

Utilities Improvements Budget Of $948,747 Is Approved By Commission

Utilities commissioners approved an improvement budget of $948,747.50 for the 1962-63 fiscal year.

This does not include the normal operating expenses budget which will be considered later.

The commissioners also approved a new electric rate for billing Utilities departments, the city government and city schools which reduces the rate from 1.5 cents per kilowatt hour to 1 cent.

Chairman Charles Horne proposed the reduction on the basis of studies of production cost. He presented figures to show that the city's annual electric bill would have been reduced from $18,259.94 to $12,173.29 based on last fiscal year's figures.

Thus, based on last year's figures, the city will realize a savings of more than $6,000 for the coming year.

The electric bill for city schools last year was $7,166.25. Under the new rate it would have been $4,777.50. Thus in the present fiscal year the new rate will mean a savings of approximately $2,400 to the city school system. The new rates were made effective July 1.

In another windfall for the city, the commission decided to re-compute the amount in lieu of taxes to be turned over to the city for the present fiscal year. The city was slated to receive $12,705.33 in lieu of taxes based on the old $1.38 cent tax rate. However, the City Council has proposed a $1.62 tax rate for 1962-63 and it is on this rate that the turn-over would be re-computed.

The Utilities also turns over $149,555.04 to the city on the basis of investment.

The improvement budget which the commission approved last night included $286,400 for electric department projects, $333,346 for water department, $234,198.75 for sewer department, $64,891.25 for gas department, $29,911.50 for office, automotive and other equipment.

Included in the water department is $105,000 for construction of an elevated water tank at the Utilities well site on U.S. 264 near the 14th St. Ext. intersection.

The commissioners called on Director Leonard Bloxam to prepare specifications for a tank similar to those now used by the commission.

India Claims New China Aggression

NEW DELHI (AP)—India accused Red China Tuesday night of a new aggressive thrust onto the Indian soil in Ladakh and warned Peiping it will be held wholly responsible if a shooting war results.

Prime minister Nehru, from his vacation spot in Pahlagang, Kashmir, dictated the final contents of a protest note handed to the Communist Chinese embassy here.

The note charged nearly 400 Chinese soldiers penetrated the Galwan Valley in the China-Ladakh border area Tuesday and encircled the Indian military post there.

If the Chinese overrun the post, it would make the sixth Red military base, by India's count, set up in the disputed border area since 1960.

A note last Sunday from Peiping to the Indian government charged that the Indians had established a post in the Galwan area to isolate a Chinese post in the lower reaches of the Shyok River.

An Indian reply said the Chinese were nowhere in the valley when they sent the note and added that they had no business to be there.

The new Indian note said Communist China's Prime Minister Chou En-lai acknowledged as late as 1959 the valley is inside India's frontier.

Ayden Board To Ask Community Planning Aid

AYDEN—Ayden commissioners this week agreed to ask for assistance in community planning from outside sources and to apply for Federal Urban Planning assistance for the project.

At their monthly meeting on Monday night, they unanimously voted to request the Division of Community Planning of the N.C. Dept. of Conservation and Development for their planning services, estimated to cost about $6,000. The town commissioners for the next two years for the project. The Federal Urban Planning assistance, if obtained, would result in 60 per cent aid.

The object of the request is to obtain a survey which will determine trends now taking place in Ayden and what can be done to improve the town and community from the standpoint of making stores and shops and parks and streets more attractive, Town Manager Cleveland Taylor explained.

This project is related in aim to recent establishment of a "Downtown Improvement Committee" by the Ayden Chamber of Commerce, which is designed to help with long range and short term improvements in the shopping area.

Approximately 67 cities and towns in the state are currently working with C&D with similar projects.

Commissioners, concerned with speeding and traffic problems, earlier in the session asked Taylor to investigate the possibility of obtaining radar equipment which would replace a whammy previously purchased. The whammy operation didn't work out as town officials had planned.

Tobacco Prospects Reduced

RALEIGH (AP)—The outlook for North Carolina's flue-cured tobacco production this year was rosy before heavy rains came in the eastern counties late in June and early this month.

The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday that reports from producers as of July 1 indicated flue-cured production would be 856,700,000 pounds.

It noted, however, that damaging rains the last two days of June and early in July have considerably reduced the overall prospects in the Eastern Belt.

"Excessive moisture has resulted in slight damage in other areas also," the agency reported. "It is yet too early to appraise fully the net damage resulting from excessive rains."

It said a crop of 856,700,000 pounds would be about 24.5 million greater than the amount harvested in 1961.

The report noted that record high prospective yields in the Old and Middle Belts and in the Border Belt, with an increase of 4.3 per cent in allotted acres, were responsible for the expected increase.

The total flue-cured acreage is estimated at 485,000 acres, 22,000 more than in 1961.

Yield and production forecasts for North Carolina are: Middle and Old Belts: Production is estimated at 324,700,000 pounds from 191,000 acres for a record yield of 1,700 pounds. Last year's production was 303,940,000 pounds from 182,000 acres and a yield of 1,670 pounds per acre.

Eastern: 418,900,000 pounds from 236,000 acres and a yield of 1,775 pounds. Production last year totaled 421,875,000 pounds from 225,000 acres for a yield of 1,875 pounds.

Border: 113,100,000 pounds from 58,000 acres for a record yield of 1,950 pounds. This compares with 106,400,000 pounds in 1961 from 56,000 acres and a 1,900-pound yield.

Burley: 23,240,000 pounds from 11,200 acres for a yield of 2,075 pounds. Last year's crop totaled 21,736,000 pounds on 10,400 acres with a yield of 2,090 pounds.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated Tuesday that tobacco production in the United States will be 2,140,790,000 pounds. This estimate will be affected somewhat by crop losses in North Carolina. The estimated production would be slightly over last year's yield.

Production of burley tobacco was estimated at 610 million pounds, the largest since 1954. The estimated production for apples in North Carolina this year was 2,400,000 and peaches, 1,250,000.

Tar Heel farmers planted 181,000 acres of peanuts and 6,700 acres of early summer potatoes.

Good Progress By Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Despite complications, Sir Winston Churchill apparently is making such good progress that his doctors decided today to skip further medical bulletins until Friday.

An afternoon bulletin said Sir Winston is "making satisfactory progress and there is nothing further to report."

Churchill this morning checked the racing news in London papers after watching a movie from his hospital bed Tuesday night.

In the same action, the board agreed to have two policemen on duty during the hours of 5 to 8 p.m., one on patrol duty and the other on desk duty in the Police Department. They took the action in an effort to alleviate the speeding situation. It was brought out that three children have been hit by cars in Ayden in recent weeks.

Previously, one officer has been on duty between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m.

Kenneth Branch, building inspector, appeared before the board to request endorsement of the board in demolishing a house located on the corner of First and McCrary Streets. Branch reported that he had condemned the house and had notified the owners by registered mail as required by law but had had no response from the owners. He also reported he had set up a hearing for the matter and had had no response.

The board agreed that Branch should proceed with tearing the house down. The house was reported to be the only one at the intersection of First and McCrary Streets.

In another matter, Branch was instructed by the board to proceed with mailing of letters to persons who had not complied with an ordinance requiring that they connect to the sanitary sewer system of the town of Ayden. This action gives those affected 90 days to comply with the ordinance. Town officials have tried for some time to succeed in enforcing the ordinance.

In other action, the board took no action following a discussion of the drainage problem.

Telstar Space Communication Satellite Scores Early Success

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Telstar, America's chatterbox new satellite, zoomed through lonely space today on its pioneering mission to bring the world a new voice, ears and eyes.

In triumphal baptism Tuesday night, it sent television pictures spanning the Atlantic to France and England, as well as into U.S. homes. It relayed a telephone call from Maine to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in Washington as loud and clear as the best of local calls.

Then for an encore, the versatile Telstar—only a yard wide—simultaneously transmitted news stories at a 1,000-word-a-minute clip, relayed photographs perfectly and supplied two-way telephone calls with perfect aplomb from a 3,000-mile high in space.

Remarkably clear television pictures were received in France, and were to be relayed by tape into French homes today.

French television officials planned to beam a return program to the United States late tonight or early Thursday French time, which is six hours ahead of New York in Eastern Standard Time.

A Paris dispatch said this would include a song by Yves Montand several views of Paris, and a message from Jacques Marette, French communications minister.

In Britain, faint and fleeting pictures were picked up as Telstar received, amplified and re-radiated the program beamed into space from a powerful horn antenna in the little town of Andover, Maine. The first telecast via space opened with a view of the American flag rippling in the breeze.

British viewers stayed up late for the great event of instantaneous television from abroad, with the brief reward coming after 1 a.m.

Telstar's first feats were a prodigious demonstration of things to come in a future worldwide satellite communications system to meet mounting demands for telephone, news, business, and television circuits spanning oceans and continents.

Praising this joint venture of private industry and government

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. footed the entire $4 million cost of building, launching and tracking Telstar — Newton Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, remarked:

"Now we have increased opportunity to increase the flow of information among all nations, to surmount the walls of ignorance and prejudice and to use mass communications hopefully to avoid mass destruction."

Telstar was designed and built by the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Only for 12 to 15 minutes on some of its orbits each day will Telstar be in line of sight vision between Europe and Maine to permit television exchange.

But one plan calls for launching a series of 30 to 50 similar repeater satellites, so that one or more always would be in position for relay of television, telephone calls, photo or story and message transmission.

Ultimately, the instantaneous, continuous circuits might be provided by three satellites, orbiting 23,500 miles high so they appear to remain stationary over the same points on earth. Telstar's task is first to prove the capabilities, and help determine what problems still lie ahead.

Telstar is a forward step from Echo, the shiny balloon satellite which simply reflected radio signals beamed to it. Telstar is an active repeater—it special antennae picks up faint signals, its gear amplifies them 10 billion times, and the signals are re-transmitted for the sensitive antenna ears on the ground to pick up and amplify again.

Telstar, making its sixth orbit of the earth after early-morning ailing from Cape Canaveral by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, came into view of the Andover antenna Tuesday evening.

Precision instruments locked onto it, and commanded its electronic equipment to warm up and get ready for action.

Then Frederick Kappel, chairman of the board of AT&T, picked up a telephone, and chatted with Vice President Johnson. Kappel's voice was beamed to Telstar and back, then by regular ground lines to Johnson, whose reply was by regular land lines only.

Telstar next pioneered television spacecasting carried by the three major networks, with announcements that the program was being picked up by the sensitive French receiver at Pleumeur Bodon on the Brittany Peninsula, and the British station cooperating at Goonhilly near Falmouth, England.

French technicians said they received remarkably clear signals for 17 minutes, as though the broadcast had originated only 25 miles away rather than having zipped thousands of miles through space.

All that British viewers saw was flickering pictures of a man in a business suit.

During about 25 minutes of workout on the first useable pass, Telstar relayed a picture of itself supplied jointly by The Associated Press and United Press International. This was transmitted by land lines to Andover, up to Telstar and back from Telstar by land lines to the receiver in New York.

On the seventh orbit, 158 minutes later, Telstar was switched from broad band to narrow band channels for triple duty.

By high speed data transmission it relayed two wire service stories, one from AP correspondent Don Guy in Andover; relayed three pictures, and gave newsmen and officials the thrill of talking really long distance between Andover, New York and Washington.

Telstar is not a sometimes chatterbox. It also is equipped with 115 channels of telemetry to relay reports it is gathering on temperatures in the satellite, voltages, effects of protons and electrons in the Van Allen radiation belt, and effects of cosmic rays and tiny meteorites on its solar cells and many of its 15,000 working parts.

Sanford Urges Leadership At Local Level

NEW YORK (AP)—North Carolina's Gov. Terry Sanford told county officials of the nation today that to halt centralization of government and achieve more home rule they must display leadership.

"To create the political atmosphere to increase home rule and local decisions," said Sanford, "you must act responsibly in areas where you have authority...if counties do not merit confidence in the existing operations, they will not have the opportunity for additional operations."

The governor said this in a speech prepared for delivery to the National Association of County Officials meeting here. Home rule has been a theme of the convention.

Sanford said that with modern developments there "were valid reasons for some shifts toward more centralization away from local decisions" but "in too many places...it was a matter of abdication. Local leaders got tired of leading. They failed to respond to demand for needed governmental services, and citizens turned away to higher government for solutions to their problems."

Sanford said he gets disheartened because at every conference of state or local officials more likely than not the verdict is "what we need is more federal aid."

"I know how hard it is to get tax money locally," he added, but it will cost all of us less if we get it locally to spend locally rather than letting the federal government get it locally to spend locally."

Tass Mentions Telstar Success

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass today reported the success of Telstar under New York, Paris and London datelines.

"Fully successful" said the stories in the official Soviet news agency. The combined dispatches totaled a little over 100 words.

Confer At 72nd Annual State Meeting Here

Officers Are Elected By State Firemen's Ass'n

The election of officers and a talk by Elwood Inscow, instructor with the Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Training Division, highlighted activities yesterday at the 72nd annual session of the North Carolina Volunteer Firemen's Association in session here.

Two Greenville men were included in the list of officers chosen to head the organization of Negro volunteer firemen for the coming year.

Those selected for office in the afternoon session were O. C. Smith of Wake Forest, president; Heber Green of Greenville, vice president; John H. Bizzell of Greenville, recording and corresponding secretary; Cleveland Anderson of Warren, financial secretary; and L. H. Hall, of Salisbury, treasurer.

Others elected at the convention session were John Mincey, Sr. of Wilson, chaplain; Sylvester Holmes of East Spencer, statistician, and Henry Hopkins of Wake Forest, chief Marshall.

The new officers will be installed tomorrow.

Both Bizzell and Green are officers in the local Ruff and Ready Fire Company. Bizzell is captain, Greene is treasurer.

Inscow, a member of the state training staff spoke at the program held last night. Basis for his talk as the part volunteers play in the fire service in North Carolina.

Outgoing president, L. L. Tuck of Wake Forest introduced Inscow.

Included on today's schedule were morning and afternoon fire training sessions conducted by Inscow at C. M. Epps High School and the Greenville Fire Department's fire training grounds and a demonstration of rescue practices by members of the Greenville Rescue Unit.

A Firemen's Ball at C. M. Epps High School auditorium tonight at 9:30 will conclude the day's activities.

The annual meet will close tomorrow following final business sessions and the annual race competition.

Included on the race schedule are the 100-yard and 50-yard hose and reel races, the 100-yard North Carolina State Championship Silver Belt hose and reel race, the 100-yard fire truck race and the foot race.

The program of races is set for 9 a.m. They will be held in the 1300 block of West Fourth St.

To Test Oyster Shell Dredging

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—A pilot project will be carried out to test the feasibility of dredging for oyster shells in Albemarle Sound.

The project, which will be financed by an Elizabeth City firm was approved Tuesday by the State Board of Conservation and Development at the closing session of its meeting here.

Turner Battle, executive director of the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, said in Rocky Mount Tuesday night that the group's board of directors will meet at Morehead City Monday.

At that time they will discuss what action to take about the C&D Board's step.

Battle said one course under consideration was to ask for a court injunction that would halt the project.

The purpose of the project is to see if the oyster shells can be dredged economically and without damage to fish or other wildlife in the area.

The board also voted to accept the bid of the Magnet Cove Barium Corp. for a lease for phosphate mining in a portion of state-owned river bottoms in Beaufort County.

Cole was joined here by Budd E. Smith, president of Wingate College, Tuesday, in warning the General Board of the Baptist State Convention of what Cole called "insurmountable competition on the part of tax-supported institutions."

In reference to the proposed system of community colleges in North Carolina, Cole said, "We hope the state will take into consideration the contributions of the church colleges and will refrain from the imperialistic policies that will force them (private colleges) out of existence."

Smith said, "These proposed community colleges are so named because it will be easier to get federal aid in this manner. This poses a grave danger to our church related colleges. I plead with you to go home and tell your people the facts."

Wingate is a Baptist-supported junior college.

Designer Makes Much Of Tailored Look

By JOY MILLER

Associated Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—The long suffering family man who has watched parts of his wardrobe disappear from time to time into the closets of his wife or daughter will understand what designer Bill Blass means.

A dash of masculine fashion is catnip to a woman, because it points up her femininity by contrast.

But, Blass told fashion writers attending New York Couture Group press week showings Tuesday, his clothes for Maurice Rentner are anything but mannish although they involve men.

This involvement crops up in the use of menswear fabric. In the classic cut of a man's Chesterfield, in a gray worsted suit with a fisher collar, in a camel-colored little boy vest worn with long-sleeved white blouse and black skirt. There's a T-shirt look in a belted black satin dinner dress. Blass thinks a suit looks undressed unaccompanied by a beret and scarf or stole. He predicts dresses worn with a stole, preferably fur-lined, will take the place of a suit on chilly days. Around the throat of his walking suits he ties a jaunty, matching scarf. Longer-jacketed walking suits, by the way, are being shown by most designers now, but they all neglect to say where, in this day of limited pedestrian travel, one wears them.

Young, award-winning Blass was not the only designer to pay tribute to the solid, substantial good taste of men's fashions. David Kidd, in his collection for Arthur Jablo, made much of the man-tailored look of the Thirties.

But no one could accuse Luiz Estevez, dedicated as he is to the seductive silhouette, of considering the masculine influence. For fall he is almost completely absorbed by Mrs. John F. Kennedy's travels—with rajah coats, saris, draped stoles, Spanish dresses predominating. One costume he even named First Lady—a long red velvet cape with stand-up collar over a long dress with a fullish red skirt and black lace bodice.

Allen-Gay Nuptials
Miss Sylvia Hope Gay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilton Gay, and Willie Warren Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Allen, were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at the Fountain Baptist Church Sunday, July 8, at 4:00 o'clock. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Horace Thompson.

The church was banked with palms and two cathedral baskets of white mixed flowers. The focal point was the open Bible with a marker of white satin ribbon and white snapdragons.

Miss Sue Dilda of Fountain played traditional selections on the organ and accompanied Mrs. Charles Phillips of Durham who sang "Because." "Entr'acte Me Not," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of silk-faced peau de sole and imported hand-clipped Chantilly lace.

The princess neckline and bodice of Chantilly lace was trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. The lace long sleeves formed a severe point over the wrists. The fitted dropped waistline led to a dome-flare skirt of silk-faced peau de sole with a patterned Chantilly lace, trimmed in sequins across the front of the skirt.

The full chapel length train was of the imported hand-clipped Chantilly lace over the bridal silk-faced peau de sole. Her headpiece was a crown of peau de sole designed with fingertip length veil of silk illusion. The crown carried out the theme of seed pearls and carried a white satin-covered Bible topped with a white orchid showered with stephanotis and white satin ribbons.

Maid of honor was Miss Lou Gay, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Barrett, Miss Faye Baker, Mrs. Jimmy Hinson, all of Farmville, and Miss Sandra Edwards of Macclesfield, cousin of the bride. All wore street length dresses of Nile green with matching Nile green headpieces. The dresses were nylon sheer chiffon. They wore full skirted and featured a wide hemline and a shirred cuff bodice with scooped neckline and cap sleeves.

The matching Nile green headbands and nose veils completed their ensemble. They wore a string of pearls, a gift of the bride. They carried yellow nosegays of yellow mums centered with a yellow satin rose.

Roland Allen, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Aaron Pitt of Wilson, James Allen Jr. of Farmville, Sidney Ellen of Jackson, and John B. Gay of Raleigh.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gay chose a pink sheath sacron summer crepe dress with a bodice applied in white embroidered scrolls of lace. She wore a matching pink organza petal hat designed and made by her and her corsage was a purple orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a beige re-embroidered dress with a portrait neckline. She wore white accessories and her corsage was a purple orchid.

After the ceremony the wedding party received in the vestibule of the church.

For traveling, the bride wore a tangerine pure silk dress and white accessories and the orchid lifted from the Bible.

After a wedding trip, the newlyweds will journey to Valdosta, Ga., where Mr. Allen will be employed by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Upon returning from Georgia, the couple will make their home in Fountain, where Mrs. Allen will be a member of the school faculty.

Perfumed Waters Opposed By Some

SYRACUSE, Italy—(WNS)—Sicilian women have promoted a municipal bill that calls upon street cleaners to add a disinfectant with lavender perfume to the waters with which they clean the city. The only opposition came from a group of men who complained that the perfume gives them headaches and might contribute to immorality among young folks.

Tobacco Shop Has Certain Appeal

RIMONDEIX, France—(WNS)—Marie Eugene Allasille has celebrated her 72nd year as a saleswoman in a tobacco shop. She went to work there in 1890, five years after her marriage to a watchmaker. Mme. Allasille is now 96 years old, lives with her 76-year-old daughter, and expects to retire at the age of 100. Her husband died in 1927.

Trio Featured In Jazz Program

Entertaining jazz, performed by the Ramsey Lewis Trio, will be presented at East Carolina College for jazz enthusiasts Thursday night, at 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. Sponsored by the Student Government Association Entertainment Series, the concert is free of charge to the public.

The Trio, which has built up a solid following in Chicago and other Midwestern cities over the past two years via records and personal appearances, has both a sound and a flavor. Romantic or bright, the combo can handle any type of tune.

The Lewis threesome strike a middle ground of easy, listenable music, sparked by the piano lead by Lewis himself, and hefty assists from bassist El Dee Young and drummer Red Holt.

Each member of the Ramsey Lewis Trio presides over his instrument in a different manner. Tall, slender Ramsey sits at his piano like a pleased spectator watching a good show.

El Dee Young bobs, weaves, and peeks from behind his enormous-appearing bass with an air of happy astonishment at the full, round tone it produces. The expression on Red Holt's face betrays his inner satisfaction with the wide array of percussion instruments surrounding him.

Laid An Egg In Nick Of Time

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP) — An egg saved a chicken's life.

A stray chicken had awakened the household of Mrs. Rudy Ferneti, Pittsburg police clerk, each dawn for several days.

Mrs. Ferneti thought it was a rooster and had just about decided to roast it to get rid of the nuisance when the fowl laid an egg.

Now she's decided the layer can live.

Booze Found In Courthouse

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP) — Jackson County authorities had some fast explaining to do when a cache of well-aged bootleg whiskey was found in the basement of the county courthouse.

The liquor, discovered during a house cleaning, apparently had been seized during a prohibition era raid.

Nat'l Foundation Scholarship In Medicine For Rob't Bilbro

Robert Hodges Bilbro of Greenville, who graduated this spring from the University of North Carolina, was presented a National Foundation Health Scholarship in Medicine here this week by J. H. Rose, chairman of the Pitt chapter of the National Foundation.

Bilbro, a Morehead Scholar and member of Phi Beta Kappa at the university, was selected by the State Selection Committee. He plans to study medicine at the University of North Carolina.

The award was based on outstanding promise of advancing the high traditions of the nation's health professions and of contributing to the well being of mankind. It was made possible through the March of Dimes.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Tyson Bilbro of 1004 E. Third St., Bilbro graduated from Rose High School where he had been president of the student government his senior year, and also received the Keech Cup for distinguished service.

At the university, he was elected to the freshman honorary scholastic fraternity, Phi Eta Sigma, and during his senior year was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity.

He was a member of the Order of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail, in which he served as ring chairman, two of the highest honorary organizations for men at the university. He was also selected for membership in the Order of the Old Well and Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary pre-medical fraternity, in which he was rush chairman.

Bilbro was house manager and vice president of Phi Delta Theta Social Fraternity.

Co-captain of the swimming team at the university, he received ed the outstanding senior swimming award and the Atlantic Coast Conference Scholarship Award which was based on his swimming and scholastic ability. He received several gold medals for backstroke and relay.

In other athletic organizations, Bilbro served as vice president of the Monogram Club, president of the Athletic Association and was a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

He had also served as assistant to Dr. Bernard Boyd, professor of religion. During the summer he is coaching a swimming team in Chapel Hill for youth between the ages of eight and sixteen.

Three years ago, John E. Douglas, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Douglas of 1731 Beaumont Rd., received a similar scholarship from the National Foundation. Douglas is now studying medicine at Johns Hopkins University.

Take Course On Kindergarten

"Directed Observation in the Kindergarten," a popular course at East Carolina College for the past several summers, is one of the leading topics of discussion among students on the campus.

Miss Annie Mae Murray, director of the college kindergarten and a member of the education department, has aroused much of this interest among 50 prospective and experienced kindergarten and primary grade teachers who have enrolled from a wide area in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia.

The course is offered in five periods of one week each. Upon completion of requirements, a student enrolled in any one of the periods will receive two quarter hours of college credit. A number of people have attended as auditors.

Four periods have already been held this summer. Beginning July 9-13, the fifty period will begin and will be held from 9 a.m.-12 noon, Monday through Friday.

Teachers who attend the course observe the 20 kindergarten youngsters in action for three hours each day, followed by a class and conference with Miss Murray.

Those enrolled in the summer school course include Mrs. Harrell Beck of Greenville; and Mrs. Yvonne Bradford and Mrs. Marie Cowan, both of Farmville.

ECC Graduate Student Is In Variety Program

Harold A. Jones of Pontiac, Michigan, a graduate student of East Carolina College, will be included among talented vocalists and instrumentalists on the musical variety program tonight at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Jones, an outstanding music student, will perform at the marimba.

Music for a Summer Evening, a concert by students and faculty members of the Department of Music at the college, is expected to attract a large audience. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

The Summer Chorus will include selections by Mozart, Bernstein, Hahn and Howard.

Handel's Sonata in D major will be performed by a trio and three duets by members of the Opera Theater. A piano soloist and a tenor soloist will also be among the program.

Dan E. Vornholt of the faculty will direct the Summer Chorus in a group of songs including Barab's "Now the Day is Over."

Icen Wilson Is Ruritan Speaker

WINTERVILLE—Icen Wilson, district manager of the Greenville Social Security office, spoke to the Winterville Ruritan Club at its regular meeting last night in the Community Center.

In his talk to the club, Wilson stated that his office, staffed with 18 persons, serves eight counties including Pitt. The speaker explained that various services are rendered such as issuing social security cards and assisting people who are applying for retirement or disability benefits.

Wilson was introduced by W. B. Dillingham, program chairman. The meeting was presided over by the club president, Boyce Barwick.

Swims Channel Under Water

DOVER, England (AP) — Fred Baldasare, 38-year-old Florida film producer, completed an English Channel swim from Calais to Sandwich Bay entirely under water today.

Bruised and weary, Baldasare trudged ashore on the English side 18 hours and one minute after setting off from France guided by a cage 15 feet beneath the surface. The cage was towed by a motor boat, and Baldasare — in a frogman suit — breathed from oxygen bottles.

Beauties Are Guarded By Chaperones, Police

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Eighty young beauties are preparing for the Miss North Carolina contest here behind a small army of chaperones and a squad of policemen, on hand to supply a bit of muscle if needed.

The girls are being guarded like the favored members of a sultan's harem and chances of getting within winking distance of one, without a chaperone around, are slim indeed.

Officials of the pageant say Miss America rules apply to the contest. This means men cannot speak to a contestant, either in person or on the phone, without a chaperone being present. The Charlotte police say they will enforce all rules by having a number of men stationed at all times at the local motel where the girls are staying.

Tuesday night the girls attended a press conference then a reception and dance.

Today they were up early for rehearsals and interviews with the judges. For the three nights of preliminaries, the girls have been invited into three groups. Each night, one group performs in the talent competition, a second group is in bathing suits and the third in evening gowns.

From the 80 girls, 10 finalists will be selected for Saturday night's finals before a statewide television hookup. Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville, last year's queen who was chosen Miss America, will place the sash on the new Miss North Carolina.

Plans Discussed By Ayden Rotary

AYDEN—Tom Wheelless was program chairman for last week's Rotary Club meeting during which a discussion of committee plans for the coming year took place.

During the meeting, Clyde Simmons, a former member, was welcomed back into membership of the club.

Carroll McLawnhorn was the guest of the Rev. Bennie Pledger. This week, Cleveland Paylor is in charge of a program which will feature a demonstration of a miniature microwave system with Linwood R. Langley, Greenville manager of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., as speaker.

Scaffold Fall Wasn't Trouble

WELLINGTON, Kan. (AP) — George Sandell Jr. fell while working on a scaffold. He was taken to a hospital but doctors said his back was not hurt.

But when Sandell complained of a severe pain, the doctor decided it might be from a bad appendix. It was.

Operating, doctors found two buckshot in it. Sandell had been eating rabbit, shot on a recent hunt.

Highway Impact Worth Surveying

North Carolina's need for a major east-west highway is being investigated by the State Highway Commission with respect to determining the routing possibilities, estimates of probable cost and methods of financing such a route.

While this survey by the Highway Commission is being made, it would be wise for the various area development groups across the state to take stock of the economic impact such a new east-west artery would have on their respective areas.

The major east-west highway that is now being proposed has been talked for years in North Carolina. During those years, however, other highway projects have taken precedence over the creation of a major East-West route. One reason, of course, is that in the past other projects appeared to be of greater importance to the state as a whole and to the future economic development of various areas of the state.

A Concession To Get Support

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

CONCESSION—The Air Force has agreed tentatively to make one more concession in its effort to get public support for establishing a target range for practice bombing in Hyde County near water-fowl-rich Lake Mattamuskeet.

This is a formal document, ready for the signatures of the Secretary of the Air Force, Secretary of the Interior and chairman of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, whereby the Air Force agrees to cease all flights in the area of the proposed range when they might affect migratory birds.

The decision would be reached mutually between the Air Force liaison officer, the Interior department's wildlife refuge manager at Lake Mattamuskeet and biologist of the Wildlife Resources Commission.

When this happens, the Air Force would halt all flights in the area in about the length of time it takes to make a telephone call to Seymour Johnson Air Force base.

FURTHER—Further concessions were made earlier, and reiterated at a hearing by the Wildlife Commission.

These concessions, outlined by the Air Force are:

- closing of the range during the periods of peak migratory wildfowl movements and hunting seasons, up to two to two and a half months a year, probably in December and January.
- No use of explosive charges which would cause fires.
- No supersonic flying which would cause sonic booms.
- No flying in bad weather.
- No flying at night, nor in the early morning or late evening hours.

PLEAD—These restrictions, according to Maj. Gen. J. H. Moore of the Tactical Air Command, "we could live with."

He said flatly the Air Force could not go along with closing of the range for four or five months a year.

"This is our biggest objection now, that we don't have a range available except for six months a year, and that we have to go to Nellis AFB in Nevada, every six months, to get in the necessary training."

Moore asked the Wildlife Commission to reverse its stand opposing the acquiring of a target range near Lake Mattamuskeet, emphasizing that it is the only site which has been located which at present meets the requirements, and which is available.

"We have a very urgent need for a range," Moore pleaded. He said the Air Force already is a year and a half behind in its schedule to obtain such a range on the East Coast, for fighter-bomber squadrons based at Seymour Johnson, at Myrtle Beach, S. C., and for National Guard air units elsewhere in the East.

Moving the Seymour Johnson

It is evident to most every citizen in North Carolina that the demands for new and improved highway facilities far exceed the state's financial ability to meet those demands with new highways. The result is that projects are set up on a priority basis depending upon need and their immediate and future value to the state.

The proposed East-West highway will have to compete with other proposed projects in the priority rating.

By carefully making surveys of their respective areas, the area development councils which have recently come into being across the state could provide a wealth of information on the potential value of the proposed major east-west highway for North Carolina. This information could provide considerable factual information as to the effect such a traffic artery would have on economic development of North Carolina from the mountains to the sea. It could show in detail—area by area across the state—what benefits would be derived from such a highway.

The area development groups, we believe, could compile an economic justification for the proposed highway which would assure its receiving high priority on the list of proposed state highway projects. Without the compilation of such information, the present move for a major east-west route may suffer the same fate it has in the past. It will be passed over for other proposed projects for which someone has taken the trouble to show clearly the economic justification.

The six-county Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission, of which Pitt is a member, might well consider undertaking such a study in this area and seek the cooperation of similar groups across the state.

These area groups could render an important service to their respective areas and to the state as a whole by undertaking such a cooperative program.

No Easy Task To Find New Health Director

The resignation of Dr. John Futrell as director of Pitt County's Health Department means the county's Board of Health is faced once more with finding a qualified person to fill this important position.

Apparently the Board of Health is aware of the difficulty which may be encountered in finding such a person for the position. Chairman Alton Gardner has asserted there will be no fast action in the matter because "it is going to take some time to find a director."

Recognizing the difficulty in acquiring the services of a qualified successor to Dr. Futrell, the Board of Health should not delay in setting the wheels in motion to seek out a person to fill the position. With Dr. Futrell's resignation effective the end of this week, it is obvious that the Board of Health will have to make some temporary arrangement for continuing the services of the health department on as near a normal basis as possible until a new director is named.

Although it would be unwise for the Board of Health to rush into hiring a new director of the health department, there is some urgency about the matter of filling the position. There are few departments at any level of government that can operate efficiently indefinitely without a qualified person in charge and control of the department.

While the Board of Health recognizes the difficult task it faces in finding a new director for the Health Department, we hope the Board likewise recognizes the urgency of filling the position as soon as possible with a qualified person.

No Big Crisis In Recent Days

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—One difference between now and this time last year is that Premier Khrushchev is letting President Kennedy alone long enough to get some of his housekeeping done.

Nothing much has been solved, settled or agreed on: neither Berlin nor disarmament nor a ban on nuclear tests. But there hasn't been a big crisis in months. And Kennedy, unlike the harried Kennedy of 1961, can devote more time to trying to get his banged-up program through Congress and spur the economy.

This kind of more-or-less international quietude probably won't last long since the bouncy Russian, who despises American jazz, gets his kicks throwing another log on the fire.

Yet for everyone's peace of mind—outside of explosive Algeria, war-wrecked Viet Nam, and the edgy world of the Red and Formosan Chinese—things look at least a little better than in July a year ago.

By then, although Kennedy was less than a year in office and wrestling with Congress, Khrushchev had mused his hair with new threats on Berlin.

Khrushchev may have figured his timing was excellent. Kennedy by then could hardly have recovered from the shock and embarrassment of the badly thought-through and disastrous Cuban invasion.

Kennedy journeyed to Vienna to see him and came back so disturbed he called for a fresh military buildup. Even more disturbing things were to follow.

By HENRY HOWARD

People Do Need People

It's been less than two weeks since a friend was elaborately expounding a "basic truth" he said people are always taking for granted.

The way he put it: "People just don't appreciate having plenty of people around like they ought to."

Well, it seems reasonable that people should appreciate people... and that's more than likely the case. Still, perhaps this friend does have a point. That is, it probably will do little harm for a person to pause a moment now and then to take stock of his human surroundings.

What seems to make his point more valid is the fact that there's no trouble at all in casually glancing at folks, just taking a conscious look at a few specimens. Somebody's said something about that sort of thing being the spice of life. There's no doubt it's at least part of the rich flavor... available to anybody who's willing.

Here's what only a few moments of such an occupation yielded:

A nine-year-old Miss telephoned the newspaper with this: "Hello. I want to report a dog show and it's by children and we're going to have a puppy show too Saturday afternoon at Susie's house... and I'm the ringmaster (they'll just call me KA because my name is Katharine Adams and I'm nine years old) and, ah, and, ah, well, ah... and Mrs. Price will take care of the lemonade and Tommy Thomas is the judge and it's gonna be pretty good and there'll be 10 or six dogs and some puppies... It might not be a very big show... It's just a neighborhood dog show... but please try to come take some pictures, please?"

And there were more details that multiplied the moment's eligibility for delight and appreciation.

That was a nine-year-old whose natural (and human) sincerity creates so effortlessly a warm appeal scarcely matched by millions of Madison Avenue dollars.

But there's color and spice at the other end of the human spectrum, too.

Chatting with an elderly gentleman of life-long acquaintance the other day, a few moments were gone quickly and it was time for the usual farewells.

There had been at least five years between this and the last previous brief visit with him. He used words rather lavishly (when compared to a simple "Bye now" or "See you around" or something), but each word belonged where he put it:

"Well," he drawled with a slight wave of the hand, "if you see anything you don't know what is, shy 'round it."

Then between nine and 90 there's still a good-sized group. There's color and spice aplenty and of enough varying shades and flavors to suit anybody.

And the best part of the whole deal is this: it only takes a moment.

Other Editors Saying... Political Fascination

(Washington Daily News)

A week never passes but what some political observer has made some profound observations regarding this future political race or that future political race. Engaging in the sport or art of political observing seems to fascinate a lot of people over North Carolina.

The political observers in our state are having a field day in trying to determine right now what the Democratic nominees for governor in 1964 will be.

Such names have been mentioned as Dr. Henry Jordan, Bert Bennett, Paul Kitchen, Woodrow Jones, Joe Hunt, and Dr. I. Beverly Lake. And now and then another name is thrown in the pot.

A few days ago we were listening to some of the political big-wigs of North Carolina talk. The conversation was about the future race for governor, and one man, seemingly well informed, made the observation that Dr. Jordan and Mr. Bennett are close personal friends, and that both of them would not be in the race. That observation fascinates us a great deal.

Dr. Jordan has been generally grouped with the more conservative faction in North Carolina politics, while Mr. Bennett has generally been classed with the younger and more liberal element. To our way of thinking, it would sound more logical, despite personal friendships, to group the potential candidates in terms of conservatism and liberalism than on any other grounds. If we pursue this course, we might say that Dr. Jordan, Woodrow Jones, Paul Kitchen, and Dr. Lake generally could be considered conservatives with Dr. Lake extremely so, and that Bert Bennett and Joe Hunt would fall into the more liberal group.

It has been said many times that politics make strange bed-fellows. That statement is certainly true, we feel. As we look at the picture of the potential gubernatorial candidates as they are right now, we see the shadow of Dr. Lake looming large on the political determination which will have to be made within the next 18 months. If Dr. Lake himself decides to become an active candidate again, then in the first primary it could well be Dr. Lake against the field. If Dr. Lake decides not to be a candidate, then it could be a wide open first primary. In that event no one at the present moment can say just how the political cards might stack up 18 months hence.

A lot of Mr. Bennett's chances depends on how popular the Sanford administration is when primary time rolls around again. He is the one probable candidate closely identified with Terry Sanford. As chairman of the State Democratic Executive committee, he has been the power in Democratic organization over the state. And he has the Sanford "team" at his fingertips since to a large degree he helped create that "team."

Right now it would appear that Dr. Jordan has found strong statewide support, and he could be the man around whom all elements of the party could unite. Perhaps more than any other man mentioned, Dr. Jordan seems to have the confidence of all the people.

If Mr. Kitchen wins his congressional race in November, he could be a very formidable figure. Joe Hunt is well known over the state, but he seems to have allied himself a little too much with certain groups.

And the truth is that right now no one knows what the picture will be when the next Democratic primary is held in May, 1964.

I don't know the answer, but I have some good guesses. First, in the old days, people sought security. Swindlers abounded in the land; stock market recessions were "panics"; even banks failed frequently.

Bank architecture in those days was designed to counteract the psychology of fear that afflicted the few who could get a few dollars ahead. Stone and steel were intended to counteract the uneasiness that came with savings.

But since then insurance of deposits has made physical assurance unnecessary. The little gold letter on a bank door, "Member Federal Deposit Insurance Cooperation" means more to revolutionize bank buildings than any twenty modern architects.

That's not all. Tighter laws governing banks, tougher legislation controlling coin men, and firmer control of the stock markets diminished the public's fear of the safety of the saved dollar. It was that fear that caused so many to hide savings in mattresses.

THE MODERN LOOK

There were other reasons. The modern look spread in business establishments. Large glass fronts, open areas and fewer locked compartments became a symbol of the mid-twentieth century, and so banks modernized. The amounts spent for lifting bank faces has been phenomenal. It has run into billions.

And, at the same time, was the growth of the feeling that even banks could not stop the decline in value of the American dollar. A dollar saved fifty years ago was a thing of permanence. A dollar saved today may be worth only 90 cents next month. So the bank that looks like Macy's has as much chance of getting the next spare dollar as Macy's has.

GOVERNMENTS FAIL TO CHECK SMOKING

The fear that cigarettes cause cancer has caused various governments to act to reduce smoking, but no actions have been notably successful.

Great Britain increased cigarette taxes with the declared intention of curbing sales, but the drop in sales has been small and smokers are smoking them shorter, thereby getting more tars and nicotine.

Italy forbid the advertising of cigarettes. Sales rose 8 per cent. Russia has launched an anti-cigarette campaign without notable results. Germany, where unprecedented prosperity has boomed cigarette sales, is planning an anti-gasper campaign, as are other nations.

Their fiscal heart isn't in it, however, since tobacco yields so much revenue.

Void In Family Living

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A humorist who apparently is a lawyer because he writes me on the stationery of a Bar Association, sends me this letter which is undoubtedly meant to be a rebuttal of the Supreme Court's attempt to throw God out of the tax-supported schools:

"My good friend is writing this for me."

"You see, I'm Johnny and can't read or write. The cops say, I'm a juvenile delinquent. The social worker says I'm the product of a broken home and a culturally deprived neighborhood. Da Teach says I'm an educational problem and almost impossible."

"A funny thing happened before school broke up. I asked Da Teach: 'Who is God and why should we trust in Him?'"

"Da Teach said it's an expression and can't be answered in class because of the Supreme Court."

I was not thinking of the Supreme Court at the moment. It rather occurred to me that I had recently met several children of complex families—you know, mother and father are such good friends but each has a different spouse and a new family. So there are many mothers and step-mothers and step-fathers and step-brothers and step-sisters and—Oh! to hell with it!

So these children have never had the warmth and friendship of a loving family. When they were young, there was always someone to look after them, particularly if the parents were well off. If there was no money, the children somehow grew up on the streets or among relatives.

There was no warmth for the child, for the mother had her own problems, especially the problem of holding on to a man who had a sharp eye and wandering feet. That's how she got him, in the first place. And he wore out No. 1, and in time of No. 2, because life is like that. He had a wearying nature. And the lady of the house could not let a brat come between her and her happiness. After all, she is entitled to happiness. Everybody is.

This has become one of America's major problems. This country suffers from excessive divorce; from broken homes; from delinquent children, rich as well as poor, because they lack parental direction; from pre-marital sex relations which have curious psychological overtones; from homosexuality which needs a more accurate and honest study than has yet appeared.

In a word, the problems of love and marriage of delinquency as a product of the broken home need study not only by a statistic-loving sociologist but by a moral philosopher if there are any.

It is possible these days to come across illegitimate children who tell their tales with great glee. They are covering up a great sorrow and a greater loss. Such a person needs a friend, an honest friend who will try to fill a void. For the greatest void of all is that there is no one to talk to, no one who can be approached frankly and honestly.

A child brought up in a quiet, normal home, where father and mother love each other without too much ado, has before it a constant example of what a moral life for happiness.

Summer Reading Clinic Stresses Remedial Work

East Carolina College's Summer Reading Clinic has an enrollment of twenty-four men and women, most of them teachers, who are participating June 11-July 17 on a program dealing with the teaching of remedial reading for pupils from the primary grades through the junior high school.

Directed by Dr. Keith Holmes of the college department of education, the clinic provides opportunity for teachers and prospective teachers to use new techniques and practices in reading instruction. They also gain experience in working with children with special difficulties as readers.

Forty-eight children attending the clinic have reading problems typical of those found in the average classroom. Each adult enrolled serves as a clinical assistant and, working with one or two children, gives individual attention to the child's problems and his improvement as a reader.

Teachers and prospective teachers participating in the Summer Reading Clinic include Marilyn J. Coburn, Roanoke Rapids; Mrs. Hazel J. Williams, Albion; Eugenia G. Beck, Hertford; Rebecca Ann Hightsmith, Camp Lejeune; Dorothy R. Hunter, Kingston; Edith B. Simmons, Grifton; Sue S. Branch, Arden; Patricia Q. Howard, Kenansville; Mrs. Carolyn Juanita White, Greenville; Ruth V. Mills, Richlands; Frances LaBarr Saunders, Williamston; Sara Kathryn Williams, Newton Grove; Norma Faye Williams, Newton Grove;

Balloon Pilots Must Show Skill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Starting Aug. 7, anyone who wants a rating as a hot-air balloon pilot will have to demonstrate his ability to handle such craft in solo flight.

The Federal Aviation Agency said so Tuesday.

Heretofore, candidates for a free certificate limited to hot-air balloons had only to meet certain requirements as to age, character, citizenship, education and physical condition.

They did not have to demonstrate aeronautical knowledge, experience or skill. The government could afford to be liberal on this score because all hot-air balloon flights were short ones.

New rules were required because recent improvements make longer flights possible, the FAA said.

Persons who currently hold hot-air balloon pilot certificates are unaffected by the new rule.

LAST CHANCE VALLEY

BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

CHAPTER 15

Thorpe McAfee set up a temporary yard for the mules and wagons, and with another man he worked for a day or so, putting the wagons in first rate condition.

After he took a party of men into one of the mesquite hickies nearby; with teams of mules they ripped and tore mesquite trees up by the roots so the long roots could be used for firing the boiler.

Joe Tibbs, the engineer, had assured them that they would need great quantities of wood to keep the boiler going, and there was no wood in the valley other than mesquite and greasewood.

Tibbs was a rather youngish man, bespectacled, lean, rawboned, with thin brown hair. He'd worked at one or two borax refineries before, and was familiar with the machinery. Thorpe had located him in Piedmont, down on his luck and looking for a job.

The next morning they moved out into the salt marsh, and Thorpe watched in amazement as they labored long and hard under the hot sun, working with their shovels and sleds, dragging the sleds over the sand to the carts.

The boiler was fired, and in the afternoon the first cartloads of borax were being boiled in the big vats. It was that night that they were struck by raiders.

Thorpe had supposed that it was possible something like this would happen, and the first week or so he'd assigned guards to keep watch over the supplies and mules, but the men had been dog-tired each night.

They had set up a number of tents behind the refinery, and Thorpe was sleeping in one of them when the raiders hit.

He guessed there were half a dozen or so in the party. They rode into the camp at top speed, coming off the borax road from Piedmont. Thorpe toppled out of his tent when he heard the guns begin to bang.

He could see immediately that two of the mules were down inside the corral, and the others were racing around madly. In the dim light he fired a shot at one of the men on horseback, and then he heard a man yell: "Everybody back!"

The raiders headed back toward the road, and Thorpe watched them go, wondering if he should mount up and take after them. They had only three or four saddle horses in the corral, and it would have been foolhardy to chase a dozen men in the darkness. Besides, the damage seemed to have been quite small. Only two mules were down, and one of them was already getting up on its feet, hit, but apparently not too badly hurt.

Fern O'Hara came running down from the house, rifle in hand, and asked quietly, "You get a look at any of them?"

"They didn't stay that long," Thorpe told her. "Fired a few rounds and then took off. We have one mule down and another hit. We'll just have to set a watch from here on in."

Joe Tibbs, who had bunked inside the refinery shed, came out, and Thorpe could hear him grumbling.

"I guess that did it, Thorpe," Both Thorpe and Fern O'Hara looked at him in surprise.

"What?" Thorpe asked.

"I guess that's what they came for, Thorpe. Must be fifteen bullet holes in that boiler. It can't be used."

Thorpe stared at him and then at Fern. He said slowly, "They didn't come here to raid the mules; they wanted to wreck that boiler."

Fern asked, "What can we do, Joe?"

"Have to bring out another boiler," Tibbs told her. "If you can locate one." He paused, and then he added, "Reckon somebody's out to stop you from running borax out of the valley, Miss O'Hara."

"They haven't stopped us yet," Thorpe said. He turned to Fern. "Can we pick up another boiler around Piedmont?"

"I know of one up in Coulter City," Fern said. "That's fifteen or twenty miles north and east of Piedmont."

"Have to take one of the rigs," Thorpe told her, "and start out in the morning."

"Know who they were?" Tibbs asked.

Thorpe shook his head. He looked at Fern and said, "You'd better keep the Chinamen working, and have the crew keep on hauling mesquite for Tibbs here. We want to start refining this stuff the minute I get back with that boiler."

"What if they shoot that full of holes, too?" Tibbs asked him, grimly. "If we have to go to Frisco to get another boiler, then we'll be held up two months or more. All that time you'll have a crew to pay."

Thorpe looked at the ground. "We can't meet salaries too long," he admitted, "without money coming in."

They went back to have a look at the ruined boiler and found it riddled with bullet holes. There were no sides to the shed back where the boiler was located, and the marauders had ridden up and fired at it point blank.

Tibbs said bitterly, "Reckon they've been watching us a long time, Thorpe. They let us sweat to set this thing up, and then they moved in."

"We should have been waiting for it," Thorpe said.

In the morning before dawn he had six mules hooked to one of the wagons which had been detached from the trailer. With a driver up on the seat beside him, and his horse tied to the tailgate of the wagon, Thorpe headed back toward Piedmont.

Late in the afternoon they picked up a relay of fresh teams at the station and continued on their way, finding the going much easier during the night hours with the sun down.

It was almost five o'clock in the morning when they rolled into Piedmont. Thorpe parked the wagon in the temporary yard they'd set up outside the town, mounted his horse and rode on to the Birdcage.

The saloon was closing up, but one card game was still going on in the corner. Varney was awake, having coffee at the bar. He stared in surprise as Thorpe strode in through the doors.

"Trouble?" he asked immediately.

Thorpe told him briefly about the raid on the camp, and Varney shook his head in anger as he listened.

"They're trying to put you out of business," he said, "even before you get started."

"I'm picking up another boiler up in Coulter City," Thorpe said. "Figured I'd catch a few hours sleep before moving on. We've been riding for nearly twenty-four hours."

"You look it," Varney said. "Go on upstairs. Your wagon all right?"

"Driver's sleeping in it," Thorpe said. "I want about three hours' sleep, Jim. Can you have somebody wake me up after that?"

"I'll stay up myself," Varney assured him. "I'll see that you get a fresh start. Everything else all right in the valley?"

"We were moving along smoothly," Thorpe stated. "I know now that I should have had guards posted."

"You suspect Farrington?" Thorpe frowned. "Where else can I look?" he countered.

He went upstairs to his room and fell asleep as soon as his head hit the pillow.

Danger lurks in Coulter City, with Thorpe McAfee the target. Continue the story to a climax here tomorrow.

The saying "still water runs deep" may be good psychology, but it is not good hydrology. Still water may be shallow or deep, and deep water may flow slowly or fast.

Basic Reason Behind Reduction Of Margin

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street says the average margin trader is a bull at heart. Bears also can use margins to sell short—that is, use credit when betting that prices will go down.

But the average margin trader uses credit to buy more stocks than his available cash would buy because he expects them to go up in price. And that is an underlying, if unacknowledged, reason in lowering margins when the bulls are downhearted.

Now the bull (if he has regained his courage and found the money) can buy on margin two $100 stocks for only $100 in cash. If the price goes up he'll make twice as much on the two as he could on the one he would have got by paying cash.

And by the same token, he'll make more paying out 50 cents on the dollar than he could have by putting up 70 cents as he was required to before the Federal Reserve Board lowered margins from 70 per cent to 50 per cent. Of course, if prices should take a further tumble, the optimistic margin trader would be out of luck—he might have to sell or put up more cash, or even lose the cash he'd already paid.

The Federal Reserve set the rules for margin trading. But the various stock exchanges have their own rules, in addition, which member brokers must obey. (The New York Stock Exchange requires at least a $1,000 deposit before a margin account can be opened.)

And many individual brokerage firms impose even stricter margin rules than the minimum set by Fed and the exchanges.

Many brokerage houses require high credit ratings before allowing new traders to set up margin accounts. Also, many won't permit margin trading in the lowest priced stocks—those dear to the heart of the novice speculator.

And most will call for more cash well before the stock's price has fallen below the cut-off level the Federal Reserve rules set. Brokers say most margin accounts are active ones. That is, credit is most often used by in-and-out traders who buy and sell frequently. Only a small amount of inactive accounts by stock investors are on a margin basis. Most of the investor type trading is strictly a cash proposition with the stocks going into bank boxes until the investor decides they should be sold—for cash.

But even those who never buy on margin watch the Fed's change in rules closely. Rightly or wrongly, they feel that margins are dropped when it is felt that more stock buying would help the economy. And when margin traders buy more stock with their increased credit, the prices tend to go up.

The history of margin changes, however, doesn't always bear this out. Often when margins have been dropped, stock prices have risen only temporarily and if a bear market was already in progress, it has continued after a short upward spurt.

In the same way, hiking margins to chill speculative fever has not always worked either. Often prices have continued to rise, after a few days of indecision.

ECC Enlarging Its Facilities

Because of recent increase in enrollment and prospects of a further rise in number of students this fall, East Carolina College will enlarge its facilities in the laundry and the cafeteria in Jones Hall for men during this summer. Vice President and Business Manager F. D. Duncan stated today.

Construction work is now in progress to convert the college garage on the South Campus into an office and a receiving and distributing center for laundry. The garage, a brick structure, is located just across a driveway in front of the laundry. Space vacated will be used for regular operations at the laundry.

The office of W. E. Boswell, superintendent, will be located in the new accommodations. A drive-in service for depositing and picking up bundles will be provided when construction is completed.

In Jones Hall, the recreation room for students will be remodeled into a cafeteria equipped with a counter and seating arrangements.

The present cafeteria was originally planned to serve students in Jones and Aycock Halls, which are now in use. With the completion of a third dormitory for men by the beginning of the fall quarter, the additional space will be needed to meet the needs of students.

The kitchen now serving Jones cafeteria will be used for the new facility.

Work on these projects is being done by the college building and maintenance staff and, according to plans, will be ready for use at the opening of the fall quarter in September.

Booze Found In Doghouse Cellar

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — A 62-year-old man was charged with violating state liquor laws when police found 49 gallons of illicit whisky hidden beneath his doghouse.

Officers said the underground hideout was almost big enough to be a fallout shelter.

Illegal Foreman For Four Months

ATLANTA (AP) — A Fulton County Grand Jury had been in session for about four months when its foreman, Jack Isenberg, was replaced with another foreman.

Isenberg lived in an adjoining county and was ineligible to serve.

Protest Demonstration Is Set By Citizens Of Saskatchewan

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Thousands of citizens from all parts of Saskatchewan converged on this provincial capital today for a demonstration against the government's compulsory medical care plan.

Leaders of the protest move expressed confidence there would be no violence, but some officials indicated concern by issuing appeals for calm and restraint.

Cavalades were expected from all leading cities and towns. Estimates of the number of persons taking part ran as high as 20,000 to 30,000. They planned to mass before the provincial legislative building to voice opposition to the medicare plan.

The demonstration is sponsored by the Keep Our Doctors Committee, most vocal group backing the doctors strike which began July 1. A majority of the province's 700 active physicians have joined in the strike against the controversial plan, claiming it opens the door for government control of the medical profession.

The plan, designed to provide medical care for everyone, is financed by single person and family assessments and by general taxation.

Premier Woodrow Lloyd said he would not appear before the demonstrators, but that he would receive a small delegation if they asked to be heard.

Lloyd said he believed he could make "a pretty astute guess" as to what their message would be.

"I don't think the government is going to be influenced by this kind of demonstration," the premier said.

The Regina Leader-Post carried a front-page box in which Regina's mayor, Henry Baker, urged Saskatchewan residents to keep calm during the protest march.

Streets approaching the legislative building were barricaded, but Lloyd said this was only to prevent the area from being congested by automobiles.

The premier said security arrangements had been left in the hands of the city police. He said he had been told by police officials that adequate steps had been taken.

Both Lloyd and Health Minister W. G. Davies were reluctant to discuss published reports that they had received threatening letters calling them "Hitlerites" and that the police had assigned special patrols to keep an eye on their homes.

"I have had no police protection that I know of," Lloyd said. A Regina judge overrode government objections Tuesday and postponed until July 17 arguments on a request for an injunction to suspend operation of the medicare plan.

Attorneys for three Saskatchewan residents asked for the delay to obtain more material in their legal fight against the program.

The court also postponed arguments on a government move to dismiss the injunction petition.

The Socialist government argued the court lacks authority and questioned the motives of the plan's opponents.

Wis. Has Largest Hackberry Tree

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Ever wonder where the biggest hackberry tree in the country is?

The American Forestry Association has confirmed that the largest found so far is in the town of Albion near here. It stands 83 feet, measures 16 feet 9½ inches in diameter and has a crown spread of 70 feet.

A child, however, who is brought up in a family where the parents are watching each other, accusing each other, preparing for divorces and such, becomes very keen and sharp. Not understanding, the child paints an imaginary picture which may be very false but which colors the child's life forever.

Among the rich, such children's lives are often wrecked by the chit-chat of governesses and other servants who say what they choose and also by the child left alone too much. It is psychological murder.

Years ago, I made a little study, for my own purposes, of a small group of millionaire Communists. It does not matter whether they were Communists or socialists or Christian missionaries among the Zulus. They were sad, young people who hated a father or a mother, or who had a guilt complex concerning the way the family fortune was made, or who had had such a lonely childhood as no Orphan Annie could have known.

President Kennedy often emphasizes physical fitness, but that is hardly enough to make a strong nation. We need to strengthen the morale and the morals of the family if we are to survive as a great nation.

Little League Playoffs In Second Round Today

Jaycees, Texaco, Pepsi, Tobs Gain Victories

NORTH STATE

In the first two games of the North State playoffs Tuesday the Jaycees defeated Coca Cola 2-0 and Texaco downed the Optimist 20-0.

In the first game at Guy Smith Stadium both Coca Cola and the Jaycees collected one hit in the first frame, but neither team was able to score. The Jaycees opened the scoring in the top of the third in-plate and rapped a single to rightfield enabling James to score. Briley later came in to score on a passed ball.

In the bottom of the sixth Coca Cola threatened, but they were unable to rally. Steve Williams led the inning off with a single to centerfield. Kevin Price followed with a walk. The next batter, Randall Williams, hit a ground ball which forced S. Williams out at third.

Cleve Branch, the winning pitcher for the Jaycees, struck out six, walked three, and gave up no runs on two hits.

William Moye, charged with the loss, struck out eleven, walked two, and allowed two runs on two hits.

In the second game of the afternoon, Texaco defeated the Optimist by a score of 20-0. Bobby Hardy was the winning pitcher while Bib Roberts was charged with the loss.

Texaco opened the scoring in the top of the first frame as they collected 15 runs on five hits. Every member on the Texaco team scored at least once as they sent nineteen players to the plate. Hardy collected a single and a double during this inning to pace Texaco.

Texaco collected four runs in the second and one run in the fifth to set the winning score at 20-0. Bobby Tardy was the leading batter for the day as he collected four hits for five trips to the plate.

Also the winning pitcher, Hardy, struck out seven, walked three and allowed no runs on five hits. The Optimist pitching staff struck out eight, walked eight, and gave up twenty runs on ten hits.

In today's games, the Jaycees meet the Lions at 3:00 with Kiwanis playing Texaco at 5:00 in Guy Smith Park.

TARHEEL

Pepsi Cola defeated the Moose 3-2 and Greenville Tobacco Company downed the Exchange team 9-2 in the first two games of the Tar Heel Little League playoffs at Elm Street Park Tuesday.

In the first game the Moose opened the scoring in the bottom of the second when Randy Hodges got on with an error by the pitcher, went to second on a passed ball, stole third and scored on an error by the third baseman.

Pepsi Cola picked up two runs in the top of the third when Mike Joyner hit a fielder's choice and Jack Gordon singled. Singles by Billy Holland and Earl Barnhill and a fielder's choice by Tommy Sugg aided in scoring Joyner and Gordon.

The winning run for the Pepsi nine came in the top of the fourth when Jimmy Sugg singled and managed to score.

The Moose team gained one more run in the bottom of the fifth when Gerald Wainright walked, but this was not enough to give them a victory.

The winning pitcher for Pepsi was Jack Gordon who allowed one hit, struck out three and walked four. Charged with the loss was Randy Hodges who along with Jimmy Hatton gave up seven hits, struck out seven and walked three. In the second game neither team scored until the top of the fourth frame when the Exchange club picked up one run after David Springett hit a fielder's choice.

However, Greenville Tobacco Company came back in the bottom of the inning scoring three runs off one double, one single, five walks, two hit batters and an error.

In the top of the fifth Exchange gained one additional run when Mike White got on with an error by the pitcher and managed to score on a base hit by Springett.

The winning pitcher for the Tobs was Johnny Speight who allowed only one hit, struck out six and walked five. Credited with the loss was Billy Taylor who along with White allowed three hits, struck out eight and walked eight.

In the second round of the tournament today the Elks will play the Tobs at 3 p.m. at Elm Street and Security Life will meet Pepsi Cola at 5 p.m.

Second Game Here Tonight

Rocky Mount Defeats Am. Legion Team 5-1

ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville's Post 39 American Legion baseball team lost the first game of a two-out-of-three series to Rocky Mount Tuesday night 5-1 as Randy Pridgen was the winning pitcher.

Pridgen allowed eight hits during the contest, but they were well scattered and Greenville was unable to score. They had eight men left on base throughout the game. The Rocky Mount hurler also struck out six and walked only one.

The losing pitcher for Greenville was Jimmy Rogers who along with relief hurler Godfrey Little allowed 10 hits, struck out only one and walked one.

Coach Ray Pennington's Greenville team committed eight errors during the game which aided the Rocky Mount squad in their victory.

Rocky Mount opened up the scoring in the bottom of the third when Pridgen got on with an error by the third baseman and managed to score on an error by the second baseman.

Greenville tied the game in the top of the fourth when Billy James hit a single, stole second, moved to third on an error and scored when Rommie Brock was thrown out at first.

However, the tie did not last long as Rocky Mount picked up one run in the bottom of the sixth when Danny Talbott walked.

The winners picked up two additional tallies in the seventh when Don Ferrell hit a single and Wayne Dunn connected for a fielder's choice. A double by Talbott scored both Dunn and Ferrell.

In the eighth inning Rocky Mount gained their final run when Kenneth Gilliam got on with an error by the third baseman and scored on an error by the pitcher.

Tonight the two teams were scheduled to meet in Greenville's Guy Smith Stadium for the second game of the series. The game was to begin at 7:45. If a third game is needed it will be played in Rocky Mount Thursday night at the same time.

College View And Dairy Gain Teen-er Loop Wins

The Teen-er League schedule ended last night with College View downing Pepsi Cola 5-2 and Carolina Dairy defeating State Bank 10-1 in makeup contests.

The final standings were not available today, but it was believed that Home Builders finished at the top of the ladder.

In the first game Tuesday night Pepsi Cola opened the scoring in the bottom of the first when Larry Godwin walked and later scored on a passed ball.

However, the Pepsi lead was short lived as College View tied the score in the top of the third when Danny Joyner hit a fielder's choice and moved into the lead in the top of the fourth when Sonny Taylor connected for a homerun.

The next run for College View came in the top of the fifth when Doug Nichols hit a single. Two more runs were picked up in the sixth when Gary Bostic walked and Jimmy Mullins got on with an error.

Pepsi Cola scored their final run of the contest in the seventh when James Manning connected for a single.

The winning pitcher for College View was Frank Moye who gave up two hits, struck out nine and walked eight. Credited with the loss was John Horne who allowed five hits, struck out four and walked seven.

In the second game Carolina Dairy began the scoring in the top of the first when Kenneth Brown hit a fielder's choice and later scored on an error by the catcher. They added three more runs in the top of the third.

State Bank's sole run came in the bottom of the third when Billy Brown singled, stole second, went to third on an error by the third baseman and scored on an error by the left fielder.

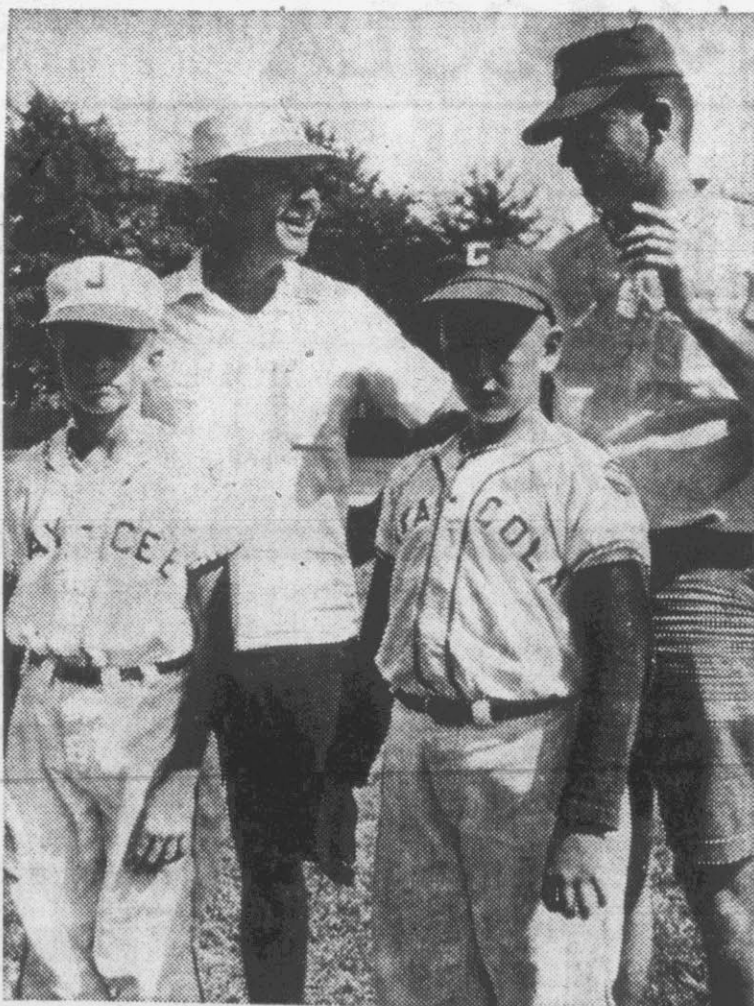

In the top of the fourth the Dairy gained four more runs off an error, a walk, a hit batter and a double. The final two runs were scored in the fifth when Steve Kennedy hit a single and John Cayton hit a fielder's choice.

The winning hurler for the Dairy was Chip Calloway who gave up only one hit, struck out 11 and walked eight. Credited with the loss was Donald Avery who gave up six hits, struck out two and walked five. Charles Allen, relief pitcher, struck out three, walked none and allowed no hits.

Question Manager Houk's Removal Of His Starters

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Second guessers were questioning Manager Ralph Houk's early removal of his starting players in the American League's 3-1 All-Star loss to the National League and wondered today whether he would employ the same tactics in the second midsummer meeting in Chicago's Wrigley Field, Monday, July 30.

Houk's questioned strategy took place in the seventh inning Tuesday when he took Roger Maris, along with three others, out of the lineup and replaced last year's home run king with Chicago's Jim Landis, in center field.

As a result, Landis, a less distinguished long ball hitter, came to bat in the eighth with a man on base and two out. A Maris home run would have tied the game. Landis struck out.

"I thought six innings was about right for Maris," Houk explained in the losers' dressing room later. "I wanted everybody to play. After all, this is an All-Star game. They were picked from their clubs and I think they should have the opportunity to play."

Don Drysdale, the National League starter, struck out Maris in his first time at bat but the major league home run king nearly knocked the ball out of the park in each of his next two times at bat. Facing Juan Marichal in the fourth, he drove Willie Mays to the center field fence for his 400-foot drive. In the sixth, with Bob Purkey on the mound, Mays made a spectacular catch of Roger's bid for a three-run homer. Wondrous Willie crashed into the fence in deepest right center as he made the leaping catch, his glove reaching above the eight-foot fence.

Rich Rollins, who had singled and gone to third on Billy Moran's single, scampered home after the catch for the Americans' only run as Purkey tossed out Rocky Colavito and fanned Jim Gentile to escape further damage. That was the Americans' last real bid as Bob Shaw held them to one hit in the last two innings.

Mays, the defensive star of the game, shared hero honors with Stan Musial, the ageless wonder, and Maury Wills, the mercury-footed shortstop who hails from the nation's capital.

Mays didn't get a hit but he was tremendous afield. Besides his long runs to haul down blasts by Maris, he cut off a potential run with a fine play on Moran's long single to left center in the sixth, and closed the game with a catch of Luis Aparicio's smash to the fence in deep right center.

Musial, who watched Drysdale and Marichal of the Nationals and Jim Bunning and Pascual of the Americans pitch scoreless ball through five innings, came off the bench in the sixth and slashed a pinch hit single to ignite a two-run rally. It was the 20th hit in the 22nd All-Star game for the great St. Louis Cardinal, who before the game had visited President Kennedy's box behind the American League dugout and chatted with the country's No. 1 citizen for a few minutes.

"I reminded the President of our first meeting in the summer of 1960," Musial related later. "Remember," I told him, "you said they thought I was too old to play ball and you were too young to run for president but that we'd both fool them. Well, I think we're both doing pretty good."

Marichal, San Francisco's right-handed ace, was the winner. He succeeded Drysdale, who gave up one hit in the first three runless innings, and permitted only a walk in the next two innings.

Wills Convinced AL Fans Of His Speed

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Maury Wills convinced doubting American League All-Star fans that his blinding speed is a long shot threat indeed to Ty Cobb's base stealing record.

The fleet Los Angeles Dodgers shortstop stole a base and scored the first run in Tuesday's 3-1 victory by the National League in the 32nd All-Star game and impressed one and all with his dashing base running.

When Rocky Colavito of Detroit fielded a single by Jim Davenport of San Francisco in left and threw behind Wills, apparently trapping him between second and third, Wills shifted into high gear and beat the relay to third base in the eighth. A few seconds later he sped home on a foul fly to short right field.

Casey Stengel, whose New York Mets have been made aware of Wills' speed all season long, said he wasn't surprised at all.

"He's got the move of a snake when he slides," said 72-year-old Casey, who spent the day on his feet, coaching at first base.

When a reporter asked Wills why he would risk injury with headlong play in a game that didn't count in the pennant race, he said:

"I don't think they would have asked me to play if they didn't think I'd go all out."

Wills made the big time only after Detroit, aching for a shortstop, passed him up and returned him to the Dodger chain in 1959. He came up to stay and starred with the pennant-bound Dodgers later in '59 and led the league with 50 stolen bases in 1960 and 25 in 1961.

Wills has stolen 46 bases for the league - leading Dodgers in 89 games. With 73 games to go, he is at least a long shot threat to break Cobb's modern major league mark of 96 set in 1915. He has a good chance to topping the National League mark of 80 set by Cincinnati's Bob Bescher in 1911.

Marichal, San Francisco's right-handed ace, was the winner. He succeeded Drysdale, who gave up one hit in the first three runless innings, and permitted only a walk in the next two innings.

Franco Designates Solider As His Official Successor

MADRID (AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco has designated Spain's highest ranking soldier as his official successor and shuffled his Cabinet in a predicted prelude to political and economic reform.

Many experts here described the move as directed toward an early restoration of the monarchy in Spain.

By naming Capt. Gen. Augustin Munoz Grandes, 66, as vice president the 69-year-old chief of state cleared up the long-pending question of who will succeed him if he dies.

Munoz Grandes has been chairman of the high military staff since 1957. Before that he was army minister for six years. He was secretary-general of the Falange party in 1939, and was an outstanding officer during the Spanish civil war.

A close associate of Franco in his 25 years of rule, Munoz Grandes commanded the Spanish Blue Division that fought alongside Nazi German troops on the Russian front in World War II.

Franco's decree appointing Munoz Grandes will continue to act as general commander of the high staff.

It added he will be charged with the coordination of the national defense departments and will carry out those functions he is expressly ordered by the president of the government, whom he will replace in case of vacancy, absence or illness.

Seven new ministers were named in the first Cabinet changes Franco had made since Feb. 25, 1957.

The changes, which had been expected, were regarded as based on Franco's desire to strengthen the Council of Ministers and not resulting from any crisis.

Army, navy and air ministries were changed, as were industry, labor, education and information-tourism.

One government observer said, "It looks like the monarchists, the church and the army all came out substantially ahead at the expense of the right-wing Falangists. All in all, it looks like Franco is political as well as economic."

The old-line Falangists lost three civilian posts. There appeared to be a clear gain in prestige for the Catholic Action group and the Roman Catholic Church.

Britisher Cast His Vote, Too

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—Roderick McLeod, 32-year-old British subject who was born in India, voted in the Democratic primary election in Cleveland County on May 26, it was revealed today. He said under his immigration visa he is required to register for military service and pay taxes so "I thought it proper that I vote, too."

One of several Britishers employed by Fiber Industries, Inc., in Shelby, McLeod noted that publicity before the election said that to qualify to vote a resident must have lived in the state one year and his voting precinct 30 days. McLeod said "I met those qualifications" and thought everything was "quite in order."

Jack Hartigan, who registered McLeod in Precinct No. 4, said he assumed McLeod was a citizen when he registered him May 13. Ralph Gilbert, chairman of the county elections board, said the results of the voting have been certified and no action could now be taken to invalidate McLeod's ballot.

McLeod said he plans to become a naturalized citizen and then he will be eligible to vote. Gilbert, who said the Britisher's voter registration probably will be challenged before the general election, added that in all future instructions to registrars it will be pointed out that the applicant must be a citizen of this country.

Boy Shaken By Centennial News

MEMPHIS (AP) — In observing the centennial of the Civil War battle of Memphis, a local newspaper carried first-hand accounts of the famous event. Apparently they were a little too vivid for one youngster.

After reading one particularly exciting edition, the frightened boy ran to awaken his mother, waving the paper and clearly prepared to run for the hills.

"Mommy," he yelped, "are the Yankees really coming?"

RIFLE STILL SHOOTS
SHEPHERDSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Daniel Boone's famous long rifle is still in working order.

It was fired Feb. 2, 1962, at the opening of a travel information center on an interstate highway.

Boone died in 1820. His rifle is part of the Kentucky Historical Society exhibits.

Flanders Poppies Still In Garden

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Poppies from Flanders Field in France still are growing in the garden of Clyde L. Boots, who lives on a farm in the Des Moines area.

He says he brought the seed to his mother when he came home from France in 1919, after the close of World War I. He carried the seed in a capsule then used by the Signal Corps for sending messages by carrier pigeon. The current crop of blooms originated from that seed.

Soviet Exhibit Opens In Ghana

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—A Soviet trade and industrial exhibition was opened Tuesday by Ghana President Kwame Nkrumah.

A message from Premier Khrushchev said the people of this African nation "can rely upon the peoples of the Soviet Union as their selfless, sincere and devoted friends."

NEW ENVOY TO RUSSIA—Foy D. Kohler, 54-year-old Russian speaking assistant secretary of state for European affairs, poses beside a map of Soviet Russia in his Washington office. He was chosen by President Kennedy to be the next United States ambassador to Moscow. (AP Wirephoto)

Kennedy Prods Demos To Get Legislation Moving

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is prodding Democratic leaders to get the legislative wheels turning in a party-controlled Congress engulfed in a quagmire of protocol and political bickering.

The President is reported sounding a new note of urgency as strategy conferences disclose how deep some of his major proposals have sunk in the gumbo of inaction that has marked what Republicans are calling a do-nothing session.

There are indications that Kennedy himself may seek to mediate a Senate-House dispute over their handling which has prevented final action on any of the regular money bills.

Hinting at this, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Tuesday that some drastic measures had better be taken to end a stalemate in which he said Democrats are digging their political graves.

"Every week that this goes on, you can count off a few more Democrats in the November election," he said. "The Republicans will make hay with this."

The Republicans already were busy cutting their hay.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said that "it is doubtful if any session of Congress in the history of the republic ever spent so much time accomplishing so little."

He and House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana agreed in a statement that "most of the blame belongs on the Kennedy administration."

Regardless of who had to shoulder the responsibility, only a handful of major bills has become law in the more than six months of the session.

Included in these are measures authorizing $13 billion missile purchases, expansion of the Peace Corps, $2 billion additional in loans to the International Monetary Fund, a $435-million job retraining program, an increase in the debt limit to $308 billion and an extension of corporation and excise taxes.

As Kennedy's lieutenants surveyed the field, they saw plenty of trouble ahead.

One bright note they detected was the seeming lack of organized Senate opposition to the President's House-passed international trade program. The Senate Finance Committee is delaying work on it until July 18. Opposition could solidify before it reaches the Senate itself in mid-August.

This means that Kennedy's beleaguered tax revision bill, also passed by the House, will be sidetracked in committee until the trade measure is disposed of.

On the other hand, Kennedy seemed to be making some progress by personal appeals to House members to relax the Senate-voted ban in the foreign aid program against any but surplus food assistance to Communist countries like Poland and Yugoslavia.

Put aside in the House for the time being is the Senate-approved proposal for a $100-million loan to the United Nations.

Humphrey said Kennedy is pressing for quick action on a Senate-approved public works program, a youth employment bill on which neither house has acted, and a compromise farm bill.

The fractious House killed the administration farm bill passed by the Senate. Humphrey predicted it will be revived in a form to provide for extension of voluntary wheat and feed grains programs. Halleck said he wouldn't vote for the substitute but conceded some republicans would support it.

The Senate will vote next week on the administration's attempt to attach its compromise proposal for health care for the elderly to a House-passed bill to revise the public assistance program. Halleck predicted it will never reach a clear-cut vote in the House.

After it acts on the measure the Senate will face a desultory filibuster by opponents before it can act on the administration's program for a 50-50 public and industry-owned communications satellite system approved by the House.

Republicans then plan to raise two ticklish civil rights issues in the Senate on the $5.3 billion bill carrying funds for the Welfare and Labor departments. Their amendments would ban federal grants for segregated hospitals or for segregated schools in districts crowded because of federal installations.

A House-passed bill to increase postal rates is making tortuous progress through a Senate committee.

The administration's program for higher education aid is still in troubled waters.

Despite Nikita's Boasts, Russians Felt Far From Anti-Missile Tool

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Affairs Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Informed U.S. officials believe the Russians still are a long way from achieving a combat ready anti-missile missile system.

They are not disputing that the Russians may have developed an anti-missile rocket, as Soviet Premier Khrushchev claimed Tuesday. But they stress that development of such a rocket is only part—and not the most difficult part—of the problem of fashioning a complete anti-missile system, with its associated radar and other highly sensitive and complex gear.

One of the biggest problems—as the United States has found in its work with the Nike Zeus anti-missile system—is to perfect radar that can discriminate between oncoming warheads and decoys sent out by an enemy to confuse and foil the defenses.

One official familiar with intelligence reports said the Russians have been emplacing large numbers of fairly powerful radar units, but that this radar is believed able to reach no higher than perhaps 100,000 feet and apparently is part of defenses against manned bombers.

He said there is no information here to indicate the Russians have developed an operational warhead, as distinguished from a research and test model.

It is known that the Russians last September exploded high above earth a nuclear test device that had some of the characteristics of an anti-missile weapon.

President Kennedy, in a broadcast four months ago, announcing plans to resume U.S. nuclear testing in the atmosphere, said the Soviet test series last fall was aimed, in part, at "improving their defenses against missiles."

But, he added: "While apparently seeking information which is important in developing an anti-missile defense system, these tests did not, in our judgment, reflect a developed system."

The information Kennedy said the Russians appeared to be seeking was believed to involve the effects of nuclear blasts on radar and communications.

U.S. scientists were looking for similar information in detonating a hydrogen device more than 200 miles above the Pacific last Sunday night.

Defense Department sources said evaluation of the results of that high altitude shot are not expected for perhaps 48 hours. How much information will be made public is not known.

In advance of the U.S. tests, informants said the United States was hoping to learn to what extent high-altitude nuclear explosions can disrupt communications and radar and thus possibly cripple the detection of approaching missile warheads.

American military scientists also sought data on how such blasts would affect the warheads themselves.

Knowledgeable U. S. officials suggested the Russians might be developing their anti-missile system in a parallel course with U.S. development of the Army's Nike Zeus.

The Nike Zeus, on which the United States has spent more than $1 billion since 1957, is approaching a critical test in the Pacific. Sometime this summer—perhaps within the next few weeks—Army rocketeers will send up a Nike Zeus from Kwajalein in an effort to intercept an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile fired from California some 5,000 miles away.

In lesser tests, the Nike Zeus rocket has intercepted 3,000-mile-an-hour Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles. The Atlas is a much tougher target. It travels at about 15,000 miles an hour.

Plan Shut Down Military Bases

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department said Tuesday a total of 80 military installations and facilities in 29 states and Canada have been declared surplus.

Department officials said the facilities involved originally cost the government $273.8 million. Disposal of the military installations will save $5,410,000 a year in maintenance costs, officials said.

The department action was described as another step in an administration drive to eliminate outmoded military installations.

In March 1961, the Pentagon announced closing of 73 bases.

Centenarian Is Apparent Suicide

NEW YORK (AP)—A 103-year-old man was found hanged in his Manhattan apartment Tuesday and police listed the death as an apparent suicide. No note or any other hint of a motive was found.

The body of Max Kastenbaum was found by his 73-year-old son. The elder Kastenbaum, the father of six, lived alone.

FAMILY CRISIS—A concerned Sharon Schwartz, figure, 12, carries her sister, Christine, to Buffalo, N.Y., police headquarters for questioning in the death of another sister, five-year-old Deborah, in their home. Police ruled that Deborah died of malnutrition, and charged her parents with second-degree manslaughter. In front of Sharon is her father, Joseph, carrying Christine's three-year-old twin, Christopher. Identity of person behind her was not learned. (AP Wirephoto)

Jaywalker Hit At Safety Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 40-year-old Canadian traffic officer, attending a safety conference here was struck by an automobile while jaywalking near the city's busiest intersection.

James Mason of Winnipeg, Man., was listed in fair condition Tuesday at Grant Hospital. Mason, cited by police for jaywalking, is a hearing officer on traffic violations in Winnipeg. He was in Columbus to attend a conference of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

Loud Start For Anti-Noise Meet

SAN REMO, Italy (AP)—An anti-noise convention meeting got off to a noisy start Tuesday.

Sixty delegates who gathered to discuss the problems of noise abatement could scarcely hear themselves talk for all the racket. Repairmen outside were breaking up the street with air hammers.

Currently, 33 of the 50 states in the Union grant driver's licenses at the age of 16. Only four have the upper age of 18.

By ED MORSE
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved irregularly in slow trading early this afternoon after canceling much of an early decline.

Showing a minimal change, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 at 218.10 with industrials off .20, rails up $3.00, and utilities up .20.

Changes of most key stocks were fractional, some going to a point or so.

In early trading, the list continued to endure profit taking which followed Tuesday morning's vigorous rally on news that margin requirements had been cut to 50 per cent from 70 per cent. A number of issues firmed above their lows, however, and selected issues did quite well, among them American Telephone which was in continued demand due to the launching of its Telstar communications satellite.

Several of the "growth" stocks, after absorbing some early selling, turned around and moved higher.

AT&T was active as it advanced well over a point, continuing its strength begun early this week on preliminary news about the Telstar which was launched Tuesday. Losses of a point or so were wiped out by some "growth" stocks, among them IBM which showed a net gain of about 2. Ligon, Polaroid, and Xerox moved fractionally to the upside.

Ford's new split stock, which was strong Tuesday, added about a point at the start today then wiped out the gain following declaration of a 45-cent dividend, equivalent to the 90 cents paid on the old stock. Although the 90-cent payout was a boost from the prior 75 cents, there was apparently disappointment among some that, with the split now effective, another dividend hike was not declared.

General Motors held firm despite prospects of a big secondary offering.

Wall Streeters anticipated news well after the market close about the administration's plans for liberalized depreciation allowances for plant and equipment, but there was no immediate reflection in stock prices.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.14 at 583.87. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index at noon was up .02 at 57.22. Corporate and U.S. Government bonds moved slightly higher in moderately active trading.

Five Fire Calls Since Friday

AYDEN — Ayden firemen have received five calls to burning tobacco barns in nearby rural areas since Friday, Chief Tillman Chauncey said today. Oil burners which flared up caused at least three of the fires.

Yesterday afternoon about 3:15, firemen put out a tobacco barn fire at the Emmet Dennis farm located beyond Second Street extension northeast of Ayden. However, all the tobacco in the barn was reported damaged. An oil burner was believed to have caused the fire.

Earlier yesterday, about 12:30 p.m., Chauncey said firemen answered a call to a burning tobacco barn at the Ralph Worthington farm west of Ayden on the Snow Hill Road. However, only smoke damage resulted from the fire, also believed to have started from an oil burner.

This morning firemen went out to a rural tobacco barn fire but flames had been extinguished when firemen arrived.

On Friday, local firemen put out a tobacco barn fire at the Walter Stocks farm northeast of Ayden on the Jolly Road. Smoke damage resulted, but the barn and tobacco were saved. The cause was an oil burner, firemen said. The other Friday fire occurred at the Jake Venters farm at Calico and was out when firemen arrived.

REV. JACK PARAMORE will serve as evangelist for revival services starting Friday at 8:00 p.m. in Ayden. The series is being sponsored by the Liberty Free Will Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Raymond Gaskins is pastor. Services will be held in a tent, on a site where the church is planning to build its sanctuary, and will continue for 10 days.

Shooting Sent Superior Court

AYDEN — The case of a 31-year-old Negro man involved in a shooting incident here about two weeks ago was transferred to Pitt County Superior Court after the defendant waived preliminary hearing in Ayden Recorder's Court on Monday.

Police Chief W. D. Brooks said that Garmon Gray Langley of 103 Throver St., Ayden, is scheduled to be tried during the Aug. 20 term of Superior Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

The victim, Mildred Edwards of Ayden, also a Negro, is still in Pitt Memorial Hospital in serious condition and was not able to testify at the hearing, Chief Brooks said. She received a bullet wound in the abdomen as a result of the shooting.

Brooks said Judge Larry Davis of Ayden set bond for Langley at $1,500. As of yesterday afternoon, the bond had not been put up and Langley was to be transferred to Pitt jail in Greenville.

The incident occurred on East Avenue south in the South Ayden area during an argument, Brooks said.

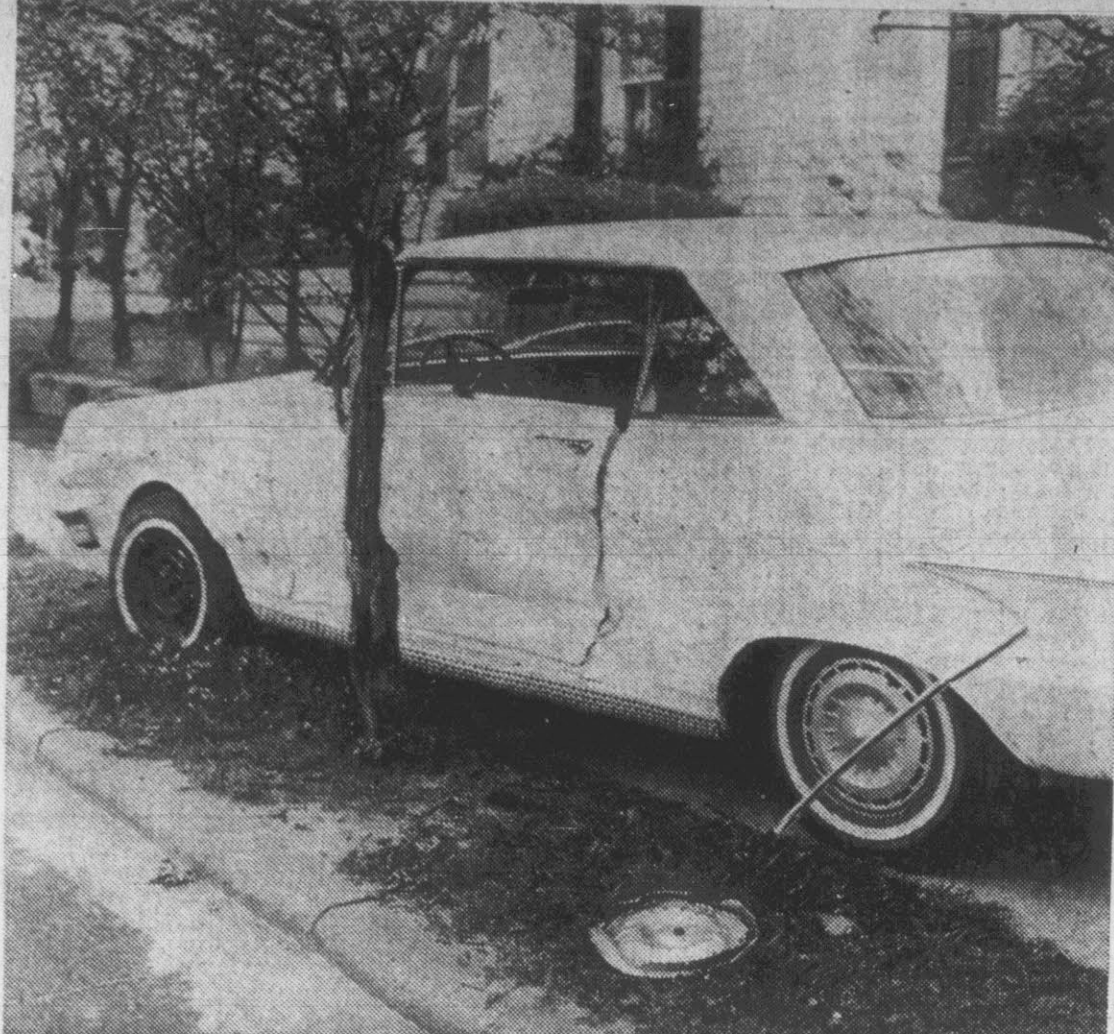

Directors Okay Bank Merger

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A merger of the First Union National Bank here and the City National Bank of Winston-Salem has been approved by directors of both banks. The merged institution would have combined resources of $275 million, placing First Union among the top four banks in the state.

Stockholders of both banks and the U.S. comptroller of the currency must approve the proposed merger, which would bring to 21 the number of cities in the state with First Union branches.

After the merger, the capital funds of First Union would be more than $25 million. One of First Union's more recent mergers was with the Jackson County Bank in Sylva.

Two Collisions In Greenville Yesterday

TWO INJURED . . . Heavy damage resulted and two persons were injured when this and a second vehicle collided yesterday afternoon on Cotanche St.

Two collisions in Greenville yesterday caused an estimated $1,900 damage and sent two persons to the hospital for treatment of injuries received in the wrecks. Heaviest damage resulted from a two-vehicle mishap at the intersection of Eighth and Cotanche Sts. about 4:38 p.m.

Officers said a car driven by Mary R. Tankard, 18 of 108 Riverside Drive, Washington collided with a car operated by Richard T. Bissinger, Jr., of 402 East Fourth St., causing minor injuries to Miss Tankard and a passenger in her vehicle. Both Miss Tankard and Miss Anne S. Marshall, 19, of 503 East Fifth St. were treated for bruises at Pitt

Memorial Hospital and released.

Damage to the Tankard vehicle was set at $500 while damage to the Bissinger vehicle was estimated by investigators to be $800.

Miss Tankard was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following police investigation of the mishap.

In the second collision, Mrs. Rosa Nichols, 201 East Ninth St., was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign.

Officers said Mrs. Nichols' vehicle collided with a car driven by Gloria Manning Harrington, 18, of 401-A Davis St., at the intersection of Boyd and Myrtle Aves.

No injuries were listed in the 8:23 a.m. mishap which caused an estimated $495 damage to the Harrington auto and an estimated $395 to the Nichols vehicle.

False Pretense And Fraud Are Charged To Six

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C. (AP) — Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation have charged five men and a woman with conspiring to obtain money by fraud and false pretense in connection with shell home sales at Morehead City.

SBI Agents F. E. Epps and Jack Robinson said the six are accused of informing Economy Homes at Goldsboro that they had made credit investigations of prospective purchasers when they had not done so. Four of the six are employees of the Goldsboro firm.

The agents said the six are charged with obtaining money on sales made as a result of the false credit checks.

The accused are: Arthur Garrett Brigman, 26, who was Greenville manager for the firm; Dan Barnes Perry, 30, of Morehead City, who was regional manager for the firm at Elizabeth City; E. V. High Jr., 27, who was its office manager at Morehead City; and Richard Allen Blosser, 27, of Portsmouth, Va.; Edwin S. Morton, 26, and his wife, Kathryn, 24. Their trial was postponed Tuesday until Aug. 7.

Judge Declines Drop Burch-Brewer Charges

RALEIGH (AP) — Judge Raymond Mallard today declined to dismiss charges against eight defendants in the Burch-Brewer influence peddling case involving alleged favoritism in purchase of highway signs by the state.

The judge overruled motions from defense lawyers that all the charges against their clients be non-suited.

However, he did allow the non-suit motions in two of the 12 counts on which the defendants were indicted. This came after the defense argued that the statute of limitations barred prosecution on these counts. The Superior Court judge also indicated he would give further consideration to the motion on three other counts.

The judge's decision means that as the case now stands he considers the evidence offered by the state sufficient to allow the jury to pass on the defendants' guilt or innocence. However, the non-suit motions can be renewed after the defense presents its evidence.

The state completed presentation of evidence Tuesday, and the defense will start this afternoon.

The judge issued his ruling after hearing lawyers on both sides.

argue the motions. Solicitor General V. Chalmers and Charles Hagan, serving as special prosecutor argued against the motions.

Judge Raymond Mallard is expected to rule later today on the motions which came after the state completed its presentation of evidence in the long-drawn case Tuesday.

Malcolm B. Seawell, former attorney general, moved for a non-suit (dismissal) for his client, Raleigh businessman Kidd Brewer.

Lawyer William T. Hatch, called for a non-suit for his clients, former highway engineer Robert A. Burch and his son, Robert M. Burch.

Late Tuesday, lawyer James Nance called for a non-suit and directed verdict of acquittal for his clients — Pfaff & Kendall Co. and Traffic & Street Sign Co. both of Newark, N.J., and three New Jersey men who were officials of the firms — George Masfield, Martin Hamilton and Walter Schoenfeld.

In general, the attorney said evidence presented by the state was insufficient to warrant sending the case to the jury.

Seawell contended that the two-year statute of limitations barred prosecution on three counts of the 12 count indictment in the case.

Ten-Year-Old Receives Award

AYDEN — Allen Wilson, 10-year-old member of the Jaycees' team in the Ayden-Winterville Little Tarheel League, has received the 1962 Lutz and Schramm Sportsmanship Trophy.

The presentation was made yesterday afternoon by Curtis Caviler, vice president of Lutz and Schramm Inc., at the Ayden Town Office. Wilson's conduct, desire and ability for team play this season were termed "outstanding" by Caviler.

This is Wilson's first year of play in the league. He has held the position of catcher and occasionally pitched. A rising fifth grader at Ayden Elementary School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Wilson Jr. of 709 Washington Ave.

He was selected from a field of 90 players in the Ayden-Winterville Little Tarheel League.

The award is based on conduct both on and off the field, ability and desire for team play, general spirit of good fellowship with teammates and opponents alike and attitude in accepting decisions rendered by the umpires.

This is the second year the trophy has been presented by Lutz and Schramm. Last year's recipient was Leroy Thompson.

Dear Mary Carter:
There's a very attractive and shapely young blonde divorcee in the apartment across the hall who's always "borrowing" my husband to do odd jobs around her place.

He's over there now, painting her living room. It's 3 a.m., and he's been gone since right after dinner. Do you think he knows what he's doing, or would she get better results with a professional painter?

Mrs. A. O. K.

Dear Mrs. A. O. K.:
That depends.

Did you have an early or late dinner? Is he using an oil-base paint or quick-drying Mary Carter Rol-Latex? Did the job require one coat or two? (And if one of them was mink, you're got trouble). Think about these things, my dear, and if your husband still isn't home by the time you read this go and knock on your neighbor's door. Ask her what the problem is. Then belt her one and drag that no-good husband of yours home where he belongs.

And next time let the hussy do her own painting—with Mary Carter products, of course!
