Johnson And Eshkol Talk Peace Hopes

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson and Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol toured the placid LBJ Ranch and talked of peace in the Middle East and the world Sunday.

With the Hebrew word "shalom"—peace—Johnson started things off.

"We will try to extend the peace that is in our hearts to all men who are willing to share our partnership of good faith and good purpose," the President said in an airport welcome for Eshkol at Randolph Air Force Base, some 60 miles south of the ranch.

The 72-year-old Israeli leader said peace was his "central concern," too. Eshkol noted that it was in his area of the world in ancient days that "men first expressed a striving for peace on earth."

"I will never give up hope that this will come to pass. We in our country are working toward this end," Eshkol declared.

And Johnson added his hope that "you find peace which all Americans are proud to seek with you."

Amid the emphasis on peace, the Israelis were expected to make a plea for U.S. arms, including 50 F4 phantom jet planes they say are needed to balance a Soviet buildup of arms to Arab nations.

The 22-hour overnight visit was informal and private, except for the arrival at Randolph, where about 1,000 persons turned out in 37 degree weather and winds gusting up to 23 miles an hour.

Found Hanging In Goldsboro Jail

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Billy Ray Faircloth, 29, of Fremont, was found hanging in the Wayne County jail Sunday afternoon about half an hour after he was jailed for operating a car after his driver's license had been suspended.

Sheriff Bill Adams said Faircloth was found by a trusty hanging from a bar above the door of the single occupancy cell. The Goldsboro rescue squad was called but efforts at resuscitation failed.

New Pumper Is Delivered To Fire Dept.

A new fire truck is scheduled to go into service here sometime this week, according to Fire Department Chief J.L. Jones.

The 750-gallon per minute pumper, ordered last year, was delivered yesterday by Greenville firemen who took a delivery of the unit at the American Fire Apparatus Company plant at Battle Creek, Mich., last week.

Surveyor 7 Speeds On Toward Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A final direction change will be sent tonight to Surveyor 7, the last scheduled U.S. unmanned mooncraft, speeding toward a planned soft landing on rugged lunar terrain.

Flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory will adjust the path of the instrument-loaded craft in an attempt to put it 18 miles north of the crater Tycho, near the south-central edge of the lunar disc.

Surveyor is expected to be some 51,000 miles from the moon when the course alteration is made at 10:30 p.m., PST. The landing is planned for Tuesday night.

Controllers radioed an initial direction change Sunday afternoon and said the operation went well.

The course adjustments were necessary because the booster rocket that powered the 2,288-pound vehicle from Cape Kennedy, Fla., early Sunday, aimed it at the crater Hipparchus, 1,000 miles north of Tycho.

U.S. space agency scientists had designated Hipparchus as the target but then decided the Tycho region was better suited to the mission's goal of sampling subsurface material. Because it is a newer crater, the soil ejected when Tycho was created has had less time to be changed by erosion.

Engineers figured it would be easier to change Surveyor's course in flight than to rebuild the booster's electronics. Earlier Surveyors have required only one course correction.

Chief Jones said the unit will replace a 1950 model truck used by the department as the first-out piece of equipment for the past 17 years.

The new unit, built on a Ford tilt-cab chassis, cost the city about $18,000.

The fire department head said firemen will start changing equipment from the old truck to the new unit and should place the new truck in service "by the latter part of the week."

The new truck is designed to pump 750 gallons of water per minute and is equipped to carry 500 gallons of water to supply fog lines and one and one-half inch hose lines until larger hoses can be laid to supply the pump with water.

The fire engine the new unit is replacing carried only 400 gallons of water and could pump only 500 gallons of water per minute.

The city council must decide what to do with the old truck, Chief Jones said.

Several rural fire departments have expressed interest in purchasing the old unit.

Charges More Irregularities

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP) — The Alcoholic Beverage Control store at Hot Springs, already embroiled in alleged liquor violations, has been accused of further irregularities.

Madison County Sheriff Roy Roberts has charged the store with selling bottles of liquor which bear no county tax stamps.

The charges were made in a notarized letter sent during the weekend to Ray Brady, director of the North Carolina ABC board.

Roberts said the store has been under observation since last month when a Tennessee man was arrested while in possession of 41 fifths of liquor.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Tel Aviv newspapers said today Egypt is now planning to release 15 ships trapped in the Suez Canal by taking them out the northern end of the waterway, but that Israel will not agree.

Blaiberg Is Out Of His Oxygen Tent

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Groote Schuur Hospital said in a medical bulletin today that Dr. Philip Blaiberg, the world's third heart transplant patient, "is no longer in the oxygen tent and will be allowed to sit up in bed today with his feet on a chair."

The 58-year-old retired dentist neared what doctors consider to be the beginning of the critical postoperative period — seven days after surgery. However, the bulletin said there were no signs yet that Blaiberg's body was trying to reject the heart of Clive Haupt, 24, who died of a brain hemorrhage.

Haupt's heart was grafted into Blaiberg last Tuesday by Dr. Christian Barnard, who also performed the landmark heart transplant operation last month on Louis Washkansky. Washkansky died of pneumonia 18 days after the operation.

No infection is evident in any of Blaiberg's organs so far, the hospital said. His wife, Eileen, was to see him again today but to guard against infection she was expected to speak to him once more through a glass door.

Mrs. Blaiberg said of her first visit with her husband Sunday: "He was looking too wonderful for words. He joked all the time and was very talkative." She added that he looked as healthy as he had five years ago, before his diseased heart began making him look sickly.

The dentist is now on an ordinary diet, but all his food is prepared on a special cooker and sterile utensils are used, the hospital said.

Opening Bids

East Carolina University will open bids for construction of three new buildings this week and next.

In a 2:30 p.m. session Tuesday, Jan. 9, in Flanagan Building, Room 209, officials will open bids on construction of a new section of Ficklen Stadium and another 10-story dormitory for 400 women students.

At the same hour on Tuesday, Jan. 16, also in Flanagan 209, bids will be opened for construction of an 8-story dormitory for 500 men students.

Fees Announced For New Program Ambulance Service Will Begin Wednesday

By STUART SAVAGE
The Pitt Ambulance Service will begin operation Wednesday at 7 a.m. with headquarters at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

John L. Watson of Bethel will head the service, according to Pitt Memorial Hospital Administrator C. D. Ward.

The county assumed the ambulance service through a 1967 legislative act which allowed such service by the county governments across the state.

Pitt funeral directors, who will cease providing ambulance service when the county system begins, told county commissioners new state and federal regulations have forced them out of the ambulance business.

Under the new county program, ambulance service may be secured by dialing the hospital telephone number, 752-

Two trained attendants, certified by the State Board of Health, will be on duty each day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to answer calls.

In addition, other certified attendants will be on call and available if needed during the day.

Service from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. will be on a stand-by on-call basis, with trained personnel standing by at their homes and subject to call if needed.

Officials said the county ambulances should be called for ambulance calls only—transporting sick persons to and from hospitals and clinics in the area.

The rescue squads in Pitt should be called in emergency situations, such as to wrecks, as in the past, officials added.

Fees for the county-operated ambulance service have been set at $17.50 for trips anywhere within Pitt County.

Out-of-county trips will be billed at $17.50 plus 60 cents per mile one way for mileage outside the county.

Trips to Chapel Hill, Durham and Fayetteville will be $75 per trip.

In addition to the flat fee and mileage charge, a $5 per hour charge will be made for waiting time after the first hour, according to Watson.

Watson said persons calling for ambulance service should give the following information when calling: the type of patient (heart patient etc.) to be transported; whether there is anyone at the location to help load the patient; and who will assume the responsibility for the bill.

Each of the two full-size ambulances the hospital now has will be equipped with two-way radios, with a base station at the hospital.

A smaller station-wagon ambulance unit will be added to the fleet in the future.

Watson said doctors have been asked to schedule ambulance trips for their patients between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. when possible.

In addition to the attendants being certified by the State Board of Health, drivers of the ambulances will be certified by local physicians.

County commissioners chose to locate the ambulance service at Pitt Memorial Hospital so a more comprehensive approach to health care might be achieved at the most reasonable costs to the county taxpayers.

Beaufort and Craven Counties are operating ambulance services through hospitals in those counties.

Private ambulance firms are supplying service in Nash and Edgecombe Counties.

Kasperak Reported Conscious And Responsive Stanford Heart Transplant Case Catnaps; Condition Satisfactory

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Steelworker Mike Kasperak catnapped during the night, doctors said, and was in satisfactory condition today, living with the heart of Virginia White, housewife and mother, in his breast.

Although unable to talk because of a tube through his throat to help him breathe, Kasperak could understand questions and comments, and nurses could lip-read his responses.

Kasperak, 54, of nearby East Palo Alto, was dying of heart disease Saturday night when Dr. Norman E. Shumway's surgical team at Stanford University School of Medicine cut out his heart and implanted Mrs. White's. The 43-year-old Santa Clara woman had died two hours earlier after a stroke.

Shumway said his patient knew he had a donated heart beating in his chest. It was one-third the size of the enlarged one that had been discarded, but it was performing well, Shumway said.

Blood pressure, pulse and body temperature were in a reasonable range, Dr. Donald C. Harrison, a cardiologist, told a news conference at Stanford Medical Center Sunday afternoon. Harrison said the heart output—a amount of blood pumped—was 5.3 liters per minute, "almost normal for a man of Kasperak's size" when measured about 12 hours after the 4½-hour operation. The patient weighs 144 pounds. Mrs. White weighed 120.

"His cardiogram looked quite good," Dr. Harrison said.

Dr. Shumway said Kasperak was expected to stay in the hospital many months for observation.

"This kind of followup is essential to the well being of the recipient," Dr. Shumway said.

"We've reached first base perhaps, but the work is only beginning."

He stressed, "There is no way at this time to term the episode a success." But his and Harrison's elation were evident.

"The critical period lasts as long as the patient lives," Dr. Shumway said, explaining that the body could reject a foreign organ months or even years after it entered the body.

Kasperak is being given drugs to suppress the rejection mechanism.

Windshields Were Like This

FROSTY MAN, FROSTY . . . Frost, such as the crystals on this windshield, were common in the Greenville area this morning as temperatures dipped to a 16-degree low.

Few Emergency Calls Result In Morning's 16-Degree Cold

Most Greenville plumbers, even though temperatures dropped to a cold 16 degrees this morning, reported no increase in the number of calls to frozen water pipes or heating plant troubles.

Of the plumbers in Greenville questioned, only one reported having been called for frozen pipes. Others said that more calls might be received as pipes have an opportunity to thaw and leaks become more evident.

Greenville Utilities weather station reported a low 16 degrees at 8 a.m. today while temperature at 12 midnight Sunday was 23 degrees. High temperatures during the day Sunday stood at 41 degrees.

Saturday the temperature reached a high of 40 degrees while the low for Saturday was recorded at 25. The weather station recorded .47 of an inch of rain Saturday.

The Tar River level this morning was 6.8 feet and dropping. Utilities Commission Director Leonard Bloxam said the freezing weather has not caused any special problems with the Utilities yet. C. K. Beatty, director of Public Works, said no problems have arisen in his department due to the cold temperatures.

Glenn Cox, assistant superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, said he felt the weather does not have a tremendous effect on the absenteeism of students in the city schools. Although, he added, "It is hard to say for what reasons students are absent from school."

The Associated Press reports Tuesday will be cloudy with slowly rising temperatures of 30 to 42 degrees. The outlook for Wednesday is mostly cloudy with slowly rising temperatures and chance of some rain and snow.

VC Raid Provincial Capital Near Saigon

By ROBERT D. OHMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas seized a provincial capital 21 miles northwest of Saigon and 10 miles from Cambodia's border early today and held it for three hours, killing three American civilians.

The attack on Kheim Cuong, capital of Hau Nghia Province, was the second raid by Communist troops on a government center close to Saigon in three days.

A government spokesman said about 700 guerrillas stormed Kheim Cuong behind a barrage of several hundred mortar rounds and they "were in the streets."

The three Americans killed were members of the Agency of Civil Operations and Revolutionary Development Support, known as Cords. Another 15 Americans were wounded. Most of those were reported to be civilians and the others military advisers to the local militia.

One officer said the 3 a.m. attack seemed chiefly aimed at the Americans' compound.

The Viet Cong pulled out at 5:50 a.m. and evaded three battalions of government troops converging on the village from their bivouac areas three to five miles away.

The guerrillas left behind 19 dead comrades and five live ones who were captured, the spokesman said. Two of the captives were wounded.

The spokesman said nine policemen were killed and 10 were wounded, at least four civilians were killed and 16 wounded, and the garrison of some 100 militiamen suffered moderate casualties, meaning they were hit hard. Ten houses also were destroyed.

The guerrillas succeeded in hanging a large Viet Cong flag on the wall of the military advisers' compound, but it was quickly shot away.

Early Saturday soldiers of the 10th North Vietnamese battalion shot their way into the village of Tan Uyen 25 miles north of Saigon. In a five-hour rampage they killed eight soldiers and civilians and wounded 35 soldiers and 11 civilians. South Vietnamese officers said 19 of the attackers were killed.

Over the weekend persistent Communist attacks on allied posts in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces led to hard fighting and heavy casualties on both sides.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast Monday night in the Pacific Northwest and the Texas-Louisiana area. Small areas of snow are predicted over Wyoming, Oklahoma and the upper Great Lakes region. Warmer temperatures are in store for the lower two-thirds of the nation. (AP Wirephoto Map)

U.S., Russia Careful In Avoiding Big Clash

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American and Soviet diplomatic files are crammed with harsh accusations and strong protests exchanged in many years of Cold War "shooting incidents." But neither superpower ever has gone beyond tough words.

Both know a small incident could mushroom into a serious clash of arms.

So it appears likely the latest fuss—over alleged U.S. bomb damage to a Soviet freighter in Haiphong Harbor—will sputter out without major military consequences.

The Soviet Union protested formally Thursday night that U.S. warplanes dropped bombs the same day near the 3,726-ton freighter Tereyaslav-Zaleskiy while the ship was unloading flour.

The Soviets called it a "piratical attack."

Without confirming the Soviet version, the United States replied that any damage which might have occurred "was inadvertent and is regretted by the U.S. government."

This was the third such Soviet claim since early June—and the third time the United States has expressed "regret, together with assurances it desires to avoid repetitions" of such incidents.

Although the Defense Department refused comment on any actions being taken, sources indicated U.S. pilots would be reminded emphatically that they are expected to make every effort not to strike Soviet or other foreign ships in Haiphong Harbor.

The main reason, the Haiphong dock area and anchored shipping remained off-limits to American bombers is that U.S. policy makers fear the bombing or rocketing of Soviet vessels might force the U.S.S.R. to take a more direct hand in the Vietnam War. In their protest note the Soviets hinted they might arm freighters entering the war zone, a move which observers say might lead to a direct clash between attacking U.S. planes and Soviet vessels.

Senior U.S. military men and many pilots believe Haiphong's port should be knocked out because it is a major inlet for war supplies which aid the Communists in South Vietnam and buttress North Vietnamese military strength.

Pied County Tobacco Agent

Tobacco is very sensitive to soil conditions. The difference in soils can cause a wide variation in the characteristics of tobacco produced in a given area or often on a single farm. Although a farmer has no control over the type of soil on his farm, a knowledge of the soils most suitable for tobacco production can help him to plan his cropping system more efficiently.

The main characteristics of soil suited to the production of high quality tobacco include: (1) sandy or sandy loam topsoil, (2) sandy clay subsoil, and (3) relatively low level of fertility.

Good drainage is one of the most important factors in considering a topsoil for good tobacco production. The top soil should be of such nature that it will not harden when dry, or get sticky when wet. Such soils permit the roots to penetrate readily.

The most satisfactory subsoils for tobacco are yellow or reddish-yellow in color and of medium texture. The subsoil should be a little heavier than the topsoil but should not be tight. This type of subsoil drains well, yet retains enough moisture for the plants. The medium texture lets the air reach the roots and also enable the roots to penetrate deeply.

Because of the scarcity of ideal tobacco soil, many growers must use land that falls short in some respects. Proper management can help to overcome these disadvantages.

Regardless of the soil type where you grow your tobacco, a soil test report is very important. It can be used as a guide in deciding the best way to provide adequate nutrients for your 1968 crop. Soil sample boxes and information sheets may be obtained from the Agricultural Extension Office.

Two Collisions Here Saturday

Two Saturday collisions resulted in an estimated $500 property damage, according to reports by investigating Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 12:30 a.m. collision on Cedar Lane, 50 feet north of the South Wright Road intersection.

A car driven by James Alfred Braxton, 25, of Route 3, Greenville, according to investigators, collided with a parked car owned by Marvin Eugene Whaley of 2623 South Wright Rd.

Damage to the vehicles was set at $150 each. Police charged Braxton with careless and reckless driving.

The second collision occurred about 1:50 p.m. at the intersection of Evans Street and U.S. 264 and involved cars driven by Elaine Green McLaurin, 21, of Rocky Mount and Joyce Phillips Butts, 28, of Route 1, Ayden.

Damage to the cars was set at $100 each.

Miss Butts was charged by investigators with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

No injuries were reported.

Scales Praised At Dedication Of New ECU Field House Yesterday

By SONNY McLAWHORN
Reflector Sports Writer

"By naming this field house for Booger Scales, it is the hope of the Trustees of East Carolina University that those who use it and the other facilities around it will see beyond the brick and steel and concrete to the more durable principles which have guided the life of him whose name the building bears."

Thus said David J. Whichard II in Sunday's dedicatory address of the W. M. Scales Field House.

"The unselfish devotion of his talents, his energies and his substance to the common good have brought benefits to countless thousands," said Whichard. "He is without peer when it comes to securing funds for worthy projects in the community and for East Carolina University."

In his opening remarks, Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of the university, said, "It was a very happy afternoon that the board of trustees unanimously decided to name the new fieldhouse in honor of Booger Scales."

Jenkins pointed out that the fieldhouse is only one-third complete. Two wings are to be added to the building in the near future, including a "study wing" containing the athletic library, a meeting room and a study.

The other wing of the new facility will house a trainer's office, a weight training room and space for the lacrosse and soccer teams.

"It will be among the best in the nation," concluded Jenkins. Whichard enumerated a few of Scales' contributions to the community, including raising funds for a rescue truck and taking a leading role in securing funds for the new building of Eighth Street Christian Church.

A former president of the Pi Kappa Club and first president of the Century Club, Scales headed the committee which raised some $278,000 for the construction of Ficklen Stadium.

He played a leading role in securing funds for both the Century Club building and the field house.

Scales is the only person to receive Greenville's two top awards for civic work: the Distinguished Service Award by the Jaycees in 1957, and the Exchange Club's 1961 Golden Deeds Award. In 1958 he was selected as Community Man of the Year in North Carolina by his fellow Jaycees.

The Greenville native has been the number one producer for Security Life and Trust Company for the past 11 consecutive years and president of the company's President Club for the same number of years.

In 1955, Scales became a member of Security Life's board of directors, and at that time was the youngest director of a major life insurance company in the nation.

As entertainment for Sunday's dedication program, a trombone quartet from East Carolina played selections from the composer Berlioz.

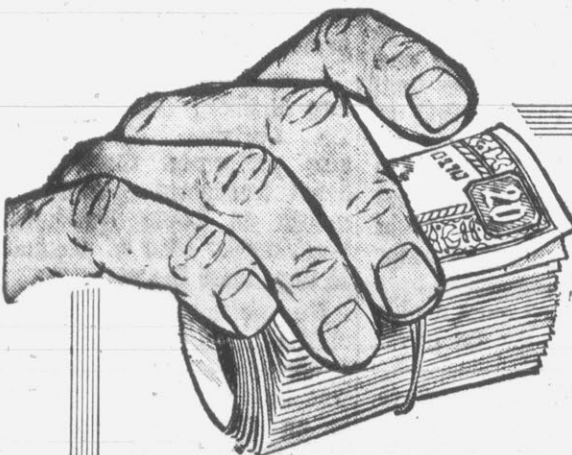

Then W. M. "Waigtry" Scales III unveiled a portrait of his father, painted by Marilyn Gordley. The portrait was presented in memory of Radford Garrett Folger by his family.

The Rev. William J. Hadden, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, delivered a prayer of dedication.

Among the special guests attending the ceremony were State Sen. Robert Morgan, chairman of the ECU board of trustees, and former Gov. Terry and Mrs. Sanford.

Fashion Rules Are Set At Style Previews

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Only a catty female judges the age of another woman, but the age of her clothes are fair game.

By the close Sunday night of the style previews held for fashion editors by the New York Couture Group the rules were well established for scoring at a glance the fashion age of a lady's costume.

Try this test:

1. Does the skirt swing? Give the girl a plus for gathers, gores, pleats—boxed, knife and fan—and give her nowhere else for the shift or sheath.
2. Are her knees rosy? Then she has hiked her hemline above the knees for daytime. She's au courant, even though she may be a midi or a maxi hemline advocate, she won't as yet wear these lengths until after the sun goes down this year.
3. Does she have a waist? Though it may be larger than it was before she began to wear tents two years ago, she has it back again, if she's fashion-conscious. Belts, sashes and tucks tell it's there.

4. Are her sleeves midlength? For shame. If she is with it, she will wear wrist length sleeves or none at all.

5. Is her head woolly as a kewpie doll's? Never mind last year's straight boyish look. Never mind the curlers at the breakfast table. She's up to date with her hair style.

6. Is her dress black? Careful, this question is tricky. Give her points if she's under 40. Subtract points if she wears black for day and is past that age. It does nothing to improve her coloring.

7. Does she wear white for night? She's an angel, from the fashion designer's point of view. Score her high.

8. Does she wear high heels and pointed toes? She should go to the bottom of the fashion class. She can redeem herself by wearing platform soles, preferably contrasted in color to the shoe itself. Or she can wear squat pumps with bright-colored sculptured heels.

Another press preview, American Designer Series, arranged by Eleanor Lambert, began Sunday and will continue through Friday.

Homemaker's Haven

By MRS. MAVIS G. JOHNSON

Pitt Home Agent

The Christmas season is over and yet many of the home-makers in Pitt County have poinsettias still blooming. Poinsettias are always a lovely Christmas gift or home decoration, but many women who receive them for gifts at Christmas time do not care for them throughout the year and the poinsettia is not in bloom the following Christmas.

To keep a poinsettia until next Christmas and have it bloom is possible if a few rules are followed. As long as the plant remains in bloom, do nothing to it except water it. The bloom may last a week or as long as two months. Then place the plant in a dark corner of the cellar until May. In May, cut the plant half way to the root, water it, and place it in full sunlight outdoors. Keep it well-watered all summer.

During the first week of September, bring the poinsettia inside, but place it in a sunny spot. Keep it well-watered. The plant must be in total darkness for twelve hours each day and the temperature must be kept between 58 and 62 degrees at night. If there is any deviation from these rules, the leaves will drop, or the poinsettia will not bloom.

The directions above may seem complicated and troublesome, but a beautiful, blooming poinsettia will make a lovely decoration during the holiday season for years to come.

Couple Weds In Raleigh Ceremony

RALEIGH—Miss Carolyn LaVerne Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman D. Savage of Raleigh, became the bride of Melvin Whicker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whicker of Winston-Salem on Dec. 30.

MRS. MELVIN WHICKER

The Rev. Walter Reynolds of Ayden, former pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. George Manning of Fuquay-Varina presented a program of nuptial selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white bridal satin designed and made by her mother. The gown was styled with an empire bodice with an A-line skirt enhanced by a detachable train fastened at the back waistline with self-fabric roses. The long tapered sleeves ended in lily points at the wrists. Appliques of hand-clipped chantilly lace enriched the bodice, skirt and sleeves.

Miss Louise Stirling of Clinton was maid of honor. Sheri Whicker of Winston-Salem, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Tommy Whicker of Winston-Salem, brother of the bridegroom, and Earl Wayne Savage, twin brother of the bride.

The bride will graduate in January from the School of Radiology at the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital, Greensboro. Before entering the Navy, the bridegroom was an engineering student at Gaston Technical Institute, Gastonia, and was employed by Burlington Industries.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents entertained at a reception. Mrs. E. C. Davenport and Mrs. Raymond Casey assisted in serving.

Dinner Party Follows Dedication Ceremony

East Carolina University President and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins honored nearly 100 guests here Sunday night at dinner following dedication ceremonies of the Weightstill Morehead Scales Field House.

The dedication was held at Mines Coliseum. The dinner in the Jenkins' home began at 5:30 p.m.

Joining Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins in receiving 108 guests were Scales and his wife, the former Virginia Gaylord of Greenville.

A three-course buffet dinner was served in the dining room by Mrs. F. D. Duncan, Mrs. Robert L. Holt, Mrs. Troy Dodson, Mrs. Lee A. Folger Jr., Miss Agnes Barrett, Miss Margaret Scales, Miss Ginger Scales, Miss Sallie Jenkins, Miss Pattie Jenkins, Miss Suzanne Jenkins, all of Greenville; and Miss Elizabeth Grant of Willington and Miss Ann Doughty of Johnson City, Tenn. Two five-branch silver candelabra on the appointed table held yellow fujis, chrysanthemums, and pompons in epergnes in two waterfall-type arrangements.

On the coffee table in the living room was an arrangement of orchid fujis and pink snapdragons. Honored guests at the dinner included Mr. William A. Blount of Durham, ECU board of trustee member, and Mrs. Blount; former Governor Terry Sanford of Fayetteville; Mr. Ed Collette of Winston-Salem, President of Security Life and Trust Co., and Mrs. Collette; Mrs. George Doughty of Johnson City, Tenn., sister of Scales, and Mr. Doughty; Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Perry of San Francisco and Williamston; Mr. Stuart C. Ferris of Winston-Salem, Security Life Vice President and Mrs. Ferris; Mr. Tommy Thompson of Winston-Salem, Security Life Vice President and Mrs. Thompson; and Mr. Joseph Scales of Leaksville, cousin of Scales, and Mrs. Scales.

Husband, Wife Feud Over Yule Presents

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: It's Christmas morning in our household and my husband and I have had quite a falling out. Before Christmas we agreed not to spend more than $15 on each other because we are on a budget. And that's all we could afford

Well, I ended up spending $21 on him because I honestly couldn't find anything I thought he'd like for less. But he bought me a $40 purse which I needed like I need another head.

When I saw it, I was furious and took it back. He was very hurt and called me cruel and ungrateful. Do you think I was, Abby? I feel so bad about the whole thing.

CHRISTMAS RUINED
DEAR CHRISTMAS RUINED: Since your husband had already bought the gift, you should have accepted it graciously and kept quiet. Then at a later date you should have reopened the issue about setting a limit on Christmas gifts, and sticking with it. I think you owe your husband an apology.

DEAR ABBY: I know that I am jealous to a fault, but how would YOU like it if just as you were leaving a party an intoxicated woman grabbed your husband and gave him a long, hard kiss on the lips? My husband made no effort to free himself; he just stood there like a dummy while everyone laughed. This took place New Year's eve, but that's no excuse.

I got mad and ran out to the car without my husband. He followed shortly, full of lame excuses.

The next day I got several telephone calls about it. Everyone criticized ME for being a "poor sport." Nobody said a word about the woman who grabbed my husband and put on an exhibition with him. Was I wrong to be provoked?

STILL PROVOKED
DEAR STILL: Look at it this way. Your husband was victimized by a gal who was full of the spirit of the occasion, and vice versa. I don't blame you for being provoked, but occasionally we all have to ignore things that provoke us.

DEAR ABBY: George and I sent out 203 Christmas cards early in December. We used five-cent stamps on all the sealed envelopes as we had written personal notes on the cards inside. The cards with no writing on them were mailed in unsealed envelopes with four-cent stamps. Okay?

We just received a letter from George's aunt. She wrote, "George, what status does one have to be before he gets a Christmas card from you first class? Yours was the ONLY Christmas card I received with a four-cent stamp on the envelope. You father used to say, 'If you can't do something right, forget it.'"

Abby, my husband and I are in the army and every penny counts, so I was very hurt by this kind of reaction. Do you suppose others also thought that we were cheap? Or is George's aunt wrong?

HURT
DEAR HURT: George's aunt is more than "wrong." She's unkind and small. Forget her, and stamp out pettiness.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PALM BEACH: Anyone who says he is too old for "love stuff" either is—or may as well be.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

'Creative Writing' Program Given At Woman's Club's

"Creative Writing" was the program topic for the meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club held Friday afternoon in the new club building.

Four first place winners in last spring's Creative Writing contest presented their original writings at the meeting.

Included were: James L. Rees reading his essay "The Soaring Spirit"; Mrs. E. K. Fisher read her first and second place winners in children's poems, "Kenya Say" and "We"; poems, "The Raveled Edge" and "Cardinals," were read by Mrs. Robert Pittman; and Mrs. Grover Everett read her short story, "Murder Is No Joke."

Mrs. J. Lindsay Savage, president, introduced the program. She reminded members that the Creative Writing Contest is sponsored each spring by the Woman's Club and traveling awards are presented at the author's luncheon, which will be held on April 27.

Mrs. Vance Perkins gave a progress report on the club building. Mrs. W. E. Rosevear announced that the 50-year history of the club has been sent to the printer.

Mrs. Savage stated that a fashion show will be held at the February meeting. The show will include clothes made by club members and winners in the show will compete in the district contest which will be held here on March 9.

Mrs. Willie Basden, a new member, and Mrs. Paul Davenport Sr., a re-instated member, were welcomed by Mrs. Savage. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. W. E. Avery, Mrs. Cora Powell and Miss Nettie Brogden.

A New Year's devotional was given by Mrs. Savage.

Cottage cheese makes a good addition to the relish platter. If you add minced scallions (green onions) and chopped pimiento-stuffed olives.

Past Experience Casts Dark Cloud

Another round of what appears to be peace feelers from the communists have raised hopes that some sort of truce in the Vietnam conflict may be in prospect.

In spite of hope that this may be the case, Americans must not lose sight of similar situations in the past which failed to produce any concrete steps toward settlement of the war. The communists have put forth impossible demands as prerequisites to peace talks. They have called for pauses in bombings by American forces, but obviously to enable them to beef up their forces for new attacks rather than for the purpose of ending the fighting.

The United States has repeatedly expressed its willingness to make reasonable reductions in the scale of fighting at such time as the communists are willing to make corresponding slowdowns in their military activities. The problem has been, however, that the North Vietnamese have shown no willingness to enter into such an arrangement in good faith.

There are increasing suggestions that the bombing of North Vietnam and other American activities have made the war more and more costly to the communists. While it has been a long and expensive process for the South Vietnamese and the United States, the policy of escalation of the war may be bringing the communists nearer the conference table than the earlier attempt to lure them there by a lower pitch of military activity.

Hopes are high that 1968 will see an end to the fighting in Southeast Asia. A realistic view of the situation demands, however, that one consider the experiences of the past and the inability of the adversaries even to talk of terms under which they might talk of a truce.

No Assurances From Higher Postal Rates

The five cent postage stamp has gone the way of the proverbial good five cent cigar.

With this third increase in postage rates in 10 years, it now costs six cents to mail the first-class letter that went for a nickel last week. Airmail letters now require 10 cents rather than eight and the old "penny post card" now costs five cents.

Most people recognize that the cost of postal service, like the cost of operating most other businesses has gone up appreciably in recent years. Even with these increases in rates, there are no predictions that the sprawling post office system will be able to operate in the black during the coming year. It will continue to have considerably more expense than it does revenue.

An equally disturbing thing, is that with the higher rates, there will still be times when the postal service seems to be much less efficient than it should be.

Building Blocks Of Your Mind

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memories are the building blocks that make up the castle of the mind.

Each merry or momentous event of our lives adds another room to that edifice, a room to which we can always thereafter return and relive the past.

You've got a pretty roomy mental castle yourself if you can look back and remember when—

A parent felt reasonably proud if he was able to see that all of his children got a good solid high school education.

One of the arts every little girl tried to learn was how to use a fan gracefully.

Undertakers always wore black suits except when they left town on a vacation.

A child felt he was quite a linguist when he finally mastered the tongue-twisting mystery of speaking in pig Latin.

When a wealthy man bought a new pair of shoes he often let a poor fellow break them in for him.

The height of devilry for a group of small boys was to sneak into a department store and run down an ascending escalator until the management caught them and chased them back out to the sidewalk.

You were pretty grown up when the barber finally let you read the scandals in the pink-page Police Gazette while he cut your hair.

A boob was anybody dumb enough to think he could get a bargain by buying a diamond ring at a street corner from a flashy-looking stranger.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TODAY'S TRUTH AND MISTAKE

Ruggedly unconventional in his own thoughts and actions, Henry David Thoreau (1817-1863) lived for two years alone in the woods in a cabin which he built with his own hands. He urged his fellow Americans to be self-reliant and independent.

"It is never too late to give up our prejudices. No way of thinking or doing, however ancient, can be trusted without proof. What everybody echoes or in silence passes by as true today may turn out to be falsehood tomorrow. . . . What old people say you cannot do, you try and find that you can. Old deeds for old people, and new needs for new. Old people did not know enough, once, perchance, to fetch fresh fuel to keep the fire a-going, new people put a little dry wood under a pot, and are whirled around the globe with the speed of birds. . . . Age is no better, hardly so well, qualified for an instructor as youth, for it has not profited so much as it has lost. . . . I have lived some thirty years on this planet, and I have yet to hear the first syllable of valuable or even earnest advice from my seniors."

You knew a girl was really stuck on you if she put two straws in her ice cream soda and invited you to share it with her.

The way most young ladies escaped a drab life on the farm was to go to the nearest town and get a job as a hired girl. Any family that could afford a hired girl was pretty well-to-do.

Any young fellow who rode his bicycle in a manner that made him a peril to pedestrians was denounced as "a scorcher."

In the era before prohibition half the saloons in America had a photo of heavyweight John L. Sullivan over the back bar.

Most policemen seemed to feel they would look more authoritative if they wore a big fierce walrus mustache. The mustaches were referred to as "soup strainers."

The only people who carried briefcases were men with important jobs. Today if you opened 10 briefcases in a row you'd find that six of them—and maybe eight—contained nothing more vital to the welfare of American business than an apple, a ham sandwich, and a partly worked crossword puzzle.

The only people on diets were poor people, and it wasn't a matter of choice with them.

Dogs spent more time in doghouses than husbands.

Those were the days! Remember?

TO THE EDITOR

My thanks and my praise to the people of the Greenville-Winterville area. I can truly say I have known southern hospitality, for I have lived a year in Greenville, N. C.

While my husband was in Viet Nam, the children and I stayed in Greenville. We were strangers to your town, and we were welcomed from the very first day. Each and everyone of you, children and adults, made our stay in Greenville a pleasant one. My children were welcomed and made to feel wanted in school, church and scouting activities. Not only the adults, but the children as well were truly friendly.

Children are a reflection of their parents, and that reflection glows in our memories. We were strangers and you welcomed us. Thank you.

Football-Watcher Award

WASHINGTON — The most valuable television football-watcher's award was presented last week to Harry Dalsky of Georgetown at a dinner given at Duke Zeibert's restaurant in Washington. Dalsky, who could not attend because he was watching the Orange Bowl game at the time, was represented by his wife, Marion, who said in her acceptance speech that Harry considered it a great honor to be voted the trophy which consisted of a silver tray which was a replica of a TV dinner.

Marion, who addressed the 1,200 distinguished guests — call wives of men who also were unable to attend the dinner because they, too, were watching the Orange Bowl game—said, "This is probably one of the great moments in Harry's life, and he told me during a commercial, just before I was leaving for the dinner, that he wanted all of you to know that if he could have possibly got out of his chair, he would have been here tonight."

"Harry wanted to say that this trophy belongs not only to him but to all the people who made it possible—Robert Sarnoff of NBC, William Paley of CBS, Leonard Goldenson of ABC and the announcers, the cameramen, the technicians, down to the lowliest soundmen who gave so much of their time and effort to make him look good."

In presenting the award Mrs. Robert Voakum, standing in for her husband who was supposed to be master of ceremonies, said that Dalsky had not missed one football game that was televised in 1967 including all the preseason contests as well as reruns of games from former years.

His eyeballs had covered more yardage and he had passed up more meals and caught more hell from his family than any football-watcher of the year.

Mrs. Voakum said that Dalsky had received 34,578 votes. The runner-up for the trophy was Gordon Manning of New Canaan, Conn., who

Other Editors Saying Birch Society Fades

(Christian Science Monitor)

Word that the John Birch society is declining in members, in money and in influence is welcome. Given the basic good sense of American society, this was bound to happen sooner or later. The society's decline will reduce a destructive element in public debate.

Like the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, whose meteoric career also fell into inevitable eclipse, the John Birch Society has trafficked principally in exaggeration and hysteria. These are shifting sands upon which to seek to build a lasting or a constructive influence in a nation of educated, sophisticated individuals.

Any group which could accuse former President Eisenhower of Communist associations or which would question the patriotism of Chief Justice Earl Warren is one whose influence on national thought cannot but be harmful, as well as short-lived.

Far from being an effective anti-Communist force, the John Birch Society, like Senator McCarthy before it, did more to help than to hurt Marxism. Just as the Senator was probably the single greatest propaganda blessing given world communism during the first half of the 1950's, so the society tended to weaken true anti-communism through revolution against the society's intellectual antics.

It is significant of American good sense that the society's decline has come despite the growing intensity of the Communist-fed war in Vietnam. Had the society presented a credible image, this war could have been expected to rebound to its benefit. The same can be said of the recent summer rioting in American cities. Although many Americans are ready to believe that Communists have sought to benefit from such rioting, this, too, has apparently failed to help the society's standing.

The biggest tip-off that something was radically wrong came with the resignation of some of the society's high officials, one of whom said that his resignation would let him get "a fresh perspective" on the society.

The reported steady drop in membership indicates that many others are also gaining a healthier perspective on an organization built on exaggerated fear.

relieve a traumatic experience. Kidwell, re-enacting a meeting with his wife before TV cameras, acted as if she had shot him first, and that he had then seized the gun and shot her. The judge accepted a manslaughter plea, dropping a first-degree murder charge.

So Why Not Court Reporting?

These two developments suggest that video tape reports of court trials might be far superior to records of even the most accurate stenographers.

A competent stenographer records the words spoken in court. But it is beyond human skill to record on paper the voice inflections, the facial expressions, the sounds between words and other nuances of a witness.

You, for example, might say on the witness stand, "I'd like to break her neck," meaning "She annoyed me." Yet in a stenographic transcript, without that twinkle in your eye, your statement makes you a confessed murderer.

With videotape recording, that statement would give an appellate court the feeling of the testimony, the twinkle of the eyes, the curl of the lips, the tone of the voice. A transcript wouldn't; it might lead to a miscarriage of justice.

There are at least 20 ways of saying "yes," but a court stenographer can record only

Doubt Hanoi Intent

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although Hanoi's latest one-word change of position on war-ending talks is a step toward negotiations, there is no jubilation in the Johnson administration.

On the contrary, top officials whose fingers have been burned countless times in the past five years by their miscalculation of North Vietnam's true intentions are more careful today. They are skeptical rather than elated.

This skepticism is based on indications, some already in hand, that the real purpose of the North Vietnamese is to put the U. S. in a new bind over bombing in the North.

The one-word change places Hanoi directly on record as stating that if the U. S. stops the bombing unconditionally North Vietnam "will" hold talks (instead of, as North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said last Jan. 28, "could" hold talks).

This fundamental change was arrived at only after long and secret discussions within the central committee of the Lao Dong (Communist) party of North Vietnam. However, there is no evidence that it signals an equally fundamental change in purpose, rather than just a maneuver to place the U. S. under irresistible pressure to stop bombing the North.

Even now press dispatches from Hanoi to European countries hostile to the U. S. position on the war are blandly predicting that Washington will have to cease the bombing now that all excuses for continuing it have been crushed by Hanoi's agreement to negotiate.

Accordingly, without any guarantees that North Vietnam would not use talks as a cover for intensified war once the bombing ended, President Johnson is soon going to come under very heavy pressure — both from peace groups here and foreign capitals — to accept the bid and end the bombing.

In fact, however, President Johnson has no intention of falling for any such gambit. There are too many high officials around him (including Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who was then Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs) who remember what happened in Korea after the Communist North agreed to start talks at Panmunjom.

The "Panmunjom syndrome" is not going to be repeated in Vietnam. Mr. Johnson is going to insist that if talks start with Hanoi they will not become a cover for expanded military operations against South Vietnam (under the Communist dictum that negotiations are simply a continuation of war by other means).

Furthermore, experts here see no hard evidence of anything having occurred in North Vietnam to compel Hanoi to sue for peace at this particular time. For all its fearful casualties, the North is forcing the U. S. to accept casualties at a rate that hurts President Johnson at home.

As for its own domestic situation, the North is now believed not to be nearly so desperate for food as it was last August and September, when grain boats from Russia and Eastern Europe were stacked up in the Haiphong harbor with unloading precedence over military equipment.

Gardner Clings To House Seat

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — A sidelight worth mentioning on the plunger of Republican Rep. James C. Gardner into the 1968 governor's race lies in the fact that Gardner won't give up his seat in Congress.

Instead he will be a commuter candidate shuttling between Washington and the North Carolina hustings as often as possible while Congress is in session.

Apparently he will be the first member of Congress from North Carolina sitting in Washington to campaign actively and simultaneously for the governorship, at least in the memory of veteran political reporters. But Gardner thinks he can do it and, in fact, has mapped out an intricate and detailed schedule of pre-planned commuter campaigning.

The question naturally arose about whether Gardner would resign his congressional seat and his answer was an emphatic "no."

It required a separate decision on his part, and he told newsmen it was a "difficult decision" to make.

Feels Obligations

One factor undoubtedly entering into that decision was Gardner's repeated avowal to voters of the old Fourth District two years ago that he would devote himself to duties in Congress.

"I certainly feel very keenly the obligation of service in carrying out that pledge," he said. "I was elected to Congress for two years and I intend to serve out my full term."

"I plan to serve out my term in Congress," Gardner said.

Urged To Stay

Many supporters and friends, he said, pleaded with him to remain in Congress and seek re-election. Even more factors influenced his larger decision to enter a statewide campaign in what observers agree will prove the major test of Gardner's relatively brief political career.

It was speculated several years ago when Gardner had barely passed his 39th birthday that he might eye the governorship someday. Many supporters felt seasoning and experience in the political arena for a number of years would be invaluable — the youthful Rocky Mount Republican had plenty of time. They watched his star ascend with his resounding victory over the dean of North Carolina's congressional delegation in 1966. Some cautioned privately that a bid for the governorship so soon after going to Washington might prove disastrous and urged him to wait.

But Gardner is both confident and an opportunist. He feels 1968 will be a Republican year, and he was not willing to wait.

LBJ An Issue
In announcing, he quickly made support of President Johnson and LBJ policies an issue.

Asked what he felt would be the major difference in his candidacy and that of Democrats Robert W. (Bob) Scott and J. Melville Broughton Jr., Gardner replied: "They will support LBJ I won't."

Brock Considering

A likely Republican candidate for the new Fourth District seat in Congress hasn't emerged as yet. But Gardner said repeatedly he would not give up his seat in Congress unless he felt a Republican could capture it. He said he felt confident that the Fourth will remain GOP in 1968 but mentioned no names.

Gardner's decision to seek the governorship avoided a possible clash between two incumbents, Democrat Nick Galifianakis of Durham and Gardner, this year. Galifianakis, however, almost certainly will face opposition both in May and November.

N.C. Town Laid A Golden Egg With Its ABC Store

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
JAMESTOWN, N.C. (AP) — They call this quiet Piedmont North Carolina community "the town that laid a golden egg with a legal liquor store."

Jamestown is so small that one resident said, "If you blink your eyes slowly when you go through here you won't even see our business district. But you won't miss our liquor store."

The town has no police force and only 1,338 residents, but in six years it has received profits of more than $1.5 million from its Alcoholic Beverage Control store.

Said Carl Wester, administrator of the North Carolina ABC system, "I don't know of a retail liquor outlet in America for the size of the town that sells as much liquor. During the past fiscal year the Jamestown store had sales totaling more than $2.5 million."

The store, which has six clerks, is only a stone's throw from the corporate limits of High Point, a dry city with a population of more than 62,000.

Twice in recent years High Point, noted for its many furniture plants, has voted against establishing ABC liquor stores. "High Point accused us of putting our store as near its city limits as we could," said Mayor Thomas C. Ragsdale. "But there were limitations under the law."

Evans-Novak . . .

(Continued From Page 4) has ended, a fact that casts grave doubt over speculation that political turbulence in China has disrupted lines of communication into North Vietnam.

Furthermore, there is no evidence available to the U.S. of any sudden change in Hanoi's relationship with Communist China — such as fear of Peking's domination because of Chinese war aid — that would impel Hanoi toward negotiations.

These are reasons for the skepticism toward Foreign Minister Trinh's latest pronouncement. The most that can be said is that Hanoi has definitely shifted its position, and this shift coincides with what seems a highly significant pro-American shift of position by Cambodia's unpredictable Prince Sihanouk.

Buchwald . . .

(Continued From Page 4) had been the league's leading watcher until late into November, when unfortunately his house burned down. By the time the fire was out, Manning was only able to catch the last half of the New York Giants-Minnesota Vikings game, and he never was able to regain his stride.

The highlight of the evening were films of Dalinsky watching some of the great football plays of the year. One was of Dalinsky sitting on the edge of his chair as Chicago's Gale Sayers ran a 100-yard kick return. Another showed Dalinsky drinking a beer as the Los Angeles Rams' Fearsome Foursome smeared Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, and a third historical shot showed Dalinsky on his feet changing channels to watch the New York Jets' Joe Namath pass for a 60-yard touchdown play.

One film, shot by director Andy Warhol, showed Dalinsky sitting staring at his set for three hours without moving a muscle. It is considered one of the greatest underground films ever made.

Mrs. Tony Bradley, whose husband was chairman of the awards committee, wound up the evening by saying, "The most valuable television football watcher's award is given to a person, not only because of his viewing ability in the living room, but because he exemplifies the spirit and traditions of the American husband who eyeball-to-eyeball has devoted his life to watching football on TV."

"It is the Harry Dalinskys of this world that have made TV football viewing what it is today, and an inspiration to the youth of the country, who someday will be watching football themselves."

After the dinner, reporters found Mrs. Dalinsky sitting at a table all alone. When asked what she was doing there, she replied, "Harry told me not to come home until the Orange Bowl Game was over."

on where the store could be located."

Wester estimated that 95 percent of the business at the Jamestown store comes from High Point.

"Let's face it," said one Jamestown merchant, "the store was built to get High Point business."

Ragsdale knocked on wood and said, "The store hasn't caused us any trouble. The funds have enabled us to get some projects that we wouldn't have had otherwise."

The prosperous industrial community has a new $275,000 Moore Reports East Progress

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore says a report just received by his office shows rapid industrial progress in North Carolina's coastal area.

The governor commented Sunday on a report concerning the state's marine environment activities prepared by the State Planning Task Force. It was prepared for the Commission on Marine Science, Engineering and Resources at Washington.

Moore pointed out that phosphate shipments from mining operations near Aurora and continued development of a chemical industry at Wilmington could nearly double shipments from the ports of Morehead City and Wilmington this year.

The governor said mining operations of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. at Aurora represent an investment of nearly $80 million. He said geologists predict that other valuable minerals will be mined in the coastal area in the future.

The governor noted that such major companies as General Electric, Hercules, Corning Glass and DuPont have announced plans for new plants in the Wilmington area. He said "availability of a major port for shipping has contributed substantially" to the industrial expansion.

BUDGET DEFICIT

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — The Indonesian budget had a deficit of $2.5 million last year, the government reported Sunday. It was the lowest deficit since 1960.

A Right Way To Test Soil

During the next few months many North Carolina farmers will be sampling their fields in preparation for the spring planting season. Since this is the period when most of the sampling is done, now is a good time to review the importance of taking soil samples properly.

Complete sampling instructions are printed on the reverse side of each soil sampling information sheet. It would be time well spent to review this information thoroughly before going to the field to take samples even if you have taken soil samples before. Only a soil sample taken properly can give you reliable information as to the lime and nutrient status of the area it represents.

Soils can be sampled while they are wet, if necessary, but they should be dried before sending them to the laboratory. The best procedure for drying the samples is to spread them out on pieces of waxed paper and allow them to dry at room temperature. Sending wet samples into the laboratory often results in ruptured sample boxes and it will mean a delay in receiving your results if the samples have to be dried in the laboratory.

Another important part of sampling is filling out the information sheet to accompany the samples. Give as much information as possible. Be specific as to the crops that are to be grown. For example, do not list pasture as a crop. Indicate what type of pasture plants you have, such as fescue or ladino clover and fescue, etc., and whether you plan to seed it or whether it is already established.

Also be sure the numbers on your information sheet and sample boxes correspond. Avoid colonial style town hall, a new fire truck, a $925,000 sewage system and has spent $540,000 for street improvements. In addition, the town has a tax rate of only 63 cents per $100 property valuation.

"If anything the store has put gray hairs in my head because we've had more money to spend," said Town Manager Charles P. Turner.

He recalled that voters approved the establishment of the liquor store by only about 30 votes. When the store opened Dec. 16, 1961, customers were waiting in line in a cold rain. Some had been there for hours. Traffic was tied up for blocks.

"It looked like the traffic at a Duke-North Carolina football game," said Turner.

William Lawrence, who operates a service station nearby and signed the original petition requesting a liquor referendum, said, "The only complaint I have is that it causes heavy traffic on holidays and cars can't get into my station."

Joe Blair, a grocer who also signed the original petition, said: "The town has benefitted a lot from the store. I like the control feature about it. If a boy 14 or 15 years of age wants to buy liquor from a bootlegger he can get it. But he can't buy it at a liquor store."

Persons under 21 are prohibited from buying at an ABC store in North Carolina.

The five-member town council meets in a luxurious room at the new town hall. Turner said the council formerly used a service station as its meeting place.

The town has an Alcohol Education Center which helps educate the public on the evils of excessive drinking.

Turner said $215,000 has been spent for rehabilitation, education and law enforcement work.

Mayor Ragsdale said that when law enforcement help is needed the town calls on the Guilford County sheriff's department.

The enabling legislative act which authorized the Jamestown liquor referendum specified that 70 per cent of the profits go to Jamestown. The remaining 30 per cent is divided on a per capita basis and goes to Guilford County and other municipalities in the county except Greensboro, which has ABC stores.

One woman resident pointed toward the liquor store and then to the Alcohol Education Center and said: "They buy their liquor over there and get rehabilitated over here."

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University President Douglas M. Knight announced today the university has adopted a regulation banning "disruptive picketing and demonstrating" on the campus.

Dr. Knight said violators of the new regulation may be liable to "separation from the university." The regulation allows peaceful picketing and demonstrating.

He added that he was announcing the regulation as "an administrative decision to deal with a specific situation" pending action by the university trustees. He said the action followed a recommendation by the Student - Faculty - Administration Committee.

Dr. Knight noted that in recent months two situations have developed on the Duke campus which will be covered in the future by the new regulation.

One of these was a "study-in" by about 25 Negro students protesting the lack of a university ban on the use of segregated off-campus facilities by student organizations. During the seven-hour demonstration, the students at various times blocked the entrance to Dr. Knight's office and other administrative offices.

The second situation did not develop into an incident because U.S. military recruiters postponed a visit to the campus in the face of a threat of picketing by anti-Vietnam war demonstrators. However, Army and Navy recruiters are scheduled to visit the campus this week.

Dr. Knight also pointed out there has been no change in university policy which permits recruitment for employment purposes by representatives of any lawful organization, including the military. He said he made the comment in answer to a request from the Student Liberal Action Committee that representatives of the military services not be permitted to recruit on campus.

The university president said in the future military recruiters will use the same facilities as recruiters for business and industry. He said this means they will use designated rooms rather than lobbies, congested passageways or outdoor locations.

"Prohibited forms of picketing and demonstrating," Dr. Knight explained, "shall be any action by individuals or groups which

Find Break In At Service Station

Greenville police are hunting for a man who broke into Bell's Shell service station at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive early this morning and took money from a coin machine.

Chief H. F. Lawson said police discovered the break-in at 5:30 a.m. while on routine patrol.

He said the thief broke a window out of a door to gain entrance, then forced open a coin-operated machine and took the money box from the unit.

Only a small amount of change was taken, officers noted.

Who got more miles per gallon than Esso Extra, Gulf No Nox, Mobil Premium, Phillips Flite Fuel, Sunoco 260, Super Shell, and Texaco Sky Chief?

Lead-Free Amoco.

It's true. Here's proof.

We matched Lead-Free AMOCO against these premium brands, in 13 separate tests with 208 cars, over months of mileage runs. The Sports Car Club of America certified results. This is their notarized statement:

"Lead-Free AMOCO got more miles per gallon than these other brands."

Why the tests? We wanted to prove that Lead-Free Amoco can give you more mileage. So we didn't use professional drivers, or tracks, or test cars.

Our drivers were everyday motorists like you: housewives, taxi drivers, college students. They drove their own cars—sports cars, taxicabs, family sedans—regardless of make or model. They didn't use test tracks. They drove where you drive, on all kinds of roads, in all kinds of weather, through all kinds of traffic.

And Lead-Free AMOCO beat these brands in miles per gallon. It doubles spark plug life, too. And users report up to 79,000 miles without muffler replacement. Make your own mileage test with AMOCO—the only Lead-Free Premium Gasoline in America. Only at American Oil Dealers.

William And Mary's Panneton Is Rolling Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
They say in Williamsburg that William and Mary's basketball team goes as Ron Panneton goes, so the biggest news in the Southern Conference this week may be that Panneton finally seems to be going.

Panneton a 6-2 senior, led the Indians to a 14-11 record last season with a 20.6-point average. But this year, bothered by a sore back, he's been inconsistent—and so, predictably, has been W&M.

During December, Panneton averaged only 15 points. Four times he was held to 10 points or fewer. The Indians dropped six of eight games, and when Panneton's sore back kept him out of a 71-59 loss to Jacksonville U. on Jan. 2, the W&M record plummeted to 2-7.

Last Thursday, though, Panneton got back into the thick of things with a 21-point performance against Pitt. W&M won easily, 79-65. And last Saturday night he seemed the old Panneton again, pouring in 32 points as the Tribe clouted New Orleans Loyola, 97-74.

Panneton's return to form causes waves in the Southern Conference because the Indians, although 4-7 over-all, are 2-2 in SC play and still in a position to bring grief to their betters—notably West Virginia, which has a 4-1 league mark and is in hot pursuit of Davidson, 3-0. Both WVU and Davidson have beaten

W&M, but only WVU has a return game.

The extent of W&M's recovery will be evident after this week. One major test comes tonight when the Indians invade independent Virginia Tech. Then they come home for conference bouts Wednesday with East Carolina, 1-3 in the SC, and Saturday with Richmond, 3-2.

There are six intra-conference games this week, including a Saturday afternoon television collision of Davidson and West Virginia which will carry pivotal weight in the regular-season championship race.

West Virginia kept hot on Davidson's heels with a breezy 71-

55 conquest of lowly George Washington last Saturday night.

As Ron Williams showed the way with 20 points, GW still is winless in five SC starts.

Surprising Richmond, 3-2, dumped The Citadel 83-70 in the Saturday regional tv feature and in another conference match, Furman, 3-2, outlasted an East Carolina comeback and nipped the Pirates 59-58.

Davidson's 70-54 intersectional triumph at St. John's, N. Y., was the big news in non-conference action. Dave Moser had 16 points to top the Willcats, who are eager to regain a Top Ten spot and now are 9-3 over-all.

VMI, which upset West Virginia earlier in the week, got bombed at Wake Forest, 9-260. Besides Panneton, Bob Sherwood hit regularly with 30 points for William and Mary in its blitz of New Orleans Loyola.

W&M's non-league game at Virginia Tech, which has a 5-6 record, is the only action for SC teams tonight. Panneton needs seven points to become the seventh W&M player in history to score as many as 1,000 points in a three-year varsity career.

ACC Leadership At Stake Wednesday Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina's Tar Heels, No. 3 in the nation, take on North Carolina State Wednesday night with the winner claiming first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race.

UNC's record is 2-0 in the ACC and a glowing 9-1 overall, with a loss to Vanderbilt the only blot on the escutcheon.

N.C. State is 3-0 in the league, following Saturday night's 68-52 bombing of Maryland's Terrapins, who have now lost five straight.

North Carolina never seems to important thing is, it keeps winning. Saturday's 75-72 squeaker over a tough Duke team was the Tar Heels' eighth victory by nine points or less.

The triumph was over a Duke team which took a 7-1 record into the game. The Tar Heels outrebounded the muscular Blue Devils 41-34, sophomore Charlie Scott getting 20 points and 11 rebounds.

A Duke player the crowd and the regional television audience liked was Tony Barone, who, although only 5-feet-8, stood tall among the giants. The senior played 30 minutes, directed the Duke attack, and scored eight points.

Barone said, "North Carolina has a great team and their Charlie Scott is the best player we've faced this season. But still, I think we'll come back when we play them in our indoor stadium." That game will be March 2, just before the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, which begins a three-day run in Charlotte March 7.

Penalized

NEW-YORK (AP)—With its toughest issue—the penalizing of colleges for recruiting infractions—already out of the way, the National Collegiate Athletic Association opened its 62nd annual convention here today.

The axe fell quickly, and fairly lightly, Sunday on the University of Southwestern Louisiana, the only institution found guilty of violations serious enough to rate punishment by the NCAA's committee on infractions.

The Lafayette, La., school had its basketball team placed on probation for two years for giving financial aid to three prospective players. Currently ranked No. 8 in the small-college rankings, the team will not be allowed to play in any post-season games.

Baltimore Colts Sign Opplinger

BALTIMORE (AP)—Bob Opplinger, a Wake Forest student, has been signed as a free agent by the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

Opplinger will report to training camp in July. He was an all-star Atlantic Coast Conference center in 1966. The following year he signed as a free agent for the Pittsburgh Steelers of the NFL but was released after training sessions.

Four Signed By Deac Recruiters

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Recruiters for Wake Forest's football team went on a hunting trip to Ferrum Junior College in Virginia over the weekend, and came away with four highly touted prospects.

Signing grants-in-aid were John Mazalewski, a 210-pound linebacker; Mike Bradley, a 182-pound flanker back; and Jim Schubert, a 190-pound quarterback, all from Manchester, N.H.; and Ed George, a 243-pound end from Lynchburg, Va.

The foursome has been together since 1966, when Ferrum was runnerup in the National junior college championship.

Ferrum sported an 8-1 record last year, losing only to Lees-McRae.

Rams Bowl Over Browns, 30-6

MIAMI (AP)—Coach George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams said, "we took this game as seriously as any game we've played," and the Rams reflected it by drubbing the Cleveland Browns 30-6 in the National Football League Playoff Bowl in the Orange Bowl Sunday.

"We wanted to let the world know this is as good a team as any playing next week," Allen said, referring to the Super Bowl game between the Green Bay Packers and Oakland Raiders in the same stadium next Sunday.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Rams, voted the Most Valuable Player in the game, expressed his pleasure to a nationwide television audience when he said:

"I want to thank everybody in Miami for making our stay here so enjoyable."

He didn't mention the Browns, but he might have for they didn't come alive until the last quarter and scored with just over four minutes left in the game.

"I hear everybody talk about nobody getting up for this game," said David "Deacon" Jones, 260-pound defensive end for the Rams. "Let me tell you, these guys have a lot of pride." Allen said his whole club had incentive despite distractions from the Teamsters Union, pre-draft rumors and a visit to a dog track.

"We got a lot of calls and criticisms for working twice," he said of Wednesday's unprecedented double practice session. "But that's the only way to play."

A Cleveland Browns' official, who asked not to be identified, blamed the union talk for part of his team's listless first half.

The National Football League Players' Association met Saturday night in Hollywood and agreed to register as a union with the U.S. Department of Labor.

Arl Modell, president of the Browns, admitted that the meeting "didn't help" the Browns' play, and said a personnel shakeup was ahead.

Gabriel threw 21 yard to Bernie Casey and two yards to Billy

Truax for first half touchdowns and hit Tommy Mason for 43 yards to set up a third in the final period on Willie Ellison's nine-yard run.

Bruce, Gossett, breaking the field goal records for the game, booted three from 41, 46 and 19 yards and added three conversions for a 12-point production.

The Rams' "Fearsome Foursome" front line defense of Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Roger Brown and Lamar Lundy, let the Browns get away only once.

This was in the last period when Cleveland moved 81 yards to a touchdown scored by LeRoy Kelly from two yards out. The big play was a 34-yard pass from Gary Lane to Paul Warfield.

Gabriel said the Rams came to Miami for some fun in the sun—it was 80 degrees at game time—as well as the $1,200 each winning player received.

Coach To Be In Oldtimers Game

Johnston, a former member of the Philadelphia Warriors, will play with a team of former Warrior stars in a game against other old timers from other teams in the National Basketball Association.

The coach played pro ball for eight years.

CatawbaCagers Get 'Chance' To Pass Guilford

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Catawba gets a chance this week to pass streaking Guilford in the Carolinas Conference basketball race, but the odds are against it.

Guilford has won all its seven league games, and 11 of 12 overall. Catawba has won five of six conference games and is 9-2 in overall play.

However, if — and it's a big "if" — the Indians win all three of their conference games this week, and if the Quakers lose their only scheduled conference game, there will be a new leader.

But Guilford isn't likely to lose. The Quakers take on eighth-ranked Newberry Saturday night.

Catawba isn't likely to lose either. The Indians go on the warpath against fifth-ranked High Point Tuesday, against sixth-ranked Lenoir Rhyme Wednesday, and against 10th-ranked Elon Saturday.

Bowles Arrives In Cambodia To Visit Sihanouk

RAVAGED BY VIET CONG — A South Vietnamese youngster stands amid rubble of market place in Tan Uyen after it was hit by mortars and rockets during five-hour siege by Viet Cong guerrillas. The attack on the town, 23 miles north of Saigon, killed eight and wounded 35, according to reports. (AP Wirephoto)

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Chester Bowles arrived today to seek Prince Norodom Sihanouk's help in keeping North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces from using Cambodia as a sanctuary. But the Cambodian chief of state in effect told a news conference the American ambassador's mission was doomed.

Sihanouk told newsmen Sunday he would see Bowles, the U.S. ambassador to India. But he suggested that the American envoy would do better to spend his time touring the famous temple ruins at Angkor.

American sources in New Delhi said Bowles would concentrate on the question of Communist Vietnamese troops taking sanctuary in Cambodian border areas. He was expected to seek tacit agreement from Sihanouk to permit pursuit by U.S. forces of Communist troops who attack them in Vietnam, and then retreat into Cambodia.

In response to questions submitted by The Associated Press, Sihanouk said Saturday that "we would not intervene militarily if a fight between Americans and infiltrated Vietnamese, therefore one as much at fault as the other, took place in the outlying and uninhabited regions of our territory."

But the prince told the news conference Sunday he would not allow U.S. forces to pursue the Viet Cong into Cambodia and would condemn both sides if they clashed on his soil.

Sihanouk said he would tell Bowles there is "no possibility of negotiating the right of pursuit" of Communist forces into Cambodia.

The prince also said he would tell Bowles the United States should follow France's example in Algeria and "rid yourself of the Saigon parasites." He said he would suggest that the United States withdraw its troops, adding: "This would be pretty good for on the international stage. It will give you immense prestige."

Sihanouk then attacked President Johnson, saying he would "never lick the boots of that Johnson."

"If he wants to talk, he will come to my house," he said.

Sihanouk described as "utterly fantastic" press reports that Johnson had told Bowles to ask the prince for "definite information" on Hanoi's desire for peace and reports the North Vietnamese had inquired about the availability of Phnom Penh, Vientiane and Rangoon as sites for preliminary peace talks.

"If some day one or the other of them (North Vietnam or the United States) wishes to honor Phnom Penh with their confidences, and wishes to come here to discuss for example the evacuation of the Americans from Indochina, I will be absolutely ready to open up," he said.

"But how could I encourage Mr. Bowles in this direction if the other side gives no encouragement whatever and does not accept?"

He also said that he would not act as a go between to secure the exchange of American and Communist prisoners of war.

Bowles flew from New Delhi to Bangkok by commercial airliner, then took a U.S. Air Force plane to Phnom Penh. He was welcomed by Mme. Chin Renne, the minister of information; the Foreign Ministry director of protocol, and Australian Ambassador Noel S. Deschamps. Australia has looked after U.S. interests in Cambodia since Prince Sihanouk broke diplomatic relations with Washington in May 1965.

The prince said earlier he would see Bowles on Wednesday.

Bowles was expected to ask Sihanouk's cooperation in rejuvenation of the International Control Commission for Cambodia so it can serve as an effective border watcher.

Western sources in Phnom Penh believe that Sihanouk will be unenthusiastic about discussing the commission.

The commission cannot make investigations unless the Cambodian government asks it to, and it is believed Sihanouk might be reluctant to make such requests. The sources pointed out that after a large Communist camp was found inside Cambodia by newsmen last Nov. 15, the Cambodian government did not put in a request for a commission investigation until Dec. 1.

Boats Lifted By Chrome Knobs At Panama Canal

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
Associated Press Writer

BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone (AP) — Puffing on the day's fifth cigar, Raymond Kielhofer used two small, darkly veined hands to lift a 9,000-ton Russian freighter.

He saw the Novorossiysk's captain wave from the bridge while women crew members flashed broad, proletarian smiles from the railing.

Down here you lift boats by moving four chromed knobs on a long horizontal panel. This puts in motion a $72-million-a-year operation involving two giant manmade lakes, some 20,000 civilians, 28,000 troops, two governments and, once in a while, a lot of angry dispute.

Kielhofer is senior control house operator on the Panama Canal locks which pass 13,000 ships a year on their way to and from the great oceans.

His job is filling and emptying vast concrete chambers, 1,000 feet long by 110 feet wide, to a depth of 42 feet with 52 million gallons of water. That's how ships are lifted, or lowered, 27 feet. It takes longer to empty some bathtubs than to fill one canal chamber—eight minutes flat.

How this is done is just one of the samples of the engineering marvel the Panama Canal represents even in the space age. Now in its 54th year, the thin, 50-mile waterway between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is operated with mostly the same equipment that went into it at an initial cost of $380 million in 1914.

Kielhofer is one of some 50,000 U.S. citizens in the Canal Zone related, one way or another, to the canal's operation. In many ways he's a typical "Zonian."

He puts in an 8 to 4 day in a small two-story control house in a concrete island in the middle of the steamy locks. He makes more than $10,000 a year and lives the quiet life of his suburban stateside kin, except that his expenses are about 10-15 percent less.

He came to the Canal Zone in 1940 "for two years," he says with a grin, and stayed.

For the last 10 years, Kielhofer has been a senior operator raising and lowering ships through the locks. Error and disaster are ever present dangers.

Through a miscalculation, a carrier's overhanging deck once sheared off steel lightpoles imbedded alongside a canal lock.

Water, the canal's lifeblood, is one of its more serious problems. In Panama the rainy season normally runs eight months. Water is stored in two great artificial lakes created by damming a river. An extended dry season, lowering the lake levels, can be troublesome. Water conservation measures are then imposed to maintain the steady flow needed to operate the locks that raise ships 85 feet above sea level, through a shallow mountain range, in order to get them from one ocean to the other.

Earth slides are another headache. More earth has been removed in the 54 years since the canal was finished than in all the digging to build it.

A third problem is shipping. The waterway is still some distance from becoming obsolete.

More than 300 ships now are too big to get through the locks; 900 others cannot make it across fully loaded.

The most discussed alternative is a new sea-level canal route through Panama or a neighboring country.

Panama wants a larger voice in canal operations and the elimination of the zone concept in its present form. A new treaty, considerably altering the old one, was negotiated earlier this year, but it has been shelved in Panama after much political sniping.

The zone, a 10-mile wide, 50-mile long strip of lush tropical green sandwiched in the middle of the Republic of Panama, is the only home many Americans have known.

"It bothers me," said Kielhofer, the boat lifter, speaking of the fading American presence here. "The canal's too important a thing to give away."

Smith Bagley On Leave From Bank

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Smith Bagley has taken a leave of absence from his bank job and is expected to run for the Democratic nomination to Congress in the new 5th District, which has no incumbent.

Bagley, 32, announced Sunday he is taken the leave from his post of executive vice president of the Northwestern Bank in Winston-Salem "to allow me to devote a greater portion of my time to civic activities in which I have long been interested."

The leave is effective Feb. 1. Bagley said he will continue to be available to the bank as a special consultant. He ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic nomination to Congress in 1966.

Cardinal Ottaviani Leaves Power Post

By GERALD MILLER
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, the most powerful ultra-conservative in the Roman Catholic Church, has resigned from the church's central administration and Pope Paul VI has accepted the resignation; the Vatican announced today.

The Pope named Franjo Cardinal Seper of Yugoslavia, 62, to replace the 77-year-old Cardinal Ottaviani as secretary for the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the former Holy Office and the most powerful single agency in the Vatican Curia, the church's central administration.

The Holy Office was a legacy of the Inquisition. Cardinal Ottaviani once described himself as a policeman who guarded traditional doctrine and theology.

The retirement of Cardinal Ottaviani and his replacement by a prelate from a Communist country that once imprisoned a Catholic cardinal marked a major turning point.

In dramatic fashion it signified the move of the half-billion-member church away from rigid conservatism toward new experiments in modernism and changing relations with Communist countries.

Now nearly blind, the cardinal resigned after years of conflict with liberal prelates pressing for modernization and reform in the church. Pope Paul reportedly wanted Cardinal Ottaviani to quit after he expressed his desire for all prelates over the age of 75 to offer their resignation, but it was said that the cardinal refused.

The cardinal and his super-secret Holy Office were chief targets of the progressives during the 1962-65 Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The advocates of change won many important victories. They succeeded in ending the index of forbidden books, in winning more open trial procedures for clerics called on the carpet for unorthodox writings, and in changing the name of the Holy Office.

But the fight continued behind the scenes with Cardinal Ottaviani fighting a rearguard action against changes he considered were undermining the church.

Find Brain And Nose 'Linked'

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Two researchers at Iowa State University say they have found a relationship between brain temperature and blood temperature in a vein in the nose.

They said in one experiment the temperature of the blood in the nose of a human subject changed when he did arithmetic problems.

Dr. James H. Magilton, associate professor of veterinary anatomy, and Curran S. Swift, instructor in electrical engineering, said their study showed the nose and sinus cavities are sites of "heat exchangers" that cool blood flowing to the brain.

On Jan. 4 she brought home triplets, Jesus, Juan and Jose. Asked if it would be quadruplets next time, her husband, a truck driver, replied emphatically "no, sir!"

Asks More Funds To Collect Taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City's tax collector has asked for $5.1 million more to defray the cost of collecting personal and business income taxes.

Finance Administrator Roy M. Goodman, in submitting his budget, said he wanted to add 325 collectors to his staff. He requested a $9.8 million for the next fiscal year.

She Gets 206 Off To School

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — Most mothers think they have their hands full just getting two or three children off to school in the morning.

Mrs. Mary Rocha gets 206 of them to the halls of learning every day, does her housework, and helps milk 60 cows before bedtime.

Six of the children are Mrs. Rocha's. The other 200 are passengers on the school bus she drives in Attleboro, Mass. The cows belong to her husband, a farmer.

Cuna Indians Labor At Bases In Panama

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
Associated Press Writer

QUARRY HEIGHTS, Panama Canal Zone (AP) — The Cuna Indians are said to have helped Balboa on his way to discover the Pacific Ocean in 1513. Today the Cunas are doing the next best thing for American troops. They are washing their dishes.

In a way, this could be called the Cuna contribution to the American military effort. They've liberated the GI from routine cleanup tasks for more important duties.

From the Cuna viewpoint this is a purely commercial effort. He gets a minimum $30 a month and some fringe benefits; free housing and food. The GI pays for his services out of his own pocket, about $2 to $3 monthly.

The use of nonmilitary help in U.S. military posts is an old practice. The Army has to adhere to tribal channels to get the Cunas to help.

The Cunas come with a chief with whom the top brass must deal on all matters. As a recognition of his higher station, the chief makes $50 a month and rates a single bed while the others sleep in double bunks.

The Cunas are a race of fishing and farming folk who live on the San Blas Islands off Panama's northeast coast, some 75 miles from here. Fiercely proud of their origin, they are dedicated to the preservation of race purity. Foreigners are not permitted among them. On the islands, social relations between strangers and Cuna ladies are taboo. Cuna girls visiting the mainland have chaperones.

Authorities on Cuna life describe them as among the happiest, hardest working and least complicated people anywhere.

"They are a very clean, orderly people and lead a high moral life," said Lt. Col. James D. Hunsaker of Pueblo, Colo., the Quarry Heights post commander.

"They keep pretty much to themselves and there's no record of a serious incident between them and the troops," said another officer.

The Cunas are among the 8,500 non-U.S. personnel employed in the Canal Zone. About 17 of them work in the Quarry Heights post. Their chief is Temistocles Arias, a short, stocky moon-faced man of 20.

"We like it fine here," he says in Spanish although he speaks a bit of English.

The Indians work in the officers' club, in the troop mess and billets doing custodial services.

Ready Blood Donors A Factor In Heart Surgery

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW

By DAVID J. PAINE
Associated Press Writer

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—South Africa's announcement Dec. 3 that its doctors had performed history's first human heart transplant surprised millions around the world.

How, it was asked, could such a small country have beaten such medically advanced nations as the United States in carrying out this feat?

The answer lies largely in years of research by specialists working as a team, the dedication and skill of the individual specialists and the high standard of all sections of the team.

All the doctors acknowledge that in other parts of the world there are specialists at least as proficient as they are. But they have put together a team with the same excellence as theirs.

"One must say that our surgeons, anaesthetists, physicians, theater nurses, ward nurses and the others who make up the team are all first class," said Dr. Martinus C. Botha, one of the key figures in the Dec. 3 transplant on Louis Washkansky and the Jan. 2 transplant on Philip Blaiberg.

"Of course, there may be as good, conceivably even better, in other parts of the world. But in Cape Town, every member of the team is of world class," he said.

Even Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard, the brilliant heart surgeon who leads the team, says he is not the only one who could do the job.

"There are other surgeons in my team who could perform the operation," he said.

He is not competent to do the operation alone, he said, and relies heavily on the other specialist members of the group for advice.

The team has spent many years working together on heart research and later on open heart operations, which now are almost an everyday affair at Groote Schuur Hospital.

Both Barnard and his younger brother Marius, also a surgeon, have studied heart operations and research in the United States and the team members have visited many countries, including the Soviet Union, to keep abreast of developments.

Botha, a pathologist who heads the blood grouping laboratory at the nearby University of Cape Town Medical School believes "without fear of contradiction that our blood transfusion services and societies are without parallel in the world."

The contribution of blood donors over the last 10 years was a major factor in the high standard of open heart surgery in Cape Town—about 1,000 operations and not a single patient lost, he said.

It was decided from the outset of the open heart surgery, Both said, that fresh blood in heart lung machines would have a great advantage over stored or banked blood suitable for ordinary transfusions.

Local donors are prepared to give blood on holidays and weekends, often considered inconvenient times in other countries, he said.

"Comparison of our post operative results, particularly in cases requiring many hours on heart lung machines, have been better than those obtained in every other major center overseas where they have to work with blood which has been stored for several days due to organizational difficulties," he said.

Not only the surgeons, but other members of the team, are so dedicated that after their normal work they put in long hours without pay to study heart problems, experiments and reports from abroad.

All consider it far more than just another job. When the first heart transplant on Washkansky began in the early hours of a Sunday morning, several of those watching in the operating theater but not actually taking part in the operation had hurried from a party so they could be on hand.

Under their theater gowns, some wore frilly bathing costumes of the 1920s—they had not taken time to change after leaving the costume party.

The Cape Town evening newspaper, Cape Argus said: "It is obvious that members of the team, with all the publicity they have had, could command large fees in private practice... what keeps them at work on salaries at Groote Schuur is devotion to their calling."

Barnard has avoided questions on how much he and other doctors on the transplant team are paid. But a local magazine reported that he earns "barely 500 rands—$700—a month after deductions" and that the amount includes "special allowances on grounds of merit."

Groote Schuur considers all members of the team full-time salaried employees and they may not accept additional money for their services.

Many also do research and some lecture at the University of Cape Town. But so close are ties between the hospital and the university that their work is virtually a joint venture divided into surgery on one side and research and teaching on the other.

The budget of Groote Schuur in 1968 is $12 million and the costs of the heart surgery will come out of this budget.

Dr. J.A. Hendriks, director of hospital services in Cape Province, said it is "virtually impossible" to calculate the cost of the heart transplant operations.

"They are part and parcel of the over-all service," he said. "There is no breakdown of their cost as such."

No patients' fees are charged apart from the usual hospital fees that are assessed on the patients' income, Hendriks said. "In other words, if a man can afford to pay nothing, then he pays nothing but he gets the same service."

Southeast Asia's Geneva Accord Proved A Study In Frustrations

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Could a successful and lasting Vietnam settlement be based on the 1954 Geneva accords, as critics of U.S. policy often suggest?

The story of what happened in Indochina after the French collapse in 1954 has been a study in frustration. Arrangements to deal with the dangers existing at that time were full of holes. A settlement of the present war on the basis of the 1954 arrangements would be presupposing agreements which did not really exist.

Agreements did exist between France and Ho Chi Minh's government and Viet Minh forces. The United States did not sign them. South Vietnam rejected them.

Contrary to the prevalent notion, there was no agreement as such on elections in 1956. The signed agreement spoke only in general terms of "pending elections" which were to bring unification. It was a "final declaration" which proposed that elections be held in July 1956, but that declaration was an unsigned instrument without the binding status of a treaty; it imposed no responsibility on any of the nine Geneva participants. In any case, neither the Americans nor the South Vietnamese were party to the final declaration. The United States issued its own final statement, merely affirming its intention not to disturb the settlement by force.

The Geneva conference was in reality two conferences in one: Korea talks got nowhere. The conference on Indochina seemed to produce a prospect of peace.

The conferees were France, North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Soviet Union, Britain, the United States, Cambodia, Laos and Communist China. Their deliberations resulted in the partition of North and South Vietnam at the 17th parallel pending unification. A narrow strip on either side of the demarcation line was set as a demilitarized zone with all military forces barred from it.

The agreement on cessation of hostilities was signed by Ho Chi Minh's representative and the French Union commander. It provided for regroupment of forces on either side of the line. Pending elections which were to permit reunification of the country, civil administrations in the zones were to be in the hands of the party whose forces were regrouped there.

The two sides were not to indulge in reprisals and were supposed to allow democratic freedoms. No military equipment or supplies were to be imported except for replacement purposes. North and South Vietnam were to shun military alliances and to forbid military bases under the control of any foreign state.

An International Control Commission to supervise these terms, with India as chairman and including Canada and Poland, was to have the right to move freely from zone to zone with cooperation from local authorities.

In Laos, the Viet Minh are required to withdraw and avoid any hostile actions or imports of new troops or munitions. Pending settlement the Communist Pathet Lao forces would be restricted to two northern provinces, Phong Saly and Sam Neua.

The Communists chose to interpret the accord as giving them exclusive control of two provinces. They ignored a requirement to give access to the royal government, and eventually there was civil war.

In Vietnam, the Ho Chi Minh government obstructed the ICC, but so, in many instances, did the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem in the South. South Vietnam, first under Emperor Bao Dai and then Diem, rejected the accords Saigon had refused to sign.

One trouble with the agreements was that a major party to them, the French, withdrew from Indochina and no longer could carry out any obligations there. The French command was dissolved in April 1956. Still another difficulty was that the United States was not a party to the final declaration.

Probably the main trouble was that no adequate machinery was provided for enforcing the arrangements. They would work only if participants wanted them to work. On matters of importance, the reports of the ICC had to be unanimous. This was hardly likely in view of its makeup: one Western member, one neutral, one Communist.

Lacking agreement, it was to report back to the conference members where agreement was even less likely. Even if the ICC could agree, the Geneva instruments provided no clear basis for its authority.

The Geneva instruments might one day be used as a basis for settlement, but the contending sides probably will feel obliged to plug up many holes if they seek a durable peace.

Goren on BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

(c) 1968 by The Chicago Tribune

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ 10 7 5 4 ♥ Q 10 8 5 ♦ 10 7 3 2 ♣ 8 5

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four hearts. True, you haven't very much, but partner's bidding has indicated that he probably can take close to nine tricks in his own hand. The queen of trumps is a sure winner, and the doubleton club should produce a trick for him.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠ 9 3 2 ♥ A 8 6 4 ♣ A K J 10 8 5

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—There is, of course, no doubt that you must insist upon reaching a game contract, but care should be exercised to reach the right one. While the ace and another trump are considered normal support for a rebid suit, we are not inclined to jump with only two trumps, for partner may have to stretch a point to rebid his suit. Our preferred call is a jump to four clubs. This jump by responder is forcing in our system. If partner has a really good heart suit, he should proceed to four hearts. If not, he should go to five clubs, for which there should be a reasonable play.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ J 8 5 ♥ 6 4 ♣ A J 6 3 ♣ K J 5 2

The bidding has proceeded: North East South

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?

A—This is an average hand in high cards (10 points). With mild trump support for partner, the hand justifies a redouble, and that is our choice.

Q. 4—East-West vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ K Q 7 3 ♥ A J 10 5 8 3 ♣ K J 6

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South

1 ♠ Dble. Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid?

A—With this magnificent holding you should insist upon a game contract. Rather than jump the bidding in a four-card major suit, we would prefer a false cue bid of two diamonds, forcing to game and asking partner to so-lect the suit. Proceed to game in either spades or hearts, whichever he selects.

Q. 5—Neither side vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ 6 ♥ Q 4 ♣ A K J 8 4 ♣ A 10 8 6 3

The bidding has proceeded: East South

What do you bid?

A—Pass. It would be difficult to be able to double the three diamond bid for penalties. Unfortunately, however, we can not blow both hot and cold for we find the double of three, especially in a minor, very useful as a take-out signal. It is better to pass and play for a profit. If you double, partner likely will bid spades.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠ 6 ♥ A K 10 8 5 3 ♦ K J 10 8 4 6 3

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four diamonds. This will mark you as holding six hearts and four diamonds, and should permit partner to make the decision in an enlightened manner.

Q. 7—Neither side vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ K J 4 ♥ A 10 9 7 6 4 2 ♦ Q J 7

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—The proper approach to the current problem is this: "What would be my response if partner had opened with a bid of two no trump?" I think under those conditions a highly unbalanced hand, partner's jump bid to three no trump describes a hand of about the high card content of an opening two no trump bid, so that a six diamond bid is our choice.

Q. 8—Neither side vulnerable, your partner has opened with one spade, and you hold:

♠ A 9 8 7 4 2 ♥ J 10 8 4 ♣ A J 6 3

What is your response?

A—Three spades, forcing to game. Despite the possession of six trumps, a leap to four spades would be improper. Such a bid denotes a highly unbalanced hand with great trump support, but must not contain as many as 10 high card points. This hand is the equivalent of an opening bid, and the jump bid showing strength is clearly indicated.

Dad Must Not Be Too Busy For Children

Norman's daddy is jeopardizing Norman's future social success. For his daddy is so concerned with winning a "pile of dough" early, that he fails to remember Christ's warning about the man who tries to win the whole world but meanwhile loses his own soul (and his son, too). So use the Rating Scale below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE E-555: Norman D., aged 11, is unhappy.

"My daddy is too busy to play with me," he began.

"So I don't know how to catch a ball. The other kids call me butterfingers."

"And I always strike out, for I don't get any practice at home."

"My daddy says he is too busy to play with me."

"And if he does have some time at home, he is then too tired."

"So the kids think I am silly, but it isn't all my fault."

Dads must beware lest they worship at the shrine of $$$ and thus neglect their children's social or athletic needs.

Norman has very little camaraderie with his father.

Yet his dad thinks he will earn his "pile of dough" and later fraternize with Norman.

But then it will be far too late. Children rely on their parents quite heavily, at least till their tenth school year.

"So it is far better for dads to earn less money but be better pals of their children during the pre-teen years."

Alas, thousands of dads "farm out" their kiddies to the YMCA and Scout leaders.

Or they even send them away to boarding school or a military academy, thus trying to shun their proper parental duties.

Remember, your children don't ask to come into this world! So study how to be an excellent parent!

It takes some of your time and may be fatiguing, but you owe it to the kiddies, otherwise you double cross them!

To raise your batting average as a dad, follow this prescription:

(1) Surprise your children (and your wife) by loading them into the car at least once per month for some unknown holiday destination.

Visit a circus or a pony farm where they can ride horses or the carousel.

Take them to a lake for a rowboating trip. And let the kiddies row!

Or go to a park for a wiener roast.

(2) Allot one whole evening per week to the youngsters, and never let business or social obligations interfere with this special night.

Have a gala evening of games or occasionally go to a movie.

(3) If your child is behind his classmates in school subjects, use the flash card method and make a game out of home tutoring.

You parents can usually bring a child up to average in reading or math in 6 weeks!

(4) Teach your child to ice skate, play ball, swim and ride a bike.

Even if you are not an athlete, you can play catch and give your son some batting practice.

(5) Take your youngsters to Sunday School each week. And encourage them to say grace at the table.

(6) Don't give your kiddies an allowance but pay them for jobs on the piecemeal basis.

And see that plenty of jobs are available so they can have "ceiling unlimited" as to their earnings.

Send for my "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. Rate yourselves on this 200 - point scale and also let your kiddies rate you, if you dare!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of my booklets.)

Senior Citizens

Hear Dr. McNutt

Dr. Franklin H. McNutt was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Senior Citizens Club Thursday at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

Dr. Nutt discussed the three things which had molded his life: learning to live in harmony with people; being able to recognize greatness in people instead of following a crowd; and being able to accept the things unseen.

The purchasing of name tags for each member was discussed. A report was given on the individual Christmas gifts to residents of the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Home.

GUTTER BALLS

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — One member of a bowling team in nearby Florence might have had an unusually low score. He was observed, later in the same evening heaving his 16-pound bowling ball into the Arkansas River.

The area of Saskatchewan Province, Canada, is about 251,700 square miles.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry market about steady. Price of live poultry at farms 12-12½, mostly 12 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued to rally early this afternoon in active trading. Gains outnumbered losses by better than an 8 to 3 ratio. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 5.23 at 906.50.

Wall Street, while very cautious about the Vietnam peace feelers, still seemed to be betting considerably on former prospects for a settlement. Analysts were busy weighing the consequences which, it was agreed, would be very bullish for the stock market as a whole. The market was higher from the start and widened its advance as the rally continued.

Steels backed away from their best early gains but selective blue chip strength more than made up for this.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.7 at 326.4 with industrials up 2.5, rails unchanged and utilities up 1.8.

The continued strength of the utilities was a new feature of the 1968 market. American Telephone, up about ½, continued its 4-point rally of last week.

$250,000 Loss In Kinston Blaze

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — A reported $250,000 damage was done to the three-story Baker's Furniture Store building in Kinston early Sunday when fire destroyed its second and third floors.

One fireman, Lt. Joe Clark, 40, sustained a broken arm while fighting the blaze.

Police said an explosion of undetermined origin apparently caused the fire.

Extensive water damage was reported on the building's first floor.

Texas Born Of Many Cultures

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The state of Texas took shape from many cultures—a native of Virginia drilled the first producing oil well, as Czech immigrants brought in the most famous gusher, the state capital was designed in the shape of a Greek cross, planned by an architect with a German name, working for a syndicate refinanced by the British. The capitol stonecutters came from Scotland, much of the labor force from Ireland and the statuary was largely done by an Italian, Pompeo Copini.

Automatic Locks Slated On '69 Cars

DETROIT (AP) — All 1969 General Motors Corp. automobiles will be equipped with ignition switches that will automatically lock the steering column and the transmission.

This will go beyond and beat by more than a year a proposed federal rule that would require all automobiles manufactured after Jan. 1, 1970, to have switches that will lock either the steering column or transmission, as well as the ignition system.

The 1969 models will begin making their appearance next September.

In addition to the transmission or steering lock which the National Highway Safety Bureau proposes to make mandatory, the federal agency also would require after Jan. 1, 1970, a warning device that would alert the driver when the door is opened that he has left his key in the switch.

GM said a buzzer warning device it installed in 1968 models will be continued.

GM's new locking system will make it impossible for a driver to remove the ignition key until the car is locked properly. The switch for the single-key system will be on the steering column.

Calypso Version More Colorful

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands (UPI)—"Whatah boilin' fo' fish, bu' fish don' kno'." And if you don't understand this means a surprise of some kind is being planned, that's "shutupness, mon."

English is the language here but Virgin Islanders also have their private Calypso version which can be as confusing as it is charming.

Some other examples: When you have arrived, you have "reached." When you dance, you "sashay." When something is good, that's "notta bod ting, mon!" And if you're an islander who prefers normal English to the Calypso versions, you're apt to be told, "you Yankin mon, yo' swallow de 'Merican flag."

Plan Sculpting Theater Notables

NEW YORK (AP) — An outdoor hall of fame for theatrical notables is being fostered by the Broadway Association, a midtown trade group.

The proposed site is the triangular pedestrian mall that separates Broadway and Seventh Avenue from 43rd to 47th Streets.

Planned are about 65 busts of actors, producers, directors and playwrights who have been dead at least five years. Cost is estimated at $500,000.

Horace Godfrey Considers 8th District Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—A potential second candidate for North Carolina's newly created 8th Congressional District came to light over the weekend.

Horace D. Godfrey, administrator of the Agriculture Department's Stabilization and Conservation Service said he is considering making the race.

The only announced candidate so far is Voit Gilmore, Southern Pines businessman and former assistant to one time secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges.

Both Godfrey and Gilmore are Democrats.

Godfrey has long been associated with federal farm programs. He was named to his present post by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman after having been director of the same agency in North Carolina.

Godfrey has already set the preliminary wheels in motion. He is arranging to change his official residence from Wake County to Union County, where he was born. Union is in the new district, which was created by the Reapportionment passed by the North Carolina legislature.

Although Godfrey has refused to make a definite announcement so far, it is expected he will have one shortly. The deadline date for filing for the Democratic nomination is Feb. 23.

N.C. Counts But 4 Traffic Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only four traffic deaths were reported on North Carolina streets and highways during the weekend, despite icy roads and hazardous driving warnings.

They brought the state's traffic toll for the year to 19 as compared with 30 in the same period last year.

The Highway Patrol said one-year-old Lucille Gape Miller of Jacksonville, was killed Sunday when the car in which she was riding ran through a stop sign at Clinton and was struck by another car.

Annie Mae Stevens, 59, of Whiteville, was killed early Sunday when she was struck by a hit-and-run driver as she walked along a Whiteville street.

Percele C. Hammond, 62, of Fayetteville, was killed Saturday when a car skidded on icy U.S. 220 near Asheboro and slammed into the car in which he was riding.

John M. Doyno, 23-year-old Ft. Bragg soldier, was killed Saturday when his car overturned near Fayetteville.

Shot In Head, He May Close Shop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The owner of a Washington carry-out food shop was shot in the forehead by a bandit Sunday. He survived and says he's thinking of getting out of the business.

Three bandits walked into Lawrence C. Kelly's shop and one of them put what authorities think was a .22-caliber pistol to his forehead and pulled the trigger. The slug penetrated the skin but didn't pierce the bone. It was removed at a hospital and Kelly was released.

Kelly, 23, said the robber pulled the trigger several more times—"three or four, but I wasn't counting at that point"—but the pistol failed to fire.

The robbers got away with an undetermined amount of cash.

Tobacco Plant Strike Negotiations Resume

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Negotiations for American Tobacco Co. and striking tobacco workers return to the bargaining table today, eight days after the initial walkout at American's major plants in Virginia and North Carolina.

Now on strike as well are workers at Louisville, Ky., where pickets went up Jan. 1, expiration date of a separate contract with the Tobacco Workers International Union.

Talks were broken off Dec. 30, when Howard W. Vogt, executive vice president of the TWIU here, reported both sides "poles apart."

At that time, Vogt said, the union was asking an immediate 40-cent per hour pay hike for the 6,000 workers affected in the three-state area, and the company was holding out for 37 cents spread over three years.

All contracts are for three years, but the eastern contract covers the approximately 5,000 workers in Richmond, Durham, N.C., and Reidsville, N.C.

In Richmond and Durham, as well as in Louisville, the American plants are closed, but in Reidsville operations continue, through picket lines ring the plant.

Exactly how many workers cross the lines to work is a matter of some argument. Company spokesmen say about 60 percent of the Reidsville work force has been reporting. The union says the figure is more like 20 percent.

At Durham, where the overnight low temperature was 13 degrees, pickets again appeared outside the plant. A management spokesman said a few machines were operating with supervisory help.

The Reidsville plant, also picketed, had a first shift turnout of about two-thirds normal, plan manager N. B. Luffy said. He said the figure has varied little since the factory reopened after the holiday shutdown.

Luffy said the second shift turnout was a little less than half the usual figure. He declined to give exact figures. Both Reidsville and Durham plants have about 1,700 production workers.

U.S. Film Workers Eye Runaway Cost

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For years Hollywood's labor leaders have been complaining about "runaway production"—the flight of film making to foreign countries. Now they are planning to do something about it.

On Jan. 18, the labor men will meet in Washington with California Sens. Thomas Kuchel and George Murphy and present proposals to halt the overseas drift of film production. The leaders will represent virtually all segments of studio labor—actors, writers, directors, musicians, plus the craft unions.

The cause for their concern was illustrated in a recent survey by Daily Variety. The trade paper reported that 54 per cent of the 210 feature movies filmed by the 13 principal companies were made in foreign lands. In addition, 29 others filmed abroad were picked up for release by the companies.

These figures can be translated into the loss of many jobs for Hollywood's film workers. Last year only 97 features were filmed in the United States, and many were shot on location in New York. Ten years ago, American companies released 533 features, most filmed in Hollywood.

In recent years television production took up much of the slack created by overseas filming.

"But now TV filming has been cut 'way down," says a labor leader. "The networks have been putting on old movies six nights a week—next season they'll be on every night. That means the elimination of many filmed series that could be filming that time."

"Also, the trend has been to more hour- and 90-minute shows, which means fewer jobs. Two half-hour series employ twice the number of workers than an hour show does."

Another reason for the loss of jobs in filmed television: the upsurge of variety shows, produced on tape. And some of the network series have been filmed in foreign countries—"Tarzan," "Maya," etc.

The labor leaders plan to tell the California senators that action must be taken to restore Hollywood's pre-eminence in the film world. Much of their argument centers on what they consider the unfair competition created by foreign subsidies.

Nearly every film-making country offers some form of inducement for film makers. The most notable is England, with its famed Eady plan. Since England provides bountiful talent, cheaper labor and no language barrier, American companies are naturally inclined to make films there. But the biggest inducement is the government-sponsored subsidy, which often pays production costs by receipts in England alone.

The result: 80 per cent of the features produced in England are financed by American companies.

No one yet knows whether President Johnson's recent moves to prevent the gold outflow will diminish the American investment in overseas filming. But Hollywood's labor isn't waiting to find out. The leaders believe action should be taken now for an American film subsidy or some other means to restore prosperity to the Hollywood studios.

Begin Selecting Jury In Intimidation Case

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP)—Selection of a jury was to begin today in the trial of ten of 12 men charged with conspiring to intimidate school officials and other citizens of Rowan and Cabarrus counties.

One of the 12, James Wayne Davis, Rowan County register of deeds, is ill and will not be tried. His charges have been continued until November.

Another, Robert P. Hill, 31, formerly of Concord, has pleaded guilty and is expected to be the government's principal witness.

The others have pleaded innocent.

The government will attempt to prove at least 18 separate acts of violence or intimidation against the 10 defendants. The alleged acts include burning churches and antipoverty offices, shooting into homes, dynamiting property and making threatening telephone calls.

The defendants, all from Rowan or Cabarrus counties, could receive a federal prison term of up to 10 years or a fine of up to $10,000 or both if convicted.

Defense attorney Webster S. Medlin of Concord has filed a petition asking that the government be prevented from displaying in court several guns which were confiscated when the 12 were arrested by federal and local officials in pre-dawn raids July 18.

Medlin said the government has 47 guns and a large quantity of ammunition seized in the raids.

Judge Edwin M. Stanley of Greensboro, who will preside at the trial, has not ruled on the petition.

Medlin has also filed an objection to three questions he said the government will ask prospective jurors. The questions, all dealing with the Ku Klux Klan, are:

"Are you or have you ever been a member of the Ku Klux Klan or any organization associated with it?"

"Is there any member of your family to your knowledge who is or has been a member of the Ku Klux Klan?"

"Would you or your relatives' association with the Ku Klux Klan or your sympathy with its beliefs affect your judgment in the case if the evidence establishes the defendants are members of the Ku Klux Klan and committed the alleged offenses while acting as members of the Klan?"

Medlin said the questions "are designed for the purpose of inflaming the jury against any person who might be or might have been a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

The trial is expected to take no less than a week. District Attorney William H. Murdock said he will need at least two days to present the government's case, and Medlin has said previously he may call as many as 150 witnesses.

The 12 are charged with conspiring to intimidate the school officials and other citizens who were "in the exercise of their rights and duties." The alleged violations date back to 1965.

The law under which the indictments were returned dates back to the late 1800s. It stipulates that the government need prove no overt act of violence, merely that the defendants planned such acts.

The 'State Of Affairs' At Winterville High

By TED A. MINTON

With the ending of our Christmas Vacation we began classes here at Winterville High with a new outlook toward the future. For the Seniors, these next five months will go by very quickly and before we know it we will be graduates. This is a joyful experience for some and a sad happening for others.

This past week, although short, has been an active one for the student body. On Thursday Mr. Lockhart, a representative of NASA, came from Hampton, Va., to give the High School Students some insight on the past history and future programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This lecture proved to be very enjoyable as well as educational.

The Seniors had the task of selecting a class flower and colors. For the flower the Mum, was selected. Yellow and green officially became the class colors. For our motto Seniors chose, "Not merely to exist, but to amount to something in life."

The Searchlight staff put many long hours in over the holidays to meet the deadline of January 6th. Gary Riggs, the Senior Editor, hopes that the deadline will be met and that our yearbook this year will be the best yet.

The Juniors were an excited group when they received their long awaited class rings on the last day of school before Christmas vacation.

Our high salesmen during the recent magazine campaign were honored with individual awards for their sales. These were given out in assembly by our Principal, Mr. Blaine Moye, Kay Gooding, one of these high salesmen, received a large school mascot when her name was drawn. Mike Hazelton was the high salesman with over $100.

The Wolves won a decisive victory with their win over Bethel. Thus far Bethel had not lost a game. Well, we end that. Our team is looking forward to our next game Tuesday night with Grifton. We are hopeful of a victory then also.
