Helicopter Commandos Strike Beirut Airport

By DAVID ZENIAN BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Israeli Commandos striking from helicopters Saturday night attacked Beirut's big international airport in retaliation for an Arab attack on an Israeli airliner. They shot up Arab airliners, bombed airport installations and touched off huge fires.

There was no immediate report on casualties, but it was believed there were several killed and wounded.

The attack, reportedly staged by several Israeli helicopters, began at 9:15 p.m. (2:15 p.m. EST) when the first Israeli 'copter dropped a flare to illuminate the scene at the airfield, biggest in the Middle East and a hub for air traffic in the area.

An Israeli army spokesman in Jerusalem said an Israeli Commando unit struck at the airport and returned without suffering casualties. He estimated "eight to 12" Arab planes were destroyed on the ground. The helicopters bombed and machinegunned installations and headquarters of the Middle East Air Lines, dropped incendiary bombs that sent fuel dumped up in flames, and set fire to the airline headquarters. The flames blazed for hours but shortly after midnight Lebanese authorities reported the airport fires were being brought under control.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli communique made it clear the attack was staged in retaliation for an Arab Commando raid on an El Al Israeli jetliner in Athens Thursday. One Israeli passenger was killed in the Athens attack, two stewardesses injured and the Boeing 707 jet badly damaged.

The Israeli announcement said the men who staged the Athens attack came from Beirut "and are affiliated to the guerrilla branch based in Lebanon."

Beirut's modern multi-million dollar international airport is located on the Mediterranean coast line about five miles south of the center of Beirut, and only about 45 miles from the Israeli border.

It is the main connecting point for flights to the Middle East and Africa, Beirut Airport—unlike Amman and Damascus airports—had escaped damage in the last Arab-Israeli war in June, 1967.

The attack lasted about 45 minutes. Beirut television stations called on the people to stay at home, remain calm and wait for an official statement from the government on the attacks.

The Israeli raid followed several Israeli government and newspaper pronouncements accusing Lebanon of harboring and training the Arab Commandos who shot up the El Al airliner at Athens.

An earlier Aab attack on an Israeli airliner took place last July 23 when an El Al airliner on a Rome-Tel Aviv flight was hijacked in the air and flown to Algiers. The plane and its passengers were returned to Israel after weeks of negotiations.

Attack on Power Stations The raid was the second helicopter attack staged by Israeli Commandos in two months. Last Nov. 5 similar commandos attacked a hydroelectric power station in Egypt's Upper Nile region and badly damaged it in retaliation for an Egyptian artillery attack across the Suez Canal.

Last Dec. 1 Israeli Commandos destroyed a key road bridge and rail bridge 37 miles inside Jordan, announcing it was in retaliation for Arab guerrilla raids. On Dec. 5, Israeli jets bombed artillery positions manned by Iraqi soldiers in North Jordan.

News of today's attack was broadcast by Beirut radio as well as announced by Israeli army authorities in Jerusalem.

An Israeli army spokesman in Jerusalem said the attack was staged by an Israeli commando unit which selected Arab airliners as its principal targets in retaliation for machinegun and grenade attack on the El Al airliner at Athens.

The Jerusalem announcement said the Israeli unit returned to its base without suffering any casualties.

An official Israeli communique Saturday night said the Israeli Commandos hit a number of Arab airlines planes landing at Beirut's International Airport.

The sprawling airport, just south of Beirut, is the largest in the Middle East and is a major connecting point for flights from Europe, Asia and Africa. Middle East Airlines, financed chiefly by private Lebanese capital, is the largest airline in the Middle East.

In Beirut, airport officials said Israeli helicopters flew over the airport several times, shooting up installations with machineguns, then dropped incendiaries on fuel dumps and airport offices.

The attack started at 9:15 p.m. (2:15 p.m. EST) when an Israeli helicopter dropped a flare illuminating the entire airport.

The airport official said this was followed by a rain of bombs and machine gun fire which set fire to fuel dumps and to the headquarters of Middle East Airlines.

UPI reporter David Zenian at Beirut Airport said it appeared several helicopters were involved.

The attack lasted 45 minutes and fires were still blazing more than three hours later.

The Israeli copters also shot up fire engines trying to reach the airport to tackle the blaze. Lebanese President Charles Helou arrived at the airport shortly after the attack ended to look over the damage. An Israeli communique issued in Jerusalem said the Israeli raid followed with a purpose the Athens attack on the El Al jetliner.

"It will be recalled that the perpetrators of the Athens attack came from Beirut and are affiliated to the guerrilla branch based in Lebanon," the Israeli communique said.

"It is for the governments of the Arab countries which make such guerrilla operation from their territories possible to realize that they bear responsibility for the guerrilla attacks."

U. S. Protests Israeli Raid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Saturday strongly protested Israel's reprisal raid at the Beirut International Airport.

Parker T. Hart, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, summoned the first secretary of the Israeli embassy, Moshe Raviv, to the State Department to make the protest.

State Department officials said Hart protested "in strongest terms" against the Israeli attack.

The officials also disclosed that the State Department has dispatched instructions to Walworth Barbour, U.S. ambassador to Israel, to seek the earliest possible meeting with top government officials in the Israeli capital.

The State Department officials said the American envoy was told to call on either Prime Minister Levi Eshkol or Foreign Minister Abba Eban to seek more information on the attack as well as to express the U.S. protest.

Red China Admits Hydrogen Bomb Test

By CHARLES R. SMITH HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China announced Saturday it exploded a hydrogen bomb successfully for the second time in 18 months and vowed it would never sign the United Nations treaty to end the spread of nuclear weapons.

The hydrogen blast, which occurred early Friday in Sinkiang province bordering on the Soviet Union, put the Chinese thermonuclear warfare program back on the track after an apparent dud test one year ago.

Its timing was apparently intended in part as a birthday salute to Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, who turned 75 Thursday. Peking radio hailed it as a "victory" for Mao's thought.

The Peking radio announcement skipped scientific details of the test in favor of militant commentary on its political significance in Vietnam and to the overall nuclear arms race.

But Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) officials in Washington said the test was believed conducted in the atmosphere and had a force of about three megatons, equivalent to three million tons of TNT.

Their announcement, based on U.S. monitoring facilities, came almost 24 hours before the Radio Peking announcement, which said:

"The new success in bomb testing by China once again has struck at the policy of the American imperialists and their Soviet revisionists and their threat to the world.

"And it is a strong support for the courageous Vietnamese in fighting through to the end in their war against American oppression."

The Red Chinese took the occasion once again to denounce the U.N.-sponsored Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty as a Russo-American "trick" designed to maintain their supremacy. They said they would continue testing and producing hydrogen bombs "in order to break the monopoly" of the Western powers.

The treaty has already been adopted by many countries and is expected to come before the U.S. Senate early in 1969.

The Chinese test was expected by some observers, UPI's K. C. Thaler reported Dec. 16 in a dispatch from London that "there is reason to believe that Peking will shortly test another nuclear bomb, probably a thermonuclear one."

Peking announced it had burst its first hydrogen bomb on June 17, 1967, the sixth publicly announced test in a series that dated back to Red China's first successful atomic bomb test on Oct. 16, 1964.

While the June, 1967, test was the last announced or acknowledged by China to have taken place, AEC officials announced Dec. 24 of last year that a 20 kiloton explosion had been picked up by U.S. monitors.

They concluded that Peking's silence and the low yield of that test, equal to the force of the first atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, indicated the Chinese had tried and failed to trigger another hydrogen bomb. The latest test occurred at Lop Nor testing grounds, in Sinkiang province of western China. Its three megaton force made it about equal in strength to the first Chinese blast.

The United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb in the early 1950's. France was the last nation to enter the thermonuclear club with Pacific tests last summer and others include the Soviet Union and Great Britain.

Japan Blasts Red China Act

TOKYO (AP) — Japan today condemned Communist China for detonating another nuclear device. Weather stations throughout the country checked for fallout and five jet fighters flew to 30,000 feet over western Japan to collect fallout for analysis.

Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's government said the test "utterly ignored the sincere desire of peace of the Japanese people" and "ran counter to world public opinion at a time when prospects for easing world tensions and prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons are growing rapidly."

Mayor Setsuo Yamada of Hiroshima, where an estimated 200,000 persons were killed in World War II A-bomb blast, called his protest to Premier Chou En-Lai in Peking.

"I strictly protest against your series of nuclear experiments on behalf of the citizens of Hiroshima who have experienced the first atomic bomb in the world," Yamada said. "Nuclear weapons are not the ultimate weapons for guaranteeing the safety of nations."

The Democratic Socialist party, the Komeito party the neo-Buddhist group and Socialist parties all issued protest statements.

The Japanese Communist party refused comment pending an announcement of the test by Peking Radio.

Crew Heads Home After Six-Day Odyssey

By WEBSTER K. NOLAN

ABOARD THE USS YORKTOWN (UPI)—The three proud moon pilots who electrified the world for 147 hours headed home Saturday for reunions with their families and to report on a forbidding, alien world no one else has seen.

Apollo 8 astronauts Frank Borman, 40, James Lovell, 40, and William Anders, 35, were due back at Houston before dawn Sunday. A heroes' welcome by some of those who helped make their six-day odyssey possible awaited them.

The three moonfliers had with them a wealth of first-hand knowledge about the celestial sphere a quarter of a million miles away that has awed man since his beginning.

"It was a beautiful mission," reported Borman, the commander of the first spaceship ever to escape the bonds of earth. "It was perfect," said John C. Stonsifer, chief of the team that plucked the three lunar pioneers from the rolling seas of the equatorial Pacific Friday.

Their schedule called for them to leave this proud "fighting lady" of World War II Saturday afternoon, switch planes at Honolulu and arrive at Ellington Air Force Base near Houston about 5 a.m. EST Sunday.

The spacemen were expected to spend Sunday with their families and belatedly celebrate Christmas. A grinding series of technical reports begins Monday and is scheduled to run through Jan. 8. After that, the pilots will tell the nation and world about their adventures.

The astronauts were fatigued from their tension-filled mission, but doctors pronounced them in otherwise perfect shape.

Borman, Lovell and Anders spent their first night back on the "good earth" in a suite aboard the Yorktown usually reserved for the admiral of the fleet.

Rested and relaxed after a square meal and showers, the astronauts inspected their charred but still sound capsule that carried them back into earth's atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles per hour — the fastest man has ever traveled.

"That re-entry was really something," said Borman.

"Boy, my eyes opened wide on that one." Apollo 8's blazing return across the night skies of the astern Pacific produced a silvery trail of flame described by a jetliner pilot as "almost 100 miles in length."

The six-ton Apollo 8 command module will be unloaded at famed Ford Island near Pearl Harbor for shipment back to the North American Rockwell Corp. plant at Downey, Calif., for a close examination.

Apollo 8's bull's-eye splashdown gave the United States a bundle of records and put the nation on the threshold of landing men on the vast expanse of nothing that wed the three astronauts during their 10 swings around the moon Christmas eve.

But more important, the amazing Apollo 8 journey was a triumph for mankind. It lifted man from the cradle of earth and set his sights on the stars.

List As Usual, But Computer Will Figure Taxes In Pitt Next Year

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer Although listers will begin taking real and personal property tax listings from Pitt County residents and property owners January 2, as in the past, taxes this year will be figured by a computer.

Pitt Tax supervisor R. S. Moye said today that tax bills for the coming year will be figured by the county's IBM-360 computer, installed several months ago to handle payrolls and other bookkeeping chores for various county departments.

According to Moye, 18 listers (including three in Greenville and two in Farmville) will begin listing personal and real property taxes in the county's 15 townships.

According to North Carolina state law, all persons owning real or personal property in the county are required to list their possessions during the month of January. In addition, male persons 21 through 50 years old are required to list for poll tax.

Listing taxes after January 31 will result in a 10 per cent penalty being charged the late lister, Moye explained.

This year, according to Moye, persons are requested to bring with them their social security numbers and motor vehicle registration certificates.

He explained that with the addition of the social security number and motor vehicle serial numbers on the tax-listing forms, the Tax Department "will be able to render better service to the citizens."

Social security numbers to identify the tax lister, while motor vehicle registration numbers will facilitate the process of checking vehicle ownership with the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles in Raleigh.

Moye noted that although that his department will "dove tail" the tax records for computer processing "this year, his department is also "set up to do the computing manually" in the event of an emergency situation.

Processing tax records by computer, Moye said, will speed things up and offer "special advantages"

Computer processing of records will "give more time for checking tax listings," Moye explained. Tax department employees will have more time available for checking such items as cars, boats and inventories, which sometimes may not be listed correctly.

Moye said the use of data processing equipment to compute tax records "might enable persons to list by mail in the future." (An enabling act must be passed by the North Carolina General Assembly if mail listing is to become a reality.)

And according to County Auditor Reginal Gray, the services of the county's computer might be offered to the various municipal governments in the county for tax figuring and other work.

Gray explained that the computer, housed on the fourth floor of the Court House annex, is currently preparing payrolls for the county schools as well as the county payroll. Eventually, the computer will handle all the budgetary accounting for the county scheduled for July 1, 1969) and the county school system.

Plans now call for the computer to take over the Pitt Memorial Hospital payroll job January 1, as well as handle general accounting and patient billing for the hospital. Accounting for the Pitt ABC Board will also be programmed for the county computer, Gray explained.

According to Gray, the $30,012 per year computer cost ($2,501 per month) will prevent adding on more employees to handle work that can be done more efficiently and faster by the machine.

"It costs more to start with," Gray explained, "but it will prevent us from adding on people later."

The computer, Gray noted, "saves repetitious work... and gives better up-to-date information faster."

At present the county computer department employees four persons and had a budget for the current fiscal year of $54,000. Gene Windham, is data processing manager for the county operation, Gray said.

Planes Destroy 11 Bunkers

SAIGON (AP) — Striking near Tay Ninh city northwest of Saigon, U.S. Air Force pilots were credited with destroying or damaging 11 bunkers and eight "fighting positions" and starting a sustained fire in a raid Friday.

One of the pilots, Maj. Harold T. Godfrey, 36, of Leesburg, Ga., gave this account on the strike:

"Our FAC (forward air controller) said we were going to hit an enemy base camp, but he didn't know how big it was. From the air, all we could see were tall trees and dense foliage.

"He put in two smoke rockets and told us to hit between them. We dropped our bombs and strafed right where he wanted. When we left we could see a pretty good fire going. On going in to check for BDA (bomb damage assessment), the FAC really got excited, saying he hadn't realized how many bunkers there were. He really sounded pleased with our bombing and strafing."

Woman Slashes Wrists After Children Die

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A housewife, her wrists slashed, died Friday after five of her children were strangled as other members of their family slept, unaware of the tragedy spreading through their rural dwelling.

Coroner Clyde Chamberlain described the deaths "tentatively as murder-suicide" and said an investigation would continue. The bodies of the children, aged 2 to 9, were found in bedrooms of the two-story frame home near Deerfield. Nearly all were in pajamas. The mother, Mrs. Elwood W. Bodeman, 36, was found dead at the foot of the youngest child's bed.

Chamberlain said the woman's wrists were slashed, and that a straight-edged razor was in a scarf wound tightly around her neck. He said it was not immediately known whether she had strangled or had bled to death.

The children died of asphyxiation from strangulation, Chamberlain said.

The victims died before dawn Friday. Bodeman, a Madison factory worker, told authorities he had fixed breakfast and gone to work unaware of the deaths. Chamberlain said Bodeman related his wife had been under emotional strain in recent months. He said the man told him: "She was afraid the Mafia was going to get her."

Sheriff Franz Haas, a friend of the family, said Mrs. Bodeman was involved in a car accident six months ago "which really shook her up."

Carl Simonson, a neighbor, said the family moved recently from Madison to the Deerfield farm "to take care of Art."

The young victims were Lynn, 9, Sara Jo, 8, Gena, 7, Bradon, 5, and Trecla, 2.

EACH NEW YEAR BRINGS MORE HELP FOR THE SICK

During the past ten years the practice of pharmacy has greatly changed. Especially since it has been required that pharmacists must attend their College of Pharmacy for at least five years, before they can take their examination to become a registered pharmacist.

Pharmacy colleges now have seminars to teach the past graduates about the new drugs, which often are so potent that much care is required to dispense them safely. Pharmacists do less compounding and have the needed extra time to protect you. Our local and national associations bring us new information to keep up to date. We can answer any ethical question about drugs.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

N.C. Police Network?

RALEIGH (AP) — There's a good chance North Carolina will have a statewide police communications network in operation by October.

The director of the governor's Law and Order Committee, Charles Clement, said Friday his group has "been to every special interest group in the state and (we've) gotten wholehearted endorsement."

It will be up to the 1969 General Assembly to decide whether to make money available for the system.

It would be known as PIN (for Police Communications Network) and would cost an initial $1.4 million, Clement said.

He said operation of the network would require about $1 million a year.

PIN would link the offices of law enforcement agencies throughout the state to a computer in Raleigh. Instant information could be provided on stolen cars, missing and wanted persons, gun records, warrants for arrest and other matters.

The system also could be hooked up to the National Crime Information computer at FBI headquarters in Washington.

State Tax Forms Coming

RALEIGH (AP) — More than 88 tons of state income tax forms are being mailed to North Carolinians this year.

The forms, which the state Revenue Department started sending to the post office Friday in two tractor-trailer vehicles, are going to a record two million persons.

The tax bite will be slightly smaller this year than in the past, and well over half the persons will get a refund, said state Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton.

Clayton's department issued refunds to 1.2 million persons for the year 1967, with the average check running between $26 and $27.

The smaller tax bite will be a result of increased dependency exemptions and other relief measures enacted by the 1967 General Assembly.

In all, the tax savings should total $18 million.

The deduction for each dependent will be $600, double the amount permitted on the 1967 form. This will save taxpayers $13 million.

Another bonus will be given taxpayers who have a dependent in college. An extra $600 exemption will be allowed them, saving taxpayers $2.5 million.

For the elderly, there is a break too. An additional $1,000 exemption will be allowed any taxpayer who is 65 or older. The estimated savings will be $2.2 million.

Flue Epidemic In N.C.

RALEIGH (AP) — The current outbreak of flu in North Carolina was officially called an epidemic Friday.

Dr. J. N. McCormack, head of the state Board of Health's Communicable Disease Section, said:

"Any unusual incidence of a disease can be called an epidemic, and we certainly have that."

McCormack said he knew of no deaths in the state attributable to flu but that there had been some cases of pneumonia which developed from flu.

McCormack said he knew of no deaths in the state attributable to flu but that there had been some cases of pneumonia which developed from flu.

Narcotics Crackdown

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Swedish Social Democrat government of Premier Tage Erlander plans a crackdown on narcotics.

"The measures include harder penalties for severe narcotics crimes, wire-tapping and better facilities for police and customs to fight the drug trade," Erlander said at a news conference Friday.

The government also will invite all Swedish youth organizations to a conference in February to discuss drug abuse.

Erlander said he regretted granting police wire-tapping rights, but explained this would be limited to investigation of "severe narcotics crimes, wholesale drug sellers."

Use Of Queen Delayed

LONDON (AP) — Use of the new British prestige liner Queen Elizabeth 2 in regular passenger service may be delayed because of engine trouble that developed during acceptance trials, shipping officials reported today.

Sir Basil Smallpiece, chairman of the Cunard Line, said he will fly to the new 55,000-ton liner in the Canary Islands with Anthony Harper, chairman of the Scots consortium that built her.

Smallpiece said turbine trouble developed Christmas Eve and the ship was slowed to one knot so the engines could be inspected. More trouble developed Thursday and speed again was reduced.

Cushing Will Not Retire

BOSTON (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, 73, who said in October he would retire at the end of this year, announced Friday night he will not retire until he is 75 years old.

He said on Oct. 25 that he was advancing his retirement date because of criticism he said he received on his views on the marriage of Jacqueline Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.

His latest word came after a caller asked O. Weel's "Nightline" talk program why nothing more had been heard of the October announcement.

Cardinal Cushing called a few minutes later and announced James Westover asked if he had any official word on his proposed retirement.

"Nothing doing," Cushing replied, "I have to wait until I'm 75."

He explained that a bishop cannot retire without permission of the Pope.

"I propose to retire Aug. 24, 1970, when I'll be 75 years old," he added. "But even then I cannot retire unless the Holy Father approves."

McCormack Gets Support

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. John McCormack, D-Mass., is assured of the support of at least two North Carolina congressmen in his battle for another term as speaker of the House of Representatives.

Rep. Nick Galifianakis of the 4th District and Rep. L. H. Fountain of the 2nd District voiced support of McCormack Friday.

The 77-year-old veteran is being challenged for the speaker post by Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.

Galifianakis said he believes most of the North Carolina delegation will back McCormack.

Hope Ends Holiday Tour

KHORAT AIR BASE, Thailand (AP) — Bob Hope ended his Christmas visit to Southeast Asia today with two shows in Thailand and the remark, "I hope we don't have to come back again under conditions of war."

Hope, who has brought his entertainment troupe to South Vietnam and Thailand for the past five Christmas holidays, had 8,500 GI's and Thai civilians laughing and clapping at his quips in the noon show at Khorat, but he was serious at a news conference later.

"When you walk through these hospitals and see the casualties—the different burn wounds—the end of this war would really brighten the world up," Hope said.

Bucher Signed Confession After Threats Of Death

By DARRELL GARWOOD WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher has told the Navy he signed a false confession only after his North Korean captors threatened to kill his crewmen one day in his presence until he complied, U.S. officials said Saturday.

The officials, with access to Navy intelligence reports to Washington on the results of long sessions of questioning the Pueblo skipper said the death threats came immediately after the Pueblo was seized last Jan. 23.

Within hours of the seizure of the intelligence-gathering ship, the North Koreans began broadcasting Bucher's "confession" that the Pueblo had repeatedly violated North Korea's claimed territorial waters.

At the time, the Defense Department studied the test of the confession and said it obviously "was not written or prepared by any American."

The Pentagon's reports on the treatment accorded Bucher have been turned over to the State Department in compliance with President Johnson's order for an "urgent investigation" of the treatment accorded the 82 surviving crewmen during 11 months' captivity.

Telling The World The State Department presumably planned to give the results of the investigation worldwide publicity, possibly by circulating a final report at the United Nations.

In his first full public statement on his treatment in captivity, Bucher said at Midway Island, while enroute to San Diego, that the North Koreans threatened to kill him. "But I wasn't particularly concerned about that," the 41-year-old commander said. "I held up pretty well during their ordeals, but then they threatened to commence shooting the most junior members of the crew in my presence."

"The threat of a beating was always there," he said. "Everytime they decided to beat someone up it was not from an emotional point of view. It was always done from a studied attempt to create terror among my men and myself."

Bucher's account of his treatment and the reason he signed the confession raised new questions about the adequacy of the 1955 Military Code of conduct, which without exception forbids prisoners of war to sign confessions — "True or false"—but does not take into account all the circumstances under which a prisoner might decide to sign a confession.

One crewman was killed by Communist gunfire while destroying secret documents when the ship was boarded and seized. Original reports at the time said three were wounded in the seizure. But the Navy said on Friday that 10 men, including Bucher, will receive the Purple Heart for wounds received during the seizure.

Refused To Sign The Minneapolis Tribune, in a copyrighted story by Washington Correspondent Charles W. Bailey, said Saturday that Bucher refused to sign "until they shoot him instead, the North Koreans refused," Bailey reported. "On one occasion, however, they held a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger—but there was no bullet in it."

"These debriefings, while still far from complete, have already provided enough detail to convince officials here that Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher and his men behaved with great courage under heavy mental and physical pressure," Bailey wrote.

Sympathy Pours In After Abduction Death

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Words of sympathy from across the nation poured into the Merlin Powers home in suburban Urbandale Saturday in the wake of the abduction and death of the couple's 10-year-old daughter Pamela.

"We don't realize how many good people there are in this earth until something like this happens," said Bob Powers of Des Moines, Pamela's uncle. He also had some harsh words for the manner in which police handled the search for the missing girl.

"We felt from the start there was just no excuse for the way things were handled," Powers said. "Everything we heard was second hand." He was particularly critical of the delay in getting out the statewide broadcast for the arrest of the man accused of the abduction.

Pamela's frozen body was found Thursday night in a snow-crusted roadside ditch about 15 miles east of Des Moines near Mitchellville. She had been kidnapped two days earlier on Christmas Eve from the Des Moines YMCA.

A self-styled Negro minister, Robert Anthony Williams, is being held under tight security on a charge of murder at the Polk County Jail.

Bob Powers said he had handled most of the sympathy calls for the family. He said the calls came from as far away as California, Georgia and New York, as well as from "all over Iowa."

Powers joined Pamela's father in criticizing police handling of the abduction and said there was "no excuse at all" for the long delay in the statewide broadcast for Williams' arrest Christmas Eve.

Law officers have blamed the lag on confusion about the exact charge in the warrant for Williams, plus the inexperience of two state police radio operators who were on duty at the time. Authorities said it took some eight hours from the time of the abduction for the statewide alert to be broadcast.

"A grade school kid could have sat there and gotten this information out and had the whole area covered," Powers said.

Pamela's funeral is scheduled for Monday afternoon at St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Urbandale.

Three Boys Hurt In Wrecks Here

A six-year old preadolescent and two other small boys were injured in a series of two accidents, both occurring on Hudson Street, here Saturday.

Six-year old Kenneth R. Langley of 60 Hudson Street was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received when he was struck by an automobile at the intersection of Fifth and Hudson Streets.

Investigating officers said the Langley child was hit after he ran from behind a parked car into the path of a moving vehicle driven by Jeffrey Jerome Lock, 19, 104 Ashley Road.

Officers placed no charges in the mishap.

Injured were Jeffrey Tyson of 1408 Ward Street and Virgil Latham of 411 Hudson Street.

Police said the two boys, both riding a bicycle, were injured when they failed to stop for a stop sign and were hit by a car driven by A. Lander Barnhill, 36, Rt. 1, Stokes.

No charges were made following investigation of the accident.

Marine Force Abandons Camp Carroll Near DMZ

By ALVIN B. WEBB Jr. South Vietnam.

SAIGON (UPI) — A 2,000-man U.S. Marine garrison Saturday abandoned the major U.S. base at Camp Carroll just below the Demilitarized Zone to operate as "mobile forces."

It was the second key base near the DMZ to be evacuated by U.S. Marines in six months.

The mass withdrawal from Camp Carroll, a hillside fortress about 10 miles south of the DMZ, came a half-year after the Marines pulled out of the long harassed Khe Sanh base about 15 miles to the southwest.

It left Con Thien and a craggy base called "The Rockpile" as the sole remaining U.S. bastions along the northern frontier of South Vietnam.

At the same time a Communist "Libertion Radio" broadcast heard in Saigon Saturday night carried a Viet Cong proposal for a second riverbank meeting between U.S. and Communist delegates—this time on New Year's day—to discuss release of three U.S. GIs held captive by the Viet Cong.

Christmas Talks Fall The Viet Cong broadcast said the session would be a continuation of Christmas day meeting between the two sides. The Christmas negotiations collapsed, U.S. spokesmen said, when the Viet Cong delegation leader said he "did not have the authority" to set a time or place for release of the three 21-year-old GIs.

The Viet Cong set the New Year's day meeting for 9 a.m. Saigon time (8 p.m. EST Tuesday) at "the same old place" on the south bank of Vam Co Dong River about 50 miles northwest of the capital.

The Communists' terms were the same as the first time—that no more than five U.S. representatives attend, that they all be unarmed and that U.S. and South Vietnamese forces cease all military activity in the area.

U.S. military authorities had no immediate comment. However, a U.S. spokesman Friday had said, "We are open for anything. We would be willing to go any place, any time, anywhere to discuss anything."

U.S. military spokesmen said the abandoning of Camp Carroll after 26 months "was a decision based on taking maximum advantage of our superior firepower and mobility."

Time Changes Strategy Maj. Gen. Raymond E. Davis, commander of the U. S. 3rd Marine Division, put it more simply: "Time has overtaken the hill."

The withdrawals from Khe Sanh and Camp Carroll were part of a Marine push toward more mobility and fewer "static" positions below the Demilitarized Zone that serves as South Vietnam's roof and separates it from North Vietnam over a six-mile wide buffer strip.

The war itself continued Saturday with mostly "light contacts" throughout the country, U.S. spokesmen said, although South Vietnamese rangers dealt Communist troops a severe setback in a running two-day battle in thick jungles 15 miles southwest of Da Nang.

UPI correspondent David Lamb reported the rangers killed at least 18 Communist soldiers, 74 of them in a five-hour battle Thursday and another 144 Friday.

South Vietnamese casualties were described as "light" in the battle, although it was the heaviest since the Christmas holiday cease-fire ended.

A second battle between Communist and Saigon government troops broke out about 30 miles to the south near Tam Ky when a Communist force of about 200 men surrounded a South Vietnamese popular for-

Spy Ships Have Stayed Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — No American intelligence ships have sailed in the international waters off North Korea since the capture of the Pueblo nearly a year ago, although the United States continues to operate similar vessels at various sensitive points around the globe.

Neither the Defense Department nor the Navy will discuss official operations of these vessels.

However, it is known that the United States operates about a dozen vessels whose chief purpose is intercepting radio communications, gathering data on electronic installations and similar activities.

In addition, many U. S. Navy ships are equipped to do this sort of intelligence-gathering work, although that is not their main purpose.

Authorities of the outgoing Johnson administration and the incoming Nixon administration have made it clear they feel these activities are essential to the security of the United States and will continue.

The Pueblo's mission when it was captured last Jan. 23 was to gather information on radar installations along North Korea's eastern coast and keep tabs on Soviet naval movements in the Tsushima Straits area.

Because of the secret nature of the Pueblo's mission, she was not provided with sea or naval escort when the North Koreans captured her.

North Central Airlines Plane Crashes At Chicago's O'Hare

By ROBERT BRINK Associated Press Writer CHICAGO (AP) — A North Central Airlines twin-engine plane attempting to land at mist-covered O'Hare International Airport Friday night slammed into a hangar and burst into flames.

North Central officials said 27 persons were killed and Cook County Chicago authorities said 27 bodies were counted in the wreckage, which burned for more than an hour.

Eight boys, members of a drum and bugle team which had just ended a practice session in the empty hangar, were among the 27 persons admitted to hospitals.

The crackup occurred when the plane apparently missed a runway in the fog and drizzle which shrouded O'Hare, the world's busiest airport.

The plane, Flight 458 which originated in Minneapolis, may have had an extra passenger. A North Central spokesman said that an off-duty pilot may have been riding in a jump seat behind the pilot. This would make a total of 46 aboard the plane.

Spokesmen for two hospitals near O'Hare said many of the injured persons suffered smoke inhalation.

The pilot, Capt. Marvin A. Payne of Lakeland, Minn.; the first officer, Gerald R. Levalley of Bloomington, Minn., and the flight officer, Richard W. M. Kargel of Burnsville, Minn., were killed.

The stewardess, Jean A. Krochek of Minneapolis, was injured.

The fatalities were the first in North Central's 20-year history. The airline operates in 11 Midwestern states and had flown 3.1 billion passenger miles without a fatality.

practicing in the hangar, which is shared by Braniff and North Central, crashed through the front doors and virtually disintegrated and exploded in flames.

Officials said they could not determine why the plane hit the hangar which is about a half-mile east of runway. Federal Aviation Administration controllers said weather conditions were above the minimum for a landing on the intended runway. Visibility was about one mile.

One of the passengers, William De Grout, 21, of Sioux Falls, S. D., said, "The plane started to rock violent as we approached the airport. No one knew what was going on. The plane jolted . . . I was thrown from my seat. It was hot and it kept getting hotter. People were screaming and calling for help . . . There was a rush of cold air and someone at the door helped us out. Someone put me in an ambulance and brought me to the hospital."

Jefferie Chiu, 18, a member of the Vanguards, said, "There were eight members of the corps and a few airline employees in the hangar. We heard an explosion . . . The plane had already fallen. I looked around to see where my boys were and they ran toward me. They were on fire. We all saw the fire and the walls collapsed toward us."

"I was not hurt," Chiu said, "since I was about 30 feet away from the others. I'm the only one that didn't get burned."

LOOKING FOR SURVIVORS . . . A Chicago fireman pulls a cover over a body in a Braniff Airlines hangar, as the wreckage of a North Carolina airliner smolders in the background Friday night at O'Hare International Airport. Saturday Weather A Summer Like 71°

A weather front moving across Eastern North Carolina brought unseasonably warm temperatures to Greenville and Pitt County Saturday.

The high temperature recorded yesterday was a warm 71 degrees at 4 p.m. The temperature stood at 62 degrees at 9 p.m. last night.

Lowest temperature for the day was a mild 54 degrees at midnight Friday.

Snapping and forceful winds moved into the area from the southeast late yesterday bringing gusts of 35 to 50 miles per hour, according to the Greenville Utilities Weather Station.

With the weather front Saturday 45 of an inch of rainfall for the Greenville area before skys cleared.

The river level stood at 3.6 feet at 9 p.m. yesterday.

Words Fail To Do Justice To Feat

The millions of words already written about the highly successful moon flight of Apollo 8 and the millions yet to come hardly do justice to the first manned flight into the depths of space.

While the flight has been taken in stride by the public, it nonetheless staggers the imagination even now. The seeming ease with which the infinitely complicated task was accomplished makes it appear almost routine. Yet it represents a new step by man into space; by far the most dangerous and most demanding both for the men who took the journey and for the thousands of others whose years of work made it possible.

There can be no doubt now that the United States has taken undisputed first place in the space race. It would appear that the United States certainly can be the first nation to put a man on the moon if it chooses to do so.

Perhaps the most staggering aspect of the whole imaginative exploration is the precision with which each phase of the flight was executed. From lift-off atop the ball of flame to landing less than three miles from the recovery ship after venturing more than a quarter million miles away from earth into space, the entire flight appeared almost flawless to the laymen. Almost equally awe-inspiring was the ease of communication with the astronauts across the vast nothingness between here and the civinity of the moon.

The historical adventure must rank with man's great explorations. Indeed, it eclipsed most of the great explorations of the past into the unknown. The three astronauts of Apollo 8 have blazed a new trail across the heavens which others will follow, not just to the surface of the moon, but beyond it as well. They have proved man's ability to probe deeply into space. They have proved man's capability for constructing the vehicles and equipment which can sustain life in the hostile environment of outer space. Equally important, they have proved man's ability to venture far into space and return safely.

For it all, there is hardly an American who did not breathe a sigh of relief when word flashed from the Pacific that the crew of Apollo 8 was back safely on earth.

Constitutional Changes Viewed

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES RALEIGH Of all the recommendations contained in the many recent state study reports few would have more profound effect upon political life and affairs in North Carolina than a package of proposed changes in the state constitution.

This is apparent from a close study of the final report of the State Constitution Study Commission delivered formally to Gov. Dan K. Moore this week. Its main points were made known earlier.

none are of "sufficient magnitude" to justify treatment separately.

Each of the other nine are — the commission says — of such importance that it feels the voters should have a chance to act upon it independently.

"Accordingly, each of these nine amendments has been adopted or rejected by the voters on its own merits," the commission said.

The study group describes the whole package as "interrelated but mutually independent."

Explaining Approach

It was apparent early in the study that the drafting of a host of separate amendments would not be a realistic approach. It was "compelled" to the same conclusion of study commissions of 1931-33 and 1957-59 that the constitution had to be revised as a whole. At the same time, it was unwilling to incorporate all of the recommendations into a single revised constitutional text which the legislature and the voters would have to approve or disapprove as a unit.

It said it recognized that some of the recommendations will be highly controversial as well as some on which virtually all "well informed" citizens will agree.

The proposed amendments are set up so as to be considered by the forthcoming 1969 General Assembly and if approved submitted to the people in time to become effective in 1971.

"First Step"

The commission feels it has taken a "first step" toward providing a state constitution "that deals in a realistic, direct and understandable way with current and foreseeable problems."

This, it believes, is taken in the first of the proposed amendments — "An essential beginning... for it is in this document that the editorial pruning, rearranging, rephrasing and modest amendments occur."

At the same time it argues that to gain the objective fully would require approval of the other separate amendments as well.

The commission does not say so — nor do many of its members believe — that picking and choosing among the 10 proposals, article, would result in a hodgepodge. It does say it feels the first one, a streamlining, is a necessary basis for other needed changes.

WILLIAM A. SHIRES

The package contains 10 separate items — proposed constitutional amendments — including giving veto power to the governor and allowing governors and lieutenant governors to serve two consecutive four-year terms at the will of the people.

One Stands Out These captured most of the immediate attention and headlines. But one other of the proposals — a so-called "general editorial revision" — of the century-old constitution stands out.

In the words of the study commission itself "we believe that the work of this Commission will have been justified if this proposal alone is approved.

In effect, it is a streamlining of the constitution by deleting obsolete and unconstitutional provisions, by re-writing, simplifying and clarifying its language.

In addition there is reorganizing of content in some instances. Most especially, however, the commission said this will make several changes in the structure of the executive branch of state government and in allocation of powers "to enable our state and local governments to meet effectively the needs of the people for efficient and responsive governmental service and protection."

Substantive Changes

The commission agrees that some of the changes lumped into one proposed amendment are substantive but that

Only Outside Chance Udall Will Succeed

There is always the outside chance that a sudden move to upset the traditional seniority system of Congress will succeed, but in reality there is never more than the outside chance.

Thus Rep. Morris Udall's attempt to unseat House Speaker John W. McCormack must be regarded as a long-shot that may have greater bearing on House leadership in the years ahead than during the session of Congress which begins within a few days.

The seniority system in Congress has been under fire many times. There have been a few rare occasions when the system has been disregarded, but these have been rare indeed. In the case of the speakership, McCormack's occupancy of the position since 1961 has brought about growing satisfaction among the liberal-moderate Democrats in the House. Primarily, the opposition to the speaker stems from the fact he is 77. Most other arguments against the speaker are secondary to this factor.

The move to oust McCormack must be recognized as a move not just against the man who is now Speaker, but a move against the whole seniority system of the House. Whatever the outcome in the Democratic caucus next week, it could also result in deep splits in the Democratic ranks in Congress at a time that the Republicans once again occupy the White House.

Nixon's Civil Rights Stand

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The scores of Federal desegregation ultimatums dispatched to Southern school districts in recent weeks are almost certain to be withdrawn by the Nixon administration.

Thus will begin a severe slowdown in forced Southern school integration, a policy rather firmly decided upon to fulfill the President-elect's campaign commitment to the South. Although details are vague, it is likely Mr. Nixon will give the South just about what it wants: token integration resulting from a minority of Negroes volunteering for white schools under "freedom of choice" plans. That would end attempts at comprehensive race-mixing and obliteration of race lines in public schools.

Actually, this does not mean the millennium has arrived for Dixie. If the new President pulls back from desegregation, civil rights organizations will quickly turn to the Federal courts, which, ironically, probably will be more severe than the Johnson administration against dual black-and-white school systems in the South. Nevertheless, the policy now contemplated by Mr. Nixon would be the first serious backward step away from racial integration by any national Administration in a generation. Moreover, for the first time since the Supreme Court's original school desegregation decision of 1954, it could put Federal executive and Federal judiciary on opposite side in civil rights litigation.

The political sensitivity of this was pointed up during last week's transition briefings at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), which handles school desegregation. Although outgoing Secretary Wilbur Cohen and incoming Secretary Robert Finch discussed all other matters fully, both skirted the Southern school problem each time it came up. Finch, characteristically, has been noncommittal. But some of his advisors confide that neither they nor Finch himself relish the idea of putting Southern school integration in the deep freeze.

Most Nixon insiders, however, doubt that the political imperatives give him much leeway. By pledging not to seek "racial balance in the schools" through Federal action, candidate Nixon, in effect, repudiated the Johnson administration's policy. Mr. Nixon's appointment to the Cabinet and White House staff scarcely reflect his reliance on the South for both nomination and election. Thus, the President-elect's advisors rightly feel that no change in desegregation policy would be regarded as stark betrayal in the South.

Nor are there signs of betrayal. Mr. Nixon's Southern backers are serenely confident he will not disappoint them. Indeed, the able Harry Dent, South Carolina Republican state chairman and political lieutenant to Sen. Strom Thurmond, has been named a White House counsel and will help coordinate the Southern school problem.

That coordination is expected to suddenly stop the tightening noose of desegregation enforcement fashioned by the 1967 Supreme Court decision against freedom-of-choice plans. Federal funds are now cut off for 113 Southern school districts, similar action against another 115 districts is in the works, and another 245 school districts which have not submitted acceptable desegregation plans are endangered.

This has created a painful dilemma for Southern school boards which have received HEW ultimatums ordering them either to draft acceptable desegregation plans (blatantly unacceptable to Southern white voters who elect the school boards) or sacrifice their Federal funds.

The Nixon administration plans to end this dilemma. First, it will suspend present disciplinary action against

Sunday Morning Notes

The Daily Reflector's copublisher Jack Whichard found a letter on his desk when he returned from the Christmas holiday.

He casually opened it. It was his American Legion membership card. Then he took a second look. It was for the year 1957.

Jack looked at the envelope and found the postmark was for Dec. 22, 1956 and the letter carried a three cent stamp, which was enough to mail it in those days.

He inquired around and found out that his father D. J. Whichard, had found it on his desk during the holidays and he passed it on to Jack. Nobody knows for certain whether the letter had been stuck away some where in the offices all these years or whether it got lost in the post office and finally made its way to The Daily Reflector office.

At any rate, the mails do come through.

A note was found in the vicinity of Junior High school.

"Do you like or love me?" it asked. The instructions said to circle one. "Like" had a big circle around it.

That must come under the sorry-I-asked department.

In a busy local department store the paging system crackled to life at the height of a rush day.

"Santa Claus, dial Extension 37," the voice said.

To think of all those stamps I wasted writing Santa at the North Pole. If I had only known you could page him.

And there must be a Grinch or Scrooge loose somewhere in Greenville. We had a report that Santa was hung in effigy over the holidays. He must not have brought a winning ball season.

Before the present space team set out, including two Episcopalians, Borman and Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., the presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, sent them a message, saying in part:

"We are intensely proud of you... and pray that the mysterious and enriching powers of God will sustain and keep you. Your achievements already indicate that men can increase in wisdom and stature."

Just as it shows man can move toward ever fuller manhood, Bishop Hines said, "it is our expectation" that it will bring "a corresponding and heartening escalation in the reconciling relationships between men and God, and men and me."

That was part of the plea messaged by Borman, a lay reader at his home church of St. Christopher's in League City, Tex.

Other Editors Say Truest Of Americans

(Salisbury Evening Post)

Whites who resent the Negro as an alien group in America and blacks who are adopting African tribal dress in an attempt to cultivate a sense of cultural identity are both wrong, claims a noted Quaker theologian, philosopher, teacher and author.

"The truth," says D. Elton Trueblood, "is that the Negro is the most truly American of all the human strains which make up the United States."

Nearly all white Americans are conscious of some cultural continuity with European peoples, he explains. The same is true of those of Oriental heritage. Even the Indians, whose ancestors lived here for centuries before any black, white or yellow men came, are still more tribal than American.

The Negro, however, is for the most part purely American in mentality because not the least sin of the slave trader was the brutal breaking of all cultural ties to Africa of those he enslaved. For these most displaced of all persons, says Trueblood, it was America or nothing.

Though an effort is being made today to give Negro Americans an appreciation of their African background, there is no likelihood at all that this effort will succeed among the rank and file, he thinks.

"(They) simply do not care. America is what they know. It is here that, against the most incredible odds, cultural victories have been won."

America is both a place of failure and a place of victory, says Trueblood, and no people share in both sides of the paradox more fully than does the Negro.

The story is a tragic one—"but it has occurred and we must go on from where we are. We are making a better start if we are realistic enough to recognize that the Negro, far from being alien, is the closest approximation we have to a true American."

By ELMER ROESSNER American businessmen are wising up to alcoholism's high cost and to the fact that it can be reduced.

Experts differ as to how much alcoholics cost business each year. But they agree that it is plenty. The National Council on Alcoholism says $4.3 billion. A management magazine sets the figure at $7.5 billion.

Losses of that magnitude can make industry take notice. Fifteen years ago only four of the top 100 U.S. corporations had programs for treating alcoholics and for management and employee education. Today, 35 of the top 100 have such programs. And another 200 firms have instituted programs.

Two surveys are another indication of a change in views. A decade ago, 21 companies out of 50 queried reported they had no alcoholism problem worth worrying about. Three reported excess drinking by workers was serious enough to cause them concern. Recently resurveyed, only 16 companies denied while nine indicated concern.

Second Chance A more enlightened attitude also is indicated by the number of firms that would rehire a worker who has been fired because of drinking too much but who was now rehabilitated. In 1958, 32 companies said they would, or probably would, hire such an employee again while 18 would not take him back.

Now 42 of the group are inclined to take such a worker back. Only eight would turn him down.

A fourth indication of change by management is the fact that less than half of the firm questioned a decade ago believed rehabilitation paid off in dollars and cents.

Ten years later, 60 per cent saw such programs as more than paying for themselves.

But a considerable amount of negativism, or at least naivete, still exists. Most companies, for example, really believe that less than 1 per cent of their workers are problem drinkers. And this might be true in retail establishments where most of the workers are women.

One In Twenty However, generally accepted estimates put the total number of alcoholics in busness, industry and government at 3 million plus. With the work force approaching 60 million, this means 5 per cent are seriously affected. And in old-line heavy industries with a high ratio of male workers, 6 to 8 per cent may be alcoholics.

Either most companies are kidding themselves or their tippers are very good at covering up.

Theoretically, there might be firms of 20 workers or more which don't have a problem with alcoholism. But for everyone of these there is another company that has more than its share of the problem.

And if management of a company employing 100 or more workers thinks it isn't suffering because of heavy drinkers in the ranks then it is either terribly lucky or it has both an alcoholism problem and a management problem.

Space Age Faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Out ahead lies the unknown. It is strange, frightening, fascinating. It was that way for the crew of the Apollo 8 as they penetrated a new realm, and basically, it always has been that way.

"Give us, O God, the vision which can see Thy love in the world in spite of human failure." The prayer had come from these newest venturers as they broke through yet another uncharted frontier.

That note of religious awareness has been sounded repeatedly by the pioneers in the lengthening thrust of humanity into the unvisited zones of space, and it registers an old Biblical tradition, beginning with Abraham.

By faith, he heeded a divine call to go forth to a distant land "and he went out, not knowing where he was to go" for "he looked forward to the city" of God's ultimate truth which he had never seen.

There was an echo of that same faith, of hope beyond sight, beyond the anomalies and ambiguities, the "conviction of things not seen," in the petition radioed by Air Force Col. Frank Borman from the region of the moon.

"Give us the faith to trust the goodness in spite of our ignorance and weakness."

Although skeptics have cited the emptiness of space as evidence of the absence of a place-defined sort of "God," a different reaction has come regularly from American astronauts.

This was the case with the country's first man in orbit in 1962, Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., a Presbyterian active in church affairs, who told questioners after he came back from his trail-blazing trip:

"To try to limit God to one particular section or space or something like that is a very foolish thing to do... God is certainly bigger than that and I think he will be wherever we go."

Other astronauts—Lt. Col. Edward H. White II, a Methodist; Lt. Cmdr. Scott Carpenter, an Episcopalian; Maj. L. Gordon Cooper, a Methodist, and Maj. James McDivitt, a Catholic—have voiced similar views.

Before the present space team set out, including two Episcopalians, Borman and Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., the presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, sent them a message, saying in part:

"We are intensely proud of you... and pray that the mysterious and enriching powers of God will sustain and keep you. Your achievements already indicate that men can increase in wisdom and stature."

Just as it shows man can move toward ever fuller manhood, Bishop Hines said, "it is our expectation" that it will bring "a corresponding and heartening escalation in the reconciling relationships between men and God, and men and me."

That was part of the plea messaged by Borman, a lay reader at his home church of St. Christopher's in League City, Tex.

"Give us the knowledge that we may continue to pray with understanding hearts. And show us what each one of us can do to set forward the coming day of universal peace."

Observations From Editorial Columns

SOMEBODY WATCH THAT TIMEKEEPER

We've caught 'em at it again; they're making the years a lot shorter, and we can prove it. Just yesterday — or so it seems — we were chasing aphids out of the aspidistra and moodily currying the finest crop of crabgrass in the neighborhood. And then suddenly Thanksgiving was upon us, and the mailman is bowed under bales of Christmas catalogs. Understand that we cherish the holiday season, deck us all with boughs of holly if we don't. But is it necessary to hurry things along so? Couldn't we recuperate from another bout of turkey carving, before discovering that Christmas is almost upon us? Does the annual midwinter skirmish with bankruptcy have to be heralded so far in advance? Can't that darn-blamed timekeeper slow things down a little bit? —Knoxville (Tenn.) News-Sentinel

THE OLD STORY

It has been an extremely difficult year for the pollsters. The 20th anniversary of the syndicated newspaper column. The prototype, whose descendants have proliferated greatly in two centuries, was called "Journal of Occurrences" and was edited by Boston patriots for distribution throughout the colonies and in England. Colonial papers that ran it included the Boston Evening Post, the New York Journal and the Pennsylvania Chronicle. Even back in 1768, columnists were viewing with alarm. "The Journal of Occurrences" dealt mainly with daily sufferings of the good people of Boston at the hands of the red-coated British baddies. —Anniston (Ala.) Star

BY SEX, AGE AND RELIGION

It has been an extremely difficult year for the pollsters. One perhaps should have expected a small let-down, a breather from the pressures of predicting a presidential race "too close to call." But we must admit we never really expected anyone to actually poll Americans on their views toward the Kennedy-Onassis marriage — but Lou Harris has gone and done it.

There it was, in all the statistical and analytical detail of a Hubert Humphrey pulling ahead of Richard Nixon at the last moment. By sex, age and religion we are told who approves, disapproves and isn't sure. And as an extra little goody we find out how white protestants, Negro protestants and Catholics feel about the Catholic church's sand on the marriage. If Art Buchwald had tried to carry all the hubbub of the marriage to complete absurdity, he could not have chosen a more inviting way.

Now we know that 61 per cent of Americans agree that the marriage is "not my business, but theirs" — that leaves 39 per cent and the Lou Harris survey who thing differently. Men were inclined toward a "live-and-let-live" attitude; women and the Lou Harris survey apparently aren't. We now know what a lady from Gloversville, N. Y., thinks about the marriage, and another from Tecumseh, Neb., and a man from Azusa, Calif. My, my. —Charlotte (N.C.) News

SHORT SKIRTS

Paris taxicab drivers are organizing a new kind of protest movement. They are determined to drive miniskirts from the sidewalks because they are more dangerous than women drivers.

"The whole purpose of the miniskirt is to attract men's eyes which should be on the road," one of the cab drivers said. "The least they could do would be to wear long overcoats on public streets." —Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel

PIE IN THE SKY

Human Events, a conservative weekly newspaper, has a short item that carries its own editorial message. It reports that a sign in a congressman's campaign headquarters warned: "Beware of candidates who promise pie in the sky. They plan to use your dough." —Jacksonville (Fla.) Florida Times-Union

Strength For Today

THE POWER OF PRAYER

There is indeed power in prayer. First of all there is the power of petition. We make a request of God and his answer may be Yes, No, Wait, or "I have something better for you." We can't hand the Lord a time schedule and expect to get away with it. He gives us what He knows is best for us at the time that is actually best for us. A denial may be his greatest gift, for frequently we ask for things that a year later we realize would have done us more harm than good.

Then again, there is the power of adoration. God is Perfection. When we adore Him we adore perfection. God demands complete loyalty to Himself not because of what it means to Him but because of what it means to us. When we adore perfection and are sincere in that adoration, we become more and more like that which we adore.

Then always, of course, there must be confession of sin and sincere repentance. One of the most transcendent results of prayer is the feeling it gives of God's refreshing presence. When we have finished a period of prayer we feel as if something has happened to us, which means the complete elevation of mood, character, mind in the presence of the Most High and this presence has had a powerfully refreshing effect upon us.

Prayer is talking to God, listening, then acting on the basis of his response.

Buchwald, New Dean of Political Columnists?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Now that Arthur Krock is retired and Walter Lippmann is advising Richard Nixon, we sought out the new Dean of Political Columnists, Mr. Art Buchwald. In a no-holds-barred interview Mr. Buchwald agreed to share his thoughts with us on what the future holds for this country and the world.

Question: Mr. Buchwald, isn't it odd that you have become the Dean of Political Columnists at such an early age?

Answer: Well, it's not as odd as you might think. Actually, Joseph Alsop was in line for the position, but he agreed to give it to me in exchange for 35 captured enemy documents and my bubble gum card collection of the Viet Cong.

Q: What does the Dean of Political Columnists do?

A: He acts as a friend, a confidant and a mentor. If someone calls Drew Pearson or SOB, Pearson will come to me and I'll explain to him what the initials mean. If Evans isn't talking to Novak, I'll try to get them to make up. If Joseph Kraft attacks the intellectuals for ignoring the lower-middle-class American, I try to find a place for the intellectuals to answer the charges. I also represent the political columnists at astrology conventions.

Q: Speaking of astrology, what do you believe the future holds for this country and the world in the next four years?

A: I would say this country is fraught. It's too early to say how much fraught, but I think we face a time of decision, an extraordinary period of crisis and challenge that can either benefit or destroy mankind.

Q: That's very perceptive. A: Arthur Schlesinger Jr. would have given his two front teeth to have said that.

Q: What about the Nixon Administration? How do you see the Cabinet?

A: I think Mr. Nixon did a fine job of selecting his Cabinet. There isn't one man in his Cabinet I would be ashamed of taking to a country club — providing they'd let me in.

Q: What do you think Mr. Nixon's first stop should be as President?

A: It think the first thing he should do is to learn the name of his secretary of commerce. Now I know this isn't a very important Cabinet position, but I still think Mr. Nixon should remember the guy's name.

Q: What about the Vice President?

A: I believe Mr. Nixon when he says Mr. Angew is going to have more of a role in his Administration than previous Vice Presidents. The President-elect has already announced that he was going to put Mr. Agnew in the office next to him. Now this could mean one of two things. Either Mr. Agnew is going to have a strong voice in Nixon decisions — or he's under White House arrest.

Q: What about defense?

A: I believe that we should at all times have a weapon superiority over the Russians. At the moment the Soviets have weapons to kill every one in the world five times. We have enough weapons to kill everyone in the world seven times. Unless we are able to kill people 10 times to the Soviets' five, we're not going to be able to deal with them from a position of strength.

Q: Then you advocate spending large sums of money for new weapons?

A: It's our only chance. How else is Howard Hughes going to meet this mortgage payments on Las Vegas?

Q: What do you foresee as far as the urban crisis is concerned?

A: I predict there will be 2,678 task-force committees set up to study the urban problems. These reports will be written after 34,875 subcommittees investigate conditions in the cities. The work will be documented by funds from 65,978 tax-free foundations. Once all the reports are collated they will be turned over to a congressional committee whose chairman comes from a small Southern town with a population of 3,567 people. He'll reluctantly promise to hold hearings in 1975.

Q: Then you don't see Congress doing anything about the cities?

A: Only if you move the slums to the suburbs.

Q: There is a great deal of concern about anarchy in this country. How do you explain it?

A: I think our big mistake was when we urged all Americans in this country to get involved in what their government was doing. This was a grave error and the only thing that will save us now is an immediate return to apathy. No democracy can survive unless you have an apathetic society.

Q: You don't believe people should do their own things?

A: Only in the privacy of their homes.

Q: Mr. Buchwald, how do you think Washington will change under the Nixon Administration?

A: I think it will be a noisier town. The Democrats will drink more — to forget.

Q: What about dinners?

A: I believe there will be many dinners at the White House. After losing for eight years, the Nixons owe a lot of people.

Q: Do you believe that Washington could become a fun city under Nixon?

A: Probably. But the President-elect made a big mistake during the campaign when he painted the nation's capital as one of the crime centers of the world. He may have scared off a lot of young secretaries who wanted to come here to work under him.

Q: Why do you think he did it?

A: He wasn't thinking. Everyone who lives in Washington knows the power in this town is controlled by secretaries. They do all the work and make all the decisions, while their bosses are attending meetings. Without secretaries the government could come to a thundering halt.

Q: Who do you think is chiefly responsible for the high crime rate in Washington, D. C.?

A: J. Edgar Hoover. Every six months he publishes the crime statistics, and they always go up. The higher they are, the more secure Hoover's job is. He talks about gains in crime like most corporation presidents talk about gains in production.

Q: Then you don't think J. Edgar Hoover should have been appointed again?

A: On the contrary. He represents continuity in our government. No matter who is elected President, you always know that J. Edgar Hoover will be there. He's our only link with the past.

Q: Do you believe that Mr. Nixon will be more difficult to write about than President Johnson?

A: There is only one President Johnson, and every political columnist in this country owes him a debt of gratitude for all the material he has provided us with in the last five years. I would assume that for the first months, Mr. Nixon will be difficult to write about, but as he makes mistakes, our job will become easier and easier. Probably after Mr. Nixon's first six months in office, the columns will write themselves.

Q: What will you have to watch out for when covering the Nixon Administration?

A: I think the most important thing to watch out for is what Mr. Nixon says. During the campaign, and even now, he speaks for about 10 minutes and then he says, "Now, I want to make this perfectly clear." From that you gather that what he has been saying for 10 minutes has not been clear, and what is going to follow is not necessarily going to be clear either. He also keeps saying, "I want to be candid about this." This has some of us worried, because we were hoping that Mr. Nixon would be candid about everything.

Q: Could you conceive of a credibility gap under President Nixon?

A: It's hardly likely. He has appointed Herb Klein to coordinate all the information going out about his Administration. So his Administration will be speaking with one voice.

Q: Do you think that's credible?

A: I don't know if it's credible or not, but it's going to be a lot of fun to see Mr. Klein's juggling act.

Q: What about Mr. Nixon's style?

A: We're very conscious of style in this country. I have studied Mr. Nixon's speaking style and one of the things I've particularly noticed is that his hand gestures are out of synchronization with what he's saying. When he makes a point his arm is down, and when he's in the middle of a sentence he shoots out. This is very disconcerting for the TV viewer, but I imagine we'll get used to it.

Q: The South Vietnamese are balking at the shape of the table at the Paris peace talks. What would you do, if you were President Nixon, to speed up the negotiations?

A: I'd tell Averell Harriman to sit on the floor.

Q: Do you think we could negotiate that way?

A: We did it with the American Indians.

Q: Mr. Buchwald, we're coming to the end of our interview. Could you tell us what you believe the role of the political columnists in the United States should be?

A: The role of the political columnist is to tell the President of the United States as well as all other politicians what they have done wrong, after they've done it. He must point out the mistakes after they're made, reminding his readers that he had warned of just such a thing happening, if the person followed a certain course of action.

Q: But what if the President was right and the columnist was wrong?

A: Political columnists prefer not to point that out. You see, no one expects much from their leaders, but the public expects their political commentators to be infallible. It would do the country no good at all for politicians to question political columnists on their mistakes. Someone in this country has to be perfect.

The Flu Bug In North Carolina And Memories

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

RALEIGH — It happened in North Carolina:

It begins with sneezing but the flu, influenza of whatever variety, is nothing to sneeze at.

After sneezing, your eyes water and there is a weariness. Your throat tickles and you begin coughing. Spasms of coughing may last a day or longer and the sore aching sets in. Your legs hurt and your head aches. You feel feverish and begin reaching for the aspirin bottle.

The aches and pains continue and become worse and suddenly you realize you may be catching the flu.

You've heard about it of course. But you felt you would be one of the lucky ones — or one able to throw it off as nothing more than a slight cold.

It isn't that easy. We know — we've just experienced the epidemic illness at the worst possible time. We missed our first day from work because of illness in more than 10 years — on Christmas day.

Aspirin helps. So does bed rest. And the flu-racked body appears to demand liquids, especially water, fruit juice and cold soft drinks.

It doesn't help for friends to say, "you sound terrible." And it doesn't help to have to tell friends not to come around because we have the flu.

Department of Health officials do not have up-to-date statistics but there are figures indicating that the epidemic of the Hong Kong variety of flu is spreading.

Possibly 500,000 North Carolinians may have it this winter. No one can say for sure but the epidemiologists believe it will be widespread.

A frightening thing is the possibility that it may be recurring. There is some evidence that the body does not build an immunity to this strain of influenza virus as quickly as to most others.

In any case it is nothing very pleasant to have for Christmas.

The year about to end has been a memorable one for a news reporter in North Carolina. It has been a busy, turbulent and challenging year and one filled with many memories.

We sat at a luncheon in Chapel Hill last January with our admired friend, Holt McPherson, and his wife, Elsie. Holt, editor of the High Point Enterprise, left early apologizing that he had a doctor's appointment. A few days later, we learned the tragic news that his right leg had to be amputated because of an aneurism. Later in the year, however, Holt recovered so well that he was at the summer NCPA convention and later flew to Europe for a tour of the industrial Ruhr and a cruise on the Rhine.

There are memories of the political campaigns, the crowded rooms, the outdoor rallies and the speechmaking in blazing summer sunshine, of crowded hotel lobbies and ballrooms. . . of election night, the long hours, of watching happy celebrations and partying.

There was the candlelight coziness and dignity of a ceremonial dinner at the country club in Kinston honoring retiring State Sen. Thomas J. White on a soft April evening.

There was the shock in being awakened one morning and told that Sen. Robert Kennedy had been shot in Los Angeles. There was the deep satisfaction of going fishing in the later afternoons — and catching fish. There was the frustration of trying to drive across the newly-finished I-40 from Cove Creek, N. C., to Knoxville, Tenn., and being turned back because the contractors refused permission.

There was the sight of acres and acres of carefully cultivated tomatoes growing along the rich slopes of Haywood County farms and news that farmers would realize approximately $2 million from them.

Suddenly then it was football season and there were at Chapel Hill, Raleigh, Winston-Salem, Durham, Greenville and all across the state. And by that time, everyone began looking ahead to 1969 and what it might bring.

Evans-Novak . . .

(Continued From Page 4) non-complying school districts. It will, then, devise an equivalent to "freedom-of-choice" resulting in only a minority of blacks attending white schools and no whites at all in black schools. Such token integration is obviously acceptable to the South (for example, in South Carolina the "Freedom of Choice Association") perpetuating the dual-school system that the courts have outlawed. The courts can be expected to strike back hard, if slowly, against the Nixon policy. In fact, they have been more severe than even the Johnson administration in demanding integration. A recent ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans ordered the closing of all Negro schools in Louisiana — a step HEW bureaucrats never considered.

One reasonable approach for depoliticizing the situation is being talked about by the Secretary to transfer desegregation cases from HEW to the Federal Equal handling cases as a Federal regulatory commission. But this scheme would be taken a sealout by civil rights leaders and HEW officials who disdain Cohen as a gradualist. And for Mr. Nixon, the Cohen compromise would be shirking his commitment to the South.

Quotes

"Many of our youths have a vision of what this country ought to be, and the reality doesn't always measure up to the dream." —Houston (Tex.) Chronicle.

'Rainy Day' Dollar Is Shrinking; Stock Market Dollar More Protected

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Special For The Reflector. How well have you done with that "rainy day" dollar you put away in savings about a year ago?

The question, of course, assumes that you were able to put a "buck" aside, and keep it aside, despite the way the economy managers up in Washington have managed an inflation that is pretty much out of hand.

If you put the dollar in U.S. Treasury savings bonds. Series E, it has earned you 2.4 cents in interest. It now has a face value of $1.14, plus its earnings. If you pick up the dollar and take it to the store, you find that it's buying power, has shrunk to about 93 cents.

So, even after spending the interest, that $1 still only buys about 95.4 cents of merchandise. Inflation got the rest of it.

The story is much the same in other types of "liquid" savings, meaning those that are quickly convertible into cash. The difference is in the amount of the loss in buying power over the past year.

The dollar in a savings account in a bank earned interest at the rate of 4 percent, a little more some places. Savings and Loan Associations have paid a somewhat higher rate, from 4.5 percent to 5 percent, and even more in some localities.

But even these higher rates have failed to keep the saving dollar even when it is measured in terms of what it will buy and, when you get right down to it, that market place yardstick is the only true measure of any currency's value.

The dollar that went into the stock market has had better protection than the dollar invested in savings represented by fixed dollar prices and rates of interest.

The market, as measured by the Dow-Jones average, has gained at 10 percent over year-ago levels. If taken out and spent at that level, it would have a gain of 10 cents. After allowing for the change in price levels, the owner would still be ahead by about 3 cents — up that much on inflation, plus whatever was paid in dividends, which might add another 2.5 cents or even 3 cents.

But the market was no sure thing through the year. It was not until share buyers became convinced that Washington could not, or would not, control inflation that the strong rise set in.

The dollar that went into home buying a year ago has done very well, at least on paper.

Homes bought in 1967 and going back on the market now are at markups of 10 percent or more. Even 20 percent is not entirely unusual. This beats inflation and one of the major reasons, if not the only reason, is that families who want to buy are convinced that waiting will only mean still higher prices.

But for most people, such profits are more imaginary than real.

Many home buyers are families who need or want a new home. They own, but sell to buy. And in most cases, they buy more expensive homes to get either more space, a different location, or both.

This type of buyer has some protection against inflation, but only to the extent that he can swap one inflated dollar for another. "On the difference" involved in such up-grading of housing this buyer has no more "inflation protection" than any other.

Of course, the home owner who sells and then buys a smaller and cheaper home can pick up a profit. And then, there's the case of the owner who no longer has any need for housing. Usually, these profits are of benefit only in the settlement of an estate.

So far, the usual economic indicators have given no clear sign that the turning point of inflation has been reached. Such things as industrial production, orders placed with manufacturers, unfilled orders, employment, income, consumer credit, retail sales, etc., have failed thus far to give any real indication that a leveling out is at hand.

There is no expectation that there will be any actual turn-down in the price level. This would take much more than a "readjustment" or "recession." It would happen only in event of widespread unemployment, which is something no political party wants to risk.

Inflation is not just a domestic problem which the Nixon Administration will inherit from the out-going Great Society.

It is one of the major factors contributing to weakness and disorder in the international monetary picture. In past international monetary upsets, such as the devaluation of the British pound and the French franc, the dollar has come off fairly well, but only because of weakness elsewhere.

What Nixon will do as President remains to be seen. But he picked Paul W. McCracken as his top economic adviser. And McCracken is out of step with the Johnson economic advisers.

According to the Nixon chief for economics, the current difficulties began in 1964, when the Johnson Administration decided to cure all ills here at home with its antipoverty programs without proper regard for the demands being made by Vietnam and the military commitments of the U. S. abroad.

After having blamed "our overly inflationary domestic economic policies since 1964" for the current problem, it will be difficult, indeed, for McCracken to advise his chief that it will be safe to let things continue to drift on their present course.

Successful Native Has Incurable Weakness

By BILL WRIGHT
Fayetteville Observer Writer
Written For The AP
FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Walter R. Davis, who left North Carolina several years ago and made a fortune, has an incurable weakness—his love for his native North Carolina.

Despite the demands of directing worldwide business interests, and the fact he has lived for the past several years in California and Texas, he has never been away from North Carolina for more than 90 days at any one time.

The private jet in which he hops around the country finds its way frequently to a Tar Heel airport.

A business associate seriously suggested to Davis once that he set up an office and staff and direct his giant business from Elizabeth City, his hometown.

Davis' love for his native state is most clearly evidenced through his generosity. His wife in 1962 donated $100,000 to Methodist College at Fayetteville and it was applied to construction costs of the new Geraldine Davis Library, named for her.

In 1966, Mrs. Davis died. And last week, Davis donated another $50,000 to the college, which his wife had served as a trustee. The $50,000 is earmarked for Methodist College's Fine Arts Building.

In recent years Davis estimates he has given away $2 million to pay for college educations for deserving and needy young Tar Heels.

Davis' rise from a variety store clerk in Elizabeth City to become a multimillionaire was meteoric and dramatic. He credits his success largely to luck.

"It was being in the right place at the right time and taking advantage of an opportunity," he said.

Davis was born in Elizabeth City, one of seven children. After completing school at Hargrave Military Academy in Virginia, he went to work for a chain variety store in his hometown.

His salary was $9.50 per week. He was transferred to Wilson at a salary of $11 weekly, then came to Fayetteville at $12.

While working in Fayetteville he met and married the former Geraldine Tyson of Grays Creek. She was a graduate of East Carolina College and at the time was teaching English at Massey Hill High School.

Davis was married and fired from his job all in the same weekend in one of the many hilarious events of his colorful career.

He recalls that one day the store manager ordered him to put a fudge candy display in the store window. He protested that when the sun came it would melt the fudge and the display would collapse.

His boss was adamant. Davis built the display. It melted and collapsed.

He worked until midnight after closing time to clean up the mess.

"Next day I asked him, 'What do you want me to put in the window?'"

"Put in the fudge," the boss said.

Again protesting, Davis built the display. The same thing happened.

For a week Davis, under the manager's order built the display, and every night cleaned up the mess.

By Friday he had had enough. "I knew I was going to get married. Geraldine was making $99 a month, and that was security, so I told the manager on Friday that if the fudge melted over the weekend I was going to stick it down his throat."

He built the display on Saturday, and on the same day got married in Hay Street Church. Sunday at noon he went by the store. The display had collapsed.

"So on Monday I threw it in his face," Davis said, laughing. "He fired me as I knew he would."

Davis then worked for a number of trucking firms, first for McLean, which was then in Fayetteville. He finally went to California, and it was there that he got onto the "opportunity" that carried him to fortune and business success.

He learned that oil producers in the Permian Basin of Texas were having difficulty getting the oil transported to refineries.

With a borrowed $1,000 in 1955 he bought a truck and started the Permian Corp., transporting crude oil from the wells to refineries and pipelines.

From the $1,000 capitalization start, Davis built the corporation into a $78 million business. That was the worth of the business in 1966, 11 years after its beginning when it was merged with the Occidental Petroleum Corp.

Davis is senior executive vice president of Occidental, a $3 billion corporation and 355th largest business in the nation. Its stock is one of the most actively traded issues on the New York Stock Exchange.

It is a natural resource company dealing in trucking, shipping, chemicals, minerals, oil, pipelines and fertilizers, among other things. Its dealings are worldwide.

The merger itself was touched by Davis' attraction for North Carolina. Every year Davis participates in the Marlin Tournament held at Cape Hatteras.

At the 1963 tournament through then Gov. Terry Sanford, Davis met Armand Hammer, president of Occidental Petroleum. It was from the meeting that the merger resulted.

He describes Hammer as "the greatest financial and business genius of our time."

Davis still attends the yearly marlin tournaments. He maintains homes at Nags Head and Elizabeth City.

"I spend more time in North Carolina than anywhere else," he said.

He recently was remarried to a childhood friend the former Rebecca Midgett Hinton of Elizabeth City.

Two of his sisters, Mrs. R. L. Jackson and Mrs. Frank Spence, and a brother, Nat Davis, still live in Pasquotank County. Another sister, Mrs. Archie Keels, lives in Winston-Salem.

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Tyson Bain, lives in St. Pauls. His daughter, Mrs. Ralph Greenlee, lives in Dallas, Texas.

Davis has considerable business interests in northeastern North Carolina. He is a member of the board of directors of Hargrave Military Academy, which named its gymnasium for him.

When news of the Confederate surrender reached Union lines, troops began shooting off their guns. Gen. Grant ordered them to stop, saying "The war is over; the Rebels are our countrymen again; and the best sign of rejoicing after the victory will be to abstain from all demonstrations in the field."

St. Peter's Chair Being Examined

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—In a dusty back room at the Vatican, scholars from all over the world have begun a detailed scientific examination of one of the most precious of Christian antiquities. It is an ancient wooden chair, heavily encrusted with ivory, that is popularly known as "St. Peter's chair."

Legend maintains that St. Peter sat on it while preaching to the first small Christian community in Rome in the middle of the 1st Century.

Later, Popes were enthroned while sitting on it.

But on Jan. 17, 186, according to a writer of the time, as "firecrackers exploded, trumpets blared and a huge crowd gathered," workmen hoisted the chair from an altar near the entrance to the great church and enclosed it in a magnificent baroque ornament in the apse—giovanni Lorenzo Bernini's famed "Gloria."

Several leading European scholars made a study of it, and came to sharply different conclusions about the age and origin of the chair.

Last Nov. 15, Pope Paul VI announced appointment of a commission to make a new investigation of the chair in response to requests by various world scholars.

This came just five months after the Pope announced scholars had found "convincing evidence" that bones discovered under St. Peter's Basilica were those of the apostle. The Vatican announcement on appointment of the commission to study the chair indicated the Pope was seeking further evidence to support the Catholic claim that Peter came to Rome and was the first Pope.

However, officials of the commission now say this is incorrect.

The study has a "strictly scientific" purpose and is not intended to establish whether the chair was used by St. Peter, they say.

"We are starting without any preconceived ideas," said a commission source. In fact, he noted the commission does not refer to the chair as a "relic" of St. Peter but as a "precious work of antiquity."

The study is being made, he said, because modern scholars have better means than their colleagues of a century ago for determining the age of the chair, the type of wood used in it, the period from which art work on the chair dates and other such information.

A second purpose of the study, he said, is to determine the best means of preserving the chair.

Attribution of the chair to St. Peter originally arose from references in 3rd Century writings to a chair of St. Peter that was a symbol of his power of teaching and governing.

There is an unconfirmed tradition that Pope St. Sylvester I transferred this chair to St. Peter's Basilica when the Emperor Constantine built the church in the 4th Century.

In any case, a "Chair of St. Peter" later was known to have been used for the enthronement of Popes. Whether any part of the original chair remains, however, is not certain.

Italian scholar Giambattista de Rossi, who made the most extensive study of the chair in 1867, said the outer legs and horizontal base supports of the chair are much older than the rest of the chair.

He said they were made of yellow oak "corroded by time and furrowed by the hand of man to extract splinters and relics"—which would suggest many people at least thought it was an authentic chair of St. Peter. De Rossi said the rest of the chair is of acacia wood, better preserved and carved in a Byzantine style.

India In Grip Of Gambling Fever

By DALE MORSCH

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Gambling fever has struck India in the form of state-run lotteries and authorities are becoming worried that it may drive the country's poorer citizens into even deeper poverty.

The dilemma is that like horse-racing and liquor, lotteries bring big profits. The states need money badly, but politicians are reluctant to impose new taxes or vote for increases.

What better way to raise money, ask the politicians than to run lotteries, which the people take to with enthusiasm?

Six of India's 17 states are running lottery schemes and two others are contemplating them. Bombay City and the snion territory of Delhi are also considering schemes of their own.

The greatest excitement has been in Madras state, where the government has staged two lotteries so far this year and is in the process of conducting another one.

Before the current fiscal year ends next April, state officials estimate that lotteries will have brought in about 40 million rupees ($5.3 million).

The second lottery in Madras in November paid 11 first prizes of 100,000 rupees each (about $13,000). Front page publicity throughout the state sent citizens scrambling for lottery tickets.

Millions of tickets have been bought and the demands is so great that even one rupee tickets are selling for double the price in the black market. Long lines of people in front of shops and other places selling the tickets are common sight in

Girl Swimmers Invade Men's Pool At Minges Coliseum

By BETTY CASEY

Snow was falling outside of Minges Coliseum, but inside, around the gleaming white tiled, heated twin pools, there was a humid tropical atmosphere complete with almost a dozen bathing beauties.

These girls, all students, make up East Carolina University's first women's swim team and they have splashed off to a championship start. In their first competition they piled up enough winning points against Old Dominion to bring in a nice victory. The ECU team, so far unbeaten, topped the William and Mary team which had not been beaten in five years.

Although operating only as a club this year, the girls practice with the men's varsity team. They share ECU's head swimming coach, Ray Scharf, with the varsity team. "Isn't this a fabulous pool?" said Terry Noffinger, Freshman diving star of the championship team. "and isn't it great that we have an ECU women's team this year?" It was a toss-up for Miss Noffinger between choosing ECU and another school with a good Math curriculum — her major. The lure of one of the finest swimming facilities in the country and the projected new schedule at ECU providing this program for women, tipped the scales in ECU's favor. In fact this has enticed other female swimmers to ECU also.

Outstanding Swimmers
"We have a fine group of girls on the team," said coach Ray Scharf, "including three of national caliber." Outstanding swimmers are Terry Noffinger, Debbie Parker and Peggy Hughes. Each of these have done well in national competition.

Miss Noffinger from Silver Spring, Md., won the National YMCA one-meter diving title and placed second in the three-meter. She was voted the outstanding woman diver in the Washington, D. C., area and last summer placed second in the junior national competition.

"Miss Noffinger" said Scharf, "is also a terrific 'butterfly' (butterfly - stroke swimmer.)"

Miss Debbie Parker, who is President of Slay dormitory as well as an outstanding backstroke swimmer, said, "The program here at ECU is really good. My mother wanted me to attend a university where I could continue my swimming — so that's one reason I'm here."

From Annadale, Va., Miss Parker swam for the Starlet Aquatic Club there. She qualified for the National Championships, both winter and summer, in Lincoln, Neb., in back-stroke competition, and also in 1966 at the Pittsburgh meets.

"I hope," she said, "that ECU will be able to set up a good NCAA like the boys have. In most places the girls get 'rooked.' Our meets are held in the fall instead of the spring and this doesn't give us enough time to pull a team together since school has just started. The boys get a lot of training during the year."

"She has a point," said Scharf, "but we are hoping to take advantage of our fine facilities, which have been a tremendous factor in our planning, by expanding our program for the girls. This year's team is a beginning, and they now practice with the boys team. Eventually we hope to have a regular woman coach. Meantime," he added, "These girls are good sports — even though there is no budget for their travel to the meets and they have to pay their own way."

Last year, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, Chairman of the Physical Education Department, and Dr. Ray Martinez, who heads the graduate program now, but was then head swim coach, decided with Ray Scharf to initiate the women's swim team which materialized this year.

"Collegiate swim level for women," said Jorgensen, "is not offered at too many colleges. This," he declared, "is a regretful state of affairs."

Larger Women's Programs
Ray Scharf dreams of promoting ECU women's intercollegiate competition in basketball, tennis, volleyball and other sports as well. He would like to formulate an athletic program comparable to that of the boys. This reflects a new philosophy — a considerably broader one which would encourage women to take part physically in an increasing number of healthful activities.

Freshman Peggy Hughes, of Norristown, Pa., swam for the Vesper Boat Club in Philadelphia in National level competition in 1965. She qualified in the 400 and 1500 meter freestyle and their relay team won the National Championship gold medal.

"Miss Hughes," said Coach Scharf, "swims every day with the boys — she keeps right up with them." Her specialty is as a distance freestyler.

Other team members are Judy March of Nacodoches, Tex., a breast-stroker and freestyler; Joyce Clark of Alexandria, Va., a fast freestyler holding records in the 50-year competition and Pat Cussano, freestyler from Pleasantville, N. Y.

Donna Quave is a Columbia, S. C., record holder in the breaststroke and her sister Vickie holds records in freestyle. Karen Tuthill of Alexandria, Va. Bobbie Gill of Elizabeth City and Julie Schilling from Tenally, N. J. are freestylers also. Miss Schilling placed in the Mid-Atlantic Championships.

Several on the team came to ECU because of the swim program. Others, already enrolled at ECU were "thrilled at being part of the team and having the opportunity to enter the new program."

Karen Tuthill, a freshman who rides motorcycles as a hobby, "just wanted to come out for swimming."

"Winning those first contests," smiled Julie Schilling who is a P. E. major, "surprised but pleased us, and it has given us a lot of confidence."

Other comments were heard at the pool-side as bathing suit clad members of both the men's and women's teams "pitched in" to help stuff envelopes with flyers announcing the Eastern Carolina Basketball Classic, the University's first invitational Christmas tournament.

"It's tough working out against the men, but it is more challenging — and we try harder."

"We've gotten acquainted with some interesting fellows on the campus — it helps break the ice when you have a common interest."

"Beating William and Mary was great. I knew a couple of their team members and I had to gloat a little."

"I hope we'll have a budget for a full program next year, but I don't mind the necessity of taking my own car to the meets as much as I hate having to wash my hair every day and run across campus with it wet to get to a hair dryer."

"Maybe they'll install hair dryers here, since our efforts seem to be successful."

"These are," declared Ray Scharf, "a wonderful bunch of girls. They work awfully hard and we are proud of them."

GOING UP . . . Terry Noffinger, diving star, tests the spring board.

This Year Was Packed With Drama, Emotion For Women

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

"That was the year when . . ."

The year 1968 will be remembered, just that way—a year in which so much happened a cranky, crazy, sometimes tragic year, full of public drama and private courage.

It was the year when women often had to make choices, whether it was to bear (the pill controversy), to bare (the see-through fashions) or just to bear up (the high cost of living). Many women marched, picketed, protested, struck—about the war, their jobs, their principles, their children's education.

It was the year when assassinations of two national leaders left two gallant wives to carry on alone—Mrs. Robert Kennedy to bring her 11th child into a fatherless world, Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. to continue to work for her husband's civil rights dreams.

It was the year that made so many other widows—from war casualties, mine cave-ins or atomic submarine disasters—often their suffering prolonged unbearably by uncertainty and days of waiting and hoping.

It was the year when Jackie Kennedy stepped down from the lonely pedestal upon which an admiring public had set her, and married. The 39-year-old widow of assassinated President John F. Kennedy startled the world by marrying Aristotle Onassis, a divorced, very rich Greek of 62.

It was the year that produced a new First Lady-to-be, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, who will have a hard act to follow when her husband becomes President Jan. 20.

Many women made news during the year:

Actress Patricia Neal, 42, made her first movie since suffering a near-fatal series of strokes three years ago. The American Heart Association awarded her its Heart-of-the-year prize for her "faith, courage and achievement in meeting the personal challenge of cardiovascular disease."

Mrs. Jon O. Epperson, former high school biology teacher in Little Rock, Ark., now living in Maryland, won a U.S. Supreme Court decision declaring unconstitutional an Arkansas law prohibiting public school teaching of evolution.

Mrs. Betty Hughes, 46, wife of New Jersey Gov. Richard Hughes, signed herself in as an outpatient at the Walter Kemper Clinic at Duke University hospital, Durham, N. C., last July at 230 pounds. At year's end she had dropped almost 95 pounds, was down to a glamorous size 12, and had managed to keep her good humor and sparkling personality intact.

As some Roman Catholic nuns continued to seek freer, more flexible religious lives for themselves, these women made news: Sister Mary Corita Kent, 50, probably the country's best known nun through her colorful art, resigned from the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, after agonizing over the decision for six months.

Sister Ghislaine Roquet of Canada became the first nun to serve as a delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. The Holy Cross nun is chairman of the philosophy department at Montreal's Basile-Moreau College.

On the international scene Mrs. Indira Gandhi continued as the world's only woman prime minister.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, chic and 41, a member of the central committee of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, was named to head the delegation to the Paris Vietnam peace talks.

Outspoken, colorful Angie Brooks, 40, a United Nations delegate from Liberia since she was 26, was virtually assured of election to the presidency of the 1969 U.N. General Assembly.

In politics, Frances P. Bolton, 83, Republican Congresswoman from Ohio since 1940, was defeated for reelection. Coming to Congress in January will be its first Negro woman member, Mrs. Shirley Chisholm, 44, a Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y.

In the entertainment field several women emerged: Aretha Franklin, 26, became the unchallenged queen of soul music; actress Faye Dunaway, 27, of "Bonnie and Clyde" became the star of the year; singer Barbra Streisand, 26, made her first motion picture "Funny Girl" a resounding success.

A Tree replaced the Twig as top fashion model of the year. Penelope Tree, 18, daughter of Marietta Tree, formerly a U.S. delegate to the United Nations, took her lost waif look to the top of the fashion heap; British model Lesley Hornby, 19, better known as Twiggy, swapped her famous flat-chested, skinny, miniskirted trademark for the romantic look, and later announced her engagement to her flamboyant manager and constant companion, Justin de Villeneuve, 29—after his wife divorced him.

On the literary scene the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the nation's highest honor society of the arts, elected Louis Bogan, poet and critic, to membership, which is limited to 50.

Marianne Moore, colorful poet with a taste for tricorn hats and a love for baseball, had an exciting year: In April she was given the honor of throwing out the first ball of the 1968 baseball season; in June she was awarded a doctor of letters degree by Princeton University; on the eve of her 81st birthday on Nov. 15 it was announced that she would be presented the 1968 National Medal for Literature by the National Book Committee, which consists of a medal and $5,000, for her contribution to literature. She is the first woman to receive the medal.

In sports Joan Whitney Payson, 65, became baseball's only woman president after the New York Mets named her to the post.

At the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, Debbie Meyer, 16, Sacramento, Calif., high school junior, won three gold medals in swimming: the 200, 400 and 800 meter freestyle events.

Penny Ann Early, 25, Chicago divorcee, wanted to be the first woman jockey to ride at a major American track. She was given a temporary jockey's license at Churchill Downs, but the male jockeys boycotted the race in which she was assigned a mount, thereby scratching Penny Ann's chances.

NOTABLE FIRSTS: The U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., named its first woman to the faculty, ending a 166-year no-female tradition. She is Mrs. Elizabeth Matthew Lewis, 50, who will teach the Academy's first course in art history.

The British Commonwealth appointed its first woman governor, Dr. Hilda Bynoe, 46, practicing physician and mother of two teen-age sons. She is governor of Grenada, 133-square mile island in the British West Indies' Windwards.

The Interstate Commerce Commission named Mrs. Virginia Mae Brown, 44, to its chairmanship in January. President Lyndon Johnson appointed her the first woman member of the ICC four years ago.

Venezuela's President Raul Leoni appointed Dr. Aura Celina Casanova minister of economic development, the first time a woman has been named to a key cabinet position in a South American democracy.

Temple Judea in Coral

Gables, Fla., elected Mrs. Rita Shore, a member of the professional choir, its regular cantor. The congregation believes that she is the first paid woman cantor in the country.

Singer Marian Anderson, 66, got her first doctorate from a Southern university—she already had 25 honorary degrees—when Tulane presented her with the first doctorate of humane letters it has given a Negro.

The National Education Association with a million-plus membership got its first Negro president, Mrs. Libby Koontz, 49, poised and pretty classroom teacher from Salisbury, N.C.

Miss Janet Bumgarner Weds David W. Dail

WILKESBORO — Miss Janet Sue Bumgarner of Wilkesboro and David Whitney Dail of Winterville were united in marriage in a ceremony Saturday at 4:00 p.m. at the Wilkesboro Baptist Church here.

Miss Bumgarner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie G. Bumgarner of Wilkesboro and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Olin W. Dail of Winterville and the late Mr. Dail.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Henry A. Morgan.

The church was decorated with arrangements of ferns, poinsettias and candelabra. At the altar was a prie dieu where the couple knelt for their vows.

Miss Nelda Morgan, organist, and Mrs. James L. Fortuna Jr. soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white silk peau de soie with scalloped hand clip chantilly lace embroidered in pearls. The fitted bodice featured a sabrina neckline and full length sleeves. The sheath skirt swept into a full chapel train, with scalloped lace and a bow trimming the swallow tail back.

Her silk illusion veil was attached to a matching open pillbox. She carried a bouquet of white miniature carnations centered with a white orchid.

Maid of honor was Miss Brenda Kulynych of Wilkesboro. She wore a floor length A-line gown of red rare moment. The gown featured a wedding band neckline, short sleeves and a bow with a full length train in the back. She wore a matching bouffant veil attached to a small open top pillbox.

Bridesmaids were Miss Carol Cashion of North Wilkesboro, Miss Wanda Dail of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Paulette Mullen of Louisville, Mrs. Russyl Barnette Jr. of Greenville and Mrs. Sam Day of Winston-Salem.

Best man for the bridegroom was Fred Grady of Wilson, uncle of the bridegroom. Ushers were Lt. Charles Bumgarner of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., brother of the bride, Russyl Barnette Jr. of Greenville, Charles Scoggin of Lumberton and Don Benson of Goldsboro.

The bride's mother wore an aqua shantung dress with a matching open top pillbox hat, matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a gold two-piece suit dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

For traveling, the bride changed into a celery green three-piece suit with dark green accessories and wore the orchid lifted from her wedding bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Wilkes Central High School and will graduate from East Carolina University in February.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Winterville High School, will graduate from East Carolina University in June.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

English Scholars At Age Of Four

DUNKERQUE, France (WNS) — Kindergarten children at the Torpilleur School here are not yet being taught to read or write, but they have already learned a foreign language — English — and speak it better than most college students.

Anne de Bournonville, the school principal who hired 17-year-old June Evans of London to play with the youngsters and speak only English to them, reported, "The receptivity of four-year-old children is total, much better than it is for older students."

Grateful For Name Change

LONDON (WNS) — Eighteen-year-old Andrea breathed a sigh of relief after her wedding to Alan Cooper, 23. "I'm so grateful that a bride gets her husband's last name to use throughout life," she confessed. "My maiden name led to embarrassing jokes whenever I was introduced." The new Mrs. Cooper was formerly Miss Freelove.

Marr-Gordon Vows Spoken In Ceremony Saturday Afternoon

CHARLOTTE — The Park Road Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding of Miss Virginia Grace Gordon and John Edward Marr III on Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Gordon of Charlotte and Mr. and Mrs.

John E. Marr Jr. of Greenville.

C. D. Milforo officiated at the ceremony. The church was decorated with poinsettias.

A program of wedding music was rendered by J. D. Morrison.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight with a fingertip veil. She carried a prayer book with bridal flowers.

Miss Becky Harrison was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Joan Marr and Miss Margaret Gehman. The attendants wore gowns of red velvet.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Ken Gordon of Charlotte and Thomas Ballance of New Bern.

The bride's mother wore an ice blue silk dress. The bridegroom's mother selected a light blue lace dress.

For a wedding trip to Blowing Rock, the bride changed into a baby blue coat dress with navy accessories.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride attended South Mecklenburg High School and East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and is attending East Carolina University.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. Assisting were Miss Suzanne Turner, Miss Becky Harrison, Miss Margaret Gehman and Miss Joan Marr.

Engagements Announced

MISS DIANA FAYE GARRETT . . . is the daughter of Mrs. Lois Garrett of Falkland, who announces her engagement to Carl Vandford Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vandford of Rt. 2, Farmville. The wedding date has not been set.

MISS FRANCES DIANE MERRITT . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Norris Merritt of Greenville, who son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Hooks of Winterville. The wedding will take place March 30. She announces her engagement to Ashley Thomas Hooks,

On The Local Scene by Rosalie Trotman

Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will be the scene of the March 30 wedding of Diane Merritt and Ashley Hooks.

The bride-elect will graduate from East Carolina University winter quarter. She is a primary education major. She attended Louisburg College and transferred her sophomore year to ECU where she is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Ashley is a senior at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, where he is serving as president of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. He is majoring in business administration.

The couple has been dating for four years and have been levelier, pined and engaged.

The year 1969 will be ushered in Tuesday night with a series of gala parties around Greenville.

The annual New Year's Eve party will be staged at the Greenville Moose Lodge for members. Couples attending the event will be treated to favors and a breakfast which will be served beginning at 1 a.m.

Music for dancing will be provided by the Stardusters.

The Greenville Golf and Country Club will be the scene of a dinner-dance for members. Music will be provided by the Clubmen Band.

The buffet menu is steamship roud of beef au jus, au gratin potatoes, blue lake green beans almondine, tossed green salad, pear half with cottage cheese, layer cake and fruit tart.

The buffet will be served from 8-9:30 p.m. followed by dancing. Party-goers will be given favors and noise makers.

A holiday party was held Saturday night at the Elk Lodge.

The annual even included a dinner and dance for Elk members.

A dance for members and their guests will be held at the Brook Valley Country Club.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. and will continue until 1 o'clock with a midnight breakfast being served.

Noise makers and party hats will be given to those attending.

It's handy to "flour" cubes of meat in a brown paper bag. Just put the meat and the seasoned flour in the bag, twist the opening tight and shake the bag vigorously.

Who wouldn't love to receive a tin of luxury chocolates topped by a lovely corsage or a party arrangement of fresh flowers? Could there be a better way to deliver candy?

Kitchen-fresh milk and dark chocolates: creams, nuts, caramels, nougats and toffees. All highest quality. Packed in 1½ and 3 pound tins.

Be among the first to use this new service. We can now deliver candy-and-flowers to most people in the United States and Canada.

What's Ahead In Ready-To-Wear

By YVETTE DE LA FONTAINE

PARIS (WNS) — French Haute Couture is an old lady who, in her declining years, is trying out any and every kind of rejuvenation treatment to keep herself going.

French ready-to-wear, on the other hand, is coming out of its infancy and learning to walk alone. Stronger every year, it is easily outpacing the Grand Old Lady.

This season's Salon International du Pret a Porter Feminin, the Spring ready-to-wear show out at the Porte de Versailles, welcomed more foreign buyers than ever before. Manufacturers are quite happy.

Comment by most buyers is that there is nothing exceptionally new in the show but that the clothes are wearable. They have something of that certain understatement that has always been the charm of French taste, a charm that most haute-couture collections have been lacking lately.

Pants Suits

The main tendencies of the ready-made collections are toward pants suits, easy-fitting silhouettes, turtle necks, two-tone combinations, jerseys and all other types of knits. Lengths are generally short. Leading colors are red, white, navy and beige, with white and off-whites very strong, too. Soft leathers are used for both sports and dress clothes. Shoes and bags gleam in patent or any kind of lacquered leather or plastic.

Although American buyers have long preferred to copy only the big name couturiers, regardless how they might flounder, this path has become pointless. The couturiers are copying the ready-to-wear designers, or hiring them outright.

And French ready-to-wear is getting more and more attention abroad. In spite of its elevated prices, manufacturers here expect the French clothes to do well. American buyers predict good reception for their boutiques throughout the United States.

High-Heeling Mom Forgets Son

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please print this and help wake up a mother who is neglecting her 4-year-old son. She happens to be my divorced daughter. She works, taking him to a nursery Monday thru Friday. She gets home each day at 5:30 p.m., gives him supper and puts him to bed. On Monday she starts trying to find someone to keep the boy from Friday after work until late Sunday evening, so she can kick up her heels and act like a teenager at some cheap dance hall. Abby, she is 24. This little boy begs to go to Sunday school, but our daughter won't take him. She says he has plenty of time for that, and she has her own life to think about.

She never takes the child anywhere. His grandmother takes him occasionally, but he needs a mother's love. His daddy is as bad as his mother. He promises to come and see him, and the poor kid looks in the window for him all day Sunday and no daddy shows up. What can I do?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: If you can't make your daughter realize what an injustice she is doing her son during his impressionable, formative years, take the child whenever you can and try to compensate for the love and attention he is being denied by his parents. (I've always said, before marriage mental tests should be required by law, not blood tests.)

DEAR ABBY: It was bad enough when my girl friend found out about my wife. But when my wife found out about my girl friend I really was in trouble. To make matters worse, these two have become very good friends and they have coffee together and they once a week. What do you think they're cooking up?

HARRY

DEAR HARRY: Your goose, probably.

DEAR ABBY: You've got to help me. I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going steady with a 22-year-old guy who keeps after me to "prove my love."

We've gone together for a year now, and Abby, I DO love him, but I just can't see myself "proving" it the way he wants me to. He says it's not wrong if two people love each other and plan to get married some day.

But Abby, I just wasn't raised that way. We fight about this all the time. He's really a swell guy, and I'd give my right arm for him. What should I do?

BLUES EYES
DEAR BLUE EYES: Tell him to be a man, "prove" his love and control himself. And if he still keeps after you, he's not worth your right arm. What he needs is a right hook.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE WITH A BELLY DANCER IN CHICAGO: "Tell her you've had a bellyfull of her excuses, and rave a "gut" feeling it won't work."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE PENNEY STORY

Why make such a big deal out of quality

By ROBERTA NASH

I asked a Penney store manager the question once and when he finally decided I was serious, he said, "If I could use only one word to describe the phenomenon of Penney's, I'd pick the word, quality."

"Mr. Penney has always been a fanatic on the subject," he continued. "They say the only thing that still makes Mr. Penney angry is when someone suggests we compromise Penney quality to make a lower price."

Baylor Rolls Past Virginia For Classic Title

Virginia Tech, Cornell, William & Mary Win

Bears Sprint By Virginia, 79-61

The Baylor Bears took the lead for good late in the first half, and rolled to a 79-61 victory over Virginia last night to capture the championship of the Eastern Carolina Classic.

The Bears dominated play from the tournament's Most Valuable Player, led the Bears to the title, dropping in 26 points.

Virginia grabbed the initial lead in the game as Mike Wilkes hit on a fast break. Gatewood tied it up with a jumper, but a foul shot by John Gidding put Virginia back on top at 3-2.

Norm Carmichael hit on a jumper to make the lead three, and it stayed there for the next three minutes. Then, Gidding hit on a bucket underneath to push the lead to four at 10-6 with 14:54 left.

Baylor then charged into the lead. Gatewood hit on a jumper and Richard Scallorn hit on a hook to tie it at 10-10.

Dave Sibley cashed in on a three point play with 13:07 showing to put the Bears into a three-point lead at 13-10, and they were in control for the next few minutes.

Virginia scrambled back and tied it at 19-19 with 8:55 left, and then John English put the Cavaliers into the lead again, 20-19.

Gatewood hit on a foul shot to put Baylor into a 20-20 tie, and Scallorn's jumper with 5:11 left put the Bears out for good.

Sibley followed with a shot from underneath to make it 24-20 and the two went through a series of swapping shots until Eddie Frazier hit on a steal to push the lead to six at 3-6 with 1:38 to go.

Gatewood got a free throw, and Scallorn made good on three straight foul shots to give Baylor an 11-point edge at the half, 37-26.

As the second half opened, Scallorn hit from the corner to push the lead to 13. But Virginia fought back and cut it back to 10 at 46-36 on a pair of free throws by Gidding.

Gidding hit again from underneath to clip it to eight and a drive by Mike Wilkes sliced it to six at 48-42 with 14:11 to go.

But in the next six minutes, Baylor outscored Virginia, 10-2 to push their lead out to 12 at 56-44 with 9:51 to play.

After that, it was just a question of how much the margin would be. Gidding fouled out shortly after that, and Virginia's biggest three was out of the game, and the Bears moved steadily out to lead by as much as 19 before the final horn.

Stretching For A Point

East Carolina's Tom Miller (10) goes high in the air to try and make a shot over the out stretched arms of Virginia Tech's Dan Wetzel (50). The Pirates came back in the final seconds of regular play to tie the game up when Miller made a three point play, but Tech went ahead in the overtime to take the game, 88-87 and grab third place in the Eastern Carolina Classic.

William & Mary Stuns Falcons

William & Mary apparently enjoyed their win Friday night, their first of the season. In fact, they enjoyed it so much, they went back for seconds Saturday afternoon, downing the Air Force, 74-71, for fifth place and the consolation championship in the Eastern Carolina Classic.

The Indians had come into the Classic without a win in seven starts, but goes away with a 2-8 mark. The Air Force, coming in with the best mark, 4-1, goes away, 5-3.

The Indians came from behind in the second half to turn the trick and become the upset team of the tournament. They trailed by as much as nine points in the first period and were down by five in the second half with 15 minutes to play.

The fine shooting of center Dave Daugherty, who poured in a tournament high of 33 points, along with pulling down 16 rebounds, was the key for the William & Mary win. Daugherty was almost the only man to do anything for the Indians in the first half, as both teams played poorly to start with.

The Air Force got the opening four points on a field goal by Cliff Parsons, who never played up to his All-American billing in the tournament; and another bucket by Mike Thiessen.

William and Mary got on the board with a fieldgoal by Harry Kent, but the Air Force got a free throw by Mike Klindt to push out by three at 5-2. Thiessen followed with another field goal, and a shot by Klindt tipped the Falcon lead to six points at 9-3.

The lead stayed about even after that until Pete Halvonik hit with 11:51 to go to put Air Force into an eight-point spread at 20-12.

Two minutes later, a pair of free throws by Charlie Brown pushed the lead out to nine at 24-13.

William & Mary then tried a brief comeback, cutting the lead down to three at 26-23. Daugherty led the way with three straight, but the win was only a short one, and the Air Force pulled out again. Aided by a pair of free throws and a basket by Parsons, the lead climbed back to five. Bert Spear hit on a steal and Thiessen hit a rebound to make it nine at 32-23 with 5:04 left.

But in the remaining minutes of the half, the Air Force got only three points, while the Indians reeled off 12 to tie it up at 35-35 at the buzzer.

Daugherty again was the key man, getting all but four points during the spree. But it was a driving shot by Tom Jancaltis that finally tied it up with 1:05 left in the half.

In the second half, the Air Force moved out into a two-point edge three straight times, only to have the Indians tie it up again. Finally, however, Klindt hit on a rebound to put the lead back to four at 44-40, and a minute later, a pair of free throws by Klindt and Parsons pushed the Falcon edge to five at 47-42.

But again, the Indians rallied, this time with Steve Dodge getting two straight to pull with on, and, after an Air Force free throw, Scott McLennan hit on a jumper to tie it up at 48-48.

It was tied again at 50-50 after the two swapped buckets, and then with the Air Force holding a 51-50 edge on Parsons' free throw, the Indians took command.

Daugherty hit on a jump with 12:08 left and took the lead, 52-51. The lead went up to as much as five as the big center continued to hit, but the Air Force rallied in the late minutes to tie it again at 63-63 and again at 65-65. Spear then put the Air Force back on top with a jumper at 67-66 with 3:48 left, but Jancaltis put the Indians ahead again, and another basket by Daugherty sealed it.

Gatewood Tops All-Tournament

Larry Gatewood, who led Baylor to the Eastern Carolina Classic championship, was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, last night in a vote by newsmen covering the event.

Gatewood dumped in 6 points in leading the final win, after having scored 19 against William & Mary and 24 against Virginia Tech in the two previous games.

Joining him on the All-Tournament team were two players from Virginia, two from Virginia Tech, one other from Baylor, and one each from East Carolina, William & Mary, Cornell and Air Force.

From Virginia came John Gidding, who paced the Cavaliers into the finals, and Norm Carmichael, his chief aide.

Baylor also landed Tommy Bowman on the team.

From Virginia Tech came Chris Ellis and Ron Wagner, while Bert Spear made the list

Cornell Strength Proves Too Much For Delaware

Cornell's Big Red pulled away from Delaware in the early minutes of the second half to gain a 93-77 victory over the Blue Hens to take seventh place in the Eastern Carolina Classic yesterday.

Cornell proved to have too much bench strength for the Blue Hens, who didn't win a game during the event. The Big Red was also strong on the boards, outrebounding Delaware, 52-46.

The Redmen were also cleaner in their ball handling, losing only three turnovers, while Delaware had 11.

The shooting of Hank South and Walt Esdaile were key factors in the win, along with the board play of Bill Schwarzkopf and South.

Cornell threatened to make a run away of it in the first half, but the Blue Hens came battling back from as much as 16 points down to pull to within two before the half was over.

The Big Red dropped in eight points before Delaware was finally able to crack the scoring ice. Esdaile put Cornell into the lead with a shot from underneath, and then Schwarzkopf hit on a rebound to make it 4-0. Chapman followed with a jumper and South made good on another shot for a 8-0 lead with 17:36 to go in the half.

Delaware finally got on the scoreboard as John McLennan made a free throw, but Cornell held on to its margin and pushed it out to nine with a shot by Schwarzkopf.

Chapman later made it 10 at 15-5 on a foul shot, and South and Chapman both made good to run it to 14. Esdaile hit from underneath to push the lead to from the Air Force.

Hank South of Cornell and Dave Daugherty of William & Mary helped their respective teams to wins, while East Carolina's Tom Miller led the Bucs all three nights as they claimed fourth place in the tournament.

The victory ruined an expected match-up between the Tar Heels and top-ranked UCLA, which met Princeton in the other semifinal.

Villanova jumped to an early lead and then held off underdog Michigan State in the second half and rolled to a 75-66 victory in a consolation semifinal after lead out to 12 at 50-38 before Delaware got into the act again.

But by then it was too late. Delaware tried to rally, cutting the lead back to five points as Dan Carnevale and Steve Jackson both hit to slice it to 55-50 with 13:8 to go. Delaware went back into a cold spell and Cornell used it to pull away for good.

Esdaile hit from underneath and South made good on a three point play. Esdaile hit a field goal and followed with two free throws with 9:51 left to give Cornell a 14-point edge, 64-60 and the Hens never cut it below 13 after that.

Jackson finally cut the lead to two with a driving layup with 2:15 left, making it 36-34. But Cornell managed to keep just ahead of the Hens, and held on for a 4-38 edge at the half.

In the second half, Cornell it came back hot, and that did it for the Hens. Buddy Witkoski hit on a pair of jumpers to push the lead back to eight points. Schwarzkopf hit on a rebound and Witkoski hit again to run the

St. John's Stuns Heels

By MIKE RECHT Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Revived up St. John's, led first by John Warren and then by his sub, Jim Smyth, and Ralph Abraham, stunned second-ranked North Carolina 72-70 Saturday night in a foul-plagued semifinal of the Holiday Festival Basketball Tournament.

The victory ruined an expected match-up between the Tar Heels and top-ranked UCLA, which met Princeton in the other semifinal.

Villanova jumped to an early lead and then held off underdog Michigan State in the second half and rolled to a 75-66 victory in a consolation semifinal after

Ed Siudut powered Holy Cross to a 78-66 decision over Providence in the other consolation game.

Smyth, who hit all of his nine points after Warren picked up his fourth foul with 14:44 left, clinched the victory with two free throws with seven seconds left for a 72-68 lead.

Dick Grubar got North Carolina's final basket in the last two seconds.

Pirates Bow In Overtime After Last Second Rally

Virginia Tech fought back from behind in the second half to overcome East Carolina last night, 87-86, in an overtime to gain third place in the Eastern Carolina Classic.

East Carolina had made a dramatic comeback in the last 30 seconds of regulation to tie it up after being five points down at that point.

But the Bucs failed at their best, the free throw, missing 11 in the game. They also missed on a last second shot as they got the ball under the basket with five seconds left.

After the Bucs had made their fantastic comeback, it looked like they were going ahead as they went to the line for a free throw early in the overtime, but missed, and the Gobblers got the rebound.

W. R. Deskins hit with 2:38 left on a jumper to put Tech back into the lead, and Ellis followed that up with 56 seconds left to give the Gobblers a four-point edge.

East Carolina pulled to within three as Miller hit on a free throw with 38 seconds left, and then Keir hit with seven seconds showing to pull within one.

The Bucs then closed in on the Gobblers on the in-bounds play and forced a turnover, getting the ball with five seconds left. But the shot missed and Virginia Tech got the rebound and with it the win.

The first half was a see-saw battle that saw neither team gain any great advantage. Virginia Tech led in the early minutes, by as much as four points, and the Pirates led down to the horn, getting out by as much as seven points before Tech rallied to cut it to two.

East Carolina got the opening lead on a foul shot by Jim Gregory, but Tech took the lead right back as Ron Wagner hit on a tap for a 2-1 Tech lead. Loyd King stole the ball on the following throw - in and put in for a 4-1 edge.

The Bucs came back on a three point play by Richard Keir to tie it up at 4-4, but King's jumper returned Tech to the lead at 6-4.

East Carolina tied it again on another three-point play as Modlin scored and then sent the Bucs ahead on the foul shot.

During the next few minutes, the lead changed hands several times as the two teams swapped shots. East Carolina led at 7-6 and 9-8 before Chris Ellis hit on a jumper for a 10-9 Gobblers edge with 16:21 to go. Wagner hit again to push the lead to three.

Two minutes later, Tech inched the lead out to four, at 15-11 as Stan Kerrick hit. But the Pirates battled back, and finally tied it upon a pair of free throws by Tom Miller. Tech went out again on a shot from the corner for a 21-19 edge, but a pair of free throws by Earl Thompson tied it again.

Modlin then hit on a jumper to give the lead to East Carolina at 23-11 with 9:53 left, and for the rest of the half, the Bucs were in the lead.

Miller hit a jumper to push the lead to 25-21, and it stayed in the two to four range for most of the rest of the way as the two traded baskets.

East Carolina finally pushed the lead out to five at 37-32 on two free throws by Collins, and then made it seven on two more by Collins, at 41-34.

Tech came back, however to cut the lead to two at the half. W. R. Deskins hit twice to cut it to three, and after an East Carolina free throw, Ellis dropped the margin to two and that held until intermission.

In the second half, East Carolina was in control for most of the first 10 minutes, before Tech finally got back in. Modlin hit a free throw to make it 48-45, but Tech cut it back to one as Ellis hit. Keir made two free throws and Modlin followed with a tap. Thompson then hit on a fast break to push the lead out to seven at 54-47, and it looked like the Bucs were off and running.

But Tech refused to die, and fought back again. For the next few minutes the two swapped baskets before Tech finally outside to eventually take the lead. Loyd King hit from the outside to make it 62-57, and a three point play by King brought it to one.

East Carolina made a free throw, but Dale Manuel hit on a rebound to tie it up. The Bucs went out two more times - by two, and each time Virginia Tech tied it up, finally as Ellis hit from outside to make it 65-65. King then dropped in one on a jumper for a Tech lead at 67-65.

East Carolina regained the lead on a shot by Thompson at 70-69. Tech got a free throw, and Gregory dropped in a three point play to push the lead back to four. But Tech fought back and regained the lead on King's jumper at 76-75. East Carolina took it back on a shot by Miller at 77-76, but Tech shot back ahead as Deskins hit again.

From there Tech pushed out by five points, as Ellis hit twice and appeared to have it locked up as they led 84-78.

But Modlin hit from underneath to cut it to three with 23 seconds left. The Bucs got it back on a turnover and Miller made a three point conversion to tie it with 13 seconds left.

That made it 84-84 and set up the extra period.

Wagner had 22 to lead Tech, while Ellis and King each had 21. Deskins added 11.

For East Carolina, Tom Miller had 24, Modlin had 23, Thompson had 15, and Keir had 13.

New York U. Tops Citadel

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—Hot-shooting New York University raced past The Citadel 87-63 to capture the 10th annual Pointsettia Classic Saturday night.

Third place honors went to Memphis State with a 79-69 victory over host Furman.

In the first half New York University connected on 60 per cent of its shots while racing to a 46-33 advantage. In the second half the Violets continued to hit accurately, finishing the game with a 57.1 per cent average from the floor.

The Citadel hit for only 39.3 per cent.

New York was led by Paul Dobleman who scored 21 points. He was followed by James Figornlie with 18 and James Miller with 17.

The Citadel was paced by Ben Taylor with 13. Willie Taylor and Tee Hooper each added 12. Rich Jones, etc., 3rd graph

Both Delaware, Cornell Coaches Say Teams Tired

"The flu broke up the momentum of our season," commented Coach Dan Peterson yesterday, after his Delaware team had taken their third straight loss in the Eastern Carolina Classic, this time to Cornell. Cornell had taken their first win of the tournament, as both teams were sparing for seventh and eighth place honors of the tourney.

Coach Peterson felt his team played a bad game, "They beat us on the boards, and got the outside shots."

The Delaware team was trying to get back in condition after taking a round with the flu through most of the team, including the coach. The Blue Hens had taken their first three games of the season, then the flu hit them and threw them off balance. Peterson felt his team just wasn't in shape to play 40 minutes of ball.

excuse," Peterson added.

The Cornell team wasn't in the best of shape either. Coach Jerry Lacey had to use his big center, Walt Easdale to bring the ball up court, because his best guard was home with the flu, and couldn't get here in time to play even after he got better.

"We were both pretty tired," Lacey commented. "We got to do what we wanted to do this game, more so than the other games we have played in."

Lacey felt his team was stronger inside, and Delaware, just couldn't stop the big man Easdale stated.

Easdale is a 240 pound senior from Connecticut, who is planning to go into banking next year. He commented on his newly acquired position of a guard plus the center position in saying he has finally gotten used to playing two roles. Last year Easdale felt it hurt his scoring but has been improving this year, and gotten into the scoring more.

Walking softly and carrying a big stick, is a phrase that could be used to describe the big senior, who speaks softly and carries a lot of weight on a basketball court.

Commenting on the tournament as a whole, Coach Lacey felt it was a fine tournament, and so did Coach Peterson of Delaware.

"It was a fine tournament, and a first class operation," Peterson stated. "This was the best officiated game of the tournament," Peterson added.

Walt Easdale, the Cornell center, felt the tournament was a good one, but wasn't use to the type of officiating we have here.

"These officials will let you get by with some things and call you for others that our officials would do the opposite of," Easdale said.

Cornell goes back home today and gets back into action in their conference, as they play Columbia January 4th.

Missouri Pops Alabama, 35-10

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Missouri startled Alabama with a fresh formation perfected in secret workouts and blunted the Crimson Tide's attack with a vicious defense that swept the Tigers to a 35-10 Gator Bowl triumph Saturday.

Tricky Terry McMillan, lanky Missouri quarterback, directed the Tigers' newly-installed Power I offense that humbled the heralded Alabama defense before a crowd of 68,011 and pinned the worst bowl licking ever on the Crimson Tide.

McMillan, a high school scrub at Coral Gables, Fla., scored three Tiger touchdowns on short runs and baffled Alabama throughout the nationally televised football battle with his deft pitchouts on the option play.

However, McMillan never completed a pass, and he had a pair of tosses picked off that gave Alabama its only points. Defensive back Donnie Sutton raced 38 yards with an interception for an Alabama touchdown in the second quarter, and Mike Dean's fourth quarter interception set up his 5-yard field goal.

The Tiger defense, anchored by ends Elmer Penhardt and Bill Schmitt, blunted Alabama's running and passing attack. Tide quarterbacks were thrown for losses nine times.

Alabama, losing three games in a season for the first time since 1956, managed only three first downs in the first three quarters. The Tide stayed in contention until the late minutes only with the help of its two pass interceptions and a pair of Tiger fumbles.

But Roger Wehrli, Missouri's All-American safety, clinched the Tigers' fourth straight bowl triumph with a late interception that set up McMillan's third touchdown, a two-yard run.

Fumble Sets Up West Shrine Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Louis Thomas of Utah recovered a fumble on the East 13-yard line in the second quarter, setting up the go-ahead touchdown and the West went on to upset the East 18-7 in the 44th annual Shrine College Football Game Saturday.

The fumble came after Nebraska's Joe Armstrong punted to the East 23-yard line, where Ed Podolak of Iowa was jarred loose from the ball and Thomas recovered it in the air and was downed at the 13.

Two plays later, West quarterback Ronnie Johnson of Oklahoma State hit Thomas with a pass at the one-yard line. Two plays after that, Johnson fell across the goal for the go-ahead touchdown.

That made the score 12-7 midway through the second period and it stood that way in a bruising defensive battle until, with 3:52 left in the game, Johnson found Stanford's Gene Washington in the end zone with a 29-yard pass.

The East scored first when Podolak, playing quarterback, found that despite a backfield of potent runners—Purdue's Leroy Keyes, Michigan's Ron Johnson and Army's Charlie Jarvis—he could do better himself.

Podolak, who was a running back-flanker at Iowa this year, played all three positions in this game. He gained 39 yards on three keepers. Then after Michigan's Johnson brought the ball to within a foot of the goal line, Podolak bulled over for the score, giving the East a 7-0 lead.

The West came back on a 27-yard pass from Brooks Dawson of Texas-El Paso to Washington and a brilliant 33-yard reception by Wyoming's Gene Huey, who broke three tackles to get to the East line.

Three plays later, Huey made a diving catch of a five-yard Dawson pass in the end zone. California's Ron Miller missed the extra point.

After the West moved out front with a touchdown in the second quarter, Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney elected to have his squad try for a two-point conversion.

Dawson hit Washington with a pass, but Washington was tackled short of the goal line, and the half ended 12-7.

After the third touchdown, Miller tried to kick the extra point again, and this time the ball hit the upright and bounced away.

Gray Defense Shines In Win

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A tough Gray defense stole the spotlight Saturday in what was billed as a battle of offenses, and the Grays defeated the Blues 28-7 in the 31st annual Blue-Gray Classic.

Turning the first of four pass interceptions into a touchdown early in the first quarter, the Grays took a 7-0 lead with less than four minutes played in the ball game and the Blues never caught up.

With Jim Marsalis of Tennessee State supplying the spark, the Gray defense put the route to the nation's collegiate offensive leader, Greg Cook of Cincinnati.

Cook, who went most of the way for the Blues at quarterback, passed for more than 3,000 yards during the regular season. But he spent a frustrating afternoon here in historic Crampton Bowl.

Marsalis, voted the game's outstanding defensive player, stole three of Cook's passes and Wall Orrell of South Carolina picked off a fourth as the Grays maintained a shutout until the final quarter.

Edd Hargett of Texas A&M and Sim Byrd, a hometown boy from Troy State, shared the quarterback honors for the Grays. But it was flashy Dicky Lyons of Kentucky who won the vote as the game's outstanding player.

Lyons returned a punt for 45 yards and a touchdown in the second quarter and caught a three-yard pass from Byrd for a score in the fourth to lead the Gray attempt.

A crowd of 18,000 watched the game viewed by a national television audience. The Blues have won 13 and there has never been a tie.

Rich Johnson of Illinois scored the Blues' only touchdown in the fourth quarter and that cut the margin to 13-7.

But the Grays came right back on a 74-yard touchdown drive capped by the touchdown pass to Lyons, and then Hargett hit Paul Gipson for a two-pointer to maintain Gray control.

Byrd scored from one yard out with less than three minutes remaining to cap the scoring.

Shannon: We Beat Good Team

"I feel like we played three ball games tonight," commented Coach Tom Quinn of East Carolina last night. His Pirates had come back from a three point deficit in the final seconds of regulation play against Virginia Tech, to tie the game up, then fell to the Tech team in a five minute overtime.

Tom Miller, the outstanding guard for the Pirates, made a fine three point play in the final seconds of regulation play to tie the game up at 75 all.

Coach Quinn felt his team played a real good game for the entire game, and that this was their second best game of the year.

Miller, of East Carolina, kept the Pirates in the game, and Coach Howie Shanon of Virginia Tech, commented that Miller was one of the finest players in the tournament.

"We beat a real good team tonight, under difficult circumstances," Shannon added. "Wagner kept us in the first half."

"We still haven't found anybody to go to when we really need a basket," Quinn added. "The down court press didn't bother us tonight." In Friday's game, the Pirates had been bothered badly by a down court press on their guards by Virginia.

"We also had an inside game tonight," Quinn stated.

The Tech team left most of their shooting up to their outside men, and the two hot shooting guards were little too much for the Pirates.

"Ellis shooting was outstanding," Quinn stated. "He's a real fine athlete. Modlin played his best game of the year."

Duke Snaps Losing String

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Duke shattered its four-game basketball losing streak and whipped Clemson's Tigers 96-70 Thursday night with 53 per cent shooting in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

The Blue Devils shot 62 per cent in a rousing first half in which they led Clemson 55-25, outscoring the Tigers 19-2 in a six-minute span to storm ahead 47-19.

Five Duke players scored in double figures, sophomore Rick Katherman leading the way with 18 points and senior Fred Lind hitting 17 while grabbing 13 rebounds. Another soph, Dick DeVenzio, scored 14 points, hitting all seven shots, and dealing out 11 assists.

Richie Mahaffey was the Clemson leader with 16 as Tiger ace Butch Zatezalo scored only six points. He hit only two of 12 shots as Duke defenders, led by DeVenzio, harassed him throughout.

Duke held a 64-40 rebound edge, 6-foot-10 Randy Denton grabbing 16.

O'Brien Leads In Spider Bowl Win

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Richmond smashed to a 49-42 football victory over favored and previously unbeaten Ohio University Friday night in the Tangerine Bowl.

Quarterback Buster O'Brien and split end Walker Gillette anchored an explosive aerial attack to keep ahead of the Bobcats, Mid-American Conference champions and a 10-0-0 team going into the game.

Richmond overcame Ohio's early 7-0 lead and fought to a 7-7 tie at the end of the first quarter, then burst ahead 28-21 at halftime.

But the Spiders, No. 1 team in the Southern Conference after a 7-3 season, were tied early in the third quarter when Ohio quarterback Cleve Bryant lobbed a 45-yard touchdown pass to Todd Snyder.

Then a near-capacity crowd of 16,114—almost 6,000 more than ever before—roared as Richmond sealed its victory on a nine-yard run by Joe Kellum, followed by a 12-yard pass from O'Brien to Jim Crenshaw.

The Bobcats managed to close the gap again on an 89-yard kickoff return by Snyder to the Richmond one and Dave Leveck's plunge.

But the Spiders sealed it with a 15-yard O'Brien pass to Jim Livesay which pushed the score to 49-34.

Although he managed only one touchdown, Gillette logged 4 yards in catching 20 of O'Brien's 39 completions. O'Brien was credited with 47 yards passing and 39 yards rushing. Gillette was named most valuable lineman and O'Brien most valuable back of the game.

Ohio's Snyder picked up 214 yards in 11 pass receptions, three for touchdowns, and Bryant completed 17 of 33 passes for 223 yards.

Mitchell Says Coming Around

"They're coming around," was what Coach Warren Mitchell of William and Mary had to say after his Indians had taken their second straight victory, after going for eight straight games with losses. The Indians downed the Air Force, 74-71, to take the consolation championship in the Classic yesterday afternoon.

The Falcons pressed the Indians in the first half, but the ball wasn't turned over as much as the Air Force would have liked it to be Mitchell felt.

"They weren't getting the fast breaks either," Mitchell added. The Indians didn't have the spells they have having and played a more even ball game.

Mitchell felt the big difference in the game, was the Indians inside game, "We worked pretty good with them on the inside," Mitchell commented.

The Indians handled the ball well, especially in the second half, when the score was separated by three points, and the Falcons won the ball.

"We've lost a lot of games because of our inability to handle the ball," Mitchell added. Coach Bob Spear of the Air Force felt his team didn't play up to par today. The Falcons took the early lead in the game, which is unusual for them, since Spear feels his team is a second half ball club.

"William and Mary is a very well disciplined and very well coached ball club," Spear stated. "They get the maximum out of what they do."

The Falcons were playing without the use of their best back court man in Mark Bean, who is out with a sprained ankle. Spear stated he relied on Beans outside shooting, and they needed it yesterday, with the Indians shutting the Falcons inside men out.

Coach Mitchell commented on the tournament as a whole, saying it was well organized. The Indians face VPI Saturday, and West Virginia Monday.

The Air Force takes on Denver then Navy after leaving the Classic.

Charge!

Cornell's Gregg Otto gets slammed by Jim Cooper of the Air Force, as he attempts a shot in Friday night's consolation bracket game. The Air Force rallied in the second half to overcome the Big Red and gain the fifth place final.

Gobblers Up For Rebound

Virginia Tech's Chris Ellis pulls down a rebound as teammate Dan Wetzel goes up to help him. Waiting below is Tommy Bowman of Baylor. The Bears took command early in Friday's game to edge Virginia Tech, 66-63, and go into Saturday night's finals.

Baylor, William & Mary, Air Force Win Friday

Air Force Rally Carries By Cornell

The Air Force got out of its sputtering biplane and into its X-15 in the second half Friday to roar from behind and take an 85-70 victory over Cornell in the consolation bracket of the Eastern Carolina Classic.

Cornell had led by as much as 17 points in the first half, and held a nine point edge at the half.

But in the first 10 minutes of the second half, the Air Force poured in 22 points, while Cornell's Big Red found the range for only eight. Over one eight minute period, the margin was 20-1 in favor of the Air Force.

The Falcons had their troubles in the first half however, and looked to be completely out of the running before their big spurt came.

Hank South, who dumped in 24 points in the first half for Cornell, put the Redmen ahead after 30 seconds at 2-0. Walt Esdaile added a free throw and Bill Schwarzkopf picked up two quick jumpers for a 7-0 lead with 17:21 showing in the first half.

The Falcons finally got on the scoreboard after nearly three minutes as Cliff Parsons dropped in a foul shot. South hit another basket however, and Mike Thiessen got an Air Force foul shot to make it 9-2.

South then ran off a string of seven points on his own, but the Air Force matched it to keep the margin the same until Esdaile hit on a foul shot to push the lead to 10 at 16:56 with 14:17 to go.

After another pair of shots by the two teams, South pushed the lead to 12, and with 11:06 left, George Chapman hit on a jumper to make it 14 at 23-9. The margin stayed there for the next three minutes, then Esdaile got a three-pointer to give Cornell its biggest lead of the game, 30-13 with 7:49 to go.

The Air Force then began to do a little better. Using the line to great advantage, the Falcons whittled away at the lead. Getting 11 straight at the line, with Pete Halvonik picking up six of those, the Falcons cut the lead back to eight points at 36-28 with 4:17 to go. Bert Spear then dropped in a jumper to cut it to six. A minute later, Thiessen got the ball on a steal to score and drop the margin to four at 38-34 with 3:07 left in the half.

But Cornell pulled away again, and built their lead back to 14 with South leading the way. They dumped in 10 straight points while holding the Falcons scoreless to lead 48-34 with 1:08 left.

The Falcons however, got a basket from Halvonik and a three point play from Mike Kelley to pull back to trail 48-39 at the half.

After intermission the Air Force came back with a full-court press and Cornell simply couldn't handle it. With Spear and Kelley leading the way with their sharp ballhandling and stealing, the Air Force came soaring back.

Esdaile scored the opening basket for the Red, for an 11-point spread, but Cornell didn't get another point until they were five points behind.

Thiessen hit from the corner and Kelley made a jumper for the Air Force, Mike Klindt scored from the corner and Spear hit on two straight to cut the lead back to just one, at 50-49 with 17:25 to go.

Thiessen then struck from the corner to put the Falcons ahead, and they were never behind again. Parsons scored from underneath, and Spear stole the ball again to push the lead to five at 55-50 before Cornell finally got back into the act, on a free throw by Buddy Witkoski.

After that, there was very little left to determine but the final margin. The Falcons were in complete control. Cornell managed to cut the lead back to three at 59-56, but the Air Force flew away from them building up as much as a 17-point spread before it was over.

Spear led the Falcons to the win with 14 points, while Kelley, Parsons and Jim Cooper each had 13. Thiessen followed with 10.

For Cornell, South had 27, getting only three more in the second half. Esdaile had 13 and Schwarzkopf had 10.

Cornell was shut off so completely that the Redmen managed only eight field goals in the second half.

After that, there was very little left to determine but the final margin. The Falcons were in complete control. Cornell managed to cut the lead back to three at 59-56, but the Air Force flew away from them building up as much as a 17-point spread before it was over.

Gimme Some Help

Tom Miller of East Carolina holds the ball away from two Virginia defenders, as he looks for someone to pass to. Guarding him are Norm Carmichael (44) and John English (20). Virginia overcame a 16-point East Carolina lead to win. Miller led the Buc effort with 21 points.

Cavaliers Rally From 16 Down As Bucs Tumble

Virginia's Cavaliers were in the dressing room when the Air Force rallied from 17 down to beat Cornell in the first game Friday night in the Eastern Carolina Classic, but they still took a cue from the outcome.

For the Cavaliers found themselves down 16 points to East Carolina after a minute of play in the second half, yet came back to win, 88-79.

Virginia used a full-court press to upset the Pirates, who had played superb ball in the first half, but could manage only six field goals in the final 20 minutes, and had to rely on the foul line to even stay close.

The play of John Gidding kept the Cavaliers close enough to rally in the first half, as he dropped in 16 points, 10 at the foul line. Then in the second half, he added 11 more to help pace the win. Norm Carmichael hit on 11 also, but it was the outside shooting of John English and Tony Kinn that meant the difference, cracking the Pirates' defense.

Gidding put Virginia into the opening lead, but Tom Miller tied it up for the Bucs. Carmichael hit from underneath to push Virginia out by two and after the Bucs got a free throw, English hit on a jumper to make it 6-3.

Virginia built its lead to four points at 10-6 on another outside shot by English, but the Bucs came roaring back. Rick Collins hit to cut the lead to two and Richard Keir scored on a fast break to tie it at 10-10. Earl Thompson then hit a jumper to put the Bucs into a 12-10 lead with 15:40 to go.

Virginia returned to the lead with a three-point play by Gidding, at 13-12, but East Carolina got it back on another Thompson jumper. English tied it up with a free throw, and for the next few minutes the two teams swapped shots, tying it twice more before Miller's jumper with 9:40 to go put the Bucs out at 22-20.

Virginia got a foul shot, and Miller hit again on a jumper for a three point lead. A Miller free shot pushed the lead to four at 25-21, and the Bucs appeared in command.

Slowly, East Carolina pulled away from the Cavaliers. Jim Gregory pushed the lead to six with a shot from the corner at 32-26, and a pair of free throws by Miller made the lead eight, 36-28.

Gregory hit again with 2:45 left to push the lead to nine, and a jumper by Thompson made it 10 at 44-34, as the Cavaliers made good only from the line. Then, leading 46-36, the Bucs got a free shot by Thompson and a rebounding shot by Mike Dunn to push their lead to 13 at 49-36, but Virginia came back to cut the lead to 12 at 51-39 by the end of the half.

In the opening minute of play, the Bucs pushed their lead to 16 as Thompson hit on two field goals to make it 55-39. It looked then like the Bucs were going to run the Cavaliers out of Minges Coliseum and gain an easy trip to the finals.

But the Cavaliers had ideas of their own, and quickly put them to work. Their press began to bother the Bucs, who got only four more field goals in the remaining 18:55 of play.

Gidding hit from underneath to cut the lead to 14, and English made a jumper. Carmichael hit on a foul shot and English struck again, cutting the lead to nine at 55-46.

East Carolina got a pair of free throws to go back out by 11, but a basket by Gidding, followed by a three-point play by the big Virginia center, pushed the lead back to just six points at 57-51.

English followed with a jumper, and after an East Carolina free throw, he hit again to cut the lead to just three, 58-55.

The Bucs got another free throw, but Gidding hit from underneath the basket to slice the lead to two. And after another ECU charity shot, a shot by John Hill pulled the Cavaliers to within one at 60-59. Finally, Carmichael hit on a free throw to tie it up at 60-60 with 13:13 left.

Miller hit on a shot from the corner to put the Bucs back out by two, but a three point play by Carmichael with 12:25 showing gave Virginia the lead for the first time since the early part of the game. Jim Kiernan put the Bucs back out with a pair of free throws, but Kinn hit to put Virginia back on top. Kiernan again got two free throws to return the lead to the Pirates, but again, Kinn hit on a jumper to give Virginia a 69-68 edge. Jim Modlin tied it again for East Carolina, but another jumper by Kinn gave Virginia a 69-67 edge with 10:13 to go.

Carmichael hit on a pair of free throws, and Bill Multon hit on a jumper to push the lead to six, and it was all over but the shouting.

East Carolina never came within four after that, while Virginia led by as much as 10 in the closing seconds.

Gidding finished with 27 points, while Carmichael had 15, English had 14 and Kinn had 12.

For East Carolina, Miller poured in 21, Thompson and Modlin each had 14 and Gregory and Kier added 11 each.

William & Mary Halts Loss String With Win

William & Mary's Indians broke a 22-game road losing streak and won their first game in nine starts this year Friday, downing hapless Delaware, 82-76, in the second round of play in the consolation bracket of the Eastern Carolina Classic. The win moved the Indians into the battle for fifth place, while Delaware goes into the seventh place battle.

The Indians wore down the depth-shy Blue Hens to account for the victory. The Hens, obviously tired, used only six players, and again, went through a 10-minute period in the second half with only six points.

William & Mary took full advantage of this by charging into the lead. With 16:48 to play in the game, Delaware held a 12-point edge, at 54-42. But for the next 10 minutes, the freeze went into effect at the Delaware end of the court, and William & Mary took full advantage of it. During the period, William & Mary pumped in 26 points to five for the Hens, and the Indians held a 68-60 lead with 7:20 remaining.

William & Mary held on to the lead despite a Delaware rally after that to take the game. Delaware took the lead at the start, as Jim Couch hit from the corner, and Steve Jackson followed with a driving layup for a 4-0 edge.

But William & Mary came back to take the lead, using the free throw line for most of their points. Tom Jancatis hit on two tosses at the stripe, and Dave Daugherty followed with two more to tie it up. Paul King then struck from the corner, and the Indians were ahead, 6-4.

Delaware came back to take the lead at 8-7 on a driving shot by Couch, but William & Mary took the lead back again.

Following an exchange of shots, the Indians pushed out into a four-point lead, as King picked up a three-point play with 14:20 left. Delaware came back again, however, to tie it up at 15-15 and again at 17-17 before the Indians took the advantage at 19-17 on a rebounding shot by Harry Kent. Delaware got a free throw by Loren Pratt, who again played most of the game in foul trouble, drawing four in the first half. The Indians followed that up with a basket by Jancatis and another by Kent to push the lead to five at 23-18 with 10:21 to play in the half.

After holding about the same pace for most of the remaining five minutes, Delaware finally cut away the Indian edge and tied it up at 29-29, and then took the lead on Jack McMullen's shot from underneath at 31-29 with 6:46 to go. The lead again changed hands a couple of times on swapped shots, but Delaware finally got it at 40-39 as McMullen made good on a foul shot.

A three point play by Dave Hottenstein on a da basket ball Couch pushed the Blue Hen margin to seven at 48-41 by the end of the half.

Scott McLennan hit to cut the lead to nine at 56-47, and the race was on. Steve Dodge got a rebound and then drove in for another to cut it to five. After swapping shots, King hit to drop the margin to three.

The Hens got a foul shot, but a basket by King cut the lead to two. Kent tied it up with a jumper with 11:01 left at 59-59, and then put the Indians into the lead for good with a three-pointer with 10:39 showing, making it 62-59.

William & Mary got baskets from Dodge and King to push it to seven. After that, Delaware tried desperately to rally, and eventually did cut the lead back to one as Couch and Jackson paced a comeback to within a point at 71-70. But a basket by McLennan and a technical foul against the Hens brought the lead back to four, and Delaware couldn't cut it after that.

The Indians went out by as much as seven in the closing seconds before the final six-point spread.

Couch led Delaware with 23 points, while Jackson had 19, Roth had 13, and Pratt had 10. For William & Mary, Kent had 16, Daugherty and King each had 14 and Dodge and Jancatis both had 10.

Baylor Edges Past Techmen

The Baylor Bears, pressing all the way, withstood one by Virginia Tech to take a 66-63 victory in the second round of the Eastern Carolina Classic Friday and gain the championship finals.

Baylor pressed from the start, and pulled away from Tech to hold as much as a nine-point lead in the first half. Virginia Tech pressed in the second half, but weren't able to cut into the lead until the final few minutes of play.

The game was a whizzer as far as the spectators were concerned. The two were close all the way, and it was a toss-up until the final few seconds as to who would gain the victory.

The Bears, however, were able to get the ball inside for the good shots, and caused Virginia Tech to make mistakes. Virginia Tech grabbed the opening lead as Stan Kerrick hit on a jumper after 30 seconds. David Sibley got a free throw for Baylor, and the two swapped shots after that until Eddie Frazier finally hit on a free throw with 16:11 to go to tie it at 8-8.

Tech pushed back into the lead as Dan Wetzel hit from underneath to make it 10-8, but a shot by Sibley tied it again, this time at 11-11.

Frazier hit from the corner to put Baylor into a 13-11 lead, and the Bears were never behind again.

After Loyd King hit a free throw for the Gobblers, Larry Gatewood hit on a jumper and Sibley dropped in a hook to push the lead to five at 17-12 with 11:34 to go.

Virginia Tech twice cut the lead back to one at 17-16 and 19-18, but Baylor refused to give up the lead. Gatewood tapped in a basket and then made a free throw. Tommy Bowman hit from the corner, and Gatewood hit on two free throws to push the lead to 26-18 with 8:16 to go.

The lead dropped back to four twice, at 26-22 and 28-24, but Baylor held to its edge, and pushed out by nine before the half ended. Frazier hit on two free throws and then Randy Thompson made another to make it 35-26 at the intermission.

At the start of the second half, Virginia Tech came out in its press and promptly caused two turnovers and cut four points from the lead. Chris Ellis and Wetzel both hit to make the margin 36-32.

Thompson hit on a jumper to push the lead back to seven, and again the two teams went into a series of swapped points, as the lead ranged between eight and four points.

With 14:33 to play, Ellis hit to cut the margin to three at 45-42, but a three-point play by Richard Scallorn pushed the lead back to six at 48-42.

Again there was a period of swapping points, until the lead climbed to eight on a steal by Bowman at 63-55 with 3:58 to go.

It was then that Baylor almost threw it away. Kerrick hit to cut it to six and Wetzel followed from underneath to slice it to four.

Ellis hit on a pair of free throws with 2:24 left and that cut it to just two at 63-61. Neither team could score, however, until Sibley was fouled with 49 seconds left, and sank one free throw. Gatewood made good on two more with 19 seconds left to make the margin five, and Tech could cut only two off in the remaining seconds.

For Tech, all of the action was with Wetzel, who poured in 26 points, high for the tournament at the time. Kerrick added 11.

Baylor was led by Gatewood, who had 24, while Sibley had 14 and Bowman had 12.

The difference actually was on the line. Baylor hit on 26 of 32 shots, while Tech hit on only 11 of 16. Tech actually beat Baylor from the floor, 52-40.

Indians Scalp Blue Hens

Harry Kent goes up with a shot for William & Mary in Friday's game with Delaware despite blocking attempts by Ed

Roth (40) and Loren Pratt. William & Mary won, 82-76, to break an eight-game losing streak for the season.

Virginia Strategy Pays Off With Win

"The story of the game was we didn't handle our temporary prosperity," Coach Tim Quinn of East Carolina stated Friday night after his team had lost a 12 point half time lead to Virginia, and finally end up with a 88-79 defeat.

The Pirates had out played the Cavaliers in the first half, and were taking the good shots, but felt they did exactly opposite of this for the first six plays of the second half. Quinn stated he felt the momentum of the game changed in the first five to six minutes of the second half.

"We hadn't lost the ball game then," Quinn added. "Gidding always seemed to be open," Gidding picked up 27 points for the Cavaliers.

Coach Bill Gibson of Virginia stated he used a different technique in the second half, that he felt changed the complexion of the game.

"We used our guards to chase their guards, and try to force the inside men to take the shots from the outside. The strategy must have worked, for the Pirates only hit for six field goals in the second half.

"Fulton made some key plays defensively that helped change the complexion also," Gibson stated. "Miller and Thompson (E. C.) are two fine guards."

Virginia meets Baylor in the finals now, and again they will be meeting two good guards.

"We respect them," Gibson finally stated.

Hold It Right There

Virginia's Bill Fulton reaches in to get a hand on the ball as Jim Modlin of East Carolina tries to pick up a loose one. Surrounding Modlin are John Gidding (22), Kevin Kenelly (41) and Norm Carmichael (44). Virginia rallied to beat Carolina Friday night, 88-79.

Mitchell Glad To See A Win

"UCLA may win the national championship, but they won't be any happier than I am right now," commented Coach Warren Mitchell of William and Mary Friday. His team had broken an eight game losing streak downing Delaware 82-76 in the second round of the Eastern Carolina Classic. The Indians also ended a 22 game losing streak on the road.

Mitchell felt the turning point of the game for the Indians was when they were 14 points down. They called a time out to get themselves together, then used their remaining time outs to keep themselves together during the remainder of the game.

Delaware was ahead by seven points at the half, but the Indians kept coming back to later tie it up and go ahead. Delaware didn't give up though and later tied it up and the lead kept switching back and forth.

Coach Dan Peterson of Delaware felt his team's defeat was due to a lack of team work on the Blue Hens part.

"We had too much individualism, and not enough team work," Peterson stated. "That's how you blow a ball game, and that's what we did."

Loren Pratt of Delaware, who fouled out early in the Virginia Tech game Thursday didn't foul out against William and Mary, but he also didn't hit for the points he usually does. The Indians did a good job of controlling Pratt, who picked up 10 points. Jim Couch, of Delaware, was the high scorer for the Blue Hens with 23. Couch did a lot of one man scoring late in the game to pick the Delaware team up and bring them back in the game, but it wasn't enough.

"We stopped offensively," Peterson stated, "and William and Mary didn't give up."

"McLennan did a good job for us," Mitchell commented. "He watched for the good shot and handled the ball well. Our sophomores who hurt us yesterday (Thursday) pulled it out for us today." "We needed this one."

East Carolina Club In Friday Swimming Lead

The East Carolina University Athletic Association built up a big lead Friday in the first day of activity in the Eastern Carolina Swimming and Diving Classic.

The ECUAA held a 450 point total after half of the competition, while Plattsburgh State College of New York was second with 96 points.

Following were Greensboro Grimsley High School, Rose High School, the Greensboro Swimming Association, James Blair High School, the University of North Carolina and Portsmouth YMCA.

In the girls section of the event, the Greensboro Swimming Association held a 46-33 lead over Cincinnati, while the ECUAA had 13 points.

Rod And Gun: 1968 Was Just Average Outdoors

By ROD AMUNDSON

Year-end odds and ends: A. D. 1968 was just an average year where hunting and fishing and boating were concerned. More hunting and fishing licenses were sold and more boats registered than during the previous year, but this is an average situation. Despite the gradual increase in license sales, wildlife conservation costs have increased at an even higher rate. This leaves the Commission with a choice between finding more money to operate on and cutting back on services.

Early fall hunting was good to excellent for doves and marsh hens, but on the opening days of squirrel, deer, rabbit and quail seasons usually warm weather hampered hunting.

Waterfowl hunters hit the eather a little bit better, and with this, bagged more birds during the early part of the season than last year. Despite better hunting success, the waterfowl count is down, and goose hunters find it difficult to bag even a limit of only one bird per day.

Changeable weather throughout the fishing season hampered salt water angling, and while no records were set, this kind of fishing in general, was excellent. About the same can be said for salt water fishing.

While many Tar Heel communities are plagued with packs of wild dogs, the situation here is nothing like that in Sister State Georgia. A Georgia Game Commission report to its General Assembly said that in 1967 free-running wild dogs killed $871,689.00 worth of cattle, and the report advocates a series of public hearings to try to find out the inroads these dogs make on sheep, swine, and poultry.

Most authorities believe domestic dogs are descendants of Eurasian wolves, and have been developed into a variety of useful and ornamental breeds by selective breeding. But canine nature is much like human nature in at least on respect. It hasn't changed perceptibly over the centuries.

When dogs stray off, or worse, are dumped off along the road to fend for themselves, they either starve to death or revert back to the habits and cunning of their wild ancestors. They instinctively form into packs, and become dangerous, vicious killers, attacking anything that get in their way including human beings.

With their innate cunning and intelligence, wild dogs are extremely hard to control, thus creating a real problem to livestock and poultry breeders, not to mention hunters on whose favorite game they prey.

Obvious remedy, of course, is to provide homes for dogs or dispose of unwanted dogs humanely.

Cats are natural prowling predators, and even the most affectionate feline house pet becomes a hunter when she is turned outside to prowl. Many cats become completely wild, but the main difference between these and house pets is that they feed entirely on wildlife rather than taking an occasional bird or young rabbit.

Here are upcoming dates for Tar Heel sportsmen to mark on their calendars: February 20, 21, and 22. The N. C. Wildlife Federation will hold its annual convention at the Sir Walter Sheridan Hotel in Raleigh on those days. Three business sessions are scheduled, and the annual Conservation Awards Dinner is set for Friday night, February 21.

Air Force Is 2nd Half Club

"We are a second half ball club," stated Coach Bob Spear of the Air Force Friday night after his team had made a repeat performance of their opening game of the Eastern Carolina classic, except this time they came out on the top, taking a 85-70 win over Cornell.

In their opening game, the Falcons had come back in the second half, to almost down Virginia, but the clock ran out before they could cut the five remaining points that separated the two teams.

In Friday's game, the Falcons cut the lead a little earlier, and went past the Big Red of Cornell.

One of the major factors for the Falcons win was the two fine guards the Air Force has in Kelley and Spear.

"Those two little kids were all over us," Coach Jerry Lacey of Cornell commented.

Coach Spear stated his ball club has had to come from behind in five of the seven ball games they have played in this year, because of the slowness they have gotten off to in the first ten minutes of each game. "Parsons played a lot better for us tonight than he did last night," Spear commented. "I didn't think our press would be as effective as it was."

Lacey felt the pressure the Falcons put on in the second half was the key to their defeat. He stated that they had lost three ball games due to second half pressure this year.

Cornell was so harassed by the two Air Force guards, that Lacey had to use Easdale, a center, to bring the ball up court, and he felt this really hurt his team.

"I felt we did a nice job until we lost our poise," Lacey finally commented.

Menefee Looks To Playing At Night

"It's nice to win and get off this matinee and play at night," commented Coach Bill Menefee Friday after his Baylor Bears had upset Virginia Tech in the second round of the Classic.

Tech had been favored to take the tournament until the Bears put up a fine defensive game Friday afternoon to down the Virginia Tech team, 66-63.

"Both teams played well," Menefee stated, "but neither hit their season's scoring average, ours is around 78 and I think theirs is too."

Menefee felt his team's defense was the most important part of the game.

"I feel it won the game for us," Menefee added. "We knew Ellis was a good shooter, so we put our best defensive man on him. I think we controlled him pretty well."

Coach Howe Shannon, of Virginia Tech said, "We had an opportunity to win the ball game. We gambled too early in the second half with the press and got into foul trouble. Our judgment on shot selection wasn't too good either. They are just as sound fundamentally as any team we have played."

Tech had two men with four fouls on them early in the game and Shannon felt this really hurt them.

"We were slow reacting and it was obvious," Shannon finally stated.

Grifton Tags Lee Woodard

SARATOGA — The Grifton Bulldogs took two wins Friday night, as they went by Lee Woodard in both their games in the Saratoga Holiday Classic. The boys taking a 39-33 win, and the girls taking a 39-20 decision.

The Grifton girls started their game off with a 10 point lead, and Lee Woodard has to try and play catch up ball for the rest of the evening. Grifton picked up 12 to Lee Woodard's two to take a nice margin into the second period.

Lee Woodard tried to come back in the second frame, but Grifton still kept their lead, and added two more to make it 14, as Grifton picked up eight in the second frame, to six for Lee Woodard, to make it 20-8 going into the half.

The Bulldogs really poured on the coals in the third frame, as they picked up 12 again in the third frame, while Lee Woodard was falling off to one, to make it 32-9 when the final frame started. Lee Woodard finally got going in the final frame, but it was too late, as Grifton now had a 23 point lead. Lee Woodard picked up 11 in the final frame to seven in for Grifton to make it 39-20.

Marion McLawhorn was the high scorer for Grifton with 16 points while Lee Woodard didn't place anybody in the double figures.

In the boys game, it was close until the final frame. Lee Woodard took the early lead by one, as they picked up nine in the first frame, to eight for Grifton, then came back to get eight in the second frame to seven for Grifton to make it 17-15 going into the half.

Grifton managed to stay even with them in the third frame as both teams picked up seven apiece to make it 23-21 going into the fourth quarter.

Lee Woodard couldn't hold on to the Bulldogs in the final frame though, as Grifton hit the nets for 17 points while they were only getting nine again, to make it 39-33 at the end of the frame.

Horace Yelverton was the high scorer for Lee Woodard with 16 points, while Grifton didn't place anyone in the double figures.

Greene Central, Ayden Get Wins

Ayden's Tornadoes and Greene Central's Rams picked up wins Friday night in the Ayden Holiday Classic.

Ayden downed Pamlico County, 52-47. The Tornadoes jumped out to a 17-6 lead, and held their margin at the half, 29-18. In the third period, the Tornadoes rushed to a 44-24 edge and coasted through for the win.

Greene Central outscored Farmville, 59-47. In the first period, the Rams held a 12-7 lead, but that fell off to 23-19 by the half. The third period saw the Ram lead climb to 39-29, and the Rams outscored the Red Devils, 20-18 down the stretch.

The action resumes Monday night, with Ayden meeting Greene Central, and Farmville playing Pamlico.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Most young playwrights must go through some teeth-grinding moments before their plays open on Broadway. But Israel Horowitz and Terrence McNally have been so busy this season that they've hardly had time to worry.

The pair wrote two of the three one-act plays in "Morning, Noon and Night," and Leonard Melfi, who has had lots of success in the far-out realm of off-off Broadway, contributed the other play.

"Morning," the first of the trio of plays which Horowitz originally presented in shortened form at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, last summer, is about a Negro family which finds some pills to turn them white and the problems that arise. "Noon," by McNally, is about a collection of pervers who respond to an underground newspaper ad and meet an unfortunate end. Nelfi's "Night" is an ironic play with the characters meeting in a graveyard to bury a "friend."

When they opened they were met with mixed reviews with the critics differing about the merits of each play in the trio.

"I rewrote 'Morning' six times," said the 28-year-old Horowitz as he scanned a menu in a restaurant located near the theater, "and while we were waiting for a waitress Terrence rewrote the whole thing again, telling me how he would have done it."

McNally, 29, who had been through the pressure of a Broadway opening before, merely nodded and said, "Boiled beef is a depressing dish."

Tolerant of Criticisms
Playwrights usually aren't happy to hear any criticism, but McNally, Horowitz and Melfi have become tolerant of suggestions from each other. They met when their plays were among a group produced off-Broadway last season under the title "Collision Course."

While he was looking forward to the opening of "Morning, Noon and Night," Horowitz also was having to devote a lot of time to his play, "Lines," which will open later this season off-Broadway. "Lines" originally was performed last year as a short one-act play, and he beefed it up to full length for this season.

"It will be given previews in New Jersey," he said, "and I have to go down there several times a week to smooth everything out. I had never gotten reviews before like 'Lines' got. We hadn't planned to have it reviewed, and I had to play one of the parts because an actor was sick. But several critics showed up and loved it."

Since World War II, over seven million handicapped people have been employed by private industry and nearly 250,000 by the Federal government.

Reviews And Reflections

By ALBERT PERTALION

In recent weeks, there has been an absence around my desk of good books, and it was with great anticipation that I bought William Humphrey's latest publication, A Time and A Place (Alfred Knopf, New York, 1968). With one newly written exception, Humphrey's new book is a collection of previously published short stories. Taken as a whole, A Time and A Place is not as satisfying as Humphrey's last novel, The Ordways, but it is a remarkable portrait of the western plains and the people who inhabited them during the now almost legendary 1930's.

The ten stories are tied together by the links of time and place, and the similarity of characters, too, offers a form of unity, but at the end of the book, the readers is likely to feel the absence of a prolonged crescendo, or the resolution of denouement which make a novel so satisfying. None of these stories individually offers dramatic movement or exceptional strength, but each is quietly moving with strength which seems to come from a forgiving overview of human foibles.

Humphrey makes no excuses for the meanness and smallness of man, but we are still left with the feeling that here is a writer who essentially loves his characters. He might abhor some of their actions, but he seems to draw them as reacting to a time and place more in control of their lives than the people who live them.

In "Mouth of Brass," Humphrey takes us to the very brink of Nihilism in a delicately woven tapestry of a needless death, but finally inters that man's smallness is its own punishment and big men must be twice as big to carry the infirmities of the small. The result is to miss Nihilism and receive instead a plea for forgiveness of the human condition. An echo from Fitzgerald Not really. Humphrey's point of view is fresh and alive, even as he writes about a time dead and gone for over 38 years.

The story I like best, "The Ballad of Jesse Neighbours," was about a dispossessed young boy who, with pathetic irony, molded himself in the image of the folk hero Clyde Barrow. Or perhaps "A Home Away From Home" was the best; I'm not sure, but through all the stories, Humphrey writes with compassion, irony, and a flawless instinct of evocative detail. He gives us back the essence — the bad and the good — of a recent but remote part of America, an innocence lost when the affluent paradise was regained after the depression.

All this talk of the thirties reminds me of a huge loss to this country and the entire world of literature: the death last week of John Steinbeck. Lately Steinbeck has been in disfavor with the fashionable literati, but Steinbeck was always a superb story teller who never lost his belief in the basic goodness of man. One of his best short stories,

"Saint Katy the Virgin" remains one of my all time favorites, and as a young boy, I suffered horribly through at least ten readings of "The Red Pony" believing (through the magic of Steinbeck's writing) each time that man could learn from mistakes and come out of them as better people. He didn't always pull off successfully everything he tried, but I hold with William Faulkner who said that when we judge a man we ought to judge what he tried to do as well as what he accomplished. John Steinbeck, from either point of view, was a big man.

The Christmas-New Year holidays, when children are home from school with time on their hands, is an ideal time to consider the possibility of art created from nature and from odds and ends around the house.

There are so many possibilities that only a few can be mentioned in this brief article. Perhaps the most rewarding is the construction of outdoor or indoor sculpture from roots, vines, sections of tree trunks, cypress knees, or odd pieces of wood. Often the basic shape nature has given such pieces will determine the end result of a construction. Much of the fun comes from experimenting to see what can be done.

One factor which adds to the appeal of homemade art is the search for things to use. This usually involves a long, refreshing winter walk in the woods, plus a little manual labor for digging, sawing or cutting.

For those not inclined for long walks, a search around the house will usually uncover bits of wood, cardboard, odd pieces of wire and a host of other things to use as a basis for creating items.

It must be admitted that the majority of such constructions will have little or no permanency. One exception are cypress knees, which will last a century or longer when kept inside. They also become more beautiful as years pass, gradually taking on a richer, deeper glow as the color darkens.

The expense involved in home-art projects is minimal. A saw, a hammer, some nails and tacks, a good bottle of glue, and perhaps a few small cans of paint — will provide any child (or adult) with all that is needed for many contented hours of work.

It is unlikely that masterpieces will be created, but the real joy comes from the satisfaction of using the hands and the imagination to create something which bears the imprint of one's own personal expression.

Travel Notes

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—Bahama Airways has inaugurated jet plane service between Miami and West Palm Beach and Freeport and Nassau in the Bahamas, offering 12 roundtrips daily. The airlines also offers comprehensive service in the Out Islands, with flights to 20 destinations throughout the Bahamas and the Turks and Caicos Islands.

VIENNA (UPI)—Relaxed visa and customs formalities accounted for a rising number of foreign tourists entering Romania this year, the official Romanian news agency Agerpres reports.

Estimates said the expected total of 1.5 million foreign tourists will be exceeded this year. Romania abolished entry visas for foreign tourists throughout 1968 and Western visitors no longer have to declare the amount of foreign currency they bring into the country or take out.

If it weren't for the dikes, 40 per cent of The Netherlands would be underwater at least part of the year.

For many years people have been predicting the future of the world. Some startling predictions and prophecies are revealed in two of our latest books.

Mary Ellen Carter reveals the startling prophecies the skeptics and disbelievers with an opportunity to look for and judge Cayce's predictions for themselves. In this strange and exciting book one can see history — past, present, and future unfold in the light of Cayce's predictions.

Criswell has predicted events in America and around the world for more than thirty years. Hundreds of his outlandish predictions are recorded in "Criswell Predicts From Now to the Year 2000." Readers may keep score on the accuracy of his predictions until August 1969, after which he says it will not matter.

George Plimpton, author of the best-selling "Paper Lion," turns to the world of big time golf for his latest book "The Bogey Man." He gives an account of his actual experiences as a player from tee to green during his month on the professional golf circuit. In this narrative of many highlights, he presents a picture of the amateurs, pros, carries, officials, fans and the golfing lore he absorbed.

Mark Connelly recreates a sparkling era of the American theater in "Voices Offstage." As Connelly, one of the most notable theatrical dignitaries of our time, recalls his rich and active personal life, intimate portraits emerge of the great actors, writers, publishers, and wits of the time. His recollections are a warm and revealing record of the famous and the near famous who made New York the literary center of the world.

Helen Hayes, the lady who became the "first lady of the theater," has written a deeply moving and affectionately witty account of her life in "On Reflection." After years of unwillingness to discuss her private life, she decided to write this book as a legacy for her grandchildren. In setting down all the family stories, the backstage anecdotes and her collections of spiritual struggle, she has produced a legacy for all of us.

Harry Golden brings his best work together in "The Best of Harry Golden." A humor treasury and anthology, it contains hundreds of the author's best writings gleaned from the pages of his personal journal, the bi-monthly Carolina Israelite. Together for the first time are extensive excerpts from all his books. This delectable potpourri of his finest writings is a broad-ranging introduction to one of the nation's most respected and loved reporters and social historians. In a style that is reminiscent of Mark Twain and Will Rogers, Golden's writing ranges over the whole spectrum of human involvement, covering such subjects as sex, outdoor cooking, politics, music, religion, interplanetary travel and chicken soup.

Southern Colonial Has Ample Floor-Space

By JERRY BISHOP
High, wide, and handsome may be the best way to describe this elegant Southern colonial home.

It's a tri-level designed by the Associated Architects especially for a lot that slopes up from the street. This back-front split enables the Parmalee to hug the hillside, permitting efficient use of steep terrain.

The exterior has been given an impressive touch: a large two-story-high front porch supported by colonial columns in the true Southern tradition. Brick and bevel siding comprise the exterior construction. Shutters enhance the colonial theme.

This is a large home for an active family. There are four bedrooms, two baths, a living room, foyer, dining room, family room, kitchen and breakfast room, utility room, storage area and double carport. The original plans do not call for a basement, but a cellar could be built under the master bedroom and family room by eliminating the coat closet and locating the stairs to it there.

It would also be possible to enclose the carport at extra expense for cold climates. This model has a center hall entry at the ground level. The foyer is large—approximately 13 feet by 7 feet—in keeping with the Parmalee's impressive dimensions.

To the left of the foyer is the living room, a large formal chamber well isolated from the rest of the house. It would be an asset for a family that likes to entertain. Other rooms on the ground level are the dining room, kitchen and adjacent breakfast area, utility room and storage area. The kitchen is compact

HOTEL BUILDING

BOMBAY (UPI)—Seven new luxury hotels will be built in Bombay in the next four years in an effort to meet increased tourist traffic expected when jumbo jets take to the air.

Two of the seven will be built by Air India, one a 200-room hotel a few minutes drive from Santa Cruz airport and the other a 100-room hotel at the airport. The others, expected to be privately financed, will include the Tata-Intercontinental, a 250-room structure being built next to the Hotel Taj Mahal on the waterfront.

The master bedroom is a handsome chamber, with dimensions of approximately 14 feet by 14 feet. It has two baths. Located away from the other sleeping accommodations, it would appeal to many families.

Down the hall on the middle level is the family room, approximately 18 feet by 13 feet. It would be a center of family activity, taking the pressure off the living room.

On the top floor are three bedrooms and a full bath. Each has ample size and closet space. They are connected by a hall that runs the length of this section.

Overall dimensions of the 65 feet by 28 feet and there are 2,100 square feet of living area.

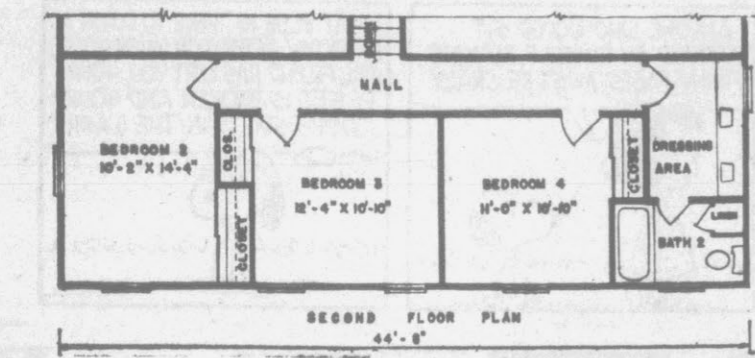

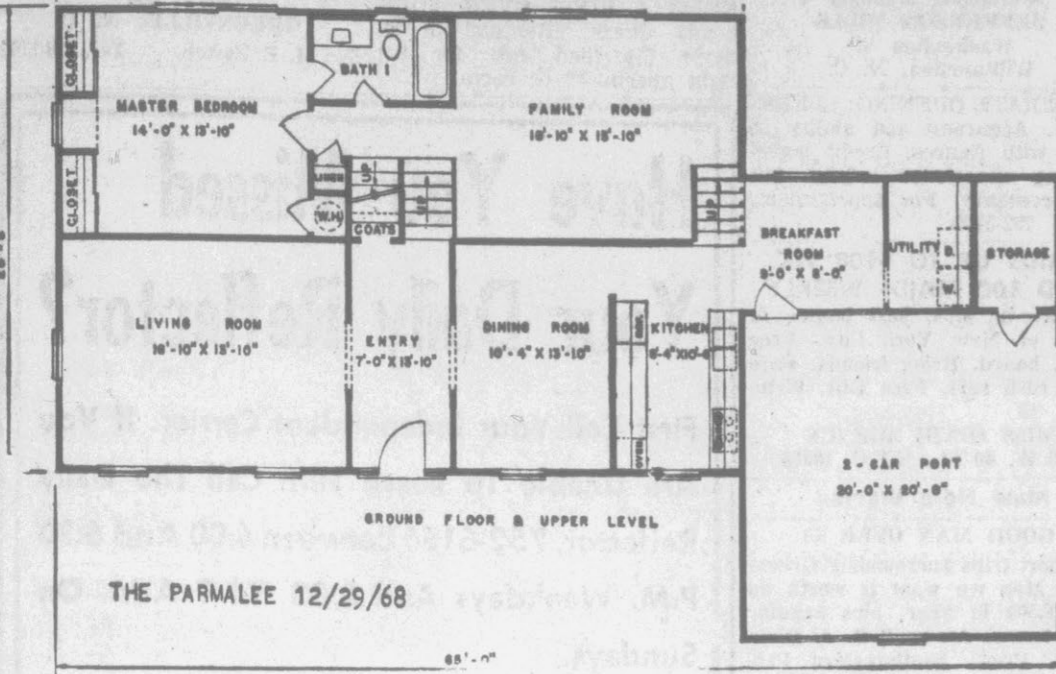

The first railroad in the Netherlands was opened in 1839.

HE SLIGHTS HORSES

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP)—Many people drive a car in connection with their employment. A large number of Montanans wheel a pickup truck on the job. But there aren't too many who pilot a rowboat in the state during their working hours. And very few wear snowshoes when they're working.

But at least one man in Montana has been seen using all these means of travel on the job—Jan Tallada of Kalispell, a meter reader in the Flathead Lake area for the Pacific Power & Light Co.

Enough Insurance?

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI)—How much has your home increased in value in recent years?

More than you might expect, says an executive of a leading insurance company.

"If a person insured his home at full value of $22,000 four years ago, it could cost him $27,000 to rebuild it today," said Walter H. Vernier, executive vice president of State Farm Fire and Casualty Company. "In the case of a home built 10 or 15 years ago, the gap could be even greater."

Vernier said a recent survey conducted by his company indicates more than half the nation's householders do not have enough insurance on their homes.

Tornadoes the past few years in the Midwest have made many homeowners painfully aware they were underinsured, he added.

As a result, State Farm is conducting a pilot program in Illinois that automatically increases a homeowner's insurance with the escalating value of his property. The program is expected to be offered nationwide in the near future.

Unlike several similar plans which charge in advance for additional coverage, State Farm's "inflation-proofing" program is being added to new policies at no cost for the term of the policy, which may be from one to three years.

The protection increases in direct relation to jumps in the U.S. Department of Commerce construction cost index. Coverage will never drop below the stated amount of the policy.

Do Single Houses Pay Their Way?

By JAMES L. SRODES

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"Do single family homes pay their way" asks a recent survey published here by the Urban Land Institute.

And the staff of this private research organization concludes—surprisingly—that the answer is "yes."

Although the answer is a qualified one, it is the first firm position to housing critics who have been forecasting the end of the single-family lot developments.

For years, housing commentators have speculated on the eventual decline and fall of the single family home. Critics have accused the one-family unit of taking up too much space and predicted that Americans will soon flock to apartments and condominiums.

Probably the most damning accusation is that single family homes cost their surrounding community governments more in services than their owners pay back in taxes.

In what it described as an "exploratory rather than definitive" study, the Institute staff studied development costs of imaginary but identical housing

1969 Flower Awards

By EARL ARONSON

The zinnias, one appropriately named Rosy Future, a vinca rosea and a dwarf cornflower have carried off honors in the 1969 All-America flower selections.

The top award given a flower this year, the silver medal, went to the button type zinnia, Cherry Buttons. Bronze medals were given to two first generation (F1) cactus type zinnias, Rosy Future and Torch.

Bronze medals also went to vinca rosea Polka Dot and Dwarf cornflower Snow Ball.

Cherry Buttons begins to bloom at 10-12 inches in height, a bit shorter than Pink Buttons. It produces many double 1 1/2-inch flowers on wiry stems. The foliage is mint green and the plant compact.

Zinnia Rosy Future is bright, rose-pink and grows to a height of two feet or taller. It has many strong-stemmed quilled flowers 5-6 inches wide, excellent for cutting and garden display.

Torch also is a giant zinnia, rich orange, 2-2 1/2-foot tall, vigorous and sturdy. Quilled double blooms are 5-6 inches across and true to color. It joins Zeniths Firecracker, yellow Zenith and Rosy Future.

Vinca rosea procumbens Polka Dot is a ground cover similar to Rose Carpet. The disease-resistant plants seem to grow erect for about 3 inches, then creep to about 24-inch mats. The abundant flowers seem to lie flat on the foliage. The single, white flowers have bright red eyes. Since the plant is adaptable to sun or light shade, try it as an overhang in window boxes and hanging baskets and in rockeries.

Centauria cyanus Snow Ball grows 12-16 inches tall and has 1 1/2-inch white, ball-shaped double cornflowers. This early bloomer is a white running mate for the dwarf blue Jubilee Gem, which won All-America honors in 1937. The round plant has silvery green foliage, and has strong heat and disease resistance.

The All-America Selections flower rating is done by 28 qualified judges. None receives pay from the AAS. They include seed breeders or growers, horticultural professors and research workers with universities or experiment stations, a retired editor and a botanical garden director.

Weinstein Gets Paroles Post

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Board of Paroles is able to muster a quorum now, with the appointment of Robert Weinstein, 61, a Lumberton attorney.

Weinstein was named Friday by Gov. Dan Moore at the suggestion of Gov.-elect Bob Scott and promptly sworn in to office. Weinstein and chairman Wade E. Brown will give the three-member board a quorum.

Brown was left alone to carry on the board's business by the illness of Howard Helper and the recent resignation of Marvin R. Wooten. Wooten gave up the paroles board chairmanship to take a seat on the state Utilities Commission.

Weinstein was named to fill the unexpired term of Brown, who moved into Wooten's unexpired term. Weinstein was sworn in by Superior Court Judge Henry McKinnon of Lumberton.

He received his law degree from Wake Forest College and has served as solicitor of the Lumberton District Recorder's Court and as president of the Robeson County Bar Association.

PNB HAS FOUR GREAT WAYS FOR YOU TO MAKE MONEY. COUNT 'EM.

ONE

5% Golden Passbook

PNB's Golden Passbook combines the best features of regular passbook savings and savings certificates. It pays a full 5% interest, compounded quarterly from day of deposit and credited at the end of each calendar quarter.

You can open a Golden Passbook Savings Account with $1,000 or more. And you can add to it any time you wish, in minimum amounts of $100. Withdrawals may be made without prior written notice during the first 10 days of each calendar quarter if your money has been on deposit 90 days. You can make withdrawals any time with 90 days prior written notice. And your remaining funds still earn 5% interest, just as long as your balance doesn't fall below $1,000.

The interest earned may be left in your account, or we'll mail it to you. Or, if you wish, it can be credited to another account at Planters National.

PNB's Golden Passbook Accounts are fully assignable. And you can use them as loan collateral. If you like, we'll automatically transfer $100 or more each month from your PNB Checking Account to a Golden Passbook.

PNB's Golden Passbook Accounts are available to individuals, business firms and non-profit organizations.

If you'd like more details, talk to your banker at PNB. He'll be glad to fill you in.

TWO

5% Certificates of Deposit

Just like their name tells you, these certificates pay a full 5% annual interest rate. And you can purchase one for as little as $1,000 . . . or as much as $100,000. There's a three month minimum, and they are automatically renewable.

Your interest earned is payable by check on each anniversary date, or deposited if you wish, to your PNB Savings or Checking Account.

THREE

5% Guaranteed Investment Certificate

There's no safer, no surer method of investment. Planters National Bank guarantees that your certificate will earn a full 5% interest, payable or compounded quarterly, for three years.

In spite of economic conditions. In spite of anything.

For instance, if you invested, say $10,000 right now. In three years you could have $11,607.54. We guarantee it.

And you have access to your funds every three months with no prior notice. Interest can be paid by check every three months. Deposited to your PNB Savings or Checking Account. Or left with your certificate and compounded quarterly.

Our 5% Guaranteed Investment Certificates are available for $1,000 or more for 90 days or more.

FOUR

Regular Passbook Savings

Still the most popular and most flexible of our four plans. With Regular Passbook Savings, you can withdraw funds any time. Or add any amount you wish.

PNB Regular Passbook Savings pay the highest interest allowed by law on regular bank savings. With 4% guaranteed bank interest, compounded quarterly, plus Daily Interest. Earn interest every day from deposit to withdrawal, so long as the balance is at least $10, and not lose one penny of interest.

Deposits made on or before the 10th of any month earn interest as of the first of that month.

If you prefer saving by mail, PNB pays the postage.

Or how about Automatic Saving? It's the easiest. Just tell us how much you want to save. And when. We'll simply transfer funds automatically from your Planters Checking Account to your Planters Savings Account. It's that simple.

There they are. Four great ways to make money at Planters National. Maybe you'll want to use several of them. Maybe just one. It all depends on what you want to do with your money. After all, it is your money.

But if you're not quite sure which ones to use, it may be helpful to come in and talk with us. Tell us what your goals are. What kind of money you'd like to save in five, ten, twenty years. Then we'll sit down together and work up a program that'll get you to where you want to be.

And you can count on that.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DR. MICHAEL DeBAKEY, heart surgeon

Have there been any major advances in the use of artificial hearts?—Kirk Hile, Danville, Ill.

Recent developments in cardiac transplantation have pointed up even more sharply than before the need for artificial replacement of the heart. The artificial device would solve the problems of insufficient donors and of logistics. Moreover, the ethical, moral, and legal questions raised by transplantation do not apply to artificial hearts. We already have a partial mechanical pump that will support the heart temporarily. There remains, however, a number of unsolved problems before a complete artificial heart can be used in a human being. Extensive research to solve these problems is now being pursued, and progress to date is encouraging.

FOR HENRY FOWLER, Secretary of the Treasury

Is it true that the two-dollar bill is being taken out of circulation?—Jerome G. Blankinship, Las Vegas, Nev.

The printing of two-dollar bills was discontinued in August, 1966, because of lack of public demand. The small supply on hand at that time was distributed to commercial banks throughout the U.S.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

Have you ever made a "hole in one"? What is your best score for 18 holes?—Gayle Green, Lowell, Mass.

I have made eight holes in one in my lifetime. I have shot 62 twice in professional tournaments, once in Palm Springs and once in Los Angeles.

FOR SYLVIA PORTER,

financial columnist
The price of wheat has gone down from $1.80 per bushel two years ago to only $1 per bushel today. Why has the price of bread gone up?—H. F. Mairs, Wooster, Ohio

Wheat prices are down because the weather in the wheat-growing areas has been excellent, and farmers have expanded their ability to produce per acre. Bread is up because the cost of the wheat is actually a minor part of the over-all price. The costs of handling, packing, transporting, and distributing are soaring.

BETTY FURNESS, Presidential advisor on consumer affairs

Why is it almost impossible to buy one pair of men's or boys' underwear instead of the "package of three"?—Mrs. Fred C. Kniesler, Allentown, N.J.

I am sure it is possible to buy one pair of underwear in most retail stores. In many self-service stores, however, it has been found easier and, of course, more profitable to stock packaged merchandise. If enough people complain, though, something might be done about it.

FOR KEN HARRELSON,

outfielder, Boston Red Sox
How did you get the nickname "The Hawk"?—Debbie Curran, East Pepperell, Mass.

Because of my nose!

FOR H. MARVIN WATSON,

Postmaster General
When did the postal service begin in the U.S.? Isabel Blanko, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The first official notice of a postal service in colonial America appears in a 1639 ordinance of the General Court of Massachusetts, designating Richard Fairbanks' tavern in Boston as the first official "post office."

FOR REA SCHEUSSLER,

executive director, Senior Bowl football game
How do you manage to make the playing field so colorful for the Senior Bowl game?—H. M. Mason, San Antonio, Texas

To make the colored patterns on the field we use a water-base paint, a spray gun, and stencils or patterns cut out of plywood for the letters and figures.

FOR HUGH DOWNS, host of the "Today" show

What do you think of the hippie generation?—I.E. Kravenot, Brooklyn, N.Y.

The press has tended to apply the word "hippie" to long-haired bums, and I do not admire that kind of withdrawal and reaction. But I think today's younger generation's broader movement to establish its own fashions and its own values—and to live up to some of our values a little better than we have—is good for society.

WHAT ^{IN} THE WORLD!

A Little Litter Goes a Long Way
Scientists are working on packaging which will disintegrate or be worth redeeming. Pick-up and disposal of litter is already a $500-million problem for the taxpayer, and with population and affluence zooming, they are worried that trash will soon edge out people. Meantime, the careless public, according to Keep America Beautiful, Inc., uses highways for disposal. In Texas, some notable throwaways were: a tombstone, an artificial leg, a fully equipped doctor's satchel, and a loaded revolver. In New Mexico, the uncrowned champion litterbug was fined $5 for leaving a dead horse on the highway.

America the Beautiful

The Litz Luck Tommy Litz, winner of the world's free-style skating crown in 1964, and current Ice Capades star, once was a very bitter loser. The boy from Hershey, Pa., was odds-on favorite to win the U.S. Junior National Skating Championships in 1961. But he placed only sixth. That year the entire U.S. delegation to the World

Tommy Litz

Figure Skating Championships died in a plane crash. Tommy says, "Whenever the going gets rough, I can't help but remember how that early defeat literally saved my life."

Pain Relief on Demand Now there is do-it-yourself help for patients in pain after an operation, according to the American College of Surgeons. The patient presses a button on an electronically controlled injection device, and a pain-killing syringe is emptied into a manifold which is already connected to the patient's vein. The system contains four syringes, but a timer prevents reinjection until a specified time has elapsed.

Back to the Old Grind Coffeemeister Al Huffman tells what a professional coffee taster does. First, he sniffs the roasted beans for impurities and contamination. Next, boiling water from a copper kettle—which leaves no after-taste—is poured over the sample, and he sniffs for aroma. Finally, he sucks up the coffee quickly, spraying it over all the taste buds, then quickly spits it out. For superior coffee, don't let the brew wait more than an hour before serving and never reheat it. Incidentally, coffee is a favorite late New Year's Eve beverage. If not, it certainly should be.

Hairy Tail For grooming the hair around the eyes of small, silky-coated dogs, a medium-soft toothbrush works well. For overenthusiastic, long-tailed, short haired dogs that injure tails by too much wagging, use a thick roll of cotton as a bandage, extending a few inches beyond the tip and secured with adhesive tape. Extra padding will let the tail heal before it gets banged against objects with more wagging.

Julie Nixon Talks About Youth,

David's "first date" with Julie was at her coming-out party just two years ago.

AT FIRST Julie Nixon appeared distracted by the hustle and bustle of her father's New York headquarters. Then I started asking questions about love and life—and her concentration became almost total.

I found her an extreme optimist, an incurable romantic in the midst of a storybook romance. Literally, her brown eyes misted when she told me recently:

"The most exciting moment in my life was when David and I realized we were in love. I adore great love stories—I could read about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor over and over again." She sat back and sighed as though she had finally put into words something very important.

David, of course, is David Eisenhower, grandson of former President Dwight Eisenhower; and Julie, at 20, will see her own father—Vice President under Eisenhower—move into the White House next month. Julie played an important part in Richard Nixon's campaign for the Presidency, but when I talked to her, the most important man in her life was David and the most important event her marriage to him on Dec. 22.

"David was my first real boy friend. We were childhood sweethearts. Of course, we didn't date in those days. We were both too young. We used to sort of look at each other across the White House dinner table, when Daddy was in President Eisenhower's administration."

Her father will be inaugurated President of the important event in her life took place last week

It wasn't until fate impelled David to apply to Amherst and Julie to Smith—colleges "seven miles or five minutes apart, if you're in love"—that they formally started dating.

Julie smiled nostalgically at me as she went on. "I would go to Amherst for the weekend, or he would come to Smith, depending on where the best concert was. David loves music, especially jazz. We like to do simple things—go to mixers, for walks, and on bike rides. We both like people, so we usually did things in a group. Other times, we'd come into New York for the weekend and just spend the day walking around.

"After a year, we became engaged. Mr. Eisenhower kept asking when the wedding would be, and his grandmother prodded David to hurry up. We all got impatient. Originally, it was supposed to be around graduation in 1970, but David didn't think we should wait, so we kept moving up the date."

Julie became more animated when I asked "girl questions" about her wedding plans. "I always dreamed of an old-fashioned wedding dress—the kind our mothers and grandmothers wore. Something with a high collar, lace, or pearls, something to give a traditional look. Simple and girlish, nothing mod, of course. I wanted a full, swinging skirt.

"You know, I saw one just like it one night in a shop on Fifth Avenue. David thought it was too expensive, but Dad said he thought we could rent it for one night."

She sighed like many young ladies who find that a wedding is not something the betrothed plan by themselves. "Mom and Tricia (her older sister) wanted a White House reception, but I didn't care. I always wanted to be married in a small church and even have the reception party in a hotel."

At the time I interviewed Julie, the couple's future plans were hazy. They thought then they would look for an apartment somewhere between their colleges. Julie took off a semester to campaign for her father but has applied for readmission to Smith. After graduation, plans are even more hazy. David must first complete his military obligation; then he intends to go to law school.

Even at Ike's inauguration ceremonies in 1957, Julie had eyes only for David.

Love, and Her Marriage

United States next month, but the most her marriage to David Eisenhower

Being a wife and homemaker are the most wonderful things in the world to Julie. "David wants a girl who enjoys puttering around the house. I love to cook and serve tea at a party. My career will be him." Among the Secret Service men, I learned, Julie is known as the girl who makes the best pies and cakes, and David loves her light, fluffy pancakes. An ideal housekeeper, you'll never find a messy corner or a disordered desk in Julie's room.

"When men and women try to do the same things, there's too much tension," Julie said, with the authority of someone who has given much thought to the subject. "People start taking from each other, rather than giving. Dad was always the breadwinner in our family, and Mom the homemaker. When David will come home, I'll want him to sit down, relax, and forget the problems at the office. I wouldn't be able to do this if I were competing in a man's world all day, too.

"I also want him to be the boss. Many men today feel the rug has been sort of pulled out from under their feet. In our family, Daddy makes the decisions. A man should listen to what his wife has to say, but he should have the last word. David's like this."

Her eyes began to sparkle again. "He's gentle and makes me feel my opinion is important to him, but he always takes charge. Mother has always been Daddy's right arm. Whenever his spirits were low, she has always been there to perk him up. I want to be David's strength, his support in that way.

"It's also important to be friends with the person you're marrying—to enjoy the same things and to be able to let your hair down with each other. I've never been much of an athlete, but lately I've become quite a good first baseman. And David loves to dance, so we've been going to a lot of discothèques. David's more serious than I am. He says I think life's a big joke! I think it could be very tragic if you took everything to heart. My lightness lifts David's mood sometimes."

Julie Nixon is a very practical girl. Trends don't influence her. The teen revolt doesn't seem to have made a mark. And coming from a notable family doesn't show much, either. At all times she seems sweet and completely down-to-earth.

"We've always been taught to appreciate everything we got and to give something in return," Julie said, brushing back the strands of brown hair that had fallen over her pale forehead.

"I never expected growing up to be easy. I never thought things were due me. I took in stride the time and hard work. At some colleges you have a small group of troublemakers who feel the world owes them something. Though they're in the minority, they want to run the school. They're like the hecklers who, during the campaign, tried to disrupt our speeches. The rest of the people wanted to listen, but one or two can make things terribly hard.

"I know young people sometimes feel left out. I do, too. That's why Dad is trying to get the vote for 18-year-olds and set up talk sessions across the country where teens can have their say and be heard by the Government.

"You can achieve a lot in an organized way. At Smith, our student governing board got us a new curriculum. The dean and the president have a veto power, but why not? They're professionals."

Julie looked deeply at me as if to see whether I understood what she was trying to say.

"My parents and I always have understood each other. I respect what they have to say. We have a few taboos, like drugs, which I don't question because I know my parents are right."

If you saw Julie Nixon on campus or in a crowd, you'd be able to spot her immediately. Her youthful, energetic appearance is consistent with her bountiful optimism. She wears little make-up, except for a pale lipstick and a sheer, clear nail-polish. Her face is so shiny and cleanly scrubbed she looks like the girl in a cold cream ad. Her hair is drawn softly back, and it falls loosely to her shoulders.

"David doesn't like women who look made-up. And he prefers what's natural to anything artificial. He loves my hair after it's just been washed and is soft and wavy. I don't tell him I've just used a hairsetter," she added mischievously.

Her clothes are practical and tasteful rather than mod. During the campaign, you might have found Julie taking along a thin knit because "it keeps its shape so well in a suitcase." You also might have seen her picking out a soft tweed skirt and casual flannel blouse in a department store rather than buying clothes at a designer show.

On fancy dates, she wears lace and velvet though, "I love organdy, but it crushes so easily."

Minis are out. "David likes to admire them on other girls but not on me." And you'd never find her in a pants suit or textured stockings. Fitted dresses with belts are more her forte. To match her snappy personality, she likes bright yellow, green, and red.

For both men and women, Julie prefers the simple, clean, all-American look. "Thank goodness David is an Ivy dresser. I couldn't bear it if he wore a Nehru jacket and love beads."

The magic of Julie Nixon can best be seen in a story David Eisenhower tells about the past campaign. "We were in St. Louis on the eve of the first World Series game. Julie cheerfully greeted the crowd before I got there. To avoid my slipping, she told them the truth—that I was a Detroit Tiger fan.

"I arrived later and, trying to cover myself, hinted that I was rooting for the St. Louis Cardinals. 'I already told them who you're really for,' she said, as if we weren't in front of thousands of people. She nearly bowled me over. We still kid about it today."

It was typical Julie Nixon—or rather Julie Nixon Eisenhower. ♦

Aristocrat of Dress Forms

A professional precision adjustment form (DuPont Neoprene gives body material great flexing and holding power).

- "dial" your measurements into size computer—clip lock—form becomes YOU.
- Adjusts to regular, half sizes . . . many variations 8 to 20 (also model 20 to 50).
- Each shoulder raises, lowers. Each bust expands, contracts, raises, lowers.
- Waist narrows, widens, shortens, lengthens. Hips widen, narrow, raise, lower.
- Entire form gains, reduces with you—adjusts to other family members.
- Strong steel stand—and form take apart easily—stow away in drawer.

If you're without a dress form—just trying this one (at our risk) can change your life.

This form guarantees a custom fit expensive look to each dress you alter or make—or no cost. Yet it saves you money so fast it often pays for itself the first or second time used.

This custom fit form saves hours adjusting patterns and fitting cloths—up to 50% of sewing time. It saves struggling, twisting, turning—trying to get the right fit. It saves ripping out seams for a simple alteration, or just because your skirt didn't hang properly the first time.

It's perfect for beginners. Here is why all of this is so.

THE SECRET OF CUSTOM FIT

Would you like every dress you alter or make praised for its custom fit expensive look?

While you smile—inside—at the money and time you've saved—at the end of embarrassment of poor fit "home made" clothes—or the success of your first dress making attempt.

The secret is custom adjusting of standard patterns to your differences (there's only one you). When you pin the pattern to an exact duplicate of you this adjusting is simple and easy.

And this custom fit life size dress form becomes—exactly YOU—with YOUR waist—YOUR shoulders—YOUR neck—YOUR bust line—YOUR hips.

This is because in each body area an ingenious size computer "dials" your measurements. A Tab (like a tape measure) slides through a slot under the area answer window. When your measurements appear in each window just clip lock in position. Automatically the DUPONT NEOPRENE processed body material has already adjusted—in each body area—to become YOU! Custom adjusting of patterns to you has become as easy as before it was difficult.

A LIFE SAVER FOR BEGINNERS

Because the hardest part of home sewing is making adjustments—exactly what ADJUST-O-MATIC makes so simple.

With it beginners easily make hems—adjust hemlines—make alterations so perfectly store bought clothes fit like made to order. You save the $3 to $5 paid before to fix a shoulder line—shorten a hem—take in a waist line. You're more satisfied with the way your clothes fit.

Fitting in this form is so easy you quickly form old dresses into new. Too tight or too loose—too large or too small dresses fit again. You easily alter, redesign, remodel your own dresses, coats, skirts, blouses. You begin to make your own simple dresses then more complicated ones. Later, you even design your own styles, and all on this form.

DOES MORE THAN ANY OTHER FORM

This master pattern maker's form has every possible professional dressmaker trick and short cut built right into it.

It's unlike any other form. To adjust there's no maze of wire and bolts to struggle with. Simply slide adjust and clip lock. It's pinnable—throughout. No gaps down front or side or around neck give difficulty.

Scientifically placed guide lines let you know when your dress is perfectly centered on the form.

The light steel stand is so adjustable, raises or lowers precisely to any point 4" 2" to 5" 6" (add length of your head from neck up to measurements of any form). It's handsome rubber tipped gives steady support. It assembles, takes apart easily.

The inventor has built a lifetime as master pattern maker for leading pattern companies into this form.

All his life — he designed dress forms — some of the world's most expensive — to give custom fit to the very rich.

But he built this custom dress form for you — to adjust more precisely than any other — do many dressmaker tricks others can't — yet costs a fraction of the others.

Those Super-Secret Think Tanks: Good or Evil?

Starve China? Rule the world? These are plans considered by hired brains who may exert undue influence on U.S. foreign policy

By LEONARD C. LEWIN

Leonard C. Lewin wrote the introductory material to "Report from Iron Mountain: On the Possibility and Desirability of Peace," a controversial think-tank style report which became a 1968 best seller.

LAST FEBRUARY, readers of the New York Times were given an unusual glimpse into the military mind at work.

The story in question, by E. W. Kenworthy of the Times' Washington bureau, dealt with a secret research study commissioned by the Army in 1965. The project originally had been called Pax Americana, but this title later was changed, to conceal its stated purpose, which was to suggest "a basis for the U.S. to maintain world hegemony in the future." The language is the Army's.

Despite repeated requests from Senators J. W. Fulbright (Ark.) and Vance Hartke (Ind.), the Pentagon refused to release the document. Why? Because it contained military secrets? No; such material, if any, could have been deleted. Rather because it "would be susceptible to misinterpretations and could produce serious repercussions abroad."

In other words, since our Army had hired some brains to work out various plans for America to rule the world, foreign governments might think that ruling the world was actually what our military had in mind.

What this story highlighted was not so much the fact of military meddling in foreign policy, but the revelation of the kind of thing that goes on in the name of planning for the future—under military sponsorship.

For Pax Americana is a good example of a "think-tank" report. The Pentagon currently spends $25 million a year for studies much like this one. Most of it goes to such institutions as the Rand Corporation, the Institute for Defense Analysis, and the Hudson Institute. These are the best known of the celebrated think tanks. Pax Americana, as it happens, was prepared by the "social-science research" department of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation.

During the past 20 years these institutions have achieved enormous, if generally unseen, influence over Government policymakers. Let me try to describe this kind of thinking, and, in so doing, indicate why I am concerned about it.

The first, and perhaps the most visible, characteristic of the think-tank mentality is the pseudoscientific language in which its reports are cloaked, scientific jargon that sounds authoritative.

An important part of this language is the use of numbers. A typical think-tank production can make ordinary guesswork sound awesomely quantitative. It will start, normally, with broad, unproved working assumptions (usually about anticipated economic or political trends). These will be programmed into a computer, together with available statistics that seem relevant. The results then are expressed in new statistics, charts, equations, graphs, and all the other trappings associated with carefully measured research. The projections look precise. But they are unfounded.

The seemingly scientific conclusions are usually so elaborate and detailed that the reader tends to lose sight of the fact that they have been developed from premises that often amount to no more than off-the-cuff opinions. This is not to deny that such speculations can be useful or brilliant or even accurate. What is misleading is the implication that they are more than speculation.

A notorious example is the series of studies which persuaded the Department of Defense that American military action in South Vietnam could succeed—and by 1965!

Another characteristic of this thinking is its claim to some kind of godlike objectivity, that it is possible to make plans for the future of humanity without regard for any human values. The usual phrase used by the think tankers is that their work is "value-free."

One noted think tanker, whose descriptions of nuclear escalation and annihilation are the best-known examples of such coldly "objective" thinking, defends such studies as hard-headed realism. But the implications of this brand of "scientific" objectivity are, in fact, monstrous.

We have, for example, the spectacle of a respected scholar proposing the mass starvation of the Chinese people (by cornering international grain supplies) as a "practical" political lever against their government.

This thinking quite predictably reaches its zenith when it turns to warfare. Your friendly neighbor, a gentle man who will risk injury to himself to avoid hitting a dog with his car, will talk quite casually five minutes later about the desirability of ending the war in Vietnam by dropping an H-bomb simply to "get it over with."

Herman Kahn (l.) of the Hudson Institute represents think-tank reasoning; Sen. J. W. Fulbright questions its influence on U. S. policy.

So far as he is concerned, he isn't talking about mass murder; he is being "realistic." He is reflecting a barbaric point of view that has been made respectable by the "value-free" strategic studies emanating from the think tanks.

I hope it is clear that I am not attacking objectivity in particular or scientific method in general. We need more of both in dealing with our increasingly complex social problems.

But objectivity can exist only insofar as one's own points of view are recognized and acknowledged. There is no such thing as not having any. And the use of scientific jargon and computers by itself offers no evidence whatever of bona-fide scientific method. The fraud of the think tanks is that they offer us scientism—the appearance of scientific method—in the guise of the real thing.

This is bad enough. But far more disturbing is the indirect moral and political influence it exerts on our national policy. It is frightening to realize that the men who personify the think-tank mentality have had access to the highest Government levels since World War II.

It is no morbid accident that the few examples of think tankery I have used have concerned war in one form or another. The think tanks themselves were created by the military in the first place and are supported by what President Eisenhower called the "military-industrial complex." Or, to be brutally blunt, those who have a vested interest in war.

Perhaps even more dangerous is the way in which the "think-tank" morality contributes to our national myths. These myths are substitutes for rational thinking about serious problems; they offer easy, instant answers to complex questions.

One myth in question is our blind faith in anything that calls itself science. The scientific miracles of this century have been so spectacular that we tend to accept the proposition, encouraged by the think tanks, that all problems, including moral and social dilemmas, can be resolved by computers.

Scientism begets another great, peculiarly American myth; that we, as a nation, can do whatever we want, that we are invincible, that our relations with the rest of the world can be determined solely by our own decisions. To suggest otherwise, according to our political demagogues, is unpatriotic. This is cheap and lazy patriotism—and terribly dangerous nonsense.

Add to this myth number three, an assumption of American righteousness, that whatever we do anywhere is automatically good because we are doing it, whatever any other peoples may think of it.

In the nuclear age, these myths make up an explosive mixture without historical precedent. They can be neutralized only by a massive infusion of reason into our political life. The substitute for reason offered by the think-tank mentality does not challenge these myths. On the contrary, it perpetuates them.

In short, it offers us only a fool-proof recipe for disaster. ♦

JACQUELINE BISSET: Frank's and Mia's Troubles Made Her a Star

FOR HEAVEN'S sake, I don't want to be known just as the girl who replaced Mia Farrow in a movie!"

That's Jacqueline Bisset talking, the actress who did indeed replace Mia in "The Detective" opposite Frank Sinatra. "I am glad I got the role," says Jacqueline, "but I hope that in time people will forget how."

"The Detective" was supposed to be a showcase for the newlywed Sinatras. Then studio officials announced that "due to previous commitments" Mia Farrow would not be able to appear. More than likely, Frank's and Mia's marriage already was in trouble. Almost out of desperation, studio bigwigs turned to an unknown for the choice role—lovely Jacqueline Bisset.

Until she got her break, the beautiful 24-year-old from Waybridge, Surrey, England, had distinguished herself more as a model than an actress. She grew up in an environment typical of a girl whose father is a country doctor and whose mother quit her job as a lawyer to devote full time to her family.

"In those days I never thought of acting as a career. I was mad about ballet. But I was put in a few school plays because I was kind of pretty as a child. Even at that age, I was frightened of being known as 'just a pretty girl.'"

At the time, Jacqueline was a bit on the heavy side. Her biggest concern is still her weight. "This particularly handicapped me when I decided to become a model." Getting started wasn't as easy as expected. "I was told I had to look sophisticated. When I did, I was told I had to build a reputation in the modeling industry. So I went the usual rounds of the agencies, and most of them told me to lose weight. When I did, I got work."

Jacqueline won her first movie part in "The Knack" in January, 1965, followed it with a small role in "Cul de Sac," then had parts in "Two for the Road" and "The Sweet Ride."

But when Mia suddenly became unavailable for "The Detective," Jacqueline ended up with the plum role opposite Frank Sinatra.

Her acting contribution in the film was something less than outstanding, but the attendant publicity has propelled her toward stardom. As a result, she was given the female lead opposite Steve McQueen in the highly successful "Bullitt." And even before that film was released, she was assigned yet another lead in "The White Ladder," in which she is the only known name. It may well turn her into a full-fledged star.

Jacqueline is torn by doubts about herself as an actress and as a woman. "I've got ups and downs constantly. And big depressions. I am not secure in my work. There are a lot of areas of life that I know nothing about."

Ever since she played opposite him in "The Sweet Ride," Jacqueline has been romantically linked with a promising young actor named Michael Sarrazin. The reports that the two of them have gotten married or are about to are as consistent as their denials. "I don't believe marriage is a working system. Not for me. Not yet, anyway," Jacqueline says.

Although she loves her parents, she feels she never was treated as an equal. "They would hide the papers from me because there were things in them I shouldn't read," she says. "Or books—I was always looking up words in the dictionary which I didn't understand and which they refused to explain to me."

In spite of her background and in spite of her exposure to people both as a model and as an actress, Jacqueline has remained basically shy. "I don't like to throw myself at people, and I don't like them to throw themselves at me," she insists, "and I don't like crowds at all."

What does she want out of life? "A sense of well-being, friends, dignity, and self-respect."

"But mostly I want to be recognized as an individual."

 Size 26" to 52"—only $4.98—2 for $9.50

SACROTONE—for women—(Style #12)
 (Please specify waist and hip size) Waist
 Size 26" to 52"—only $4.98—2 for $9.50

PLEASE TAKE MEASUREMENTS TIGHTLY

What nature doesn't, undetectable Sacrotone does! Acts like a whole set of new young "muscles" to give you that athletic, youthful control you used to have. Stomach becomes flatter, waistline slimmer, flab disappears. You look up to 5 pounds thinner instantly, and feel so much better.

An end at last to nagging backache*. Scientifically designed, medically approved Sacrotone gives you the kind of firm, but gentle lumbar, sacroiliac and post-operative hernia support most of us need so badly. No wonder Sacrotone is recommended by so many doctors. The design, the flexible stays that bend with you, the choice of material are all part of the immediate freedom-from-back-pain, the good feeling that Sacrotone gives you.

Custom-Cut from Quality Elasticized Material

Firm, yet marvelously soft. So comfortable, you can wear for tennis, golf, bowling — women wear while doing housework! Carefully made from special elasticized s-t-r-e-t-c-h fabric, cut to your exact measurements; no binding crotch, reinforced with flexible stays front and back, zig-zag stitched for additional support, long wear. No rolling, no wrinkling, no riding up!

MONEY BACK IN 10 DAYS IF YOU'RE NOT DELIGHTED — If you don't look better, feel better, if you are not completely free of back pain, if at least one person has not said to you: "you look so much younger — what have you done?" — your full purchase price will be refunded — no questions asked.

GROW AMAZING LIVE SEA-MONKEYS!

Just Add Water — you've got "INSTANT LIFE".

Yes, it's the living truth! In only five minutes you will actually hatch a whole tumbling, playful, happy troupe of Sea-Monkeys that are even more fun than a zoo full of chattering, howling jungle monkeys! World's most amazing new pet, children and adults alike will laugh and thrill with wonderful excitement. Watch the comic antics of these fantastic underwater buffoons that are really alive. Any minute of the day or night, you'll see them chase one another in a playful game of tag. The loser gets caught by his tail and is spun in a dizzy circle. See the "showoffs" turn cartwheels of joy in the water... see the ticklish ones "scratch" each other's backs. Watch them swim singly or in ever-changing graceful formations, creating a live sea-circus.

ONLY

FREE! Receive with each order, a magnificent, fully-illustrated "Instant Life" Handbook of instructions, tricks, training and amazing life history of Sea-Monkeys. PLUS a FULL YEAR'S SUPPLY of special Sea-Monkey Growth Food to feed your fantastic pets! Note: Sea-Monkeys are so simple to handle, even a 6 year old child can raise them successfully!

Watch the Miracle of Life

These genuine living sea animals begin life from a seemingly inanimate handful of glittering crystals which contain the secret of life. A fantastic genetic material that stays alive for as long as twenty years. And these delightful pets that are born alive are so tiny... only three-quarters of an inch long when full grown, you raise an entire troupe in an ordinary glass of water from your sink. It's so safe, just empty the package of crystals we send you into the fish bowl of water and you will immediately see "Instant Life." Best of all, you can create a whole new brood at any time, to give as gifts or sell if you wish.

They Obey Your Silent Commands

You can actually make these marvelous Sea Monkeys behave like a bunch of trained seals as they follow a beam of light anywhere. Just darken the room and watch them follow a flashlight or candle beam forward, backward, sideways or around like a pack of happy kids playing Follow the Leader. So don't delay! Order now. Only $1.00 plus 25c shipping charges complete.

NOW! Run Your Car Without Spark Plugs

THE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCES BETWEEN ORDINARY SPARK PLUGS AND JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS

Your car's power comes from tiny explosions of gasoline vapor and air in your cylinders. The bigger the explosions, the faster you go.

SPARK PLUGS NARROW SPARK

CONVENTIONAL PLUGS explode this mixture with a spark jumping across an air gap. The spark is just 35-thousandths of an inch across — not wide enough to explode all the fuel in the cylinder. Unburned gas escapes through your exhaust. In time, the electrodes become eroded and caked with carbon. The gap widens, the spark gets narrower, you lose more power, waste more fuel . . . and finally have to replace your plugs.

JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITER WIDE SWATH OF FLAME

JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS use no sparks. Instead a fanning swath of flame walks across a semi-conductor bridge from one electrode to another, exploding far more fuel, getting far more power. There is no gap that can widen, and carbon deposits actually improve performance. They do not have to be adjusted or replaced—ever!

BOAT OWNERS! Fuel Igniters are better for your boat engine, too!

NEW JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS

Will deliver up to 30 more horsepower, 5 more miles per gallon using only regular gas!

THEY NEVER WEAR OUT

- get up to 5 more miles per gallon of gas
- add up to 30 more horsepower to your engine
- save $100 each year for you, year after year while you use the cheapest grades of gasoline!

YOU'LL NEVER CLEAN, ADJUST OR REPLACE PLUGS AGAIN!

Save $100 a Year With Jet-Fire Igniters!

If you drive 15,000 miles, you can easily save:

- $50 by switching to regular gas.
- $40 on your better mileage.
- $10 by not replacing plugs.

Pat. No. 2895588

You are protected by this 4-WAY GUARANTEE

1. GUARANTEED for the life of your car (or 30,000 miles) without cleaning, servicing or replacing.
2. GUARANTEED to increase miles/per/gallon of gas on regular gas!
3. GUARANTEED to increase horsepower, increase engine RPMs!
4. GUARANTEED to improve ease of starting and acceleration!

Spark plugs are obsolete! Now there's a far better way to run your car.

With conventional spark plugs, only a fraction of the fuel that enters your cylinders is turned into power. The rest escapes through your tailpipe as unburned vapor. That is because their spark is so narrow—only 35-thousandths of an inch wide—that it cannot possibly ignite all the fuel mixture in the cylinder. As plugs get older, their sparks get narrower and less efficient till they have to be replaced.

New Jet-Fuel Igniters do a far better job of turning gasoline into power. Instead of a narrow spark, they send out a wide swath of flame that "walks" across a semi-conductor tip, fanning out in all directions and exploding far more fuel in the cylinder.

Proof That You Get Up To 30 Horsepower More

Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters look like spark plugs merely because they have to be screwed into the spark plug socket. But what they do is far different. Here's how to prove it:

1. Run your car till it's fully warmed up.
2. Stop on a perfectly level stretch of road.
3. Put the car in Drive (1st gear with manual transmission), and see how fast the car rolls at idling speed.
4. Remove plugs and install Jet-Fuel Igniters (a 10-minute job).
5. Now see how fast your car rolls at idling speed. You can expect it to go 4 TO 6 MILES PER HOUR FASTER without touching the gas pedal — dramatic proof that Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters increase engine RPMs by 100 to 150 with no increase in gas consumption. (At high speeds, RPMs increase by 300 to 350.)

So, first thing, you can reduce the gas flow by adjusting the idling screw, and start saving money before you've even driven a mile!

(At the same time, you can make your air-to-gas mixture leaner. Fuel Igniters require only a 15:1 ratio instead of the conventional 9:1. It's a simple adjustment that you or your mechanic can make in one minute. It provides even greater economy.)

Start driving and you'll notice even more improvement—up to 30 more horsepower of acceleration power, climbing power, and passing power. All this while burning less gas!

SWITCH TO REGULAR

The next time your gas gauge gets near the "Empty" mark, tell the attendant to fill it up with REGULAR! Chances are you'll no longer need premium which costs four to eight cents more than regular gas.

And this second saving is only the beginning. Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters provide easier cold-weather starts . . . and that means less drain on your battery, and no drain on your patience as you try to get started.

NO REPLACING OR ADJUSTING EVER

The more you drive, the better your Fuel Igniters perform. They don't become eroded, wear out or require adjusting. And carbon build-up—the natural enemy of old fashioned plugs—actually makes fuel igniters perform better. Carbon becomes an additional carrier for the igniter's big jet flame.

So there you have a third saving. One set of fuel igniters will last the life of your car!

Invented To Save Air Force Lives— Now They Can Save You Money

Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters were first developed to save airmen's lives. During World War II, there were times when more men were killed by spark plug malfunction than by enemy action. A failure-proof replacement was needed, and Fuel Igniters did the job. Both the Navy and Air Force have approved them for jet engine use.

Now at last they have been modified for automobile use. They won't save your life, but they can save you big money—up to $100 a year with ordinary driving.

Some day, all cars may come equipped with Fuel Igniters like these. But why wait when you can install a set yourself now. Just mail the coupon with the make and model of your car, and we'll rush you a set with full instructions.

Just $12.00 per set of 6 — $8.00 per set of 8.

Save 40 Minutes on Your Next Flight

It's the CARRY-ON EXECUTIVE FLIGHT BAG BY ALEXANDER SALES that has saved more time and more aggravation for the jet flying executive than jet planes themselves. No more tension-filled, time-wasting delays at the check-in counter. No more fretful time spent waiting for your baggage to be unloaded. While others are standing in line... you can relax. While others are standing around waiting for their baggage you can be in your cab on the way to town.

SLIPS RIGHT UNDER YOUR AIRLINE SEAT
Our carry-on flight bag was designed to hold all the clothing you need... yet fit right under your seat on the plane. Meets all airline carry-on requirements. Compact size that is not too skinny... not too bulky. Weighs just 5 lbs., 2 ozs., is only 23" x 13 1/2" x 9". Made of new, miracle material SEAL that has an elegant genuine leather look yet outlasts leather by 6 times. Will last for years... almost indestructible.

SEAL HOLDS EVERYTHING
Its capacity can be expanded up or one way... enormous. Inside the main compartment is a hanging suit unit that holds your suit... prevents wrinkles... and plenty of room to hold shirts, socks, gaiters, etc. The bag opens to the incredible capacity of the expanding pockets... one full size pocket on one side and two smaller ones on the other. You will not believe how much you can stuff into these pockets... a convenience for getting out your soiled clothes on the return leg.

THE TYPE OF LUGGAGE

This has to be the best piece of luggage you have ever used anywhere... home, in the world's best hotels. Rugged good looks. Careful attention to detail and hand-crafted quality. Quality zippers, locks, balanced handles.

DESSERT TO HIGHLIGHT NEW YEAR'S DINNER

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

Pretty Pineapple Swirl Trifle is a dramatic dessert creation featuring the magic of convenience foods.

■ For New Year's Day plan an easy-on-the-hostess dinner. A large roast of meat, a choice of frozen or canned vegetables, a relish tray, refrigerated rolls, and our featured dessert will keep the emphasis on ease. Happy New Year!

Pineapple Swirl Trifle

- 1/2 cup cold milk
- 1 tablespoon (1 env.) unflavored gelatin
- 2 pkgs. (3 1/4 oz. each) vanilla pudding and pie filling
- 3 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pineapple slices, thoroughly drained
- Jelly roll (commercial or see recipe), cut in 12 slices
- 2 env. (about 2 oz. each) dessert topping mix, prepared according to pkg. directions

1. Sprinkle gelatin over the 1/2 cup milk and set aside.

2. Prepare the pudding according to pkg. directions using the 3 cups milk. Remove from heat. Immediately add the softened gelatin and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Mix in extract and cool thoroughly.

3. Line sides of a 9-in. springform pan with 4 pineapple slices alternated with 4 jelly roll slices.

4. Fold prepared topping into pudding. Spoon a third of the pudding into pan. Arrange a layer of jelly roll slices over pudding. Repeat layers ending with the pudding. Top with the remaining pineapple slices and halve slices. Chill until set, about 5 hrs.

5. To serve, cut into wedges.

About 10 servings

Jelly Roll

- 1/2 cup (about 4) egg yolks
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup sifted cake flour
- 1/2 cup (about 4) egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup sugar

Jelly or jam (about 1 cup)

1. Grease bottom of a 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-in. jelly roll pan; line with waxed paper cut to fit bottom of pan; grease paper. Set aside.

2. Beat egg yolks, 1/2 cup sugar, water, and extract together until very thick. Fold in flour until just blended. Set aside.

3. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar and salt until frothy. Add 1/2 cup sugar gradually, continuing to beat until stiff peaks are formed.

4. Fold in the egg yolk mixture until blended. Turn batter into the prepared pan and spread evenly.

5. Bake at 350°F. 20 to 25 min. or until top springs back when lightly touched at center. Loosen edges of cake and immediately turn onto a towel with confectioners' sugar sifted over it. Peel off the paper and trim any crisp edges of cake.

6. To roll, begin at one end of cake. Using towel as a guide, tightly grasp nearest edge of towel and quickly pull it over beyond opposite edge. Cake will roll itself as you pull. Wrap roll in towel and set on wire rack to cool about 30 min.

7. When ready to fill, carefully unroll cooled cake, spread with jelly or jam and reroll. Slice and serve.

One jelly roll

Guide for Roasting Meat

Place roast on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Season with salt and pepper, if desired. Insert meat thermometer so tip reaches the center of the largest muscle, being sure that tip does not rest in fat or on bone. Roast in a 300°F.—325°F. oven (325°F.—350°F. for fresh pork) to the desired degree of doneness. Remove from oven and remove thermometer. For easier carving, allow the roast to "set" 15 to 20 min.

	Weight Pounds	Interior Temperature When Done	Time Per Pounds in Minutes
Beef	standing rib	140°F. (rare)	23-25
		160 (medium)	27-30
		170 (well)	32-35

Americans work harder than any other people on earth to make adequate financial provision for their families after they are gone—BUT much of their hard-earned money is wasted, siphoned off by a scandalous probate system before it ever reaches their loved ones

NORMAN F. DACEY

Why Haven't You and Your Family Been Told These Facts?

- On average, it takes one to five years to close out an estate. During that time your spouse can draw a pitifully-small "widow's allowance" but your children can't draw a cent.
- It costs three to ten times as much proportionately to settle a poor man's estate as that of a millionaire.
- Under the existing probate system, complete strangers may share your estate with your family.

But, in the next 60 seconds I will tell you of an astonishingly simple way to transfer absolutely everything you now own to your loved ones after your death without delay, without red tape and without the excessive probate costs which your estate may otherwise be called upon to bear.

If you don't take the steps I suggest, my advice to you is "Don't die," because complications will start the moment you do. Your estate will come under the jurisdiction of a special court. Sometimes called the "orphans," "chancery" or "surrogate" court, its most common name is "probate" court. If you've left no will, it will dictate one for you in accordance with your state's law which won't necessarily read as you would wish. Now your children can start their long one-to-five-year wait to get what is left of their inheritance after the appraiser fees, executor or administrator fees and probate court costs are deducted.

THE UGLY SIDE OF PROBATE

Senator Robert F. Kennedy recently charged that courts handling probate are "shot through with scandal, scandal that has been documented over the years."

Fiorello LaGuardia called the probate system "the most expensive undertaking establishment in the world." The New York Herald-Tribune editorially denounced those "clubhouse lawyers" who "profit to the extent of one million dollars annually in fees, many taken, at a large percentage, from small guardianships where every dollar is needed." The Bridgeport Post called the probate system a "gravy train." An article in the Journal of the American Bar Association called the Connecticut probate system "one of the most viciously corrupt."

Probate judges on average are the highest paid judges in America. Many of them work on percentage and may earn more than the governors of their states. The income of one judge was 20% higher than that of the Chief Justice in Washington.

The clerk of a Chicago probate court appointed 691 "special guardians" in a nine-month period. One of his friends got 76 guardianships—an average of two a week. A probate judge has reported that 90% of the appraisers appointed by a probate court perform no service whatever for the fee they receive. Many conscientious members of the bar are worried about the corruption built into our probate system but most lack the courage to speak out.

It is up to you to do something to help yourself. Sooner or later some of your own family's money will be involved. Don't wait and let your family and your children face this problem. Learn now how to avoid the probate system.

THE MAGIC KEY TO AVOID PROBATE

How can you give your loved ones the very maximum estate in the very minimum time after you have gone? By avoiding probate. Yes, virtually everything you now own can be quickly and easily transferred to your heirs after your death—and exactly as you specify, without any red tape, without publicity, without strangers meddling in your affairs and draining off the financial security you worked so hard to build for your family.

You can achieve all this very simply by a method which few laymen know about called an "inter vivos" or "living" trust. Indeed, only a small proportion of lawyers fully understand its use—the American Bar Association has just issued a training film to be shown to local bar associations to educate them on its advantages.

CLEARED!

The Book The Lawyers Tried to Ban . . . until the Lawyers' New York State suit was THROWN OUT by New York's highest court

. . . The book so extraordinary Norman F. Dacey insists it be printed not on regular book paper but highest quality bond paper . . . Because it contains important legal forms which you can fill in, use and which last over 100 years.

It's amazingly simple: Let's assume that you own a piece of real estate which you wish to leave to your wife at your death. In a simple "declaration of trust" you say in part: "I declare that I am holding this property in trust for my wife. Upon my death my successor trustee is to turn the property over to the beneficiary and terminate this trust. I hereby appoint as successor trustee the beneficiary hereunder." Upon your death, your wife, acting in her capacity as successor trustee, simply turns the property over to herself as beneficiary. She is then immediately the complete and absolute owner of the property. That's all there is to it—no executor's fees, no appraiser's fees, no probate court cost. No one-to-five-year wait. No piece in the paper telling all your business.

VITAL IF YOU OWN A SMALL BUSINESS

Passing on a small business, incorporated or unincorporated, to relatives or employees is extremely important. If necessary, your business can be quickly sold by the beneficiary-trustee if that is your and their wish. Otherwise, it could be tied up in probate court for years. A distress sale under probate procedures may produce little or nothing . . . may even create obligations. With an "inter vivos" trust, your successor trustee can quietly, privately and immediately investigate possible buyers . . . then take his time to make the deal that will give your family the very maximum, with no undesirable publicity to harm the sale.

WHY THIS BOOK BECAME AMERICA'S NO. 1 BEST SELLER

I wrote this book to tell a few friends and clients how to avoid probate. They told their friends . . . and it zoomed to the top of the best-seller list because Americans everywhere discovered that it frees them from the bondage of the iniquitous probate system.

In it you will find an explanation of why it is vitally important to you and your family that you avoid probate. Next, you'll find the actual trust instruments needed to exempt your home or other real estate, your savings or checking account, your stocks, your mutual fund shares, your small unincorporated business, your close corporation . . . even your personal effects such as jewelry, antiques, paintings, etc.

With each instrument are instructions that even a school child can understand, and a picture of how the instrument should look when it is completed. All of the instruments are specially perforated for easy removal from the book and actual use.

In addition, you'll find precise advice on a wide range of family financial planning decisions which you are called upon to make on matters of life insurance, taxes, investments and the like . . . the very things you and I would talk about if we sat down in your own home to discuss your financial estate problems.

LOADED WITH TAX-SAVING IDEAS, TOO

I'll show you a special way to give support to an elderly relative or to a growing child. I'll show you how you and the beneficiary can gain valuable tax benefits. I'll show you how to make gifts to charity to take effect at your death—but give you important tax benefits this year. I'll even tell you exactly what you do if you change your mind about any of the trust arrangements or want to change a beneficiary . . . and provide necessary forms.

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN?

It means that you're going to learn how to make the money you earn safer and more productive, you're going to pass it on to your family at your death with a minimum of wear and tear from taxes — and you're going to avoid completely the up-to-10% or 20% cost, the one-to-five year delay and the unwelcome

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

Your own lawyer may not like this man because of his courageous fight against the probate system. (On the other hand, he might be one of those enlightened lawyers who will positively agree with Mr. Dacey's fight.) But in a hundred books and articles, in more than than 500 broadcasts, Norman F. Dacey has brought his case for the streamlined passing of personal property to the American people. The American people have responded. Norman F. Dacey is bombshell news today. He is America's best known professional estate planner. Senate committees, the Justice Department, the Defense Department, the largest consumer organization in America have all sought his professional assistance. At the invitation of the U.S. Air Force, he has delivered a series of lectures on estate planning at the Air Force Academy. Now you can obtain his guidance in planning your estate. We are proud to have published this historic book.

The author has also insisted that you be permitted to examine the book at no risk to your self. Accordingly, you may examine it in your own home for ten days and return it if it is not all that we claim it to be.

Since its publication we have printed and completely sold out twenty-nine editions. It is constantly in short supply. It has been first come, first served. Order it today on our special money-back guarantee. It costs nothing at all unless you are completely satisfied, and otherwise only $4.95. Send the coupon below.

publicity which will attract the attention of unscrupulous persons to your heirs. And you're going to keep the sticky fingers of any probate racketeers out of your family's affairs.

To my knowledge, there's never been a book like this before. It is truly a "do-it-yourself kit" which will enable any literate American to administer his own estate. If you came by your money easily and you don't much care who gets it when you're gone, the book isn't for you. But if you're a hard-working American and you want to decide for yourself, with a conscientious lawyer if you like, who is to get your estate when you're gone, and if you have no intention of bequeathing a chunk of it to the local probate court, this book was written for you.

It's New Year's Resolution Time Again!

What we need, says this famous humorist, is a 13th month—so we'll have time to keep last year's promises

By GOODMAN ACE

Author of "Book of Little Knowledge" and "The Fine Art of Hypochondria"

AS WE all know, New Year's resolutions go in one year and out the other.

I thought I had that little human frailty licked last New Year's Eve, when the first resolution I made was, "I resolve to keep all my New Year's resolutions this year." I was so sure that would work that I added all the broken resolutions from past years to my 1968 list. It was a long one.

And here it is a few nights before the year runs out, and I find myself with a long list in as disreputable repair as in any other year. It's not that I didn't "try." As a matter of fact, it was my most trying year. And it went by too fast. To rid myself of feelings of guilt, I went into my usual ritual of complaints:

Where has the year gone? Why isn't there someone to remind me that time grows short? Why didn't I have time to carry out all these idealistic resolutions? Why can't there be an extra month in the calendar to remind all of us to mend a rift, to speak a word, to fill a void, to right a wrong, to heal a wound, to grant a wish, to make peace, to end a war? Just one more month.

I talk a lot when I talk to myself. And I don't expect an answer. But this time there was an answer.

"It'll never work."

I looked up and there in a chair across the room sat a tall, gaunt, elderly gentleman.

"How'd you get in here? Who are you?" I demanded.

"I'm Father Time," he replied.

He was obviously an imposter. This natty old gent in his gray-flannel suit with narrow lapels and tapered slacks, Oxford loafers, white shirt, and sincere tie, was like no Father Time I ever saw.

"Father Time?" I asked. "Where's your long hair, your flowing robe, your long beard, and your sandals?"

"I gave up all that," he laughed. "Your kids have given that image a bad name, and I don't carry a scythe any more. It has become a symbol of violence."

"O.K., look, I'm pretty busy right now with these resolutions. I don't have much time."

"Me, too," he said. "I don't have much time, either."

"That's a laugh. I'd think you were well stocked with that commodity."

"You'd think so, wouldn't you? But it's not so. I don't usually make house calls, but in passing I heard you'd like a little more time to heal a wound, to mend a rift, etc. It'll never work—that suggestion of yours, adding an extra month in the year to give you more time."

"Why not?" I asked. "A month in which to remember to do all the good things I so earnestly resolved last year to do this year. Just one extra month in which to remember."

"Forget it."

"That's even a good name for an extra month. 'Remember.' It rhymes—October, November, December, Remember. It even scans."

"Scans, schams, it'll never happen. In the first place, you being human, an extra month would only give you that much more time to delay."

"But if I had an extra month, I promise faithfully that I . . ."

"No. Your record is against you. It's a noble idea, but it'll never work. And don't go spreading the idea around. Somebody might take you up on it, and I'll be in big trouble."

"How would you be in trouble?"

"Because the 12 months are named for Janus, Februarius, Mars, Junius, Julius, etc. You don't know that crowd the way I do. Every one of them is pretty touchy about anyone fooling around with his particular month. That's the 'Establishment' I work for. I'm not a rebel. And I don't fight 'em. So lay off that extra-month foolishness. I don't want to lose my job."

"Lose your job? Aren't you 'Time Immemorial'?"

"Oh, that's just one of those fancy titles. All my job consists of is getting a kid ready to show up for the new year."

"What kid?"

"The little baby—the spanking new, lovable, little kid you folks down here like to imagine the new year looks like at your New Year's Eve celebrations. Never thought when I started this job I'd be in show biz. I've been making the rounds with the kid, showing him the ropes."

"Let me get this straight. Before the New Year starts, you show the boy the ropes?"

"That's right. It's tradition. I have to break him in. When I deliver him, I'm through for the year, and then I start rehearsing another kid. I better be getting along. He's waiting in the next room."

"He is? Could I see him? I'd like to talk to him. Maybe he'd go for the month of Remember idea."

"Don't you dare mention it to him. He has enough to think about before he makes his debut. Hey, kid, come in here."

A chubby, pink-faced little boy joined Father Time. "You're certainly a healthy-looking New Year," I said.

In toddled a chubby, pink-faced little boy dressed in a red ribbon on which was printed "1969"

"Well," I said, "you're a healthy-looking New Year."

"Yes," said the old gent, "they all start out that way. But what happens to them after you people are through with them is something I don't like to think about."

"Well, time's a-wastin' and that's one habit I don't want this kid to get into. Come on, boy, we got a lot of things to do."

"Wait," I pleaded. "What about me and this long list of resolutions that I haven't had time to keep? If you won't give me the extra month, Father Time, how about standing still for a few extra days. You know, 'Time stands still.'"

"That ain't the way I heard it. It's 'Tempus fugit.' Come on, Sonny, we're late. It'll be no time at all before midnight and Guy Lombardo."

"Lombardo?" the kid wailed, "How about the Supremes? You promised."

"O.K., O.K. On that night you'll meet all of 'em. Honestly, these kids these days, I just don't understand 'em at all."

"Are you going to leave me stuck with more than 100 broken resolutions, Father Time?"

"One hundred? You people down here kill me."

"Yes, I'll admit that we do kill a lot of time."

"You sure do. You don't need to kill time making 100 resolutions. Eleven will take care of everything quite nicely."

"What 11?"

"Just the 10 Commandments and the Golden Rule." ♦

STOP SMOKING FOREVER

Over and over again we hear that tobacco is the cause of 98% of all lung cancer cases. Recent studies show that one out of every four smokers is a potential victim of this dread disease. Yes, tobacco is the most deadly poison developed by our civilization. Aside from lung cancer, cigarettes are the cause of other extremely serious diseases.

There is one chance in 4 that a heavy smoker may be stricken one day by lung cancer.

Tobacco smoke is composed of 84 substances, 5 of which are carcinogenic (cancer causing) and 30 are toxic (poisonous). Every time you draw on a cigarette, cigar or pipe, you are exposed to at least 44 different chemicals and poisons, 23 among the most deadly are: lutidin, rubidin, carbolic acid, formaldehyde, methalyamine, acrylin, collidine, viridin, arsenic, formic acid, nicotine, hydrogen, sulphide, pyrrol, furfuroi, benzopyrene, methyl alcohol, prussic acid, corodin, ammonias, methane, carbon monoxide, pyridin. Quite a haulful of deadly poison for just one puff of smoke!

In a recent survey conducted by a leading American Doctor the incidence of coronary diseases (infarction, angina pectoris, etc.) has been found to be 68% higher in smokers than in non-smokers.

So, if you want to stay healthy, you've got to stop smoking. But, be careful! Don't stop smoking all at once. That could be dangerous.

Now, where's this advice coming from? Some cigarette or pipe tobacco advertiser trying to make the best of a bad situation? Of course not!

This is the advice of the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, an organization designed especially to help you rid yourself of your addiction to tobacco.

OBESITY LURKS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Well, our experience has shown that a "confirmed" or "heavy" smoker should not stop smoking all at once, as this will seriously endanger his health and well being.

For years your body has been accustomed to its regular daily intake of toxic substances such as nicotine, tar, etc., and by now it is adjusted to that situation. Cutting tobacco out overnight will result in a shock to your physiological system accompanied nearly always by psychic disturbances. Which results in an imbalance of the sympathetic nervous system.

The digestive system becomes disturbed; the central nervous system becomes up-set; you become "bad-tempered", you can't be bothered by friends, spouse, children, etc., as the least little irritation will make you fly off the handle.

Life becomes hell for you and everybody around you.

But, that's not all; it has been effectively proven that anyone who attempts to stop smoking by sheer will power alone, will suffer terrible feelings of frustration.

A VICE THAT CAN KILL

In order to compensate, he begins to eat and eat and eat. This is why so many former smokers put on excess weight and become fat. Stopping smoking all at once has been the cause of many severe cases of obesity.

So, giving up smoking, by yourself, is not the real solution, as it might endanger your health.

Then, how should you stop smoking? Well, this is what the Anti-Tobacco Center of America is going to teach you.

Just clip and mail the coupon below to receive full information on a program which will help to rid you of your need to smoke. You'll be amazed to learn that you can stop smoking without any danger and without straining your will power; after only a few days the desire to smoke will vanish.

Just think how much happier you will be!

This is the experience of an ex-smoker we all know: MAURICE CHEVALIER "I was sunk in a vice which had left life no meaning at all. I was chronically dominated by a mountain of cigarettes, which like a growing invasion of grasshoppers succeeded in ruining my nerves. I stopped smoking twelve years ago. (Chevalier wrote this in 1960) And it is since this fortunate decision that my mental activities, my intelligence, my memory developed so much, that I — who had lost all interest in life — could escape that growing scepticism and rediscover interest in what happened around me. I was able again to read and . . . to remember what I had read!"

Among the 28,683 former smokers helped by the Anti-Tobacco Center, we give you the testimony of some doctors. We have chosen this profession intentionally, because doctors know the harm that tobacco causes. They are able to appreciate the results of our program.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY!

Dr. A. C. "The efficacy of your product surprised everybody. I stopped smoking in ten days exactly. Thank you sincerely."

Dr. J. T. "I have used a supply of your product . . . I was informed of its composition by a friend, Dr. C., who was, truthfully speaking, rather sceptical. But after having used it, I do not smoke any longer and have no desire whatsoever to start again. The result is absolutely clear, without a shadow of a doubt, and I feel it my duty to tell you so."

Dr. E. C. "Since January 23, 1962, I no longer smoke. I have already given the "tip" to several of my friends and patients."

Dr. F. C. "I am happy that I do not smoke any more, this of course being due to the use of your product. All my thanks."

Dr. L. D. "The result was rapid. I think that anybody who wishes to stop smoking can do so."

(Since European law forbids all publicity for doctors, we can only publish their initials.)

IF YOU STOP SMOKING YOU WILL:

- Digest your food better
- Sleep better
- Combat fatigue
- Diminish the chance of cancer
- Be in good humor
- Keep your good eyesight
- Remain calm
- Have a good memory
- Get back your muscle tone
- Drink less alcohol
- Have clean breath
- Grow old less quickly
- Find a revival of your virility
- Save money

BANG!

Good grief! What was that?!

It's Mr. Fracas, Mom. He just shot off a firecracker!

He would!

Tuesday night is New Year's Eve. I guess he's getting ready to celebrate.

There should be a different kind of celebrating this year. We must hope and pray for brotherhood and peace.

We've had all the noise and confusion we need in 1968!

You're so right!

Maybe he's celebrating because troublesome old '68 is coming to an end.

I prefer to look forward. I hope 1969 will bring Chipper and all our boys back home.

And that people around the world may view scenes as tranquil as that.

Let's all pray that--

BANG!

Nice evening, Walleys!

With just a little cooperation, Mr. Fracas, it could be!

Our Story: ALETA KNEELS BESIDE KATWIN AS SHE LIES ON THE DECK SOBBING..... THEN SHE LOOKS UP AND FASTENS ANGRY EYES ON HELGE, "NOW SEE WHAT YOU HAVE DONE!"

HELGE IS SURPRISED. "WHAT HAVE I DONE?" HE ASKS WEAKLY. ALETA GLARES AT HIM: "OH, YOU MEN! YOU ARE ALL SO PROUD OF YOUR STRENGTH, YOUR FAME AS WARRIORS, THAT WHEN A WOUND UNFITS YOU FOR BATTLE YOU WISH TO DIE. BUT IT WAS YOUR SKILL AS A NAVIGATOR THAT BROUGHT FAME TO YOUR HOMETLAND, NOT YOUR BATTLE-AXE."

"KATWIN SAVED YOUR LIFE, NURSED YOU NIGHT AND DAY, BROUGHT YOU OUT OF THE SHADOWS WITHOUT YOUR HELP, AND SERVED YOU TO THE VERY END OF HER STRENGTH."

"BUT YOU WERE TOO FILLED WITH SELF-SYMPATHY TO NOTICE, YOU SAID YOU WOULD RATHER DIE THAN LIVE A CRIPPLE! WELL, IN GRATITUDE TO KATWIN, GET WELL. THEN, IF YOU STILL WANT TO DIE, YOU HAVE MY PERMISSION TO JUMP OVERBOARD!"

THEN, THE VERY PICTURE OF INDIGNATION, ALETA MARCHES TO HER CABIN AND, WITH A NOD OF HER HEAD, COMMANDS HER FAMILY TO FOLLOW HER. "NOW LET US WATCH," SHE SAYS WITH AN IMPISH GRIN.

THERE IS A LONG SILENCE. THEN, RISING UP ON HIS RIGHT ARM, HELGE CALLS SOFTLY: "KATWIN."

SHE COMES TO HIM AND STANDS WEARILY, FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE HIS WOUNDING HE RAISES HIS VOICE: "OLAF! BRING THE LADY KATWIN A STOOL!"

FOR SOME MOMENTS HE GAZES INTO HER TIRED EYES. "WHY DID YOU DO THIS FOR ME?" HE ASKS. BUT, BEING A WOMAN, SHE DOES NOT ANSWER. IF HE DOESN'T KNOW NOW, HE NEVER WILL. NEXT WEEK—The Westerlies

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

AND THE PIRATES

GEORGE WUNDER

TERRY ARRIVES IN TIME TO WITNESS A CONFRONTATION BETWEEN GENERAL HASP AND THE REGIONAL DIRECTOR OF ANTIQUITIES ON SICILY.

WELL, MISTER PALMA, WHAT THE DEVIL IS RATTLING AROUND IN YOUR BUREAUCRATIC, FEATHER-STUFFED SKULL THIS TIME?

WITH INDIGNATION, I INFORM YOU, GENERAL. I HAVE PROOF, INDISPUTABLE PROOF, THAT YOU HAVE BEEN DIGGING IN THE RUINED CITY BY THE BAY AGAIN— IN DEFIANCE OF THE LAW!

LISTEN, YOU POMPOUS CIVILIAN! I GOT A PERMIT FROM YOUR GOVERNMENT WHEN I FIRST CAME HERE.

AH, HAH! THIS IMBECILE OF AN AMATEUR DOES NOT EVEN READ!

THE PERMISSION STATES THAT ALL EXCAVATING MUST BE DONE UNDER MY SUPERVISION! I, AS A SCIENTIST, AM RESPONSIBLE FOR ALL ARCHEOLOGICAL INVESTIGATION IN THIS AREA!

WHAT DID YOU TAKE FROM THE SITE, EH? A FINE PIECE OF GREEK STATUARY, PERHAPS THE HOARD OF A ROMAN MERCHANT...

BLAST YOU, PALMA! YOU KNOW DANGED WELL I DON'T CARE ABOUT YOUR BUSTED CROCKERY.

YOU KNOW WHAT I'M LOOKING FOR, FEATHER MERCHANT!

HA! A MERE FANTASY! AN IMPOSSIBILITY OF WHICH THERE IS NO HISTORICAL RECORD... EH?

SO! YOU HAVE BROUGHT IN ANOTHER GRAVE-ROBBER TO ASSIST IN NEFARIOUS LOOTING!

NEGATIVE, MISTER PALMA. THIS IS COLONEL LEE OF THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE.

WASHINGTON SENT HIM HERE TO SERVE AS AIDE-DE-CAMP TO MY FATHER.

AH, NOW THAT IS INTERESTING, DEAR MISS THEODORA HASP.

I TRUST THAT COLONEL LEE WILL BE HIGHLY EFFICIENT IN CARRYING OUT HIS, AH, DUTY!

TOOT TOOT TOOT

YOU'RE KIND OF EARLY, AREN'T YOU?

NEW YEAR'S EVE ISN'T UNTIL TUESDAY NIGHT

REALLY?

HOW GAUCHE OF ME NOT TO HAVE KNOWN THAT!
