and Shoe, told the board that these plans would be ready for the acceptance of bids within two weeks. The new structure, which is to be erected on the PTI Campus on the north side of the present administration building, has funds totaling $644,000.00 available and budgeted for its construction.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber, Chairman of the Board, told the members last night, "This is just the beginning of a dream come true. Hours and days of hard work and planning by members of the building committee and the board of trustees have gone into this dream."

President William E. Fulford pointed out that the new building, when completed, will mean much to the citizens of Pitt County and their children. "Pitt Technical Institute is moving toward the reality of providing greater facilities in order to be of greater service to the citizens of Pitt County. The new building will combine beauty with functionalism that will house programs and provide services which are desperately needed. The new building will be equipped with the latest and most modern educational hardware which will help facilitate the teacher-learning process. For example, the building will house a multi-media learning system which provides the means by which the institution can transmit simultaneously to any four classrooms; film, film strips, transparencies and video-tape, Fulford explained.

The Board of Trustees, upon hearing the recommendations of President Fulford approved educational leave for three staff members who are to complete work toward their doctorates. Those approved were Joe Downing, director of extension; Willard Finch, director of evening programs and Edward Bright, director of general adult education.

Board members present for last night's meeting were; Chairman Robert L. Humber, Corey Stokes, A. B. Whitley Jr., Bob Ramey, Ed Davenport, Joe Taft and Vernon White.

Pitt Tech personnel in attendance were President Fulford, W. H. Howell, director of technical-vocational programs and administrative assistant to the president and Mrs. Elizabeth Dudley, secretary to the president and to the board of trustees.

The lieutenant governor said he was "very pleased" with the response received throughout Pitt County and on the campus of East Carolina.

Scott said top priority was due in the campaign issues of education, roadbuilding, and law and order. On the question of road improvements, he said, "I've traveled these roads many times and no one has to convince me of the need for improvements."

Campaign manager Hugh C. Winslow and Troy Dodson, both of Greenville, accompanied Lt. Gov. Scott on his tour of Pitt County.

After a busy day in the East, Scott left for Charlotte where he was scheduled to open headquarters today.

Trust And Confidence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for two years and have two adorable babies. Right now he is away in the army. He's been gone five months and this is the first time we have ever been separated.

So far I have received 56 letters from him and in each one he tells me how much he loves me, and misses me. And he never fails to say that he is being TRUE to me.

I believe him, Abby, but when I tell this to the other wives they laugh at me and when they aren't with the one they love, they love the one they're with. This hurts me very much.

I would like your honest opinion, Abby. Are all men alike?

WORRIED
DEAR MRS. B.: No. Your husband's sense of humor is out of joint. Tell him to think of a more humane way to make a "little man" of his son.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CURI- OUS": While a deficiency of shame him into acting more like a "little man." This hurts the boy so much he goes to his room and cries.

My husband tells me that I have no "sense of humor," but I can't see anything funny about this kind of teasing, can you?

UPSET MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I advise you to start talking to Rick, and encourage him to talk to you. There may be a very good reason why Rick wants to marry this girl in such a hurry.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please set me straight on a problem that has me worried.

Could calling a little five-year-old boy "Mary" (just to tease him) leave any lasting emotional scars in later years? I'm afraid it might.

My husband calls out little boy "Mary" when he wants to Zimmerman, 39, holds a law degree from Duke University and owns two businesses in Durham. He is past state director of the Durham Jaycees, past vice-president of the Durham Toastmasters International, a past member of Durham Planning Council and currently a member of the board of directors of Durham Children's Museum. Women's News Service CAPE TOWN — It was the morning of Jan. 2 that they operated on Phil. I was visiting him the evening before. He had been under sedation, and when he woke up he saw that his water and tablets had been taken away and he wanted to know what was going on.

"Can't you guess?" I asked him. "It might be tonight." Before Phil was sedated he told me the operation was a cakewalk. He said he had had a talk with one of the team about the anesthetics for the operation and said it couldn't be very much because, as a dentist, he knew exactly what they were giving him. He seemed very proud of that.

But then he got serious and asked me not to leave him until the operation. With a mask on my face, and in medical clothes, I sat there until the nurses persuaded me that it wouldn't take place until at least 10 or 11 in the morning.

I got home at 3:30 a.m. My daughter, Jill, was in Israel and had heard the news through the newspapers there. She was very upset and I felt I must write to her. I wrote until 5 o'clock in the morning. I don't know what I said and my daughter will never tell me, but she has said she was very proud to get it.

Doubts
At 9 o'clock that morning the phone jangled and I was told to come to the hospital immediately. When I arrived, Phil greeted me with an enormous smile. Suddenly I wondered why on earth I had given my permission. I had tremendous doubts. I couldn't kiss him. I just stood there looking and saying something silly like, "Keep smiling, I'll see you later."

Isn't it strange how you say the most stupid things at the most serious times? Then Phil was wheeled away for the operation. I didn't think I would see him later, and I don't think Phil did either.

Waking from a few hours sleep later that day, I was told that Phil had survived and that a new heart was now beating in his breast, that he had lost the heart that had given him so much anguish.

I was terribly relieved—but too stunned to really take it all in. Then came five, long, worrying days before I could go to the hospital to see Phil. They were days when every telephone call might shatter all my rising hopes. I was surrounded by friends, but still was lonely—as everyone is when in real trouble.

Reunion
I'll never forget the reunion. I was shivering with excitement. They dressed me up in surgical gown, boots, mask and cap so that only my eyes were showing. All the doctors and nurses were standing watching us as I went to see him through the glass partition.

When he saw me his whole face lit up and I felt all weak inside and more in love with him than I had ever been. He asked me how he looked. I told him he looked fantastic, just like he did years ago. His eyes were big and blue and shiny and, at last—at long last!—full of hope.

At first we were never left alone. Doctors and nurses were always with us, like very proud parents. They watched and heard everything. It was important that they did. But one morning the intercom system was switched on and, as I walked out, I heard Phil's voice saying, "Didn't I put on a good performance?"

I thought it wise to try to explain gently what an impact his operation had had on the world. But always he looked at me with wonder.

Sent Him A Tie
One of the things that did get through was when I told him about the letters of old students of the Royal Dental college in London, where he was captain of the Rugby team. He was thrilled when I told him they had sent him a tie.

I also told him that beer and champagne firms had asked what they could send him. He said, "What have I done to deserve all this? It's the doctor and the nurses who deserve it."

But as Phil began to recover, the doctors and nurses discreetly faded into the background and left the two of us alone so we could talk more intimately and, for the first time, about the future.

When I told him how I had been wine and dined over the weeks and brought flowers and never left alone, he told me with a smile, "I feel sorry for you, darling, when I come out. You'll be really tied down."

I told him I didn't care how long I was "tied down," as he put it, so long as he came out of the hospital and got back home.

What has encouraged me is to see the way he's eating. In the old days he was a very big eater, but in the few months before he went into the hospital he couldn't face food. Even chewing made him exhausted. That upset me as much as anything.

Daughter Home
Now he sends little messages home to Katie, our maid, telling her how much he is looking forward to her cooking. What really made his face light up was when our daughter, Jill, returned home from Israel. The three of us talked and cried together, and Phil said, "How is it that I'm so lucky to have two such wonderful women?"

I don't expect Phil to be a new man just because he has another man's heart. That would be silly. But it is true that we are venturing into the unknown. It's the bravery of Phil and the skill and dedication of Professor Barnard — and the good wishes from so many new friends and well-wishing strangers — that will light a beacon for me.

Program Given By Mrs. Walker

Mrs. Edith Walker gave the program at the meeting of the Dig and Delve Garden Club held Thursday morning at the Greenville Art Center.

Mrs. Walker, director of the art center, gave a brief history of the founding of the East Carolina Art Society and the art center. She directed a tour of the paintings of Henrietta Hoopes, currently on exhibit.

The Greenville Council of Garden Clubs maintains the grounds of the art center as one of its projects. Individual clubs in the council furnish flower arrangements for some of the functions of the art society. All meetings and flower shows of the Greenville Council of Garden Clubs are held at the art center.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Louis Collie and Mrs. Doug Jones.

Test your diamond I.Q.

Q. WHAT IS CONSIDERED THE BEST COLOR IN A DIAMOND?

A. Crystal-clear absence of any color in the body of a diamond is considered the finest quality. This is interior color, not the flashes of rainbow colors called "fire." Value falls as a tinge of yellow deepens the diamond in body color. Members of the American Gem Society use a number of scientific methods to determine the degree of yellow in each stone in order to set a proper value and quality grade. Come in soon and let us explain other pertinent points used by professional jewelers in determining diamond value.

LBJ Faces Hurdle Of 2-Front War

Withdrawal of Gov. Rockefeller from the race for the Republican presidential nomination caught political observers completely by surprise and left durable Richard Nixon with a clear shot at the nomination.

It was almost a foregone conclusion last Thursday that Gov. Rockefeller would announce that after careful consideration he had decided to allow his name to be entered in primaries for the Republican nomination. Wire services had even moved for their afternoon newspaper stories on Gov. Rockefeller to be released immediately after his affirmative announcement.

Then came the governor's statement removing himself from the race. He left the door cracked for a draft, should that come at the convention, but he left no doubt that he did not expect that to happen.

Beauty Emerges As Civic Issue

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — One of the most beautiful residential streets in North Carolina is Raleigh Road in Wilson. It is tree-lined, shady and cool, bordered by stately homes surrounded by well-kept lawns and gardens.

Until construction of the Wilson by-pass a few years ago, Raleigh Road carried traffic of a major highway, U. S. 264, into and out of the heart of the city.

Yet the street remained unchanged and its stately beauty was a symbol of the city itself. Visitors to Wilson traveled on Raleigh Road and remarked that it was a lovely city.

Now is the rush for urbanization and progress, planners have suggested that Raleigh Road should be a four-lane thoroughfare. The proposal is being opposed.

on paving and curb and gutter work in the Gaston County town.

In another year, Parker says, all streets in the town including annexed areas will be paved.

Would anyone want to buy a school at Jonas Ridge? The Burke County Board of Education has voted to sell the school at Jonas Ridge to the highest bidder—if anyone is interested. There will be a public auction.

The school is an old building in the tiny community atop the Blue Ridge. The locale was once an outpost for settlers going into the mountain region. Now, the old building is outdated and of no further use because of new facilities and consolidation.

The city of High Point is entangled in federal red tape trying to buy a gallon of pure alcohol, which is 200 proof. The police department needed the alcohol to check its "breathalyzer" machine, and the requisition was sent routinely through city purchasing agent Arch McMullan.

McMullan began a search for 200 proof alcohol and found a source which quoted a price of $28 per gallon — $7 per gallon plus $21 in taxes. McMullan was advised that the city probably was exempt from taxes.

McMullan went ahead and ordered the alcohol. But the red tape began unraveling. Federal officials in Atlanta refused to accept McMullan's exemption forms saying they needed proof that he was the purchasing agent for the city of High Point. McMullan has been the agent for 21 years.

Next, the federal agency sent a man from its Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit to see McMullan and ask more questions. He wanted to check the forms and find out whether anyone intended to try to drink that 200 per cent booze. McMullan plans to ask the City Council in High Point to adopt a resolution certifying that he is the city purchasing agent and qualified to buy a gallon of 200 proof liquor for city police purposes.

Whether the federal officials will approve remains to be seen.

And following his statement, neither does anyone else.

There is only a remote possibility that Richard Nixon will face another serious challenger for the GOP nomination this year. So remote is that possibility that the Republican organization — certainly that part of it which makes up the Nixon group — already is shifting from a campaign pointed toward the nomination to campaigning for general election votes in November.

The next several weeks could be crucial in shaping the course of the two-party campaign in this election year. Nixon has a clear field and almost three months to build party solidarity before the GOP national convention. On the Democratic side of the fence, in sharp contrast, disharmony is becoming more widespread as new candidates enter the race. Differences of opinion on domestic and foreign policies are becoming more sharply defined and more deeply seated. As the Republicans move toward unity behind a single candidate, the Democrats are driving deeper wedges into their own party ranks.

It will be an interesting exercise in the tough game of politics to see how President Johnson handles the two-fold attack on his administration from within his own party and at the same time fend off the increasing attack from the GOP.

Humphrey Has Role Of Critic

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Johnson continues to refrain from detailed comment on the report of his riot commission, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is emerging as the prime administration critic of the group's recommendations.

Johnson, under heavy attack from political opponents such as Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy for not speaking out in favor of the commission's proposals, had another chance at a news conference last Friday. As before, he remained largely noncommittal.

Noting that he thought it was "a very good commission," the President told reporters that "a good many of the things they recommended we had already made decisions on."

"We don't agree with everything in this report and they don't agree with everything we are doing," Johnson said, adding that "there is a general simpatico of views" between his Cabinet and the commission.

But Humphrey said the report's conclusion that "our nation is moving toward two societies," one white, one black, is "open to some challenge." He broadened his attack in a speech Sunday night.

He called for "historical perspective" on what has already been accomplished, thus reflecting the evident administration opinion that the report should have praised its efforts in the antipoverty, urban and education fields.

"We are not just starting out," Humphrey said, noting that "in the 1960s we have experienced the greatest and most hopeful breakthroughs in race relations in the past 100 years" both through government action and "the dramatic, nonviolent demonstrations for racial and economic justice."

The vice president charged that in saying "white society condones" the segregation and poverty of the Negroes ghettos, the commission "comes dangerously close to a doctrine of group guilt."

But the main thrust of Humphrey's criticism was directed against the commission's basic conclusion, the movement toward two societies "one black, one white—separate and unequal."

"This is only part of the picture, and I do not believe it is the main part," Humphrey said, calling separatism "a minority movement, led by black and white extremists who can take advantage of current frustrations but do not speak for the bulk of Americans black and white."

THE CAREER SITUATION

What is a career? Literally it means a running course, the pursuit of certain achievements, especially in public, professional or business life.

Very few people start out to achieve a definite career. Most of them go to work when they want more spending money. Now and again someone arises who before he is well into his or her teen age decides on a certain end to be achieved in life. But this is rare. Sometimes people say that they intend to get everything out of life they can and as a result become selfish, dissipated or perhaps even criminal. We may not like to admit the fact, but most of us drift through life. We did not take hold of life so much as life took hold of us. The influence of home, of school, of companions played considerable part in our decisions about what we should do and when. People of royal station are born into a life definitely prescribed for them, and the testimony seems to be that most of them deplore this fact. They wish they had more freedom.

Did you choose your own career? If you did, was the choice happy or unfortunate? If you had your life to live over again, what kind of career would you choose? Are you trying to choose a career for your sons and daughters? If so, is this wise?

The career situation is important and we should take lots of time to look it over and think it over.

Selective Philanthropy

On February 27, the House of Representatives put in a good day's work that passed with little notice in the news: Under the leadership of Ohio's Republican John Ashbrook, the House meat-axed an authorization for the national arts and humanities endowments.

A committee recommended $135 million for two years; the House trimmed this to $11.2 million for one.

Gratifying as this may appear, in another sense it was not such a good day's work after all.

For Ashbrook and his cohorts, in their zeal for economy, missed the larger question: How in the name of the Constitution can these particular programs be justified at all? By what authority does the Federal government assert power to give away the taxpayer's money to poets, novelists, actors and dancers?

In the vast super-market of Federal spending, the arts and humanities endowments admittedly are small potatoes. The artists and writers who benefit from Federal grants are a pitiful platoon against the legions of scientists—about 50,000 of them—who annually draw upwards of $2 billion in grants from the National Institutes of Health, the National Science Foundation and other science-oriented agencies.

These outlays for scientific research, much of it utterly remote from national defense, also cry out for congressional reexamination. It is an exceedingly dubious proposition that a $33,000 grant for study of Australian crickets represents a proper outlay of Federal funds. Save that for another day.

In the past fiscal year, the National Endowment for the Arts gave away $10,000 grants as follows: To Hayden Caruth, to complete a long poem; to Robert Duncan, to complete a new book of poetry; to Maxine Kumin, to complete a novel; to Robert Peterson, to complete a new book of poems and a sonnet sequence; to I. L. Salomon, to complete certain translations from the Italian.

Other grants of $10,000 each have gone to 11 novelists: William Gaddis, Ivan Gold, Caroline Gordon, Wallace Markfield, Tillye L. Olsen, Grace Paley, May Sarton, Michael Seide, Isaac Singer, Richard Yates, and Isabel Bolton.

Three grants of $10,000 each have been awarded as follows: "To Jeremy Lerner, to travel to the west coast; and to do research on a projected novel about life in Hollywood; to Harry H. Pearson, Jr., to travel the Buffalo River in Arkansas, to write about the river, and the Ozark hill people; and to Mona Van Duyn, to travel in the South and the Southwest, particularly New Orleans and New Mexico."

Sixty awards of $5,000 each have gone to painters and sculptors "in recognition of outstanding work and to encourage continued efforts in the field of visual arts." Three biographers have received grants of $5,000 each to assist them in their work. Seventy-four undergraduate students of architecture were selected last summer for grants of $500 each to cover travel in the U. S. and abroad.

Special attention might be directed to grants of $10,000 each awarded to six poets and writers—Kenneth Patchen, John Berryman, Louise Bogan, Malcolm Cowley, John Crowe Ransom, and the late Yvor Winters. These grants were given in part on a basis

Other Editors Saying While Getting Is Good

(Henderson Dispatch)

Members of Congress are in the process of giving themselves a tremendous pay boost, as if of a mind to get it while the getting is good.

The lawmakers are ignoring the cancerous spread of inflation and the fiscal worries of the government, and are laying the groundwork for a colossal grab in pay and fringe benefits.

They are not only not quenching the spreading fires of inflation but are adding fuel to the flames. But what does it matter so long as they can establish themselves in lavish income and luxurious living?

Maybe the people do not know what is going on, and, assuming that they do not and that they do not care, are shrugging shoulders in indifference. The plain fact is, however, that Congress, like the administration, is taking the bull by the horns while it can. Moreover, in the face of this dig, they appear to be oblivious to the difficulties of taxpayers.

Proposed pay increases are to from the present $30,000 to the fabulous figure of $45,000.

Talk, moreover, is that the nine members of the Supreme Court will be raised from the present $39,000 to $58,000 in their lifetime jobs with the privilege of retirement, upon eligibility, at full pay for life. All this, too, in the face of court decisions almost always sympathetic to the communists and their ilk.

Not many members of Congress are worth the $50,000 annual income. Not many, either, ever did or ever could learn that much in private life. In the light of the conditions, is there any wonder that congressmen scramble year after year to hold on to what they have, with the promise of lavish retirement income, whether they are defeated, or voluntarily step aside, as few do.

RFK's Team Rallies

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although brother-in-law Steve Smith is Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's campaign manager in both name and fact, Smith will be concentrating personally on two states: New York and California.

That tips off the strategy plotted by Kennedy's inner circle in long meetings here last week. Unable to peel off enough delegates piecemeal across the country to beat President Johnson, the Kennedy camp has determined it must put a hammerlock on New York's 190 convention votes in the Senator's adopted state and then hope to dislodge other delegations by beating the President in primaries — particularly California's June 4 showdown for 172 delegates.

Smith has been Kennedy's chief political lieutenant in New York the last three years. A week before Kennedy's announcement for President, Smith was in California on a mysterious political scouting expedition.

Smith's New York-California strategy came quickly into play. Within hours after the Senator's announcement, Smith and Kennedy were in Manhattan successfully pounding home a hard-sell to city Democratic leaders. Simultaneously, plans were made hastily for this weekend's campaign-opening excursion to California.

Disregarding the conventional regional arrangement for campaigns, the other major industrial states—Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and Illinois—will be under the supervision of Kenneth P. O'Donnell under the tentative battle plan.

In contrast to Smith's New York and California operations, O'Donnell's approach will be soft-sell—not urging state leaders to drop their commitments to President Johnson until such time as Kennedy scores primary victories.

Other Kennedy campaign plans: Theodore Sorensen will leave his New York law firm to take charge of Kennedy's programs and planning. Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy will soon begin traveling as a missionary for brother Bobby. Frank Mankiewicz, Kennedy's highly competent press secretary, will keep that job although Pierre Salinger will be given some special assignments in the press area.

The President's Brother

A last minute but futile effort to woo the two Democratic state chairmen who later endorsed Sen. Kennedy—Lester Hyman of Massachusetts and John Burns of New York—was made by the least publicized member of the Presidential family: Sam Houston Johnson, the President's brother.

A key political aide to his older brother in his early Texas campaigns, Sam Houston has been seen little in recent years. However, he has been living in the White House since last December while working on the President's private papers and recently was given a desk and office at the Democratic National Committee.

Moreover, Democratic state chairmen, unable to talk personally with the President at a White House reception for them March 7, did carry on amiable conversations with his brother.

Hyman, aggravated by the President's refusal to enter either himself or a stand-in candidate in the Massachusetts primary, was consoled by Sam Houston Johnson. (Continued On Page 5)

Instalment Credit Often Costly

By ELMER ROESSNER

The poor pay heavily for instalment credit, it was disclosed by Commissioner Mary Gardiner Jones, reporting on a study of customers of 96 credit retailers in the District of Columbia.

The median income claimed by the families was $348 a month, and the average family consisted of 4.3 persons. The Bureau of Labor Statistics calculates that $730 is required for the maintenance of a moderate family of four in Washington.

A study showed that the average gross margins of retailers selling to low-income families was nearly three times higher than those of general market retailers. "Thus," said Miss Jones, "goods purchased for $100 at wholesale would be marked up $59 on the average by the general market (and sell for $159), and be marked up by $155 by the low-income market retailer (and sell for $255). Miss Jones never once called them "box houses" or "school stores."

Fat TV Markup
"Identical models of television sets with identical wholesale costs of $109 were sold by the general market retailer for $130 and by the low-income market retailer for $220," she said.

"A stereo costing $33 was sold by the general market retailer for $37 and by the low-income retailer for $100." Not only were prices jacked up for the poor, but so were finance charges. Nearly half of the instalment credit sales by low-income market re-tail-ers were at effective annual financing rates ranging from 26 to 33 per cent. "Three-fourths of the general market instalment contracts were were written by low-income market retailers.

Hit By Garnishees, Repossessions
The FTC study showed that 11 of the 18 low-income market retailers reported 2,690 judgments in 1966, resulting in 1,568 garnishees and 306 repossessions.

"The low-income market retailers filed one suit for every $2,600 in sales; the general market retailers filed one for every $232,000 in sales," Miss Jones said. However, with all their high markups, high finance charges and tough collection policies, the low-income retailers made net profits only slightly higher, as a per cent of sales, than the general store retailers. And as a percentage of net worth, their profits were actually lower.

Close-Up Of Rob't Kennedy On Campaign Trail

Editor's note: Robert F. Kennedy has spent a week on that long, torurous trail he hopes to follow to the White House. Here is a look at the candidate, on the stump and off it, during a week of trials and triumphs.

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
Associated Press Writer
He sits at the back of the bus that roars through the night along a highway in upstate New York, and he sings softly, lazily, off-key to a tune stummed by a young guitarist.

Sheriff's Death Ruled A Suicide

CHARLES CITY, Va. (AP) — Virginia's only Negro sheriff, James N. Bradby, was found dead in his car Monday. A medical examiner said it was suicide.

Bradby, 38, was slumped over the steering wheel of the car. A hose was rigged through a taped-shut window vent from the exhaust pipe.

He had started a political career last fall by ousting Charles City Sheriff M. D. Lampkin, a Democrat, who had held the post for 43 years.

Bradby became a symbol to members of his race of their increasing political strength in the South.

"There was no indication of foul play," said Commonwealth Atty. J. Madison Macon Jr., who investigated the death.

He said Bradby was having no trouble with his job as sheriff, which he had held since the first of the year, but had been depressed during the past several days.

"He took on the problems of the people he had to deal with, and worried about them," Macon said. "I don't think he had any enemies."

He said the sheriff was well-liked by both whites and Negroes in Charles City County.

Believes Enemy Is Going All Out

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — In efforts to seize objectives in northern South Vietnam, the North Vietnamese army "has committed, I think, about all the forces it can spare to force the issue," the U.S. commander in the region said today.

"He's not the type to try something half way," said Marine Lt. Gen. Robert E. Cushman, chief of American forces in South Vietnam's five northernmost provinces.

Cushman said to force the issue, the enemy—starting with its lunar new year offensive—abandoned its protracted war.

"He (the North Vietnamese) was trying to keep pecking away for years until we got tired of it. We were winning that war slowly, we were making it a hamlet at a time. Now he is going all out," Cushman said.

He added that the enemy was building up his forces to conventional war level as early as a year ago in the northern region.

strife-ridden Democratic party are less alone in other seats as Robert Francis Kennedy rolls up his shirtsleeves and relaxes.

He bites the tip from a long, tapered cigar and fills the back of the overheated bus with its pungent aroma.

"Do you know 'We Shall Overcome'?" he asks. "Or is that passe?"

The young guitarist doesn't know it, but he tries, and Kennedy, at the end of a dreary night in the first week of his campaign for the Democratic nomination, sings softly.

Now and then, a party pol breaks off from his conference with a Kennedy aide and, turning in his seat, stares blankly at the man loling in the back of the bus.

The South Boston Irish crowd turns out under gray wet skies to yell and laugh and wave. The Kennedy brothers, Bobby and Teddy, are marching in the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

They smile and wave at the faces but as they march they talk in terse undertones about the challenge.

"I think we can do it if we make the big pull," Robert earnestly tells Edward, who looks dubious.

Behind them, a red-faced party functionary mutters to a hurrying assistant: "Where the hell is the little girl with the flowers?"

"Don't worry," says the other.

He has gags that he polishes and repeats as the campaign rolls along.

"My brother Teddy ordered 10,000 Kennedy buttons for us to bring here. But they all have his face on them. I told him he couldn't enter the race at this late date. That would be ruthless."

Or, "I know I am beginning to have some success. George Hamilton called last night and asked for my daughter's phone number."

The bus rolls through the New York night. Already two hours late for a Democratic dinner, the candidate becomes impatient as the bus stops at each county line to change sheriff escorts.

"Can't we just go on?" he says to no one in particular.

"My God, I just got in late this morning and I've got to be up early in the morning. Do we have to wait for the sheriff?"

The bus finally arrives at its destination, a "pavilion" in Johnson City, N.Y. The Democrats have long since eaten their testimonial dinner and have been drinking hard: Kennedy is so late that a reincarnation of Franklin D. Roosevelt couldn't bring the crowd to life.

A high school band tootles him through the door. Inside, another band, oblivious to the fact that they're stealing the 1964 campaign song of Lyndon B. Johnson, belts out several rounds of "Hello, Bobby, formerly 'Hello, Lyndon,'" and "Hello, Dolly!"

The people slap him on the head and pull his hair and touch his coat and scream his name and yell for autographs although he can barely lift his arm.

His hair tousled into a mop, his expensive suit ruffled, his shirtsleeves stained by sweat, he climbs atop the back seat of an open car and waves to the throngs pressing about him. He says, very softly amidst the din, "Hello. How are you? Thank you." And the people squeal and run along side and jump up and down.

His California campaign manager, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, tells him, "You know, this is better than President Kennedy got in California at the end of the 1960 campaign."

"Yes," says Robert Kennedy, waving and smiling.

Or, "I know I am beginning to have some success. George Hamilton called last night and asked for my daughter's phone number."

The bus rolls through the New York night. Already two hours late for a Democratic dinner, the candidate becomes impatient as the bus stops at each county line to change sheriff escorts.

"Can't we just go on?" he says to no one in particular.

"My God, I just got in late this

This man just wrote a check for more money than he has in the bank. Fortunately, we've got him covered.

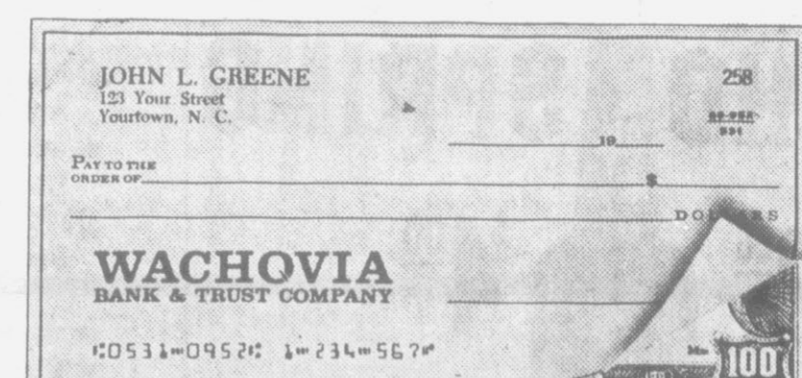

Which means that he won't have to worry about that check bouncing back to haunt him. He has a Wachovia Ready ReservAccount. And that means we'll add the extra money he needs to his Checking Account.

Automatically. That's how a Wachovia Ready ReservAccount works. It backs up your regular Checking Account with a cash reserve of from $500 to $5,000.

When you need extra money — for any reason—you simply write your personal check and Wachovia covers it. You repay in monthly installments. Or with a single payment, if you prefer. No telephone calls. No forms to fill out. Your credit has been established in advance.

And your reserve doesn't cost a nickel till you use it. Sound convenient? It is. And your Ready ReservAccount comes with the added convenience of a Wachovia Check Guarantee Card. Plus the economy of no-service-charge checking.

All of which makes it the most useful Checking Account in North Carolina. Why not apply for yours today? Because it's always comforting to know that you can write a check for more money than you have in the bank. Without getting caught short.

Ready ReservAccount. Only Wachovia has it.

Later during the reception, Burns complained to Johnson that Rep. Joseph Resnick, the LBJ candidate for the Senate in New York was attacking Bobby Kennedy all over the state. Sam Houston replied that he had no control over Resnick but stressed the virtues of party regularity. He pointed out that Lyndon B. A list of these grants, not only in the arts but also in the humanities, could be much extended. The question has to be raised again and again: What possible business is it of the Federal government, under the Constitution, to use tax funds for these purposes? How can this selective philanthropy be justified?

Learning The Facts In Distributive Education

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Some students at Farmville High School are learning and earning at the same time through the Distributive Education Program.

What is distributive education? It is a program operating through the public schools—with the cooperation of private businesses—to attract young people to careers in marketing and distribution, according to Charles Forbes, coordinator of the program at Farmville High School.

Basically, Forbes explains, the DE class program provides training for students who have an interest in marketing, merchandising or management.

Students are offered two courses in marketing and one course in distributive education is taught.

After completing the marketing course, students may take cooperative distributive education, including a one hour a day class, plus three or more other subjects needed for graduation. The work day for DE students usually begins about 1 p.m.

In all, 36 Farmville students are participating in the various classes connected with the DE program.

Included are five cooperative work students. Those workers earned $388.72 during the month of January, Forbes said.

The DE class workers are usually placed in retailing and wholesaling jobs. "Students are placed in jobs that fit what is taught in the classroom," Forbes said.

This working makes the local firms hiring the teenage workers in effect 'laboratories' where the student puts into practice what he has learned in the classroom, and allows the worker to broaden his field of experience.

Jobs under the program have to be approved by the coordinator and by the State Department of Public Instruction.

The working students not only receive grades from their instructors at school, but are graded by their employers, who also offer suggestions for improvement of the DE program, Forbes noted.

An outgrowth of the DE program is the Distributive Education Clubs of America. The DECA program provides added opportunity for members to develop socially and develop leadership abilities as they participate in the local, district, state and national levels of the club.

Sales demonstration contests and advertising contests are sponsored by DECA—giving members an opportunity to "outsell" other students and giving them experience in advertising.

The local DECA club, through a Creative Marketing Project, can be of service to retailers—possibly by making surveys for various business firms—and also provides a basis for competition between clubs in the district.

The Farmville DE club won the Creative Marketing Project in the district competition recently. The club did a shopping survey on the town of Farmville.

The students investigated why the Farmville citizens shopped in other towns, what products were missing in the Farmville stores that citizens shopped for, the advantages and disadvantages of shopping in Farmville.

A local student, David Floyd, won second place in the sales demonstration competition at the district meeting.

District Demos Prepare For Congressional Ball

Democrats from throughout the First Congressional District will converge on the Nation's Capital next weekend to join other North Carolinians in paying tribute to the state's Democratic members of Congress.

In particular, the First District delegates will be honoring their congressman, Rep. Walter B. Jones, who will be a guest of honor at the 32nd annual Congressional Banquet and Ball Saturday night, March 30, at the Sheraton Park Hotel.

The annual affair is sponsored by the North Carolina Democratic Club of Washington, D.C., a group of about 400 Tar Heels who hold various government posts in the Capital City.

According to preliminary indications, the First District delegation may number as many as 200. At least two busloads, one from Farmville and another from Ahoskie, are expected to make the trip. Many others will go in private cars.

Scheduled activities will begin at 4:30 p.m. Saturday when Congressman Jones will be host for a reception for First District folks in the Scott Room of the Gramercy Inn.

The banquet and ball, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., will include a few short speeches, an hour of professional entertainment and dancing to the music of one of Washington's top bands.

First District delegates will again be guests of their congressman on Sunday, March 31, for breakfast at 10 a.m. at the Gramercy Inn. Traditionally, many First District people have made the Gramercy their headquarters for the Congressional Ball weekend and again this year many have reservations there.

All interested Democrats may attend the festivities. Tickets for the banquet and ball are $10 each and may be obtained by contacting Floyd J. Lupton, Congressman Jones' administrative assistant, or other members of the Jones Washington staff (1115 Longworth House Office Building, Phone 202/225-3101). Members of the staff are also prepared to help make hotel reservations if contacted before noon on Thursday, March 28.

Guests of honor at the banquet and ball, in addition to Congressman Jones, will be Senators Sam J. Ervin Jr. and B. Everett Jordan, and seven other Tar Heel Democratic congressmen, L. H. Fountain, David N. Henderson, Nick Galifianakis, Horace R. Kornegay, Alton Lennon, Basil L. Whitner and Roy A. Taylor.

Dave DeBusschere's big play... which almost backfired...

DeBusschere, who scored 23 points in the 126-116 Pistons' victory...

He stole an errant Boston pass and drove in all alone toward the basket and dunked the ball...

Teammate Eddie Miles, though, racing down court, snared the rebound and dropped it in for a 116-112 Pistons edge.

In Western Division playoff action in Los Angeles, the Lakers took a 2-0 lead with an 111-106 victory over Chicago.

Dallas topped Houston 115-97 and Pittsburgh blasted Indiana 146-127 in American Basketball Association playoff contests.

Dave Bing topped Detroit with 24 points and five other Pistons were in double figures.

The third game of the series will be played in Boston Wednesday night.

The Lakers, who led all the way until a furious Bull surge tied the score at 100-all with 3:33 to play...

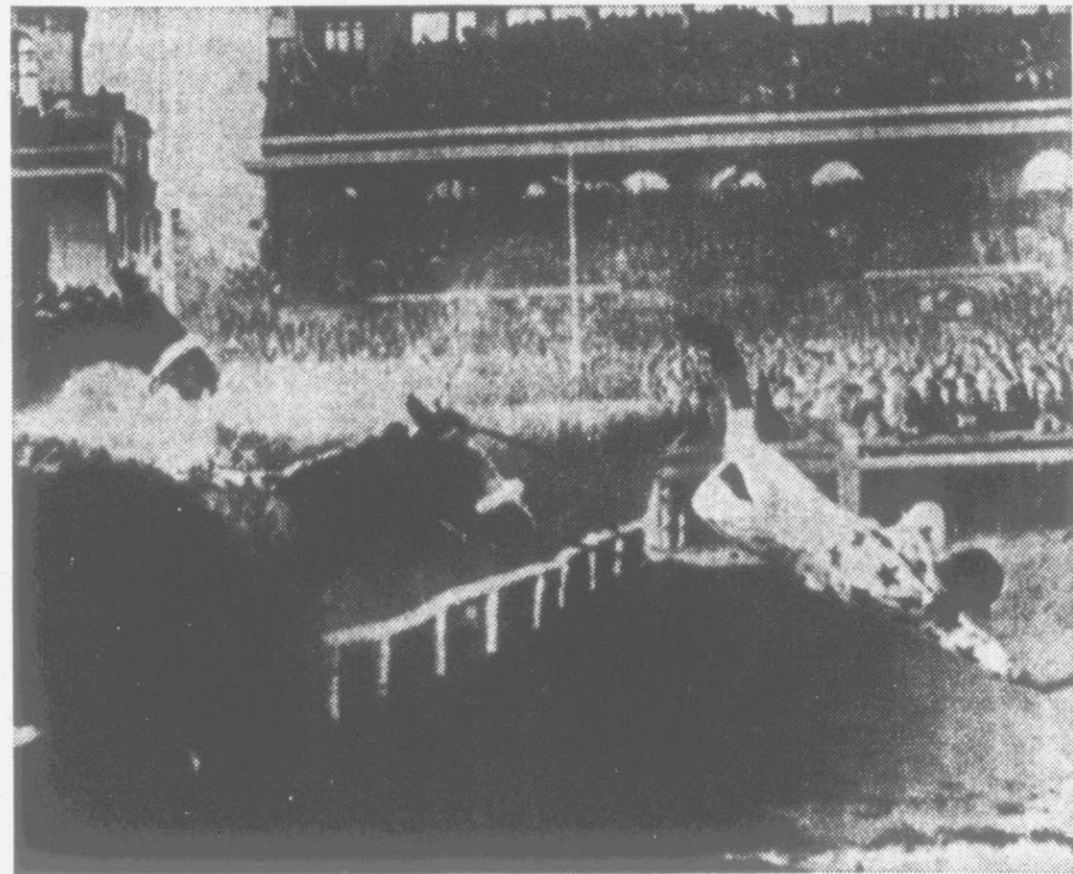

West, who finished with a game-high 35 points, got a three-point play to put the Lakers up 109-104 and ice their second straight victory in the best-of-7 series.

A free throw by Elgin Baylor and a Clark layup broke the 100-100 tie and Clark added two free throws with 11 seconds left.

Chicago's Flynn Robinson with 32 points and Keith Erickson with 18 led the late Bull rally. Baylor finished with 26 points and 16 rebounds and Clark had 15 points.

The third game in the series shifts to Chicago Wednesday night and all Bull Coach Johnny Kerr said was: "We're coming closer but we took a couple of bad shots toward the end. Overall we're playing better."

Tonight's playoff action has only one game, St. Louis at San Francisco, in the best-of-7 Western Division series, which is tied at 1-1. Wednesday New York plays at Philadelphia in the East. Each club has won one game.

Baltimore Pitchers Are Bringing Back Memories

By MIKE RECHT
It's only baseball spring training, but Baltimore pitchers are bringing back 1966 memories...

Oriole hurlers extended their shutout string to 23 innings Monday before the Chicago White Sox scored once, not enough as Baltimore beat the Sox 2-1 for its fourth straight victory.

Tom Phoebus, following a pair of two-hit shutouts, had Chicago blanked for four innings before Ken Berry homered for a 1-1 tie. But Phoebus, rookie Roger Nelson and Brad Dillman stopped the Sox the rest of the way...

Phoebus, Stu Miller, who pitched one shutout inning Friday, and Eddie Watt are the only pitchers involved in the whitewash string that remain from the 1966 staff that pitched Baltimore to the pennant and world series championship.

During last year's disappointing sixth place finish when sore arms and injuries hampered the hurlers, the Orioles came up with many new faces.

At the same time Detroit's pennant hopes suffered a blow when slugging Willie Horton bruised a shoulder tendon in a 5-1 loss to Atlanta as Tito Francona homered and later scored the winning run.

Horton, injured while making a tumbling catch in left field, is expected to be out a week as injuries that kept him out of about 50 games last year continued to plague him.

Rich Nye, the Chicago Cubs' pitching discovery in their 1967 surprise finish, held Cleveland to six hits and no walks in eight innings in a 7-2 victory.

Colgate Runs Past Pirates

Colgate University "won" a practice track meet held yesterday with East Carolina University.

The visiting team from Colgate which brought only a small team to the meet, was led by Pearman, who scored 18 points. He won the 100-yard dash in :09.8, the 220 in :22.1, the long jump with a leap of 23 feet, two inches, and was second in the javelin with a throw of 159 feet, seven inches.

No score was kept of the meet, since it was unofficial.

Two other outstanding Colgate performances were by Tom Allbright in the 800, with a time of 1:53.4 and by Meno in the two mile, with a time of 9:05.6. Allbright also anchored the mile relay team with a lap time of :47.0. The team time was 3:18.0.

East Carolina's 440 relay team won its event in :42.9, while Henry Coble took the javelin with a throw of 167-9. Peter Moe won the triple jump with a leap of 45-1, and the high jump at 6-0.

John Murray also won the pole vault.

Coach Bill Carson expressed pleasure at some of the other Pirate times, including a :10.0 for Bill Frisby in the 100 and a :22.6 in the 220.

Two school records were snapped, as Ken Voss ran the two mile in 9:11.9, and the mile relay team finished in 3:23.4.

The Pirates travel to The Citadel on Wednesday and will be in Gainesville, Fla. for the Florida Relays during the weekend.

Rose Golfers Defeat Pack

Rose High School's golf team gained another victory yesterday, defeating Washington, 309-346.

Jim Ward led the Phants with a 74, while Ben Harrison had a 76, Phil Harvey had a 77 and Carl Pierce had an 82. Harvey scored an eagle on the 15th hole of the match.

In tennis, however, the Rose netters continued winless, dropping a 9-0 decision.

Archer's 63 Wins Pensacola

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Lanky George Archer says he would like to cut down on his golfing trips.

Archer almost passed up the Pensacola tournament, but his wife, Donna, talked him into playing.

"I had a premonition that he might win," said Mrs. Archer. "Beside, we had flown to Florida and I didn't want us to fly back after just one tournament."

Archer almost dropped out in the first round when he became sick to his stomach while playing, but he shot a 66 and decided to keep going.

Archer, who trailed both of the other contenders most of the round, shot in front with a closing string of birdies. He sank birdie putts of five, eight and five feet on the last three holes.

Marr finished with a 65 to tie Jacklin, who turned in a 66. They won $7,800 each for their 269 totals. Jacklin, making his best showing ever, reportedly is the first English golfer to finish as high as second on the American tour.

complete World Series line-up was in action was March 22. The proceeded to shut out Pittsburgh, regarded as a top challenger.

Cepeda has been hitting home runs. Brock has been slugging and stealing bases. Bob Gibson, the ace of the staff, allowed only one run in his first 11 innings.

Due to the patchwork schedule of early season, Schoendienst probably will use only four starters in the early games. They are Gibson, Nelson Briles, Steve Carlton and Dick Hughes.

Ray Washburn and Larry Jaster are ready to take a turn. Mike Torrez and Hal Gilson, two graduates from the Tulsa farm have looked the best of the new boys. Wayne Granger, another Tulsa product, also pitched well.

The Cards have picked up infielder Dick Schofield from the Los Angeles Dodgers and still have Phil Gagliano and Ed Spiezio for either infield or outfield.

Bucs Win First, 5-2; Then Take Second, 7-4

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
The East Carolina University Pirates swept a pair of games from the University of Virginia yesterday in the first doubleheader of the season, 5-2 and 7-4.

The victories upped the Pirate mark for the year to 3-1, while Virginia was dropping its opening contest for an 0-2 mark.

The same two teams were to meet this afternoon in a single contest.

East Carolina got ample hitting in the first game, pounding out eight, while Sonny Robinson and Dennis Burke held Virginia to just three.

In the second contest, the Pirates took advantage of some timely walks and a two-run homer by Dave Winchester to overcome a stronger Virginia club.

East Carolina opened the action in the first inning of the opener. Dave Goings led off with a double and scored on Carey Anderson's sixth straight hit. The Bucs went on to load the bases in the inning, but couldn't drive in another run.

In the third, the Pirates picked up what proved to be the winning runs, as four came across. Anderson led off, reaching on an error, and Wayne Vick singled him home. Vick went to second on the attempted cutoff of Anderson, and then made third on a wild pitch.

Winchester walked and Ken Graver singled in Vick. Sonny Robinson, making his first start of the year on the mound, singled to drive in Winchester and Graver and boost the lead to 5-0.

Virginia came back with its first run in the top of the fourth. Yates Hall slammed a triple to deep center, and then scored on a wild pitch.

In the fifth, the Cavaliers picked up their second run. Dave Counts banged out a double and Calvin Moore singled. Moving Counts to third, Dave Greer hit into a fielder's choice, but Counts scored to make it 5-2, the final margin.

Robinson, who went five innings and got the win, allowed three hits and struck out four. Burke, who relieved him, was credited only with a walk in two innings.

Anderson again led the hitting, getting two for four.

In the second game, the Pirates threatened to get a no-hit victory, that is a win for themselves, without getting a hit. In the first frame, they pushed across four runs, but didn't manage to get a hit until the third inning.

Bobby Norman led it off with a walk and Dennis Vick and Anderson promptly followed him on base the same way. Jim Snyder was hit by a pitch, forcing in Norman. Wayne Vick walked to drive in Dennis Vick, and Winchester was hit by another pitch, scoring Anderson. George Sweat hit into a fielder's choice, driving in Snyder with the fourth run.

The Bucs got their first hit in the third, and brought two more runs across. With two out, Wayne Vick slammed a double. Winchester stepped in and slammed a homer, scoring Vick ahead of him for a 6-0 edge.

Virginia picked up its first run of the second game in the fourth. Steve Bryant reached on an error and advanced on a single by Yates Hall and a fielder's choice on Bill Yates. Another fielder's choice, by Lou Paulson scored Bryant.

The Bucs loaded the bases in the bottom of the fourth, but failed to score, then came back with one more run in the fifth. Stu Garrett was hit by a pitch and stole second. Richard Colorado singled him to third and Ron Hastings executed the perfect squeeze bunt, scoring Garrett.

Virginia rallied for three runs in the sixth, cutting the lead to the final 7-4 margin. Hall singled and Yates followed with a hit. Bruce Boger walked, loading the bases, and Chuck Seabolt slammed a double to center, driving in all three runners.

Hastings got credit for the win in the second game, although Burke came on again in relief in the final frame. Hastings allowed eight hits, struck out six and walked two.

The Bucs, who had five men hit by pitches during the afternoon, scattered their hits in the second game, with no one getting more than one.

Following today's third meeting with Virginia, the Pirates play host to Dartmouth on Thursday and to William & Mary on Saturday. The William & Mary game will not count in the Southern Conference standings.

$186,425 Earned By State Fair

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1967 North Carolina State Fair earned a record total of $186,425. Fair manager Art Pitzer reported to the state Board of Agriculture Monday that earnings of the 1967 fair almost quadrupled the 1966 fair's profits of $47,000, and was about $100,000 more than any previous year. Last October's fair produced a profit in nearly every department, Pitzer said, in contrast to past years when it barely broke even or went into the red. Fair publicity director Douglas Cox attributed much of the big increase in revenue to the policy of charging eachers and students half price for admission. In previous years they have been admitted free. Figures showed that paid attendance at the 1967 fair came to 347,536 in comparison with 162,640 for the 1966 fair.

Pitzer told the board of agriculture a portion of the fair profits has been earmarked for improving facilities at the fairgrounds.

Treasury Official Warns Nation Can't Afford Guns And Butter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Treasury official has told Congress the nation can't afford both guns and butter—to wage war in Vietnam while pressing ahead with domestic programs.

Undersecretary Joseph W. Barr's assessment before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came Monday as President Johnson was telling a labor group: "We will do what must be done—we will do it both at home and we will do it wherever our brave men are called upon to stand."

Czechs To Name New President

PRAGUE (AP) — The Czechoslovak National Assembly will meet Saturday to elect a president to replace Antonin Novotny, the old guard veteran who stepped down last Friday after months of pressure from new liberal leaders.

Informed sources said the election date was fixed today at a meeting of the parliament's presidium. The sources said they did not know how many candidates would be in contention.

Frontrunners, however, include Josef Smrkovsky, 56, forestry minister and the most prominent survivor of the bloody Stalinist purges, and Gen. Ludvik Svoboda, 73, one-time commander of Czechoslovak forces in the Soviet Union in World War II.

The election will be held in the medieval Vladyslav Hall in Prague's Hradcany Castle complex overlooking the Vltava River. It will come two days after the new leadership under party chief Alexander Dubcek presents the party's central committee with a program outlining sweeping legal and administrative changes in line with the democratization process already under way.

Barr contended: "We are a great and powerful country and we can do a lot." But, he added, only "if we are willing to get down to the subsistence level like the Russians or someone else" can both war and domestic needs be fully met.

"I'll either get fired or impeached before I get out—and either one is not too bad, Barr told the Senate panel after declaring senators had an obligation to "vote for fiscal responsibility."

He said the administration anticipates a "back to back" deficit of $20 billion for the current fiscal year and the one beginning July 1 if Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge isn't enacted.

Following Barr's appraisal of the financial problems posed by the war and domestic needs, Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said, "It takes the butter out of it when we reduce our standard of living." Barr agreed.

He said if the surtax is enacted, the current fiscal year's deficit will be $2 billion smaller than the $20 billion he forecast, while the tax hike combined with spending cuts could keep the fiscal 1969 deficit down to $8 billion.

Election Board Chairmen Get Raleigh Briefing

RALEIGH (AP) — About 150 county election board chairmen and executive secretaries were given a rundown on election operations by state election officials at a meeting Monday.

Executive secretary Alex Brock of the state Board of Elections, who presided, told the officials that ballots for the May 4 primary have been printed. He said there are 1,350,000 Democratic ballots and 275,000 Republican ballots. The figures were based on party registration.

State board chairman Lee Smith outlined rules compiled by the board for handling of challenges. He said most challenges "arise from partisan politics."

legislative conference he will seek to build "a better America in a climate of law and order" while meeting U.S. commitments in Vietnam.

The President's war course won renewed endorsement from AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Meany urged Americans "to let Hanoi know they can't win at the ballot box in this country what they can't win in Asia."

He also took issue with political opponents of the President who he said label the Vietnam conflict "Johnson's war." It is no more Johnson's than it was the war of former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower or John F. Kennedy, said Meany.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., told the Senate the war will go on for another year as he argued for enactment of the surtax.

Smathers said "even if some dove, for lack of a better word, gets elected" president he won't

Church Leaders See Signs Of Grass Roots Merger Action

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—

Church leaders see signs that unity among Protestants is moving ahead of formal church authorization for it.

"While we're talking about it, it's happening," one theologian remarked.

The point was brought out repeatedly as the Consultation on Church Union today sought to map procedures for merging 10 American Protestant denominations with a total of 25.5-million members into a single church.

Declaring that time has run out for long-term, gradual steps in the face of the swift changes, the Rev. Dr. George Johnston, dean of United Theological College, Montreal, told the meeting: "The time for union was the day before yesterday."

Moore Stresses Foreign Marts

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore has asked the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development to redouble its efforts to find foreign markets for North Carolina products.

Moore said he took the action as the result of a recent call by President Johnson for a stepped up export drive.

Cord, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, sounded a similar note, citing the rise of a "radical, practical Christianity" in which various believers spurned church divisions to join in united action.

"We stand at a crucial juncture not in the sense of whether we go or not, but in the sense of whether we can be creative enough to reflect what is already happening in Christianity today," he said.

A study report presented here also described widespread and increasing interdenominational operations in many matters, at national as well as local levels, despite the continued official separation of the churches.

"The preservation of denominational identity in all situations is no longer taken for granted as normal," the report said.

The consultation's seventh annual meeting opened Monday, involving delegations from the participating denominations as well as observers from about 20 other churches, including Roman Catholicism.

Participants already have agreed on principles of faith and order, allowing wide diversity in worship forms, but now are trying to work out the mechanics of linking up their different organizational structures.

A panel of lawyers, headed by Oliver Schroeder of Cleveland's Western Reserve University, said there are no legal barriers to the project.

Book Of Golden Deeds Presentation Thursday

The Greenville Exchange Club's "Book of Golden Deeds" Award will be presented for the 14th time at a banquet here Thursday night.

The program is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the Silo restaurant.

The award has been given annually by the Greenville group since 1953 for "outstanding service to the community, freely and voluntarily given . . . for civic, social and religious projects" that the recipient has taken on without remuneration, according to club president Dr. Tom Patterson.

The 1966 award was presented to Dr. Ray D. Minges for outstanding community service. Dr. Minges was the first Exchange to receive the "Book of Golden Deeds" award.

Nominations are made by various civic clubs and organizations. Selection of the winner, based on service to the community, is made by an anonymous committee composed of outstanding community leaders.

The award to be presented Thursday night is for service during the year 1967.

The "Book of Golden Deeds" awards originated more than 40 years ago with the Huntington, Indiana Exchange Club.

Suspect Letters 'Used' By Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has described as probable propaganda North Korea's distribution of letters from captive crew members of the USS Pueblo, three of which were sent to Michigan Gov. George Romney.

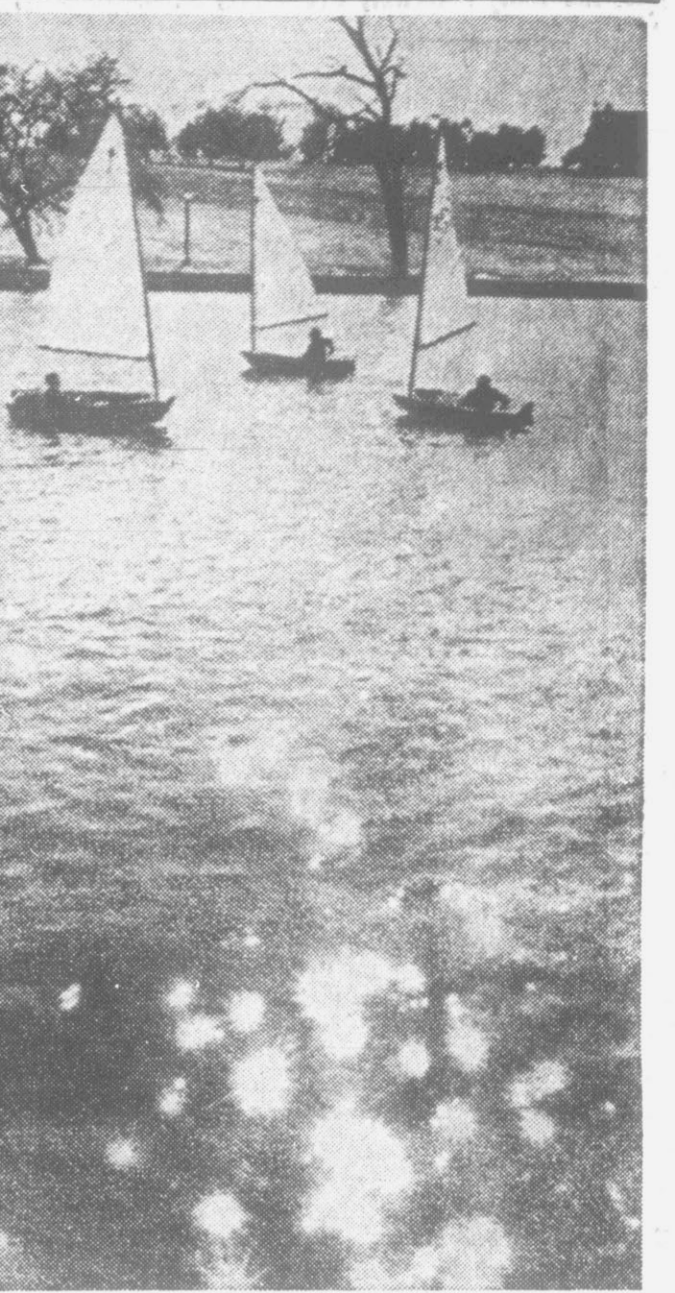

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said Monday delivery of the letters to the families of crew members "with the consent of North Korean authorities, has propaganda overtones."

North Korea has demanded a U.S. apology for allegedly sending the Pueblo into its waters on a spying mission. The intelligence-gathering ship, with 83 men aboard, was captured Jan. 23. One crewman died later.

Romney's office said the governor has received letters from three men identifying themselves as members of the Pueblo crew.

The letters were received last week and asked Romney for any assistance possible but "did not deal in specifics," the governor's office said.

A North Korean broadcast heard in Tokyo today claimed that nine more letters of appeal have been written by Pueblo crewmen and sent to President Johnson, the U.S. government, various politicians and crewmen's families.

McCloskey declined comment on the substance of the 12th private meeting between U.S. and North Korean negotiators in Panmunjom Friday or an open session Sunday night, Washington time. He said if the talks are to be productive they must remain substantially private.

The Worry Clinic The Marketable Skill Is A Basic Necessity

Nancy is like most of the young people who enter college, for she thinks a diploma should be her goal. Instead, she should be seeking a "marketable skill," as her distinguished father so aptly points out. Alas, ye have thousands of college graduates who can't do anything useful in modern society!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE F-526: Nancy, aged 18, was being chauffeured to the campus by her parents to enroll as a university freshman. Her father, President H. D. Buckingham, of the National College of Business, suddenly asked her:

"Nancy, why are you going to the university?"

"Why, daddy, to earn a bachelor's degree," she replied.

"Wrong," her distinguished father replied.

"You should be hoping to meet an ambitious young man who will make you a good husband."

"But that isn't all! You should also be acquiring a marketable skill, so you could support him and your children, if necessary."

Alas, far too many college youth look upon a college diploma as an end in itself.

That is wrong! The diploma is merely the fulcrum that should be used to pry loose a good job.

And the real lever that is needed to utilize that fulcrum is what Prexy Buckingham has so aptly termed a "marketable skill."

Even if you hold a diploma in your hand, after four years of college residency, what does it offer an employer that will cause him to give you a job?

Are you qualified to teach school, as buy a major in Education while gaining that 4-year diploma?

Without the special courses required to prepare teachers for classroom work, the diploma will still not even get you a teaching job!

Can you typewrite? Or take shorthand? Keep books or operate modern computer machines and the other specialized equipment of an office?

Are you preparing to preach? Or practice law or medicine or dentistry?

Four years of college, even though you obtained straight "A" grades, don't mean you have a "marketable skill."

And in this modern age, employers want skills that you can put to the test immediately!

Schools of Journalism have thus sprouted up all over the land to practicalize the former far-fetched English teaching.

Business Colleges now are flooded with Liberal Arts students who found that even after a 4-year diploma, they still had no "marketable skill."

If you have taken chemistry or agriculture or music in college as part of your qualification for a 4-year diploma, you may be able to "market" that knowledge immediately.

For you can often get a good position with a chemical plant where you can put that previous chemistry to work. The same is true of agriculture or even music.

But most of the Liberal Arts history, sociology and cultural courses are only helpful as background enrichment, but they are not "marketable skills."

It is far better to go to a Business College for a year before you enter Liberal Arts, than to do so afterwards, for then your marketable office and secretarial skills will help you pay your way through the 4-year Liberal Arts college.

held the North-South hands and proceeded to reach a somewhat aggressive contract of six diamonds, and with the aid of some favorable distribution South, the declarer, nearly succeeded in landing the slam.

The American defender in the West seat, opened the three of hearts and East's queen dislodged declarer's ace. A small diamond was led and dummy's jack was successfully finessed. The king and ace of diamonds were played, clearing up the trump situation.

Declarer led the nine of spades and West covered with the queen to force out dummy's king. The closed hand was reentered with the ace of clubs so that South could put thru the seven of spades. West was careful to cover this spot with the eight and North's ten was the trick.

A heart ruff put declarer in again to lead the six of spades. West topped him once more with the jack—driving out the ace.

The only outstanding spades at this point were the dummy's four and West's five. Had their possession been reversed, declarer would have had a parking place for one of his small clubs. As matters stood, he was obliged to play the ace and another club in the hope that the suit would divide evenly. When East proved to have both missing clubs, however, he was able to take two tricks in the suit to set the slam contract.

America's profit on the deal totaled 500 points—50 for the set plus the 450 obtained at the other table.

The bidding:

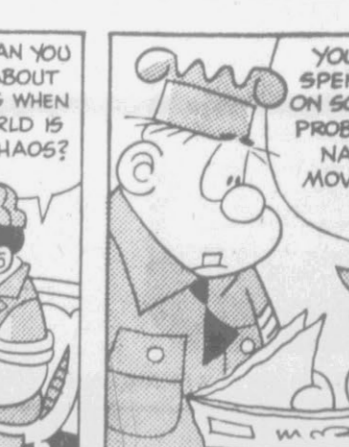

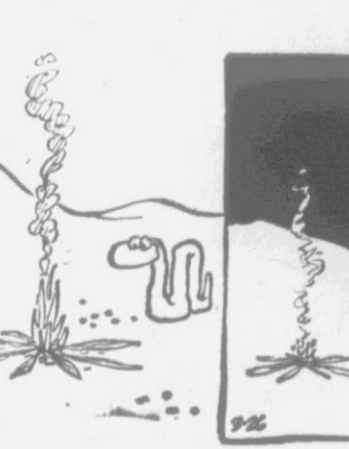

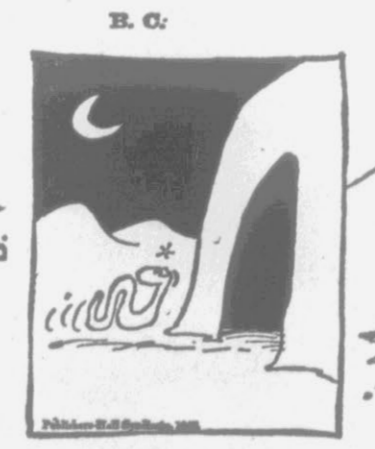

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

An apparently innocuous spot card—the five of spades—played a crucial role in this hand taken from a recent World Championship contest between the United States and Italy. Possession of the spade five by West resulted in a thousand point saving on the deal for the Americans.

At the table where the United States team held the North-South cards, the bidding proceeded as depicted in the diagram. A contract of four spades was reached with North as the declarer. The king of hearts was led and North proceeded to make an overruff by ruffing two hearts in dummy and taking a successful diamond finesse in order to establish that suit. In all, he lost only two trump tricks. The profit to the United States was 450 points [150 for the trick score plus 300 for a nonvulnerable game].

At the other table, Italy

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rallied early this afternoon, heading for its first real advance in six sessions.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.94 at $30.21.

Gains outstripped losses by a 2-to-1 ratio on the New York Stock Exchange. Although on Friday the Dow industrials made a slight gain, losses were far more numerous than gains on the Big Board.

The market was higher from the start. Brokers saw the light volume on Monday's decline and the record cash position of the mutual funds as reasons for an advance.

Blue chips and glamour stocks went ahead together. Gold-mining stocks also made gains, reflecting higher prices for gold bullion in foreign markets.

Cigarette producers were irregularly lower following a government report that cigarette smoking may be declining for the first time since the 1964 surgeon general's report on cancer and smoking.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .4 at 299.5 with industrials up .7, rails up .2 and utilities up .3.

The number of certain noxious weed seed permitted in a bag of seed was reduced by the board, and the standard germination for field corn was raised from 70 to 80 per cent and for cowpeas from 60 to 70 per cent.

Johnson Choice For HEW Conflict Said Not A Factor In Spock Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wilbur J. Cohen, nominated by President Johnson to be secretary of health, education and welfare, says the White House riot commission's report over-emphasizes "white racism."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has made a similar comment about the report. But the head of an administration antipoverty program contended racism exists in and has been encouraged by the white churches of America.

Cohen told a news conference Monday: "I've thought a good deal about that term 'white racism' it bothers me a good deal, because I think you could also say there is black racism and brown racism and red racism."

He said he doubts that the commission's use of the term "white racism" is helpful.

The National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders said in its report earlier this month that "white racism" was a basic factor in the riots that have torn the nation's big cities in recent summers.

Cohen said, "I wish some of the energy that has gone into rioting" had gone into efforts by the rioters for self improvement.

William H. Crook, executive director of the Volunteers in Service to America—VISTA—told a Southern Baptist Convention group today the churches must react to the riot commissions report by rooting out bigotry and racism in the churches themselves.

Crook, who was once a Baptist pastor in Texas, cited the report's contention that "white racism" is the basic problem.

"Now the church is where the action is, for there is racism in the church," he said. "It has a second opportunity to be relevant, if it will deal with its members in rooting out bigotry

His Essay Told Violent Plans

HIGH POINT (AP)—Police said Monday a 16-year-old High Point high school youth wrote an essay detailing how he planned to commit murder and then shot another 16-year-old with whom he had quarreled.

Charged with the murder of David Lee Walker was Gerald Locklear, a Lumbee Indian.

Officers said witnesses told them Locklear approached Walker as he left the school cafeteria, saying, "Let's go talk." Walker began running a few minutes later, witnesses said.

Det. Sgt. Ralph Johnson said Locklear emptied a six-shot .38-calibre revolver at Walker, hitting him four times. Johnson said Walker crawled under a fire escape before he died.

Shortly after the shooting Locklear was arrested as he walked along a street near the school. Patrolman Robert Noah, who made the arrest, said Locklear took a holster carrying a gun from around his waist, draped it over his shoulder and raised his hands.

Police said there had been "bad blood" between the youths for weeks. After an argument some two weeks ago, officers said, Locklear wrote an essay detailing the killing. Contents of the essay were not released.

and racism. "But the big question is, does the church have the courage to act, or will she seek escapism and act defensively?"

Crook also urged the churches to pay more attention to the problems of poverty, contending that in most cases "the church has failed to be relevant in the poverty issue."

Cohen, 54, who is slated to head the second largest government department, paused thoughtfully when asked about the riot commission report.

He said, "I believe the problem is more complicated than white racism" and calls for better housing, schools and jobs.

He said the nation does suffer from racial divisiveness but added great efforts have been made to overcome the problem. Many of the people trying to do so "have been repulsed by those who think Black Power means black segregation," he said.

Speaker . . .

(Continued From Page 1) tempt was made to let the people tell the Commander-in-Chief, who is elected by them, what to do.

Goldwater commented that he thought the Democrats had a moderate dove, a liberal dove, and an extreme dove vying for the nomination. "The extreme dove flies backward. He can't see to fly forwards because his hair gets in his eyes."

He added that he did not think the Republican platform would be too "dovish."

Asked to comment on his reported admiration of the apartheid system in South Africa, Goldwater said that he did not see another solution for that country at this time.

He added that the problem in South Africa was not comparable to the racial problem in America and that he certainly did not recommend the apartheid system as a solution to America's problem.

Following the session, a reception honoring Goldwater was held in the University Union.

BOSTON (AP)—The war in Vietnam is not an issue in the indictment of Dr. Benjamin Spock and four others, the government said Monday in a strict Court opposing dismissal of the indictments.

Spock and his codefendants called the Vietnam war illegal in their motions for dismissal of the indictments charging them with conspiracy to counsel young men to evade the draft.

The Justice Department's replies to the questions raised by Spock and the others are the first legal defense of the American position in the war brought before a court.

"United States presence in Vietnam is supported by the full constitutional authority of the President and Congress, and no declaration of war is necessary to authorize this presence," the government said.

The government said the legality of the war should not be examined in the Spock case "both because the court lacks jurisdiction to adjudicate it and because defendants lack standing to raise it."

Defendants with Spock, 64, are William Sloane Coffin Jr., 43, chaplain at Yale University; Michael Ferber, 23, of Boston, a Harvard graduate student; Mitchell Goodman, 44, of New York and Temple, Maine; and Marcus Raskin, 33, of Washington, codirector of the Institute for Policy Studies.

The motions for dismissal said the Selective Service Act was invalid, and charged that regulations of the agency requiring draft eligibles to possess registration cards and classification cards were violations of free speech and of the 5th Amendment.

The government's memorandum said the regulations were within the powers given to the legislature and executive branches of the government.

The memorandum also objected to Spock's request to be allowed to take depositions from 25 persons across the world, to support his contentions about the war.

These are "political issues involving the executive's discretionary guidance of this nation's foreign policy, aided by the Congress in its appropriate constitutional spheres," the memorandum said.
