

Austerity Measures Strengthening The Franc

By JOHN VINOCUR
PARIS (AP) — The franc strengthened in Paris today and the government announced new austerity measures. There was a stampede to buy dollars in Germany but other transactions on Europe's markets gave little clue as to whether the world's monetary crisis was over.

Foreign speculators, who had figured on an upward revaluation of the mark, began unloading their huge mark hoardings in Frankfurt and the West German bank sold about $350 million U.S. dollars for marks.

Gold sold briskly in Paris but at a slower rate than last Tuesday before the Paris markets were closed to dampen speculation.

Government leaders and financial experts watched closely for indications of whether President Charles de Gaulle's new austerity program can save the franc from devaluation.

De Gaulle announced over the weekend he would not devalue the franc, declaring that would only reward "odious speculation." The official rate is about five to the dollar.

The official quotation of the franc today was 4.9575-4.96 to the dollar. It reached a level of 4.974 last week, forcing the Bank of France to intervene. Official parity is 4.937.

The franc had apparently been bolstered by De Gaulle's decision to get the economy back in balance, but holders of francs still seemed anxious to shift their money into some other form.

The volume of the Paris gold market was $2.56 million, compared with $4.7 million on last week's final trading day. One kilogram—2.2 pounds—of gold closed at $1,348, up from $1,289 last week. Unofficial trading last week had seen the price of a one-kilogram ingot soar to $1,398.

One of the more surprising results was the rush to the dollar in Germany, where the government announced last week it would not revalue the mark upward.

Within half an hour of the opening in Frankfurt, the West German bank lost about $200 million of the pile of $1.8 billion it bought up in last week's speculative spree.

Dealers in Frankfurt said the rush was due apparently to a desire of speculators to convert their mark holdings back into dollars. The U.S. dollar was at 3.9795 to the mark, compared with last week's low of 3.97.

The sharp rise in the dollar pulled other currencies upward, even the franc, but dealers reported few transactions in the French currency.

It was a flight of the franc to the mark and other currencies that brought on the monetary crisis.

West German commercial banks maintained their restrictions on the franc, limiting transactions to 500 marks worth at a rate of 69 marks per 100 francs.

German dealers, however, were nervous about France's monetary measures, one dealer observing: "The money market is in a very high state of instability. It's nervous. We don't know what will happen tomorrow."

Fears that currency would rush to gold did not materialize. Prices were up slightly on London and Continental gold markets. In London the price opened at $40.30 an ounce—30 cents higher than last Friday—and then slipped back about 10 cents. Dealers reported demand was only moderate.

Gold is still a barometer of public confidence in currencies, but not the reliable one it once was. Since the two-tier market was established, the free price of gold has been allowed to float. Buyers take a much larger risk then when they could buy with a guaranteed floor of $35 an ounce and the U.S. gold reserves fed the market.

Fourteen Arrested On Marijuana Counts In Salisbury, Rocky Mount

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fourteen persons, including eight college students and a college faculty member, were arrested in weekend raids at Rocky Mount and Salisbury and charged with possession of illegal drugs.

Six were arrested at Rocky Mount in raids Saturday night and early Sunday. They included five Wesleyan College students. The sixth was identified as a former Wesleyan student.

Eight persons were arrested at Salisbury, including three Pfeiffer College students and an associate professor of psychology at Catawba College. All three are church-related colleges.

Salisbury police and SBI agents said they confiscated a quantity of marijuana in a residence in a substantial neighborhood. Police said the eight were drinking wine in a room where the marijuana was found.

The house, officers said, was owned by Earl Tyson Underwood, 32, manager of a women's clothing store in Salisbury. In addition to Underwood, others arrested were:

Theodore R. Keiser, 36, identified as the Catawba faculty member; Rhonda Susan Fleming, 19, of Rocky Mount; Peter R. LaRoche, 18, of Audobon, N. J., and Cheryl Ann Rice, 19, of Charlotte, all students at Pfeiffer; Edward Gilmer Shomaker Jr., 18, of Salisbury, son of state highway patrolman; and Joseph William Sapienza, 22, of Gastonia. Sapienza was listed by police as being on probation in California on a narcotics charge.

All posted bonds for trial Dec. 17 in Salisbury.

Keiser said he was invited to a social gathering at the house and did not know marijuana was in the house.

SBI agents joined Rocky Mount police in the raids in which the six young people were arrested in Rocky Mount.

SBI Agent Jack Thomas identified the six as Dennis Hall Seybert, 24, formerly of Arlington, Va.; Bruce Palmer Harris, 22, formerly of Alta Vista, Va.; Robert Earl Cannon, 19, of Portsmouth, Va.; Frederick Diehl Laws, 22, of Farmville, Va.; Jeff Shelton, 20, of Virginia Beach, Va.; and Robert F. Hall, 22, of Clearwater, Fla. Seybert was identified as the former Wesleyan student.

Thomas said raids were conducted Saturday night and early Sunday at the Thomas Street Elna Service Station, and at homes at 605 Hammond Street and 214 Villa Street. The officer said Cannon, Laws, Hall were living at the Villa Street address, and Harris lives at the house on Hammond Street. Shelton lives in a trailer park.

Thomas said a substantial amount of marijuana was confiscated at each address, but said it had not been weighed and no value placed on it.

Seybert, Harris, Laws, Cannon and Hall were jailed in lieu of $1,000 bonds each. Shelton posted a similar bond and was released.

A hearing for the men scheduled for this morning was continued until Dec. 16 in Rocky Mount District Court. The men employed Attorney William D. Etheridge to handle their defense.

Police Chief D. C. Hooker said the raids resulted from increasing concern on the part of authorities over the growing use of marijuana, other drugs and the sniffing of glue in the Rocky Mount area during the last 18 months.

Explosion Again Delays Mine Rescue

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP)

—A puff of smoke, triggered by a small explosion early today, ruled out the immediate possibility of sending more teams into deep mine shafts to look for 78 men missing for five days.

"These puffs are what scare the hell out of you," coal company official Alder Spotte told a news conference today.

He said rescue teams, such as the two which probed the mine's tunnels Sunday, could be walking into "the dangers of fire from the explosion."

The small blast blew smoke from the Llewellyn shaft, scene of the great impact when the first explosion ripped the Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine last Wednesday. The 99-man mid-night shift was about to finish its tour when the explosion hit. The other 21 managed to reach safety or were rescued.

One of the two units to enter the mine went as far as 4,500 feet, found some slight traces of concussion but no evidences of the missing men.

Tropical Storm Shaping Up In South Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A tropical depression in the Atlantic was expected to intensify into a tropical storm late today as it approached the resort island of Bermuda, weathermen said.

The National Hurricane Center dispatched an Air Force hurricane hunter plane to investigate the depression today after ship reports indicated winds of about 35 miles per hour and squalls of 45 m.p.h. near the center.

While the depression still was 300 miles southwest of Bermuda, a British colony, the hurricane center said "conditions favor intensification and the depression will probably become a tropical storm as it approaches Bermuda late this afternoon. All interests in Bermuda should keep in close touch with future advices."

Egypt Closes All Its Universities

CAIRO (AP) — All Egyptian universities have been closed indefinitely in an attempt to avert more clashes between students and police, the government announced Sunday.

Four persons were killed Thursday when police battled student demonstrators in the Nile delta city of Mansoura, and police dispersed a crowd of student demonstrators in Alexandria Saturday. The students were protesting new education laws which restrict their opportunities to repeat courses they fail.

Police Chief D. C. Hooker said the raids resulted from increasing concern on the part of authorities over the growing use of marijuana, other drugs and the sniffing of glue in the Rocky Mount area during the last 18 months.

Pitt County Man Is Killed In 3-Car Crash

FARMVILLE — Pitt County's highway death of the year occurred about two miles south of here early Sunday morning.

Oscar Cook Blair, 41, of Route 1, Farmville, was killed in a three-car collision at Lang's Cross Roads on U.S. 264 about 2:55 a.m., according to Pitt County Coroner E.W. Harvey.

MIGs And Missiles Cost U.S. 2 Jet Aircraft Over North Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Two U.S. jet planes were attacked by MIG fighters and surface to air missiles and downed over North Vietnam, the U.S. Command announced today.

In a terse announcement, the Command said an unarmed reconnaissance aircraft and an armed fighter, which often accompany reconnaissance sorties were downed in separate incidents.

Earlier, Radio Hanoi had said an American reconnaissance pilot had been captured after his plane was shot down 175 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

In the South, American ground and air forces killed 155 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers in three clashes northwest and southwest of Saigon while suffering five Americans killed and 10 wounded.

But enemy gunners fired more than 200 rounds of rockets and mortars into five south Vietnamese towns and a dozen allied bases Sunday night. Military spokesmen said 13 Vietnamese soldiers and seven civilians were killed, while the wounded included 25 South Vietnamese troops, 36 civilians and at least 16 American servicemen.

With 187 enemy troops reported.

Investigators said the Hale car was headed east on U.S. 264 and collided with the Blair car which was traveling north on a rural road.

Ptl. Herring quoted several witnesses as saying the Blair car failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection, and ran into the path of the oncoming Hale vehicle.

The Bell car, traveling west on U.S. 264 came upon the dark accident scene, Trooper Herring said, and collided with a trailer being pulled by the Hale auto.

Damages were set at $3,000 to the Blair car, and $600 each to the Hale and Bell vehicles. Damage to the trailer being pulled by Hale was placed at $150.

Coroner Harvey said Blair probably died instantly.

No charges were made and Harvey ruled the death accidental.

Of the 22 traffic deaths in Pitt County, 17 have been on roads and highways outside municipal limits, while the additional five deaths have occurred in towns.

"Suppressive fire," presumably bombing and strafing guns, was used in attempts to rescue the downed crewmen, the command said, adding that all further details were being withheld until rescue efforts were completed.

ed killed in clashes Saturday, the weekend saw some of the hardest fighting since the halt in the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1.

Two of the three ground fights centered 70 to 75 miles northwest of Saigon along the Cambodian border where the enemy command reportedly has massed 15,000 to 20,000 troops. The third was in the Mekong Delta 45 miles southwest of Saigon.

Crack American troops from the 1st Air Cavalry Division ran into about 150 North Vietnamese troops at daybreak today a mile from the Cambodian border.

While the American troops pursued them, helicopters spewing rockets and machine-gun fire raked them from the air. Air Force bombers also attacked the enemy positions.

U.S. headquarters said that during the 3½-hour battle, 52 enemy and five Americans were killed and 10 Americans wounded.

On Sunday, in the same area, helicopter gunships on reconnaissance missions spotted an estimated 200 enemy soldiers four miles from the Cambodian border. The gunships attacked the enemy force with machine-gun fire and 2.75-inch rockets for three hours, killing at least 54, headquarters said. There were no American casualties reported.

The action in the delta came

Sunday morning when helicopter gunships supporting U.S. 8th Infantry Division troops observed several enemy soldiers.

About 500 infantrymen made an assault into the area, touching off a 5½-hour battle. Headquarters said 49 Viet Cong soldiers were killed. No U.S. casualties were reported.

In two ambushes in the delta, Viet Cong gunners hit seven Navy patrol boats Sunday, wounding 14 Americans. The Navy said at least two of the boats received numerous holes in their hulls from machine guns on both banks of the Mekong River.

Auto Wreck Helped Solve Kidnap Case

NEEDLES, Calif. (AP) — A traffic accident provided the break needed for the safe recovery of a 3-year-old New Orleans, La., girl and the arrest of a Fresno man charged with abducting her.

Frank Willis Castile, 39, was arrested Sunday by FBI agents and charged with kidnapping Brenda Ann Maquar, who was taken from a stroller in front of a grocery near her home last Wednesday.

He and the girl had been brought here for hospital treatment Friday after Castile apparently fell asleep at the wheel and his car left Interstate 40 about six miles east of Topock, Ariz., a small community seven miles southeast of here.

FBI agents quoted hospital spokesmen as saying the girl became hysterical while being treated for minor injuries and told nurses that Castile was not her father. Because of difficulty in understanding the girl's statements, the FBI was not called into the case until Sunday.

When the girl was identified, kidnapping charges were filed against Castile in New Orleans and he was placed under arrest. Agents said the girl would be taken to her parents by the FBI "on the next available flight."

First Nat'l Bank Seeking Achieve Merger With State Bank & Trust

The First National Bank of Eastern North Carolina, with home offices in Jacksonville, is attempting to bring about a merger with State Bank and Trust Company here by purchasing privately owned shares of State Bank stock.

State Bank, with three offices in Greenville, is an independent bank, while First National has offices in many eastern North Carolina towns, including Farmville.

In a letter last week, State Bank informed its shareholders that First National had acquired stock interest in State Bank formerly owned by Judson H. Blount Sr. of Greenville. Blount, the largest single shareholder in State Bank, controlled about 13 per cent of the local bank's outstanding stock.

At present, about 280 persons own stock in State Bank.

Officials are contacting State Bank stockholders in an effort to purchase stock or obtain proxies for a merger. They have not contacted State Bank's management or the board of directors to propose a merger.

In the past, several other large banks in the state have made merger proposals to State Bank's management and board of directors, but those efforts have been rejected.

According to M.F. Allen Jr., president of First National, the Jacksonville bank will pay $101 per share for State Bank stock and an additional $19 if a merger is subsequently made. State Bank stock presently sells for about $45 to $50 per share.

First National also proposed exchanging four shares of new First National stock for each share of State Bank stock.

Commenting on the move by First National officials to gain control of State Bank stock and merge the two institutions, State Bank president J.T. Marston Jr. said "it is the feeling of our board . . . we are just opposed to it."

According to Marston, State Bank's board of directors in a letter to stockholders last week unanimously "rejected the idea of a merger with this bank, or any other bank at this time."

Marston said, "the directors and management of this bank are unalterably opposed to any form of take-over or merger with a chain bank." "We believe," he continued, "we are rendering a service to Greenville and Pitt County as an independent bank which cannot be matched."

The State Bank president said he understood First National has had 11 teams of two people each in town contacting State's stockholders in an attempt to purchase State stock, obtain proxies or exchange stock for First National shares.

"Based on comments received from our stockholders," Marston said, "I feel they are against a merger."

"Customers who know of the proposed takeover," he continued, "are quite concerned and want to keep the bank independent."

Holiday Recipes Use Ingredients In Other Ways

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

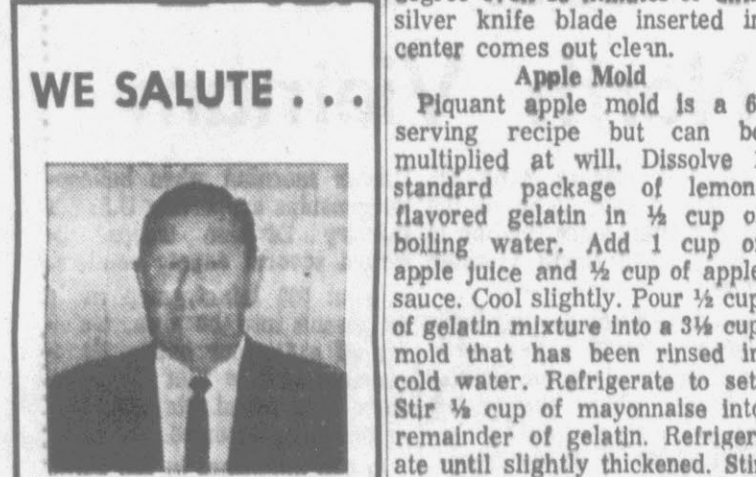

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thanks-giving wouldn't be Thanksgiving without cranberries, apples and pumpkin on the menu. Traditionalists insist they appear as cranberry sauce, waldorf salad and pumpkin pie.

For non-traditionalists, here are some holiday recipes using the same basic ingredients in other ways. The recipes were developed by the test kitchens of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, the Processed Apples Institute and Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc.

Cut a 3 to 7 pound pumpkin or a grapefruit knife, scrape away seeds and stringy portion. Place pumpkin in large saucepan, add about 1-inch of water and cook, covered, about 1 hour, or until pulp is tender enough to mash. Drain pumpkin and cool it. Scrape pulp from rind and mash pulp with potato masher. Turn pulp into a large strainer. Let drain 1 hour, stirring occasionally.

Shepherd's Pie
Use mashed pumpkin in corn bread for turkey stuffing, in timbales and as a substitute for mashed potato topping on shepherd's pie made with leftover diced turkey and gravy. For Shepherd's pie, simply fill bottoms of individual casseroles or a large casserole with diced cooked turkey and gravy and top with mashed pumpkin seasoned to taste with salt, pepper and butter.

Do not substitute canned pumpkin in these recipes. Its smoother texture and lower liquid content are not suitable. For pumpkin cornbread, sift together into a large bowl 2

Says Bennington President: Male Presence Brings Sense Of Reality To Women's College

By JOY STILLEY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A sense of relevance, a sense of reality, a sense of proportion that the male brings is lacking when you have an all-women's college, believes Dr. Edward J. Bloustein, president of Bennington College, the first major private girls' school to go coed.

The school in Bennington, Vt., which has an enrollment of about 500 students, will admit men starting in the fall of 1969 and its youthful-looking 40-year-old chief is full of enthusiasm about the change.

"In education there's weakness in not having men," he said on a visit here. "Our students, at least in the recent past, have come despite the fact that we're a women's college, not because of that fact. But, chiefly, we feel we're discriminating against men by not offering them the unique type of education Bennington has."

"Nothing in the college life is directed primarily at women, and there's no reason it should be exclusively for them," he adds. "We've always felt that women's education should just be the best education."

Convinced that people respond to the style in which you categorize them, he foresees no problems from the introduction on the campus of male students.

"I don't expect to impose any rules, but I expect they will impose some on themselves," he says. All the school's judicial mechanisms are student run and there are no house mothers, but merely a student chairman of each house.

The new turn of events at Bennington is in line with its president's philosophy about boy and girl relationships.

"College boys and girls should mix frequently and well," he asserts. "These are mature people. The days when we looked at college students as in their infancy are over."

"The age of socialization has undergone a radical shift, whether in physical or cultural terms; maturation is taking place earlier than 10 or 15 years ago and men-women relationships develop at a quicker pace now," he says in explaining the new admission policy, which was approved by vote of students, faculty and trustees, and favored by alumni.

"In just the three years since I came to Bennington," he continues, "I've seen a change in mood. When I came the students were 50-50 in favor of admitting men. Last spring when we made the decision, there was almost universal agreement."

"This is only one more innovation for an educational institution that has long been known for freedom of its style and manner," he adds. "A lot of schools will be looking at us to see if we can pull it off and get the right sort of male students. Early responses show we are getting responsible applicants."

(Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., recently announced plans to begin admitting male students in September 1970).

Bennington was one of the first institutions to add non-resident-term work, whereby each student undertakes some project related to her academic goal between the middle of December and March, ranging from teaching school in Alaska to an unpaid job in politics.

The college has no set re-

Are there any exercises recommended to strengthen feet of babies before they walk?

I have heard that in Scotland there has been quite a movement to encourage parents to regard the importance of early foot exercise. In America we devote all of our attention to babies' hands while we conceal the feet in shoes and under blankets as if the pinkies were indecent.

Foot exercise is the same simple grasping action which delights us when a baby grasps our little finger. Touching a baby's toes with your finger will encourage toe function and if you keep the baby's feet uncovered the baby will continue the exercises with little or no encouragement.

It may cause eyebrows to flutter when a baby reaches for a toy with his toes but his good foot health.

Mrs. Nixon's Fashion Image Goes From Small To Big Town

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

NEW YORK (WNS) — The last time I ran across Patricia Nixon was at a New York milliner's salon where she was picking out hats. She was doing it very quietly, but with great efficiency.

"I like that, but not in tweed," she was saying. "It wouldn't go with enough things. No large brims, people can't see your face."

It was evident that Mrs. Nixon thought first of practicality and the demands of the campaign trail. Personal glamour came a long way behind. With her regular features, she seemed to assume that most things would look all right, an assumption which was true enough.

That session, however, was before the Nixon's moved to New York. In just the last two years, a remarkable change has come over Pat Nixon's looks. She transformed herself from a small-town housewife to a big-city lawyer's wife. And that image will move into the White House where it will be equally acceptable to the mass of the nation.

Money

Part of the change of course was money. Before Richard Nixon became a partner in a prominent New York law firm, money had never been exactly flush in the Nixon family. Thelma Patricia Ryan Nixon used to buy one expensive thing, such as an evening gown from Elizabeth Arden, and the rest of her clothes from heaven knows whom. The result was nondescript.

In New York, with a solid income at last, she went to work and learned fast. She went to Norbert, one of the city's top beauty salons, and got the semi-short, slightly fluffy hairdo she now wears, which both softens her features and makes her look younger in a reasonable way. At the same time, she left off wearing those small-town

In one year her skirts rose from well below the knee to just above the knee-cap. As she has good legs, this change also made her look younger. Her figure has always been good, and she gradually slimmed down a little, from 115 pounds to 105 today. As a result, she can wear model sizes, allowing her to try on designer clothes ever since she size range.

Pat Nixon has been buying designer clothes ever since she came to New York. Hannah Troy, Adele Simpson, and Mollie Parnis have been mentioned most often as her choices but she has not generally been one to talk much about fashion. Perhaps her real favorite is Ruth Mathews, a New York designer-retailer, who has supplied advice as well as clothes. Miss Mathews may make her inaugural gown.

Before And After

The new Pat Nixon may be judged by comparing two photographs. One, in 1967, shows her in a nicely cut, but somewhat dowdy coat, well below the knees, an off-the-face hat and an undistinguished handbag somewhat too large for her dangling from one arm.

In a 1968 photograph she's wearing a three-piece costume, above the kneecap, with a jaunty pleated skirt, four-pocket rounded jacket and a turtleneck pullover beneath. Her lively hairdo finishes the effect.

Pat Nixon's family says that this new image is the real Pat. Originally of a lively temperament, she is also a private kind of person who has often found being in the public eye hard to take. Intelligent and loyal, she has worked hard to create a public image which would help her husband. In fact, the incident involving the "good Republican cloth coat" was perhaps the first time Pat Nixon made any fashion impact. That was back in the 1960 campaign, when Jacqueline Kennedy's glamour was making itself felt, especially the big bill she was supposed to run up in Paris for clothes.

It was started with Republican pride that Mrs. Nixon owned no furs, just cloth coats. "Like most women in the country."

She may now own a fur or two, although it's obvious she will have no inclination to make fashion waves in the White House. But she will be an inspiration for millions of American women, much as Mrs. Johnson was, in fashion and hairdos for mature youthfulness.

Is Jackie's Marriage Valid In Church?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a Catholic woman who would like some kind of explanation to the following: How can Cardinal Cushing "excuse" Jackie Kennedy for marrying a divorced man whose wife is still living?

I was a good Catholic, and also a widow, and I did the same thing, and for this I was excommunicated from the Catholic Church.

Why is Jackie Kennedy any better than me or a thousand other good Catholic women who married a divorced man whose wife is still alive?

With my own ears I heard Cardinal Cushing say, "Jackie Kennedy may marry anyone she wished." Then he went on to say that she is no "public sinner."

Then I'm no "public sinner," either. After I heard Cardinal Cushing, I went right to my parish priest, demanded that I be let back into the church, and I was told it wasn't possible.

I suppose if you have the kind of money the Kennedys have, you can buy anything, but I never knew a person could buy himself back into the church. Please answer this in your column as I'm sure there are a lot of Catholics in the same boat who would like to see your answer. Sign me...

"ONE OF MANY"

DEAR ONE: Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, said, (and I quote): "I said, 'why can't Mrs. Kennedy marry whomever she wants to marry? The idea that she should not be construed as 'permission for Jackie to marry a divorced man whose wife is alive, and still receive the sacraments. The Cardinal has no power to grant Jackie immunity from the rules of the church on marriage."

When Cardinal Cushing said that Jackie could marry whom ever she wishes, he meant that no one, not even a family friend such as himself, could prevent her marrying Onassis if she chose to do so. When he saw that her mind was made up, he did not attempt to dissuade her.

It is eminently unfair for anyone to charge that Cardinal Cushing has a double standard on this matter (one for poor people and one for rich people.)

Jackie has entered her marriage to Onassis clearly aware that it is not approved by the church.

Signed, JAMES P. SHANNON, AUXILIARY ARCHBISHOP OF ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: By her recent marriage to Aristotle Onassis, Jacqueline Kennedy, according to the law of the Catholic church has forfeited her rights to receive the sacraments of penance (confession and the eucharist (holy communion)).

Cardinal Cushing's recent comments asking the public not to judge Jackie too harshly, should not be construed as "permission for Jackie to marry a divorced man whose wife is alive, and still receive the sacraments. The Cardinal has no power to grant Jackie immunity from the rules of the church on marriage."

When Cardinal Cushing said that Jackie could marry whom ever she wishes, he meant that no one, not even a family friend such as himself, could prevent her marrying Onassis if she chose to do so. When he saw that her mind was made up, he did not attempt to dissuade her.

It is eminently unfair for anyone to charge that Cardinal Cushing has a double standard on this matter (one for poor people and one for rich people.)

Jackie has entered her marriage to Onassis clearly aware that it is not approved by the church.

Signed, JAMES P. SHANNON, AUXILIARY ARCHBISHOP OF ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: The term "excommunication" is one used by lay people rather than the clergy. To my knowledge, during my lifetime, I know of no one who has actually been "excommunicated."

Mrs. Onassis' situation is not one of excommunication, but her marriage is considered irregular or invalid and she is removed — or separated from the communion of the faithful. However, she may still attend mass.

Please ask your readers to pray for Jacqueline.

Signed, CARDINAL JAMES F. A. MCINTYRE, ARCHBISHOP OF LOS ANGELES

Transition Is Part Of The Scene

North Carolina already is beginning to witness a shift in key appointive personnel in state offices in Raleigh. This shift will increase in the weeks ahead as the transition is made to a new administration.

A similar transition is taking place in Washington and in the capital of every state where a new administration was elected earlier this year and will take office in January.

Politics being what it is, the procedure is part of a natural change. Those appointive officials who will be leaving their offices early next year were the newcomers of four years ago who pushed out the men who held the posts before them. Those who take the offices in January will in turn be replaced by a new group of appointees when a new administration moves into Raleigh four years from now.

There is always a certain feeling of uneasiness during the period of transition from one administration to another. There is the feeling that perhaps those people who are in the appointive positions should not have to give up their jobs just because a new governor has a new person he wants to appoint. But this is the very nature of the political system under which the state government operates. While there is the danger of poor administrations or poorly qualified people being appointed to some of the positions, the system generally has provided North Carolina with good quality in its appointive officials. Even where less-than-adequate officials have held appointive posts for four years, usually the change of administrations has brought a remedy for the problem.

The spoils system under which the basket of political plums is handed out by the administration in office has its shortcomings. On the other hand, it has generally worked well, and in some instances apparently better than other systems in which officials become entrenched in the offices they occupy.

In the weeks ahead there may be a number of people leaving office giving a variety of reasons for their decision to depart a political post at this particular time. Underlying most of these stated reasons, however, probably will be the political fact that the favor they held with one administration has not carried over to the next.

An Appropriate Time To Make Another Bid

The projection of 22 new airports and improvements to another 50 existing facilities in North Carolina in the years immediately ahead suggests the growing importance of air transportation in the development of this state.

In its five year plan for airport development, the Federal Aviation Administration has recommended these 72 projects on which it has put a price tag of some $24.6 million in federal funds. Additional dollars — probably by the millions — is expected to be put into these same projects from local tax sources.

Although specific money recommendations are to be made later when appropriations requests are made by the FAA, the Pitt-Greenville airport is one of the airports in the state, the local facility is used primarily for private planes of business and industry. It does now serve — unfortunately — any regularly scheduled airline stops.

As those responsible for the local airport project the needs of this area for the future, they have already made clear their feeling that provision must be made for scheduled airline service here. The airport authority already has indicated its decision to work to obtain such service for the local airport.

During the period when new improvements are being projected for the local airport it may be appropriate for efforts to obtain airline service to be initiated again.

WHITE MEAT

A group of friends were seated about the dinner table. "What will you have?" asked the hostess, and over half of them replied, "A bit of white meat please."

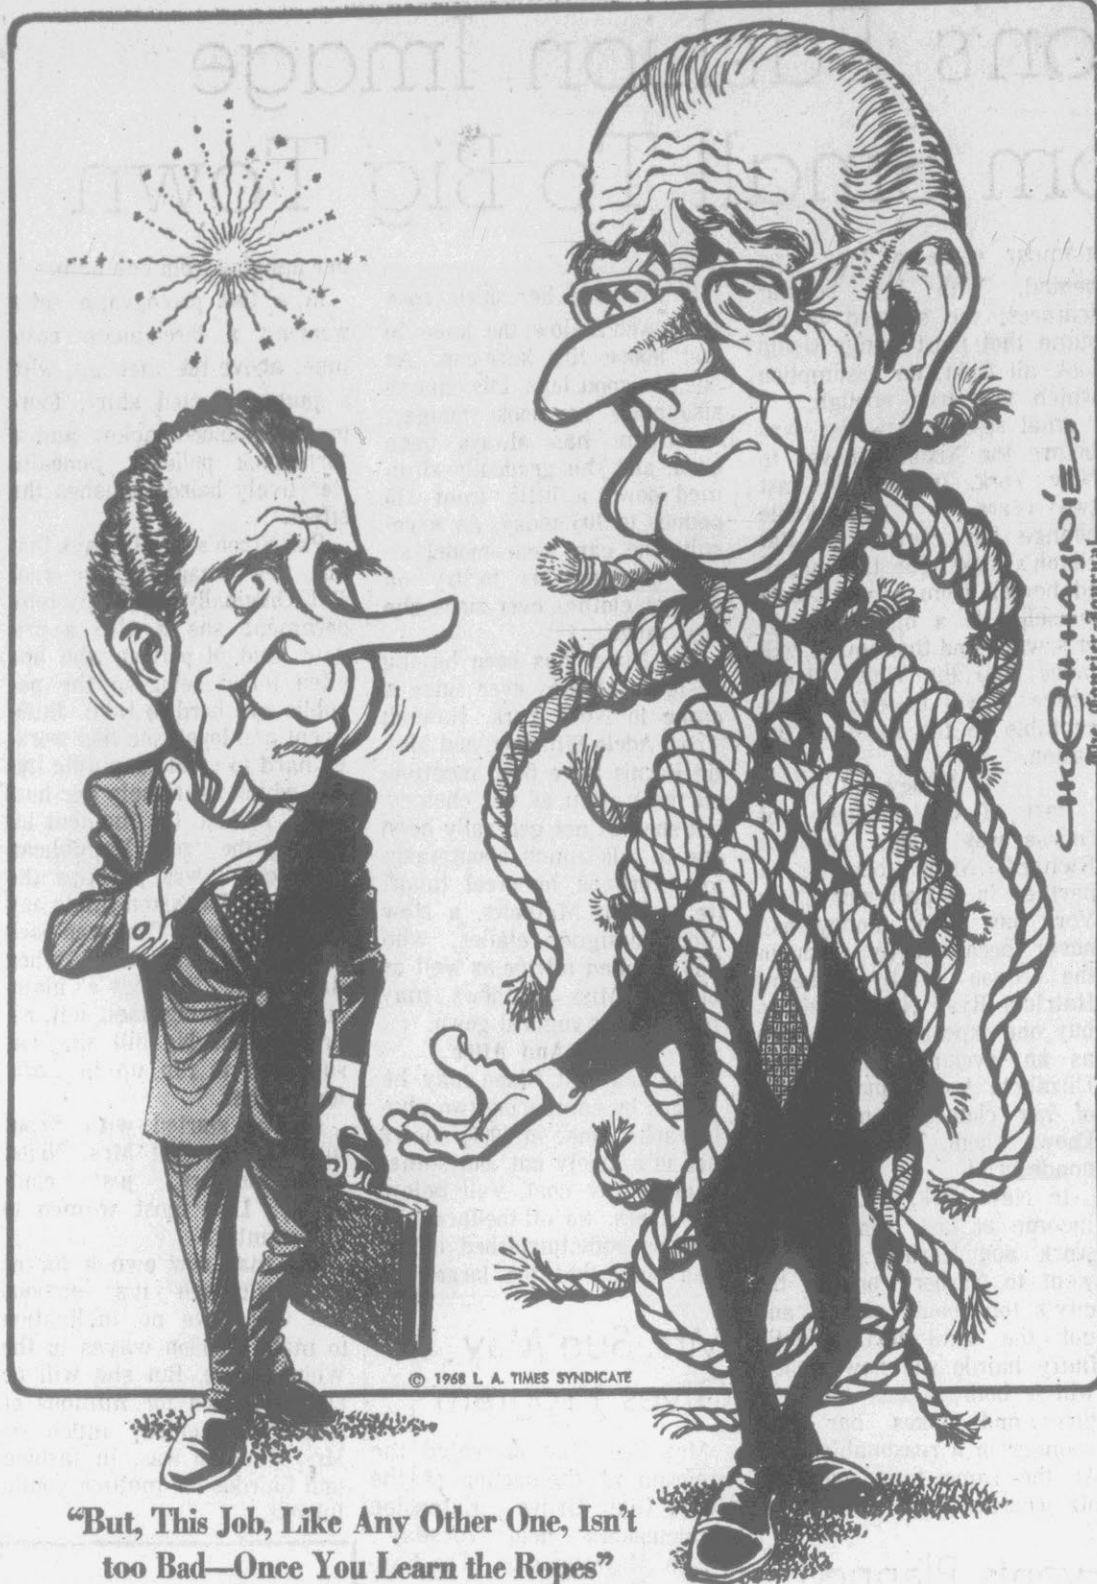

Don't they know that the reason why we are plunged in trouble over our ears is because there isn't enough white meat to go round? Necks and giblets have to be eaten as well as white meat. The French and Russian revolutions were tragic evidence of the fact that when people who have to live on the scraps rise up at last and make them sorry they were ever born.

Communism is a mistaken and evil system, but communism thrives on the fact that there is only a little white meat to go around with multitudes wanting to consume it.

Wealth is so unequally distributed that a little group of people in the United States comprising about one per cent of the population of the world own more than forty per cent of the world's wealth.

Did they get this money dishonestly? Very seldom was this the case. A free government, educational and social opportunities, a land abounding in natural resources and a population composed of pioneers made this vast accumulation of wealth possible. Here and there, of course, there was a crook or two as there are always some rotten apples in every barrel, but on the whole wealth has been honestly acquired in the Western Hemisphere.

But sometimes we tremble over the future. Communists and other criminals could spoil it all.

The Friends Of Heidi

WASHINGTON—Last week all hell broke loose when NBC cut off the last one minute and 15 seconds of the New York Jets-Oakland Raiders pro football game so it could get on with its dramatization of "Heidi." Football fans all over the country had apoplexy, not only because they couldn't see the finish of the game, but because the Raiders scored two touchdowns in the last 75 seconds. Men who wouldn't get out of their chairs during an earthquake rushed to the phones to scream obscenities at the man responsible for cutting off the game.

Telephone circuits were blown out by the fury, and the president of NBC had to apologize publicly for the disastrous deed. Unfortunately, as happens in these cases, the only ones heard from were the football fans; and so much was written about their anguish that the Heidi fans were ignored, and no one bothered to find out how they felt about it.

To put the thing back into perspective, an organization has been formed called "The Friends of Heidi," and their purpose is not only to protect her good name, but also to bring pressure on NBC to shorten their football games.

Other Editors Say Ignore The Fanatics

(The Raleigh Times)

Was there a sort of familiar ring to the news stories which described Stokely Carmichael's appearances yesterday at St. Augustine's here and in Chapel Hill?

If you substituted the word "white" for "black" in his calls for violence of one sort or another, and the word, "black" for "white," wouldn't you come close to having a speech which could well have been delivered by some of the more ardent white supremacists of America? And, if you substituted helmeted security guards for the armed Negro college students who searched reporters and photographers, wouldn't that have a ring similar to the activities of some of the white-supremacy organizations?

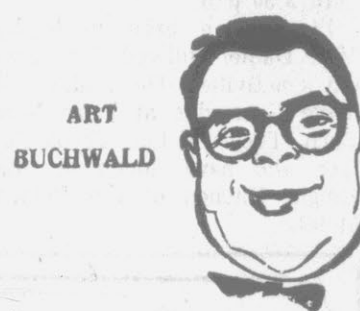

Of course Carmichael called for violence. That's his stock in trade. For example, he said if a "white man slaps you, don't turn the other cheek; rip his arm off." That's pretty terrible stuff to advocate isn't it? But, do you remember the time when a white man stood in Memorial Auditorium here a few years ago and said that his white-supremacy organization wanted peace so much that they'd kill every nigger in the State to get it? It's terrible to advocate tearing off a man's arm. It's also terrible to advocate killing a lot of people.

And, during the last political campaign, we heard a deal of talk from many politicians about special brands of law and order. It took no real imagination to see that those speakers were aiming their remarks to win votes from people who, if they actually don't hate Negroes, surely don't like them.

This isn't to say that we should condone the stupid, inflammatory things Stokely Carmichael said yesterday. We shouldn't. But, it is to say that Negro activists such as Carmichael don't have the exclusive right to being stupid and being inflammatory. They have a great deal of company on those fields in the persons of white supremacists.

The few stupid advocates of violence on both sides of the color line simply make it so much harder for the millions of decent people in the middle who are working so hard to make better lives possible for all kinds of American, black Americans and white Americans.

Dete Rottenmeier, the president of "The Friends of Heidi," said that his organization felt that by presenting the story of "Heidi" for only two hours, NBC had shortchanged American children.

"The program should have started at least a half-hour earlier. It would have been a simple matter for NBC to cut off the game at halftime and start the 'Heidi' program then," he said.

"How many chances do you get to see a good drama on television? If NBC had explained to the few people who were watching the Jets-Raiders game that they were going to pre-empt a portion of the match so the children could see an extra half-hour of 'Heidi,' I doubt if there would have been one complaint. In fact, we know that most of the men were watching the football game only to

Demo Court Action

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Convinced that polite requests won't work, the Democratic National Committee is about to go into Federal court to get back some $700,000 of its money that was originally frozen on President Johnson's order.

Robert Short, the hard-driving millionaire trucker and sportsman from Minneapolis who is Vice President Humphrey's handpicked treasurer of the National Committee, at this writing is preparing a lawsuit that would order the funds turned over to him.

The target of the suit: Robert Maurer, senior partner of a Washington advertising firm with intimate ties in national Democratic politics. Maurer for the past three years has been trustee of the $700,000 Short is demanding back for the National Committee — a closely guarded secret until now. What also has been kept behind closed doors is that Maurer, in secret negotiations with National Committee officials last month, refused to release the funds. Whether he was or was not acting under White House orders is anybody's guess.

If this actually results in a lawsuit, it would be a fitting climax to a bizarre story typifying the undercover antics of the LBJ era in the Democratic party.

The story begins in the autumn of 1965, heyday of the Great Society, when the Democratic National Committee (operating behind the front of the so-called "Committee on Education and Voter Registration") published a book called "Toward an Age of Greatness." The only exceptional aspect of the book was its advertisements — sold to corporations at a tax-deductible $15,000 a page, with the proceeds to finance Democratic voter registration.

This permitted a corporation to make a political contribution without running afoul of the Corrupt Practices Act barring such corporate contributions; the contribution would be disguised as commercial advertising. Thus, the corporation could even claim a tax deduction for the "advertising," something not possible for regular political contributions.

The total take was $600,000, but was quickly followed by charges that the Democrats were circumventing Federal statutes. President Johnson, Democratic leaders now believe, panicked over the criticism. He ordered Maurer — whose firm of Maurer, Fleisher, Zon and Associates had prepared the book — to put the money in trust. It was placed in a New York City bank and, drawing interest for three years, now amounts to around $700,000.

Short, a confidant of Humphrey's, revived the matter when he entered the party treasurer's office two months ago. Faced with a desperate financial condition and creditors demanding cash on the arrel head, Short found out that Maurer was trustee for the $700,000 and asked him that the money be released for voter registration.

The showdown came last month at a meeting attended by four men: Short, Maurer, Maurer's lawyers, and John Criswell (an LBJ lieutenant and Short's predecessor as party treasurer). Maurer would not give an inch. To spend the money for any political purpose, he insisted, would subject the corporations who bought those 1965 advertisements to Federal prosecution.

President Johnson's precise role in all this is deeply shrouded as are all his incursions in Democratic politics. Early in the campaign, Humphrey men were informed by a reliable LBJ spokesman that the President definitely did not want the money removed from the trust. Whether he relayed this order to Maurer is unknown, but it is clear that Maurer would have had to release the funds had there been one word from the White House.

Whatever Mr. Johnson's attitude, Short is tired of the backroom palaver. A lawyer himself, he scoffs at the notion that the Justice Department would suddenly unleash the moribund Corrupt Practices Act against the corporations.

ter. So do many other businessmen, artists, musicians and civic leaders in this small city.

Hopes have been raised time and time again when someone came up with "The Ideal Location," or "The Perfect Plan." But getting it could be a long hard process for a city of 30,000 people in an agriculturally based economy where "higher taxes" are dirty words.

Seegars and nine other people with visions of making Wayne County the hub of this region—where tobacco is king, good public auditoriums are nonexistent and professional concerts are scarce—have been working since March to expand their nucleus of an idea into a reality. They hope bigger conventions and trade shows will result.

The center would have to be an all-purpose one, serving the varied needs of many types of organizations. It would have to be worth the money Seegars and his "Blue Ribbon" committee would somehow find to build it. But a small city has its problems, and money is one of them. That among other things, is what is hindering the committee.

"People are real conscious of money, taxes and the cost of such a building," committee chairman Seegars said, interviewed in the office of his fencing business on the outskirts of town. "We don't expect our job to be easy. We've got to sell the idea—and sell it hard on the basis of how much revenue it would bring into our area."

Seegars' committee was formed by the city and county governments following a two-year study by the Goldsboro Area Chamber of Commerce to determine the need for a civic center.

Many groups have slowly drawn their resources together to work on the idea after years of overlapping research—including the Historical Society, the Arts Council and its music, drama and art components, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Prospective plans were drawn up at the beginning of this year. "But these plans don't necessarily represent the center we'll finally have," Seegars said. "We need a lot of parking space, for one thing. The center should have one good-sized mall separate from the auditorium, and the auditorium shouldn't seat more than 500 people, I don't think."

"A theatrical performance would be separated from an art display, and a trade show could be held in the other part of the building."

Location of such a center is a major factor. When the committee got organized, they visited the modern Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium for ideas, and contacted the International Association of Auditorium Managers. But the association no longer renders its advisory services, and the committee has been stymied for methods to follow in deciding on a proper location and how much space should be allocated for each need.

Special Holiday Highway Effort

RALEIGH (AP)—Col. Charles A. Speed, commander of the North Carolina Highway Patrol, says every available trooper will be on duty during the four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend in an effort to reduce highway deaths.

Speed said Sunday 35 persons were killed and nearly 1,000 injured in traffic accidents in North Carolina during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend last year.

"We want to reduce these figures this year," he said in a prepared statement, "and we will spare no effort to do so."

He said the troopers will be on the highways "with orders to find and arrest those motorists who annually make the Thanksgiving holiday one of the deadliest periods of the year on our highways."

Special efforts will be made, Speed said, to apprehend drinking drivers and speeders.

Speed said all mechanical and electronic aids available to the patrol will be in operation throughout the holiday weekend which begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday and runs through midnight Sunday.

Want Closings In Hyde Tues.

SWAN QUARTER, N.C. (AP)—Negro civil rights activists at Swan Quarter want all Hyde County schools and factories closed Tuesday during the scheduled visit of the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy.

Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, plans a tour of Hyde County and a meeting with Negro leaders.

Negroes have been demonstrating against school integration policies in the northeastern North Carolina county since early September.

Golden Frinks, state field secretary for the SCLC, issued the call for the school and factory closing, saying Tuesday would be known as "Poor People's Day."

An estimated 300 Negroes marched a mile to the center of Swan Quarter Sunday in a trouble-free demonstration. They listened to speeches by Frinks and James Barrow of Washington, N.C., a field worker for SCLC.

The Negroes are objecting to a Hyde County school desegregation plan that would close the two previously all-Negro schools and place all pupils in a previously all-white facility.

Negro leaders want all three schools to remain open with some white pupils transferred into Negro facilities.

An Ombudsman For New Country

(UPI)—This newly-independent nation is the first South American country to legislate the institution of an ombudsman to handle citizens' complaints against government bureaucracy. The ombudsman is an innovation introduced by Scandinavian countries to provide an officer to protect the little man against big government.

With money offered by both the city and county governments they hope to bring in an auditor, and the treasury does have $3,000, donated by the Arts Council, for other uses.

Should the center be downtown, where it's easily within reach of the shopping areas, or on the outskirts of town where there's less traffic problem and more land? Seegars' committee decided on the latter, figuring one of the several by-passes pass time until 'Heidi' came on the air.

"I hadn't realized that," I said. "Of course. The thing that got people mad was not that the game had been cut off in the last 75 seconds, but that it had been going on as long as it had, with the result still in doubt. There is no reason to put on a football game if people have to wait until the last minute to find out who has won."

"I personally thought the 'Heidi' show was just the right length. What would you have done with the extra half-hour?"

"Shown more of Switzerland. Because of the football game, the 'Heidi' producers weren't able to do justice to the Swiss Alps. You never really got the feeling why Heidi really wanted to come back home."

"What are 'The Friends of Heidi' going to do to prevent something like this from happening again?"

"We've asked NBC to apologize publicly for running the football game so long, and we're demanding that 'Heidi' be shown again for those who missed it."

"When?" I asked. "We're asking them to preempt the Super Bowl. After all, if you've seen one pro football game, you've seen them all."

around Goldsboro would provide easy access.

But other groups had other ideas. Some suggested using an abandoned downtown store, donated to the city. The Goldsboro Recreation Department's fondest hope is to see it on a large park area currently being developed near Seymour Johnson Air Force Base. The City Planning Department thought it could be put on a soon-to-be cleared slum area near the downtown business district. Others saw possibilities in a run-down train station.

Some people—including Seegars—believe the Wayne County Public Library, now housed in a cramped, falling-down residence, should be combined with the civic center to centralize public services, but the library has its own renovation plans and refuses to be included.

"Duplication of facilities is another worry," said Seegars. "Where financing problems could be eliminated is in making one good auditorium do for the needs of several institutions, schools or organizations. Duplicate fund drives would be avoided, maintenance costs—which run extraordinarily high for a building of this type—would be lower, and one facility could serve many more people."

Given time, a miraculously huge donation and support from those who would be using the center, Seegars felt he could lick the problems and provide Goldsboro with its civic center. He and his committee members are busy negotiating with city and county officials for whatever funds they can get to bring in professional advisors, and they're hoping to bring concrete plans before the two governments as soon as possible.

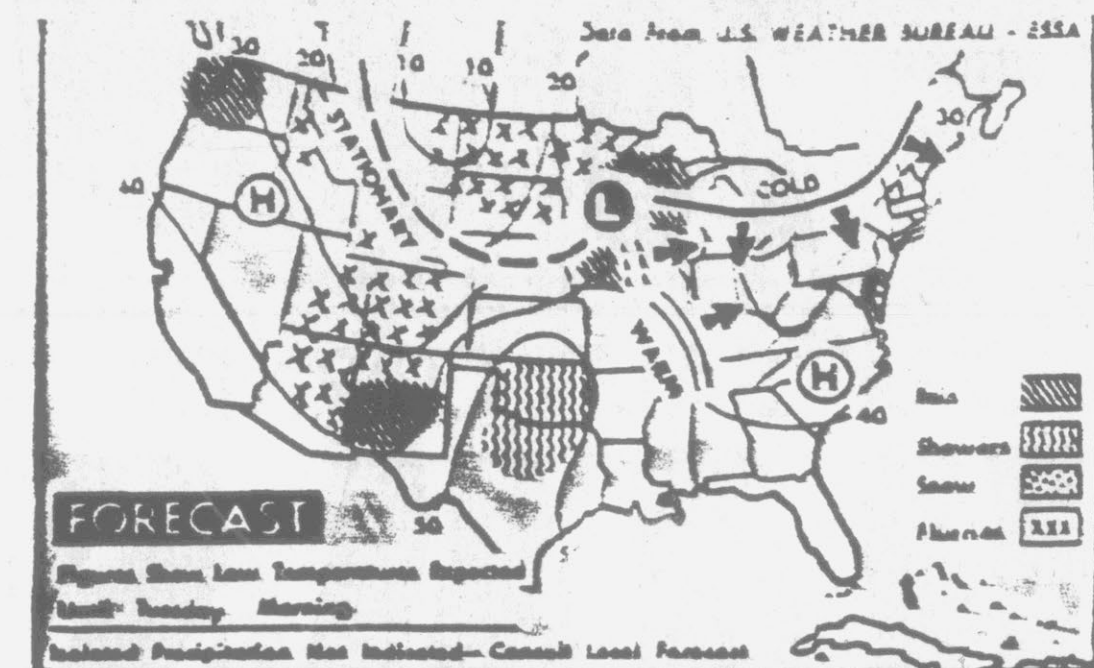

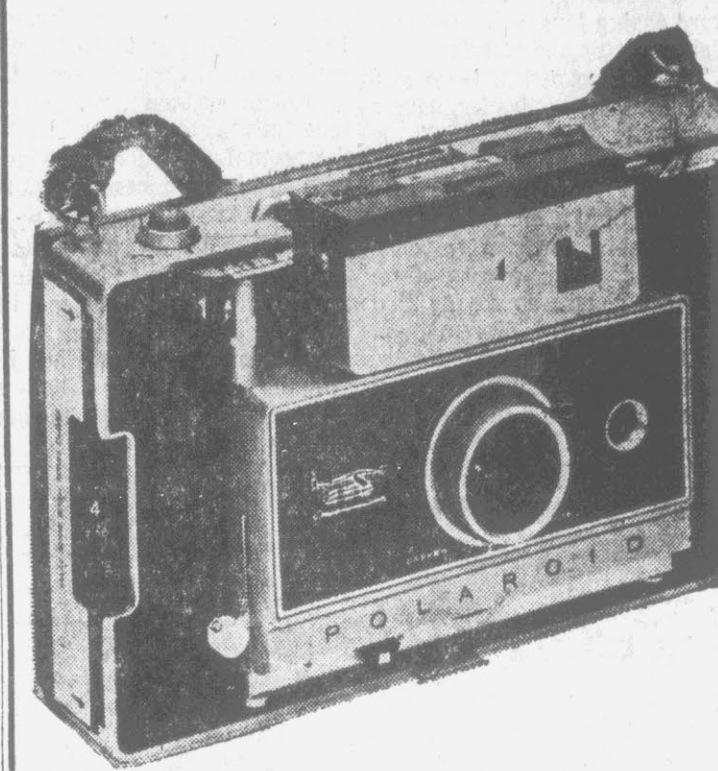

It may be several years before enough money is raised to provide the building. But Seegars and the hundreds of others backing his committee's work are sure Goldsboro and Wayne County can benefit from a civic center, and intend to keep at it until they get it.

Feels 'Rougher' Road To Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who recently talked with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in Moscow, came away feeling "the road is rougher" to rapprochement.

Democrat Albert Gore reported Sunday on a European tour to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Brussels, Soviet-occupied Czechoslovakia, and Moscow. He made the trip with Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and returned Saturday night.

Both senators are members of the Foreign Relations Committee, Gore heading its disarmament subcommittee. He said they were told at the American embassy in Moscow that they were the first American officials to see Kosygin this year.

Gore said he took no formal message to the Soviet leader, but wanted to impress on him—and thinks he succeeded—that the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia last August threatens to wipe out progress made toward easing tension between the United States and Russia.

The two countries, Gore said he told the Soviet leader, have a "mutuality of interests" in avoiding a nuclear war.

Kosygin responded that they have not only a mutuality of interest but a common responsibility for world events. Gore quoted Kosygin as saying that the road toward disarmament must be negotiated in stages, perhaps beginning with an agreement not to deploy antiballistic missiles. These weapons are designed to knock an enemy's intercontinental ballistic missiles from the sky.

"I haven't changed my feeling about the need for rapprochement," Gore said. But, he added, "I come back feeling the road is rougher."

Gore said Kosygin told him it would not be possible for the two countries to negotiate if one has a significant nuclear edge over the other.

The premier's remarks appeared to be directed toward President-elect Richard M. Nixon, who asserted in a nationwide radio broadcast Oct. 24 that America must be able to negotiate with the Soviet Union "not from weakness but with the persuasiveness of respectable and evident power."

Such a philosophy, Kosygin told Gore and Pell, would mean each side would work to strengthen itself and an escalation of the arms race would result.

Gore's report on the hour-and-a-half-minute conference last Tuesday was taken from a summary prepared by the American embassy, whose representatives took notes. Under the normal rules for interviews with heads of governments, no direct quotation is permitted.

Kosygin told the two senators that the Soviet Union is committed to peaceful coexistence with the West. And, said Gore, Kosygin appeared surprised when he said the invasion had had a chilling effect on steps toward disarmament.

Three Collisions In Greenville Sunday

An estimated $1,285 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 12:25 p.m. collision on Davenport Street, 500 feet west of the Raleigh Avenue intersection.

Officers said a parked car owned by James Williams of 412 Davenport St. was struck by a car driven by James Thomas Fields, 39-year-old Negro of 502B Raleigh Ave.

Damage to each of the cars was placed at $300. Fields was charged with operating under the influence, hit-and-run driving and operating after his license was suspended.

George Ernest Harris, of 606 Ford St., was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of a 4 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street.

Police reported the Harris car collided with a vehicle operated by Idell Payton Barrett, of 602 Hudson St., causing an estimated $100 damage to the Harris car and about $250 to the Barrett car.

No charges were reported in a 10:05 a.m. collision on Howell Street, 25 feet south of the Pitt Street intersection.

Involved in that collision, investigators reported, were cars driven by Jessie Alton Smith, 55, of 1603 Garland St. and Ramon Louis King, 28, of 1409 Greene St.

Damages were placed at $250 to the Smith vehicle and $85 to the King car.

Chemical Kills Some Tumors

BERKELEY, Calif (UPI)—In a development that may assist cancer research, University of California pathologists have discovered a "medicine" that destroys bacteria-caused tumors on living plants.

The compound is now being manufactured for agricultural use, but medical researchers say it offers hope in the human cancer disease. They note it is "the first evidence of a selectively toxic agent that completely and consistently destroys tumors without injuring the host."

The Farm Scene

County Extension Chairman

Realistic Plans For Farm Profit

In spite of all the ifs and buts, there are a few things that can be done now to help insure more profits from the farming operation next year.

It is important to plan, but be sure your plans are realistic. Stop looking for miracle prescriptions to produce 200 bushels of corn, or 400 pounds of tobacco, if only half these yields is the best record for the farm. Instead, concentrate on building soil fertility and study the other requirements of the plants. High fertility is good business for any crop, add a soil test will help you establish good fertility levels by suggesting the needed plant nutrients.

An orderly plan helps to identify the weak links in any program. The first and very important step is the selection of a rotation, or cropping, system that makes each acre produce the greatest income. Idle land is a production fact or sitting in the shade — it's expensive.

Second, maintain high soil fertility levels. Keep an up-to-date inventory of the fertility levels and lime needs by a systematic schedule of soil testing. Instructions, sampling supplies and the test itself are offered without charge by the Soil Testing Division. Use all the fertilizer which research has shown the crops can possibly use. This is one of the cheapest forms of crop insurance available.

Third, plant the very best seed obtainable, of the right variety, at the right time, in the right amounts, to use all the sunshine, water, and nutrients available to each acre of crops. In many cases, these are satisfied only by a break with traditional methods.

Fourth, control weeds, insects, and diseases, and adapt all cultural practices to fit the needs of the plant rather than the machine or other factors. Planting, cultivation, and harvesting equipment that is not adapted or is improperly.

Fifth, harvest, store, market, or use all the products of the land. Grain losses from the combine or unused pasture crops are more expensive than if they had not been produced.

Remember, if the state is set with the right plants, a high level of fertility in the soil and a control program for weeds, insects and diseases, higher yields are obtainable. The most profitable crops are those with the highest yields. A soil test could prevent a high profit crop from becoming a high cost crop.

Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

On a few farms in Pitt County tobacco was produced in excess of the farm production quota. In deciding if it is feasible to store the tobacco for sale next year, there are some factors that should be considered.

The three important things to consider in determining the feasibility of storing surplus tobacco are: (1) What will it cost per pound to store the tobacco? (2) What will be the reduction, if any, in the per pound value of stored tobacco next year? (3) What will be the costs of producing the equivalent poundage of tobacco next year?

If, after thoroughly answering these questions, you decide to store your surplus tobacco for sale next year, certain storage requirements for the adequate preservation of the tobacco are necessary. First, a good storage building should be available. Second, the tobacco should be bulked in as dry condition as it can be handled without serious breaking and shattering. The stems and veins should be so dry that they will snap when bent to a sharp angle.

The tobacco should not contain more than 12-14 per cent moisture. Third, the tobacco should be bulked in such a way that air can circulate under-packing and 'osy' and up tobacco should be covered with plastic. Fourth, check the tobacco often for the presence of insects and moisture. Mice and rats will also need to be controlled. The possibility of insect damage can be renosed by thoroughly cleaning the packhouse. Also, no not store feed, seed, organic fertilizers, grain or seed cotton in the packhouse.

For complete information on storing tobacco on your farm, request Extension Folder No. 246, "Storing Flue-Cured Tobacco on Your Farm" from the County Agricultural Extension Office located in the Tucker Building in Greenville.

Programs And Goals Voted At NCTA Session

RALEIGH (AP)—Higher pay, written personnel codes, and the abolition of the National Teachers Examination have been set as the legislative goals of North Carolina's Negro school teachers.

The legislative commission of the 12,000-member North Carolina Teachers Association, at a Raleigh workshop Saturday, also voted to ask the legislature to provide tenure for all public school teachers and to draft guidelines regulating the use of federal school funds by local school districts.

The group endorsed the program of the United Forces for Education which calls for a $6,000 beginning salary for teachers, ranging up to $12,000.

They also called for public kindergartens and further development of the pre-school head-start program.

ECU Cadets Win National Honors For March Of Dimes Assistance

Air Force ROTC cadets at East Carolina University have won a double national honor for their creative efforts in behalf of the March of Dimes. The cadets are being cited with a plaque for the late winter "Marchathon" they created in 1960 and have put on every year since.

But they are getting a larger honor. The National Foundation, sponsor of the March of Dimes, is recommending that the ECU cadets' Marchathon be adopted as an annual project for all Air Force ROTC detachments in the nation.

The plaque itself, made of ceramic and wood and signed by National Foundation President Basil O'Connor, cites the ECU cadets for "distinguished voluntary leadership in the fight against birth defects."

Mrs. Louise Carrigan, Pitt County chairman for the March of Dimes, presented the plaque to ECU President Leo W. Jenkins, AFROTC commander Lt. Col. Douglas F. Carty, Cadet Col. Ashby D. Elmore of Raleigh, Cadet Lt. Col. John A. Davis of Calypso and Sandra Christine Hill of Youngsville, representing the Angel Flight.

The Marchathon idea developed by the ECU corps is a marathon marching session by the Honorary Drill Team. It is timed to coincide with the March of Dimes campaign each winter. The drill team does precision maneuvers all day one Saturday in various downtown locations. Other cadets and members of Angel Flight collect contributions from passing motorists and pedestrians.

In nine years of Marchathons, the ECU cadets and angels have raised more than $12,500. The annual amount has increased steadily over the years and last February the corps turned in more than $2,500. The cadets plan their 10th anniversary Marchathon this winter and hope to surpass last winter's record.

In accepting the plaque, President Jenkins said, "We are very proud of this record of service by our cadets and we are doubly proud that their initiative and imagination is recognized as a worthy pattern for service to humanity by cadet units throughout America."

Robert Taylor Leaving Hospital

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Robert Taylor probably will leave St. John's Hospital by Tuesday after undergoing treatment for an infection that complicated his recovery from lung surgery, his family said Sunday night.

Doctors say the 57-year-old actor entered the hospital Wednesday for treatment of an abscess that formed after an Oct. 8 operation to remove a lung because of a fungus infection.

On Saturday, doctors reported the abscess had been drained successfully and listed Taylor in good condition.

Welfare Report Shakes Officials

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts' effort to take full charge of public welfare and straighten out its problems has been shaken by charges that welfare costs are on a runaway track.

A report by the legislative Committee on Public Welfare said "profiteering" by health service vendors and abuses by welfare administration were hiking costs.

The welfare system, in the first four months of state takeover, also has under attack by some welfare recipients who demanded more of everything, invaded welfare offices, assaulted social workers and ransacked desks.

The report also stated that addition of medical plus increases in aid to families with dependent children were pushing up welfare cost at an unprecedented rate.

The report, developed chiefly under direction of Sen. Beryl W. Cohen, D-Brookline, committee chairman, with two state police investigators, asserted last week that yearly welfare costs would go over $1 billion within two years.

The report said: —"Numerous physicians, druggists and dentists are exploiting welfare recipients to an alarming extent by providing unnecessary, duplicative and costly services." Doctors are writing prescriptions for items such as toothpaste, soap, bandages and mouthwashes. Ten Boston dentists have been paid a total of more than $1 million this year for welfare work. Ten Boston drugstores have been paid nearly $750,000 for sales to welfare recipients in the first seven months of 1968.

—Welfare recipients are allowed to own their own homes and recipients are increasingly buying real estate, including "many instances" of two or three-family homes. When a recipient fails to pay his rent or utilities, the Welfare Department will make full payment without penalty. The use of emergency food orders "has skyrocketed."

—Department stores are creating divisions in furniture and household goods sections to encourage welfare recipients to buy. Recipients also have used taxicabs for unauthorized purposes and one Boston cab firm was paid $60,000 for transportation, including an average $12.20 per ride in July. The department pays the full costs of moving and a mover who owns one truck has been paid $113,000 for the first seven months of 1968.

State Welfare Commissioner Robert F. Ott and Cohen agreed that virtually no improper charges had been or would be paid because of the department's audit system.

Ott disagreed with the $1-billion-cost prediction, but gave no estimate of his own.

The commissioner said he needs more time to put major changes into effect, including computerization due in the spring, recommendations of a management survey, a work training program started Oct. 1 for aid-for-dependent-children recipients and revision of welfare guidelines, the first in 20 years.

He said one big problem was the backlog of unpaid bills passed on by cities and towns.

Cohen's committee sent their report to the attorney general's office for possible action, but the acting attorney general, Wilmot R. Hastings, told him more data was needed.

State groups for doctors, dentists and druggists appealed to the committee to give them names and data on errant members and said they would do their own policing.

The Internal Revenue Service, the U.S. attorney's office and the federal General Accounting Office all asked for copies of the report and other data. Most welfare programs are federally aided.

The Welfare Department was the biggest item—$430.5 million—in a $1.2 billion state budget for fiscal 1969. Department reports indicate costs running, about $33.8 million per month, compared to $25.3 million a year ago.

By SHULLEN SHAW
opera traditionally teaches virtue and condemns evil. Its classical stories tell of loyalties between citizens and emperors, students and teachers' children and parents.

But the Chinese Communists altered Chinese opera by inventing new heroes — party officials, revolutionary soldiers, workers, peasants — and a few weeks ago Peking's official New China news agency (Hsinhua) announced another change which startled music students: Chinese opera performers on the mainland now sing to the accompaniment of a piano, Hsinhua said.

"Impossible," a veteran opera singer in Taiwan (Formosa) said. "That is like trying to eat steak with chopsticks."

The piano comes from the West. China's own classical music belongs to gongs, cymbals, drums, flutes, pipes and two-string violins developed in Oriental palaces.

In an attempt to maintain the purity of Chinese opera, President Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist Chinese government is subsidizing it in Taiwan. The Nationalists believe the Communists are reshaping all Chinese art forms into propaganda tools and destroying China's ancient heritage. It is to save this heritage that Chiang's government has undertaken a specific program to preserve Chinese opera in its old forms.

The Nationalist government is spending about $500,000 a year to maintain Chinese opera theaters in Taiwan. Seven Chinese opera troupes actually are owned and managed by Nationalist military organizations. They perform throughout Taiwan and even on the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu, which lie within eyesight of Communist Chinese artillery guns.

The origin of Chinese opera is traced back to the Yuan dynasty in the 13th century. It went through several musical revolutions until the middle of the Ming dynasty (1368 to 1644) it reached the style of opera which is preserved in Taiwan today.

When the Communists won the China mainland in 1949 and Chiang's forces withdrew to Taiwan, the end of Chinese opera seemed near. Most of the established singers remained behind the bamboo curtain.

But then a tough air force general, Wang Shu-ming, became commander-in-chief of the Nationalist Chinese air force in 1952. The general, known as "Tiger" Wang, was an avid fan of Chinese opera, and he decided to save it from extinction.

The Nationalist air forces established a Chinese opera training school in 1952 and the next year put on its first performance. From that start came the renaissance of Chinese opera on Taiwan — a movement financed and guided largely by the government and its military establishments.

"Tiger" Wang now is the Chief Nationalist Chinese military delegate to the United Nations.

Statewide Meet For Jaycees Set January 24

GREENSBORO (AP) — The North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce has voted to conduct a statewide meeting, the second within two months, in Greensboro Jan. 24.

The Jaycees, who ended a three-day session Sunday, said the January meeting was called to honor North Carolina's Jaycee boss of the year, and to hear an address by the National Jaycee president, Wendell Smith of Michigan.

In Sunday's closing session, Gov.-elect Bob Scott made a brief, off-the-cuff address. He expressed thanks to the Jaycees for their support in his gubernatorial campaign and also congratulated them for their civic activities.

Wendt Is Last Person To See Astronauts Off

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — As it has been with every man launched to date, the face of Guenter Wendt will be one of the last seen on earth by America's next astronauts until they return from outer space.

Wendt, a native of Germany, has been a member of the spacecraft close-out crew of all U.S. astronaut and monkey launches beginning with Ham, a chimpanzee who was the first passenger to ride aboard a one-man Mercury spaceship — now a U.S. citizen — moonlights in behalf of the Free World making tapes for Radio Free Europe, a job that classifies him as a "traitor" in East Germany.

"I just want the people there to know that the United States is a true democracy where anyone can make a go of their life if they are willing to work," he said. "I also tell them that Americans trust aliens, and put them in responsible positions. I know that the people who hear my broadcasts realize the Russians never do that."

"I tell them that I had 20 cents when I came to America. But now I live more comfortably than I could any place in Europe. And for those who don't believe me, I give them my mother's address and tell them to check with her. Many have stopped her on the street and asked her if what I said was true."

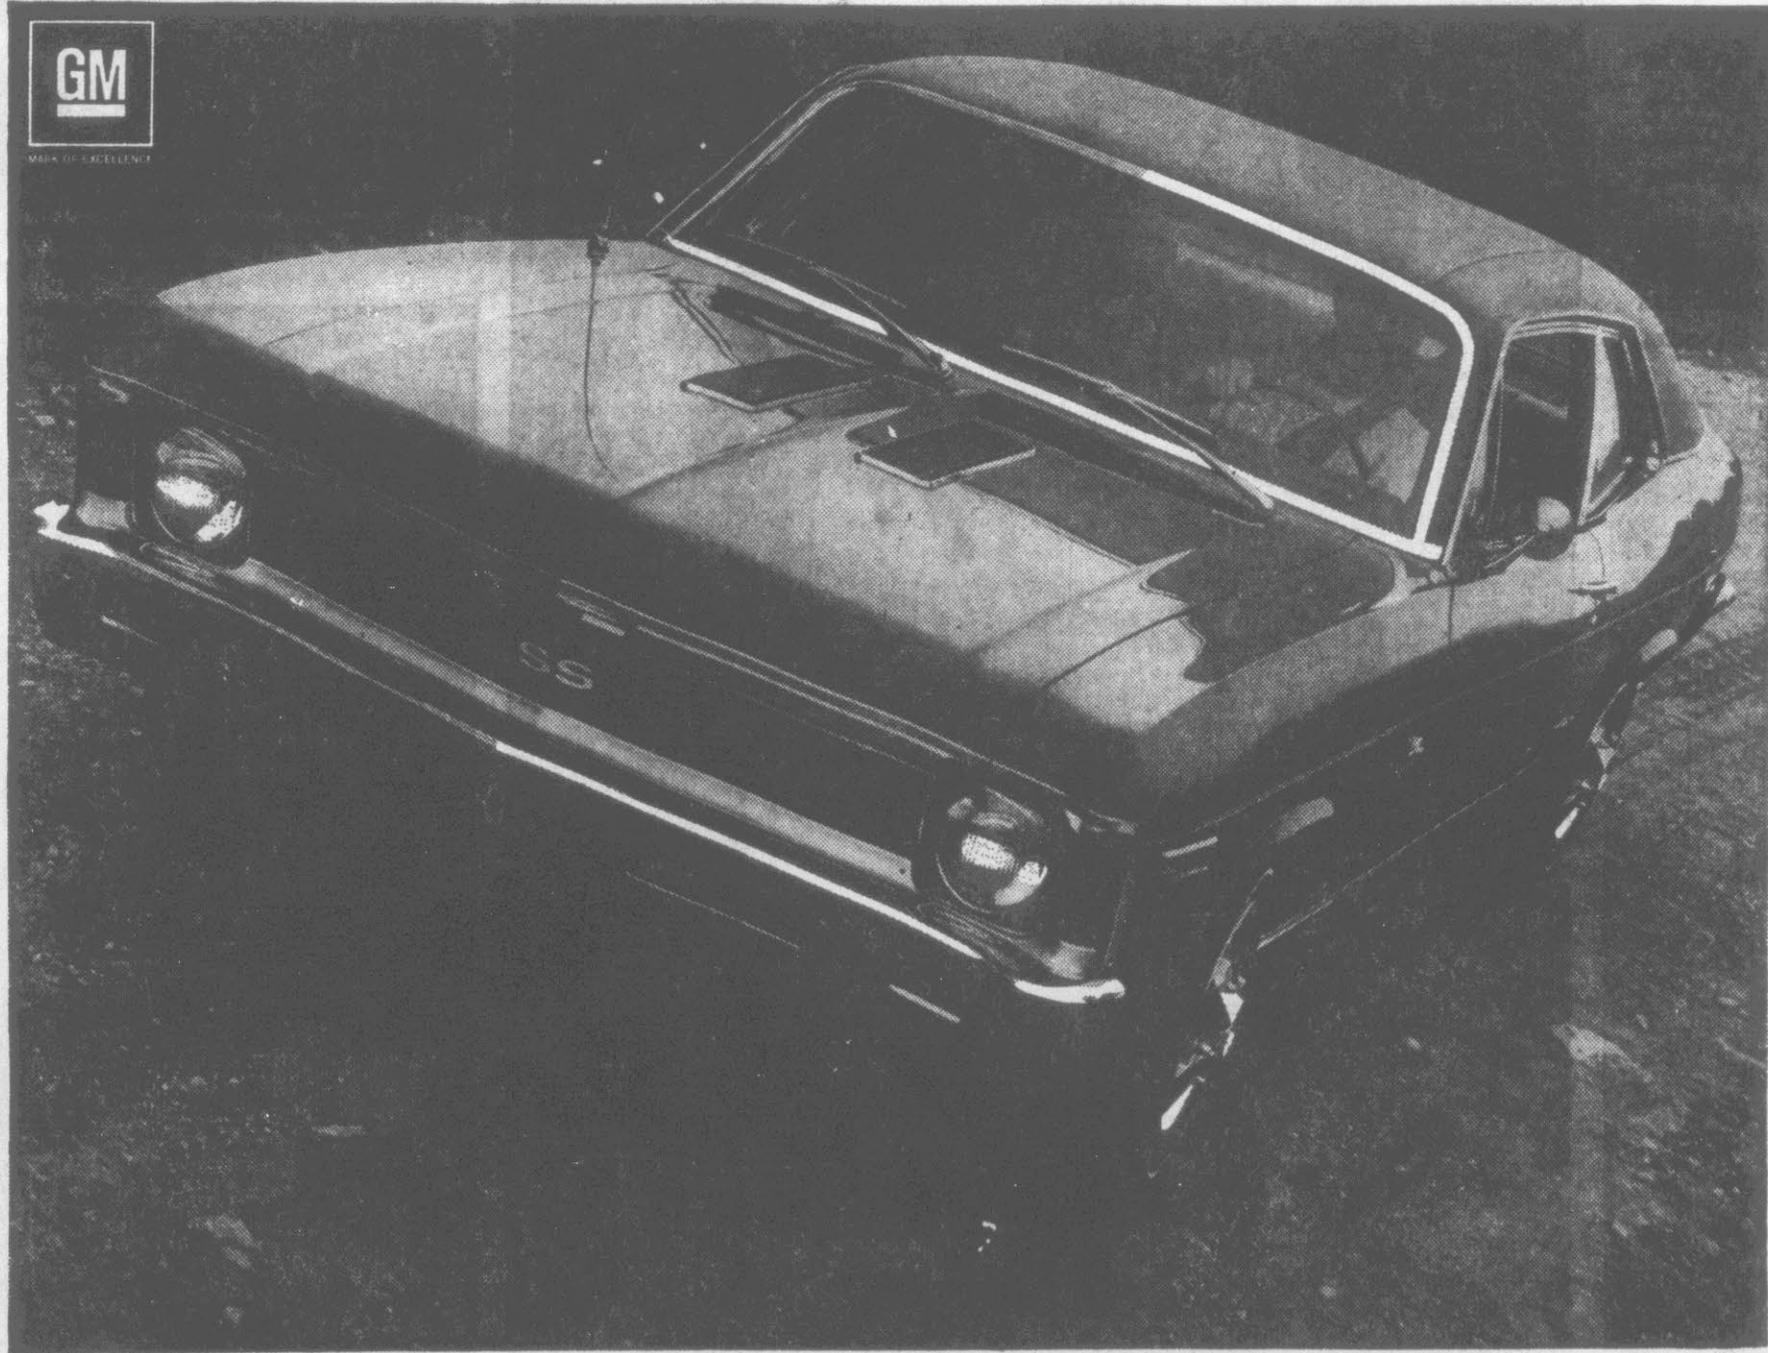

His mother lives near Beuth University in Berlin where Wendt earned a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering in 1942.

In 1949, he went to work as a mechanic for Ozark Airlines in St. Louis, Mo., and six years later began work for McDonnell Aircraft there, prime contractor for America's Mercury and two-man Gemini spaceships.

Wendt was a member of the close-out crew, the small team of men which seals the spacecraft hatch before blastoff, for every Mercury and Gemini launch at Cape Kennedy.

He is now pad leader for North American Rockwell Corp., builder of Apollo spaceships, and was one of the last eight men to leave the white room before the three Apollo 7 astronauts rode into orbit Oct. 11.

"Guenter Wendt," pun-loving Apollo 7 commander Walter M. Schirra Jr. said at the time of Wendt's departure.

OUR FAIR LADY

Every U.S. citizen and taxpayer knows her—we own her. She is a symbol of our country for people throughout the world. She is, in fact, so familiar a figure that perhaps many of us never stop to think about the precise details and history of her unique presence.

SHE COMES FROM FRANCE. The statue commemorates the alliance of France and the United States during the American Revolution, and is a pledge of abiding friendship. The French people raised the entire cost of the statue by popular subscription. The model for the statue was the mother of Auguste Bartholdi, the sculptor.

SHE WEARS GREEN MAKEUP and she's never had a bath. She is made from sheets of hammered copper supported on a steel frame. The exterior is never cleaned, since that would remove its patina, a protective verdigris resulting from oxidation. Cleaning would soon wear out the sheeting which is only about as thick as a silver dollar.

THERE IS ABSOLUTELY NOTHING WRONG WITH HER RIGHT ARM. The legend that it had been weakened by an explosion in Jersey in 1916 gave officials a welcome excuse to close the arm to visitors. The balcony round the torch can only hold ten people at a time, resulting in severe traffic problems.

SHE STANDS IN NEW YORK. Both New York and New Jersey share the waters around the island, but after much argument a pact between the two states was agreed on in 1833. New York policemen protect the island and the island's residents pay New York taxes.

HER ISLAND IS INHABITED. At present the island has a population of 21 persons, who make up the four families of the statue's staff members.

SHE FACES BROOKLYN. In spite of what Brooklyn people might claim, the positioning of the statue was probably determined by the shape of its base. The statue stands on the remains of old Fort Wood, which forms an 11-point star. For the sake of symmetry the statue faces the most prominent point.

SHE'S OPEN EVERY DAY OF THE YEAR. Fog is the only thing which can prevent ferry sailings and keep visitors away. The lady has been unable to play hostess on only one occasion in the last 20 years.

Spiral staircase inside the statue leads to the observation platform beneath the crown.

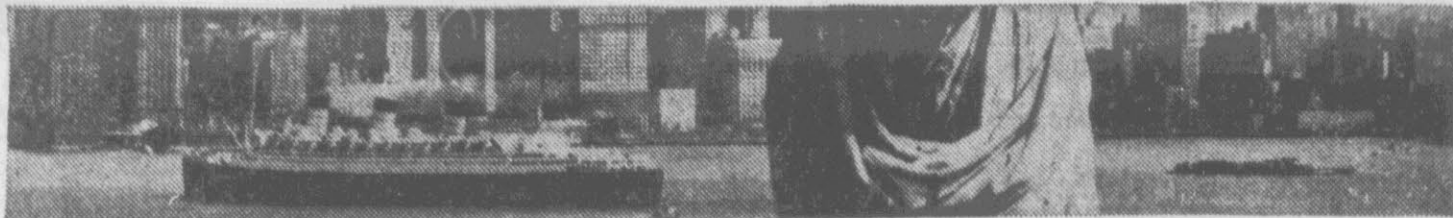

Paris, 1884. The statue waits to be shipped to New York.

The statue was dedicated by President Cleveland on October 28, 1886.

A Look At Amendments To Effect Electoral Reform

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon would have failed to get an Electoral College majority if the presidential election had been held under one of the electoral reform plans most often suggested.

The president-elect would have narrowly led Hubert H. Humphrey—but would not have had a majority—if each state's electoral college votes had been divided proportionately rather than going to one candidate on a winner-take-all basis.

Under some versions of this proposed reform, that plurality would have been sufficient to elect Nixon. But under others, lack of a majority would have thrown the election to the House of Representatives—an eventuality that most reform plans aim at avoiding.

Nixon would have won a slight majority if electoral votes had been allocated on a congressional district basis, another suggested alternative to the Electoral College. But his margin would have been smaller than the majority he actually got under the present system.

These theoretical results were compiled from virtually complete but unofficial election returns.

The other major reform plan would abolish the Electoral College, which has been in use since 1804, and elect the president by direct popular vote. Nixon also would have won under this system.

Proposals for election reform traditionally spring up in the wake of close elections. Reformers argue that the existing machinery may one day elect a president who is not the popular choice—or may break down entirely and produce no president except after prolonged wheeling and dealing.

With a third major candidate in the field—as was George C. Wallace this time—the chances for an indelible verdict appear to multiply.

Hearings are planned by the Senate constitutional revision subcommittee on how to improve the election procedure and eliminate the chance of constitutional crisis. The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., is a leading advocate of direct popular election of the president.

If the present system is to be changed, the Constitution must be amended. That means the Senate and House must each, by two-thirds vote of its membership, settle on a single reform plan. Then it must be ratified by the legislatures of 38 states.

There are numerous arguments for and against the present Electoral College and each suggested substitute. Even within each broad reform plan there are arguments over how the fine print should read.

Here's a look at each principal system, the characteristics that stir debate about it, and how it works when the 1968 election results are plugged in.

The existing system; each state has as many votes in the Electoral College as it has representatives and senators in Congress. The District of Columbia has three. All of a state's votes are cast by electors announced as favorable to the candidate who wins the most popular votes in the state, although only 16 states and the district require their electors to follow the voters' choice. A majority of the electoral votes—270 of 538 this year—is required for election. If there is no majority, the House of Representatives elects the president.

Nixon won the popular vote in 32 states, giving him 302 electoral votes—a majority. Humphrey won 13 states and the District of Columbia for 191 electoral votes. Wallace won five states worth 45 votes.

Despite a better than 3-to-2 electoral edge over Humphrey, Nixon won the popular balloting by less than 350,000 votes out of 72 million cast. His 44 per cent of the popular vote was good for 56 per cent of the electoral vote; Humphrey got 43 per cent of the popular vote but only 36 per cent of the electoral; Wallace won 13 per cent popular, 9 per cent electoral.

The Electoral College originally was seen as a body of the elite who would rationally debate the merits of presidential candidates and pick the best man—a task not trusted to the ordinary voter in the old days of poor communication, transportation and education. The winner-take-all system for each state maximize their power rather than have a divided delegation that canceled itself out.

Smaller states have a stronger voice per capita in the college than bigger states because the number of electors is based partly on membership in the Senate—where population is not a factor. For example, Virginia is five times as populous as Rhode Island and has 10 congressmen to Rhode Island's two. But adding the senators gives Virginia 12 electoral votes to Rhode Island's 4—only three times as many.

On the other hand, candidates still key their campaigns to big states such as California, where voters determine the selection of 40 electors, instead of states like Vermont with only three votes in the Electoral College.

A candidate could theoretically get on the ballot in the 12 biggest states, carry each by a margin of one vote and be elected, even if he didn't get a single vote in the rest of the country.

In actual practice, three winners of the popular vote have failed to be elected president. Grover Cleveland outpolled Benjamin Harrison in 1888 and Samuel Tilden won more popular votes than Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876 only to lose in the Electoral College. In 1824, Andrew Jackson led John Quincy Adams in both popular and electoral votes, but did not have an electoral majority. The election went to the House which elected Adams.

One minor reform plan would require that electoral votes be cast automatically for each state's winner, thus eliminating the chance of a candidate being victimized by electors who refused to go along with the popular choice.

PROPORTIONAL ELECTORAL VOTING: This proposal would allocate electoral votes in proportion to the popular vote received by each candidate in each state.

Under this plan, Nixon would have received 234 electoral votes to 224 for Humphrey and 80 for Wallace, almost exactly matching his percentage of popular vote and 36 short of an electoral majority.

Proportional distribution lacks precision, particularly in smaller states, if only whole electoral votes—not fractions—are allocated. The mathematics are such that in a two-man race in a state with four electoral votes, one candidate would need nearly 63 per cent of the popular vote for the electoral votes to do anything but split 2-2. In Arkansas this year, for example, each candidate would have received two of the state's six electoral votes even though Wallace polled 39 per cent of the popular vote to 31 per cent for Nixon and 30 per cent for Humphrey.

In proportional voting, a third candidate has a fair chance of picking off votes in big states even though he badly trails the other candidates. Wallace polled only 7 per cent of the California popular vote, but would have gotten three of the state's 40 electoral votes.

DISTRICT ELECTORAL VOTING: The most common form of this proposal would give one electoral vote to the popular vote winner in each congressional district, with a bonus of two votes to the statewide winner. The bonus votes preserve the same degree of overweighted representation for small states already contained in the present system.

Nixon carried 225 congressional districts, Humphrey 163 plus the District of Columbia, and Wallace 47. Adding in the bonus electors for states won would have given Nixon 289 votes, a majority, Humphrey 192, and Wallace 57. That's 13 less than Nixon got under the existing system. Humphrey would have gained 1, Wallace 12.

The district system would make little difference from the present method in most small states, where congressional districts cover large areas. In larger and more diversified states, the district plan would more closely recognize these differences, but like the present winner-take-all system the margin of victory would make no difference. A congressional district carried by one vote would be worth the same electorally as one carried by 100,000 votes.

The district system in most cases would dilute the bloc power of the more diverse big states. In California, for example, Nixon carried 21 districts and Humphrey 17; Illinois was Nixon 14, Humphrey 10.

POPULAR VOTING: Under this plan, the candidate with the most votes would win. The number of states carried would become irrelevant. Some proposals include a runoff election between the top two candidates if no candidate in a field of three or more gets some minimum percentage, such as 40 per cent. Nixon would have won under this plan, since he polled more than 40 per cent despite the third party candidacy of Wallace.

Some persons fear that one suspect city or county could swing the entire national vote in an extremely close election, whereas under any of the Electoral College proposals, one fraud-ridden area can only affect one state. The counter argument is, of course, that an electoral election could hinge on that state.

On the other hand, the 8,000 votes some Republicans contend were stolen from Nixon in the 1960 election in Illinois were enough to give John F. Kennedy that state but were nowhere nearly enough to swing the entire national popular vote although Kennedy's edge of 119,000 votes was one of history's closest.

With direct popular vote, the small states would lose their present over-representation but the big states would tend to lose their bloc power.

A popular or proportional system would change some of the nature of presidential campaigning because either would make it worthwhile for a candidate to go into areas where he had no chance of winning.

Nixon, for example, had no chance of carrying Alabama against Wallace, so there was no point in campaigning there because he could get no electoral votes. But the nearly 150,000 popular votes Nixon got in running a bad third in Alabama equaled nearly half of his popular vote margin over Humphrey in the country as a whole.

Likewise, candidates would find it worthwhile to go for every last vote in a safe area rather than be just as satisfied with a 55 per cent margin as 65 per cent.

Popular voting, even with a minimum percentage victory requirement, seemingly would tend to discourage third party candidates. The man finishing third would have no tangible bargaining tool in event of a deadlock since the leading candidates would simply run in another election.

The biggest problem facing electoral reformers is to agree on one plan. Even with unity, they face a rugged struggle in state legislatures; without unity, it's unlikely any plan could muster enough support to get through Congress.

Not Much Resiliency In International Rates

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The system of international exchange rates is proving to be a rigid structure. If it were more resilient, it if it had more sway, its nuts and bolts and gears might not break down so often.

As set up, the machinery moves smoothly when the gears are properly related to each other; that is, when the world agrees the French franc is worth 20 cents, the German mark 25 cents, the British pound $2.40.

These are the fixed rates assigned to currencies so that they may be exchanged with assurance, one with the other.

When the gears are reordinated the machinery of international finance spins like a printing press and the world prospers. Currencies of one nation are freely exchanged for goods of another.

Even if the relative size of these gears shifts a bit the machinery still works, although not as smoothly. The British pound might be $2.37 or $2.42 or so, as it has been, but that's a permissible range. Nothing stops.

A trouble with the system, though, is that it assumes a fixed ratio will always exist, that the franc because it is worth one-fifth of a dollar now, and the mark a quarter, will be worth the same next year and so on.

In reality, such equilibrium seldom exists for many years. Economies grow at different speeds. And some economies grow larger, others relatively weaker and smaller. Some economies are mismanaged.

As a result the gears, meaning the economies, get larger or smaller in relation to each other, but not always in the correct proportion.

The evidence of disproportion in the ratios generally is revealed by balance of payments figures. A strong nation generally sells more than it buys. A weak economy imports more than it exports. It runs up bills.

The present international monetary system sometimes declines to accept the evidence before it. Long after the machinery has become disrupted the offending nation maintains all is well. The rates of exchange remain officially fixed.

The result is that the machinery sometimes works all the more poorly, and it becomes obvious to everyone that a grinding confrontation with reality is inevitable. A crisis develops.

As the crisis worsens, money flees from the weak to the strong economy, making the strong even stronger and the weak weaker. Everyone wants to hold the strong currency.

What has happened at this point is that nations and people no longer believe the official rates are a true reflection of the strengths of the economies relative to each other. They anticipate an adjustment must be made.

It is only at this point, with the entire machine grinding and groaning, that monetary officials concede a breakdown could result.

After having first refused to recognize the evidence, and after having failed to correct the damage, the nations admit the gears must be readjusted or world trade won't function, one gear won't accept another.

At this point the machine operators hurriedly decide on how they can keep the system intact.

Building Gains For N.C. Cities

RALEIGH (AP) — Charlotte was way out in front last month as building activity showed a big increase in North Carolina's major cities.

State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane said Sunday the 36 Tar Heel cities of more than 10,000 population issued building permits totaling $47.1 million, an increase of more than $13.2 million over October last year.

Charlotte's total for the month was $22,337,838, followed by Raleigh with $3,945,320. Greensboro was next with $3,589,444.

Crane said permits issued during the first 10 months of this year totaled $430,598,925, up 14.5 per cent over the same period last year.

The totals for the cities last month include:

Three Clubs Get 'First Aid' In QB Injuries

by DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nobody seems to be immune to the crippled quarterback epidemic sweeping the National Football League this year. But three clubs are getting maximum protection from the first aid firm of Morrill, Morton and Bratkowski.

Morrill, who stepped into Johnny Unitas' pass pocket at the outset of the season when the Baltimore ace came up with a sore pitching arm, helped the Colts stampede the Minnesota Vikings 21-9 Sunday for their 10th victory in 11 starts.

Morton, filling in for ailing Dallas star Don Meredith, guided the Cowboys to a 34-3 romp over the injury-riddled Chicago Bears. Bratkowski, working in relief of sore-ribbed Bart Starr, led the Green Bay Packers past Washington 27-7 and into title contention.

The Colts remained one-half game ahead of the Los Angeles Rams, who nipped New York 24-21 on Bruce Gossett's field goal with four seconds to play, in the Coastal Division race. Dallas, 9-3, increased its Capitol lead over the second place Giants to two games, with three to play. And Green Bay, 5-5-1, climbed within one-half game of first place Minnesota in the Central scramble.

Bill Nelsen, another one-time backup quarterback, kept Cleveland's Century pace-setters rolling, teaming with running back Leroy Kelly to engineer a 47-13 rout of the winless Philadelphia Eagles.

St. Louis trimmed Atlanta 17-12 to stay 1½ games behind the Browns; San Francisco drubbed Pittsburgh 45-28 and New Orleans fought Detroit to a 20-20 standoff.

In the American Football League the New York Jets trounced San Diego 37-15; Oakland battered Cincinnati 34-0; Miami whipped Boston 34-10 and Denver shamed Buffalo 34-32. Kansas City and Houston were idle.

Morrill, a 34-year-old NFL journeyman traded to the Colts by New York just before the start of the season, fired two touchdown passes. . . his 21st and 22nd of the year. . . as Baltimore soared to a 21-3 halftime lead over the Vikings. He hit on 13 of 16 passes for 225 yards in the first 30 minutes.

Minnesota's strong defensive unit stiffened after intermission, but the Colt defenders, who had shut out two of their three previous opponents, protected the margin. The Vikings' points came on three field goals by Fred Cox.

With Meredith nursing a torn knee ligament, Morton and the Dallas defense combined to shackle the Bears. The 25-year-old quarterback, under study for four years, completed 15 of 32 passes for 240 yards and one score. . . a 15-yard strike to Bob Hayes.

The Bears, who had lost half-back Gale Sayers and quarterback Virgil Carter for the season, were unable to generate an attack behind Jack Concannon, calling signals again after being sidelined with injuries. The game was halted 40 seconds from the finish after two first-swinging melees broke out.

Bratkowski, 37, was on target with his first eight passes and wound up 18 for 24 as the Packers won handily without Starr, held out because of severely bruised ribs. Bratkowski set up two first half touchdowns before breaking open the game with a 47-yard scoring toss to Donny Anderson in the third quarter.

Nelsen flipped one touchdown pass and Ryan threw another as the Browns, 8-3, handed Philadelphia its 11th setback in as many starts. Kelly scored twice, passed for another touchdown ground, pushing his season total over the 1,000-yard mark.

Gossett, who had missed three earlier field goal attempts, boot-ed the winning three-pointer for the Rams from 36 yards out, capping a Los Angeles rally that wiped out the Giants' 14-0 halftime advantage. Fran Tarkenton fired two scoring passes to Aaron Thomas and a third to Tucker Frederickson.

The Cardinals held off a late Atlanta bid after quarterback Jim Hart's 30-yard TD pass to Willis Crenshaw and one-yard scoring plunge gave them a 17-3 lead. The St. Louis defensive line tossed Falcons passer Bob Berry 11 times for losses. . . one short of the NFL single-game record.

John Brodie sizzled for San Francisco as the 49ers steamed to a 35-14 halftime lead, hitting on 12 of 13 passes for 297 yards and two scores before the break. Pittsburgh's Dick Shiner, intercepted five times by the 49ers secondary, threw two touchdown passes in the last quarter to close the gap.

Wayne Walker's second field goal matched a three-pointer by New Orleans' Charlie Durkee in the final period and gave Detroit a tie with the Saints. Bill Munson flipped a pair of scoring passes for the Lions, winless in their last six games.

Richmond Spiders Rack Up String Of 'Firsts' In Year Of Triumph

By ED YOUNG
Associated Press Writer

For Richmond's Spiders, the football "firsts" stacked up so fast they scarcely knew how to react: First Southern Conference championship. First seven-victory season since 1939. First bowl invitation.

All stemmed from an accomplishment unique in SC history—triumphs over every other team in the league, a sweep completed Saturday in a 31-6 conquest of traditional foe William and Mary in Game No. 10.

Today each Spider, save one, still was living in the clouds. The exception was coach Frank Jones, who was trying to live there, too, but now and then was struck by disturbing thoughts about Game No. 11.

Game No. 11 will be in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla. the night of Dec. 27 against the champion of the Mid-American Conference, unbeaten, nationally ranked Ohio University.

This being the bowl pairing, and William and Mary having been bombed 41-0 by Ohio U. on Oct. 12, would WLM coach Marv Levy care to make a comparison Well, not exactly.

"We have painful memories of both teams," says Levy. "Let them fight it out. Ohio U. may have a better-balanced attack, but Richmond's passing should give them a good chance. They will represent the conference well."

And would Levy make available his scouting reports on Ohio U. to Jones, who has had a scout at only one Bobcat game—last Saturday's in which Ohio U. whipped Northern Illinois 28-12 for a 10-0 record.

"We have the reports, but after what Ohio did to us, I don't know whether anyone would really want 'em," said Levy.

Jones want them, plus anything he can get on ways to stop the powerful offense of the Bobcats, after he puts his Spiders back to work "in a week or so—not before because they've earned a little rest."

Richmond, scoring in the 30's for the fifth time in its last six games, closed with a 7-3 over-all record and a 6-0 Southern Conference log by walloping Levy's Indians Saturday in an old, familiar way—on the elegant passing of quarterback Buster O'Brien.

O'Brien passed for 245 yards and for three touchdowns to end Walker Gillette, on plays covering 6, 34 and 56 yards—patterns, Levy said, W&M "practiced against all week, but still couldn't stop."

East Carolina, 2-2 in SC play and 4-5 over-all with a non-league game to go, got two touchdowns and 177 rushing yards from Butch Dolson while spooling the Bulldogs' homecoming and ending coach Jim Parker's hopes for his first winning season. The Citadel finished 4-2, 5-5.

Blue Hose And Bears To Decide Crown On Thursday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Presbyterian or Lenoir Rhyne will either capture the Carolinas Conference football championship Thanksgiving Day, or share it.

The Presbyterian Blue Hose and the Lenoir Rhyne Bears, each with a 4-1 league record, end the season against traditional foes.

Presbyterian is home to Newberry and Lenoir Rhyne is at Catawba.

The Blue Hose can thank Elon for giving them a shot at the title. Elon upset Lenoir Rhyne 23-21 two Saturdays ago. Presbyterian lost its opening conference game of the season to Lenoir Rhyne, 17-7.

The two Thanksgiving Day games will close the season for the conference.

In one of last Saturday's two games, Presbyterian finally caught up with Lenoir Rhyne by overcoming a 10-0 deficit and edging Western Carolina 20-19.

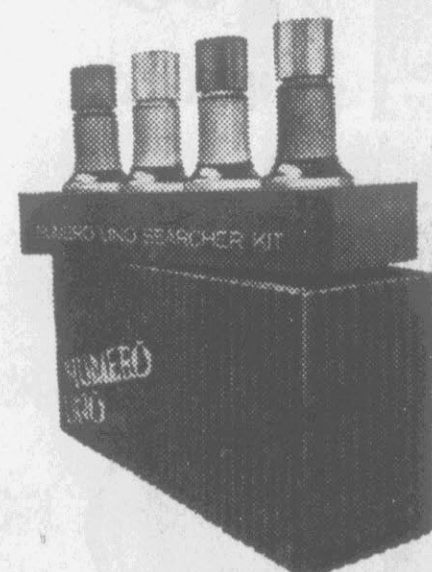

In the other, Appalachian completed a sweep of the seven Carolinas Conference teams by defeating stubborn Guilford 29-22. Appalachian withdrew from the conference last June and now is independent.

David Lomax of Western Carolina rushed for 103 yards against Presbyterian and set a conference season record for average yards by rushing a game, 106.2. He gained 956 yards in nine games.

Distance runner Steve Atwood of Westfield, N.J., captains the Dartmouth indoor track team.

Gamecocks Gave ACC Crown To Wolfpack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 1968 Atlantic Coast Conference football season has ended with North Carolina State the champion; only two schools with a .500 or better record and a dismal 7-21 showing against nonleague opponents.

N. C. State won the title Saturday, one week after it had finished the season, thanks to the South Carolina Gamecocks.

South Carolina upset favored Clemson 7-3 and the final conference standings showed N. C. State at 6-1 and Clemson at 4-1-1. That tie came early in the season against Wake Forest.

For the year, only Virginia, 7-3, and N. C. State, 6-4, managed to finish with a winning record.

Against nonconference opponents, and there's an asterisk here, Virginia was 4-1, North Carolina, last in the ACC standings, was 2-1, and Duke 1-2. The others were blanked, including the champion Wolfpack and runner-up Clemson.

The asterisk? Oh yes, Virginia played Navy and it counted in the standings as a conference game. This was done to give the Cavaliers enough games to qualify for the conference title. But, by all rights, Navy still was an out-of-league foe.

In the final weekend of action, North Carolina joined South Carolina in the upset department by sinking Duke 25-14; Virginia, back of the running of record-setting Frank Quayle, nipped Maryland 28-23 and Wake Forest, playing its last game under head coach Bill Tate, was bombed by Florida State 4-4.

South Carolina parlayed a rugged defense and a 75-yard punt return by defensive full-back Tyler Hellams into a victory over old and bitter rival Clemson.

The defense designed by coach Paul Dietzel permitted Clemson into its territory only in the first quarter, for a field goal, and in the final period, for northing. The Gamecocks, meanwhile, moved inside the Clemson 20-yard line on five occasions, twice being stopped by the Tiger defensive line and three times giving up the football on pass interceptions. Hellams' punt return provided the margin of victory.

Take a look at these statistics: South Carolina had 23 first downs and a total offense of 375. Clemson had six first downs with a total gain on the ground and through the air of 156 yards. Senior quarterback Gayle Romar provided the difference in the Tar Heel victory over Duke. He tossed two touchdown passes and scored another.

North Carolina scored twice in the first six minutes and Duke, with its brilliant quarterback Leo Hart, could never catch up. Quayle closed out his collegiate career by scoring three touchdowns and gaining 216 yards rushing. This gave him the ACC single season rushing record with 1,213 yards; career rushing record with 2,595; and scoring record with 210 points.

Wake Forest built up a 27-14 lead before crumbling under the pass catching ability of Ron Sellers. Sellers picked up 260 yards against Wake Forest for a career total of 3,384, surpassing the old national record of 3,124 set by Tulsa's Howard Twilley. Deacon quarterback Fred Summers completed three touchdown passes.

Rookie Ron Cerrudo Tops His Golf Goals For Year

By BEN THOMAS

Associated Press Sports Writer LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Rookie pro golfer Ron Cerrudo, a 24-year-old Californian, exceeded each of the goals he set for himself this year on the $5.6 million play-for-pay circuit.

"It's a bigger thrill than anybody knows," said Cerrudo Sunday after winning the $35,000 Cajun Classic, the year's final PGA tour event, with a record 270-18 under par—for 72 holes.

"I finished a runner-up in the National Amateur, the British Amateur and the Western Amateur—about every big amateur tournament you can name and was starting to get the feeling of a bridesmaid, wondering if I was ever going to win anything."

Cerrudo, registering his first tour victory, earned a $5,000 paycheck and finished four shots ahead of little-known Bobby Mitchell and cigar-smoking Charlie Sifford.

A stroke behind the second-place finishers were Miller Barber and David Stockton, whose check for $1,975 boosted him to $100,207 in total tour earnings this year and made him the 13th player to join the 100 Grand Club for 1968.

Barber had already won more than $100,000 before the Cajun Classic.

"This morning, I woke up and I thought, jeez, I've had 69, 67, 66 and maybe today I can get a 68," said Cerrudo.

Actually, he had set 68 as his goal for the Cajun Classic. He had said earlier that he wanted to have four rounds of 68 on the 6,555-yard Oakbourne Country Club course on which the regulation figures are 36-36-72.

"I would have been satisfied with that, even if it didn't win."

The only 68 he shot was in Sunday's final 18 holes, but his 72-hole score was two shots better than his goal. Actually, a 272—the tournament record which John Barnum set in 1962—would have been enough for a two-stroke victory margin by Cerrudo.

He was four shots in front at the start of Sunday's play and after the first nine holes, shooting a four-under 32, he had a six-stroke advantage.

He didn't get a bogey until the 13th hole, chipping over the green on the par 5 hole and then taking three strokes to hole out. He had another bogey at the next hole, a par 3.

He admitted that he got "a little nervous, but I started talking to myself, 'If you can't hold a four-shot lead, you don't deserve to win any championships.'"

"So I just kept plugging and tried to concentrate on making par."

At 17, another par 3 hole, his six-iron from the tee plopped to the green a foot from the pin and stopped. He tapped in the easy birdie and closed out the back nine with a 36.

Cerrudo's first goal was to consistently make the cut for the final 36 holes and he accomplished this early in the year. His second was to finish among the top 60 money winners and he wound up 43rd with $38,497.

Duke Lists Its 1969 Schedule

DURHAM (AP) — Virginia Tech and Pittsburgh are new additions to Duke's 1969 football schedule, replacing Army and Michigan.

Athletic Director Eldie Cameron said Saturday. The 10-game schedule includes home games with Pittsburgh, Clemson and North Carolina. For the third straight year, Duke will play in the annual Shrine Bowl at Norfolk, Va. The opponent for the Nov. 15 game will be Virginia Tech.

Duke will also meet Georgia Tech and the other seven members of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The schedule: Sept. 20, South Carolina at Columbia; 27, Virginia at Charlottesville; Oct. 4, Pittsburgh; 11, Wake Forest at Winston-Salem; 18, Maryland at College Park; 25, N. C. State at Raleigh; Nov. 1, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; 8, Clemson; 15, Virginia Tech at Norfolk; 22, North Carolina.

The Pultners have two other children, Brian, 6, and Todd, 1. Pultner, 34, spent Sunday afternoon at Tiger Stadium watching the Detroit-New Orleans National Football League game. The teams tied 20-20.

Not Everybody Happy In Having Jockey On Squad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Penny Ann Early put in her first, very unofficial, appearance in the American Basketball Association, with the reactions varied from a ho-hum from the fans to a hopping-mad reaction from New York Nets owner Arthur Brown.

"He's making us look like a bunch of fools," Brown said of Charlie Masten, the Kentucky Colonels general manager who signed the petite, would-be woman jockey to a short-term ABA contract.

Penny Ann, dressed in a black knit dress and a coat, took two practice shots—she missed both of them—during the halftime intermission of Sunday's New York Nets-Kentucky game at Commack, N.Y. The Nets missed some, too, and New York stalked off with a 91-84 victory.

Los Angeles beat home-standing Houston 117-109 in overtime in the only other Sunday game. In Saturday's games, Miami stopped Indiana 126-107 and the Nets edged Minnesota 110-105. In Sunday's NBA games, Los Angeles nipped Chicago 103-100, Seattle bombed Milwaukee 141-120, Baltimore beat Atlanta 118-111 and San Diego outlasted Philadelphia 135-128 in overtime.

Brown even challenged ABA Commissioner George Milkan's authority in approving Miss Early's contract.

"If something unusual comes up," he said, "it's up to the owners, not Milkan. If the league lets her play, there's no reason for having an ABA."

"We've got a lot of money invested and are trying to create an image. Were not operating at a publicity man's whims."

There's little chance Miss Early will see game action. "I was signed by Kentucky strictly out of sympathy because I couldn't become a jockey," she said, but added that she would appear at the Colonels' next home game Wednesday.

"I'll be in uniform and will go on the court before the game—" make a couple of passes and that's it. I don't expect to be in the game. That will be the end of it."

She said she has "no intention of playing professional basketball." She was signed after being thwarted in her efforts to become a jockey at Churchill Downs.

New York's victory over the Colonels pulled the Nets to within 1½ games of the Eastern Division leading Colonels.

Tom Bowens popped in 14 points in a decisive third period burst that carried the Nets from a two-point halftime advantage to a 73-60 margin.

Walt Simon of New York led all scorers with 25 points while Darrell Carrier topped the Colonels with 23.

Larry Miller scored nine points in the overtime period and sparked Los Angeles to its decision over Houston. He led all scorers with 30 points, and it was his last minute layup that tied the game at 105-105 and sent it into overtime.

Willie Somerset paced Houston with 27 points.

Synthetic Turf And New Shoes Make Safer Games

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

All the returns aren't in yet but some of the safest, fastest and highest scoring college football games are taking place on synthetic turf. A new shoe is as much responsible.

The new shoes worn on synthetic fields contain 21 cleats and are shorter than the normal grass shoe of seven cleats—five on the sole and two on the heel.

The new cleats are 3/4 of an inch in length. Teams playing on natural grass use cleats 1/4 or 1-inch in length. The shorter cleats afford much better footing on the new ruglike surfaces.

At the Houston Astrood, where the use of a synthetic grass called AstroTurf started it all, University of Houston players use a soccer type shoe with a canvas top and hard rubber molded soles. The shoes are made in Norway.

The usual football shoes with hard nylon cleats and a stiff leather sole simply will not give proper traction on the artificial rugs. These were designed to give traction through surface penetration.

"The immobility of the lower leg causes many knee and leg injuries," says Dr. James Whitehurst, Houston team physician. "AstroTurf must rely on the traction between the surface pile and the cleats and it is impossible to fix the foot in the ground in a stable manner."

"As a result, there has been a remarkable lowering of incidence of turf-related injuries of the lower extremities."

The Houston Cougars played 13 games in the Dome in the last two years and have had no serious leg injuries. On the road in these two years the team had 13 knee injuries necessitating surgery.

The problem of loneliness among Volkswagen Station Wagon owners.

We built the Volkswagen Station Wagon like a box. With 176 cubic feet of space inside, behind the front seat. That's a lot of space. (61 cubic feet more than in the largest conventional wagon.)

Most of the time that great amount of space is great. Whenever you've got something to take with you, such as a wife, some kids, and an occasional mother-in-law or two. An incredible number of odd-shaped objects will go inside.

And when you've really got a lot to take with you, such as all the aforementioned, plus suitcases for all the aforementioned, the space inside a VW wagon surpasses great and goes all the way to magnificent. But those times you're driving all alone, you really know you're alone. The wagon can seem awfully empty. However, it'll never make your wallet seem that way. Whether you're carrying something or not, you're always saving money. Because the VW wagon gets up to 23 miles per gallon of gas, takes less oil than conventional wagons, and no antifreeze.

Just think of that when you're faced with the problem of occasional loneliness. And about how much better that is than the problem of claustrophobia among conventional station wagon owners.

At Least 19 Dead In N.C. Weekend Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed at least 19 lives in North Carolina during the weekend, sending the 1968 highway death toll to 1,650. There had been 1,574 traffic fatalities to this date a year ago.

Ralph Abbott, 42, of Henderson was killed when a pony cart in which he was riding was struck in the rear by an auto on a rural road four miles east of Henderson. The victim's uncle, Bryant C. Abbott, 58, of Rt. 2, Henderson, was injured seriously.

State Highway Patrolman J. W. Morris said the driver of the car, Norwood Thomas West, 16, of Rt. 4, Henderson, told him there was no light on the pony cart and he did not see it in time to stop.

A Camp Lejeune Marine was killed in a collision on U.S. 17 near Wilmington. His identity was withheld, pending notification of next of kin.

Robert Gray Easter, 23, of Rt. 3, Lexington, was killed when struck by a vehicle on U.S. 62 about two miles east of Lexington.

Bobby Wayne Smith, 28, Rt. 2, Pink Hill, died when his car crashed head-on with another vehicle on N.C. 111 seven miles north of the Duplin County community of Duellahville. Smith's vehicle caught fire.

Linda Louise Keaver, 21, of Asheville, was killed when her car backed off the left side of a road and into a barbed wire fence four miles north of Asheville.

Willis Ferguson, 79, of Moncure was injured fatally when a car in which he was riding struck a bridge about one mile north of Moncure in Chatham County.

Oscar Cook Blair, 40, of Farmville was killed in a three-car collision on U.S. 264 two miles south of Farmville. The Highway Patrol said Blair's car was struck by another vehicle when he failed to stop for a stop sign. A trailer being towed by the second car then was sideswiped by a third vehicle.

Charles Calvin Sanders, 19, of Grantsboro was killed on N.C. 55 within the city limits of Stone-wall when his car went out of control and struck a utility pole.

Paul Herman Gurney, 22, of Ft. Bragg, lost his life one mile east of Fayetteville on N.C. 87 when his auto ran off the road, struck a utility pole and overturned.

Michael Galtner, 16-year-old son of Highway Patrolman C. E. (Bud) Galtner of Statesville, was killed when his car went out of control on U.S. 21 near Statesville, careened back onto the highway and into the path of a tractor-trailer unit.

Other weekend fatalities included: Zack Grady, 58, of Wilmington; Vonley Lee Howell of Todd in Ashe County; Jimmy Clifford Johnson, 38, of Angier; Vonnice Coledge Long, 44, Rt. 2, Wilmington; Jimmy Chestnut, 24, Rt. 1, Wilmington; Carol Ridge Lawson, 27, Thomasville; Major Barnhill Jr., 34, Rt. 1, Winterville, and Leon J. Schmitt, a serviceman stationed at Cedar Island.

Two peach baskets, nailed to the balcony of a gymnasium in Springfield, Mass., gave basketball its name.

Goren on BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

(To 1968 by The Chess Tribune)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As dealer, you hold:

AKQ4 VAQJ10 4AKJ4 46

What is your opening bid?

A.—Two spades. This is a rare hand on which an opening two bid may be made on a four-card suit. The hand contains 24 points in high cards in addition to two for distribution, a value of 26 points or more in hand. The opening bid is made in spades to allow the economical showing of all three suits in an effort to determine the best final contract.

Q. 2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK10 VAQJ4 47 4J8642

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 2 3 3 Pass

1 2 3 3 Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—There is a choice between three and four hearts, and we have a slight preference for the latter. Partner's free value to two hearts indicates a good hand, with the adverse overall of two diamonds, it is highly likely that partner's value will be in the black suits, which should make the hand fit very well.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK2 VKQ10 3 4KJ5 4Q72

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

1 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

What do you bid?

A.—One heart, with two hearts as a very close second choice. A three no trump bid is tempting. The top limit of a three no trump bid is 18 points. On this hand, however, we have an extra ten spot and the added factor that the queen of clubs, in view of partner's bid, is apt to be worth more than the two points normally assigned to it.

Q. 4—As dealer you hold:

4764 VAQJ 4AQJ 4AK5

What is your opening bid?

A.—This is the exceptional case in which the opening bid of two no trump is recommended with one suit not safely stopped. The second choice would be a bid of one club, but you might find it extremely difficult to paint a complete picture of the hand on subsequent rounds if you choose that opening bid. The two no trump call has the merit of fully describing your high cards and type of distribution in one stroke.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

4AJ752 VKJ4 483 4AKQ

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

3 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five spades. If partner can protest against the loss of two diamond tricks you wish him to contract for slam and he should place that construction on your five spade bid. The Blackwood bid would not be at all helpful to you for the slam might be there even if partner has only one ace. If he has, for example, a singleton diamond.

Q. 6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

4J64 VKJ1072 4Q103 4AJ5

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 4 1 4 Pass Pass

1 4 3 4 Pass 4 4

4 4 5 4 ?

What do you bid now?

A.—It is quite apparent that both North and East have been guessing, each with enormous distributional hands. While it is likely that you can defeat five diamonds, it is very doubtful that such action will pay, and our recommended bid is five spades. Partner's bidding indicates a six-five holding. He has rebid spades at the level of four, showing a very fine five-card suit and he, therefore, presumably has six clubs. This leaves him with but two red losers.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

4Q104 VA1095 4432 4J102

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 4 Pass 1 4 Pass

2 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

3 4 Dbl. ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. It might be tempting at this point to show the mild fit in spades, the suit in which partner has jumped, but such action is not recommended for this would be in the nature of a free bid and your response was made on minimum values. You have already kept the bidding open and shown a preference for partner's first suit. This is all the action which you are entitled to take with this minimum holding.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

4AJ104 VA10 6 4A 4Q10964

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 4 Pass 1 4 Pass

1 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

3 4 Pass 3 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's jump in clubs has indicated that he holds the value where you most need them. His jump bid was forcing to game and was based on the possibility that you might have a minimum. The showing of a new suit at the level of one did not promise additional values. Inasmuch as you have considerably more than a minimum with splendid distribution and three controls, you should take your chances on a slam contract by a direct bid of six clubs.

Ice Show And A Pair Of TV Specials Brighten Weekend

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is something special about an ice show even though it has developed into a form as rigid as a steel beam.

There are the soloists, the boy-and-girl skating duet, the clowns and other acts that consistently show up.

No one has objected to this, and ice shows on television invariably pull big ratings. But NBC's Sunday night special, "Here's Peggy Fleming" which starred the pretty young Olympic gold medalist, refreshingly broke the mold.

It seemed, in fact, that the producers were determined to avoid all ice show cliches. The result was a most imaginative and stimulating hour of television.

There was an interesting version of "How to Handle a Woman," sung by actor Richard Harris against the background of a set of the film "Camelot." Miss Fleming skated around King Arthur's Court. Another off-beat number had her moving serenely around a rink while a wild hockey game was in progress around her.

One of the most effective numbers was an old-fashioned duet with Robert Paul, another Olympic champion. And there was a cute and simpler number with dancer Gene Kelly.

Spanky and Our Gang, an excellent young singing group, and Richard Harris, with an interesting but grim antiwar song, performed away from the ice.

Miss Fleming, now on a professional career, should be as successful as Sonja Henie in her day. It was a program that should have been seen in color to be fully savored.

NBC also presented a pair of special Saturday night.

The first, "The Mouse on the Mayflower," was a cartoon fantasy with some pleasant musical interludes and some outrageous fiddling around with history that was primarily intended to amuse the younger viewers.

The whimsy involved a Pilgrim church mouse named Wilum, who discovered the Pilgrims' ship was in danger of sinking and saved the day, and who found a red mouse in America and thus was able to introduce the Pilgrims to the red men.

While the hour sometimes seemed precious and self-consciously cute, it was mostly for the children.

A singing family named Cow-sill—six kids and their mother—were the stars of the second special. The show was crowded into 30 minutes, and that isn't long enough to get into and out of a variety show. The program, apparently designed as a pilot program for a series, tried to project a warm family image, some mild comedy, do a lot of singing and leave time for a guest star, Buddy Ebsen.

The family seemed at ease and was most effective when loing musical numbers. They got into difficulty when they were engaged in stilted and obviously memorized dialogue. Ebsen did a soft-shoe routine with the youngest Cow-sill, Susan, 9.

One of the season's really big ones comes along tonight—Frank Sinatra's special on CBS—9-10 EST—with Diannah Carroll and the singing Fifth Dimension.

A practical gift,
That's practically perfect

To some, a practical gift is as welcome as a rainy weekend.
To others, it's just the right answer.

Here's a practical gift, that's practically perfect:
an A&P Gift Certificate.

A handsome certificate with a mailing envelope, available in all A&P stores all year long.

Offered in $5 and $10 denominations, these gift certificates will be honored in any A&P store in the United States.

When you think about it, practically anyone who buys food would welcome it.

And here's the best part—no one can ever get too many of them.

Airlines Afraid Hijacking May See Fatalities

By LAWRENCE MALKIN
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — "What we are afraid of," said an airline official in London, "is that some day some silly so-and-so will poke a gun into the back of the neck of a pilot and order him into an airport that he doesn't know, or that isn't equipped to handle his plane. He'll be forced to risk a landing, plunk down his plane and crash."

He was talking about the score of hijackings or attempted hijackings that have taken place this year.

So far there have been no proven fatalities on Western commercial airlines as a result of hijackings. All planes seized on scheduled flights have been returned. But pilots, airline officials, lawyers, insurance specialists, governments and others concerned with civil aviation are searching for a solution to the growing problem.

The consensus among them is that the only defense devised so far is a piece of paper—an international convention pledging nations to return hijacked planes and the people aboard, and to assist where possible in prosecuting the hijacker.

Progress is slow. The convention was drafted five years ago at an international meeting in Tokyo. Prompted by this summer's hijacking of an Israeli plane, the September meeting of the International Civil Aviation Organization urged its member nations to ratify the convention and bring it into force. The United States promised to do so by the end of the year. Cuba, the frequent destination of hijackers, supported the plan.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations, based in London, wants an even stronger agreement to permit prosecution under something like the maritime piracy laws. This seems unlikely and might not do much good. The U.S. Congress applied the piracy laws to aircraft hijacks in 1961, but aerial pirates usually flee to politically friendly states and are not extradited.

Although hijacking has overtones of piracy, it is something new. The crime itself has no precise international definition. It usually lacks the element of outright robbery that characterized pirates seeking plunder. Most hijackers simply want to get from one point to another. They cannot sell a stolen commercial airliner.

This point was brought home to the Arabs who hijacked the Israeli plane in July and ordered the crew to fly it to Algeria.

Underwriters at Lloyds, where much of the world's airline insurance is written, passed the word to Algeria that the Israelis would get a new plane for their insurance money anyway. If anyone had tried to use the 707 internationally it might have been seized by court order at its first port of call. Eventually the Israelis got it back.

The problems of punishing hijackers are clouded by the legal concept of territoriality—which means that states punish crimes taking place on their own territory. Hijacking often takes place over international waters. The hijacker soon leaves the flying piece of territory on which he commits his crime.

Under extradition laws, his crime—often defined as endangering the safety of a flight or only a simple assault—may not be regarded as serious enough to warrant his return home. Cuban officials have refused to discuss what happened to the hijackers who flew there.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford said he is convinced Hanoi wants peace and believes "we can convince Saigon that it would be better for all if the war ended."

Clifford said Sunday he is optimistic the South Vietnamese will join the Paris peace talks.

possibly selecting Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky to head their delegation.

"I would suspect they could take up the lead on some matters," Clifford said. "There are other matters in which we might take the lead."

He cited discussion of withdrawing both U.S. and North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam as a subject in which U.S. negotiators likely would take the lead.

Clifford said he believes Hanoi wants peace because its efforts for military victory—by guerrilla tactics until last January and open attacks on cities since then—have not succeeded.

He also said he believes President-elect Richard M. Nixon will want to maintain some consistency of U.S. negotiators at Paris but there may be a gradual "slipping in of the new and a slipping out of the old" U.S. representatives.

Clifford was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal research project is being set up to check the preliminary finding that a substance widely used in artificial sweeteners could lead to birth defects.

Dr. John J. Schrogie, acting director of the Food and Drug Administration's research division, said results should be in about three months after the tests on humans are begun.

He said the preliminary evidence that the substance—cyclohexylamine—might break up chromosomes and lead to birth defects has been found so far only in laboratory and animal studies not involving humans.

"We are not alarmed about it—we are concerned," Schrogie said. "We are in contact with most of the investigators and are doing work on our own."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., says U.S. troops should be used if necessary to save Israel from Arab conquest. "If Israel is attacked and in jeopardy," he said, "we should support them."

Goodell was interviewed on the Metromedia television program "Opinion: Washington." Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., says the "hardest battlefield" for his proposed constitutional amendment for direct popular election of the president would be ratification by three-fourths of the state legislatures. But he said that is not an insurmountable obstacle.

Bayh appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press."

The Worry Clinic Good Psychology Is A 'Must' For Success

Wallace Johnson is not only a great financial wizard but is a consummate Applied Psychologist. For he outlines the very rules of church psychology which magicians and hypnotists have long been using. Note how the deaf engage in prayer at the Chicago Temple, where I teach a Bible Class!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE H-542: Wallace E. Johnson received the Horatio Alger award last Spring.

For he is a phenomenal example of a poor boy who rose to fame and fortune in this modern age of confiscatory taxes and governmental regimentation. He heads the Holiday Inn!

Anybody who can thus reach the top in business, industry or the professions in this decade, actually merits more praise than the leaders of 50 years ago.

"Dr. Crane," Mr. Johnson began, "I am an active Baptist and have been reared in the church."

"I owe my success largely to my Christian parents and my Christian conversion as a lad. But I have some very definite ideas that I think would benefit the churches of the future."

"For example, when the Clergyman asks the congregation to open their Bibles and read along with him, this very fact breaks the previous polarization of their gaze on the speaker."

"So I feel we should install a large screen in front of the church, on which the Bible verses can then be projected so everybody can focus on the very same spot."

"Along with this idea, I also feel it would be an aid if we were not asked to open our individual song books, but could all focus on the stanzas of the hymn, as projected on that same large screen down front."

"For isn't it a rule of public platform psychology, that the speaker should dominate the eyes of his audience at all times?"

Platform Psychology
Wallace Johnson is certainly correct about the value of keeping the attention of the audience polarized and focussed on the speaker.

That is one of the reasons why it is a psychological hazard even to ask the audience to bow their heads in prayer.

Immediately, the clergyman loses the attention of many in the sanctuary. Here at the Chicago Temple where I have taught the Dixon Bible Class the past 35 years, we also hold a service at 3 p.m. for the deaf folks in Chicago-land.

Since they cannot hear, they keep their eyes open and their heads erect during prayer, for they must keep their gaze glued to the leader, to understand what he is saying in sign language!

And this very fact maintains the polarity of such an audience. Being an effective orator or song leader, is somewhat like the function of a magician or hypnotist.

And in the latter cases, we try to maintain 100 per cent dominance of attention. Magicians thus find it more difficult to trick children, for their attention wanders and thus they don't keep their focus on the point the magician is stressing.

Adults are more habituated to following suggestions, so we older folks are easily deceived, but many a child's wandering gaze is fastened on the wrong spot, as he detects the magician's secret.

And in hypnosis, we never try to break in upon the prehypnotic trance by having the patient look at a song book, or bow his head or listen to another doctor!

Wallace Johnson is thus a consummate Applied Psychologist and I hope his idea about a central movie screen down front is quickly adopted.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamp-d, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Raises Question Of Again
Barring Powell From Seat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the select committee that originally investigated Adam Clayton Powell says the House should consider barring the Harlem congressman from the Wisconsin Republican Vernon W. Thomson also questioned in an interview whether the House would obey a Supreme Court order to seat Powell.

"If it should rule that Powell should have been seated, it would create a very serious constitutional impasse," Thomson said.

Thomson, who said he was surprised when the high court agreed earlier this month to hear Powell's appeal, added that Congress has the sole right to judge qualifications of its members.

Thomson said no move is under way to bar Powell, overwhelmingly re-elected Nov. 5, from the next Congress.

"But," he said, "it seems that a Congress which is talking about improving its image and its ethics would give serious consideration to seating a member who has been charged by a select committee of that body with conduct which is highly unethical if not something more serious."

The select committee recommended in 1967 that the House seat Powell but censure him and require payment of $40,000 he allegedly misused for personal expenses.

The House, however, overrode the committee recommendation and excluded Powell from his seat in the 90th congress and stripped him of all seniority.

Later that year Powell won a special election to fill the vacancy but never presented himself for seating.

The Supreme Court agreed Nov. 18 to hear Powell's suit which alleges that the House acted unconstitutionally when it excluded him.

After the Nov. 5 election Powell said he would take his seat in the new Congress even if the 22 years seniority, which had made him chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, were not restored.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was steady. Price of live poultry at the farms was 12 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street took a relaxed stance regarding the European currency crisis today. Stock market prices were higher and the bond markets were quiet.

Gains outnumbered losses by about 200 issues on the New York Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .56 at 967.62.

Some of the gold-mining stocks were strong again, as they usually are in a period of currency uncertainty.

Other nonferrous metals were a little higher. Steels continued a mild recovery from recent selling. Autos were mixed. Oils were mostly higher.

Analysts saw the other economic news factors as encouraging. Gains were reported for new factory orders and machine tool orders.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .4 at 360.2, with industrials up 1.0, rails off .4, and utilities up .4.

Lionel won a new wave of speculative attention as it gained a full point for a large percentage gain, pacing the list on activity, just ahead of Parke Davis, a fractional loser.

Also very active, "Automatic" Sprinkler and Borden rose about 2 each, Ling-Temco-Vought and Texas Gulf Sulphur a point or so. Teledyne ran up about 4 points, following news of its 2-for-1 split.

A loss of 1 1/4 by Du Pont dampened the blue chip averages.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Two Airliners Hijacked To Cuba By Gunmen

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Two plane-loads of travelers, forced to Cuba at gunpoint by separate teams of hijackers, returned to the United States with strikingly similar stories of the latest acts of air piracy.

A Pan American Airways jet, commandeered by three gunmen over the Atlantic Ocean after leaving New York for San Juan, P.R., landed in Havana Sunday minutes after the first hijack victims of the weekend were flown to freedom.

An Eastern airliner en route to Miami from Chicago was taken over Saturday night by a team of five men who forced their way into the cockpit at gunpoint, then stood their victims a round of drinks.

The 78 Eastern passengers were returned to the United States in a plane chartered by the U.S. State Department. Cuban authorities released the stolen jetliners and crews a few hours later.

The same charter plane was dispatched back to the Communist island and retrieved the Pan American passengers early today.

Both captains said they learned their crafts had been hijacked when gun-waving men entered the cockpits shouting identical orders—"Cuba! Cuba! Cuba!"

Pan American Capt. Alvin Walker said, "It didn't take us long to decide. I told him, 'Don't shoot. Sit down. We go to Cuba.'"

Eastern pilot Robert Silver said that when his abductor pointed a pistol and ordered the new destination, "I looked at him and smiled and said, 'That's no problem. We're on the way.'"

After initial tensions eased, passengers on both planes reported their kidnappings took on an almost festive atmosphere.

Eastern stewardess Nancy Corson said one of the hijackers gave her $20 and insisted that she serve the passengers a round of drinks.

When served, passenger David Ruxton of Chicago said he was told the drink was on "the gentleman in the back with the gun."

Honeymooners Joseph and Ellen Hunoval of South Orange, N.J., said the apparent leader of the Pan American hijackers sat with them for awhile and described him as congenial.

Mrs. Hunoval, 24, told him that he was interrupting the first day of the couple's honeymoon "and he said he was very sympathetic" and "very sorry to inconvenience us."

The Pan American hijack team was accompanied by a woman and a baby. A woman, two children and a baby were part of the Eastern hijack party.

Both groups said their sole purpose in hijacking the planes was to return to their native Cuba.

Both trips were made without incident. Capt. Walker said no effort was made to avoid the flight to Cuba "because there were too many people with too many guns and knives who knew what we were doing."

Bethel Chief Warns Against Unlocked Cars

BETHEL — Chief of Police Walter Gray warns citizens of Bethel and visitors to the town to take precautions about leaving valuables in unlocked cars, even for a short time.

"We have had three purses stolen within the past few days from unlocked cars," Gray said. "In each instance, a lady had left her purse while planning to be away for her car for only a short time. In two of the cases, the theft occurred while the patron was parked at the post office."

Gray said "it is much wiser for people to take their purses with them, but if they do leave them in a car, it should definitely be locked, no matter how short the time a person plans to be away." He feels this simple precaution will prevent further thefts of this type.

Find Cracks In Wings Of Hardworking C130

WASHINGTON (AP) — The C130, workhorse aircraft of the Vietnam war, has developed serious wing cracks which will cost the Air Force more than $11 million to repair, Air Force officers report.

The problem has turned up in hundreds of C130s but apparently was detected before it led to any fatal crashes.

Willis Taylor, 72, died Saturday morning at Watts Hospital, Durham, after several years of illness.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at the St. Mark A.M.E. Zion Church, with his pastor, the Rev. L. A. Miller, officiating.

Survivors include: one son, Harold Taylor, Cambria Heights, N.Y.; five daughters, Mrs. Willie Mae Hawkins, Grimesland, Mrs. Gertha Eubanks, Nyack, N.Y., Miss Minnie Taylor, Cambridge, Mass., Mrs. Mabel Bethea and Mrs. Gladys Pitts, both of Newark, N.J.; one brother, Simmie Taylor, Norfolk, Va.; one sister, Miss Gertha Taylor, New York City; 20 grandchildren; 17 great grandchildren.

The family will be at the home, 310 West Enterprise Street. Burial services are in charge of funeral arrangements.

The C130 is used as a troop and supply carrier, weather observation craft, a pick-up plane for satellites, dropping special reconnaissance photos into the sea, a pilot rescue plane and a gunship.

To keep the busy craft flying, the Air Force has been putting special reinforcing plates on the wings.

But to "insure a long future life" many C130 models must have virtually an entire new wing, the Air Force said.

A new wing section will be installed in approximately 400 C130 models B through E series. Not affected is the C130A, the version which has been converted to the "Puff the Magic Dragon" gunship which can fire thousands of rounds per minute in support of ground troops.

The wing problem came to light a few days ago when the Air Force awarded Lockheed Aircraft Corp. a $7.7-million contract for "design, fabrication and installation" of a new C130 wing.

In response to questions the Air Force said cracks had been discovered in the C130 wing skin during regular inspection.

Besides the $7.7 million, the Air Force said $3.86 million had been spent on other corrective measures, indicating that each C130 fix-up is costing the Air Force around $29,000.

Lockheed has built some 2,000 to 3,000 C130s.

The Air Force apparently does not hold the company responsible.

Officers say the C130 is encountering more "fatigue-damage" than it was designed to cope with, because of the nature of the Vietnam war.

The C130, officers say, makes a lot of brief hops in South Vietnam which mean many landings and takeoffs, usually off short, rough airstrips.

This has accelerated the "metal fatigue," or weakening of the wings.

Officers say about 85 per cent of the C130s in Southeast Asia are affected.

The wing difficulty comes at a time when the Air Force has what its chief of staff, Gen. John P. McConnell, calls a "crying need" for more C130s in Vietnam.

A number—stamped secret by the Department of Defense—have been destroyed in Vietnam, many through guerrilla mortar attacks.

The Air Force told Congress last spring it urgently needed 28 C130 replacements but its budget request had been trimmed.

Last week the Air Force awarded Lockheed a $39 million contract to build 18 new C130s.

TO ALL STATE BANK STOCK HOLDERS:
The following letter was handed to me by the late
Dr. Karl B. Pace

Nov. 30, 1967

c/o Mr. Jack Marston or any president and officers of State Bank and Trust Co.

Greetings:

In this and all times we do not know what can take place, but I want it known to my wife and 3 children, Dr. Karl B. Pace, Jr., Dr. Charles T.
Pace and J. T. W. Pace

No. 1 The bank stock I own in State Bank & Trust Co.
has been owned by me for many years.

No. 2 We have struggled to bring this bank up to its good size and good standing with the community.

No. 3 It has shown to be a good thing to have an independent bank here.

No. 4 Therefore I do not want any of my heirs to sell the stock to anyone unless the president and all other officers vote to sell it.

Sincerely,
Karl B. Pace
