Pitt Health Board Gets Resignation Of Director

By PATRICIA MOORE, Reflector Staff Writer. The Pitt County Board of Health was faced today with the task of finding another director for the Pitt County Health Department.

Dr. John Futrell, director since July 1, 1961, submitted his resignation to the board at their quarterly meeting last night.

Just prior to that action, Dr. Philip Nelson, director and psychiatrist with the Pitt Mental Health Clinic, had discussed the possibility of resigning as director effective the last of August on a part time basis for four half days a week.

The resignation of Dr. Futrell was accepted with regret. He told the board that he wanted to leave his position as of July 15 in order to return to private practice.

setting up offices in Gastonia. He reported that the attitude and morale of employees at the health department is at a high level. "I've enjoyed this work and I feel that it has made me a better doctor," Dr. Futrell stated.

He succeeded Dr. Georgia V. Mills as health director. Prior to coming to Greenville and Pitt County, Dr. Futrell completed in private practice in Greensboro for nine years and shared duties of college physician at Guilford College near Greensboro. He graduated from the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, where he was president of the Phi Rho Sigma chapter, national medical fraternity.

He interned at Atlantic City, N. J. Hospital, Dr. Futrell completed his undergraduate studies at N. C. State College in Raleigh and graduated from Jamestown High School in Guilford County. He is married to the former Lois Hohn of Guilford County and they have four children.

Dr. Nelson explained that the nature of his private practice "is such that I thought it best to cut down on the clinic practice." He and his wife, Dr. Karla Nelson, a child psychiatrist, recently have opened private offices in the Medical Pavilion.

Dr. Nelson said he felt he could devote four half days a week to the Pitt mental health clinic and efficiently handle his patients.

He also suggested that someone other than a psychiatrist could efficiently handle the administrative work of the clinic, leaving the psychiatrist more time to work directly with the patients.

Dr. Nelson told the board that he would remain with the county clinic on a part time basis, or resign altogether, depending on the wishes of the board. The board took no action on other suggestion, but did accept Dr. Nelson's offer to continue with the county on a part time basis until there is need for a change.

Alton Gardner, chairman of the Board of Health, said there would be no fast action in selection of a new health director. "It's going to take some time to find a director," he said. Dr. Futrell said that the department could operate better in the summer without a director than in the winter, since the schools weren't in operation.

In other business, Dr. Futrell read the minutes of the previous meeting, held in April, and presented an activities report for the month of June which included some statistics for the year.

Present for the meeting in addition to Chairman Gardner, Dr. Futrell and Dr. Nelson, were Mayor of Greenville Charles King, Dr. Charles Fitzgerald of Farmville, Snoddy Edwards of Ayden, D. H. Conley and Reginald Gray.

Gov. Sees Severe Crop Loss

Sanford Says State 'Will Do Everything It Can' To Relieve Situation In Eastern Counties

By NOEL YANCEY, WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — "I've seen enough to know this is a very severe loss."

Gov. Terry Sanford said this Friday after he had completed a 60-mile tour of Beaufort County to survey the damage caused by heavy rains.

"It certainly would be put in the class of a severe disaster," Sanford declared. He promised that "the state will do everything it can do" to relieve the situation.

Rep. Herbert C. Bonner, who was among those accompanying Sanford, told the governor "we've got a bad situation here. The river is high, the sound is high and the water won't drain off."

Water was still standing around the crops of tobacco, corn and soybeans in some of the fields Sanford visited. In scores of other fields, where the water had drained, tobacco had "flopped" from the excessive rain and was described as an almost total loss.

Sanford was told that the damage picture could be repeated in the 14 counties which have been declared a disaster area by the federal government. The designation makes farmers in the area eligible for government loans to harvest what is left of their crops and to plant their 1963 crops.

Jetliner With 94 Aboard Vanishes In Heavy Rains

BOMBAY, India (AP) — An Italian jetliner carrying 94 persons vanished in a heavy downpour today while approaching Bombay's Santa Cruz Airport.

Hours later there was still no trace of the airliner, which could have gone down in mountainous terrain surrounding Bombay or in the Arabian Sea, which lies only two miles from the airport.

It was not known whether there were any Americans aboard. The plane set out from Sydney with stops scheduled in Darwin, Singapore, Bangkok, Bombay, Karachi, Tehran and Rome.

The Indian government alerted all planes flying in and out of Bombay to keep a close watch for the missing plane, which reportedly lost contact near Aurangabad, 200 miles northeast of here.

Officials said stormy weather delayed immediate dispatch of search planes, but police sent out radio patrols to scour greater Bombay's 197 square miles, some of which are sparsely populated.

An Indian air force airliner took off at dawn accompanied by an Indian airliner, but the low cloud cover forced them to suspend their search.

Indian naval vessels were also pressed into the search. Alitalia officials said in Rome that all the airline's planes bound west from Bangkok carry enough fuel to overfly Bombay if necessary and carry them to Karachi or Tehran. They said airport officials in the Pakistani and Iranian capitals were being alerted for possible search operations.

The plane's route lay across India's Western Ghats mountain range, which has peaks up to nearly 9,000 feet.

The plane was scheduled to have reached Rome at 7:25 a.m. Word that the airliner had disappeared followed five major plane disasters this year.

An Air France jetliner crashed on Guadeloupe in the Leeward Islands last June 22, killing 113 persons.

Also in June, another Air France jetliner crashed on takeoff near Paris, killing 130 persons, 121 of them from Atlanta, Ga., in the worst single plane disaster in civil aviation history.

A chartered Flying Tiger Line Super Constellation disappeared in the Pacific between Guam and the Philippines March 16 with 107 aboard.

An American Airlines Boeing 707 Astrojet faltered on takeoff from Idlewild Airport, New York, March 1, killing 95.

Defense Secretary Says Red Cities Not Exempt From Nuclear Might

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has let the Russians know the United States has not locked itself into a commitment to spare Russian cities from destruction in the event of a nuclear war.

Informed sources said today this was the import of words McNamara used Friday in answering questions about his strategy, which aims at confining any nuclear weapons to military targets as much as possible.

In a speech three weeks ago at Ann Arbor, Mich., McNamara said the United States has concluded that, so far as is feasible, principal military objectives in event of nuclear war "should be destruction of the enemy's military forces, not of his civilian population."

He said then that "we are giving a possible opponent the strongest imaginable incentive to refrain from striking our own cities."

At a news conference Friday, McNamara stressed the flexibility of U.S. nuclear strategy and said "we have a force so large that we can be certain that it can absorb a full first strike by any potential enemy and survive with sufficient power to destroy the military capabilities of that potential enemy."

"This permits us, should we choose to do so, to apply . . . a strategy that would direct the surviving force . . . against the military targets of that potential enemy."

McNamara added: "I emphasize the words 'permit us' however, rather than stating that it would be necessarily planned to be used in that fashion."

This sentence raised questions as to whether McNamara was broadening the terms of his spare-the-cities strategy.

Sources familiar with McNamara's thinking said the defense secretary was telling the Russians that the United States is not ruling out a possible strike at Russian cities, if such an attack is to the advantage of the United States—even if the Russians avoid hitting U.S. cities in a surprise nuclear assault.

The sources suggested the United States is leaving itself free to strike at Soviet cities if, for example, the Russians should start their massive ground forces in motion to overrun Free Europe.

In essence, it appeared that McNamara was seeking to keep the Russians guessing — and to bring home again that this nation's nuclear might is great enough to deal the Russians a punishing blow if they launch a surprise attack against this country or its allies.

On other major points, McNamara —

—Said the effectiveness of the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam has declined, but cautioned it would be years before that was known.

—Said he has no evidence that 10,000 North Vietnamese troops, who backed pro-Communist rebels in Laos, have moved or will move into South Viet Nam.

—Indicated strongly he was standing by his plan to streamline the army national guard and reserves, and that he expected the governors would see the need for planned manpower and unit cuts when "they have an opportunity to fully appreciate" the Pentagon decision.

Truck Driver Facing Charges

A State Highway Commission truck driver, who has admitted complicity in the plot, has been charged with delivering a quantity of barbiturate drugs to inmates of the Pitt County Prison Unit.

The man, William Olus White of Route 3, Greenville, was released under a $300 bond on the misdemeanor charge and is scheduled for trial Tuesday in Pitt County Recorder's Court.

White was charged by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation Thursday following several days of investigation. Capt. L. P. Dail, superintendent of the local prison, said White's participation was uncovered by investigation Monday.

The prison official said White "admits complicity in the matter," but says he just passed the money. The case has been under investigation for about six months, he noted.

The capsules sold for about $2 per dozen, Dail noted. The barbiturate was identified as Seconal.

Local pharmacists say the drug is legally sold by prescription only and is a sedative type drug, acting to depress the central nervous system to produce sleep.

It can be habit forming but does not create true addiction.

Ex-Miss N. C. Trophy Winner

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A bevy of Southern beauties will parade in bathing suits tonight for the final judging for selection of Miss Dixie.

Rita Wilson of Humboldt, Tenn., is out in front on the basis of victories the past two nights in talent and evening gown judging. Miss Wilson took the talent division Thursday night as she sang her own arrangements of two jazz numbers. She was declared evening gown winner Friday night.

Susan Woodall, Weldon, N.C., received a trophy for personality Friday night and also had won in the I.Q. division.

Carol Long, last year's Miss Dixie, will crown her successor tonight.

No Relief Seen In Medical Strike

By MAX HARRELSON, REGINA, Sask. (AP) — The doctors' strike against Saskatchewan's compulsory medical care plan ended its first week today with no sign of a break in the deadlock that has left the Canadian province with only emergency medical services.

A move was afoot to force suspension of the medicare act until its validity is tested in the courts. A hearing was set for Tuesday on the petition of three Saskatchewan residents for an injunction seeking to suspend further activity by the administering Medical Care Insurance Commission until the courts rule on its legality.

Both the socialist government of provincial Premier Woodrow Lloyd and the doctors have expressed willingness to negotiate.

Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, told a news conference in Saskatoon that the striking doctors were sticking to their position.

Dr. Neville Smith, Regina spokesman for the doctors, denied that the strike was endangering the health of the province or that any residents of Saskatchewan had been refused essential medical care.

Celebrating 8th Birthday Today

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam today celebrated the eighth anniversary of President Ngo Dinh Diem's coming to power.

Thousands of yellow and red striped flags representing the national colors flew throughout the land and sports events were held in Saigon and other cities.

In a message marking the anniversary, Diem called on the people to unite against the Viet Cong Communists, who have overrun much of the countryside.

Confessions Spur Estes Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dramatic confessions of two federal farm aid officials that they accepted money from a Billie Sol Estes emissary spurred wider ranging investigations today on several fronts.

On the verge of tears, Louis N. Dumas, 52, and Arthur Daniel Stone, 55, top officials of the McIntosh County, Okla., Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), admitted Friday that they had received $1,640.80 from an agent of the Billie Sol Estes enterprises last summer.

They said they had lied about it under oath and had reported none of the money on their income tax returns.

Both men said they are amending their tax returns belatedly, and both tried to resign. But Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman rejected the resignations and suspended them instead—the start of a move to slam down bars against permitting either man ever again to be restored to the agency's payroll.

Although county officials, they drew their salaries—estimated at $6,000 to $8,000 a year—from the federal government.

It was not indicated immediately if any criminal action would be brought against Dumas and Stone.

The confessions of the veteran officials, ending careers that began in the 1930s, came as the Senate Investigations subcommittee rounded out another week of hearings aimed at finding any evidence of influence dealings connected with Estes' big money manipulations under farm aid programs.

Dumas and Stone's testimony was reported on Capitol Hill to have stirred more investigating activity along similar lines by the Agriculture Department's investigating staff, the Justice Department and congressional probes themselves.

transfers of cotton acreage allotments from other states to his own lands in Texas.

Just what Dumas and Stone did in return for the money they said the Estes enterprises paid them remained obscure.

Parnell E. Biggerstaff, a former agent for Estes, testified he paid them for providing valuable information to help him in the allotment deals for Estes. Dumas and Stone said they gave him no information they wouldn't have given to anyone else. Biggerstaff, on the one hand, and the two officials on the other, disagreed as to who had made the first overture for the payments.

Dumas read a prepared statement detailing his confession. Stone was so shaken that subcommittee chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., stepped in and read the statement for him. The two men were in shirtsleeves and Stone wore no tie.

McClellan told the witnesses he felt sorry for them, and hoped the decision to "make a clean breast" would count in their favor.

Contagious?

BONN, Germany (AP) — A leading American dental research scientist says it has been proved that tooth decay may be contagious in humans — as well as animals.

Dr. Robert J. Fitzgerald, of the National Institute of Dental Research in Bethesda, Md., told a news conference tooth decay can be produced by inoculating an animal with decay-producing germs, whereupon the disease passes from animal to animal merely by close contact.

Fitzgerald is among 150 dental physicians and research workers attending an international conference on oral biology here.

Jet Explodes; Lone Survivor

ST. FRANCIS, Kan. (AP)—An Air Force B47 jet bomber exploded in the air over northwest Kansas Friday night after radioing that an engine had caught fire at 32,000 feet and the co-pilot, who landed across the Nebraska border about 8 miles from the crash scene, was the only survivor of the crew of three.

He is 1st Lt. Howard J. Steen, 29, of Fergus Falls, Minn. Steen escaped with minor injuries.

Killed were the pilot, 1st Lt. Douglas Powell Bishop, 28, of Elberton, Ga., and the navigator, 1st Lt. Harry Dan Welborn Jr., 27, of Baldwin Park, Calif.

There was no immediate explanation as to why Bishop and Welborn did not parachute too.

The explosion came just after sundown and was seen as far away as Dighton, Kan., 140 miles to the southeast. It shook buildings over a wide area in the northwest corner of Kansas.

25 Youths Admit Destroying Flags

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (AP)—Twenty-five boys between the ages of 8 and 14 have admitted destroying more than 100 American flags in vandalism on the Fourth of July.

Officers said none of the youngsters would say why they pulled down and ripped the flags, which were flying throughout this community in the Sierra foothills.

They were released in their parents' custody pending the filing of charges in juvenile court.

Nevada City residents had been urged to fly their flags from Sunday to Wednesday in a community-wide observance of "an old fashioned red, white and blue Fourth of July."

TOKYO (AP) — Fire razed 70 houses in a north Japan village leaving 388 persons homeless, police reported today.

There were no casualties in the fire, which struck Goshogawara, a community of 6,000 population 400 miles north of Tokyo.

Honored Local Moose Return

DISPLAY MOOSE CIVIC AWARD . . . Merrill Bynum and Ed Baldree receive praise from Earle Horton, National Director of Civic Affairs, for the Civic Affairs plaque won by the local Moose Lodge.

By DON SCHLIENZ, Reflector News Editor

A busload of weary Greenville Moose and Women of the Moose disembarked here last night, at the end of a long ride which began at 6 a.m. Friday in Jacksonville, Florida.

Their return to Greenville also marked the close of a convention the trip which began last Saturday and took a record number of local representatives to the 74th annual gathering of the Loyal Order of Moose, in Atlanta . . . and to the closing day at Moosehaven, where the Order's community for aged members.

Forty-seven Greenvillites went to the meeting. Junior Governor Merrill Bynum expressed extreme satisfaction with results of the convention.

"All of us," he said, "were very proud of the Memorial Service performed before the thousands in convention hall by the 24 members of our chapter and Women of the Moose. It was the first time that rite had ever been performed at a national convention, and time and again we heard commendations on the way it was conducted."

Elaborating on the cherished second-place award in Civic Affairs won by Greenville Moose, Bynum explained the award was based on community service performed by lodges of comparable size in the United States and Canada.

"In this field," said the Junior Governor, "our lodge members take an especial interest and pride. We have consistently fared well in N.C. competition and, won third-place honors nationally at last year's convention in Memphis. Our Civic Affairs co-chairmen of 1961-62

Politicians Urged To Restore Order

By EDGAR MILLER, BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian newspapers issued sharp warnings to Brazil's politicians today to stop their bickering and restore order.

The warnings followed food riots in which 19 persons have been killed. There is no real food shortage, but some store-keepers have been holding back supplies in hopes of higher prices than the government now allows.

"The whole country will sink into chaos" unless the political squabbling stops, said Ultima Hora of Rio de Janeiro.

Jornal do Brasil, also published in Rio de Janeiro, said if food rioting continues the politicians quarreling among themselves for power might "find another type of regime already installed in the country."

Reliable informants said also that army generals are strongly pressing President Joao Goulart and leaders of the political parties to settle quickly the crisis of the last 11 days over selection of a premier.

Government sources have insisted that the military, which opposed Goulart's succeeding to the presidency last year, was not involved in the present stalemate between the president and the Parliament.

But Auro de Moura Andrade, the Conservative senator who quit as prime minister this week after only 36 hours in office, confirmed that his resignation stemmed from a dispute with Goulart over the military.

"The composition of military posts in the cabinet was the cause of the military-political crisis in which we have been plunged," he told newsmen.

The country's economy has been caught up in spiraling inflation and increasing disorders focus on Brazilians storming stores to demand food.

Troops and police were needed to restore calm in Rio Friday when fears of new rioting spread panic through the downtown streets.

The budget group will make spending recommendations to Gov. Sanford and the 1963 General Assembly. The commission is scheduled to visit North Carolina State College, the state school for the blind and Durham Dix Hospital, all in Raleigh, next Tuesday.

RALEIGH (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission will begin its biennial visit to North Carolina's state-supported institutions, next Tuesday.

The tour will run through Aug. 8. Later the commission will hear budget and capital improvement requests from the institutions.

Paris Summer Hair Styles Are Softly Waved And Free Flowing

Top Left: Jacques Dessange works the hair into a big shell-like curl on each cheek to balance the long fringe.

Top Right: For the mutinous miss Rene Luciz models the hair into soft waves held back from the brow by a bandeau and bow.

Bottom Left: Luc Traineau proposes a compromise between the puffed styles of former seasons and the casual styles that girls often adopt in summer.

Bottom Right: Isabelle Lancray creates a fluid, supple style that looks natural on the beach. A tiny velvet bow helps anchor the shoulder-length bob.

American Coutouriers Lower Hemline, One Inch

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—James Galanos, one of the big four of American coutouriers, sneaked the controversial hemline an inch below the knees Friday as he introduced his $100,000 collection to press and buyers.

But he balanced out everything beautifully by subtracting from the top whatever amount of fabric he had added to the bottom of his costumes.

A Californian who does not have to cope with winter winds and frost, Galanos displayed his gaunt models in what he terms the "bare minimum."

For daytime wear these included naked wool jerseys—sleeveless with scooped or plunging v-necks—worn over ample skirts.

By the time the ball gowns were on the scene the minimum had become even barer. There were strapless tubes of wool, naked columns of weighted pastel crepe, cylinders of ribbon lace, cut velvet, plain velvet or brocade. Rarely was there a shoulder strap.

This is a feat of fabric architecture when you consider that Galanos models, gaunt in the first place, had pared off five to ten pounds for this show and there was not much of them left for holding up dresses.

The spare young designer is a magician with invisible construction tricks. Those lengthened skirts have hidden pleats front, back and sides. Flared center pleats and hidden closings on coats is more sleight of designing hand that make them appear to be open over dresses of the same fabric when they are buttoned shut.

Another inside secret are ball gown skirts subtly ballooned at the hips. These taper to such narrowness at the ankle that a few manikins could not maneuver their appointed courses without hitching them up a bit.

For all that bareness just barely above the bosom Galanos did provide some warmth in the form of casually tied great, loopy wool fur-lined scarves or padded and quilted velvet stoles that swirled like tornadoes around those nude shoulders.

Daytime and cocktail costumes often had their own little jackets with wide, padded, rounded shoulders that made up for the sleevelessness of the blouses underneath. Collars were wide, standing away from the neckline.

And to prove that Galanos doesn't really have to be consistent, lasses also appeared in collarless jackets over fringed "dog collar" blouses and skirts with hidden pleats.

Other style features in the two-hour parade included sweater dresses carved from gilded lace, rajah costumes and striped chiffon gauze sarl gowns embellished with Indian motifs and bejeweled with crystal pendants. There were puffed sleeves, mushroom capes, belted coat sleeves, and very little fur anywhere.

But colors were so lush, fabrics so elegant, and construction so tricky that nobody paid much attention to those slightly longer hem lengths.

Engagement Announced

MISS MARY ELIZABETH KAISER is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kaiser of Oak Lane, Rochester, New York who announce her engagement to Dr. John Elliott Dixon son of Mrs. George Grady Dixon and the late Dr. Dixon of Ayden. The wedding will take place on Sept. 22.

Sarver-Worthington Wedding Solemnized

Mrs. Lynden Darrell Sarver

Miss Faye Worthington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton K. Worthington of Ayden, became the bride of Lynden Darrell Sarver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garold Sarver of Decatur, Ill. Saturday afternoon, June 30, at three o'clock in the Roundtree Christian Church.

The Rev. Kenneth Moore, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Wedding music was presented by Miss Andrea Harris of Ayden, organist, and Tommy Manning, also of Ayden, vocalist, who sang "I Love You Truly," "At Dawning," and "The Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

The setting for the ceremony was enhanced with seven branched candelabra holding cathedral tapers, floor baskets of white pom poms, gladioli and gypsophyllia, with a background of wedding palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a sabrina neckline edged with medallions of lemon lace re-embroidered with iridescent sequins and the cap sleeves were also trimmed in a similar manner. A front panel of the trimmings extended down the front of the waist. The bouffant skirt, with scattered medallions re-embroidered with the sequins, was accented in the back with a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a queen's crown of lace and sequins. She carried a white prayer book topped with a purple throat orchid, frenched carnations and lilies of the valley, showered with ribbons love-knotted.

Mrs. Sylvester Boyd of Greenville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her dress of mint green silk organza was fashioned with a fitted bodice having a scoop neckline and short puffed sleeves, and the full skirt was street length. Her headpiece was a bandeau of pink and green plaited lace and she carried a cascade of pink carnations with pink and green net bows tied with the Nile green ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Miss Betty Burney and Miss Linda Williams of Ayden. Their gowns were mint green embossed silk organza, fashioned similar to the honor attendant's, and they carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations tied with matching ribbon.

Milton K. Worthington Jr. of Grifton brother of the bride, attended the groom as best man, and the ushers were Nelson Thomas of Ayden, cousin of the bride, and Sylvester Boyd of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bride.

The couple received the wedding guests in the church vestibule, after which they left on a wedding trip to Atlantic Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Sarver will make their home in Washington, D. C.

Naval Officer Procurement Team To Visit College

Representatives from the Raleigh Office of Naval Officer Programs and the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit, Norfolk, Va., will visit East Carolina College, Greenville, for the purpose of explaining the Navy's commissioned officer programs to interested individuals. The team will be located in the College Union July 9-12.

Openings are available for assignment in Aviation, General Line, and several specialty categories. Most of the programs are open for application only to college seniors; however, undergraduates who have completed 60 semester hours of accredited college work may apply for appointment as a Naval Aviation Cadet.

Any student who meets the required standards and is within nine months of graduation may take the qualification test and make application with the visiting Navy Procurement Team. Those who take the qualification tests or who make application and subsequently change their mind are not obligated in any way.

All students are urged and welcome to stop by and talk with the team about their plans for military service.

Lieutenant Commander Maxine V. Easter, Navy Nurse Corps, will be in Greenville July 10 for consultation with Registered Professional and Student Nurses who are interested in the Navy. During her visit here she will be located at College Union.

All About Town With Anne Mattox

A former Greenville young woman and a former staff member of the Reflector is visiting in town with her family. Mrs. C. H. Silvester, nee Muriel Shottwell, and her husband, Major Silvester and their two sons Charles and Bill arrived in the states Tuesday after living in Pinner, England the past three years.

Landing at McGuire Air Force Base after a seven hour jet flight, Muriel and the children came to Greenville while her husband waited the arrival of the family auto. They plan to visit with Muriel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Shottwell, for a month. They will also visit next week with Chuck's mother in Orlando, Fla., before returning to McGuire Air Force Base which will be their new assignment.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the East Carolina College English faculty left Thursday for Mexico City to represent the College and the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women at the International Federation of University Women from July 9-18. Dr. Utterback is one of two delegates from North Carolina, the other being Dr. Leslie Syron of Meredith College in Raleigh.

Miss Marriotte Churchill of Durham, daughter of J. Melvin Churchill formerly of Greenville, has been selected from applicants throughout the United States as administrative assistant to Dr. Margaret Mead of the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Miss Churchill will assist Dr. Mead during the next two years while she is working toward a Ph.D. at Columbia University. She graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1960 with an A.B. in Psychology. Afterwards, she attended the University of Paris in 1961, where she studied for the Degree Normale.

Miss Churchill plans to enter the field of college student-personnel work in the future. She is the niece of Mrs. C. Jeffrey Moyer and Lewis H. Churchill.

George Cook, associate professor of English, at East Carolina College, has undertaken the sponsorship of a young Italian girl through Save the Children Foundation, child-service organization.

The girl, Clara Schifflini, 17, lives with her parents and two younger sisters in La Spezia, a town in Northern Italy. Her father is an unskilled laborer, often out of work. Her mother is a cleaning woman, however their combined earnings are insufficient to cover their basic needs. For the past two years Clara has worked as an apprentice without pay. She works for a tailor and is learning to make men's shirts. The parents and their three daughters are in direct correspondence with Mr. Cook.

An Ayden native will marry in St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Rochester, New York in September. Dr. John Elliott Dixon will exchange vows with Mary Elizabeth Kaiser.

She is a graduate of the Rochester General Hospital School of Nursing and received her B.S. degree from the University of Buffalo, and is presently on the staff of the Midland Hospital. Dr. Dixon received his B.A. and M.D. degrees from Duke University and is now an assistant resident in the Department of Post Graduate Medicine at the University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich.

In looking through the microfilm of the Daily Reflector we came across this item which ran on the front page on November 11, 1962.

The article reported that a couple came to Greenville and went to the home of a local minister "where that gentleman united them in marriage. The couple spent the night here and next morning left for Baltimore. It is said the age of the bridegroom caused parental objection to the marriage, hence they run away." Today this doesn't warrant front page coverage; runaway marriages are handled more discretely now.

Master Point Game Played

The Faculty Duplicate Club had its monthly masterpoint game Friday night in the Community Room at the Planters National Bank and Trust Company. Eleven tables were in play, and a Mitchell movement was followed.

Winners north-south were as follows: tied for first with Mrs. J. S. Willard and Mrs. S. M. Woolfolk were Miss Reid Daniels of New Bern and Mrs. Marvin D. Owens of Wilson; next were Mrs. Frank Moseley and Mrs. W. R. Hooks, followed by Miss Mary Greene and Dr. James Stewart. Winners east-west were as follows: first, Dr. and Mrs. George Martin; second, Miss Julia Farmer and Mrs. C. C. Harris of Wilson; third, Mrs. J. A. Mercer of Fountain and Miss Sally Boyce of Wilson; tied for fourth with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bond of Windsor were Edward Simmons and Selby Corbett of Kinston.

The next regular session of the club will be July 13 at 7:30.

Good Old Days?

The evolution of the wash-wear summer suit dates back to about 1855, when men considered themselves "dashing" in suits of nankeen or some similar cotton fabric in a greyish yellow. A gay tie and a buttonhole flower were the only splashes of color permitted.

Pity the poor slaves who had to launder these suits by hand without the aid of efficient modern soaps, detergents, and washing machines!

Marine Withdrawal Not Catch-All

Withdrawal of some 1,000 American Marines from Thailand reflects an easing of tension in Laos, but it should not lead the free world to jump to the conclusion that all is well in Laos now that the coalition government has taken over the country.

Formation of a coalition government by the three major Laotian factions—the pro-communist, the pro-Western, and the neutralist—under the neutralist premier holds out hope that the strife in Laos will be ended. It must be recognized as a fact of life, however, that the government is still in its infancy and many problems must be overcome before it can be regarded as having any degree of stability.

One of the first problems is to merge troops from the pro-communist and pro-Western armies into a neutralist national army to maintain order. Obviously this move will be accomplished by a struggle for power within the new army, and probably will spill over into the political alignment of the coalition.

Having been the scene of a long and at times bitter war between pro-communist and pro-Western forces, Laos has many pressing domestic problems brought about by the fighting. These would pose a serious problem even for a government that had overwhelming support within the country. For a government composed of factions which have recently been at war with each other, the problems are multiplied many times.

To be realistic, it cannot be overlooked that the pro-Communists who have been fighting for a takeover in Laos are not likely to lose sight of their goal because the new coalition government has been formed. Disagreement over any one of a number of policies and programs of the government could bring about sudden collapse of the government and renew the armed struggle for power.

It is encouraging that the situation in Laos has improved to the point that the U.S. Marines have been withdrawn from neighboring Thailand. But it would be foolish to assume that the new coalition government has sufficient unity within it and sufficient united support among the Laotian people to remove the possibility of future trouble in the tiny Asian country.

Piers Abundant Along NC Coast

By M. B. ANDREWS

Guest Columnist

GOLDSBORO — Fishing is perhaps the most popular sport known to man. Eastern North Carolina is right now beginning the best season in recent years, according to seasoned fishermen. Henry Belk, Editor of Goldsboro News-Argus, and I attempted to list the Fishing Piers now in use in Eastern Carolina recently, and we came up with 40 or more. They start in the Northeast and dot the coastline to the South Carolina border. Boats are available in ever-increasing numbers. Rivers and creeks are within reach of everybody — to say nothing of the so-called farm ponds, which multiply faster than English sparrows.

Fishing is popular because it is so easy. A boy with a can of worms can trip off to the water and be fishing before his mother can cook a pan of hot biscuits. A man can go to the nearest river with worms, shrimp, fat meat, corn-meal dough balls—or plugs, and catch all the fish he wants. A man or a child can fish alone or fishermen can go in parties. This is the only sport a person can play alone—unless it is solitaire, and that is a poor sport!

PIERS — We have fished on nearly all the piers in North Carolina; and there are many good ones. Jennette's at Nags Head used to let members of the State College Fishing School use the pier free. Many fish can be caught in that location: Mullet, Spits, Grunts or Hogfish; Blues, Trout, Croakers, and others.

Most piers have excellent repair shops; and the shops offer bait, lunch, notions, tackle—anything one might need. There is a pier at Atlantic, but I have not used it. When I reach Atlantic, I take the boat over to Ocracoke, where really big fishing is available.

Morehead City is almost in a class by itself. We have used all the piers in that area, and each has its special points of value.

Since Surf City is nearer to Goldsboro and traffic is light, I do most of my saltwater fishing in that area. Barnacle Bill's Pier is my first choice. The pier offers excellent tackle and bait service, and the meals served this season are very good. But this is by no means the only good pier in that community. I have used them all, and they, likewise, are good. Let me add that boats are available for outside fishing, and several good ramps are open to the public free for private boats. Thomas Tackle Shop and Blue Marlin Cafe do land office business, as they offer first-class service to all fishermen.

NC's Own Department Should Be Competent

North Carolina's State Ports Authority has come in for criticism, not wholly unjustified, for contracting a New York management consultant firm to screen applicants for the $18,000-a-year job of director of state ports.

The question raised is whether some of the screening work could not have been done by the state personnel office even if a professional management firm were consulted about applicants before the final selection were made.

Obviously the personnel department is not as familiar with seeking out persons qualified for the job as ports director as it is with seeking out competent secretaries, draftsmen, or engineers. At the same time it seems to us that this department could have been of valuable service to the Ports Authority in initiating a search for a new ports director.

It is not unlikely that the Ports Authority could have saved the state some money if it had sought some preliminary work from the personnel office, even if it elected to hire a management firm to screen some of the more promising applicants.

A business the size of North Carolina, with thousands of employes and expenditures of millions of dollars a month, should have a personnel department competent to handle most of the needs of its various agencies. And as is the case with most other businesses, the various departments should not jump out and hire outside personnel consultants until they first take advantage of the facilities already available within the organization.

A Pep Talk For Foreign Service

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you can't stand the heat, President Kennedy said, you'd better get out of the kitchen. He said he himself thinks the kitchen is the best place to be.

He was giving a pep talk to the State Department's career men, the Foreign Service officers. There are about 3,700 of them in various department and diplomatic jobs ranging all the way up to that of ambassador.

Kennedy, who likes the word sophisticated and used it frequently, assured them they're doing a sophisticated job and urged them to bear up under the emotional attacks made of them from time to time.

This kind of assurance would have been more helpful a few years ago than now when they're not under attack.

In the early 1950s Sen. Joseph McCarthy, in his Red hunt, scared the striped pants off the diplomats and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles let McCarthy get away with it.

That got so bad that five older diplomats, protesting in a letter to the New York Times, said Foreign Service officers who made honest and conscientious reports might find their integrity and loyalty challenged.

Fear — where congressional critics are concerned — would still seem to be a dominant force in the State Department which last year published a 430-page history of the diplomatic service and its troubles.

It never mentioned its troubles with McCarthy.

But times have changed and Kennedy — unlike Dulles who acted like a one-man State Department — appealed to the career men to offer new ideas and recommendations in foreign policy.

Kennedy talked to them last May. But it wasn't until this week that the White House made his remarks public.

Historians, at least, seem much happier with our present diplomatic representatives overseas than with those who went abroad in the 19th Century, particularly the early part of it.

Norman A. Graebner, who in 1961 edited a collection of studies on secretaries of state in a book called "An Uncertain Tradition," looked back mournfully at the early diplomats and said:

"Many lacked knowledge; some lacked dignity, although few were as tactless as John Randolph who allegedly commented when presented to the czar in 1830: 'Howaya, emperor: How's the madam?'"

This was the same nimble-tongued Randolph who was credited with saying of Edward Livingston, one of President Jackson's secretaries of state: "He's a man of splendid abilities but utterly corrupt. He shines and stinks like a rotten mackerel by moonlight."

About the best job most career officers can hope for is that of ambassador somewhere. Kennedy told them they're doing pretty well in the field but that a president still has to pick the best man for a given spot.

That was why, he explained, he had to go out into private life to find ambassadors for some countries. In some places money counts, too, if only because Congress doesn't vote enough expense money for ambassadors for entertaining.

But Kennedy, like Presidents Truman and Eisenhower, has given between 60 and 70 percent of the ambassadors jobs to State Department career men.

In some key capitals, like Moscow, Bonn and Rome, Kennedy picked career men. In others, like London, Paris and New Delhi, he chose outsiders for special reasons.

Almost all the top jobs in the State Department are filled by men — like Secretary Deane Rusk — whom Kennedy brought in from outside. The highest ranking career man is Hugh Alexis Johnson, deputy undersecretary of state for political affairs.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SECRET OF CONTENTMENT
One of the best ways to become contented is by cutting down our desires until they are within the possibility of satisfaction.

Usually we seek the other means. The more we have the more we want. If we make $100 a week we feel we would be perfectly happy if we could make $200. But given $200 we ask for $500. The house we looked upon with envy five years ago is now utterly out of our consideration. We want that big dwelling in the fashionable section. Five years ago we wanted to be chief clerk of the department. Today we aim to be vice president. Three years from now we shall be wondering when the old president is going to resign or die.

This feverish reaching out for what we do not have produces tension, high blood pressure, and the most florid type of unhappiness, for no thing makes us more unhappy than to want not only what we do have but what there is not much indication that we ever will have. The truly contented people are not in a rut. Contentment and realism go together. We should always press for something better, but to make the achievement of this aim the chief source of our happiness is a great mistake.

Home, children, spouse, friends, reputation, good health — these are the sources of real happiness and contentment. Keep pressing forward, but don't let the bottom drop out of life if your highest dreams are not fulfilled.

Same Lingo, Differently

MEXICO CITY — The barbers union and I are still at it after nearly twenty four years. (Down here, that is.) And the problem seems to be that the Barber and I speak the same language in a different way.

I go into a restaurant and order a thick sirloin, medium-rare. It comes out exactly right. In bars, I give the chief pharmacist general instructions on a rare chemical mixture and he never misses.

But the barbershops must have a bad echo for my voice. When I order a hair cut, there is no telling what will happen. One tells my Spanish comes out like Greek and the gentleman with the scissors decides to experiment.

"A little off the top" has a reverse result. Clippers are run up the sides like a lawn mower and the hair dresser dusts the dandruff off the top with a perfume brush.

And I emerge looking like a coconut palm.

All around me, gentlemen get neat cuts and walk happily in the sunlight after a satisfied glance at the mirror.

Also, there is a certain tonorial artist who makes remarks about a thin spot on my scalp (merely the way the light shines through) and tries to sell me a sure-shot hair restorer. It is a secret formula passed along to him by his uncle who was a herb engineer. Absolutely 24-carat and carries a guarantee.

And this barber is equipped with about the same amount of scalp pasture as a light bulb. Why is it the skin heads always have the only stuff that will grow hair on a cannon ball? And never use it themselves.

It is like the Cadillac salesman who rides a horse.

All of which prompted me to test the world's most unique hair emporiums... the sidewalk clip shops which operate here on weekends.

You find these mostly around the other-side-of-the-track parts of town. The weekend trimmers generally are bus drivers, waiters or carpenters with a complex like electric train addicts. Comes Sunday morning and they set up a cane chair on a soap box in front of the family pad.

For a matter of 8 U. S. cents, you get a haircut of sorts facing the wall. For 12 cents, you face the street.

Now the reason for this price difference is that viewing the street you can watch the passing scenery. And drop gallant remarks to ladies who happen along.

But the 8 cent job is strictly business. The sidewalk barber considers that a man willing to face the wall is probably a square who deserves nothing better than a view of a beer ad. And he is quickly dispatched for clients with better taste.

The only occasion on which your adventurous correspondent checked the weekend choppers ended in near disaster. In the midst of the operation, a collection of large canines came galloping along the sidewalk in pursuit of a fleeing lady pooch. Everybody's mind on romance. For they spilled the barber and rolled me, the chair and the soap box half a block.

Consequently, I developed the two-barber system. This being the only manner in which I can synchronize with the local union.

"A very light trim on top, please, and under no conditions touch the sides," I tell number one.

He immediately takes the shears to the sides and leaves the top intact. Following this, I go down the street to another parlor.

"As you may notice," I tell number two, "a gentleman with a meat cleaver has been working on my toupee. Please smooth off the sides and leave the top as is."

Whereupon he slices the top down to the correct size and ignores the sides.

An expensive but very satisfactory way of making myself understood. It is not as pleasant as the project with the view of the street. But at least I am not carried away by a herd of romantic hounds.

Other Editors Saying... Area Airport Practical

(Washington Daily News)

Start at Greenville and draw a circle from there to Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro, Kinston and back to Greenville, and the center of that circle will hardly be more than 25 miles from any of the towns listed above.

An airport 25 miles from a town or city is very practical in today's world. In the largest cities commercial airports are sometimes as much as 50 miles from the heart of the city.

Today in Eastern North Carolina not one of the towns listed above can support an airport adequately alone. But together a regional airport ought to prove a real asset to all of them and even to territories outside that circle.

Efforts are underway now to realize such an airport within the circle listed above. Community jealousies are difficult obstacles to overcome sometimes. And all the communities above would like to think in terms that "my town" is best equipped for such an airport.

But most of them realize now that it is much better to build a regional airport than it is to try to support an airport in any one town or community.

The circle listed above would have its center somewhere between Fountain and Walsenburg as we look at the map of Eastern North Carolina.

Rocky Mount wants the airport badly. It is the largest city in the circle. But alone it is not large enough to support a complete commercial airport. But it is fighting for such an airport, and when the final decision is made, the choice now apparently is between building a Rocky Mount airport or building a regional airport which could well serve all the communities listed above as well as scores of other communities not listed.

If we are to be objective in regard to future airport plans, it seems only wise and practical to forget community pride in this instance and to band together one for all and all for one.

If a regional airport can be built in the middle of that imaginary circle listed above, it would also prove of great value to the Pamlico area. The people of Beaufort, Hyde, Martin, Washington, and Tyrrell counties would use the regional facility much more readily than they would use the facility located in the Rocky Mount area.

It is to our benefit that we work for and support the regional airport located somewhere in the center of that circle. Such a regional airport would belong as much to one community participating in the plan as it would to any other community.

To use the regional airport makes good practical common sense. We are most pleased that Governor Sanford has added his voice in support of a regional airport. But the fight has just begun, and it promises to be a rugged affair before the matter is finally settled.

We are thinking not only in terms of what will help our own area now but also in terms of what will help Eastern North Carolina most. It is our firm opinion that a regional airport will help all of Eastern North Carolina more than an airport in any one community can possibly do.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends:

Congressional speed-up: Word is spreading back to the grass roots that the present Congress is worse than the "Do-Nothing" Congress—blasted by President Truman.

This can be poison for many of the Representatives and the fewer Senators who face the voters this November. Furthermore, failure to act on taxes, civil rights, medical care for the aged and a few other key bills is antagonizing voters. Polls will show that people are in a "let's have an upset!" mood.

So expect a great speed-up in activity in both houses in a separate effort for face-saving, vote-getting legislation. This will be accelerated by the fact that many Congressmen are desperately eager to get back home and campaign.

Caution: In rushed legislation, amendments that have far-reaching effects in other fields often get tacked on. Urge your Washington representative or trade association to carefully scan all legislation and, if ripper amendments are slipped in, to scream bloody murder.

GM ABSORPTION SEEN

No GM jam: The offering of 2,350,000 General Motors shares worth around $140 million is not expected to roll the market. The sale, in accordance with court orders requiring Du Pont to divest itself of its 23 per cent interest in General Motors, will go smoothly. The impact of the offering has already been discounted on the market and buyers are ready to absorb the stock.

New coffee: A new instant coffee is being tested by the Kona Coffee Association of Hawaii in island markets. If its distinctive flavor proves popular, Kona instant coffee will appear in mainland markets.

Lower saving rates: Other banks are eyeing results of U. S. Hunterdon County (N.J.) National Bank's action in cutting its savings rate back to 3 per cent this week. If the bank doesn't lose savings to the stock market — which isn't likely at current stock prices — expect other banks to trim dividends.

MORE FROM HITHER TO YOU

Higher freight rates: The increase of 10 1/2 cents an hour won by non-operating railroad employees seem certain to force an increase in freight rates, even if it means losing more business to truckers. Best guess at the moment: a 1.8 per cent rate hike.

More bottled-in-U.S. scotch: J. W. Dant's action in arranging to import blended scotch for bottling in this country is certain to be copied by other importers. Scotch in bulk is taxed less than bottled scotch. Shipping costs, breakage and pilferage are less. Few importers are willing to let Dant have these advantages to itself.

More government spending: A sharp rise in government spending, credited here weeks

Bigotry, Boycott, Fear?

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Fred Schwarz, on the stationery of the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade, writes: "We had anticipated problems and difficulties in New York City, but we did not really understand the magnitude of the obstacles that would confront us. These had to be experienced to be believed. New York was a city of bigotry, boycott and fear. In this city it was considered in a way that Fred Schwarz, what is the compulsion to follow his leadership or to attend his meetings? Those who want to go are free to go; those who want to stay away are free to stay away. Is this bigotry?"

On the night of his Madison Square Garden meeting, only 8,000 attended, which is a small audience. Some left during the speeches because they found them dull and uninspired; others stayed because they found them interesting and exciting.

The only new face among the speakers was Pat Boone, whose ancestor was Daniel Boone. Pat Boone's greatest contribution to the cause of anti-Communism was his promise to blow up his four daughters if the Communists captured them. Of course, no man would really kill his own daughters, not even a descendant of the doughty Daniel Boone. We must therefore accept his statement as an hyperbole intended to shock.

When someone on the platform spoke about Lenin meeting Hitler, a friend telephoned me to inquire whether that was possible. I said that he must have heard wrong. He swore that that was what a speaker said. I still believed that it must have been a slip of the tongue. The dates are wrong. No! Virginia, I never met George Washington. He was no longer around when I was born!

The time for this kind of talk has long since passed. The existence of Marxism in this world is a question of war. Soviet Russia is the Marxist enemy and unless we can fight and destroy Soviet Russia, it will fight and destroy us. As a matter of fact, this battle has been continuous since 1948. Soviet Russia's major recent victory was the conquest of Cuba, because that gave Russia a base 90 miles from the coast of the United States.

While these Schwarzites were busy themselves with the same speeches we all made in the 1930's, the Russian spy, Soblen, escaped from this country. Undoubtedly, this can ultimately lead to another exposure of Soviet espionage, for it is absolutely clear that Soblen could not have made such a smooth escape without assistance. The New York officials of the Federal government ought to be held responsible for Soblen's escape. He was free in $100,000 bail but jumped it. How does it happen that a spy is freed in so little bail? What civil liberties question was involved to justify putting up the bail on the ground of civil liberties?

I make this point because public officials, like private orators, have not yet adjusted their minds to the warlike character of the present phase of our relations with Soviet Russia. Even Communists must be regarded as a hateful agent of Soviet Russia, but there are more spies than there are Communists. The espionage network in this country ought to be brought to the surface and spies should be imprisoned.

This has nothing to do with fear. It has much to do with common sense. It has nothing to do with boycott, although I am sure that boycott is a most wholesome response to public activities. For instance, I boycott Polish hams. We, of the United States, produce all the hams we require. I have no intention of buying the goods of anybody whom I dislike. There are other goods to buy.

It has now become established by law that to call a man a Communist, unless he admits (Continued on page six) ago, is already beginning. Bidders on government work and negotiators on contracts can get faster action if they press now because the officials they are dealing with have the word to speed up contracts as a tonic for business conditions.

OLD PROMOTER SUGGESTS WAY TO USE UP EGGS

"I see that egg throwing has returned to British politics," the Old Promoter remarked on his visit today. "I hope Agriculture Secretary Freeman latches on to the idea. It could remove the American egg surplus, come November."

"It might serve as a test of the Democratic party. All Democratic candidates could show their party loyalty by standing up and facing eggs to show their willingness to aid the poultry industry. And of course, the Democratic candidates for Senator would stand up to goose eggs." "Fair enough," I said, "if the Republicans will stand up to eggs in storage since the Eisenhower Administration."

Lions, Jaycees Both Win; Security, Elks Triumph

NORTH STATE
In yesterday's North State Little League action, the Jaycees downed Coca Cola 3-0 while the Lions dropped the Optimist by a score of 8-3.

Coca Cola led off the first frame by putting their first two batters on base and then were unable to score. Randall Williams singled to start the inning off for Coca Cola and was followed by an infield hit by Kevin Price. However, Jaycees pitcher Randy Briley clamped down as he got Coca Cola's big hitters out easily to retire the side.

In the bottom of the first, Briley led the frame off as he singled to centerfield. With two outs, Steve Shackelford drew a walk to put Jaycee runners on first and second. Both runners advanced a base on a passed ball and later came into score on an error.

Coca Cola returned in the top of the second to once again lead the bases. However, the Jaycees tightened their defense and refused to allow Coca Cola runners to cross the plate.

The Jaycees added their last run of the afternoon in the bottom of the fifth. With two outs, pinchhitter Steve Allen walked and hen stole second base on the next pitch. The throw to second went into centerfield and this enabled Allen to advance to third. As Allen came into third, another wild throw gave him the opportunity to score.

In the second contest, the Optimist grabbed a 1-0 first-inning lead but were unable to maintain the advantage. Jerry Jones led the frame off for the Optimist as he walked to bring Bib Roberts to the plate. Roberts followed with an infield grounder which advanced Jones to second as he reached first safely. Jones came into score later in the inning on a wild pitch which gave the Optimist a 1-0 lead.

In the top of the second, the Lions roared back by collecting three runs on two hits, Dennis Harrington and John Peel led the frame off as they both singled. Jimmy Dixon followed with a walk to load the bases. All three boys crossed the plate as each was forced to score on walks given up to the Lions. The Lions returned in the fourth to tally four runs on two hits. Al Gurganus, Charles Register, Phillip Dorroll, and Glenn Johnston provided the scores for the Lions.

The Optimist fought back in the bottom of the fourth as they rallied to collect two runs on no hits. Tony Whitehurst walked to start the inning for the Optimist. Jim Ward followed by Optomist rgrf Pk-oN reaching first safely on a misplay by the Lions infield. With one out, Ken Bradbury connected with an infield grounder and once again all runners were safe. With the bases loaded, Billy Clark drove the ball at the shortstop, Harrington, shortstop for the Lions, bobbled the ball long enough to enable Whitehurst to cross the plate. Ward was later brought into score on a walked batter.

However, the Lions came on in the fifth to add another run to their total and the Optimist were unable to overcome this deficit.

TARHEEL
Security Life and the Elks were victors yesterday in Tarheel Little League games. Security Life defeated Pepsi Cola 7-1 while the Elks downed the Moose 9-1.

The winning pitcher for Security Life was Bobby Puryear. He struck out ten, walked four, and allowed one run on three hits. Losing pitcher, Jack Gordon, struck out seven, walked five, and gave up seven runs on six hits.

Security Life opened up the scoring in the bottom of the second inning as they picked up one run on no hits. Lee Galt received a base on balls and then came in to score on successive passed balls.

In the top of the third, Pepsi rallied to tie the score 1-1. Jack Gordon led the frame off with a single and later came in to score on force play.

However, Security Life came back to pick up three runs in each half of the third and fourth frames. Pepsi was unable to keep pace with the winners as Security Life went on to a 7-1 victory.

In the second contest, neither team was able to produce a score until the fourth frame.

The Elks showed plenty of power in the fourth, however as they collected eight runs on three hits. Thirteen batters were sent to the plate by the Elks before the Moose could settle down and retire the side.

In the bottom of the fourth, the Moose managed to push across one run on two hits. This was not enough however as the Elks maintained their lead and went on to victory.

Louis Gaylord was the winning pitcher for the Elks. He struck out seven, walked two, and gave up one run on three hits.

Rodriguez Ahead In Flint Open
By CHARLES C. CAIN
FLINT, Mich. (AP)—When Juan Antonio Rodriguez showed up at the Flint Open in 1959 to play in his first PGA tournament, officials mistook him for a caddy and suggested he report to the caddy shop.

There's no such mistake today, as Rodriguez "Chi Chi" to friends and golf foes alike; is the darling of the fans at Warwick Hills Country Club. Rodriguez says Chi Chi means "leetele one."

The 26-year-old, 116-pound Puerto Rican turned in a sparkling 69 Friday, three under par to stay just one stroke off the lead as the tournament moved into its final two days.

Tony Lema, of Oakland, Calif., who was bracketed at 140 with Pete Cooper is still looking for his first win in a PGA tournament. He has been a pro since 1956.

Rodriguez was tied at 141 with Bill Collins of Miami, whose last win was the 1960 Hot Springs Open.

Rodriguez was the drawing card Friday as scores of fans, most of them teen-agers, followed his every move.

The 97 pros and 10 amateurs out of a starting field of 158 teed off in the third round today.

Planters And State Bank Teams Both Win

In doubleheader action in the Teen-er League Friday night Planters Bank defeated College View 9-1 and State Bank gained a 6-4 victory over Pepsi Cola.

The two games were the last regularly scheduled Teen-er League games of the season. However, there are several makeup games yet to be played.

In the first game Planters Bank opened up the scoring over College View in the top of the second when Dick Wade connected for a single and scored on a fielder's choice after stealing third.

In the top of the third the Bankers added another run to their tally when Bobby Jackson singled and scored on a double by Bert Bennett.

Neither team was able to score again until the top of the sixth when the Pepsi pitcher walked four straight batters which accounted for four additional runs for the Bankers giving them a 6-0 lead.

The only run for Pepsi came in the bottom of the sixth when Bobby Tripp walked and scored on a single by Jimmy Mullins.

In the top of the seventh Planters Bank added three more runs to their total for the victory.

The winning pitcher was Mike Smith who allowed four hits, struck out 11 and walked eight. The pitching staff for the losers allowed five hits, struck out four and walked 13.

In the second game State Bank took the lead when they opened the scoring in the bottom of the third with four runs off one single, two fielder's choices and an error. Crossing the plate were Bill Brown, Donald Avery, Danny Cain and Tommy Jordan.

In the top of the fourth Pepsi Cola rallied as they tied the score when John Horne walked, Paul McLawhorn and Danny Griffin got on with errors and Harry Stokes doubled.

However, the tie was short lived as the State Bank boys came back in the bottom of the fourth with two runs off a hit batter and a walk to break the tie and win the game.

The winning pitcher was Jordan who gave up two hits, struck out seven and walked four. Credited with the loss was Horne who allowed three hits, struck out seven and walked four.

Simple Formula Is Successful
By JIM HACKLEMAN

Juan Marichal has a simple formula in his highly successful pitching campaign for the San Francisco Giants this season: Starting plus finishing equals winning.

The youthful right-hander from the Dominican Republic followed his formula Friday night, firing a 5-hitter and striking out 13 as the Giants cooled off Los Angeles 12-3.

It was Marichal's 12th victory, all complete games, and it moved San Francisco to within a half game of the National League-leading Dodgers—who had won eight in a row.

Collecting 11 hits off loser Stan Williams and reliever Ed Roebuck, and capitalizing on an out-break of Dodger misplays, the Giants scored in clusters. They netted four runs in the third inning, five in the fifth and three in the sixth. Meanwhile, Marichal set the Dodgers down without a hit after a homer by Frank Howard in the fourth gave them their third run.

Elsewhere in the National League there were other cases of streaks ending. Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 6-2, snapping a string of eight losses for the Phillies and seven victories for the Pirates.

Hal Woodeshick pitched a 2-0 shut-out over Cincinnati for the Houston Colts, who had lost five straight. And New York's lowly Mets, whose latest run of defeats had reached three, battered St. Louis 10-3. In the NL's other game, Milwaukee overcame Chicago 5-3 on Eddie Mathews' 2-run homer in the 10th inning.

In the American League, Cleveland took over sole possession of first place, beating Chicago 5-3 as Boston was walloping Los Angeles 12-7; Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle rapped two home runs apiece in leading New York over Minnesota 7-5; Detroit edged Baltimore 5-4 on Vic Wertz' pinch homer in the ninth inning; and Kansas City knocked off Washington 12-9 with a 7-run rally in the eighth.

After spotting the Dodgers a 2-0 lead, the Giants assumed command in the third with their four

By KEN ALTYA

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—If the qualifying round is any indication of what to expect in match play, the 48th Carolina Golf Association amateur golf tournament, which stages its first and second rounds today at the Florence Country Club, should be a dilly.

While defending champion Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., expects to play a practice round Friday and shot a par 71 over the 6,400-yard course, his 132 challenges in the field required more than 10 hours to complete the day's play.

Two sudden-death playoffs had to be run off before today's 32-match first-round could be arranged.

R. F. Taylor of Greensboro, N.C., 20 years old and bound for Guilford College, won the medal in a one-hole, sudden-death playoff off with home- pride Billy Womack. The two had tied with 3-under-par 68 as both played superbly from tee to green, but were a bit below this standard on the carpets.

Taylor, a quarter-finalist in last year's tournament, needed 31 putts to 34 for Womack, a University of Georgia senior.

Billy, who had missed five putts from 4 to 10 feet on the back nine, lost in the same manner in the overtime duel. He took three putts on the extra hole, missing from three feet to lose to Taylor's par four.

A Wake Forest College junior, Ken Folkes of Concord, N.C., finished third with 69, a double bogey six on the second hole costing him the medal.

Twelve men who shot 79 played off for the last nine places in the championship flight.

North Carolina claimed 37 of the 64 positions in the championship first round. Womack opened today's play against Tommy Arnold of Asheville, N.C., in a second-quarter match. Patton was paired with Stuart Kennedy of Thomasville, N.C., in the initial match of the first quarter.

Taylor headed the third quarter against Carter Terrell of Charlotte, N.C., and Folkes met George Williams of Clinton, N.C., in the opening fourth-quarter match.

Along with Patton and Womack in the upper half of the draw were a former champion, Forrest Ervin of Kinston, N.C., Bill Harvey of Greensboro, Charles Smith of Gastonia, Harry Welch of Salisbury, N.C., and Lester Kelly of Greensboro.

Taylor headed the Taylor and Folkes were joined by such threats as former winners Dave Smith of Gastonia and Dillard Traynham of Greenville, S.C., Dale Morey of Morganton, N.C., Bob Galloway of Winston-Salem, and little Sam Marsh of Greenville, S.C., who three-putted six times Friday while shooting 77, a dozen shots over his Thursday practice round.

The Capers Cup, four-man team competition, resulted in a tie at 302 between two North Carolina teams, the Country Club of Salisbury and the Gaston Country Club. They were one-shot ahead of the Florence and Camden Country Club teams. The Salisbury team had a best-ball 64 score to win the Pinehurst Trophy by one-stroke over Gaston and Sedgfield Country Club of Greensboro.

Kinston Leads Carolina Loop
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kinston is riding atop the Carolina League today by the narrow margin of two percentage points although the Eagles are a half game behind Durham in the won and lost column.

Kinston belted Durham 5-1 Friday night at Durham in the opener of their series. Lefty Frank Bork gave up five hits in pitching his 12th victory of the year. The game was reeled off in one hour and 35 minutes.

Shortstop Roberto Pena banded to home runs and Ed Napoleon two home runs and Ed Napoleon ston's 10-hit attack.

Wilson edged Burlington 2-1 at hit a solo homer to lead Kinston. Tom Videtich singled in Jesus Torres with the winning run in the sixth.

Rocky Mount took a 5-4 decision from Greensboro at Greensboro in a battle between the league's two bottom teams. A sacrifice fly by Ron Fieender scored Bob Martin with the winning run in the ninth.

Winston-Salem won over Raleigh 6-2 at Winston-Salem behind the seven-hit pitching of Johnny Boyle, who cracked out a double and a single to drive in two runs.

Tonight's games: Raleigh at Winston-Salem; Rocky Mount at Greensboro; Burlington at Wilson; Kinston at Durham.

How to help keep freedom ringing from every mountainside

High up on a mountainside in South Dakota, there's a famous tribute to four American patriots who did much to mold the shape of freedom.

But even if there were no Mt. Rushmore, we'd remember men like Washington, Jefferson, Roosevelt, and Lincoln. For the landscape of freedom is shaped by what they did, not by the mountainside that pays tribute.

Even today, freedom is shaped by the work of individuals—men and women, like you. Of course, only a few Americans will ever have their a major league record with homers in four consecutive at-bats, before Maris wound it up with his 21st, in the fifth inning.

The homers were the eighth and ninth in 11 games for Maris and his fifth in five games, while Mantle, still slowed by leg injuries, has hit eight in nine games and seven in the last five. The Yankees now have a team total of 100.

A pinch-hit homer by Vic Wertz in the bottom of the ninth gave Detroit a 5-4 decision over Baltimore. Kansas City used a 7-run eighth inning outburst to whip Washington 12-9 in other AL games.

In the National League, San Francisco moved within a half-game of first-place Los Angeles by walloping the Dodgers 12-3. Philadelphia knocked off third-place Pittsburgh 6-2, the New York Mets drubbed St. Louis 10-3, Houston blanked Cincinnati 2-0, and Milwaukee edged the Chicago Cubs 5-3 in 10 innings.

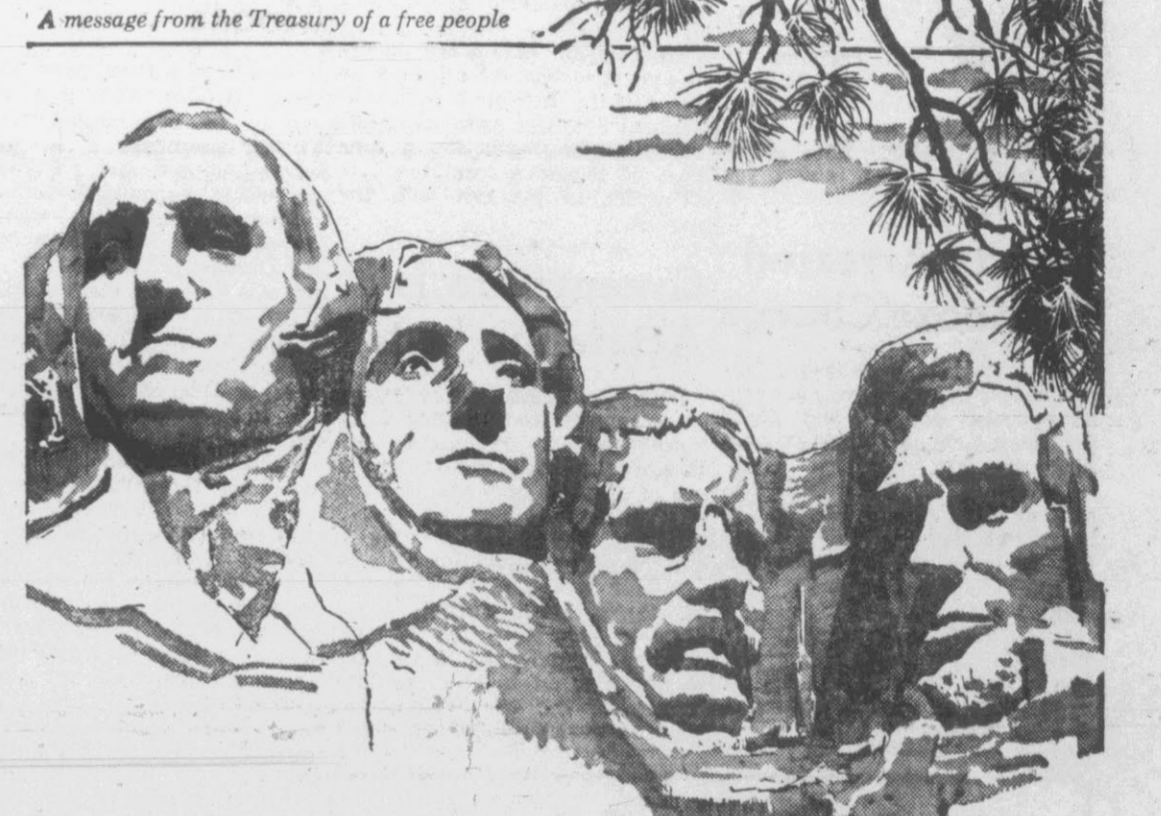

Maris drove in four runs with his homers and Mantle accounted for two, but Ralph Terry (11-7) needed Luis Arroyo's no-hit relief for the final 2-1 innings to post the victory. Terry left after a pinch-hit homer by George Banks in the seventh.

Gomez (7-1), formerly with the Phillies and Giants, was picked up by the Indians from Jackson-ville of the International League. He scattered 11 hits before the White Sox caught up with him in the ninth and Gary Bell came on to get the final two outs. Early Wynn (4-6) was the loser.

No-hit pitchers Bo Belinsky of the Angels and Earl Wilson of the Red Sox started. Belinsky (7-4) left after walking four men as Boston scored five runs in the first inning and Wilson departed in the fourth as Los Angeles came up with five. Pete Runnels drove in four Red Sox runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly while Jim Paoliaroni knocked in three with a homer and two singles. Arnold Earley (3-1) won hit served by Orioles' knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm (3-6) for the game-winner after Wilhelm had checked the Tigers on two hits since taking over for Robin Roberts in the fifth. Wilhelm singled and scored the tying run on Jackie Brandt's single in the seventh.

Home runs by Bob Johnson, Chuck Hinton, Jim King and Bob Schmidt powered the Senators to a 9-5 upset over the A's but 7-run uprising wiped it out. Jerry Lumpe's 3-run double—his fourth hit—put the A's in front, then Nrom Siebern stroked his fourth hit to drive in the final run. Gordon Jones (3-1) won it while Benjie Daniels (1-10), who hasn't won since the Presidential Opener, took the loss.

Critical Of Hotel Segregation

By TOM CHASE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, an American Negro who won the Nobel Peace Prize, described the refusal of a hotel to reserve a room for him as an affront to his race in a speech shortly after he received the key to the city.

"I do not miss the hotel," said Bunche, who is undersecretary for special political affairs of the United Nations. "But I resent the rejection as an affront to my group, just as I experience deep insult whenever I see the hateful signs 'colored' and 'white'."

"I grant to anyone the right to find me unacceptable as a person, as an individual; but never to indict my group and slur my ancestry as the reason for rejection," he told the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Friday night.

Bunche said he wrote the Hotel Dinkler Plaza for a reservation a month ago and was advised that additional reservations were not being accepted for July 5-6 "with any hope of fulfilling them."

George Fowler, the hotel manager, said "the reservation was declined along with several others. We were just booked up." In reply to a question, Fowler said the hotel never had Negroes as overnight guests.

The Dinkler Plaza was one of 10 hotels and 6 restaurants picked by about 400 of the 1,500 convention delegates during the week. The demonstrations protested segregation at some of the establishments.

Bunche said he has fewer racial experiences now than before. "I know why and I do not mind read this, nor am I deceived by it," he said.

"In any case, this is beside the point I seek to make. The point is that no individual Negro can be free from degradation of racial discrimination until every Negro is free of it."

He added: "Until all racial discrimination is ended here, progress can never be fast enough and every deprived underprivileged Negro will be immensely impatient or he isn't really worthy of the rights to which he is entitled and wishes to exercise."

Bunche referred to an article in Time Magazine quoting Malcolm X, a leader of the Black Muslim extremist organization, as rejoicing in the crash of an Air France jet plane at Paris that cost the lives of 105 Atlantans.

The statement attributed to the Black Muslim leader "could only come from a depraved mind," he said.

"We do not have to become racists ourselves to win our struggle," he said.

He commented: "In my judgment, black bigots are no better than the white breed; I both scorn and pity white bigots; I despise those who are black. The so-called Black Muslims, who are not all Muslims and by no means are all black, practice an 'inverted racism' which is cynical and irresponsible in its exploitation of the Negro's unhappy status."

Bunche, who won his Nobel Prize as mediator in the 1948-49 Palestine conflict, devoted perhaps one-third of the address to the international scene. He said that being able to "talk for awhile about something other than the automatic subjects of Negro problems and progress... is indeed evidence of some measure of emancipation."

City Court Files Annual Record

The annual report of the Municipal Recorder's Court offers something of a thermometer to the extra-legal activities of the citizens of Pitt County during the past year.

The temperature rose to a high in the month of September with a total of 345 cases appearing before the court. From September's peak the number of cases coming before the court took a gradual decline, hitting 313 in October, dropping to 248 in November, and reaching a four-month low in December with a total of 184 cases reaching the court.

The December decline and the continued low in January may be due to the just-before-Christmas spirit and the January 1st resolutions which usually effects these two months.

Whatever happens to people in the early spring affected the court docket in a favorable manner. After winter dips and rises in the number of cases between 186 and 222, warm May weather brought a chill to the flow of cases. The 175 cases handled in May compares favorably with the 222 cases reviewed during the previous month.

While the spring and summer months showed a decline in the total number of cases handled, there were more cases sent to the Superior Court and more cases called and failed to appear than in any month except October.

Why eight people forfeited bond in the month of June and no one forfeited bond during the remaining 11 months is a puzzling question.

The month of July, 1961, showed a certain independence from the trend of the other summer months. The court docket listed 193 cases for July, a sharp rise from the 118 total of June.

Bombing Range To Get Special Study

RALEIGH (AP)—What effect, if any, would an Air Force practice bombing range in North Carolina's coastal area have on wildlife?

This question is going to be studied by a special committee of the state Wildlife Resources Commission, it was decided Friday.

From the study, the committee will recommend whether a bombing range should be located in coastal region where there is wildlife.

The commission was told the Air Force has found two coastal sites it prefers over the Lake Mattamuskeet area for a bombing range, but there may not be enough land available at the sites to meet the requirements for the range.

Air Force Lt. Joe Moore said one of the sites is just east of Plymouth and contains 17,000 acres. J. D. Parker, the owner, is willing to lease it to the Air Force. Moore said, however, he noted that the Air Force would have to lease another 13,000 acres east of the Parker land for the site to be suitable.

The other site is southeast of Lake Phelps and covers portions of Tyrrell, Washington and Hyde counties. Moore said some 20,000 acres of the site is owned by Lake Phelps Farms Inc., which is willing to lease it to the Air Force. He added, however, that for it to be suitable, the Air Force would have to lease another 10,000 acres of the property in the area from West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.

William J. Crumpacker of Mantoloking, a representative of the paper company, said following the session that his firm will not lease the land to the Air Force "if we can help it."

Legal Wrangle Delays Return

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP)—A complex legal wrangle loomed today over runaway spy Robert Soblen's last-chance gamble to cheat American justice.

Soblen himself lay in the hospital behind the grim gray walls of London's Brixton Jail—protected, for the moment, by one of the oldest laws of England.

A writ of habeas corpus granted by a high court judge Friday kept the 62-year-old fugitive safe for at least another 10 days.

The writ blocked his immediate return to the United States—and a life jail sentence for spying for the Soviet Union.

Ga.-Fla. Belt Opens July 26

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 28 markets in the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco belt will open on Thursday, July 26. The belt is the first of the nation's billion-dollar flue-cured empire to begin sales. Prices, demand, quality and volume are closely watched by growers and handlers in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia for an indication of what they may expect at their later sales.

Tobacco advisory committees recommended the July 26 opening date and agriculture commissioners Phil Campbell of Georgia and Doyle Conner of Florida promptly concurred.

The Georgia advisory committee acted on the basis of surveys showing a preponderance of growers in the state's 40 tobacco counties favored the 26th, although a few wanted the opening a week earlier or a week later.

The 1961 selling season, which saw a new record high belt-wide price average of $59.22 a hundred pounds, began on Thursday, July 27. Selling continued from three to slightly more than four weeks at the various auction centers.

The belt-wide cash return was $105 million for 176.6 million pounds. The Georgia markets sold 154 million pounds for $90.79 million, an average of $58.99 a hundred pounds. The Florida average was $60.81 a hundred.

Re-Aligned For Valuable Duty

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — James A. Fredericksen of Galveston, Tex., says he's always been a Navy career man but he just had trouble getting started — four years, to be exact.

When he reported for destroyer duty here this week, the 1958 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy wound up a 3 1/2-year battle with the Navy.

When Fredericksen took his physical to enter the academy, the examining physician noticed a slight misalignment of his spine but told him it wasn't a disqualifying condition. Four years later, however, another examining doctor turned him down for Navy duty.

With the aid of Rear Adm. F. B. Warner, commandant of the 8th Naval District, and Vice Adm. William R. Smedberg III, head of the Bureau of Personnel, Fredericksen finally was commissioned last December—but his long battle didn't quite end there.

Because of his long absence from the Navy, Fredericksen had to take a refresher course in the Officer Candidate School at Newport, R.I.

Fredericksen, married and the father of two children, earned $700 a month as an engineer for Union Carbide Corp. while he carried on his fight to get back in the Navy.

Now he's an ensign—at $358 per month.

U Thant To Request Special Congo Orders

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—U Thant said today he may ask soon for new orders from the U.N. Security Council to deal with the worsening situation in the Congo.

The acting secretary-general also disclosed he is planning special security measures in the breakaway province of Katanga to protect installations of the giant Union Miniere mining combine.

He said the measures have become necessary following Katanga threats to blow up Union Miniere properties—presumably in a bid to prevent their revenues from being diverted to the central government in Leopoldville.

Addressing a news conference on the windup of his three-day official visit here U Thant gave his view about the crux of the Congo crisis.

"The problem of the Congo is really the problem of Katanga."

"The problem of finances is the problem of Union Miniere."

"The Union Miniere is in a very important position to contribute to a speedy solution to the Congo problem."

Since Congolese independence two years ago Union Miniere has not paid a penny in tax or revenue to the Leopoldville government despite clearcut obligation to do so, he said.

Accordingly, he has been urging the British and Belgian governments—whose citizens largely control the big mining group—to help secure "a more just and equitable distribution of revenues in the Congo."

Thant's talks with Prime Minister Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Lord Home this week dwelt mainly on the danger-packed situation in the Congo.

Congolese army troops attacked Katanga forces Thursday in northern Katanga. There are fears in Britain that U.N. soldiers may be drawn once again into open warfare. The Burmese diplomat said U.N. forces have his authority to retaliate in self-defense against any attack.

Chief's Report Shows Total Of 363 Complaints

A total of 363 complaints were made to police in Greenville during the month of June, Chief Guy C. Langston reported this week.

According to the monthly report of activities, the department's seven vehicles traveled a total of 15,160 miles while patrolling the city and investigating the 216 cases known to police in June.

In the 30-day period, 83.3 percent of the cases known to authorities were cleared by the 180 arrests made during the month. Among the persons charged with 70 white males and 92 Negro males, with five white and 11 Negro females.

The distribution of cases included in the report shows 47 cases of drunkenness, 13 assaults, nine violations of liquor laws, and 46 traffic and motor vehicle law violations.

Improper registration led the traffic analysis with a total of 10 cases, while speeding and reckless driving accounted for six cases each. Non-observance of traffic lights and signs accounted for eight arrests.

During the month, 10 cases were recorded for other authorities while 10 arrests were logged for other law enforcement agencies.

Brewer-Burch Trial To End During Next Week

RALEIGH (AP)—The coming week is expected to bring an end to the state's evidence in the drawn-out trial of influence peddling charges in state highway sign purchases.

The trial has been in progress in Wake Superior Court since June 6. A two-week extension of the court term, to July 20, was ordered Friday by Judge Raymond Mallard.

Solicitor Lester V. Chalmers said he plans to wind up the state's case in the week ahead.

Testimony Friday dealt with checks which the state contends were drawn by Robert A. Burch on his son's bank account, into which funds from commissions on highway sign sales had been deposited.

In methodical fashion, Chalmers and special prosecutor Charles T. Hagan traced the checks to the State Employees Credit Union, to a furniture store, an appliance dealer, a savings account at a Raleigh bank, and to the mortgage company which held the loan on the Burch's home.

The elder Burch is a former highway engineer. Preparation of specifications for highway sign projects was part of his duties.

The state charges that he was influenced to favor products of two companies which paid commissions to Kidd Brewer, a Raleigh businessman. It has presented evidence that Brewer split the commissions with the younger Burch.

Burch, and the Burch father and son are among defendants. Others are: Pfaff and Kendall, and Traffic and Street Sign Co., both of Newark, N.J.; and three New Jersey men who served as executives of the companies, George Masfield, Martin J. Hamilton, and Walter Schoenfeldt.

Thrice Delayed Shot Readied

HONOLULU (AP)—The United States, plagued by delays and failures in an effort to detonate a high-altitude nuclear warhead over the Pacific, prepared again today to set off a shot that has been postponed three times.

Joint Task Force 8 officials here announced that the latest 24-hour postponement Friday night was caused by unfavorable weather.

The blast was rescheduled for between 11 tonight and 2:30 a.m. Sunday (4 a.m. and 7:30 a.m., EST Sunday).

The device, when exploded, is expected to be the highest and biggest in the current test series. It is to be lifted off by a Thor missile and fired 200 miles above tiny Johnston Island, about 750 miles southwest of here.

P. O. Announces $34,809 Contract

The contract for air conditioning and lighting at the Greenville Post Office has been awarded to Whitlock-Dunn of Portsmouth, Va., at a contract price of $34,809, it was announced today by Postmaster J. Knott Proctor.

Proctor said bids were solicited and the contract awarded by the Atlanta Regional Office of General Services Administration.

The contract specifies a time limit of 150 days from the date of notice to proceed with the project.

Moose . . .

(Sam Brooks and Bob Russ) are to be commended, as are all our members . . . without whose support and participation we would accomplish little."

Another distinction was received by a Past Governor of the Greenville Lodge, J. G. Proctor was among a class of 267 who received the Fellowship Degree of the Moose. There is but one higher honor bestowed. The Fellowship Degree is presented on the basis of outstanding personal service to the Order.

Secretary Edwin M. Baldrée noted the Greenville Lodge figured in other commendations by Supreme Officers on the convention floor: first, for meeting six quotas since the first of the year in membership enrollment; and again for paying their final pledge of $1500 on a planned field house at Mooseheart in Illinois.

The Order as a whole received a number of plaques and commendations for support given during the year to Boy Scouts, and a wide variety of organizations combating specific diseases and health problems. Mrs. Lou Gehrig, wife of the late, famous baseball player, was among those who presented tokens of appreciation for Moose help.

James A. Harris, captain of the Greenville Lodge drill team, said that despite their great disappointment in not being able to compete for the national championship "the visit to Moosehaven, alone, was well worth the effort we made to attend the convention."

"Seeing, first hand," he said, "the wonderful establishment in Florida and the loving care given senior members of the Moose, and their wives . . . really struck home. It couldn't help but make better Moose of good Moose."

The convention drew an estimated 10,000 Moose to Atlanta, of these, 4,000 re-assembled at Moosehaven . . . about 20 miles from Jacksonville, Florida, for the final program Thursday.

The events at the "City of Contentment" comprised a tour of the 65-acre site, a huge picnic dinner for all, the dedication of a 2,000-foot seawall and new fishing pier along the St. Johns River (constructed by Women of the Moose) and dedication of Jubilee Hall, a new residential building sponsored by the Legion of the Moose. Special entertainment was provided by a team of water-skiers from famed Cypress Gardens.

Next year's international convention will be held at Mooseheart, to be highlighted by dedication of a vast new field house which is expected to be completed by that time.

ECC Course At Goldsboro Base

East Carolina College, through its Extension Division, will offer July 10-August 10 Psychology 370G at the Meadow Lane School located outside Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, Goldsboro, as a special attraction of its program for the 1962 Summer Session. Dr. Ralph Brimley, Director of Extension, has announced.

The course, Mental Hygiene in School, carrying three quarter hours of credit, will be taught on Tuesday and Friday nights from 6:30-9:30.

All interested persons are requested to attend the first class meeting on July 10.

Attends Summer UNC Institute

CHAPEL HILL — John Ward Jr., mathematics and physics teachers at W. H. Robinson School in Winterville, is attending the Summer Institute in Physics for High School Teachers being held at UNC July 2-August 10.

Supported by the National Science Foundation, the institute is presenting a new program in high school physics prepared by the Physical Science Study Committee. Each participant in the institute receives a stipend of $450 plus an allowance for dependents and travel.

Forty-eight high school teachers from 12 states and several foreign countries were selected to participate out of approximately 250 applicants, according to Dr. Joseph W. Straley of the UNC Department of Physics and director of the institute.

Enrolls In UNC Health School

Home Accidents Took 14 Lives In Pitt In 1961

Pitt County recorded some 14 deaths in provisional home, farm and residential institution accidents during 1961, Pitt County Health Director Dr. John Putrell has announced.

A survey report showed that 795 such deaths occurred throughout North Carolina last year. Causes were fire and explosion, falls, mechanical suffocation, firearms, drowning, poisoning, lightning, animal and insect, lack of infant care and others.

In Pitt County, four deaths resulted from fire and explosion; three from falls; two from electrical suffocation; and one each from machinery, firearms and others.

By comparison on a state level, 222 persons died from fire and explosion; 216 from falls; 70 from mechanical suffocation; 53 from firearms; five from electrical current; 27 from machinery.

Dr. Putrell has stressed prevention of farm and home accidents through safety factors.

52 Outings For Local Firemen During Month

Greenville firemen responded to a total of 52 calls during the month of June, Fire Chief George W. Gardner has reported.

According to the department head, included in the calls were 10 telephone fire calls, 10 box alarms and 32 rescue calls.

Among the list of fire calls were seven to residences, five false alarms and four auto fire calls.

The Department's Fire Prevention Bureau inspected 163 buildings during the month, including 23 in the fire district and 139 in outlying districts.

Volunteer payroll for June amounted to $318 while for the year it totaled $2,270.75.

Fire losses for the month of April were $6,370 while for the month of May they were $14,897.59. Fire losses for the calendar year total $168,207.

Both fire and rescue men are continuing their weekly training the chief concluded.

Man Is Arrested On Booze Charge

Louis Harper, 50-year-old Negro of 1405 Clark St., was arrested by ABC officers last night for possession of non-tax-paid liquor for sale.

Officer J. M. Ward said two and a half gallons of bootleg liquor was found in a trap under the doorstep in the backyard. Harper was released under $300 bond.

Officers Ward, H. B. Lilly and Walter Taylor made the arrest, along with State ABC Officer Fred Taylor and Constable Charles Stocks.

Global Hotel Career For 'Father Alfred' Mildner

By MARTI MARTIN
Reflector Staff Writer

Around the world in 80 days sounds like a nice, fast trip. But for one man presently living in Greenville, it's just a little too fast.

Alfred Mildner, better known as "Father Alfred," has spent closer to 80 years than 80 days in his travels about the world.

Well known among the leaders of hotelism, Mildner has managed hotels all over the globe. He has traveled over 37 dominions, countries and islands and has worked in hotels in eight of those countries.

Mildner is a native of Colmel, the Upper Alsace, in France. His father was a revenue officer for the ministry of Alsace-Lorraine in France.

"I had wanted to become an engineer upon graduation from college at Strasbourg, France," said Mildner, "but father had wanted me to follow in his footsteps as an official.

"It turned out that neither of us was on the right track," smiled Mildner as he recalled just how it was that he was initiated into the hotel business.

"One of father's friends, a

Mr. Rotzinger, visited our home about this time and stated that he was looking for a young man to train for the hotel business," recounted Mildner. "Rotzinger was a hotel owner in Germany. When he saw me that night, he decided that I was the man he had been looking for and asked me if I would not be interested in learning the hotel business."

"I told my father that I didn't believe that I would be interested and that I didn't want to go. My father urged me to try the job for a week and said that if I wanted to quit then that it would be okay.

"It isn't too surprising to find that the first week of hotel experience proved interesting enough, since it changed the whole course of my life and my traveling directions," said Mildner.

Meet Famous Persons
In his work he has met such famous persons as the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Gloucester, and musicians Jascha Heifetz, Mischa Elman, Fritz Kreisler and Arthur Feidler.

His memories and experiences during these years would almost put the experiences of Gulliver and his travels to shame. The horror of a 1923 holiday in Japan would certainly be an example of this.

Mildner was living in Shanghai at the time, but decided to spend a few days in Japan to celebrate one of the national holidays.

"My saddest experience of my life," said Mildner, "was what I witnessed in Japan that September. One of the most disastrous earthquakes shook Japan with confusion, fire and death. To add to the confusion and tension, there were a number of severe aftershocks following the initial earthquake."

Mildner was at Lake Shoji at the time. Living only on rice and tea, he and a few others who had grouped together, moved around the hills at the base of Fujiyama. Roads and bridges had been destroyed and often they had to make their way through streams on foot. Four days passed before they could reach a railway station, and when they did, they found it had been destroyed by the earthquake.

"The only thing left for us to do was to move on to another station," said Mildner.

"But when we did this we found that this station had been damaged beyond use also. Finally we were able to leave by an overcrowded train for Kobe with virtually no luggage except for the clothing we had on our backs."

One of Mildner's friends from Canada, W. D. Cameron, who witnessed the same earthquake wrote in personal narrative: "There before us was Tokyo burning. Three days it was since the fires caused by the earthquake started, and yet they burned actively. Capital of a mighty empire, combination of ancient and modern—Yedo, relic of the Shogun's power and Tokyo—comparable with London or New York—in the grip of relentless fire."

In further description Cameron wrote: "Flowers of Yedo is the fanciful name given by the citizens to fire from which the city has suffered heavily from immemorial. Flowers! What imagination could possibly compare such tokens of innocence with the devouring, never satisfied monster roaring and licking up the city before our eyes!"

No one will ever erase the memory from the minds of those who witnessed it.

For Mildner there occurred during his years in the Orient, many good memories that have helped soften the few of horror that confronted him.

Mildner cites another memory of Japan when he tells of the most beautiful scene that he has ever witnessed. "Of all the places I have been and all the things I have seen the Five Lakes District about Fujiyama is the most beautiful," he said.

Jobs Require Travel
The job which launched Mildner on his way around the world was his apprenticeship at Hotel Bellevue in Triberg, the Black Forest section of Germany. His second apprenticeship, also in the same section of Germany, was at the Black Forest Hotel.

This was just the beginning. The next appointment took him to Lucerne, Switzerland, where Mildner served as superintendent of Restaurants on the passenger ships plying on the Lake of the Four Cantons. From here he went to Val Bregaglia, Switzerland, where he owned the Hotel Bregaglia.

On the move again, Mildner on leaving Switzerland, returned to France and became a secretary-bookkeeper at a resort in Normandy called the Hotel Metropole.

Looking for further experience in the hotel business and management, Mildner decided to accept an appointment at a Tuberculosis Sanatorium which would turn his route back toward Germany.

It was at the Sanatorium Hohenhof in Bad Honnef on the Rhine in Germany that he served as superintendent of the kitchen dining room, wine cellars, and provisions.

He then went to serve as assistant manager at another sanatorium, the Sanatorium Schomberg in Schomberg, Wurttemberg, Germany.

More German Experience
Mildner's hotel experience in Germany did not end with these positions. Next he became secretary to the proprietor of the famous restaurant situated at the Outer Alster, called the "Uhlenhorster Faehraus" in Hamburg.

Following this was his last German appointment in which he was assistant to the proprietor of the Four Season's Hotel, the Hotel Vier Jahreszeiten, which was situated on the Inner Alster.

Mildner's route now turns westward this time with a job as chief of the economic department of the Avenida Palace Hotel in Lisbon, Portugal. But again, he was not to linger too long. Pushing on in his knowledge of hotels, countries and their peoples, Mildner moved on to Peebles, Scotland, where he TOR HOTEL IN JAPAN . . . This immense Swiss Chalet style hotel in Kobe was one of many hotels that Mildner has managed. He spent about 25 years in Japan.

ORIENTAL ENTRANCE . . . furnishes the background in this picture of Mildner in the home of his son-in-law, John G. Clark, Jr. on Orton Drive. "Father Alfred" holds two art objects which he brought back from the orient and keeps in his room at the Clark residence. (Reflector Staff Photo)

EARTHQUAKE SHATTERS BUILDING . . . The horrible 1923 earthquake in Japan destroyed hundreds of buildings such as this railroad station which has begun crumbling and is on fire. The above Tokyo scene is one of many that Mildner and others will never forget.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

By JIM POINDEXTER
Don't tell us that there is not a tie-in between big publishing and big politicians — and we are not talking about the Luce family just now.

Pocket Books has recently announced that a paperback edition of Richard Nixon's "Six Crises" will go on sale, only in California, Aug. 1, so that it will be in the hands of voters in time for the fall gubernatorial election. The rest of the US will have to wait until '63 for the privilege of buying this work for a quarter.

We had not suspected before that Pocket Books was controlled by Democratic bigwigs.

Pet Care
The London Spectator the other day, rather gleefully, bigged at Americans for the silly care which we lavish upon our pets. It claimed that there is now on the market in this country a special canine perfume named Kennel No. 2.

It also mentions another item called "Our Puppy Baby Book," and even claims that lace pajamas especially cut for Afghan hounds can be purchased in the States for $39.50 a set — or whatever dog pajamas come in.

London Parade
But this could be merely John Bull's spite and ill humor around the time of the glorious Fourth. After all, the British invented sentimentality over pets. Once in London we saw with our own eyes an impeccably frozen brood of bowler-topped City men break into baby talk and other absurdities when a mother duck and her brood of ducklings waddled across a path in the Green Park.

Bookishness
Perhaps a reflection on our present state of morals is the report from the Brooklyn Public Library that it suffers a loss of about a half million dollars per year from thefts and mutilations of its books. And most of this vandalism is charged by library officials to "graduate students, professional people, or teachers at the college or university level." This sounds like book loving raised to an obsession.

Useful Reading
The London Daily Mail recently handled a story of the defeat of Christine Truman by Donna Floyd of the United States in the French Lawn Tennis Championship matches with the headline, "Author of Her Own Defeat." It seems that Miss Floyd stayed up all the night before she was to play Miss Truman reading the latter's book, "Tennis Today." Miss Floyd said, "I'm sure it helped."

Young Readers
A poll has been conducted in New York State in an effort to discover what authors are favorites among high school students today. According to Publisher's weekly, the "teen-ten, in order of popularity, are Poe, Hemingway, Mark Twain, Pearl Buck, Dickens, Steinbeck, Margaret Mitchell, Salinger and Jack London. Let this list serve as a challenge to young readers here too.

Angel?
The sculptor Irene Wiley claims in her book "Around the Globe in Twenty Years" that there is an altar panel in the Vatican containing an angel wearing the countenance of JFK. She should know, since she carved the panel in '39, using the now-President as a model. The way Congress is working on him, maybe it would have been better if Miss Wiley had represented him as a martyr.

Incidentally
Incidental intelligence this week would include the note that some Californians have already reacted to the Supreme Court decision about prayers in the public schools by organizing a "Keep America Under God, Committee."

Another item: a British traveler was laughing the other day because he discovered, somewhere in Pennsylvania, neighboring villages with the following names: Bird-in-Hand, Vint.

'Strong Call' Inspired College Career At Age 30

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

It was a strong call to the ministry that led D. B. Shackelford to leave his job at the age of 30 and begin college—without benefit of a high school education.

The way he felt, he couldn't be satisfied until he fulfilled the call. The most practical way to do it at his age was to skip high school and go on to college. Shackelford left high school in the eighth grade, a year after his father died. He was 14 at the time and couldn't see his way clear to help with the family living and continue his high school education. The family were tenant farmers.

He farmed for several years after leaving school, went into service and later worked as a butcher at a local grocery store. He was a store manager at the time he made his decision to work towards the Presbyterian ministry.

The decision to leave his job and his wife in the position of supporting the family, which included two sons, was a hard one. "It was the hardest decision of my life," Shackelford recalls. He felt he shouldn't do it.

But the call was stronger than his own will. He had been told he would be morally acceptable as a minister but that his educational background was insurmountable. At the time, he himself felt his goal was impossible.

But the call was strong and he had no peace of mind until he gave in and started to East Carolina College. Now a junior, Shackelford hopes to complete his undergraduate work next August and then attend Union Theological Seminary in Richmond.

Though it has been 18 years since he left high school, his military service and college records now are enabling him to receive a high school diploma from Chicod High School. In a recent letter to the Pitt County Board of Education, asking that he be granted his high school diploma, Shackelford reviewed some of the events of his life and said that possibly there was a way for him to have obtained his high school education, but at the time he didn't see how.

He pleads with young people to do everything possible to get a high school and a college education.

Born in Pitt County, Shackelford was born in Pitt County near Cox's Mill and attended Chicod School. He had completed about three months in his eighth grade year when he left school in 1944. There were five other children in his family. "We all worked at keeping the family together and farming until 1946," he says.

Just after that year, Shackelford enlisted in the Air Force. During his service career he took and passed satisfactorily the General Education Development Test, which was the equivalent of having a high school diploma.

By the time he was discharged from the Air Force, he had been an instrument flying instructor and a link trainer mechanic with an efficiency rating of excellent and superior, the highest given. He achieved the rank of sergeant and had been recommended for staff sergeant prior to his discharge.

While still in service, Shackelford married the former Christine Evans of Greenville. By the time of his discharge in 1949, the Shackelfords had a son.

They returned to Greenville and he got a job as a meat cutter at Evans Street Grocery. He stayed there until 1953, when he went to work with Bill Pollard's Supermarket, now the Food Mart, as manager. By this time, his second son had been born.

Even after he began his college studies in the summer of 1960, Shackelford continued to work 30 to 40 hours a week, until this past spring, when he felt he needed all his time for studies.

Felt Call to Ministry
He had felt the call to the ministry for some years. For a time he tried to satisfy the call by plunging into church work. He served as a Sunday School teacher, was superintendent, became a member of the Board of Deacons and also served as treasurer of Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church. His wife also entered church work. It was the first church to which the couple had belonged.

to the ministry. Shackelford says he had no peace of mind. Since he felt he was too old to go to high school and then college and the seminary, he qualified for college entrance and started towards his goal.

He is the first to admit his grades in college aren't honor roll, but they are passing. He feels his family obligations and his lack of background knowledge are the main reasons his grades aren't better.

He also says he has failed a course here and there. "But I've always taken it over and passed."

"I give my wife credit for everything. Without her it would have been impossible. The children have been very cooperative, also," Shackelford said.

"It was the hardest decision of my life to quit work and go to school, but I had to do it," he added, "and the whole family made the decision."

Many family conferences preceded the decision. Now the only time for family conferences is the breakfast table. The two boys, Steve, 12, and Ronald, nine, have helped with the housework while Christine has worked.

"Please tell people, the boys and girls, to get their educations," Shackelford says. "I know what it's like."

FAMILY CONFERENCES . . . are a rarity for the D. B. Shackelford family since D. B. began college two years ago at the age of 30. (Reflector staff photo.)

Clamor Over Tax Cut Issue Grows; Wall St. Rally Seen

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Clamor over the question of an immediate income tax cut to aid business grew louder during the week. President Kennedy told his news conference that his administration is seriously considering requests by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO for a reduction now.

But for the time being Kennedy stood pat on his previously announced intention of asking Congress to reduce taxes, effective next January.

He said he was watching the economic indicators and that if they seem to reflect the need for a quicker cut he will recommend it.

Three governors — Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Republican, Michael V. DeSalle of Ohio and Edmund G. Brown of California, Democrats — joined in the plea for lower taxes.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., reiterated his demand for early action on taxes.

The proposals ran into opposition from Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman, and Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., senior Republican member, of the Senate Finance Committee.

The stock market continued its recovery and some Wall Street experts saw a good chance of a sustained rally during the summer. Others, however, maintained a cautious attitude because of uncertainty of the business outlook.

Stock sales during the holiday-shortened four-day week amounted to 13,820,190 shares, compared with 25,774,760 the previous week and 11,964,700 the comparable week of last year.

Bond sales totaled $24,749,000 par value, compared with $46,056,000 the previous week and $26,799,000 the comparable 1961 week.

The First National Bank of Chicago, in its semiannual poll of Midwest leaders of commerce and industry, found expectations of improved business during the second half of this year in the rubber and automotive products, merchandising, food, farm equipment, oil and appliance industries.

The steel industry is expected to remain at its slow pace. Representatives of the construction, rail and paper industries were pessimistic.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that consumers increased installment credit debt by $413 million in May, about $100 million less than April. A moderate decline in the signing of new installment contracts for consumer goods was noted.

Total inventories of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May showed the smallest increase in nine months, the Commerce Department announced. Inventories were estimated at $97.4 billion, up $170 million from April.

The department said total sales of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May were estimated at $66.4 billion, a gain of less than one per cent from April.

It was announced in Tokyo that the Kennedy administration has invited Japan to invest in building factories in the United States. It would be a means of helping correct a U.S. adverse balance-of-payments situation.

Fourth of July shutdowns cut into automobile and steel production.

Output of passenger cars dropped to an estimated 112,000 during the week from 126,521 the previous week but was far ahead of the 85,962 built in the July 4 week last year.

The auto industry reported it turned out 3,620,996 passenger cars in the first six months of this year, a gain of 32.3 per cent over the 2,736,804 built in the 1961 first half.

Steel production was expected to fall to another 17-month low during the week. The previous week the mills poured 1,501,000 tons of steel, down four per cent from the week before.

Employment rose by 1,338,000 in June to a record 69,439,000. But with the addition of two million teen-agers to the labor force, unemployment increased by 744,000 to 4,463,000, compared with 5,580,000 a year ago.

Rather short in stature and tall in the realm of hoteldom, Mildner was, after a period of time, in demand elsewhere. Chosen out of a group of six hotelmen, Mildner responded to the lure of the Orient that came to claim 21 years of his services.

For 18 years he served as secretary-manager of the Grand Kaleo Hotel in Shanghai, China. After this he launched a grand renovation of the Imperial Hotel located in the French Concession of Tientsin, China.

This remodeling project brought him to the United States for the first time in 1924 where he visited this and other countries for the purpose of purchasing equipment and furnishings for the Imperial Hotel.

During his stay in China he visited many cities and frequented the countryside. Mildner saw Pearl S. Buck's "Good Earth" come to life in part, and came to know the people there as he had in all of the countries in which he had worked.

His never-tiring eyes sought out varied scenes as the "great wall" that surrounds such cities as Peking and the lonely burial grounds where caskets had been cast out into the fields to wait a long time for mass cremation.

Still yet another country was to claim 25 years of his services. For 17 years he was to manage the Tor Hotel Ltd. in the very cosmopolitan seaport of the Kobe, Japan.

Science Institute For Reading Institute At ECC Teachers Set July 16 Includes 44 Participants

Sponsored by East Carolina College and the National Science Foundation, a summer institute for junior high school teachers of earth science, biology, and physics will begin Monday, July 16, and continue through August 24. Attending will be 49 teachers from sixteen states who have been selected to participate in a program of class work, seminars, and field trips.

Dr. Frank W. Eller of the East Carolina College Department of Science will direct the institute and conduct classes in physics. Other faculty members at the college who will serve on the instructional staff and the subjects they will teach are Dr. George C. Martin, Jr., earth science, and Donald E. Bailey, biology.

Objectives of the institute are to give forward-looking teachers additional mastery of subject matter in the science courses they are teaching, to provide basic instruction in earth science for those who are now teaching or soon will be teaching the subject, and to strengthen the capacity of teachers for motivating able students to consider careers in science.

Those attending the institute will receive stipends from the National Science Foundation to meet travel, living, and instructional expenses.

Those completing requirements will receive four quarter-hours of undergraduate credit for each course in which they are enrolled. Credits may be applied for certification.

Twenty-six of those who have been chosen for participation come from a wide area in North Carolina. Others are from South Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Illinois, New York, Ohio, California, Massachusetts, Indiana, Minnesota, Maryland, Tennessee, and New Mexico.

Teachers who have been selected to attend the institute include Mrs. Irma S. Worthington, Rt. 1, Ayden.

The two-week annual Reading Institute now being presented by the department of education at East Carolina College has 44 men and women interested in the improvement of instruction in reading in the public schools.

The Reading Institute and a Seminar Reading Clinic are offered annually at East Carolina under the direction of Dr. Keith Holmes of the education faculty and are among the summer courses in demand by teachers especially in the lower grades and the junior high school.

Assisting Dr. Holmes as guest consultants this summer at the Reading Institute are Miss Julia Teasley of Scott Foresman Company, Mrs. Inez Tanner of Allyn and Bacon, Inc.; Charles Majure of Educational Development Laboratories; and Hannis Latham of Science Research Associates.

An exhibition of books and materials, with emphasis on the language arts, is being staged in the College Union of the Wright Building by the North Carolina Bookmen's Association, July 5-6.

as a special program event of the Reading Institute. "This is an excellent opportunity," Dr. Holmes said, "for all teachers working in both the elementary and the high school levels to review a broad sampling of educational materials and books."

Those enrolled as participants in the institute include Myrtle L. Adams, Washington; Martha B. Alcorn, Greenville; Gladys Barrow, Farmville; Sara Lou Bass, Greenville; Martha H. Beach, Fairmont; Charlene S. Bennett, Winston-Salem; May Lou Britt, Snow Hill; Allen D. Bucklew, Engelhard;

Vera Cannon, Farmville; Jennie Carter, Lumberton; Dorothy L. Combs, Creswell; Lucille V. Craft, Walstonburg; Sue George Cullipher, Newport News, Va.; Annie Belle Daughtry, Roanoke Rapids; Grace S. Epps, Lumberton; Ronald Rudolph Everett, Robersonville; L. Merritt Foushee, Greenville; Vivian Dale Gibson, Greensboro; Nellie M. Haddock, Ayden; Kay Hargrove, Weldon;

Margaret Frank Heath, Clinton; Frank Hunnicutt, Jr., Rose-

boro; Margaret V. Jaynes, Aulryville; Ernestine Jones, Lewiston; Elizabeth White McMillan, Greenville; Gladys V. Manning, Dunn; Fannie A. Mills, Williamston; Ruth Moore, Battleboro; Ann Louise Moore, Roanoke Rapids; Juanita W. Olive, Winterville; Evelyn J. Parker, Lewiston; Ann Rhem, Kinston; E. Merle Scott, Kinston;

Bertha Shirley, Walstonburg; Arra Snipes, Ashekie; Rachel C. Spencer, Columbia; Barbara L. Steelman, Kinston; Carolyn Sumrell, Ayden; Mary P. Thigpen, Beulaville; Louise B. Thomas, Farmville; Virginia Cavenagh Thomas, Jacksonville; Nina McDonald Vernters, Richlands; Lillian Whitlow, Greenville; and Minnie Mae Whittington, Snow Hill.

AYDEN — Street containers are being repaired and painted this week throughout the city. Workmen expect to complete their project in another week and will return the trash containers to their stations.

CBS Charged Disc Monopoly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Monopoly charges have been filed by the government against the Columbia Broadcasting System Inc., and its subsidiary, Columbia Records Club Inc. CBS is the nation's largest producer of phonograph records.

In the complaint by the Federal Trade Commission, the New York firms were charged with the illegal suppression of competition in the record industry and with making deceptive pricing and savings claims for their long-playing records.

In New York, a CBS spokesman said, "We deny the charge and all the implications of it. It has no substance in fact."

Lt. Col. Hubert G. Schenck, Chief of the Natural Resources Section, wrote to Mildner after his departure for the United States in 1951: "More than 33,000 Japanese visitors have been received by you during this time, but because of your understanding of the Japanese language and people, and your knowledge of the operations of the Division, you were able to save much valuable time for the scientific consultants by determining the importance of the subjects of discussion, the adequacy of the reports and data being submitted, and the appropriate individual with whom to arrange conferences."

Stokes News

Mr. Arue Whitehurst and daughter Shirley spent last week at Atlantic Beach.

Mrs. Julia Congleton of Dallas, Texas arrived Friday to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Congleton Jr. and family.

LAST CHANGE VALLEY

BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

CHAPTER 12

Con Baumholtz got up from his chair, took off his hat, rubbed his head, and came forward slowly, stopping about five feet in front of Thorpe McAffee.

He said thickly, "You hit me with a bottle, mister?"

"I hit you," Thorpe agreed. "Now what is it you want?"

"Want you to take off that gunbelt," Baumholtz told him, his eyes narrowed, "and this time try it without a bottle."

Thorpe unbuckled the gunbelt, taking his time about it, placed the belt on the bar behind him, placed his hat on top of the belt, and said, "All right Big Man, you wanted trouble. Come and get it."

This was more to Baumholtz's liking, and Thorpe saw a gleam of triumph come into his eyes. Baumholtz was at least forty pounds heavier and several inches taller than Thorpe, and the chances were that he'd never been whipped in a fist fight.

Baumholtz lunged toward the bar, coming in low, mouth open, teeth bared, big hands outstretched to grasp Thorpe around the waist.

Thorpe stepped forward and smashed him full in the left eye with his right fist. The sound of the blow was sickening, and the fist impaired Baumholtz's eye for some time. Blood poured from deep gashes underneath and over the eye, and Baumholtz staggered from the impact of the blow, his jaw sagging, looking at Thorpe now with only one eye.

Thorpe moved in fast, chopping at Con's bloody face with his left fist, and then ramming a right edge into his stomach, driving him all the way to the far wall.

Baumholtz bounced off the wall and came at Thorpe, swinging feebly with the right fist, most of the fight already gone out of him. Thorpe went under the blow and punched savagely at Baumholtz's stomach, long, slugging blows which took the remaining strength out of the big fellow.

He sagged back against the wall, mouth open, gasping for air like a fish out of water. He tried to defend himself, but Thorpe brushed aside his arms and smashed him another half-dozen blows in the face, literally beating him to the floor.

A man who'd evidently been worked over by Baumholtz yelled, "Finish him off, mister! Finish him off good."

Thorpe let it go the way it was. He turned and walked back to the bar, rubbing his bruised knuckles. His face was unmarked as he picked up the gunbelt and strapped it on again. He picked up his hat, touching it to Marcia Reynolds, who was watching, and then he left the bar.

He was sure that tonight he'd established himself in that town as a man who would not be pushed; that had been his purpose in fighting Con Baumholtz.

Thorpe was standing on the porch, looking up and down the street, when Sheriff Ed Baines came out through the doors. Baines had been inside, watching the fight, but he'd made no attempt to interfere.

"Reckon you're a pretty rough one," Baines told him. "I've never seen a man worked on like that one."

"Had it coming," Thorpe said. He looked up the street. "Who do you figure sent him, Sheriff?" Baines said gently, "Somebody have to send him?"

"He didn't know me," Thorpe said, "and he wasn't a close friend of Hoagland's, was he?" Baines shrugged. "Wouldn't say so," he admitted.

"Then somebody sent him," Thorpe stated.

"What are you getting at?" Baines asked.

"Somebody in this town doesn't want me to spend too much time in it," Thorpe said quickly, "or in Death Valley."

Baines grinned. "From what I've seen," he chuckled, "they'll have a tough time getting you out. On the man in this town right working out in Death Valley is Neil Farrington. You don't figure he's behind this fight, do you?"

Thorpe shrugged. "I don't know," he said.

As they were talking, the door swung open and Farrington himself came out. He was smoking a cigar and seemed in quite good spirits. Leaning against the porch pillar across from Thorpe, he said, "You did a good job on him, McAffee. Baumholtz is supposed to be pretty tough."

"He tackled the wrong man this time," Baines observed. "What do you figure made him do it, Neil?"

Farrington shrugged. "Man like Baumholtz doesn't need any particular encouragement to tackle someone," he said. "It was enough for him that McAffee had downed Hoagland. That left him open to a challenge."

Thorpe didn't say anything to this. It was a fairly reasonable explanation, and he could take it or leave it as he chose.

Farrington was saying, "You'll find Piedmont a pretty rough town, but then I'd say you're used to rough towns, McAffee."

"I'm used to them," Thorpe agreed. "I give back as much as I get."

And then some," Ed Baines added.

Thorpe went up to the boarding house to pick up his extra clothing and bring the stuff back to the Birdcage. Jim Varney had persuaded him that afternoon to take one of the rooms in the big, rambling building rather than stay alone at the boarding house.

Thorpe came back in a few minutes, going in through a side door of the building, and then up a stairway to the living quarters at the rear.

Through the walls he could hear the sounds of gambling going on down below and at the other end of the top floor. He looked in at the room Varney had assigned to him, finding it quite comfortable. There was a bed, two chairs, a dresser, a wash basin and a clothes rack.

He was looking around the room when he heard a slight sound behind him and, turning, saw Marcia Reynolds smiling at him.

"Mr. Varney said you were staying at the Birdcage," Marcia said. "Anything I can do?"

Thorpe looked at her. He'd run across dance hall girls before, but this girl was different. She didn't seem to belong there. She was not loud, and there was a kind of dignity about her.

Thorpe stepped over to the doorway. "How did you get into place like this, Marcia?"

Marcia shrugged. "I came out this way with a brother about a year ago," she explained. "He was an actor, doing monologues and skits, and he wanted to work me in as a singer and dancer."

"What happened to him?" Thorpe asked curiously.

"He contracted a disease; chloera or mountain fever, we never knew which. He drank a lot, and he perspired a lot when he was doing his act. He died almost overnight. I had no one to go back to, and I remained here doing different things. I worked in a restaurant for a while, and then Mr. Hoagland offered me this job. I rather like it."

"Varney says you're invaluable to the Birdcage," Thorpe told her. "I'm glad," Marcia murmured. "I'm glad we're going to be friends."

Then she moved away from the door, went down the hallway and descended the stairs. Thorpe frowned slightly as he closed the door.

Drop Of Travel Rules Famed Author Sole Owner To Improve Relations Of His Yoknapatawpha

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Elimination of travel restrictions on Soviet visitors to the United States could lead to a further improvement in U.S.-Russian relations, officials said today. It all depends on how the Soviet government reacts.

The U.S. action, personally approved by President Kennedy, was announced Friday by the State Department.

Beginning immediately, the approximately 2,000 Russians who visit the United States each year will be as free to travel as any other foreign tourists.

In a note handed by Under-Secretary of State George Ball to Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the State Department informed the Soviet government of its action and asked for a reciprocal Russian step to contribute to "better mutual understanding and broadening of cooperation between the peoples of the two countries."

If Soviet Premier Khrushchev should react by cutting back on restrictions on the travel of more than 11,000 Americans who now visit the Soviet Union each year, the way would probably be opened for other measures on improving relations.

One possibility could be renewal of active consideration of an agreement for direct air service between Moscow and New York. The text of such an agreement was negotiated and initiated last year. But arrangements were broken off in mid-August in the midst of the crisis over the Berlin wall. The State Department said at the time it was inappropriate to sign the agreement in view of the international situation.

Friday's action clearly coincided with President Kennedy's policy of trying to remove where possible sources of irritation in American-Russian relations.

Restrictions on Soviet travel in the United States were imposed in 1955 in retaliation for Soviet travel restrictions on foreigners, including Americans, which dated back to 1941.

The U.S. move was declared at the time to be retaliatory and aimed at establishing a bargaining position for negotiating with the Russians for removing their own restrictions.

Restrictions on travel by Soviet diplomats, officials and correspondents in this country are being continued. But the United States invited Russia to undertake discussions "at an early date" for removal or reduction of all such limitations.

The State Department estimated that there are about 200 Soviet diplomats and their dependents in Washington and a similar number in New York. If they wish to travel outside the region of limitation they must give notice and get state department permission. Comparable restrictions are placed on U.S. diplomats and correspondents stationed in Moscow.

In the broader travel field, about one-fourth of the territory of the Soviet Union is formally closed to travel by American tourists. Another one-fourth lacks tourist facilities, so that in practical effect about half of Soviet territory is closed to foreign travel.

Closed areas in the United States totaled up to one-fourth of total territory. Cities previously closed and now opened under the new ruling include Charleston, W. Va.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Memphis, Tenn.; Youngstown, Ohio; Hartford, Conn.; Rochester, N.Y.; Springfield, Mass.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, Fla.; Houston and Dallas, Tex.; Santa Fe and Albuquerque, N.M.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Las Vegas, Nev.; San Diego, Calif., and St. Louis, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Since the portion of the Social Security taxes used for this purpose would also be applied to the additional $400 base.

Thus the present $127 monthly maximum for an individual would be raised to $134, and the payment for a man and wife from $191 to $201.

The GOP substitute defeated Friday was offered by Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky. When Morton's proposal came up he did not ask for a recorded vote and his amendment went down on a voice vote.

Morton proposed to use federal funds to pay annual premiums of up to $25 to buy private health insurance policies for persons over 65.

The $125 would have been available for those who owed no income taxes. Payments on a graduated scale from $125 to $25 would have been provided for those with tax liability up to $400, and a $25 minimum for those owing more than $400.

Morton estimated his plan would have cost $1.2 billion to $1.4 billion a year in funds from the treasury. But he argued that this was preferable to burdening industry with heavier Social Security payroll taxes. Both employers and employees would have to pay higher Social Security taxes under the administration plan.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., to give states authority to permit the 2.2 million old age assistance recipients to earn $50 a month without penalty.

Douglas contended this would encourage these persons to try to earn a little money to supplement their relief grants.

As the program operates now, the recipient receives a payment covering the difference between his budgeted needs and his resources. Under the amendment, the $50 would not be counted in his resources.

More than ever in North Carolina we need to keep abreast of the fast moving developments in medicine," Mrs. Galloway said. "One day we will have a breakthrough that will end cerebral palsy," she said. Funds collected go towards financing medical efforts to pinpoint and eradicate the cause of the disease.

Mrs. Galloway said that 75 per cent of funds collected remain in North Carolina to promote research into causes and cure of cerebral palsy, regarded as the most dreadful of all childhood crippers. Funds are used in medical grants to advance study of cerebral palsy problems, for nursing study to better care for cerebral palsy patients and scholarships for special education teachers of crippled children, or for other specialized work such as orthodontics, dental care needed by the cerebral palsied.

Remaining funds go into national funds. Some of these are used in the United Cerebral Palsy Association's Research and Educational Foundation.

The foundation oversees grants and scholarships on a national level, with special emphasis on direct research into cerebral palsy.

By noting variations between predicted low and the actual low temperature, an amateur can arrive at a correction factor that will enable him to beat the experts at forecasting weather for his own backyard.

since the portion of the Social Security taxes used for this purpose would also be applied to the additional $400 base.

Thus the present $127 monthly maximum for an individual would be raised to $134, and the payment for a man and wife from $191 to $201.

The GOP substitute defeated Friday was offered by Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky. When Morton's proposal came up he did not ask for a recorded vote and his amendment went down on a voice vote.

Morton proposed to use federal funds to pay annual premiums of up to $25 to buy private health insurance policies for persons over 65.

The $125 would have been available for those who owed no income taxes. Payments on a graduated scale from $125 to $25 would have been provided for those with tax liability up to $400, and a $25 minimum for those owing more than $400.

Morton estimated his plan would have cost $1.2 billion to $1.4 billion a year in funds from the treasury. But he argued that this was preferable to burdening industry with heavier Social Security payroll taxes. Both employers and employees would have to pay higher Social Security taxes under the administration plan.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., to give states authority to permit the 2.2 million old age assistance recipients to earn $50 a month without penalty.

Douglas contended this would encourage these persons to try to earn a little money to supplement their relief grants.

As the program operates now, the recipient receives a payment covering the difference between his budgeted needs and his resources. Under the amendment, the $50 would not be counted in his resources.

More than ever in North Carolina we need to keep abreast of the fast moving developments in medicine," Mrs. Galloway said. "One day we will have a breakthrough that will end cerebral palsy," she said. Funds collected go towards financing medical efforts to pinpoint and eradicate the cause of the disease.

Mrs. Galloway said that 75 per cent of funds collected remain in North Carolina to promote research into causes and cure of cerebral palsy, regarded as the most dreadful of all childhood crippers. Funds are used in medical grants to advance study of cerebral palsy problems, for nursing study to better care for cerebral palsy patients and scholarships for special education teachers of crippled children, or for other specialized work such as orthodontics, dental care needed by the cerebral palsied.

Remaining funds go into national funds. Some of these are used in the United Cerebral Palsy Association's Research and Educational Foundation.

The foundation oversees grants and scholarships on a national level, with special emphasis on direct research into cerebral palsy.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

S. C. Winchester and J. T. Manning Jr. were elected chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the Official Board of Red Oak Christian Church for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1962. It was decided to observe "Homecoming" with dinner on Sunday, October 14. The Evangelism Committee is planning a revival to begin also on Oct. 14.

Sunday school officers were elected as follows on June 24: Superintendent, T H U R S T O N Wynne; assistant superintendent, S. C. Winchester; secretary, treasurer, Bruce Thigpen; and assistant secretary - treasurer, Willie Pate. This fine staff and our fine teachers extend a cordial invitation to attend with us each Sunday at 9:45 a.m. and remain for morning worship.

The Rev. Howard James will preach on "The Earth Is The Lord's" in observance of Rural Life Sunday. Arrangements have been made to have tractors and farming equipment in front of the church which together will form a symbol for "Rural Life—1962."

"My God and I" (Serge) will be used as a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Howard James.

A nursery is provided during both Sunday school and church. Flowers will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gray.

Youth Fellowship Hour for those age 9-15 will be led by Rev. and Mrs. James Monday at 10 a.m. Filmstrips, Bible study, singing and refreshments will complete the program.

The Circles of Christian Women's Fellowship will meet as announced on Monday, July 9, at 8 p.m. Circle leaders are Mrs. Lila Bullock, Mrs. Sue May and Mrs. Nina Tripp. All women have been notified which circle they are in and are urged to attend this first one of the new church year.

Boy-Scout Troop 738 will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Slight Backfire Spoils A Prank

TORONTO (AP)—Some practical-joking Shriners left their convention here wondering today whether they had been had.

They had stopped women in the street, holding up a pair of pink pants and asking if they had lost them.

"Oh, thanks very much, I guess I did," one unidentified woman said. She took the pants without blushing, put them in her purse and walked on.

Missile Muscle To Bulge Next Month

WASHINGTON (AP)—America's missile muscle will bulge considerably more within the next month when possibly 54 more hydrogen-tipped Atlas and Titan missiles are placed in ready to fire positions.

And next week the Air Force plans to give the world—particularly Russia and Red China—a demonstration of that rising power by hurling an Atlas more than 7,000 miles from California to the Philippines sea.

The United States already has 81 intercontinental ballistic missiles on sentry duty at launch pads in seven Western states. Of these, 54 are Atlases and 27 the more powerful Titans.

Three more bases for 12 Atlases each are reported quickly nearing completion at Schilling Air Force Base, Kan., Lincoln Air Force Base, Neb., and Altus Air Force Base, Okla.

At the same time, sources said, new bases for Titans are rounding into shape at Beale Air Force Base, Calif., and Larson Air Force Base, Wash. Each will mount nine of the mighty 90-foot tall Titans.

Meanwhile,
