Prices Steady To Higher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Average grade prices for flue-cured tobacco on the South Carolina - Border North Carolina markets Tuesday were mostly steady to higher.

The Federal - State Market News Service said 45 per cent of grades held at previous levels with most increases limited to $1 to $2 per hundred pounds. Top quality grades brought $77 a hundred, with one basket of good lemon going for $78.

A larger percentage of low leaf, lugs and primings caused a decline in quality of offerings Tuesday as active trading continued with most markets blocked.

Monday's average price reached $69.92 a hundred pounds, $1.73 above last Friday and a new high for the season. Gross sales Monday totaled 10,305,395 pounds with the Stabilization Corp. receiving 17 per cent of the gross.

Texas Gulf Suit Revived

NEW YORK (AP) — A civil suit against the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. and 10 of its executives — accused of using inside information on a sensational ore discovery in Canada to reap stock profits — has been reinstated by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Acting on an appeal by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the court on Tuesday reversed that part of a decision by U.S. District Court Judge Dudley B. Bonsal that absolved the company and the 10 executives of violating SEC regulations.

The case was sent back to Bonsal for "further proceedings" — presumably a new trial. The appellate court, however, upheld the lower court finding in 1966 that Texas Gulf's secretary, David M. Crawford, and a company engineer, Richard H. Clayton, violated SEC rules governing stock trading by corporation insiders.

The SEC's civil suit did not involve any criminal charges. The SEC merely sought injunctions against the defendants in a move to establish a precedent governing stock trading by corporation insiders who have confidential information.

Opposing Petition Drive

PRAGUE (AP) — The Prague City Council, apparently trying to block a petition drive for the abolition of the hard-line Czechoslovak Peoples' Militia, ruled Tuesday night that petition sponsors must get official permission to solicit signatures.

A petition drive has been under way for several weeks in downtown Prague, and the council claimed it is causing congestion as people stopped to discuss the question.

The militia is reputed to be a stronghold of support for former Communist party chief Antonin Novotny, who was forced from his post by leaders of the new reformist regime.

The Socialist party newspaper Svoboda Slovo criticized the council's ruling today, declaring: "The fact is that no one asked the council's permission when petitions were signed in support of the government and political leadership before its meeting in Cerna" with the Soviet Communist leaders.

Bad Day For Commuters

NEW YORK (AP) — Today was another day of woe for the Long Island Road's 90,000 daily commuters.

The nation's busiest commuter line canceled 28 morning rush hour trains.

For many thousands, that meant fighting their way into jammed trains that were mostly running late or taking to the subways, buses, the family car, auto pools or taxicabs.

Rep. Lester Wolff, a Long Island Democrat, asked the Interstate Commerce Commission and the U.S. Department of Transportation Tuesday to investigate the railroad's operations.

The Long Island blames the train cancellations, which started nine days ago, on a shortage of cars caused by a slowdown by inspection and repair men in the dispute over the planned discharge of 18 men. The men's union, Lodge 886 of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, denies a slowdown and says aging equipment and undermanning of repair facilities are to blame.

Await Word From Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — The United States tentatively plans to release 14 North Vietnamese seamen Thursday, informed sources said today. But word that Hanoi will accept them is awaited from North Vietnamese representatives at the Paris peace talks, the sources said.

The U.S. Embassy refused to talk about the matter. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris talks, announced last Wednesday that the 14 seamen would be released but he set no time.

The North Vietnamese were captured off the coast of North Vietnam by U.S. Navy ships in 1966. They are being kept in Da Nang, 380 miles north of Saigon.

If the North Vietnamese in Paris give the go-ahead, they are to be flown Thursday to Vietnam, the Laotian capital aboard a civilian plane. From there the International Control Commission can take them to Hanoi on its weekly Friday flight.

Re-Evaluation Ordered

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Assessment has been ordered to re-evaluate a 1966 valuation of Duke Power Co.'s property holdings in the state.

Judge J. William Copeland handed down the order Tuesday in Wake Superior Court. He said the board also must correct a $3 million mathematical error committed during the assessment and provide Duke with formulas used to set the total valuation.

Duke Power, which operates in 38 piedmont and Western counties, appealed the board's 1966 valuation which set the company's holdings at $646 million.

The power firm contended the net book value of Duke's property in North Carolina was $567.7 million.

Duke also maintained the board made a $3 million error by failing to follow state law regarding the assessment of capital stock.

$20 Million Surplus?

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore said today North Carolina is on the way to accumulating a surplus of $20 million in its general fund.

The governor said general fund collections for the 1967-68 fiscal year which ended June 30 totaled $20,078,115 more than the $679,198,928 estimated in drawing up the budget.

If 1968-69 collections at least equal the $695,238,000 that was estimated, the $20 million will become surplus.

A surplus would be available to the 1969 General Assembly for the 1969-70 budget.

Moore said 1967-68 general fund expenditures for operation of state government programs totaled $643,992,638, an increase of about 14 per cent over the previous fiscal year.

He said the higher spending was caused primarily by increases in salaries, higher contributions for retirement and Social Security programs and improvements in governmental services.

The governor said the highway fund ended the fiscal year with a balance of $94,551,539, about the same as the previous fiscal year.

Allied Patrols
Dig Up More
VC Weaponry

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces trying to spoil the third Viet Cong offensive of the year before it can get started uncovered huge weapons caches along infiltration corridors north of Saigon and leading from the Cambodian and Laotian borders, military spokesmen reported today.

Little other activity was reported in the Vietnam war. The U.S. Command said tropical storm Rose cut U.S. air missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle to 31 Tuesday, the lowest number in more than two years.

In the most significant find, allied forces checking a group of villages reportedly housing as many as 25,000 Viet Cong sympathizers 25 miles north of Saigon turned up more than 500 rounds of rockets and recoilless rifle ammunition Tuesday, 72,000 rounds for automatic weapons and five pounds of documents.

Ten Vietnamese trying to escape were killed in a 15-minute fire fight, and 17 prisoners were flushed from the tunnels in the action Tuesday. No allied casualties were reported.

Using "seal and search" tactics units of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment put a cordon around the village of Cau Dat with armored personnel carriers and tanks. South Vietnamese and American "tunnel rats"—infantrymen who dig through tunnels—moved in to search the village.

Cau Dat is less than 10 miles north of a big U.S. Army helicopter base and the headquarters of the South Vietnamese 5th Infantry Division.

It was the second productive "seal and search" operation in the cluster of villages north of Saigon in the last five days.

N.C. Demo Campaign
Committees Appointed

RALEIGH (AP) — Former North Carolina House Speaker H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen is among 20 men and women who will head Democratic campaign committees in their congressional districts this fall.

The committees, selected Tuesday at a state party meeting in Raleigh, are composed of a chairman and vice chairman from 10 of the state's 11 districts. Party headquarters said a 6th district committee will be appointed at a later date.

Committees named Tuesday include:

1st District—Mrs. E. G. Bond of Edenton, chairman, and Henry Oglesby of Grifton, vice chairman.

2nd District—Clinton Fuller of Louisburg and Mrs. Walter Pickett of Roanoke Rapids.

3rd District—Tom I. Davis of Selma and Mrs. Robert D. Blackmore of Warsaw.

4th District—Dr. Thomas Naylor of Durham and Miss Carol Fleming of Randleman.

5th District—Weston P. Hatfield of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Arthur Welborn of Pilot Mountain.

7th District—Horace Stacey Jr. of Lumberton and Mrs. Peggy Walton of Whiteville.

8th District—H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen and Mrs. William Stanback of Salisbury.

9th District—W. E. Graham of Charlotte and Mrs. Doris Potter of North Wilkesboro.

10th District—Robert B. Byrd of Morganton and Mrs. John Abernathy of Newton.

11th District—Bruce Elmore of Asheville and Mrs. Neil Sneed of Murphy.

Further Budget
Reduction Faces
Pres. Johnson

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, who agreed reluctantly to a $6-billion cut in federal spending to get his income tax increase, now faces the probability of having to cut an additional $1 billion.

Johnson, spending a long working holiday at his hill country ranch, had press secretary George Christian outline publicly on Tuesday the budget-cutting problems faced by the White House.

This followed a four-hour ranch conference Johnson had with Budget Director Charles J. Zwick.

As sketched by Christian, this is the situation facing the administration:

When Congress fixed a spending ceiling of $180.1 billion for a broad range of federal programs—except the Vietnam war and some others—it looked as if the ceiling could be met by chopping $6 billion from planned outlays in the fiscal year that began July 1.

Since then, however, estimated spending for farm-price supports has increased by $700 million and it now appears that costs of public assistance and Medicaid may top the original projection by $300 million.

Those increases totaling $1 billion must be offset by cuts elsewhere in the budget.

Christian, quoting Zwick, said it seems likely that Congress itself will specify $3 billion in spending reductions. That leaves $4 billion of economy moves to be pinpointed by the administration.

The President, in an action announced Tuesday, approved significant new cutbacks in U.S. payrolls abroad. This is not a direct economy move, since many workers simply will be transferred to stateside jobs. But it is intended to help ease the balance of payments deficit which was one of the chief goals of Johnson's 10 per cent income surtax.

By mid-1969, under the Johnson plan, enough overseas jobs will be eliminated to cut spending abroad by $28 million to $32 million.

Compared with Dec. 31, 1967, the number of Americans on federal payrolls abroad will be slashed by 4,083 from 22,884, or 18 per cent. The number of foreign nationals employed will be reduced by 4,274 from 26,337, or 16 per cent. Twenty-one agencies, including the military, will be affected.

Christian had no word Tuesday on when doctors might report their findings after a careful study of X rays made Monday of Johnson's lower intestine. The chief executive has diverticulosis, a nondisabling condition that produces pouches on the inner lining of the intestine.

Publishers Are Expected Approve
Magazine Sales

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of Curtis Publishing Co. were expected to approve sale of the Ladies Home Journal and American Home to Downe Communications, Inc., at a special meeting today.

A Curtis spokesman said, if approved, part of the agreement is that the two magazines would continue to be printed at the Curtis plant in Sharon Hill, Pa., on paper produced at Curtis' paper mill in Johnsonburg, Pa. The plant employs about 2,100.

Downe reportedly had offered 100,000 shares of its common stock for the two magazines, which would give Curtis 9 per cent stock interest in the company.

Downe Communications publishes the syndicated newspaper supplement Family Weekly, has mail order operations and sells pet supplies.

Utilities Budget
Of $5,680,250
Given Approval

A budget of $5,680,250.99 for the 1968-69 fiscal year was approved last night by the Greenville Utilities Commission.

The electric department of the commission received the lion's share of the budget with $3,650,000. The gas department ranked next with a budget of $515,000.

Total capital improvement money in the 1968-69 budget is $1,738,756.22. The biggest part of this figure will be taken by the Cable Television (CATV) project which is slated to get $305,000.00 in the coming fiscal year.

The total expense budget for all departments is $3,985,418.40, with the electric department in the city getting $2,855,496.90 of the total.

A profit of $2,255,382.59 was earned by the utilities commission during the past year. Of this, $1,738,756.22 will be used for capital improvements, $371,626.37 will be turned over to the city, $95,000 will be used to retire bonds, and $50,000 will go for sub-division refunds, it was reported.

In other business, a discussion of the CATV project ensued after director of utilities, Leonard Bloxam reported that an application had been filed with the Federal Aviation Agency to comply with regulations concerning towers 500 feet high or taller. Bloxam said that the aviation study will be completed in 30 days and is necessary before work commences on the CATV project since the antenna will feed into the "spider-web" network of wires.

Bloxam said that he had made talks to two local civic clubs and that questions about the CATV project had kept him late at both meetings. Bloxam said the questions reflected a lack of knowledge as to what CATV really is.

Bloxam said, "We are pioneering in CATV as far as municipal-ownership is concerned." He pointed out that although other states have municipally-owned CATV, Greenville's project is the first and only in this state thus far.

In other business, Bloxam reported that the sanitary sewer has been completed in the North Greenville project.

Raiders Found Arsenal

Anti-Castroite Held
On Weapons Charges

JOHNSONBURG, N.J. (AP) — A self-proclaimed anti-Castroite and an arsenal of dynamite, guns and tear gas were seized by police raiders at a farmhouse on Shades of Death Road in this rural western New Jersey community.

State police arrested Michael A. DeCarolis, 32, in the raid on his home Tuesday and charged him with six violations of the New Jersey Weapons Control Act. They said he told them he was an American citizen and an advisor to, although not a participant in, the Cuban invasion at the Bay of Pigs in April, 1961.

Police said a 3½-hour search of the two-story frame farmhouse and wooden barn across the road turned up twelve cases of dynamite, a 50mm mortar, three British military rifles, one semiautomatic rifle, one .22-caliber revolver, one sawed-off .22-caliber rifle, and one zip gun.

Also seized were 30 half-gallon jars of tear gas, 4,000 feet of explosive detonating fuse, 125 dynamite blasting caps, four gas masks, four spools of dynamite blasting wire, and a large quantity of varied ammunition.

Multiple-Head
Missile Test Set

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Two advanced-design military missiles with "scattershot" warheads are scheduled for initial flight tests from the Cape Kennedy test center Friday.

Minuteman 3's maiden launching from an underground silo is scheduled Friday afternoon.

Poseidon, scheduled to replace the Polaris on America's nuclear submarine fleet about 1970, was originally scheduled for a Thursday liftoff but this was postponed until Friday because of an unspecified malfunction. It will be Poseidon's first flight from a dry land launch pad.

So You Have Always Wanted To Be An Airline Stewardess

By ARLEEN ABRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

You've always wanted to be an airline stewardess, but although your friends—none of whom wanted to be a stewardess—stopped growing taller when they reached 5-foot-5, you grew and grew and grew some more, until you measured 5 foot 9½.

"No airline will take me now," you sigh, and you proceed to rechannel your career ambitions.

Perhaps you're the "right" height, but you've heard that you need a minimum of two years of college to qualify as a stewardess, and the closest you've been to a college campus is the day you attended the football game at your boyfriend's alma mater. Or you wear glasses, and even though you've tried contact lenses, you just can't get used to them.

Relax you still can be an airline stewardess, according to the Airline Stewardess Handbook (Careers Research, Minneapolis) which details the requirements for being an air hostess on 55 U.S. and Canadian airlines. The handbook, which also contains basic information on pay, flight routes, training schools for these domestic carriers, rips apart many of the well-known myths about an air hostessing career.

The book doesn't say that every airline will accept a prospective stewardess if she's 32-years-old or who wears glasses, or whose height, weight and education don't fall within the normal prescribed limits. "But airline requirements vary so much, that there is really a wide latitude." It is just a matter of tracking down those airlines—sometimes the smaller, off-the-beaten track carriers—that have requirements matching what you have to offer.

For instance, Seaboard World Airlines accepts girls who are 4-foot-8 and little Trans-East uses girls as small as 4-foot-5. On the other hand, some airlines will consider you if you are 5-foot-10. Nearly all airlines permit contact lenses and a few, even among the giants, accept girls who wear glasses "as long as the frames are compatible with the uniform."

Although only a few companies will consider hiring married girls, one firm, the Johnson Flying Service, is specifically seeking women who project the "young married image."

A college education used to be a standard requirement, but nowadays a high school diploma plus a little public-contact experience will open doors for you. And Negro stewardesses are no longer a rarity.

One of the five major reasons why out of 22 American girls who apply to be a stewardess, only one is hired is the fact that the prospective hostess of the sky has not applied to the right airline. She may be too short or too tall or too much or too little something else—failing to meet one or more of the basic qualifications—and thus be automatically disqualified by the airline to which she has applied. But she probably would be acceptable to one or more other companies, explains the handbook.

Some girls who do possess the basic requirements for a particular airline don't fit the image the airline is trying to project. One airline may be searching for the "outdoor type," another aims to recruit the "cool sophisticated," while a third may be opting for the sweet young Southern belle, complete with drawl.

"Too many girls don't really have the slightest idea of what being an airline stewardess entails," is a familiar complaint of airline officials. They say a girl thinks only of the glamour, the romance, the travel benefits, without even bothering to acquaint herself with the day-to-day responsibilities and pressure inherent in the job.

Often when a girl finds out that within the space of a few hours she is expected to serve and clean up after a full-course meal, perform various house-keeping duties, ranging from checking seat belts to warming baby bottles, complete the necessary paperwork and act as a good-will ambassador—not counting any emergency that may arise—she realizes that she doesn't really want the job.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who will not let her 16-year-old daughter do volunteer work in a local hospital, because she figures if the girl wants to work for nothing, there is plenty of work for her to do around the house?

Abby, that mother is mine, and I don't think she has the right to tell me whether or not I can work for nothing. I want to do something worthwhile with my time, and I know I would like hospital work. Besides, hospitals NEED volunteer help. It's not like I don't do anything around the house, either. I do, but I think I should be able to do what I want to do in my spare time, don't you? Please put your answer in the paper so my mother can see it.

Dear Abby

DEAR WANTS: I agree that this for the benefit of the 16-year-old girl who inquired about the advisability of opening a joint bank account with her "fiancee."

A few years ago I was planning marriage with a "very sweet girl." To insure our future financial security, we opened a joint savings account, to which we both made regular deposits from our respective paychecks.

I was called into service, and during my absence my "sweet girl" drew all the money out of our account in order to marry another guy.

When a person is in love, he can't believe it could happen to HIM, but since it happened to ME, I hope you will advise all young lovers to save the "joint" business until they are joined together legally in marriage.

BEEN THERE

DEAR ABBY: I am only 13, but I would like to express my feelings in regard to the widow who was mad because she got a bill for her husband's operation after he had died on the operating table.

My father is a surgeon and sometimes he stands under those hot lights and sweats, or anywhere to 3 to 12 hours at a time, and if she doesn't think that's hard work she is out of her ever loving' mind. There have been days when my father has had one emergency after another and he didn't get more than 3 hours sleep in 2 days. I am not even mentioning the strain on him when he knows he has a person's life in his hands.

My advice to that woman is to pay the bill and shut up her big mouth. I am sure the doctor did everything he could to save her husband, and anyway, maybe it was the Lord's will that he died.

Abby, I hope you won't think I am disrespectful in the language I used in this letter, but I am pretty heated up over this. No one realizes how hard most doctors work.

Teachers Institute Ended At ECU; Third Of Its Kind

Thirty-two teachers from throughout North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia have completed an institute for teachers of disadvantaged rural youth at East Carolina University.

The institute, funded by the National Defense Education Act through the United States Office of Education, was the third of its kind awarded to East Carolina. Funds awarded for the three institutes now total $163,700.

The newly-completed institute was the only one of its kind awarded in North Carolina this summer.

Dr. M. Helen Ingram, associate professor of education, was director.

The program was designed to improve the teachers' understanding of rural children and their problems, to better improve the understanding of child growth and development and to develop more appropriate ways of working with children in a practicum setting.

Some 32 ungraded primary and intermediate children from rural area of Pitt County participated in the practicum, where institute participants taught cooperatively developed units of work in a team teaching arrangement.

Staff members included the director, Dr. Ingram; Dr. Joseph W. Congleton Jr., co-director; Dr. Amos Clark and Miss Nannette McLain, all of the ECU staff.

Visiting staff members were Dr. Millard Brown of Campbell College, Mrs. Inez P. Newberry and Lonnie Moose of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Public Schools, and Miss Lucille Garrison of the Burlington City Schools.

Queenie Gatlin Taft, 107 Beachwood Dr. was among teachers attending the institute.

Prompt Action Saves 2 Barns; Fire Claims Third

What might have been a spectacular fire and a costly one was averted, and loss held to $2,000 on Tuesday afternoon.

At 2:33 p.m. Tuesday, the Ayden Fire Department received an alarm and dispatched fire-fighting equipment to the Ernest Stokes farm, at Stokestown on highway N.C. 102.

When the fire fighters arrived on the scene, they found three barns on fire. One was fully in flames, and already beyond saving, officers said.

The other two ignited by heat from the first barn. They were saved without damage to the structures or the tobacco inside them. Two additional barns, adjacent to the three on fire, were watered down and kept from igniting.

Michael Worthington, Pitt County fire marshal, stated this fire showed the importance of summoning fire-fighting equipment on time. He said the five barns, all located together, would have burned without the presence of adequate fire fighting equipment.

In other fires, a barn was lost on the Guy Dixon farm, near Black Jack on RR No. 1774. The fire occurred at 2:00 p.m. Monday. The Grimesland Fire Department responded to the alarm. The loss amounted to $2,000.

The Winterville Fire Department responded at 11:14 p.m. Monday to an 11:13 p.m. alarm for a tobacco barn fire on the J.H. Dail farm on the Renston Road. The fire was burning out of the top of the barn when the department, with two trucks and 18 firemen, arrived. They managed to save the barn and damage was limited to an estimated $300 for the barn and $300 for the tobacco.

Pastors Receive Assignments

FALCON — Two Greenville churches of the Pentecostal Holiness Conference have received new pastoral assignments for the coming two years.

Re-assigned to the First Pentecostal Holiness Church on Cotanche Street was Rev. Harvey Morris. Rev. Morris, a member of the Stationing Committee, will begin his third year with the church.

The Rev. Tim B. Henry, pastor of the Mount Carmel Church in Fayetteville, will assume duties at the St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church on U. S. Highway 264. He will replace the Rev. King E. White, who was transferred from St. Paul's to the Gospel Tabernacle in Dunn.

Rev. Henry has been the conference leader for the top overall gains in membership and financial record.

Other pastoral assignments in the Greenville area included: Carson Memorial, Rev. L. H. Leggett; Meadowbrook, Rev. G. S. Holiday; Farmville, Rev. T. M. Spencer; Grifton, Rev. Ola S. Porter; Grimesland, Rev. W. M. Wooten; Winterville, Rev. Jimmy C. Williams and Snow Hill, Rev. Norman W. Butts. No assignment has yet been made for the Ayden Church.

Space Scientists Gather In Vienna

VIENNA (AP) — Space leaders and scientists from 67 nations convene today to begin two weeks of discussion on how best to apply the practical benefits of space technology to the social and economic advancement of mankind.

The two major space powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, will dominate the meeting, the first space conference ever held by the United Nations. U.N. committees have been preparing for it for two years.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, who is expected to address the conference later, described the effort in a statement as a major step in bridging the gap between space powers and other nations.

He expressed hope that the meeting would not only explain the practical benefits of space exploration, but also would ultimately result in joint practical ventures that would bring these benefits to all nations and thereby help to alleviate some of mankind's most pressing economic and social problems.

Austrian Foreign Minister Kurt Waldheim, president of the conference, said discussions "will relate to the use of communications satellites for development, education and cultural purposes, the use of meteorological satellites in day-to-day weather forecasting, the application of satellites to surveys of natural resources and other matters of direct concern to all engaged in the task of development."

"It will be the first international conference on space exploration where states with no experience in space activities can hear from and be heard by these states with the experience and ability to secure these applications from outer space research."

The conference in Vienna's Hofburg Palace could lead to further cooperation in space activities between the United States and Russia.

Exchange Club Installs Officers

Charles G. Cobb was installed last night as President of the Greenville Exchange Club. The installation concluded a quarterly Ladies Night Banquet for members' wives.

Other officers are Frank M. Wooten, Jr., first vice-president; James F. Radford, second vice-president; James S. Wells, secretary-treasurer; and Louis H. Thomas Patterson, members of the Board of Control.

Installing officer, District Exchange Director M. F. Burnette of Murfreesboro, addressed the club on "Where Do We Go From Here?" He stressed the need of challenges on the local level emphasizing that today is a time of "golden opportunities for community service." Burnette stated that service programs would be effective only if members understand the projects.

Organize Class In Home Sewing

An organizational meeting for Home Sewing II was held on August 12, at 7:00 p.m. at Pitt Technical Institute.

The class meets on Monday nights from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. in Room No. 24. The class will be 40 hours in length and tuition for the class will be $4.00.

Anyone interested in attending this class may enter through until Monday, August 26.

New Interest In African Culture

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The chairman of the African-American Sisters United organization, Mrs. Mae Mallory, has arrived here from the United States for a month's visit.

She said the Sisters were becoming conscious of African nationalism, and "since we originated from Africa, we are interested in studying African culture and African women's organizations."

In Defense Of Party Conventions

Demands that a good many things which were so evident at Miami last week be eliminated from national political conventions bring to mind the oft-heard cry that we take politics out of government.

To be sure, the speeches were dull, many nominations were little more than a waste of time, keynote addresses may have been more stimulating if read by the delegates rather than being delivered by the speakers. The demonstrations were colorful for the first three minutes, but after that they were boring . . . and no one ever suggested they change as much as one vote in the whole convention hall. Delegates wandered up and down the aisles, much more interested in chatting with their counterparts than paying attention to the rostrum.

For those critics who call for the elimination of these things from the conventions, we offer this reminder:

Some Trouble On Your Trip?

By DON METCALF
BURLINGTON — So it rained some when you took your vacation trip? Or perhaps you had minor car trouble that delayed you to some extent?

Before you continue to feel sorry for yourself, consider the case of Roger Nardelli and Bobby Orr and count your blessings. Especially in Roger's case.

Roger resides at 517 Trail 8 and is assistant office manager with the Erwin Mills Division of Burlington Industries in Durham. Bobby, a former Burlington resident, is from Cary and is an automotive parts salesman.

Roger, Bobby and Ray Thomas had planned a sailing trip along the North Carolina coast for some time, and a lot of preparations were made as the date neared. Roger's wife, Dot, got into the act and made a tent to shield the cockpit area in case of rain.

Plans called for the trip, in Roger's 16-foot sailboat, to embark from Mackey's Landing in the Albemarle Sound early Friday morning. They were to proceed eastward to the Outer Banks, then turn southward for a while and finally westward into the Pamlico Sound and end the trip at "Little" Washington about mid-afternoon Sunday.

The trip called for about 150 miles of sailing.

Ray had to cancel out at the last minute, but Roger and Bobby left here late Thursday as planned. They were driving separate cars as they needed two vehicles to make their plan work.

It was raining when they left here, and it continued to rain during most of the weekend.

They arrived at Mackey's Landing without incident, installed the mast and launched the boat. The centerboard cable broke when the boat left the trailer to go into the water, and Roger and Bobby had to pull the boat back out of the water to repair the cable.

They then took both cars to Washington and left Roger's car and boat trailer there so it would be ready when they arrived there in the sailboat Sunday afternoon. They returned to Mackey's Landing in Bobby's car, and after spending the night in the car, arose at 6 a.m. to begin their voyage.

They soon found that someone had given them some wrong information, as they had to remove the mast to get the boat under a railroad bridge just outside of Mackey's Landing. They used the boat's auxiliary motor to get past the bridge and into the sound and then replace the mast.

They found a good wind and choppy water prevailing in the sound and had a good run for a time, until they noticed that the boat's tiller arm was weakening. This resulted in a stop for repairs.

Shortly after getting under way again they encountered shallow water in the Bull Bay area. The centerboard up without the cable, but they continued for several miles until they again encountered shallow water and hit a sandbar.

The centerboard dug into the sand, and it took considerable effort to get it free. They couldn't get the boat off the sandbar, however, and a storm was brewing, so they ran up a distress signal.

They got in touch with some crab fishermen nearby and learned that they were about 40 miles from Mackey's Landing. Finally two of the fishermen agreed, for a certain amount, to take Bobby back to the landing so he could get his car.

When Bobby returned, they transferred their belongings from the boat to the car and went to Plymouth to spend Friday night at a motel. This ended the sailing venture.

Saturday morning they went to Washington to pick up Roger's car and they found that the radiator was leaking and the motor had a tendency to overheat.

They returned to the point where the cruise ended, picked up the boat and were headed for Columbia when Roger heard a thumping noise and ran over something in the road.

When they arrived in Columbia the car's engine stopped. Investigation revealed that the battery was missing. It was found that the bottom of the battery case had corroded away, letting the battery fall through to the pavement.

That was the thumping sound that Roger had heard, and the battery was the ob-

These are the things of which national political conventions are made. Cut them out and you cut out the convention. These things are as much a part of American politics as the smoke-filled room, the $100-a-plate luncheon, the subtle vote solicitation of the amateur politician or the sledgehammer tactics of the tough professional.

Why worry about the image of American politics left with those abroad who watch our political parties in their quadrennial gatherings? The very fact that members of a single political party can pull each other's hair out at a convention and still support the same ticket a few months later is part of the genius of American politics. If people in other lands can't understand, we can't explain it to them. It remains a mystery even to many Americans.

The political convention was never intended to be a formal, polished, smooth, quiet gathering like the Wednesday Afternoon Croquet Club. It brings together all elements within the political party from all parts of the country: rich and poor, liberal and conservative, circumspect and shady, conscientious and selfish. It brings them together to shape the course and purpose of their party, not in some orderly, philosophical discussion, but in the unique way of the American political convention which is close to the very heart of the American political system.

If we take out of the convention all those things which make them national political conventions, let's just handle the whole thing by mail and let it go at that.

More Buttons For The Future

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — America's housewives may spend more time pushing buttons than sewing them on in our electronic future.

For example, says Milt Immerman, a top industrial designer:

"She will have in her kitchen a small television screen and a console with a number of buttons.

"Instead of making a daily trip to the supermarket, she will push a button and see on the screen a parade of products and their prices, including the day's specials. She'll push coded buttons to select the items she wishes. The last button she presses will give the code key to her bank.

"Her grocery order will be filled overnight at a central distributing center, charged to her bank account, and delivered to her door the following morning."

Sound like a dream? Immerman, who makes a business of turning dreams into realities at the drafting board is full of visions of what life may be like next.

"As our society gets more urban," he remarked, "The problem will be to get people from one place to another."

"It may become practical to join skyscrapers at their rooftops with connecting struts that will both strengthen them against sway and provide runways or landing strips for people flying into the city. Monorails could be put under the struts to enable quick travel from one place to another within the city."

Immerman, a big, genial graying man of 58 with a tremendous gusto for living, is president of Walter Dorwin Teague Associates, Inc. The firm is named after its late founder, a pioneer in the still pioneering field of engineering design.

He and his colleagues have designed products ranging from soap wrappers to the world's first automatic robot, a fellow called Unimate.

HAL BOYLE

"The Ford company now has 15 or 20 of these Unimates," he said. "They can be taught to perform 16,000 different functions. They can pour you a cup of coffee or lift a 75-pound white-hot casting from a foundry."

Pointing out that the Industrial Design Society of America still has only about 600 members, Immerman said the field was wide open to talented young men and women interested in helping man "fashion his response to the challenge of his changing environment."

"The big reward is the re-

The Unknown Quantity

The selection of Gov. Spiro Agnew as Richard M. Nixon's running mate on the Republican ticket caught everyone including Gov. Agnew by surprise.

Having talked to many people and having pieced all the facts together I can now reveal how the Republicans made this choice.

An hour after Nixon was nominated to be his party's standard bearer he started conferring with Republican leaders as to who would be the vice presidential candidate.

The debate lasted well into the morning and from all reports it became bitter and occasionally acrimonious.

This is how some of it went.

A party leader said, "What we need to balance the Republican ticket is an unknown quantity, somebody that the people don't know, somebody that they've never heard of before, somebody who could unite the party."

"That's all well and good," a second party spokesman said. "But where can we find someone at this late date that isn't a household name?"

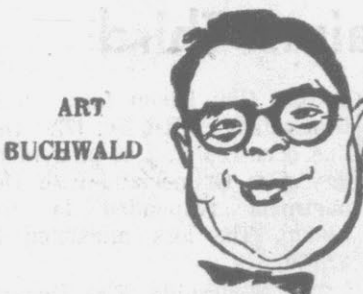

A third member of the group, "How about what's his name?"

"Who?"

"You know, the senator from somewhere in the Midwest. I forget which state."

"He might be a possibility, but would the South take him?"

"I think it should be an unknown quantity from the West. If we're going to pick someone nobody's heard of, he should at least balance the ticket geographically."

"What about Mark Hatfield?"

"He's too well known. He's been mentioned by the press as a possibility, so people know who he is."

"They may know him, but he's certainly not a household name."

"Nevertheless there are some voters in the United States who have heard of him, and therefore it would be too risky to nominate him. Don't forget this time we want to win."

"He's right," said one of Nixon's managers. "Why don't we go with Bill Miller, Barry Goldwater's running mate. He's the perfect unknown quantity. People never heard of him before he ran, and after he ran they still don't know who he is."

"It's a good idea but that would mean both the President and Vice President would be from New York state."

"That eliminates Miller. When we talk of an unknown quantity we have to pick someone who is a statesman, a leader, who is familiar with the problems of the cities, the counties and the suburbs."

"How do we know he's all these things if he's an unknown quantity?"

"You're always throwing up

Other Editors Say Still Going Strong

(Hartford Courant)

Those delicious, delectable, tasty treats — ice cream cones — are 65 years old. Retirement hasn't been mentioned, and in fact they are in better health than ever before. They are now an impregnable part of the great American institution. It was on July 20, 1903, that A. J. Doumar, a hardware salesman from Norfolk, Virginia, started it all. He opened a booth on Coney Island to sell his product, ice cream, packed between two waffles. To save on waffles, he hit upon the idea of folding one thin waffle into the shape of a cone and putting a scoop or two of ice cream into it. And thus the ice cream cone came into existence, and hot, perspiring folks have been thanking him ever since.

Ice cream was popular long before 1903, however. Credit for the start of the wholesale ice cream business in this country is generally given to Jacob Fussell, a dealer in dairy products in Baltimore in 1851. Mr. Fussell had a contract with farmers in that area for all their milk and cream. It put him in the awkward position of sometimes getting more dairy products from the farmers than his customers needed. He hit on the idea of using the surpluses for making ice cream, believing that "It could be easily disposed of at a small profit for 25 cents a quart." Needless to say, he was more than right.

And so, although the ice-cream industry started in a modest manner with a tub freezer using salt and ice, automation has changed all that. The popular appeal of ice cream is now worldwide. And while there are many ways of serving ice cream, certainly the cone is one of the most popular, averaging sales of two billion cones yearly in the United States alone.

When we talk of an unknown quantity we have to pick someone who is a statesman, a leader, who is familiar with the problems of the cities, the counties and the suburbs."

"How do we know he's all these things if he's an unknown quantity?"

Humans Create Trash

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Wherever man goes so also goes a trash problem, and since man is continuing to move from rural areas to urban centers, city fathers around the world are faced with monumental garbage disposal problems.

The garbage and trash disposal problem is complicated by the fact that as more people crowd into a city there is generally less empty space available for disposal in landfills, junkyards or incinerators.

But just as the situation looks worst comes the realization that one man's problem has always been another's opportunity. In trash, evidence now shows, there is revenue for railroads and city treasuries, steam and electricity for buildings and even gold to replenish that lost to the international speculators.

Inventors of fantastic, grotesque machines for grinding, crushing, shredding and compacting also are having a fiendishly happy time of it.

But first the railroads. In Philadelphia the city has just signed a contract with a land reclamation company to haul trash from the city by rail and dump it into the unsightly cavities of old anthracite strip mines to the north.

The method supposedly will cost the city $2 a ton less than incineration, which is now used, and presumably also will cover and fertilize the sterile, scarred landscape from which the coal was dug.

Other railroads, such as the Illinois Central, Western Pacific and Western Maryland, are interested in similar contracts.

Ross Wilhelm, a business economist and University of Michigan professor, feels that America's attitude toward its Refuse might be wrong. We tend to think of garbage not only as valueless, he says, but as costly too. Perhaps, as he suggests, the affluent society should think more highly of its effluence.

Wilhelm notes that Paris now burns 1.5 million tons of garbage a year to produce steam and electricity, and that Munich, Germany, obtains about 10 per cent of its power needs by burning trash. Geneva, Montreal, San Francisco and Norfolk also operate similar plants.

There's even gold in rubbish, claims the U.S. Bureau of Mines. The fly ash of garbage incinerators has been found to be a source, potentially, of millions of dollars of recoverable gold, silver and other metals.

These precious metals come from photographic chemicals, the solder of electric equipment, articles that have been plated and even the sparkle dust on Christmas and birthday cards.

Disposal by train and by fire, however, has not dulled the inventiveness of the engineers who create the monster machines.

The latest in commercial compressors was reported this week from Yokosuka, Japan, where a plant went into operation to reduce tons of garbage to blocks solid as a rock.

As 3,000 tons of pressure is applied to the garbage the liquids are squeezed out, along with much of the odor. The blocks are then encased in asphalt sealants so that they can be used as the foundations for buildings or other monuments to man's ingenuity.

Strength For Today Battle For Container Market

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A NEW ATTITUDE

The word "repentance" is an interesting Biblical word. In the Old Testament the word is usually associated with comfort. In the New Testament the word means "to have another mind." We usually think of repentance as having to do simply with the giving-up of something that is evil, but it means more than that. In true repentance we both give up that which is wrong and change our mind with reference to its value. We may renounce an evil but all the time keep thinking how pleasant was the practice of it and how disappointed we are that we cannot go back to its "satisfactions."

In repentance one looks back on an evil and sees it as something mistaken, pervented, burned out and left a musty ruin. The person who repents of his heavy drinking looks back upon it and knows it to have been a great mistake. Those who wallow in the lusts of the flesh and then later repent of their evil come to feel that not only were their acts wrong but that these wrong acts kept them from the fullness of real and enduring joy.

Life is an opportunity God has given us to grow souls. If all we grow is sated appetites and a burning hunger for more then we have not found life in the fullest sense of the term.

To repent means not just to renounce but to change one's mind. We are sorry for our sins, but we are also filled with joy at having found something better to take their place.

By ELMER ROESSNER

The affluent American isn't interested in returning bottles and other containers for pennies and nickels. This fact has ignited an enormous, hot battle among glass, plastics, steel and aluminum industries for larger shares of the container market.

Time was when glass and steel almost completely dominated the field. Everything except dry products that didn't come in tinplated steel came in glass. There were exceptions: beer in kegs, salted fish in wooden casks, and a few others.

Then paraffin containers came in, mostly for milk and orange juice. Then the aluminum industry bid for a share. Technical difficulties were great and many a tinplate man said they'd never make a satisfactory aluminum container. But the industry found ways — Europe was a bit ahead of us — and the industry produced aluminum cans for beer and, almost as an afterthought, cans for other nondry foods and drink. It even devised cans that didn't need can openers. A pull and a twist did it.

Plastics Come Charging In

The plastic industries dashed in for a share of the loot. Plastics had had part of the container business ever since rubber was one of the earliest plastics, followed by celluloid.

Neither material was suitable for food and drink, so the plastics industry kept on. Blow molding was a huge step forward. It permitted the production of all kinds of containers, with no waste in thickness of walls and fast, inexpensive production.

The earliest products could not get approval for use for foods; besides they were opaque. They were limited to detergents and other non-edible products. But now there is polyvinyl chloride (PVC), approved for use with food and as clear as glass.

New Gold Rush

The stampede is on. Scores of manufacturers are getting into the act. A combination of Ball Bros. Research and Aircro has developed a modified form that can be used so fast and so cheaply in molding containers it is competitive with glass. Other companies are speeding up developments.

PVC is already being used for meat trays and the shopper, simply by turning them over, can see the spreading bone or the big chunk of fat on the bottom.

Soon vegetables, jams, jellies, fruits, delicacies and other foods will appear.

The Society of the Plastics Industry estimates that 4.6 billion plastic bottles will be used for food this year, an increase from 3.8 billion last year. This includes opaque as well as clear containers.

McCarthy Forces Plan To Zero In On Deep South

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — McCarthy forces plan to zero in on the Deep South using charges of racial discrimination in a broad assault on delegate seating at the Democratic National Convention.

The main target will be Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox's 107-member delegation. But scores more delegates could be picked up by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy in other southern states including Texas.

Two Tar Heels Die In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has announced the names of two North Carolinians who have died in Vietnam, one killed in action and the other from non-hostile causes.

Killed in action was Army Pfc. Roy L. Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Jenkins of Rt. 1, Box 11, Aulander.

Army Cpl. John C. Miles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Miles of Rt. 3, Burlington, was listed as having died not as a result of hostile action.

McCarthy camp has its best chance to pick up the most delegates in the South.

The effort also could be expected to have another benefit by polishing up the McCarthy image on civil rights where it is generally regarded to be weakest.

"The No. 1 priority from the McCarthy standpoint," said Rauh, is the delegation from Georgia, pledged to Maddox.

A slate selected by the Georgia Democratic Forum, a pro-McCarthy group, is standing by to sit in for the Georgia delegation should it be ousted after the Credentials Committee hearings beginning Monday in Chicago. The Convention opens a week later.

The Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama Delegations are accused of shutting out Negro voters. Rauh said Texas is guilty of "incredible discrimination against Mexican-Americans."

"The racial cases clearly are the best and most likely of success," said Rauh in an interview.

Most of the attention so far has focused on a move by a biracial loyalist slate in Mississippi to unseat the state's regular Democratic delegation, which includes Gov. John Bell Williams.

The McCarthyites are supporting the biracial group. But so are the other two contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. George S. McGovern of South

"That's a contest that is not in the political arena but in the civil rights arena," Rauh said.

In Alabama, the regular Democratic delegation led by State Chairman Robert S. Vance is being challenged by two rival slates—one pro-McCarthy and the other pro-Humphrey.

And Vance in turn is challenging the seating of McCarthy delegates throughout the country because the senator has refused to commit himself to support the party's presidential nominee.

Rauh said under a compromise agreement approved at the 1956 convention delegates cannot be forced to take loyalty oaths.

Rauh said McCarthy forces are entitled to 50 delegates in the Texas delegation, or 48 per cent, on the basis of voting strength shown by Negroes.

New Comptroller For Julliard

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charles C. Lucas Jr. has resigned as an official of the North Carolina National Bank trust department to become comptroller of Julliard School of Music in New York City.

Lucas, a native of Charlotte and a 1961 Duke University graduate, will begin work as finance officer of the famous music conservatory in two weeks.

Mexican-Americans and liberals over the last 12 years. All, however, are now pledged to Gov. John Connally as a favorite son.

Challenges involving the Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Washington delegations are based on alleged irregularities and inequities in the selection process.

In Connecticut, the McCarthy forces contend they are entitled to 13 instead of nine delegates; in Pennsylvania to 18 instead of two at-large delegates, and in Michigan to four delegates from the 6th Congressional district.

Rauh said that in Washington state, fraud is charged in the selection of delegates from two counties. Since these delegates participated in the state convention, the whole delegation may be tainted, Rauh said.

The latest Associated Press poll of delegates shows 824½ pledged to Humphrey, 436½ committed to McCarthy, and ward of being a pioneer," he observed. "You are ahead of your times. You work on things that won't reach the public for several years."

The dollar reward is a lure too. Industrial designers, he said, earn from $5,000 to $40,000 or $50,000 a year.

To Immerman, industrial designing at its best is a happy wedding of the skills and knowledge of such various disciplines as engineering, architecture, marketing, sociology and psychology.

He himself entered the still-new field after earning an engineering degree at the University of Iowa and serving an apprenticeship as a Broadway stage designer. His hobby is portrait painting.

Immerman and his staff of 250 work on as many as a 1,000 to 1,500 projects and problems in a year. One that tickles him the most was of the simplest — the design of a rectangular package for toothpaste.

"It reduced pilferage by 75 per cent," he said, smiling. "It's harder to pocket or slip up your sleeve a package with right angle corners than one that is just a straight tube."

"You have to know people and how they act — that's basic."

roadblocks," a party leader said angrily.

"Gentlemen, Gentlemen," ber we're all Republicans," Mr. Nixon, our researchers compiled a list of strong vice presidential candidates that nobody's heard of and have just taken a spot survey."

"What are the results?" "They listed 10 of our leading unknown quantities and polled 113,678 people. The name of Spiro Agnew came in first every time. As a matter of fact, not one person surveyed knew who he was."

"Great. Who is he?" "Let's see. Here it is. He's governor of Maryland."

"That's beautiful. He's not a household name, yet he can placate the South. Get him on the phone."

"We've been trying to. But because he's such an unknown quantity no one knows where he's staying."

ject he had run over. The generator had kept the car running as long as they were on the road.

Roger finally managed to find a new battery and when it was installed and he tried to start the car, the starter mechanism broke.

He got some men at a service station to push him off and he headed for home, following Bobby, with his car still wanting to heat up.

The car's steering mechanism didn't feel just right, and Roger checked his tires when he stopped to get gasoline, but everything seemed to be all right.

Then, some time later, one of the tires blew out in the Cary area. Roger had to leave his motor running while he changed the tire, as his starter didn't work, and the temperature was still running high, but he finally got the tire changed and arrived home.

And then what happened? As he backed the car into a garage the motor cut off and the radiator ruptured on top, blowing water all over the place.

Roger figures that the six hours of sailing, covering about 40 miles, cost about $200.

the remainder of the 2,264 uncommitted or lined up for favorite sons. A total of 1,312 is needed for nomination.

Rauh declined to estimate how many votes McCarthy could pick up in the challenges.

Paying $64,000 For Oversight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mathilde Clem, 59, who sued when forces were left in her abdomen after an operation, has settled for $64,000 in damages.

Mrs. Clem underwent an operation July 24, 1962. A month later X-rays disclosed the forceps, and a second operation was needed to remove them.

Mrs. Clem sought $175,000 in the Superior Court suit against Drs. James I. Wargin and William G. Caldwell, the surgeons, and St. Vincent Hospital where the operation was performed.

'Strangler' Fails Win Petition

BOSTON (AP) — Albert DeSalvo, 36, who maintains he is the Boston strangler, has failed in a bid to win a reduction of his 7 to 10-year sentence for escaping from Bridgewater State Hospital in February 1967.

The Appellate Division of Massachusetts Superior Court rejected DeSalvo's petition Tuesday.

DeSalvo was captured the day after he escaped. Two other men who fled with him also were recaptured.

Identify Deadly Gas In Boat Hold

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Hydrogen sulfide, a highly lethal gas that can be produced by decaying organic matter, has been identified as the agent that caused five persons to topple over dead after they peered into the hold of a fishing boat.

Dr. Wallace M. Graves Jr., a Fort Myers pathologist, said Tuesday night the deaths were traced to hydrogen sulfide after autopsies and extensive testing of samples taken from the boat.

The men died Sunday after being exposed to the gas while preparing to unload fish from their boat, the Novelly, at the Protein Product Co. docks at Charlotte Harbour. Authorities said the five men died within a two-minute period.

A sixth man, Lawrence Finley, was revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and is reported recovering.

Authorities said the deaths came within seconds after one of the men, Francis D. Webb, 23, of Peace Dale, R.I., turned on a huge hose used to wash down the hold of the boat. The hose also was used as a vacuum tube to remove the water and the ship's cargo of menhaden and herring.

Graves said his studies had not identified the source of the gas, and Lee County investigator James Loeffler said his office was continuing its attempt to identify the source.

The pathologist said the gas is highly lethal in concentrated form. He refused to speculate on how the gas found on the boat was produced, but said it can be generated by decomposition of organic material.

Graves said the gas in the boat, which remains tied at the company docks, has dissipated.

Webb dropped after he turned on the hose to wash down the fish in the hold. Authorities said the other men keeled over as they peered into the hold.

Used U.S. Flag For Pants Patch

NORTHFIELD, Vt. (AP) — An unemployed carpenter has been charged with publicly mutilating and defacing a U.S. flag by wearing it as patches on the seat of his pants.

Washington County Atty. Joseph Palmisano brought the charge Tuesday night against Lawrence Wang, 19, of Plainfield, who wears his long hair in a pigtail.

The charges said that by his alleged act Wang "contempt" upon the flag by "wearing said pants in public view."

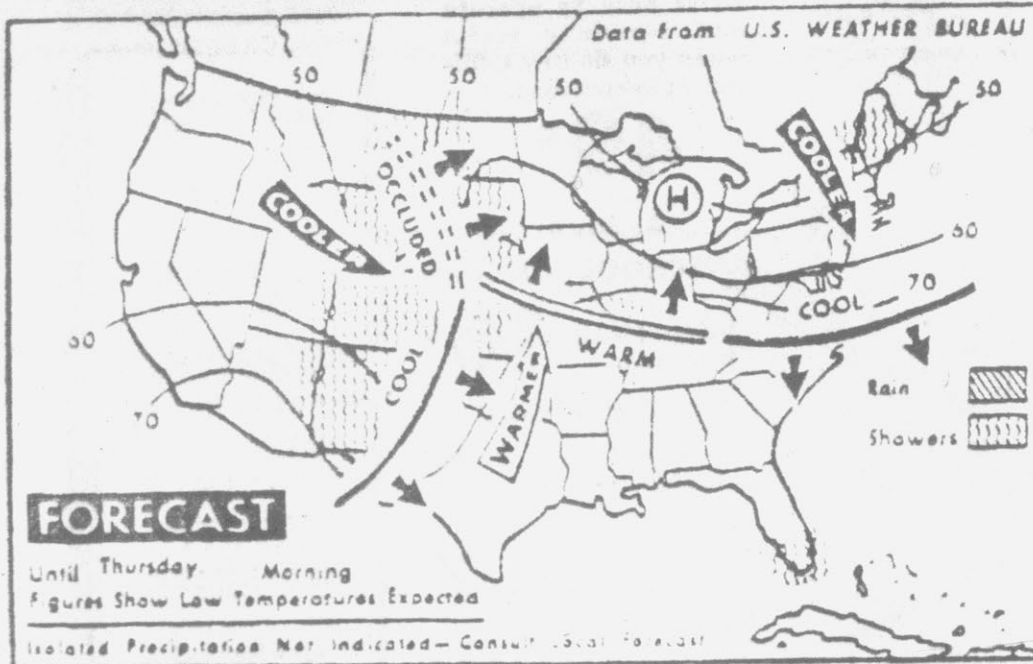

Wang, learning that the county attorney had brought the charge, surrendered at the Northfield home of District Judge John P. Connarn. He pleaded innocent and was released in $100 bail.

Michigan Reformatory. Watkins needed medical attention.

He had shot himself in the foot while inspecting a rifle he had stolen from a hunting lodge two hours before.

Thursday Marks Birthday Of A N.C. Diplomat

By Christopher Crittenden
 N. C. Department of
 Archives and History
 Written for
 The Associated Press

RALEIGH (AP) — Thursday will mark the birthday of our U. S. ambassador to Great Britain during World War I. He was Walter Hines Page, born in what is now the town of Cary, near Raleigh, in 1855.

Young Page went to Trinity College, then in the village of Trinity in Randolph County, but did not like it and transferred to Randolph-Macon College in Virginia. He was given one of the first 20 fellowships to Johns Hopkins University when that institution opened in 1876.

Page turned to journalism and when that institution opened in 1876.

Page turned to journalism and had a varied experience. He obtained the Raleigh State Chronicle and launched a campaign to forget the ex-Confederate mummies and look to the future. But his "audacity and impatience" aroused hostility and the paper was not a success.

He went north and became editor of the Atlantic Monthly. Later he founded and became editor of the World's Work which he made into a very lively and timely magazine.

In politics Page supported his old friend, Woodrow Wilson, and was appointed by him ambassador to Great Britain. He did much to promote Anglo-American friendship, and his "brilliant and illuminating letters on English life and affairs" were greatly valued by the President.

When World War I came on, Wilson and Page drifted apart. Wilson insisted on maintaining strict American neutrality, while Page construed the war "as a gigantic assault on democratic civilization." Indeed, Page in some ways was "more Anglophile than the English," and he refused to back some of Wilson's policies.

Page was about to resign when the U. S. entered the war, but then he stayed on. He urged the immediate sending of large American forces to Europe.

But Page's health failed, and in August, 1918, he was compelled to quit. He returned home in October and died and was buried two months later in the Southern Pines area. He had lived to see complete Allied victory in the war.

Expeditions Are Going Worldwide

CHICAGO (AP) — The age of the expedition to faraway places is reaching fulfillment at the Field Museum of Natural History.

Expeditions, 13 during 1968 are exploring for knowledge ranging from Indians of the Southwest United States to mammal studies in Turkey.

Dr. Paul S. Martin, with the aid of 12 undergraduates, is working at digs in Arizona. An Amazonian Peru botanical and forest survey led by Dr. R. Simpson has about completed an assignment begun in 1967.

A mammal survey in Turkey led by William S. Street left in early spring. A floristic study in Costa Rica will be led by Dr. William C. Burger, assistant curator of vascular plants.

Taxes Trouble Gypsy Palmist

CHICAGO (AP) — The gypsy palmist said the money was from a client who gave it to her daughter as a gift.

A U. S. Tax Court said it was income that should appear on an income tax return.

Commerce Clearing House said the tax court didn't believe the gypsy's tale that $5,000 from a client who complained of stomach trouble was a gift to the gypsy's daughter.

The gypsy had said the client's illness would go away if he gave away the money "because she convinced the individual his stomach trouble was caused by his obsession for money." She said it also offended the spirits.

Doubts Wasted By Safecrackers

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A sign on the safe at Landholt Auto Refinishing, Inc., informs would-be safecrackers that it isn't locked.

That information was overlooked by one safecracker who attacked the safe from the back with a cutting torch.

Eventually he discovered that the safe wasn't locked. When he opened it, he found out why. Inside were papers, 27 cents and a few postage stamps.

Viet Cong Front Said Emerging In Contested Areas

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong's National Liberation Front is making a systematic effort to set up "People's Liberation Committees" in contested rural areas, reliable sources said today.

The new drive, coupled with an intensified Viet Cong recruitment campaign throughout the country, was seen by some allied officials as a possible attempt to gain a firm foothold in Communist-influenced areas in preparation for a future cease-fire.

Report Possible Indiscretions

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese legislative committee says some American soldiers may have stolen civilians' property and money and committed other indiscretions during a U.S.-Vietnamese raid to recover stolen American property.

But the investigating committee said it found largely untrue a Vietnamese newspaper's charges that American Military Police looted, beat up civilians and desecrated a Vietnamese flag in the raid on Cam Ranh village July 26.

BANS OPPOSITION

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda in a dawn broadcast today banned Zambia's opposition United Party. He blamed it for riots in the copper belt during the last three days in which one official of Kaunda's government party was killed and a junior minister was cut up by a mob.

tees" in villages under undisputed Viet Cong control act as the administrative authority. American officials estimate that 17 per cent of South Vietnam's 17 million civilians live under such local Viet Cong administrations.

The officials say about 25 per cent of the population lives in rural areas regarded as "contested," where NLF operations have been clandestine, since the Viet Cong administrators could never operate openly there for fear of being denounced and arrested.

Recent intelligence reports indicate the "People's Liberation Committees" are surfacing in Binh Long and Phuoc Tuy provinces and in the Mekong Delta and the central highlands.

American sources said efforts to set up such committees appear to have met with little success among the civilian population.

Under the 1954 Geneva agreements, Communist forces were temporarily allowed to hold villages which were under their administration at the time of a cease-fire. A rule-of-thumb used then by the three-nation neutral armistice commission to determine whether a village had such an administration was the existence of an uncoincidental local "Liberation Committee."

Croom Family Reunion Sunday

The annual Croom family reunion will be held Sunday at the Pavilion on the Croom meeting house grounds. The program will begin at 11 a.m. and dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m.

All members of the Croom family are urged to attend and to bring picnic baskets.

Nixon Strives To Unify His Party

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon strove today to align all Republican factions and philosophies solidly behind his race for the White House.

He arranged a series of meetings with top supporters of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a political adversary turned campaign ally, and scheduled a conference with his defeated rival on Aug. 21.

A parallel session also is due with New York Mayor John V. Lindsay.

In a pair of telephone calls to the New York GOP leaders, Nixon won pledges of support in the White House race ahead, an aide said.

"Both Rockefeller and Lindsay have agreed to support the ticket enthusiastically, and their roles will be the subject of detailed discussions in New York next week," said Robert Ellsworth.

City Tied Up By Demonstrators

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MEXICO CITY (AP) — More than 100,000 chanting students and their sympathizers tied up downtown Mexico City for several hours Tuesday night after marching to the president's office to accuse the government of armed repression.

Federal paratroopers used a bazooka to blow open the door to a university high school on July 29 to get at young rioters inside, and the students have been protesting sporadically ever since.

The demonstrators chanted for President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz but the president did not appear.

SHOES, TOO?

HANOVER, N. H. (AP) — A student handbook for the summer term at Dartmouth College contains this admonition: "Students are expected to wear shoes in all college buildings."

worth, Nixon's national political director.

Ellsworth said Tuesday's telephone call to Rockefeller was a lengthy one, and they agreed to meet next week at Nixon's Fifth Avenue apartment to discuss how the GOP can carry New York in the Nov. 5 election and what personal role Rockefeller will play in the White House campaign.

"Gov. Rockefeller couldn't have been more pleasant," Ellsworth said.

At a news conference earlier in the day, Lindsay answered 40 questions on Republican politics without once praising or criticizing the Nixon-Agnew ticket. He said that in his support for the ticket he will "emphasize supported by young, bright progressives into the Republican party."

Lindsay said he had not set plans to campaign for Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew but "will do what I can in the time limits set by running the city of New York. My first job is to be mayor."

Nixon confers today with Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, a key Rockefeller booster during the campaign for the Republican nomination.

He also sees an array of state party leaders—some more attuned to other candidates during the race for nomination—at his resort headquarters on Mission Bay.

Ellsworth said the drive for unity embraces more conservative Republicans, as well as the party liberals who wanted Rockefeller to be the nominee.

Underscoring this, the Nixon organization announced the nominee is arranging to meet Friday with California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"We would like all Republicans to campaign for us to the extent that they can," Ellsworth said.

During the next two weeks, he said, Nixon would be contacting Republicans of all opinions, working to build a broad campaign.

Nixon already has talked by telephone with Govs. George Romney of Michigan and Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania. He is to visit them at their capitals, Lansing and Harrisburg, next week. The timing of those trips has not yet been announced.

Nixon also talked by telephone with Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, a Rockefeller supporter prior to the GOP convention. Ellsworth said Percy will play a major role in the national campaign, speaking, traveling and representing the ticket.

State party leaders from Texas, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and New York were on hand for conferences with the candidate.

Marichal Hurls 21st Win Of Year

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Twenty one is the magic number for Willie Mays and Juan Marichal. Mays needs them and Marichal has them.

Marichal won his 21st game of the season Tuesday night, and San Francisco blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 on Mays' 579th career homer. The eighth inning shot left Willie just 21 short of the coveted 600 mark.

The homer was only the second in a month for Mays and his 15th this season. His last one was on Aug. 2, also against the Pirates.

Marichal pitched a two-hitter and now is 14-1 on the road and only 7-4 at home this season. The shutout was the 37th of his career, placing him second on the all-time Giant list, one ahead of Carl Hubbell. Christy Mathewson holds the club record with 83.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago's rampaging Cubs walloped St. Louis 10-3. New York used three pitchers to shut out Los Angeles 2-0. Cincinnati outslug Atlanta 9-8 and Houston split a two-night doubleheader with Philadelphia, winning 5-0 and then losing 4-2.

Marichal was locked in a scoreless pitching duel with Pittsburgh's Bob Veale until the eighth. Then Hal Lanier walked and Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch, setting the stage for Mays.

The only Pirate hits against Marichal, 21-5, were a leadoff single by Maury Wills in the first and a one-out single by Donn Clendenon in the second. Two walks helped Pittsburgh load the bases with two out in the second but Marichal struck out Bob Veale, ending the threat.

The Cubs, valiantly trying to create a pennant race in the NL, beat St. Louis for the seventh straight time with Ron Santo driving in four runs on a double and a homer.

Santo's 17th homer of the year snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh and Chicago wrapped it up with a five-run eighth inning. Ferguson Jenkins won his 13th game and struck out 12, increasing his league-leading total to 180.

The victory left the second place Cubs 12 games back of the Cardinals.

New York's Don Cardwell had the Dodgers shut out on three hits until the ninth but when Len Gabrielson and Willie Davis opened with singles, Met Manager Gil Hodges brought on southpaw Billy Short to face left-handed batter Tom Haller.

The strategy worked with Haller, attempting to bunt, forcing Gabrielson at third. Then Hodges brought Cal Koonce in to retire Ken Boyer and Bob Bailey and wrap it up.

Larry Stahl tagged three hits and drove in one of New York's runs.

Leo Cardenas' ninth inning homer tied the game for Cincinnati and the Reds beat the Braves in the 10th on Mack Jones' double and a run-scoring single by Tony Perez.

The Reds tagged 19 hits—four of them by Pete Rose—and the Braves had 16 safeties. Fred Whitfield drove in three runs with a single and his first homer of the year for Cincinnati while Felix Millan and Bob Johnson had three hits each and Tito Francona three RBI for Atlanta.

Don Wilson pitched a four-hitter and Doug Rader tagged a two-run homer, helping Houston to its first game victory over Philadelphia. Denis Menke's bases-loaded single keyed a three-run wrapup rally in the sixth inning for the Astros.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the second inning of the nightcap halted a 30-inning Philadelphia scoring drought and the Phillies gained the split when Gary Sutherland's pinch single drove in the tie-breaking run in a two-run seventh inning rally.

In the American League, Minnesota downed Washington 8-4, Cleveland blanked Detroit 1-0, Boston shaded Chicago 4-3, New York edged California 3-2 and Baltimore slipped past Oakland 6-5.

Collision At First

Roy White, New York Yankees' leftfielder, is safe at first on a tough grounder between first and second which Bobby Knoop, fielder and threw to California Angels' pitcher Andy Messersmith (47) who covered the bag in the 5th inning of their game at Anaheim, Calif., last night. Messersmith and White collided at the bag with Messersmith falling on his face. White was safe. Hard hat in bottom photo is that of White who is out of picture. Yankees won, 3-2. (AP Wirephoto)

Golf Revolt: A Primer On What It's All About

NEW YORK (AP) — What is used. The fuss all about that caused the touring pros to break away from the Professional Golfers Association:

Here is a primer on the dispute:

Who are the principals?

The PGA, an organization of club professionals formed 52 years ago which started the tour on a shoestring in the late 1920s and the touring pros, the blue ribbon stars.

What is the players' beef?

The players feel they should be permitted to control their $5.6 million tour without interference from the PGA.

Is there interference?

The PGA always has exercised a certain veto power. The tour is under the control of the Tournament Committee, made up of the four top officials of the PGA and four players. In case of a 4-4 deadlock, the matter originally was referred to the pro-PGA Executive Committee. Later a three-man arbitration board from the Advisory Committee was set up but never used.

Has there been a deadlock?

A year ago the Executive Committee turned down a players' proposal for a $200,000 tournament in California which would conflict with the Bob Hope Classic. There was a difference last year on rules for consecutive putting and cleaning the ball but the PGA gave in to the players.

What exactly do the players want?

They want their own organization within the framework of the PGA. They asked for an amendment to the constitution forming a special section of the PGA for tournament players which would be virtually autonomous.

Why didn't the PGA agree?

The PGA insisted that this would be turning the tour completely over to the players and would relegate the PGA, which started the tour and built it up, to the role of a mere figurehead.

Mississippi State scored only once in its last four games last season. That score came on a field goal in the final game against Mississippi, which Ole Miss won 10-3.

Player Revolt Leaves Golfdom In Confusion

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The multi-million-dollar structure of big time tournament golf trembled today under the impact of a player revolt that left sponsors, television officials and the pros themselves in a state of chaos and confusion.

"I think we had to take the action, but I'm a little scared," said Masters champion Bob Goalby, expressing the sentiments of a large number of the affluent golfing gypsies.

"I signed with the players, but I haven't been in on any of the ground work," said Arnold Palmer, the game's richest and perhaps most popular competitor. "I think this action may result in more negotiation. It would be better if the PGA and players could work together."

"I've received calls from all over the country in the past few weeks from sponsors who are fed up to here," said Angus M. Mairs of Minneapolis, president of the International Golf Sponsors Association, representing 33 of the 43 men who put up the $5.6 million to conduct the rich pro tour.

Mairs and other sponsors indicated they probably would line up with the players in the dispute with the ruling Professional Golfers Association. A meeting of sponsors has been called for Houston Sept. 5-6.

Bringing a long-simmering feud to a sudden and dramatic head, the players announced in New York Tuesday that they were breaking with the PGA and preparing to set up a tour of their own.

Through their attorney, Sam Gates of New York, they said they planned no immediate boycott but would honor all existing contracts, which include all 1968 tournaments and at least a couple in 1969—the Bob Hope Classic at Palm Desert, Calif., and the Doral at Miami.

The $250,000 Westchester Classic Opens at Rye, N.Y., Thursday.

But a number of questions remain unanswered:

What about the new, two-year contract signed recently by the PGA with the American Broadcasting Company, giving ABC the right to televise virtually every big tournament except the Masters.

"The PGA had to promise the network a representative field," a spokesman close to the TV negotiations said. "It's unreasonable to believe the PGA could hold the ABC to the contract if it couldn't produce the top players."

What is going to be the reaction of the club pros, who make up the bulk of the PGA membership with a total of 5,800 compared with 280 touring pros?

"I think most of the club pros will back us up when they hear the real story," said touring pro Dick Sikes.

"The club pros may overrule their own officers," added Goalby.

The PGA has called a meeting of the Executive Committee Friday at the national headquarters in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., to discuss future plans.

"We are 52 years old and we built and nurtured the tour from nothing," said Leo Fraser of Atlantic City, N.J., the PGA secretary who is slated to succeed Max Elbin of Washington, D.C., as president.

"You may rest assured—we will always have a tour."

This statement gave rise to speculation that there may be two rival tours—one with the current star players under a new organization, the other a PGA circuit with newcomers.

"The guys in the saddle now can't last forever," said one PGA official.

Most of the sponsors adopted a wait-and-see attitude. Many of them said they felt they may get an ultimate break from the split.

The first reaction of players assembling here for the rich Westchester Classic was one of regret but determination.

"I'm with the players," said Mason Rudolph. "I'm not crestfallen but I'm not jumping for joy," said Frank Beard, a member of the Players Tournament Committee. I hope it was an amicable break and we can continue to be members of the PGA." A number of other players said the announcement came as a surprise but they vowed to stick to their guns.

"I only hope the public doesn't look upon us as a bunch of spoiled brats," said Bob Goalby.

Gates, in making the announcement, said more than 100 players at a meeting last week in Akron, Ohio, had voted unanimously to break away from the PGA if the PGA did not accede to the players' request for more control of their tour.

The players threatened to boycott the PGA Championship a year ago unless permitted to form their own self-running organization as a separate section of the PGA. The demand was refused but a temporary peace was reached with agreement that a three-man arbitration board be named to settle all deadlocks.

The plan didn't work and the Tournament Committee, composed of the four top officials of the PGA and four tournament players (Beard, Jack Nicklaus, Doug Ford and Chairman Gardner Dickinson), continued to hassle. The players demanded almost complete control.

The issues were placed in the hands of attorneys. Gates, for the players and William Rogers for the PGA, who apparently reached a settlement only to have the PGA reject it.

Gates accused the PGA brass of undermining its attorney. Elbin and Fraser insisted they had no right to "give away the tour." They outlined an eight-point plan of concessions which the players rejected.

Many observers—including a large portion of the players—believe the players' action will force the PGA membership at its November meeting to overrule the officers and give in to the touring pros. Elbin's answer to that is "Never."

AYDEN COUNTRY CLUB

Entries are coming in fast for the annual Ayden Invitational Golf Tournament, set for August 24 and 25.

Pro Clarence Alexander of Ayden urges all golfers who wish to participate in the tournament to get their entries in quickly. The field will be held to the first 180 entries.

BROOK VALLEY

Eagles have been coming hot and heavy at Brook Valley Country Club lately.

Ted Ramsey picked up an eagle three on the par-five 17th hole. And Jim Dail wasn't satisfied with one, he got two-back-to-back. He got an eagle on the par five second hole, then another on the par four third hole.

Joe Pinter recently had his best score, an 86. W. L. Allen carded a 69, and Paul McMahan cracked par for the first time with a fine 71.

Plans are underway for the Father-Son Tournament to be held at the club on August 24. Father and son golfing teams are urged to sign up for the tournament.

GREENVILLE C.C.

Dr. Ed Monroe, playing with his wife, fired a 36 for his best nine-hole total at Greenville Golf and Country Club recently. He had only broken 40 once before.

Charles Vincent picked up an eagle on the 13th hole. He was playing with J. C. Whitehurst, Charles Hudson and Johnny Williamson. He used a driver and five-iron to reach the 471-yard par-five green, and one-putted.

Pro Boyd Huff, Ford McGowan, Smug Respass and Si Moye will be playing in the Pro-Official Tournament in Lexington on Thursday.

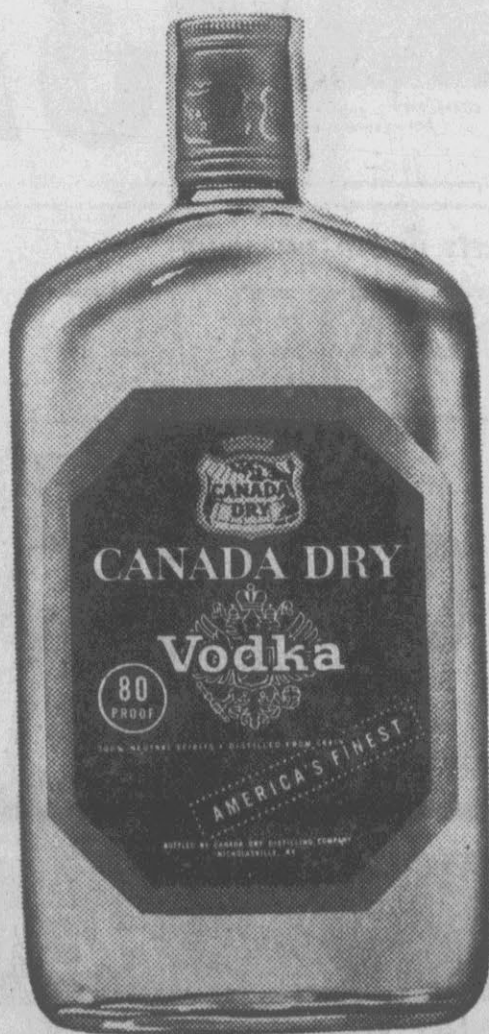

The remodeling of the pro shop at the club has been completed, according to Huff, with the addition of a new ladies' department.

John Proctor and Ed Carter both finished third in their class in last week's Seniors Golf Association Tournament at MacGregor Downs in Raleigh. Proctor had a two-round score of 169 to finish third in Class C (62-65 years old.) Carter also in Class C, finished with a net of 152 for third in the handicap section.

GRIFTON GOLF CLUB

Nancy Sugg, 14, scored a hole-in-one on the 127-yard fifth hole at Grifton. She used a nine-iron for the shot. She was playing with Emily Riley.

Flick's Mark May Still Stand

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

Rod Carew is winning his match race with Elmer Flick. . . and Tony Oliva aims to make it a Twin Double.

Carew, the American League's leading hitter, cracked a double and two singles, raising his average five points to .309, as Minnesota clubbed Washington 8-4 Tuesday night.

Oliva, the Twins' two-time batting champion, also drilled three hits to hold the No. 2 spot behind Carew and climb within two points of the elusive .300 mark.

Flick, an old-time Cleveland outfielder, won the 1905 batting title with a .306 mark. . . the lowest ever for a league leader. A month ago, it appeared the 1968 AL king would have the dubious distinction of lowering Flick's standard.

But Carew has launched a torrid August spree and Oliva, back in the lineup after recovering from a leg injury, is starting to match his teammate stride for stride.

In other American League games, Cleveland nipped first place Detroit 1-0 on Sonny Siebert's three-hitter; second place Baltimore shaded Oakland 6-5; Boston nudged Chicago 4-3 and New York trimmed California 3-2.

Cincinnati outslugged Atlanta 9-8 in 10 innings; the Chicago Cubs mauled St. Louis 10-3; San Francisco whipped Pittsburgh 3-0; the New York Mets topped Los Angeles 2-0 and Houston divided a two-nighter with Philadelphia, winning 5-0 before a 4-2 loss, in National League play. Oliva's three singles, good for three RBI, helped the Twins stake rookie Tom Hall to an 8-2 early lead and the 20-year-old left-hander posted his first major league victory with late relief help from Al Worthington.

Carew extended his hitting streak to 12 games with a pair of scratch singles and a two-run double. The Twins' second baseman has been swinging at a .442 clip, with 23-for-52, since taking off on July 31. The streak has boosted his average 26 points from .283.

Oliva, sidelined for 10 games with a pulled hamstring in his left leg, got back in the lineup on Aug. 4 and has gone 12-for-32 since then for a nine-point pickup.

Siebert struck out eight and stranded two Detroit runners on third in halting the Tigers' four-game winning streak. Larry Brown's bases-loaded single in the second inning delivered the only run in the game.

The Cleveland right-hander weathered a one-out triple by Mickey Stanley in the first inning, but did not allow another hit until Norm Cash singled in the seventh and left Al Kaline on third in the eighth after he had singled and moved around on a pair of outs.

Don Buford, whose two-run single in the fourth broke a 3-3 tie, accounted for the Orioles' winning homer before relievers John Morris and Eddie Watt checked a last-ditch Oakland comeback at one run.

Baltimore's Dave McNally, bidding for his eighth straight victory, was knocked out in the fourth but Pete Richert hurled 3 1-3 innings of scoreless relief for his second victory in two nights.

Rico Petrocelli knocked in two early runs with a double and his 12th homer, then stroked a tie-breaking sacrifice fly after Ken Harrelson's eighth inning triple to send the Red Sox past Chicago.

California's Sammy Ellis walked five batters in the first inning, helping the Yankees grab a 3-0 lead, and they held off the Angels behind southpaw Steve Barber and reliever Lin'ny McDaniel. Andy Kosco drove in New York's first two runs with a bases-loaded single and Ellis forced across the deciding tally with a bases-loaded walk to Horace Clarke.

Sweetan Traded From Detroit To New Orleans

By BEN OLAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

The New Orleans Saints are making every effort to come marching in to their second National Football League season as strong as possible at the quarterback position.

They obtained Karl Sweetan, the 25-year-old third-year quarterback, from the Detroit Lions Tuesday in a trade for Walter "Flea" Roberts, a split end, plus an undisclosed draft choice.

"We are getting a young and experienced quarterback in Sweetan," said Vic Schwent, New Orleans' general manager. "Bill Kilmer still is our No. 1 quarterback, but Sweetan figures in our plans for the future here."

The Saints' future is bound to be brighter than their one-year past. They failed to make capital of their first chance in the NFL, finishing in last place in the Eastern Conference's Capital Division with a 3-11 record. They're in the Century Division this year, switching places with the New York Giants.

Sweetan, a 6-foot-1, 250-pounder, completed 74 of 177 aerials while alternating with Milt Plum at Detroit last year. His passes gained 901 yards and he hit for 10 touchdowns. Kilmer connected for six touchdowns by passing.

John Wooten, 31-year-old guard, and Jay Bachman, an offensive lineman, are also with new clubs.

Wooten, released by the Cleveland Browns of the NFL last month because of a racial controversy, signed with the Washington Redskins of the same circuit.

The Wooten-Cleveland controversy stemmed from a golf tournament at a private club to which teammate Ross Fichtner belonged. White Cleveland players, but no Negroes, were invited to the tournament. Wooten, a Negro, and Fichtner, who is white, were dropped by owner Art Modell, to forestall racial disharmony. Fichtner since has signed with New Orleans. Wooten, 6-3 and 240 pounds, was acquired by the Los Angeles Rams from the Green Bay Packers in another NFL transaction. The Packers got a future draft choice. Bachman played center and guard on the Packers' reserve squad last year. He was Green Bay's fifth draft choice in 1967.

The Kansas City Chiefs of the American League released David Bonds, a defensive halfback. He spent two years on the taxi squad and had been signed by the Chiefs after being released by Washington.

Meanwhile, the AFL's New York Jets said that a sore left knee and not extra money demands for exhibition games is keeping quarterback Joe Namath on the sidelines.

Namath and club officials denied a television and news report that Namath refused to play against the Houston Oilers Monday night because he wasn't paid an additional $3,000.

In other news, Marty Amsler, a defensive end for the Chicago Bears, underwent surgery for a partly ruptured achilles tendon. He will be out about 12 weeks. Veteran linebacker Don Shinnick worked out for the first time in three weeks with the Baltimore Colts. He had been sidelined with a fractured cheekbone.

Giants Out To End Their Status As Loop Doormat

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — When the National Football League split itself four ways, New York was such a nice place to visit that everybody wanted to keep a piece of the Giants' action.

That's why sold-out Yankee Stadium should be a welcome sight for two of New York's new Capitol Division rivals when they return this fall after a year's absence.

But if Allie Sherman has anything to say about it, the Giants will pull up the red carpet considerably short of their end zone.

Sherman's Giants, shifted from the Century Division to the Capitol this year under a 1966 realignment agreement worked out to offer continued New York exposure for all the Eastern Conference clubs, are pegging their 1968 title hopes on the maturity of a young and previously erratic defensive unit.

The Giants already have passed one stiff test, upsetting Green Bay's NFL champions 15-14 in their exhibition debut. But they'll probably need every preventive weapon they can muster in the Capitol race against the Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins, who didn't play in New York last year, and the Philadelphia Eagles, who did.

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton put the Giants back together again last season after their nightmarish 1966 collapse. But further improvement, particularly on defense, is a must if they expect to give Dallas' division favorites a run for the money.

"We think our offense, with Tarkenton, will be explosive again," says Sherman, beginning his eighth season as the Giants head coach. "We expect it to remain at the same level, although, of course, we hope it'll be even better."

"We're looking for an upgrade of about 25 per cent on defense."

In 1967 the Giants had to score more touchdowns, 49, than any other NFL club for a 7-7 finish in the Century race. Tarkenton, sensational split end Homer Jones, hard-running Ernie Koy and their offensive cohorts put 369 points on the board. But the defense yielded 379.

Still, the defenders showed marked gains over the debacle of 1966, when they gave up an NFL record 501 points as the Giants tumbled to 1-12-1, their worst windup ever.

If the front four—Bruce Anderson, Roger Anderson, Bob Lurtsema and 13-year vet Jim Katcavage—can get to opposing passers more often than last season, they could take some pressure off an improving young secondary.

"I'd like to see us rush the passer better," Sherman concedes. "It's not as good as we'd like it to be."

The linebacking could be the club's strongest suit, with the return of the 1967 trio—Bill Swain, Vince Costello and Ken Avery—and the addition of ex-Packer Tommy Crutcher and rugged rookie Henry Davis.

Free safety Carl Lockhart and cornerback Scott Eaton are solid in the secondary. Willie Williams and Freeman White probably will be at cornerback and tight safety, respectively.

Last year, the Giants' attack thrived on the magic of Tarkenton, who passed for 3,088 yards and 29 touchdowns, ran for 306 yards and captivated New York fans with his ad-lib brilliance.

Jones caught 49 passes, averaging almost 25 yards per reception and scoring 14 TDs—high in the NFL. Tight end Aaron Thomas, 51 catches and nine touchdowns, and flanker Joe Morrison, 37 and seven also were standouts.

Koy topped New York ball carriers with 704 rushing yards. His backfield mate, Tucker Frederickson, who's coming off his second knee operation in two years, runs with abandon and blocks superbly—when he's healthy.

Up front, the only foreseeable change involves tackle Steve Wright, who came to the Giants with Crutcher from Green Bay in a trade for tackle Francis Peay. He'll get a shot at right tackle. Left tackle Willie Young, guards Pete Case and Darrell Dess and center Greg Larson complete the interior.

Several rookies, among them Davis, offensive tackle Rich Busin, defensive end McKinley Boston, defensive back Bobby Duhon and flanker Joe Kooniz, appear to have made the club.

Sherman approaches the Giants' season kickoff next month with guarded optimism.

"I'm not looking at this thing through rose-colored glasses," he says, "but we're a better ball club than we were a year ago at this time."

"This has been the toughest camp we've ever had and the players are in the best shape in my memory at this stage. I think we're ready to move along now."

Frazier Hurt In Bike Wreck

BEAUFORT, S. C. (AP)—Joe Frazier, recognized as the heavyweight boxing champion in five states, remained hospitalized today following a motorcycle accident which injured his feet.

A physician said Frazier suffered sprained areas in both feet, as well as bruises. The doctor said the boxer's condition was not serious.

Frazier was driving a motorcycle which collided with a car on U.S. 21 on nearby Lady's Island. His brother-in-law, Jake Singleton, 14, was also aboard the motorcycle. Singleton was shaken up but did not require hospital treatment.

Frazier is a native of Beaufort where his mother now lives. He took up boxing after moving to Philadelphia.

we care

"a bit more"

is what makes our white bread better!

We're talking of course about Jane Parker White Bread.

We use a bit more milk than we have to, to give you a richer loaf.
We never use milk substitutes.

We use a bit more shortening than we have to,
to give you a softer loaf... the way you like it.

We use a bit more sugar than we have to,
to give Jane Parker more flavor.

We do one more thing that hardly anybody does.
We date our Jane Parker White Bread.

It's the only absolute guarantee of freshness
you have...unless you bake your own.

And speaking of guarantees,
we unconditionally guarantee you'll like it.

So, you see, we really do do "a bit more."
Since Jane Parker Bread is sold only at A&P, shouldn't A&P be your store?

Poland's Jews In Small Exodus; Not Many Left

By MARTIN ZUCKER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW (AP) — There is a sad Jewish exodus these days from Poland.

It isn't big. There are only 25,000 or 30,000 Jews left in Poland.

Those leaving are doctors, teachers, lawyers, actors, engineers, journalists, mostly professional people. From various estimates, about 800 may have left since June, 1967.

They go disappointed, bitter, feeling there is no future for them here. And these survivors of Hitler's genocide which nearly obliterated Poland's 3.5 million Jews, represent a loss to the state.

The exodus is the result of an anti-Israel campaign which began a year ago after the defeat of the Arab states and a more recent "anti-Zionist" campaign launched by the Communist regime after an outbreak of student demonstrations and rioting last March.

In June 1967 party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka denounced Polish Jews and non-Jewish Poles who welcomed Israel's victory over the Arabs. He said the door was open to Jews wishing to go to Israel.

This year, after the March disturbances, the party launched a campaign of rallies and press diatribes heaping primary blame on Zionists for the trouble.

In a subsequent nationwide purge involving both Jews and non-Jews, considerable publicity was given to the dismissal of Jews. At rallies, slogans demanded that Zionists be purged from the party.

The director of a scientific institute which had had many Jews on its staff and lost a number of them said his organization hadn't done any useful work since April.

Poles must sign an "application" to give up Polish citizenship in connection with their "departure for good" to another country.

Jews are allowed to emigrate to Israel. They apply for visas to the Dutch Embassy, which has been handling Israeli affairs here since Poland broke off relations in June, 1967. The embassy refuses to reveal the number of visas being issued.

Admiral Takes Wife's Orders

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (AP) — The old saw goes that an admiral may give the orders at work, but his wife gives them at home. But there's an admiral here who takes orders from his wife at work as well.

Retired Adm. W. S. "Spiv" Cunningham, World War II hero of Guam, freely admits that his wife "holds the reins and I hold down the No. 2 role" at their dress shop here.

After Cunningham was taken prisoner by the Japanese in the early days of World War II, Mrs. Cunningham looked for something to occupy her time. She opened a dress shop in Annapolis, Md.

After the war, when Cunningham was assigned to the Naval Air Technical Training Center at Millington, Mrs. Cunningham opened a branch store here. Then after his retirement in 1950, Mrs. Cunningham sold her interest in the Maryland dress shop and she and her husband settled down to run the shop here.

"I got my feet wet in the dress business as I dotted my dress blues," Cunningham said.

'Mollycoddling' Cod, Other Fish

CHICAGO (AP) — Simulating the natural habitat of 10,000 live fish gathered from all over the globe is Leo Brassick's responsibility. As chief engineer for the Shedd Aquarium here his main concern is maintaining exact water temperatures. A gas-fueled water heating system warms 72,000 gallons of water—salt water to 72 degrees, fresh water to 77 degrees. Additionally, gas energy is used to heat water for 65 special tanks containing exotic tropical fish. Because those brilliantly colored specimens are also very delicately constituted, their water must be maintained between 80 and 82 degrees at all times.

UNSEASONAL FLURRY
ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — Mayor Charles Sutton was driving July 31 over Apache Summit between Ruidoso and Mesalero in southern New Mexico when he saw some snowflakes. Lower elevations in the area were getting soaked by rain.

Still Far To Go In Curbing Abuse Of Children

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The states have moved fast in recent years to curb abuse of children — but they still have far to go.

Even though all 50 states have legislation against child abuse, more than 9,000 such cases were reported last year.

"There still is a long way to go before child protection becomes a reality in all geographic areas of every state," says Vincent De Francis, director of the children's division of the American Humane Association.

"There probably is an even longer road to travel in terms of establishing in every community a protective service program adequate in size and quality to meet the needs of our country's neglected, abused and exploited children," he added.

"The neglect and abuse of children appears to be increasing," a special committee of the New York County Medical Society reported recently.

Illinois also saw signs of an increase. In April, 58 cases of abuse were reported, the highest ever recorded in one month.

Child abuse ranges from such active harm as a blow with fist or stick to such passive torture as prolonged diaper rash or starvation.

The American Humane Association made an analysis of 662 cases, including 178 in which the child died, that were reported in newspapers in 1962. It found the persons responsible were the fathers in 38 per cent of the cases, the mothers in 29 per cent, both parents in 5 per cent, stepfathers in 14 per cent, stepmothers in 2 per cent. Blame also has been placed on babysitters, foster parents, teachers and others.

Donald H. Schlosser of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services said common excuses for bruises and broken bones are: "He fell down the stairs," or, "He tumbled out of his high chair." Another frequent explanation is that the parent or caretaker started to spank the child to discipline him, and overdid it.

Mistreatment is much older than legislation against it. An article in the American Medical Association Journal a few years ago noted: "Animals in the United States were legally protected from cruel treatment some years before the same protection was granted children."

But legislating in that area gained speed in the 1960s. Now 50 states have adopted laws on reporting child abuse.

Reporting suspected cruelty is mandatory in 44 states. In Alaska, Missouri, New Mexico, North Carolina, Texas and Washington the statutes are permissive, reading "may report" rather than "shall report."

Punishment varies for those who deliberately hurt children. Since 1899 Florida has had a law forbidding "torturing or unlawfully punishing" youngsters under the age of 16. Violation was a misdemeanor until 1965, when it was upgraded to a felony punishable by $2,000 fine or two years in prison.

In neighboring Georgia a similar 1878 enactment provides a maximum penalty of a year in prison and a $1,000 fine. But few parents or guardians are imprisoned because one aim is trying to keep a family together.

An Ohio law put on the books in 1924 covers a range of offenses and provides a spread in punishment from 30 days in jail to death in the electric chair.

Penalties differ. In Indiana, for example, they range up to 1 to 5 years for assault with intent to do bodily harm and to 2 to 14 years for assault with intent to kill.

Pennsylvania recently enacted a bill making aggravated cruelty to minors a crime. The legislation stiffens the penalty for simple cruelty to minors to a maximum $500 fine or 90 days in jail, or both. In instances involving grievous bodily harm the defendant could get up to four years in prison or a fine of $3,000.

There is a variation of opinion about present laws and systems.

De Francis reported in a recent issue of the Juvenile Court Judges Journal on a two-year study of the child abuse field.

"Most disturbing," he wrote, "was the finding that no state and no community has developed a child protective service program adequate in size to meet the service needs of all reported cases of child neglect and abuse."

"The law is adequate," commented John Scanlon, director of research for Georgia's Department of Family and Children Services. "We need to educate people about the law."

The Worry Clinic Medical Columnists Use Their Own Name

Peggy says the long distance telephone operator at Gary, Indiana, thought I was a "ghost." And many columns are written by people who employ pen names. That was true of "Dorothy Dix" as well as the clever twin sisters who write the "Ann Landers" and "Dear Abby" columns. But medical writers usually employ their own names.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE G-561: Peggy W., lives in Gary, Indiana.

Recently she telephoned me long distance to invite me to an anticancer banquet honoring America's foremost physiologist, Dr. A. C. Ivy.

"Dr. Crane," she said laughingly, "when the long distance operator heard me ask for you, she said: 'Is that the same Dr. Crane who writes for our Gary POST TRIBUNE?'"

"And when I answered her, she told me she had never believed you were a real person."

"Instead," she said she thought the name "Dr. Crane" was just a pen name, like "Ann Landers" or "Dear Abby."

"Do other people ever indicate that they also think you are not a real doctor?"

Yes, I have often had readers exclaim that they thought the name "Dr. Crane" was just a nom de plume or pen name.

And they have some justification for such beliefs, since many writers of novels, as well as of newspaper columns, do use such pen names.

"Dorothy Dix" pioneered the "advice" column under that pen name and did a magnificent job of humanizing newspapers.

After her death, her column was still continued under that well known "Dorothy Dix" heading, but with ghost writers producing the daily output of copy.

In Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren, we have a pair of unusually clever Jewish girls who have now imitated Dorothy Dix.

"Ann" and "Dear Abby" are also twin sisters but highly competitive columnists.

Probably most of the female "advice" writers use pen names.

But the medical columnists employ their own names, partly because in medical and psychiatric writing, the usual person prefers some scientific authority to back up the statements he reads.

In case any other readers imagine me to be a ghost writer, let me remind you that I was born in Chicago and have lived here ever since my marriage.

I have taught the Dixon Bible Class for 35 consecutive years at the Chicago TEMPLE.

When I mention our children or grandchildren herein, I do so because many of you readers have youngsters of the same names or same ages and thus feel reassured to see that child problems are universal.

At least 2 days per week I drive down to Indiana to the Home Office of the newspaper syndicate that distributes this column throughout Canada and the U. S. A.

For the letter input runs 1,000 letters daily, but I don't need to dictate personal replies to more than 3 percent, for the rest ask for the medico-psychological booklets offered herewith.

However, those 3 percent total at least 150 letters per week that take my time for individual replies.

And I personally type all of these Case Records, using 2 fingers on each hand!

Would that I had learned the "touch system" in high school!

My wife lived in Ft. Wayne, Indiana, when I met her, so I have a double affection for the Hoosier State.

That's why we have a summer home there and 3 of our sons got doctoral degrees from Indiana University.

"Back Home Again in Indiana" is thus one of my favorite songs!

Navajo Tribal Transcripts Vary

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) —

The Navajo Culture Center has produced a voluminous amount of transcripts containing tribal history, legends, mythology, autobiographies, biographies and culture.

There are an estimated 40 distinct Navajo ceremonial legends, songs and prayers of the Blessingway Chant. Some of the rare ceremonial legends, including the Water Chant, have also been transcribed.

The legend transcripts include the Underworld, Emergence, Changing Woman, Twin Gods and the Journey to the Sun, the Monsters, and the origin of ceremonial chants.

Most of the biographical sketches are of elderly Navajos and pertain to hardships endured during the mid-1800s when the Navajos were imprisoned at Ft. Sumner in what is now eastern New Mexico.

The culture transcripts pertain to clans, clothing, weaving, homes, pottery, hunting methods, herbs, calendar paraphernalia, games, sacred places, philosophy, burial methods, wedding practices and petroglyphs.

Fayetteville Bus Terminal OK'd

RALEIGH (AP)—Greyhound Bus Lines has the approval of the North Carolina Utilities Commission to build a new terminal in Fayetteville less than a half mile from the existing Union Bus Station.

The firm received approval of the site Tuesday. The commission agreed last May to authorize a separate Greyhound terminal in the city.

The union station will be operated by Queen City Coach Co., a Trailways subsidiary, when Greyhound moves into its new facility, and the old terminal will be known as the Trailways Station.

Carolina Coach Co. of Raleigh, another Trailways affiliate, and Ft. Bragg Coach Co. will operate from the Trailways station.

Opening lead: Seven of ♠

East's defensive strategy was not soundly conceived and, as a result, South landed a four heart contract that could have been routinely defeated.

West led the seven of spades and East played the ace. East realized that, even if he were to cash two diamond tricks, there was little hope of defeating the contract unless West had a singleton spade and could ruff the return.

East shifted to the king of diamonds at trick two to make it abundantly clear where his side entry was. He switched back to a spade and South played low from his hand as West ruffed. West attempted to put East back in with a diamond; however, declarer trumped away the ace, drew the remaining hearts, and routinely won the rest of the tricks.

East's diamond shift at trick two was a costly gesture for the defense. Had he given West an immediate ruff, he would have been in position to regain the lead with the king of diamonds to administer the lethal thrust with a third round of spades.

Altho East could not diagnose that his partner held six diamonds while declarer had only a singleton, there was another means available to show his reentry to West, namely the suit preference signal.

In giving partner a ruff, the return of an unnecessarily high card requests the return of the higher ranking of the side suits. The return of the lowest card asks for the lower suit. In the present case, had East led back the queen of spades at trick two, it would have indicated that his reentry was in diamonds, for if he wanted a club return, he would have played a lower spade.

Acquitted In Housing Discrimination Case

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—The owner of a Chapel Hill realty company was acquitted Tuesday in Recorder's Court of charges that he discriminated on the basis of race in the renting of an apartment.

John Cates, owner of Chapel Hill Realty Co., was freed by Judge L. J. Phipps immediately after testimony was completed in the first case tried under the city's new open housing ordinance.

Cates was charged in a warrant signed by Mrs. Edith Hubbard, a graduate student at the University of North Carolina and whose husband is serving with the Air Force in Thailand.

Mrs. Hubbard testified she telephoned Cates' company Thursday, July 25, and was advised by a secretary that a Brookside apartment was available.

Four days later, Mrs. Hubbard said, she went to the realty company to sign a lease and was informed by Cates that he had promised the apartment to a friend.

Miss Diane Eva Smith, a white friend of Mrs. Hubbard, testified she went to the company office the following day and rented the apartment. Miss Smith said she is engaged to marry Juan Cofield, a Negro student at the university, and took the apartment in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Cofield.

Miss Smith said she rented the apartment with the intention of giving Mrs. Hubbard a sub-lease.

Cates told the court he had promised a friend he would hold an apartment at Westover, another complex managed by his company. He said after renting this apartment, he agreed to keep one available for the friend at Brookside.

When the friend did not call for the apartment, Cates testified, he made it available for rental July 30, the day after Mrs. Hubbard sought to sign a lease.

Cates said he offered Mrs. Hubbard another apartment at Brookside which was to become vacant later, but she declined it.

Mrs. Hubbard said she wanted an apartment already vacant.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Eddie Johns, 54, a transient, was removed forcibly from a public building here, but officers refused to file charges.

Johns was in the city jail at the time, and he didn't want to leave.

He explained he had come to like the food during his stay as a vagrant.

Anti-Bomber Missile Batteries May Be Shut Down For Economy

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As an economy measure, the Army is considering shutting down a number of antibomber missile batteries, Pentagon sources say.

Built at a cost of millions, some sites have been operating 10 years or less.

The proposed action reflects the pressure the services are now under to meet spending cuts ordered by Congress in exchange for passage of President Johnson's 10 per cent income surtax.

The Navy already has gone on the financial chopping block, laying up 50 ships, including a nuclear submarine and a flock of World War II support vessels, and deactivating eight air squadrons to save an estimated $118 million.

The Army was hit earlier with a Defense Department decision to save $125 million by not activating the 6th Infantry Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., as originally planned.

The over-all government spending cuts were originally pegged at $6 billion, a figure that may be revised upward.

The Pentagon is expected to account for about half of the amount by slashing almost everything not needed for the war.

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford said last week the No. 1 rule in economizing is that "the needs of our forces in Southeast Asia must be provided for fully, without exceptions."

The proposed missile cutback may knock out perhaps a dozen or more Nike-Hercules batteries across the country, sources indicate.

Exactly how many units are to be shut down, and where, is understood to be under consideration in the Pentagon. But at least some are expected to be National Guard outfits.

The Guard has 54 Nike-Hercules firing units in the United States and Hawaii operated under supervision of the Army Air Defense command. The Army has about 70 units of its own, some in Maryland, Ohio, New York, California and elsewhere.

The first Nike-Hercules units became operational only in 1958, assigned to guard against an air attack by nuclear-armed enemy bombers. The 39-foot missile, which can be fitted with an atomic or conventional warhead, is supposed to be able to knock down bombers traveling 2,000 miles per hour.

As was the case with the Navy deactivations last week, the Pentagon will delay announcement of the plan—once it is approved—until congressmen whose states are affected are informed of the action.

Closeout of the missile sites will also mark a further scaling down of the nation's continental air defenses.

Under plans announced last May, the Pentagon next month will shut down 20 air-defense radar squadrons and disband three F101 interceptor squadrons as part of a "phased modernization" program.

Now air-defense plans for the Air Force include revamping of the old F106 interceptor and development of a new airborne, downward-viewing radar to detect enemy bombers.

Congress has been cool to the idea of using the 10-year-old F106 to defend against Soviet bombers of the 1970s—and Air Force officials would not be surprised to see F106 funds cut from the 1969 budget by congressional action.

Some Disorders, But Cities Generally Calm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sporadic rock throwing and firebombing incidents plagued Chicago Heights, Ill., late Tuesday night and early today but elsewhere the nation's cities were generally reported calm.

In Chicago Heights, a suburb of 40,000 groups of Negro youths roamed streets and taunted police. Police arrested 13 after the youths began throwing rocks at officers inspecting for firebombs.

Fourteenth Street, the main artery through the Negro district, was closed for a mile to permit fire trucks to hook up their lines, if that necessity arose according to police.

It was the fourth night of disturbances in the city with a Negro population of about 8,000. Local police were reinforced for patrol by sheriff's officers and state police.

In Kansas City, police said eight firebombings took place between midnight and 4 a.m. with damage estimates ranging from $200 to $40 in each incident with the exception of $2,500 in damage at a hardware store. There were no injuries.

Little Rock, Ark., spent a trouble-free night and Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said local authorities believed "we are rapidly returning to normal conditions" after four nights of racial disturbances that began Friday.

The governor lifted a county-wide curfew but teams of National Guardsmen and policemen continued to patrol the streets.

In Los Angeles, there was only an occasional firebomb report in Watts. Black militants prepared to take their case for fewer police patrols to a public hearing.

The only incident reported since early Tuesday was a gasoline bomb which landed harmlessly on the steps of a commercial building and was disarmed by an officer.

Sunday's violence in Watts left 3 Negroes dead, more than 40 persons injured and 23 buildings damaged by looting and firebombing.

The body will remain at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home until one hour prior to the funeral.

Maddox Invites In Legislators

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Lester Maddox plans a meeting on the steps of the state Capitol Thursday, possibly for an announcement that he is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Maddox's office mailed invitations Monday to each member of the Georgia Legislature, saying the governor would have "an announcement of major importance dealing with the progress and prosperity of Georgia."

Legislators began calling the governor's office Tuesday to find out exactly what the announcement would be about. But if anybody knew, they were not saying.

The mystery was enhanced by the construction of what appeared to be a giant billboard above the Capitol steps.

Maddox was not immediately available for comment.

While attending a meeting in Dublin, Ga., the governor commented that he would not accept the nomination for vice president on a ticket with any one of the three contenders for the Democratic nomination, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy or Sen. George S. McGovern.

A SCENE FROM "THE ODD COUPLE" . . . currently playing at the East Carolina University Summer Theatre catches men playing poker. Standing is Graham Pollock who plays Felix, whose attempts to create order and cleanliness out of a Friday night poker game are irritating to his roommate Oscar, played by Hansford Rowe (far right). Other actors at the table include James Slaughter, Gregory Zittel, Cullen Johnson and Richard Bradner. Official critic Bill Morrison, entertainment editor of the Raleigh News and Observer said, "here is a hilarious if sometimes near farcical portrait of the old maid bachelor," and "it's a fine entertainment bet by a number of standards" . . . The Odd Couple is the final production of Season 5 of the Summer Theatre and plays through Saturday, 8:15 p.m. Tickets are still available and information can be obtained by calling the Summer Theatre box office.

Offensive Into Biafra Started

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Two columns of Nigerian commandos were reported pushing north today toward the Biafran stronghold of Aba in what could be the start of an all-out offensive to crush the 13-month-old secession of eastern Nigeria's Ibo tribesmen.

Informed sources said at least two brigades of Nigeria's 3rd Marine Commando Division were advancing from the Port Harcourt sector toward Aba, the largest of the three towns still under secessionist control.

The military high command in Lagos refused to divulge details of the offensive, but a high ranking officer said troops commanded by Col. Benjamin Adekunle were reported trying to cross the Imo River, 15 miles south of Aba. Another column was believed pushing across the river at the Imo railway station, about 22 miles from Aba.

Aba, which had a pre-war population of 131,000, has been the command headquarters for the Biafran regime of Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu since federal forces captured the secessionist capital, Enugu, last Oct. 5.

Radio Biafra reported that Umu Abayi, on the southern bank of the Imo River, has been under heavy mortar attack for the past three days. The broadcast said 35,000 civilians were fleeing and that Biafran authorities were undertaking a massive civilian evacuation from the area.

Fighting also was reported around Ikot Ekpene, a refugee center 28 miles northeast of Aba.

Commanders of the three Nigerian divisions surrounding the core of Biafran-held territory met in Lagos today, presumably to plan a final offensive.

"We will be clearing our minds this morning," said one participant.

The new fighting was reported as peace talks resumed today in the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa. Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie is presiding over the secret negotiations. Informants said the delegates would discuss the opening of a relief corridor to ship food and medicine to starving civilian war victims in blockaded Biafra.

N.C. Markets

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets 1 to 1½ cents higher Tuesday. Supplies barely adequate to short, demand fair to good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets.

Grade A large whites: 46 to 47; medium, whites: 38 to 39½; small, whites: 28½ to 31.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina hog markets today were mostly steady, with tops of 19.50-20 Rocky Mount; 19.25 - 19.75; Bethel; 19.00-19.75 Wilson; 18.75-19.75 Tarboro; 20.25 Salisbury; 19.50 Greensboro; 19.25 Selma; 19.00 Siler City, Denton.

Martin School Board Agrees On New Plan

WILLIAMSTON — The Martin County School Board came up with a desegregating plan Monday night which it hopes will be acceptable to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The plan for the coming school year states, "Approximately 500 to 600 students will be moved across racial lines, affecting all sections of the county. . . . The board officially recognizes that the elimination of the dual school system in Martin County can only be accomplished in conjunction with a building program which is now in progress. Future plans for compliance for succeeding years will be developed at a later date."

The resolution was drawn up by the school board in conjunction with the board's attorney William R. Peel.

According to superintendent Eugene Rogers, the plan will not affect the number of teachers teaching this year in Martin County schools, but teachers will be reassigned the same as students.

Under the plan, students from Bear Grass School District attending the E.J. Hayes High School have been assigned to Bear Grass High.

Students in the Jamesville school district attending E.J. Hayes High School have been assigned to the Jamesville High School.

Students in the Farm Life School District, attending Rogers Elementary School have been assigned to the Farm Life County School. The eighth grade of the Williamston Elementary School has also been assigned to the Farm Life School.

The eighth grade at E.J. Hayes has been assigned to the eighth grade building at Williamston High School.

The eighth grade at Edna Andrews Elementary School has been assigned to Hamilton Elementary School. Eighth grade students in the Hamilton District who attend the Oak City Elementary School have been assigned to Hamilton Elementary School.

Superintendent Rogers said the reassignment of students is in addition to the freedom of choice plan. According to Rogers, the freedom of choice plan will mean the crossing of racial lines for 200 students.
