Talked, But No Progress

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman thanked North Vietnam today for its announced decision to release three captured American pilots in what he hopes is a gesture toward future progress in the Paris peace talks.

The session lasted about three hours, making it one of the shortest of the 11 meetings held here since May 13. The average time had been running close to four hours. Again there was a coffee break of about 40 minutes, during which Harriman, Thuy and members of their negotiating teams talked informally.

With no rainfall for the last two or three days, the river level stood at 2.3 feet this morning. Winds from the southwest are traveling 2 miles per hour.

Found 'Corn' In The Corn Barn

CONFISCATED BOOZE . . . Pitt County ABC officers Walter Taylor and J. M. Ward, Constable Frank Peaden, and ABC enforcer H. B. Lilley found 46 gallons of non-tax-paid booze concealed under corn in a barn and arrested Thomas Jefferson Carmon, 51-year-old Negro of Route 2, Walstonburg on charges of possessing the whiskey for the purpose of sale about 11:45 p.m. Tuesday. Officers said the barn in which the illegal spirits were found was at the Carmon's Farmville Township residence. Plastic one-gallon jugs were being used to hold the booze. Carmon was placed under a $300 bond for appearance in Pitt County Recorders Court. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Accident-Free For 17 Years, And Then . . .

Families Return After Chlorine Gas Dissipates

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—For 17 years Walter McDougald handled tanks of deadly chlorine gas at the Ft. Bragg Water Purification plant and never had an accident.

The plant's accident-free record ended Tuesday when a tank toppled loose from a hoist swinging it into place. The tank crashed to the floor and pinned McDougald beneath it.

A hose coupling snapped and the deadly gas began spurting free.

Before the crisis was over five hours later, some 1,700 persons had been evacuated from their jobs and homes in a quarter-mile square area.

McDougald and three other persons were hospitalized but all were in satisfactory condition today.

Army officials rushed to the scene with a wind-making machine used to train Army paratroopers and it helped blow the fumes from the area.

For five hours, the sprawling Ft. Bragg military reservation and adjoining Pope Air Force Base operated under emergency conditions.

A total of 1,500 of those evacuated were airmen moved from Pope's Flight Operations Center and maintenance buildings, which are about 150 yards from the plant. Flights continued normally through the use of alternate control systems.

The remainder of those evacuated were residents of 142 trailers and nine houses, most of them dependents of military personnel.

The evacuation was carried out smoothly.

"An air policeman came to the door and said 'leave,' so I dressed the two kids and we left," said Mrs. Glenn Cox.

Her trailer home was 200 yards from the water plant.

Other plant employees turned off the gas tank's escape valve and freed McDougald.

McDougald, 45, of Dunn, was admitted to Womack Army Hospital along with the plant secretary, Mrs. Mary Thompson, 19, of Fayetteville, and two children—Richard W. Arrowood, 5, and his brother James, 4, sons of Sgt. 1-C Richard Arrowood of Ft. Bragg.

McDougald and Mrs. Thompson were treated for chlorine gas inhalation. The two children were admitted for observation.

Doctors said today all four would be released later in the day.

Officials said they did not know how much chlorine escaped from the tank, which was filled with 2,000 pounds of the precautionary examinations at the hospital.

Work Begins On ECU Classroom Building

Construction of East Carolina University's largest classroom building yet is underway, signaling a long stride toward the long range ECU plan of developing a pedestrian campus.

The pedestrian plan would eliminate all but service vehicles from the main campus areas and provide ample parking areas in strategic locations near the campus fringes.

The newest ECU construction project fits snugly between the new music building and Memorial Gymnasium. It will be a quadrangular structure with a 4-story south wing parallel to East 10th Street and a trio of 3-story wings framing in a large courtyard to the north.

Total budget for the new building and its equipment is $3.3 million. That includes a state appropriation of $2.3 million and a federal grant of $1 million.

L. P. Cox of Sanford is the general contractor. Others are Biemann and Rowell of Raleigh (plumbing), Bullock and Humble of Greensboro (heating and air conditioning), Watson Electrical of Wilson (electrical work), Southern Elevator of Greensboro (elevators), and MACO Electronics of Raleigh (intercommunications system).

The architectural firm is Jesse Page and Associates of Raleigh. During construction some 75 parking spaces in the area will be temporarily out of service. But a 225-car lot across 10th Street to the south will more than take up the slack.

The new building will be the new home of the university's departments of geography, history, political science and sociology.

Area Crops Suffer From Lack Of Rain

"Tobacco is suffering terribly from lack of moisture," said Sam Winchester, chairman of the Agricultural Extension Service here.

The damage is not irreversible, however, according to Winchester, "if we could get a good general rain, we'd be in good shape here."

Winchester speculated that if another week were to go by without rain, "farmers would be burning immature tobacco to keep it from burning up, and this would result in a poor, trashy grade of tobacco."

Not only is the tobacco crop in danger, according to Winchester, but the corn crop is suffering from "extreme moisture stress." To a lesser degree, soybeans and peanuts are being damaged by the drought.

The cucumber crop is at "a virtual standstill" for those growers who do not have an irrigation system, Winchester pointed out.

The Fountain and Bethel areas are suffering because they did not receive sufficient moisture earlier in the season, according to Winchester. The Belvoir, Grifton, and Pactolus areas are feeling the effects of the lack of rain a little more than other sections because of the sandy soil, according to Winchester.

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. airliner carrying 214 Vietnam-bound troops that was held for two days by the Soviet Union flew to Tokyo today and the pilot denied that he violated Soviet air space.

"I did not stray over Russian territory," said Capt. Joseph Tosolini of Bethany, Conn. He said he had flown the same route from Tacoma, Wash. to Japan many times.

Tosolini said he argued with the Russians over the content of a letter that he signed indicating the plane's position. He said he was made to sign the letter as a condition for the release of the plane and its passengers.

Navigator Larry Guernon said his calculations showed the chartered four-engine jet was well outside the line defining Soviet air space off the Kurile Islands when it was intercepted by Russian MIGs Monday and forced to land on the island of Iturup north of Japan.

The Soviet Union said the plane violated Soviet air space and the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration concluded that Soviet air space was violated because the plane's crew made a navigational error. The State Department apologized, the Soviet government released the plane with unexpected swiftness.

In Washington, a Federal aviation administration spokesman said in reply to a question, "We have reliable information, including radar data, that there was a violation of Soviet air space." He added the plane may have been off course by as much as 100 miles.

The servicemen on board left Japan for South Vietnam, the Army announced.

Tosolini, flanked at a news conference by his 17-member crew that included nine stewards, said he signed a letter as a condition for his release. He said corrections in the letter indicated the Soviets had perhaps erred in fixing the plane's position.

The first letter the Russians wrote for Tosolini to sign admitting he had violated Soviet air space listed the time between his plane's interception by Soviet MIGs to the time it landed at the Soviet base at "something like 35 minutes," Tosolini said.

The veteran pilot said he did not sign the first letter. "Then," he continued, "they prepared a second letter in which the time was changed to something like 53 minutes," he said. He indicated other changes were also made.

Tosolini said it was obvious by figuring the distance that a plane like his new DC8 covers travelling at a speed of eight miles a minute, that it could not possibly have been as close to Soviet territory as the Russians alleged.

Tosolini told how the plane was intercepted.

"The flight was perfectly normal. We continued on track. The first real knowledge I had of trouble was when I looked out of the copilot's window and noticed an aircraft. I was startled and took a second look and saw a red star on it.

"The pilot of the aircraft made a maneuver and came up to our left side and motioned for us to turn to its base.

"I asked the navigator twice to check his position. The navigator reported we were not over Soviet territory.

"I turned to the left hoping to get out of his (the MIG's) way. It was then that he fired a burst. It was a machinegun as far as I could tell.

"The MIG was flying parallel to us and it fired straight ahead. I felt the best course of action was to follow his command and turned to the right. We descended until we broke through the overcast and the MIG guided us to the airfield."

Others aboard the DC8 reported sighting a second MIG behind them.

After landing, Tosolini said the Russians interrogated him continuously.

"I assume they thought we were spying," he said. "I was questioned on the type of equipment, whether we were carrying weapons, which we were not, and other questions."

Tosolini, stressed, "We were not mistreated in any way."

Some of the troops aboard the plane said they "had kind of a party" during the two days they were held. Upon release by the Soviet, the plane flew to Yokota, 30 miles west of Tokyo.

Cool Front

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief from the heat wave came today to portions of North Carolina and may encompass the state by early Thursday.

A cool front pushed into the mountains Tuesday night and set off thundershowers over western sections.

The weather bureau said early today: "The cool front is expected to continue moving southeastward through the remainder of North Carolina and off the coast during the next 24 hours."

"Therefore, the heat wave is about over, with a trend to somewhat cooler temperatures beginning Thursday."

The bureau said scattered thundershowers were likely to occur mostly this afternoon and evening east of the mountains.

Generally fair and mild weather is expected Thursday and Friday.

Low temperatures tonight likely will range from 55 to 60 degrees in the mountains to about 70 along the south coast following afternoon highs of 76 to 83 in the mountains and 90 to 95 near the coast.

Westmoreland Is Sworn In As Army Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made a surprise visit to the Pentagon today and watched smilingly as Gen. William C. Westmoreland was sworn in as the Army's 25th chief of staff.

"Westy," as he is known to many, said he accepted the Army's top uniformed job with "pride and humility."

He thanked his predecessor, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, who retired Tuesday, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff for their support during the war and concluded: "To the authorities over me and to the troops under me I pledge my loyalty."

After the oath was administered and Westmoreland had spoken, the President stepped forward to say quietly: "Nice going."

Then the party, headed by Johnson and Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, stepped outside the Pentagon where Westmoreland was accorded full honors including a 19-gun salute.

Scott, Other Demo Leaders Hurl Flurry Of Charges At Gardner

RALEIGH (AP) — Fireworks between Republican Jim Gardner and Democrat Bob Scott are popping this Fourth of July holiday week and the North Carolina gubernatorial election is still five months away.

A flurry of charges were hurled at Gardner Tuesday by Scott and two other state leaders.

Scott, in his most direct attack of the campaign, accused Gardner of "trying to make deals" by promising persons who contributed $1,000 to the Gardner campaign that they would receive special stationery guaranteeing their correspondence would get Gardner's personal attention.

The promise, Scott said, was made in a letter mailed two months ago from the Gardner campaign headquarters to 200 potential contributors.

A Gardner aide said in a telephone interview from Washington that the 4th District congressman would not answer the "ridiculous charges," but he may comment on them at a Raleigh news conference next Monday and level a few charges of his own against Scott.

Gardner said in a recent news conference he accepted full responsibility for the letter seeking contributions but said that it had been sent out without his approval by a campaign worker who was no longer on the Gardner staff.

Scott, in a statement released Tuesday, said that Gardner had approved the letter "in which he promised special favors for those rich enough to lay a $1,000 pipeline into Gardner's hip pocket."

"Gardner knew all about the special interest letter," Scott said. "The man who signed it wrote, 'I am naturally speaking for Congressman Jim Gardner.'"

The lieutenant governor said Gardner "simply got caught trying to make deals. If he had not been caught he wouldn't have said anything about the letter and his deals with his 200 special friends."

On the heels of Scott's charges came attacks by State Sen. Tom White, D-Lenoir, and W. M. Barbee, president of the North Carolina AFL-CIO.

White, who is retiring after three terms as chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, accused Gardner of saying state government spends more than it takes in.

"Candidate Gardner either doesn't know much about state government in North Carolina," White said, "or is speaking with reckless irresponsibility. If he is not trying to mislead, he's admitting that he's not even familiar with the Executive Budget Act. In either case, the citizens of North Carolina cannot and should not rely on that kind of leadership."

Gardner, in a fiscal policy speech at Salisbury June 24, said state government should be run like a business.

"It should not spend more money than it takes in," he said. "Wasteful spending has occurred under present and past administrations."

North Carolina law prohibits deficit spending in state government.

Barbee said Gardner spoke "without thinking" when the congressman announced he would introduce legislation to limit U.S. Supreme Court tenure to eight years.

Gardner proposed the bill Monday as a means of preventing "political pay-off appointments" to the high court.

Barbee said the bill would enable any two-term president to name all nine members of the tribunal and result in a "welter of political pay-off appointments."

A heart was led to the ace in order to put the queen of clubs thru. The finesse lost to West's king and a spade continuation thru North's queen enabled East to cash four tricks in that suit, and South suffered a 100 point setback on the deal.

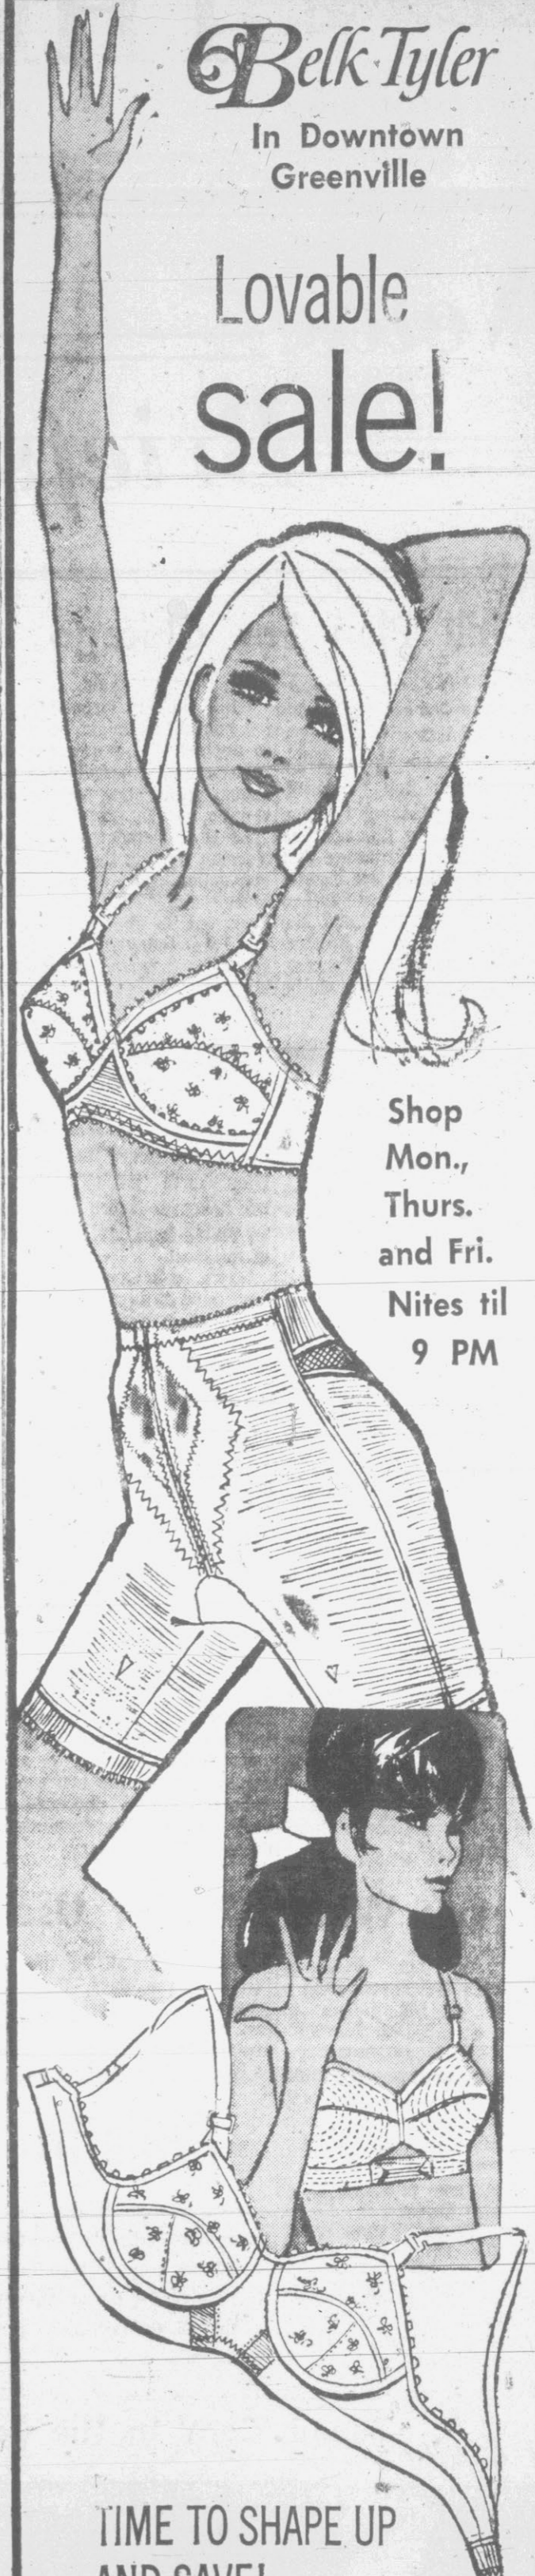

Declarer would not have gained by permitting East to hold the lead with the jack of spades when West shifted to that suit. A diamond return by East drives out South's ace and, when West gets in with the king of clubs, he can cash the setting tricks in diamonds.

South can assure his contract by winning the opening diamond lead and then crossing over to the dummy in hearts to take the club finesse for, even if West gets in with the king of clubs, he cannot continue diamonds without giving declarer another trick. As soon as the clubs are established, South has nine tricks — four hearts, three clubs, one spade, and one diamond. Declarer should, therefore, have devoted his efforts to keeping East — the danger hand — out of the lead.

When East played the three, however, West was not taken in by declarer's actions.

West realized from East's discouraging signal that South was apt to hold both missing diamond honors and, in an attempt to get his partner in to lead thru declarer's holding, West de-

Mother Condemned For Telling Of Misconduct

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The sidewalk in front of our house was all torn up, so the city decided to replace it. They had just poured the cement and had it all smoothed over, when my son, age 4, went outside to play.

I told him that if he went near that freshly-poured cement walk, I would break his neck. He was out there all morning and he never went near it.

A neighbor boy, age 5, came over to play with him, and I told him the same thing. That kid wasn't there ten minutes when I saw him put his foot into the fresh cement. It was no accident. He didn't "fall," and nobody pushed him. He deliberately stepped into it, then he took off like a shot.

I went right to his house and told his mother. She promptly located the workmen and they repaired it. But here is my point. The mother said that since I saw the damage done, and it was repairable, I could have just as easily located the repairman myself and left her out of it. Now I am the villain and the neighborhood stool pigeon. Was I wrong to tell her or not?

BAD NAME

DEAR BAD NAME: Mothers who want their children to learn the difference between right and wrong are more than grateful for information regarding their misconduct.

Apparently your neighbor is an oddball. And those who would condemn you for doing what you did are as odd as she is.

DEAR ABBY: Herb and I have had a fairly good marriage for 14 years—until five months ago, when he started giving driving lessons after work to supplement his income.

Most people can learn to drive a car in a month, but there's this attractive divorcee he's been giving lessons to for nearly four months. Every time I ask about her, he tells me she is far from being ready to take her driver's tests as she is a slow learner. Herb always gives this woman his last appointment, and he comes home very late at night, dead tired. People are starting to talk.

How much longer should my husband give this lady lessons before I tell him I think he's taught her all she can learn?

MILWAUKEE MRS. DEAR MRS.: It appears that your husband is "supplementing" more than his income. Tell Herb that if his slow-learning client can't drive a car by now, she should get a horse, and quit horsing around with the driving instructor.

DEAR ABBY: A while back I was in a very bad automobile accident. Since that time I have been afraid to get into a car. I am all but ruining my social life.

My husband said I must control myself and cut out this foolishness, but I just can't. It is torture for me to get into a car. I become so tense and nervous just thinking I will never get out of that car alive.

Can you or any of your readers give me any good advice? I am sure there must be others who have gone thru the same thing.

PITTSBURGH

DEAR PITTSBURGH: Your "fear" is nothing to be ashamed of, but the "foolishness" is in allowing it to go unchecked. Ask your family doctor to recommend a psychiatrist to help you resolve your fears.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S NEW BOOK-LET "WHAT TEEN-AGERS WANT TO KNOW" SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90069.

Long, Tedious Negotiation Road

It has been a long, tedious road of negotiations between the Western World and the Soviet Union, but gradually, constructive results in terms of treaties and better relations have come from these continued efforts.

On the heels of the signing of the historic nuclear non-proliferation agreement this week there were announcements in Washington and Moscow that preliminary talks have begun looking toward agreements which would limit both offensive and defensive nuclear missile systems. There can be no doubt that these discussions will be long, and negotiations difficult before any final agreement can be reached on missile system limitations. The time required to hammer out an acceptable agreement may be measured more accurately in terms of years rather than months.

But when and if the treaty can be consummated, another major step will have been taken toward halting the arms race between the major powers.

Make no mistake about it, there are still disturbing factors even in the face of significant progress. While the nuclear non-proliferation treaty was being signed around the world on Monday, devices detected another powerful underground nuclear blast set off in the Soviet Union. While diplomats and high officials congratulated themselves on a most important step in Washington, Moscow, London and other capitals, word spread that Red China has developed its first intercontinental ballistic missile capable of delivering its hydrogen bomb power that has come into being in the past year.

The arms race has by no means ended. The major powers of the world are not yet ready to trust agreements in the place of weapons to protect their interests and their sovereignty. In spite of this, there are important signs of progress in a number of directions. In time, with good faith on both sides and with continued diligent effort, there will be additional steps that will signal the gradual slowing of the arms race.

These gradual steps, although they may seem far removed, are important to every citizen of the world, for they represent the movement toward the day when law rather than weapons will be the ultimate means of resolving international disputes.

'Feudal Barons' Hurt Humphrey

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — The short-changing of McCarthy delegates here, which may well cost Vice President Humphrey New York's electoral votes and perhaps the Presidency itself, was, ironically, the decision not of Humphrey's strategists but of the petty feudal barons who preside over New York's tottering Democratic party.

Considering the overwhelming lead in delegates to the National Convention now enjoyed by Humphrey, his planners were willing to be magnanimous in dividing up New York's 67 at-large delegate votes. The veto against magnanimity came from county leaders, who set an absolute ceiling of 15% for Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

The result will be more than the unprecedented walkout of McCarthy supporters from last Friday's meeting of the state Democratic committee at the Commodore Hotel here. Plans are underway to get McCarthy on the state ballot as an independent in November—a separatist move that would deliver New York to the Republicans.

What makes this so remarkable is that these catastrophic consequences could have been avoided at the cost of a meaningless 14 delegate vote. The reason why the county leaders refused to pay that price reveals much about the deterioration of the Democratic party here.

The story begins June 18 when McCarthy scored a stunning surprise in the New York primary, capturing 62 out of 123 district delegates to the National Convention. State Chairman John Burns, a lieutenant of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was impressed. His first impulse was that McCarthy should get a commensurate portion of at-large delegates.

Consequently, McCarthy leaders were overjoyed when they met with Burns privately in Manhattan early last week. Jack Shea, a suave veteran of reform politics, did the negotiating for McCarthy and asked for half the 67 at-large delegates. Burns replied that wasn't outlandish and he would try to get it.

But trying isn't doing. When Kennedy was alive, Burns controlled the state committee. Now power had devolved again to the county leaders, each supreme in his fiefdom. They exercised that power in meetings with Burns last Thursday, vetoing anything close to 34 delegates for McCarthy.

It was not that the county leaders were staunch Humphrey men. All had supported Kennedy and some — Joe Crangle of Buffalo and Stanley Steingut of Brooklyn — were Kennedy insiders.

Nor had they been instructed by Humphrey national strategists to take a hard line. Eugene Foley, a close Humphrey advisor and now his political representative in New York, privately urged a generous compromise. So, surprisingly, did Humphrey's highly influential administrative assistant, hard-boiled William Connell.

What happened was politics as usual. The county leaders protested to Burns that they could not turn delegate chairs over to McCarthy insurgents seeking to destroy them. Trips to national conventions belonged, they insisted, to regulars who had opened their bank account. Without such patronage, the county leaders protested, the clubhouse system

Student Power Unveiled

WASHINGTON—I hadn't realized the extent of "student power" in this country until I had dinner at a friend's house the other night. Among the guests seated at the table were a well-known TV newscaster, the head of a congressional committee, a syndicated columnist and the editor of a national magazine. An added starter was the 19-year-old son of one of the guests, who had just finished his freshman year at Amherst. We shall call him Stephen. Although it went against protocol, the hostess insisted that Stephen sit on her right.

As Stephen was cutting his meal we all watched him nervously, hoping some pearls would drop out of his mouth. But when he didn't say anything, the congressman jumped in.

"Tell me, Stephen," he said "what do your friends think about the negative income tax?"

Stephen looked up in surprise. "I haven't heard them discuss it, though I imagine they're for it."

"Well put," the congressman said. "Let me ask you this, Stephen," the syndicated columnist said. "Does your generation believe the present revolutionary forces now at work throughout the world can produce a viable solution to the problems of pestilence, famine and leisure?"

"I don't think you can generalize about student revolutionaries," Stephen replied. "The columnist wrote this down in a small notebook. 'Stephen' the TV commentator said. 'If we grant you that 'The Graduate' was a condemnation of our materialistic bourgeois society, would you grant us that there are some good things in 'Gone With the Wind'?"

"I think there is some good in all movies," Stephen said. "As a matter of fact, many of my friends enjoyed 'Gone With the Wind.'"

Everyone in the room seemed pleased. The editor then asked Stephen, "How do we get out of Vietnam?"

Stephen said, "You just get out. It's that simple."

The congressman shook his head in amazement. "That could be the solution. It just could."

We were eating our salad and Stephen muttered something. Everyone looked up. "What did he say? What did he say?"

"He said 'Please pass the salt.'"

"I don't think you or anybody else would know who made it," says Gerry Thomas, a former Nebraska farmboy and now frequently the man behind that semi anonymous tag, "industry spokesman."

In a restaurant, he agreed, "you would have an opinion of whether it was good or bad." But, he added, "since you wouldn't be thinking along certain lines you wouldn't detect the difference."

The trend to restaurant use of precooked dinners has been developing for several years, partly for convenience, partly because of a shortage of chefs and the rising cost of employing one: as much as $25,000 for a quality man. Regardless of price, however, there aren't nearly enough chefs.

With obvious disdain at this lack of foresight, Sam Martin, editor of an industry publication, remarked that "The kids today are taking up physics. They don't want to be cooks. It isn't glamorous."

Some claim also that precooked meals found increasing favor with restaurants when the minimum wage rose to $1.60 an hour in February. One frozen food executive claimed a growing trend "rapidly accelerated" about that time, presumably as restaurants turned to more automation.

The mass producer of frozen meals then can regulate its storeroom afford the most expensive chef to formulate recipes, laboratory technicians to "fabricate" them, and a stable labor force to run them down the assembly line.

The restaurant that uses the meals then can regulate its storage, cut waste, and employ relatively low-pay personnel to heat the meals. It also isn't restricted to serve only when a chef is on duty.

Present offerings include almost everything from hors d'oeuvres to soup to entree, sauces, desserts. Some of the best hotels no longer employ sauciers but instead melt frozen newburg or mushroom blends to spread on their best dishes.

Some companies in the frozen food business concentrate only on dishes that involve considerable preparation time, great complexity and high labor costs—on Stroganoff and lasagna, for example—ignoring the steaks and chops and other readily prepared dishes.

More precooked dinners also are being served in hospitals, nursing homes, schools and industrial cafeterias. University students reportedly are going big for precooked omelets, the airlines are considering offering them also.

Developing Tourist Business
Iceland is also seeking to increase its tourist business. It is promoting its salmon and trout streams; its geyser, after which all the geysers in the world are named; its glaciers; its glider trips; its plane trips over Surtsey, the world's newest volcanic island; the site of the Althing, the world's first parliament established a thousand years ago; its volcanoes and its Dark City, a lava-rock formation in which people sometimes get lost for hours.

It is promoting stopovers on Pan American and Icelandic Airlines at less than $20 a day for hotel, meals and sightseeing, advertised to be a happy way to break the monotony of flights across the Atlantic. Icelandic Airlines is also promoting round-trips by air from New York to Europe for as little as $215, with hotel rates of $5 or less a day, including breakfast and sightseeing trips.

Perhaps the greatest handicap to tourism is the country's name. The island is washed by the Gulf Stream and summer weather is moderate. But Icelanders will never change the name of their nation. They are too proud.

Recreation Has Value To N.C.

By JOEL ARRINGTON Outdoor Editor N. C. Travel and Promotion Division

RALEIGH — The economic value of outdoor recreation resources, mainly hunting and fishing, has recently created a rash of speculation in some of our neighboring states.

For example, a writer in the April edition of Georgia Game & Fish, official publication of the Georgia Game and Fish Commission, estimates that wildlife resources pump some $500 million annually into Georgia's economy.

How close this figure is to fact is for economists and statisticians to determine. But it does indicate a growing awareness of the economic value of wildlife resources.

To bring the issue closer to home, the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission recently computed at $300 the recreational value of each buck deer killed. The figure was based on educated guesses of daily expenditures by deer hunters and the computation that on the average, each deer hunter spends about 20 days afield for each deer killed. The Commission estimates that a deer hunter spends $3 per day for permits, $5 per day for guide fee, and $7 daily for food lodging and supplies.

Considering there were about 40,000 deer killed during the 1964-1965 hunting season, it is apparent that a large sum of money is spent annually by deer hunters in North Carolina. The Commission's Division of Game further estimates that the number of deer hunters has increased 35 per cent during the past three years. Apparently, deer hunting is attracting devotees at a greater rate than small game hunting. It is known that deer hunters travel farther and spend more individually than small game hunters, although the total contribution of small game hunters is greater simply because of their larger number.

Over the past five or six years, total fishing and hunting license sales in North Carolina have shown an annual increase of about four or five per cent. This may be taken as an indication that more people are hunting and fishing each year and, consequently, the two sports are contributing more money to the State's economy.

Every five years since 1955, the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife has conducted a "National Survey of Fishing and Hunting." The most recent report states that 33 million fishermen and hunters spent $4 billion in the U. S. in 1965.

Lack of reliable figures on the numbers of Tar Heel saltwater fishermen makes it difficult to apply the national figures to North Carolina. However, we do know that during the 1964-65 fishing season approximately 700,000 anglers fished in the State's inland waters. The survey shows that inland fishermen spend as average $89 annually. Based on the national average, total expenditures by freshwater anglers in North Carolina exceeds $62 million a year.

We know also that during the 1964-65 hunting season there were over a million hunters licensed in North Carolina. According to the National Survey, each hunter spent an average of $82 during the year for a total expenditure of $82 million in North Carolina.

Since saltwater fishermen are not licensed we can only guess at the total number each year in North Carolina. A conservative estimate would be 600,000, based generally on pier visitations and boat charters and rentals. If each spends the national average of $96 annually an additional $57 million is contributed to the State's economy.

GIVE RELIGION A CHANCE
John Flske, the historian, once said: "Religion is God working among men in everyday living."

We may not regard this a sufficiently inclusive definition of religion, but that it is admirable as far as it goes no one can deny. "Religion is God working among men in everyday living."

In their reverence for religion people sometimes push it off into a realm which has no contact with the everyday events of life. They are so impressed with the supernatural aspects of the life of Jesus that they forget He was human as well as divine. They have such high regard for the sacredness of their faith that they lose sight of the fact that it is something God intends should be used in our life every day. The religion that stays up in the clouds is not religion at all — it is pious superstition. It is only when men bring the Spirit of God down into their business and home life, into their thoughts and aspirations, that they can be said to have "religion at all."

True religion is always at its best amid the rough-and-tumble of everyday life. We have made a mistake by trying to keep it within the bounds of a sanctuary. Religion, is God's gift to man, and such being the case it flourishes best amid the work-a-day circumstances of life.

Other Editors Saying One Hour More Can Help

(Kiston Free Press)
In the planning for a new auction season for flue-cured tobacco the Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee has allowed the Old Belt a two-week earlier opening and increased the sales time for the Eastern Belt by one hour. The committee will meet again July 15 to complete its plans for the 1968 openings.

The Georgia-Florida Belt will sell four hours per day, five days a week for eight sales days. It will then drop to four hours per day, four days a week. All other belts, except the Eastern, would operate four houses daily.

The Eastern Belt would be allowed an additional hour of selling time because of the heavier volume of its production area and the urgent need to avert congestion in the sales again this year. Its sales would run five hours per day, four days per week from the beginning.

This concession on sales time will help the Eastern Belt. It is not all the Belt may need to keep its full quota of leaf from being sold across belt lines in other market areas, but it is a step in the right direction. Market leaders here and throughout the Eastern Belt will await with interest the setting of the opening date and completion of plans for the Fall season.

REYKJAVIK, — Icelanders are a hardy breed. They are descended from the Norse pirates and the Irish and Scotch slaves and the weaker strains have died off in cyclic famines.

Jonas H. Haralz, director of the Economic Institute, says that researches going back almost a thousand years show that there have been food and population cycles over that time, with the population rising to around its present total of 200,000 and then declining sharply during periods of food shortages resulting from weather and fish cycles.

There will be no starvation in the present economic slump. There is adequate food production and resources for importing more. A highly socialized system of government has prevented the development of slums and poverty. But the decline in fish catches and sales and shortened summers do threaten economic stringency.

Plans For Future
A visitor would never notice it. The fine restaurants and few night clubs are filled, there is dancing in the streets on public holidays and the Icelanders maintain their traditional buoyancy.

And there are plans for more prosperity.

A Swiss company has been induced to start building a huge hydroelectric plant for refining aluminum. The hydroelectric potential in Iceland is so great that it will pay to ship bauxite all the way from Australia — and that's about as far away from Iceland as you can get — to the island republic for smelting, and then ship it to world markets for sale.

The water power of Iceland is enormous and largely untapped. The government is trying to induce other foreign nations to develop more and is hopeful that the success of the aluminum project will attract other ventures.

However, it recognizes the fact that industrialization will take time and hydroelectric projects, by their very economy, will create only a limited number of jobs.

Developing Tourist Business
Iceland is also seeking to increase its tourist business. It is promoting its salmon and trout streams; its geyser, after which all the geysers in the world are named; its glaciers; its glider trips; its plane trips over Surtsey, the world's newest volcanic island; the site of the Althing, the world's first parliament established a thousand years ago; its volcanoes and its Dark City, a lava-rock formation in which people sometimes get lost for hours.

It is promoting stopovers on Pan American and Icelandic Airlines at less than $20 a day for hotel, meals and sightseeing, advertised to be a happy way to break the monotony of flights across the Atlantic. Icelandic Airlines is also promoting round-trips by air from New York to Europe for as little as $215, with hotel rates of $5 or less a day, including breakfast and sightseeing trips.

Perhaps the greatest handicap to tourism is the country's name. The island is washed by the Gulf Stream and summer weather is moderate. But Icelanders will never change the name of their nation. They are too proud.

Not Official, But NFL Strike Is Near

By BOB GREEN Associated Press Sports Writer There's nothing official, but the ingredients are beginning to stack up for a strike by National Football League players.

Field Day For Little Leaguers

Plans have been announced for the 13th Little League Field Day at Elm Street Park by its sponsors, the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Washington and Chicago at Baltimore.

For Marichal, a four-time 20-game winner, this is the earliest he's ever won his 15th. Previously, the earliest he reached this point was July 15, 1966.

But in that season, as in all but one, 1963, the 29-year-old right-hander lost some pitching time because of injuries.

The triumph gave Marichal a victory over every team in the league, made him the winningest pitcher in the majors and placed him at the halfway mark in his effort to become the first 30-game winner since Dizzy Dean in 1934.

In other games, St. Louis defeated Los Angeles 5-3, Houston blanked Cincinnati 2-0, Pittsburgh edged New York 2-1 and Chicago defeated Philadelphia 5-3.

July 4 Marked As 'Thanks To Scandinavia' Day

By DONALD E. MULLEN
NEW YORK (UPI)—This year's traditional American Independence Day celebration at Rebild, Denmark, will mark more than the continuing warm regard that exists between the two countries. It will also remind the world that 25 years ago Christian Danes stood as one against Nazi attempts to persecute their Jewish fellow citizens.

And America's speaker at the 56-year-old joint celebration will be a man who has spent much of his time in the last five years implementing a special gift of gratitude not only to Danes but the rest of Scandinavia for the unparalleled example of humanity and heroism during the rescue.
International lawyer Richard Netter is one of the founders and president of "Thanks to Scandinavia," a scholarship fund dedicated to providing students from Denmark, Norway and Sweden, plus Finland, the means with which to continue their studies at American universities in advanced courses unavailable in their own countries. So far, 33 students have completed scholarships.

Forgotten Deeds
Netter explained in an interview that Thanks to Scandinavia was created in 1953 when rescue was approaching. "The world seemed to have forgotten about the deeds of the Scandinavians, but books were still coming out on the Nazis."

Today, with the program well under way, "it's exciting that we find so many people so sensitive to this story," he said. "As we progress we're very heartened. Any illustration of what man should do affects us all."
Netter, a genial man with a quick grin and a seemingly inexhaustible capacity for civic work, explained that at first, efforts to set up the scholarships ran into some Danish resistance.

"The Danish people were a little unhappy about being thanked because they considered they had only done what was natural," he said. "They saw these people not as Jews, but as Danes. Religion is a totally irrelevant thing."
Not a Charity
"Thanks to Scandinavia is not a charity," he said. "It is a movement which has symbolic value and permanence. It is designed to contribute to the maintenance of understanding and ideals in the future as well as to honor the heroes of the past."
In his Fourth of July address at Rebild, Netter said his anniversary commemoration of the rescue would weave the Declaration of Independence together with other examples of "human performance."
"The world seems to talk a lot about equal opportunity," he added. "There is also equal responsibility. I think the Scandinavians have expressed that."

A few hours before the raid, a German Embassy official warned Danish political leaders of the plan.
A fantastic and spontaneous grapevine went into operation. Denmark's Jews, though familiar to many, bears retelling.
From April 9, 1940, when the Germans overran Denmark, until September, 1943, Danish refusal to allow the Nazis to harm the approximately 8,000 Jewish citizens, coupled with the Germans' fear of anything upsetting vital war routes through the country, kept the Jews relatively safe.

But in the summer of 1943, Hitler decided his "final solution" could brook no exception. The order came through to Nazi headquarters in Copenhagen: On Sept. 30, the eve of the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashana, carefully coordinated raids by SS troops would round up Denmark's Jews. Transport ships would be waiting in the harbor to ship them to Germany.
The exodus was on, and the Danish underground and fishing boat captains joined together to slip groups of refugees across the straits between Denmark and Sweden, braving winter storms and Nazi patrol boats.
A segment of the epic poem "Once Upon a Time" by Danish entertainer Victor Borge, himself a refugee of those times and now the national chairman of Tanks to Scandinavia, tells it better:
Back and forth
By day and dead of night
Fishing boats took out
With refugees
Hidden with the fish

Norfolk Source Says A U.S. And Soviet Sub In Collision

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The military writer for the Norfolk Ledger-Star says an American submarine was damaged severely several months ago in an underwater collision with a Russian submarine.
Jack Kestner said Tuesday the report, unconfirmed by the Navy, adds to speculation the missing nuclear attack submarine Scorpion might have tangled with one or more Russian subs on a "classified mission" during her ill-fated trip home from the Mediterranean. The Scorpion has been missing more than a month.

Kestner quoted "usually reliable sources" in giving his account of the collision. The story did not name either submarine.
Kestner said the American sub spent two months at Rota, Spain, undergoing repairs. Nothing was reported of the effect of the collision on the Soviet sub.
In Washington, the Navy said, "as in the past, the Navy will not comment on classified operations of its deployed nuclear submarines."
Kestner said Soviet subs have been lying in wait off the overseas ports of U.S. Polar's submarines and attempting to follow them on their 60-day underwater patrols.

Because the position of the atomic missile-bearing subs is vital to this country's defense, Kestner said, U.S. nuclear attack subs have been given assignments aimed at "wiping off" the Soviet pursuit subs.
"The 'wiping off' assignment can get rough, sometimes amounting to what one officer describes as 'underwater chicken,' with the American and Russian subs set on a collision course, and the 'chicken' turning aside at the last moment," Kestner said.
"Presumably this is what happened when the unidentified American sub collided with the Russian."
Whether the Scorpion was the sub in question can only be conjecture, Kestner said.

Fourth Of July Show At Stadium

With the Fourth of July falling on Thursday this year many folks will probably be staying home who ordinarily would take a long weekend at the beach, at home, or at some other place of relaxation. For those who live in or near Greenville, and for students at East Carolina University, the annual Fourth of July spectacular Thursday night can provide an answer to the problem of what to do on a week-night Fourth.
The program, sponsored annually by the East Carolina University Union, will provide a musical concert, a dramatic presentation of the national colors by the ECU AFROTC Honor Guard, and will conclude with the traditional spectacular aerial fireworks display.
Set for 8 p.m. in ECU's Ficklin Stadium, the program is free and open to the public.
In addition to the other festivities, the show will feature greetings from representatives of the university, Greenville and Pitt County.

Identify Hijacker As Homesick Cuban Exile

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The pistol-waving hijacker who forced a Northwest Airlines plane carrying 86 passengers to fly him to Havana Monday was identified today as a Cuban exile.
The State Department's Miami office said the hijacker had been identified as Mario Velazquez. But a government spokesman said the FBI had not determined which of several Cuban exiles of that name staged the hijacking.
The Chicago Tribune said federal investigators had found that a Mario Velazquez arrived in Florida last July and came to Chicago where he was issued an alien ID card on July 7, 1967.
An FBI spokesman in Chicago would neither confirm nor deny the Tribune account.
Within hours after the hijacking, the Tribune said, FBI agents were checking on Velazquez, going first to the Mont Clare Hotel in the uptown section where he had lived since last July.
The investigators were told he had left without checking out, the account said.
The Miami Herald quoted the manager of the Mont Clare as saying, "The man was obviously so homesick it was eating him up."
The Herald said Velazquez left a wife and two sons in Oriente Province of Cuba to come to the United States. It said that before he left Chicago he told his few acquaintances of strong feelings of despondency.
Joseph Ramey, a London businessman on the hijacked flight—715 from Minneapolis and Chicago to Miami—said Cuban soldiers greeted the hijacker heartily after the jetliner landed at Jose Marti Airport in Havana.

The plane returned to Miami Tuesday morning with its seven crewmen and the passengers later were flown to Miami in a plane chartered by the State Department. Cuban officials had said the Havana airport's 10,000-foot runway was too short for the Northwest plane to take off safely with the passengers.
Scheduled, too, is the resurfacing of Martin and Moore streets in the Meadowbrook area, and curbing and guttering of streets in the Riverview area. This project should eliminate all

Sandburg Farm's First Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to preserve poet Carl Sandburg's Connemara Farm at Flat Rock, N. C., as a national historic site received the first of many required congressional stamps of approval Tuesday.
The bill, approving the purchase of 242 acres and specifying that six adjoining acres might also be purchased, received approval of a House Interior subcommittee.
The bill would allow $225,000 to be used to purchase the farm and would allocate $952,000 to develop the site.

Radar Detection Device Fails Him

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — State Trooper Jerry Keither stopped a motorist on Interstate 71 south of Cincinnati Monday after radar clocked his auto at over the legal limit. When Keither went up to the car, the motorist, shaking his head sadly, pointed toward his control panel. And there, was a new $30 radar detection device.

Nautical Chart For Small Craft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast and Geodetic Survey has announced plans to compile the first small-craft nautical chart of the 114-mile stretch of the Cape Fear River between Wilmington and Fayetteville, N.C.
The agency said Tuesday the chart will promote Cape Fear waterways development and benefit commerce, industry and recreation.

Commission Will Appeal Award

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Highway Commission plans to appeal a Superior Court judgment awarding the Nello L. Teer Co. $261,513 in additional compensation for paving done on Interstate 95 during 1960.
The Highway Commission paid the firm more than $2 million for the 14-mile paving job. But the firm claimed actual work and damages caused by delays and damages attributable to the state entitled it to an additional $803,489.

Outlaw Facing Federal Warrant

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — A federal warrant was issued Tuesday for outlaw Edward Thompson Jr., a 37-year-old Hendersonville Negro charged with six counts of kidnaping and three counts of rape.
Thompson was declared an outlaw June 25, giving any citizen the right to kill him with impunity if he disregards a call to surrender.

Priorities Announced In City's Paving Projects

Completion of storm drainage, curbing and guttering and paving of Farmville Boulevard is the priority project of the Greenville Public Works Department.
According to City Manager Harry Hagerty, after the present storm drainage project is finished, curbing and guttering will begin, followed by paving, all to be completed before fall.
Also, after the Utilities Commission completes the sealing of gas lines on First, Elm, and Fifth streets, the public works department will add another layer of asphalt to the streets. The sealing process is responsible for the squares of gravel in the pavement.
Scheduled, too, is the resurfacing of Martin and Moore streets in the Meadowbrook area, and curbing and guttering of streets in the Riverview area. This project should eliminate all

Sign Warrants In Sunday Fight

Joseph Rufus Mizelle, 49, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon following a Sunday night service station fight. After being charged in the 10:04 incident, Mizelle then signed a warrant against George Howard Norville, 23, and G. W. Hamill.
Mizelle was charged with assaulting Norville and Hamill. Norville suffered a cut on his back, extending from his neck to his waist. Hamill was cut on the right arm.
Both Hamill and Norville were hospitalized at Pitt Memorial Hospital, and Norville is listed in satisfactory condition.

The Worry Clinic

Surely, Use Flowers At 'Final Graduation'

Melba is far more correct than her relatives. For they are indirectly helping promote erosion of the human soul by stripping beauty and idealism from life's grandest "Graduation Ceremony." The way we treat our departed loved ones is an index of the cultural level of our society, so beware of drab, mercenary farewells!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE G-515: Melba D., aged 42, is a grieving wife.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am all confused and so upset by the sudden loss of Harold that I can't think straight. Some of the relatives tell me to omit all flowers and have my husband's body cremated at once.

"Then they say we could have a little memorial service later. Meanwhile, that money for flowers could be given to the Cancer Fund.

"But I want a funeral with flowers! Am I wrong?"

Death is merely our most important graduation ceremony down here on Earth.

It indicates that we are promoted!

And that next classroom in God's Cosmic School System is called Heaven.

The American Indians termed it their "Happy Hunting Grounds."

The Japanese brave soldiers would also shout "Banzai" as they boldly charged the enemy. "Banzai" means "10,000 years and forever."

It indicated their graduation to a perpetual land of joy and honor.

Primitive, as well as the more civilized, people all over this Earth have almost without exception pictured the next classroom as a place of reward and delight for those who perform their problems satisfactorily down here in this classroom.

Funerals are naturally fraught with tears and heartache. But that's because we focus on ourselves and grieve at the loss of our loved ones.

Don't be ashamed of those tears, however, for Jesus even wept at the tomb of his good friend Lazarus!

But Christ also chided his Apostles for their downcast looks when He told them of His forthcoming death.

"Let not your heart be troubled," Christ said, "neither let it be afraid.

"If ye loved me, I ye would rejoice because I said, I go unto the Father."

Flowers are usually linked with school commencements so they are likewise very appropriate at death's grand graduation ceremony.

God must have placed flowers here on Earth to buoy up the soul of mankind and inspire the disconsolate heart.

Thus, they are actually essential to every uplifting funeral!

To strip such fragrant evidences of friendly condolence from this final Graduation Ceremony of our loved ones, is as callous as to omit flowers from the pulpits of churches on Easter Sunday.

"Flowers," said Henry Ward Beecher, "are the sweetest things God ever made and for got to put a soul into."

Like the affectionate hand-clasp of sympathetic neighbors, flowers serve as an articulate but spiritual message that goes far beyond words.

So never let misguided materialism make that final Graduation Ceremony a drab and desolate occasion.

"The poor ye have with you always," Jesus chided his Apostles for trying to omit the fragrance of flowers at funerals under the guise of saving such money for relief patients (and cancer victims).

Policeman Says Minister Lied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A policeman has told Senate probes that a Presbyterian minister lied under oath when he testified he wasn't asked to turn over to Chicago police a gang arsenal stored in his church.

"The Rev. (John R.) Fry was not telling the truth when he said I did not ask for the guns," Sgt. Neal Wilson told the permanent Senate investigations subcommittee. "I say it did occur."

"There is a serious conflict of evidence here and it will be a surprise to many if we have a minister telling untruths," said Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

"But somebody here is deliberately, wilfully perjurying themselves before this subcommittee," he added. "And I hope the guilty person will have to face the bar of justice and get what he deserves."

The Rev. Fry, testifying before the subcommittee last week, defended a $927,000 Office of Economic Opportunity grant to provide basic education and job training to members of two Chicago street gangs—the Blackstone Rangers and the Devils Disciples.

He denied flatly allegations by former gang members and others that while allowing the Rangers to headquarter in his First Presbyterian church on Chicago's South Side he also counseled them in crime and condoned marijuana smoking and other illegal activities.

Chicago police detectives Tuesday described 1966 efforts by local and federal officials to arrange a general surrender of gang weapons.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets mediums advanced 1 cent with balance unchanged Tuesday. Supplies adequate, demand fair. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites: 39½ to 41; medium, whites 36 to 37½; small, whites 25 to 27½.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina hog market today was mostly steady, some instances of 25 to 50 cents higher. Tops of 21.25-21.75 Rocky Mount; 20.50-21.00 Bethel; 20.25-21.00 Wilson; 21.75 Selma; 20.50 Siler City, Denton.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market put on a brisk, preweekend rally, widening its gains this afternoon in lively trading. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.81 at 901.65. Gains ran from fractions to six points among leading issues. Analysts ascribed the strength to the ability of the market to rally Tuesday on increasing volume after a series of four straight daily declines. Among some of the high-multiple glamor stocks, part of the strength was attributed to precautionary short covering prior to the four-day gap in trading. The markets will be closed for Independence Day and also Friday.

Short covering is the purchase of shares to replace stock borrowed and sold short in the hope that a future decline would enable the buyer to purchase replacement stock at a lower price, thus making a profit.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 2.6 at 343.4 with industrials up 2.9, rails up 2.8 and utilities up .4.

U.S. Industries became the most-active stock when it was traded on a block of 138,900 shares at 33, off 1%. Later the stock cut a point from its loss.

Wall Streeters noted that the market usually shows strength in early July as it mounts the "traditional summer rally."

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange.

Texan Given A New Heart At Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The condition of the world's 24th human heart transplant patient was listed as satisfactory today as doctors watched for change in his new heart, which was artificially nourished for 24 hours while a recipient was sought.

George Henry De Bord, who received the heart in a two-hour operation Tuesday at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, was conscious and alert today and his vital signs were stable, a hospital spokesman said. De Bord remained on a respirator. "His doctors at this stage are hopeful," the spokesman said. "But of course it's still touch and go."

DeBord, 46, a contractor from Helotes, Tex., near San Antonio, was the fifth person to receive a human heart at St. Luke's. He received the heart of Maxie Elwood Anderson 50, of Lufkin, Tex.

Anderson, the oldest donor in any of the heart transplants at St. Luke's, was transferred to the hospital Monday suffering from a brain hemorrhage.

Doctors said Anderson's brain waves were flat for 24 hours and the doctors kept the heart and lungs attached to a respirator while they searched for a recipient.

UNC Budget Requests Near Equal Rest Of N.C. Projects

RALEIGH (AP) — The Consolidated University of North Carolina is asking for about as much money for capital improvements as the state plans to spend for all state agency construction during the next two years.

William C. Friday, university president, outlined his preliminary budget requests Tuesday before the Advisory Budget Commission. When Friday said the budget for capital improvements at the university's four campuses would run about $115 million, state property officer Frank B. Turner said the amount "is probably in the range of the money that will be available for the entire state."

When final requests are due in September, Turner asked, "Will you still be talking about $115 million, or will you reduce that to what I'm going to describe as more realistic figure?"

Friday said the final request "will reflect priorities." The university's total budget request, including the standard operating budget, expansion budget and funds for capital improvements reached $330 million.

Other requests presented during the commission's hearing Tuesday included a Conservation and Development Department bid for $800,000 to finance the purchase of an executive airplane and executive helicopter.

The C&D Board endorsed the proposal earlier this year to provide transportation for industry executives considering North Carolina for future plant construction. State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Garham asked for $1.6 million to finance a new laboratory in the Raleigh area for the study of pest and diseases of plants and animals.

Dickens is also a member of the Advisory Commission of the Greenville Recreation Committee.

The supervisors were advised by the county counsel Tuesday that only state or federal legislation could be effective. Supervisor Ernest E. Debs said, "It would be ridiculous for the county and its 77 cities to adopt individual ordinances."

North Vietnam Heavily Bombed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers pounded North Vietnam's southern panhandle Tuesday with the largest number of raids in two months while the X B52 strategic bombers kept up the heaviest saturation pounding given the demilitarized zone area in the war.

Allied ground troops also were busy below the northern frontier and reported they killed 155 of the enemy in clashes in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces.

Along with the record air activity, U.S. headquarters announced the loss of two Air Force fighter-bombers over North Vietnam and a light Army reconnaissance plane and a big Marine helicopter over South Vietnam.

One of the pilots shot down in North Vietnam, Lt. Col. Jack Modica, 44, of Birmingham, Ala., spent 23 hours in the jungle and was pulled to safety by a "Jolly Green Giant" helicopter as enemy troops were closing in on him.

The second fighter-bomber was shot down during the search for Modica and its pilot is missing. It was the 860th American plane that the U.S. command has reported lost in the North.

Releasing Three

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam said today it is releasing three more U.S. pilots but did not give their names or say when and where they will be freed.

Once before the North Vietnamese released American fliers captured on missions over the North. It freed three on Feb. 16 as a gesture for the Vietnamese lunar new year. In exchange, the United States released three North Vietnamese sailors a month later.

Hanoi Radio's brief announcement today said: "Proceeding from the humanitarian and lenient policy of the government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, the general political department of the Vietnam People's Army has decided to release three U.S. pilots captured in North Vietnam."

Winterville Man On Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Tar Heel farmers, John W. Eley of Ahoskie and Cedric Donald Langston, Winterville, have been named to North Carolina's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Police Bullets Kill N.Y. Sniper

NEW YORK (AP) — A man shot a woman to death in a Central Park comfort station today and then wounded an elderly man and two policemen before he was killed by officers wearing bulletproof vests, police reported.

Tear gas fired by police flushed the heavy-set, middle-aged gunman from a cluster of trees, near the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to which he had fled.

Carrying a .45-caliber Army revolver, he climbed to the roof of the stone comfort station and crouched.

"He was down, but raised up and fired three shots out of his revolver," said Detective Lt. Arthur Deutch. "I let him have 12 in the chest and McLoughlin hit him too."

Deutch and Capt. Robert McLoughlin were both wearing bulletproof vests.

The shootings occurred near 85th Street and Fifth Avenue, across from some of the city's most exclusive apartment houses. Jacqueline Kennedy lives in the area. She is away with her children at Hyannis Port, Mass.

Police said the gunman was carrying a bank book with the name Angel Angeloff of Manhattan.

The body of the woman, who was not immediately identified, was found in a booth in the women's part of the comfort station. She was shot in the head, police said.

Campgrounds Are Already Filled

MANTEO, N. C. (AP) — Campers looking for a place to pitch their tents or park their trailers for the July 4th weekend or other early July dates had better look elsewhere than the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.
