Fourth Night Of Campus Violence

Three Killed In Exchange Of Shots Between Lawmen And Orangeburg, S. C. Students

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) — Three Negro students were killed in a brief but bloody exchange of gunfire with police Thursday night in the fourth night of violence on two adjoining college campuses.

Thirty-seven other persons were injured in the outburst, which started when state troopers and National Guardsmen attempted to push the students back onto a campus to douse fires they had started.

The crack of gunfire or fireworks could be heard throughout the night from the grounds of South Carolina State College and Claflin College, both predominantly Negro institutions, but this morning all was quiet.

The outbursts began Monday night with a rock-throwing demonstration against the All-Star Bowling Lanes, a privately owned alley operated by Harry K. Floyd on a segregated basis. Students from the two colleges have been trying for months to integrate the facility.

Thirteen persons were injured in flare-ups earlier this week.

Chief J. P. Strom of the State

Law Enforcement Division said Cleveland Sellers, 25, South Carolina coordinator of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), was arrested after the incident Thursday night on charges of inciting to riot. He was taken to the South Carolina Penitentiary at Columbia and held under $50,000 bond.

Associated Press photographer Dozier Mobley, who was on the scene of the shootings, said the incident lasted only three or four minutes.

He said the students had set a bonfire near the entrance to South Carolina State College, another near a warehouse across a street, and another by throwing a gasoline bomb against a nearby home of an elderly white woman, Mrs. Mammie Brunson.

About 50 policemen moved in from an intersection 1 1/2 blocks away where the college area had been sealed off. They were followed by about 50 National Guardsmen.

Mobley said the police ordered the Negroes back onto the campus so firemen could enter the area. The police then moved in and the Negroes began throwing rocks and bottles, Mobley said. One patrolman, D. J. Shealy, was struck with a club.

Police took Shealy to a cruiser, which left for a hospital. Then the police started back up a slope toward the group of about 75 Negroes and a shot rang out.

"Get down," the lead policeman yelled. "They're shooting at us!"

"Then the shooting started," Mobley said. "In a few minutes it was quiet and the police moved up the slope and started carrying down the dead and injured." Several ambulances carried them to Orangeburg Regional Hospital.

The dead included Samuel Hammond, 18, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., a freshman, and Delano Middleton, 17, an Orangeburg high school pupil. Henry Smith, 18, of Marion, S. C., a sophomore, died several hours later. Hammond and Smith were students at South Carolina State.

Authorities at the hospital said this morning all 37 injured, including Shealy, were released after emergency room treatment.

Col. Walter Mebane, ROTC commander at South Carolina State, discounted reports that weapons had been stolen from the ROTC armory on the campus. But he acknowledged that "less than 150 rounds" of .22 caliber ammunition were unaccounted. Mebane said, however, that windows in the armory were broken after Thursday night's shooting incident.

The National Guard sealed off the campuses after the shootings. Guardsmen also cordoned off a five-block downtown area and the shopping center where the bowling alley is situated to guard against looting. Shortly after dawn, all pickets were withdrawn. No looting was reported.

The 500 guardsmen remained on duty at the Orangeburg armory.

Col. Robert McCrady, commanding the Guardsmen, said at a news conference his men carried loaded rifles, but "not one guardsman fired one round of ammunition."

He said state troopers fired "only after being fired at first by hostile students."

Detailed Study To Take Perhaps 15 Months

Thoroughfare Study Project Adopted By City Councilmen

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
The city will enter into an agreement with the State Highway Commission for a detailed thoroughfare study to be conducted by the Highway Commission's planning department.

Councilmen last night agreed to payment of the city's share for conducting such a study. The city will pay $2,425 on Oct. 1, 1968 and an equal amount upon completion of the study.

City Manager Harry Hagerly said the value of the study is conservatively estimated at $12,125.

"The State Highway Commission contends that, until a detailed thoroughfare planning study is conducted and approved, no firm action can be taken towards implementing a thoroughfare plan," Hagerly told the council.

He said that he has seen such studies prepared for other cities and described the information obtained as "terrific." The study here will require approximately 15 months to complete.

In another action the council agreed to pay one-third of the right-of-way cost for improvements to Mumford Road, not to exceed $5,000. The Highway Commission announced this week that it was calling for bids on the Mumford Road project in conjunction with a project to widen Greene Street north of the Tar River.

Councilmen set for March 14 a hearing on Community Antennae Television System. At that time the council will hear groups interested in obtaining the CATV franchise locally.

Also set for March 14 was a public hearing on annexation of property on S. Evans Street owned by First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The council approved on a priority basis paving and curb and gutter project on Seventh Street from Cotanche to Charles; Charles from Seventh to Eighth and James Street from Seventh to Eighth.

The project will provide paved access streets into the women's dorm areas at ECU. Public Works Supt. Kenneth Beatty also pointed out that the cost of maintaining the dirt street on Seventh into Cotanche is high.

Councilmen heard a letter from Dr. Howard H. Grady requesting that he be notified if a building permit were issued for Lots 10 and 11 in Sheraton Place. The council was told Lot 11 is zoned commercial but 10 is zoned residential.

The council reaffirmed a resolution calling for the extension of N.C. 903, as requested by R.B. Nelson of Robersonville.

They also agreed to restore parking on the west side of Jarvis between Fourth and Fifth, following a trial period of no parking on either side of the block.

Sweeney Moyer appeared to protest street widening on First Street without giving property owners a chance to be heard. City Manager Hagerly pointed out that the street is being widened on city right-of-way with the curb line still four feet from the property lines. The new curbing is already installed.

Councilmen approved a resolution directing the city manager to advertise for sale property on which taxes are more than three years in arrears.

The council approved a traffic light plan on state maintained city streets except to object to the elimination of the traffic light at Fifth and Tyson.

City Manager Hagerly reported that a study of vehicles parked on city streets and not registered at the university had been forwarded to the university. He said he had been informed that disciplinary action has been taken against 61 persons who attend the university but have failed to register the autos.

U.S. Troops Aid In Clearing VC Holdout Forces

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — Helicopters landed U.S. troops on Saigon's racetrack today to help rout out diehard Viet Cong forces as the North Vietnamese increased pressure against Da Nang and more Communist tanks were reported sighted near Khe Sanh.

Heavy fighting was reported across South Vietnam's northern sector, with 321 Communists and 67 U.S. troops killed Thursday, most of them in battles around Khe Sanh and Da Nang and in Hue. Another 170 Americans were wounded.

Troops from the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade were landed in the center of the Saigon racetrack and quickly took up positions to bolster South Vietnamese forces having slowing going blasting the Reds out of Cholon, the Chinese quarter and adjoining areas on the southwest side of Saigon.

Thursday night the Viet Cong turned down a block of homes just south of the track. The region had been declared pacified two days ago, but the Viet Cong either surfaced from hiding or slipped back into the city. A Viet Cong battalion is reported to control 20 blocks east and south of the race course.

It was the third time American troops have been used in the battle of Saigon that began last Wednesday. Paratroops of the 101st Airborne Division were helicoptered onto the roof of the U.S. Embassy when Red commandos invaded the embassy grounds Jan. 31. Two days later an armored column of the 25th Infantry Division helped clear out Viet Cong forces from the racetrack area.

Work In The Area Already Underway

Final Contracts Signed For River Retaining Wall

Contracts with Blythe Bros. of Charlotte have been executed for construction of a retaining wall and esplanade along the Tar River bank in the Shore Drive Redevelopment area.

Col. A. E. Dubber reported to the Redevelopment Commission yesterday that the final contracts have been signed. Work in the area is already underway.

At a cost of approximately $390,000, the firm will build a retaining wall which will stretch 1,600 feet from the Tar River Bridge to the creek on the eastern boundary of Shore Drive.

The wall will raise the flood level along the bank. The area behind will be filled in and a 15 foot wide walkway, or esplanade will be constructed on top. Behind this will be a low brick wall.

Blythe Bros. was low bidder for the project last year, but awarding of the contracts was held up pending an amendment to the Shore Drive agreement, which meant additional federal funds. Blythe Bros. extended its bid and the amendment was approved last month. This cleared the way for the Redevelopment Commission to award the contract.

The wall and esplanade will make more of the low land along the river bank usable, as well as adding beauty to the area. All of the land north of First Street to the river from Greene Street to the eastern boundary has been reserved for purchase by the city.

The contract calls for completion of the project within 360 days. However, Dubber reported that the contractor expects to finish the job in less time than that.

The commission yesterday also approved a second appraisal of the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church property to be done by Lester Turnage at a cost of $400.

Commissioners heard an opinion from the state attorney general's office that it could legally purchase the junior high school property without a public bidding.

Study Possible Plans For Business District

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Preliminary plans for the Central Business District improvement project were reviewed this morning by members of the Redevelopment Commission, City Council representatives and the Chamber of Commerce-Merchants Association's downtown improvement committee.

Bob Anderson of City Planning and Architectural Associates, Chapel Hill, told the group that access to the central business area is a major problem to be faced.

According to the planner, access "is one of the advantages shopping centers have over a central business district."

Emphasizing the plans presented at the session were only possible solutions, Anderson talked of the possibility of establishing a plaza or mall in the Five Points area, as well as creating a mall from Five Points northward along Evans Street to Third Street.

Another possible plan presented, included the closing of Fifth Street and establishing a mall from Five Points, eastward to Reade Street.

Recommending that through traffic should be routed around the central business district rather than through it as it exists now with the present Fifth Street, Anderson recommended a loop be constructed to the south of the business district, to handle the East-West traffic.

Such a loop road could connect with East Fifth Street in the area of the Reade Street intersection and curve to a point South of Sheppard Memorial Library then continue westward to Bonner's Lane, completing the business area bypass by joining with West Fifth Street in the area of the Albemarle Avenue intersection.

Anderson stressed the importance of making such a connection a high-quality facility, possibly including four travel lanes and turning lane - to encourage motorists to use the facility rather than travel smaller roads in the downtown area.

The Central Business District project, Anderson said, will require the cooperation of both the land owners and city government. He termed the program "a partnership" between the two groups.

"The city, the public investors... provide the streets, access and parking, while the land owner is responsible for fixing up his property to the level of public improvements."

Rehabilitation or building standards will be set by which to gauge rehabilitation by land owners, Anderson explained.

Four Found Guilty Of Assault And Damages

Four men, charged in a Monday night rampage that began at a downtown night spot, moved to an East Greenville residential area, then ended at the Western edge of the city, were found guilty in Greenville Municipal Records Court yesterday.

The group, all members of the U. S. Marine Corps stationed at Cherry Point, gave notice of appeal to Pitt County Superior Court.

Robert J. Boudreau Jr., 19, the apparent leader of the foray, pled guilty to three counts of assault and two charges of damage to personal property.

Judge Charles Whedbee ordered 30-day jail terms in each of the assault cases - the sentences to run one after the other to total 90 days - then handed down 12-month jail sentences in the two damage to personal property cases. However, Judge Whedbee ordered the two 12-month terms suspended on condition Boudreau pay court costs and make restitution for damages resulting from his acts.

Testimony before the court indicated that Boudreau first assaulted Pell Lassiter Jr. of Kinston at a parking lot beside The Ruins on East Fourth St., then damaged the side of a car owned by Michael C. Jackson of Kinston by kicking the vehicle.

Boudreau also pled guilty to assaulting Jimmy Smith III, a Greenville Police reserve officer, at the parking lot as Smith tried to calm the situation.

A few minutes later, the service man, witnesses told, threw a chair into a storm door at 403 Jarvis St. breaking the glass from the door. Boudreau then assaulted Henry McLawhorn at the West End Circle Drive-in. McLawhorn is still hospitalized from facial injuries received in the assault.

Witnesses, who said the three other men, Michael M. Wenderford, 20; Daniel E. Fine, 21; and Robert A. Godwin, 21; did not actually take part in the assaults and property damage acts. They noted that they did not attempt to stop Boudreau.

Charged with aiding and abetting in the assaults and damage to personal property cases that Boudreau pled guilty to the three entered a plea of not guilty. They were found not guilty of the damage to personal property at the 403 Jarvis Street house. Judge Whedbee, however, found the three guilty of the other charges.

He sentenced those men to six-month jail terms but suspended the sentences on condition they "make or cause to be made restitution" for property damage suffered by Mrs. Charles Blanchard (owner of the 403 Jarvis St. home) and the Jackson car, and for personal injuries of McLawhorn, Smith and Lassiter. The suspension of active sentence also included the provision the men not visit Greenville for two years.

Fine, from Route 1, Denton, is a former East Carolina University student. He began his studies here in September 1964 and remained through August 1966.

Godwin and Wenderford are both Viet Nam veterans.

Whedbee Enters Judgeship Race

Greenville Records Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee today announced his candidacy for the office of District Judge in the May 4 Democratic primary.

The Greenville native has been judge of the Greenville Municipal Records Court since 1951. Prior to that time Whedbee served several terms as solicitor of the Pitt County Records Court.

"I have always done my very best to see that equal justice was done to all," Whedbee said. "I hope and I believe that my record speaks for itself. I am willing to stand on it."

The judge termed the new court system a "long-overdue and much needed reform."

"It will, I think," the jurist continued, "result in a better and more efficient administration of justice. I hope that voters will see fit to allow me to continue to serve."

Whedbee is the son of the late Superior Court Judge Harry W. Whedbee and the late Sallie L. Whedbee. He attended the Greenville City Schools and the University of North Carolina where he completed his undergraduate work and received his law degree.

Professionally the recorders court judge is a member of the Pitt County, North Carolina and Third Judicial District Bar Associations, the North Carolina State Bar, and the American Judicature Society. He also holds the certificate for completion of the advanced course for traffic judges given by the National Safety Council and was one of the organizers of the Pitt County Safety Council and has served two terms as president of that organization.

Shortly after being named to the recorders court bench here, Judge Whedbee was awarded a citation by the American Bar Association - National Safety Council for conducting one of the most improved traffic courts in this section of North Carolina.

About 18 months ago, Whedbee's court was chosen as one of three courts in the state to be assigned the exclusive services of a special Alcoholic Probation officer as part of a pilot program to work with alcoholics. The other two courts participating in the project are Asheville and Charlotte.

Whedbee is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church where he has served several terms as a member of the Board of Vestry and one term as Senior Warden.

At present he is Chancellor of St. Paul's Parish and is a licensed and practicing lay reader in the church.

The jurist is holder of the Green Band Award, the highest award in Scouting on the district level, and is a 32nd degree Mason, having taken both the Scottish Rite and York Rite of Masonry. He is master of the Eleventh Degree, Scottish Rite Masonry, Valley of New Bern and a Shriner as well as a member of the Greenville Moose Lodge.

In addition to his practice of law and judicial duties, Whed-

CHARLES H. WHEDBEE

bee is a regular panel member on the early morning television show "Carolina Today."

Judge Whedbee is also author of a book of short stories published in 1966, "Legends of the Outer Banks," now in its fourth printing.

He is married to the former Rachel Morgan of Spring Hope. Whedbee's filing fee was presented to him by fellow-lawyers of the Pitt County Bar.

Evacuating Refugees From Base

SAIGON (AP) — American transport planes began evacuating to safety today thousands of Vietnamese and Laotian soldiers and civilians who descended on the U.S. Marine combat base at Khe Sanh after the fall of the Lang Vei Special Forces camp.

Big C130 transports started flying the 5,000 to 6,000 refugees to Da Nang to refugee centers. They included about 2,000 Laotian civilians and some soldiers from a Laotian army battalion who escaped to Lang Vei last month after their post in Laos was overrun by the North Vietnamese troops; local Brou mountain tribesmen, Vietnamese civilians and about 200 Vietnamese and Montagnard irregulars from the garrison of the Lang Vei Special Forces camp.

The horde of refugees streamed to the outer defensive wire of the Khe Sanh base late Wednesday and throughout Thursday, but the Marines refused to let them in and took away the weapons from the soldiers among them.

Pitt Demo Women Told Major Issue Disrespect For The Law

"The major issue in the elections of 1968 will be the rising tide of disrespect for law and order in North Carolina and throughout the nation," Senator Robert B. Morgan of Lillington told members of the Pitt County Democratic Women at their winter meeting last night.

Morgan, chairman of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees, continued, "Notwithstanding the tremendous progress made in our state, there are those who say that our society is unjust because we have not supplied them with their every want."

"They have threatened violence and have sought to impose their will on others by acts of threats and intimidation," the speaker noted.

He said the citizens of North Carolina must confront such fomenters of strife with a firm determination to maintain law and order. "Every person is free to disagree with the law but no person is free to disobey it," he added.

Morgan said law enforcement officers are on the front lines—it is they who will protect us in the right to walk the streets and be safe in our homes. He said there are less SBI agents in the state than there are FBI officers because of low salaries.

"The Democratic Party must confront today's issues head-on. We have made great progress in the areas of education, hospitals and mental health," the speaker stated. "We must continue our efforts in the removal of slum areas. North Carolina must provide to all of its citizens opportunity for achievement. Let us all work for a better democratic future."

Miss Janice Hardison served as program chairman and Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst was hospitality chairman.

A short business meeting presided over by Mrs. David Speir conducted the meeting.

WEATHER FORECAST — Friday night snow and flurries are forecast in the Northeastern states, in the Great Lakes area and throughout the Appalachians. Showers are forecast for the mountains of California. It will be colder in the Midwest and warmer along the Gulf Coast. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Another Crisis For Old Flagship

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Cruiser Olympia, which braved Spanish shot and shell as Commodore George Dewey's flagship in the battle of Manila Bay, faces another crisis—this one financial.

The ship, a relic of that May, 1, 1898 encounter, is berthed here. Casper J. Knight Jr., president of the Cruiser Olympia Association, says the ship is in dire need of repairs, but there is no money for them. Knight said it would take $250,000 to restore the ship.

Pair Charged In Recent Thefts

Two East Carolina University students have been charged with larceny in connection with the theft of a dog box from Lenoir County and an outboard motor from Greene County.

Greenville detectives, called to the university by dormitory officials to investigate an outboard motor in a room at Scott Dohm, led to the discovery that the motor had been stolen over the weekend from Greene County. Subsequent investigation led officers to a dog box, reported stolen Saturday or Sunday from Lenoir County.

The two were identified as Robert Charles Ballard, 19, of Wallace and Jerry Holmes Sheffield, 20, of Rose Hill.

Lenoir and Greene County officers charged the two with the thefts from those counties, while Pitt County Sheriff's officers charged Ballard with larceny of a state highway sign.

Officers said Ballard allegedly took a Ballards Cross Roads sign from a Pitt County highway.

Valentine Cards Will Cost Six Cents To Mail

Postage for all Valentines, one ounce or lighter, is six cents. Postmaster Joseph C. Dudley reminded mailers today.

The first class postage rate will provide jet flight service for Valentines destined to servicemen in Vietnam and other overseas locations as well as airlift treatment for most domestic addresses more than 250 miles from the mailing point.

Dudley said the legislation which went into effect on Jan. 7 eliminated the four-cent rate for greeting cards.

"We have a large volume of Valentine greeting cards each year and this year will be no exception," the Postmaster said. "Please mail your Valentine cards as soon as possible so that they may be delivered before Valentine's Day."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Due to leave office at the end of the month, John W. Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare, has stated again his belief the nation's domestic problems are being dealt with inadequately.

Gardner's decision to resign has been widely attributed to a feeling that expenditures for the war are sapping strength from the government's efforts to cope with social needs.

"I do not believe that as a nation we have acknowledged the seriousness of our situation," the Cabinet official said Thursday in a speech to an annual business press meeting. "We must bring to bear on those problems the best minds and energies that this nation can offer."

In a passage clearly aimed at racial problems, he said: "Any one who has listened too the sages from the ghetto and the words uttered in panelled offices and country clubs knows that there are destructive and divisive sentiments in circulation that could tear the country apart."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost every politician can claim to have been a Boy Scout once, but few know the Scouts' secret handshake. Harold Wilson does.

The British prime minister, introduced to a group of Scouts Thursday at a White House ceremony, did the "in" thing by extending not his right hand but his left for the interlocking grip.

Recalling that in his Scouting days "I could certainly tie my Tenderfoot knots," he added: "Now I spend more time trying to get out of knots than tying them."

"The responsibility of power, Mr. President, as you know, means not only loneliness. In a democracy it means facing demands for punitive action whenever national interests are outraged. The hardest part of statesmanship is to show restraint in the face of that exasperation, all those understandable demands for actions which, however immediately satisfying, could have incalculable effects—effects indeed for the whole world."—British Prime Minister Harold Wilson in speech at White House dinner.

Kipling, Gershwin Can't Hurt The Prime Minister

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sticks and stones may break his bones, but you can't hurt Prime Minister Harold Wilson with Kipling—nor yet Gershwin.

Wilson, who conferred for hours Thursday with President Johnson, found the White House in a minor tizzy about the musical selections that had been arranged for the evening's entertainment.

Baritone Robert Merrill of the Metropolitan Opera was to sing Gershwin's "I Got Plenty O' Nuttin'" and Kipling's "Road to Mandalay." But then came troubling second thoughts: might these songs rub a little salt in the wounds of a prime minister who recently had to devalue his nation's currency and announce plans to cease British military operations in the Far East?

Wilson took everyone off the hook when he asked that there be no last-minute changes on his account.

"Look," he told Elizabeth Carpenter, Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, "I like the songs. Mr. Merrill likes the songs. I hope Mr. Merrill won't change them."

So Merrill followed the program as originally laid out, tossing in "It Ain't Necessarily So" as an encore, in addition to an aria from "La Traviata."

Then he teamed with the Met's Veronica Tylor on "You'll Never Walk Alone," a natural for a dinner at which many of the toasts touched on the theme of enduring partnership between the United States and Great Britain.

Wrong Phrase, But Did Answer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Belva Jean Belcher, 22, forgot the right phrase but answered anyway Thursday when she appeared in Maricopa County Superior Court.

The state's star witness at a trial charging a man with intimidating a witness, Miss Belcher told the judge: "I'm not going to testify. It ake the 10th commandment."

Sweden's Prisons Trying The 'Family Living Plan'

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A revolutionary prison experiment that would allow long-term inmates regular vacations with their families is underway in Sweden.

The new plan by the prison authorities is a follow-up of a first successful experiment last summer when a specially selected group of paragon prisoners were granted a few weeks' mountain holiday with their mates. Now, the National Prison Board, headed by director general Torsten Eriksson, has decided to give "unreliable" inmates a chance too.

"We have to experiment to make progress in prison welfare," said Torsten Eriksson, who has 35 years experience in the field.

Eriksson and the Swedish Prison Board during the past year have carried out three experiments termed unique in the world. They were:

One—"prisoners' university," located at Uppsala north of here, where gifted inmates study and take even highly qualified courses. They are also allowed to go on to their own into Stockholm University.

Two—"The vacation prison" at Haerjedalen, north Sweden, where model inmates from open institutions had a nice three-weeks summer holiday. There was nothing to bar them, but none escaped.

Three—"The so-called 'family prison' near Uppsala. Long-term inmates are allowed to live in villas, together with their wives during the last part of their terms. Three villas are currently housing inmates who served long sentences in closed institutions. There is hardly any surveillance. The experiment has proved successful so far, spokesmen for the prison authorities said.

blooded robbery-murder about six years ago, moved into a modern three-room villa to spend a delayed honeymoon with his pretty young wife.

The couple married last November during a few hours extra leave granted the inmate. The prison board's "wedding present" was a promise that he could serve the rest of his term in the probably unique "family prison" situated at Knutsby about 35 miles north of here. The inmate and his wife moved in last month in time for Christmas. It was their first meeting since the wedding.

"They will be allowed to stay in the house until we find that he may be released. His term will certainly be shortened if he behaves, but he will probably have to wait a few years for his release," Torsten Eriksson explained.

The villa, for which the prisoners pay a near nominal rent of a couple of hundred crowns (about $40) a month, is unguarded and casual surveillance is extremely discreet.

While serving his sentence "at home", the convicted robber-murderer pursues his studies on work therapy while moving and working freely in the society and enjoying all the blessings of ordinary home and family life. The inmate, while taking a Bible course in prison, became deeply religious and met his wife at a free church congregation he attended on furloughs.

There are currently only a few such villas in Sweden today but prison authorities plan to extend the system on a large scale providing it works out well.

Work is fundamental to the Swedish prison system and many of the open institutions—now amounting to one fourth of the prisons—function as "factory prisons" on terms similar to any outside plant.

The prison authorities are striving to increase the percentage of open institutions to half of all prison facilities.

Despite all the liberality, Swedish prisoners do escape. The escape rate in 1966 (complete figures for 1967 are still unavailable) was 8.2 per cent. A large number of these escapees, however, were inmates who did not return from furloughs, or returned late.

And what do the Swedish people say about the increasingly "soft deal" some Swedish convicts get? (Others are still put behind maximum-security 20-foot high walls under close guard.)

A random sampling of "man-in-the-street" sentiment indicated a possible majority taking a favorable attitude at least toward allowing inmates more opportunity to see their mates.

A young switchboard operator's comment is typical:

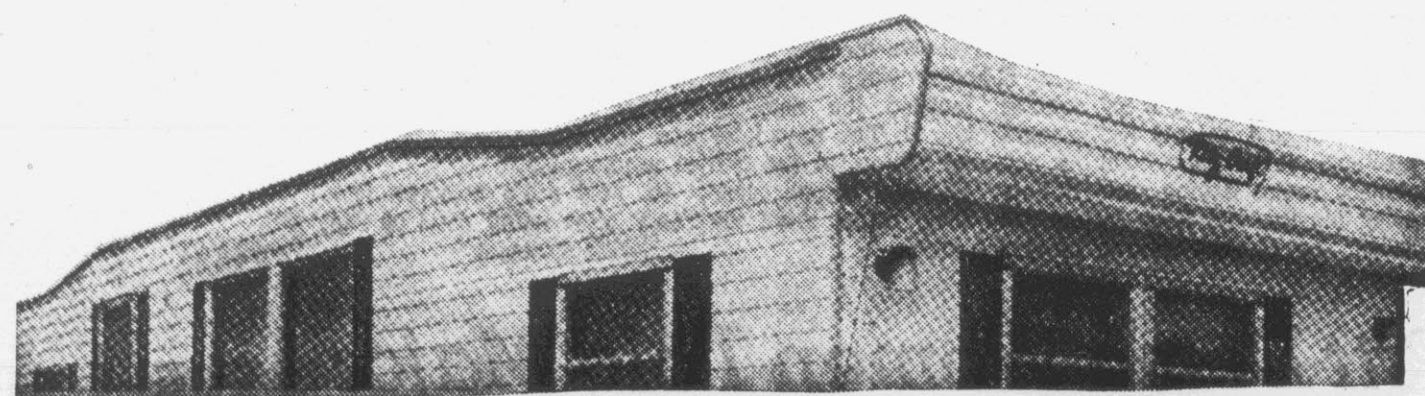

"It seems quite natural to me that new thinking in prison welfare leads to new rules that allow increased contacts between inmates and their wives or husbands. It is tragic that the family members should be punished too."

Homemaker's Haven

By MRS. MAVIS G. JOHNSON

Pitt Home Agent

Throughout the month of January, the Extension Homemakers Club's program emphasized home management. Many of the club women exchanged household hints, and the hints may be helpful to you.

1) Buy the large plastic bottle of bleach; when empty, cut the bottom of the bottle off and use it as a plastic holder for hats. Milk bottles also make good hat holders.

2) If you have trouble with bathroom mirrors fogging while taking a hot shower, try running the cold water first and then turn on the hot water and adjust to the right temperature for your shower.

3) For a low-calorie sour cream, blend one cup cottage cheese and 2 tablespoons vinegar in a blender.

4) To remove dents in a wooden bowl or cutting board, cover the dent with a damp cloth and steam with a hot iron.

A cake recipe you might like to try was given to five Pitt County women who attended the Coastal Plain Area Home Economics Committee meeting in Rocky Mount on January 30th. Samples were available at the meeting which were made by Mrs. Andrews, President of the Home Economics Committee and they were very tasty.

HOME ECONOMICS COMMITTEE POUND CAKE

2½ cups sifted flour (self-rising)
2 cups sugar
1½ cups vegetable oil
4 eggs yolks
1 cup crushed pineapple (with juice)
2 tablespoons hot water
2½ tablespoons cinnamon or ½ nutmeg, ½ cinnamon
1 cup chopped pecans
4 egg whites beaten stiffly
Combine all ingredients in order except nuts and egg whites. Beat well. Add nuts and fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into an ungreased tube pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven for one hour, or a few minutes longer. Let cool in pan before turning out on plate. Moist and good!

Accountant Exec. Gives Seira Club Program Tuesday

Bob Ange, Account Executive for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., of Wilson spoke to the Seira Book Club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Thomas Haigwood.

His topic was "Defining Your Investment Objectives."

Ange suggested that the family income, its assets now and in the future, the education of children, anticipated travel and retirement should be considered in affecting investment decisions. Risk of inflation and the cost of living were investment factors.

He observed that persons anticipating investments should be willing to assume a little risk and to the average investor common stocks offer the best hedge against inflation.

The account executive cited a study made at the University of Chicago which showed the yield of common stocks during the years 1926-1930.

The result showed a nine per cent net yield. Ange also discussed speculative stocks and growth industry stocks.

Mrs. Stephen Bartlett, president, presided at the meeting. Plans were made to provide copies of the constitution for all members.

A nominating committee was named for the year. They were Mrs. John Reynolds, Mrs. Stephen Bartlett and Mrs. Haigwood.

Tell Your Husband To Grow Up

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a working girl, 23, married two years and am extremely happy with my husband and my job. However I have a problem which borders on the ridiculous.

I have had this same job for five years (long before I knew my husband) and I have always gone to lunch with a group of my co-workers. The men outnumber the women, but most of the men are old enough to be my father. Furthermore, I am not naive, and I can tell when a man has more than a platonic interest in me. And believe me, nobody here has!

My husband resents my lunching with these men. He thinks that because I am attractive and extremely bosomy, every man I know has designs on me.

His jealousy is getting me down. Must I give in and stop these harmless luncheons just to please a jealous husband? I pay for my own lunches and there are always other girls along.

BUGGED

DEAR PUGGED: If you "give in" to an unreasonable demand, a precedent will have been set, and others are sure to follow. There is nothing wrong with lunching with your co-workers. Tell your husband to grow up and to show a little more confidence in himself and in you.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is needed badly. I am a 15-year-old girl. My best friend (I'll call her Tammy) is also 15, and she's about three months pregnant. Tammy isn't married and she doesn't have one single friend but me.

The boy who got her pregnant took off, and she doesn't even know where he is now. She says she doesn't care, as he showed his true colors by running away, and she is better off forgetting him. I agree with her.

Abby, if Tammy's folks find out they will kill her. I can't ask my mother to help her. She wouldn't let me even speak to Tammy if she knew about this.

Tammy keeps talking about running away or killing herself. I can't take a chance on getting a letter at my house and neither can Tammy. Someone might get suspicious and open it, so will you please tell me in your column if there is a home for unwed mothers who would take my friend in? She doesn't have any money. Thank you.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Find "SALVATION ARMY" in your telephone directory. Listed under it is BOOTH MEMORIAL HOSPITAL. Telephone either number, explain situation, and they will help you. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: What happens to parents when they become grandparents? Mine are too young to be getting senile, but they certainly don't show the good judgment in handling MY children as they did when they raised me.

My parents ruled their children with an iron hand. No backtalk, we did as we were told, and if we forgot our manners we heard about it. We weren't permitted to eat between meals, and we had to be in bed with lights out at a certain time, and no nonsense.

But you should see the way they handle our children! All rules and regulations laid down at home are out of the window at the grandparents' house. The kids whine and beg until they get their own way. They talk back, and are fed soft drinks, candy, and cookies—all they want at all hours. And they don't have to nap or do anything they don't want to do. I love my parents, Abby, but I wish they realized how tough they are making it for me when they do this. It's difficult for children of any age to tell their parents anything, so you would do me (and millions of others) a great service if you printed this. Thank you.

FRUSTRATED PARENTS How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 697-00, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

An Election Year Spells Road Work

A road construction project does not an election make, but a flock of them sure does. Thus it appears that many long-needed highway improvement projects will at last get underway in the Pitt County area.

The Highway Commission is calling for bids on the four-laning of N. C. 11 from the Dupont plant to a point north of Grifton. The project, estimated to cost more than $1.5 million, will include a new bridge across the Contentnea at Grifton.

In the same letting bids will be received for four laning of Greene Street in Greenville from the Tar River to the Belvoir Road and for improving Mumford Road.

What is more, in March the Highway Commission will call for bids on widening U. S. 264 from the U. S. 264-U. S. 13 intersection to Elm Street. This will involve curb and gutter to provide a roadway 64 feet in width. And the Highway Commission expects to call for bids this summer on completing the four laning of N. C. 11 from Ayden to Greenville.

There are also some projects scheduled for Fountain and Farmville, which should more or less blanket the county with highway work in this election year.

Well, far be it from us to dwell too long on election year aspects of the sudden surge in highway construction for this area. Suffice it to say that in the ways of the political world, this is the way things get done.

We must note that none of these projects is being undertaken a day too soon. And it might well have been more convenient for the motoring public if some of them had been undertaken earlier — even during a non-election year.

At this point, however, we believe we would echo the sentiments of our long suffering citizenry to say, bring on the highway construction. We will suffer whatever inconvenience is necessary.

Legislation By New Computer

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — The day is coming that the cumbersome, time-consuming task of drafting legislative bills will be performed electronically by high-speed computer.

It could be as early as a year from now in Raleigh, during the 1969 session of the General Assembly.

A decision on providing a computerized bill drafting service for the 1969 session may be reached by the Legislative Research Commission at a meeting Feb. 16. Cost estimates will be given, along with a demonstration of the computer bill drafting process.

The meeting, says Senate president pro tem Herman A. Moore, "will be an extremely important one" in LRC's present study of modernizing and streamlining legislative procedures.

WILLIAM SHIRES

Likes Idea

Moore, a successful Charlotte businessman and co-chairman of LRC, likes the idea of a modern legislative information system using computers.

He has written each commission member enclosing a summary of an overall system which would include bill drafting, legislative indexing and statutory information retrieval. The Feb. 16 meeting, however, will deal exclusively with the bill drafting system.

The cost is yet to be determined but the proposal before the LRC says investigations by several states "clearly showed that the legislative process could be improved and streamlined in such a way that better legislation could be created faster, more accurately and at an overall cost saving."

How It Works

How would such a computerized bill drafting system work? Presently, drafting bills requires hours, sometimes days of work by a legislator, secretaries, clerks and typists followed by checking with the attorney general's office, reworking, retyping and printing.

This, conceivably, could be reduced to a matter of minutes.

A single typist, after only two or three hours of training and with no other special aptitude, could type the rough draft of a bill into the memory banks of the computer system.

Any typographical error could be erased and eliminated simply by backspacing and typing over the mistake. Entire lines and sections might be deleted and replaced the same way and the computer automatically would record the corrected entry.

After a draft is completed, the computer upon signal from the operator, types accurately at 150 words per minute the full clean copy upon each of its typewriter terminals.

Highly Efficient

Typewriter terminals are connected to the computer system by standard telephone lines and could be located anywhere in the Raleigh area — legislative offices, the attorney general's office, the governor's office, and the like. However, to prevent premature circulation a security code may be used and only with use of such a code would a bill be printed on a terminal.

This means that each agency or legislator would have absolute control over each pre-introduced bill.

After the first draft of a bill is typed and proofread, corrections may be made simply by retyping the corrections themselves.

The operator simply keys in a code for the line on which corrected material is needed. She types the last word preceding the point at which the change is to begin, then touches a tabulating key before typing in the next text.

The computer makes such changes almost instantly and produces a clean, re-typed draft on demand.

Calling The Hand Of The Witch-Hunters

Rep. Walter Jones has done a service for his district and probably for the nation in calling the hand of the post office department and the department of Health, Education and Welfare on anti-smoking posters.

The posters which were to be displayed on postal trucks proclaiming, "100,000 doctors have quit smoking" (They might know something you don't).

Rep. Jones asked the source of the figures. The reply by HEW was to hold up the posters until some changes could be made. And, at that, the posters will not appear beyond the end of this month.

It is difficult for us to understand the witch hunt now going on in Washington so far as cigarette smoking is concerned. Normally one would expect that if HEW honestly felt cigarettes were harmful the department would warn the public, but leave the individual the freedom to decide.

Some senators, such as Robert Kennedy, and others apparently sense a political issue, however. Obviously the pressure is going to be on the tobacco industry.

Tobacco area congressmen should be alert to defend the industry in such a political situation. Rep. Jones has done just that with some results.

Auto Safety To Supreme Court?

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — The battle over auto safety standards, now heating up again in Congress, soon may shift to the Supreme Court.

There the lawyer for an injured young ex-sailor is seeking a ruling that could force auto manufacturers to stop making cars that can zoom 150 to 160 miles an hour. If they did not, they could be held liable to innocent victims of high-speed accidents.

William Haddon Jr., director of the National Highway Safety Bureau, observing that accidents often can be attributed to high speeds, remarked last August:

"We would like to see cars built so that they cannot exceed a certain speed, say, for example, 80 miles an hour."

One of 47 safety standards proposed by the bureau last

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SECURITY

Insurance is due. What kind of insurance? Life insurance. Health insurance. Personal liability insurance. One of the finest factors we encounter in life is insurance, by which we build a wall of security about our loved ones or protect ourselves from grievous loss. The person who invented insurance served the human race well.

But as a matter of fact is there such a thing as insurance? Can we be sure of anything? Can we arrange matters in such a way that regardless of what may happen everything will be all right? Of course not. We live in a world that is essentially insecure. We can guard against that insecurity by taking out insurance policies, but insecurity will always remain. Whether we like it or not, we have to get used to the fact that we live in a universe in which security absolutely is never guaranteed.

But this should not make us unhappy. It should only make us more realistic. The insecurity of life and its many factors are simply part and parcel of an existence made by the Creator and badly messed up by our folly.

If you want perfection, look to the One Man who really had it. No one but The Man himself ever achieved that perfection. It is the ideal toward which we are to press if we would make life halfway successful.

Don't try to get more out of life than there is in it. Insecurity is here to stay.

October was that all cars by 1970 or 1971 be equipped with devices to limit their maximum speed.

At the moment, the governing law on auto accidents is far different from the ruling sought in the appeal of Philip Michael Schemel, the injured ex-sailor from Springfield, Ohio.

Early one April morning in 1964, Schemel then 19, was stretched out on the back seat of a car traveling a highway outside Oakland City, Ind. Suddenly the car was struck by a 1960 Impala zipping along, according to papers in the case, at 115 miles an hour.

The young sailor was temporarily paralyzed below the neck and later got a medical discharge from the Navy.

His appeal contends General Motors, manufacturer of the Impala, is legally negligent in two ways: 1 For designing a car that can go so fast; 2 For "emphasizing speed" in advertising.

Several courts have held the manufacturer's duty is to avoid hidden defects and latent dangers. The fact that cars can be driven way beyond speed limits has been ruled out as a hidden defect.

Also, the courts have said manufacturers cannot be bound for reckless use of cars.

In October 1966, the Supreme Court would not hear a widow's claim that GM was negligent in designing a station wagon with an "X" frame that did not have side frame rails to protect the driver from a side collision. And ruling earlier in the same case, the U. S. Circuit Court in Chicago declared: "A manufacturer is not under a duty to make his automobile accident-proof or fool-proof."

But there have been dissenters, including Judge Roger J. Kiley, of the Chicago Court when it ruled against Schemel last July.

"In my opinion," he said, "General Motors, as any other person, is chargeable with the duty of reasonably foreseeing the probable dangers of a design and the advertising it has chosen."

If the Supreme Court takes this view, automobiles may never be the same.

By ROWLAND EVANS, ROBERT NOVAK

The Old Nixon Persists

CONCORD, N. H. — Behind Richard M. Nixon's smoothly professional kickoff of his last chance Presidential campaign here last weekend lies a deep but hidden conflict among his advisors over the nature of the new Nixon.

A highly sophisticated group of Nixon advisors, not associated with disasters of the past and convinced that changes must be more than cosmetic, have been opposed at every turn by old-line Nixonites who resist any real change. The campaign kickoff made it clear that the new advisors have not yet won out.

This failure was obscured by the superficial changes in the 68 Nixon. He is more amiable and relaxed, his campaign mechanics are smoother and his relations with the press unusually cheery. But the substance of what he said here last Friday and Saturday (Feb. 2, 3) offered few hopeful departures from the unexciting Nixon of the past.

That alone may well be enough to score the victory needed in New Hampshire's primary on March 12. Nixon's local backers, uneasy after Governor George Romney's flamboyant campaign opening two weeks earlier, were reassured by the two-day Nixon visit. Even Romney's state leaders admit they can't hope to win unless Nixon commits a major blunder.

But Nixon's new advisors long ago concluded that Nixon must not only win all the primaries but, while winning, must say the things essential to close the gap between him and President Johnson. Otherwise, they feel, he could be stopped by Governor Nelson Rockefeller at Miami Beach even if all-victorious in the primaries and, in any event, would lose in November.

This view is held by a group of Nixon advisors headed by Robert F. Ellsworth, the innovative former Congressman from Kansas who has been running the campaign; Richard J. Whalen, the journalist and author counseling Nixon on a regular basis; and Leonard Garment, a member of Nixon's Wall Street law firm devoting nearly full time to their campaign.

Eye Of Man At Last Able To Peer Across Atlantic Ocean

London, Feb. 9 — New worlds were opened up early this morning when faces were flashed across sea by television in a way which has never been seen even by Jules Verne in his fanciful imagination.

For the very first time the image of a woman was sent across despite the fact she left her position in front of the transmitter a few seconds to glance in a wall mirror to make certain her hair had not become mussed in the excitement.

Dummies and men's faces had been flashed across in previous tests but never a woman. John L. Baird, inventor of the television, explained he had difficulty in finding a woman willing to attempt to sit still for twenty minutes or half an hour.

Baird himself was the first to sit before the transmitter. Afterwards, W. C. Fox of the London Press Association sat for a half an hour. Reports came back from United States that Fox was showing up well.

Then the woman took her seat in front of the seventeen glaring incandescent lamp's of 200 candle power each. "I am terribly thrilled," she said. "The lamp's head-glare — nothing will bother me—I am going through with it."

Stop Work At Dam On Tar River

An injunction was issued today restraining builders of the dam in low grounds of the Tar River from continuing with their work.

The order restraining further work on the dam is the outgrowth of sentiment among property holders on the upper part of Tar river who contended that their property would be completely inundated at flood stages.

Miss Shelburn Entertains At Bridge

Last evening at her home on Eight Street, Miss Iva Shelburn delightfully entertained her bridge club. The Valentine idea was carried out in the decorations. An attractive string of pearls was given Miss Virginia Arthur for high score. The low score prize, a handkerchief, went to Miss Snodie Moore. Miss Lellah Rock Boyd of Ayden was given lingerie.

But these views have been subjected to intense opposition by the old-liners — financial contributors and Congressional supporters who brook no deviation from Republican orthodoxy. Most important, Nixon himself is hesitant about radical departures (particularly on Vietnam where he does not want to aid and comfort Hanoi).

Did Railroads Kill Themselves?

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Twentieth Century Limited is no more. The Broadway Limited still retains that name, but it is no longer an all-Pullman train. In fact, there isn't an all-Pullman train in all the United States today. The end of luxury railroad travel in the U.S. makes a grim backdrop for "To Hell in a Day Coach," by Peter Lyon, 324 pages, $5.95, Lippincott, Philadelphia. It is subtitled, "An Exasperated Look at American Railroads."

Lyon recounts the story of the buccaneering of the railroad magnates, first robbing the government of all they could by buying local politicians, Congressmen and even influencing the election in the House of Representatives on March 1, 1877, when Rufus B. Hayes, the minority Republican candidate, was elected President of the United States over Samuel J. Tilden, Democrat, who had the most popular votes.

Hayes later sickened of the deal made on his behalf and refused to recommend more money for the Texas & Pacific railroad, whose owner, Tom Scott, with Jay Gould, had engineered his election.

A Fink In The Works

Lyon relates how, three days later, William H. Vanderbilt of the New York Central, Hugh Jewett of the Erie, John Garrett of the B&O, and Tom Scott, who also controlled the Pennsylvania, met in New York and agreed to eliminate rate wars and, on June 8, gathered at Saratoga, N.Y., and agreed to divide all traffic west from New York on a percentage basis.

While there had been many similar agreements in the past, this one worked because the signers had brought in Albert

In Our Own Tongue

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP) — "Watch your step now and don't let anybody make a sucker of you with his intellectual jazz and his smooth-sounding baloney."

That's how the "Cottonpatch Version of Paul's Epistles" renders Col. 2:8, which in the commonly used Revised Standard Version of the Bible reads: "See to it that no one makes a prey of you by philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition."

A Southern Baptist scholar and integration activist, the Rev. Dr. Clarence L. Jordan, has turned out the homespun cracker-barrel translation, and loaded it with peppery Southern colloquialism plus some switches in milieu to make it modern.

As for the idiom, it crackles with slang and plain talk, such as, "What's the score?" "How come?" "Wise guys," "Get on the ball," and "Listen, silly," with a few "you alls" thrown in.

Dr. Jordan, a native Georgian, says the salty usages are not "to shock, offend, startle — or to please — anyone," but simply to accurately reflect "the blunt, vigorous language" of Paul's spontaneous, unrestrained letters.

"I have tried to let him be himself without artificially clothing him with the image of immaculate sainthood," Dr. Jordan says.

In addition, the setting is changed from first century Palestine to the 20th century South, with "Jew and Gentile" becoming "white man and Negro," and the established Jewish religionist of old becoming "white American Protestant" — a "WAP."

For instance, Rom. 11:1 turns out this way: "I ask, therefore, 'Has God walked out on his people?' Absolutely not. For I myself am also a WAP — a pure Anglo-Saxon and a Baptist."

In its ordinary form, it goes, "I ask then, has God rejected his people? By no means! I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the tribe of Benjamin."

The regionally adapted version also alters the names of the epistles. The letter to the Romans becomes a letter "to the Christians in Washington"; the one to the Corinthians is to "Christians in Atlanta." Galatians is the "Georgia Convention"; Ephesians is to Birmingham.

The famed passage in Gal. 3:28 which reads, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus," becomes, in the letter to the Georgia Convention: "No more is one a white man and another a Negro; no more is one slave and the other a free man; no longer is one a male and other a female. For you are all one in Christ Jesus."

In his foreword to the book, being published this month by Association Press, Dr. Jordan says "we need to have the good news come to us not only in our own tongue but in our own time."

As for his choice of a Southern locale, he points out that while the Gospel is universal in its meanings, it was born in a "remote province" and conveyed through a specific, particular situation.

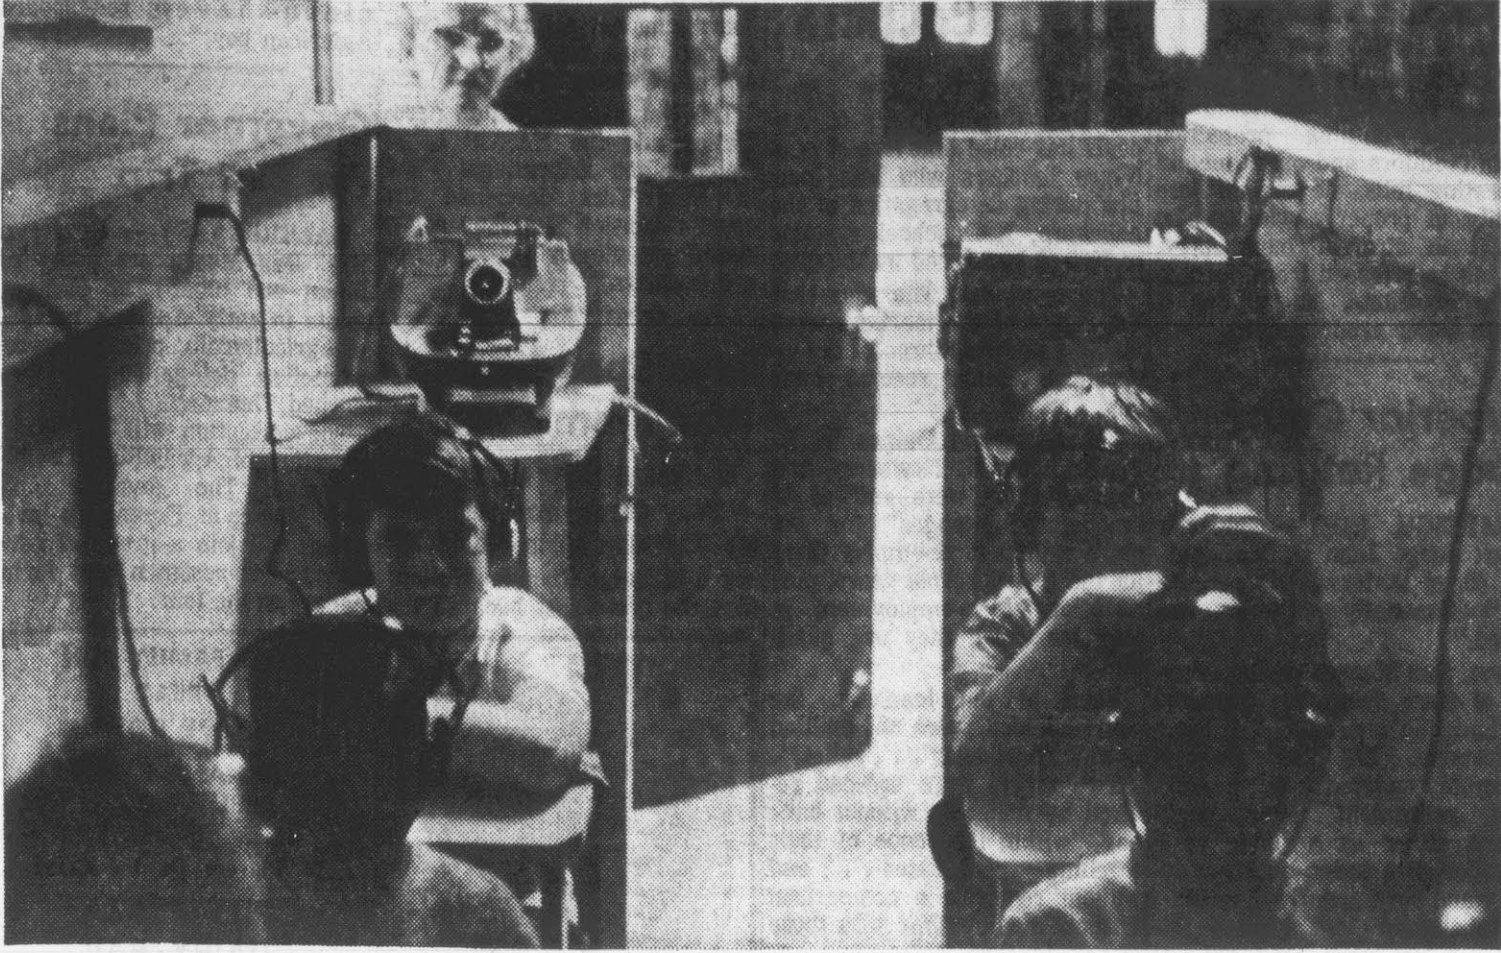

He says his own rural Southern background and familiarity with its accents, problems and hopes was a main factor in his using that setting.

ELMER ROESSNER

Lyon does not report it, but it is probable that Fink's activities in the strike of 1877, America's bloodiest labor dispute, in using spies, informers and strikebreakers gave rise to the word "fink," which used to mean "scab" or "com-

'Snoopy' Helps In Instruction Of Small Groups

INSIDE . . . desks and chairs are provided for 10 students and each is supplied with earphones.

By BLANCHE HARDEE

Reflector Staff Writer

"Snoopy" is helping teachers at Third Street School by providing them with a means to offer programs of instruction to small groups of students.

Named for the dog in the "Peanuts" cartoon series, "Snoopy" at the local elementary school is a portable classroom, 12 feet long and four feet wide, with desks and chairs for 10 students. Its four-foot-high walls offer privacy for those studying inside.

"Snoopy" was born because of the need for group instruction and lack of space in the classrooms at the school to provide proper facilities.

Teachers at Third Street are pleased with the unit, said Principal Robert E. Stewart, who with the aid of the school custodian, built the unit.

The portable unit is equipped with projector, screen, record player and tape recorder and programmed instruction in math, science and reading are offered to the students.

The individual teacher may program her own instructional material by using the recorder, or prepared recordings may be used. The "Tachomatic 500" projector is designed to project illustrations on the fixed projection screen at the front of the portable room as the recorder or record player presents the previously recorded commentary.

Earphones are provided for each of the students while studying in the unit to minimize possible distractions from outside the classroom. Mounted on casters, "Snoopy" can be moved from class to class, enabling teachers to conduct lessons in their regular classroom and supervise the children using the portable unit in the hall at the same time.

Put into operation shortly after the Christmas holidays, "Snoopy" is becoming more and more popular . . . teachers have to plan to use it, Stewart explained.

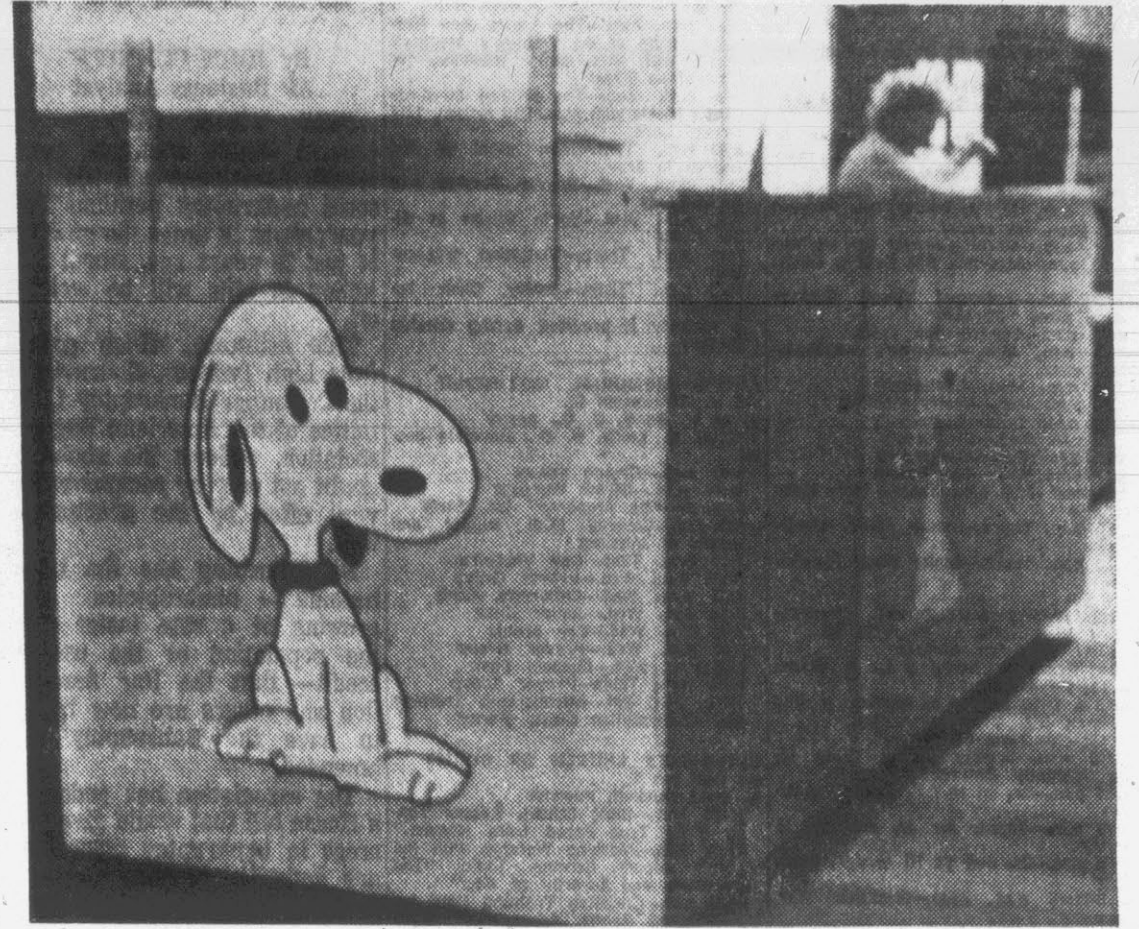

The unit is available five periods a day and is used by the Third Street teachers to give more "individualized" instruction to students. "With a considerable variation of abilities in the average classroom, dividing children into small groups is an aid in teaching," Stewart explained.

The P.T.A. at the school provided the $70 worth of material, including plywood, two-by-four framing, nails and casters, used in its construction. The audio-visual equipment used in the unit was already on hand.

The Third Street School library provides the programmed records with the "Tachomatic 500" series including programs for grades one through 10.

that crossings are often just two blocks apart."

"The result," he explained, "is that the last foot seemingly never ends. And I must admit that the air horns are very strident and probably disturbing to sleepers."

"SNOOPY" . . . the portable reading laboratory is used by teachers for programmed instruction.

Lindsay Rejects Settlement Plan Saying He Will Pay No Blackmail

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay rejected today the recommendations of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's special mediation panel for ending the week-old sanitation men's strike, dashing hopes for an early settlement.

"I said yesterday the city would not pay blackmail in order to conclude this strike," the Republican mayor declared at a news conference. "The proposed settlement, in my view, asks the city to pay a little blackmail."

After the mayor acted, 400 shop stewards for the striking Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association voted unanimously to accept the proposal. A union spokesman said the strike would continue nonetheless.

Indeed, the first two days of his campaign proved that the innovators have not yet convinced Nixon. Asked in Manchester about the Vietnam rampage in Vietnam, Nixon termed it "a desperate—I would hope last ditch—effort" aimed at influencing American opinion and added the war "must be brought to a successful conclusion." Those advisors who want him to attack Lyndon Johnson for leading the U. S. into "an unwinnable war" winced.

day of the municipal crisis, health officials warned of growing rat and typhoid dangers posed by 60,000 tons of uncollected garbage festering in the streets.

Lindsay renewed his plea for a National Guard callup which the governor held in abeyance Thursday as he took charge of the dispute and sought to break the deadlock through mediation.

The governor named his five-man panel Thursday evening and it voted 4-1 for the proposal submitted to the governor at 2:40 a.m. today.

Rockefeller endorsed the report as "fair and reasonable and above all in the best interest of the people of this city," and recommended acceptance by both sides.

But at 3:25 a.m. the mayor's press secretary announced Lindsay had turned down the proposal calling for a $425 an-

Withdraw Stand On Constitution

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Senate has adopted a report recommending the legislature withdraw its application for a convention to amend the U.S. Constitution.

In a resolution adopted in 1967, the legislature proposed to Congress that a convention be held to amend the Constitution to allow one house of the legislature to be chosen by other than the one-man, one-vote principle.

nual increase in salaries—$25 more than the proposal of another mediation team which the union rejected earlier.

Union President John J. DeLury, who was released from jail to join the talks Thursday, was returned to his cell today after he had presented the panel's report to his shop stewards. He is serving a 15-day contempt sentence.

The union struck Friday in a demand for a $600 increase in the annual salaries that range from $6,424 to $7,956 after three years.

At the end of the first week of the unprecedented strike there was enough uncollected trash littering the city to fill the holds of six average-sized, ocean-going freighters.

In declaring the first citywide health emergency since a summer polio epidemic in 1931, the Board of Health warned that typhoid fever could result if uncollected garbage jammed sewers

Studying City From Helicopter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Because their city is nearly 500 square miles in size, urban affairs students at the University of Southern California took to the air. Thirty-two students inspected Los Angeles by helicopter in order to get an over-all view of metropolitan problems. The goal of the class, said a spokesman, is to train students to "think urban."

and caused flooding.

The Board also cited a whopping 700 per cent increase in rubbish fires since the beginning of the strike and the spectre of a citywide explosion in the rat population.

Worst hit in the continuing crisis have been the tenement areas where old buildings lack incinerators. Among these are the slums of Harlem and Bedford Stuyvesant in Brooklyn—both heavily Negro and Puerto Rican sections.

Protest Silences Train Air Horns

CHICAGO (AP) — Irate citizens protested with such vehemence Thursday that the Illinois Central Railroad ordered its engineers to suspend use of their piercing horns on south suburban runs.

Railroad executives had issued an order Wednesday to use the blast horns because of an increasing number of accidents at crossings.

Through the night Wednesday thousands of residents were on their telephones protesting the IC officials, alderman, police and anyone who would listen.

One IC official, who spent six hours answering calls, said the last of three blasts is supposed to continue until the front of the train is through a crossing. But the trouble on the South Side is Nick Adams Will Be Buried In Pa.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Nick Adams, 36, will be buried in Pennsylvania where as a boy he dreamed of becoming a movie star.

A rosary will be recited tonight in Beverly Hills. Requiem Mass will be celebrated next week in Berwick, Pa., the home of his parents, followed by burial there.

Adams was found dead Wednesday night of an overdose of a drug used to treat nervous disorders and alcoholism, an autopsy established Thursday.

Dr. J. Wallace Graham, deputy county medical examiner, said the cause of death was "paralydehde intoxication."

No alcohol was found in the actor's bloodstream, the coroner's office reported, and friends said they did not consider him a heavy drinker.

They added, however, that in recent weeks a series of personal problems had left him nervous and despondent.

Adams, former star of the television series "The Rebel,"

Personal 'Bankruptcy' Trend Seen Spreading

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If present trends continue, some 190,000 Americans will file personal bankruptcy petitions this year, about 18 times the number of just 20 years ago. About $1.5 billion in bills will be written off.

This estimate, which comes from Linn Twinem, chairman of the Consumer Bankruptcy Committee of the American Bar Association, reflects the abuse of credit not only by recipients but very often by the grantor as well.

So disturbing has the trend become — bankruptcies are growing at a rate faster than the population or the use of credit — that the Bar Association and others are now trying to have the Bankruptcy Act amended.

The association has endorsed a House bill that would give referees in bankruptcy discretionary authority to deny petitions in cases where it is felt a wage earner can pay his debts out of future earnings.

As matters stand now, individuals file for bankruptcy not only because they cannot pay their bills but because bankruptcy is so easy. The stigma that existed 15 years ago seemingly has diminished with the growth of credit and the mobility of individuals.

The factors that drive a person toward bankruptcy, however, have not lessened. They may have become worse, in fact. Overloading of an individual with credit, often at difficult repayment terms, is a widespread abuse. Threats to garnish salaries or to repossess furnishings often is the activator.

Especially disturbing to Twinem is that many bankruptcies may be unnecessary.

"Studies conducted by universities have determined that from 25 per cent to 45 per cent of the people that filed petitions could have paid their debts out of future earnings," he says, "if they had been properly advised and so disposed."

This places much of the blame on legal advisers themselves, some of whom are unfamiliar with alternatives to straight bankruptcy and on businessmen, who generally are felt to have a responsibility to educate their customers.

In Twinem's view, many people overloaded with bills would be better off seeking relief in Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Act. This enables a person to avoid bankruptcy by paying debts out of earnings over a three-year period.

However, it imposes a three-year supervisory obligation on the court's bankruptcy referee, whereas if he advises the petitioner to file for straight bankruptcy the matter is handled completely in a few weeks.

Merchants naturally like Chapter 13 because they get some of their money back. But why should an individual want to pay his bills when he can be released from them? Obviously for personal reasons, of course.

Advices Ballots To Remove The 'Undesirables'

SALISBURY, N. C. (AP) — The president of the United Negro College Fund urged Negroes Thursday to use the ballot to "remove undesirables from office."

Speaking at ceremonies celebrating Livingstone College's 114th anniversary, Dr. Stephen J. Wright said, "The answer to our problems still lies within the legal bonds of the American way of life. There is enough legal resource in the American way to assure the Negro of full citizenship, if properly used."

The problems he cited were "unequal education, unequal employment, and unequal housing."

He urged the involvement of all Negroes in solving these problems despite the fact that Negro leadership has divided into too many groups "to the extent that not much is being achieved."

More Spending By N.C. Visitors

RALEIGH (AP) — A record $647 million was spent by travelers in North Carolina last year, including $408 million by out-of-state tourists.

The Travel and Promotion Division of the Department of Conservation and Development reported Thursday the state's travel income showed an increase of $37 million over 1966.

Spending by North Carolinians on away-from-home-trips within the state totaled $239 million, up $12 million over the previous year.

Court Says City Must Re-Hire 5 Idled Teachers

Twinem offers a few more reasons for using Chapter 13: an individual obtains protection from creditors and assistance in prorating bills, he cannot lose equity in property whereas he might in straight bankruptcy, he can be released from burdensome contracts, he retains a much better credit record.

Superior Court Judge Retiring

RALEIGH (AP) — Superior Court Judge John D. McLaughlin, 60, of Statesville is retiring as "permanently and totally disabled."

Gov. Dan Moore and the Council of State Thursday approved McLaughlin's petition for early retirement. The 1967 General Assembly enacted a bill permitting retirement after eight years, either as a judge or a solicitor, if a judge becomes totally and permanently disabled.

McLaughlin was elected Superior Court judge six years ago and had prior service as a solicitor. His total service was over eight years.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that five of nine Negro teachers who lost their jobs during desegregation of the Asheboro, N.C. school systems in 1965-66 be rehired by the city.

The court held Thursday that the rights of the teachers were violated and that three of the instructors should receive back pay.

The court said Gaines W. H. Price, Louis H. Newberry and Charles Holly were entitled to "monetary damages" for the city's failure to re-employ them for the 1965-66 school years, plus an offer of re-employment in jobs for which they are qualified.

Four of the teachers, the court decided, were not entitled to any "particular . . . relief." Two others were ordered rehired by Asheboro without back pay "within the scope of their teaching certificates . . . and without requiring a comparison of their qualifications with those of new teacher applicants."

The court agreed that the nine plaintiffs as a class were entitled to an injunction prohibiting the Asheboro School board from discrimination on the basis of race or color "in employment, assignment, dismissal and failure to rehire . . . teaching personnel . . ."

The Asheboro school board operated nine public schools prior to the 1965-66 year. The board adopted a plan of compliance with the Civil Rights Act in February 1965.

The National Education Association and the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund in New York described the court's decision Thursday as "a significant victory . . . for Negro teachers."

Says Speeding Was From Fear

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Betty Countryman was fined $15 Thursday for speeding but she told Judge Thomas Wallner that she drove fast because she was scared.

Along the darkened street, she said, she felt certain the motorcyclist following her was "one of those black-jacketed, bearded hoodlums."

She was relieved, she said, when she finally stopped and discovered the officer was "a clean-shaven, red-blooded American boy."

Governor Plans Far East Trip

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. and Mrs. Dan Moore are going to Japan and other Far Eastern points in early April as part of an agriculturally oriented trade promotion delegation, it was learned Thursday.

The delegation will be led by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman. The governor and Mrs. Moore, at Freeman's invitation, will join a group of governors, congressmen and farm leaders on the tour.

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Killy Skis To Victory; Speed Skaters Surprise

By MORRIS ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer
GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Jean Claude Killy, France's cool colossus of the ski slopes, won the men's downhill race at the Winter Olympic Games today while three American girls sprang a major surprise by sharing silver medal honors in the 500-meter speed skating test.

Killy, 25-year-old ace of the powerful French Alpine team, beat countryman Guy Perillat by a slender margin for the gold medal in the downhill, with J. Daniel Daetwyler of Switzerland third.

Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., and Dennis McCoy of Bishop, Calif., finished 18th and 21st, respectively, but the other two U.S. starters, Jim Barrows and Jere Elliott, both of Steamboat Springs, Colo., fell on the course and were seriously injured.

Barrows broke a small bone in his right leg. Elliott said he suffered bruises on both shoulders and may have sprained both ankles. "I may also have a cracked rib," he said.

Both were hospitalized in nearby La Tronche. The victory opened Killy's bid to match the 1956 feat of former Austrian star Toni Sailer, who won all three Olympic Alpine events—the downhill, slalom and giant slalom.

Mary Meyers of St. Paul, Minn., Dianne Holum of Northwood, Ill., and Jenny Fish of Strongsville, Ohio, provided the speed skating fireworks, finishing in a startling three-way tie behind gold medalist Ludmila Titova of Russia in the women's 500-meter race.

The American trio finished with identical times of 46.3 seconds—two-tenths of a second behind the winner—and each will receive a silver medal, highest award ever captured by U.S. girls in Olympic speed skating competition.

Killy, the world's premier skier, zipped down the Chamrousse slopes in one minute, 59.85 seconds to win the downhill race, postponed Thursday because of bad weather, by less than one-tenth of a second.

Perillat, starting in the No. 1 position, had set a blistering race of 1:59.93. Daetwyler finished in 2:00.32 and fourth-place Heinrich Messner of Austria in 2:01.03.

Kidd, skiing on a tender left ankle which he sprained two days ago during practice, could do no better than a 2:03.40 clocking. McCoy was timed in 2:04.82.

"I just skied badly," Kidd said. "I was terrible at the turns. My ankle was all right. It gave me no trouble."

Killy announced after the race that he would retire from competition after the World Cup race in Heavenly Valley, Calif., April 5-7. "I'm very happy about this victory," he said. "I'm especially happy I showed that I was in as good form as at Portillo two years ago."

Killy won the downhill event at the 1966 world championships at Portillo, Chile.

The 2,890-meter downhill course was slowed by above-freezing temperatures when the race, which had been postponed Thursday because of wind, snow and fog, got underway.

Bith Kidd and McCoy said the course was very fast in the top reaches and slow on the lower part.

Barrows and Elliott were among nine of the 86 starters who did not finish.

"I hit the second bump on the course and took two somersaults," Barrows said.

Elliott said he caught a ski edge—at almost the same point where Kidd had fallen during Wednesday's non-stop practice run—and crashed head first through a fence.

Earlier this morning, the women ran their non-stop tune-up over a different course. Some complained about high winds at the top and poor visibility.

Capricious weather conditions continued to plague the men's and women's luge (small sled racing) events, abnormally mild temperatures forcing postponement of opening singles heat at Villard-de-Lans for the second straight day.

The day's first gold medal went to Toini Gustafsson of Sweden, who ended Russia's reign in the women's 10-kilometer (2.6 miles) cross country ski race with a wire-to-wire victory.

There were no Americans entered in the demanding distance test.

Miss Meyers, winner of the 500-meter race at the 1967 World speed skating championships, seized the halfway lead today with her 46.3 clocking as the girls skated in pairs against the clock at the outdoor rink in Grenoble.

However, after the ice was resurfaced for the second section of competitors, Miss Titova flashed around the track in 46.1. The other two American girls, who followed the winner in the second section, made brilliant bids to better her clocking but could only match Miss Meyers.

Elisabeth Van den Brom of the Netherlands finished fourth in 46.6, but no bronze medal was awarded.

The only previous American girl to capture a medal in Olympic speed skating was Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, N.Y., who took the bronze in the 500-meters at Squaw Valley eight years ago.

"The only thing that would make me happier would be if those three medals were gold," said George Howie of Oconomowoc, Wis., coach of the U.S. women's speed skating squad. "Just think, if Titova had been two tenths of a second slower, it would have been four gold medals."

"I think you are going to see us win some more medals in the races to come—either tomorrow's 1,000-meter or the 1,500-meter in which Jenny Fish and Dianne Holum will be joined by Jeanne Ashworth."

The girls sped around the rink on a drab, damp day, with the temperature 43 degrees, light rain falling at intervals and a strong wind.

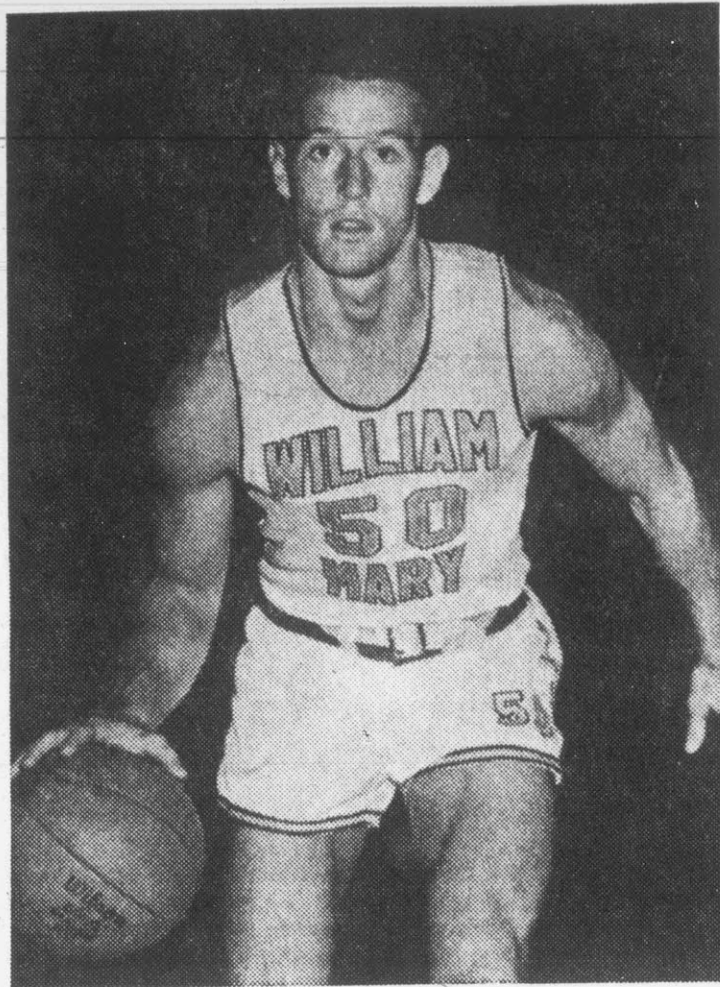

"We all felt it," said Miss Fish, an 18-year-old college freshman, "but it was the same for everyone. It sloped down all the time since it was blowing in such a direction that it hit us on two turns instead of the normal one."

"I wasn't really pleased with my race," added Miss Meyers, a 22-year-old University of Minnesota coed. "I went wide around the last turn after a very good start. You know when you had a perfect race and this was not one of mine."

In the women's cross-country ski race, Miss Gustafsson breezed to an easy victory in 36 minutes, 46.5 seconds. The 29-year-old gymnastics teacher is Sweden's first gold medal winner in women's cross-country competition since the girls first entered the Olympic Nordic events 16 years ago at Oslo.

Berit Moerdre of Norway finished second with a time of 37:54.6 and Inger Aufles, also of Norway, was third in 37:59.9. Alevtina Kolchina of Russia, the pre-race favorite, came in seventh, more than two minutes behind the winner.

Russian women had swept all three medals in time event at Squaw Valley in 1960 and at Innsbruck in 1964.

SCALP HUNTER — Don Panneton, captain of the William & Mary Indians, will lead the tribe into Minges Coliseum Saturday night to meet East Carolina. The Indians will be out to avenge an earlier loss to the Bucs, and to climb out of the eighth-place berth in the tournament seedings.

Northeast Battle Narrows To Four

The Northeastern Conference basketball race has boiled down to a four team race with Kingston, Roanoke Rapids, West Carteret and Washington still having a crack at the regular season title.

The Red Devils of Paul Jones have rolled through 13 straight opponents to rest atop the circuit with a two game lead over Roanoke Rapids, three over West Carteret and four over Washington.

The top scoring trio for Kingston, Rod Duke, Joe Karsn and Don White paced the Devils to wins over East Carteret and Tarboro last two games with Duke coping scoring honors with 23 against East Carteret.

David Armitage has come along very well as a scoring threat for Roanoke Rapids as he scored 24 points in their two wins over East Carteret and Tarboro and he was helped out by high scoring Ron Hunnings, Cotton Nickolson and Tommy Fondren.

The team that appears to have the best all around attack is West Carteret as they usually have between 8 and 10 men in the scoring column in all their games. Ira Winberry hit the season high of 40 a couple of weeks ago but outside of that outburst, no one has been the big star.

Jim Buckman of Washington has come out of nowhere to take over the number four spot in the scoring department as he has pumped in 90 points in the last four games including a season high of 40 against Elizabeth City on Tuesday night. His spurt has sparked the Pam Pack in their last couple of games.

The New Bern Bears and Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets are resting in a tie for fifth and sixth positions. The Jackets downed the Bears at home last Friday but then fell to Washington Tuesday while the Bears were downing East Carteret. Larry Gray continues to pace the Yellow Jackets and the league with 307 points although he was held to a season low of 11 against Washington. Geoff Burness and Chuck Robinson have picked any scoring slack for the Jackets with Robinson hitting 38 in his last two games—19 a piece against New Bern and Washington.

The Bears have been paced all year by Scott Davenport, Cal Weatherly and Pat McGinnis but so far coach Sonny Russell's quintet hasn't played consistent ball for any length of time.

There is one match up of top contenders for this Friday, February 9 as first place Kingston is at home to Rose of Greenville, Roanoke Rapids is home to Havelock, East Carteret is at Elizabeth City, Tarboro at New Bern and the big game will be Washington at West Carteret in a battle for third place.

Next Tuesday, February 13 the big game will send Kingston to West Carteret, Elizabeth City at Tarboro, New Bern at Havelock and East Carteret at Washington.

Duke Downs Southern Ill.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina's Tar Heels tightened their grasp on first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference and third place in the nation Thursday night with an easy 80-60 victory over Wake Forest.

Carolina moved coolly and calmly through the contest, never getting into trouble as the Tar Heels recorded their 14th straight victory and 16th out of 17 games.

The only other ACC team to see action Thursday night was Duke, as the Blue Devils walked to a 78-54 victory over Southern Illinois in the first half of a doubleheader in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Larry Miller and Charley Scott staged a shooting contest during the Wake Forest game. Miller wound up with 23 points to Scott's 21. The Deacons' scoring was spread out, with Dickie Walker leading the way with 13 points.

Mike Lewis turned in a stand-out performance for the Blue Devils. Lewis pumped in 28 points, snatched 18 rebounds and blocked several shots in one of his best nights of the year.

The entire conference takes a breather tonight, with action slated to resume Saturday.

North Carolina will go after its 15th straight against Virginia Tech. Clemson takes on Wake Forest. Duke travels to Chicago to meet Notre Dame. Maryland plays at West Virginia and Virginia plays N. C. State in Raleigh.

William & Mary Here For Key Southern Game

East Carolina University's Pirates, their backs to the wall as far as a good berth in the Southern Conference Tournament is concerned, entertain William & Mary here Saturday night, and a loss would almost spell disaster for the Bucs.

Currently East Carolina is just a half-game ahead of the Indians, who occupy eighth place in the standings. Both are almost assured of a berth in the tournament, but both would also like to climb up the ranks a little and escape an opening round meeting with either Davidson or West Virginia.

For East Carolina, it will also be the last chance the Bucs have to get a shot at a winning Southern Conference record. Currently 3-6, the Bucs have just four games left within the loop, and they must win them all to have more wins than losses. The loss to Richmond Wednesday night ended any hopes for a winning overall year for the Bucs, who can at best finish with an 11-13 mark.

William & Mary, meanwhile, has just as many reasons to win. The Indians, picked to finish third in the conference this year, have been almost as disappointing as the Pirates, who were picked for fourth place.

The Indians are 5-13 overall, exactly the same as the Bucs, and are 3-7 in the conference. They have had their troubles on the road, losing all 10 trips, and they feel that Minges Coliseum would be a great place to snap the string.

The Pirates, earlier in the year, took a 71-70 victory over the Indians in their infamous Blow Gym, breaking a three-year Southern Conference home winning string. That makes the return match even more of a challenge to both teams.

The Pirates will have to stop the high scoring duo of Bob Sherwood and Ron Panneton if they are to be successful. Sherwood is one of the top scorers in the conference with a 21.6 average. Panneton, the captain of the team, holds an 18.0 average. Panneton hit for 38 points in a losing cause against The Citadel, but only got three against VMI in another loss earlier this week. Sherwood had 15 against The Citadel, but upped his output to 22 against VMI.

Jimmy Rama with an 11.7 and Dave Daugherty, 10.0, round out the players in double figures for the Indians. Jack Downing is the other member of the starting five.

East Carolina, after watching Richmond burn up the nets for 61 per cent Wednesday night, must come back strong or drop into eighth place in the league.

The Bucs are led by Earl Thompson with a 15.3 average, while Charlie Alford has a 14.7 mark. Co-Captain Vince Colbert upped his mark to 14.2 with 18 points against Richmond. Jim Modlin rounds out those in double figures with a 10.6 average. The other starter, Tom Miller, holds a 9.8 mark.

Both teams have also shown a reluctance to go to the boards. William & Mary has just two more rebounds than their opponents in 18 games, while the Bucs have let their opponents grab off two more in an equal number of games.

The two freshmen teams will collide in a preliminary match, starting at 5:50 p.m. East Carolina won the first meeting of the two, 106-81.

Chicago Snaps Losing Streak

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chicago Bulls, who had lost nine games in a row, gave the Detroit Pistons an excellent chance to make it 10, but the Pistons seemed too embarrassed to take advantage of it and now the Bulls are working on a winning streak of one.

Late in the second quarter of their National Basketball Association game Thursday night, the Bulls were trailing by 15 points. Imagine their surprise when they won by 21, 131-110.

Jerry Sloan led a drive late in the first half that closed the gap at the intermission to 61-57 and early in the third period Barry Clemens, with five points, sparked a Chicago surge of 10 straight points and the Bulls were never threatened after that.

In other NBA games, Baltimore edged San Diego 106-102, Seattle whipped Los Angeles 115-110 and San Francisco humbled Cincinnati 126-109.

In the American Basketball Association, New Jersey edged Minnesota 123-121, Denver beat Indiana 98-91 and Anaheim upended New Orleans 122-118.

Jim Washington led the Bulls with 22 points and Sloan had 20 while Dave Bing had 22 for the Pistons.

City Loop Title Fight Down To 3

Only two teams stand in the way of the City League championship for unbeaten Holt's, and if things continue as they are, they won't be there too much longer.

Holt's cut down Whitehurst last night, 60-54, while Womack beat Hazelton Cleaners, 71-52; Book Barn beat Coca-Cola, 77-62, and Home Builders downed Harris-Evans, 76-54.

In the opener, Womack pulled away to gain a 35-26 lead in the first half. Then in the second half, Womack outscored Hazelton, 36-26, to win going away. Dunn led Womack with 24, while Stox had 16, Jordan had 14 and Claybrook had 10. For Hazelton, Worthington and Cox each had 11 and Moore had 10.

Holt's rolled up a 37-29 lead in the first half, but Whitehurst came back strong, to outscore them, 25-23. It wasn't quite enough, however, and Holt's remained unbeaten. Riddick led Holt's with 18, while Roebuck had 12 and Alexander had 10. Whitehurst led his team with 24, while Jones had 10.

In the night's third game, Book Barn built up a 39-22 lead in the first half, but then let Coca-Cola cut two points off the margin in the second half. Coke outscored Book Barn, 0-38 in that half. Hendershot led Book Barn with 24, while Gibson had 21, and Clarke had 15. Hardee had 18, Rodgers had 11 and Boyd had 10 for Coke.

Home Builders rolled up a 35-21 lead in the first half, then outscored Harris-Evans, 41-33, in the second half for their second win of the year. Nelson led the winners with 24 points, while Parnell had 13 and Sharp had 12. Suggs led Harris-Evans with 16, while Spencer and Hardison each had 15.

Holt's is now 10-0, while Book Barn is 8-1 and Womack is 7-3. All of the other teams have been eliminated from title contention.

Roller Derby To Appear Here Soon

Something new to the area will roll into Minges Coliseum here on Sunday, February 18. Literally rolling-in, will be the San Francisco Bay Bombers and League All-Stars of the International Roller Derby League.

Roller Derby, although new to the Carolinas, has been played in the northeast and on the West Coast for over thirty years. Exhibition games have been played in Richmond and Norfolk for the past three seasons, drawing sell-out crowds in both Virginia cities. Home games of the Bay Bombers, one of the teams to play here, are telecast weekly on over fifty stations across the nation.

Derby teams consist of five men and five girls. The men skate against the men on the opposing team with the girls skating against the opposing girls. One total score is kept reflecting the points scored by the men and the girls.

Skating on a banked track which is installed for the game, the teams skate eight 12 minute periods in a game. Four of the 12 minute periods are skated by the girls and four by the men.

Leading the Bombers girls, will be their captain, Joan Weston, a 5' 10" blonde, 150 pound veteran of 14 years in Roller Derby competition. Charlie O'Connell will lead the Bombers men in the Coliseum play.

The All-Star team will be led by Bob Hein, captain of the Northwest Cardinals in league play. Ronnie Robinson, son of boxer Sugar Ray Robinson, will skate with the All-Stars.

Tickets for the exhibition game are priced at $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for any student. Tickets are on sale at the Coliseum ticket office, at Billmyer Ford in Greenville and at Garrett, Wink and Garrett in Rocky Mount.

Woodington Beats S. Ayden

KINSTON—Woodington High School rallied in the final half to take a 45-42 victory over South Ayden last night.

Woodington edged out into a 15-13 lead in the first period, but South Ayden came back to push ahead, 29-21 at the half.

Miller and Lawson led Woodington with 11 points each. James Lowry had 19 to pace South Ayden.

South Ayden's junior varsity won the preliminary game, 38-36, in an overtime.

Tar Heels Show Can Keep Poise

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

You can beat that drum, scream and yell. You're not going to get the North Carolina Tar Heels rattled in a college basketball game away from home.

The nationally ranked Tar Heels, No. 3 in The Associated Press poll, won their 14th straight by defeating Wake Forest 80-60 at Winston-Salem, N.C., Thursday night. They didn't lose their poise even when they were behind 10-3 and the Wake Forest crowd was raising the roof.

"When we play away from home everyone is shooting at us and there is a lot of screaming," said Dean Smith, North Carolina coach. "I am happy we can keep our poise."

Smith said his Tar Heels have been improving steadily since the semester break and the victory over Wake Forest was a "particularly fine one."

Larry Miller led North Carolina with 23 points and Charlie Scott added 21. Rusty Clark dominated the boards.

"Miller is an All-American," Smith said. "Scott and Clark are great, but don't get me wrong, we're not a three-man team."

North Carolina's over-all record now is 16-1 and Jack McCloskey, Wake Forest coach, declared the Tar Heels have "all the ingredients to make an exceptionally fine team. They are intensely aggressive, change their defenses fast and don't lose their poise."

Duke, looking ahead to its meeting with North Carolina in next month's Atlantic Coast Conference championship tourney, also won on the road.

Mike Lewis' 28 points and 18 rebounds, led the Blue Devils to a 78-54 victory over Southern Illinois in the opener of a double-header that marked the end of college basketball in New York's old Madison Square Garden.

Duke had been upset 72-63 by Southern Illinois in last year's NIT tournament. NYU defeated Manhattan 76-63 in the other half of the twinbill.

Bradley also scored a notable road victory, downing Tulsa 76-57. The Braves were led by Bob Swigris with 20 points and Greg Berry with 18.

John Fultz's two ree throws in the last 29 seconds gave Rhode Island an upset 53-51 victory over Providence at Kingston, R.I.

In other home court victories, St. Louis downed Memphis State 60-53 and Duquesne beat Westminster, Pa., 87-69 behind 34 points from Ron Guziak.

Powell Leads Williams Golf

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The par wreckers of golf, who had a pretty busy day in the first round, set forth again today in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Tournament with virtually unknown Jimmy Powell in the lead.

Powell, a strapping 6-footer who teaches the game for a living at Indian Hills Golf Club in Riverside, Calif., gave such more renowned pros as Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper and Arnold Palmer a lesson on how to whip the Torrey Pines Golf Club's par 36-36-72.

He did it Thursday over the 6,792-yard layout with 32-32-64, the lowest score of the 1968 PGA winter tour, and moved into today's play with a lead of two strokes.

Nicklaus, ending a three-week vacation from competition, was three shots back of the leader with 33-34-67. Casper was in the 68 bracket after 34-34 and Palmer was even par with 36-36-72.

Sixty-six of the 144 starting pros bettered par. It was rather frightening. But Nicklaus and some of the others predicted that the bombardment would relax when the tees are put further back and the course lengthened in the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Four players were tied at 66 — Ron Reif with a 31-35; Ray Flynd, 33-33; Ron Funseth, 32-34, and Tom Weiskopf, 32-34.

Nicklaus was deadlocked with Dave Hill and Marty Fleckman at 67. Casper was asked if he was surprised that a 68 still left him in a tie for ninth place.

"That's the way this game goes," said Casper.

Down the line—if 69 could be labeled down the line—was the defending champ Bob Goalby at 34-35-69. It was that kind of a first round.

Pipers Back On Top As Minnesota Falls To NJ

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Pittsburgh stands idle the rest of the American Basketball Association season, it might win the Eastern Division title, but the same is partially true for Minnesota.

The Pipers took the day off Thursday night and slipped back into first place by five percentage points over Minnesota, which dropped a 123-121 decision at New Jersey on Bruce Spraggins' free throws after the final buzzer.

The night before it was the Muskies who took advantage of an off day to gain the top spot while Pittsburgh lost. They get another chance tonight with an

Wildcats Look For Fifth Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson's Southern Conference leaders have won four straight games and therein, says coach Lefty Driesell, lies one of his worries about Saturday's conference test at Richmond.

Twice earlier, this season, Driesell points out, his Wildcats won four in a row, only to lose the next game. Both times were in December, and on each occasion the streak-ender was Vanderbilt.

"That sort of thing kind of makes you think," says Driesell. "And anyway, Richmond is going to be tough for us. Our big job will be stopping their offense."

Richmond coach Louie Mills laughs loudly at the business about a four game victory streak—"I only wish I had that problem," he says. But, Mills adds, "I have a feeling we'll give them something to think about. They have all the obvious advantages, but we have the intangibles."

The match between Davidson, 6-1 in SC play, and Richmond, 6-5, is an afternoon affair that will be regionally televised. Also in the afternoon is VM game at Furman. This, too, will be on regional tv.

No conference teams played Thursday night and none is scheduled to play tonight. All nine league teams are active Saturday, however.

Peggy's Too Good, Her Opponents All Agree

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer
GRENOBLE, France (AP) — America's Peggy Fleming would have to fall 20 times and wind up landing on her ear to lose the Olympic gold medal in the ladies' free-style figure skating final Saturday, her rivals conceded today.

"Peggy—she is much too good. No one has a chance to catch her," said Gabrielle Seyfert of East Germany, who placed second to Miss Fleming in the compulsory figures completed Thursday.

Tracing five figures' brilliantly, the 19-year-old ice ballerina from Colorado Springs, Colo., rolled up 1,062.1 points to 984.9 for Miss Seyfert, 960.0 for Austria's Beatrix Schuba, and 943.2 for Hana Maskova, the European champion from Czechoslovakia.

Miss Maskova, 18, a student at Prague and a shapely, brown-eyed brunette who has been labelled the prettiest girl in the 10th Winter Olympics, joined in the raves for her American opponent.

"Peggy is a marvelous free skater and she will win quite easily," admitted the Czech girl. "The only competition is for the silver and bronze medals."

Ladies' figure skating normally is full of politics and petty jealousies. Contestants can be as catty as a houseful of sorority sisters. But around the Stade de Glace, scene of the figure skating event, you can't find a sour word for the slim American champion.

Kasumi Yamashita, one of the three pretty and talented Japanese skaters, put it very succinctly:

"Peggy is very gracious (graceful). Her jumps are high and stable. She is the best."

Karen Magnusson, the 15-year-old Canadian champion from Vancouver, said, "Peggy is absolutely beautiful. She does everything wonderfully—the figures and the free skating."

Miss Schuba, 16, her blonde hair tied in a bun, laughed when someone asked if she, in third place, had a chance of making up the difference in free-skating.

"Oh, no, no," she insisted. "It is impossible. We have no chance."

Even the Russians admitted that Miss Fleming was the sport's unparalleled queen.

"Peggy, she is way up here," Elena Cheglova of the Soviet Union said through an interpreter, lifting one hand above her head. "And the rest of us—we are way down here."

Petra Ruhmann of Germany, after watching Peggy trace the last of five figures, commented, "When she skates, we all rush to the edge of the rink to watch her perform."

When Peggy's name is announced, an electric charge seems to go through the big, glassed-in arena. Spectators who have been chatting casually and paying little attention to the other competitors suddenly come alive. There is a rustling movement.

People rush to vantage points. Some pull out cameras. Others hug the plastic edge of the rink. They watch in quiet appreciation.

Almost everybody says in one language or another, "She's sensational."

The disappointing U.S. hockey team, winless in its first two games, was scheduled to meet a powerful Russian team late this morning. The Russians won both their previous games, scoring 17 goals and allowing none.

Scouts Observing 58th Anniversary

Scout Sunday (February 11) will be observed by Boy Scouts of the Pitt District just as it will be observed by Scouts across the nation, by attending church services in uniform.

For Greenville Troop 452, sponsored by the First Free Will Baptist Church, Scout Sunday will also be marked by presentation of two Eagle Scout awards.

But Scout Sunday is only one aspect of Boy Scout Week (Feb. 7-13), which also marks the 58th anniversary of scouting in the United States.

Four Greenville troops, Nos. 205, 200, 230 and 452, will be presenting a demonstration of Scouting skills at Pitt Plaza, beginning at 10:00 a.m. Saturday.

The Pitt District has seen a 16% increase in Scouts during the past year, serving 2,761 Scouts and Scouters. (There are now 521 adults registered in Pitt County scouting.) And, in 1967 twenty Scouts won the Eagle Award, the District's biggest year.

Current District officers are Fred Bowman (chairman), Knott Proctor Jr. (vice chairman) and Heber Adams (commissioner).

While Pitt is one of 20 counties in the East Carolina Council, the District holds a number of important posts. E. E. Rawls Jr. is the Council President; Dr. Harry Billica, Council Camping Chairman; and Dr. Herbert Hadley is the Council's Health and Safety Chairman.

Marine Tried To Hijack Airplane

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

DA NANG. (AP) — A U.S. Marine private in a black leather jacket tried today to hijack a Pan American Airlines DC6 loaded with war-weary U.S. Servicemen waiting to fly to Hong Kong, U.S. Air Force Police said.

After 2 hours and 45 minutes, a message from a four-star general and tear gas, the copilot thwarted the effort with a bold move.

The man arrested by Air Force police was identified as Marine Pfc. William Lee Clark of the 1st Division's 1st Field Artillery Group. No charges have been filed and authorities withheld comment pending a full investigation.

The incident started at 1:30 p.m. after 83 servicemen were aboard the plane for their rest and recuperation flight to Hong Kong.

In the cockpit of the four-engine plane were the pilot, John P. Jones, of New York City; copilot E.L. Archer, 30, of Beeville, Tex., and a flight engineer, Robert H. Clack, 26, of Midland, Mich.

While the engines were warming up, the trespasser in the leather jacket, blue jeans and boots shouted up to Archer from the runway. He asked where the plane was going, Archer said, and added he worked for a U.S. airline in Vietnam.

The next thing the crew knew, Archer said, the man was up front in the cockpit. He shut and bolted the door, cocked his pistol and kept it pointed at the flight engineer's head most of the time, Jones said. Archer quoted the man as saying, "I want to go to Hong Kong."

The passengers, many of them front-line combat troops, were ordered off the plane and the engines were turned off.

For nearly two hours the crew tried to talk the trespasser into leaving. Military police with automatic rifles gathered around the aircraft.

Talking by radio, a chaplain, a doctor and Col. Paul Watson of Washington, D.C., commander of the 366th tactical fighter wing, also tried to dissuade the trespasser.

In an aside, Watson said, "It's silly to let this man take off, he could do anything, like order the plane to Hanoi."

According to Archer, the gunman finally said, "start the engines or I'll shoot." The engines were started again.

The crew had permission to taxi the aircraft but at 3:45 a.m. the message from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, arrived. It said: "Don't let the plane leave. Use tear gas."

Tear gas was tossed into the vacated passenger compartment and the doors were sealed. The passenger loading steps were wheeled to the cockpit windows with armed air policemen on top of the steps. The flight engineer said, "I knew then we had forced his hand. He had to shoot us or let us go."

Archer said, "I got up and said I had to stretch. He (Clark) tried to look by me out the window. I grabbed the hand, pushed it against the wall, and the pistol fell."

Archer quoted Clark as saying, "Okay, okay, you've got me." Air policemen scrambled into the cockpit and took Clark into custody.

— Since this wasn't the first time that Sandra had been given the run-around, she meekly went outside to play.

A couple of days later, however, she asked her daddy to come out into the back yard, for she wanted to show him something

And there he found that Sandra had gone to the grocery and brought home some orange crates, plus wooden packing boxes in her little express wagon. "See, Daddy," she exclaimed, "now we can make a house for my dolly. Please help me!" But her daddy told her he wasn't very good at carpentry and again put her off, saying they'd buy a beautiful new doll house for her birthday.

Sandra, however, would have relished far more the camaraderie of working with her daddy to build their own doll house than to have received the most expensive department store creation:

A couple of weeks later, her daddy rushed over to my office in such a distraught mood that he was threatening suicide.

"Dr. Crane," he burst out, "I'm going crazy! I feel terrible and don't want to go on living!"

When I calmed him down enough for him to explain what had happened, he told me the following tragic facts.

Just after lunch he had been called to the hospital, urgently. Sandra lay on the bed, dying.

En route back to school that noon, she had been struck by an automobile.

An ambulance took her to the neighboring hospital, where her parents were immediately called.

Her daddy knelt down beside her and took her limp hands in his own.

She opened her eyes momentarily and smiled sadly, saying, "We didn't get the house built for my dolly, did we, daddy? But that's all right, for I won't need it now."

Then her eyelids fluttered shut and she was gone.

All parents can well sympathize with her distraught daddy.

"Dr. Crane," he cried in anguished remorse, "here I was so concerned with making a pile of dough in a hurry that I could

"What can I do, Dr. Crane? I'm crazy with grief and regret!"

Well, my first task was to soothe such a grieving parent, so I focussed his thinking forward by pointing out how happy Sandra would be in the beautiful heaven to which she had graduated.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Are you ready for a Charlie Chan cult, following those for Humphrey Bogart, Laurel and Hardy, W. C. Fields, etc.?

Warner Bros.-Seven Arts devoutly hopes it happens, since the company owns the mystery dramas produced by Fox in the 1930s. Such hopes are being furthered by a Charlie Chan film festival at New York's Museum of Modern Art March 4-17.

How would any middle-aged movie goer fail to recall the inimitable Charlie? Whether played by Warner Oland or his successor, Sidney Toler, he was always the same: The white suit with Panama hat perched squarely atop his head, . . . his banter with No. 1 son, the breathless Keye Luke, . . . his way of wrapping up the situation with pseudo-confucianisms like "bad alibi like dead fish—cannot stand the test of time."

Two ladies who lives were transformed by Charlie Chan into own connection with Chan: "I was typed when I was playing in pictures; I was always the villainess. So I was chosen to play the murderess in 'Charlie Chan at the Opera.' Boris Karloff was also in the picture, and Oscar Levant composed an opera for us to sing."

Biggers produced the first of the Chan books, "House Without a Key," in 1925. Five others appeared before the author's death in 1933. Hollywood first saw possibilities in the Biggers books in 1926, when Pathe produced "House Without a Key." The role of Chan was minimized and handed to a Japanese actor, George Kuwa.

Another Japanese, Kamiyama Sojin, played Chan in Universal's "The Chinese Parrot" in 1928. Fox filmed "Behind That Curtain" in 1929 with Warner Baxter as star and an English actor E. L. Park, as Charlie. The pattern for future films finally arrived with "Charlie Chan Carries On" in 1931.

Logan, wife of the late Colonel Joshua Logan and a former actress. The other was Eleanor Biggers Cole, wife of the author who created Charlie, Earl Den Biggers.

"My husband and I took a cruise to Honolulu in 1920, when it was really Honolulu," Mrs. Cole recalled. "Nothing of a literary nature came from it; my husband was not a prolific writer. A year or so later he decided to do some writing, and went

New York Public Library to seek ideas.

"He happened to come across an item in a Honolulu paper that sparked his imagination. It mentioned that a Chinese detective had arrested three Japanese for gambling. That was the beginning of Charlie Chan."

By playing diamonds first, South has time to develop his ninth trick safely. It is suggested that he lead a small diamond from his hand at trick two. If West goes up with the king and continues hearts, declarer holds up until the third round. Now, when the club finesse loses, East has no hearts to return and South cashes out when he regains the lead.

If West ducks when the diamond is led at trick two, declarer puts up the queen from dummy and, with the diamond safely in, he can transfer his attentions to clubs. In the interests of safety, the finesse is abandoned and a small club is led from dummy. East is in with the king and, when he returns a heart, South puts up the ace and runs for cover with his nine tricks.

Landowners Approve Watershed Program

Landowners in the Swift Creek Watershed met Wednesday night, approved the watershed work plans and voted to move ahead with the project.

Plans call for one-half of the open farm and other privately owned land in the watershed to be given adequate conservation treatment during the eight-year project period.

Roy Beck, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, explained that this would mean treating about 14,000 acres of open land and an estimated $3,400 acres of woodland.

Total investment by landowners over the period of the project will total an estimated $715,000, Beck added.

He reported project sponsors have agreed that one-fourth of the open land in Swift Creek is to be adequately treated before construction of improved channels begins.

Extra technical help will be available to landowners in the watershed to aid in planning and applying conservation programs during the period of the project.

Other parts of the plan call for improvement of approximately 233 miles of channels; installation of a 100-acre wildlife wetland management area to mitigate anticipated wildlife damages; and construction of an extra low-flow channel in the bottom of six miles of Creeping Swamp canal to mitigate expected damage to fisheries.

The 100-acre wildlife wetland area will be installed in wooded swampland on the Craven County side of Creeping Swamp, above N.C. 43, Beck explained.

The low-flow channel in Creeping Swamp canal, the work-unit conservationist said, will be a dragline bucket-wide bucket-deep ditch in the bottom of the new canal "so there will be deep water for fish even in dry weather."

Beck set total construction estimates for the project at $2,876,785 in federal funds and $1,515,215 in local or drainage district monies.

The Soil Conservation Service will provide engineering and inspection services for the project.

Drainage district attorney Frank M. Wooten Jr. told the group that out-of-pocket cash costs to watershed landowners have been estimated at about $800,000.

Priority Given Transportation And Highways

More than 30 Pitt County leaders agreed Thursday night that the project which would be most beneficial to Pitt County would be "highway and transportation improvement."

The group, composed of representatives from the various chambers of commerce in the county, newspaper and television media, mayors, representatives from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the East Carolina University Development Institute, met at the Greenville Moose Lodge to discuss the problems of Pitt County.

Those participating in the program included: Dr. Sylvester Greene, executive director of the Pitt Development Commission; Harold Creech, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce-Merchants Association; Clyde Simmons Jr., editor of the Grifton Times and the Ayden Tribune; Tom Willis, director of the East Carolina University Development Institute; and Dr. Joe Pou of Wachovia Bank.

These men outlined the problems of Pitt County and suggested solutions to correct these problems.

Other projects the group felt should be undertaken in Pitt included: Beautification programs to attract people to Pitt; better transportation; major air transportation at the local airport and four laning U.S. 264 and more adequate intercounty road network.

The group agreed more technical training was needed in Pitt County and that Pitt Technical Institute should be expanded immediately.

The program was sponsored by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce - Merchants Association and was presided over by the organization's president, Billy B. Laughinghouse.

Exchange Club Tells Plans For 'Crime Prevention Week'

To make citizens more aware of their responsibilities in upholding law and order, National Crime Prevention Week will be sponsored locally Feb. 11-17 by the Greenville Exchange Club.

The theme for the 21st annual observance of Crime Prevention Week will be "Citizens Alert! Mobilize Against Crime."

Beginning the seven-day emphasis on the war on lawlessness will be a "Go-To-Church Sunday" program.

The Exchange Club's crime prevention chairman Luther Moore said emphasis is being placed on the importance of regular attendance at church as a deterrent to crime and juvenile delinquency.

Ministers have been asked, Moore continued, to base their sermons Sunday around various aspects of crime, home life, or topics that will emphasize the importance of good citizenship.

Plans for the remainder of the week - long anti-crime crusade include talks to students, an effort to make them aware of the problems and enlist their support in preventing crime, Moore said; giving literature to grammar grade children, and sponsoring radio and television programs on the prevention of crime.

Included in the literature to be given to elementary students is a picture to be colored of children walking home from school, showing a man with a bag of candy standing beside the sidewalk. The printed message at the bottom of the picture urges the students: "Remember turn down gifts from strangers, refuse rides offered by strangers, avoid dark and lonely streets, and know your local policeman."

Moore said prizes will be given for coloring the pictures.

As a wrapup for the week, the Exchange Club will have representatives from various law enforcement agencies in Pitt County as well as recorders court and superior court judges attend their regular Thursday night meeting.

Greenville attorney and former judge J. W. H. Roberts will speak at the dinner session. The sponsorship of Crime Prevention Week is undertaken across the United States by the National Exchange Club through local clubs.

Moore said crime prevention week is designated to emphasize that the control of crime is everyone's concern as well as everyone's duty. He said citizens should fight crime by respecting the law, reporting law violations to enforcement agencies quickly, and teaching our children to respect the rights of others and to support our police.
