The Game Today

West Virginia vs. East Carolina

West Virginia looks to rebound from its second loss of the 1982 campaign as it hosts East Carolina at Mountaineer Field. A crowd which could be in excess of 50,000 is expected for the contest, which matches two squads who were involved with shutouts a week ago

The Mountaineers gained 39 yards more than Penn State and picked up 21 first downs to the Nittany Lions' 18; but WVU was nonetheless shutout 24-0 by the visitors from the north. At the same time, East Carolina was piling up over 300 yards rushing on Illinois State in the process of recording a 21-0 victory. The Pirates enter this week's contest 4-3; the Mountaineers are 5-2.

"That was an awful good football team we played last week but we were our own worst enemy," recalls West Virginia head coach Don Nehlen. "I think Penn State knows they were in a football game, but we just couldn't seem to punch in there and score."

Nehlen states on the offensive side of the football when he talks about things to work on this week. "We have some problems to work out on offense, and we really need to get our offense healthy for a change.

"There is a big difference between playing in a game and preparing for a game, and we haven't had everyone on offense preparing for our opponents for a couple of weeks. If we can get some practice in for everyone this week and work on our mistakes, we should be a better football team on offense."

The health factor Nehlen speaks of includes guarterback Jeff Hostetler. who is still hobbled by a bruised toe on his left foot, and center Dave Johnson, who had not played for almost a month due to an ankle injury.

"What we really need more than anything else is an open date,' Nehlen says. "We have had Oklahoma, Maryland, Pitt, Boston College, Virginia Tech, Penn State . . . I'm not sure we can keep asking this team to go to the well every week." 1982 FOOTBALL PROGRAM

Kevin White, a sophomore from Casa Grande, Ariz., gets his first collegiate start in this afternoon's contest against Again, Nehlen points to the need for his team to be prepared to play every snap. "We have to take a team's best punch every week . . . that's all there is to it," he explains. "At this point in time, there is nobody on our schedule that can't beat us.

East Carolina.

"As I've said, we've got some problems to work out too, especially on offense. In the long run, we need to get everyone ready to play and get back on the winning track," Nehlen concludes. "Any coach will tell you that in any given week a football team will either get better or worse than it was the week before. I'm certainly not planning on being worse this week.'

Sophomore Kevin White is expected to start at guarterback today in place of the injured Jeff Hostetler. Hostetler has been suffering from an injury to his big toe and will not return to action until he is healthy.

White has completed six of 20 passes for 74 yards while seeing action in five games as Hostetler's backup.

A win today would clinch West Virginia's second consecutive winning season and mark the Mountaineers' 57th winning season.

Kicker Paul Woodside needs only one field goal to tie and two to break the career record of 25 co-held by Ken Juskowich and Bill McKenzie. He is only 19 points shy of the single season record for points by kicking kicking (81).

If you are looking for the best account available, don't bother checking at other banks.

A checking account shouldn't be taken for granted. In addition to meeting your basic needs, your checking account should be good for your pocketbook. And that's exactly what you'll find with Charleston Federal's BLANK CHECKING.

TOTALLY FREE CHECKING.

Many banks offer "free checking". But if you look closely you'll always find a string attached. A minimum here, a maximum there... and before long, you're paying a service charge. And if you have to pay a service charge, then it isn't free is it?

Ours is totally free. No minimums. No maximums. And no service charges. Ever.

FREE INTEREST BEARING ACCOUNTS.

Want to earn interest on your checking account? We have that too, with several options that would even let you earn 5¼% interest and avoid service charges. We've been offering this account for a year, and thousands of West Virginians have switched. With BLANK CHECKING and the added convenience of 11 branches statewide, that's not surprising.

Compare BLANK CHECKING to your present checking account. Then visit the Charleston Federal Branch nearest you to open your account or get additional information. You'll see how we're making bank checking obsolete.

Talley Plays With "Controlled Madness"

By Mark Miner

After toiling for the Mountaineers for the past four years, West Virginia linebacker Darryl Talley is finally getting the recognition for himself and his team that both so rightly deserve.

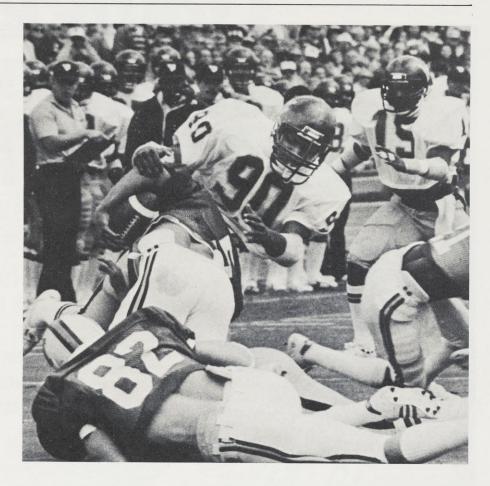

Sports Illustrated named Talley its "Player of the Week" for his possessed performance against Boston College earlier this month, making 11 tackles and assisting on five others in WVU's 20-13 victory.

Another national publication, Inside Sports, featured the 6-4, 210pounder in a feature article entitled "Bad Dudes."

ESPN, the total sports network, selected him as its Player of the Game against Pitt. He was later tabbed as the network's Amateur Athlete of the Week.

"I think it has been good recognition for me," Talley says. "I'm happy and thankful for it. The guy doing the story on "Bad Dudes" took me to a park, took all these pictures and told me that it was on the five most aggressive guys in sports."

1982 FOOTBALL PROGRAM

Talley's other honors this year include "Defensive Champion," which he has won four times for his play against Maryland, Boston College, Pitt and Virginia Tech. The award is given by the WVU coaches.

"I can't really think about it," claims Talley. "I can think about it once the season's over, about what I accomplished, how I went about it, if I could have gotten more, where I made mistakes. It bugs you to a point that when it first comes out, you're happy, but afterward you can't worry about it because you have the next week to get ready for.

"You have to keep it in the framework of the defense," Talley continues. "That's the biggest key to the whole thing. In certain plays, I've got some responsibility to take on. After I carry out my assignment, I try to go further or beyond my assigned area of responsibility."

Although Talley plays with a fury on the field, he says the feeling doesn't really begin until right before the start of the game. He calls it a "controlled madness" but adds that it is hard to describe.

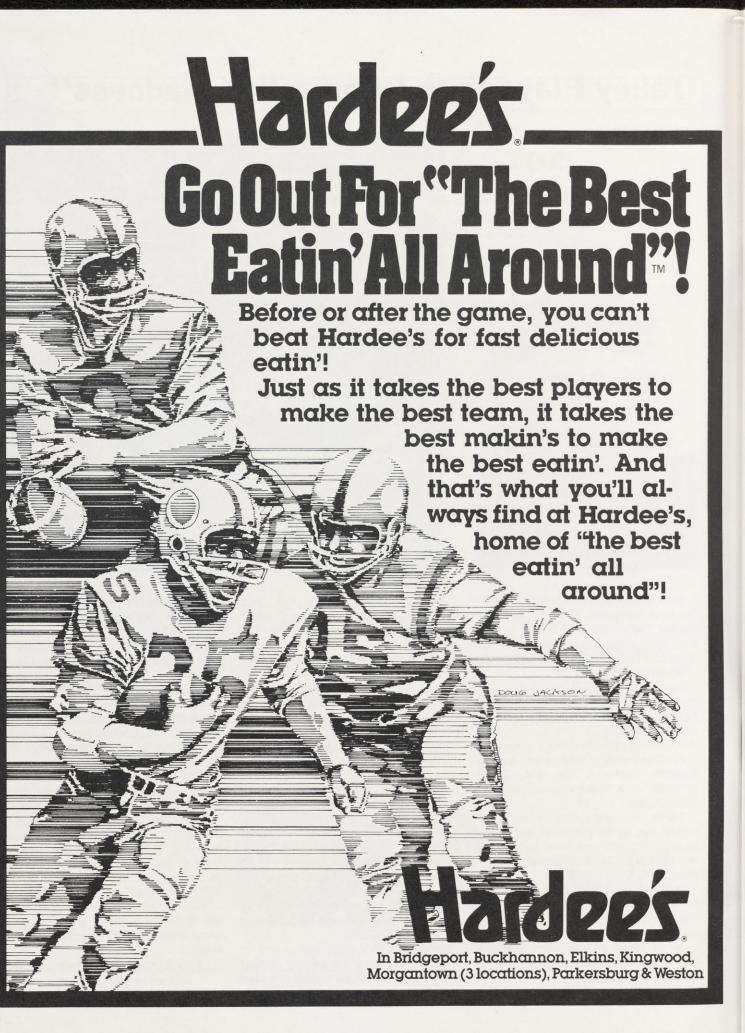

"Every Saturday I come ready to play," says the native of East Cleveland, Ohio. "Some people have to sit there concentrating and start shaking at everything. I'm more relaxed before the game. I visualize things I want to do—make an interception or a big hit or causing a fumble, but before the game I don't have a care in the world.

"The only time I get excited is when I walk out the locker room door, and I see the other team. It's like a cloud hits me. All you know is you want to beat them as bad as you can. If a guy is trying to block you, you always want to get off his block and beat him to the punch. You want to be in the middle of the action.

"My blood pressure doesn't go up-it may go down a bit. I don't know what it is, but it comes all of a sudden."

spurred him to great heights. Playing since a freshman, Talley finished second to fellow linebacker and friend Dennis Fowlkes in 1980 in total tackles (150 to 127). Last year, however, the order was reversed as Talley edged out Fowlkes 139 to 120 in total tackles on the team.

Both players agree that the competition pushes them to play better.

"It's sort of a friendly rivalry to see who can get the most hits in a game," Fowlkes says.

"We're always trying to make each other better," Talley says. "Before I hurt my shoulder a couple of years ago, I didn't like lifting weights, but I had to lift so that I could play again. I started to hang around with Dennis, and he likes to lift because he use to run around with Jeff Seals, and Seals liked to lift.

"Dennis started to get me lifting," continues Talley, "and then it got to where I was just as strong as Dennis. Now we have a competition between us so if he goes into the weight room and lifts 300 lbs. five times, I've got to do it five times. If he does 315 four times, I've got to do it four times. And if I do it, he does it. We used that to push each other, and eventually I got a lot stronger than I've ever been."

The friendly jockeying doesn't stop in the weight room but continues right out onto the field. When the Mountaineers traveled to Oklahoma earlier this fall, Talley says he felt sick and wasn't playing well.

"But I refused to come off that field," Talley states. "I wanted to play that game bad. But Dennis said, 'You better start playing, because you're not playing like the Darryl Talley I know. You're playing like a bum.'

"Dennis said that right in the middle of the game," adds Talley. "He kept me going when everything seemed like it was going wrong."

As for playing style, one might call Talley's "mongrel." He says he watches a lot of players and incorporates their techniques into his.

"Ted Hendricks—that man can do something," marvels Talley. "He's big, he's agile, and he can do a lot of things with his body so well that I'd like to be able to do.

"And I like the way Jack Tatum hits people," Talley adds. "He hits them aggressively and within the boundaries of the game. He just plays good, hard, clean football.

"I've read his book three times, I think. Once for class, and twice for myself. Each time I read it, I got something different out of it. The guy is totally not like everybody says he is. People make him out to be some hard, Pirate type character with no heart or anything. He's actually a real person, with human feelings."

Besides Hendricks and Tatum, Talley likes to observe his peers.

"When I was a freshman, I had the chance to play with Delbert Fowler," he recalls. "He taught me how to throw a forearm. He was one of the best I'd seen. He could throw one and knock a tight end or a tackle to his knees.

"I watched the way (Pitt's) Hugh Green and Ricky Jackson played," continues Talley, "and I learned from them the different ways to use their hands and forearms and at what times not to.

"And at the same time, I was out competing against them and trying to outplay them."

Don Nehlen Head Football Coach

In just two years, Don Nehlen has taken the West Virginia football program from four consecutive losing seasons to the Peach Bowl Championship. With that success has come the kind of national attention that has put Mountaineer football on the map as a Top 20 team and Don Nehlen in the spotlight as one of the nation's premier coaches.

In his initial season here, Nehlen took a group of young, inexperienced athletes whose numbers had been trimmed due to several key injuries and made drastic improvements in a team that had recorded four straight losing seasons.

Along the way to a 6-6 slate, West Virginia posted a landslide win at Colorado State and back-toback road wins against Temple and Rutgers. Nehlen gave evidence of his coaching abilities and of a Mountaineer team about to flex its muscles.

And flex them it did in 1981. An upset victory at Maryland signaled the start of West Virginia's rise to national prominence. The year ended with quarterback Oliver Luck the owner of many Mountaineer career records and the team with an 8-3 record and a Peach Bowl bid.

Thousands of WVU fans followed their team to Atlanta, and looked on as the Nehlen-prepared Mountaineers stunned the nation and demolished the Florida Gators, 26-6. West Virginia football had arrived, and Don Nehlen was leading the way.

Since his days as a quarterback at Bowling Green in 1955, Nehlen has been associated with only one losing season. In 1958 he began his coaching career as an assistant coach at Mansfield (O.) Senior High School. A year later he became head coach at Canton South High School where his teams finished 24-11-2 in four seasons.

In 1963 Nehlen moved to the collegiate ranks as backfield coach at Cincinnati under Chuck Studley. The next season he returned to Canton as head coach at McKinley High School and guided the Bulldogs to a 9-1 record and second place in the state.

Nehlen returned to his alma mater in 1965 as defensive coordinator under Bob Gipson. His units yielded only 361 points in 28 games (12.9 average), recorded six shutouts and finished 19-9.

Nehlen took over the reins at Bowling Green in 1968, guiding the Falcons to a 53-35-4 record and three second-place finishes in the Mid-American Conference. His 1975 team finished 8-3, Bowling Green's best record in a decade. He ranked 24th among active major college head coaches.

His overall record as a college head coach is 68-44-4. From 1977-79, Nehlen served under Bo Schembechler at Michigan. His duties included working with the offensive backs, quarterbacks, receivers, and overseeing recruitment. During his stay at Michigan, the Wolverines played in two Rose Bowls and a Gator Bowl.

The Nehlen coaching style emphasizes the importance of the young men in his program. "Nobody is as important as my players," he explains. "I'll do everything I can for the kids. They're going to know they can always count on me and that my door is always open. In turn they will know exactly what I expect from them.

"My goal is to build a solid program and do everything possible to make sure our players graduate from West Virginia. That's what we're here for and I feel very strong about that."

Nehlen's style on the field includes a Multiple I offense, a 5-2 defense, and a promise that his teams "will play with enthusiasm and dedication."

Nehlen, 46, was graduated from Bowling Green in 1958 with a degree in education after a successful football career. He quarterbacked the Falcons to a 21-2-4 record during the 1955-57 campaigns. He earned a master's degree at Kent State University in 1965.

He and his wife, the former Merry Ann Chopson, are the parents of two children—Danny (21) and Vicky (19).

THE WINNER'S CIRCLE

Winning is the name of the game. Whether it's football or the business of insurance, everyone prefers a winner.

Number 85, All-American Tight End Mark Raugh wound up in the winner's circle at the Peach Bowl. He is a winner with the desire to do what it takes to win. That's why Coach Nehlen relies on him when the going gets tough.

Flat Top Insurance Agency is a winner when it comes to coal mining insurance. That's why coal mining operations throughout the East look to Flat Top to meet their demands for quality insurance protection. They prefer a winner.

So, when you think about it, Flat Top Insurance Agency and WVU's Mark Raugh have a lot in common. They're both winners.

Mountaineer*S

Steve Newberry Junior/DB Peterstown, W. Va.

One of the standouts in the Mountaineer secondary is right at home in a Gold and Blue uniform— Peterstown native Steve Newberry.

The junior defensive back has been a Mountaineer defensive fixture since his freshman year, when he moved in to the starting lineup. Since then, he's held his own, recording 36 tackles and three interceptions in 1982.

"I'm really proud of what I've accomplished; proud because of what I've been able to contribute to the team over the past two and a half seasons, and I'm very proud of what we've done as a team—winning the Peach Bowl and our season so far this year," Newberry says. "And I'm especially proud to just be a Mountaineer. This is my home state and I'm proud of West Virginia."

This season, Newberry can certainly be proud. He's recorded 32 tackles, 27 of them unassisted; he has also managed to lead the team in interceptions with three, one of them a key catch against Virginia Tech.

"Our season so far? It's going great," he says enthusiastically. "The only problem with that is that it's sometimes hard not to look ahead—to the next game, or a bowl bid, or anything. We just have to remember to keep things in perspective, and take things play by play, game by game. This week it's East Carolina

"I just think about playing my position, doing my part of the coverage, and taking part of my share of every play. Beyond that, I don't worry much," he says. No matter who the Mountaineers' opponent is, though they'll have their minds on Steve Newberry. 1982 FOOTBALL PROGRAM

Rich Hollins Sophomore/WR Zanesville, Ohio

"... And it's Hostetler to Hollins for another long gain!"

When the Mountaineers wing the ball downfield for a big play, chances are Rich Hollins is on the receiving end.

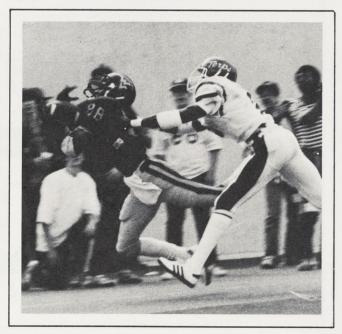

The talented wide receiver, a native of Zanesville, Ohio, is third on the Mountaineer squad this season in receptions, having caught 11 passes for 238 yards. Those statistics don't tell the whole story though; he's scored two touchdowns and has been a part of many big plays, including the Mountaineers longest scoring play, a 44-yard pass from Jeff Hostetler against Richmond.

"It's hard for me to think of myself as being 'Mr. Big Play'," Hollins says. "We don't design our offense so that any one guy is constantly in the spotlight. I just run my share of where I am in the patterns, and hopefully, when the ball comes my way, the play will be successful."

Success is not new to Hollins. A two-year player, he caught 37 passes for 754 yards last season, moving into the starting lineup after teammate Darrell Miller got injured.

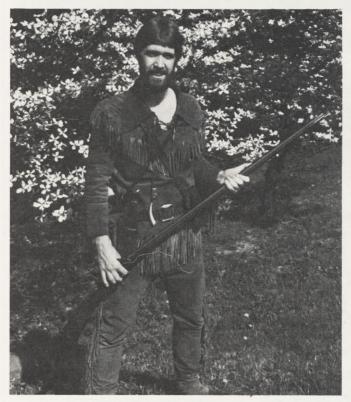

"For sure, Darrell's surgery gave me an opportunity to play some more and to show what I could do," he says. "Really, though, our offense is diverse enough to give everyone an opportunity to do what he does well. Just look at our receivers—there are always half a dozen guys who are in contention to catch the ball."

GOOD LUCK MOUNTAINEERS!

Mountaineer Scoop: Ask Them Yourself

Compiled by Joe Boczek

For Safety Tim Agee

- Q. You seem to be one of the hardest hitting defensive backs I have ever observed, have you always been that way? Al Wizba, Parkersburg
- A. Yes, I have always tried to be a hard hitter. When you play in the defensive backfield, you can't prevent every pass from being caught but you can make a receiver think about catching the next one if you give him a jolt when he does make a catch.

For Defensive Back Steve Newberry

Q. You have developed into a first rate collegiate defensive back. What have you done since your days in high school to foster such improvement? Terry Johnson, Morgantown price when they run or catch a pass. We can't prevent every pass from being caught but forcing a fumble or a dropped pass is just as good from my standpoint.

For Defensive Coordinator Dennis Brown

- Q. Are you pleased with the progress the defense has made this year? Leslie Cook, Wheeling
- A. I think our defense has made great strides since we first arrived in Morgantown but we still can improve all parts of our defense. I do think, however, the men on our defense have been willing to pay the price and that's why we have had some degree of success.

For Offensive Guard Andre Gist

Q. At times this season, the offensive line has been criticized. What is your opinion of the offensive line?

Rich Exner, Wheeling

A. Everyone has a job to do and we are just trying to do our jobs. I admit we do make too many mistakes at times, but we have been working real hard to try and correct them. I think we are going to have a much improved offensive line as the season continues.

For Kicker Paul Woodside

- Q. Being just a sophomore and having the success you have had thus far, would you like a chance to kick in pro ball? Jerry Klein, Charleston
- A. I haven't really thought about it much. I guess if I would get the chance, I should at least give it my best shot, but all I am worried about at this point in my career are my education and helping the Mountaineers win a few more games.

For Quarterback Coach Russ Jacques

- Q. At times, the offense looks superb, but at other times it sputters. Why is this? Mike Coyne, Bridgeport, Ohio
- A. Offense is execution football and mistakes can detract from a good offense. I think you will notice that in games we have made just a few minor mistakes, the offense has been able to put points on the boards. However, when we make mistakes, it becomes very tough for our defense to function because of its sophistication.

If you have a question you would like to ask a Mountaineer player or coach, write us at the Sports Inforamtion Office, P. O. Box 877, Morgantown, W. Va. 26507

Even the sound of the door closing is by design.

Our doors speak well of the rest of our car. But their tight, solid sound is no accident.

Before we begin building the car, we engineer the best way to assemble it. Piece by piece.

Doors, trunk and hood fit the body with close tolerances all around. We align hinges and latches to work freely.

Window glass is held snug. And runs in the window channels smoothly. Triple rubber door seals help reduce outside sounds and wind noise. We've improved the insulation throughout the car.

The Honda Accord 4-Door Sedan is not only quieter, it's also roomier and more comfortable. You'll find it rides and handles better.

And while its many luxurious features are impressive, they are standard equipment. Like cruise control and variable-assist power steering, to name but two.

Honda's simple philosophy of building cars that work the way they were designed to work has made Honda number one in owner loyalty among all leading import cars*

It has helped Honda cars retain a high resale value, among the best in the automotive industry.

You can fully appreciate how a Honda is made the next time you're in a Honda showroom.

We make it simple.

After you kick the tires, listen to the doors. *Source: R. L. Polk and Co. 1981 model year New Car Buyer Analysis. © 1982 American Honda Motor Co., Inc.

Dr. E. Gordon Gee, President

Gordon Gee is the first West Virginia University president since 1939 to be appointed from WVU's own ranks. He became the nineteenth president of WVU on November 16, 1981, at the age of 37.

In 1979, Dr. Gee came to WVU as the tenth dean of the College of Law, founded in 1878 and the oldest of the University's professional schools.

He was associate dean and professor of law at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, his native state. He is a specialist in labor law and was a judicial Fellow and Senior Staff Assistant with the United States Supreme Court in 1974-75.

Gee, pronounced "Ghee," received doctorate degrees in both education and law from Columbia University. His bachelor's degree was awarded by the University of Utah where he majored in history and English and served as assistant dean for administration in the College of Law in 1973-74.

At the U.S. Supreme Court, he worked closely with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in developing a public employee relations system for the Supreme Court and the federal judiciary.

Dr. Gee was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar and an International Fellow at Columbia, where he also received a W. K. Kellogg Fellowship for the study of legal problems in educational institutions. In 1977-78, he was a Mellon Fellow at the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies.

While serving as law dean at WVU, he taught courses in labor law, collective bargaining, and legal problems in education. He is the author or coauthor of six books and 21 articles and monographs.

Dr. Gee is a member of the Administrative Conference Committee on Lawyer Competency appointed by the Chief Justice of the United States, a delegate to the American Law Institute, a member of the Administrative Conference of the United States, and chair of the Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee for West Virginia.

Fred Schaus, Director of Athletics

Fred A. Schaus, a former Mountaineer coach and an experienced administrator, is in his second year as director of intercollegiate athletics at West Virginia University.

A native of Newark, Ohio, Schaus graduated from WVU in 1949 after lettering three years on the Mountaineer basketball team, coached by Lee Patton. He was an honor student, captain of the 1948 and 1949 squads, and was elected president of the student body. He later earned his master's degree from WVU in 1953.

Following graduation, he spent five years playing professional basketball before returning as head basketball coach in 1954. He coached the Mountaineers to a 146-37 record during his six-year stint and still owns the best winning percentage (.797) among the West Virginia coaches.

Schaus, 57, coached the Mountaineers to six Southern Conference titles, played in the NCAA tournament on six occasions and finished second in the national championship in 1959. He coached All-Americans Hot Rud Hundley, Lloyd Sharrar and Jerry West.

Following his success at West Virginia, Schaus became head coach of the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association for seven years and finished with a 315-245 professional record. He then became the Lakers' general manager in 1967 and proceeded to put together what many have called the finest basketball team ever to hit the court, and his efforts were rewarded in 1972 as Los Angeles won its first ever NBA World Championship.

Schaus returned to collegiate coaching in 1972 as head coach at Purdue, compiling a six-year mark with the Boilermakers of 105-59 (.640). He later became Purdue's associate athletic director in charge of facilities and personnel in 1978.

"The Pride of West Virginia"

Mountaineer Marching Band

It's Band Day at Mountaineer Field and 5,000 area high school musicians will join the Mountaineer Marching Band for a spectacular halftime show.

The Mountaineer Marching Band, which annually sponsors the colorful extravaganza, is among the nation's finest and most progressive university bands. It has shown remarkable success and growth over the past decade, increasing in membership from 96 in 1971 to more than 300 in 1982.

The band has performed before more than 60 million people in the past 11 years including the 1972, 1975 and 1981 Peach Bowls, numerous NFL games and a halftime show for the West Virginia-Oklahoma game in Norman in 1978.

This fall the group has traveled to the West Virginia-Pitt game in Pittsburgh and the West Virginia-Virginia Tech game in Blacksburg. En route to Blacksburg, the band made several goodwill performances in southern West Virginia.

The "Pride of West Virginia" has 1982 FOOTBALL PROGRAM developed its own fan club over the years and alumni and fans are quick to sing the praises of the Mountaineer Marching Band. The band annually cuts an album and tape of its most popular tunes which is sold each year through the WVU Foundation.

The band took the field this season with 304 marching members and an impressive staff under Director Don Wilcox. The band marches one of the most innovative percussion sections in the country under percussion coordinator Dave Satterfield. The silk line has increased in number and new custom-designed flags have been purchased to enhance the visual aspects of the band.

For the first time ever a female will serve as a field conductor. Cara Porterfield, a native of Martinsburg, joins Shepherdstown native John Hendricks as a conductor.

Barbara Pope is in her second year as a feature twirler and she is joined by LaRon Langdale of Weirton.

The distinct sound of the Mountaineer Marching Band is a direct reflection of the teaching talents of the applied music faculty of the College of Creative Arts at West Virginia University. A wealth of talented music arrangers include WVU faculty members and students as well as fine arrangers around the country, all whom provide the band with music that is uniquely scored and adapted for maximum impact outdoors.

The Mountaineer Marching Band was first organized about 70 years ago as an ROTC band, and it continued as an all male organization in 1972.

Today, the band is open to any student at West Virginia University. Its membership encompasses nearly every school at the University and the groups accumulative grade point average is better than 3.0. No student receives financial assistance or a scholarship from their direct involvement with the band.

This group of talented young musicians has an intense esprit de corps and has earned its title of "THE PRIDE OF WEST VIRGINIA . . . THE MOUNTAINEER MARCHING BAND."

Toys Today. . . Student Loan Tomorrow?

This young man will be entering the 1997 Freshman Class at a college or university of his choice. maybe. How expensive will that be in 1997, we can only guess.

West Virginia

We don't feel student loan is the answer, especially when every parent has 15 years to prepare. Talk with your banker, he cares now, you'll care later and your child will care forever.

We care about tomorrow, today!

How do you measure the quality of an institution? One way is to look at the achievements of its students.

West Virginia University has sent 19 Rhodes Scholars to Oxford University in Great Britain, which is far more than most universities in neighboring states and which ranks WVU among the nation's top 40 institutions.

WVU also ranks among the top 7 percent of the nation's colleges and universities in the number of Merit Scholars enrolled. And WVU freshman students score higher than their counterparts across the country in the American College Testing Program.

You can become a part of this impressive tradition by enrolling at WVU. For more information, contact the Office of Admissions and Records, West Virginia University, Morgantown, WV 26506; phone (304) 293-2121.

WVU Forest Scientists Experiment With Cloning

In a significant breakthrough, researchers with the West Virginia University Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station have reported the first successful cloning of an American chestnut tree.

Forest scientist Franklin C. Cech and research technician Roy N. Keys accomplished the cloning.

With the techniques they developed, the commercially important species could be resurrected from a single tree which is resistant to the blight that has been felling the chestnut for most of this century.

"Should a blight-resistant individual be discovered or developed, it will be important to have some means of vegetative propagation to reproduce the genotype of that individual in its entirety," Dr. Cech said.

Seed-grown offspring combining the genes of two parent trees, one resistant and the other not, probably wouldn't have the resistant trait.

"Grafting could be done with the chestnut," Cech said. "But grafting is expensive and the graft unions are particularly sensitive to the blight. Cuttings of an older tree also cannot be grafted."

For these reasons, Cech and Keys have concentrated on the propagation of chestnuts by tissue culture. The process demands a high degree of care and precision but, once systemized, it could be carried out on a large scale.

A small piece of tissue excised from a chestnut tree is transferred through a series of growing media with different nutritional and hormonal properties.

"The compounds of the food supply cause the multiplying cells to change into the various cells that make up roots, leaves and other parts of a tree," Cech explained.

The result should be a plantlet genetically identical to its parent and ready for rooting in the soil.

Keys has successfully grown several plantlets from American chestnut tissue.

"We can initiate top growth quite readily with our present technique but more work is needed to improve root initiation and especially to learn how to successfully transplant the rooted plantlets," he said.

Until this century, chestnut trees made up a fourth of the eastern hardwood forests. Some trees were seven feet in diameter and reached heights of 100 feet and more.

The blight, caused by a fungus, was first noted in New York in 1904 and was found in Randolph County, West Virginia, in 1911. By the 1920's, few large chestnut trees were left standing in the eastern U.S. Today only some 50 mature American chestnuts are known, all of them diseased.

The species would be virtually extinct except that young trees continue to start up from old roots, which are not injured by the blight. These trees rarely reach seed-bearing age before the disease strikes.

Spread by wind, rain, birds and possibly insects, spores of the fungus enter a tree through a wound or through cracks that appear naturally in the bark as the tree matures. A fastgrowing canker then girdles the tree, cutting off the sap flow.
