

Most Of North Carolina Covered By Ice Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Freezing rain, sleet and snow gripped much of North Carolina again today, closing schools and some industries, knocking out power and felling trees and limbs across streets and roads.

and northern borders of the state. In the Piedmont and central areas it ranged from one to two inches.
Extremely hazardous driving was reported over much of the state. In the mountains, most rural and connecting roads were impassable. Some main arteries were being used but only with snow tires or chains.

knocked down power lines, shutting off electricity to 60 per cent of the city. Wayne Memorial Hospital was without regular power from 12:35 a.m. until 5 a.m. Emergency generators were used. Most streets were impassable because of limbs and trees.
Power failures also were reported in Raleigh, Dunn, Apex, Sanford, Fayetteville, and Southern Pines. At Fayetteville, where city and county schools were closed, ice and sleet forced the Ft. Bragg and Pope Air Force Base facilities to operate at a minimum.

Raleigh had about an inch of ice. Gov. Dan Moore cancelled a trip to Charlotte where he was to participate in groundbreaking exercises at the Collins and Aikman Corp.'s new science and service center, and at a flag-raising ceremony at the University of North Carolina branch.
Boone appeared to be the heaviest snow point. Eight to 12 inches were reported there at 8 a.m., with the thermometer registering 21 degrees.
The Weather Bureau summed up the state's weather situation this way:

"Shallow cold Arctic air masses that drift across the northern United States and dip southward are sometimes ice storm producers. Of course, the right conditions must be set up for them, and such was the case for North Carolina.
"At daybreak, a little bit of snow was falling in some places, or a little bit of rain, or a little bit of freezing rain and drizzle, or a little bit of sleet."
Temperatures in early morning hours were mostly in the mid and upper 20s eastward from the mountains.

Mount Mitchell, highest point east of the Mississippi River, reported about two inches of fresh snow atop about seven inches already on the ground. The temperature on the mountain at 6 a.m. was 25 degrees. The overnight low was 24 degrees.
In Charlotte, light snow fell in an overnight sheet of ice. City streets were slick despite 24-hour duty by maintenance workers. Traffic moved slowly, and police reported scores of minor accidents.

Police in the Asheville area reported road and street conditions as "very poor," particularly in the area north and east of Asheville.
Weather forecasters said another low pressure system is developing over the Great Plains.
"This might be the one that will clear the Carolinas and weather, but it likely will bring some more rain before it does," the Weather Bureau report said. "That rain will begin late Friday and continue through Saturday."
A warming trend should start during Friday, the report added.

Big Freeze Plays Havoc With Electric Service

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Freezing conditions yesterday and last night played havoc with electrical power service to Greenville and Pitt County residents as freezing tree limbs broke breaching power lines.
At 8 o'clock this morning an estimated 2,000 of the 14,000 electrical subscribers in Greenville were without power. Greenville Utilities Director Leonard Bloxam said the primary trouble was with tree limbs falling in the power lines.
One line on Lakewood Street was replaced five times during the night, according to Bloxam. Each time the line was replaced another tree limb crashed onto the line.
The Utilities director said the trouble started about 6:30 p.m. yesterday with one or two customers calling in. Then it was two and three at a time.

He said utilities crews, contract crews and a contract tree trimming crew worked all night trying to restore power.
In addition to the commission and contract power crews working today, four local electrical contractors are aiding the utilities with jobs they can do such as replacing electrical service lead-ins from power poles to buildings.
Bloxam said none of the major transmission system was affected.
"The power plant, remained in operation all during the night," Bloxam said. "This was a safety measure in case of failure in the Virginia Electric and Power Co. lines, but, the VEPCO lines did not go out."

The major portion of the expense caused by the failure will be in labor, although at least 25 to 30 poles had broken this morning.
All power to the hospital, most industries and television station remained on, as well as the transmission lines in Ayden. The Voice of America Site C, west of Greenville, was without power from 9:30 or 10 o'clock last night until midmorning at least.
At midmorning today winds were out of the north 10 miles per hour, according to the Greenville Utilities weather station. At 8 a.m. today temperatures stood at 27 degrees and had not risen any for an hour or so after that. The commission weather station said the rainfall gauge was frozen so the amount of precipitation could not be determined. The Tar River level this morning was 7.5 feet.
"The people should be patient," Bloxam said. "The power will be restored as soon as possible and crews would work 24 hours a day until all power is restored."

The State Highway Commission said most roads are coated with ice and some of the main roads have broken power lines and trees down on them. State trucks have been working since early morning putting sand on the roads and bridges to cut down on the slickness.
C. K. Beatty, director of Public Works, said his men were working on the Greenville streets trying to clear the broken tree limbs and other debris. Beatty said sand was being put on the streets and that everything will be cleared as soon as possible.
Linwood Langley, manager of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., said several hundred telephones were out of order in the Greenville area. Toll facilities to Kinston, Fountain and Snow Hill are also out of order.
Langley said a large number of telephone poles are broken and that service is being restored as soon as possible. He said the ice on the lines is the one thing that hurts the telephone service more than anything else.
City and county schools in Pitt, Greene and Martin Counties are closed today. Pitt Technical Institute and the Sheltered Workshop are not operating today.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said his night deputies in the county found trees across highways, light and telephone lines down.
These were reported to the proper authorities by the deputies, who are on patrol throughout the night.

The sheriff noted there were a considerable number of trees and limbs on highways, especially where wooded areas were close to the roads.
He said there was a report of one car being crushed by a falling tree in the Chicod area. The car was reportedly parked in a yard and no one was in it.
The Greenville Police Department reported no wrecks had occurred last night and this morning due to icy roads. Chief H. F. Lawson said there was little traffic on the roads, and that most people were staying home.

Chief Lawson said Greenville residents should not drive unless it was absolutely necessary or until the streets had been cleared.
The Highway Patrol station reported only a few wrecks had occurred in the county during the night and early this morning, probably due to slick roads. The station reported the biggest problem on the roads was removing the trees and limbs before someone hit them.

The Greenville Fire Department received seven calls — six were from powerlines down due to ice — from about

Pless Leaving N.C. High Court

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore announced today the resignation of J. Will Pless Jr. as an associate justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court and the appointment of J. Frank Huskins to succeed him.
Moore said the changes would be effective Feb. 3.
Huskins, a former Superior Court judge, legislator and chairman of the State Industrial Commission, is now director of the administrative office of the courts.
Pless, 69, from Marion, has served on the Supreme Court since his appointment by Gov. Dan Moore in January, 1966. Justice Pless served as a district solicitor from 1924 to 1934 and as a Superior Court judge from 1934 to 1966.
The governor noted that after his retirement Justice Pless will be able to serve as an emergency Supreme Court justice when needed.
"We regret losing the services of Justice Will Pless, who has given the full measure of service to the people of North Carolina throughout a long and illustrious career," the governor said. "We wish him a happy retirement. At the same time, I feel the state is fortunate in having a man of the ability of Judge Huskins to assume this important position."

Huskins, 56, represented Yancey County in the 1947 and 1949 general assemblies. He was appointed chairman of the State Industrial Commission in 1949 by Gov. Kerr Scott, and in 1955 he was appointed a Superior Court judge by Gov. Luther H. Hodges. Chief Justice Emery B. Denny appointed him as director of the administrative office of the courts in 1965. He was reappointed in 1966 by Chief Justice R. Hunt Parker.
Justice Pless said in a statement, "There are many reasons why I am retiring. The main one is that I am just tired. After 10 years as solicitor, 32 years on the Superior Court bench and two years on the Supreme Court, I feel the need of a rest which I want to take while my health is good."

Battle Follows Amphib Landing

By ROBERT D. OHMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. amphibious troops crashed ashore in the Mekong Delta and fought a crack Viet Cong regiment in a 10-hour battle that ended early today. Troops of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division reported 46 guerrillas and 18 Americans killed and 50 Americans wounded in the action along the muddy banks of a canal 54 miles southwest of Saigon.
A U.S. spokesman said the Viet Cong's 261st Battalion, long an adversary of American troops in the delta, began withdrawing about midnight under a massive bombardment by U.S. fighter-bombers, artillery and helicopter gunships.
Crewmen aboard an AC47 Drangonship said one of their plane's flares lit up a flotilla of 30 sampans moving south along the canal as the guerrillas escaped. The Airmen said they peppered the sampans with their 6,000-round-a-minute miniguns but could not determine the results.

Fighting has been on the upswing in the rice bowl delta. Senior American officers said there was more action there in December than in any previous month of the war, with 2,000 guerrillas and 600 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops slain. Four days ago a platoon of 9th Division troops landed in a Viet Cong bivouac area 19 miles south of Saigon, triggering a battle in which 31 Viet Cong and 23 Americans were killed.
Since then there have been half a dozen guerrilla assaults on government towns or outposts in the delta.
On Wednesday, armored boats of the combined Army-Navy Riverine force nudged against the banks of a canal near the Mekong River and about 150 U.S. infantrymen dashed ashore.
They ran into heavy fire from veteran campaigners of the Viet Cong 261st. Helicopters trying to shuttle in reinforcements were driven back, but river gunboats laid down a shield of protective fire around the American infantrymen.
U.S. reinforcements were landed near the battle area by choppers and moved in swiftly. By 6 p.m., 750 infantrymen were battling an estimated 400 guerrillas, the UMS Command said.
Army artillery and helicopter gunships, AC47 dragon ships, and Riverine gunboats hurled tons of ammunition into the enemy positions and the guerrillas finally broke off. Only sporadic contact was reported today.
Far to the north, 270 miles above Saigon, Communist troops mauled a government battalion in Binh Dinh Province, near the central coast. A government spokesman said the battalion of some 400 men suffered heavy casualties, indicating it was almost wiped out.
First reports had said 23 guerrillas were killed and two captured.

Heart Patient Said Improving

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Mike Kasperak, who was nearly a dead man last Saturday night when a new heart was implanted in his chest, wrote his wife, Fernie, a note Wednesday. It said, "I love you."
His doctors said his transplanted heart beat on normally and he continued showing signs of significant improvement.
But they stressed that for the world's fourth human heart transplant recipient "the crucial problems of rejection still lie ahead." They referred to the tendency of the body to reject any foreign tissue.
The fifth human heart transplant recipient died Wednesday in New York. Doctors refused to discuss the death of Louis Block 10 hours after the transplant operation until full results of a post-mortem examination are available.
In Cape Town, South Africa, fluid developed around Dr. Philip Blaiberg's transplanted heart. The fluid was removed and doctors said they did not take a "serious view of this complication."
A medical bulletin said "the patient's condition is not as good today as yesterday."

Blaiberg, who underwent the world's third human heart transplant nine days ago, also developed a slight throat infection but it also was not regarded as serious and was being treated with a gargle.
At Washington, D.C., the inventor of the artificial heart valve, Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel at Georgetown University, announced a research project aimed at preconditioning the hearts of unborn calves for ultimate transplanting into human beings. This would eliminate the need for delaying heart transplants until a suitable human donor can be found.
Stanford Medical Center issued a bulletin late Wednesday night saying Kasperak again sat up for the second day and dangled his legs over the side of his bed to maintain circulation. The bulletin said he was visited by his wife.
Kasperak cannot talk because of a tracheotomy performed on his throat, through which a tube is inserted to assist him in breathing.

Staying Open To Take Calls For Help

The Salvation Army is bracing itself for calls for aid after the winter storm which has gripped this area thaws a bit.
Capt. Wayne McHargue said this morning the Salvation Army is staying open to receive calls. "What usually happens is that we receive calls after the weather clears," he said. It is then that the destitute can get out to seek assistance.
"I'm sure that there will be a lot of aid rendered after this is over," he stated.
The Salvation Army had already started giving orders for coal this morning.
Capt. McHargue said he also expected calls for food and clothing.
He expects the Salvation Army's stock of clothing to be reduced and he asked that persons having heavy clothing and boots to donate bring them to the Salvation Army Citadel during the next few days.
It is also anticipated that the unusual winter storm will strain the Salvation Army's budget for food and fuel. Special cash donations may be earmarked for emergency relief due to the storm.

Police Granted Liquor License

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Jackson police will now be able to hang up their badges after a day's work and have a drink in their lodge with fellow patrolmen. The Jackson Fraternal Order of Police was granted the first state liquor license for a police lodge, under a new law passed by the Michigan legislature. The old law was aimed at keeping individual patrolmen from owning bars, but it was worded to prohibit police groups from getting liquor licenses.

Farmville Armory Offers Shelter

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Many citizens of Pitt and surrounding counties have been placed in the dark or, at least the cold from lack of electrical power caused by icing conditions which have existed for the past two days.
Power failure last night followed a day of freezing temperatures and light rain.
All but a small portion of Farmville was without power and people with small children were being encouraged to take the youngsters to the Farmville National Guard Armory, which is heated, in order to keep warm.
Farmville Police Chief Graham Creel said the rescue unit there had driven through town with a loud speaker urging parents without heat to go to the heated armory.
Creel described the condition in Farmville as "near critical," with some "streets that are virually closed up due to fallen tree limbs."

Farmville "power people have been out all night," Creel said, trying to restore service to homes, but, he added, "about all of the power has been off all night long."
In Snow Hill, police said part of the town had power at mid-morning.
Telephone lines to Williamston and Robersonville were out, however the North Carolina Highway Patrol said their radio facility in Williamston was operating on emergency generator power, and said electric service was out from Edwards to Tarboro as well as in Williamston.
Martin County as well as Greene County Schools were closed and ice was reported on roads.
Ayden and Winterville both reported no power in most of the two towns.
No telephone contact was available with Grifton or Bethel.

Emergency water points have been set up at fire department sub-stations in Greenville to provide water for rural residents whose pumps will not operate because of lack of electric power.
City Manager Harry Hagerty said persons needing water may bring containers to the fire department station in East Greenville — on Brownlea Drive, or to the West End sub-station — at the intersection of Chestnut and Skinner Streets.

State Observance Of National Beauty Salon Week Began Sun.

RALEIGH—North Carolina began its celebration of National Beauty Salon Week during the weekend by the selection of a queen to represent the group on the national level.

The queen, Louise Pittman, who was selected following competition, received a trophy, plaque and a crown. She will reign for one year and travel throughout the state giving speeches and making personal appearances.

The other finalists were: Pearl Stanley, Smithfield, second; Clara Griggs, Wilson, third; Bell Howell, Shelby, fourth; and Pat Hood, Goldsboro, fifth.

Other contestants included: Shelby G. Pearson, Greenville;

Margaret Setby, Williamston and Margaret Brown, New Bern.

The girls competed on the local level before entering competition here. Qualifications included: contestants had to be a member of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, Inc., for at least one year prior to August, 1967.

Contestants were judged on activities in the local affiliate of the past year; civic and church activities; poise, charm, personality; and on their reactions during an interview.

Judges for the event were: Mrs. Ruth Lambie of the home economics department, East Carolina University, Greenville; Bill Gamble of Raleigh, assistant manager of the Sir Walter Hotel; and Mrs. Harriet Pressly of Raleigh, who has judged several Miss North Carolina and Miss Raleigh pageants.

The contestants and judges were honored at a luncheon. The theme of National Beauty Salon Week, "Get a lift in the spring with a new hairstyle" was used in decorations.

Following the luncheon, the state's National Beauty Salon Week Chairman Eunice B. Robertson of Greenville introduced the reigning queen, Namonia Parks.

Club Members Entertained At Luncheon Tuesday

The End of the Century Book Club was entertained at luncheon at the home of Mrs. M. K. Blount Sr., Tuesday. Co-hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. James L. Fleming Jr. and Mrs. John L. Hassell Jr.

A luncheon was served 20 guests and members. The long table in the dining room was centered with a Japanese bowl acquired by Mrs. Blount on her recent travels to Hong Kong and other points in the Orient. The bowl featured a unique arrangement of Japanese yew and forsythia.

After a brief business meeting presided over by Mrs. Bancroft Moseley, Mrs. Hassell introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. George R. Weigand.

Mrs. Weigand's work has been exhibited in the Baltimore Museum of Art and, locally, at the Side-Walk Exhibitions. She is a graduate of the Maryland Institute of Art in Baltimore and pursued her graduate studies in both the Trenton Institute of Art in New Jersey and the Rhinehart School of Sculpture in Baltimore.

At the request of the club, Mrs. Weigand spoke on "Madonnas," a subject which she said has been used throughout the ages by more master artists, and in more different mediums, than any other to express themselves in their God-given talent.

She first gave a definition of the Madonnas, and then developed her theme on how and why the Madonna is represented.

Beginning with the Byzantine or fifth century Madonnas, she traced the subject briefly through contemporary madonnas, describing mediums and naming famous artists of each period. To illustrate, she exhibited examples of madonnas in etchings, wood carvings and ceramics from her own collection. Prints and books illustrated with madonnas in paintings, stained glass, tapestries and mosaics were passed around for the members to view.

For a really good job of pressing, many suit and dress sleeves require a sleeve board. If you do not have one, try wrapping a large rolling pin with several clean turkish towels. Pad the rolling pin until you get it of sufficient size. The towels give a firm padded surface, which can be slipped into the sleeve and ironed over.

Children's Bicycles Should Have Reflectors

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The other evening I very nearly hit a little boy on a bicycle. I was almost on top of him before I saw him. His bicycle had no reflectors!

Please print this as a reminder to parents of youngsters who have bicycles. I am not selling "reflectors." They can buy luminous paint and "decorate" the child's bicycle so it will be seen by motorists at night.

Every time I think of how close I came to hitting that little boy, I tremble.

Dr. Irons Is Clio Club Speaker

Dr. Malene Irons spoke to the Clio Book Club members Tuesday on "Operation Sunshine," a project supported by church and civic groups, book clubs and individuals for the past two years.

One hundred girls between the ages of six and 12 were led to a better understanding of themselves through camping, picnics, crafts and recreation for a period of several weeks said the speaker.

She expressed the hope that this project would be repeated again this summer.

Mrs. Morgan Fambrough, vice president, presided over the business session and reported on the club's Christmas project of helping a foster child through the Welfare Department.

Mrs. Jake Hadley, hostess, served refreshments at the conclusion of the meeting.

Bridge Club Entertained

AYDEN — Mrs. Al Tenpenny entertained members of her bridge club at her home here Tuesday.

Mrs. Marvin Baldrée Jr. and Mrs. Willis Manning were score winners.

Others playing were Mrs. Herb Taylor, Mrs. Ray Evans, Mrs. Barry Moore, Mrs. Ray Garris and Mrs. Ray Craft.

My little 4-year-old granddaughter asked me if the stork really dropped her down the chimney, and I laughed and said no. Then she asked me how she got here, and I simply told her that she grew from a tiny seed in her Mommy's tummy. Now what was so terrible about that?

My daughter-in-law is very angry with me because she's afraid the child will ask her how the seed got there. My son has sided with his wife and I am in the doghouse.

Abby, I cannot see putting off telling a child what he will eventually learn anyway. But what am I to do about my son and his wife? I don't like being on the outs with them, but I think they are wrong, wrong, wrong.

THOROLY MODERN GRANDMA

DEAR MODERN? I happen to agree with you. First, try to educate your son and his wife to your way of thinking. It is far healthier for the child. Should you fall (heaven forbid) to bring them out of the Dark Ages, continue to answer all questions as honestly as possible. Time will prove you right.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a man would cheat on his expense account would cheat on his wife?

CHRISTY

DEAR CHRISTY: Only a man who can't resist nice round figures.

DEAR ABBY: My father, who is 82, wants to remarry. This will be his fourth wife since Mother died six years ago. His lady friend is 79. She seems pleasant and intelligent enough, altho she, too, has had three divorces in the past 10 years. Question. My brother and I are paying for Dad's support.

He is still able to enjoy life and look after himself, but at times he acts a little strange. Should we give our blessings to his marriage? We want to be fair, but, oh, dear!

DILEMMA IN DAYTONA BEACH

DEAR DILEMMA: I would not encourage anyone who "acts a little strange" to marry. Especially at age 82, with a history of three divorces in six years.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 9700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Johnson Gives Program

Mrs. Marvis Johnson gave the demonstration at the meeting of the Stokes Extension Homemakers Club held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. R. Fleming.

"Chart Your Course" was the demonstration topic.

During a business session conducted by Mrs. Fleming, president, numerals for 1967 were distributed. The February family night will be held at Mr. Ed's on Feb. 12.

The devotional was given by Mrs. H. C. Cole.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Hawkins and Mrs. Whitley.

Starting Second Year Of Govm't

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamas Premier Lynden O. Pindling marked the beginning of his native government's second year in office today with plans to make the island's internally independent from the British colonial government.

At the first anniversary celebration Wednesday night—in the shadow of one of the largest British forts of the colonial era—Pindling polished the program for presentation to the Bahamas House of Assembly.

A majority report by the Committee on Constitutional Advance, written by Pindling's Progressive Liberal party, a Negro group, is expected to ask that the colonial governor be stripped of his control over internal security and the police.

The minority report from the United Bahamian party took exception to any change in the 1964 constitution which gives Britain control over defense and foreign matters and allows the queen to appoint a governor. The governor chooses a majority in the island Senate and the commissioner of police.

Few here expect the British would refuse the powers to the Bahamas, but considerable opposition was expected from the UBP.

Wednesday night Pindling addressed a cheering crowd unofficially estimated between 6,000 and 8,000 at Nassau's Clifford Field, following a candlelight procession with a calypso beat through downtown Nassau.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Wooten are visiting the Rev. and Mrs. Albert Davidson in Bradenton, Fla.

Rush To Queen Mary Fire Alarm

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — When a fire is reported on the Queen Mary, the fire department makes a "major problem response."

It did so Wednesday. Three engine companies, a ladder company, a boat company and a squad company roared to the harbor where the retired ocean liner is being converted into a hotel.

For 30 minutes firemen looked for the smoke that had set off an electric alarm. They found a charred towel on a light bulb.

Sweden Offered Inflated Budget

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A record budget with new tax boosts was introduced at the opening of inflation-plagued Sweden's Parliament today.

Expenditures total 38.5 billion crowns, compared with last year's record 36 billion. The crown is worth a little less than 20 cents.

The biggest proposed outlay is 7 billion crowns for education and research, an increase of 11.3 per cent. Defense expenditures were budgeted at 6 billion crowns, 4 per cent more than last year.

Among the revenue increases is a 10 per cent hike in the prices of liquors and wines, a government monopoly in Sweden.

No Surprise That Millions Needed

When one considers the number of men and women enrolled in private and state-supported colleges and universities in North Carolina, it is not surprising many millions of dollars are required annually for support of these institutions.

A recent report by the Board of Higher Education shows that 120,558 students were enrolled in 75 public and private colleges and universities in North Carolina during the fall quarter last year. Of these, 73,700 were enrolled in state-supported institutions and the remaining 46,850 were enrolled in private institutions.

North Carolina may get some idea of its continuing needs in higher education by the fact that even with such a high enrollment, it still ranks near the bottom of the list of states in terms of the percentage of its college-age population actually enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

Add to this the fact that an increasing number of students are indicating an interest in advanced degrees after finishing their undergraduate work, plus the fact that a higher percentage of youngsters are going to college each year, and it is readily evident North Carolina still has much to do to meet its needs in the field of higher education. This state, like most others, has to depend largely upon its own resources in meeting its needs in higher education. Adequate funds must be appropriated for operation of state-supported institutions, and at the same time adequate funds must be provided for private institutions through private sources.

Facilities which are meeting the needs of 120,000 students in North Carolina today will not be adequate for meeting the needs of additional thousands of students who will be knocking on the doors of the state's colleges and universities a decade from now.

Additional Dorms For A Growing Institution

Taking of bids within the next week for two additional dormitories at East Carolina University to house an additional 900 students suggests the kind of growth that is projected for the institution in the next few years.

East Carolina, of course, has urgently needed additional dormitory space for a number of years. Even with building at the rate it has for the past several years, its facilities have continued to lag far behind the demands being made on the institution by prospective students.

A new 10-story dormitory for 400 women students on which bids were opened yesterday, will provide an important new asset. The same is true of the eight-story dormitory for 500 men students on which bids are to be received a week from yesterday.

East Carolina has moved forward with its building program in a commendable manner in recent years. It still has a number of buildings authorized which are still several months away from the time bids can be taken on the projects. But by the time they are all completed, there will still be other needs on the local campus which will not be met. East Carolina University continues to be a growing institution and it continues to need additional facilities to meet the needs of the people and the area it serves.

Sensitive Over Quality Charges

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — State Agriculture Commissioner James A. (Jim) Graham had his dander up. In the case of big Jim Graham this is a large amount of dander.

Graham was confronted by published reports of charges that spoiled, low quality and disease-carrying fish and seafood products are being foisted on the U. S. public because of inadequate regulations and inspections under the law.

He denied emphatically that this is the case in regard to North Carolina fish and seafood products, he said. Graham's department is responsible for finfish inspections under the state's food laws and he asked for an immediate report on inspections and enforcement.

"regularly inspect the fishery stations all up and down the coast and see to it that they are kept in proper condition and that the fish are disease-free and handled in a sanitary manner."

"They also inspect these fish at inland fish markets, in retail stores, and wherever fish are held for sale or offered for sale."

Published Charges
Graham's reply was to published charges that present federal inspection laws on commercial fish processing and fishing vessels themselves are "inadequate and poorly administered" and that such diseases as botulism, salmonella, shigellosis and infectious hepatitis have resulted from eating contaminated fish and shellfish.

The Agriculture Commissioner said his department's inspectors "regularly check the fish processing plants for sanitation, wholesomeness of the fish processed, packaging and labeling of fish products."

"We have not had reported a single instance of disease caused by fish such as were mentioned in the news article in question."

Some Contamination
Graham's department, however, does not have jurisdiction over shellfish and this, apparently, is where the major problem lies insofar as North Carolina is concerned. Disease such as salmonella and typhoid has been traced to contaminated shellfish taken from North Carolina waters — in the recent past.

Certain trouble spots—highly contaminated by pollution—have been identified by the authorities. But there are legal limitations on action that can be taken either to eliminate the sources of pollution or prevent the taking of contaminated and possibly diseased or disease-carrying seafood from these areas.

The legislature, while informed of these problems, has appeared more interested in protecting private property rights and preserving the status quo. This attitude may be about to change.

WILLIAM A. SHIRES

A few days earlier Graham reacted to and answered charges of lax meat packing inspection procedures and practices. He published a reply about the situation in North Carolina.

Is Highly Sensitive
"As in the case of recent attacks on state meat inspection, North Carolina gets hit by the 'fall out' because the laxity, if any exists, is not cited by individual states," Graham said.

He contended that North Carolina's food fish industry is "under careful inspection" by both the Agriculture Department and N. C. Board of Health.

"Food fish offered for sale in this state is not diseased or processed under unsanitary conditions," he said. Graham said food inspectors

This Is A Year Of Judgment

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the year of judgment for President Johnson, making everything that he has done or that has happened to him in 37 years of public life a preparation for the 1968 test which can be briefly stated: Do the people have enough confidence in him to want him for president again?

Even in 1968 the test could be less than clear-cut if Republicans produce a mediocre candidate to run against him, for then the public reaction might hardly be more than "Better Johnson than that other guy."

And the test might well have been in 1964, instead of 1968, when he beat Barry Goldwater for the presidency so overwhelmingly.

After that victory, if the times had been normal and reasonably good, he could have looked forward to reelection this year rather comfortably.

But the Vietnam war has divided the country so badly, with a multitude of it will dumped on Johnson for failing somehow to abandon the (Continued On Page 5)

Catches 'Possum On Veranda Of Local Parsonage
Possums in this part of the country are suffering from the wonderlust and are beginning to hibernate far away from dense growth of Pitt County woodland. This fact became evident yesterday when W. L. Woltz, local baker, caught a nice black specimen of the 'possum kingdom on a porch at the Episcopal parsonage, corner Third and Pitt Streets. . . . The animal grunted and bristled threateningly when approached by the intruders, but soon found himself in a bag being displayed to interested persons along Evans Street. The parsonage porch seems to hold a peculiar attraction for wild animals and insects. The past two summers a swarm of bees found home in one of the large columns on the front porch and began a honey factory that probably would have been a permanency had they not been disturbed.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CAN WE PROVE GOD?
Too often today many of our self-sufficient friends come to us and, with their assured, slightly superior air, say to us, "Prove us your God!"

We do not prove God. Even the Bible will not prove God's existence. First and foremost, the Bible reveals God. But this revelation is enough for us. Do we have to prove a God "Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with the span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, in scales, and the hills in a balance?" The prophet Isaiah pictures God counting off the stars in their course—"Behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by numbers: he calleth them all by names. . . . Observe the countless manifestations of his glory! Jesus said, "Consider the lilies of the field. . . even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. . . . Raise your right arm, move a finger. There is a God - miracle for you—a thought, a wish, as intangible as the very air we breathe, transformed into action.

Are you secretly sorry that your God does not periodically appear in a flaming chariot, with legions of angels round about Him? You need not be, for with such blessings daily from God, with such over-awing miracles around us, can we do anything else, but stand and say simply and proudly, "I believe in God!"

Phonics Again Stressed

Suppose, to be supposing, that the editors of New Republic came forth with a long and thoughtful editorial endorsing the principles of Mr. Goldwater. Suppose that the Automobile Manufacturers Association came out for the monorail. Suppose that Norman Toomas announced that he had been wrong for 50 years, and that private enterprise is best after all.

In such an unlikely event, you would have a fair standard by which to judge the stunning impact of Professor Jeanne Chall's new book, "Learning to Read: The Great Debate." Published by McGraw-Hill at $8.50, the book appeared in October. I am just now catching up with it, but better late than never. This is perhaps the most important single book of 1967. Welfare Secretary Gardner, who used to head the Carnegie Foundation, has called it a "bombshell." His word is inexact, but it accurately conveys the explosive prospect.

Ironically, what the book says is less notable than who says it and how it is said. For the past 15 or 20 years, at least, such outstanding lay critics of the schools as Mortimer Smith have been denouncing the "look and say" method of teaching reading. A hundred newspaper editors have pleaded for greater emphasis on phonics. Dr. Rudolf Flesch and Dr. Arthur Trace wrote best-selling books to the same effect, but these were "popular" books and hence suspect.

Now comes Mrs. Chall, with impeccable credentials from the educational Establishment. She was three years at Teachers College of Columbia, then with City College of New York, now a professor in Harvard's Graduate School of Education. She is the experts' expert on reading. Her book is the result of a Carnegie grant. She writes with a scholar's low-keyed detachment.

And what she says, in substance, is precisely what such "conservative" outfits as the Council for Basic Education and the Reading Reform Foundation have been saying all along: when it comes to teaching a child to read—the most important of all skills—the "look and say" method is inferior to an approach that places primary emphasis on phonics. The "oh, oh, jump, jump" basic readers, used throughout the United States, are poor in content and needlessly restrictive in vocabulary development. Those children who are fortunate enough to be trained in phonetic reading, or "sound it out," soon learn to read the tough stuff. They wind up as better spellers. And the ones who are hurt most cruelly by the prevailing "look and say" approach are the slum children who are most desperately in need of reading skills.

Mrs. Chall came to these conclusions after three years of exhaustive research into the teaching of reading. She (Continued On Page 5)

Other Editors Saying Something For Tobacco

(Henderson Dispatch)

Consensus seems to be that remedying the tobacco marketing situation is a must for the next few months and well before the 1968 crop moves to warehouse floors for sale. At least from the viewpoint of the farmer and his interests and welfare, selling conditions in 1967 were intolerable.

In comments during his news conference last week, Governor Moore emphasized this need and said Federal intervention is aimed at a certain unless the various segments of the industry are able to agree on a workable plan that is reasonably satisfactory to all groups. That is the last thing that is wanted. There is already enough and too much government meddling in the affairs of private industry. There are, of course, bureaucrats in Washington who are biding their time until an impasse develops that will provide them the excuse they are waiting for.

We are confident that there is enough brains in the tobacco industry to solve the problem of marketing. Gentlemen with the authority and the knowhow will sit complacently by their own peril. It is difficult to conceive of further Federal directives solving the problem. Washington may have the power to ram its edicts down the throats of those concerned, but it will be bitter medicine indeed if it comes to that.

There is abundant time in the next few months to devise a satisfactory solution of the problems that are pressing, and if tobacco people know what is good for them and their industry they will go to any reasonable lengths to stave off intervention by the government. Should they invite such a move, they may find that they are jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

DeGaulle Hurt Most By Johnson

By ELMER ROESSNER
Big Daddy Johnson appears to have planted such a violent kick on Charles de Gaulle's pants that his halo jiggled.

President Johnson's program to halt the outflow of gold boots France harder than perhaps any other country. There's grim justice in that because De Gaulle led the raid on the dollar.

The restrictions on American investments abroad may give the Old Chanticleer something to crow about at home. He can brag that the American take-over of French industry has been checked and that Frenchmen can now own France.

But at the same time the restrictions will limit the amount of dollars pouring into France which Frenchmen can and do exchange for American gold. Travel Restrictions Worse
The restrictions on travel and Italians are frugal spenders and, compared with the Americans, lousy tipsters.

ON Dec. 7, this column proposed a boycott of French goods "because we love the French people and we should help them to know the futility of De Gaulism. . . . Our fathers, our sons and some of us have fought to save France outside the Western Hemisphere will hit France even harder. Congress will have to pass these before they become law, but even now France has been hit by voluntary public action. De Gaulle's raid on the dollar has created considerable anti-De Gaulle, though not anti-French, sentiment in this country and travel agents and airlines report many changes in plans to visit France. A drop in American travel to France on top of the sharp cut in NATO spending, will hit both small and large enterprises of France, the transportation lines, the hotel keepers, the restaurants, the fashion salons and the thousands of others who have fanned on American travelers. France can be counted on to campaign to lure tourists from other European countries. The British will not be attracted, and the Scandinavians, Germans, Spaniards cotts of De Gaulle's France, and Representative L. Mendel Rivers, D. S. C., compared De Gaulle to Judas Iscariot.

French perfumers reported a drop in pre-Christmas orders from America, and rumors, all untrue, spread through business circles that Fifth Avenue stores had mounted signs saying that no French goods were carried. De Gaulle's slur at the Jews also prompted boycotts here. Meanwhile, while transatlantic airlines and many travel agencies have been grouching about the ban on travel, most of them are laying plans to exploit travel in the Western Hemisphere, which will not be affected by travel restrictions. Holiday and other travel magazines are reported to be rescheduling coming issues to put more stress on Canada and Latin America.

in two wars and American blood has soaked the soil of France. Let us help save France again."

John Glenn's Return

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "I reached a low point in my life, but I've come back from it," said Col. John H. Glenn Jr.

Glenn, the first American astronaut to orbit the earth, makes his debut as a television star tonight in "Great Explorations," a new series on NBC-TV. On the program Glenn will follow the route taken by journalist Henry Morton Stanley in his historic search for missionary David Livingston in Africa late in the last century.

Recalling his own historic orbital flight over the same territory in 1962, the colonel remarked:

"It took me 3 minutes and 20 seconds to cover the route it took Stanley 8½ months. I was traveling five miles a second. A lot of days Stanley didn't make that much a day."

No American of his generation ever received greater accolade than greeted Glenn after he piloted the Mercury Friendship 7 spacecraft on its successful three-orbit mission around the earth on Feb. 20, 1962. Honors were showered on him from all parts of the country. He received a hero's welcome wherever he went.

But personal disaster struck in 1964 when, after resigning from the Marine Corps, he announced plans to enter politics and seek election as U.S. senator from Ohio. A bathroom fall left him with an ear injury that forced him to abandon his political campaign.

"That certainly wasn't a vin-

tage year for me," Glenn said during a recent luncheon interview. "I was out of everything for almost a year, and I guess I was lucky just to be among the living."

Added to worry over his slow physical recuperation were the biggest financial troubles of his lifetime. The cancellation of his senatorial campaign left him and his backers facing thousands of dollars in unpaid bills. He could have ducked them but, characteristically, decided to shoulder them all himself.

"I was determined to pay off all my political debts, and I did," he said. "It took me a year and a half to do it, and 23½ years of my Marine Corps savings went down the drain. It wasn't a huge sum, but it seemed a big amount to me."

Today he is completely recovered, both physically and financially. He serves as a consultant on space matters for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and is president of Royal Crown Cola International, Ltd. He has traveled in 33 countries in the last two years.

Still boyish looking at 46, Glenn weighs 178 pounds, only five more than he did when he made his orbital flights. Now as then, he runs at least two miles every day when he is at home.

"I like to keep in shape," he said. "If I don't take exercise, I feel dull and logy."

"Life is good again for me now—after that low point. I enjoy everything."

"All our debts are paid, my wife Annie's health is good, and our two kids are in school. The whole family is fine."

Parents Learn To Teach Deaf

By DON REEDER
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The curly haired 3-year-old boy watched closely as his mother mixed flour in a bowl on the kitchen table.

"Let's make a cake," she tells the youngster in carefully distinct syllables.

The mother repeats the words three times as the boy gazes intently at her face. At last he grins and chirps, "Cake."

An ordinary domestic scene? Not quite?

The child is almost totally deaf, and the two-story frame house is not theirs but a parent-home clinic established by the University of Kansas Medical Center.

One of four such projects across the nation financed by federal funds, the house is used to show parents in a familiar atmosphere how to help teach children with impaired hearing.

"We tried for years to tell parents in our offices how to do it, but it just didn't work out very well in many cases," explained Dr. June Miller, audiologist and director of the medical center's hearing and speech department.

"In a home situation, the parents can see clearly how and what they must do to help. We're very enthusiastic about it."

Established only a few months ago, the program involves 31 youngsters with varying degrees of hearing loss. Some of the children also have visual problems, are slow learners or have other handicaps.

Most of the boys and girls are under 3. Experts would like to begin the training at ages as early as 6 months, or as soon as a baby is known to have impaired hearing.

A hearing clinician works with the mother or father—often both—to coach them on helping the child understand others and ultimately learn to speak. Parents bring their child on regular visits to the home center until the youngster is ready to enroll in a special preschool program.

"The big problem is getting the parents to simply talk to the child of something that interests him—anything to get the child to look at them," Dr. Miller explained.

"Adults should talk in a normally loud voice, often and meaningful to draw the child's attention."

When they first come to the home center, some of the deaf youngsters seldom look at their parents when the latter speak. They live in a silent world of their own.

But in surroundings familiar to both of them, parent and child are shown how to communicate while playing games or performing routine household tasks.

"It's a lot of work," said one mother.

"You've got to keep repeating the same thing over and over until she understands it. But I've learned."

"Now at home when Mary is around I make a point of explaining everything I'm doing. It's amazing how quickly they pick things up."

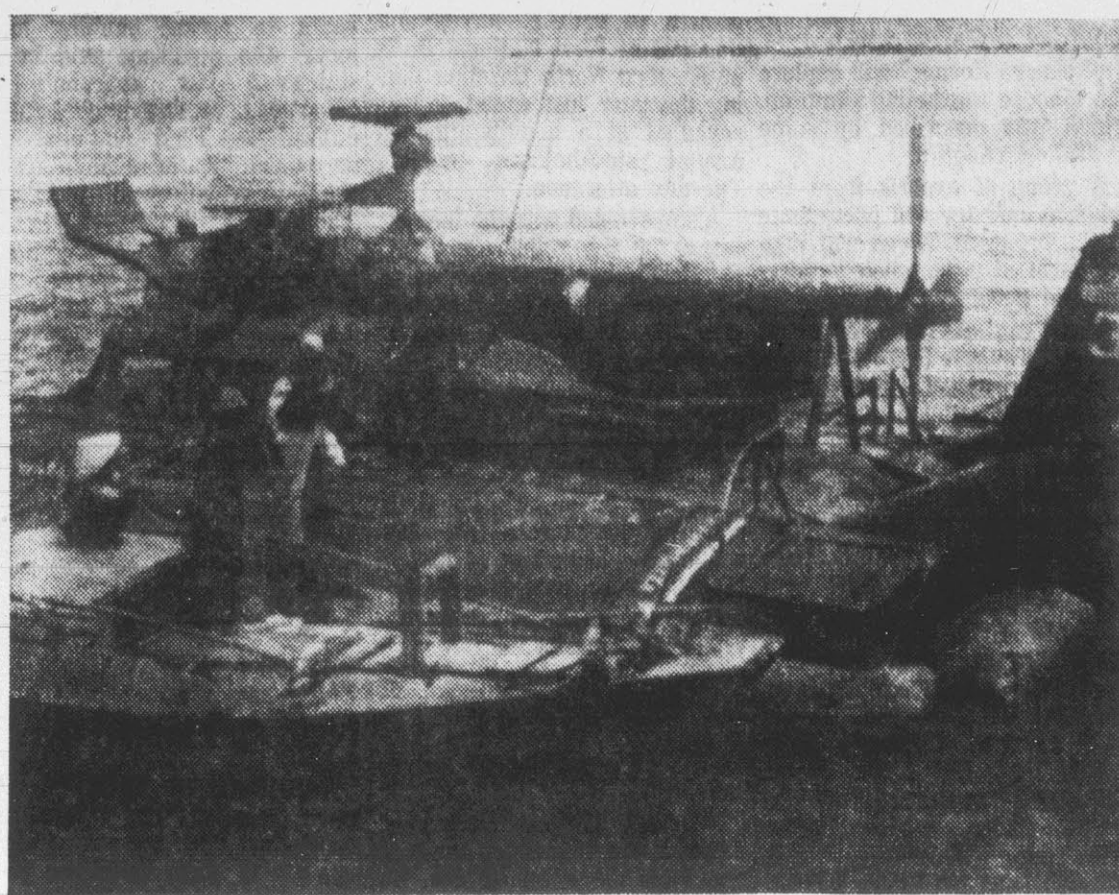

The home center uses a television videotape device to film parents working with their children. The film is replayed immediately while the instructor points out how to improve the lesson.

Dr. Miller noted although about four of every 100 children have hearing problems and one of 300 suffers severe impairment, there are still a lot of misconceptions about deafness.

Some adults forbid their children to play with deaf youngsters, because they're afraid the disability is catching.

Others are ashamed of their child's hearing problem, believing it to be divine retribution for sins of the parents or even grandparents.

and her associates correlated thousands of studies published since 1920. They analyzed basic readers in depth. Mrs. Chall visited 300 elementary classrooms in the U. S., England and Scotland. No such comprehensive work ever has been undertaken in the field before. Her calm and measured findings cannot fail to have a powerful impact upon school boards across the nation.

It seems unlikely that any parent has missed the "great debate," but an over-simplified word of background may be in order. For roughly 40 years, the prevailing educational Establishment has decreed that children should be taught to read by the "whole word" method. In this approach, the alphabet, as such, is disdained; scant attention is paid to the sound of letters or to the sound of syllables. The child is given a picture of a bed with the word "bed" beneath it. He "frames" the word, and behold, it even looks like a bed. So he learns "bed."

The next time he encounters the same shape, of course, the word may be bad, or bid, or bud, but no one has taught him his vowels. He learns "Hat," and stumbles on hit, hot and hut. Under the "look and say" method, he is subjected to artificially contrived readings of unbelievable banality: "Mother said, 'Look, look, See this.' 'Oh, said Sally. 'It is pretty.' 'Yes, yes,' said Jane. 'Mother looks pretty.'" And so on, ad nauseam.

By contrast, children who are taught by phonics learn to "break the code" of language. They discover letter combinations and sound combinations. They do not learn merely to read the 300 word-shapes of a basic reader; they learn to read anything. And they are on their way.

war, that it is the major issue now and Johnson is inescapably identified with it.

Just as much of a handicap to him is that his performance in the presidency, aside from the war, has been blurred in the public mind by the war itself, which has consumed time and energy he could have devoted to other fields and other needs.

This in turn put a huge dent in his image as the master politician who had Congress eating out of his hand, for the time he had to spend on the war diminished his contact and influence with the men in the Capitol.

Thus the four years between the 1964 and 1968 elections can give only a foggy picture of what the Johnson presidency be fairly and fully there had been no war.

No one seems to doubt he will run again. But only if he is re-elected and the war disappears and he has then

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Growing demand, a miners' strike, speculation and the inability to find substitutes continue to push up the price of silver. This week it sold for more than $2.10 an ounce, 91 cents higher than last May.

Among those hurt the most by this 61 per cent increase are photographic film manufacturers and eventually the users of their product, who must pay higher prices. Film makers are the largest industrial users of the metal, which helps make their product light sensitive.

Among the chief beneficiaries are owners of paper currency on which is printed the words "silver certificate." These bills, in $1, $5 and $10 denominations are redeemable in silver priced at only $1.293 an ounce.

As a result, currency brokers have been scouring the country for these certificates, which no longer will be redeemable in silver after June 24. Brokers this week were paying as much as $15.50 for a $10 bill.

Estimates vary, but something like $300 million of silver certificates still are outstanding, meaning their value with premium added is about $450 million. But, if not redeemed within the next five months or so they are worth face value only.

The resulting scramble finds currency dealers opening neighborhood offices, advertising nationally, accepting bills by mail. In turn, they take the bills to the U.S. Assay Office, buy silver at $1.293 an ounce and resell it at $2.10.

This would seem to give the dealers a profit of more than 60 cents, but the 55 per cent premium reduces this to a still worthwhile nine or 10 cents profit per dollar.

The incredible series of factors that led to the state of affairs began many years ago when the government wished to assure the world that its currency was worth its weight in silver.

In 1961 the government knew that growing industrial demand for silver would cause shortages, because nature limits domestic silver production to about 45 million ounces a year. It began replacing silver certificates with Federal Reserve notes, which cannot be redeemed for metal of any kind.

As industrial demand increased, the price of silver rose from a base of about 90 cents. By mid-1963 it reached $1.293 an ounce, where it was frozen by government in order to protect coinage from being melted.

The Treasury made sure this price was not exceeded by agreeing to supply silver users from its own supplies. If the price had a tendency to rise it couldn't go far; the government made sure of that.

As Treasury stocks of silver dwindled, silverless coins were introduced in 1965. Melting was specifically forbidden. Bans on silver exports were instituted. All these measures were aimed at maintaining an adequate supply.

Last July, with mounds of silverless coins available, the Treasury abandoned its fixed price. Soon the law of supply and demand began boosting prices. Speculators and hoarders pushed it up even more.

At the same time another factor came on the scene: copper miners went on strike. Since silver is a byproduct of copper mining, silver production has been nearly halted since last summer, thus worsening the shortage.

All during this time of soaring demand and price, chemical companies and film makers have been trying to find substitutes. But, in film making at least, the search has been mostly in vain.

As a result, the premiums offered on silver certificates have risen, even though erratically, from about 10 per cent early last summer to more than 50 per cent at New York this week.

four fairly tranquil years can his performance in the presidency by fairly and fully appraised.

Meanwhile, in the hurly-burly of the years he has already spent in the White House Johnson has had time to examine his virtues and defects as a leader in contact with the people.

His greatest failure, perhaps, is in communication. He has been too stiff, too unskilled in public speaking to arouse deep feeling or personal devotion although it could mean life or death for him politically.

He apparently realizes this for his performance before the television cameras has greatly improved.

Unite In Promoting Egg Month In State

PROMOTING EGGS . . . this month with other Farm Bureau women are Mrs. Worthington and Mrs. Smith.

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Members of the Pitt County Farm Bureau's Women's Committee are working with Farm Bureau women in other counties of North Carolina this month to help promote the sale of eggs.

January was chosen as "egg month" by the North Carolina Farm Bureau women because fewer eggs are consumed during January than any other month, according to Mrs. Ruel Dilda, chairman of the Pitt Farm Bureau woman's group.

Mrs. Dilda and Mrs. Alton Moore of Fountain, and Mrs. Wilbur Worthington and Mrs. David Harold Smith of Ayden have been busy this week putting up posters furnished by the North Carolina Egg Marketing Association and telling anyone who would listen about the nutritional value of eggs.

According to Mrs. Worthington, "Marketing is the most important phase of farming today. If a farmer is to be successful, he must have fast efficient means of marketing the food and fiber he produces. Then too, he must have equity in the market place for the things he sells," the secretary and publicity chairman continued.

In Pitt County at the present time, the number of people raising eggs is on the decrease. County Extension agent Sam Winchester explained, "but the number of chickens on farms in Pitt . . . is increasing."

Winchester pointed out that small producers are going out of production and larger producers are taking their places. At the present time, 42 people in the county have flocks of egg-laying hens ranging in size from 1,000 birds up to 99,000. These birds are producing 6,400,000 dozens of eggs in Pitt County annually, Winchester pointed out.

For people who are confused by the various grades and sizes found on egg cartons in supermarkets, the women explained.

U. S. Grade AA and Grade A eggs are the best for frying, poaching or cooking in the shell, while U. S. Grade B eggs are fine for scrambling and general cooking. Grade C eggs are also good for scrambling and general cooking.

Urged To Accept Mexican Pesos

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — Deming merchants are being asked to accept Mexican pesos in payment for goods and services as well as American dollars.

Merchants in this southwest New Mexico city near the border hope for more Mexican business after a highway from the border into the Mexican state of Chihuahua is completed.

"Your businessmen need to learn," Mexican businessman Alberto Duran told a Deming group, "that the peso is just as strong as the American dollar."

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 NT Pass
2 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♠
This hand produced a rather surprising swing when it was dealt in a recent team-of-four contest. The bidding was identical at both tables and South became declarer at a final contract of three no-trump.

At one table West opened the jack of clubs, and declarer permitted him to hold the trick. A small club was continued, East put up the queen and South played the king.

The ace of diamonds was cashed followed by a small diamond. West played the king of diamonds and returned the ten of clubs to dislodge declarer's ace.

A heart was led to dummy's jack and East was in with the ace. He shifted to ♠ spade. South put up the ace, crossed over to the queen of hearts, and played the queen of diamonds. When the jack dropped, he had nine tricks — four diamonds, two clubs, two hearts, and one spade.

At the other table, everything started out the same—declarer held off on the first round of clubs, won the continuation, and then cashed the ace of diamonds. West had been doing some thinking, however, and observing that his opponent would routinely bring in the diamond suit if left to his own resources, West decided that desperate measures were in order to steer South off the course.

He dropped the king of diamonds under the ace to create the impression that he had a singleton. It appeared to declarer that there was no future in diamonds inasmuch as the suit seemed to be divided five-one.

He looked elsewhere for the required tricks and spades offered a reasonable chance. Six tricks can be counted in the other suits—two each in hearts, diamonds, and clubs. Repeated finesses thru East will secure three more in spades, provided that the latter holds either the king or jack.

A heart was led to the jack and ducked by East. The ten of spades was returned for a finesse. West was in with the jack and cleared the club suit. Another heart was led, and this time East played the ace and came back with a spade. South ducked and West won with the king and cashed the nine of clubs for the setting trick.

Tobacco Forum Growth Reported For On TV Jan. 13

A two-hour color special, "Tobacco Forum," will be presented on WNCT-TV, Greenville, Saturday (7:00-9:00 a.m.).

"Tobacco Forum" will explore the tobacco marketing situation, which was described by some in 1967 as chaotic.

A group of experts from the tobacco industry will participate in the program, which will take the form of a completely unrehearsed news conference.

Those appearing on the panel include: Thomas R. Towers, vice president, Universal Leaf Tobacco Company, Richmond, Virginia; Lawrence H. Wallace, president of the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association, Smithfield; George B. Watson, seed producer, Rocky Mount; W.B. Glenn, president, Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company, Greenville; A.C. Lawrence, North Carolina State Grange; B.C. Mangum, North Carolina Farm Bureau, Raleigh; Charles Sand, Export Leaf Tobacco Company, Richmond, Va.; Bill Little, North Carolina Farm Bureau, Raleigh; Arthur Tripp, tobacco warehouseman, Greenville; J.B. Speight, seed producer, Winterville; and Horace Godfrey, administrator of A.S.C.S., Washington, D.C.

Size of the eggs is based on the weight per dozen, with jumbo eggs — eaching 30 ounces per dozen, extra large at 27 ounces per dozen, and large set at 24 ounces per dozen. Medium size eggs tip the scales at 21 ounces per dozen and small eggs are set at 18 ounces per 12.

The quality of the eggs as set by the grade, and the size of the eggs are not related, according to Mrs. Worthington.

"Today farm women are interested in all phases of farming," Mrs. Worthington said, "and are ready to do their best to keep our farms for future generations because we know the value of family farms."

This, she indicated, coupled with the nutritional value of eggs in a daily diet, is why the women of the Farm Bureau are pushing January as an "egg month."

JACKSONVILLE, N. C. — There was more than 50% growth in both resources and deposits of First National Bank of Eastern North Carolina during the year just ended, it was revealed at a heavily-attended annual stockholders meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Also revealed was the fact net assets of the relatively young 15-year-old banking system passed $75-million during the year, climbing from $52-million 12 months ago.

Operating earnings rose from $2.37 to $2.47.

M. F. Allen Jr., president of the system which has 23 branches from Boone to Wilmington, said net assets rose from $52-million the beginning of 1967 to $75,918,289 at year's end.

Deposits meanwhile rose from $43,706,536 to $68,919,727.

One of the most challenging years in recent banking history," the president said in a statement to shareholders. "However, it was successfully utilized by First National as an opportunity to achieve accelerated growth and increase stability."

Lion's share of First National's sharp growth was credited to "the development of more and better services to our customers, plus an intensive year-long sales effort on the part of the directors and staff."

One of the most significant developments during the year, Allen said, was the bank's "involvement from a number of banks into a true banking system."

FBI Computer Helps To Solve Security Thefts

By STEPHEN M. AUG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, wielding a computer as its weapon, is activating a plan aimed at thwarting a growing multimillion-dollar racket in stolen securities.

Serial numbers and other information on about 50,000 stolen securities are being fed into a computer that can deliver the information within minutes to thousands of banks and police agencies across the nation.

The computer is part of the National Crime Information Center and is operated by the FBI.

Although no government or private agency could supply any figures on the value of the securities stolen annually, Justice Department sources said Tuesday that even a single theft could net more than a million dollars.

Many stolen securities wind up in banks as collateral for loans. The banks do not learn the collateral has been stolen until months after granting the loan when, having received no payments, they try to sell the security.

The government is a big loser too. Justice Department figures show the government alone sustains about 2,000 losses a month, mostly in savings bonds.

The Secret Service, which investigates stolen government securities—but only after they have been cashed—says the value of bonds reported stolen now stands at about $20 million.

A Secret Service official told The Associated Press these thefts "are a real concern to us. Years ago burglars would throw these bonds away. But now they are being fenced in rather large quantities through underworld channels. They come to our attention in large amounts."

He said some criminals use elaborate schemes to dispose of stolen securities.

This month the FBI began placing information on stolen securities into its computer, starting with about 50,000 items.

Once the system is fully operative any bank faced with cashing bonds it believes may have been stolen—or with accepting securities as loan collateral—will be able to check with its local police department. The police will electronically question the computer in Washington and the bank will have an answer within minutes.

Aside from telling whether the security was stolen, the computer also will supply such information as who owned it and when it was stolen. The computer will handle not only stocks and bonds, but money orders as well.

Rancher, 85, Gets Along Fine With His Pacemaker

WAURIKA, Okla. (AP) — Dick Coleman is 85 years old, has a bad heart but is active as a businessman and the operator of a 2,000 acre ranch in southwestern Oklahoma.

To keep his ailing heart functioning, he is equipped with a pacemaker—a device inserted inside his chest to provide electrical charges to the heart.

He is one of the oldest active patients known to have the device, placed in his chest by an Oklahoma City surgeon Dec. 23, 1965.

Dr. Allen Greer, who performed the surgery, said he held some reservations about implanting the pacemaker in a person Coleman's age. He was astounded when the rancher invited him to go quail hunting on the older man's ranch last January. The doctor went.

"Not many men his age will hunt all day, let alone with a problem like this," the surgeon said.

The battery-powered pacemaker is a little larger than a package of cigarettes and is placed under the skin adjacent to the rib cage under the left arm.

Electrodes on two wires from the battery are attached to the heart. Impulses from the battery keep the heart beating 68 times a minute.

Two weeks after surgery, Coleman was up and around on his ranch. During his recuperative period, he restricted himself to lifting feed bags weighing no more than 50 pounds. Later, he planted 150 acres of wheat.

Dr. Greer said perhaps one of Coleman's secrets is that he is "physiologically young for his years." Coleman believes it is the outdoor life and because "God is on my side."

The native of Waxahachie, Tex., served in the Oklahoma House of Representatives in 1943. He came to Oklahoma in 1900, seven years before statehood. Now, Coleman operates a building supply business in this town of 2,000 near the Texas border.

A veteran of the Spanish-American War, Coleman hunted wolves in Oklahoma with Col. Teddy Roosevelt.

Currently, he is looking forward to a fishing trip on the Gulf Coast with a grandson.

IF THE SHOE FITS — In this particular situation, wearing the size 25 shoes may be just a bit of a problem for Cynthia Lynn Scott, 1 1/2, of Littleton, Colorado. The king-sized shoes were discovered in a downtown Denver shoe shine parlor. It's hoped the shoes were strictly for show purposes and that someone wearing this size is not going around barfooted. Pirates Stop William & Mary Rally For Win

Bucs Have To Struggle To Snap Long Conference Victory String

WILLIAMSBURG, Va.—Vince Colbert fouled out with 12:26 left in the game and East Carolina's Pirates struggled after that to a 71-70 victory over William & Mary last night.

Colbert had been the key to the Pirates rolling up a 14-point lead early in the second half. Then, while playing with just one foul, he collected four straight in a brief period of just two minutes and 30 seconds. But it was his playmaking and 18 points which enabled the Bucs to win one of their toughest fought games of the year.

And winning on the home court of William & Mary is recognized throughout the conference as no mean feat. The Indians, winners of just four in their first 13 counting last night, were winless on the road but had won four of five played at home. The loss last night was the first Southern Conference loss at the home court since the 1964-65 season.

And the Pirates led practically all the way as they did it. The win boosted the Bucs to a 2-3 conference record and a 4-6 overall mark.

Jim Rama gave the Indians a brief 1-0 lead but Colbert hit from the corner to give the Bucs a 2-1 margin. Rama tied it up with a free throw, but Charlie Alford dropped in a rebound to return the Bucs to the lead. Earl Thompson then added another basket for a 6-2 margin.

William and Mary came back on shots by Ron Panneton and Jack Downing to tie it up. Colbert put the Bucs out at 7-6, but Panneton drove in for a bucket for an 8-7 Indian lead. Jim Modlin hit to return the lead to the Bucs, and from there, East Carolina drove out a four-point lead at 13-9.

The lead stayed at four until Dave Daugherty and Panneton connected to tie it up at 17-17. Panneton hit again from the corner to make it 19-17 for another Indian lead.

William & Mary worked up a four point lead on a steal by Downing and a layup by Bob Sherwood at 24-20, but Colbert and Tom Miller tied it up for the Bucs again. Colbert made good on another layup to return the Pirates to the lead at 26-24, and they never trailed again.

In the last two minutes of the half, the Bucs built up an eight point lead. Lindfelt hit on a rebound, and after Daugherty dropped in a shot, Alford hit a jumper. Colbert hit two free throws, then stole the ball for a jumper to make it 34-26 at the half.

As the second half opened, the Bucs began to pull away. Miller hit from the corner to make it 38-29 and Lindfelt got a free throw. Colbert hit on a rebound to make it 41-29 and a few seconds later, with 15:10 to play, Richard Kier hit two free throws to make it 45-31, the biggest lead of the evening for the Bucs.

But seconds later, with 14:56 left, Colbert committed his second foul. In the next 2:30, Vince fouled out as William & Mary cut the lead to 49-40, and then to 49-44 as Sherwood hit two free throws and Daugherty drove in with 11:45 left.

The Bucs pushed back out by six as Alford hit on a tap, but William & Mary continued to slice into the lead, cutting it back to five at 53-49. Thompson got a free throw and Miller hit on a jumper to return the lead to 56-49 with 8:45 left.

For the next few minutes the two exchanged points until Alford dropped in a rebound with 5:35 left, making it 62-53. But Rama hit a layup and Sherwood made good on a rebound to cut it back to 64-59.

Miller and Alford continued that to push it back to 68-59 with 3:20 left, but William and Mary refused to wilt, coming back just as strong.

Harry Kent hit from outside, and Sherwood made good from the corner. Sherwood then hit on two free throws to cut the lead to just two at 68-65 with 2:05 left.

Then with 1:49 left, Sherwood hit a rebound to slice the lead to one at 68-67.

During the next minute the Bucs controlled the ball until Alford was fouled and made it 69-67 with :34 left. William & Mary missed on a one-and-one with :21 left and then with :10 showing, Miller dropped in two free throws to push the Bucs out by 71-67.

Sherwood hit with two seconds left and was fouled. He tried to miss the shot and try for a tying rebound, but his shot bounced around and in, making it 71-70 and thus ending the game.

Alford ended up as the high scorer for the Bucs with 19 points. Miller added 10.

For William & Mary, Sherwood had 21, Panneton had 14 and Daugherty had 10.

The Baby Bucs made the night complete with a 106-81 victory over the Papooses. It was the first start for the Bucs since losing to Richmond back on December 15.

The Bucs hung on to a 49-41 lead in the first half, then roared away in the second. Jim Gregory led the Bucs with 30 points, and also pulled down 16 rebounds. Ken Hartzler had 24 points and Chuck Lemmons had 12.

For William & Mary, Steve Dodge had 27 and Tom Jancaitis had 13.

The Bucs return home Saturday to meet Washington and Lee at Minges Coliseum.

Carolina Rallies To Halt State's Hopes Of An Upset In 68-66 Game

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Every basketball coach is happy to have an all-around player on his team, and St. Bonaventure's Larry Weise must be ecstatic over Bob Lanier.

The 6-foot-10 sophomore, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, not only scored 25 points and grabbed 15 rebounds Wednesday night, he also blocked eight shots and stole the ball six times as the unbeaten Bonnies defeated DePaul 77-67 for their 12th straight.

DePaul, behind 41-29 at half-time in the game at Olean, N.Y., closed to within five points with 13 minutes left. But then, with Lanier stealing the ball and blocking shots, the seventh-ranked Bonnies pulled away.

Lanier, who hit on 10 of 12 shots from the field, got scoring help from Billy Butler, with 20, and John Hayes, with 15. Al Zetsche led DePaul with 23.

Third-ranked North Carolina overcame an eight-point deficit in the second half to edge North Carolina State at Raleigh, N.C., and take over first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Tar Heels, the only other members of the Associated Press Top Ten to see action, were paced by Larry Miller's 13 rebounds and 17 points as they built their ACC record to 3-0 and their over-all mark to 10-1.

Louisville threw a full court press against home team Memphis State and rolled to its fourth straight victory, a 78-58

Missouri Valley Conference triumph.

Jimmy King scored 21, Butch Beard 20 and Wes Unseld 16 for the Tigers, now 8-4 over-all and 4-0 in the MVC.

St. John's, N.Y., behind by eight points with five minutes remaining, tied the game at 59-59 on two foul shots with one second left in regulation time, and then went on to beat Georgetown 65-61 at Washington.

And, Denver did something it hasn't accomplished in 19 years, beating Colorado State University at Fort Collins, 65-59. It was Denver's first success at Fort Collins since February, 1957.

Other road victories saw East Carolina nip William & Mary 71-70, Marshall outlasted Morris Harvey 101-93 and St. Francis, Pa., edged Steubenville 77-73.

In home-court triumphs, Air Force smashed Doane 109-69, Maryland downed West Virginia 79-75, South Carolina drubbed Wake Forest 88-73, Davidson pounded George Washington 107-75, Wofford beat Furman 71-68, Penn State walloped Gettysburg 84-47, Notre Dame whipped Detroit 83-63, Connecticut trounced New Hampshire 96-70, and Tampa shaded Miami, Fla., 78-76.

Yastrzemski Is Athlete Of Year

By LARRY ELDRIDGE

Associated Press Sports Writer

WAKEFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A heavily perspiring Carl Yastrzemski had just finished one of his rugged daily workouts when he was told he had been voted Male Athlete of the Year for 1967 by an overwhelming margin in the annual Associated Press poll.

"I know what it's like to be on top and I want to stay on top," the slugging Boston Red Sox outfielder said in explaining what motivates him to keep squeezing trips to the gym into his hectic off-season schedule.

"I worked hard to get where I am, and I'm not going to get complacent now," he added.

Yastrzemski, who earned the American League's Most Valuable Player award and Triple Crown in batting while leading the underdog Red Sox to the pennant, said he wanted to say more than "just the usual things" about this latest award.

"This is really one of the outstanding honors, and I want everybody who voted for me to know how thankful I am," he said. "A lot of awards are for just one sport, like baseball, but this one is especially important where it takes in so many thousands of athletes in all sports."

The balloting by 376 sports writers and broadcasters was no contest, with Yastrzemski picking up 210 first-place votes and 879 points on a basis of three for a first-place vote, two for second and one for third.

Baltimore Colts' quarterback John Unitas, the National Football League's MVP, was a distant second with 267 points. Next in order were Jim Ryun, who broke his own world record for the mile run with a 3:51.1 clocking; pro golfer Jack Nicklaus, who set a money-winning record of $188,988; and ace half-back O.J. Simpson, who led Southern California to the national college football championship.

Yastrzemski is the third baseball player in a row to win the honor, the sixth in the last seven years, and the 15th since Pepper Martin of the St. Louis Cardinals won the first one in 1931.

Frank Robinson of Baltimore, who also took the AL's Triple Crown, was the 1966 winner.

Yastrzemski led the AL in five batting departments, including a .326 average and 121 runs batted in, and tied Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew for most home runs with 44.

The 28-year-old outfielder also sparkled in the field and was at his best all season in the clutch, climaxing his tremendous year by going 7-for-8 and driving in six runs in the "must" victories over Minnesota in the last two days of the season. He kept it up in the World Series, hitting .400 with three home runs in the losing effort against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Yaz said the inspiration being in the pennant fight was a big factor in his individual success.

Davidson Rolls Over Colonials

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

William and Mary's Indians lost their home-court touch at precisely the wrong moment as far as George Washington's hopes of earning a berth in the Southern Conference championship basketball tournament were concerned.

While the last-place Colonials were being routed 107-75 Wednesday night by Davidson's frontrunning Wildcats, the Indians were blowing a 71-70 decision at home to East Carolina's Pirates, the team considered most likely to battle George Washington for the basement.

The victory pulled East Carolina into a tie with William and Mary in the league race, where each is 2-3. George Washington dropped its sixth conference scrap in a row, Davidson won its fourth without a loss.

Two conference teams received rude shocks outside the league. West Virginia went down to a 79-75 setback at Maryland as Ron Williams scored just nine points for the Mountaineers and Furman was upended by Wofford 71-68.

William and Mary, shooting 40 per cent from the floor, fell behind 34-26 in the first half to East Carolina and never caught up despite a 19-point spree after intermission by sophomore Bob Sherwood.

With ECU leading 71-69 and 34 seconds left, Sherwood missed a free throw, then tried to miss the second to set up a shot at a tying field goal. The second shot went in. Sherwood finished with 21 points. Charles Alford led the Pirates with 19 and Vince Colbert added 18.

Doug Cook led the way with 21 points as Davidson used a fullcourt press all the way in overpowering George Washington for its 42nd consecutive victory at home. GW's Steve Lovelless had a game-high 24 points.

West Virginia never led at Maryland, which ended a five-game losing streak with a torrid 59 per cent shooting performance in which Pete Johnson hit for 21 points. Dave Reaser led the Mountaineers with 25.

Don Webster's 26-point performance for Furman was wasted as the Paladins blew a 12-point lead against Wofford, which went ahead for good with 4:42 left on baskets by John Hendrix and Barry Lentz.

In tonight's only action for league teams, Richmond's Splinters play host to Virginia Tech.

Ayden Expects To Be In The Battle

AYDEN BOYS — The Ayden Tornados are off seeking their fourth straight Pitt County Conference Championship. The Tornados are also the defending state Class A Champions, but have had their winning string snapped. They are currently tied for the lead in the county with a 3-1 mark.

AYDEN GIRLS — The Ayden girls are listed among the co-favorites this year in the Pitt County Conference, but currently hold a 2-2 record in the loop.

AYDEN—"We just haven't put it all together yet," said Ayden basketball coach Bob Murphrey. "We've looked real well at times and real bad at times."

Pointing out that he expected the Tornados to be in the thick of the Pitt County race, Murphrey said, "We expect to be real strong around tournament time."

Only one starter returns from last year's Class A State championship team. Paul Miller, a senior guard, has been the leading scorer, but he has been out for about a week with the flu.

"Four of our top seven players have been sidelined at one time or another," explained Murphrey, "including Dail McLawhorn, George Booth, Kyle Braswell and Miller."

Murphrey said he thought Camp Lejeune was the strongest team Ayden had played. Included on a formidable schedule, besides the Devilpups, are Farmville, Robersonville and Greene Central.

"The county has much more balance than it had in three or four years," said the Ayden coach. "Grifton, Stokes and Bethel have all improved and are leading contenders for the title."

Defense and boardwork are the two strong points for the Tornados, according to their coach. Consistent shooting has been the biggest weakness.

Starters for Ayden include forwards B.T. Chappell and Ken Turner, both juniors, senior center McLawhorn, and senior guards Kent Allen and Miller. George Booth is an occasional starter.

Kyle Braswell is Ayden's top reserve player.

Coach Murphrey summed up the feelings of many of the other coaches in the area: "It should be a much more interesting race in the county this year."

Girls' coach Thomas Speller has four juniors in his starting lineup this year, and eight of the top ten players will be back next season, but Coach Speller says, "I'm not looking to next year—yet."

The Lady Tornados currently hold a 4-1 record, including wins over Farmville, Robersonville, Grifton and Stokes.

According to Speller, the Ayden lassies have two big things in their favor—scoring balance and good attitude.

Included in the list of advantages would have to be such things as very good overall height and experience.

Five full-time and one part-time starter return from last year's third-place team.

Forwards Christine Mumford and Jackie Dail, rovers Kay Kite and Frankie Pierce, and guards Judy Corbett and Janie McLawhorn.

Leading reserves include juniors Linda Stox and Ann Miller and sophomores Cheryl Claybrook and Cathy Manning.

Coach Speller said he felt it was an advantage to start late in the season. "We hope to pick up a lot of steam by tournament time," he said, "and we would like to think we'll be in the thick of competition."

WCC, Guilford Pace Carolinas

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Western Carolina and Guilford, fighting for first place in the standings, are also fighting for the lead in most of the Carolinas Conference statistics.

Western Carolina has a slight lead over Guilford in scoring, but the Catamounts rank ninth on defense, a category which Guilford leads. Western Carolina is averaging 96.5 points a game, Guilford 93.3.

Once-beaten Guilford is giving up only 72.8 points a game and has a winning margin of 20.5 points a game. Three teams are right on Guilford's heels on defense, however. Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne and Elon are all giving up an average of 72.9 points a game.

Guilford and WCU are one-two in field goal accuracy (55.9 and 54.3 per cent) and in rebounding (56.7 and 55.1 recoveries a game). Elon leads in free throw accuracy with 76.6 per cent.

NCAA Resumes War With AAU

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — And the war goes on. And on and on.

The struggle for supremacy in track and field between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union reverted to its infancy Wednesday when the NCAA officially called off the federally imposed moratorium at its annual convention here.

An NCAA council statement, approved by the convention at large, said that beginning after the 1968 Olympics, the NCAA would again insist on "certifying" any non-collegiate meet that college athletes take part in.

This was the policy first adopted in January 1965 that led to a summer full of bitterness before the NCAA, at the request of the U.S. Senate, agreed not to enforce the certification rule pending the decision of a panel headed by labor mediator Theodore Kheel.

The AAU has always insisted that it is the only body that can sanction a meet and would not ask for NCAA certification of the meets it sponsors.

The NCAA, for its part, will not ask the AAU for sanction of its meets where non-college athletes sometimes compete.

Kheel has promised that his committee will render its long-awaited decision soon, perhaps next month, but NCAA executive director Walter Byers said the council was unwilling to wait before reinstating the certification rule.

He said it would not be enforced until November because commitments had already been made for the current indoor track season and because the council did not want to interfere with Olympic preparations.

Byers obliquely issued a warning to the Kheel committee, saying, "we will not be bound by any decision that does not permit us to look out for our own athletes."

In other action, NCAA modified its 1.6 student eligibility rule—though not enough to suit some members—and voted to allow freshmen to compete in all varsity sports except football and basketball.

Harv Schmidt, captain of the x86-57 Illinois basketball team, is in his first year as coach of the Illini quintet.

Maoist Paper Notes Violence In Shanghai

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — A year and a half after the state of Mao Tse-tung's "cultural revolution" purge, a Maoist newspaper reports "hoodlum and delinquent gangs" who want capitalism have started new violence in Shanghai, Red China's largest city.

The gangs went on a rampage recently as "a last-ditch, life or death struggle waged by the enemy against us," says the Dec. 27 edition of the Liberation Daily, a translation of which became available in Tokyo today.

The newspaper also reported a split in the workers' movement in the port city of 10 million people and said "class enemies" have been uncovered throughout the educational system and in literature, art, publication and press organizations.

This suggests that the Shanghai Revolutionary Committee—formed recently with Mao's blessing—does not yet exercise complete control over the city.

The Dec. 25 issue of Liberation Daily said the anti-Mao "Workers' Red Militia," formed early in the cultural revolution purge, continues "to carry out underground activities and organized a Red militia under a different form, in order to conspire for a counterseizure of power."

The newspaper's Dec. 27 issue said: "The hoodlum and delinquent gangs are social forces with political overtones. They are out-and-out enemies of the people. What they want is capitalism; what we want is socialism."

"The fascist bastion of the hoodlums can be reduced to rubble only by fiercely hitting the chief culprits, the backstage planners and diehards. They must be discredited politically and their arrogance shattered."

The paper's Dec. 22 issue said the chief target of the purge, President Liu Shao-chi, was sheltering Mao's opponents in Shanghai's school system.

Liberation Daily accused Chen Pi-hsien, political commissar of the Shanghai garrison command, and Vice Mayor Tsao Ti-chiu of encouraging the break in the laborers' ranks. It described them as representatives of Liu.

The Peking correspondent of Japan's Kyodo News Service reported the newspaper Wen Hui Pao announced Tuesday the establishment of a revolutionary people's conference—the first of its kind—in the Hwangpoo district of Shanghai.

It is regarded as one of the first steps toward a national party congress. Foreign observers believe Mao won't call a party congress until he is certain he has the votes to oust Liu from the presidency.

Catholic Bishops Caution Priests And Laymen Against 'Impetuosity'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops sharply criticized priests who abandon their vows misinformed as well as laymen and many aspects of liberal contemporary theology.

In a 25,000-word collective pastoral letter—one of the few ever issued on so sweeping a subject by top church leaders in America—the bishops said they wish to set a course allowing for lay participation "somewhere between the prevailing, but far from universal silence of the past and the occasional strident confusion of the present."

The letter issued Wednesday reasserted traditional loyalty and obedience to the church and its hierarchy and appeals for a "renewal of that love of the church that has so characterized the faithful of all ages."

It warned against "impetuous applications" of the teachings of the recent Vatican Council.

While not mentioning by name jazz masses or the setting up of experimental forms of worship, the letter appeared to have such contemporary occurrences in mind in saying:

"With sadness we notice that some today, using the noble word 'charism' (a claim of personal authority on the basis of spiritual guidance) or employing theology almost as therapy, ridicule the church and, under the guise of being contemporary, seem hostile to everything except their own views," the letter stated.

Never in the church's past, the bishops said, "did she really trust in princes and in no future moment will she rely, in fact, on the people's pleasure or the judgment of the crowd."

The bishops noted a "crisis in priestly life" and declared some priests "have not only lost their own vision but have sought to shatter the ideals of others and made a public display of their defects."

Many priests, the letter said are subject to loneliness and "disturbing doubts about the worth of their lives." These same doubts, it adds, "must especially afflict, nowadays, many in the armed forces."

In an apparent reply to talk among some priests of the eventual possibility of the church granting them the right to marry, the bishops maintain laymen and clergy alike must respect church doctrine and decisions laying "renewed insistence" on the requirements for priestly celibacy.

While the Vatican Council sought to give laymen a greater role in the affairs of the church, the letter said, "no one would maintain that an individual layman or all the laity together should be heard by the Christian community in the same way that the Pope... or the College of Bishops are to be heard."

Turning to the church's affirmation of social action and social justice, the bishops declared: "If Catholic performance does not match Catholic promise, then truly we shall have failed."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a presidential body probing city riots says there are no facts to indicate any of the riots were planned. And the group's final report, he says, "will be uncomfortable for everyone in the United States."

The report will be ready by March 1, said Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, chairman of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders at a news conference Wednesday.

It covers facts on how and why the riots happened and gives recommendations on how to prevent them in the future.

"I expect it will be completely honest," said New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, the commission's vice chairman.

The protests followed publication of a Navy officer's report describing how invitations to Navy men have been extended in the past. The report indicated the groups did not care to extend hospitality to Negroes, Jews and Italians.

His action followed protests by several congressmen who said they detected what they termed signs of Navy acquiescence.

Faye Dunaway Is Sued For Breach Of Film Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Faye Dunaway, who played the gun moll in "Bonnie and Clyde," is being sued for breach of contract and damages by film producer Otto Preminger.

Preminger, president of Sigma Production of Los Angeles charged in papers filed in State Supreme Court Wednesday that Miss Dunaway did not fulfill a contract signed with him Feb. 16, 1966.

Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter ordered the actress to appear in court next Tuesday to explain why she should not be restrained from acting for others until she fulfills the Sigma contract.

The complaint said Miss Dunaway appeared in Sigma's "Hurry Sundown" and was obligated to do five more films in the next five years.

Preminger said the firm told her last September she was to appear for work on a new film Jan. 2 but she did not appear.

The suit asks "appropriate and fair damages" and a breach-of-contract injunction.

Son Of Chinese Immigrant New N. Y. Principal

NEW YORK (AP) — A Chinese-American male teacher has been nominated to be an elementary school principal in Brooklyn by the local governing board of a predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican experimental school district.

The board's choice, David W. Lee, 42, son of a Chinese immigrant, is now a science teacher in Long Beach on Long Island.

If the New York City Board of Education approves the nomination, Lee would be the first Chinese-American principal in the city. He would have to take a qualifying city examination.

The school for which Lee was selected has a virtually all-Negro enrollment.

Lee commented that Chinese-Americans and Negroes have had to face the same kind of discrimination and they have a "similarity of feelings." Lee, who has a college degree and has done graduate work said his Chinese origin caused him trouble in getting a teaching job.

Rusk Cites Population Pressures

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk says the future's overriding problem will be to ease the pressures of a growing world population before they threaten to touch of nuclear war.

And a prime achievement of the Johnson-Kennedy administrations he has served, Rusk said Wednesday is that "we have added seven years to the time in which the nuclear bomb has not been dropped in anger."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Rusk set a general time limit of up to a generation for meeting population demands before they get out of hand and a 5 to 10-year estimate for international agreement to curb the atomic weapons spread.

"The increase in the number of people who inhabit the globe increases the demands for opportunities for decent lives—food, shelter, health, education, employment," he said.

"They are the problems of a growing human family in a stinging universe," added Rusk. This population problem rivals the nuclear problem and I think we have a limited amount of time to deal with both of them . . ."

"I'd say 20 to 30 years from now the problem would become acute, extremely dangerous, unless it has been solved then," said Rusk.

The danger of a nuclear catastrophe appeared dominant in Rusk's mind as he reviewed his tenure as secretary of state. Only a half dozen men in U.S. history have held the No. 1 foreign affairs job as long.

Declaring that the United States has acted with restraint in a number of crises such as the Berlin issue, the Cuban missile confrontation and the Vietnamese war, Rusk said:

"Anyone sitting in this chair, or in the President's chair, must be fully aware that keeping the nuclear genie in the bottle is a primary objective of our policy."

"It is an operational problem. It is something you have to bear in mind every day . . ."

"No one can imagine what would happen if the full megatonnage in the world went off. It's beyond the comprehension of the mind of man. It would be the end of everything."

Rusk said he thinks the Soviets understand the nuclear danger, too—"they are not fools"—but the risk from atomic proliferation "is the chance that some idiot will get hold of these weapons."

The secretary said the dangers of nations sending mass divisions across borders have been reduced. Progress is being made by nations in their daily economic, technological and other contacts with each other, he said.

But still unsolved is the type of aggression seen in Vietnam, he stated. Once "wars of liberation" are checked "I think we may well look forward to a considerable period of peace over the years ahead," he said.

Rusk said he views as a main exception to a potentially peaceful picture in the long-term future the possible resumption of national drives for more living space if expanding populations do not have their needs met.

"The question for us is whether we can solve these problems of today and the near future before the cry for living space takes over," he said.

Eisenhower Is 'Most Admired'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is named in a Gallup Poll as the man Americans admired most in the world in 1967.

Eisenhower edged out President Johnson, who had been the number one choice in the last four annual surveys.

Johnson dropped to number two and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., who placed third in 1966, dropped to fourth behind the Rev. Billy Graham.

Dr. George Gallup of the American Institute of Public Opinion in Princeton, N.J., said poll takers asked 1,526 U.S. adults:

"What man that you have heard or read about living today in any part of the world, do you admire most?"

The top ten names, in order of preference, were Eisenhower; Johnson; the Rev. Mr. Graham; Kennedy; Pope Paul VI; Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., former vice president Richard M. Nixon; former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama; Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and former President Harry S. Truman.

Fresh Vegetable Supply Is Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. housewives will have to dig deeper into their pocketbooks to buy fresh vegetables this winter.

Shorter supplies are expected to boost prices for cabbage, carrots, celery, lettuce, onions, tomatoes, artichokes, beets, sweet corn, egg plant and green pepper.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that production of vegetables for fresh markets this winter will be 11 per cent below last year's level and 5 per cent below average.

The Worry Clinic A Long, Interesting Life Not For Drones

Horace is right in urging people to keep in action. For when you cut off your productive contacts with external reality, you get wrapped up in yourself. Then you magnify little aches and pains and become "chicken." Live like a lion instead of a timid sheep! Lift your gaze to higher things than Medicare!

"Is it really true that people die earlier when they quit work?" Yes, people often involute and cut off their external social "roots" when they retire. So they lose their zest. Then they become hypochondriacs or "Worry Warts" about every little ache and pain. Their concern deals with Medicare and hospital insurance, so they begin to analyze themselves for hidden aches and tumors.

When we focus on ourselves and withdraw from the classroom work, why should God let us remain alive? For then we are deadheads or idlers, merely taking up valuable classroom space that might more profitably be occupied by others with less selfish concern.

In the overcrowded college, if a student occupies choice desk and laboratory space but fails to do his lessons or perform the lab experiments, isn't he a drone and thus rendering an injustice to those other eager students who are debarraged from college entrance by lack of space?

So why should God extend the lifespan of anybody who is merely a drone, taking in the benefits of this earth but not giving out anything constructive or unselfish? Oldsters better develop a new code of living and begin to realize that God expects active partners instead of idlers.

You can be forced to retire from your office or factory (because of the foolish F. D. Roosevelt doctrine) but that doesn't mean you can't become an active "home missionary" of your church.

Couldn't Fight 22-Below Cold

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Officials at the suburban Whitesboro Central School did their best to keep the school open Tuesday when temperatures plummeted to 22 below zero, but it wasn't enough.

McCarthy Sees 'Joyless Spirit'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, carrying his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination to the nation's most populous state, says the Vietnam war has generated a spirit of "joylessness and fear" in America.

The Minnesota Democrat said the "frustrations of the poor and the unpleasantness of our cities cannot be separated" from the war.

McCarthy, who plans to run in several Democratic primaries, opened today a six-day campaign swing through California.

His initial speech was prepared for delivery at a Los Angeles luncheon.

McCarthy said the war has distorted the nation's priorities. During the last two sessions of Congress total appropriations increased by $38 billion—all but $2.6 billion of the total for defense program, he said.

In other political developments:

—A major Rhode Island supporter of Michigan Gov. George Romney who seeks the Republican nomination, said Romney's campaign is "not catching on."

—California Gov. Ronald Reagan said he can't imagine any circumstances under which he'd campaign in primaries for the GOP nomination.

—McCarthy asked the Federal Communication Commission to let his lawyers prove President Johnson is an active reelection candidate. This is a principal argument in McCarthy's effort to win free air time on the three major networks to reply to recently broadcast comments about him by the President.

—Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's position on the Vietnam war is flexible enough to unite Republicans on the issue if he becomes their presidential candidate.

McCarthy told his Los Angeles audience the Johnson administration "has committed itself, without really consulting anybody" to the generals leading South Vietnam, "and is fulfilling that commitment with money and energy to spare."

He said Johnson should devote more attention to social problems at home "because we also have major commitments to our own citizens."

Nigerians Now Fly Their Own Jet Fighter Planes

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Nigeria's newly jet-powered air force took me for a ride in a Czech-built L29 Delfin jet fighter as a way of showing it doesn't depend on mercenary pilots.

It was the first time since Nigeria bought eight or nine Delfins and at least 12 Soviet MIG15 and 17 jets that the air force has permitted a newsman near them, let alone in one.

A young Nigerian flew me through a 30-minute series of rolls and lazy eights 18,000 feet above Lagos. Then his commanding officer motioned to himself, my pilot and a third Nigerian flier and asked, "Do we look like white mercenaries?"

Mercenary pilots have been a touchy issue since the jets arrived. The planes came in August, a month after the outbreak of civil war between the federal government and the secessionist East which declared itself Biafra May 30.

Soviet and Czech pilots first were reported flying the planes for lack of qualified Nigerians. At least 200 Russian technicians arrived, too. Several South Africans, Englishmen and an Australian appeared.

Egyptians have been flying the MIGs against targets in Biafra from a base in recaptured Calabar, in the southeastern extreme of the country.

Nigeria has denied hiring mercenaries, explaining it has only "technical advisers."

"Our own pilots now are flying the MIGs," said Maj. Dan Suleiman, 25, commander of the jet detachment at Lagos Airport.

"Does that mean the Egyptians are going home?" he was asked.

"Of course."

Jones Dinner Will Be Held Despite Weather

Despite icy weather the committee planning Friday night's Congressman Walter B. Jones Appreciation Dinner program said today it expects a large turnout for the affair.

Rev. Tommy J. Payne, pastor of Greenville's Oakmont Baptist Church, will give the invocation. Mrs. Virginia Taylor and the 20-piece ECU Pep Band directed by George W. Knight will provide musical entertainment.

The Appreciation Night program was conceived, planned and arranged by friends and supporters of the congressman in Greenville and throughout the district.

It will be held Friday, Jan. 12, at the Greenville Moose Temple, beginning with a social hour at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 and the brief program afterward.

Use Care With Fire, Advises Chief Jones

Greenville fire chief J. L. Jones this morning cautioned local residents to be careful in using fire during the icy weather.

"It's not going to be easy for us to get to them," Jones said, in the event of fire, so persons should use extreme caution.

"Don't fire the stoves too much," the fire officer cautioned. He explained that the icy condition of the streets will hinder the heavy fire units in responding to calls and will give a fire added time to gain headway.

Caution in handling fire during this kind of weather, the chief noted, is "highly important."

He noted that all off-duty firemen are standing-by and are available to meet emergency situations.

South Korea To Try Defoliating

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea plans to defoliate a large part of its half of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea so sentries will have a better chance of spotting North Korean infiltrators, military sources said today.

The sources said the Korean Defense Ministry asked the United Nations Command for 45,000 gallons of defoliation chemicals similar to those used by U.S. forces in Vietnam.

They said the chemicals will be sprayed mainly along the fence barrier now under construction as an early warning system just below the Korean buffer zone.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The maiden launching of the project Apollo Lunar Module has been delayed at least three days, until Jan. 21, by a series of minor problems that cropped up during spacecraft fueling.

No official announcement was expected from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration until the fueling exercise is more complete.

The first lunar module is a forerunner of the craft which is to land two American astronauts on the moon. On the initial flight the engines are to be tested in earth orbit.

LITTER MAIDS
NEW YORK (AP) — Keep America Beautiful, the nation's anti-litter organization, has demonstrated through several surveys that women litter less and are more ardent litter-fighters than men.

Now KAB reports that "ladies" may soon join "litter maids" on the Brookline, Mass., law enforcement team. The city's health department is studying the possibility of establishing a force of women to hand out tickets to litter violators.
