FRB Raises Discount Rate To 5 Per Cent

U.S. Battles Gold-Buying Spree; London Mart Closes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Battling the frenzied wave of gold buying in Europe, the government triggered higher interest rates for American borrowers today and convoked an emergency meeting of representatives of gold pool nations. In a related move, the London gold market—accepting a U.S. suggestion—did not open today. There was no immediate word on when trading would resume. U.S. officials sought to stem the gold buying spree, which threatens the very existence of the international money system, in this series of rapid-fire developments late Thursday. —The Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate from 4.5 per cent to 5 per cent, effective today, in a move designed to fight inflation and restore confidence in the dollar overseas. —The Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve scheduled a meeting for Saturday in Washington among the seven nations which feed gold to the London market in an attempt to maintain the price at $35 an ounce. —The United States reasserted its determination to buy and sell at $35 an ounce. —The Senate backed up this commitment by completing congressional action, 39 to 37, on a bill to remove the 25 per cent gold backing for paper money, thus freeing the nation's entire gold stock of $11.4 billion to back the dollar overseas. In London, Queen Elizabeth proclaimed a special bank holiday for today. The London stock market was closed and Canada raised its discount rate from 7 per cent to 7.5 per cent effective today. For the United States, the discount rate is now at its highest level since the days which preceded the 1929 stock market crash when the rate hit 6 per cent. It reached its highest level—7 per cent—in 1920-21. This is the charge commercial banks must pay for money they borrow from the Federal Reserve System. All other interest rates are pegged upward from it. The upward move will mean higher interest rates in the economy generally and ultimately will filter through to loans on mortgages, automobiles and other consumer goods. In suggesting the closing of the London market, the focal point of the buying stampede, the Treasury Department said it had become disorganized and "didn't permit business to be handled in orderly fashion."

The United States contributes 59 per cent of the gold sold on the London market as part of a seven-nation pool. Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board said they invited the central bank governors of the gold pool countries to consult Saturday on "coordinated measures to ensure orderly conditions in the exchange markets and to support the present pattern of exchange rates based on the fixed price of $35 per ounce of gold." In addition to the United States other gold pool members are Belgium, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. Among them they have more than $24 billion in gold.

Gold At $44.36 On Paris Mart

PARIS (AP) — The price of gold reached $44.36 an ounce on the Paris market today, more than $9 above the $35 price guaranteed by the United States. Wild speculation in Hong Kong sent the price to $40.47 while the London gold market suspended operations under government decree. France refused to go along with other major European gold dealing nations in action to dampen buying. Normally, the Bank of France intervenes to keep the price just above the $35 dollar figure. But today, because the market did not receive fresh supplies from the seven-nation gold pool in London, the Paris price was allowed to find its own level in accordance with local supply and demand. However, the Bank of France played a major role. It allowed the price for one kilogram—2.2 pounds—to rise to an unprecedented 7,000 francs or $1,400 from the outset of dealing in a bid to hold down demand. Today's over-all volume was $43.86 million compared with $52.6 million Thursday. Thirty tons of fine gold, excluding coins, changed hands, compared with 45 tons Thursday. In the face of London's suspension the French Finance Ministry had decreed normal trading on the gold market, the stock market and other exchanges.

Land Trade Approved By Developers

Redevelopment commissioners yesterday approved trading a small parcel of land with a parcel owned by St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The trade will straighten a boundary on the eastern edge of the Shore Drive project. Commissioners heard a request from Dr. Paul Fitzgerald of Raleigh that his property west of Pitt Street and north of First be designated not to be acquired. Dr. Fitzgerald said he wants to develop a private cemetery. The commission referred the request to the Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council. James Clark, rehabilitation advisor and John Mesick, Central Business District project manager, discussed a meeting with the city building inspector and CBD consultants. The meeting concerned rehabilitation standards for buildings in the central business district. It was decided that the state and city building code will be used as a standard for rehabilitation. Commissioners also discussed the reuse of the Newtown redevelopment area.

50,000 Troops Comb Vietnam Countryside

SAIGON (AP) — At least 50,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops are sweeping between Saigon and the Cambodian border in the biggest operation of the Vietnam war. The U.S. Command announced today. Elements of six divisions and two special task forces moved out Monday in an ambitious maneuver designed to regain the initiative seized by the Viet Cong with their countryside assault on Jan. 30. The allied force has killed 215 enemy soldiers, seized 22 suspects and uncovered three huge arms caches, spokesmen said. U.S. losses were reported as 11 killed and 94 wounded, while the Vietnamese Command said its troops had suffered light casualties. The vast operation—named Quiet Thang, or Resolved to Win—is anchored in Saigon and extends in a semicircle through five provinces north, west and south of the capital. Fifty allied battalions have been committed plus support troops and national police units. It is the first significant operation uncoordinated by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the commander of U.S. forces in South Vietnam, since Viet Cong forces invaded Saigon Jan. 31 and turned the city into a battlefield. While the first goal of the operation is to destroy enemy units that continued harassing attacks around Saigon, a second aims to restore a sense of security and confidence among the shaken civilian population, officials said. For the first time in the war, sections of Saigon were included in the battle plan of an allied offensive, search-and-destroy operation. National police and units of the 5th Vietnamese Ranger Group were assigned objectives in western Saigon and Cholon, the Chinese quarter of the capital. The force for the operation includes units of the U.S. 1st, 9th and 25th Infantry divisions, the South Vietnamese 5th and 25th Infantry divisions, task forces of Vietnamese paratroopers and marines, the Vietnamese Ranger group, and national police units. Generally, the various units kicked off the coordinated action from areas to which they have been assigned for the past year.

Tithed In Death

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A conscientious objector who was mortally wounded while helping to rescue a fellow Marine at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam has tithed part of his life insurance to his Church. Pvt. Jonathan Nathaniel Spicer, 19, wrote that he was laughed at by fellow Marines at Khe Sanh because of his antiwar views after he was assigned to that beleaguered fortress as a medic. "They treated me with disdain and contempt," Spicer wrote to his father, William, a former Methodist minister who is a social studies teacher at a junior high school. At Khe Sanh a month ago Spicer charged from a bunker to help stretcher bearers loading wounded into helicopters under fire. He was wounded by shrapnel. Open heart surgery and hospitalization in Vietnam were followed by transfer Tuesday to a hospital in Japan where he died Wednesday. The elder Spicer said he and Mrs. Spicer received their son's last letter two months ago. Spicer also is survived by three brothers, Rocky, 9, Bill, 21, and Timmy, 17, a Marine recruit undergoing training. "It contained his last will and testament," the father said. "He wanted $1,000 of his $10,000 worth of Army insurance to go to the Church — in keeping with our practice of tithing. Another $200 is to be used to buy his youngest brother a horse and he said the rest is to be used by the family."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C. Temperatures through Wednesday will average near or little above normal. Mild over weekend, cooler late Sunday and Monday, turning milder. Chance of showers late Monday or Tuesday.

Sixth Deserter Leaving Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The sixth U.S. serviceman to change his mind about taking refuge in Sweden to get away from the Vietnam war left for the United States today, American sources reported. They said the soldier arrived in Stockholm Wednesday but within 24 hours turned himself in at the U.S. Embassy without formally applying to Swedish authorities for asylum. The embassy provided him a plane ticket to New York. Informants declined to disclose his identity. They explained that in cases such as this, where the serviceman has not involved himself too deeply by actually requesting asylum and has had a change of heart, they feel "he should be given a break."

Order Trial For Impeachment

PANAMA (AP) — The National Assembly has ordered President Marcus A. Robles to stand trial March 24 after impeaching him on charges of unconstitutional political activity. Conviction would mean his removal from office if the National Guard, Panama's army, did not intervene. The assembly impeached Robles Thursday night on a motion by opposition Deputy Jacobo Salas. The vote was not known, but a poll taken earlier showed that the opposition had 30 of the 42 assembly votes lined up.

Saturation Plan

Ten Highway Patrolmen will converge on highways in Pitt County Saturday in a saturation program designed to seek out speeders and drinking drivers. The saturation period, to run from 8 p.m. tomorrow until 4 a.m. Sunday, is designed to make motorists more aware of the patrol's presence and to apprehend the speeding and drinking driver. All speed checking devices, including new VASCAR units will be in use, Sgt. L. G. Pate said. Officers participating in the program will include troopers stationed in Pitt County and others brought in from other areas especially for the operation. The wolfpack will move through the entire county. Sgt. Pate said one reason for the wolfpack operation in Pitt is the extremely high accident rate recorded in the county so far this year. Already five persons have died in traffic accidents on highways in the county this year. In 1967, only seven persons lost their lives during the entire year. The program locally is part of a state-wide program to saturate areas with high accident rates in an effort to curb the mounting accident and fatality figures. Sgt. Pate noted that Pitt County patrolmen last month arrested 56 drivers on charges of operating under the influence — most of them on Saturdays.

Awaiting Word On Auto Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Insurance Commissioner Ed Lanier is expected to announce today whether additional evidence will be presented at a reopened hearing into a 16.5 per cent hike in auto liability insurance rates in the state. The question created a dispute when the hearing was resumed Thursday before Lanier who is under court order to reconsider the rate hike he denied last November. Lanier and his staff expressed the opinion that in studying the rate increase he should take into consideration a new "safe driver reward plan" which goes into effect April 1. The N. C. Automobile Rate Administrative Office contended that such testimony is barred by the court order and would drag the rate case out too long. The rate office appealed to the courts after Lanier denied the requested rate increase. Superior Court Judge Pilston Godwin recently issued an order saying that Lanier had erred. The judge remanded the case with instructions for Lanier to fix "fair and reasonable" rates. During Thursday's arguments, Hugh Owen, insurance department staff attorney, contended that consideration of the new safe driver reward plan is essential to establishing proper rates. Arch Allen, attorney for the rate office, argued that Godwin's order made no reference to additional evidence but simply instructed Lanier to consider evidence presented last year, decide whether present rates are adequate and set new rates. Allen said if the case is opened for new evidence, "We will never get through." He said that new evidence from his clients might show that even higher rates than those proposed last summer are needed now.

Rawl Named Gardner Chairman For County

Greenville businessman Ed E. Rawl has been named Pitt County Chairman for Republican gubernatorial Candidate Jim Gardner. Rawl, owner and manager of 1964, he was the first president of the combined organization known as the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association. Rawl is now president and finance chairman of the East Carolina Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He was recently Chairman of the Primary Gifts of the Scout Fund Campaign. Presently Rawl is president of Brown, Incorporated, a new carter growing techniques. He is also the president of Develco, a motel holding company. In addition to his civic and business activities, Rawl participates in team athletics in Greenville's local recreation program. Rawl served for four years in the Naval Air Force and received an honorable discharge in early 1946. He is married to the former Josie White of Greenville. They have three children. The Rawls attend Oakmont Baptist Church, where Rawl has served as chairman of the Board of Deacons. Presently he is serving as building committee chairman. Rawl and his family reside at 1048 East Rock Spring Road, Greenville.

ED E. RAWL Georgetown Shopping Center and Office Complex in Greenville, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, where he received a degree in business administration. Rawl is active in civic work. In 1962, he was president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club. In

CATV Proponents, Opponents Heard By Councilmen

By RUTH GWYNN Reflecter Staff Writer Councilmen last night heard spokesmen from three groups interested in the franchise for a cable television system locally. They also heard a representative from WNCT-TV oppose awarding the franchising for such a system. One of the representatives heard was from Greenville Utilities, which had been instructed by the council to study the possibility of operating a CATV system. Dan McAlister, representing Jefferson-Carolina Corporation, noted that the system installed by his company would have a potential of 18-20 channels, although it would be equipped initially to carry only the 12 channels offered by presently available equipment. Councilman John Howard asked McAlister how a person with only 12 channels on his television dial could pick up 18-20 stations. McAlister replied that a person with only 12 dial selections would be able to receive just 12 channels. However, he added, a set with more selectors on the dial could receive all the channels offered. The Jefferson-Carolina Corporation proposed a franchise fee of four per cent of the gross annual receipts, with a $4,000 guaranteed minimum. Howard noted his obligation as a councilman to protect the Greenville citizens. McAlister replied that no risk was involved to the subscribers. "The service," he said, would be entirely voluntary and subscribers can cancel the service at any time. They would lose only the installation fee and payment for the months the system was in service."

The experience of the applicant and his ability to finance the system were the two major considerations noted by McAlister concerning the awarding of the franchise to a private corporation. Attorney Louis Gaylord, representing the Daily Reflector, announced that his client would present no proposal until it was decided whether or not the contract would be awarded to a private enterprise. Gaylord noted, "Neither my firm nor any other can hope to compete with the Utilities Commission, but if it is decided that GUCO is not the proper agency to handle CATV, a proposal will be submitted by my client." The proposal of the Utilities Commission was not presented, but Hoover Taft, representing the Commission, outlined some of the benefits to Greenville citizens if the service is offered through GUCO. Taft said, "The Commission can use existing poles and underground cable lines already installed. Maintenance crews already used by the Utilities Commission can work with CATV with some additional training." A dispatcher, essential to CATV, is already employed by GUCO. In addition, Taft pointed out that office work would be minimized since payment for CATV would simply be included as a part of the monthly utilities bill. "A vital point is that, under GUCO, earnings of the CATV system would belong to Greenville citizens, the franchise would belong to the citizens, and all of the benefits would go to the citizens." Taft noted that if the council decided to award the franchise to GUCO, the commission was "ready, willing, and able" to accept the responsibility. Opposition to the CATV system was heard from Hank Tribley, general manager of WNCT-TV. Tribley said, "There is a total lack of need for CATV in the Greenville area since most viewers now receive clearly all three major networks." Tribley noted that under FCC rules, WNCT and other local stations could demand "non-duplication of programs." This would prevent the transmission of the same program simultaneously with a program offered by a local station. Tribley repeated, "WNCT will demand non-duplication." Installation of the CATV system would lessen the impact of local advertising because of the resultant "fragmentation of the audience," Tribley added. Councilman Howard also spoke in opposition to the system, noting what he termed "a lack of need for the system in this area." Mayor S. Eugene West said that the Council would consider the proposals presented, and take further action on the awarding of a CATV franchise at a later date. In other business last night, the council approved a parade to be held March 18 by the East Carolina University Student Party, a campus political group. Annexation of two tracts of property adjacent to the city limits, one including land interests of the Pentecostal Holiness Church and the other including the Shoney's Restaurant property on the U. S. 264 by-pass, was approved.

Serve Chocolate Walnut Torte At Dessert Party

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Dessert and coffee parties became popular a dozen or more years ago. They're a good thing. It's not always convenient to cook a whole meal for guests.

These dessert parties should be neighborly affairs to which you ask friends living near you. If guests have to come from afar it's best to ask them for a whole meal.

So for a dessert and coffee party, what do you serve? One excellent choice is a torte—and when it's chocolate, it's usually a hit.

That's exactly what we offer today—the cake part of this torte is of mild chocolate flavor; the frosting is bursting out with chocolate.

CHOCOLATE WALNUT TORTE

- 1 and 1-3rd cups sifted cake flour
- 1/2 cup plus 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1-3rd cup corn oil
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/2 squares (1 1/2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate, finely grated
- 1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
- 2 egg whites (save yolks for frosting)
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- Whipped cream
- Chocolate Buttercream Frosting—see Recipe Below

Grease the bottom of a round layer cake pan (8 by 1 1/2 inches). Line bottom with wax paper.

Into the large bowl of electric mixer sift together the flour, 1/2 cup sugar, baking powder and salt. Make a well in the center and add corn oil, milk and vanilla. Beat gently until smooth. Fold in grated chocolate and walnuts.

In a medium mixing bowl, with clean beater, beat egg whites and cream of tartar until whites hold stiff straight peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn. Gradually beat in remaining three tablespoons sugar. Continue to beat, if necessary, until whites hold stiff straight glossy peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn. Fold (do not stir) into batter. Turn into prepared cake pan.

Bake in a 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—35 to 40 minutes. Turn out on wire rack; remove paper. With another rack, turn right side up; cool.

Split torte in half to make two layers; put layers together with whipped cream. Spread Chocolate Buttercream Frosting over top or over top and sides. Refrigerate at least one hour before cutting.

CHOCOLATE BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

- 3 squares (3 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate
- 2 tablespoons water
- 2 egg yolks
- 1-3rd cup light corn syrup
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Into a one-quart saucepan or small double-boiler top put the chocolate and water. Melt over very low direct heat or over hot (not boiling) water; cool.

In the small bowl of the electric mixer, beat the egg yolks until they begin to thicken and become lemon color.

In a very small (two or three cup) saucepan bring the corn syrup to a full boil; boil one minute. Pour very slowly over egg yolks, beating constantly until very thick and a very pale lemon color. Allow to cool.

Without washing the beater, in another small bowl, thoroughly beat the butter to soften. Add to egg yolk and syrup mixture; beat until thoroughly combined and smooth.

Add melted cooled chocolate and vanilla; beat to blend. Use as directed in Chocolate Walnut Torte recipe.

Daughter Puts Her Mother On The Spot With Vacation Offer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are both widows (in our sixties) and live in separate houses in a small town. We are very congenial, go everywhere together, enjoy each other's company, and you might say we are inseparable.

My married daughter lives in another town close by. She says I am in a rut (she is right)—that my sister and I see too much of each other and need to go our separate ways for a while. So my daughter has invited me to take a vacation with her just to get away from the same old routine—and she surely doesn't want to include my sister.

I told my daughter that I couldn't just up and go on a trip without inviting my sister because she would be so hurt and I couldn't blame her. I know how I would feel if she did that to me.

So I am on the spot. What should I do? Should I go with my daughter and hurt my sister, or stay home and hurt my daughter?

What do you think of such a friend?

INSULTED
DEAR INSULTED: I'd prefer her forthright brand of frankness to the person who tells me I'm "welcome," foregoes her favorite TV program, andresents me for it. Or, the friend who tries to entertain me with one eye on the TV.

DEAR ABBY: Can you help us get the message across to our 16-year-old daughter that it is in extremely poor taste for young people to put on a show of affection in public? I refer to the disgusting manner in which a girl will hang on a boy, and let him put his hands all over her. Our daughter walks down the street with her arm around her boyfriend's waist and vice versa. And when they drive together in an automobile, she practically sits on his lap.

Our daughter says she sees nothing wrong with it. Maybe Silhouettes, colors, and accessories all interplay to create today's fashion mood. There is something suitable for every figure, every age, every personality. It's a time for individual expression.

The Prettygirl Look seems to sum up what is in store for spring/summer 1968.

The Romantic Shape — done much closer-to-the-body. The Romantic Touch — done with fluted cuffs and hemlines. The Romantic Fabric — done with delicate prints right out of a Victorian picturebook, lots of flowers, frills and lace.

This is just a way of saying that the fashions will be more feminine this spring.

Silhouettes gently shaped close to the body with the basic shape being Fit and Flare. The garments are fitted at the bodice and flared at the hemline. We all know that fashion repeats itself, this is true this year because we are going back to the look of the 30's — softness and femininity. This look is a comeback for the waist often accepted with loose belts. Dresses will be shapelier.

The comeback of the Blouse or Shirt is fitted and feminine. Many will have high bands of lace at the throat; fitting close under the chin. Lace, ruffles, embroidery and jockits may be found on blouses; this calls for the return of the stick pins, bar pins, and antique broaches.

Suits for spring will have a softened effect, coordinated with blouses or vests. A new kind of relaxed femininity, the pleated or slightly flared skirt, is shown in the new suits. The jackets may be long or short.

The Cadet collar is the newest type of collar on jackets. This is similar to the Mao collar, higher and stands a little away from the neck, which is also popular.

The Vest Suit, vest, shirt and skirt, is making a grand entrance this spring. This is an ideal way to tie the blouse and skirt together into the Cool Chic look.

The cape, capesuit, and gathered cape will be fashion news. In some, there will be flare over flare in the little capes over miniskirts.

Shirt shifts and skimmers continue to be a favorite of girls with other than perfect figures. These are great for casual or dress-up occasions. A bright scarf at the neckline adds interest to this near-classic style.

The hemlines will continue to be short for spring. Casual skirts are worn three inches above the knee only if the legs are slim. These short hemlines are best left for the younger set. The "midi" length (mid-calf) will reappear mainly in evening or at-home clothes. Some designers show them 10 to 12 inches from the floor or about 5 inches below the knee. Hemlines on women's daytime clothes will remain above the knee for a while longer. It is predicted that by fall, they will drop a little. Don't panic! The drop will not be enough to create havoc with the clothes in your current wardrobe.

Fabrics
Sheer fabrics have come into their own this spring — voile, georgette, organdy, sometimes in prints which match a firmer fabric. Laces, ruffles, and other trims often decorate these fabrics.

The texture may be refined, and smooth such as the cotton satens and smooth knits, or it may be rough texture such as in the crepes, matelassees, piques, cords and lenos.

Dimensional is the mood of fabrics for spring. Depth comes through the strength of color playing against each other to form striking plaids, through bubbly thick and thin weaves, and through the raised plaids. This gives a high-low look.

Stripes are also up for spring — pinstripes, tattersal plaids, novelty stripes, brightly colored or darks with white.

Polyester double knits for dresses and sportswear will be a favorite choice because of easy care and the light weightness of it.

Color
Spring will be colorful again but a little toned down. Coral is the newest color but there will be lots of others just as pretty. The colors are broken down, into these categories.

1. Vivacious brights — bright pinks, yellows, oranges, greens and turquoise used in solids or prints and stripes.

2. Softened neutrals — pale grey and pale yellow will be new neutrals, along with the ever popular white, navy, bone and brown.

3. Powdery Pales — feminine look has brought with it soft pale delicate colors — pink, beige, aqua, peach and lime.

The colors are often printed into realistic flowers, swirls, delicate etchings and much softer, smaller geometrics.

It is easy to be extreme and dress in an eye-catching way but the real achievement comes in being able to select the best of today's fashions and express your own personality through your dress.

Art Can Be Dangerous When On An Expedition

By PETER MUCCINI

LONDON (AP) — Painting flowers should be a peaceful and safe pastime. But that isn't the case when the artist is Margaret Mee who has just opened an exhibition in the Tryon Galleries in London.

The flowers this blonde 58-year-old Englishwoman depicts are orchids which grow in the uncharted wildernesses of Amazonas and the Mato Grosso in Brazil.

To find them, Mrs. Mee has to go on expeditions which may last as long as three months. Her most recent flower safari was to the Pico da Neblina, Brazil's highest mountain on the border with Venezuela.

It involved a 1,500-mile journey by plane from Sao Paulo to Manaus, 15 days by motor launch up the Rio Negro, then five days by canoe up its tributary, the Rio Canabouris followed by a week of foot-slogging.

On this trip, Mrs. Mee was accompanied by an American photographer from the National Geographic magazine and a Brazilian boy.

The boy came in handy for shimmying trees to bring down prize specimens of orchids.

Mrs. Mee has gone on other expeditions alone. On those occasions she has had to rely on Christian missions for food and shelter and on the Indians when she is too far from the missions.

She is extremely fond of the Indians and says they are kind and gentle.

"I take them presents of beads," she says. "Red, white, blue and yellow are their favorite colors and they are fascinated by these colors when I squeeze them from the tubes."

Unfortunately, the Indians are fascinated by her long blonde hair. They want to stroke it and some of them would like to cut it off as a trophy.

The real hazards come from jaguars, snakes, tarantulas, scorpions, giant wasps, sharp-biting flies, malaria, torrential rains and the occasional brush with desperado gold-hunters.

Once one drunk gold-hunter broke into her tent. Mrs. Mee drew a gun on him and he left.

What does she do for a bath?

"I slip into the river and hang on to the stern of the boat," she says.

The big danger of doing one's toilet this way is receiving a fatal 600-volt shock from a giant electric eel.

"You can cross a river with a piranha in it," says Mrs. Mee. "But you have to make sure it is not the small red variety. Those are the ones which can eat an entire calf except for the bones and skin in 40 seconds."

Food becomes a problem when you're in the middle of nowhere. Mrs. Mee often lives on nothing but packet soup which she mixes with cold water and vitamin tablets.

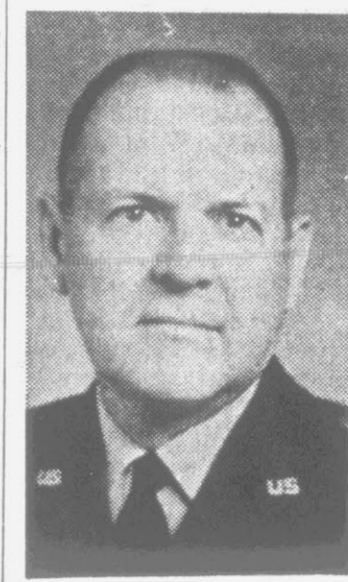

Mrs. Mee learned painting in England. At first she did landscapes and portraits but she became fascinated by the wild flowers of Brazil when she went there to live with her sister in 1952.

Her husband is a commercial artist but he does his work in Sao Paulo.

"He gets rather fed up when I go away for three months at a time," says Mrs. Mee.

Lt. Col. Carty To Give WSCS Program Monday

The chairman of the Department of Aerospace Studies at East Carolina University, Lt. Col. Douglas F. Carty, will be visiting Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Monday morning, March 18.

Lt. Col. Douglas Carty

He will speak to the Woman's Society of Christian Service at 10 a.m. during their General Meeting. He will be introduced by Mrs. Moulton B. Massey Jr., chairman of Spiritual Life, who will also give the morning prayer.

Lt. Col. Carty conducts a Thursday night prayer group in Greenville which meets in the different homes. He is a layman of St. James Methodist Church here and is conducting the Sunday morning worship services at Salem Methodist Church in Simpson at this time.

In the Air Force, Col. Carty has graduated from the Academic Instructors Course School, the Air Command and Staff School and the Air War College, all three at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, and the Special Investigations Basic and Advanced School in Washington, D. C.

In 1966 he received the Air Force Commendation Medal for "his outstanding flexibility, initiative, management techniques and exceptional leadership traits."

He has also received the George Washington Medal of Honor awarded in 1965 by the Freedom Foundation of Valley Forge, Pa., for an essay.

A native of Knoxville, Tenn., Col. Carty is a graduate of the University of Omaha (AB) where he held membership in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity. He has also studied at the University of Tennessee and the University of Maryland.

He is married to the former Mariam Rose Cutkomp of Columbus Junction, Iowa, and they have five sons.

Floral Hanging Baskets Topic For Garden Club

Mrs. Ruth Odell, from the Cappers Nursery in McLean, Va., conducted a workshop for the Lakewood Pines Garden Club.

She instructed members in the construction of floral hanging baskets. Several types of baskets were available for the members along with the necessary sphagnum moss; prepared soil, and plants.

The plants available were: browallia; petunias; sultana; vinca; coleus; begonia; ogeratum; lantana; shrimp plant; miniature snapdragon; and verbena.

The members then made hanging baskets for sale at the annual Lakewood Pines Garden Club Spring Fair to be held April 11 at the home of Mrs. J. C. Bateman.

The workshop was held at the home of Mrs. R. D. Van Veld with Mrs. George Lauter and Mrs. W. H. Woolard Jr. as co-hostesses.

Mrs. A. E. Dubber presided at a brief business session.

Mrs. Sencindiver Is Guest Speaker

BETHEL—Mrs. David Sencindiver was guest speaker for the meeting of the Round Table Book Club held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. J. Smith.

Miss Camille Staton, president, presided at a business session.

Mrs. Smith assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Dave Speir, served refreshments.

Still Honest People In Our World

In this age when, all too often, every man seems to be looking out for his own interests, it is refreshing to come across individuals who prove there are still honest and thoughtful people around.

In recent days, not one, but two such incidents locally have come to our attention.

A Daily Reflector news item told of a salesman who lost his wallet while making a phone call. Even before he reported it missing a U. S. Navy lieutenant found it. He turned it in to police, complete with the $163 it contained. The lieutenant, by the way, was passing through on his way from Norfolk to a new duty station in California.

In the second case, a marine lost his wallet in Greenville. It was found by a teen aged boy (who says teen agers are all bad?) He also turned the wallet and its $67 over to police who got it back to the owner.

There were no names in the story, and maybe it was just as well. For people do the honest thing more often than we realize, since such actions don't often become sensational.

Somewhere in Greenville there is a boy who has a clear conscious because he did the right thing.

Across the continent, there is a Navy lieutenant who stands a little taller because he was honest. Because of them all of us should know that character and honesty are not things of the past.

ECU Shares Spotlight In Nat'l Advertising

The North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development has placed a series of advertisements in The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times and other influential publications which features the state's major college basketball teams. Represented in the picture are UNC-Chapel Hill, N. C. State, Wake Forest, Davidson, Duke and East Carolina University.

The fact that ECU is featured with the state's major basketball powers is a good indication of how far the sports program has come in recent years.

East Carolina's basketball record was not among the best this year but the institution does play in the major college Southern Conference now. What is more, the ECU team gave a good accounting of itself by pushing some of the better basketball teams in the country during the season.

Now millions of people have seen East Carolina featured with three teams which were in the final top ten basketball teams this year. The exposure can only be to ECU's advantage.

Uneasy Note In Revenue Report

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — Gov. Dan Moore and other high state officials have been studying a report showing that net sales and use tax collections totaled $206,596,852 during 1967 for a gain of more than $6.6 million over the previous year.

There is a disturbing note in the detailed report from State Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton — 20 of the state's 100 counties experienced a percentage decrease, ranging up to as much as 25.5 per cent in Washington County.

Of course, sales and use tax data is a usually good barometer of business activity and economic growth or loss which is why the county-by-county and statewide figures are studied closely.

crease occurred in October when collections went up 8.25 per cent.

While Washington County experienced the sharpest drop, another relatively small coastal county, Brunswick, had the biggest percentage increase, 25.78 per cent, for the year.

Decreases Listed

Counties showing declines in collections for the year were Ashe, Beaufort, Cabarrus, Camden, Chatham, Edgecombe, Graham, Greene, Halifax, Hertford, Jackson, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Richmond, Rowan, Scotland, Swain, Washington, Wilkes and Yancey.

Most of these were small. Richmond's drop was only .002 per cent. Several others were less than one tenth of one per cent. Beaufort County experienced a 19.84 per cent drop. All others were relatively small.

By category, the greatest increase, 8.34 per cent, was in general merchandise. Furniture was up 7.51 per cent in among retail subgroups. Food was up 5.69 per cent and apparel 5.2 per cent.

Overall, gross collections from the retail group were up 4.61 per cent and use tax collections up .05 per cent, the report said.

Welcome Centers

Arrangements have been completed with the State Highway Commission and contracts have been awarded for the state's first two welcome centers.

Travel and Promotion director Bill F. Hensley says construction will begin immediately and the centers will be in operation by mid-summer.

Contracts for the two year-around centers, located on existing highway rest area sites along Interstate highways 95 and 85 near the Virginia line, totaled $146,316. The centers will be identical in construction with most of the 2,800 square feet of floor space used for reception areas where travel literature, weather information and other materials will be available to travelers.

HARRIS — ART BUCHWALD

Oregon Appeal Grows

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The clearest sign of the dramatic change inside Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's inner circle came just after the moderate Republican summit meeting in his Fifth Avenue apartment Sunday afternoon (March 10).

George Hinman, Republican National Committeeman from New York and Rockefeller's closest political advisor, conceded to one of the participants that the obvious consensus overwhelmingly favored the Governor's entering Oregon's May 28 primary. Not only that, but Hinman himself implied this might be the best course after all.

This implication connotes a startling conversion. For months, Hinman has been insisting in private that Rockefeller could wind up as nominee only if he kept out of the bruising infighting of the primaries. Even when Gov. George Romney of Michigan suddenly pulled out of the race on Feb. 28 leaving Richard M. Nixon without opposition, Hinman strongly opposed Rockefeller's challenging Nixon in Oregon. His plan was a non-candidacy feeding on high ratings in the opinion polls.

Simultaneously, John B. Wells, manager of Rockefeller's 1964 Presidential campaign, began advocating an Oregon race inside the Rockefeller camp. Whether to go to Oregon or not was thus the major question leading up to Sunday's Fifth Avenue summit meeting called by Rockefeller.

Sen. Jacob Javits of New York opened the discussion by raising some points for and many points against entering Oregon, in lawyer-like fashion. If he did enter Oregon, Javits said, the chief danger would be overconcentrating on only one small part of a national campaign.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania followed Javits in a wholly different tone. He bought the recommendations of several Republican Senators not present — Cooper and Morton of Kentucky, Hatfield of Oregon, Percy of Illinois, plus some major newspaper publishers — urging Rockefeller to go into Oregon. What's more Scott said he fully agreed.

Rockefeller replied by saying that he would much prefer to stay out of the primaries but would go into Oregon if that was the real sentiment of his supporters. His biggest worry was this: "It's hard to go into a primary without saying anything about an opponent." That is, Rockefeller feared that a campaign against Nixon might re-establish his old reputation as a party-splitter.

The response was a near-unanimous cry for Rockefeller to go into Oregon. Out of 30 present, only four did not urge Oregon and no one actively opposed it.

Some of Rockefeller's biggest boosters were sometime Rockefeller foes from New York state. Mayor John V. Lindsay made a brief impassioned plea for Rockefeller to run "for the sake of the party and the country." Former Rep. William E. Miller, Barry Goldwater's running mate, expressed gratification at being invited to his first party conclave since 1964 and urged an active Rockefeller campaign. Rep. Charles Goodell, an upstate middle-roader, called an Oregon victory essential for Rockefeller to have (Continued On Page 5)

Forces Building Up On Tax Bill

By EDMOND LEBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — After a torrent of words from President Johnson, action for an income tax increase remains on dead center in the House Ways and Means Committee.

But forces are building up that could jar it into motion through a reluctant Congress. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, who can count on solid support from his Ways and Means Committee, repeatedly in recent weeks has listed two conditions under which he might take the 10 per cent surtax proposal out of the drawer.

—An unmistakable surge of inflation threatening a runaway.

—A sharp step-up in money needs for the Vietnam fighting.

The second is the one that seems more likely to develop soon.

Capitol Hill is betting it will be asked to appropriate for some degree of U. S. manpower buildup in Vietnam — whether it is the 200,000 additional troops that have been the subject of furious speculation or a much smaller number.

And apart from any U. S. build-up, a big bill is expected for replacement and upgrading of equipment of allied forces as well as those of this country.

In combination with even a modest increase in U. S. manpower commitment, such an expenditure would jump the prospective deficit so far beyond the $20 billion mark that the basically conservative objectors to a surtax on Ways and Means probably would bow to the demand for additional revenues.

The administration so far has tried to make its case for the surtax almost entirely on economic grounds, arguing the danger of inflation and the shaking of confidence abroad in the dollar. Such arguments lack the impact that a straight appeal for a war tax would have.

There have been more contradictions among the econ-

Those Jackie-Watchers...

WASHINGTON—There has been a lot written about the China-watchers, the Kremlin-watchers and even the Johnson-watchers, but very little has been said about the Jackie-watchers, those dedicated anonymous souls charged with following every movement and interpreting every event in the life of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Nobody knows how many Jackie watchers there are, though the figure of "over 5,000" has been used time and time again.

By chance and good fortune I managed to get in the "Jackie room" of one of the largest newspaper wire services in the world. It was modeled after the Pentagon war room with a wall-to-wall relief map of the world at one end and a large balcony at the other end where the joint chief of Jackie-watchers and his staff could sit and follow Mrs. Kennedy's travels.

At the moment I arrived they were pushing a cut-out wooden model of Mrs. Kennedy along the map of Mexico toward Yucatan. A man with an earphone headset was dictating to the man working the map: "She's heading toward the ruins of Uxmal in Merida. Then she's going to the jungle of Palenque to visit the newly discovered Mayan ruins."

The joint chief was nervously smoking his cigar. "How many photographers do we have in the Yucatan?"

"One hundred and fifty," an aide said.

"We better send in another 75, to be on the safe side."

"But, chief," a lieutenant said, "that will leave us understaffed in case she decides to go to Mexico City."

"We can always send down the reserve photography unit from Los Angeles," the chief said.

Just then a man rushed in with a cable. The lieutenant read it out loud. "Holy smoke! Lord Harlech has just left his home in Wales and is believed to be heading for London."

A wooden model of Lord Harlech was pushed slowly from Wales toward the British capital.

"What do you think it means?" the aide asked excitedly.

The chief bit hard on his cigar. "Let's see. If she's going to visit the ruins at Merida in Mexico and he's on his way to London, it could mean he might be joining her here."

"In the Virgin Islands?"

"Why not? It could be their way of throwing us off. You better send 400 photographers and 200 reporters to the Caribbean just in case."

"Yes, sir."

The chief studied the map again. "Where are John John and Caroline?"

"They're still in New York at the apartment. They haven't moved in three days."

"Very suspicious," the chief said. "You better double the photographers at the apartment. And word on Princess Radziwill?"

"A Life reporter had her buying clothes at Givenchy yesterday."

"Any wedding dresses?"

"No, sir."

"I don't like it," the chief said. "I don't like it one bit. Why would Harlech go to London at this time? And why didn't Jackie go skiing at Sun Valley instead?"

An aide rushed in. "Bobby has just gone out to visit the sharecroppers in California."

The chief lit a new cigar. "It could be a diversionary tactic. We better go on red alert. If it's just a scare, it will be a good exercise for the troops; but if it's the real thing, we could make the front page of Women's Wear Daily."

Strength For Today Other Editors Saying Mr. Wilson's Courage

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
"IN THE SPIRIT"

John, the writer of the Book of Revelation, declares that he was in the spirit on the Lord's Day, and being in this state he saw a lot of things men had not seen before and heard wisdom which if heeded and followed would transform the world and end most of its misery.

The statement that he was in the spirit on the Lord's Day is a significant one. The author did not mean that he was in the spirit on this particular day after which the spirit completely left him. The Lord's Day (or the day which commemorated the resurrection of Christ) was particularly sacred to Christian believers and has come to be a time of rest, worship and spiritual refreshment.

This statement of John, that he was in the spirit on the Lord's Day, should remind us that there is something of particular significance about this first day of the week (Sunday). People of different faith put aside different days as being particularly sacred. Most branches of the Christian church, however, insist that the first day of the week (the Lord's Day) is of particular value to us as a time when we worship in the sanctuary, meet scores of acquaintances and friends who share our Christian faith, and is in general a day of rest and relaxation. It is a day of spiritual refreshment of all kinds and should be observed as such. Worship, fellowship and the pondering of truth as set forth in the spoken word are important.

(Christian Science Monitor)

In apparently considering some kind of an obligatory holddown on wages, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson is showing no little political courage. Leader of a party long dedicated to redistributing income, it is not an easy thing for Mr. Wilson to weigh a step breaking so sharply with past Labour Party policies.

Although a wage curb might well be followed by like limitations on prices, rents and dividend payments it is a holddown on the pay packet which makes the biggest impression on the average voter.

Yes, if ever there was an argument for wage and price controls in any country, that country would seem to be Britain. Although it has been said countless times before, it is worth saying again: Britain must become more competitive on the world market. And she is likely to become so only when production costs and production output come into better balance than they have been for much of the postwar period.

This balance between the two can best be achieved through ending the steady up-push of prices, which not only tends to price Britain out of its overseas market but also threatens the pound's worth.

Wage and price control in peacetime makes few friends for the government which introduces it. On the other hand, it is impossible that the seriousness of Britain's economic position has now made sufficient impression on the British public so that the latter is prepared to support such rigorous measures. If they do grant this support (and here the stand of the trade unions will be crucial), Britain can reasonably look forward to greater economic health in the years ahead.

In any event, if such controls come, they must be counted to the political courage of the Wilson government.

IRS Ends War Between States

By ELMER ROESSNER
The War Between the States II ends today. The Internal Revenue Service has announced that industrial revenue bonds issued after today will not be tax free.

The IRS is beating Congress to the punch. Several pending bills would make interest taxable retroactively to Jan. 1, 1967. The Treasury has endorsed these bills. However the IRS ruling affects only bonds issued after today.

Therefore, unless Congress takes further action, bond holders, corporations and localities will continue to enjoy the lush benefits of bonds already issued.

Other taxpayers help pay the cost of these bonds, which are issued by states and localities to finance plants for industries persuaded to locate within their boundaries. The industries eventually pay off the bonds, but because the bonds have been obligations of states and localities, they have been tax free, and thus can be sold at much lower rates than corporation bonds.

It is estimated that the Treasury loses taxes on $3.25 billion of interest this way, and this increases the burden on other taxpayers.

In a notable case, Scottsboro, Ala., sold $97 million worth of taxfree bonds to build a plant there for Revere Copper and Brass. It is estimated that Revere is saving $970 a year in interest. It would have to pay that much more interest if it had issued taxable bonds itself.

Lorain County, Ohio, had planned an $80 million bond issue for a U. S. Steel mill.

Another $30 million issue was planned for a plant for Spring Mills, Inc., near Chester, S. C.

The IRS ruling may prove a bonanza for wealthy investors, since by eliminating the tax-free feature from future industrial bonds issued by states and subdivisions, it removes pressure from Congress to make previously issued bonds taxable. That $3.25 billion of tax-free interest will continue to flow to rich investors. Sure, the poor may invest in these bonds too, but people in low tax brackets can get a better net yield from taxable corporate bonds and bank deposits.

However, there are plenty of tax-free bonds issued by states and subdivisions for the wealthy. Furthermore, these areas can still issue bonds to build roads to new industrial sites, to bring in water and sewer lines, and to surround them with parks, in hope of getting back the money to pay off bonds from larger tax collections.

The IRS ruling will equalize competition among the states for new plants and industries. Fourteen of the 50 states do not provide for industrial bonds and the supreme court has, declared its enabling act unconstitutional.

Questions, Answers On Devaluing Gold's Price

By GEORGE TAYLOR
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What happens to your pay check if the price of gold is increased? Will a car cost you more money?

These are some of the questions people ask when the talk and the headlines turn to the international gold situation.

Economists interviewed by The Associated Press provided these answers to some of the most common questions:

Q—How would a man in the street be affected by an increase in the price of gold from the present rate of $35 an ounce?

A—An increase would mean that the United States had devalued the dollar. At home, pay checks, bank accounts, the costs of domestic products, and real estate would show no change.

The dollar would buy less gold but it would continue to purchase the same amount of goods—housing, cars—as it did prior to devaluation. However, imported goods might cost more.

Q—Would anyone benefit immediately from a gold price increase?

A—Hoarders and speculators in foreign countries would reap the immediate profits if they had bought gold for $35 an ounce and sold it, at say, $70. Some economists say doubling the price would end speculative attacks on the dollar since hoarders and speculators presumably would get rid of their gold at the higher price.

Q—Could there be detrimental effects?

A—Some economists foresee a breakdown in world trade and commerce, which has been pegged to gold being worth $35 an ounce. If world trade slumps, jobs would dwindle. Over the long run an inflationary trend would develop.

Q—Why is the price of gold held at $35 an ounce?

A—This is the price at which the United States has guaranteed since 1934 to buy and sell gold. It's the keystone of international finance.

Q—Why a price increase for gold?

A—Some argue a higher price for gold would restore confidence in the dollar and produce economic expansion. It would discourage hoarding and promote gold production, some say. Boosting the price requires congressional action.

Q—Where would a price increase in gold be felt first?

A—In the field of international trade and commerce, a field remote from many people.

Q—What can a person do to protect himself in these uncertain monetary times?

A—“Probably the best thing to do would be to sit still,” said one economist. Some have sought refuge in gold mining stocks, which have increased in price recently. But this is a personal investment judgment. Advocates of a tax hike say the best way to help would be to write Congress urging the tax bill passage.

Q—Would a tax increase stem the gold flow abroad?

A—It would tend to take the steam out of inflationary pressures. It would reduce purchasing power and dampen what economists call an inflationary psychology. People expect prices to go up, so they ask for higher wages, say economists. A tax increase long has been recognized in other countries as a traditional, orthodox fiscal step by countries with balance of payments deficits. These countries, one banker said, “would say the United States is taking the right kind of medicine. It would dampen gold speculation and restore confidence in the dollar.”

Q—What touched off the current gold stampede?

A—Britain's devaluation of the pound last Nov. 18 sent tremors through the international monetary world. Faith in paper currencies, including the keystone dollar, suffered a blow. Hoarders see gold as a haven from paper currencies, especially in nations where devaluation has occurred frequently. Speculators have been betting on a rise in the gold price and gobbling up large amounts of gold. And in France, the governmental love of gold is unquestioned.

Q—Who are these hoarders and speculators?

A—Their identities are cloaked in mystery. But likely the largest single hoard is in the oil-rich Arab states. In other countries, such as India, gold is the traditional form of savings, even for dowries. In other European countries, wracked by war twice in the same generation, businessmen feel safer with some gold as a hedge.

Q—Why does the United States keep losing gold?

A—Since World War II, the United States has spent or sent abroad more dollars than foreigners have spent in this country—creating a balance of payments deficit. The Vietnam war has aggravated this deficit. Foreigners, banking on the U.S. pledge to redeem dollars for gold, have cashed in their dollars. The deficit has caused gold to flow out of the country to pay debts to nations. An additional amount of gold is lost through the United States 59 per cent share of gold used in the seven-nation London gold pool, designed to stabilize the gold price at $35.

Q—How much gold does the United States now have?

A—The regular Treasury gold stock is about $11.4 billion, lowest since 1936.

Q—How much gold have we lost recently?

A—Since Britain devalued the pound last year, the gold stock has dropped $1.475 billion.

mic indicators and the economists, and while the majority of economic experts seem to favor the tax, they are not unanimous.

There is room to argue whether the inflation already being experienced is demand inflation—supposedly most vulnerable to a tax soaking up purchasing power—or administered or coat-push inflation relatively immune to such a remedy.

As for the argument that willingness to pass the tax bill is a test of the United States' sincerity in getting its international payments in order, one member snorted:

“Can you imagine me going before the House and saying we have to pass this tax bill because European bankers say we do?”

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) Charles O'Brien went to the police this week and told them he sure wasn't dead like they said he was.

So O'Brien's house was unsealed, his car unimpounded, and his pet dog sprung from the animal shelter.

It turned out a man found dead in O'Brien's empty house last week was an itinerant who had a heart attack. O'Brien, 54, was at a rest home at the time.

Young Voters May Decide If Sen. Morse Retains Office

By GORDON G. MACNAB
Associated Press Writer

Oregonians of voting age is under 30. Duncan is a staunch supporter of the administration's role in Vietnam. Two years ago he ran for the Senate against Republican Mark O. Hatfield and the war was a major issue. Hatfield, a critic of the administration, won.

Morse, also a critic of the war, refused to campaign for Duncan.

That set the stage for this year's Democratic primary fight. Many party regulars still are nursing their anger against Morse. Many think his refusal cost the Democrats a seat in the Senate.

The campaign, even in its early stages, has had overtones of great bitterness.

Recently a top Duncan aide charged that in payment for Morse staying out of the 1966 campaign, Hatfield and the GOP promised to put no strong candidate against him this year.

Then Phil McAlmond, a political newcomer who is third man in the Morse-Duncan race, charged that Duncan people were trying to buy him off and that they were using political threats to win labor endorsement. The district attorney will look at these charges.

A Duncan leader said the charges were a hatchet job by "the Morse-Hatfield axis." Duncan has been aloof personally from this but has had some sharp words about Morse on other issues.

Through it all, Morse seemingly has been looking the other way. Morse has been talking on Vietnam and inflation and regional problems such as the plight of the lumber industry. He has been in Oregon speaking

Police Guarding 'Haunted House'

JAMNAGAR, India (AP)—Police pickets have been posted outside a house to guard "some evil spirits" residing there from human beings.

Police action followed a violent incident when people collected outside the house and threw stones at the windows in an attempt to drive out the evil spirits.

The occupants of the house have moved to avoid both the spell of the evil spirits and the stone of the people wanting to drive them out.

It is believed that a small fire in the house which no one could explain created the rumor that evil spirits had taken over.

Too Many Question U.S. Will Meet Its Pledge

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—A vast and perhaps unbridgeable credibility gap now separates the United States and its avowed policies on gold and the dollar from a large and disbelieving audience, especially in Europe. It is this disbelief about American intentions and, secondly, over whether the United States can accomplish what it intends to do, that has spurred the rush for gold. Can the United States stop inflation. Can it reduce its balance of payments deficit. Can it, or does it intend to, put its financial affairs in order. Will it or can it maintain the price of gold at $35 an ounce. Negative attitudes now seem to exist not only among speculators who hope to profit from a U.S. failure to keep a lid on the price of gold but among some bankers and economists. Time and tide may have run out. Filling the credibility gap with tension and anxiety is the feeling that the United States and other members of the gold pool must, of necessity, continue to publicly state one policy while contemplating another.

If the price of gold is to be raised, for example, the move very likely will have to be made swiftly, perhaps following a closed meeting quietly arranged among monetary managers of several gold pool nations.

No warning could be given or speculation would become even wilder, if that is possible, and disorder would ensue. Until confidence was later re-established, nobody could trust paper money.

These, then, are the elements that breed the rumors that now sweep like a storm through the gap.

Perhaps the simplest key to the complex situation is the $35 an ounce price of gold. This price is held firm by the United States, which guarantees to redeem gold for dollars.

This guarantee enables a pattern of exchange rates to be built. Without this anchor, without any set standard, it would merely be one country's word against another as too a currency's worth. Gold permits the value to be proved.

The run on the British pound sterling resulted when speculators and other nations felt it wasn't worth $2.80 in relation to the U.S. dollar. They turned their pounds into dollars and gold. And so the pound was devalued to $2.40.

Now the dollar is suspect. More to the point, suspicions have grown regarding the ability of the United States to continue redeeming dollars for gold.

If the United States cannot maintain its pledge, then the money of many nations is just paper once more. It might be valuable paper, but without a fixed gold price it might be hard to prove it. Better to have gold now than paper later, the speculators say

Group Effort On Drainage Needs

Farmers in the Chicod and Pactolus areas are continuing work on drainage and other soil conservation projects, according to Soil Conservation Service technician Willie Phillips.

A group of farmers in the Chicod Creek watershed have signed a pooling agreement application for cost-sharing assistance to aid them in drainage problems.

The farmers who have joined in the group effort to solve their problems include J. D. Dixon, W. C. Spencer, Calvin Mills, D. J. Spain Jr. and Johnnie D. Williams, Phillips said.

Another Chicod Creek watershed farmer, Phillips said, has completed all the tile drainage systems shown in his conservation plan.

Carl Arnold, Phillips noted, has also established complete cropping systems, grassed waterways and outlets for water disposal and has begun planting row crops across the land slope on his farm, all to control erosion.

Arnold irrigates his tobacco crop from a dug pit, the soil technician explained.

At Pactolus, Davenport Farms, Inc., have constructed and seeded several grassed waterways and outlets to dispose of surface water from sloping land.

Phillips said Paul Davenport Jr. is progressively developing the conservation plan for the farms.

The threatened breakdown of the international monetary system now results largely, though certainly not totally, from the inability of the United States to reduce its payments deficit and to put its domestic economy on a businesslike basis.

Intensifying this fear is a growing disbelief that the United States can or will take the harsh deflationary methods needed to bring about these ends.

The balance of payments deficit results from the United States continually spending more abroad than foreigners and their governments spend here. This causes dollar to accumulate overseas.

So long as confidence in the dollar remained high, nation's saw no need to cash dollars for gold. If the dollar were good as gold then it could be used in place of gold. Nations confidently stored their reserves in dollars.

Now dollar-holders fear they are holding a piece of paper that really isn't what the United States claims it to be. Inflation, they say, has cut the dollar's value. And so they decide to take the solid value of gold, which seems to be the bedrock on which confidence rests.

Speculators and some foreign governments now believe that the United States cannot or will not cut its spending abroad and that, conversely, it cannot induce foreigners to spend much larger sums in the United States.

And no longer do they believe that inflation is being dealt with effectively, despite all the words out of Washington. They simply don't believe.

American Team Leads War To End Smallpox

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Forty-six Americans—15 of them physicians—are waging a war aimed at wiping out smallpox in West Africa.

They have trained 6,000 Africans to help them.

And the National Communicable Disease Center—where the campaign is being mapped—says smallpox in the region will be eradicated by 1975.

Dr. Donald Millar, a 34-year-old medical doctor from Newport News, Va., heads the program which has been under way for little more than a year.

Why is the United States spending $7 million a year to try to wipe out smallpox in Africa?

Miller says there is a selfish reason, in one respect, in that the United States has not had a single case of smallpox since 1949, and it doesn't want any.

The African nations involved in the inoculation program are among three areas of the world considered principal sources of the disease. The others are India and portions of the Far East.

The smallpox program has been conducted on a regional basis among the 19 countries with the help of the United States.

Countries participating are Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Dahomey, Gabon, Gambia, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Togo, Upper Volta, Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

Smallpox claims more than 6,000 lives a year in the region.

Levine, head of the American Jewish Committee's urban affairs program, recently suggested that urban groups form a coalition to implement recommendations of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders. Levine also urged more big business aid to poverty areas and a pledge of free summer camp vacations for children in those areas.

To most Americans, that first long week of the massive Tet offensive staged by the Viet Cong throughout South Vietnam was a distant thing, something to be read about and to talk about over coffee.

But for some, those who were there, it was a terrifying reality.

One such American was Benjamin Ellington, a civil engineer stationed at Long Binh. Ellington, a native Tar Heel whose brother, Bill, is a Greenville insurance man, was in Saigon during those dark days. He never knew if he would get out alive.

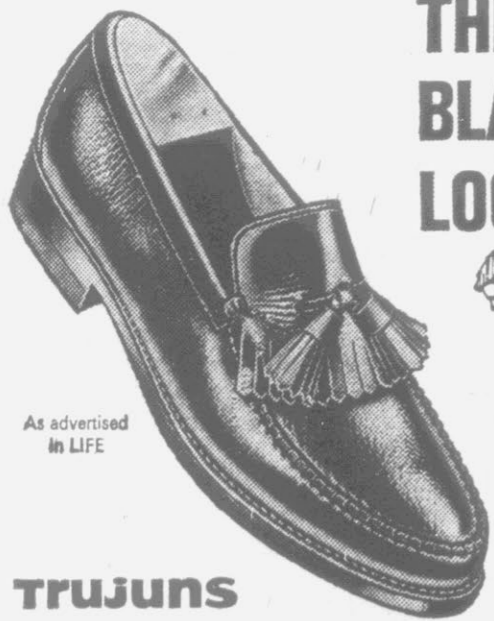

Ellington's journal of the week's events tells, in his own words, a dramatic, frightening story. Sunday in the Daily Reflector.

Less reliance on strict percentage tables and a more direct examination of the problem which confronted him might have proved highly refreshing to South, the declarer at four spades.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the queen and ace, South ruffing the third round with the deuce of spades.

A spade was led to the king and the suit was returned. East played the ten, and South—after a brief moment of indecision—put up the ace. When West showed out, declarer tried to run the heart suit by cashing the king and then crossing over to dummy's ace. He disposed of one club on the queen of hearts as East ruffed in with the queen of spades.

The king of clubs was returned to dislodge declarer's ace, and inasmuch as West retained the ten of hearts as a stopper in that suit—South was obliged to concede the setting trick at the end to East's queen of clubs.

Declarer could have assured his contract against anything short of a very bad break in hearts by taking the spade finesse. The advantage of this play becomes obvious when all hands are exposed to view. There is a sound reason for not trying to drop the queen, however, despite the fact that declarer has nine trumps and the odds slightly favor that play.

Suppose, for example, that the spade finesse should lose to a doubleton queen in West's hand. Now both opponents are out of spades, and North's eight becomes a late entry to dummy. If West shifts to a club, South wins the trick with the ace, cashes the three top hearts—discarding a club from his hand—and then ruffs a heart to establish North's long card in that suit. Dummy is reentered with the eight of spades and South's remaining club goes on the seven of hearts.

The Worry Clinic
Those Early Political Polls Can Be 'Fixed'

Note Bill's shrewd question! It is very timely during this election year. One of America's most famous pollsters has already refused to continue political polling because he charges his data were twisted and distorted. For early polls can easily be faked to help build up a weak candidate, as by the two methods below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE F-517: Bill L., aged 49, was a former student of mine at Northwestern University.

"Dr. Crane," he asked recently, "I recall that you were the Chicago representative of the Psychological Corporation while Dr. Henry C. Link was operating it.

"You told our class at that time about its very scientific nationwide, 48-hour polls on business as well as political questions.

"But is it possible for any 19-68 political polls to be faked or twisted to build up an artificial groundswell for a weak candidate?"

Yes, polls can easily be altered by one key man at the home office and thus employed as political propaganda.

During the final week, however, all polls must be rigidly honest or the polling organizations will lose face when the final ballots are counted!

But all these early polls cannot be verified against actual balloting, so they can be distorted for a price.

And this twisting can be performed by the final tabulator at the home office, even though the individual pollsters are all honest.

Two methods can be used to twist poll data.

First, special precincts can be selected that are "loaded" in favor of the weak candidate.

A leading pollster recently accused LBJ's promoters of doing this, so now that eminent American pollster has said he is withdrawing from further polling.

Second, even if the poll is performed scientifically, the final tabulation can be altered by the head man, if he so desires.

And nobody can disprove such twisted figures, since these early polls don't face the crucial test of the actual vote tally on November 5th!

When I was one of 80 American psychologists cooperating in our Brand Barometers produced by the Psychological Corporation, I was always allotted 250 interviews in Chicago alone.

These were stratified to cover 4 different economic levels. Along with the other psychologists all over America, I would then wire my data to Dr. Link, who would thus have a nationwide index within 48 hours.

And I never heard of any alteration or twisting of our scientific polls.

But I have certainly grown suspicious of some recent early political polls that try to suggest that Nelson Rockefeller is the "only" candidate capable of beating LBJ.

And that doubt increased when I saw reports that LBJ thinks Rockefeller would be the hardest GOP candidate to defeat.

Beware! When the opposition makes a statement like that, it is usually trying to persuade the rival party to nominate a very weak candidate, not a real threat.

This is customary political strategy. In fact, it would be worth far more than a secret fee of $100,000 to a pollster to help foist this sort of propaganda on the nation via a twisted early poll!

Actually, the most trustworthy polls are always those the last week!

For even a twisted early poll must then be corrected at the end! And this can easily be done merely by saying that a "sudden shift" in voter sentiment occurred during the final days of the campaign!

The authority's directors Thursday approved terms of a leasing agreement with the International Proteins Co. for a bagging and storage facility for fishmeal which will be imported from Peru.

The Peruvian fishmeal will afford farmers a saving of about $3 a ton on overland freight costs now paid for fishmeal from ports outside the state.

Another 'Spike Jones Band' Is Ready To Test Musical Testes

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The name is the same but the music has been changed to give it a rocking beat.

The musical madness of the late Spike Jones has been passed on to his namesake son, a self-assured 19-year-old who hopes to cater to today's diverse musical tastes.

"Naturally I get compared to my dad," says Spike Jr., "but I'm obviously not like him. I expect to play about two-thirds in his comedy style and one-third of my own. It's not a hard-rock. Not that I don't like hard-rock; it's groovy, but it's just not my bag, to coin a phrase."

Young Spike is hunting for his own bag, and he leaves soon for some engagements in Canada to try out his new organization. He may well be the only bandleader who does his schoolwork on the road. "I'm going nights to Santa Monica City College," he explained, "and I work it out with the teachers when I have to go out of town. They give me the advance assignments and I keep up with the course while I'm traveling."

The elder Spike made a good thing of his School of Musical Depreciation for 20 years. He gave differing versions of how he got the idea for his slam-bang style. One story was that he hit the wrong note on the chimes while playing drums on the Bing Crosby radio show; the clincher caused guffaws.

In our last interview, Spike gave another account: He saw the comic possibilities with music when Igor Stravinsky walked across a concert stage with squeaky shoes. Whatever the inspiration, he went on to earn a fortune with music punctuated by pistol shots and irreverent versions of "Cocktails for Two," "Chloe," "Holiday for Strings," etc.

Although the field did well for him, Spike didn't raise his boy to be a musician.

"Dad was set against my following his footsteps," says young Spike. "He wanted me to be a lawyer. But when he got sick at Harrah's Lake Tahoe in 1965, I went up to take over the band; I knew all the routines by heart, so that was no problem. Later dad saw me do a couple of engagements, and he was pleased and happy with how I handled myself."

His father died in May 1965, and Spike Jr., fulfilled a couple of the band's engagements. Then he returned to graduate from Beverly Hills High School.

He has been organizing a new band, and he explained his reasoning: "If I tried to lead my dad's old band, it would look strange—I look even younger than 19. So I've put together a group of musicians who range from 19 to 23. There are seven of them; I found out it was too expensive to travel with 12. I won't use any brass unless we play someplace where they have a house band."

Spike has made one attempt at the recording field, but it was abortive: "I did a number for Viva Records about the so-called fad of scraping banana peels, baking the stuff in an oven and smoking the result to get high. It was a lot of nonsense, of course, and the song was aimed at putting it down. But the radio stations thought we were serious and they banned the record."

"It's not easy to be funny nowadays. But I'm still going to try."

Known To All, Yet Known By Few Wayne McLawhorn Works Alone

By GINO M. ARESSINIO
In the wee small hours of the morning, when most of the world is fast asleep, Wayne McLawhorn—one of Greenville's nocturnal sweepers—isn't.

McLawhorn, 205 N. Woodlawn Ave., has been sweeping Greenville's streets for almost two years. He enjoys his job and "wouldn't work at any other."

McLawhorn is known by all, yet known by none. A recent poll taken downtown by a student at East Carolina shows that almost everyone has heard or seen him driving his huge machine at night. But less than one percent know his name.

Even City Manager Harry E. Hagerty admits not knowing the sweeper's name, perhaps because of Greenville's many employees. Nevertheless, Hagerty is ever aware of the end-products of McLawhorn's task.

"The streets are cleaned at night," says Hagerty, "because there are fewer cars to go around. And with 128 miles of streets to be cleaned, that's a difficult task."

McLawhorn operates a huge machine, shaped somewhat like a cash register. At first sight it looks like the monster in the movie "Dr. No." And in the darkness of night, the rumbling machine could sound ominous. But with closer inspection all fright is dispelled, as it lazily creeps along the curb.

"The sweeper is called a 'Street King,'" says McLawhorn, "because it is the biggest made. It gathers the dirt from the streets, and I deposit that dirt on a particular side street. Then someone picks up the different piles in the morning."

Department of Sanitation Director C.K. Beatty acknowledges the "hard job" and "good job" done by McLawhorn. Beatty attests to the effectiveness of the machine also, and the subsequent sustaining of Greenville's streets.

If it were not for the sweepers, says Beatty, the job "would have to be done by hand. And Greenville couldn't hire enough people to take the place of the machines."

Solitary Job
McLawhorn's job is solitary. The darkness of the cab suggests a remote-controlled monstrosity, gliding suspiciously along the bleak and barren streets of town. But McLawhorn is really never alone.

"Who hasn't heard the giant brushes at night scraping the streets and kicking empty beer cans around?" asks Donald Snyder, a student at ECU. "Why it's come to the point where I anticipate the sound of the brushes."

"And that big machine has me wondering about a lot of things," adds Snyder. "Take, for example, the people who leave their cars at night on the streets instead of in their driveways. They make it virtually impossible for the phantom cleaner to do his job."

McLawhorn likes the name "phantom cleaner," and even has a nickname for his machine. "I call my machine Sweetheart," he says, "because the steady whir of the brushes sounds almost like a voice in the stillness of the night."

McLawhorn is proud of Sweetheart, and admits "pampering it. But he does not like for anyone else to drive it. "She's a complicated mechanism," he says. "And someone else might not know quite how to handle her."

Awareness of McLawhorn and his machine ranges from freshman to president at ECU. "He's not real noisy," opines President Leo Jenkins. "And he goes about his job bothering no one." Jenkins notices the effectiveness of the cleaning "especially on weekends," because there are no students' cars there "to hide the dirt."

The "phantom cleaner" is in favor of alternate-side parking at night, for he feels such a ruling would facilitate and improve cleaning. "Sometimes I might have to miss most of a block because of the cars parked there," he says.

McLawhorn has a strange job, the working hours never paralleling those of the people who so hurriedly move about their own affairs. And the nights belong to him—to he who rides so majestically above the city's streets in his mechanical cleaner.

"You'd be surprised at some of the things that happen so late at night," observes McLawhorn. "But the funniest things are the drunks staggering home from parties and clubs. I never get out of the cab though, because something could happen that might not be very funny to me."

Can Move Quickly
McLawhorn drives the machine at about seven miles per hour. But it is capable of speeds up to 25 mph. "I can move pretty quickly in my machine because the brushes are in the back," he explains. "The old machines have brushes in front and vision is obscured."

His only complaint stems from the position of the brushes. "Since the tires are up front, glass can get in there pretty easily. Small pieces don't bother the thick tires, but jagged bottles can go right through them."

Although he works at night, he has no complaints of missing social life because he takes advantage of his every-other Saturday off. "My wife and I can see a movie, visit or entertain friends, or do what we want. And my wife doesn't mind because the job comes first to both of us."

The unheralded job done by McLawhorn has gone further in recognition throughout Greenville than he might assume. The Phantom Cleaner and Sweetheart have inspired this poem by one ECU student:

"He's the solitary reaper.
Yes, that's what his other name is.
He's the solitary sweeper.
Yes, that's what his only game is.

By the moonlight he forbears,
While the world has lost its cares
To the soft and tender dream-land of the night.

But when morning does arrive,
And the crowds become alive—
He's to bed, with no worries near in sight."

Shopkeeper, university president, college student, Greenville's housewife—regardless of role or position: the Phantom Cleaner is at least appreciated, if not known personally.

"Some people enjoy sleeping during my working hours, some party, and some do whatever they do. But I enjoy doing my job," concludes the Phantom Cleaner.

Gardner Says He Is For Nixon

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Jim Gardner, R-N.C., has made it clear he is a supporter of Richard Nixon for the GOP presidential nomination.

Gardner, a Republican candidate for governor and a delegate to the GOP National Convention, said Nixon demonstrated in the New Hampshire primary he will win the nomination.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Richard Nixon has the experience, knowledge and ability to lead our nation at this critical time," Gardner said.

"Only through his presidency will we remain the strongest nation in the free world."

Previously Gardner had declined to state specifically that he favored Nixon although he signed a petition which urged Nixon to run.

Meanwhile, Gardner was campaigning in western North Carolina. He told a GOP rally at Brevard that he will join with 130 other Congressmen Monday in calling for a "thorough investigation" of the entire Vietnam situation. He said the group included both Democrats and Republicans.

"Vietnam is in worse condition now than it was in 1964," Gardner declared. He said President Johnson has had almost eight years to do something about the situation.

Klansman Freed In Crossburning In Concord Case

CONCORD, N. C. (AP)—Ronald Lee Mullis, a Ku Klux Klansman, was acquitted in Cabarrus County Recorder's Court Thursday of a charge of burning a cross in the yard of a Negro family.

The all white jury returned its verdict after two hours of deliberation and the 29-year-old Concord man quietly left the courtroom with his attorney, Webster Medlin of Concord.

Mullis and two other Concord men had been charged with burning a cross in 1966 at the home of Frederic Bost of Concord. Judge R. L. Warren freed the other two, Homer D. Blackwelder, 50, and Donald P. Stewart Jr. on Wednesday for lack of evidence.

At the time of the alleged cross-burning, Bost's children were the only Negroes enrolled at a previously all-white elementary school.

Hawkins Assails Teachers' Test

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Reginald Hawkins, Charlotte Negro dentist who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, says the national teachers examination which Tar Heel teachers are required to take is a scheme to get rid of Negro teachers.

In a speech Thursday to students and faculty of St. Augustine's College, Hawkins urged the "future teachers to raise sand about this teachers' exam."

"I'm for more money for the schools and I think great stress should be put on the pre-kindergarten, kindergarten and elementary levels," he said.

Hawkins asserted that "we have to raise taxes to raise salaries. What a lie to say otherwise." He apparently was referring to statements by candidates Mel Broughton and Lt. Gov. Bob Scott that teacher salaries could be raised without a tax increase.

"But I'm for taking the taxes off the real estate and food and putting it on the luxuries," Hawkins declared.

Hitting at the present state administration, Hawkins said, "You can't say any longer 'thank God I'm not from Mississippi,' because Mississippi is doing better than we are." He noted that a number of Negroes had been elected to public office in Mississippi.

Stickley Repeats East Neglected

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Jack Stickley, Republican candidate for governor, says eastern North Carolina is a section of the state which has been "betrayed and neglected by one party and ignored by the other."

Addressing a Constitution Day gathering, the Charlotte textile broker said Thursday night, "Frankly, I am astounded by the untapped resources and fantastic potential of eastern North Carolina. I am dismayed by its wasted opportunities. I am appalled by the neglect of the state government."

He cited what he termed "the crying demand for the development of a feed and seed mill industry with adequate warehouses and storage facilities" to move grain through North Carolina ports.

A Green Wave Rolls Over The Land This Weekend

By ED DENNEHY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A green wave rolls across the land this weekend when the Irish and the honorary Irish salute St. Patrick with high-spirited parades and parties.

The bagpipes will skirl and the drumsticks will twirl as the Kevins, Brians and Mikes—joined by Tonys, Abes, Angelos and Maxies—turn out for Magonus Sucatus Patricius. That was the saint's real name.

He was born in Britain when it was part of the Roman Empire. Patrick's father, Calpornius, served the emperor as a decurion, a provincial official.

After being ordained in France, Patrick spent his lifetime converting the Irish to Christianity from the pagan practices of the Druids. He died in Ireland on March 17 in the year 461.

Some of the offbeat plans for the weekend: The Chicago River will be dyed green. Green water will flow in the city's Civic Center fountain. Niagara Falls will be bathed in green light.

Nassau County rink in Hewlett, N.Y., has green ice and Irish music ready for skaters. San Francisco's Mayor Joseph Alioto, the son of Italian immigrants, has presented Carmel O'Leary, Irish vice consul in that city, with a book that asserts the Irish migrated from Italy.

Rep. Francis J. Lynch wants to convert the Irish to the Pennsylvania Legislature to declare St. Patrick's Day a legal holiday like Washington's Birthday.

John F. Kennedy Boulevard will be included in the route of the parade in Philadelphia.

New York's parade up Fifth Avenue Saturday remains one of the nation's biggest. An Irish mayor who attended it a few years ago was asked if they had anything like it in Ireland.

"No," he replied. "Sure where would we put it?"

And as the Clancys, Kellys, Callahans and Shapiros celebrate, this toast will be heard more than once:

"May you be in Heaven Half an hour before The devil knows you're dead!"

Duke Rolls To Easy Victory

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Peter's Peacocks, a movie-making flop in last year's National Invitation Basketball Tournament, have come up with a 1968 hit made certain by a new star, Elnardo Webster.

Call it an Oscar, or an Emmy or a most valuable player performance, they all fit the slender 6-foot-5 forward whose 51 points almost single-handedly eliminated Marshall 102-93 in double overtime Thursday night.

In contrast, 10th-ranked Duke's 97-81 breeze over Oklahoma City in the nightcap of the opening first-round doubleheader at the new Madison Square Garden bordered on boredom for a drained crowd of 17,602.

The racehorse, rough and tumble opener between two of the nation's high-scoring, but overlooked teams stole the show, living up to advance notices.

More important to the Peacocks, who advanced to Monday's quarter-finals against Duke, it served to wipe out the stigma of last year's humiliating 103-58 loss to Southern Illinois in the first round.

For a while, it looked like another 1967 role for St. Peter's, which has never passed the first round in three other NIT appearances. The Jersey City, N.J., team went from a 27-22 lead to a 47-31 deficit as the taller Thundering Herd took control of the boards and the scoring.

It was 51-38 at the half and 57-42 before Pete O'Dea and Webster, a Jersey City native, led the Peacocks on a string of 16 straight points. Four baskets by the 6-5 Webster and one by O'Dea, who finished with 25 points, in the last 3½ minutes forced Marshall to come from behind to tie 83-all on George Stone's layup with 43 seconds left in regulation play.

The Herd missed two jumpers in the final seconds that would have won and then Webster, a one-man show with two regulars fouled out, scored all six St. Peter's points in the first overtime.

Still, Marshall had another chance to win, but missed another last second jump. It was the Herd's last chance as Webster pumped in three baskets at the start of the second extra period for a 95-91 lead.

Duke, 22-5, one of the tourney favorites, led by third-team

All-American Mike Lewis, squashed Oklahoma City in the opening minutes. The 6-7, 225-pound center and Joe Kennedy split 12 points as the Blue Devils raced to a 17-4 lead and were never threatened.

The 1969 U.S. Open will be played at the Champions Golf Club in Houston.

Rose Trackmen Second In Meet

Rose High School's thinclads held a pre-season practice meet with Wilson and Kinston yesterday, and came away with second place and a strong showing.

Coach Denard Harris expressed pleasure with the workout, and felt that the Phantoms could be on their way to defending their conference championship. He noted that work had been concentrated on the running events, and now work is necessary in the field events to round out the team. He said Wilson's strength in the field was the difference in the meet. Wilson scored 56 points, while Rose had 45 and Kinston had 36.

Rose won two events. Richard Tucker took first in the shot with a toss of 45-3, while David Harrington was fourth with 40-1½. The Phantoms also won the mile relay in 3:51.4. Members of the unit were Cliff Edwards, Josh Weeks, Danny Stapleton and Steve Reid.

Other Rose finishers were: Kyle Hodges, fourth in long jump, 18-0; Tucker, second in discus, 115-7; Greg Williams, second in high jump, 5-5; Edwards, second in pole vault, 9-9; Tim Foley, second in high hurdles, 16.45; Harrison Gaskins, second in 100-dash, 10.95; Williams, fourth in 100, 10.97; Reid, second in mile, 5:12; Ed Porter, Don Taylor, Linwood Ferguson, Ron Taylor, second in 880 relay, 1:41.1; Stapleton, third in 440, 56.1; Williams, fourth in 440, 56.2; Vic Stanfield, second in 880, 2:09; Byron Brown, third in 880, 2:13; Foley, third in 220, 25.0; Williams, fourth in 220, 25.15.

The Phantoms officially open their season next Thursday, traveling to meet 4-A Jacksonville.

Student-Faculty Game Is Tonight

The annual Senior-Faculty Basketball Games will be held tonight at Rose High School, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The senior girls will meet members of the women's faculty in the open, with the senior boys taking on the men's faculty members in the second game.

Expected to play for the men are: Chief Cleetwood; Tricky Ed Warren, Shotgun Phillips, Dunk Best, Pickpocket Harris, Flash Cotton, Hook West, Block Saunders, Oscar Roberson, Dribble Arledge and outstanding student teachers.

The games annually benefit the Foreign Exchange Student Program.

Foley Signs Grant At State

Tim Foley, outstanding football player at Rose High School, has signed a grant-in-aid with North Carolina State University, it was announced today.

Foley, who was named to the All-East and All-Conference teams, was the leading scorer and leading ground gainer for the Phantoms last year.

Winning Streaks Tested In Regional Cage Games

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Houston and St. Bonaventure, the only unbeaten major college basketball teams in the country risk their winning streaks as the NCAA national championship tournament resumes tonight. Both face stern tasks.

The top-ranked Houston Cougars, 29-0, go against ninth-ranked Louisville, 20-6, in the Midwest regionals at Wichita, Kan. St. Bonaventure, 23-0 and third-ranked nationally, faces the No. 4 North Carolina Tar Heels, 25-3, in the East Regionals at Raleigh, N.C.

Individual duels give these games added lustre and make them stand out over the other six second-round contests—Columbia-Davidson, Ohio State-East Tennessee, Kentucky-Marquette, UCLA-New Mexico State, Texas Christian-Kansas State and New Mexico-Santa Clara.

Elvin Hayes, Houston's Big E, is pitted against Louisville's Wesley Unseed in a matchup of All-Americans. Another All-American, Larry Miller of North Carolina, faces Bob Lanier of St. Bonaventure, who made the All-American second team as a soph.

Duke, 10th ranked nationally and the only team in The Associated Press Top Ten not in the NCAA tourney, scored an impressive 97-81 victory over Oklahoma City Thursday night in the opening of the National Invitation Tournament. In the other first-round NIT game at New York's Madison Square Garden, St. Peter's beat Marshall 102-93 in two overtimes.

Elnardo Webster scored 51 points including seven in the second overtime, to pace St. Peter's. Mike Lewis led Duke with 22 points.

Prime interest in the NCAA West regionals at Albuquerque, N.M., is focused on Lew Alcindor, UCLA's two-time All-American. He is expected to lead the Bruins in a bid to retain their national title.

Kentucky's showing against Marquette is the headline in the Midwest regional at Lexington, Ky. Adolph Rupp, Kentucky's coach, who holds the all-time career record of 781 victories, is after an unprecedented fifth national title.

This is the complete schedule for tonight:

At Raleigh, N.C.—Columbia, 22-4, vs. Davidson, 23-4, and St. Bonaventure, 23-0, vs. North Carolina 25-3.

At Lexington, Ky.—Ohio State, 18-7, vs. East Tennessee, 19-8, and Kentucky, 21-4, vs.

Marquette, 22-5.

At Evansville, Ind.—NCAA College Division final—Kentucky Wesleyan, 27-3, vs. Indiana State, 23-7.

At Kansas City, NAIA semifinals—Central, Ohio, State vs. Westminster, Pa., and Fairmont, W. Va., vs. Oshkosh, Wis., State.

Kentucky Wesleyan defeated Ashland, Ohio, 45-32 and Indiana State beat Trinity, Tex., 77-67 in the semis of the NCAA College Division tourney Thursday night.

In the NAIA quarter-finals, Central State whipped Central Washington 66-47, Westminster vanquished Eastern Michigan 92-84, Fairmont overcame Dickinson, N.D., 86-81 and Oshkosh edged Drury, 57-55.

Ryun To Test Two-Mile Race

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Gerry Lindgren of Washington State faces the task of getting psyched up for fabulous Jim Ryun in the NCAA indoor track and field meet.

Ryun, the nation's top Olympic hope at 1,500 and 800 meters, is skipping the NCAA 880-yard run in which Villanova's Dave Patrick upset him last year.

Instead, the University of Kansas ace will compete against defending champion Lindgren in tonight's two-mile run and will shoot for his second straight mile title Saturday afternoon.

In an 11th-hour guessing game, Kansas Coach Bob Timmons finally scratched Ryun from the 880.

Patrick, whose Villanova squad is favored with Kansas to give defending champion Southern California a tough battle for the team title, expressed some disappointment in not getting another shot at Ryun.

Although Ryun holds the outdoor world record at 880, the mile and 1,500 meters, he bowed to Patrick in the 1967 NCAA half-mile as the Villanova star ran him into the boards in a record 1:48.9.

Bench Strength May Hold Key To Survival In Regionals At Raleigh

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Bench strength may be the key to night when unbeaten St. Bonaventure plays North Carolina and Davidson pits a 13-game winning streak against Columbia in the NCAA basketball Eastern Regionals.

The four contenders are among the nation's 10 top teams, with St. Bonaventure ranked third in the final Associated Press collegiate poll.

A capacity crowd of 12,400 was expected in Reynolds Coliseum for the starting game at 7:07 p.m. between Ivy League champion Columbia (22-4) and Davidson (23-4). Atlantic Coast Conference champion North Carolina (25-3) plays St. Bonaventure (23-0) at 9:07 p.m. The last tickets were sold earlier this week. The games will be televised regionally.

Two games will be played Saturday night. The losers tonight will meet in a consolation game starting at 6:37 p.m. The winners play at 8:37 p.m. for the right to represent the East at Los Angeles where the national championship will be decided March 22-23.

Fourth ranked North Carolina will offer perhaps the strongest test St. Bonaventure has faced this season. The Bonnies have depended chiefly on five starters while North Carolina has good reserve strength.

Bench strength also has been a factor in Davidson's success. Coach Lefty Driesell calls this "the best depth I've had for tournament play."

St. Bonaventure Coach Larry Weise said of North Carolina,

"They have size and strength and are very impressive." All-American Larry Miller, who has been averaging 20.9 points per game, has led North Carolina's attack. Earlier this week he was the outstanding player in the ACC for the second year in a row.

Bob Lanier, 6-11, 265-pounder, and senior Bill Butler, are the one-two punch for St. Bonaventure which uses a 1-2-2 zone defense.

Seven-foot Dave Newman and Sophomores Jim McMillian and Heyward Dotson have made seventh ranked Columbia tough. McMillian, highest scoring soph in Columbia history, grew up in Raeford, N.C., and moved to Brooklyn, N.Y., when he was 14. He has been scoring nearly 23 points a game.

This marks the first time eight ranked Davidson has played Columbia. Davidson assistant Coach Jerry Conboy scouted the Lions' 83-69 victory over Lasalle last week and said, "We think we'll have our hands full."

Davidson has a balanced attack. Five players have averaged scoring in double figures. Four of them — Mike Malloy, Doug Cook, Jerry Kroll and Wayne Huckel — are starters. The other, Rodney Knowles, is a top reserve.

'New' Cincinnati Team Expects To Challenge For The Pennant

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — If Dave Bristol wanted to be an alibi artist he could have claimed the pennant in the Blue Cross League last season. The Cincinnati Reds had so many hospital cases they almost bought their own ambulance.

On June 18 when the club finally fell out of first place, Bristol had only 17 active players. "That's all ancient history," said the scrappy skipper of the Reds, at 33 the youngest manager in the majors. "Let's not shed any tears about what happened last year. The Green Bay Packers lose guys and go ahead and win it anyhow."

Just for the record, it should be noted that Leo Cardenas, Pete Rose, Tommy Helms, Jim Maloney, Deron Johnson, Bill McCool, Deron Johnson, Tommv Harper and Ted Abernathy all spent time on the iodine list.

The injuries usually came in pairs. The loss of Cardenas, the all-important regular shortstop, for 54 games with a broken left hand was the blow that hurt most.

Despite the series of misfortunes that forced Bristol to juggle his infield, outfield and pitching staff, the Reds finished 12 games over .500 at 87-75 and were fourth, only four games out of second and 14½ back of the Cardinals.

No club in baseball made as many player changes as the Reds during the winter as General Manager Bob Howsam shuffled the roster and shook up the front office.

Deron Johnson went to Atlanta, Art Shamsky to the New York Mets, Tommy Harper to Cleveland, Floyd Robinson and Darrell Osteen to Oakland, Sammy Ellis to the California Angels and Johnny Edwards to St. Louis.

In return, the Reds got Mack Jones and Jim Beauchamp from the Braves, Bob Johnson from the Mets, Fred Whitfield and George Culver from the Indians, Ron Tompkins from the A's, Bill Kelo and Jorge Rubio from the Angels and Pat Corrales and Jimmy Williams from the Cards.

The most important rookie in the Reds' camp is Johnny Bench, a 20-year-old catcher who hit 23 home runs but batted only .259 for Buffalo last season. "Bench looks like a real good kid," said Bristol. "He has the hands, the strong arm and knows how to handle pitchers."

Bench had moved into the No. 1 job before Edwards was traded to the Cards. If he comes through as expected, Don Pavlich will be his backup man.

The infield is set with Lee May, a fine 1967 rookie, at first base, Helms at second, Cardenas at short and Tony Perez, the All-Star game home run hero, at third base. Perez led the Reds with 26 homers and 102 runs batted in last year.

The hottest hitter of the spring has been Beauchamp, still on a minor league roster but apparently recovered from his old shoulder trouble.

"We were predominantly a right-handed hitting club," said Bristol. "That was the reason for some of our deals. Now we have added left-handed hitters like Jones, Whitfield and Raudman. Kelo, Culver and Tompkins give us more depth to our pitching staff."

The four regulars will be Jim Maloney (15-11), Milt Pappas (16-13), Mel Queen (14-8) and Gary Nolan (14-8). The fifth starter will come from Billy McCool (3-7), Gerry Arrigo (6-6), Culver (7-3 with Cleveland), Tompkins (10-9 at Vancouver) and John Tsitouris (17-7 at San Diego).

The four starters are righthanders so Bristol would like to come up with a southpaw for No. 5. That would mean McCool, a reformer relief man, or Arrigo.

Ted Abernathy (6-3), the submarine ball-throwing veteran, is the bullpen ace. Kelo (5-3 with the Angels) should ease his burden. Abernathy was in 70 games although he missed time due to an injury in May.

Don Nottbart (0-3), Bob Lee (3-3) and possibly left-handed Ted Davidson (1-0), who missed most of last year due to shooting incident in spring training, are fighting for a job.

The Reds figure to be an important pennant factor, ready to move up if the Cardinals falter.

lead at 66 before they were bumped out.

Southpaw Bob Charles of New Zealand and comeback-bidding Bruce Devlin of Australia used sharp putting to cut four strokes off par along with little Deane Beman, surging Tom Weiskopf and surprising Don Massengale.

Four more players—Bert Yancey, John Lotz, Bob Murphy and Lee Trevino—were tied at 69, with Ken Venturi, Gay Brewer and Gardner Dickinson among the 14 players shooting 70s.

Nicklaus, Barber Tie For Golf Lead

By RON SPEER
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Challengers in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament may scoff, but Jack Nicklaus—the king of the fairway belters—is having trouble with his driver.

"I'm not hooking or slicing, I'm just striking the ball off the wrong way," said Nicklaus. "I got a new driver before last week's Florida Open, and I haven't found out how to direct it yet."

Nicklaus still managed to take a share of the lead into today's second round after shooting a 67 to tie Miller Barber in Thursday's opener.

Nicklaus said he wasn't complaining, however, "because it is silly to say how bad I drove it and how many putts I missed and still come in with a 67."

The Ohio strongman salvaged a five-under-par round with some lucky bounces and great iron play, and hit 17 greens in regulation strokes.

Barber tied Nicklaus' score and 41 other players broke par as the flashy field started scrambling for the $23,000 first prize payoff.

The fast finish by Nicklaus and Barber just before dusk broke open one of the biggest logjams of the year. Five players were deadlocked for the

Northeastern Loop Opens Baseball Today

With the thud of basketballs pounding on the hard court just about to fade away, the crack of bat takes over the spotlight in the Northeastern Conference. The 1968 baseball season opens today on five fronts and the man the ten conference coaches are now looking for is the weatherman hoping for something that resembles baseball weather.

The Kinston Red Devils are not only the defending conference champions, they are the defending Class 3A champions so coach Paul Jones has a big season to look forward to hoping for a repeat of last year's success story. According to the coaches in pre-season prognostications, the Red Devils are again rated one of the threats for the title. Only one coach did not list Kinston in the top three for the upcoming season.

Kinston opens up its defense of the title by visiting the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets of coach Buck Jolly. Other games will find New Bern at Roanoke Rapids, West Carteret at East Carteret, Rose High at Tarboro and Washington at Havelock.

Each club will play an 18 game schedule with the usual Tuesday and Friday games. Some of the clubs will play at night but most of the teams will stick to the afternoon encounters.

Here is a capsule review of prospects of six of the contenders for the upcoming season:

KINSTON: Coach Paul Jones lost some valuable ball players, notably pitcher Leo Hart and catcher Dwight Buck, but no one is crying tears over what he has back for his 1968 edition. Harvey Hill, who pitched and gained valuable experience, is back together with Greg Winstette, both righthanders to anchor a pitching staff. Jones has three newcomers to strengthen his staff in Mike Edwards, Reid Best and Gary Emory.

Lew Paylor returns to take care of the catching chores and an entire veteran infield returns in Donald White at first, Allen Sasser at second, Mickey Thigpen at short and converted outfielder Worth Heath at third with veteran Tommy Parker returning to the outfield together with Tony Hill and Doug Adams. Coach Jones picks West Carteret, Rose and Washington as top threats for the title.

ROSE HIGH: New coach Russ Cotton takes over for Bud Phillips this year and has righthander Mike Aldridge and southpaw Russ Smith as openers for his pitching staff and the veteran Russ Cayton back to do the catching. Righthander Lee Gault has looked good in pre-season practice for mound work. Infielders returning include second baseman Stuart Jones and Billy Clark, shortstop David Hahn and third baseman Ken Beamon while Joe West returns to the outfield.

Cotton looks for newcomers Ronnie Leggett at third and Al Gurganus in the outfield to help out. The Phantoms finished second last year and hope to move up a notch. Cotton said, "Being new in the conference I don't know about the strength of the other teams but I understand West Carteret and Kinston should be tough."

WEST CARTERET: The Patriots finished fourth last year with an 11-7 record and coach Gannon Talbot has a host of returnees to keep the Patriots in contention. Pitchers back include John Turnage, Bruce Mames and Mike Bradshaw, all righthanders with John Thompson back behind the plate. Infielders returning include first baseman Chris Morrison, second baseman Donald Leatherman, shortstop Neal Smith and third baseman Mike Murdock and outfielders Phil Moran, Jeff Stamps, Dewey Willis and Pat Gorman. Newcomers who have impressed Talbot are pitcher Robert Davenport, catchers Rodney Garner and Mike Garner and outfielders Robert Hill and Tommy Hunter. Coach Talbot likes Rose, Kinston and New Bern as top teams.

NEW BERN: The Bears under coach Bob Vestal hope to improve their 10-8 record of last year and depth in pitching talent to begin with this year.

Lefthander Tony Salem and righthanders O. A. Adams, Ray Dunn, Benny Williams and Billy Farmer return along with catcher Richard Stillely, infielders Scott Davenport at first, Zoot Sanders at second and Larry Daniels at third and outfielders Dickie Tuttle, Buzzy Gathercole and Billy Albritton. Chuck Mohr, a big righthander, has been impressive in the pitching department. Vestal lists West Carteret, Rose and Washington as contenders for the title.

EAST CARTERET: The Marines wound up with a 3-14 record last year in ninth place and have a good nucleus returning to improve it. Two righthanders Vernon Andrews and Gary Lewis and lefthander Al Lewis are back as starters with Bob Austin and John Dickinson back of the plate. Third baseman Kent Hassell, first baseman Paul Damren, second baseman Chris Chappel and utility man Bruce Gilken are back while outfielders Fred Nelson in center and Kenny Windley in left anchor the outfield. Coach John Hamilton looks for newcomers Dallas Arthur and Don Hadder as pitchers, Alton Best at short and Jim Lewis at third and catcher Joel Hancock along with utility man Manely Gaskill to help out. He also lists Kinston, Rose and West Carteret as the top three teams.

TARORO: New coach Bobby Cooley is just getting acquainted with his team as well as the league in his new role at Tarboro. The Tigers have lefthander Bo Robinson and righthander Billy Holland back on the mound with Clint Davenport as catcher. David Norris returns at shortstop and Tim Roundtree at second while Almond Stallings in right and Darny Worrells in left are filling two positions. Cooley said in his early report he hadn't had time to evaluate his newcomers because of lack of practice sessions but also looks for Kinston and West Carteret as title contenders.

The rest of the coaches apparently are still looking at their prospects for the upcoming season which should produce many thrills. It again looks like Kinston with Rose and West Carteret supplying the top competition for the championship for 1968.

The church nursery will be open each night. The pastor of the local church is the Rev. John C. Moran.

Airliner Helped Private Plane

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — With 34 passengers watching, an Ozark Air Lines pilot played nurse maid to a single-engine plane that was low on fuel and helped it land Thursday night in a plowed field near Bloomington, in central Illinois.

Capt. Earl Campbell of St. Charles, Mo., pilot of the twin-engine Ozark plane, responded to radio calls for help and guided the unidentified pilot of the Piper Cherokee to a plowed field. The light plane was brought down under the landing lights of the Ozark plane which then continued to its scheduled landing at Springfield, Ill.

The U.S. Government printing Office was authorized by a joint Congressional resolution in 1860.

Armed Services Committee will refuse to authorize money to produce trouble-plagued F111B warplanes for the Navy.

Instead, the sources said, they anticipate the powerful committee will substitute funds to develop an alternative to the Navy's F111B, currently overweight and expensive.

Such a move would not grieve senior Navy admirals whose feelings on the F111B range from misgivings to opposition.

The sources, familiar with the course of closed hearings, said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and other committee members appear to be trying to force the issue.

The committee may act, it was said, even before Navy engineers report early next month on four contractor proposals for new planes to replace the F111B.

—Navy version of the long controversial TFX.

There are indications these engineering studies will be vitally important in any Navy recommendation to top defense officials. What will happen when the Navy recommendations reach top civilian levels in the Defense Department is an open question.

Robert S. McNamara, who as defense secretary forced the F111s on both the Navy and Air Force, no longer is running the Defense Department. His successor, Clark M. Clifford, has not yet indicated publicly how he stands on the question of pushing ahead with the Navy model.

But Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze, a former Navy secretary and strong supporter of the F111B, still is in office—and Navy admirals fear he may put up a fight to preserve the plane.

It is reported that Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, Chief of Naval Operations; and Vice Adm. Thomas F. Connolly, Navy air chief, told the committee March 4 they would rather not express an opinion until they see the engineering studies.

But, it was said, when Stennis told the admirals the committee wanted their opinions on the TFX now, they expressed a preference for another plane.

The Air Force's F111A, although escalating in cost, has gained general acceptance. Six F111As are due in Thailand within several days before being sent on their first combat missions.

The F111B's biggest problem is weight—reportedly about 80,000 pounds. The Navy wanted something in the 55,000–60,000 pound range.

The revolutionary feature of the F111 in all its variations is a wing that can be retracted close to the fuselage for speeds up to 1,650 miles per hour or extended full length for takeoffs and landings on short fields and carriers.

The Navy studies aim at possible development of lighter fuselages into which would be installed the F111B's engines, its special electronic gear and the Phoenix air-to-air missile, especially designed for the Navy TFX.

The sources said they believed the Armed Services Committee will deny authorization for $350 million being sought by the Johnson administration to build 30 F111Bs toward an eventual Navy fleet of 270.

They said they believe the committee will substitute about $200 or $250 million for research and development on the alternative plane concepts.

RICHARD M. NIXON

Wife, Pat, and daughters Patricia and Julie accompany Nixon in New Hampshire for the presidential primary.

When Richard Milhous Nixon lost to California Governor Pat Brown in 1962, he claimed he was finished with politics. Now, six years later, he is back on the political trail and one of the front-runners for his party's presidential nomination.

He was born January 9, 1913, of Quaker parents, in Yorba Linda, California.

On scholarship to Duke University Law School, he finished in the upper ten per cent of his class. After graduation, he returned to Whittier, Calif., to practice law. There he met Thelma Catherine "Pat" Ryan, a high school teacher, and in 1940 they were married. They have two daughters, Patricia and Julie.

By 1942, Nixon was in Washington with the Office of Emergency Management. Commissioned a Navy Lt. (j.g.), he served in the South Pacific for two years.

In 1946, friends suggested he become Republican candidate in California for the House of Representatives. Resigning from the service, he spent $4,000 saved from his Navy pay to campaign, winning by over 15,000 votes. Two years later he was re-elected.

At 33, as a freshman representative, he gained national attention for his anti-communist efforts with the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

In 1950, Nixon won a U.S. Senate seat and, two years later, ran for vice president on the Republican ticket with Dwight D. Eisenhower.

After taking office, Nixon changed the relative obscurity of the vice presidency to one of active participation in government. In 1955, he assumed presidential duties when Eisenhower suffered a heart attack.

As Republican candidate for president in 1960, Nixon faced and lost to Senator John F. Kennedy.

In 1962, having returned to California to practice law, Nixon campaigned for governor, losing to incumbent Pat Brown.

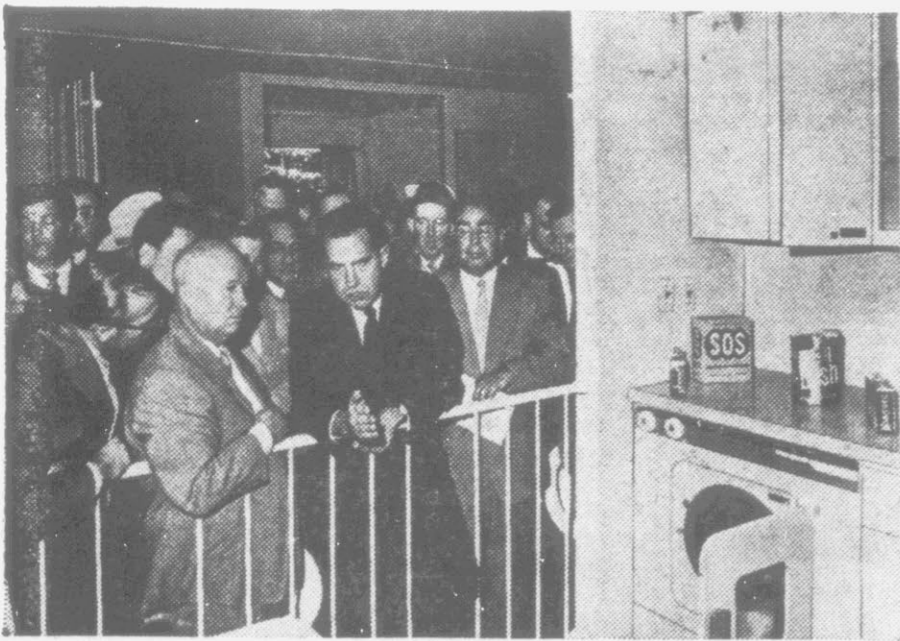

He then moved to New York City, where he continued his political activity. Now he is on the campaign trail once more, seeking the nomination to carry the presidential banner again.

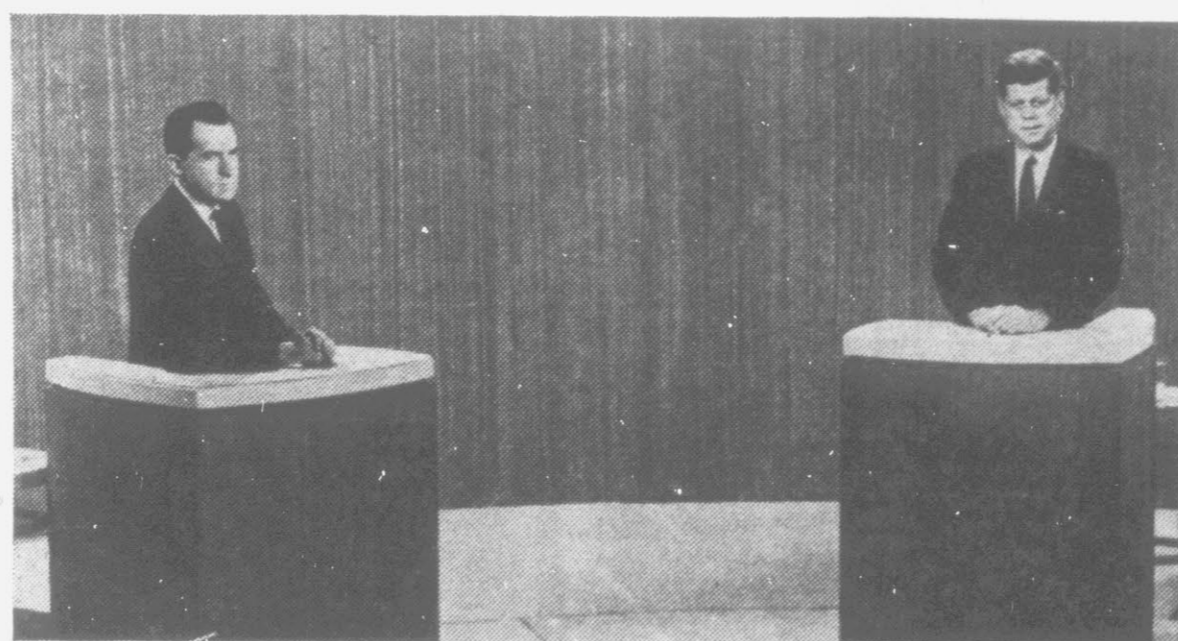

As Lieutenant Commander in the Navy, World War II.

During his 1950 Senate race, Nixon talks with Port Hueneme, Calif., citizens.

As vice president, Nixon squared off with Russian Premier Khrushchev during the 1959 "kitchen" debate in Moscow.

During the 1960 campaign, Nixon participates in one of four debates with John F. Kennedy.

Vice president's car came under attack by Caracas, Venezuela, demonstrators in 1958.

Nixon takes oath of office as vice president at capitol ceremony, Jan. 20, 1953.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) — Something the average GI never dreamed he'd see in this lifetime—an end to KP—has been ordered by the Pentagon. The philosophy behind the new Department of Defense directive freeing servicemen from peeling potatoes and washing dishes is that military men should be used for military tasks.

So civilians will take over in the kitchen. The changing of the guard is to be complete by mid-1970.

Even then, the Pentagon said, KP will still be performed by military personnel if the situation requires it, as in combat areas.

The decision to hire civilians for food service jobs is part of a program begun about 2½ years ago by Robert S. McNamara, then secretary of defense. To make the most effective use of military men in the Vietnam war buildup, McNamara ordered a gradual passing to civilians of many clerical, maintenance, transportation and administrative jobs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expected to honor a bill for damages submitted by the Soviet Union for the Feb. 1 bomb blast at the Soviet embassy.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said Thursday a bill for $14,699.59 had been received. Noting "our policy of reimbursement in such incidents," McCloskey said this can work both ways. After the 1965 incidents in which several hundred windows were broken at the U.S. embassy in Moscow, he said, the Soviets made the necessary repairs and paid additional compensation of $3,400.

There were no injuries in the pre-dawn blast of Feb. 1, but an office on the ground floor of the Soviet embassy was damaged. President Johnson ordered a vigorous search for the person or persons responsible but no arrests have resulted.

Capital Footnotes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, pleading the need to get better acquainted with his new job, has declined an invitation to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The probable topic: troop increases for Vietnam.

Federal employees say more than 900 of their fellow workers have signed a petition urging the President to "end his reliance on military force and to seek instead a genuine political settlement to bring peace in Southeast Asia."

Museum Thinks 3-Foot Stick Is Worth Keeping

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Ever hear of a 3-foot long stick becoming a museum treasure? The Museum of Navajo Ceremonial art in Santa Fe thinks it is.

The museum, trying to gather items representing all phases of Navajo life, recently purchased a cholla-wood digging stick like those used by early Navajo farmers, and the Pueblo Indians before them, in preparing ground.

The digging stick was made by David Gorman, a Navajo elder who lives in the Canyon de Chelly, Ariz., area of the Navajo reservation.

One end of the implement is whittled to a blunt point; the opposite end is wedge-shaped with two flatly carved surfaces. The outer bark has been removed.

No striped snake native to the United States is known to be poisonous.

REP. JOHN H. BUCHANAN

At East Carolina he will speak on "Party Government in Congress" to four regular political science classes. At 3 p.m. he will meet professional and student reporters at a news conference in Rawl Building (Browning Room). Then at 5 p.m. he will meet with the ECU Political Science Club for a question-and-answer session.

He had been scheduled for a public address before the ECU Young Republicans Club Monday night but that had to be cancelled to enable him to make the latest airline flight back to Washington.

NOT BY BREAD ALONE

The Master Teacher emphasized that man cannot live by bread alone... If you have left Christ out of your life, there's something missing... something that only He can supply. It's like trying to live by bread alone.

The body will remain at the Norcott and Co. Funeral Home Chapel.

Signs In Chinese And In English

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As a gesture to San Francisco's famed Chinatown the city has for the first time put up bilingual street signs in Chinese and English.

Alongside Grant Avenue are ideographs that translate from cantonese as Du Pong Gai, California Street, which crosses Grant, comes out Ka-li-fu Gai, "Golden Mountain."

California's El Camino Real, also known as "The King's Highway," extends from Sonoma to San Diego.

When You MOVE—

If You Tell Us in Advance

• TO GET quick action in changing delivery of this newspaper to your new address, be sure to let us know a few days before you move. Just tell your carrier-boy or phone our office, and you will be assured of uninterrupted enjoyment of your daily newspaper—right when so many of its time-and-money-saving services are most helpful to you!

IT'S ALSO important to settle up with your newspaper boy if you are moving away from his route. He is in business for himself and the cost of all copies delivered to your home comes out of his pocket, unless you pay him in full. Do it before you go!

Copycats

Kathy and Kevin celebrate St. Patrick's Day... Kathy wears her green plaid dress, and Kevin his sweater with the emerald stripe. The hats are those we brought home from last night's party!

They don't really know what the day is all about. But they heard Dan singing in the shower, "the wearin' o' the green," and saw the color of the tie he placed on the door knob.

They don't miss a thing! That old saying that actions speak louder than words is certainly true around our children. They are regular little copycats.

That's why Dan and I make it a habit to go to church every Sunday with them. We want God and His Church to be a real part of their lives, not just something they have heard about.

Give your children a chance to know God. Go to church and take them with you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Librarians Have A Decoding Job

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — In the Rochester Public Library recently, one man handed a librarian a written request for "A Connecticut Yankee on King Arthur's Porch." The veteran librarian quickly noted the error and found the Yankee in the king's court.

Other written requests, which the librarians had fun decoding, included "Our Megaton" for Leon Uriss' best-seller "Armageddon"; "Accidental Variety" for the Occidental Variety, and "Pre-Justice" for Jane Austin's "Pride and Prejudice." One child asked for "Snow White and Nose Red."

State Restores Historic House

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Historic "Woodburn," now known simply as The Governor's House, was a station on the underground railroad for escaping slaves during the Civil War period.

The house on Kings Highway here was built about 1790, and is a beautiful example of the late 18th century architecture of Delaware.

The state acquired it in 1965, after which the State Archives Commission restored and furnished it.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were 25 cents lower. Tops of 18.25-18.75 Rocky Mount; 18.00-18.50 Statesville; 17.75-18.50 Wilson; 17.25-18.25 Tarboro, Bethel; 17.00-18.00 Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive, Newton Grove, Albertain, Lumberton; 18.75 Salisbury, Rich Square; 18.50 Selma; 18.25 Greensboro; 18.00 Goldsboro; 17.75 Siler City, Denton.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady Thursday. Supplies adequate, demand fair to good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:

Grade A large whites: 39 to 40; medium, whites: 35 to 37; small, whites: 32 to 34½.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market began to rally early this afternoon, having digested carefully the steps being taken at home and abroad to stem the gold outflow and bring order to monetary conditions.

The ticker tape ran about 2 minutes late at midsession as a preweekend rush to buy got underway.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.85 at 832.76 after erasing an early loss of 2.60.

In the over-all stock list, however, losses still outnumbered gains by a wide margin.

The rise in the discount rate by the Federal Reserve Board to 5 per cent from 4½ per cent was far less drastic than Wall Street experts had expected. The closing of London's gold market and stock exchange took some of the heat out of the hectic gold rush.

Meanwhile, early caution concerning the weekend conference of the seven gold pool nations slowly turned to confidence that measures taken for better control of the gold and monetary situation would be more healthy for the economy than otherwise.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.3 at 300.3 with industrials off 1.3, rails off 1.0 and utilities off .8. The market was lower throughout most of the morning, but the decline was orderly. Many outstanding blue chips either held firm or yielded only small fractions. Selective issues showed strength.

The outstanding feature was a further decline by the gold, silver and many other mining issues as they continued to back-track in the face of international cooperation which seemed to promise more orderly conditions in the gold and money markets. Moderate gains were posted by Chrysler, Sperry Rand, American Motors, W. E. Heller, U.S. Steel, Alcoa, Magma Copper, American Cyanamid and Eastern Air Lines.

IBM rebounded 6 points, Control Data about 2½, and Xerox 1.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined on a broad front.

Paintings Shown At Club Meet

An exhibition of 65 paintings by Mrs. Neta Barker was shown at the meeting of the Greenville Senior Citizens Club meeting Thursday morning in the Elm Street Recreation Building.

Mrs. Barker, a native of Texas, has been a resident of North Carolina since her marriage to John Barker in 1911, and has lived in Greenville since 1925.

Mrs. Sallie Reagan presided over the meeting and the devotional was given by Rev. Adrian Brown.

Crackdown On Black Market

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu issued strict orders today for a nationwide crackdown on black market activities and bars, night clubs and brothels that opened despite a government ban.

In a letter to Premier Nguyen Van Lor, Thieu directed that all province heads, police chiefs and other responsible officials be told they will be punished if they do not suppress these activities.

U.S. Air Losses Now Up To 3,487

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that 2,007 airplanes and 1,480 helicopters have been lost in the Vietnam war to enemy fire, accidents and all other causes.

Headquarters said 809 combat planes have been downed over North Vietnam since bombing of the North began a little more than three years ago, in February 1965.

FOUR INJURED — Four persons were injured when these two cars collided ½ mile East of Greenville on U. S. 264 about 5:30 p.m. yesterday. Highway Patrolman J. C. Ball identified the drivers involved as Annie Adams Hardy, 27, of Hillcrest Trailer Ct., Greenville and Louis Hudson, 55 of Route 3, Greenville. No charges were placed in the mishap which caused an estimated $500 damage to the Hudson vehicle and about $800 damage to the Hardy auto. Both drivers, as well as two passengers in the Hardy auto, were reported injured. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Four-Day Mission To Open Saturday Night

Dr. G. Donald Gilmore, outstanding Methodist preacher and author, will lead a Spiritual Renewal Mission at Saint James Methodist Church March 17-20.

The four-day mission opens Saturday night at 7 p.m. with a Prayer Service at the Church. Morning and evening services will be conducted Sunday through Wednesday.

DR. G. DONALD GILMORE

Dr. Gilmore will preach at 8:45 and 11:00 worship services on Sunday morning and at 7:30 p.m. Sunday night.

The weekday services are at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. through Wednesday evening.

Minister of the Groesbeck Methodist Church in Cincinnati, Ohio, Dr. Gilmore is currently on a year's sabbatical to study and write. His fourth book, "Letters From a Previously Unpublished Angel", has been released within the past month.

He has been in demand as a speaker across the country since his first book, "In the Midst", was published in 1962.

He has served as pastor of the Groesbeck Church for the past twelve years. A graduate of Wittenberg University, he received his theological degree at the Garrett Biblical Institute, Northwestern University.

"We are fortunate to secure such an outstanding leader for our Lenten Renewal series," the pastor of Saint James, the Rev. Bill Quick, said. He noted that the services are open to the general public.

In addition to the regular and special worship services, Dr. Gilmore will meet with the men and youth of the church in breakfast sessions. Methodist men will share in a Monday morning breakfast at 7 a.m. at Silo. The Methodist Youth of the church will hear Dr. Gilmore on Tuesday morning at their weekly Lenten breakfast at the church at 7 a.m.

Music for the Mission will be by the Chancel Choir of the Church on Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday

The Children's Choir will sing at 8:45 a.m. Sunday morning and on Monday night at 8 p.m. Richard D. Brunson, student minister in training at St. James, will provide special music at the morning services.

Copies of Dr. Gilmore's books will be on sale at the church. Nurseries will be provided for all worship services.

Two Injured In Car Collision

Howard Glenn James, 45, of 601 South Elm St. and a passenger in his car were reported injured in a 5 p.m. collision on Fifth Street 50 feet West of the Harding Street intersection yesterday.

Police said the James auto collided with a car driven by Clara W. Williams of 800 Forest Hill Cir., causing an estimated $200 damage to the James vehicle and about $100 damage to the Williams car.

Police charged Mrs. Williams with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

The Himalayan silver fir tree, growing in Kashmir, reaches a height of 200 feet.

Choir Offers Spring Concert

The 55-voice East Carolina University Concert Choir will give its annual spring concert in the Recital Hall of the ECU School of Music Sunday afternoon.

The program, to begin at 3:15, will include a variety of works drawn from the repertoire of the choir's recent 1,400-mile concert tour. Conducting the Sunday performance will be Dr. Charles Moore of the ECU music faculty. The concert is free and open to the public.

Among Sunday's selections will be "An American Jazz Mass" by contemporary composer Frank Tirro, several sacred works by American Revolutionary War composer William Billings, a group of 19th and 20th century Russian songs, selections from the Brahms "Liebeslieder Waltzes" and several numbers from the popular Broadway musical, "The Fantasticks."

A feature of the Tirro number will be accompaniment by a jazz combo: Kenneth Deans of Hampton, Va., saxophone; Glen Harris of Richmond, Va., string bass; Dennis Laubhan of Hillsboro, Kans., trumpet; Alan Moore of High Point, saxophone; and James Stockner of Galax, Va., drums.

Solos in the Brahms waltzes will be sung by Georgia Mizenko of Morehead City, soprano, and David Traynham of High Point, tenor. Piano accompanists for the concert are Gregory Lee Bell of Morehead City and Terry Paul Rothermich of St. Charles, Mo.

State Hails Big Sale Of Soybeans

North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham announced Friday the sale of 50,000 tons of Tar Heel soybeans to a Japanese firm for $500,000 and termed the sale "a significant breakthrough in export sales."

"While this is only a small portion of our state's total production," Graham told a news conference, "it is significant in that it indicates the acceptability of our soybeans by the Japanese people."

Rep. Walter Jones, D - N.C., and two top officials of the N. C. Soybean Producers Association also attended the news conference.

Jones said he was "excited" over the announcement, adding "it could have far reaching possibilities in export sales. We're well on the road now."

Graham said the sale of Dare variety soybeans to Ataka and Co. Tokyo amounts to 183,000 bushels or 6,000 acres.

"The shipment," he said, "will bring more than $500,000, which includes a premium of $64,000 for the Dare variety over the price of other varieties."

Graham said Japan uses more than 2 million tons of soybeans annually "and there is no reason why North Carolina cannot help supply a larger portion of this market."
