

Norfolk Firm Is Low Bidder On New Post Office

GREENSBORO—A Norfolk firm was low bidder among 15 competitors for the construction-lease of a new Post Office building in Greenville.

The 15 bids for the project were opened in Greensboro yesterday, with Fine and Salzberg, Inc. making the low offer.

Bids included a basic 20 year term with six renewal options of five years each.

Fine and Salzberg's offer was $35,479.50 per year for the base period with first, second and third renewals at $37,479.50. Fourth, fifth and sixth renewals were bid by the firm at $39,000 per year.

The next lowest bidder was Ernest W. Miller of Greensboro, who bid $35,648 per year for the base period and $40,000 per year for the six renewal periods.

Dawson Construction Co. of East Gadsden, Ala. was third in line with a $38,818 base period bid.

Their first renewal was bid at $40,100 while the second renewal bid was $40,800 per year. Their bid for the third, fourth, fifth and sixth renewal periods was $41,500 per year.

Only one firm with a Greenville address bid on the project, according to Joe Martin real estate officer for the Post Office Department.

Martin said Terrace Development Co., 200 South Greene St., bid $39,733 for the initial period and $61,900 for all renewals.

The new post facility will be constructed on an 82,729 square foot lot bounded by First, Greene, Second and Pitt Streets in Greenville's Shore Drive redevelopment area. Cost of the lot, Moore said, was $53,773.85.

The facility will include a 23,733 square foot building with a 2,831 square foot mailing platform and ramp. Patron parking will total 13,851 square feet and an official parking area will total 34,304 square feet. Landscaped area will amount to 4,430 square feet, Moore reported.

He said construction should begin in about three months, after working drawings of the facility have been submitted and approved.

Other bidders included: Seymour Rubin, Miami Beach, $43,434 for base period and first renewal, $42,000 for second renewal, $41,500 for third renewal $41,000 for fourth renewal, $40,500 for fifth renewal and $40,000 for sixth renewal; Aesgo, Inc., Philadelphia, $42,300 for base period and all renewals; Seymour B. Levine, Brookline, Mass., $40,733 for base period and all renewals; Building Leasing Corp., Kansas City, Mo., $55,494 for base period and $58,000 for all renewals; Penner-Ring Co., Los Angeles, $38,460 for base period, $39,500 for first and second renewals, $40,000 for third and fourth renewals and $40,500 for fifth and sixth renewals.

Guy C. Lee Manufacturing Co., Smithfield, N.C., $45,200 for base period and all renewals; B and B Company, West DeMoines, Iowa, $59,414 for base period and all renewals; Hardy Harvey, Inc., Kinston, $38,989 for basic period and all renewals; Ten-G Inc., Lexington, $53,888 for basic period and first and second renewals, $52,500 for third and fourth renewals and $52,000 for fifth and sixth renewals; Tarry Town Development Co., Rocky Mount, $41,460 for base period and $45,000 for all renewals; Thomas Brothers Construction Co., Greensboro, $47,500 for base period, $46,500 for first renewal, $45,500 for second renewal, $44,500 for third renewal, $44,000 for fourth renewal, $43,500 for fifth renewal, and $43,000 for sixth renewal.

Moore termed the bidding "excellent" and said the "competition was good and very keen."

Closed Session On Tonkin Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara met in closed session today with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to review the 2964 Tonkin Gulf incident, which marked a turning point in the Vietnam war.

Proud Of A Personal Sendoff

MARINES PRAISE LBJ VISIT — These Marines, interviewed yesterday at El Toro Air Station in California, praised President Johnson for his weekend visit with servicemen. Gunnery Sgt. Richard Dornhofer, upper left, said "I thought what a tall American this man from Texas is to come out here and take time to visit with his troopers..." Sgt. Alan Alonzo, upper right and Sgt. Angelet Funches, lower right, called it a "morale booster". First Lt. Richard Maddox, lower left, called it "thoughtful". (AP Wire photo)

Fighting Men Moved By President's Action

Didn't Really Want To Buy The School

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Two university instructors are trying to figure out what to do with a 24-room school, complete with library and gymnasium, which they bought unintentionally for $5,651.

"We aren't going to turn those children out into the street," said Roy Stumpf, who along with Bob Goemans inadvertently purchased the estimated $750,000 two-story school.

"It's going to be a real challenge deciding what to do with the school," Stumpf said, with tongue in cheek.

Last summer, the two instructors at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, entered a sealed bid for Bellevue School, one of two abandoned one-room school buildings offered for sale by the Green Bay Board of Education.

"We put a bid in on it for speculation," Stumpf explained. "The land might be worth something some day."

"But there seemed to be something wrong with the deed, so I asked the city clerk. He assured me it was all right, so we dropped it there."

Stumpf and Goemans found out Friday they owned Allouez School, a few blocks away.

"The city attorney called me," Stumpf said. "How he found out about it, I don't know. He asked for a swap. I still didn't know what property we owned, so I asked him and he was honest enough to tell me."

"As I left the office," Stumpf added, "I told him he could inform the school board they could continue using it. He didn't think that was very funny."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS "I felt proud," recalled a veteran Marine gunnery sergeant, one of many Vietnam-bound servicemen given a surprise personal sendoff by President Johnson.

Johnson touched both coasts over the weekend in wishing good luck to paratroopers and Marines. During talks at his stops he said he would send more troops to Vietnam if they are needed.

At Ft. Bragg, N.C., Army Sgt. Major Anthony Garcia said Monday, "These guys are professionals. Soldiers aren't usually impressed but these guys were because it was the President."

At El Toro Marine Corps Air Station in South California, where the President watched a planeload of 5th Marine Division men depart, Gunnery Sgt. Richard Dornhofer of Boston said, "I thought what a tall American this man from Texas is to come out here and take time to visit with his troopers and offer words of encouragement."

Firm Deadline

All candidates who anticipate filing for State or district offices by mail before the February 23 deadline should remember that February 22 is a legal holiday and will be observed as such by postal employees across the state.

Bruce Koonce, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections, said today. Koonce said the State Board of Elections has cautioned prospective candidates to mail their filing forms early enough to avoid any possible delay resulting from the George Washington's Birthday holiday. The noon Friday deadline will be strictly enforced, Koonce said.

Deadline for filing for county offices with the Pitt Board of Elections is Noon March 22, Koonce explained.

Recalled Gunnery Sgt. Parker Cason of Reno, Nev., "When I first saw him he looked extremely tired... I remember that part toward the end of his speech where he said something to the effect that 'our hearts go with you.' And I remember the part about the Marines over there needing us. I felt warmly towards him."

At Ft. Bragg Sgt. 1C. Lauris A. Jacks of Columbus, Ga., said of Johnson, "I'm sure he didn't like sending people off to a place where he knew some would be killed and wounded. I'm sure it made the men feel better that he showed his concern."

Some Marines disagreed with part of Johnson's speech in which he said, "This is a decisive time in Vietnam. The eyes of the nation and the world—the eyes of history itself—are on that brave band of defenders who hold the path to Khe Sanh." "I think it's a decisive time in the history of our country," commented Marine 1st Lt. Richard Maddox of San Francisco. "I'm not sure Khe Sanh is the turning point."

Asked Monday if he thought the battle of Khe Sanh would be decisive, Dornhofer replied, "I don't think so... I think the summer will be decisive."

Said Marine Sgt. Alan Alonzo of Rockford, Ill.: "I've been on a couple of operations over there that we thought were decisive, but they weren't."

Heavy Fire Loss In Craven County

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A forestry spokesman said today that more than 3,000 acres of timber has burned since Saturday.

Robert Tyson of the North Carolina Forestry Service said the majority of the burned forest was in Craven County.

Gun Positions Seen Near Saigon Saigon Ready For Another VC Raid

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese military headquarters reported today that aerial observers had sighted several Communist anti-aircraft guns menacing a section of Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base. South Vietnamese bombers were sent to destroy them.

A Vietnamese spokesman said the gun positions were spotted about 2½ miles south of the air base, one of the busiest in the world, which came under heavy rocket attack Sunday during the communists' "second wave" offensive.

Unofficial reports circulated that the Communists were planning another attack tonight on the South Vietnamese capital, a city of nearly 3 million people. The Viet Cong were reported to have distributed leaflets in several sections of the Gia Dinh suburbs threatening an attack and urging the people to support them in an uprising. Police and military units already are on a full alert.

The "second wave" Communist offensive last weekend has subsided, but there was no assurance it wouldn't heat up again. Intelligence reports reaching the U.S. Mission said that in the Mekong Delta province of Kien Hoa, the Viet Cong province committee received a directive from the Communist high command to provide maximum reinforcements to support the Viet Cong in Saigon in the "second wave."

These reports said the offensive was to run from Feb. 18 until the end of the month. Launched Feb. 18, it consisted mostly of rocket and mortar attacks on Saigon and 46 other cities, with comparatively few ground assaults.

Rockefeller Given GOP Platform Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who says he isn't a presidential candidate, will head a nationwide series of Republican platform hearings arranged by his fellow GOP governors—many of whom want him to run.

The 26 Republican governors announced Monday Rockefeller will head a team of five governors, conducting hearings in late April and early May at Seattle, Wash., Albuquerque, N.M., an as-yet undesignated Midwestern city and Washington, D.C.

The stated aim is to secure grass-roots sentiment on what should be written into the platform to be adopted at the Republican National Convention.

The hearings will end less than a month before the May 28 Oregon primary—a primary Rockefeller won in his unsuccessful bid for the 1964 nomination.

Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, head of the Republican Governors Association said Rockefeller would participate "not as a potential presidential contender but as chairman of the association's policy committee."

VISITS ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the South African heart transplant surgeon, arrived here Monday for a two-day visit to Argentina.

The Kien Hoa Communists reportedly were told that Saigon would be leveled.

Intelligence sources said the Communists have 10,000 to 15,000 men within a day's march of Saigon, including elements of the 5th and 9th Viet Cong Divisions and the 7th North Vietnamese Division.

Amid anticipation of a new round of attacks, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops battled to drive the Viet Cong from the coastal town of Phan Thiet while other allied forces moved forward in the 21st day of the battle for Hue.

Phan Thiet, 90 miles east of Saigon, was seized by the Viet Cong Sunday, but only sporadic sniper fire was reported today after U.S. paratroopers overcame light resistance and retook the hospital where enemy forces had dug in.

ABA Supports Restrictions On Criminal Cases

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Bar Association has endorsed recommendations that judges, lawyers and policemen restrict the flow of information about criminal cases.

But news officials, turned down in their plea for a year's delay for study, predicted new battles in the courts and state legislatures.

Said one, J. Edward Murray of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "The press will have no recourse but to fight back."

The recommendations, put forward by a press-trial advisory committee headed by Justice Paul C. Reardon of Massachusetts' Supreme Judicial Court, were adopted by a voice vote Monday by the ABA's policy-setting House of Delegates.

Minutes before, the delegates turned down by a 176-68 vote an appeal by three top news executives that action be put off while studies are made of the effects on jurors of newspaper, radio and television accounts of crime.

"There is no good reason for delay," Reardon said during the two-hour debate. And J. Edward Lumbard of the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City said the news media would only return in a year with talk of new studies.

"What are the surveys going to show?" he asked. "Are they going to tell us that human nature has changed?"

Once the guidelines are incorporated into the ABA's ethics code, lawyers could run the risk of severe discipline—even disbarment—for making public during a trial opinions and information that were not part of the record.

Police departments, meanwhile, were advised to adopt regulations choking off from time of arrest information about prior criminal records, confessions or admissions of guilt and the result of such tests as fingerprinting and lie detection.

And judges were instructed not to make "any statements" that might interfere with a "fair trial."

Judges also were advised to use their contempt power against anyone, including reporters and editors, who "will fully" try to affect a verdict by disseminating statements about the defendant or the issues.

The stated objective of these limitations is to shield defendants from prejudiced jurors.

ABA President Earl F. Morris told reporters the new ethics code probably will be ready for adoption by the House of Delegates next February.

He said the bar association looks to police departments, state courts, local bar groups—and possibly state legislatures—to implement the new guidelines.

Morris, a Columbus, Ohio, lawyer, appeared optimistic, but Murray, managing editor of the Arizona Republic, said in a statement: "Fortunately, neither the ABA or the House of Delegates makes the law."

He declared: "Publishers and editors must be prepared to spend whatever is necessary in the way of reporters' time and litigation costs to guarantee that police chiefs do not manage the news to suit themselves, that prosecutors do not censor what the public has a right to know... and that judges don't try to suppress legitimate news..."

Sales Leader

Greenville led neighboring cities in percentage increase in retail sales for the January-November, 1967, period, according to figures released by the North Carolina Department of Revenue.

Total sales during the eleven-month term totaled $69,286,116 the department reported, giving an increase of 4.3 per cent over the $66,419,540 total during the same period in 1966.

Wilson ranked second with retail sales totaling $78,383,858, while New Bern followed with $65,663,446. Wilson's increase over 1966 was reported at 3.7 per cent while New Bern's increase was set at 3.1.

Kinston retail sales ranked fourth, at $77,622,702 showing a 2.6 per cent increase over the same period a year ago. Goldsboro followed Kinston with a 2.5 increase at a total of $92,504,204.

Washington retail sales, which showed a 10.6 per cent decrease from 1966, were reported at $35,966,777.

Greenville retail sales for the month of November, 1967, amounted to $7,020,814, while sales for the same month in 1966 totaled $6,330,198.

Bridgers To Run For District Senate Seat

TARBORO — Vinson Bridgers of Tarboro announced today that he would be a candidate for re-election to the State Senate for the fourth Senatorial District, composed of Edgecombe, Halifax, Pitt and Warren Counties.

Bridgers, a member of the Senate in the 1967 General Assembly, has served on the following committees; Appropriations; General Assembly; Courts and Judicial Districts; Judiciary I; Wildlife; Interstate and Federal Relations; Local Government; and Public Utilities, and Salaries and Fees.

In announcing for re-election, Bridgers said, "It was a privilege to represent the people of the fourth senatorial district and the State of North Carolina in the 1967 legislature and I feel that because of my experience I can be of greater service to them in the 1969 General Assembly."

Bridgers, a veteran of World War II, was graduated from the University of North Carolina and the University of North Carolina Law School. He is a member of Calvary Episcopal Church.

Federal Court Rules N.C. Speaker Ban Law Unconstitutional

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina's amended Speaker Ban Law, long the center of a political struggle over freedom of speech on state-supported college campuses, was ruled unconstitutional Monday.

The law said Communists and persons who pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases could not speak on the campuses unless they had the permission of administrators of the schools.

While recognizing the right of the administrators to regulate and approve campus speakers, a three-judge federal court said the law as written was unconstitutional "because of vagueness."

The law said administrative approval was needed for any speaker who was "a known member of the Communist party."

The court pointed to this provision and said: "Known to whom, and to what degree or certainty? Known according to what standard? A member in what sense? ..."

"The statutes and regulations provide no clue to any of these questions. Without such answers, neither those who must obey nor those who must enforce the statutes and regulations can determine the extent of their obligation."

A group of students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill filed the suit in March of 1966 challenging the law's constitutionality. Also plaintiffs were two men refused permission to speak on the campus — Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson.

Aptheker was national director of the American Institute for Marxist Studies in New York City and Wilkinson was director of a committee seeking to abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The suit was filed after a two-year furor in the North Carolina Legislature that was climaxed in a special legislative session in 1965. At that time, a 1963 Speaker Ban Law was amended to give the school administrators authority to regulate the speakers.

The 1963 law, rushed through the closing hours of a legislative session, flatly prohibited campus speaker invitations to known Communists, persons advocating overthrow of the U.S. or State Constitution, or persons who pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases.

Hope that the long controversy was now over was expressed Monday by William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, J. Carlyle Sitterson, UNC - Chapel Hill chancellor, and John Caldwell, chancellor of N. C. State University.

They interpreted the ruling as meaning the amended Speaker Ban Law is "no longer binding. In addition, as defendants we are specifically enjoined from further action under either of the statutes or the board of trustees regulations."

Gov. Dan Moore and state officials declined comment on the ruling Monday. State Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton said he would study the decision before deciding whether to appeal.

Paul Dickson of Charlotte, president of the UNC-Chapel Hill student body at the time he and other students filed the suit, said he was "extremely happy" with the decision and "frankly didn't expect to win."

"This will have a real effect on the university. It has been known as a free and open institution. This law hurt that reputation and hurt in attracting students and professors.

"Under it, a professor couldn't hear and listen to what he wanted to. (The ruling) has given the good name back to the university. North Carolinians who take pride in the state can once again walk around with their heads held high."

Sen. Lindsay Warren Jr., D-Wayne, longtime foe of the law and vice-chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, said "the General Assembly 'had pretty much taken the original sting out of the law anyway.'"

New Look For Penelope After Work With Twiggy

By DEE WEDEMEYER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Gone are the harshly lined eyes and the minute minis. There's a new Penelope Tree.

year-old model just decided the dark painted lines accenting the gaunt sad-eyed look which made her famous were too harsh. They've been replaced with soft brown eye shadow.

Just back from three weeks in Paris where she worked with the English model, Twiggy, Penelope curled her long bare legs up under calf-length dress and talked about her seven-month modeling career.

"I always thought modeling was a sort of stupid job—which it is. You're not doing anything for anybody, it's just standing there. I'm not particularly proud," she said. "The photographer molds you. All you can hope to accomplish is some poetic movement."

"The secret is in acting out the clothes. For example, you act like you are a barmaid in Louisiana. It brings intensity to your expression. Sometimes I pretend I'm a suburban housewife who has just gone to New York to the theater or an Indian off a reservation who is going to Europe," she explained, tossing her long brown hair. "I just say to myself, I am an Indian off the reservation."

Actually, Penelope is a freshman off the campus of Sarah Lawrence College, which she left in January for a year to model.

Since then life has been "schizophrenic," when teenagers recognize her skinny, 5-foot-10 frame on the street, or she sees her picture in a magazine, she feels "like it's a made-up name, a made-up person."

Penelope comes from a family of successful people.

Her mother was an ambassador to the United Nations, her half-sister was a Vietnam correspondent, her uncle was governor of Massachusetts, her grandfather an Episcopal bishop. And her grandmother, she declares with brown eyes dancing, "is the one who went to jail."

Her grandmother was active in the civil rights movement.

As if the glamorous life she lives with her parents, the Ronald Trees, in a chic New York townhouse were not enough, she now belongs to her own clique of celebrities.

She shops in London at the Beatles-backed boutique, Apple, or in New York's Paraphernalia, and she finds the $60 an hour she earns as a model goes almost as quickly as it comes.

Her name crops up in gossip columns as if she attends chic soirees every night of the week. Actually she frequents museums and movies mostly and has only been to one opening night. Her favorite clothes are a fox tail belt and a pair of jeans—not worn together.

NEW SIZING FOR PATTERNS

The Pattern Fashion Industry introduced New Sizing beginning with the January 1968 — dated pattern shipment, which started arriving in the stores in November 1967. All patterns have not been changed but you can easily tell which ones have been: they will be indicated with a symbol in red, New Sizing.

Measurements for the New Sizing were developed and approved by the Measurement Standard Committee of the Industry to make pattern sizing correspond more closely to the standard ready-to-wear sizing. All of the major pattern companies are adopting the new standard body measurements.

Charts showing the new measurements and sizing will be in the pattern catalogs beginning with the January 1968 issues. These charts and patterns will be marked New Sizing. Since patterns with New Sizing and patterns with former sizing will run concurrently for some time the charts for the former as well as the New Sizing will be included in the back of the catalogs.

Be sure to check these charts before you purchase a pattern. As a general rule, you may be buying one size smaller in the New Sizing than you do in the former Sizing.

For example:

New Sizing	Former Sizing
Size 12	Size 14
Bust 34	Bust 34
If bust measurement is 34"	If bust measurement is 34"
New Sizing pattern 12 is required.	Former Sizing pattern 14 is required.

Note: The waistline in the New Sizing is slightly smaller in proportion to the bust and hips than in the former sizing.

It is good to check your measurements before buying a New Sizing pattern because from time to time a person's body measurements do change.

The sizing for the Men's and Boy's patterns have not changed. Minor changes were made in the sizing for Toddlers', Children's, and Girls' but these changes do not affect the pattern size. However, it is always best to check the measurements on the back of the pattern.

Should you have any questions concerning the New Sizing, please call the Home Economics Extension Office 758-1196.

St. Valentine's Day Primarily For One's Romantic Interest

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The day before Valentine's day my husband said, "Gee Honey, I just don't know what to do about getting you anything for Valentine's day because I don't have enough money to buy my mother anything." I was dumbfounded and said, "Well, don't worry about buying your mother anything except maybe a card, as Valentine's day is for wives and sweethearts."

He got mad and said that I wasn't true. It was for mothers and anyone else you loved.

I tried to explain that if he wanted to buy his mother something for Valentine's day it was perfectly all right, but since he had a money problem and had to make a choice, he shouldn't feel guilty about buying ME a card, and giving his mother a gift. Am I wrong? Please settle this in your own words. Who comes first on Valentine's day, the wife or the mother?

DEAR WIFE: St. Valentine's day is primarily for one's ROMANTIC interest. I can help you win the argument, but if MOTHER comes to your husband's mind on Valentine's day you'll never win the battle.

DEAR ABBY: My complaint is about a school dentist who, while checking children's teeth in the classroom, made an issue of the color of my daughter's teeth. In fact, he made an "example" of her and told her right in front of everyone that her teeth wouldn't be so "yellow" if she did a better job of brushing them.

Abby, she was so hurt. She brushes her teeth religiously twice a day and has gone to our dentist every six months for a cleaning and check-up since she was four. The reason her teeth aren't as white as some is because of hereditary factors (mine are yellowish, too), but they are very well-cared for.

Now my daughter hates to open her mouth. I am furious with that dentist. Thanks for letting me unload. I feel better.

DEAR W. V.: Someone ought to tell that dentist to pay more attention to his own mouth. And to keep his foot out of it.

DEAR ABBY: That woman signed "IRRITATED" who criticized her mother-in-law for cleaning her house every time she came over to baby - sit sure burned me up. To "IRRITATED" I have this to say:

You know that whatever the old lady did, you wouldn't like. And by the way, how much did you pay your mother-in-law for sitting? And do you ever call her unless you want her for something?

You should be grateful to have a mature and responsible person who truly loves your children to be with them when you aren't there.

My daughter had a teenage sitter on New Year's eve who threw a party for her friends. They cleaned out the refrigerator, brought in beer, and even got the kids out of bed so the teen - age couples could take turns using it!

Maybe if "IRRITATED" had a sitter like that she would

For the misdeed, he has been sentenced to nine months in jail.

UNC Women Trustees To Visit Campus Next Week

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina's 11 women trustees will see the campus through students' eyes when they visit here two days next week, Feb. 26-27.

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell of Greenville is one of the trustees.

While on campus they will attend dinners, luncheons and coffees; tour the campus; talk with student government leaders and Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson; and attend other events as well. They will be housed in women's dormitories and have student hostesses while on their stay here.

The trustees will arrive on campus late Monday afternoon, Feb. 26, and will meet with student hostesses who will take them to Chase Cafeteria for dinner. There they will view a Women's Residence Council meeting; be entertained with a musical interlude featuring a UNC Men's Glee Club ensemble, directed by Robert Porco; and sit in on a mock trial presented by the Woman's Council.

A coffee at the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority House will follow where trustees will meet Panhellenic officers, presidents of other sororities, and house-mothers of sororities.

Trustees will attend a breakfast Tuesday, Feb. 27 in Greenville Towers after which they will have free time. Later they will reassemble in Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson's office and go directly to the Chancellor's home where Mrs. Sitterson will entertain at a coffee hour.

At noon the trustees will meet with Student Body President Robert Travis and other student government officers in Graham Memorial.

A Valkyries' presentation will be the featured entertainment for a luncheon in Lenoir Hall, immediately following the meeting with Travis. The Order of the Valkyries is the highest women's honorary on campus.

Arrange canned sardines on buttered toast and heat in the oven; cover with cheddar cheese and serve as a main course for lunch. This is especially good accompanied by tomato salad.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

MRS. JAMES LARRY ELLIS

Miss Sondra Lea Windom became the bride of James Larry Ellis of Miami, Fla., Saturday. The Rev. R. B. Crawford of Greenville performed the double ring ceremony at his home. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Windom of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ellis of Chickameaga, Ga. The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and East Carolina University with a B. S. Degree in education. She was a member of Gamma Beta Phi, national honorary society. Prior to her marriage, she was teaching in the Rocky Mount city school system. The bridegroom was graduated from Kirkman Technical Institute High School, Chattanooga, Tenn. He has served as a member of the United States Army. He is presently foreman of Cipolata Farms, Miami, Fla. Following a wedding trip through the mountains of North Carolina and Georgia, the couple will make their home in Miami, Fla. Bridal Shower The bride-elect was honored at a shower Friday night at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Robert Padgett. Guests were greeted by the honoree and her aunt. Punch was poured by Mrs. Jesse Windom, mother of the honoree. Approximately 25 guests attended.

Article On Dear Abby In Look Magazine

Abigail Van Buren, whose "Dear Abby" column appears in The Daily Reflector, is in the national spotlight this week. Abby, in real-life Mrs. Morton Phillips of St. Paul, Minn., is the subject of a picture article in the March 5 issue of Look magazine which went on sale today. The magazine article shows "Dear Abby" working on her newspaper column, giving advice to youngsters, being an 'exuberant' hostess and tells how she manages to combine a busy career with being a mother and a wife to a successful business executive. Her brand of advice, "decent with back-fence practicality, heavy on aphorisms, with article reports is what 'sells' her column. But along with handing out advice, the "fiercely well-organized" columnist also takes teenage dilemmas seriously and is currently sponsoring a research project on acne at Stanford University.

Mother Loses 88 lbs.

June A. Chamberlain of New York, after losing a child at birth, consoled herself by eating—until she reached 208 pounds. In desperation, she took a reducing drug and used Ayds candy. And she lost 40 pounds. But the drugs made her nervous, so she tried the Ayds Plan alone. And lost 48 more pounds. Taken as directed, Ayds helps curb your appetite. On the Ayds Plan, you automatically eat less, lose weight naturally. New chocolate mint, vanilla-caramel and chocolate fudge-type.

Creative Writing Contest Announced

Entries in the Creative Writing Contest, sponsored annually by the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club of Greenville, must be submitted to Mrs. J. L. Savage by March 25. There will be 11 traveling awards presented to winners in the contest and the decision of the judges will be announced at the annual Fine Arts Luncheon on April 27. The awards are as follows: Mamie Ives Wollard Memorial, best sonnet; Eva Berry Harris, best lyric poem other than the sonnet; Virginia Collier Tripp, best short story, limit 3,000 words; Eunice McGee, best children's poem; Janie Gold Starling, best adult essay; Robert Orville Meye, best high school short story; Helen Gray Perkins, best high school essay; Daisy Carson Latham, best high school story based on Pitt County history; Elizabeth Utterback award, for best story suitable for children in elementary grades. The new award is the Elizabeth Savage award for the best poem or story written by a child in the sixth grade or under. Contest Rules Any amateur writer—man or woman—in Pitt County, who has never had any writing published is eligible to compete. Competent judges will be selected for the awarding of the prizes. All entries, accompanied by the writer's name and address must be submitted to Mrs. Savage, P. O. Box 178, Greenville. Two copies of the manuscript must be typed and double spaced and signed by nom de plume (fictitious name) only. A self-addressed, stamped envelope bearing the legal name of the author should be enclosed. The copies will be based primarily upon the best in each category, consideration being given to spelling and punctuation. For additional information, contact Mrs. Savage, 752-3966. If you use lots of chopped onion in main dishes, you'll find the frozen variety a boon. As much as is needed may be removed from the package and the rest kept on hand in the freezer.

Mrs. Uran Cox Gives Club Program Friday

Mrs. Uran Cox spoke on Garden "Therapy" at the meeting of the Greenville Garden Club held Friday afternoon. "In making an arrangement, it brings joy and happiness to the person who arranges it, as well as to the person who receives it. Working in the soil has a power all its own. It has great therapeutic value for the sick in body and mind," said Mrs. Cox. "One is nearer God's heart in a garden than anywhere else. A doctor says, 'On earth, gardening can quite possibly prove to be one of the best weapons for fighting mental illness," she continued. Mrs. John Carrington, president, presided over the business session. Various committees made their reports. Mrs. H. R. Rogers, Sheppard Memorial Library Memorial Garden chairman, reported that the final planting was in progress. Ways and means chairman, Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, reported that a bridge benefit was being planned. Mrs. J. Paul Daventport reported that another 1,000 long leaf pines has been planted at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Claude Batts and Mrs. John Everett were guests for the meeting. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Respass. Assisting hostesses were Mrs.

T. J. Moore, Mrs. Gilbert Peel and Mrs. F. S. Corbette. Preceding the meeting, refreshments were served from a table centered with a bowl of white pom poms. House Proves To Be A Big Deal BESANCON, France (WNS)—At his wife's insistence, Laszlo Csagaji, 27, signed a contract to buy a new house in the nearby village of Bussieres. The next day he returned to the realty office, asked to see the contract and swallowed it so that it could not be used in evidence against him when he cancelled the deal. The judge has fined Laszlo $60 and has put him on good behavior until the house is paid for.

Perhaps A Guarantee From U Thant?

Increasingly tough fighting in Vietnam, the prospect of even more American troops being needed there, and the increasing toll of casualties on both sides all mount the pressure for some end to the conflict which appears to have no course or conclusion.

With these mounting pressures, there is also the assertion by U. N. Secretary General U Thant that a halt in American bombings in the north would bring the North Vietnamese to the conference table in a few weeks. U Thant's statement, one would guess, is more than shallow speculation. Even so, it cannot be recognized as a guarantee that the North Vietnamese will come to the conference table if the bombings are halted. It would seem reasonable for the North Vietnamese to reduce its military action in return for the halt in American bombing. But the matter of prerequisites for the North Vietnamese as well as for the United States always has been the stumbling block.

In the past, halts in the bombings have resulted in no corresponding action by the communists except to step up re-supplying its forces.

Without some concession from the North to match the concession proposed for the United States, this nation risks grave military consequences if negotiations fail to materialize. A halt in the bombings would enable the North Vietnamese to strengthen their forces in the South. It would put them in a better position to strike telling military blows at the positions held by the South Vietnamese and American forces.

It is a military exposure the United States and its South Vietnamese ally can hardly be expected to accept without some corresponding assurance that their interests might also be considered. In lieu of any direct concession from the North Vietnamese, perhaps some guarantee could be offered by U Thant or the United Nations if the United States agrees to halt the bombings. At least the U. N. could endorse such an effort at establishing peace talks and use its good offices in an effort to bring them about. And if the United States accepts the prerequisite suggested by U Thant, there would be the implied obligation upon the U. N. Secretary General to bring the parties to the conference table within the "few weeks" he specified.

A long-shot gamble, to be sure, but one which the Johnson administration might be willing to take with a U. N. commitment to exert its efforts to set up the negotiations.

Broughton Has An Uphill Fight

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Those friends and supporters who prevailed upon and persuaded J. Melville Broughton Jr. to seek the governorship this year realized at the outset that it would be an uphill fight.

It still is, and will continue to be uphill on Broughton's part because his principal opponent, Lt. Gov. Robert W. (Bob) Scott, began preparing and organizing and became established as the front runner many months before Broughton decided to make the race.

Broughton has to be the challenger in this primary campaign because he must catch up. He must make himself known, fire the imagination of the voters, capture the support of the undecided element and forge ahead if he hopes to make it close at the polls on May 4.

Almost every political observer in Raleigh and around the state will say that Scott is ahead, rather solidly, at this point in the campaign. But they will add that Broughton is gaining.

Mel Broughton.

Essentially, he is soft-spoken, shy and sometimes retiring. But he is fired with and filled with conviction and sincerity and capable of great persuasive powers. He is a man of dogged determination, devotion and ideals, and this is what attracted a horde of supporters to his banner. They came, asking "will Mel make a good candidate?"

Broughton promised only that he would be himself, campaign sincerely, honestly and say what he felt. In the weeks that followed his announcement for governor he said this often, repeating over and over again that his purpose was a desire to serve. His early statements and campaign promises were cautious and carefully worded.

All the while, Broughton and his growing circle of supporters realized that he was the underdog — that Scott was ahead, the favorite and running strong. He was told that if the election was tomorrow, Bob Scott would be elected by a large majority.

Fighting Back
Mel Broughton and his supporters knew this and were well aware of it. But if last Friday's filing in Raleigh was any indication, their confidence is growing stronger.

It was, of all the political filings thus far this Spring, the biggest, most enthusiastic and solid turnout seen in Raleigh — itself a tribute to Broughton and the loyalty he commands.

After the march by hundreds of Broughton supporters to the State Board of Elections, Broughton made the day an occasion to open fire and go on the offensive as a political challenger. His target — never mentioned by name — Bob Scott.

Take A Stand
The time has arrived, Broughton said, for taking a clear, unqualified and unaltered stand. He lashed out at political "doubletalk" and "fence-straddling" on important issues.

The voters of North Carolina, he said, "want a man who says what he means and means what he says." In effect, he accused Scott of having shifted position on issues "depending on where he is talking."

It was the first frontal assault by either candidate against another in the developing 1968 Spring primary campaign.

Strife, Discord Mar Future Of Olympics

One begins to wonder if the famous Olympic Games will continue to be with us.

Certainly the just-concluded Winter Games were the most discordant of the meetings to date; and feuding over the Summer session is already off to a flying start.

Political rivalries (which have no place in sports) have made themselves an obnoxious factor; and racial overtones (which is as far as you can get from the spirit of the Olympics) have been introduced.

Toss in a few more questions about amateur standings, allegations of cheating and poor sportsmanship . . . derogatory comments by non-participants, the influences of commercialism and such . . . then the Games will have lost all they were meant to be.

GOP Hope To Control House

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP)—The desire of Republican congressional leaders to recapture House control for the first time in 14 years is playing an important role in influencing their preferences in the GOP's presidential contest.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Republican Conference, feels the party's best opportunity to win additional House seats lies in the Northeast and that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would be the biggest help in getting them.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SUCCESS AND FAILURE

A few days ago the father of a soldier whom I know quite well told me that the son who hoped to become a pilot had been "washed out." Along with many others, he had failed in some way to measure up to the high requirements. Long before he left home the boy's heart was set on this achievement, and when he failed to reach it he was so downcast that he did not communicate with his family for several weeks.

This young man had written home saying that he was a failure. The first thing to be said to such a statement is that no one at his age has lived long enough either to be a failure or to be much of a success. We spend the first thirty or forty years of life getting ready for the harvest. Occasionally a young man damages his life almost beyond repair by some act of violence or dishonesty, but even under such circumstances life has much to offer, even though he may always have to limp along its pathways.

But to say because some one thing upon which we have set our heart is denied us; that therefore we have failed and that life has lost all its relish is to speak out of the depth of inexperience and folly. We make a mistake when we set our hearts too much on anything. It may not be the Lord's will that events turn out that way. But if He denies us in one way, it is that He may work His will through us more perfectly in another.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan sees the South as the best hope for electing more Republicans. While officially neutral, he has in the past been close to Richard M. Nixon.

Studies by the Republican Congressional Committee outlining how the GOP can gain the 31 seats it needs for House control show 12 possible gains in the 11 Deep South states and 12 more in the nine New England and Middle Atlantic states.

But this assumes a normal two-party race. Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's third-party candidacy guarantees an abnormal situation, especially in the South.

In fact, it complicates the congressional situation in the South to such a degree that the long-range Republican trend in that once solidly Democratic region could well be blunted this year.

Thus, Laird's view emerges as the more realistic, for this year at least.

In Alabama, Wallace's candidacy could wipe out the last three GOP House members of the five who were elected on Barry Goldwater's coattails in 1964.

To The Editor:

These are the accomplishments of the two major parties over the years:

1. Two World Wars—Thousands of lives lost
2. A Police Action—Thousands of lives lost
3. Higher and higher taxes—Cheaper dollar
4. High cost of living in a progressive world of plenty
5. Dwindling gold reserve
6. 300 billion national debt
7. Rioting and plundering in the streets
8. More and more Federal control
9. Another war—Thousands of lives lost
10. Finally—No solution to any of the above

PRESSURES OF MODERN LIVING!

Password Is 'Swordfish'

John L. Sullivan, the terrible-tempered tomcat, used to sponge his room and board from me in the days when I lived on G Street, Southeast. I moved away a little before Christmas. Subsequently I learned that Sullivan hung around the Marine Corps Barracks until New Year's, cleaning up the Yuletide garbage. Then the Marines threw the bum out.

I happened to be in the neighborhood last week, and inquired of the Marine guard about my old friend. I was told, a bit stiffly, that Sullivan had taken to calling himself "Monsieur Sullivan," and was now a consultant attached to Honest Harold's Liquor Store nearby. It seemed incredible, but it was true. I went around to Honest Harold's, and there was Sullivan stretched out on an empty case of rye. He was idly licking his front right paw, injured in a fight the night before, and he was wearing, of all things, a beret. "Hello, Fatso," he snarled. Sullivan really knows how to hurt a man. "Been putting on the pounds, eh bien, n'est-ce pas?"

I could only stare at him. John L. is 155 millimeters across, and shaped like a howitzer shell. "Bonjour yourself," I said to the topaz beast. "What's a crook like you doing in Honest Harold's?"

And where'd you get that silly hat?"

Well, sir, it turned out that Sullivan had come around to Harold's, after the Marines tossed him out, saying "oui, oui," and "non, non," and trying to make a deal. Sullivan is the biggest liar in Southeast Washington. Honest Harold has great purity of soul; he is enterprising, but he is without guile. Somehow, Sullivan convinced the proprietor that in one of his previous lives he had spent five years in the Montparnasse and made twelve crossings on the Cunard Lines.

"Go on," I scoffed. "What do you know about foreign travel?"

"Enough to know," said Sullivan archly, "that the password is Swordfish."

"Your brains have turned to scrambled eggs," I said. "That was in your sixth incarnation — Chicago, 1922. You made up that bunch of lies, too, how you lived in a speakeasy, bummed around with Ben Hecht, bit Capone on the ankle."

Sullivan put on a look of injured dignity, which is not easy, if you are a cat with cauliflower ears. "As usual," he said, "you miss my point. I had reference to the President's proposals for cutting down on the tourist trade."

"Tell me more," I said. "He ought to have kept it voluntary," said my yellow-furred friend. "That way, he could have played the patriotic bit: Do your part for the balance of payments. Help your country in its hour of need. Preserve the American dollar. Most people would have gone along with LBJ and bragged about the trips they didn't take."

Sullivan flexed his tender right paw. "But not if this tax bill passes," he said. "Already the reaction is setting in. Up on the Hill, they're saying the Treasury's statistics are no good — the tourist deficit is mostly a myth; and the machinery for collecting the tourist tax is strictly from Goldberg. Rube, that is. "We used to have seven- (Continued On Page 5)

Display Your Flag
Wednesday February 22 being the anniversary of George Washington's birthday and also the date upon which Group One, North Carolina Bankers Association will meet in this city, I take this opportunity to urge all local business houses to suitably decorate for the occasion and display the American Flag on that date. We should never miss the opportunity to pay tribute to the memory of the "Father of Our Country" and the display of the flag on February 22, is one of the best means of doing so. A liberal display of the flag here next Wednesday will accomplish a two-fold purpose in that it will not only celebrate the birthday of our first president but will give the city a gala attire for the bankers. . . .

Respectfully,
J. Con. Lanier
Mayor of Greenville, N. C.

Birth Announcement
Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Deiner announce the birth of a son, Francis Joseph, Jr. on Monday, February 20th, 1928.

Friends of Miss Edna Mc-

Kee will regret to learn that she had the misfortune to break her arm this morning while cranking her car.

Miss Helene Higgs Honors
Miss Madeleine Higgs and Mary Thomas

Miss Madeleine Higgs, bride-elect, and her guest, Miss Mary Thomas of Lynchburg, Virginia, were honored guests Saturday morning, Feb. 18, when Miss Helene Higgs delightfully entertained her bridge club at her home on Dickinson Avenue. Six tables were arranged for bridge and rook with tallies suggestive of the Valentine season. At the conclusion of the games, the hostess, with appropriate good wishes, presented a dozen silver salad forks to Miss Higgs, whose marriage to Mr. Louis Thornton of Buffalo, will take place in April. As winner of high score in bridge, Miss Snodie Moore received a box of candy, and Miss Bessie Brown, who made the highest score in rook, received a neatly handkerchief doll. Dainty miniature corsages of spring flowers were awarded as table prizes to Miss Thomas, Miss Frances Taft and Mesdames Curtis Perkins, Walter Harrington, Durwood Tucker and Charles Whitford.

Is Fiscal Discipline Possible?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Jacques Reuff, the French economist, has questioned whether a democratic society can ever exercise fiscal discipline.

There are reasons for thinking the answer may be no.

In democratic societies politicians usually listen to the clamor of the populace for bread and circuses or, in the present day, for more welfare, more free government medical care, more education, more high-speed highways, and what would you like, baby?

Legislators, listening to voters, vote for post offices, canals, parks, swimming pools and other reasons for spending in their districts. Furthermore, knowing that a swig of inflation is like bourbon but that a rise in taxes is like blood-letting, legislators lean toward inflation, even though they know better. Reasons For Fiscal Instability

Maurice H. Stans, who was President Eisenhower's Director of the Budget from 1958 to 1961 and now president of Glore Forgan, Wm. R. Staats, Inc., investment bankers, raises Reuff's question in the January issue of Financial Executive.

He recounts the public clamor for more spending for mail services, for going to Mars and Venus, for faster transport, education, government housing, manpower training and retraining, guaranteed employment, anti-missile missiles, guaranteed annual wages, and financial aid to states and cities. One mayor wants one billion dollars from Washington.

Staats offers these five reasons for the endless demands of the public:

1. Impatience for progress: At no time in the world's history has there been such a broad revolt against the status quo, such a public demand for more and better things, such a revolution of rising expectations. Under conditions of social revolution, cost is always secondary.

ELMER ROESSNER

2. Politics: Candidates for office and office-holders have come to believe that the way to power is to promise more and more, even though the promises may far exceed the fiscal capacity of the government or of the country. New Tinkering

Behind Nixon's Choice

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The hidden background behind last week's announcement of Harry Fleming, a bright young moderate Republican, as Richard M. Nixon's campaign co-chairman in Virginia fully reveals political Nelson Rockefeller's polar dilemma.

Fleming, son of Arthur Fleming (Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare under President Eisenhower), was elected to the Alexandria, Va., city council this month and is a comer in the state's Republican party. As such, he is also a feather in the Nixon cap. What is not generally known is that Dick Nixon was his second choice after Nelson Rockefeller.

When offered the Nixon state campaign co-chairmanship last November, Fleming quietly contacted one of Rockefeller's closest political lieutenants. Fleming explained he was for Rockefeller first, Nixon second, and Governor George Romney (Rockefeller's choice) not at all. He had been offered the campaign post by Nixon, he said, but would turn it down if Rockefeller might run.

The answer was not helpful. Rockefeller is not a candidate, he was told. As for Nixon's bid, Fleming was old enough to make his own decisions. Given no help from New York, Fleming decided to go with Nixon. The announcement was made following Fleming's election to the Alexandria city council on Feb. 6.

Herein lies Rockefeller's dilemma. Had his lieutenant urged Fleming to keep his powder dry and wait for the Miami convention, word undoubtedly would have seeped out and compromised Rockefeller's non-candidate position which has been vital in his national political recovery. But he can ill afford to lose moderates of Fleming's caliber, a process being repeated in state after state.

A footnote: the nature of Fleming's co-chairman in Virginia — Dorch Warriner, nominee for state attorney general in 1965 — shows the Nixon technique of balancing GOP right and left. Warriner is a hard-line conservative, offsetting Fleming's liberalism.

Inside the ADA
The most ingenious argument used against endorsing Senator Eugene McCarthy for President during the American for Democratic Action (ADA) board meeting Feb. 10 came from economist Edward Hollander, a former ADA national director.

Hollander is anti-LBJ and anti-Vietnam. But, he argued, the ADA should wait for next fall to use its leverage for the peace cause — if it can be, in behalf of a Republican. Deprecating McCarthy, Hollander argued, "The cause is stronger than the candidate."

Hollander's position was rejected and the ADA endorsed McCarthy, but there is strong sentiment inside the liberal organization at least to consider endorsing the Republican nominee. Richard Goodwin, an intimate of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, talks this way in private.

At the Feb. 10 meeting, veteran ADA leader Joseph Rauh wanted to attach a provision to the McCarthy endorsement resolution pledging to back President Johnson if no nominee. (Continued On Page 5)

Studying 'Corporate Conglomerate' Data

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The mystery of what is inside a corporate conglomerate is now

Evans-Novak . . .

ted. He decided against it because of noisy opposition, particularly from the California contingent.
A footnote: the pullout of three international unions from the ADA won't hurt nearly as much financially as has been hinted. The United Steelworkers contributed $10,000 in 1967. But the Communications Workers gave nothing last year (compared with $3,000 in 1966) and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union had contributed not a dime since March, 1966.
Congressman, Stay Home
Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, one Congressman who never travels the junket circuit, is sure to make at least one change in the Johnson administration's travel program: the exemption for junketing Congressmen will be removed.
Mills, Mr. Taxation on Capitol Hill, has the quaint notion that Congressmen should not be given special treatment. Some of his colleagues might grumble that he won't be affected, however. When Mills visited Canada's Expo 67 last year, it was the first time he had left the U. S.

occupying the investigative skills of investors, federal regulators, acquisition prospects, accountants, competitors. In a way, it's like trying to crack a rock of the same name.
This curiosity wasn't always there. For years these groups stood around while "new" management built conglomerates out of mergers, purchases and takeovers, rolling into one ball scores of products disparate as cat food and lasers.
These new managers have built an image of wizardry. They are clever, daring, hyperactive, disdainful of tradition, profit-minded. Although responsive to their obligations to society, this is not the result of softness.
Their efficiency instead is often ruthless and impersonal. They are able to mix seemingly troublesome combinations of products and personalities and present them to the public as routine words and figures in annual reports.
They are brilliant financiers, either because of native talent or through superior education. About them is electricity, adventure and movement, because they are testing million-dollar theories not in the lab but in the marketplace.
But, critics now wonder just how much of their empires are the result of bookkeeping as opposed to production. As the glitter dulls, those who at first were blinded by soaring sales are taking a new look at the shape of things.

Falling stock prices have a lot to do with the concern.
Through much of the 1960s stock prices have been rising, especially the prices of conglomerate stocks. This permitted the conglomerate to buy out a smaller company almost effortlessly—by offering it stock.
Last year, Mergers & Acquisitions magazine estimates, share exchanges covered about 60 percent of all transactions. Cash was involved in only 36 percent of the deals.
Now, however, the market seems to have become more static and investors are asking: Can conglomerates continue to grow in such a market? Will further acquisitions be postponed until prices rise again?
The suspicion exists that some mergers already have been called off this year because of falling prices. Gulf & Western Industries, for example, suspended its merger talks with Armour.
This slowdown of the stock market has permitted other disturbing problems to come to the fore.
Stockholders, for example, are concerned with how conglomerates report sales and profits. How far should these companies go in breaking down figures by divisions?
Security analysts also are disturbed. Each acquisition generally means less information for them, one less annual report, for the acquired company's figures are blended with those of the purchaser.
Bankers are worried because their loans to conglomerates are made without full knowledge of

Classic Pattern: Israeli Warning Ignored—Strike

By HAL MCCLURE
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's punishing strike against Jordan last week came as the culmination of a classic pattern: Arab provocation over a long period, Israeli warnings, and finally explosion.

The Israelis hewed to the pattern when they launched a punitive raid against the Jordanian town of Samua, an alleged Arab command base, in November 1966. Again, last May, a similar warning to Damascus was the announced reason for Egyptian intervention and the resultant June war.
A week before last Thursday's clash, Israeli leaders had been telling Amman to put a halt to operations. The Securities and Exchange Commission also has expressed concern, as have certified public accountants.
The questioning has been intensified by an earnings decline at Litton Industries, a decline that was not foreseen by all securities analysts and, for a time, by Litton management itself.
This has caused suspicion about other conglomerates. If earnings can slip at Litton, the "university" which has graduated the men who later helped build other conglomerates, can't they slip also at companies made in Litton's image.

Arab commando raids against Israeli settlements and stop provoking cross-border gun battles, some of which were rigged to permit the saboteurs to escape back across the border.
"Carefully consider" your ways, was the way Prime Minister Levi Eshkol put it to Jordan's leaders.
Defense Minister Moshe Dayan was just as explicit when he gave the chief U.N. cease-fire message for Amman on Wednesday. He said the cease-fire ending the June war not only covered the borders but Israeli's interior.
But that very night, Israeli border settlements in the sabotage-plagued Beisan Valley were hit again.
By Israeli reckoning it was the 91st "offensive act" along the border since June. The fight was on.
The Israelis called in tanks, artillery and aircraft to silence the Jordanian positions. A score of Jordanian targets, including Al Fatah commando bases, self-propelled gun positions and ammunition dumps were hit by Israeli planes ranging at will 10 miles inside Jordan.
By 9:15 that night, the Jordanians had plainly had enough, counting 40 soldiers and civilians killed and another 127 wounded.

Because there were no U.N. observers on this border, the Jordanians asked for a cease-fire through the good offices of the U.S. Embassies in Amman and Tel Aviv.
The cease-fire went into effect again shortly before 11 p.m. after eight hours' fighting.
King Hussein toured the battle zone the next day and then went on Radio Amman to say he would try to keep the border quiet by preventing Arab guerrillas from striking into Israel.
"As from today I shall not allow anyone to supply the enemy with pretexts and justifications for aggression," he said.
"I shall not allow anything to occur in this land which does not conform with the higher Arab interest or which does not support Arab rights in Palestine."
Confusing the picture is the presence in Jordan—since last June—of several thousand Iraqi troops, who are not directly responsible to Hussein.
The Israelis say the Iraqis also have been training, supplying and transporting Arab guerrillas striking inside Israel.
Iraqi cooperation with Hussein is imperative if the sabotage raids are to stop and the border clashes end, the Israelis believe, but they wonder if the king is in a strong enough position to carry out his no-raid pledge.
The thought here is that Hussein's very future may well be in the balance in the days ahead.
If border clashes and raids continue, another battle—even bigger than the last one—could erupt.

Miss Walston On Dean's List

RALEIGH — Miss Catherine Ann Walston of Farmville is among students at Meredith College on the Dean's List for completion of first semester work with a high academic standing.
Miss Walston is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Walston of 411 N. Waverly St., Farmville.

day wonders. Now we're going to have seven-dollar wonders. These will be the tourists who live abroad within the exemption rule. "Where did you stay?" the Customs official will ask them. "Why," they will say, "we stayed with Lord and Lady Cornflakes at their country place in Kent. Dear old Sue and Cyril. Life-long friends, you know."
Sullivan adjusted his rakish beret. "It'll be just like Prohibition," he said. "The Bureau of Customs has 85,000 employees now. They'll need 185,000 to enforce this bill. The more they pile on the departure, decorations on re-departure, certificates of exemption, calculations of net worth—the more of a challenge it will be. Everybody will have a friend in Canada. Travelers checks will be issued to ten thousand Abraham Lincolns and a million guys named Smith. Pretty soon, it will be like knowing the password to Mickey's Speak on Wabash Avenue. The password was Swordfish. Everybody will be going to Europe. No one will stay home."
"The only solution," said Sullivan, "is for Johnson to get Charles de Gaulle so mad that he puts the same foolish law on France. We're all alike. The French would come to the States by the thousands, just to put one over on Charlie. Why do you think Harold has taken me on? 'French spoken here.' As soon as they pass this ax bill, we're lettering up a sign."

poses this question: Who will Wallace voters back for Congress?
The Wallace voters could well determine the outcome of most of the closely contested races, as Republicans seek to expand their Southern bridgeheads. The GOP has 23 of the 106 seats in the 11 Southern states.
Wallace is expected to take anti-Johnson votes that might normally go to a Republican nominee such as Nixon. But these same votes might go right back to a Republican congressional candidate if he could tie his Democratic opponent closely enough to the administration.
However, many Southern Democrats have pursued independent voting records which would enable them to pick up support from Wallace voters.
Thus, the South provides uncertain ground at best for Republicans to make House gains this year.
In the Northeast, however, a popular GOP candidate could enable his party to make strong gains. With Democrats controlling House delegations of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey by margins of 26 to 15, 5 to 1 and 9 to 6, the GOP will need strength at the head of the ticket to make significant inroads.

Psychological Victory Over Guinea Rebels

By ISAAC M. FLORES
Associated Press Writer

BISSAU, Portuguese Guinea (AP) — Portugal appears to have achieved a major propaganda victory over black African guerrillas as a result of an official visit by President Americo Thomaz to Portuguese Guinea and the Cape Verde Islands.

Nationalist rebels in this tiny wedge of Portuguese territory on Africa's western bulge are expected to face an increasingly difficult time in attempting to convert half a million members of 30 different tribes to their cause.

The Thomaz trip was considered a success in asserting Portugal's determination to continue the six-year struggle against what it calls "terrorism and banditry" supported by international communism throughout this steamy, river-crossed jungle country about the size of the Netherlands.

There had been speculation that Portugal was about to give up this small unproductive territory, but Thomaz' tour seems to have put an end to that.

The venture, carried out by order of Prime Minister Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, also served to disprove contentions that the insurgents, led by Senegal-based Amilcar Cabral, control more than two-thirds of the colony.

The Thomaz party traveled unchallenged into five villages of the interior in addition to his five-day stay in this chief port and capital city of 35,000. If ever there was a time for Cabral's rebel forces of 4,000-6,000 to show its defiance, this was it. But there were no incidents—much to the relief of a large contingent of Portuguese armed forces and security police.

Despite the rebels' unexpected lethargy at this time, however, Portuguese Guinea remains in the grip of guerrilla warfare and the possibility that the insurgents may eventually win out over some 25,000 top Portuguese troops and a native force of 10,000 is not being discounted.

Well-armed guerrilla bands travel at will over a large part of the country, particularly in the areas bordering Senegal and the Republic of Guinea. Black and white residents of this capital city suffer from nerves and dwindling morale as a consequence of the six-year war in the interior.

The so-called "invisible war" being waged in Portugal's three African territories of Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea continues without letup, and it is far from invisible here.

Bissau is a tense little town. It is no Saigon, but the rumble of rebel artillery is clearly heard almost every evening as outlying army outposts come under attack.

The town swarms with Portuguese and native soldiers, sailors, airmen, paratroopers and marines.

Signs Indicate Soviet Farm Lobby Set Back

By HENRY S. BRADSHER
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — There are signs that the Soviet farm lobby has lost a Kremlin struggle to get investment money originally promised to agriculture—probably because the Soviet military machine is eating up more and more of the nation's resources.

This is the evaluation given by experienced non-Communist observers who have been following the public signs of the lengthy struggle.

The signs have consisted of articles in the Soviet press and a few speeches by leaders that argued, often in indirect terms, about agricultural investment. As is usual here, the issues have not been presented clearly to the public.

The individual who appears to have lost the most personally is Dmitry S. Polyansky, the Soviet leader who has seen the most of the United States and Canada and mixes easiest with Westerners.

Polyansky is a member of the Soviet Communist party's Politburo, the 11-man group that determines national policy. He is also a first deputy premier in the government machinery that carries out Politburo decisions.

The basic agricultural policy was laid down by the party secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, in March 1965. He promised higher farm prices and $7.9 billion of farm investment in 1966-70, with $4.6 billion of it to come from the government and the rest to be raised by farms themselves. All farms are under government ownership or direct control.

The goal of this program was to overcome a long neglect of agriculture that had kept it inefficient and incapable of supplying the diets that the 237 million Soviet people wanted.

Almost a year ago, after a record 1966 harvest, Polyansky complained publicly that "some comrades" were trying to wait the down farm investments. These comrades apparently were arguing that other things were more important and agriculture was doing all right anyway.

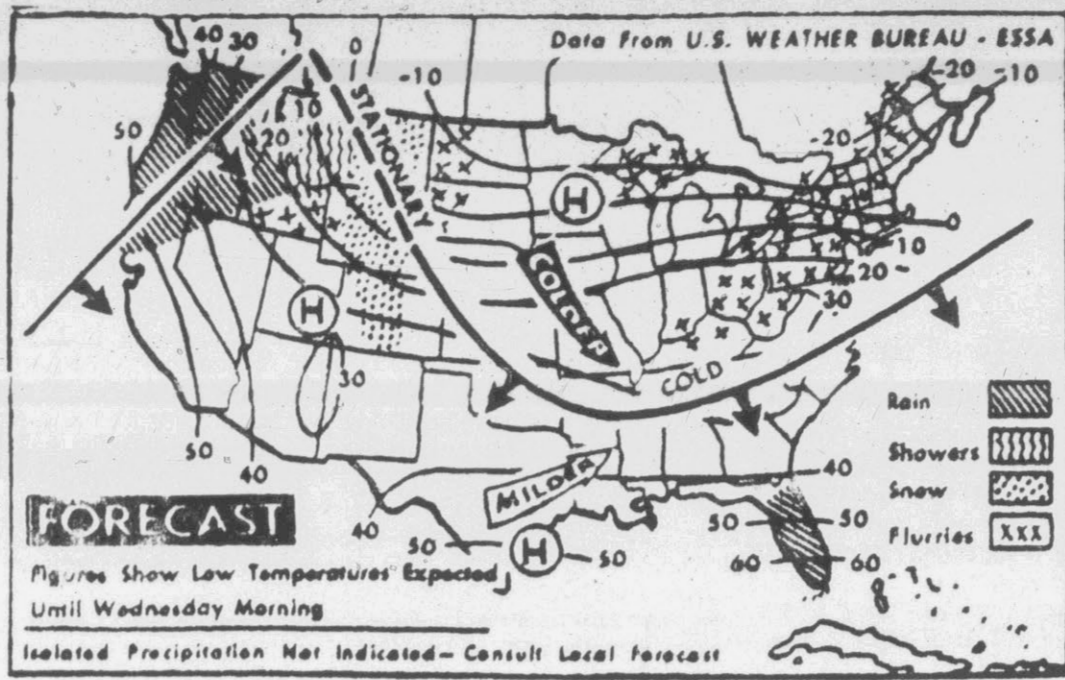

In September the Politburo decided to give agriculture 13 per cent less government investments over the 1966-70 period than Brezhnev promised in March 1965.

Polyansky counterattacked in October with an article criticizing "some people" for dangerous tendencies to reduce farm investment. These people were in the government's economic planning unit that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin directs.

Polyansky's article cited Brezhnev in support, and in a major speech Nov. 3 Brezhnev echoed some of Polyansky's arguments.

Since then a number of articles and editorials have emphasized how much farmers have benefited from higher prices and said they can invest in improvements from their own resources. The point seemed to be that they can do without heavy government investments.

Kosygin spoke in late December to local government leaders responsible for agriculture, but Polyansky was missing without explanation. Recently Brezhnev spoke to party workers in agriculture, and again Polyansky was missing. His protests have been fading, although probably not permanently silenced.

Carol Channing TV Special Finally 'On'

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Barring unforeseen difficulties, the Carol Channing special will appear on the ABC network on leap year day, Feb. 29.

Miss Channing will believe it when she actually sees her own face beaming on the tube. Her show, "Carol Channing and 101 Men," has been to the starting gate before.

The special was in preparation last summer, and Miss Channing underwent six weeks of rehearsals with guest stars Walter Matthau, George Burns, Jimmy Dean and the Association. Also scheduled to appear for the Oct. 1 taping was the Air Force Academy Cadet Chorus. The Cadets flew down from Colorado Springs the day before.

Then it happened. The broadcasting union, NABET, went on strike against ABC. The taping remained on the schedule, since it was to be done in the color studios of NBC, which wasn't on strike. Miss Channing continues the story from there in her own breathless style.

"Oh, we had everything ready, all my makeup and wigs, and the Cadets had arrived, and four-star generals and everyone. So I went to NBC the day of the taping and to my utter surprise it was surrounded by pickets. Well! that wouldn't do at all."

"Then this lovely man who is the head of NBC here—what is his name? Oh, yes, Tom Saranoff. A lovely man, and he's married to a girl who went to Bennington College, as I did. He came out of the building and asked me not to go on with the show. He said if I did, he feared there would be a strike against NBC, too."

"My goodness, it was a problem! I mean, we had all those Cadets here, and we had to feed them every two hours. Those boys just eat like crazy, and if they went without a meal for more than two hours, they became dispirited. Also, we had our guest stars to think of! If we had to postpone, Walter Matthau might be making a picture someplace far away.

"But heavens—we couldn't close down all of NBC for one little television show. I couldn't do that to such a nice man, especially since he was married to a Bennington girl."

The Cadets were sent back to the academy, and the show was cancelled. ABC managed to reschedule the taping for Oct. 15 after an agreement with NABET that the special would not be broadcast until after the strike was settled. Miss Channing managed to retain her entire cast except for Dean, who suggested Eddy Arnold as a substitute.

The special was scheduled to appear Nov. 16, and Carol appeared on the Joey Bishop Show to plug it. But the strike wasn't settled, and she went on with Joey again to announce that the show would air Nov. 30.

Little Harm To British Fishing

LONDON (AP) — The wreck of the giant oil tanker Torrey Canyon last April caused comparatively little damage to Britain's fishing industry, the Ministry of Agriculture said today.

The American-owned supertanker went aground on a reef off England's southwest tip and spilled some 35 million gallons of crude oil into the sea. Detergents used to dissipate the oil caused more damage to tidal marine life than the oil did, but fishing grounds were largely unaffected, the report said.

VANDALS DAMAGE ART

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — A Negro artist's works on display in a library were smeared with white paint by vandals. Police said seven paintings depicting Negro life by Dana C. Chandler of Boston were damaged. He estimated the damage at $2,900.

Local Artists Are Included In Annual Exhibit

Two Greenville artists will exhibit at the 143rd Annual Exhibition of the National Academy of Design in New York City opening at the Academy's galleries Thursday, Feb. 22, continuing through March 17.

The local artists are Francis Speight of 501 Eighth Street, and Marilyn Gordley of 102 Pineview Dr.

The exhibition will include 307 exhibits, painting in oil, sculpture, prints, drawings and watercolors by artists from all parts of the United States.

The National Academy of Design is the oldest art group in New York City, organized and administered by artists for the advancement of the arts in this country.

Post Office To Mark Holiday

Postmaster Joseph Dudley reminded today the Greenville Post Office and the East Carolina Station will be closed on February 22 (Thursday).

In the holiday's observance there will be no window service and no delivery of mail by city or rural carriers.

However, he said, regular holiday lockbox service will be maintained and Special Delivery mail will be delivered within the city.

A city-wide collection will be made from all street letter boxes beginning at 5:00 p.m. and all outgoing mail will be dispatched on the usual schedule.

On November 24, the editor of the Washington, N.C., Daily News sat down and wrote an editorial.

In case you missed it, here it is.

Role Defined

John McGurn, president of Virginia Electric and Power company, speaking before the Southern Albemarle association last week, accurately pinpointed the position a modern day company should take in a community.

Mr. McGurn said "we work actively and productively in the field of industrial development." He added "problems cannot be solved by government action alone."

Then he summed up the true philosophy when he said "the public utility recognizes its social responsibility and contributes to the solution of these problems through active participation and financial support in every worthwhile civic and social undertaking in the community."

In everyday terms what Mr. McGurn was saying is that his own company does not want its people to sit back and not work in communities. What he was saying is that his company wants its people to participate actively in community projects, in civic responsibilities, in church activities, and in leadership roles whenever the challenges arise.

And he was even saying more than that. He was saying "this company condones your participation and what is good for a community is also good for us."

It was a most enlightening and refreshing statement of company policy. It was spoken in simple but direct terms. It was not qualified with "if you have the time." Rather it was a case of saying "we will work with you so that you will have the time."

In days gone by companies might have told its employees "you work for us and let the community, civic, and religious problems alone." That time should belong to the ages, and with Mr. McGurn's words he gave meaning and purpose to the new philosophy.

The new philosophy means more than contributing money. It means giving of time, effort, ability, dedication, ambition, and with them the sharing of the fruits of success as communities progress.

Vision Of Tourney Bids Dancing In Their Heads

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer

It was the eve of postseason college basketball tournament selections and the St. Bonaventure Brown Indians and the Kentucky Wildcats went to bed with visions of bids dancing in their heads after rousing victories.

However, only the Bonnies could expect the real thing today. The Wildcats must play good a while longer.

St. Bonaventure, as an independent, seemed certain of bids from both the NIT and NCAA after turning loose Bill Butler and Bob Lanier for a 97-84 victory over visiting Creighton Monday night, protecting its unbeaten record and No. 4 ranking.

Kentucky, on the other hand, will have to do even better than its impressive 106-87 breeze past tough Georgia away from home before earning an NCAA bid which automatically goes to the winner of the Southeastern Conference.

Marquette, No. 10, also closed in on a bid by celebrating its entry into the Top Ten with a 7-65 triumph at South Dakota. Another team with postseason ideas, Chicago Loyola, raced to an 83-74 decision over visiting Bowling Green for a 14-6 record.

Long Island U., the nation's top-ranked small college team rumored hopeful of a major college tournament bid, kept its record unblemished by coming away from Bridgeport with a 68-52 victory, its 19th. Runner-up Kentucky Wesleyan brushed aside host Arkansas State 73-62.

Butler, a 6-foot-3 senior, and Lanier, 6-11 sophomore, soaked St. Bonaventure's 19th success

ECU Entries In Tourneys

Twenty-one East Carolina University students qualified to compete in the annual Region Five Intercollegiate Games Tournament held at the university recently.

They entered regional events in bridge, billiards, bowling, chess and table tennis. Other competitors came from campuses in the Carolinas, Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

The tournament was part of the competitive program carried on by the Association of College Unions, International, and its member unions in the five states.

Former major league outfielder Danny Litwhiler is president of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches for 1968. He coaches the sport at Michigan State.

with 29 and 27 points, respectively. The Bonnies took a 9-2 lead and Creighton, 8-13, never caught up.

Kentucky put its early problems in the hands of lanky Don Issel, a 6-8 sophomore who scored 31 points and assured the Wildcats of at least a tie for the SEC title.

The Wildcats trailed by nine points in the first half and it wasn't until Issel's corner shot with 13 minutes left that they took the lead for good at 67-66.

Bob Lienhard kept Georgia in contention with 33 points.

But Kentucky still has its work cut out, despite closing at home in its last three games. The first test is Saturday against Auburn, which upset Kentucky earlier, and after Alabama on Monday comes a showdown against Vanderbilt March 2.

Vandy stayed in the race, taking charge of Alabama in the first three minutes and Tom Hagan finished with 22 points and Bob Bundy 21.

Marquette, led by George Thompson's 25 points, took a 29-17 lead and South Dakota never got closer than 10. Jim Tillman scored 21 points as Loyola pulled away from a 40-38 halftime lead.

Memphis State nudged Wichita State at Memphis as Mike Stewart scored eight of his 32 points in the closing minutes and Pete Maravich, the nation's leading scorer, tallied 34 points as Louisiana State outscored Mississippi State 94-83.

Elsewhere, Syracuse topped Pittsburgh 85-71 on the road and Montana State upset Seattle 80-76, Nebraska tripped Oklahoma State 82-73, Oklahoma edged Colorado 71-68, Mississippi slipped by Auburn 57-56, Washington defeated California 64-52, Washington State beat Stanford 87-75 and Virginia halted Wake Forest 100-87 in home court victories.

Thomas To Be Honored At Club

Harold Thomas Day will be observed Sunday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. A Scotch Foresome Tournament is being planned for the day.

Thomas, pro at the club for the past 21 years, is leaving March 1 to become owner of Brook Valley Country Club. The tournament and activities following, starting at 5:30 p.m. will be in his honor.

Members wishing to play in the tournament are asked to sign up in the pro shop.

East Carolina University's Pirates kept their hopes alive for a sixth place finish in the Southern Conference last night with an 81-76 overtime victory over The Citadel in a real seasaw battle.

The two teams didn't solve anything in the first 40 minutes of play, but then the Pirates pushed out into a six-point lead, almost blew that, then went out by six again to wrap it up.

Earl Thompson, Vince Colbert and Jim Modlin teamed up to pace the Bucs in scoring and all-around play. Thompson dropped in a total of 27 points and kept the Bucs in the game when The Citadel threatened to pull away.

Colbert, with 12 rebounds, and 22 points, hit the key shots that put the Bucs ahead and held off the Bulldogs. Modlin, who played most of the game at the center position, pulled down 10 rebounds and hit 21 points for his best effort since prior to Christmas holidays.

Washington & Lee Here Wednesday

East Carolina University will play host to Washington & Lee University here Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The game was scheduled for Wednesday after it was postponed earlier in the year by an ice storm.

The Pirates, now 7-14 overall, will be trying for a victory in their last regular season non-conference game. The Generals, 17-4, are one of the top small-college teams in the South, and will be another big test for the Bucs.

The Bucs wind up their season Saturday against Virginia Military Institute.

There will be no freshman preliminary to Wednesday's game.

Judges Studying Clay's Appeal To Skip Draft

HOUSTON (AP) — A three-judge federal court studied today former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's appeal of a

Immanuel Leads Church League

Immanuel Baptist has sewed the Church League title with a 37-32 victory over Piney Grove last night. In the other game, Oakmont downed Grace, 50-46.

In the opener, Oakmont inched out into a 25-22 lead in the first period, then added one more point to the lead in the second half, by outscoring Grace, 25-24 down the stretch.

Parrott led Oakmont with 17, while Measemer had 12 and Jackson had 11. For Grace, Mercer had 19 and Jackson had 16.

In the second game, Immanuel slipped into a 19-18 lead in the first half, then outscored Piney Grove, 18-14 in the final half to claim the title.

Gold led Immanuel with 11 points, while Dasher paced Piney Grove, with 13.

Immanuel is now 12-0, followed by Piney Grove, 6-6; Oakmont, 5-7, and Grace, 1-11. Three games remain in league play.

five-year prison sentence and neither the defense or the government would speculate when the court would rule.

The three judges heard 70 minutes of arguments Monday and then took under advisement Clay's appeal of the sentence he received for refusing to enter the Armed Forces.

The defense, headed by Charles Morgan Jr., an Atlanta attorney for the Civil Liberties Union, argued that Clay was sincere in a contention he should be exempt from military service because he is a conscientious objector.

U.S. Atty. Morton Susman replied Clay was a conscientious objector "only at his convenience."

Although neither side would speculate when a ruling would be handed down, Morton called it a "preferred case" and said it will be moved up.

Clay refused to be inducted into the Army last April 28 and was convicted June 20. He was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000. He has been free on a $5,000 appeal bond.

Domestic groups have stripped him of his heavyweight title.

Clay was not required to be in court and he did not appear.

Morgan asked court to rule Clay's constitutional rights had been violated by a systematic exclusion of Negroes from draft boards. He also called for a ruling that the Justice Department had erred in rejecting a recommendation Clay be classified as a conscientious objector because of being a Black Muslim minister.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Carl Walker Jr., a Negro, argued Clay had been treated fairly although he agreed with Morgan that there is room for improvement on the racial balance of governmental panels and agencies.

"I'd be the first to say it is desirable and that we are moving in that direction but Cassius Clay was treated fairly," Walker said.

Susman argued that Clay never did raise the ministry or conscientious objector questions until he had been classified I-A on Feb. 17, 1966.

Orenthel James Simpson of Southern California led major college elevens in rushing during 1967 with 1,415 yards, 141 more than runnerup Eugene Morris of West Texas State at 8-7, and then as Colbert hit to take a three-point lead of their own, also their largest lead of the half.

The Citadel came back and tied it up at 11-11, and the two teams swapped baskets after that, with the Bucs taking a two-point lead and The Citadel tying it up at 13-13, 15-15, and 17-17. Then with 8:41 left, Kroboth hit for a 19-17 Citadel lead, which climbed to three after the Bucs got a free throw and Doug Bridges hit for The Citadel.

The Bucs came back again, getting a 22-21 lead, but losing it 23-22 with 6:40 left. In the remaining minutes of the game the lead swapped 10 times as the two hit shot after shot. East Carolina took its last lead at 33-32 with 1:40 left, but The Citadel moved back out, 34-33, on a shot by Bridges with 1:21 left. Hooper hit on a free throw with two seconds showing to make it 35-33 at the half.

The Bulldogs hit in the first 30 seconds of the second half to get their biggest lead of the game, four points at 37-33 as Kroboth hit. The lead held at that point until it was 40-36, and the Bucs rallied to regain the lead at 41-40 as Modlin led the way with seven straight points. The lead bounced back and forth again, and finally East Carolina pulled out to a five point spread at 47-42 with 12:31 to play.

The Citadel refused to wilt, however, and charged back, finally tying it at 54-54 with 7:27 left. Then, with 6:58 showing, Bridges hit for a 58-57 Bulldog lead. East Carolina took it back on a basket by Colbert, but a three point play by Kroboth gave the Bulldogs a 59-57 edge.

In the fourth minutes that followed, East Carolina tied it up five straight times, as The Citadel kept the Bucs from grabbing the lead. But finally, with 1:45 left, Thompson hit for a 69-67 East Carolina lead. Hooper hit with 1:15 left to tie it up, and although both teams had opportunities in the closing seconds, neither hit and the game went into overtime.

Bob Lindfelt hit on a free throw after 14 seconds to give the Bucs the lead again. His second shot, missing, was grabbed off by Modlin, who dropped it in and gave the Pirates a three-point spread, 72-69. A minute later, Colbert was fouled, and hit both, pushing the lead to five.

But The Citadel came back again, getting two foul shots each from Taylor and Bridges to slice the lead to one, 74-73. Lindfelt hit on a rebound to push it back to three, and Bridges got another free throw to make it just two.

Colbert then hit for a four-point lead with 1:35 left, and Thompson added two free throws for a six-point lead, sewing it up.

For The Citadel, Bridges was high with 24 points, while Taylor had 17, Hooper had 16 and Bridges had 15.

In the freshman preliminary, the University of North Carolina downed the Baby Bucs, 88-80.

North Carolina shot away to a 19-point spread over the Bucs, 25-6, and appeared heading for a rout of the listless Pirates. But East Carolina put together a tremendous rally, battling back to tie the score at 30-30 on a couple of free throws by Jim Gregory.

East Carolina couldn't take the lead however, and fell behind again, trailing 44-39 at the half. In the second half, Carolina went out by 11, and held off repeated attempts by the Bucs to rally.

Gregory led the Bucs with 19 points, while Ken Hartzler had 15, Bob McKillop had 14, Mike Dunn had 12 and Tyrone Wycne had 11.

For Carolina, Lee Dedmon had 23, Dave Chadwick had 22, Don Eggleston had 18, Dale Gipple had 13 and Richard Tuttle had 12.

Devils, Rams In E. Plains Tourney

LAGRANGE — The Eastern Plains tournament got underway last night with two games in the boys division. Two games will be played nightly until the boys and girls champions are crowned on Saturday.

Last night Northern Nash and North Lenoir advanced with wins over New Hope and Four Oaks.

Tonight's games put the Four Oaks and Farmville girls at 7 p.m. with the Greene Central and Farmville boys playing at 8:30 p.m.

Wednesday, New Hope and Aycock girls meet at 7 p.m. with the Hobbton and Aycock boys meeting at 8:30 p.m.

Semi-finals will be held on Thursday and Friday, with the finals set for Saturday.

Boys teams from Northern Nash, North Lenoir, Aycock and Greene Central are slated for next week's District Tournament, unless one of the other teams cracks into this week's tourney finals.

Eppes Enters Tourney Play

Eppes High School will begin play in the 4-A Eastern Conference playoffs to be held at various schools in the area, on Wednesday.

The Bulldogs, who finished by winning five of their last six games for a 9-7 overall record, are 3-5 in the conference.

They will meet Elizabeth City tomorrow at 7:45 in the Eppes gym. The winner will then continue in the tournament.

On Thursday, the Eppes-Elizabeth City winner will meet Kinston Adkin, in Kinston, at 7:30 p.m. The winner of that game advances to the district finals, to be played Saturday night, at a site to be determined.

Meanwhile, Rocky Mount's B. T. Washington will meet Wilson Darden in Wilson tonight to determine the other finalist berth. That game is slated for 7:30 p.m.

Eppes was led this season by Thomas Perkins, who averaged 15.7 points per game and 15 rebounds per contest.

Area Teams Are Entering Playoffs

Several Pitt County members of the North Carolina High School Athletic Conference will participate in district tournaments this week, beginning tonight.

Tonight, South Ayden High School will meet Hargrove of Faison at Woodington High School, getting underway at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday night, other area schools join in a tournament at H. B. Sugg. In the 2-A bracket, Whitfield will meet O. A. Peay at 5 p.m. while Sugg takes on P. S. Jones at 7:30 p.m. and Robinson meets Bethel Union at 9 p.m. The latter two games are 3-A division.

Winners will advance each night.

The tournament at Woodington continues Wednesday and Friday nights, while the tournament at Sugg, which starts Wednesday at 5 p.m., continues each night through Saturday.

Martin Loop Tourney Play

WILLIAMSTON — The Martin County tournament will open Thursday night at Williamston High School. At stake is the district tournament berth for the conference.

Thursday night, the Robersonville girls meet Jamesville at 7 p.m. with the Robersonville boys taking on Oak City at 8:30 p.m.

Friday at 7 p.m., the Oak City and Bear Grass girls meet, with the Jamesville boys and Bear Grass clashing at 8:30 p.m.

The boys winner will advance into the district tournament set for Greenville on March 6-9.

Again Will Try North Pole Trek

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Five Americans and one Canadian will make another attempt to travel overland to the North Pole.

If they succeed they will be the first men to have reached the Pole by surface since Commodore Robert E. Perry made it in 1909.

This will be the second try for the group led by Ralph Plaisted, 40, a St. Paul, Minn., insurance salesman. They were forced to turn back in May 1967 370 miles from the Pole.

Plaisted's party will fly Wednesday from Minneapolis to northern Canada. They expected to start over the ice cap March 1, from their base camp at Ward Hunt Island.

Waging War On Gull Pollution

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Oceanside Boothbay Harbor has declared war on seagulls polluting the town's water supply.

Two black huts similar to those used for fishing have been placed on ice-covered Adams Pond, where the town gets its water. A man inside moves the shanty toward a roosting flock of gulls and fires a shotgun through an opening. One blast and the flock flies off—and usually doesn't return until the next day.

The Texas Aggies attempted 42 passes in 1942 when they bowed to Alabama in the Cotton Bowl game. The Tide made seven interceptions.

Few Changes In AP Poll

The Houston Cougars, still a solid leader in The Associated Press' major-college basketball poll, should have no trouble extending their unbeaten streak this week.

The Cougars, 23-0, take on two small-college teams. They meet the University of Texas at Arlington on Thursday and Valparaiso Saturday. Texas at Arlington has won only three of 21 games while Valparaiso has a 10-11 record.

Duke Gets Challenge From Clemson After Climbing To Eighth In Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three weeks ago Duke's basketball team cracked the Associated Press weekly top 10 college basketball list for the first time this season.

That same night the Blue Devils lost at South Carolina and promptly dropped out of the rankings.

Last week they climbed back into 10th place. Tonight they move against Clemson as the No. 8 team, riding a six-game winning streak, sporting a 16-3 record and resting in second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference at 7-2.

The game is on the Clemson floor.

Since that loss at South Carolina Duke has been trampling people. Only Notre Dame, a six-point loser made it close. Wake Forest was bombed by 40 points and Temple by 35 in Duke's last two outings.

Mike Lewis, Duke's 6-foot-7 senior center who has heeded Bunas' admonition to shoot oftener, has shot his way to the ACC scoring lead with a 24.3 average. He scored 18 against Temple last Saturday night, the first time in eight games he failed to notch 20 or more. But he grabbed 22 rebounds to hold the conference lead with 16 a game.

All of which has helped Duke compile an 8.8 scoring average, best in the league.

But Clemson learned in their first meeting early this season that Lewis isn't the only Duke weapon. Dave Golden led the Blue Devils with 26 points in a 101-79 rout of the Tigers.

Clemson, 3-9 in the ACC and 4-15 for the entire season, lost successive games to North Carolina and N. C. State at Charlotte over the weekend, but the Tigers weren't beaten until the dying seconds against N. C. State.

Tiger coach Bobby Roberts says, "This team refuses to believe it is as bad as everybody says. We just may upset somebody at Charlotte March 7-9 is the No. 1 goal of all eight teams. "Don't be surprised at anything that happens then," Roberts advises.

South Carolina, dropped to fourth place by losses to N. C. State and North Carolina over the weekend, returns to competition tonight at Furman in the only other game involving the ACC.

Furman has completed its Southern Conference season and is marking time until the Southern tournament opens next week, also in Charlotte.

South Carolina mauled Furman 108-55 early in the season and takes an 11-5 record into the game against Furman's 10-12.

Only one game was played in the ACC Monday night and for Wake Forest it was the same old story. Virginia walloped the Deacons 100-87, handing them their 10th loss in a row and 12th straight on the road.

The last game Wake Forest won was from Virginia 97-90 on Jan. 8.

The Deacons were pushed deeper into the cellar with a 2-10 record and their 18th loss in 22 games as Virginia took sole possession of fifth place

Hostess Chosen For Swim Meet

Linda Davis, an East Carolina University junior, was chosen last night to be hostess for the national AAU Men's Indoor Swimming and Diving Championship to be held at the Minges natatorium April 3-6 and 11-13.

Miss Davis was chosen from a field of 17 by a committee of seven persons composed of the swimming and diving captains and the coaching staff.

An Education major from Sanford, Miss Davis was president of her freshman dorm and a major. She is a member of the Women's Judiciary, Dean's Advisory Council and Kappa Delta sorority.

Runnerup in the competition was Nancy New, who was selected homecoming queen during the 1967 football season. Miss New a native of Alexandria, Va., is Phi Alpha Sigma sweetheart and a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. A sophomore art major, she is copy editor of the Buccaneer.

Industrial Nearing End

Union Carbide and Collina & Aikman grabbed off victories as the final week of play in the Industrial League opens last night.

Union Carbide downed champion Greenville Parts & Metals 64-53. In the first half, Union Carbide edged out into a 35-33 lead and then outscored P & M, 29-20, in the second half for the win.

Talmadge Adams led Union Carbide with 19 points, while Richard Hardee had 12 and Herbert Adams had 11. For P & M, Preston Mills had 22 and H. W. Mills had 16.

In the second game, Collins & Aikman rolled to a 59-34 win over Carolina Tel. C & A built up a 26-15 lead at the half, and outscored Carolina Tel, 33-19, in the final half, to win easily.

Nelson Tugwell led C & A with 23 points, while Bill Pilgreens had 12, and Whitaker added 12 more.

With one game left to be played before the tournament, P & M is 12-2, Union Carbide, 9-5; C & A, 7-7 and Carolina Tel, 0-14.

Last year nearly 50,000 thoroughbred flat races were run in America. England had 3,584 flat races. France had 3,386, Italy 1,384 and Ireland 611.

District Laymen Rally In Kinston

BISHOP PAUL N. GARBER

RICHARD D. BRUNSON

KINSTON — Over 500 laymen from the 69 Methodist churches of the Greenville District are expected at Queen Street Methodist Church here Wednesday night for a rally.

Bishop Walter C. Gum of Richmond, Va., will be the featured speaker on the evening's program which begins at 6 p.m. with dinner. Bishop Paul Neff Garber, retiring episcopal head of the Methodist Church in eastern North Carolina, and Richard D. Brunson, an ECU pre-ministerial student will also share in the evening's program.

Dave Speir, Greenville District lay leader from Bethel, and Roy L. Turnage of Ayden, the conference lay leader, will be in charge of the rally program. The Rev. Willis R. Stevens, district superintendent, will also appear on the evening program and introduce Bishop Garber.

Bishop Gum was elected a Methodist Bishop in 1960 and served in Kentucky until 1964. He is widely known throughout the church nationally and has been particularly active in the Mission Program of the Methodist Church. He was one of the founders of Alaska Methodist University in Anchorage.

Brunson is a member of the Saint James Methodist Church in Greenville where he works as a student minister in training. He has been awarded the Greenville District Lay Scholarship and will give his Christian testimony at the rally. A native of Charlotte, he is the grandson of the late Rev. William Brunson who was pastor of the Ayden Christian Church for 27 years.

Music for the rally will be furnished by the Glee Club of Louisburg College under the direction of Miss Sarah Foster.

Dinner And Dance Held At Ayden Golf, Country Club

AYDEN — Over 80 members and guests attended a steak dinner at the Ayden Golf and Country Club Saturday night. A dance with music provided by Clay Stroud, followed the dinner.

A Sunday buffet will be served at the Club Sunday, beginning at 6 p.m.

In addition to meals, future events planned for the Club are bridge and card nights, a square dance, and a teenage dance for members and guests.

K. G. Jordan, president of the club, said a Ladies Bridge Luncheon is scheduled for Wednesday, March 13. Jordan said the club ballroom and kitchen is available for private parties to members for a nominal fee.

Jordan said 20 new members have joined the club since its membership drive which began Feb. 1. He said the goal is 50 members before the drive ends on April 30. During this time, new members may join without the regular $50 initiation fee by purchasing a $150 membership certificate. Dues are $12.50 per month.

The club facilities include an 18-hole golf course, swimming pool, and a 6,000 square-foot clubhouse. Jordan said the clubhouse contains a modern pro shop with an excellent selection of golf equipment and apparel, clubroom and lounge, locker rooms, ballroom, and kitchen.

Clarence Alexander has been pro at the club for two years.

Pilot Club Will Aid Heart Fund

The Greenville Pilot Club members will serve as area captains for the 1968 Heart Sunday Campaign for the Greenville area, February 28.

They will have approximately 300 volunteer workers calling upon local citizens to help speed their campaign for funds to be used in research, education and community heart programs.

The Pilot Club has issued an appeal for Heart Fund volunteers, each of which will be asked to call on neighbors to distribute literature and to receive Heart Fund contributions. Those persons who would like to volunteer their service for one or two hours, Sunday afternoon, February 25, are asked to telephone Miss Elizabeth Quinerly, PL 2-3424 or any member of the Pilot Club.

Mrs. Peggy Corbett, executive secretary of the local branch of the Heart Association, stated that the month-long Heart Fund campaign will reach its climax on February 25, the day designated to be Heart Sunday.

Firemen Respond To False Alarm

Greenville firemen were called to the intersection of 12th and Cotanche Streets yesterday about 5:45 p.m. when box 223 at that intersection was turned in.

Responding fire officers said the alarm was false.

By HARRY KELLY
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Rebellious Democrats backing Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy for president are working to deal President Johnson an embarrassing political defeat on Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's home ground two weeks from today. Administration loyalists frankly admit they're worried.

"The doves can conceivably take Minneapolis," said Richard Moe, state finance director of the Democratic Farmer Labor party. "It will be fairly close either way."

The vice president, said a pro-Humphrey leader, is "definitely concerned for he considers Minneapolis to be his base." Humphrey began his political career as mayor of this city. McCarthy calls neighboring St. Paul home.

The confrontation will come March 5 at party precinct caucuses—one week before McCarthy and the Johnson-Humphrey forces clash in the New Hampshire preferential primary.

In Minnesota, the precinct caucuses are the grass-roots starting point for selection of national convention delegates. From the precincts, delegates are sent to ward conventions, which choose delegates to the district and state conventions, which in turn name the national delegates.

Because precinct caucuses are open to anyone who voted Democratic in the last election, or promises to do so in the next, party officials fear the meetings will be packed with voters attracted by McCarthy's opposition to the Vietnam war.

Many of these are likely to be college-age voters and that further complicates the problem. One party official pointed out that Humphrey had been unable to devote much attention to the party since he became vice president.

"There are a lot of young people who have come into the party who don't even know Hubert Humphrey," he said.

National Committeewoman

Geri Joseph predicted in an interview that McCarthy will get no more than 5 of the state's 62 delegates. John Wright, associate professor of the University of Minnesota and vice chairman of the Minnesota Concerned Democrats, has predicted that "We can get 32 votes for Gene McCarthy for president" — in other words, a majority of the delegation. Other observers think McCarthy could wind up with as many as 8 to 10.

Despite the stakes, both sides appear to be trying to campaign on what was described as a "gentlemanly level." They want to avoid a rending clash like the battle two years ago over picking the party's gubernatorial nominee. That intraparty feud is blamed for the Republicans capturing the state house in 1966.

But Mrs. Joseph said the McCarthy-Humphrey contest can't help but get rougher.

"A fight like this always gets nastier and nastier," she said.

The DFL's ruling body, the State Central Committee, has given a strong endorsement to Johnson and Humphrey, but a separate Johnson-Humphrey campaign organization has been set up under the direction of State Sen. Wendell R. Anderson.

Anderson says the reason for the soft campaign is this: "When Sen. McCarthy runs for re-election in 1970 we will support him. We feel in November he will support the Johnson-Humphrey ticket. We want to conduct ourselves so this will happen."

As evidence of some of the tension, however, Rep. Donald Fraser, Democratic congressman from Minneapolis, said he had turned down an invitation from Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., to serve on the state Johnson-Humphrey committee.

Fraser said he wasn't endorsing McCarthy, and he still supported the administration because of its domestic policies, but added:

"I felt as long as I've been such an outspoken critic of the administration's position on Vietnam war policies, it wouldn't appear proper to serve in a leadership role in Minnesota."

In another development, the DFL's No. 3 man, First Vice Chairman Forrest Harris, endorsed McCarthy over the weekend. Harris, a University of Minnesota professor, said in an interview he had long opposed the war but had held off on an open break because of the damaging party split in 1966.

Explaining his change of heart, Harris said, "as the war has intensified... our commitment to the war at home has diminished proportionately... I think the real danger to our democracy lies in the streets of our big cities at home rather than in Saigon."

Party leaders convinced former Alderman Richard Franson of Minneapolis to delay a resolution seeking to censure Mc-

Carthy for his "unjustifiable attacks on President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey's policy on Vietnam."

Franson said DFL leaders "feel they can bring McCarthy group back into the fold after the primaries. I don't think so. I don't think the intellectuals of the Democratic party will come back."

John Connolly, the St. Paul attorney who manages the McCarthy for President operation in Minnesota, said "there are people who are active in the party who were never active before... a lot of young people, academic types and clergy, a lot of clergy."

Connolly said that the opposition, the Humphrey forces, had become more active in the last couple of weeks, and that the regular DFL organization is "having all the precinct chairmen in St. Paul attend a school to teach them how to run a caucus. That's never been done before."

Three Tar Heels Killed In Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—A casualty list of 112 men killed in action in the Vietnam war includes three North Carolinians.

They were identified as Army Spec. 4 John C. Price of Fayetteville; Marine Pfc. Jimmy L. Siler of Siler City; Marine Pfc. Willard G. Wright of Leaksville.

Changed from missing to dead of hostile cause was Army Pfc. Elvester Hester Jr. of Greensboro.

Two Die In Crash Of Car And Train

LEXINGTON, N. C. (AP)—A Lexington woman and her daughter-in-law were killed and three children critically injured when their car collided with a Southern Railway freight train at a crossing in Lexington Monday.

The victims were Mrs. Annie Janice Bailey Lanier, 50, who was driving the car, and 19-year-old Mrs. Ada Bell Lanier. The older women's children, 10-year-old Kathy and 7-year-old Tony, and Lynn, 3-year-old daughter of the younger woman, were injured.

Rules Murder, Suicide In Deaths

WINGATE, N. C. (AP)—Coroner Roy Funderburk has ruled apparent murder-suicide in the deaths of a student couple whose bodies were found in a small foreign car near Wingate Monday.

The coroner said that Stephen Richardson, 19, of Rt. 7, Winston-Salem, a High Point College student, apparently shot his 19-year-old wife, Brenda Lee Richardson, then shot himself with a pistol. The young woman was a student at Wingate College.

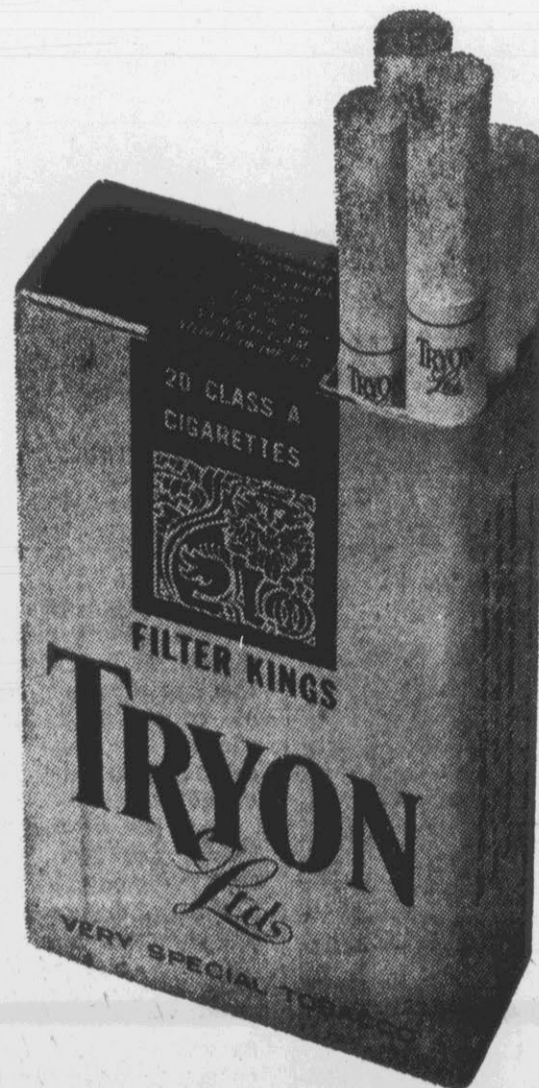

The couple had been married 19 days.

No inquest is planned. The coroner said the deaths occurred about midnight Sunday.

There are more than 50 species of oak trees in Texas.

Three reasons why TRYONS cost 5¢ more

1. NATURALLY MILD TOBACCO

Only the first three primings — the mildest and most expensive tobacco — are used in TRYONS. These mild leaves give TRYONS their natural tobacco taste.

2. LOW IN 'TAR' AND NICOTINE

TRYONS' naturally mild tobacco and unusually effective filter cost more, but they deliver less 'tar' and nicotine than most cigarettes: 11.30 mg. 'tar' and 0.90 mg. nicotine.

3. INSECTICIDE-FREE TOBACCO

The tobacco of TRYONS is grown virtually insecticide-free. Not much tobacco is grown this way; it commands a premium price.

TRYON is the only cigarette made with very special tobacco; its price reflects its value. Pick up a carton and discover the satisfaction of smoking very special tobacco. You'll never switch again. TRYON... the cigarette you can really enjoy!

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were steady. Tops of 18.50-19.25 Wilson; 18.50-19.00 Rocky Mount; 18.25-18.75 Hickory; 17.75-18.75 Bethel; 19.25 Salisbury; 19.00 Greensboro, Selma; 18.25 Sher City, Denton.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was firm. Price of live poultry at the farms was 14½ cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued a steadily cautious performance early this afternoon with prices rising in moderate trading.

Gains outnumbered losses at a ratio of about 7 to 4. The Dow Jones industrial average widened its gain at noon to 4.33 at 842.98.

Some of the more active issues rose 3 points or so and gains were somewhat larger among less active but more highly priced issues.

Advances of fractions to about a point peppered the list of run-off stocks.

Nothing much had changed in the news background.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .2 at 308.2 with industrials up 1.1, rails off .3 and utilities off .2.

Eastern Air Lines, up a fraction, was boosted to the top of the most-active list with the help of a 50,000-share block and one of 48,800. Ahead about 3 points in active trading were Dorr-Oliver, General Time, Teledyne and Control Data.

Less active, Polaroid rose about 5, IBM 4 and Du Pont 1. Xerox sluffed off more than 2 points.

Sperry Rand rose more than a point. Homestake took a loss of about 1½.

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange in slightly more active trading.

Mathematician To Lecture Here On Wednesday

The associate editor of Mathematics Magazine will visit East Carolina University Wednesday, Feb. 21, as part of a nation-wide lectureship program.

Prof. Hans Sagan of N. C. State University will discuss "Lebesgue Integration — An Emotional Approach" at 4 p.m. in Room 132 of New Austin Building.

His visit to the campus is sponsored by the ECU Department of Mathematics in cooperation with the Mathematical Association of America and the National Science Foundation. It is open to the public without charge.

Students Design Power Display

Thirty sixth-grade science students at Elmhurst School, concluding a study of power, have designed a display to illustrate items covered in their class.

The studies included the development of power from man-power through solar energy.

The various types of power are illustrated on the display through drawings and diagrams and a windmill.

The central feature of the six by seven-foot display is the word "power" cut into plywood and illuminated with a battery-operated light.

Mrs. Rebecca J. Groome is the class instructor.

Art Workshop For Teachers

Teachers from Pitt County School will attend an Art Workshop on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Winterville High School. It was announced by W. J. Edwards, assistant superintendent of Pitt County Schools.

Mrs. Jane Callaway, who holds a Master's degree from Columbia University, will conduct the workshop, which is sponsored by a manufacturer of crayons and other school art supplies.

The teachers will spend 15 hours of their own time learning about modern creative art education and some of its materials and tools.

The techniques taught by Mrs. Callaway will include: uses of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalks and modeling clay. Teachers will work with paper, paste and other materials.

School officials responsible for the workshop arrangements, in addition to Edwards, include Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, director of Instruction for Pitt County Schools.

Roberson Sees Area Market Future Good

Eastern North Carolina is moving into a cycle of economic development through the expansion of urban areas at a rapid rate, declared a North Carolina radio-television executive in an address to the Rotary Club Monday evening.

W. R. Roberson Jr., president and general manager of the WITN radio and television station operations, discussed the growth of his own station's operations and from his association with other marketing specialists who are in constant touch with this area gave a prediction of "better things to come" for the Washington-Greenville market.

The radio-television executive noted that his television operations, which began in the early fifties, now involve a staff of 55-60 full-time and near 12 part-time employees, with a powerful transmitter near Grifton in Pitt County to serve an expanding population.

Roberson noted that the Washington-Greenville market ranks 77th in the 215 television audiences served across the nation. He took Rotarians "behind the screen" to describe programming operations through affiliation with National Broadcasting Company and locally originated and produced news and feature productions.

Roberson observed that CATV services have something to offer in fringe areas, while in an area, such as Greenville or Washington or New Bern, three television stations are providing, at no cost to the television viewer, quality programs directly from the transmitter. In response to a question from the audience, Roberson said the FCC regulations permit six minutes of commercial time during each hour of a telecast program.

Eastern North Carolina is ready to explode with industrial and commercial development, the speaker quoted a top insurance executive as predicting, as he compared what is happening in this area now with much of what California was doing around 25 years ago.

Roberson said that in the Board Extends A 'Thank You' To Employees

FOUNTAIN — The Fountain board of commissioner approved a resolution last week thanking town employees for their "work and devotion to duty" during and after the January 10 ice storm which struck the area.

Mayor Carter Smith said utilities superintendent Floyd Lucas and his four-man crew worked day and night for almost an entire week to restore and maintain service.

Lucas expressed his appreciation "to the many people who brought coffee and assisted" his men in the long hours they spent repairing lines and clearing the "tons of tree limbs which fell onto the streets and power lines."

Gen. Pershing's Grandson Killed

NEW YORK (AP) — Army Lt. Richard W. Pershing, 24-year-old grandson of Gen. of the Armies John J. Pershing, has been killed in action in Vietnam.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Warren Pershing, reported the death Monday.

Pershing died Feb. 17 from what the telegram of notification described as "wounds received on a combat operation when he came under hostile small-arms and rocket attack while searching for remains of a missing member of his unit."

Laotian Army Outpost Taken

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Communist troops have overrun a Laotian Army outpost 50 miles northeast of Vientiane, the government said.

A government spokesman said about three battalions of Communist troops took the government outpost, which was about 12 miles from the town of Paksane, on the Mekong River. The position fell early Sunday morning after an all-night battle.

The spokesman did not give the size of the government force or the number of casualties.

The announcement came just as the International Control Commission for Laos was preparing to leave Wednesday for the southern town of Saravane, where the government claims a large force of North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao are preparing a major attack.

It was still doubtful today if the Polish commissioner would accompany the commission members from Canada and India even though the Laotian premier Prince Souvanna Phouma, asked the ICC to investigate the "grave" situation in Saravane.

Missing Man Is Found Dead

AHOSKIE, N. C. (AP)—Tenant farmer Ralph Baughman was found dead Monday, a day before he was to have gone on trial on a murder charge.

Baughman, 52, who reportedly suffered from a heart condition, had been missing since he went on a hunting trip Saturday morning.

The barking of his dog attracted National Guardsmen, who were aiding in the search. He lived in the general area, between Rich Square and Aulander in northeastern North Carolina.

FINANCE COMPANY Talking Merger

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Officials of American Credit Corp., the nation's 16th largest finance company, say talks are in progress looking toward acquisition of the company by Teledyne, Inc., of Hawthorne, Calif.

Teledyne is a diversified organization heavily involved in electronics. It recently announced it was buying Edgcombe Steel Corp.

LITTLE RIVER, S. C. (AP)—Odrick Vaught, an ex-slave who claimed to be 123 years old, died in a hospital at nearby Myrtle Beach during the weekend.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) — William S. Gaud, head of the Agency for International Development, has one word for charges that AID tried to cover up all that bad publicity its been getting: "Rubbish."

Gaud called in 800 of his top officials for a pep talk Monday and told them not to be deterred by what he called "the mistakes, the snafus, the boners" that have made headlines the past two weeks.

"Some days you can't make a nickel," the 60-year-old AID administrator began. "And we've had several of those lately."

But Gaud said it was AID that first discovered the cases. He read off the details:

—That an AID official in Washington has been suspended because "it appeared he had been padding his expense account."

—That four AID officials had resigned after an Aid investigation "raised serious questions" about their conduct in Belgium.

—That numerous cases of alleged AID mismanagement of funds and material had been reported to Congress by the State Department's inspector general.

—That AID is withholding $250,000 from a Belgian contractor suspected of overcharging AID.

"Charges that these incidents reflect on the integrity of this agency are nonsense," Gaud said. "It is outrageous to suggest that they are representative of this agency."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first photographs of a spacecraft orbiting the moon have been snapped by a 61-inch telescope near Tucson, Ariz., says the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

NASA says the telescope at the University of Arizona's planetary laboratory photographed Lunar Orbiter 5 in orbit Jan. 21, ten days before the space agency's scientists sent it crashing into the moon's surface.

Dr. Gerard Kuiper, director of the laboratory, said the spacecraft resembles a star in the photographs. He said the refrigerator-sized space craft is too small to be seen with the naked eye.

Capital Footnotes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The American Association of School Administrators is moving to separate itself from the National Education Association which strongly backs the statewide teacher strike in Florida.

The Washington-based AASA has prepared a resolution for its annual convention in Atlantic City, N.J., requesting immediate revision of its relationship with NEA.

President Johnson has accepted the resignation of Everett Hutchison as undersecretary of transportation. The White House says Hutchison plans to reenter law practice in Washington.

Samuel L. King of Los Angeles—who as a lieutenant colonel in 1960 was ceremonies officer of the military district of Washington—has been appointed the State Department's deputy chief of protocol.
