NRA Moving To Fight Legislation

Mansfield Joins Ranks Of Gun Control Backers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, previously cool to gun control laws, endorsed proposed legislation Saturday that would require registration of all firearms and licensing of their owners.

Mansfield's open support was an important gain for the bill sponsored by Sen. Joseph Tydings, D-Md., that goes beyond President Johnson's request for a ban on the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns.

The most restrictive of three such measures now before Congress, the Tydings bill would require all weapons to be registered immediately and their owners to be licensed with photographs and fingerprints within a year. The license would have to be presented for any subsequent purchase of arms or ammunition.

The bill also would disqualify felons, aliens, drug addicts, alcoholics, mental incompetents and juveniles from ownership.

Mansfield's endorsement came in the face of an appeal by the National Rifle Association (NRA), to its 993,000 members to generate a mail campaign urging defeat of stricter gun controls.

In a letter mailed to the membership, NRA President Harold W. Glassen said "the right of sportsmen in the United States to obtain, own and use firearms for proper lawful purposes is in the greatest jeopardy in the history of our country."

"Unless the sportsmen of America clearly express their views without delay to their senators and congressmen," he added, "individuals will be prohibited from acquiring long guns in interstate commerce and general firearms registration will become a reality."

Tydings denied in a statement that the rights of sportsmen, gun collectors, hunters or any other law-abiding citizen would be affected by his bill. He accused the NRA of "unleashing a campaign of calculated hysteria and distortion."

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has introduced a bill that would require only registration of all firearms. The administration measure would extend to all firearms the prohibition against mail order sales of hand guns which Congress already has approved.

The President also proposed to limit pistol and revolver sales to state residents over 21 years of age and to restrict long gun sales to persons older than 18.

Mansfield earlier had neither endorsed nor rejected the administration bill, saying gun controls generally would do little to halt violence.

By RICHARD HUGHES

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The Students For A Democratic Society called Saturday for infiltration of the armed forces in addition to draft resistance and aid to defectors.

Moments before adjourning its six-day convention, the SDS delegates adopted a resolution pledging "to initiate and support activities directed toward creating a radical political consciousness among members of the armed forces."

The resolution urged support for "those individuals who wish to continue the struggle against imperialism by entering the military for the purpose of politicizing and organizing our brothers in the military, as well as continuing to support draft resistance."

The measure outlined plans for "GI drop-in centers near military installations offering a political program aimed at aiding GIs in radical struggle and organizing efforts in the military."

The plans called for involvement of GIs in SDS social and political activities, a counseling service for soldiers, sailors and airmen and "support for defectors and their demands for amnesty."

Earlier Saturday, the SDS, its ranks thinned by the premature exodus of delegates, scrapped proposals for students and workers to join forces.

The proposals had been debated all week at the SDS national convention. They were killed after remaining delegates defeated another motion that would have tabled all issues and adjourned the six-day meeting.

The number of delegates on the Michigan State University campus dwindled from about 500 during the week to about 200 Saturday. Many of those staying for the final day's session brought knapsacks and bedrolls with them, apparently planning to leave town directly from the convention floor.

Extending Search For Stocks And 2 Children

A search for a man who allegedly kidnapped his two stepgranddaughters from here has spread into several other states, Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Saturday.

"We have the feeling now he has left the state," Tyson said of Alton Carlyle Stocks, 47, of Grimesland. Mrs. Jessie Harrington signed a kidnap warrant charging Stocks abducted their daughters, Peggy Ann, 11, and Lorrie Ann, 6, on June 4.

The parents said Stocks, who is married to the girls grandmother, picked up the girls "to get them some ice cream." They haven't been seen since.

"He has a lot of camping equipment with him," Sheriff Tyson said Saturday. "That's his hobby. He might be hanging around some rivers and streams."

Tyson expressed the belief the girls had not been harmed "because Stocks knows we know the girls are with him."

Scores of agents from the state and federal bureaus of investigation and sheriffs deputies throughout the state have participated in the search for the three.

"We have contacted agencies in other states" Tyson said, but he would not reveal which ones.

Tyson said Stocks was last seen driving a 1956 green and white station wagon with North Carolina license HH-2275. "The car has a luggage rack on its roof," Tyson said.

Savage Fighting On Outskirts Of Saigon In Terrorist Search

SAIGON (UPI) —South Vietnamese paratroopers fought a seven-hour battle in a swampy area outside Saigon used by Communists as a site for launching terrorist rocket attacks on the capital, killing 80 Communists, military spokesmen said Sunday.

But Viet Cong forces elsewhere on Saigon's outskirts slammed four rockets into the capital's waterfront Sunday before U.S. artillery destroyed their launching positions. An American spokesman said three persons, including two Americans, were wounded by Viet Cong rockets.

U.S. bombers blasted Communist positions with some of the heaviest strikes of the war as allied commanders issued an alert to counter any enemy thrust into Saigon.

Far to the north of the capital, U.S. Marines reported killing 54 North Vietnamese in a four-hour battle near Khe Sanh where as many as 10,000 fresh Communist troops were reported massing.

Viet Cong renewed their shelling of the U.S. airbase at Tan Son Nhut on Saigon's northern fringe, hitting two houses.

Government spokesmen said South Vietnamese forces suffered "extremely light" casualties in their drive to push Communist troops from a rocket-launching belt five miles north of the capital. The area has been a prime site for the launchings of 122 mm rockets against the capital. Three Viet Cong were taken prisoner in Saturday's action.

South Vietnamese officials said the rockets were brought into Vietnam from Cambodia and shipped along river routes of the Mekong Delta to the outskirts of Saigon. American and South Vietnamese troops have discovered numerous arms caches there.

Sunday's shelling on the city proper hit the port area at the southern edge of Saigon. U.S. radar tracking stations pinpointed the Communist launching site in a rice paddy region six miles south of Saigon and U.S. artillery shells fired into the area touched off a large secondary explosion, indicating the rocket site was hit, officials said.

Conspiracy Verdict For 2 Extremists

NEW YORK (UPI)—A white jury early Saturday convicted two alleged members of the black militant Revolutionary Action Movement (RAM) of plotting to assassinate moderate civil rights leaders Roy Wilkins and Whitney Young.

State Supreme Court Justice Paul Balsam released both defendants in continued bail of $25,000 each pending their expected appeal. He set no date for sentencing on the charge of conspiracy to commit first degree murder.

The defendants, Herman B. Ferguson, 47, a suspended assistant public school principal, and Arthur Harris, 22, face up to 7 years in prison.

The all-white, all-male jury deliberated 8½ hours before returning its verdict at 2 a.m. They had been deadlocked 3 hours earlier.

W. German Chancellor May Appeal To LBJ

BERLIN (UPI)—West German Chanrellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger may fly to Washington to appeal to President Johnson to take action against a new Communist attempt to cripple West Berlin, the government said Saturday.

The new East German visa requirements that force West Germans and West Berliners to treat East Germany as a foreign country caused the worst chaos in several years on the main highway from Berlin to the west Saturday.

Willy Brandt, Foreign Minister of West Germany, flew to Berlin to tell a press conference that in the future West Germany would contact the Soviet Union more on the Berlin problem because "there is a German responsibility for Berlin."

Vital truck traffic bringing food and supplies to this western outpost was normal Saturday.

Federal Sum Okayed For ECU Project

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced Saturday the approval of $298,484 in federal funds to help finance construction of East Carolina University's new $3.5 million science complex.

Jones said the funds, granted under Title 1 of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963, complete a total federal allocation of $1 million toward the building. The university received a grant of $701,516 last winter.

A university spokesman said the grant announced by Jones completes the $3.5 million budget for the project.

The complex includes three connecting towers of three and four stories to house the university's departments of physics and biology. The project is well under way with completion scheduled next spring.

Convictions Fail Deter Draft Foes

BOSTON (AP)—Two groups opposing the draft said Saturday they will continue to resist the Selective Service System, despite the conviction Friday night of Dr. Benjamin Spock and three of four co-defendants in an antidraft conspiracy trial.

"We deplore the verdict," said Paul Lauter of Cambridge, national director of a group called Resist.

He said thousands of Americans felt as the four men convicted felt.

The New England Resistance, another antidraft group, said the number of resisters in New England has doubled since Spock was indicted Jan. 5. That group said it intended to "continually increase our active resistance to a society we cannot condone."

Spock and Yale Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., writer Mitchell Goodman and Harvard graduate student Michael Ferber, said they would appeal the decision handed down by a jury after seven hours of deliberation. Their trial lasted 19 days. Disposition of their cases is expected July 10 by U. S. District Judge Francis J. W. Ford.

The jury acquitted the fifth defendant, former White House disarmament aide Marcus Raskin, co-director of the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington.

INAUGURAL CHAIRMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N. C., will serve as committee chairman of the 1969 presidential inauguration. He has been elected head of the Joint Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies.

'Made A Deal' Not To Tell Of Laos Operation

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Premier Souvanna Phouma said Saturday he made a deal with North Vietnam and the Communist Pathet Lao in 1962 and agreed not to tell the Geneva Conference that North Vietnamese troops were operating in Laos.

In return, Souvanna said, the Hanoi regime promised to pull its troops out of Laos when the 1962 Geneva agreements on Laotian neutrality were signed. He said North Vietnam reneged on this pledge and launched a heavy offensive in his country.

Speaking at a meeting of technicians and craftsmen in the Defense Ministry Saturday, Souvanna said he was disclosing the deal as an example of why the Communists could not be trusted.

Fourteen nations, including Laos, North Vietnam, the United States, the Soviet Union and Communist China, signed the agreements in Geneva on July 23, 1962. Among other things, the accords said no nation could use Laotian territory for military purposes. Laos promised to "require the withdrawal of all foreign troops and military personnel from its territory."

Souvanna said Saturday the Pathet Lao—the Laotian version of the Viet Cong in South Vietnam — were "absolutely Communist."

"It is hopeless to try to rehabilitate them as good citizens," he said. "They are traitors. They are no longer Laotians. They are merely tools of the North Vietnamese."

Successor

RALEIGH (AP) — Charles D. Chuck Barbour, managing editor of the Durham Morning Herald, will succeed Phillip O. Redwine as executive director of the North Carolina State Democratic Executive Committee, Chairman Tim Valentine announced Saturday.

Barbour, who has been in the newspaper and public relations field since 1948, has served as managing editor of the Durham Morning Herald since 1966.

Man Slain, Wife Also Assaulted

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An ax-wielding intruder, striking in the predawn hours Saturday, killed a Nashville man and left the victim's pregnant wife and 18-month-old daughter badly beaten.

A hospital official said the mother underwent surgery for multiple stab wounds, but added: "the life of the unborn child is not threatened at the moment."

The body of John Robert Bolte, 27, apparently killed instantly by a single blow from a double-edge ax, was found in a bedroom at the couple's brick home in a quiet south Nashville neighborhood.

Bolte's wife, Barbara, 23, was stabbed three or four times in the upper chest and listed in critical condition.

Mrs. Bolte, who was able to summon officers seven hours after the attack, told police she had been raped.

Speaking in a whisper because a knife wound penetrated her throat, the woman gave detectives what they termed a "brief, incoherent" account of the attack.

The couple's daughter, Dera, was beaten on the head and suffered a fractured skull and also was listed in critical condition.

Homicide Detective Raymond Brown said Mrs. Bolte—her lips bruised and swollen, and answering several times only with a nod of her head—told him she was sleeping when a slender man wearing rubber gloves, broke into the house.

Almost seven hours after the attack, the woman regained consciousness, painfully reached the telephone and asked the operator to call help, police said.

The house was ransacked and a trail of blood led from the bedroom to the living room.

Police said there was no evidence of forcible entry to the house.

DeGaulle Pardons, Frees From Jail, Eleven Militant Foes Of Regime

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle, fighting for survival of his regime, pardoned and freed from jail Saturday ex-General Raoul Salan and 10 other leaders of military revolts and plots aimed at his overthrow and assassination.

The presidential pardon appeared designed to strengthen relations between De Gaulle and the army, one of the main props of his embattled regime, as the Gaullist government girded for critical nationwide elections late this month.

Most prominent among those released was Salan, 69, the former army general who led the 1961 generals' "putsch" against De Gaulle's decision to grant Algeria independence.

Salan, once the French army's most decorated soldier, stepped out of the hilltop maximum security prison at Tulle, in central France, after six years and 30 days in jail. He had been the prison's only inmate.

With tears glittering in his eyes, the former head of the anti-Gaullist Secret Army Organization (OAS) walked out into the arms of his daughter, Monique. His first act as a free man was to go to a market place and buy a bouquet of field flowers for his wife who had suffered a mild heart seizure in her Tulle hotel on learning of the release of her husband.

Simultaneously in Paris, the huge gate of the Sante prison swung open to release former Col. Antoine Argoud, who took over the leadership of the anti-De Gaulle movement after Salan's capture.

Like Salan, Argoud was serving a life sentence pronounced by a French court after unidentified men had kidnaped him in Munich, Germany, and brought him, bound and gagged, back to Paris. The abduction was widely considered to be the work of French secret police.

Nine other men, most of them convicted in connection with abortive attempts to assassinate De Gaulle, were released from the Saint Martin fortress prison on the Isle of Re, a speck of land off France's Atlantic coast.

De Gaulle signed a decree granting pardon to his former mortal enemies Friday, shortly before he left for his Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises country home for his first quiet weekend since the student and worker revolt plunged France into its worst crisis since World War II.

In an earlier move apparently aimed at making peace with his former enemies on the right, De Gaulle last week permitted former Premier Georges Bidault to return to Paris after six years of exile in Brazil and Belgium. Bidault headed the civilian wing of the OAS organization for a while during the Algerian war.

Another prominent figure in the 1961 Algiers revolt, former Col. Jean Lacheroy was allowed to return to France from exile two days ago.

Meanwhile, France's strike crisis moved into its fifth week, with a half-million holdout strikers still refusing to resume work in a number of key industrial plants.

Efforts to work out new wage contracts in the Citroen, Peugeot Berliet and Renault automobile factories have failed and there appeared to be little prospect for resumption of work before the middle of next week.

South America Stay For 3 Local Students

Three Rose High School students are traveling to various parts of South America this summer under the sponshorship of the International Fellowship Exchange Program.

The three students are Geraldine Case and Melinda Scott, both rising seniors, and rising junior Ray Peszko.

Miss Case, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey R. Case will spend 2½ months in the Colombian capitol of Bogota, a city of over 3 million, with Dr. and Mrs. Enrique Ferro. Dr. Barreto is a prominent physician in that city. Peszko will be living in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gustavo Echeverri in Medellin. Echeverri is a hardware store owner.

Peszko is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Peszko.

Miss Scott, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Scott Jr. will be living with ranch owner Manuel Sanchez and Mrs. Sanchez on their ranch outside Mendoza.

The local students will assume the role of children in the families with whom they will be staying rather than North American guests, and are required to attend school during their stay.

Schools in those countries operate on a nine - month basis. However, since the seasons are reversed below the equator, the summer vacation in South American countries comes in December, January and February.

Each exchange student will, this winter, have a Latin American exchange student in their homes for three months. That student will, likewise, be required to attend school here.

Peszko's father, a Voice of America radio technician, hopes to maintain contact between the students and their families by short - wave radio.

Nursing Services Workshop Held Here

Thirty - five members of the Eastern District of the North Carolina Association of Nursing Homes attended a one - day conference at the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center Thursday.

The conference, sponsored by the Center, was entitled "Updating Nursing Services".

Guest speakers included Dr. Walter Savage, M. D. Medical Director of Coastal Plains Mental Health Center; Mrs. Donnie Waldrop, president of District Nurses Association; Miss Helen Peeler, executive director of the North Carolina State Nurses Association; Mrs. Vercie Eller, Nursing Consultant for Health Insurance Benefits program; and Miss Agnes Campbell, Nursing Consultant, for North Carolina State Board of Health.

The conference was one of many workshops or in - service training programs available to the nursing staff of an extended care facility. The workshops enable the facilities to better their nursing care program.

A short comedy skit was presented by members of the Nursing Staff and a short buffet luncheon was served.

The Greenville Convalescent and Nursing Center has 109 beds, with approximately 65 employees, including seven registered nurses and five licensed nurses.

Fast Trains Are Coming To India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian Railways plan to inaugurate the "high speed era" on Oct. 2 this year.

On that date, a train will be inaugurated which is to make the Delhi-Calcutta trip in 17½ hours compared with the present 24-hour journey.

Similar high speed trains, reaching 70 miles per hour, are planned, linking Delhi, Bombay, Madras and Calcutta.

What is sacred, however, is the sense of sight.

We don't think you can haggle when it comes to protecting it. That's why we won't stint on quality of materials, equipment, or craftsmanship.

It may cost a little more, but isn't it worth it?

Icarus Didn't Collide With Earth And Hippies Couldn't Care Less

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)—The hundreds of hippies in the mountains west of here appear hardly phased at all by the fact that the world didn't end in an apocolyptic bang Saturday.

A number of them have turned to laying plans for the future, including a scheme for living off the land instead of society.

A hippie identifying himself as Chuck said the flower children "hope to ask the government to live on some of their land in an experimental farm."

Hippies have been streaming into Boulder for the past two weeks for "a meeting of the tribes" and to escape an expected cosmological cataclysm when the asteroid Icarus was supposed to smash into the earth Saturday.

A number of hippies thought the Boulder area and Tibet would be the only two places to survive the collision. Scientists said the mile-wide hunk of interplanetary debris made its closest approach to Earth Friday afternoon — and was roughly four million miles off target.

The fact that life seems to be going on has not stemmed the flow of flower children into the mountains. One hippie camp—on Sugarloaf Mountain about ten miles west of Boulder—has tripled in size since last Wednesday. It now has about 100 persons living in it.

A fire marshal in the area said he counted about 400 hippies in his sector of the mountains by the middle of last week, and the major influx was expected Saturday.

Chuck, who like most of his companions, seems to have quit worrying about the end of the world, said that now the hippies "are up here for an organizational meeting." He said he would bring up the idea of approaching the government for an experimental farm.

"This experimental farm would give the people of the United States a chance to be rid of the so-called hippies," Chuck said. He said the hippies are just as anxious to get out of the mainstream of American life as many citizens are to see them go.

Chuck said he envisioned the proposed farm as sort of a mission. He said its occupants would recruit youngsters and other hippies and get them to come out and till the soil.

Name 22 Hotels To House Demo Conventioneers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Twenty-two hotels were named Saturday to house the 5,611 delegates and alternates at the Democratic party's largest convention ever, opening Aug. 26 in Chicago.

John M. Bailey, Democratic national chairman, said, "now that the delegates and alternates have been satisfied, we will begin making other hotel assignments."

More than 7,500 requests for press credentials have been received for the convention and a total of more than 50,000 persons were expected to go to Chicago for the convention. A total of 15,000 rooms in 130 hotels have been reserved.

"Delegates and alternates were assigned the choice hotel space for the convention. Without exception, they will have easy access to both the international amphitheatre and the various campaign headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel," Bailey said.

Hotels, together with the state delegations assigned to them, included:

Review Held By 30th Infantry

FT. STEWART, Ga. (AP) — More than 12,000 National Guardsmen of the 30th Infantry Division (Mechanized) from North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia passed in review Saturday before dignitaries of the three states.

The troops assembled in the first division formation since the recent National Guard reorganization. Then they marched before Maj. Gen. Ivan Hardesty, the division commander and reviewing officer; the adjutants general of the three states; the division's three assistant commanding generals, and South Carolina Lt. Gov. John R. West.

Cited during the review were Brig. Gen. Dan K. Edwards of Durham, N.C.; Col. Junius S. Sterns Jr. of Laurinburg, N.C.; Capt. Harry Louis Belo of Concord, N.C., and Sgt. Maj. Robert M. Stroud of Kinston, N.C. Each received the North Carolina Distinguished Service Award.

Pedestrian Hurt By Backing Car

A pedestrian, Lawrence Hagins, 45, of 1009 Colonial Ave. was injured yesterday when struck by a car driven by James Earl Brown, 32, 605 Albemarle Ave.

The 12:45 p.m. incident occured at a service station on Albemarle Ave., 75 feet south of Bonner's Lane.

Police reported that Hagins was standing beside his boat and trailer when struck by Brown's car which was backing into the station.

Brown was charged with failing to keep a proper look-out while backing, and no damage was reported.

GRANDPARENTS DAY

THORNTON, Colo. (AP) — A police sergeant and his wife at this Denver suburb, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Matlock, became grandparents twice on the same day. Their younger daughter gave birth to a boy at Parsons, Kan., and 12 hours later the older daughter became the mother of a girl at Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

Puerto Ricans Begin Arrive In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Leaders of nearly 4,000 Puerto Ricans participating in a march supporting the Poor People Campaign Saturday threatened a one-day work stoppage in New York to dramatize Puerto Rican importance in the city's economy.

The Puerto Ricans arrived here by buses from the New York, Philadelphia and Boston areas.

They held a rally at the open air Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument grounds and then marched to Arlington National Cemetery to place wreaths on the graves of President John F. Kennedy and his brother, Robert.

A few NegroCes, Mexican-Americans and Indians in the Poor People's March joined the Puerto Ricans to swell the long line of marchers to more than 4,000.

Gilberto Gerena Valentin, Commissioner of Puerto Rican Affairs on the New York City Human Relations Council, told the rally that Puerto Ricans in New York "will stop the city one day to see what happens." He said the large number of Puerto Rican workers in the garment industry, longshoremen and other workers could seriously hamper economic activity with a one day work stoppage. But he did not say when such a stoppage would take place.

The Puerto Ricans made the trip here in support of the mass demonstration by the Poor People next Wednesday. The march was orderly. The Puerto Ricans were neatly dressed compared to the unkept residents of Resurrection City.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy made an impassioned address to the Puerto Ricans at the Sylvan Theater.

He said the poor would "rise up 40 million strong and change the government" unless the government changed the plight of the poor people.

"They ran the bonus marchers out in the 30s, but they will not run the poor people out in 1968," he said.

Fewer N.C. Needy Join In Federal Food Program

ATLANTA (UPI) — Fewer of North Carolina's needy participated in federal food programs during April than they did in March, the U.S. Agriculture Department revealed Saturday.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said 166,375 persons were aided by the commodity distribution and food stamp programs, about 21,111 less than in March.

Officials said 120,426 persons in 61 Tar Heel counties participated in the commodity distribution program and 45,949 in 25 counties in the food stamp plan.

Several factors were cited for the decline. Brunswick and Green counties changed from the commodity to the food stamp program and did not complete recertification. Also, spring cultivation in rural areas boosted employment in most areas.

The USDA said food distributed to North Carolina's needy in April had an estimated retail value of $963,408. They included dried beans, corn meal, flour, grits, lard or shortening, margarine or butter, cheese, chopped meat, dried milk, peanut butter, dried split peas, raisins, rice, and rolled oats.

Low-income families traded $353,907 of their own money during the month for $667,624 worth of USDA food stamp coupons. These families also received $313,717 worth of free bonus coupons to boost their buying power at local grocery stores.

Mobilization In Vietnam Voted

SAIGON (UPI)—The National Assembly Saturday approved a general mobilization law designed to put 200,000 more South Vietnamese in uniform by the end of the year. This could pave the way for a later reduction in the U.S. manpower commitment.

The action Saturday ended months of debate and dispute over a plan submitted by President Nguyen Van Thieu when he took office last November and tried to obtain quick approval of a mobilization plan.

The United States has been urging the Saigon government to increase its armed forces to take some of the burden from American fighting men.

The measures approved Saturday are designed to increase the size of the armed forces to 870,000 men by making all males between the ages of 18 and 38 eligible for the draft. Males 16 and 17 and 39 to 50 will be required to serve in civil defense units unless they volunteer for the regular army.

Current law puts all males 18 to 33 under military obligation.

Two Accidents Reported Here

Two minor traffic mishaps, involving no injuries, were reported in Greenville Friday.

Charles Claude Cash, Jr., 24, 406 Biltmore St. was charged with failure to see a safe move in a 12:30 p.m. accident at the intresection of Dickinson Ave. and Seventh St.

Police said that the Cash vehicle moved from Seventh St. on Dickinson Ave., colliding with a car driven by James Robert Harris, 37, 1408 Ward St.

Damage was set at $80 to the Harris car and $15 to the Cash vehicle.

Grace Wilson Bullock, 68, of 109 W. 13th St. was charged with failing to yield right of way in a 5:50 p.m. collision.

The Bullock car, police said, turned left onto 10th St. from Albemarle Ave. and collided with a car driven by Charlie Lee Haddock, 63, of Simpson.

Damage is reported at $75 to the Bullock vehicle and $100 to the Hardee car.

Police said there were no injuries.

Honored At Convention

RECEIVE HIGH HONORS — A Greenville couple shared in the bestowal of high degrees by the Moose fraternity yesterday in the House of God at Mooseheart. Mrs. James Harris received the College of Regents degree, and her husband received the Pilgrim's Degree of Merit — the highest honor bestowed by the Moose. Mrs. Harris is a former Senior Regent of Chapter 1308, Women of the Moose, and is now the Chapter's Recorder. Mr. Harris is a Past Governor of Lodge 885, now holding the post of Treasurer. It is the second time in the history of the local lodge that a husband and wife shared in the awarding of these degrees at an international convention of the fraternity.

Greenville's Lions Club hosted the first District 31-H Awards Night at the Moose Lodge, Friday night. District Cabinet secretary Dr. W. C. Adams and District Governor James W. Rose, both of Benson, made the presentations.

One such special award was a state-wide award to the Kinston Lions Club for its work for the blind. The key purpose of the Lions is sight conservation and aid to the blind.

Rose also introduced Stickley, as "one of the great Lions in the world."

Stickley told the group of 187, Lions and their wives, representing 18 clubs in the district that he believed the trouble in the world today is due to a lack of discipline and leadership.

He refered to Lions clubs as a fertile proving ground for good leaders. "We're here tonight to honor Lions who have accepted the challenge of leadership. This is a challenge which demands that one face the teeth of the gale, no matter how unpleasant the task."

Rose then presented the District Governor-elect Kirby Sullivan of South Port. Sullivan will assume duties over the eastern N. C. district in July.

Additional items on the program were the welcome by local president Reid Hooper, N. C. Lions song led by George Wilkerson, pledge to the flag led by District Deputy Governor C. J. Best of Goldsboro, invocation by Jack Whichard, introduction of guests by Deputy District Governor Jack Howell of New Bern, and ajournment by president Hooper.

District 31-H consists of eastern N. C. Lions clubs in an area from Greenville south to Wilmington, west to Goldsboro and east to the coast.

Randall's Qualifications For W. Va. Post Queried

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) —Gov. Hulett C. Smith said Saturday "a rather serious question" has arisen concerning the eligibility of the man appointed to take over as state director of correction.

Smith said he approved the appointment of George W. Randall, 57, before learning he doesn't have a college degree.

Randall, current administrator of the Oregon Division of Correction, was appointed to succeed C. Robert Sarver who was dismissed last Tuesday at the culmination of a long-standing feud with Public Institutions Commissioner Clarence Johnson.

Randall was chairman of the North Carolina Board of Parole and director of North Carolina prisons before going to Oregon.

Randall had said he had some things to clear up in Oregon but expected to be on the West Virginia job within a month.

However, Smith said Saturday: "I think it would be much better to get official clarification before he actually takes office and I assume this will be done. Either Clarence Johnson or someone else will undoubtedly get the matter straightened up."

The code outlining the qualifications for the correction director's job includes the specific requirement that the director must be qualified by education and experience "with a degree in psychology, sociology, social science or some related field."

"It reads to me as if it means the director shall be a college graduate," Smith said.

Randall was the center of controversy following a recent prison riot in Oregon. A special grand jury said Randall had mishandled the riot and recommended that he be fired.

Gov. Smith said he and Johnson had known about the grand jury report prior to offering Randall the job.

"Everything we were told indicated that the grand jury was trying to do a hatchet job on him," Smith said.

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India's population passed the 520 million mark in April. Family planning officials estimate that the present rate of growth will push the figure past 530 million by the end of 1968.

Youth Drowns While Swimming In Pond

Kirby Cox of Route 1, Vanceboro was drowned in a farm pond near Chapman's Cross Roads early Friday afternoon.

Cox, 17, drowned, Pitt County Coronor E. W. Harvey said, while swimming with a half-dozen other boys in a pond on the Odell Haddock farm, three miles from the Cox home.

According to Harvey, the group had been swimming for a while when Cox started swimming across the 100 - foot wide pond. He started floundering about half - way across and efforts to pull him from the water failed.

Several youths who attempted to pull Cox to safety were pulled under the water themselves, Harvey quoted the group of boys as saying.

Rescuers from the Greenville and Ayden resuce squads were called and the body was recovered after a 20 - minute search of the pond.

The fatal mishap occurred about 12:30 p.m.

Demonstration To Be Remembered

In this ear of demonstrations of all kinds for a wide variety of causes, it is reassuring to find 1,000 young Americans who are willing to strike out on their own in a special project to reaffirm their faith in God and their Country.

That has been the purpose of the 100 mile hike of Boy Scouts from the Goldsboro area to the historic town of Bath. It was concluded this weekend as the 1,000 youngsters gathered in the old Beaufort County town to pay tribute to their heritage, to their nation and to their Faith.

Behind them was a week of hiking under the hot sun and through chilly showers. Behind them were nights of sleeping in tents and under the stars. There were sore limbs, blistered feet, wind- and sunburned faces in that happy group of youngsters. But these seemed insignificant to the boys and to their leaders. Their goal had been reached. Their trip they called "100,000 miles for God and Country" had become a matter of record.

Decades from now there will be a group of middle-aged men, probably scattered from one end of the nation to the other, who will remember the summer of their youth when they hiked 100 miles with 1,000 other boys as a show of faith in their nation. In the minds of many of them it will be one of the highlights of their lives. More than likely they will cite it as an example of what hopefully may be expected of the younger generation of their day.

For adults of today, it is well to recognize that these Boy Scouts who have hiked the 100 miles to Bath are much more typical of the American youth of today than are other groups who snatch headlines and charge police lines with their demonstrations of another sort.

Working To Achieve That Delicate Balance

This is the time of year when those who are formulating policies of local governments find themselves torn between meeting the needs of their various agencies and coping with the constant public pressure to keep taxes at a very minimum.

Members of governing boards of Pitt County and its various municipalities will face up to some tough decisions within the next 15 days. Already items that are important and would be well to have during the coming year are being stricken from proposed budgets as necessary priorities are imposed. Efforts are being made to whittle away at anticipated operating expenses in an effort to reduce the pennies which otherwise would have to be added to tax rates.

Between now and the end of the month these officials will have to strike that delicate balance between what their governments can afford to do and what they cannot afford not to do during the coming year.

Budget Cutting Target

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A still undisclosed scheme to eliminate all new money for the embryonic Anti - Ballistic Missile (ABM) System is the first dramatic step of President Johnson's grand strategy for complying with Congressional economy strictures without cutting into Great Society spending.

The opening wedge of that strategy is an amendment to the defense appropriations bill that Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan plans to offer, eliminating the entire $1.2 billion appropriation for the ABM Sentinel project. That would result in an estimated half billion cut in spending for the new fiscal year (starting July 1).

What makes this a significant move in the tortuous game of budget - cutting between Congress and White House is the origin of the ABM ripper amendment. It was scarcely Phil Hart's own idea. Rather, the White House asked Hart, a dependable Administration wheelhorse, to put in the amendment when the defense money bill reaches the Senate floor in late June.

Moreover, the President's effective postponement of the Sentinel ABM program is but one part of this undeclared policy to take the bulk of the $6 billion reduction in expenditures out of defense. Because of this decision, word has been passing in the highest levels of the Administration that Great Society and other social welfare programs will not be further reduced to make up the $6 billion.

From the moment that Mr. Johnson announced on June 1 that he would most reluctantly accept the Congressional mandate for $6 billion in spending cuts to get $10 billion in higher taxes, his top budgetary experts have been looking around for ways to insulate the Great Society. Examining and discarding numerous gimmicks to circumvent the Congressional edict, they glumly decided that the Congressional order to cut $6 billion was ironclad.

From that conclusion flowed the unannounced policy decision to cut into an already pared - down Pentagon budget to satisfy Congressional demands.

Of the $4 billion in spending reductions that the President originally insisted would be the maximum he would accept, $2 billion was to have come out of the Pentagon — a figure, it was then said, that could go no higher. Now, however, the defense cut will be at least $3 billion and possibly more. The rest of the spending cut will come out of foreign aid, space, and other non - social welfare items, according to present plans.

Consequently, Pentagon staffers have been working overtime in recent days to find additional sources for reducing their budget. There are not many. For instance, a further reduction of U. S. troops in Europe, while winning hurrahs on Capitol Hill, wouldn't make much impact on the current spending budget.

That leaves big hardware items: the manned orbiting laboratory and, more important, the Sentinel project, which always has had more than its share of enemies inside the Pentagon. But Mr. Johnson did not wait for the Pentagon's considered judgment. Instead he decided on the Hart ploy.

Valentine Feels His Time Is Up

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — It comes as no great surprise that I. T. (Tim) Valentine Jr. has confirmed that he expects to be replaced soon as chairman of the State Democratic Executive committee.

This normally is the first step in "changing of the guard" which follows nomination of the party's candidate for governor every four years. It is the beginning of formation of the nominee's own, handpicked party organization and then, if he is elected, a new state administration.

WILLIAM SHIRES

Party organization is important for two reasons. First, the nominee wants to be able to direct the course of the Fall campaign through his own loyal and usually experienced supporters.

Eyes On Johnson

This the reason eyes are on former State Sen. Jimmy Johnson of Charlotte as a likely successor to Valentine. Johnson was state campaign manager for Lt. Gov. Robert W. (Bob) Scott during the Spring primary campaign.

Again, according to tradition and practice, Johnson is expected to have a key role both in the Fall campaign and also, if Scott wins the governorship, in the next state administration.

Of course, there are others with excellent credentials who rank high in the Scott organization perfectly capable of stepping into top posts. More than can be mentioned.

Any list includes Scott's chief fund - raiser, John Williams of Raleigh, but it is believed that Williams will get the job of party treasurer succeeding C. A. Dillion of Raleigh. In either case, it is certain that Williams will be a close advisor and influential figure both in the campaign and a Scott administration. Scott organization sources say Williams stands to be the No. 2 man in state government in matter of influence if Scott is elected, no matter who is party chairman.

Patronage Matters

The second reason behind party organization importance is that this is the machinery for dispensing political patronage.

With few exceptions, all North Carolina governors rely upon this in passing out appointments and political favors.

At times, some governors—Luther Hodges was one, and Dan Moore another — the party organization was bypassed and appointments made without formal stamp of approval from state, district and local party leaders, and there were outcries and protests.

Both Hodges and Moore attempted belatedly to placate matters and patch up the wounds. But the fact is that damage was done and a certain amount of bitterness and dissension arose in party ranks. Hodges left office without a political organization wothy of the name, and Moore has none.

Within the Party

It is recognized and acknowledged that true political strength and power lies within the party framework and organization. Governors of North Carolina, while denied legislative veto power, exercise authority and influence through appointments to political office. In most cases, all are cleared through the political party power structure.

Scott certainly recognizes this, and plans to abide by it. This is why, by late August or September, there will be a shakeup in the state party organization.

The newly - elected state executive committee will be called into session to choose the man Scott recommends for chairman, and to pick other party officials also handpicked by the nominee.

Stress Unity

Presently, Scott and his campaign aides are stressing

Demonstration Bogging Down

By AUSTIN SCOTT

WASHINGTON (AP) — When leaders of the Poor People's Campaign issued a revised list of 23 priority demands this week, they weren't backing down from their original list of 99 so much as trying to put order into what had become an almost unmanageable undertaking.

What had started in mid-April as a campaign to guarantee everyone an adequate income, through guaranteed jobs or a guaranteed annual wage, had bogged down in leadership squabbles, organizational problems and an unseasonable, almost daily deluge of rain.

By Tuesday, when the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, campaign leader, met with newsmen to issue the new list of demands, Resurrection City, the campaign's shanty encampment, had gone seven days without a demonstration.

Demonstrators were trickling out, and going home, morale was sinking, and government officials who had been asking "What will they settle for?" were still wondering.

Abernathy took the original 99 demands he made in late April and picked out those he considered most important.

The 23 he chose put emphasis on food and job programs. And while Abernathy stopped short of saying the Poor People's Campaign would consider its work finished if these 23 were met, he did say — for the first time —that if they were, he would consider folding up Resurrection City.

Even if the city were dismantled, he said, pressure to satisfy the other 76 demands would continue on a more conventional level-meetings and letters rather than demonstrations.

It was the first time since the campaign began that Abernathy had indicated the demands he considered most important.

With the exception of three aimed specifically at Congress Abernathy said, 90 per cent of them could be granted by federal agencies without new legislation.

Congress, original focus of the campaign, was asked to pass a bill to create jobs such as the one pending by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., pass the pending housing bill, and repeal the 1967 Social Secuirty amendment freezing the number of families eligible for Aid to Dependent Children.

The other priority demands dealt with almost every area

Without Her Glasses

It was the first night of the ECU Summer School session and there were many students moving about on downtown streets.

The night spots were busy and the heavy beat of soul music resounded across the narrow streets.

Your columnist ambled along Fifth Street. A pretty coed approached. She seemed confidence she bubbled, "Hi. Have you seen a boy around here with a pair of glasses?"

I was forced to admit that I had not.

"Well," she continued. "I've lost him and the glasses are mine. I can't see a thing without them. In fact I doubt if I could even recognize him if he came by."

I looked carefully up and down the street but I could not spot a single boy carrying a pair of glasses.

I sympathized with the mini - skirted miss, however. She said she was nearsighted with vision of about 200-20. I told her my eyes were equally as bad.

ALVIN TAYLOR

She didn't seem too worried about her plight, however. "Well I think I'll beedle -bop on down here," she declared gayly as she turned a corner and disappeared into the darkness.

The menu was beef stew and Susan age 6, has definite ideas about what she likes in her stew.

"I don't want carrots," she said and carefully moved the carrots off to one side. "I don't want ptoatoes," she continued and carefully moved the potatoes to the side of the plate.

The parents took a second look on the next one, though. "I don't want string," little Susan said. They looked and sure enough, she was moving a piece of string to one side.

(The Wilson Times)

Many Americans may be pardoned a degree of skepticism and a lack of enthusiasm over President Johnson's appointment of a commission to investigate the violence which has become a national malady.

Selected after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, the commission was charged Monday by President Johnson "to undertake a penetrating search for the causes and prevention of violence —a search into our national life, our past as well as our present, our traditions as well as our institutions, our culture our customs and our laws."

The President specifically mentioned violence on movie screens and television programs as fields for scrutiny, but he was silent about some developments which, to some, are more suspect.

Perhaps the commission should investigate the influence on violence of the courts' tender solicitude about the rights of criminals—a solicitude evident in a growing number of decisions which have seriously hampered law enforcement efforts.

Another topic for commission probing should be the impetus to violence of the policy that some riot looting should be tolerated lest the looters become angered and wreak even greater destruction.

And, violence certainly was not discouraged by the report of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders which blamed destructive misconduct on everyone and everything except the perpetrators.

Why not scrutinize campus capers in which college and university officials are held hostage in their own offices, and public buildings are seized and vandalized?

Respect for law and order was not boosted by the spectacle of poverty marchers knocking out windows of the Supreme Court building, berating the attorney general of the United States, and voicing an implied threat that their removal from federal property would result in violence throughout the nation.

The nation will await with interest the findings of the President's latest study commission, but there are those who feel a portion of the blame for increasing violence should be laid at the doorstep of an administration which meets attacks on the foundations of society with little more than hand-wringing —and the appointment of another commission.

Father's Day

Today is Father's Day. Men and women in all walks of life should not fail to observe it in every way possible. It is an occasion of greatest solemnity, especially for those who are unfortunate enough to have lost their fathers. . .Poor old Dad. How he has persevered from day to day for our sakes. How he has toiled and labored month in and month out; year in and year out to give us our rightful place in society. His mission on earth has not been an easy one. But he has never complained. He is of the uncomplaining kind. He accepts whatever becomes his duty, and "carries on" despite misfortune and adversity. . .

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHICH?

We have in times past heard a great deal about vocation. The emphasis today is on career. The word "vocation" is derived from a Latin word which means "a call or summons." "Career" is derived from a French word meaning "race course."

This indicates, does it not, the declining value many people have of the object we were all apparently put into the world to achieve. There has been a profound decline in recent years of the religious emphasis as we discuss the meaning of life. Is life a vocation or a career? Is it something to which we have been called, by our own best impulses and the voice of God, or is it a race track? If it is the latter, is it a rat race? Opinions on this will vary from a charitable view toward life to bitterness and cynicism.

As usual the truth would appear to be somewhere in the middle. Certainly if we believe in a divine Creator and the ordering of our lives by his will and purpose, then we must feel that life is a vocation—something to which we are called. If, on the other hand, we take a non - religious view of life, then we can easily get to the place where we shrug our shoulders and raise our eyebrows and declare that after all life is a rat race.

No Christian, or anyone who cherishes religious faith, can take this latter position. We still cling to the belief that has a firm and loving hand on God made the world and has a firm and loving hand on its continuance.

Lack Consumer Communication

By ELMER ROESSNER

Home furnishings dealers were told off by Milton L. Williams, president of a public relations organization, at a sectional meeting of the National Retail Merchants Association in New York. His statements may be just as interesting —and painful — to retailers in other lines.

Furniture retailers' great fault, he said, was lack of communication with the American consumer. He cites these problems:

1. The young shopper today faces insecurity. Her choice is vast and her experience so limited that selection becomes a psychological hurdle for her.

2. Shopping is still not a pleasure and more likely a drudgery.

3. The lack of public relations in retail salesmanship is still appaling.

"Out Of Stock" Annoys

4. Even with today's computers, the out - of - stock syndrome is still prevalent and irritating.

ELMER ROESSNER

5. Delivery delays, particularly in furniture, are intolerable for many customers. "A friend selected a small occasional table in one of New York's finest stores. She asked the floor sample to be wrapped so she could cart it home and display it for a dinner party that night. But that was against store policy and the sale was lost."

6. For all their big ticket sales, furniture and other home goods departments are still stored away in the attic —on top floors — and even in 1968 some of the biggest and best are still not air-conditioned.

7. Model rooms offer no action, no personalization, no excitement other than visual, when the rest of the world is capturing the attention of all the senses. Why not remove the rope and let the customer sit on the chair, lie on the mattress, touch the fabrics? Did you ever see a woman buy a dress without trying it on? Why not throw parties in the living room, feed a family in the dining rooms, cook sample foods in the kitchen?

Not On The Pop Scene

8. Right under our noses the youth market is being snatched by the gaudy, overnight fashion fads. Why doesn't the furniture division have its own teen board? A teen furnishing department?

9. One major food manufacturer is now pretesting new products by computer, but the home furnishings industry gets along with practically no product testing whatever.

10. Why haven't we been able to sell the idea to store management and display people that fashion windows could more effectively be presented in home furnishing settings that with sterile, purely display backdrops? Why aren't bedrooms used to display the latest in nighties?

Observations From Editorial Columns

ONLY A MITE OF COMFORT

In 1967, traffic accidents killed 52,200 persons and injured 4.2 million others, according to figures gathered by The Travelers Insurance Companies. The totals indicated a reduction of 300 in deaths and 200,000 injuries, but dare we find much comfort in such a tiny reversal in the longtime upward trend? If so, about the best we can say is that the statistics show it can be done.

Better built cars, stricter enforcement by authorities and safer driving by individuals — principally the latter — will pay off even greater dividends in saving lives and property damage, if we will just put them to the constant tests of actual practice. We have a great deal to gain.

The 20-to-34 age group, which represents the period of greatest promise or productivity in the lives of individuals, suffer the largest losses. Must we continue to kill off the best among us when the obvious routes to major reductions in the toll lie before us? — Chattanooga (Tenn.) Post

FOUR POUNDS, FREE

The name of the publication is Catalog of Federal Assistance Programs. It is published by the federal government and it's free. It weighs four pounds and its 701 pages list 1,200 federal programs through which various agencies might float you a loan for a wide variety of projects.

Equally interesting is the fact that the current catalog's predecessor weighed only two pounds and listed only 439 items through which Americans might qualify for federal aid. Funds earmarked for the current fiscal year's federal aid programs are estimated at $20 billion, approximately three times the amount available 10 years ago. — Birmingham (Ala.) News

WATCH OUT FOR THE WILD ONES

All drivers should be particularly careful in the first week or so of summer vacation. Just as children going back to school need a period of adjustment to the new order, so do they require time to become accustomed to the wonderful freedom of summer vacation. Remember how it was?

As between the two periods — release from school and return to school — the first is probably the most hazardous. With another year behind them, the world is their oyster. They have a million plans and a billion miles to go before they are locked up again after Labor Day. That means they tend to be oblivious to danger. In their enthusiasm to realize all those dreams of the past few weeks, danger is foreign to their minds. They move on impulse.

That boy standing quietly on the curb may not look in peril, but he can move with the speed of a rabbit to follow sudden and compelling urge to see a friend across the street. He is faster by many milliseconds than your reflexes.

The safest assumption is that he will dart into the street; or, if riding a bicycle, that he will suddenly take a liking to the opposite side of the road. The tragedy which results is repeated scores of times every year in every city, crushing small bodies and scarring forever the lives of motorists and parents alike.

Drive cautiously and always assume the unexpected will happen. — Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

CARS CAN BE USED FOR STUDYING, TOO

Another problem complicating the lives of today's college students that did not worry undergraduates in their father's day is the search for a parking place.

Evidence of the changing times and the new affluence in undergraduate society is offered in the report that traffic congestion has become so bad on the campus of the University of Flordia that serious study is being given to radical steps to relieve the situation.

A fundamental need, officials say, is a carefully developed parking and traffic control plan, and one idea advanced for financing it was a fee for driving and parking on the campus. Another suggestion calls for limiting parking to the periphery of the campus and running shuttle buses to and from parking areas.

UF officials noted that the University of Georgia, where the campus extends even farther than that in Gainesville, has been awarded a federal grant to build a high-speed, overhead electric transit system for students to "commute" between widely scattered buildings.

All in all, the problems of modern students are a far cry from the days when a car-owning college student was automatically branded as a playboy on a four-year lark. — Jacksonville (Fla.) Florida Times-Union

This Date In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, June 16, the 168th day of 1968. It is Father's Day. There are 198 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1963, the world's first woman space traveler, Valentina Tereshkova, was launched into orbit from a base in Russia.

On this date:

In 1774, the first settlement in Kentucky — Harrodsburg — was founded.

In 1858, Abraham Lincoln declared in a speech: "A house divided against itself cannot stand.'

In 1879, the Alaska gold rush began when miners from Bonanza Creek arrived in San Francisco and bragged about the gold they had found.

In 1940, the French Maginot Line was abandoned to the Nazis in World War II.

In 1955, riots broke out in Buenos Aires, Argentina, as the Argentine navy sought, without success, to oust President Juan Peron.

In 1960, a state visit to Japan by President Dwight D. Eisenhower was canceled after weeks of anti-American rioting.

Ten years ago, western hopes for a summit meeting were dimmed when the Soviets made public the contents of a confidential letter from Premier Nikita Khrushchev to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

One year ago, Soviet Premier Alexi Kosygin met in Paris with President Charles de Gaulle to seek French support for Russia's demand that Israeli forces withdraw from captured Arab territory.

Johnson's Withdrawal Maybe Not So Good An Idea

By CROSBY S. NOYES

WASHINGTON — There is a nagging, somber impression to be passed along from a recent visit to Vietnam and other areas where American interests are deeply and precariously engaged. It is an impression of the very great psychological damage that has been done by Lyndon Johnson's withdrawal from the presidential contest this fall.

The repercussions of this decision among our friends and our enemies throughout the world have often been discussed. The uncertainty that has been created about the policies and performance of a future American government is only too clear. But the sense of bewilderment and disillusion by Americans in the field, though not often talked about, is perhaps an even greater reason for concern.

In terms of domestic American politics, no doubt, there were many quite reasonable justifications for the President's decision.

Johnson may well have believed that his administration had reached the end of its period of maximum effectiveness. He is quite certainly sincere in wanting to keep his decisions between now and November—including the decision to explore the possibilities of a negotiated settlement in Vietnam — free from any considerations of partisan politics.

There are also understandable human reasons. Quite apart from the enormous burdens of the presidency, Johnson has been subjected to a campaign of vilification and abuse unusual even in this unmannerly land.

The result has been that Johnson's decision to withdeaw has improved his popularity ratings at home. Some have even hailed it as an unparalleled act of statesmanship which disarmed his critics and "freed his hands" in Vietnam.

Others, however, do not see it this way. Men who under Johnson's leadership have given the very best they have to the American effort in Vietnam are wondering just where his decision leaves them. When the commander-in-chief decides at the height of the battle that he'd rather go back to Texas and teach school, the effect on the troops is a good deal less than inspiring.

"What the hell are we supposed to think?" asks one young revolutionary development worker in a sweltering Vietnamese hamlet. And the unanswerable question is repeated insistently in many forms by Americans who are quite sure that the job in Vietnam will not be completed before next Janurary.

So far as these people are concerned, Lyndon Johnson let them down. Rightly or wrongly, they have believed that his duty to see the job through was at least as clear as their own. They have also believed that if he ran for re-election, there was every probability of his winning. And in his re-election, they have seen the best assurance that the policies which he has stood for—and which they also believe in—would be pressed to a successful conclusion.

Today, they are very much less sure.

It may be that the major candidates in the coming election will not propose any radical changes of policy in Vietnam. Yet both Richard Nixon and Vice President Humphrey have left themselves plenty of room for maneuver on an issue of enormous concern to the country. It would be surprising if real differences did not develop between them in the months to come.

And who can say with assurance what the policy of the Johnson administration is at this point?

Although the pace of the war in the South continues unabated, the whole focus of attention in Washington is on the peace talks in Paris. There is, in fact, a surprising amount of optimism in the administration over the prospects of these negotiations—An optimism which is shared by few observers in Paris and even fewer Americans in the field in Vietnam.

In any event, the administration seems determined to follow the line of negotiations as far as it will go. Whatever happens in the field, it is unlikely that any decision will be made—such as the resumption of full-scale bombing—that might compromise the chances of success in Paris.

If the gamble pays off in an acceptable settlement in Vietnam before the end of the year, Lyndon Johnson will be hailed as a brilliant statesman. If it does not, it willl seem to many that he has simply evaded the really tough decisions and unloaded the responsibility for success or failure in Vietnam onto his successor and the American electorate.

And, indeed, it already seems this way to many who have accepted Johnson's commitments on Vietnam as their own. For even in this cynical age, personal leadership stands for something. And in abdicating the leadership at a critical time, the President has shaken morale on the fighting fronts.

How To Dispose Of A Dead Blue Whale?

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

RALEIGH — It happened in North Carolina:

There washing in the sand and surf of the beach at Shackleford Banks, near Beaufort, was the carcass of a blue whale, one of the largest of the whale family.

The whale, quite dead, washed ashore during the heavy, storm - tossed seas of last weekend and a couple of days later the carcass presented somewhat of a small problem. Or what was left of it.

A team of six medical students from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore heard about the whale, hopped in cars and drove to Beaufort to cut away parts of the ocean mammal for study.

They cut away such parts as an eye, heart valves and muscles, the sex organs and the whale's heart. The heart was so large it had to be taken out in sections.

Still, the carcass remained and by Monday residents several miles away began sniffing the air.

The stench, according to Dr. William J. Woods of the Institute of Marine Sciences, was already "terrific." Something had to be done.

Beaufort Mayor W. H. (Piggy) Potter offered a suggestion, involving state - federal aid. His idea was that the National Park Service and the State Museum of Natural History undertake to perserve the skeleton of the whale.

Potter said that in a few years the skeleton might be returned to Carteret County and serve as an interesting tourist attraction at a proposed Cape Lookout Seashore museum.

He pointed out that years ago the town of Beaufort was the home port for a famous whaling fleet and many whales were taken in waters off the North Carolina coast.

"This blue whale came ashore in an area where there was once a whale fishery and I think it would be most appropriate if the skeleton could be preserved," Potter said.

Practically, he added, "they're going to have to do something with it, and pretty soon."

B. Devon Bingham is a cable repairman for the telephone company in Shelby and he has a theory about squirrels. He thinks he knows why the bushy-tails gnaw on telephone cables with their sharp teeth.

Bingham's theory is that the squirrels want salt, which is missing from their usual diet.

On the basis of Bingham's theory and preliminary experiments, telephone crewmen in the Shelby area are attaching small, round spools of salt to telephone poles a few inches below the cables. Bingham experimented with the idea earlier, using some rock salt and a length of junk cable in the woods near his home. Squirrels bit into the cable before the salt was put out. Then, they gnawed on the salt and didn't bother the cable.

If a squirrel bites into a lead cable, its sharp teeth puncture the insulation resulting in moisture leak and short circuiting.

Service is interupted and costly repairs are necessary. By contrast, a hunk of salt attached to the poles costs only about four cents.

Usually when you're behind on your water payments, the water is turned off. But not if the delinquent is the town of Hazelwood.

Hazelwood is a small town, almost entirely surrounded by its larger neighbor, Waynesville. Hazelwood buys its water from Waynesville. But it hasn't paid its water bill for the past five months, the amount is $6,186. The board of aldermen is trying to figure out how to pay it.

Hart tried to keep his propisal a secret, at least until the Senate Appropriations Committee finished work on the defense money bill. Whether he then planned to surface it overtly as a White House proposal or to disguise it as his own, is not known.

In any event, Hart and the White House have one hard argument on their side: the Chinese intercontinental missile, which the Sentinel is supposed to guard against, is now some nine months overdue.

Furthermore, all the elements of political gamesmanship will be on Mr. Johnson's side. He will be asking the econmy - minded Congress to cut an item put into the budget partly because of pressure from conservatives in the House. If Congress refused, he could still impound the funds and point to Congressional refusal to cut spending when it really counted.

Nor is there much of a popularc onstituency today lobbying for anti - missle systems, whatever their importance to the country's survival may be. The pressure, rather, is for no further cuts in Great Society spending, and that is what Mr. Johnson also is bent on avoiding.

Democratic party unity. They are attending a series of meetings with supporters of the primary runner -up J. Melville Broughton Jr., for a visible display of party unity. The broughton campaign leaders have denied and discounted reports of underlying dissension and are demonstrating this.

At Rockingham, Broughton's campaign manager Jim Mason told a crowd, "I believe we have a champion in Bob Scott. I will support Bob Scott in November and ask you to do the same. I am proud to be one of his supporters. Had we been the winner we would have expected the same and we would have gotten it."

In the brief interim, chairman Valentine says his efforts are primarily "to beef up the party." The summer, he says, will be "slow, sort of orginizational for a while" until the Fall campaign really begins.

of government, from child care and school segregation to studying land and fishing rights claimed by Mexican-Americans and Indians.

The main emphasis was on giving more of America's surplus food to its own poverty-stricken people.

What if even these demands aren't met? Those close to the campaign think it likely that after the mass march next Wednesday, there may be civil disobedience.

It probably won't come before then, for fear of frightening away supporters who want to come and march for the campaign. But the Poor People's Campaign has had great difficulty sustaining its program just with demonstrations.

As one top staff member said, the campaign needs a confrontation.

Highway Travelers To See Fewer Billboards

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Morotists traveling the nation's main highways will see more natural beauty and fewer billboards in the years ahead.

The Federal Highway Administration has approved outdoor advertising control legislation adopted in 10 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

It has signed interim agreements with five other states that have passed laws which meet most of the federal requirements. Several other states are considering legislation to clear their highway areas of unsightly or view-obstructing billboards.

The agreements set up precise standards governing the position, size, spacing, zoning and lighting of billboards along interstate and primary road systems.

Under this legislation, non-complying states are threatened with a loss of 10 per cent of federal highway funds contributed toward both interstate and primary highway systems.

The deadline for compliance was Jan. 1, but Alan S. Boyd, secretary of the Department of Transportation, said no penalties will be applied this year.

Jurisdictions which have complied with federal requirements are Maryland, Alaska, California, Connecticut, Vermont, Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, Kentucky, Rhode Island, Utah, Virginia and Hawaii.

New York, Maine, Minnesota, Delaware and Pennsylvania have signed interim agreements wits the Federal Highway Administration.

Opposition to billboard control has come principally from tourist-oriented towns, such roadside business interests as hotel motel and restaurant owners, and, in some states, outdoor advertising companies.

A nationwide survey made by The Associated Press showed that virtually all states maintain some control over highway billboard displays.

Highway department spokesmen in the majority of states which have not yet complied with federal specifications predicted that bills aimed at reaching that goal will be introduced by next year.

Radical Student Leaders Dream Of New Power With Labor Alliance

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

Leaders of the radical student group that disrupted college campuses across the country during the past year now are talking of spreading their gospel of revolution to America's working classes.

The objective, said one national officer of Students for a Democratic Society, is "an alliance between students and workers —like in France."

Carl Davidson, SDS national secretary, said as the first step an undisclosed number of SDS members are taking summer jobs in big-city factories and are moving into blue-collar neighborhoods.

"We will learn how the workers think and how they live," Davidson said. "Then we can organize."

SDS which claims 35,000 members on more than 200 campuses, has made similar attempts at community organizing in the past—generally without success.

In 1963, it launched Economic Research and Action Projects (ERAP) in slum areas of 10 cities, but two years later dissolved the ERAP structure. "Our rhetoric sometimes gets ahead of our programs," Davidson said.

The renewed talk of expanding off campus follows two developments:

1. A year of unprecedented unrest on U.S. campuses beginning with demonstrations against the Vienam war and the military draft and ending with a paralyzing student strike at Columbia University.

2. The wave of disorders in France, sparked by a student-worker alliance that plunged President Charles de Gaulle's government into its gravest crisis.

Some SDS members contend the group should maintain its campus orientation, at least for present, and forget about trying to organize workers. Thus, the proposals for community organizing may touch off debate at an 11-hour plenary session today at the SDS' annual convention at Michigan State University, East Lansing. Newsmen covering this week's convention are handed a nine-point memorandum stating that no one can be quoted directly or indirectly. And reporters were excluded from two workshops Wednesday.

But in the days preceding the convention, The Associated Press interviewed scores of SDS officers and members from Brooklyn to Berkeley. The bold talk of converting SDS into a broadly based home for all radicals cropped up repeatedly in these interviews and in various SDS documents.

"You're not a student forever," Davidson said as he ate apple pie in a restaurant near the SDS national office in Chicago and talked of the off-campus organizing plans—a project he dubbed "Discover America."

The 24-year-old Penn State graduate, who sports a shaggy mustache and wears heavy boots, plans to move to Philadelphia as an organizer after his term as national secretary ends this weekend.

"We're using draft resistance as the basis to get into the community," Davidson said, "but we hope the organizations will become multi-issue and will concern themselves with cops, welfare, rats and rent."

In a recent issue of the Guardian, a radical left weekly newspaper, Davidson summed up the goal. "It should be clear," he said, "that the aim of the resistance strategy is to transform itself into a class-conscious revolutionary socialist movement."

"We want a free society," Haliwell said. "The shape of that society will be determined by men shaping their own lives. But we know this—capitalism will have to go."

And Hari Dillon, cochairman of the San Francisco State College SDS chapter, predicts the off-campus organizing efforts will spawn violence.

"As the student movement gets stronger and stronger and makes ties with the community," Dillon said, "those in power are going to smash down harder. They're not going to give up without violence."

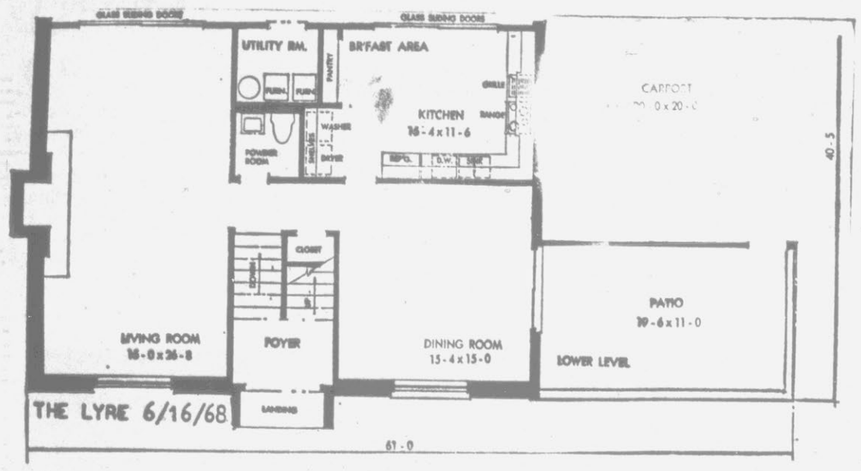
The document adds:

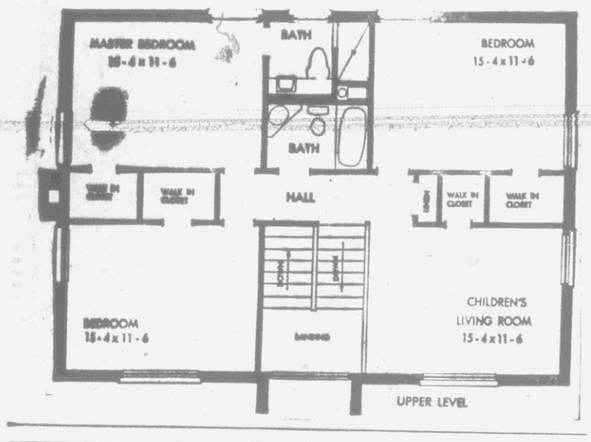
"We are talking about a large portion of the South's 40 million white people, who work in places like Durham, Birmingham, Memphis, Chattanooga, Nashville and Lawrenceburg; people in the Appalachian and border cities: Asheville, Knoxville, Wheeling, Beckley, Huntington, Charleston, Evansville, Indianapolis, Youngstown, Cincinnati St. Louis . . .

" . . . People in Northern cities like Detroit, Benton Harbor, Flint, Cleveland, Columbus, Hammond and Chicago; Mid- and Southwestern cities like Kansas City, Topeka, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Omaha, Wichita, Houston and Dallas and . . . people who now live in Los Angeles, Bakersfield, Stockton, San Jose, Fremont, Oakland, Richmond and Sacramento."

New Wrinkle: Big And Little Living Rooms

SPLIT FOYER IS KIND OF TRICKY — The Lyre, a two-story with a split foyer, features two living rooms, three bedrooms, two and a half baths, dining room, kitchen, double carport and a private patio adjacent to the dining room.





By GERRY BISHOP

First there were his 'n' her towels, then his 'n' her shirts, later his 'n' her cars and—how far can it go?

But here's a new wrinkle along this line — big and little living rooms. The big is for adults and the little for the kids.

These are among the many features of the Lyre, a contemporary two-story with three bedrooms, dining room, kitchen with breakfast area, two and a half baths, utility room and double carport.

A builder could go for concrete slaw construction, which is popular in many parts of the country, or put a basement under this two-story. In the latter arrangement it would be possible to dispense with the carport in favor of an integrated garage. This would be a wise move in urban areas where land costs are high because it would save 20 feet off the width of the lot.

VERSATILE ENTRY

The split foyer is kind of tricky, too. One enters the center hall and steps down to the living room, kitchen and dining chamber and up to the children's living room and the sleeping quarters.

The lower level living room is a spacious 15 feet by 26 feet, 8 inches. It enjoys the charm of a fireplace and access to the backyard through sliding glass doors.

Just off the living room is the powder room, which also is conveniently near the dining room and kitchen.

The dining room is almost square, measuring 15 feet by 15 feet, 4 inches. These dimensions will prove their value when it's time to arrange furniture.

The kitchen has everything going for it that a workroom should. The usual appliances, refrigerator, dishwasher and range, are built-in. And there's a bonus factor in the built-in barbecue grille which would warm the heart of any steak lover. While the steaks are sizzling, mother can keep an eye on the laundry in the built-in washer and dryer. There's also room for a table for breakfasting and mid-day snacking, and sliding glass doors connect to the backyard.

The utility room is sandwiched between the kitchen and living room and is stocked with furnace and water-heating equipment. In the event a basement is built this room could be converted to a closet or storage area.

SPACIOUS MASTER

The other two bedrooms also are of impressive size and have walk-in closets. Each is near the main bath, which, like the one off the master bedroom, has a vanity.

If a fourth bedroom were needed, the children's living room could be used for that purpose. It also has a walk-in closet.

On the outside, painted panels between the windows brighten the brick construction. Another outdoor feature is the private patio adjacent to the dining room.

There are 2,350 square feet of living area in the Lyre which measures 61 feet by 40 feet, 5 inches.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Cutting a pane of glass to size is a quick and simple operation for a glazier. It can, however, be tricky and frustrating for a homeowner who wants to replace a windowpane and has some old glass he'd like to use.

If you've had some prior experience at glass cutting, go ahead and cut. If you haven't, the chances are you'll wind up at the neighborhood hardware store asking for a piece of glass so many inches by so many inches.

In measuring the dimensions of the windowpane opening, be sure to deduct 1-16th of an inch from the length and the width. The pane must be slightly smaller than the opening, which may shrink or warp at a later date and cause a too-tightly held piece of glass to crack or break.

Be sure you wear gloves to remove the old glass from the window. Take out as much as you can; do not force any pieces which resist. They will come out easily when the old putty is removed. Usually the old putty is brittle enough so that it yields easily to scraping. On rare occasions, it may be necessary to soften the putty with a soldering iron.

The tiny glazier's points that hold the pane in place should be removed carefully. You can flip them out with the blade of a screwdriver or pull them out with pliers.

While the old points often can be used again, it is better to buy new ones. Some come in boxes that contain a small tool for putting them in place easily.

The glazier's points—two on each side for an ordinary window—keep the glass in place. The putty or glazing compound that goes on last keeps out moisture. Brushing the windowpane channel with linseed oil or paint before applying the putty keeps the latter from drying out too soon.

Most glaziers line the pane channel with a thin layer of putty before setting the glass in place. Others skip this step. In either case, once the glass and glazier's points are installed, long strips of putty are pressed into place, then smoothed with a putty knife at an angle so that rain rolls off it. The strips are made by rolling a piece of putty between the palms of your hands. Dipping the putty knife into a pan of water every few minutes will keep the putty from sticking to it.

The putty will last longer if it is sealed and protected with paint. But do not paint it while it is still soft. Wait about 48 hours, then do the painting.

Still want to try cutting the glass yourself? Remember these fundamentals: the glass cutter should be held at a high angle, almost vertically. Apply firm even pressure to the cutter after its wheel has been lubricated with a small amount of household oil. Use one of two methods to break off the glass while wearing gloves—hold the pane on either side of the cut and bend slightly or hold the length of the glass on a flat surface with the line of cut on the edge and break off the scrap. If you do it right the first time, you're some kind of a genius.

Pick Colorful, Easy-Care Items For Summer House

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Summer cottages are getting a colorful new lease on beauty. Everything from paper accessories to pots and pans provides colorful, low-cost, easy-care pickups, particularly good for vacation cottages.

Resilient floorings in yummy new colors—yellows, oranges, mint greens and pinky-red patterns were not an afterthought by one manufacturer. The idea was the result of market research.

"We had been going along with the old architectural theory of muted and earth colors," explains Gene Walker, flooring designer-colorist for Armstrong. "Architects had control of color until recently but now decorators and color specialists are setting the pace. We also had to consider op, pop and psychedelic art in planning new color ideas."

These new floorings in six-foot widths come in the already popular tiny, random-size hexagonal designs and reflect the influence of California, Florida and the Gulf Coast. Lemon and lime always have been popular colors in such areas—happy colors that go with open planning. Now these colors have worked their way up to New England.

It is time to stop playing it safe, Walker says. Heretofore, such durable floorings were confined to kitchen and utility traffic. Now they have found their way throughout the house in important homes, particularly in the country and at beaches where emphasis is on easy care.

The new trends in decorating with painted and lacquered furnishings, Naugahyde materials, antiqued furniture, Spanish and Mediterranean styles, and the trend to paper, all had to be taken into consideration in designing new color schemes.

A great many avant-garde first homes and summer cottages are on the paper standard. Everything from tableware to bedspreads is paper, thus providing instant color on a budget. Color is an easy way to inject personality into a house, and young people choose paper for that reason. They also like washable, bright cottons.

One washable, colorful cotton in geometric pattern reds, greens, yellows, blues, white, was laminated to all window shades throughout a house. The same pattern was used on sleep sofas in the living room. It was the only pattern in the house.

Plain-color bedspreads in each bedroom provided the only other color—each spread lifted a color from the shade. All bathrooms were bright white. A beige resilient floor was used throughout the house.

When things can be washed or disposed of easily, vacation cottages are a joy. But if they are furnished with heavy draperies, rugs, coverlets that can become damp and soggy or mildewed, you can't see the fun for the work.

This year, take a good look at your summer home. Are there ways to make it more efficient so that it will be more enjoyable? You may have furnished it inexpensively with cast-offs from your other house, but you haven't really saved anything in time or money when you consider the cost of maintenance and the effort involved.

They have lived in a small one-story home for many years. The front and back yeards were small which reduced maintenance to a minimum. They have recently purchased a beautiful, large, two - story, four bedroom home. The front yard is comparatively small but the backyard is more spacious. Now they have problems.

Let's have a look, keeping in mind the many times I have pointed out the basic principles of landscape design and the importance of orderly planning for the fruit, vegetable and flower gardens. I might explain, too, that this house was built perhaps 30 years ago and was occupied by a couple that believed in having a little bit of everything around the house.

The back yard could have been planned for maximum use and enjoyment but allocation of space was not considered for the normal growth and development of the plants selected. They have enough plants for about an acre of ground crowded into a space of about 60 x 80 feet - standard apple trees, crabapples, pecans, sweet and sour cherries, Chinese chestnuts, pears, crepemyrtle bunch grapes, roses, photinias and a magnolia. The back of the yard is screened with a ligustrum hedge, about 15 feet high, which has grown leggy and unsightly. Honeysuckle is taking over in several areas.

The front yard was more carefully planned as the choice and use of plant materials was given more consideration. However, two maples planted on either side of the walk, now about eight years old, detract from the general appearance and, of course, this situation will worsen as the plants become larger. The yard is not large enough to accommodate these trees and, eventually, they will hide the house.

The front entrance is very attractive, with the front door deeply recessed which serves as a point of interest. Brick steps lead to the landing bordered with ornamental iron railings. On either side of the steps are two Burford hollies which accentuate the entrance. These two plants are enough to do this. However, near the base of the landing, two Pfitzer junipers were planted which detract from the entrance as they have grown too large and are difficult to control.

These people had the too common idea that plants just grow, maybe with a dusting or two. We fond fire blight on the pears, leaf spots and mildew on the apples and roses, aphids and other pests. PLAN BEFORE YOU PLANT.

Here's How To Do It

QUESTION: About two years ago, I learned how to replace a faucet washer—and I have replaced quite a few of them since. But one faucet in particular is driving me crazy. I have put in a new washer on an average of every two or three weeks, yet the faucet keeps leaking. Do I need a new faucet?

ANSWER: It may be that the faucet seat—the part on which the washer presses down—is rough and needs smoothing. Go to a hardware store or any dealer that sells plumbing supplies and ask for a faucet seat dresser. This small tool is inserted into the body of the faucet after the water has been shut off, and is turned per the instructions that come with it.

When this has been done, apply a new washer, reassemble the faucet and see what happens. If the faucet again leaks in a few weeks, you will have to call a plumber. The chances are, however, that the seat dresser will do the job.

A new sewing machine weighs only half as much as a conventional portable one. The carrying case if made of three petal-like panels that fold down from their protective carrying position to become an effective sewing surface. All that's needed to sew is an electrical outlet. The manufacturer says the machine can be set up in a matter of seconds. Total weitht: 14 pounds.

Ed Sullivan Subject Of Show Biz Book

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Show biz books—

The inexplicable Ed Sullivan gets the full-scale treatment in a new book titled "Always on Sunday" (Meredith Press, $4.95.

The Sullivan mystique has been dealt with, usually in a snide way by his detractors. The comments range from Fred Allen's "Ed Sullivan will be a success as long as other people have talent" to John Crosby's "Mr. Sullivan, of course, is notoriously and admittedly without talent" to Harriet Van Horne's. "He got where he is not by having a personality but by having no personality; he is the commonest common denominator."

Such comments have gotten under Sullivan's supposedly thick skin. But critics come and go; Ed Sullivan remains. On June 20 he marks the 20th anniversary of his weekly television hour.

"Always on Sunday" was written by the CBS publicist for the Ed Sullivan Show, Michael David Harris, and thus cannot be counted on for complete objectivity. Yet the biography is sometimes quite candid, as when the author recounts the Sullivan bloopers over the years.

Some of the best: "I'd like to prevent Robert Merrill"; "The fierce Maori tribe from New England"; for a tuberculosis drive "Good night and help stamp out TV"; (after a Sergio Franchi Christmas number) "Let's hear it for the Lord's Prayer" . . .

"The Disney Version" by Richard Schickel (Simon and Schuster, $6.50 is the first full-scale biography to appear since the death of Walt Disney in December 1966. The Disney family and studio declined to cooperate with the author which proved to be both an asset and a liability.

Since he was not beholden to the Disneys, Schickel was able to view Walt for what he was: a brilliant but sometimes fallible human being. He could also assess the Disney product, which often leaned too far in the direction of sentiment and commerce.

Lacking access to firsthand sources—or even illustrations for the book—Schickel is forced to rely on hearsay and long-ago interviews. That is the basic weakness in "The Disney Version".

Thursday Night Services Slated

The Thursday night worship service at Saint James Methodist Church will begin on June 20 it was announced today by the Rev. William K. Quick.

"Planned for those members of the congregation and others who will not be in the city on the summer weekends," the pastor said, "the service will continue each Thursday night throughout the summer except on Thursday, July 4."

The Saint James Church initiated the service during the summer of 1967. The hour - long service will include hymns, prayers, Scripture and sermon and "will be the service for the coming Sunday", Mr. Quick stated.

"We have found this service especially meaningful to members of our congregation who begin their vacations on the weekend or who may be away from the local church many summer weekends but who wish to worship in their local church," he noted.

The ministers of Saint James will alternate preaching at the Thursday night services, which begin at 8 p.m. in the Chapel located at 2000 East Sixth Street.

The Worry Clinic

Certainly, The Cases Have Big Similarity

Laura asks a pertinent question concerning the "advice" columns that appear in the daily newspaper. The true case of the Kentucky farmer described below, will help illustrate the value of repetition. For human dilemmas are fairly standardized, in both psychology as well as medicine.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE F-594: Laura G., aged 28, is a young mother.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I started reading your column when I was in high school.

"And while I was at college my mother would clip it out and mail me a week's supply every Sunday.

"So I have a large scrapbook that goes back 12 years.

"And I notice that you occasionally discuss a case much like one that I read years ago.

"The same is true of the medical columnist, too, so how often do you try to duplicate cases?"

When I addressed the Kentucky State Teachers' convention a few years ago, a few of the college presidents entertained me at luncheon.

He owned only one cow and on this late afternoon, she was munching grass over near the front fence.

So the farmer took his milk pail, plus his 3 - legged stool, and walked out to the cow.

He placed the stool on her right side and then sat down to do the milking.

After he had pumped about two gallons of foaming milk into the pail, a pedestrain who was hiking along the highway, walked over to the fence.

He asked the farmer a few questions and as they engaged in conversation, the old cow turned around; stuck her nose in the milk pail, and was just drinking the last swigs off the bottom when the hiker yelled:

"Look there, Mister. See what she's doin' to your milk!"

The farmer turned and saw the situation, but merely scratched his head, philsophically, and replied:

"Wal, son, don't make no difference no how. Cause the milk was purty thin and blue, so it will jest git richer runnin' through the onery old cuss a second time!"

Well, writers, teachers and parents soon find that educational facts may just get richer to run through your noodles a second time!

But there are only a certain number of standard medical entities, such as appendicitis, cataracts, coronary attacks, etc.

So the medical columnist may use different patients but periodically discuss the same general subject.

And, despite the thousands of movie scenarios and fiction plots, a talented writer once produced a book in which he outlined the 36 dramatic plots which are always used in every movie or TV or story.

The characters have different names and the locale may change from Florida to Alaska, but the standard 36 plots underlie all the suspense.

Similarly, in the realm of psychology, there are just a few hundred standard dilemmas and problems that confront human beings.

Thereafter, the characters may change and the geographical location may shift from Rome or Paris to New York or Los Angeles, but the "plot" is the same.

Through I receive 1,000 letters per day from the readers of this column in the hundreds of daily newspapers, coast to coast, I rarely encounter a new problem.

Most of the bizarre sex cases and atrocities of modern America were also described in the Bible 3,000 years ago! For psychology changes very little!

Many Farmers Not Yet Filed

Nearly 800 farmers have not filed their crop certification, according to Stacy Evans, manager of the ASCS office.

Deadline for certification is June 20, and all farms who do not file by that time will lose price support and diversion payments, according to Evans.

There are approximately 2,600 farmers in the county who should file, and only 60 per cent of these have filed.

Veterans Service Office To Move

The Veterans Service Office located in the Tucker Building beside the Pitt County Court House for several years will move to a new location Monday.

The new veterans office will be located at 203 Boyd Ave. near the federal Social Security Administration office.

Plan Accounting Course At PTI

Pitt Technical Institute will begin a 20 - hour course in Hotel - Motel Accounting Monday night.

The course is designed for persons who are involved with hotel and motel accounting and is approved by the American Hotel - Motel Association. The total cost of the course, including books and tuition, will be approximately $17. Classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday nights from 7 until 10 o'clock.

Interested persons should call Pitt Technical Institute, 756-3130 or report to the first class meeting.

Bible School To Begin Monday

Vacation Bible School will begin Monday at 8:30 a.m. at the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church.

Classes will be provided for children from the ages of four through the sixth grade. The final exercises will be held on Sunday night.

Each day, the sessions will end around 11 a.m.

ENDANGER CHILD

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Parents or doctors who give an infant a small doseage of an adult medicine may endanger the child's health because certain drugs are metabolized differently by infants than by adults, Dr. Alan K. Done, a University of Utah pediatrician, said recently.

Brazilian Finds Americans Different

IN AMERICA FOR SIX MONTHS . . . Mrs. Evelyn Vianna of Brazil is studying at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

By DONNA DIXON
Reflector Woman's Writer

How would you like to spend your honeymoon traveling abroad on your way to another country and at the same time fulfilling educational and employment requirements?

That's what Paulo Roberto Vianna and his wife, Evelyn, both of Brazil, did. Now students of North Carolina State University, and both 24, Paulo and Evelyn were married the same day that they left from Brazil for the United States, Jan. 4.

Paulo is here studying for his Master's Degree in agriculture economics under a scholarship sponsored by Aid to Industrial Development. He is an employe of the Brazilian government.

Mrs. Vianna studied in this country in 1962 at the University of California. After studying art for one year, she returned to Brazil.

Now she is one year from completing the requirements for her B. S. Degree and is majoring in psychology at NCSU.

The Viannas were in Pitt County to tour several local farms and the Greenville ASCS office as part of the AID program.

After returning to Brazil, Paulo plans to continue working there and Mrs. Vianna plans to work with the Museum of Modern Art in the section of motion pictures.

In America for six months, Mrs. Vianna says she likes some aspects of American life. "Everything is very comfortable and the food is different."

Originally from Rio de Janerio, Mrs. Vianna remarked, "I have never lived in a small city like Raleigh before. I would love to live somewhere like New York."

"Both I and my husband were surprised when we saw how much richer people are here. Everyone has a car. In Brazil, only the very elite rich own a car."

Mrs. Vianna finds the people in America different from those in Brazil. "All here are very polite and very educational. Even laborers and the farmers. But the people here are not very concerned with their culture in general. The young people are not interested in art and the motion picture. The American culture is more general than the Brazilian."

Americans have had a great influence in Laten America on the culture and dress of the people, according to Mrs. Vianna.

"Now in Latin America, though, movements are beginning that are trying to arise a culture without the American and European influence. People have in the years before adopted the customs and ideas of Americans."

"In the rural areas, there is no opinion of the Americans. But today, in the cities, Americans are not welcome."

Brazilian Universities

Mrs. Vianna has attended the University of Rio de Janeiro. Comparing the universities of America and Brazil, Mrs. Vianna said, "In Brazilian universities, you don't live on the campus. The tuition is free. Only one Brazilian university requires you to pay tuition. In all, you buy your own books."

"Brazilian universities do not give the Master's Degree or the Doctorate Degree. That is why so very few people in Brazil have a M. A. or PhD. If you wish more than a B. S., you have to attend a university in another country. To do this, you have to receive a license from the government."

As discussed by Mrs. Vianna, there are no printing industries in Brazil. Almost all of the textbooks are either in English or French. Therefore, all students entering a university have to pass an examination of the Portugese, English and French languages.

The Brazilian system of education is based on the French system. Everything the student learns is taught by the teacher. There is not much studying from the books.

"When I was a child, I studied English in school. But I did not speak it until I came to America in 1962," explain-

Couple Exchange Vows On Saturday Morning

Miss Marsha Jean Terpenning and James Gilbert Moore were married in a nuptial mass at 11:00 a.m. yesterday in St. Peter's Catholic Church.

The Rev. Walter Jerome Tierney officiated at the ceremony.

In the background of the church were tall standards of huckleberry and emerald greenery, floor baskets of white mums and gladioli. The altar vases were filled with white gladioli. At the altar was a prie dieu where the ceremony took place. Pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Ruth Taylor, organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a formal gown of white silk organza and peau de soie. Her gown was fashioned with a modified empire waist with a batteau neckline and short sleeves edged with chantilly lace. The lower half of the bodice was edged with matching lace, overlapping the waistline. The lace was trimmed with seed pearls and had two small bows on each side of the center line. Her A-line skirt had matching appliques in the front. Her chapel length train was attached at the waistline in back.

Her chapel veil of illusion was attached to a white pillbox. She carried a prayer book bouquet of Eucharis lilies and white cattelya orchids accented with english ivy, showered with narrow streamers.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Charles F. Moore of Raleigh, and bridesmaid Miss Della Raye Dail of Greenville chose aqua formals of sata peau, fashioned with batteau necklines and short sleeves. The empire bodices were trimmed with Venice lace insertion with darker blue velvet ribbon. A full attached sweep train fell from under the bow in back. Their nose tip veils were attached to a headpiece of looped bridal braid, to match the gowns.

Charles F. Moore served as best man. Ushers were Ron Siefred of Washington, Reggie Simpson of Rocky Mount and Ray Chaney of Marshville. Altar boys were Frankie Evans and Michael Woodley.

The bride graduated from East Carolina University with a B. S. in primary education and she teaches the first grade in Washington. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Terpenning of Greenville.

The bridegroom also graduated from East Carolina University with a B. S. in health and physical education. He is assistant principal in Washington. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore of Marshville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Parkview Manner Apts., Greenville.

Melba Toast
Fresh Pineapple with Kirsch

HOMEMADE MAYONNAISE

2 egg yolks, at room temperature or refrigerator-cold
2½ tablespoons lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup vegetable salad oil, at room temperature or chilled

Into a 1½- to 2-quart mixing bowl turn the yolks, 1 tablespoon of the leon juice, salt and mustard. With electric beater at high speed, beat until yolks are thickened and lemon color—a minute or two. Using medium speed, rapidly add the oil, ¼ teaspoon at a time, until mixture is very thick and about ½ cup has been used. Make sure each amount is combined before adding the next. Add remaining oil, 1 teaspoon at a time, in the same way.

(Add the remaining 1½ tablespoons lemon juice; beat just until blended—this will slightly thin the mayonaise. The whole beating process should take no more than seven minutes; if overbeaten and warmed, mayonaise may break down. Turn into a jar; cover tightly; store in refrigerator. Makes about 1¼ cups.

Note:

If you use a hand-held electric beater, it helps to have another person add the oil.)

Like any napped fabric, brushed cotton denim should be washed wrong side out to avoid collecting lint. Put a fabric softener in the wash water to help restore the nap. To keep the brushed denim soft and velvety looking, always dry in the automatic drier. Use medium heat.

Miss Barbara Lalanne Weds Cameron L. Smith Saturday

CHAPEL HILL — Miss Barbara Boren Lalanne became the bride of Cameron Langley Smith on Saturday at 4:00 p.m. in the University Methodist Church here.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James F. Lalanne of Chapel Hill and Mr. and Mrs. William Hoke Smith of Greenville.

Harvey Langill Watson officiated at the ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Eleanor Fowler, organist, and Walter Vasser, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory silk peau de soie with alencon lace accenting the empire bodice, which featured a low scoop neckline and short sleeves. The A-line skirt with a full - cut chapel train was appliqued with alencon lace.

Her long chapel length veil of silk illusion was an imported alencon lace mantilla. She carried a cascade of white gardenias and natural folliage.

Miss Rebecca Tatum of Chapel Hill was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Sarah Lane Ivey, Mrs. Dudley Carlysle Chandler Jr., both of Chapel Hill, Mrs. James Heyes Cobb III of Colombus, Ohio, and Miss Lynn Elaine Kimball of Winston-Salem.

The attendants wore gowns of beauty rose saki with low scoop necklines, princess fitted bodices and A-line skirts. They wore matching bows with beauty rose streamers of silk maline. They carried nosegays of pink and American beauty roses and ivy.

Miss Coleman Birgel and Miss Anne Birgel of Chapel Hill were flower girls.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were James F. Lalanne Jr. of Chapel Hill, John Calvin Shepherd of Lumberton, John Harvet Spell of Wendell, Leon Marcles Killian of Waynesville, John Ozment Reynolds Jr., Philip Divoll Coleman and Ronald Hugo Williams, all of Greenville.

The couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

The bride attended Converse College and the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. She is now a teacher in Durham County. The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and is now attending the School of Medicine there.

Jordan-Wise Vows Spoken

KINZER, Pa.—The Calvary Monument Bible Church here was the scene of the wedding of Miss Joyce Kathleen Wise and Al Thomas Jordan Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

The Rev. Clarence Leever officiated at the ceremony.

The church was decorated with a floral archway. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Mailyn Hersey, organist, and Ron Christ, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wise of Landisville, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jordan of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Kenneth Wise, wore a floor length cage style gown of silk organza over a peau de soie sheath. The gown was designed with three-quarter length sleeves and a watteau train of organza. The gown and train were trimmed with appliques of lattice work and daisies of Venice lace.

Mrs. Jan Bricker of Rochester, N. Y., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Wilgus, Miss Emily Dippner and Miss Dolly Reeser.

Henry Hagans Jr. of Greenville, S. C., was best man. Ushers were Johnnie Lawrence Brown of Boiling Springs, N. C., and Ronald Wise of Lancaster, Pa.

The couple will reside in Jupiter, Fla.

The bride is a graduate at Pequea Valley High School and Bob Jones University. She will teach at the Jupiter Christian School. The bridegroom graduated from J. H. Rose High School and will be associated with Roov Landscaping Co. in Jupiter.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Gap Firehall. Assisting were Mary Lou Shaav, Diana Thompson, Doris Thompson and Charlotte Murray.

Party Entertains Couple Recently

Miss Ruth Corbette Jefferson and Edmund Hoover Taft III were honored at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas at their home Wednesday.

Judge Ordered Off The Record For Rival

PARIS (WNS) — Sheik El Amri felt such pain when his wife ran away with his best friend that he assuaged his grief by writing two poems about the incident. Then he set the poems to music, sang them on a commercial record, and they became best sellers as "The Unfaithful Woman" and "Reply to the Unfaithful Woman." The wife made no complaint, but his best friend has sued him for mentioning his name in the lyrics. Judge Rouanet de Vigne-Lavit ordered the poet-composer-singer to remove his rival's name from the recording.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lisle Rives Sr. announce the marriage of their daughter, Frances Rives Rowlette, of Bethel, to Haywood Dail Laughinghouse Jr. of Greenville, son of Mrs. Haywood Dail Laughinghouse Sr. and the late Mr. Laughinghouse, in a private ceremony Saturday at 4:00 p.m. in Saint Peter's Catholic Church.

Carrot With Karats Findly Found

VALENCE, France (WNS)—Rene Planchier was milking cows in the field 34 years ago when his wedding ring fell from his finger and was lost. Planchier was killed during the war, and his farm was sold. Now his successor has found the ring: it was around a carrot that was pulled from the ground. The dairyman's widow, now Anne Couturier, came all the way from Grenoble to claim it.

ed Mrs. Vianna.

"I prefer the U. S. system of education to Brazilian. You learn much more here than you do in Brazil."

Elaborating on other differences between the two countries, Mrs. Vianna continued, "The government here is more stable than in Brazil. In my country, the government changes very often, especially ministers."

"Religion differs in my country also. My people rarely change their religoin. They usually remain Catholic. About 70 per cent of Latin Americans are Catholic, But they don't go to church every Sunday as most Americans do. The religion isn't practiced as it is here. I don't really know how the religion is in the rural areas, because I have only lived in big cities."

Discussing American movies, but everything is so good and happy in all the movies. European movies are not this way. They are much more realistic. I really prefer realistic movies."

Family Life

Mrs. Vianna met her husband six years ago when a group of her friends introduced to her one of their friends and he in turn introduced her to Paulo.

In Brazil, according to Mrs. Vianna, a woman can chose between assuming her husband's last name or not. The decision is entirely hers. It is not traditional in Brazil as in America for the woman to take a man's last name with marriage. Mrs. Vianna kept her maiden name, Evelyn Bren.

What about the family structure in Brazil?

"The women have the hold in the family in my country, but the man is more important. Families are more patriarchal than matriarchal. The home is centered around the father. But times are changing in Brazil."

"The parents listen to the children. They respect what they have to say and how they feel, but they don't allow much freedom. I think the freedom American children are allowed is good."

"In our culture, the interest is centered in the families. The Kennedy clan is a good example of how Brazilian families are. All the aunts, uncles, cousins, brothers, sisters—everybody gathers together and talks."

Mrs. Vianna says that America is as she had always imagined.

When asked her opinion on current events, especially the Vietnam war and the 1968 election, Mrs. Vianna replied, "I really think the Vietnam war is bad. I don't think it's fair for the U. S. to be in Vietnam. The American people have pressed the President so much. This is really and economic war. America needs to develop her industries more. The country has so many unemployed people."

On the 1968 presidential candidates, Mrs. Vianna commented, "I definately favor McCarthy. I think he is more sincere. He seems to know what he's saying.

"McCarthy seems a bit romantic—perhaps too much to be president. I have read some of his poetry. Usually, you just don't think of a man like him as president."

"I can remember when President Kennedy was assassinated. I had just returned home. Kennedy was so popular in Brazil. When the people learned of his death, it was like someone had died in their families. Wild versions of how he died were started. Some said he was really assassinated by politicains, some said by military officials."

In concluding, Mrs. Vianna said, "What I want most to do in North Carolina is to stay alone and to have time to study."

Mrs. Spilman Is Club Speaker Thursday Night

Mrs. J. B. Spilman was guest speaker at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club held last night at the Woman's Club.

Speaking on "Responsibilities of Women in Today's World," Mrs. Spilman placed many of the responsibilities which have caused us to grow or to fail to grow on the women. She said that we cannot grow until we abolish discrimination in both race and sex. She said the youth of today is woman's responsibility.

Mrs. Spilman summed up her talk by quoting from the BPW Club Collect, "Teach us to put into action, our better impulses. Straightforward and unafraid." Miss Elizabeth Deal, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Gladys Stokes, president, presided at the meeting. She also gave a report on the state convention which was held in Asheville May 7-9.

It was decided that the club will have a picnic in August at the home of Miss Mary Bell.

WEDDING INVITATION

Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Beachum request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Lois Marie, to Archie B. Smith, on Sunday, June 16, at 3:00 p.m. at St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The Institute d'Etudes Francaises d'Avignon, for American students, under the auspices of Bryn Mawr College, is meeting in Southern France for its seventh year with a summer program of intensive study of French civilization.

Among the students participating in this program is Judith Faye Cramer, of 1408 Evergreen Dr., a student at ECU.

The Institute involves 70 men and women students from colleges and universities in the United States and Canada, with more than a third of them graduate students and a faculty of professors from France and the United States.

The director of the Institute is Michel Guggenheim, who is a member of the French faculty at Bryn Mawr. In France, students will spend some time in travel in Provence.

"Season Five" of the East Carolina Summer Theatre will begin on July 1 with "Bell, Book and Candle" as the opening production.

The hit comedy will run through July 6 with a matinee scheduled for July 3.

Other productions will include: "The Boys From Syracuse," July 8-13; "The King and I" July 15-23, with a matinee on July 17; "Guys and Dolls," July 26-Aug. 3, with a matinee on July 31.

"The Dessert Song," Aug. 5-10, with a matinee on Aug. 7; and "The Odd Couple," Aug. 12-17, with a matinee on Aug. 14.

An ECU coed, Miss Sherry Robertson, was named winner in the Miss Waves contest which was held in Myrtle Beach, S. C., during the recent Sun Fun Festival.

This is not the first beauty title held by Sherry—she is a former Miss Greenville. She was named Miss Cheerleader USA in 1967.

Feigned Feint For Buralar

NICE, France (WNS)—Alone in the drugstore when a masked burglar entered and pointed a revolver at her, pharmacist Gisele Derodi did the first that that came to mind: she fainted. The burgalar, flustered, did the first thing that came to mind: grabbed a bottle of Eau de Cologne and brought her to. Then he left without taking anything. "I'll never be frightened of burglars again, but I hope that I remember to faint when they point a revolver at me," Mlle. Derodi told the police.

To scour a greasy sink, try this dry-cleaning method: apply soap or detergent to a dry cloth or sponge, and scrub the sink—also dry. Then turn on the hot water and rinse the grease away.

Miss Ina Sue Cannon Weds On Saturday

Chapman's Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Ina Sue Cannon and Theodore Rosser Williams Jr. on Saturday at 3:00 p.m.

The Rev. John Casey officiated at the ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Owen K. Arthur, organist, and Kenneth Earl Adams, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Thaddeus Cannon of Rt. 2, Grimesland, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rosser Williams Sr. of Norfolk, Va.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of candlelight silk organza with an empire bodice featuring a scooped neckline and elbow length sleeves. The gown was trimmed in Venice lace. The train, trimmed in matching lace, fell from a bow caught at the waist.

Her fingertip veil of English illusion fell from a crown of Venice lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of roses and carnations with garlands of French ivy, satin and tulle streamers.

Miss Lou Ellen Cannon of Greenville was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Juanita Cannon of Grimesland, Miss Judy Angel of Greensboro, Miss Karen Williams of Norfolk, Va. and Miss Pat McCall of Newport News, Va.

The attendants wore gowns of French blue chiffon made with empire bodices of matching lace and featuring bateau necklines and elbow length sleeves. A watteau panel of lace fell from a bow caught at the shoulders.

Randy Harrison of Norfolk, Va., was best man. Ushers were Wayne Cox of Hampton, Va., Billy Todd of Newport News, Va., John Kokos of Norfolk, Va., and Roderick Whitford of Wilmington.

Following a wedding trip to Cape Cod, Atlantic City and Canada, the couple will reside in Norfolk, Va.

The bride will be a librarian in the Norfolk school system in the fall. The bridegroom is a Norfolk contractor.

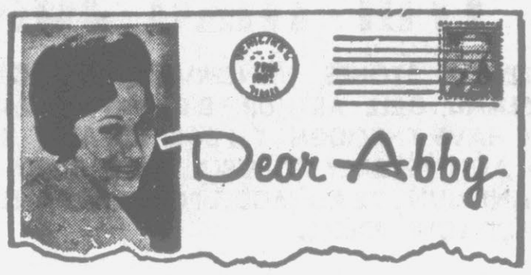
Don't Worry About Problem Until The Situation Arises

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN



DEAR ABBY: I am a maiden lady, 70 years of age. I retired 10 years ago and am making my home with my sister, 74, and her husband, 76. My brother-in-law is a kind man and a good Christian. We have had a happy home together because we all like to do the same things.

Of course, at our age, any one of us might pass away at any time, which raises this question: If my sister should go first, her husband would be utterly helpless to cook and keep house for himself, so since it is "My" house, too, I know my sister would want me to stay on and look after him. But how would this look to other people?

My brother-in-laws has no other relatives. Your advice, please?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: The LAST thing I would worry about is how it would "look" to other people. Why not wait until the problem presents itself before worrying about how to solve it?

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. WOO: What "old Chinese proverb"? The size of one's ears has absolutely no bearing on the length of one's life. Quit qorrying!

DEAR ABBY: Beth and I have been married about 10 years and have a very good marriage and two adorable children.

I have been traveling quite a bit lately in my business and it has created a slight problem. Yesterday when I came off the road, after having driven from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. Beth says, "It's a lovely evening, let's go for a little ride."

When I am out of town I eat in restaurants all the time, which gets pretty tiresome, so when I come home I look forward to a good, home-cooked meal. Well, Beth greets me at the door with, "Ive been cooped up in the house all week, let's eat out."

Tell me, Dear Abby, what is the penalty for wife beating in the state of Nebraska?

RON

DEAR RON: I don't know, but I would guess that you'd be ahead to "take a little ride" and eat out occasionally.

DEAR ABBY: The other day a letter came addressed to my husband. Thinking it was an advertisement, I opened it and found several pictures of nude women with a letter saying, "If you want more, send money."

I suppose I am naive, but I was shocked. I don't know whether my husband sent for these pictures or not. If he didn't shouldn't these people be reported for sending this kind of stuff thru the mails?

My problem is this: I'm afraid if I show this stuff to my husband and question him, he'll start having all his mail sent to his office and I won't see any of it. He is sometimes a little careless with money, and charges things he doesn't want me to know about. I recently quit working and now I see all the mail before he does, and I like it this way. What do you suggest?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your biggest problem, as I see it, is the obvious lack of communication and mutual trust between you two.

For openers, ask him how he came to be recipient of the girlie gallery. (He may be innocent.) Then present the material (in its original envelope) to your postmaster, who will add it to his bulging file on pornographic abuse of the United States mails. If your husband sent for the stuff, you have still another problem. You are married to a "little boy" who still likes to look at dirty pictures.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Penmanship Lessons For Med Students

INNSBRUCK, Austria (WNS) — Stenographer Elvira Dreimann, 27, who won the Tyrolean penmanship contest here, is now making extra money after working hours by giving handwriting lessons to medical students. "Most doctors can write legibly when they want to," she confided. "Have you ever noticed that their bills to patients are easy to read but that their prescriptions are not?"

Next time you use brown sugar and fruit juice as a glaze for baked ham, try adding a little dry mustard to the sugar-juice combination.

Charmed Customers With Their Music

MUNICH, Germany (WNS)— Restaurateur Wilhelm Meyer used to get sad looks and complaints about the size of his dinner checks. Now the checks are presented to customers by his two blonde daughters, one of whom plays the violin while the other sings, "Here is the sad news, the very, very sad news." The restaurateur reports that complaints have vanished and that the amused customers seldom even check the bill.

Ideas For Picnics, Cookouts Will Save Time, Effort, Money

Cook's Tour
By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—These ideas for the picnic and cookout season will save time, money and effort and also help you to use up leftovers.

The leftovers—meat and poultry—go into muffin-size picnic pies that have built-in weather insurance. If bad weather changes your plans for an outing, serve the pies hot indoors. Reheat them in a preheated 350-degree oven, 10 minutes if the pies are at room temperature, about 15 minutes if at refrigerator temperature.

The pie recipes were developed by the test kitchen of manufacturers of a gravy seasoning and browning sauce (Gravymaster Co.).

Prepare crusts from 1 package of pie crust mix, following label directions. Reserve enough dough to make top crusts. Roll remainder. Cut in rounds and press into muffin cups, using either 4 large, 6 medium or 8 small ones. Divide filling among them; prick top crusts well with fork and place on fillings. Bake 25 minutes in preheated 400 degree oven.

Blushing beef pie filling is made by combining 2 cups of finely diced cooked beef (leftover roast will do), 1 onion, minced, 1 cooked potato, diced, 2 teaspoons of gravy seasoning and browning sauce, and 1 can of condensed tomato soup. Taste and add salt and pepper if desired; but remember that three of the ingredients are preseasoned.

Creamy vegetable soup enhances the flavor of chicken or turkey in poultry pie filling. Combine 2 cups of diced cooked chicken or turkey with 1 can of cream of vegetable soup, 1 teaspoon of gravy seasoning and browning sauce and ½ cup of cooked, diced carrots. Taste and add salt and pepper if desired.

Leftover steak is the basis of still another filling. Mix 2 cups of finaly slivered cooked steak with 1 cup of cooked peas, 2 teaspoons of gravy seasoning and browning sauce and 1 can of undiluted beef consomme or consomme madrilene. Add salt and pepper if desired.

Meanwhile, these money and time-saving tips come from the Paper, Cup and Container Institute, a trade organization, to help you get best value in buying paperware.

—Cold carbonated beverages can be served in hot drink cups, but there's no need to spend the extra money.

—Hot drink cups cost more than cold drink cups, so it's smart to buy the right kind for the right beverage. Besides, wax-coating on cold drink cups helps preserve carbonation in soft drinks.

—Hot drinks always should be served in cups designed for the purpose—most are plastic coated to withstand heat and protect flavor, while hot beverage poured into a cold drink cup destroys its wax lining and its rigidity.

—For meals that include hot foods, sauces or gravies, buy plastic-coated or plasticized paper plates to prevent absorption of moisture and grease. For cold foods, buy less expensive uncoated plates.

Save steps when you cook on a backyard grill by cooking foil-wrapped frozen vegetables on the outer edge of the grill while the main course, such as steak, chicken or seafood, broils in the center where the heat is more intense.

The same basic technique applies to cooking solid pack, loose pack, plain and sauced vegetables. Heat the latter in the foil containers in which they are packed. Replace the lids with tents made from a double thickness of heavy duty foil. Solid block, loose pack, or polybag-pack vegetables should be centered in squares of heavy duty aluminum foil; top vegetables with butter, salt and any other seasonings desired, form a tight package by bringing opposite sides of foil together and sealing with a double fold. Also seal ends with double folds.

In general allow 10 to 15 minutes more cooking time than you do for top of range cooking indoors. Grilling out of doors takes longer in cold weather and on windy days. Cooking time also is influenced by the temperatures of the coals and the distance of the food from the coals.

Gene Mauch Is Out As Philadelphia Manager

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Gene Mauch of the Philadelphia Phillies reportedly quit or was fired Saturday.

The Phillies had called a news conference for what a club spokesman had described as a major announcement at 5 p.m.

Mauch, who left the club after the first game of Friday night's doubleheader with the Los Angeles Dodgers to fly to the bedside of his ailing wife in Los Angeles, apparently is the victim of his running fued with the Phillies' slugging infielder-outfielder Rich Allen.

Reportedly, Mauch either resigned or was dismissed for the good of the club and the health and well being of the manager's family.

Mauch was in his ninth year as the Phillies' manager, a club record.

Mauch obviously was the victim in a long, simmering fued with Phillies' slugger Rich Allen.

General Manager John Quinn announced Mauch's dismissal and said: "Bob Carpenter and I have talked about a managerial change for the last several days. We planned to sit down with Gene after last night's doubleheader about our decision."

"Unfortunately, his wife is not well and was hospitalized. As you all know, Gene flew home to be with her after last night's first game.

"Since we were unable to meet with him last night," Quinn continued, "Bob and I called him this afternoon (Saturday) and informed rim of our decision."

Mauch was in his ninth year as manager of the Phillies, a club record. He also held the club record for consecutive winning seasons—six.

Under Mauch, the Phillies won more games than any of the managers in the club's modern history.

Skinner, who played in the majors for 11 years—eight with the Pittsburgh Pirates—becomes the 25th Phillies' manager since 1900. He also played for Cincinnati and St. Louis, finishing his playing career in 1966 with the Cardinals.

He turned to managing last year and won the Pacific Coast League Eastern Division with San Diego, then beat Spokane 4-2 in the playoffs.

San Diego currently is in fourth place in its division.

Skinner is in Seattle for Saturday's night game and will come here in time to take over the Phillies for Sunday's game with Los Angeles.

Quinn said Skinner's contract includes the remainder of this season and 1969.

Quinn also said that Mauch would be paid his full estimated $50,000 salary for this year.

Coach George Myatt, who took over the club for Friday night's second game, was to run the team against the Dodgers Saturday night.

Skinner's replacement at San Diego will be named later.

Mauch came to the Phillies after Eddy Sawyer resigned following the opening game of the 1960 season. Mauch's first three years were a rebuilding process as the hapless Phillies of the early 1960s finished eighth, ninth and seventh.

The club moved to fourth in 1963 and in 1964, led the National League by 6½ games with 12 to play but blew the pennant with a 10-game losing streak. That club finished tied for second with Cincinnati.

The Phillies' decision to dismiss Mauch was an obvious result of the recent feud between the manager and Allen, one of baseball's great young hitters.

Allen has refused to conform with rules laid down by Mauch and has been fined repeatedly. On a recent trip to the West Coast, Mauch suspended Allen and told him he was not returning to the line-up until he came and said he was ready to live b the rules.

Allen was used as a pinch-hitter in one game of the seven-day trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles. When the team returned to Philadelphia, Allen requested a meeting with Phillies owner Bob Carpenter. After an hour-long discussion, Carpenter said the Mauch-Allen situation had been resolved.

Allen returned to the line-up Tuesday night against Houston and hit a home run in his first at bat.

The slugger from Wampum, Pa., broke up Friday night's no-hit pitching bid by thep-Dodgers' Mike Kekich with one out in the seventh inning, scored the tying run and in the ninth inning singled durig the game-winning rally.

McCovey's Homer Paces Giant Win

NEW YRRK (AP) — Willie McCovey hammered a three-run homer and Juan Marichal survived a 16-hit New York attack to win his 12th game as San Francisco defeated tse Mets 9-5 Saturday.

New York hopped on Marchal for three runs in the first inning as Don Bosch led off with his second home run in as many days.

Tom Seaver had a 4-1 lead working in the fifth when Jesus Alou, Ty Cline and Willie Mays hit consecutive singles for one run and McCovey unloaded his 14th homer of the year, giving the Giants the lead.

New York tied it in the bottom of the fifth on Kevin Collins' third straight double and a two-out single by Tommie Agee.

But San Francisco went in front for keeps in the sixth when Marichal opened with a walk against reliever Cal Koonce. Alou sacrificed him to second and Cline singled the run home.

The Giants wrapped it up with three runs in the ninth—two of them on a double by Jack Hiatt.

Aaron's Double Breaks Tie, 3-2

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron's run-scoring double in the 10th inning gave the Atlanta Braves a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

With one out in the 10th, Felix Millan singled off Cubs reliever Phil Regan and scored the winning run from first on Aaron's long double to right.

Cecil Upshaw, who replaced Braves' starter Milt Pappas in the eighth was the winner as Atlanta snapped the Cubs' three-game winning string.

Deron Johnson's two-run homer in the fourth—one of three hits off Cubs starter Joe Niekro—tied the game 2-2. With two out in the fourth, Niekro walked Tito Francona and Johnson followed with a blast over the center field fence for his fourth homer of the season.

Pappas, making his first start for the Braves, was clipped for two runs in the second but allowed only four hits in all before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Niekro also went out for a hitter in the seventh.

After Ron Santo walked in the second, Ernie Banks grounded to short, but Millan dropped the throw to second from Sonny Jackson for an errorM Pappas struck out Randy Hundley, but Lou Johnson lashed a triple to deep center, scoring Santo and Banks.

Johnson then raced home on Adolfo Phillips' fly to left, but was called out on an appeal play for leaving third before the catch.

Los Angeles After Top Draft Choice

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams are hoarding No. 1 draft choices like a team that is taking dead aim at Orange Juice Simpson when the Southern California star becomes draftable next winter.

The Rams picked up Detroit's No. 1 in the Bill Munson deal and added Washington's No. 1 in Friday's trade for the draft rights to Gary Beban, the Heisman Trophy winner from UCLA.

Now that Pat Fischer has signed with Washington after playing out his option in St. Louis, that leaves only Dave Parks of San Francisco, Marlin McKeever of Minnesota and Ernie Clark of Detroit as the only NFL free agents.

Pete Rozelle probably will have this one tossed into his lap because the Redskins and Cardinals haven't been able to agree on the compensation required.

The New York Giants like the looks of Bob Reed, formerly with the Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams, in their early rookie camp at Fairfield, Conn. Pittsburgh's Bill Austin is running a tryout camp for kickers Sunday at Temple Stadium in Philadelphia.

Phil Bengtson takes his first step as Vince Lombardi's successor when Green Bay opens its rookie camp Monday with 30 newcomers, plus the 1967 taxi squad and veteran centers and quarterbacks.

Kevin Hardy, a .398 hitter for Notre Dame's baseball team, is miffed because nobody picked him in the draft to set up a salary battle with the New Orleans Saints, who picked him as a defensive lineman. Hardy will play in the All-American Game to be seen Friday on ABC-TV at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Optimist Edge By R. C. Cola

The Optimist took a 5-4 victory over R. C. Cola yesterday in the North State Little League.

The Lions pace the league with a 9-3 record, a game ahead of the Kiwanis and Coca-Cola both 8-4. The Optimists and R. C. are tied at 4-8, while the Jaycees trail, 3-9. Only the top three teams have a chance at the title, with three games left to be played by each team.

R. C. took a three-run lead in the first. Jeff Bailey and T. J. Payne both singled and Randy Lewis reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Bailey. Ken Tolar hit a sacrifice fly to score Payne, and Ken Nichols reached on an error, scoring Lewis.

In the second, the Optimists came back with two runs. Jim Weaver singled and Bill Vinson got a hit. Cam Dudley singled, and Keith Gruganus reached on an error, scoring Weaver. Cliff Allen hit into a fielder's choice, but scored Vinson.

In the third, R. C. added another run for a 4-2 lead. Lewis doubled and moved to third on an error, scoring on Bobby Jones' sacrifice fly.

The Optimists picked up another run in the fifth. Allen walked and moved up on a bunt, scoring on a single by Tony Skinner.

In the sixth, two more runs gave the Optimists the come-from-behind win. Dudley singled and Gurganus walked. Allen then doubled to drive in both runners and win the game.

Bailey and Lewis each had two hits for R. C., while Skinner, Weaver and Dudley had two to pace the Optimists.

FUTURE OF STADIUM — Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, looks over a scale model of the athletic complex at the university, showing how it will look when completed. Currently, Ficklen Stadium, foreground, is undergoing an expansion, which will double its seating capacity. Eventually, it is expected to seat around 45,000 fans for football. In the rear of the model is newly completed Minges Coliseum used for the first time last season, and the site of this year's Eastern Carolina Classic at Christmas.

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ken Harrelson turned on three times as much power as Don Wert, but he couldn't have short-circuited Cleveland more completely than Wert did the Chicago White Sox.

Wert, a little slower pulling the switch, waited until the 14th inning before blasting his seventh home run that brought the American League-leading Detroit Tigers a 6-5 victory over the White Sox Friday night.

Harrelson held off until only the fifth inning before beginning a barrage of three consecutive homers that drove in seven runs and surged the Boston Red Sox by the Indians 7-2.

The rest of the league's hitters remained mostly grounded as Minnesota trimmed Baltimore 2-1 on infield hits, infield outs and a wild pitch and errors helped California past Washington 2-0 and the New York Yankees by Oakland 5-4 in 10 innings.

Wert, not noted as a power hitter at 5-foot-9, 165 pounds and only six homers all of last season, kept the juice flowing through the red-hot Tigers by wiping out the White Sox as the first hitter in the 14th.

The victory was the fifth straight and 10th in 11 games as the Tigers expanded their league lead to 6½ games over Baltimore.

They almost burned themselves out in the 13th after taking a 5-4 lead against loser Bob Priddy, 0-3, on Bill Freehan's run-scoring hit. Luis Aparicio beat out a hit for the Sox in the 13th, stole second, took third on a sacrifice and scored on an infield out, and Chicago had the winning run on second base before Detroit retired the side.

The Tigers got into extra innings in the first place when Earl Wilson, making his first start since injuring a heel May 24, capped a four-run uprising in the fifth inning with a three-run homer.

The White Sox had taken a 4-0 lead with a brief and surprising show of power as Tom McCraw hit a three-run homer.

Harrelson, a 6-2, 190-pounder who hit 12 homers in part-time duty last season, has really turned on the voltage this year by blasting 13 homers with 37 runs batted in.

He struck out and grounded out his first two times at bat against Cleveland as Boston fell behind 1-0, but then he ignited, blasting two-and three-run homers in the fifth and sixth innings off Luis Tiant, 9-5 He belted another with a man on in the eighth off Eddie Fisher in his off Luis Tiant, 9-5. He belted another with a man on in the eighth off Eddie Fisher in his last time at bat, making it easy for Dick Ellsworth, 5-4, who coasted with a five-hitter.

Minnesota ended a six-game losing streak, although the Orioles' Tom Phoebus, 5-6, allowed only two infield hits in his six innings. Cesar Tovar beat out one of them in the first inning, stole second, took third on a grounder and scored on a wild pitch. Tony Oliva walked in the fourth, reached third as Ted Uhlaender's line drive hit Phoebus and scored on a force play.

Jim Roland, making his first start in nearly four years, gave one hit in 5 1-3 innings and got the victory with relief from Al Worthington and Ron Perranoski.

George Brunet, 6-6, fashioned a six-hitter for California and the Angels converten eighth inning errors by Mike Epstein and Bernie Allen into runs off loser Joe Coleman, 4-6.

The Yankees helped Oakland to a 3-0 lead on errors by Jake Gibbs and Mikey Mantle, but ruined the A's try for a fourth straight shutout with an unearned run of their own. Joe Pepitone tied the score with a two-run homer.

But the Yankees needed more help in the eighth when Mantle walked, stole second and right fielder Reggie Jackson dropped Pepitone's pop fly to let in Mantle with the tying run. Then Mantle won the game in the 10th with a run-scoring single.

Yancey Happy Over His Lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — There's an all-American-boy air, a certain mild naivette, about big, blond Bert Yancey, the second-round leader in the U.S. Open Golf Championship.

"Right now, I'd be very happy to settle for a 140 for the next two days," he said, bland and straight-faced as ever after posting a 68 for 135—equaling the best opening, 36 holes ever shot in an Open—and a two-stroke lead Friday.

It seemed like a reasonable statement. All such a performance would do is tie Jack Nicklaus' all-time record of 275 in this most prestigious and demanding of all the world's golf tournaments.

It was impossible to tell from Yancey's impassive face if he was aware of what he was saying, but it's very, very possible indeed that such a performance may be necessary if he is to stand off the challenge of brash Lee Trevino and some of the game's more glamorous names, who refuse to roll over and play dead.

"He has to catch me," Yancey shrugged when Trevino came in with his two-under-par 68 and remained two strokes off the pace after 36 holes over the 6,962-yard, par 70 Oak Hill course. The implication was that so would the rest of them.

"I still think I can win," said Billy Casper, the season's leading money-winner who rebounded with a second-round 68 for 143. And Billy, fully recovered from a back ailment that plagued him on opening day, grinned broadly.

Arnold Palmer wasn't saying much of anything. He stumbled in with a 74—he didn't have a single birdie—for 147 and was a dejected and crestfallen man.

Southern Cal Is Winner Over State

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Southern California takes a perfect tourney record against Southern Illinois in the College World Series finals tonight because Bob Vaughn, the team's forgotten ace, came off the injury list with a shutout.

If USC goes on to its fifth NCAA baseball crown, Vaughn's 2-0 six-hitter over North Carolina State Friday night will be the key to the title.

It enabled Coach Rod Dedeaux to come back with a rested pitching rotation, starting with left-hander Bill Lee, the ace of the staff the past month with a 6-0 record and 1.40 earned run mark.

Southern Illinois also is ready with a rested rotation, starting with Jerry Petzhold, sophomore lefty who beat Harvard 2-1 in 12 innings Tuesday. But SIU must win tonight and again Monday to claim the championship. If USC wins tonight, it's all over.

In the hotel lobby Friday afternoon, Dedeaux told a newsman, "Vaughn can't pitch—he's had a lot of arm trouble."

Actually, much of Vaughn's soreness left him in batting practice Thursday and the coach was hopeing he could start, but hadn't told him.

"About 3 o'clock this afternoon, coach asked, 'Can you chuck it up tonight?' and I said, 'You bet,'" Vaughn said after the game.

Vaughn lowered his season ERA to 1.23, best on the staff. He's 10-4.

Southern Illinois, a first-round loser to NC State, bombed a werry St. John's staff for 20 hits and eliminated the New York team 15-0, the most lopsided shutout in series history. Howard Nickason pitched a three-hitter for SIU.

Home Builders Pulls Into Tie For First With Win

Home Builders downed Pepsi - Cola, 11-1, Friday night in Teener League action to pull into a first - place tie with Planters Bank. In the other game, Carolina Dairy rolled over hapless College View, 20-1.

Home Builders and Planters Bank both post 5-1 records in leading the league. They are two games ahead of third place State Bank, 3-3, which is followed by Pepsi - Cola, 3-4. Next comes Carolina Dairy, 2-5, and College View, 1-5.

In the opener, Carolina Dairy got all the runs it needed in the second inning, pushing across three. Robert Carraway reached on an error and Ronnit Ellis singled. Paul Carr singled to drive in Carraway, and an error moved Ellis to third, from where he scored on a wild pitch. Carr had stole second and moved to third on the wild throw, ed on an error and Ronnie El-Leggttt's grounder.

In the third, five more Carolina Dairy runs came across. Carraway again reached on an error, and J. C. Daniels was hit by a pitch. Ellis sacrificed both runners up, and Carr singled in Carraway. Daniels scored on a passed ball, and Leggett walked, stealing second. A walk to Jimmy Sugg loaded the bases, and Kim Harbin singled in Carr and Leggett. Sugg scored on an error, making it 8-0.

The fourth inning saw nine more runs come across. Ellis singled and Carr reached on a fielder's choice. Leggett was also safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Ellis. A wild pitch scored Carr and Jimmy Sugg singled. Byron Dickens walked to load the bases and a hit by Randy Phillips scored Leggett and Sugg. An error moved Phillips up and Carraway walked. A hit by Daniels scored Dickens, and a single by Ellis brought Carrway over. A wild pitch scored Daniels, and Ellis came around on two more wild throws.

The fifth saw three more come across for Carolina Dairy. Sugg singled and moved to third on wild pitches. Harbin walked and stole second. Larry Roebuck also walked, loading the bases. A walk to Seth Jones forced in Sugg and Harbin came across on a wild pitch. Roebuck then scored on an error.

The lone College View run came in the fourth as Tommy Durham slapped a homer.

Kim Harbin tossed the win, allowing just three hits. He and Ellis both had three hits to pace Carolina Dairy, while Sugg and Carr each had two.

In the second contest, Home Builders pushed across four runs in the third to take the lead. Harding Sugg walked and stole second. Whitney Miller singled him to third and then he stole second. A wild pitch scored Sugg and moved Miller to third, and he scored from there on an attempted pickoff Steve Bostic walked and Joe West also drew a walk, after Bostic stole second Robbie Cox reached on a fielder's choice which resulted in an error, scoring both Bostic and West for the 4-0 lead.

Pepsi picked up its lone run in the top of the fourth. Wayne Eubanks reached on a fielder's choice, and stole second. An error on the play allowed him to move to third, and he scored on Kenny Pittman's hit.

Home Builders came back with three more in their half of the fourth to make it 7-1. Bill Lee singled and stole both second and third. Tim Norris walked, and an error scored Lee and moved Norris to third. Sugg reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Norris. Sugg advanced on an out, and Bostic walked. West then doubled to drive in Sugg.

The fifth inning saw two more Home Builders runs score. Rick Boles reached on an error and stole second. Wayne Bailey walked and Bill Lee singled. Boles scored on an error, and Bailey came around on another one.

Home Builders scored two more in the sixth to close it out. Bostic singled and West got a hit. Cox singled in Bostic, and West stole home with the 11th run, ending the game on the 10-run lead run. (After the fifth inning, a ten - run lead ends the game.)

West hurled the win, allowing just one hit by Pepsi, Pittman's single. He struck out 11 and walked three.

Lions Alone In First Place

The Lions moved into sole possession of first place with a 6-4 victory over the Jaycees, Friday, coupled with an 8-1 victory by R. C. Cola over Coca-Cola.

The Lions win eliminated R.C. despite its victory, and left only Coke and the Kiwanis with a chance of catching the Lions. Any combination of wins and losses by the Lions and Coke and Kiwanis will give the title to the Lions.

In the opening game, R. C. broke open a scoreless tie in the fourth inning to take a 5-0 lead. Randy Cates led off with a walk and Ken Tolan reached on an error, and then stole second. Lee Narron walked, loading them up and a walk to Howard Speight forced in Cates. T. J. Payne singled in Tolan, and a walk to Randy Lewis brought Narron across. Bobby Jones singled to drive in Speight and Payne for the 5-0 edge.

In the fifth, R. C. came up with three more runs. Tolan reached on a fielder's choice, and Narron single and stole second. A balk brought Tolan across. Speight walked and moved to second on a wild pitch. Jeff Bailey reached on an error, scoring Narron, and Lewis also reached on an error, scoring Speight.

Lewis and Jones led the R. C. hitting with two each. No one on the Coke team got more than one.

Coke's lone run came in the sixth. Bobby Gadrow walked, moved to second on a fielder's choice and made third on a wild pitch. He scored on a double by Pat Clark.

In the second contest, the Jaycees picked up a 3-0 lead in the top of the second. Curt Creech walked, and Dave Methias also got a free pass to first. Another walk, to Howard Cory loaded them up, and Bill Ellington reached on an error, scoring both Creech and Methias. David Duckett singled to drive in Cory with the third run.

The Lions came up with one run in their half of the second. Ronald Moore walked and stole second. He was sacrificed to third by Carlton Walls, and scored on Wayne Elks' single.

The Lions pushed over three more in the third to take a 4-3 lead. Danny Allen singled and Mike Lewis and Harry Pair both walked, loading the bases. A pick - off attempt on Allen failed, scoring both Allen and Lewis on the resulting error, and Lee Moore's double brought in Pair.

In the fourth inning, the Lions added two more. Allen walked and Lewis reached on a fielder's choice. Both advanced on a wild pitch, and Lee Moore reached on an error, scoring both runners.

Jaycee Golf Is Set For July 1-2

Co-chairman Charles Smith and Billy Ross announced today that the annual Junior Golf Tournament has been set this year for July 1 and 2.

The event this year will include play at both the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club and Greenville Golf and Country Club. The 36 hole medal play event will be split with the first day's 18 holes played at Brook Valley's Championship course and the final 18 roles at Greenville Golf and Country Club. This year, the field will be divided into two flights. One flight will be made up of beginners and the other will be the more experienced youngsters. Each day's play will begin at 2 p.m.

One change this year includes a free clinic to be conducted on the first day at Brook Valley by Pro Harold Thomas.

Any boy who will not be 18 before September 1, 1968 will be eligible to participate. All interested boys are urged to sign up at either the Greenville Golf and Country Club or Brook Valley between June 16 and June 26.

The four local winners will go on the the State Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament being held at the Goldsboro Golf and Country Club in Goldsboro on July 22, 23, and 24.

Security Defeats Moose Nine, 14-2

Security Life defeated the Moose, 14-2, Friday, to end the hopes of the Moose in the Tar Heel League.

The loss knocked the Moose out of any chance of catching the leaders in the league, and left only Security and Greenville Tobacco in the race with first - place Pepsi - Cola.

The Moose pushed across both of their runs in the top of the first, taking a temporary lead. Marvin Aldridge opened with a single and stole second. Keith Jones walked and Terry Glisson doubled to score Aldridge. Jones then scored on a wild pitch.

But from there on, the game was in complete command of Security. Security came up with one run in the first. Wes Puryear singled and took second on an error, scoring on Morris Vicar's single.

In the second, Security got two more runs to take a 3-2 lead. Bob Higgans reached on an error and Jordy Whichard got a single, and both runners advanced on an error. Jon Causey doubled to drive in both runners.

In the third, Security picked up two more, boosting the lead to 5-2. Phil Dash doubled and Vicars reached on an error. Dash came home on a passed ball, and Vicans stole third, scoring on a fielder's choice by Tony Nichols.

The other nine runs came across in the fourth. Causey doubled to open the inning and took third on an error. A passed ball then allowed him to score. Puryear walked and Dash reached on a single, and moved up on an error as Jack Jenkins reached, scoring Puryear. Danny Harrington reached on an error to score Dash, and Worth Albea walked. Whichard singled in Jenkins, and a double by Causey brought in Harrington and Albea. Puryear also doubled to drive in Whichard and Causey, and Puryear went to third on an error. He scored on a double by Dash.

Puryear, who hurled the win, allowed only two hits. Causey and Dash led the Security hitting with three each, while Puryear and Whichard each had two.

NO HANDICAP — Thomas Reavis of Henderson, a student at East Carolina University, has found the loss of the lower part of his legs no handicap. Although he was excused from taking the required swimming course at East Carolina, he decided to take it anyway, ending up with one of the few A's given in his class. Here he works on the backstroke with Michael McCaffery, a physical education major who aided Reavis throughout the course. (Reflector Photo)

Loss Of Legs Is No Handicap Here

This, of course, would be nothing out of the ordinary except that Reavis has no legs. The 19-year-old freshman psychology major had done what most would say is impossible.

He had always been afraid of the water. But with the aid of Michael McCaffrey, a 21-year-old physical education major from Richmond, Va., he conquered his fears and learned to swim.

The amputee swam his 12-laps-of-the-pool test before some of the others in the class did, and was one of five persons in the class of 27 to receive an "A" grade.

Reavis enrolled in Coach Odell Welborn's swimming class. Although he was not required to take the course (most ECU students are required to take the course or pass a swimming test), he wanted to have some physical activity. Swimming became a challenge to him.

"He's got more guts than most people," Welborn said of the student.

Reavis was afraid of water because he could never touch the bottom—even in the shallow end of pools.

He started by just getting used to the new environment.

McCaffrey, a student assistant to Welborn, volunteered to help the amputee, and would set him in the water and help him move about the pool.

After a week, Reavis was able to float, but the difficult part was still to be mastered.

He began swimming by taking one or two strokes and then he would sink beneath the surface. Reavis was devoted and he worked hard.

McCaffery said, "He caught on right away. He progressed faster in the first two weeks than anyone else in the class."

In addition to the regular class periods, Reavis and McCaffery worked together four hours per week during recreational swimming periods to help the beginner master the basic strokes.

By the time Reavis took his test, he had mastered the elementary back stroke, the back crawl and the front crawl.

The amputee had always wanted some outlet for his energies and with the facilities at ECU, had been given the chance. His self-confidence has also been increased through swimming and Reavis now plans to work with weights during the summer to build up his chest.

McCaffery, who will work with Reavis again next year, said, "I've really enjoyed working with Reavis and seeing him progress; it's also boosted my confidence in myself."

McCaffery's boosted self confidence is mirrored in his attempt to play football for ECU.

Welborn, defensive line coach for the Pirates, said seeing Reavis learn to swim had so influenced McCaffery that "I venture to say he will play football before he leaves."

McCaffery, "limited in ability . . . but has tremendous determination," according to the coach, has not played football since graduating from high school. "Accepting the challenge in the pool," Welborn noted, "has helped him in his football.

Reavis was an "incentive to the rest of the students. They stood up and took notice," Welborn explained.

Redskins Sign Gary Beban

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Gary Beban, the 1967 Heisman Trophy winner from UCLA, couldn't come to terms with the Los Angeles Rams but he certainly talks the language of the Washington Redskins and Kathy Hanson.

Beban has a couple of new contracts today—one with the Redskins, the other with the former Miss Hanson, who he married in Alhambra, Calif., Friday.

About seven hours before the couple were married, the Redskins announced they had acquired the rights to negotiate with Beban from the Rams in a trade for their 1969 No. 1 draft choice.

Club President Edward Bennett Williams said Beban had agreed to terms—something he couldn't do with Los Angeles. He'll sign Monday.

The Redskins, who also announced the signing of St. Louis defensive back Pat Fischer, were enthused with the acquisition of Beban, even though it gives them five quarterbacks—veterans Sonny Jurgensen and Jim Niniwski and rookies Beban Harry Theofpledes and Danny Talbott.

Fischer, a 5-foot-9, 170-pound seven-year veteran, is expected to strengthen the Redskins in an area where they've had problems.

The Redskins owe St. Louis a player for Fischer, who played out his option. Commissioner Pete Rozelle will decide who they must give since the two teams cannot agree on a player.

Fischer said he was unhappy at St. Louis because the owners and coaches put much of the blame for the Cardinals' 6-8 season on the defensive backfield.

Bob Moose Loses Bid For No-Hitter But Stops Houston For Pirates, 3-0

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Moose of Pittsburgh kept alive a shut-running jinx—that of beating Houston. But he couldn't overcome a long-lived whammy—the one that prohibits a no-hitter in the Pirates' Forbes Field.

The rookie right-hander ran his record to 3-0 against Houston Friday night as the Pirates beat the Astros 3-0, and he made a serious bid for the first no-hitter ever in Forbes Field, which opened June 30, 1909.

But the whammy caught up with him after 7 2-3 innings when Julio Gotay blooped a single to right. Ron Davis singled in the ninth and Moose finished with a two-hitter.

The longest previous hitless string at Forbes Field was 7 1-3 innings by Al Jackson of the New York Mets on July 21, 1965.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday night, the Mets beat San Francisco 7-3, Cincinnati blanked St. Louis 7-0, Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 6-0 and then lost to the Phillies 2-1 and the Chicago Cubs nipped Atlanta 2-1.

Moose walked Rusty Staub with two out in the first and then retired 21 in a row before Gotay got his single. The victory ran his record to 2-4, with boh victories coming in starting roles against Houston. His other victory over the Astros came in a brief fling with the Pirates last year.

The Pirates scored in the second inning when Fred Patek beat out a bunt for his first major-league hit, stole second and went to third on catcher John Bateman's throwing error and came home on Jerry May's single. They scored again in the sixth on Donn Clendenon's homer and got their final run in the eighth.

Rookie Jerry Koosman got roughed up in the ninth when he yielded two runs but had enough to win his 10th game against two losses in the Mets' victory over San Francisco.

New York, winning its fourtr straight, scored once in the first and then wrapped it up with four runs in the third on Don Bosch's solo homer and Jerry Buchek's three-run shot. It was Bosch's first homer in the majors.

Cincinnati broke open its scoreless duel with St. Louis by scoring four runs in the seventh with the aid of five straight singles.

Lee May started the rally with one out and then Johnny Bench, Leo Cardenas, Mack Jones and Pete Rose followed with hits. Jones scored the inning's final run when he attempted to steal home and catcher Tim McCarver dropped the ball.

Billy McCool and Ted Abernathy limited the Cardinals to three hits.

Bill Singer raised his record to 6-5 by pitching a seven-hitter for his fourth straight victory in Los Angele's opening game triumph over Philadelphia that snapped a three-game losing streak. The Dodgers clinched it with a two-run second and a three-run third.

Philadelphia, held hitless for 6 1-3 innings by Mike Kekich, won the nightcap when Tony Gonzalez singled off Jim Brewer with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Los Angeles scored off winner Woody Fryman, 9-5, in the sixth, but the Phillies tied it when Richie Allen tripled, for the first hit, in the seventh and scored on Don Lock's sacrifice fly.

Fifth-inning doubles by Ernie Banks and Randy Hundley broke a 1-1 tie and gave Chicago a 2-1 victory over Atlanta.

The Braves scored in the first on Hank Aaron's double and Deron Johnson's single. Chicago came back to tie on Don Kessinger's single and stolen base, a groundout and Billy Williams' sacrifice fly.

Minnesota edged Baltimore 1, Boston belted Cleveland 7-2, Detroit nipped the Chicago White Sox 6-5 in 14 innings, the New York Yankees tripped Oakland 5-4 in 10 innings and California blanked Washington 2-0 in the American League.

Jerry Schultz, former University of North Dakota baseball and basketball star, is a third baseman for Kinston, N.C., a team in the New York Yankee system.

Three Hits Prove To Be Just Enough

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Wilson Tobs collected only three hits off Lynchburg's Al Fitzmorrs Friday night, but two of those blows were home runs and proved just enough to down the Lynsox 3-2 to top Carolina League action.

Wilson first baseman Steve Waters slammed a two-run homer over the left field fence in the first inning to put the Tobs out in front. Lynchburg came back and tied the score. Finally Glen Smith homered in the ninth to give Wilson the lead for keeps.

Righthander John Glass pitched a neat three hitter in leading the Raleigh-Durham Mets to a 10-3 win over Salem. Glass, who walked four and struck out four, was backed by 16 hits by his teammates.

Kinston broke loose for five runs in the seventh inning to whip Greensboro 5-3. The big hit in the inning was a two run single by Frank Baker.

Winston-Salem's Ed Phillips kept seven hits well spread out as he pitched the Red Sox to a 3-0 win over Burlington. Phillips fanned eight and twice worked his way out of tight jams in hurling his third win of the year against six losses.

Smith Learns About Pressure

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Tommy Smith learned the meaning of "pressure" Friday night. With only three pitching starts under his belt, the N. C. State hurler was assigned to open against Southern California in the NCAA College World Series.

Starting against any team in the Omaha games would have been rough, but, as a nadded feature, Southern Cal is the nation's No. 1 ranked baseball squad.

Smith had 16 1-3 innings of pitching behind him when he walked out to the mount. It was enough.

But the Wolfpack was unable to capitalize on their two big scoring chances Friday, and Southern Cal took a 2-0 victory, eliminating North Carolina State and moving into tonight's finals against Southern Illinois.

The State team had one consolation, however. Their record in the series — the first time a Wolfpack team has made that competition — is the best any Atlantic Coast Conference team has done since Wake Forest took the national title in 1955.

N. C. State's chances to score came in the seventh and ninth innings.

In the top of the seventh, Steve Martin led off with a single but was wiped out on a double play ball by Dennie Pun Then Fred Combs and Darrell Moody followed with singles before the Southern Cal first baseman made a good play on Gary Yount's slow hopper down the line to retire the side.

Their other opportunity, in the top of the ninth, began when Martin led off with a double but was thrown out at the plate on Fred Combs single down the third base line. Next came a ground out, and Darrell Moody was fanned to end the ball game.

The Wolfpack defeat marked the first time N. C. State was held to less than two runs during the 1967 season and was the Wolfpack's first shutout in 37 games.

George Always Leaves A Laugh

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — In the tradition of show business, George Haines Jr. of Far Hills, N.J., left 'em laughing.

George is a spindly, hollow-cheeked young man of 23 whose greatest golf achievement before this year was playing the No. 2 position on the University of Pennsylvania team.

No one was more astounded than George when he qualified for the National Open. He took his first golf lesson in March.

People watched him swing and decided that the U.S. Golf Association ought to be given a saliva test. Or at least investigated by some Washington, D.C., bureau.

George teed off in the first round Thursday and set a new open record for hitting spectators.

Employing one of the most gorgeous shanks ever seen in an Open, he beaned eight fans on the first six holes.

"Haines hit six fairways and eight spectators," a Rochester newspaper dutifully reported.

Several Changes In Hunting Rules

RALEIGH—The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, in a meeting here Wednesday, voted several changes in North Carolina's state-wide hunting regulations, special game lands regulations, controlled shooting preserve regulations and field trial regulations.

The group agreed to establish the first spring gobbler season for wild turkey in the state and to lengthen the hunting season for quail and rabbit an extra week for the 1968-1969 season.

As a result of action by the commission, Tarheel sportsmen will see a December 21 through February 15 winter season for wild turkey in the Piedmont. In addition, the commission established an April 14-19 spring season for gobblers in this territory. The Piedmont area in which this season will apply lies west of a line from South Carolina to Virginia along the following route: U.S. 401 from the South Carolina state line northward to Louisburg, N.C. 561 from Louisburg to Brinkleyville, N.C. 48 from Brinkleyville to Pleasant Hill and U.S. 301 from Pleasant Hill to the Virginia state line. East of this line hunting will be restricted to a spring season April 14- May 3.

The commission further specified that there would be no open season for wild turkey in or west of Stokes, Forsyth, Davidson, Rowan, Iredell, Lincoln and Gaston counties except for special hunts specified for game lands. The use of dogs is prohibited during all spring season turkey hunts.

The new spring season, which will bring North Carolina's regulations more in line with those of adjoining turkey-producing states, is being initiated as one phase of a turkey restoration program which the Wildlife Resources Commission has undertaken.

The commission also voted to extend the state's quail and rabbit season from November 16 through February 22, giving Tarheel sportsmen an additional week of hunting over last year's season. However, the commissioners found it necessary to shorten the raccoon and opossum season in the western part of the state in order to provide more time for restocking. In and west of Surry, Yadkin, Iredell, Mecklenburg, and Union counties the open season will be October 18 through January 1. The open season in the remainder of the state will be October 18 through March 1.

The commission voted, as it has in years past, to open the deer season in Western North Carolina, where the hunting of deer with dogs is prohibited, the Monday preceding Thanksgiving Day, on November 2. Likewise, the commission chose October 18, the Friday closest to the middle of the month, as the traditional opening date for the deer season in the eastern part of the state. Bear, boar, squirrel, and grouse seasons will also open on October 18.

The Commission decided to include Brunswick and Columbus counties in the long deer season, October 18 through January 1, and to establish the dividing line between the long and short deer season for Granville County as follows: October 18-January 1 north of the Tar River and east of N.C. 96 south of the Tar River; October 18-November 2 south of the Tar River and west of N.C. 96. That part of Orange County north of U. S. 70 was opened to an October 18-November 2 deer season.

In and east of Northampton, Halifax, Nash, Johnston, Harnett, Cumberland and Robeson counties the bear-boar season will be October 18 through November 23 except in southeastern Pitt and portions of western Beaufort counties where the season will be October 18 through November 9. The Commission further decided that in and west of Stokes, Yadkin, Wilkes, Caldwell, Burke, and Rutherford counties, and in Cleveland County north of N.C. 226 and N. C. 182, where the hunting of deer by dogs is prohibited, the hunting of bear or boar during the first six days of any gun season on deer will be prohibited.

In dealing with changes in state trapping regulations the Commission voted to extend the beaver trapping season through an earlier opening date in all of Northampton County and that part of Halifax County east of U. S. 301. Here the beaver trapping season will extend from November 15 through March 1. In addition, the Commission opened to trapping a portion of Duplin County which was formerly closed and voted to close the trapping season for otter west of U. S. 220 north of the town of Rockingham and west of U. S. 1 south of the town of Rockingham.

In addition to changes in statewide hunting and trapping regulations, the Commission yesterday voted a number of changes in special hunting regulations applying to game lands for the 1968-69 season.

To overcome past confusion which resulted from two different types of season permits, the Commission agreed to require only one type of season permit to cover small game and wild turkey hunting on checking station areas and all other types of hunting on non-checking station areas. The new permits will sell for $5.25, of which $5.00 will be paid to the Wildlife Resources Commission and $.25 will be paid to the Commission's license agent.

The Commission also voted to provide for dove hunting on South Mountains Wildlife Management Area, to allow taking of bears on Holly Shelter and Croatan Wildlife Management areas during archery hunts, and to prohibit removal of live animals from any game land at any time.

In order to maintain better age class distribution and development of trophy bucks on the Uwharrie Wildlife Management Area, the Commission decided to reduce hunter quota on buck deer hunts on this area from 300 to 250.

Following the recommendations of Wildlife Resources Commission biologists, the Commission voted to maintain deer herds in balance with the range through the establishment of either sex deer hunts as follows:

Two part-days on both parts of Santeetlah, Fires Creek, Standing Indian, Wayah Bald, Harmon Den, Rich Laurel, Spivey of Flat Top, both parts of Mt. Mitchell, and Thurmond Chatham; one part-day on both parts of Sherwood, North Mills, and Bent Creek of Pisgah, South Mountains, all parts of Daniel Boone, Uwharrie, Sandhills, and Holly Shelter, with hunts on Uwharrie and Sandhills to start at noon, and the Sandhills hunt confined to Block A; on days on Davidson River, Gloucester, and Turkey Pen of Pisgah, Poplar of Flat Top, and Croatan.

Since the wild turkey flock on Daniel Boone Wildlife Management Area is now considered to be large enough to initiate a limited harvest, the Commission agreed to provide for a spring turkey gobbler hunt on this area at the same time gobbler hunts are allowed on other areas in the western part of the state.

In other action the Wildlife Commission voted to require controlled shooting preserves having shooting fields larger than 50 acres to release at least tal number of quail required for 50 per cent of the minimum to-operation under the supervision ofof a Commission representative.

The Commission also voted to require any individual or organization sponsoring a field trail and to remit an entry fee of $1.00 for each dog as well as a facilities use fee of $20.00 for each calendar day during which the Commission facilities are used.

RECORD BREAKER — "Irish" Brady of St. Petersburg landed this 176-pound tarpon Thursday near the Tampa docks. It set an all-time record in the 21-year-old Tampa Tarpon Tournament. Previous record was a 174-pounder in 1954. Brady, using a pinfish for bait, watched his catch jump 6 times during a 15-minute battle.

Record Marlin Is Tournament Best

By FRANK SWANSON

Capt. Johnny Stackhouse's craft, the Red Snapper, was the star boat of the 11th Annnual Blue Martin Fishing Tournament in Morehead City. While fishing with Capt. John; Jerry Fulford of Washington, North Carolina, captured the winning marlin weighing 538 pounds to create a new tournament record. This fish was taken on Thursday and was the second marlin taken from aboard the Red Snapper during the tournament.

Dr. Winfield Thompson, Goldsboro, also fishing with Capt. John boated the second prize fish weighing 306 pounds. This fish was taken on Monday.

Third place awards went to Harold Lee of Elm City for his 272 pound beauty. He was also awarded the prize for the largest marlin caught on 80 pound test line. This was caught from Capt. Dee Daniels William Lee.

Capt. Johnny Stackhouse won the Captain-Mate prize of $500 and donated it back to the Fabulous Fishing Club to create the new "Red Snapper Award" which will be given in the amount of $100 each year for the next five years for the first blue marlin taken during the tournament.

Other awards included a trophy for the largest dolphin during the tournament which went to Charles Epifanio of Durham for his giant 53¾ pounder. He was fishing aboard the Tom & Jerry II with Capt. Orville Guthrie. The largest tuna taken during the tournament weighing 8½ pounds won a trophy for Mr. Larry Cummings of Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Capt. Ben Day's Dolphin just one day after the marlin tournament came back to the docks on Sunday with the season's first white marlin of the season. This fish was taken by Traye Wood of Greensboro, measuring 6 feet 10 inches and weighing 63 pounds.

From Drum Inlet, mixed size flounders were taken on Sunday. Also reported from the Newport Bridge area, small cobia were bitting.

Charter boats are fishing mostly for amberjacks and sea bass as the kings are somewhat scattered. Good dolphin catches have been taken in the offshore waters especially during the tournament.

Rod And Gun: Flea-Beatle Brings Answer To Alligator Weed Problem

By ROD AMUNDSON

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers may have found the answer to the alligator weed problem. This hardy plant has been a channel-choking nuisance in nearly 3,000 miles of inland waterways in eight southern states from North Carolina to Texas. In addition to blocking boat navigation, the weed ruins fishing.

The answer? Agasicles, a flea-beetle from Argentina. Researchers, after years of careful study, discovered that this little beetle feeds exclusively on alligator weed, and will starve to death in the presence of other vegetation.

A release of 2,000 of these insects was made in 1964, and now, four years later, a report from Florida says the beetles "have made great progress" in cleaning the alligator weed out of the Peace River.

Although the skirts of Abby spoiled fishing over much of the state, clearing, mild, warm weather should correct the situation by week's end. Largemouth bass and bluegills are definitely on the spawning beds almost state-wide, although both species are being taken that have not yet spawned.

- - - - -

"Dear Mr. Rod:

"Things has been fairly quiet around these parts lately, or that is to say they was quiet until cuzin Goatsford come home from Harvard for the summer. He slep about three days straight right after he come home, but the other day he come down to the store just as me and old Elmo Cooter was gettin ready to go fishin, and he wanted to know could he come along.

"Elmo looked at me, and I looked at him, and we finally both ducked our heads and said ok come along. We knew he didn't know nothing about fishing even though he grew up around here, but he always had his nose in a book and didn't do much of the stuff other kids do.

"Well, Elmo got in the front of the boat and I set in the middle to paddle and we put cuzin Goatsford in the back where he would be less likely to fall over board. We was about half way to a good bream bed I had located, and old Goatsford got to snooping around looking at this and that. Then he looked into the fish well, which, of coarse, was full of water.

"I say, gentlemen, he said, with that dang Harvard way of talking he picked up, there is a leak in this boat- Elmo looked back at me and winked and handed me a big empty tomato can. He past it back to Goatsford and told him to start bailing. He said what do you mean, and I said take the can and dip that water out of the boat.

"He started dipping and pouring, dipping and pouring, and he was still at it when me and Elmo had baited up and was starting to catch bream. Elmo says, Goatsford, are you getting the water out of the boat? Goatsford said not all of it, but I am keeping up with it.

"We let him go on for half an hour before he finally figured out that you can't empty the fish well while the boat is in the water.

"Yours,
"Luke."

Good Fishing Brings Smiles

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH — Good runs of king mackerel, blues, and spots made pier fishermen forget the rainy weather during the first part of the week, as anglers reeled in a bonanza.

Kings ranging in sizes from 12 pounds up to 23¾ pounds were hauled in at both the Crystal Pier and Johnnie Mercer's, to the delight of fishermen and spectators. The smaller varities also were landed almost as fast as fishermen could throw their lines overboard. Cecil Heartel, operator of Johnnie Mercer's, said some caught as many as 75 spots, one right after the other, the first part of the week.

Ted Zezefellis, who operates the Crystal Pier with his brother Mike, said that after about two weeks of little or no fishing, "all of a sudden the water filled with kings and blues." Zezefellis hauled out his daily log of catches to show notations of many good-sized king mackerel up to over 20 pounds.

He said Bob Lambert of Wilmington had a 22½ pound king, with others ranging downward to about 10 pounds. He said Ronnie DeYoung of Wilmington landed a 39 pound cobia. Sid Wilson of Fayetteville landed a 19¾ pound king at Mercer's.

Greenville's Unique Day Care Center

By DONNA DIXON
Reflector Staff Writer

Beginning with only six children, the Bonner's Lane Day Care Center, over a period of 17 months, has gradually expanded its enrollment to 19.

The Center was opened and its full program launched in January of 1967 by Miss Venetia Cox.

Miss Cox said she first conceived of a day care center during her summer work at the St. Andrew's Church on Bonners Lane. "The desire to help the people of this area" was her first purpose for the center.

"I've just been a missionary all my life and I saw the opportunity to help. I had been interested in Head-Start and then they shut that down, so I decided to start something on my own."

With a staff of three and comfortable facilities for the center, it is designed to relieve the working mother or father and to provide a suitable atmosphere and environment for the children while their parents are at work.

Children who come to the center must be within the age limit of three to six. Each is required to pass a thorough physical examination before being admitted to the center.

Two teachers daily instruct and supervise the children's activities. On an average day, their schedule consists of a class, a play period, outdoor exercises, nap period, a music period and a free period.

Each child is inspected as soon as he arrives at the center for possible signs of a temperature or illness. Extra precautions are taken in order to insure health and cleaniness for each individual child.

Mrs. Barbara Thomas, director and a teacher commented on the reactions of both parents and teacher.

"The children all get along just fine. I think they really enjoy coming here. According to their parents, they actually look forward to coming here. Some of the children bring their parents to visit. Anyone is welcome to visit."

"All of the parents who bring their children here work. Each one seems to be pleased with the center and what we are doing."

A non-profit endeavor, the center is operated financially by contributions and the fees paid by parents.

The center is located in a rented home on Bonner's Lane. All furniture and facilities within the home were donated. Inside, an assembly room with a piano, TV, and a stereo provide a favorite gathering place for the children. Two classrooms and-or dining rooms and two playrooms, one for the smaller children and one for the larger children compose the rest of the area used by the children. The center also has a kitchen and bathroom.

In the back yard of the home, the children have a fenced-in playground with an equipped sandbox and gym set.

Was China Missionary

Miss Cox returned to the United States from China in 1950, where she had been a missionary for 33 years.

In 1956, she was invited to go to Hong Kong. She returned again to the U. S. in 1959. Since that time, Miss Cox has been connected with work on Bonners Lane.

Besides working in the center, she gives piano lessons to older children in the neighborhood after the center is closed.

Miss Cox is now a member of the Woman's Club and the Inglis Fletcher Book Club. She is active in the United Church Women and in volunteer work connected with the St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The Board of Directors for the school consists of 12 members with the Rev. John Drake as chairman.

The center is in operation daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It has 14 children from the neighborhood, one from Ayden and two from near Winterville.

TRANSFIXED . . . with her newly found toy, this child exhibits the joy the children receive from their play periods.

Associate Superintendent Looks To Future

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Relatively few people in Greenville realize how large the school system really is.

Glenn L. Cox, associate superintendent of the Greenville city schools system, is intimately involved with the varied and multitude of activities that go on each day. He knows it is large.

"I've come to appreciate the enormity of a school system," Cox says. He has served as assistant superintendent of the local system since July, 1967, was named associate superintendent by the city school board in April.

"I would hope that everyone realizes the school system is involved in many activities and programs. There is something going on all the time. It's fantastic," Cox reflects. The system in some way or other touches all of the residents of the community.

Cox, from Elizabeth City, graduated from East Carolina University in 1951 and received his masters degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill six years later.

His teaching career includes four years at High Point Central High School, then Cox served as principal of the Southern Pines Union School for six years, before returning to ECU for his sixth-year certificate in 1967.

As associate superintendent, Cox serves as an aide to Superintendent Dr. C. C. Cleetwood. Cox attends to administrative details, oversees the maintenance and operation of the school plant and works with cafeteria operations, transportation and personnel.

Cox entered the field of school administration because of a principal he had, who he admired very much. "I started because of him and ended up in the right place. I've got no complaints, Cox said.

"The administrative details are a challenge, trying to keep up with the varied operations I am involved in and trying to keep them moving along smoothly.

Cox has some positive ideas on the future of education.

"I think there is a tremendous interest in education throughout the state and in Greenville. Education here will reach or come close to reaching individualized programs, where students will be able to advance at their own rates, according to their abilities," Cox stated.

Improvements Must Come

Although programs are varied and Cox's duties are many, he thinks of the future and of improvements that must be made.

"I think we will have to go to public school kindergartens," the associate administrator commented. "We need to work on a readiness program for all five-year-olds.

This summer, for the first time, the city school system is operating a program for pre-schoolers who have not had kindergarten experience. This type of program should be provided as a regular activity, according to Cox.

"A 12-month school year is also a possibility, although, my personal feeling is that we are a long way from such a program here," Cox noted. "We are now using the summer for enrichment and remedial activities."

He explained that this summer, between 800 and 900 students will be involved in some summer program connected with the city schools. The programs range from workshops, driver's education, summer school and a special Spanish workshop — Academic Center for Latin American Studies.

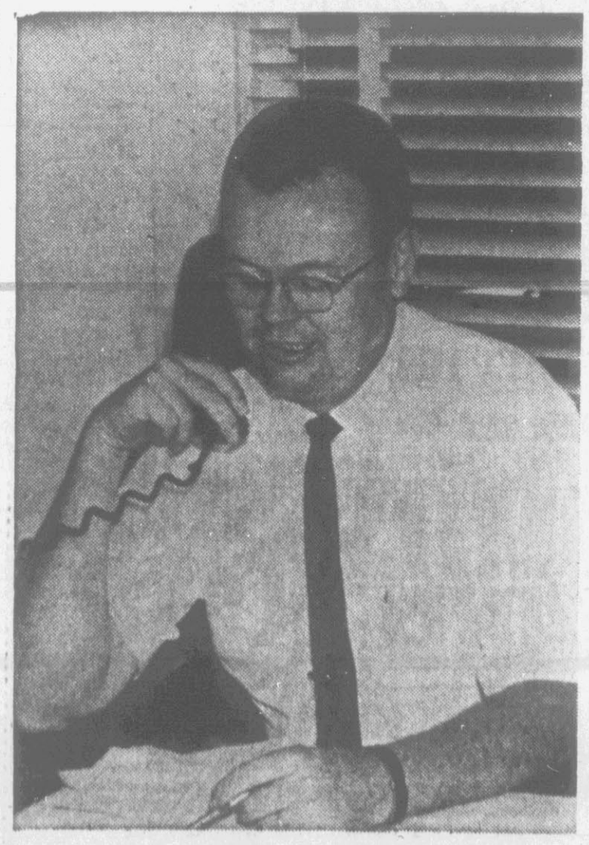
Cox, who served as a Naval officer from 1951 through 1955, said the field of educating students beyond the high school level should be strengthened, too.

Many students are not ready to continue their education, or in other cases, not capable of benefiting from a regular four-year college education.

"I see no reason why work experience would hurt high school graduates if they are undecided as to what they want to do."

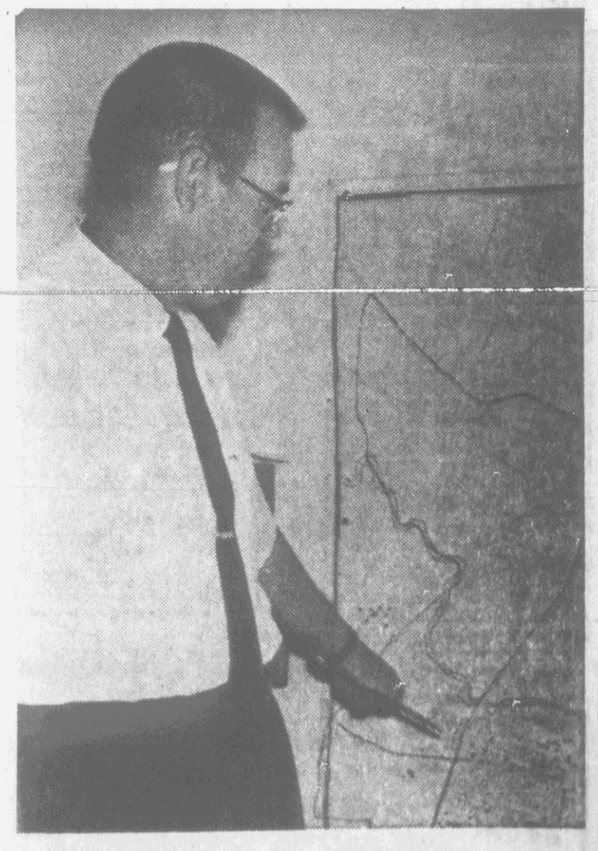
According to Cox, working after graduation from high school provides a good opportunity for persons to decide what they want to work, or to further their education, or to enter the service. If there is any doubt, they should try working, then go into college, if that is what they decide, Cox said.

There is a need for technical institutes that provide specialized training and community colleges and both are fine, Cox asserted "All students are not geared for full four-year college instruction and for such people, the community colleges and technical institutes fill a need."



WORKING AS USUAL . . . Glenn L. Cox is captured at a busy moment in his busy day as he helps plan the future for the educational system of Greenville.

CHECKING PAYROLL . . . Cox checks the payroll sheet with Miss Helen Vandiford, treasurer and bookkeeper for the Greenville City Schools system.



MAP AND POINTER . . . Using a pencil for a pointer, Cox plots the course of Greenville's growth and expansion and where schools will be located in the future.

MOVIES

MEADOWBROOK DRIVE-IN

BORN LOSERS — A film that tries to cash in on the motorcycle - movie success but ends up in the defecit column. (A-MY) Sunday thru Tuesday.

BRIDES OF BLOOD/HORROR CASTLE — A double feature horror film that might scare the kiddies, but will probably bore the jaded teenagers of this era. (A-MY) Wednesday thru Friday.

TICE DRIVE-IN

THE CARPETBAGGERS/NEVADA SMITH — Carpetbaggers roughly follows the life of Howard Hughes in a fast-paced sexy melodrama.

THE INCIDENT — A movie starring Martin Sheen and Gary Merrill. (U) Wednesday and Thursday.

CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF/BUTTERFIELD 8 — Cat stars Liz Taylor as Maggie the cat. Paul Newman co-stars as Brick in one of the best of Tennessee Williams' plays about the South.

Butterfield 8 is a film of John O'Hara's novel about a call girl. Liz Taylor won the Academy Award for this one: not the acting, but for the tracheotomy that almost cost her her life in real life. (A) Friday and Saturday.

STATE

SPEEDWAY — Elvis Presley and Nancy Sinatra both croon in this flick about auto racing. It's a good thing, too, because neither one of them act. (GA) Sunday thru Wednesday.

BATTLE BENEATH THE EARTH — Another picture with a misunderstood hero battling against the brilliant, but diabolical master of the underground. Many gadgets as improbable as the plot, and probably as unworkable. The producers may win the battle, but they will lose the audience on this one. (U) Thursday thru Saturday.

PITT

THE PRIVATE NAVY OF SERGEANT O'FAREIL — A comedy starring Bob Hope, Gina Lollabridgida, and Phyllis Diller. (GA) Wednesday thru Saturday.

KEY TO SYMBOLS: A-adult; MY mature young people; Y—young people; GA — general audience; C—children (accompanied by adults) UN — unclassified. Audience levels are only suggested since personal preference varies. Ratings are based on information from the Film Board of National Organizations of New York.

They'll Try Anything Once

So The Beatles Will Be In Animated Cartoon

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI) — They've done just about everything else so now the Beatles are becoming cartoon characters for a full-length animated movie called "The Yellow Submarine."

In the film, nearing completion in London, the Beatles will do battle against some cartoon weirdies called "Blue Meanies" which are anti-music. The Beatles win, of course.

The Beatles wrote the music and own a stake in the movie but an assistant professor of classic at Yale, Erich Segal, collaborated on the script with the producer, Al Brodax of Westport, Conn.

Since the Beatles like to try anything once, be it meditation or musical experimentation, they became closely involved in the animation as the cartoon was pieced together.

Broadax said "they were all highly interested and enthusiastic, mostly because it was about themselves and they wanted to see how they were portrayed.

"They would come up to the studio and Ringo would say, 'my nose isn't long enough.' And John (Lennon) called me once at 3 a.m. and said, 'wouldn't it be great if Ringo was followed down the street by a yellow submarine?' "

But back to the beginning. . .

"I really don't believe there's any difference between people in the world except some are positive and some negative," said Brodax.

"We derived a lot from the Sgt. Pepper Album (a Beatles best-seller). We took the world 'Pepper,' which is positive, spicy, and created a place called Pepperland which is full of color and music. All they really do in Pepperland is make love and listen to music.

"But in the hills around live the blue meanies who hate music, hate color, hate everything positive.

"It starts with a war. The meanies attack with anti-music missiles and Pepperland dissolves in the sense that color goes and everything is frozen into black and white. The only way to bring it alive is by music.

"One person, named Fred, escapes from Pepperland in a yellow submarine and his mission is to bring back musicians. He goes to Liverpool and finds Ringo who in turn must find the others. They have got to get back to Pepperland in the submarine and have to go through the sea of time, the sea of monsters, the sea of science and the sea of holes."

Somehow the 7th Cavalry sneaks in on the act and rescues Ringo from the Indians.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the fourth season, CBS will have a series of four National Geographic Society specials, starting Oct. 23 with "America's Wonderlands—the National Parks." The other three will be see in December, February and April.

Jack Benny is going to expand his own video shows to three for the 1968-69 season. He has been doing only one special a season for NBC for the past three years. The new agreement is for two new specials and one repeat.

Four episodes of "The Beverly Hillbillies" CBS series for the coming season are being filmed in England this summer.

After spending the past two seasons with NBC, Danny Thomas returns to CBS, his outlet for many years, to star in two specials. One of the hours will be based on updated characters and situations of the old "Make Room for Daddy" half-hour weekly series in which he played a night club star, Danny Williams. The other will be a comedy-variety show featuring a short "Make Room for Daddy" sequence in addition to guest stars.

Bob Hope is set for nine comedy specials on NBC for 1968-69. Eight will be one-hour long and the ninth will be a 90-minute affair filmed during the comedian's annual Christmas tour of U.S. overseas bases.

Eli Wallach and wife Anne Jackson will star in one of the original dramas on the new "On State" series of specials for NBC during the new season. Their one-hour play has not yet been chosen.

Well-Planned And Executed Recording Of Mozart Opera

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stated reason for a well planned and beautifully executed complete recording of "La Clemenza di Tito" was to give today's public its first opportunity to get to know it. That's a cogent reason. It was the last opera of Mozart whose popularity in the 177 years since his death has never been greater than it is now.

For getting to know Tito reveals even more cogent reasons why the public of today and of the last century or so haven't had or didn't have the opportunity. Opera people were and are justified in shunning Tito because its characters are dummies and the music, probably as the result, is second-rate Mozart.

The incomparable master responded to human characters and human situations with the finest operas extant. None such are in Tito, and why he gave his energies to an operatic form and manner which were dead or dying at the time, no one can know for sure.

To make matters worse for today's listeners two of the four male parts were composed for castrato and mezzo soprano. They can't be transposed downward for tenors without destroying the musical texture, and so they have to be sung by mezzos, which strains the credulity even of opera lovers.

Nevertheless, Tito, which was composed at a time when Mozard was composing little else but profound masterpieces, is well worth knowing by his 20th century fans if only for the new enigmas it creates concerning his genius. It is by no means a second-rate score, please understand. It is second-rate by the standards the composer established in his great operas.

The recording was planned by the noted musicologist, Erik Smith, who argues in the booklet that Tito deserves better than it has received. The singers studied their parts with loving care and they were carefully rehearsed. The result is an admirable performance, with the Vienna State Opera Orchestra and Chorus, Istvan Kertesz conducting (London-13. 87).

Leontyne Price's new complete opera recording is of Verdi's "Ernani" with which she made much hay at the Metropolitan opera in recent seasons. Her Ernani was Carlo Bergonzi and Mario Sereni and Ezio Flagello were also in the cast, with Thomas Schippers conducting. And so there is a veritable feast of lusty singing. But "Ernani" is early Verdi—the master's fifth opera. It has periods of tedium interwoven among its luscious arias and rousing choruses (RCA Victor-6183).

BOOK NEWS

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

Headed for a relaxing vacation? Take along a good mystery or tale of adventure for those lazy, do-nothing days.

For example, "Cab-Intersec" by David Walker is a thriller to chill the most hardened fan, set in the glamorous skiing resorts of the Swiss Alps and peopled by an international cast of jet-set characters. Ex-fighter pilot Harry Ambler is sent by an Australian tycoon to look for the missing Koala diamond — rumored to be in the possession of Max Vyan, Harry's wartime comrade. But in his search Harry discovers that things more terrible than a stolen diamond lie behind Devil's Peak.

In "Cargo of Eagles" by Margery Allingham, Mr. Albert Campion investigates the activities of a pirate-murderer in a village outside of London, and runs into marauding teen-age motorcycle gangs, a young lady doctor being harassed by poison-pen letters, a local "Demon," and murder.

Old Hendrik Brass invites six total stangers to his mansion on the Hudson, supposedly to make them heirs to six million dollars reputed to be hidden in the house in "The House of Brass" by Ellery Queen. And then he is murdered, and one of his six guests is Richard Queen, father of the redoubtable Ellery.

A non-fiction book which transforms history into the highest adventure is "Women Who Spied" by A. A. Hoehling. In these eight illustrated chapters, the dramatic incidents of feminine espionage from Biblical day of Delilah to modern times are recounted. Among those who ventured into the conflicts of armed men is Lydia Darragh who allerted General Washington to the British plans for a surprise attack on Valley Forge, and there are the ladies of various reputations and motivations who operated as spies during the Civil War and World War I and II. The accounts of these intreped women make for an exciting armchair factual adventure.

"The Greatest Aces" by Edward H. Sims is another illustrated historical account which details some of the greatest missions of World War II. In this book a former American fighter pilot recreates the most memorable missions for a number of the top World War II aces. From their own accounts and official sources he has collected the stories of Douglas Bader, who had artifical legs but became a top ace, of a German pilot who use to sneak into British formation to shoot down unsuspecting flyers, and others of both sides who defied death in the air.

Young Americans Get To Dance With The Bolshoi

"I DANCED WITH THE BOLSHOI BALLET", is no idle boast for hundreds of American youngsters who are recruited for the roles of beginning dancers in each city where the touring Russian dance company entertains. Above, ballet master Asaf Messerer personally instructs American girls chosen at auditions for one dance, "Ballet School", which calls for 30 youngsters in the number. In New York, 700 children turned out to compete for 60 places because two casts will be used there.

Book Reviews

THE NEWS MEDIA: A JOURNALIST LOOKS AT HIS PROFESSION.

By John Hohenberg. Holt, Rinehart and Winston. $6.95.

The nonprofessional reader, if he wants to pick and choose, can find backing for almost any common preconception about the news media.

The term is used by Hohenberg to include radio, television, news services and news magazines but he focuses mainly on newspapers.

Do you think advertisers influence news columns on some newspapers? That most editorial pages have little influence? That "herd" coverage is sometimes overdone and may affect such things as race riots?

If you do, you can find some support in these pages. But if you read thoroughly—and it's a well-documented book—you will find Hohenberg pointing out in all cases that there are shining examples of good coverage, honest and courageous publishers and reasons why some things are done.

On the subject of "herd" coverage, for example, Hohenberg agrees there were some "excesses of screeching headlines, excitable radio reports and gory television coverage" but he writes:

"Without doubts, there are serious risks to the continued coverage of civil rights disturbances by the news media without major limitations; yet, these risks are unavoidable in a democratic society that is committed to the principle of a free press.

"Self-regulation is necessary —even imperative—when there is danger that an unimportant incident may be magnified into a widespread disorder if it is publicized in a sensational manner. But once a riot is raging out of control, there is no point whatever to a miserable attempt to keep it secret from the very people who are in the middle of a horrifying experience."

Hohenberg, a professor at Columbia University and a newsman since 1923, makes no major disclosures but summarizes very well problems generally familiar to his fellow journalists.

He advises them to abandon the roles of the detached observer and to "concentrate on the practice of journalism as a public service. Merely saying that the public interest comes first in journalism does not make it so."

TELL ME HOW LONG THE TRAIN'S BEEN GONE

By James Baldwin. Dial. $5.95.

Leo Proudhammer, the novel's central character, is a Negro actor who at 39 is a famous Broadway star.

But the fight for success has taken its toll, and as the narrative opens Leo has a heart attack on stage, before the eyes of his white leading lady and sometime mistress, Barbara King.

In a series of long flashbacks, in his dressing room, an ambulance and the hospital, Leo looks back over his life and career.

Part of his struggle has been against racism, beginning with his boyhood days in Harlem, and that in itself has become a never-ending battle for him. Another stress has been the long struggle for professional recognition, beginning with the days when he and Barbara were practically starving in Greenwich Village and in summer stock. A third complication of Leo's life is that he is bisexual, and attracted to a young black named Christopher.

Baldwin has made Leo's story a dark and bitter one, and has utilized a fictional situation to offer his own commentary on the contemporary social scene. As a novel it is very weak.

Box Office For Summer Theatre Opens

Monday, June 17, will mark the opening of the East Carolina University Summer Theatre box office for ticket sales to "Season 5" productions, and the mailing of reserved season tickets to some 1,800 patrons.

Tickets for the season's six shows will be available at the box office, which will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m daily except Sundays throughout the season.

"Season 5" opens on Monday, July 1, with the hit comedy "Bell, Book and Candle," and will continue through Aug 17, the date of the closing performance of another successful comedy, "The Odd Couple."

Four top musical productions round out "Season 5," including: "The Boys From Syracuse," July 8-13; "The King and I," July 15-23; "Guys and Dolls," July 26-Aug. 3; and "The Desert Song," Aug. 5-10.

Wednesday matinees are scheduled for all productions with the exception of "The Boys From Syracuse."

Producer Edgar R. Loessin said season tickets are still available at the box office and singles for each performance are also available. Season tickets are $16. Singles are $4.50 evenings and $3.50 for matinees. Special group rates are available on request.

The Summer Theatre box office is located in the lobby of McGinnis Auditorium on the ECU campus.

Broadway Summer Season To Run About Average; Five Holdovers

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—The summer show list on Broadway will be about the average of recent season—13 attractions almost certainly, possibly two or three more.

It doesn't speak too well for the season just ended that five of these are holdovers from previous seasons, high-voltage hits that seem to go on and on with only slightly diminished box-office returns as they age.

These are "Man of La Mancha," "Cabaret," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Hello, Dolly!, and "Mame." To get good seats for specific dates for any of these, it is advisable for visitors to order ahead by mail instead of waiting until arrival in New York.

Incidentally, note that all of these five are musicals.

Four of the other shows almost certain to stay through the summer also are musicals, spawn of the past season. They are "George M!," A fine tribute to the late George M. Cohan and his songs and shows; "Golden Rainbow," starring the popular singing couple, Steve Lawrence and Eddie Gorme; "Hair," the hippie tribute that gives you a brief glimpse of naked males and females and not much else; "The Happy Time," starring Robert Goulet and David Wayne in what is a pleasant but scarcely exciting show.

Lucky To Get In

The straight plays you are almost certain to find around are "Plaza Suite," Neil Simon's latest smash comedy, and you'll be lucky to get in no matter how far ahead you write for tickets; "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," which obviously has a major appeal for those up on their Shakespeare; Arthur Miller's "The Price" and "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," an off-beat but beautiful play.

The "possibles," and some of them will be around at least through the early part of the summer, stack up as musicals "How Now, Dow Jones" and "I Do! I Do!" and plays "Joe Egg" and "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running."

There will be three other major attractions for the visitor to sample:

Carney to Star

An unusual mid-summer production of a new play, "Lovers" by Ireland's Brian Friel, who wrote the popular and worthy "Philadelphia, Here I Come" of three seasons ago. Versatile Art Carney will star in this (actually, "Lovers" consists of two one-acters) at the Vivian Beaumont Theater, home of the Repertory Theater of Lincoln Center. But this is a project of commercial Broadway producers and not a Repertory Theater offering. Opening date is July 25.

And for the visitor who cares to venture out of Manhattan to Long Island's Jones Beach there will be the revival of "South Pacific" by Guy Lombardo in the spectacular outdoor waterside theater which is an ideal setting for this semi-nautical musical. They won't need to fake that "Bali Ha'i" island with scenery out there; they actually have a real island. June 28 through Labor Day.

New Outdoor Theater For Charlotte's Bicentennial

CHARLOTTE — A new drama will open in a new amphitheater when LeGette Blythe's Bicentennial play, "The Hornets' Nest," premieres June 20 on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Bulldozers have been busy since November clearing and shaping three acres of hillside close to the UNC-C rhododendron garden. Concrete has been laid in 23 tiered rows, forming platforms on which 2,000 seats may be placed for this two-hour play of the early life and times of historic Mecklenburg. Grass terraces provide room for 5,000 more.

With world-famed actor Sidney Blackmer as the narrator, "The Hornets' Nest" will tell of Charlotte's chartering in 1768, of the traditions underlying Mecklenburg's claim to a 1775 Declaration of Independence, and of Charlotte's role in hindering and harrassing Cornwallis's Redcoats before Ferguson's defeat at the Battle of Kings Mountain.

John Richards McCrae of Spartanburg, S. C. is director of "The Hornets' Nest," to be presented also on June 21 and 22, June 27-29, July 4-6 and July 11-13. It will have a cast of more than 100.

FAMILY WEEKLY EXPLAINS KENNEDY REFERENCES

In the issue of Family Weekly distributed with today's edition of The Daily Reflector, there appears a reference to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. This issue of Family Weekly was printed before June 5 and, therefore, the reference to Senator Kennedy could not be changed or deleted to take into account his assassination.

EX-ACTOR PRODUCES

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Ex-actor Roger Smith (77 Sunset trip) purchased screen rights to "The Town that Took a Trip" for his production company.

WHEN SHOULD YOU TRY SELF-MEDICATION?

Medical authorities agree that self - medication should be restricted to first aid for symptoms of conditions that one can recognize easily. Examples are a simple cold that does not persist, occasional constipation, simple headaches, minor aches and pains, infrequent indigestion, or minor burns.

But if symptoms persist, or re-occur frequently, it is dangerous to keep masking them with home remedies. A physician should be visited to diagnose the true causes of any ailment and to treat them for a cure. Treatment at the beginning of any problem is usually more effective and can prevent much future pain.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound and dispense yours?

Man Believed To Live 130 Years

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—A police patrol searching for bandits in the wilds of the Argentine Chaco this spring came across an assertedly 130-year-old chief of the Pilaga Indians, the newspaper "La Nacion" reported.

Photographs showed the chief as a wizened man, bent with age, with white shin whiskers and mustache. The Pilagas live by weaving ponchos and sashes, raising sheep and goats, and hunting and fishing.

The 'Barking Dog Gang' Is Nabbed

The gang, police said, consisted of eight boys aged 10 to 14 who trained stray dogs to run barking into pizzerias. While owners and customers fled, the boys helped themselves.

Probability Of Heart Attack Shown In Test

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A painless 15-minute test has been developed by a University of Oklahoma Medical Center research professor who predicts within six months when a person will have a heart attack.

The test—the result of a seven-year study by Dr. Gunner Sevelius—has been proven 70 per cent accurate, the center said. Sevelius is an assistant professor of research medicine at the center.

Sevelius said research suggests that the heart attack—a destruction of a portion of the heart muscle—might be prevented or delayed by rest and medication if physicians were alerted that the patient is in a high-risk period.

Commonly used diagnostic procedures do not sharply define a coronary risk period for patients, Sevelius explained.

The test was developed by Sevelius as a part of the federally funded Neurocardiology Research Center program at the OU Medical Center. It measures cardiac output, coronary blood flow, heart volume and blood volume by one procedure, the radiocardiogram.

The test takes only 15 minutes, is painless and harmless. It involves injecting radioactive iodine into a vein and following its course through the heart.

"In brief, it shows how well the heart is performing as a pump," Sevelius said.

Sevelius said research gives clues that such factors as fatigue of the heart muscle as well as anatomical occlusions or narrowing of vessels should be explored as a possible cause of heart attacks. The OU researcher said he has found that heart muscle fatigue shows up at times of overwork and tension.

"This might cause clots or accelerate the formation of clots that shut off vital circulation to the heart muscle," Sevelius related.

Research disclosed that persons who had experienced heart attacks were more prone to changes in circulation.

Sevelius studied 120 patients—half of them heart attack patients—during the seven-year research project. Only four of 95 patients with a "low risk" rating in the prognostication test had myocardial infarctions within a six-month period after the test, he stated.

Professor Cites Litany Of Love

NEW YORK (UPI)—Love is much, much more than sex—it is, in fact, a many-splendored thing—according to a lady professor of behavioral sciences.

Dr. Margaret E. Nix of Pace College Graduate School, puts it this way: Love is supportive, love is generous, love is kind, love is firm, love means discipline, love is selfless, love is concerned, love requires energy—and love is a two-way street.

Bob Hope and Phyllis Diller are co-starred in "The Private Navy of Sergeant O'Farrell" which starts Wednesday at the Pitt Theatre. Gina Lollobrigida is also starred.

WACHOVIA INSURANCE HAS COME TO GREENVILLE

We are pleased to announce that the services of Wachovia Insurance are now available in this area through our recently opened center of operations in Greenville.

Wachovia Insurance has a 70-year history of service in North Carolina, representing many outstanding companies in the field. We offer excellent plans in fire, casualty and marine insurance, group health and accident plans, automobile insurance ,and fidelity and surety bonds. In fact, all types of insurance except life. Policies are selected and tailored to the client's individual needs.

And, of course, Wachovia Insurance is backed by the reputation and financial soundness of the largest bank in the Southeast, with resources exceeding $1.4 billion.

We are proud to bring this broader coverage in business and personal insurance to the Greenville area. We invite you to stop by your Wachovia Office and talk over your insurance needs.

Billy Graham To Be Telecast

Three of the 10 Portland, Oregon Crusade meetings held by evangelist Billy Graham last month, will be aired by television station WNCT, channel nine, beginning tomorrow night.

The crusade, which took place during the period just before Oregon's presidential preference primary on May 28, drew crowds far in excess of those which gathered to hear speeches by the major candidates.

Total attendance for the 10 meetings was 227,797.

Throughout the meetings, the emphasis was on youth and its opportunities and problems.

Graham, a defender of today's young people, said "This generation of young people is far more religious - minded than the young people of 18 years ago when I was in Portland the last time. They are among the most religious young people in history. . .I've just about given up on the older people, however."

Earns Degree At Indiana Univ.

Dennis F. Eagan, a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and East Carolina University, received his Master's Degree in mathematics from the Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., on June 10.

Eagan was invited to continue his study toward the Ph.D. degree at Indiana University and was awarded a fellowship to finance his studies. Named president of the Indiana University Graduate Mathematics Club recently, Eagan will assist in the Twelfth Summer Institute for Teachers of Mathematics at the university.

He is the son of Mrs. Elsie Simpson Eagan of 200 S. Elm Street, Greenville.

Pactolus Girl Enrolld For WCU Program

CULLOWHEE — Karen Bryant Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Tripp of Pactolus and a student at Pactolus Elementary School, is enrolled in a unique program for exceptionally talented seventh grade students this summer at Western Carolina University here.

The seventh grade class in creative art is designed to give stimulation and guidance in creative expression, especially in are and writing. Students selected have shown promise in these areas.

Fellowship Is Awarded ECU Chemistry Major

Rose Mary Peele, a chemistry major at East Carolina University, has been awarded the first Union Carbide Corporation Undergraduate Summer Fellowship in Chemistry.

The fellowship, made possible through a grant to the Chemistry Department at ECU by Union Carbide, was presented to Miss Peele at the annual dinner meeting of the chemistry staff. Presenting the award was Bill Leitch, manager of the Union Carbide plant in Greenville.

Miss Peele, who will be a senior next fall, will carry on a summer research program under the direction of Dr. Myron Casper, a member of the ECU chemistry staff.

Miss Peele, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Peele of Rt. 2, Aurora, has maintained a high scholastic average in a rigorous course of study.

Assistantship For Wake Native

James Merritt, teaching fellow in the Department of Biology at East Carolina University, has received a graduate assistantship in the botany department of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Merritt will enter the PhD program at UNC this fall.

Merritt received a BS degree in biology from ECU in 1966, and was awarded a teaching fellowship here for two years to work toward the master's degree in biology.

Collecting Data On Area History

Dr. Ralph Rives of East Carolina University was the keynote speaker at last Thursday's meeting of the Pitt County Historical Society. He explained efforts at ECU to remedy a lack of historical interest in this area.

He said that through the work of Don Lennon, ECU is collecting manuscripts and journals, providing access to them as research materials.

Head Librarian Elizabeth Copeland added that Sheppard Memorial Library is also open to store historical information. She stated that the library has a partial file of "The Daily Reflector" on microfilm and a state and local data room planned in the new wing.

On The Young Side

By JANE JACKSON

With the final closing of the 1967-68 school year, students at Rose High are beginning and still planning very busy summers.

This past week has been particularly important because it has been the starting of new jobs for many and the opening of summer school for others.

This summer, the enrollment for summer school at Rose High is between 500 and 600 students. The school is offering a great variety of academic subjects with 17 teachers employed. School lasts from 8:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

A course in driver's education is also being offered with classes from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Bo Farley, Russ Cotton, Bob Jones, Bud Phillips, and James Rodgers are the teachers.

Operation Sunshine

Sandy Foley, Laura Robbins, Martha Ellington, Laura Bruce Hadley, and Jo Ramsey are participating in 'Operation Sunshine" which is a program of special recreation for young girls from grades three-six. At the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church, the girls learn how to cook and organize meals along with playing games and having fun.

At the Greenville Recreation Department, Pam Carter, Penny Harrison, Sue Leith, Riva McDermott Helen Flanagan, and Barbara Fussell are entertaining children with games, arts and crafts at various playgrounds in Greenville.

Summer Jobs

Charles Adams and Mac McGowan are working at Eastern Lumber Co. in Winterville, while Louis Gaylord, John Peel, and Richard Jackson are working with construction companies.

Joey Pridgen, Ken Hite Steve Allen, Randy Briley, and Ed Bartlett are working for the city of Greenville. Iverson MacKenzie, Ben Harrison, and Steve Smiley are working for the State Highway Department.

New Adventures

Several students from Rose High have embarked this week on new adventures. Juniors Melinda Scott and Geraldine Case, and sophomore Ray Peszko, left this week to travel to South America on the International Fellowship Exchange Program.

Melinda left June 11 for Argentina to stay with cattle ranchers, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Sanchez for two and a half months. She will attend school but will not have to take any tests.

Ray will travel to Medellin, Columbia, where he will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Gustava Echeverri. To learn more about the Columbians, Ray will attend San Jose Catholic School while he is there.

Indeed, Greenville youths will be very busy this summer with new experiences awaiting them.

Check On That 'Legacy' Letter

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—If you get a letter from a man identifying himself as a Mexican lawyer and telling you that a long lost friend or relative has died in Mexico and is about to make you rich—count to 10 and then check up on the letter writer.

This advice comes from the Mexico City Better Business Bureau which has been having trouble with a man who has been conning Americans with such "legacy" letters. Complaints have come to the bureau from such cities as Rochester, Detroit, Boston, St. Louis and Sacramento.

It's always possible such a letter can be legitimate. But it's always wisest to make sure, the bureau advises. This particular fellow's gimmick was that he needed a small sum for processing the necessary papers, filing document, etc. Sometimes he only asked for 100 pesos ($8) but apparently the letters flooded out in sufficient number to add up to respectable figures.

Amateur Radio Club Preparing For Field Day

By GOB KNAPP, W4OMW

Again this year the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club (B. A. R. C.) will participate in the national annual field day event on June 22 and 23. It will be the second year for the club in such a competition.

This year the stamina of the operators will be under test as well as the equipment since the field day site is some distance from any electrical power. Location is near Ballards Cross Roads at a Boy Scout camping grounds.

The American Radio Relay League (A.R.R.L.), sponsoring the affair, has changed the rules slightly this year. Previously it was possible to set up antennas and test the equipment during the morning prior to start of the event, but this year three hours have been allotted for set-up time starting at 2:00 p.m. Saturday the 22nd, but operations can be started as soon as equipment is ready. The contest lasts until 6:00 p.m. Sunday 23, or a total time of 27 hours.

The club has chosen to enter the two transmitter group and use medium power, ranging from 200 watts CW (code) to 400 watts phone (single sideband). Two transmitters will be on the air simultaneously, and there will be spare transmitters and receivers in case of failure of any unit. Also two and six meters will be used providing the bands open up during the tests.

President, Ray Martin W4IBT, with Field Day committee headed by Charlie Wells, K4SKI, and Gil Hulsey, W4PSL, have been working diligently getting everything in order for the event.

The club, organized in January 1967, has made great progress in a short time with hopes of bigger things to come in the future, and ready for emergencies that may arise when amateur communication facilities may be needed.

An introduction to telegraph code class is being sponsored by Pitt Technical Institute (P. T. I.) and the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club with a 25 hour course starting Monday, June 17th at 7:00 PM at the Pitt Tech Inst. Classes are from 7:00 PM to 9:30 PM on Mondays and Wednesday nights. Anyone interested may call P. T. I. or report to the first class.

Work Formula For Happy Life

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—If your're looking for the formula to a long and happy life, Mrs. J. H. Sharp, 82, has one.

"I keep busy," she said.

Mrs. Sharp worked in a cannery until she was 65 and then retired. She had never visited a doctor until last year.

"In the winter my blood pressure was a little low, but it's all better now," she explained.

She likes being outside and doesn't care for too many material possessions.

"In my estimation I have just as good as anybody else. It's not always up-to-date, that's all," she said. You could smell wood burning in her stove.

The Interstate Highway System is using 1.6 million acres of land for right of way. This area is larger than the state of Delaware.

Many Cattle But Little Milk

NEW DELHI (AP) — Although India has the largest cattle population in the world, it is critically short of milk and milk products.

Health officials said less than half the minimum daily requirements of milk and products are available to Indians.

Family's Silver Bar On Display

GLASCO, Kan. (AP) — That bar of silver on display at the First National Bank of Glasco in north central Kansas bears the stamp of a melter anr refiner in London, England. The bar, which weighs 1025.20 ounces and is worth about $2,100, is the property of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Campbell of Glasco.

They acquired it with dollar silver certificates through the U.S. Assay office where they were required to appear in person to make the cash purchase. The silver bar was then shipped to a bank in nearby Salina where the Campbells picked it up.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR GOV. RONALD REAGAN

If the GOP nominates Nelson Rockefeller to run for President, would you accept the Vice-Presidential nomination?—Betsy Johnston, Stamford, Conn.

● I have been asked that question often recently. All I can say is that I will be California's favorite-son candidate for President at the convention. That way, I can help maintain party unity and assure California, as the largest state, a major voice in selecting the 1968 Republican Presidential candidate.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

Does it bother you when your gallery cheers for you and boos your opponents?—Douglas Miller, Marysville, Mich.

● I appreciate the support of the fans who come out to the tournaments and root for me. I know it helps me play better. But I don't like it when they root against another golfer. That shows very poor sportsmanship.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

How and when did you first meet Art Carney?—Mary DeRose, Lansing, Mich.

● About 20 years ago, I was starting out in show business and Art, a veteran radio performer, came into a Dumont network studio to work in comedy skits with me.

FOR FRED MacKENZIE,

After the World War II siege of Bastogne was broken, were the troops who fought there withdrawn from action?—R. L., Dothan, Ala.

● No. The 101st Airborne Division and other units involved in the siege engaged in even bloodier fighting afterward.

FOR ROONE ARLEDGE,

President, ABC-tv sports

Do the stars on "American Sportsman" receive any salary? Are they allowed to keep their trophies?—Mrs. Kenneth Bell, Muncie, Ind.

● Our celebrities are not on salary but are allowed to keep their trophies.

FOR DR. MAURICE POSTER,

American Optometric Association

Do you recommend contact lenses for persons who need bifocals?—Mrs. R. G. Maier, Aberdeen, S.D.

● Bifocal contact lenses still may be considered partly in the experimental phase. Many varying designs have been produced and each has certain benefits, but there are individual characteristics which may or may not indicate the use of bifocal contact lenses. I can only suggest that anyone considering bifocal contact lenses should consult an eye specialist.

FOR DEAN MARTIN

Is it true that during your show rehearsals and intermissions you eat lots of peanut butter and crackers?—Mrs. Bea Kuhn, Altoona, Pa.

● It depends on who gets to the peanut butter and crackers first—my friends or me. But, yes, I do eat a lot of them. Once when I was almost late for a number, somebody said, "Dean must be eating peanut butter again—he's probably stuck to the roof of his dressing room."

FOR MR. BLACKWELL

As a man as well as a fashion designer, what do you think of midi-skirts? —E. T., Salem, Ore.

● Midi-skirts are romantic, feminine, and fun. They are meant to be only an addition to the wardrobe and not a total way of life. Designed properly and worn preferably for dinner and dancing, they are both glamorous and exciting.

FOR SYLVIA PORTER, financial writer

How did you get started in your career?—T. F. Gibbons, Idaho Falls, Idaho

● At the time of the market crash of 1929, I was the daughter of a successful businesswoman who lost her money in the Depression. I was attending New York's Hunter College and immediately switched my major from English to economics. After graduating, I tried to land a job as a financial writer, but there was no demand for a woman in that field. Eventually, however, the New York Post hired me.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. Send question, preferably on a post card, to Ask Them Yourself, Family Weekly, 405 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We cannot acknowledge questions, but $5 will be paid for each one used.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Housewives' New Pet Dick Cavett, who has been making news with a bold morning version of the "Tonight" show, won an unsolicited testimonial from Jack Paar, who popularized these tv-conversation pieces: "His show is the closest thing to what I always wanted to do." Like Paar, Cavett is just what you see on the tv screen. Unlike him, Cavett keeps the family out of it. When pressed, he admits to being wed to actress Carrie Nye. "She was the seventh girl, the nasty one, in 'The Group.' " Any children? "No," he says, "but we're not against them."

Dick Cavett

Crime Fighter In his comic-strip adventures, Dick Tracy sometimes fights arch-criminals with a small "laser camera" that helps him to "make an arrest and supply the witness at the same time." Now science has come up with a real-life version, a five-pound, battery-operated tv camera that flesh-and-blood detectives can use to record a crime for posterity—and the courtroom. The system is also handy for coaches, educators, repairmen, and anyone else who needs an on-the-spot record and fast playback of what's happening.

The Quiet Life Was Hamlet being nasty when he told Ophelia, "Get thee to a nunnery?" Or was he practicing medicine without a license? After much research, doctors now say that a nun in a cloistered U.S. convent lives four years longer and is much healthier than the average American woman. Doctors are hoping to study nuns further to see what health lessons the rest of us can learn from them.

Have a Ball Eddie Johnson, son of baseball immortal Walter "Big Train" Johnson, has a unique collection of autographed baseballs—they're signed by a number of former U.S. Presidents, including Teddy Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, and William Howard Taft. Realizing the collection's historic value, Eddie is donating the baseballs to the Cooperstown, N.Y., Hall of Fame. He still has a couple of horsehides autographed by former major league greats, but explains, "Anything less than a Babe Ruth, we used to bat around the yard."

Better Late Than Never Remember the Edsel, the car that was Detroit's version of the New York Mets? While gag-writers grew rich writing Edsel jokes, Ford reputedly lost $250 million on it. But 10 years later the Edsel is a winner —at last. It has become a chi-chi collector's item. Its drivers search each other out, exchange letters, and form exclusive clubs. Assuming you could find an owner who'd sell, the current price for an Edsel in mint condition is in the limousine range of $5,000.

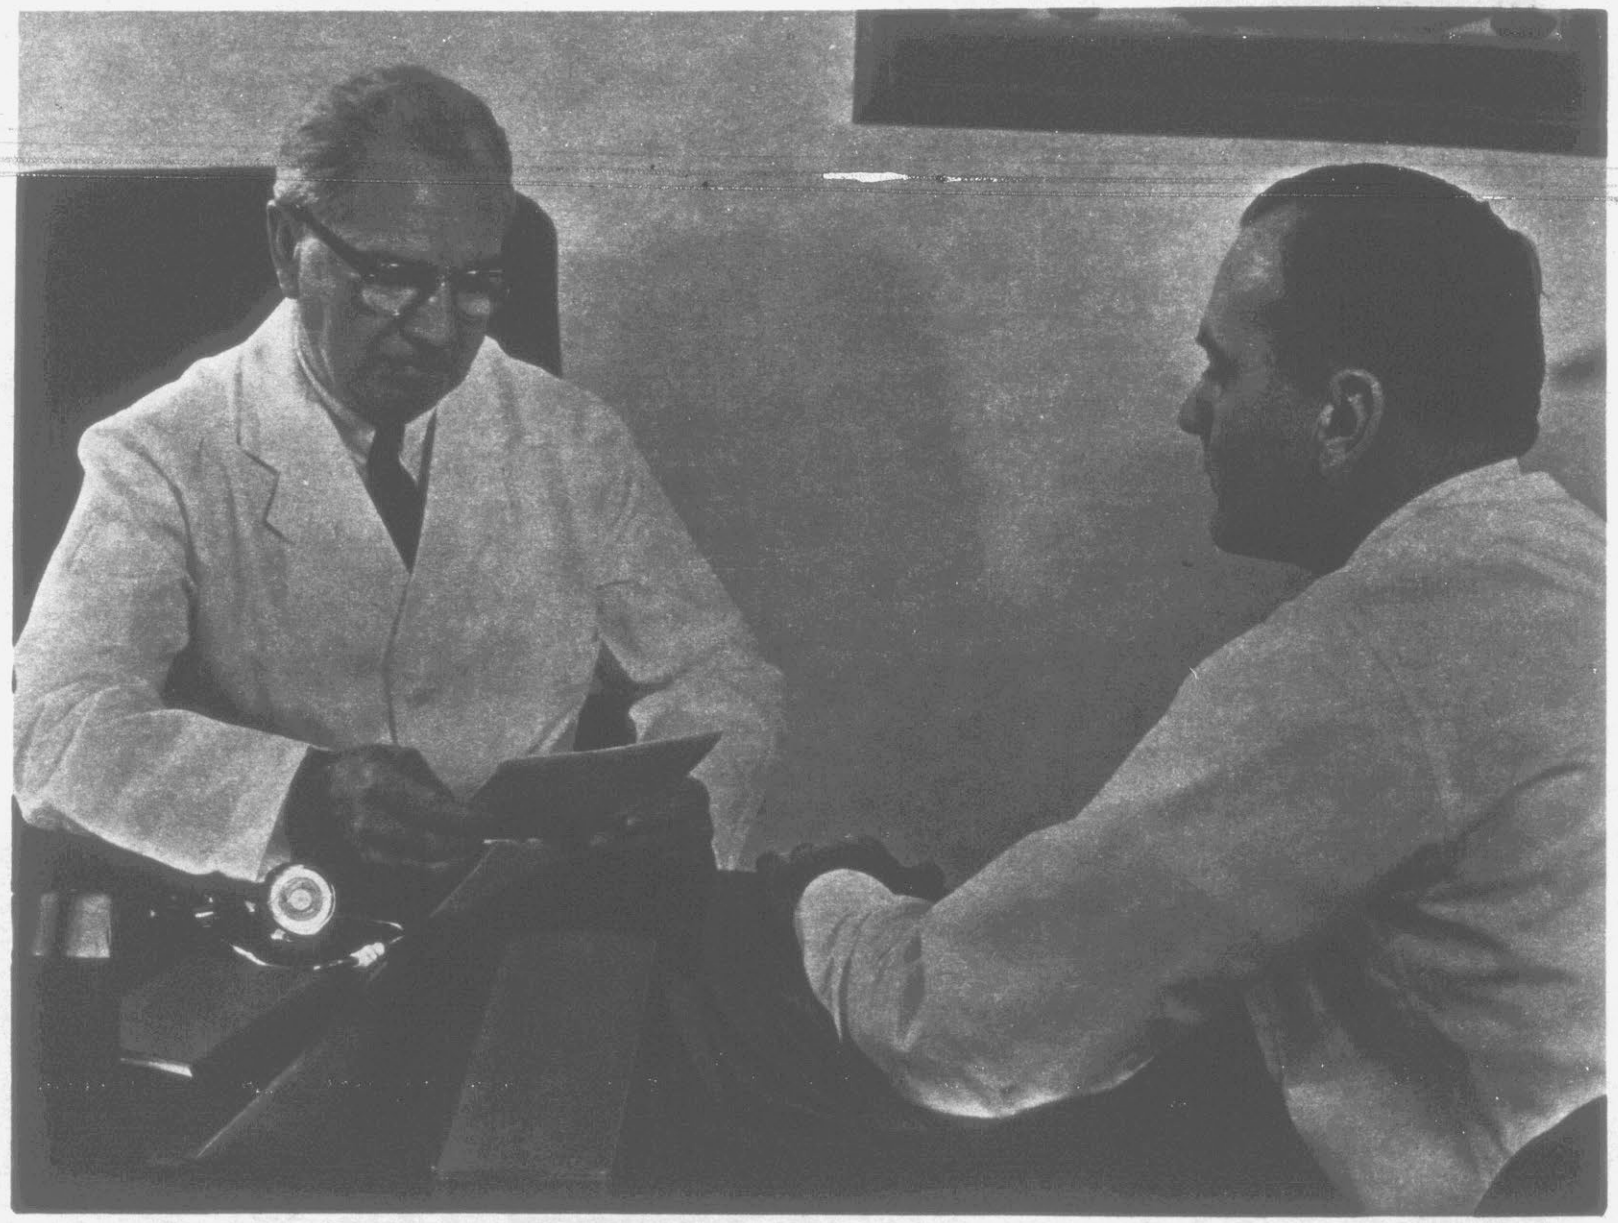
A PHYSICIAN TELLS:

How to Rate Your Doctor's

With professional evaluation still a long way off, here's a set of guidelines



MOST OF THE 25 million or so patients who will be hospitalized in the U.S. in any given year have their health and welfare protected in ways largely invisible to them.

They simply take it for granted that these safeguards exist. And exist they do; hospitals are under rigid supervision, both by the medical profession itself and the hospital commissions.

But what of the millions of other persons who are treated in that last outpost of total medical autonomy—the doctor's private office? Here the individual practitioner sets his own standards; no one looks over his shoulder or evaluates his performance. This is the crux of a growing medical controversy—what are your safeguards here?

Predictably, the quality of medicine tends to vary enormously from one office to another. And the average patient has no way of judging what kind of medical care he is getting except by using the unreliable guideposts of his own instincts and knowledge, the doctor's reputation, and the effect on his health.

Soon, however, things may be different. The Federal government, under Medicare and Medicaid, is paying the office-care and out-of-hospital bills for millions of people. Even private insurers are offering programs that will cover office care. All of them are beginning to express interest in what they are getting for their money.

Forward-looking medical men have come to an irrevocable conclusion on evaluation of office care: we'd better do it ourselves before they do it for us. But there are still problems.

For one thing, many doctors say it is an impossible task. Medicine is an art, not an exact science. Many unmeasurables and imponderables go into a doctor's diagnosis and program of treatment that do not lend themselves to precise scientific measurements and, in particular, to comparison with other patients and other doctors.

There is some truth to this objection. It is certainly unrealistic to conclude that rules regulating hospital practice would also apply to office practice.

It's a pretty simple matter, for example, to review an appendectomy done at a hospital and decide whether good judgment was exercised in deciding to take the appendix out. Appendicitis displays relatively standard symptoms and physical findings. The tissue is examined by the pathologist and adjudged diseased or not, and the postoperative course is usually uncomplicated, lasting a week or less. A hospital record which differs from this theoretical standard case is immediately apparent upon professional examination.

The average office case, on the other hand, is usually very different. It is far more likely to be psychosomatic ("nerves") in whole or in part —with a bewildering variety of symptoms and sometimes physical findings which defy easy sorting out or evaluation. Furthermore, many of them are "incurable" in the strict sense of the word. The anxieties and tensions which bring many people to the office may go on for long periods of time despite the best efforts of the best doctors to cure them.

Other doctors object to the notion of evaluating office medical care on the grounds that it constitutes an invasion of privacy. They insist that what goes on between the patient and the doctor is privileged and confidential. "These people bare their souls to us sometimes," said one veteran practitioner. "If they ever got the idea that some of the information they confide might get to somebody else, they'd tell us nothing —and that would be very bad medicine for them, let me assure you."

Yet hospital records, which often contain much confidential information, are carefully scrutinized without obvious damage to the physician-patient relationship.

Then, too, some doctors feel that

Office Care

By WALTER E. O'DONNELL, M.D.

you can use to judge your doctor's performance regulation of office practice is unnecessary since the really sick people wind up in the hospital, where strict safeguards are already in effect.

Proponents of the need for evaluating the quality of medical care in the office concede the complexity and difficulty—and in some areas the impossibility—of their task. They insist, nevertheless, that some areas can and ought to be measured.

Does the doctor take an adequate history? Does he examine the patient thoroughly and properly? Are the laboratory and X-ray studies which he orders complete and appropriate? How do his standards and results compare with those of his colleagues? And so on.

This would require an on-the-spot evaluation by a trained inspector who would sample the patient records in the doctor's files and render an opinion as to just how good they were. Some authorities insist that the picture would be incomplete without direct observation of the physician as he listens to a patient's symptoms, examines him, and recommends diagnostic tests or treatment.

The first type of evaluation could probably be carried out by a medically trained non-physician, providing it gave due regard to the problems of everyday office practice. The second kind of inspection would obviously require the services of a physician, and this fact in itself would seem to rule out this approach. Beyond that, the seeming intrusion of a third party into the doctor's traditionally private consulting and examining rooms could be expected to meet with objections from doctor and patient alike.

The professional evaluation and grading of office medical care is still some time off. Inevitably, however, it is coming. I believe reluctant doctors will have to accept it because third parties such as insurance companies and state and Federal agencies may refuse to pay fees to any physician who does not submit to evaluations.

Since payment from these sources is making up an ever-increasing percentage of his income, the doctor may find this pressure hard to resist. Then, too, his own specialty board or hospital may require periodic examination of his office practice. Lastly, patients will insist upon it.

It is significant that National Advisory Commission on Health Manpower, which reported to President Johnson in November, 1967, included "peer review and accountability" (evaluation of doctors by other doctors) as one of the Commission's major recommendations.

My hope is that when it comes it will be the result of the desire and efforts of doctors to do the job on their own rather than have unrealistic regulations forced upon them by those outside the profession.

But there are, of course, some standards by which the layman might judge his doctor now.

What medical school did he graduate from? When? Where did he perform his internship and residency training? (There are about 80 medical schools and several thousand hospitals in the U.S. certified for postgraduate training.) You can't be familiar with all of them, and you might not even recognize some of those that doctors rank as top-notch. A tactful inquiry of the doctor's aide should get you the information on the medical school.

In what hospitals does he have admitting privileges? Has he done any teaching or research? Is he specialty-board certified or eligible? (Again, the most obvious source of information is the doctor himself or his aide, but you may prefer to refer to the American Medical Association Directory or the Directory of Medical Specialists available in most large public libraries.)

What do his colleagues think of him as evidenced by their willingness to consult or have him take care of their family? (There is no higher compliment than being known as "a doctors' doctor.")

And finally, what do his patients think of him? Patients often take little notice of a doctor's scientific competence as long as he seems to get results. They tend to overemphasize his personality, an uncertain reflection of ability. But the reference books and diplomas tell you all about the doctor as a scientist and nothing about him as a person. You need to know about both to decide whether you want him to take care of you. So listen to what other patients say.

There are a few other guidelines an observant and inquiring patient can use. Does the doctor's office seem well organized, well staffed, and run on schedule? Does he advise a complete physical examination and then advise yearly checkups? (Watch out if he seems content to treat only your symptoms without trying to get at the source, or if he ignores modern concepts of preventive medicine through annual examinations.)

Does he keep adequate notes and records? Nobody can possibly carry all that information in his head, and some apparently minor detail of today may take on great significance sometime later.

Does he seem anxious to investigate and discuss even relatively minor complaints? Early diagnosis is quite often the key to successful treatment.

Does he seem to consider carefully each drug he gives you, or does he keep switching around?

Does he seem to depend too much on laboratory and X-ray tests and not enough on talking to and examining you? Even today the vast majority of all diagnoses are made, at least tentatively, on the basis of a good history and physical examination.

Does he make house calls? What are his arrangements for emergency coverage? You may be left high and dry in your hour of need unless you settle this before problems arise.

How does he react when you mention specialists or the advisability of getting another medical opinion on something?

These pointers are not infallible, but they certainly could help the average person in deciding whether he is getting the kind of medical care he wants, needs—and deserves. ◆

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The two lawyers were arguing heatedly in court. It had reached the name-calling stage.

The judge banged angrily with his gavel. "Order in the court!" he demanded. "You gentlemen seem to forget that I'm here!"

CHICKEN As You Like It

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Chicken is an all-time popular choice with busy homemakers. It offers high protein food at below-average cost. It can be prepared quickly or leisurely in tempting combinations as these to please one and all.

Oriental Pineapple Chicken

- 12 chicken wings
- ½ teaspoon Accent
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons cooking or salad oil
- Syrup drained from 1 can (8½ oz.) pineapple slices
- Chicken broth (1⅓ cups)
- ⅓ cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 cup diagonally sliced celery
- 4 green onions, diagonally sliced
- 1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and halved
- 1 can (1 lb.) bean sprouts, drained and rinsed
- ¼ cup toasted blanched almonds
- 4 pineapple slices

1. Remove and discard tips from chicken wings; cut wings in half at joint. Toss with a mixture of the Accent and ginger.

2. Heat garlic and oil in a large, heavy skillet. Brown chicken.

3. Add enough chicken broth to the pineapple syrup to make 1⅔ cups; gradually pour into skillet. Cover and simmer 15 min., or until chicken is tender.

4. Push chicken to side of skillet. Stir in a mixture of soy sauce, vinegar, and cornstarch. Add celery and green onion. Bring to boiling and cook 3 min., stirring constantly. Mix in the water chestnuts, bean sprouts, almonds, and 2 of the pineapple slices, cut in large pieces. Move chicken through mixture. Heat thoroughly.

5. Turn into a heated serving dish. Garnish top with remaining pineapple slices. 4 servings

Stuffed Mini-Rolls

- 12 chicken thighs, boned*
- Accent
- Apple-Raisin Stuffing (see recipe) or use 12 tablespoons chopped chutney
- Melted butter or margarine

1. Sprinkle chicken generously with Accent. Working with pieces skin side down, divide Apple-Raisin Stuffing or chutney among boned thighs, spooning it onto center of each. Fold sides over stuffing and fasten with a small skewer.

2. Place chicken seam side down in a greased shallow baking dish and brush with the melted butter.

3. Bake at 400°F. 20 min. Turn thighs and continue baking for 20 min., or until chicken tests done.

4. Serve with fluffy whipped potatoes and chicken gravy, canned or prepared from a mix. 6 servings

Apple-Raisin Stuffing: Mix ¾ cup chopped pared apple, ¼ cup dark seedless raisins, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, and 2 tablespoons snipped parsley.

To Bone Chicken Thighs*: Make a lengthwise cut through to bone along thinner side of thigh. Scrape flesh away from bone; remove and discard bone. Cut off the piece of cartilage. Spread out pieces, skin side down.

Chicken Cacciatore

- ½ cup olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, 2½ to 3 lbs. ready-to-cook weight, cut in quarters
- ½ cup regular all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon Accent
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- ½ lb. mushrooms, cleaned and sliced lengthwise through stems and caps
- 1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, sieved
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 teaspoon oregano, crushed
- 1 teaspoon chopped parsley

1. Heat olive oil with garlic in a large heavy skillet.

2. Meanwhile, coat chicken with a mixture of flour and next three ingredients. Place chicken skin side down in hot oil, turning occasionally to brown evenly on all sides.

3. While chicken is browning, heat butter or margarine. Add the onion and mushrooms and cook until lightly browned, stirring occasionally. Add to the chicken with a mixture of the remaining ingredients.

4. Cover and simmer 25 to 30 min., or until chicken is tender, basting occasionally.

5. Arrange chicken on a heated platter; pour sauce over all. Serve with spaghetti and crusty Italian bread. 4 servings

Fried Chicken à la Southern Belle

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, 2½ to 3 lbs. ready-to-cook weight, cut in serving-sized pieces
- 1½ cups cream
- 1½ teaspoons savory
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- ¾ cup regular all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons paprika
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon Accent
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- Shortening and butter (equal parts)

1. Marinate chicken pieces 1 hr. in a mixture of the cream, savory, and the 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper, turning once.

2. Remove chicken from cream. (The seasoned cream may be used for gravy.) Coat with a mixture of the flour and next four ingredients. Set aside on waxed paper for 30 min.

3. Meanwhile, fill a large, heavy skillet one-half full with the fat. Heat to 360°F.

4. Fry only a few chicken pieces at a time 10 to 13 min. (about 5 min. for wings), or until tender and browned; turn pieces several times during cooking. Drain over fat a few seconds; remove to absorbent paper-lined platter. Keep chicken warm while frying the remaining pieces. About 4 servings

Exclusive Interview:

Shirley MacLaine Talks About Men, Marriage, Morals

By DABBY OPPENHEIMER

SHIRLEY MACLAINE is one of the movies' biggest box-office attractions.

She is the star of the soon-to-be released "The Bliss of Mrs. Blossom" and is currently filming "Sweet Charity." Shirley is also one of the most controversial figures in Hollywood, a city noted for controversial figures. Here, in an exclusive interview with a friend and neighbor, she gives stimulating answers to a variety of provocative questions.

How do you think of yourself first? As an actress, wife, or mother?

As a woman first of all. In the final analysis, that's it. I am me, and I have to be true to myself.

A whole new viewpoint is developing, one which says everyone can develop according to the equipment she possesses, not according to her sex. In an odd way, this makes her more feminine because the more consummate a woman feels, the more feminine she becomes.

Do you plan to raise your daughter Sachi as a free individual?

Yes. It seemed like her life belonged more to her than to me from the moment she was born. Of course, I made sure I was always there when she needed me, but mostly she'd rather be on her own.

I remember the time when I lived at the beach in Malibu and put Sachi outside in her playpen. I was busy, and the next time I looked out, it was raining. Sachi was throwing her arms around, gurgling, having a marvelous time. I was worried, but Sachi loved it and cried her eyes out when I brought her in.

Love makes a unit of the three of us, a unit that is much stronger because it consists of three independent people.

Was there ever a time when you had your doubts about your marriage?

Yes. There was a time in '57 when I didn't think it would work. I'd thought it all out and decided that I should break my contract and go to live in Japan with Steve. But he wouldn't let me. He pointed out that I'd worked since I was two years old; that work is my life. If I quit, I'd hate him, myself, everything!

How did you and Steve come to give your child such an unusual name?

Steve was brought up in Japan, where his father was in the diplomatic service. He was a paratrooper in World War II and was his unit's official interpreter when they landed in Tokyo. His outfit found a little girl named Sachiko (which means "happy child"), whose parents were killed in Hiroshima. Steve wanted to adopt her, but she died of radiation sickness before he could. So we named our daughter Stephanie Sachiko Parker and call her Sachi.

You were married on Sept. 17, 1954. The next morning you left to start work in your first film. Was Steve understanding of your independence even though you were only 19?

Steve was the wanderer then! I knew that. And he knew I had these drives to express myself through my work. He was not about to take this away from me.

In a marriage, do you feel there has to be a boss?

Sometime or other, there has to be one partner with the final answer, no matter how progressive you are. One Christmas Steve and I almost argued about when to give Sachi her gifts. I wanted her to nap first, but Steve was impatient to give out the gifts. I gave in because I felt somebody had to be the boss, namely Steve.

Is it true that you're thinking of going into politics?

Ha! Can't you just see me behind a desk? I am not interested in politics as a job, but I do feel it is important for actors to commit themselves.

I believe God is in people. I believe love is God. The important thing to me is to believe in people.

Do you have a goal in life?

I guess to make tomorrow a little better than today. This is a kind of recent stage; it comes with a feeling of success. I want to contribute something to make the world a better place to live in.

How do you feel about the sudden and surprising success of your actor brother, Warren Beatty, as a movie producer?

How about that! Frankly, I am not all that happy with the way his picture made violence and the characters—who were criminals in real life—almost likeable.

Well, I certainly don't believe in censorship, if that's what you mean. I think movies are better than ever today because they are true to life. If nudity is an intrinsic part of the story and done with taste, then I say okay. As long as the actress doesn't catch cold, that is.

There's a whole new morality developing these days. And who's to say what is right and what is wrong really? The more I travel, the more I realize that traditional habits are silly. I hope I am raising Sachi to have her own sense of morality, but whenever I talk to her about anything, I always preface it with, "This is just my opinion." I just hope Sachi will have a reverence for life. ◆

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY:

A Sure-Fire Way to Break Your Bad Habits

DO YOU want to stop smoking? Quit compulsive gambling? Eliminate overeating?

Science now has come up with a fascinating formula to help you break your bad habits. Called "aversion therapy," its basic principle is this: if you have an unpleasant experience while doing something, you will stop wanting to do it.

Recent studies at the University of California prove that aversion therapy really works—if administered under professional supervision. In the experiments, subjects carried a small battery-powered device in their pockets and whenever they felt the urge to indulge in an undesirable habit, they gave the device a squeeze. Immediately a mild-to-moderate shock was administered.

This method of "punishing" the habit was highly successful in the case of nail-biters, and with smokers, a vastly tougher breed, the technique recorded a 50-percent success rate.

Dr. Malcolm Kushner of the Institute for Research in Clinical Psychology cites an interesting case history involving aversion therapy. A 17-year-old girl had been afflicted with chronic fits of sneezing. She underwent a complete series of examinations, tried a variety of medications, and even resorted to hypnosis and sleep therapy—all to no avail.

Doctor Kushner's treatment involved placing a microphone around the girl's neck, connected to an amplifier and a shock source. Electrodes were taped to her arm, and every time she sneezed, the amplified sound triggered a mild shock. After several treatments, the sneeze frequency diminished gradually and finally stopped.

While not all cases are as serious as this, Doctor Kushner feels that aversion therapy is the answer to equally persistent bad habits, such as nail biting, smoking, and overeating.

The technique was equally valuable in curing a compulsive gambler. Two British psychiatrists, Dr. J. C. Barker and Dr. Mabel Miller, were called in to help a man who was losing his weeky earnings. The two doctors made films of him at a gambling establishment and at home. Seating him in a dark room, the films were shown to him and each time the gambling-hall film was run, he was given mild shocks. The home-life film was accompanied by the soothing voice of his wife.

Doctor Barker later announced, "The patient has not been near a gambling establishment in more than two months."

Not all forms of aversion therapy require the shock technique, though. A Beverly Hills psychiatrist tells of a case involving a movie star with compulsive eating habits. The man, as a matter of habit, would make midnight raids on the refrigerator, and his wife sought professional help.

The doctor recommended that she get a picture of a grossly fat man, enlarge it to life-size, and superimpose the head of her husband on it. She stood the figure in front of the refrigerator each night and before long her husband's midnight forays ceased.

Authorities feel that aversion therapy may play its most important role in coping with surface habits and should not be used in cases where the habit is caused by a deep-seated neurosis.

In any case, professional recommendation and approval should be sought before applying aversion therapy because, as with any form of therapy, when and how it should be used is best left to the judgment of a trained professional.

Americans work harder than any other people on earth to make adequate financial provision for their families after they are gone—BUT much of their hard-earned money is wasted, siphoned off by a scandalous probate system before it ever reaches their loved ones

NORMAN F. DACEY

Why Haven't You and Your Family Been Told These Facts?

- On average, it takes one to five years to close out an estate. During that time your spouse can draw a pitifully-small "widow's allowance" but your children can't draw a cent.
- It costs three to ten times as much proportionately to settle a poor man's estate as that of a millionaire.
- Under the existing probate system, complete strangers may share your estate with your family.

But, in the next 60 seconds I will tell you of an astonishingly simple way to transfer absolutely everything you now own to your loved ones after your death without delay, without red tape and without the excessive probate costs which your estate may otherwise be called upon to bear.

If you don't take the steps I suggest, my advice to you is "Don't die," because complications will start the moment you do. Your estate will come under the jurisdiction of a special court. Sometimes called the "orphans," "chancery" or "surrogate" court, its most common name is "probate" court. If you've left no will, it will dictate one for you in accordance with your state's law which won't necessarily read as you would wish. Now your children can start their long one-to-five-year wait to get what is left of their inheritance after the appraiser fees, executor or administrator fees and probate court costs are deducted.

THE UGLY SIDE OF PROBATE

Senator Robert F. Kennedy recently charged that courts handling probate are "shot through with scandal, scandal that has been documented over the years."

Fiorello LaGuardia called the probate system "the most expensive undertaking establishment in the world." The New York Herald-Tribune editorially denounced those "clubhouse lawyers" who "profit to the extent of one million dollars annually in fees, many taken, at a large percentage, from small guardianships where every dollar is needed." The Bridgeport Post called the probate system a "gravy train." An article in the Journal of the American Bar Association called the Connecticut probate system "one of the most viciously corrupt."

Probate judges on average are the highest paid judges in America. Many of them work on percentage and may earn more than the governors of their states. The income of one judge was 20% higher than that of the Chief Justice in Washington.

The clerk of a Chicago probate court appointed 691 "special guardians" in a nine-month period. One of his friends got 76 guardianships—an average of two a week. A probate judge has reported that 90% of the appraisers appointed by a probate court perform no service whatever for the fee they receive. Many conscientious members of the bar are worried about the corruption built into our probate system but most lack the courage to speak out.

It is up to you to do something to help yourself. Sooner or later some of your own family's money will be involved. Don't wait and let your family and your children face this problem. Learn now how to avoid the probate system.

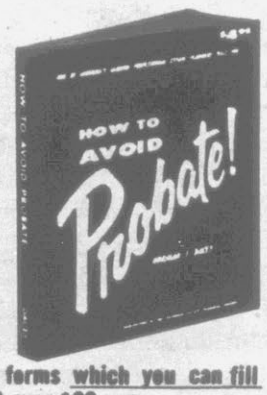
THE MAGIC KEY TO AVOID PROBATE

How can you give your loved ones the very maximum estate in the very minimum time after you have gone? By avoiding probate. Yes, virtually everything you now own can be quickly and easily transferred to your heirs after your death—and exactly as you specify, without any red tape, without publicity, without strangers meddling in your affairs and draining off the financial security you worked so hard to build for your family.

You can achieve all this very simply by a method which few laymen know about called an "inter vivos" or "living" trust. Indeed, only a small proportion of lawyers fully understand its use—the American Bar Association has just issued a training film to be shown to local bar associations to educate them on its advantages.

CLEARED!

The Book The Lawyers Tried to Ban . . . until the Lawyers' New York State suit was THROWN OUT by New York's highest court . . . The book so extraordinary Norman F. Dacey insists it be printed not on regular book paper but highest quality bond paper . . . Because it contains important legal forms which you can fill in, use and which last ever 100 years.



It's amazingly simple. Let's assume that you own a piece of real estate which you wish to leave to your wife at your death. In a simple "declaration of trust" you say in part: "I declare that I am holding this property in trust for my wife. Upon my death my successor trustee is to turn the property over to the beneficiary and terminate this trust. I hereby appoint as successor trustee the beneficiary hereunder." Upon your death, your wife, acting in her capacity as successor trustee, simply turns the property over to herself as beneficiary. She is then immediately the complete and absolute owner of the property. That's all there is to it—no executor's fees, no appraiser's fees, no probate court cost. No one-to-five-year wait. No piece in the paper telling all your business.

VITAL IF YOU OWN A SMALL BUSINESS

Passing on a small business, incorporated or unincorporated, to relatives or employees is extremely important. If necessary, your business can be quickly sold by the beneficiary-trustee if that is your and their wish. Otherwise, it could be tied up in probate court for years. A distress sale under probate procedures may produce little or nothing . . . may even create obligations. With an "inter vivos" trust, your successor trustee can quietly, privately and immediately investigate possible buyers . . . then take his time to make the deal that will give your family the very maximum, with no undesirable publicity to harm the sale.

WHY THIS BOOK BECAME AMERICA'S NO. 1 BEST SELLER

I wrote this book to tell a few friends and clients how to avoid probate. They told their friends . . . and it zoomed to the top of the best-seller list because Americans everywhere discovered that it frees them from the bondage of the iniquitous probate system.

In it you will find an explanation of why it is vitally important to you and your family that you avoid probate. Next, you'll find the actual trust instruments needed to exempt your home or other real estate, your savings or checking account, your stocks, your mutual fund shares, your small unincorporated business, your close corporation . . . even your personal effects such as jewelry, antiques, paintings, etc.

With each instrument are instructions that even a school child can understand, and a picture of how the instrument should look when it is completed. All of the instruments are specially perforated for easy removal from the book and actual use.

In addition, you'll find precise advice on a wide range of family financial planning decisions which you are called upon to make on matters of life insurance, taxes, investments and the like . . . the very things you and I would talk about if we sat down in your own home to discuss your financial estate problems.

LOADED WITH TAX-SAVING IDEAS, TOO

I'll show you a special way to give support to an elderly relative or to a growing child. I'll show you how you and the beneficiary can gain valuable tax benefits. I'll show you how to make gifts to charity to take effect at your death—but give you important tax benefits this year. I'll even tell you exactly what you do if you change your mind about any of the trust arrangements or want to change a beneficiary . . . and provide necessary forms.

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN?

It means that you're going to learn how to make the money you earn safer and more productive, you're going to pass it on to your family at your death with a minimum of wear and tear from taxes – and you're going to avoid completely the up-to-10% or 20% cost, the one-to-five year delay and the unwelcome publicity which will attract the attention of unscrupulous persons to your heirs. And you're going to keep the sticky fingers of any probate racketeers out of your family's affairs.

To my knowledge, there's never been a book like this before. It is truly a "do-it-yourself kit" which will enable any literate American to administer his own estate. If you came by your money easily and you don't much care who gets it when you're gone, the book isn't for you. But if you're a hard-working American and you want to decide for yourself, with a conscientious lawyer if you like, who is to get your estate when you're gone, and if you have no intention of bequeathing a chunk of it to the local probate court, this book was written for you.

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

Your own lawyer may not like this man because of his courageous fight against the probate system. (On the other hand, he might be one of those enlightened lawyers who will positively agree with Mr. Dacey's fight.) But in a hundred books and articles, in more than than 500 broadcasts, Norman F. Dacey has brought his case for the streamlined passing of personal property to the American people. The American people have responded. Norman F. Dacey is bombshell news today. He is America's best known professional estate planner. Senate committees, the Justice Department, the Defense Department, the largest consumer organization in America have all sought his professional assistance. At the invitation of the U.S. Air Force, he has delivered a series of lectures on estate planning at the Air Force Academy. Now you can obtain his guidance in planning your estate. We are proud to have published this historic book.

The author has also insisted that you be permitted to examine the book at no risk to your self. Accordingly, you may examine it in your own home for ten days and return it if it is not all that we claim it to be.

1968 CAMPAIGN SPECIAL:

How I Roast the Politicians

By JOEY ADAMS

Author of "Cindy and I," "L.B.J.'s Texas Laffs," and "The Joey Adams Encyclopedia of Humor"

"NELSON ROCKEFELLER said he wouldn't be drafted," I said about the New York governor, who was sitting next to me on the dais. "He meant into the Army."

The occasion was the recent Governor's dinner for scholastic achievement. It was the day Nelson Rockefeller announced his candidacy. The Governor loves to be ribbed and often asks to be publicly roasted.

"I know why he decided to go for the Presidency," I continued. "His brother Winthrop wants to be Attorney General. I can't understand why he wants the job, though: it means he'll have to move into a smaller house."

In this era of masochistic comedy, our most famous politicians have accepted testimonials, only to be ribbed and roasted by comedians like me. And they are sworn to take it. It's laugh and the world laughs with you; cry and you're a poor politician.

Mayor John Lindsay of New York is the easiest target of all because he likes to be a comedian himself. At a recent dinner I said, "You were very funny, John. Not tonight—at City Hall.

"Lindsay," I said with my arm around the Mayor, "is still a noncandidate for national office. Why? He'd rather play the Latin Quarter than Washington."

A sense of humor is what makes you laugh at something which would make you mad if it happened to you. But given the choice, politicians would rather be insulted than ignored. And anyway, there is nothing they can do about it.

"Robert F. Kennedy does not want to be President," I said to the 1,000 men who had come to honor the Senator at a dinner. "He wants to be king." Of course, Bobby's laugh was the loudest and the longest.

Kennedy's pals told me that I could go the limit. R.F.K. insisted that he be treated like any other fall guy. So I did.

"Bobby wants to be President—and he does have lots of experience. His first job out of school was counselor at camp, his second job was Attorney General. Bobby now has a vigorous image for the youth of America. He should have: he's produced a good many of them.

"Richard Nixon," I suggested to a mixed group of Republicans and Democrats, "couldn't win if he ran unopposed."

"Nixon," I said lovingly, "is a nice man. My Uncle Morris is also a nice man. My uncle shouldn't be President and neither should Nixon."

Joey chats with a favorite target—L.B.J.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy is a new target for the sharpshooters. "He is familiar with all the questions of the day," I said recently. "He just doesn't know the answers."

"I like the straightforward way he dodges all the issues. One thing about this Presidential hopeful, when he makes up his mind, he's full of indecision."

Of course, I always smile lovingly at a candidate when I insult him. But I always finish with a compliment: "I predict that Senator McCarthy will be our next President—but I also predicted that Zsa Zsa Gabor would join the Peace Corps.

"When you talk about Gov. Ronald Reagan running for President," I said at a dinner the other day, "you should mention experience, knowledge, and ability—because those are three things he hasn't got.

"I hope he wins," I said affectionately, "and stays in politics. Then I won't have to watch him in movies any more."

If you get a reputation as a "big needle," sometimes politicians' campaign managers suggest punchlines. Even the candidates themselves have suggested some.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey is a marathon talker. One of his aides suggested a line which I used when I followed one of his one-man debates: "I finally found out why talk is cheap—there's more supply than demand. I think H.H.H. is the greatest. And that's his opinion, too."

L.B.J., of course, is everyone's favorite target. "It's no surprise," I said, "that his popularity's increased—even your mother-in-law is popular when she says she's leaving."

In the coming months these candidates are sure to say or do things that will provide roastmasters like myself with additional ammunition. And there's one thing we can depend upon. Republicans or Democrats, they will be the ones who will laugh first and loudest because they all follow the political axiom that goes: "He who laughs last is a loser." ◆

HOPE WE'RE NOT BORING YOU WITH ALL THIS TALK ABOUT FLYING, BARON.

TERRY DECIDES THE ONLY WAY OF EXPOSING THE LINK BETWEEN PALTRIE AND NIKKI IS TO GOAD THE LATTER INTO A MISTAKE.

WHILE IN DOLORES DEEPSIX'S ROOM...

THE AMERICAN WOMAN BROUGHT THREE BAGS, CARL. IS THIS THE ONE THE HERR BARON WISHED US TO USE?

IT IS. GIVE IT TO ME.

JUST SO! ALONG THIS SEAM, IT WILL CONCEAL THE CUT NICELY.

THERE! NOT EVEN A BUMP! NOW! SEW UP THE OPENING WITH YOUR SMALLEST STITCHES.

THE HERR BARON DID NOT CHOOSE A VERY ORIGINAL METHOD, CARL.

THEN...

DINNER IS SERVED, HERR BARON.

GO AHEAD, YOU TWO. I WILL JOIN YOU IN A MOMENT.

THE MATTER IS ATTENDED TO?

EXACTLY AS YOU ORDERED, HERR BARON.

GOOD! IT IS BETTER TO HAVE IT OUT OF THE WAY... THIS OLD FRIEND OF FRAU DEEPSIX DROPPING, LITERALLY, FROM THE SKY, WORRIES ME. SHE LIKES HIM TOO MUCH!

HAPPY FATHER'S DAY from your rare gem.

HI, ROY... I SUPPOSE YOU'RE WONDERING WHAT I'M DOING...

I'VE JUST MADE MY DAD A HAND-MADE FATHER'S DAY CARD..

EVERY NOW AND THEN MY DAD SAYS TO ME, "PEPPERMINT PATTY, DO YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE?" AND I ALWAYS SAY, "NO"... THEN HE SAYS TO ME, "YOU ARE A RARE GEM!" AND WE BOTH LAUGH...

SO YOU SEE, I'VE MADE A CARD FOR HIM... "HAPPY FATHER'S DAY FROM YOUR RARE GEM"

THAT'S VERY NICE..

Prince Valiant

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story NOW TELLS OF PRINCE ARN'S ADVENTURES AS A SPY. FOR RUMOR HAS IT THAT ORTHO BEY IS BUILDING A FLEET OF SHIPS AND HIS GREEDY EYES ARE LOOKING TOWARD THE MISTY ISLES.

ON THE PRETEXT OF FORMING A TRADE AGREEMENT WITH THE BEY, QUEEN ALETA SENDS HER TRUSTED SPIES TO FIND OUT IF HER KINGDOM IS THREATENED.

THEY SAIL UP THE COAST OF LYCIA AND COME TO KAHMAR, THE WALLED CITY OF THE BEY. THE SHOALS AND ROCKS THAT GUARD THE HARBOR ENTRANCE ARE A BETTER DEFENSE THAN THE HIGH BATTLEMENTS.

IN THE HARBOR ARE MANY SHIPS, NOT CUMBERSOME MERCHANT VESSELS BUT TRIM AND SWIFT-LOOKING CRAFT THAT MIGHT WELL SUIT A CORSAIR.

AND THE SAILORS IN THE PORT GO FULLY ARMED AND CARRY THEIR WEAPONS WITH THE EASE OF LONG FAMILIARITY, AND THEIR FIERCE LOOKS PROCLAIM THEM PIRATES. SO, KAHMAR IS THE PORT FROM WHICH THE CORSAIRS PREY ON SHIPPING!

ORTHO BEY RECEIVES THE TRADE COMMISSION AND, WITH COLD, SUSPICIOUS EYES, EXAMINES THE PRESENTS THE QUEEN HAS SENT. "WHY, ON SUCH A PEACEFUL MISSION, DID YOU COME IN A GREAT SHIP OF WAR?" DEMANDS THE BEY. "FOR THE PROTECTION OF PRINCE ARN. FOR, AS A GUARANTEE OF HER GOOD INTENTIONS, SHE HAS SENT HER ELDEST SON." THEY ANSWER.

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1968. World rights reserved.

HAL FOSTER

AFTER TH' WAY GRAMMA LOU RAN KNUKS AND HIS GANG OFF "THE EMPIRE"! MAYBE NOW TH' WHOLE THING'LL DRY UP AND BLOW AWAY!

YI!

TRICKY, AIN'TCHA! BUT IT WON'T DO YUH NO GOOD!

COME ON, SANDY! THAT FAT SLOB CAN'T CATCH US!

WHY, Y'LITTLE !! I'LL SHOW YUH .....!

YOU MUST BE AB KNUKS! SO YOUR DAD'S STARTED Y'LEARNIN' TH' BUTCHER BUSINESS ALREADY, EH?

SO WHAT IF HE HAS?

SOME TIME LATER.....

SH-H! DON'T HEAR A THING, NOW; DO YOU, SANDY? HE MUST'A' GIVEN UP! WE'LL USE TH' BRIDGE GOIN' BACK, IN CASE HE'S LAYIN' FOR US BACK AT THAT LOG!

NINETY-SEVEN I BE, BUT I AIN'T NEVER SEEN NOTHIN' TO COMPARE! ATE BY A 'GATOR!

"ATE BY A 'GATOR"? SURE, GRAMP! I BET THAT WAS SOMETHIN'!
