War's Reality Is Thrust On Population Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Six days of fighting in Saigon have thrust the reality of war upon a city population that for years escaped the horrors that occur every day in the blood-stained countryside of South Vietnam.

This was the face of Saigon Sunday afternoon:

A Vietnamese doctor shrugged his shoulders beside the bed of a dying 3-year-old boy lying sightless, his body a raw scar from stomach to forehead. The flamethrower that had scorched him killed his mother and father.

A nervous policeman raised his rifle at a dozen Vietnamese families that wandered to the park in front of the National Assembly building in the center of the city.

The weary men and women picked up their babies and bundles and struggled up the street toward the central market, homeless nomads in a city paralyzed by the war.

On the northwestern outskirts of the city, bulldozers gouged out a mass grave for Viet Cong soldiers who died in the assault on the capital. They were to be buried anonymously in a cemetery that holds the remains of French Legionnaires and the Vietnamese who fought beside them in the 1946-54 war.

Other gravediggers were at work in the National Cemetery, preparing for the elaborate official funeral of a Vietnamese colonel beheaded by the Viet Cong. Six other graves were being dug alongside for his wife and five children, machine-gunned beside him.

On the once fashionable boulevards in the center of town—rats scurried in man-high piles of garbage outside American officers' clubs.

A Vietnamese housewife hurried through police checkpoints during the brief lifting of the curfew, seeking food to replenish her larder. Food is available only on the black market and at three times normal prices.

Wounded civilians lie at least two in a bed at all hospitals. At Cho Ray, the biggest hospital in Vietnam, an old man wounded in both legs and the chest sprawls on the tile flooring because all the beds are full.

On a bed next to him are two badly burned men. In the children's ward, a young girl, her head swathed in bloody bandages, nestles on the bosom of her mother, who moans with similar wounds.

The homeless wander the city seeking shelter and food. The fearful crowd the grounds of hospitals, churches and pagodas.

Some already are trying to rebuild on the ruins. A shopkeeper who had lost everything was one of the few people in a block-long scene of destruction. He was trying to flatten the twisted tin roof on his house and replace it on the charred walls. The destruction that surrounded him was as total as in Berlin in 1945.

Warns Of Great Stakes For Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson called today for a "great new act of accommodation" between English and French Canadians and warned that without it Canada "may not endure."

"What is at stake in my opinion is not less than Canada's survival as a nation," Pearson said in an opening statement to the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

The conference will consider a government-backed charter of human rights to provide equality of opportunity for French Canadians everywhere in Canada. The constitutional change would ultimately guarantee French language and education rights in all provinces.

Pearson said most of the reasons for French-Canadian dissatisfaction with its place in Canada are "entirely justified." If the causes of dissatisfaction are not remedied "it could lead to separation and to the end of Confederation," he said.

Fresh Assault By Viet Cong In Saigon

Marines Beat Off Attack On Approach To Khe Sanh

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON, (AP) — U.S. Marines beat off 200 to 300 North Vietnamese troops attacking a hill overlooking the northwest fortress at Khe Sanh today. The Viet Cong opened a fresh heavy attack in Saigon while fighting continued in Hue and other targets of the Communist offensive against South Vietnamese cities.

Police reported about 400 Viet Cong overran a police substation in Saigon after nightfall and launched a heavy assault on a main police precinct in the city. The attacks came after allied officials reported the Communists would open a second big attack on the capital.

After 90 minutes of fighting, the Viet Cong had the main precinct in flames. The police abandoned it and headed for the center of Saigon. Police said they refrained from using heavy return fire because of the danger to the heavy population in the area.

It was too early to know whether the 3½-hour ground assault on Hill 861A, accompanied by a heavy artillery attack on other positions at Khe Sanh, was the start of the expected North Vietnamese offensive along the northern frontier. But the U.S. Command disclosed it had moved 3,500 paratroopers from the 101st Airborne Division to the northern sector "to be prepared for any contingency."

Since the first of the year, the U.S. Command has shifted about 15,000 Army troops to the northern sector to back up 40,000 Marines already there. Intelligence officers estimate at least 35,000 North Vietnamese troops are massed in the frontier region.

The North Vietnamese attacked a Marine company holding Hill 861A with Bangalore torpedoes, explosive charges and bazooka-type rockets. The hill is a bald patch of scarred earth that dominates the northwestern approach to the Khe Sanh Marine base three miles away.

AP correspondent John T. Wheeler, with the Marines at Khe Sanh, reported that the Leathernecks crushed the attack with the help of artillery and jet air strikes that sent the Communist assault waves reeling back.

Six North Vietnamese bodies were found inside the company's perimeter and about 150 more were just outside. The Marines also reported capturing two prisoners and 64 weapons. The company defending the hill reported seven Marines killed and 24 wounded.

Wheeler said that during the battle Communist gunners fired more than 300 rounds of rockets and artillery on the main Khe Sanh base 16 miles below the demilitarized zone, the airstrip and other hill positions three to six miles from the strip. Only a handful of men were reported wounded in these attacks.

A U.S. spokesman in Saigon said the assault "looks like a probing attack to test our defenses."

U.S. B52 bombers flew six raids Sunday and today in support of the 5,000 Marines at Khe Sanh, who face an estimated 20,000 North Vietnamese soldiers. U.S. commanders feel that if the Communists can push through Khe Sanh, they could move on through the Quang Tri and Cam Lo Valleys 30 miles into Quang Tri, capital of South Vietnam's northernmost province.

The U.S. Command said the Communists have lost 16,976 men killed since launching the cities campaign last Tuesday. It said 1,477 allied soldiers have been killed, 471 of them Americans.

Pitt Commissioners Give Tentative 'Yes' Mid-East Development Office Has Approval

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners today gave approval in principle to the establishment of a district office, with a full-time director, for the Mid-East Economic Development Commission.

The commissioners also promised financial support in their resolution by saying they would fund Pitt's pro-rata share of the expense of maintaining the office for the remainder of the fiscal year. The resolution also indicated the commissioners would consider providing financial support for the operation for the coming fiscal year when they prepare the county's 1968-69 fiscal year budget.

The Mid-East Economic Development Commission was formed last year as the result of the formation of the Coastal Plain Development Area in North and South Carolina and Georgia, by the federal government.

The Mid-East area includes Pitt, Beaufort, Bertie, Hyde, Washington and Martin counties and the commission to oversee the development is composed of four representatives from each of the counties.

The action taken by the Pitt board today was based on recommendations of the Mid-East commission.

According to Charles Horne of Greenville, one of Pitt's four representatives on the commission, the district office would be located in Washington. An estimated budget of $52,800 would be required to set up the office with a full-time director, Horne indicated.

Funds for support of the operations of the office would come from federal and county governments. The Economic Development Administration would supply 75 per cent of the money while the remaining 25 per cent of the cost would come from the six counties in the area.

Pitt's share of the expense would amount to $5,225.36 for the first year's operation, Horne said, based on a population of the county.

Purpose of the commission, Horne outlined, will be to promote the economic development for the entire six-county area. He said the office and its full-time director would act as "a clearing house for federal funds" coming into the area for economic development projects.

Commissioners also approved purchase of a bookkeeping machine for the County Auditor's office at a cost of $8,997.46. The machine replaces an old machine for which parts are no longer available.

Certificates of deposit with the First National Bank of Eastern North Carolina were approved. They included a certificate for $250,000 for four months at 5¼ per cent; an 8-month deposit of $500,000 at 5½ per cent; a 3 month note for $100,000 at 5 per cent and a one-month deposit certificate totaling $150,000 at 4½ per cent.

Reports from various county departments and agencies were also reviewed during this morning's session.

Welfare Department director Ted Gartman, reporting on office space and facilities now occupied by the department said they fall within guidelines set up recently by the State welfare agency with a few exceptions.

Gartman said the guidelines call for an outside sign "saying there is a welfare department inside . . . the building," and a standard directory on the wall telling persons coming to the building who is in which office. The director also cited the lack of adequate public toilet facilities as not meeting the guidelines.

Gartman also recommended that some type of fire alarm system be installed in the county office building. He said the 75 employees in the building on Johnston Street now have no way of being notified if a fire should erupt in the structure.

Special Message On 'Most Urgent Needs'

Johnson Asks Congress For New Efforts On Education Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, conceding that his budget will dedicate cutbacks in some federal education programs, asked Congress today nevertheless to authorize some new efforts, including a "Stay in School" program.

In a special message, Johnson said: "My recommendations are tailored to enable us to meet our most urgent needs, while deferring less important programs and expenditures."

To meet what he sees as the most urgent needs, Johnson said that "several programs must be reduced or deferred." As an example, he said the federal government can cut spending on construction of facilities and the buying of equipment.

"But," he said, "many of our urgent educational programs which directly affect the young people of America cannot be deferred. For the cost—the human cost of delay—is intolerable."

The President recommended that a new stay in school program to cost $30 million in the first year be set up to help educators "turn potential dropouts into high school graduates."

The chief executive also called for several other new laws, some designed to consolidate programs and eliminate red tape.

He also said he wanted $380 million—an increase of $40 million—for the popular Head Start and Head Start Follow-through programs, dealing with pre-school children.

Johnson said his proposed Stay in School Program would "help schools tailor their own programs, from new and exciting methods of instruction to family counseling and special tutoring, to turn potential dropouts into high school graduates."

Without citing any figures, he said he also wants Congress to increase funds for the Upward Bound Program so it could benefit 30,000 young Americans this year. Upward Bound aims at helping encourage poor but talented students, who otherwise might not have the chance, to go to college.

One proposed new program labeled "Partnership for Learning and Earning," would aim at strengthening vocational education programs and revising and consolidating existing laws in this area.

Johnson also proposed a new Educational Opportunity Act which he said would "set a new and sweeping national goal: That in America there must be no economic or racial barrier to higher education; that every qualified young person must have all the education he wants and can absorb."

One feature of such a law, he said, would provide a service fee of up to $35 to banks for each student loan they make under the federally guaranteed loan program.

"This program can aid an additional 200,000 students next year, bringing the total to 750,000," he said.

Johnson also called for a new Networks for Knowledge Act—a pilot program to "provide new financial incentives to encourage colleges and universities to pool their resources by sharing facilities, equipment, library and educational television services."

To strengthen graduate education, he proposed increased federal payments to more fully meet the actual cost of educating students who have earned federal fellowships, to provide more aid for graduate schools "with clear potential for higher quality" and to increase government sponsored research in universities.

Seoul Press Says U.S. Agrees Admit Pueblo 'Trespassed'

By K. C. HWANG

Associated Press Writer
SEOUL (AP) — The newspaper Chosun Ilbo said the United States agreed today to apologize to North Korea and the North Koreans agreed to return the 83 crewmen of the seized intelligence ship Pueblo. This was denied in Washington.

"We have no confirmation on that," William P. Bundy, Assistant Secretary of State said. "As of this moment we cannot report any progress."

Bundy added that meetings between the United States and the North Koreans are continuing.

Quoting an unidentified South Korean government source, Chosun Ilbo said the agreement was reached at the third secret meeting of U.S. and North Korean representatives held at Panmunjom, where the Military Armistice Commission meets in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

The report said the United States agreed to a Communist demand that it sign a note of apology admitting that the Pueblo violated North Korean waters.

U.S. officials in Seoul said they could neither confirm nor deny the report.

Earlier South Korean sources had reported the meeting at Panmunjom today and said the North Koreans offered to release the body of one dead American and "several" injured if the United States would admit the Pueblo was trespassing.

A Seoul radio station said three helicopters were waiting at the conference building at Panmunjom in expectation of the release. A source at the 121st U.S. Army Evacuation Hospital 15 miles west of Seoul said one wing had been on the alert since Sunday to receive the Pueblo's casualties.

The sources said the negotiations at Panmunjom are being carried on by Rear Adm. John V. Smith for the United States and Maj. Gen. Pak Chung Kook for North Korea. They were reported meeting with only interpreters present, as they did first on Friday and again Sunday.

U.S. Embassy and military spokesmen in Seoul refused to comment on the reports of the meeting today.

Reports of the North Korean offer to return the casualties circulated after the meeting

Sunday, but U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said he had no word of any such offer.

Some Seoul officials expressed suspicion that the United States was getting ready to issue an apology to North Korea over the incident in order to get the Pueblo crewmen back. A spokesman for President Chung Hee Park's ruling Democratic Republic party said party leaders agreed the secret American-North Korean talks at Panmunjom would "only encourage further Communist provocations" in Korea.

North Korea's official press agency claimed a fourth officer of the Pueblo—its navigator—had admitted that the intelligence-gathering vessel had violated territorial waters of the Communist nation.

The agency quoted Lt. Edward Renz Murphy Jr., 31, of Berkeley, Calif., as saying the ship had entered North Korean waters more than five times before it was captured Jan. 23.

The statement attributed to Murphy, like the other three before it, included an apology, a promise not to engage in future "hostile acts" against North Korea and a plea for leniency.

The purported confession said the Pueblo's mission was to "detect and localize radars" in North Korea and to study particularly a "cross slot" radar believed to be an early air warning system. The Pueblo also was to observe and photograph naval ships and take notes of submarine activities in the North Korean ports of Wonsan, Mayang Do, Songjin and Chongjin, the statement said.

Murphy was quoted as admitting the Pueblo intruded into Communist waters twice in the Songjin area, and also in the Mayang Do and Wonsan areas.

Defender Of Khe Sanh Is Confident He Will Win

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — The defender of Khe Sanh combines the caution of a banker and the zest of a hardened combat man who is sure he can win his toughest fight.

Col. David E. Lownds and his reinforced 26th Marine Regiment are surrounded by two divisions of North Vietnamese troops—more than Hanoi has committed to one battle so far in the war.

The Communists have artillery, heavy rockets and deadly mortar fire. All are zeroed in on the Khe Sanh base camp and take a daily toll of Marines.

"Can we hold this place?" Col. Lownds responded to a question. "Hell, yes. The morale and discipline of my men are high, and because the enemy has delayed our defenses are better every day."

That's the professional fighter speaking. Lownds, who was nearly killed in the opening phase of the battle for Khe Sanh, adds: "But if I said I was satisfied with my position the general should take another look at me. Any commander who is satisfied with his defenses is a fool. If I stay here two more years I'll still be at it. Complacency is dangerous and foolish."

Khe Sanh sometimes is likened to Dien Bien Phu, where the French suffered their final decisive defeat in their Indochina war. Both are in remote mountain valleys that are hard to resupply. In both cases the defenders were badly outnumbered by a hard-well-supplied Communist force bent on annihilating its foe.

But Lownds says the French made a series of key errors. They underestimated their enemy, failed to prepare their bunkers for a real siege and were short of artillery. They could not count on the necessary aerial bombardment and resupply to keep them going.

Lownds, twice wounded in World War II, feels he and his Marines have none of these factors working against them.

Lownds knows well the problems of assaulting fixed positions. During World War II he was wounded during the Marine landing on Saipan and again at Iwo Jima.

A North Vietnamese 122mm rocket almost got him before the battle of Khe Sanh really started. The round smashed his but just after lunch when he normally would have been in it. That day he was briefing a general deep in a command bunker.

The regimental commander sports the handlebar mustache favored by many Marines in Vietnam. His close cropped hair and trim physique make him look younger than his 47 years. Born in Holyoke, Mass., and a graduate of the University of Rhode Island, Lownds served in the Dominican Republic during the 1965 crisis there.

Recalling his days as a battalion commander, he says, "Having a Marine battalion is the ultimate in any Marine's life. It's more personal and more immediate. Having a regiment is an honor."

Within two days, 21 students had been arrested, eight of them girls. The following day, 11 more students were arrested.

At least one 18-year-old was charged with possession of narcotics, but most of the students, between 15 and 17 years of age were charged with being "incorrigible," a broadly drawn statute pertaining to juveniles.

All the juveniles are from upper middle class homes, and some are athletes or campus leaders at the high schools.

Officers say the raids have turned up no LSD, and only about 12 ounces of marijuana, but hundreds of pills have been confiscated—a large number in a series of raids over the weekend.

Those netted 20 persons, including one juvenile, several servicemen, and Thomas A. Rogowsky, 21, the bearded, long-haired proprietor of an incense and psychedelic poster shop known as the Wolfgang in Virginia Beach's Eden's Alley section.

Rogowsky was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor when a 14-year-old boy was found in the shop during the raid shortly before midnight.

Seven Charged In Theft Of Hogs

WILLIAMSTON — Seven Negroes have been charged in the theft of two hogs from a Route 1, Oak City farm last week.

Sheriff Raymond Raul said the seven allegedly took the two hogs, weighing a total of 210 pounds, from the Henry Johnson farm Wednesday night, then carried them to a deserted farm "for storage."

The Martin County official said one of those charged was a 15-year-old juvenile. The others he identified as Coy Lee Slade, 20; Dennis Smith, Johnny Smith, and Booker T. Purvis, all 18, and 17-year-olds George Knight and Ervin Lawrence. All are from Route 1, Oak City.

The group was taken into custody Thursday, and were scheduled to be tried in Martin County Recorder's Court today on charges of larceny.

Sheriff Raul said the group allegedly took the hogs and hauled them on a car to a deserted farm about five miles away, where they were placed in a tobacco barn.

The officer indicated that the farm, about 1.6 miles from the highway in a wooded area, appeared to have been used before to "store" hogs before disposing of them.

Reports Theft Of Radial Saw

Nixon Campaigns In Wisconsin Today

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon moves into Wisconsin today, opening one of the most critical battles in his fight to win the Republican presidential nomination for a second time.

This is the second leg in Nixon's drive.

He finished three days of intensive campaigning in New Hampshire today and one of his aides, commenting on the reception to his appearances, said "It was all and more than we expected."

New Hampshire holds the nation's first presidential primary election on March 12, followed by the Wisconsin primary April 2.

Nixon is counting heavily on destroying his "loser image" by winning decisively in six primaries—and especially the first two.

His lieutenants see New Hampshire as ultra important to him to start the momentum which they hope will carry into Wisconsin. He himself concedes the significance of the first primary, but he said, "Put it this way: The New Hampshire primary isn't going to nominate any candidate and it isn't going to defeat any candidate."

His opposition in the Granite State is Gov. George Romney of Michigan, the only other avowed Republican candidate. Romney also has entered the Wisconsin primary.

Meanwhile, reports persist that New Hampshire supporters of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York are preparing to organize a write-in campaign on his behalf. Rockefeller says he is not running. Whether such a campaign would take more votes from Nixon or Romney is a matter of speculation here.

Nixon spent Sunday in Hillsboro, a village of 2,600, in informal question-answer sessions with five separate groups, housewives, businessmen, students, farmers and young married couples. The conversations with them were filmed for television spots to be used later in his campaign.

Between sessions, he strolled through the snow-and-ice rimmed streets of the village, shaking hands and chatting with the residents.

Nixon goes to Green Bay in his first Wisconsin stop where he will speak and will hold a news conference. On Tuesday, he goes to Wisconsin State University at Stevens Point, Fond du Lac and Appleton.

Pep Pill, Marijuana Trade Said Curtailed

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Traffic in pep pills and marijuana among high school students in this resort city apparently has been stopped, suspended or driven underground in the wake of 62 narcotics-connected arrests last week.

Since Jan. 27, when nine persons were arrested in a private home three blocks off the oceanfront and three charged with possession of marijuana, police have been working almost around the clock on the problem.

Officers said Sunday their investigation will continue, but that publicity surrounding the arrests appears to have curtailed activity somewhat.

During the height of the investigations last week, police set up headquarters in First Colonial High School, most centrally located of the city's schools, to question teen-agers.

Within two days, 21 students had been arrested, eight of them girls. The following day, 11 more students were arrested.

At least one 18-year-old was charged with possession of narcotics, but most of the students, between 15 and 17 years of age were charged with being "incorrigible," a broadly drawn statute pertaining to juveniles.

TULSA, Okla.—The Learning Resources Center at Oral Roberts University here was named Friday for the institution's retiring executive vice president, Dr. John D. Messick.

The six-story building will be called the "John D. Messick Learning Resources Center."

Announcement of the Messick honor was made by S. Lee Braxton, chairman of the ORU board of regents, at a morning ceremony marking Messick's retirement.

Messick, former president of East Carolina University, came to ORU in 1963 to plan the new school's curriculum and manage its academic affairs.

He is being replaced by a new academic dean, Dr. Carl H. Hamilton, former associate professor of English and assistant dean.

Hamilton was installed as dean of academic affairs Friday.

The Learning Resources Building of 192,000 square feet is the largest on the ORU campus. It houses the library, the educational, media and the entire liberal arts operation at present.

Couple Exchange Vows In Ceremony On Sunday

AYDEN — Miss Patricia Ann McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McFarland of Ayden, and Bruce Earl Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Johnston of Greenville, were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in the Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Clifton Rice, former pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Tommy Manning, organist, and Mrs. Tommy Manning, soloist, who sang "Because," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of imported lace with fitted bodice and straight skirt. The bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long tapered sleeves ending in call points over the hands. Her chapel length train of peau de soie was edged with lace and attached at the shoulders by tiny satin bows.

Her bouffant three - tiered veil of illusion was attached to a crown of white lace embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Frenched carnations centered with a white orchid and tied with matching streamers of satin and lace.

Mrs. Charles Hardee and Mrs. Robert Halstead Jr., sisters of the bride, served as matrons of honor. They wore floor - length gowns of red peau de soie designed with fitted bodices, rounded necklines and elbow length sleeves. The long skirts were styled along the A-line. They wore headpieces of matching fabric fashioned in a pressed bow with short veils. They carried Valentine bouquets of red and white mums and carnations with tiny hearts of white pearls and red velvet and streamers of red and white satin and tulle. Bridesmaids were Miss Shirley Johnson of Danville, Va., sister of the bridegroom, Miss Elaine Mills of Greenville and

MRS. BRUCE EARL JOHNSTON

Mrs. Ronnie Webber, cousin of the bride.

Kim Hardee, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The attendants wore dresses and carried bouquets identical to those of the honor attendants. John Johnston of South Boston, Va., served his brother as best man. Ushers were Henry Johnston of Greenville, Lloyd Johnston of Greenville, S.C., brothers of the bridegroom, Charles Hardee and Russ Summerfield, both of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. McLawhorn chose a two-piece dress of beige bonded crepe with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an aqua - blue dress and coat with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of orchids.

The wedding party received in the vestibule of the church immediately following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Euel Atkinson presided at the guest register.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden High School and is presently employed by Belk - Tyler Co., of Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School. He is currently employed with A. B. Whitley, Inc.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

For traveling, Mrs. Johnston changed into a dress of red bonded wool with white wool coat, and wore the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

After-Rehearsal Party

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McLawhorn entertained the Johnston - McLawhorn wedding party and out - of - town guests at an after - rehearsal party Saturday night in the church annex in Ayden.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Jones greeted guests. Guests were invited to the refreshment table by Mrs. William McLawhorn.

The appointed table was centered with an arrangement of red and white carnations, accented with miniature valentines.

The bride's mother served wedding cake and the bridegroom's mother poured punch. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Calhoun.

Secret In Being Good Hostess Is A Comfortable Atmosphere

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am a very poor hostess—at least I think I am. It's not that I can't relax around people because when I'm a guest, I'm perfectly relaxed and have a wonderful time, but when guests are in my home, I am nervous and tense and I am just not "myself."

I am not the fussy kind of hostess who runs around emptying ash trays all the time, but if there's a lull in the conversation I feel embarrassed, and worry that I'm not giving my guests a good time.

When I invite people over, they say, "Why don't YOU come HERE instead?"—which leads me to believe that they have noticed my nervousness, too, and would rather spare me the agony. What's wrong with me? And is there a solution?

POOR HOSTESS

DEAR HOSTESS: Guests can't relax unless the hostess is relaxed. The secret to being a good hostess is in getting compatible people together in a comfortable atmosphere. No host or hostess can give his guests a good time. The guests must make it themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you for advice, but I need help and I can't go to my friends. Besides, I need help, not pity.

My husband is a minister, about middle - age and average looking. About a year ago he met an attractive young woman while calling on the sick in a hospital. They developed quite a friendship because after she went home he continued to visit her at home. (She is not even a member of his church.) I told him that I didn't like the looks of it, which only made matters worse. He became very angry with me and insisted he was doing nothing wrong, but I notice he visits her only when her husband is at work.

People are beginning to talk, Abby, and I am worried. What should I do?

NOWHERE TO TURN you should thank your lucky stars for two things. One, that you discovered early in the game that the "love bug" that bit you was a louse. Two, that if he had to get one of you pregnant, it was his wife.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LIKES TO GOSSIP": To paraphrase a little gem of philosophy I learned years ago: "He who steals my gold steals trash. But he who gossips about me and steals my good name enriches himself not, but makes me poor indeed."

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a married man. We've been seeing each other for over a year now. He told me that he and his wife weren't actually living as man and wife, altho they shared the same house for appearances sake. Also, because they have five children, he didn't want to break up the marriage just yet. But Abby, he promised that in due time he would divorce his wife and marry me.

I have been 100 per cent true to this man, Abby, since the day I realized I loved him. He said he loved me, too, but now he gives me the news that his wife is expecting! I don't know what to think. I need your opinion.

ROOM FOR GUESTS

How to welcome guests with a room outfitted especially for their comfort and, at the regular family use is not as impossible as it may seem.

Since few families want to give up a separate room for the occasional visitor, a double-purpose room is the answer. Have one that the family can enjoy and one that can be put into service for guests whenever necessary.

Be sure that the windows and floors have been given careful consideration. Wall to wall carpet is always a complement to your room. Have attractive custom draperies to blend with the rest of the room. Tommie Willis Interiors, 425 Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1336.

N.C. Owes Much To Sen. White

We can't be the first to say it... but say it we will: The Reflector regrets Senator Tom White won't try for re-election.

The veteran lawmaker from Kinston is the epitome of what makes a good politician. And, contrary to some views of politicians in general, we like them, depend on them and even admire them.

Politics has been defined as the art of getting things done; and certainly our system brings out the best of that special breed who eye public service. They're either good, or they are so bad that their qualities soon catch up with them.

Senator White had all the qualities of a good public servant. He worked at his extra-curricular profession with an intensity and zeal that could only bring him to the top. Even he probably could not tell how many days, weeks and months have been spent in the service of North Carolinians "above and beyond the call of duty". So much of the work he performed was on his own time, born of his own devotion to doing a job well.

As a member, then chairman of the powerful Advisory Budget Commission, Senator White wielded more influence and power in State affairs than any other member of the Legislature. North Carolina budgets for 1963-65, 1965-67 and 1967-69 were largely his handiwork.

Add to that his role on the 1957-59 Commission for Reorganization of State Government, the Commission on Education beyond the High School, the Board of Awards, the Commission on Interstate Cooperation, the Legislative Research Commission, and chairman of the Legislative Building Commission. He took special pride being chairman of the special commission which designed and built the state's unique Legislative Building.

His feuds with the press have become legendary. But through it all there was a recognition that the Senator strongly felt premature discussion and publicity was detrimental to the orderly legislative process. He never retreated on this belief; and neither did the press in propounding a contrary conviction.

North Carolina owes the Senator more than it can ever repay.

Big Change In 1969 Assembly

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
RALEIGH —Political notebook:

Already it is possible to predict and forecast a large scale turnover in makeup of the 1969 General Assembly which will convene a year from now under a new state administration.

By their own choice at least a fifth of the members of the State Senate elected in 1966 won't be returning. This group includes veterans of legislative service and such leaders as the president pro tem, Robert Morgan of Harnett, and the three - times chairman of the powerful Senate Thomas J. White of Lenoir.

announced thus far - W. P. (Bill) Saunders of Southern Pines for Gilmore's seat and Dr. Bill James of Hamlet for Allen's.

Seats Are Vacant

Incumbents in the 2nd, 3rd and 5th along with one of two in the 8th - all in eastern North Carolina - have announced they won't seek re-election.

These are Sens. Ashely B. Futrell of Beaufort County in the 2nd, Sam L. Whitehurst of Craven in the 3rd, White in the 5th and Jesse H. Austin Jr. of Johnston in the 8th. Futrell's seat is being sought by former senator Edgar Gurganus of Martin County. Futrell, who has served two terms, said he had promised not to oppose Gurganus if Gurganus chose to run this year.

Whitehurst and White both served in the House for several terms before being elected to the Senate. Both became influential senators and chairmen of important committees. Whitehurst is retiring from the legislature to accept a new post with the state's soft drink bottlers' association. White announced at a news conference in Raleigh Friday that he plans to devote his time to his law practice in Kinston and service on various state boards and commissions during 1968-69.

Austin elected as a Democrat in 1966, recently changed party affiliation and indicated he would run as a Republican candidate for Congress in 1968.

Nixon Continues To Be A Real Contender

In answer to the question of why Richard Nixon has the image of a consistent loser, Al Capp replied here, "Well, because he never wins."

That, of course, is not without foundation, but for a loser the one-time vice president sure does have a way of continuing to be a contender.

Nixon, as expected, has become a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination and there is a good chance that he will be the nominee after the convention.

Nixon was the president-in-training when he served as vice president under Eisenhower for eight years. Then in a real squeaker he lost the 1960 election to John F. Kennedy. Subsequently he lost in a bid for the governorship of California.

This should have been enough to seal the doom of any politician who aspires to national office. Indeed in an emotional talk to newsmen after the California defeat Nixon implied his retirement from politics.

Those who dislike Nixon seem to do so intensely, but however one feels about him, no one can deny that he is politically durable.

The road ahead will be tricky for Nixon. He first must win the Republican nomination from several formidable figures within the Republican party. Then he would have to face an incumbent Democratic party president. Still, even DeGaulle came back after a number of years of virtual retirement from politics. It may be possible that Nixon can do it, too.

WASHINGTON —The boycott against France in the United States is on full force, and people are madder at President De Gaulle than they are at Ho Chi Minh, Mao Tse-tung, Premier Kosygin and even President Johnson.

At first American friends announced they wouldn't visit France while De Gaulle was president. Then they decided they wouldn't drink French wine. Some of my dearest lady friends said they wouldn't buy French perfume and their husbands said they wouldn't buy French cars. One man I know sent back a Roquefort cheese he had received as a present for Christmas, and so on.

Many Americans, who can't afford to go abroad or drink French wines or wear French perfumes or drive French cars, are in a dilemma. They would show their displeasure toward President De Gaulle, but they don't know how.

My aunt Molly seems to have the problem licked.

U.S. Defenses Spread 'Thin'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Obscured by the growing debate over what wasn't done and what should be done about the capture of the Pueblo is the harsh fact that not one single U.S. plane was at close hand January 22 to defend the spy ship.

Whether or not American planes could have accomplished much once the Pueblo was actually boarded is a matter of disagreement ever inside the Pentagon. Nevertheless, significant from a global standpoint was the absence of quickly available airpower. The closest U.S. jet armed with conventional bombs was in Japan, an hour's flight away, even though Communist North Korea had loudly advertised its intentions to divert U.S. efforts from Vietnam.

This has created bipartisan sentiment on Capitol Hill for a full-scale inquiry into the defense of Korea once the Pueblo incident is resolved one way or another. A Democratic Senator, a senior member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told us: "Somebody's going to lose his head on this one."

But beyond any single official's culpability is what the Pueblo incident tells about the U.S. global power. The absence of aircraft in Korea suggests that the U.S. has been able to fight full-scale war in Vietnam without converting a peacetime economy only at the cost of stretching thin our global defenses.

Spread thin, the U.S. not only was unable to react quickly to prevent the Pueblo's capture but has been forced to tread most cautiously in its efforts to retrieve the ship. Thus, the U.S. is exposed as posed as vulnerable to provocations anywhere in the world outside Vietnam at a time when the Communists are resuming the offensive in Vietnam.

Although the Defense Department declines to reveal the state of aerial defense in Korea, the details are well enough known to the Communists. On the day the Pueblo was captured, only four American planes were assigned to South Korea.

All were at a base less than 15 minutes flying time from the Pueblo. But one of these was under extensive repairs and not operational. The other three were equipped only with low-yield tactical nuclear weapons whose use could be authorized only by the President and therefore were utterly unable to help the Pueblo.

By chance, another four U.S. jets happened to be in Korea (a bit more distant from the Pueblo) in transit to another destination, but these alone

Other Editors Saying To Know And To Tell

(Tampa (Fla.) Tribune)

The words that men use in the excitement or pressure of events often live to haunt them in later years. Such is the case with Arthur Sylvester, formerly an Assistant Secretary of Defense, who once flatly stated that government has a "right to lie" in certain emergency situations.

The University of South Florida provided a forum for Sylvester to clarify that position when he shared a discussion panel with Clark Mollenhoff, the nationally known reporter for Cowles publications. At the same time, Sylvester tossed out another phrase that may become equally controversial, suggesting that the outcry for the public's "so-called right to know is a phony right."

Sylvester pointed out that he could have weaseled on his statement, or have employed words softer than "lie" such as "confuse the enemy." But he didn't. He said he meant that when the national security is at stake, and only then, the government not only has the right but the duty to lie.

"All governments do it, all peoples do it, it's been done all through history," he noted. In today's perilous nuclear age, when destruction is only minutes away, he suggests that government may find it necessary again to lie —and we should grow up and face the facts of international life rather than gloss over it." Then he emphasized that this right ends with national security and must not be extended to protect political errors or too serve political purposes.

Amplifying why he considered the right to know a "phony right," Sylvester said the U.S. Constitution guarantees freedom to religion, speech and the press. But it does not spell out that all the knowledge available must be published. "It would be impossible for the press to use all the material available about government today," he said. "But if you accept the 'right to know' in one sense, it seems to me it would imply a compulsion to publish. Better, I think, is the selectivity and competition of the press today. There should be more of it."

The battle of wits between newspapermen and officialdom continues from local township to the United Nations. What reporters oppose is finding obstacles piled up in the form of restrictions, evasions, concealments and downright lies fortified by official orders secreting source material under the guise of national security. In that contest, the public has a definite "right to know" and the reporter a definite challenge to find out.

"I'll bet that gave her something to think about."

Aunt Molly shrugged her shoulders. "You have to do the best you can."

Franchise System Has Blessing

By ELMER ROESSNER

Corporations and their lawyers have long worried that the Supreme Court, that slot machine of American business, might some day give the franchise system three lemons.

It has never been finally determined whether a contract that gives a man or a company the exclusive rights to sell Buicks in Pinpoint, Mass., is a violation of one or another anti-trust law. There has been a fear that the court might some day rule that such a contract was in restraint of trade because it prevented Wunderbar von Garfinkel from becoming a Buick dealer in Pinpoint.

Now a decision indicates that the court looks kindly on the great American system of selling autos, hamburgers and soft ice cream.

AMPLEX VS. OUTBOARD

The court left standing a throw out a suit of Amplex of Maryland Inc., a marine motor dealer, against Outboard Marine Corp. Amplex charged that Outboard cancelled its franchise because Amplex also sold a competing line of motors. Amplex charged that this was restraint of trade and demanded triple damages. When Amplex appealed the lower court's decision, the Department of Justice joined the action calling the franchise method "a serious loophole in anti-trust enforcement."

Corporations and their lawyers have been worrying needlessly. If the court ever outlaws the franchise systems, Congress will quickly amend anti-trust laws specifically exempting the multi-billion-dollar way of doing business.

Abolishing the franchise would throw the country into a recession.

ELMER ROESSNER

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS.

The first warning of a deadline in construction has appeared. The F. W. Dodge Co.'s construction contract index for December is 166, down two points from November's 168. However, the December contract total was almost $4 billion, 25 per cent higher than that for December, 1966.

Cheaper color television may be ahead. RCA has cut prices $7.50 and $10 on its 23- and 20-inch picture tubes.

Machine-tool demand is declining, partly due to a leveling off of the defense buildup. Orders last year were 32 per cent down from 1966 the backlog at the end of 1967 was at the lowest level of the year, the National Machine Tool Builders Association reports.

The boom in snowmobiles sales is causing demands in several states for licensing these vehicles and requiring liability insurance.

A flat screen television tube may be on the way. A Canadian company claims to have patented details for the device, which could be 40 inches wide, use less power and reduce radiation hazards.

Look Before Leaping

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Few groups in America take more ribbing, not all of which is good-natured, than mothers-in-law. But if the truth be told, about one out of five husbands has a higher opinion of his mother-in-law than he does of his own wife, because she is older, wise and appreciates his good qualities more.

Despite the wide variety of hair styles and lip adornments worn by men, you hardly ever see the needle-pointed, waxed mustache that film villains, barbers and foreign noblemen once wore. Perhaps there's a shortage of wax, or maybe modern man is too tired to twirl that type of mustache.

The baseball season will start soon, and the pro football fans are already yawning their way into a hibernation that will last until next August.

The more labor-saving devices you buy a wife, the more leisure time she has to spend fixing them herself or trying to get them repaired.

The thing that really impresses me most about women is their unerring ability to get a taxicab during a rainstorm, an ability few if any men possess.

If you see a guy who wears a coat that makes him look like a foreign correspondent, you can be pretty sure of one thing about him—he probably isn't a foreign correspondent. Most of the men in the business quit wearing that kind of coat about five years after World War II ended.

WILLIAM A. SHIRES

Traditionally, the turnover in the 120 member House is greater every two years than that in the 50 member senate and this may be expected to hold true again. However, the earliest evidence of considerable change among state legislative makeup is seen on the Senate side.

Others Won't Return

In addition to White and Morgan at least half a dozen other well known state senators have given indication or announced flatly that they won't seek re-election this year.

For the most part they have other plans politically. In a couple of instances, senatorial districts as presently composed will be stripped if legislative seniority and must send newcomers to Raleigh.

Sen. Volt Gilmore of Moore County is giving up his seat in the 19th senatorial district and has been campaigning for Congress for several months. Sen. J. F. (Jeff) Allen, also of the 19th, won't run for re-election this time in order to work for the gubernatorial candidacy of Lt. Gov. Robert W. (Bob) Scott.

This leaves both 19th senatorial district seats up for grabs and two former senators, both Democrats, have

Blue's Role

Aberdeen newspaper publisher H. Clifton Blue, former speaker of the House and an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor in 1964, is reported ready to become a regional manager for the Scott-for-Governor campaign.

This report, not immediately confirmed by Blue, raised eyebrows in political circles because Lt. Gov. Robert W. Scott is the man who defeated Blue in two close primary contests four years ago. They were political opponents in contention for the nomination. Now, however, it appears that Blue has decided to join the Scott for governor camp.

Blue announced earlier that he would forego any personal political campaign this year.

French pastry in this house any more, either."

"It's lucky Uncle Phil doesn't play the French horn," I told her. "Those things can be expensive."

"Who cares about expense when the American dollar is at stake? I threw out all my shoes with French heels."

"But you still have French doors between the living room and dining room," I pointed out.

"Macy's is aware of the problem and they're coming out tomorrow."

"Boy Aunt Molly, you've covered almost all the bases."

"I haven't even started. I've taken all the French seams out of my clothes."

"C'est la guerre," I chuckled.

"What does that mean?" she demanded.

"It's a French phrase and it means 'that's war.'"

"Why couldn't you say it in your native tongue?"

"I'm sorry," I apologized. "It was a slip of the tongue. Well, I guess I'd better take my French leave."

"What kind of leave?"

"French leave. It's when you sneak out without saying goodbye to the hostess."

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's economy dipped slightly in December from November's high but remained substantially higher than in December of 1966.

The Wachovia North Carolina business index stood at 173.7 in a preliminary calculation for December. This was 0.5 below November but 8.2 per cent higher than December, 1966.

Meanwhile, Wachovia reported that estimated personal income in North Carolina rose from $11.3 billion in 1966 to $11.8 billion for all of 1967. It reported that per capita yearly income gained from $2,277 billion in 1966 to $2,350 billion in 1967.

"There are indications," the bank said, "that income in North Carolina and the Southeast did not increase as greatly as in the nation as a whole."

The Wachovia index averaged 167 in 1967, up about 4.6 per cent from 1966. "The state's economy did not show as strong a growth pattern last year as in 1966," the bank stated, "but after the first half's lull, there was a fairly steady advance not while De Gaulle is alive."

"Well, I do have to go anyway. Au revoir."

"Listen," she said, "if you're going to talk dirty you don't have to come back here again."

through November."

In December's dip, nonagricultural employment in the state rose fractionally, but bank debits and cash receipts from farm marketings were below seasonal norms.

Wachovia reported that business and personal spending in December, as indicated by bank debits, were off 1.3 per cent from November, but still remained 12.3 per cent ahead of December of 1966. Spending for all of 1967 averaged 10 per cent higher than 1966.

White's Announcement
Veteran State Sen. Thomas J. White bowed out of legislative service in style and with twinges of regret. He made the announcement that he would not be a candidate for office in 1968 in the spacious Senate Appropriations committee room of the Legislative Building with a large crowd in attendance.

Former Senate president Clarence Stone sat behind White. Former Gov. Terry Sanford came in and listened. So did Sanford's director of administration, Hugh Cannon, and a number of other legislative and executive branch figures who have been close to White through the years. The press was there too, and White welcomed the news media.

Manufacturing employment rose 0.8 per cent in December and weekly hours in manufacturing were unchanged at 41.2. This increased manufacturing manhours by about 0.5 per cent. Building activity in 18 North Carolina cities showed a gain in December as compared with same month a year ago. A total of $28.1 million in building permits was issued in the 18 cities as compared with $23.6 million in December of 1966.

The North Carolina Department of Revenue reported that gross retail sales in the state rose by $21.8 million in December and reached a total of $78.8 million as compared with December of 1966.

Food sales at $171.4 million were up $5.9 million, but motor vehicle and airplane sales of $69.4 million were down by $3.3 million. Sale of apparel totaled $26.6 million and were up by same month a year ago. A total of $3.1 million, furniture sales reached $42.1 million and were up $2.9 million, while general merchandise was down $5.7 million at $145.7 million. Lumber and building materials were up $4.4 million at $76.4 million.

Sure Beats Smoking!

If you really want to stop smoking, here's an easier way to satisfy your tobacco hunger... control your appetite, too.

Now there's an easier way to break the cigarette habit—without gaining weight! Doctors have seen it happen and reported the results. The secret is a pleasant-tasting lozenge called NIKOBAN. It's medicated with a clinically-tested smoking deterrent that helps satisfy your tobacco hunger—reduces your desire to smoke and eat!

Scientific Journal Reports doctor's plan helps 4 out of 5
In a carefully controlled test, as an article in a scientific journal reports, the NIKOBAN plan, created by a doctor, helped 4 out of 5 smokers tested cut down on their smoking. Some actually stopped completely, and surprisingly, most of those in the test did not gain weight.

Get a package of NIKOBAN lozenges. If you really want to break the cigarette habit start using them today. You'll feel like a new person. "NIKOBAN sure beats smoking!" Try it!

Tobacco

Tips

Pitt County Tobacco Agent

One of the elements found in mixed tobacco fertilizer is chlorine. Small quantities of chlorine tend to increase tobacco yields to a moderate extent. However, excessive quantities of chlorine tend to injure plant roots and produce a dingy, dull grey tobacco with a soggy characteristic and an undesirable odor and poor burn quality. Excessive chlorine also increases the tendency of the tobacco plant to take up ammonium nitrogen.

It has been recommended for several years not to apply more than 30 pounds of chlorine per acre for the production of best quality tobacco. When more than 30 pounds of chlorine per acre is used it may have no effect, or it may have an adverse effect, producing poor quality tobacco, depending largely upon the season.

When large quantities of chlorine are applied without early wet periods to leach part of it down, excessive amounts may be absorbed by the plant and seriously affect the quality of tobacco.

In addition to the chlorine applied in mixed tobacco fertilizer, soil fumigant used for nematode control also contribute chlorine. Most of the soil fumigants used supply about 20 pounds of available chlorine when applied in the row.

Intests conducted by Dr. C. B. McCants in 1954, tobacco receiving 60 pounds of chlorine per acre averaged five per cent less per pound than tobacco receiving 30 pounds. Tobacco receiving 120 pounds of chlorine ropped 10 per cent in price.

The tobacco receiving in excess of 30 pounds of chlorine per acre, when examined by both domestic and export companies, was considered extremely undesirable.

I will be glad to discuss your tobacco fertilization program with you and make suggestions as to how to reduce the amount of chlorine to be applied to your tobacco fields.

One of the oddities about women that puzzles a man is why, when they have a cold, they use a paper tissue to stop their sniffling; when they are weeping at a wedding or a funeral, they use a lacy, embroidered handkerchief.

You begin to understand people when you realize that, no matter how close a friend may be to you, it is highly unlikely that he'll pick a rainy day to return the umbrella he borrowed.

Reducing Feed Wastage

Feed conversion as measured by the pounds of feed required to produce a pound of pork is of extreme importance to the cost conscious swine producer. Every effort should be made to keep it at a minimum, and, in my experience, most producers do exert such effort. One factor, however, that contributes to poor feed conversion receives far too little attention. This is the problem of feed wastage.

In this respect I would like to mention some observations on feed wastage reported by Dr. D. R. Gill of Oklahoma State University. He reported that in most swine operations the amount of feed wasted was usually many times more than what the manager expected. For example, an experiment where feed waste was measured in pens in which the pigs were wasting one-third of the feed here observed prior to the study as having only a slight amount of feed on the floor. Dr. Gill also reported that in a test designed to measure the rate of waste from a conventional trough, a meal ration had 8 percent less waste when fed wet rather than dry. Many farmers in this area feed their gestating sows in the fashion and should keep this in mind.

In another test commercial self feeders were tested with and without lids and with pelleted or meal rations. These self feeders had the feed floor regulator pushed down far enough to keep the feed level in the feeder at an absolute minimum. Within the brand of commercial feeder tested, feed waste with the lids removed was about 8 percent with the meal ration. With pelleted feed about 6 percent was wasted. When the lids were replaced the amount of feed wasted was 4 percent for the meal ration and 3 percent for the pelleted ration. These observations, plus others recorded during the study, permitted the following points to be made:

1. To prevent feed wastage the level of feed in the feeding chamber must be kept extremely low.

2. It apparently does not hurt gain or efficiency to have feeders set so that no feed is in the feed cup, consequently making the pigs work feed down from under the regulating slide.

3. Lids on the feeders over the feeding chamber force most pigs to keep their heads in the chamber. This will cause the feed that falls out of their mouths to fall back into the feeder.

4. If the feeder does not have lids, pigs will back away from the feeder to swallow, and this allows feed to fall from their mouths onto the floor.

5. Pelleting will probably reduce feed waste and will also reduce the amount of time that animals spend at the feeder.

6. Good management is the key to reducing feed waste.

7. Free choice fed pigs will not pick feed up off the floor as long as there is clean feed available to them in the feeder.

City Fathers Have Own Ideas

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—The city officials of Villa Ballester have a mind of their own when it comes to choosing a date for celebrating their Founders' Day.

City fathers chose the date from an inscription on a mural in City Hall rather than accept another date that had been decided upon by the National Academy of History, the National Commission on Culture, the archives of Buenos Aires Province—and even a special investigating committee of the township.

Who got more miles per gallon? Lead-Free AMOCO®. In 13 separate mileage tests with 208 cars, under the watchful eye of The Sports Car Club of America, AMOCO beat the field.

What did they drive? No super-tuned test cars. They drove their own—sports cars, taxis, family sedans—regardless of make or model. Like having your car in the tests.

Where did they drive? Where you drive: city streets, country roads, superhighways. In all kinds of weather, through all kinds of traffic. That's where you want more mileage. That's where Lead-Free AMOCO got more.

Who drove? Motorists like you: housewives, cab drivers and college students. Not a test driver in the crowd. They didn't even know what gasoline they were using.

Make your own mileage test with Lead-Free AMOCO. It doubles spark plug life, too. And users report up to 79,000 miles without muffler replacement. It's the only Certified Lead-Free Premium Gasoline in America. And only American Oil Dealers have it. Another reason why: "You expect more from American and you get it!"

North Mecklenburg Places First In ECU High School Swim Meet

North Mecklenburg High School of Charlotte captured first place in the annual East Carolina University High School Invitational Swimming Meet here Saturday.

North Mecklenburg edged out fellow Charlotte school, Myers Park by two points, 45-43. Greensboro Place finished third with 36 points followed by Chapel Hill with 31 and Rose of Greenville with 27.

Others scoring were Greensboro Grimsley, 24; South Mecklenburg, 14; Granby of Virginia, W.T. Woodson of Virginia, Hampton of Virginia, 10 each; Decouhgan of Virginia, Tarboro, eight each; Fayetteville, 6; Woodrow Wilson of Pennsylvania 5, Maury of Virginia 4, Norfolk Catholic 2, Norview of Virginia 2, and Kinston 1. A total of 22 schools from three states took part in the meet.

Grimsley captured the medley relay with a time of 1:49.30 a new meet record. Rose finished third. Grimsley also captured the freestyle relay in a re-

Beman Almost A Giant-Killer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — It was asking too much, but Deane Beman, a former two-time U.S. amateur golf champion and now a sophomore in the ranks of the professionals, almost knocked off two giants in one afternoon.

But it just wasn't to be. Billy Casper, one of the Goliaths, fell back, but not Arnold Palmer. And so Palmer held the Bob Hope Desert Classic championship for the third time, a feat accomplished with the familiar Palmer dramatics and excitement.

Beman, 29, who won the British Amateur in 1959 and the U.S. in 1960 and 1963, came from behind to pass Casper, the leader, and shoot a 7-under-par 65 in Sunday's final round. He had a 90-hole score of 348, 12 under par, and it looked reasonably safe.

But up came Palmer to the final green at Bermuda Dunes Country Club's par five 18th. The place was packed. In the gallery in a private box were former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gov. Ronald Reagan, and other dignitaries.

Palmer knew he had to reach the green off he 520-yard hole in two shots and go for a birdie to tie—or an eagle to win.

Palmer's No. 4 approach wood sailed some 260 yards over a forbidding lake and reached the green, 20 feet from pin. He putted boldly for the eagle but came up 18 inches short.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The 10th Winter Olympic Games open with their usual pomp and pageantry Tuesday with Gen. Charles DeGaulle among the 80,000 spectators but with the attention of the sports world on skater Jean-Claude Killy, figure skater Peggy Fleming and the daring king of the bobsledders, Eugenio Monti.

When the lavish ice and snow spectacle finally gets under way in earnest Wednesday, the main question marks of the games will ring the heads of these outstanding figures.

11,666 Watched WVU's Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I guess we can't be all bad," said West Virginia basketball coach Bucky Waters. "After all, 11,666 people came to see the game."

And that was the only good thing Waters could find about Saturday night's proceeding at Charlotte, where talent-rich Davidson regained the Southern Conference lead by trouncing WVU 91-77.

Davidson coach Lefty Driesell called it "a great victory," but remembered soberly that the SC championship doesn't go up for grabs until the Feb. 29-March 2 tournament.

Waters, too, thought about the tournament, in which his Mountaineers will be defending champions.

"We weren't happy with any phase of our play," he said. "We still haven't had a great game against Davidson. They beat us ever way in this one—they outshot us, beat us off the boards... They just beat us."

"Maybe we're saving it for the tournament. The big thing now is to regain our momentum."

The Davidson triumph, avenging an earlier 89-86 overtime loss to WVU, ended a six-game West Virginia winning streak and gave Davidson a 5-1 conference record, dropping WVU to 7-2.

Austria's Toni Sailer did in 1956—or even win one of the events—under the pressure of competing before an idolatrous nation of fellow Frenchmen? Many contend he can't.

Can Miss Fleming, the 19-year-old ice darling from Colorado Springs, Colo., regain for America the women's figure skating supremacy lost as the result of a tragic airplane accident in Brussels that killed the cream of U.S. talent? She is rated a cinch.

Can Monti, the red-haired dare-devil from Italy who has won nine world championships, finally win an Olympic gold in a sport in which he has been rated the best for years? He is heavily favored.

Some 15,000 athletes from 37 nations march into the huge temporary stadium in the lavish opening ceremonies, starting at 3 p.m. local time.

The French president, who will sit in a specially heated box, will officially declare the Games open during an extravaganza that will see 30,000 perfumed artificial roses rained on the crowd, parachutists drop from the sky and a blast of spectacular fireworks after lighting of the traditional flame.

After a swirling snow storm halted training and raised fears Saturday, the weather turned beautiful again Sunday and prospects were good for clear skies and cold temperatures. That's what the contestants want—and need.

Killy, 24, dark and handsome and rated the best of the world's Alpine skiers although he has experienced a mild slump this year, will face stern competition from Gerhard Nienning of Austria, Edmund Bruggman of Switzerland and America's one-two punch of Bill Kidd of Stowe, Vt., and Jim Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif.

Nienning is favored in the downhill, starting with preliminary runs Wednesday, and Bruggman is rated best in the giant slalom. Killy's best hope appears to be in the giant slalom and slalom, where Kidd and Heuga are also strong.

"I don't think he can do it—the pressure on him will be too great," said Sailer, who will view the Olympics as a spectator.

The first phase of the women's figure skating also is scheduled early Wednesday in the Stade de Glace.

The dark-haired, green-eyed Miss Fleming, a precise school skater and a dazzling free skater, has proved to be far ahead of the field. Also bidding for medals will be Tina Noyes of Arlington, Mass., and 15-year-old Janet Lynn of Rockford, Ill.

Monti, now 39, a ski lift operator from Cortina D'Ampezzo, has had outstanding times in the preliminary trials and is picked as the man to beat by all his rivals.

"There are bobsled races and there is Monti—he's in a class by himself," said Boris Said of Fair Haven, Vt., one of America's four-man drivers.

The British have the defending champion two-man sled back, Tony Nash and Robin Dixon. Romania and West Germany are strong. The United States' top two-man drivers are Paul Lamey of Manchester, N.H. and Gary Sheffield of Lake Placid, N.Y.

Monti, now 39, a ski lift operator from Cortina D'Ampezzo, has had outstanding times in the preliminary trials and is picked as the man to beat by all his rivals.

"There are bobsled races and there is Monti—he's in a class by himself," said Boris Said of Fair Haven, Vt., one of America's four-man drivers.

The British have the defending champion two-man sled back, Tony Nash and Robin Dixon. Romania and West Germany are strong. The United States' top two-man drivers are Paul Lamey of Manchester, N.H. and Gary Sheffield of Lake Placid, N.Y.

Nenning is favored in the downhill, starting with preliminary runs Wednesday, and Bruggman is rated best in the giant slalom. Killy's best hope appears to be in the giant slalom and slalom, where Kidd and Heuga are also strong.

"I don't think he can do it—the pressure on him will be too great," said Sailer, who will view the Olympics as a spectator.

After a swirling snow storm halted training and raised fears Saturday, the weather turned beautiful again Sunday and prospects were good for clear skies and cold temperatures. That's what the contestants want—and need.

Killy, 24, dark and handsome and rated the best of the world's Alpine skiers although he has experienced a mild slump this year, will face stern competition from Gerhard Nienning of Austria, Edmund Bruggman of Switzerland and America's one-two punch of Bill Kidd of Stowe, Vt., and Jim Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif.

No Chance To Relax For Flying Tar Heels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina's third-ranked basketball team is winging along on a 12-game winning streak and leads the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 5-0 record.

But you can bet that Coach Dean Smith will point out to his Tar Heels that this is not the week to relax.

Not with a Thursday assignment at Wake Forest.

It matters little that Wake Forest is in sixth place in the ACC and has lost 13 of 17 games, six in a row after Saturday's home court 807-6 loss to South Carolina.

The Deacons played one of their better games against South Carolina, conqueror of Duke a week ago and No. 2 in the ACC at 6-2. The score was tied 13 times and the lead changes hands nine times before the sophomore-loaded Deacons finally lost.

A year ago North Carolina had two close calls before slipping past Wake Forest, each by two points, one in overtime, against a team that lost 18 of 27 games.

Coach Jack McCloskey's Deacons, having taken their lumps 13 times in 17 games, are improving steadily as the ACC championship tournament draws closer to its March 7 opening at Charlotte, N. C.

Skip Harlicka's 30 points and three key jumpers in the last half by Gary Gregor sparked South Carolina's sixth straight victory. Jerry Montgomery, nobbled by an ailing back recently, looked like his old self in scoring 20 points for Wake Forest.

North Carolina survived a second half scare to win at Maryland Saturday night 73-67. The Terps trailed by only one point with 11:51 to play before their surge subsided.

Larry Miller and Charlie Scott each scored 17 points for North Carolina and Rusty Clark added 16. Will Hetzel led Maryland with 23 points, hitting his last nine shots, and snared 16 rebounds as the Terps, 1-7 in the conference, just missed turning in the ACC upset of the season.

North Carolina State, playing at home, downed an aroused Clemson team by coming from behind in the last half to gain a hard-earned 78

From Transplant Surgery To Sandbagged Hospital

DAU TIENG, Vietnam (AP) — In less than six weeks, young Dr. Eli Wayne jumped from sophisticated transplant surgery at Stanford to a sandbagged field hospital. At the famed Palo Alto institution, where a heart transplant was recently performed, the 29-year-old doctor was doing kidney transplant work, enjoying private flying on weekends, swimming and appreciatively courting California's sun-tanned girls.

An effervescent student with owlish eyeglasses and an unimpeachable set of blond bangs, Wayne is no soldierly type. He had no regrets, however, when they called him up, gave him his captain's commission and popped him on a plane to Vietnam.

ducer. Miss Day was somewhat vague about her television plans.

"I don't really know when the show will go on the air," she said. "They're working on a format now, and I suppose I'll have some children in it."

"I do know what the work schedule will be, and it suits me fine. I'll rehearse a day, then shoot for three days. Then I'll have three days off. I'm not worried about the hard work in television. I enjoy working, and those three days off will be heavenly. On this picture I will have a total of one day without working."

The plot of "With Six You Get Egg Roll" might cause some alarm among Doris Day fans. She and Keith play partnerless parents who contemplate a merger of their families. But before they agree to a wedding, they go away for a weekend together. This is a Doris Day picture.

"Everything goes wrong," she explained. "They go out on a picnic and it rains. It rains the whole weekend."

But surely they spend some time together indoors.

"Yes, but that takes place behind locked doors," she added firmly. "What they do is their own business, and nobody else's. You're never going to see them in bed together, if that's what you mean."

Faith, Hard Work, Can Move Corporations

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — There are many morals to Dave Fiedler's story. It is evidence, for one thing, that faith in an idea and hard work still can move mighty corporations.

Less than seven years ago Fiedler was a 21-year-old unemployed printing salesman with a wife to support and night school tuition to pay. He had a yearning to be in business for himself.

Today he is vice president of a Standard Oil Company (Indiana) subsidiary, a position he attained after helping to reduce a problem that has bothered every gasoline company since automobiles were invented.

Fiedler did this by demonstrating over a five-year period that road maps needn't be a costly nuisance to oil companies. By selling advertisements on the rim of the map, he showed, the losses on maps could be sharply reduced.

This is no small matter. American Oil, Standard's marketing company, has spent $1 million a year putting out 20 million to 30 million maps. And it is estimated that the total bill for all road maps is about $12 million a year.

Amazingly, Fiedler accomplished his goal from without. Unlike some bright young college graduates who rise quickly through the ranks, Fiedler had only a high school diploma and wasn't even an employee of the company.

The odyssey began with $5,000 borrowed from a bank on security provided by in-laws. With this he formed an outdoor advertising company that was less than successful.

Shortly after, Fiedler had an artist make a mockup of a directory containing information for motorists. He approached the regional office of American Oil and told them he would publish it if they would distribute it.

American was interested. Gradually, as they talked, the idea was refined and it was agreed that a map would be better than a directory. Fiedler was to produce it at no cost to American and derive his profits from ads. Tempo Designs was formed.

"Business was rough at first," he said. "The regional offices of the oil company would agree to let us handle their maps on a year to year basis. But the banks wouldn't lend willingly on that basis." The banks wanted longer contracts.

With limited capital the going was slow. He needed money for each regional office to whom he hoped to sell the idea. "My expenses almost equalled my income." It was difficult to accumulate capital.

Printers wanted their money in advance. But advertisers refused to pay ahead of publication.

Living conditions were nomadic. During this time his wife JoAnne and son David traveled with Fiedler. They ate at restaurants every night and lived in one motel after another. Daughter Barbara took to the road at age six weeks.

"My only discouragement, though, was that I didn't have money to grow faster." Then he was introduced to a stranger, C.L. Webster, a retired National Cash Register executive. "I chased him for three months. He invested $10,000 and set up $35,000 in credit."

Said Fiedler: "He was my angel. He asked nothing. He was unbelievable. He was interested only in my success and concerned with my future. He was impressed with our ability to arrange things with the oil company."

Fiedler expanded more rapidly now, moving into additional regions of American Oil. Then he visited Standard's main office in Chicago and told them he wanted to go nationwide but might need financial help.

"They put their financial people on it. They studied the capital needs and then offered to let me raise the money for the project. But I couldn't raise that kind of money. They offered to buy me out and I accepted in 1966."

Under the agreement, Fiedler is vice president and general manager of Tempo Designs, Inc., a Standard subsidiary. He supervises 29 salesmen and office workers under a five-year contract.

Now 28, Fiedler has settled in the Chicago area and is having a home built in Arlington Heights.

'Yank' Stewart—Prison Escape Artist, Stabbed

RALEIGH (AP)—Prison escape artist Charles "Yank" Stewart was recovering in North Carolina's Central Prison Hospital today from four stab wounds inflicted by a fellow prisoner.

Stewart's condition was described as critical Saturday night, but Central Prison Administrator David Henry said Sunday he had showed marked improvement although his condition was still serious.

Meanwhile, Commissioner of Correction Lee Bounds said charges would be brought against Edgar Welborne, 26, of Greensboro and James Gentry, 39, of Hubert, as a result of the stabbing.

Bounds said Welborne assaulted Stewart in the main cellblock of Central Prison, first hitting him over the head with an iron bar and then stabbing him with a prison made knife. Bounds said that Welborne, who is serving prison terms for several offenses, gave the knife to Gentry who hid it in a heating unit. Both Welborne and Gentry were placed in solitary confinement while the incident is being investigated.

"We are still trying to determine what precipitated it (the attack) and what we should do about it," Bounds said.

Stewart, 62-year-old New Hanover County native, who has spent most of his life in prison and had escaped seven times, currently is serving nine years for robbery with a dangerous weapon.

He is credited with being the master mind of the famed Ivy Bluff Prison break in 1959. Twenty prisoners escaped from the facility.

Stewart was returned to North Carolina in 1963 after serving time in federal prisons for offenses committed while he was a fugitive.

"He has been a good prisoner since we got him in October, 1963," said Bounds.

Doris Day Next To Go Into Television

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The next film star to make the leap into television is sunny Doris Day, queen of the pseudo-sex comedies.

For a decade Miss Day has starred in handsomely produced films in which she was the proposed victim of the bad intentions of such screen lovers as Cory Grant, Rock Hudson, James Garner, Rod Taylor and Richard Harris. She is currently making another, "With Six You Get Egg Roll," with Brian Keith as the predator.

The film is the first to be made in Hollywood by the new feature film division of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Miss Day is also contracted to CBS for a television series, but there is no connection between the two deals, according to Gordon Stulberg, the man in charge of the CBS features.

He made the statement in reply to major-studio complaints that CBS is competing unfairly by offering stars package deals combining features and series.

"The two contracts are entirely separate," assured the actress. "But I really don't know much about them. Marty takes care of all that." She referred to her husband, Marty Melcher, who goes along on all her film assignments as co-producer. On the current movie he is full producer. Miss Day was somewhat vague about her television plans.

"I don't really know when the show will go on the air," she said. "They're working on a format now, and I suppose I'll have some children in it."

so carried nuclear bombs. The 200-plane South Korean air force is inferior to the much larger North Korean force, and the U. S. scarcely wanted to promote a Korean - vs. Korean confrontation in any event.

In the event of full scale war in Korea, sufficient American aircraft based on Japan and Okinawa would be available. But there was no contingency planning to supply aircraft to counter the small but serious provocation of Jan. 22.

Moreover, overall protection of the exposed intelligence ships had been slimmed down. Although the Defense Department declines official-ly to discuss such questions, it is known that two destroyers had been on station in the general area partly to protect the U. S. S. Banner (the Pueblo's predecessor spy ship along the Korean coast until early in January) but were transferred some six months ago.

There had been some warning of the attack on the Pueblo. In an unannounced incident several months ago, several Communist PT boats swarmed around the Banner and pestered her without actually boarding. The Jan. 9 broadcast from Radio Pyongyang in North Korea was unusually specific in its denunciation of "armed spy boats" charged with "infiltrating into the coastal waters . . . carrying espionage and subversive elements."

When he was assigned to the 25th Division's base camp at the rubber plantation town of Dau Tieng last August, the hospital was a dusty tent city. In six months of diligent scrounging, his company put up a plywood and concrete hospital with clean wards, an air conditioned operating room, X-ray facilities, a laboratory and a special receiving room, where 16 wounded men can be quickly sorted out at one time. All the buildings are sandbagged and there is a bunker to shelter patients during attacks.

There also is a ward for Vietnamese patients. The four doctors at the hospital care for about 30 Vietnamese outpatients daily. Wayne says he likes to perform plastic surgery on Vietnamese civilians who need it. "I've never seen a napalm case," he adds.

In Switzerland, 90 per cent of all mustard is sold in squeezable metal tubes.

"I Saw Wrinkles Vanish or Diminish in 2 Weeks"

NEW YORK (Special):—"Disappearance of small wrinkles was accomplished . . . even the very deepest wrinkles showed very great improvement." This dramatic report on the ingredients in Genava was made by a noted physician, specializing in dermatology, after tests made on a selected group of women. He saw these results with his own eyes.

With this substance new to cosmetics, named Genava, aging skin can start looking younger and younger—not older and older.

The physician also commented, "The small superficial wrinkles responded dramatically." And he adds that the skin was "more translucent and smoother in appearance."

These results are nothing short of amazing. And it took a new cosmetic compound to do it.

Developed by the trustworthy Nina laboratory, Genava is designed to be used under make-up and as a night cream. It is absorbed instantly. In two weeks time wrinkles will vanish or diminish greatly. That is the promise now made possible by Genava. Skin will become more translucent, younger-looking. Now available in selected stores—1.65 oz. $3.50; 4 oz. $5.00.

'Dove' Fulbright Challenged By Marine 'Hawk'

B. HARRY KELLY
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK A.R. (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, who hasn't had a serious election challenge since Arkansas sent him to the Senate 24 years ago, is threatened by a Marine hawk who contends Fulbright's opposition to U.S. policy in Vietnam is delaying the day of victory.

Fulbright's response: Plead his case to the voters and field their roughest questions.

The Senate's No. 1 dove isn't retreating from his criticism of President Johnson's Vietnam policy; in fact, he's telling his homefolk he doubts the administration now will accept anything less than victory in the war.

Fulbright's possible opponent in the August Democratic primary is former Gov. Sid McMath, a major general in the Marine Corps reserve who has two Marine officer sons—one in Vietnam.

McMath, now a Little Rock lawyer, is making an average of three speeches a week across the state, where hawkish sentiment is strong, contending Fulbright's criticism "is holding up victory" by receiving "undue attention."

Many observers see evidence that Fulbright is gaining strength through an increasing number of personal appearances. In each, he sets out his views briefly then invites questions from the audience.

His constituents respond with alacrity. They probe his stand on Vietnam; they prod him about his role in steering the Gulf of Tonkin resolution through the Senate; they worriedly inquire about the North Korean seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, and they bluntly ask the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee if his dissent is indeed prolonging the Vietnam war.

"I don't think it has any significance at all in keeping Ho Chi Minh from the negotiation table," Fulbright told one such gathering in Pine Bluff.

"Are you willing to accept the infallibility of one leader?" he demanded.

Fulbright is said to feel the administration will help McMath if the former governor decides to run against him.

But many political observers see Fulbright's strength reflected in former Gov. Orval Faubus' attitude.

Faubus held the state house for six straight terms before stepping out in 1966. The Democrats nominated Jim Johnson, but the voters defied tradition and elected a Republican, Winthrop Rockefeller.

Faubus has talked of taking on either Fulbright or Rockefeller this year, whichever appeared the weaker. Now Faubus is believed to have given up any idea of challenging fellow Democrat Fulbright in favor of zeroing in on Rockefeller.

The senator has been fence-mending since last fall, "discussing the issues" with the voters in 32 speeches and question-answer sessions.

In appearance in Pine Bluff, Searay and Hot Springs, Fulbright told his audiences that big-stick diplomacy is awesomely dangerous in a nuclear world, that restraint is needed in dealing with incidents such as the North Korean seizure of the Pueblo.

He recalled "our friends" the Israelis "shot a similar ship of ours almost out of the water at great loss of life." He reiterated to the attack on the USS Liberty last June during the Israel-Arab fighting.

"We didn't threaten them with atom bombs," said Fulbright. "I understand it is agreed informally to sell them more planes."

As for Vietnam, "politically, of course, a victory is preferable," he said.

"I keep hoping the President will recognize that it's in his interest and in the interest of country to bring it (the war) to a close by a negotiated settlement."

But, he said, "there always seems to be some obstacle to a negotiated settlement."

"I believe this administration is unwilling now to accept anything short of victory."

Fulbright told his audiences one reason he urges restraint over the Pueblo seizure "are the circumstances that grew out of the Tonkin Gulf."

In that 1964 incident the administration charged North Vietnamese PT boats attacked two U.S. destroyers on the high seas off North Vietnam. It became the basis for the resolution, which Fulbright steered through the Senate, expressing advance approval for U.S. steps in Southeast Asia.

But, Fulbright told the Searcy meeting, "The ships in the Tonkin Gulf incident were not always outside (North Vietnam's) 12 mile limit. I didn't know it at the time."

Because his Foreign Relations Committee is now re-examining the Tonkin Gulf incident and say, considering whether to have public hearings, Fulbright declined to elaborate except to

Farmer Committeemen Favor Federal Control

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Association of Farmer Elected Committeemen is in favor of a federal order aimed at limiting flame-cured tobacco marketings each week during the 1968 season.

Charles R. Reeves of Rt. 2, Garland, association president, said Saturday his group has asked Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to hold hearings on a proposed federal marketing order. State Grange groups in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia have made a similar request.

The association's executive committee met in Raleigh early this year and drafted the proposal for a federal order, Reeves said, and a majority of the organization's members endorsed the request.

The proposed federal order, he said, would be governed by an administrative committee comprised of between 10 and 15 members. At least two-thirds of them would be flue-cured growers. Other members would be from marketing and manufacturing segments of the industry.

The association favors establishing a total sales allotment for all growers in each belt by weeks. Reeves said the proposed order should "apportion the total sales allotment among growers on the basis of the current quantities available for sale during the season by each grower."

The executive committee said growers experienced "chaotic marketing conditions" during the 1967 season "and there is every reason to expect a recurrence in 1968 unless positive action is taken."

The group said "the problem was one of uneven flow of marketings from farmers, producing acute congestion at auction centers."

Reeves said other provisions in the proposed order would:

a marketing card on which each handler could be required to record all sales made on behalf of the grower.

4. Establish a minimum weekly sales quota.
5. Provide that a producer who marketed below his sales allotment for a given week could carry that allotment over to a subsequent week.
6. Adjust sales allotments, as needed and desired, within the different belts as the season progresses.

Dr. Gimarch will discuss "Applications of Molecular Orbital Ideas to Practical Problems of Chemistry." His address is open to scientists, student and any other interested persons in the surrounding area.

Clifton Blue To Support Scott

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Scott will have the support of former House Speaker Clifford Blue in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor of North Carolina.

Blue, an Aberdeen publisher who was defeated by Scott in his bid for lieutenant governor in 1964, said Saturday that Scott "has proven himself to be a responsible government leader."

Blue, former president of the N. C. Press Association, served in the State House of Representatives from 1947 through 1964 and will serve on Scott's campaign committee.

Trio Arrested In Holdup Case

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—Two adults and a teenager have been arrested and charged with the $22,001 armed robbery of a bank 10 miles southwest of their hometown of Kings Mountain.

The youth, Roy Gene Laws, 17, and another of the accused, Walter J. Riley, 36, has been picked up about an hour after Friday's robbery, but were released without charge.

Later Saturday they and Thornton Gantt, 50, were arrested at Gantt's home and charged in the robbery of the Grover, N.C., branch of the Blacksburg, S.C., State Bank. The branch is just inside South Carolina, about 25 feet from the North Carolina line.

They were arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Perry Swoford in Spartanburg and ordered held *in bond of $20,000 each. U.S. marshals took them to the Greenville County Jail.

Two men held the male bank manager and two women tellers at gunpoint and escaped with cash from the vault and tellers cages about 9:35 a.m. Friday. The men had stockings over their faces. Authorities said two stockings were found in the Bethlehem Church section between the robbery scene and where the car was located. They quoted a bank employee as saying the stockings were similar in color to those worn by the bandits.

Driver Of School Bus Is Charged

The driver, James Denton Hart, 17, of Lansing, N.C., posted a $500 bond Saturday. No hearing date has been set.

The Worry Clinic Mania For Gambling Worse Than Alcohol

Nate is a victim of what is often an incurable psychological disease. It is worse than chronic alcoholism or the narcotic habit! And it shows a selfish preoccupation with greed, for it always robs the other fellow. Thus, it violates one of the Ten Commandments, which is why most churches and state legislatures veto it!

By GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-579: Nate R., aged 28, is a problem husband. "Dr. Crane," his worried wife began, "our difficulty is not lack of boudoir harmony. "But it is driving me crazy and I can't find a solution. "Nate is a jolly, attractive man but he has a mania for gambling. "He thinks he can win a fortune by betting on the horses. "So he keeps poring over racing dope sheets all his spare

"win" success instead of "earning" it. "Alas, a lot of gamblers have a high I. Q. so the gambling fever doesn't necessarily indicate a moronic level of intelligence. "But it does show a lack of "horse sense" or gumption! "Here in Chicago a few years ago, the wife of one of our respected Judges was a chronic gambler, but without her husband's knowledge. "She kept losing over the long run, for the odds are always set to favor the bookie instead of the sucker. Finally, she even forged his name and borrowed to the hilt on their furniture! "A sucker may win occasionally but over the long pull, he is taken to the cleaners. "But chronic gamblers always think they can ultimately figure out a "system" that will quickly make them rich! "Sometimes, contrary to the attitude of Nate's wife, a sexual complex underlies the gambling fever. "For a man who feels below par, often thinks he can win back his wife's favor if he can surround her with quick wealth. "Actually, gambling is a sin! For even when the gambler wins, he cheats the losers out of that same sum of money! "And this violates the Ten

Exhibit From Rotten Galleries Slated

About 500 original etchings, lithographs and woodcuts by modern and old master artists will be on exhibit and on sale Thursday, Feb. 8, in the Elmer R. Browning Room of Rawl Building at East Carolina University. The prints by such artists as Picasso, Chagall, Lautree, Renoir, Rousault, Goya, Piranesi, Baskin and others come from the Ferdinand Rotten Galleries of Baltimore, Md. Here Rotten with the show will be Rotten Galleries representative Anthony G. Marsiglia. Interested persons have been invited by Donald Sexauer, chairman of printmaking in the ECU School of Art, to visit the exhibit. On view will also be a selection of outstanding manuscript pages from works of the 13th to 15th centuries. One of Rotten Gallery's special interests is the work of Kaethe Kollwitz, widely regarded as one of art history's most accomplished woman artists.

Combining Art And Politics

CHICAGO (AP) — Political hopeful Brian Duff has merged art and politics into a "Picasso-ketch," one of his devices for lining up voter support. Duff, of suburban Wilmette, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Illinois secretary of state. He shakes hands of visitors and art lovers as he stands by the giant Picasso sculpture beside the downtown Civic Center.

Freeman Cites Effort To Keep People On The Farm

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman says the Johnson administration is trying to keep 'em down on the farm through social and economic welfare programs which create jobs in rural areas. Rural Americans should not be forced to move to large cities to find work, he told a Junior Chamber of Commerce banquet Saturday night. Oscar Anderson Compton, 33, tobacco and grain farmer from Cedar Grove in Orange County was named the state's outstanding young farmer of the year during the banquet. Federal efforts to improve educational facilities, housing, medical care and employment opportunities in small cities and towns are slowing a migration from the country to overcrowded cities, Freeman said. "In a country as wealthy and advanced as ours, we should be able to put the jobs where the people are," he said. When the rural unemployed move into urban slums their situations are not improved, he added. Freeman also told of administration efforts to improve economic conditions in agriculture. He said:

Dr. Sellers Crisp Practicing Here

Dr. Sellers L. Crisp, a Greenville native has begun practicing orthopedic surgery in Greenville. He is associated with Dr. John L. Wooten and Dr. James F. Bowman. Dr. Crisp received his B. S. degree from Davidson College and graduated from the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. Dr. Crisp served as intern at Vanderbilt University Hospital and spent another year at Baltimore City Hospital before entering the Navy in 1962. He returned to Chapel Hill in 1964 to specialize in orthopedic surgery. A member of the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. Crisp is married to the former Nelson Blount of Greenville and they have one daughter, Mary Louise, age 4. He is the son of Mrs. Rose N. Crisp of Greenville and the late Dr. S. M. Crisp.

Watershed Plan To Be Presented

sonnel will present the work plan draft to Swift Creek watershed landowners for review and approval Wednesday night. B. Alton Gardner, chairman of Pitt County Drainage District number 3, has called the public meeting at Chocod High School auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7. The Swift Creek Watershed project consists of 110,230 acres in Pitt, Craven and Beaufort counties. Pitt, Beaufort and the Lower Neuse Soil and Water Conservation Districts, along with Pitt County Drainage District number 3 and the Board of Pitt County Commissioners, are sponsors of this multi-purpose watershed project. The Soil Conservation Service, with help from many federal and state agencies, has been assisting the local sponsors develop the watershed work plan. Don Williams, Administrator of the Soil Conservation Service, approved Swift Creek watershed for planning assistance on September 19, 1966. Approximately 9,900 people live in the watershed area. Don Russell.

A Few Feet Will Cost Much More

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A $600,000 control tower was built four years ago at Kansas City International Airport but it's 6 1/2 feet too short. So the city is going to spend $700,000 to build it 200 feet above the ground. Workmen will start new footings and build new walls outside the present structure, like a sleeve. The airport will be bigger than originally planned. A Federal Aviation Administration official explained: "If we can't see all the runways, then the airport can't operate." The March of Dimes, fighting birth defects, says 250,000 babies are born in the United States every year with significant defects.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A64 ♣75 ♦Q8432 ♠1095
Your partner opens with one spade. What is your response?

A—One no trump. Altho this hand appears to contain the elements of a single raise, it will be seen that it is worth only six points in support of spades (one point must be deducted for only three trumps).

Q. 2—Neither side vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠A10 ♣A1085 ♦AQ76 ♠KJ
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Three no trump. When partner is able to project the bidding into the two level, game is assured, and there is a fair chance for even better things. In order to alert partner to the possibilities, an immediate display of strength is recommended. If North has anything extra he will proceed.

Q. 3—Both sides vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠J5 ♣AK10974 ♦Q3 ♠A1085
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
3♥ Pass 3NT Pass

What action do you take?

A—Four clubs. With this sound hand and in view of partner's vigorous response, South must make one effort toward slam. The suggested call is four clubs. If North should then bid four diamonds, South should bid four hearts. Subsequent action would depend of course on North's bid at this point.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J3 ♣1082 ♦AKJ ♠QJ765
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass
2♥ Pass 2NT Pass
3♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A—Three no trump. No doubt partner has a singleton diamond, but this should not deter you inasmuch as your protection in that suit is so strong. A nine trick contract should prove easier than a minor suit game.

Q. 5—Both sides vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠AQJ98 ♣AKQ962 ♦83
The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1♥ Pass 2NT Pass
3♥ Pass 3NT Pass

What action do you take?

A—Four clubs. This is preferable to a bid of four hearts. Since partner has covered West's diamond bid, chances for slam are very good. The rebid of spades will appear to show that you have a 6-5 holding and will induce him to go on if his values are not concentrated in the club suit. That is, if he has the right kind of diamonds and spades.

Q. 6—Neither side vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠AKQ76 ♣76 ♦A2 ♠AQ1094
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♠ Dble. 2♥ Dble. 3♠ ?

What action do you take?

A—Double. This seems almost too good to be true. West was probably in an experimental frame of mind and no thought should be given to such petty matters as trying for game.

Q. 7—Both sides vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠A ♣A106 ♦AQ987 ♠KQ104
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ 1♠ 2♥ 3♥
1♦ 1♠ 2♥ 3♥
1♦ 1♠ 2♥ 3♥
1♦ 1♠ 2♥ 3♥

What do you bid now?

A—Three clubs. While you have adequate heart support a further temporizing bid is recommended. When you raise partner's suit on the next round, he will then have a complete picture of your distribution and may be in position to proceed further.

Q. 8—Neither side vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠A ♣A109863 ♦103 ♠KJ64
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ 1♠ 1♥ 1♥
1♠ 1♥ 1♥ 1♥
1♠ 1♥ 1♥ 1♥
1♠ 1♥ 1♥ 1♥

What do you bid now?

A—North's sequence of bids indicates a 6-5 distribution. On the surface, therefore, it seems that a return to three diamonds, the suit in which the partnership is known to have eight trumps, is clearly indicated. However, it is our belief that South should give himself an extra chance at this point by bidding three clubs. He knows that in hearts and clubs North has only two cards. If he has one of each, he will naturally return to three diamonds which South will pass, similarly if he has two clubs. But if he happens to have two hearts and no clubs he might be induced to give a delayed heart preference in which event South can decide whether to gamble it out for game.

Arrests Put Crimp In Cigarette Bootlegging

PRINCE GEORGE, Va. (AP)—Law officers just inside Virginia on the North Carolina border have developed an instinct for spotting cigarette bootleggers and reportedly average one arrest a day.

They are putting a small crimp in the multi-million dollar business of bootlegging cigarettes between North Carolina and New York, a Charlotte (N.C.) Observer reporter said in a weekend report.

With instinct, luck and occasional tips from an informer, Prince George patrolmen make the arrests along the 20-mile stretch along U.S. 301 and Interstate 95 just inside Virginia.

Prince George County Sheriff John H. Atwood has 17 men on his patrol force and estimates that in 14 months they have impounded more than 60,000 cartons of illegal cigarettes—bought in North Carolina and without tax stamps for Virginia (2½ cents-a-pack).

North Carolina has no state tobacco tax.

More than 13,000 cartons were impounded in 11 arrests during November alone, Atwood said.

Scofflaws Get Heavy Penalties

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Irate over "scofflaws who are treating Traffic Court as a joke," Chief Magistrate John P. Walsh dished out a total of $4,803 in fines to 18 offenders and served up a jail sentence to one motorist who failed to answer a summons.

The magistrate said he was trying to emphasize the seriousness of illegal parking in midtown Philadelphia and cut down on those who fail to answer summonses.

Anti-Stupidity Drive Waged

GRANADA HILLS, Calif. (AP)—"Stamp out Stupidity" is the motto of the new Smarteens Club at Granada Hills High School.

The club with 85 members is producing and displaying posters that illustrate the idea that using narcotics isn't wise.

Their lapel pins show the letters SOS.

Guppies Aid In Mosquito Control

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—A University of California at Riverside scientist has been commissioned by the United Nations World Health Organization to work on a mosquito control project utilizing guppies.

Dr. Ernest C. Bay will make a one-month trip to Thailand and Burma to learn whether certain guppies from Bangkok sewers can control disease-carrying mosquitos in Rangoon.

He speculated that the bootleg traffic may be increasing despite surveillance.

Most of the accused bootleggers get off rather cheaply. Hauling untaxed cigarettes in Virginia is a misdemeanor, punishable by a small fine.

The cigarettes can be recovered by paying Virginia's state tax and they can be hauled legally until they reach the Maryland state line.

Law officers note that the cigarettes can still be sold at high profits on the black market if they are finally smuggled into New York City, which has a combined city-state tax of 14 cents a pack.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled lower early this afternoon. Trading slowed from Friday's pace.

In initial dealings, gains outnumbered losses as Wall Street showed relief that the weekend had passed without any drastic new developments in the dangerous Asian situation.

As trading continued, however, the advantage for the plus side faded and losses outscored gains by nearly 150 issues on the New York Stock Exchange.

From loss of less than a point in the first half hour, the Dow Jones industrial average at noon showed a decline of 3.59 at 859.97.

Blue chips as well as high flying glamor stocks were among the losers; but there was also a liberal assortment of active advancing issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.1 at 313.8 with industrials off 1.7, rails off .5 and utilities off .4.

Gillette, nearly 2 points off, paced the list on volume.

Moore McCormack and Occidental Petroleum advanced more than 2 points each in active trading and Teledyne climbed nearly 2. Control Data was briskly traded and up about 1.

American Telephone, down nearly a point, was among the active issues.

Gulf & Western sank more than 2 points.

Pfizer and Standard Oil of California lost a point each.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange, with trading at about the same pace as Friday.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was steady to one-half cent higher. Price of live poultry at the farms was 12-12½, mostly 12½ cents per pound.

Appraiser W. S. Chandler Earns SRA Distinction

CHICAGO, Ill. — The Society of Real Estate Appraisers' board of governors has awarded the Senior Residential Appraiser designation of Wallace S. Chandler of Greenville.

Chandler is division appraiser, North Carolina State Highway Commission.

He is a member of the Society's Eastern Carolina Chapter and has nine years experience in appraising residential and commercial properties.

Chandler received his B. S. degree from North Carolina State University and has completed real estate and appraising courses sponsored by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, North Carolina Real Estate Institute and Carolina Business College.

Attainment of the SRA membership designation requires extensive practical appraisal experience, ability, knowledge of the current real estate market and adherence to the Society's code of ethics.

Only 3,700 appraisers of the Society's membership of over 18,000 throughout the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico have qualified for this designation which carries the professional endorsement of the Society.

Chandler received his B. S. degree from North Carolina State University and has completed real estate and appraising courses sponsored by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, North Carolina Real Estate Institute and Carolina Business College.

Youth Dies Of Stab Wounds

SNOW HILL — A 16-year-old boy died early Saturday morning as he was being brought to Greenville for medical aid.

The youth was identified by the Greene County Sheriff's Department as Billy Ray Speight, Negro, of Rt. 2, Walstonburg. He reportedly had been stabbed in the leg.

He was taken first to Farmville and then to Greenville.

The Sheriff's Department said investigation of the case is underway.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO LOSE WEIGHT

"Eat less!" Doctors will tell you that's the one sure way to lose weight. Think it's difficult to do? Try Ayds, the low-calorie dietary made in candy form. It contains no drugs, no laxatives, no bulk—only vitamins and minerals. Taken as directed, Ayds curbs your appetite. You automatically eat less, because you want less and so lose weight naturally. On the Ayds Plan, you never have to starve yourself, never have to live on liquids. You find that you eat what you want, but you don't overeat. Clinically proved safe and effective. Get Ayds—vanilla caramel or chocolate fudge-type. You must lose weight with your first box ($3.25) or return the box to Campana, Batavia, Illinois, for your money back.

Chronic Ticket Violators Are Target Of Computer

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The slender fashion model plucked the parking ticket from the windshield of her Cadillac and tossed it on the front seat.

Ho hum. It was the 65th time she had done it.

And then she became a member of the 10 most wanted—chronic traffic violators.

Chicago has borrowed a technique from the FBI to help crack down on chronic traffic violators who ignore their fines. A list of the "10 most wanted parking violators" is compiled and made public with arrest warrants issued.

Any patrolman would have coveted an assignment to track down the shapely model scofflaw but it was a computer that got the goods on her and 150 other drivers who failed to pay for multiple parking violations in 1966.

The model, 23, slipped 65 tickets under the visor, in the glove compartment or into the gutter in 1966. For that, Judge Raymond Berg slipped her a fine of $975.

Chicago policemen issue two million parking tickets a year. At $10 a copy this is big business. A few years ago, however, the city noticed that collections weren't so good because drivers were ignoring the yellow envelopes tucked under their windshield wipers.

Irwin Cohen, assistant city attorney, explained how the electronic investigator got its start. "The idea was born in 1965," Cohen said. "Judge Felix Buocchio, chief of the traffic division of Circuit Court, realized that manpower couldn't handle the volume of work, sorting out tickets and pinpointing the violators by checking registration of license plates."

The computer was purchased in 1965. Like any police rookie, it wasn't a perfect sleuth.

"It had some bugs," Cohen said. "It didn't fully mature until programming difficulties were resolved late in 1966."

Once the computer was set up to record the parking tickets issued and tied in with the secretary of state's records of license plate registrations, it was only a matter of time before the first "10 most wanted" list appeared in Chicago newspapers.

"We put out warrants for 110 arrests," Cohen said. "About 10 persons have come in voluntarily and 30 persons served with warrants have appeared in court and have been fined."

The first 150 offenders tagged by the computer had more than 40 tickets each for 1966. After this batch is disposed of, the computer will continue until every parking ticket is matched with the car owner.

Few of the violators have paid in full. Judge Berg accepts a partial payment and sets up an installment plan payment schedule.

"If they come in voluntarily,"

Cohen said, "we try to give them as much of a break as possible. Once a warrant has been issued for their arrest, then we ask at least $15 a ticket to cover the additional expense."

Business has been booming since the first of the "most wanted" lists was published, Cohen said. "Our traffic department payment office has been swamped by people who know now that they have to pay parking tickets or get caught by the computer."

Cohen said that drivers license numbers, which are now required with license applications in Illinois, will be fed to the computer. In the future, a policeman can check any driver he stops to learn if parking violations are on the motorist's record.

The computer is also linked with the police department's criminal records computer for quick checking of various records.

Martin Officers Catch Escapace

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Sheriff's officers re-captured an escaped prisoner near here Saturday night.

Teddy W. McDowell, 26 of Randolph County was taken into custody, Sheriff Raymond Rawl said, on a rural dirt road about five miles from Williamston.

The Sheriff said McDowell was an escapee from the Ashboro Prison Unit where he had been serving time for two counts of armed robbery.

He said residents of the area reported a "strange subject" there and investigating deputies found McDowell.

Charge Driver In 3-Car Accident

Kenneth Carney, 23-year-old Route 1, Bethel Negro was charged with following too closely in a three-vehicle mishap here late Saturday night.

Investigators said the Mobley auto and cars driven by Hubert Corneay, 23-year-old Negro of Route 6, Greenville and Wilmer Marshall Fleming, 21-year-old Negro of Route 6, Greenville were involved in the 11:30 p.m. mishap on N. C. 11-U. S. 13 300 feet North of the Tar River Bridge.

Police placed damages to the vehicles at $50 to the Fleming car, $100 to the Corneay auto and $200 to the Carney vehicle.

Minister Speaks To Local Club

The Rev. John W. Drake Jr. was guest speaker at the Thursday meeting of the Senior Citizens Club.

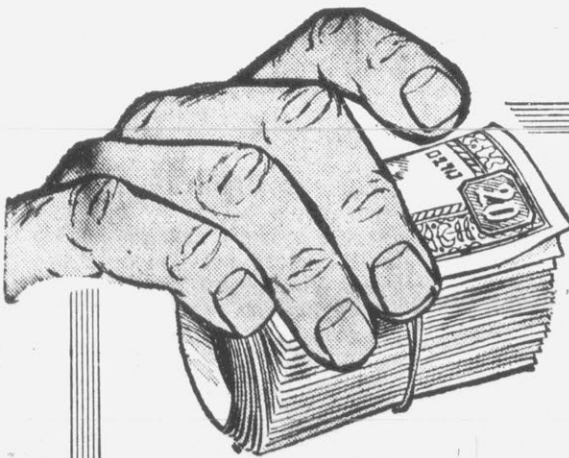

He narrated the story of Abraham.

Mrs. B. M. Reagan, president, presided at the meeting. She reminded members that for the next meeting, a luncheon would be held.

Alton Little, who gave the devotional, said that the state convention would be held in Raleigh.
