Nixon Begins Revise Political Timetable Rockefeller Out, Nixon Now Left Free To Push Presidential Drive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Months sooner than he had figured, Richard M. Nixon is starting to make the switch from jockeying for the Republican nomination to the much bigger goal of winning the presidency. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's announced Thursday removing himself from consideration for the nomination left Nixon without a serious rival. He immediately began revising his political timetable and said visits to a number of states that had to take low priority while he was still seriously challenged in primaries will be possible much sooner. Does this mean he is starting now his campaign for the Nov. 7 election, he was asked. "Yes," Nixon said in an interview in Milwaukee Thursday night.

The GOP and the press were primed Thursday to hear Rockefeller announce he had finally heard the call and was going to shoot for the GOP nomination. They were stunned to hear him say just the opposite. He summed it up in his first sentence: "I have decided today to reiterate unequivocally that I am not a candidate campaigning, directly or indirectly, for the presidency of the United States." Least anyone looked for hidden meanings, he warned, "I mean, and I shall abide by, precisely what I say." While emphasizing that he will not take the nomination for granted, Nixon said the Rockefeller withdrawal means there will be major changes in where he goes and whom he sees. In the next two months, Nixon said, he will try to confer with each of the 26 Republican gov-

Wachovia Plans Are Given Okay

Wachovia Bank and Trust Company has received approval from the North Carolina Banking Commission to construct a new office in Greenville and relocate its Williamston office. According to Wachovia vice-president Dr. Joe Pou, the commission this week approved construction of a branch office in the Pitt Plaza Annex in Greenville. He said the office will include 2,000 square feet of space and will offer complete banking services including tellers, personal and commercial loans, safe deposit boxes and drive-in teller service. Dr. Pou said the facility will be located in a 184,000 square feet addition to Pitt Plaza and occupancy of the facility is expected by November 1. The new Williamston office will be located at the intersection of Main and Haughton Streets and will replace the present office at 122 West Main Street. The present office, which is 60 years old, was damaged by fire about two months ago. The new building will be a two-story facility containing 10,000 square feet of floor space, and will provide all banking services. The building is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Cancer Workers Told They'll Share Triumph

"You people here tonight can someday in your lifetime say that you helped cure cancer," Lex L. Ray told local unit officers and volunteers of the American Cancer Society last night. Ray, 1968 Crusade Chairman of the North Carolina Division of the American Cancer Society and executive vice president of Duke Power Company, was the keynote speaker at the kick-off dinner for the 1968 Cancer Crusade of the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society. The speaker commented on the Society's three-prong attack on cancer that will eventually "change the face of the earth, just as the concerted efforts did with polio and smallpox." "Though education may be considered the key of Cancer Crusade, it is really only one part of this attack, combining with research and service in an attempt to rid the earth of this deadly disease," Ray said. "The group here tonight is part of the team — this wonderful team of human beings who not only talk of human nature but help their fellowman." The speaker said the average volunteer was dedicated to the Crusade and did not perform his task for fame and fortune, but considered it as one of life's little extras that makes the world tick. "Your unselfish effort brought you here on a mission of mercy, because of your love for life and hate for suffering," noted Ray. "We all know cancer. We only have to sell everyone else." Dr. Dan Jordan of Bethel, president of the Pitt County Unit, presided at the meeting and introduced the special guests. County crusade chairmen and their leaders were recognized by Dr. J. Edwin Clement, who also instructed the chairman of their duties and overall planning and organization for the kickoff dinner was done by Mrs. Van Fleming, executive secretary of the Pitt County Unit.

Husband, Remember The Past But Don't Try To Live There

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both Elmer and me. My first marriage was an unhappy one and ended in divorce. Elmer's first marriage (he claims) was happy, but his wife died. Do you think it's right for a husband to have pictures of his first wife all over the place? Every wall in every room of our house is covered with pictures of "her." They go all the way back to their marriage right up to pictures of her wake.

Also, Elmer made me promise that when he dies I will ship his body back to where "she" is buried, so he can be buried next to "her." How should I take all this?

SECOND FIDDLE DEAR SECOND: It's all right for a man to remember the past, but he doesn't have to live in it. Some wives do not object to having Number One's picture "all over the place," but if you do, your feelings should be considered. As for Elmer's wanting to be buried next to "her," tell him to put it in his will and his wishes will be carried out as soon as he is.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and my problem is my mother. She won't let me have anyone over to the house unless it's in perfect order because she's afraid the kids might go home and tell their mothers that she is a poor housekeeper.

Abby, this is silly because kids couldn't care less how the house looks. I know that I don't pay any attention to the housekeeping when I'm at someone's house visiting. And even if I did notice that a place was a mess I sure wouldn't go home and tell my mother.

Please put this in your column. My mother never misses it. Thank you.

NO COMPANY DEAR NO COMPANY: I never give advice to one who hasn't asked for it, but in your case I'll make an exception and address this to your mother.

There is nothing more reassuring to a mother than always to know where her daughter is—and with whom. You can insure this feeling by making your daughter's friends welcome in your home anytime. Youngsters take little notice of "housekeeping." In fact, the "perfect" house is not nearly as inviting as the one that looks "lived in."

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I go to the home of friends for cocktails and dinner, I just hate to end up sitting by somebody else's husband.

When the hostess starts saying, "Alice you sit over here by Bill, and Joan, you will sit beside Harry," I always say, "I still enjoy sitting by my own husband, thank you. Am I wrong? I would like your opinion."

LIKES MY OWN DEAR LIKES: I think it is simply a matter of good manners for guests to sit where the hostess seats them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ROBERTO: Any man who can be made "blissfully happy" or "miserably unhappy" by a woman is still "young."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069.

Sixth Grade Students Taught To Be Tutors

By RUTH WINTER

NEW YORK (WNS)—Twelve average sixth grade students have been trained as visual, auditory and kinesthetic experts and have successfully tutored first grade children with learning problems.

Dr. Cecilia Pollack, director of learning rehabilitation services at Maimonides Medical Center's Community Mental Health Center, explained the program in an interview.

"We found 95 per cent of the disruptive children at P. S. 160, here, read poorly. They had learning problems and needed individual help.

But there is an acute shortage of trained personnel. "Beatrice Teitel, an educational therapist and former first grade teacher, was sent by Maimonides to train a group of sixth-graders," Dr. Pollack continued. "The sixth-graders were average, not brilliant students. They were picked for their warm personalities.

Not Stupid "For the first three weeks, the students were taught a mental health approach to teaching first-graders. They were shown how not to call them 'stupid' but to praise when an effort to learn was made.

"Then for the next three weeks, the sixth-graders were individually trained as experts in one field. If they were auditory perception experts, they were given a bag of plastic toys. One object in the kit, for instance, was a plastic car. The sixth-grader would ask the first-grader what the object was and then sound the word "car" began with.

"Everything the sixth-graders used to teach the first-graders was programmed. They followed a sort of cookbook recipe."

"The program of using sixth grade tutors began last September and has been highly successful," Dr. Pollack said.

"The first-graders have not only benefited tremendously, but the sixth-graders as well. One father reported that his son was brilliant and had been placed in special classes. His daughter felt like 'little gray mouse' compared to the son. When she was selected as a sixth-grade tutor, her image of herself became much better. 'She even walked differently,'" the father said.

"The program has been so successful, Dr. Pollack said, that it will be introduced into some slum schools next year.

"We will probably have problems with the program," she said, "but it should be one solution to the lack of trained personnel to help children with learning problems."

Mrs. Gulati Is Delphian Speaker

Mrs. Percy Pair and Mrs. Charles Stevens were hostesses to the Delphian Book Club at a luncheon Tuesday.

After lunch, Mrs. Usha Gulati gave an informal program on India. Mrs. Gulati, a native of New Delhi, India, came to this country in 1965. She received her Master's degree in the audio-visual school of education at the University of Virginia. She and her husband now make their home in Greenville. Gulati is a member of the faculty at East Carolina University.

Mrs. Gulati discussed the marriage customs of India bringing out the fact that in India boys and girls do not date, they attend separate schools, and their marriages are arranged by their parents. The girls are usually shy and reserved and they accept their parents' wishes without question. If the marriage fails, the parents assume the blame she said.

Basically four types of dresses are worn by the women of India. The sari, the formal kamiz (long full pants with a tunic top), the salwai kamiz (long tight pants with a tunic top), and the wedding dress. Samples of these styles were shown including Mrs. Gulati's own wedding dress.

After the program, books were exchanged and the meeting was adjourned.

'Austerity' Yet To Become A Fact

"Austerity"!
It is almost as if a new word has come into official use in the United States.
Before President Johnson used the word this week, how long had it been since an American president had used it in connection with federal fiscal policies? Certainly not within recent administrations, Democratic or Republican.
The word has been used by European leaders from time to time as their respective nations found it necessary to face up to the reality of living within their means. But the word was almost dropped from American vocabularies for lack of use.
But there it is, and directly out of the mouth of President Lyndon Johnson: "... a program of national austerity" to return soundness to the economy and finish the tasks which must be accomplished.

We look forward to the administration coming forth with solid proposals to effect the austerity in government of which the President spoke. And we look forward to Congress, which has long called for reduction in federal spending, to do a little belt-tightening of its own — even in home districts if necessary — to squeeze unnecessary blubber out of federal spending.

Admittedly, it is difficult to conceive of an "austerity program" coming out of Washington these days. But the very use of the word has in itself bolstered public confidence that something is going to be done to trim the federal spending spiral.

One point should not be lost to public view, however. If there is in reality a national austerity program, the entire impact will not all be on the other fellow. Every citizen is likely to feel the pinch that is certain to be a part of any meaningful effort to bring federal spending into line and generate sufficient revenues to provide a balanced budget.

Officials Glum Over 'Failures'

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — Aside from the deep personal tragedy and grief suffered by family and friends, death on the highways in North Carolina dismays and distresses state officials — from the governor on down.
It is always ugly, hurtful and heartbreaking. Certainly the families and friends suffer most when someone is killed, maimed or crippled in a smash-up and becomes a statistic on the records and the subject of a few inches in the obituary columns.

is a glimmer of hope — but not last weekend. The deaths of 29 persons over the weekend of March 16-17 was the bloodiest toll for a similar period in almost a year.
It shot the 1968 highway fatality toll to 317, or nearly 40 more than for the corresponding period in 1967.

What Happened?
The question, of course, is why? What happened? With increased enforcement, new highway patrol tactics — concentrations of patrol "wolfpacks" in areas of high accident frequency — how did the plan fail?
A young woman drove from Rutherford County to Raleigh on last Sunday and reported she saw at least 22 state highway patrol cars actively patrolling the roads she traveled. She did not see a single accident.

Yet — in perhaps isolated incidents — six persons were killed on an interstate highway, I-95, near Benson, and six others died in a collision near Scotland Neck in Halifax County.

Neither of these accidents occurred in a "wolfpack" patrolled area. Responsibility for each remains to be fixed.

'Wolfpack' Areas
In the patrol's selected "wolfpack" areas — those of proven high accident frequency — the accident rate declined sharply. In six counties — Wake, Randolph, Mecklenburg, Pitt, Buncombe and Cumberland counties — troopers made 613 arrests and stopped and warned at least twice that many more drivers. The troopers patrolled main highways and rural roads, using speed clock devices and other new equipment.

It was estimated that the patrol's strength in these selected counties was at five times the normal complement for a weekend.
Wake County — around Raleigh — is notorious at this time. It has the worst record of any county in the state, having recorded more than 80 traffic fatalities during 1966 and almost as many last year despite increased enforcement efforts.

But the multiple fatality accidents occurred where the patrol apparently was the thin — in Johnston and Halifax Counties.

More Important, City Will Gain In Beauty

In a matter of days Greenville's thousands of dogwoods will burst into bloom and the city will have on its prettiest dress of the year for a couple of weeks.

Many of those dogwoods which now bloom in Greenville were planted some 15 or more years ago by local Jaycees who undertook the project of selling and planting dogwoods as a long-range beautification program for the community.

Another generation of Greenville Jaycees is now in the midst of a similar project. Last Saturday they sold more than 600 dogwoods to local residents. Tomorrow they will be selling dogwoods again in various parts of the city.

The project may add a few dollars to the Jaycee treasury, but much more important, the additional dogwoods will add to the beauty of Greenville in future years and enhance the community's appearance.

Budget-Cutting Still Befogged

By EDMOND LeBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House trial balloon of a $9 billion budget cut never soared very high in the estimation of congressional leaders demanding deeper reductions as the price of a tax increase.

And now it seems to have fallen flat. No specific reductions have been sent to Capitol Hill, formally or informally, and the indications are that none will be ready for some time.

Congressional economists are showing irritation. Some are suggesting that the $9 billion reduction talk last weekend by high administration sources was really intended more for the ears of the international monetary authorities meeting to stem the gold rush than for consideration by Congress.

A genuine fear that speculators against the dollar might win gave a strong impetus last week to the lagging discussions between the executive and legislative branches of an economy-tax combination to reduce the prospective $20 billion deficit and bolster the U. S. international position. The momentum has slackened since then.

There was a point at which key congressmen were talking of an even steeper increase than the 10 per cent income tax surcharge Johnson is asking. Some suggested restoring the regular income-tax bracket rates, except in the lowest brackets, as they were before the massive 1964 tax reduction instead of merely adding a surcharge.

Such a rollback would yield an estimated $14 billion increase in revenues instead of the $10 billion plus which the surcharge is supposed to bring in.

But the asking price was a budget reduction in the range of $15 billion—meaning an actual spending cut of about $6 billion—instead of the $9 billion budget trim that would mean about $4 billion in actual spending.

There was no meeting of minds on an economy move of these dimensions.

It would require dropping, postponing indefinitely or at least drastically scaling down some whole domestic programs.

This is exactly the course some economists are advocating. They say the build-in expansion of these programs over the next five years or more will cost more than the present revenue structure can provide—even if the economy maintains a healthy growth.

As the dialogue between the executive and the legislative branches falters, conferences within Congress on the possibility of a legislatively dictated curtailment on domestic spending continue. These now cross party lines, bringing in Republican leaders as well as the economy-minded Democratic chairmen of the taxing and spending committees. If they agree, the administration may find itself fighting budget cuts it had no hand in preparing.

As They Tell It In Hanoi

WASHINGTON — If you think people in this country are confused about what is happening on the American political scene, you can imagine how confused they are in Hanoi.

Just the other day, Ho Chi Minh's Cabinet called in North Vietnam's expert on American political affairs. He was in chains and two guards threw him to the floor.

"All right, Dao Tri," one of the ministers said, "are you going to tell us the truth about American politics or are we going to have to get it out of you some other way?"

"Honorable ministers," Dao Tri cried from the floor, "I have told you the truth. I did not make one word of it up."

"Well, let us hear it again," another minister snarled. "What exactly has happened?"

Dao Tri, his head bowed, began: "Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York has decided to run against President Johnson because he is opposed to President Johnson's policies in Vietnam."

"But," said a minister, "we thought Sen. McCarthy was running against President Johnson because he opposes his policies in Vietnam."

"Sen. McCarthy is running against President Johnson. As a matter of fact, he came within 200 votes of beating President Johnson in the province of New Hampshire."

"Then why is Sen. Kennedy running against President Johnson?" a minister asked. "Because he says he wants to help Sen. McCarthy defeat President Johnson."

A minister turned to one of the guards and said, "Hang him up by his thumbs." Dao Tri was hung by his thumbs. The minister said, "Now continue."

Dao Tri, between screams, continued: "Sen. McCarthy said he doesn't need Sen. Kennedy's support in his fight against President Johnson, but Sen. Kennedy says he's going to support McCarthy whether he likes it or not."

"Raise him off the ground a little," a minister said to the guard. "Didn't you tell us Sen. Kennedy said he would oppose President Johnson?"

Dao Tri screamed, "Honorable ministers, hear me out. Kennedy announced it before the primary elections in New Hampshire, because he said he did not want to split the Democratic Party. After the primary, Sen. Kennedy said the party was split anyway, so he thought he would have a better chance of splitting the Democratic Party than Sen. McCarthy would."

"A little higher," a minister ordered the guard. Dao Tri's toes were barely touching the ground. "Now tell us about the Republican Party."

"Former Vice President Nixon won very big in New Hampshire," Dao Tri gasped, "so Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of the province of New York, who said he did not want to be President, has decided to run against him."

"Why?" a minister asked. "Because the polls show that Rockefeller could beat President Johnson, but Nixon can't. Therefore, the majority of the Republican delegates are for Nixon and against

Other Editors Saying Classroom To Street

(Christian Science Monitor)
For long centuries in Europe university men were the actual administrators of government. Able men shuttled back and forth between classrooms and chancelleries, now teaching, now governing. In those days politics and scholarship were closely intertwined.

Of late, but to a minor degree, the United States has been getting back to this concept. There has come, above all beginning with the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a tendency on the part of government to turn to the universities for the knowledge and the thinking with which to grapple with the complex problems of a modern nation. This has brought many remarkable men into public service.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology is now approaching this concept of public service by university men from a new point of view. It has announced that this fall it would send out 12 assistant professors to work for a year full time with city officials on urban problems. These are not to be part-time consultative jobs. The assistant professors will act as and be in every sense city employees.

This can be a fruitful experiment for several reasons. The first and most obvious advantage is the benefit to the cities themselves from having the new thoughts and the enthusiasm of those stimulated by coming to actual grips with problems on the street rather than in the classroom. But the benefit will also work the other way. When these assistant professors return to their classrooms, they should be far better teachers and far more authoritative thinkers on urban problems for having had a year of curbside experience.

Such well-known individuals as Prof. Edwin O. Reischauer and John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard are, notwithstanding the breadth of their earlier knowledge, still greater authorities today for having served as ambassadors to Japan and India respectively. In a world and at a time that needs every excellence, the cross-fertilization between academic thought and practical experience is of the highest importance.

The snuffing out of a life is the ultimate human loss and little can be done to console it. But this sense of loss, of failure to protect, is not confined to that relatively small circle which suffers the greatest grief. It has become a public problem and responsibility, felt keenly by public officials who are charged with this responsibility.

A Hard Blow
Headlines reporting that 29 persons were killed in highway accidents in North Carolina last weekend hit these officials like a blow to the solar plexus.

It was the worst weekend toll of the year thus far despite a stepped-up effort by the Highway Patrol in enforcement tactics.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ralph Howland was glum and could not smile. "We're disappointed, Howland said. "Very disappointed."

The governor's offices was disappointed too, and equally as glum.

Every day without fail the governor receives a report on highway fatalities along with a comparison of the toll with that of the previous year. The governor, Dan K. Moore, studies these figures hoping to see results of his administration's "all-out war" on highway accidents. Occasionally there

Hints For A Corporation Wife

By ELMER ROESSNER
A story is told about a large corporation that passed over a man for promotion because at a country club dinner his wife picked up a chicken leg with her fingers. Personally, I wouldn't bother with a wife who leaves meat on the bone, but the story illustrates the importance some corporations place on company wives.

And while the social graces of executives' wives may have some importance to a corporate image, wives do have greater importance to their husbands' success, according to Charles "Chuck" Lapp, professor of marketing, Graduate School of Business, Washington University.

A helpful and understanding wife, he said, is almost essential to success. And for the wife who would be truly helpful, Dr. Lapp offered these 24 suggestions made, not by himself but by wives of executives at the graduate school:

1. Don't listen to the wrong things from other people. Always maintain a positive attitude about your husband and his work.
2. Learn to be a good mixer, completely independent of your husband when necessary, especially with regard to convention trips and business parties.
3. Always be ready to go.
4. Send him off in a good frame of mind in the morning.
5. Keep him in the family circle.
6. Don't do everything yourself, but try to be a good business manager at home by keeping track of checks, the monthly statement from your bank, receipts and other important items.
7. Always show an interest in business affairs, and try to learn something about them.

Even Walls Have Ears
8. Don't divulge company information to other company wives, but do a certain amount of entertaining of people within the company.

9. Know your husband's associates and notice changes in his organization. But don't be catty!
10. Keep your home always ready for drop-in guests.
11. Always try to be well groomed, and see that your husband is.
12. Compliment your husband whenever possible.

Added Taxes Ahead

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The gold crisis has breathed new life into the corpse of a 1968 tax increase but in a form radically different from President Johnson's surtax and only if accompanied by twice as much reduced spending as he proposes.

Although the White House may not fully appreciate it, President Johnson's concession of last Saturday (March 16) for an additional $3 to $4 billion in spending cuts for the next fiscal year scarcely satisfied Congress (and certainly did not, as intimated by Mr. Johnson, have prior Congressional approval).

Rather, key tax-writers on Capitol Hill whose active support is essential insist, in confidential talks, on these two major policy shifts by the President:

1. The 10 percent surtax—that is, 10 percent of the tax normally paid by each individual—must be buried entirely. Too many Congressmen are on record against it, and the very name "surtax" has taken on a political curse. Instead, the President must agree to a total revision of bracket tax rates to increase revenue. What's more, Congressional powers believe the over-10 extra revenue raised must substantially exceed the $10 billion that the 10 percent surtax would yield.

2. Spending reductions must be at least double Mr. Johnson's figures of last Saturday—that is, around $7 billion. That would mean painful reductions in pork-barrel, Great Society, and even some military spending.

Thus, the Congressional tax-writers are even more responsive than Mr. Johnson to demands of European central bankers that Washington put its fiscal house in order. Those who a few weeks ago were willing to let 1968 pass without tax action are now talking privately of the desperate need for austerity. But they regard the surtax and the LBJ spending cut as too little too late and in preference to the Johnson program would rather see nothing done.

Whether the President will bow to this attitude or even understand it is a mystery. From the moment he proposed a surtax in January, 1967, he has bungled management of the proposal as no other legislative matter during his 35 years in Washington.

The latest example came last Saturday when Mr. Johnson, in a personal briefing of reporters at the White House, announced willingness to cut appropriations by $8 or $9 billion, which would boil down to $3 or $4 billion in actual reduced spending. In off-the-record statements, Mr. Johnson also claimed these figures had been cleared with Congressional leaders and, he hinted, were approved by Mr. Taxation on Capitol Hill: Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Actually, the figures had been cleared with nobody. They were news to Congressional leaders, Mills, who has insisted on draconian reductions before he would support any tax increase, had not even talked to Mr. Johnson for eight days prior to the Saturday briefing.

The President's motive was apparent: to show European central bankers, meeting that very afternoon at Washington in emergency session on the

Czech President Falls To Liberalizing Trend

PRAGUE (AP) — President Antonin Novotny gave up his fight for political survival today and resigned after the Czechoslovak Communist party's new anti-Stalinist leaders received the Kremlin's assurance that it would not interfere with their liberalization drive.

Novotny, a hard-line Communist, sent his letter of abdication to the National Assembly's presidium which immediately accepted it. The party presidium did likewise earlier today.

Novotny gave up his fight to hold on to the largely ceremonial presidency less than 48 hours after Deputy Premier Oldrich Cernik returned from Moscow.

Premier Alexei Kosygin and other top Soviet officials told him they would not interfere in Czechoslovakia's liberal new course of "socialist democratization."

Novotny's downfall began last January, when Alexander Dubcek replaced him as leader of the Czechoslovak Communist party, the position of real power.

In an attempt at a face-saving gesture, CTK, the official news service, said he now would retire from public life because of the "state of his health."

Novotny, 63, was named party leader in 1953 and president in 1957. His term as chief of state was to have ended next year.

The political demise of the veteran Stalinist followed a months-long power struggle which sent Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev hurrying to Prague before Christmas.

Novotny's troubles reportedly stemmed from economic difficulties and unrest among writers, students and officials of the semi-autonomous Slovak Communist party.

Although he rose to power in the Stalin era, Novotny had swung toward cautious liberalization. In the process he weathered a series of challenges and developed a reputation for resilience and cunning.

More For N.C. Welfare Work

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Dr. Ellen Winston, U.S. welfare commissioner, said Thursday that recently enacted federal legislation may provide more money for North Carolina.

Dr. Winston, a former North Carolina commissioner of welfare, said the law provides for the first time that direct payments go to agencies—such as homes for the aged—which serve the aged, disabled and the blind.

She said the bill may also establish strict regulation of homes for the aged.

Dr. Winston, a native of Bryson City, said funds are currently paid to individual patients who then pay the homes.

A guard pulled the cord and Dao was barely conscious.

"Why would the Republicans support a candidate who could not beat President Johnson, when they have a candidate who could?"

Dao Tri, his face white, screamed: "I don't know!"

"He's still sticking to his story," one of the ministers said.

"The fool," another minister said. "He thinks we are so stupid that we will believe his pack of CIA fairy tales. String him the whole way."

The guard pulled and Dao Tri passed out. They cut him down a few minutes later and he collapsed in a heap on the floor. As he regained consciousness he gasped:

"Would you believe Harold Stassen is going to run again?"

Scientist Avers 'Saucers' Exist

RALEIGH (AP) — A nuclear scientist says earthlings should recognize that flying saucers exist and should try to learn from their developers.

Stanton R. Friedman, a scientist with Westinghouse Astronuclear Lab, said in Raleigh Thursday that unidentified flying objects are common throughout the world, and sightings have been reported for hundreds of years.

It is "time we used our scientific capabilities to get more data on them," Friedman said. He added there is a strong possibility that UFO's come from Mars because reports of sightings grow when Mars is closest to earth.

Forty percent of the continental United States is drained by the Mississippi River.

he ended up losing two clubs and two hearts for a one trick setback.

Had West led anything but a heart, South would have been able to ruff at least one club in dummy, and if East is allowed to overruff the nine of hearts with the queen and then returns a trump—the defense is limited to three tricks, two hearts and one club.

Despite West's sharp performance, South was in position to nip the rally in the bud, by putting up the king of hearts at trick one. This play enables the declarer to seize the initiative, for he can now cash the two top clubs and ruff a third round in dummy. East overruffs with the queen, however, he is out of trumps and when South regains the lead he is able to ruff a fourth club with impunity and thereby establish that suit. His losses are restricted to two trump tricks on the deal.

The suggested play of the king of hearts has a logical motivation and is not merely based on a post-mortem examination of all four hands. Declarer should make his best effort to win the first trick in order to gain control of the proceedings, and besides if West does have a high honor in trumps, it is more apt to be the ace than the queen. The reasoning is rather obvious—he can never lose the ace of trumps, whereas a lead away from the queen might cost him a potential trick.

Opening lead: Four of ♠

In selecting a lead against South's four heart contract, West first reviewed the auction. Inasmuch as South had shown a two suited hand and North had supported hearts originally, it appeared probable that the declarer would endeavor to use the dummy's trumps to ruff out his club losers.

In order to inhibit the establishment of the club suit, West opened a trump, selecting the four as his lead. Declarer played low from dummy and East put up the queen which held the trick. A heart was returned to West's ace and the latter cleared North's trump holding on the next round.

Declarer tried to split out the clubs, however, the suit did not divide favorably and

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense sources say several million dollars has been put into speeding up production of a new television-guided bomb that should save lives of U.S. pilots.

The bomb—dubbed Walleye—is carried by plane close enough to the target that the pilot can see it visually. He can then cut the glide bomb loose and a television guidance system will take it the rest of the way—allowing him to turn back before becoming too exposed to enemy surface-to-air missiles and anti-aircraft.

Monsoon weather that has hampered bombing operations over North Vietnam recently is due to clear in the next few weeks. Pentagon sources said Thursday production funds for Walleye have been boosted in order to have as many as possible ready for the improved weather.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A handful of automobile manufacturers who produce limited numbers of specialized or custom vehicles apparently will be exempted from safety standards of the 1966 motor vehicle safety law.

A bill waiving the standards for 11 companies that produce less than 500 cars a year was passed 344 to 2 Thursday by the House.

The Senate has passed a bill permitting exemptions under such conditions but not requiring them. The two chambers must now attempt to draft a compromise measure.

Courage at Dusk

We live longer today! But, thanks to pension plans, bond-a-month savings, retirement income policies, social security, etc., a man can retire—and still cash a check.

Years ago couples had a harder struggle to prepare for the later years. The security they sought was spiritual as well as material. And even as they toiled to earn and save... they worshipped God... they trained their children in the faith... they relied on their Bibles, their prayers, and their beliefs.

But when dusk came, they possessed a kind of courage that no check will provide.

Times haven't changed. To possess that kind of courage in the later years, a couple must begin in the early years to seek and serve God in the life of the Church.

Mets Are Better, But Still Tenth

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Gil Hodges, everybody's nice guy, faces a monumental task in leading the New York Mets out of the National League cellar.

A Met original who had been away from the club since May 22, 1963 when he took over as manager at Washington, Hodges came home last Oct. 11 in a deal that sent a bundle of cash and a rookie pitcher to Washington.

Everything is strange to Gil. He hadn't even seen the Mets on television since '63. He knew he had a nucleus of Tom Seaver, Bud Harrelson and Ron Swoboda but most of the rest are strangers.

The deal that brought center-fielder Tommie Agee to the Mets was inspired by Hodges who had been impressed by Agee's performance with the Chicago White Sox. Agee, only 25, fits into Hodges' long range plans.

"We do expect to show improvement this year. That doesn't necessarily mean that we would have to move out of 10th place. We should be a better club than last year," Hodges said.

The Mets have finished last in five of the six years of their existence emerging into ninth place in 1966 under Wes Westrum.

A shortage of experienced pitching, holes at second base and third base and lack of power are the most important deficiencies.

Four Teams Set For Title Bouts Tonight

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Houston and UCLA battle tonight in college basketball's game of the year where one coach expects a high scoring showdown and the other looks for a defensive struggle.

The NCAA championship tournament semifinals brought the big rematch to the Los Angeles Sports Arena where North Carolina meets Ohio State in the opener.

"I think we'll have a higher scoring game than the first time we met," declared Coach Guy Lewis of Houston. "I don't think 71 points will win this one. The tempo will be faster and the shooting should be better."

Houston edged UCLA 71-69 in the Astrodome on Jan. 20 and went on to an undefeated season while the loss proved the only blemish on the Bruins' record.

Odds makers this time favor UCLA by 7½ points and Coach John Wooden said Thursday:

"We've been hoping for the opportunity to play them again. There is a basis of doubt in my mind that they are the better team based on that one game and the circumstances surrounding it."

He added, "It is unlikely for two teams as defensively sound and so capable on the boards to have a high scoring game."

In addition to matching teams rated No. 1 and No. 2 nationally, the game continues the duel between All-Americans Elvin Hayes of Houston and Lew Alcindor of UCLA.

Wilt Is A Question Mark

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Wilt Chamberlain, who usually comes through as a giant exclamation point in Philadelphia victories, was a huge question mark as the 76ers prepared to open defense of their National Basketball Association championship tonight.

The 7-foot-1 center, who led the NBA in rebounds and assists and finished third in scoring, was in pain at practice Thursday and was first thought to have broken the big toe on his right foot in Wednesday night's regular season finale against Baltimore.

But X-rays showed no break and the NBA's all-time leading scorer was expected to start against the third-place New York Knicks, possibly with the help of a pain-killing injection.

The Knicks and the San Francisco Warriors are the underdogs in tonight's first two playoff games.

The Knicks and Eastern champion 76ers go at it in Convention Hall, one of two courts the vagabond Philadelphians will call home until their wind-damaged Spectrum is ready. Injury-riddled San Francisco, which fell to third after 6-11 Nate Thurmond broke a bone in his foot, takes on the Western champion Hawks in St. Louis.

All playoff series are best-of-seven.

Hayes scored 39 points in Houston where 7-foot-1½ inch Alcindor tallied 15 while still suffering effects of an eye injury.

A year ago in the NCAA semifinals, UCLA whipped Houston and went on to win the title with Alcindor the tournament's outstanding player.

Houston has averaged 99.1 points in posting its 31-0 mark while UCLA stands 93.7 and 27-1.

North Carolina, paced by All-American Larry Miller, compiled a 27-3 record through the regional playoffs, ranked No. 4 nationally in the Associated Press poll and has been established the favorite over Ohio State by 5½ points.

The Tar Heels face the task of countering the physical strength of the Buckeyes, who came on fast for a 20-7 record including victories in the Big Ten playoff and over Kentucky in the regionals.

"Ohio State has more weight than we do," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "We have a little height on them. One main reason we're here is an outstanding defense in our last four games. We hope to represent the East better than we did last year."

North Carolina lost both games in the 1967 tournament.

Coach Fred Taylor of the Buckeyes counts on the leadership of Bill Hosket, the 6-7 sharpshooting senior.

"We had to win to stay alive in the Big Ten and our team proved it was competitive. But I was never exactly sure what we were going to do."

Tom Shaw Holds Pensacola Lead

By RON SPEER
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Affable Tom Shaw has a ready explanation for the jubilant antics on the golf course that make him a likeable rarity among the pro tour's deadpan chargers.

"I'm happy just to be alive," said Shaw, who was in a jarring freeway crash in California two years ago and suffered a broken back.

The 26-year-old teaching pro at a course in Golf, Ill., also was elated over his opening round in the Pensacola Open Tournament, a 63 which gave him a two-stroke lead going into today's renewal of the battle for the $16,000 winner's check.

Shaw started off with three straight birdies, chipped in from 20 feet for another, and bettered par on nine holes on the flat, 66,380 yard course which has a par of 72.

Shaw's score matched the best round turned in on the tour this year, but it was two strokes off the Pensacola Open record set by defending champion Gay Brewer with a 61 a year ago.

Brewer was tied for 75th as 92 players broke par. Dave Stockton, who has widened his stance "because I was falling off balance," and chunky Bob Murphy turned in 65s to share the runner-up slot behind Shaw.

Deadlocked at 66 were Ray Botts, Bobby Cole, Tony Jacklin, DeWitt Weaver, Rod Funseth, Dave Marr and George Archer, Gary Player opened with a 67, and Doug Sanders still not making his usual spring surge—shot a 71.

Announcing 4 defiantly "over-engineered"

An automotive expert previewed the 4 new Mercedes-Benz motor cars in our picture. His sum-up: "Over-engineered."

He was right. By most standards, these Mercedes-Benz motor cars are "over-engineered." They go far beyond the requirements of conventional automotive engineering.

Example: Every one of the 4 new Mercedes-Benz cars has power disc brakes on all 4 wheels. The same braking system used on 180-mph Grand Prix racing cars. Some critics would say this is too much of a good thing—needless in most driving situations. Mercedes-Benz engineers say, "Nonsense. Caliper-type disc brakes have proved, in test after test, that they provide the most precise braking possible—at all speeds. Put them wherever you've got a wheel."

Incidentally, Mercedes-Benz doesn't believe in naming its cars after animals, fish, and miscellaneous wildlife. After all, a car is a machine. It shouldn't sound like it belongs in a zoo. The names of the four new Mercedes-Benz models (the 250, the 230, the 220 Diesel, and the 220) simply indicate engine size. The 250, for example, displaces 2.5 liters.

What "over-engineering" means to you.

"Over-engineering" isn't a jazzy, hoked-up advertising phrase. It has meaning for anybody who's ever been dismayed by the lack of genuine engineering and craftsmanship in a contemporary motor car. It has meaning for anybody who's ever driven a car with mushy steering, lazy brakes, annoying rattles, and seats that leave you feeling like you took a long spin in a cement mixer.

"Over-engineering" is reflective of a basic Mercedes-Benz attitude, best expressed by Automobile Quarterly Magazine: "The prime concern of Mercedes-Benz has always been engineering—not styling, or sales, or what the rest of the industry is doing."

"Over-engineering" makes the new line of Mercedes-Benz cars handle differently, steer differently, brake differently than any conventional automobile on the market. They are, in fact, decidedly unconventional motor cars. Here are some facts to prove it:

- Unitized Body and Chassis. Most conventional automobiles have a separate body and chassis, held together with bolts. After a while, the bolts can work loose and rattle. On a rough road, the racket can be deafening.

Mercedes-Benz engineers insist that their cars deliver rattle-free performance. That's why the body is welded to the chassis with 10,000 individual welds. The result: a single structure of immense strength and rigidity. After 50,000 miles or so, you may begin to wonder if your Mercedes-Benz will ever rattle.

- Independent Suspension. On some cars, you get an alarming sensation if you brake or accelerate suddenly on a washboard road. The rear wheels shudder, and the whole car shakes violently. This can happen if the car has a conventional rigid "beam" axle.

Mercedes-Benz engineers patented an all-independent suspension that gives each wheel the freedom to move up and down without disturbing the others. On a washboard road, the suspension is soft enough to smother road jolts. On a tight curve, it's firm enough to fight body sway.

This unique suspension system is one of more than 5,200 basic engineering patents held by Mercedes-Benz.

- "Fatigue-proof" seats. Take a day-long trip in some cars and you'll come

A word about that word "Announcing"

Mercedes-Benz does not announce new models very often. There are no annual model change-overs. And "planned obsolescence" has never been part of the Mercedes-Benz philosophy. Nor will it be (the engineers are pretty defiant about that, too).

When a new model is introduced, it is only when significant engineering advances can be most fully realized by designing an entirely new car.

Even then, new models are not introduced to meet the frantic schedules of the "announcement season." They are put on the market when Mercedes-Benz engineers say the cars are ready—not a day sooner.

For these 4 new models, the engineers spent 5 years making sure—from drawing board to the test track to the dealer's showrooms today. The wait is worth it. These are the best automobiles Mercedes-Benz has ever built.

The new 250: a 4-door sedan with the agility of a sports car. One reason: a patented suspension with two anti-sway bars.

The 4 new cars hurtle around a "walled-in" turn at the Mercedes-Benz test track. Here, centrifugal force can triple the weight of the car—a brutal test of the suspension. Come test one of the new models yourself. (See address below.)

cars from Mercedes-Benz. On display today.

out feeling like a damp wash-rag. Those seats that felt so good at first turned out to be too soft in the long run.

Mercedes-Benz cars are built to be as comfortable as they are roadworthy. Orthopedic physicians were called in to help design the seats so that you'll have proper back support on cross-country tours as well as short hops to the shopping center. When you slip into one of these carefully contoured seats, it will feel firm at first, but once you get used to it, you'll never settle for "marshmallow" seats again. Mercedes-Benz engineers have respect for your backbone.

Indefatigable engines. If it was possible to cruise for hours in your car at full throttle, what do you think would happen? Chances are, you'd reduce the motor to a smoking ruin.

Mercedes-Benz engines are designed to cruise at full throttle all day long, because on the wide-open highways of Europe, they often do! The engine of every

Give the steering a real workout. The new Mercedes-Benz 250 goes exactly where you aim it—doesn't wander, weave, or wallow—even on hairpin turns.

Mercedes-Benz automobile is assembled to aircraft tolerances. The bearings, for instance, are machined to 4/10,000ths of an inch—about one-eighth the size of a human hair.

To help you decide.

The only way to appreciate Mercedes-Benz features and philosophy of "over-engineering" is to take a demonstration drive.

Here's a fact-capsule on each of the four new cars, to help you decide which one you'd like to test drive:

The 250: "A 3,000-pound sedan with the handling ability of a sports car."

The 250 is the premier model of the new Mercedes-Benz motor cars. Top speed of the 250 is comparable to a standard V-8, yet its fuel economy is that of a Six. Its outside dimensions are close to a domestic compact, but inside measurements are nearer to those of a full-size luxury car. "Over-engineering" makes it worth every penny of its $5,060.*

The 230: "For those who want superb engineering in a modestly priced car."

The 230's engine is a little smaller, simpler, and less powerful than the 250's, but its overhead camshaft engine still squeezes power and economy from every drop of gas. If you like the 250 but don't demand its highly sophisticated engine, you could pocket a tidy saving. The 230's price is a modest $4,544.*

The 220 Diesel: "So economical, it doesn't even use gasoline."

This is the one car in the Mercedes-Benz line that runs on Diesel fuel. The sturdy Diesel engine does away with carburetors, spark plugs and other paraphernalia of the conventional gasoline engine, yet has enough power to cruise at 80 mph (where the law allows). The 220 Diesel is more expensive than conventional economy cars, yet it could save you more money in the long run (say, 100,000 miles or more) than the flimsiest little economy car you could buy. Price: $4,494.*

The 220: "For people who are diffident about Diesels."

The 220 is exactly the same car as the 220 Diesel except that it does not have a Diesel engine. The 220 has a ruggedly powerful engine that sips gasoline at a miserly rate. Price: $4,360.*

Take a test drive

We invite you to test drive these models yourself. Right now, they are on display in our showroom—ready for your inspection. Kick the tires. Slam the door. Raise the hood. Get behind the wheel.

Then make your own decision about "over-engineering." You'll probably find it boils down to this: "Do you want more engineering than most cars offer you these days? Do you want a car that's built to run long after 'planned obsolescence' has antiquated conventional cars? Do you want a car that has more in reserve than you may ever need?"

If that proposition sounds interesting, come in today—and see 4 new motor cars that were "built to be the best, not the best seller."
