Colorful Fireworks Display At East Carolina

Fireworks Are Climax To Local 4th Observance

Observance of July Fourth in Greenville was climaxed last night with a kaleidoscope of brilliant light and color and a bombardment of sound as the East Carolina College Union staged its town-and-gown fireworks show in the College Stadium.

In spite of a steady drizzle, an estimated 1,500 people braved the elements to see the spectacular show.

Cynthia Anne Mendenhall, director of recreational activities at the College Union, welcomed guests and expressed appreciation for the help of those in the city and at the college who cooperated in staging the show.

William P. Eyerman of Lillington, President of the college Student Government Association, spoke for students as he thanked citizens of Greenville for their support of the college and their constant interest and cooperation.

The Fourth of July, President Leo W. Jenkins of the college, said, is "the most appropriate day to reflect on our political heritage." American ideals, he stated, are expressed in the Declaration of Independence.

"We believe now," he continued, "as our forefathers did in the past, in the principles stated there." As we struggle through the years to preserve our freedom, he declared, we should consider every day in the spirit of July Fourth.

The big fireworks show, staged under the direction of Edwin E. Rawl, Jr., of Greenville, was received with shouts of approval and enthusiastic applause by spectators.

Cascades of lights and bursts of color in varied patterns and designs, as shells were fired over the west end of the athletic field, made the scene both exciting and beautiful.

Climaxing the show was a spectacular cluster of brilliant color as 36 shells were fired at once.

Violent Fighting Erupts In Algeria

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP)—A violent gun battle in the heart of Oran's European city today shattered Algeria's celebration of its first official independence holiday. More than 100 dead and wounded were reported in the first hour of the fighting, which swept the former stronghold of European Secret Army Organization terrorists.

Two hours after the fighting started, gunfire still rattled over the city. French riot police cars set up positions near the battle area.

The gunfire panicked tens of thousands of Moslems in the midst of a delirious celebration. An official of the city's main hospital said all the casualties taken there were Moslems. But a number of Europeans also were killed or wounded.

A Moslem policeman said the firing came from holdout terrorists of the European secret army whose leaders had bowed to Algerian independence after months of murder and arson. The policeman's report could not be immediately confirmed.

The Oran violence, first since Algeria became formally independent Tuesday, erupted against a backdrop of a power struggle for leadership of the new-born nation.

In Algiers, nationalist Premier Youssef Ben Khedda took the salute from 500 battle-hardened Algerian guerrillas. But the military show underscored the shaky position of Ben Khedda's moderate regime.

All the parading troops were from Wilaya No. 3, the only one of the guerrilla army's six zones to have firmly declared its loyalty to Ben Khedda. Three military zones, including the one immediately south of Algiers, have declared their support for rebellious Deputy

EDUCATIONAL VISIT

LONDON (AP)—Princess Anne—third in line of succession to the British throne—has gone to France on what a Buckingham Palace spokesman described as an educational visit.

She arrived in Paris this morning. Plans for her trip were kept secret and only a handful of people knew about it in advance.

Premier Ben Bella, a radical leftist who split with Ben Khedda on the eve of independence.

The 45,000-man nationalist army in exile—the key to any power struggle—was moving into Algeria from Tunisia and Morocco. Ben Bella commands strong loyalties among those troops whom he welded into the fighting force the much larger French army could not defeat.

The advance guard from Tunisia had reached Souk Ahras, 110 miles east of Constantine. From the Moroccan side, the nationalist units marched toward Marnia. Ben Bella's home town, where he was expected to arrive in several days from his present refuge in Cairo.

Ben Khedda's regime strove desperately to bring order and assert its control before Ben Bella's return. But governmental administration ground to a halt and authorities were virtually unable to control jubilant Moslems from staging riotous celebrations and grabbing European property.

After a wild night, smartly uniformed, French-trained policemen—including both Moslems and Europeans—succeeded early today in closing off some of the main streets for the victory parade.

Against the background of jubilation, there was the growing threat of anarchy.

The governmental vacuum was created by the sudden withdrawal of French officials and the lack of Algerian Moslems to replace them.

Governing power supposedly rests, until elections, with the French-installed Algerian Provisional Executive headed by Abdelrahmane Fares. But actual power lies with Ben Khedda.

Ben Khedda and Fares conferred Wednesday night and were reported planning to form a temporary regime to bring a measure of order out of the chaos. But Ben Khedda was having difficulty extending his authority outside Algiers.

Ben Bella showed no sign of reconciliation. While he opposes Ben Khedda's policy of cooperation with Algeria's Europeans and with France, he insisted his dispute with Ben Khedda stemmed solely from the firing of the three army commanders.

State Still Building Its Case

Bookkeeper Testimony Describes Young Burch's Scholarship Fund Operation

By NOEL YANCEY

RALEIGH (AP)—The state continued Thursday its effort to prove that former highway engineer Robert A. Burch shared substantially in some $41,700 paid to his college-age son by businessman Kidd Brewer.

A bookkeeper for the North Carolina National Bank, Richard P. Pierce, who took the stand Wednesday, continued testimony about the bank account of Robert M. Burch, the engineer's son. Pierce testified Wednesday that young Burch had given his father the right to write checks on the account, in effect making it a joint account.

Through deposit slips, the state sought to show Wednesday that some $41,700 paid to young Burch by a Brewer-owned corporation, Interstate Services, had been deposited to this bank account.

Today, the state introduced some 79 checks into evidence, the vast majority of which were signed: Robert M. Burch by R.A. B., indicating they were written by the elder Burch. In a couple of cases the checks were signed by Robert A. Burch. There were 64 checks bearing signatures indicating they were written by the elder Burch. These totaled more than $19,000.

Pierce also testified that Robert M. Burch's account had been debited to pay off loans of Robert A. Burch totaling about $7,000. Brewer served as manufacturer's representative for the sign firms and received a 10 per cent commission on the firm's sales to the highway department.

The state also tried to show that Brewer split these commission 50-50 with young Burch through the payments made by Interstate Services.

Defendants in the case, in addition to Brewer and the Burchs are the two New Jersey sign firms Brewer represented, Pfaff & Kendall Co., and Traffic and Street Sign Co. and three New Jersey men who were officials of the sign firms—George Masfield, Martin J. Hamilton, and Walter Schoenfeldt.

100 Killed In Raging Battle

ORAN, Algeria (AP)—A raging gun battle between Moslems and Europeans swept downtown Oran today. Hospital attendants said more than 100 persons were killed or wounded.

In midafternoon, more than three hours after firing broke out, shots were still heard but the fighting seemed to be slackening off.

Employees of the city's main hospital said more than 100 dead or wounded had been brought in, but could give no precise figure for either.

Doctors worked over the wounded and would not make comment on the number of Moslems and Europeans injured or dead.

The swift and bloody outbreak of fighting, the first major incident since the country became independent Tuesday, risked plunging Algeria into chaos.

It came as thousands of joyous Moslems were parading and chanting slogans of their new-born state. Suddenly, witnesses said, gunfire crackled from windows of European apartment houses overlooking the Place Foch, main square of the city. Then Moslem police quickly returned fire and the battle was joined.

The shooting appeared to have stopped in the center of the city by late afternoon.

More Rain Threatens As Pitt Loss Count Goes On

By PATRICIA MOORE

The threat of more rain hung over Pitt tobacco farmers today and experts were unable to make any estimates as to what percent-

'Considerably Heavy'

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The state director of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. said today he has surveyed tobacco crop damage in Craven and Pitt counties "and it is considerably heavy."

Julian E. Mann reported that he planned to tour some of the damaged tobacco fields in Beaufort County today. The torrential rains of last weekend and more rainfall this week dealt tobacco farmers a severe blow in Craven, Pitt, Beaufort, Onslow, Martin and Jones counties, Mann stated.

"Under any weather conditions from here on out the loss is going to be substantial," he added. Craven and Beaufort apparently were the hardest hit. Tobacco crop damage in each of the two counties has been estimated at $6 million.

M. P. Chestnutt, Beaufort County agent, said "about half of our 10,000-acre tobacco crop is gone." Meanwhile, the U.S. Weather Bureau at the Raleigh-Durham Airport reported that the Neuse River will overflow at some of its downstream points in the wake of Tuesday's rains.

The Cape Fear is expected to overflow some downstream near Elizabethtown. The Neuse measured 15.7 feet Wednesday at Smithfield, where bankful is 13 feet. At Goldsboro the depth was 15.6 feet, or 1.6 feet above bankful. A rise to about 20 feet is expected at both places within the next day or two.

At Kinston, where bankful is 14 feet, the Neuse measured 13.1 feet Wednesday. A rise of 18 feet is likely within the next few days, the bureau reported.

age of damage has occurred generally to crops.

Farmers in the northeast section of the county probably were better off this year than in previous years due to the Grindle Creek drainage canal flood control project. Roy Beck of the Soil Conservation Service said today, "We feel that it (the canal) has served its job."

Farmers of the area have indicated that the canal has functioned very well and prevented crop damage. Last Friday and Saturday, following the heavy rains in the county, Grindle Creek didn't go over its banks, Beck pointed out.

Personnel are now in the process of marking high water spots with sheets of aluminum, four by four inches. Beck said he is hopeful that landowners, realizing what the markers are, will not destroy them since they might remain some time before being used.

Farmers participating in the Grindle Creek canal project have field drainage on their individual farms, which carries water to group canals. These ultimately take the water to Grindle Creek which empties into the Tar River. The Federal government is financing 66.2-3 per cent and the local participants are paying 33.1-3 per cent of construction costs. Water shed projects may be developed in other areas of the county in the future. As for farmers elsewhere in the county, Assistant Farm Agent C. J. Goodman said it is still too early to estimate any damage to tobacco crops. He added that he hoped that "the crops will come through in good shape, with a minimum amount of drainage." He added that some farmers probably were going to suffer heavy damage, but that conditions may not be as serious overall as has been indicated.

Fred Smith, key field man for the Federal Crop Insurance Office here, said there were still "plenty of reports" of damaged tobacco from farmers. He said that he made a survey yesterday of the Grimesland and Blackjack area and found conditions there worse than he had anticipated.

Since yesterday, and up to midnight, just 19 of an inch of rain was recorded at the Greenville Utilities Plant, Donnie Allen reported.

The weatherman has reluctantly forecast possibility of more showers over the state Friday, with otherwise variable cloudiness and mild temperatures. High and low temperatures for Greenville on Wednesday were 81 and 70 degrees. The low recorded during the night was 70 degrees.

The Tar River, swollen from rain, has risen to 10 feet this morning and was continuing to rise.

JFK Studying Economy In Wake Of Urging US-European Partnership

WASHINGTON (AP)—President

Kennedy, after calling for a partnership with a united Europe, today goes over the nation's economic books with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon.

The President flew back to the capital from Camp David, the presidential hideaway in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains where he spent the night after his foreign policy speech in Philadelphia.

Kennedy's formal appointment was with Dillon and Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers, for a talk backgrounded by rising pressures in and out of Congress for a tax cut this year.

Both Kennedy and Dillon have expressed the view that taxes should not be reduced until next year. However, Kennedy has indicated that the question of a tax reduction this year was still open and depended on the state of the economy.

The situation likely will be aired later today at Kennedy's news conference. Kennedy flew Wednesday morning from Washington to Philadelphia, where, at historic Independence Hall, he called for an international declaration of interdependence—a partnership with a united Europe.

Before him as he spoke was a police-estimated crowd of 100,000, including 42 of the nation's governors who had motored to Philadelphia from Hershey, Pa., at the conclusion of their 54th annual conference.

Kennedy likened the coming together of America's 13 original colonies with the efforts to unify Western Europe. This comparison and his choice of the birthplace of U.S. independence for his remarks underlined that.

Freeman To Try Recover Losses

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman told Senate probers today he will try to recover for the government losses on challenged cotton deals for which he blamed the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

Involved, he said, is a comptroller general report dated June 29 that brokers acting as agents for his department's Commodity Credit Corp. in 1959 and 1960 sold to themselves $400 million worth of government cotton at prices averaging $4 less, and ranging up to $20 a bale less than published market prices.

The report, made public Monday, said the practice was stopped in April 1961. It did not name brokers involved, but recommended that the department try to recover any deficiencies in sales proceeds.

Testifying before the Senate Investigations subcommittee in the Billie Sol Estes hearings, Freeman said Horace D. Godfrey, now one of his top aides, had registered several protests against the policy all to no avail, while Republican Ezra Taft Benson was secretary.

The subcommittee led Freeman read his statement into evidence, although members questioned whether it was pertinent at this time to their probe of the Estes case.

to the creation of a United States of Europe as one step in a larger design, involving the progressive merger of separate sovereignties into some larger political unity.

"The United States looks on this vast new European enterprise with hope and admiration," Kennedy said. "We do not regard a strong and united Europe as a rival but as a partner."

Administration officials, however, cautioned against reading into Kennedy's speech any more than a long-range statement of purpose.

In his address, Kennedy said: "It would be premature, at this time, to do more than indicate the high regard with which we would view the formation of this partnership."

"The first order of business is for our European friends to go forward in forming the more perfect union which will someday soon make it possible."

A great new edifice is not built overnight," he said. "Building the Atlantic partnership will not be cheaply or easily finished."

Overseas, both British and French newspapers gave the speech prominent display. The Times of London said it was "an imaginative idea, typical of his sense of style and history."

In Philadelphia, five governors reached for comment supporting Kennedy's appeal for a partnership with a united Europe. Expressions of support came from Democrats Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina, David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, John Dempsey of Connecticut and Edmund G. Brown of California and Republican John Anderson Jr. of Kansas.

Anderson tempered his support with the comment "action and not brave words will mark progress in this field. This is where we have bogged down in the past."

The President said "today Americans must learn to think intercontinentally." And, looking to the future, he said that "if the Atlantic partnership can be worked out, we can assist the developing nations to throw off the yoke of poverty."

HONOLULU (AP)—The United States is set for its third try at exploding a nuclear device high above Johnston Island tonight.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Honolulu said skies should be clear and visibility good over the tiny Pacific Island.

Two previous attempts at a high-altitude shot failed because of missile troubles. The nuclear warheads in both cases were destroyed without a nuclear detonation.

doctors would "suffer such harm to themselves, their families or their property as the organization may deem fit."

The letters said the threats were "no more ruthless than the situation the doctors have subjected the people to in a callous disregard for health and safety."

Ironically, the letter had the effect of taking the doctors out of service. Both had been on emergency duty at Saskatoon's St. Paul's Hospital, one of 34 centers set up to provide free treatment until normal medical services are resumed. After the threats, the doctors returned to Swift Current to move their families.

In Regina, Police Chief A. G. Cookson would neither confirm nor deny reports that police were closely guarding the legislative buildings for fear of violent demonstrations.

In Saskatoon, Hans Taal, vice-president of the provincial Premier Our Doctors Committee, said a mass demonstration is planned in front of the legislative buildings later this week to demand the repeal of the government program.

Later, however, a spokesman for the group said this idea had been shelved, at least for the time being.

But Bert McKay of Moosomin, president of the committee, said that "in a measure, we have lost the battle" because doctors already were leaving the province to practice elsewhere.

WINTERTVILLE — The Town Board has approved a $87,400 budget for the 1962-63 fiscal year and given their okay to a tax rate of $1.50 per $100 valuation.

Town clerk Elwood Nobles said the budget is an increase of $5,718.75 over the total for 1961-62 with no increase in the tax rate.

Included in the revenue column is $16,800 from the general fund, $5,400 from Powell Bill monies, $10,900 from water and sewer receipts and $54,300 from electric charges and fees.

Disbursements under the new budget are as follows: for legislative activities, $1,500; administrative, $6,000; buildings, $300; insurance and retirement, $3,300; Police Department, $5,200; Fire Department, $1,300; Street department salaries and maintenance, $5,400; cemetery, $400 and for the Contingency fund, $5,000.

Water and sewer disbursements include $1,240 for debt service and retirement of bonds; and $5,660 for salaries, wages, water distribution and sewage disposal, while electric department disbursements call for $4,800 in salaries and wages; $40,700 in supply and distribution expenses $300 for street lighting, $2,000 for curb and gutter and $500 for the recreation center.

Several items increased in the budget, included insurance and retirement and expenditures for the Police department. Decreasing were expenditures for administrative activities, monies for the fire department as well as funds for the cemetery.

The board of aldermen held the $1.50 per $100 valuation tax rate which has been in effect in Winterville for over 10 years.

Hopes For Disaster Label

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner said today Secretary of Agriculture Freeman is receiving a recommendation to declare Pitt and seven other First District counties as disaster areas because of severe crop damage in recent days.

He expressed the hope that the Secretary's proclamation declaring the counties in a disaster area would be issued tonight or tomorrow.

The disaster declaration would entitle farmers of this area to three per cent loans for the coming year in addition to other benefits under the Farmers Home Administration.

Congressman Bonner, who has been in the district for the past several days traveling in various counties, told The Reflector this morning, "This is the worst catastrophe that has visited our area in my lifetime with respect to the farmers, agriculture and those dependent upon farmers."

He said he talked yesterday with Jack Frost, director of emergency loans of the Farmers Home Administration in Washington, D. C., "reporting the condition in this area as I personally saw it."

This morning, he said, he had talked with Clark Tate, assistant director of emergency loans of the FHA and also with Melvin Hearne of Raleigh, state director of the FHA. Congressman Bonner also conferred this morning with D. G. Modlin of Williamston, area supervisor of the FHA.

Hearne is sending a recommendation today to the Secretary of Agriculture that a proclamation of disaster be issued for Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Hyde, Tyrrell, Bertie, Washington and Pamlico Counties. In addition, Congressman Bonner said, similar recommendations are being made for Craven, Lenoir, Jones and other counties in the eastern section of the state hard-hit by heavy rains in recent days.

Rep. Bonner said he is also personally wiring Secretary Freeman strongly recommending he carry out and issue the proclamation from his office as recommended by the state director. The Congressman said he has also placed a call for the head of the feed disaster program for the ASCS in Washington to urge that the ASCS initiate a program for feed supply for livestock to those in this area who are qualified to receive livestock feed.

In another conference this morning Rep. Bonner talked with the state director of the Federal Crop Insurance program. "He recognizes the disaster and will move right away to expedite payment to policy holders under

New Fun Clothes Put Lilt Into Housework

By IRENE FERRIS
BRUSSELS — (WNS) — Madame Pimprenelle, a diminutive Belgian couturiere, has designed an entire line of clothes for sweeping, cooking, washing, ironing and greasing the car.

The way to make housework a pleasure instead of a pain is to dress up for it," she insists.

"What you wear at home is more important than what you do up in when you go out. Why do you buy beautiful clothes for days that take so little of your time, then wear old mismatched leftovers for duties that require most of your time?"

Mme. Pimprenelle's clothes for happy housework feature a series of high-length smocks to be worn with opaque leotards for heavy duties. For young women there are also glamorous aprons and smocks to wear over dresses.

Women who have been doing the marital chores for at least 15 years prefer romantic dresses that recall teen-age years and pre-bridal memories. They like violet sprig or rosebud designs, but printed in no-iron fabrics.

The Belgian couturiere's glamorous aprons are not little tea aprons that cover only the dummies. They tie on like aprons, but spread out to cover almost all of you. In other words, they're for real work.

The favorites among these are in opposite moods.

One is a huge, white Alice-in-Wonderland apron in nylon organ-

What Makes Parisienne Sweet? These Days It's Her Vinegar

By IRENE FERRIS
PARIS — (WNS) — V-Day has come to France again.

But this time the "V" stands for Vinegar as well as Victory. Vinegar is the new fashion color and health drink for fall.

Chic Parisiennes are already beginning to wear vinegar hose, shoes and gloves. They are carrying vinegar bags, and they are drinking vinegar cocktails.

It all began when Mme. Lucienne Delory, the "dean of Frenchwomen," celebrated her 108th birthday at Vendome recently by letting eminent doctors examine her to discover the reason for her extraordinary vigor.

When they came up with no particular answer, the tiny old Frenchwoman explained that her recipe for staying alive and active is to drink a pint of vinegar a day.

"Wine is for drinking, water is for washing, and milk is for babies," she declared. "But I've found it is for everything."

Paris models, starlets and debutantes who had come to pay their respects to Mme. Delory promptly took up the vinegar habit and are pushing the fad to extreme lengths.

Doctors have warned them that a pint a day is too much. But they definitely approve of small amounts taken in water.

Most Frenchwomen have settled down to one tablespoon upon rising, one before each meal and one in mid-afternoon. It is not taken just before retiring.

Vinegar is also recommended for men, but so far they are sticking to their wines and liquors instead.

Vinegar can be made from wine, cider, beer, grain, beets, potatoes and apples. Wine and cider vinegars are the current favorites.

Young Parisiennes are now using vinegar in the following ways:

1. As a drink (mixed with water), for energy.
2. As a rinse for hair and silk fabrics. It gives sparkle and removes soap residue.
3. As a facial astringent.
4. As an after-cleansing lotion to remove the last stubborn vestiges of make-up.
5. As a wine. In cooking it is a substitute for wine that heightens flavors.

6. As a tenderizer in boiling vegetables. A small amount added to the water is enough.

7. As a condiment in homemade mayonnaise, mustard and French dressing.

8. As a color-binder when drying clothes. The Frenchwoman loves to recolor her clothes as much as her hair.

9. As a subtle ingredient in the Chinese and Japanese cookery that is becoming the dining fad of smart young marrieds.

Slippery Work

VENLO, The Netherlands — (WNS) — The local bank has forbidden female employees to wear high-heeled shoes because their noise when they hit the floor reduces concentration and working efficiency. The women must wear red house-slippers instead. Management pays for the slippers.

Bride-Elect Ray Lane Honored

Honoring Miss Ray Lane, bride-elect, Mrs. William Taft entertained at a luncheon at her home on East Fifth Street on Tuesday.

The honoree was presented a corsage of Fuji mums and guests were greeted by Mrs. Taft and the honoree on arrival. Arrangements of white gladioli and shasta daisies were placed throughout the house.

Mrs. William Taft Jr. invited guests to the porch where iced fruit punch was served, after which a buffet luncheon was served from a table in the dining room. The table was covered with an imported pink linen cloth trimmed with white lace. The centerpiece was a bride doll placed on a silver reflector with crystal swans on each side filled with white mums interspersed with greens which formed an arch over the bride. Mrs. Joe Taft and Mrs. Frank Kohler assisted in serving.

Guests were seated by place cards at auxiliary tables throughout the house. After lunch each guest wrote a wish to the bride as a keepsake for her 25th wedding anniversary.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Frank Kohler of Conshohocken, Pa., Mrs. Charles Paradee, Dover, Del., Miss Jean Arthur, Barbara Ann Harrington, Carol Salle, Kathy Salle, Donna Parker of Washington, N. C.

Smart Shopper Will Find Bargains Aplenty Abroad

NEW YORK — (WNS) — If you're going to Europe this summer, don't forget to do your shopping abroad. For even though you're now allowed to bring in only $100 worth of merchandise duty-free where once it was $500 worth, you'll find yourself still getting bargains.

That's because the new law, passed last year when President Kennedy and the rest of us began to worry about the balance-of-payments gap, still give you plenty of leeway.

Here are some of the provisions that add up to bargains provided you know comparative prices in this country and provided you remain a smart shopper and won't be carried away by the charm of some European shopkeepers:

1. Every member of the family gets a duty-free exemption of $100. This means that a family of five is entitled to $500 even where one of the five is a babe in arms. Families are permitted to pool their declaration. Thus, Mom will be able to bring in that bracelet from Italy duty-free even though it cost $400 provided the purchases of the rest of the family don't add up to more than $100.
2. The $100 exemption is based on wholesale value, not retail price. This means that an item costing you $150 will still come with the $100 limit provided its wholesale value is under $100. Be sure to ask for the wholesale value when you make a purchase. And don't think the merchant is cheating you when he tells you you're paying more than the wholesale price. After all, he's in business and is entitled to his profit just as much as the merchants in your own home town.

3. You are still permitted to send an unlimited number of under-$10 gifts from abroad to U.S. friends. These packages are allowed in duty-free, without having any bearing on your exemptions. The only items that are not allowed in this way are alcohol, tobacco and perfume. Travel experts suggest, though, that you do not ship more than one parcel a day to the same person, and that you clearly mark each such package. "Gift — Value Under $10." Many travelers, incidentally, ship such packages to themselves without incurring a raised eyebrow from U. S. Customs authorities.
4. Most important, if you do your shopping carefully you will still find many European prices sufficiently below what you would pay in this country for them to be well worth your while even where you pay the duty exemption. You don't have to be a higher mathematician to figure out why this is so.

First, keep in mind that U. S. duty levels are quite moderate. Here are some samples: radios, 13 per cent; wearing apparel, 20 per cent; cameras, 15 per cent; hi-fi equipment, 13 per cent; automobiles, 8½ per cent.

Thus, a coat that costs you $50 in a chic Paris shop will be subject to $10 duty when you bring it in to the U.S.

But let's say this same coat were to come into the U. S. to be sold at retail in a downtown specialty shop. The U. S. retailer would have to pay almost the same $10 duty through his import agent. He would also have to pay a profit to his agent, along with brokerage fees and transportation costs. Finally, his own mark-up would be 50 per cent or better.

By the time you bought this coat from him, you would probably find yourself paying $100 or more. So even if you have to pay $10 duty above the $50 you're charged, you're still better off.

Shopping should remain one of the main exciting aspects of that out-in-a-lifetime trip to Europe, and it can be profitable too.

One tip, though: Don't try to outwit the Customs people. Sure they're busy and they don't have time to inspect every inch of your luggage. But they will spotcheck, and they have a knack of knowing just where you'll try to hide that little doo-dad you picked up in the Paris Flea Market.

Where Do You Find The Right Boys?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Girls who bemoan the fact that they never meet "the right boys," are usually looking in the wrong places, says a mother of three girls "who lounge around the local beach all summer, expecting to meet Prince Charming."

The mother points out that girls shop for just-right bathing suits, dance dresses and slippers and then expect that somewhere on the same old beach a new boy will stumble over them, sweeping them off their feet. Instead, they see only Willie Smickle and the rest of the same old crowd.

Summer Offers Chances
A girl who wants to make new friends must go where they are. And they will not be found at the old accustomed haunts. She must get away from the old crowd even if it means going dateless for awhile.

Summer offers the perfect chance for new friendships. If a girl would just stir herself. Taking up a serious project is a good bet.

Medical students are at work in hospitals and laboratories during the summer. Hospitals usually can use help in wards, kitchen, laboratories. Volunteers are welcome. You might even get paid for your time while you meet some nice boys.

What About a Language?

Town and city legal departments often welcome volunteer help. Sheriffs and district attorneys sometimes have clerk jobs young people can do. Young lawyers often begin their clerkships during summer months so what better way to meet them.

There are summer art and photography courses that can keep you intrigued and happy as you make new friends.

A course in a language could put you in line for better grades while you get acquainted with the students. Many young people take language refresher courses or conversational language courses before going abroad. Playshop and community stock groups offer fun with a new crowd and an outlet for talent.

Recreation groups often take a limited number of girls into sailing classes. Golf, tennis and riding are other ways to get away from the local crowd.

Friendships with girls shouldn't be scorned. New girls can lead you to new boys — brothers, cousins, friends. You will meet them away from the beaten path, perhaps at ballet school or poetry classes or even behind the counter at the local variety store.

Vacations with parents can lead to new friends, especially if dad decides to go to a fishing camp. Parents are usually foresighted in planning vacations so that their girls do not stick it out, and vacationing can be pretty sure of candies often occur. If you have meeting other young people.

Jobs at resorts are filled ear-ly, before school is out, but some it's possible they will need you.

Working Girl Simply Defined

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service

Women's service magazines, for all their color, entertainment, jolly casserole and pocket-emptying ads, represent the last place a thinking person might expect to find a great truth simply, quietly stated in the manner of things great. Yet it happened in a recent issue of McCall's magazine.

The great, simple truth? Just the definition of what the American working woman is, on behalf of all 22 million of them—in nine everyday words.

"A working woman is only a woman—who works."

Pedestrian minds of both genders clutch their outdated, cubical thinking, and to those and working women still is different from other women.

With every mangled orbit of the earth such minds have less place in our world. They become archaic with a speed not known in any other age. A new manner of thinking is needed which, if not free-wheeling, is capable at least of stretching.

In one week, for instance, millions of investors finally learned that the free American society is not a profit system but a profit and loss system. Their minds had to stretch to encompass the facts: the stock market never was Nirvana; it was just the stock market.

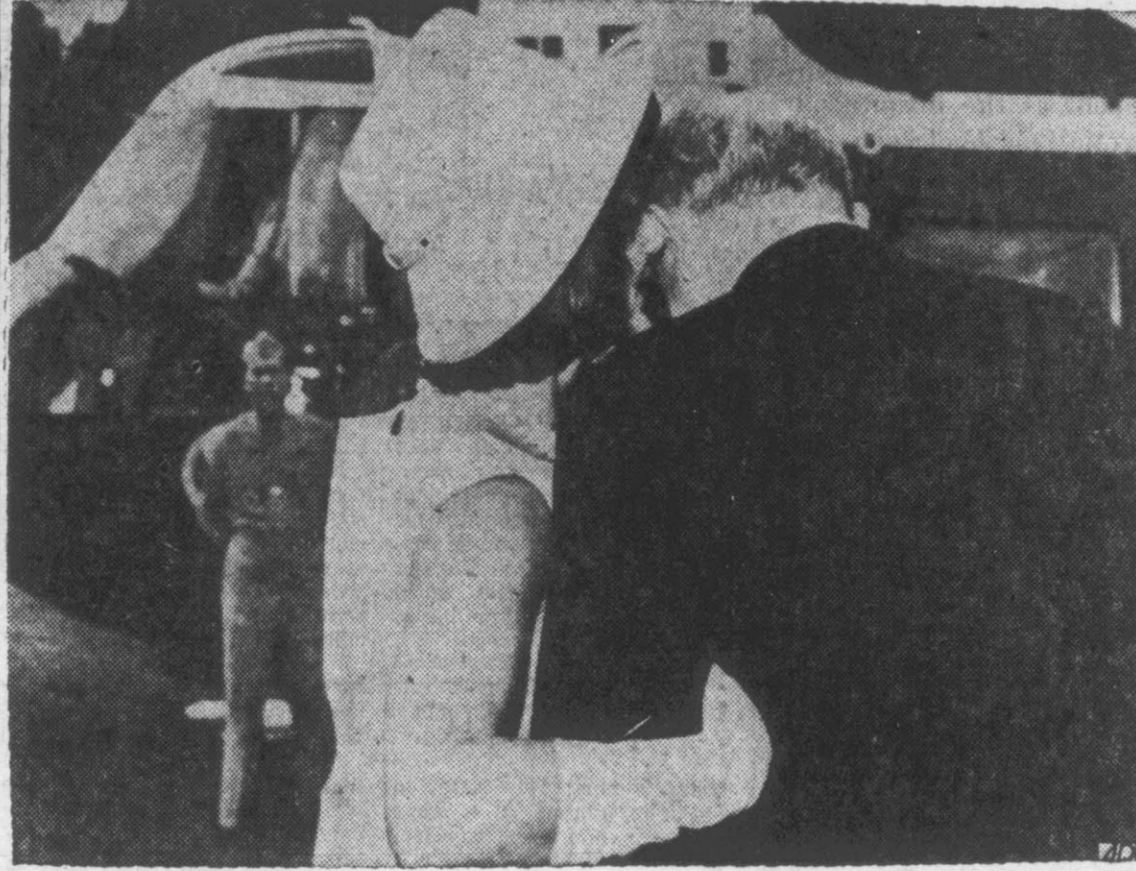

Even 3-year-olds come with stretchable minds these days. Caroline Kennedy, for instance, quips, "What has Daddy done NOW?"

All the things, issues and problems that affect the life of any woman touch the life of any working woman, plus a few extras from the man's world. She has the same interest in home, family, fashion, sex and world peace. She doesn't work "in place of" anything, for women never bargain to give up something. They negotiate to ADD to what they have already.

Has a bubblehead at some social function introduced you with, "Pam is J. Smythe Finsterwald's secretary?" or "Jane is assistant to P. J. Blaa"? Gopher types with one-way minds who burrow in narrow holes do this. It is not acceptable to the working woman though it has some appeal to a few whose only identity rests in a job.

The mind of the working woman has stretch. She must have the space. And she is no Valkyrie, no bewitched demon nor an offbeat, "different" sort of creature.

She is a woman, only a woman—who works.

CLOSE CONVERSATION—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy moves in close to talk with Secretary of State Dean Rusk on White House lawn above noise of helicopter in background. The First Lady stopped to say something to Rusk, just returned from his European trip, before the Kennedys boarded the copter for flight to nearby Andrews AFB for a jet takeoff for Mexico City. Attic Searching Proves Profitable

PARIS—(WNS)—Rachel Dringuet, suddenly called the Dior des Puces, or Dior of the Flea Market, was content to sell anything from secondhand corsets to used dentures for 10 years. Then she chanced upon the attics of several old French farms and chateaux, where she found trunks full of antique clothes.

Some were from trousseaux that had never been used. Others were like new after being carefully boiled and starched. All of it was for sale at giveaway prices.

With a little imagination Mme. Dringuet has turned these forgotten treasures into "chichis a la mode": cocktail dresses, beach blouses and pantaloons, evening capes and nightgowns.

Her prices average from $8 to $10 unless you want a valuable collection piece with guaranteed date and pedigree. Such a gown may cost $200.

Each item is unique, original, old-fashioned and made by hand in fine materials.

"Anybody can do it," smiled the black-haired, thin-nosed Frenchwoman. "Have you gone through the attics in your neighborhood lately?"

Complains Against Baby-Sitting Fad

LONDON—(WNS)—The General Post Office, which runs the British telephone system, has issued a complaint against baby-sitting by telephone.

Many British mothers leave their babies near the phone, take the phone off the hook and get a neighbor to leave her phone off the hook too.

That way, the neighbor can hear the baby's cries and rush to the absent mother's home in case she is needed.

The post office points out the procedure is dangerous because the neighbor would not know if the baby's telephone became disconnected.

Economy Of Operation Important

Local governments, like those of the state and national levels, find themselves faced with constantly rising costs to provide service expected of them by the people they serve.

For the first time in history Pitt County this year has a budget which tops the $2 million mark. It represents an increase of approximately 7.5 per cent over the budget for the fiscal year which ended June 30, but fortunately the County Commissioners found it possible to balance the budget without increasing the county-wide tax rate of $1.25 per $100 valuation.

It is significant that the County Commissioners arrived at the budget for the current year after trimming initial departmental requests which would have required a 11.6-cent tax increase in order to have a balanced budget. Even so, compared with last year's budget, increases were granted in 10 of the categories of appropriations in the county's fiscal operation while decreases were effected in four categories and two categories have approximately the same appropriations as a year ago.

While the appropriations for county operations for the new fiscal year are up 7.5 per cent over last year's figures, the valuation of property upon which ad valorem tax is levied showed an increase of approximately 3 per cent over past year. The remainder of the revenue with which to balance the budget came from increases in other sources of county income.

It appears evident that the present tax rate of $1.25 per $100 valuation cannot continue indefinitely if appropriations rise at the present rate and there is not a comparable increase in the base upon

It's Frequently Crucial Factor

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
WELFARE — She was 10 years old. Her father was dead, and her mother sick and unable to work. The barest essentials for subsistence would require $108 a month.

They made it on $64, on a grant from the North Carolina department of public welfare for aid to dependent children, the maximum that could be allowed.

The girl became valedictorian in her high school class. Then she received an honor two scholarships and worked for the rest of her college education. She was voted the most outstanding student and the most likely to succeed in her graduating class.

BLEAK — This is a true story, in Horatio Alger fashion of the sparkling sort that gladdens the heart of case workers and welfare officials.

They are the ones who see life at its bleakest and blarriest, sad and sordid, and often without hope except that they might extend.

Public welfare has its critics and its abuses. It has its disappointments and inadequacies, and these often overshadow the bright side.

This is the golden anniversary week of the State Board of Public Welfare in North Carolina, an anniversary of a program which Gov. Terry Sanford called a "truly significant landmark in American progress."

HISTORY — The program was inaugurated July 1, 1937, under Gov. Clyde R. Hoey in the dark days of the depression. Sanford, in paying tribute and extending praise to the state's local welfare boards and workers, said that there often is too little appreciation for the work they do offering aid and comfort for dependent children, the aged, the blind, totally disabled and others.

Actually, public welfare in North Carolina is nearly 100 years old.

The state constitution, written in 1868, provided for a board to supervise charitable, penal and correctional institutions and "to look after the general welfare of the poor, the unfortunate and the orphan."

It was not until social security in 1935, however, that federal funds became available to help pay for the welfare programs which the the ad valorem tax is levied. Normally the ad valorem tax base increase is a reflection of economic growth of the county.

With the continuing squeeze on revenues it has available, and the increasing cost of operating the county government, it is important that the County Commissioners and employees in every department of the county government see that every reasonable economy is effected in county operations.

Province's Populace Suffer Most In Battle

The impasse reached by the doctors of Saskatchewan and the government of that Canadian province over the compulsory medical care program is having tragic repercussions on the medical profession, the residents of the province and the government.

As in the case in many instances, the party—the people—are the ones who will be made to suffer most while the provincial government and the doctors resolve their differences in a satisfactory manner. There will be no winners; all will be losers.

Many of the doctors of the province closed their offices to normal medical practice when the government's new compulsory medical insurance program became effective the first of this month. Only 34 of the province's 120 hospitals remained in operation giving emergency service. Less than half of the 700 private physicians of the province were continuing to provide treatment at the hospitals.

Since last-minute negotiations between the government and the medical profession broke down on the eve of the official beginning of the province's new compulsory insurance program, there have been bitter attacks upon the doctors by some government spokesmen. These, it seems to us, will make a settlement more difficult to reach.

While the doctors have the right to decide whether or not they will practice under the new government program, they likewise have a responsibility to the people to avoid a situation such as that which now exists in the province.

The government and the medical profession of the province must share the responsibility for what has happened, and they must share the responsibility for the consequences which will result.

It is the public, unfortunately, who will suffer most while the battle is fought between the doctors and the government.

And Heartaches Healed By Mail

By JOHN ABNEY

MEXICO CITY — All ye with problems might as well take your sufferings to the Plaza of Santa Domingo here. Where public scribes are engaged in prompt business advising and mild forms of psychiatry. Also, they patch busted hearts by mail.

This dying industry dates back to the days of the Spanish viceroy, when economically unsound men of letters peddled their writing services to the uneducated. And now that everyone is learning to read and write, this enterprise is on the skids.

The typewriter pilots are making a last stand beneath the arcade on the western side of the plaza. There, they operate ancient writing mills, many of which look like relics left behind by the Spaniards when they departed at bayonet point.

And as they flay away at the keyboard, the scribes listen to the woes of the public.

A lad from a small village may want to write home. To let the folks know he is still around, in a manner of speaking. Also to remind that pesos are very scarce here in the city and some extra funds would do no harm.

Off to Santa Domingo he trots and selects himself a scribe. And the work is then done. For it is the duty of the type-jockey to put ideas on paper in an acceptable form. This he does by taking notes, gazing intently at the clouds and finally attacking the mill with great vigor.

For instance, a gallant caballero blusters at the thought of proposing to a widow lady so he consults a scribe. In this, the keyboard maestro must be a combination of Miss Ann Landers and Mr. Alf Tennyson. He may also pick up a nice piece of change for pasting out a successful throbber.

Job hunting domestics often need fancy letters of recommendation, even though they have never worked before. For a sharp scribe, this is no real situation. He merely turns out a masterpiece by a former employer who has no telephone and whose address is much too remote and confusing for a personal check.

Besides performing on his full of grace and truth," God's sending of prophets to warn us, seers to guide us, and finally a Saviour to gather up our souls into his hands and fashion them for eternal fellowship with Himself — this is indeed love.

So if God loves us in this fashion, can we not see the necessity of our loving others? Jesus once uttered a parable about a man who having been forgiven a great debt went out and choked a companion who owed him a very small amount. Our impulse is to accept God's forgiveness with joy and to refuse with bitterness those who have offended against us.

"Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." We say it glibly each night, each Sunday, but do we live it? This is God's eternal policy and we should ponder it.

And mind you, I said I only SUSPECT this goes on. For I have never really seen any of my constituents at Santa Domingo. Especially, when I got there to get a job done.

GOD'S ETERNAL POLICY

So What Else Is New?

By PATRICIA MOORE

A Beanie Of A Reason

We have been reflecting on the large population at East Carolina College's summer school and have decided that there was a definite stimulus for so many industrious young people going to school in the hot summer months when you know they would much rather be at the beach.

The reason, we have concluded, is beanies. No doubt you remember the noise a month or so ago about somebody's deciding it would be nice for the incoming freshmen at the college to wear beanies because it would give them a common heritage. It would be a unifying kind of thing.

Yes, unite the freshmen because they were wearing beanies and unite the upper classmen because they weren't. It is our unbiased feeling that some of the prospective freshmen, hearing the noise about beanies and not desiring to wear such "threads" atop their crowns came to school early so as not to be green freshmen and perhaps escape the beanie.

Public Forum

(Editor's note: This letter to the Public Forum is a copy of a letter addressed to Hon. William J. Bundy, Resident Judge, Third Judicial District.)

Dear Judge Bundy: I was shocked a few days ago by news stories appearing in the "Raleigh News & Observer," in the "Kinston Daily Free Press" as well as local radio news programs in respect to your criticism of jury verdicts last week in the Lenoir County Superior Court.

You will probably recall I was a witness for the defense in one of the cases and a spectator during another. Both defendants were charged with driving under the influence of alcohol. The case in which I was a spectator involved a Negro defendant who was charged as a result of a complaint made by a local private detective who had a radio transmitter on his car and who was recently defeated for election as constable of the township. A highway patrolman arrived at the home of the defendant approximately 30 minutes after the defendant arrived at home. Evidence was to the effect that the defendant consumed alcoholic beverages after his arrival. There was no direct evidence that he was under the influence of anything at the time he was actually operating his vehicle. Under these circumstances, I fail to see how a jury could have arrived at a verdict but one of "not guilty."

In the case in which I was a witness there was an alcoholic blood test made by the laboratory technicians at Lenoir Memorial Hospital. The technician testified that the results of his test showed the defendant had concentration of .22 percent alcohol. The technicians also testified that any person, no matter what his condition or circumstances, was unequivocally under the influence when the alcoholic content of his blood was .15 percent or greater. He further testified that he was opposed to the use of alcoholic beverages and further as I recall, that in his opinion anyone who had consumed any amount of alcohol was to some extent under the influence thereof. He further testified that out of hundreds, possibly thousands of blood tests, he had never made a mistake. There was evidence that indicated a variation in the testimony of the arresting officer between that presented in Recorder's Court and that presented in Superior Court, primarily that in the former there was no smell of alcohol and in the latter there was a strong odor. From all the evidence presented in the trial of this case, it seems to me that the jury used sound and wise judgment in returning a verdict of "not guilty."

I would be the first to defend your right to any opinion you may have, but in fairness to the citizens of Lenoir County, as well as others who are summoned for jury duty, I think it only fair that they be afforded an opportunity to reply to remarks made to them by a presiding judge, particularly when such remarks directed at them are of a critical nature. To me it would seem fair play to give a citizen who had rather be at his work than rendering jury service an opportunity to answer critical remarks from any court official.

Since your criticism of the verdicts in the cases you referred to has been widely publicized, I am wondering if in the future this might not result in the conviction of some innocent person. I certainly hope and trust your remarks will not adversely influence any future jurors.

The news stories stated that the first case tried during the term of court was one of assault with a deadly weapon but the jury could well have returned a verdict of "not guilty" instead of one with simple assault. I believe you will have to agree that just about every one in court during the trial of that case was of the opinion that the jury would return a

Real Danger In Cult

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In the U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, a suit is being brought by Alhaji Talib Ahmad Dawud and Dakota Staton against Elijah Muhammad and Muhammad's Temple of Islam. Muhammad is a Georgia-born Negro, named Elijah Poole, who organized a Negro chauvinistic religious group which is growing in number and in power. It is not favored by the defense organizations of the American colored persons.

In their petition to the Court Dawud and Dakota Staton both say that they are members of the cult and that they have been active in the Muslim religion which holds that all whites "are devils and inherently evil."

According to the complaint, Dawud and Staton say: "Pursuant to these purposes, and in the name of the Islamic Faith and the Muslim Religion he teaches in these various Temples and Mosques 'Racial Inequality' 'Black Supremacy' and the separation of the Negro people from the American community insofar as it is white; he demands renunciation of loyalty to the United States Government; that Negroes be resettled in States as a separate nation; that they avoid all association with white persons, and that they bear no arms in the service of the United States."

Dawud denies that any of this has anything to do with the Islamic religion as it is known in Moslem countries. In other words they insist that Elijah Poole, alias Elijah Muhammad, is a faker. They call attention to the fact that:

"The adherence of the Islamic Faith number in the hundreds of millions, but there is no responsible group of these that advocates 'racial superiority' 'black supremacy' or similar doctrines; the principal teaching being the unity of God and the brotherhood of man. The followers of Islam are of every race and ethnic origin."

Should this case, asking for a permanent injunction, be pursued to a conclusion, it could be a serious and dangerous native American sect might be completely exposed. It is about time because its leaders order violation of the law in connection with the draft, requiring that its members not register for Selective Service. There have been recent incidents of violence involving members of this group, particularly in Los Angeles where they are quite violent.

The Black Muslim movement is neither Moslem nor a religion. It is a political cult designed to separate Negroes from whites and to create major troubles in areas in the United States where Negro masses congregate.

This movement is alike dangerous for Negroes as well as whites. In Phoenix, Arizona, it was reported by police that the cult had a select group which was trained in judo, the use of fire-arms and gang fights. This fighting element is called the "Fruit of Islam."

The Los Angeles riot which occurred in May engendered violence. This particularly involved the beating of police which is occurring too often in our large cities. It is curious that this organization has associated itself with a religion which does not recognize its existence, whose language, Arabic, is unknown to its members and whose customs are not followed by this American cult. It is definitely a political and social movement, American in origin and design. Malcolm X, one of the leaders of the Black Muslims, said in an interview that his group had achieved the respect of the New York police, which is impossible. How can the New York police respect any group which has as its object killing two states and separating them from the nation?

In effect, all members of this sect have defected from the United States, denying laws passed by Congress and setting up their own rules and regulations. This is done by no other (Continued on Page 5)

New Values For 'Exporting Jobs'

By ELMER ROESSNER

A new evaluation of "exporting jobs" by the United States is offered by John Fayerweather, professor of international business at New York University.

In NYU's monthly economic magazine "Challenge," Prof. Fayerweather agrees that the U.S. is exporting jobs but contends that it is the only way we can hold our share of the world market against foreign competition.

"Exporting jobs" is the term applied to the erection of factories overseas by American firms, since this eliminates jobs in this country and creates new ones abroad.

"It is readily apparent that U.S. labor is displaced when a product is shifted from export to overseas production," the economist wrote.

"For many months and often years before imports are stopped, government officials will indicate their intentions by suggestions, threats and other signals designed to push the companies into local manufacture... To avoid a hasty decision under pressure, to get a jump on other manufacturers, or to make a good impression on the government, the U.S. company starts manufacturing..."

"The company that sticks to export when the economics of the situation favors overseas runs a good chance of losing its market completely to competitors... another U.S. company or from a German or perhaps a Japanese firm."

Prof. Fayerweather cited many examples: Ford and General Motors lost the India market to British and German makers when the India government insisted all cars be manufactured there. Heinz lost its Australian soup market when the government suddenly imposed restrictions. General Motors lost the Australian market when imports were banned, but regained it with its Australian-made Holden car.

WAGE DIFFERENTIAL The economist did not explore wage differentials in his presentation. The fact that American wages have risen so much is usually held to be a major reason for exporting jobs. The fact that American wages are from three to ten times higher than those in Europe and Asia has usually been considered a primary cause for exporting jobs. In fact, some American companies make components or complete products and import them into the U.S.

However, Prof. Fayerweather did not ignore this angle completely. He said, "The market for cars in most European countries has now expanded to the point where a considerable degree of mass production is possible. This, combined with wages a half to a third of those in Detroit, gives European manufacturers a strong cost and profit edge over products made here."

"Thus the U.S. companies have had no choice but virtually to abandon export to Europe, expanding their factories to produce there and even to import into the U.S."

Prof. Fayerweather is also managing editor of "The International Executive," and author of "Facts and Fallacies of International Business."

AEROSOL INDUSTRY CONTINUES TO EXPAND More and more products are appearing in aerosol cans. Among recent innovations are a sprayable cake icing, a sun tan preparation that also repels insects; a spot remover for fabrics, and compounds that waterproof tents, auto tops and clothing.

Space Wheel

AP Newsfeatures
Even the ferris wheel looks like tomorrow at Seattle's Century 21 Exposition.

The space wheel, as it's called by its designers, incorporates one of the biggest changes in ferris wheels since the first one appeared at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

Where the usual ferris wheel has two arms supporting each passenger carriage the space wheel has a single-spoke design. Each carriage is supported by a single arm — which the passenger doesn't see.

The effect is to eliminate the "attached" feeling of the usual wheel, says designer Elmer Velare, 77, thus giving passengers a sensation of floating through space.

"You come over the top and you feel like you're in a parachute," he says.

The space wheel will take passengers 90 feet up in the air and will go around six times a minute. The wheel has 16 carriages.

Valare, and his brother Curtis Velare, 81, veterans of 60 years in the entertainment business, also have designed a new power system for their wheel. Instead of the usual belt looped around the hub and driven by a motor on the ground, the space wheel is propelled by two automobile wheels mounted high in the framework. The wheels are powered by electricity and spin the big wheel by friction.

The space wheel was built in Long Beach, Calif.

THE FERRIS WHEEL, perennial favorite in amusement parks, has been modified by brothers Elmer Velare (left) and Curtis Velare. Single-arm instead of double-arm support of passenger carriages is intended to give a person the feeling he's in a parachute.

War Of The Canals Resumes In Venice

VENICE, Italy (AP)—The "war of the canals" is simmering again with the ancient gondoliers challenging the increasing invasion of modern motorboats.

This picturesque port city was all but paralyzed for two hours Wednesday as the gondoliers blockaded the main canals that are the streets of Venice.

More than 400 gondoliers lined up their black boats across the city's Grand Canal. Other gondoliers blocked smaller canals.

The steam ferry boats that provide Venetians with municipal transport could not move. Motor-powered taxi boats—the direct competitors of the gondoliers—were trapped.

Once the gondolas were the only public transport in Venice.

Now the gondoliers complain that the city fathers are issuing too many licenses to motorboats. They say the new taxis offer unfair competition and their grace-

3-Year-Old Gives Calm Fire Alarm

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Eddie Lee Manista, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Manista of Phoenix, wandered out of his bedroom shortly after he was ordered to take a nap.

When his mother asked why he wasn't in bed, Eddie answered, "Can't sleep for that smoke."

Mrs. Manista found a fire had started in a pile of clothes. The blaze was extinguished before it could spread to other rooms.

Still Moving But On Lesser Scale

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The damnest thing happened while Rocky Ridge firemen were moving their fire station.

It fell to pieces. Volunteer firemen in suburban Rocky Ridge raised the station from its foundation and got it onto a flat bed trailer.

Fire station and truck had just started moving when the building collapsed.

The firemen are now moving their station piece by piece to the new site where it will be rebuilt.

Allowance's Cuteness Soon Wears Off

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the sterner tests of the principle of family togetherness is a child's demand for a weekly allowance.

Looking back now, it seems the first thing my daughter, Tracy Ann, did after we pinned her first diaper on, was to stretch out a pudgy small hand and demand: "Where's my allowance?"

Ever since then I've been a miser at bay.

For a while I thought it was kind of cute to hold out a nickel and a dime in my hand, and watch her pick the nickel because it was bigger.

But her favorite playmates are Susie and Markie, the children of Mark Stumpf, attorney who lives down the hall, and the time came when I suspect Tracy got the benefit of counsel.

First she learned to choose the dime from the nickel, then the time came when she peeled off both coins.

Then I made the error of telling her that when I once demanded a weekly allowance of a quarter from my father, he told me: "Sure, son, here's the broom. Sweep out the store."

My daughter thought that over for about two swift seconds.

"I know where the broom is, Papa," she replied. "But what did you do with your daddy's store?"

Reluctantly I had to fork over the two-bits. Over the years the demands have steadily grown. Now and then I raise a feeble flag of resistance, but get nowhere.

When Tracy was 7, the allowance level soared to 50 cents a week, 10 per cent of which she agreed to plunk into the piggy bank.

Tracy is now 9 years old. Recently she decided to raise her weekly allowance to a dollar, of which she agreed to bank 35 cents. I made a small scream and a long speech, then calmed in, borrowed the money from my wife, and paid the allowance.

As my wealthy daughter trudged down the hall I heard one of her playmates ask her: "Gee, who did you get it from—the big shot?"

"Yes," answered Tracy. "From Mommy."

My friends who have older children have small sympathy for my hollers.

"When kids get to be teen-agers, they think nothing of asking for $5 a clip," they say. "Just you wait."

Well, I'm in no hurry. I can wait.

My idea now is to hold out until I get Social Security from Uncle Sam—and then split my allowance 50-50 with my daughter.

religious body, although some may find some laws troublesome. For instance, these Negroes are opposed to integration. They believe that Negroes should be separated from whites because Negroes are superior and whites are hateful. They fear that the co-mingling of whites and Negroes will lead to Negroes lessening their dislike, their disrespect for whites. All other Negro organizations favor integration.

Men may believe what they choose as long as they do not translate such beliefs into violence. The real danger of this sect is not in their mumbo-jumbo about Islam. It is that they will produce mass violence in the United States, no matter if their leaders constantly speak of peace.

Revised Encyclopedia Now Has Space Facts

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Art Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—A few years ago if you had looked into any encyclopedia for material on "space exploration" or "space medicine" you wouldn't have found anything. Space hadn't been explored.

Gradually the world of satellites crept into the revised editions and annual supplements of various reference books, and by now such matters are covered thoroughly with text, pictures, graphs and charts.

The same is true of more esoteric subjects, such as high-pressure physics. Scientific knowledge is developing so fast that the makers of encyclopedias have a hard time keeping up.

Not that science is the only field which needs updating. Publishers of encyclopedias have to maintain a process called "continuous revision," in which articles are changed every time there is a new printing.

For one small example, every time there is a new U.S. Census report, population figures scattered through all the volumes have to be changed.

About three years ago the editors of Collier's Encyclopedia decided the continuous revisions were not enough. A major overhaul was indicated.

In the area of the physical sciences even Collier's then less than 10 years old, was out of date," says William Hasley, editorial director of the publication.

So it was decided to review every article in the 20 volumes. Not just the science articles. The next step was to obtain the services of 134 "outside" authorities in every field, with emphasis on the "outside"—experts who never had served Collier's in any capacity before.

"For one whole year the books were examined, bit by bit," said Hasley, "before anything actually was done. Some major articles were read by five or six specialists in overlapping fields.

"These outside authorities were asked to criticize thoroughly, to suggest which articles needed to be replaced, which needed revision. And to suggest which persons were best qualified to do the work."

During the overhaul, the set also was increased from 15 to 24 volumes, new maps were added and many illustrations were changed.

So now in the 1962 edition, says Hasley, "35 per cent of the material either has been rewritten or is new, and every article has been thoroughly checked."

In scope, this encyclopedia is designed for the user who more often than not is a student. Major articles are constructed so that pupils in the fifth grade can get a comprehension of the subject, and students up through the college level can find reference material.

The purpose, says Hasley, is not to publish a learned reference book. It is to "inform the layman, but with a degree of authority which is acceptable to the scholar."

In keeping the set up to date, printing schedules are important. Each edition goes through process, in contrast with older methods of never changing an edition.

"More and more we are using press equipment and production techniques of the mass magazines," says Hasley.

The 1962 edition incorporates the orbital flight of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., as fortunately the flight came in time to catch the right volume.

The updating process never stops. In its second printing, the edition includes astronaut Scott Carpenter's flight.

US, Dominican Republic Work On Old Mystery

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Dominican Republic are working together to try to solve a bizarre six-year-old mystery that erupted into charges of international kidnaping and assassination.

The center of the cloak and dagger intrigue is Dr. Jesus de Galindez, who stepped through a New York subway into oblivion on a March night in 1956 after writing a book to expose the brutalities of Gen. Rafael Trujillo's iron-fisted dictatorship in the Dominican Republic.

Foes of Trujillo contended the general had reached into the heart of Manhattan to eliminate an enemy.

There were stories that the professor, who was teaching international law at Columbia University, was drugged and flown to the Caribbean country by an American pilot who also disappeared.

Trujillo heatedly denied the charges and there were hearings and investigations. But no light was shed on De Galindez' disappearance, nor was he ever reported seen alive again.

When Trujillo was alive U.S. investigators probing the case got no cooperation from Dominican Republic authorities.

Trujillo was assassinated in May 1961 and the new government is anxious to solve the De Galindez case, a State Department source said last night.

For several months, he said, U.S. and Dominican Republic investigators have been checking through long-locked files and questioning members of Trujillo's intelligence police now held in prison.

Linked to the professor's disappearance was an American freelance pilot, Gerald Murphy.

He vanished in the Dominican Republic Dec. 3, 1956 after getting a job as a co-pilot on the Dominican airlines.

The Dominican government said Murphy was knocked into a shark-infested bay during a fight with another airline pilot, Octavio de La Maza, who later hanged himself in his prison cell.

But Trujillo foes alleged that Murphy piloted a plane carrying Galindez to face the general's wrath and was later killed to silence him.

3rd Strangling In Three Weeks

LYNN, Mass. (AP)—A third strangulation homicide within three weeks in Greater Boston—again following a pattern—confronted Lynn authorities today.

The body of Helen E. Blake, 65, a practical nurse, was found in her apartment Monday night. Miss Blake had been strangled with her brassiere and a nylon stocking.

Last Saturday night the body of Nina G. Nichols, 68, was discovered in her apartment in Boston's Brighton section.

On June 14, the body of Anna E. Slesers, 55, was found in her Back Bay apartment in Boston.

Mrs. Nichols was garroted with a nylon stocking. Mrs. Slesers was strangled with the cord of her housecoat.

All were killed at night in their apartments where they lived alone.

The three apartments were thoroughly ransacked, but police said nothing valuable was taken.

All three homicides are unsolved.

FFA Writing Off One 'LBJ' Brand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The initials of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson are sprinkled liberally around his big ranch in Texas—but the LBJ brand will no longer be used as call letters on a nearby radio homing beacon.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said Sunday night that the landing strip now is known officially as JCY, for nearby Johnson City, instead of LBJ.

"We think it is more appropriate to call it JCY," the spokesman said. "I guess there are some people besides the vice president who use that little airport."

N.C. Baritone Drawing Italian Curtain Calls

SPOLETO, Italy (AP)—In four performances at the two World's festival here, North Carolina baritone Ronald W. Andrews went over so well that audiences called him back for repeated curtain calls.

The American singer has the second male lead in Sergi Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges," the Russian composer's operatic spoof of classical theater.

The month-long artistic festival in this Umbrian hill town of central Italy opened June 21 with "Love of Three Oranges." Andrews was an immediate hit in the role of prime minister.

The young singer reinforced his hold on the international audiences at three subsequent performances. He goes on again Saturday for the first of two final performances before Gian Carlo Menotti's annual festival closes its fifth straight year.

Andrews has been in Italy since 1959, when he went abroad on a music scholarship. He has been studying under private tutors since.

Andrews, from Burlington, N.C., studied at Catawba College, Stetson University and the University of North Carolina. He later studied at the Institute of Vocal Arts, Philadelphia, Pa.

LAST CHANCE VALLEY

BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

CHAPTER 10

Thorpe McAfee looked at the borax rigs and found them to be in quite good condition. "They were made to hold up," Griff Meadows observed. "You can't have too many break-downs in this part of the country, mister. Hottest country on the face of the earth. Any other wagon would fall to pieces in six months. I've had these for two years now. You put a little paint on 'em, an' they'll be as good as n. w. It's the wood. They used real wood, mister—oak, hickory, hard woods."

Thorpe nodded. "I can see that."

Meadows said curiously, "You make a strike somewhere? You get into the borax business?"

"Thinking about it," Thorpe told him. "I'll look you up again if and when I'm ready to do business."

"Reckon I'll be here," Meadows growled glumly, "and I reckon the wagons will be, too. An't too many people tryin' to haul borax these days."

Thorpe asked curiously, "Who does all of the hauling?"

"Ajax," Meadows said promptly. "Anybody makes a strike, sooner or later Neil Farrington buys him out or puts him out, one or the other. Nobody knows."

Thorpe rolled a cigarette and stood looking at the ground. "You think Farrington has been using rough stuff in Death Valley?" he asked.

Meadows shrugged. "Nobody can tell for sure, mister, when it blazes is goin' on out in that valley. Farrington's in there where the big strikes have been made, an' nobody else has been able to horn his way in."

"Anybody else try?" Thorpe wanted to know.

"Been a number of other strikes," Meadows nodded. "Twice there have been attempts to refine the stuff an' haul it out."

"What happened?" Thorpe asked.

"Both of 'em went broke," Meadows explained. "Run into all kinds of trouble."

Thorpe touched a match to his cigarette. "Man trouble?" he asked quietly.

Griff Meadows scowled. "Reckon nobody kin prove that one way or another," he said. "Mules die from bad water. What made the water bad? Nobody knows that, either. Sometimes some of these water holes in the valley go bad. Too much alkali gets into 'em, an' if the mules get an overdose, they don't last long. You don't haul without mules."

"I see," Thorpe said.

"Then there's trouble with the wagons," Meadows went on. "Never had no trouble with mine when I was haulin', but I wasn't haulin' in Death Valley. Barney Corcoran had one of the outfits workin' in the valley. He had trouble with his rigs all the time."

"Same kind of rigs as yours and the ones used by Ajax?" Thorpe asked.

"Same rigs," Meadows replied. "Made by the same company. Poor Barney's rigs were always fallin' apart. Maybe his drivers didn't take care of 'em. They need care an' attention same as mules. Reckon you can see what happens when you're refinin' borax an' you can't get it to the railroad because your wagons are laid up. You don't make a profit, but you still get expenses, a payroll to meet, an' mules to feed. You don't last long unless them wagons are rollin' right on schedule all the time."

Thorpe nodded. "Be easy enough," he said, "if somebody wanted to bust another outfit in the valley, to bribe drivers or station men to neglect the wagons. Wouldn't you say so, Mr. Meadows?"

Meadows looked at him, his pale blue eyes hard. "I'd say so," he murmured, "but I wouldn't say it too loud, mister, if I were you."

Thorpe asked, "What do you know about Neil Farrington?"

"He's makin' a go of it in the valley," Griff Meadows told him.

"And he's the only one," Thorpe said. "Is that it?"

"He's the only one," Meadows agreed.

"And he's trying to buy out Fern O'Hara, too," Thorpe said. "You know that?"

"Figured he would," Meadows told him. "Her claim's right off his gravel road, an' it's about three times closer to Piedmont than his own claim out at Dead Creek. The faster you haul this stuff in, mister, the more money you make. If Farrington had Miss O'Hara's claim, he could make three times the money he's makin' now. Figures don't lie."

"Why won't she sell to Farrington?" Thorpe asked.

Griff Meadows shrugged. "Your guess is as good as mine, mister," he said. "I'm a single man. What do I know about women?"

Thorpe drove back to Piedmont and had supper with Jim Varney in the restaurant across from the Birdcage.

Varney said, "You've been gone all day, Thorpe. What goes?"

"Looking around," Thorpe told him. "Asking questions."

"When you go broke," Jim laughed, "I'll have a room for you to sleep in back of the bar."

"That could be," Thorpe grinned.

Varney said to him later as they were crossing back to the Birdcage, "I spoke to one of the bankers in town this afternoon. Thorpe, and he assures me that they'll take a mortgage on our place immediately. They checked with the lawyer first, of course. They've given me an estimate of our net worth, and I've checked with two other men. It looks like you've got nine thousand dollars coming to you. How does that sound?"

"No argument with me," Thorpe said.

"And you can have the money whenever you want it," Varney went on, "if you're anxious to get back into Death Valley."

"I've located some wagons which I can use for hauling," Thorpe said, "and I'm sure there are enough mules about for a man who has the money to buy them."

Varney paused on the porch of the Birdcage. "What makes you think Fern O'Hara will go into business with you when nobody else around here has been able to do anything with her?"

"I think most of them have been asking too much," Thorpe said, "and she's stied off."

"And you won't ask too much?" Varney inquired.

"I'm not after money," Thorpe said. "I want to be doing something."

"That makes a difference," Varney murmured. "Luck."

Inside the Birdcage, Thorpe spotted Neil Farrington at one of the card games on the far side of the room. Farrington saw them come in and nodded briefly as Thorpe went past his table toward the bar.

"Hear you're interested in borax," Farrington said, and Thorpe wondered how the man knew.

"I might give it a flyer," Thorpe told him. "I have that in the back of my mind."

Farrington smiled, his gold tooth flashing in the light of the overhead oil lamp. "I had you wrong when I asked you to stop in for a job if you decided on," he said. "My apologies, Mr. McAfee."

"I may need that job yet," Thorpe stated. "I hear plenty of men go broke in Death Valley."

"Very true," Farrington murmured. "It's a tough country, and it takes tough men."

"I can be tough," Thorpe smiled and walked on toward the bar.

Later in the evening as he sat in at one of the card games, he saw a big fellow come in, and immediately he sensed trouble. He'd had the feeling before, a queer, almost imperceptible premonition.

Immigration Monkey Wrench

DETROIT (AP)—U.S. immigration laws are casting a shadow of gloom over the international romance of a Danish nurse and a German doctor who met and were married here last December.

Unless special appeals work, Mrs. Hans Fischer will be forced to leave the United States—and her husband—by July 15.

Mrs. Fischer was Inge Maarso of Jutland, Denmark, when she arrived a year ago to study at Detroit's Harper Hospital under a student nurse exchange program. She didn't expect matrimony then, but she found it—and now her visa is about to expire.

Her application for a visa extension was rejected. Immigration officials interpreted her word that the hospital intended to give her a permanent job as an indication she did not intend to fulfill the exchange program obligations.

Dr. Fischer, who came here earlier from Koeln, Germany, also applied for an extension on grounds separation from his wife would be a hardship.

Their attorney, Robert Goren, says he will appeal to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and to Danish officials.

Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., has promised to appeal to immigration authorities.

Asks Sanction Of Volunteer Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Willis Robertson, D-Va., has asked Congress to declare that it doesn't think official but voluntary prayers in public schools violate the Constitution.

This would put the House and Senate on record as disagreeing with the Supreme Court, which ruled last week that such prayers are unconstitutional.

Robertson proposed a concurrent resolution Monday and arranged to have it held for a week so other senators can join in sponsoring the measure.

The resolution wouldn't be binding on anyone even if it passed the Senate and House. Joint resolutions require the president's signature and have force of law. Concurrent resolutions do not.

Town Works On Restoration

NIAGARA - ON - THE - LAKE, Ont. (AP)—Several groups in this town at the mouth of the Niagara River on Lake Ontario want to restore certain areas to their 18th and 19th Century appearance.

The town, burned by Americans during the War of 1812, was rebuilt. Many of its existing structures date from the early 19th Century and others pre-date the 1813 attack.

All buildings in town are being surveyed and details of their history are being gathered. Niagara-on-the-Lake is considered to have some of the finest colonial architecture to be seen in Canada.

Andrade's Resignation Generates New Crisis For Brazil Government

By TOM MASTERSON
BRASILIA, Brazil (AP)—Brazil was confronted with a new governmental crisis and the prospect of a general strike today after the resignation of Prime Minister Auro de Moura Andrade.

Army units and police were on the alert in Rio de Janeiro and other large centers.

Andrade quit Wednesday night after only 36 hours in office.

President Joao Goulart's office announced Andrade's resignation in a communique that said Andrade found it impossible to form a cabinet and bowed out. The president and his short-term prime minister were reportedly at odds on a choice of navy and air force ministers.

Goulart's left of center Brazilian Labor party and conservative forces, that include Andrade's social Democratic party, have been clashing since the crisis began to develop June 26.

Goulart and some elements in Congress also are feuding over how much power the legislative and executive branches should have.

Goulart had three days, under the constitution, to nominate a new prime minister for congressional approval. If he does not—or if the Chamber of Deputies rejects three successive nominees—the Senate can name its own choice.

Goulart's difficulties began when Prime Minister Tancredo Neves and his cabinet stepped down on June 26 so they could qualify under the constitution for congressional elections in October.

The conservative forces blocked approval of Goulart's first nominee, ex-Foreign Minister Francisco San Tiago Dantas, a Laborite.

As second choice Andrade was approved as prime minister 222-51 by the Chamber of Deputies on an economic reform program, but Goulart retained the right to veto his choice of cabinet members.

Union leaders have been demanding that a member of the Labor party be named prime minister.

Although Goulart appealed to them not to strike, the unionists ordered the general walkout as a protest against Andrade's nomination. Even after Andrade quit, Dante Pelacani, president of the National Confederation of Industrial Workers, announced "we shall go ahead with the strike anyway."

Gen. Osvaldo Ferreira Alves, commander of Brazil's 1st army, ordered his troops in Rio de Janeiro on alert. The government news agency said commanders of the 2d army in Sao Paulo and the 3rd army in Porto Alegre supported his call to maintain order.

He will aid Shriver in recruitment, liaison with field training in Puerto Rico, and orientation for corps members, the spokesman said.

'The Exiles' May Be Starter For Realization Of Ambition

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Recently a packed audience at UCLA's cavernous Royce Hall applauded a haunting movie about displaced American Indians, "The Exiles."

Part of a subscription series of film classics, this was the first commercial showing in the United States of a remarkable motion picture put together by a group of young men trying unsuccessfully ly to break into the movie business.

The man who made "The Exiles" is Kent MacKenzie, tall, intense, with a shock of black hair. He got out of the Air Force eight years ago and came here with the burning desire to make movies.

He is the son of DeWitt MacKenzie, longtime AP columnist now retired, and he came to me for advice. I told him the difficulty of breaking into the movie business and sent him to producers who did likewise. But he would not be dissuaded and he enrolled in the University of Southern California's excellent cinema school.

Five years ago, Kent was researching for a documentary on Indian reservation life. He became acquainted with some young Indians who had drifted to Los Angeles to take up a purposeless life on the fringes of skid row.

Kent saw their existence as a better subject for a film, and he started shooting some footage, with the Indians' cooperation and delight. The project started to grow.

"At first I operated on my own $500," he recalled. "When that ran out, I started showing the film to people in hopes of backing it."

So it went. After four years of filming—with long gaps between because of lack of funds—"The Exiles" was finally finished. The cost: $27,000 in actual cash, $45,000 if the deferments by those who helped make it were paid.

Unlike other local productions, the cast cost was not a major item. The actors, all non-pros, were paid off in beer and wine. That's the nature of "The Exiles" which tells, without any effort at a Hollywood-type plot, how the young Indians spend their hours watching television or all-night movies, guzzling beer and wine, playing poker and driving their cars to a hilltop overlooking the city, where they fight, make love and chant and dance like their ancestors.

It is not a pleasant film and the acting is sometimes wooden. But it has the taste of reality and is expertly made. MacKenzie wrote, produced and directed and his crew included many of his fellow film students.

So far the film has been entered in film festivals in Europe (first prize at Mannheim) and San Francisco. It has been shown to good response on Belgian television and in Poland. Kent is hoping for film deals in Europe and an art-house release in this country. But progress has been slow.

Gummo Has Hand Operation

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gummo Marx, actor's agent and former member of the Marx brothers comedy team, has undergone surgery on an ailing hand he says was interfering with his golf and his card games.

Marx, 70, was operated on Monday at St. John's Hospital in nearby Santa Monica. He was expected to be released today.

The surgery corrected a malfunctioning of tendons, a hospital spokesman said.

Exchange Holds Late Moose Rally For 5-4 Victory

Large Crowd Braves Rain To Attend Field Day

A large crowd turned out yesterday, despite the drizzling rain, to observe and cheer as Little Leaguers participated in Moose Field Day events.

Yesterday was the seventh annual Field Day for Little League players, sponsored by the Greenville Moose Lodge. Dr. Charles McAndrews, Past Governor of the Lodge, opened the ceremonies as he spoke about the founding of Little League.

Following the Field Day events, the Moose and Exchange Little League teams met in a regular season contest. The Moose rallied in the last inning to score three runs but were unable to win as Exchange claimed victory by a score of 5-4.

The Greenville Moose Lodge closed out their day as they invited all participants and spectators to a picnic after the ball game. An estimated three hundred people accepted this invitation as they stood in line waiting for their hot dogs and drinks.

Nine teams had players who won in the events with Greenville Tobacco Company and the Moose winning three events each. The Elks won two events while Coca-Cola, Lions, Jaycees, Texaco, Optimist, and Security Life winning one each.

The boys were separated into two groups. Group A was for boys who were ten years of age or younger while group B was for boys eleven and twelve years of age. Of the seven events, each event was conducted for the separate age groups. Only one boy from each team in each age group was allowed to enter any event. No more than two events could be entered by any one boy.

At the conclusion of the events, each winner was awarded a trophy which indicated the event he had won. The winning boys were as follows:

Running Bases — Harrison Gaskins (A—Elks); Tim Foley (B—Elks).

Infielders Throw for Accuracy — Trent Hill (A—Coca-Cola); Leon Peadon (B—Texaco).

Outfielders Throw for Accuracy — Josh Weeks (A—G. T. Co.); Tommy Cox (B—Security Life).

Catchers Throw for Accuracy — Gerald Wainright (A—Moose); Johnny Speight (B—G. T. Co.).

Pitchers Throw for Accuracy — Ben James (A—Jaycees); Bib Roberts (B—Optimist).

Home Run Hitting — John Lautares (A—Moose); Billy Calloway (B—G. T. Co.).

Throwing for Distance — John Lautares (A—Moose);

John Peel (Lions).

Exchange Downs Moose

In yesterday's Little League action, the Exchange took an early lead and fought off a late Moose rally to emerge victoriously. The winning pitcher was Gordon Summerlin while Randy Hodges was charged with the loss.

Exchange opened the scoring in the second inning as they picked up one run on one hit. With one out, Charles King walked to bring Billy Taylor to the plate. Taylor connected for a double which enabled King to cross the plate with the first run of the contest.

In the third and fourth frames, Exchange added to their lead as they tallied two runs on two hits. In the third, Exchange picked up one run on a walk by Mac McGowan followed by singles off the bats of Tony Sullivan and Summerlin. Mike White produced the only score in the fourth as he scored on a passed ball after being walked.

The Moose came up with their first run of the afternoon in the top of the fifth as they collected three hits. Carl Abee led the frame off as he walked to bring Russell Cayton to the plate. Cayton singled to leftfield and Abee moved to second on the play. H. T. Wainright followed with a single to right scoring Abee. Hodges also came through with a single to load the bases for the Moose but they were unable to produce an additional score.

Exchange returned to bat in the fifth to collect two runs on no hits. Summerlin and King, the first two batters, reached base safely after being hit by wild pitches. Summerlin later came in to score on a wild pitch while King tallied on a sacrifice bunt by Chuck Odum.

In the top of the sixth, the Moose fought hard to overcome the Exchange advantage as they tallied three runs on two hits. Pinchhitter Gerald Wainright led the frame off as he singled. With one out, Carl Abee received a base-on-balls to keep the inning alive for the Moose. Cayton followed with a walk to load the bases and bring David Harrington to the plate. Harrington connected for a double which scored both Wainright and Abee. Cayton later came in to score to set the score at 5-4. The Moose were unable to tally again however as Exchange went on to win.

D.C. Stadium Is All-Star Site

By DAVE BRADY

Washington Post Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new District of Columbia stadium where the major league All-Star baseball game will be played for the first time (on July 10) was built by an architect and certified by the Fine Arts Commission of Washington and Norm Cash of the Detroit Tigers.

The $24 million playground, financed by Federal funds, boasts a special runway for umpires, "so that fans can't spit on their necks," and a "jail" for fractious customers.

There will be a quorum of government big-wigs because each Congressman has been excited the privilege of buying four of the scarce tickets.

Builder Matt McCloskey of Philadelphia constructed the daring design with the gracefully flowing lines topped by the "roller coaster" roof.

McCloskey left the structure as a sort of monument to himself before retiring to become Ambassador to Ireland.

There is nary a pillar to obstruct the fan's view and a minimum of steps to tax him. Most approaches to the two decks are gently sloping ramps.

The playing area is symmetrical, 335 feet down each foul line and 410 to the farthest point in center field. A seven-foot wire fence extends from foul line to foul line.

Tiger slugger Cash took one look at the dimensions on opening day and said, "Nobody is going to hit one out of this park. But you'll see home runs parked in the upper deck."

Home run champion Roger Maris of the New York Yankees put the first one upstairs on April 27 against Ray Ruppel-meyer of the Washington Senators. The ball was hit over the "power hole" in right center, near the 385-foot marker.

An attendance record is certain for an All-Star game in Washington because the previous two, in 1937 and 1956, were played in now-abandoned Griffith Stadium.

A crowd of 31,391 saw the American League win, 8-3 in 1937. There were only 28,843 on hand in 1956 when the Nationals won, 7-3.

On opening day in the new D.C. Stadium, last April 9, 44-

383 turned out to see President Kennedy achieve the distinction of being the only Chief Executive to "pitch" in both Washington stadiums.

an enduring sort when he took shelter from rain in the umpires' quarters for about 22 minutes, suddenly making the traditionally loneliest spot in a stadium the most exclusive.

The Presidential party used the separate umpires' runway which stadium manager Dutch Bergman says was provided "to keep the fans from spitting on their necks."

Bergman also set up the "jail", or detention room, so that his office would not be used for that purpose as it generally is in other stadiums.

And if you can't make the Washington All-Star game, the second of the new annual two-game series will be played in Chicago's Wrigley Field, Monday, July 30.

Plan For Paying Debts Presented

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A plan for the operation of Charlotte Motor Speedway and payment of the track's debts was to be presented at a hearing in U.S. District Court here today.

Claims against the speedway total about $900,000, mostly construction costs.

The plan was to be presented today by Robert N. Robinson, court-appointed trustee of the speedway. Today's hearing, a crucial one in the corporation's fight to stave off financial collapse, determining the next move toward getting out of the financial tangle.

A committee of the 2,200 speedway stockholders has raised almost $400,000 to keep the track from being foreclosed by creditors. The speedway also has $125,000 in profits from the World 600 race May 27.

U.S. District Judge J. B. Craven appointed the trustee last November under the Federal Bankruptcy Act to protect stockholders.

The judge has stressed that he wants to give the creditors relief as quickly as possible.

West Virginia's basketball team has won more than 20 games in each of the last seven seasons.

Durham Splits With Burlington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Good pitching marked an abbreviated holiday schedule in the Carolina League on Wednesday.

Rain caused postponement of two of the four doubleheaders—Raleigh-Kinston and Rocky Mount-Wilson.

The league leading Durham Bulls split a twin bill with Burlington. Durham captured the extra-inning opener 4-2 and Burlington took the second game 3-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Tom Gansauer.

Wally Wolf and Don Brady combined to pitch a five-hitter for Durham in the nine-inning opener. By agreement the second game was limited to seven innings. Burlington got only three hits off Al Goldfield in its victory.

Greensboro's Yankees defeated Winston-Salem 2-1 in the 7-inning nightcap after Winston-Salem won the opener 6-1.

Fred Hatter gave up only four hits in pitching Winston-Salem to its victory. Bill Madden and Tom Shafer collaborated for a four-hit pitching role for Greensboro in the nightcap.

Tonight's games: Burlington at Winston-Salem; Greensboro at Durham; Wilson at Raleigh; Rocky Mount at Kinston.

Pitcher Ken McBride of the Los Angeles Angels is a native of Huntsville, Ala.

Legion Nine Hope To Play At RM Tonight

American Legion Coach Ray Pennington said this morning that the game scheduled at Rocky Mount tonight will be played as far as he knows.

However, the doubleheader with Ahoskie that was to be played in Guy Smith Stadium Wednesday has not been rescheduled along with two other makeup games with Rocky Mount.

At the present time Rocky Mount is leading with a 9-2 record and Greenville is in second place with an 8-2 mark.

Coach Pennington said that R. A. Clack, commissioner for the league, told him Tuesday that the game would have to be made up this week. Otherwise the standings at the end of the week would be final.

"I don't see anyway we can make them up unless the commissioner lets us carry over to the end of next week," Pennington said.

Pennington also noted that the first and second place teams will play a two-out-of-three playoff series next week the way things now stand. The team that finishes on top will get the first home game and the third if it is necessary.

In commenting on the game tonight Coach Pennington noted that a win was important if Greenville was to finish on top. He said he would most likely start James Braxton of Winterville pitching.

SITTING AND WAITING . . . These trophies sat in plain view of many Little Leaguers taking part in Moose Field Day before they were given to the winners. Players peer through fence with envy hoping one of the trophies might go to them.

Jimmy Raynor To Attend ECC

East Carolina Baseball Coach Jim Mallory announced today that Jimmy Raynor, the most valuable player in the East-West All-Star game held here several weeks ago, has signed a grant-in-aid with ECC.

The Clinton High School graduate has been playing with the Sampson County American Legion team this summer which is now involved in playoffs with Wilmington.

Raynor, a pitcher, struck out five men, walked three and gave up no runs and no hits in the first game of the East-West battle. In addition, he stepped to the plate in the eighth inning and slammed a homer over the centerfield fence for three runs putting the East ahead 6-3.

Coach Mallory also noted that another one of the All-Star players, Buddy Boverder of the West team, has accepted a grant-in-aid to East Carolina. Boverder will play both football and baseball.

In the All-Star contest Boverder played second base and shortstop for the West. He played for Winston-Salem Gray High School.

Mallory also noted that James Braxton of Winterville who is playing on the Post 39 American Legion team this summer and was a pitcher for the East, in the All-Star game is attending East Carolina summer school.

Predicts High Scores In Open

TROON, Scotland (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, United States Open Champion, today predicted that the holes of the back nine of the Troon links could send scores soaring in the British Open Golf Championship starting Monday.

Nicklaus, of Columbus, Ohio, has had two days of practice over the 7,045-yard links on the edge of the Firth of Clyde. He admits that the incoming nine still has him baffled.

"I've yet to break 40 on the home nine," he said.

"If the wind starts blowing as it has a habit of doing in these parts, then there could be some high scores on the last nine."

Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, U.S. Masters Champion, Sam Snead, winner of the British Open in 1946 and one of the game's greatest players, Gene Littler, 1961 U.S. Open Champion, and Phil Rodgers head the 29-strong American challenge—the strongest U.S. entry for years.

Angels According To The Past Are Favored To Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

If past performance charts mean anything, the Los Angeles Angels are 2-1 to finish first in the American League pennant derby—which would rank as one of the most cockeyed upsets in baseball history.

The Angels swept into the lead in Wednesday's big holiday program by scoring two victories over Washington, 4-2 and 4-1. That pushed them a half game ahead of the New York Yankees, who split with the Kansas City Athletics, losing the opener 11-1 and winning the nightcap 7-3.

One of baseball's barometers is the July 4 standings—with the team topping the league the traditional favorite to wind up as champion. It's happened that way 4 times in the AL's 61 years, for a 67 per cent average or two out of three times. But last season the Yanks split an Independence Day doubleheader with Detroit, leaving them a game back of the Tigers—but the Yankees emerged as runaway pennant winners.

And, tradition and percentages to the contrary, hardheaded baseball men—and oddsmakers—expect the heavily-favored Yankees to repeat the job this time out. In Wednesday's other American League doubleheader—Cleveland edged to within two percentage points of New York with a pair of overtime victories over Detroit, 1-0 and 6-2. Minnesota and Boston played even, the Twins taking the first 8-4 and the Red Sox the second 9-5; and Baltimore split with Chicago, the Orioles winning 7-3 and the White Sox 5-2.

In the National League, the Dodgers beat Philadelphia twice, 16-1 and 7-3; San Francisco remained just a half game off the pace with two romps over the New York Mets, 11-4 and 10-3; Pittsburgh swept Houston 7-0 and 4-3; Cincinnati trimmed Chicago 8-6 and St. Louis shut out Milwaukee 2-0 after the Braves scored a 7-5 victory over the Cards in the completion of Tuesday night's suspended game.

The Angels jumped in front against Washington in both games and nailed down the sweep with strong relief pitching. Right-hander Ken M. de (8-3) won his seventh in a row in the opener. Dean Chance supplied the needed help from the bullpen.

Leon Wagner, the league's leading home run hitter, smacked No. 24 with one in the third and Felix Torres also banged a two-run homer for Los Angeles in the second game. Art Fowler preserved the pitching victory for sounpaw Ted Bowfield.

After a no-hit, no-pitch, no-field performance in their first game against the A's, the Yankees cut the 13th. Gary Bell was the winner with three innings of two-hit relief.

The Twins ran off with the opener against Boston behind Bill Pleis' 7 1-3 innings of tight relief pitching.

Johnny Temple rapped out four hits and Jerry Adair tagged a decisive two-run homer in the sixth inning as the Orioles scored over Chicago. Then a flurry of four unearned runs against Chuck Estrada in the third inning and lefty Juan Pizarro's six-hit pitching gave the White Sox the victory in the second game.

Cleveland came from behind twice in the second game before Dillard slammed his bases-loaded homer off loser Jerry Casale in

Gaibaldi To Receive Giants' Highest Bonus

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Gaibaldi, the new $150,000 component of San Francisco's pennant-seeking machine, hopes to begin working immediately with the Giants though he won't officially join them until July 15.

"I'll need a lot of help," said the right-handed pitcher, who agreed Wednesday to accept the highest bonus ever paid by the Giants.

Giants Manager Alvin Dark and pitching coach Larry Jansen are equally as eager to see their towering 6-foot-5, 205-pound fireballer in action.

"I've never seen him pitch," said Dark. "I won't know how I'm going to use him until I see him. But he'll be doing some work for us."

The Giants expected to seek approval today from commissioner Ford Frick for Gaibaldi, 20, to work out with the team before he legally goes on the roster.

His acceptance of the Giants offer—not the highest he received—ended a month of spirited bidding by every major league club for the University of Santa Clara sophomore.

After winning the most valuable player award at the NCAA world series last month and leading Santa Clara to second place, he was acclaimed the best college prospect in the country.

Gaibaldi said he chose the Giants because he wanted to join a power-hitting team and because they are based only 80 miles from his Stockton, Calif., home.

"I had one or two higher offers," he said, but would not discuss terms of them nor the Giants bid. A source close to the Giants acknowledged the $150,000 figure was about right, though the club president, Horace Stoneham, declined comment on the bonus.

Father James E. Sweeters, the Santa Clara athletic moderator who blasted pro scouts last week in a letter to Ford Frick, said, "When a boy is offered such a fantastic chance, he can't turn it down. What I am opposed to is trying to turn boys against college without any worthwhile bonus."

Gaibaldi said he will return to Santa Clara in the off-season to earn his history degree.

McDuffie Wins At Rockingham

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP)—J. D. McDuffie of Sanford drove a 1954 Ford to victory Wednesday in the Rocket 100 race at Rockingham Speedway.

Bill Bostick of Ellerbe was second in a 1955 Ford in the 100-lap race at the three-eighths mile track. Third was John Sears of Ellerbe in a 1954 Ford. Roger Baldwin of Belmont was fourth in a 1956 Ford, and Wayne Andrews of Staley was fifth in a 1955 Chevrolet.

Arnold Palmer averaged 69.859 for 99 rounds of golf in 1961. It was the lowest average since Sam Snead's 69.23 in 1950.

Dodgers Are Half-Game Ahead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers have passed the July 4 milestone with a half-game edge over San Francisco's Giants and added baseball tradition to their line-up in their struggle for National League supremacy.

Tradition jumped on Los Angeles' bandwagon after Wednesday's program as the Dodgers swept their seventh consecutive doubleheader by beating Philadelphia 16-1 and 7-3. The twin triumphs kept the Dodgers a half-length ahead of the Giants, who whipped the New York Mets 11-4 and 10-3.

That, according to baseball's July 4 rule of measure gives the Dodgers a commanding edge over the runner-up Giants. In the 61 seasons since the turn of the century, 39 NL teams leading after the holiday games have won the pennant—an average of 64 per cent.

The Dodgers' sweep turned Los Angeles into the baseball capital for a day at least—as the 2-year-old Angels moved into first place in the American League by defeating Washington 4-2 and 4-1. In the AL, 41 of 61 July 4 leaders—or 67 per cent—have won the pennant.

Pittsburgh remained in third place in the NL, taking Houston 7-0 and 4-3. Fourth-place St. Louis stopped Milwaukee 2-0 after losing the completion of Tuesday night's suspended game, 7-5. Cincinnati's defending champs, in fifth place, defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-6.

Elsewhere in the AL, the New York Yankees fell to second by losing to Kansas City 11-1 before winning the nightcap 7-3. Third-place Cleveland edged Detroit 1-0 in 10 innings and 6-2 in 13. Minnesota beat Boston 8-4, then lost 9-5 and Baltimore defeated Chicago 7-3 before the White Sox won the second game 5-2.

Frank Howard's single and bases-loaded double drove in five runs in support of Sandy Koufax' five-hit pitching as the Dodgers pounded Chris Short (4-5) and his successors for 18 hits in the first game. Koufax (12-4) didn't allow a hit until Ted Savage homered in the seventh inning.

Howard drove in two runs in the nightcap. Tommy Davis had a two-run homer and run-scoring single. Joe Moeller (6-5) got credit for the Dodgers sixth consecutive victory. Dennis Bennett (2-4) was the loser.

Home runs got the job done for the Giants in both halves of their doubleheader with the Mets. Willie McCovey smashed a pair in the opener. Ed Bailey and Jim Davidsonport also connected as Bob Bolin (3-0) won it with a seven-hitter. Bob Miller (0-7) was the loser.

Willie Mays hit two homers in the second game to give Billy O'Dell (10-6) enough working room to last the distance although tagged for 10 hits. Billy Hunter (1-4) took the loss.

Vern Law (7-3) continued his comeback for the Pirates in the opener to post his fourth consecutive triumph. Bob Bruce (6-2) was the loser.

An 11-hit offensive also worked for the Pirates in the nightcap. Earl Francis (5-5), ran into trouble in the ninth when the Colts pushed across two runs, but got Merritt Ranew on a grounder to end it. Jim Golden (5-7) was the loser.

Ed Mathews clinched the verdict for the Braves in the suspended game by breaking in the 5-5 tie with a two-run ninth inning homer. The Cards took the regulation contest as Ernie Broglio (4-3) checked the Braves on three singles to beat Warren Spahn (7-10).

Leo Cardenas' brilliant play on Billy Williams' grounder after the Cubs had scored four runs in the eighth preserved the Reds' triumph for Jim Maloney (3-3). Dick Ellsworth (4-13) lost it.

Business, Economics Are Topics For July 23-27 ECC Conference

Discussion of the nationally recognized need of more and better training for young people in basic business and economics will be featured in a conference staged by the East Carolina College School of Business July 23-27.

Dr. James L. White, conference director, has announced the program for the event. Six experts in basic business and economic education will participate in the program as discussion leaders.

They are Dr. Z. S. Dickerson, Jr., Head of the Department of Business Education, Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va.; B. Lewis Keeling, Associate Editor in Basic Business with South-Western Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Harlan B. Miller, Director of the Educational Division, Institute of Life Insurance, New York City; James Parthenos and Dr. Thomas C. Sanders, Economists, Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, Va.; and Arthur L. Walker, Supervisor of Business Education Service, State Board of Education, Richmond, Va.

Topics to be discussed during the conference include, Dr. White announced, Characteristics of the American Economy and What All American Youth Should Know About the Federal Reserve System, Free Enterprise and Capitalism, Insurance, Money and Banking, Personal Finance, Investments and Savings, and Government and Business.

The program will emphasize also aspects of the education of young people in basic business and economics and will include discussion of curriculum problems, methods of instruction, and materials useful in the classroom.

Conferees who wish college credit will take special work from July 18 through July 28 and upon completion of requirements will receive three quarter hours of graduate credit.

Meetings during the conference will be held in the air-conditioned Rawl building.

Entertainment planned for those enrolled include concerts, watermelon cuttings, and picnics at the college and off-campus trips to Manteo for a performance of "The Lost Colony" and a tour of Tryon's Palace in New Bern. All recreational facilities of the college will be open to conferees.

"The major purpose of holding the conference at East Carolina College this summer," Dr. White stated, "is to acquaint business teachers with some of the latest developments in basic business and economic education and to help them develop ways and means of including training in their classes—either as they are now structured or through new courses."

The conference, he added, should interest and benefit not only teachers of business but other teachers who are concerned with training young people in basic economic understanding of such ideas as personal and home finance, insurance, and investments.

Last Stop For 80-Wagon Train

ANDREWS, N.C. (AP)—A wagon train of 80 wagons and 500 horsemen was due in this mountain town today on the last stop of its 76-mile trip to promote a highway through two national forests in Tennessee and North Carolina.

The train camped at Robbinsville Tuesday night after a big welcome from 2,000 to 3,000 people. A square dance was held at the campsite on the high school athletic field.

This is the fifth annual train from Tellico Plains, Tenn., into North Carolina. In previous years they were formed to promote a highway from Tellico Plains to Murphree. That road has been promised. The train is now boosting a highway through the Cherokee National Forest in Tennessee and Nantahala National Forest in North Carolina to near Robbinsville.

One casualty of the trip rejoined the train. He is Woody Hampton of Sylva, a member of the State Board of Conservation and Development, who suffered a broken arm and bruises Sunday when his horse threw him and stepped on him.

Says Status Based On H-Bomb

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—America would not exist as it does today, in the belief of Lewis L. Strauss, had it not been for the momentous decision 12 years ago to manufacture the thermonuclear, or hydrogen, bomb.

Strauss, former head of the Atomic Energy Commission and long active in nuclear developments, stresses the fatefulness of the decision in a new book, published this week (by Doubleday). The book, "Men and Decisions," tells of the great controversy that surrounded the atomic bomb and the H-bomb, as well as other issues, in the years before, during and after World War II.

Summing up the arguments over the H-bomb, and praising President Harry S. Truman's decision to go ahead with it, Strauss wrote:

"We were able to test our first hydrogen bomb in November 1952. The Russians tested their first weapon involving a thermonuclear reaction the following August.

"The President's decision was not only sound but in the very nick of time.

"By so close a margin did we come to being second in armament, not only in the eyes of the world, but in fact. Had we begun our development after the successful Russian test, there is no reason to believe that we would have been accorded time to equal their accomplishment.

"Thus the decision, made when it was, provided us with the time and posture which have sustained us to this writing."

It was Jan. 31, 1950 that Truman made known his H-bomb decision. More than a year earlier, Strauss had recommended that work proceed, and there had been a storm of controversy.

Some, including Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., cited reports that the maximum force from a concussion of H-bombs could blow the earth off its axis. Others said just a few such bombs would so poison the earth's atmosphere that life would cease to exist.

Other major actions discussed by Strauss included the original decisions to make and use atomic weapons, the decision to monitor the atmosphere for signs of Russian nuclear tests, and the decision by which the Senate refused to confirm the author as President Eisenhower's secretary of commerce.

"Ranking, certainly, among the most momentous military and moral decisions in history were the conclusions to make and use atomic weapons," Strauss wrote.

"The decision to develop the atomic bomb was taken in order that we might not find ourselves at the mercy of Hitler. The Germans were believed to be engaged in a like enterprise.

"The decision to use the bomb, however, was made after Germany had been defeated, and to employ it against an enemy (Japan) unable to develop the weapon and already suing for peace."

Strauss recalls that Truman said in his memoirs that, "The final decision of when and where to use the atomic bomb was up to me. Let there be no mistake about it. I regarded the bomb as a military weapon and never had any doubt that it should be used."

However, Strauss said the decision was not so one-sided, that "all of us, the President's fellow countrymen, shared in varying degrees in the responsibility.

"The decision to use the atomic bomb to accelerate the end of a war already won was not the same as the one five years earlier when a decision had been taken to make the bomb.

"Yet both were decisions by compassionate men within the finite limits of human judgment."

Strauss included a variety of sidelights in his book, one of them relating how Gen. Leslie Groves, in charge of the development of the A-bomb, came to Gen. George C. Marshall with a request for an extra $200 million.

Marshall delayed briefly, finishing up a bit of writing on his desk, then told Groves:

"General, I have kept you waiting for that two hundred million and I am sorry. You might like to know what I was writing while you waited. I was making out a check to my seed store for a dollar and sixty cents worth of grass seed."

In his chapter on the "Decision to Detect," Strauss emphasized the urgency of learning what the Russians were doing in a nuclear war behind the iron curtain.

Detection was possibly by measuring radioactivity in the atmosphere but, Strauss noted, there was much opposition. Some held it wasn't necessary, that the Russians would never catch up. Others said the money it cost could be spent more fruitfully in other fields.

But in September 1949, the monitoring system pushed by Strauss picked up evidence that an atomic explosion had occurred within the Soviet Union.

Strauss commented: "It is sobering to speculate on the course of events had there been no monitoring system in operation in 1949. Russian success in that summer would have been unknown to us.

"In consequence, we would have made no attempt to develop a thermonuclear weapon. It was our positive knowledge of Russian attainment of fission bomb capabilities which generated the recommendation to develop a qualitatively superior weapon—thus to maintain our military superiority. And that recommendation nearly failed because of determined opposition to it.

"The Russian success in developing thermonuclear weapon capability in 1953 would have found the United States hopelessly outdistanced.

"Hard decisions would have been before us—to compromise, appease, surrender or fight. The decision in 1947 to undertake the detection of nuclear weapons tests was a fortunate one and far more crucial than we knew."

Strauss' rejection by the Senate in 1959 for a place in the Cabinet was an unusual rebuff, seldom administered since the republic began.

The author offers a variety of possible reasons for the turnout. He concludes that Democrats in the Senate, numerically superior, took this opportunity to strike an indirect blow at President Eisenhower.

Lovely Weather For Fourth Of July Event

By LEE LINDER

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It was a beautiful day to celebrate the Fourth of July.

On this date 186 years ago, in Colonial Philadelphia, now being partly reconstructed to resemble the days of old, the nation's freedom was proclaimed with the Declaration of Independence.

Then the Liberty Bell rang out the news.

Wednesday, at Independence Hall—the bell inside silent since it cracked long ago—with the sun bright in the blue summer sky, President Kennedy joined most of the nation's governors in reaffirming the principles of the Founding Fathers.

This greatest gathering in history of the nation's leadership at America's cradle of liberty was the foremost celebration among the holiday observances over all the land, and overseas as well.

About 100,000, by police estimate, jammed into the 10-square-block Independence National Park area to see and hear the President and the array of governors. The chief executives of 42 states and territories were on hand.

Flags flew from all the buildings. A huge speakers' stand in front of the stately, red brick hall was draped in red, white and blue bunting.

Flags of all the states fluttered in the light breeze.

The President, touching down in his helicopter after an hour's flight from Washington, was greeted officially by Major James Tate, Gov. David J. Lawrence, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, and Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire who is chairman of the national Governors Conference. U.S. Rep. William J. Green, Democratic city chairman, flew in with Kennedy.

From the first glimpse of the presidential helicopter the vast crowd waved hands, flags, pennants and scarves. It cheered again and again.

Kennedy spent an interlude with the governors in the Supreme Court room of Congress Hall, moving down a double line of the chief executives and shaking hands with each.

There the Governors Conference gave him three presents. Gov. Lawrence gave him a miniature brass naval cannon, a copy of one of the deck guns aboard the U.S. Constitution; an electric watch made by the Hamilton company of Lancaster, Pa., and bearing on its face a picture of the two Kennedy children; and a Bible chest of the kind made in Pennsylvania's early days.

As soprano Elaine Malbin sang the national anthem, on top of the 11-story Lafayette Building to the right of the hall a policeman stood at attention, his right hand at salute, the hot sun flashing off his metal helmet. From that vantage point, sentinel-like, he had sweeping observation of the entire area.

People climbed onto other rooftops. Loud speakers carried the oratory to the far reaches of the crowds.

Mr. K Attends July Fourth Event; Dislikes Jazz Yet

Moscow (AP)—Premier Khrushchev went to a Fourth of July reception at the American Embassy Wednesday, toasted President Kennedy, said things were getting better about Berlin, and commented that he didn't like American jazz.

"I don't understand Russian jazz either," he said.

Khrushchev went to the party for the second successive year. He skipped 1960, the year of the U2 flight and the collapsing summit conference.

He appeared in a good mood. "We did everything possible to make the weather good for the day," he said, pointing to sunny skies after a week of rain.

He toasted the President as he stood on the porch of the embassy residence, Spaso House, while a white mist of tree blossoms whirled around in the air.

"I want to congratulate the American people," he said. "I wish for peace and success. I think that is the main thing."

There was an exchange of light talk between Khrushchev and John McSweeney, charge d'affaires, then they strolled out on the lawn where they were quickly surrounded by correspondents.

To a question about Berlin and Germany, he said: "There had been some progress, I think." Benny Goodman, American jazz band leader, interrupted the political talk and from then it was mostly modern jazz and painting with Khrushchev attacking, Goodman defending.

Khrushchev even brought the name of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower into his argument, although he has hardly spoken a pleasant word about him since Francis Gary Powers' U2 plane came down over Swedlovsk in 1960 and precipitated a diplomatic crisis.

"When I talked to President Eisenhower, he said he was an amateur painter. When he talked about modern trends in painting, he said it makes me sick to the stomach," Khrushchev said.

"I said it's the same with me," Goodman started the jazz talk going as he was shaking hands with the premier under a spreading tree on the lawn.

"Ah, a new jazz fan," said Goodman.

"No," said Khrushchev, smiling. "I don't like Goodman music, I like good music."

"I don't understand it," Khrushchev continued. "I don't mean just American jazz. I don't understand our own Russian jazz either."

Khrushchev indicated what he thought of jazz by saying it started out "boo boo boo," and he did a little jig step.

Khrushchev's dislike of jazz has resulted in it being almost a black market item in the Soviet Union, for hot jazz players dare not present their wares in public.

U.S. Consumer Buying Under Close Scrutiny In Philadelphia Wed.

NEW YORK (AP)—Consumer buying—the biggest thing in the U.S. economy—is in for closer than ever scrutiny today. The other chief forms of spending—by business and by government—are generally accepted as having pretty well taken shape for 1962.

Government spending is going to rise over the long range, stimulating certain industries, assuring some jobs and maybe creating some others.

Business spending plans can change, but most seem to call for a slight increase this year over last. And, anyway, business spending plans over the long range are tied to ultimate sales to the consumers and the government, or to prospects for such sales. Any big jump in business spending probably will have to wait for idle production facilities to be activated by increased consumer demands.

So what the consumer is going to do is the chief concern right now.

Particularly puzzling the soothsayers is just how much, if any, Americans will cut back their buying of goods and services because of losses in the stock market, or because of fear of the future induced by the stock market crash.

The latest pulse taking of consumer psychology finds it "soberly optimistic but not exuberant."

The questioning by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center was done while stocks were sliding, but most consumers were contacted before the big break of May 28 and the morning of May 29.

Government statistics also lag. The Department of Commerce say "retail sales continued at a high volume during May though they did not quite match the record total for the month of April."

Early reports of cutbacks in spending by consumers since the big drop in stock prices have concentrated largely in luxury items.

Individuals who lost a lot of cash, or those who still have their stocks but aren't worth as much on paper as they once thought they were, are reported to have canceled plans to buy expensive houses, yachts, jewelry. So far stores have reported little apparent cutback in the buying of moderately priced items.

But, even so, consumer spending isn't all that the economic planners would like it to be. A little more of it would give the economy a nice boost.

This is behind much of the drive for quick tax cuts, especially in the lower income brackets. Tax cut advocates contend that any such increase in disposable incomes would quickly find its way into trade or the payment for services.

But some economists doubt this. They concede that those who habitually spend all they make would increase their outlays if their tax bills were less. But those who think they already are spending as much as prudence dictates might use the tax windfall to increase their savings.

Whenever an alarm sounds on the shores of the loch, 12 of the monks tie their habits around their waists, put on their helmets and board their own fire engine standing in the abbey grounds.

Oil Millionaire Bought Portrait

LONDON (AP)—American oil millionaire J. Paul Getty was the mystery buyer who paid $532,000 last week for Rembrandt's portrait of St. Bartholomew.

"I did not want a lot made of it at the time because there is always so much brou-ha-ha when anybody buys a painting of that value," Getty said.

Getty may send the painting on a tour of British galleries. It will probably wind up in his collection at Sutton Place, his palatial home near Guildford, in Surrey.

Brooklyn School Has Right For Dismissal

NEW YORK (AP)—St. John's University, a Roman Catholic school in Brooklyn, had the right to dismiss three students for taking part in a civil marriage ceremony, the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court has ruled.

The 3-2 ruling Tuesday reversed Supreme Court Justice George Eilperin who last month ordered the students reinstated.

Justice Eilperin had called the university regulations used in expelling the three vague and indefinite.

In his majority opinion, however, the appellate division said: "When a university, in expelling a student, acts within its jurisdiction, not arbitrarily, but in the exercise of an honest discretion, based on facts within its knowledge, a court may not review the exercise of its discretion."

The court action was brought by Howard Glenn Carr, 23; Greta Schmidt Carr, 21, his wife; and Miss Jean Catto, 21, who served as a witness to the marriage.

The Carrs were married in a civil ceremony last March and then by a Roman Catholic priest a month later.

The university argued that the civil marriage was a serious violation of the canon law of the Church and caused a campus scandal.

Another student who served as a witness, John Sharkey, 21, of Elizabeth, N. J., also was dismissed.

Formal Wedding Report Required

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Newly wed Mrs. Ronald Francis Currier must make a formal written report informing her father of her marriage.

Her father, school Supt. O. Perry Wilker, gave his daughter away upon her marriage to Dr. Ronald Currier, but since Mrs. Currier is a teacher she must comply with school board regulations and inform the superintendent of her marriage.

Fighting Statue Of Saint Francis

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A Norfolk businessman says he'll go to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, in his effort to have a six-foot statue of St. Francis of Assisi removed from the city's botanical gardens.

Eugene Sawyer, 45, operator of an automobile driving school, asked the City Council Tuesday to take away the statue on the ground its presence on public property violates the doctrine of separation of church and state.

Mayor W. Fred Duckworth told Sawyer, a Methodist, the city council will study the matter.

The Marion Crosby Garden Club donated the $6,000 statue to the botanical gardens. It was placed there in May.

Auditors Report Resale Profits

WASHINGTON (AP)—Auditors have reported that private firms selling cotton as agents of the government bought some for themselves for resale at higher prices.

The questioned transactions, occurring between mid-1959 and April 30, 1961, amounted to more than $400 million, the General Accounting Office informed Congress.

The GAO report, submitted Monday, recommended that the Agriculture Department seek to recover deficiencies where the private sales agencies sold cotton to themselves at less than fair value.

The private firms, which were not named, were said by GAO to have had an apparent conflict of interest between their duty to protect the government's interest in disposing of cotton held by the Commodity Credit Corp. and their private interest in buying cotton from the government at a price to reap the greatest profit on resale.

Woeful Failure To Prove Point

NEW YORK (AP)—John Rigney, 25, explained to police that he ascended to the top of a 200-foot construction crane because he wanted to demonstrate that high places could be climbed without falling.

His explanation came after he plunged from the crane into the Harlem River Monday night and had to be rescued by two patrolmen. The Bronx steelworker was taken to the psychiatric ward of Bellevue Hospital.

Dog Enjoys His Charge Account

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Around the neighborhood, Boom-erang is known as the dog with the unusual charge account.

Every afternoon, when he hears a bell tinkle, the 6-year-old cocker spaniel deliberately stretches himself on the street in front of the oncoming vehicle.

The driver stops, looks over the flavors of ice cream he's selling, and selects a cup for the dog. He then jots down the transaction in a little book.

At the end of each week, Boom-erang's owner, Joe Fugate, shows up to settle the account.

Wearing a seat belt on long trips offers more than just protection — it cuts down fatigue and helps you maintain good driving posture.

Investigators Probe Cash Cache

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—Investigators concentrated today on convicted gambler Joseph (newsboy) Moriarty in attempts to solve the cache of cash in an abandoned automobile.

The fortune at issue, ranging in denominations from $1,000 bills down to $5, was found Tuesday by two unidentified carpenters in the trunk of a 1947 Plymouth housed in a garage.

R. W. Bachman, special agent in charge of the Newark office of the FBI, said Moriarty was arrested in a 1947 Plymouth in 1951.

Also found in the car were four guns—45 and 32-caliber revolvers, a 32-caliber Belgian automatic and a 22-caliber rifle—and considerable ammunition. Equipment of the type used by bookmakers and numbers operators was discovered in a 1951 Ford stored in an opposite garage.

"We don't know yet who the money belongs to—ownership is a legal question for the U.S. attorney's office," Bachman said.

"This is the largest amount of money I have ever come in contact with in all my experience with the FBI."

The exact amount, he said, was $2,421,580.

The FBI claimed the money, bonds and related papers on the basis of a $250,000 tax lien against Moriarty.

Authorities also pressed to determine the owner of the car, which had no license plates.

According to Conley, a Miss Anna Petrick was the last owner. He said the car had been seized by the county prosecutor in 1952 when Moriarty was arrested in it on a gambling charge. Moriarty was subsequently acquitted and Conley said the car was returned to Miss Petrick.

Conley said Miss Petrick left on a two-week vacation Saturday.

A call to her home brought only this response: "She isn't here."

Electronic Gadget Revealed To Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has informed its European allies of the successful development of a new, secret electronic lock which will be used to reinforce safeguards against the accidental or unauthorized firing of nuclear weapons.

President Kennedy is expected to ask Congress soon for an appropriation of funds to complete work on the device, start manufacture and begin installation in nuclear weapons.

The Allies were told through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, it was learned, that the new electronic lock will broaden the margin of safety in nuclear weapons control systems and strengthen the exercise of direct control over weapons by top commanders.

U.S. officials said the development of increasingly secure control systems becomes more important as the number of weapons increases.

The locking device is already perfected for the larger nuclear weapons such as those warheads deployed in the European NATO area for use on medium range ballistic missiles. According to present plans the first operational use of the device will be in the forward missile deployment area.

The device is authoritatively described as an electro-mechanical system controlled by a radio signal to be sent from a command headquarters remote from the actual missile site.

In effect, the device in its normal position makes a break in the electrical circuit necessary to the firing of the nuclear warhead. It couldn't be fired until an authorized commander dispatched the necessary coded radio signal that would operate the device. The device itself would not do the firing but it would control the arming of the warhead. This is comparable to cocking a rifle in advance of firing it by pulling the trigger.

Demolished By Mystery Blast

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The cause of a blast that demolished a small suburban department store here Wednesday remained a mystery today.

The explosion, which broke windows in nearby buildings and hurled debris for several blocks, occurred seconds after store owner Ben Lillien, 45, entered the building.

Lillien, who suffered burns, said he went to the store to determine if there was any water damage from a heavy rainstorm Tuesday night. He said he went to the basement, opened a stock room door, and the blast occurred. There was no fire.

Traffic accidents killed a record 143 persons during the nation's 30-hour observance of Independence Day.

The death count on the nation's streets and highways exceeded the one-day Fourth of July holiday record set in 1956, the last year when a one-day observance was held.

The National Safety Council estimated earlier that during the holiday period from 6 p.m. Tuesday, to midnight Wednesday the traffic toll would fall somewhere between 110 and 150.

It also said that nearly all of the country's 76 million cars would be on the go.

The country's over-all accident death toll was 288. It included 15 deaths in boating accidents, 54 drownings and 36 deaths in miscellaneous accidents.
