

Boycott Begins In Orangeburg; Demands Pile Up

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP)—Negroes today began a boycott of white businesses in a new wide-ranging civil rights drive following last week's violence that left three Negroes dead. There were a few Negro shoppers in downtown stores soon after shops opened. But some merchants reported Sunday the 5 p.m. to 6 a.m. nightly curfew already had cut business drastically. The city remained calm as more than 600 National Guardsmen were held on duty. About 800 Negroes in a Sunday meeting voted overwhelmingly for immediate removal of the troops and the boycott of white-owned businesses. Also demanded was the "immediate suspension of the law enforcement officers responsible for the police brutality" in racial violence that resulted in three deaths Thursday night. The violence for four days last week, in which 50 persons also were injured, was sparked by attempts of Negro college students to integrate a bowling alley. The Rev. I. D. Newman, state field director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said action was wanted "immediately with no nonsense." More than 800 persons representing a cross section of Orangeburg's Negro community met in Trinity Methodist Church Sunday and overwhelmingly endorsed the boycott and other demands sent to the governor and the City Council. They expressed concern for the course of race relations in the city and objected to the presence of more than 600 guardsmen. In Columbia, Gov. Robert McNair's office said the guardsmen would remain as long as necessary for the protection of citizens. Dusk-to-dawn curfews imposed since Friday will continue until a state of emergency is over, the governor said. Police officials denied the charges of brutality and reiterated that a crowd of Negro students was fired upon Thursday night only after sniper fire was aimed at the police. Inquests into the three deaths are planned but no dates have been set. A statement adopted at the Sunday meeting called for the state to make restitution to families of the three dead and the 50 injured.

Honor Farm Leader Jasper Winslow Farm Bureau Office Is Dedicated Here Sunday

The Pitt County Farm Bureau office building was dedicated yesterday in memory of the late farm leader Jasper E. Winslow. Winslow, who died in 1958, was a moving force behind the formation of the Pitt County Farm Bureau in February, 1936, and the North Carolina Farm Bureau later that same year. He served as president of the state federation from 1936 to 1946, then was elected president emeritus. The building dedicated yesterday, is located on the U. S. 264 bypass between Hooker Road and N. C. 11 intersections. East Carolina University president, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, who spoke at the dedication service, said that Winslow, assisted by the late Haywood Dail and the late Roy Cox, planned and conducted the first organizational meeting of the state organization in Wright Auditorium at ECU. "The three spent much time visiting and talking with farmers in Eastern North Carolina about the need for a farm organization that would enable framers to exert a united effort for farm programs they needed," Jenkins said, "resulting in 6,500 farmers in Pitt County joining the Farm Bureau during the first year of its organization." "Winslow as an able farm leader and as the first president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, had more to do with the development of the tobacco production and marketing control program than any other farmer in the entire flue-cured tobacco belt." Jenkins continued, "As one of the architects of the tobacco acreage control and price support program and as one of the moving forces behind the formation of North Carolina's Farm Bureau Federation, Winslow made lasting contributions to the welfare of agriculture in this state." "A man never reluctant to assume a place of leadership and never hesitant to speak out for and support new ideas he felt were in the interest of the farmer, Winslow," the university president continued, "afforded . . . agriculture forceful, positive leadership which over the years contributed in no

Pre-School Census Being Held In Greenville

A pre-school census to determine the number of first grade children expected to enter Greenville City Schools in September, is now being conducted by school officials. Children who will be six years old before Oct. 16 are eligible for first-grade entrance in September, according to city schools Superintendent Dr. C. C. Cleetwood. Although the six elementary schools in the city are conducting the census, parents may contact the elementary schools and obtain a pre-school census sheet. Dr. Cleetwood said the purpose of the census is to get a preliminary list of students planning to enter school for the first time in September, but more importantly, to get a mailing list for sending letters regarding the orientation-registration conferences scheduled for March 12. Plans call for orientation-registration meetings to be conducted at all six of the elementary schools in the city at 8 p.m. March 12, and parents of children entering schools should be present for the sessions. Although children will not need to attend, the child's birth certificate should be brought to the meeting, Dr. Cleetwood explained. The month of March has been set as the "freedom of choice" period for the city schools and materials for making the free choice of any elementary school will be issued to parents of the new students at the orientation-registration sessions. Parents may attend the conferences at any elementary school in the city and under the freedom of choice, choose any school in the system for the children to attend, Dr.

Cleetwood continued. "Your choice does not have to be the school where you report for the conference on March 12," he emphasized. "It is important that every home be reached in the survey," Dr. Cleetwood noted, "because it is imperative that we have a realistic number of first graders to expect."

Unemployment In Pitt Edges Up; Seasonal

New unemployment continued to increase in Pitt County during January, according to Lloyd Noe, manager of the local Employment Security Commission office. Noe said new claims in January increased 44 per cent over the December level, while continued claims were 127 per cent higher than in December. He linked the increase in claims primarily to the "seasonal nature of the tobacco industry" and "some construction slow-down because of weather conditions." "In spite of the fairly heavy claims load," Noe said, "the employment picture and job market continues to look good, particularly for the young high school graduate with mechanical aptitude and mathematical ability. "Local employers look with favor upon such applicants and they can be placed in gainful employment without delay," Noe explained.

60-75 Years Sentence For Killer Of 3

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Spec. 5 Ervin Mercer, 39, convicted Friday of second degree murder in the slaying of three persons, was sentenced today to 60 to 75 years in prison. Mercer, a career soldier from Ft. Benning, Ga., was charged in the Sept. 14 slaying of his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Mercer, 23, Mrs. Ida Mae Dunn, 30, and Mrs. Dunn's 5-year-old son, Jeffrey Lane Dunn. The shootings occurred at the house where the three victims lived. Mercer was charged with three counts of first degree murder but the Wilson County Superior Court jury returned the second degree conviction. Judge Joseph W. Parker sentenced Mercer to 20 to 25 years on each count. Upon passing sentence, the judge said Mercer had convicted and executed the women and the child. The judge said it would have been an injustice if the jury had set Mercer free. Mercer maintained his innocence on grounds of insanity. There was no immediate notice of appeal.

Soviet Openly Cheers On Viet Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union publicly urged on the Vietnamese Communists to new victories today while Kremlin leaders secretly discussed peace prospects with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant. After his talks, Thant departed for London to confer with Prime Minister Harold Wilson. He had come to Moscow from India where he met with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles and a North Vietnamese diplomat. Britain is co-chairman with the Soviet Union of the Geneva conference which ended the French-Indochina war in 1954. India is a member of the International Control Commission for Vietnam. Complete Soviet support for the peace programs of Hanoi and the Viet Cong, and promises of continued aid in fighting the United States, were given here while Thant was meeting with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

By GEORGE ESPER SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese warplanes bombed and strafed Communist forces holding out in Hue's Citadel today after U.S. Marine reinforcements were sent into the walled fortress for the first time in the two-week battle. The allied assaults were part of an all-out effort to drive the Communist North Vietnamese regulars and Viet Cong guerrillas from areas they have held since Jan. 31. The Communists, holding the Citadel's southeast corner, put up a hail of .50-caliber anti-aircraft fire at the attacking planes. Cloudy cover lifted to permit the first air attack on the fortress in 10 days. Two companies of Marines—about 300 to 400 men—entered the Citadel from landing craft sent up the Perfume River Sunday and another two companies of Leathernecks were taken to the Citadel's northern wall by assault boats today. The Marines have already recaptured the southern part of Hue in a series of street battles in the early stages of their big offensive against 35 cities and towns. South Vietnamese troops pushed the Communist troops into one corner of the Citadel but had been unable to drive them out. The U.S. Marine force in Hue was about 1,000 men. AP correspondent George McArthur reported from Hue that the Marines were meeting only occasional sniper fire in the southern part of the city 400 miles north of Saigon.

He said there were indications all North Vietnamese troops had withdrawn from the fighting for the south side, leaving only local guerrillas, including some who infiltrated among the 30,000 civilian refugees. Lt. Col. Phan Van Khoa, province chief, mayor of Hue and district military commander, said Communist troops in Hue executed 300 civilians Friday and buried them in a mass grave south of the city. He said the grave was in an area not yet reached by allied forces but that his reports of the executions were precise and unquestionable. The victims were province officials, technicians, policemen and others who long had been marked for death by the Communists, he said. A Vietnamese civilian reported 125 to 150 Catholics being led from the city as captives Saturday. The Negroes agreed that the boycott would continue until action is taken to comply with a list of objectives that includes: Placing Negroes in appointing county and city jobs; adding "an equitable number of Negroes" to local and state police forces; and elimination of the Orangeburg County dual school system together with full integration and the busing of pupils for racial balance. "We call upon the total Negro community and other interested citizens," the statement said, "to participate in a no-buying quarantine with shopping to be confined to Negro businesses." Luther Adden, chairman of the Retail Merchants Bureau of the Orangeburg Chamber of Commerce, said "they want things worked out immediately but it's going to take time." Dr. C. H. Thomas Jr., local NAACP president, said Negro day.

Fighting also continued in Saigon and its suburbs for the 13th day, and communiques and field reports said U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen, helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers killed 223 Viet Cong in running battles around a government ammunition dump a mile northeast of Tan Son Nhut Air Base and near the Saigon racetrack on the city's western outskirts. AP photographer Joe Holloway reported that infantrymen from the U.S. 199th Brigade, moved into Saigon Friday to speed the mop-up operation, found remnants of a Viet Cong battalion hiding out behind grave mounds in two small cemeteries and near three houses surrounded by rice paddies in the race course area. The infantrymen sealed the area off with armored personnel carriers, then appealed via loudspeaker from a hovering helicopter for the guerrillas to surrender. None came out. The infantrymen went in after them and later counted 42 enemy dead, along with six U.S. troops killed and 13 wounded. In another incident, a flare dropped to illuminate a sector of the city caused a house fire that killed 12 members of one family. But downtown, more people were on the streets and more shops were open than at any time since cities fighting began Jan. 31.

Winter's Cold Setting Records

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Winter's coldest blasts struck North Carolina early today, setting records for the date. The coldest reporting point this morning was Laurel Springs, in Alleghany County, which registered six degrees above zero. The mercury dropped to eight degrees at the Raleigh-Durham Airport, erasing a former record of 15 degrees for Feb. 12. The weatherman said colder weather will arrive tonight. Skies are expected to remain clear. High temperatures Sunday rose only into the 30s. Mt. Mitchell had a low reading before dawn Sunday of 14 degrees below zero. Low readings this morning included 11 at Asheville, 16 at Charlotte, 15 at Greensboro, 19 at Wilmington, and 18 at Elizabeth City. Canton had a reading of severe above zero, 12 at Goldsboro, and 13 at New Bern. The weather bureau said lows are expected tonight of from zero to 10 degrees in the mountains and mostly 10 to 20 degrees elsewhere following afternoon highs of 25 to 30 in the mountains, mostly in the 30s elsewhere but ranging to near 40 along the southeast coast. The forecast for Tuesday is for generally fair and cold, becoming partly cloudy in the mountains in the afternoon. High pressure that is associated with the cold air was over Mississippi early today and was moving toward North Carolina. A weak low pressure still covers much of the northeast United States and there was another weak low pressure area over the southwest portion of the nation. Another outbreak of cold air is pushing southward across the northern and central great plains. The center of the high pressure over Mississippi is expected to be directly over the Carolinas tonight.

Greenville and Pitt County residents have seen some chilly temperatures yesterday, last night and this morning. This morning at 8 a.m. the temperature stood at 15 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station. By 10 o'clock the temperature had risen to 29 degrees, with winds of three to five miles per hour. The Tar River level stood at 4.7 feet. Winds Sunday increased the chill factor and made the temperature seem colder than it actually was. The weather station recorded a low Sunday of 19 degrees and a 32 degree high. Winds were recorded at 12 to 15 miles per hour. Saturday, winds of 15 to 20 miles per hour added a chill to the 40 degree high recorded on that day. Low for Saturday was reported at 28 degrees.

Playwright Howard Lindsay Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Lindsay, actor, director and playwright for more than a half century—but familiarly known to millions as the irascible-lovable father in Broadway's "Life With Father"—died Sunday of leukemia. He was 78 years old. Lindsay not only appeared in "Life With Father" for over five of its seven years' run, he wrote it with the late Russel Crouse, with whom he collaborated for 28 years. Lindsay's wife, Dorothy Stickney, portrayed the mother in the play. Among other hits resulting from the Lindsay-Crouse association, which ended in 1962 with the death of Crouse, were "State of the Union," which won them the 1946 Pulitzer Prize; "Arsenic and Old Lace," which ran for over three years; the musical "Anything Goes," and, with the aid of Irving Berlin, "Call Me Madam," which starred Ethel Merman. Lindsay also wrote the book for "The Sound of Music," starring Mary Martin, for which he was given the 1960 Antoinette Perry Award. Born in Waterford, N.Y., March 29, 1889, Lindsay attended the Boston Latin School, spent a year at Harvard University, and studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Party-Switch Drive Is Opened By Gardner

MRS. BISSETTE AND GARDNER . . . at press conference this morning.

Frank Everett of Robersonville and Mrs. Ted Bissette of Spring Hope have been named to posts in "Operation Switch-over," according to an announcement made today at a news conference in Greenville, staged by Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Gardner. Mrs. Bissette, the former Betty Lane Evans of Greenville who was Miss North Carolina in 1959, has been named woman's coordinator in the Eastern Division for the switch-over campaign, while Everett has been named co-ordinator for the change-over drive in the East. Gardner told newsmen and a score of Republican supporters that a Gardner for Governor headquarters is being opened in Robersonville, with a full-time staff. "Anyone wishing information or help in changing their registration from the Democrat party to the Republican may secure information at the Robersonville office, he said. Mrs. Bissette, who told the gathering that she has changed her registration from Democrat to Republican, said, "complacency and failure to speak out" have caused the people of the state "to find ourselves at or near the bottom of good government after six decades of Democrat governors." "I pledge to do all I can," she continued, "to establish a two-party system in North Carolina." Gardner said former Democrats have been switching their registration to Republican because of the lack of interest shown by the Democrats in the problems confronting the people living in the eastern part of the state. Everett, who switched his registration last year, is a former Democrat member of the state legislature.

Inter Se Members Hear Mrs. Wilks

Mrs. Wilhelmine Wilks, a native of Latvia, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Inter Se Book Club held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Wyatt Brown.

Mrs. Wilks was dressed in a Latvian costume which she had sewn and embroidered by hand. She showed handmade articles from her homeland.

Mrs. Wilks told how Latvia became independent in 1918 and of the great progress which was made in her country. Russia broke its treaty in 1940 and seized Latvia by force. The people were treated cruelly—homes were burned, property confiscated and families separated.

Mrs. Wilks escaped being forced to work at hard labor because she could teach.

In 1941, the Germans seized Latvia and held it until 1944 when the Russians seized the country again and kept it added Mrs. Wilks.

Mrs. Wilks and her daughter escaped to Germany and finally came to the United States.

Some Plain Talk About Leftovers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor
Some food writers go too far. They urge women to call leftovers "planned-overs" and to plan religiously ahead for their use. What nonsense!

What's wrong with leftovers? Why does their name have to be changed? Leftovers have been with us since man first tossed a hunk of meat on the fire and he and the cave woman hanging around — to say nothing of the cave children — couldn't gobble it all up. Undoubtedly whatever meat was left was used for the next feast — and no great planning was involved.

Leftovers they've always been, until some smart kitchen clinicians started twisting the name around. So let's hue to tradition and leave them alone. Leftovers are great because you can make good dishes with them. You don't have to apologize for them and you don't have to plan for them. All you have to do is to choose a recipe, or invent one, that intelligently uses whatever leftovers you happen to have around.

Why do we feel so strongly about not forcing leftovers into planned-overs?

Because we know our women. Once a mother gets the idea that she absolutely has to have two cups of chicken left from the family's Sunday dinner for a "planned-over" dish, it's definitely f.h.b. — family hold back. She may not say a single word about her intention, but it sure will seep into the air. When father helps himself to that second chicken leg, he'll probably feel a little guilty. This is silly. Heaven knows there are enough important things in life to feel guilty about. We'd rather see the family enjoy all the roast chicken they want when the bird first appears on the table than have to worry about holding back so there will be enough left for another meal. Next day let them eat beans.

So now to our leftover dish — chicken or turkey roll. If there isn't any chicken left to use in this roll, save the recipe and use it the next time you have turkey. We've never yet seen the roast turkey that didn't allow the family to have all they wanted and still yield a couple of cups of meat for another dish.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY ROLL
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 small onion, peeled and finely chopped
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon aromatic bitters
2 cups knife-chopped (fine) chicken or turkey
2 cups commercial biscuit mix
1/4 teaspoon ground poultry seasoning
2-3rd cup milk

In a 10-inch skillet over low heat, melt the butter; add onion and celery. Cook, stirring often, until onion is golden. Stir in flour; add 1/2 cup milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Stir in the salt, aromatic bitters and chicken; set aside to cool while preparing biscuit dough.

In a small bowl, with a fork, mix together the biscuit mix and poultry seasoning; add the 2-3rd cup milk and stir to form a dough. Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth. With a prepared stockinet covered rolling pin, roll out to an exact 10 by 10 inch square. Spread with the chicken mixture. Roll up tightly. Place, seam side down, on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Brush top with extra milk. Bake in a 400 degree oven until golden brown — 35 minutes or longer. Serve hot, cut into crosswise slices, a favorite sauce. Makes six servings.

Recipe Note:
If you want to make a richer biscuit mixture than the one given above, do it this way: Turn 2 cups biscuit mix and 1/4 teaspoon ground poultry seasoning

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (WNS) —Eva Johansson, 20, four times junior ping-pong champion of Europe, won the women's singles and doubles titles in the Arloev tournament, then signed up for the men's singles, too. Words Of Wisdom For Today's Younger Set

By BIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our eldest daughter had to get married at 17. Her "win" gone steady with a "very nice" boy for three years, so we made a rule for the younger children—NO GOING STEADY.

Now we are having trouble with our 16-year-old daughter. She wants to go steady. We said no; she has to have a date with another boy between dates with her special boy friend. She says no one else asks her.

Tell me, Abby; how can parents keep their children from going steady? We know from past experience that it is dangerous, and we don't want any more "hurry-up" marriages in our family. But if the kids don't want to go with anyone else, or if no one else asks them, what can parents do?

WORRIED MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Instead of making rules, if parents would work toward building the kind of relationship with their children that lends itself to straight talk on a sensible, unemotional basis, they would fare better.

Let your children know why too much togetherness puts a strain on two normal young

UP NIGHTS IN BOONE, IA.
DEAR UP: Dogs, like people, can have a nasal obstruction which causes them to snore, so do yourself (and your pooch) a favor and ask your vet to look into it.

If this doesn't help try ear plugs (for you), but I wouldn't put a dog out in an Iowa winter.

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to that young woman who said she was the world's worst housekeeper. I was once in her shoes, but now I am one of the best. I think I know what the problem is for most women. They never finish what they start.

Before they're done cleaning, they start ironing. Before they're thru ironing, they start to bake. Then, instead of washing up those dishes, they start sewing, and before they finish with that, they go marketing and come home with a lot of stuff to be put away, which only adds to the confusion.

If a woman would tackle only one job at a time, and finish that job and everything connected with it, they would soon find that housekeeping is not a chore — but a joy.

It is so nice to live in a home fashion news as they appear on sofas and matching or coordinated chairs. The style trend in living room pieces is toward elegant simplicity. As other furnishings — rugs, occasional tables, lamps and accessories — become more ornate, homemakers will recognize the need for relatively simple lines in major upholstered pieces to provide visual balance. Replacing An Eyesore With Beauty

Signing of contracts for construction of a retaining wall and esplanade along the Tar River banks is a milestone in Greenville's development. The $390,000 contract with Blythe Bros. was executed by Redevelopment representatives last week. It calls for construction of a wall along the south bank 1,600 feet in length. There will be a fill behind the wall and a 15-foot wide walkway or esplanade constructed atop. Behind this will be a low brick wall.

Thus an area which once was the site of numerous shanties will soon become one of Greenville's, and perhaps the state's most beautiful sites.

Already the idea of sidewalk art shows along the esplanade are being discussed. There is consideration of an outdoor theatre in the area. The esplanade is bound to prove popular with those who wish to watch crew races now held on the Tar by ECU.

The uses of the riverside park area with its esplanade are limited only by the imagination of local citizens—and with East Carolina University to draw from that should be practically unlimited.

In addition to beauty, the wall will serve the more practical purpose of raising the flood level in the area. Studies of flooding have shown that there would have been only a few occasions over the years when water would have risen over the esplanade.

When the Shore Drive project was first envisioned, one of the aims was to restore the old town common north of First Street. The retaining wall construction assures that not only will this be done, but even more. It should be an outstanding, modern asset to Greenville.

McLendon Saw 1968 Overtones

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES RALEIGH — Eight months ago at his desk in the State Legislative Building in Raleigh, Sen. L. P. McLendon, Jr. faced a paradoxical choice on a question which he felt involved not only principle but the political future of himself and his party.

The question — whether he could introduce and support an amendment to bring predominantly Negro N. C. A&T College in Greensboro under the new and surprising "regional universities" bill introduced by Sen. John Henley of Cumberland?

McLendon, 46, a lawyer and son of one of the state's most distinguished attorneys and public servants, a second term in the State Senate, was both perplexed and dismayed.

He supported the "one-university" concept for higher education in the state pending completion of a long-range study by the State Board of Higher Education. Yet he felt compelled to follow the wishes of the N. C. A&T trustees and offered the amendment "at their request and against my advice." In a sense of desperation in the Higher Education committee, he moved to table the entire Henley bill but was shouted down.

Later, on the floor of the Senate McLendon spoke out again against the "regional universities" idea urging the legislature wait and give it deeper study. He was joined eloquently by an Easterner, Sen. Lindsay B. Warren, Jr., of Wayne, but the supporters of university status hammered away and won.

The staunchest supporter of university status at East Carolina, Sen. Robert Morgan of Harnett, said he would "heartily endorse" including Appalachian State and Western Carolina because they had been working and planning toward a university status. He opposed N. C. A&T's inclusion because a campus of the University of North Carolina, UNC-Greensboro, is located in the same city and bringing in A&T "would defeat the purpose of regional universities."

How deeply the disappointment of his losing fight affected his decision can't be judged, but McLendon has chosen not to return to the 1969 General Assembly. This doesn't mean that McLendon is retiring from politics. "I hope to run again for the General Assembly, possibly two years from now," he says. He did not mention "regional universities" as a reason either, citing the length of biennial sessions, family commitments and his private law practice as things which caused his decision.

Nevertheless, it will be interesting to see if McLendon's prediction of "political overtones" going far beyond "the possible loss of (Democratic) votes in Eastern North Carolina" on the East Carolina University regional universities controversy come into play this year.

In choosing not to seek reelection this year, McLendon joins a list of other 1967 Senate members also going to (Continued On Page 5)

We'll Do Better, We Hope, For The Future

Approval of a thoroughfare study by the City Council underscores once again the necessity of planning for the future growth of the city.

Greenville will contract with the State Highway Commission for its planning department to undertake the 15-month study of Greenville's street needs. The city will make two payments of $2,425 to the Highway Commission for the study which has a value estimated at $12,125.

The planning will project Greenville's growth and on the basis of this recommend street patterns which would be suitable as far in the future as 1995. While such studies are costly and time consuming, it is the type planning that Greenville needs if the city is not to be swamped by the growth which almost surely lies ahead.

Those who planned the city's street in the early days of Greenville's development did not bless us with an adequate system. It is to be hoped that present day planners will do better by future generations.

Power Brokers Shun Delegation

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK SACRAMENTO, Calif. —

Contrary to the euphoric propaganda coming from President Johnson's political advisors in Washington, the California Democratic party is scarcely in better shape today than six months ago when Democratic leaders were privately predicting certain disaster ahead.

Both the powerful speaker of the State Assembly, Jesse Unruh, who runs the Democratic show at the state capitol here, and Sam Yorty, maverick mayor of Los Angeles, are boycotting the Johnson - pledged delegation (headed by State Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch).

As of this writing, there is no chance that either one of these political power brokers will join the delegation now being put together by Mr. Johnson's White House and California operatives. The Lynch delegation will run against a left-leaning slate of delegates headed by Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, whose name, unlike Mr. Johnson's, will appear on the Presidential primary ballot next June.

The significance of the Unruh - Yorty snub to the White House can only be understood in the light of the intense White House efforts to get them to join. In fact, the erroneous assumption in the White House even today is that Yorty will come around sooner or later and allow his name to be included on the delegation. There is only futile White House hope for Unruh, who has been urging Senator Robert F. Kennedy to challenge the President. But that's only the start of the President's deep problem in this snake pit of feuding Democrats.

At a meeting in a locked room at San Francisco International Airport early last month, leaders of the Johnson delegation held a strategy session with one secret aspect that produced more heat and friction than campaign strategy.

The meeting included the party's high command: former Governor Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, National Committeeman Eugene W. Ryan, State Chairman Charles Warren, Reps. Chet Holifield and George Miller, and key state legislators (not including Unruh, of course). Starting smoothly enough, the meeting soon developed acrimony between Brown and Attorney General Lynch.

Brown demanded that Lynch, as stand-in candidate for the President, must wage an all-out campaign, travel the state extensively on speaking tours, and help raise a war chest for the primary of between $250,000 and $500,000.

Lynch, who never wanted to head the delegation in the first place, replied testily that he did not have time for any such broad campaign. Others would have to do most of the work, he said.

Moreover, although Brown did not mention it out loud, the strong feeling of the present was that Brown's domination of the meeting was a clear bid by Brown, who is hardly on speaking terms with Unruh and Yorty, to succeed Wyman as the new National Committeeman.

The strategy session broke up without having finally come to grips with the precise shape and size of the Johnson primary campaign. Thus, with the President pushing for an all-out primary campaign against McCarthy (in which Mr. Johnson, as an official non-candidate for President, will take no part at all) his party is still torn by dissension.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS WE CAN MAKE LIFE SO

When Grenfell, the great missionary to Labrador, was praised for his years of sacrificial service, he always replied cheerfully: "Don't say a word about sacrifice! It's all been such jolly good fun."

Fun, we ask, living in a remote part of the world, away from friends and culture? Fun, to be marooned on an ice floe for days and to spend many months each year following a dog sled through the snow? Can there be fun in giving up the things which humanity loves best—security, comfort, pleasure, fellowship, culture?

Well, the only answer which can be made to such questions is that throughout human history thousands of men have given up all these things and found abundant life in so doing. St. Paul Augustine, Bernard of Clairvaux, John Wesley, John G. Paton, missionary to the Hebrides, Father Damien, David Livingstone, Jane Addams—these have given up all for the welfare of their fellows and have found, like Grenfell, that in spite of the hardship—yes, in fact largely because of it—it's been such jolly good fun.

We turn our faces from sacrifice and say it is a painful thing, but it is when we crawl inside ourselves that we experience real pain and unhappiness. Life, when we live it wholesomely and to the full, is always "jolly good fun."

The Mice that Roared and Roared and Roared.

ART BUCHWALD

If Only We Had Fished

WASHINGTON — Everyone is second-guessing what we should have done or not done about the hijacking of the USS Pueblo, which, depending on whom you believe, had been either on the high seas, or in the territorial waters of North Korea.

What everyone does agree on is that the Pueblo was an electronic snooper, spying on North Korea, and that the operation was pretty botched up. I had no idea what we could have done differently until I bumped into my old friend, Dmitri, a Soviet Embassy employee, whom I'm quite sure is a spy.

Strangely enough, Dmitri seemed very upset about the Pueblo's capture.

"Is making it hard on all spy ships," Dmitri said. "Because of Pueblo, now all spy ships are looked on with suspicion."

"But what could we have done differently?" I asked Dmitri.

"Is not my place to help Americans in espionage, but you went about spying on North Korea all wrong."

"What would you have done?"

"Fish." "What do you mean, fish?" I said angrily. "Fish."

"Is well-known fact that all Soviet spy ships are fishing trawlers. They are manned by civilians dressed as fishermen. Every time they go somewhere, three civilians throw their fishing lines over side of trawler and fish. Then, if boat drifts into territorial waters, everyone is arrested for illegal fishing."

"That did happen in Alaska," I admitted.

One hundred baskets later, when the black stuff was irrecoverably scattered all over the lawn, the husband came out to check on progress. That's when he got the bill and the shock of his life.

Consumer protection in the old days was concerned with chain referral plans, home improvement swindles, bail-and-switch schemes, charity gyms, health reducing plans and others.

"Is happening all the time," Dmitri said. "Suppose instead of U. S. Navy ship, the United States sent in fishing trawler. Everyone knows the fish off North Korea are running good at this time of year. So you show up off Wonsan and throw nets out. Torpedo boat comes out and yells, 'Hey, you dirty capitalist, rotten, revisionist fisherman, stop fishing in our waters.' So your captain yells, 'Is free waters for fish. Americans need fish for to win hearts and minds of people in the free world. Drop dead, stupid torpedo boat.'"

"That's provocative," I said. "Is only stupid fishing captain speaking — not voice of U. S. Navy. Torpedo boat gets mad and calls for fishing warden, who boards trawler and arrests captain for fishing in North Korean waters. So what do headlines read? Page 45 it says, 'American fishing boat arrested by North Korean fishing warden.'"

Other Editors Saying Respect For Authority

(Kinston, N. C.: Free Press)

It may be too early to give a full evaluation or the "get tough" policy against lawbreakers in Miami, Fla., which was instituted during December, but it is significant at this point that the results reflect a growing respect for properly administered authority.

Chief Walter Headley, who sent special squads armed with shotguns and dogs into Negro areas in December in an effort to reduce crimes of violence, seems to be pleased with the initial results as reflected in January statistics. Crimes of violence in January dropped 60 per cent, while the overall criminal rate was 40 per cent below the previous month's total.

Chief Headley came in for sharp criticism from civil rights leaders for his get tough policy, but some of the same critics have now praised him for his forthright action in protection of civil liberties. Two white patrolmen who stripped a Negro youth to his shorts and dangled him by his heels over a highway overpass, were suspended as soon as the incident was reported by the youth's parents. Negro City Commissioner Alhale Range and Dr. George Simpson, president of the Miami Chapter of the NAACP, said prompt action against the patrolmen cooled a potential explosion in the Negro neighborhoods.

What is happening in Miami and which should be of interest to every city where the growing crime rate is an increasing burden and hazard to society, is the fact that decisive authority promptly administered enhances, rather than detracts from respect for law and order.

The only requisite for effective law enforcement which cannot be diluted or compromised is that it must apply to one and all alike, without fear or favor.

Once Simple Fraud

By JOHN CUNIFF NEW YORK (AP) — In this age of professional consumerism, a visit through the files of the Better Business Bureau brings a nostalgic reminder of how clever, outrageous, and preposterously simple were the good old fashioned frauds.

Clever marketing, deceptive packaging, intricate credit terms, questionable claims and other grey areas that now attract Washington's interest seldom were dealt with in the old days. Consumerism then was far less sophisticated.

Consumer protection today is complicated, as are many affairs directed from Washington. It is concerned with explaining the entire marketplace, in aiding the consumer, for example, in choosing from among 57 sizes of toothpaste, 30 of hairsprays and 200 of paper towels.

But way back about two years ago consumer protection efforts seldom involved the main business establishment, as they do now, or delved into the complexities of the marketplace. They were concerned with outright fraud by patently fraudulent people. Respectable merchants and customers alike were joined in a common abhorrence of such boundaries.

There were, for example, the song shark described in a BBB letter who collected $454,000 in fees from amateur song writers to whom he offered fame, fortune and glamor, and the dance instructor who sold $11,746 in dance lessons to an elderly woman.

Among the most treacherous deceivers were the promoters who bilked husbands out of millions of dollars at Christmas by rebottling cheap cologne in expensive looking perfume bottles.

Husbands appeared more gullible than wives, especially in spring when the itinerant contractor made his yearly round, ringing doorbells on Saturday morning with charity in his voice and larceny in his heart.

One such man, the BBB said, showed homeowners a basket of rich "loam" that would rebuild winter weary lawns. He'd scatter a bit on the lawn to show how it was done. "A dollar a basket," he'd say. "Not bad," the husband might reply.

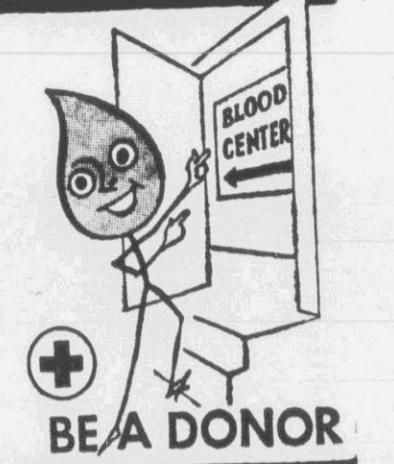

One hundred baskets later, when the black stuff was irrecoverably scattered all over the lawn, the husband came out to check on progress. That's when he got the bill and the shock of his life.

Consumer protection in the old days was concerned with chain referral plans, home improvement swindles, bail-and-switch schemes, charity gyms, health reducing plans and others.

City Income Taxes Will Increase

By ELMER ROESSNER

Income taxes will rise in many cities this year, and more cities will levy them. Mayor Lindsay of New York is calling for an increase in the income tax on people who work in New York and live elsewhere and many of the 170 other municipalities with income taxes are tinkering with their rates. Other cities are considering such levies. Some are actually being forced to apply them.

Principal reasons for the growth of municipal income taxes are:

1. The rise in welfare costs as thousands of unemployed flock from poverty area, notably in the South and Puerto Rico, to cities.
2. The rise in costs thrust on the cities by the federal government, whose gifts of money for public housing, Medicaid and other projects require matching funds.
3. Fear of increasing property and gross receipt taxes, which have already driven millions of families to suburbs and thousands of businesses to rural and other low-tax areas.

Many states and cities have adjusted their tax structures to win new businesses. The Boston Fed found that the hypothetical Model Machinery, Inc., would pay $33,046 in local taxes in Lowell, Mass., but $46,710 in neighboring Nashua, N. H.

A hypothetical chemical company, it found, would pay $28,473 in Utica, N.Y., while the same establishment would pay $191,634 in Hartford, Conn.

"For firms with enough leeway in their location decisions, tax differential of the magnitude found in this study may be decisive," the bank said. It did not suggest local income taxes as an alternate to high property taxes. Perhaps it didn't have to. Other Business Futures Steel output is rising. This is almost entirely due to stockpiling in fear of a strike this summer. Indications are that a bitter strike is probable, with companies using President Johnson's appeal for limited wage increases and unions having none of it. But inventories worry bankers. Inventories of other materials than steel are beginning to worry bankers. The inventory liquidation so loudly hailed last year was far from complete and many corporations have large stocks on hand. A lag in business would make the loans that carry these inventories a serious problem for both banks and corporations.

$7-$8 Million New Library Is Proposed For ECU

By MARGARET ANN BEAMAN
A new library — its cost estimated at $7 or $8 million — has been proposed for East Carolina University by Wendell W. Smiley, head librarian.

The proposal, detailed in an 85-page plan is now being studied by President Leo Jenkins. Smiley's plan calls for a three- or four - story structure on 10th St. opposite the old gym. The building would contain 500,000 square feet, which is five times the size of the 100,000-square - foot Joyner Library. It would have space for 1 1/2 million volumes as compared to the present library's capacity of 500,000 volumes.

Smiley said that the present library, even with a recent new addition, is handicapped for space. "Our enrollment is rapidly increasing, and we simply don't have the space necessary to keep up," he said. Smiley emphasized that the plan is a proposal and nothing is really definite at present.

"Right now we're trying to sell Dr. Jenkins on the idea," he said.

When will the library come about? "Certainly in 10 years and hopefully sooner," Smiley answered.

If Dr. Jenkins approves the plan, it would still have to clear several other hurdles. Dr. Jenkins would submit it to the Board of Trustees. The trustees, if they okayed the plan, would submit it to the Advisory Budget Commission who would submit it to the North Carolina Legislature in January 1969.

Should all these hurdles be cleared, it would then take 2 1/2 years for an architect to draw up the plans and contractors to build the structure.

The building will be elevated so that the area underneath would be open for parking. A walkway would lead over 10th St. into the library and a similar pedestrian ramp would lead up into the building from the parking area.

Designed For Expansion

The new library would be designed for future expansion while the present facility "was not really built to be expanded," Smiley said. "Right now what we've got is a structural hodge - podge. We definitely need a new library, but whether or not we get it is another question."

Smiley's plan calls for the building to be constructed on the modular style. In this style, the columns are spaced at equal distances — 26 feet apart in this plan — and run through all the floors. The only permanent walls would be on the outside and for the service areas, or "core areas", on each floor. "In this way, additions can be constructed quickly and would be less expensive," Smiley said. "Additions can be at 26-foot intervals and prefabricated materials can be readily used," he explained.

He compared it to a big tobacco warehouse with inside columns.

The only similar library in the state is the undergraduate library now being constructed at Chapel Hill. Several libraries outside the state are on this plan. They include: Clemson University, William and Mary College, Georgia State College, Florida Atlantic University and University of South Carolina.

The core areas would be in the same place on each floor. They would contain restrooms, service closets and janitorial equipment.

Mobile walls, reaching from floor to ceiling, could be erected within the building and attached to the modules.

In a similar modular library plan at Wellesley College, mobile walls are used which reach about one - half the floor to ceiling height.

"These walls are called 'cages' and could be readily adapted for our needs," Smiley said.

The new building would feature the "openness concept." All the books would be in the center of the room. The stacks would then be open, enabling the student to find his own material.

The present library has the closed concept. The student fills out cards requesting a book, waits at a circulation desk until it is found in the stacks and brought to him. This isolating of the student from necessary material was criticized by a member of a state "Blue Ribbon Committee" who assisted in evaluating ECC for university status.

Seating arrangements would be around the outside walls. The present library has seating for 1,100 out of an enrollment of 8,834, and 460 faculty members. The new building would have a minimum of 2,581 seats for a projected enrollment of 12,906. This means that the seating capacity would double while the enrollment would increase by one-third.

Faculty Areas
The new library would have three or more enclosed studies for faculty members. Fifty square feet in each study would be allowed for their research.

It is planned that the new library will have rooms for group studying. Also planned are typing rooms to accommodate up to eight students and a carpeted lounge - study area where smoking is permitted.

Smiley proposes library hours being extended from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. for the main part of the library. Hours for the reading room would extend even later.

"About 100 full - time employees will be needed by 1975," Smiley said to operate such a building. "Right now we have 22 librarians and 15 full - time non-professional assistants." "By the time we get our new building, if we get it, we will need at least 80 employees." He said that additional help will be needed to handle auxiliary services such as copying machines and microfilming.

Smiley has worked for about 10 months on the plan. He got the idea following a trip to Georgia State and Clemson to see their new library structures.

"The plan is as complete and comprehensive one as I have ever seen and more informative than most library architects have to begin with when they plan libraries," said Dr. Robert Williams, academic dean of ECU.

"When you start to build a library, you get an architect," Smiley said, "but I want an architect to know what we need. You should start inside and build out rather than start outside and put the library in."

Miami Beach Calm On GOP Convention Role

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Accustomed to handling millions of tourists a year, this famed resort city felt no qualms when it was called upon for the first time to host a national political convention. It expects the big Republican gathering in August to come off smoothly and peacefully.

There are many reasons to doubt that a threat of massive demonstrations—like that hanging over the Democratic Convention at Chicago—will ever materialize here.

Perhaps the most important, says Police Chief Rocky Pomerance, is that "the Democratic party—the party in power—will bear the brunt of the discontent."

But there are other reasons. The Miami area has remained remarkably free of racial strife. In the melting pot of Miami Beach, minority groups have always enjoyed good relations with each other.

And Miami Beach, accustomed to a big annual influx of tourists, is expected to take the anticipated 50,000 political visitors in stride.

"People here are experts in getting along with millions of visitors," says City Manager Jack Duffield. "It will be a routine and normal situation."

Immediately after the city was chosen as the site of the convention, which opens Aug. 5, Pomerance put out lines to federal and state agencies and civil rights organizations all over the country, seeking clues to any possible disturbances. All replies were negative.

Marin Davies, Florida field director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, put it this way:

"We may protest against the ignoring of the Negro by the Republican party, but it will be a peaceful protest. There won't be any trouble. Negroes in the South have not developed the extreme hostilities of those in the North."

Pomerance does not plan to beef up the Miami Beach police force. But he has been offered full cooperation by the Dade County sheriff's office and police of all municipalities in the county. Officers trained in crowd control will be handicapped from these forces.

Mayor Jay Dermer has launched a courtesy training program for everyone who will deal with the visitors, from the porters at the airport to the waiters and bellboys in the hotels.

The site of the convention will be convention hall.

While he expects no large demonstrations, Dermer points out that Miami Beach, on an island joined to the mainland only by six causeways, would be in a unique position to handle them. "If we raised the drawbridges," he said, "there would be no way in our out except by boat. We would be like an old English castle with moats."

National Ballet Here Feb. 14

The National Ballet, residence ballet company in Washington, D. C., which now tours extensively, will perform at East Carolina University this Wednesday night.

The performance is scheduled at 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. Tickets ($3 each) are available to the general public at the Central Ticket Office in Wright Auditorium, open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Directed by Frederic Franklin, the dancers will present a two - hour program drawn from a repertoire of some 25 major ballets.

The 65 - member company includes a symphony orchestra conducted by Ottavio de Rosa. Oleg Tupine is ballet master. Marilyn Burr, a world - famous Australian, is the ballerina.

Other prominent dancers in the company include Andrea Vodehnal, Ivan Nagy, Eugene Collins and Stefan Grebel. One critic says of the company: "The National Ballet has everything — excellent leading dancers, a superb ballet corps, creative choreographers and decor artists."

The Wednesday night performance here is the fifth of seven attractions of the current ECU Artists Series sponsored by the Student Government Association. Remaining are concerts by the Alma Trio (April 18) and Ferrante and Teicher (April 26).

the sidelines — for various and different reasons.

This list includes Sens. Jeff Allen of Montgomery, Jesse Austin of Johnston, Ashley B. Futrell of Beaufort, Voit Gilmore of Moore, Robert Morgan of Harnett, Thomas J. White of Lenoir, Sam Whitehurst of Craven and possibly others. State senatorial candidates have until March 22 to file for the May 4 primaries. McLendon is only the latest to say he's not running this time. And he is the only one of the group which opposed the idea of university status outside the Consolidated University with a great deal of vigor.

Twelve Consecutive Years of Sales Leadership for Mr. W. M. Scales, Jr.

1967 marked the twelfth consecutive year that W.M. "Booger" Scales has led all Security Life and Trust Company agents in sales. He sold over $2,000,000 in new life insurance to more than 200 people in Greenville and Pitt County during the year.

Mr. Scales' sales achievements are listed below. All of these are records which have never been equalled in the history of our company.

Security's leading producer

This is the twelfth straight year that "Booger" has led our entire company in life insurance sales . . . a tremendous performance in our history and an accomplishment of only a few representatives of the major insurance companies in the United States.

15 years of $1,000,000 or more in sales

"Booger" is the only Security representative to write at least $1,000,000 for fifteen consecutive years.

5 consecutive years of $2,000,000 or more in sales

Each year for the past five years "Booger" has produced $2,000,000 or more in life insurance. Another record.

Member of Security's Board of Directors

Security elects its two sales leaders to the Board of Directors annually. "Booger" has been an active member of the Board for the past twelve years.

Qualifying and life member of the Million Dollar Round Table

In recognition of these phenomenal sales achievements, "Booger" is a qualifying and life member of the Million Dollar Round Table. This is one of the most coveted honors in life insurance.

Security Life and Trust Company congratulates "Booger" Scales on these outstanding achievements and thanks his policy-owners for their well-founded trust.

French Ski Master Near Goal Of A Grand Sweep

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Jean-Claude Killy, France's magnificent ski master, took another giant stride today toward a gold medal sweep of the three men's Alpine races at the Winter Olympic Games, winning the giant slalom with disarming ease.

Killy, the 24-year-old innkeeper's son who flashed to victory in the downhill last Friday and set a blistering pace Sunday in the first of the two giant slalom runs, beat Willy Favre of Switzerland by decisive margin of 2.22 seconds—although American ace Billy Kidd posted the fastest time in today's climatic race.

Killy will shoot for the Alpine triple — a feat accomplished only once before in Olympic history—Friday and Saturday in the special slalom.

"I hit it as hard as I could," the dashing Frenchman said after his final run of one minute, 46.54 seconds locked up the giant slalom title. "I will try just as hard in the special slalom. I know it won't be easy, but I'll give it everything I have."

Johanna Schut gave the Netherlands its second gold medal in women's speed skating, zipping to a record victory in the 3,000-meter race. Three American girls drew a medal blank, but 29-year-old Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, N.Y., who finished 10th, was one of 10 speedsters who cracked the old Olympic mark held by Russia's Lidiya Skoblekova.

In the day's other early final, who cracked the old Olympic mark held by Russia's Lidiya Skoblekova.

In the day's other early final, the biathlon—which combines cross-country skiing with rifle marksmanship — Norwegian policeman Magnar Solberg outpointed two Russians for the gold medal. The four-man U.S. team finished far back in the field of 60.

Killy, whose first giant slalom dash of 1:42.72 gave him a lead of more than one second over Favre going into the finale, clinched his second gold medal with the second fastest run of the day.

Kidd, of Stowe, Vt., blazed down the 1,800-meter, 70-gate course in 1:46.46, but failed to crack the top three. Seventh after Friday's run, he climbed to fifth, behind Favre, Heinrich Messner of Austria and Guy Perillat of France.

"No medals today, but we still have another chance," said Kidd, who has bounced back from an ankle injury last week that contributed to his 18th place windup in the downhill.

Galloway Named Westport Pro

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Bobby Galloway, former golf star for the University of North Carolina, has been named head pro at the new Westport Country Club on Lake Norman near Charlotte.

Galloway, captain of the UNC team which won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship in 1960, was professional at the High Meadows Country Club in Roaring Gap until relinquishing his duties last November.

The Westport course will be ready for play in June. Galloway takes over his new post April 1.

Perry Signs

WILLIAMSTON — Gaylord Perry, hurler for the San Francisco Giants, has signed a contract with the ball club for the 1968 season.

Perry, who had a 15-17 record with the team last year will leave Tuesday for Phoenix, Ariz. to begin spring training.

The former Williamston High School star signed with the organization in 1958 and moved to the major league club in 1962.

"I'm very happy with the contract I received," Perry said, "and I am looking for a good season for the Giants."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Davidson and West Virginia are running 1-2 in the Southern Conference basketball standings. So what else is new? Well, for starters, how about those Furman Paladins, who are No. 3?

In case no one noticed, the Paladins have staged one of the SC's notable turnabouts, and in the teeth of adversity are bidding for a first-division finish for the first time since 1963.

"I've said we'd be happy to be fourth, but I must admit 'd be happier in third," says coach Frank Selvy, who confesses to surprise at Furman's 6-4 conference record and its 10-10 mark against all comers.

Selvy's Paladins were 4-6 in SC play and 9-15 over-all last season, his first as coach. This year they were 4-2 and 8-8 at the exam break—and then were jolted by the loss of top scorer and rebounder Don Webster.

"Naturally it shook us up. But then, in the first game after exams, we lost to a good Richmond team only 71-70, and the boys began to think, 'We can win without Webster.' I feel pretty good at the way they reacted," says Selvy.

Since losing to Richmond, the Paladins have beaten George Washington and VMI, and made a good showing against Davidson before bowing 55-40.

Now they have only two SC games left—one tonight at lowly William and Mary, 3-8, and a Saturday home date with the Citadel, 4-3. A sweep would just about put a lock on third place.

In what Selvy said "might have been the best individual performance by any conference player this year," Dick Esleeck amassed 32 points for the Paladins as they knocked VMI out of third Saturday, 76-73.

Davidson, meantime, whacked Richmond 85-67 with a big second-half surge to solidify its place at the top of the standings with a 7-1 SC record. Davidson, 15-4 over-all, got 20 points from Wayne Huckel.

Charlie Alford pumped in 35 points for East Carolina as the Pirates sent W&M down to its fifth straight setback, 99-75, and dumped the disappointing Indians into eighth place.

West Virginia, 13-7 over-all, won its eighth game in the last nine starts by clouting Maryland 83-66, but George Washington bowed to Georgetown 74-49 and Jacksonville beat The Citadel 101-90.

Besides the Furman - W&M clash at Williamsburg, there is one more game tonight. It matches two other third-place hopefuls—The Citadel, 4-3, and VMI, 6-5—on The Citadel's court at Charleston, S.C.

Gamecocks Moved Up Into Real Contenders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS When South Carolina opened its Atlantic Coast Conference basketball season in December by losing at Maryland by one point and at Virginia by two points two nights later, Coach Frank McGuire's Gamecocks were candidates for most disappointing team honors.

But they've bounced right back into the thick of the chase, establishing themselves as serious contenders by knocking off Duke two weeks ago and moving into second place in the conference.

The Gamecocks haven't lost a league game since those back-to-back December disasters. They've won their last seven games, all against ACC foes, and haven't been beaten in 1968.

They have in Skip Harlicka (20.8), Gary Gregor (19.4) and Frank Standard (18.4) three of the league's top scorers. Gregor and Standard are among the rebounding leaders. Peerless playmaker Jack Thompson and slick sophomore Bob Cremins round out a starting five that has Gamecock followers anxiously awaiting next month's championship tournament at Charlotte.

This is the week that South Carolina encounters its most difficult assignment of the conference season — against North Carolina Saturday on the neutral floor of the Charlotte Coliseum.

The teams haven't met yet this season and each has two other games before their Saturday setto.

However, with North Carolina, third-ranked nationally, leading the ACC with a 7-0 record and a 15-game winning streak, and South Carolina second at 7-2, their game may well determine whether the Tar Heels will continue their sweep through the regular season or become snarled in a stretch scramble.

South Carolina also plays at Duke and North Carolina late this month. The Gamecocks thus have an arduous tournament schedule in which they have to chase the Tar Heels and try to keep ahead of dangerous Duke and N. C. State, who share third place at 6-2.

While South Carolina was idle Saturday, North Carolina moved out of the conference to win at Virginia Tech 80-70. Rusty Clark, 6-foot-11 Tar Heel center, was sidelined by an eye injury suffered two nights earlier against Wake Forest, but Larry Miller's 32 points and the rebounding of Charlie Scott and Bill Bunting kept the winning streak intact.

Clark is set to play against N. C. State tonight. His doctor said Sunday that internal bleeding had stopped and his vision has cleared.

N. C. State, paced by Dick Braucher's 21 points, scored a 91-63 home court victory over Virginia and Clemson won on the road, handing Wake Forest its seventh loss in a row 78-66 in Saturday night conference games. Butch Zatezalo led Clemson with 29 points.

Maryland traveled to West Virginia and was routed by the Mountaineers of the Southern Conference 83-66.

Duke downed Notre Dame at Chicago 73-67 in other games involving ACC teams.

Dave Golden scored 22 points and Mike Lewis 21 as Duke won its fourth straight and ran its record to 14-3.

New Cars At Daytona Are Faster Than Ever

By F. T. MACFEELY DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — This year's new cars are faster than ever, as Cale Yarborough proved when he raised the Daytona 500 qualifying record by nine miles an hour to 189.222 Sunday.

He drove a Mercury Cyclone with improved aerodynamic lines that drivers and mechanics credit for much of the big jump in speeds to areas once thought impossible.

Three Mercurys and three Fords were among the seven fastest, but Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., put a 1968 Plymouth in the starting front row of the Feb. 25 main event at 189.055 m.p.h. almost as fast as Yarborough.

Yarborough gets his choice of inside or outside pole position for the $200,000 race and Petty takes the other spot. They also won pole positions in a pair of 125-milers on Feb. 23 which will determine other starting orders in the 500-mile feature.

Opening qualifying day brought a first payment of $5,000 to Yarborough and $1,000 to Petty. Lee Roy Yarborough of Columbia, S.C., collected $750 for third best 188.262 m.p.h. in a Mercury Cyclone.

The Dodge Chargers figure as strong contenders over the 500 miles in spite of the fact their fastest on opening qualifying day was Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., at 183.525 m.p.h., eighth best.

Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., had to replace an engine in his 1968 Dodge just before qualifying and had to settle for 13th fastest at 180.147.

Eleven of the 18 who went after the record and front row spots in the Daytona 500 beat the old mark of 180.831 m.p.h., set last year by Curtis Turner of Charlotte, in a Chevelle. He isn't entered this year.

The homecoming exercises followed the girls game and were quite spectacular indeed. The candidates came in the following order: Miss Dorothy Hooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Two Collisions Here Yesterday

Two Sunday collisions resulted in an estimated $1,115 property damage, officers reported.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 1:30 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive 250 feet south of the Greenwood Drive intersection.

Police said a car driven by Lester Earl Cox collided with a utility pole guy wire causing an estimated $700 damage to the car.

Cox, 26, of 511B Watauga Ave. was charged with operating under the influence and hit-and-run driving.

Kenneth Wayne Collins, 18, of Route 1, Grifton was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:05 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 200 feet south of the Millbrook Rd. intersection.

The Collins auto, officers reported, collided with a car driven by Troy Nan Kittrell, 18, of Route 2, Greenville.

Damage to the Kittrell car was set at $175 while damage to the Collins vehicle was placed at $240.

Harry's case illustrates many laws of psychology that apply both to romance as well as to the manner in which you should introduce new foods to a baby. For love, as well as food delights, can be logically developed if you follow the precise plan below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE E-585: Harry G., aged 37, is disconsolate.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I lost my wife in an auto crash a few months ago.

"She and I were high school sweethearts, so I have felt devastated ever since.

"But we have two little girls, aged 5 and 7, so I have tried to act cheery to buoy up their morale.

"They need a new mother and I suppose I would be far better off with a second wife.

"But I wonder if I could fall in love again?"

Love is much like hypnosis. If you have been hypnotized once, you can also be hypnotized a second time!

Most people have had teen-age romances that caused heartache if they were frustrated.

The participants often felt they could never love again.

Abraham Lincoln is a classical example.

Writers have pictured him as a disconsolate at the death of Ann Rutledge.

Later, however, he proposed to Mary Todd and apparently was a normally happy husband.

Much as a child can be taught to relish a new food that wasn't attractive on his first contact with it.

True enough, sometimes peo-

The Worry Clinic The Proper Motions Will Inspire Emotions

ple fall in love at first sight. But most romances are not of that type. Instead, they develop from original casual contacts or even a blind date.

If the couple share many happy experiences together, then there is a joyous emotion called "aura" that begins to develop around the sight and even the voice of the other person.

Ultimately, romance evolves and the couple then feel as thrilled by each other's in the case of love as first sight.

Remember, if you go through the proper motions, you will soon feel the corresponding emotions!

That's an axiom of Applied Psychology!

It works at the dinner table, too, when you wish to introduce a new food to the baby.

Children have a natural fondness for sugar, as proved by tests on babies, but not for meat or bread or orange juice or any other taste.

"Dr. Crane," you may protest, "then how does a child ever develop a fondness for hot dogs and other later delicacies?"

Well, when he contacts that new food, he should be in a jolly, joyous emotional state.

In the case of hot dogs (wieners), he may be romping at a picnic grounds and free from the usual city apartment restrictions.

Perhaps he has cousins of his own age for playmates, too, so he is bubbling over with happiness.

Then he is offered his first bite of a hot dog!

The generalized emotional delight of the moment casts an "aura" over the wiener.

After a few repetitions, he

Open wide and say ah.

Surprise. You thought you were going to see a roomy, homely Volkswagen station wagon.

But it's a new kind of roomy, homely Volkswagen station wagon.

To begin with, getting in is easier: the front doors are lower and wider. And with the side door we've achieved a milestone in station wagon door-dram. It slides.

Once inside, you might even think you're in a normal car. Everything's padded. Including the dashboard, visors, and the armrests. (Besides looking like a car, we've improved the suspension so it even rides like a car.)

There are bucket seats up front. And where most cars have something called a console, the new box has an aisle. (If the mood should strike you, you can walk the length of the box.)

So when you look inside the new box expect to be pleasantly surprised. But not overwhelmed.

Because as boxes go, our station wagon is now pretty fancy.

But as station wagons go, it's still a box.

Still Cheering Grable's Legs

THOSE FAMOUS LEGS — Betty Grable, displaying her still-gorgeous gams, rehearses a song-and-dance production of the title tune of "Hello Dolly." (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—During the two years Betty Grable played in "Hello, Dolly," each performance produced an electric moment that didn't exist in other versions of the hit musical.

That moment came before a dance number when she lifted her skirt to expose her still-gorgeous gams. Remembering audiences inevitably cheered.

The same effect was achieved during the taping of tonight's Carol Burnett Show, on which Miss Grable appears as guest. When she appeared in tights, the studio audience broke into applause.

"I thought it was all over, that bit with the legs," says Betty. "But now I go into novelty shops in New York and I see these great big posters of me looking over my shoulder. Me, along with Marlon Brando on a motorcycle and W. C. Fields playing poker. When will it end?"

Miss Grable couldn't hide her obvious delight that it hasn't. Those legs, plus her ebullient personality, have kept her working almost continuously since she started singing with bands as a teen-ager in 1933. Although she hasn't made a film since "How To Be Very Very Popular" a dozen years ago, she continues to work as much as she wants. Maybe a little more.

Betty is 51. "I am by nature quite lazy," she commented. "Once I get working, I really enjoy it. But it is like pulling teeth to get me started."

"Let's face it: I've been lucky. Well, call it timing, if you want. Anyway, things have happened to me just at the right moment. If Alice Faye hadn't gotten sick, I wouldn't have been cast in "Down Argentine Way," which started the whole thing at Fox. It didn't hurt, either, that the war came along and the pin-up business started."

"Later, when my picture career was over, I might easily have quit. BUT THEN, Frank Sennese came down from Vegas and offered to put me in a big Jonn Arden production at the Desert Inn. That started my night club career, and I did tours with three different acts."

"Then I got an offer to do 'Guys and Dolls' in Vegas, and that led to 'Hello, Dolly.' I was just going to do it in Vegas, but David Merrick wanted me to tour and then he asked me to come into New York. When I finally closed last November, I had been in the show for two years."

Las Vegas has been Betty's home for the past eight years.

DAU TIENG, Vietnam (AP)—It wasn't so much the pain as the indignity. Nobody wanted to believe Alfred Beebe's ache was caused by a hole neatly drilled through his abdomen from back to front.

"They X-rayed me and they couldn't find anything," Beebe bristled. "The doctor didn't want to believe it had gone all the way through me. He said it was a superficial wound and sent me back to the company."

A weather-worn regular with 16 years' service, the platoon sergeant from Broseley, Mo., marched back to his company, nursing the bellyache and a growing mistrust of doctors.

He recalled the Bill Mauldin cartoon of World War II—the one where the infantryman tells the medic: "Give me an aspirin. I've already got a Purple Heart."

The other sergeants of C Company grab their helmets and grimace when Beebe, 34, tells the tale with old-soldier flourishes, his pointed bronze mustache bristling. It was no joke, however, the night the company lost half its men as Viet Cong swarmed over the perimeter of the 25th Division firebase near the Cambodian border.

The American defenders depressed their 105 howitzers and raked the embattled section of the perimeter with short-fused beehive shells which burst into thousands of inch-long arrows called flechettes.

One flechette went right through Beebe, piercing his back about waist-high and coming out a few inches from the navel. He got two more in the right arm and never felt the one zipping through his abdomen. He had just shot two "Charlies" trying to blow him up with a grenade, so he was rather busy at the time.

That was about midnight. Beebe and a medic, also wounded, hopped up in the platoon command bunker until dawn.

"My belly started hurting so I started feeling around for holes in it," Beebe recalled. "I didn't find any. About 6 or 7 it got light and we started to evacuate our wounded. I was walking around and had a pretty bad stomach 5555 but I still didn't know what hit me." Neither then nor later did Beebe ponder much over the fact that it was American artillery which had hit him. When a position is overrun, or practically overrun, the American guns come down as a matter of course and infantrymen hardly think it noteworthy. Around noon the company was pulled back a few miles to the sprawling base at Katum. Beebe finally got on an examining table. He was X-rayed and got a new bandage for his superficial arm wounds and a bit of iodine on the tiny punctures found in back and belly. Then he was sent back to his company.

He was soon as good as new, writing to his wife in Columbus, Ga. and back with his platoon. The medics were not so doubting as Beebe thought. His record is duly inscribed, and much discussed, at the division's field hospital.

Capt. Eli Wayne, a 29-year-old surgeon from Forty Fort, Pa., recalls Beebe with some awe: "He was a tough bird. Just walked in and said 'Doc, I've got a pain in my belly.' I'll bet he did have, too. That flechette went right through him, clean as could be. He was lucky it didn't twist around and evidently didn't damage anything vital."

At accelerating pace, man is poisoning, polluting and abusing his earthship environment.

"We are exploiting the earth the way a parasite exploits its host. But if our host earth is killed, we have nowhere else to go," says Dr. Harold G. Cassidy, Yale University chemist.

Air in city and country alike is becoming increasingly polluted at rising risk to human health and life. Water in streams, lakes, ocean shores is becoming more contaminated, smelly, dangerous to health and aquatic life.

Man in his tenure has caused the extinction of at least 300 species of animals, has destroyed forests and grasslands, and created dust bowls.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A record $2.28 million in license fees were paid in 1967 by dog owners as the number of dogs in the state, excluding New York City, rose to 954,038, the highest ever.

The State Agriculture Department reported the figures. It noted that 31,276 more dogs were registered last year than in 1966. The animal increase for the three preceding years was about 25,000.

EDITOR'S NOTE — While man reaches for the farthest limits of space, he threatens to leave behind a planet ruined by his carelessness and neglect. The following is the first of five articles on how man has despoiled his environment.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

Three bold men, buttoned inside an Apollo spacecraft, are destined in coming months to leave earth and go exploring the moon.

They know of course, everyone knows, they will die should anything go seriously wrong with their supply of air, water or heat—in short, with their environment aboard the tiny spacecraft.

But mankind at home on earth is threatening ominously to destroy his own planet, by actions as careless as astronauts deliberately tampering with their life-support system. Man on earth is even running out of places to throw away his garbage and trash.

The earth is actually only one huge spaceship. It spins at 1,000 miles an hour; it wheels around the sun once a year at 66,960 m.p.h.; it is one captive planet of the sun whirling within the Milky Way galaxy at 630,000 m.p.h. on the sun's unknown cosmic mission.

Every human being thus is a member of a space crew.

Planet earth keeps them alive with one total environment, only one, to supply the air, water, heat, food, all the materials to support all of its current 3.3-billion passengers. By some predictions, within 30 more years there will be five to seven billion passengers, all dependent upon and in turn influencing the earth's self-contained environment.

At accelerating pace, man is poisoning, polluting and abusing his earthship environment.

"We are exploiting the earth the way a parasite exploits its host. But if our host earth is killed, we have nowhere else to go," says Dr. Harold G. Cassidy, Yale University chemist.

Air in city and country alike is becoming increasingly polluted at rising risk to human health and life. Water in streams, lakes, ocean shores is becoming more contaminated, smelly, dangerous to health and aquatic life.

Man in his tenure has caused the extinction of at least 300 species of animals, has destroyed forests and grasslands, and created dust bowls.

Uncontrolled noise impairs hearing, and "most urban Americans have forgotten what tranquility is," one conservationist observes.

Human populations explode around the world, and implode into cities. Slums erode human life and dignity. New tensions rise from crowding, from traffic jams, from loss of human privacy.

Of the 3.3 billion people on earth, at least two billion live "like steerage passengers or worse," assailed by hunger and disease, says Dr. Roger Revelle, director of the Center for Population Studies at Harvard University.

More people migrate to new or expanding suburbs paving land with more asphalt, concrete and buildings, thereby affecting local weather and climate, adding new contaminations.

An Associated Press survey finds scientists, specialists, and various government and health officials stressing these urgent themes:

—Man has assumed, and behaved willy nilly, as though the atmosphere, rivers and lakes, the soil, all had unlimited ability to cleanse and repair themselves. Now he finds this is simply not so. Nor are the oceans an infinite sink for waste disposal.

—The earth's environment must be treated as an integrated whole. Air, water and land are intimately related; they affect one another. Man affects his environment; the changed environment affects him.

—needed now is action "looking at total man in his total environment rather than taking a crisis or piecemeal approach to solving problems," declares a special report to the government entitled, "A Strategy for a Liveable Environment."

—Man must try to anticipate the consequences from new things he does. Great changes in rainfall, weather, bodies of water, may be triggered off inadvertently by seemingly innocuous manmade influences. Jet contrails and exhausts, manmade heat, might be such triggers.

—Environmental pollution is very serious, and growing worse. And little is known yet about the potential hazards from 500,000 to 600,000 synthetic chemicals and other compounds in use today.

—Critical problems call for new attitudes and ways of thinking. One example is contained in a report from a specialist committee of the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council:

As the earth becomes more crowded, there is no longer an "away" in which to throw things away, it says, adding: "Our whole economy is based on taking natural resources, converting them into things that are consumer products, selling them to the consumer, and then forgetting about them."

"But there are no consumers—only users. The user empties the product, sometimes changes it in form, but does not consume it—he just discards it."

Closing the loop from user back to resource to remake the discards could be an answer, and "a product such as an automobile could be designed in the first place with return to the factory for remaking and reuse in mind," the report says.

"We have accepted noise, foul air, dirty rivers as inevitable consequences of industrialization. This has been our psychology," says Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall. "But now we are changing our basic assumptions. We have been a filthy generation. What will become of our grandchildren if we don't change our approach?"

Nature, one scientist remarks, now is presenting her bills for man's reckless exploitation of his earthly environment.

Men in an Apollo spacecraft must all be responsible for their limited and crucial environment.

Says Dr. Cassidy: "We, capable of thought, must be the stewards of this spacey earth. The goal is not only the survival of man, but survival with maintenance of quality."

Everett To Seek Party-Switchers

RALEIGH (AP)—Frank Everett of Robersonville will coordinate a campaign in eastern North Carolina to get voters to switch their registration from Democrat to Republican. He is a businessman and former legislator who switched last year.

Rep. Jim Gardner, R-N.C., who is running for the Republican nomination for governor, said Everett would open headquarters for the switchover campaign at Robersonville in Martin County.

Ohio is almost square in shape with nearly 200 miles on each side.

Economizers Eye Peanut Support Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal budget cutters have been casting a questioning eye on the nation's peanut crop.

They frown on the cost of the Agriculture Department's stabilization program for peanuts. The department has been buying about one-third of the crop because production has been running that much larger than the market demand for edible products—chiefly peanut butter, salted peanuts, candy and roasted-in-the-shell peanuts.

The department diverts its purchases into lower-priced by-products, selling to processors at less than cost. The annual deficit has been running upwards of $45 million.

The byproducts include peanut oil used for food products processed in this country and sold abroad, and into meal used as a protein supplement for livestock feed.

Federal officials have been telling peanut growers it would be wise to try to develop a crop stabilization program that would lower government costs.

Peanut production is under federal acreage allotment and marketing quota controls. But the minimum level of control permitted by law produces too many peanuts, particularly in years of favorable weather. Technological developments are helping farmers produce more peanuts per acre, which complicates the problem.

N.C. Shortage Of Pathologists Stymies Search

RALEIGH (AP)—A shortage of pathologists has stymied a six-month search for a chief medical examiner to put a new statewide medical examiner system into operation.

"We just haven't found anybody qualified who'll take the job," said Ben Eaton, director of administrative services for the State Board of Health.

Eaton said that in addition the board has been hampered by the relatively low salary it can offer.

The General Assembly appropriated $23,500 a year, but Eaton said some of those who have been considered are making up to $30,000. He said the Advisory Budget Commission has indicated it would increase the salary if necessary.

The examiner system was to have gone into effect Jan. 1.
