when not in Rome, do as the Romans do—use toga-size towels to dry off after bathing.

Pierced Ears Care

If you have pierced ears, be sure to keep the channels "surgically" clean.

To wash them, first coat the ear wires of your earrings with soap, and moisten the lobes. Then gently rotate the wires back and forth in the channels to wash away perspiration and grime. To rinse, squeeze clean water around the lobes with a washcloth or a sponge.

If your hair becomes sun-dried, give yourself a pre-shampoo hot-oil treatment every week. Follow this by three—instead of the customary two—shampoo latherings.

Mussolini Family Back On Top Social Rank

By MARGARET ANDERSON
 ROME — (WNS) — Public opinion has run the full-circle here, and the family of Benito Mussolini, shunned and stigmatized after World War II, ranks again among Italy's social elite.

Il Duce's favorite child, Edda Ciano, has rocketed back to favor as the capital's glittering hostess. No top-drawer party is complete without Edda, the widow of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's foreign minister.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco rolls out the red carpet for Il Duce's widow, Rachele, when she visits Spain. Mussolini's son, Romano, is Italy's highest-paid jazz pianist.

Granddaughter Adria, shapely blonde, is Rome's most popular debutante. "There is nothing so tremendous as the twist," fun-loving Adria avers.

And the late Duce? Disks of his bellicose prewar speeches are currently in the top ten, outselling Paul Anka and other pop potates.

"Now we're all as popular as once we were shunned," Edda cracked. "And in both instances we have done nothing but mind our own business."

In recent years one government after another has vied in restoring the Mussolini family's properties and treasures. The Mussolinis live in luxury in Capri and Ischia villas and in Rome's West End penthouse apartments.

Those who shunned Edda in her postwar pariah period now covet her invitations — but never get them.

"My enemies call me the 'ti-gress,' and unflattering as is the term, perhaps they are right," Edda has said. "This much is certain: I have forgotten nothing — and forgiving nothing. Those who scorned me after my father's death will always be my enemies."

However, on the subject of her husband and his relations with her father, Edda is less edifying; she refuses to discuss Count Ciano, and her true feelings toward her husband are a matter of mystery even among her closest friends.

Shower Given Bride-Elect

Miss Carolyn Clapp, bride-elect, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower, Friday evening.

Mrs. Wilbur Balkenger and Mrs. Fred Satterwaite hostesses, gave the shower at the home of Mrs. Roy Martin.

Upon her arrival the honoree was presented a corsage of white sashasta daisies.

During the party hours, bridal games were played, after which guests were invited into the dining room for refreshments of bridal cakes nuts and sandwiches. Mrs. George Clapp, mother of the bride, poured punch.

The dining room table was decorated with an arrangement of white gladiolas and daisies flanked by pale green tapers in silver candleholders. A green and white color motif was used in decorating the Martin home.

Miss Clapp was presented a gift of crystal in her chosen pattern and a cream server by the hostesses.

Count Ciano helped to bring about Il Duce's fall in 1943. He was arrested by the Germans, and was executed by Mussolini's German-sponsored Fascist republic in northern Italy.

But while kindling and rekindling the memory of her father, whom she patently still adores, Edda has never disavowed or disparaged Ciano, although, as every Roman knows, theirs was far from one of the great love matches.

Some of her friends speculate that Edda now utilizes the social whirl as an avenue of escape from her memories.

"Edda is everywhere these days, and she is usually gay and sparkling," a longtime friend mused recently. "But she has changed vastly in recent years. One gets the feeling she has come to terms with her memories, but has not been able to subordinate them to the present."

...Also A Reason To Look Ahead

Independence day presents cause for citizens of the United States to look back over the past 186 years to 1776 and likewise to look forward to see where the nation is headed in its maturity.

That document of almost two centuries ago shook the world and confirmed the radical nature of the people who had settled the colonies of the new world under the direction and control of the English crown. Born in discontent and bathed in the blood of revolution, the new nation emerged to a shaky sovereignty. The founding principles of the new nation boldly proclaimed the right of its people to renounce tyranny and to chart their own course through democratic action.

In the span of time since the Declaration of Independence the new nation has grown to maturity. Its influence has swept across the globe and its ideas and ideals have had their impact upon the world and its people. Having grown to maturity, however, will the nation continue the vigor and positiveness of its youth, or will it grow rigid and apathetic and finally fall of the weakness of old age?

For its citizens the responsibility of freedom and liberty, the responsibility for adherence to sound principles of government, and the championship of democracy have not diminished with the decades. The price for the birth of a nation and the introduction of the new concept of democratic government to the world was not cheap. At no time in history has freedom been won or preserved without the willingness of its proponents to pay whatever price world conditions demanded for its prize.

The price for establishing a democratic government and a free society prompted the signers of the great declaration to call upon the protection of Divine Providence and to mutually pledge to their cause their lives, their fortune and their sacred honor.

Since that time the price for preserving democracy, for championing the rights of the individual and preserving liberty has rested individually and collectively upon the citizens of the nation. On many occasions the citizens have been called upon to pay the price for freedom. The payments have been higher in each generation, and still no nation, no man holds uncontested title to democracy, liberty and freedom.

The right of a man or a nation to live in freedom and liberty has been challenged time and again by tyrants of various kinds and description. The challenges will continue to come and they must be met by free men at all cost.

Otherwise the Declaration of Independence, the fundamental principles of individual freedom and democratic government will become mere echos of the past, bought and preserved for a time by dedicated people, only to be relinquished subsequently by a weaker generation unwilling to pay the price for the legacy which had been handed it.

Better U.S.-Mexican Relations To Follow

President Kennedy's visit to Mexico has all the earmarks of bringing about stronger ties and better understanding between the United States and its closest neighbor to the South.

Traditionally the United States and Mexico have been allies and neighbors and their relationship has been friendly. There have been many instances, however, in which the governments of the two nations have not seen eye-to-eye particularly with regard to problems and policies regarding inter-American affairs.

During the private conferences of the two Presidents, there is every reason to expect that each will receive a better understanding of the viewpoint of the other with respect to inter-American relationships. It is to be hoped that the result will be a greater unity of policy on the part of the United States and Mexico where affairs of the Western Hemisphere are concerned.

The reception which President and Mrs. Kennedy have received in Mexico indicates that earlier fears of anti-American feeling within that country was greatly exaggerated. The reception on the part of the people of the country suggests President Kennedy may be far more popular among the masses in Mexico than previously had been calculated.

The apparent complete success of the trip holds the promise of much closer working relationship between the United States and Mexico in the future.

GOP Is Also Out Of Harmony

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy had hardly finished complaining about Democratic disunity when the Republicans ran out of harmony, too. They talk otherwise but neither party looks overly confident about the November elections. Neither has any particular reason for pride in its record in Congress this year.

The Democrats, as a party, look worse than the Republicans only because they have such big majorities in Congress they could have put through a substantial legislative program if they stuck together.

They didn't. The record so far is dismal. Kennedy admitted at his news conference last week it has been a rather sad sack record for the Democrats in Congress because a number of them have been voting with the Republicans for years.

In a much happier mood former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had 150 Republican leaders to his Gettysburg farm over the weekend and pleaded for party unity.

This get-together received a lot of publicity. But it is questionable it will achieve the unity Eisenhower seems to have in mind. In one case, that of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, it accomplished the opposite.

Goldwater, who has made a career of being a conservative Republican, issued a kind of personal declaration of independence Monday a couple of days ahead of the Fourth of July.

It was at Eisenhower's Republican rally that William E. Miller, the party's national chairman, unveiled his plans for what is called the All-Republican Conference.

This organization is supposed to bring together, periodically, Republican leaders from Congress, state and local governments and private life to consider public issues.

What this could accomplish isn't clear at all because it couldn't hope to set party policy if only because not all Republicans see eye-to-eye, as Goldwater quickly demonstrated.

In a letter to Miller Monday he turned his back on the idea of such a conference group by saying leaders of the group are "the same people who caused most of our party trouble."

He added: "It is unthinkable that they should be given another opportunity to lead us down the path to political destruction."

That wasn't all. Between presidential elections Republican leaders in Congress — like Everett Dirksen of Illinois in the Senate and Charles Halleck of Indiana in the House — seem to regard themselves as the party's leading lights.

Their weekly Ev and Charley television appearance would indicate this although their routine before the cameras is hardly the kind that kindles political fires.

At Gettysburg, neither Dirksen nor Halleck endorsed Miller's idea for an All-Republican Conference where Republicans, who are not in Congress, might try to tell them what to do.

Dirksen said that while he favors party unity "different people have different ways to arrive at unity."

The evidence of disunity in both parties has somewhat the same effect as telling a clown man there isn't a Santa Claus because it demonstrates what is apparent to anyone not living in a political dream world.

The Democrats and Republicans, despite the party platforms they manufacture for election purposes every four years, are not solid, single and separate parties voting straight party lines except on rare occasions.

Since both are made up of liberals, reactionaries and a broad band of conservatives, the idea that either party represents a single view is one of the hard-dying American myths.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIBERTY

If you were compelled to give up every advantage you now enjoy what would be the last one you would surrender?

It would be liberty would it not? No matter what else we have in life, if we do not have liberty we indeed have nothing. Yes, we do have something — an iron collar around our necks, a club over our heads. We have a heaviness of heart which makes us drag our steps through life and makes us weep in the dark hours of the night.

There is an expression going about today, "Better red than dead." This is entirely at variance with what the free people of the world have been used to. Patrick Henry cried out, "Give me liberty or give me death."

And school children have been taught that great utterance and counseled to lay hold on it as a precious truth never to be surrendered. Liberty means the opportunity to grow. Liberty is not freedom to do as we want to do regardless of restraint. Liberty is the opportunity to fulfill our destiny. God put us here in the world for a purpose. We are not always sure what that purpose is. Sometimes decades go by before we see it. Many never see it. There may be certain aspects of our destiny which will never be disclosed to us, but which are hidden in the purposes of God. But give us liberty. Give us freedom to live. Give us the privilege of being sons and daughters of the Living God.

Grass-Ades In Mexico

PATZCUARO, Mexico — This is the first place you undaunted correspondent has come face to face with a cocktail made out of pasture. And I am informed that grass-ades not only are popular but are crowded with vitamins of many types.

This intelligence reached me after I bounced into town on the ancient cobblestone road from Lake Patzcuaro, where they sail dugout canoes and catch fish with butterfly-shaped nets.

It is a favorite spot of the tourists who go around armed with cameras. Also of the Kodak Company which does a thriving business in film.

The town of Patzcuaro lies on a gentle hillside overlooking the vast lake. Centuries ago, Spanish monks built a mission here and brought the Tarascan Indians into the fold of Christianity.

The old mission now stands in a cluster of sagging houses, also built by the Spaniards. The main plaza has its original cobblestones shaded by huge trees. Ringed with the traditional stores that sell everything from beans to curios.

Patzcuaro has suffered few latterday innovations and looks pretty much like it must have a hundred years ago. Except for the soft drink stands equipped with modern electrical gadgets.

For four cents U. S., these refreshment emporiums will construct you a tall drink of practically any flavor. Cantaloupe, banana, strawberry, pineapple, mango, lime, papaya or alfalfa.

The alfalfa-ade sounded so spooky that I tried one. Senor Bonifacio Hernandez dumped a handful of green grass, a spoon of sugar and some water into his electric blender and threw it into gear. Seconds later, I was sipping a glass of green stuff that looked like liquid spinach.

Is it all right? Mr. Hernandez asked hopefully. "Tastes like grass. I believe, in fact, it is grass."

"Alfalfa," he corrected. "Alfalfa is grass. I got my face rubbed in the stuff as a laid playing football. Do many people drink this refreshment?"

"In great quantities. It has many things necessary for good health. Also, it is very good for cattle."

"Primarily for cattle I would say." But I got it all down. I am the adventurous type, up to a certain point.

"Another?" Mr. Hernandez asked, checking my expression. Possibly it was a bit grim. "One is sufficient, thank you. I might sprout horns as it is."

Don Bonifacio did not become emotional at this rejection. He keeps a bag of grass in his shop, he obviously sells it. And probably a soda pop engineer of his caliber brushes shoulders with all sorts of people.

"Tell me," I asked "how did people begin drinking alfalfa juice?" "It has always been thus. For this reason, the people here are very strong. One drinks several glasses of alfalfa daily and is able to work like an animal. The health qualities are very exceptional. "I feel exceptionally healthy now." Even thought of letting him feel my muscle. But there is no point in pushing a good thing too far.

"And how many glasses do you take daily?" I asked. Senor Hernandez raised his eyebrows. "Of alfalfa, none. Frankly it tastes lousy. I prefer pineapple."

This more or less summed up my sentiment. And from now on, I will depend on the drug-stores for vitamins. I will not pose for an Esquire ad, wearing a necktie and clean underwear. Holding a glass in a picture titled "Abney is a man of distinction. He drinks weeds."

However, I am pleased to report that nothing unusual came of the great adventure in Patzcuaro. Except that I moo every time I see a field of alfalfa.

Opinions In Brief

"The Legion has attacked Hugh Cannon for a speech he made at Boys' State in Chapel Hill. By the way, how did Lt. Cannon get away from his National Guard training long enough to make the speech, anyway."—Raleigh Times.

"The suicide attempt by runaway Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen merely accentuates the importance of this case and the need to avert any future runaways of this kind. The attempt was unsuccessful and presumably Soblen will begin serving his life sentence in a U. S. prison."—Kinston Daily Free Press.

As a presidential contender young John Kennedy told the nation he wanted to get it moving. To observe the stock market's behavior is to agree that the President certainly has got something moving. The trouble is that things don't always seem to be moving in the right direction.—Daily Oklahoman.

"Opponents of the (King-Anderson "Medicare") bill, led by the American Medical Association, do not wish to be callous or intransigent. The medical care problems of older citizens are serious problems indeed; they demand vigorous action by public and private bodies. But opponents of the President's bill are just as unwilling to compromise as the President himself on the issue of Social Security. Here there can be no yielding at all."—Richmond News-Leader.

"We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven; we have been preserved these many years in peace and prosperity; we have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

The people of the United States have throughout their history devoted themselves to prayer, in the home, in the school, at the opening of public meetings, at the opening of each session of the Supreme Court and at each day of Congress.

Fathers Were Godly

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Were those who objected to an undenominational prayer in tax-supported schools, worshipping Jews, they would know a beautiful prayer, entitled "Aleinu" which begins with this stanza: "It is for us to praise the Lord of all, To acclaim the greatness of the God of creation, Who has not made us as worldly nations, Nor set us up as earthly peoples, Not making our portion as theirs, Nor our destiny as that of their multitudes. For we bow in worship before the supreme King of kings, The Holy One, blessed be He."

Truly those who live in ignorance of their past, dwell in darkness. Anson Phelps Stokes in his magnificent study, "Church and State in the United States," speaks of the early days of this country:

"The citizens of the emerging United States were virtually all Christian men who differed much in matters of Church membership and loyalty, and in theological belief, and even, especially in the middle colonies, in national background, but they were one in their realization that God was their Father and that there was in all of them a spark of the divine life which made them capable of great things if they would live worthy of their birthright."

"All the leading men of the Revolution were religious men and most were church affiliated. Benjamin Franklin, for instance, said:

"I never was without some religious principles." He laid down his own concepts: "That there is one God, who made all things."

"That He governs the world by his providence. That He ought to be worshipped by adoration, prayer, and thanksgiving. But that the most acceptable service of God is doing good to man."

"That the soul is immortal. And that God will certainly reward virtue and punish vice, either here or hereafter."

In his "Rights of Man," Thomas Paine wrote: "Man worships not himself, but his Maker; and the liberty of conscience which he claims is not for the service of himself, but of his God."

One can go through American history, quoting leader after leader, but what I prefer to quote is one of the greatest religious statements of any period, namely, Abraham Lincoln's Thanksgiving Proclamation of 1863:

"Whereas it is the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord; . . .

"We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven; we have been preserved these many years in peace and prosperity; we have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

Other Editors Saying ... Ports Authority, Too

(Raleigh Times)

Isn't it more than past time for the State Ports Authority to be removed from its present free-wheeling status and put into line with all the other agencies of State government?

The latest move which emphasizes the desirability of such a step is the fact that the Authority is spending $1,500 to hire New York Madison Avenue firm to help in hiring a new state ports director. The bill may be even higher than that if the firm's representative has to do much traveling in his search for the man.

So far as is generally known, the other state agencies don't go to Madison Avenue, or any other avenue, and pay out state money to hire someone to help them find wanted employees. The Consolidated University, for example, is able to hire highly trained specialists without paying anybody to beat around the bushes of the nation's campuses and find them. And when a specialist is needed for any other agencies around Capitol Square, the agencies are able to find them without help from someone on Madison Avenue. The Ports Authority, with legislative approval, is its own boss in just about everything. Unless things have changed, its employees work under a different set of expense account regulations than do other employees of other agencies. And the Authority can go ahead and issue revenue bonds if it wants to, despite the fact that the people voted down Ports bonds not too long ago.

The Authority, also should be brought under the same budgetary control now exercised over all other state agencies. This paying of at least $1,500 to a firm to go out and find a man to fill an $18,000 job just emphasizes the fact that the Authority should be like all other state agencies. It would seem that the Authority's need is generally known, for it has had applications from 15 persons, most of them assistant ports-directors in other states.

If the news of the vacancy is that well known, why pay someone $1,500 to fill it?

Freeze-Drying Has Bright Future

By ELMER ROESSNER

With a few more advances, freeze-drying will become one of the major food-processing methods in the United States, according to a survey of the future of food by two Battelle Memorial Institute Scientists.

The findings of the two, William H. Mink and George F. Sachsel, are reported in the current issue of the "Battelle Technical Review."

Freeze-drying is the process of drying foods and pharmaceuticals while in a frozen state. It has been in use since World War II when large quantities of blood-plasma, penicillin and other biological preparations were preserved that way. But commercial preparation of food by this method is still to come, although it may be just around the corner.

SAVINGS, ECONOMY Mink and Sachsel pointed out that the cost of raw materials has become a lesser part of consumers' food costs, while processing, packaging, storage and distribution take a larger share. But freeze-drying can sharply reduce the latter charges.

Freeze-dried foods are potentially superior to conventionally dried foods, particularly in flavor, texture and convenience, the scientists said. "Many scientists and food processors are predicting that freeze-drying will become one of the most important food preservation techniques of the future," they wrote.

"Drying at low temperature also minimizes bacterial growth, enzyme activity, and adverse chemical changes. As a result, damage to color, flavor, and texture, is low, and the reconstituted product is superior in these respects to canned and conventionally dried or concentrated products, and generally equal to frozen products," according to Mink and Sachsel.

NO REFRIGERATION Freeze-dried materials need no refrigerated storage, weigh less because the water is removed, are easier to handle and require less space to store, and do not have to thaw but merely be rehydrated before cooking or serving.

Though still in its infancy and at present a costly operation, freeze-drying is used today in the processing of luxury or specialty items, many of which are aimed at special consumer groups such as campers, sportsmen and the armed forces.

Opinions on the future of freeze-drying vary from cautious optimism to unlimited enthusiasm," they wrote. But before the process is to become widespread, many obstacles will have to be overcome. Materials handling must be greatly improved and equipment capacity will have to be increased. Freezing rates will have to be found that would improve rehydration yet retain a food's characteristic texture.

Reduced drying time will be necessary, as well as the development of continuous equipment to reduce operating labor. Simpler drying units at lower costs than those available today will have to be designed and developed. Once a product is freeze-dried, it must be quickly packed in moisture-proof containers, because unprotected freeze-dried products readily absorb moisture. Rehydration procedures must remain simple enough for the average consumer to practice.

MEN WITH FLOOR DAYS NOT OUTSIDE SALESMEN

Outside salesmen are permitted to deduct their expenses for Federal income tax purposes. But salesmen required to sell at employers' place of business part time are held not to be "outside salesmen" by Revenue Ruling 62-55, just published.

This will be a blow to outside salesmen who are required to have "floor days," or certain days of the week on which they must be on the sales floor.

Tar Heel Falls Well-Isolated

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

FALLS — One of North Carolina's natural scenic wonders with great tourist potential is so little known that somebody put it in the wrong state on a new official state highway map.

This is Whitewater Falls, tucked in a corner of western North Carolina along the Whitewater river which forms the border between Jackson and Transylvania counties.

It is the highest waterfall east of the Rockies, and some say it is the prettiest waterfall in the nation. But it is nine miles from the nearest paved road in North Carolina, and is much easier to reach from South Carolina.

In fact, a new map just published by the State Highway department locates Whitewater Falls as a dot just across the state line in South Carolina.

TROUBLE — Not so, says chief highway engineer Cameron Lee. This place of great scenic beauty is in North Carolina, despite what that particular map shows. It is about a mile inside the state line, in the Tar Heel state.

The trouble is, Lee admits, is that South Carolina has a modern, paved state road to the state line, about one mile from the Falls. From there, North Carolina has a narrow, winding gravel road.

From the nearest paved road in North Carolina, U. S. 64 east of Cashiers, it takes nine miles of driving over the winding gravel road to reach Whitewater Falls. Thus not many people go there, at least from North Carolina.

REMEDY — The North Carolina highway commission plans to remedy this, although it may take a couple of years. Federal forest highway funds which are made available to the state on a 50-50 matching basis — at the rate of about $200,000 a year — will be matched and saved for the next two or three years and will be used to pay the road from U. S. 64 to Whitewater Falls and the state line.

Forest highway funds now available for programming are to be used to extend paving of a forest road — secondary route 133 — from the Blue Ridge Parkway down the mountain to Sunburst, in Haywood County.

When done, this will complete a paved road all the way from the town of Woodrow, in Haywood County, to U. S. 64 near Rosman in Transylvania.

It will be a new scenic forest and mountain route from the western North Carolina tourist and population centers at Asheville and Waynesville to Whitewater Falls.

The peak the road will cross on the Blue Ridge Parkway, incidentally is Tennessee Bald, which also, despite the name, definitely is a North Carolina mountain. It is near Browning Peak, one of the most scenic of western North Carolina mountains, named a few years ago for former highway locating engineer R. Gettys Browning who did much of the survey and locating work for the Blue Ridge Parkway.

FINALLY — And the State Highway commission finally got around to adopting an official name for the oldest bridge on the Dare County coast, 10 years after it was completed.

This is the Roanoke Sound bridge, from Roanoke Island to the Outer Banks in the Nags Head area. The bridge was completed in 1952, and ever since has been called simply the "Roanoke Sound bridge."

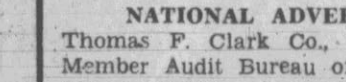

Every other major bridge in the area has been named for someone, and the others have been built since the Roanoke Sound bridge was completed. The Currituck Sound bridge was named in honor of the late William B. Umstead. The Currituck Sound bridge was named in honor of the Wright brothers. And the Alligator river bridge recently completed was dedicated in May and named in honor of former U. S. Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren.

So, upon recommendation of the Dare County commissioners, the Roanoke Sound bridge will be named in honor of the man who initiated construction of the bridge, leading to construction of the Currituck Sound bridge on the beach highway, in effect ending the centuries of isolation of the Outer Banks — Washington Baum.

The bridge becomes the Washington Baum bridge.

1962? Why is agnosticism and atheism encouraged in 1962? It is essential that the Supreme Court be heeded or our way of government must be altered. Must we then choose between God and Caesar? No man need face such a dilemma. No child needs to be told that he may no longer pray to God whose creative powers still prevail in a world that man has muddled. There can be no law against praying in silence. Let every child be given a card by his parents or clergyman and when the school day opens, let him pray in silence and let him add to his prayer the words, "And may God bless the United States Supreme Court with sanity."

Notes And Comment From Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Notes and comment—
Marlon Brando is planning a magazine article to answer the writings that he goofed off on "Mutiny on the Bounty." It will mark the first time he has replied to criticism. He doesn't care what is written about his personal life, but he is concerned about reflections on his professionalism.
Brando's adherents point out that his behavior on "The Ugly American" has been spotless. Except for two or three days when he was absent with a virus, he has shown up for filming every day, even after the weekend when he chopped his foot with an ax. No more Marilyn Monroe imitations for Edie Adams—and not because of MM's current troubles. Edie has worried that she will become too identified with the devastating satire (which Marilyn really enjoys watching).

"When I did my last television special, I did the Marilyn impression against my better judgment," she says. "I figured that would be the end of it. Then the Television Academy asked if it could show a short clip from the show on the Emmy telecast. Imagine my chagrin when they picked out the Marilyn bit! That will be the last time."
Preview time: "Birdman of Alcatraz" is a fascinating study of the double murderer turned bird expert, Robert Stroud. Director John Frankenheimer again impresses as a bright new talent by the way he balances prison violence with the gentleness in handling the birds.
Burt Lancaster is ideal casting as the prisoner, who spent over 40 years in solitary. He successfully conveys Stroud's compassion for the birds and his defiance of bridling by any human being. It is unfortunate that the producers saw fit to paste on a standard prison-break ending to what was otherwise a new and different view of the resilience of the human spirit.
"Lolita" is now playing in the theaters, as you may have read. It seemed to this viewer a modern horror play built of satire and sex imagery. It is sometimes amusing ing, often repellent. The best features are Peter Sellers and Sue Lyon, who is destined for a long career, during which she may live down having been Lolita.

White House Adds Prayer Inscription

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has accepted a white marble mantelpiece, inscribed with a prayer written by President John Adams, for the state dining room. He called it "the most notable improvement in the White House."
Mrs. Kennedy, who has restored many of the historic rooms in the executive mansion, was among the onlookers Monday as Kennedy accepted the mantel, a duplicate of one installed in the state dining room 60 years ago.
The President called it a beautiful and appropriate reminder of President Theodore Roosevelt, who had the original mantel installed in 1902.
The original now is in the Truman Library at Independence, Mo. It was removed when the White House was repaired during the administration of former President Harry S. Truman. The years had yellowed and tarnished the marble, and the mantel was deemed unsuitable for its prominent place in the state dining room.

This prayer is inscribed on a center tablet of the Vermont marble mantelpiece:
"I pray heaven to bestow the best of blessings on this house and on all those that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise men ever rule under this roof."
The prayer was in the first letter Adams sent his wife from the White House.
President Franklin D. Roosevelt had Adams' words inscribed on the mantel.

Dr. Rickert Witchcraft Work Published

Dr. Corinne Holt Rickert, director of closed-circuit television at East Carolina College, is the author of "The Case of John Darrell: Minister and Exorcist," which has just been published in the University of Florida Monographs in the Humanities.
The work deals with several cases of "possession" and witchcraft in late 16th Century England in which John Darrell, minister of the Church of England, acted as exorcist. With a fellow minister, George More, he was tried before an ecclesiastical court and was imprisoned, but never sentenced.
The study gives a picture of Darrell as a sincere man convinced of his powers and of his innocence of wrongdoing.

It deals in detail with the cases in which he was involved, the accusations against him, and his spirited defense of himself.
It also gives sidelights on the commonly held Elizabethan belief in witchcraft and demonology; the unjust procedures of ecclesiastical courts; antagonism toward the Puritans, with whom Darrell may have been associated; and patterns of controversial literature of the time.
The research on which the monograph is based was done by Dr. Rickert when she was studying in England for a doctorate at the Shakespeare Institute (Birmingham University) in Stratford-upon-Avon.

A. B. A. and M. A. graduate of the University of Minnesota, Dr. Rickert did graduate work at the University of Florida before receiving the Ph. D. from the English university.
Before joining the East Carolina faculty in 1958, she had taught at the University of Florida, the University of Miami, and the overseas division of the University of Maryland.
At East Carolina, in addition to her duties with the closed-circuit program of instruction, she is advisor of the student TV Guild and chairman of the college Entertainment Committee. She has also served as director of several college dramatic productions.

She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of a number of national professional societies.
Dr. Rickert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover J. Holt, 403 Magdalena, San Clemente, California. Her husband, Dr. Robert T. Rickert, has also been a faculty member at the college since 1958.

No Halfway In Delicate Ants

BOGOTA (AP)— "Have an ant," said the hostess thrusting toward a group of cocktail guests what at a glance looked like a plate of jumbled sticky dates.
Not paying too much attention to what she had said, the guests automatically picked up the hors d'oeuvres and popped them into their mouths. For as many who said "ugh" and shuddered, there were as many who said "aah" and took another.
There's no halfway. You either like the ants of Santander or you don't.
Called "Santanderanas" after the central Colombian state where they are found, the ants are considered a delicacy by Colombians. They sell for about $3.50 a pound. Generally they are toasted in honey but can also be served salted.
The Santander ant belongs to a highly specialized order of insects that includes bees and wasps. It has four membranous wings.
In May and June swarms leave the ant hills on the Santander plateau for a nuptial flight.
A posted sentinel alerts the nearby farmers who drop their work, put on heavy boots and gloves and rush to the area to catch as many ants as they can before the insects return to the hills.
Only the female ants, distinguished by the size of their wings, are eaten. The body of the male ant is too small to bother with.

GOING UP . . . Sidewalls for the new Prepshirt Inc. factory are rapidly going up on the North Greenville site, opposite the State Highway Commission shops. Groundbreaking for the plant was held May 24 and construction was started the following week. The 52,000 square foot building is located on a 15 acre site and eventually is expected to employ about 500 people.

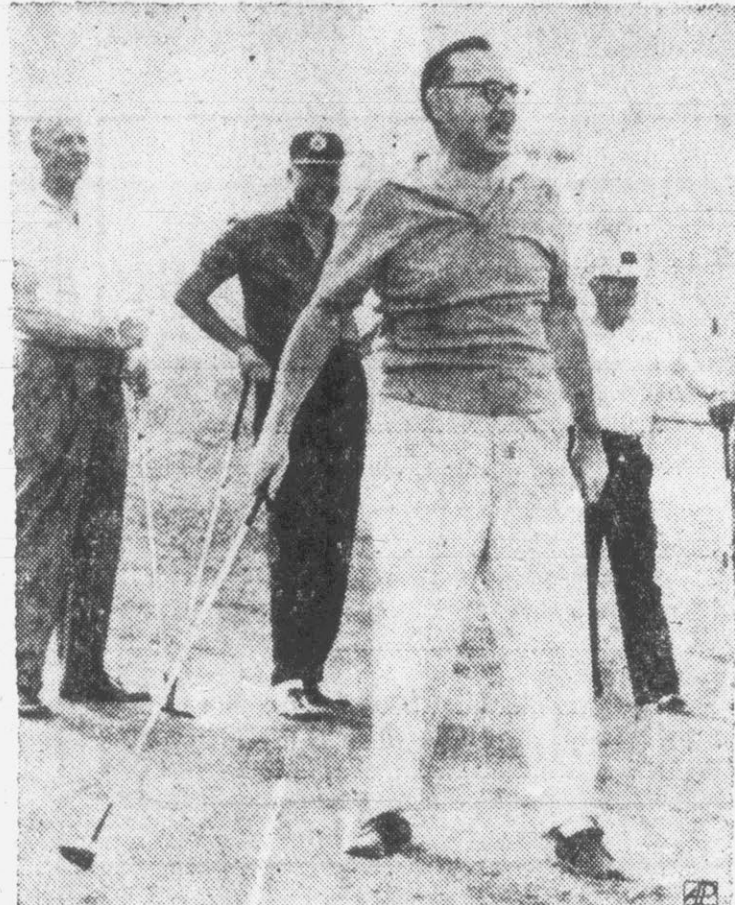

Reminders Not To Take Liberty For Granted

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—It is a day of glory in the long human story—this day on which the oldest republic in the New World celebrates the 186th anniversary of its independence.

The revolution of the original 13 American states against foreign domination set in movement a slow-building political hurricane that has since stormed the winds of change to every continent.

but it is never recovered if it is once lost"—J. J. Rousseau.
"Among a people generally corrupt liberty cannot exist. Liberty must be limited in order to be possessed"—Edmund Burke.
"The natural progress of things is for liberty to yield and governments to gain ground. The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure"—Thomas Jefferson.

"Mankind is tired of liberty"—Benito Mussolini.
"Liberty means responsibility. That is why most men dread it"—George Bernard Shaw.

Vapor Menace In Spartanburg

SPARTANBURG (AP) — Gas fumes or vapors are carrying foul odors into homes, discoloring bathroom fixtures, turning paint from white to yellow and causing throat and breathing difficulties in the nearby Startex community.

In Columbia, William T. Linton, executive director of the South Carolina Water Pollution and Control Authority, said his agency has renewed its study of the situation.

He said the Startex Mill lake receives its entire water supply from the Middle Tyger River on which a Textile printing and finishing plant is located some three miles upstream.

The vapors appear to be coming from the lake. Samples of the water are being taken by the state officers. They will pass the results on the Startex Mills and Lyman Printing and Finishing Co. Several weeks may be needed to complete the analysis.

The problem, says Linton, is connected with both mills. Startex develops electrical power from water impounded at Startex from the Middle Tyger River. In normal digestive processes of biological waste, a gas is given off. It has a sulphurous odor.

The problem has been under study since it first flared up several years ago.

When Tunisia became independent in 1956, French settlers held one million acres of Tunisia's richest land. An initial takeover of nearly half a million acres occurred in 1957. Last year the Tunisian government bought 250,000 acres more from French holders.

N.Y. Paper Discloses:

Dominican Sugar Profit Effort

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times reported Tuesday that secret documents of the Trujillo Dictatorship tell a story of intensive Dominican lobbying in the U.S. Congress in an effort to increase Dominican sugar profits.

A Times Washington dispatch said information about the lobbying was contained in documents obtained by the newspaper in Santa Domingo from the secret archives of the late dictator, Generalissimo Rafael Leonida Trujillo Molina.

The Times story gave this account:

In pursuing their lobbying efforts, the Trujillo representatives were seeking to frustrate the sugar policies of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations.

While sugar was the focus of the lobbying, United States foreign policy and domestic politics were involved.

Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., was mentioned again and again in the reports of the Trujillo agents.

Cooley is chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the House of Representatives and the most influential man in Congress on sugar legislation.

Cooley was informed of the documents and of their contents. He rejected any implication that his conduct had been improper in any way.

It was pointed out that the documents mentioned only the Dominican side of the picture. There was no evidence to support any charge of specific wrongdoing.

While Cooley's name was mentioned most frequently in the Dominican documents, there were references to other members of the House Agriculture Committee, including Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex.

The names of several other Agriculture Department officials dealing with sugar matters, including Lawrence Myers, Robert Case and a J. Murphy, also were mentioned. So were those of former Undersecretary of State Chester Byles and Adolf A. Berle Jr., a special consultant to the secretary of state.

Myers heads the sugar office in the Agriculture Department. J. Murphy apparently is an erroneous reference to Tom Murphy, deputy to Myers, and Robert Case apparently is an erroneous reference to William Case, an official in the department's sugar division.

The reports cover conversations and meetings in recent years in which, The Times quoted the Dominican sugar interests, gave them advice on how to go about their lobbying and informed them of his efforts to favor Dominican sugar in the United States market.

Sugar entering the United States under the quotas fixed by law brings a big premium over the world market price.

The Dominican agents remained in touch with Cooley even after the United States had broken diplomatic relations and applied economic sanctions against the Trujillo dictatorship in 1961.

They reported that Cooley worked hard in Congress for repeal of the sanctions and for reimbursement to Dominican sugar interests of a punitive tax imposed on imports of their sugar by the Eisenhower administration.

Dealing with the points made in the documents, Cooley said he had never given Dominican representatives any advice "other than when I said they should get rid of Trujillo" if they wished better treatment for their sugar in the United States.

He denied he had ever received fees or contributions of any kind. There had been some conversations at his office with Dominican diplomats, he said, but only because they had no Washington lawyers at the time.

"But I told them I could give them no special advice," he said. "I cannot be responsible for what they wrote about me."

Doggie Arguments Can Lead To Involvements

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't fight with your neighbor over a dog. Your wife might answer the door some day and find a mail-order sweetheart, calling for you.

Federal Prison Director J. V. Bennett told a House Appropriations subcommittee last Jan. 25 about such a fellow.

Here is Bennett's story in testimony released today:

"In Baltimore, there was a fellow who was a much-decorated paratrooper and got into an altercation with his neighbor next door over a dog. Well, that caused a fight between him and his neighbor and a third neighbor, so they beat up this fellow, kicked out his teeth, sent him to the hospital for about two weeks, and apparently while he was in the hospital he mulled over how he would try to get even with these fellows.

"So, when he came out, he went around to see the police and they would not do anything about it.

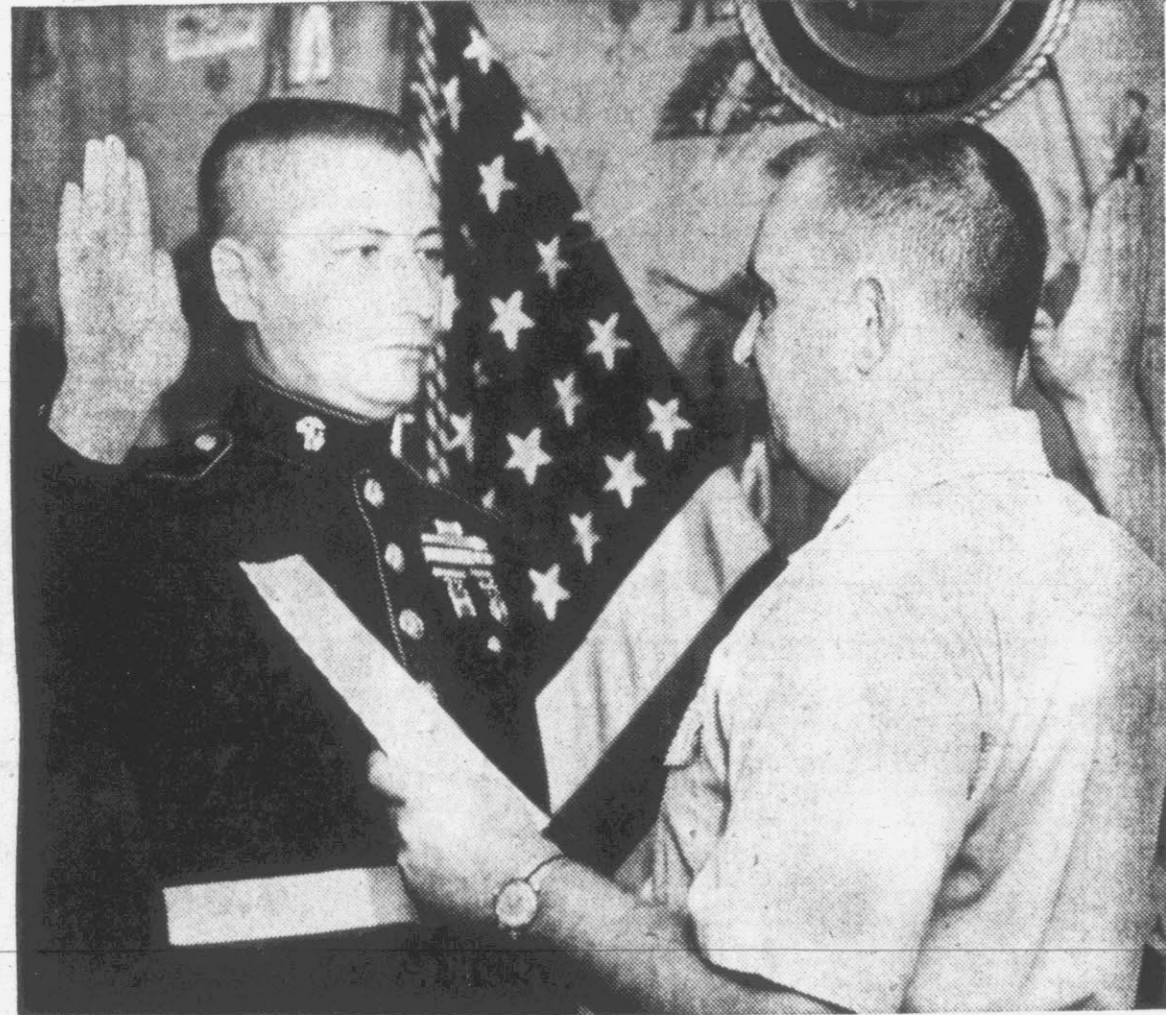

"The first thing he did was to call up the Alcoholics Anonymous group and tell them that his next door neighbor was in need of treatment, so they sent around a task force to look after him. Then he began ordering things through the mails and having them sent to his neighbor.

"He ordered a big fruit cake from Fort Worth sent to a lady down the street, and signed this man's name to it and then she, in turn, called up this man's wife and thanked him for his generosity, saying what a fine person he was.

"Then he began ordering other things, but, the crowning blow was that he had carried on some correspondence with a lady whose name he had gotten out of one of those lonely hearts clubs, and in the name of this fellow next door, he invited her to come and call on him at his home.

"Sure enough, she showed up in all her finery, apparently, and of course, she was met at the door at the right time by the man's wife. There you have it."

RECRUITED RECRUITER—Sgt. Leo I. Smith, a 13-year Marine Corps veteran, and Marine recruiter for the Greenville area in the past three and a half years, expresses his belief in the Marine Corps and his recruiting sergeant duties by taking the reenlistment oath for another six years service during ceremonies in Raleigh. Conducting the oath is Captain A. H. Perry, assistant Marine recruiting officer for the Carolinas and an ECC graduate.

Sounds Threat In Address

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Prince Norodon Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, has raised the threat of a military struggle with Thailand in a warlike speech demanding possession of a ruined temple on the border of the two countries.

The International Court of Justice ruled in June that the disputed 800-year-old temple, Preah Vihear, was in Cambodian territory. Thailand has said it would reluctantly abide by the decision, but it has made no move to withdraw its troops from the temple.

Prince Sihanouk told a graduating class of army officers Monday in Phnom Penh "we shall not hesitate to give our blood and our lives, even sacrificing our neutrality" to gain possession of the temple.

Col. Hagerty Retires; Begins City Manager Job Here July 15

RETIRES FROM ARMY . . . Col. Harry E. Hagerty (center) receives Army Commendation Ribbon from Brig. Gen. Harry L. Hillyard. Looking on is Mrs. Hagerty.

CARLISLE BARRACKS, Pa.—Col. Harry E. Hagerty was retired from the US Army June 30 at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. after completing more than 20 years of active duty.

For his outstanding performance of duties as a member of the faculty of the US Army War College since 1958, he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal by Brig. Gen. Harry L. Hillyard, Deputy Commandant. Present at the ceremony were his wife Mattie Moye and three sons, 2d Lt. Harry E. Hagerty, Jr., Guy and Roy, 18-year-old twins.

Col. Hagerty's Army career began in 1930 when he enlisted in the Indiana National Guard. A native of Muncie, Ind., he was graduated from Central High School there and from DePauw University in 1934. He played center on DePauw's undefeated football team of 1933 and was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. When called to active duty in 1941 he was an insurance adjuster for the General Motors Corp. in Raleigh, N.C.

While stationed at the Army War College, Col. Hagerty served as assistant director of a course dealing with "US National Strategy and a Supporting Military Program". During his assignment to the Army's senior school he received a master's degree in international relations from George Washington University.

On July 15, Col. Hagerty will become City Manager of Greenville, N. C. Mrs. Hagerty is the former Mattie Moye Gaylord, daughter of Mrs. Louis W. Gaylord, Sr., Eastern Street, Greenville, N. C. The Hagerty's son Harry, Jr., who was graduated from the US Military Academy in June, is currently undergoing Airborne and Ranger training at Ft. Benning, Ga. Following completion of the course, he will be assigned to the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C. The Hagerty twins will enter college in the fall. Guy will attend East Carolina College and Roy will enter the University of North Carolina.

He denied he had ever received fees or contributions of any kind. There had been some conversations at his office with Dominican diplomats, he said, but only because they had no Washington lawyers at the time.

Seek To Avoid Repeat Of Riot

MIDDLETOWN, R.I. (AP)—Town officials are clamping down on public drinking during the Newport Jazz Festival this weekend, to avoid any repetition of the beery 1960 rioting.

The Town Council adopted an ordinance Monday night prohibiting drinking any alcoholic beverages in a public place from Friday to the following Wednesday.

The jazz festival runs from Friday through Sunday.

The ordinance specifies that no alcoholic beverages may be consumed in a car on roads within the town, at picnic spots, beaches or any public area. It provides for a fine not to exceed $20.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Songwriter Ben Oakland, 54, who wrote "I'll Take Romance" must pay $400 monthly support to his divorced wife, Eleonore, 49.

The couple told a Superior Court commissioner Monday they had agreed on a financial settlement.

Sanford Notes Special Pride

RALEIGH (AP)—Tar Heels, remembering the Halifax Resolves of April 12, 1776, can celebrate the Fourth of July with special pride, Gov. Terry Sanford said Monday.

The action by the North Carolina Provincial Congress "not only instructed the North Carolina representatives at Philadelphia to vote for independence, but also greatly encouraged sister colonies to take similar actions," he explained.

A statement released through the governor's office said it would be fitting for the people of the state and nation to celebrate "this nation's independence with prayers, church services, civic celebrations and the display of the flag."

Survey Proves Mayor Correct

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Mayor Robert King High was right, Miami's parking meters are crooked—at least some of them.

High followed up a complaint from a taxpayer that a meter had not given him full time and was shorted. High demanded the meters be checked.

The parking department said Monday 8 of 122 meters checked so far were defective.

DAMAGE SLIGHT

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A guard at Independence Hall discovered smoke pouring from the basement of the east wing Monday night and turned in the alarm on the historic building's special box—1776.

Firemen said the smoke came from a defective fluorescent bulb and damage was negligible.

34 Top Drivers Trying For $9,450 Pot Of Gold In Daytona 'Firecracker'

By ROSS M. HAGEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The fifth major stock car race of the year matched 34 top drivers ready to challenge fate and each other today for the $9,450 pot of gold awaiting the winner.

Edwin (Banjo) Matthews of Asheville, N.C., seeking his first big payoff in five years, was on the pole in the 1962 Pontiac he drove to a new track record during qualifying for the 250-mile race—the Firecracker 250.

Matthews guided the sleek red machine twice around the 2½-mile high banked oval at an average speed of 160.499 miles an hour. The old mark of 158.744 was set by Glenn (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach.

On Matthews' right, also in a new Pontiac, was Bobby Johns of Miami, Fla., rounding out the top 10 were Johnny Allen of Atlanta, 1962 Pontiac; Roberts, 1962 Pontiac; David Pearson, of Spartanburg, S.C., the defending champion, 1962 Pontiac; Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., 1962 Pontiac; Junior Johnson, Ronda, N.C., 1962 Pontiac; Jack Smith, Spartanburg, S.C., 1962 Pontiac; Fred Lorenzen, Elmhurst, Ill., 1962 Ford; and Marvin Panch, Daytona Beach 1962 Ford.

The Pontiac jockeys hoped to snap a three-race victory string held by the Holman-Moody Ford team from Charlotte, N.C. Nelson Stacy of Daytona Beach captured the Rebel 300 for convertibles at Darlington, S.C., and the Charlotte 600. Lorenzen won the Atlanta 500 June 10.

This will be the first major NASCAR race since the Ford Motor Co. announced abandonment of an industry resolution banning participation in stock car racing. There was no factory team as such in the pits, however.

Pearson, the young Cherokee Indian who drives like he's on the warpath, established himself as one of the drivers to beat when he drove his white Pontiac to victory at a record speed of 160.108 miles an hour in a 25-mile qualifying event Sunday. The old record of 156.044 was held by Roberts. Bad luck has dogged Pearson this year. He was seven laps from a rich victory in the Charlotte 600 when his auto failed, and a misunderstanding cost him second place in the Atlanta 500 where he wound up in seventh.

Leagues Merger Topic Of Talks Among Members

NEW YORK (AP)—Off-the-record talks have been going on between members of the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball League involving the possibility of a merger of the two professional basketball leagues, an NBA spokesman said Tuesday night.

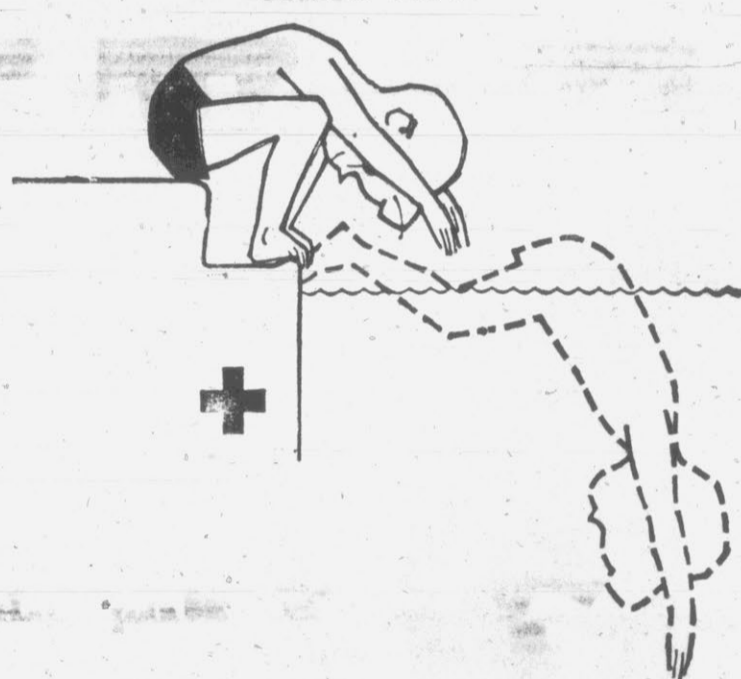

"I understand there have been some off-the-record talks," the spokesman said, "but I don't think it has reached fruition. It hasn't reached that stage yet."

"Eventually, perhaps next week, they may arrange for some unofficial meetings to discuss it, but at this stage there is nothing definite."

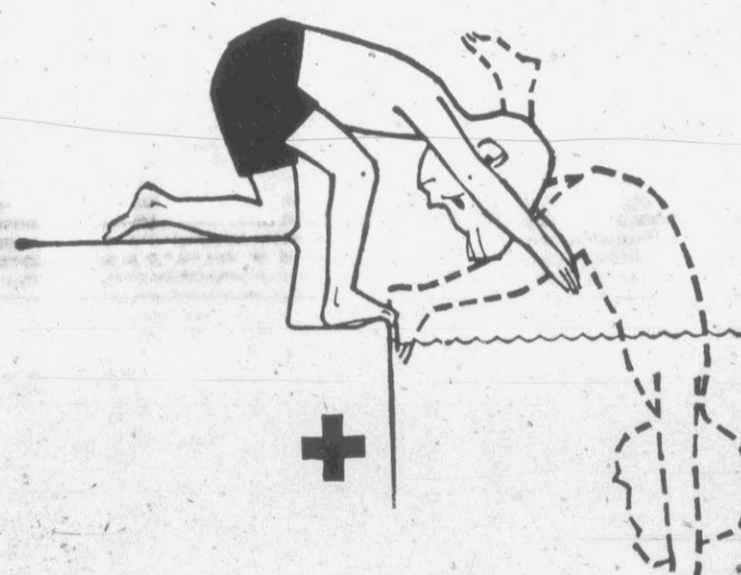

The ABL, which operated for the first time last season, is believed to have originated the merger talks with the older, more firmly established NBA.

Abe Saperstein, president and founder of the ABL and owner of the Chicago team in that league, is in Europe and not available for comment. Maurice Podoloff, president of the NBA, was not immediately available.

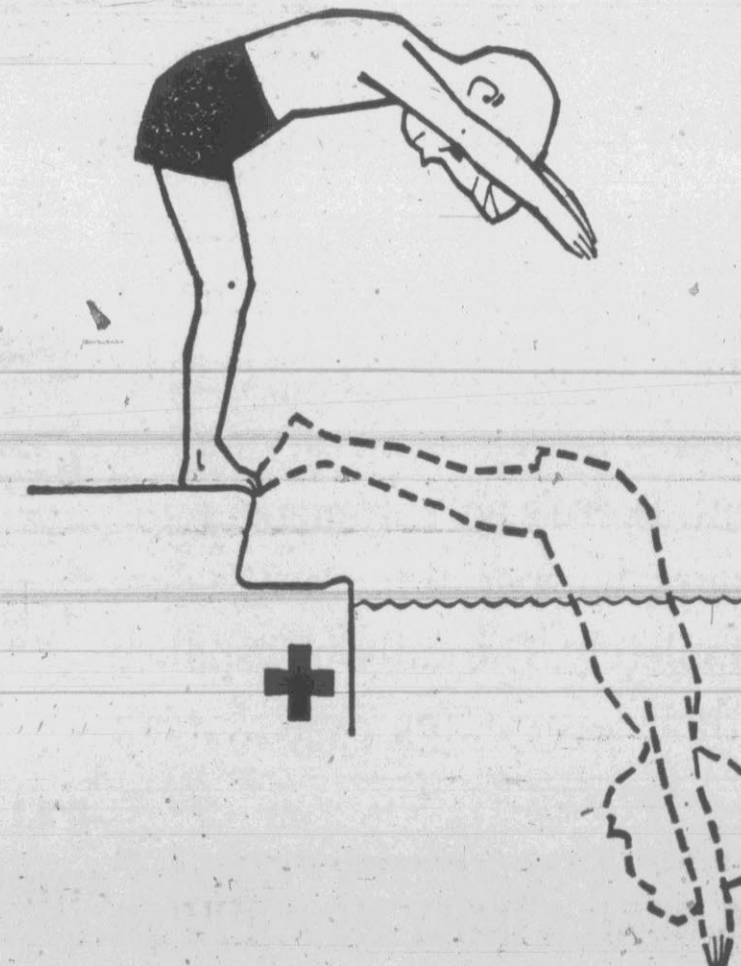

TEACHING JOHNNY TO SWIM SERIES FIVE

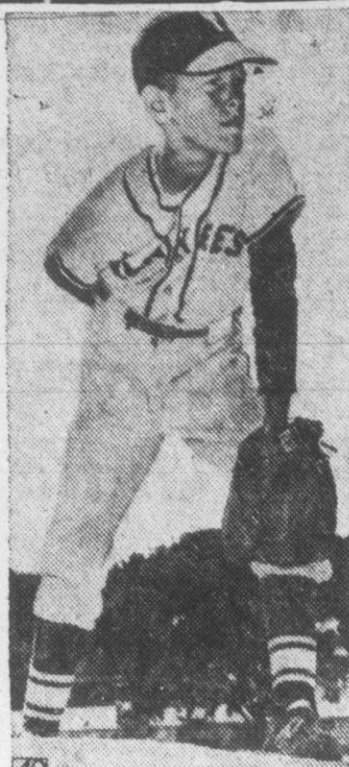

This is the first step for Johnny to learn to dive. Have him sit on the pool deck with his feet on the overflow trough, above six-foot-deep water. From this position he bends forward, knees apart and arms extended, hands together. When he loses his balance, he should push with his feet and slide into the water. Turning his fingers up and looking up will help him come to the surface. In teaching Johnny to dive, there must be someone close by to help him if he gets in trouble.

Now he can try a dive kneeling on one knee, as in this illustration. He extends his arms, bends forward from the waist, and slides into the water. Tell him to keep his chin down on his chest as he goes into the water, and lift his chin when he wants to come to the surface.

At eight-foot-deep water, for the final stage in learning to dive, Johnny stands with his feet together, toes hooking the edge of the deck, and arms extended overhead. From this position he bends from the waist and leans forward until his balance is lost. Then he pushes hard from the deck and keeping his chin down, goes into the water, arms and head first.

Junior Circuit Watching Closest Pennant Tussle

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The signs are all there, the American League standings and president Joe Cronin notwithstanding.

"The greatest thing that has happened to the American League in years," Cronin said of the pennant race, one of the closest in the league's 60-year history.

Three games separate the first five teams and seven teams are bunched within 5½ as the season reaches the traditional July 4 doubleheaders, the season's halfway mark.

How long it may remain that close is problematical. There are strong indications it may not be long. Two of the strongest indicators are Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris.

Each of the M and M boys stroked two home runs Tuesday as the Yankees came from behind, beat their old Kansas City playmates 8-7 and continued to exhibit growing signs of restlessness with the pack so closely bunched on their heels.

The victory put them a half game up on the Los Angeles Angels, rained out at Washington, and a full game ahead of Cleveland, which was not scheduled. Minnesota remained 1½ games back by beating Boston for the first time this season, 4-3, and Detroit stayed three games off the pace with a 5-4, 11-inning verdict over Chicago.

In the National League, second-place San Francisco moved within a half-game of first-place Los Angeles by beating the New York Mets 10-1. Cincinnati whipped the Chicago Cubs 6-1. Pittsburgh beat Houston 5-2 and St. Louis won the first game of a doubleheader with Milwaukee 6-5. The nightcap was suspended by curfew after eight innings with the score tied 5-5 and will be resumed before today's regularly scheduled game.

Legend has it that the team in first place when the July 4 games are completed will be in first place when the season ends. It's happened 41 times in the league's 60 years, and in the last decade only twice have the teams on top at the turning point failed to win the pennant.

Any one of four teams could be on top after the conclusion of today's games, but most signs point to the Yankees. Mantle, the indispensable Yankee, still is hobbled with leg trouble but is now hitting with his old-time authority. With Mantle back, Maris is regaining the form that produced 61 home runs and 142 runs batted in last season. Left Whitey Ford seems to be healthy again.

And, perhaps as important as any, Luis Arroyo appears to be back on the beam. The round little relief man picked up a victory in relief his last time out, after suffering from arm trouble all season.

"That's one reason it's been a close race," Detroit's Jim Bunning pointed out. "Arroyo hasn't been able to come through for them. Many of the players thought he was far and away the most valuable player in the league last year."

The vaunted Yankee power and the big inning were the keys to the comeback against Kansas City. With the A's leading 7-2 in the seventh, Maris and Bobby Richardson hit solo homers.

Another Maris homer, his 18th of the season, drove in three runs and tied it in the eighth. Moments later Mantle's 13th of the season won it. Gino Cimoli, Jerry Lumpe and Manny Jimenez had homers for the losers.

Minnesota got outstanding relief work from Ray Moore in beating Boston for the first time in six tries. He came on in relief of Jack Kralick with a one run lead, men on first and third and none out in the ninth, got Jim Paoliantoni to pop up and struck out Lu Clinton and Eddie Brossoud. Harmon Killebrew's seventh inning triple drove in the winning run.

Detroit got an 11th inning earned run in beating Chicago. The Tigers loaded the bases with one out on Billy Bruton's single, a walk and an error by Al Smith. Jake Wood chopped a high hopper to third and Bruton scored as Smith stepped on third for a force out. The Tigers' Bubba Morton forced it into extra innings with his eighth inning homer.

Felipe Alou Turns 'Slugging Duo' Into 'Terrible Trio' For Giants

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Felipe Alou, the most consistent of the slugging San Franciscans, has turned the Giants' devastating duo into a terrible trio.

Taking his place alongside the devastating duo—Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda—Alou has more than held his own. He was the big gun again Tuesday, driving in three runs with his 15th homer and two singles as the Giants walloped the New York Mets 10-1. The 3-for-5 performance pulled the 27-year-old right-handed batter from the Dominican Republic into a tie for the National League batting lead with Los Angeles' Tommy Davis at .335, and the Giants within a half-game of the first-place Dodgers, who were idle.

It also gave Alou an impressive set of slugging statistics. Alou, who hit 289 last year with 18 homers and 52 runs batted in, is within three homers of his entire 1961 output and has surpassed his RBI mark with 56. He totals also compare favorably with the 22 homers and 72 RBI by Mays and the 18 homers and 65 RBI by Cepeda.

Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati whipped the Chicago Cubs 6-1 as Jim O'Toole hurled a five-hitter. Pittsburgh defeated Houston 5-2 on Smoky Burgess' 4-for-4 performance and St. Louis edged Milwaukee 6-5 in the first game of a doubleheader before the nightcap was suspended by curfew after eight innings with the score tied 5-5. It'll be resumed today.

In the American League, the first-place New York Yankees edged Kansas City 8-7. Detroit nipped Chicago's White Sox 5-4 in 11 innings and Minnesota got by Boston 4-3. The Los Angeles Angels-Washington game was rained out. Cleveland and Baltimore were not scheduled.

Alou led the Giants 15-hit attack against Mets' starter Al Jackson (4-9) and two successors, but Jimmy Davenport and Harvey Kuehn also contributed three hits. Davenport tripled home two runs in a four-run second inning uprising and Kuehn singled and scored in each of the first two innings. The offensive outburst made it easy for Jack Sanford (8-6) to go the distance with a nine-hitter.

Jerry Lynch's two-run homer and a double and single by Gordie Coleman backed O'Toole (7-9), who struck out 10. Frank Robinson scored the tying run for the Reds in the second, when he singled and came around on Coleman's single and a forceout. He scored the go-ahead run in the fourth against Bob Buhl (5-6) when he walked, stole second and rode home on Coleman's double.

Burgess stroked three singles before he came up with the bases loaded in the eighth inning and snapped a 2-2 tie with a triple that gave the Pirates their fourth consecutive triumph. The tie had existed since the second inning when Jim Pendleton and Bob Aspromonte homered with the bases empty for the Colts' run. Harvey Haddix (7-3) won it with relief help from Elroy Face. The loser was Ken Johnson (4-10).

The Cards won the opener with a five-run, sixth inning outburst in which Bill White and Ken Boyer hit solo homers and winning pitcher Ray Washburn aided his cause with a two-run double. Up to that point, Braves' starter Bob Shaw (9-5) had a four-hitter. Lindy McDaniel relieved Washburn (6-4) in the seventh and allowed one unearned run the rest of the way. He hasn't given up an earned tally in 28 1-3 innings.

Held hitless for 6-2-3 innings by Tony Cloninger and Hank Fischer, the Cards got started with Boyer's single and came up with five runs to tie it in the seventh. Fred Whitfield's three-run pinch-hit homer created the deadlock. Rain then halted play and they couldn't finish it before the curfew intervened. Hank Aaron hit his 19th homer for the Braves.

Arnie Palmer scored three birds on the last four holds to win the 1962 Texas Open. The following week he dropped a 25-foot putt for a birdie on the final hole to win the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas.

Dear Mary Carter:

I've got a little place of my own down on the city dumps, just outside town. Nothing fancy, you understand—in fact, it's hardly more than a few boards thrown together.

But I got to thinking, while I was in Florida this past winter, that the old place could use some sprucing up. What would you suggest for putting a country home into A-1 shape? (With somewhat limited funds, that is).

V. A. G.

Dear V. A. G.:

Landscaping is very important, of course, but I don't suppose there's much can be done about a garbage dump. Just kind of spread it around as best you can.

As to the house, itself, do you think it's strong enough to take a coat of paint? If so, you'll find a wonderful variety of oil or latex-base house paints in every price range at your Mary Carter Paint Store.

Paint not only improves the appearance of a home, but in your case it'll probably help to hold up the walls and keep out the weather, as well.

And how about "every second can free" for anyone who wants real home beauty on a budget? Every day is discount day at Mary Carter Paint Stores, so come on down and browse around!

10 Entries At Inglewood

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Money-minded horsemen looked fondly for victory today in the $50,000 added American Handicap at Hollywood Park. But quite understandably they kept an eye focused ahead on an even richer purse.

That would be the Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap July 14, which carries a flat guarantee of $100,000 to the winner.

Ten candidates were entered in today's holiday fixture at 1 1/4 miles. Based on 10 starters, the purse would add up to $55,850 and just about match in dollars the number of people expected to watch the race.

This was the 23rd running of the American at Hollywood and only seven winners in the past were able to score back-to-back victories in the Hollywood Gold Cup.

Today's hopefuls include the strong Rex C. Ellsworth entry of Prove It and Olden Times, Preston Madden's T. V. Lark and Vic Gray Farm's Cadiz, winner of the $100,000 added Californian last May, and Braganza.

Other possibilities included Windy Sandsy, Typhoon II, Rablero, Harpie and Sea Orbit.

Garibaldi To Decide Today

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—Bob Garibaldi, the college pitcher who's such a hot prospect that Casey Stengel drove 80 miles to talk with him while Stengel's New York Mets were playing the Giants, will announce today if, and with what club, he will sign.

The right-handed sophomore, most sought-after collegiate ball player in the country, is expected to command a bonus of $100,000 or more if he elects to forego two more years of eligibility for a professional career.

The madcap month of speculation about Garibaldi's future and pursuit of him by all 20 big league clubs roared to a zany climax Tuesday when Mets Manager Stengel left his team at Candlestick Park and went to Garibaldi's home here for a meeting. Casey at first denied took place.

The strapping 6-foot-5, 205-pound fireballer admitted Stengel visited, though Casey himself insisted for a time he only came to Stockton—80 miles from San Francisco—to see Frank Crosetti, a Stengel lieutenant when Casey managed the Yankees.

Crosetti, however, is still a Yankee coach—and they were playing in New York Tuesday. Late Tuesday night, after flying back to San Francisco, Stengel finally confessed he did talk with Garibaldi, but said the youth hadn't signed any contracts.

Wilson Wins, 2-1 In Only CL Game

Rain cut short a doubleheader and caused three other postponements in the Carolina League Tuesday night.

Wilson edged Raleigh 2-1 in the abbreviated opener of a scheduled twin bill at Raleigh. The game was called after 6 1/2 innings.

Jimmy Roland, a lefthander from Raleigh, showed home town fans a few things as he set the Raleigh Caps down on a two-hitter. He also drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Rocky Mount is at Wilson this afternoon in the first game of a doubleheader, with the two teams playing at Rocky Mount tonight.

Other holiday twin bills are scheduled tonight with Winston-Salem at Greensboro, Durham at Burlington and Raleigh at Kinston.

Bernie Allen, who has been starring at second base for the Minnesota Twins, signed last June after graduation and an outstanding athletic career at Purdue University. He's 23 and from East Liverpool, Ohio.

Postponed

American Legion Baseball Coach Ray Pennington said this morning that the doubleheader with Ahoskie scheduled for Guy Smith Stadium today would likely be postponed because of wet grounds.

Pennington was unable to say when the games would be played. A doubleheader with Rocky Mount Saturday night was also postponed and it has not been rescheduled yet.

At the present time the local team is tied for the league lead with Rocky Mount with 8-2 records.

Notches 1st No-Hit Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Macon had scored only two runs in support of right-hander Duane Richards in his five most recent starts for the Peaches, so the husky hurler decided to take matters into his own capable hands. He assured his fourth 1962 victory by pitching the first no-hitter of the South Atlantic League season.

Richards hurled the best game of his baseball career Tuesday night when he blanked Portsmouth without a hit and struck out 10 batters in Macon's 4-0 triumph.

The victory kept the Peaches in first place by .004 points over the Savannah White Sox, who thrashed the Charlotte Hornets 9-2. Greenville broke a sixth-place tie with Augusta by shading the Yankees 6-5 in 12 innings. Asheville and Knoxville were rained out.

Portsmouth came close to a hit only once. Ron Cox drilled a sharp grounder to deep short with two out in the first inning, but Tommy Helms fielded the ball cleanly and retired Cox by a step.

Savannah jarred Charlotte starter and loser Bob Saban and reliever Bill Felker for 16 hits and White Sox right-hander Mike Decker coasted to his eighth pitching triumph in 12 decisions. Fred Loesekam, J. C. Martin and Bill Davidson collected three hits each for the Sox, and Jim Hicks drove in three runs with a triple and a double.

A single in the 12th inning by Sheldon Brodsky drove in Jose Cesar with the winning run for Greenville. Augusta forced the game into extra innings by rallying for two runs in the eighth inning.

Rain cut short a doubleheader and caused three other postponements in the Carolina League Tuesday night.

Wilson edged Raleigh 2-1 in the abbreviated opener of a scheduled twin bill at Raleigh. The game was called after 6 1/2 innings.

Jimmy Roland, a lefthander from Raleigh, showed home town fans a few things as he set the Raleigh Caps down on a two-hitter. He also drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Rocky Mount is at Wilson this afternoon in the first game of a doubleheader, with the two teams playing at Rocky Mount tonight.

Other holiday twin bills are scheduled tonight with Winston-Salem at Greensboro, Durham at Burlington and Raleigh at Kinston.

Bernie Allen, who has been starring at second base for the Minnesota Twins, signed last June after graduation and an outstanding athletic career at Purdue University. He's 23 and from East Liverpool, Ohio.

Susman Only Remaining American In Tourney

By GEOFFREY MILLER
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Just one American—Karen Hantze Susman of Chula Vista, Calif.—remained in the Wimbledon tennis championships today and she was rated only an outside chance of going all the way in the women's division.

Maria Bueno, Brazil's tennis tigrress, was the heavy favorite to regain her lost crown. She clashes with Vera Sukova of Czechoslovakia in one semifinal Thursday while Mrs. Susman plays blonde Ann Haydon of Britain.

Four Australians were fighting it out today in the men's semifinals—the first time ever that four Aussies gained the next to last round. Rod Laver was paired against Neale Fraser and John Fraser, Neale's kid brother, was matched with Martin Mulligan.

Mrs. Susman and Miss Haydon will meet in their second important clash in less than a month. The British girl defeated Karen in the Wightman Cup competition in mid-June.

"Ann certainly got the better of me that day," Mrs. Susman said.

"I'm not making any predictions as to whether I can reverse the result. I know she's at the top of her form at the moment."

Miss Haydon beat Mrs. Susman after the United States team had wrapped up the cup by winning the first four matches. But the American girl pooh-poohed suggestions that she lost because the life had gone out of the match.

"Whenever I go on to a tennis court I play to win," Mrs. Susman said. "I went all out to beat Ann that day."

Mrs. Susman, 19, is in the semi-

Ackerman Still Plans Move But Unhappy With Charleston

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Bill Ackerman, owner of the South Atlantic League's faltering Savannah, Ga. franchise, doesn't think Charleston is a good baseball town. But he believes there might be enough interest here in a winning team to make the rest of the season worthwhile.

Ackerman denied reports Tuesday night that he had changed his mind about moving the money-losing White Sox out of Savannah, where attendance has been poor.

Sam Smith, Sally president, was quoted at Nashville, Tenn., as saying Ackerman would stay in Savannah for the time being because boosters of the team promised they would get 1,000 people out for every home game. Smith made the statement to interests at Nashville who would like to get a professional team back at that city's Sulphur Dell park.

Ackerman said Tuesday night that the situation "is wide open. I'll admit there is a lot of pressure from Savannah, but for the time being I'm going to adopt a wait-and-see attitude."

"If it's not Nashville, then it will be some place else if the fans don't come out."

Ackerman said attendance in Savannah has been hurt by a boycott by Negroes. One obstacle to moving, however is his commitment there for some $15,000 in advertising.

He wants to bring the franchise back here for the rest of the season. It operated here before moving to Savannah last October.

"Charleston is not a good baseball town," said Ackerman. "I know that only too well after three years and losing $125,000 here. I just felt that if I brought the team back now, since they are in first place, that we would draw enough fans in our remaining games to make it worthwhile."

Savannah is in second place today, .004 percentage points behind Macon.

Snead's Nephew Player Of Month

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—Jessie Snead, baseball playing nephew of golfer Sam Snead, today was named player of the month in the Class D Western Carolina League.

Snead, left fielder for Statesville will receive a watch from a chewing gum company which sponsors the award.

Snead, property of the Washington Senators, is batting .346.

WONDERING what makes the daily newspaper the top advertising buy? It's the number and quality of the people the daily newspaper reaches, and their friendly reaction to newspaper advertising. When an advertiser invests in any medium, he's buying an audience for his sales message. The newspaper audience is large. Almost 100,000,000 people read a daily newspaper every day in the U.S.* And that audience remains very constant. There's no "summer slump" in newspapers, no peak listening or viewing hours, no special moment when you must nail down an audience or miss out completely. The daily newspaper sells around the clock. Readers can study it at their leisure...enjoy it...relax with it...clip it...buy from it. And they do.

LAST CHANCE VALLEY

BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

CHAPTER 9
"You work at the Birdcage?" Jim Varney asked Marcia Reynolds.

"I was signed up by Mr. Hoagland about a month ago," she said. "I understand he's dead, and from what I've just overheard at the bar there's a pretty good chance you two will be inheriting the saloon."
"There's a good chance," Varney agreed.
Thorpe McAfee said nothing as he leaned on the bar, holding an empty glass in his hands.
"Well," Varney grinned as he handed Marcia a drink. "Now that both Lacey and Hoagland are dead, and we are probably the new owners of the Birdcage, where do you stand?"

Marcia took the drink from him, looked over the rim of the glass with her slanted eyes and said softly, "I go with the Birdcage."
The next morning Thorpe and Jim Varney sat in the office of Philip Laverne, a lawyer. Laverne examined the document Varney had given him and assured him that, if no other heirs of either Hoagland or Lacey turned up after a notice had been placed in the local paper, the Birdcage could reasonably be assured to be theirs, and title to it legally acquired in due course.

"In the meantime," Varney said, "I don't suppose there's any objection to our running the establishment until we do have clear title?"
"I don't think anyone in this town would object," the attorney informed them. "The story has already gotten around how these two men duped you and then left you to die."
They headed back to the Birdcage a little before noon to supervise the grand opening, and Varney said as they walked along, "You won't come in with me, Thorpe?"
"No," Thorpe told him.
"Then we'll get an estimate on the worth of the Birdcage," Varney told him. "I'm sure I can take out a mortgage for half its value. You might have eight or ten thousand dollars, Thorpe, to play around with. What are you going to do with it?"

Thorpe had been thinking along those same lines since they'd gotten up that morning. Out in Death Valley there was a girl with copper-colored hair who had a very valuable borax claim and needed capital to start working it. He now had the capital.
"I have a few ideas," Thorpe murmured.
"Name one," Varney challenged him.
"Borax," Thorpe McAfee said, and Jim slowed down to stare at him.
"That girl back in the valley still got you?" he asked.
Thorpe smiled. "I'd say it was a better investment than a saloon."
"You can have it," Varney told him. "I don't want to ever see that valley again. I suppose you remember that Farrington of Ajax seems to have the inside track there?"
"Maybe he does," Thorpe said, "and maybe he doesn't."
Jim Varney put a hand on his shoulder as they walked along. "Whatever happens," he assured Thorpe, "you can always have free drinks and free lunch at the Birdcage. I wouldn't take a chance on this borax business. It's something you don't know; it's a new field altogether."
"I like new fields," Thorpe said.

When they stepped into the Birdcage they found Marcia Reynolds talking with one of the bartenders at the bar. Varney lifted a hand to her and then went into the office to look over the books and to talk with his help.
Thorpe stepped up to the bar; he was drinking alone when Marcia moved toward him. She was wearing a simple blue dress.
"I was just stepping out to do a little shopping," she said as she came up. "What is the good news from the lawyer?"
"The deal should go through," Thorpe told her. "It looks as if we have title to this place."
"I'm glad," Marcia smiled. "I'm really very glad."
Thorpe looked at her. "You like this place?" he asked.
"I like it with the new owners," Marcia said.
"Only one," Thorpe told her. "Varney's buying me out." He thought he saw disappointment come into her eyes.
"Why are you doing that?" she asked. "This is a good business, Mr. McAfee. It was making plenty of money for the former owners, and it should do as well or better for you."
"I wasn't cut out for the saloon business," Thorpe said. "My father was a freight line owner. I guess I take after him. I like to be outside."
"What are you going to do in Piedmont?" Marcia asked him curiously.
Thorpe shrugged. "I may look into Death Valley," he said, "and the borax business."
Marcia glanced at him, humor in her gray eyes. "I understand there's a girl out in the valley," she said.
"A girl with a big borax claim?"
Thorpe frowned. "We've met her," he said briefly, "and I may look her up."

"If she's as beautiful as they say she is," Marcia laughed, "I wouldn't blame you, Mr. McAfee."
"I haven't made any real plans as yet," Thorpe said, but he knew in his heart that he intended to look up Fern O'Hara very shortly.

"Of course," Marcia murmured, "you'll be coming into the Birdcage quite often if your friend owns and operates it."
"Jim Varney and I are old friends," Thorpe said. "We'll be seeing each other."
"And me?" Marcia asked softly.

Thorpe looked at her as they stood at the bar. "Maybe you, too," he told her, and then he went out.
During the rest of the day he looked over the town, talking with people, learning more and more about the new substance, borax, which was being utilized in the drug and soap industry, and which had captured the imagination of every Piedmont citizen.
GAL TWO—SERIAL
During his investigation Thorpe discovered that a man by the name of Meadows owned several big borax rigs and an unknown quantity of mules which he'd used to haul borax out of the hills to the southwest of Death Valley.

"If she's as beautiful as they say she is," Marcia laughed, "I wouldn't blame you, Mr. McAfee."
"I haven't made any real plans as yet," Thorpe said, but he knew in his heart that he intended to look up Fern O'Hara very shortly.

Griff Meadows had a yard about two miles out of Piedmont. On arriving there Thorpe spotted three big borax rigs, double-wagons and a water tank, standing in the hot sun a short distance behind the house. There were approximately a dozen mules grazing on a slope nearby. Evidently Meadows was already liquidating his borax line and had disposed of most of his mules. The wagons, however, were apparently white elephants, and Thorpe was positive he'd have no difficulty purchasing them.
Meadows was a small, wizened man of middle age, dried out by the hot sun of the country and made somewhat bitter by recent disappointments. He said after Thorpe spoke to him, "You want them wagons, mister, you can roll 'em out o' here for half what I paid. That's four hundred an' fifty dollars each."

Lindsay Crosby Has Breakdown
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lindsay Crosby, 24, will be hospitalized about a month with a nervous breakdown, says his uncle, Larry Crosby.
Lindsay, the youngest of singer Bing Crosby's four grown sons, entered St. John's Hospital in nearby Santa Monica Sunday.
Larry Crosby said Lindsay also is suffering from influenza and is under the care of Dr. Robert Buckley, a psychiatrist.
Lindsay suffered a nervous breakdown last February when his wife, Barbara, was ill. I guess he just got up too soon," said the uncle.

2 Workmen Uncover... And It's Saved $2.5 Million In Car

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—Two workmen renovating parallel rows of recently sold garages on a quiet city street peered into the trunk of an old car and found almost $2.5 million in money that an FBI agent said appeared to be legal U.S. currency.

Lanier In Line For Ins. Post

RALEIGH (AP)—State Personnel Director Ed Lanier is in line to be the next insurance commissioner of North Carolina.

Gov. Terry Sanford has informed members of the State Democratic Executive Committee he expects to name Lanier to succeed Charles F. Gold, who died last week.

The committee will pick the party's nominee to run in the fall general election for the remainder of Gold's term. The governor's appointee will serve until after the election.

Sanford returns Thursday from Hershey, Pa., where he is attending the National Governors Conference, and likely will make the appointment at that time.

Lanier, 61, is a former Chapel Hill mayor who served two terms in the State Senate. A native of Georgia, he served many years as student loan fund officer at the University of North Carolina.

Gov. Sanford named him state personnel director. The governor would pick a replacement for personnel. One of the names mentioned first was that of Withers Davis, highway commission personnel head.

FIRST-HAND EVIDENCE

PINCKNEYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Justice of the Peace Robert Hubler fined Hugh Akre $10 in a very swift court action. Akre's car had collided with Hubler's car.

Near the end of the 17th Century, the monks at St. Bernard acquired dogs. The animals guarded the monastery, turned spits in the kitchen and carried supplies. About 1750 the monks began to train the dogs for rescue missions.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I told them to save my arm if they could" said the 61-year-old laborer. "I helped the doctors with a little prayer."

And save it they did, say the surgeons at Orthopedic Hospital. Dr. J. Vernon Luck, medical director, described the circumstances at a news conference Monday.

Robert Orona, of suburban Pico-Rivera, was at work last Aug. 24 when a road-stamper crushed and tore off his left arm. He was taken to the hospital an hour later.

Dr. Luck found two of the three main nerves intact in a two-inch strip of flesh from which Orona's arm was dangling. A long section of the third nerve was missing along with bone and muscle.

While Dr. Luck told of the two-hour operation, Orona wiggled five fingers at the end of an L-shaper arm that observers compared to a coarsely shaped hamburger with a tissue-thin glaze of skin.

Dr. Luck said: "Surgery has advanced to a point where it is proper to try to save extremities we once would have amputated. We joined the severed bone with a rod, then sewed the arteries together and took skin grafts from the man's thigh."

Dr. Luck said the result is "much better than an artificial arm, and it will get better. He can hold things with his fingers and by using his shoulder can lift light objects. He should be able to do some sort of light bench work after a time."

The elbow joint is fused and the biceps are gone, but Orona said he has "only a little pain now" and Dr. Luck said even that will go away.

The surgeon added: "The nerves are starting to function. An extremity would not be worth saving if it could not be made to function."

Last May 23 in Boston, Everett Knowles Jr., 12, had his arm cut off under a freight train. Doctors sewed it back and said they thought it was the first time an arm was reattached successfully. The boy's arm doesn't work yet because the nerves have yet to be joined.

Nation Honors Its 186th Birthday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation honors the 186th anniversary of its independence today in a celebration that touches every corner of the world.

In Philadelphia, Independence Hall was the focal point, with President Kennedy addressing the National Governor's Conference.

The assembly was perhaps the most important in the Pennsylvania city since the signing of the Declaration of Independence there July 4, 1776.

It was the first time since World War I that a president made a July 4 speech in the hall.

Wherever the American flag flies—on this continent and on others—formal and informal observances were set.

In the nation's capitol, the White House was open to the public twice the normal time. It long had been closed to tourists on legal holidays.

In Manila, Filipinos observed the day as their first Philippine-American Friendship Day.

In Tokyo, Emperor Hirohito sent a congratulatory cable to President Kennedy. A similar message was sent to the President by the Yang Di Pertuan Agong, Malaya's king.

Ambassador Thomas C. Mann is depositing a floral wreath on the column of Independence in Mexico City.

There were observances in Thailand—where U.S. Marines sit opposite the Laotian border—as insurance for the independence of free nations in that area of the world.

In London, the U.S. Embassy—once the site of one of the world's biggest Independence Day observances—celebrated in austerity. In the past, the entire American colony in London had been invited along with many Britons and diplomats. This year, Ambassador David Bruce had only a small guest list.

In wall-divided Berlin, Gen. Lucius D. Clay accepts a salute at the first Yankee parade held there since just after World War II.

Some 3,000 American troops will march down Gneisenaustrasse in the borough of Kreuzberg, with a 50-gun salute at the Platz Der Luftbrücke—Airlift Square.

Sitting in the square is a monument to the airlift commanded by Clay that broke the Soviet blockade of 1948-49.

In the United States, the Louisiana Legislature planned to work today in an attempt to clear up business for July 12 adjournment. Most other Americans were in a holiday mood—in the country, at beaches, wherever there was relaxation.

Some visit Fort McHenry, birthplace of the Star Spangled Banner, in Baltimore. More than 750,000 were expected to watch fireworks displays.

In Fort Madison, Iowa, children—and their parents—flock to the 49th kiddies parade scheduled by Charles Korschgen, a retired railroader, who started the affair on July 4, 1913, and watched them mushroom into a citywide observance.

Tar Heel Drowns In Tidewater, Va.

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Ernest McCrary, 55, of Lexington, an employee of the Acme Face Veener Co., drowned in Virginia Monday while on a vacation trip.

He and his wife, Mrs. Cary Hudson McCrary, were visiting friends in the Norfolk-Portsmouth area, where both formerly worked.

Reports reaching here gave this account: McCrary was in a party of six that got trapped on a sandbar in Lynnhaven Inlet in Princess Ann County. The others—three women including Mrs. McCrary, and two children—were rescued—but McCrary drowned. A rescue squad recovered his body in about an hour.

A report from the scene said the party had been crabbing and was trapped on the sandbar by the incoming tide.

The body is being taken to Lexington for funeral services, arrangements for which have not been completed.

In Montana, the Flathead Indians planned an encampment and dance at Arlee. The Blackfoot Indians staged a rodeo at Browning.

In Wyoming, the Masonic Lodge is commemorating the 100th anniversary of its first meeting with a ceremony on Independence Rock, an Oregon Trail landmark.

In Miami, radio station WAME turned its clock back to 1776, playing the minuets and ballads of the 18th century with emphasis on the spirited tunes of the American Revolution.

The station's news broadcasts concern news developments of those times, prepared by scholars and historians to mirror for 1962 listeners such events as Patrick Henry's "Liberty or Death" speech, Congress' actual roll call on the Declaration of Independence, and the reading of the document by its author, Thomas Jefferson.

Disadvantaged Children Major Cause For Concern

By G. K. HODENFIELD

AP Education Writer

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—The youngster from the big city slums, who doesn't have a chance. The child of migrant workers forever on the go. The high school dropout who enters a labor market that has no job for him.

These young Americans in the growing army of disadvantaged children will form a substantial part of tomorrow's adult generation. What to do with them and about them is a major source of concern at the annual convention of the National Education Association.

Judge Mary Conway Kohler of the National Committee on Employment of Youth told convention delegates Tuesday: "The devastating effects of long-term unemployment of youth will continue to grow unless we, as a nation, take drastic steps to overhaul our educational, training, guidance and employment machinery."

Most of the million unemployed youth in the United States dropped out of high school before graduation, she said, and most of them are from the slums of the great cities or the lowest economic levels of the middle-sized cities.

Charles H. Percy, chairman of the board of Bell and Howell, told the convention, "For the unprepared, the future holds only dismay and disappointment."

"Automation screams out the message of education for the future," Percy said. "In the electrical industry, for example, employment of production workers fell from 925,000 in 1953 to 836,000 in February 1961. This is a 10 per cent decrease, despite an increase in production of 21 per cent."

Jeanette MacDonald's Dual 25th Anniversary

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Old movie fans never die, not if they are Jeanette MacDonald's.

Forty of the singing star's fans gathered here this week, coming from as far away as Australia. The double occasion: the 25th wedding anniversary of Miss MacDonald and Gene Raymond; the 25th year of the fan club.

"I'm quite touched by it," said Miss MacDonald. "It was all very spontaneous on their part. It's really quite amazing. You don't see that kind of loyalty very often."

You surely don't. Miss MacDonald's major film career ended with "Cairo" in 1942. Except for a brief return for two films in 1948, she has been absent from the movie stages since then. Yet her fan clubs remain among the most active.

The 40 far-flung fans started assembling here last week.

The festivities for the celebration included a dinner at the Lauau Restaurant, given by the Raymonds. The fans were treated to a visit to MGM studios, where Jeanette and Nelson Eddy reigned as the sweethearts of song in the 1930s. The group took a vote for which film they would most like to see. Winner was "Smiling Through," appropriate since it also starred Gene Raymond. Due to a legal complication with the authors, it is the only one of Miss MacDonald's films that has not appeared on television.

The fans saw "Smiling Through," plus the "This Is Your Life" television show that starred Miss MacDonald. Today they are visiting the Bel-Air mansion which Jeanette and Gene have shared during their married life.

She is at a loss to account for the continuing loyalty of her fans. Far from waning, they are even growing in number, she reported.

"We're getting a new influx because of television," she said. "A lot of young people are joining."

The 25-year-old fan club is only one of hers. Another highly organized club dates back to when she starred with Maurice Chevalier in 1934.

Naturally the fans are always plugging for a comeback. When producer Ross Hunter mentioned that he was considering Miss MacDonald for a Doris Day film, he was flooded with enthusiastic letters. "That makes me feel good," said the singer, who would welcome a return.

Governors Head For Philadelphia

By JACK BELL
HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Governors head for Philadelphia and a major speech by President Kennedy today after winding up their business sessions in a squabble over civil rights.

On the eve of Independence Day the governors shot off all kinds of political fireworks. But they were forced by a Southern filibuster to destroy a civil rights rocket of doubtful explosive power. In a closing session they elected Gov. Albert D. Rosellini, Washington Democrat, as their new chairman.

Never at any governors' conference have so many members so vigorously but fruitlessly argued over political issues as at this meeting which closes with holiday observances after the President's speech.

The resolutions committee offered a tame civil rights plan which reaffirmed the position the conference had taken last year. As a bow to the Southerners the committee inserted language which said "much misrepresentation exists concerning our state laws and our state customs in the field of human rights." It added that there had been "exaggeration of the conditions in this country both by extremists here at home and antagonists abroad."

This didn't suit Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon. They offered a substitute. Promptly, Gov. John B. Swainson of Michigan moved in to propose a substitute favored by the Northern Democrats.

Then Gov. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina took charge. Gaining recognition, he informed the governors that if they wanted to stay around they could hear him speak for a long time. He said a "gentleman's agreement" to accept the weak civil rights resolution had been breached.

After he had talked about an hour and a series of parliamentary moves had failed to dislodge him, Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania came up with a compromise.

Drop the whole thing, he said, and let individual governors sign any statements they favor. This plan eventually was adopted 32-8.

The death of a resolution on medical care for the elderly was quicker and simpler, but just as final.

Canadian Plan Under Heavy Fire

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Saskatchewan's new compulsory medical care plan was under fire in the courts today as most of the province's 700 doctors carried their strike against the program into the fourth day.

The striking doctors remained firm in their demands that the Premier Woodrow Lloyd's Socialist government repeal the medical care program. In Saskatoon, Hans Taal, chairman of the so-called Keep-Our-Doctors Committee, said he planned to stage a mass march to Regina later this week to protest the program.

Two doctors filed suit in Saskatoon Tuesday for a court order restraining the province's government from further implementing the program which went in to effect Sunday.

Drs. W. J. Cranley and M. H. Macdonald charged the provincial government with unconstitutional interference in their right to practice medicine and asked $20,000 each in personal damages.

Named as defendants were former Premier T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party who headed the provincial government when the medical care insurance act was introduced in the legislature, and 11 members of the provincial Cabinet.

The registrar of the Court of Queen's Bench in Saskatoon issued a writ giving the defendants 15 days to enter a defense.

The City Council of Yorktown in eastern Saskatchewan added its support to the striking doctors. It unanimously approved a resolution Tuesday night supporting the doctors "in their fight for freedom from control of the provincial government" and urged the government to withdraw the program until agreement is reached with the doctors.

The mother of a 10-month-old boy who died Sunday while the parents sought desperately to find medical help reportedly blamed the government for the infant's death.

"If they had not forced the doctors to strike, my Carl would be alive today," Mrs. Peter Demousoff was quoted as saying by the Toronto Star.

The striking doctors contend the compulsory medical care program opens the way for government control of medical practice. A government source estimated only about 100 of the province's 700 physicians would work under the plan.

The plan—the first of its kind on a major scale in North America—covers all of the province's 928,000 residents not covered by the Canadian federal medical insurance plans.

The doctors are insisting on an alternative program that would not be compulsory. The government claims the doctors are worried only about their pocketbooks, since few of the doctors working under the plan would be able to match their incomes under non-regulated practice.

It allows free choice among doctors and patients, but requires every resident to contribute to the cost. Premiums of $12 a year for single persons and $24 for families will pay only part of the estimated $21 million annual cost of the plan. The rest will come from a 5 per cent sales tax and other taxes.

The plan fixes doctors' fees at 85 per cent of the schedule set by the Provincial College of Surgeons and Physicians, the same rate paid by the province's two doctor-operated medical insurance plans.

The doctors are insisting on an alternative program that would not be compulsory. The government claims the doctors are worried only about their pocketbooks, since few of the doctors working under the plan would be able to match their incomes under non-regulated practice.

world—we cannot insure its domestic tranquility, or provide for its common defense, or promote its general welfare, or secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.

"But joined with other free nations, we can do all this and more. We can assist the developing nations to throw off the yoke of poverty. We can balance our worldwide trade and payments at the highest possible level of growth.

"We can mount a deterrent powerful enough to prevent all aggression. And ultimately we can help to achieve a world of law and free choice, banishing the world of war and coercion.

"For the Atlantic partnership would look outward to cooperation with all nations in meeting their common concerns.

"It would serve as a nucleus for the eventual union of all free men—those who are now free and those who vow someday to be free."

The latter reference was the second in Kennedy's 15-minute address, which contrasted the world of freedom with the world of Communist bondage.

In his recital of the great march to independence that began in the state, red brick hall in front of which he stood, Kennedy said: "If there is a single issue that divides the world today, it is independence or the independence of Berlin or Laos or Viet Nam—the longing for independence behind the Iron Curtain—the peaceful transition to independence in those newly emerging areas whose troubles some hope to exploit.

Greenville To Get Payment

WASHINGTON — Payment of $6,000 to Bobby Ray Lewis of 115 E. 11th St., Greenville, may be authorized by Congress for injuries sustained 20 years ago when an Army munitions truck exploded March 7, 1942, between Selma and Smithfield, N.C.

This morning Lewis described his memory of the accident as "dream-like" and said that his family didn't discuss the accident with him until he was almost grown.

"Scars and a lot of glass scattered over my body" are the present reminders that Lewis has of the explosion.

About the money that may come his way, Lewis said, "I would like to have it."

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing payment of $800 to T. E. Cooke of Lousburg, N.C., $10,000 to Roy A. Robertson of Jacksonville, Fla., and $6,000 to Lewis of Greenville.

Lewis, owner of Reliable Roofing Co., was about 3 years old when the passenger car in which he was riding collided with the munition truck. He was a resident of New Bern at that time. His injuries from the wreck amounted to two legs broken, facial lacerations, and glass imbedded in his body.

Cooke, who lived near the scene of the explosion, suffered head injuries when his house was destroyed. Robertson was driver of another truck halted by the collision. He also received head injuries from the explosion.

The House Judiciary Committee refused to authorize an $8,000 payment to Harold J. Selman of Gainesville, Ga., a truck driver with Robertson. Selman received payment from a casualty firm for his injuries.

July 4th Observance

Two events, the seventh annual Little League Field Day and a fireworks display at East Carolina College were scheduled to highlight the Fourth of July scene in Greenville.

Only the possibility of rain dampened enthusiasm for the scheduled programs.

Activities at the Little League Field Day, sponsored by the Greenville Moose Lodge, were scheduled to get under way at 1:45 p.m. at Elm Street Park.

Included in the activities were field day events of running the bases timed by a stop watch, infielders throw for accuracy, outfielders throw for accuracy, catchers throw for accuracy and pitchers throw for accuracy.

Home run hitting and throwing for distance were also listed.

A "Pop's All-Star" game was scheduled for 3:30 while the regularly scheduled game between the Moose and Exchange teams was set for 4 p.m.

The fireworks display at East Carolina College was scheduled for 7:45 p.m. in College Stadium.

Sponsored by the College Union, the event is set to include an aerial display, including some 240 shells. The shells, fired from steel mortars will provide about 350 "breaks" during the show.

Edwin E. Rawl, Jr., of Greenville, pyrotechnics expert, will stage the fireworks display.

More Cross-Exams For Engineer Lee

RALIGH, N.C. (AP) — Chief Highway Engineer Cameron W. Lee was to undergo further cross-examination today as the Burch-Brewer influence peddling trial entered its fifth week.

Lee testified that it was a matter of routine for him to put his signature of approval on highway sign projects. He added he gave the projects no detailed review.

Burch was fired last January by Gov. Sanford, who said the action was taken because Burch had been "too closely associated" with Brewer.

James B. Lacy, engineer of the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads testified earlier that Burch had stoutly resisted suggestions to change sign specifications on interstate system projects.

Lee supported Lacy's testimony. The chief highway engineer said that as a result of a conference, he instructed Burch to include in future projects an alternate for tubular steel or aluminum sign poles, as well as tapered aluminum poles which had been specified previously.

The firm of Pfaff & Kendall manufactures tapered aluminum poles. Brewer was paid a 10 per cent commission on its sales in North Carolina.

Others on trial are Burch's son, Robert M. and three New Jersey men who served as executives of the companies, George Masefield, Walter Schoenfeldt and Martin J. Hamilton.

Street Sign Co. and Pfaff & Kendall, both of Newark, N.J. Burch, the two firms and five other defendants are charged with influence peddling in state highway sign purchases. A key defendant is Kidd Brewer, Raleigh businessman and one-time candidate for lieutenant governor, who was an agent for the two firms.

Lee testified that it was a matter of routine for him to put his signature of approval on highway sign projects. He added he gave the projects no detailed review.

Burch was fired last January by Gov. Sanford, who said the action was taken because Burch had been "too closely associated" with Brewer.

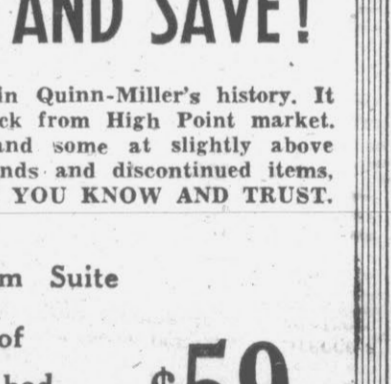

Healing Service At Local Church

The monthly healing service held at St. Paul's Church will be conducted tomorrow, Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. This is a regular event for the first Thursday in each month. The service is held in the church and is open to persons of all faiths.

The Rector, the Rev. John W. Drake Jr. will offer a meditation on St. Luke 18:15-17 as a portion of the service. In an informal service prayers will be offered for healing and health; hymns will be sung about the strengthening grace of Jesus Christ; intercessions for the sick will lift up their names before God; the ministrations of the laying on of hands will be proffered to those assembled. These persons can come for their own need in behalf of others.
