Senate OKs Tax Boost; Measure Goes To Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed and sent to President Johnson today the long-debated bill adding a 10 percent surcharge to individual and corporation income taxes and ordering a $6 billion federal spending cut.

The roll call vote was 64 to 16. The Senate vote completed congressional action on the first federal income tax increase since 1951, at the time of the Korean war.

Johnson is expected to sign the bill into law promptly although he has said repeatedly he does not favor the spending restrictions in the legislation. The Senate was told in the final debate on the compromise measure that it was stern fiscal medicine necessary to prevent inflation leading to financial chaos.

Opponents contended that it would mean drastic reductions in spending on social programs and that the result would be cut-back in already inadequate efforts to help the nation's poor.

The House passed the measure Thursday night 268-150.

Its key provisions originally were adopted in the Senate 53-35 April 2 as an amendment to a House bill.

Johnson has said spending restrictions may force cutbacks in federal programs he considers already at rock-bottom levels.

The surcharge is retroactive for individuals to April 1 and for corporations to Jan. 1. It is scheduled to expire June 30 next year unless the new administration and Congress decide to extend it.

The increase, to go into effect 15 days after presidential approval, will apply to all individuals except those at the bottom of the scale—single persons with $1,000 or less of taxable income and couples with $2,000 or less.

The surcharge, along with other tax provisions in the bill, will bring in an estimated $15.5 billion in extra revenue to help improve the government's dismal fiscal picture in the next year.

N. C. Representative Walter Jones said "I searched in vain for assurance that the President would not come back to the 90th Congress and ask for massive appropriations for a new and untried social program, including a personal conference with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Foyler.

"I did not receive this assurance, and therefore voted no. "Even with the required cut of $6 billion in federal spending, there is no guarantee that through bookkeeping methods the reduction in expenditures will actually be put into effect," said Jones.

The measure also includes a variety of other provisions retained by Senate-House conferees out of a wide-ranging series of riders tacked onto the legislation in the Senate.

Architects Estimate Complex To Cost $978,800

Bids To Be Received July 25 For New Municipal Building

NEW MUNICIPAL BUILDING . . . planned for Shore Drive area as depicted by its architects.

Bids are scheduled to be received July 25 for construction of a new municipal building to house various city government and utilities commission offices.

The bids are being asked for, according to Mayor S. Eugene West, "in order to get a better idea of the cost of the building . . . and to determine if it can be built with available finances."

The plans for the three-level building were approved at a joint meeting of the City Council and Utilities Commission Wednesday night.

Architects for the project, Smart-Woodall and Associates estimated the cost of the three-level office complex at $978,800. That price, they reported, includes built-in equipment, electric heat, air conditioning, an elevator, limited site work and paving.

The proposed building would be located at the north end of Evans Street, in the Shore Drive Redevelopment Project area. The first and second levels of the building would be visible from Evans Street while the ground level would be seen only from the rear.

The 254 feet by 96 feet structure contains, according to its designers, a total of 62,000 square feet. Initially, however, only the first and second levels, totaling 44,000 square feet, would be finished.

The ground level would remain open, possibly for use as parking space, and be available for later expansion of the building.

As projected, according to Mayor West, the building would serve the needs of the city and utilities commission for 25 years before reaching the point of crowding. The proposed structure would front on First Street and bet set back 60 feet north of that thoroughfare.

The exterior of the building as planned will be brick masonry with pre-cast concrete facia. A central lobby would service all three levels.

The top floor would house City Council chambers, with provisions for 96 spectators, in addition to the council and other city officials, the city engineer's office, a social service area, central conference room, a future planning department, the utilities engineering office, an assembly room with a seating capacity of 216, and other support office areas (general office space).

Offices on the first level would include in addition to the mayor and city managers facilities, the city clerk and revenue collection offices, the building inspector and Redevelopment Commission and Housing Authority space.

Utilities offices located on that level would include the director's office, general accounting and billing department, the utilities cashier area, and a drive-in collection window.

An access road between First Street and the building will service the drive-in window and provide access to the parking lots at either end of the building which provide parking space for a total of 92 cars. An access road at the rear will accommodate 12 parked cars, while an additional 36 vehicles may be parked on the ground level of the building.

A 4.4 acre site has been designated to accommodate the building and be landscaped. That area includes paved parking areas.

According to the mayor, plans call for the building to be financed with funds available locally and with federal matching monies.

He said financing would include about $450,000 in Utilities Commission's funds earmarked for construction of an administration building; and hopefully a quarter-million dollars or more from the sale of the present city hall to the Redevelopment Commission as part of the Central Business District redevelopment project. Federal matching funds would fund the remainder of the cost of the facility.

Although replacement value for the present city hall has been set at $525,000, city officials expressed the fact that the building, constructed in 1939 with Works Progress Administration labor is "ill designed for our present operations."

The mayor said the present municipal building is "inadequate" for operations of both the city and utilities "and has been for more than five years."

The exterior parking and traffic conditions, he explained, "are congested far beyond any degree of efficiency."

The mayor continued, "I feel that it would definitely be a mistake to separate the utility and city offices as to location . . . it is necessary that they have close coordination in order to operate at top efficiency."

The official added that the location of the present city hall will fit into the Central Business District complex "as a retail outlet," and add to the future downtown business.

Present plans call for maintaining the central fire department headquarters station in its present location.

The planning for the new municipality facility, Mayor West said, "is predicted on not having a bond election, and it is hoped that monies can be derived from utilities funds, the sale of the present city hall building, and matching funds that we expect to receive from federal agencies."

Justice Warren Said Resigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren is leaving the Supreme Court which he has headed during 15 years of controversy over the court's liberal decisions such as those on race discrimination and police powers, authoritative sources reported today.

White House officials declined to comment on today's report however, and all efforts to reach Warren were unsuccessful.

Warren said on his 75th birthday two years ago he thought there should be compulsory retirement for all public officials but did not specify at what age.

"I believe that the strength of our system in this country depends on the infusion of new blood into all our institutions," he explained then.

There is now no compulsory retirement for federal judges although they may step down at 70 after 10 years on the bench and receive a lifetime pension equal to their full salary. Warren's salary is $40,000 a year.

Usual procedure for a Supreme Court justice wishing to leave his post is to notify the president of his desires. It normally would be up to the president then to announce the retirement.

It was learned Warren sent President Johnson an undated letter June 13 saying he wanted to leave the court to which he was named in 1953 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Sources said his reasons include his belief a man's powers begin to decline after he reaches 75.

The big Californian was named to the top post on the Supreme Court in 1953 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. At 77, he is known to have long felt it was time to step aside.

President Johnson, who expects to leave office himself when his term ends in January, will be able to name Warren's successor before he leaves. The appointment is of critical significance on a court where appointees commonly serve for decades and the relative strength of the liberal and conservative factions can be reversed by the departure of a single justice—depending on the politics of the president who chooses the man to fill the vacancy.

The Warren years on the court have been marked by unrelenting controversy: From the historic 1954 decision on school segregation up to the equally sweeping housing discrimination handed down just this past Monday, the court's actions have been headline-makers.

Non-Violence Again Urged By Abernathy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor People's Campaign leaders, pleading for nonviolence, managed early this morning to cool off demonstrators angered by the campaign's first serious clashes with police.

Wielding clubs and firing tear gas, police Thursday night arrested 77 demonstrators during tense and angry confrontations.

Several top South Christian Leadership Conference officials, including its president, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, pleaded at a Resurrection City rally that lasted past midnight for adherence to their nonviolent philosophy.

But none had been on hand during the two most serious incidents, a shouting, shoving contest between police and demonstrators near the Department of Agriculture, and the tear gassing of a crowd after some youngsters threw bottles and sticks at police.

"I am pleading with you to say violence is not the way," Abernathy, president of SCLC, told an after-midnight mass meeting in a Resurrection City almost under siege by helmeted, rifle-carrying police.

Just Gives Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violence and crime are hurting the Poor People's Campaign, says a Washington helper, and "if the leaders don't do something soon, this is going to be known as blood city instead of Resurrection City."

Alvin Jackson, 35, quit as chief security marshal for the encampment, complaining that there is no discipline. He said he has tried without success to meet with the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, the campaign leader, and other officials to plead for a change.

"The reason the population of this city is going down is not mud, poor food, rain or lousy homes," he said. "The reason they leave is that men are getting tired of coming home from a day's picketing to find their belongings stolen or their wife raped."

Grant Wright, acting chief of Park Police, estimates that about 100 assaults and other violent incidents have occurred inside Resurrection City since it was built in mid-May.

At least 20 visitors have been robbed, beaten or stabbed by residents outside the snow fence surrounding the encampment, he said.

But he said the marshals and residents of the camp city generally refuse to cooperate with police officials when incidents occur within the camp. They are dismissed as "internal matters," he said, which police are told do not require their intervention.

A 35-year-old Washington television repairman, Jackson volunteered a two weeks vacation, a week's leave of absence and all his evenings to help out. Park police vouched for him as one of the few tent city workers with whom they had proper liaison.

Jackson was disillusioned as he talked with newsmen yesterday.

"I am ashamed to say this," he said, "but the only thing that keeps this camp going is donations of goods and work from white people."

"If it were left to us it just wouldn't last. I just can't understand my black brothers. Many of them are able to cause trouble at night because they sleep around all day while the white residents work."

paigns, we have seen the great need for a center."

"Many of you know how in recent years, we have exceeded our blood quotas. This is an example of how the people of our community will support any worthwhile project. The Red Cross will wholeheartedly support this center and we request that it be built in Greenville or near Greenville to benefit most those who need it."

In the hearing complaints were heard for a more specialized rehabilitation program and a more efficient financial system. The problem of the lack of communication to those who do not use the usual means of communication was discussed.

The "communication gap" was attributed to inefficient information brochures and other failures in public relations means. Also, agencies who "passed the buck" were listed as responsible for the problem.

The State Planning Committee, Dr. Julius Grimes, Joe Morrow, and Don Dunston have in recent weeks traveled over the state holding hearings and study sessions. The state committee will report its conclusions from the study to the Governor State Study Committee, which has been appointed by the governor. The Governor's Committee will, in turn, report recommendations to the state legislature for expanded facilities and locations of these facilities throughout the state.

Varied Aspects Of Rehabilitation Reviewed At Workshop

By DONNA DIXON, Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 75 people attended the Vocational Rehabilitation Workshop hearing at the Pitt County Courthouse here yesterday. The hearing was held before the State Rehabilitation Planning Committee.

William T. Gartman, chairman of the local planning committee termed the morning session of the hearing as "geared to what we now have in this area and what needs to be done to strengthen our vocational rehabilitation, finally directing this to a vocational rehabilitation center."

"We need to move from traditional vocational rehabilitation. Now we are more concerned with not only the physical aspects of vocational rehabilitation but also the social and cultural aspects. A comprehensive center would fill the gaps in our present program."

With representatives from many surrounding counties, local agencies, industries, school systems, and the city chamber of commerce, the hearing never lulled during its session.

Questions and comments from the audience to the panel of six, consisting of the local and state planning committee, revealed concern and approval over a comprehensive vocational rehabilitation center in Eastern North Carolina.

"I am thrilled with the effort involved that our people have exerted in getting people to participate in the hearing," Gartman said in discussing the public reaction to the hearing.

"The people here have shown interest, concern and an actual commitment to do more for the handicapped."

Many in the audience advocated a new comprehensive rehabilitation center to be built in this area. Among them was Joe Clark, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross.

In speaking for himself and the Red Cross, Clark said, "We will wholeheartedly support a rehabilitation center first in North Carolina and second in Eastern North Carolina. In our blood cam-

Jane's A Bush Flying Dove Over East Africa

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Blonde, fragile-looking Jane Hamilton is a university instructor, a PhD candidate, a speaker, a writer and a photographer. She is also a bush pilot who flies over uncharted terrain in East Africa.

The daring young lady in the flying single-engine mercy ship with its symbolic white dove is a volunteer in Wings for Progress, Inc., more familiarly known as the "flying peace corps." It provides an aerial lifeline for isolated communities and offers assistance and encouragement to African self-help enterprises.

On leave of absence from teaching world literature at the University of Dayton in Ohio, she has just returned from three months of airlifting medicine, food, supplies, doctors, nurses, the injured and the sick in remote areas inaccessible by land.

Base for plane maintenance is Nairobi, Kenya, but home for the night is wherever Miss Hamilton finds herself at sunset—usually a thatched hut in one of the development projects, set up and run by Europeans, scattered over Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda, Malawi, Zambia and Ethiopia.

"Flying in Africa is really an experience," she reports. "there are no navigational aids and you learn to tell by the shape of the hills where you are. The runways are all homemade and before landing I make a low pass to scare off camels, goats, zebras, cows and excited children."

The nonprofit charitable organization has four full-time and three relief pilots and Miss Hamilton, who is paid only a subsistence allowance, serves because she feels that each person must give of himself.

"To be involved in an idea that solves a big problem—how do you develop these countries if you can't get to them—is gratifying," she says.

Now flying with a dedicated purpose, the attractive 30-year-old pilot learned to fly just 18 months ago for an entirely different purpose. Studying in Southeast Asia for her doctorate, she had no way to travel except by air. In Vietnam she hitched rides wherever she could and found the pilots were being shot at from the ground so that their aircraft could be forced down and seized.

"How silly to be flying in these things and not know how to land if the pilot has a bullet in his head," she thought. Since she intended to return to that part of the world, she began taking flying lessons when she got back to Dayton. There she met Mike Stimac, Wings founder and president, and got so interested in his project that she started doing promotion work for it.

In return Stimac taught her to fly bush-style, which involves learning to land in a short distance, using full flaps, landing with full power on and other refinements.

Because "It's pretty hard to write stories about the African bush from Dayton, Ohio," she signed a three-year contract and was off on her adventurous mission.

She ran into adventure sooner than she expected when the engine of the plane she was flying failed during a thunderstorm in the mountains near Mzuzu, Malawi.

Luckily, she was with Stimac and he took over the controls while she got on the radio and gave the May Day distress call and their location.

"Mike got us down on a mud strip 700 miles from the nearest mechanic," she relates. "Then he said, 'Get out the tools, Jane, we're going to fix this plane.' And 3½ hours and one short course in mechanics later we took off again and made it back to Nairobi."

In this country for three months to raise funds, Miss Hamilton will travel, speak and appear on television, as well as seek contributions from companies and individuals.

Will Success Spoil Writer Audrey Lee?

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS

NEW YORK (AP) — It's reasonable to expect that after your first novel is published, you'd be concerned with sales, royalties, money. Audrey Lee's first novel, "The Clarion People," has just been published and she's worried about sales, and royalties too . . . but not in the way you'd expect.

"I'm worried that if I made a great deal of money, would it change me. And what would I do with a lot of money anyway, burn it, give it away?" asks Audrey Lee.

Instant success also worries her. In fact she worries about achieving anything in a hurry. "Why should people want to go in leaps and bounds to get somewhere and not have anywhere to go after that? Struggling is so beautiful, as long as you have hope, and it makes character," she says.

Miss Lee—she's never been married—has been struggling for all of her 30-plus years. Born and raised in Philadelphia, one of several brothers and sisters, she describes her background as "quite sheltered with a good religious foundation . . . but not fanatically so." Her mother worked as a maid to support the family.

After graduating West Philadelphia High School Audrey went to work as a nurse's aide and was disturbed at the suffering she saw. Several other hospital jobs later she became a secretary to a publisher. At night she wrote poetry and mailed it in to her company so they wouldn't give her any special consideration. Ultimately the company found her out and five of her poems were published in the Saturday Evening Post.

Almost immediately thereafter, she says "I registered at Temple University evenings to see how I had done it."

For the past few years she has worked as a Kelly Girl doing temporary office work to support her writing endeavors. Miss Lee just finished her second novel, tentatively titled "The Workers."

The woman who sees meaning in everything is deeply concerned that "So many people seem to see no meaning in their own lives, no reason. They just work, make money, pay bills and don't feel. I'm not like that at all—I must have fulfillment."

"It must be terrible to be growing up today," she continues. "All the violence and everything being uprooted."

To send out a note of hope to people universally, she wrote "The Clarion People."

"By writing a novel about a woman who loses her faith in God and in creating evil supporting characters, I took the risk of losing my own belief in God and in my fellow man," she says.

What bothers her about the book's acceptance is that "after laboring to send forth a book that might generate a newly relevant faith and hope in all people, it seems that the knowledge of my being a Negro clouded some minds to the obvious intention, to the religious theme. All some readers got out of the book was that it was about so-called ghetto life, about black and white and the struggles of a Negro girl. I labored to write about humanity . . . not black and white but all humanity. The book, in fact, does cut across any ethnic or racial lines; at times I had difficulty seeing the characters as Negroes."

Miss Lee says she has trouble thinking about races, "I know I'm a Negro yet I'm objective about all people. I judge each person as an individual and I expect others to do so too."

Some good cooks like to dredge a leg of lamb with seasoned flour before roasting. This is an old-time method, but it's still good!

Sleeve Lengths, Skirt Widths Part Of Fashion

COUNTERREVOLUTION IN FASHION — The Counterrevolution in fashion has picked up steam, according to Eloise Curtis, who presented these two creations, designed for David Styne, to reporters on the second day of the New York couture group's five-day showing in New York yesterday. At left, model wears "Romantic Juliet"—black velvet and white organdy with gape-let sleeves. At right, model wears a green velvet jeweled dress with pants, inspired by Natasha in Tolstoy's novel, War and Peace. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion has always separated the rich from the masses. But never more so than now.

Indeed by fall it will be possible to tell wealthy women, not only by their furs and gems but also by the width of their skirts and the length of their sleeves. The less expensive clothes will be barer, tighter, and shorter.

This lesson in economics was taught Thursday as the New York Couture Group held its second day of fall collection previews.

Two years ago hardly more than 1 in every 1,000 women could afford to pay the prices of the high fashion houses—that is, more than $100 for a dress.

Today here may be even fewer. Union wage contract increases will result in another 7 to 10 per cent hike in prices, said Vincent Monte-Sano, president of the Monte-Sano, Pruzan Coat and Suit House.

And as modesty increases, costs go up for the couture customer. Obviously it takes more fabric to cover a female from her throat to her wrists and at least to her knees than it does a miss in a minidress with a barely-there top. Those billow bias, or pleated skirts, glamorous and graceful as they are, gobble up yardage, too. And more fabric means fancier prices.

When the low line dress manufacturers knock off the trends for the other 999 per 1,000 women, they must use cheaper fabrics. But they must also keep to a minimum the amounts they use.

Serve wedges of warm apple pie with grilled cheese topping. Place a wedge-shaped slice of American or cheddar cheese atop each pie wedge and broil until cheese just begins to melt.

Family 'Tangled Up' Because Son Likes To Wear Hair Long

By ABIGAIL VAN VUREN

DEAR ABBY: As I write this I am practically blinded by tears. My husband told our 17-year-old son that if he didn't come home with a haircut tonight, he didn't have to come home at all. It is midnight, and Jon is not home yet.

Why should something like the length of a boy's hair make such a big difference to a father? Jon is not a "bad" boy. All the boys he goes with have long hair.

Jon and his father have fought about this for over a year and now it has come to a showdown, because he finally pushed the boy too far and gave him an ultimatum.

If something happens to Jon I will never forgive my husband for his stubbornness.

I don't like long hair on boys, either, but at least I didn't drive my own son out of the house because of it.

Please, please put something in your column about fathers who always have to have the last word. I have given up.

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER: There is much more involved here than hair. In a good father-son relationship, the father never gives his 17-year-old son an "ultimatum" merely because he "outranks" him. Patience and understanding should be forthcoming from the older and wiser man.

Altho I also prefer short hair on men, I realize that long hair is "in," and kids have as much right to their fads as adults.

Tell Father to emphasize the more permanent and lasting aspects of his son's character, and forget the hair for now. It will grow shorter (or disappear entirely) soon enough.

DEAR ABBY: I cannot for the life of me understand what is the matter with our 24-year-old daughter. She started going with a 44-year-old man, and now she says she is going to marry him! Abby, this man is nearly old enough to be her father!

He isn't rich and he isn't especially good looking, but she says she "loves" him. We are sick about it.

Our daughter has worked and supported herself since she was 18, and she dated nice young fellows her own age, but when she met this man she lost all her good sense.

How can we get some sense thru her head before it's too late?

HER MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: Don't expect to get anything "thru her head." A girl "in love" has a filter-tipped brain. If marrying this man is a mistake, she may have to learn the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: Re: the married man who had a heart attack in the apartment of another woman at 2 a.m., listen to this:

Several years ago, a friend of ours (I'll call him Larry) was involved in an automobile accident with a lady companion in the wee hours of the morning. (He was supposed to have been "out with the boys.")

The lady, who was an attractive widow and a friend of his wife, was only slightly shaken up, but Larry had to be hospitalized for several weeks. During that time Larry's wife found out that there had been some hanky-panky between this widow and Larry, altho they insisted they were only "good friends."

The day Larry was to be brought home from the hospital, his wife arranged that he be taken to the widow's home! It was midafternoon and the widow was entertaining her garden club.

Can you imagine the scene when the ambulance pulled up in front of the widow's house, and Larry was carried in on a stretcher over his vigorous protests?

The widow, of course, told them they had made a mistake, whereupon they put Larry back into the ambulance and delivered him to his own home.

The club members went home holding their sides, the widow was mortified, Larry's wife took him back, and at this writing they are living happily ever after.

SUE CONFIDENTIAL TO MILT: Why not give it a go? One thing about a beard... it sort of grows on you!

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HATE TO WRITE LETTERS? SEND $1 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90069. FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Gun Control Is Not Whole Answer

Even now that a gun control measure has been signed into law, the new regulations will not in themselves mean the end to deadly weapons in the hands of criminals or other irresponsible individuals. Hopefully, the new measure will enable law enforcement officers to better keep up with the sale of firearms and their ownership. Hopefully, too, the new law will make it a little more difficult for persons to purchase hand guns through questionable channels. In that it accomplishes these things, the gun control provisions of the new crime legislation offers new assistance to maintaining law and order.

It must be recognized, however, that no action by Congress can guarantee that there will not be another incident like the rifle slayings of President John Kennedy or Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. No gun control law enacted by Congress can guarantee that there will not be another incident like the recent assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Gun control and crime control laws that are passed by Congress are nothing more than tools which may enable law enforcement officers to better do their job. Should Congress pass the measure now before it which would prohibit the mail-order sales of long guns as well as hand guns, this would provide another important assistance to law enforcement agencies in their jobs of crime prevention and crime protection. But even this will not assure the public that guns will not be easily available from some sources to those who would use them wrongly.

Quality Grading Is No Accident

(Editor's Note: William A. Shires is on vacation. Today's guest column is by James A. Graham, Commissioner of Agriculture for North Carolina.)

By JAMES A. GRAHAM
RALEIGH — First, let's distinguish the difference between grading and inspection. Grading activities are often confused with inspection.

Inspection is essentially the checking of food products in all forms, fresh and processed for wholesomeness and purity. Grading, although a first cousin to inspection, is the actual physical sorting or classifying of products according to established standards of quality.

Grades and standards were established as a result of the needs for a common language in trading and pricing of farm products by measuring quality. More recently, however, consumers have become more conscious of quality and want their food to be of reliable quality as well as wholesome.

Both services are not merely incidental, a kind of optional element, in marketing. On the contrary, they are a key factor in a decentralized, competitive, nation-wide marketing and distribution system from the farm gate to the consumer's kitchen.

Certainly, inspection of food such as meat and poultry for sanitation and wholesomeness is directly in the service of consumers. Likewise, the grade stamped on meats and packages of fruits and vegetables, fresh and processed, is a direct help to the housewife doing her shopping, particularly if she knows how to recognize it. The grades are simple guides to quality.

One further essential difference between inspection and grading is that inspection is mandatory, while grading is generally permissive in nature. Grading and official certification is required only for most state and federal purchases and Marketing Agreements and Orders.

My remaining comments will be limited to the grading services rendered by the Markets Division of the N. C. Department of Agriculture. As stated, the use of grades and standards are generally permissive in nature. Any producer, packer or shipper may label his product any grade he desires. However, state and federal laws require that the product must meet the requirements of the grade designated.

Our poultry and poultry products grading has expanded tremendously during recent years. Why - because of consumer demand for uniform quality products and the desire of producers and processors to expand their market outlets. The results of this service are outstanding. North Carolina poultry and egg products are now recognized as top quality products in all markets, whereas a few years ago they were not looked upon with favor. Yes, Mrs. Housewife, you are able to buy North Carolina poultry and eggs at your local store with confidence and at reasonable prices. They are not only wholesome but of uniform and consistent quality. The grading service has played a major role in such progress.

Our meat grading program is just as meaningful. Only a relatively short time ago, we assumed that only meats imported from midwestern states were fit for our table. Now we are beginning to recognize the fact that North Carolina beef and pork are just as tender and tasty as any imported from other states. You can buy our graded meats with confidence.

The Division's grain grading services are of direct importance to producers and handlers. Grading is conducted on the basis of official grain standards. The section samples soybeans meal and analyze it for protein content. We also sample flour, corn meal and many other products for official analysis. These are indirect or latent benefits to consumers in their purchases.

Then we conduct a broad grading program for fruits, vegetables, peanuts, Christmas trees and berries. This is one of the oldest services rendered by the Division of Markets. During the twenties, the Division's principal activities were grading fruits and vegetables.

The North Carolina Department of Agriculture was one of the first to establish a grading program which was designed to promote and protect the reputation of our products through quality determination at point of origin. With the many changes and developments in buying and selling methods, especially consumer packages, fast transportation from farm to market, refrigeration and more careful grading the consumer can today buy just about whatever quality desired. Grading services are designed to benefit all parties from producer to consumer.

Who Has The Time For Such A Campout?

There must be an answer, but so far we have been unable to fathom it.

How can a thousand or two thousand people find the time to camp out near the Lincoln Memorial for a number of weeks (and perhaps months, if the spirit moves them)?

By any logic they have left behind untended crops, untended flocks, untended jobs, untended dwellings. By what miracle do they expect to return to their homes to pick up their lives?

Who, except the moderately wealthy, can afford such an extended camp-out vacation? The affair is beginning to reek of personal irresponsibility . . . the kind of irresponsibility that would make poor people of rich people.

To be sure, the Poor People's Campaign has solicited much money; how much, the leadership will not say, but they are getting millions of dollars, generous handouts in terms of food, clothing and other necessities, with no known accounting . . . in exchange for a few marches, a few demonstrations, a few songs, and many speeches.

Meanwhile, their announced goals are no nearer realization today than they would have been had the big show never been staged.

It just doesn't add up.

No Rockefeller Trend As Yet

By RELMAN MORIN
CLEVELAND (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is campaigning with increasing aggressiveness, working harder, talking himself hoarse.

The question remains: Is his campaign for the Republican nomination for president getting off the ground? Gaining momentum? It's a tough question.

He draws medium to large crowds. Audiences are friendly. He stirs applause and laughter.

After closed sessions with Republican state delegations, delegates frequently observe, "He made a very good impression."

GOP leaders, who do not necessarily support his candidacy, say nice things about him when they introduce him. On such an occasion, Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes said of Rockefeller, "a bold and imaginative governor. . . a proven leader. . . demonstrated courage for his convictions and beliefs."

Set Date For County Fair
The week of October 2nd is the date set for the Pitt County Fair this year, it was made known this morning by Secretary Haygood Daile.

Mrs. Flanagan Gives Bridge Luncheon
Wednesday morning at her home on Evans Street Mrs. E. G. Flanagan entertained at an attractive bridge luncheon, honoring Mrs. Sidney Caswell of New York.

Mrs. A. J. Moore, making high score, was awarded silk hose. Mrs. Larry James was given an attractive novelty for low score. Miss Abiah Person of Kinston was given a rhinestone bracelet. Mrs. Caswell, the honoree was remembered with silk hose. . . Mrs. Person Nicholson and Mrs. Graham Flanagan assisted in serving.

"What did you do yesterday, John?" an employee of a local store asked another today, referring to half Wednesday holiday enjoyed by a majority of the business houses of this city.

"Oh, I went out swimming and then to a ball game."

"Have a big time?"

"Bet your life."

"Did you see my boss out swimming?"

"Yep, he had his whole family there."

"He must like it."

"He did until a crab embraced his big toe. After that everything looked mighty stormy and unsettled in family circles."

"He will get over it," the other consoled.

"Maybe," reflected John doubtfully.

"Sure he will, next Wednesday he will forget there's such a thing as a crab in the world, and will hit the sound so hard that half of the water will be splashed out by the force of the impact."

Think about next Wednesday and the good time you will have. . .

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GOADED TO ACTION

Humanity learns slowly and generally the hard way. The point to the Garden of Eden story is that God gave humanity—and continues to give us—as individual human beings—the opportunity to learn by obedience. "No," said our first parents (and "No" say we); "we will learn by experience."

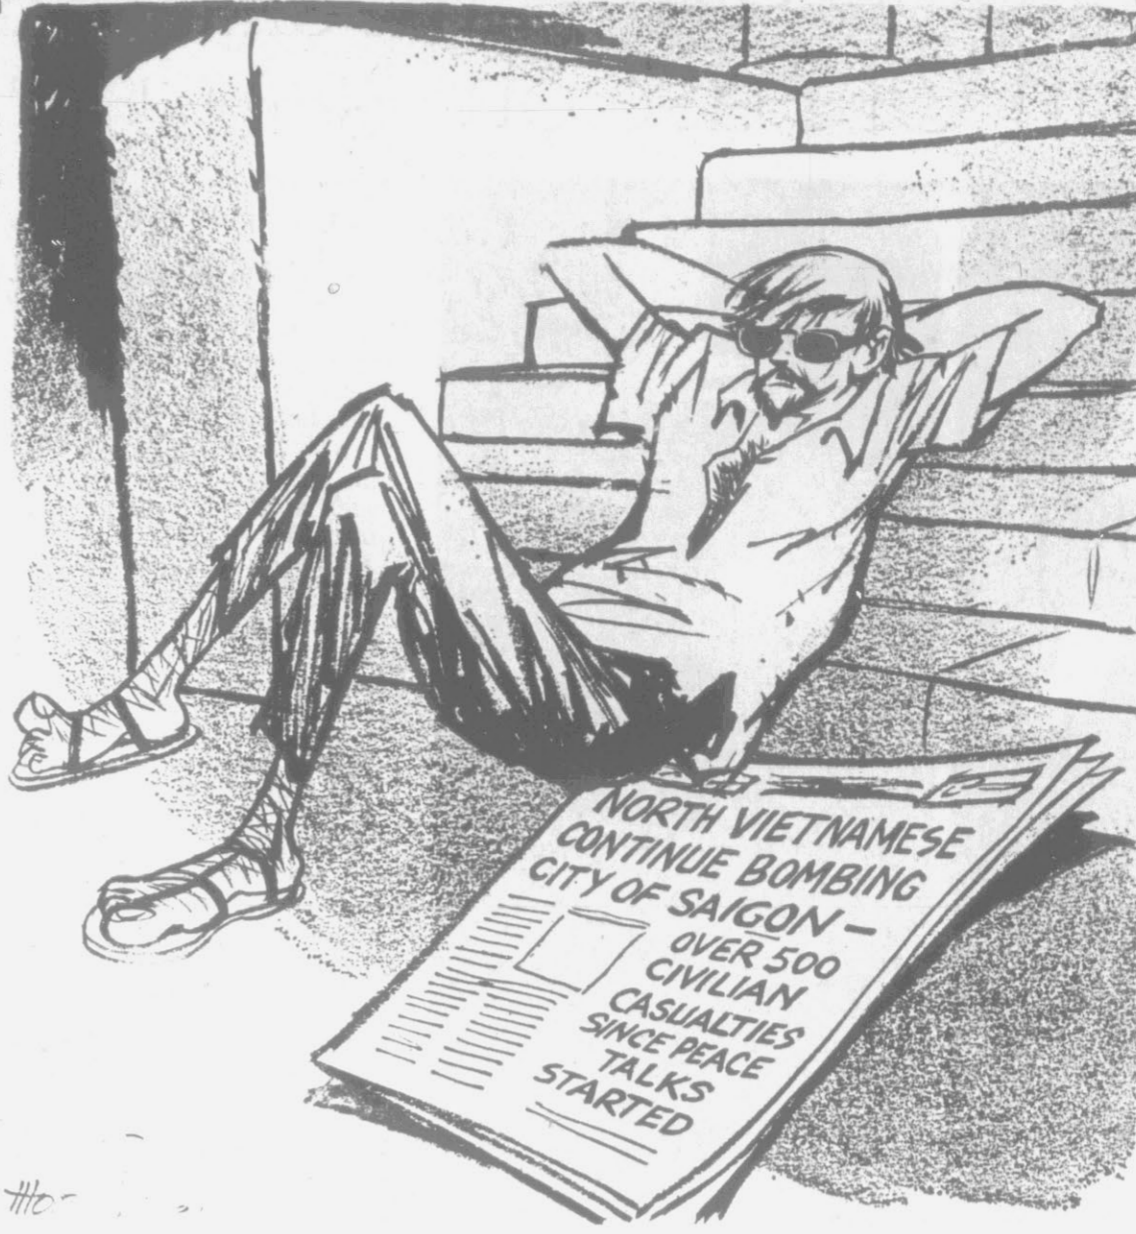

So many a hard experience we have to go through before we learn our lessons. Adam and Eve had to leave the Garden and go out among the brambles and thorns. Usually, God cannot get a man down on his knees until he confronts him with an appeal-ling crisis. In fact, the crisis method is the one God usually employs to reveal Himself to our dull and obtuse hearts. We just won't seek God and his help until we get into a tight place. So God allows us to get into tight places aplenty.

Is this indifference and cruelty on God's part? Quite the opposite. It is his mercy to those who are stupid and slow of heart to understand. If the only time we look up is when everything in life begins to look down, then God in his mercy sees to it that we have some crisis to goad us to spiritual response.

We wish it might be otherwise, but being such persons as we are, it cannot be.

NOW WHERE ARE ALL THOSE PICKET SIGNS?

ART BUCHWALD

Work Addicts Do Exist

WASHINGTON—Dr. Nelson Bradley, an Illinois psychiatrist, has just revealed that the United States is being swept by an epidemic of work addiction.

A work addict shows all the characteristics of an alcoholic or narcotic addict. He has a driven craving for work, develops an increasing tolerance for it and suffers withdrawal symptoms without it, Dr. Bradley said. Like other addictions, this often results in medical and social problems, including bad family relationships with depressed wives and children.

I showed the article to my wife to show her how farfetched psychological theories were getting these days.

"Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous?" I asked.

She didn't smile. "Will you take the children to the movies this afternoon, so I can get some housework done?"

"I can't. I have to write a piece for the Ladies Home Journal," I said instantly.

"All right. But don't forget we've got to go to the beach next weekend."

"How can I go to the beach when I haven't read Time and Newsweek?" I said panicking. "You can read them some other time. You've got to relax once in a while."

"Who says I don't relax? Look how relaxed I am right now?"

ART BUCHWALD

Other Editors Saying Crimp In Space Budget

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
How goes America's space program and its race to the moon?

Space agency officials have denied that significant cuts in the space budget are contributing to decline in morale that could jeopardize the performance of rockets and moonships on future manned flights.

But these same officials do agree that a "little of the zip" has been taken out of Project Apollo because of budget cutbacks. There is unrest over the employment question; some personnel have already been separated from the space project, and there may be others.

Gen. Sam Phillips, Apollo program manager for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, says it will be a tight year and "I'm somewhat concerned." Budget cuts directly affect Apollo by causing a reduction in manpower at NASA centers involved with the man-in-space program.

A sharply reduced budget is certain to have a negative morale impact of some kind. Many of the people involved, for example, don't feel they enjoy the confidence, the popularity of the public as much as in years past. They may be overstating the situation.

If there has to be economy cuts across the board in order to bring White House spending in line with what Congress deems necessary to justify a tax increase, it is reasonable to assume the space program should share its reductions as well. But this does not mean the public, per se, still does not have great confidence in our space program.

Still, the situation does influence the personnel. Facing the people working on Project Apollo is the fact that the man-to-the-moon work force is being reduced at a rate of about 4,000 jobs every month as assembly of Apollo hardware is completed and no program even approaching similar size exists to take its place after the goal of landing men on the moon by 1970 is achieved.

The budget cuts will barely keep alive the Apollo Applications Project which is the man-in-space program after the lunar landing is accomplished, NASA Administrator James Webb said. And the cuts may force Saturn rocket production to be suspended due to lack of flight assignments in the 1970s.

Fortunately, it won't be the end of the world if we don't get to the moon by 1970, or even later. There are enough problems on earth to keep us busily occupied for some time to come.

"Then why don't you take that typewriter off your knees?" she demanded.

"A little work never hurt anybody," I said. "I only do it to be sociable."

"If you don't want to think of me, why don't you think of the children? How would you like it if someone said your father was a work addict?"

"I'm not a work addict," I cried. "I do a little work in the morning and a little work at night, and maybe some in the afternoon. But it's only to soothe my nerves. I could give up work tomorrow and not even miss it."

"Since it's Sunday, why don't you try it?" she suggested.

"All right. I will."

Sunday morning I woke up and grabbed a football.

"Anybody want to play?" I asked at breakfast.

"The entire family looked at me suspiciously."

"I'm not kidding," I said.

"I feel great. I haven't done a lick of work since I got up. I'm not even going to read the Sunday papers."

We tossed the ball around for a half-hour and suddenly my mouth began to go dry and I started to perspire. I quit the game shaking, and started for my library. When I got there I was shocked. My wife had hidden all my typewriting and carbon paper.

I became frenzied. "What did you do with my paper?" "I locked it up," she said. "Just give me one sheet." I begged. "I've got to have a sheet." (Continued On Page 5)

Uphill Paris Effort

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
The U. S. delegation at the Vietnam talks in Paris is facing a tough, uphill struggle as it tries to convince North Vietnam's leaders that they are misreading American and world opinion.

If it succeeds at all, the delegation may be at the job for the rest of the summer.

The Americans appear convinced that the major reason for the deadlock is that North Vietnam expects in the long run to win a propaganda victory which it hopes will force the United States into making a major concession.

North Vietnamese leaders, say the Americans, see it this way: The United States has gone part of the way toward ending bombing and acts of war against North Vietnamese territory, so why not go the rest of the way and then see what happens?

The United States, as of now, does not intend to do this without some reliable assurance that North Vietnam will do something in return toward deescalating the war in the South.

One reason why week-long recesses have been agreed to, the Americans say, is that the Hanoi delegation must check back with the ruling politburo in North Vietnam on virtually every word it says or intends to say in Paris.

The process involves regular meetings of the politburo each week to consider strategy and to assay the effects of each meeting upon world opinion.

The Americans say, however, that Hanoi is reading world and American opinion from its own vacuum, and is reading it the wrong way. The U. S. delegation members appear convinced that there has been a steady change in favor of the American side since President Johnson made his March 31 speech renouncing renomination for the presidency, limiting the bombing of North Vietnam to the panhandle below the 20th parallel and opening the way for the Paris talks.

The talks, however, settled down into a propaganda war. The North Vietnamese delegation not only has rejected the efforts of the chief U. S. negotiator, W. Averell Harriman, the change this, but has re-emphasized the propaganda aspects of the Paris conference.

A week ago, Harriman asked Zuan Thuy, chief of the Hanoi delegation, once again to abandon the practice of giving out prepared statements, full of accusations and vitriol, after each session, and to get down to less public negotiating. Thuy said he would take the proposal under advisement, and for the moment the Americans thought they might have made some progress.

If the proposal was taken under advisement, it went back during the week-long recess to the Hanoi politburo. The answer was more than plain as the delegation emerged from their ninth session Wednesday. Not only did the Hanoi delegation release yet another statement, but it did so even before the session ended, a new departure.

Hanoi apparently is bargain hunting: perhaps hoping to get a bargain in the form of ending the bombing without cost to North Vietnam, perhaps in the form of a coalition in the South with the Viet Cong's Liberation Front in an influential role.

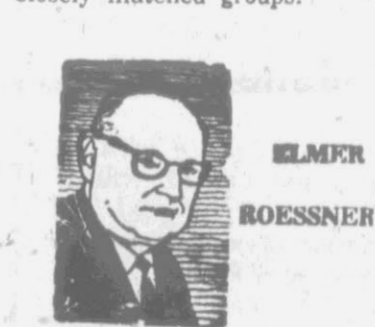

Overreaction To Job Stresses

By ELMER ROESSNER
Job stress is much maligned. It is not, of itself, bad. Stress, in correct amounts, stimulates workers, staff and executives of all levels to extend themselves and accomplish more. When properly applied, it can improve efficiency, competency, production, sales and profits.

But misapplication or overdoes can reduce a business or an individual to shambles. Donald D. Huddle, a faculty member at Indiana University writing in Personnel magazine, pointed out that it is not stress which is damaging, but overreaction to it. Overreaction may manifest itself in a number of ways: behavioral disturbances, inefficiency, absenteeism, short temper, belligerency, or other morale problems.

Dr. Hans Seyle, a proponent of the stress theory, identified stress as a causative factor behind many degenerative diseases including some which affect kidneys, heart and blood vessels. Researchers have found that executives subject to stress are more prone to higher cholesterol levels, faster clotting time and six to eight times more clinical heart diseases than closely matched groups.

ELMER ROESSNER
Nagging Symptoms
Other indications of overreaction may be persistent headaches, dizziness, nose bleeds, fine hemorrhages in the retinal layers of the eyes and loss or impairment of speech.

Patently, job stress is something to be handled, like porcupines, very, very carefully. Overreaction symptoms must be watched for. When they develop, counter-measures should be applied.

One such is merely the realization that any job is going to entail conflict between an individual's own values and those of the business community or those of his company. Just admitting that life is full of ambiguities and conflicts can put a job in perspective. So will the realization that there is seldom one ideal solution to a problem. Compromise is essential.

More mechanistic relief for overreaction to stress is the breaking of the daily decision making routine by getting completely away from the job situation.

Time Out
This doesn't mean leaving the office, but just getting one's mind completely off office problems during coffee or lunch breaks. Taking vacation in several brief segments, rather than all at once, provides a similar break from the office.

Verbalizing problems to family, friends or associates broadens perspectives and unclutters the mind. Huddle also suggested. Regular, moderate exercise, proper diet and eating habits and periodic medical checkups are helpful.

The manager or boss who intentionally or unintentionally creates stress situations for subordinates should also guide them towards defense against overreaction. Once he is adept at this he can turn his abilities towards even harder stress problems: his own.

Nixon Uses Soft Answer To Parry Rockefeller

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Richard M. Nixon is using the soft answer technique to carry over Nelson A. Rockefeller's demands for more head-to-head fighting in their rivalry for the Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller said Thursday in Cleveland he wants Nixon and him to be judged side by side, trading charges and counter-charges, challenges and rebuttals.

The New York governor said he wants to "sharpen the differences between us, if he gives me the chance."

Nixon shows little interest in offering Rockefeller such opportunities. Political observers rank Nixon as the frontrunner in the race, Rockefeller as the one who has to come from behind.

"As far as Gov. Rockefeller is concerned," Nixon told newsmen in Chicago, "he can continue his attacks. I will not retaliate in kind."

As part of his campaign to draw Nixon into returning fire, Rockefeller began criticizing him by name for the first time Thursday. He suggested the former vice president, on the basis of his losing try for the presidency in 1960, has shown he can't win the city vote.

"Dick did well in Missouri until he got into St. Louis," Rockefeller told the GOP meeting in Cleveland. "He did well in Pennsylvania until he got into Philadelphia. He did well in Michigan until he got into Detroit. And he did well in New York until he got into New York City."

Nixon said he is sticking to his position of refusing to debate Rockefeller.

"The only real winner of a Nixon-Rockefeller debate, particularly the kind of debate that seems to be developing, would be Hubert Humphrey," he said.

Vice President Humphrey, appearing at the National Press Club Thursday, said national club priorities need to be re-examined—changed if necessary.

"It must be clear that violence, crime, looting, burning cannot be condoned and must be stopped," he said. "It must be equally clear that the conditions that breed crime and violence have to be sought out—and then rooted out."

As for his readiness to develop his own presidential style if given the chance, he said: "Hubert Humphrey as a vice president is a member of a team. Hubert Humphrey as a president would be captain of the team. There's a lot of difference."

Humphrey's rival for the nomination, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, told a meeting of publishers and editors of Negro publications in New York City Thursday there must be a "redistribution of power" in political and economic institutions.

"Black people are poor because they are powerless and powerless because they are black," he said.

While the major party contenders were all at work north of the Mason-Dixon line, George Wallace, the American Independent Party candidate, continued his fund-raising tour of the South and struck it rich in Jackson, Miss.

The former Alabama governor's campaign chest was enriched by an estimated $50,000 from a $25-a-plate dinner, a $1,000-a-plate luncheon and a rally.

The rally, in a high school football stadium, was Wallace's first outdoor appearance since heightened security measures were adopted in the wake of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Wallace spoke from behind a bulletproof shield.

But there are no genuine signs of a dramatic breakthrough, nothing to indicate that Rockefeller was correct recently when he said, "The tide has turned."

Richard M. Nixon still appears to be riding the crest of the tide, possibly within fingertip reach of having the 667 delegate votes to win the nomination.

Rockefeller campaigned in Ohio Wednesday and Thursday and he found some encouragement in that key state.

Bob Hughes, GOP executive chairman of Cuyahoga County, said, "based on our county, he's very strong." Hughes said, however, he is pledged to Rhodes as a favorite son—as are 55 of Ohio's 58 delegates—and he declined to go so far as to call Rockefeller the strongest Republican candidate.

Rockefeller apparently won some support in Cleveland's large Negro community. He met with a group of Negro leaders and the Rev. Sterling Glover, president of the United Pastors Association, said: "We want Rockefeller. It's Rocky or nobody for us."

Shouts of "Viva Rocky" rose from a crowd in a Puerto Rican community on the outskirts of Lorain, Ohio where the governor addressed several hundred people in Spanish. When there was no response to a vigorously stressed statement on issues, he grinned and said, "Maybe, I ought to talk English."

With his wife, Happy, he then went to a fund-raising dinner. A Lorain official said 800 guests paid $100-a-plate to attend.

South Africa To Again Ship Gold

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Finance Minister Nicolaas Diederichs announced today that South Africa will resume gold shipments abroad.

He said in a press statement the government has agreed to make available 19 million in gold to the International Monetary Fund for France, and $23 million to the fund for Britain, resulting in a fall in South African gold reserves held outside the country. The reserves will have to be replenished through resumed gold shipments, the minister said.

Diederichs gave no indication how or when his government would resume overseas selling of its newly mined gold, about 75 per cent of the non-Communist world's output.

South Africa "reserved its right" to act after announcement of the two-tier price system for gold, Diederichs and Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster criticized the two-tier system as a temporary gimmick and appealed for an increase in the official pegged price of $35 an ounce as the only realistic solution to international monetary problems.

South Africa's gold and foreign exchange reserves are at a record high, and it has no immediate need to sell gold for foreign exchange. But gold comprises 35 per cent of the value of South African exports normally and cannot be stockpiled forever.

erton, president-elect of the State Mental Health Association; State Sen. Hector McGeachy, D-Cumberland; and Mrs. John Chase, state representative from Wayne County.

A Greenville resident, Mrs. Spilman helped spearhead the development of local mental health association chapters in North Carolina, increasing the budget of the organization from $2,000 in 1957 to more than $55,000 by 1966.

She served several years as assistant treasurer of East Carolina University, where her husband, the late John B. Spilman was business manager.

In 1935, she was appointed by Gov. Clyde R. Hoey to serve as commissioner of the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission.

She later became executive director of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association and was appointed by former Gov. R. Gregg Cherry to serve on the Resource Use Education Committee and by the late Gov. W. Kerr Scott to the Committee for the Aging.

"No," she said. "I'm doing it for your own good. You'll never lick the habit if I give in to you now."

I went upstairs and tried to take a nap. But every time I closed my eyes I could see fearsome editors crawling out of the walls with pencils in their sharp teeth.

I woke up screaming and my wife rushed in.

"One lousy piece of paper," I begged her. "I'll never ask you for anything again."

She took pity on me and unlocked the drawer. "I know I shouldn't do it, but I can't stand you in this stage."

I grabbed it and rushed for the typewriter hungrily.

"What are you going to do?"

"Maybe I'll write a story on that crazy psychiatric report I showed you yesterday."

American Legion Eyes N.C. Hospital Plans

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The American Legion hopes to submit within three months plans for a 32-bed, $425,000 center in Jacksonville for mentally retarded children.

Tim Craig of Charlotte, chairman of the Legion's Mental Health Committee, made the announcement in an interview Thursday.

Craig, a former state commander of the Legion, said some service families with men-queered transfers from military tally retarded children had re-bases in the eastern part of the state because of the difficulty of getting such children into existing facilities.

Craig's committee met during the 50th annual state convention of the Legion.

Craig said the plans will be submitted to the State Medical Care Commission, which administers federal financial assistance for hospitals under the Hill-Burton Act. He said financing will be 62 per cent by the federal government, 22 per cent by the state, and the rest by donations from Legionnaires.

He said the center would be open to all mentally retarded children but military dependents would be given priority.

Military wives working on a volunteer basis will compose a large portion of the staff under direction of a nucleus of professionals, Craig said.

Some Executives Just Can't See A Vacation

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — "I want you to take a couple of weeks off, Fastalk, and I want you to get out of the city to some nice spot and I don't want you to even think about the office," Mr. Big, the president, told his sales manager.

Fastalk protested: he had too much work to do, he wasn't tired, he loved his job. "That's an order," Big barked, and so Fastalk slunk away to his summer vacation.

The scene might not be common, but it does occur in many large companies, for one of the most persistent problems in scheduling vacations, which generally are being liberalized, is to get the executive to take the time due him.

Rest, relaxation, recreation—just time away from the office—are being regarded increasingly as the route to greater efficiency and productivity. But ironically, some of those very executives who first spotted this route are the least able to follow it.

While executives are resisting long vacations — and in some instances are said to be choosing multiple small vacations or long weekends — most companies seem to be liberalizing their policies for salaried workers.

In almost all corporations, the management association says, length of service is the determinant of vacations. The general pattern for salaried workers is one week after six months and two weeks after a year.

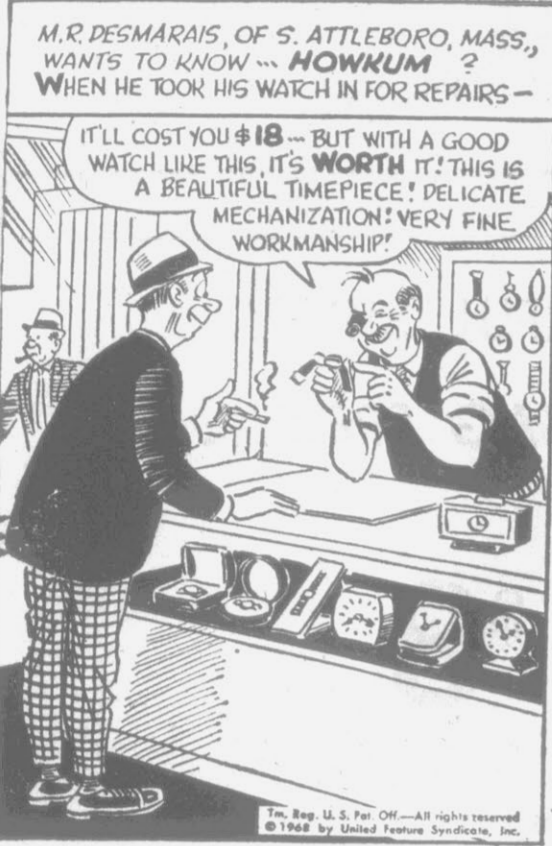

The liberalization appears most noticeably in the shorter time needed for three-week vacations. Some companies which once required 15 years of service, the management association says, have now lowered the requirement to 10 years.

Other companies have lowered the ratio to three weeks for five years, and a tendency is now appearing to grant a month after 15 years or even 10, instead of after 25 years of continuous service.

For top executives, however, a different policy usually applies, generally granted regardless of service length.

Hijacked Plane Back From Cuba

CARACAS (AP) — A Venezuelan airliner with 79 persons aboard landed in Caracas today 22 hours late. It had been hijacked by a grenade-wielding Dominican and forced to fly to Cuba.

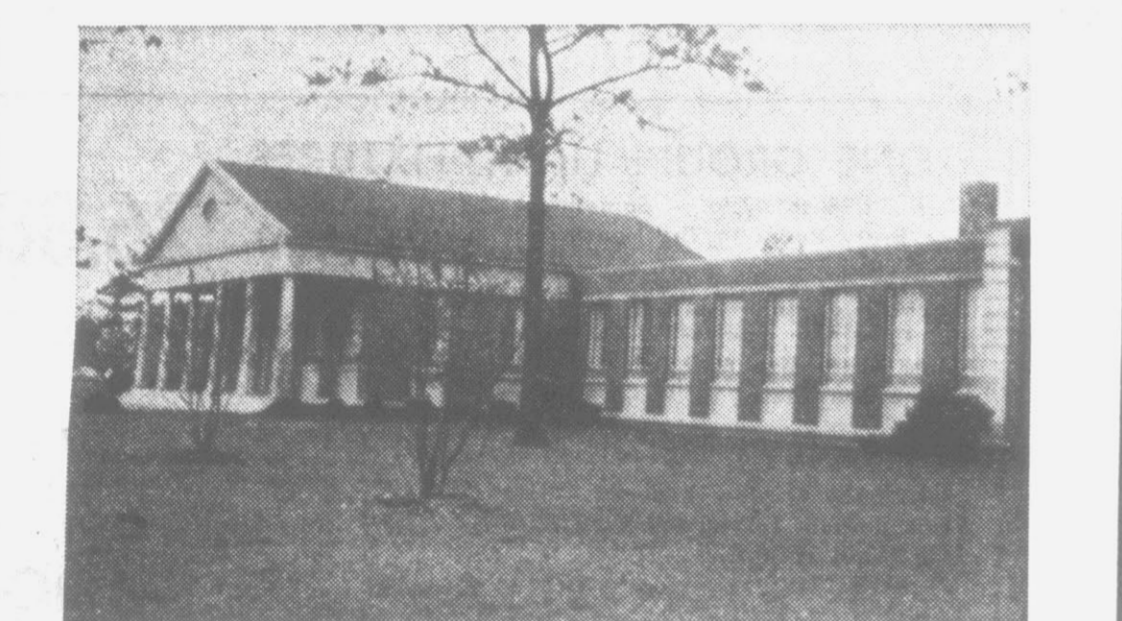

The pilot, Capt. Harry Gibson, said the 74 other passengers and five crew members were well treated during their unexpected stay Thursday in Santiago, eastern Cuba's chief city. The hijacker, identified only as a young Dominican, presumably was given asylum in Cuba.

Four U.S. citizens were among the passengers: Army Col. Henry Joslin, chief of the U.S. Military Assistance Group in the Dominican Republic; his wife, Wanda; William W. Taylor of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., and Russell Edwards, who was not otherwise identified.

Gibson said the hijacker entered the cockpit 29 minutes after Viasa Airlines flight 797 took off from Santo Domingo for Curacao and Caracas.

"He had a grenade in his hand," said the 51-year-old pilot.

Kiwanis Get Win, Join Crowd On Top

Two's company, and three's a crowd, but the Kiwanis don't mind a bit. Yesterday, they downed the Optimists, 7-0, to move into a three-way mix-up for first place in the North State League with only two games left on each team's schedule.

Coca-Cola, the Lions and Kiwanis are all knotted up with 9-4 records, while the rest of the league is also trying to get sorted out for the upcoming playoffs. R.C. Cola is in fourth place with a 5-8 record, followed by the Optimists, 4-9, and the Jaycees, 3-10.

Coca-Cola has games left with the Optimists and with the Lions, while the Lions must also play the Kiwanis. The Kiwanis round out their schedule with R.C. Cola.

Robert Boles hurled the shut-out, allowing only three hits. He struck out seven and walked three in getting the victory.

In the second, the Kiwanis moved into the lead, pushing a run across. Al Heath reached on an error and moved up on James Mayo's hit. Jon West doubled to drive in Heath for a 1-0 edge.

In the fourth, the Kiwanis came up with two more runs. Heath again reached on an error and Mayo singled and then stole second. West doubled to drive in both runners and make it 3-0.

The fifth inning saw four more runs score for the final 7-0 advantage. Kelly Heath opened the inning with a double and Boles singled. Joey Howell grounded out, but scored Heath. Chris Manning doubled to drive in Boles, and Al Heath got a single. Jimmy Rogers singled across Manning and another single by Mayo brought in Heath.

West and Mayo led the Kiwanis hitting, both getting three each.

Russ Smith Hurls No-Hit Win For State Bank, 5-0

Russ Smith tossed a no-hitter last night as State Bank downed Pepsi-Cola, 5-0, in the Teen-er League. In the other game, Home Builders took a 7-4 decision from College View.

Planters Bank continues to lead the league with a 7-1 record, while Home Builders is second at 6-3. State Bank follows with a 5-3 record, with Pepsi-Cola and Carolina Dairy tied with 3-5 records. Trailing is College View, 1-8.

In the opener, Smith struck out 17 batters and walked three in tossing the no-hitter. Only one other man reached base, on a first inning error, the only time Smith was in any trouble.

In that first, the first man struck out, and the next reached on a walk. An error and a double steal put men on second and third but Smith calmly struck out the next two to end the threat and go on from there.

His teammates came to his aid with their bats in the fourth. Jimmy Paige reached on an error and Robert Kear broke open the scoreless duel with a home run for a 2-0 advantage.

In the fifth, State Bank came back with three more. Gary Harris walked and a passed ball moved him to second. Johnny Conway singled him in and he moved up on Smith's single.

Both came around to score when Paige was safe on an error.

Losing hurler Kenny Pittman allowed just five hits, while he struck out eight and walked just one.

In the second game, Home Builders pushed over two runs in the first inning. Joe West doubled and Rick Boles reached on an error which scored West and allowed Boles to go to second. A wild pitch moved the runner to third and he scored on Bill Lee's single.

In the third, Home Builders added another for a 3-0 lead. West singled and advanced on a fielder's choice by Boles. Lee singled to load them up, and Robbie Cox was safe on an error, scoring West.

College View rallied in the fourth inning for three to tie it up. Larry Hatton singled and moved to second on a fielder's choice by Tom Durham. Both were sacrificed up, and a single by Gene Vincent scored Hatton.

Durham scored on an error on the play, and Vincent, who kept going, came around to score on another error.

In the sixth, College View moved out into the lead, scoring a run to lead 4-3. Hatton reached on an error and moved up on Durham's single. Another single by Jeff Barwick loaded the bases and Vincent hit into a fielder's choice to score Hatton with the go-ahead run.

In the seventh, Home Builders came back to score four runs and take the victory. Whitney Miller led off with a single and stole second. He was sacrificed to third, and West was intentionally walked. Boles singled to score Miller with the tying run and West with the go-ahead one. Boles was sacrificed up to third and scored on Cox's single. Cox also stole up, and came in on Gary Hall's single.

West, Lee and Cox each had two hits for Home Builders, while Hatton and Lynn Hudson each had two for College View.

Immanuel And St. James Win

Immanuel Baptist and St. James Methodist pulled back to a half-game behind league leading Presbyterian last night with Church League victories. Immanuel downed Gum Swamp, 13-6, while St. James took Mt. Pleasant, 8-2.

Presbyterian is leading the loop with a 9-1 record, while St. James and Immanuel are 9-2. They are followed by Grace, 5-4; Mt. Pleasant and Oakmont, both 5-5; Meadowbrook, 4-6; Gum Swamp, 2-7; Pentecostal, 1-8; and Jarvis, 1-9.

In the opener, Immanuel took the lead in the first inning with a lone run, then came back with six in the second inning to lead 7-0.

Gum Swamp put together a four-run rally in the fourth to get into the action. That rally was aided by homers by Tripp and Gray. In the fifth, Gum Swamp added another to trail 7-5.

But Immanuel came up with a three-run homer by Williams in the sixth to gain a 10-5 lead, and then added three more in the seventh. Gum Swamp picked up only one more run, as Tripp homered again in the sixth.

St. James picked up a three-run lead in the first inning, and pushed that into a 5-0 advantage in the second with two more runs.

Mt. Pleasant came back with a run in the third and another in the fourth, but couldn't keep their rally alive. St. James went on to gain one in the fifth and two more in the sixth to win handily.

Pair Ink ECU Track Grants

Two outstanding North Carolina high school athletes have signed athletic grants with East Carolina University.

Joining Coach Bill Carson's team this fall will be Lanny Davis, an outstanding middle distance runner from Myers Park High in Charlotte, and Eugene Reaves, of Grimesley High in Greensboro.

"We consider Lanny possible the top prospect we have recruited at East Carolina," Coach Carson said. "Due to his versatility, he will be a key man for us in the middle distances and in the mile relay. He has good speed and at the same time evidences outstanding endurance, typified by his fifth place finish in the state cross country meet this year. He is a very dedicated athlete and was recommended very highly to me by Coach Stuart Allen."

Reaves was coached by Bob Sawyer at Grimesley High. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Reaves, 3934 Madison Avenue, Greensboro.

"Eugene Reaves will compete in the long jump and triple jump," Carson said. "He is considered a late-bloomer in that of his senior year. He capped he achieved stardom at the end of the season with a jump of 23 feet two inches in the USTAFF junior meet in Atlanta last weekend."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. who exhibits good strength and speed as well as spring, the attributes necessary to become a top jumper in college. We feel very fortunate to have signed him. I expect him to become a 24-foot jumper in the near future."

Coca-Cola Downs Little Mint To Increase Lead

Coca-Cola increased its lead to two-and-a-half games over the rest of the league with a 4-3 victory over second place Little Mint in last night's Ladies League action. In the other games, Food Mart rolled over Pollard's 18-1, while Wachovia downed Empire Brush, 8-4.

Coke now posts a 9-1 record in the league, while the Little Mint and Food Mart are tied for second with 6-3 records.

Next comes Pollard's 3-5, Wachovia and Empire Brush have both been eliminated from the title picture.

In the opening game, Coke came up with a run in the first inning, and then came back with three in the third for a 4-0 lead. Little Mint then put on a rally. In the third, they came up with one, and followed that up with another in the fourth. Finally in the seventh, they pulled within one run, and left runners at second and third when the last out was recorded, keeping Coke on top of the loop.

In the second game, Food Mart put the game out of reach in the first inning, pushing across six runs. They came back with five in the third, five more in the fifth and two in the seventh.

A homer by Wooten highlighted the third.

The lone Pollard's run came in the seventh inning.

Wachovia jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first inning, and came back with two more in the second. The fourth run scored in the third, and the fourth frame saw three more come in for a 7-0 edge.

Empire Brush tried to get back into the game in the late innings, getting one in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh. Wachovia picked up its final run in the seventh.

The leopard was made by a taxidermist. Its coat is a modacrylic textile fiber made by Union Carbide from several basic chemicals. It's called Dynel.

For versatility, Dynel probably has no equal. We can make it as soft and warm as fur. Or almost as tough as steel.

You'll find it in blankets, work clothes, toys, jewelry. In carpets, towels, drapes, paint rollers. And since Dynel is chemical-resistant, durable and virtually nonflammable, it's used for laminated boat decks. For tents. As overlays for storage tanks and air ducts.

But Dynel is most famous for something else. It's great for making wigs. For blondes and brunettes and redheads.

Remarkable fiber? We think so. But haven't you found that a lot of remarkable things come from Union Carbide?

Cubs Set Record With Fourth Shutout In Row

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Lippy Leo Durocher is almost as silent these days as the bats his Chicago Cubs are using. But let Bob Gibson be letting his strong right arm do the talking. It was just like old times for Durocher as Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals blanked Chicago 1-0 Thursday—but they're times the Cub manager would rather forget.

For the Cubs, it was their fourth straight shutout defeat, tying a major league record. And their string of 46 consecutive scoreless innings broke the National League mark of 45 set by Cincinnati in 1931 and is two short of the major league record of 48 by the 1906 Philadelphia Athletics.

For Gibson, it was his fourth shutout in a row and ran his scoreless streak to 38 innings. Don Drysdale of Los Angeles recently set all-time records of six straight shutouts and 58 2-3 scoreless innings.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta tripped Cincinnati 3-1, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 2-1, Pittsburgh trounced Los Angeles 7-3 in the opener of a two-night doubleheader but lost the nightcap 3-2 in 10 innings, and the New York Mets turned back Houston 5-3.

In the only American League game, Detroit whipped Boston 5-1 and the Chicago White Sox walloped Cleveland 8-4.

When the 1931 Cincinnati Reds went 45 innings without a run they had a goodfield, no-hit shortstop named—you guessed it—Leo Durocher, who batted all of .227 that season. The Lip returned to the scene of the crime Thursday night as the Cubs flew to Cincinnati for a weekend series.

Lou Brock gave Gibson the only run he needed when he tripped with two out in the fourth off Ferguson Jenkins, 6-8, and scored on a single by Curt Flood for the Cards' 19th win in 23 games.

Milt Pappas, traded from the Reds to the Braves two weeks ago, pitched 5 2-3 innings in picking up his first victory for Atlanta, and his former Cincinnati teammates were the victims. Pappas allowed seven hits before leaving the game with a pulled side muscle.

The right-hander also contributed a key bunt single and scored the final run as the Braves broke a tie with two runs in the fifth.

A wild pitch by San Francisco's Ray Sadecki helped Philadelphia to a pair of first-inning runs and Rick Wise made the stand up by pitching a six-hitter as the Phillies nipped the Giants.

Cookie Rojas, who doubled on first and Richie Allen on first with an intentional pass when Sadecki uncorked his wild pitch. Rojas scored and Allen came home a few minutes later on Tony Taylor's single.

Steve Blass hurled no-hit ball for 6 2-3 innings as the Pirates won their opener from the Dodgers behind a 13-hit attack. Blass retired the first 15 batters before walking Paul Popovich. The first hit was Tom Haller's two-out double in the seventh.

But Pittsburgh's nine-game winning streak came to an end in the nightcap when pinch hitter Jim Fairey belted his first major league homer with two out in the 10th inning.

Tom Seaver struck out 12 and touched off two rallies with an infield single and a lost-in-the-sun double as the Mets beat Houston. Cleon Jones drove in four runs with a third-inning sacrifice fly and a three-run homer in the fifth off Larry Dierker. Art Shamsky also homered for the Mets.

Wagner Homer Beats Indians

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Cleveland waited hopelessly for a couple of months for Leon Wagner to hit a homer before dealing him off to Chicago for Russ Snyder a week ago.

The Indians didn't wait long enough.

Wagner's first round-tripper of the season Wednesday night ignited a six-run uprising that boosted the White Sox from behind and to an 8-4 conquest of his old mates.

Meanwhile, Denny McLain used a long-dormant pitch to baffle Boston with a dandy three-hitter and Mickey Stanley drove in four runs in propelling Detroit to a 5-1 victory and an 8½ game lead in the American League—the Tigers' biggest margin this season.

All other American League teams were idle.

In National League activity, St. Louis blanked Chicago 1-0, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 2-1, New York stopped Houston 5-3, Atlanta defeated Cincinnati 3-1 and Los Angeles nipped Pittsburgh 3-2 after dropping the opener of a doubleheader 7-3.

"Man, that was a good feeling, having my first big day of the season, and it was the first installment on my White Sox pay check," said Wagner of the two-run shot into the right field stands.

It was the 211th of his major league career, but his first since late last summer.

A run-scoring single by Tommy Davis, Ken Berry's RBI double and a two-run double by pitcher Tommy John, who chalked up his sixth straight without a loss, capped the outburst that stoved the Indians from second to fourth place in the torrid battle for the runner-up spot.

Baltimore, Minnesota and Cleveland—all 8½ games out—are separated by only two percentage points.

McLain, first American League to win 12 games this season, relied on a "sidearm fastball" he hasn't used for years to tame the Red Sox for 6 2-3 innings before George Scott and Elston Howard came up with consecutive singles.

The 5-foot-11, 185-pounder, who has lost only twice, said he stopped using the pitch three seasons ago after a pulled bicep muscle in his right arm bothered him when he threw it.

Pirates Sign Va. Linebacker

David Wylie Glosson, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Clyde Glosson of 412 Shenandoah Road, Hampton, Virginia, is a 5-11, 190 pound center and linebacker who has signed a football grant in aid with East Carolina University.

He was named to the All-Penninsula Team, All-District, and 2nd Team All-State while at Hampton High School, and his coach, John Palmer considers him "one of the best ever" linebackers in Hampton High's history.

"He is a fine young man with a real desire to excel and true dedication to the game of football," E.C.U.'s Coach Henry Vansant said.

He will be used either as an offensive center or guard and defensive middle linebacker.

Senate Suggests New Group To Govern Track

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate track critics have backed down on their threat to force the nation's colleges to bow to Amateur Athletic Union control of track meets.

Instead, the Senate Commerce Committee suggested Thursday that a new super group be created to govern amateur track in the United States.

But it passed the baton to another committee so far unconcerned with the long feud between the colleges and the AAU, making it almost certain that Congress will not take any action in the few busy working weeks it has left this year.

The colleges have declared a truce in the track war until after the Olympic Games in Mexico City Oct. 12-27. But the U.S. Track and Field Federation already has signaled that it will resume running its own meets after Nov. 1 in defiance of the AAU.

The USTFF and its powerful parent, the National Collegiate Athletic Union, turned down a Senate-nurtured compromise settlement earlier this year that would have left the AAU with supremacy in setting the standards for track meets.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, threatened immediately to write the suggested settlement into law and force the colleges to accept it.

Although Magnuson had aides prepare a bill to do just that, the measure has never been introduced, and Senators on the committee lined up at a closed session Thursday in favor of the super group instead.

Magnuson's committee went on record urging the Senate Judiciary Committee to approve a pending resolution by Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., to create an 11-member governing board including representatives of the AAU, the colleges and other track factions.

The USTFF would be happy with this, and said so two months ago when it turned down the original compromise. The super group would recognize the colleges' voice in track matters and break the stranglehold of the AAU as sole authority over amateur track.

Frazier Set For Ramos Bout

By KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — There's overwhelming confidence in the camp of Joe Frazier that the partial world heavyweight champion will make short work of Mexico's Manuel Ramos at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

It's not just Ramos. Manager-trainer Yancey Durham firmly believes that his undefeated fighter can beat any other heavyweight around. Frazier has the same conviction about himself.

The stocky, thick-thighed Philadelphiaan resembles retired undefeated heavyweight king Rocky Marciano in physique, aggressiveness and confidence.

Rocky always felt he could beat anybody. He went storming after opponents as if his own hide was made of steel. He took punishment and kept coming.

Frazier is a taller and heavier version. Marciano scored 19 knockouts in his first 21 fights. Frazier can equal that pace by stopping Ramos.

Ramos never has been floored or stopped. But then Canadian champion George Chuvalo and Buster Mathis never had been stopped either until they bumped into the hard-hitting Frazier.

The world heavyweight champion of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Maine and Massachusetts boxed two rounds with Curtis Bruce Thursday. He'll wind up his boxing with another two rounds or so today.

Ramos finished his boxing preparations Thursday and looked impressive for a change. The 6-foot-3 Mexican champion opened up with his right hand and scored some good shots to the jaw of stocky Angel Oquendo.

Horseman Needed A Gas Station

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Truck driver Tom Jackson was parked off the highway when a man approached on horseback and asked directions to the nearest gas station.

After Jackson recovered from the shock, the man explained he was carrying a load of horses and when his truck ran out of gas he decided to ride to the nearest station.

Wake Golfers Fall To Ninth Place

LAS CRUCES, N. M. (AP) — "The only good lead is the lead after 72 holes," said Oklahoma State's Grier Jones, as if giving himself an incentive in the NCAA golf championships that he is dominating.

He referred to his two-stroke lead after 36 holes entering today's third round of the 71st NCAA tournament and the one-stroke margin Arizona State held over his own Cowboys in the team race.

Wake Forest, team leader the first day based on scores of its four lowest men, fell to ninth with a 582 total after 36 holes.

Jack Lewis with 67-72-139 was the only Wake Forest player with a chance to catch the leaders. Other Deacons were Joe Inman 75-71-146, Chip Lewis 73-75-148, Johnny Harris 69-80-149, and Leonard Thompson 70-79-149.

Allen Powers of South Carolina had 68-72-140.

Mike Spann of Davidson had 72-72-144. Davidson was not among the team qualifiers, its four best men having an aggregate of 604, or 36 strokes behind leading Arizona State.

Scores of Davidson players other than Spann:
Carey Hite 77-74-151, Danny White 78-75-153, Doug Clark 67-80-156, Tucker Dalton 79-80-159.

Jones, a miser to the 7,100-yard cactus-filled New Mexico State course, added a three-under-par 68 Thursday to his 65 of the first round and wrote his name into the NCAA record books for a 36-hole total of 133.

The collegiate golfers said well-watered fairways and more difficult pin placements on the greens provided more of a challenge.

Arizona State squeezed in front of Oklahoma State 568-569. Florida State had 572 and Florida 573, as teams played a 72-hole championship for the first time.

The defending champion Houston Cougars are six strokes back at 574.

Manager Cal Ermer of the Minnesota Twins coached for the Baltimore Orioles in 1962 and scouted for them the following two years.

Doomed Pilot Unwitting Bait For 'Copter Trap

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A doomed Marine pilot, crumpled below his parachute deep in enemy territory, became unwitting bait for a huge Viet Cong ambush against helicopters.

Enemy troops pointedly ignored the flier, who lay with a broken leg and arm, trying to call in Air Force rescue helicopters. The Viet Cong were digging in all around the pilot, just out of sight and earshot, waiting.

When the camouflaged choppers arrived with their fighter-bomber escorts, they suspected a trap at once. They had seen many before. But traps are part of the business and pilots of the Jolly Green Giant rescue ships never questioned their next move—try and get their man out.

In the past year, the 37th Aerospace Recovery and Rescue Squadron has rescued more than 250 men from North and South Vietnam. The cost, three helicopters and eight killed of the 21 crews assigned to the squadron. Many of the saves were called miracles by the men who were picked up and those who did the job.

This time there was no miracle along the ridge line overlooking the A Chau Valley hard on the Laotian frontier. Unless it could be said, as some did later, that it was a wonder things weren't worse.

After fighter-bombers hit the area, the first camouflaged helicopter dipped its nose and sliced in for a rescue attempt. Withering groundfire greeted the chopper as it neared the Leatherneck pilot, and the craft shuddered under the impact of the bullets.

The pilot pulled up and fighter-bombers went back to work.

A second chopper slowed above the downed man but heavy fire raked the twin-engine craft. One of the spotter plane pilots called in, "Your left side is on fire, Jolly Green. Get outta there."

The pilot tried, pulling his stricken craft up and away from the trap and limping to the east. The fire diminished, but the bird's rotors began turning more and more slowly and the chopper fell. When it hit the ground, a huge fireball consumed the fragile craft. The four men aboard presumably were killed instantly.

Back at the Da Nang base the radioed news of the disaster first brought shock and then a mass of volunteers to go after their friends and the Marine jet pilot.

Capt. Jerry Griggs, Kannapolis, N.C., and his crew were next at the scene. He said: "After the Skyraiders worked over the area, we went in. When we started to hover over the Marine, it seemed the whole right side of the countryside erupted with groundfire. I could feel the hits on the aircraft."

Griggs' ship also caught fire but the copilot, Capt. Harry Hagen Jr., of Seattle, Wash., reported later: "Somehow we got away."

Away from the ridgeline trap, but far from home free.

The severely damaged helicopter tried to land some distance away "and the whole place blew up in our face. There were so many streams of tracers that it looked like 1,000 red pencils drawing lines in front of us," Hagen said.

With luck, a great deal of luck, this crew limped into the Marine base at Khe Sanh.

By now the Marine on the ground had stopped his radio transmission. With the odds against them, the rescue men might have assumed he was dead.

Maj. Harvie L. Stringer, Cookeville, Tenn., who escorted Griggs to Khe Sanh, returned and "figured most of the big guns were silenced and that it was worth another try."

Two skyraiders preceded Stringer's craft, two were on each side and two followed him down.

Despite all the bombing and strafing runs, no one was too surprised when Sgt. Robert Baldwin, 26, Burkburnett, Tex., the flight engineer, shouted: "Pull up! pull up! They're shooting."

Baldwin and Sgt. Steve Northern, 21, Riverside, Calif., began pouring machine-gun fire into the Viet Cong positions, killing some of the enemy and forcing the rest to keep their heads down.

Northern, the pararescue medic, was at the helicopter's door waiting to go down via a cable hoist to pick up the downed pilot. Then "the whole hill opened up on us," he recalls.

One of the covering fighter bombers radioed, "Get away from the ridge, Jolly. Get away from the ridge. Charlie is all fort.

over the place." Ominously the center of the fire was only 20 yards from the downed pilot.

Maj. Stringer reported that the downed Marine was crumpled up and not moving, but it was decided to try one last time.

The results were about the same. Heavy fire, the rescue chopper hit several times before being forced to abandon the ef-

The total cost of the operation was four Jolly Green men presumed killed, one chopper destroyed, one heavily damaged and two moderately damaged.

It was a bad day—but it was almost a glorious day. Other Jolly Greens from Da Nang had rescued five pilots. The sixth would have made a record for one day.

Next day aerial spotters found the Marine pilot and his chute gone. He is listed as missing and presumed dead. Lt. Col. Kenneth D. Caughton, the Jolly Green squadron commander, said: "It's been apparent for some time that the enemy is not capturing downed pilots immediately. He knows we will launch a rescue operation that will give him a chance to shoot down more of our planes and get more of our people. It's a thing we're up against—everyone of us knows it. But we'll try everytime. That's our job."

Predicts Gold To Be Outmoded

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Gold may be an outmoded medium of exchange, a Bradley University economics professor said. He predicts an end to the international gold standard.

"I think we're beginning to see the end of the international gold standard," said William R. Belmont, assistant professor of economics at the school.

"And it'll be good riddance," he added.

He said another gold crisis could be avoided if a more realistic international finance structure were established, in view of increasing world trade which has grown 7 per cent in 10 years.

In contrast, the reserves of international monies have increased at less than 3 per cent, and gold at less than 2 per cent.

"A quickly available medium of exchange, in sufficient quantities, is needed to satisfy the growing needs of trade in the world economy," he said. "Gold isn't filling the bill."

Post Office In Mini-Building

HAPPY JACK, Ariz. (AP) — This northern Arizona lumbering community boasts what may be the smallest federal building in the nation—and probably the only homemade one in existence.

After fire destroyed the general store and post office in December 1966, residents pitched in and built a new 9-by-14-foot building to serve as a post office.

Experts See Reshuffling Of Seminaries In The Years Ahead

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Experts today foresee a vast reshuffling ahead in the location and makeup of theological seminaries in America.

But it is expected to meet entrenched resistance. Describing the present prevailing pattern of small denominational seminaries, widely dispersed across the country and emphasizing "sectarian isolation," a two-year study report says:

"The whole apparatus is coming to look more like a monument to history rather than an instrument designed to serve the needs of the contemporary church."

In its place, the report predicts a sweeping "revision in the current map" of American seminaries, drawing them together increasingly into "a small number of major clusters" near large universities.

These clusters "will be ecumenical in character," including "groups of confessionally based seminaries" maintaining their denominational links, but with transdenominational, interlocking programs with others, the report says.

It notes that under the pressure of current conditions, the trend already is under way, with newly forming Protestant-Catholic seminary complexes in Boston, New York, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Chicago and Rochester, N.Y.

The report was drawn up by an eight-member commission of Protestant and Catholic scholars for the American Association of Theological Schools, which includes 150 seminaries and divinity schools. It met June 10-13 in St. Louis.

It says the rise of the ecumenical movement for Christian unity has reduced historic differences and made clear that those studying for the priesthood or ministry must do so "in a common setting."

"Small seminaries operating in physical and sectarian isolation from each other simply cannot effectively respond to the challenge of ecumenism," the report says.

The report cited a number of metropolitan-university cities where facilities exist for joint groupings, including: Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; Washington, D.C.; Atlanta, Ga.; Austin, Tex.; Denver, Colo.;

Nashville, Tenn.; New Haven, Conn.; St. Louis, Mo., and several Canadian cities.

Rising costs and competition for quality faculty members also were cited as demanding cooperative seminary enterprises, rather than the past system of denominational seminaries trying to "go it alone."

The commission making the report was headed by the Rev. Dr. Arthur R. McKay, president of Chicago's McCormick Theological Seminary.

The modern pluralistic atmosphere of life, in addition to demanding that clergymen understand those of "different Christian traditions," also requires them to deal with varied "people, values, ideas" beyond churchly bounds, the report says.

This means clergymen should be trained in a context that not only is multidimensional but which also involves cultural variety and experiences, such as are available in large university centers, the report adds.

In the past, it says, the "seminary has been regarded as the place in which a man must learn that he is a Lutheran, or a Presbyterian or a Roman Catholic," but the churches now recognize they share a common heritage and concerns.

If students of the different churches study together, however, the question arises, as the report notes, "How can we be certain that our men will emerge as good Methodists?"

There is no way to guarantee it, the report concedes, adding that there are "some risks," but it notes that in the joint operations already going on, there has been "an almost total absence of evidence of proselytism."

"Thus we are inclined to believe that these risks are not likely to include outright 'conversion' to another confessional tradition," it added.

But the report concedes that "deeply ingrained traditions of seminary autonomy" are expected to deter the necessary cooperative ventures, adding: "These institutional traditions of autonomy and separatism are reinforced by the predominantly local patterns of finance and control which are characteristic of most seminary enterprises."

Resume Hearing At Beaufort

BEAUFORT, N. C. (AP) — A special committee of the North Carolina Seashore Commission was scheduled to meet at Beaufort this afternoon for the final session of a two-day hearing on problems in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore Park area.

The commission, headed by Woodrow Price of Raleigh, plans to seek solutions to the problems and avoid similar obstacles during development of the new Cape Lookout Park.

Cape Hatteras Park Superintendent Kirtredge Wing told the study panel at Hatteras Thursday that growing crowds and lack of erosion control are the major problems in the Hatteras and Buxton areas.

He said water around Buxton is eroding the coastline at a rate of 50 feet a year, a condition which Wing termed an "emergency." A sudden storm, he added, could cause serious damage.

Wing also told the panel public campgrounds cannot keep up with the crowds of tourists visiting the park, and new coastal highways are expected to double or triple present traffic within the next 15 years.

"Vacationing with Jesus" will be the topic of a series of Sunday night sermons to be delivered at the First Free Will Baptist Church by the pastor the Rev. Floyd B. Cherry, during the next five Sunday nights.

The Sunday evening services will be held at 8 o'clock.

Extend Contract Of Rudolf Bing

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolf Bing, 66-year-old general manager of the Metropolitan Opera since 1950, will continue to head it through the 1971-72 season.

The board of directors of the Met voted Thursday to extend the Viennese-born administrator's contract two years beyond the present expiration date, June 30, 1970.

Two Tar Heels Killed In Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department announced Thursday that two more North Carolinians have been killed in action in Vietnam.

They were Marine Pfc. Robert E. Sanders of Raleigh and Army WO Daytin W. Lanier of Wilmington.

Runaway Locomotive Was Pursued For 98 Miles

KINSLEY, Kan. (AP) — A maverick locomotive started by a mysterious malfunction took off without its engineer and careened 98 miles through the Kansas countryside Thursday, leading a Keystone Kops chase by deputies, police and spectators.

The two-unit diesel Santa Fe locomotive, which averaged a better than mile-a-minute clip during its 84-minute ride, was purposely derailed near Kinsley to end its unscheduled excursion.

During its run highway patrolmen, sheriff's deputies and police raced against time as they tried to block crossings ahead of the wild runaway that sped through nine towns at speeds up to 90 miles an hour. No one was hurt but there were several narrow escapes. Along the route officers had to contend with crowds of sightseers who flocked to the tracks for a glimpse of the speeding maverick.

The engine nearly hit a pedestrian and several automobiles at street crossings. J. R. Fitzgerald, division superintendent, promised a thorough investigation.

It all began about 4 p.m. when the locomotive, freshly serviced and with its engine idling, quietly rolled off a roundhouse spur at Hutchinson onto the branch line that sweeps along the Arkansas River.

Apparently something went wrong with the "dead man's throttle"—designed to prevent the unit from moving unless a man's hand is applying pressure on the lever. Suddenly the train started moving.

Picking up speed on its way out of Hutchinson, the engine nearly hit one pedestrian and several automobiles at street crossings.

On the western edge of town, Harold Crain, a track supervisor from division headquarters at Newton, was operating a motorized handcar as he inspected the track.

Suddenly he looked up to see the locomotive charging at him. "I lifted one end of my car off the tracks, but I could see there wasn't time to finish it, so I just stepped back and waved it good-bye," Crain said.

He said smoke was boiling off the brakes "then the brakes burned out and the engine really took off." Sparks from the scorching brakes ignited grass fires for several miles outside Hutchinson.

Station agents were alerted over the railroad's voice network and Stanley Stou, the Sterling agent, started logging the times.

Santa Fe workers sent a chase engine in pursuit out of Larned, but the wild one had a five-minute head start on the 26-mile run to the connection with the main line at Kinsley. They knew there wasn't time.

So the Newton dispatcher sent the order: "Derail it at the Y east of Kinsley."

Don Cargill, Kinsley agent, relayed the order to George Stone, section foreman, who threw the switch three-fourths of a mile from town.

"The switch headed it into the siding," Cargill said. "It was going so fast it couldn't make the curve. It rolled over on its side and tore up some track and knocked down some telephone poles."

Rate Cigarettes In Tar, Nicotine

WASHINGTON (AP) — New tests by the Federal Trade Commission rate Marvel as the cigarette lowest in tar and nicotine among 127 varieties or brands.

Marvel regulars with filter had four milligrams of tar and 0.1 milligrams of nicotine in its smoke. Marvel king size with filter had 5 milligrams of tar and 0.2 milligrams of nicotine.

The commission first reported on 59 varieties last November. The new report lists 68 additional varieties.

King size nonfilter Herbert Tareyton had the highest tar content, 33 milligrams. Another brand, Brandon, now withdrawn from the market, equaled Tareyton in tar.

The Cambridge filter method was used in the tests. A machine smoked 10 cigarettes of each brand or type to a length of 23 millimeters, slightly less than an inch. The solid material from the smoke was collected and analyzed.

Filling Term Of Church Leader

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall of Chicago will serve out the unexpired term of the late Dr. Franklin C. Fry as president of the Lutheran Church in America, the nation's largest Lutheran group.

Dr. Marshall, 49 the youngest of the principal contenders for the office, was elected Thursday on the third ballot at the denomination's biennial convention.

He will serve until 1970 when he must stand for re-election. Dr. Fry died two weeks ago.

Dr. Marshall said he would move immediately to New York to begin work at the national headquarters of the 3.2 million member denomination.

To assume the presidency he vacates the office of president of the Illinois synod which has 225,000 members.

Dr. Marshall is best known among church members for his book, "The Mighty Acts of God," used as a studybook for parish education. An old testament scholar, he has also written numerous articles for periodicals.

Love is trust. It is belief. It is faith, and like faith it is the substance of all things hoped for. Faith is a young man and woman standing before the altar to be united in holy matrimony. It is a little child holding his mother's hand. It is a patient looking into the eyes of the doctor. It is a mother or father sadly waving goodbye to a son, off to war.

Faith is all this and more! It is trust in divine providence, a belief in joyful reward. It is all mankind kneeling before God in quiet prayer... at home... in church... or under the canopy of heaven.

Church is for all of us—a place to strengthen, to increase, to confirm our faith. You can make your faith stronger by going to church this Sunday.

Opening lead: Three of ♠ Perfect timing and complete cooperation were essential ingredients to a successful defensive effort by East and West against South's four spade contract.
 North opened the bidding with one diamond, East overcalled with two clubs and South freely bid two spades. West offered a distributional raise to three clubs and North competed with three spades. South carried on to four spades and, tho his opponents had an economical one trick save available at five clubs, they chose to take their chances on defeating the major suit game.
 West opened the three of clubs, North played the king and East won the trick with the ace. East observed that South had followed with the nine and, in view of West's raise to three clubs, the prospects for cashing another trick in that suit appeared somewhat remote.

 Since West was marked with at least one high card for his entry into the auction, East led the ace of diamonds at trick two in the hope of obtaining a ruff. This might come about if West held either the king of diamonds, or else a quick entry in trumps.
 Inasmuch as East had made no attempt to cash a second club trick, West was able to read his partner's intentions when the latter shifted to diamonds. Altho West did not have a high diamond himself, nevertheless, he signaled vigorously with the nine of diamonds, to encourage a continuation.
 East returned the three of diamonds and South was in. He led a trump. West played the ace of spades and then led back a third diamond. East ruffed with the five of spades for the setting trick.
 The diamond shift at trick two by East was vital to defensive strategy. If he attempts to cash a second club trick, for example, the initiative is surrendered to declarer. South ruffs in and leads a trump. West is in with the ace of spades; however, he is unable to give his partner a diamond ruff — and, when South regains the lead, he draws trump.

The Worry Clinic An Urgent Need For 'Marriage Insurance'

Ethel is a smart prophetess in urging insurance firms to furnish "marriage insurance" to their policy holders. They already do a superb job of protecting a home against death of the wage earner, or fire and casualty hazards. But the divorce rate is zooming higher all the time, showing an urgent need for "marriage insurance."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
 Ph. D., M. D.

CASE G-504: Ethel G., aged 23, is soon to be married. "Dr. Crane," she began, "what are some psychological rules for maintaining a happy home?"
 "Insurance companies stress the financial protection in case a husband dies, or the house burns down, but I'd like some insurance for avoiding divorce."
 "Wouldn't it be splendid if insurance companies also added 'psychological insurance' to their other types of coverage?"
 Yes, Ethel is very wise in making that suggestion. For happily married people actually live longer than those who fight like cats and dogs! They don't drink or smoke as much. Nor do they have as many neurotic ailments that often stem from maladjustment in the bedroom.
 A good wife is thus superb insurance against her husband's development of peptic ulcers, angina pectoris, spastic colitis, as well as insomnia and the modern silly "tranquilizer binge" that afflicts millions.
 Divorce mates are far more likely to be chain smokers, drinkers and thus earlier patrons of morticians!
 So please paste these rules on your bathroom mirror:
 (1) It is comparatively rare for a divorce to occur if husband and wife are both active together in the same church!
 This abomination is even more vital than sexual harmony, for the latter can quickly be learned, as from the sex booklet offered below.
 And there is logic behind that injunction, for religion extroverts our attention so we are not as likely to become hypochondriacs (Worry Warts) who focus on our own "innards."
 It likewise promotes unselfishness and brings us into weekly contact with other people who are friendly, helpful and cheerful.

SNCC Elects New Director; Rap Brown Out

NEWARK (AP) — Phillip Hutchings, a soft spoken, young black organizer in Newark has been chosen to succeed Rap Brown as leader of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.
 An informant in the Negro community here said of the change, "SNCC seems to want to get away from the cult of personality that Brown and Stokely Carmichael developed and go back to the unglamorous but necessary job of organizing grass-roots people around specific programs."
 Hutchings, 26, is reliably reported to have been elected at a meeting last weekend in Atlanta, the group's headquarters.
 SNCC has refused to confirm the story for "the white press," but those who have worked closely here with Hutchings for the past three years have confirmed it. Hutchings himself has been unavailable for comment.
 The post itself has been changed to signal the new direction of the financially hard-pressed Black Power organization.

 Hutchings will be "program coordinator," not "chairman," a post which has been abolished.
 Brown, who served as chairman since May 1967, reportedly did not seek re-election. He was recently sentenced to five years in prison on a federal firearms charge. The sentence is under appeal.
 That Hutchings' name is unfamiliar is not surprising.
 He has worked quietly in Newark on the sort of grassroots organizing that was SNCC's primary activity before Carmichael took over two years ago.
 Hutchings came to Newark three years ago following a brief stint as a NSCC field worker in Georgia and Tennessee. He had previously dropped out of Howard University where he was a classmate of Carmichael.
 His initial work in Newark was with SNCC's white counterpart on the New Left, Students for a Democratic Society and its founder, Tom Hayden. Then he became the head SNCC field worker in Newark.
 Hutchings appears to depart from Brown and Carmichael on the question of working with whites. Since Brown and Carmichael took over, no whites have held staff organizing positions with SNCC.

Noise-Reduction Study Ordered
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered a study of how to reduce noise at 29 representative airports, including Raleigh-Durham, N. C.
 A $164,750 contract has been awarded to Bolt, Beranek & Newman, Inc., of Cambridge, Mass. It calls for analysis of noise-abatement takeoff and approach patterns, and changes in engine frequency. The idea is to provide guidelines for federal, state and local officials.

 The FAA said the survey was ordered on the recommendation of the President's jet aircraft noise panel.

Ultimatum Given Franklin Schools

RALEIGH (AP)—U. S. District Court Judge Algernon L. Butler says if the Franklin County School Board fails to present an adequate desegregation plan by July 15, "I will see to it that one is submitted."
 Butler made the comment at a federal court hearing in Raleigh Thursday at which he rejected the county's latest proposal for eliminating its dual school system.
 Franklin County Attorney E. F. Yarborough said the school board had planned to continue operating under a "freedom of choice" plan until a $3.5 million bond issue could be floated to finance new, consolidated schools.
 The judge said the proposal was unacceptable because the bond issue referendum might fail, and the new schools couldn't be completed anyway for at least three years.
 "I threw out the freedom of choice plan a long time ago," he added. "If freedom of choice doesn't work, then another plan must be submitted."

 Yarborough protested that 25 days would not allow the county time to draw up a new proposal.
 "I think it is enough time," Butler replied. "This case has been going on for quite some time now. You have had time to desegregate your schools."
 Butler first ordered the county to abandon freedom of choice last year when he ruled that intimidation of Negroes had prevented the plan from working. The ruling was upheld by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals.
 In his order Thursday, the judge said the Franklin County school system must be completely desegregated during the coming school year.

Workshops For Adults At PTI

Pitt Technical Institute has announced the beginning dates for three summer workshops for adults.
 A workshop dealing primarily with the operation of the rotary and printing calculator, comptometer and bookkeeping - accounting machine will begin July 8 and end July 19. Classes will be held daily from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. during the two-week period.
 The Graphic Arts workshop will meet from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. daily for a two-week period beginning July 22 and ending August 2. The operational procedure of the offset press, thermofax machine and duplicating equipment.
 The lawn beautification and maintenance (including shrubbery) workshop will be conducted from July 8 through July 19, from 9:30 until 11:30 each morning during these two weeks. Emphasis will be on pest and disease control of shrubbery and trees, lawn fertilization, insect control and general maintenance of lawn and shrubs.
 Tuition for each workshop will be $2 and may be paid at the first class meeting.
 Interested persons may call 756-3130 or visit Pitt Technical Institute for further information.

The Mystery At Manteo

Mystery still swirls like fog about Manteo in connection with the disappearance and death of Brenda Joyce Holland, a costumer for "The Lost Colony" last year. Be sure to read this special feature in Sunday's Daily Reflector.

Americans Are Wasters

Americans are the greatest wasters in the world . . . but not all the waste is wasted. Some is used to make parks, golf courses or ski slopes. The pollution problem isn't licked yet, but people are working on it.

Our High Flying Olympic Hopeful

Yachtsman Fit After 3 Days In Life Raft

LONDON (AP) — French yachtsman Jean De Kat was reported fit and well aboard a Norwegian freighter today after surviving three days in the mid-Atlantic in a tiny rubber life raft.

De Kat, 27, took to the raft Tuesday after his three-hulled yacht Yaksha broke up in a storm which scattered competitors in the single-handed trans-Atlantic race.

Fourteen others of the original 35 entrants have not been heard or sighted since the storm but race organizers are not yet worried. Eight carried no radio transmitters and others may be out of radio range or deliberately keeping their positions secret.

The race, sponsored by the London Observer newspaper, started from Plymouth, England, June 1 with Newport, R.I., as the destination. Traditional single-hulled yachts so far seem to be making better progress than the experimental designs — twin-hulled catamarans and three-hulled trimarans.

De Kat, a bearded artist with long deep sea experience, built the 50-foot Yaksha himself. It raised a good many eyebrows when it arrived at Plymouth for the start.

Yachting men doubted that Yaksha could stand an Atlantic battering.

On Tuesday a Trans World Airliner captain heard De Kat calling for help. He reported his mast was broken and rudder gone, and that one of the outrigger hulls had been torn away.

A Royal Air Force plane of the Atlantic patrol spotted his life raft as dusk neared Thursday night and guided the 10,000-ton Norwegian freighter Jagona to the rescue.

Leaders of the Atlantic race are expected to reach Newport next week.

Two English yachts, both of conventional design, are believed to be up front — the Sir Thomas Lipton, sailed by Geoffrey Williams, and Myth of Malham, sailed by Noel Bevan.

RALEIGH (A) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were steady to mostly 25 cents higher. Tops of 20.25 at Rocky Mount; 19.75-20.50 Wilson 19.50-20.00 Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive, Newton Grove, Albertson, Lumberton; 19.75-20.25 Bethel; 20.50 Greensboro; 20.25 Selma; 20.00 Siler City, Denton, and Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was steady. Price of live poultry at the farm was 14 to 14 1/2 mostly 14 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market widened initial gains in active trading this afternoon.

resurgent utilities. Ashland Oil, ahead nearly 4 points, was a poor second on volume. It traded on a block of 25,000 shares.

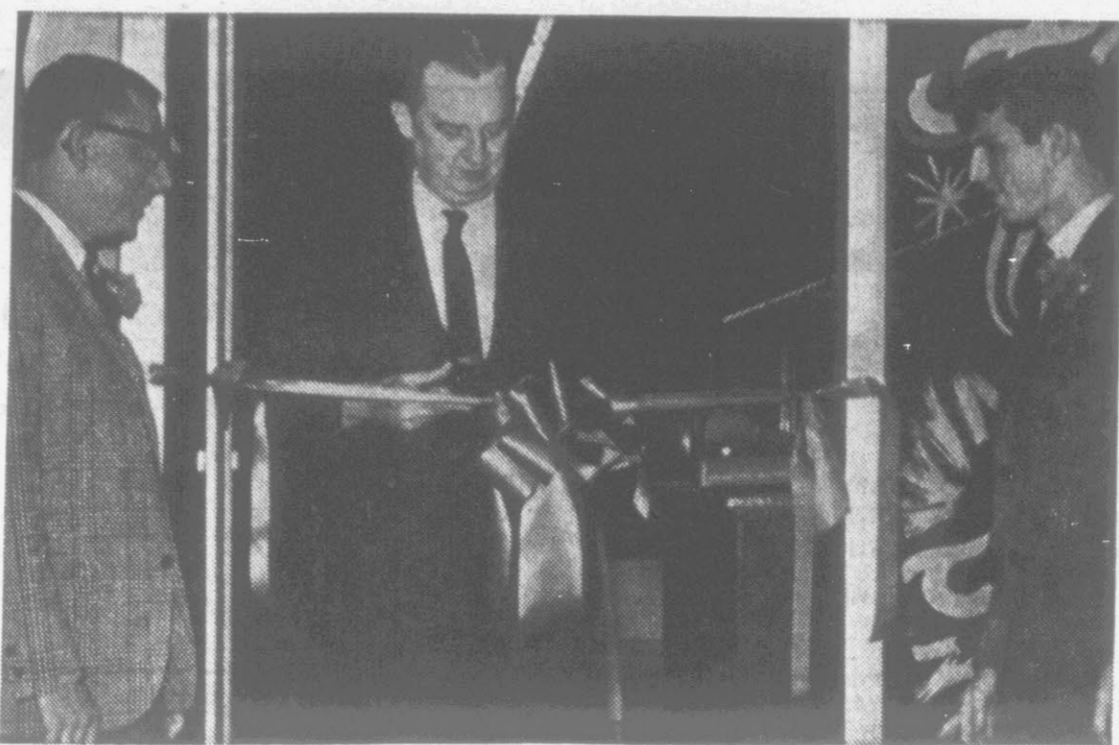

Among other active leaders, National General was up more than 2 as unconfirmed rumors of merger swirled about it. Hooker Chemical, up nearly 2 and Occidental Petroleum, ahead about 1 1/2 were other heavily traded gainers.

The market's strength came as somewhat of a surprise to those who looked for some uneasiness due to a sharp drop in May housing starts, a slowdown in furniture sales and uncertainty as to how the investing public would take the pending tax increase.

Big Three auto stocks continued soft, losing fractions. Steels and rubbers were irregularly higher.

General Foods, up about 3, reflected institutional demand. Lorillard rose about 1 1/2. Polaroid and Xerox were off about a point each on point taking, and IBM slipped nearly 2.

Prices advanced in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Tougher Gun Controls Are Under Study

WASHINGTON (AP)—An effort to put more muscle in a bill banning mail order sales of rifles and shotguns is under way in the Senate while in the House the same measure is headed for a possible midweek vote.

"Anything short of registration and licensing will not be effective," said Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., after the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday, put off action on President Johnson's new bill for one week.

"Not a strong gun control measure," was the way Tydings described the bill which at the same time was being approved in the House Judiciary Committee.

Joining Tydings in the move for stricter action was Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., longtime foe of sterner weapons control. Both serve on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"A tremendous gap" in the bill, said Hruska, is its failure to restrict mail order sales within a state and not just across its borders.

Reports Laid To Radar Errors

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. sources indicated today that misreading of radar signals may have caused erroneous reports of enemy helicopter sightings around the demilitarized zone and triggered mistaken American attacks on allied warships in the area.

The sources said it was "highly probable" that American planes and artillery fired last weekend on allied ships, which on radar scopes appeared to be low flying helicopters. A U.S. patrol boat was sunk and an Australian destroyer got 200 holes from American missiles.

The U.S. Command had no further comment today. A spokesman said only that an investigation is still going on and no official comment will be made until it is completed.

The reported sightings of moving aerial lights and radar traces interpreted as enemy helicopters began last Saturday and continued all week. South Vietnamese sources claimed that 12 Russian-made 'copters were shot down below the demilitarized zone by American planes or artillery. But despite intense air reconnaissance, there have been no reports of any wreckage.

All the reported activity has been at night and unconfirmable by visual observation.

'Depression' Off Coast Of S.C.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A hurricane hunter plane was sent out today to check on a tropical depression about 150 miles southeast of the South Carolina coast.

The weather bureau reported the depression was near latitude 32 north and longitude 77 west at 6 a.m., EDT, moving northeast at about five miles an hour and extended out 200 miles in the eastern semicircle. Higher winds are likely in some of the heavier squalls, said forecaster Raymond Kraft.

Small craft off Savannah to Cape Hatteras were advised not to venture far from shore.

Taft Elected . . .

(Continued From Page 1) ville since 1939, and has been professionally associated with Home Builders & Supply Co., Greenville; Eastern Lumber & Supply Co., Winterville; Dixie Supply Co., Greenville and Goldsboro; and Lyndale Development Co., Greenville.

Active in church affairs at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and in the North Carolina Methodist Conference, Taft has served as chairman of the official board and Sunday School teacher at Jarvis Memorial, and as a member of the North Carolina Conference Board of Higher Education and the Methodist Foundation.

His civic activities have included service to the American Red Cross as Pitt County chairman for 4 years and as a national Red Cross vice chairman. He has been active in Democratic Party leadership, the American Legion and the Elks Club, and is one of 5 members of the Greenville Utilities Commission which operates the electric, water, gas, waste disposal and CATV systems for the city of Greenville.

Taft is married to Helen Fleming Taft. They have 2 sons, E. Hoover Taft III and Thomas F. Taft.

The Greenville man and the 35 other Louisburg College trustees function as the official policy making body of the 182-year-old institution, which expects 800 students this fall, with an operating budget of $1,400,000.

Plans For Rocky Mount Hospital Studied Here

Plans for the eight million dollar, all-private-room hospital to be built in Rocky Mount were studied by the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society at their meeting Wednesday night.

Pitt Memorial Hospital is planning a 100-bed addition to current facilities and will have the same architects as the Rocky Mount hospital.

Mark Snoddy, architect for Freeman and White Associates of Charlotte, explained the plans to the group which included the county commissioners and the board of trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital, and Bryant Aldridge, chairman of the board of trustees and administrator of the Nash General Hospital.

LONDON (AP)—Piccadilly Circus, London's tourist and night life center with a naked statue of the god of love in the middle, will be streamlined with underground traffic, new buildings and hotels, the Greater London Council announced Thursday.

The plan to give the downtown traffic circle a new look will keep the present bright lights and the famed statue of Eros—a winged figure with a bow and arrow.

The work will begin, the council said, in about three years.

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—Authorities say Richard G. Mendoza, 26, has escaped from the Ventura County Hospital prison ward in his motorized wheelchair.

They said he "just slipped out of the detention ward and hasn't been seen since." Mendoza, who is paralyzed from the waist down, is believed to have fled Wednesday night. He was awaiting trial on a narcotics charge.
