

Attention Focusing On Rockefeller Romney Pulls Out Of GOP Presidential Race; Admits Rejection By Rank And File

WASHINGTON (AP)—White House draft that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has promised to answer without a ballot cast—and the could be taking shape now.

Rockefeller, most prominent cheerleader in Romney's hectic, fruitless 101-day quest for the GOP presidential nomination, said the wishes of his fellow Republican governors would be a major influence on his future course.

Many of those governors are in Washington today and Romney in withdrawing challenged them to forge a consensus around some other candidate. The Michigan governor acknowledged he has not won rank and file Republican support. He suggested the governors look for another contender who might.

Romney thus admitted he had no hope of defeating front-running former Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the Republican nomination.

Some Republicans were doubtful the governors' agreement Romney recommended could be achieved. But the pressure on Rockefeller clearly was rising. Rockefeller said once again that he is not a candidate for the nomination he has sought twice before, but that he would accept a draft if one came.

"I have no plans to change my plans," he said. Other Republican moderates were trying to change them for him.

Romney said only he will "support wholeheartedly the candidate for president to whom the Republican governors give their support." So far, those 26 governors haven't given it to anybody.

It was learned that Romney—who read his withdrawal statement to a crowd of more than 200 reporters and politicians, then would say no more—does not now plan an attempt to transfer his admittedly sparse support to Rockefeller.

Only Rockefeller and John Chafee of Rhode Island among the Republican governors went to work for the Romney cause. Chafee wasn't hating what he will do now, although he said it is possible moderate governors will line up behind Rockefeller.

"In no meeting here do I anticipate that when the meeting's over the governors are going to come out and say 'We united behind X,'" Chafee said.

Rockefeller said he had tried to persuade Romney not to withdraw.

Would the New York governor enter the race against Nixon if his fellow governors urge that course upon him?

"Let me wait and talk to them," Rockefeller replied.

The New Yorker's emphasis on conferences to ascertain the wishes of his colleagues implied that a substantial bloc of gubernatorial support might meet his terms for candidacy.

Romney's startling withdrawal set off a political shock wave that rolled from New Hampshire to Oregon.

Third Man Wanted In Killing Of Goldsboro Lawman Found

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A third man wanted for murder in the shotgun slaying of a Goldsboro policeman was arrested early today in Fayetteville after a telephone caller told police where to find him.

Goldsboro Det. Capt. C. M. Gilstrap and State Bureau of Investigation agent Warren Campbell arrested Virgil W. Lanier, 25, of Rt. 2, Beulaville, shortly after midnight.

A caller who wanted to remain anonymous told Goldsboro police where to find Lanier, police said.

Lanier was returned to Goldsboro and lodged in the Wayne County Jail. He and two Kinston men already in custody were scheduled to have hearings this afternoon.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has joined the search for Lanier Wednesday when it was reported he might have crossed state lines.

All three men are charged with murder in Tuesday's slaying of policeman Walter Rouse, 26, shortly after a motel holdup.

Charged late Tuesday were Roger W. Johnson Jr., 32, and Charles Whitley, 22, both of Kinston. Police at Kinston said Johnson was a former member of the force and resigned about six years ago.

Rouse was slain and policeman D. E. Dale, 29, was wounded when they stopped a car shortly after three men had robbed a night clerk at the Goldsboro Holiday Inn of $310.

The FBI joined the case Wednesday after a U.S. commissioner at Goldsboro issued a federal warrant charging Lanier, of Rt. 2, Beulaville, with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder, armed robbery and assault.

Johnson was arrested Tuesday night at a synthetic fibers plant near Kinston where he worked. Police said Whitley turned himself in.

A car fitting the description of the one in which the three men got away after the shootout with the policeman was found near Richlands, about 50 miles south-east of Goldsboro. Authorities said it was registered in Lanier's name.

Bike Licensing To Be Enforced

Greenville bicycle owners will have a month in which to purchase licenses for their bicycles or be in violation of the law, Police Chief H. F. Lawson said today.

The chief said beginning March 1, the police department will begin selling metal registration plates for bicycles. Cost of the licenses will be 50 cents each.

According to the city code, all bicycles being operated in the city are required to have registration plates. The law in the past, Chief Lawson explained, "simply has not been enforced."

According to the police official registration of bicycles will cut down on the incidents of bicycle thefts and aid police in recovering bicycles that have been stolen.

Last year alone, 75 bicycles were reported stolen. Their value was estimated at almost $2,700. Although many were recovered, at least 20 of those found and turned over to the police could not be identified and returned to their rightful owners, so they were sold at auction just before Christmas.

Proper registration would make it possible to find the rightful owner of bicycles and have them returned, Lawson said, as well as making the potential thief think twice before taking a bicycle.

Registration certificates will be issued with the new metal plates, the chief said, and should be kept by the owners as proof of ownership—just as car owners have their registration cards.

If a thief takes a bicycle, he will have no registration certificate—thereby enabling police to quickly determine he is not the owner.

The police official, who urged all children to have their vehicles registered, said it is hoped that local civic clubs or other organizations will finance the purchase of plates for youngsters who are financially unable to pay the fee.

He said the 50 cents per license charge is simply to offset the expense of having the plates made and having the registration certificates printed.

Information contained on the registration certificates includes the owner's name and address, his age, the registration plate number, and information as to the description of the bicycle, such as frame number, size, color, type of seat, rims, fenders, brakes, make, wheels and other equipment.

Such information would aid in identifying a bicycle, even if the registration plate were removed, Chief Lawson noted.

He added that many times, thieves will steal several bicycles and combine parts from all of them to make one bicycle. If a person tries to register such a bicycle, he continued, an investigation could be launched to see where the parts came from, and if a bicycle was not registered, the owner would be in violation of the law.

During 1966 and 1967, 1,800 bicycles were registered, more or less on a voluntary basis, the chief noted.

N. C. Welfare Board Policy Under Fire

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Board of Public Welfare is under fire from several county welfare directors who oppose the board's recent decision to establish a special agency to investigate welfare rolls.

The state policy-making board approved a proposal Monday by Dr. Bruce Blackmon of Buies Creek, a board member. Dr. Blackmon said a "non-welfare oriented" agency should be set up outside the framework of the state welfare department to check up on welfare recipients, because welfare workers are "in a give-away program and the more money a welfare worker can give away, the higher pay the worker gets."

Department officials denied the claim and pointed out that North Carolina's welfare rolls under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program have decreased, contrary to a national trend.

Harnett County Welfare Director F. C. Hubbard Wednesday termed the proposal "an insult to the estate Department of Public Welfare."

The president of the North Carolina Public Welfare Association, Wayne County director Floyd Evans, said the board's action was "unnecessary."

V. C. Blevins, Catawba County director, said Dr. Blackmon's statements were "completely assinine" and added they indicated a "complete lack of knowledge of what's going on."

New Hanover Welfare Director Lena Moore Hall termed Blackmon's assertion "a lot of tommyrot" and said the board's action has demoralized welfare workers throughout the state.

Pearson Wins In Confidence Vote

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's Liberal government won its vote of confidence in the House of Commons Wednesday but still faces the problem of raising $550 million in revenues lost when the House killed a tax bill and triggered the crisis.

The House voted 138-119 for the confidence measure introduced by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson to keep his government from being forced out by the snap vote Feb. 19 that took other Liberal leaders by surprise.

Gives Property To House Poor

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, Roman Catholic bishop of Rochester, has given a church property valued at $680,000 to the federal government on condition that it be used to house the poor.

The church, St. Bridget's, is in a predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican section of Rochester, which was struck with racial disturbances last summer.

The nomination and election of new officers and recognition of past leadership will highlight the program.

The meeting is open to all citizens of Pitt County and they are encouraged to attend.

Cambodian Reds Killed In Clash

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Thirteen Cambodian Communists were killed and several wounded in a clash with government forces in Battambang Province Feb. 24, the Cambodian News Agency said today.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, said Tuesday that the Communist disturbances seem to have spread to two other provinces, Kampot and Kompong. But he added that government forces have the situation well in hand.

Gaudy 'Good-By' Given McNamara

By FRED S. HOFFMAN AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert S. McNamara completes today a record seven-year tour as secretary of defense, praised by President Johnson as a "brilliant and good man" but with some of his basic policies under heavy attack.

The military brass, some of whom are not sorry to see him go, arranged a gaudy good-by for the 51-year-old McNamara, complete with a 19-gun artillery salute, band music, an honor guard of troops and a "fly-over" of war planes.

Somebody thoughtfully included in the fly-over three Air Force F111s, once called the TFX and symbols of one of the great unresolved controversies of the defense chief's administration.

McNamara, who received the Medal of Freedom from Johnson in an emotional ceremony Wednesday at the White House, was in line for another medal to be pinned on at the Pentagon ceremony.

He was expected to leave tonight for a month-long vacation in Aspen, Colo., before taking on his new job as president of the World Bank on April 1.

Waiting to step into McNamara's office was Clark Clifford, long-time Washington lawyer and political figure who will be sworn in Friday by Johnson.

McNamara's seven years, one month and eight days as Pentagon chief is a record that may stand for a long time. It eclipses the previous mark of four years, eight months and 12 days set by the late Charles E. Wilson in the Eisenhower administration.

Some critics—and some friends—say McNamara stayed too long. Perhaps he would agree, because recently he said wistfully that he was counting the days until he could put down the burdens of his back-breaking job.

Probably McNamara's greatest disappointment and frustration is the Vietnam war. He once remarked to a visitor: "Who would have thought it would last so long?"

Foes used to call it "McNamara's war," but late last year some war policy critics found themselves anguished by the announcement that he was leaving the Pentagon. Belatedly, some of them came to regard him as a restraining influence on Johnson and the military chiefs.

Even his critics acknowledge McNamara achieved some brilliant reforms.

There is general acknowledgment that the fundamental alteration of the budgeting system and of management of the enormously complex Defense Department is McNamara's great monument.

Marking Her 11th Birthday

MRS. CHARLES PRICE . . . is celebrating her 11th birthday today. She is one of the fortunate few whose birthdays come only once every four years, thanks to Leap Year.

By RUTH GWYNN Reflector Woman's Writer Greenville has a rather remarkable resident in Mrs. Charles L. Price. Mrs. Price was married before her sixth birthday, had her first child before she celebrated her eighth birthday, and when she commemorates her eleventh birthday today, will be the same age as her youngest daughter.

Obviously, there is a catch in this. Mrs. Price is a member of that segment of American life known as "Leap Year Babies." Since February 29 comes but once every four years, Mrs. Price has a birthday only every four years.

She was born February 29, 1924, in Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte to Mr. and Mrs.

Henry Keller Youngblood. Amazingly enough, she was the only little girl born in Charlotte that day. By an even stranger coincidence, the people directly across the street from the Youngbloods became the proud parents of a little boy on that same day.

"Although it seems hard to believe now, mother told me that people actually flocked to the hospital to see me when I was born. The event was covered by the Charlotte Observer and the merchants of Charlotte furnished me with an entire layette."

Among the gifts donated by town merchants was a crib, which is still being used by Mrs. Youngblood's great-grandchildren. "Charlotte was the east has failed."

No Rush To Switch, Says Stickley

RALEIGH (AP)—Republican gubernatorial candidate Jack Stickley says there is no "mass movement" of Democrats seeking to switch to the GOP.

The Charlotte textile broker made the remark at a Raleigh news conference Wednesday in which he announced a half-dozen switchers.

His remark disputed a claim by his opponent, Rep. Jim Gardner, R-N.C., who has helped organize "Operation Switchover" to encourage Democrats to bolt their party.

Stickley said he is "not entering a switching contest with anyone."

He said the six switchers announced at his news conference, all Wake County residents, "are typical of what's going on all over the state. They're coming in by twos and threes."

Stickley said the Gardner organization has stepped up its efforts in the western part of the state, "which indicates to me that their switchover drive in the east has failed."

Living Costs Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs rose three-tenths or one per cent in January—increase for the fourth month in a row—with grocery prices and doctor bills leading the way, the Labor Department said today.

Grocery prices, which usually hold steady in January, went up eight-tenths of one per cent. Fees of doctors and dentists, the fastest rising item in the government's consumer price index for several years, went up another seven-tenths of one per cent last month.

Retail Sales Up 4.7%

Greenville showed a percentage increase in retail sales for the January-December period of 1967, according to figures released by the North Carolina Department of Revenue.

Total sales during the year for Greenville totaled $77,443,787, the department reported, giving an increase of 4.7 per cent over the $73,961,826 total during the same period in 1966.

Retail sales recorded for Wilson totaled $87,234,874, while sales for Goldsboro totaled $109,095,187. Wilson's increase over 1966 was reported at 3.9 per cent while Goldsboro's increase was set at 2.6.

Kinston showed a 2.1 increase over 1966 with a total of $86,537,181 retail sales during 1967.

Retail sales in Greenville exceeded the eight million mark in December, 1967, for the first time, the department reported. Retail sales for that month totaled $8,157,671, an increase of more than eight per cent over the $7,542,286 sales recorded for December, 1966.

For the first time also, the retail sales for Pitt County exceeded the 12 million mark in December, 1966, with sales totaling $12,649,644. An increase of almost seven per cent was recorded over the $11,843,728 total recorded for December, 1966.

Gross retail sales for Pitt County during 1967 totaled $127,415,372, while sales for the year of 1966 were $122,453,487. A total of $108,947,777 gross retail sales were recorded for 1965 and sales for 1963 amounted to $92,521,116.

The gross retail sales for Greenville for 1967 amounted to $77,443,787, while sales for the year of 1966 were recorded at $73,961,826. Sales for the year of 1965 were reported at $65,189,049.

Day Of Prayer Plans Readied

Friday is the World Day of Prayer observance. Two ministers and four church women are ready with a program in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church to help meet the needs of the Greenville community.

REV. IRBY B. JACKSON

Rev. Irby B. Jackson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, will bring the morning message, "Responding To My Brother's Cry." The pastor of Jarvis, Dr. Joyce Early, will give a prayer on peace and unity and the closing benediction.

Other leaders on the program, listed with the churches they will represent, are Mrs. Sidney W. Dunn Jr., Eighth Street Christian; Mrs. W. S. Dawson, Holy Trinity Methodist; Mrs. George Jenkins, Cornerstones Baptist; and Mrs. Harry Allen, First Presbyterian.

The special service will begin at 11 a.m. in Jarvis Memorial and is sponsored here each year by Church Women United. Those taking part on the program are hopeful that every man and woman of every denomination will come together for this service "to add their prayers to those being raised around the world." A nursery for pre-school children will be provided in the church.

The Time For Learning Comes Soon Enough--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who said she wished mothers would teach their daughters how to do a laundry prompted me to write.

There is nothing in the world I would like better than to teach my 19-year-old daughter just that. Three times in the last 6 years I have been able to get her close enough to the washer to explain how to sort clothes and operate the machine. She just stood and watched for a while, then her mind wandered off in a dreamworld of her own.

In other words, she couldn't care less. I have begged, pleaded, and tried to drive home the importance of knowing these things for the day when she'll have to do them herself. So what do I do in a case like that? You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink.

MRS. A.

DEAR MRS. A.: Your daughter is not a horse, but if she were nothing could be gained by "making" her drink unless she was thirsty. When she gets "thirsty," no one will have to "lead" her to water. She'll go looking for it. In other words, when she needs the know-how she'll get it.

DEAR ABBY: Since my son was going to be out of the city, I asked my daughter-in-law and her 13-year-old son to have dinner at my home after church on Sunday. She accepted graciously.

On Saturday I made an apple pie, and I got up early Sunday morning and fried chicken. I planned to have whipped potatoes, buttered beans, salad, and hot rolls. I also had ice cream on hand.

After church, as we were walking to the car, my grandson asked what I was going to serve. I told him fried chicken and lots of good things.

He made a wry face, then turned to his mother and said, "Aw, gee, Mom, I want steak! Let's eat out!"

I longed to hear my daughter-in-law say, "No, grandmother has dinner all prepared, we'll go to her house." But instead she hurt me deeply by saying, "Steak DOES sound good. Let's eat out! It will be my treat."

Then she whispered to me, "Mother, I know my philosophy is different from yours, but we all must learn to give and take in this life."

Abby, what do you think of this so-called modern philosophy?

HURT GRANDMOTHER

DEAR HURT: It's difficult to believe that a grown woman could be so insensitive—unless, of course, she is simply ignorant. Perhaps one day she will elaborate on her "give and take" philosophy. It sounds to me as if she likes to "give" orders and "take" charge of all the decisions.

DEAR ABBY: I am 59 and have gone steady with Percy for 2 years. He is 60. We both love to dance. Last evening we went dancing and the place wasn't very busy. The music was good so Percy asked me if I cared if he asked one of the waitresses to dance with him. (He had never seen her before.) I said O. K., but I didn't like sitting there alone while they danced. Later on the husband of the waitress came in and she brought him over and introduced him to us. Then he went and sat at a table in the corner by himself.

Percy soon said to me, "Why don't you go over and ask the waitress' husband to dance?" So I went over and asked him, and he said the number they were playing was too fast, but if they played a waltz he'd dance it with me, so I went back to my own table, and Percy was gone. He was dancing with that same waitress again.

What I want to know is this: Do you think Percy was treating me with proper respect? Or am I old fashioned to be offended? Should I break off with him?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Percy was out of line and you should tell him to cut it out. He may cut YOU out instead, of course, but a woman has to be desperate for male company to put up with the likes of him.

The rehearsal dinner for the Smith-Allen wedding was held

Friday evening at the Candlewick Inn. The hosts and hostesses were the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert T. Smith Sr., and aunts and uncles of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. George Madison Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kay Allen and Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander Allen.

Upon arrival, the mother of the bride, Mrs. Lewis Wright Allen; the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Smith, and the bride, Miss Virginia Wright Allen, were presented orchid corsages.

The bride and bridegroom's table was decorated with two arrangements of white and yellow snowdrift chrysanthemums and fern in silver and crystal epergnes, flanked on each side with yellow tapers in crystal candelabras. Auxiliary table arrangements were composed of white snowdrift chrysanthemums and yellow snapdragons, with lighted yellow tapers on each side.

The four-tiered wedding cake, topped with two love birds, was placed on an individual table, surrounded by greenery and flanked with yellow tapers. The fireplace mantel was decorated with magnolia leaves and yellow tapers.

Wedding cake was served, following the cutting of the cake by the bride and bridegroom. Several toasts were given.

Program On Heart Month Given Pilot Club Monday

In observance of Heart Month, Curtis Hendrix, treasurer of the Heart Fund Campaign, Tony Brannon, instructor of Greenville Rescue Squad, and Dr. William Fore presented the program at the monthly dinner meeting of the Pilot Club held on Monday evening.

A heart film entitled "The Pulse of Life" was shown after which Dr. Fore answered questions, and Brannon demonstrated a "resuscitator".

Guilford Worsley, chairman of Heart Sunday, thanked the members of the club for their participation as captains in the Heart Fund Drive.

Guideline, But Subject To Change

The long-range building plan adopted this week by Greenville's Board of Education must be recognized as a guideline which is subject to revision if needs and circumstances of the local school district change from year to year.

Within this context, the plan appears a reasonable approach to setting out the building needs for the local school district for the next four years. It also offers an optimistic schedule for meeting those building needs.

In looking over the proposed schedule of school construction, citizens must recognize that changing circumstances may necessitate changes in the timetable and perhaps even in the priority now allocated specific projects. It must also be recognized, as the Board of Education has taken pains to point out, that funds now available or anticipated are some $2.5 million short of what would be needed to carry out the projected building program.

With the total cost of the projects estimated at $6.4 million, that shortage represents almost 40 per cent of the total projected cost. Unless additional funds become available within the next four years, it will not be possible to complete the building program on the schedule outlined by the Board of Education. Additional funds considerably beyond the estimated $2.5 million may be needed because of actual building costs being higher than estimated in the Board's projections.

It is evident there is a new feeling of urgency among members of the Board of Education as well as among other citizens about meeting these school construction needs. It is part of a general recognition throughout Pitt County that school needs have not been adequately met and that some catching-up must be done to provide the kind of facilities that will assure the calibre of public school program citizens desire.

This in itself is a healthy situation, for public interest in getting the job done is essential to getting the job done well. It is evident from the planning for both the city and county school administrative units that transitions will continue in our public schools need more than ever the support of interested citizens.

Whether the four-year program of the Greenville Board of Education can be carried out on schedule will depend in large measure on whether public support for it will be sufficient to assure the additional funds that will be needed.

Home Counties Get The Roads

By WILLIAM SHIRES

Reflector Raleigh, Bureau RALEIGH — A year from now private citizen Dan K. Moore will be going home to the hills taking great pride in the fact that a modern highway system — one of the best in the state — was built in his home county of Haywood during his four years as governor.

It is probably coincidence, of course, but Haywood has enjoyed its greatest roadbuilding boom in history while the man from Haywood has been in the governor's mansion in Raleigh.

In fact, Haywood County's highway progress appears very likely to have outstripped most if not all others in the state during the period.

Another county which has experienced heavy highway construction and work on many major projects is Guilford which happens to be the home of the State Highway Chairman, Joseph M. Hunt Jr.

valley corridors, linking the county's most populous areas. Before Thanksgiving all of the major highway construction projects now planned in Haywood will either be nearing completion or under contract, according to present schedules.

Haywood's Progress Before another year has passed, the paper said major highway arteries will crisscross the county.

Residents of downtown Waynesville, Canton, Clyde of Hazelwood will be able to drive onto a four-lane road within a short distance of their homes and turn onto interstate highway type arteries which will carry them east, west or northward.

Only the Pisgah mountain range prevents Haywood from having four lane roads existing in all directions.

Haywoodians obviously are proud and happy about the progress. The publisher of the Waynesville Mountaineer, W. Curtis Russ, was hand-picked by the governor to serve on the present Highway Commission and is, in fact, the only highway commissioner appointed by Moore who had not received strong political endorsement and support. Russ's highway division covers most of southwest North Carolina, from Haywood to Cherokee County and the Tennessee and Georgia Borders.

Gateway County

Haywood, largest of the counties west of Asheville, is the gateway to the entire region including the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Cherokee and Tennessee. For many years, however, the "gateway" was a highway traveler's nightmare. The roads were narrow, steep and crooked and usually choked with traffic during the summer months and Fall color seasons.

The governor's hometown of Canton with its steep hills, narrow streets, railroad tracks and stoplights was one of the worst traffic bottlenecks in the state. Now Canton is bypassed by Interstate 40 which eventually will sweep down the Pigeon River route to Tennessee.

WILLIAM SHIRES

Vast Improvements

It was Hunt who quipped a few years ago that "even a Chinaman" could tell where North Carolina's highway Commissioners lived by looking at the highways.

But even the huge improvement projects in and around Greensboro and High Point in Guilford are pale in comparison with what has been happening in the governor's home county, Haywood.

The Waynesville Mountaineer, in a front page feature story, describes it as "changing the face" of a long-neglected county.

"By the end of this year limited access roads and multi-lane expressways will speed travelers through Haywood's

Underscoring Dangers Lawmen Face Daily

The slaying of Goldsboro policeman Walter J. Rouse tragically emphasizes once again that law enforcement officers constantly face death in protecting society.

The public expects much from its policemen — too often at salaries far below what they deserve.

At times we make light of their work when it concerns chasing down pranksters or writing out parking and speeding tickets. Always, however, we expect the policeman to take the risks when violent types attempt to overrun the laws of our society.

There are, of course, policemen who shirk their duties, and some few who violate the laws they are sworn to uphold. But stories of heroism abound in law enforcement history and no doubt Patrolman Rouse will be remembered as a hero in the long battle of organized society against crime.

History Served By Hard Grilling

By BOB HORTON WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara describes last week's congressional grilling over the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incidents as "pure hell" but feels it was worth it from a historical standpoint.

Sources close to McNamara say he believes his controversial testimony on the naval engagement involving North Vietnamese patrol boats and two U.S. destroyers will be a valuable contribution to the historical record.

The incidents led to the first U.S. air raids on North Vietnam and prompted a congressional resolution which became, as interpreted by the administration, almost the equivalent of a declaration of waging war in Southeast Asia.

McNamara had in mind the long-range benefit of a full record on the incidents when he accepted a call by chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and went before what he knew would be a generally hostile Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

McNamara could have refused to appear before the panel and contended there had already been adequate congressional inquiry at the time of the Gulf of Tonkin incidents.

McNamara, however, is known to have felt this would not have been "very graceful," even though he had only a few days left in his seven-year tenure at the Pentagon. McNamara concluded in advance, it is said, that he would accomplish little short-term good by plowing again through the mass of administration evidence on the incidents — including classified evidence Fulbright had before the hearings began—but believed the benefits would show in years ahead.

The result of his appearance was more than 62,000 words of testimony on the Gulf of Tonkin.

Defense officials contend McNamara proved the destroyers Maddox and C. Turner Joy were attacked Aug. 4, 1964 despite repeated and continuing statements by Fulbright and some other senators casting doubt on this.

Another issue subsequently raised by Fulbright was whether the U. S. overreacted or acted too hastily in ordering retaliatory air missions.

To this question defense officials reply Fulbright was fully aware what response the United States was planning in 1964 and made no complaints at that time. Fulbright contends, however, he did not have adequate information at this time.

The Pentagon takes the position that one price of this latest, searching public examination of the Tonkin incidents has been some serious breaches of security information.

For example, the controversy which boiled anew last week brought public disclosure of a secret naval message submitted in support of a contention that the U. S. Navy was supporting South Vietnamese bombardment of two North Vietnamese islands about the time of the attacks.

Mondale Amendment

Unless the United States Senate has lost its collective mind, which is possible but unlikely, the Mondale "open housing" amendment to the pending civil rights bill will be decisively rejected. Indeed, by the time this gets into print, the original amendment may have been buried for this session and a less drastic substitute advanced in its place. Nevertheless, it is important to understand exactly what the principal sponsors — Mondale of Minnesota and Brooke of Massachusetts — would like to impose upon a once free people. Strange to say, their original proposal of February 6 has received remarkably little line-by-line attention. In this field of legislation, members appear to be for open housing or against it on principle alone. There is little disposition to get down to specific provisions. The original amendment was known simply as "the housing thing," and the question was where did you stand?

There was therefore a vague assumption that the Mondale-Brooke amendment would not affect the private sale of a single-family dwelling. The assumption had no merit. Their plan would embrace all houses, new or old, throughout the land.

Two years ago, when Congress last considered an open housing bill, boarding houses were exempt. They were not exempted by Senator Mondale's housing thing.

The last time around, it was proposed to set up a special Fair Housing Board, named by the President and confirmed by the Senate. No such independent agency is contemplated under the 1968 scheme.

Under the Mondale plan, the Secretary of Housing and be vested with breath-taking powers of administration and enforcement. And not merely the Secretary alone. The amendment would permit the Secretary "to delegate any of his functions, duties and powers to employees of the department or to boards of such employees."

What are these powers that any designated employee could exercise in the Secretary's name? They include the power to receive complaints of discrimination, to investigate complaints, and to resolve complaints. The secretary could issue "cease and desist orders." He could require the person who sells or rents property "to take such affirmative action as will effectuate the policies of this act."

Job Opportunity After Riotings

By ELMER ROESSNER An enterpriser seeking a new venture might consider leasing a truck, hiring a crew and going into business clearing sites of burned buildings. Because a burned building can be a fire and a health menace and possibly a hiding place for bums, junkies and criminals, most cities insist they be cleared away. It looks as if it will be another long, hot summer.

I am no Joyce Brothers, but it looks to me as if there has been a great psychological buildup for rioting by minority groups. I think that the buildup would cause many members to lose face unless they take to the streets. Take these events:

1. The President of the United States said publicly that he expects "several bad summers before we can avert the deficiencies of our cities."

While that is not an invitation to riot, it surely sounds as if President Johnson expects riots.

A Challenge To Minorities 2. Several mayors have announced that they will not tolerate disorders this summer—and why should it be necessary to declare that laws will be enforced?—several governors have announced that national guard units will be given riot training, and the Pentagon has leaked the news that it has men trained to deal with rioters.

3. Minority leaders are whooping things up. Dr. Martin Luther King is planning a new march on Washington and recently declared that, if the government and industry don't find jobs for the unemployed, "many of our cities will go up in flames this summer." In a New York public school speakers and performers denounced "the white man and his bitch" and at a play by LeRoi Jones, the rabble-rousing black, one actor shouted, "All white people will be killed. All niggers will die with them." A President seems to condone rioting; other authorities challenge minorities to riot, and the leaders of minorities whip up acceptance of the challenge. The business impact will be great.

Business establishments will need full riot and civil disorder insurance, if they can buy it. Companies making and installing steel storefront shields already are swamped with orders. Many merchants are increasing their fire protection, installing sprinklers and other extinguishers. More new stores are being built with brick front and tiny windows. Some stores report increased sales of shotguns and rifles and, where they are legal, of pistols, to both whites and blacks. Undertaking may pick up this summer, too.

Psychological Set Up There you have it: The

George Cutting Deep

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A Republican party functionary poked his head into the packed ballroom of the Holiday Inn here just before George C. Wallace launched an hour of oratory and turned away with a frown.

"I hate to say this," he told us, "but I see some of our people out there — too many of them." Republican spies reported that same message in even stronger terms from Pittsburgh a night earlier. It provided additional evidence that Wallace's third party candidacy for President will draw more votes from the Republican candidate than from President Johnson.

But beyond the question of who's for Wallace here, his two-day Pennsylvania campaign (a third day in Philadelphia was cancelled because of possible Negro extremist violence) jolted politicians of both parties. They were surprised by his virtuosity as a stump speaker and the smoothly-functioning campaign organization he has built from nothing.

Wallace's Pennsylvania prospects reflect the national mood. He figures to get his American Independent party on the ballot in all but two states, Ohio and Idaho, is building state organizations which he plans to nurture until 1972, and is on the rise in popularity — Particularly among those who would vote against Mr. Johnson in a normal two-man contest.

Wallace and his canny political lieutenant, Bill Jones, sharply dispute this last point, insisting he hurts the Democrats in the North far worse than the Republicans. He appeals in his speeches for the support of "the barber and the beautician, the working man and the waitress." And it cannot be denied, as he claims, that he has blue-collar support "Barry Goldwater did not and could not get."

Nevertheless, the backbone of Wallace's organization in Pennsylvania is not Democratic at all but the right fringe of the 1964 Goldwater movement. Three organizers of his Pittsburgh rally were Goldwaterite members of the John Birch Society. A visitor to Wallace's suite in the Pittsburgh Hilton Monday night was right-wing Republican William J. Friday, the party nominee for county treasurer last year.

Moreover, those who attended the Pittsburgh and Harrisburg rallies were mainly lower-middle to middle class suburbanites who usually vote Republican.

The Wallace camp's reply is that, while those running his campaign and attending his rallies may be Republican-oriented, his solid backing comes from the ethnic hard-core of the Democratic party. Yet many Republicans feel that these blue-collar Democrats would not vote for Mr. Johnson in 1968 even if Wallace were not entered.

If so, Pennsylvania is lost for the Republicans. Separate private polls taken here last fall by pollsters John Kraft (for the Democrats) and John Bucci (for the Republicans) were identical. Wallace recorded 5 percent no matter which Republican possibility was paired against President Johnson — enough to swing the state in a close election.

But nobody today really believes George Wallace would be limited to 5 percent. After his two-day tour here, in (Continued On Page 5)

State Patrol Would Like VASCAR In All Cars

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Despite some challenges to the device's accuracy, the North Carolina Highway Patrol is so pleased with its new VASCAR speed-timers it would like to have one in every patrol car.

"The inclusion of a VASCAR unit in each patrol car would make each patrolman a more effective traffic officer," says the highway patrol commander, Col. Charles Speed.

Sofar 57 members of the 827-man patrol are using the device and 18 others are in training.

The patrol has purchased 100 units and hopes soon to have enough trained men to use them all.

The advantage of VASCAR—which stands for Visual Automatic Speed Computer and Recorder—is that unlike other speed-timing devices, it enables troopers to clock almost any car they can see.

It's being credited with helping to reduce highway deaths since being put into use last Dec. 1.

The highway death toll in December dropped to 147 from the previous December's 214 and the toll in January was down to 104 from the previous January's 123.

The most serious challenges to VASCAR's accuracy came from a physics professor and a student.

The professor watched the device in action and said there was room for human error in its operation.

The student was clocked by the device, charged with speeding, and said he would test the device's accuracy in court.

VASCAR won out over both.

The highway patrol protested the professor's statement and he publicly changed his mind, declaring that with well-trained men there was little likelihood of error.

The student dropped his announced plans for a court test after thinking it over.

The highway patrol defends VASCAR against its critics by pointing to what the patrol considers rigid requirements for troopers who use the device.

Before being allowed to use VASCAR to make arrests, a patrolman must take a day of classroom instruction and 30 days of on-the-highway training, and then pass a test.

The test is administered by North Carolina's community college system.

The trooper makes 25 test timings. If he misses any one by more than two miles an hour, he fails the test.

To use VASCAR, its operator must flip switches when the vehicle he is clocking passes reference points.

The device records the time it took the vehicle to travel between the reference points, calculates the time with the distance between the points and comes up with the vehicle's speed.

A VASCAR-equipped car can make timings while parked or while moving in any direction.

The patrol says arrests with VASCAR are averaging about 1,000 a month and are likely to increase as additional units are put into operation.

VASCAR was developed by Arthur Marshall of Richmond, Va., a real estate broker.

The highway patrol said one of the greatest advantages of VASCAR is that the trooper who is using it does not have to be stationary.

"He can be riding down the road and clock someone he is meeting, or passing, or going away from," said a patrol spokesman.

A VASCAR unit is about the size of a cigar box. It is mounted on a stand in the front seat area of the trooper's car. It can't be seen from outside the car.

A Pilot Training Program for Law enforcement officers involving "Jail and Detention Services" ended a three day session in Greenville this afternoon.

Sponsored by Pitt Technical Institute the school had 41 enrollees from nine Eastern North Carolina Counties.

ry, policeman and prosecuting attorney, all wrapped into one. The Secretary may administer oaths. He "may issue subpoenas" to compel the attendance of persons before him. Failure to obey the Secretary's order would carry a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both. Presumably, though this is not clear, such fines and prison terms would have to be imposed by a Federal judge, but the Secretary (or any designated employee) would have punitive powers of his own. This is the proposal:

"The Secretary, if he determines that his order has been disobeyed, may issue such supplemental orders as he considers as he considers appropriate to encourage compliance with such order. Supplemental orders may include an order to forfeit not more than $50 a day for each day the person continues to disobey it."

How in the name of a free country could any such Federal act as this be seriously considered?

fact, responsible politicians believe Wallace could poll a breathtaking 15 percent in this liberal-oriented state.

Indeed, the complacent feeling of Northern politicians that Wallace is a redneck demagogue who will destroy himself is proving a delusion. Vastly more entertaining and measurably more effective than other candidates, Wallace grows stronger the more he talks. His comparative moderation on Vietnam (expressing sympathy with President Johnson's "frustration" there) combines with a hard-line against Negro violence and attacks on "high-powered, high-paid bureaucrats with briefcases."

Dirksen Moves For Civil Rights Bill Showdown

Cub Pack 385 Has Blue-Gold Banquet

Cub Scout Pack 385 of Saint James Methodist Church convened for their Blue and Gold Banquet Tuesday night at the church Fellowship Hall.

Boys of the four cub dens and two Webelos dens had decorated all of the tables with hand made decorations carrying out the scouting theme. Webelos Den 3 was awarded a prize for first place for the table decorations they had made using the theme "Rivers of the World". Several other dens made decorations using the February theme of "Freedom Festival".

The opening ceremony for the banquet was conducted by members of Webelos Den 4 and their leader, Mr. G. A. Taylor. The invocation was given by Reverend Robert Hufford after which a dinner was served by mothers of the boys in the dens.

Richard Foster, Cubmaster, introduced Phil Moore, who is assistant Scoutmaster for Boy Scout Troop 30. Moore spoke on the importance of the scouting program in the lives of young boys. Reverend Frank Berry, Associate Minister of Saint James, addressed the group on the interrelations between parents and children and the great influences each has upon the other.

Foster introduced the Committee Chairman, Dr. Donald B. Jeffreys, and John B. Davis, Advancements Chairman. He also recognized and thanked each den mother, assistant den mother, and Webelos den leader. The attendance award was given by Foster to Den 4, with 100 per cent attendance. Den leaders recognized were Dr. Ralph Steele, Mrs. Franklin Brown, Daryl Clayton, G. A. Taylor, Mrs. Louis Singleton, and Mrs. Frank Kilpatrick. The Cubmaster then presented badges which had been earned by some of the boys in the pack. Greg Lassiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby R. Lassiter, was initiated into the Pack and was awarded the Bobcat pin.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen is moving to force a Senate showdown vote on a civil rights bill banning discrimination in sale or rental of most American housing.

A vote on Dirksen's petition to end debate—which needs two-thirds approval of those voting to carry—is scheduled for today.

Dirksen helped forge a Southern-Republican conservative coalition that twice earlier beat back bids to end the debate. He has since played a leading role in nailing together a compromise bill.

Some Southern senators objected Wednesday to his petition, saying it wouldn't give them a chance to study the compromise or prepare amendments.

"My reputation for fairness will have to stand on my 40 years of public service," the 72-year-old Illinois Republican replied.

Dirksen defended his support of the open-housing proposal, past versions of which he has vigorously opposed, by saying Negro veterans returning from Vietnam "will be entitled to be integrated into the social and economic life of our country."

Referring to last summer's riots, he said the problems of the cities can't be solved without fairness in the field of housing.

Under the compromise measure, introduced just before the cloture petition, a ban on discrimination in the sale or rental of housing would take effect in three stages and—when fully effective—would cover about 70 per cent of the nation's housing units.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1970, homeowners would be barred from discrimination in the sale of their property if they made use of a real-estate broker. They would be exempted from coverage only if they handled the sale themselves.

They would lose their exemption if, in sales advertising, they indicated racial or religious discrimination.

The first stage of the open-housing provision would take effect immediately and apply to housing financed with Federal Housing Administration or Veterans Administration guarantees, to public housing and to urban renewal projects.

In the second stage, the discrimination ban would apply to multiunit housing, effective Dec. 31, 1968. Financial institutions making housing loans and real-estate brokers would be covered at the same time.

The other part of the bill would provide federal criminal penalties for using force or threats to interfere with the exercise of civil rights.

The original administration bill specified Negroes and civil rights workers for such protection.

But under the compromise, no racial motivation would have to be involved to make interference with federally protected rights such as voting, serving on federal juries or participating in federally aided programs a federal crime.

But racial motivation would have to be a factor under what are classified as state-protected rights. These include use of public accommodations, attending public schools, serving on state juries employment, and use of interstate facilities in travel.

Camera Snaps Bank Robber

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Police, armed with a photograph taken by a hidden camera, today sought a sportily dressed gunman who escaped with $7,891 stolen from a Winston-Salem bank Wednesday.

The robbery of the South Hawthorne branch of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. was the ninth bank holdup in North Carolina this year. About $7,000 has been stolen.

There were a record 29 bank robberies in the state last year, an average of about 2.5 a month. So far this year the average is 4.5.

There were three employees and two customers in the bank in the western section of Winston-Salem when the unmasked gunman, wearing a green and white pinstriped shirt, burst in about 4 p.m., an hour before closing. He ordered the employees to put cash into a brown paper bag, backing up his demand with a small, black gun.

He left by the front door after warning, "Keep quiet; don't make me shoot you."

His stolen, old-model getaway car was found abandoned a few blocks from the bank.

The bandit was described as a white man, 27 to 30 years old, 180 to 200 pounds, with brown eyes, a crewcut and a rough complexion.

He also wore a blue, buttoned sweater, and an all-weather olive green coat.

Pre-Sheeting Plan Assured In Leaf Marketing

RALEIGH (AP) — A tobacco pre-sheeting plan is assured during the upcoming marketing season in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

The Bright Belt Warehouse Association, meeting in special session at Raleigh Wednesday, unanimously approved a plan agreed upon by industry representatives at a Feb. 15 conference sponsored by the U.S. Agriculture Department.

Pre-sheeting is a method of packaging looseleaf tobacco at the farm for delivery to auction warehouses. The sheets to be used will be 71 ounce burlap material, 96 by 96 inches in size with standard markings.

Tobacco growers will furnish pre-sheets for their first deliveries, and buyers will furnish replacements which will be passed on to the growers by warehousemen.

Young ruffed grouse can leave their nests as soon as their feathers become dry, says the Iowa Conservation Commission.

11th Birthday . . .

When the time came for Mrs. Price's first birthday (when she was four years old), a large party was planned for her and the Leap Year boy across the street, Norman Moore. The party, which was attended by 50 children, was covered by the Charlotte Observer.

"Norman and I were good friends while we were growing up. We even dated occasionally. He later married a good friend of mine and is now living in Greenville, S.C."

Naturally, when Mrs. Price was a child, she found it hard to understand why there was not a special day each year that was her birthday.

"My mother always had a birthday party for me, but I knew that my birthday did not fall on the same day each year, as all of my friends' did."

Many times, proposals have come up which would eliminate the Leap Year Day from the calendar. Although this would completely eliminate Mrs. Price's birthday, she is in favor of the change because of small children.

"After all, a birthday is a special day and everyone should have one day to call his own."

When Mrs. Price became engaged, it was not a leap year, but she received her engagement diamond on March 1, her substitute birthday. "In the Leap Year spirit, Lewis made me ask him to marry me. Of course, he had already talked to my parents and we went and picked out the ring together. Actually, I have never known of anyone who ever asked a man for a date in Leap Year."

There is a club in the U.S. of all the people who have birthdays on Feb. 29. However, Mrs. Price has never joined the club.

She celebrates her birthday on February 28 or March 1, "whichever is most convenient," when it is not Leap Year. This year, as usual, she will celebrate her birthday with her family at home.

She is the wife of Dr. Charles L. Price, professor of history at ECU and mother of Kathy, 14, and Annette, 11.

Soviet Ships Repeatedly Harrass U.S. Navy Craft

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet ships have reportedly harassed U.S. Navy vessels about a dozen times in the waters off Korea since the Communist North Korean seizure of the intelligence ship Pueblo.

Both the U.S. and Soviet Union sent sizeable naval forces into the Sea of Japan crisis area in the wake of the Pueblo incident.

Most of the harassments have gone unreported officially, sources said, apparently to avoid aggravating American tensions over the situation growing out of the seizure of the Pueblo and its crew.

The only one reported in-involved a collision, described as minor, between the U.S. destroyer Rowan and a Soviet merchant ship, the Kapitan Vilsbokov, on Jan. 31. The U.S. claimed the Rowan had the right of way.

The unreported incidents were near-misses, sources said.

By this, they meant that Soviet ships, mostly destroyers and intelligence gathering craft, steamed into the midst of U.S. naval formations or sailed dangerously close to American ships.

Both countries have scaled down their naval forces in the waters off Korea recently. At one point, the Soviets had some 14 warships, including two cruisers, operating in the same general area where the U.S. fleet had been built up.

This Soviet naval presence has now been reduced to about five or six destroyers and a few intelligence vessels. The rest reportedly have moved back toward Vladivostok, the main Soviet naval base in the Far East.

The U.S. Navy has meanwhile withdrawn the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise from Korean waters and sent it into action in the Gulf of Tonkin against North Vietnam. This was the Enterprise's original mission before it was diverted to the sea of Japan shortly after the Pueblo was captured.

Two big U.S. aircraft carriers, the Ranger and the Coral Sea, together with their supporting destroyers and supply vessels, remain in waters near Korea. At its peak, the U.S. naval build-up off Korea totaled more than 20 ships.

The dual problem of Korea and Vietnam is straining the Navy's carrier resources in the Far East.

There normally would be three carriers off North Vietnam launching air strikes, with two other carriers either at Subic Bay in the Philippines for repairs and maintenance or in Hong Kong for crew rest and recreation.

Now, the Navy maintains all five carriers on the line—three off North Vietnam and two off Korea.

This means less time off for necessary upkeep and crew rest. It also may mean longer combat tours in the Far East for carriers which have been spending five or six months at a time on war duty.

Possibly Satiated With British Films

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently veteran director George Sidney was quoted in a trade paper as saying that future American musicals will probably be made in England.

This was depressing tidings for the Hollywood labor force, which has been hurting because of the unprecedented slowdown of production. Never has there been so little filming for so long. And no relief seems in sight.

Sidney's remark, of course, was partly aimed at publicizing his latest musical, "Half a Sixpence," which he said was helped by the proficiency of English technicians and the lower labor scale. The latter, plus the generous government subsidy, encourages American companies to shoot expensive films in England.

But I wonder if the five-year flood of British-made, American-financed films isn't reaching a diminishing rate of return.

The Academy Award nominations could be offered as evidence, if only of a superficial nature. You'll note that all five male nominees are Americans, whereas the Oscar race in recent years has been dominated by the likes of Paul Scofield, Peter O'Toole, Laurence Olivier, Richard Burton and Rex Harrison.

All of the nominated directors are Americans, in contrast to recent years. Of the five picture nominees, only "Doctor Dolittle" was filmed in England, and the majority of scenes were made in Hollywood and the Bahamas.

Of course, the academy voters may well be swinging back to a more provincial attitude after several years of sending the Oscars abroad. But those voters very often reflect the feeling of the American movie-going public, as they did in naming the immensely popular "The Sound of Music" as best picture of 1965 despite the deprecations of high-brow critics.

Could it be that the American public is satiated with British entertainment?

I'm beginning to think so. I find nothing unfriendly in this, because Americans generally admire the British and especially support them in their present plight. Nearly everyone agrees that the English are the world's best actors, and they have also proved to be the most imaginative directors in recent times.

But you can get too much of a good thing, especially if it has a foreign sound. For five years or more, Americans have been subjected to a steady stream of Oxonian, Cockney, Liverpudlian and other accents native to the British Isles. Is it any wonder that audiences welcomed the flat Midwest tones of "Bonnie and Clyde" and the Southern Drawls of "In the Heat of the Night"?

Kinston Runs Past Rams; Elizabeth City Wins

McGuire Praises Star Bob Cremins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"Cremins was sensational; he is an all around good basketball player," said Coach Frank McGuire after his South Carolina Gamecocks upset third-ranked North Carolina 87-86 Wednesday night, ending a 20-game winning streak for the Tar Heels.

Sophomore Bob Cremins of the Bronx, N. Y., scored a career high 23 points, including a cool 13 of 16 free throws, and pulled down 16 rebounds.

"I don't know how we did it," beating Duke and North Carolina both on the road within five days," McGuire went on.

The Gamecocks whipped Duke 56-50 last Saturday, dropping the Blue Devils from eighth to 10th in the national rankings.

"We did lose our poise, I think, for the first time this season, when we were about six down and starting rushing shots," said Tar Heel coach Dean Smith. "That's the first time that has happened."

"I don't think we were tight and were under any great pressure because of the winning streak. South Carolina just beat us. They shot so well in the second half and we didn't."

South Carolina was behind 43-36 at the intermission and fell 13 points behind early in the second half.

For the game South Carolina shot 53 per cent and North Carolina 39 per cent.

McGuire, a former North Carolina coach, said, "North Carolina may have been a little tight, with its long winning streak."

"But you can't take anything away from us, the way we fought back from 13 down."

Smith said that, despite the loss, he believes North Carolina did not "feel any letdown, having already clinched the number one seeding in the (Atlantic Coast Conference) tournament," which begins a week from today in Charlotte, N. C.

"Besides, our team has a lot of pride," Smith declared. "They want very much to win every time out."

Duke trimmed N. C. State 71-61 Wednesday night to set the stage for its regionally televised home game against North Carolina at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

On Saturday night, in other games which end the regular season, North Carolina State tests South Carolina at Columbia, and Clemson will be at Maryland.

There are no games tonight or Friday night for ACC clubs.

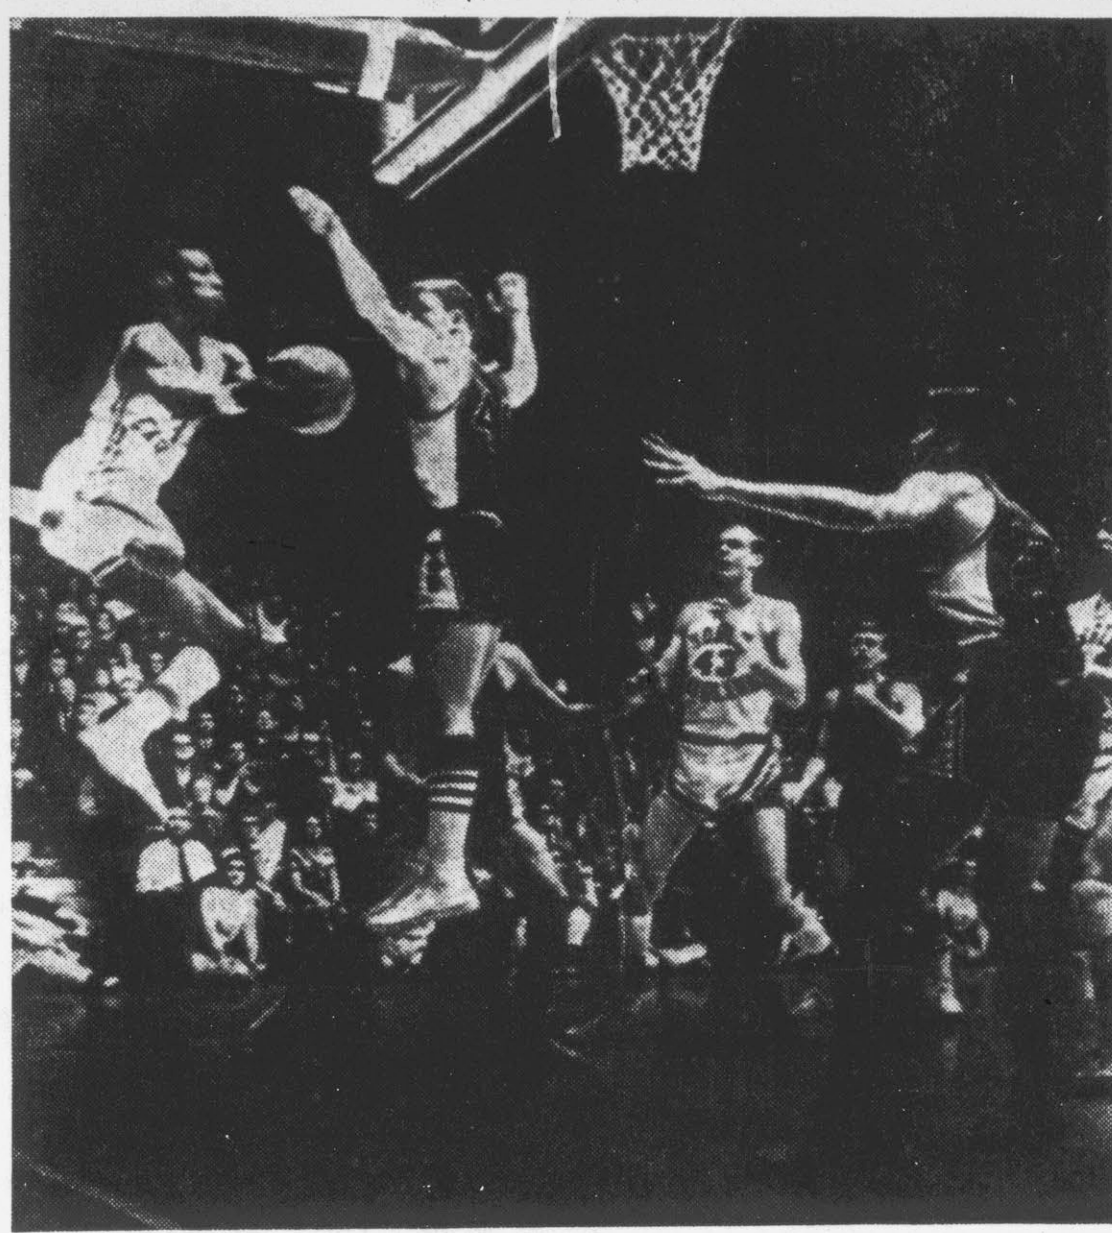

Mike Lewis had 29 points and 18 rebounds for Duke, which allowed N. C. State to creep within one point with less than six minutes remaining, before trotting to a 10-point lead.

There were three other games involving ACC teams Wednesday night.

Clemson, playing its last game in its old field house, which gives way next season to the new Littlejohn Coliseum, was trounced 80-57 by Georgia Tech.

Virginia clinched fifth place in the conference by edging Maryland 70-68. The Cavaliers rolled up a 22-6 lead but, Maryland tightened its press and was behind by only eight points at the half.

St. Joseph's defeated Wake Forest 85-69 in Philadelphia. The Deacons hut their deficit to four points in the first six minutes of the second half, but St. Joseph's went into a tight zone defense and scored 15 of the next 19 points.

Only 2 Southern Teams Have Winning Records

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — None of the four teams—VMI, Furman, Richmond and The Citadel—which open the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament this afternoon has played .500 ball this season, but don't let that fool you.

All eight teams start from scratch in this three-day championship tournament. The winner will play St. John's of New York in the first round of the NCAA Eastern Regional playoffs March 9 in College Park, Md. The Eastern semifinals will be March 15 at Raleigh.

VMI and Furman, who meet in the first game, split their two regular season games, each winning by three points.

The opponents in the afternoon's second contest, Richmond and The Citadel, also have split. The Richmond Spiders won 83-70 and the Bulldogs then won 92-77, each winning on their home court.

The Charlotte Coliseum will be a neutral court for the teams, although favored Davidson, whose campus is 15 miles from Charlotte, has played there fairly often. "Some folks say we're a push-over outside our Lexington gym," says VMI coach Gary McPherson, "but I'm not saying that. We beat West Virginia at Beckley, W. Va. It was our home game, but the only thing home about it was our white jerseys. We also beat The Citadel in Charleston, and that's not an easy task."

"We've played them close all year. I'll bet you can take three games off our schedule, and in all the rest the margin was no more than three or four points with two minutes to play. We've played them to the wire, win or lose."

In tonight's first game, Davidson plays William & Mary. Then West Virginia will play East Carolina to complete the first round.

Semifinals will be played Friday night and the final Saturday night.

1. Davidson, 9-1, 19-4.
2. West Virginia, 9-2, 17-7.
1. Davidson, 9-1, 19-4.
2. West Virginia, 9-2, 17-7.
3. VMI, 8-7, 8-11.

Tourney Bids Loom; ACC Not Sewed Up

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer
Wouldn't it be something if unranked South Carolina won the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship tournament and snatched an NCAA tournament berth away from third-ranked North Carolina and 10th-ranked Duke?

Such a possibility, far fetched only a week ago, moved out of the realm of dreams Wednesday night when the Gamecocks snapped North Carolina's 20-game winning streak 87-86 in the spotlight of a busy night in college basketball.

It was another feather in the cap of Coach Frank McGuire and made the Gamecocks a factor to be reckoned with in the ACC tourney next week. Only five days ago South Carolina upset Duke 56-50.

North Carolina is the runaway leader in the conference, but the tournament decides the NCAA bid.

Bob Cremins, a 150-pound 6-foot-3 sophomore from New York City, paced the Gamecocks with a career high of 23 points and 15 rebounds.

Down 46-33 at the half, South Carolina rallied to go ahead by nine points, then held off the Tar Heels' late surge led by Larry Miller with 26 points.

Duke, the only other team in The Associated Press Top Ten to play, rebounded from its South Carolina defeat to whip North Carolina State 71-61 at Raleigh. Mike Lewis led the Blue Devils with 29 points and 18 rebounds.

Calvin Murphy, Niagara's 5-10 soph star, the No. 2 scorer in the nation, was held to his college low of 15 points as the Purple Eagles lost in overtime at home to Syracuse 50-49.

Long Island, the No. 1 small college team in the AP poll, and St. Peter's, N. J., each accepted invitations to the National Invitation Tournament, upping the NIT field to seven with seven selections still to come.

Three Steal Show In World Skate Triumphs

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Thre American youngsters stole the show in the world figure skating Championships Wednesday and Tim Wood is determined to stay in the spotlight.

Wood, 19-year-old law student from Bloomfield Hills, Mich., surged back into the running for the men's title with two brilliant final compulsory figures.

The brother and sister team of 19-year-old Cynthia and 21-year-old Ronald Kauffman of Seattle turned in a scintillating display to finish third in the pairs championship and prevent an unprecedented 1-2-3 triumph for Russia.

Ludmila Belousova and Oleg Protopopov won their fourth straight pairs championship for Russia with nine ordinals and 315.9 points. Tatiana Zhuk and Aleksander Gorelik of Russia finished second with 19 ordinals and 311.5 points.

The brilliant Kauffmans collected 31 ordinals and 304.3 points to snatch third place away from Tamara Moskvina and Aleksei Mischin of Russia, who finished with 35 ordinals and 303.6 points.

The East Carolina University Pirates open play in the Southern Conference Tournament tonight at 9 p.m.

The Bucs, seeded seventh in the tournament, will face West Virginia in the opening contest. The winner meets the winner of the Citadel-Richmond contest on Friday.

The other bracket pits Davidson against William & Mary and VMI against Furman, with the winners meeting in the other Friday semi-finals. The finals will be played Saturday night.

Red Devils Burn Nets; Elizabeth City Upsets

By SONNY McLAHWORN
Reflector Sports Writer

Kinston ran past last-place Havelock last night, 69-53, while Elizabeth City dumped Roanoke Rapids, 73-68, in the opening round of the Northeastern Conference tournament at Minges Coliseum.

Havelock rallied from an 18-point deficit late in the third quarter to cut the Kinston lead to nine late in the game. A barrage of accurate 20-foot jumpers vaulted the Red Devils into a 20-4 first quarter lead, as Kinston could do no wrong. Jackie Pate led the red-hot Kinston shooters, pouring in four field goals and a couple of free throws for 10 points.

When Donald White hit with 7:28 showing in the half, the Red Devils had an 18-point lead. The two teams traded baskets for most of the second, and third periods, as Kinston emerged from the third quarter with a 47-34 lead. Paul Heuhner and Robbie Jenkins then combined their shooting talents to cut the Kinston lead to nine, as Heuhner hit to make it 53-44 with about two minutes left. The Red Devils hit 14 of 16 free throw attempts in the final period, and that was the story of the contest.

White paced the Red Devils into the semifinals with 20 points, Pate had 16, while Rod Duke got 15 and Joe Karns had 12.

Tom Gwinn led Havelock with 18, while Jenkins and Heuhner had 12 each.

Roanoke Rapids collected five baskets more than underdog Elizabeth City, but Elizabeth City stripped the nets with 25 out of 29 at the foul line.

Cotton Nicholson hit to give Roanoke Rapids a 2-0 edge, but after Ron Hunnings gave the Jackets a 4-2 lead, Elizabeth City took over for keeps.

Elizabeth City built the lead to five midway the first quarter and to seven by the end of the period.

Roanoke Rapids cut the lead to five at halftime.

After swapping baskets in the third quarter, Elizabeth City increased the lead to 14 with four minutes to play. David Armitage led a Roanoke Rapids rally that cut the lead to seven at 62-55 with 1:37 to go. Roanoke Rapids got possession again shortly, but a traveling violation killed their hopes for victory. Armitage's bucket late in the contest finally cut it to five.

Elizabeth City's Larry Gray was the game's high scorer with 19. Geoff Burness had 15, while Tom Beattie had 13. Sam McDonald had 11 and Chuck Robinson scored 10.

Hunnings had 18. Nicholson scored 14, while Armitage and Kirk Adams had 13 each.

First game tonight is between West Carteret and Rose High. Game time is seven o'clock. The 9:00 contest features Washington and New Bern.

Warriors Having Their Troubles This Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Things are going so badly for the crippled San Francisco Warriors that they're even getting hurt by other club's ailments.

The Warriors, with three players sidelined by injuries, bowed to Boston 135-120 in a National Basketball Association game Wednesday night. In the only other NBA game, New York squeezed past Baltimore 126-122.

In the American Basketball Association, Jimmy Rayl led Indiana's double overtime 122-116 victory over Oakland.

John Havlicek, who started for the Celtics because Sam Jones came down with the flu, poured in a first half club record 30 points and finished with 41 as Boston battered the Warriors.

Jones held the old Boston one-half record with 29 points.

The Warriors were without Rudy LaRusso, Jim King and Joe Ellis. LaRusso and Ellis have leg injuries and King has an aggravated groin injury.

Jeff Mullins led San Francisco with 26 points.

Dick Barnett scored five points in the final minute as the Knicks came back to beat Baltimore.

Commissioner Of Baseball Gets Absolute Power From Players

MIAMI (AP) — Major league players representatives ratified a two-year agreement Wednesday, calling for binding arbitration by the commissioner of baseball in any dispute arising between the 20 clubs and players.

The agreement, agreed to in principle by player representatives and owners a week earlier, also sets the minimum player salary at $10,000—an increase of $3,000—and gives the players a greater voice in contractual matters.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' Association, said the player representatives accepted the arbitration clause after agreeing on several procedural changes in the manner of settling grievances.

"We feel that we have tightened up the steps in settling any grievances, subject to the players' approval, before such disputes might come before the commissioner," Miller said.

The players previously had questioned the commissioner's role as an impartial judge, as he is selected by the owners.

Miller said the changes in the uniform players contract prohibits unilateral alterations by club managements during the two-year agreement, ending Dec. 21, 1969, and requires negotiations with the players on any changes after that.

Other measures ratified at the meeting included:

—A study of the reserve clause, which presently binds a player to the club with which he is under contract, to be completed prior to the termination date of the overall agreement.

—A joint study on the length of the championship season, to be completed prior to the drawing up of the preliminary schedules for 1969.

—A reduction in the allowable salary cut from 25 per cent to 2 per cent of the previous year's contract.

—A $3 hike to $15 in the players' daily regular season meal allowance, an increase from $8 to $12 for daily spring training meals and a boost of miscellaneous spring training disbursements from $25 to $40 a week.

—Adoption of a set of scheduling relations for the 1968-69 seasons, aimed at reducing some of the more unreasonable travel demands on the players.

—The banning of championship or exhibition games during the All-Star break, except for charity purposes. The players selected for the All-Star game would not be required to play in such exhibitions.

—A provision for prompt notification and negotiation with the players' association for player compensation should either the American or National leagues plan divisional play games in 1969.

Psychological testing, long a method for gaining insight into students, job applicants and draftees is being adopted to baseball.

Anxious to learn all they can about their athletes, Pittsburgh officials invited Dr. Tom Tutko, a San Jose State psychologist, to administer a motivational test to the Pirates.

Joe L. Brown, general manager of the Pirates, said several pro football teams have used the tests, long a favorite of large companies across the country.

"I want to emphasize," said Brown, "that our sixth place finish has nothing to do with our club taking the tests. If we had won every game last year and won the World Series in four games, I still would have suggested the tests."

Brown says the tests were designed for club officials to learn more about the Pirates, and Gil Hodges, new manager of the New York Mets, has learned something about his club in the few days since training began.

The Mets' Hodges learned, don't have a third baseman.

"We've got to come up with one," said Hodges. "Anytime you use more than two men at one position, you're in trouble."

New York used 11 men at third base in 1967 and finished 10th, which is trouble.

Alvin Dark, another new manager who inherited an eighth place Cleveland team, said only first baseman Tony Horton and third baseman Max Alvis are assured of regular jobs with the Indians.

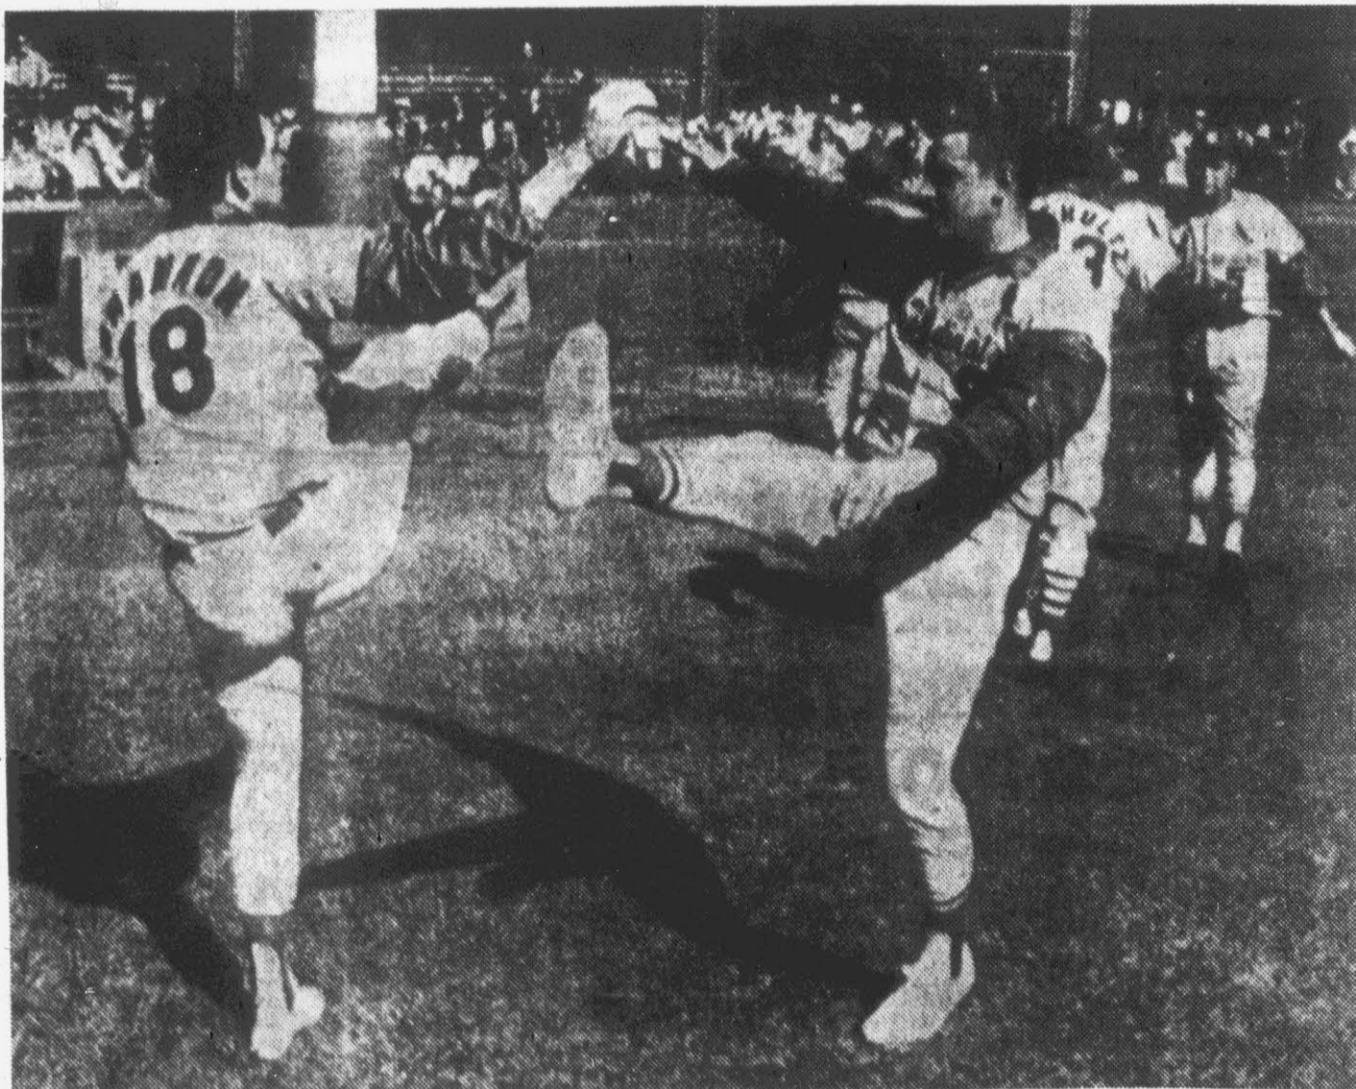

Ollie Brown, an outfielder, signed his contract with San Francisco and Baltimore's Boog Powell took a cut from the Orioles.

Tony Conigliaro, Boston's slugging outfielder, put in a length batting drill against the pitching machine and pronounced his left eye 100 per cent fit. Conigliaro missed the last six weeks of the 1967 season when he was struck in the face by a pitched ball.

"My eye is perfect," said Conigliaro. "There is no blur whatsoever. I can't wait to get at live pitching."

Conigliaro gets that chance today.

Atlanta pitcher Clay Carroll suffered a broken left ankle while running in the outfield and will be out for a month to six weeks.

Runners, Swimmers To Be Unaffected By High Altitude, Says Heart Doctor

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Athletes competing in events that demand short bursts of energy will be unaffected by the 7,300-foot altitude of Mexico City at the Summer Olympics, says Dr. Merritt H. Stiles of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The Spokane heart specialist, chairman of the Olympic unit's Medical and Training Services Committee, writes in the Feb. 26 issue of Federal Medicine

Magazine, however, that "performance will be affected in running, swimming, rowing, paddling and cycling events requiring more than two minutes of maximum effort."

The article reports on a study by the medical committee and is titled "The Twin Problems of the XIX Olympiad: Altitude and Enteritis."

"Team efforts, as soccer football, water polo, basketball, field hockey and bout events where exertion is frequently interrupted for a few seconds, should not be affected," writes Dr. Stiles.

Dr. Stiles, a former president of the National Ski Association, suggests the average healthy individual should not be aware he is at 7,300 feet instead of sea level and adds:

"The symptoms which so frequently occur during early ex-posure to higher altitudes are psychologic in origin..."

The problem of gastroenteritis of "traveler's diarrhea" was of much more concern than altitude to the medical committee, the article says.

Careful supervision of all food and beverages used by the athletes was recommended by the committee, which said Mexico's Olympic officials "understand well the risk... and have planned accordingly."

Griffith "Never Felt Better," Defends Title

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Emile Griffith says he's in great shape. One look at him in action is enough to convince anyone that he's not kidding.

Showgirls hate him when they see his narrow waist. Musclesmen turn green with envy when they look at his broad shoulders and bulging biceps.

The boxing program tale of the tape says his waist is 28 inches.

"It's 26½ inches right now and I've never felt better," said Griffith, who defends his world middleweight title against Italy's Nino Benvenuti at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

This will be Griffith's third title fight with Benvenuti. Griffith lost his crown to the tall, stylish Italian last April and regained it in September.

In the second fight on the doubleheader title card, Joe Frazier of Philadelphia and Buster Mathis of Grand Rapids, Mich., a couple of young, undefeated fighters, will meet for a piece of the world heavyweight title.

New York and Massachusetts will recognize the winner as champion.

Griffith is a 7-5 favorite while Frazier is a 2-1 choice. Both favorites are training here at the Concord Hotel and they have formed a mutual admiration society.

Pistol-Pete Still Shoots; Needs Five More Points

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Maravich, the hot-shooting sophomore star of Louisiana State, needs just five more points in his last two games against Tennessee and Vanderbilt to set a record average for one season in major college basketball.

The latest weekly statistics, released today by the National Collegiate Sports Services, show Pistol Pete still the nation's leading scorer with an average of 45.0 points on 1,079 points in 24 games. The record average is 41.7 set by Frank Selvy of Furman in 1954.

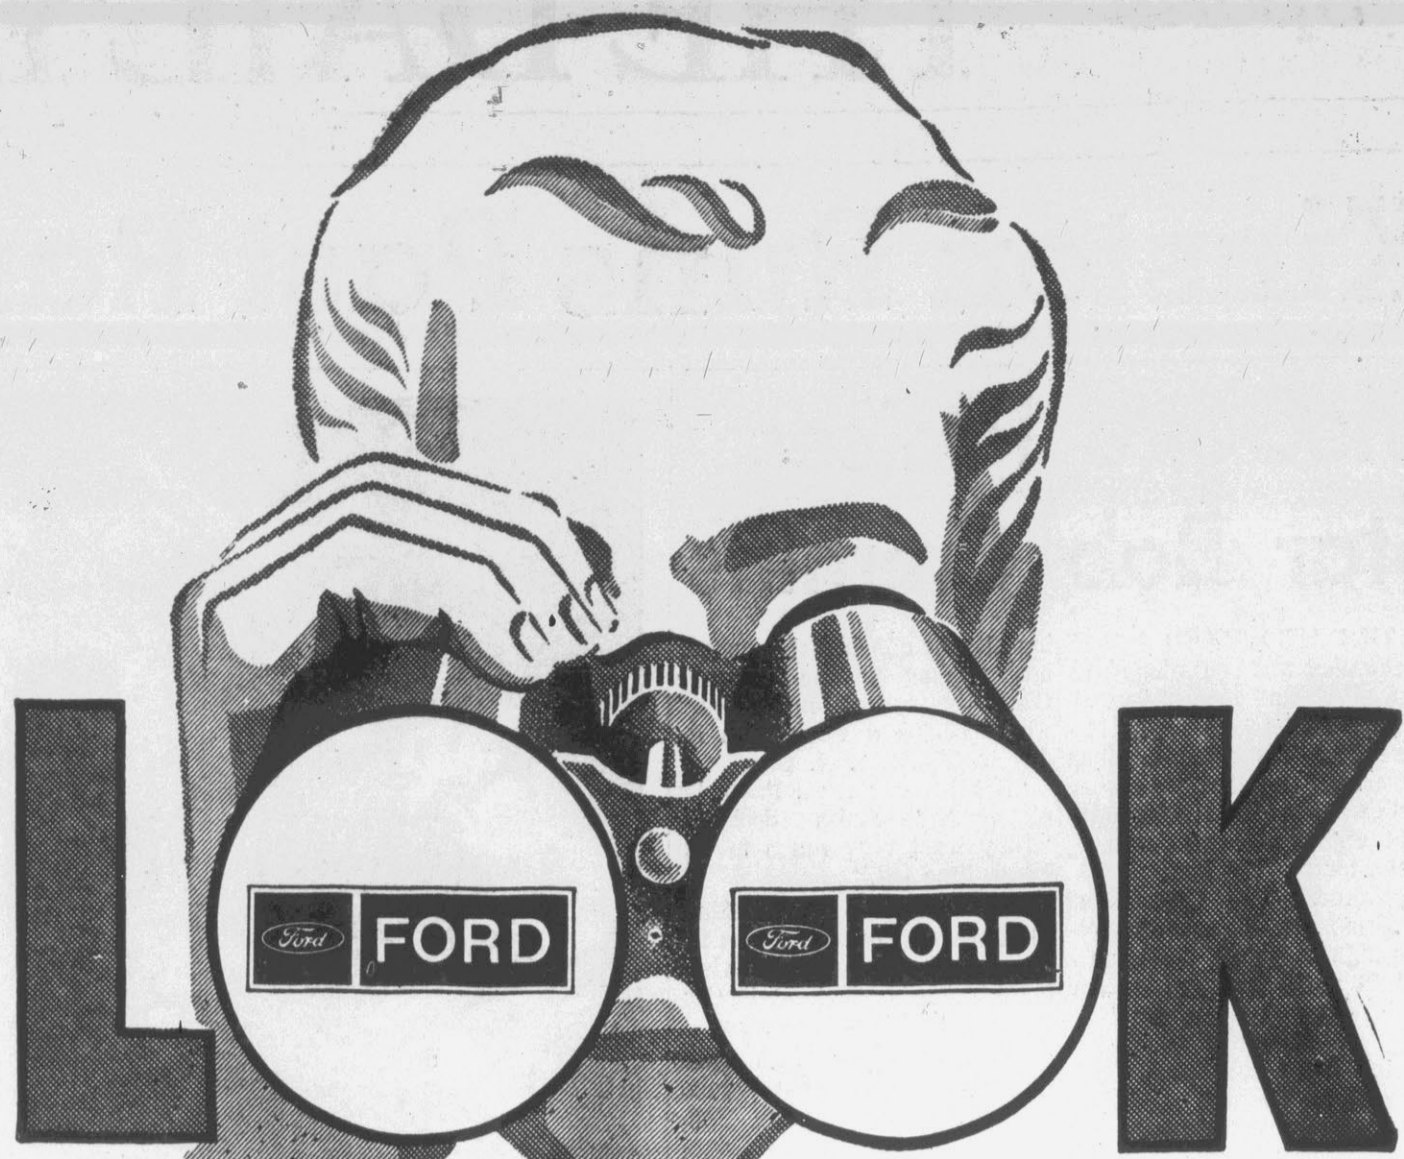

Calvin Murphy, Niagara's soph star, stayed in second place behind Maravich with an average of 39.8. Elvin Hayes of Houston, who scored 62 points against Valparaiso last week, also retained third at 36.7. Bob Portman of Creighton is fourth at 30.2.

Joe Allen of Bradley kept on top in field goal percentage at .665. Joe Heiser continues to lead in free throw accuracy with 105 of 115 for 9.13 per cent.

Neal Walk of Florida regained the lead in rebounding from Garfield Smith of Eastern Kentucky. Walk has 475 for an average of 19.8 to Smith's 404 for 19.2.

Captain Bill Dow of Navy's 1967 football team has been playing with the Middle varsity basketball team.

GOP Governors Might Rally To Rockefeller

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The effects radiation from a nuclear attack might have on decision-making and other behavior of the population—including high government officials—will be studied by Army researchers.

The Walter Reed Army Medical Center announced Wednesday it will begin the study soon in its new "behavioral science laboratory."

Minor studies have probed single aspects, such as radiation effects on blood and psychomotor control, the center said. But it said the new laboratory is unique.

"It will study the total aspect of the patient's behavior including reflexes, blood pressure, decision-making, memory, intelligence, neuromuscular control and personality factors," the center said.

It said much of the research data will come from patients receiving radiation as part of their treatment.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a congressional trip to Spain over a protest from Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, that such trips are unfair when ordinary citizens face a proposed travel tax.

"Until the President withdraws his request for this punitive tax, I'm going to oppose all such proposals," Gross told the House Wednesday. "We have no business approving any kind of resolution for a foreign junket until this issue is settled."

But the House voted 300 to 92 to send three Agriculture Committee members to a meeting in Madrid March 6-12 on sale of U.S. farm products abroad.

Scheduled to make the trips are Reps. Thomas G. Abernethy, D-Miss., Paul C. Jones, D-Mo., and George V. Hansen, R-Idaho, and staff aide L. T. Easley.

The Washington Post quotes unidentified officials as saving an agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union on a nuclear nonproliferation treaty is "within a few words of final form."

Antipoverty chief Sargent Shriver told newsmen with a broad grin he was unaware if President Johnson plans to appoint him ambassador to France. "I'm flattered by all the news reports but I know nothing about it," he said. "I have no plans."

An agreement among 22 U.S. airlines to draw more foreign travel to America with 50 per cent discount fares has been approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

"I have sought the Presidency only because of my deep concern about the future of our country. I am no less concerned now but I have concluded that I can best serve my country and the ideas in which I believe otherwise than as a candidate."

His Problem: A 'Horse Party'

HONOLULU (AP) — Ever gone to a horse party? Neither has Bernaldo Bicoy, but he has to throw one soon and spend $1,000 doing it. Bicoy, an attorney, is administrator of the will of Dr. Clarence E. Fronk, an 84-year-old horse enthusiast who died Feb. 17. Fronk's will left $1,000 to be spent on "a horse party" for his "friends (human) of the horse world."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican governors might be able to mount a formidable bloc of more than 400 presidential nominating votes for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York if they decide to unite behind him.

Michigan Gov. George Romney's abrupt withdrawal Wednesday from the contest for the GOP nomination left the party's moderates barren of a candidate. The immediate reaction was that they would push the publicly reluctant Rockefeller into the contest.

In his parting advice to his moderate colleagues, who number about 18 of the 26 Republican state executives, Romney called on them to get together, quickly behind a standard-bearer who would offer some alternatives to President Johnson's policies—Vietnam included.

If the governors actually do achieve a unity they have not displayed before, they could amass a sizeable chunk of convention votes—mostly from the large industrial states—that might keep former Vice President Richard M. Nixon from sweeping to a bandwagon victory at the Miami Beach, Fla., convention in August.

Nomination requires 667 convention votes.

Romney's decision to pull out seems likely to blunt the effect of what Nixon was counting on as a smashing series of victories in the presidential primaries to establish a new image as a winner.

With the exception of the May 28 Oregon race, where Rockefeller's name might be found on the ballot if he emerges as an active candidate, Nixon will be beating only shadow or write-in candidates. There is no major political profit in that exercise.

If the governors "draft" Rockefeller in a huddle during National Governors Conference sessions underway in Washington, they will count on the New Yorker campaigning actively for the nomination. He has said he is not a candidate but would respond to a draft.

But if the state executives think they can announce their choice and the convention will acquiesce, they don't know Nixon well enough. He will be in there slugging, with an almost solid Southern bloc behind him and strongholds in almost every section of the country.

Rockefeller as a candidate would reap support from the belief popular among a great many Republicans that he is the man with the best chance to defeat President Johnson in November.

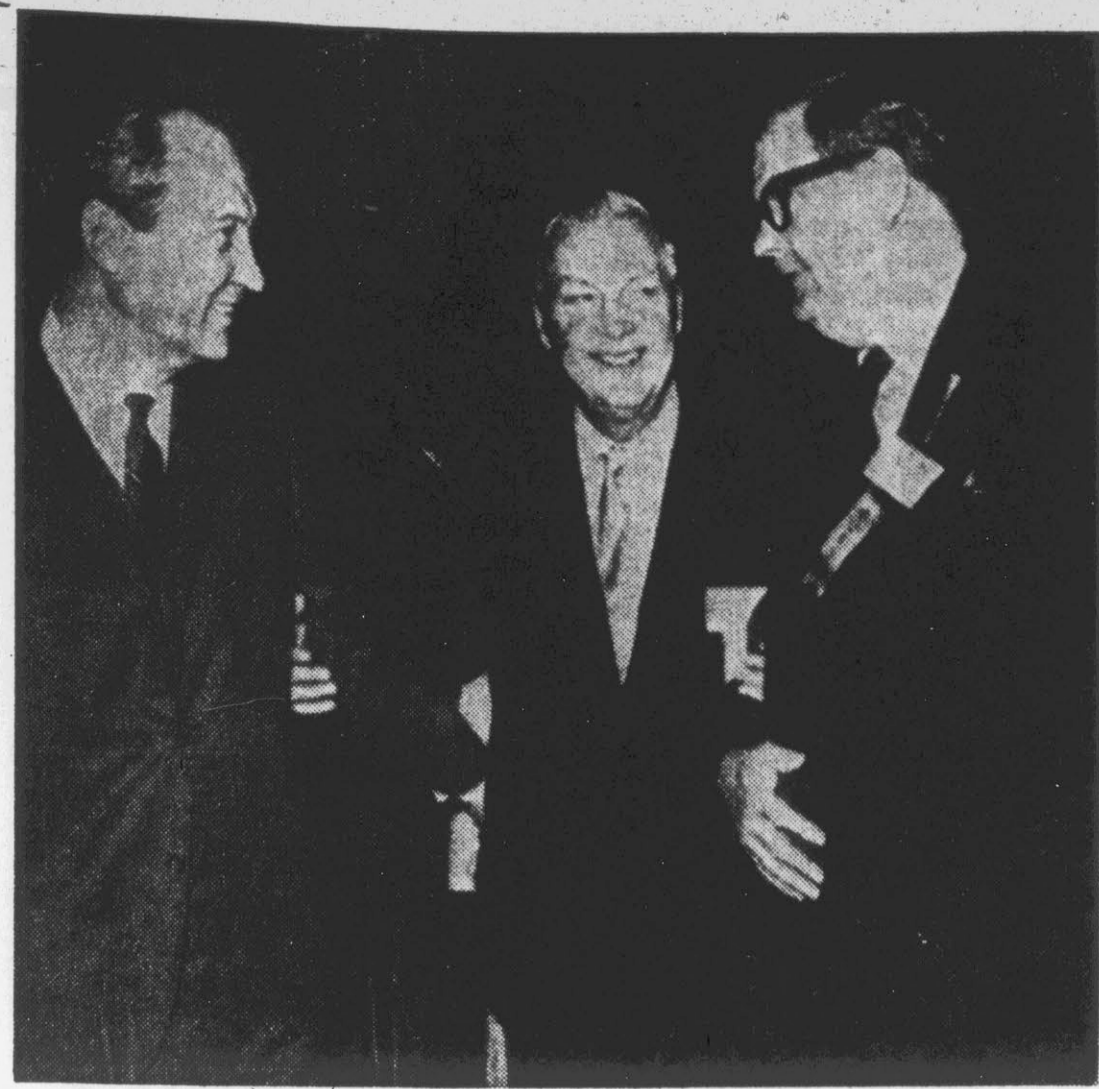

However, the New York governor would have to come out from behind the shield of his state office and take a position on such issues as Vietnam. He has supported resolutions in the past endorsing Johnson's Asian course but has been able to avoid details.

Barty conservatives, still angry with him for avoiding active support of Barry Goldwater in 1964, can be expected to start shooting at Rockefeller at once. They long have felt Romney was going nowhere and that the New York governor would be the moderates' candidate.

'SUB CITY HALLS'
CINCINNATI (AP) — City Manager William Wichman proposed Wednesday that the city study the feasibility of setting up "sub city halls" in some of the suburbs. He said the idea of the plan is to provide the people with more "visible and tangible evidence" of the services they are getting.

Critics Of British Curb Claim Concession Won

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Critics of the British government's bill limiting colored immigration claimed today to have won a major concession—agreement to admit any British citizens expelled from their native lands.

The bill cleared the House of Commons today after an all-night sitting and a debate lasting more than 15 hours. Approval in the House of Lords was expected later today, and the bill then goes to Queen Elizabeth II for her assent, the final step in the lawmaking process.

The bill allows the government to set an annual quota of 1,500 on immigrants who are British citizens but not born in Britain or the children of native-born Britons. The immediate target is about 100,000 natives of Kenya of Indian or Pakistani origin who retained British citizenship when Kenya became independent in 1963. Now they are being frozen out of business, trade and employment by new restrictions on noncitizens of Kenya.

Home Secretary James Callaghan, asked what Britain would do about any Asian "thrown out" by the Kenya government, replied: "We shall have to take him in. You cannot do anything else in those circumstances."

Although Callaghan refused to have his concession written into the bill, his words were taken as a promise that the quota would be modified to admit any British citizens expelled by their country of residence.

"What you have said makes nonsense of the bill," Conservative Geoffrey Hurst told Callaghan. Callaghan had strong words for the Kenyan policy of Africanization.

"I find it distasteful to believe," Callaghan said, "that any Commonwealth government would pursue a policy to the point where it is going to deliberately throw people out of work and ask them to leave the country in which they were born within weeks or months."

He added, however, that it had been impossible to have "any meaningful discussions" with Nairobi on the crisis.

Callaghan promised that Kenyan Asians "who are genuinely obliged to leave Kenya will get first priority" to come to Britain under the quota.

Sandburg Home Bill Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina senators have introduced a bill to establish the Carl Sandburg home and farm at Flat Rock, N. C., as a national historic site.

The "prairie poet," who won the Pulitzer Prize for his Lincoln biography, spent his last 20 years at Flat Rock, and died there last July 22 at the age of 89.

Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr. and B. Everett Jordan, Democrats, introduced the bill Wednesday. A similar measure was introduced in the House last September by Rep. Roy A. Taylor, D-N.C., whose district includes Flat Rock.

Trolley car service in Rhode Island stopped on May 14, 1948.

Two Arrested In Theft Of Art

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two Bay Harbor islands men were arrested Wednesday on charges of transporting a stolen $45,000 Rembrandt across state lines, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

The 10-by-4½ drawing, "The Death of Jacob," was stolen from the wall of the second floor gallery at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts in Canada on Oct. 14, 1964, the FBI said.

The drawing had been recovered, the FBI said, but declined to give details. The men, Seymour Jacobson, 37, and Max Cohen, 53, were arrested at Jacobson's apartment, the FBI said.

Low Per Capita Income Biggest Problem: Scott

LUMBERTON, N. C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Scott says the low per capita income in North Carolina "is the biggest problem we face in our state today."

Scott, a Democratic candidate for governor, said at a speech in Lumberton Wednesday, "We must encourage industrial growth in predominantly rural areas to provide the needed job opportunities — jobs that pay wages above the average of the state as a whole."

Many farm families, Scott said, are moving to urban areas in search of other sources of income and are "creating empty houses in empty fields."

"Income for farm families has not increased in proportion to the rest of our society," he added. "This has been one of the factors of low per capita income in North Carolina, which is the biggest problem we face in our state today."

Vietnam Military Situation Still 'Indecisive'

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second of three articles analyzing the situation in Vietnam today, a month after the Tet offensive started. William L. Ryan's reporting from Vietnam goes back to the time of Dien Bien Phu. Peter Arnett has been in South Vietnam the last six years and in 1966 won a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting from there.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN and PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — It is hard to escape the conclusion that the military situation in Vietnam has come to a critical yet indecisive stage.

The Communists still press the initiative they seized with the first shots of the winter-spring offensive, fired at the border town of Loc Ninh in late October.

Thousands of U.S. troops are bogged down in the stalemate of the Khe Sanh and demilitarized zone sectors. Bloody battles are expected in these regions, and there is little reason to expect that these engagements will be any more conclusive than those of the past. The Khe Sanh situation is developing into one in which allied prestige is laid on the line.

The Red offensive has forced the allies to the defensive in Vietnam. U.S. troops are squeezed around cities. The countryside is open to Viet Cong recruiters who, say informed sources, quickly fill ranks depleted by allied firepower in battle.

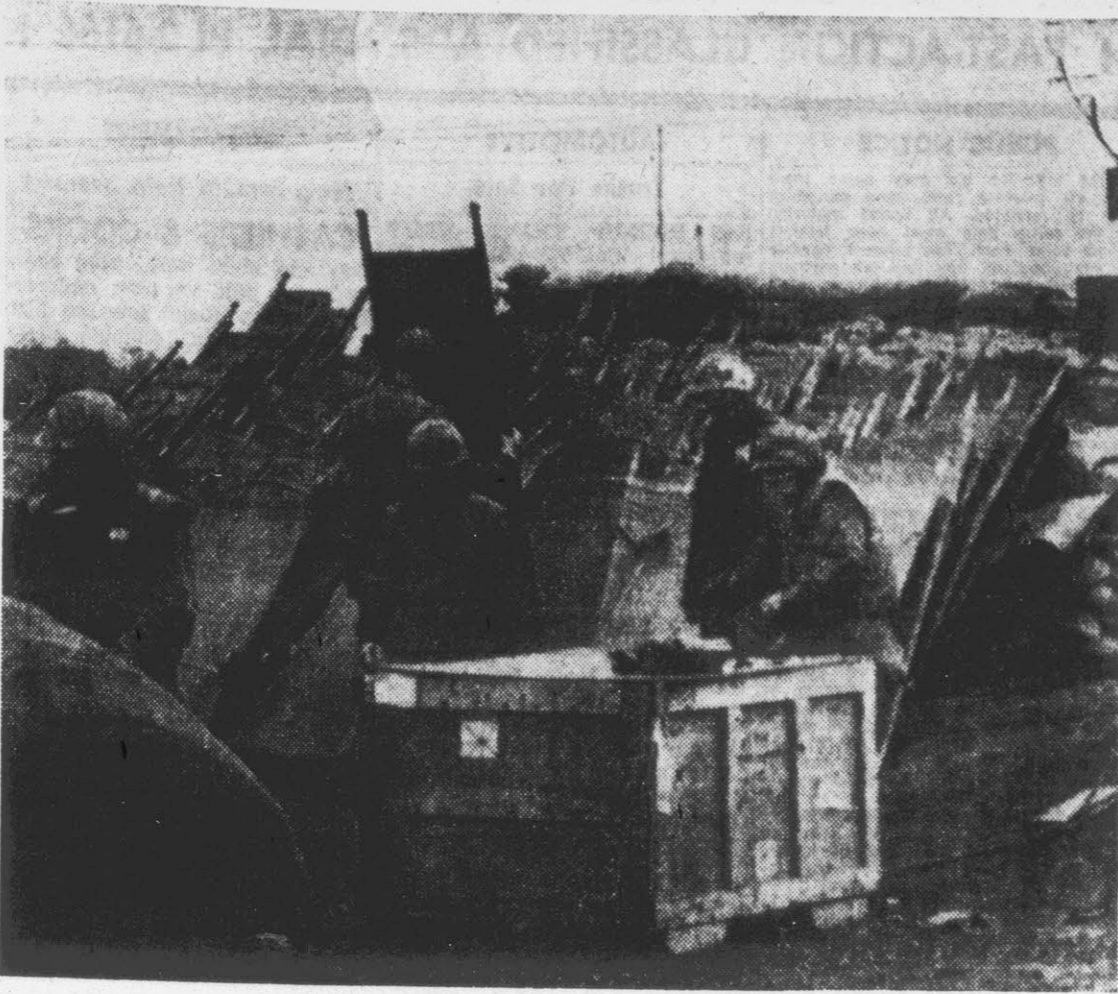

A senior U.S. officer commented recently that it was not the time for an allied offensive because an offensive posture "might give the enemy opportunity to penetrate our lines."

Gen. William C. Westmoreland conceded last weekend: "The Viet Cong-North Vietnamese attacks have indeed taxed the flexibility and mobility of our forces."

One Westmoreland answer to the current situation, as to similar crises in the past including the dark days of early 1965, when the Vietnamese army was in danger of being wiped out, is to ask for more U.S. troops.

"With additional troops we could more effectively deny the enemy his objectives," he said. The first U.S. combat troops were committed to forestall a military defeat. Today, three years and 500,000 troops later, the enemy is again in a position to threaten the cities.

The most experienced observers see Westmoreland needing at least five more divisions immediately to win back the initiative. If enemy capability continues to increase at the rate of the past three years, even the new U.S. troop deployment could be nullified within a year, these observers say.

Gen. Westmoreland says he bases hopes for a U.S. troop commitment on modernization and increased capability of the ARVN, the South Vietnamese army. But information from a dozen battle areas indicates ARVN performance in recent weeks has been uneven at best.

"In most cases their back was to the wall," said one U.S. adviser. "They generally fought well in the city of Ben Tre."

That is in the delta, and the South Vietnamese were fighting for their own town.

In Ben Tre, Vinh Long, My Tho and Can Tho in the delta, fighter-bombers and artillery had to be used to blast enemy troops out of large areas.

One possible reason for Vietnamese reluctance to mix with the enemy was the absence of half the ARVN forces on Tet leave. What units remained fought well. A small armed group in the Mekong Delta town of Tra Vinh moved in on a Viet Cong company that had occupied the province headquarters without firing a shot and killed them all. A regional-force company near the Saigon race track beat off an attack by a North Vietnamese battalion. U.S. infantrymen termed it a skillful and courageous performance.

There is no question the Communist offensive damaged the pacification program—latest in a series of plans to establish a lasting government presence in the countryside. If pacification was a major objective in the offensive, as some suggest, the Communists could claim a success almost by default.

In 13 provinces, the Vietnamese regular battalions assigned to protect pacification regions were pulled out to help defend cities and district towns, U.S. officials reported. Throughout the country nearly half the 555 Revolutionary Development teams assigned to work in and protect top-priority hamlets also were pulled out. U.S. officials say the pacification program suffered seriously in 13 of the nation's 44 provinces, moderately in 16, and slightly in 15.

Security vacuums were created by withdrawal of regular ARVN battalions and Revolutionary Development teams. The Communists are actively recruiting and propagandizing against the Saigon government in such areas, and to refill, those vacuums with government influence may take months.

The Communists, perhaps deliberately, bypassed priority pacification regions but by hammering at administrative urban centers disrupted effective government functions. People were cut off from towns. Communists could roam at will among the population.

In coastal Binh Dinh Province, cradle of the pacification program, U.S. officials are openly depressed. The Communists there are known to have entered hamlets considered to be pacified, destroying laboriously built schools and clinics.

"It's all gone down the drain," said one American, recounting the inroads made in Tuy Phuoc district, long a pacification showcase.

Seventeen of Binh Dinh's 31 Revolutionary Development teams were withdrawn to towns to meet the Communist attacks. Many local militiamen were pulled out of hamlets, and the program in U.S. estimation has been set back at least 18 months—providing the Communists do not launch a new wave of offensives in that period.

"All they have to do is launch a similar offensive once each year, and we'll never get off the ground," said one official.

Top Americans say there is no doubt that the size of the 1968 program must be considerably scaled down now, and objectives reconsidered.

Experiment With 'Civilian Police' Said Well Received In Los Angeles

By MIKE RUBIN Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last November the city began replacing that familiar symbol of street corner authority, the traffic cop, with civilians.

Now, four months later, the pioneering program is getting kind words from almost everyone.

It's saving money. The manpower-short police department can reassign patrolmen to other law enforcement tasks. Public reaction has been good. And both the traffic policemen and their civilian successors wax enthusiastic.

Mild dissent has come, however, from some downtown businessmen who like the idea of having a blue uniform and a badge out front.

Los Angeles once had 85 officers on full time traffic duty. Thirty-three have been replaced by civilians, who underwent two weeks training in traffic regulations and public relations.

They wear uniforms but carry no guns, are not sworn officers and have no authority to issue citations or make arrests. They can, however, file complaints like any other citizen.

Capt. Eugene C. Linton, commander of the department's parking and intersection control division, says it's the lack of arrest authority that has bothered some businessmen.

"Some are hesitant because it takes guns away from their area," he says. "But we feel they will realize that the only thing we've done is take the policeman off the corner and let him move around on foot or in a mobile unit. Generally, public reaction has been good."

A 20-year veteran of the force, Eugene Lee, who now is walking a beat after four years in the traffic division, comments: "The merchant used to be able to look out his window and see us standing there. Now that we're on the move we're just not as handy to some of them as we used to be."

The moving around is what some officers like best about the change. They say pounding a beat is not nearly as tiring—or as hard on the feet—as standing in one spot for hours.

The department saves money two ways with civilians. They're paid less, starting at $545 a month versus $677 for police. And it costs less to train them. Their two weeks of study compare with 20 for an officer.

How do the civilians like the work? Jerry Rector, 24, tried it because "I like to work with people, and you sure meet them here."

Jerry and his twin brother George, who intends to join the group at the end of the current school term, were among 800 applicants for the 33 openings.

Some applicants were postmen who saw the job bulletin posted in the post office and others heard about it on television.

Other applicants had previously applied as officers.

Rector intends to try for the regular force as soon as his six-month probationary period is finished.

The civilians wear blue-gray uniforms while policemen wear dark blue, and this has led to policemen laughingly referring to the civilians as the "Confederates."

"You know what I mean," said one policeman, "The Blue and the Gray."

Federal Debt Limit May Pose Handicap By Election Times

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK AP — Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler once said that a periodic reconsideration of the federal debt limit by Congress provides the nation with:

"... a review of the entire fiscal policy of the government for the year in question and the future."

In other words, the secretary seemed to agree with those who believe Congress should retain the right to raise or lower the limit, and to oppose a formidable group that suggests there be no limit.

This stand the secretary could come to regret this year, for any review of the administration's fiscal policy very likely will provide as big a platform for critics as the current debate over tax policies.

More important, the debt limit it might very well be reached by the administration just before the November elections.

Nothing could better illustrate the complete encirclement of administration strategy, its lack of options, than the words of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., who as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is in a position to kick the trap door and permit the noose to become a knot.

If taxes are not increased, said Mills, "sometime just prior to the elections the secretary of the Treasury is going to be without funds and without authority to issue additional bonds." It can be assumed his tone was grave.

In years past administrations have been put in embarrassing situations by having to trudge up Capitol Hill to ask Congress for the right to go deeper into debt. In the past 50 years, in fact, the ceiling has been raised dozens of times.

On several occasions the administration in power has come face to face with the limit, as it did last year, and so had to resort to bookkeeping tricks. On occasions government bills have been left unpaid because there was no cash on hand.

More often, though, the administration got its increase in the debt limit without much argument, despite the anguish of conservatives who felt Congress was reneging on its constitutional obligation to check excesses of the executive branch.

Seldom, however, has any administration been faced with bigger financing problems and less to say about them. With Mills in such a position of power, few if any options remain for Fowler and President Johnson.

As Mills sees it, the administration should cut some domestic spending, and unless it does so, won't get its tax surcharge proposal cleared. Yet the administration is committed to an expensive domestic program requiring heavy spending.

Furthermore, if the tax proposal isn't passed, the administration may reach the debt limit and so face a debate about its policies at election time, which is about equivalent to the guests raising questions about the groom's character just before the wedding.

Growing Faster Than Removals

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota's forest lands are growing good at a much greater rate than the annual rate of removal, reports the state's conservation department.

The department said surpluses of certain species such as aspen, miscellaneous hardwoods, tamarack and balsam are building rapidly.

Las Vegas Will Be Consolidated

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (AP) — The separate municipalities of East and West Las Vegas, long divided by the Gallinas River and political differences, apparently will be consolidated in 1970.

Residents of East Las Vegas voted 1,074 to 466 Tuesday for the consolidation, which carried in West Las Vegas by a 1,066-75 vote. The consolidation carried in all six precincts.

The early residents of New England were housed in conical huts made of slanting poles covered with brush, weeds, turf and mud.

The Worry Clinic When Brothers Are Radically Different

Terry and Tommy are a typical example of the radically different personalities of two kiddies in the same family. But their differences are due primarily to sequence in the family! For their home environments were very different, despite their mother's statement to the contrary. So send for the "Introvert - Extrovert Tests."

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M. D.

CASE F-504: Terry and Tommy, aged 9 and 8, are brothers. "But, Dr. Crane," their mother protested, "they are unlike in their personalities."

"For Terry has tremendous perseverance."

"Although he is shy, he is much more dependable than his younger brother."

"Tommy is more sociable and enjoys people. He is a talker and easily makes friends with everybody."

"In the Cub Scouts it is Tommy who rings the doorbells to sell tickets for a Scouting event."

"His older brother Tommy may give the orders and supervise the selling, but it is the younger boy who meets the public and tries to sell the tickets."

"Dr. Crane, aren't these traits inherited? For they have lived in the very same home environment and attended the same school."

But they have NOT lived in the very same home environment!

When the older son, Terry, arrived on the scene, there was no other youngster present.

So he could daydream without interruption.

If he were building a tower with his blocks, nobody tried to knock it down or steal his toys.

And he obtained all the lime-light on the family stage.

Then Tommy suddenly became an intruder in Terry's former absolute monarchy.

And a royal feud immediately ensued.

Baby Tommy couldn't equal the superior strength and mental age of his older brother.

So, he quickly learned to shed crocodile tears so harassed Mamma would rush into the room, exclaiming:

"Terry, you are a big boy so give your baby brother a big toy!"

Reluctantly the older son did so, but he watched to make sure he got it back again.

And at night he would possessively survey his toys and take inventory.

So he was well launched upon the road to becoming an introvert.

Introverts tend to be "counters" of their possessions and hoarders of both toys and candy.

In adulthood, they may be very generous to good causes and even become church "titlers."

But their generosity is conscientious and studiously administered.

The younger son soon learns that he must become a talker in order to wangle toys from his older sibling. And also to win Mamma's help in the process.

So the younger child tends to develop into an extrovert, especially if he is close to the older in age and of the same sex.

The older child in later life gets the peptic ulcers for he has executive responsibilities placed on him very early.

"Now Terry, you look after your little brother," Mamma calls out.

The younger boy is under no such obligation! In fact, he doesn't need to look after himself, for doesn't he have an older and more powerful guardian on hand?

So send for my "Introvert-Extrovert Tests," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. Use them to analyze yourself and family!

Day Of Prayer . . .

(Continued from page 1) Mrs. Robert Dasher, people of all ages and races on this day will come together to pray in more than a thousand languages and dialects at services encircling the earth.

They will pray for better understanding, and peace, and for the end of poverty and prejudice among people of the earth.

Before the close of the service at Jarvis, a peace sign will be given by each person. "When The Peace sign is given, the giver places his right hand against the right palm of the receiver and each closes the left hand over the other's hand."

"Each person who receives The Peace will pass it on to the person sitting next to them. And it is suggested that each person after they give The Peace will say in a low voice 'The Peace of God be with you.'"

Cuba Radio Says Ship Incident A Conspiracy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Cuban government charged today that the United States conspired with "traitor crewmen" who mutinied aboard a Cuban cattle boat off the Virginia coast.

Cuba said U.S. Coast Guard vessels pointed cannon and used "a warlike maneuver" to interfere when the Cuban captain, identified as Ricardo Puri Villaseca, rammed a lifeboat in which the men were fleeing.

The Fidel Castro government, in a statement broadcast by Radio Havana and monitored in Miami, said the three were being returned to Cuba as prisoners. American sources have said there was no certainty the three, who sought asylum in the U.S., still are alive.

The Cubans said the ship was 25 miles off the coast but the two Coast Guard skippers who witnessed the incident Tuesday — Lt. Cmdr. R. H. Elkins and Master Boatswain's Mate P. W. Caviness — said Wednesday in Little Creek, Va., the drama was played out 10 miles off Virginia in international waters.

The Coast Guardsmen agreed that the incident could be classed a mutiny.

Radio Havana, voicing the official government line on the incident, said three crewmen of the 550-ton Cuban vessel 26 de Julio en route to Canada took the captain and crewmen by surprise to seize the ship and change its course toward Norfolk, Va. The report said the captain and crewmen were locked up aboard the vessel.

"Immediately after the act of piracy was perpetrated, two United States Coast Guard units and a helicopter invaded the area, located 25 miles from the United States in international waters," the foreign ministry said.

"In manifest agreement with the Yankee war boats, and under obvious protection, the three traitor crewmen who perpetrated the villainy lowered a boat after stealing all the money and a quantity of food (aboard the ship), trying to put themselves under the protection of the North American cannons," the broadcast alleged.

Nevertheless, their miserable purpose was frustrated by the rapid action of the captain and the rest of the crew of the Cuban ship which, by a collision with the stolen boat, made them return to the ship.

The broadcast said the crewmen were disarmed and arrested "like vulgar hoodlums and traitors."

The broadcast said the ship was sailing toward Cuba "bringing the traitors as prisoners."

Meetings For Parents And Children Slated At School

Two important meetings of interest to the public will be held during the month of March, according to Bryant Tripp, principal of Pactolus elementary school.

The first of these meetings will be held at the school building on Thursday, March 21 at 7:30 p.m., lasting until 8:30 p.m. This meeting is for the parents of children who will enter school in the fall of 1968 for the first time.

The second event will be on March 29 and will also be at the school building. This will be Children's Day at the school.

Children who will enter school next fall are invited to the school on this day. They can ride to school on the school bus or be brought by their parents at any time during the day.

Tripp urges any parent living in the Pactolus school district who has a child who will reach the age of six by October 15, 1968, to contact the school prior to these two dates and further information will be given them.

The spokesman would not be more specific or say whether Blanchard had flown missions over North Vietnam.

Advise Rezoning On Greenville Boulevard

Planning-Zoning commissioners last night recommended that a tract of land on Greenville Boulevard east of Dora's Grill be rezoned as commercial.

The commission recommended against commercial rezoning of a lot just west of Greene Mill Run on E. Tenth Street.

The tract on Greenville Boulevard is on the south side of the highway and west of the Lynnedale subdivision entrance. One lot is owned by Ed Tipton and two others by M. E. Sutton. Involved is 450 feet of frontage and a depth of 200 feet.

Attorney S. B. Underwood represented Sutton at last night's meeting. The recommendation will now go to the City Council which must call a public hearing before acting.

Attorney M. E. Cavendish represented a concern which wishes to build a pizza restaurant on the property just west of Greene Mill Run.

The commission recommended disapproval because its policy has been to maintain residential zoning east of Greene Mill Run. However, at Cavendish's request, the commissioners agreed to forward the request to the City Council for its consideration.

The property involved is 150 feet of frontage along Fifth Street, across from Forest Hill Drive.

Robert A. Geist of the Pizza Hut firm told the commission that the operation would be an inside service restaurant.

The commission recommended ed residential zoning for a tract on Hooker Road with commercial zoning for a section fronting on Hooker Road.

Attorney Fred Mattox, representing North Mills Inc., said the firm plans to construct low rent housing on the property. The area along Hooker Road will be used for neighborhood type shops, he said.

Commissioners also instructed City Manager Harry Hagerly to obtain ordinances from other cities regulating apartment construction for comparison with Greenville's ordinance.

They authorized Hagerly to retain a planning consultant to revise the city's zoning designations.

Notice Of School Desegregation Plan Under Title VI Of Civil Rights Act Of 1964

THIS NOTICE IS MADE AVAILABLE TO INFORM YOU ABOUT THE DESEGREGATION OF OUR SCHOOLS. KEEP A COPY OF THIS NOTICE. IT WILL ANSWER MANY QUESTIONS ABOUT SCHOOL DESEGREGATION

1. Desegregation Plan In Effect
The Greenville City public school system is being desegregated under a plan adopted in accordance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The purpose of the desegregation plan is to eliminate from our school system the racial segregation of students and all other forms of discrimination based on race, color, or national origin.

2. Thirty-Day Spring Choice Period
Each student or his parent, or other adult person acting as parent, is required to choose the school the student will attend next school year. The choice period will begin on March 1, 1968 and close March 31, 1968.

3. Explanatory Letters And School Choice Forms
On the first day of the choice period, an explanatory letter and this notice will be sent by first-class mail to the parent, or other adult person acting as parent, of each student then in the schools who is expected to attend school the following school year. A school choice form will be sent with each letter, together with a return envelope addressed to the Superintendent. Additional copies of the letter, this notice and the choice form are freely available to the public at any school and at the Superintendent's office.

4. Returning The Choice Forms
Parents and students, at their option, may return the completed choice forms by hand to any school or by mail to the Superintendent's office, at any time during the 30-day choice period. No preference will be given for choosing early during the choice period. A choice is required for each student. No assignment to a school can be made unless a choice is made first.

5. Choice Form Information
The school choice form lists the names, locations and grades offered for each school. The reasons for any choice made are not to be stated. The form asks for the name, address and age of the student, the school and grade currently or last attended, the school chosen for the following year, the appropriate signature, and whether the form has been signed by the student or his parent. "The race, color, or national origin of the student is requested for purposes of recordkeeping required by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The information will not be used in any way to discriminate against the student." Any letter or other written communication which identifies the student and the school he wishes to attend will be deemed just as valid as if submitted on the choice form supplied by the school system. (The names of students and the schools they choose or are assigned to under the plan will not be made public by school officials.)

6. COURSE AND PROGRAM INFORMATION
To guide students and parents in making a choice of school, listed below, by schools, are the courses and programs which are not given at every school in this school system.

7. SIGNING THE CHOICE FORM
A choice form may be signed by a parent or other adult person acting as parent. A student who has reached the age of 15 at the time of choice, or will next enter the ninth or any higher grade, may sign his own choice form. The student's choice shall be controlling unless a different choice is exercised by his parent before the end of the period during which the student exercises his choice.

8. PROCESSING OF CHOICES
No choice will be denied for any reason other than overcrowding. In cases where granting all choices for any school would cause overcrowding, the students choosing the school who live closest to it will be assigned to that school. Whenever a choice is to be denied, overcrowding will be determined by a uniform standard applicable to all schools in the system.

9. NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT, SECOND CHOICE
All students and their parents will be promptly notified in writing of their school assignments. Should any student be denied his choice because of overcrowding he will be promptly notified and given a choice among all other schools in the system where space is available.

10. STUDENTS MOVING INTO THE COMMUNITY
A choice of school for any student who will be new to the school system may be made during the spring 30-day choice period or at any other time before he enrolls in school. An explanatory letter, this notice and the school choice form will be given out for each new student as soon as the school system knows about the student. At least seven days will be allowed for the return of the choice form when a choice is made after the spring 30-day choice period. A choice must be made for each student. No assignment to any school can be made unless a choice is made first.

11. Students Entering First Grade
The parent, or other adult person acting as parent, of every child entering the first grade is required to choose the school his child will attend. Choices will be made under the same free choice process used for students new to the school system in other grades, as provided in paragraph 10.

12. Priority Of Late Choices
No choice made after the end of the spring 30-day choice period may be denied for any reason other than overcrowding. In the event of overcrowding, choices made during the 30-day choice period will have first priority. Overcrowding will be determined by the standard provided for in paragraph 8. Any parent or student whose first choice is denied because of overcrowding will be given a second choice in the matter provided for in paragraph 9.

13. Tests, Health Records And Other Entrance Requirements
Any academic tests or other procedures used in assigning students to schools, grades, classrooms, sections, courses of study, or for any other purpose, will be applied uniformly to all students without regard to race, color or national origin. No choice of school will be denied because of failure at the time of choice to provide any health record, birth certificate, or other document. The student will be tentatively assigned in accordance with the plan and the choice made and given ample time to obtain any required document. Curriculum, credit, and promotion procedures will not be applied in such a way as to hamper freedom of choice of any student.

14. Choices Once Made Cannot Be Altered
Once a choice has been submitted, it may not be changed, even though the choice period has not ended. The choice is binding for the entire school year to which it applies, except in the case of (1) compelling hardship, (2) change of residence to a place where another school is closer, (3) the availability of a school designed to fit the special needs of a physically handicapped student, (4) the availability at another school of a course of study required by the student, which is not available at the school chosen.

15. All Other Aspects Of Schools Desegregated
All school-connected services, facilities, athletics, activities and programs are open to all on a desegregated basis. A student attending school for the first time on a desegregated basis may not be subject to any disqualification or waiting period for participation in activities and programs, including athletics, which might otherwise apply because he is a transfer student. All transportation furnished by the school system will also operate on a desegregated basis. Facilities will be desegregated and no staff member will lose his position because of race, color or national origin. This includes any case where less staff is needed because school are closed or enrollment is reduced.

16. Attendance Across School System Lines
No arrangement will be made, or permission granted, by this school system for any students living in the community it serves to attend school in another school system, where this would tend to limit desegregation, or where the opportunity is not available to all students without regard to race, color or national origin. No arrangement will be made, or permission granted, by this school system for any students living in another school system to attend school in this system, where this would tend to limit desegregation, or where the opportunity is not available to all students without regard to race, color or national origin.

17. Violations To Be Reported
It is a violation of our desegregation plan for any school official or teacher to influence or coerce any person in the making of a choice or to threaten any person with penalties or promise favors for any choice made. It is also a violation of Federal regulations for any person to intimidate, threaten, coerce, retaliate or discriminate against any individual for the purpose of interfering with the free making of a choice of school. Any person having any knowledge of any violation of these prohibitions should report the facts immediately by mail or phone to the Office for Civil Rights U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C. 20202 (telephone 202-962-0333). The name of any person reporting any violation will not be disclosed without his consent. Any other violation of the desegregation plan or other discrimination based on race, color, or national origin in the school system is also a violation of Federal requirements, and should likewise be reported. Anyone with a complaint to report should first bring it to the attention of local school officials, unless he feels it would not be helpful to do so. If local officials do not correct the violation promptly, any person familiar with the facts of the violation should report them immediately to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare at the above address or phone number.
