

City School Board Adopts Plans Through 1972

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer The Greenville Board of Education last night approved a revised long range building plan, through the target year 1972, that if carried out would total 12 projects costing an estimated $6,477,000.

and an addition to the maintenance facility and cafeteria warehouse ($27,000) which were occupied for the first time at the beginning of the present school year.

including site costs—1969; an elementary school in North-east Greenville ($650,000—1969); remodeling and converting Third Street School into a junior high school ($500,000—1970); remodeling and adding to Rose High School to serve as a single senior high school ($600,000—1970); conversion of C. M. Eppes to an elementary school ($400,000—1970); an additional elementary school in South Greenville ($600,000—1971); a new elementary school north of the Tar River ($550,000—1972); and a new administration building ($200,000—1972).

The board theorized an estimated $2,500,000 in funds will be needed to fulfill the total program, over and above what monies are presently available or foreseeable.

The board in the past held an option on the entire 20-acre site but decided to purchase only 12 acres.

Classes being offered in the joint venture sponsored by the city school board and Pitt Technical Institute include modern math for parents, speed reading, knitting, art, interior decorating, ornamental horticulture, basic education, high school preparation, home sewing, adult driver training, public speaking, income tax, blueprint reading and cabinet making.

The Academic Center for Latin American Studies held last year for the first time here, according to the officials, has been approved for a second year.

program, which will run for four hours each Saturday. The classes will be at Rose and Eppes High Schools and at the junior high school.

Pros, Cons Of Leaf Marketing Controls Heard

By SONNY McLAHORNS Reflector Staff Writer The USDA-sponsored tobacco hearing continued today in an uneventful session. Estimated attendance dropped from 600 at yesterday's session to approximately 75.

fact that the committee is recognized by the industry in general.

John Eubanks of Hassell in Martin County testified at the hearing this morning. Eubanks, a tobacco grower, said the farmer was "at a crossroads and did not know which way to turn."

In yesterday's testimony, Henry Ferrell of Knightdale attacked state Farm Bureau leaders on the question of the new marketing order, saying that the leaders had not represented a fair consensus of the total membership in their views.

James R. Oliver, a Robeson County farmer, testified that farmers "paid for blocked conditions in depressed prices."

Harry B. Caldwell, executive vice president of the Farmers Cooperative Council of North Carolina, offered his support to the referendum proposal, explaining that the present marketing committee does not have the authority to regulate conditions.

Caldwell summarized his support of the marketing proposal when he said, "It will enable the growers to share equitably in their access to the market."

A Wilson farmer, J. Clifton Tomlinson, explained his feelings by saying, "All segments of the tobacco industry, except farmers are organized and equipped to deal businesslike with problems faced by the industry."

In offering the proposal Pierce explained that "the forces at play today in the marketing place are not conducive to the interest of the tobacco grower," adding that the present committee had no "statutory power."

Another Farmville grower, W. A. Allen, appeared this morning to oppose the marketing plan discussed at the hearing. Allen took exception to increased federal control, saying that the government "puts the farmer in a strait jacket."

Allen, a member of the 36-man committee, said that the farmer got "fair treatment from the warehouseman with whom he had dealt and had a good record."

The Farmville grower said he favored local people continuing to operate the tobacco marketing program.

He said the reasons why the present committee would function more effectively if given another chance next year are: (1) the 1968 crop will be smaller, (2) the probability that loose leaf will be supported during the entire season, and (3) the fact that the committee is recognized by the industry in general.

Woman Says She Was Hit, Robbed

A 21-year-old Durham woman, selling encyclopedias door-to-door reported she was attacked by a Negro man about 9:30 p.m. yesterday near the intersection of Summit and A Streets.

The woman was identified as Jane Clinton Findley, a native of Columbus, Ohio, now living in Durham.

Chief H. F. Lawson said Greenville police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are investigating the incident.

Officers quoted Miss Findley as saying she and four other employees of the Crowell - Collier Co. of Durham arrived in town late yesterday and started soliciting about 5:30 p.m.

She had made about 20 house calls, detectives reported when the attack occurred.

Investigators quoted the woman as saying she was crossing a yard at the intersection when she was struck on the rear of the head. She turned and saw the man she described as a large Negro, between 20 and 35 years of age and wearing a light colored coat.

She said the Negro tripped her and she fell to the ground. Her attacker tore an 18-inch rip in her dress, police noted, then grabbed a black brief case Miss Findley was carrying and fled.

Mardi Gras Is Nearing Climax

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans is building up to the wildest, zaniest celebration in America tonight.

Before Mardi Gras ends at midnight with the arrival of Lent, thousands will pour into the streets that appear choked with psychedelic phantasmagoria. On every side appear weird sights, strange costumes and horrendous masks.

Early in the day, everybody heads for Canal Street—on foot or by trolley and bus—where the big parades pass and Rex, the Carnival king, stops his flou to swap champagne toasts with his queen in a temporary grandstand.

Ernest Caliste Villere, a stockbroker and civic leader, is the 1968 Rex. He plans to use French, at least part of the time, for his toasts to his queen—21-year-old Delia Lane Hardie, a debutante and college junior—and to Mayor Victor Schiro at historic Gallier Hall.

The street rumpus goes on all day, much of it behind masks because a city ordinance permits masking only until sundown. And it continues unabated after dark, broken only by the night parade of Comus, oldest of the carnival deities.

Two board members vigorously opposed the move, terming it a "slap" at the State Department of Public Welfare, which already makes periodic checks of welfare rolls.

In other action, the board made birth control information mandatory for women who receive aid to families with dependent children, and clarified its regulations to prevent fatherless children from being removed from the welfare rolls when their mother is involved in an extramarital relationship.

New Red Buildup On Cambodian Border Communist Tanks Said Reported Only 50 Miles Northwest Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Communist tanks were reported Monday night only 50 miles northwest of Saigon in their deepest penetration of South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese military headquarters said a force of civilian irregulars and their U.S. Special Forces advisers came on a column of three tanks and a half-tracked armored personnel carrier near the Cambodian border.

The U.S. Command identified the vehicles only as "armored vehicles of an unspecified type" accompanied by an estimated battalion—about 400 men—of enemy troops.

The appearance of Communist armored forces in the area and so far south raised the possibility of a menacing new enemy buildup along the Cambodian border. Previously the presence of enemy tanks has been confirmed only in the northwest corner of the country, near the U.S. Marine combat base at Khe Sanh.

The U.S. Command said the allied force blew up one of the vehicles with antitank rockets and the explosion killed 30 enemy soldiers.

"To blow up that hard, it had to have a lot of ammunition in it," one U.S. officer said.

Some South Vietnamese sources said there were reports the tanks were Russian T34s, a World War II weapon.

The U.S. Command said that after nearly two hours of fighting, the vehicles that were still mobile and the remainder of the enemy force broke contact and fled to the west, presumably to Cambodia. But a U.S. spokesman said the enemy later launched a counterattack and the force of about 100 South Vietnamese and Americans then withdrew.

Neither the South Vietnamese nor American spokesmen had any reports of the armored vehicles opening fire. The U.S. Command said there were no American casualties and South Vietnamese casualties were "light." South Vietnamese headquarters said the government speculation about a new Communist buildup along the Cambodian border was strengthened

McCarthy Sees Voter Chance To Set New Course

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy says his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination will give voters a chance to revise U.S. foreign policy for a generation.

McCarthy told a Newton, Mass., crowd his candidacy offers them a "three part referendum."

They can register their views on Vietnam, he said, on what priorities the United States should establish and on what its role should be for the rest of the century.

"I think the people are prepared to participate in this kind of referendum," he said. "This year's presidential election could establish some foreign policies for a generation."

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, meanwhile, said he'd handle the recent New York City garbage strike exactly the same if he had it to do over again.

"If it was the end of my political career," he said, "I would have acted to prevent what might have become one of the great disasters of American history."

Rockefeller is considered a potential GOP presidential candidate despite his denials. Announced candidates Richard M. Nixon and George Romney both have criticized his refusal to send in national guardsmen during the strike to clear New York City's garbage-filled streets.

McCarthy also said in Massachusetts Monday that settlement of the Vietnam war could be negotiated by setting up a coalition government including the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

If the present South Vietnamese government objected, Rockefeller said he would support a draft of New York Gov. Rockefeller as the GOP presidential candidate. "I'd be for it, I'd support it," he said. But the mayor said of himself: "I'm not draftable. I'd close the door."

McCarthy said, the United States should propose reduction of its military support.

He said the United States has committed itself against a weak nation that "has done us no harm" and should not be afraid to negotiate a settlement.

In other political developments, Prof. Carl A. Auerbach said he has resigned from the American Society for Democratic Action.

He helped found in protest to endorsement of McCarthy's candidacy by ADA's executive board. Auerbach, a law professor at the University of Minnesota, said only President Johnson can end the Vietnam war speedily and said the endorsement of McCarthy was poorly timed.

Two Negro candidates became Alabama delegates to the Democratic National Convention Monday for the first time in the states history when the deadline passed and neither had opposition, said state party chairman Robert Vance.

Vance said the delegates are Joe Reed of Montgomery and Arthur Shores of Birmingham.

—New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay said he would support a draft of New York Gov. Rockefeller as the GOP presidential candidate. "I'd be for it, I'd support it," he said. But the mayor said of himself: "I'm not draftable. I'd close the door."

Meet March 8 Over New Speaker Controls

RALEIGH (AP) — The executive committee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina trustees will meet March 8 to consider regulations to replace the defunct Speaker Ban Law governing visiting speakers.

The board of trustees approved a set of interim regulations Monday until the executive committee studies them and reports to the full board.

Lengthy debate marked the trustees' meeting at the capitol, which followed by one week a ruling by a three-judge federal court which declared the amended Speaker Ban Law unconstitutional.

Under the law, Communists and fifth amendment pleaders in loyalty cases were prohibited from speaking at state-supported colleges unless given permission by the school administrators.

University President William C. Friday proposed the set of interim rules in handling appearances by visiting speakers.

He told the board he did not think it would be possible to craft valid regulations "which would prohibit the appearance of a particular class of speakers such as those deemed highly unpopular or controversial."

Friday said a 1941 state law makes it illegal to use any building or institution supported wholly or in part by state funds to advocate overthrow of the government by force and violence.

"The university has and will continue faithfully to enforce this statute," he declared.

The six regulations Friday proposed were:

(1) Express effort shall be made to present all sides of controversial issues in a balanced program of public addresses.

(2) When the chancellor deems it appropriate, he may require that the forum be presided over by a senior faculty member.

(3) All forums shall be open to the public.

(4) The right to question or challenge a point of view and to present the opposing point of view shall be assured.

(5) Only recognized student, faculty and university organizations may use campus facilities for the presentation of speakers.

(6) Non-university operations authorized through official channels to meet on the campus shall be routinely informed that the use of facilities must conform to state laws.

During the debate, the trustees shelved a move by State Sen. Thomas J. White, D-Leonoir, a trustee, to withhold adoption of the regulations and send the entire matter to the executive committee for study.

Extra Welfare Funds Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — Mecklenburg County can proceed with plans to seek $300,000 in federal funds to extend welfare benefits to non-welfare low income families.

The State Board of Public Welfare Monday authorized the county to go ahead with plans for the experimental program.

The board also authorized three other counties — Caswell, Wilson and Bertie—to seek federal funds for programs.

The Mecklenburg program would run for three years, the board was told. The project would determine whether welfare services and payments up to $200 a month would bring the low income families up to a level where they would be more self-sufficient and out of danger of becoming welfare recipients.

A joint program between Caswell County and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was authorized to set up a comprehensive medical program in the county. It would make health care service available to low income families.

Also approved were alcoholic rehabilitation projects for Wilson and Bertie counties.

Raleigh Prison Superintendent Has Resigned

RALEIGH (AP) — The superintendent of a Raleigh prison unit has resigned and four of its 11 employees have been reassigned to other duties following an investigation.

State Commissioner of Correction Lee Bounds said Monday the reassignments and resignation were prompted by "inadequate surveillance" of the employees which enabled inmates to drink liquor in their cells at night.

Bounds said John Shearon had resigned as superintendent of the Community Correctional Center, effective March 15.

The prison unit usually houses between 40 to 50 men who are permitted to take part in a "pre-release" program that enables them to hold down regular jobs during the day and return their cells at night.

Most 'Intent' On Education

RALEIGH (AP) — A committee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina says it has found that most students "refuse to be disrupted" by peaceful picketing and demonstrations.

"Most students are intent upon getting their education," the visiting committee of the university trustees said in a report filed with the board Monday on the potential problems posed by the "Student Power" movement.

The committee suggested that the university administration consider adopting "an announced policy toward anyone who disrupts the orderly activities of the university."

University President William C. Friday said, however the 1965 General Assembly had already "declared the policy of the state in reference to these activities."

The 1965 law prohibits "sitting, kneeling, lying down or inclining" so as to interfere with the normal use of state-owned buildings.

The committee, headed by Raleigh attorney W. C. Harris Jr., said: "We acknowledge that anyone does have the constitutional right to picket and to participate in peaceful demonstrations, but we declared that no one has a right to interfere with the orderly activities of the university."

Federal Judge Warlick Retiring

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Federal Judge Wilson Warlick, 75, of Newton, has announced his retirement after 19 years on the bench in U.S. District Court for Western North Carolina.

He said Monday his retirement will take effect when a successor is qualified.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg County bar has unanimously endorsed a former president, James B. McMillan, 51, of Charlotte, also a former president of the North Carolina Bar Association.

The position will be filled by the President upon the recommendation of Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr. and B. Everette Jordan.

Warlick was appointed Feb. 14, 1949, by President Harry S. Truman after 18 years as a North Carolina Superior Court judge.

He is a graduate of Catawba College and the University of North Carolina law school. McMillan is a graduate of the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and the Harvard law school.

Mississippi Electing A Congressman Today

By JAMES BONNEY
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Voters in 12 southwest Mississippi counties cast ballots to select a congressman today under the scrutiny of federal poll watchers.

The field of candidates include Charles Evers, a Negro civil rights leader, a white Republican and five white Democrats.

The U.S. Justice Department said poll watchers were "routine" in such Mississippi elections. The observers have been instructed to watch election procedures and report any irregularities.

The candidates are bidding for the seat vacated when John Bell Williams retired after 21 years to become governor.

Polls opened at 7 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. The weather was crisp and sunny with temperatures in the 60s.

There are about 195,000 registered voters in the 3rd district, including about 65,000 Negroes. Only 90,000 votes were expected to be cast, however, as little interest was generated during the month-long campaign.

If no candidate receives a majority a runoff will be held March 12 between the two high men. "The new congressmen may have to defend his seat again next June in the regular election."

Evers, 45, created only a mild ripple in normally white political circles when he announced for the post. Evers has been field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People since his brother Medgar's death in an ambush in 1963.

Evers is the third Negro of this decade to run for the job, but no Negro has held a congressional post in Mississippi since 1881 when Blanche K. Bruce left the Senate.

The southwest corner of the state is an area where Evers has concentrated his efforts to register Negro voters.

His name is well known by Negroes and whites alike as the spokesman for the Negro community. He led numerous civil rights marches and organized boycotts to force desegregation.

Republican Hagan Thompson, 40, of Jackson, is a former news director of WLBT-WJDX television and radio stations and is making his first political race.

He campaigned on a platform of opposition to domestic and Vietnam policies.

Charles H. Griffin, 41, of Ulica, served as Williams' assistant for 18 years and old voters he was familiar with legislation and could step immediately into the job.

Ellis Bodron, 44, of Nicksburg, is a state senator for 26 years, is blind. He heads the powerful Senate Finance Committee. He said he was the only candidate with legislative experience.

Joe N. Pigott, 42, of McComb, is district attorney for four of the counties in the district and said the area needed "an experienced trial lawyer to try its case in Washington."

Troy Watkins, 42, of Natchez, a two-term mayor for his hometown, carried the 3rd district by a wide margin when he ran successfully for lieutenant governor in August.

David Perkins, 43, a former Jackson chiropractor, said communism is the key issue and called for efforts to counter "an intensive drive by leftists to capture the congressional seat for a moderate."

Israelis Show Sense Of Humor In New Fashions

JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

AP Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—In dressing, it appears that women don't worry about looking funny anymore. They are sure that in somebody's critical eyes they do. They only wonder whether or not they look funny fashionably.

After all, the fashion industry around the world is just one big fashion show, and getting ready for an event is just one thing to do.

This is because men look at a woman's fashions as a never-ending game, and therefore she might as well have the fun of playing games with clothes. Maybe costumes are a way of escaping the grimaces of reality by play-acting another role.

At any rate, the Israeli fashion designers have joined in the for-laughs game, even though there was not much to laugh about in their part of the world a half-year ago. Their sense of humor exploded all over their winter collection show readied for buyers from over 20 countries.

What is your Walter Mitty dream? To be a sexy siren of the '30s? A soft-shoe tap dancer?

A pre-revolutionary Natasha? A Civil War Belle? A Bonnie and Clyde? A member of a harem? A baby doll or a grandmother? The Israeli ready-to-wear market has garments for all.

Very often the styles are so sensible and restrained that nobody would crack a single smile, if it were not for accessories. That is also true of clothes designed by very good American and French designers.

Photographers and models do their best to contribute to the humorous side of fashions, too. Italian fashion manikins used to be comedienne before the cameras. However, in recent years they have reverted to aloof disdainful poses of sophistication. Now the Israeli misses have taken up where they left off, clowning like clowns for their smile-happy, picture-snapping bosses.

The fact remains that a few inhibited people still exist, women who don't want to play games with fashion, or women who just want to play the role of a beautifully garbed, understated Roman. For all the laughter in fashion, there are styles for her, too.

The word from Israel is that there is less of the uncompromisingly straight line to dresses and skirts have more of a tendency to follow curves. Despite culottes and trousers, the emphasis is on femininity and frivolity.

Show Boss That You Have An Invisible Protector

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for telling "Mauled in Philly" to quit her job. But first she should show her boss that she has an "Invisible Protector."

The next time he tries to grab her, she should get down on her hands and knees and start to pray RIGHT OUT LOUD! "O, God, our Heavenly Father, please protect Mr. Blank from the beast that has taken possession of his soul at this moment. And provide me with strength to carry on for the sake of my precious children and my poor invalid mother who has worn herself out for me. O, Father, I need Your protection and strength NOW! Thank you, Dear Lord! Thank you!"

I can promise you that your boss will never molest you again.

EXPERIENCED IN BOULDER

DEAR ABBY: I love my wife and she loves me. No problems whatsoever. However, after 30 years of married life I still believe my wife has an attractive shape. O, she may be a little flabby in spots, and flat in others, but I'm no Tarzan-built fellow either anymore.

Dear Abby

Over the years I have bought my wife several very beautiful sheer nightgowns to wear in our privacy, but she has never worn any of them. Some have been in their original boxes for 25 years!

I don't think there's anything wrong with me, Abby, but I would like to see my little darling wearing such alluring apparel once in a while. Especially now, for it might pick up my interest a little when I need it most.

I wonder if other husbands have this problem? If so, perhaps if you were to advise me in your column, you could help us all.

THE OLD SARGE

DEAR SARGE: I can't speak for husbands, but many wives have a "save-it-for-later" complex. Simply tell your little darling that it is later than she thinks!

DEAR ABBY: "Mauled in Philly" (and all other secretaries with bosses who have fun and game, in mind) wouldn't have to worry if they followed my instructions:

Be super-efficient and all business. When the boss asks you to do something, snap to attention, say, "Yes, Sir," and do it "on the double." Never look him in the eye and don't spend one extra second near his desk. Skip the small talk, smiles and flirty glances. Give the impression of a well-oiled machine and pretty soon your boss will come to regard you as part of the office equipment. I have worked for years for a man who was notorious for chasing his girls around the desk, but he has never even tried to lay a hand on me. He never had the chance, but I know he would if he could.

I've seen these cute young office dolls make with the eyes and smiles and put on all the feminine charm they can project, then they yell when the boss makes a pass.

No boss in his right mind will try anything unless he has a little encouragement.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk peau de soie with a detachable chapel length train appliqued with alencon lace. A butterfily bow centered the waist back and front.

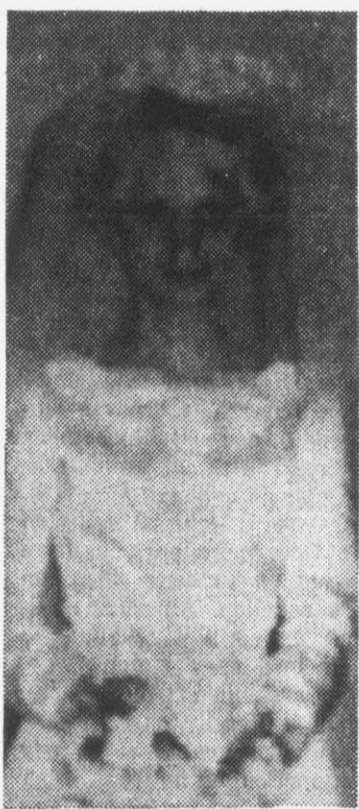

Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a lace headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and greenery tied with white satin streamers.

Beef And Biscuit Roll Accompanied By Sauces

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

When it's the day before payday, you may want to make a Beef and Biscuit Roll.

Just 3/4 pound of ground beef plus an egg and seasonings make the filling for a roll that serves four to six.

Biscuit mix adds flavor and so do the seasonings—poultry seasoning, chili sauce and frozen chopped chives. Frozen chives are great to keep on hand to add piquancy to a dish. A few tablespoons of chives go a long way. We've suggested two sauces—marinara or mushroom sauce to accompany the roll. If you follow our choice, you'll use the marinara sauce—it really does something for this main dish.

BEEF AND BISCUIT ROLL

3/4 pound ground lean chuck beef
1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons frozen chopped chives
1 egg, slightly beaten
Special Biscuit Dough (see recipe)

Marinara or Mushroom Sauce, homemade or canned

Heat a 10-inch heavy skillet; add the beef. Over medium heat cook the beef, crumbling into tiny particles with fork tines, until meat loses its red color. Drain off any fat that accumulates.

Off heat, stir in the poultry seasoning, chili sauce and chives, then the egg; cool.

On a prepared pastry cloth, knead the Special Biscuit Dough until smooth. With a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out to a 9 by 6 inch rectangle.

Spread cool meat mixture over dough, but not right up to edges. Tightly roll up, starting at the 9-inch side. Place seam side down in a greased shallow baking pan.

Bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven until browned—about 30 minutes.

Cut in crosswise slices and serve with piping hot marinara or mushroom sauce.

Makes four ample or six medium servings.

Recipe Note:

You may make the Mushroom Sauce by combining condensed cream of mushroom soup (from a 10 1/2 ounce can) with 1-3rd cup milk and 2 tablespoons frozen chopped chives; heat according to directions on can. For marinara sauce just heat with a couple of tablespoons of the chives.

SPECIAL BISCUIT DOUGH

2 cups packed biscuit mix
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2-3rds cup milk

Into a medium mixing bowl, turn the biscuit mix. Stir in the celery salt. With a pastry blender, cut in the butter until particles are fine. Gradually add the milk, stirring with a fork until a dough forms. Use as directed in recipe for Beef and Biscuit Roll.

Dr. Mitchell Gives Program

Dr. Charles Mitchell, psychiatrist at East Carolina University, was guest speaker for the Tea & Topic Book Club meeting held at the home of Mrs. H. L. Narron.

Dr. Mitchell told the group the difference between a psychiatrist, psychoanalisis and a psychologist. A psychiatrist studies the behavior of the individual and tries to find out why people behave the way they do. They evaluate the emotional difficulty thru different test and psychail therapy.

He explained that most emotional problems derive from the persons environment. About 20 years ago, one out of 18 persons were committed and the present rate is approximately one out of 10. He also stated that he feels that Greenville is very fortunate to have three psychiatrists.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and books were exchanged.

Easter Baskets Made By Club

Small Easter baskets were made for children to be distributed by the Salvation Army at the meeting of the Home Pride Garden Club held Thursday night.

Mrs. Ted Ramsay was hostess for the meeting with Mrs. Patrick Duncan as co-hostess.

Mrs. Bruce Baker, club president, presided at the business session. Mrs. Lyman Duaghtrey was welcomed as a guest and Mrs. Charles Grzebielski was named a new member.

Table decorations were in red, white and blue carrying out George Washington's birthday theme.

Will it take a close call to make you call Mrs. Shirley Miller?

The juice saved from canned beets makes fine pickled eggs. Celery Soup Rolls Pickled Eggs with Green Salad Cookies Beverage

PICKLED EGGS

Juice from a 1-pound can of sliced or julienne beets
1 cup cider vinegar
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
6 whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
6 hard-cooked shelled eggs

Into a one-quart saucepan pour the beet juice. Add the remaining ingredients except the eggs. Slowly bring to a boil, stirring a few times; boil gently for 10 minutes. Remove the cloves and cinnamon. Put the eggs in a one-quart jar; pour the hot spiced mixture over them. Press a wad of transparent plastic wrap over the eggs to keep them submerged. Cover and refrigerate overnight for mild-flavored light-color eggs or for two to four nights for spicy-flavored dark-color eggs. Makes three generous servings.

RECIPE NOTES:

Some eaters may want to sprinkle salt on their eggs. The texture of the egg white changes when it stands in the juice mixture for several days, becoming slightly "rubbery"—as pickled eggs are supposed to be.

Real Growth In Pitt's Agriculture

While most of the economic growth of Eastern North Carolina in the past decade has been attributed to industrial expansion, a look at the figures shows that agriculture has played an important role in the economic growth also.

Statistics on agricultural income in Pitt County cited recently by County Agricultural Extension Chairman Sam Winchester indicate the change which has taken place. In spite of the fact that Pitt's farm income for 1967 was down $1.8 million from the previous year, it has grown tremendously over the past 10 years.

Last year the agricultural income for Pitt County came to $48.78 million. Ten years ago, in 1957, the farm income of the county was calculated at $29 million. That represents an increase of $19.6 million in the 10-year period, or a growth of more than 67 per cent.

In spite of changes which are taking place in the economy of North Carolina and particularly of this section, agriculture still remains a dominant factor. More important, agriculture continues to be a growth part of the economy, showing diversification in its growth as well as mounting dollar value. Like other parts of the economy of Eastern North Carolina, agriculture has undergone considerable change in the past decade and will experience greater changes in the next 10 years. It remains, however, a vital and growing part of the economy.

Last year, as in previous years, tobacco was the primary money crop in Pitt County. It represented 63 per cent of the total agricultural income of the county. Although this figure may seem to indicate total dependence upon tobacco, the other crops now account for considerably more farm income dollars than they formally did. The efforts toward diversification have given greater stability to agriculture in Pitt as well as adding to the farm income.

When one considers future economic growth of this section of the state, attention must be given the potential for still more growth in agriculture as well as in other segments of the economy.

No Inconvenience In Saturday's Snowfall

Never did a major snow storm cover this area so thoroughly and disappear so rapidly.

We are talking about the Saturday snow, of course, which to the delight of kids (all ages) and dismay of merchants blanketed Pitt County with a thick cover.

It gave the county one of its heaviest snow falls in years and local people something to talk about.

Sunday morning, however, an unrelenting sun bore down on the fluffy snow, and, except for shaded areas it quickly melted away.

It was a something-for-everybody snow. The youngsters had their pleasure Saturday and Sunday. By Monday most of it was gone so that it did not interfere with the bulk of commerce.

Just one thing, though—it didn't close any schools that we have heard.

Poverty War Is A Losing Fight

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—A report from the front in another war — the war against poverty — makes as cheerless reading.

During 1967, in the third year of President Johnson's antipoverty program, with its avowed aim of helping people to help themselves, more people went on relief than ever before.

In the single program of aid to families with dependent children — by far the largest and most active of the aid programs — 686,000 people were added to the rolls last year compared with 319,000 during the previous year and an average annual increase of 220,000 over the past five years. The total number in the program is now at a record high 5.4 million.

And not only are families going on the rolls at a faster rate than ever, they are slower to get off. Last year the number of cases closed declined from the previous year.

Even so, there is this startling statistic from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare: Today, in the 34th year of the government's commitment to a welfare program, only half those eligible for child welfare benefits are getting them. The rest either don't know about it or won't sign up out of pride.

The department said the big increase was unanticipated, but in justifying a request for an emergency appropriation of $1.1 billion to keep the programs going, the department gave at least one reason that can hardly be called a new development.

This is the persistence of a high unemployment rate among the unskilled and uneducated. For Negroes among this group the unemployment rate is three to four times above the average.

Another reason for the increase is the long - continuing movement of rural poor to the cities where welfare benefits are easier to get and more generous. The states set their own benefits rates and eligibility standards, and contribute part of the money.

The wide discrepancy in the states' efforts to help their poor is seen in the level of benefits in the children's program: From a low of $8.35 per child per month in Mississippi to $57.20 in New Jersey. The national average is $38.15 per child or $157.70 per family.

Ironically, it is the administration's effort to improve the lot of the poor that has probably contributed most to the increase in the welfare load.

Other Editors Saying Ervin Makes A Point

(Kinston Free Press)

In his opposition to the open housing amendment to the 1968 civil rights measure in the Congress, Senator Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina contends it would place too much authority in the hands of one cabinet official. He notes it would make the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development an investigator, law enforcement officer, judge and jury in cases of alleged violations of open housing regulations.

Courts which are the normal channel for justice in this country, would be powerless to intercede if the amendment is made into law, according to Senator Ervin. It would in essence "take away the right of a person to sell or lease his residential property to a person of his own race or religion," Sen. Ervin emphasized.

Civil Rights proponents have made much of the open housing issue in recent months. Housing can be a bad brother. "I'm sending out the original 1903 machine to the Science Museum, London," he writes, "I do so with the belief that it will be impartially judged and will receive whatever credit it is entitled to. NOT SECURITY BUT SUPPORT

"Why has God sent this dreadful thing upon me?" It is with this "interrogation of despair that nine people out of ten meet their troubles, and there is a reason why this should be so. It does seem when trouble comes upon us that these things are taking place because of some evil we have committed. We have so long accustomed ourselves to believe that trouble is punishment for sin that we have failed to hear that great assurance of the Word of God that just as often as not trouble comes not only upon the wicked, but upon the righteous also.

Business is showing the consequences of the many uncertainties that beset it. The big and continuing uncertainty, of course, is the war in Vietnam. It generates scores of other uncertainties. How many more men will be needed? Will new draft rules mean the loss of key workers? Will war erupt in Korea? Will anti-war demonstrators become militant? There are other uncertainties. Will Congress increase income taxes? Will there be another spiral of inflation? Or both? Will Congress tax travel? How far will Congress go on the administration's consumer program? Only Folly Can Stop Him

Gibbon remarked, a couple of hundred years ago, that history is "little more than the register of the crimes, follies, and misfortunes of mankind." We can see the truth of that mordant observation in the running history of our own time — especially in the field of follies and misfortunes.

Nelson Rockefeller is out of it now. If the Governor of New York ever wanted the Republican presidential nomination, his blunder in the great trash strikes has effectively denied it to him. Did he really want the nomination? Does a hitter ache for homers? Until the moment he surrendered to the trashmen, he was doing reasonably well in Rockefeller had everything going his way. Then his folly laid him low. It is a fascinating exercise to catch these moments as they come along. There was Goldwater in the Cow Palace, the spotlights glaring, the jaw outthrust: "I would remind you that extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. And let me remind you that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue." Sitting in the press gallery, a Washington reporter, sensing suicide when he saw it, made a thumb-and-finger pistol and fired it through his head. Goldwater was dead in that instant. All of us knew it.

George Romney of Michigan

the trial heats, until he recalled what had happened when he went to Vietnam. "I was brainwashed," he said. And his candidacy gurgled down the drain.

All that Rockefeller had to do, when he found the garbage in his lap, was to pull a feat of one-upmanship on Lindsay. It was Rockefeller's delicate task to get the trashmen back to work without really seeming to appease them. By working quietly with the Mayor, he could have brought it off. Instead, he leaped over Lindsay's head in a spectacular play to the grandstand. He muffed it. Lindsay came out of the crisis smelling like a rose; Rockefeller emerged with an unmistakable eau de cabbage. It was a colossal folly on the Governor's part, to have misjudged so badly the public's reaction. Americans seldom get really fed-up; in their own easy - going way, they are filled with charity, which suffereth long. But the trash strike came at an odd conjunction of national frustrations, when the people had taken all they could take of expediency, appeasement, and drift: The Pueblo was in Wonsan; the war in Vietnam was going poorly; and there was the garbage in New York. Who would strike a blow for freedom? Not Rocky. He would yield, in Lindsay's bitter phrase, to "just a little blackmail." So long, Governor.

Explains Why He Gave Plane To Britishers

Washington, Feb. 27 — A "subtle campaign" on the part of officials of the Smithsonian Institution to take credit for certain aerodynamic discoveries away from the Wright brothers and give it to the late Professor Samuel P. Langley is charged by Orville Wright in explaining why he sent his original 1903 airplane to the British national museum. The plane arrived in London February 21. . . In an article written for the United States Air Service Magazine the co-inventor with Wilbur Wright of the plane that made its first flight December 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, declares that the Smithsonian officials have shown a "hostile and unfair attitude" towards him and his brother. . . "I'm sending out the original 1903 machine to the Science Museum, London," he writes, "I do so with the belief that it will be impartially judged and will receive whatever credit it is entitled to. it were very friendly and credit at the time universally was accorded them for not only having made the first flight, but having produced the first machine capable of flight. When Langley died, however, the Smithsonian's attitude underwent a change, Wright adds, and a campaign was started to give Langley much of the credit that belonged to them. It succeeded in doing this with people who were not acquainted with the facts," he says, though some clever and some absolutely false statements . . .

The Pueblo's Mission

The secret mission of the spy ship Pueblo, whose crew may soon be tried by a North Korean court, was to dart in and out of the coast testing shore radar — leading to a possible skipper's error putting the ship in Communist waters.

This mission was strictly defined, and it had nothing to do with listening to ground communications on the Korean mainland, as has been reported. Rather, the Pueblo was assigned to learn the configuration of North Korean radar installations, the degree of its arc, the intensity and duration of its signal, and other electronic data.

This is standard practice by electronic intelligence ships of both the U. S. and Soviet Union. The Pueblo's mission was assigned as a result of the rising military pressure by North Korea against South Korea and therefore particularly critical.

If war broke out in Korea, the U. S. wanted to know at exactly what point hostile craft approaching the coast at night would be discovered by shore radar. The skipper of the Pueblo was under strictest orders not to penetrate closer than 13 miles to shore, one mile outside the 12-mile limit claimed by North Korea as its territorial waters, but the mission may have been difficult to accomplish within these bounds.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said that, although there is no absolute proof that the Pueblo did not penetrate the limit, a mistake could not be ruled out. Considering the mission of the Pueblo, that may have been the understatement of the year.

Rocky Keeps Votes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Gov. Nelson Rockefeller stands to get more votes in the New Hampshire Presidential primary via write-ins than Gov. George Romney does on the ballot according to the most recent scientific survey there.

The poll, conducted by a reputable polling organization commissioned by Robert C. Hill (a Nixon lieutenant) in New Hampshire) was taken Jan. 23-26 with these results among decided voters:

Richard M. Nixon (on the ballot), 39 percent; Rockefeller (write-in), 22 percent; Romney (on the ballot), 19 percent; Gov. Ronald Reagan (write-in), 10 percent. The remaining 10 percent were divided among nuisance candidates.

These results run totally against the grain of Romney camp predictions that Rockefeller is less popular in New Hampshire than nationally and would be hard-pressed to get 7 percent of the vote. If the Hill poll is anywhere near correct, New Hampshire would prove a respectable though not overly impressive victory for Nixon, sheer disaster for Romney, and a big boost for Rockefeller.

What's more, the poll was conducted before a New Hampshire write-in campaign was begun for Rockefeller against his wishes. Just how much negative impact of the garbage war in New York hurts Rockefeller in New Hampshire remains to be seen, however.

Primaries Will Be Half Of It

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Along with unprecedented numbers of candidates under both Democrat and Republican banners, a record number of major-interest political contests will take place in the state's Spring primaries May 4.

And the primaries which used to provide the only really exciting battling for public officeholding in North Carolina will be only half of the story this time.

In some cases, they will be only preliminary bouts for the general elections next November because the Republicans have made good their promise to offer candidates for all major statewide and most district offices in 1968 and there will be GOP primary contests up and down the line.

This became clear when the books closed at noon last Friday for candidates to file with the State Board of Elections of State.

Earlier, Don Garrer of Hendersonville and Trosper Noland Combs of Laurinburg had set up a GOP primary for the lieutenant governorship. Garrer, 1967 House minority leader, is solidly favored in Republican circles.

Taylor appeared on the verge of escaping primary opposition when Mrs. Harper, a former N. C. Federation of Garden Clubs and wife of a Southport newspaper publisher, announced. She is expected to offer formidable opposition.

Council of State

Keen interest lies in certain Council of State contests. Of primary political concern is that between Edwin Gill and challenger Sneed High of Fayetteville for the nomination for Secretary of State. Of equal interest is the outcome of a four-way primary contest for the Democratic nomination for Superintendent of Public Instruction, an office from which Dr. Charles F. Carroll is retiring this year. And there is the contest for nomination for attorney general between incumbent T. Wade Bruton and State Sen. Robert B. Morgan.

Labor Commissioner Frank Crane is opposed by John B. Wardell Jr. of Raleigh and there are three challengers opposing Insurance Commissioner Edwin S. Lanier in the primary but these do not approach the contests for Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction or Attorney General. The latter are the three most sensitive Council of State contests.

Secretary of State had Eure, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and Auditor Henry Bridges have no primary opposition but will face GOP opponents next November. Republicans filed against Graham and Bridges during the final hours before the deadline.

Few Surprises

There were few surprises. In fact there was relatively little activity during the final few hours before the deadline. A couple of secretaries, Elections Board chairman Lee Smith, executive secretary Alex K. Broch, members of the Elections Board and a large number of newspapermen were on hand and waiting.

The GOP came forth with two candidates shepherded by a party organizer, Gene Anderson, to fill its slate of challengers for seats on the Coun-

Development Ass'n Gears Up For Busy '68 Program

The Board of Directors of the Coastal Plain Development Association (CPDA), formerly the Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission, is reviewing and discussing plans for special projects in agriculture, community development, home economics, youth and education, industrial development and travel and recreation.

They heard a special report on the upcoming Tobacco Growers Trade Fair scheduled in Wilson March 6-8. Now in its second year, the trade fair is a project sponsored jointly by the CPDA and the Agricultural Extension Service. After reports were in, President Sledge's organization drew special commendation from John Crawford, representative of the Extension Service. Crawford said he had never before seen an area development association seem to "get off to such a good start at the beginning of the year."

During 1968 the six-county association plans to sponsor several tours; award at least three scholarships to Beaufort, Pitt and Wilson technical institutes; carry on a full program of home economics activities; sponsor its annual Community Development Awards program; and conduct various other projects.

Board action fixed the date for this year's Community Development Awards banquet as Thursday, November 21, and set awards of $150, $100, $75 and $50 in three categories. Mrs. Mayo Cherry of Rocky Mount, division chairman, said she expects more communities to enter the competition this year than ever before.

Division chairmen submitting reports to the directors, in addition to Mrs. Cherry, were Charles McLawhorn of Winterville, agriculture; Mrs. Howard Andrews of Rocky Mount, home economics; Marvin Blount Jr. of Greenville, travel and recreation; and Mrs. J. Russell Kirby of Wilson, youth and education.

Also reporting to the directors meeting were Vice President J. A. Hackney III of Washington, Henry Gray Shelton of Speed, treasurer, and President Sledge.

Alton Boswell of Wilson and W. D. Lewis, Wilson County Extension chairman, reported on arrangements for the Tobacco Growers Trade Fair, noting that nearly 100 exhibitors have already reserved most of the 144 display booths available at Wilson's Centre Brick Warehouse.

The association, now beginning its sixth year of operation, is a cooperative development organization of volunteer leaders of Beaufort, Edgecombe, Martin, Nash, Pitt and Wilson counties. Its main operating budget is provided by the six counties' governments.

Prof. Arthur Miller of the University of Michigan illustrated at least one of the many dilemmas involved by reminding his audience that the Freedom of Information Act was passed "in furtherance of the public's right to know..."

However, he continued, this right also could be a danger. It may, he said, force "disclosure of a great deal of information that originally was given the government with the understanding that it would be kept confidential, and a considerable amount of personal data that many a sensitive citizen would consider private."

This information is, of course, available right at the moment without a central computer set-up. But the danger, as many see it, is that the centralization of this information and its retrieval in seconds, may be an excuse for thereby using it.

Former Schoolteacher Taught New Typing System To Indians

NEWTON, Kan. (AP) — "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country..."

So goes the old phrase used by so many typing students.

In 1900, a Kansas schoolteacher, Clarence E. Birch, took the phrase literally and developed a touch system of typing to help educate Indians at Haskell Indian Institute in Lawrence, Kan.

In 1899, Birch had established the business training department at the institute.

"That was when some educators thought it was crazy to try to teach Indians anything," he recalled.

"As far as I know, those Indian boys and girls I taught at Haskell were the first persons to ever learn the touch system in Kansas."

In his business classes, Birch faced Indians for the first time in his life.

"I wasn't too sure of myself the first couple of days," he recalled.

"A grasshopper helped break the ice. From the corner of my eye I noticed the grasshopper, an extra large green and yellow one, which could hop but not get anyplace."

"I looked closer and saw why the hopper could make no progress. An almost invisible thread was tied to one of its legs, and the other end was held by Joe Gahnesquit, a full-blood from a northern tribe. Snickers were arising from the class."

"Joe," I said, "I believe you have given your pony too much rope—better tie him a little closer."

"The outburst of laughter was hilarious, but Joe got rid of the hopper and the class got down to business."

"At that time there was much discussion of the new 'piano' or touch system of typing. I was determined to make this available to the Indians."

At a time when existing texts called for the students to train by writing exercises using separate letters, Birch's method required students to write complete words.

"The first typing touch system was developed by a native of Omaha, a Mr. Van Sant," Birch explained. "He had published a small pamphlet on the subject."

"I figured I'd have to learn it before I could teach it. So I began blindfolding myself and orienting my fingers to the keys without peeking. I used all the fingers instead of just two."

"Blindfolding was not satisfactory, so I began writing in the dark then taking the paper to the light to check my mistakes."

"By persistent efforts, I made progress and wrote for a time while just closing my eyes."

"It was hard to keep from looking, but I finally learned. I began teaching a class what I'd learned."

"Others continued their old hunt and peck technique, but by the end of a year the touch class was defeating the hit and miss writers in tests."

"By 1901, we had found one or two publications which we could use, but I continued to figure out the practice exercises to use in my own classes at Haskell.

"When 'The Thousand Commonest Words in the English Language,' was published, I saw possibilities in it for typists."

If, as was stated, these 1,000 words furnished more than 95 per cent of those used in speaking and writing, it would be advantageous to master them first. "I began teaching them and combined this with teaching certain syllabic combinations which were apt to prove troublesome."

Birch eventually prepared a typing manual manuscript.

"I cannot claim any best-seller record," he explained, "but it did go over very well. I think it gave impetus to the idea of vocabulary training and influenced the instructional methods from that time on."

Today, at 93, Clarence Birch and his wife live in the Kansas Christian Home in Newton. They have been married for 77 years. Birch still types an occasional letter and submits articles now and then to religious publications.

But after typing for two-thirds of a century, Clarence Birch can no longer use his own touch system. His left hand is paralyzed and he is learning how to type all over again.

Hesitant Over Using Personal History Data

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "Whatever privacy remains for the American citizen, it remains because the federal government is presently too inefficient to pull all its personal information files together."

This statement, made by the head of a congressional subcommittee, Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., contains a critically important word: presently.

The fact is that this inefficiency can be eliminated almost immediately by the electronic computer, a tool made precisely for this job of gathering, processing, interrelating, comparing and retrieving files.

And, as might be expected, pressure inevitably continues for the federal government to apply this computer tool to the job of creating a federal data bank from which could be drawn personal information on citizens by the mere tap of a finger on a console button.

The information on personal history so retrieved from the millions of Social Security, police, FBI, military and income tax files would be used by business, government and the professions ostensibly to serve man.

This "service" would include better government planning for health and welfare, better marketing methods by industry, perhaps tighter federal budget estimates, more efficient personnel practices in business and so on and on.

But, a growing number of critics believe that in turning the machine on itself, mankind is endangering the rights of personal privacy.

In the view of critics, the electronic computer's hunger for facts, its almost unlimited ability to regurgitate these facts for an endless number of uses, and its amorality, have now brought it to a confrontation with man, its creator.

At issue are profound questions regarding man's future. Does man, for example, really need all this information or is he simply being enticed into using the machine because it's there? Is the machine tricking man into creating the need?

At the University of Chicago conference on privacy recently this issue of personal rights in a word of computers became the central concern.

Prof. Arthur Miller of the University of Michigan illustrated at least one of the many dilemmas involved by reminding his audience that the Freedom of Information Act was passed "in furtherance of the public's right to know..."

However, he continued, this right also could be a danger. It may, he said, force "disclosure of a great deal of information that originally was given the government with the understanding that it would be kept confidential, and a considerable amount of personal data that many a sensitive citizen would consider private."

This information is, of course, available right at the moment without a central computer set-up. But the danger, as many see it, is that the centralization of this information and its retrieval in seconds, may be an excuse for thereby using it.

Who would control access to the computer? Who would make certain that information innocently offered by a security investigator by the citizen or a neighbor — on drinking habits, for example — might not be used for another and damaging purpose?

Her Breathing Machine Stolen

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A breathing machine used by a 16-year-old girl, a polio victim, was stolen while the girl was at an airport coffee shop with her parents. The thief, apparently having at first mistaken the device for a tape recorder, returned the machine two days later through a friend of the girl's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Bobbitt and their daughter Sandra, of Denver, meanwhile continued their trip from Albuquerque to Denver, where the girl was loaned a breathing machine, used for sleeping.

Decide To Seek Sterner Penalty

CAIRO (AP) — After a week of demonstrations demanding more severe punishment for the commanders of Egypt's air force in the Arab-Israeli war, the government has ordered new trials for the officers.

A military court already had convicted two officers of letting the nation's MIG air fleet be caught on the ground and acquitted two others. It sentenced former Air Marshal Mohammed Sidiki Mahmoud to 15 years in prison and Gen. Ismail Labeeb, commander of air defense operations, to 10 years.

Evans-Novak . . .

What makes the erroneous reports particularly fascinating — and inexplicable — is their source: the usually tight-lipped John Criswell, treasurer (and operating chief) of the Democratic National Committee.

Criswell dropped McCormack's name during a Washington background briefing whose ground rules prohibited Criswell from being quoted. Asked who might oppose Sen. Eugene McCarthy in the Massachusetts primary if President Johnson refuses to let his own name on the ballot, Criswell dropped two names: Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien and Eddie McCormack.

Eppes Loses, But Gets State Bid

...ROCKY MOUNT — Eppes High School bowed in the closing seconds to Rocky Mount's Booker T. Washington last night, 54-53 in the district championship game.

But all is not lost for the Bulldogs, who received a bid to the State AAAA tournament, to be held this week in Wilson. Eppes will open play in that on Friday night against a team yet to be named.

Rocky Mount pulled into a slim 11-10 lead in the first period, but Eppes stormed back in the second frame to shoot into a 30-27 lead.

Rocky Mount took control of the game in the third period, outscoring Eppes, 22-6, for a 49-33 lead. Eppes rallied to tie it up at 53-53, but a free throw in the closing seconds gave Rocky Mount the victory.

Charlie Harris led Eppes with 13 points, while Jones had 17, Jenkins had 13 and Penny, 12, for Rocky Mount.

Bethel Gets Victory To Win Girls Title

By SONNY McLAWHORN
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden's Tornadoes downed Bethel, 50-39, last night for their third consecutive Pitt County tournament championship.

Meanwhile, Bethel's Squaws continued to rule the roost by overcoming Grifton, 31-18, in the girls' tournament final.

Ayden plodded along in the boys' game, outscoring Bethel in every quarter but the last. The Indians drew first blood on Bobby Case's jumper. B. T. Chappell tied it up for Ayden, and the Tornadoes got the lead at 4-3 with 5:15 left in the quarter on George Booth's long outside shot. The teams swapped baskets for a couple of minutes, as Ayden emerged with a 9-7 margin on a couple of foul shots by Paul Miller and one by Chappell.

Both teams had a little trouble finding the range, at least partially caused perhaps by the postponement of the tourney finals.

Ayden went out by five points when Dail McLawhorn hit a lay-up to make it 18-13 with 3:10 showing in the half.

Chappell's pair of charity tosses with 1:42 left increased the lead to eight at 22-14. Bethel roared back, scoring the first five points of the second half, and cutting the lead to one at 22-21 on Case's shot with 5:25 to play in the period.

McLawhorn and Allen teamed up for nine of the last ten points, all Tornado points, in the third stanza.

In a wild and woolly fourth quarter, Ayden managed to keep the game under control, as two foul shots by reserve Ken Turner increased the lead to 42-30 with 2:42 left. But the Indians were in it until the very last minute, when a shot by John Watson cut the lead to seven with just less than a minute to play.

McLawhorn led all scorers with 13 points, while guard Miller had 12.

Case and Dunning had 12 and 10, respectively, for Bethel.

The girls' game was a different story for Bethel, however. After a shaky start, the Squaws got a foothold, and maneuvered themselves into complete command in the second period.

Marion McLawhorn, who hit for 11 of the 18 Grifton points, was the offensive spark for the Lady Bulldogs.

Bethel was paced by their take-charge rover Delores Manning, who hit the nets for 10 points, while setting up the offensive attack.

Grifton got the initial lead on a bucket by Miss McLawhorn, but Bethel came back to tie it—and after trading points with the Grifton ladies—went ahead on Miss Manning's basket in the closing seconds.

Bethel steadily increased its lead, going out by 16-9 at the half and by 21-14 on Debbie Purvis' shot at the third quarter buzzer.

The lead increased to 10 on Miss Purvis' foul shot with 5:20 left. When Cynthia Whitehurst hit to make it 29-18 with 1:05 to go in the contest, it was all over.

The game finished as Miss Manning hit four consecutive free throws to account for the final Bethel margin.

While Miss Manning led the Bethel offense, all-conference guard Shirley Whichard was outstanding on defense, as she headed up a sticky alignment which limited the often prolific Grifton offense to seven field goals and just 18 points.

Following the final game, trophies were presented to Ayden and Bethel for sharing the girls' regular season championship, and to Ayden for taking the crown in boys' regular season play.

Then trophies were awarded the tournament winners and runners-up and to the all-conference teams in boys' and girls' competition.

Winterville and Stokes-Pactolus will share a trophy for the sportsmanship award in girls' competition. Belvoir-Falkland was the recipient for the award in boys' play.

The Baron Heads Back To Tourney

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National Collegiate basketball tournament wouldn't seem the same without Adolph Rupp.

The little old Baron will be there, all right. Kentucky made certain that Monday night when it clinched its 23rd Southeastern Conference title with an 89-57 victory over Auburn.

The SEC crown guarantees the Wildcats a record 16th appearance in the National tournament and Rupp will be shooting for a sixth NCAA title.

If he shoots as well as his fifth-ranked Wildcats did against Auburn, he'll do all right. Kentucky hit 51.5 per cent of its shots and broke the game open with a 16-4 second half spurt.

Three sophomores—Dan Issel, Mike Pratt and Mike Casey—led the 20-4 Wildcats. Issel had 21 points and Pratt and Casey added 18 apiece.

Meanwhile, top-ranked Houston had minor trouble gaining its 27th straight victory, finally beating Hardin-Simmons 105-82.

Elvin Hayes scored 40 points for the Cougars, who led by only three points five minutes into the second half.

Eighth-ranked Marquette stumbled over Xavier, losing 88-83 in overtime. Bob Quick scored five fast points in the extra session after the NCAA-tournament bound Warriors had taken an 81-77 lead.

Quick, who poured to 40 points including 22 of 24 free throws, dropped in the foul shot with 1:52 to go that put the Musketeers on top to stay. The victory halted a five-game losing streak for Xavier, now 9-16.

George Thompson scored 41 points for Marquette, 20-4.

Louisville, which moved into ninth place on this week's Associated Press poll, trampled Memphis State 76-52. The Missouri Valley Conference champions ran their over-all record to 19-6 with the victory.

The Cardinals shot a red-hot 65 per cent from the field and spun off 11 straight points late in the first half to pull away.

Westley Unseld led Louisville with 17 points and 13 rebounds. Mike Butler had 19 for the losers.

UCLA, still ranked second, rolled over Washington State 101-70 for its 22nd victory in 2 games and retained its one-game lead over Southern California in the Pacific-8 race. Lew Alcindor, held without a point for the first 11 minutes, broke loose for 20 and added 16 rebounds.

In other games, New Mexico State halted West Texas State's seven-game winning streak with a 78-77 squeaker. Rich Travis' 35 points led Oklahoma City to 94-83 victory over Loyola of the South and Georgetown trounced Fairleigh Dickinson 104-74.

Davidson-West Virginia Has Decided S.C. Winner

By KEN ALYTA
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Want to pick the winner of the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament which opens Thursday at the Charlotte Coliseum?

Easy. Just take the winner of the Davidson-West Virginia game.

Anyway, it's turned out that way eight times in the last 12 years. Regardless of the round, the winner of their game has won the tournament.

Four times since 1956 they've met in the first round, once in the semifinals and three times in the finals.

West Virginia won seven times and Davidson once, two years ago.

The pattern began at Richmond, Va., in 1956. B.D.—before Driesell. Lefty, that is, began coaching at Davidson.

In those days it was a major achievement for Davidson just to qualify for the tournament. As was usually the case, Davidson just barely sneaked in as the eighth place team and was "rewarded" with a first round game against the No. 1 regular season team, usually West Virginia.

Hot Rod Hundley and his Mountaineer mates had to come from behind in the second half to win that 1956 game in the first round, 59-53. From there West Virginia went on to beat Furman and Richmond in two more close games for the title.

A year later, again in the first round, it was West Virginia 71, Davidson 51. Then the Mountaineers whipped Richmond and Washington & Lee.

In 1958, for the third year in a row, West Virginia demolished Davidson in the first round 91-61, then trounced Richmond and William & Mary.

Davidson kept trying in 1959, but took its lumps 100-65, again in the first round. West Virginia then knocked over William & Mary and The Citadel for the title.

Davidson escaped the Mountaineer wrath the next two years by finishing dead last and missing the tournament. A year later the Wildcats lost in the first round to George Washington.

But it started again in 1963. Driesell's third year as Wildcat boss. This time the teams didn't meet until the finals, West Virginia winning 79-74.

A year later, with the tournament at Charlotte for the first time, Davidson and West Virginia both lost in the semifinals and fourth-seeded VMI beat 15-game loser George Washington for the championship.

Things got back to normal in 1965, when West Virginia nipped Davidson in overtime in the semifinals, then outlasted William & Mary in two overtimes for the title.

Two years ago in the finals Davidson won for the first time, trouncing West Virginia 80-69.

Last March they met once more in the finals and this time it was West Virginia 31-65.

If they meet this week it will have to be in the finals Saturday night. They are in opposite brackets. Top-seeded Davidson opens Thursday night against William & Mary, while West Virginia plays East Carolina.

Tournament opens Thursday afternoon match Virginia Military against Furman and The Citadel against Richmond.

Will Heels See Slowdown?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Will North Carolina be the next to see South Carolina's deep-freeze basketball tactics when the two meet in Chapel Hill Wednesday night?

The Gamecocks made it pay off their last time out, with a 56-50 upset of Duke at Durham Saturday night. This shattered an eight game winning streak for the Blue Devils—who hadn't lost since the same Gamecocks beat them in Columbia.

South Carolina played so slowly in the first half that Duke students were able to chant of 143 passes. Then, after calling a time out, the Gamecocks flipped eight more passes back and forth before Skip Harlicka took the team's second shot after 10 minutes and 36 seconds of play.

The victory was the 13th in 18 games for South Carolina. It left the Gamecocks tied for third place in the Atlantic Coast Conference with North Carolina State, each with an 8-4 league record.

Nationally third-ranked North Carolina is 22-1 overall and 12-0 in the ACC. Duke is second at 18-4 and 9-3. Duke, which had been eighth-ranked nationally slipped to ninth after the loss to South Carolina.

Duke takes on North Carolina State in a regionally televised game in Raleigh Wednesday night.

That will lead into Saturday afternoon's big one, North Carolina vs. Duke in Duke's Indoor Stadium, which also will be regionally televised.

Other games Wednesday night are Wake Forest at St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, Maryland at Virginia and Georgia Tech at Clemson.

There were no games for ACC teams Monday night, and none are scheduled tonight.

After Wednesday night's action there will be no games in til the regular season windups Saturday, when North Carolina is at Duke, Georgetown at Maryland and North Carolina State at South Carolina. Then there's a pause until the conference tournament begins Thursday, March 7, in the Charlotte Coliseum.

Olympics Await Russian Move

LONDON (AP) — Thirty-two African countries have pulled out of the Summer Olympics in Mexico City next fall and the big question now is whether the Russians will withdraw as well.

The Supreme Council for Sports in Africa met in Brazzaville, The Congo, and voted to withdraw from the Olympics because of South Africa's readmission to the competition, scheduled for Oct. 12-27.

In Moscow Monday, the Soviet Olympic Committee said it had not yet been decided whether Russia would compete. The Soviets have criticized the International Olympic Committee's decision to allow South Africa in the Games.

South Africa has agreed to send an integrated team to Mexico City, but will not alter its policy against mixed sports events within the highly segregated country.

Russia normally sends a large contingent to the Olympics and the country now must decide between the prestige of a flock of gold medals and the compromise of its principles against South Africa's racial policies.

Party To-Honor Pro Bobby Lutz

Houston Holds AP Poll Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Louisville Cardinals clinched the Missouri Valley Conference championship over the weekend, and now have a ranking position in The Associated Press' college basketball poll to show for it.

The Cardinals, 18-6, took over ninth place as Vanderbilt, ninth last week, dropped out of the Top Ten. The Commodores were beaten by Georgia 91-77 for their fifth loss of the campaign.

Marquette and Duke were the only other teams involved in shifts in the latest poll based on games through last Saturday. Marquette, winner over St. John's of New York and South Dakota, advanced from 10th to eighth while the Blue Devils slipped two positions to 10th after losing to South Carolina.

Houston maintained a solid lead in the balloting by a national panel of 33 sports writers and broadcasters. The Cougars collected 25 first-place votes and 321 points. UCLA held second place, receiving eight first-place votes and 305 points.

Unbeaten Houston crushed Texas-Arlington 130-75 and Valparaiso 158-81 last week and lifted its record to 25-0. UCLA, with 21 victories and a lone setback by Houston, beat Washington 84-67 in its only last week.

North Carolina, with 258 points, remained in the No. 3 spot. Points were awarded on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

The Tarheels, 22-1, downed Maryland 83-60 and Virginia 92-74 in last week's action.

Undefeated St. Bonaventure continued in fourth place followed in order by Kentucky, Columbia and New Mexico. The Bonnies ran their victory string to 20 by defeating Creighton and Canisius.

Kentucky beat Georgia and Alabama. Columbia whipped Brown and Yale while New Mexico turned back Arizona an Arizona State.

Moose Supreme Governor Visits Local Lodge

George Reilly, Supreme Governor of the Loyal Order of Moose, told Greenville lodge members last night that the Moose Loyal Crusade—launched some seven months ago—had proven a timely and important item in the national life in light of irresponsible and unpatriotic words and deeds that are too often manifest today.

The California native condemned the element that today is "challenging the very democracy that gives them the privilege of challenge."

In contrast, he pointed to Moose support of community projects and service, praised the fraternity's contribution to the Blood Bank program, the training and care and educational opportunities given the children in their care at Mooseheart and the care given their aged at Moosehaven.

Reilly was accompanied to Greenville by State Director William Moon. Also present at last night's meeting were State Moose Association President Charles Stone, of Kinston, and Deputy Supreme Governor of the N. C. Moose, Henry Flake, of Greenville.

Lodge Governor Sam Brooks announced the next enrollment of members would be a candlelight breakfast on in April.

Civic Affairs Chairman Ralph Heidenreich reminded the Moose the Bloodmobile would be sponsored by the Lodge on March 19 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and it would be a one-day Greenville visit, being in Ayden on the following day.

Thirty new members were enrolled into the fraternity at the meeting. They were:

W. O. Aldridge Jr., Edward Berman, Graham J. Davis, Paul J. Donohue, Joe Eastwood, James O. Evans, John D. Haddock, Ray E. Hinsley, Richard W. Holley, Donald W. Ingram, James Ray Jackson,

Reid Joyner, Dr. James L. Knipe, W. J. Landsperger, David Edward Lee, F. Clifford Lewis, Dave L. Moret, Glenwood Lee Myers, Fred R. Nantz, Tommy Nelson, Francis O. Nunn, B. E. Phillips Jr., William C. Purser, Russell Scott, Jacky R. Stokes, William C. Terrell, Jarvis C. Tetterton and Jimmy O. Williams.

N.C. Lawmaker Offers Bills To Curb High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Roy A. Taylor, D-N.C., has introduced four bills to reduce the powers of the Supreme Court. He told the House in doing so Monday that the high court has strengthened the rights of the criminal and has restricted police power.

The bills would:

1. Provide that a confession found by a trial judge to be voluntary should be admitted as evidence. It also would provide that a voluntary confession found valid by a state supreme court cannot be upset by a federal court.

2. A proposed constitutional amendment would authorize Congress to overrule, by a two-thirds vote, decisions of the Supreme Court.

3. Retirement of Supreme Court justices would be mandatory at 70.

4. Appointees to the court would be required to have at least five years of judicial experience.

Once-Segregated Bowling Alley Back In Business

ORANGEBURG, S. C. (AP) — A segregated bowling alley, which led to student demonstrations and riots that eventually left three dead and more than 10 persons wounded, admitted Negroes for the first time Monday.

Two South Carolina State College students were the first Negro customers Monday night, four days after a federal court nondiscrimination order. The appearance of Johnny Stroman and James P. David Monday night made no apparent stir at the 16 lane all-star triangle lanes.

"Yeah, we made it," Stroman said after bowling a frame. The 24-year-old Savannah, Ga., senior is a member of the campus Black Awareness Coordinating Committee.

He was a leader in integration efforts that ended Feb. 8 when three Negroes were shot to death in an encounter with State Highway Patrolmen and police. Thirty students were wounded.

The campus chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People urged wounded students to file suits against the state. Student NAACP chapter president George Campbell said the state and national NAACP will support the suits.

Stroman said his group is standing aside for now while the NAACP seeks the various civil rights for which the students demonstrated. Campbell said some of the demands have been met and others are under consideration.

Speaking of a no-buying quarantine by Negroes against white businesses in Orangeburg, he called it "very, very successful." White business spokesmen have had no public comment, but several have said the boycott is being felt.

Meanwhile, the city remains under the nightly 10 p.m. curfew. The curfew was imposed at 1 p.m. nightly when the students were killed, then gradually moved back.

Registration

'Thinking Day' Observed By Greenville Girl Scouts

The Girl Scouts of Greenville celebrated Thinking Day on Thursday at the American Legion Building.

This day is the birthday of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell—a day when all scouts celebrate their friendship with all people of the world.

The flag ceremony was conducted by the Ninth Grade Cadettes, followed by an explanation of the meaning of Thinking Day by Mrs. Wilhelmine Wilks, international consultant.

After a candlelight ceremony by Cadettes of Troop 511, a program was presented by several troops. Troop 558 gave a skit depicting the first Girl Scout encampment in the United States followed by Troop 460 singing "Our Chalet" song in French.

Troop 401 performed a Filipino dance. Brownie Troop 97 read and acted out a poem depicting what Brownies do. Troop

509 sang "The World Song" and Troop 169 gave a puppet show—the Spanish version of "Old MacDonald."

Miss Pattie Kirk, of the Senior Troop, received money from each troop for the Juliette Lowe World Friendship Fund.

The program was concluded by a candlelight ceremony and the retreat of the colors.

Will Veto Musk Ox As 'Game'

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel says he's going to veto a bill the Alaska legislature passed last week to make the musk ox a game animal.

"If this bill were allowed to become law," he said, "we might just as well pass a bill allowing people to go out... and shoot milk cows."

Panel Pushes Toward Its Final Report On Rioting

By GAYLORD SHAW Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Differences among members of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders remain unsettled as the panel pushes toward completion of its landmark report on last summer's riots.

In disclosing this, one commission member who refused to permit use of his name said some commissioners want a stronger "get-tough" policy toward rioters than that preferred by their colleagues.

The disagreement extends also to how much blame should be placed on city police for what the commission member called repressive measures taken to quell racial violence.

But he said the commission will call firmly for maintenance of law and order, both in combating riots and in cleaning up conditions—such as narcotics traffic—that contribute to slum crimes.

The 11-member commission, appointed by President Johnson after last summer's riots in Newark and Detroit, meets today and Wednesday to put the finishing touches on a report scheduled for release next Sunday.

The document will provide a detailed report on last summer's riots, examine causes of the disorders and recommend steps to prevent further violence.

Commission members hope

Shows Him How It Should Be

NIPOMO, Calif. (AP) — Elmer Walker, a left-handed golfer, was complaining because his new set of clubs were giving him trouble and his game was suffering.

After hearing about it for 26 holes Walker's golfing companion, Jim Miller, said "give me one of those left-handed clubs and I'll show you how it's done!"

Miller, who is right-handed, stepped up to the tee of the 167-yard, par-3 17th hole at the Black Lake Golf Club and with a six iron stroked a hole in one.

DEAN'S LIST

Mrs. Sandra Morici Bassler, 203 S. Warren St., Greenville, made the Dean's List for Fall Quarter at East Carolina University.

The St. Lawrence Sewaway was opened in 1959.

the report will shock the public because, as a member put it, "If we don't do something about it we're going to have a hell of a problem in this country."

The member who reported the differences of opinion said "a lot of people may be disappointed" in the report because it will make the point that there is no easy answer and no quick solution.

Major recommendations will cover job training, better education and better housing, he said. The commission's investigation shows conditions in many city slums are "unbelievable"—far worse than most Americans believe, he said.

A source close to the commission said Monday the panel will recommend that local police departments establish special offices to improve their relations with slum residents.

Under the proposal, he said, the federal government would supply 90 per cent of the funds for salaries of "community service officers." These officers "would be recruited from ghetto areas and they would work in the ghettos," the source said. "But they will be part of the police department—they'll be hybrid police officers."

Because of their slum backgrounds, he said, they may not be able to meet the qualifications required of other officers—"they could even have criminal records."

For this reason, a police official said, some police chiefs may resist the recommendation. "We need well-educated, highly qualified police officers in this area, not just anyone," he said.

The Worry Clinic Newspaper Remains The 'Family Textbook'

Louise asks a stimulating question. Be sure to discuss this widely for many people fail to realize their indebtedness to the newspaper. Yet the newspaper is still the "Family Textbook" of America and our greatest protection against dictatorship by government.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE F-502: Louise L., aged 30, is a journalism student. She was in the audience when I was invited by Dean John Drewry to address his journalism students at the University of Georgia.

"Dr. Crane," she asked, "do you think television and radio are going to reduce the influence of newspapers?"

"So is journalism a dying profession?"
"My boy friend works for a radio station and he scoffs at newspapers."

The daily newspaper is still the family textbook of Americans!

Its diligent reports dig up the facts which not only appear in that day's issue, but which are also copied in the newscasts via radio and TV.

Rising labor and newsprint costs have reduced the number of daily newspapers, it is true, but the remaining papers are still the mainstay not only of general education after we quit school forever at the average age of 18.

But the newspapers also terrify evil doers, even in Congress!

For we are the only major educators in America, not regulated by government!

Our free public schools are actually government schools!

Television and radio, also, are subservient to the White House, regardless of who is President.

For they have their licenses renewed by an appointive body called the FCC. But newspapers don't need a license! They are still free! Be glad!

And superb editors realize that they are operating what might be called an educational "twin" for the local department store.

In such a store, the owner doesn't select merchandise which he himself likes or reject what he doesn't use.

Instead, he picks items which he figures the buying public will demand.

Farsighted editors also try to furnish their readers not just sensational items but also those which will exert a wholesome educational, moral and even political influence.

At present, however, the comic page is the weak spot in journalism.

There are only about a dozen top-notch comics in America that do the proper job expected of the comic page.

For the comic page was originally intended to coax early readership by grammar school-decipher the "balloons" with their first and second grade reading skills.

But most comic pages nowadays have deserted the children entirely and play solely to late teen-agers and adults.

Oh, they have so-called child comics that include kiddies, but the plot and dialogue are far over the heads of child readers.

Adult parents will laugh at the ridiculous child antics.

But to children, those antics are NOT ridiculous, so the comics don't intrigue them, which is why TV is gobbling them up.

Newspapers offer every family a "Book - of - the - Day" volume of varied helpful materials.

Even the advertisements save you housewives a dozen times the total annual subscription price in "bargains" you see in the ads!

And carrying a newspaper is our free enterprise system! Millionaires' sons need this as much as average boys!

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW

BEFORE THEY WERE WED, HER NEEDS SOUNDED MODEST INDEED

BUT WHEN IT CAME TIME TO GET UN-HITCHED ... OUCH!!

New Social Security Aid For The Younger Worker

By JACK TATEM, District Manager

New protection for the younger worker and his family stands out among the new provisions in the social security law for the disabled.

For young workers who became disabled before they had a chance to work under social security for at least 5 years, a new change in the disability benefit provisions is a boon.

For benefits to be paid to a disabled worker and his dependents under the old law he needed social security credits for at least 5 out of the 10 years before becoming disabled. Now, if you become disabled between 24 and 31, you need credits for only half the time you became unable to work. If you are disabled before you reach age 24, you need only 1 1/2 years of work under social out of a 3-year period ending when your disability began.

Benefits under this new provision are first payable for the month of February 1968. About 100,000 people—disabled workers and their dependents—are eligible. An estimated $70 million in additional benefits will be paid out in the first 12 months.

The new law could mean benefits even for some people who have recovered from their disabling condition, or if they were denied benefits previously because they lacked enough work credits. You should seek more information at your social security office at 207 Boyd Avenue, Greenville, if you think you qualify.

The Audubon Society of New Hampshire says some homing pigeons can determine in 20 seconds which direction to fly home.

Goren on BRIDGE

Both vulnerable. East deals.

♣ K Q 4

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 1NT Pass 3NT
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Six of ♠

Altho North holds only eight points in high cards, possession of an establishable seven card suit provides ample justification for proceeding to game when his partner opens the bidding with one no trump. Inasmuch as an 11 trick contract may prove to be out of reach, North proceeded directly to three no trump.

of that suit. South withheld his king for one round; however, he could not stop the onslaught, and five diamond tricks were rattled off to a second declarer down to a two trick defeat before he could even get started.

South's performance on the deal was utterly without guile and was reminiscent of the ostrich when confronted by danger. By playing the ten of hearts from dummy at trick one, he clearly advertised that he had some sort of secondary stopper in that suit. Unless West was under-reading both the ace and queen of hearts, East was certain to get in with one of the missing honors and the diamond shift then becomes marked.

In order to forestall an attack where he is most vulnerable, declarer should put up the king of hearts at trick one. If, for example, the king should hold, South has an abundance of tricks available. However, even if the king of hearts loses to the ace, there is a good chance that East will continue the suit, in which case declarer's jack serves as a delayed stopper. Once East surrenders the lead, South's diamond holding is no longer in danger of a fatal assault.

Altho the recommended play is not foolproof since East does have an opportunity to make the diamond shift when he is in, he should at least be made to work for his bread and butter.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market weathered an initial decline and moved irregularly higher early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

The market overcame an initial superiority of 100 or so declines over advances. A small but increasing margin in favor of gainers began to build up.

The Dow Jones industrial average wiped out an early loss of 2.72 and was unchanged at 841.77 at noon.

The recovery was confirmed by a slight rise in the broadly based New York Stock Exchange index.

Even at the start there was an undercurrent of strength among selected glamor stocks. This became catching and confidence spread.

Parents Advised Notify School

Parents in the Farmville, Fountain and Bell Arthur areas, who have children entering the first grade at Sam D. Bundy School in September, should advise the school now by mail or telephone.

Bundy, principal of the school, said the name of the child, the parents' names and the address should be given.

Children who will be six years of age on or before Oct. 15 are eligible to begin school this fall.

An orientation meeting for parents of next year beginners will be held at the Sam Bundy School March 21 at 7:30 p.m. and a Beginners Day for the children starting school will be held Friday, March 22, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

After the names have been received and compiled, the proper materials and instructions will be sent to the parents, Bundy said.

Leaf Marketing

growers have wanted to sell it, and we have no reason to assume that such arrangements will be made within the foreseeable future," Lawrence said. "These factors emphasize that positive action to regulate the flow of tobacco from the farm to market is necessary in achieving orderly market arrangements and assuring all growers, large and small, equal access to the market."

Lawrence continued, "The 36-man committee possesses no legal authority to regulate the flow of tobacco from the farms to markets."

"The Warehouse Association, which is represented on the committee, has the legal authority to fix the opening dates for markets, to limit the size of each basket or lot that may be offered for sale, and the total amount that can be sold during any specified time," Lawrence said. "They have used their legal power to slow down sales and in some instances to declare market holidays to prevent congestion in the re-drying facilities."

"Since federal market orders provide the only legal way now available to regulate the flow of tobacco from the farm to market, a formal petition was prepared to give the growers themselves an opportunity to decide by their votes in a referendum whether or not they desire to use their power and establish orderly marketing procedures."

"This proposal is democratic and will assure all growers of equal marketing opportunities regardless of location."

"Adoption of a market order will fill in the one missing link needed in developing orderly marketing procedures."

A. C. Edwards, president of the Greene County Farm Bureau, said, "we as growers and warehousemen, are facing revolutionary changes, especially in tobacco."

"At this stage of the game, it would not be proper to set up an authority for flue-cured tobacco. Authority should be put in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture. There is enough sincerity between warehousemen, growers, etc., to work out the problems."

The hearing is expected to adjourn this afternoon. The next session, scheduled for tomorrow, will be held in Greensboro.

Quarterly meeting will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Radcliff Primitive Baptist Church in the new church on the 264 bypass.

Walked In To Say Place Afire

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Members of the Goldsboro Woman's Club were having a steak supper Monday night at the Red Lantern Steak House when a fireman walked in and told them the place was afire.

They went to another restaurant and ate barbecue.

The steak house was moderately damaged by fire which Fire Chief Pyrus Bissett said started when a charcoaling fire ignited grease filters in the duct system. The fire, which spread into the ceiling and onto the roof, was contained in 30 minutes.

The employee, Jerry Hobbs, was accused as he was preparing to put the receipts in the night depository of the Northwestern Bank branch in the Reynolda Manor Shopping Center.

After a two-mile drive, the gunman released Hobbs unharmed.

Piedmont Airlines President Addresses Local Rotarians

Problems of the aviation industry were laid before Greenville Rotarians and guests by President Thomas H. Davis of Piedmont Airlines, Winston-Salem-based regional airline, in an address here Monday evening.

With the problems defined by this airline executive, a promising and optimistic future was also identified with the growth and development of the Eastern North Carolina larger community.

Davis had no prediction about immediate service by his company to some communities in Eastern North Carolina which keep clamoring for airline stops. "The future is not predictable and it is hazardous to forecast what will be in the next few years, due to the problems of having available adequate and expensive equipment to operate and the changing traffic patterns," Piedmont's president declared.

Beginning with Piedmont's history as an aviation sales and service company in 1940 and its certification by the Civil Aeronautics Board as a scheduled airline Feb. 20, 1948, the company has shown a steady and consistent growth, Davis said.

Today Piedmont has near 3,000 employees over its entire system, a growth from only five employees at the beginning, and a payroll in North Carolina alone of $10 million dollars annually. The company is public owned, it was pointed out, and recently purchased 10 new jetliners from a Japanese airplane manufacturing company.

Piedmont is the first airline in the nation to have attained a position of financial independence in having realized a profit in 1966 without a subsidy from the Federal government, Davis declared. And he went on to point out its growth in CAB-certification to expand its operations from Atlanta to New York and from the original Carolina coastline to Mid-West Kentucky and Ohio cities.

At the present time, said Davis, Piedmont is stepping up its services to the Carolinas, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky, while also serving new points — Nashville and Memphis in Tennessee — and seeking extension of routes into South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida in a Southern route and moving into the central west to Chicago. To handle a growing airline, a new headquarters building is nearing completion in Winston-Salem to replace outgrown headquarters offices only ten years old.

"Air transportation is becoming a necessity, and service in Eastern North Carolina is needed because there is growth in banking, education, and commerce in this area, but again we have to look at the economics of expensive equipment, volume of traffic, variations in landing," Davis went on to emphasize.

Through use of visual aids, Davis illustrated the route extensions and types of equipment Piedmont is using and planning to acquire to step up its position as a regional carrier. It
