

Pitt Democrats Vote Saturday In Run-Off Race

Pitt County voters will have a second opportunity Saturday to choose their Democratic nominee for Seat No. 1 in the North Carolina House of Representatives.

Harvey Ward, high man in the three way race in the May 4 primary will face incumbent W. A. (Red) Forbes, who ran second in the first primary. Ward received 5,122 votes, while Forbes polled 4,547 votes. Third man in the first primary, Mark Owens, received 4,051 votes.

Although Ward is high man, he had no clear majority and Forbes called for a second primary.

Ward, a Greenville man, is a graduate of Greenville High School and East Carolina University. Presently he is an instructor on the teaching staff at the East Carolina Training School at Rocky Mount.

Forbes is a Pitt County farmer and businessman and attended Winterville High School and East Carolina University.

The polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 6:30 p.m.

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Republicans will go to the polls Saturday to choose a candidate who will face veteran U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D.-N.C., in the November general election.

The only second primary activity open to Democrats will be in three General Assembly and two judicial districts and a few scattered contests for local offices.

State Elections Board secretary Alex K. Brock has predicted about 78,000 Republicans will turn out to choose between Larry Zimmerman of Durham and Robert V. Somers of Salisbury in the only statewide runoff election. The two GOP senatorial candidates ran ahead of Ed Tenney of Chapel Hill, but neither won a majority in the May 4 primary.

Runoffs for Democratic nominations to the State House will be held in five eastern North Carolina counties.

Despite the fact that there will be some precincts where no Republicans are registered and no Democratic contests exist, Brock says polling places must remain open all day throughout the state under provisions of the revised state elections law enacted last year.

A registrar and two precinct judges are required to remain on duty, but in contrast to the long lines at many polling places during the first primary, no crush is expected on Saturday.

Smoke, Water Damage Businesses On 5-Points

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A second-story fire caused heavy damage to three stores on Evans Street and gutted offices formerly occupied by WPXY Radio this morning.

Two firemen were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment after being overcome by heat and smoke while battling the blaze.

Firemen were called by telephone at 9:15 a.m. and told that the offices over Larry's Shoe Store at Five Points, formerly occupied by the radio station, were on fire.

Trucks were dispatched to the scene immediately and when they arrived, firemen were faced with smoke billowing from the second story.

Fire officers said the heavy smoke prevented firemen from gaining entrance to the second floor and fighting the fire at its point of origin.

At the height of the blaze, four fire trucks were being used to pump water into the burning second story, over Larry's Shoe Store and the Big Value Discount Store, which received heavy smoke damage from the fire, as well as water damage.

D. G. Nichols Real Estate and Insurance Co. behind the shoe store also received smoke and water damage.

Another Evans Street store, Steinbeck's clothing store received smoke damage. Firemen, who reported that all merchandise was removed from the clothing store, said a fire wall, installed several months ago on the second floor between Steinbeck's and the Big Value store, prevented the flames from spreading and causing heavier damage.

The space over the business firms was unoccupied at the time of the fire.

WPXY Radio officials said all but a few pieces of office furniture and technical equipment had been moved from the building last week. The remainder of material, valued at about $3,000 was scheduled to be moved out this morning.

Some of the space was used as storage.

At noon, firefighters were just gaining entrance to the second story of the building and officers said it might be two hours before they would be able to determine where the fire originated and have any idea what caused it.

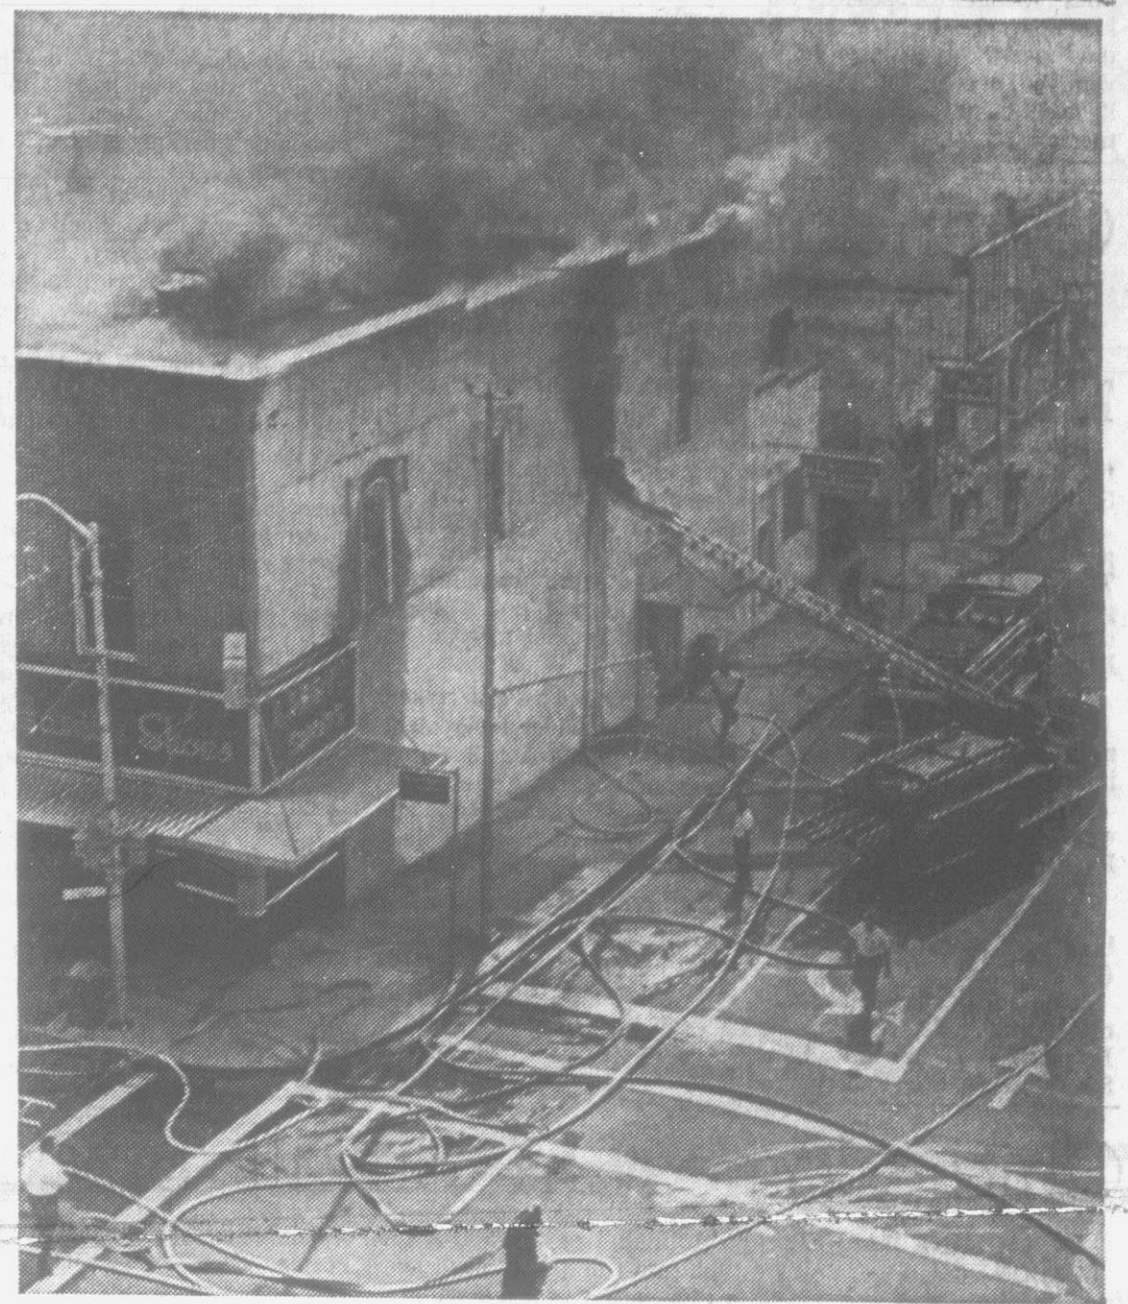

Although hampered by lack of access to the area over the stores, firemen contained the blaze relatively easily, although more time was required to extinguish it.

Fire lines were put in second floor windows at the front, sides and rear of the stores and holes were cut in the roof and water applied through them, also.

Fire Prevention Inspector Jerry McLawhorn and fireman Robert Briley were overcome by smoke and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

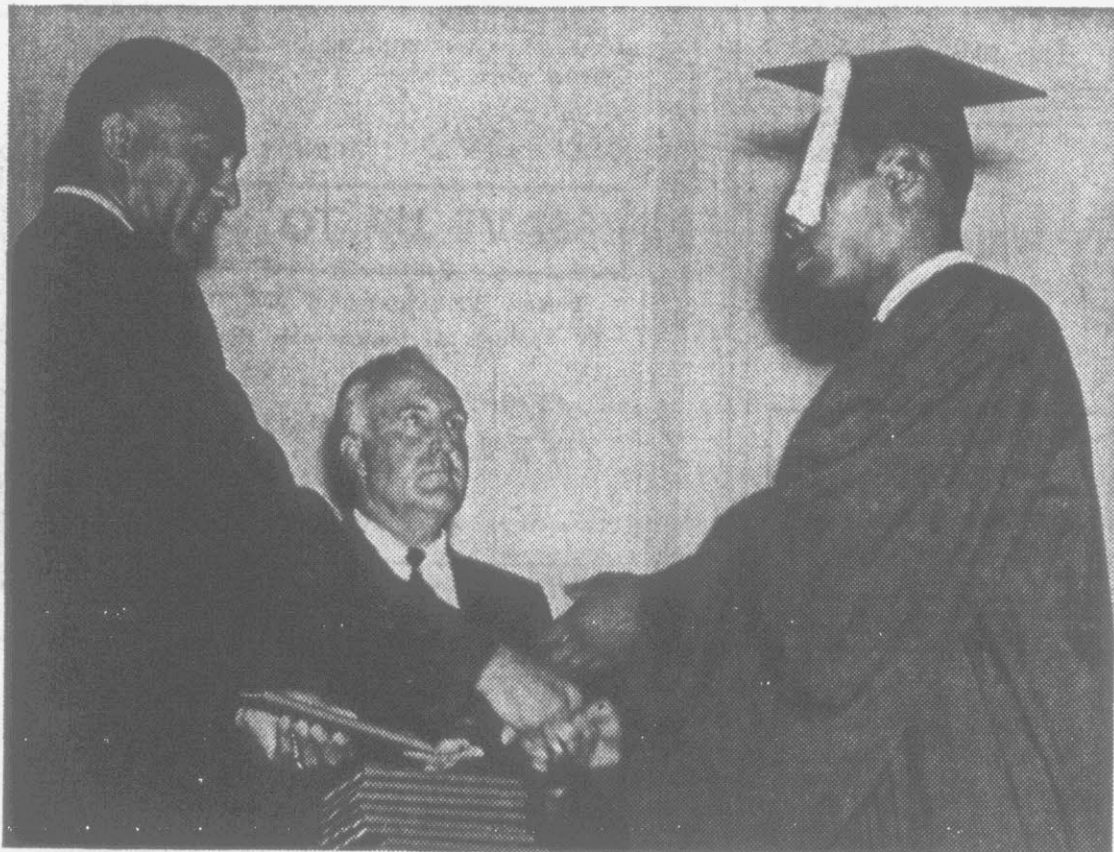

One fire truck and eight men were called in from Winterville on a mutual aid basis to stand by at the central station in the event other fire calls were received.

Eppes Graduates 98 In Rites Last Night

Ninety-eight seniors walked across the stage at C. M. Eppes High School last night and received a diploma and a handshake, culminating their high school career.

Dr. C. C. Cleetwood, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, presented the graduates to the audience, with congratulations and best wishes for a bright future.

Henry Hunter, an outstanding senior, and winner of 15 awards and scholarships, spoke on "To Reinforce Our Sense of Right."

Hunter's speech was followed by a challenge to her fellow classmates to "Add to America's Glory" by Hilda Jewelle Barrett.

Music for the graduation exercises was provided by the Concert band, Mixed Chorus, and the Girl's Glee Club.

Allen Satterfield was the chief marshal. Other marshals were Pansy Taft, Carolyn Roberson, Clinton Randolph, Sandra Pierce, Burnette Gorman, Nathaniel Holliday, Jesse Mooring, Craig Parker, Evelyn Edwards, Alice Harris, and John Moore.

The 1968 Class Officers were: William Earl Atkinson, president; Donnie Lee Phillips, Vice President; Vivian Ann Bradley, Secretary; George J. Gorman, Treasurer; and Harold White, School Board, and A. E. Murrell, principal of C. M. Eppes High School.

The invocation was given by Harold White.

Scorpion Hunt Still Fruitless

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy reported today locating what it described as a metallic shaped object the size of a submarine off Virginia, but a top admiral said chances were "almost nil" that it may be the USS Scorpion.

Vice Admiral Arnold F. Schade, commander of the over-all search for the missing nuclear sub Scorpion and its crew of 99, said the vast sea hunt which has now been going on four full days has turned up nothing significant.

The metallic object was detected about 70 miles from Cape Henry, Va., and Navy divers are trying to find it.

"It is not one of the registered and known hulls," Schade said. Asked what he thought the chances were this could be the Scorpion, Schade said:

"I think it is almost nil because if it was the Scorpion, at that depth I'm sure we would have heard something. He would have been able to indicate his presence."

The object was described as about 250 feet long and 45 feet high, in 180 feet of water. The Scorpion is 252 feet long.

At the same time the admiral disclosed that the code name of the Scorpion was "Brandywine," and he said a check of the Atlantic area showed there were at least eight pleasure boats or fishing craft using that same name operating there.

This, he indicated, suggested the Navy thinks the mysterious voice broadcast Wednesday night, using the name Brandywine, may have come from one of those non-military vessels.

While doggedly keeping up the hunt for the lost ship, officers at Atlantic Fleet headquarters reported cracking calls were being made to the Scorpion's crew. The callers pose as Navy officers and give the families false information on the conditions of their loved ones, they said.

Some 60 of the Scorpion's men had families in the Norfolk area.

Two Heart Transplants Announced

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 59-year-old Canadian and a 54-year-old Argentinian received hearts from two stroke victims today, becoming the first transplant recipients in their countries.

In Montreal, surgeons grafted the heart of a 38-year-old woman into the chest of Albert Murphy, a butcher. The director of the Montreal Heart Institute, Dr. Paul David, said the heart was beating at a "satisfying rhythm."

The donor, Mrs. Gerard Rondeau, died just before the operation, David said.

In Buenos Aires, Antonio Enrique Serrano received the heart of Emilio Tomasetti, a 54-year-old businessman who died this morning.

The operation was performed in Clinica Modelia, a small private hospital.

This brought the total number of the world's heart transplant operations to 19.

Bogus Bills Appear In New Bern

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP)—A counterfeit ring has struck in Craven County for the third time within seven months.

Bogus $10 bills appeared in New Bern Tuesday and Wednesday; bogus $20 bills first appeared in the town in November and December.

Reports of counterfeit $10 bills have come from rural grocery stores, variety stores and service stations with at least four counterfeit bills turning up this week.

Area bank officials said the reproductions are very good but some of the tell-tale signs of the counterfeit money are these: a yellowish tint to the paper, cloud formations missing in the reproductions, and cloud formations on some bills over-inked.

A spokesman for the Secret Service said in Charlotte today that counterfeit money has become fairly common in North Carolina whereas it was once rare.

Tide Of French Strikes Is Apparently Receding

PARIS (AP) — The great French strike wave, which has throttled the economy for two weeks and threatened to topple the government, seemed to be waning today. A tough counter-attack by President Charles de Gaulle Thursday apparently turned the tide.

Reports of a back-to-work movement flowed in from all parts of the country except the Riviera. These covered mostly small plants or partial resumption of activity.

None of the big, key industries showed any signs of a break yet, but the solidarity of the strikers had been broken and the movement was toward normalcy. Union leaders said they were ready to reopen talks on wage hikes for still idle millions.

Two gasoline companies announced they were starting to deliver gasoline to Paris service stations. Activity in the Alsace region of eastern France was reported almost back to normal, except for the railways. Mail was delivered in Angouleme, in south-central France, for the first time in two weeks. Some workers were asking for police protection to thwart efforts of militant strikers to keep them off the job.

De Gaulle's appeal for support, coupled with his dissolution of the National Assembly and institution of temporary monetary controls to protect the value of the franc, sent hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen marching through Paris Thursday night in a massive demonstration in his behalf.

It was too early to tell the ultimate outcome, but lines were drawn after two weeks of chaos and tensions appeared eased.

The 77-year-old chief of state, rejecting leftist calls for his resignation, had said Thursday he would remain in office to combat an attempt by "totalitarian communism" to take over the strikebound nation. Georges Pompidou, his executive officer as head of the government, stayed on in the premiership.

Georges Seguy, secretary-general of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, told a news conference he was not opposed to restarting negotiations if government and industrial leaders showed signs of making satisfactory concessions. No mention was made of any political conditions.

Seguy and other labor leaders worked out an agreement with Pompidou and industry chiefs early Monday that called for a 10 per cent wage increase during the year and other benefits.

But the workers, who had started the massive strikes without any call from the top, refused to accept the settlement. They wanted more money and other concessions.

Same Story In 'Peace' Parleys

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators clashed today over ways of de-escalating the war in Vietnam but failed again to make any progress toward breaking their deadlock.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy rejected all U.S. proposals for joint action to curb the conflict. He said the United States is the "aggressor" in Vietnam and must end the bombing and other military operations against the North and South zones.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman made a new appeal to Thuy to take a different tack and told him President Johnson is prepared "to go far and fast" in a common search for peace.

The meeting lasted three hours and 45 minutes and ended with an agreement to meet again next Wednesday.

Harriman, returning to the U.S. Embassy after the session, said he felt "public opinion in the world will be brought to bear so that we can bring about a de-escalation of the war, as President (Johnson) said, and the laying of a sound foundation for peace in Southeast Asia."

Thuy told Harriman, "Our position is clear as day. The United States is carrying out a war of aggression against our fatherland in both the North and South zones."

"If the United States wants peace, let it halt its aggression and peace will return immediately."

"If the United States continues its war we will continue our resistance until total victory."

Election Returns

The Daily Reflector will gather returns from the second primary election tomorrow night.

Poll holders are urged to call The Daily Reflector office, 752-6166, immediately after the ballots are counted.

Results will be posted in front of the newspaper office and carried in the Sunday edition of The Daily Reflector.

Raleigh Schools Face Big Loss

RALEIGH (AP) — The Raleigh Board of Education may lose $900,000 in federal funds for alleged failure to comply with school desegregation guidelines issued by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The board has 20 days to request a hearing on the HEW ruling, which said a geographical zoning plan of desegregation inadequate.

Now Hear This: Volunteer Needed For Confederate Army

If you have ever dreamed of being a Confederate soldier, you might just have an opportunity to see that dream come true.

R. L. Martin, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, is looking for a volunteer.

According to Martin, Twentieth Century Fox has plans to film a movie based on the Civil War in Iredell County in late June and July.

In addition to professional talent, the production of "John Brown's Body" will require about 500 persons for extras, most of them acting as Confederate soldiers. Some 400 of them will come from the Iredell County area.

The other extras, Martin said, hopefully, will come from the other counties in North Carolina so that each county in the state will be represented in the film.

Martin has been asked to nominate a person to work approximately three or four weeks as an extra in the production.

The extras would be paid $20 per day—more if the person can provide his own horse or two mules—and of course, would pay his own living expenses while the movie is in production.

A cavalryman with a horse rates a $25 per day stipend while a mule skinner with two mules commands a $35 per day salary.

So if you are 16 years or older and would like to be a Confederate soldier, even for just a month, Martin is looking for a volunteer.

Secretaries Rate Humor Highest

By DON G. CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (WNS)—“Miss Kringle,” he says, ominously, fingering the business letter distastefully. “I’ve seen better imprint jobs achieved with linoleum blocks.”

“I’m sorry, Mr. Van Flagellate, but I’ve had a call in for typewriter service for the past two weeks and...”

“You’re handy with tools, Miss Kringle, suppose you knock off 15 minutes early today, take the typewriter home with you, overhaul it and have it back bright and early tomorrow morning.”

“Well, I’d really planned on taking my widowed mother to the doctor tonight for her ninth rabies shot but, under the circumstances, I suppose I could pack her in ice for the night.”

“Why don’t you do that, Miss Kringle, and—While you’re at it—why not just take along the rough draft of this year’s annual operating report and knock it off later tonight when you’ve got the typewriter working again, hmm? Oh, and this time, please, try to keep the (chuckle) tear stains off the covering letter at least, okay?”

Superficially, perhaps, it would seem that only a masochist would include Mr. Van Flagellate on her list of “My Ten Most Lovable Men,” but from the average secretary’s point of view that sly chuckle punctuating the boss’s reference to her tears is all that matters. It proves that he has a sense of humor, twisted though it may be, and, in a recent survey of the attributes that secretaries find most endearing in a boss, this is the crucial measure of his worth.

The polling was undertaken by the nationwide employment firm of Snelling and Snelling, Inc., and covered a cross section of the approximately 30,000 women that the firm places in such jobs every year.

By “sense of humor,” most secretaries are quick to point out, they aren’t necessarily referring to a frustrated song-and-dance man, a semi-professional raconteur or even a lamp-shade wearer. What they have in mind, Snelling and Snelling asserts, is a boss who “knows how and when to lighten the day’s burden with a little laughter”—at dismissal, bonus reduction and vacation deferral times, for instance.

Next to this ability to see fun in things abounding all around him, the average secretary polled by the employment agency also gives her second highest mark to the boss who is considerate of her feelings and doesn’t wait until he’s half-smashed at the Christmas party to tell her how much he appreciates her services.

Other attributes of the ideal boss, according to Snelling and Snelling’s survey, is a man who is frank, organized, calm in an emergency and “interesting.”

The definition of “interesting” admittedly, is a little vague, and the employment agency concedes that each individual employer is going to have to decide what the girls mean by it. With one secretary it could mean a boss who has a shy smile, but with another it might mean an employer who affects spats, a pince-nez and who sits, Yoga-like, cross-legged in the middle of his desk. It isn’t generally defined as a boss who insists on being a pal to his girl Friday.

One secretary submitting to the query characterized the ideal boss, and the relationship he has to his secretary, this way: “The important element in a good boss-secretary relationship is mutual admiration and respect. The good boss knows his secret-

Chief Aide Avoids Personal Publicity

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
NEW YORK (WNS)—There is nobody quite like blonde Betty South. She is savvy and shapely, and for the roaring world of Presidential politics, unusually shy and sedate.

In fact, she may be the only one connected with the campaign of 1968 who is actually avoiding publicity. She figures her job is not to talk about herself, but the Humphreys.

This young woman from the potato state of Idaho is “chief of staff” for Mrs. Hubert Humphrey. If the Vice President should finally win the political sweepstakes of 1968, the new First Lady undoubtedly would want to keep the quiet, efficient Miss South at her side.

administrative assistant to Rep. Ralph Harding, D-Idaho, who was defeated in 1964. His departure gave Betty a chance for the traveling she had longed to do. After a year in Europe, she planned to return to the West and get another newspaper job.

Chance Conversation

Her apartment was vacated and her bags packed. A chance conversation with a friend changed everything. Mrs. Humphrey was looking for a new assistant. Why not apply? The opportunity was tempting. Soon, Betty was en route to the Humphreys’ modest home in suburban Chevy Chase, but 45 minutes late for an appointment.

The Second Lady was typically understanding and informal. “Don’t worry,” she reassured. “I have been in the kitchen busy making soup.”

The two clicked from the start, and the combination has worked to their mutual satisfaction. Betty did miss her trip to Europe, but she has covered a lot more territory in company with the Humphreys. She not only has been to Europe with them, but also to Asia, Scandinavia, France and Africa.

Dilettant Club Met Mon. Night

Plans for next year’s programs were discussed at the meeting of the Dilettante Book Club held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Donald Bailey.

Mrs. D. L. Durland discussed the plans. Mrs. Robert Gantt, new club president, presided at the business session and auctioned some of the club’s books.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Ed Hooks, Mrs. Norman Gray and Mrs. John Ellen.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bailey.

Unlike the present First Lady’s chief aide, Liz Carpenter, Miss South has promoted both her boss and her own anonymity. Although well-liked and respected by women reporters, the name of Betty South has rarely appeared in the press.

A combination of circumstances recently thrust her into the role of public spokesman. Shortly after the Vice President plunged into the Presidential campaign, his wife entered a Washington hospital for a major operation.

Shower Honors Miss Stokes

AYDEN — Miss Lynda Gail Stokes, June bride-elect, was honored at a miscellaneous floating shower Saturday night at the Winterville Community Bldg.

Hostesses were Miss Lorena Moseley, Miss Leah McGlogon, Mrs. Becky Boyle, Mrs. Margaret Moseley and Mrs. Jamie Keeter.

The building was decorated with magnolia blooms and greenery.

The refreshment table was covered with a linen embroidered cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink gladioli, snapdragons and daisies.

For those who asked, “Who is Betty South?” here is some background. She grew up in Malad, Idaho. Her father operated a general store. Her brother Russell has carried on the family business.

Reporter

An eager, enthusiastic Betty studied journalism at the University of Utah. Her interest in politics was whetted while working part-time at the state legislature. After receiving a B. S. degree, she spent 14 months as a reporter on the Brighton Blade (just outside of Denver).

Then, she came to the Washington staff of Rep. Henry Aldous Dixon, R-Utah, who retired in 1960. Her next stint on Capitol Hill was as

Chic Comes In Small Sizes

By NADEAN WALKER
LONDON (AP)—“Almost from the time they can toddle, children are fashion-conscious.” So say Pip and Pat Perkins, a husband and wife design team, who have launched a new line of children’s clothing labeled Two Ft. & Trendy.

Two of the luckiest tots in London are 4-year-old Samantha and 6-year-old Shane Perkins, the models and inspirations for their parents’ kiddie clothes. Samantha and Shane have to approve each style and prove that it can stand up to running, jumping and playing—or it doesn’t go into the collection.

“I think,” says Pat Perkins, “that most designers don’t know a thing about real live children. My only qualification as a children’s designer is that I am a mother, but I believe that’s the best one.”

Until a little over two years ago, Pip was a fashion photographer and his wife worked for a public relations firm. Pat was appalled at the boring sameness of children’s clothes, and was worn out after dragging her two around the shops “while they fidgeted and whined, ‘Can we go home now Mummy?’”

To solve both problems, the Perkinses started a modest mail order business called Little People. This was so successful that the British textile giant, Calico Printers, asked them to design the Two Ft. & Trendy line for domestic and export retail trade.

Attractiveness and practicality are the two yardsticks the Perkinses apply to all their creations. If their models look like miniature versions of grown-up fashions, Pat says that actually it’s the other way round.

They don’t boggle at defying tradition, either. English boys, since time immemorial, have stayed in short pants until the age of 13 or 14.

“With our climate, that’s ridiculous,” Pip Perkins declares. So neatly tailored trousers or jaunty bell-bottoms are available from size two.

For both boys and girls, the Perkinses make summer outfits of mini-shorts with skinny tops in cotton knit. Colors are gay, the way the kiddies like them, and a striped top may be teamed with flowered bell-bottoms.

Culottes are currently the most popular number for little girls, according to Pat. Cat suits, tailored grey flannel slacks with checked tweed jackets, flowered shirts, printed velveteen Victorian dresses with lace collars and leg o’ mutton sleeves, mix and match outfits with astronaut zips, and even Beatle-inspired white “meditation suits” provide a variety of styles to choose from.

'Mental Block' On Education

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband never graduated from high school but he has a very good job at the mill. His name keeps coming up for promotion as he is very smart, but here is the problem:

He never learned how to read and write. Somehow he managed to get by anyway. He's no dummy. He can figure out mathematical problems in his head and knows history dates and events like a college graduate. He listens to the news on the radio and is up on everything, but when it comes to reading, he doesn't know dog from cat.

I have tried to teach him, but it's hopeless. His boss keeps after him to take tests for advancement, but my husband keeps ducking them because he doesn't want anyone to know he can't read or write. I filled out the job application for him. That's how he got his job in the first place. How can I help him? He feels so ashamed because of his ignorance.

HIS WIFE: Your husband's problem is not as unusual as you think. He could have a "mental block" due to an emotional problem, which is nothing to be ashamed of. Find out what is available for adults thru your local board of public education. If your husband is too self-conscious to attend classes, perhaps private tutoring can be arranged.

DEAR ABBY: "Sold Out" had her say about dirty movies, and you let Jack Valenti have his say. Now I'd like to have my say:

The movie industry isn't in business to lose money. They make dirty movies because people go to see them. (They also made "Sound of Music," "Mary Poppins," "Dr. Doolittle," and Walt Disney's, which didn't exactly put them in the hole, either.)

However, this is a free country, and I never yet saw a theater manager standing outside with a gun, forcing people to go inside.

Furthermore, what is "dirty"? If they can show cold-blooded murder, torture, crime and violence in every conceivable form, for my money, they can show lovemaking.

Afternoon Tea Honors Miss Carr

The Roger Taylor home was the setting for a Saturday afternoon tea honoring Miss Betty Lee Carr, whose marriage to Michael Trahos of Arlington, Va., will take place on June 8.

Mrs. Robert Fennell greeted guests and introduced them to Mrs. Taylor, Miss Carr and her mother, Mrs. Harroll D. Weaver.

Mrs. Wellington Gray invited guests into the dining room. The table was covered with a white linen cutwork cloth and centered with a silver epergne holding miniature roses and candles.

Mrs. Daniel W. Brady of Williamston and Mrs. John Sutton of La Grange, aunts of the bride, served punch and bridal cakes from either end of the table.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. M. E. Cavendish, Mrs. Linwood Worthington, Mrs. Earl Adler and Miss Delores Ford and Miss Terry Taylor.

LIKES THE MOVIES

DEAR ABBY: Is it all right to ask for gifts back that were given to a girl for a wedding that never took place?

The teen-age daughter of a friend of mine was going to be married rather suddenly four months ago, so to help out, some friends and I got together some blankets, linens, towels and dishes so she could start housekeeping.

The wedding was called off as suddenly as it was announced and the girl is back in school again like nothing happened.

Naturally, we all expected our gifts to be returned right away, but they weren't. One of the other women who contributed said she asked the girl's mother for her gift back and all she got was a blank stare. Should I ask for mine?

ELECT

HARVEY WARD

N. C. House of Representatives

VOTE Saturday, June 1

'Advisor' To World Is In Trouble

President Charles deGaulle faces the threat of collapse of his government; his nation's economy has been brought to a standstill, and this man who a short while ago assumed the attitude of leading a "New Europe" to new heights now is finding himself unable to extract his own nation from its difficulties.

It is ironic that deGaulle this week imposed an unusual restriction prohibiting his countrymen from exchanging their francs for currency of other nations in which they have greater confidence. This is the same deGaulle who a sort while ago led the attack on the American dollar, demanding gold in the place of dollars. He led the rush for gold and the massive assault designed to discredit the American dollar.

It was also only a short time ago that deGaulle blocked Britain's entry into the European Common Market, declaring the British economy too weak and without the potential to match the economic strength of other members of his "new Europe."

Now France, which deGaulle has pictured as the leader of the new Europe, finds itself in its greatest economic and political chaos in years. Though the strikes which have paralyzed that nation may soon end and the wheels of business and industry may begin turning again, it will take France months and perhaps years to recover from what has happened in the past few weeks. Even with recovery, there will be lingering economic scars which will be evident for decades.

Charles deGaulle may find himself in the next few weeks in the position of calling again on two old allies, whom he has attempted in recent months to discredit, to save his nation if not his own government.

Races To Be Decided In Saturday's Voting

For Pitt County voters, Saturday is an important day for there are still races to be decided and candidates to be nominated.

For Democrats of Pitt County, the Saturday balloting will determine whether Rep. W. A. (Red) Forbes or challenger Harvey Ward will be named the party's candidate for one of the two Pitt seats in the state House of Representatives. Ward led in the three-way race in the first primary, but failed to gain a clear majority. Forbes called for the run-off in the second primary.

On the Republican ballot, Pitt voters in that party will help determine which of two candidates will receive the party's nomination to challenge Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the Democratic incumbent, in the November general election.

Obviously the race for the county seat in the House of Representatives is of greater importance to Pitt voters. We urge every registered voter in Pitt County to make an effort to get to the polls and cast his ballot tomorrow.

Polling places in each of the county's 26 precincts will be open throughout the day. Only those voters who take time to cast their ballots will have a voice in the decision which is made at the ballot boxes Saturday.

ART BUCHWALD

Special Status Of Shanty-Town

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The plywood-and-plastic shanties of Resurrection City meet no housing standards of Washington, D. C., but the Interior Department says they don't have to.

The 15-acre tract of mucky, rain-soaked land near the Lincoln Memorial belongs to the federal government, not the District of Columbia.

Interior's National Park Service issued a permit to the Poor People's Campaign to use the site. It acted under the 1916 law that created the Park Service and gave it authority to "grant privileges, leases, and permits for the accommodation of visitors."

The permit is not for camping-out on national park land, however. It was issued under the regulations covering "parades and public gatherings." The Park Service in effect views Resurrection City as a demonstration, not a campsite.

When asked whether the cited regulations allow the construction of acres of A-frame shelters, Bernard R. Meyer, assistant solicitor for the Interior Department, said the Park Service has such discretion.

The only building permit required, Meyer said, was the demonstration permit issued. The District of Columbia's public affairs officer, Sam Eastman, verified that Washington's building code, health rules, truancy laws and welfare regulations do not apply on the federal site.

"Our role is to watch the operation and if something develops that affects the community — a health, fire, safety or police problem — to take steps," Eastman said.

The agreement reached between the Park Service and the campaign's leaders provides that no costs of the camp-in will be paid by the federal government or by the taxpayers of the District of Columbia. The campaign relies on other outlays on volunteer work and private donations of money and services.

However, the campaign leaders have not yet made good on their agreement with the Park Service to connect the camp with existing sewer lines and water mains underground, largely because of downpours of rain and shortages of money and skilled manpower.

Portable chemical toilets are being used and water is supplied from some fire hydrants and standpipes and a water truck which visits daily. Some showers have been installed.

Some concern over a possible outbreak of influenza has been felt by the D. C. Health Department, and it has begun vaccinating the campers.

Opinions In Brief

"Traditionally, for generations, the Bank of England has been known as the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street. Thus explaining, perhaps, why — since he devalued the pound — Prime Minister Harold Wilson has been called the 'Old Sew and Sew.'" — Nashville (Tenn.) Banner.

"Human affairs inspire in noble hearts only two feelings — admiration or pity." — Anatole France.

"The views of the young could be particularly helpful to recreation agencies and on police advisory groups. It also might break down preconceptions on both sides of the generation gap." — Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal and Times.

Those Problem Parents

WASHINGTON — A panel of distinguished students met at Waverly University last week to discuss the pressing topic of the day: "What is wrong with our parents?"

Cal Holden, class of '70, said the restlessness and unhappiness attributed to most parents these days could be blamed on the fact that students have been too permissive with their parents.

"We haven't stood up to them," he said. "We let them buy us cars and clothes and pay our tuition and give us vacations, and the more we let them do for us, the more surly and unmanageable they become."

Mary Beth Lou, '71, agreed. "When you spare the rod, you spoil the mother. I find parents are so much happier when you tell them what you want to do, instead of asking them what they want to do. Parents are like children. They need discipline. I have a great relationship with my parents only because when my father and mother get out of line I let them know it."

Dick Duncan, '69, said, "It seems to me that parents have too much money to spend. Everything's too easy for them. They have no real values. I think you would have to blame the economy for this. Advertisers are constantly appealing to parents. Because of their purchasing power, parents are made to think they're important, and they get an inflated opinion of themselves. Parents believe, since they are so sought after by the advertiser, that they know everything."

Sherry Cerf, '72, was one of the few to dissent with the panel. "I think we're doing too much generalizing about parents. The minority of activist parents give the majority of parents a bad name. I think you'll find the average parent reasonable and interested in most things. Oh, they have kooky ideas about pot and sex, but when it gets to serious matters I find them level-headed."

Larry Massee, '70, said, "It seems to me the inability to get through to parents is a communications gap and students are to blame. We never ask where parents are going or what time they're coming back. When they try to tell their problems, we ignore them and pretend they're inconsequential. But their problems, no matter how minor they seem to us, are important to them. Most students spend so much time demonstrating and defying the college administrators that they don't have any time to devote to their own mothers and fathers."

"Larry's right," Esther Bird, '72, declared. "And I have a good illustration to prove it. The other night my father told me his business was bankrupt and he would have to go on relief. Now that didn't seem important to me, but for some reason it seemed important to him. So I listened to his problem, and he felt so much better afterward because I showed an interest. It's little things like this that build bridges between students and their bewildered parents."

"Red" Schaefer, '71, was not convinced. "The sociologists and psychologists are making too much of parents being confused and unhappy. All (Continued On Page 5)

More Mergers Due Inflation

By ELMER ROESSNER
Another rap for inflation: it is in large part responsible for the rising number of mergers. Some of these mergers may be good but some may be greater concentrations of economic power, more difficult to control by government regulation.

Inflation tends to increase corporation profits. They rose to a new high in the first quarter of this year. It also increases the corporation's borrowing power as their tangibles rise in book values. Corporations, just like Joe Doakes who buys real estate or common stock, want to protect themselves against further inflation. One way to do that is to buy other corporations. They get real estate, tangibles and prospects of further growth.

During the post-World War I inflation in Germany, Hugo

Stinnes, the Germany industrialist, bought almost every corporation he could, largely on credit, confident that he could pay off his debts cheaply as galloping inflation shrank the value of the mark. He thereby amassed a staggering fortune.

to buy other corporations, especially if they can acquire them with borrowed money or shares of their own securities.

Some acquisitions are made regardless of cost. In many, the acquiring corporation has offered prices much higher than current prices of their stock. Some acquisitions have been made regardless of the buying companies' expertise in the new field. On a single day recently, International Telephone announced it was acquiring Continental Baking and Household Finance disclosed it was buying King-Seeley Thermos.

Right Wing Decline

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — The probability that Sen. Thomas Kuchel will be renominated in Tuesday's Republican primary, besides being a product of skillful political tactics and just plain good luck, is testimony to the decline of right-wing activism in California.

Although nobody can be absolutely certain what California's Republicans will do once they enter the polling booth, Kuchel is a heavy favorite over state school superintendent Maxwell Rafferty — the cut-rate Bill Buckley of the West Coast. Yet, for the past six years, Kuchel has been marked for extinction by the right-wing activists as a liberal revisionist.

The apparent failure of the campaign reflects the diminished political prowess of the right and particularly of the John Birch Society and its fellow travelers. Not only are the Birchers losing membership here but many, disillusioned with the Republican party, have registered in George Wallace's American Independent party. The Birchers are no longer a potent factor in California Republican politics (except in Orange County, where Kuchel is a sure loser).

Ironically, the rapid decline of the far right can be traced to an event that wished for and worked for with great fervor, the election of Ronald Reagan in 1966 as Governor. Even before his election, Reagan and his political lieutenants were purging Birchite influences from the campaign.

Since taking office in January, 1967, Reagan has taken pains to exclude Birchers from his administration. Thus, the far right is no closer to power than ever. Moreover, with its champion now in Sacramento, it is deprived of a cause. The result is stagnation and the drift toward Wallace.

The morale of the right has been further shattered by Reagan's conduct in office. Apart from super-hawkishness on Vietnam (a subject over which he has no control), Reagan has been moving steadily toward the center and on state matters can be classed today as a moderate conservative. He has bogged down in budget-cutting, modified his opposition to open housing, and become increasingly attentive to needs of the Negro ghetto.

Particularly debilitating from the standpoint of the far right's morale has been the appointment of Caspar (Cappy) Weinberger, a moderate who is anathema to the right, as his finance director. Through Weinberger's influence, Reagan is now drawing for advice on state controller Houston Flournoy, a liberal Republican in elective office who had been ignored for the first 18 months of Reagan's administration.

But what has broken the hearts of the Birchites and the back of Rafferty's campaign is the non-aggression pact between Reagan and Kuchel negotiated by William Roberts of Spencer - Roberts and Associates, the campaign management firm for both men. Reagan's neutrality has all but stopped the flow of big California money to Rafferty.

Pat Frawley, the Schick razor magnate whose political passion is the destruction of Kuchel, has contributed generously to Rafferty. So has San Francisco business man Leland Kaiser. But Frawley (Continued On Page 5)

Overwhelming A Quiet Village

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
CHAPEL HILL — The village atop the hill, above the wooded valley of New Hope Creek, the site selected for one of the first universities of the new nation two centuries ago, is undergoing vast change.

Visually, yes. On the auditor's sheets, the university itself in the amount of $35,999,003. By numerical count, 13 new buildings and additions to the physical plant of the University of North Carolina.

It indicates that the University at Chapel Hill will request at least an additional $10 million in capital improvement funds during the next biennium. Normally, the Advisory Budget Commission slashes such requests to the bone. It has done so in most years in the past. But now, at this week's meeting of University trustees, hope was expressed that the Advisory Budget Commission would approve more of the total capital improvements requests. The chairman of the Advisory Budget Commission, Sen. Thomas J. White of Kinston, is a member of the board of trustees, and offered no comment.

What is Asked

In addition to the record building program already undertaken at Chapel Hill, there were other priority requests.

One is the need for a Dramatic Arts building, to be the home of a program which has become nationally recognized and distinguished. Yet, according to the report, "present facilities are completely inadequate for a continued comprehensive program," and officials ask for a larger building, a larger theater, space for rehearsals and for laboratory work in design, lighting and other stage crafts.

Parking Problem

The day may come that multi-storied parking facilities are constructed on the campus at Chapel Hill.

It is one solution suggested by the building committee which noted that the parking problem is "becoming increasingly more desperate as the enrollment continues and new construction eliminates many old parking areas."

The problem, according to the committee, must be met either by further restricting or eliminating parking on campus entirely or by constructing multi-storied parking buildings financed by self-liquidating bonds, or by both approaches. This, the committee said, is one of the University's most pressing problems and one which will be difficult to solve."

(Continued From Page 4) parents are unhappy or they wouldn't be parents. Instead of catering to them every time they complain about something, we should say to them, 'Until we're out of the house and able to make our own living, you have to go along with what we say and do or we'll just move out.' It's a futile exercise to try to appease parents who don't know what they want in the first place."

Herb Sargent, '68, added: "I think we have to face up to the fact, whether we like it or not, that parents will be the biggest problem of the next generation. I suggest that we set up a study group to find out, first, how deep parent discontent is; second, what remedies can be taken to keep this discontent from getting out of hand, and third, we should suggest ways of channeling adult activism into socially acceptable patterns."

The proposal was adopted unanimously and the Ford Foundation agreed to underwrite it.

Evans-Novak . . .

(Continued From Page 4) never was a member of Reagan's inner circle and Kaiser has been quietly excluded from it for violating Reagan's neutrality edict. Most of her conservative fat-cats here — including the normally generous oil millionaire, Henry Salvatori — won't give Rafferty the time of day.

That means Rafferty must rely heavily on nationwide direct mail solicitations, and that isn't enough. While Kuchel is financed adequately by a half-million dollar budget in the primary, Rafferty has been forced by lack of funds to surrender valuable television time previously reserved.

After pledging allegiance to the flag, the students sang songs they learned during the year. The Rev. Robert Hufford, pastor of Hooker Memorial, then awarded the certificates to the pre-schoolers.

Road Blocks On Rural Roads Set

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Highway Patrol road blocks will be set up on rural roads throughout North Carolina Saturday to check drivers' licenses and deter drag racing.

The patrol's enforcement officer, Maj. John Laws, announced the move Thursday as another step in the state's effort to reduce highway fatalities.

"You can call it a 'get tough' policy," Laws said, "although the patrol will continue to operate with the courtesy it has always shown motorists."

He said the road blocks will be established in each of the state's 100 counties and will be moved periodically.

Arrests In Louisville Disorder Go Over 400

By TERENCE P. HUNT
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arrests in Louisville's West End climbed to more than 400 today as police and volunteer Negro marshals tried to cope with scattered looting and isolated incidents of sniping.

Police, trying to work without the help of National Guardsmen, arrested about 100 persons, including 20 juveniles, in the predominantly Negro section during a nine-hour period ending at midnight Thursday.

Most were charged with disorderly conduct or breach of peace.

Two leaders of the Black Unity League of Kentucky, a militant group composed of teenagers and young adults, were among seven arrested when police stopped a seven-car caravan heading from the West End into the east section of the city. Both men, Sam Hawkins, 25, and Robert Sims, 21, were charged with breach of peace.

The trouble during the fourth consecutive night of racial disorder in the city came despite a plea for calm from the mother of a teen-ager killed in the violence.

"We appeal to everybody to stop this disorder before other mothers and fathers suffer as we are," Mrs. James Groves told a news conference.

Her son, James, 14 and Mathias Washington Browder, 19, were shot and killed Wednesday night in what police said were rioting incidents.

Browder was shot by the owner of a liquor store, W. J. Berger, who was charged with manslaughter and released later on a $5,000 bond. Groves was killed by Patrolman Charles Noe. No action was taken against the officer.

Some 2,000 National Guardsmen remained on the perimeter of the West End Thursday in accordance with an agreement reached the previous day between Mayor Kenneth A. Schmied and militant Negroes who agreed to volunteer as marshals and try to keep order themselves, along with city police.

However, Guardsmen accompanied firemen into the West End several times Thursday night as jeering rock-throwing crowds harassed the firemen. Fire units responded to more than 50 calls by midnight, 20 of them false alarms.

As the flames were extinguished, most Guardsmen returned to the perimeter of the area, although some accompanied police in patrol cars.

The Negro marshals aided police in clearing street corner gatherings and attempted to ease tensions.

Baptist Bonanza On The Grand Scale

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Outside, it looks like a sturdy, blocky complex of red brick business buildings in downtown Dallas. Inside, it's a Baptist bonanza on the grand scale, led by a fiery, silver-haired orator, the Rev. Dr. W. Amos Criswell.

"I'm glad I was here when God made it happen," he said of the massively thriving, multi-million-dollar institution which he has headed for a quarter of a century, the First Baptist Church of Dallas.

With more than 15,000 members and an annual budget of $1.9 million, it's the biggest, richest Southern Baptist church in the world, its facilities spreading across three city blocks and ranging from a five-story parking garage to a skating rink.

Its pastor is being boosted for the presidency of the denominational convention, which meets next week in Houston, representing the country's 11 million Southern Baptists.

Dr. Criswell, 58, a mellowingly handsome man with wavy hair and flashing blue eyes, has raised some pulpit thunder in his time, but some of his views have softened.

Once a defender of racial segregation and an outspoken foe of Roman Catholicism, he said in a recent interview that integration "ultimately must come," and that "I don't know what to think of Rome anymore."

"It gives the impression of changing," he said. "If it changed, that's wonderful."

In a widely circulated sermon in 1960, he had said the election of John F. Kennedy as president would lead to "recognition of the Roman church above all others" and sound the death knell of religious liberty in America.

"There were a lot of qualifying phrases in there that didn't get reported," he said, although adding that his estimate has changed. He said he still opposes views of some Catholics that "tax money ought to support church schools."

As for racial integration, he said "it may not come soon, but it will come in God's time." He noted that his huge congregation now includes three Negro members.

"My mother died an unrepentant Southern rebel," he went on. "I used to say to her, 'Mother, you're mistaken about these things.'"

"But we ought to be allowed to work out our own problems without imported 'foreigners' trying to do it. You can't change people by coercion and legislation."

"You've got to change man's heart."

That call for a "change of heart" is a mark of Dr. Criswell's evangelistic approach, and he says it's the answer to other pressing national problems, such as poverty.

"You can't give to the poor forever," he said. "They'll just stay poor. What's needed is a new heart and new spirit. Once you win them to the Lord, they don't live out there in squalor any more. They pay their debts and buy a home."

When it comes to making

Vacation Bible School Plans Set

Vacation Bible School will be held at Trinity Free Will Baptist Church June 3-7 from 8:30-11 a.m.

The theme for the week will be "God's Son for Our World." Mrs. Heber Adams and Mrs. Doyle Little will be the school directors.

The themes for the various departments includes: nursery, "Loving the Lord With David"; beginner department, "Remembering the Lord Is With Us"; primary department, "Knowing the Lord Jesus"; junior department, "Sharing the Good News"; young teens, "Finding My Place."

The Rev. Robert B. Crawford is pastor of the church.

Christianity a prospering enterprise, Dr. Criswell is a modern success story. In a downtown area, where many churches in cities have withered and closed, he has built a flourishing religious domain.

It is observing its centennial this year.

Its property is valued at $7.5 million and includes among other things:

An 11-story education building; a five-story "Criswell Building" with offices, chapel, theater and study rooms; a vast, red-carpeted circular sanctuary; a seven-story "Truett Building" including an elaborate nursery and choir rooms; a seven-story recreation building, with a parking garage above and below, a snack bar, skating rink, four-lane bowling alley and gymnasium.

The church also has:

An average Sunday attendance of 5,000 at its various services, which are televised as well as broadcast over three radio stations, and with offerings averaging $30,000 to $40,000 weekly.

Twenty-seven choirs, made up of about 2,000 singers, which have turned out more than a dozen recorded albums.

A full-time staff of about 75, including 12 assistant ministers. A Sunday School enrollment of 9,500.

Dr. Criswell, reared in Eldorado, Okla., was a pastor of churches in Chickasha and Muskogee, Okla., before coming to Dallas in '94.

Amid his present vast operation, he still lends it an intimate touch, standing at the door as each congregation files out to greet what he calls "the saints" with a double handclasp.

"God be good to you," he calls out in parting.

Commencement At St. Gabriel's

The Rev. James Waters will address the graduates of Saint Gabriel Catholic School during commencement exercises Sunday at 4 p.m.

The Sisters of Christian Charity will award diplomas to the eight graduates and they will be awarded by the Rev. Edward J. Beatty.

TRIUMPHANT TRIANGLE

HOME . . . SCHOOL . . . CHURCH! The predominant influences in the life of a child.

The Home provides love, security, example—to shape the growing personality.

The School develops the mind, stimulates initiative, nurtures social responsibility.

The Church cultivates faith and character, building the spiritual foundations of a noble life.

Wise parents understand the vital importance of each of these influences in the growth of their child. They work faithfully to strengthen all three.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Pirates Surprise Seminoles With 2-1 Decision

Mighty Mick Gets Five-For-Five

By HERSCHEL NISSESON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Memorial Day against Washington usually gives Mickey Mantle something to remember. Most any day against Oakland gives the Boston Red Sox something to forget.

The mighty Mickey, last of the New York Yankee superstars, enjoyed one of the most productive days of his illustrious career Thursday. He whacked two home runs, a double and two singles and drove in five runs as the Yankees walloped Washington 13-4 in the opener of a doubleheader. The Senators bounced back to take the nightcap 6-2.

Exactly 12 years earlier—Memorial Day, 1956—Mantle slammed a pitch from Washington's Pedro Ramos off the facade of the Yankee Stadium roof. It missed by only a few feet of being the first fair ball ever hit out of the big Bronx ballpark, a still unaccomplished feat.

While Mantle was slugging, the defending American League champion Red Sox were slumping. The upstart Oakland A's shelled them 6-2 behind Lew Krause's four-hitter and pulled into a fifth-place tie with the Sox and Yankees. Oakland has beaten Boston six of seven this season.

Elsewhere, Detroit whipped California 7-3, Baltimore blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0 and Cleveland nipped Minnesota 3-1.

In the National League, St. Louis defeated San Francisco 6-0, Houston bombed Atlanta 11-0, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 5-3 and the New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 6-3 and 5-4. The Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia were rained out.

Mantle began his big day with a two-run homer in the first inning. He singled and scored in the third, homered again in the fifth, doubled home a run in the sixth and singled in another in the eighth. The homers were his fifth and sixth of the season and gave him a career total of 524, 10 behind Jimmy Foxx, No. 3 on the all-time list.

The aging Mickey sat out Thursday's nightcap as Camilo Pascual and Darold Knowles mowed down the Yankees with home help from Fred Valentine, Ed Stroud and Bernie Allen.

Krause not only won for the first time in his home park after four defeats but hit a key two-run double in the second inning. The A's pounded 13 hits, including Sal Bando's third homer as the Red Sox absorbed their fifth loss in the last six games.

GASTONIA — East Carolina University became the Cinderella team of the NCAA, District Three Regionals last night with a gutsy 2-1 victory over the favorite, Florida State, the nation's third-ranked team.

The winning run broke open a hurling duel between Vince Colbert and Dennis Burke for the Bucs against a FSU pitching duo.

The winning tally scored in the 13th inning on a double error, after the Seminole catcher tried to pick off Dennis Vick at second, and threw the ball into center field.

Florida State used fine fielding to keep the Pirates from scratching. Early three double plays in the first five frames helped to erase threats. In the first, they got one on a strike-out-pickoff on a steal. Then in the third, Colbert hit a sharp liner to first, where Roy Taylor was easily doubled off after he had reached on an error.

The other double play was a routine short-to-second-to-first affair.

The best threat came in the sixth inning, when the luck really showed for Florida State. Taylor singled by third, and Colbert socked the ball into right, but Tom Whitaker came rushing in to make a great catch. Whitaker did it again, this time making a running catch of Corrada's drive to right center which appeared to be a certain hit. A pair of walks loaded the sacks, but the next man went down swinging for the third out.

Florida State, which had made several threats, was effectively held in check by Colbert until the sixth. Runners reached second in every inning but the fourth, but Colbert kept them from coming around, getting strikeouts.

But in the sixth, the Seminoles got a run across. Mike Eason led off with a walk and moved up on a grounder to third. John Mason drilled one over second to bring Eason around, and after stealing second moving to third on an error, threatened to come across himself. But again Colbert came through to stop the Seminoles.

The Bucs broke into the scoring column in the eighth, tying it up. Colbert did the job himself, slamming a triple deep into right field against the field. Corrada then slapped a hit through the middle, sending Colbert in to tie it at 1-1.

In the bottom of the eighth, a walk sent Colbert out, and Dennis Burke came in. A stolen base and another walk. Fla. State was again in a position to threaten. But the Bucs closed it up and stopped them again.

In the ninth, the Bucs had another chance, with one out, Wayne Vick singled and stole second. He went to third on another out, but couldn't score.

In the bottom of the ninth, Dick Gold opened up with a single into left center. Jeff Hogan sacrificed him to second, but the Bucs again got out of the jam and sent into extra frames.

In the 11th, Anderson walked, and moved to second on a balk. Snyder was intentionally walked to set up the double play. Wayne Vick sacrificed them up, but the next two went down in order to again halt the threat.

Again in the 12th, the Bucs put men in scoring position, on a pair of walks, but couldn't score.

In the top of the 13th, Dennis Vick walked with two out, and Stu Garrett also got a free trip. FSU catcher Tom Cook tried to pick Vick off, but the ball went into center field, and was errored there, allowing Vick to come in with the go-ahead run, making it 2-1, in favor of the Pirates.

Colbert hurled a fine game for his seven inning stint, giving up the only Seminole run. He allowed four hits and struck out eight along the way, walking three. Burke, who got the win, gave up just two hits in six innings, walking three and striking out five.

FSU starter Lin Garrett gave up one run, earned, and four hits. He struck out five and walked four. His relief, Wayne Vincent, gave up two hits, struck out four, but walked seven, a fatal number.

The Bucs outplayed the Seminoles all the way, and made the nation's third ranked team look bad most of the time.

"We didn't know when to quit fighting, and our pitchers did a tremendous job," Earl Smith said after the game.

The Bucs will face N.C. State, a 3-1 winner over Alabama, in Friday night's second round. FSU meets Alabama in the first round.

Unusual Memorial Day In National Circuit

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

National League baseball consumed 12 hours, 52 minutes on Memorial Day from the time the first pitch was thrown at Pittsburgh until the last out was recorded at St. Louis.

In between, some interesting things happened.

—Like the St. Louis Cardinals scoring six runs—their highest total in three weeks.

—Like the New York Mets sweeping a doubleheader.

—Like Bob Aspromonte driving in two runs on a force out.

—Like Ed Kranepool driving in two runs.

The Cards, locked in a hitting slump that dumped them to fourth place with 11 losses in 13 games, woke up with a 6-0 victory over San Francisco. Houston battered Atlanta 11-0, New York swept a twinbill that started in mid-morning from Pittsburgh 6-3 and 5-4, and Los Angeles dropped Cincinnati 5-3. Chicago's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

In the American League, Cleveland dropped Minnesota 3-1, Oakland whipped Boston 6-2, Detroit defeated California 7-3, Baltimore shut out Chicago 5-0 and New York split a doubleheader with Washington, winning 13-4 before losing 5-2.

Thirteen doubleheaders had come and gone since the Mets last swept one. But the ingredients were right Thursday.

First, the opponents were the Pirates, victims of the last Met sweep back in August, 1967. Then there was the bizarre 10:30 a.m. starting time. And then, perhaps most startling, there was Kranepool driving in two runs.

Kranepool had been up 95 times without an RBI this season. The Pirates were so confident they could handle Ed that they walked rookie Kevin Collins intentionally, loading the bases in the third inning of the first game.

But Kranepool singled for two runs and New York was on its way to the victory—eighth in 10 decisions for rookie Jerry Koosman.

Houston had almost as much fun against the Braves, collecting 15 hits—three each and three RBI apiece by ex-Braves Denis Menke and Lee Thomas.

Unser Still Insists Turbines Be Grounded

By JAMES R. POLK
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The noisy victory of Bobby Unser's piston-pounding Offy racer has done nothing to silence the 500-mile feud over the colorful and controversial turbines.

Unser won the 1968 war of automobile vs. aircraft engines Thursday, driving to victory in the Indianapolis 500-mile race when leader Joe Leonard stalled his jet-powered turbine in the last nine laps.

But Unser insisted the turbines were powerful enough to have run away with the race whenever they wished. He renewed the year-long argument that the jet should be grounded in the rich Memorial Day classic.

"I think this is a race for automotive vehicles," Unser said. "You should put the turbines in a class all by themselves and let them run their own race on some other day."

The crowd of 250,000 expected to flame red jet cars to run their own race Thursday all by themselves at the head of the 500-mile field. But Unser astounded all.

The 34-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., driver swept past pace-setter Leonard on the eighth lap. He led in 127 of the 200 laps around the 2½-mile oval.

McCarthy-Kennedy Debate June 1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy, each trying to block the other's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, will meet face-to-face Saturday in a nationally televised debate.

Until he lost to McCarthy Tuesday in the Oregon primary, Kennedy had been ignoring his opponent's daily challenges to join him before the cameras.

Oregon boosted McCarthy's stock at Kennedy's expense and suddenly made it harder to say no to a debate.

The ABC network announced Thursday the pair would meet on a one-hour telecast, entitled "Issues and Answers: A Special Report," originating from KGO-TV in San Francisco.

It will be seen alive across three-fourths of the nation—at 9:30 p.m. in the East, 8:30 p.m. in the Central states and 7:30 p.m. in the Mountain states. In the Western time zone a taped broadcast will be shown at 9:30 p.m. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, as third man in the race for the Democratic nomination, was asked to join in the debate but declined, the network said.

Frank Reynolds, an ABC network newsman, will be moderator, directing questions at first one man and then the other. Questions will also come from two other ABC newsmen, political correspondent Robert Clark and White House correspondent William Lawrence.

Under the ground rules, Kennedy and McCarthy will not engage each other in direct exchanges, but whenever one answers a newsman's question his opponent will have a chance to jump in immediately afterward with comment and criticism of what has just been said.

National tremors are likely but the debate is almost certain to have immediate impact in California, where Kennedy and McCarthy are pitted against one another in Tuesday's state presidential primary.

Kennedy took to the rails Thursday, whistling through the San Joaquin Valley. McCarthy meanwhile campaigned in Watts and said he found nothing in the Black Power concept incompatible with American traditions.

"There's never been any group in America who had any more reason to organize themselves to get their rights," he said at a rally and barbecue in the Negro suburb of Los Angeles.

Humphrey, who is not making the rounds of the primary states with his two rivals, was in Bethesda Naval Hospital today for what his staff described as a routine twice-yearly checkup. Aides said he expected to be through with the tests and back on the campaign trail by day's end.

There were these other political developments:

—George Wallace, inactive since the death of his wife, Gov. Lurleen Wallace of Alabama on May 7, will resume his third-party campaign June 6 with appearances in Maine and Massachusetts.

—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York returned to Albany Thursday after three days of campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination in the West. Aides said he'll fly to Milwaukee Sunday night.

—Richard M. Nixon, the GOP front runner, said Thursday his five consecutive primary victories "means the end of one phase" and promised to unveil "a brand new campaign" shortly.

Cameron West Appointed To Higher Board

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Cameron P. West, associate director of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education, will succeed outgoing director Howard Booz-er Dec. 1.

Watts Hill Jr., chairman of the board, announced West's appointment Thursday, two days after Dr. Booz-er announced he would leave his post Dec. 1 to accept the vice presidency of the Regional Education Laboratory for the Carolinas and Virginia. Booz-er's present salary is $23,500 a year.

West has been associate director of the Higher Education Board for two years and is a former academic dean of P. I. Fisher College and one-time school administrator in the Fairmont and Jacksonville public school systems.

A native of Walstonburg, West holds bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Hill, who said West's appointment by the board was unanimous, cited the associate director's experience in both private and public higher education and his coordination of the board's long-range plan as credits which "make him uniquely qualified for his new assignment."

West also has directed the development of a higher education data system, procedures for the submission and evaluation of new academic programs at public senior colleges and universities, studies of higher education and institutional long-range plans.

He has served as the board's representative on the State Planning Task Force and on the North Carolina Commission on Higher Education Facilities.

Students Given On-Job Training

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Graduate engineering students at the University of California are getting on-the-job training this year.

The new approach to engineering education puts students to work on actual design problems at the sprawling institution. The program applies case-study methods—long the backbone of teaching in law and medicine—to engineering. The Ford Foundation has allotted $110,000 for the project over the next four years.

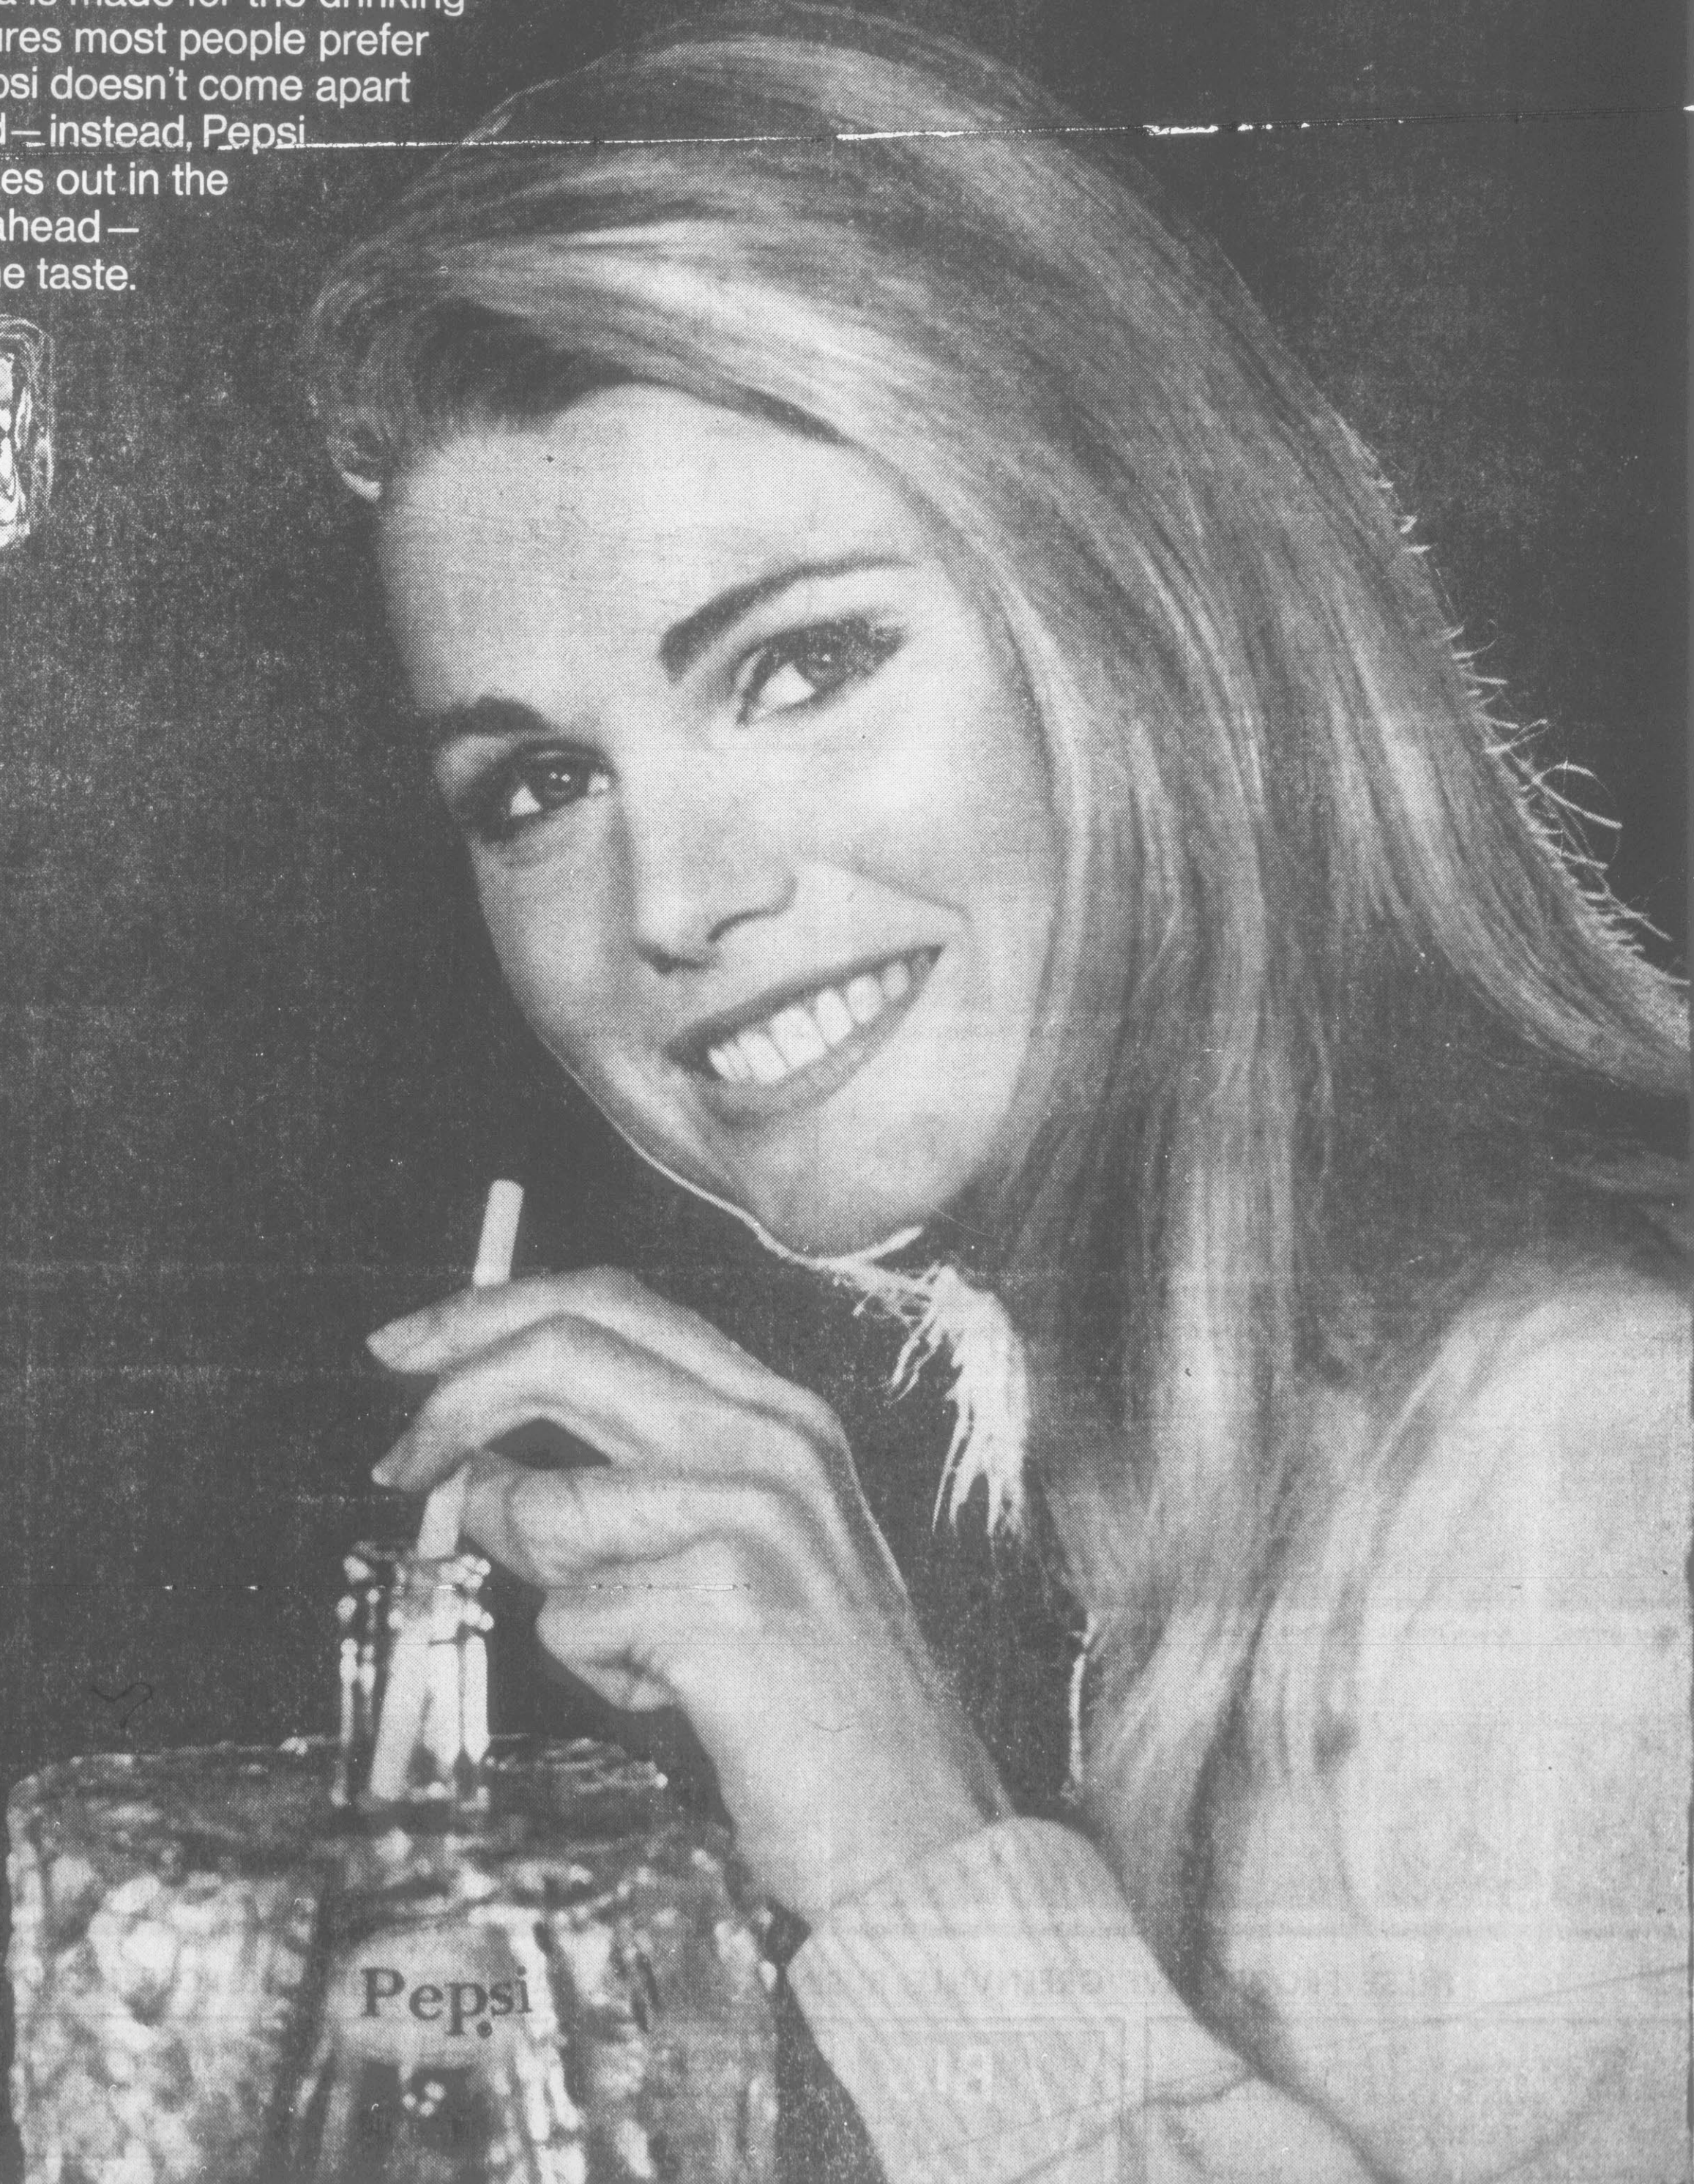

Graduating At Randolph-Macon

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were mostly steady with instances of 50 cents higher. Tops of 18.75-19.25 Rocky Mount; 18.25-19.25 Tarboro, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mt. Olive, Newton Grove, Albemarle, Lumberton; 18.25-18.75 Bethel; 19.00 Greensboro; 18.50 at Selma, Salisbury, Siler City, Denton.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was mostly steady. Price of live poultry at the farms was 13-13½, mostly 13½ cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rallied briskly this afternoon as prospects seemed brighter for congressional adoption of a tax increase linked with a $6-billion spending cut. Trading was heavy.

Gains outnumbered losses by nearly 600 issues on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 6.62 at 901.83.

Wall Street saw a major psychological factor as President Johnson's acceptance of a $6-billion spending cut to win approval of Congress for a 10 percent income tax surcharge. Wall Street has been rooting for passage of the tax surcharge as a means of preventing further tightening of credit by the Federal Reserve Board.

The savings-and-loan holding companies, hoping for easier money and hence more profitable conditions for them rallied as a group. Steels responded strongly to forecasts of greater profits as a result of record spending for capital improvements in recent years.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 2.4, with industrials up 5.0, rails up 2, and utilities up 1.0.

Imperial Corp. of America was the most active of the savings-and-loans, rising nearly a point. Great Western Financial and First Charter Financial advanced 2 or more, California Financial a fraction, all in heavy trading.

U.S. Steel, up about 1½, paced the steels on volume. Republic Steel spurred nearly 2 points, Bethlehem more than a point.

Occidental Petroleum, up more than 2, was the most-active stock for the list as a whole, followed closely by a fractional gainer, Glen Alden.

Also very active, Hooker Chemical, Spartans Industries, Standard Kollsman and American Machine & Foundry rose a point or better while Brinswick, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and American Telephone tacked on fractions. Commercial Credit was sold heavily, losing 2.

IBM and Xerox were up about 5 each, Du Pont, Raytheon and Control Data 2, Merck, Sperry, Zenith, Alcoa, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge and Eastman Kodak a point or better.

The price level swept higher on the American Stock Exchange, but the pace of trading was well below the Wednesday's near-record rate.

Three Longtime Record Winners

Three Pitt County 4-H members have been named winners in the 1968 East Central Longtime 4-H Record competition.

The three students are: Keesha Phillips, Breads and Cereals; Larry Bowling, forestry; and Susan Manning, Health, blue ribbon, division.

Miss Phillips, a member of the Trojans 4-H Club, Farmville, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Phillips. A member of the Shamrock 4-H Club, Bowling is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bowling of Rt. 2, Robertsonville. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr. of Greenville, Miss Manning is a member of the Red Oak 4-H Club.

The winners were selected on their entire 4-H work since being members of the organization.

Other local 4-H members competing in the contest were: Deborah Hines, Home Economics; Jonnie Cassick, photography; and Denise Grimsley, rural Civil Defense.

Chicago is one of the leading American metropolitan area producers of snuff.

W.A. "RED" FORBES WAS A FRESHMAN MEMBER OF THE HOUSE DURING MY TENURE AS HOUSE SPEAKER IN 1963.. DEAR RED, GOOD LUCK ON THE PRIMARY AND THE GENERAL ELECTION. WITH SO MANY OF OUR MORE EXPERIENCED MEMBERS NOT RUNNING FOR THE 1969 SESSION, THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL NEED MEN WITH YOUR ABILITY AND SENIORITY.
