

Hydrogen Blast Fired In Nevada

By RALPH DIGHTON

CAMP MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — A mighty underground blast—most powerful set off in the United States and the first announced use here of an H-bomb type device—shattered the desert calm today.

It was expected to kick up a towering column of dirt and dust, leaving a crater a third of a mile wide and 300 feet deep, but as the test site was closed to unofficial observers there was no immediate word on how it appeared.

The 100-kiloton device packed the wallop of 100,000 tons of TNT.

The previous most powerful shot here was 74.3 kilotons fired from a balloon in 1957. Today's shot was fired 650 feet under the surface of nearby Yucca Flat at the Nevada nuclear test site 65 miles north of Las Vegas.

Its purpose was to explore the possibilities of nuclear energy for large-scale earth moving for peaceful purposes such as dams and canals. All previous tests here have been for weapons development.

The explosion, dubbed Project

Sedan, marked the first time the Atomic Energy Commission has disclosed the nuclear composition of a shot here.

Previous tests have been presumed to be of the conventional fission type material, which uses uranium as the source material. H-bombs employ a process known as fusion, and heavy hydrogen is the source material. H-bomb type explosions are cleaner, in that they have less radioactive fallout. A substantial part of their radioactivity comes from fission type explosives used to trigger the fusion process.

The shot also was the first to be announced in advance since testing resumed here last September, after a moratorium since 1958. There have been 41 announced underground tests in Nevada since the resumption.

Aerial testing is set to resume Saturday with the detonation of a low-power device just a few feet above ground. It will be the first above-ground test since Oct. 30, 1958.

The new flurry of activity at this desert proving ground coincided with the recent resumption of testing in the Pacific and with announcement of plans to lob a dummy warhead 7,000 miles into the Philippine Sea from Vandenberg Air Force Base next week.

Although there has been no official announcement, military-minded observers linked the coincidences with this nation's current show of force in the Far East.

Today's blast, which the AEC described as "in the 100-kiloton range," ostensibly had a peaceful goal—demonstrating how nuclear explosions eventually can gouge out new harbors and canals at a fraction of the cost of today's best earth-moving equipment.

The announcement said only that the device is thermonuclear. No details were given as to composition except that the yield would come 30 per cent from fission and the remainder from fusion.

Saturday's detonation is frankly military in nature and shrouded in secrecy. All the AEC would say is that it will be a low-yield device of under 20 kilotons—equal to less than 20,000 tons of TNT—and that it will be exploded, a few feet above the ground.

Tax $20 Million Above Estimate

RALEIGH (AP) — Tax collections going into the North Carolina general fund for the last fiscal year went $20 million over estimates adopted by the 1961 Legislature.

State Revenue Commissioner W. A. Johnson reported to Gov. Terry Sanford today that the general fund took in $368.2 million, a gain of $30.7 million over the preceding year.

In preparing the state budget, the 1961 General Assembly, estimated general fund income for the last fiscal year at $347.6 million.

Johnson's report indicated the state will attain a nearly $30 million surplus forecast a month ago. At that time, Johnson predicted tax collections would exceed estimates by $20 million, and Director of Administration Hugh Canan forecast a $7.5 million saving in operations.

Johnson noted in his report that the food tax and other sales tax changes enacted by the 1961 Legislature were reflected in all the months except last July.

Report Exchange Among Berliners

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police reported today that they had exchanged stones and tear gas with sentries on the Communist side of the Berlin wall just before midnight.

According to the Western report, police patrols were stoned over the wall by the border guards. No explanation was given.

In addition to Brewer, the two Burches and the two sign firms, three New Jersey men are on trial. They are George Masfeldt, Walter Schoenfeldt and Martin J. Hamilton, who were officials of the two companies.

Pierce testified earlier that the elder Burch had been authorized to draw checks on his son's account.

Richard P. Pierce, a bookkeeper for North Carolina National Bank, said the check, made payable to the elder Burch and his wife, was issued by the Morehead City Branch of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. It was deposited in the account of Burch's son in the North Carolina National Bank.

The origin of the check was unexplained. Special Prosecutor Charles Hagan of Greensboro indicated more evidence about the check will be revealed later.

Pierce testified earlier that the elder Burch had been authorized to draw checks on his son's account.

JFK Considering Income Tax Slice

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy says he is giving very serious consideration to urging business and labor for an immediate income tax cut. And he feels Congress should think hard about it too.

But, he told his news conference Thursday, the decision whether taxes should be reduced now or next year will depend on the economy's health as reflected by basic economic indicators.

Kennedy said he and his advisers will be watching these indicators closely "in the next months."

"If we feel that the situation in the economy warrants a tax cut then, of course, we would recommend it," he said.

For the present, said Kennedy, he will keep to his plan for tax reductions and other revisions next year.

He emphasized, however, that he and Congress should pay heed to recommendations from such diverse quarters as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO for an early tax reduction.

"But the basic question will be to try to make an analysis as to the health of the economy over the next months," he added, "and whether '63 is the appropriate time or now."

In the meantime, he said, the administration will press for congressional action on present economic legislation, including the bill to give tax credit for plant and machine modernization and the anti-depression measures to give him standby authority to cut taxes and launch a public works program.

The President reiterated his Fourth of July call for a declaration of interdependence with a united Europe—when Europe becomes one great organization, to advance all mankind.

"We would not want this to be a rich man's club while the rest of the world gets poorer," Kennedy said. "We want the benefits of this kind of union to be shared."

Would this lead to some kind of political union between the United States and Europe?

It depends on how you define political, Kennedy said. North Atlantic allies already have political commitments to each other, he said, and these may take on "a more intimate form."

Inevitably, homegrown politics and Democratic administration's relations with business came up in the half-hour conference. Kennedy said "an awful lot of businessmen" have supported the Democratic party, even though he agreed his party "is not the party of business."

Asked what he thought of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's description of Republicans as the party of business, Kennedy replied with amusement:

"Well, I think, as I said, I dislike disagreeing with President Eisenhower, and so I won't in this case."

SEPTEMBER DRAFT
WASHINGTON (AP)—Five thousand men will be drafted in September for the Army.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—Tax liens totaling $3,395,665.33 were filed today by the federal government against bookmaker Joseph (Newsboy) Moriarty.

Chris L. Gross, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, said at Newark the lines were filed in Hudson and Essex counties.

Gross said the total figure covers a six-year period and includes income taxes, fraud penalties and interest.

Moriarty, serving a 2-to-3 year sentence in State Prison at Trenton, has been tabbed by Jersey City police as the owner of a $2.4-million hoard found in an abandoned car Tuesday.

Together with the money, police found bonds in the names of Moriarty and his brother, who died five years ago.

Moriarty has neither affirmed nor denied ownership of the fortune in currency ranging from $5 to $1,000 bills.

Local Troopers Begin 2nd Day Of Safety-Check

For the second straight day, Patrolmen in Pitt County have held equipment checking stations at several points in the county as part of their enforcement program.

Officers arrested Thursday a number of motorists at stations operated near Ayden and Grifton. Today equipment checking stations were in operation near Belvoir and Stokes.

The two check points set up yesterday were on N.C. 118 just east of Grifton and on N.C. 102 east of Ayden.

Being checked by Patrolmen are equipment needed for safe operation of cars and trucks, such as brakes, lights, horn, windshield wipers and the like.

Owners of vehicles with faulty exhaust systems and loud mufflers had better take warning also, because they too are subject to arrest.

Cpl. John Thomas said the checking stations are a continuing thing and will be held periodically through the county.

Today, the equipment check points were in operation just east of Belvoir on the prison camp road and west of Stokes on N.C. 903.

ALGIERS (AP)—Algeria's delegate to the Arab League was flying here from Cairo today to make a new effort to reconcile opposing Nationalist leaders in the wake of bloody Moslem-European fighting in Oran.

Tewfik El Medani reportedly was bringing an offer from the Arab League to mediate the dispute between Premier Youssef Ben Khedda's moderate regime and rebellious Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella, a radical leftist. The leadership split has raised the threat of civil war in the 3-day-old nation.

Ben Bella, who fled to Cairo after breaking with Ben Khedda last weekend, conferred Thursday with Medani and with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, who has tried unsuccessfully to reunite the opposing Algerian factions.

Ben Bella arranged to meet today with Abdel Khalek Hassouna, Arab League secretary-general, who reportedly has offered the league's mediation and his own readiness to go to Algiers to meet with Ben Khedda.

Ben Bella opposes Ben Khedda's policies of cooperation with France and with Algeria's European minority, but insists his dispute stems solely from Ben Khedda's dismissal last weekend of three top Nationalist army commanders. Ben Khedda accused them of planning a coup to install Ben Bella in power.

HOLIDAY TOLL
CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic accidents claimed a record 146 deaths during the 30-hour Independence Day holiday period.

Long lines of housewives were formed in front of Rio stores this week as food supplies dwindled. Early this week 20 persons were injured in a food riot in the suburb of Niteroi.

Army troops already had been alerted for trouble during the general strike, which virtually shut down Rio. No planes, buses, trains or ferries moved. Most industries, banks, offices and shops were shut tight.

The strike was less effective in other cities. The stoppage originally had been called to protest the naming of Sen. Auro de Moura Andrade, a conservative, as prime minister instead of a member of Goulart's Brazilian labor party.

After only 36 hours in office, Andrade quit on the eve of the strike, reportedly in a dispute with Goulart over the selection of navy and air force ministers for the new cabinet. Despite the resignation, the union leaders went ahead with the strike to try to pressure Parliament into naming a member of Goulart's party to the prime minister's job.

Pitt In 14-County Area Labeled For Gov't Loans

Pitt today was included 14 Eastern Counties declared disaster areas by the Farmers Home Administration.

Simultaneously local agricultural officials estimated 30 per cent damage to Pitt's tobacco crop as a result of extreme wet weather that gripped the county during the past week. Both the Pitt County Farm Agent's office and the local F.H.A. office estimated at least 30 per cent loss to Pitt crops.

Congressman Herbert Bonner notified The Daily Reflector this morning that counties of the First Congressional District including Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Hyde, Washington, Tyrrell and Bertie Counties were declared disaster areas by the F.H.A. of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and are eligible for three per cent F.H.A. crop loans. Other eastern Carolina counties declared disaster areas were Carteret, Craven, Duplin, Jones, Lenoir, Onslow and Pamlico.

Bonner was surveying the Pitt County area by car this morning. Governor Terry Sanford was supposed to survey the Washington, N.C. area by car and then fly over other counties.

Sam Weeks, tobacco specialist with the Farm Agent's Office, said today that to his knowledge this is the first time Pitt has been declared a disaster area because of crop loss. He said that "As of this morning, before today's sunshine, the nearest estimate that we could arrive at would be at least 30 per cent" in losses. "Thirty per cent of the acreage is damaged seriously," he added.

The most apparent damage is in the southeastern part of the county. Weeks said he had observed high damage in the Grimesland, Blackjack, Grimesland, Blackjack, Clay-root, Chicod, Stokes and Pactivus areas. He said he understood that losses were also high in the Farmville area but he had not made a survey there yet.

Under the disaster declaration, local farmers will be eligible for a three per cent loan from the F.H.A. provided they cannot obtain adequate credit elsewhere at a reasonable interest rate. Other qualifications for the loans are that the farmer have a reasonable chance to succeed with the loan and that he possess the legal capacity to contract for the loan. R. O. Tharrington, assistant county supervisor of the F.H.A., said.

Loans for crops are payable the next crop year under these circumstances, he said.

City Council Okays Hike In Greenville Taxi Rates

Taxi patrons will be paying 20 to 50 percent more for their rides after changes approved last night by the City Council are included in city ordinances.

Councilmen hiked fares from 50 cents to 60 cents for trips originating and ending between Memorial Drive and Elm St. and between Moore St. to the north and Arthur St. to the south. Beyond this zone to the city limits the charge will be increased from 60 cents to 90 cents.

A waiting rate of $3 per hour and a charge of 25 cents for additional stops were left as they are.

Judge Charles Whedbee, representing the taxi operators, pointed out that taxi rates have not been changed since 1955. However, he said, the city has grown to the point where it is now six miles from Greenfield Terrace to Lynndale, the city's extremities. Thus a taxi operator would drive three miles from downtown to Greenfield on a fare, then six miles to take the fare to Lynndale, then three miles back to his downtown station. This is a total of 12 miles, he said, which at the present 60-cent fare is only five cents a mile.

Councilman Ralph Brimley offered a motion to increase the fares to 60 and 80 cents. This was defeated and Ford McGowan offered the motion to grant the full 60-90 cent fare. This was approved unanimously.

However, it will be a month before the new fares take effect. The changes must be made in city ordinances and the new ordinance will have to be approved by the council.

Councilman approved the rezoning of property on Tyson St. from residential to commercial after no objections were raised at a public hearing. The three lots are the site for the new Carver Memorial Library building. Bids were recently accepted by the council and work has already begun.

Two paving petitions were tabled because of lack of funds. One called for curb and gutter and paving on one block of E. Third St. from Laurel to Sycamore.

They took no action on a request from the Neighborhood Conservation Committee for hiring a full-time inspector to carry out the residential upgrading program.

"We feel there is a desperate need to do something about this critical housing situation," John Grier, representing the committee, told the council. He exhibited photos of housing.

Charles Cobb, committee chairman, told the council the cost of an inspector and an office would be an estimated $12,000 per year.

Councilman Brimley asked if the representatives would be willing to amend the budget and increase taxes another four cents to cover this cost.

Grier said he would be willing to pay the increase himself. However, he maintained the increased taxes from the dwelling improvements would pay for the inspector. The city's budget for the coming year already calls for a 24-cent tax increase.

Councilman Brimley suggested using the city's building inspector for neighborhood conservation work. He said he plans to recommend hiring a full time plumbing inspector which would relieve the building inspector of this duty.

Councilman Lee said, "Before we do anything, before the budget is approved, before we get a plumbing inspector, this will be discussed. We need this more than we need a plumbing inspector." However, Lee explained that he felt there is a need for a plumbing inspector.

Mayor Charles Kins indicated he favored a federally assisted program of neighborhood conservation. He said he was not against the committee's program but the city could obtain federal assistance for street work, recreation and other improvements.

Councilmen turned down a petition for annexation of the W. C. Taylor and other property on the Stantonsburg Road near the Memorial Drive intersection. Mayor King said the property owners had informed him they did not wish to be annexed at this time.

Sanford sent a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman on Thursday urging that the worst hit counties be designated a disaster area "so that our farmers may have the benefit of such aid as may be available."

The governor listed 14 counties but said others might be added to the list. Counties seeking designation as a disaster area include Beaufort, Craven, Washington, Tyrrell, Martin, Carter, Hyde, Duplin, Pamlico, Bertie, Onslow, Jones, Lenoir and Pitt. The designation would make farmers eligible for emergency production loans.

Sanford planned to fly over several rain-battered Eastern North Carolina counties today to survey crop damage which he said "will amount to tens of millions of dollars."

The governor was slated to tour several Beaufort County farms by patrol car. Tobacco crop damage in Beaufort has been estimated at $6 million.

State Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin and Melvin H. Harn, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, planned to meet Sanford at Washington, N.C.

Author William Faulkner Dies Today At 64

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Nobel-prize winning author William Faulkner, who made the fictional Mississippi county of Yoknapatawpha known throughout the world, died today.

The 64-year-old author died of a heart attack at a hospital in Oxford. He returned here some weeks ago from the University of Virginia where he had spent much of his recent years as a lecturer in American literature.

Relatives said Faulkner died about 2 a.m. today, shortly after being admitted to a hospital.

The gentle, small-statured Faulkner won the Nobel literary prize in 1950.

His wife, Estelle, and his sister, Dorothy Oldham, were with him when he died.

Faulkner's daughter, Mrs. Paul D. Summers Jr. of Charlottesville, Va., was flying here for the funeral scheduled Saturday.

Faulkner's mother died last year.

The superlative storyteller always considered himself a professional farmer rather than a writer. He operated a 366-acre farm near this university town.

He wrote a series of interconnected novels and short stories dealing with the life, people and history of the fictional Yoknapatawpha County.

His latest novel, "The Reivers," was published only a short time ago and appears to be headed for the best-seller lists.

"The Reivers" is the current Book of the Month Club selection for July.

Most reviewers gave it favorable attention, but did not consider it a major work.

Unlike most Faulkner books, which probe into human corruption, "The Reivers" has a steady stream of rustic humor and comedy.

But it still has as its setting Yoknapatawpha County, Miss., which has been the center for nearly all Faulkner works.

The shy Faulkner seldom gave interviews to newsmen, but he used to buy space in the weekly newspaper at Oxford to express his views on current local issues of the day to his neighbors.

Once he told a newsmen in New Orleans: "If I had my life to live over again? Why, youngster, I reckon I'd be a woman or a tramp. They don't have to work so hard."

To the world he was William Faulkner. To his wife, Estelle, he was "Billey"—the childhood sweetheart she married when only a few Mississippians knew his name. "Sanctuary," published in 1931, was his most popular—and most shocking novel. Faulkner said he deliberately set about producing a pure horror story with the aim of making money in writing it.

Faulkner's stories dealt with the Southern scene, but he frequently explained that he was not concerned with regional problems but with human problems.

When interviewed, he frequently slipped into a soft Mississippi drawl.

"I ain't a writer. Why I don't even know any writers. I don't pay no attention to publishers, either," he drawled to a reporter 10 years ago.

"They write me a letter—if it don't have a royalty check in it, I throw it away."

Faulkner said he didn't like work, and then observed: "What else are you going to do. You can't drink eight hours a day. Or make love. Work's about the only thing a fellow has to do to keep from being bored."

The South Faulkner depicted in his novels and short stories was a region haunted by memories of a way of life that is gone forever and tortured by prospects of a commercialized future that would make life impersonal and depthless.

Faulkner was born Sept. 25, 1897, in New Albany, Miss. His father, a livery stable proprietor, moved the family to Oxford when he became business manager of the University of Mississippi.

After an intermittent education—he quit high school before graduation—Faulkner fought in World War I in the British Royal Air Force. Afterward he enrolled in the University of Mississippi but dropped out before qualifying for a degree.

Hard Girl To Beat

By BOB MARTIN
Long Beach Independent-Press Telegram

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The life of a tennis star can be an exciting one.
...Florida and the Caribbean in March and April. Europe in the late spring and early summer. The East Coast tournaments. California in the fall. Perhaps South America and Australia during the winter months — North America in winter, that is.
...See the world — with expenses paid.
...Make friends with players of many nationalities. For tennis is the international sport.
...Attend gay parties and balls.
...Meet celebrities in many fields, from movie stars to statesmen. Even the Queen of England. Sounds, OK, huh? Beats punching a time clock or putting in the daily 8-to-5 routine at the office.
Darlene Hard of Long Beach, national women's champion, agrees — and she wouldn't have missed it for anything. After nearly a decade as one of the world's best — and most colorful — performers, the exuberant 26-year-old blonde says she is nearing the end of the tennis trail.
"This will be my last year of international competition," she says.
Darlene is in Europe now for Wimbledon Cup matches and tournaments leading up to Wimbledon in England, where, on June 25, she will begin her sixth quest for the elusive singles crown in the world's No. 1 tournament. In her last three appearances at Wimbledon — in 1957, 1959 and 1960 — the Long Beach miss has shared in all six doubles championships. She has won the women's with Althea Gibson, Jeanne Arth and Maria Ruano, and the mixed with Merwyn Rose and Rod Laver (twice).

It is not surprising that Darlene has gained so much success in doubles. It is her strong point. "Singles and doubles are two different games. I much prefer playing doubles and am better at it," she says.
Darlene is a native Californian. Her mother is an avid tennis player and taught the game to her daughter. Darlene was given a racket at 4 and entered her first tournament at 13 — the Girls' 13 event in the Southern California Juniors (she won it). At 18 she was runner-up to Barbara Breit in the National Juniors, won the doubles with Miss Breit, and was a semi-finalist in women's singles at Forest Hills.
She never had to pay for a lesson, but at 19 she did receive some instructions from Alice Marble, who had her change her forehand from a Continental grip to a modified Eastern grip. (She uses the Continental for all other shots.)
Darlene played night softball in a girls' league for three years while going to high school. She also worked as a waitress and was a good student, finishing ninth in her graduation class of 430 at Montebello High School. She has taken enough time off from the tournament trail to complete 2½ years at Pomona College.
On hitting the big-time tennis scene as a teen-ager Darlene delighted the spectators with her vigorous play, her happy-go-lucky attitude and her sparkling court personality. The buoyant blonde is a bit of a clown at times, and unlike many competitors, often gives the appearance of actually enjoying herself during a match. She has one of the most genuinely pleasant smiles you'll see anywhere, and she smiles in defeat as well as victory.
After Wimbledon, Darlene is scheduled to return to Long Beach for a rest. She'll play in a few Eastern meets leading up to the National Doubles at Chestnut Hill Mass., and the National Singles at Forest Hills, N. Y., both starting in August.

Red Banks Club Meets

The Red Banks Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday at 2:30 in the Eastern Pines building with Mrs. E. H. Boyd presiding. Mrs. W. A. Cherry gave the devotion followed by a prayer by Mrs. E. L. Edwards.
Mrs. Sue May, Home Economics Agent, gave the demonstration on "Business Every Woman Should Know." She pointed out that every homemaker should know the license number of the family car and where important papers are kept, such as insurance, deeds, wills and social security cards.
A family picnic was planned for August 11th at 6 o'clock at the club building.
Mrs. H. R. Rogers and Mrs. E. H. Boyd served refreshments. Mrs. E. L. Edwards won the door prize.

Faculty Wives Entertained

The members of the Faculty Wives Club entertained at a social hour Thursday morning honoring the wives of three new members of the faculty of East Carolina College.
Mrs. Richard Stephenson, Mrs. George Knight and Mrs. Joseph Bachman were the honorees.
Guests gathered on the patio of the Buccaneer Room where refreshments were served from a table featuring an arrangement of oak leaf hydrangeas in a distinctive pottery bowl.
Assisting Mrs. Harley P. Milstead, chairman of the hostess committee, were Mrs. Ralph Brimley, Mrs. Paul Minnis and Mrs. Harry Rainey.

Party Fetes Miss Davenport

Mrs. Grady Bell and Mrs. Rodney Roberson entertained at four tables of bridge last Saturday honoring Miss Doris Davenport.
Mrs. Vernon Tyson, Mrs. T. B. Lupton and Mrs. Elizabeth Hyman joined the players for dessert. Wedding ice cream, cake and nuts were served. Later in the evening ice drinks and cocktail crackers were passed to the players.
Miss Millie Bowden received high score. Mrs. Virginia Durham was remembered with napkins for consolation and Mrs. James Cummings was given sachet for floating prize.
Mrs. Davenport's corsage of white daisies to complement her dress. Bridal appointments, gardenias and hydrangeas were used to create a party atmosphere for the Bell home.
The honoree was given china in her chosen china pattern by the hostesses.

The Thursday bridge club was entertained last week by Mrs. Eleanor Gower at the home of Mrs. Tom Gower on West Queen Street. Pink gladioli and garden flowers were used as decorations. Three tables were arranged for bridge and on arrival guests found their places and were served a barbecued chicken supper followed by dessert.
During the progressions, Mrs. Jack Tucker and Mrs. J. L. Quinley compiled the highest scores and received prizes.

Two tables were in play last week when Mrs. J. G. Chauncey was hostess at her home on McRae Street. Bouquets of mixed garden flowers decorated the home for the evening. At the refreshment hour the hostess served a salad plate with iced drinks. Mrs. Woodrow Smith was high scorer for the evening and the runner-up was Mrs. Walter Patrick.

Mrs. Joe Paul received her contract club members last week at her home on Forest Acres at an enjoyable party. Mixed arrangements of flowers were noted as decorations. Prizes went to Mrs. M. D. Allen and L. O. Vanneman.

Murphy's Hosts
On Wednesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murphy had as guests for a dessert bridge their couples club members.
In the living room where the guests were entertained, garden flowers were used to decorate. Homemade ice cream and cookies were served at the dessert hour and later lemonade was passed.
Mrs. Conrad Hart and George G. Sugg were high scorers for the evening. Others playing were Mr. Hart, Mrs. Sugg, Mrs. Helen Speight, Mr. Don Casey and the hosts.

Tea Given Bride-Elect

Miss Carolyn Clapp was the guest of honor at a tea given by Mrs. Julian Vainright Tuesday afternoon at her home on Ragsdale Road.

Upon arrival, Miss Clapp was presented with a corsage of white gladioli.
The guests were received by the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. George Clapp, and the hostess, and invited to the appointed table for refreshments. The table was overlaid with green linen under a white organdy cloth. An arrangement of white gladioli flanked by white tapers in ivy-wrapped candelabums centered the table from which guests were served iced lime punch, tea sandwiches, assorted cookies, cheese straws and nuts.

Mrs. Vainright presented Miss Clapp with a crystal pitcher.

Former Resident Of Greenville Marries In June

Miss Lois West Eaton was married to William Merwin Bueler at Trinity Episcopal Church, Lawrence, Kansas, June 7 at 10 a.m. The bride wore a street length wedding dress in white silk and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and stephanotis. Margaret Rose, her younger sister, was bridesmaid and wore a street length dress of blue organza. She carried a nosegay of white carnations. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Theodore H. Eaton.
A reception was given in the Parish Hall immediately following the wedding.

The couple returned last week from a wedding trip to Haiti and Santo Domingo and are located at 124 Triphammer Road, Ithaca, New York. Mrs. Bueler is finishing work for the master's degree during summer session. Mr. Bueler is entering government work in Far Eastern Affairs this month.

After August 10, the couple will be at home at 2508 North Twentieth Road, Arlington, Va. The Buelers will spend some of their time in China.

Summer Requires More Hair Care

Hair care in summer isn't very different from any other season, except that there should be more of it! Extra perspiration attracts extra soil, and swims tends to "dissolve" a set.

So, in summertime, brush daily and shampoo at least twice a week—better still, after every swim if possible.

Mrs. Briley Circle Hostess

Mrs. C. Heber Briley was hostess to Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Auxiliary of Sweet Gum Grove Church at her home Wednesday afternoon.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. David Nobles presided. After the song "Bringing in the Sheaves" was sung, Mrs. John Whitehead read the scripture (Jonah 3:1-10). Mrs. Billy Brown led in prayer and a short business period was held. Following the committee reports the group took part in reading and discussion of the topic, which was "Some Seeds Fell."

Mrs. Brown invited the members to meet at her cottage at Mimosa Beach in August. Mrs. Arthur Barnhill closed the meeting with prayer and the hostess served refreshments, carrying out the holiday motif.

Personals

Mrs. Carl Ingle and daughter Verda will arrive today to visit Mrs. Ingle's mother, Mrs. Frank Wilson, at her home on West Fifth Street. Mrs. Ingle's older children, Frank and Carolyn, have been visiting with their grandmother for three weeks.

Tom Wilson of Rock Hill, S. C. is spending the weekend with Mrs. Frank Wilson.

American Business Is Spreading Operations On World-Wide Scale

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Like it or not, American business grows more international by the day.
Item. President Kennedy urges West Europe to unite and then join the United States in a concrete Atlantic partnership. Among its goals: "We can balance our worldwide trade and payments at the highest possible level of growth."
Item. American businessmen have been pouring millions of dollars into branch factories and other businesses in Europe, Japan and elsewhere. Europeans have millions invested in American industries. And now the United States is asking Japan to build factories in the United States.
Item. The stock market crash has caused Europeans to sell American securities and put some of the returns into gold. The American dollar has fallen on many of the foreign exchange markets to the level where it is supported by their central banks under an international agreement. The price of gold has risen sharply in London. Rumors of possible devaluation of the Yankee dollar continue to flourish abroad despite earnest denials by Washington.
Item. Some American investments abroad have been nationalized in recent months, notably in Brazil. But in other lands Americans still pour in investment money—while fighting a bill before Congress to tax earnings on such investments as they accrue rather than when they are repatriated.
Item. The United States is trying to get the Common Market and other European nations to lift further their import restrictions on certain U.S. manufactured goods and farm products, but to date has had little success.
To many American businessmen, therefore, it seems as if the United States has already achieved a measure of that "interdependence" which President Kennedy proposed as a goal in his Fourth of July speech at Independence Hall.
What Americans export makes up only about 5 per cent of the total of their production. What they import accounts for an even smaller percentage of total domestic sales.
But some American producers count on these exports to mean the difference between final profit and loss. And some American industries find the competition of foreign imports painful—some call it fatal.
In addition, American exports and imports are now tied closely with U.S. foreign policy. That wouldn't be a deficit in our balance of payments.

ance of payments nor a resultant outflow of gold if it weren't for the spending of American dollars for foreign aid, overseas military commitments.
One reason given for inviting Japanese to build factories here is that it should lessen the flow of American dollars to Tokyo to pay for Japanese imports.
And one of the chief arguments for the administration's trade bill, passed by the House and now before the Senate, is that it would grant the President powers to manipulate tariffs so as to increase in the long run the amount of American goods sold abroad. It also presumably would increase the amount of goods foreigners might ship here.
Business and finance would become just that much more international—in a non-Communist world that seems to be groping its way toward more economic interdependence, if short of unity.

Farmville In Lead Role ECC Players Staging Comedy In Whichard Hall Mon., Wed.

"Sight Unseen," a hilarious comedy of young love in a haunted English manor house, will open Monday night at 8 p. m. in the air-conditioned band room of Whichard Music Hall at East Carolina College.
A second performance at the same hour and place will take place Wednesday, July 11. The public is invited to attend free of charge.
Presented by the East Carolina Playhouse as the first attraction in its summer program, the play will be directed by Dr. J. A. Withey of the faculty and will have an experienced cast of student actors and actresses.
An in-the-round production with every seat "front row center," the play will offer both entertainment and technical interest for audiences. Costumes, both period and modern, will add attractiveness to the production.
Charlotte Donat of Farmville will have the leading role of Lady Judith Elliott, whose efforts to sell her ancestral home are opposed by the ghosts of members of her family who frighten off prospective buyers.
Miss Donat, a senior, has appeared in Playhouse productions of "The Philadelphia Story" and "Antigone," and was a member of the cast of the 1962 spring musical at the college, "Guys and Dolls."
Her two suitors are played by James Shanahan of Norwalk, Conn., as a brilliant young American physicist, and Douglas Mitchell of Greenville as a rather stuffy young Englishman.
At East Carolina Shanahan has had parts in "The Wages of Sin," "Guys and Dolls," and "The Merchant of Venice." Mitchell had the leading role in "Night Must Fall" and has appeared in a number of other Playhouse productions.
Sybil Hinds of Lumberton is cast as Mrs. Millicent Malone, a wealthy American business woman whose interest in psychic phenomena makes her wish to buy the manor house. As a student at Flora MacDonald College, Miss Hinds had experience as a student actress and director in production by the Highland Players there.
The ghosts will be played by Westley Howard of Kingston as Sir Thomas Elliott, a general in the Royalist Army of Charles I; Minnie Gaster of Rt. 1, Elton College, as a flighty beauty of Charles II's court; Lucile Dew of Rt. 1, Rose Hill, as the domineering friend of Elizabeth I; Lady Hortense; and Howard Mallard of Smithfield, as Mat, a mute stable boy.
Howard has worked in a number of productions of the East Carolina Playhouse, the Wake Forest Theatre, and the Theatre de L'estee in Quebec, Canada. With the East Carolina Playhouse Miss Gaster had the title role in "Auntie Mame" and Miss Dew played Amanda Wingfield in "The Glass Menagerie." Mallard has appeared in a half dozen Playhouse productions and has worked in summer stock at Carolina Beach.
Others in the cast include Mary Carolyn Barnes of Winterville, as an elderly maid; Teresa Saleed of Greenville as a stiff-tipped school teacher; and Lou D'Ambrosio of Stratford, Pa., as Mrs. Malone's family physician, the American Indian medicine man Bleating Hawk.
"Sight Unseen" by Rosemary Foster and Warner Law is an ingenious and laugh-provoking comedy which has become a favorite with Little Theatre groups. It has a well knit plot and interesting characters, and provides an evening of fun for those who see it.

Joan Crawford Worked Harder Than Competitors

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Writing of her early years in the movies, Joan Crawford comments: "Maybe I did play harder than anyone else—I worked harder, too. Perhaps it was because I had such an inferiority complex, because I was trying to compensate for all I lacked in education, poise and background. I wanted something out of life and this was the only way I knew to acquire it."
This helps to explain the phenomenon of Joan Crawford, who is described in depth in her new autobiography, "Portrait of Joan" written by Jane Kesner Ardmore. It is an arresting study of the longest-lasting of all the Hollywood stars—she made her first film in 1925, is starring in three this year.
The book is in Crawford style—realistic, down-to-earth, but with overtones of glamor and sentiment. That sounds paradoxical. I know, but Crawford is a paradox; a hard-driving woman who manages to remain feminine; a dream merchant with her eyes wide open.

Horsely Shelter

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y. (AP)—A fallout shelter for horses?
C. T. Newberry is building one on his estate at nearby Black Brook, but it will have room for 17 persons as well as 12 horses.
The shelter, expected to be ready for use this year, will have three large intake fans to reduce odors and provide ventilation.
Five rooms and a lavatory in the shelter are designed for use by Newberry, his wife and daughter and three families employed on the estate. State civil defense officials have praised the project.

Trims 7 Days From Old Record

NEW YORK (AP)—A British yachtsman, long noted for his solo adventures, has cut seven days off his own record for crossing the Atlantic alone.
Francis Chichester, 61-year-old map publisher, reached Ambrose Lightship off New York Harbor Wednesday night in the 28-foot, 13-ton Gypsy Moth III. He sailed from Plymouth, England, 33 days ago.

...To Care For Ten Children

CARSHALTON, England (AP)—Henry Fisher, 40, whose wife died 18 months ago, gave up his job as a stoker to stay home and take care of his 10 children.
He likes the arrangement. His children love it.
The British government—which saves money on Henry's unique arrangement—approves.
"The change was very hard at first," said Henry. "In many ways it would have been much easier to put the children into homes—but I didn't want that."
Had the children, whose ages now ranged from 3 to 17, been assigned to public institutions, it would have cost the government at least 40 pounds ($112) a week.
Now it's far less.
Henry gets 10 pounds ($28) from the National Assistance Board; he gets another three pounds 18 shillings ($10.92) in children's allowances.
His eldest boy, Raymond, 17, works and chips in two pounds ($5.60).
Henry's day is about as busy as a man's can be. He dresses some of the children, makes their breakfasts, sees them off to school, cleans the house, washes their clothes, prepares their tea and dinner. Most have lunch at school.
"I used to take the sheets to a launderette," said Henry, "but that was too expensive. So I bought a second-hand washing machine for three pounds ($8.40). When it breaks down, I fix it."
His children are: Trevor, 3; Allison, 5; Gregory, 6; Merlin, 7; Kathleen, 9; Jimmy, 10; Billy, 11; Elaine, 13; Laurence, 15; and Raymond 17.
Asked if he ever thought of marrying again, Henry said: "Never. One good wife is enough for any man. And anyway, who would want a widower with 10 young children?"

Subcommittee To Probe 'Unfortunate' Tactics

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee will investigate efforts by foreign agents to influence this year's sugar legislation—lobbying tactics termed "unfortunate" by President Kennedy.
Congressional figures indicate the sugar lobbyists were paid a total of more than $500,000 by their foreign government clients.
The investigation is expected to start in a few days and will be headed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. He was designated by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which handles legislation dealing with registration of foreign agents.
Allocation of foreign quotas was a hotly contested issue as the complicated sugar bill made its way through Congress. The compromise that finally passed the Senate and House and awaits Kennedy's signature includes specific quotas for 24 foreign countries.
The Senate Finance Committee has developed data that some lobbyists got up to $50,000 a year and fees as high as 50 cents a ton for the quotas they obtained for their foreign government clients.
Committee members did not contend there was anything illegal about the lobbying. Under the law, persons acting in behalf of foreign interests must register with the Department of Justice.
Asked at his news conference Thursday about the sugar lobbyists, Kennedy commented: "I think it is an unfortunate situation when men are paid large fees by foreign governments to secure quotas, and where, in some cases, there are contingency fees. For every ton of sugar they get allocated to their country they secure a payment of so much."
Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said the lobbying amounted to an effort by foreign governments to appeal to Congress to overturn an administration policy. He referred here to administration proposals to eliminate almost all quotas.
Fulbright said a parallel situation would be if foreign nations hired lobbyists to try to persuade Congress to give them more foreign aid than the President had recommended.
The Senate voted approval for Kennedy to buy 150,000 tons of sugar a year at premium prices from Western Hemisphere countries. Administration senators said the Dominican Republic, Argentina and probably Peru would benefit.
The three were among nations which protested the sugar act allotments. The Dominican Republic and Peru each were given 190,000-ton annual quotas and Argentina was cut out entirely.
The premium or subsidy price is now about $56 a ton over the world price.
The 150,000-ton added authority was tacked onto a House-passed bill dealing with the importation of honey bees. The House has adjourned until Monday so no further action on the change is possible until then.
The amendment sponsored by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana would take the 150,000 tons out of the 1.64-million-ton quota reserved for Cuba in the event its Communist government is supplanted.

King Says: Negro Freedom To Come Through Sign-Up Drives

By TOM CHASE
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Negroes want their freedom now and one of the ways for them to get it is through intensified voter registration campaigns, says the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., integration leader and exponent of non-violence.
"I am still convinced that one of the most significant steps that the Negro can take at this hour is that short walk to the voting booth," he told National Association for the Advancement of Colored People delegates at a dinner Thursday night.
He commended the NAACP for making voter registration a major theme of the national convention. King, who is president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), said it was significant that such major civil rights organizations as the NAACP, SCLC, Congress of Racial Equality, Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and the Urban League were coordinating voter registration campaigns.
"Already we are getting results," he said. "In Georgia alone we were able to register more than 30,000 Negroes in less than 90 days."
About 2,800 persons were registered in a month at Chattanooga, Tenn., he said.
King criticized reports in some newspapers and magazines of difficulty among the various civil rights organizations.
"We can and should criticize each other in fair and free exchange," he said. "But we must be watchful of a growing tendency to encourage and stimulate rancor within us by forces outside."
"We want freedom now and we want all of our rights," he said. "We will join neither a back-to-Africa movement nor a white citizens council-freedom ride north-movement. We want our freedom here in America."

Files Suit In Spite Of Threat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The wife of character actor Ed Begley says he threatened her life if she went to a lawyer about marital troubles. But she filed a separate maintenance suit anyway.
Dorothy Begley, 42, estimated Tuesday that Begley, 41, has an annual income of $60,000. She asked $77 monthly support.
They were married June 7, 1961, in Newhall, Calif.

Food Harvest Reaches Market

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The abundance of America's gardens and farms will be in city groceries and countryside stands this week as the summer's harvest reaches market.
Look for a profusion of native vegetables and fruits for quantity purchases.
Little will be unavailable this week either at meat or grocery counters. It's the time of year for native fruits and vegetables and a motorist need only travel along a country road to find bargains.
Budget-minded shoppers will find plenty of green beans, cabbage, corn, cucumbers, lettuce, green peppers, peas, onions and tomatoes.
Plentiful fruits include cantaloupes, watermelons, peaches, lemons and oranges. Locally, some may be at bargain prices.
Meats in supply include chicken, turkey, bacon, smoked picnic meats and a variety of beef, lamb and pork cuts. Many stores are advertising "milk-fed spring lamb."
One retail chain is featuring ribs of beef at 59 cents a pound in its New York outlets.
As usual, dairy products remain in abundance. Eggs are in the same category.
July fish plentiful, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture, include fillets, shrimp and canned tuna.

Bullet Reduced July 4 Program

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A bullet cut about four hours out of radio station WAME's Fourth of July recreation of events of America's first Independence Day in 1776.
Station manager Murry Woroner said a bullet, fired by an unidentified person, severed an overhead cable which carried the program from WAME's studio to its transmitter.
Woroner declined to speculate whether the damage was chance vandalism or an attempt to sabotage the program.

Progress Through Greater Efforts

Industrial expansion in North Carolina for the first six months of this year represents a major accomplishment. At the same time it behooves Tar Heels to compare the figures for those of the same period last year.

Investment in new and expanded plants in the state during the first half of this year showed an increase of less than one half of one percent over the same period for a year ago. Even so, the very fact that investments of $122,154,000 were made in Tar Heel industrial expansion during the first half of this year is significant.

In terms of payroll this new expenditure in industries of this state is expected to add some $45,399,000 annually to workers. The investment is calculated to create 14,085 new jobs in the state. Although the number of new jobs created by industrial expansion is some 600 more than for the same period last year, the total new added payroll annually is half million less than that added by the 13,444 new jobs created by industrial expansion during the first half of 1961.

Looking at these three factors for the comparative periods in this year and last, industrial investment went up slightly, the number of new jobs created went up, but the annual addition to the state's industrial payroll went down.

In recent years North Carolina has moved forward rapidly in developing its industrial potential.

Enlisting Ally For Amendment

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
COURT REFORMS — It always helps, either in politics or diplomacy, to have a strong ally. Especially when there are signs of a hot fight ahead.

So supporters of court reform in North Carolina are enlisting an ally for the campaign to win approval of a proposed constitutional amendment to be voted on next November. The court reform amendment is one to empower the General Assembly to establish a uniform system of district courts within the next 10 years—is being linked closely to something that has wide, popular appeal and interest, traffic safety.

Gov. Terry Sanford has put himself on record in recent statements supporting the court reform amendment. And Sanford has been the leader in tying the matter of court reform and traffic safety closely together.

In a speech at Carolina Beach, Sanford said that effective traffic safety programs are dependent upon an efficient, statewide system of courts presided over by able, safety-minded judges.

POLICY — The governor earlier underlined the uniform courts amendment in a speech outlining his traffic safety goals for the 1963 legislature.

A study of the administration of justice also is one of the phases in the much-publicized traffic safety study being conducted on a concentrated basis in Project Impact.

Sanford's traffic safety speech was described as a major policy statement for his administration in the realm of traffic safety. It included these points:

—more stringent driver licensing requirements for teenagers.

—increasing the strength of the state highway patrol.

—providing more highway engineering personnel.

Each of these points was stressed in some detail. Almost every one of them has been the subject of debate in past sessions of the legislature.

The governor omitted, at least for the present, an item of particular controversial nature — the department of motor vehicles has favored for a long time, compulsory motor vehicles inspection.

Inspection has not been able to get through a legislature — or even very far in committee — since the 1949 session killed an inspection law that had met with widespread public disapproval.

PLUGS — Almost simultaneous with the governor's plugging for court reforms, a Superior Court judge also was making note of public demand for uniform courts in the state.

Judge J. William Copeland, a former state senator and Sanford's legislative liaison man in the 1961 General Assembly, was presiding when a Gaston County man came up with an appeal of a 10 months sentence imposed by a justice of the peace for writing worthless checks.

Copeland ordered the defendant released, holding that the j-p court had jurisdiction in only two of the 10 counts — involving amounts of less than $50 — and that the j-p court had issued only one judgment instead of 10. This, Copeland held, was "contrary to law."

"It is cases such as this that prompt many people who are interested in good administration of justice to say that we need court reforms," Copeland said.

OPPONENTS — There won't be clear sailing for the uniform courts amendment. There is opposition. Neither would the amendment mean court reforms overnight, nor necessarily during 1963.

The uniform courts amendment represents a compromise which its supporters finally admitted was the best they could hope to get through the 1963 legislature.

A far-reaching court reforms bill, strongly supported by then Gov. Luther H. Hodges, was drawn up by a special committee of the North Carolina Bar Association back in 1959, and was defeated soundly.

The compromise in 1961 was between another court reform bill prepared by a committee headed by State Sen. Spencer Bell of Charlotte and a measure by the forces led by State Sen. Lindsey C. Warren which had defeated the 1959 bill.

The amendment would merely authorize the legislature to proceed with establishing uniform district courts. It might be 1969 before such a plan could be implemented on a statewide basis.

MEANTIME — In the meantime, however, supporters point out that a pilot project could be started.

These supporters, including Sanford and the man expected to spearhead the court reform amendment campaign, former Sen. Cutlar Moore, fear that unless a start is made now, the feeling of public support might be greatly diminished and reduce chances later on.

From the standpoint of the overall economy of the state, however, it is evident that the state still has much to do to put itself in an economic position comparable with that of many other states. The industrial development field is becoming increasingly competitive, between states and between communities within the state. The fact that North Carolina has been successful in the past in securing new industries does not automatically mean that its rate of success will continue in the future.

North Carolina and its individual communities must realize that in spite of the higher investment figure for the first half of this year, compared with last, the increase was small. In spite of the fact that some 600 more new industrial jobs were created during the first six months this year than in the same period last year, the additional annual payroll is expected to be less than that created in the first half of 1962.

The state and its communities cannot afford to sit back on past accomplishments in industrial development if they expect North Carolina's economy to continue to move upward.

Development efforts must be intensified at both the state and local levels. Otherwise our pace of development will decrease.

Time Is Best Gauge Of Area Crop Losses

It will take some time yet to accurately evaluate crop losses in Eastern North Carolina as a result of heavy rains that have fallen during the past week.

It is evident even now, however, that the loss has been heavy.

In Pitt, as in other counties, almost all sections have suffered damage to the chief money crop . . . tobacco. Some farmers have been harder hit than others and some counties have suffered greater losses than others. There are very few who have escaped some damage to the tobacco crop.

At the moment estimates of the total crop damage in this and other counties vary widely. Even in Pitt County losses in some sections of the county are expected to run much heavier than in others. Weather conditions in the next several days will have a bearing on the total crop damage.

The very fact that a number of counties in this section—Pitt included—have been recommended for federal benefits as "disaster" areas is indicative of considerable crop damage. Just how much the economy will suffer because of the extreme weather conditions is a question that will only be answered in time.

JFK's Proposal Not A New Idea

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's Fourth of July proposal — partnership with Western Europe — was not new with him although it will get more attention in the years ahead.

Kennedy dipped away back, as far back as the 1960 campaign, for some of the words and phrases he used Wednesday at Philadelphia.

Nevertheless, he left the idea of American partnership with united Western Europe deliberately vague, as he has in the past. There were three understandable reasons for this:

1. At this moment no one can predict what kind of unity the West Europeans will work out among themselves. They're just talking of it now.

2. What kind of partnership this country will consider, if any, will depend on what European unity turns out to be.

3. Before there is any partnership at all the whole idea will become a national discussion and get a long going over in Congress.

At least twice in the 1960 campaign Kennedy, dwelling on the magic attractiveness of independence and freedom, quoted Thomas Jefferson's phrase about the infectiousness of the "disease of liberty."

The President, who clings to phrases which catch his fancy, used the Jefferson phrase again Wednesday. And again he emphasized the appeal of freedom and independence.

In Britain, the Times of London, reacting favorably to Kennedy's talk, called his reference to interdependence between the United States and Europe an "imaginative idea, typical of his sense of style and history."

But even this word — interdependence — wasn't new with Kennedy Wednesday. He used it at least once before: In a joint statement with West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer last year after the two met.

If the President ever used the word "partnership" in reference to Europe — in the 1959 campaign, this writer is not aware of it and could find no record of it.

But since 1960 — after becoming president — Kennedy has talked a number of times about the idea of partnership, not only with Europe but with the new nations.

Never — Wednesday or before — has he spelled out what he means by partnership.

At this moment in Europe French President Charles de Gaulle seems to have in mind a unity based on a confederation of European nations, with each retaining its own, full sovereignty.

This would mean they'd have some arrangement for working together but each would remain its own boss.

This is a long way from the kind of greater unity which might be achieved if the West Europeans, for the sake of greater combined strength and common purpose, were willing to yield some sovereignty to a closer merger.

Since the Europeans still haven't worked out the final details of their own common trading market, any realization of greater political unity, even though the idea is cooking, still seems distant.

When Kennedy in the past has talked of partnership with other countries, he has sub-merged it more or less in whatever else he was saying at the time.

For example: He talked of such a partnership in his foreign trade message of 1960 and his foreign trade message this year. In the latter he was talking of a trading partnership. If he has anything broader in mind he hasn't said.

Wednesday, however, by making partnership pretty much the main point in his talk, he gave it a prominence which is necessary to get consideration of it started in this country.

Congress has been perpetually wary of anything which would require this country to yield any of its right or ability to do as it pleased. This was one of the sticking points before the United States joined

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHERE DOES THE FAULT LIE?

Do you like people? That is, do you really like them? Oh, you may get along with the boss because you have to. It is easier to smile and be pleasant with other next door neighbors than to be quarrelling with them. But this is not the point. Do you like people?

It would be quite understandable, of course, if you said you did not. There is a lot about homo sapiens which is quite unlikeable. Everybody gets mean at times. The most dependable characters waver and sometimes break down. Friendship is often outraged. We get a good idea of the character of most people if we meet them in a situation in which money is involved. And all too often under such circumstances people that we liked and trusted take a nose dive in our estimation.

Yet people are indeed worthy of being liked — worthy, in fact, of being loved. God quite evidently thinks so, as the whole or revealed truth indicates. And if you will check back over your life you will see that as a matter of fact you contacts with people more often please you than displease you.

If this is not true, it might be well for you to ask whether the fault may not be in yourself. You can be sure that the whole of humanity is not out of step with you, but you may well be out of step with humanity. If you don't like people, maybe there is something the matter with you rather than with them.

Think it over.

When Did You Notice Anything Unusual?

By HAL BOYLE And The Fifth Kind...

NEW YORK (AP) — Marco Polo, Christopher Columbus and Daniel Boone had one thing in common. None of them had to send back post cards from their travels saying: "Having wonderful time. Sure wish you were here."

That was a tremendous advantage. It left their minds free to enjoy their journeys.

The post card today has become America's most widespread art form. It outranks even the popularity of the credit card.

In some, the mere sight of a post card brings out the mute, inglorious Milton, the hidden Shakespeare. Their hands begin to shake when they see one. They are post card addicts.

They never really get to drink in the splendors of their travels. They are too busy writing from 20 to 30 post cards a day back home. They never come back with a tan from a trip to Florida or a Caribbean cruise — but they do have a fine case of writer's cramp.

Post cards generally fall into four classes — the lyrical, the obligatory, the humorous and the practical.

The lyrical writer is a frustrated author. Whatever he sees, he is stunned by the wonder of it all. He feels a compulsion to record his impressions in 1,000 words of lush prose so crowded you have to read it through a magnifying glass.

That is in itself a nuisance, but the worst trouble with getting lyrical post cards is that when you have read one amateur description of Niagara Falls or the Grand Canyon, you've read 'em all.

The obligatory post card is written through a transparent sense of duty. It usually says something immortal, such as: "Hi, there folks! See you in two weeks."

The humorous post card demonstrates the forced labor of remembrance. It often shows a picture in color of a snake den or a cage of monkeys. On the back is waggishly inscribed: "How's the old office gang? Everybody up to the same old tricks?"

The practical post card gets down to the bare essentials. It has a photo of a motel and a terse, hurriedly scribbled message, such as:

"Had one flat tire so far. Made 650 miles today. Should make 675 tomorrow with luck."

There is a fifth type of post card, which is the most disheartening of all to get. It announces: "Lost my wallet with all my dough and identification. Stuck here. Please wire me $200 soonest. The kids and wife join me in sending you our deepest love."

Other Editors Saying... Sizing Up 'Trimesters'

(Greensboro Daily News)

North Carolina, committed to "quality education," striving to get the most out of its education dollars and beset by a complex hassle over its higher education structure, has special reason for following the new "trimester" system which will be tried experimentally at Florida State University.

There is further Tar Heel relationship in that Florida State President Gordon Blackwell left the Woman's College chancellorship for his present post.

Florida State, dispatches from Tallahassee relate, had to find some way to meet increasing enrollment demands. It could not meet them by a continuing capital outlay program; and even though funds might have been available, construction is at best slow and these demands are waiting to meet right now.

Officials at Florida State have figured their new schedule down to a fine point. Under the trimester system, which will replace the traditional two-semester-a-year schedule, length of class periods will be increased seven minutes, for a 55-minute total. Under that timing work which was previously covered in 16 weeks will be accomplished in 14 weeks and three rather than two semesters will be crowded into the school year. In sum, graduation will be possible in three years.

The new plan, which Florida State spokesmen say will call for a 20 per cent increase in work outside the classroom and admittedly cause some sacrifice and inconvenience to students who have campus jobs, is being put into operation on a voluntary basis. About one-fifth of the student body is expected to participate at the start.

North Carolina, which has heard suggestion that educational physical facilities be put to greater or even continuous use, should welcome this experiment in another state. Results will count for most. Yet as they are evaluated there must always be kept in mind the danger of converting education into an assembly line process and simply grinding out graduates for mere numbers' or graduation's sake.

Not for a moment, however, is this to be construed as saying that anyone who genuinely wants an education should not be willing to accept sacrifice

Heavy Losses

(Henderson Daily Dispatch)

Eastern North Carolina tobacco farmers have suffered the loss of thousands of dollars as a result of a terrific wind and rain storm which struck wide areas in that major tobacco belt last week-end. Always it is possible that first estimates are exaggerated, though not necessarily deliberately. Even if the damage is sharply below the fears expressed at first, many growers have been hard hit, according to reports.

What has happened, and at the time when the crop is at its peak in maturity, stresses anew the uncertainties of the weather, a factor that cannot be avoided and which is ever present in determining the fortunes of producers.

Presumably most growers are insured against such losses as have occurred, especially in a six-county area. But that will not entirely compensate for the heavy damage. It never does, just as insurance generally is not a complete backlog in any sort of major disaster.

Heavy rains which swept large sections of the eastern belt were nothing like so great a threat to the Middle Belt crop. There was enough precipitation, however, to cause concern even here, and additional generous showers could begin to reflect in the condition of plants in the growing fields. Fortunately, overcast skies prevailed long enough to allow for excess water to drain away before clear skies and scorching sunshine return.

Though fortunate in escaping the worst of the week-end devastation in the east, our section, or any section, is not immune from here on out until the crop is fully matured and harvested. Vagaries of the weather have appeared often — than usual during the spring and early summer. They could yet become a menace to what hitherto has held the promise of a good crop of blue-cured leaf this season.

There is consolation in the assurance of crop insurance

Scant Delay In Politics

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Unfortunately, time, tides and politics wait for no man. The entire House of Representatives, a third of the Senate or more, and a number of Governors will be elected in 1962. The political campaign has already started and bothers aspirants more than great affairs. The Kennedy Administration must concern itself with this political situation, for should the next Congress be Republican, it might be very embarrassing.

When a President is popular, it is generally assumed that he is brilliant, little short of a genius. When his popularity begins to wane, he is regarded as a fine person surrounded by crooks, nincompoops, if not idiots. When his popularity is gone, he is presumed to be a fool. But he is the same man whose IQ was indicative of genius. The answer to this paradox really is that the President is what he always was; two years in the White House does not change fundamental character.

Even his best friends must admit that President Kennedy's popularity has suffered severely since May 28. The President did manage to overcome the worst effects of the Cuban fiasco. In spite of all the indignation aroused over the Battle of the Bay of Pigs, President Kennedy was not blamed as much as the CIA and Allen Dulles was permitted to resign.

The steel imbroglio and the stock market debacle did hurt the President. These events gave the impression that the President did not understand the economy of the country, that he was badly advised and that the businessmen whom he consulted were not representative. This criticism could be made of any President who must depend upon experts and advisors of his own choice.

I never measure a man's abilities by his advisors because, first of all, each man is responsible for his own actions, and secondly, one never really knows whose advice is taken. The simple fact is that whoever loses his own money is sore, particularly when he believes that the President could have taken some actions to save him. About 17,000,000 Americans have lost considerable money since May 28 and all of them are annoyed that the President did not intervene to rescue them.

The impression among working businessmen is that this Administration is tougher on business than the Roosevelt, Truman or Eisenhower Administrations were. Certainly, the last years of the Eisenhower Administration were years of numerous anti-trust suits.

However, the business community believes that the Kennedy Administration is anti-business; that the Attorney General's office is particularly unfriendly; and that local prosecuting attorneys engage in entrapments and offers of immunity to improper persons with a view to catching bigger fish.

I do not hold to the view that Robert Kennedy is that sort of person, but as long as businessmen feel that local prosecuting attorneys commit injustices in order to entrap businessmen, they grow antagonistic to the one person in the Administration who can help them.

The Republicans suffer from having no platform and few personalities. Since the Eisenhower Administration, only Senator Barry Goldwater has emerged as a new Presidential possibility. The old names, Nixon and Rockefeller, are not especially inspiring. But much depends upon the 1962 Congressional elections. If the people vote in a Republican Congress, many candidates will appear for the 1964 Presidential election. That is the way of men.

In this country, most of the people are neither Liberal nor Conservative. They are just people and they vote by their likes and dislikes about men. Often history has shown they vote badly, but they always vote according to their own private interests. It is not to be expected that men and women will vote against what they believe to be their private interests. Americans do not live by the the-

Hilkiah, the high priest who discovered the Book of the Law during Josiah's temple renovation, apparently had a son named Jeremiah. When this young man was about 25, the Lord called him to be a prophet.—Jeremiah 1:1-5.

Early in his career Jeremiah delivered a famous message from the Jerusalem temple gate. He told the people not to believe themselves safe from God's wrath simply because His temple was there, and to mend their ways.—Jeremiah 7:1-7.

For some 38 years Jeremiah pleaded uselessly with his people to reform. God directed him once to illustrate His impending wrathful destruction of Jerusalem itself by breaking an earthen flask so it couldn't be mended.—Jeremiah 19:1-13.

Just before the promised destruction of the city, Jeremiah prophesied for his people a 70-year period of captivity in the land of the Babylonians who conquered them.—Jeremiah 25:9-11.

Jeremiah Predicts Tragedy

THE CALL OF A GREAT PROPHET AND HIS FAITHFULNESS TO THAT CALL

Scripture—Jeremiah 1:1-5, 5-8; 7:1-7; 19; 21; 25:1-11.

By N. SPEER JONES

IN LAST week's lesson we saw the first prophecy of Jerusalem's destruction. It was given in about 628 B.C. by a woman named Huldah, in reply to King Josiah's inquiry about what to do, after the Book of Law was discovered and Josiah realized how grievously his people had sinned.

About three years later, c. 625 B.C., God called upon a man named Jeremiah to be His prophet. For some 39 years Jeremiah continued to act as God's loyal spokesman, despite the disbelief, ridicule and scoffing of Jerusalem, until the doom from which he tried to save them fell upon the city with Nebuchadnezzar's conquest in 586 B.C.

At the time of his call, Jeremiah was about 25 years old. He was apparently born in a village about three miles north-east of Jerusalem, called Anathoth — named, ironically invaded, took him captive, but returned him to his throne. Despite Jeremiah's advice, he threw off the Babylonian yoke, and more misery followed. About 597, the Babylonians had him replaced by Zedekiah, who took an oath of allegiance to Nebuchadnezzar.

Once more, despite Jeremiah's counseling, this king cast off his allegiance, uniting with the Egyptians. This prompted the doom which Jeremiah foretold. In the frightful siege of Jerusalem, Jehoiaikim died and his body was thrown outside the walls of the city; Zedekiah saw his sons killed in his presence, had his eyes put out, and was taken in chains to Babylon with the other Jewish leaders.

Jeremiah survived the fall of Jerusalem, but we do not know for how long; nor do we know for certain where or how he died.

enough, for a Phoenician goddess named Anath. This village was one of 13 set aside for the priests in lower Palestine.

Jeremiah's father was Hilkiah, apparently the priest in last week's lesson who discovered the Book of the Law during Josiah's rebuilding of the temple.

Jeremiah's work as a prophet spanned the last 17 years of Josiah's reign, the 11 years of Jehoiaikim's and the 11 of Zedekiah's.

Jehoiaikim and Zedekiah were the second and third sons, respectively, of Josiah. The first, Jehoahaz, succeeded his father but was soon deposed by the influence of the Egyptians, who put on the throne Jehoiaikim, a cruel tyrant who reinstated all the abominations his father had abolished. Egypt apparently stemmed from the early vision he had of a seething cauldron whose smoke blew from the north, indicating that direction as the source of Jerusalem's doom. By chapter 21, verse 7, Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon is specifically named as the future conqueror of Jerusalem.

The destruction of this city has a greater amount of Old Testament prophecy devoted to it than any other event except the coming of the Messiah; it dates back as far as 11 Kings.

The people simply could not believe that any harm could befall God's City, for His temple was there. This is the meaning of Jeremiah 7:4; the idolatrous people went about their pagan worship, saying "the temple of Jehovah is here and therefore, we are safe."

Ont. Canal Clogged By Labor Argument

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (AP)—The 26-mile Welland Canal between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie was plugged at both ends today by ships involved in labor dispute and traffic on the St. Lawrence Seaway link was halted.

The blockage followed the spreading boycott against ships manned by members of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

The boycott began with lockmasters in the St. Lawrence Seaway, demonstrating their sympathy with the Canadian Maritime Union, a bitter rival of the SIU.

The lockmasters are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers. The brotherhood and the CMU are members of the Canadian Labor Congress which kicked out the SIU two years ago.

The boycott spread to the Welland Canal lockmasters.

Thursday night two SIU-manned ships blocked the entry at both ends of the canal. Five down-bound ocean freighters were caught in the passage. Two others were waiting in Lake Ontario to go through.

Launched at 8 a.m. Thursday, the boycott threatened to bring most of Canada's lake fleet to a halt. Ships operated by Canada Steamship Lines, largest of the lake operators, were hard hit.

Transport Minister Leon Balcer and Labor Minister Michael Starr conferred for more than two hours with William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Labor Congress in a futile search for a formula to meet CLC conditions for ending the boycott.

The CLC has listed three conditions:

- (1) An assurance of an end to what it termed the SIU reign of terror on the Great Lakes;
- (2) Free movement of CMU-manned ships now tied up in U.S. ports by a boycott of longshoremen cooperating with the SIU; and
- (3) A full government inquiry into the affairs of the SIU.

Consider Reorganization Of Higher Education Bd.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—A compromise plan to reorganize the State Board of Higher Education was considered today by the governor's Commission on Education Beyond the High School.

The plan, approved last Saturday by two committees of the commission, failed to win over Board Chairman L. P. McLendon of Greensboro.

He pledged to fight the reorganization plan before the full commission.

The revised proposal would put fewer college presidents on the board than would be the case under the original plan.

It also would leave the board the power to allocate and coordinate the educational functions of the various colleges. The original proposal would have stripped away this power.

The revised plan calls for an 11-member board—six laymen, one member of the State Board of Education, the president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and three other public college heads. The original plan called for a 15-member board with five public and two private college presidents.

At present the board has nine members, but no college presidents.

The commission also was expected to consider a proposal to charge out-of-state students the cost of undergraduate instruction at state-supported colleges in the state.

The tuition proposal was approved Thursday night by a two subcommittees of the full commission. The action came after an agreement was reached on the proposal by McLendon and President William C. Friday of the consolidated university.

Claimant List For $$$ Grows

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—The federal government headed a growing list of claimants today to a $2.4 million fortune found in the trunk of a dusty, old automobile.

Bookmaker Joseph (Newsboy) Moriarty, 52, refused to discuss ownership of the treasure with an FBI agent Thursday, and authorities said his girl friend, Anna Petrick, followed suit.

Questioned at State Prison in Trenton, Moriarty would give only his name and said he plans to retain a lawyer, the agent said.

Local authorities who questioned Miss Petrick said she admitted owning the car in which the money was found but for the most part would not elaborate.

Miss Petrick, who gave her age as "over 21", was quoted as having said she had known Moriarty "practically all his life."

While Moriarty and Miss Petrick would neither deny or confirm ownership of the money, others had their eye on it.

U.S. Atty. David M. Satz Jr. said the federal government, "acting on the basis of strong indications" that the money had been accumulated by Moriarty, was taking steps to claim the entire amount.

Satz said the government could confiscate the money on three grounds.

He said the government already has six liens, totaling $355,000 on file against Moriarty; that concealed moneys are legally forfeited to the government; and that money obtained from illegal activities is subject to seizure by the government.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes said New Jersey might put in a claim, but he declined to speculate on what its legal basis might be. He said it is obvious the money had an illegal source.

Presidential Investment Invitation For Japanese

By ALAN CLINE
TOKYO (AP)—The Kennedy administration has invited Japan to invest in building factories in the United States.

The invitation was announced by the Japanese foreign ministry and confirmed by a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy.

Wichita, Kan., Wilmington, N.C., Maine, New Jersey and areas on the West Coast were mentioned as regions where industrialization might be expanded with Japanese funds.

Such a development would help correct a U.S. adverse balance of payments situation, sources said. Japanese exports to the United States last year totaled nearly $1.5 billion. Imports from the United States total $1.2 billion.

Japanese industry has been working on a theory that it must produce abroad to hold its overseas markets. Plants have been established in Southeast Asia, Latin America and on a limited scale in Europe. But there had been no talk here about moving into the United States.

Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina said he was not familiar with the invitation, but he noted that Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges is a former governor of North Carolina. "A former governor (Hodges) invited the Germans to build plants here, and we all thought that was a good idea," he said.

Wilmington officials were not available for comment immediately.

The invitation was reported in today's Nihon Keizai, a respected financial daily, which said the invitation was received from the U.S. Department of Commerce through the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman confirmed the offer but pointed out that the areas involved were not depressed regions but "areas of potential for further industrialization."

The spokesman said the offer was an extension abroad of programs by the various states to encourage investors from within the nation, resulting from the setting up of an Office of International Investment within the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Kansas and North Carolina were mentioned, he explained, "because it so happened that we happened to have investment literature on these states on hand. But there are other areas too, such as Maine, New Jersey and areas on the West Coast."

Japanese business sources said the plan was still in an embryonic stage with many barriers involved, such as immigration laws relating to sending Japanese personnel to the United States, differences in management practices, and the gap between American and Japanese wage levels.

It was not known whether specific industries were mentioned in the American proposal.

The only sizable Japanese manufacturing venture to date in the United States is the Alaska Pulp Co., a government-backed firm that operates a mill at Sitka, Alaska.

Jap-Enticing Efforts Are Part Of Broad Drive

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. government efforts to encourage the Japanese to invest in building factories in the United States is part of a much broader campaign to lure investment capital from all the industrialized countries.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges last year set up in his department an Office of International Investment with a division devoted exclusively to attempting to attract foreign capital. The idea was to get the principal countries of Western Europe and Japan to invest in plants here just as American businessmen have been setting up facilities abroad.

The principal motivation for the program was the persistent deficit in the U.S. balance of payments, which seems more money leave the country each year than comes in. If Europeans and the Japanese send over funds to build factories, these investments would reduce the payments deficit, officials said.

R. L. Oshins, director of the Office of International Investment, said the overtures to Japanese businessmen, announced today in Tokyo, actually took place some months ago.

Oshins reported that Jack N. Behrman, assistant secretary of commerce for international affairs, broached the idea of factory building here by the Japanese during joint meetings in Tokyo last fall of members of the American and Japanese cabinets.

Oshins said that, because Japanese participants expressed interest, the Commerce Department initiated a round of correspondence with the State Department urging that U.S. diplomats in Japan get behind the proposal. He said there had been no correspondence on the subject in several months.

Attempted Donation Of $11,427 To Cult

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A white woman carrying a small fortune in stocks and cash told police she tried to donate $11,427 to the Black Muslim sect Thursday night but failed.

Helen Herman, 52, who gave a Santa Monica address and talked of having once lived in Chicago, was taken to Central Receiving Hospital and later transferred to General Hospital for observation.

Officers quoted her as saying she walked up to the Temple of Islam and told three men standing outside: "I want to give you some money to help kill the white people."

The officers said she was ignored. Eventually, she walked around the corner to a private residence and knocked on the door.

When Cora Weaver opened the door, Mrs. Herman walked in without a word, strolled through the living room and kitchen into a large closet.

Police said it took four patrolmen to remove her from the house. During the struggle, one of Mrs. Herman's two handbags burst open and showered the officers with $100 bills.

At the Receiving Hospital, attendants said they found 649 shares of blue chip stock valued at $30,040 sewed into the woman's undergarments.

Investigators said 489 shares had been signed and were negotiable.

"When I found out we were all going to die, I started signing the stocks and cashing in as many as I could," she told doctors.

"But they just kept coming in the mail. So I left Chicago."

To NY And Back Without A Ticket

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP)—There was just one thing wrong with the 2,400 mile jet flight John O'Rourke, 13, took from Los Angeles to New York. He didn't have a ticket.

New York police, alerted by Trans World Airlines, met the plane; gave him breakfast and shunted him back to Los Angeles in time for lunch Wednesday.

John O'Rourke, the boy's father, of Redondo Beach, said the boy had run away previously to San Diego and Winslow, Ariz.

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

Pitt's Loss

Not only has Ayden High School suffered a loss with the resignation of Stuart Tripp, but so has the entire county as far as athletics are concerned. The veteran Ayden coach is well-rounded in his ability to coach all three major sports and come up with winning teams in all three.

While this past year with the Tornados has probably been the best of his career, Coach Tripp has had winning teams a good percent of the time. His teams have been an asset to the county when they were on the tournament road.

In this case Ayden's loss happens to be Tarboro's gain. The job at Tarboro moves the long-time Class A coach into a larger school with more to work with. Tarboro is a Class 3-A school and a member of the Northeastern Conference along with Rose High in Greenville. We hope Tarboro players and fans will give Coach Tripp all of the support he needs to field top notch teams.

In the event that the veteran Ayden Coach gets this support in his new capacity the already tough Northeastern conference will be even tougher if Tripp's record over the years means anything. The coach will have more boys to choose from in making up his squads whereas in the past he has just about had to take anybody who wanted to play in order to make a team.

We have been unable to get in touch with Coach Tripp since his resignation for comment, but we feel sure that a lot of thought went into the decision and we wish him the best of luck. He is a man who has proven himself over the years and deserves the best.

It will be our pleasure to continue working with Coach Tripp in the Northeastern Conference. We are glad he has not left the area and especially pleased that he is still in North Carolina.

We understand he had some attractive out-of-state offers and North Carolina often loses some of her best teachers as well as coaches to other states.

Rain And Sports

Not only has the rain been hard on the farmers this past week, but it has also played havoc with sports. Especially baseball in our area. All of the teams were already behind in their schedules before this recent onset of heavy rains which caused the postponement of additional games.

In addition to baseball, the usual summer sports of swimming, fishing and boating have been affected. This July 4th was the first this columnist can remember that he has not been swimming and boating and it was sort of disappointing. However, we did take the day off and go to the river hoping for a good day. But we just sat in the house and watched the rain come and the water from high tides lap at the piers across the street.

There is nothing we can do about this wet weather, but we, along with most other eastern North Carolina residents, do wish that it would come to an end. Most summers are too dry. This summer is too wet. Maybe next summer will be just right. At least we can hope.

Many Entered In Swimming Meet

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The seventh annual Eastern Invitational age group swimming championships opened here today, with 512 swimmers entered. Qualifying began at 9 a.m., with finals scheduled tonight at 7 p.m. The same schedule will be followed Saturday.

Standouts in the girls' division include Dale Barnard of Washington's Congressional Country Club, Susie Resseguie of Sanford, Kathy Hennessy of Northern Virginia, Luray Lindgren of Charlotte and Kathy Helfrich of Spartanburg.

In the boys' division, the N.C. State College Athletic Association team will be seeking the American record in the 200-meter free-style relay.

Thompson Mann of the North Carolina Athletic Club and Ed Bartsch of the University of Michigan are expected to stage the best individual race of the meet in the 100-meter backstroke event. Bartsch was third and Mann fourth in the national AAU meet.

Patton Heads CGA Field As The Defending Champ

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—Billy Joe Patton returned to the scene of his first triumph of consequence today — as defending

Home Builders Top Dairy 6-2

In the only game played in the Teen-er League Thursday night Home Builders defeated Carolina Dairy 6-2 in a game which was played under protest after the fifth inning.

The Carolina Dairy coach protested the contest after Home Builder runner advanced two bases on a passed ball which was thrown home.

The Builders opened the scoring in the bottom of the second when Malcolm Beaman connected for a single, stole second and went to third on an error by the catcher. Beaman scored on a passed ball.

In the bottom of the third the Builders added another run when Melton Hadley got on with an error by the third baseman. A passed ball and a single aided in Hadley's scoring effort.

In the top of the fourth the Dairy gained their first run of the game when Chip Calloway hit a homerun with nobody on. The bottom of the fourth saw the Builders increase their lead when Woody Hardy got on with an error and Bill Wilkerson was hit by the pitcher which ended in two runs.

Carolina Dairy gained their final run of the game in the top of the fifth when Van Fleming walked and was able to score.

The Builders increased their lead by two more runs in the bottom of the fifth when Tommy Smith got on with an error by the shortstop and Beaman singled for his second hit of the game.

The winning pitcher for the Builders was Tommy Smith who allowed three hits, struck out four and walked five. Credited with the loss was Jimmy Heath who along with a relief hurler allowed six hits, struck out six and walked four.

A doubleheader was scheduled tonight in the Teen-er League with College View playing Planters Bank and State Bank meeting Pepsi Cola.

champion in the Carolina Golf Association Amateur tournament.

The 40-year-old Morganton, N.C. lumberman headed a field of 134 players seeking 64 places at stake in the championship flight match play with an 18 hole qualifying round today.

It was at the Florence Country Club 15 years ago that Patton won the first of his three Carolina titles.

He won his second in 1958 and last summer added No. 3. That tied him with Fred Laxton (1921-23) as the biggest winner in CGA annals.

Asked to compare the 6,400-yard, par 71 course as he found it in a Thursday practice round with the course of 15 years ago, he noted that the fairways were more lush and the greens had taken on new contours, making the course a bit more difficult.

As for his game, Billy Joe observed, with a characteristic impish grin, "Terrible, I played awful today."

After winning the CGA crown at Gastonia, N.C., last summer, Patton went on to take the Southern Amateur title and last April won the North and South Amateur at Pinehurst, N.C.

He has a study band of challengers, 70 from South Carolina and 63 from North Carolina confronting him here in a 5-day scramble that ends with a 36-hole final match Tuesday. Before that, there will be two rounds on both Saturday and Sunday and 18-hole semifinals Monday.

After the top 64 are determined tonight, the next 64 will move into four flights of 16 each.

Most of the pre-tournament talk Thursday centered about the performances of little Sam Marsh the Greenville gamester, and Jay Langston, recent Rock Hill High School graduate.

Marsh, despite two front nine bogies, had a six under par 65 warmup. He had 29 putts en route to his 65.

Langston, who enters the University of Tennessee in the fall, shot a 73 with a hole-in-one on the 192-yard third — his third ace and second in a couple of weeks. He was 1961 CGA junior champ.

He knocked a six iron tee shot into the cup on No. 3.

Kiwanis And Jaycees Both Gain Victories

The Kiwanis defeated the Lions 8-0 in the first game of a North State doubleheader and the Jaycees won the second contest when they downed Texaco 12-2.

In gaining their victory the Kiwanis opened up the scoring in the bottom of the second inning as they picked up six runs. Aiding the scoring were doubles by Mark Tipton and singles by Harry Wilson and Bob Brown.

Neither team was able to score again until the bottom of the fourth when the Kiwanis added two, more runs to their lead. These were gained on a single by Bob Brown and a walk by Randy Boyd. A couple of Lion errors aided in the scoring.

The winning pitcher for Kiwanis was Bob Brown who gave up three hits, walked three and struck out five. Jeff Wilson was credited with the loss as he allowed eight hits, struck out three and walked five.

In the second game the Jaycees opened up the scoring in the bottom of the second when they gained nine runs off two doubles by Cleve Branch and Mike Harrington, two singles by Steve Shackelford and Ken Hite five walks, a fielder's choice and an error.

The Jaycees picked up two additional runs in the bottom of the third and one in the fifth. Texaco's only runs came in the top of the sixth when Bobby Hardy and Leon Peardon both walked.

The winning pitcher was Cleve Branch who along with relief pitcher Ronnie Leggett gave up two hits, struck out six and walked six. Credited with the loss was Leon Peardon who along with Scot Hardy allowed eight hits, struck out three and walked 11.

The regularly scheduled game today in the North State League was between the Optimist and Lions. The Jaycees and Coca Cola were scheduled to play a makeup game at 3 p.m.

ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville's Post 39 American Legion team suffered its third loss of the season last night at the hands of league leading Rocky Mount 3-0.

Randy Pridgen hurled the shutout against Greenville as he gave up only three hits during the contest. Pridgen struck out six and walked only two.

The losing pitcher for Greenville was James Braxton—who was relieved in the seventh by Wayne Cox of Bath. The two pitchers allowed eight hits, struck out seven and walked two.

Rocky Mount opened up the scoring in the bottom of the first when Braxton hit leadoff batter Earl Pittman. The next batter, Wayne Dunn, singled, but was picked off at first by the pitcher. Carlton Beland walked and Jimmy Daniels singled scoring Pittman. Beland was thrown out trying to reach third on the hit which ended the inning.

Both teams remained scoreless and the contest was mostly a pitcher's battle until the bottom of the seventh when Rocky Mount managed to pick up their other two runs.

Don Ferrell led off the inning at the plate with a walk and Pridgen struck out. Pittman was safe on an error by the shortstop. Then Dunn hit a fielder's choice to the second baseman which loaded the bases.

Greenville Coach Ray Pennington then put Cox in to pitch with only one out. The first batter, Danny Talbot, connected for a single to left field scoring Ferrell and Pittman came in on an error by the pitcher.

The side was retired when Beland was out at first and Dunn was thrown out trying to score on the play.

Of the three hits made by Greenville, two of them were in the infield. The Post 39 team had six men left on during the contest.

Rocky Mount plays Raleigh tonight and Greenville is scheduled to host Raleigh Saturday. This will conclude the season and other rained-out games will not be played.

The local team is assured of second place and it would be impossible for Greenville to finish in first place as Rocky Mount now has a 10-2 record and Greenville an 8-3 mark.

The playoffs are set to begin Tuesday night at 7:45 in Rocky Mount with the second game at Guy Smith Stadium in Greenville Wednesday at the same time. If a third game is needed it will be in Rocky Mount Thursday night.

All-Star Selection Is Complete

Susman, Sukova Play In Finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Karen Hantze Susman, United States Wightman Cup tennis star, today started laying plans to master a loping, soft-balling Czech player who reached the Wimbledon final by upsetting four of the world's top stars.

Karen, 19, plays Vera Sukova, 30, in the final Saturday. The two have never met before.

Karen was seeded No. 8. Nobody thought of seeding Mrs. Sukova, an ambling, heavily built baseline player who has been around the European circuit for years and never done anything spectacular.

But in the last 10 days, almost unnoticed, she has demolished Jan Lehane of Australia and three seeded stars—defending champion Angela Mortimer of Britain, U.S. Wightman Cup star Darlene Hard and 1959-60 Wimbledon champion Maria Bueno of Brazil.

Mrs. Sukova achieved her most incredible triumph Thursday, edging out Miss Bueno, the tennis tigress with the power service and the flashing volley, 6-4, 6-3 in the semifinals.

Mrs. Susman avenged a Wightman Cup defeat and crushed Ann Haydon of Britain 6-6, 6-1.

"I don't know much about Mrs. Sukova," Mrs. Susman admitted. "I've watched her play a few times, and I know she is a baseline player. I shall have to start thinking out a plan to beat her."

It won't be easy. One of Mrs. Sukova's most distinguished victims, Darlene Hard, summed her up like this: "She's one of the most deceptive players in the game today."

Mrs. Sukova, a former basketball international who keeps her weight down by going for long runs three times a week through the winter, came to Wimbledon with a skimpy tennis wardrobe of one skirt and one pair of socks.

"I shall take the skirt back to my hotel and wash it in time for the final," she said. "The socks are my lucky pair."

Karen, who comes from Chula Vista, Calif., but now lives with her husband Rod at San Antonio, Tex., sank the hopes of the crowd on the center court by her clear-cut victory over Miss Haydon, the pride of Britain.

If Mrs. Susman wins, she will take the title back to America for the first time since Althea Gibson won it in 1956. Mrs. Sukova is the first Czech ever to reach the women's final.

Doubleheaders In Carolina Loop Thursday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The action was heavy in the Carolina League Thursday night as four doubleheaders were reeled off.

Good pitching enabled the second place Kinston Eagles to keep close on the heels of the league-leading Durham Bulls. Kinston defeated Rocky Mount 1-0 and 7-0.

Steve Blass pitched a four hitter for Kinston in the opener. The winning run came in the eighth inning of a regulation seven-inning game. Phil Cunningham blanked Rocky Mount on six hits in the second game.

Durham took a doubleheader from Greensboro, 9-2 and 6-6. The Bulls got only four hits in the seven-inning opener but capitalized on 12 bases on A.L.S.

Raleigh and Wilson split a pair, Wilson winning the opener 6-3 and the Caps taking the second game 10-4. The Tobs took advantage of pitching wildness to score three runs in the first three innings of the opener.

Winston-Salem got good pitching and defeated Burlington 5-1 and 3-2. Dave Busby held Burlington to five hits in the opener. Then Mickey Sinks bested Fuzzy Faze, who was in a mound battle in the second game. Faze yielded only three hits, five less than Sinks.

Tonight's games: Raleigh at Winston-Salem; Rocky Mount at Greensboro; Burlington at Wilson.

STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BATTING—Rocky Colavito, Tigers, became second player this season to hit three homers, driving in five runs with homers in fourth, fifth and seventh innings of 7-6 loss to Cleveland.

PITCHING—Al McBean, Pirates, limited Philadelphia to six hits, all singles, struck out five and walked only one for 5-0 victory.

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Manager Ralph Houk completed selection of the American League all-stars today and ducked for cover.

The Yankee pilot added 17 players to the front line squad of eight who will meet the National League stars in Washington next Tuesday, naming eight pitchers and nine alternate infielders, outfielders and catchers.

Houk, like his National League counterpart Fred Hutchinson, picked only one southpaw on his pitching staff—Hank Aguirre (6-3) of Detroit. His right-handers are Dick Donovan, Cleveland (12-9), Camilo Pascual, Minnesota (12-4), Jim Bunning, Detroit (8-4), Bill Monbouquette, Boston (7-6), Dave Stenhouse, Washington (6-3) and Hoyt Wilhelm, Baltimore (3-5), and Ralph Terry, New York (10-7).

Houk followed the player poll for the rest of the squad, naming the second choices at each position and adding his own catcher, Elston Howard, who finished third in the balloting.

Previously announced as starting players, selected by their fellow athletes, are outfielders Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris of New York and Leon Wagner of Los Angeles, catcher Earl Batley and third baseman Rich Rollins of Minnesota, Baltimore first baseman Jim Gentile, Los Angeles second baseman Billy Moran and shortstop Luis Aparicio of Chicago.

These eight must play at least three innings, barring injury. Backing them will be outfielders Rocky Colavito of Detroit, Lee Thomas of Los Angeles and Jim Landis of Chicago; infielders Norm Siebern of Kansas City, Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh of New York and Brooks Robinson of Baltimore; and catchers John Romano of Cleveland and Howard.

Although Houk will not announce his starting lineup and batting order until Monday, he most likely will switch his two outfielders, moving Mantle from center to right field with Maris taking over at center as has been the case since Mantle returned to the Yankee lineup after an early season injury.

All shrikes, known locally in North Carolina as "Butcher Birds," have the habit of impaling their prey on thorns, splinters or barbed wire when not needed for immediate consumption.

National League President Warren Giles has agreed to the change.

Houk picked two managers, Baltimore's Billy Hitchcock and Washington's Mickey Vernon, as his coaches. The selection of Hitchcock is significant in as much as several weeks ago, Houk and Hitchcock nearly came to blows in a player eruption during a game at Yankee Stadium between the Yankees and Orioles.

Nicklaus Talks About His Bugs

By JOHN FARROW

TROON, Scotland, (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, United States Open Champion, today talked about his worries that he might not even qualify for the British Open Golf Championship starting Monday—because of some bugs in his game.

Nicklaus, of Tucson, Ariz., is among the favorites in the field of about 250 golfers from 19 countries entered for the championship.

Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., who won the title last year, is the betting favorite at 2-1. Nicklaus and Gary Player of South Africa, winner in 1959, are joint second favorites at 11-2.

"Some of my iron shots have been 15 feet off target to the right and this kinda bugs me," the 22-year-old Nicklaus said.

"But I have had my clubs adjusted and I'm hoping things are going to get sorted out quickly."

"I played a round late yesterday afternoon with the adjusted clubs and had a 68. That's the best I've done here."

Nicklaus played with Palmer, Player and Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif. They practiced over the 6,788 yard par 37-35-72 Lochgreen course—one of the two qualifying layouts.

Palmer and Rodgers defeated Player and Nicklaus 2 and 1. Palmer, Rodgers and Player all shot 70s.

Qualifying rounds will be played over the Troon championship links and secondary course of Lochgreen Monday and Tuesday.

A maximum of 120 low scorers will advance to Wednesday's play. The field will be cut to a maximum of 50 for the final two rounds Friday.

Dillard Shoots Indians Into Tie For 1st Place

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Dillard, who he? He's the bench warmer who fired a two-homer salvo and shot the Cleveland Indians into a tie for the American League lead. That's who.

The outfielder came on as a late-inning substitute Wednesday and hit a grand slam in the 13th inning for a 6-2 victory over Detroit. Thursday night he replaced the injured Al Luplow and hit the game-winner with two out in the ninth for a 7-6 victory over the Tigers.

The Giants 11-3 and Pittsburgh blanked Philadelphia 5-0 in the only games on an abbreviated schedule.

Dillard, 25, entered the Indians line-up Thursday when Luplow collapsed with a pulled muscle after making a spectacular running catch of Bill Bruton's drive in the fifth inning. He failed to get a hit his first time up, but in the ninth he tagged a Ron Kline (1-3) pitch to snap a 6-6 tie brought about by Colavito's trio of circuit shots.

Continuing a rampage in which he has hit at a .300 clip for the last month with 11 homers and 29 runs batted in, Colavito connected in the fourth, fifth and seventh innings after grounding out his first time up. In the eighth, with a chance to become the first player in baseball history to hit four homers twice, the Tigers' slugger lashed a long foul before grounding out. Colavito hit four consecutive homers June 10, 1959 to join that select group.

Colavito's third homer—his 20th of the year—created the 6-6 tie that Dillard broke. It gave the triumph to Bill Dailley (1-0). Luplow and John Romano also homered for the Indians.

The White Sox built a 4-1 lead against Jack Fisher by the fourth inning, but could get only one hit thereafter against Hal Brown and Wes Stock. Brandt made it 4-2 with a homer in the seventh, then doubled to drive home the clincher in a three-run, eighth-inning rally after Gentile knocked in a pair with a bases-loaded single. The victory went to Brown (4-2) while Frank Baumann (1-3) took the loss.

More Time Is For Speedway

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Charlotte Motor Speedway has been granted more time to reorganize and pay back debts totaling about $900,000.

The extension was granted by U.S. District Judge J. B. Craven Thursday at the request of Robert N. Robinson, speedway trustee. Robinson said the extension was necessary to continue an investigation of past operations of the track.

"It is my opinion that the speedway will be successfully reorganized under Chapter 10" (of the Federal Bankruptcy Act), said Judge Craven. "I am committing myself for the first time to see this thing through to the end, or until something changes," he continued.

Attorneys for the creditors opposed the extension, most of the debts were incurred in construction of the track.

Robinson, in requesting more time, quoted from a letter from U.S. Atty. William Medford directing the FBI to cooperate in the investigation of past operations. The FBI said it has jurisdiction under the Federal Bankruptcy Act and that it was investigating to determine if there were any irregularities and if they came under the scope of the act.

Pink Panties Caused Loss?

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Question: Can the color of a girl's panties affect her tennis?

Maria Bueno, the 22-year-old Brazilian champ, wore dazzling pink drawers at her Wimbledon semifinal Thursday.

Which, some folks say, is one reason why she lost.

Maria's pants were so luminous that every time she displayed them—when she served or leaped for a shot—the center court crowd laughed.

And every time they laughed Maria fumed.

"The crowd's laughter must have affected her tennis," said Dr. Paulo da Silva Costa, president of the Brazilian Tennis Federation.

Phil Litt, Yankee reserve infielder, played American Legion baseball in Baltimore.

Dodgers Defeat SF Giants 11-3

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's their usual style to dazzle the National League opposition with speed and footwork. But for a change of pace, the sreaking Los Angeles Dodgers can slug away with a heavyweight punch.

They rolled to an 11-3 romp Thursday in the opener of the four-game series at San Francisco to boost their lead over the Giants to a game and a half.

Don Drysdale, Dodger speedballer, quelled the Giant batters on eight hits and won his 15th. Tommie Davis, Frank Howard, Ron Fairly and Willie Davis counted four homers among their total of nine hits.

In the NL's only other game, Alvin McBean threw a six-hitter as Pittsburgh blanked Philadelphia 5-0.

In the American League, Cleveland edged Detroit 7-6 and moved into a first-place tie with Los Angeles. Baltimore rallied for a

Tucker Replaces Tuckered Grantt

CLAREMONT, N. C. (AP)—The town board has hired George Tucker to replace Buren Grantt, who resigned as the town's only policeman last month because of "added duties."

Here is what Tucker must do for this town of 730 people: Police the community for law violations. Mow the grass on town property. Haul garbage. Maintain the streets. Read the water meters. Check the town's water pumps. Keep the town hall clean.

LAST CHANCE VALLEY

BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

CHAPTER II

It was about ten o'clock in the evening, and Thorpe McAffee had played a half-dozen hands, winning a few small pots, when the red-whiskered man pushed through the door, his face somewhat flushed with drink, and a gleam in his eyes as he strode toward the bar.

He weighed over two hundred and thirty pounds, was at least six feet three inches tall, with a comparatively small head for his body. He had huge shoulders, a thick waist and heavy legs.

One of the players at Thorpe's table said in a low voice, "Con Baumholtz is back. Thought he was up Riorland way."

Thorpe glanced at the big man at the bar, then forgot about him until Jim Varney stepped up to his shoulders and said in a low voice, "That big horse at the bar, Thorpe, is looking to make trouble."

Thorpe smiled and said, "I can throw him out. The Birdcage is still partly owned by me."

"I'd be willing to take care of him myself," Varney said, "but not with fists, of course. It seems, though, he has a quarrel with you."

Thorpe raised his eyebrows. "With me?" he repeated.

"Claims you shot up his friend, Jope Hoagland," Varney said, "which is a lot of nonsense. We both know Hoagland wasn't the kind who went about making friends. There's nobody in this town gives a hoot that he's dead."

Thorpe scowled. "You think somebody's setting this Baumholtz on me?" he asked.

Varney nodded. "It looks that way to me," he said. "I could get him out of the place, but that wouldn't solve anything."

Thorpe shook his head. "It would not," he agreed. He sat at the table for a moment, looking at the cards in his hand, remembering that he'd done a lot of investigating that day. He asked questions about Death Valley, about borax, and probably the word had spread through town that he now was interested in hauling. Possibly someone was using Con Baumholtz to discourage him.

Baumholtz stood at the bar, his back toward Thorpe, and Thorpe could hear him speaking to one of the bartenders.

"He's a big one," Varney said worriedly. "I wouldn't want to tackle him. Why not let me put a gun in his back and order him out?"

"L. t. it go," Thorpe said, and continued playing at the card table.

After a while Baumholtz left the bar and took a seat at one of the card tables quite close to where Thorpe was sitting. He pulled his way into the game, uninvited, and no one had the courage to ask him to stay out.

Sitting with his back toward the man, Thorpe heard him call for whiskey. When the waiter came with it on a tray, the big fellow spat it out on the floor and scowled. "Rat-gut! When my friend Hoagland was here, he didn't set out this kind of wolf bait for a man."

It was Thorpe's turn to deal, and he shuffled the cards mechanically and dealt them out to the three men playing with him. None of them said anything, knowing that Baumholtz was pushing for a fight.

Con Baumholtz said in a loud voice, "Place is run down since they murdered my friend, Hoagland."

Thorpe dealt the last card, then turned his head to look straight at the big, red-whiskered man. The big fellow had greenish eyes, a fuzz of reddish hair to go with the red whiskers, and he wore a dirty gray, sweat-stained flannel shirt, along with a bull-whacker's high boots.

Thorpe looked at him calmly and coolly, then turned back to his card game. He definitely heard the man at his left swallow a lump in his throat.

Apparently thinking that Thorpe had looked him over and decided that he was too tough, Baumholtz became even more arrogant. He said loudly, "They ought to hang a man shoots somebody in the belly who ain't even armed. Man did that is lower than a dog."

This was as far as Thorpe could let it go. He looked at the cards in his hand, and then he slid them together face down on the table and started to pick up his chips. He said, "Gentlemen, I'm out."

He walked on toward the bar, passing within a few feet of Baumholtz, and cashed in his chips with one of the bartenders. As he was picking up his money he noticed an empty liquor bottle on the bar nearby.

Varney was watching him worriedly as Jim spoke to a customer at the other end of the bar. Thorpe picked up the bottle, holding it by the neck, and then he walked without haste over to the table where Baumholtz was sitting.

The big fellow didn't see him until Thorpe was at his elbow, and then he looked up in surprise. He'd evidently thought that Thorpe was going to back out of the fight.

Thorpe said softly, "My name's McAffee. I shot Jope Hoagland last night."

Then he swung the bottle, holding it by the neck, crashing it down across Baumholtz's black felt hat. The big fellow's eyes went glassy and he slumped forward on the table, scattering cards, chips and glasses on the floor.

Bottle still in hand, Thorpe returned to the bar and placed the bottle where he'd found it.

Jim Varney came up, grinning, and said, "Best way to handle it, Thorpe. I was hoping you wouldn't dirty your hands with him."

Thorpe turned and put both elbows on the bar. He said, "It'll come to that, Jim. You can't hurt that fellow with a bottle. He'll be out of it in a few minutes."

The card games had stopped and every man in the room was looking at Baumholtz slumped on the table.

Marcia Reynolds, who had been talking with a man across the room, came toward the bar now and said worriedly, "I hear he killed a man with his fists up in Riorland less than a month ago, Thorpe. He's here without a gun, so you can't shoot him. Why don't you leave?"

"Wouldn't want to miss the fun," Thorpe told her. "Our friend Baumholtz will be a surprised man when he comes to."

He had his drink, then, with Varney standing on one side of him, Marcia on the other, Neil Farrington was watching him from the table, a cigar in his mouth, amusement in his hazel eyes.

Farrington left the table and came up to the bar. "That was a rough one you tackled there, McAffee," he said.

"I'll handle him," Thorpe replied, "and some day I'll handle the man who sent him."

Farrington looked puzzled. "Hoagland never made a friend in his life," Thorpe stated. "Who would fight for him? This gorilla scarcely knew Hoagland."

They watched Baumholtz beginning to stir at the table. He stared around, bleary-eyed.

Thorpe said to the bartender over his shoulder, "Give him a drink. It's on me."

He watched the bartender move from the bar and set a glass down on the table in front of Baumholtz. Con took the drink, and the liquor cleared his mind.

His green eyes started to move around the room, and ultimately came to rest on Thorpe at the bar.

"Here it comes," Jim Varney murmured.

ECC Professor To Attend Meet

NEW ORLEANS—Dr. Shepard M. Faber, associate professor of science at East Carolina College, will participate in the summer institute in radiation biology for college teachers which will be conducted July 8-August 31 at Tulane University.

Emphasis during the eight-week course will be on a study of radiation effects on living organisms and systems, supplemented by studies of the research, medical and industrial applications of radiation and isotopes, according to Dr. John K. Hampton Jr., director of the institute.

The institute is supported jointly by the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Science Foundation.

4-H Sponsors Are Announced

Sponsoring committees for the organization of Community 4-H Clubs in the Grimesland and Paoctous areas have been appointed as the first step in the organization of clubs in these areas.

Named to the committee from Paoctous were B. W. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Lee Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson. The Grimesland area will be represented on the committee by Mrs. Elmo Hodges, Mrs. Van Buren Jox, Glenn Hardee, J. Elbert Mills, and Herman E. Hill.

The sponsoring committees will help organize community 4-H Clubs in these areas by securing adult 4-H leaders to work with 4-H youth.

Award Of Merit For TV Station

WNCT received an Award of Merit this week for its help in a national campaign to prevent blasting cap accidents.

The announcement of the award came from The Institute of Makers of Explosives in recognition of the public service time WNCT has contributed for showings of film spots warning youngsters not to touch blasting caps.

Credit for the reduction of the blasting cap accident rate in recent years belongs to the nation's TV stations, according to Max E. Colson, president of The Institute of Makers of Explosives.

President Plans Visit To Squaw Island Home

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—The new summer White House for President Kennedy and his family is one of ten homes on a high bluff connected to the mainland by a 500-yard-long causeway. The Kennedys are expected to arrive this weekend for their first summer visit to Cape Cod this year.

The area, called Squaw Island, sits off Hyannis Port where the President, his brother, Robert, and their father, Joseph P. Kennedy, own summer homes.

The Kennedys' new vacation retreat is owned by old family friends, singer and Mrs. Morton Downey. The former Irish drink is now an executive of a soft drink company.

Along with more privacy, it will offer the first family a heated swimming pool, a tennis court, a ground level-trampoline and a steam room.

The summer tourists who swarmed outside the Kennedys' Hyannis Port compound in hopes of catching a glimpse of the presidential family will find Squaw Island quite a challenge to their ingenuity.

Two stone pillars and a gate stand at the head of the island road. Downey's home is on a curve in (the road about midway in the small island. The grounds encircled by high shrubbery, the house is approached along a circular driveway that sweeps beneath an old fashioned carport at the front entrance.

The house itself is a long two-story gambrel-roofed structure with weathered shingles typical of Cape Cod. It is reported to have between 14 and 18 rooms.

From his front windows the President can look out on Nantucket Sound where he and his family have spent many summer hours sailing.

The view from the rear of the President's summer weekend headquarters is less salty—a small patch of scrubby woods and the marshland that runs between Squaw Island and the mainland. The swimming pool, one of the chief inducements for Kennedy, and a long rolling lawn—not too well suited for the traditional family touch football games—are off to the left of the driveway entrance. The tennis court is across the road and down a flight of stairs.

Also across the narrow road is the summer home recently purchased by Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, the President's youngest brother.

Where's Dad?

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—If a boy ever needed his dad, Paul Eugene Ramey needs his. Eugene, a plucky brown-haired boy of 5, faces another operation on his heart Sunday. He'd like his dad to be there, but doesn't know where he is.

The father, Cecil Ramey, a construction worker, left his wife and five children on Jan. 6, 1960, according to Mrs. D. W. Kelly, Eugene's grandmother.

Six months later, Eugene underwent an operation to repair two holes which had been in his heart since birth. Now, an artery in his heart has ruptured and another operation is necessary.

"He's only got a 50-50 chance with the operation," said Mrs. Kelly. "Without it, he has no chance."

At about the time of the first operation his mother, Ann Ramey, went on relief. She is unable to work because she must care for the children. Mrs. Kelly has arthritis and has walked with crutches for six years.

Because so much of the money the family receives must go for medicine for Eugene, little is left for food. This probably was why Eugene said he was looking forward to getting cold milk when he goes to the hospital.

The operation will be paid for by the Gaston County Heart Association.

"Eugene won't let his mother or me out of his sight when he's in the hospital," said Mrs. Kelly. "He wants his daddy here so much."

Ohioan Is Named Moose Governor

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The Loyal Order of Moose elevated Ohioan Gordon Jeffery to its supreme governorship Wednesday before the 6,000 delegates headed to Florida for a wrapup of their international convention.

Jeffery, who is from Toledo, is a member of the regional board. Workmen's Association of Ohio. He succeeds Dr. Harry C. Byrd of College Park, Md., as head of the Moose.

The Moose began their migration to Moosehaven, their home for elderly citizens, about 15 miles from Jacksonville, Fla. Officers will be installed and new facilities dedicated in ceremonies there Thursday ending the convention.

Army, AF Head For Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army and Air Force headed today toward a clash over the Air Force's growing effort to move deeper into the antiguerrilla warfare business.

The crux of the issue is an Air Force proposal for $65 million to build its fledgling 850 man air commando force to about 5,000 men and develop special aircraft suited to fighting Communist guerrillas.

"The Army considers that no service should acquire counter insurgency equipment or create counter insurgency organizations which duplicate existing or planned capabilities which are the responsibility of another service," an Army spokesman said.

Although this statement did not mention the Air Force, it was clearly the Army's target. The Army staff was understood to have prepared a formal position on the issue, but the new secretary of the Army, Cyrus Vance, has not yet studied it.

The Army considers it has a primary responsibility in the anti-guerrilla field. One of President Kennedy's earliest acts last year was to authorize doubling the Army's antiguerrilla special forces to about 5,000 men.

Army advocates also fear the Air Force may be preparing to get into ground war operations—where the Army feels the Air Force has no right to be. In response to questions, the Army spokesman said his service has not taken a stand that it should be given exclusive responsibility for counter insurgency operations.

But, he said, "the Army considers that each service should contribute to counter insurgency those capabilities, equipment and techniques which are typical of or peculiar to that service."

The Kennedy Administration has shown it believes Communist guerrilla offensives—such as that now going on in South Viet Nam—will pose a major threat for years.

Taking their cue from this, all the services have hurried to get in step with programs tailored to combating covert aggression.

The special forces, in existence before the Kennedy administration came to power, are highly trained men who teach native troops the arts of fighting guerrilla enemies. They are experts in languages, weapons, intelligence gathering, demolition, communications and medical aid.

Tobacco, cotton, metals, cereals, fruits and vegetables are Turkey's principal exports.

Five New Street Lights Installed

AYDEN — Five additional mercury vapor street lights have been installed by town workmen on Snow Hill Street, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said this week.

The mercury lights replaced the older, conventional lights. In other town work, Paylor said that work is continuing on the three-phase line on Highway 11 south of Ayden. The project, under direction of D.C. Moore, has been held up due to rainy weather.

Stock And Market Reports

Steep Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market went into a steep decline this afternoon after running up a string of five sharp advances.

Prices were knocked down in the first hour of trading and then slipped lower.

Wall Street sources didn't seem surprised at the reversal. Profits were being taken from recent gains and the usual preweekend caution dried up buying demand.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets mostly steady. Tops of 19-19.50, Nahunta; 17.75-19.50, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Newton Grove, Mount Olive; 18.25-18.75, Rocky Mount; 17.75-18.25, Pembroke; 17.50-18.50, Spring Hope; 18.75 Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Rich Square, Tarboro, Bethel, Murfreesboro, Robersonville; 18.25 Greensboro, Goldsboro; 18 Siler City, Albion; 17.75 Lillington.

Wilson cash cattle market steady. Steers and heifers choice 24-26.50, good 23.50-24.50, standard 18-22; beef cows 14.50-17, camers 12.50-17; light bulls 12-16, heavy bulls 16-19.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Generally a half cent higher. Farm prices 13½ to 14, mostly 14; plant price 14½ to 15½.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a fairly sharp loss early this afternoon after five straight sessions in which advances outnumbered declines.

Trading was active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 230 to 214.50 with industrials off 4.30, rails off .80, and utilities off .70.

Key stocks were down from fractions to about 2 points. The volatile "growth" stocks were down considerably more.

Profit taking on the market's rebound from its 1962 lows was the reason given by brokers for the retreat.

Normal preweekend caution lent emphasis to the selling as traders don't like to be out on a limb with the possibility of unexpected news and with markets closed.

The retreat was general, taking in steels, motors, rails, oils, chemicals, tobacco, electrical equipments, aerospace issues and the savings-and-loan stocks which rallied sharply Thursday.

The list declined from the start and, after making its lows late in the morning, came back a little.

Among the savings-and-loan holding companies, Financial Federation was down a couple of points while losses of around a point were shown by United Financial of California, First Charter Financial and Trans World Financial.

IBM dropped about 8 points. Xerox and Polaroid around 3 apiece.

Down about 2 points or so were such stocks as General Electric, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Zenith, Merck, American Telephone and Ford.

Losses exceeding a point were taken by U.S. Steel, Korvette, Goodrich, Boeing, Air Reduction and Lorillard.

General Motors was off nearly

Robersonville Board Rehires 6 Employees

ROBERSONVILLE — Commissioners voted this week to rehire six town employees whose tenure of office had expired.

They are Town Superintendent J. S. Simpson, Town Clerk Ralph S. Mobley, Police Chief William T. Smith and Policemen Mack Manning, Curtis Taylor and Charlie Coletrain.

Commissioners also gave to Simpson and Mobley the authorization to rehire members of their staffs. In another motion, the Robersonville officials voted to hire attorney Paul D. Roberson as town attorney at a retainer of $50 per month.

Other action taken at this meeting called for the town clerk to write to the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles and make application for the town to sell state license plates for the year 1963.

Commissioners also voted that when the new sewage line is accepted the town, including all other areas in the general vicinity of the gas company will run sewage lines to the H and H Gas Co. in Robersonville.

Town officials also voted that the town make some arrangement to move the back up of water from the corner of Morton and Second Sts. by installing about 500 ft. of tile to the canal which runs along the railroad.

It was voted also that Commissioner J. R. Crandell and Town Superintendent J. S. Simpson contact state authorities and after conferring with these officials, report back to the board and make recommendations relative to the drainage of the northeast section of town.

Commissioners approved the motion to lay a sewage line about 250 feet to the Robersonville Packing Co.

Adding to the approval of mo-

a point despite a report of record car sales for the company.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 9.03 at 574.84. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds showed little change. Trading was light.

The body will remain at the North and Co. Funeral Home chapel from 12:00 Saturday until one hour prior to the funeral.

Miss Carrie Hardee of 1208 A. S. Railroad Street, Greenville, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Thursday night. Miss Hardee was the sister of Jasper Hardee of Greenville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Plumbing Code Is Approved

Appointment of a plumbing examining board and adoption of a plumbing code were carried out by the City Council last night.

Councilman Ralph Brimley who had been named to work with the city's master plumbers on the code, discussed it with the council. It follows the state code with some modifications.

"I believe this is going to save the good people of Greenville who are building some money," Brimley said.

The code provides that all plumbing work in the city shall be under the supervision of a master plumber. These are licensed by the state subject to an examination.

It also provides that plumbing work must be done by journeymen plumbers. Journeymen plumbers would be issued permits by the City Council after examination by the Plumbing Examining Board.

Mayor King named Councilman Brimley, Frank Brown and C. E. (Polly) Williams to serve on this board.

Also in the ordinance is a provision for master plumbers to deposit a $5,000 bond with the city to insure the installation of plumbing by him is according to code.

The adopted code provides that permits must be obtained prior to installation of plumbing and the work must be inspected by the city.

Brimley said all master plumbers have been contacted concerning the new ordinance. He told the council he plans to discuss the matter with the new city manager and recommend hiring a full-time plumbing inspector to carry out the program.

Presently plumbing inspections are made by the building inspector.

Mayor King told the council he had attended the meetings concerning the code and he commended Brimley and the committee members for their work.

McGowan Accuses Housing Chairman

To Ask Howard's Removal

Councilman Ford McGowan accused Housing Authority Chairman Charles Howard of lying if the Authority does not have to return to the council for final public housing approval.

He said he was going to ask that Howard be removed from the Authority.

McGowan made the statement while a group of property owners was appearing before the council concerning public housing sites.

Many of the delegation were from Village Grove which is near the site tentatively chosen for white public housing. However, all appraisal work in this area has been halted.

Members of the group of about 25 people asked if the council could not stop action by the Public Housing Authority.

Councilman Howard had been told last month by City Attorney R. B. Lee that the Public Housing Authority was now a separate corporation with authority to pick housing sites.

"If they do have the authority to do the work, let them do it. I'm going to ask that he be removed from the authority," McGowan said.

$350 Damage In Collision Thurs.

An estimated $350 damage was reported by police who investigated a collision at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Truman St. about 3:19 p.m., yesterday.

Drivers involved were listed as Joe Thomas Scott, 77-year-old Negro of 614 Hudson St., and Daniel Webster Byrum, 29, of 1305-B Forbes St.

Damage to the Scott vehicle was set at $150 while an estimated $200 damage was done to the Byrum vehicle.

No charges were placed.

Later McGowan said to Attorney Lee concerning the Housing Authority. "They deceived us. They deliberately lied to us. Now I'm asking you what we have to do to get rid of them."

Attorney Lee explained that he was not certain of removal procedures. However, such a move would require charges and hearings.

Councilmen took no action on McGowan's demand. They did approve a motion offered by Councilman Brimley that the council meet with the Public Housing Authority.

McGowan has consistently voted against all public housing matters which have come before the council including the application for loan and a subsequent resolution.

The Housing Authority was appointed by Mayor S. Eugene West, defeated in the 1961 election, after creation of the Authority was approved by the voters in a referendum.

Serving on the Authority in addition to Howard are Dr. A. A. Best, James Sutton and Dr. Joseph Steelman.

Dr. John Wooten was recently appointed replacing Dr. Earl Trevathan.

Attorney Lee told the council that he felt sure the Housing Authority would return to the council for approval if it asks for federal funds.

Councilman James Lee said a member of the Housing Authority had told him the Authority is not planning to use the area near Village Grove for the white site.

He also said: "Personally, everybody knows how I feel about public housing." Councilman Lee has also voted against the public housing matters as they arose.

"I hope the people here will still be against it when they put it somewhere else," the councilman declared. "It will still be next to somebody. I realize all of you are here because you are against it. I want you all to keep on fighting."

There were cries of "communism" from the audience as Attorney R. B. Lee sought to explain the Housing Authority's power to condemn land.

"It's not communism," Lee replied. "The laws were set up by the state legislature through elected representatives, he said."

"Isn't it wonderful you can come up here and disagree?" Councilman Brimley told the group in answer to the communism charge. "Isn't it wonderful you can fire us all in a few months?"

Attorney Lee told the council a binding referendum can only be established through a special act of the Legislature. This could be done when the legislature meets in January, he indicated.
