

Claim Credit For Killing Americans

Murders Boasted By Pro-Castroites

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

Associated Press Writer

GUATEMALA (AP) — A pro-Castro revolutionary organization claimed credit today for the machine gun slaying of the top two U.S. military officers in Guatemala.

A typewritten communique signed Rebel Armed Forces—FAR—said the U.S. military mission had "ordered the Guatemalan army to create groups of assassins" against guerrillas and the FAR "decided to mete out justice."

Firing from a speeding car into the Americans' car near the Guatemalan Air Force's headquarters Tuesday, machine-guns killed U.S. Army Col. John D. Webber Jr., 47, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Ernest A. Munro, 40, and wounded Army Sgt. Maj. John R. Forster, 42, and Marine Sgt. Harry L. Greene, 41.

Greene was reported in critical condition, but Forster was discharged from the hospital after treatment of an arm wound.

The Guatemalan Cabinet proclaimed a "state of alarm"—modified martial law—in an attempt to check a mounting wave of terrorism by both extreme rightists and extreme leftists as well as gangsters taking advantage of the political turmoil.

A burst of machine gun fire earlier Tuesday killed former Guatemalan congressman Alejandro Silva Falla, 40, and his 20-year-old bodyguard was killed in an exchange of fire with the gunmen. Silva's name had appeared on a list circulated in June by rightists saying that all who served communism would be executed.

In a third attack Tuesday, gunmen missed Manuel Villacorta Vielman, former vice presidential candidate from the strongly anti-Communist National Liberation Movement, but wounded his 20-year-old son.

The government says 26 persons have been killed this month by terrorists. The state of alarm proclaimed by the government permits arrests without charges.

Bonner Property Given For Use Of Boy Scouts

E. E. Rawl, Jr., of Greenville, was installed as President of the East Carolina Council (Boy Scouts of America) at the Greenville Moose Temple.

The occasion also was marked by presentation of the deed to a 340-acre Beaufort County farm by Mrs. Eva H. Bonner, widow of the late Congressman Herbert C. Bonner. The farm was willed to the Boy Scout Council by Congressman Bonner to be used as a Scout camp. President Rawl has been active in Scouting for many years. He has served as Council Finance Chairman, Vice-President of the Council, Council Camporee Chief, Chairman of Major Gifts Division, Council Capital Campaign, and member of the Council Executive Board.

Four hundred and forty-seven acres have been purchased by the Council on Blounts Bay in Beaufort County. This area, along with property received from the late Congressman Bonner, will be known as the Herbert C. Bonner Scout Reservation.

The Bonner gift means the East Carolina Council now has 1,170 acres of land for the use of its Scouts and Scouters. The council has for years maintained an 80-acre camp at Camp Charles near Bailey. Two years ago a 330-acre site was purchased in Cartaret County, and Camp Hatcher — which was established there will begin operations this summer.

Cozart And Bailer Promoted At Planters Nat'l Bank Meet

W. C. Cozart Jr. has been promoted from assistant cashier to assistant vice president of the Planters National Bank and Trust Company in Greenville.

Bruce C. Bailer has been named assistant cashier.

The announcement was made by Frank L. Little Jr., PNB's vice president and manager of the Greenville office. Elections by the directors followed the bank's annual stockholders' meeting in Rocky Mount on Tuesday.

Cozart, a native of Greenville, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Cozart.

After attending the Greenville city schools, he graduated from East Carolina University in 1958 with an A.B. degree, and in 1961 he received his M.A. degree in business administration.

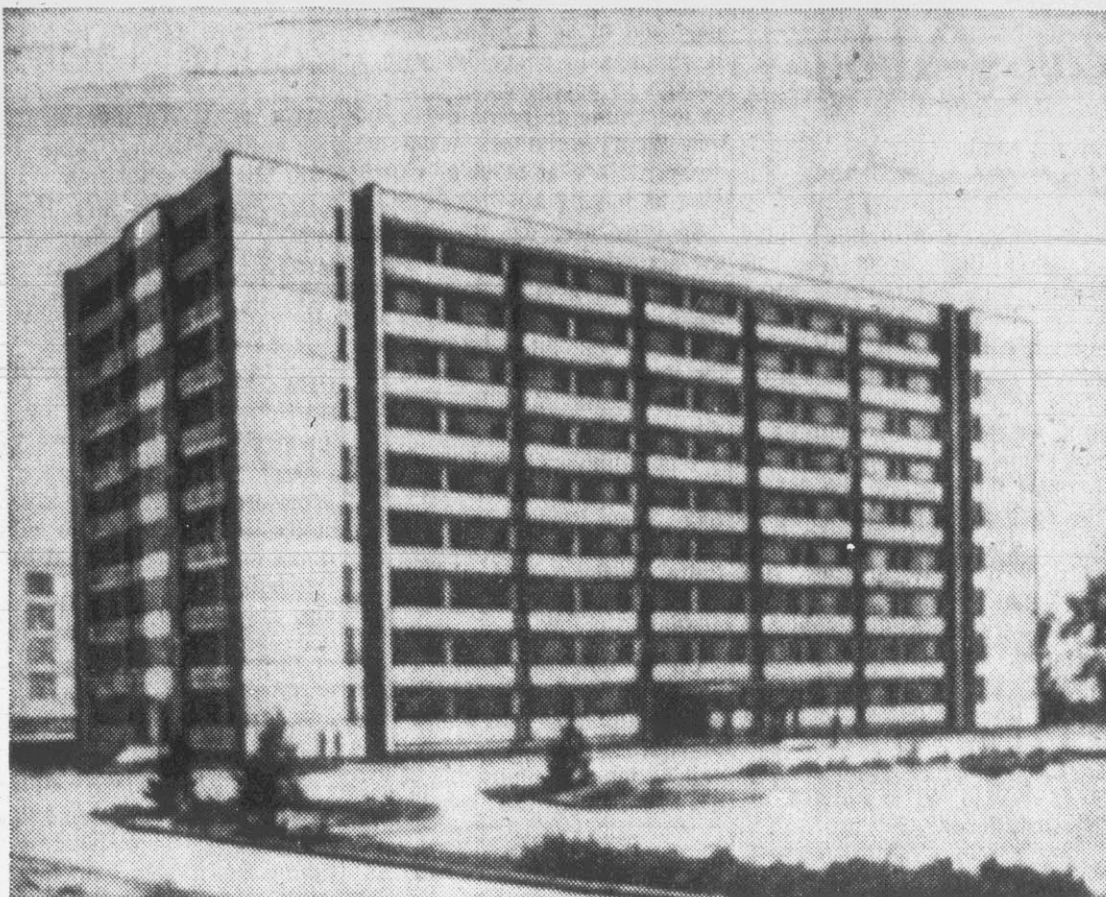

He is a member of the Greenville Jaycees, member of the Baptist Church Board of Deacons and assistant secretary; treasurer of the Pitt Unit of the American Cancer Society and secretary-treasurer of the Brook Valley Men's Golf Association.

Bailer has managed PNB's Pitt Plaza Office since its opening in 1966. A native of New York state, he was commissioned an ensign in the U.S. Navy, following graduation from the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance, a division of the University of Pennsylvania.

Prior to employment with Planters National he worked with I.B.M. in Charlotte and the Citizens and Southern National Bank in South Carolina.

Big New Dorm In The Works

NEW MEN'S DORM . . . $1,500,000 eight story structure bids were received yesterday.

Bids Studied On 500-Man Dorm At ECU

Low bids totalled $1,326,464 for a 500-man dorm to be constructed on College Hill Drive. Bids on the new structure were taken by University officials yesterday.

Budget for the project is $1,500,000. Not included in the bidding are architects fee, bedroom furniture or contingency funds. University officials said with these items the project may exceed the budget. Thus some paring of contract amounts may be necessary to complete the project.

Architect for the dorm is Dodge and Beckwith of Raleigh.

Low bidder for the general construction contract was R. N. Rouse and Co. of Goldsboro with a bid of $1,052,500. Low bidder for the electrical contract was Electricon of Kinston at $68,600. Bullock Plumbing and Heating of Raleigh offered the low plumbing bid at $93,993 and the low heating bid at $79,940.

Westinghouse was low bidder on the elevator contract at $31,435. However, officials said acceptance of an alternate may make Westbrook Elevator Co. the low bidder.

The dorm will be constructed on the east side of College Hill Drive. It will be the fifth dormitory to be built in this area, all of them housing men students. Upon completion of the new eight-story dorm there will be room for approximately 2,500 men students in the College Hill Drive area.

The new dorm will be the first for men to be eight stories tall and the first to include elevators.

Hints Another

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard said today the next candidate for a heart transplant at Groote Schuur Hospital is "materializing" but a definite decision has not been made.

The Cape Town surgeon also announced that his second heart transplant patient, Dr. Philip Blaiberg, is "out of the danger zone."

"He is over the period when he could suddenly get a massive infection," Barnard said of the retired dentist.

Fires Took Lives Of 7 Children In North Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seven children, aged 1 to 7, died in two fires in North Carolina Tuesday.

Three perished in their apartment in Charlotte and four in their frame house near Conway in northeastern North Carolina, near the Virginia line.

At Charlotte, Mrs. Judy Ann Baskins said she had left her children while she went to a grocery store a block away. She said she tried to get into the burning apartment when she returned, but smoke and flames drove her and neighbors away.

The victims were Conrad, 3; Anthony, 2, and Felicia, 1. At Conway, the victims were Carbell Bush, 7; Addlay, 6; Debbie, 4, and Reginald, 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Bush. The parents and two other children, aged 1 and 2, escaped.

Campus Raided By 198 Police

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — A raiding party of 198 police stormed the State University campus here early today, routing 30 students out of their beds and charging them with a variety of felony narcotics violations.

The raiding party—not told in advance of the raid's purpose—arrived at the sprawling, still unfinished campus on Long Island's North Shore at 3 a.m., in 72 police vehicles.

They were quickly briefed, divided into 32 raiding teams and sent to the college's dormitories and a few nearby homes armed with a warrant for 38 students including a few coeds. Eight escaped the net and were still at large, police said.

Police said the raid culminated a three-months investigation that was presented to a Suffolk County grand jury last week.

Bethel Boy Victim Of Shotgun

BETHEL — A 12-year-old Bethel boy was shot in the head yesterday as his two brothers tussled over a .16 gauge shotgun.

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey said Bobby Wayne Manning was seated on a couch at the time of the shooting. He died instantly, Harvey noted.

According to investigators, Lawrence Manning, 9, had picked the gun up. It had been resting in a corner of the room.

Glenn Manning, 13, came into the room and a tussle developed over the weapon.

As the two boys were tussling, the weapon fired.

Coroner Harvey who termed the shooting "apparently an accident," said investigation of the shooting is continuing.

Discount Clause Would Remain

RALEIGH (AP) — The 10 per cent discount clause for motorists who have no "points" against their driving record likely will remain a part of the revised safe driver plan Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier is preparing. Lanier said Tuesday that the discount clause would remain in the revised plan. He also said he is considering three categories of drivers in the proposed plan—"the earned safe driver; a standard driver, with no discount; and the assigned risk"—instead of the two categories in the present system.

Convention June 6

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Democratic Party Executive Committee today set the party's state convention for June 6 in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium.

State Chairman Tim Valentine said that by delaying the convention until after the primary election May 4 it will "be apvelche that will serve to unify the party."

There was a scattering of opposition votes on the motion.

The committee also set May 25 for all county conventions and May 11 for all precinct meetings.

Ralph Strayhorn of Durham, who proposed the delay in holding the convention, said an overwhelming majority of local chairmen and prominent Democrats had favored a post-primary convention in a recent poll.

Field Hearings On Tobacco Set

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Final plans for three days of field hearings by the House Tobacco Subcommittee to look into marketing problems of North Carolina flue cured tobacco growers were announced Tuesday by Chairman W. R. (Bob) Poage (D-Tex.), of the full House committee on Agriculture.

The first hearing will be held in Lumberton Jan. 24. The subcommittee will continue the hearings in Greenville on Jan. 25 and in Durham on Jan. 26. All segments of the tobacco industry affected by the marketing problem are invited to attend the public meetings and present their views. It is hoped that those wishing to testify will notify Mrs. Christine S. Gallagher, clerk of the committee, Room 1301 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C.

The congressman will leave Washington by plane Jan. 24, arriving at Fayetteville shortly after 12 noon. Then they will go to Lumberton for a meeting to be held in the Lumberton Senior High School from 2 to 5 p.m.

The group will spend that night in Greenville and hold hearings from 9 a.m. to noon Jan. 25 in the Greenville Moose Lodge. They will fly into the Raleigh-Durham Airport late that day and hold a session in the federal court room of the Post Office building in Durham from 9 a.m. to noon on Jan. 26.

These hearings will be conducted in search for solution to the chaotic marketing conditions that proved so disastrous to our farmers last season, said Rep. Walter B. Jones, one of the subcommittee members.

Besides Jones subcommittee members are: Reps. Watkins M. Abbit, D-Va.; John L. McMillan, D-SC; Frank A. Stubblefield, D-Ky.; William C. Wampler, R-Va.; Clarence E. Miller, R-Ohio and J. Herbert Burke, R-Fla.

Roberts To Seek District Judgeship

J. W. H. Roberts will be a candidate for judge in the newly created district which will embrace Pitt, Pamlico, Carteret and Craven Counties.

Under the court reform plan the new district judges will replace present county and municipal court judgeships.

Robert, a practicing attorney in Greenville and a former judge of Greenville municipal court, said in making the announcement, "It is my opinion that those responsible for the new court will have rendered a great service to North Carolina. The new statute revamps our court system, eliminating many of the complaints heretofore voiced against our judicial system, and setting up a completely (Continued on page 24)

Utilities 'Out Of The Woods' By Midnight

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

"We should be out of the woods by midnight" with electric service restored to almost all customers with the exception of some isolated cases, Greenville Utilities Commission director Leonard Bloxam reported this morning.

The director urged utilities customers, "if there are conditions you feel we may not know about or if you happen to be an isolated customer that in the rush to make repairs may have been overlooked, please call 752-7166 to report the situation location and the name of the person calling."

He added that addresses are most important in locating people in the city or rural areas and precise information will help expedite repairs or corrections.

By today, Bloxam explained, the commission had moved into the area over 60 line trucks of one sort or another, and over 150 men from contractors. These, in addition to the 60 Greenville utilities men and 32 local trucks, are and have been working diligently to get everyone back in service.

Wednesday and Thursday of last week, when the ice storm hit, was described by Blox-am as "a total loss" as far as trying to maintain service "to our customers" was concerned.

"Although the Commission's crews attempted to maintain as much service as possible, man power became tired and fatigued, and materials and equipment were used which was more or less wasted," he said. "Many repairs were made in many areas only to have tree limbs fall into the lines repeatedly in the same location."

The utilities commission began seeking additional help Thursday morning although the severity of the storm over-such a large area expended manpower quite quickly, Bloxam said. Mutual aid assistance became quite thin until Monday, when some of the less damaged areas began to get cleared up.

"I cannot give enough praise," Bloxam said, "to the linemen and groundmen who worked so hard with so little sleep to restore much needed service."

"We know of instances where men were too tired to undress or remove their boots, and slept this way for the few hours rest that they were able to get," Bloxam continued. Bloxam also said five of his men had been sent to bed by doctors for illness sustained while working "long hard hours in the cold."

Repairs have been dragged out, he indicated, by the necessity to replace poles.

As many circuits as possible were replaced and wires put up in sections where pole damage was not a major factor, he indicated. "We knew this way we could get more people on quicker until assistance could be mustered."

He noted that an estimated 250 poles were downed by the storm.

If Other Efforts Fail, Parents Should Be Told

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: None of us can hit a home run every time we go to bat. While I agree with you most of the time, I think you should reconsider your advice to the boy whose friends were stealing bikes. "I do not agree with friends informing on one another," you wrote, "but a real 'friend' would do all in his power to set his companions straight."

If we follow your thinking it is only a short step to keeping quiet while a fellow citizen is slowly murdered in a courtyard in sight of dozens of people. They didn't want to "inform" or "get involved" either.

In our present world we are too willing to condone wrongdoing and to expect someone else to punish wrongdoers. Personally, if my child were involved in stealing of any nature I would certainly appreciate someone having the courage to tell me.

JRM, MEMPHIS

DEAR JRM: You've made a good point. In the case of the bike thieves, I had in mind some effort to stop this criminal conduct, or to try, before giving the erring kids a police record. After that, the parents should certainly be tipped off. But among youngsters, the persistent "tattle-tale" on child's pranks becomes a social outcast early in life.

DEAR ABBY: Some friends of ours with a little girl not yet five years old have been allowing an unmarried couple to spend week - ends together in their home. (This unmarried couple couldn't be any closer if they were married. I'm sure you get the picture.)

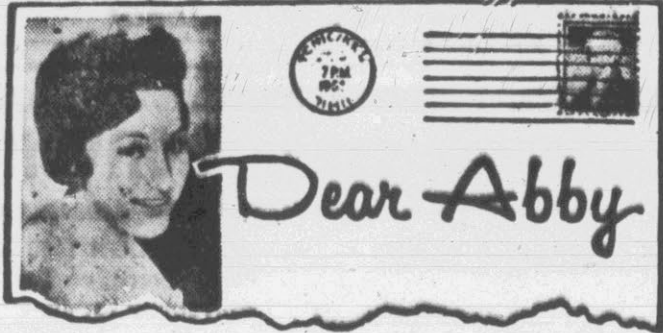

The mother says the child is too young to know the difference. I personally think the child is old enough to know that something about the arrangement is wrong. I would like your opinion.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It's the same as yours.

DEAR ABBY: On a recent visit to the home of my husband's sister (we live in different towns) she turned to my nine-year-old daughter and said, "I want you to know that you ruined our Christmas this year because you told Cindy (their eight - year - old) there wasn't any Santa Claus."

Our daughter had no answer other than, "Cindy asked me if I believed in Santa Claus and I said, 'No, not since I was in first grade."

My sister - in - law pursued the subject with a vengeance saying it was a terrible thing for my daughter to have done, etc. We have always had a good relationship with this family, and now I feel a definite rift, although I said nothing and didn't enter into it.

I have never encountered a problem such as this. Just how long should a child be encouraged to go along with the Santa Claus bit? Isn't eight a little too old? How great a sin did my child commit? I would appreciate your opinion.

INJURED FEELINGS

DEAR INJURED: Shame on your sister - in - law. You or child committed no "crime."

Her younger cousin must have suspected that there was no Santa Claus, otherwise why would she have asked? To deliberately destroy a child's beliefs in fairy tales and Santa Claus is unkind, but when a child suspects that something is only "make believe," it's time to draw the curtain and let in the light of truth. Your sister-in-law needs to grow up.

For The Basic Black Dress, Scarves, Inexpensive Jewelry

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — When the basic black dress is back (and it is) can jewelry be far behind? It isn't.

Basically, the black dress is supposed to be a money saver. It changes in character with a change in accessories, giving it at least nine different lives. But this theory collapses when accessories are at least as expensive as buying another dress.

Scarves are, or at any rate the signed designer scarves are quite costly. And jewelry always has been, especially when it is the real thing. Lately, even the fake things have upped their prices astronomically. But not all.

The mini-skirted lasses who have revolutionized fashion have also brought about mini-priced jewelry, and in such infinite variety that the fickle misses may pick and dismiss at random.

Up to now the young crowd has decorated with prettied-up paper, gleaming vinyl and slick plastic. Perhaps the idea of a generation of non-bauble-believers frightened the jewelry industry.

In any event the best designers in the business began to experiment with their cheap-

Program On N. C. Given Round Table

Mrs. H. H. Duncan was hostess to the Round Table Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

Her guests were Mrs. Howard Mims, Mrs. Ted Smith, and Mrs. Tom Cloud.

During the business session, Mrs. R. L. Holt, president, appointed Mrs. D. N. Wilson, Mrs. D. L. Moore, and Mrs. C. O. H. Horne to serve as the program committee for next year.

Mrs. D. R. Taylor gave the program on North Carolina. She called attention to the educational information put out by the Department of Conservation and Development; to plans for two welcome stations on Interstate Highways 85 and 95; to the State Fair as a source of information in regard to crafts in the state.

The slogan of the state is "Variety Vacations Land," and many places for outdoor recreation were named, among the newer sports were the ski slopes of western North Carolina she said.

The historical outdoor dramas bring many tourists to the state. Paul Green deserves much credit for beginning this form of entertainment. The statues, gardens, parks, and architecture lure tourists, and the excellent road system makes all places accessible. North Carolina takes great pride in its art museum. Dr. R. L. Humber of Greenville is primarily responsible for making this museum a reality. Eastern North Carolina has many historical sites, the Colonial Palace at New Bern is probably the best known, she continued.

Mrs. Togbor concluded the program by reading the poem "Communion" by La Mont W. Olsen.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Holt and Mrs. H. O. Dunbar, served a salad course from an appointed table centered with red camellias.

er but beautiful simulated stones to see what they could create that was both fun and tasteful.

They surprised themselves. They made $2 and $3 pins and bracelets, chandelier-like earrings and glittering choker necklaces that would have cost a fortune had they not been made of lesser gems.

Ordinarily, these would have looked cheap—like tinsel on a weary Christmas tree. But these were so well designed that they won Godo Design Awards in the industrywide contest along with all manner and prices of jewelry.

Though they were intended for the young and poor of pocketbook, smart people of all financial circumstances are now searching for these winners not because they are inexpensive, but because they like them better than anything else they can buy at any price.

Once the price-dropper was one who couldn't wait to astound everyone with how much she had paid for something she was wearing.

Now she is the one who can't keep from telling everyone how little she paid.

This kind of jewelry buying can stretch the little mini black dress a long, long way—though never over the knee.

1968 Stupid Trend Campaign

PARIS (WNS) — Playboy Jean Mersant, who is known as "Sean Connery's twin," has turned down a movie contract to become a waiter at Le Tournefort instead. "My ambition is to please and be pleased by women," he explained. "Single women generally get bad treatment when they come alone to a restaurant. My campaign for 1968 is to reverse this stupid trend."

Norell's Styles Very Feminine

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Women who want to sigh with joy over Norman Norell's spring collection will have to do a medley—"Ancient's Away" and "I Enjoy Being a Girl."

The nautical influence—brass buttons, embroidered anchors and middie blouses—predominated in the collection Norell previewed here this week. But no matter what the influence, the effect was overwhelmingly feminine.

Tiny waists were emphasized by wide belts; full organdy skirts and puffed sleeves looked as delicate and delectable as cotton candy; and Swiss embroidery added a final dainty touch. All combine to make it plain that Norell likes women who look like women—even if they slick their hair back severely as his models did.

Variations on the nautical theme were evident at all lengths. Norell offered his black-tie audience a choice of floor-length, midcalf and just-above-the-knee skirts.

For daytime, Norell showed the costume. Short jackets stopped just far enough above the waist to show a wide belt which, in turn, gave way to a gathered skirt, fuller in front than in back. Underneath, the models displayed turtle neck jerseys or blouses with huge perky bows.

Evening, Norell decreed, was the time to look definitely dainty.

Yards and yards of organdy were gathered into puffed sleeves and skirts so full that women may have trouble getting through doorways. Bows predominated—either at the neck or at the back of brightly colored sashes.

Color, to Norell, meant contrast. He offered a choice of the mariner's red, white and blue; the starkness of black and white or the shocking brightness of orange on white.

Korean Women Sell Their Hair For Wigs

By M. H. AHN
SEOUL (AP) — The wig business has become big business for South Korea.

In 1962, it had not occurred to anyone to use the abundant supply of human hair exported to the United States and Europe.

But someone determined that the wig-making business was far more lucrative than the hair exporting trade.

Pioneer firm in the Korean field was the Seoul Trading Company, whose president is Choi Joon-kyu.

Korean wigmakers claim their workmanship is among the highest in the world, particularly in dyeing dark hair into lighter shades.

The United States gave a big boost to the Koreans in 1966 when the American Treasury Department forbade the importation of any wigs made from Red Chinese raw material.

The hair is collected in Korea by thousands of individuals; needy housewives, traveling rice candy merchants and others who make door-to-door visits around the peninsular nation.

Most of the longer hair comes from girls out in the country who permit their tresses to grow longer and more luxuriant than their city sisters.

There are the inevitable O'-Henry-like stories of a beautiful maiden who is forced to shear her mane in order to buy medicine for ailing parents or a holiday present for boyfriend or husband.

The on-the-street collectors sell their gatherings to brokers who in turn bargain with the wig firms, based mostly in Seoul, where they are woven into the final product.

Wigs come in four basic sizes: short-shorty, four to six inches long; shorty, six to 10 inches; regular, 10 to 14 inches and full, 20 inches or more.

More than 100 shades are produced, ranging from raven black to "passionate blonde." Surprisingly, the darker shades are most popular in the United States.

Export prices, due to inexpensive labor and ready availability of the raw material, range from $6 to $12 for machine-made wigs and $12 to $20 for the hand-made article.

They go on sale at beauty parlors and women's stores in the States for around $50 to $80, sometimes more.

We'll Need Another With Vision

Public education has changed a great deal in North Carolina in the 16 years since Dr. Charles F. Carroll became Superintendent of Public Instruction. In stepping down from that post next January at the end of his present term of office, Dr. Carroll leaves an important Council of State position to be filled by the people of North Carolina.

The announcement of his forthcoming retirement is certain to bring forth several candidates for the elective office. Already two of the state's educators have announced they will be candidates for the office. Others are expected to make similar announcements in the coming weeks.

In electing a man to fill the post of Superintendent of Public Instruction, North Carolina voters should seek the best qualified person from among the candidates. Furthermore, they should encourage the state's best qualified people to seek the office. While the Council of State offices do not attract the public attention accorded other local and state offices, they are nonetheless of great importance to every resident of this state.

As for the Superintendent of Public Instruction,

N.C. Budget To Top $3 Billion

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — The legislature of the neighboring state of Virginia has been asked to approve a biennial budget totaling $3 billion.

Headlines in the Virginia papers were big and bold because this is a record and contains unprecedented features. The amount surpasses North Carolina's present biennial budget of $2.97 billion and this was cause for comment.

Comparatively, however, the knowledgeable chairman of the state's Advisory Budget Commission, Sen. Thomas J. White, predicts that North Carolina may anticipate a budget reaching $3.5 billion for 1969-71.

"That's just a guess," White said. "But I think it might be very close to being accurate."

Will Shape Budget

White looked briefly at the Virginia figures recommended by that state's governor, Mills E. Godwin Jr.

WILLIAM A. SHIRES

The total was $3.06 billion counting a healthy helping of Federal funds in several areas, a tax speed-up "windfall" and $71 million in bond issue borrowing which is a departure from past state fiscal policy in Virginia.

White examined the figures. "Change the zero to a five and that will be about what our recommendations will be," he said.

Breakdown Listed

White, a veteran legislator from Lenoir County and three times chairman of the Advisory Budget Commission, is a principal architect of North Carolina's budget.

He noted that the Virginia budget, item by item, is very close to North Carolina's 1967-69 total of expenditures.

"There is," he said, "a large amount of federal money." This, of course, is true. In Virginia's $652 million of general fund appropriations for public schools, there is added about $106 million in "special funds," mainly federal aid. This was a substantial increase from the past biennium.

Also, the neighboring state's budget includes "special funds," primarily federal aid money, in higher education, mental health, public health and public welfare.

Budget Commission

North Carolina's Advisory Budget Commission certainly will take available federal funds into account, but many of its members wince at the prospect.

White knows the budget-making process as well or better than anyone. He has seen the state's budget and budget requirements bulge and expand over a long period of years and demands increase for fatter appropriations. But his budget commissions have never missed their mark on estimates necessary to achieve a balanced budget. This year — 1968 — may be more difficult.

Many Factors

There are many factors which affect budget — making and revenue forecasting.

White and the state's budget officers say "we are going to be under all sorts of pressures" in estimating revenue and in recommending additional appropriations for the next biennium.

At the same time they realize that after the budget commission presents its recommendations they can be broken and altered drastically.

The governor — and a new one will take office next January — may discard and throw aside the budget commission's recommendations. The legislature may ignore them altogether and the legislature is the final authority in writing the state's biennial budget compilations.

the person who holds that office is probably second only to the governor in influencing the course of public education in the state. For North Carolina, a state which still needs to make great strides to bring citizens, the post must be regarded as one of tremendous importance.

North Carolina needs in the position a person who is a capable administrator and one who is thoroughly familiar with public education. Equally important, it must have in that position a man of vision and one who possesses the leadership qualities and energy to continue to build in this state the kind of public education system needed by its young people.

What Does The Price Tag Say?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—What does the price tag say?

If the United States called a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam, and if the North Vietnamese responded by slowing down their fighting in South Vietnam, then the pause would be worth it and peace talks might get started.

If the United States stopped bombing the North in the hope of a reciprocal response but the North used the pause to build up its forces in the South with men and supplies, U. S. ground forces in the South would have to pay the price.

So far the North has never shown any intention of slowing down its own side of the war when there was an American pause. But the calls for a bombing halt, temporary or permanent, go on.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield is the latest one to oppose the bombing. He wants a permanent halt to it.

He thinks what the North said on New Year's Day may be "one small indication" that if the United States stopped the bombing the North Vietnamese might be willing to talk peace.

This is what he said Sunday. He was referring to the North Vietnamese statement Jan. 1 that an end to the bombing will bring peace talks. In the past Hanoi had only said such U. S. action could — rather than will — bring talks.

But North Vietnam really didn't make it that simple.

Hanoi said there will be peace talks if the United States unconditionally ends the bombing and all other acts of war. But it didn't say it would stop its end of the war if the United States met its demands.

And so far President Johnson, thinking of the price tag, has refused to end the bombing. Instead, he is trying to find out what exactly North Vietnam will do if the bombing stops.

But Mansfield went beyond just hoping for the best. He said of the bombing, and gave it as a principal reason for wanting the bombing stopped altogether, whether or not the North Vietnamese responded.

"I think that militarily it has not accomplished its objective, politically I think it's very risky, and morally I think it's quite calamitous."

On Monday, a committee of distinguished men, including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, tried to take a detached view of the bombing problem. Some of the others in this group are retired General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, and Paul Douglas, former senator from Illinois.

The group — called the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom in Vietnam — published a pamphlet giving the two sides of the argument about ending the bombing of the North. But it also offered conclusions of its own.

It said the bombing is not as central to the American effort in Vietnam as some of its proponents claim nor as much of an obstacle to negotiations as its opponents claim.

It said the war cannot be won in the air by bombing the North. But the bombing is a help to American ground forces fighting in the South and the war can be lost on the ground, the group said.

But the committee takes pretty much the same position as Johnson has, saying: "We believe that the beginning of an extended bombing pause must be promptly followed by Hanoi's cessation of sending men and materials into the South and any firing from the North upon our fighting men."

YES, PONDER IT

Generous people are always making paradoxical statements. They often say that the only things they really have are the things they have given away.

This does sound paradoxical, doesn't it? Some years ago a man gave a dormitory to a missionary college in Asia, and then severe times came upon him and he was almost in want. But he never regretted what he had done. "The only thing I have today," he said, "is that building I gave to the missionary enterprise. That is a real possession in the inmost regions of my heart. I carry it on the asset side of the ledger."

Many devout Christian believers are tithers; that is, they give one-tenth of their incomes to the Lord's work. And among such people there is a radiant spirit of happiness, an absence of fear concerning the future, and a deep sense of gratitude for the blessings that fill their lives. These people never think about the sacrifice involved in giving; they think only about the satisfactions which derive from giving. Gain for them is not what they save or what they personally enjoy — gain for them is what they give away.

We can see from this that the Christian gospel turns the standards of the world upside down. It's not what we get that makes life significant, but what we give. Ponder that.

No Passport Protection

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dean Rusk has one of the toughest jobs in the world. Just the other day one of his aides reported to him:

"Sir, all the arrangements have been made for your trip. There will be troops all along the road from the airport into town. No advance notice is being given of your arrival. You will be traveling under the name of Mrs. James Smith, a business consultant. When you arrive in town you will be whisked off to the hotel and you won't leave until the conference is over. Then we will take you by helicopter back to the airport before the local press finds out you were there."

"What country am I going to?" Rusk asked.

"No country," his aide replied. "You're going to San Francisco."

"I was afraid of that," the secretary said. "Is it going to be bad?"

"We can't tell, so we have to take precautions. You see, if you were going abroad we wouldn't have problems. If there were any demonstrations against you, we could always protest to the unfriendly nation's state department. But when they have demonstrations against you in the United States, we have no one to protest to but ourselves."

"I guess there's not much satisfaction in that," the secretary said. "Did Vice President Humphrey get back from Africa?"

"Yes, sir. It was a very successful trip. There were a few sporadic incidents in the Congo but they didn't amount to anything. We're a little worried now, though."

"Why?"

"He has to go to Chicago next week."

"Poor Hubert. He should have stayed in Africa."

"That's what we told him. But he said he'd go anywhere any time to defend the President's Vietnam policies, so it was very hard for him to refuse to go to Chicago."

"What are the latest reports from New Haven?"

"The CIA is nervous."

"Why is that?"

"Yale is talking about giving you an honorary degree."

"That's serious. How do we get out of it?"

"Well, if it goes through, we're going to ask them to mail it to you."

"But won't it look bad if the secretary of state of the United States can't go to New Haven?"

"We thought of that and we're trying to work out a trip for you to the Soviet Union or Cyprus, where you'll be safe. We figure if you go abroad at that time, nobody will wonder why you didn't go to New Haven."

Labor Tests Allies

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The alliance forged in the final weeks of the 1967 Congressional session between liberal Northern Democrats in the House and their conservative Southern colleagues will be tested severely over the old irritant of organized labor's political spending.

House Republican leaders will give early priority in the new session to a campaign finance reform bill containing a provision aimed at putting labor out of business as a source of campaign funds. Co-sponsored by a Republican (Rep. Charles Goodell of New York) and a Southern Democrat (Rep. Robert Ashmore of South Carolina) the bill would exert a powerful attraction on Southerners.

Thus, the Goodell-Ashmore bill, now pending in the House Administration Committee, will determine the durability of the links developed late last year during the poverty bill fight between Northern and Southern Democrats.

The price paid by the Northerners was high: the amendment to the poverty bill by Representative Edith Green of Oregon placing control over local Community Action programs with city hall, a step vital to Southern white politicians.

Although Republicans pledged during the Senate-House conference on the final version of the poverty bill that they would back the bill in full if the Green amendment were removed, Northern House Democrats refused. More than merely passage of a poverty bill, they were seeking general accommodation with the South for the difficult 1968 Congressional session.

This strategy will be tested by the Goodell-Ashmore bill's provision effectively barring transfer of union dues to the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE). Since COPE will be the principal financier of Democratic campaigns in many states, Northern Democrats are just as anxious to kill this provision as Southerners were to pass the Green amendment.

But right-wing Southerners such as Representative Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, a member of the House Administration Committee, can scarcely resist a chance to slap labor even though they are hostile to the campaign reform bill generally. The anti-COPE provision undoubtedly would die in the Senate, but its adoption by the House would strike hard at newborn North-South Democratic unity.

Barriers Up

With absolutely no chance for Export-Import Bank help in financing construction of the Fiat auto plant in the Soviet Union, the Fiat Company has now made final arrangements for a drastic reduction in the purchase of U. S. machine tools for the plant. The Fiat "deal," strongly endorsed by President Johnson in the bright days of his East-West trade plans a year ago, came a cropper in Congress last fall. Congressmen found it politically impossible to let the Ex-Im Bank provide any help for an industrial enterprise in Russia, source of so much aid for Hanoi.

The original plan would have used Ex-Im bank credits to finance the purchase of $50 million worth of U. S. machine tools. On a private visit there last month, Dr. Giovanni Agnelli, president of the

Public Forum

To The Editor:

Your recent editorial in praise of the utilities crews was well deserved. I would like, however, to add my praise to several men: Mr. Harvey Joyner, and the four or five men who work with him.

Mr. Joyner and these men are employed by the town of Winterville. As you know, in small towns there is no specialization. These men had the responsibility of lights, water, sewage, street repairs, and yes, even routine garbage collection.

I had lived in many communities before settling on the outskirts of Winterville. May

I go on record as stating that Mr. Joyner and his crew and the town officials, mayor and aldermen, who worked with these men cannot be praised too highly. They rendered to the people of Winterville a devoted and valued service around the clock so that we might have the comfort and conveniences that we have come to depend upon. It is indeed a pleasure to live in such a fine community with such a dedicated and devoted group of employees and town officials.

Yours truly,

And Now, The Value-Added Tax

By ELMER ROESSNER

Perhaps we shouldn't mention the value-added tax. Some damn politician will become interested and try to impose it on us.

The value-added tax was introduced in France and Germany has just put it into effect. All other Common Market nations plus Britain are considering it and may impose it.

Essentially, it is a series of sales taxes imposed at all levels of trade, on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. But at each level, the taxpayer gets credit for the previous taxes paid. It works like this: The manufacturer of widgets wants a dollar for each, so he sells them to a distributor at a dollar plus the value-added tax, say 2 per cent, or for $1.02. The distributor wants to get $1.50 for each, so he adds 1 cent, not 3, because he is taxed only on the "value added" or, more accurately, on the price increase. And the retailer, wanting to get $3 a widget, adds only 3 cents, or 2 per cent on his markup.

The Persuasive Gimmicks

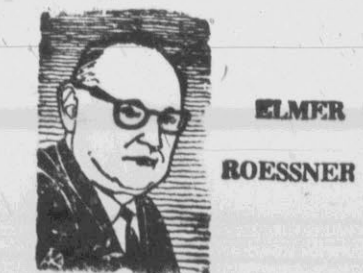

There are two twists to the tax that make it palatable:

1. It is a substitute for the corporation income tax to a large extent, so businessmen favor it.

2. The tax is not collected on exported goods, but imposed on imports. Thus it makes exports cheaper and encourages businesses to export like crazy, and it makes imports more expensive. Thus it helps each nation's balance of trade and helps to prevent gold drains.

Furthermore, this makes the tax self-spreading. Once

France imposed it, other Common Market nations, as did Germany, must impose similar taxes, or subsidize exports, in self-defense. Eventually it may become as common as tariffs.

ELMER ROESSNER

Proponents of the tax claim, in addition to its foreign-trade advantages, these points:

1. It is simpler to collect than corporate income taxes, it is harder to evade and it eliminates disputes and suits common to income taxes. There is no incentive for expense account deductions.

2. Tax revenues rise as prices do. It would not be necessary, as the United States and state governments are doing now, to raise tax RATES as prices go up.

3. The tax, if applied, must also be applied to cooperatives and other institutions exempt from income taxes. Otherwise, these could underkill business corporations and disrupt the economy.

The Case Against

1. The tax, like all other taxes, will be passed on to consumers.

2. Like other sales taxes, it reduces consumption.

3. Corporations with high margins would pay less tax in relation to income than those with narrow margins; falling companies would be taxed at the same rate as prosperous ones.

Two Deny Roles In Conspiracy Of Terrorism

SALISBURY, N. C. (AP)—Two of nine men charged with conspiring to prevent school integration have denied participation in any terrorism. But another defendant says in a statement that he took part in nine acts of violence.

Mark Dayvault, 27, of Kannapolis, and Ray L. Hornbook, 27, of Concord, both admitted Klansmen, were asked to tell the federal court jury of 12 men Tuesday whether they had shot into the homes of Negroes, tried to bomb buildings, made threatening telephone calls, or otherwise participated in terrorism in Cabarrus and Rowan counties.

"No, sir," they answered. They were called after the government, in a surprise move, presented statements signed by another defendant, Ronald L. Mullis, 28, of Concord, admitting he participated in nine incidents of violence.

An FBI agent said the statements were taken May 18, 1967, two months before the defendants were arrested at their homes.

The government rested its case with the presentation of the statements.

This is the second week of the trial, which started Monday, Jan. 8.

The government has based its case largely on the testimony of Robert P. Hill, 31, formerly of Concord, a former Klansman who became FBI informer.

Hill, who was indicted with the others, has pleaded guilty and is to be sentenced later. The others have pleaded innocent. Another man arrested on the same charges was cleared and a 12th defendant died.

After the prosecution rested, defense attorney Webster Medlin of Concord asked Judge Edwin Stanley to direct a verdict of acquittal or to declare a mistrial. Both motions were denied.

Medlin also asked that testimony about 13 acts of terrorism be stricken. The judge ordered stricken "only the testimony about three threatening telephone calls, to the homes of the principal of an integrated high school and to a Negro who had sent his children to a previously all-white school. The judge said there was no evidence linking any of the defendants to the calls."

POVERTY IS HELL

MARYKNOLL, N.Y. (AP)—The Rev. Maurice Ouellet, a Josephite priest and civil rights activist, gives this definition of poverty: "a concretized hell inhabited by humans."

Two From Pitt To Take Short Course

Two Pitt County farmers will attend a two-week short course in modern farming at N. C. State University in Raleigh, beginning January 22.

The 16th annual session is sponsored by North Carolina bankers who provide scholarships for young outstanding farmers to attend the courses.

Attending the short course from this county will be Franklin Singleton of Pactolus and Jimmy Singleton of Stokes.

Total enrollment of around 150 students is expected, according to Dr. Joe Pou, the County Key Banker for Pitt.

Dr. Pou said all expenses for the two Pitt men will be paid by banks in this area.

While in Raleigh, Dr. Pou said, the farmers will learn to evaluate modern technology in a changing agri-business environment.

The short course, he said, deals with the old reliable, the modern new, and takes a peek at times, to the future.

Dr. Pou was appointed County Key Banker last fall by C. W. Barrett of Laurinburg, president of the N. C. Bankers Association. Working with him is county extension service chairman Sam Winchester.

Public's Eye Adds A Strain To Dr. Barnard

By DAVID J. PAINE
Associated Press Writer

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—The tall, lean heart surgeon hurried along the corridor toward the small lecture room where television cameras and newsmen were waiting for his daily news conference.

At the door he braced himself, trying to erase the tired lines from his face.

Then his face lit up with a smile of genuine pleasure. Waiting just inside the room were the wife and two daughters of probably his closest friend and colleague, Dr. Martinus C. Botha.

Ignoring the newsmen, Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard knelt and hugged Tessa, 9, and Michelle, 7. The two girls threw their arms around his neck as he asked: "Where have you been? I haven't seen you for ages."

He pointed to the polished table crowded with microphones on the far side of the room lit by the glare of television lights.

"I have to go over there and talk to these people," he said. "But I'd much rather talk to you than any of them, Michelle. Will you come over and sit on my knee?"

Elizabeth Botha shook her head. It was enough that her immunologist husband and been caught up in the swirl of publicity that followed the world's first human heart transplant. She wanted herself and the children left out.

Barnard nodded understandingly. He hugged Tessa and Michelle again and wended his way through the crowd to the table.

For him there is no escape. The glare of publicity following the historic operation has changed Barnard's life forever.

No longer is he merely a respected heart surgeon known mainly by specialists in his own particular sphere. He is the man whose name has been splashed across the headlines of newspapers throughout the world, whose flashing smile has been seen by tens of millions on television.

He is a world celebrity. The mass circulation French newspaper France Soir named him man of the year. Time magazine did a cover story on him. The President of the United States entertained him at his Texas ranch.

Botha probably knows Chris Barnard better than any other man, with the possible exception of the surgeon's younger brother, Marius, who is also a surgeon in the heart transplant team. Botha and Barnard are second cousins, work side by side and often spend their holidays together.

"Has all this sudden fame had any effect on Chris?" Botha's brows furrowed in astonishment at the question.

"Of course not. You can see that, you meet him yourself every day at the press conference. He won't ever change. He's not the sort who does."

But fame and publicity have had their effect on Barnard in another way.

Visiting doctors, newsmen and civic authorities, wanting to congratulate him or bestow honors on him, take up hours of his day. People who have never met him want to shake his hand.

All sorts of clubs and organizations seek him as their guest. He is invited abroad to take part in televised discussions with other famous heart surgeons.

On top of all this he has his regular work to do.

Among other things, he has to keep alive retired dentist Philip Blaiberg, the world's third human heart transplant patient. Before that there was Louis Washkansky, the first man in the world to have his heart replaced with another. He lived with it for 18 days.

Somehow Barnard manages to meet most of the requests. Somehow he managed to satisfy nearly all the exhausting demands on him. He is very conscientious.

Has his home life been disrupted?

"Not really," he says. "I can't take my daughter out water skiing any more but my friends take her out instead."

Daughter Deirdre, 17, is one of the world's half-dozen best women water skiers and Barnard has long been an enthusiast.

Does he still manage time to relax with his wife?

"Oh, yes."

But friends and colleagues tell a different story.

Even when he is home his phone rings continually.

Barnard's wife "Loukie" is fed up.

"All I want now is to get back to normal living," she says.

She is sick of seeing her husband's face lined with tiredness. She is sick of having to attend endless functions with him. And she is sick of not being able to spend quiet uninterrupted evenings with him.

But until the human heart transplant loses its impact on the public there will be no letup for Barnard. Wherever he goes people will point cameras at him, seek his autograph and ask questions. Wherever he goes there will be interruptions. He has become public property.

No Nagging Backache Means a Good Night's Sleep

Nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains may come on with over-exertion, emotional upset, or everyday stress and strain. If this nagging backache, with restless, sleepless nights, is wearing you out, making you miserable and irritable, don't wait, try Doan's Pills—an analgesic, a pain reliever. Doan's pain-relieving action on nagging backache is often the answer. Get Doan's Pills—not a habit-forming drug but a well-known standard remedy used successfully by millions for over 70 years. See if they don't bring you the same welcome relief. For convenience, always buy Doan's large size.

VC Hold Upper Hand In Mekong Delta Campaign

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

DONG TAM, Vietnam (AP)—One year and several major battles after the first U.S. troops were committed to bolster government forces in the Mekong Delta, the Viet Cong maintain their hold on the bulk of that Vietnamese rice bowl.

Prisoners have reported the guerrillas are drafting boys as young as 13 to fill out their units. The quality of the Red leadership and training is considered to have declined.

Brig. Gen. William R. Desobry, outgoing senior American adviser in the delta, says the South Vietnamese army has the upper hand now.

"The Viet Cong are going down steadily," Desobry told reporters this month. "Pacification has taken hold. There has been significant success. I'll stick my neck out. If we do our job properly—and we will—the military situation in the delta will be much more favorable in one to two years than it is now."

"In December we (allied forces, killed over 2,000 in the delta, the highest ever. We lost 600 killed."

But the ratio of civilians under Viet Cong and government control in the area assigned to two brigades of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division, the Old Reliables, is unchanged. The Viet Cong remain the dominant force in most villages and hamlets, including some adjacent to U.S. strongpoints.

Despite a series of major battles and skirmishes which left more than 3,800 dead by American body count, the Viet Cong main force and guerrilla strength is still estimated by U.S. military men at about 80,000.

Millions of dollars worth of helicopters and armored river boats have been committed to increase mobility, but the 9,000 men of the 2nd and 3rd brigades of the 9th still find that most of the initiative rests with the Communists in the American sectors. In almost every case the Viet Cong continue to pick the time and place of battle.

DISCREDITED

ATLANTA (AP)—The manager of the Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp. reports that a loan applicant filled in the space asking for reason for the loan with the following: "I need a $100 loan in order to file a bankruptcy petition." The loan was refused—a credit check wasn't even necessary.

U.S. officers believe, in short, that the only two American brigades committed to the delta altered the battle equation not at all. This was not unexpected.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, has called the delta an "insatiable sponge" that could soak up and tie down huge numbers of American troops in uncertain battle. Three Vietnamese divisions are in the delta. Westmoreland has the overwhelming bulk of his 486,000 men in the provinces north of Saigon.

Westmoreland also differs sharply with the prediction that the war will be decided in the delta—an idea frequently voiced in the early years of the conflict. He believes the central highlands, the area between Saigon and the highlands and, to a lesser degree, the northern provinces near the demilitarized zone are the keys to victory.

The chief reason for even a limited commitment in the delta appears to have been for protection of Saigon's once dangerously soft underbelly and the road links which move delta rice and other foodstuffs to the capital. The delta also has six million of South Vietnam's 17 million persons.

PLAY FOR SYMPATHY — She looks like any little girl taking care of a younger member of the family. But the fact is that she's one of the more successful beggars in Saigon and the baby is rented by the day from its mother. The eight-year-old works the area around the Rex Hotel where high-ranking American officers live. Though most know her story, they find it hard to resist giving her a coin. (AP Wirephoto)

Opines People Need 'Shaking'

NEW YORK (AP)—Shaking up people, even if they don't like it, is the function of religion, says Rabbi Balfour Brickner, an official of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, who adds: "As soon as a church goes into a suburb, it is essentially in the midst of a conformity which masks all kinds of social problems and unpleasantities . . . But when the church starts to do its job, to tear away the veneer, people dislike it."

Evans-Novak . . .

(Continued From Page 4) high - riding Fiat Company of Italy, informed friends both in the Administration and in Congress that he fully understood the conflict between East - West trade and the war in Vietnam. His company, he said, had made final plans to buy between 23 and 27 million dollars of the machine tools here in the U. S., without Ex - Im bank credits. The balance will be purchased in Western Europe and possibly Japan.

The irony is that purchase of the entire $50 million here would have been an asset in the U. S. balance of payments, one of the most critical issues facing the President today.

Credit Card Not For Paying Tax

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The State Tax Commission says credit cards may not be used for paying state taxes. Chairman Ransom Quinn says there is considerable pressure from banks to permit use of the cards on the theory that banks guarantee the payments.

He says the state wouldn't gain anything by accepting credit card payments.

State Of The Union Message Awaited Tonight

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson gives the nation tonight his formula for balancing the financial demands of the Vietnam war against the need to curb crime in the streets and to rehabilitate riot-breeding city slums.

The President is expected to reiterate in his nationally televised State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress that he is exploring every avenue that might lead to peace.

But advance indications were that North Vietnam's latest state conditions for opening peace talks—a halt in U.S. bombing of the North and "other acts of aggression"—still was under exhaustive examination.

To an election-year Congress already breathing fire about any increase in spending, the President is expected to disclose that expenditures will be $11 billion higher—possibly a little more—for administrative purposes than in the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Republicans are prepared to respond at once to Johnson's proposals. GOP congressional leaders have slated a news conference for one-half hour after Johnson concludes his speech, and eight Republican governors will jointly discuss the message with newsmen Thursday morning.

A new "unified" budget, taking into account for the first time income and outgo from huge government trust funds, was said to be geared to a "significant drop" below the $18 billion or $19 billion deficit for this year.

Sources reported Tuesday the total spending program definitely will be below $190 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Administrative spending—the basis most commonly used before the advent of the unified budget—was said to run between $145 billion and $150 billion, compared with the current fiscal year total of between $136 billion and $137 billion.

The expected deficit would include receipts from a proposed 10 per cent income surtax which Congress shelved last year and which key members predicted won't be enacted this session unless there's an equalized reduction in spending.

With Vietnam war costs expected to rise another $4 billion, Johnson obviously is faced with a need to alter the capitol hill atmosphere if he hopes for acceptance of social welfare programs calling for expensive outlays.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted a safe-streets bill will be high on the list of presidential recommendations.

Mansfield said that when the Senate can untangle itself from a prospective Southern filibuster against a pending civil-rights bill, a housing measure is likely to be the next order of business.

Administration sources predicted the President would support a bill aimed at providing funds for low-income families in urban slums to build their own homes, with the government subsidizing interest charges above three per cent. The issue of funding rent supplements and the antipoverty program will have to be fought out again.

There are reports Johnson will ask for some changes in a higher education bill, to provide aid for lower-middle-income families in financing their children's schooling.

Proposals for child health care for new and expectant mothers may be presented.

The President also has indicated he thinks private industry should do more to make jobs available to slum residents. Tax incentives may be suggested in this field.

In the area of curbing crime, Rep. Richard H. Poff, R-Va., predicted Johnson will drop his opposition to court-controlled wiretapping except in national security cases. Poff heads a Republican task force on this issue.

Tobacco Forum Is Rescheduled For January 20

"Tobacco Forum," a two-hour live special broadcast originally scheduled on WNCN-TV Saturday, January 13, (7:00-9:00 a.m.) has been re-scheduled for Saturday, January 20 (7:00-9:00 a.m.).

Icy roads and freezing temperatures last week in Eastern North Carolina, forced the postponement. "Tobacco Forum" will explore tobacco marketing situation which was described by some in 1967 as chaotic.

A distinguished group of experts from various phases of the tobacco industry will be questioned by a panel of farm news journalists and broadcasters.

A pending anticrime bill would authorize federal grants to train and equip local police, as Johnson proposed last year. But it goes beyond that to propose legalizing certain wiretapping operations, removing some restrictions on police questioning of witnesses and making voluntary confessions admissible as court evidence.

Johnson is expected to urge the passage of consumer protection legislation, such as the interest disclosure bill the House may take up later this month. He also probably will push for action on a natural gas pipeline safety measure and a safe bridges bill.

The international monetary situation, which has found the British devaluing the pound and instituting an austerity budget, will focus congressional interest on the President's suggestions for attacking the international exchange balance of payments problem.

Johnson may offer several alternatives for reducing tourism which takes dollars out of the country and increases the deficit. Congress appears cool to a proposed head tax on tourists going abroad but might find a selective excise tax on travel tickets more to its liking.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which must grapple with both this issue and the surtax, will have to give attention later on to the controversial question of foreign trade agreements. Reciprocal trade agreements act expired last year and there is no presidential authority to initiate new trade agreements.

But Johnson must send to Congress the results of the Kennedy round of trade negotiations last year. These include controversial agreements to eliminate the American selling of chemicals and some other products.

Any trade bill is likely to be hit in the Senate with a flood of amendments to place import quota restrictions on textiles, oil, steel and a score of other products.

Benny Goodman, Sidemen Recall Carnegie Concert

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Benny Goodman gave a dinner party Tuesday night in the roof garden of his apartment house and the main course was lively reminiscence.

Among the 100 guests were 13 who performed with "Benny Goodman and His Swing Orchestra" exactly 30 years ago on the stage of Carnegie Hall.

Carnegie now is the scene of rock 'n' roll concerts and country-western song fests, but in those days the stately hall knew only classical music.

Cornetist Bobby Hackett, who did a guest solo with the band at that Jan. 16, 1938, concert, said, "We were all scared and nervous. I was just completely awed to step on a stage where all the greatest famous artists had been. And I was awed by Benny too. He was an idol of mine. He still is."

Goodman recalled, "It was a press agent's dream, going into Carnegie. I was rather reluctant to do it, even though Paul Whiteman had given a concert there."

He was interrupted by jazz historian John Hammond, "That was symphonic jazz. He had a bunch of strings."

Goodman went on, "I tried to get Bea Lillie to tell a couple of jokes, for variety. She declined. I get nervous now when I play a concert. But I don't think I was then."

Drummer Gene Krupa recalled, "It was our regular 14-piece band. In the second half we had some guests appear. I remember it as a pretty thrilling night. I thought that the band played exceptionally well, with a very eager sound."

Martha Tilton, who was Goodman's vocalist in 1938 and sang at Carnegie, greeted old friends, "I came in from Los Angeles especially for this party. I wouldn't have missed it for the world. Benny wrote me a letter, 'Would you believe it has been

Charge Boy With Taking Wallet

William T. Staton, 18, of Route 1, Jarratt, Va., was charged with larceny following an 11:20 p.m. incident on Ninth Street near the Dickinson Avenue intersection yesterday.

Police said Staton allegedly took a wallet containing $86 from George W. Jordan, 313 West Second St.

Chief H. F. Lawson said the wallet and money were recovered.

Holding 'Male' Beauty Pageant

FARMVILLE—A "Male" Miss America Beauty Contest will be held at H.B. Sugg High School Jan. 25 at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

The program will be held to raise money for band uniforms. Participants are the male faculty members of H.B. Sugg School.

30 years?"

Asked what he remembered, vibraphonist Lionel Hampton said, "I'll tell you that even before that concert, Goodman was the first to have Negro and white musicians playing together. One time in Texas the police said Negro and white couldn't go on the same stage together. The band wouldn't go on until finally they let us all go on. After we played, the ovation must have lasted about an hour."

Mount Shines In Purdue Win; Murphy In A Loss

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

This could well be the year of the sophomore in college basketball. Rick Mount of Purdue and Calvin Murphy of Niagara are two of the best.

The 6-foot-3 Mount and the 5-10 Murphy demonstrated their talents to a high degree Tuesday night as midyear exams cut activity to a minimum. None of The Associated Press Top Ten teams saw action.

Mount threw in 33 points to lead Purdue in an 89-60 romp over Indiana at Lafayette, Ind. Murphy tallied 36 in a losing cause as DePaul whipped Niagara 79-72 at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

In other major games, all home court victories, Wisconsin edged Michigan State 79-68. Northwestern downed Minnesota 77-71. Cincinnati defeated Bradley 77-66. Bowling Green beat Kent State 77-60 and Rhode Island routed Vermont 92-65. On the road Dartmouth humbled Harvard 65-60 and Texas A&M squeaked past Texas 88-87.

Mount got his 33 points against Indiana on 10 field goals and 13 of 15 free throws. Murphy scored his 36 against DePaul on 16 two-pointers and four of five free throws.

Murphy had a hot second half with 22 points, leading fast breaks and stealing several DePaul passes. To thwart him, the Blue Demons, leading by 75-70 with five minutes left, went into a freeze to keep the ball away from Murphy as much as possible.

Rick Roberson's 23 points paced Cincinnati over Bradley, but the Bearcats lost Gordie Smith for the remainder of the season. He suffered an ankle injury in the second half and is scheduled to undergo surgery today.

Terry Gamber's 24 points led Northwestern's Big Ten leaders over Minnesota. Walt Piatkowski got 28 in leading Bowling Green over Kent.

As for Lew Alcindor, 7-1½ star of UCLA's unbeaten national champions, Coach Johnny Wooden announced he will not play against Portland Thursday night. It still is questionable whether he will be recovered sufficiently from the injury to his left eyeball to play against Houston Saturday night.

Pipers Blow Chance To Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh Pipers blew an opportunity to take sole possession of first place in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division Tuesday night, but it wasn't Connie Hawkins' fault.

Hawkins scored a club high of 45 points in the Pipers' 107-106 defeat by Kentucky. Pittsburgh remains in a virtual tie with Minnesota—the Muskies are ahead on percentage points—which lost to Denver 111-94.

In the only other ABA game, Dallas turned back Oakland 119-112.

In the National Basketball Association Tuesday, Cincinnati topped San Francisco 148-121. Seattle beat Baltimore 142-116 and Chicago took San Diego 123-110.

Hawkins put the Pipers ahead 106-105 with 19 seconds left but Jim Ligon's layup with four seconds left won the game for Kentucky. Darel Carrier led the Colonels with 37 points.

Larry Jones led Denver with 29 points as the Rockets easily outdistanced the Muskies, taking a 33-22 first-quarter lead and coasting home. Mel Daniels topped the Minnesota scorers with 25 points.

Dallas won its eighth game in nine starts while handing Oakland its fifth straight setback. Player-coach Cliff Hagan of the Chaparrals hit on four baskets in the final three minutes after the game was tied 106-104.

Maurice McHartley topped the Chaps with 28 points and Hagan added 27. Jim Hadnot was high for the Oaks with 28.

Angel Executive Set As KC Veep

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Cedric Tallis, a 20-year baseball veteran who watched over every construction step of Anaheim Stadium for the California Angels, is expected to be named today as executive vice president of Kansas City's 1969 American League expansion franchise.

Ewing Kauffman, owner of the new club, said the executive vice president and board of directors named Tuesday must agree on both a director of player personnel and a field manager, "but otherwise he will run the show."

Fred Haney, Angels general manager, hired Tallis as business manager immediately after the Angels were granted a franchise in December, 1960.

Haney gave Kauffman permission to contact Tallis.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before last Saturday's regionally televised Southern Conference basketball game against Davidson, West Virginia coach Bucky Waters called the Wildcats "the team I consider, next to UCLA, the most talented in the country."

If Waters had in mind an improvement in the play of the Mountaineers, who had lost four of their five previous games, he succeeded. They rallied from a 16-point deficit in the second half and finally overcame the Wildcats 89-86 in overtime.

Tonight the Mountaineers play host to Pitt in a nonconference scrap, and the Panthers don't figure to be in the same league with Davidson. West Virginia should go above the .500 mark—the Mountaineers now are 6-6.

In the only other action tonight for a conference team, Furman takes its 8-7 over-all record to Georgia Tech.

As vice president in charge of operations, the 53-year-old Tallis was a guiding force in bringing about the club's contract with Anaheim and in all stadium details. The Anaheim stadium is considered one of the best in the game, with an unobstructed view from three levels.

Tallis also will be involved with a new stadium here. Voters have approved $43 million for separate baseball and football stadiums, to be covered by a movable roof on rails.

Kauffman was named owner by the league six days ago. Charles O. Finley's Athletics were given permission in October to move to Oakland for the 1968 season.

Prc Gridders Using Computer In Draft

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Those All-American hotshots and many unsung football graduates of the 1967 collegiate season don't know it, but they are rattling around right now in a postseason classic you could call the Computer Bowl.

Typical of the vast talent search now a prime factor in pro football's golden business, a final screening of standout college seniors is being conducted here by Blesto-V.

Blesto-V stands for the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions, Philadelphia Eagles, Pittsburgh Steelers and Minnesota Vikings.

The TO stands for Talent Organization. It was tacked on the original code name before the Vikings were added to the group which is one of three scouting networks snooping in behalf of the NFL's current 15-club array.

Blesto-V opened a three-day session Tuesday with club officials scanning the ratings of some 1,600 players as assembled by 12 talent appraisers and abetted by computer calculations.

This is a final boning up for a historic combined player draft by the National and American football leagues at New York Jan. 30.

After the top choices, it's the luck of the draw and the sagacity of the sharpest scouting devised by man or machine as the 26 clubs make 17 picks.

For Blesto-V, a computer system is fed numbered ratings on all phases of play and potential at any given position and produces a comprehensive record on each scouted player.

The whole idea of the scouting networks is to give each club a work list when Commissioner Pete Rozelle opens the draft grab-bag Jan. 30.

Obviously, the name players soon will be depleted. Therefore, each club needs a solid book on many unheralded players who may have pro potential.

Another scout combine includes the Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers and Dallas Cowboys. The third, and largest, represents the Cleveland Browns, Baltimore Colts, St. Louis Cardinals, Green Bay Packers, New York Giants, Washington Redskins, Atlanta Falcons and New Orleans Saints.

Bengals Banking On Burnett's Leg

By HAL BOCK
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals are on their way. Now, if Paul Brown's Midas touch only can turn Bobby Burnett's shattered right leg into a healthy limb.

Burnett was the top name among 20 Eastern players selected Tuesday by head coach and owner Brown to stock the American Football League's newest franchise. Brown's 20 Western selections were to be announced today.

Burnett, the AFL's rookie of the year in 1966 with the Buffalo Bills, suffered torn ligaments and a broken right leg in mid-season 1967 and gained only 96 yards rushing.

Brown is taking a chance that Burnett can overcome his injury and return to top form. He's also taking a shot in the dark on another Eastern choice, Boston's Joe Bellino.

Used almost exclusively on kickoff and punt returns with the Patriots, Bellino has never achieved in pro football the star status he enjoyed during his collegiate days at Navy.

In addition to Bellino, the Patriots surrendered halfback J.

D. Garrett, defensive tackle Jim Boudreaux and defensive back Ron Hall.

Gary Bugenhagen, Buffalo's No. 4 draft pick last season and an All-American at Syracuse, heads the Eastern linemen chosen by the Bengals.

Cincinnati took linebacker Danny Brabham, a former No. 1 draft choice, and tightened Bob Poole from Houston, and grabbed two centers—Jim Wasikiewicz and John Matlock—from New York.

The Bengals chose from lists of 11 exposed players supplied by eight AFL teams. Miami, an expansion club two years ago, was exempted from the draft.

Bart Starr Is TV Football Fanatic

NEW YORK (AP) — Bart Starr, No. 1 matinee idol of the nation's arm-chair football buffs, made a confession today—he's a football television fanatic himself.

"When I'm not busy playing or practicing, I plant myself in front of the screen and watch until I'm half-blind," the star quarterback of the Green Bay Packers said.

"I watch anything, connected with football — high school games, college, pros, afternoon, morning and night, it makes no difference. I love it."

"A strange thing, too. I become a fan. I don't second-guess. I seldom criticize. I just sit there and enjoy it."

Starr, in town to accept his second straight sports car from Sport Magazine as the outstanding player of the Super Bowl game, admitted that three of his favorites are Johnny Unitas, quarterback of the rival Baltimore Colts; Joe Namath, passing star of the New York Jets, and Gale Sayers, the Chicago Bears' speed merchant.

"Of course, Unitas is a close friend but I admire him greatly," the Packer signal-caller said. "Sayers fascinates me—that fellow can really run—and as for Namath, what a passer he is. If he had two good legs, the only way they could stop him would be to put him in jail."

Foreign Investments Curb Poses Big Problems

EDITOR'S NOTE: American corporations, spreading their investments around the globe, face a $1 billion cutback this year in their foreign expansion plans under President Johnson's moves to reduce the U.S. balance of payments deficit. The Singer Co. is one of the firms which does more business abroad than at home. Singer is used here to illustrate the problems the foreign investments hold down poses for U.S. multinational corporations.

By GEORGE TAYLOR
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the scores of American corporations falling under President Johnson's foreign investment clampdown says overseas operations are economic necessities. An American firm's foreign plants or subsidiaries generate funds which eventually produce tax revenues for the United States, says Donald G. Robbins Jr., president of The Singer Co. Singer, with 68 manufacturing or research facilities in 29 countries, comes squarely under the President's New Year's Day directive designed to hold down the amount of money American firms invest abroad.

President Johnson invoked mandatory restrictions on most direct investments abroad by American corporations as part of an overall program to reduce the nation's dollar drain which he estimated at $3.5 billion to $4 billion in 1967. American business has been involved in a voluntary program of restraint on overseas investment for the past three years.

The dollar drain, or balance of payments deficit, stems basically from the United States spending more abroad in many different ways than it receives. The deficit has resulted in foreign nations piling up dollars which they could turn in for gold from the U.S. dwindling gold supply.

Singer's case illustrates the money puzzles presented corporations by the tightened rules.

Foreign sales accounted for more than 51 per cent of Singer's $1.049 billion sales of sewing machines and other home and industrial products in 1966. Of $983.3 million in assets, Singer has $308.5 million invested abroad.

Singer's investments overseas are part of the billions American industry has spread around the globe.

At the end of 1966, American corporations had $54.6 billion in foreign assets, up a whopping $22.8 billion in six years. With industry's growing worldwide commitments, the figure for 1967 will be higher.

One leading business publisher, McGraw-Hill, said American corporations already had trimmed $1 billion from their foreign investment plans for 1968 prior to the President's announcement.

McGraw-Hill said American corporations had cut to $8.4 billion from $9.4 billion their investment plans for new plants and equipment for 1968, apparently due to economic slow-downs. In 1967, McGraw-Hill estimates U.S. firms invested $8.6 billion in new plants and equipment abroad.

The President's program is aimed at cutting $1 billion from American corporation's foreign investments in 1968.

Singer treasurer Robbins said his firm had been bringing into the United States from $20 million to $40 million a year from foreign assets—income which is taxable in the United States.

The regulations "won't stop our growth," says Robbins, who once headed his company's European division.

"They won't change our plans but they will change the financing of those plans and make them more expensive," he said in an interview.

Robbins sees American industry turning increasingly to foreign sources for funds to finance overseas growth since the outflow of American dollars will dwindle. These borrowing rates are rising, he said.

In the first week after the President's announcement, three American corporations announced plans to raise $75 million abroad. Others followed.

The more investment overseas, the more sales and the more potential revenue returned to the United States as a balance of payments aid, other economists say.

"There is some feeling in Europe against the so-called American take-over, especially where plants are closed after being bought by Americans," said one economist. "Europeans are very sensitive about that."

There's also some feeling in Europe that there's a technology gap and that the multinational corporation may prevent the Europeans from doing as much as they might," he said. "I don't think that's a fact but there's that feeling."

On the other hand, foreign investments in this country are slight by comparison. At the end of 1966, these investments totaled $9 billion, up from $3.4 billion in 1950. Much of this is in paper, petrochemicals and metals.

Robbins lists these key reasons for U.S. firms operating foreign plants: "substantially different"—meaning lower wage rates; shorter and cheaper supply routes to foreign markets; a difference in Singer's more sophisticated U.S.-made model sewing machines and its simpler foreign-made ones; and, in some cases, more stringent foreign governmental import controls.

After World War II, emerging nations presented Singer with a choice of "either manufacturing in a country or getting out there we had been selling there for years," said Robbins.

In other cases, it's not profitable to supply household sewing machines to foreign nations from the United States, he said. "American labor is the most productive in the world," he said, but factory wages in some areas outside the United States "are substantially lower by several times." Singer and its competition operate in some of these spots.

In a statement immediately after the President's action, Singer said it didn't relish additional controls but "we believe that the strength of the dollar is the overriding consideration and support the President in this program."

Big Railroad Merger Is Today 'Almost Routine'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Big as it is, the impending merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads into a $4.35-billion colossus is almost routine as mergers go today. It is the marriage of two of the same species and it follows a long engagement.

Consider, however, some of the big mergers or proposals of the past couple of years: cigarettes and whisky, telecommunications and car rentals, aerospace products and meat packing, auto parts and film making—all vastly different species.

Now consider also the speed with which these mergers took place: in weeks instead of the six years it has taken the Pennsy and Central to obtain parental approval from the government following their announcement of intentions.

It is a rare day, in fact, when two important corporations do not announce intentions. On the very day the Supreme Court cleared the way for the Penn-Central merger, for example, a food company proposed to a shirt manufacturer.

As a result, business news pages have taken on a society page look. So routine have merger announcements become that a stranger to this world might assume that the business of business is to merge.

There is often a primitive quality about these unions, with the management of an acquired company often fighting and kicking and resisting the marriage right up to the time stockholders approve it.

It is clear then that the coming marriage of the Pennsy and Central, although more than 74 months in the works and involving 40,000 miles of track, 127,000 shareholders and 106,000 employees, is conventional if not routine.

In this day and age of mergers, and 1966 and 1967 were the most active in many years. The testaments of some corporations spread out into hundreds of industries. If graphically depicted, in fact, they would resemble the route made of the Penn-Central.

Litton Industries, whose phenomenal growth from sales of $8.7 million in 1955 to well over $1 billion last year was accomplished largely through mergers, has so many different products and services that it takes close to 1,000 words for Standard & Poor's business directory to list and describe them.

Its 80,000 or so employees work at close to 200 plants, laboratories and offices in at least 30 states, the District of Columbia and 24 foreign countries.

This new species of corporation is impossible to name with the old terms. It is not just a retailer, wholesaler, manufacturer, researcher, food maker, steel manufacturer. It is all these rolled into one and so is identified by the term conglomerate.

But even within the conglomerate category there are refinements, if the term may be used.

'Temperament' Not Dead Among Actors

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The antics of Peter Sellers on the set of his current movie have brought the movie capital to the realization that star temperament is not dead after all.

In recent times it was generally believed that the rigid economics of the new Hollywood had ruled out the explosions of ego and temper that have been part of the local scene since Gloria Swanson and Pola Negri feuded at Paramount in the 1920s.

"Producers simply won't put up with recalcitrant actors," said one observer. "The film companies can't afford to lose shooting time because a performer is sulking in his dressing room."

But now Sellers is proving that stars can still indulge in fits of temper and get away with it. He is now filming a hippie epic, "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas," at Warner Bros.-Seven Arts, and reports of his didos have been circulating the town.

According to witnesses, the British comic consistently arrives late so the company often gets few shots before lunch; screamed at Oscar winner Jo Van Fleet; screamed at the script clerk for wearing purple, which Sellers considers an unlucky color on a film set; screamed at the film's publicity man and other workers; threatened to interrogate the entire crew to discover who was circulating stories that he was screaming at people. Sellers has declined comment on the reports.

Such reports are relished by the movie crowd, which is delighted to learn that the human element—and actors can be intensely human—still reigns in Hollywood. The death knell for temperament seemed to have been sounded last year when Judy Garland was fired from "Valley of the Dolls" and replaced with Susan Hayward. Miss Garland's inability to appear on time for her scenes prompted an impatient response from 20th Century-Fox.

"I think that was a mistake," observes a veteran film director. "I've had my share of headaches with stars, but sometimes you have to put up with their eccentricities and nurse them along. A personality like Judy Garland comes along once in a lifetime, and a studio should cherish such a star and do everything possible to get a performance from her."

"It was the same with Marlier last picture because she was always late and couldn't remember her lines. But Marilyn was always like that. Billy Wilder put up with her behavior on 'Some Like It Hot' and got classic performance."

Today's bosses are not likely to listen to such an argument. The keynote of production now is efficiency, and that means completing a film with as much dispatch as is consistent with quality. Workman-like actors are selected for films in preference to those with a reputation for delaying films.

Director Robert Aldrich explains "I had 17 actors in 'The Dirty Dozen,' and 16 of them were cooperative. The other one came late, claimed he was tired, didn't know his lines, wanted to go home early. What could I do—fire him and call it 'the Dirty 11'?"

"No, I nursed him along and finished the picture. I've had him in seven pictures before, but I'll tell you this: I'll never hire him again."

Of course, directors do put up with actors' temperament nowadays—when the actor is a top star. None of the 20 major stars belongs to any studio. So they can't be disciplined, as Louis B. Mayer did with Judy Garland when she was chronically late to "Annie Get Your Gun." Betty Hutton replaced her.

We care

how many ribs in a pork loin rib portion?

We think there should be seven.

Not five or six.

With A&P's seven-rib portion, you get more of the select meat.

How can you tell how many ribs you're getting?

It's easy.

With your fingers, you can feel and count the rib bones in the package.

Next time you're buying a Pork Loin Rib Portion, check it.

If you can't count one, two, three, four, five, six, seven ribs, you're missing select meat.

You're not getting the best value for your meat dollar.

Seven-Rib Pork Loin Portions are just one example of the full value A&P meats offer.

We think that caring like this about fair portions has helped make A&P

America's largest meat retailer.

When you think about it, shouldn't A&P be your store?

Hopes To Breed Better Police Dog With Wolf

By PATRICK DUNN
Kansas City Star

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Neighborhood vandals give a wide berth to William D. Gilmer's house.

Maybe it's because of that timber wolf in the back yard.

Gilmer, a major in the Kansas City Police Department, plans to breed the wolf with a German shepherd dog to create a better animal for police canine patrols.

He hopes the shepherd-wolf pups will grow taller, heavier, faster, more powerful and more alert than the shepherd and Doberman pinscher dogs now being used.

"I'd like to breed an animal which possesses the acute sense of danger of a wolf," Gilmer said, "but yet has the training and handling ability of a domestic dog."

Finding a timber wolf wasn't easy.

"It's nearly impossible to obtain a wolf for a pet in the United States," said the police officer.

"In the United States, wolves have become nearly extinct and are protected by stringent conservation laws."

"But I learned that in Canada the laws still consider wolves as predatory beasts, as animals which are exterminated when they are found."

After many inquiries, Gilmer received a month-old wolf pup from a Canadian conservation officer who found it in a den some 200 miles north of Winnipeg.

When the wolf arrived via air freight, "it was a little bundle of silky fur," he recalled. "It weighed about four pounds."

Now named Shanty, it weighs in today at 100 pounds of muscle and sharp fangs. And it's only 10 months old.

Gilmer erected a doghouse in his back yard and also dug a wolf den where Shanty spends his time during extremely cold or hot weather.

"I've asked my neighbors if they were bothered by howling noises, and they said they weren't," Gilmer said.

"Shanty seems to have a natural instinct to love and tolerate children," he said.

"Once I caught two neighborhood children, one riding on Shanty's back and the other pulling his tail—and the wolf wasn't upset."

Shanty eats nearly three times the food required for a German shepherd.

But there's good news for potential wolf owners. The beasts are instinctively housebroken.

English Used By Official India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Communist China, Russia and France correspond with India in their own languages, attaching English translations, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told Parliament.

All other countries correspond in English, she added.

The Indian government sends all its replies in English, except formal communications like letters of credence and letters of recall, which are sent in Hindi with English translations.

Prime Minister Gandhi rejected a demand by some members of Parliament that all communications be sent only in Hindi.

"It will not be feasible to correspond with foreign governments in Hindi in the foreseeable future," she said, because of "the prevailing shortage of personnel who can express themselves in Hindi with the requisite precision and facility and secondly, the difficulty in sending translations in the recipient's language on account of insufficient knowledge of Hindi in foreign countries."

The Indian parliament has just passed a law giving English the status of an associate national language in any Indian state that so desires.

Communist Has Praise For Bible

MOSCOW (AP) — A Communist literary critic, A. Kashdan, reviewer for the Soviet atheist journal, Science and Religion, says a Polish version of the Old Testament newly translated into Russian is a "majestic literary monument on the level of the Iliad and Odyssey."

He adds that the Bible is based on "historical truth" and has "positive value." Further, he hailed the appearance of the Russian version as a "break in the conspiracy of silence" which had previously relegated the Old Testament to oblivion in Russia. The volume quickly became a top seller.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry market prices were unsettled today. Price of live poultry at farms 12½ to 13 cents per pound, mostly 12½.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a moderate loss in heavy trading early this afternoon.

Declines among individual stocks exceeded advances by about 150 issues.

Volume in the first two hours topped 5 million shares. At the peak of trading, the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape lagged by one minute in reporting floor transactions.

Brokers said there were indications of apprehension among investors over possible stock market reaction to proposals in President Johnson's State of the Union message to be delivered tonight.

But they added that the sharp 1967 fourth quarter rise in the gross national product to a record annual rate should be a favorable factor.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon had fallen 2.60 to 884.54.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was down 1.3 to 320.0 with industrials off 2.0, rails off .8 and utilities off .2.

Steels, motors, rubbers, aircrafts, electronics, chemicals, rails, building materials and drugs were mostly lower.

Farm implements, oils and tobaccos advanced.

Gold mining shares advanced after the London market experienced its heaviest gold trading this year.

Eastman Kodak fell more than 2 points after announcing a record $237 million budget for domestic capital outlay this year.

New York Central Railroad dropped 2 points and Pennsylvania Railroad lost more than 1.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Survey Site For Nuclear Plant

SOUTHPORT, N. C. (AP) — A site along the Cape Fear River between Southport and Sunny Point is under study by Carolina Power and Light Co. as the location of a $200 million nuclear generating plant.

Company officials headed by president Shearon Harris made the announcement Tuesday night at a dinner sponsored by the Brunswick County Resources Development Commission.

Harris told the group if the firm approves Brunswick County site the initial investment in the county will exceed $200 million. He said that as power demands of eastern North Carolina grow a similar additional investment will be made later if the site proves capable of such development.

P. S. Colby, vice president in charge of operating and engineering for the power company, said the plant would begin operation by the mid 1970s when CP&L expects its customers to be using twice as much electricity as today.

The company officials said construction forces for the project would total more than 600 men and between 60 and 80 men would work in the completed plant.

The plant would use water from the Cape Fear River for cooling, and this would make it necessary for it to get the approval of the North Carolina Water and Air Resources Board to use the river water. It also would have to obtain a construction permit from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Harris stressed that CP&L's activity at the Brunswick site is exploratory for the present and the company is continuing preliminary studies of other sites.

Utilities . . .

(Continued from page 1) to establish a reasonably fair priority in restoring service," he explained, "we did make an effort to maintain service to the hospital and nursing home . . . as best we could to give priority to information services which we hoped would keep the people informed." Commercial establishments needed to supply food, clothing, fuel oils and gasolines were also given priority, he indicated, as were dairies, hog parlors, and commercial chicken establishments in rural areas.

"Many of the repairs have been temporary," the director continued, "and as soon as all services have been restored, we will go about the job of putting things on a more permanent basis." This will in some areas, require some short interruptions of service, but he said, these will be kept to a minimum.

Linwood Langley, Carolina Telephone Co. manager in Greenville, said "we still have roughly 400 telephones out of service."

He said workmen cleared up about 275 telephones yesterday and had an additional 225 reported out yesterday.

Langley noted that all long distance service should be restored by Wednesday afternoon.

The manager said persons who have not reported their telephones as being out of order should do so.

Temperatures yesterday reached a high of 44 degrees with a low of 29 reported by the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station.

At 8 a.m. today the temperature stood at 24 degrees. The Tar River level was 13.8 feet this morning and is rising.

Pitt County Civil Defense director J. H. Rose said today that a meeting of officials from all Pitt County towns and representatives from Robersonville, Kinston, Windsor and Washington will be held in Greenville Thursday morning to review and assess damage caused by last week's storm.

Rose indicated that officials of the state Civil Defense agency from Raleigh, as well as area CD commander Col. David Spivey of Washington, will meet with the municipal officers for the purpose of assessing damages and making application for possible money with which to help restore municipally owned properties, including power transmission systems.

The meeting is scheduled for 11 a.m. at the Greenville city hall.

Roberts . . .

"I believe this system will be a great step forward in the administration of justice in North Carolina, and although maybe not perfect, it will be recognized as the equal of the judicial system of any state, and a far step above the court systems of many states. It is generally so recognized by most North Carolina lawyers."

Roberts attended Cumberland, National and George Washington Universities and holds the LL.B. and LL.M. degrees.

He is licensed to practice in North Carolina, the District of Columbia and before the U. S. Supreme Court. He is a member of the N. C. Bar Association and the N. C. State Bar, the American Bar Association and American Trial Lawyers Association. He is a member and former president of the Pitt and the Third District Bar Associations.

In addition to being a former Greenville judge, he is a former solicitor of Greene County Court and a former special assistant U. S. District attorney.

Roberts is a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, a lay speaker and district director of Methodist Men.

He is a Scottish Rite and York Rite Mason, Shriner, and R. O. J. and chairman of the committee on Oxford Orphanage. He is also a member of the Moose, Elks, and Redmen.

His first wife, Jane O. Ross of Pamlico County, who he married in 1928, died in 1960. They had four children J. R. Roberts, now on the Appalachian faculty; Eugene Ross Roberts of Wilson with Ohio Casualty Co.; R. P. Roberts, ECU student and Carole Jane Roberts a student at Appalachian. Roberts is now married to the former Lucille Ballard.

Morgan Says Medical Schools 'In Trouble'

DURHAM (AP) — State Sen. Robert Morgan says North Carolina's two privately-supported medical schools are in financial trouble and may need state support to help solve the shortage of doctors.

The General Assembly should consider helping Duke University Medical School at Durham and the Bowman Gray Medical School in Winston-Salem, which is affiliated with Wake Forest University, Morgan said.

The state's other medical school, at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, is state-supported.

Morgan, a Democrat from Lillington, addressed a civic club in Durham Tuesday and then was questioned by a newsman about the medical schools.

He said reports to the State Legislative Commission indicate the Duke and Bowman Gray schools are in financial straits.

Later in the day, Dr. W. G. Anlyan, dean of the Duke Medical Center, said the Duke school is losing $6,725 a year per medical student, or $26,900 for the four-year course. He also said the school had reported to the legislative commission that its service to indigent patients is costing $1.4 million more a year than collections.

Morgan said the financial situation is equally as bad at Bowman Gray.

He said that from Durham to the coast of North Carolina there are fewer doctors per person than in any other part of the country, and termed the infant death rate "astounding."

Auditions For Band Clinic Set At ECU On Saturday

Saturday, students representing 50 North Carolina high schools will gather at East Carolina University to audition for the Eastern Division of the North Carolina All-State Band Clinic.

Cities expected to participate in the clinic are: Ahoskie, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Elm City, Farmville, Goldsboro, Greenville, Jacksonville, Kinston, Morehead City, New Bern, Pikesville, Plymouth, Roanoke Rapids, Robersonville, Rocky Mount, Washington, Williamston, Wilmington, Windsor and Wilson.

Students auditioning are required to play six major scales, chromatic scale, a selected solo, and a short sight-reading.

The musicians will be judged by panels of three judges, consisting of members of the Eastern Division of North Carolina Band Directors.

The musicians selected will return to ECU on Feb. 9 to participate in the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic. Highlighting the weekend will be a concert with the Eastern Division All-State Bands participating.

SPECIAL MEETING

George Stancill, principal of the Sally Branch Elementary School, has called a special meeting for the parents Thursday night at 7:30 in the school library. Important business will be discussed.
