Senator Says U.S. Shows Strain Of Viet War

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D - Wash., declared Saturday night that although America is showing "signs of strain" over Vietnam, the "overwhelming majority of the American people are determined that the end of the conflict—although it may not be easy or early—will be an honorable one."

body of American opinion advocates retreat from Vietnam or an abandonment of Asia." The senator made these comments in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual $50 a plate Democratic Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

Other speakers at the dinner which brought about 1,500 Democrats to Raleigh included Gov. Dan Moore and U. S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C. In his talk, the governor lambasted the Republicans saying the people should not underestimate Republicans "on their ability to confuse."

called them the "dumbo duo" jumping back and forth to save the state from all problems, especially those they create on the spot." He added, "there's 'Patman' who says to hold up on everything, especially progress. He wants to stand pat with yesterday's solution for tomorrow's problems."

Jackson said that while some Americans are "engaged in constructive criticism and debate of our policies" in Vietnam, "some people are engaged in nothing less than the slander of America."

Nixon "nor are bald-faced political appeals unsubstantiated by the remotest hint of a plan—I will end the war."

unemployment," a housing program, child health program, drug control, and a farm program "to help farmers bargain more effectively for a fair share of American prosperity."

U.S. Takes Heavy Toll As Fighting Increases

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. troops weeks blew up a depot containing tear gas bombs. Fumes poured into bunkers filled with American Marines.

The pilots called in air strikes, and the U.S. Command said bombs and rockets hurtling from jet fighter-bombers killed at least one of the pack elephants and destroyed part of a heavy-duty road used by the North Vietnamese for a possible new offensive on the highlands.

The Da Nang zone fighting erupted at mid-morning Saturday when elements of the U.S. Army's American Division ran into a large Communist force entrenched on paddy field plains 27 miles south of the huge Air Force-Marine complex.

Students Wind Up Legislative Meet

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina student legislators wound up their annual meeting Saturday by electing officers and hearing talks from three state political candidates.

Gardner praised the students for a job well done and expressed confidence in the young people of the state and nation. Broughton said, "I am truly the candidate of the young people...and I have, in the past, asked for a state-wide referendum on the question of lowering the voting age."

Both sides blazed away past sundown as U.S. planes and artillery crews threw a curtain of bombs and howitzer shells into the area to knock out Communist bunkers ahead of the advancing American armor.

Candidates addressing the students were Democratic gubernatorial candidate Mel Broughton, Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Gardner and Smith Bagley, Democratic candidate for Congress in the fifth district.

"If they succeed," he said, "North Carolina will become a ghost state. Our problems would be like those of West Virginia and the coal industry. Unemployment would be high; income would be low."

There were no serious injuries resulting from the tear gas, and the Communist barrage infiltrated light overall casualties, UPI correspondent Nat Gibson reported from Khe Sanh.

Will Write-In Hold The Key To Election?

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—New Hampshire holds the nation's first 1968 presidential primaries Tuesday but the performance of the expected losers promises to get more attention than the vote for those favored to win.

President Johnson in the Democratic primary and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon on the Republican side are prohibitive favorites to win their respective contests.

The president's only major challenger is Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who thinks the Johnson administration's conduct of the war in Vietnam is pointing the nation toward disaster.

Write-in votes, seldom subject to easy predictions, will be the key to post-primary efforts to interpret the New Hampshire results.

McCarthy's name will be on the ballot with those of three minor candidates going nowhere. Johnson is a write-in candidate advanced by the state Democratic organization headed by Gov. John W. King and Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre.

Vietnam is the overriding issue in the Democratic primary. But the vote will also test Johnson's popularity among New Hampshire Democrats.

Primary voters often provide an outlet for protests from voters who will stay loyal to their party in November elections.

Nixon's name is on the Republican ballot with those of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, Harold E. Stassen, onetime governor of Minnesota, and six lesser known candidates.

Romney was supposed to provide Nixon's major active competition until his surprise announcement Feb. 23 that he was withdrawing from the race for the presidential nomination.

After running downhill for a year, Romney quit when his own polls indicated he was far in back of Nixon and even behind the prospective write-in vote for Rockefeller, his chief supporter.

When Rockefeller declared himself available for the nomination March 1, he also said he would not compete for it in the primary in New Hampshire or any other state.

John A. Beckett of the University of New Hampshire faculty had been directing a low-budget amateur organization in behalf of Rockefeller.

Organize Campaign. Former Gov. Hugh Gregg, state director of the campaign which gave Rockefeller only third place in the 1964 primary, enlisted in the 1968 campaign after Romney's withdrawal.

A telephone campaign was organized along with plans to spend about $8,000, which the Rockefeller organization said was raised entirely in New Hampshire to send postcards to almost 200,000 mailboxes.

The postcards carry information on how to cast a write-in vote for Rockefeller.

Gregg said 15,000 votes for Rockefeller, out of an expected 90,000 Republican turnout, should carry a message to Republicans across the nation that the New Yorker has substantial support.

He said Nixon appealed only to Republican voters and that the GOP needed a nominee with appeal to independents and Democrats to carry the heavily populated states which gave the late John F. Kennedy victory over Nixon in the 1960 presidential election.

Moore Labels Republicans 'Dumbo Duo'

RALEIGH (UPI)—Gov. Dan Moore labeled the state's Republican gubernatorial contenders the "dumbo duo" at the annual Democratic Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner Saturday night.

The governor also predicted "another good year for the Democratic party" in North Carolina.

"I see an auditorium filled with Democrats capable of giving the Republicans another licking," Moore told his audience at Memorial Auditorium, "confident of total victory for the party in the fall elections."

"Meanwhile, back in the jungle—the land of the elephant—there has been some bickering going on of late," the governor said. "One side accused the other of wanting to steal the party organization. My goodness, if they can't trust each other, how in the world do they expect the people of North Carolina to trust them with state government!"

"And, all their trumpeting about party switching. Naturally it adds considerably to the stature of their party when any Democrat condescends to become a Republican. As for me—and the great majority of all Democrats—I had rather fight than switch."

Four Persons Injured In Mishap Last Night

Four persons were injured, one critically, here last night when a car skidded some 190 yards and crashed into a parked car at Green Springs Park. Two of the youths are from Greenville.

Jerry Dixon, 19, of Tarboro, was taken to North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill for treatment of his injuries and was reported in critical condition.

Also injured in the 7:12 p. m. accident were Linda Eileen Jernigan, 21 - year old East Carolina University student from Rt. 2, Colerain; Thomas Harold Andrews, 21, of Rt. 2, Tarboro; and Tommy Elks, also 21, of Greenville.

Investigating officers reported that the car operated by Dixon began skidding in front of the Greenwood Cemetery on East Fifth Street, skidded off the right shoulder of the road and across the highway. The auto then apparently skidded down an incline into Green Springs Park, crashing into the parked Elks vehicle.

Officers reported that Dixon's shoe had to be dislodged in order to remove him from the car. Andrews was reported hospitalized at Pitt Memorial Hospital while Miss Jernigan and Elks were treated for injuries and released.

According to police, Dixon may be charged with drunken driving and careless and reckless driving.

Damages were estimated at $1,500 for the Dixon car and $1,400 to the Elks vehicle.

Candidates Visit Here

At least two of the gubernatorial candidates are visiting the Greenville area this week.

Democratic hopeful Mel Broughton Jr. is scheduled to join a near sell - out crowd at 3 this afternoon to watch the first Greenville performance of the Harlem Globetrotters. The Globetrotters, famous basketball clowns, play the Washington Generals in Minges Coliseum.

Republican candidate John Stickley will visit the city Tuesday to give a guest speech at the regular meeting of the East Carolina University Young Republicans Club.

Stickley's speech, scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in Room 132 of New Austin Building, is free and open to the public.

O.W. Pierce Novel Is Called His Best Effort Yet

By HENRY HOWARD Early reviewers of Ovid Pierce's new novel, "The Devil's Half" (Doubleday, 287 pp., $4.95), seem to agree that it is his best effort yet, that it is truly an artistic book and that it is a rare piece of expert literary craftsmanship in a time when, as one critic put it, "massive hysteria often parades as creativity."

Pierce, novelist-in-residence at East Carolina University, will make a personal appearance in Raleigh this Thursday night, March 14. He will be the guest speaker at the N. C. Literary Forum which meets at 8 o'clock at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union at N. C. State University.

"The Devil's Half," released Feb. 23, rates high with Doubleday. The publisher has already started an ambitious national advertising campaign for the Pierce book, including full-page inside back cover spreads in Publisher's Weekly, the book industry journal. Early reviews would seem to justify Doubleday's faith in "The Devil's Half."

Reviews in national magazines and major metropolitan newspapers have yet to appear. Orville Prescott, famous and long-time New York literary critic, gave the book this solid send-off: "This is the best novel I have read in many months. It is beautiful, moving and sad with all the dramatic intensity of human grief and all the poetry of language and feeling which so rarely gets into fiction today. . . . This is a book Turgenev and Chekhov would understand and admire. I know that it is a fine achievement and I hope that it wins the critical and popular success it so richly deserves."

Here is a collection of excerpts from North Carolina reviewers to date: Frank Adams, Greenville Reflector: ". . . This novel is an experience, an adventure, a quest. It is rewarding and inspiring because, to quote another great American novelist, it is an affirmation not only that the human spirit will survive, but that it will prevail."

Elizabeth Copeland, Greenville Reflector: "Those who remember 'The Plantation' and 'On a Lonsome Porch' will recognize and enjoy again beautiful writing from a master craftsman. (This is a story) of courage and good will, told with strength and dignity in a language that is a joy to read."

Bernice Kelly Harris, Raleigh News & Observer: "It is one of the rare novels of a time which some novelists have attempted to project with sentimental or decadent angles and which Ovid Pierce has perceived with somber truth and timeless beauty."

Roy Martin, Greensboro Daily News: "It is the study of the human heart, written by a masterful scholar." Walter Spearman, Chapel Hill Weekly: "(This is) an eloquent elegy for a North Carolina plantation and the people who lived on it in those difficult times of Reconstruction. This is an autumnal book — old and wise and sad and infinitely moving. . . . Ovid Pierce has looked back with dignity, with tempered control, with both eloquence and elegance; and his book is a work of art, perfect in its own way and infinitely worth reading."

Workshop On Right Wing Extremism Set

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will be the site of a day-long workshop on right-wing extremism Monday. Community leaders, ministers and laymen from throughout North Carolina have been invited to share in the event sponsored by the Board of Christian Social Concerns of the North Carolina Methodist Conference. Dr. Joyce V. Early will open the workshop with a devotional at 10 a. m. Featured speaker of the morning session is Sherman Harris of Richmond, Va., regional director of the Anti-Defamation League.

His topic is "What is Extremism—Who the Extremists Are and How Do They Work?" The group will preview the movie, "Anarchy USA?" and will follow with an analysis and discussion of the film.

The afternoon session, which opens at 1:30 p. m., will feature two addresses by Dr. James Stoner and Charles R. Baker. Dr. Stoner will address the group on the attacks against the National Council of Churches. Baker will speak on "How to Combat Extremism".

The Methodist-sponsored event is open to the public, according to the Rev. Ralph Fleming of Raleigh, chairman of the sponsoring board.

The purpose, according to Fleming, is "to examine and discuss the tactics and goals of radical right extremism, which has challenged the processes of our democratic republic, the orderly progress of this nation toward liberty and justice for all men, and the integrity and loyalty of the citizens and institutions of our free society." He noted that the Methodists sponsored a workshop two years ago on the "Dangers of the Left and the Communists and Extremists".

The registration fee includes a packet of materials. The second conference is set for April 2, at Edenton Street Church, Raleigh.

Telephone Co. Starting Improvements, Expansion

Improvement and expansion of the Greenville telephone exchange is now underway.

Linwood R. Langley, local manager for Carolina Telephone, said today that a $375,- 000 program is in progress to expand the company's central office equipment here.

Included in the project will be installation of equipment to provide facilities to serve 3,250 new telephones for subscribers in this area and permit better grades of service to present subscribers.

Langley said that the growth of Greenville in recent years has brought about an increased demand for telephone service. This demand has taxed the capacity of present equipment. Telephones in this area have increased from 7,600 to nearly 16,000 in the past ten years.

"The construction program here is in keeping with Carolina Telephone's continuing program to fulfill the telephone needs of the communities it serves," he pointed out.

Langley said, "The new improvement and expansion program at Greenville was engineered to allow for telephone growth in the future."

66-Year-Old Peace Corps Work Here

A Peace Corps volunteer, 66-year-old Orpha H. Dougherty, will be visiting the campus of East Carolina University the week of March 11.

She will speak in classes and she will be available during the day at a Peace Corps booth in the University Union, located in Wright annex. She will also address various campus organizations during the week, describing the work of the Peace Corps, and she will give a Peace Corps examination to interested persons. Miss Dougherty spent two years on Peace Corps assignment in Peru. She taught parents and teachers to prepare school lunches, developed her own recipe for a marmalade made from native papaya and gave English lessons to young Peruvian women who wanted to become bilingual secretaries. She spent considerable time helping a Chinese-Peruvian girl, a wheelchair victim of polio, to complete a special eighth grade course by correspondence with a Maryland school. Miss Dougherty has BA and MA degrees in Spanish from the University of Kansas.

Learn To Burn, Avoid Polluting

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The Air Force has learned how to burn its classified documents without polluting the air—much to the satisfaction of the El Paso County Health Department.

There were complaints the Air Force was violating an anti-air pollution ordinance when it burned secret files and other documents at the Aerospace Defense Command headquarters here.

A health officer said his investigation showed a gas furnace was being overloaded with classified material. "Now that the personnel know how to use the equipment, we aren't getting any complaints," he said.

Commendations For Paddlings

CORRY, Pa. (AP) — The superintendent of Corry High School, where 70 students were paddled for playing hooky, says he has been besieged with commendations.

"I'm very pleased and surprised," said Ray Elsea.

"One lawyer even wrote from Philadelphia. 'You don't know me,' he said, 'but I want to congratulate you,'" Elsea said.

"I get the feeling that a lot of people think that this ought to be done more often," he said.

Search For Clues In Drownings

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI) — Authorities searched Saturday for a fisherman who is believed to be the last person to see eight Marines and a sailor alive before their canvas war canoe capsized in the icy waters of the Potomac River.

The fisherman was mentioned in testimony before a three-man Marine court of inquiry which began hearings on the drowning of the nine servicemen last Wednesday. All were members of an elite physical fitness academy at this Marine base 35 miles south of Washington.

The tribunal will try to reconstruct the circumstances surrounding the accident and report to the Secretary of the Navy whether the victims died in the line of duty or because of misconduct. Such a decision is required before veterans, benefits for survivors can be approved.

Only one body, that of S. Sgs. Kenneth N. Andrews, 24, of Mount Rose, Calif., has been recovered during three days of air, land and sea operations.

Grants Approved For N. C.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Appalachian Regional Commission Saturday approved several grants for projects in North Carolina. They included:

$118,160 for construction of sewage treatment facilities at Lake Lure, N. C.

$151,200 for construction of sewage treatment facilities at Robbinston, N. C.

$86,500 for construction of vocational education facilities at Alleghany County Consolidated High School, Sparta, N. C.

$228,640 grant for construction of sewage treatment facilities for Walnut Cove, N. C.

Opposes Dams On Neuse River

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — Democratic Third District congressional candidate Don Howell of Goldsboro said Saturday dams should not be built on the Neuse River in order to keep the inland waterway open.

Howell proposed the building of 12-foot high earthen dikes along the river, which he said could be built at a cost of $1,948,000 a year over a five-year period.

"The total cost would be less than the nearly $10 million lost in flooding of the Neuse in 1964," Howell said.

Bagley Lashes Government

RALEIGH (UPI) — Tobacco heir Smith Bagley Saturday called the federal government's anti-smoking campaign a war on tobacco aimed at destroying the livelihood of 200,000 North Carolinians.

Bagley, a Democratic candidate for the 5th District congressional seat, told the senate student legislature that he did "not quarrel with the right of the federal government to point out what they consider a health hazard."

"I do object to their use of fear tactics and wholly unsubstantiated claims to control and motivate our thought," said Bagley, heir to the Reynolds tobacco fortune.

He said the "opening shot in this campaign" came three years ago when the U. S. surgeon general "issued a report, hardly scientific, stating that the use of tobacco products is a danger to health."

Planning Sandburg Memorial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A plan for the proposed Carl Sandburg Farm national historic site near Flat Rock, N. C., was announced Saturday by the interior Department.

The National Park Service plan proposed a three fold program for development and administration of the farm: Preservation of the buildings and grounds as they were in Sandburg's lifetime;

Use of rooms in the basement of the house and in the garage for interpreting Sandburg as a poet and bearer of American traditions;

Operation of Connemara as a demonstration farm including a goat herd of the type the Sandburgs kept.

Gardner Sponsors Conference

RALEIGH (UPI) — Fourth District Congressman Jim Gardner sponsored a conference to inform retired citizens of benefits available to them here Saturday.

Attending the conference were representatives of the Veterans Administration, the U. S. Treasury Department, the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the North Carolina Department of Public Welfare and the Governor's Coordinating Council on Aging.

Wallace To Guest On TV

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI) — James C. Wallace, associate professor of social studies at North Carolina State University, will be the featured guest on "North Carolina News Conference" here Monday night.

Wallace will be interviewed by a panel of North Carolina newsmen on the program which is broadcast over the University of North Carolina's educational television system.

Wallace has published several studies on teacher education in North Carolina and last week came out in favor of retaining the National Teacher Examination. Many teacher organizations in the state have opposed the NTE.

Seek Trial For Hawkins

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Solicitor Elliott Schwartz says he plans to bring Dr. Reginald A. Hawkins, a Democratic candidate for governor, to trial on voter registration charges at the May 20 term of Superior Court, more than two weeks after the primary election.

The charges were brought years before Dr. Hawkins, a Charlotte dentist and civil rights leader, announced as the first Negro candidate for governor in North Carolina history.

Schwartz said he is investigating the possibility of getting Mecklenburg County to hire a special prosecutor to handle the case.

The case was remanded to Mecklenburg Superior Court from the 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on May 17, 1965.

Hawkins was indicted Sept. 7, 1964, on charges of interfering with Mrs. A. M. Houston, a special registration commissioner in Charlotte's Precinct 2, on April 8, 1964.

Held On Charge Of Rape

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — Police were holding Michael Bunch, 20, of Goldsboro without bond Saturday charged with the rape of a 15-year-old babysitter at his home.

The girl told police she was watching Bunch's child while his wife was in the hospital.

Where Taxi Driver Died

CHARRED TAXI — This is the battered and burned taxi which was being operated by a white cab driver when he radioed that he was surrounded by a rock-throwing crowd of Negro students on the Knoxville College campus early Saturday. The body of A. J. Boruff, 27, was found shot to death on the campus about an hour later. His taxi straddled a gully about 75 yards away.

Lawrence B. Sheppard Dies In Hanover, Pa.

Word has been received here of the recent death of Lawrence B. Sheppard in Hanover, Pa.

Sheppard was the son of of Greenville, who gave Sheppard Memorial Library to the city. It is named in memory of Harper Sheppard's father, William Henry Haywood Sheppard.

At the library's dedication in 1930 Lawrence Sheppard presented the library to the city on behalf of his family.

Lawrence Sheppard was a shoe manufacturer and owner of the nation's largest harness horse breeding farm. He was originator of a challenge trophy for Maryland's junior horseman of the year.

Sheppard was chairman of the board of the Hanover Shoe Co., Inc. The firm was started by his father and a partner in 1899.

During World War I, Sheppard was a United States Navy aviator. When World War II began, he was appointed to the War Production Board as deputy director of the leather and shoe division. He made a special visit to Europe during the war to check on the foot problems of the Allied soldiers. For his efforts, he was awarded the Medal of Freedom in 1945.

He was one of the founders of the United States Trotting Association in 1938. He served as the association's president from 1950 to 1958.

Sheppard was also chairman of the board of the National Bank and Trust Co. of Central Pennsylvania.

Taxi Driver Is Shot On Negro College Campus

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—A white taxi cab driver was shot to death Saturday when he drove onto the campus of predominantly Negro Knoxville College and apparently found himself in the midst of a black power rally.

Police identified the victim as 28-year-old A. J. Boruff, who radioed the dispatcher of the Checker Cab Co., his employer, that his vehicle had come under attack by rock-throwing youths immediately after he arrived at the school to pick up a fare.

Boruff's body was found lying face down about 40 yards from a girls' dormitory, leading police to surmise that he had tried to escape on foot.

Police said he had been shot in the chest with a small caliber pistol. His cab was set ablaze.

Authorities said they were not certain of the events leading up to Boruff's death, but had received reports that a group of students had gathered on the campus and were shouting black power slogans about an hour before the cabbie was shot at 5 a.m.

When officers later poured onto the campus to investigate the shooting, they were greeted by students with loudspeakers who shouted complaints against police brutality and protested the number of officers on campus.

Dr. Robert Owens, president of the college of about 900 students, located about ten blocks west of the main business district, said he went to the campus shortly after trouble began brewing after midnight. He said he had heard some rumors that a group of Knoxville College students had attended a recent black power meeting in Atlanta, but he would not tie this in with the incident of the night.

Noyd Convicted And Sentenced

CANNON AFB, N.M. (UPI)—A nine-member court martial board Saturday sentenced Air Force Capt. Dale Noyd to a year at hard labor and ordered him dismissed from the service for refusing to train a Vietnam-bound pilot.

Noyd, 34, a former psychology professor, fighter pilot and 12-year veteran of the Air Force, was found guilty Friday of disobeying an order to fly a training mission last Dec. 5.

The board also ordered Noyd's pay and allowances forfeited.

Noyd testified he was opposed to the Vietnam War on moral and religious grounds and his "religious conscience" made it impossible for him to obey the order. He said he would rather go to prison than help with the Vietnam War effort.

The prosecution had asked that Noyd be sentenced to two years.

The court martial board, although it allowed testimony concerning the deep feelings of Noyd's religious beliefs, did not allow Noyd to tell about the "religious experience" which brought about his opposition to the Vietnam War.

The defense presented several character." Joy said he had before the board handed down its verdict.

An undetermined amount of money was reported stolen from the cash register of Ken's Furniture Company here Friday.

Greenville police reported that at 1:45 p.m. a Negro male approached clerk Paul Banta at the store office window and asked Banta to assist him in some shopping.

Officers said that after helping the man, Banta returned to the office and discovered the theft of all paper money in the cash register.

Construction High In Feb.

New construction for February totaled $3,845,319 — one of the largest months ever.

The huge total was even more remarkable because it did not include any new construction on the East Carolina University campus.

The largest permit during the month was for 240 units of low rent housing in the Moyewood development. The value was set at $2,376,469. There will be 131 buildings in the project.

A second permit was issued for 50 duplex apartments, or 100 units, to be constructed by a private corporation on Hooker Road. The value was set at $751,500.

Another building permit was issued for construction of the steel lining retaining wall along the river bank in the Shore Drive area. Value of this project was set at $378,850.

Building Inspector J. W. Wilson reported that 13 permits for dwelling construction were issued with a total value of $192,500.

There were four residence additions to cost $24,000 and two residence alterations with a value of $2,200.

Permits for construction of two business buildings were issued valued at $98,000. There were three permits for business additions costing $24,000 and two business alterations to cost $8,500.

New construction for the fiscal year which began July 1 now totals $13,231,115.67.

Building permits issued during the month of February totaled 27 and there were 19 heating permits. Some 34 plumbing and sewer inspections were made and there were 308 other calls and inspections.

Fourteen buildings were demolished last month bringing the total for the fiscal year to 44.

Money Recognized As The Factor

Pitt County Board of Education has recognized that money is a key factor in implementing the long-range plans that have been made for improving the county's public education system.

Last week the Board asked that tentative plans for the new North Pitt Consolidated School be revised in an effort to bring cost of the building, including its site, to the $1.6 million figure initially budgeted for the project. Architects working on plans for the facility informed the Board they estimate the facility would cost approximately $1.8 million.

It may not be possible, of course, to construct the new consolidated school for the amount the Board has tentatively budgeted for the project. The very fact the Board has asked that plans for the school be revised in an effort to reduce the cost to within the budgeted figure reflects their concern for financial considerations involved in meeting the needs in this county.

The Pitt County Board of Education, like the Greenville Board of Education, is faced with the task of providing for school needs over the next few years, but without sufficient funds in hand or in prospect with which to do that job. Greenville's Board of Education recently pointed out that funds available or anticipated in the next few years were $2.5 million short of what they estimated would be needed for school construction projects tentatively scheduled for the same period.

As the County Board of Education moves forward with its projection of construction programs, there is little doubt it finds the same problem confronting it. The call for revision of plans for the first phase of the new program evidences the fact that the Board already is facing up to the difficult task of trying to stretch too-few dollars as far as they will go.

It is reasonable under these circumstances for citizens of Pitt County to do some facing-up themselves to the realities which confront their public education system. All bond issues for school construction in Pitt County now and in the future will be on a county-wide basis. Although the city and county school administrative units have not yet spent funds provided in the bond issue approved a number of months ago, those funds and others anticipated from other sources will not be sufficient to meet the school needs that already present themselves.

In the not-too-distant future Pitt citizens are going to have to decide whether to issue more school bonds or see their school construction needs go unmet. It is not too early for citizens of the county, like their representatives on the boards of education, to face that fact squarely.

Split Persists In Mecklenburg

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — The legislative delegation from the state's most populous county, Mecklenburg, was the largest numerically in the 1967 General Assembly and usually the most frustrated.

It numbered 10 members—three in the 50 member Senate and seven in the 120 member House—which under legislative redistricting as a formidable and impressive edge. Many small, rural counties were stripped of direct representation in Raleigh.

But Mecklenburg's delegation had its troubles. It was often at odds internally. It caused were described as stormy. There were disputes, spats and jealousies. It represented something new in North Carolina—large and fast-growing urban and metropolitan center and it asked for changes which were looked upon with suspicion and doubt.

blocks it the levy will go into effect in a few months.

Attempts Are Made
Attempts are being made to block it. There is a group in Charlotte known locally as the "Ax the Tax" committee and it contends that legislation allowing Mecklenburg alone to levy a local sales tax in unconstitutional and that the enabling act should be declared null and void.

Suit has been filed and a preliminary hearing held in the cause brought by Mecklenburg Citizens for Fair Tax (MCFT). Papers were served on State Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton in Raleigh early this week.

Said Clayton, "Whatever the outcome of the hearing in Charlotte, I'm certain we'll be hearing more about it." Clayton feels sure that the question of constitutionality of the local option tax will have to be settled by the State Supreme Court.

Outcome Awaited
Outcome of the test case will be awaited with keen interest. Several gubernatorial candidates already have approved the idea of extending the local option sales tax statewide as a method of relieving local financial pinches. If the Mecklenburg statute is ruled unconstitutional there would be alternative of making it applicable statewide or amending the state constitution.

Filing Deadlines
With closing of the books for filing of candidates who will run in statewide and district elections, attention has turned to legislative and other candidates who may file with various county boards of elections. The deadline for these candidates is March 22.

Indications are that as usual many of these candidates and would-be candidates will wait until shortly before the deadline to decide whether to make the race. There are, of course, exceptions.

One recently is the decision of State Rep. Thomas H. (Buck) Bunn of Raleigh who has served three terms Bunn cited "personal reasons" for not seeking re-election. He is a member of a Raleigh law firm.

Pedestrians Getting A Break At Five-Points

Motorists who have braved the hazards of Five Points during the months that a temporary traffic light system has been in use, will be happy to note that a permanent installation is now underway.

Hopefully this will mean the end of utilities poles in the streets and traffic lights that can not be seen by pedestrians.

The temporary system was strung on supporting wires after a truck backed into a center pillar at the busy downtown intersection, causing its removal. Since then the traffic light system has been a source of bewilderment to local drivers and strangers alike.

We hope the work now being done will help the situation.

Nightmares In House Election

By WILLARD H. MOBLEY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians guessing about what would happen if no presidential candidate won a majority of the electoral votes next November aren't having just one nightmare—there are two.

The first is over how to win the presidency by means of an election in the House which would be required if no candidate had enough Electoral College ballots.

The second one involves the vice presidency and succession to the White House. Political analysts are treating as a real possibility the chance that former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's third party might siphon off enough electoral votes to leave neither a Republican nor a Democrat with the required 270 Electoral College votes.

To set up such a hypothetical problem they credit Wallace with the 35 votes from Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina and assume enough drainage of ballots from regular parties elsewhere to create upsets in virtual deadlock.

That would throw the presidential contest into the House of Representatives with each state having just one vote.

Presumably the intrastate election vote would follow straight party lines and the party in control of a majority of state delegations would win.

But suppose the third-party states remained behind their man and neither a Democrat nor a Republican could muster the required 26 of the 50 delegations for a winning majority.

If the third-party supporters made no deal with one or the other major party, a deadlock could last until the next election, without a real president. The off-year elections might change House makeup enough for a decision in two years instead of four.

That is where the vice presidency comes in. Under the Constitution, in case of House election for a president, the task of naming a vice president falls to the Senate.

The Senate's selection for vice president becomes acting president if the House cannot settle on a chief executive.

The senators have one vote each in the election of such a man, so party control in the chamber would be a big element.

Presumably the Democrats would win as things stand now. They have a heavy majority and even the staunchest Republicans sound wistful when they talk about taking command in the Senate this year.

But if a Republican presidential candidate squeezed through in a House election and the Senate remained and Democratic control there might be a party split between the two offices.

Dog's Instinct At Work

The Lansches of Forrester Hills have a dog of mixed parentage named Snoopy.

About seven weeks ago Mrs. Virginia Lanche decided it was time to find the dog a home in the country. So she turned Snoopy over to a man who was to take him to a country store in the Farmville highway.

That would have ended that, except that Mrs. Lanche's son, John, is a law student at Chapel Hill.

He was driving down the street there one day when he spotted a dog that looked exactly like Snoopy.

He stopped and the dog saw John. He ran toward the vehicle. As John described it after the dog "almost jumped in the car window" and there was no doubt it was Snoopy.

Snoopy wouldn't leave John after that and even went to classes with the second year law student. Finally John got back to Greenville and brought Snoopy home.

There Snoopy will remain now, cared for by a younger brother and sister Allan and Joann.

"We are enjoying having him back," says Mrs. Lanche.

The family has no idea how Snoopy got to Chapel Hill. His toe nails were worn down and a veterinarian who examined the dog after he was found described him as exhausted.

It could be through canine instinct he walked to Chapel Hill following John.

Redevelopment Director A. E. Dubber informed us that he would be glad to furnish the proper terminology to our sports writers for this crew racing thing in which East Carolina University now indulges.

Other Editors Saying Gangsters & Cigarettes

(Greensboro Daily News) State Sen. Robert Morgan, now running for attorney general, let the Charlotte Jaycees know the other day that he is against helping out organized crime. Specifically, he wants to keep crime syndicates from smuggling Tar Heel cigarettes.

It is well known that our cheap, tax-free cigarettes are sold at great profit in states where special taxes have upped the price to 40 cents or even 50 cents a pack.

Mr. Morgan rightly pointed out that big-time smugglers and gangsters are greedy for any dirty money that can be made from our cigarettes, and he warned: "If we in North Carolina allow it to use this opportunity, I am afraid organized crime very shortly will reach its ugly arm into many other aspects of our daily lives, and we all shall ultimately be the losers."

Right, Mr. Morgan. We don't want crime—organized or improvised.

To thwart the smugglers, he suggested, North Carolina should "co-operate with other states in their efforts to curb the operations of organized crime." He recommended requiring firms selling cigarettes to keep records of large purchases, presumably so that lawmen in other states could stop Tar Heel cigarette shipments at their borders.

Maybe so, Mr. Morgan. But look:

Our cigarettes are smuggled because they are the cheapest in the nation. They are cheap because our state, alone among the 50, does not tax them. Furthermore, many of our institutions and people, smokers and non-smokers alike, need additional tax revenue. Therefore, by simply putting a reasonable tax on cigarettes North Carolina could provide better public services and keep the "ugly arm" of organized crime out of our daily lives.

Put that in your pipe, Mr. Morgan.

ALVIN TAYLOR

What brought it to mind was a conversation with your columnist about the retaining wall and walk which the Redevelopment Commission is now building on the river.

Seems the East Carolina crew team (is that the right terminology?) practices on the river. When they have their meets (or whatever they are called) the finish line is right at the wall. So fans of the sport will have no trouble viewing the races (or is it contests?) from the esplanade when it is completed.

At any rate crew fans will probably have the most elaborate vantage point to be found anywhere once the Redevelopment Commission's 76 mem-

NASHUA, N. H. — The strange and unexpected results of a canvass last week in the town of Milford near here is another sign that Sen. Eugene McCarthy, given up for dead a month ago, may shake the White House to its foundations in New Hampshire's Democratic primary next Tuesday.

The canvassers, McCarthy student volunteers from Princeton, found lower and lower-middle income voters in Milford wholly uninformed about the primary. Few were aware McCarthy was running, fewer realized that President Johnson's name was not printed on the ballot and almost nobody had been canvassed by Johnson forces. The unmistakable prognosis: a low turnout.

This and other evidence indicates that the impressive Johnson write-in organization devised by Bernard Boutin, the state's foremost Democratic tactician, may be a paper tiger.

If so, Mr. Johnson will not get working class votes in the Nashua and Manchester areas to counteract McCarthy's assured anti-Vietnam turnouts from the college towns of Hanover (Dartmouth) and Durham (University of New Hampshire) and from the country — squire gentility of Concord.

So unpredictable is the size of the voter turnout and the number who will actually write in the President's name that scientific pollsters cannot guess the outcome. But contrary to early boasts by the Democratic regulars here that McCarthy would be held to 10 percent, his total is likely to exceed 25 percent and conceivably could climb to 40 percent—enough to give him momentum for next month's Wisconsin primary.

Actually McCarthy's low-key campaign style is not stirring the voters any more now than it was a month ago. What has changed is the fading prospect that Boutin's carefully planned statewide organization can overcome the President's personal unpopularity.

From the beginning, Boutin made a calculated decision against asking the Democratic National Committee for outside speakers or cash. His parsimonious campaign, costing around $50,000, has spent nothing for billboards or television and just began newspaper advertising. In contrast, McCarthy's spending has now reached $120,000 ($40,000 of which were raised among McCarthy's Wall Street friends last week) including heavy television advertising.

The original LBJ strategy of substituting a tight, statewide organization for expensive advertising has been weakened by the rank-and-file's lack of enthusiasm for the President, and reduced even further by bad news from Vietnam. This contrasts vividly with the hundreds of McCarthy student volunteers (bearded boys and shaggy girls carefully excluded) pouring into New Hampshire each weekend from Eastern colleges.

Nor is party support for the President quite so monolithic as it seems. Although only six of the State Democratic Committee's 76 mem-

The result was that Mecklenburg's legislators, divided among themselves much of the time, waged unprofitable, often disappointing fight and lost most of the time. They salvaged only one thing.

Local Option Approved
Finally, and with a great deal of reluctance, the legislature gave Mecklenburg authority to go ahead with a local option, on per cent sales tax provided that its voters would agree to it.

That was purely an experimental thing. Many legislators felt the idea would be rejected—that voters in a locality surely would oppose additional local taxation.

But this proved false. Mecklenburg's voters approved the additional sales tax in a special referendum last Fall and unless some thing

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LIVE AN EDUCATION

Celia Burleigh has written: "When God would educate us, He impels us to learn bitter lessons; sending us to school to the necessities rather than the graces, that by knowing suffering we may also know consolation."

It is amazing how many people think of God as an angry deity, striking sinners down in their iniquity and sweeping them aside in their folly.

There is no greater heresy entertained in the human mind and heart than a concept such as this. For God is love. God is a father. This neither means that He is a dotting grandfather nor that He is a monster. It means just what the Bible says: that God is love, that He is light, that He is power, that his delight is to bring the grace salvation to our souls and fill our lives with satisfaction and happiness.

Then why so much unhappiness? Most of it is the result of our own folly or evil. God permits certain heavy disciplines to rest upon us that we may be educated toward high—and noble ends. Even his own Son had to experience temptation, and almost his last word of appreciation to his disciples was that they had been with him in his temptations. There was great suffering at the last and then great glory.

So let us be assured that this life we live is an educational experience. God is getting us ready for a high, a noble, a heavenly destiny. Discipline leads to life. Growth appears to be the divine objective.

Bankers Get Earful From Lady

By ELMER ROESSNER
Faith Prior, a perky assistant professor at the University of Vermont, let the American Bankers Association have it at its national savings conference in Boston this week.

Miss Prior, who is a family economist, had been invited to speak on consumer attitudes towards banks. And she gaily told the bankers what she, as a consumer, thought they were doing wrong. A few bankers winced but most applauded.

Here are things she told the bankers:

One customer relations: "Whatever happen to that old chestnut about the customer is king? I've already taken over the job of filling in my name, address, account number and zip code in three places on my mail deposits, thereby saving your time as well as mine—so let's just watch it, shall we?"

Velvet And Art
On bank images: "I wish that your image weren't always so shiny. I read the sign 'Seaman's Bank' and conjure up the picture of a gruff, tattooed old seadog collecting his pay at the end of a six-months voyage and stumping into the Seaman's Bank on his cork leg to salt some of it away for his old age. And what do I find? Wall-to-wall velvet, a highly coiffed blond receptionist, and an exhibit of nonrepresentational art in the lobby yet!"

On bank advertising: "I 'I have a picture, taken a couple of years ago, of a bank front in Kansas with two large ads displayed: 'We pay 5 percent interest on bank deposits!' and 'Short-term loans available at 5 percent!' Either there was something a little odd about one of those rates or that bank was in trouble."

Os Christmas clubs: "In my town (Burlington) alone

$1,521,984 in club checks was mailed out in 1967. If we assume half this amount as an average for the year on which to base simple interest payments, a rate of 4 percent would have brought savers a return of $30,440. Not only does this represent a loss

I intend to cling desperately to my family's individuality, even though this may mean all manner of inconvenience to an automated world."

Observations From Editorial Columns

WHEN FIELDS ARE GREEN

Many years ago, when the winter landscape in the South was marred almost everywhere by bleak old fallow broom-sedge fields and eroded, red gullied land, the late Hugh MacRae, a far-seeing farmer and industrialist from Wilmington, said: "The South will come into its own when its fields are green in winter."

Thanks to Mr. MacRae and other progressive farm leaders and agencies, the fields of the South are becoming greener and greener nowadays, not only with hay and pasture grasses for increasing dairy and beef cattle herds, but also with the green of flourishing winter vegetable and grain crops.

Yet the surface of this rich field of opportunity has scarcely been more than scratched. The rural South still has a long way to go before enough of its winter fields are green. But luckily it is on its way. — Winston-Salem (N. C.) Twin City

'COMPARISONS'

Sometimes comparisons are not odious but irrelevant. Perhaps it is an exercise in futility to compare what America spends on its needs at home with its military operations abroad. Maybe expenditures for luxuries are not properly comparable with those for education. Still Newsweek recently arrayed some American spending statistics which deserve contemplation.

"America," that magazine said, "spends $75 billion for defense but only $7 billion on welfare for the poor, $17.4 billion for the war on poverty, $3.2 billion for cosmetics and toiletries but only $400 million a year for the training of adult unemployed." Somehow there seems a real "imbalance of payments" here. — Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer

'PEACE GAP' YET!

The quota of the week, month, year — or decade — comes from Sen. John Tower of Texas in a congressional Republican state of the union evaluation in opposition to that of the President. Senator Tower summed up criticism of administration war policy with the declaration that "The nation suffers from a 'peace gap' which we Republicans are determined to close."

If we can understand it, we have a feeling that, "peace gap" as a slogan may beat all the gaps that have gone before, such as missile gap, credibility gap, performance gap and you name it. The missile gap turned out not to be. The credibility gap gets wider and can only be closed by the incumbent administration. But if there is a way to close that peace gap, it should be a bipartisan effort.

But, then, this in an election year and the widest gap of all is the mouth gap. — Greenville (S. C.) News

TELEVIEWERS ARE HOAXED

A funny thing happened the other day out in Yuma, Colorado. The television station located about 60 miles from Yuma in Sterling, Colorado, (KTAS-TV) announced that a million-dollar motor hotel and recreational mecca would be built in Yuma by Swen Laetsi, a Chicago business tycoon.

Bewilderment and a rash of humorous incidents welled among Yuma citizens in the wake of the announcement. The Yuma Pioneer failed to mention the big enterprise in its next issue. People began to suspect a hoax. The Yuma Pioneer finally broke down and confessed. Irritated because KTAS-TV consistently put out Yuma news which the newspaper said was "pirated" from its columns, the Pioneer had "planted" the story about the hotel in a single copy of the newspaper, placed a three-banner headline on it and sent the copy to the television station, a regular subscriber.

Obviously, the TV station read the story over the air without checking on its accuracy. The Pioneer says this is habitual with the station — which does not give credit for its sources but allows the televiewer to believe that the station's own news staff did the work. In this case, the newspaper had the television station dead to rights. All the station had to do to expose the fraud was to call "millionaire" Swen Laetsi in Chicago, or check on his financial standing. They would have figured out that "Swen Laetsi," spelled backward, is "I steal news!" —Huntington (W. V.) Herald-Advertiser

Kiwanis Club Has Program For Farmers

Last night was Farmers night at the Greenville Kiwanis Club and thirty planters from various parts of the county joined the Kiwanis in what is generally considered one of the best programs in years... The session was presided over by President J. Frank Harrington, who extended a cordial welcome to the visitors and assured them that the Kiwanians everywhere were using their utmost influence in the department of agriculture... The program was in charge of J. C. Galloway of Grimesland, who is probably one of the best known agriculturalists in the county... Not so long ago, Mr. Galloway was popularly known as a "Baby Kiwanian" but he has outgrown the swaddling clothes of infancy and presented the club with a program of talks which will live long in the memory of members of all professions attending the meetings... The principal speaker of the evening was Roy Cox of Winterville, member of the local Kiwanis Club who has been actively associated with development of the locality for a number of years...

Unbalanced Report By Urban Disorder Commission

By JAMES KILPATRICK

Forgive me if I come as late as Lyndon Johnson to the Report of the President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. The report ran to six volumes and 250,000 words. There was some obligation to plow through most of it before sounding off.

The report makes some excellent points. It is especially effective in its analysis of Negro housing problems, and it rightly points to the gross errors of urban renewal as a key factor in a bad situation. The commission's harsh indictment of police and Guardsmen is fully deserved, and the report's warning against "over-reaction" this summer is immensely useful. Several recommendations for improved communication between black and white make obvious sense.

When that has been said, it remains to be said that the report, viewed as a whole, is woefully unbalanced. Most of the major recommendations are unrealistic; some of them — for example, that the minimum wage be further increased — are misguided. And sad to say, in its long review of the 1967 riots, the commission has come up with the greatest whitewash job since Tom Sawyer laid aside his brush.

From this report, it appears that everyone was to blame for the riots — everyone, that is, but the rioters themselves. It is unbelievable. They appear in the narrative portions of the report as faceless agents of a passive mood: Rocks were hurled, bottles were thrown. Elsewhere the report falls into sociological thumb-sucking: Society had failed to teach the rioters how to read, so they looted TV sets instead. At every point, the commission's tendency is to rationalize, to excuse, to defend.

Government programs were to blame; these did not reach the people. Judges were to blame; they did not protect the looters' constitutional rights. Police were to blame; they were disrespectful. The press was to blame; it failed to understand. Above all, "white racism is essentially responsible" for the ghetto conditions that provoked the fearful violence.

It is thus "white racism" that is responsible for what the commission terms its basic conclusion, that "our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white—separate and unequal." This basic conclusion is basically false. For the past 30 years, our nation has not been moving toward a separate society, but away from it; and if this movement toward an integrated, multi-racial society recently has been slowed, it is at least partly because of the "black racism" that manifests itself in a bloody cry for apartheid in reverse: "Kill Whitey!"

You would catch no hint of this from the commission's report. When the commission speaks to the black racists, it speaks in the barest murmur of disapproval. They provided "an ugly background noise." The advocates of black power "unconsciously function as an accommodation to white racism." That is about the size of it.

The Negro, it is said, wants to walk alone. Splendid. But what is the commission's answer? It is to recommend new crutches. Welfare recipients are aggrieved by regulations which operate "to remind recipients that they are considered untrustworthy, promiscuous and lazy." It is an understandable grievance. What does the commission propose? It proposes a guaranteed annual income, higher rent supplements, make-work jobs, and a proliferation of easier handouts.

Of the Negro's responsibility for his own destiny there is scarcely a word. It is someone else's responsibility — private industry, public institutions, mostly the Federal government. Most of the answers are to come from outside the ghetto, from builders, bankers, planners, lawmakers. The commission avoided price tags, but most estimates are that the Federal proposals alone would cost $150 billion over the next five years. Where is the money coming from? Who could spend it wisely? Would the recommended programs change white attitudes — or black?

God knows white society has its faults and blind racial prejudice is among them. But it is an enormous disservice for this prestigious commission to proclaim that the ghetto's miseries are all the white man's doing. When one inquires why the city is burning, it ought not to be amiss to direct a few questions at the man with the torch in his hand.

Colorful And Attractive '68 N.C. Highway Maps

By William A. Shires
RALEIGH—It happened in North Carolina:

New, 1968 official state highway maps are off the press and ready for distribution and a preview peek shows they are the most colorful and attractive ones yet.

Bright, brilliant color and contrast is featured on the cover. The map itself can be folded into a convenient eight by four inch, pocket size, and is free for the asking from Highway Commission offices and other places. The cover is a coastal scene. The surf is curling onto a beach at a moment of golden sunrise. It may be sunset, but most of North Carolina's many miles of ocean beach face the rising sun—toward the East.

The printing of photographs sometimes causes an illusion. A case in point was a color picture of an interstate highway published by the State's Travel and Promotion division a year ago.

We tried to identify the highway and the angle of the picture. Bill F. Hensley, the state's Travel and Promotion director, also tried and finally had to ask for an accurate report from the advertising agency's photographer and layout man. The direction was East-West, and we tried to judge by direction cars were headed.

But the difficult lay in the fact that the car in the foreground was a model in which the front resembles the rear. Was it coming or going?

The new highway maps are illustrated on reverse side with 20 selected pictures, large size. Each geographic region is represented.

As usual, there's a shot of Grandfather Mountain—this time across the meadows and woodlands bordering the base of this ancient upthrusting of rock and stony cliffs. There's a "saloon" picture from the frontier town attraction at Ghost Town, overlooking Maggie Valley. There's an illustration of a ski slope and a picture of a mountain road during the glorious Fall color season.

ed by a peaceful lake scene, foxhounds, a golf course, camping areas and the interior of an historic plantation home. On the coast, there are ferries, lighthouses, beach scenes and gardens. In the corner of the map is possibly the best color portrait yet made of Gov. Dan K. Moore and, of course, a picture of the State Legislative Building in Raleigh.

In each case, there is a column of printed information explaining the points of interest which are illustrated and referring to others which may be found on the full-sized map.

There was quite a bit of bragging around the clubhouse and everybody was congratulating Benny Phillips of Macclesfield for having achieved the first hole in one at the new Maccriline golf course near Pinetops.

It turned out though that Phillip's four iron shot on the par 3, 165 yard fourth hole was only the first hole in one by a man at Maccriline. A lady golfer, Della Gardner of Pinetops, had an ace several days earlier.

In Kinston, three boys—aged 11 and 12—believe they discovered a secret for taming opossums.

The boys, Kevin Cook, Chip Mayo and Charles Raynor, captured a possum in a backyard the other night. "He snarled and hissed and bared his teeth at first," says Chip. But Kevin says, "we tamed him by rubbing him on his back and making him relax."

Now, the boys report, their possum is as gentle as a kitten. They took him to school to show to the sixth grade class.

Gov. Dan K. Moore will be railroad engineer briefly next week when he tours Alexander County. The schedule arranged for the governor includes a trip in the cab of a locomotive on Alexander's famous "Junebug" railroad, out of Taylorsville.

N.C. Attitudes As To School Insurance Need Changing

By JERRY AUSBAND

SHELBY, N. C. (AP) — In North Carolina school circles, time is increasingly calculated as "Before Burns" and "After Burns."

Perhaps in other areas, the phrase is "Before Quail Hollow" or "After Quail Hollow."

They are no light-hearted references. Instead, they constitute deadly serious phraseology that indicates radically changed educators' thinking on insurance for Tar Heel school buildings.

The time analogies go back to Jan. 13 when the roof of the Burns High School gymnasium in Cleveland County and the roof of the Quail Hollow Elementary School cafeteria in Charlotte collapsed under the weight of snow.

Insurance to cover the losses is lacking despite the thousands of dollars spent by every North Carolina school district for insurance every year.

All 158 North Carolina school districts are required to carry fire and extended coverage insurance that will rebuild schools hit by flames, riots and some other activity.

But none are required to carry liability insurance to protect the public from school building-caused injury, and few districts do.

do have all-explosion insurance, but the 54 other districts which buy private insurance locally have the option of not buying boiler explosion insurance. Only a few have gone to the expense.

In the context of school collapse, best guesses from state and local school and insurance officials are that no school districts carry all-risk insurance that would replace collapsed schools.

There's a good reason—money, which has to be spread—thinly—to the places the local school board feels will do the most good.

But the thinking is changing "After Burns" and "After Quail Hollow."

The Shelby city school system is one example of insurance costs. This year, the school board will authorize $4,398.80 to pay for a fire and extended coverage policy on $4,048,200 worth of buildings and equipment.

The premium also pays for a liability policy that has limits of $50,000 to any one person for an injury for which the district is found responsible and $100,000 total for any group of injuries in one incident.

The policy does not cover vandalism because the local school board felt most vandalism would fall under the $100 deductible clause.

To attach an all-risk policy to cover collapse of school buildings and other incidents would require as much as $901.55 additional premium a year. To up the liability coverage to $100,000 a person and $300,000 each incident would cost $160 more a year. To cover boiler explosions, the school board would have to fork out a minimum of $1,509 for a three-year policy.

A policy that combined the present fire and extended coverage, greater liability insurance, and all-risk insurance would cost $5,146.55 a year, some $750 more a year than the Shelby district is now paying. The policy would include $25,000 more property damage coverage on the fire and extended coverage and $50,000 property damage on the liability coverage beyond the present policies.

In addition, minimum insurance for boiler explosion protection would cost $634 the first year and could cost as much as $830 the first year at the estimated maximum.

In other words, the Shelby City School board is seriously considering adding at least $1,400 more to its insurance premiums. That's enough local funds to finance more than 14 students through a year of school.

But Shelby is not alone in its concern over public protection. Educators' attitudes toward insurance are rapidly changing, due partially to court decisions in the North that are holding school boards liable for injury and damage and largely, in this state, to the Quail Hollow and Burns school collapses.

Before the '60s, school boards were generally considered to be immune from civil suits seeking damages from the general public. But that is changing.

Per-Pupil Expenditures Rose By $57.50 Last Year For Schools In N.C.

RALEIGH — For current operation of the public schools exclusive of capital investment and debt retirement, North Carolina spent $426.29 per pupil in average daily attendance during 1966-67, an increase of $57.50 per child over the previous year.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, State Superintendent of Public Instruction pointed out that during the same period, the national average expenditure per child was increased by $54. However, the national average expenditure per pupil was listed at $623 as compared to $569 during 1965-66.

This is the picture drawn by a study just completed by Statistical Services of the State Department of Public Instruction, and a recent national survey made by the U.S. Office of Education in cooperation with the 50 state departments of education.

Federal spending in North Carolina increased from a flat 8% in 1965-66 to 15.4% in 1966-67. There was, of course, a proportionate decline in the percentage of State and local school funds expended.

The total 1966-67 expenditure for current operating expenses of the public school system in North Carolina was $471,860,768.77, according to the report compiled by W. W. Peek, director of Statistical Services, from records submitted by all the superintendents. He warned against placing too much emphasis on the per pupil expenditure, saying that this is not always a reliable indicator of the quality of education offered because there are too many variable factors. For example, a rural school system showed a high expenditure per pupil may be spending a large portion of its funds on the transportation of pupils while a smaller and more urban system with less per pupil expenditures could be spending more on instructional services.

Of the total amount expended for operating expenses, Dr. Carroll said that $323,409,252.84 or 68.5% was provided by the State, $72,680,280.03, or 15.4% by the Federal government, and $75,771,235.90 or 16.1% came from local sources.

Eight school systems provided more than 25% of their total school expenditures from local funds. They were, ranked from high to low, Hendersonville City, Mecklenburg-Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem/Forsyth, High Point, Durham City, Roanoke Rapids, and Raleigh. Fifty-nine of the then 169 school systems furnished for operating expenses, from local funds, less than 10% of the total spent.

Federal funds ranged from a high of 33.8% in Morven City to a low of 4.8% in Iredell County schools. Eighteen units listed expenditures from Federal sources of 25% or more. In addition to Morven, they were Duplin, Craven, Graham, Maxton, Vance, Anson, Johnston, Murphy, Avery, Jones, Bladen, Wayne, Yancey, Hertford, Onslow, Fremont, and Sampson.

The range in percent of total expenditures from the State was from a high of 85.9% in Alexander County to a low of 56.3% in Hendersonville City. The Hendersonville schools last year were supported by local funds in the amount of $171.20 per pupil, by State funds in the amount of $321.99, and Federal funds of $78.89 for a total expenditure for each pupil in average daily attendance of $572.08 — the largest in the State. In 1966-67 no county or city administrative unit in North Carolina spent, from all three sources combined, as much as the national average.

The survey indicated Pitt County Schools, with an average daily attendance of 12,396, saw a $3,641,683 expenditure by the state, $1,248,832 in federal funds and $362,165 in local funds. The total came to $5,252,681.

State funds amounted to 69.3 per cent of the total, federal funds 23.8 percent and local funds 6.9 percent.

Greenville County were listed as having an average daily attendance of 5,614. State outlays on the system were $1,634,145; federal outlays—$351,940; and from local sources—$319,112. The total: $2,305,198.

State funds amounted to 70.9 percent of the total, federal funds 14.2 percent and local 12.8 percent.

Tax Time: Understand How Deductions Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Understanding deductions can save you a considerable sum on your tax bill. This is the fourth of five articles on how to prepare your federal income tax return which is due April 15.)

By JAMES L. SRODES
WASHINGTON (UPI)—It's a wise taxpayer who knows his own deductions.

Deductions have the effect of reducing the amount of income on which you are required to pay taxes. They are intended to compensate the taxpayer for certain types of expenditure which Congress has deemed to be worthy of special treatment.

You must first decide whether you want to claim a standard deduction, or itemize your deductions.

There are two ways of claiming a standard deduction. The most common is to deduct 10 per cent of your "adjusted gross income," which means your total income less any money you are entitled to deduct or exclude such as certain employe expenses, sick pay, etc., as described in the previous article in this series. Thus, if your adjusted gross income tax $9,456, you'd be entitled to a 10 per cent standard deduction of $945.60.

Minimum Claim
Or you could claim what is called the "minimum standard deduction." This amounts to $200 plus $100 for each exemption to which you're entitled. A married couple with three children would be entitled to a minimum standard deduction of $700.

The 10 per cent standard deduction will work out better than the minimum standard deduction for everyone except large families of quite modest income.

The big hitch in either form of standard deduction is the fact that $1,000 is the absolute maximum you can claim in this way. Even if your income was $20,000, your ceiling on a standard deduction would be $1,000.

It usually will pay you to itemize deductions if you paid interest on a home mortgage, contributed substantial sums to churches or charities, had unusually big medical bills, paid alimony, or suffered a big casualty loss that wasn't covered by insurance.

There's no ceiling on the total amount you can claim if you itemize deductions. But there are special rules that apply to various types of deductions.

Common Deductions
Here are the types of deductions which concern most taxpayers:

MEDICAL EXPENSES: This year, for the first time, you can claim a deduction for one-half of the amount you spent on medical insurance coverage, up to a limit of $150 without subtracting 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. In other words, you can claim this deduction regardless of how much your other medical expenses were. Then you add up your other medical and dental expenses, including the remaining half of your medical insurance payments, and if the total comes to more than 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income, you can claim a deduction for the amount by which it exceeds 3 per cent.

However, the cost of drugs and medicines may be figured into your medical expenses only to the extent that it exceeds 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

For example: If your adjusted gross income was $10,000, and your drug bills came to $178, you would first subtract 1 per cent of the $10,000 which is $100, from the $178, leaving $78 to be counted among your medical expenses. And your total medical expenses would be deductible only to the extent that they exceeded $300, which is 3 per cent of $10,000. But you could claim half of your medical insurance costs, even if your total medical bills came to less than $300.

CONTRIBUTIONS: You may deduct contributions to most charities, including churches and schools, up to 30 per cent of your income. Contributions to fraternal and veterans groups, trusts and private foundations are deductible up to 20 per cent of your income.

INTEREST: You may deduct the interest you paid on a home mortgage, bank loan, car loan, or installment purchase.

TAXES: A wide variety of state and local taxes are deductible.

They include real estate taxes, gasoline taxes, general sales taxes, state and local income taxes and personal property taxes. You may NOT take a deduction for any federal taxes.

CASUALTY LOSSES: You may deduct a property loss from a storm, fire, flood, theft or accident, if it wasn't covered by insurance or other compensation. But the law requires you to absorb the first $100 of a non-business loss before claiming a deduction.

Retired Farmer Is Traffic Cop

MOSCOW (UPI)—Makhmud Mamedov, 117-year-old collective farmer who retired recently after 90 years of farming, has become a volunteer traffic cop in Uzbekistan, according to the newspaper Uzbekskaia Pravda.

Gas-Packed Tea Is Kept Fresh

TOKYO (UPI)—The Japanese have discovered a new method of packing green tea which keeps its flavor fresh for years. The tea is gas-packed.

The new method, developed by the Japanese Agriculture and Forestry Ministry, packs tea in a vacuum and seals it with nitrogen. The ministry said the tea is becoming increasingly popular at home and catching on abroad, particularly in Hawaii with residents of Japanese descent.

'The Credibility Gap'

LBJ Facing Serious Problem

(Editors' note: A new phrase—credibility gap—has become part of the American vocabulary in discussions about the Johnson Administration. It means the difference between what the public is told by its officials and what they think they can believe. It is used most often in connection with Vietnam. The following dispatch by UPI's senior White House reporter explores the problem.)

By MERRIMAN SMITH

UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson is up against an almost insoluble problem of trying to explain his Vietnam policy to the public without endangering national security or causing injurious diplomatic embarrassment.

The burgeoning political season seems certain to escalate the problem. Some administration critics even this early in an election year see the political gold to be mined in "credibility gap."

Johnson's critics are putting the situation in terms far removed from national security considerations. They simply charge that the administration is so concerned about making itself look good that its spokesmen, from the top down, aren't telling the American public the truth. This charge includes far more than the progress of the war, but it is centered on Vietnam and the conflicting views that the public sometimes gets from government officials and from its newspapers and television.

Brought To A Head

Probably at no time since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis have government policy makers been so concerned over how the public best can be kept informed without disclosing secrets. The Communist attacks on South Vietnam's cities brought the matter to a painful head.

Reporters on the scene in Vietnam sent back stories which varied considerably from versions of the attacks put out by administration sources in Washington.

From the President on down, officials here tried to put across the idea that U.S. and South Vietnamese forces, warned by advance intelligence of likely terrorist strikes, had frustrated Hanoi's basic objective of touching off a general uprising in South Vietnam.

In line with this, the President at a Feb. 2 news conference called the Viet Cong effort a "complete failure," but as new reports came in from the field, "complete failure" became a highly relative term.

It became increasingly clear the Communists had achieved a far-reaching dislocation of the South Vietnamese population, inflicted grievous wounds and distracted Gen. William C. Westmoreland from a pressing military problem, the defense of Khe Sanh, a symbolic as well as strategic allied stronghold close to the Demilitarized Zone.

This period also was marked by the start of a series of "backgrounders." This is the label given by newsmen to meetings at which high administration officials offer explanatory details behind a shield of anonymity in hope of improving public understanding of such tangle situations as Vietnam. "Background" briefings may be held for reporters, congressmen, industrial and labor union executives—in fact for just about everybody except the general public which is the ultimate target of this behind-the-hand system of information.

The President himself holds such sessions. So does Secretary of State Dean Rusk; White House Press Secretary George Christian, and Walt W. Rostow, the President's special assistant for national security matters. Robert S. McNamara also held similar sessions as defense secretary.

Reports Conflict

For the reporter, these sessions can be either rewarding or frustrating. A government official may tell a group of newsmen something entirely off the record and then a few days later say almost the same thing in a public speech or at an open press conference.

Most often the material is for "background." This means the reporter or columnist may write it but may not attribute it, not even by vague references, to "administration sources."

Reporters, and even Congressmen, have no reliable way of knowing, of course, when the administration is trying to sell a pet idea or when it really is providing non-secret information—help to public understanding.

The dividing line can be thin. Two briefings a cabinet officer, later identified as Rusk, who frequently engages in this sort of procedure, held two interesting briefings in the wake of the Viet Cong attacks. One involved a large group of House and Senate members. The other was for reporters. Both concerned administration policy in Vietnam.

During the session with reporters, one of the newsmen asked whether there had been an intelligence breakdown in connection with the Viet Cong offensive. When the reporter persisted in his questioning, the official demanded angrily, "which side are you on?"

The official made the point that "I'm on your side" and went on to say that "none of your papers or your broadcasting apparatus are worth a damn unless the United States succeeds. They are trivial compared to that question." He continued:

"So I don't know why, to win a Pulitzer prize, people have to go probing for things one can bitch about when there are two thousand stories on the same day about things that are more constructive in character."

Wire service and other reporters who wrote stories about the exchange dutifully protected the official's identity. But as is often the case, he was identified as Rusk a few days later by a Wall Street Journal reporter who was not present and thereby did not feel bound by the ground rules.

Meantime, there were other criss-crossing developments: —The President himself told a group of visiting college students of discussions he had with Pope Paul VI in his pre-Christmas visit to the Vatican—and in terms which he previously had put "off the record" in talks with White House reporters.

This had to do with his one-day extension of the Christmas truce, as requested by the Pope. Johnson said the extension produced no positive results but permitted movement of more enemy supplies down the Ho Chi Minh trail from North to South Vietnam.

Johnson is not the first high official to have problems in this area, of course. Dwight D. Eisenhower said that during his service as World War II allied commander, he stopped reading daily newspapers to avoid confusion between what might have been announced officially or cleared as "background," and what might have crossed his desk as "classified." Eisenhower said after the war that shading between public knowledge and operational secrets could be quite delicate.

Worse Than Believed
—An associate of the President held a series of meetings in which he sought to minimize the VC strikes only to have to telephone some participants later to say that matters in Saigon, Hue and Dalat were worse than he originally had been led to believe.

—On several levels of government, officials seemed organized in their challenges of newspaper stories and broadcasts from Saigon which pictured the Viet Cong raids as being much more damaging than officials would admit initially.

It was this admixture which led to the series of "backgrounders." The rules varied greatly. "This is to help your thinking," said one official. "None of this must be used," said another. "I'm trying to show you what we're doing," said a cabinet officer to a group of House and Senate members.

The President held a series of meetings to let key House and Senate members hear Rusk, McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They covered North Koreans seizure of the U.S.S. Pueblo as well as the Vietnam War.

Problem For Public

As these so-called private conferences continued, the problem of the average reader or listener can only be imagined. How is he to judge the validity of statements coming out of Saigon when measured against Washington stories based on such background sessions? The

Use Op Art In Remodeling Job

NEW YORK (UPI)—Let your imagination play op art when you remodel a room.

Op art technique, reminds the Tile Council of America, uses colors and designs to make small rooms seem larger, large rooms smaller, oblong rooms square and square rooms oblong. Dimensions are not changed. The home planner is able to unsquare squares, shorten or lengthen walls, raise or lower ceilings without a single structural change to your home or apartment.

Ceramic tile stripes on bathroom or kitchen walls, for example, will give the illusion of raising the ceiling if they're vertical, lower it if horizontal, at the same time that they contract or expand the apparent size of the room. Use of a different color on each of two opposing walls will make a square room look rectangular. Light colors will make a room seem larger; warm or dark colors, smaller. Floor and ceiling patterns and colors will also help shape a room.

answer shapes up something like this:

—Military communiques with in their taut language are generally factual, but not necessarily complete.

—Statements made in a White House or State Department briefing for members of Congress might be embroidered or emphasized out of context for political purposes. Knowing that such information is bound to be "leaked," governments at odds with each other even communicate this way.

—No national administration is anxious to own up to derogatory facts, unless forced to do so at the business end of either Congressional investigation or court action. Despite the furor over the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, Congress shows no disposition to conduct a full-scale inquiry into the war.

Other Factors

Then, there are these other factors:

—This government could not admit, at least not on the record, the degree to which problems do exist in South Vietnam. Otherwise, the Thieu-Ky government might come into more difficult days than it now knows.

—If this government were to admit that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese plastered the allies in the south, the uproar in Congress, which appropriates money for the Southeast Asian conflict, could be overwhelming.

One answer from the administration's standpoint would be to declare a state of national emergency which probably would lead in turn to a voluntary censorship code. But that inevitably would ignite angry political controversy and no one in government above the rank of elevator operator is willing to discuss it openly.

Which leaves the Johnson Administration—like others before it in time of crisis—dependent on the present system with its attendant public confusion over public policy. Except now it's known as the credibility gap.

News Of National Win Exciting For Cindy Worsley

PRIZE-WINNING SWEATER . . . wearing the sweater that won for her the national knitting contest, Cindy embarks on another knitting adventure.

By DONNA DIXON
Reflector Woman's Writer

In the early afternoon of Dec. 8, a phone impatiently rang in the home of Cindy Worsley on 1746 Beaumont Road. Cindy's mother answered the phone and the operator stated, "Long distance calling. Miss Cindy Worsley, please."

The call was from Terry McKinley, managing director of National Hand Knitting Yarn Association, Inc. The director, calling from New York, informed her that Cindy had won the National Teenage Needlework Contest. Cindy wasn't home so her mother received the almost unbelievable news.

In recalling the excitement when her mother told her that she had won, Cindy declared, "I thought she was kidding me. She knew I wanted to win the national contest so bad. I just couldn't believe it was true."

"I felt great! I was kinda' surprised. It's not every day you win a national contest. I didn't do anything special. I wanted to win so much and then when I won, it seemed so funny."

Cindy won the right to enter the national contest when she won the 1967 State Teenage Wool Needlework Contest at the State Fair. Judged with entries from 50 states, Cindy's entry in the national contest was a coral sweater with an all over pattern of cables and diamonds.

Besides gaining the honor of being a national winner, Cindy won $275 in cash money plus a free three-day trip to New York City for two.

The whole family — Cindy, her parents, and her brother, Steve — plan to go to New York early in the summer.

Cindy admitted that her father used to think knitting was frivolous. After Cindy won the national contest, he changed his mind.

Since her mother has always sewed and knitted a lot, Cindy commented that knitting was "just a natural thing" for her. She considers the time knitting consumes as its only weakness.

Cindy first "made a stab" at knitting when she was in the fourth grade. After attempts with no real success, Cindy discouragingly gave up knitting. Little did she know she was to become a national winner in knitting in less than six years.

Then in the seventh grade, Cindy became determined to learn how to knit and to succeed. The national winner has been knitting ever since.

As a result of her interest in knitting, Cindy has taught some of her friends to knit. Often, they want Cindy to knit a sweater for them.

Swimming Trophies
Knitting isn't all Cindy excels in. If you walk into her home, you'll see swimming trophies, ribbons and medals. A member of the East Carolina Swimming Association, Cindy has a total of 100 medals and ribbons in swimming. She has three trophies, all won in the last three years.

The ribbons in swimming have been won at swim meets throughout North Carolina and South Carolina. By virtue of her accomplishments, Cindy hopes to teach swimming at Rayne this summer.

For other physical activity, Cindy takes dancing lessons. For nine years, Cindy's lessons were mostly ballet. This year, she is taking acrobatics and jazz.

In mentioning her hobbies, Cindy remarked, "Just about everything you can think of—I've tried it. I like being a girl. I like the things that I can do."

"In the summer, swimming takes up 99 per cent of my time. In winter, school takes all my time. Sometimes, I don't get my homework. I just relax, knit and watch T. V."

Besides excelling in knitting and swimming, Cindy is outstanding scholastically. A sophomore at Rose High School, Cindy is taking six subjects this year and is a member of the French Club and the Chess Club. Even with this heavy load, Cindy is an "all-A" student.

Into the whirlwind of her active world Cindy finds time for hobbies which include boating, water skiing, acrobatics, coin collecting, stamp collecting, photography, knitting and pen pals.

Pen Pals
On the average of about every two weeks, Cindy writes to about 20 pen pals in the United States and to one pen pal each in Nigeria, France, England, Brazil and Italy.

Cindy's pen pal in Nigeria often writes of the war there, relating first-hand experiences. Commenting on the pen pals, Cindy observed, "You'd be surprised how different people from other countries are. They're subjected to a different atmosphere than us. I enjoy learning how other people think, and feel about certain things."

Cindy confessed that she would have more pen pals in Europe but it is very expensive to send a letter there. It costs about 20-25 cents per letter. "It usually costs me more than this. I just finished a letter to one of my pen pals in the U. S. It was 100 pages long. My letters are so long that I always have to pay over 20 cents to the post office," noted Cindy.

"My pen pal in Nigeria is 18. When he writes of the war it sounds terrible. My pen pal in England is always writing about fashion, hair styles or makeup. It's interesting to learn about other people in other countries through correspondence."

Cindy's future plans include entering every knitting contest that she can. As for career plans, Cindy contemplated, "I want to go into something that I can explore—something new and daring. I'm always wondering why can't there be life on other planets? Wouldn't it be fun to learn their philosophy of life? I want a career that will challenge."

When asked of her formula for success, Cindy speedily answered, "There isn't one. You just have to want to do something. I think if you really want to do something bad enough, you can."

SWIMMING TROPHIES . . . Cindy has won a total of over 100 swimming trophies, ribbons, and medals in meets throughout North Carolina and South Carolina.

Lee Udall Loves Her Husband's Job

By VERA GLASER
WASHINGTON (WNS)—Lee Udall's Mormon grandmother pioneered the West. Her mother rode horseback from Mexico to have her first baby in a tent. Her husband Stewart, Secretary of the Interior, has been called one of the most complex and introspective intellectuals in public life, and her six lively children range in age from eight to 19.

With that background, it would take more than the New Frontier and the Great Society to faze the pretty, golden-haired Cabinet wife. She describes the past seven years, however, as "the most exciting time of my life."

Of the original Kennedy Cabinet taking office in January 1961, only three remain. Along with Mrs. Dean Rusk, wife of the Secretary of State, and Mrs. Orville Freeman, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, Mrs. Udall is now a senior Cabinet wife.

By a fortunate twist of fate, her spouse heads the department which embraces her personal interests. Mrs. Udall ticked them off as "the outdoors, recreation, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs. It has been absolutely great."

When Udall took his Cabinet post old Washington hands predicted his days were numbered, but now he heads a vast department which his creative thinking has profoundly altered. Over the years he has become the focal point of the national conservation movement.

"Naturally he has grown," his wife said.

Mrs. Udall has grown with him as they have planned, traveled, campaigned and tried to rear their family in normal fashion. Has it been physically wearing?

"We both get along on five hours of sleep and try to catch up on weekends. Work is really play when you love it," the outgoing Cabinet wife chuckled. Other Cabinet posts may involve heavier pressure, Mrs. Udall admits. Referring to Defense Secretary and Mrs. Robert McNamara, who has been ill, she remarked, "When you have people burning down your house in Aspen and calling it McNamara's war, no wonder there are health problems."

There was a bad time in the beginning for the Udalls, she recalled, "when some crazy fellow wrote a letter to oil company presidents saying my good friend Stewart Udall would be happy if you would buy tickets to the dinner."

Ruckus Ensued
Since the dinner was a political fund-raising event and the Interior Department makes vital decisions on oil, a ruckus ensued.

"Stewart took it very badly. It was his first year in the Cabinet. He had had six good years in Congress and hoped to make a real contribution. I'll never forget good friends like Paul Douglas (former Senator from Illinois). They said hold on, it will pass, and it did. The Freemans (Agriculture Secretary and Mrs. Orville Freeman) had an unfortunate time with that Billy Sol Estes thing. As for the McNamaras, I don't think anybody could hold up under that."

The Udalls have worked as a team on Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's beautification trips, accompanying her to the Indian country, the Texas Big Bend and New England. But on her own, Mrs. Udall has proved an asset to her husband by functioning as a high-level rallying point for Indian culture.

It started in 1963 when Mrs. Udall renovated Interior's art gallery which had gone unused since World War II. She staged a series of successful exhibitions of Indian crafts, paintings and sculpture there. Then she founded the Center for Arts of Indian America, which now employs two people and to which she donates her time daily.

On a June evening in 1964, Mrs. Udall wore a handsome necklace designed by Hopi artist Charles Loloma to a White House banquet. The silver, turquoise and coral piece drew admiring comments from Lady Bird Johnson and later became a state gift to Mrs. Hans Otto Krag, wife of the then Danish prime minister.

Krag himself received an Indian painting and from then on such offerings have been given as official gifts to German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and Mrs. Senghor, wife of the President of Senegal. Asked if the past seven years have brought her family closer, Mrs. Udall replied, "I don't remember a time when we weren't close." A rewarding aspect of her husband's job, she believes, is the interest it holds for their children. She cited a recent trip to the Patuxent Wild Life Research Center which she had been able to arrange for eight-year-old Jamie's class.

The Udalls' two oldest sons, Tom and Scott, are in college in Arizona. Daughter Lynn, 17, is spending a year with friends in Brazil and learning Portuguese as she completes her senior year of high school. Lori, 15, and her two young brothers, Denis and Jamie, are at home.

Mrs. Udall appears to be a mother who really communicates with her children. She reported proudly that "during the Christmas holidays our teen-agers never left home. They preferred to stay here and lots of friends came in."

The Udalls live in a contemporary, antiques redwood and brick house in suburban McLean, Va. The comfortable, mainly contemporary decor is highlighted with the Indian art they love.

On weekends they enjoy relaxing in old clothes. On wintry days the Secretary may split logs. When the weather is fine there may be a hike to the river with the children, perhaps a trip in the family canoe. On Saturday afternoons Udall sometimes browses in the neighborhood grocery store, returning with a bag of items his wife has already stocked.

Latest Fashion News: Time To Prepare For The Fall Of The Mini-Skirt

By BETTY YARMON
Women's News Service

What are you going to do about the mini-skirts in your wardrobe?

That you soon may have to do something about them if you want to stay in style seems apparent from the latest fashion news. According to reports from New York's Seventh Avenue, Paris and the other style capitals of the world, the midi is about to cast a cover over knees from coast to coast.

At the moment true fashionable women are wearing their dresses either at the knee or an inch or two above. But the more adventuresome already are experimenting with the midi lengths, which has the skirt dropping down to mid-calf. Top U. S. and European couturiers have been showing this length for at-home wear and also for the evening, and the society columns tell us that at least the better-known members of the jet set are accepting their dictates.

I recently took a random sampling of the opinions of a group of top American designers — the practical designers who are responsible for the fashions that we non-members of the jet set all wear. This poll revealed the following predictions:

1. Skirts will be going down very soon.
  2. It will not happen all at one time but quite gradually.
  3. We will soon find ourselves reversing the trend of the past few seasons, and instead of shortening, most of us will be lengthening our skirts.
- A number of reasons are given for the predicted return of the longer skirt:
—A general disenchantment with mini-skirts, brought on in large part by the unflattering look they give many wearers.

—Their impracticality in cold weather, which was brought home so vividly and chillingly during the recent cold snap.

—The return of belts—and they are back. A belt cuts into the line of the dress, and therefore the line of the wearer. To give a more flattering line, the skirts must be lengthened.

—Shoe heels are getting thicker and higher, and the fashion truism that it is well-nigh impossible for a woman to look beautiful with very short skirts and very high heels.

—Not the least important, the need for designers to keep their fashion pot brewing to induce sales at the stores, which makes them look for change for change's own sake.

Room For Both
At the moment, incidentally, this mini-midi competition is not a completely either-or matter. That is, some stores are plugging for the midi as a supplement to, rather than a replacement for the mini, arguing that we have room in our fashion wardrobe for both. In other words, you won't have to give up one for the other.

But the immediate question that faces the cautious among us is, how can we protect ourselves should the very short skirt be near the end of the line? What should we do with our new clothes that have skirt-length problems?

And if the prognosticators are wrong, and we find the mini-skirt staying on despite the efforts for the midi, we won't have lost a thing.

Miss Anne Sugg Weds Edward Joseph Stroud

The First Presbyterian Church was the scene on Saturday at 4:00 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Anne Sugg and Edward Joseph Stroud.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Fordyce Harding Sugg of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edward Stroud of Charlotte. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bruce Sugg of Greenville.

The Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon and the Rev. James Archibald Jones III, cousin of the bride, officiated at the ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bruce Bailer, organist, and Miss Jeanne Smith, soloist.

In the background of the church, the choir loft was centered with a semi-circle fifteen branched candelabra flanked with nine candles burning between bouquets of large white chrysanthemums and gladioli in pyramidal candelabra and tall standards of emerald greenery. Preceding to the altar were palms and seven branched candelabra. At the altar was a prie dieu decorated with greenery and satin bows where the bride and bridegroom took their wedding vows and knelt for the wedding prayer and benediction. Family pews were marked with satin ribbons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional floor length gown of white silk organza empire style with a jewel neckline and calla point sleeves. The chapel train fell from an organza bow at the waist. The bodice and sleeves were appliqued with re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls with scattered appliques of the same on the skirt.

She wore a tulle mantilla pannelled and bordered with alencon lace attached to a small round cap of peau de soie. She carried a formal semi-cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis and cattleya orchids framed with green improved smilax tied with moss green velvet.

Miss Lillian Gray Sugg, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Compton, Diane Merritt and Jane McAndrews, all of Greenville, Susan Thurston of Salisbury and Claudia Stroud of Charlotte, sister of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids' dresses were the same empire style as the bride's gown in bois de rose silk. Their headpieces were crowns of pink velvet with romance pink silk illusion flowing from a crushed bow in the back.

The maid of honor carried a medley cascade of pink daisies with shaded pink miniature carnations tied with a clustered bow of pink velvet. The bridesmaids carried identical bouquets.

Miss Mary McNair Helm of Richmond, Va., cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She carried a white basket filled with pink miniature carnations tied with narrow pink velvet with long streamers.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Harry Porter, Larry Monaghan, Donald and Gary Stroud, brothers of the bridegroom, all of Charlotte, David Leonard of Lincolnton, cousin of the bridegroom, and F. Harding Sugg Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother selected a bleu ciel silk suit. The neckline of the dress was embroidered in pearls and brilliant. She wore a tulle hat with bows of the dress silk.

The bridegroom's mother wore an ensemble of mint green silk crepe with a hat of matching material accented with silk flowers.

Mrs. Benjamin Bruce Sugg, grandmother of the bride, wore a royal blue silk crepe dress. They wore white cattleya orchid corsages.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans and California, the bride changed into a bold checked suit in bitter green and blue with bitter green accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The couple will reside in San Diego, Calif.

The bride is a graduate of Peace College, Raleigh. The bridegroom attended N. C. State University and is now serving in the U. S. Navy.

Reception
Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

In the entrance hall was an arrangement of gladioli. The reception room was decorated with tall standards of greenery with white mums.

Intersecting refreshment tables with four punch bowls were covered with white satin cloths garland with improved smilax caught up on the corners with clusters of white daisies and narrow satin streamers. The tables were centered with a cascading waterfall arrangement of white snapdragons and bridal roses designed in a five branched silver candelabra. Extending from the arrangements were nosegays of white daisies.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake and decorated toast glasses for the bridal couple, maid of honor and best man. A three branched candelabra with clusters of satin wedding bells was also used.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sugg assisted at the reception.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The month of June will have two important dates for Betty Lee Carr of Greenville. She will graduate from college on June 1 and will wed Michael Trahos of Arlington, Va., on June 8.

Betty, who attended J. H. Rose High School, is now a senior at the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, Va.

Michael attended the University of Virginia. He is now a third year student at the Medical College of Virginia School of Denistry.

The couple will exchange their wedding vows in the Oakmont Baptist Church here.

Planning a late summer wedding at the First Christian Church here are Jewelle Jackson of Greenville and Lindsey Gould of Raleigh.

Lindsey and Jewelle first met at an Inter-Fraternity football game held at ECU in November, 1966, and then dated three weeks later.

On March 11, three months later, at a Phi Kappa Tau fraternity dance, they became lavaliered. The fraternity pin followed on June 9 of last year. Lindsey popped the question on Feb. 3 at the Candlewick Inn.

A graduate of J. H. Rose High School, Jewel is presently attending Campbell College, Buies Creek.

A graduate of East Carolina University, Lindsey was a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and the Men's Honor Council.

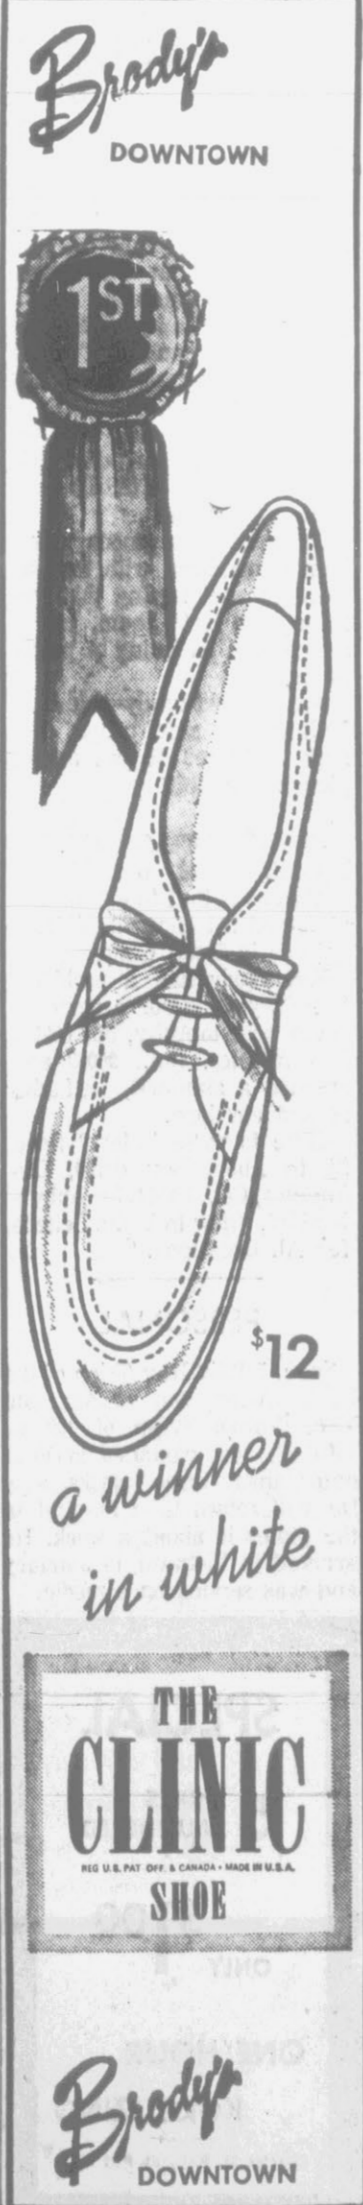

Also planning a June wedding are Helen Elizabeth Everett and Robert Brown Goins. Their wedding day will be on June 15.

A graduate of Meredith College, Helen was a member of Sigma Alpha Iota music fraternity. She is now teaching in Hampson, Va.

Her fiance is a graduate of North Carolina State University where he was a member of Alpha Gamma Rho. Robert is now working on his graduate degree in plant pathology.

It's Golden Age For Seniors

By AP NEWSFEATURES
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A white-haired gentleman, well into his 80s with the bearing of a British aristocrat, looked with mock severity at the woman seated in a chair. "You," he said to Mrs. Madlyn McNiff, 51, "are my mother."

Mrs. McNiff, director of the Golden Age Club since its founding in 1952, looked up, a smile on her lips. "Well, I do take care of you," she replied.

"Indeed," he said, again affecting a scowl and walking toward the door, "as if I need taking care of. Sometimes you're just a bit fresh."

At the door he stopped and turned around. "I'll see you later," he said, his face made younger by laughter. "I have work to do."

Mrs. McNiff's gaze followed him as he went out the door. His strides were those of an energetic man on his way to a meeting.

Mrs. McNiff is a specialist. She specializes in making light-hearted banter, and bringing a personal touch to the lives of the more than 3,700 senior citizens who belong to the Golden Age Club.

Her formula is to let club members take the initiative in planning activities.

When the club was formed it had 18 members. Its present membership represents about one out of every six persons in the city who are over 65.

A while ago a nephew of one of the Golden Agers wrote from Pakistan where he was doing missionary work. He told of the problems of the lepers. Result: a group of women regularly knit cotton bandages from old sheets and shirts and send them to leper colonies in Pakistan. Some of those doing the knitting are blind.

Other projects include daily telephone calls and delivery of hot meals to homebound persons.

"We have a foster grandparents program. Members pay regular visits to children in Shriners hospitals. It's wonderful for both groups," Mrs. McNiff said.

The club itself, she said, is an economic cross section but has an imbalance between men and women, with women comprising 75 per cent of the membership.

"Among our problems are educating the public and, at times, dealing with families," Mrs. McNiff said.

"One of the things I'm doing is pioneering a better way of life for coming generations. The public must learn that old people should not just be pushed aside, both for their own sakes and for society. Even if he has nothing else, he has 80 years of living to offer.

"At times families can be terribly difficult. They want no part of the problem yet they always manage to be there when the will is read."

Prior to becoming director of the Golden Age Club, Mrs. McNiff had been assistant director of the city parks department. Her training, ironically, had been in working with children.

"I've learned so much by working with old people. They have so much to teach, so much experience to convey," says Mrs. McNiff.

"Many things are important in working with the elderly—activities, planning, participation and the like. But what you can never forget is that we all need love. Being old doesn't change that."

Fellow, A Broken Engagement Better Than Broken Marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged to a very pretty girl. She's from a good family and so am I. All our friends and relatives think we are just right for each other, but the more I see of her, the more doubts I have about how this marriage would work out.

She can be sweet as honey one minute and very sullen and pouty the next. She has at times revealed a side of her I never saw before. She's spoiled, demanding and selfish. And stubborn, too. I'm not saying I'm perfect, but I don't think I could take this girl's unpredictable moodiness for a lifetime.

What I am trying to ask, my Dear Abigail, is this: How does a gentleman break an engagement?

DISENCHANTED
DEAR DISENCHANTED: The same way a lady breaks one. He simply tells his intended in the kindest manner possible that he's decided to keep his bachelor button and forgo the orange blossoms. You may be in for a few unpleasant moments, but you'll both survive it. Better a broken engagement than a broken marriage.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a husband who would jump up and set fire to the newspaper his wife was reading because it partly blocked his view of the ball game he was watching on television?

I was completely unaware that I was in his way as he never said a word about it. Could he have been showing off for the others who were also watching the game, or what? I have always tried to be a good wife, and he is what other people would call a good husband.

JUST WONDERING
DEAR JUST: Of all the attention-getting devices, this is one of the most childish, and certainly one of the most dangerous. Watch him for other signs of impulsiveness. He could be off his rocker, or headed in that direction.

DEAR ABBY: I have a good friend who is a registered nurse. She is married to a medical doctor, so it's not as tho she doesn't know better.

Well to get to the point, this foolish woman got out of a sickbed (flu) to attend my son's wedding, and she thought she was doing us all a big favor!

She looked so pale and feverish, but she stayed for the reception and KISSED the bride and groom!

On their honeymoon they both came down with the flu. Now I'm not saying this woman gave it to them, but it strikes me as being a possibility.

Am I an old fuddy-duddy for feeling that sick people belong at home? If you agree, please print this.

FURIOUS
CONFIDENTIAL TO W. H.: I think one of our biggest problems is that too many adults, and not enough children, believe in Santa Claus.

On The Young Side

By BECKY WHITE

This past week has been a very busy one for Rose High students as they struggled to pull any bad grades. The marking period ended Wednesday and report cards will be issued sometimes this week.

Senior Les Garner received a big honor this past week as he was named a Morehead Scholar. Les will receive an $8,000 scholarship to the University of North Carolina.

Voted as "most likely to succeed" by his classmates, Les is also editor of The Green Lights. He was co-chief marshal and is vice president of the National Honor Society in addition to being a member of the Quill and Scroll.

He was trainer and manager for the Rose football team and was voted as one of 12 outstanding seniors by the faculty this year. Les is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Garner of 1402 Knollwood Drive.

Six girls traveled to Wilmington last Saturday for interviews. From these six, senior Tina Beck was chosen to represent Rose High School in the Azalea Festival, April 18-21. Tina will stay in Wilmington, all expenses paid, as a guest celebrity. She will be one of eight North Carolina high school girls in the Queen's Court.

Tina, who will be escorted at all times will travel with television personalities and political figures. This will be an exciting experience for Tina and a great honor for Rose High School. She is a member of the pep club and an SCA representative. She has been a member of the girl's chorus and is currently a member of the mixed chorus. She was also a sponsor this year. Tina is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Beck of 2000 Evans St.

Students are anxiously awaiting a ball game scheduled in the Rose gym this Friday night. Beginning at 7:30 the senior girls will meet the women faculty in what should prove to be a very interesting game.

Immediately following that game the men faculty will compete with the senior boys. Members of the Rose High basketball team will not be allowed to play. Teachers and some boys will be participating as cheerleaders. The public is urged to attend and good luck seniors!

Track season will open this Thursday, March 14, as the boys travel to Wilson for a triangle meet with Wilson, Kinston, and Greenville.

Several outstanding boys in the squad of over 40 members include Richard Tucker, Gregg Williams, and Cliff Edwards in field events. The outstanding sprints will be Tim Foley, Fred Jackson, David Harrington, Kyle Hodges, Gregg Williams, Linwood Ferguson, and Harrison Gaskins.

In distance, spectators should keep an eye on Steve Reed, Bryon Brown, Vick Stanfield, Walter Gould, and Danny and Ducky Stapleton. According to their coach Derard Harris this is potentially one of the best all around track teams for Rose in a number of years.

Students enjoyed a dance last night at the teenage club. The Lonely Drifters from Raleigh provided music from 8:00 - 11:00. The dance was held in the recreation gym on Elm Street.

Customers Greeted With Color Badges

OSLO, Norway (WNS) — Department - store hostesses here now greet customers at the entrances and pin red, white or green badges on them. Red means that the customer is only looking, white that she is primarily interested in noting the prices, and green that she definitely wants to buy.

Duke Engineer Seeks Perfect Road Building

By PAUL FOGLEMAN
DURHAM, N. C. — A nation on wheels is only as efficient as its highways and thoroughfares and a Duke University engineer is looking up the research road which hopefully will lead to perfection.

Dr. Aleksandar Vesic, professor of civil engineering, is principal investigator for a research project here aimed at taking the rule-of-thumb work out of road construction. The effects of hostile climates and the punishment from heavy traffic make it impossible to develop an efficient network with one given set of specifications, Vesic notes.

In his Duke laboratory, Vesic is conducting tests and experiments to determine the behavior and failing point of various types of road-pavement structures under stress. The behavior of asphalt is greatly influenced by the climatic conditions, even more so than previously realized, Vesic reports. Equally important in the research is the indication that what goes down first—not last—is what really counts.

Roads can be improved substantially by stabilizing the base with cement or asphalt, the Duke researchers determined. Most construction bases in the past have been made of granular materials—crushed stone and sand.

Once the behavior patterns of materials are known and theories are determined, engineers can think in terms of new pavement designs. Already serious thought has been given to the more extensive use of plastic in future turnpikes.

The research has tremendous implications for airports, Vesic observes. The heaviest airplane loads today are 10 times that of the heaviest truck loads and are still increasing. Runways may be expected to bear even heavier traffic in the future.

The United States space program has influenced research from the ground up—even to concepts of road construction on the moon and other planets.

The most serious endeavor to confront American road-builders occurred at Cape Kennedy where the pavement was required to support a Saturn rocket. Vesic said the weight of the rocket which was moved from its assembly building to the launching pad was 10 times that of any vehicle built by man.

"Such a road cannot be built safely and economically without a reliable theoretical basis," Vesic asserts. Nor can such roads built elsewhere depend on guesswork.

The next road comparable to that at Cape Kennedy may be needed some day on the moon, the Duke engineer speculates. Once man lands on the moon one of his first considerations will be how he is to get off.

The astronauts undoubtedly will carry their own aluminum launching pads. But the question they must ask themselves is: Will the soil be substantial enough to support the pad under high pressure?

Pictures transmitted from the moon have given earth scientists important information, Vesic acknowledges. But the engineer can only guess about soil and its substance.

Vesic's laboratory tests primarily involve use of aluminum models about one-half inch thick. Tests conducted on these slabs can give indication about stress in asphalt, concrete and other construction materials, he says. His findings have been published in a report by the National Academy of Sciences and a second report for the academy is now being prepared.

The Duke engineer emphasizes that familiar materials used in road constructions have as many applications as technology will allow. Asphalt, like steel, can be produced in many, many varieties.

Applications await other materials yet to be developed. Vesic hopes the Duke research will better prepare engineers for this day.

The safety considerations also are important here. Vesic warns that one mistake in the design of asphalt can produce a death trap for unsuspecting motorists.

In addition to the tests being conducted in his own laboratory, Vesic and his associates are making a rational analysis of data obtained from a series of full-scale experiments conducted in the late 1950s which gave the first major thrust to highway research.

Instead of confining their work to a laboratory, the American Association of State Highway Officials made a full-scale $27 million road test. The results of experiments conducted with various loads and materials still are being studied by engineers throughout the country.

The Duke research is sponsored by the National Cooperative Highway Research Program. Funds to this program come from all state and federal agencies involved in transportation problems.

Vesic has a personal interest in the results of highway research. He is a motorist enthusiast.

Since their arrival in the United States more than 10 years ago, the Yugoslavian-born educator and his wife have visited 40 states. Their travels also carry them to other countries.

Through all of these travels, Vesic has learned first hand that some roads are bad. Some roads cost too much. Some roads crumble because they are not suited to their environment.

Vesic has asked why. Now he hopes to find the answers.

The Worry Clinic Money Worship Often Is Hard On Children

Ancient Abraham traded his wife to the king as an insurance policy on his own life. But here is a modern wife who traded her husband for her equity in a pension plan! Beware about worshipping idols—Many parents worship $$$$$ so much that they ignore the emotional hungers of their kiddies.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE F-512: Howard P., aged 38, is a business executive. "Dr. Crane," his sister informed me, "Howard was married for 15 years to an attractive office secretary.

"They never had any children. His wife earned a very good salary and was on a liberal pension plan.

"But Howard was offered a better job in Ohio, which meant he would be forced to move from Chicago.

"When he informed his wife of the good news, she refused to go to Ohio.

"Apparently, she didn't want to quit her job and jeopardize her future pension.

"Howard delayed as long as possible before finally making up his mind. Then he headed for Ohio.

"They later got a divorce. Howard is now remarried to a wonderful girl and they are expecting a baby in a couple of months.

"Don't you think his first wife made a sad mistake?" One of the Ten Commandments warns us against worshipping idols.

This seems an unnecessary admonition to many moderns, for they laugh at the primitive idea of bowing down to gold or silver images.

Yet those same scoffers may worship $$$$$.

Many fathers of young children will likewise show an abnormal interest in $$$$$ and thus shunt their kiddies aside during those crucial early years when daddy should fraternize with his youngsters.

"Dr. Crane," they sometimes protest, "I want to make my pile of dough and retire by the time I am 45.

"Then I will take it easy and make it up to my family!" But by that time, the children will be grown.

A lot of the beatniks and hippies who stress their interest in "love-ins," were simply starved for affection from their dads in early childhood!

"What shall it profit a man," says the Bible, "to win the whole world but lose his own soul?"

We might substitute "son" for "soul."

"Families that pray together," runs a wise modern adage, "stay together."

It might be appropriate to add:

"Families that pray and play together, stay together."

So beware of focussing too much on retirement pensions and Social Security checks, at the expense of human happiness.

Too many Americans resemble Silas Marner and Scrooge! Howard's first wife apparently loved money more than her mate.

If he had been a typical "rolling stone" who was addicted to leaving one job and rushing across country to another at periodic intervals, her reluctance to make another move would be more defensible.

For some jittery males of the ne'er-do-well sort, keep jumping from one job to another and thus harassing their wives and children.

But Howard was a steady worker who earned a good salary.

Alas, some wives are also completely tied to "mamma's apron strings", that they actually will refuse to leave their home town (or even the city block) in which their parents reside.

These are often "only" children who have been overly dominated by the possessive parents.

So send for my 200-point "Tests for Husbands & Wives", enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

How To Snowball A Small Problem

BURROUGH GREEN, England (UPI)—It took only two minutes to repair Mrs. Agnes Meacham's electric cooker.

In fact the man from the electricity board told her she could have done it herself.

Mrs. Meacham wishes she had because the villagers are hopping mad now.

Electric repairmen tried to drive across the picturesque village green to get to Mrs. Meacham's house. Their 15 hundred-weight van bogged down in the mud. A five-ton truck then was sent to haul the van out. It, too, became stuck. Finally the electricity board sent a breakdown truck with a winch and 12 men to free the trapped vehicles. After four hours they completed the job...leaving the carefully-tended green looking like a tank-training ground.

Ayden Whips Jamesville; Back To State Play

By SONNY McLAWHORN
Reflector Sports Writer

WILLIAMSTON — They said it couldn't be done, but Ayden's Tornadoes swept to their third straight District One, Class A Championship by downing Jamesville last night, 53-45.

had been the leading scorer in the first two games of the tournament for the club. He sat out the game with a sprained ankle.

Ayden was boosted by the fourth quarter foul shooting of George Booth who threw six-for-six at the line. Senior guard Paul Miller played an outstanding floor game and led all scorers with 19 points.

Both teams got off to a slow start as Jamesville outpointed

Ayden 7-6 in the first period. Neither team managed to get more than a one point lead in the period, as the lead changed hands three times.

The Tornadoes came back out gain an 11-6 advantage in the second quarter as Miller poured in seven points. That pushed the lead out to 16-13 at the half.

Jamesville closed the gap to one point at 19-18 when Albert Martin hit with six minutes to play. But the Tornadoes came roaring back to score seven straight points and move out to a nine-point lead when Booth scored with 3:27 showing. That made it 31-22.

Jamesville cut the lead back to four, but Kent Allen hit with less than a minute to play and Dail McLawhorn hit a bucket at the horn to make it 37-29 as the third period ended.

Miller's bucket with 7:40 left in the game made it 39-29, the biggest Tornado lead. Jamesville again rallied to cut the lead back to four point two minutes later on a bucket by E. L. Martin and a free throw by Will Hardison at 40-36.

After Jamesville had finally cut the margin to two at 42-40 on Charles Dempsey's basket, the Tornadoes shoved back into a firm lead on a two-pointer by Albert McLawhorn and a pair of free throws by Booth.

Miller's free throw with 36 seconds left put it out of reach for the Red Evils, as Ayden held a 49-22 lead.

Then with 12 seconds left, Allen got a couple of charity tosses, to make it 51-43.

Adding to Miller's total was Kent Allen with 10. Hardison, Dempsey and Albert Martin had 10 each to lead the Red Devils.

The win assures Ayden of a slot in next week's State Tournament in Durham, and a chance to defend the State Title they have won for the past two years.

The tournament field was rated by the coaches as one of the better ones in recent years, and it was thought that Ayden would have it hands full, but that didn't turn out to be the case.

The Tornadoes will start tournament play either Wednesday or Thursday night in Durham, depending on the draw early this week.

East Carolina Captures Southern Swim Title

BACKSTROKE START — Swimmers leave the starting blocks at the start of the 200-yard backstroke yesterday in the finals of the Southern Conference swimming meet. East Carolina's Mike Tomberlin won the event in the record time of 2:07.54, while ECU's Dick Donahue and John Sultan made it a sweep of the top three places, finishing second and third respectively. East Carolina retained its title, winning for the third straight year. (Reflector Photo)

Bucs Pull Away From West Virginia In Final Day Of Southern Splash-In

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The East Carolina University swimming team successfully defended its Southern Conference championship, shaking off a stubborn West Virginia team during yesterday's final events.

The Pirates finished up with 156 points to West Virginia's 115. William & Mary trailed far behind in third with 67 points, while Virginia Military Institute had 53, Davidson had 24, and The Citadel had 21.

Of the seven events that made up the final day's schedule, East Carolina and West Virginia each took three firsts, with William & Mary picking up the other one.

Five new records were set, in addition.

West Virginia's victories came in the 1,650 yard freestyle, the 100-yard freestyle, and the 200-yard breaststroke. East Carolina won the 200-yard backstroke, the one-meter diving, and the 400-yard medley event that gave the Pirates their big jump on the Mountaineers. At this point, East Carolina held a 101-91 lead over West Virginia. But Dick Donahue and John Sultan finished second and third for the Bucs, respectively, and Bill King finished sixth, while West Virginia could manage only a fifth and seventh place finish.

This pushed the Buc lead to 118-93, and put it out of reach.

In the 200-yard breaststroke, Chifton Hutchinson took his third title with a victory, 2:21.36, another conference mark. The win for the Mountaineer swimmer, coupled with his other two, and his taking part on two winning relay teams made him the meet's Outstanding Swimmer, the top individual honor.

In the 100-yard butterfly, William & Mary's George Collins took his second win, finishing in a time of :54.48.

Dick Tobin of East Carolina won the diving, putting together, 378.99 points, while ECU's Bob Baird was second.

In the final event, the 400-yard medley relay, the Bucs set a pair of records. Mike Tomberlin, who started it off with the backstroke, finished his 100-yard in :56.1, a new record for that distance. His time, plus that of Owen Paris, Sultan and Larry Allmar made a winning mark of 3:47.23, another new record. The old one was 3:50.5, also set by an East Carolina team.

North Carolina Rips N.C. State By 87-50 For Atlantic Coast Title

By LAWRENCE C. FALK
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI)—North Carolina's Larry Miller and Charlie Scott teamed up in a second half blitz Saturday night to bury North Carolina State 87-50 and gave the fourth-ranked Tar Heels their second consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

Miller, a second team all-America selection, scored 21 points and Scott got 16. This, against a second-half scoring famine by State, enabled the Tar Heels to race from a close 31-26 halftime lead to the rout.

The Tar Heels advanced to the NCAA Eastern Regionals in Raleigh, N. C., next week where they face St. Bonaventure, a 102-93 winner over Boston College in first round action Saturday night.

State, which gained the final round of the ACC tournament with a startling 12-10 upset over Duke Friday, had no intention of holding the ball Saturday. The Wolfpack came out running and stayed in contention with the swift Tar Heels until the final minute and a half of the first period when Scott forward Bill Bunting and guard Dick Gruber hit five straight free throws to bring the score from 26-24 to the halftime margin of 31-26.

As the second half started, North Carolina began to get its fast-breaking offense working against the State man-to-man defense and Miller, Scott and center Rusty Clark started pouring in the points. From the time Miller sank a pair of free throws with less than five minutes gone in the final period, there was no doubt about the outcome. Miller's points put Carolina ahead 47-30.

North Carolina built its lead to as much as 40 points in the final minute of the game after coach Dean Smith emptied his bench.

Dick Braucher was high man for State with 12 points. Sophomore Van Williford was second with 11.

Weiskopf In Tie For Doral

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Young Tom Weiskopf charged into a tie for the Doral Open Golf Tournament lead Saturday when an otherwise flawless round by the veteran Gardner Dickinson ended with a bogey on the 18th hole.

The two players fought a pressure filled fight from the beginning to the end of this warm, sunny day. Weiskopf once surged into a tie, fell a stroke back and then hung on until Dickinson made his one mistake.

The 25-year-old Weiskopf blasted out a six-under-par 66. Dickinson fired a 67, and they went into Sunday's final round deadlocked 13 under par at 20.

Two quick birdies by Weiskopf at the 15th and 16th holes brought the two rivals even. The big blond, a rising star on the circuit, dropped a five iron shot one foot from the pin on the 183-yard 15th. He birdied the next hole with a putt from 15 feet.

But Dickinson allowed his young foe to enjoy the lead for only a few moments at that time. He ran down a 25-foot putt for a birdie at the 16th and broke right back out of the tie.

Weiskopf finished with two steady pars. Dickinson parred the 17th but his drive on No. 18 was wide to the right and when his chip to the green pulled up 20 feet short, he two-putted for the bogey.

Eight under par at the start of the day, Dickinson was on fire at the beginning Saturday. He racked up four birdies on the first five holes. At the turn, he was 12 under par, and Weiskopf was three strokes back.

Dickinson started the backside with another birdie, but Weiskopf, hanging on like a bulldog, made an eight-foot eagle putt and cut Dickinson's margin to one.

At the day's end, the two leaders held a three-stroke edge over the pack. Howie Johnson's 68 gave him third place at 206.

Bert Yancey, whose round of 69 included a string of four straight birdies starting at the 10th hole, and Fred Marti, who carded a 68, were tied for fourth at 208.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Favored Davidson stole the ball five times in the last five minutes and rallied to defeat St. John's of New York 79-70 Saturday in the opening round of the NCAA Eastern Regional Basketball Tournament.

Columbia's Ivy League champions romped over La Salle of the Middle Atlantic Conference 83-69 in the opener of the double-header as sophomore Howard Dotson scored 32 points and will play Davidson in the Eastern semifinals at Raleigh, N.C., Friday.

Conference champion their eighth loss in 28 games.

Dotson sank 10 of 14 field goal attempts, grabbed 10 rebounds and was credited with two assists. Teammates Jim McMillian and Roger Walaszek each scored 17.

Bernie Williams, who scored only four points in the first half, rallied La Salle to within 56-49 with 12:35 to play as he opened the second half with eight points, an assist, and a steal which led to another basket.

But Dotson scored Columbia's next seven points, the first basket coming after a three minute stall, increasing the Lions' lead

Williams, a La Salle junior, connected on nine of 17 shots from the floor. Ed Szczenszy scored 18 for the losing Explorers, and Larry Cannon added 14.

Guilford Set For NAIA Play

By BOB GREENE

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The 31st annual NAIA classic, oldest and largest national basketball tournament, tips off early Monday morning.

Albany State, seeded 13th in the 32-team weeklong tourney, will play New Haven, 16-11, at 9:30 a.m., Monday.

Eight games will be played Monday and the same schedule will be followed Tuesday, ending the first round.

Semifinals will be held Friday night and the championship and third-place games Saturday.

Top-seeded Guilford, N.C., 25-4, led by small college All-American Bob Kauffman, swings into action at 7 a.m. Tuesday, facing Oshkosh, Wis., State, 19-5. Guilford is making its third consecutive trip to the Kansas City tournament but has never made it past the second round.

Thirty-one teams qualified for the tournament by winning district playoffs. Northeastern Oklahoma State, 25-3, the NAIA's No. 1-ranked team during the season, was given an at-large berth when District 29 was unable to hold a playoff.

Last year's champion, St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kan., and runner-up Oklahoma Baptist, failed to qualify for this year's meet. St. Benedict's was defeated by Washburn, Kan., in the District 10 finals.

Davidson, which had whipped St. John's 70-54 earlier in the season, trailed 68-67 with 5 1/2 minutes remaining before a basket by sophomore Mike Maloy put the Wildcats ahead to stay.

It was the first basket of the second half for Maloy, who scored 16 of his 23 points before intermission.

St. John's seemed to fall apart after that, and Dave Moser twice stole the ball for Davidson in the next minute. The Wildcats muffed their first opportunity, but Maloy tapped in a rebound following the second steal for a 71-68 lead.

Wayne Huckle missed two free throws for the Wildcats, who have a 23-4 record, but Jerry Kroll again swiped the ball and Mike O'Neill sank two free throws for Davidson.

St. John's, which ended the season at 19-8, attempted only two shots after Davidson got the lead at 69-68, and both were blocked. Doug Cook, who sat out most of the first half after incurring three fouls in the first six minutes, scored the final six points for Davidson in the last minute and tied Kroll with a 16-point total.

John Warren scored 24 to pace the underdog Redmen, who gained the lead 63-62 with 8:34 remaining after trailing 40-34 at halftime. Rudy Bogad scored 14, and Joe DePre added 13.

Dotson, who entered the game with a 12-point scoring average, scored 20 points for Columbia's Ivy League champions in the first half.

Dotson scored seven of his team's nine consecutive points as Columbia spurred to a 19-9 lead midway through the first half and rolled to its 22nd victory in 26 starts.

John Warren, ranked No. 8 in the country, led by at least seven points the rest of the way and dealt La Salle's Middle Atlantic

Tiny Lund Wins Sandhills; Carolina 500 Set For Today

By BLOYS BRITT
Associated Press Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dwayne "Tiny" Lund, a 260-pound, 6-foot-2 fish camp operator, won the inaugural Sandhills 250 mile race for NASCAR's new Grand Touring cars Saturday before 22,500 at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Lund, driving a Mercury Cougar engineered by veteran builder Bud Moore, never was worse than second after starting on the front row in the first race of its kind held on a Southern super-speedway.

He averaged 95.846 miles per hour in finishing about two laps ahead of 21-year-old Swede Savage of San Bernardino, Calif., driving another Moore-team car.

Lund's share of the $16,500 purse was $3,950. Savage picked up $2,050.

Bud Moore of Charlotte, no relation to Lund's car owner, finished third in another Mercury Cougar.

It was the first NASCAR sponsored race for the small "sporty" sedans. Fifteen of them started the race over the one mile paved and banked oval and 12 were running at the finish.

Saturday's race served as a preliminary to Sunday's 500-mile for big bore stockers, which will distribute $76,500 in prize money.

Fourth place in the Sandhills 250 went to veteran Buck Baker of Charlotte in a Camaro and fifth to Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., in a Porsche 911. Gregg won $500 for the two-liner division.

Another Porsche, handled by Jack Ryan of Griffin, Ga., finished sixth.

Lund, 32, of Cross, S.C., and Savage alternated in leading the race except for a two-lap period when Moore was in front.

There were six caution flags, caused by minor spinouts and they slowed the race for 42 laps. There were no injuries.

A woman driver, Britisher Jacqui Smith, started last in the field. She made only four circuits before turning the 1968 Camaro over to veteran Neil Castles, who finished 13th.

Excitement Causes Bucs Lose Big Swim Lead

Pirates Starting Spring Grid Drills

The East Carolina University football team will begin spring drills on Saturday, March 16, Coach Clarence Stasavich said.

The Bucs, who finished with an 8-2 record last season, will be out to improve their mark in the Southern Conference, where they were 4-1 and just edged out by the West Virginia Mountaineers for the title.

But the Bucs, because of the withdrawal of George Washington from football, may be looking for a special game to cope with conference problems. The Pirates reportedly have only four conference games, while conference rules require that five are necessary to be eligible for title consideration.

West Virginia, however, has gotten away with not meeting the rule for the past four years, and there is the possibility that as many as four schools in the conference may have to have non-conference games counted in the conference race.

Perhaps the brightest spot in the Pirate drills will be the fact that fullback Butch Colson, the player of the year in the conference, is going to be back, not only for one season, but two. The rising junior, however, will probably be in a backfield of strangers, since his other three running mates have all graduated — tailback Neal Hughes, blocking back Nelson Gravatt, and winback Tom Grant.

Therefore, the coaching staff must find replacements for these men, as well as fill up several holes in the lines and defensive backfield.

Altogether, a total of nine seniors held starting positions last year, counting the three offensive backs. The others are: offensive end Paul Schnurr, defensive end Joe Testo, defensive tackle John Schwarz, offensive guard Kevin Moran, center Jimmie Schuffler, and defensive back Todd Hicks.

Their replacements will come largely from men who backed them up, although some rising sophomores may find themselves in starting roles before the opening game next fall.

While the starting backs will need three replacements, a lot of others saw action last season.

At the tailback slot, Bryan McClure, Billy Wightman and Dennis Young are all somewhat experienced, and sophomore Mike Mills may test them all. Blocking back seems to be settling on the shoulders of rising senior Charlie Overton, and a number of candidates are available at the wingback slot.

Plugging up the hole left by Moran may be one of the tougher jobs the Pirate coaches will have this spring, although replacements for the other line-men will also not be easy to find since nearly all were three-year veterans.

The drills will continue through the rest of the month, and most of April, with a week off for Easter holidays. They will conclude with the annual Purple-Gold game on Saturday, April 27.

Bucs Disqualified In Final Relay

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

An excited East Carolina University swimmer leaped back into the water Friday night at the conclusion of the 400-yard freestyle relay, and put the Bucs into hot water as they seek their third straight Southern Conference championship.

The East Carolina team had just touched home in a record time of 3:22.62, eleven-hundredths of a second before West Virginia, the second place team in the meet. The excited swimmer leaped in to express his happiness to his teammate who had swum the last leg, only then to realize that some teams were still swimming, bringing an automatic disqualification for the Bucs.

That cost them the victory in the event, the new record, and what is probably most important, 18 points in the championship standings. Had the incident not occurred, East Carolina would have added 14 to its total, while West Virginia got 10. That would have made the total score going into Saturday's final events, 94-70, a 24-point lead.

Instead, West Virginia got the championship, the new record in a time of 3:22.73, and the 14 points. East Carolina got no points, and that made it officially, East Carolina 80, West Virginia 74, a slim six-point spread.

East Carolina had been on the way to a very successful evening when the accident occurred in the final event. The Bucs had captured three of the five individual championships in the other races, with West Virginia and William & Mary each winning one.

Pirate winners were Bob Moynihan in the 200-yard freestyle, Mike Tomberlin in the 100-yard backstroke and John Sultan in the 400-yard individual medley.

Both Tomberlin and Sultan set new records. Tomberlin finished in :56.38, breaking the old record of :57.9, which he also held. He had also broken it in the preliminaries with a time of :57.64. Sultan's new mark came in the preliminaries with a time of 4:43.24. His finals time was just a hair slower, 4:43.62. The old record was 4:48.1, held by ECU's Owen Paris.

Moynihan's victory represented one of the big upsets of the meet. He was expected to finish third behind two West Virginia swimmers, but came through in a time of 1:53.47, winning by three-tenths of a second.

George Collins of William & Mary won the 200-yard butterfly in a time of 2:05.77, a new record. The old mark was 2:05.8 held by East Carolina's Mike Hamilton. Clifton Hutchinson won the 100-yard breaststroke with a record time of 1:04.59, another new record. The old mark was 1:05.5 held by Bob Buie of Virginia Tech. He also surpassed the old record in the preliminaries with a time of 1:04.76.

Carolina Gets Overtime Victory; State Gives Duke A Slow Death

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — The name of the game was patience, and North Carolina State's deliberate, disciplined basketball team won from Duke 12-10 to move to tonight's Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament finals against top-seeded North Carolina, which outlasted South Carolina 82-79 in a rousing overtime battle of high-powered offenses.

The winner gains the conference crown and a spot in the NCAA Eastern Regional tournament at Raleigh, N. C., next Friday against the winner of today's game between St. Bonaventure and Boston College.

Should North Carolina, the nation's No. 5 team, lose, the Tar Heels are likely candidates for a National Invitation Tournament spot in New York next Thursday against Oklahoma City. Duke had been considered a prime NIT prospect but its status now is uncertain, at best.

Rarely, if ever, have two games played back-to-back contrasted as sharply as did Friday night's semifinals.

South Carolina, with no tournament possibilities beyond the ACC due to NCAA probation, trailed North Carolina by nine points after a half in which each team shot a sparkling 51 per cent.

But Coach Frank McGuire's Gamecocks battled back to wrest the lead from the team whose 20-game winning streak they snapped last week and make a bristling battle of it. Skip Harlicka's basket with two minutes left of regulation tied it at 74-44 and the Tar Heels, with backcourters Dick Grubar and Gerald Tuttle, a reserve, sinking clutch points, staggered home with their 24th victory in 27 games.

After this frenzied action that had the sellout crowd of 11,509 in a constant uproar, came the N. C. State freeze that resulted in the lowest scoring game in recent major college basketball history. The previous ACC tournament low was Duke's 21-20 victory over stall-minded North Carolina in the 1966 semifinals.

With the score 2-2 near the mid-point of the first half, N. C. State held the ball for about eight minutes before getting a freethrow, which Dick Braucher missed. Duke, No. 6 in the nation, was content to remain in its zone defense and the Wolfpack was determined to hold the ball.

The crowd, recovered by then from the frantic first game, clamored for action, but still the patient Wolfpack held the ball.

A Mike Lewis layup with 2:49 left concluded the scoring and gave Duke a 4-2 lead in a half of which each team had eight shots for one basket.

But the big freeze was still to come. Duke led 8-6 when N. C. State got the ball with 16:15 to play in the second half. For the next 13 minutes and 45 seconds State held the ball. Bill Kretzer, stringbean 6-foot-7 senior center, dribbled away about 13 minutes of the time, getting only fleeting respite when he passed to a teammate.

Finally, with 2:43 left, Cant Eddie Biedenbach got the ball and his jumper at 2:31 tied the score at 8-8.

Dave Golden made it 9-8 for Duke with a freethrow and 43 seconds, but missed his second shot.

A key play followed when Kretzer missed a freethrow, but Dick Braucher retrieved the ball and dropped in a layup for a 10-9 State lead. After Golden turned over the ball in his haste to move down floor, Vann Williford was fouled and the State sophomore made it 11-9 with 16 seconds left.

With six seconds left Golden was fouled and again missed his second shot. Braucher wound up the scoring with a State freethrow with three seconds left and Duke's last gasp was a floor-length pass which Biedenbach intercepted.

Sloan, teammate of Duke Coach Vic Bubas at N. C. State 20 years ago, said of the stall. "I can't apologize. It just developed as it went along. We had a quickness going for us and they had size going for them. So we wanted to play all over the court, not just under the basket."

But he said he did not think North Carolina's defense would allow that type of game.

Sloan added this comment. "When you stand there and hold the ball for 12 or 15 minutes, it's a two-way street you know. We're not just standing there holding it. They're allowing us to hold it."

Disappointed Bubas said, "I accept full responsibility for the loss, for choosing to play it that way. I told our boys that during the course of the year I hope I have made some good decisions. This one wasn't so good."

The loss marked the end of a nerve-racking week for Duke. The Blue Devils struggled by North Carolina last Saturday in triple overtime, then encountered a Clemson slow-down before squeezing out a 43-40 first round tournament victory. The State freeze was the chilling climax.

Statistics underscore the sharp contrast between the two semifinal games. In leading North Carolina to victory over South Carolina, All-American Larry Miller's 24 points and 11 baskets in 28 shots all exceeded the combined totals for Duke and N. C. State.

N. C. State shot 13 times for four baskets. Duke hit two of 11. Lewis, top scorer in the ACC, and Biedenbach shared game honors with four points each.

N. C. State, 7-19 a year ago for its worst losing season, now is 16-9 as it goes against a Tar Heel team it has bowed to by two and 12 points.

White Sox Hit Boston By 7-3

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ah, what wonderful things spring can do for a baseball team.

Today's example is the Chicago White Sox, those lovable, little hitless wonders who had a team batting average of .225 last year.

The Sox made their 1968 debut at Sarasota, Fla., Friday, pounded out 14 hits and thumped Boston's American League champions 7-3. It was enough to make Manager Eddie Stanky risk a contented smile.

Two newcomers—outfielders Russ Snyder and Tommy Davis—led the offense with two hits apiece. Snyder, acquired from Baltimore, rapped a triple and a single and scored twice. Davis, who came from the New York Mets, slapped a pair of singles and scored twice.

The Mets, meanwhile, were idle but in form. Often accused of not being able to stay out of each other's way, they proved it in practice when ace pitcher Tom Seaver was hit in the head by a line drive.

Coach Eddie Yost was the culprit and the interesting part of this story was that Yost was supposed to have been hitting grounders, not line drives.

Seaver escaped serious injury and was expected to start today's exhibition opener against St. Louis.

76ers Nearing Another Crown

By KEN RAPPOPORT
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers are within a stone's throw of their third straight Eastern Division crown in the National Basketball Association—and guess who put them there?

Your guess is correct if you say Wilt Chamberlain and Hal Greer.

Chamberlain swept the boards for 24 rebounds, had 10 assists and scored 13 points while Greer hammered in 27 points as the 76ers whipped Boston 101-96, Friday night and moved closer to the championship.

The victory boosted the 76ers' division-leading margin over Boston to 6½ games and reduced their magic number to two. Any combination of two 76er victories or Boston defeats will give the 76ers the championship.

Coach Alex Hannum of the 76ers called Friday night's game "a game of spurts."

"And we had the right (spurt) at the right time," he added. "Wilt sure got us the ball when we needed it."

Both teams wasted sizeable leads in a game that was tied five times in the last period. Matt Guokas snapped the final deadlock with 3:24 remaining to put Philadelphia ahead to stay, 93-91.

Boston, playing without ill Sam Jones, moved to within two points at 98-96 with a minute remaining, but Greer canned two free throws and Guokas added another to close the scoring.

In other NBA action, Detroit replaced Cincinnati in fourth place in the East by drubbing the Royals 129-118, Los Angeles topped San Diego 130-122 and Baltimore beat Seattle 122-116.

Dallas nipped Houston 117-116, Kentucky defeated New Jersey 109-100, New Orleans edged Pittsburgh 116-114 and Minnesota tumbled Oakland 109-101 in the American Basketball Association.

Detroit moved ahead of Cincinnati by one-half game for the fourth and final playoff spot in the East behind the shooting of Eddie Miles, who hit eight of 10 field goal attempts in the final period when the Pistons broke the game open.

Miles and Dave Bing each scored 31 points for Detroit. Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati poured in 38.

Los Angeles, second in the West behind St. Louis, gained its 24th victory in the last 30 games by whipping San Diego.

Elgin Baylor and Archie Clark each scored 23 points for the Lakers, while Henry Finkel threw in 35 for San Diego.

It took six straight points in the final 40 seconds for Baltimore to pull out its victory over Seattle in a game at Olympia, Wash. Kevin Loughery's field goal broke a 116-116 tie and Johnny Egan and Earl Monroe got the other points.

Monroe was high for the game with 33. Tom Meschery scored 30 for Seattle.

EC Baseballers Elect Captains

The East Carolina University baseball team has elected three of its veteran players as tri-captains for this season. It is the first time the Bucs have worked under a tri-captain system.

Elected were Dave Winchester, Steve Fornash and Dennis Burke. Winchester is the team's third baseman, while Fornash is an outfielder. Burke is a pitcher.

The Bucs open their season on March 20 against Ithaca College.

Voss May Be Man To Watch

By EMERY DAVIS
Special to the Reflector

Kenny Voss, only a sophomore on the East Carolina University track team, may be a man to watch in this spring's outdoor season.

"I'm only down here for two reasons — to get an education and to run," says Voss. The 24-year-old ex-Marine certainly does run.

Voss holds ECU track records in the outdoor mile at 4:18, the two-mile at 9:22.2 and has indoor mile at 4:19.9, and the in-a-college career goal, "to win a conference championship." Having placed third in the N. C. state cross country meet and fifth in the Southern Conference cross country meet as a freshman, Voss hopes to continue to do well this spring.

The work and dedication required of a distance runner are shown in Voss' self-imposed discipline and training schedule. "I usually get up at 6:30 in the morning and go out to run before breakfast, then I run again in the afternoon," East Carolina track coach Bill Carson said. "Voss runs nearly every day, averaging from 85 to 125 miles of running each week." Voss quipped, "I guess it's a habit. I've been doing it so long that I feel I'm cheating myself if I have to miss a day."

Additionally, Voss' hard work carried into team practices. Carson commented that "Kenny is a leader in making each workout a success." In one team workout, for instance, Voss made 10 quarter-mile runs, averaging 61.1 seconds, with each run separately by a 220-yard job. "Coach Carson usually sets goals for us in practice, and I usually try to surpass whatever he expects of me." Voss also has to restrict his social life and maintain strict eating habits. "I don't get to date much. With studying and practice there just isn't time. I have a real nice girl friend, who sometimes wants me to relax a bit and stop worrying about the work," Voss smiled.

In eating, he tries to avoid soft drinks, peanuts, popcorn, "That sort of thing. You have to eat meats, but avoid greasy, fried foods."

A Riverside, California, native Voss first became interested in track during his junior year in high school. After high school he "went into the service to get it over with. I got some time for practice in the Marines, but not much," Voss commented. "It was when I was stationed in Washington, D. C., that I placed fifth there in the featured mile at the National Invitational meet." Former ECU track coach Baxter Berryhill offered Voss a grant-in-aid to join the East Carolina track program. "I really began to work to get into top physical shape and told myself that I had to run at least 80 to 100 miles a week."

What makes a man restrict himself to almost continuous running and such a rigorous living schedule? "You have to do a little crazy," Voss said. "But I sometimes think there's nothing quite so nice as, say, a fifteen-mile run. That may sound crazy, but you can be out alone, you can watch the scenery, the world. You have to be devoted. I guess that's what it comes down to," he said.

And knowing Kenny Voss as a very devoted athlete, one might call his appraisal an understatement.

Shrimp Boats A'Comin' Crew Better Beware

Coach Vic Pezzulla of the East Carolina crew team was faced with a rapid decision. In the middle of Tampa (Fla.) Bay, his two shells were about to be swamped by the wake of a shrimp boat.

"There are no shrimp boats, much less wakes of this size on the Tar River where we practice," Pezzulla explained sheepishly. "I knew my boys didn't know how to handle them, and I couldn't decide if I was going to lose by Jayvee crew or the varsity."

"One was on one side of the shrimp boat, and the other on the other, and it was obvious they didn't know what to do because they were heading nose first into the wake."

Acting with resolution, Pezzulla did nothing but watch as the four and one-half foot wake all but swamped the two boats. This was but one of several hectic, and in recollection, somewhat humorous situations, which befell Pezzulla in his first road trip as head coach of the East Carolina team. The team, two years old now, was on a six-day Florida trip and the fact the Pirates came back with a 2-6 record for their troubles, left some slack-jawed amazement in their own wake.

Bradley Wickersham, a former teammate of Pezzulla at Tampa and now the coach there, couldn't believe what he saw.

"Their potential is such that I think they have a good chance in the Dad-Vail Regatta (college division championships) in Philadelphia later this year," Wickersham said.

"It's unbelievable that this could happen, in two years. They are 100 percent better than last year."

The Varsity's best efforts were four-second losses to Florida Southern and Rollins on the trip, but the Jayvees beat Rollins, the national champion two years ago, and Jacksonville.

Pezzulla, who took over the crew team last September has been carrying on a merciless regimen of workouts on the Tar River, which runs through the heart of Greenville. And, he insists that when the likes of Marist College comes down on March 30, the next date on the schedule, that his boys are going to win.

"I think we convinced people in Florida that we aren't the hillbillies they thought we were when we went down there," he said. "That's what they called us the first day we were in Tampa, but then we went out and did their course in record time in practice, and they looked at us a little differently."

This was accomplished on a calm afternoon, but the next day, with the wind gusting up to 60 miles an hour, the East Carolinians lost to Tampa by 16 seconds.

"They had a heavier shell than we did, and that didn't help us much," Pezzulla said. "But my boys did a good job, and I'm really looking forward to the rest of the season."

The crew program was installed at East Carolina two years ago as a part of the full athletic program being pushed by Dr. Leo Jenkins, university president.

Besides Marist, the opening meet at home, Pezzulla is also looking forward to one other in particular. The Pirates will play host to the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame on April 16.

NCAA Tourney Ready To Begin

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

North Carolina State used some "walk, don't run" basketball philosophy Friday night and sent Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils heading for the nearest exit from the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs.

The Wolfpack held the ball without taking a shot for almost 14 minutes in the second half, then scored six points in the last 2½ minutes for an incredible 12-10 victory that sent them into Saturday night's title game against North Carolina with a berth to the NCAA tournament at stake.

That tourney gets under way today with seven first-round games at four scattered sites, including appearances by top-ranked Houston and third-rated St. Bonaventure, only major unbeaten teams in the country.

Houston, led by Elvin Hayes, The Associated Press' player of the year, takes its 28-0 record against La Salle in the opener.

Loyola in a doubleheader at Salt Lake City, Utah. New Mexico State and Weber State both 21-5, meet in the other half of the twin bill.

St. Bonaventure, winner of all 22 regular season games, faces Boston College in a single game at Kingston, R.I.

Columbia's Ivy League champions kick off the tournament against La Salle in the opener of an afternoon doubleheader at College Park, Md. Davidson faces St. John's of New York in the second game.

Another doubleheader, this one at Kent, Ohio, sends Florida State against East Tennessee and Marquette against Bowling Green.

The seven winners advance to next weekend's regionals at Raleigh, N.C.; Lexington, Ky.; Wichita, Kan., and Albuquerque, N.M.

Coaches Norman Sloan of North Carolina State and Vic Bubas of Duke, who were teammates at State 20 years ago, called timeouts galore in the final minute of their slowdown showdown to set up strategy.

Duke held a 4-2 halftime lead after State held the ball for eight minutes. The biggest freeze set in after the Blue Devils took an 8-6 lead with 16:15 remaining. For most of the next 14 minutes, Bill Kretzer, State's 6-foot-7 center, dribbled the ball with only an occasional pass to a teammate.

Eddie Biedenbach's jump shot tied the score with 2½ minutes left and then it was Duke's turn to hold the ball and try for one last shot. But State chose to foul Dave Golden with 43 seconds left and the best he could do was make one of two free throws for a 9-8 lead.

Dick Braucher gave State the lead with 46 seconds to go when he put in a rebound of Kretzer's missed free throw and sophomore Vann Williford made a foul shot with 16 seconds to play. Ten seconds later Golden had a chance to tie it up but missed his second foul shot.

State took only 13 shots, making four, while Duke was two for 11.

"We had no specific plan going into the game," said Sloan. "It just developed as it went along. We had quickness going for us and they had size going for them. So we wanted to play all over the court, not just under the basket."

Bubas, who ordered his team not to come out and press the Wolfpack, took full responsibility for the defeat.

Tornadoes Take 61-54 Victory; Meet Devils

By SONNY McLAWHORN
Reflector Sports Writer

WILLIAMSTON — Ayden decided Robersonville Friday night, 61-54, to move into Saturday's final round in the district tournament.

For the Tornadoes, it was revenge for two losses suffered to the Rams early in the season.

In the opening game, Bethel's cinderella team put a scare in the Jamesville Red Devils before falling by a 46-41 score.

The Indians built up a steady lead early in the game, as Jerry Price's bucket made it 5-2. The Red Devils retaliated, but Bobby Case hit and John Watson followed to make it 9-4.

Jamesville closed the margin to one point by the end of the first period, and tied it up on Randy Mobley's free throw early in the second quarter. A pair of charity tosses by Will Hardison put the Red Devils out in front by 11-10. Then the Red Devils moved out to a six-point advantage, as Albert Martin connected on four straight free throws to make the score 20-14.

The Red Devils lead went to 10 at 28-18 when Charles Dempsey scored with 6:20 left in the third period.

Bethel fought back, and cut the lead to two at 34-32 as Case got a bucket early in the final period.

The two teams swapped baskets until Case's foul shot with 1:36 to play chopped the lead to one. Jamesville had a traveling violation with 1:30 left. Bethel missed a scoring chance, and a Jamesville player came down with the rebound. Then with 55 seconds left, a Red Devil player was tied up, but Jamesville controlled the tap and the ball game.

Martin led the Red Devils with 18 points, while Hardison had 12.

Senior forward Case paced Bethel with 18, while John Watson had 11.

The Ayden - Robersonville clash seemed to be a runaway, as the Tornadoes collected a 37-19 halftime lead, but the Rams roared back to outscore Ayden in the third period by 22-7.

Ayden could do no wrong in the first quarter. The Tornadoes were behind only once at 2-1 on Philip Stalls' jumper. Paul Miller scored the first five points for Ayden to send the Tornadoes into a 5-3 lead.

On the strength of some red-hot shooting, Ayden pushed its lead out to 10 at 19-9 on Dall McLawhorn's bucket with 1:25 left in the period.

An eight-point spurt early in the second quarter helped Ayden to increase the margin to 17, as Miller scored on a layup with 4:35 to play in the half.

But in the third quarter, the Tornadoes fell apart — and the Rams were quick to capitalize. Robersonville scored 10 straight points, including three jumpers by Stalls, and cut the Ayden lead to seven on James Roberson's basket with 3:30 to go.

In the final seconds, a bucket and a pair of free throws by reserve center Joe Goins whacked the lead down to three at 44-41.

Stalls hit to open the fourth quarter. A couple om buckets by guard George Booth built up a five point lead for the Tornadoes.

After the Rams cut it back to three, Howard McLawhorn got a clutch basket to make it 54-49 with little more than a minute to play. Booth's bucket with 40 seconds left put the game on ice, as the lead was seven again.

B. T. Chappell led Ayden with 15 points. Booth had 12, while Miller and McLawhorn scored 10 each.

Goins scored 15 to pace the losing Rams. Jimmy Roebuck and Stalls had 12 apiece, while Roberson had 10.

Friday's games set a Jamesville-Ayden clash in the Saturday finale.

Mexico Tries To Clear Olympic Air

By STRATFORD C. JONES
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, trying desperately to clear up the Olympic tangle, awaited today responses to their call for an International Olympic Committee executive session on South Africa's readmission to the Games.

At that session Mexico will try to convince the other members that admission of a racist South Africa to the 1968 Games constitutes a change of Olympic rules — a question that should be decided by a two-thirds majority instead of the simple majority that voted in Grenoble last month for its readmission.

Mexico's three top Olympic officials told a news conference Friday night they had sent telegrams to other executive committee representatives suggesting a meeting the first weekend in April. They suggested it be held either in Lausanne, Dublin, Montreal, Chicago or Mexico City.

The three officials are Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, chairman of Mexico's Olympic organizing committee, and Mexican IOC delegates Jose Jesus Clark Flores and Marte R. Gomez, both of whom voted against readmission of South Africa. They flew to Chicago last week to present their thinking to IOC President Avery Brundage who agreed to a meeting but said it might take as long as two months to convene.

So far 39 countries, grouped around an African bloc of 32, have said they will boycott as a protest against South Africa's policy of Apartheid.

Mexico, which by the end of the Games will have invested an estimated $70 million in them, stands to lose enormously if they are anything less than a success.

Still, Mexico denies any plans to cancel the Games if the boycott matures. Vazquez said Friday night it didn't matter who came: "We are preparing to receive all the youth we invite," he said.

RECORD LOW IN SPIRITS TOO—Duke's dejected Joe Kennedy (40) walks from the court as North Carolina State University jubilation breaks out in the background after they won Friday's game in the Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball. State won with a stall that produced a record score of 12-10.

Looking For More Than Just Trophies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Wynne, a bearded six-foot daredevil, is looking for more than trophies when he takes a wheel of a racing craft in an offshore powerboat race. Mostly it's ideas.

He's had a lot of them in almost a decade of rugged ocean racing in the United States and Europe and a good many of them have now become realities—sleek hulls for pleasure craft that he and his partner John Gill, a hydrodynamics expert, have designed for half a dozen manufacturers.

At the recent National Boat Show in New York, 14 Wynne-designed boats were on display and, as Wynne put it in an interview, "A good part of the ideas in these designs came from what I learned while racing powerboats."

One of his most recent designs is a 36-foot cruiser for Chris-Craft, the Corvette, which boasts a very full V-hull fashioned from traditional wood rather than fiberglass.

While his enthusiasm and love for offshore powerboat racing still remains, the man who won two world titles in the sport—in 1964 and zooms away from the starting line these days that doesn't have a Wynne-designed hull or some of his innovations in the field.

And he watches the results closely.

"These races are a proving ground for boats and equipment," he said, "much as track racing provides better automobiles, tires and other automotive equipment."

Wynne points out that virtually all competitors in the gruelling offshore contests are serious boatmen, many of whom are engaged in some facet of the marine industry and are testing or proving a pet boat or engine or piece of equipment.

"The thrill of driving in an offshore race is more than worth the pounding, drenching, navigation problems, mechanical failures, and even the occasional sinkings," the youthful (38) racer-designer says.

Instant Acceptance

"Successes in these races have brought almost instant acceptance to such innovations as deep-V hull shapes, outdrive or stern drive propulsion systems, and high-speed diesel engines."

Wynne has been in almost 100 offshore races in this country and abroad and managed to finish all but two of them.

A native of Dayton, Ohio, Wynne moved with his family to Miami, Fla., at the age of 15 and was educated in the public schools there and at the University of Florida. Later, he obtained a masters degree in engineering at M.I.T.

At present a bachelor with matrimonial ideas, he lives aboard his own 39-foot cruiser tied up at a Miami marina.

State-Duke Set Records

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Seven Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball Tournament records were broken in Friday night's 12-10 slow-down victory for North Carolina State over Duke in the semifinals.

All the old marks had been set two years ago when North Carolina played a slow-down game against Duke in the semifinals, but Duke prevailed 21-20.

The records, new and old, in order:

Fewest points—10, by Duke; 20 by North Carolina.

Fewest points—10, by Duke; Duke, 15 by North Carolina.

Fewest shots taken—11, by Duke; 7 by both Duke and North Carolina.

Fewest combined points—22, by N. C. State and Duke; 41 by Duke and North Carolina.

Fewest combined shots taken—24 by N. C. State (13) and Duke (11); 36 by Duke (21) and North Carolina (15).

Fewest combined baskets made—6, by N. C. State (4) and Duke (2); 14, by Duke (7) and North Carolina (7).

Fewest combined freethrows made—10, by N. C. State (4) and Duke (6); 13, by Duke (7) and North Carolina (6).

In addition, N. C. State's four freethrows tied the tourney low set by Virginia in 1962 against Wake Forest.

Pipers Have Full Game Clipped From Their Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Orleans won a battle of American Basketball Association division leaders from Pittsburgh Friday night, leaving both teams with three-game margins.

The Bucs captured a 116-114 squeaker on Jimmy Jones' eight-foot jump shot with two seconds left, despite 32 points by the Pipers' Connie Hawkins, the ABA's scoring leader.

Elsewhere, Dallas edged Houston 117-116, and Kentucky, which had lost six straight games to New Jersey, whipped the Americans 109-100.

In the National Basketball Association, Philadelphia beat Boston 101-96, Los Angeles turned back San Diego 130-122, Detroit defeated Cincinnati 129-118, and Baltimore whipped Seattle 122-116.

Besides Hawkins' 32 points, Chico Vaughn had 26 and Art Heyman 23 for Pittsburgh. But they were offset by seven New Orleans players in double figures, headed by Red Robbins' 25.

Minnesota's victory over Oakland dropped the Oaks into the Western Division cellar, five percentage points behind Anaheim. Mel Daniels scored 28 points and grabbed 20 rebounds for the Muskies and offset a late Oakland rally with four points in the final 50 seconds.

Dallas, which led most of the way, had to come from behind in the final period to edge Houston. John Beasley's jump shot with 3:45 to play put the Chapparals ahead to stay. Beasley led all scorers with 27 points.

Darel Carrier poured in 31 points and Jim Ligon added 28 as Kentucky prevented New Jersey from gaining on third-place Indiana and kept the Americans' magic number for clinching a playoff berth at five.

Rod & Gun: Learning How Many Were Bagged

By ROD AMUNDSON

How many ducks, geese, quail, rabbits, squirrels, etc. were bagged last season? No one knows at the moment, but the Wildlife Commission's Andy Weber plans to find out. Andy has just finished mailing out questionnaires to one out of every 20 hunters who bought licenses to hunt in North Carolina during the 1967-1968 season.

If you are one of those one-in-twenty, please fill out the quiz form and return it promptly, even though your name was selected at random from the list of license buyers. At least a 90 per cent return will be needed to get an accurate count of game killed. Negative reports are as important as the others; i.e., if you bought a license and didn't hunt or didn't bag any game, return the quiz form any way. You don't have to sign the form, so no one but you will know you got skunked.

Information gained from this survey will be tremendously helpful in conducting the state's over-all game management program.

Persistent cold weather has kept most Tar Heel fishermen off the water, but the sun keeps burning through and will eventually win out. Three or four days in a row with temperatures up to 70 degrees will bring a swarm of anglers out to their favorite fishing spots.

Some, of course, have been going out all winter, and although they rarely made what might be called record catches as far as numbers are concerned, the fish they caught were usually bragging size.

Rocky Mount Scribe and Philosopher Bugs Barringer sent in an inquiry about carp, being somewhat perplexed by a statement in Lawson's History of North Carolina to the effect that he found carp in North Carolina. Apparently, Mr. Lawson mistook some other native carp-like fish for the genuine article. According to Hugh M. Smith's The Fishes of North Carolina published in 1907, carp were not introduced into North Carolina until 1879.

According to most records, true carp originated in Asia, and are now widely distributed throughout the temperate zones of the world, and are one of the world's most important food fishes. Tar Heel plantation owners used to keep carp ponds to raise food for their tenants.

The following is quoted from Smith's The Fishes of North Carolina:

"The introduction of the carp into North Carolina waters began in 1879 and was very successful, the fish soon becoming widely distributed and abundant. It is now well-known in all parts of the state, but is most plentiful in the warmer, more sluggish lowland waters. It can not be said to have attained any great value as a market fish, although it is an item in the commercial fisheries of a dozen countries. In 1902, the quantity sold was 46,500 pounds, worth $2,100, the largest catch being credited to Washington, Martin, and Currituck counties. Here, as in many other states, the carp is of most importance for home consumption and as a food for other fishes. It is preeminently adapted for small, warm ponds, and it was brought to America primarily for stocking such waters, which often can not support any other fish life. By comparison with numerous native fishes, the carp is an inferior food; and in a state so well supplied with most desirable food fishes as North Carolina, there is no reason to believe the carp will ever become popular."

Smith's prognostication was not entirely accurate. There are a number of carp ponds in the Piedmont where you can pay a fee to fish for carp, and these have become quite popular.

Most people will agree with Smith that there are a number of native fish species that are better eating; but a 10-pound carp on light tackle presents a challenge to any angler. They are rather sluggish in motion, but extremely strong and seemingly tireless.

Country Store Of Yesteryear Lives On

By G. C. Chapman

MENOLA — What could be one of North Carolina's most valuable, interesting and unusual museums is not being operated.

Clarence Parker's "Country Store of Yesteryear" houses an extensive, priceless collection of Americana in relative obscurity in the small community of Menola, just midway between Ahoskie and Murfreesboro in Hertford County.

Parker, 40, has devoted a lifetime to the collection of literally thousands of authentic American antiques and curiosities. He does it solely as a hobby.

The store is there and Parker gladly opens it for anyone to see. He even maintains a register for his visitors to sign. But he does not maintain the store on a regular basis, nor does he charge admission.

Parker's father ran the old store for about 42 years, beginning about the turn of the century. As a boy, Clarence helped his father run the business and helped run it until it was closed about 1950, after the retirement of his father.

The younger Parker had long been a collector, beginning in his youth with a collection of guns, so it was natural for him to convert the store to its present status as the burgeoning home of his ever-growing collection.

The old country store, as you quickly learn in any small rural community, was an institution. Its functions as a combination department store, supermarket, post office, social center and just plain gathering place for local cronies, is legend.

Parker's Store was no different. "Back in those days," Parker recalls, "country stores sold everything in the world. People didn't go into town. Transportation was a problem. The nearest town was about 10 miles away." That was a long way to the country folks of rural North Carolina.

"So," Parker says, "everything kind of naturally centered around the old country store."

Reminders of the old store's one-time importance to the area are everywhere. As you enter the store, your eye is drawn immediately to the old pot-bellied stove right in the center of the floor. Blackened now from the years of dutiful service as the warmth-providing heart of the building, the stove sits cold and lifeless, its grill staring at the front door like an old, sad eye, as though expecting — what?

A battered time use - and worn checker table, its pieces few in number now and scattered and broken about the playing board, sits under a canopy of dust next to the stove.

In a corner, an old dusty barrel bears the fading legend "Buy your molasses of Parker's Country Store. 4 Qts. to the gallon and no sticking to the measure."

Kerosene lamps, once the only lighting in the store, hang neglected in the shadows cast by bare electric bulbs.

The bulbs illuminate a shadow-filled room whose contents belie its size. Counters, shelves and floor space are filled to overflowing with an amazing variety of objects.

There are high-button shoes; Indian arrow heads; hundreds of cartridges and casings, relics of the Civil War; a 1809 working machine; a numberless collection of old bottles of all sizes and descriptions; druggists signs advertising laudenum and cures; crocks and barrels used from everything from candy and cola to molasses and pickles; early roller shots with wooden wheels; an ancient corset which laces up in the back.

There are cannonballs and bullets, powder horns, Parker's tremendous gun collection including muskets, flintlocks, dueling pistols, early percussion rifles and revolvers; and much more.

One of Parker's most interesting collections is his prized assembly of spring-operated phonographs, over 30 of them. Outstanding is his 1819 vintage Reginaphone. Patented in 1889, the Reginaphone sold new for about $300 and was the ultimate in musical reproduction. It was also a fine piece of furniture. Enclosed in a huge, beautifully worked cabinet, the Reginaphone played 24-inch metal discs, much like a Swiss music box. The versatile machine also played standard shellac discs.

Another Regina phonograph, this one a cylinder model, is probably the granddaddy of all juke boxes: the coin-operated machine was manufactured in 1909. Both Reginas still operate.

The oldest of Parker's phonographs bears the famous Edison name after its inventor. The cylinder machine was made in 1898 and is still in playing condition.

One of the most unusual items in the store is a 1910 Lake Breeze Motor table fan. Designed for the mass market of rural folks who had no electricity, the Lake Breeze operates on hot air supplied by a small kerosene lamp in its base. After a minute or so for warm up, the Lake Breeze moves as much air as a small electric fan of today.

The oldest dated item in Parker's store is a surveyor's instrument which he found in Hertford County. At Parker's request, the Smithsonian Institute authenticated the instrument and said it had been manufactured sometime between 1740 and 1750 in Boston.

Another prize in the Parker collection is a pair of Atwater-Kent radio sets manufactured about 1924. One of the battery-operated radios still plays in the living room of Parker's home. It sounds as good as many of today's small transistor radios.

The Atwater-Kent, Parker says, sold for about $250 and was a marvel of precision and technology for its day, a time when many folks still didn't know what radio was.

Treasured in Parker's gun collection is a flintlock pistol which was converted to percussion use and is said to have been used in Nat Turner's insurrection in Virginia.

Parker bought the old handgun from a lady in Boykins who related the story to him. Though he has no way of being certain, Parker believes there is a good chance the story is true.

Most of Parker's collection — he estimates about 95 per cent — came from within the Roanoke-Chowan area of the state.

Parker collects by rummaging through attics, old barns and sheds, anyplace where folks are agreeable and there stands a chance of finding something. Sometimes he just gets in his car and rides through the remote countryside, stopping at a country home now and then and, with the permission of the owner, looking through dusty, forgotten rooms.

Through the years Parker has kept no strict accounting, but he says in terms of actual cash, his investment has been very small. His investment has been in time, his dedication to and love for his hobby, and the cooperation of friends and strangers alike.

He plans to keep collecting in the spare time he has from his farms, but he has no plans to put his hobby on a commercial basis.

"Some people say I should put in a new building, but that would take something away from it. You wouldn't have that country store atmosphere."

"I want to keep it like it is — a country store." Parker isn't giving away a secret when he says, "I've had a lot of fun."

Features

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N. C.—Sunday, March 10, 1968—17

The Country Store of Yesteryear doesn't look impressive until you go inside. Upstairs, Parker maintains his collection of rifles, a giant pre-Civil War loom and the bulk of his phonograph collection. The extension to the left houses the old drug store.

The Reginaphone is an elegant reminder of late 19th and early 20th century America. Housed in a magnificent wooden cabinet, the Regina played huge metal discs and standard records as well. Discs and records were stored below. The Reginaphone sold new for about $300 and is a rare collector's item today.

This 1909 Caligraph, looking quite different from a modern typewriter, sits atop the rolltop desk where so much paper work was carried on. The old book at right is a ledger. Notice the old pen and inkwell at far right.

The Lake Breeze Motor, circa 1910, would still be appreciated on a hot summer day, electricity notwithstanding. The Lake Breeze operated on hot air supplied by a small lamp in its base. Here, the fan, which moves an amazing amount of air, is shown in operation.

The oldest dated item in Parker's collection is this surveyor's instrument and compass. Manufactured in Boston between 1740 and 1750, the instrument is a rare and valuable antique.

Parker sits in the old drug store portion of his store among the relics of a bygone era. At upper right is a milkshake mixer, below it a display case for typical drug store wares. Earthenware urns contained cola, cherry soda and other sweet drinks. Standing next to the display case is a lemon squeezer. Tools of the druggists trade are seen on the shelves above the counter.

Rock Music Poses Some Interesting Questions

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It's fashionable to ask about rock, "Where's it at?" and it's nearly as much in style to wonder, "Where's it going?" It isn't the latest thing to ask, "Where's it been?" but Atlantic Records has given us an enormously interesting answer.

In the first few years of rock, rock 'n' roll obviously came from country-western music—just listen to early Elvis Presley and the American down-home accent and delivery on early Beatles records. Rhythm and blues was a parallel stream, by Negro performers, that grew out of gospel and blues.

But those two streams couldn't just go rolling along; that would be monotonous.

Groups were convinced that the way to become big was to be different, to find a new direction.

So rock overflowed its banks and went—and still is going—off in every direction. The sharp lines between rock 'n' roll and rhythm and blues also went. At different times and in different ways, rock borrowed from pop ballads, folk, good time music, classical, Indian music, jazz, religious music—gospel religious, classical religious, jazz religious. Performers tried all kinds of musical instruments and combinations of instruments. Some rock writers even decided that a long number could be a drama, like a one-act play. And they all agreed that it shouldn't be called rock any more, but pop. But music reporters still call it rock; when they write pop they mean ballads.

So much for today. Atlantic's contribution takes us back when rhythm and blues clearly was just that, r and b. Four new LPs, which are sold separately, are titled "History of Rhythm and Blues." Some important singers, like Dinah Washington, didn't record for Atlantic or any of its subsidiaries, so are not on here. But a lot of r and b artists were on Atlantic, so that this is a good representation of the sound of the times and the changes that evolved.

Volume I is titled "The Roots, 1947-52." Songs are presented in chronological order. Do you remember that the r and b groups in those days used arrangements like the Three Suns? One would sing while the rest hummed chords; they'd all sing words in close harmony on the chorus.

Those also were the days when a rhythm and blues hit was covered by a pop singer. The r and b version was played on radio stations beamed toward Negro audiences and the pop version was played on "white" stations. People who heard one often never heard the other, even when both were hits.

"The Roots" contains the Cardinals' "Wheel of Fortune." Kay Starr made the pop cut of that. It's a lot more strident than the Cardinals' version. In fact, you may be surprised to find on these four LPs that there is a lot of soul with almost no strident delivery of screaming. That came later. It's urgency with the soft sell.

Leadbelly's great "Goodnight Irene" is on here. A slow four-four beat, calling for sympathetic finger-snapping, marks Ruth Brown's "5-10-15."

Volume 2 is called "The Golden Years, 1953-55." This starts with the Chords' "Sh-Boom." The Crew-Cuts gave the pop market a smoother version of that.

Then in May 1954, Joe Turner released "Shake, Rattle and Roll." Bill Haley and the Comets covered that and rock 'n' roll really began.

Remember what parents were saying then—even before

Presley? It was immoral. It sounded horrible. It wasn't music. It wouldn't last. One thing it was—an exciting sound.

Ray Charles starting his gospel sound in 1955 is recorded on here, with "I've Got a Woman." And a real classic of his—and how could he sound so young to us now—is "Greenback Dollar Bill."

This 1953-55 music is so long ago that the present teen listening generation never heard it. Peaches and Herb recently recorded "Close Your Eyes." The Five Keys' 1955 version is on this album.

Volume 3 is "Rock 'n' Roll 1956-57." These are rock's emerging years, the years Presley skyrocketed, with a by-product of making r and b more accepted. Ivory Joe Hunter's "Since I Met You Baby," released in October 1956, was played on stations that played Presley.

Remember the Drifters' choking "Ah, ah," catch in the throat as they sang "Fools Fall in Love" in 1957?

Volume 4 is called "The Big Beat, 1958-60." Now rock had taken over the music scene. Atlantic has some million sellers—in r and b—to put on this album.

Clyde McPhatter, who has a soft sound, sold a million of "A Lover's Question" in 1958. The Drifters put a string section with "There Goes My Baby." It sounded like the left hand didn't know what the right was doing; the Drifters are doing their thing and the strings are Hollywooding it up with no relation to them. But strings were put with r and b and integration came later.

The Drifters got a million seller with "Save the Last Dance for Me." Then their lead singer, Ben E. King, stepped out on his own and sold "Spanish Harlem."

It was 1960 and had rhythm and blues ever changed from 1947? It's an entertaining, nostalgic, informative trip, from one year to the other.

Bob Cosby Says One Comedian Is Enough

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Bob Cosby thinks one comedian in the family is about all the traffic would bear, so he's sticking to his drums. He just might wind up a professional jazz musician.

The Bob Cosby Trio, with Bob playing the drums his brother Bill, the comedian, bought him recently, has acquired a following in the short time it has been featured at a bistro near Dover Air Force Base.

Bob, 21, can't read music, but his dedication and touch produce a pleasing sound.

Cosby, a junior at Delaware State College in Dover, acknowledges that he's no match for his idols, drummers Elvin Jones and Buddy Rich.

But he says, "We're establishing our kind of music right now. It's jazz with rhythm and a jump to it, finger popping and foot popping. Not a way-out jazz, but something people can understand."

He and Nick Caine, a psychology major who plays the organ, started working together last November. James Tokley, a student who plays saxophone and guitar, joined the group after the first of the year. And vocalist Norm Green occasionally sits in.

Bob received an athletic scholarship to Delaware State, but soon found college football wasn't for him.

"I didn't think I was getting the proper chance," Bob said. "I didn't like standing around. I knew what I could do and what I couldn't. So I quit. That was one big disappointment here."

Now he is enthused about music, and, at the urging of his 30-year-old brother, plans to find a drum instructor.

"I like something I'm physically involved with," Bob said. "I'm using four limbs constantly—all moving in different directions. It's a physical thing."

"Same thing as playing football. What I like most is when I can get these drums to hum. When you play drums you find out how creative you can become."

Bob, who displays a dry wit of his own, said Bill has been "my idol all my life . . . I'm proud of the fact he's my brother."

Bob has thought of following in Bill's footsteps, but says there's one big problem: "Most of my material would be like his."

As to becoming a professional musician, he said, "If that would happen I wouldn't mind it."

But for the moment he's satisfied "playing for people . . . sitting back and watching people enjoy your music."

NEW YORK LOCATIONS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Brotherhood," starring Kirk Douglas and Alex Cord, will film on New York City locations for two months.

VAN DYKE REUNION

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dick Van Dyke and brother Jerry will be reunited as a comedy team in an hour-long television special next April.

Mitch Ryder is one of several artists to appear at East Carolina University this month. Ryder is scheduled for a March 13 appearance at Minges Coliseum.

Varied Fare Offered By ECU This Month

If you don't believe East Carolina University wants to offer something for everybody, take a look at the March entertainment calendar.

If you weren't interested in Roller Derby yesterday, how about the Harlem Globetrotters (3 p. m. today, Minges Coliseum)?

Maybe you don't care for sports. If you're young enough, you might like the "soul" music of Mitch Ryder (the "Sock It To Me, Baby" man). He plays the Minges stage Wednesday, March 13, 8:15 p. m.

If you're not young enough, that new "sock 'n' soul" departure from the more comfortable rock 'n' roll era may not turn you on. Okay.

How about Homer and Jerthro? Those two, who lately call themselves "the Beatles of the Stone Age" or "the Old Crusty Minstrels," have a date here Wednesday, March 20, at 8:15 in Minges. It could be you'd rather learn than be just entertained. All right. See the new documentary, "Chile," by Geza de Rosner, perhaps the biggest hit in his field ever to visit the campus. That's Tuesday, March 12, at 8 p. m. in Wright Auditorium.

Maybe you'd rather hear a national political figure. Try the Monday, March 25, lecture by former Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater (8 p. m. Wright Auditorium).

If the price of entertainment tickets is not in your March budget and you like good band music, remember Wednesday, March 27. The North American Air-Defense Command Band will play a concert at 8:15 p. m. in Wright Auditorium. It's free and open to the public.

Divorced, Carefree, And A Happy Swinger

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dick Martin, co-star with Dan Rowan of the new "Laugh In" show, is divorced, carefree and one of the western world's happiest swingers.

Martin, a former bartender, and Rowan put their nightclub act together 15 years ago. Their own television show is a dream come true.

Dick lives in a comfortable house above the Sunset Strip with a view of ocean, mountain and city. He calls himself a secret decorator. In the past dozen years he has lived in five houses, decorating and furnishing them all himself.

"I just like to take a raw house and make it into a warm home," he says. "It isn't easy. I don't believe in just buying furniture. For instance, in the kitchen I had a guy make a special butcher's chopping block for me. It's very functional and decorative."

Martin's current house has two bedrooms, two dens and a living room, the center of which is a pool table. Martin explains a bachelor has no use for a formal living room.

Likes To Cook

After almost 20 years on the night club circuit, first as a single, and then in partnership with Rowan, Dick dines out as seldom as possible.

"I'm a helluva good cook," he says.

After living on steak, baked potato and salads most of his traveling life, Dick specializes in lamb and beef stews, a variety of Italian dishes and casseroles.

Unlike other swinging single men, Dick cooks for his dates instead of conking them into the kitchen to prepare dinner for him.

He dates some of the prettiest girls in Hollywood, often dancing at the Factory discotheque

Reviews And Reflections

ADAMS

This afternoon from 3 to 5 the Art Center will hold a reception in honor of an unusually distinguished artist, Fenietta Hoopes, who has studied in this country at the Corcoran School of Art with Mathilde Leisenring and Burtus Baker, and in France with post-impressionists Andre L'Hotte and Louis Marcoussis. Museums owning her work include our very favorite, the Phillips Gallery in Washington, D. C. Her show last month at the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences drew the largest number of visitors in the Museum's history.

The Norfolk Museum's director, Henry B. Caldwell, writes, "Her work shows a delight for textural surfaces, a whimsy and a humor of subject matter, and has a luminosity that is no doubt heightened by her use of egg tempera as a medium." In that light of this medium, it's interesting that her favorite subject is — eggs. But she also likes to paint the ocean. (She is currently preparing to move to North Carolina — on the ocean.)

Miss Hoopes is the wife of James Elliott Heath, Jr., an old friend of the late W. E. Debnam and arrangements for exhibiting her work here were made by Mrs. Debnam. Greenville is fortunate to be able to see the work of an artist of this caliber.

At the Mushroom
At the same time this afternoon, from 3 to 5, the Mushroom in the Georgetown Shoppes will be open in honor of an exhibit of fourteen works, lithographs and woodcuts, but a young local artist, Mike Goins.

We've been to see them and they're charming. Our favorites, so far, are, in order, "Costume for Fat Tuesday," a Mardi gras clown, "Three and Twenty," a pig and a girl for which the title we guess indicates their respective ages, and "Ode to a Dirty Old Man," a study of a voluptuous young woman.

Well worth a visit.

Trio
This evening at 8:15 in the School of Music's recital hall Dr. and Mrs. Bath, teachers of piano and violin respectively, and cellist Nancy Kosteck, wife of the University's composer-in-residence, will give a chamber music recital. These three first met at the University of Michigan ten years ago, but have been playing as a trio only since last year. The program consists of a work for piano and cello by Beethoven one for violin and cello by Martinu, a Brahms sonata for violin and piano, and Beethoven's magnificent "Archduke" trio for all three instruments.

If the other two performers are as good as Charles Bath, whom we've heard in solo recital, it ought to be a great concert.

A children's version of the same program, shortened but supplied with explanatory remarks, will be given at the recital hall this afternoon at 3:15.

Missed

We were compelled to miss Jac McCracken's recent piano recital, and we're sorry, because we are aware of his excellent reputation. An operative of ours who attended, however, assures us that he negotiated Bach, Brahms, Chopin, and others in fine style.

If what we hear about McCracken is true, we'll get other chances to sample his work — in Carnegie Hall.

Family Life

Two of the lectures of the Eighth Annual Family Life Institute will be open to the public, both in Old Austin.

The first, at ten tomorrow morning, by Dr. Vladimir de Lissovoy of Penn State University, is titled variously "Morality or Morals" and "Morality and Morals." Since neither title makes sense to us, we intend to go to hear it.

The second, at seven tomorrow evening, by Dr. Sarah Taylor Morrow of Greensboro, is called "Family Planning." (We understand that title all right.)

Peter the Great

The closest we ever got to Peter Arno was an acquaintanceship with someone who knew him, but his work has been a curiously intimate part of our life as long as we can remember. His first cartoon appeared in The New Yorker in 1925; his last, in the issue of February 24 of this year.

In the introduction to a book of his cartoons he wrote one of the wisest statements about art we know: that he sometimes worked a whole day to get a drawing to look as though he had done it in two minutes.

His death on February 22 is a personal loss to us — and to the gaiety of nations.

Globetrotter

We traveled to the Valley of Virginia last week, where we saw Jim and Mary Poindexter, met for the first time Darrell Chadwick Hurst (aged five days), and saw two things: snow and snow drifts.

We also went to Chapel Hill with Carroll Weber and Henry Ferrell to a meeting of the North Carolina Conference of the American Association of University Professors. The high point of this meeting, for us anyway, was the performance of Professor Ferrell on a panel discussion.

James McNeill Whistler Painted More Than Is Known

By Charles-Gene McDaniel
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — If it weren't for Whistler's mother, few people would have heard of him.

Little else of the work of James McNeill Whistler is familiar, except to those who frequent museums or who study the history of art. Even they have had little opportunity to get a comprehensive first-hand view of his work.

Now, for the first time in more than 60 years, an exhibition shows the full range of his work.

The show, consisting of 225 paintings, watercolors, pastels, drawings, etchings and lithographs, was held Jan. 13-Feb. 25 at the Art Institute of Chicago. Then it went to the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute in Utica, N.Y., for six weeks.

Assembled by Frederick A. Sweet, the Art Institute's curator of American painting and sculpture, the show includes paintings from museums and private collections in Europe, Canada and the United States.

She Stayed in Paris

Ironically, the portrait of Whistler's mother, for which he is popularly known, is not included in the exhibit. The painting, formally titled "Arrangement in Grey and Black, No. 1: Portrait of the Artist's Mother," hangs in the Louvre in Paris and could not be borrowed.

A number of his other important works likewise could not be obtained because of proscriptions against their loan by the museums in which they hang.

However, this large show includes enough of the 19th century American painter's important works to be definitive. Along with Whistler's work are a few portraits of the artist by other artists, including a particularly striking one by Giovanni Boldini.

Whistler, who was born in 1834 in Lowell, Mass., lived most of his life abroad and died in Paris in 1903. Most of his artistic life from 1859 to 1892, was spent in London, with sojourns of varying lengths in other places.

When Whistler was 9, his family moved to Russia, where his father was engineer for construction of a railroad. He studied there at the Imperial Art Academy of St. Petersburg, and also became fluent in French.

After his father's death in 1849, the family moved to Connecticut.

Whistler, like his father, entered West Point. But the disciplined military life was not for him and he was expelled after three years when he had accumulated 18 demerits beyond the 200 which brought expulsion.

His dour-faced, puritanical mother later moved to England to live near her son. She was either unaware of his behavior or chose to overlook it. He maintained models who were his mistresses, and did not marry until he was 54, after his mother's death.

Like most artists, Whistler had difficulty having his work accepted. He did not fill his canvases with things and was one of the first to advocate art for art's sake.

The simplicity of his paintings — their straightforward, uncrowded appearance — is not novel today, but it nevertheless gives his work a certain appeal.

Included in the show is a painting titled "Harmony in Grey and Green: Miss Cicely Alexander," which never has been shown before in the United States. It was loaned by the Tate Gallery of London. When first shown in 1874, it was thought strange and unfinished because of its low-key colors and the manner of its composition.

Also being shown in the United States for the first time is a portrait titled "Lillie in Our Alley," loaned by the National Gallery of Canada, Ottawa.

Loans from Glasgow

A number of the paintings in the show were loaned by the University of Glasgow from its Whistler collections.

Much of Whistler's painting shows the influence of the Japanese artists, whom he admired, and in other paintings there is the feeling of impressionism, though he was not a member of the Impressionist group.

Other work anticipated the Expressionists and Art Nouveau.

Whistler's masterful etchings did not create the controversy that his paintings did. He favored the use of brown ink on off-white papers, lending warmth to the pictures, which were done in spidery, delicate lines. His etchings of Venetian scenes gained immediate acceptance by the public.

The show includes 85 etchings and 42 lithographs, all from the collection of the Art Institute, which owns an estimated 98 per cent of the existing graphics of the artist.

Picasso, Other Artists Packing U.S. Museums

By SHERRY CONOHAN
CHICAGO (UPI)—It was a murky, wintry afternoon but the gallery was warm and cheery—and jammed with people.

Picasso was packing 'em in at the Chicago Art Institute, at $1 per adult, just as art and artists are packing them in at galleries and museums all over the country.

Many more people go to museums than to professional football and baseball games," said Charles C. Cunningham, the institute's director, a veteran of 35 years in the business.

The Picasso exhibit, which opened Feb. 3 and is to close March 31, attracted nearly 29,000 persons in its second week alone, a figure that might have been almost unbelievable a few years ago.

Chicago Production
All the 182 pieces in the exhibit were owned by the institute itself or loaned from collections of Chicagoans or former Chicagoans. Cunningham explained that this strictly "Chicago production" is the sort of exhibit visitors can expect to see more of at the institute, and for reasons common to exhibitors everywhere in this period of art boom.

There is great difficulty, for one thing, to obtain wanted pieces from other museums. Art costs have become almost prohibitive, and there is increasing reluctance to subject valued items to the risks of travel.

Helen Lethert, chief of the institute's public relations department, agreed there is a growing reluctance by owners, private or otherwise, to let major art works travel.

"It is getting more and more difficult to organize these shows because as things get more valuable, people are more loath to loan out paintings for travel," she said.

EC Professor Exhibits Art This Month

An exhibition of eight e e n oils and ten watercolor paintings and drawings by Dr. Emily Farnham, professor and chairman of the art history department in the School of Art at East Carolina University, is on display at James Sprunt Institute near Kenansville, N. C., this month.

A native of Kent, Ohio, Dr. Farnham studied a year at the Cleveland Institute of Art before receiving the B. S. degree from Kent State University. She holds the M. A. and Ph.D. degrees from Ohio State University, where she taught watercolor painting during the year 1954-55. In 1949-50 and 1952 she studied painting with Hans Hofmann, the noted teacher of abstraction, in Provincetown and New York.

Before coming to ECU to teach in 1962, Dr. Farnham taught at Ohio State, Michigan State University, Utah State University, Stout State College (Wisc.), Southern Illinois University and Mary Baldwin College.

The paintings in the show at James Sprunt Institute represent various aspects of the artist's development from an early concern with academic realism through an interest in abstraction to her current experimentation with hard-edge minimal art.

The gallery will be open Monday through Friday 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. and Saturday 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

WHEN ARE CHILDREN TOO SICK FOR SCHOOL?

Each child has his own pattern of illness. There should be no absolute rules, but the usually healthy child should stay home: 1) if feverish; 2) if symptoms such as headaches, drowsiness, runny nose, nausea, diarrhea are sufficiently severe to be disabling; 3) if he is likely to disturb others in the class; 4) if it is impossible, due to his ailment, for him to profit from school.

There is no reason, except for rare medical contraindications, for a child to be in school without immunological protection from the available vaccines.

Modern Living, Old World Charm Combined

FOR HOSPITALITY AND WARMTH, the friendly Valcourt boasts a large family room with fireplace, four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths and a porch and balcony among its outstanding assets.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question: We are considering purchasing a house made of wooden shakes. It's an old house, and somewhere along the line one of the owners decided to paint the shakes a dull red color, which we aren't too crazy about. Would it be too much of a job to take off the paint, get the wood down to its natural color and then apply a very light stain?

Answer: It sure would. If you don't like the present color, you'd better plan on living with it or repainting the shakes a color of your choice.

Question: I plan to build a kind of trash cabinet to place outside our kitchen door, which is at the back of our house. My idea is to put plywood on the top and bottom of the cabinet, with ordinary 1 by 2s for the framework. My first question is whether plywood will stand up in all kinds of weather. Should it have legs on it or can the plywood rest directly on the ground?

Answer: Be sure you get exterior plywood and, for extra protection against the elements, seal it with paint, especially along the edges. Legs can be automatically provided merely by extending the four upright parts of the framework a couple of inches below the plywood bottom. Or, to put it another way, set the plywood in place a couple of inches from the bottom of the framework.

Question: I have just completed a wooden awning to be hung over our back door in a few weeks. It is made of white pine. Can it be left as is, or should I put a finish on it?

Answer: It can be left as is, but will look better and last longer if it is painted.

Question: It took me some time, but I finally got the tarnish off a brass doorknob. What should I use to refinish it?

Answer: Three or four coats of lacquer, mixed half and half with lacquer thinner.

U.S. Church Attendance Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Attendance at U.S. churches and synagogues rose for the first time in 10 years during 1967, but the gains in congregation memberships still lag behind the general population increase.

Memberships in churches and synagogues increased by only 1 per cent during the past year, which is about half as much as the general population increase, reports the Episcopal Church Foundation, an organization of laymen aiding the church in research and financial matters.

Membership in all faiths in the United States now totals 125,770,000.

Law enforcement officials say about 90 per cent of all automobiles stolen in the United States are recovered.

Shortage Of Skilled Men To Build All Those Houses

By JAMES L. SRODES
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson and the nation's homebuilders are faced with a problem—where to get the men to build 26 million units of housing in the next 10 years.

There are other problems too, of course.

Money, or the lack of it. Demand, or the overabundance of it.

And half a dozen other problems ranging from congressional indifference to bad weather.

But when the President called for 6 million units of federally assisted, low-income housing and 20 million more privately constructed units, he also was calling for the manpower to put those units into place.

And as anybody who has ever hit his thumb with a hammer knows, it takes a heap of skill to make a pile of lumber a home.

So the problem is not one of just rounding up enough manpower; it's getting skilled manpower.

To top it off, the nation's pool of unskilled builders is shrinking.

Latest statistics indicate there are nearly 3.8 million men in the 20 building and construction trades, ranging from the unskilled to electricians, plumbers, marble-setters and other skilled craftsmen.

To keep pace with demands for housing through 1975 alone, housing industry experts believe the pool will have to grow to 4.5 million men. This does not take into account the six million-unit crash program for low and middle-income housing set by the President.

Simple arithmetic shows that the difference between 3.8 million and 4.5 million is only 700,000. But it isn't that simple.

One complication is that more men are entering them.

The average age of skilled building trade laborers is much higher than for most occupations—about 50 years of age—and between now and 1975 a greater number of them will be dropping out of the labor pool due to retirement, changes to less demanding work and death.

So instead of 700,000 men, industry experts predict they will have to find 2.8 million men to make that 700,000 net gain.

And again this gain is aimed only at keeping up the pace—not moving ahead on the 6 million units as the President has asked.

What the real figure will have to be to meet all the nation's housing needs is still being added up.

One suggested solution is to use the youth of the ghetto as a ready source for this trade pool. They could be trained, have their earnings boosted, help rebuild their own slum areas, provide better homes for themselves and ease the critical housing shortage for the whole country.

But this solution does not advance a way to actually get these young men on the job.

This raises other problems.

There is the problem of the racial discrimination which has riddled the building trades unions for years. There is the problem of motivating a slum youth to go through the long and difficult apprenticeship which the skilled trades require.

By GERRY BISHOP
The Valcourt is made to order for the family that thrives on entertainment and comfortable living.

The exterior New Orleans-type styling lends itself well to this purpose, suggesting warmth and hospitality. And the interior design is more than equal to such occasions.

This Associated Architects' model is a spacious two-story equipped with all the refinements required for modern life. Among the highlights are four bedrooms and a spacious family room with a fireplace and an adjoining bar and nearby powder room.

A porch that extends across the front of the house offers immediate shelter to arriving members of the family and guests. Wrought iron lattice columns and railing embrace the porch and second-story balcony, achieving an "Old World" charm. A roof overhang of 4-by-6 exposed rafters forms the ceiling of the balcony.

TWO-CAR GARAGE
An attached double garage meets the requirements of the two-car family. In this model the garage faces the street, but on a wider lot the doors could be repositioned on the side for lateral entry.

The main entrance—possibly a Dutch door or a windowed portal—opens into an expansive foyer, 12 feet, 8 inches by 10 feet. This provides a secluded, but cheery, reception room for arriving guests. And it's practical, too. Boots and foul weather gear can be doffed without tracking up the house.

To the right as one enters the foyer is the living room. It measures 17 feet, 8 inches by 15 feet and enjoys a certain isolation. Because it is out of the main traffic flow, this chamber should retain its composure well, resisting the usual disarray of family living. It could be furnished in a formal motif.

The dining room, 15 feet by 13 feet, is located to the left of the foyer and has a large window overlooking the street.

To the rear of the dining room is the kitchen, a 15-foot-by-9-foot workshop that is well endowed with cabinet space and all the other modern culinary musts: built-in dishwasher, range, oven, refrigerator and broom closet.

A large breakfast area, 15 feet by 8 feet, 8 inches, adjoins the kitchen. It has a large window looking out on the backyard and is connected to the family room via the bar.

FIREPLACE IN DEN

A beamed ceiling, paneled walls and the log-burning fireplace create an air of informality in the den, or family room, whose dimensions are a spacious 22 feet, 4 inches by 13 feet, 4 inches. Located at the right rear corner of the house, this is the perfect place for those festive gatherings of family and friends.

A short hallway connects the family room with the foyer, completing the circular traffic pattern on the first floor.

Upstairs, the master bedroom, 17 feet, 8 inches by 15 feet, has a private bath, a walk-in closet and enjoys direct access to the balcony—a definite advantage on those balmy summer evenings.

The other front bedroom, 15 feet by 13 feet, also is linked to the balcony, has double closet space and is just a step away from the main bathroom.

A large bedroom, 16 feet by 13 feet, 2 inches, at the right rear corner features a walk-in closet and direct access to the bathroom. A fourth bedroom, 13 feet, 2 inches by 11 feet, 4 inches, at the left rear corner would make an ideal nursery. It also has double closet space.

A built-in vanity, two lavatories and a dressing area complement the compartmented bathroom. It has a separate tub room with a glass wall for natural light and decor.

At the rear of the double garage is an 1-foot-6-inch-by-7-foot storage room and next door is the laundry room whose 12 feet, 2 inches by 7 feet contain a washer, dryer, freezer and sink. The laundry is easily accessible to the kitchen, to the garage and the backyard.

Stairs lead to an unfinished basement which offers unlimited opportunities for a man's workshop.

The Valcourt's dimensions, 69 feet, 2 inches by 32 feet, 10 inches, provide 3,030 square feet of living area.

Retiring To An Apartment Might Work For Some, But Not For All

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Every woman owes it to herself to live in an apartment for a short time at least, advises a woman who had heretofore lived in a large house.

Her children are married; her husband retires from his job in one year, and they are building a house in Florida in anticipation of their retirement.

Meantime, she says they are enjoying apartment living.

"... This respite is great for a couple of old-timers. No shutters to paint, windows to caulk, shingles to repair, furnace to attend, leaves to rake or snow to shovel," she says, giddily. "We spend our weekends getting younger by the minute."

"True, we can't walk out of our fourth floor window when we want to enjoy grass beneath our feet. There are compensations—imagine having a caretaker who will hang pictures, fix a leaky faucet and even repair your vacuum cleaner. Our apartment house is equipped with a handy man for the tenants."

"We're looking forward to our new house because it will be fairly maintenance free, and we won't mind the few chores that go with it in a resort climate. It is small and will not need painting. It has only a small swimming pool and a small plot of grass to cut, just enough for enjoyable exercise."

She favors a house over an apartment for resort living because you don't feel quite so regimented and with the same people all the time.

And this couldn't be a wiser decision, says a woman who is in quite a predicament. Her situation is complicated because she and her husband bought a retirement apartment in the same building with good friends who have retired.

"... We've been good friends all our lives but now we simply cannot get along. It's the proximity."

The reasons are these, she says.

"... Everytime our friends have company we expect to be invited. If they don't ask us, we wonder why."

"... When we want to invite another couple, we feel obligated to ask our friend-neighbors."

"... We even burn with curiosity when they receive an unexplained package."

"... And if we don't see them one evening, we wonder who invited them and didn't invite us."

The couples have laughed over their predicament but they still get miffed at each other.

The apartment house swimming pool is no social consolation, either.

"... The ladies lie around all day bumper-to-bumper. They squish and squeak from chaise longue to pool. The only exercise they get is when they reach up to dial their transistors or to apply suntan lotion... and the conversation is not to be believed."

"They are not all up a cul-de-sac," this woman explains, "but there are so many birdbrains around that we've decided to sell our apartment."

"Our plan is to buy a house, and we're going to try to persuade our old neighbors to do the same thing. Then we'll all be friends again... we hope."

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

The flush tank in the large majority of residential bathrooms differs very little from the kind used in the days when plumbing first moved indoors. It fills with water, which is sent rushing into the toilet bowl when a handle is pressed. And each of these tanks has a loose cover on top, so that it can be easily removed whenever a repair is needed, which seems to be more often than anything else in a house.

Most common of the annoyances resulting from trouble within the tank is the continuous dripping of water into the bowl. After taking off the tank cover, see whether the water level is higher than the overflow, vertical tube you'll see there. If it is, water is going down that tube into the bowl.

The metal or plastic float at the end of a horizontal rod may have lost its buoyancy because it has sprung a leak. Unscrew it from the rod and shake it to see whether there is water in it. If so, a new float is in order. If it appears to be in sound condition, bend the rod to which float was attached. Bend it downwards, using both hands and working very carefully so as not to throw the entire tank mechanism out of alignment. Replace the float, flush the tank and the

Climate Control In Most Dwellings By Year 2000

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (UPI)—By the year 2000, most people in the United States will live in a completely controlled home climate, according to air conditioning engineers.

Occupants not only will be more comfortable, but they'll also be healthier because improved air filtration will lock out germs, noise, dust, pollen and polluted air. There will be balance heat distribution, eliminating drafts and cold spots, and each family member will be able to adjust room or zone temperatures to his own comfort.

Worthington Corporation's air conditioning division, which makes this prediction, adds that units will be smaller and, because of more efficient systems and better insulated homes, equipment prices will be lower.

Home Gardener

By JOHN H. HARRIS

I can't grow roses and I can't quit trying! Are you in that predicament? If so, remember, controlling diseases is 90 per cent of the battle. Leaf spot and stem canker kills more roses than all other things combined, yet these diseases can be kept under control if...

But, let's start at the beginning.

SITE — Any well-drained fertile soil will grow roses satisfactorily. You don't have to have clay although clay does grow mighty good roses. Select an exposure in full sun and as far from trees as possible.

PLANTING — March and early April is an excellent time. Set the plants about 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart. Dig the holes large enough so the roots can be spread out as they would naturally grow. Remove all broken roots and cut the plants back to five or six inches at the time of planting.

FERTILIZATION — If available, give the roses an application of rotted manure two to three inches thick in the early spring. Supplement this with a commercial fertilizer such as 8-8-8 at the rate of two to three pints per 100 square feet. When the first flower buds show, apply another application. Make additional monthly applications until around August 1.

CULTIVATION — Cultivate shallow and often enough to keep out the weeds. Better still mulch them with pine needles, straw, leaves or similar material. This helps conserve moisture and keeps down grass and weeds.

Program Researches Problem Of 'Swarfs'

The children have growth problems and need injections of growth hormones. Unless they get same they face the prospect of going through life as swarfs. Medically speaking, a swarf is any person who is abnormally short, a term usually used to describe anyone who is five feet or less in height. The special cards, once filled out, give permission for the doctor to remove your pituitary gland at the time of death and donate it to one of medicine's newest projects.

Dr. Alvin B. Balaban, national secretary of Human Growth Inc. (HGI), heads a campaign to facilitate and increase the collection of human pituitary glands for the production of growth hormone for the National Pituitary Agency. Headquarters of HGI is Children's Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y.

Minimum Requirement Dr. Balaban said the average hypopituitary child requires 300 to 500 milligrams of human growth hormone per year. Ten thousand children would require

The average yield from the pea-sized pituitary is about one milligram per gland.

"If every gland were donated from the deceased only about half the children could be treated. Two years ago, about 50,000 glands were donated," said the physician.

The glands are sent to a couple of laboratories where the hormone is isolated by a complex chemical procedure. It is then purified and prepared for injection. The injection is intramuscular—in buttock, thigh or arm.

"If enough hormone were available," Dr. Balaban said, "children would receive regular injections of optimal amounts until they achieved a reasonable height or their bone ends (where growth occurs) closed off (no further growth)."

Children now receive varying amounts of hormone for varying periods of time, partly to investigate further the effects and usage of the hormone and partly to make as much available to as many children as possible.

"Most of the children who are being treated have markedly increased their rate of growth and many can expect to reach an acceptable adult height," the physician said in an interview.

Children Suffer Short children suffer at the hands of playmates who tease them. They are embarrassed every time they make a telephone call from a pay station. Someone must hold them to the phone.

20 Million Afflicted By Allergy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—More than 20 million Americans are affected by some form of allergic reaction ranging from a mild itching to anaphylactic shock, which can be fatal if not promptly treated.

Hives, hay fever, asthma and eczema are some of the better-known allergic reactions, reports Dr. Oscar L. Frick of the University of California School of Medicine.

According to Dr. Frick, present day treatment of allergies follows one of three lines.

Most Effective The most effective treatment is simply to remove the cause. The offending substance, or allergen, may be identified by the careful study of a patient's history. Or allergens may be identified by skin tests wherein suspected substances are applied to the skin in the hope that one or more will produce a temporary, minor irritation.

Once the allergen is identified it is avoided wherever possible. In cases involving allergens that cannot be completely avoided, such as dust or pollen, the doctor may attempt to desensitize the patient through a series of injections.

A small amount of the allergen is injected causing the body to manufacture "blocking" antibodies which curb the allergic reactions.

Strictly speaking, Frick says, allergy is not "cured" but only kept under control by these two methods so that it does not produce dangerous debilitating symptoms.

The third method of treatment—considered by many doctors to be the poorest—is to treat the symptoms with adrenal, anti-histamines, and various anti-inflammatory drugs. These drugs act to reduce swelling and to relieve muscle spasm.

Work On Methods Frick and other medical researchers are working on methods to eliminate or control the causes of allergy.

So far they have learned that allergic reaction is related to the antibody mechanism whereby the body creates substances to combat infections. The allergy victim creates antibodies to fight substances which do not affect the normal person.

Once such an antibody is created, the person becomes sensitized. On every subsequent contact with the allergen causing the original sensitivity, the body reacts with one or more of the symptoms associated with allergies.

Why different persons react differently is still unknown, and this aspect of the problem is under intensive investigation. It seems possible, says Frick, that at one time in human evolutionary history the reaction was common to all and was employed against parasitic infections such as worms.

Klan Youth Corps Offer Lessons In Bigotry

By HENRY P. LEIFERMANN
ATLANTA (UPI)—For less than it costs to join the Boy Scouts your son or daughter can enlist in the Klan Youth Corps, learn close-order military drill, and grow up to be a racial bigot.

The Klan Youth Corps is part of today's new action Ku Klux Klan, still the biggest of all hate organizations, black or white. Dues are $2 in the youth corps, payable when you can get it, and there are no uniforms to buy that cannot be made at home with a bedsheet.

Smother and slicker than before, the Klan is cropping up in such unexpected places as the Model Cities Program, a showcase federal plan to revitalize the nation's cities.

In Atlanta, Calvin Craig, a big, six-footer fond of pistols and trained, he says, in Klan sniper and Molotov cocktail schools, has taken over a sizeable portion of the Model Cities program.

Craig is the Grand Dragon of the United Klans of America in Georgia, a branch of the United Klans headed by Robert Shelton of Tuscaloosa, Ala. The UKA's 15,000 members make it the biggest of all the Klans.

Front Group
Craig likes to boast also of his success in another new field for the Klan, voter registration. Through a front group, the Georgia Voter Registration Committee, Craig says he rivals the League of Women Voters and the AFL-CIO in registering "the right kind" of voters.

Two years ago, according to estimates by the House Un-American Activities Committee, there were 17,000 Klansmen in 18 states. The membership rolls go up and down like popularity polls each year.

But, the significance of the Klan, as with militant black groups, lies not in its numbers but in its influence among whites, in its isolated acts of terrorism, and in its ability to provoke violent responses among whites and blacks.

If it were not for its durable terrorist arm, says the House committee, the pool hall loungers and psychopaths that fill much of the Klan ranks could be dismissed as ludicrous children playing at secret codes and war games.

Like Boy Scouts
The Klan Youth Corps, for example, is seriously regarded by Grand Dragon Craig and Imperial Wizard Shelton as comparable to the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts or Campfire Girls. To join the corps youngsters

12 to 18 sign a pledge that they not only are members of "the white gentle race" and believers in white supremacy, but the also are "sound in mind." Shelton claims "thousands of members in five southern states" for the Youth Corps, but the FBI says that's an inflated claim.

YOUTH CORPS . . . For less than it costs to join the Boy Scouts, your son or daughter can enlist in the Klan Youth Corps and grow up to be a racial bigot. Smother and slicker than before, the Klan is cropping up in such unexpected places as the Model Cities program, a showcase federal plan to revitalize the nation's cities. In Atlanta, Calvin Craig has taken over a sizeable portion of the Model Cities program.

One night a week in a converted store on Stewart Avenue in southwest Atlanta that is Georgia Klan headquarters, the junior Kluxers take their training.

Craig will not let outsiders watch the proceedings, but he says a typical night includes eight-millimeter films from the Atlanta public library that depict the ills of dropping out of school and teach first aid skills.

"We're teaching them close-order drill," he explains, "because it's just like in the army. The only way you can have teamwork is to learn how to take orders together."

It is a short step from the Klan Youth Corps to the still-violent Klan mentality that dominates the actions and fears of the "adult" Kluxer.

In Louisiana, one Kleagle (chapter leader) has a sixth-grade education, was discharged from the Army because of dementia praecox, and has a mental age of about 10 years, 7 months.

An Arkansas Klansman was discharged from the armed services with the notation, "mental deficient—moron." Another balked at Klan initiation rites when told the Klan was for "Protestants only." He said he was a Baptist.

The comic book code that called FBI agents "company men" also called the Philadelphia Miss., murders of three civil rights workers "the big logging operation."

Case Won
FBI informers and infiltrators so thoroughly riddle the violent White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Mississippi on that case that federal conspiracy convictions were won last October.

Today in Mississippi, says a Justice Department source, when a new member joins the Klan he gets a knock on the door by the FBI, "just to let him know we know."

Klansmen on police forces in the deep south have been no surprise. But in Chicago, at least six city police officers have been revealed as Klan members.

Exactly how the Klan infiltrates police departments—one of its favorite targets—is not known. But usually it is a case, says the FBI, of the policeman's coming to the Klan and not a matter of active recruitment among police forces.

The new look of the Klan today has taken a lesson from civil rights workers. Using front organizations such as Georgia's voter registration committee, the Klan is going all-out this election year to register voters in the South.

Georgia's Craig claims his group has been signing up voters at the rate of 500 a week for the past several months in Atlanta and surrounding Fulton County. The estimate is high, say local politicians, but not too high.

The fact that Craig could mastermind takeover by the Klan of a large part of the model cities program in Atlanta is evidence of political sophistication now augmenting the Klan's terrorism.

When the Adair Park neighborhood elected its Model Cities representatives last January, Craig spread the false rumor that Negroes planned to pack the meeting. As a result, he had the election meeting packed with whites, most of them former or present Kluxers or sympathizers.

Craig was elected vice chairman for the neighborhood and J. D. Newberry, treasurer of Georgia's UKA, according to the House, was elected neighborhood chairman.

Sit With Negroes
Both men sit on the city-wide steering committee of the Model Cities mass convention. The chairman of the convention is Lewis Peters, a Negro. The executive director of the anti-slum program is Johnny C. Johnson, another Negro.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR LT. GEN. K. E. PLETCHER,

Surgeon General, USAF
Why is it that other branches of the military give commissions to non-citizen-registered nurses while the Air Force refuses to accept them?—Mrs. Ida Welsh Vickers, Santa Monica, Calif.

● Under current Air Force standards, U. S. citizenship is a prerequisite for a woman to obtain a commission. Male medical noncitizens (doctors, dentists), however, are subject to military service under the provisions of the law. Because the law does not impose a military service obligation on females, the desirable citizenship requirement can be maintained.

FOR VIRGINIA GRAHAM

of "Girl Talk"
Are the guests on your program screened so they will have the same views and interests?—

Mary E. Miller, Rochester, N. Y.

● Yes. They are screened but not in the way you suggest. We try to find women with differences of opinion; the kind of women who would not ordinarily meet.

FOR A. ROSS ECKLER,

Director, Bureau of the Census

How many persons are born each day in the U. S., and how many die?

—Mrs. Emerson Kelley, Port Huron, Mich.

● The average number of daily births and deaths, based on estimated data for the period July 1, 1966, through June 30, 1967, is 10,000 births and 5,000 deaths.

FOR LEE REMICK

You just made a movie with Frank Sinatra. What did you think of him before the film, and what do you think of him now?—L. D., Green Bay, Wis.

● Before filming, I was told Frank "winged" his roles and didn't really care about acting, while I take acting seriously. What I discovered is that it's true he rarely does more than one take, but he's probably the best natural actor I've ever seen. He brings the same honesty, intelligence, and simplicity to his lines that he does to his songs.

FOR DAVID BRINKLEY

How and when did you team up with Chet Huntley?—Mrs. Albert Mauldin, Austin, Texas

● It was unintentional. We were the anchormen for coverage of the 1965 political conventions and for the Presidential election later that year. We were well accepted and have been a team since.

FOR PAUL HORNUNG

Why does Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr call you "goat"?—Rick-ey Cowley, Smithville, Miss.

● "Goat" is short for "goat shoulders." I picked up the nickname because I have sloping shoulders.

FOR ISAAC ASIMOV,

science-fiction author
Has science fiction contributed to scientific advance?—R. D., Kankakee, Ill.

● No—not contributed specifically in the sense that it suggested theories or devices which scientists went on to develop. Science fiction is primarily intended to entertain, but it sometimes inspires. Many youngsters owe their interest in science to their initial interest in science fiction. That is perhaps its true contribution.

FOR DICK CLARK

of "American Bandstand"
How are the kids who dance on your show selected?—Debbie Easton, Reno, Nev.

● Youngsters interested in dancing on "American Bandstand" should call Miss Marcia Silverman, area code 213-278-1641, between 1 and 5 p.m. Pacific time. They will be given the necessary information.

FOR HARRY GOLDEN

How do you rate today's young people?—T. M., Atlantic City, N. J.

● Much better than the American youth of the past. Today's youth has awareness, involvement, and commitment. They are protesting the sorry world we left them, hoping to leave a better world for their own children.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

LBJ—before

Graying Grandpa After President Johnson's recent State of the Union message, the burning question in many circles was, "Did he or didn't he?"—dye his hair, that is. No, insiders whisper. It's just that L.B.J. had been using a pomade which darkened his hair, but he has discontinued using it. He also has switched to spectacles with grayer frames—perhaps in keeping with his role as a new grandfather.

LBJ—after

Boning Up Fluoride has been used in thousands of communities to prevent tooth decay. Now doctors have demonstrated that it also has the ability to harden bone and promote the healing of fractures. It's a boon to patients with osteoporosis, a disease that contributes to the many fractures in older people.

The Class-less Society One of the "newest" proposals for elementary schools is called "multi-age grouping." The idea is that it's more natural and lifelike to have children of different ages in the same classroom. Each child can then proceed at his own pace according to his own interests. Older children can tutor the younger ones, and thus increase their own understanding of a subject. Younger ones can have models to look up to. If it all sounds vaguely familiar, it should. As educators admit, it's a way of going forward by going backward—to the good old days of the one-room school-house grandpa knew.

Another "Bonnie and Clyde"? The clothes Theodora Van Runkle designed for the movie, "Bonnie and Clyde," created a fashion revolution. "People were ready for it," she says of the gangster-moll look. "We're becoming more romantic and so we turn to the past. The present is too difficult." Theodora now has designed some wild hippie clothes for "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas." She's hoping that flower power will prove as explosive as gun power.

Detective Story Intellectuals were always a bit disturbed because Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and John Kennedy liked mystery novels. Now a new educational technique suggests that the thrillers may actually have helped them in solving their White House problems. Called "Productive Thinking," the program for 10-to 12-year-olds is based on an illustrated story involving a father and two children who solve mysteries. The students are given clues and encouraged to beat the characters to the solution. Tests show that youngsters who've taken the course score at least twice as high in problem-solving as other pupils.

Change of Heart The newest novel by Françoise Sagan will take place in Los Angeles. As the French authoress explains, she was there—for one day. The author of "Bonjour Tristesse" now lives on a tree-lined, middle-class street in Paris. Surrounded by comforts, she asks, "Isn't it nicer to be bourgeois?"

Theodora Van Runkle

Can We Be Modern and CHRISTIAN, TOO?

To some people nowadays, the Christian way of life is naive, old-fashioned, "square."

As if the teachings of Jesus Christ had ceased to be pertinent to this sophisticated age.

A radio commentator, in fact, said recently that in another 50 years mankind will seek answers to man's questions of being from science rather than religion.

This may seem to make sense to an era plagued by war, dishonesty, social injustice, "hippies," LSD, divorce, pornography and an exaggerated preoccupation with matters of sex.

But — does it?

Christ did not sacrifice His life for the salvation of one generation and not another. Nor did He promulgate a way of life that would be relevant to the needs of one period of time and not to others. His "blueprint" for Christian living is founded on divine and enduring principles, not upon the changing mores and deviations of a particular time in history.

Living the Christian life in the modern world may be different than it was in earlier and less turbulent times. But the vital need of doing so has not diminished if we are to find meaning and purpose in this life and eternal salvation in the next.

If you feel truly concerned about these things, we invite you to send for our new pocket-size pamphlet entitled "Christian Life and The Modern World." It covers in easy-to-read style such topics as "What Is a Christian?" . . . "The Modern World" . . . "The Christian's Involvement in The World" . . . "Christ and The Christian" . . . "The Christian — Old-Fashioned or Up to Date?" . . . "The Ecumenical Christian" . . . "The Christian and The Bible" and "The Christian Goes to Church."

Does America Need an Ombudsman?

Trapped in bureaucratic red tape? This man could help cut the knots and solve your problems

By Sen. PHILIP A. HART (Mich.)
with Charles Remsberg

A NEW ZEALAND businessman recently applied to his government for an importer's license.

Weeks passed with no reply. To his increasing dismay, letters and telegrams asking about the application brought no response. When he telephoned long-distance, he was connected only with low-echelon clerks who knew nothing at all about his case.

In the U.S., he might have had little choice but to pay a new application fee, file new papers, and hope that somehow things would work smoothly the second time. But New Zealand, like a growing number of other progressive nations, offers its citizens an easier and more effective way to cope with such exasperating situations.

In these countries, a special public servant called an "ombudsman" (amh-BOOTS-mahn) holds office for the specific purpose of helping persons whose dealings with government agencies somehow go awry. Unlike individual citizens, the ombudsman can order a thorough and immediate investigation of any case, can subpoena pertinent records for review, and can demand answers to his questions.

In keeping with the meaning of his title (ombudsman is a Scandinavian word for "representative" or "agent"), he serves as an intermediary between citizens and their government in moments of conflict, assuring proper adjustment when abuses or malfunctions occur.

When the New Zealander filed a formal complaint about the run-around he had been getting for three months, the ombudsman telephoned the director of the department involved. Within hours, the "vanished" application was found lying in a file on an officer's desk. Somewhere along the line it had been pigeonholed mistakenly for "more study." Now it was acted upon at once, and the ombudsman was assured that such an arbitrary delay would not occur again.

In this age of increasingly complex government, the swift and inexpensive method that New Zealand, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, and other free nations have adopted to safeguard individuals from unfair bureaucratic treatment is too impressive to ignore.

Americans, too, can benefit from such a system. For that reason, I have introduced legislation in the U.S. Senate in cooperation with Sen. Edward Long of Missouri and Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York calling for the first Congressional endorsement of an ombudsman office for the United States.

As presently drafted, my proposal is only a beginning, but the need was never more timely. Our lives are being influenced more and more by public departments and bureaus as more government agencies with more duties arise every year.

Like the hapless New Zealand businessman, many of us have experienced irritating—and sometimes costly—breakdowns in the performance of government agencies. As government becomes more complicated and specialized, the chance for mistakes naturally multiplies.

In a typical case I know of, a mother of four children applied for Social Security benefits when her husband died in November, 1966. She was entitled to immediate aid from funds her spouse had rightfully earned, yet nothing happened.

Desperate, she began calling her local Social Security office every month, pleading for her check so that she could feed and clothe her children for school. Each time she was told by a brusque clerk that the office was "behind in work" and that she could expect a check the next month.

More than six months passed before she finally got the help she had deserved—and then only because a newspaper took up her crusade.

There are thousands of other cases being mishandled by government agencies, involving everything from negligent local trash collections to unfair Selective Service assignments. Those victims not fortunate enough to rally the news media or some other influential champion often have little choice but to endure the problem.

In many cases, their problems might be promptly corrected if the right persons within the offending agencies could be contacted. In others, legal action might be helpful. But taking a case to court is both expensive and slow. A teacher in Pasadena, Calif., for example, recently obtained a court ruling that public-school officials had acted illegally in arbitrarily removing him from his classroom just because he chose to wear a beard. But it took him four years and a lot of money to do it.

Under the ombudsman system, by contrast, your battle would be fought for you. Once the ombudsman decides to investigate your complaint, he and his staff would handle all the legal and paper work involved.

Details of how such a system might function in this country are not defined at present, and to rush into a national plan might create more problems than would be solved. Thus the legislation I am cosponsoring calls initially for the establishment of an ombudsman to serve the District of Columbia alone. If this pilot project were to prove effective, I would then advocate expansion.

Ultimately I would like to see an ombudsman in this country at the national level, perhaps with staffs in regional offices, to handle complaints against Federal agencies. So that citizens can be fully protected, I believe that ombudsmen also should be established at state and local levels to investigate bureaus and departments within these jurisdictions.

Under the proposed legislation, the ombudsman would be appointed without regard to political affiliation by the President, with Senate approval, for a three-year term. Salaried at $33,000 a year, he would be an attorney of great professional competence and personal integrity, with no recent connection with any government agency. He could serve a maximum of four terms and could hire the necessary staff.

Much of his time would be spent investigating complaints from Washington citizens who feel Federal bureaus or departments have acted illegally, unreasonably, mistakenly, or inefficiently in dealing with them. Nominal fees could be charged for this service, but all costs would be waived if they meant any financial hardship. To facilitate his investigation, he would have the power to subpoena witnesses and compel officials to produce records.

After any investigation, the ombudsman would make specific recommendations to the agency involved.

Although he would turn over to proper authorities any official or employee he considered guilty of misconduct, he would not have the power to demand that his recommendations to agencies be followed.

But since the ombudsman's activities are a matter of public record, the threat of unfavorable publicity is usually enough to bring any reluctant public official into line.

Not long ago, a Gallup poll revealed that among Americans with an opinion on the subject, a sizable majority believe that an ombudsman would benefit the U.S.

When an ombudsman is available, citizens can deposit their governmental problems on a single desk and let a specialist untangle the bureaucratic knots. This not only saves their time and spares their nerves but enhances their chances of a satisfactory outcome.

Finally an ombudsman system could be an immeasurable boon to Congress. My colleagues and I often lament that more than half the work loads of our staffs—as well as our own energies—are now devoted to helping constituents with problems that could more effectively be resolved by an ombudsman. This is valuable time that could be better spent researching and defining our pressing national needs and creating and promoting imaginative legislation for meeting them.

I believe it is time to move positively on this proposition at all levels. Considering the number of people and purposes they serve, our Government agencies do amazingly well in performing their jobs. But through the ombudsman system, we have a chance to do even better.

And in keeping a democracy running smoothly, that's an opportunity we cannot afford to miss. ♦

Senator Hart feels an ombudsman would solve many of his constituents' problems.

LOWDOWN ON LOANS:

How to Shop for Money

By Mrs. HATTIE STEWART, Counseling Supervisor, Family Financial Counseling Service

■ More than 3,500 families in the Chicago area have been helped out of debt by Family Financial Counseling Service since it began two years ago. A unique community effort supported by lenders, retailers, employers, and civic leaders, the service gives free counseling in money management.

AS A COUNSELOR to hundreds of people who have found themselves deep in debt, I've noticed they all have one thing in common.

Not only do they not know how to handle money, they don't know how to shop for it. One of our clients was paying 75 percent interest on a loan from an illegal lender! A bank loan for the same amount might have cost 10 percent. My advice is that if you're about to buy something on credit, ask yourself:

1. What is the true interest rate on this purchase? 2. How much in dollars will I be paying in interest? 3. Can I get the same amount of cash for less interest?

I believe that the first step in getting out of debt is rehabilitating yourself through education. Here are questions asked me most often—and the answers which you can use for more intelligent borrowing.

Q. We've recently refurbished our bedroom, bought a car, and had some expensive dental work done. For the first time, I'm getting behind in my payments, and my creditors are making threatening noises. What can I do about it?

A. If this is the first time you've gotten into trouble with credit, you probably have a good credit rating. You might consider making a consolidation loan from your bank or credit union, if you belong to one. This could save you money in the long run, besides keeping your creditors from taking legal action.

For example, if you are paying off the furniture on a revolving charge account at a department store, you are probably paying about 18 percent interest a year. (That's what becomes of a 1½ percent monthly service charge.) If you financed the car through a dealer, you may be paying 14 percent interest. A bank consolidation loan at, say, 10 percent would bail you out and save you money, too.

Q. I need our car on my job, and now my wife needs a car because we've just moved to the suburbs. We've found what I think is a good secondhand bargain, but the bank won't give us a loan. What should we do?

A. You might try financing the car either through the dealer or an auto finance company. Car loans are typically cheaper than other kinds of loans because the lender has the car as collateral. In the case of secondhand cars, rates are higher because the car has less value. See what terms the dealer will give you, and then compare them with an auto finance company.

Before you sign a contract, make sure it contains: a) the down payment (as large as possible to reduce carrying charges); b) the kind, amount, and cost of insurance, if included; c) All other fees; d) the total amount to be financed; e) the interest charge in dollars; f) the number and amount of payments, including the last one. Some dealers may quote low payments, and then surprise the buyer with a huge "balloon" last payment.

In the case of those lenders who state their charge as so many dollars per hundred, discounted in advance, you can estimate the true annual interest rate by doubling the listed charge. This is so because you pay the stated interest on the whole amount while the principal, due to monthly payments, declines. A rate of $5 per $100 is equal to about 10 percent true annual interest.

Q. Our son was recently taken ill and we have several hundred dollars' worth of medical bills that aren't covered by insurance. I'm wondering whether we should borrow to pay them, or dip into our savings?

A. Many people are understandably reluctant to withdraw from their savings because they are so hard to replace. If you're already heavily in debt, however, you may have trouble getting a loan for the doctor bills and will have to take the money from your savings. (One way to repay yourself: have a specific amount transferred from your checking account to your savings account each month.) A rule of thumb that some bankers use when they're deciding whether to make a loan: your total installment debt, excluding mortgage payments, should not exceed one third of your discretionary income—that is, the money left over when food, clothing, and shelter have been paid for.

When you're shopping for money it's useful to know what kinds of loans may be made where. Certain loan institutions can grant loans only for specific purposes. Others have their interest rates fixed by law. On this page is a table based on nationwide rates for loans. They vary according to the individual lender, community, and type of loan. Except for the car loans, all these loans can be gotten without collateral. Loans for which you can put up some kind of security, of course, come cheaper. ♦

LENDER	TYPE OF CREDIT	ANNUAL INTEREST RATE
Auto finance companies	Car loans	10-34%
	Commercial banks	Personal loans
Credit Unions	Car loans	8-12
	Education loans	3-13
	Home-improvement loans	6-18
	Loans to members subject to approval by credit committee. Various purposes	8-12
	Revolving	18-24
Retailers	Installment contract	18 and up
	Savings and loan companies and savings banks	Home-improvement loans

Why does God allow SUFFERING?

Vietnam claims a son. Cancer dooms a young mother. Children die in a school bus tragedy. Why? Where is God when these things happen?

In the depths of blind anguish, some people lash out that maybe God is a tyrant. Maybe He wants people to suffer. Or maybe human wretchedness is beyond His control!

For many, saying "It is God's will" is enough. For many others it is not. Who's being punished for what? Plagued by failure, illnesses, deaths, people often lose faith. Even if you're not personally involved, you wonder, "Why?"

Is there an answer? How can Christians, facing despair, reconcile their misery and God? How can they go on worshipping Him as a loving God? Yet they do. In fact, they find in Christianity an un-failing source of strength.

This free booklet can help you understand this Christian perspective . . . help you face suffering with the renewed faith and courage it can give.

Luncheon to Please the Feminine Fancy

■ With the winter season waning and spirits lagging, it's time for that bright and gay luncheon party to entertain six close friends. Here is a menu we hope will please all.

*****

Artichokes Veronique

6 large artichokes, cooked
(see directions)
Sauce Veronique (see recipe)
2 cups diced canned crab meat
¼ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Melted butter or margarine

1. While artichokes are cooking, prepare sauce.
2. Mix the canned crab meat into hot sauce, fill artichokes, and place in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle tops with a mixture of the cheeses. Brush outsides of artichokes with the melted butter or margarine.
3. Place in a 400°F. oven until cheese is melted, about 5 minutes.

Note: On each luncheon plate, place a stuffed artichoke along with two corn fritters, a spiced peach, and a sprig of watercress.

Salad Tip: Toss crisp salad greens with notched cucumber slices and short strips of green pepper; drizzle lightly with Italian-style salad dressing.

Sauce Veronique

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup regular all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon Accent
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2½ cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
1 egg, fork beaten
½ cup green grapes, cut in pieces

Cook onion in hot butter or margarine in the top of a large double boiler. Stir in a mixture of the flour and next five ingredients.

Heat until bubbly. Add milk and cream gradually, stirring until smooth. Bring rapidly to boiling; cook and stir for 2 minutes. Place double-boiler top over boiling water and immediately stir some of the hot mixture into the egg. Immediately blend into mixture in the double boiler. Cook over boiling water 5 min., stirring constantly. Mix in the grapes.

How to Cook Artichokes

Cut off about 1 in. from tops and bases of artichokes. Remove and discard lower outside leaves. Snip off tips of remaining leaves. Stand close together in a deep saucepan. Cook until tender 30 to 45 min. in boiling salted water to cover adding to water 2 cloves garlic, several lemon slices, and 2 tablespoons olive oil. Drain and cut off stems at base; remove "choke."

Corn-Gold Fritters

1½ cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, well beaten
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon margarine, melted
1 can (12 oz.) golden whole kernel corn, drained
Fat for deep frying heated to 365°F.

1. Blend the first four ingredients in a bowl.
2. Mix the milk, Worcestershire sauce, and melted margarine with the eggs. Add all at one time to the dry ingredients and beat with a rotary beater just until smooth. Mix in the corn.
3. For each frying, drop batter by tablespoonfuls into the hot fat until surface is covered. Fry 2 to 3 min., or until golden brown, turning frequently. Drain fritters over fat for a few seconds before removing to absorbent paper. Allow 2 fritters per serving.

About 6 servings

Pan o' Rolls

Elegant rolls to serve at this luncheon can come quickly when using refrigerated biscuits or rolls. Here is a fine recipe featuring refrigerated ready-to-bake biscuits.

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
2 pkgs. (8 oz. each) refrigerated biscuits
½ cup shredded Parmesan cheese

1. Heat butter or margarine and garlic in a small skillet; stir in the parsley. Remove from heat.
2. Separate biscuits; dip each in the garlic butter to coat. Overlap 15 biscuits around the outer edge of a 9-in. round layer-cake pan; form an inner circle by overlapping remaining biscuits.
3. Drizzle any remaining butter over top of biscuits and sprinkle evenly with the cheese.
4. Bake at 425°F. 15 to 20 minutes.

Grecian Glazed Oranges

Using a shredder remove the peel from oranges (allow one per serving). Pour freshly boiling water over peel to cover, let stand 10 min., and drain. Repeat twice, being sure that the water is boiling each time it is poured over peel. Meanwhile, cut off and discard all the white underskin from oranges. Prepare a sugar syrup allowing for each orange ½ cup water and ½ cup sugar; boil for 10 minutes. Tint with a few drops yellow or orange food coloring. Pour boiling syrup over oranges; let stand about 15 minutes. Return syrup to saucepan and boil it 15 minutes. Stir in the peel and pour over oranges; cool. Stack oranges pyramid fashion in a serving dish and pour syrup over them to glaze.

As the Girl Scouts celebrate their 56th birthday, an original member recalls:

We Were the Talk of Our Town

By FLORENCE SCHWALB

Girl Scout inspection—in 1912.

WHENEVER I hear people today say, "Nice girls don't do those things!" I have to smile.

I think back to 56 years ago when my Cousin Daisy—Juliette Gordon Low, as the world came to know her—became the talk of Savannah, Ga., by founding the first Girl Scout troop in America, a group happily celebrating its birthday this week.

Thanks to Cousin Daisy, I was able to be in that first troop. She waited until my birthday on March 12, 1912, so I'd meet the minimum age of 11. That day 18 girls promised, as Girl Scouts still do today, "On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God and my country . . ."

Then Cousin Daisy, who was 52 and had learned about scouting when she lived in England, told us briskly, "We need broadening! We've got to do something besides knit!"

For that first year we girls found it dull. Then her ideas began to take shape. There was an end to those dreary meetings. She started us playing basketball, hiking, learning first aid and child care, and working toward earning badges.

In the opinion of many in Savannah, these activities were most unsuitable for well-bred young ladies—especially basketball. That we played this "unfeminine" sport in middies and bloomers was quite shocking. To shield their outraged eyes from the sight of female legs, we hung gunny sacks along the fences.

My daughter and granddaughters followed me into Girl Scouting, though, of course, many things have changed. In my day, it was scandalous for girls to do anything more than embroider and take music lessons. Today a Girl Scout's uniform barely reaches her knees, she dances the frug, and can go camping with Boy Scouts.

Yet some things never change. When I joined, we prided ourselves on being ahead of our time. In that, I think my granddaughters are a lot like us. ♦

California Man Discovers Way to Hold False Teeth

BAKERSFIELD, Calif.—A new discovery called Acryline is big news. Users say it fits plates so beautifully they can't believe it. Acryline uses a startling new vacuum principle. Acryline is available at all drug counters or send $1.98 + 22¢ handling to Home Dental Aids, Box 1731, Dept. 16A, Bakersfield, Calif. 93302.

PASTEETH, an alkaline (non-acid) powder to sprinkle on your plates, keeps false teeth more firmly set. Gives confident feeling of security and added comfort. No gummy, gooey taste or feeling. ## Rip Van Winkle Couldn't Sleep with Nagging Backache Nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains may come with over-exertion, emotional upsets, or everyday stress and strain. If this nagging backache, with restless, sleepless nights, is wearing you out, making you miserable and irritable, don't wait, try Doan's Pills—an analgesic, a pain reliever. Doan's pain-relieving action on nagging backache is often the answer. Get Doan's Pills—not a habit-forming drug but a well-known standard remedy used successfully by millions for over 70 years. See if they don't bring you the same welcome relief. For convenience, always buy Doan's large size.

Now...Denture Invention

Replaces messy powders, oozing pastes, reliners

The big difference between natural teeth and dentures is in performance. Natural teeth are held solidly in place by living connective tissue. Without connective tissue, even the most expensive dentures may slip and rock. Gums often get raw and sore. Constant rubbing may cause serious bone damage. Eating can be slow, painful. You speak less clearly. You dare not laugh for fear of dentures dropping.

Now chemists have developed an artificial connective membrane—FIXODENT. It connects dentures with gums and mouth surfaces. It is incredibly effective for both uppers and lowers. FIXODENT's elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing —helps protect gums from bruising and irritation. You eat faster—bite harder, without pain—enjoy your food more. Eat hard-to-chew foods—steaks, fruits, —prevent "denture malnutrition," a problem of older people.

FIXODENT helps you speak easier, faster, more clearly. When dentures slip you hold them in place with tongue and cheek muscles that ache. FIXODENT helps prevent strain.

The special pencil-point dispenser spots FIXODENT with precision—no oozing over. Often lasts 'round-the-clock. It even resists hot drinks. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get special FIXODENT at all drug counters.

GROW ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR PENNIES PER BASKET

For the average family we recommend 20 vines planted on 9 ft. square plot. Pick a sunny spot, spend a few moments to plant. Little special care of cultivation is needed. Strawberry plants multiply rapidly reaching full maturity in 2 years. Each Mother plant bears many Daughter plants. If allowed to take root, these will become Mother plants producing additional Daughter plants. By following the simple illustrated instructions in our free booklet, you can soon enlarge your harvest to take care of all your needs for short cake, breakfast, freezing, and a year round supply of jam. This plot of beautiful, ornamental and prolific everbearers will grow baskets and baskets, literally hundreds of large, luscious berries over a full 5 month period. Readily trained they will grow up-up-up walls, fences, trellis or poles. Within a matter of days you see them come to life. In a short time you'll be picking clusters of ripe, mouth-watering sun sweetened berries, some as large as plums, clean, right off the vine, with no dirt. Because strawberry plants are easy to grow and propagate, you, like many thousands of other amateur gardeners, should have little difficulty in raising a satisfactory crop of vine-ripe berries. We are specially proud of the thousands of orders received thru recommendations to friends and neighbors.

Furniture Finds

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

EVERY HOME needs a unique piece of furniture—one that delights the eye, serves more than one purpose, or fills a small space skillfully.

As you shop for furniture, keep your eyes peeled for a piece that really pleases you. Its lines should fulfill your sense of beauty, now and be classic enough to endure in a future setting. If it's a bit out of the reach of your budget, but you know the piece will make your room, give up something else to own it.

The type of furniture piece you buy is up to you. It might be a highly unusual wall unit, cabinet, chair, or coffee table—almost any piece that has been designed well and satisfies the function for which it was intended.

Have we spurred the collector's bug? Here we offer some suggestions to inspire you in your search. ♦

How to get rich

How can you get rich some day? Make a hit record . . . a killing on the stock market . . . or invent a gadget like the hula hoop?

For most of us, these are just dreams. But have you ever stopped to think that there is a way to get rich—possibly only one sure way? Most fortunes, as you know, are made by people who own their own business.

Perhaps you've thought of starting a small business of your own . . . a franchised drive-in, or maybe a service business. Trouble is, you need $10,000 to $15,000 to get started and even then it's a gamble—with slim chance of ever making really big money.

But there is one business which could make you rich—almost overnight! And the beauty of it is, you can start on a shoestring during your spare time, even while holding your regular job.

Cash by Mail

The business is Mail Order—and it's fabulous! Come up with a 'hot' new item . . . and WHAM!

It strikes like a bolt of lightning! Suddenly, you are deluged with cash orders from all over the country. MORE MONEY than you could ever make in a lifetime!

Like the Vermont dealer who ran one ad in Sports Afield Magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders—over A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN CASH!

There is no other business where you can make a fortune so quickly!

• A beginner from Newark, N.J. ran his first small ad in House Beautiful—offering an auto clothes rack. Business Week reported that his ad brought in $5,000 in orders. By the end of his first year in Mail Order, he had grossed over $100,000!

• Another beginner—a lawyer from the midwest, sold an idea by mail to fisherman. Specialty Salesman Magazine reveals, "he made $70,000 the first three months!"

Proof

It's a fascinating business! Running ads in newspapers and magazines . . . mailing gift catalogs . . . getting cash orders in your daily mail—steady as clockwork.

There is no other business where you can start on a shoestring and pyramid your profits—without investing in merchandise! One husband and wife mail order team took in $40,000 selling one item. They obtained FREE ads in national magazines . . . didn't invest a cent in merchandise, and even got the supplier to ship all orders for them!

These exceptional cases are absolute proof that you can get rich in your own Mail Order business. Very rich. Even a U.S. Gov. Report stated: "A number of one-man Mail Order enterprises make up to $50,000!"

Pick up any magazine. Notice how the same mail order ads are repeated month after month? That's concrete proof! You know those ads wouldn't be repeated over and over again—unless they were bringing in big cash profits to their owners.

The Secret

The secret of getting rich in Mail Order lies in financial leverage. It's a little-known, almost secret method—using other people's capital to make money for you!

You can get thousands of dollars worth of advertising in big national magazines—without investing your own money! And you don't have to write a single ad. Tested and proven ads are prepared for you by experts. Reinvest the profits from your first successful ad—to get more, larger ads, and the profits begin to snowball! It's like building a chain of stores . . . each new store puts more money in your pocket.

You mail out beautiful catalogs which offer hundreds of dollars worth of fine, quality gifts—yet you don't invest one ica! And now, with more people moving to the suburbs . . . the population explosion . . . and the expanding teenage market . . . we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history!

Now, with the help and backing of Mail Order Associates, Inc., of Montvale, N.J., you can follow the same proven steps to Mail Order success—using the 'secret' of financial leverage!

Start Now

We supply you with beautiful gift catalogs throughout the year. All products are dropshipped for you, with up to 100% mark-up! You get free samples of top-selling mail order items, plus monthly trade reports on 'hot' new products . . . tested, successful ads are sent to you monthly. You get advertising directories, postal laws, complete courses, expert guidance—EVERYTHING you need to practically guarantee YOUR SUCCESS. Why? Because our business depends upon your success. It's mutually profitable!

A recent feature article in Income Opportunities Magazine stated, "Mail Order Associates Inc., offers the most comprehensive Mail Order program ever offered to beginners." They go on to say, "This could be the opportunity you've been looking for. A chance to get in on the ground floor in a little-known business which we believe is on the verge of a new boom."

This elegant apothecary chest from Drexel would do handsomely in a hall or small hard-to-fill corner and give storage space.

She'd Rather Swing Than Be a Star

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

TWO YEARS ago, an MGM official asked French actress Francoise Hardy if she wanted to become an international star.

"How long will it take?" was her immediate reply. A couple of years, she was told. "Forget it," she said. "I'm having too much fun to bother with that."

And so she was. She had become one of France's most popular singers when barely 19 years old and had appeared in a number of films, including Francoise Sagan's "Castle in Sweden." But the real reason for her wide acceptance among French youth was her seemingly carefree and informal attitude (she almost always wears slacks and blouse).

Francoise once had the audacity to walk into the lobby of London's staid and conservative Savoy Hotel, dressed in bright orange slacks and yellow sweater. Ordinarily, she would have been asked to leave, except for one thing—she was performing there!

Francoise did impress someone with this type of attitude—young American director John Frankenheimer, in Europe to cast and shoot MGM's "Grand Prix." Frankenheimer signed up Francoise simply because he wanted a girl who looked "just like that."

After the film was completed, MGM officials were so impressed with the young French actress that they asked her to come to the U.S. to help promote the film. She turned them down flat. "Working in films is one thing," she said. "Doing publicity is quite something else. It's too restrictive. No fun." That seems to be what life is all about to her.

With her smash success in "Grand Prix" came the chance many aspiring starlets yearn for: publicity tours, cocktail parties, candid interviews, the vital ingredients of fame and box-office draw. But Francoise is not like other girls. "Being a star would tie me down too much," she says. "I hate schedules."

As uninhibited as Francoise appears, she is basically a shy person. She is bewildered by the thousands of letters she receives from young girls like herself. "Most of them ask advice," she confesses. "Who am I to give advice? If it weren't for the way I dress, no one would notice me." Unless she performs, of course.

A friend tells of a party Francoise attended, dressed in a man's T-shirt, belted at the waist. "There wasn't much left to the imagination. She started the mini-fad long before Julie Christie even heard of it."

As much of a swinger as Francoise is, she will be in for a battle royal to protect that image now. She has come under the protective wing of famed French movie director Roger Vadim.

Vadim, of course, has a number of accomplishments to his credit. He made international stars out of Brigitte Bardot and Jane Fonda. But there is an exciting difference. They wanted to become stars, while 24-year-old Francoise couldn't care less.

Roger Vadim is determined to make Francoise Hardy another Bardot, and Vadim is known to finish what he sets out to do. But he may have met his match in this sexy, unassuming girl who'd rather swing than be a star. ♦

TERRY DETAINS LARRIKIN UNTIL THE AUSTRALIAN POLICE ARRIVE TO INVESTIGATE JEHU VERDE'S MURDER.

COLONEL LEE! LARRIKIN'S STORY IS A LIE! YOU SAW YOURSELF HOW HE HATED JEHU...

DOCTOR MASK, LARRIKIN CLAIMS HE WAS ABOARD HIS TUB WHEN THE SHOT WAS FIRED, CLAIMS HE THOUGHT VERDE WAS BRUTALIZING MRS. VERDE, CLAIMS HE CAME BACK TO PROTECT HER!

AFWT

MAYBE HE DID ARRIVE AFTER I DID, LISTENED OUTSIDE A WINDOW, REALIZED VERDE HAD BEEN MURDERED AND THAT HE WAS A PRIME SUSPECT. I DON'T KNOW!

BUT I'M IN COMMAND OF A SPACE TRACKING STATION ON AUSTRALIAN SOIL. I CAN NOT ORDER A DRUM HEAD COURT MARTIAL AND A FIRING SQUAD FOR LARRIKIN, DOCTOR!

PLANE! THAT WILL BE THE CIVILIAN POLICE.

COLONEL LEE? I'M INSPECTOR BILBY. BROUGHT A CREW OF MY LAB PEOPLE ALONG. IF YOU DON'T MIND, WE'LL TAKE OVER.

THE HEADACHE'S ALL YOURS, INSPECTOR.

THIS MAN, LARRIKIN, YOU, AH, SUGGESTED HE BE YOUR GUEST UNTIL I'VE HAD A TALK WITH HIM?

YES, SIR, AND, COLONEL VERDE'S BODY HAS BEEN LEFT JUST THE WAY WE FOUND IT.

LATER...

FINISHED WITH THE PRELIMINARIES, COLONEL, PHOTOGRAPHS, DUSTING FOR FINGERPRINTS, THAT SORT OF THING. NOW, THE QUESTIONS!

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

Our Story: ALETA, QUEEN OF THE MISTY ISLES, RETURNS TO HER KINGDOM TO FIND IT IN DEEP TROUBLE, BUT A TROUBLE HER PEOPLE ARE ENJOYING. OH, IF ONLY SHE HAD VAL AT HER SIDE TO LEND HER HIS STRENGTH!

EACH DAY SHE WALKS TO THE FAR WESTERN TIP OF THE ISLAND WHERE STANDS THE TEMPLE OF APHRODITE, AND THERE WATCHES THE SEA FOR SOME SIGN OF VAL'S LONG-OVERDUE SHIP.

AT LAST IT COMES FOAMING OVER THE BLUE SEA AND HER HEART LEAPS WITH GLADNESS.

AS VAL STEPS ASHORE THERE IS A FLASH OF GOLD, A SQUEAL OF DELIGHT, AND A PERFUMED BUNDLE LANDS IN HIS ARMS. THIS IS DECIDEDLY NOT THE WAY FOR A QUEEN TO GREET HER HUSBAND, BUT AT LEAST IT MAKES HIM FEEL WELCOME.

"MY KINGDOM IS DOOMED BY PROSPERITY. WEALTH HAS BECOME A BURDEN TO MY PEOPLE, AND THEY LOLL IN LUXURY. INDOLENCE IS A HABIT, AMUSEMENT THEIR ONLY BUSINESS. COME, I'LL SHOW YOU SOME EXAMPLES."

"WHO IS THAT?" ASKS VAL, "SOME PRINCELY GENERAL?" "NO," ANSWERS ALETA, "THAT IS BUT A COMMON SOLDIER. OUR OFFICERS DRESS LIKE PEACOCKS, BUT THEY DANCE DIVINELY!"

"ONCE WE WERE THE FINEST SWIMMERS IN THE WORLD. NOW WE LIE BESIDE HEATED POOLS WITH PERFUMED WATER, AND EAT AND DRINK THE WHOLE DAY THROUGH."

"NOW, THERE IS ONE OF OUR GREATEST ATHLETES. HE WILL DINE WITH US TONIGHT, AND WHEN HE SPEAKS OF HIS PROWESS I BEG YOU NOT TO LAUGH."

NEXT WEEK—The Athletes

"Y'SEE WHAT I SEE, SANDY? THAT BIG, BIG MOVIN' VAN THEY'RE LOADIN'? TH' GUYS JUST WENT DOWN TO TH' CORNER FOR A COFFEE BREAK!"

AN OLD FOX NEED NOT BE TAUGHT TRICKS.
 YOU HAVE MORE TRICKS THAN A DANCING BEAR.
 HE IS COMPOSED AND FRAMED OF TREACHERY.

THEY SURE DO PACK EVERY INCH. HM-M. STILL, I THINK I SEE OUR CHANCE IF WE'RE QUICK ENOUGH!

YEP, SANDY! WAY UP HERE IN TH' CORNER! ROOM ENOUGH BACK O' THIS BIG TABLE; LOT O' QUILTS; VENTILATOR FOR AIR! WE'VE GOT PLENTY FOOD!

AND WHILE WE WAIT TO SEE IF ANNIE GETS AWAY WITH IT, BACK TO THE VAULT!

AIE-E! DOES OUR LEADER SUGGEST?

YOU WANT WE DIE, SO YOU MAYBE LIVE?

I FEEL SEEK!

AH, BUT WE FOUR ARE COMRADES! WE DRAW STRAWS! HE WHO DRAWS THE LONGEST STRAW SHALL LIVE! IS NOT THAT FAIR?

AH, YOU ARE A TRUE COMRADE!

AND A BRAVE PATRIOT!

I WOULD LIKE TO PASS, B-BUT HO-KAY!

AT THIS SOLEMN MOMENT LET US COME CLOSE, COMRADES. I HOLD THE STRAWS IN MY LEFT HAND: EACH GRASP ONE, BUT DO NOT PULL IT FREE 'TIL I SAY.....

...DRAW!

 BANG!
 BANG!

AH, MY POOR, DEAR, STUPID COMRADES! THEY DID NOT GUESS I WOULD DRAW A LOADED "STRAW"! BUT THEY ARE OF SLIGHT LOSS TO THE PARTY!

WHO KNOWS? WITH MY TALENTS, I COULD SOMEDAY RISE TO PREMIER! OUR MOST GLORIOUS LEADERS HAVE BEEN MEN WHO NEVER HESITATED WHEN SURVIVAL WAS AT STAKE, THEIR SURVIVAL!

OH, WELL! THEY MAKE THEIR OWN RULES! LET'S GET BACK TO ANNIE AND SANDY AND SUNSHINE, AND A MOVING VAN!

WELL, SANDY, WE'RE ROLLING! NO TELLING WHERE WE'RE GOING, BUT WE'RE ON OUR WAY!

HEY! I CAN SEE OUT THROUGH THIS VENTILATOR! BEAUTIFUL DAY! SEEMS T'BE WARMIN' UP! Y'KNOW, SANDY, WE COULD BE IN FOR AN EARLY SPRING!
