Familiar Excitement On The First Day Of School

By JEERY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Teachers are patient people. This can readily be seen by observing them in their traditional roles of answering questions, giving directions, and comforting students as a new school year begins.

As the 1969-70 school days commenced on a hot sultry September day, all seemed well in the Greenville city schools—in spite of the many change-overs from last year; the sounds of construction and the appearance — at some schools — of being in on a frontier scene.

A few overall impressions register with the observer—increased early morning hours traffic; stepped up activity on the part of city policemen patrolling areas near the schools; a predominance of women taking children to school for the first day; and a steady stream of questions from students.

At South Greenville, Mrs. Lena Brown, principal, was delighted with the cooperation of parents in a new situation—this year South Greenville is no longer a predominantly Negro school, but has a sizeable group of both races. "For my part the first day of school is always an exciting time. I enjoy children, and I look forward to this day every year."

One teacher there, Mrs. Effie Thompson, expressed delight in having an assignment again as a first grade teacher. "I've been teaching 17 years, recently at third grade level, and I was mightily pleased to get back to my first love."

Sadie Sautler's principal, Johnson E. Spruill, an old hand at his job, efficiently and quietly moved the flow of parents and students into the school. The classrooms at Sadie Sautler are light and well decorated with colorful charts, pictures and maps. The librarian was putting out displays of rocks and crystals in the library windows. A second grader was crying softly, said "she didn't want to start to school, but wanted to play with her friends."

Mrs. Mary Ellen Strohaker mentioned, "It's a sad day in one way, we lost two little boys who drowned during the summer." She said she had taught at South Greenville last year where she had the two as students.

Principal Alan E. Murrell of C.M. Eppes, which is this year a junior high, was busy indoctrinating his staff of teachers. Students strolled about, waiting for their teachers to get them settled down. Most stated they were happy to be back at school—a few boys preferred fishing and working to returning to school.

At Eppes, as at South Greenville, Eastern Elementary and Aycock Junior High, newly planted lawns were very much in evidence. Students, especially girls, circled areas of fresh dirt to save their new shoes.

The first thing noticeable at Rose High is the complete lack of parking space. Cars are jammed in every available nook. Inside, students formed in large knots around teachers and assistants seated at tables, getting information on room assignments. In classrooms, students knowing their assignments were seated and studying subject brochures and assignment charts. "It's the usual first day affair," commented principal Edward Warren. "All is going smoothly, and students are rapidly getting settled in classrooms." The construction at Rose High goes on, and workmen mingled with students in the front hallway, going back and forth to their particular task.

Mrs. Margaret White, the newly elected principal of Greenville's newest school, Eastern Elementary, was explaining to a large group of women: "You can see our facilities are not completed," she noted. "We had two delays in shipment of heavy items for our cafeteria, but hot lunches will be transported to the students." She added "Soup, however, as you can understand, cannot be furnished at this time."

Workmen in the library were working on covering the floor. Other workmen were putting finishing touches or painting. Classes were quiet and attentive as teachers talked to them.

Outside, other workmen worked on the curb and gutter for Cedar Lane.

The large new junior high school, Aycock, was the scene of everything new. "We are well pleased with the way things are going these first few hours," remarked John Jones, Aycock's principal. "After all, this is a new building to both students and faculty, but we're getting assignment shaped up better than was expected."

Large numbers of workmen are in evidence in the cafeteria and back areas of the school. Most students were already seated — one group, making use of a temporary classroom, were seated on tables without legs placed on the floor. "They think this is quite an adventure," remarked ed the teacher.

One thing which strikes the observer is that short dresses have been so much in vogue in recent years that only students or teachers with dresses a bit long seem to stand out. A few girls went all-out for opening day, especially at Rose High, where granny glasses, beaded head-bands, and wildly colored capes added a touch of contrast to the standard mini-skirt costume.

From all appearance, the mood on first day presages a good year ahead. "Ready smiles, a sense of getting things done in spite of competing with the sounds and motions of construction—and a business-like way of getting settled down in classes—these are the most noticeable things on opening day this year."

PTI Notes

Water And Sewer Need

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners this morning were told that Pitt Technical Institute may have a new 30,000 square foot classroom building with out water or sewer facilities unless temporary arrangements can be made in the near future.

PTI principal W. E. Fullford told commissioners this morning that the second floor of the school's new building will be opened September 8 and classes on the first floor could begin in about three weeks later.

The problem, Fullford pointed out, is that sewer and water service is not available.

The Town of Winterville has received a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to help fund an extension of water and sewer lines to PTI. A $40,900 grant from the Coastal Plain Regional Development Commission has been approved to help finance the extension. But these funds have not been received and may not be until December or January.

Fullford said a temporary connection to the present water and sewer has been approved by the State Board of Health but such a connection would cost an estimated $4,000.

Commissioners told Fullford they would look into the matter and try to come to some decision, although no action was taken during their morning session.

In addition to hearing reports from various county agencies and departments this morning, the commissioners approved a contract between the local Mental Health Center and the East Carolina University School of Nursing where the nursing school will be allowed to use the facilities of the Mental Health Clinic to train their students in psychiatric nursing.

Dr. Walter Savage director of the Mental Health Clinic pointed out that the program would give the student nurses a basic course in psychiatric nursing.

For the past six years, the ECU program of psychiatric nursing has been centered at Butner with ECU faculty members living there year-round to conduct the program. The agreement with the Mental Health Center here will return the basic psychiatric program to Eastern North Carolina.

Syria Still Holding 2 Skyjacked Passengers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two Israeli men who were aboard a hijacked American airliner remained in Syrian custody today, and the international airline pilots' organization threatened a 24-hour strike if they are not freed by next Monday.

The plane's four other Israeli passengers, three women and a teen-age girl, returned to Tel Aviv Monday after 64 hours in Damascus. Ninety-five passengers of other nationalities and the airliner's crew of 12 were released Saturday.

A man and a woman from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a guerrilla organization, diverted the Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 jet to Damascus Friday, after it left Rome for Tel Aviv.

The executive committee of the 44,000-member International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations met in Paris Monday and drafted a statement calling on the United Nations to take immediate action to free the passengers and ensure the hijackers would be punished.

Ole Forsberg, Finnish president of the organization, said he had cabled the membership asking for a strike authorization, and he expected overwhelming approval.

Moving Plants?

HONG KONG (AP) — Travelers arriving in Hong Kong from Red China said today they heard reports Peking is moving its nuclear weapon plants out of Sinkiang, scene of recent border clashes, and giant caves carved out of the mountains farther east.

The travelers reported that they had heard "Communist army men and party cadres" say the facilities were being moved from Lop-Nor, some 600 miles southeast of the recent Soviet-Chinese clashes, to Kansu and Shensi provinces.

They said Maoist publications distributed in China also have said the installations are being moved. The travelers said the army men and party workers reported Peking believes Russia has shifted her "provocations" from Heilungkiang province in the northeast to Sinkiang province in accordance with plans to destroy the Chinese nuclear plants.

involved in hostilities with Israel began meeting to coordinate military and other policies. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said after a three-hour meeting Monday Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, Jordan's King Hussein, Syrian President Nureddin al-Atassi and Iraqi Deputy Premier Saleh Jahdi Ammash, "agreed on the necessity" of mobilizing all Arab efforts to face Israeli aggression.

About a million Israelis were expected to vote today in national and local elections being held by Histadrut, the national labor cooperative. The organization so thoroughly blankets Israeli life that its elections have always reflected political trends accurately. Eleven political parties have entered candidates in the election, but the Labor party is expected to retain control.

On the war front, spokesmen in Tel Aviv said Israeli jets struck at two Jordanian army camps near Shuna, in northern Jordan Monday and returned safely to their base. Israel also said Arab guerrillas killed three Israeli soldiers and wounded four in an ambush in the occupied Golan Heights. The guerrillas attacked with bazooka and machine guns, then fled to Syria, the Israelis said.

Ammunition Truck And Car Collide

SANFORD, N. C. (AP) — A tractor-trailer truck loaded with military ammunition collided with a car and overturned on U.S. 421 south of Sanford today, causing some initial concern that there might be a large explosion.

But two demolition experts from Ft. Bragg, summoned by the State Highway Patrol, said there was no danger. No one was evacuated and traffic continued to flow on the highway.

The driver of the truck and two young men in the car were taken to a hospital in Sanford, but none was believed seriously injured.

The State Highway Patrol identified them as Curtis William Smith, 34, of Radford, Va., the truckdriver; William H. Lindsay, 18, of Meadowview, Va., driver of the car, and Willie Mack Coleman, 19, of Clay Springs, Va., a passenger in the car.

The truck is owned by Badgett Transportation Co. of Birmingham, Ala.

DRAFT CALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon ordered today induction of 29,000 in October, the same level as September.

Alford Reports Smooth Opening Of Pitt Schools

Students returned to Pitt County schools today to begin another year of study on their way toward graduation.

The county's 23 schools operated on a half-day schedule today, with students getting out about 11:30. The schools will maintain their first full day of school tomorrow. Lunchrooms will begin operations at that time.

Approximately 45 per cent of the students this year are attending school in a desegregated situation and no problems were reported this morning. According to Superintendent of Schools Arthur S. Alford, about the same percentage of the school system's personnel are working in desegregated situations.

"Reports indicate that it has been a real fine school opening," Alford said. "We had staff members attending the school openings throughout the county and they have indicated that things have gone very smoothly."

Alford reported there have been no problems concerning transportation. The county's 168 school buses were operating.

"Hopefully we will be hard at work tomorrow with the instructional program which is where our main thrust has to be," the superintendent noted, "if we are going to provide the top quality education for all our young people."

Principals and secretaries of the various county schools also reported that opening day has been smooth and that all is going well as plans for the coming year are made.

Enrollment figures for the individual schools will be available within a few days. The number of students in all the Pitt County schools will be approximately 12,300.

Byrnes Remains In Critical State

COLUMBIA (AP) — James F. Byrnes, former U.S. secretary of state and Supreme Court justice, remained in critical condition today in a Columbia hospital. His physician said, "There has been no significant change. The outlook is not good."

In a mid-morning advisory, Dr. Izard Josey said, "The condition of Mr. Byrnes remains essentially the same. He is still resting quietly. He can be aroused briefly."

Byrnes was taken to the intensive care unit of Baptist Hospital Friday after suffering what Dr. Josey said was an apparent heart attack.

Governors Told Peace Will Not Bring Outpouring Of Federal Funds

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — President Nixon has told the nation's governors not to look for an outpouring of new federal funds as a byproduct of peace in Vietnam.

The President also defended his welfare reform program in a speech to the 61th National Governors Conference Monday and advised the state executives against trying to tamper with it.

But the conference was to act today on a resolution urging that the federal government take over the financing of the entire welfare system.

"He said he was going to put the money where the problems are," said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, chief promoter of the takeover proposal, a five year plan which goes far beyond the Nixon recommendations.

Nixon flew from his summer White House in San Clemente, Calif., for his defense of his domestic programs, and told his critics:

"I make just one suggestion—we've been on a road for a long time that is leading us to disaster and when you're on the wrong road you get off and get on a new road."

Nixon told the governors at their black tie conference ball there are "hard budget and decisions ahead."

"Dreams of unlimited billions of dollars being released once the war in Vietnam ends are just that—dreams," he said.

"True, there will be additional money—but the claims on it already are enormous.

"There should be no illusion that what some call the peace and growth dividend will automatically solve our national problems or release us from the need to establish priorities.

"In order to find the money for new programs," said Nixon,

"we will have to trim it out of old ones."

Said Democratic Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut: "I'm not so sure that if the war ended tomorrow there couldn't be billions of dollars. There must be. Frankly, I was disappointed in the speech. I had hoped to hear a speech of a constructive nature."

One of Nixon's chief advisers, Arthur Burns, counselor to the President, said Monday "of course there will" be more money available after the war. Burns said if the conflict ended immediately it would free $8 billion in federal funds during the next 10 months. But he did not say whether prior claims already had committed such funds.

While Nixon rejected the notion of a peace bonus, he did tell the governors:

"I can assure you of this: We are not simply going to tell you the states have a job to do; we are going to help you find the funds and resources to do that job with."

Nixon also promised "an effective strategy for peace," limiting U.S. commitments overseas to those which can prudently be kept, saying this "makes possible an effective strategy for meeting our domestic needs."

He cited his own domestic proposals as evidence of "this new domestic strategy," stressing the welfare plan.

The Big Debate Is About Allotments To Defense

By DONALD MAY
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States spends more on its defense than it does on anything else—including all education from kindergarten through the university level.

And whether such a priority in national spending is justified provides, and probably will continue to provide for years to come, one of the great debates of our times.

There are powerful arguments on both sides of the question, involving not only needs, but money and ethics.

The U.S. Office of Education estimates outlays for education during the past academic year at $58.5 billion, including federal, state and local government funds, private grants and tuitions.

By contrast, the Defense Department spent $78 billion. Adding other costs, such as military activities of the Atomic Energy Commission, brings the total for national defense to an astronomical $81 billion or so.

Thus, some 40 per cent of this year's federal budget is earmarked for defense. The other 60 per cent must be spread among the multitude of civilian programs ranging from research on how to stimulate the use of peanuts to multi-billion dollar social and welfare programs.

Proxmire's View
What in the U. S. government sat down with a pencil to make this basic division of American resources? It is a question many Americans, and not always without suspicion, ask.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., suggests that maybe nobody did—that it largely just happened.

"That decision is never made," Proxmire told UPI in an interview. "The question isn't even asked should we spend 40 per cent on military and 60 per cent on non-military. That's something that just happens to work itself out...."

As chairman of a subcommittee of the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, Proxmire recently held hearings on the division of available funds between military and civilian programs and how the decision should be made.

"These are among the many issues involved in the often helter-skelter national debate over what has come to be known as the 'Military-Industrial Complex.'"

Perhaps because of Vietnam perhaps because of the seeming endlessness of the nuclear arms race, or perhaps in reaction to soaring costs, the defense establishment has come under new scrutiny.

Criticism has focused on four main areas:

—Concern that the country is spending too much on defense at the expense of such civilian goals as education, health, and solving the explosive problems of the slums.

—Concern that America has come to rely too heavily on military solutions to its world problems.

—Concern that the vastness of the defense establishment and the degree to which it permeates the nation undermines the very democratic values it is supposed to protect.

—Concern that the defense process has grown beyond the ability of the nation to really understand or control it—that it has become self-perpetuating, a master rather than a tool.

Diagram of Complex
The defense process begins when the Joint Chiefs of Staff draw up their annual requirements.

They look at U.S. foreign policy as defined by the White House and State Department. They consider this country's defense commitments to some 40 nations. They look at possible threats to the United States and its allies.

They take into account the broad contingencies which have guided U.S. planning through the 1960's—the possibility of a major war in Europe, another major war in Asia and a small conflict in the Western Hemisphere, all at the same time.

Then they decide what forces they need. They do not look at needs of the stimulus of education; nor are they prone to under-estimating what they say they must have.

In recent years the result has been requests exceeding $100 billion annually. The Defense Department itself then reviews and cuts the service requests. But again the review is in terms of military means and ends, not over-all national priorities.

Meanwhile, civilian agencies have been going through the same process. When he was secretary of interior, Stewart Udall told the Proxmire subcommittee the only discussion he recalled of possibly giving interior more at the expense of some other function was a general mention of space spending.

"There just isn't that debate at all on the part of department heads when they make their recommendation to the president," Proxmire said. "There isn't that kind of debate when they come up before the Budget Bureau."

According to former director Charles L. Schultze, the Budget Bureau itself sometimes fails to ask the right questions. He said the bureau examined the cost-effectiveness of different systems of defense against possible Soviet bomber programs without ever asking whether such a defense was even necessary.

Determining the Budget
The principal benchmark in determining the military budget is past spending on established programs, Proxmire said. The programs themselves rarely are subjected to the microscopic reexamination deemed necessary by critics for a sound but frugal defense posture.

The ultimate decision on how to divide the nation's available resources between military and civilian programs is made in private by the White House and the Budget Bureau and is not made public until the President sends his budget message to Congress.

The budget then is reviewed by Congress, but again on a piecemeal basis. The Armed Services Committees of the House and Senate scrutinize the military figures. Other committees look at such civilian programs as housing, education, space and welfare. Finally, the Appropriations Committees, which have participated in none of these deliberations, recommend how much money each program should get.

"There's no over-all committee, except of course the Appropriations Committee," Proxmire said. "Now, they could do this but they don't. They deliberately break themselves down into subcommittees... these subcommittees make their recommendations to the full committee."

"And then, in all the debates that we've had in the full committee in my experience of five years (as a member), you virtually never get people who say we should spend less on this area than another. It's not brought up in that way."

"You bring up the agricultural budget by itself. Maybe somebody will want to cut out part of the funds or add some additional funds, and there's a discussion of whether they should be added or cut. There's no time that you ever consider the over-all budget."

Fulbright's Theory
Ever since President Dwight D. Eisenhower warned in 1961 against the "acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex," many have looked to those words for an explanation of high defense spending.

That statement by a former five star general, who led allied forces to victory in Europe in World War II, made it respectable to challenge the military.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-

Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, summed up the theory in a recent speech.

"With military expenditures providing the livelihood of some 10 per cent of our work force; with 22,000 major corporate defense contractors and another 100,000 subcontractors; with defense plants or installations located in 363 of the 435 congressional districts; with the department of defense spending $7.5 billion on research and development this year, making it the largest consumer of research output in the nation—millions of Americans whose only interest is in making a decent living have acquired a vested interest in an economy geared to war."

"These benefits, once obtained, are not easily parted with. Every new weapons system or military installation soon acquires a constituency—a process which is aided and abetted by the perspicacity with which Pentagon officials award lucrative contracts and establish new plants and installations in the districts of influential members of Congress."

The Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) is an example of how economic as well as military factors enter into decisions on a big weapons system. One argument advanced by the Nixon Administration against a year's delay of the ABM was that this would mean disbanding a team of some 15,000 defense workers. Officials argued it would take a year to rebuild this team if the ABM subsequently got a go ahead.

Labor Complex Too?
Organized labor is said by some to be part of the alleged military-industrial conspiracy, but it is conscious or unconscious. But one of the most impassioned pleas against high military spending heard by the Proxmire committee came from the president of the United Auto Workers, Walter P. Reuther.

Another element of the complex is said to be the 2,122 retired colonels and above, who the Pentagon reports are working for the nation's 100 top defense contractors.

Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith said in a recent article: "It would be idle to suppose that presently serving officers—those for example on assignment to defense plants—never have their real intake improved by the wealthy contractors with whom they are working..."

In rebuttal, the Pentagon says most of the active officers assigned to defense plants are inspectors. Galbraith did not cite specifics in connection with his statement.

Former budgeteer Schultze, now a professor of economics at the University of Maryland, has suggested other factors which he believes are far more important causes of high military spending:

—The military practice of preparing for many possible risks and hedging against the "greater-than-expected threat."

—the impact of technology on the nuclear arms race, in which each side tends to react to the other.

The United States began developing multiple warhead missiles as a hedge against a possible Soviet ABM. It will prove unnecessary if the Soviets abandon ABM. Because it takes years to develop such systems, they are started when the threat is only a possibility.

Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said both the United States and Russia acquired far more nuclear force than they needed in this manner.

"The increasing cost of technology. An F111 fighter-bomber cost 10 to 20 times as much as a Korean War aircraft did. High speed attack submarines cost three times the price of the first nuclear subs built in the 1950s."

—Perhaps most important, suggested Schultze, is a lack of meaningful public debate on U.S. defense commitments, on the size and makeup of U.S. military forces and on the possibility of 2½ wars simultaneously.

Public Accepts High Costs

"I do not believe that the problem of military budgets is primarily attributable to the so-called military-industrial complex," Schultze testified. "If defense contractors were all as disinterested in enlarging sales as local transit magnates, as retired military officers all went into selling soap and TV sets instead of missiles, if the Washington offices of defense contractors all were moved to the West Coast, if all this happened and nothing else, then I do not believe the military budget would be sharply lower than it now is."

"Primarily we have large military budgets because the American people, in the Cold War environment of the nineteen fifties and sixties, have pretty much been willing to buy anything carrying the label 'needed for national security.'"

Schultze sees the prospect that savings from the end of the Vietnam War will be eaten up by pay increases, cost escalation and military projects deferred because of the war in Southeast Asia.

Proxmire's subcommittee received numerous proposals for new committees to study national spending priorities. But Proxmire indicated that he personally favors tighter review by existing committees rather than creating new ones.

The over-all issue of national priorities inevitably includes the effect of the defense establishment on the basic fabric of American life and democracy.

Fulbright says "policies of force are inevitably disruptive of democratic values." He quotes the 19th century observer of America, Alexis de Tocqueville, as saying that war invariably increases the powers of civil government.

Impact Beyond Pentagon
Others focus on the impact of defense on the free enterprise economy, charging that defense contractors operating with government equipment and progress payments that reduce the need for capital are in effect subsidized.

The Pentagon-sponsored Logistics Management Institute says defense industry profits are lower than in non-defense industries. But Proxmire calls this study very suspect and complains that defense profits have not been investigated enough to be sure what they are.

Economists disagree on another basic question—whether defense spending causes inflation. Some say it does because it makes products which do not go into the market place, but are instead blown up or become obsolete.

Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, says this is a myth. For every level of defense spending, he says, there are fiscal and monetary policies to adjust the economy. But he said sudden increases in defense spending do cause inflation.

Some argue that the defense drain must be measured in talent as well as dollars. The

THE UNITED STATES SPENDS more on its defense than it does on anything else — including all education from kindergarten through university level.

Whether such a priority is justified is grounds for one of the debates of our time. (UPI Telephoto) defense complex employs one-fifth of the nation's engineers and one-tenth of its scientists. But McCracken suggests defense may have provided the stimulation for their careers; therefore it may not be true that the civilian economy was deprived of their skills.

The debate over the defense establishment is also clearly a debate over fundamental American premises.

To Sen. Fulbright, the issue is: "Whether the United States wants to be a great military empire or a humanistic example to the world."

"In the wake of our disappointment with the United Nations in the forties," he said in a speech to the National War College, "We have taken it upon ourselves to preserve order and stability in much of the world, purporting to do on our own the things that Wilson and Roosevelt hoped to accomplish through world organization but never dreamed of America doing on its own."

President Nixon said this was the thinking of "new isolationists." He asked the graduating class of the Air Force Academy to imagine "what would happen to the world if America were to become a dropout in assuming the responsibility for defending peace and freedom in the world."

The very word "security" is debated. Nixon says: "I have no choice in my decisions but to come down on the side of security..." Fulbright says "security" includes not only the military but the humanistic side.

McNamara, incidentally, said much the same as Fulbright. For example: "The security of this republic lies not solely or even primarily in military force, but equally in developing stable patterns of economic and political growth both at home and in the developing nations throughout the world."

The debate is over the present nature of the world.

Galbraith argues that the Cold War era is gone—"We have a wide range of tacit understandings with the Soviets... The Communist World has split into quarrelling factions."

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson says: "We are not about to move from an era of confrontation to a phase of negotiation. We have been negotiating with the Soviet Union all along. We shall be involved in confrontation into an indeterminate future."

Robert P. Mayo, President Nixon's budget director, argues that even if waste is eliminated from defense spending, "considerably lower defense costs will be obtained only if we reduce our international commitments significantly."

Sen. Proxmire does not entirely agree. "I'm positive," he said, "that we can reduce our military budget without weakening our national defense at all... or without changing our strategic concepts."

Miss Carol Porter Weds In Saturday Ceremony

FORT MYER, Va.—The chapel at Fort Myer was the scene of the wedding of Miss Carol Porter to Joseph Bartholomew Conmy III on Saturday.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Scott Porter of Greenville, N. C., and Mrs. Joseph B. Conmy Jr. of Annandale, Va.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a gown of candlelight peau de soie with an A-line skirt. Her bateau neckline, sleeves and skirt were reappiqued with clusters of alencon lace and seed pearls. The chapel train fell from the waist and was embroidered with lace Palettes.

Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a matching headpiece with lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with cymbidium orchids.

Miss Kathy Porter of Arlington, Va., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her dress was embroidered ivory lace with a long A-line skirt of American Beauty rose. Her matching roses and ribbons. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and American Beauty roses.

Bridesmaids were Karen O'Donnell of Alexandria, Va., Mrs. Barbara Porter of Aulander, N. C., Miss Mary Alice Conmy and Miss Barbara Ann Conmy, of Annandale, Va., sisters of the bridegroom.

They wore identical dresses and hats as the honor attendant and carried bouquets of pink carnations.

John Conmy of Annandale, Va., was best man. Ushers were Murray Porter of Aulander, N. C., brother of the bride, Maurice Tobin of Arlington, Va., Don Taylor and Berry Gamblin of New York, N.Y.

For a wedding trip to Jamaica, the bride chose a lavender dress with matching accessories and wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride's mother chose a dress of pink brocade with matching accessories and wore a corsage of red roses.

The mother of the bridegroom selected a blue satin brocade dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Kathleen Porter of Greenville, N.C., grandmother of the bride, wore a blue knit dress with matching accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

The Conmy - Porter wedding party was entertained at an after rehearsal dinner in the Officer's Club at Fort Myer, Va. given by parents of the bridegroom.

Try Neighbors' Hospitality Before You Criticize Them

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to this midwestern city (population approximately 90,000) from a slightly smaller eastern suburb.

Out East we lived in the same house for six years and didn't know any of our neighbors, except to say "Good morning" to, which was all right with me.

As the van unloaded me here, neighbors came from all over offering to "help." (Now, what can a woman do to "help" two moving men unload a van?) Several women even rang my doorbell extending invitations to come for lunch or coffee!

I don't wish to appear unfriendly or ungracious, but I have never been the type who runs in and out of neighbors' houses for coffee, and I would rather not start up with them here.

Is there some nice way to refuse their invitations without appearing snobbish?

NEW HERE
DEAR NEW: You can decline their invitations in your most unsnobbish manner, but sooner or later your friendly neighbors are going to realize that you want nothing to do with them. Perhaps you do not recognize simple hospitality when you see it. Why not taste and test this new form of neighborliness before you knock it? You may like it.

DEAR ABBY: I have never found physical satisfaction in my marriage, although I must admit that all the other aspects of it are as nearly perfect as a wife could hope for.

For years I dreamed of other men while I found my husband sadly inadequate. I feel so cheap and dirty because of my secret thoughts.

I know that I could never be unfaithful to my husband because I have had many opportunities and have passed them by without regrets.

Perhaps confession is good for the soul, Abby. I feel so much better for having written this.

ASHAMED AND GUILTY
DEAR ABBY: You need feel neither shame nor guilt for your private thoughts. ALL normal people have sexual fantasies. Take the word of Dr. Judd Marmor, one of the most respected psychoanalysts of our time.

He, "I have long felt that the biblical injunction that placed coveting one's neighbor's wife on the same moral level with actual adultery is one of the most psychologically destructive heritages that the Judeo-Christian moral tradition has bequeathed to us. There is a profound difference between THOUGHT and ACTION."

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed OFF MY CHEST hit the spot. The new generation lacks something vital that the generation before them had. Example:

Recently I telephoned the public high school in our neighborhood asking for a student who wished to earn $5 by moving a pile of wood from one location to another. I explained that it wouldn't take more than one hour. I was told that someone would call me within a day or two. No one called. I telephoned the school THREE times, and when I had no response, I finally moved the pile myself. It took me exactly 45 minutes. Pretty good pay—$5 for 45 minutes work, I'd say.

Again I called that high school, asking if they could send me a young man to clear off a lot. We had two calls, but as soon as they heard it was "yard work," they said they weren't interested.

We have two sons who are married now, but if they had heard of any such opportunities to earn a little extra pocket money while they were in high school, they'd have been at the door at the crack of dawn.

What is the matter with our young people today?

L.B. OF L.A.
DEAR L. B.: Many of them (but not ALL) aren't interested in earning a dollar because they HAVE a dollar.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE FRUSTRATED WIFE OF MR. FIVE BY FIVE: From your letter I would say that you have done all a loving wife can possibly do. And don't worry about his ruining the furniture. You'll be able to buy new furniture from the money you'll collect from his life insurance.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

½ pound—2 sticks—butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar, stir with a fork before measuring

1 large egg
2½ cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring

1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup finely diced syrup-preserved ginger, firmly packed

In medium mixing bowl cream butter and sugar and beat in egg, then a half cup of the flour and the baking powder. Gradually stir in remaining flour and ginger. If too soft to shape, chill in freezer for 30 minutes or in refrigerator for several hours or overnight.

Shape into balls about the size of walnuts. Place about an inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until bottoms are lightly browned and tops are still pale—about 12 to 18 minutes. Makes about 3½ dozen.

Arrange layers of sliced tomatoes and sweet onion rings in a casserole and drizzle with an oil-and-vinegar dressing flavored with basil. Cover tightly and chill until service time.

Soviet Capable Of Launching War

There are many opinions on what the Soviet Union will do in the current conflict with Red China. There have been a number of border clashes and initially the prevailing opinion seemed to be that the Soviets would do all they could to avoid an open conflict.

However, it should not be extremely surprising if the Soviets took some type of military initiative. The present Russian leaders have shown themselves to be militaristic and they have demonstrated they can move rapidly when the communist world is threatened.

While it gained them little in world popularity, the Soviets moved with awesome power into Czechoslovakia when it felt the liberal movement there was threatening the Russian hold on communist nations. Almost immediately as many Russian troops were moved in as the United States has in Vietnam.

There is reason to believe that the Russian leaders are capable of sending troops into China in a sort of preventive war if they feel this is necessary to Soviet security.

War between the two giants would be of no advantage to the western world and in fact it could involve other nations, erupting into a world conflict. But a Soviet-Red China war could come about, frightening as the prospects are.

Eventually, Nations Will End Sky Piracy

Sooner or later nations of the world are going to have to put the safety of commercial air travelers above their national differences.

This means that agreements are going to have to be reached which will require the prosecution of those who hijack and divert commercial flights, thus endangering innocent passengers.

We are all familiar with the series of hijackings to Cuba. Now the practice has spread to the Middle East where only last weekend a plane was damaged by a bomb and its passengers and crew placed in danger when the TWA ship was diverted to Syria.

Almost every nation is vulnerable to aircraft hijacking. Sky piracy will be halted overnight when all nations reach an agreement to punish those who endanger commercial planes. The safety of world travelers should be placed above any nationalistic

Private Roads Cutback Stand

Apparently, William Babcock, State Highway Commission administrative director, is still in good standing with Gov. Robert Scott and Highway Commission Chairman Lauch Faircloth.

Babcock believes in gearing the highway system to move the traffic in more densely populated, congested sections of the state. His policies prevailed at a recent commission meeting, called to divide and allocate the state highway funds budgeted for 1969-70.

The tipoff was in the division of the approximately $75 million set aside for new construction. Only $16 million of that went to secondary roads. That wasn't enough to satisfy all of the 23 district commissioners—whose word is law when it comes to spending the money allocated to their districts for secondary roads.

Some unpalatable advice from chairman Faircloth added to their distress. He told them they ought to steer clear of trying to pace a lot of unpaved cowpaths. Instead, emphasize drainage and stabilization of existing dirt roads, Faircloth suggested. "I don't feel like we can take the tax money of the people and, in effect, pave a private road for two or three property owners," he said.

Commissioner Arthur Tripp of Greenville judged that the $698,000 designated for his five county district would not be enough to go around. While he was on the subject, Tripp managed to work in a mildly unfavorable comparison of the Governor and his father, the late Gov. and U.S. Sen. W.

Kerr Scott. The elder Scott went down in North Carolina history as the governor who got a lot of rural citizens out of the mud they had become resigned to spending their lives in. "We're not going to be getting folks out of the mud like they thought Scott was going to do," Tripp remarked.

Faircloth stuck to his position, however. He told the commissioners they should recognize that in the next 12 months "we will have some less secondary roads to be paved than in the past." That comes about partly because a large portion of the state's rural roads that meet requirement standards for paving have been paved. And a carry-over of road bond funds from the previous year contributed to a spurt in secondary road construction over the last year.

But from a partisan political standpoint, Tripp was on firm ground. Apparently, many Tar Heels have the idea that most of the revenue from the new two-cents tax on gasoline will go for expanding the secondary road system. It's customary for the voters upon experiencing disappointment to express it the next time they go to the polls. This could prove to be unhealthy for Democrats running for the legislature or county office next year.

And a cutback on secondary road construction will also make a lot of legislators feel blue. Legislators, particularly those on the House and Senate road committees, feel they must leave their mark by paving a road or two in the hinterlands. It's a sort of memorial to their prowess at the pork barrel. Moving the traffic is a secondary consideration. That's why some of them look on director Babcock as a bureaucratic thorn in the flesh.

But North Carolina's experience over the past 10 years has proved that Babcock's governing principle—spend more money to move the traffic where the traffic is heaviest—is sound. So is chairman Faircloth's advice to the district commissioners. —(Greensboro Daily News)

Lack Plans For Laos Problem

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — While President Nixon agonizes over withdrawing a second batch of U. S. troops from Vietnam, top officials privately admit they have no plan at all to deal with a far more acute problem: the frightening Communist advance into Laos.

With an estimated 40,000 to 60,000 hard-core Communist troops from North Vietnam now in Laos, the "neutralist" actually, pro-Western forces of Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma's government are being overrun. The royal capital of Luang Prabang is now vulnerable to communist capture.

Road-building by the Chinese border into northwest Laos is increasing. Red Chinese "workers," who double as troops, are infiltrating Laos. In fact, the Chinese have moved close to the border of Thailand where Peking-financed, anti-government insurgency is mounting.

But to counter all this, the United States has no plan beyond the usual appeals—so far totally futile—for help from Moscow.

President Nixon's problem is horribly complicated by his much-advertised plan for the "Vietnamization"—substitution of Vietnamese for U. S. troops—of the war in Vietnam. He cannot violate his new Asian doctrine by using U. S. troops in Laos.

Thus, there is no visible way to counter the threat that may engulf Laos later this year. The costs can be fierce. A Communist take-over would cut South Vietnam's long western border and imperial U. S. troops fighting in the northern part of the country.

Nor is there any indication that diplomacy, the only weapon available to the President, will work. Hanoi has consistently violated the 1962 Geneva agreements on Communist troop withdrawals from Laos. Now that the U. S. is pulling out of Vietnam, diplomacy, as one top U. S. diplomat told us, "may be a weapon without a bullet."

Mitchellism Rebutted
The Republican National Committee is trying to knock down political speculation, deeply disturbing to some urban state Republican leaders, that a provocative new book—"The Emerging Republican Majority" by Kevin Phillips—represents the Nixon administration's political philosophy.

Phillips paints the picture of a future Republican majority built by a combination of 1968 Nixon and Wallace voters that is nothing more than Mitchellism, the increasingly dominant grand strategy of the Nixon administration masterminded by Atty. Gen. John Mitchell. The fact that Phillips, a bright young lawyer, is a special assistant to Mitchell is more than coincidental.

But the link between the book and the strong man of the Cabinet has infuriated several Republican state chairmen from the urban North. Specifically, they have asked top officials of the Republican National Committee whether Phillips's book spells out Administration philosophy. In words not fit for print, they have attacked the Phillips thesis, warning that it could destroy 1970 Republican chances in urban states.

They want Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, Republican national chairman, to spell out in one-syllable words that the National Committee not only does not buy the Phillips theory but repudiates it out of hand.

No decision has yet been made, but the odds favor either Morton or a top aide making a strong anti-Phillips speech. His message? Phillips does not speak for the National Committee.

McGovern for President
What has been described as a strategy meeting of key Democratic liberals to boost Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota for President was something a great deal less than that.

Shortly after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's accident, a fat-cat supporter of McGovern invited a wide spectrum of big liberal names for dinner at his home. Not until they had arrived and the conversation started did most of them realize that this was an overt launching pad for McGovern.

Actually, most of those present—such as Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, Frederick G. Dutton, political advisor to John and Robert Kennedy, and Blair Clark, manager of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's campaign for President—are not supporting McGovern now and are highly unlikely to in the future. Only a handful present seemed really enthusiastic about McGovern—in particu-

Strength For Today

Pious John Hawkins
The famous slave dealer, John Hawkins, had three ships on which he transported his pathetic cargo. The names of these three ships were The Jesus, The Angel and The Grace of God.

Quite a religious man, this Hawkins. He believed in taking his religion right into his business.

But the fact that back in the jungles of Africa they hunted these slaves like wild beasts tore members of families from each other, put them in ships reeking with filth and then cast the carcasses of quit a number overboard when they perished on the journey, never seemed to appeal to Hawkins as anything to have a troubled conscience over. They needed slaves in the new world and John Hawkins had three good ships in which to transport them; and that was that.

What John Hawkins with his conscience we are not told, but he must have hogged it pretty effectively and put it down into the deepest part of the hold of his ship. And it is well he did. Had he not done so he might have been greatly alarmed by hearing a voice on that good ship Jesus saying: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

Priorities In Education

A last-minute exhortation is in order just now for the presidents of American institutions of higher learning: Stand fast! Don't panic! And don't yield to violence.

Within the next two or three weeks, upwards of seven million students will stream back to the campuses. It is pointless to remark that the great bulk of them will be ordinary students—bright ones, dull ones, smooth ones, rough ones. Among their number will be a significant fraction who cannot be truly described as students at all. They are anti-students; their aim is destruction. This year, they have to be dealt with.

It is important, at the outset of the school year, once again to identify certain priorities and purposes. George Mason's sage advice, in the Virginia Declaration of Rights, was that men should recur to fundamental principles. It is time for that now.

What is the primary purpose of a university? It is to create and to preserve an atmosphere, and to provide the necessary means, in which a community of scholars may pursue higher learning.

This is not to say that university climates must be all alike. It is possible to pursue learning under thunderheads as well as sunny skies. Neither is this to suggest that "learning" has to be confined to classrooms or pursued through particular courses. But it is to say, emphatically, that the first duty of a university is to maintain conditions under which the pursuit may go forward.

It ought not to be necessary to restate these elementary truths; but the failure of college administrators last year was a failure in precisely this respect. By yielding to gun-slinging young fascists, and by condoning the seizure and looting of property, college officials abandoned their first duty: They did not maintain that climate of disciplined freedom in which a community of scholars may survive.

Doubtless they had reasons to explain their failure. We heard some of those reasons—and feeble reasons they were!—in testimony before congressional committees some months ago. By and large, the weak administrators accepted counsels of appeasement. They took a useful tradition—that police ought not to be summoned to a campus—and elevated it to an article of faith. They subordinated the rights of those law-abiding students who wanted only to study; and they temporized with faculty members who should have been fired out of hand.

Was anything learned by the harsh lessons of last year? Perhaps so. Leaders of the "Students for a Democratic Society" are seen more clearly now as hypocrites, neo-nazis, and plain extortioners. Their object is not to promote (Continued On Page 5)

Other Editors Say Only As Last Resort

Henderson Dispatch
Governor Scott says he has no plans at the moment to call a special session of the Legislature, but he would not rule out the possibility. That might well be taken as at least half a chance the lawmakers will be called back to Raleigh. It would be a good fifty-fifty bet, with the tangled school bus situation as the reason.

If the Legislature is ordered back to Raleigh for this reason, or for whatever purpose, it will mean still more spending on top of the biggest tax burden saddled upon the State in a generation, as if there were not too much harassment of the public during the record long parliament that ended only after the Fourth of July. If the honorables return to Raleigh, short of the next biennial session in 1971, citizens had as well brace for more irritating legislation on top of what was imposed earlier this year.

The Governor certainly has been advised and legislators from the Revenue Department that income of the State is again exceeding expectations. The temptation to add to the $3.5 billion biennial budget would probably be too great to resist. The senators and representatives might even increase their pay beyond the hefty dig they took at the regular session.

If a grave emergency should arise, an extra session might be justified. But it should indeed be as a last, last resort if the summons went out.

Extra sessions have been held in former years, always in part due to financial conditions. With $3.5 billion already in the kitty for the biennium, it would seem that enough money has been spent, or authorized, without the necessity for more. We hope the Governor resists the urge for another session before even adjustments have been made to impositions last spring.

A Happy Time For U.S. Labor

By ELMER ROESSNER
It's a hap, hap, happy day for labor.

Total wage and salary income, which was $228 billion in 1960, was at an annual rate of $513 billion in July. The July income was, of course, in more inflated dollars than the 1960 income, but still represents some gains.

New wage agreements signed so far this year provided around 7 per cent increases in cash and fringes. That's about the amount of the increase in living costs.

Millions more have received cost-of-living increases under previous contracts.

Federal employees have received pay increases. Congressmen—and what a union they've got!—gave themselves increases of 4 1/2 per cent, most other employees lesser raises, down to 4 per cent for postal employees. Despite the constantly rising number of men and women of working age, the unemployment rate has remained well below 4 per cent. A technical drop will occur this month as many youths will return to schools and colleges.

The seasonal rise in business activity this fall will also probably increase employment. However, home building is likely to continue its decline and plant and equipment expenditures are under constant review.

While a number of cuts in Defense Department spending has been announced, there appears to be no lessening of contract awards for the present, indicating continuing high employment in that field.

Contrary Factors
On the other hand, prices keep on rising and the shrinkage of the buying power of the dollar is likely to continue during the months ahead.

Money is continuing tight and this eventually will result in a slowdown of business, with less employment. Medical costs are rising, notably for Blue Cross, Blue Shield and other insurance organizations.

But, on the average, labor has two chickens in every pot and two cars in every garage, although the youngsters may monopolize the second one.

New Income Tax Forms Will Make More Jobs Computer Manufacturers

Learned In The Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The financial news is dreary this autumn for families with children in college. Educational costs will rise from seven to eight per cent on the average with three out of four colleges reported raising their tuition fees.

A car wash here has this sign: "Jet planes washed free." About one of every eight persons in the United States—27 million in all—is a former member of the armed forces. Some 6,000 veterans of the Spanish-American War of 1898 still survive.

The American brain drain of foreign talent now is greater in Asia than Europe. In 1967 alone 6,600 Asian scientists, engineers and physicians immigrated here, compared to 6,000 from Europe.

A giant Sequoia tree sometimes contains enough wood to build 20 six-room houses. That's why conservationists have had to fight so hard to protect the trees from lumbermen.

What do Ireland and Alaska have in common? Neither harbors snakes.

Ideal for the lazy insomniac is a new bedside computer that will count sheep for him until he does off.

Quotable—notables: "If you can't say good and encouraging things, say nothing. Nothing is often a good thing to say, and always a clever thing to say."

—Author Will Durant

Watch your step: This year, says the National Underwriting Company, was out of every nine workers 27 years old will be disabled for a period of at least a week, and 36 per cent of these will be disabled for a month or more. But among 57-year-old workers, one out of every six will be disabled, and 84 per cent of the injured will be disabled for longer than a month.

Household hint: A little diluted ammonia placed in a bowl of water and left in a room overnight will rid the room of stale tobacco odors.

Altar statistics: June is still the leading month for weddings, but they are also popular in autumn: Last year there were 514,000 September, October or November brides, an increase from 368,000 during the similar period a decade before.

Executive mottoes: Jules Podell, Copacabana owner, likes this one: "Creativity is doing something without being told."

If your wife complains that housework makes her tired, tell her it also keeps her healthy. A study by three doctors found that women who had been active in doing household chores recovered more quickly from illness than those who led more sedentary lives.

Worth remembering: "It's getting so people don't want to work with their hands—or their head."—Arnold H. Glasow.

Meet The Cast Of Drama In Kopeczne Inquest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP)—The inquest which opens Wednesday into the death of Miss Mary Jo Kopeczne has thrust together a cross-section of the notable and the unknown.

Their lives all have been affected by the death of Miss Kopeczne, the young secretary who died when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car plunged off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island the night of July 18.

Following are brief profiles of those involved in the case: Edward Moore Kennedy—At 37, he is the last of the four Kennedy brothers. Nearly everyone calls the senator Ted now; the more boyish nickname of "Teddy" fell into disuse after brother Robert's assassination in 1968 in Los Angeles. It was Kennedy who was driving the car in which Miss Kopeczne died.

Mary Jo Kopeczne—Miss Kopeczne long had been an admirer of the Kennedys, particularly Robert, and for a time served as a member of his secretarial staff.

She was a member of Robert's so-called "boiler room gang" in his 1968 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. This was the group of young women who handled the New York senator's key telephone calls in the weeks after he launched his campaign.

Miss Kopeczne, 28, was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopeczne of Berkeley Heights, N.J. At the time of her death, she was employed by a Washington, D.C., political consulting firm.

Edmund Dinis—A bachelor and successful businessman in private life, Dinis, 44, has been district attorney for southeastern Massachusetts since 1959. He ordered the inquest.

Dinis long has been active in the Bay State's Democratic Party, controlled by Kennedy, but he has never been regarded as a particularly staunch political ally. Rather, observers view him as something of a maverick within the party. He has sought unsuccessfully the offices of state attorney general and congressman.

James A. Boyle—As presiding justice of Edgartown District Court, Judge Boyle received Kennedy's plea of guilty to the charge of leaving the scene of the July 18 accident and gave the senator a suspended jail sentence. Boyle will preside at the inquest and decide whether the answers that emerge from it constitute sufficient reason for further legal proceedings.

Boyle is 62, an avid golfer with a quiet temperament, sports a moustache, and is a lover of bow ties and straw hats.

He moved to Edgartown in the 1930s because he preferred a quiet life and low key law practice to the hustle and bustle of the mainland.

Paul F. Markham—A longtime friend of the Kennedys, Markham, former U.S. Atty. for Massachusetts, was one of those at the dinner party on Chappaquiddick which preceded the accident.

Kennedy said in his nationally televised speech a week after the mishap that Markham and Joseph F. Gargan, Kennedy's cousin, returned with him to the accident scene in a futile attempt to locate Miss Kopeczne.

Joseph F. Gargan—A cousin of Ted and his close friend since boyhood, Gargan lives year-round on Cape Cod. He is an officer of a bank there.

In addition to Kennedy, Miss Kopeczne, Markham and Gargan, those at the Chappaquiddick party were sisters Nancy and Mary Ellen Lyons, Ester Newbert, Rosemarie Keough and Susan Tennenbaum, all secretaries and all members of Robert's 1968 "boiler room gang." Raymond S. LaRose and Charles A. Tretter, longtime Kennedy friends, and John B. Crimmins, a friend and employe of the senator's.

Kennedy, Gargan, Markham and the others at the party are represented by a battery of attorneys, chief among them Edward B. Hanify of Boston and Robert G. Clark Jr. of Bridgewater, both retained by Kennedy.

Clark is noted for his experience in the area of the state's motor vehicle laws. Hanify for is Dukes County's associate medical examiner. As such, he was the physician who pronounced Miss Kopeczne dead after her body was pulled from Sen. Kennedy's car.

He declared the death an accidental drowning and has maintained that the cause of death was obvious and that an autopsy wasn't necessary.

Dominick J. Arena—A strapping former state trooper, Arena is the Edgartown police chief and was the chief investigative officer after the accident. Appointed chief two years ago, he previously had been assigned to the office of the state attorney general.

Arena, 39, commands a summer force of 10 men and a winter contingent of five. His biggest chore normally is handling traffic during Edgartown's tourist-clogged summer months.

Dr. Robert W. Nevin—The chief medical examiner for Dukes County, Nevin, like Mills, is more accustomed to delivering babies than investigating deaths. He was one of those who criticized Mills for not ordering an autopsy.

Yet, last Sunday, he withdrew his support from Dist. Atty. Dinis' effort to win exhumation of Miss Kopeczne's body for an autopsy in Pennsylvania, where she was buried.

HONG KONG (UPI)—Bandits smashed into the show window of a jewelry store Sunday morning and escaped with about $42,000 in gems.

John Farrar—An Edgartown businessman and Navy-trained skindiver, Farrar pulled Miss Kopeczne's body from the sunk-and overturned auto. He has stated that he believes Miss Kopeczne might have lived for some time after the accident, breathing from a bubble of air that might have been trapped in the car.

Dr. Donald R. Mills—the soft-spoken general practitioner who is Dukes County's associate medical examiner. As such, he was the physician who pronounced Miss Kopeczne dead after her body was pulled from Sen. Kennedy's car.

 a democratic society, but to end it. It may be understood this fall, better than it was understood a year ago, that nothing of enduring value is to be gained by negotiating with nihilists. Here and there, disloyal professors have in fact been disciplined; a few student ringleaders have in fact been expelled. The uses of court injunctions are seen more clearly now.

Maybe the 1969-70 school year will be better. This is the cheery forecast of a high-ranking member of the Nixon administration who recently spoke off the record to the Washington press. He felt the worst of the storm had passed. This much, at least, is true: College presidents know that if they fall again, a restive Congress no longer can be restrained from adopting punitive legislation.

 South walked off with a contraband slam when his opponent, West, failed to make allowances for a slight roadblock which nature had placed in his path.
 South's decision to use Blackwood led to the partnership's landing in an unmakeable slam. The number of aces held by North was strictly of secondary concern. It was more important to learn where North's strength was located, and particularly, if he had good hearts.
 Instead of asking, South should have told. When his partner raised to four spades, South is entitled to make a move toward slam. The recommended bid is five clubs to show his control in that suit. This gives North the opportunity to rebid his hearts, if he has a concentration of strength in that suit. If North merely returns to five spades, then South should give up gracefully.

 A heart lead would have earned a quick decision for the defense, however, West elected to open the king of diamonds. The ace was played from dummy, and South surveyed a gloomy prospect. He was confronted with two losers in the heart suit, and tho his opponents had failed to cash out, it appeared that the evil moment had merely been postponed.
 South proceeded to draw trumps in two rounds and then led over to the dummy's king of clubs in order to ruff out the last diamond. Declarer cashed three more clubs, discarding hearts from dummy, and now that the minor suits were stripped out, he led a small heart.
 West put up the queen of hearts, however, East was obliged to overtake with his lone king. The forced return of either a diamond or a club enabled South to discard his remaining heart while the dummy trumped. Declarer had fulfilled an "impossible contract."
 When the heart was led, West could have sunk South's ship by putting up the ace and then cashing the queen after East's king appears. That East held the king should have been obvious, for if South had that card, he would surely have led hearts from the dummy instead of his own hand.
 The play of the ace of hearts by West can therefore hardly cost, and, when East turns up with the lone king—the gain assumes substantial proportions.

Father Taught In Spain, Son Teaches In U.S.

By CARL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Manuel Morales is following in his father's footsteps to some extent. Morales' father dedicated his life to teaching, and it looks as if Morales will also. However, there are a few differences between Morales' career and his father's, Luis Morales Oliver.

Luis Morales Oliver spent his life teaching in Spain, at the University of Madrid, and Manuel has spent a majority of his time teaching in the United States, except for a year in Bagdad.

Also, in order for Manuel to really follow his father's career, he would have to instruct, and become a friend of a future president of the United States. For his father instructed and became a friend of Prince Juan Carlos de Bordon—who could be the next King of Spain, when Carlos attended the University of Madrid.

Petition Probe Of Golden Frinks

ENGLEHARD, N. C. (AP) — A state investigation of Negro civil rights leader Golden Frinks has been called for by 75 Hyde County Negroes.

In a letter to Gov. Bob Scott dated Aug. 13 and signed by Earl Bryant of Englehard they asked that the state attorney general investigate the activities of Frinks state field secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

Bryant said in a covering letter to the governor, "We the black people of Hyde County, are real concerned about our problems and do not believe they can all be settled until the outside leadership is removed. A group of us have signed the enclosed request in hope that your department can help us with this problem."

Frinks led a year-long boycott of Hyde schools by Negro pupils.

The national SCLC said recently that state field secretaries, who had heretofore been acting more or less autonomously, would be held in tighter rein.

Marine Research Grant Announced

DURHAM (AP) — The National Science Foundation has awarded a $40,700 grant to Duke University for special marine research projects. They involve the university's research vessel Eastward and the Duke Marine Laboratory at Beaufort, N.C.

Students from Duke, the University of California, Columbia University, Lehigh University and the University of North Carolina will participate in graduate and postgraduate studies at the laboratory.

Manuel Morales is now living in Greenville and is an associate professor of Spanish at East Carolina University. He moved here two months ago from Pennsylvania, where he taught at Slippery Rock State College, and before that at Bowling Green in Ohio.

Why did he pick North Carolina?

"The weather is very similar to that of Madrid's," explains Morales. "I had also applied for a position with a school in Texas, however, I came here first and liked it so much that I did not go to Texas. I took photos of Greenville, and showed them to my wife. We both liked the looks of the town and decided to move here. It is so quiet and peaceful."

Morales received the equivalent of a bachelor of arts degree and his Ph.D. from the University of Madrid.

Between the time he received his four-year degree and his Ph.D., he taught in Bagdad, and six years in Madrid.

"The year in Bagdad was like a year's honeymoon," stated Morales, "for I had just been married when I moved there, and the people were so friendly."

Why did he come to the United States?

"There is more chance of advancement," explains Morales. "In Spain you can teach all your life and never become a full professor. Also, the facilities and equipment available to a teacher are better here than in my country."

Morales is married and has two children, Luis 3, and Manuel 2. His wife holds a degree in languages, and speaks Spanish, French, English and Russian, however, she does not teach.

Morales is a dark haired, quiet man, who is very proud of his country and his father.

For his father has established a name for himself in Spain due to his acquaintance with the prince.

In a June issue of a news publication in Madrid "Ya," a full page article is dedicated to Luis Morales Oliver, along with a two page spread on the prince.

"My father retired four years ago, but still does some teaching," said Morales.

Along with holding the honor of being a full professor, and an instructor and friend of the prince, Morales' father was also dean of the National Library in Madrid.

Spain's government, which for years was run on a monarchy system, was upset in the 1930s, when General Franco, the present leader, upset a newly established republic and placed himself in power.

Now with Franco getting on in years, the rightful heir to the throne is Juan Carlos, the son of Don Juan de Bordon. Don Juan is now 54 years old, but the people do not want him as their leader.

"They want Juan Carlos," states Morales, "and I think that he will be the new king someday. He and Franco are very close."

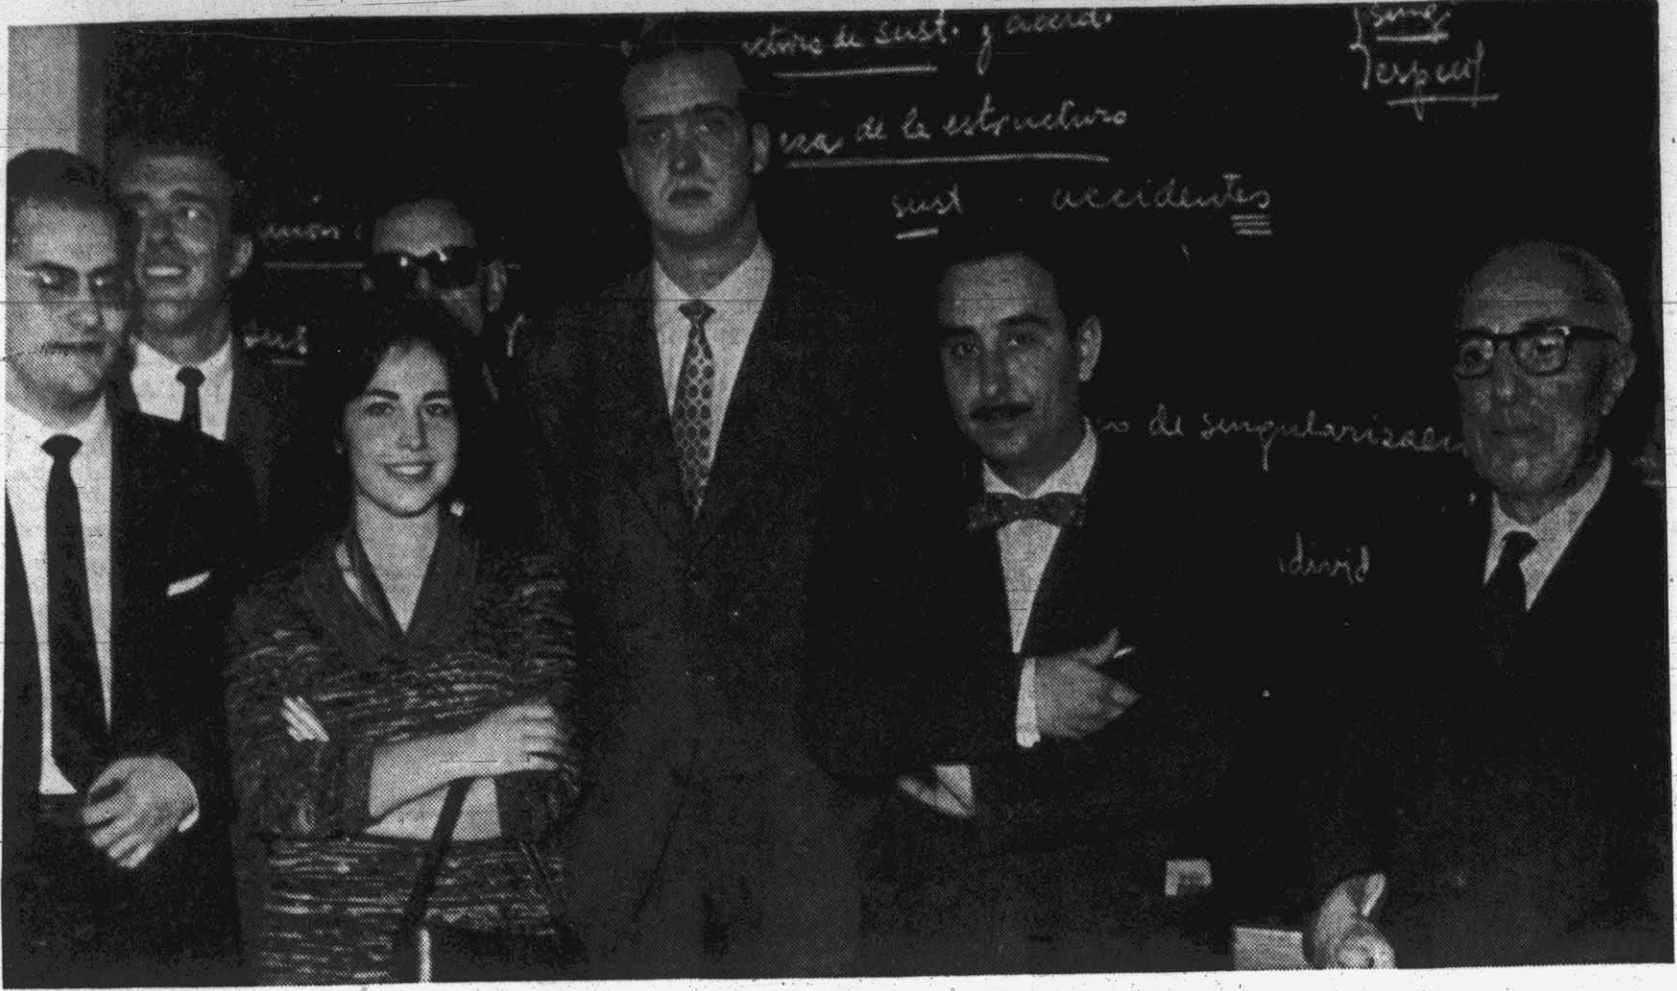

On January 5, 1968, Juan Carlos celebrated his 30th birthday, the legal age of succession. Instead of staying in Madrid, he went to live with his father in Estoril, Portugal. His father has only been in Madrid twice since 1931.

Now the question in Spain is will Carlos be the next king of Spain, and when.

"No one knows," states Morales, "but the people do want him as their next king."

It would seem that Morales would stay in his native land with a father with such a reputation at hand, however, he decides to come to the United States because "you are very organized," as he puts it.

"We have been in Greenville for two months and like it very much, I plan to stay here for many years if possible. America is a very organized country and that I like. You can plan to go to the moon and do it. You progress not only in the sky but on the ground."

Giants Slip Back Into First Place

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
A September rainstorm and a June plane ride sound like a couple of wildly unrelated things—but they sure teamed up to put a dent in Cincinnati's hopes in the dizzy National League West title chase.

The rainstorm washed out the Reds' scheduled game with the Chicago Cubs after a 90-minute wait Monday night.

That postponement, coupled with San Francisco's 12-2 rout of Montreal earlier in the day, enabled the Giants to reclaim first place, just .002 percentage points ahead of the Reds.

And, that mid-June flight has the Reds in danger of doing a little more slipping tonight.

Last June 15, Chicago was leading Cincinnati 5-4 after seven innings of the second game of a doubleheader, when the game was suspended to permit the Reds to catch a plane to San Francisco, where they were scheduled to play the next afternoon.

That game will be resumed from the point of interruption—with the Cubs holding that 4-1 lead—tonight before the regularly scheduled match with the NL's East Division leaders.

Meanwhile, Willie Davis extended his hitting streak to 29 games in helping Los Angeles to a 10-6 success over the New York Mets that kept the Dodgers just .003 percentage points back of the Giants. The loss dropped the cMets 4½ games back of the Cubs in the NL East.

Pittsburgh clipped Atlanta 7-1 to drop the sagging Braves three games off the pace in the West, while St. Louis whipped Houston 6-2 and San Diego topped Philadelphia 5-2 in other games.

In the American League, Baltimore blanked Chicago 8-0; Minnesota shaded Cleveland 7-5; Washington beat California 4-0 before losing 8-7; Boston checked Oakland 6-2; New York topped Seattle 6-1, then lost the nightcap of a doubleheader 5-1 in 13 innings, and Detroit nipped Kansas City 5-4 in 10 innings before bowing 3-2 in the nightcap.

Davis' sizzling single to center in the second inning enabled him to tie Zack Wheat's all-time Dodger record hitting streak and put the veteran outfielder just eight games shy of the modern NL record set by Tommy Holmes of the old Boston Braves in 1945.

Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees holds the major league record—56 games—and there are enough games remaining on the Dodger schedule for Davis to conceivably match that lofty mark.

"It takes a little luck," said Davis of the streak. "If you make contact with the ball, you have a better chance, and I'm doing that. The last couple of days I felt a little pressure, but now it's off."

Andy Kosco lashed four hits and knocked in three runs in leading the 16-hit Dodger attack. Tommie Agee and Duffy Dyer homered for the Mets.

Ken Henderson drove in four runs and Jim Davenport produced three RBIs with three hits in four trips in guiding San Francisco's rout—the 12th victory in 14 games for the Giants.

Lefty Ray Sadecki, 5-8, scattered six hits and helped himself out by drawing three walks. Bob Moose checked Atlanta on seven hits as the Braves dropped their sixth straight at home. Gene Alley and Willie Stargell hit consecutive homers for the Pirates in the third.

Perranoski In 26th Twin Save

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
It was Labor Day for everyone else and just another day of labor for Ron Perranoski.

Perranoski made the long trip in from the bullpen for the 63rd time this season Monday, and got credit for a record-tying 26th save as Minnesota widened its American League West lead with a 7-5 victory over Cleveland.

The victory combined with Oakland's 6-2 loss at Boston gave Minnesota a 5½ game spread in the West as the pennant races swing into their final month.

In other American League games Monday, Baltimore bombed Chicago 8-0; New York split a doubleheader with Seattle, winning 6-1 before losing 5-1 in 13 innings; Washington divided a pair with California, winning 4-0 before losing 8-7 and Detroit nipped Kansas City 5-4 in 10 innings, before losing 3-2.

In the National League, Pittsburgh rapped Atlanta 7-1, San Francisco walloped Montreal 12-2, Los Angeles tagged New York 10-6, St. Louis whipped Houston 6-2 and San Diego defeated Philadelphia 5-2. Chicago's game at Cincinnati was postponed by rain.

Perranoski allowed just one hit in the final 2-13 innings to nail down the victory for the Twins after Cleveland had rallied from an early 7-1 deficit.

The veteran right-hander is just three short of the Minnesota club record for appearances and seems certain to top his personal high of 72 set in 1964 when he was with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Perranoski's 26 saves tied the AL record set by Baltimore's Stu Miller in 1963 and matched by Jack Aker with Kansas City in 1966. When Miller and Aker did it, a reliever had to face the tying run to qualify for a save. Now, he merely has to finish the game to get one.

The Twins clawed Sam McDowell for six runs before a man was out in the first inning. Bob Allison ripped a bases-loaded triple and Rich Renick had a two-run homer to key the rally. But the Indians bounced back, kayving Dean Chance and continuing to rally against Jim Kaat and Al Worthington before Perranoski came on to save the victory.

Boog Powell slammed three hits including his 34th home run and made Jim Palmer's 14th victory easy as the Orioles blitzed the White Sox in a game played at Milwaukee. Palmer pitched a five-hitter and won his 10th in a row.

Rico Petrocelli walloped a grand slam home run in the first inning, wiping out a 2-0 Oakland lead and pacing Boston over the A's.

The homer was Petrocelli's 34th of the season and tagged the A's with their third straight loss and sixth in the last seven starts.

Mel Stottlemyre won his 18th game and Bobby Murcer hit a pair of homers in the opener as the Yankees took the Pilots. Roy White drove in three runs for New York as Stottlemyre pitched a six-hitter.

Mike Hegan, an ex-Yankee, tied the nightcap with a ninth inning single and then hammered a three-run homer in the 13th inning, helping the Pilots to the split.

Mike Epstein tagged four straight hits including a three-run homer, giving Washington its first game-victory over California as Joe Coleman won his 10th.

The Angels salvaged the split with Sandy Alomar's two-run triple the key hit in a sixth-inning comeback. Ken McMillen hit a pair of two-run homers for Washington.

Ike Brown tripled home one run, then came in on Jim Price's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning to give Detroit the victory in the opener, extending the Tigers' winning streak to seven games.

But Luis Alcaraz, just called up from the Royals' Omaha farm club, delivered a two-out run scoring single in the bottom of the ninth in the nightcap to end the streak.

Tony Horton hit a homer in each game for the Tigers.

Keydets Lost Two Tight End Players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's a rare football coach to whom the season looks rosy on Labor Day, but you might excuse VMI's Vito Ragazzo for wringing the crying towel a bit severely.

The Keydets were not expected to tear up the Southern Conference this year anyway, but things didn't look too bad at the tight end spot. Not until Monday anyway, when Ragazzo took a one-two punch from the tight end zone.

Expected starter Worth Roberts learned he would be shipped off today to Charlottesville for a knee operation at University of Virginia Hospital. And Roberts' understudy—Bob Depew—quit the squad, saying simply that he'd "lost all desire to play."

That leaves Ragazzo and the Keydets with junior Wayne Hepler and sophomore Doug Nichols, neither of whom has extensive game experience.

While Ragazzo pondered possible tight end candidates from fatter spots in his lineup, another coach around the conference took his lumps—from the heat.

Lou Holtz limited his William and Mary Indians to a short practice due to 90-degree weather. But he said a goal-line scrimmage showed improvement, and singled out offensive guard John Feurriegel and split end Ed Helies as standouts in the day's activity.

In Richmond, Spider mentor Frank Jones worked on fundamentals, stressing pass blocking and correcting errors made in last Saturday's scrimmage.

Lunn Captures Hartford Golf

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "Oh, boy," said big Bob Lunn—about the strongest language the hulking, placid guy uses—"I could feel it coming on for a couple of months."

"And it's nice, real nice." The mild-mannered, 210-pound husky was talking about his fourth-hole playoff victory over weather-wilted Dave Hill Monday for the $20,000 top prize in the Greater Hartford Open Tournament.

They had tied at the end of the regulation 72 holes at 268, 16 under par on the 6,568-yard, par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course, and had matched pars on the first three playoff holes before Lunn rolled in a 22-foot putt for the winner.

"This game can't be rushed. You've got to capitalize on your good shots and not let the bad ones get you down," Lunn said. And that's exactly the formula he used in whipping the tiring Hill.

Hill, three strokes behind with three holes to play, closed birdie-birdie for a 66 that tied him with Lunn, who had a final 67.

Dave Stockton took third with a 66 for 269. Bert Greene, with a 65, and Gay Brewer, 68, tied at 271. Howie Johnson had a 70 for 272 and was followed by Jack Nicklaus alone at 273 after a 68. Defending champion Billy Casper was well back at 278.

"Somehow I had a feeling Dave was going to make it," Lunn said after Hill had canned a 23-foot birdie putt that tied it on the 82nd hole.

Yarbrough Speeds Past Pearson In Final Lap To Capture Southern 500

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DARLINGTON, S. C. (AP)—The success which eluded Lee Roy Yarbrough for most of his nine years on NASCAR's blue ribbon Grand National stock car racing circuit finally has come to the 50-year-old driver.

He won his sixth major speedway race of 1969 Monday, obliterating past David Pearson on the final lap of the prestigious Southern 500 before a limp crowd of 65,000.

Yarbrough now has won stock car racing's so-called triple crown, the Daytona 500, the Charlotte World 600, and the Southern 500—becoming the first driver to do it in one season.

In winning the rain-shortened Southern 500 by less than a car length, the Ford driver earned $21,850 to bring his season's total to a record $164,915. He led seven times for 83 laps.

Brockton Rock Draws Tribute

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Rocky Marciano, the Brockton Blockbuster, was mourned today by the people of this city who idolized him.

Marciano, who left coal shoveling and ditch digging in his hometown and went on to win the world heavyweight boxing championship, died Sunday night in a plane crash in an Iowa farmyard.

Marciano captured the title in 1952 with a knockout of Jersey Joe Walcott and eventually retired undefeated in 1956.

He was killed when a light plane carrying him to his birthday celebration crashed in Newton, Iowa. His body was returned here Monday, the day he would have been 46 years old.

His professional career started in Holyoke with a three-round knockout over Lee Epperson and ended in New York eight years and 49 undefeated fights later with a ninth-round knockout over Archie Moore.

Known as a fighter who didn't know the art of boxing, he'd take as many punches as necessary to land one. "I got lucky tonight because I only got nailed a couple of times," he once told a reporter after a fight in 1952. "But in tough fights, I have headaches for a week or two weeks. Sometimes I actually hear humming

... and I know that can't be good for me."

Then he added: "But I used to have a sore back all the time from shoveling coal at the Brockton Back Gas Works. For this I get paid better."

"Inside the ring he was a lion, outside a lamb," was the way Walcott described Marciano.

Former champ Sonny Liston said Marciano "was one of the greatest champions there ever was," and deposed champion Cassius Clay told a reporter Marciano was "the onliest, one that would have given me some trouble."

Although respected by those who fought him, Marciano's free-swinging, plodding style found little praise with the boxing experts.

"However," Marciano once remarked after his retirement, "20 years from now fight fans will look at my record and know I fought everybody around and never lost a fight. I might even end up a living legend."

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at St. Coleman's Church Thursday, and another Mass will be celebrated Friday at St. Pius Church in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where Marciano made his home for the past several years.

Burial will be in Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Fort Lauderdale.

Texas, Arkansas Choice In Southwestern Battle

By DENNE H. FREEMAN Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — If the form chart has its way, Texas and Arkansas will settle not only the Southwest Conference championship but perhaps the national title Dec. 6 on national television in Fayetteville, Ark.

Cotton Bowl king Texas and Sugar Bowl champion Arkansas were co-champions last year. They return most of the muscle, throwing arms and speed that made them the third and sixth, respectively, in the nation last season.

"Everybody will be trying like the devil to beat us," says Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles.

Texas Coach Darrell Royal agrees. "Heck, we could go into the thing with four losses," Royal says.

Southern Methodist Coach Hayden Fry wishes to announce that his Mustangs, conquerors of Oklahoma in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, plan to make it most unpleasant for the two titans.

"I think we can give them a good game," says Fry, who has the nation's premier passer in Chuck Hixon.

The Longhorns again have James Street at the controls along with powerful Steve Woster at fullback and Ted Koy at halfback. Gone is All-American Chris Gilbert. And at flanker will be Charles Speyrer who caught touchdown passes of 78 and 79 yards from Street in Texas' 36-13 massacre of Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl.

Arkansas has its deadly pass-and-catch combination of Bill Montgomery and Chuck Dicus back again. Montgomery and Dicus were the stars in a 16-2 victory over Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

Southern Methodist has its best defensive club in years, but will miss pass-snatcher Jerry Levias. Fry has groomed Gary Hammond, a sophomore, as Levias' replacement.

Eight SWC games will be on national television this year—an all-time high. It will put about $1.5 million in the pockets of the SWC schools.

Baylor returns lettermen at their position to give new Coach Bill Beall something to work with. There's a new attitude in Waco and the Bears could be troublesome.

Texas Tech has an excellent defense but Coach J.T. King's fortunes ride on whether quarterbacks Tom Sawyer, Joe Matulich, and Charles Napper can turn the right offense key.

Rice, Texas A&M and Texas Christian are capable of an occasional ambush, but appear to be second division material.

Four of the 15 incoming freshmen are tackles weighing between 220 and 260 pounds. They are Sidney Green of Mewan, W. Va., Adam Gluchowski of woodbridge, N.J., Dennis Reis of Hollywood, Fla., and Bill Samuelson of York, Pa. Green is the 260-pounder. All are 6-foot-2 or taller.

Blount Captures First In W.S. Moye Tourney

Marvin Blount Jr. shot a one-over-par 73 yesterday to capture the 17th annual W. S. Moye Memorial Tournament at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Blount finished the three-day event with a total of 223, seven strokes over runner-up Jay Collie.

Collie had held a one-stroke lead over Blount as the day's activity got underway. Collie had carded a 149 for the first two days' play, while Blount, after leading the first round, had a 150 for two rounds.

But on Monday's opening nine, Blount took charge and never lost command. He started out with four straight pars, then picked up a birdie on the fifth hole. He finished the front nine in bogey-par-birdie for a 35. Meanwhile Collie fell off to a 41 on the front to shoot himself out of contention, settling for second place in the tournament.

J. C. Whitehurst Jr. took first place in the first flight, with a 224. Reynolds May finished in second place with a 247.

The second flight went to Ricky Webb, who carded a 257. Dr. Joe Ward was the runner-up with a 260.

Rhett Honeycutt captured the third flight with a 268, edging out Leon Moore, who had a 270. The fourth flight was won by Lawton Nisbet with a 275, while Bill Collier was second with a 282.

Dave Mosier won the fifth flight with a 307, followed by Cliff Everett Jr. with a 308.

Arthur Ashe Against Pros

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — It's Arthur Ashe against the pros now in the $137,000 U.S. Open Tennis Championship.

"We weren't ready last year — open tennis was so new to us," said Rod Laver, the tournament favorite now gunning for the last title in a second grand slam.

"We hadn't played on grass. We weren't accustomed to best-of-5 sets. It's different this year. It will be hard to break through the contract pros. Ashe is the only man who has the kind of game to do it and he has to be at his best in every match the rest of the way."

Laver and Ashe were among the four players to advance to the men's quarter-finals Monday. They were joined by two of Laver's fellow troupers in the National Tennis League—Roy Emerson and Ken Rosewall.

Laver's next opponent is Emerson, who at 33 is two years older and who grew up with him in Australia's humid Queensland area around Brisbane.

Ashe goes against 34-year-old Ken Rosewall, who after a slow start is picking up steam in this championship.

The other quarter-final spots were on the line today in matches sending second-seeded John Newcombe of Australia against Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and third-seeded Tony Roche of Australia against 41-year-old Pancho Gonzales, his conqueror a year ago.

Ashe looked his sharpest in ousting Manuel Santana of Spain Monday 7-5, 6-1, 6-8, 6-4 but he went immediately to the dressing room and began soaking his ailing right elbow in ice. He served 24 aces.

Laver had to play his best to beat Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-4, 4-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Rosewall, tiring quickly, edged Ilie Nastase, the young Romanian 6-1, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 while Emerson crushed dark-horse Roy Barth of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-3, 6-0, 6-3.

The women's division entered the semifinals with Margaret Court appearing more imposing with every round. The statueque Australian trounced teammate Karen Krantzcke 6-0, 9-7 and qualified to face defending mastery over Billie Jean King and beat the Long Beach, Calif., matron 6-4, 8-6.

ACC Starting Contact Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Contact work started today at some Atlantic Coast Conference football practice fields.

The North Carolina Tar Heels, the South Carolina Gamecocks, and Duke University completed their non contact drills Monday, a day of labor on Labor Day, a day of labor on Labor Day.

Duke's Tom Hasep said he wasn't pleased with Monday's morning drills but that the afternoon practice showed a little improvement. He added that the team was anxious to start work with pads, and that could be part of the problem.

The Gamecocks worked out in the rain and Coach Paul Dietzel said the biggest problem is how strong the offensive line will be without Don Buckner. He was shifted to a defensive position at the beginning of the practice sessions.

Division Play Starts Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS With Rocky Mount having won the regular season pennant, the Carolina League turns to its playoffs with two games in each division tonight.

Peninsula plays at Rocky Mount and Kinston at Raleigh-Durham in the Eastern Division. The Hi-Toms are at Salem and Burlington at Winston-Salem in the Western bracket.

The teams switch sites Wednesday night in the best-of-five series.

Salem defeated Lynchburg 3-0 at Lynchburg Monday behind the four-hit pitching of Dennis Malseed to close its regular season.

Meanwhile, the Hi-Toms closed out with a 5-1 victory over Red Springs at Thomasville. John Pasiarb went the distance and held Red Springs to five hits.

Burlington pushed across two runs in the bottom of the first and went on to defeat Winston-Salem 4-1 at Burlington. Although touched for 10 hits, Dick Noid hurled his seventh straight victory and ran his record to 13-8.

Righthander Bobby Malcolm pitched a two-hitter and Greg Luzinski belted a three-run homer as Raleigh-Durham downed Rocky Mount 11-1 at Durham.

The final standings:

Schmidt Must Get Winner This Year

By LARRY PALADINO Associated Press Sports Writer DETROIT (AP) — "Our period of adjustment is behind us," says Detroit Lions Coach Joe Schmidt.

But if it isn't, Schmidt may find himself adjusting to the ranks of other unemployed football coaches.

"My first two years were tough," he says, "but I'm convinced now that my third season as head coach will be even tougher."

Schmidt has three years left of a five-year contract, but talk is that unless the Lions can have a successful season this year owner William clay Ford may buy out the last two years of his pact.

Last season Detroit wound up with a dismal 4-8-2 record and last place in the Central Division of the National Football League.

The Lions have been building the last couple of years and it seems as if they should be ready to be a contender once again.

Among the top players in the league are four Lions with a total of only six years in pro football. Running back Mel Farr was Offensive Rookie of the Year in 1967, while cornerback teammate em Barney was Defensive Rookie of the Year.

Last season swift split-end Earl McCullouch was the league's top offensive rookie, while tight end Charlie Sanders was second in the voting. "All of us feel that our period of adjustment is behind us . . . that our rebuilding job is ready to start paying off," Schmidt says. "Look at it this way: We have only five players . . . who were with us prior to the 1968 season."

Detroit is strong in several departments. Farr, Nick Eddy and rookie Altie Taylor provide good speed and talent at running back. Pass receiving is excellent, with McCullouch, Sanders, and Billy Gambrell. And there is depth here with Bill Malinchak, rookie Larry Walton, and Phil Odlie.

Another strong point is the defensive backfield, which includes Barney, Dick LeBeau, Mike Weger and Tommy Vaughn.

But quarterback Bill Munson may be the key to Detroit's hopes. He had a mediocre season in 1968, his first with the Lions. But if he doesn't have the injury problems which bothered him last year, plus readjustment problems, then he could capitalize on his fine receivers and make the team an NFL surprise.

Defensively the front four of Alex Karras, Jerry Rush, John Baker and Larry Hand is strong. And linebackers Wayne Walker, Mike Lucet and Paul Naumoff are among the best.

But, besides quarterbacking, the main problems are the offensive line and kicking.

Court Martial Is Ordered For Destroyer's CO

MANILA (AP)—The U.S. Navy today ordered a court-martial for the commanding officer of the destroyer Frank E. Evans and the officer of the deck at the time the ship and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne collided June 2.

Seventy four Americans were lost in the collision.

Vice Adm. W. F. Bringle, commander of the 7th Fleet, ordered the military trial for Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore, 37, of San Pedro, Calif., and Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, 24, of Los Angeles, Calif. It was expected to begin about Sept. 10 at Subic naval base.

No court martial was ordered for the junior officer of the watch at the time of the collision, Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, 28, of Kansas City, Kan., but a Navy spokesman said Adm. Bringle would deal with him in a nonjudicial hearing.

The Australian navy already has cleared the Melbourne's skipper at a court-martial of negligence.

The Melbourne and the Evans collided during night maneuvers in the South China Sea. The destroyer was acting as part of the carrier's screen and was changing station from ahead of the Melbourne to astern of her. The carrier cut the destroyer in half, sinking the bow half.

McLemore and Ramsey were charged with negligence and dereliction of duty. Adm. Bringle said he based these "obviously very serious" charges on the investigation conducted at Subic in August into the collision.

McLemore, who was asleep in his cabin at the time of the collision, is charged with failure to give proper orders to his deck officers the night of the collision. The charge said the captain had been informed there was likely to be maneuvering which would require his presence on the bridge but did not inform the bridge of this and did not give specific orders to wake him prior to the maneuvers.

Controversial Columnist Drew Pearson Is Dead At Age Of 71

ANDREW R. PEARSON

By ROBERT K. WALKER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Columnist Drew Pearson, whose reports on skeletons in government closets put him in the center of numerous controversies, is dead at the age of 71.

He suffered a heart attack Monday at his Maryland farm and was dead on arrival at Georgetown Hospital.

For almost four decades Pearson wrote "The Washington Merry-Go-Round," which carried his version of behind-the-scenes government action. He often raised the ire of officials, and two presidents called him a liar.

It was Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman who denounced Pearson. Roosevelt called him a liar when the columnist reported Secretary of State Cordell Hull wanted to see Russia "bled white" during Truman, once referred to Jack Anderson, co-author the past 10 years, said he will continue the column which is carried in 625 daily and weekly newspapers.

Pearson's most recent major crusade in 1966-67 led to a Senate censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., after allegations he had used political funds for personal purposes.

Pearson as an "s.o.b." after several columns which angered the President.

And the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., resorted to physical violence during a long feud with Pearson in the 1950s. McCarthy admitted hitting Pearson with his hand at a fashionable club in Washington; the columnist said the senator kicked him in the groin.

The squabble got into the courts in a $5.1 million damage suit brought by Pearson against McCarthy and several others, including the late columnist Westbrook Pegler. It was dropped later.

This was only one of a number of court suits in which Pearson was plaintiff or defendant.

Although controversial, Pearson was affable, mild-mannered and a Quaker. He sponsored the Friendship Train that collected 700 carloads of food for France and Italy after World War II.

Born Andrew Russell Pearson at Evanston, Ill., he was the son of a college professor who later was governor of the Virgin Islands. He was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania.

While working for the Baltimore Sun, Pearson and Robert S. Allen wrote a book called "The Washington Merry-Go-Round" which promised to tell "the gossip which the Capital loves to whisper but hates to see in print."

The book and a sequel launched the column which Allen gave up in 1942 to re-enter the Army.

Pearson's first marriage in 1925 to the Countess Felicia Gyzzycka, daughter of Eleanor "Cissy" Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, ended in divorce.

In 1936 he married Luvie

DODGE CHALLENGER — The low-profile four-seater, 191 inches long and built on a 110-inch wheelbase, joins the Dodge car family in 1970. The grille is recessed, headlights canted and bleed with the venturi styling of the front end design. Concealed windshield wipers keep the foil design intact at the deeply raked windshields. All Challengers are equipped with a newly-designed bucket seat.

Girl Born Without A Face Goes To School

MRS. CRINGELY LISTENS WITH HALF AN EAR (IF AT ALL) TO WHAT CRINGELY HAS TO SAY DURING THE DAY—

BUT LET HIM MUMBLE SOMETHING IN HIS SLEEP AND HUBBOY! DOES SHE GIVE HIM HER UNDIVIDED ATTENTION!

By AL SHAY
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Deborah Fox, born 13½ years ago virtually without a face, goes to school today for the first time in her life. It took 37 operations and help from a lot of people to get her there. Debbie said she was "very happy" to be in a class with other children at last. Before today, Debbie's education consisted of taking part in classes by telephone hookup, bolstered by three hours of private tutoring each week at her farm home in Soddy, north of here. Now she's an eighth grader in a special education class at White Oak School. A spokesman for the Hamilton County Department of Education said it would be a "transition room for Debbie to get her accustomed to a school situation." Debbie had her 37th—and most extensive—operation last June at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. It was carried out by six physicians in 13½ hours. With brain, eye and plastic surgery, the doctors literally changed the configuration of Debbie's skullbones. They moved her eyes from the sides to the center of her face and started rebuilding her nose.

Holiday Traffic Cost 583 Lives

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Traffic accidents across the nation claimed 583 lives during the three-day Labor Day weekend. Although late reports were expected to raise the toll higher, it appeared the final figure would fall short of the Labor Day record of 688, set during last year's observance. For comparison purposes, The Associated Press made a survey of traffic deaths over a three-day nonholiday weekend earlier this summer. The total was 435. The National Safety Council has estimated in advance that highway deaths over this summer's last long holiday weekend would total 625 to 725. The weekend began 6 p.m., local time, Friday and ended at midnight Monday. Traffic deaths during the most recent previous holiday weekend, Independence Day, totaled 611. That holiday period also was three days this year.

Further surgery is planned on her nose and mouth after tests this fall at Baltimore. Her appearance is still not normal. Stories about the operation brought Debbie a flood of mail, including gifts, from around the world. Her favorite gifts, she said, were a music box and a purse. Debbie, who has an I.Q. of about 120 and is an amateur poet, has tried to answer all her mail. She said she has been corresponding with several GIs in Vietnam. She hopes she can continue to make top grades in school without giving up her letter writing and poetry. Debbie has collected 25 of her poems for publication, including one about the Johns Hopkins operation, "The Six Best Men of My Life"—a reference to the six physicians. Debbie is the youngest of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Fox. Debbie has said she would like to work with handicapped children when she grows up. In addition to her face, one of Debbie's hands and one of her legs is deformed.

Air Fares Seen To Get Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of flying may soon be following the cost of living: up. Depending on what the Civil Aeronautics Board has to say about it in a proceeding that begins this week, airline fares could go up as much as 8 per cent within the month. The major airlines, claiming sharply rising operating costs, have filed proposed rate hikes that would all be in effect by Oct. 1. And they will automatically go into effect unless the CAB says no. Oral arguments before the board begin Thursday. Among opponents of the fare increases are 20 California-Nevada congressmen, frequent users of long-distance flights, who already are feeling the effects of a 4 per cent interim increase allowed by the board last February. 8

Heavy Damage In Car Collision

Anna Bonner Harrington of 909 Greenville Blvd. was charged with failing to yield the right of way in a 5:20 p.m. mishap yesterday that caused an estimated $4,000 damage and injured three persons. Police said the Harrington car and a vehicle driven by Dennis Oneal Lester, 20 of Butler, collided at the intersection of Rosewood Drive and U.S. 264, causing an estimated $3,000 damage to the Lester car and about $1,000 to the Harrington vehicle. Both drivers and a passenger in the Lester vehicle received minor injuries, officers reported.

Union To Oppose Local Option Tax

RALEIGH (AP) — W. M. Barbee, president of the North Carolina AFL-CIO, says the union will wage a campaign against the local option 1 per cent sales tax to be voted on in the state's 100 counties in November. "This is the most regressive type of taxation possible because even recipients of welfare... have to pay sales tax," Barbee said in an interview Monday. "Taxes are supposed to be based on the ability to pay and not the necessity of eating or wearing clothes," Barbee said. The 1969 General Assembly authorized a referendum on a 1 per cent tax for local purposes which would be in addition to the statewide 3 per cent tax.

Charge Man With Chicken Theft

A 36-year-old man was charged with larceny of chickens here early today. Acting police chief T. E. Gladson said Cpl. M. H. Craft was on patrol about 12:32 a.m. when he spotted two men beside Batt's Grocery at 1117 West Third St. Seeing the men run, Craft gave chase, the chief said, and caught Julius Vines, Negro. Three chickens had been removed, a box of the dressed birds at the store and were found nearby. Investigation of the case is continuing.

Air Cavalrymen Reinforce Battered Allies

By GEORGE ESPER, Associated Press Writer
 SAIGON (AP) — Helicopters landed 400 American Air Cavalrymen on a battleground north of Saigon this afternoon to reinforce South Vietnamese commandos battered for three days by North Vietnamese troops.

At least 26 of the South Vietnamese troops were reported killed, 120 were wounded and 17 were missing. Four American Green Beret advisers with the South Vietnamese also were wounded.

The number of North Vietnamese killed was not known yet. Officers in the field said allied forces had been unable to sweep the battlefield because "every time we go out we get in trouble."

The fighting began Sunday when about 400 South Vietnamese commandos ran across a base camp of an enemy division 85 miles northeast of Saigon in jungled hills. The camp was 18 miles east of Song Be, a provincial capital the enemy division had been threatening.

The North Vietnamese struck back from all sides as the South Vietnamese came in. Helicopters flew in 400 fresh commandos to reinforce the embattled battalion. On Monday the South Vietnamese tried to push back into the area of Sunday's fighting but again ran into strong resistance.

Lt. Gen. Julian J. Ewell, commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force, visited the battle area and ordered U.S. troops from the 1st Air Cavalry Division to reinforce the South Vietnamese. The Air Cavalrymen met no resistance as they drove into the triple-canopied jungles, and fighting reportedly appeared to taper off at least for the time being.

Although fighting picked up again in the area between Saigon and the Cambodian border, there was no indication that the upsurge was the new high point in the enemy's fall campaign which U.S. officers have been predicting for this week.

Today is the 24th anniversary of Ho Chi Minh's proclamation of the Vietnamese Republic, and American officers expect the enemy to mark the occasion with stepped-up attacks. But the action reported today resulted from allied sweeps and patrols rather than aggressive enemy action.

Dive bombers and helicopter gunships from the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry regiment destroyed 72 enemy bunkers and killed 16 troops with machine guns and rockets in an area two miles from the Cambodian border and 70 miles northwest of Saigon, U.S. headquarters said. No American casualties were reported.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (NCDA) — North Carolina hog market steady to 25-cents lower with instances 50 cents lower. Tops of 24.75-25.50 at Wilson and Rocky Mount; 24.00-25.00 at Bethel 24.00-24.50 at Siler City and Denton; 25.50 at Sallisbury; 24.50 at Greensboro.

(AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina poultry market steady. Prices at farms mostly 14%.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was holding a modest gain in fairly quiet trading early this afternoon, with advances leading declines by better than 200 issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.11 at 838.83. The DJI gained 8.31 last Friday.

Some analysts viewed the market's early advance as an extension of the rally that got under way late last week.

They said some investors apparently were encouraged by the market's ability to hold above the 830 line on the DJI, with one noting that "as long as it stays above 830 it has a chance of going ahead."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 3 at 294.8, with industrials up 3, rails up 2, and utilities up 2.

Steels, motors, utilities, metals, oils and chemicals were mixed. Aircrafts, and electronics mostly were higher.

Rails and airlines were mixed. North Canadian Oils led the American Stock Exchange most-active list, off 1/4 at 10%.

Probe Incident At Night Spot

Greenville police are investigating an incident involving two Ayden white men and a group of local Negroes at a night-spot here early yesterday.

According to a complaint received by the local department, the incident followed a visit to the Tropicana Club, on Bonners Lane by Bobby Brown Lang, 27, of 509 West Third St., Ayden and Alton Huggins, 21, of 102 Hunter College St., Ayden, acting chief of Police T. E. Gladson said.

According to the chief, the two white men had been at the Negro club for several hours and when they started to leave, a group of eight or ten Negroes allegedly took a watch and ring belonging to Lang, and tore the door from Lang's 1962 model car.

Gladson said Huggins, during this time, was injured. He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he received treatment for a laceration of his cheek.

Value of the watch and ring was set at $11 while damage to the car was placed at $300. The incident occurred about 2:41 a.m.

Brazil Is Calm Under New Rule

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilians went about life normally today, apparently unperturbed by the substitution of a military junta for their ailing military president.

The army remained on the alert, but there were no disturbances following the change of command Sunday night. Financial institutions, closed Monday on government order, were reopening today.

The ministers of the army, navy and air force formed a junta that set aside the constitution and took over the post of President Arthur da Costa e Silva after he suffered a stroke.

They bypassed Vice President Pedro Aleixo a civilian who should have become acting president under the constitution. But nobody had expected that the military would let him take over.

Although the junta said the takeover was temporary, until Costa e Silva recovered, there was considerable doubt he would make a comeback before his term expires in 1971. There were predictions a strongman would emerge from the junta.

CAP Squadron Meets Tonight

The Greenville Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will meet tonight at 7:30 in Room 124, New Austin Bldg., ROTC Section, East Carolina University campus.

USAF Maj. Lloyd Sloan, commander of the local unit, urges all cadets, senior members and friends of aviation to attend.

Recover Supply Of Stolen Drugs

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County police Monday recovered at the end of a dirt road a supply of drugs believed stolen in South Carolina.

The police said some of the bottles were empty but others contained tablets. A label on one of the bottles bore the name of a pharmacy in Denmark, S. C.

Parents Are Reminded Of School Attendance Law

Parents of children between the ages of seven and 16 were cautioned today that they are required by law to keep children in this age group in school.

Pointing to this and other laws regarding attendance in public schools, Pitt County Superintendent of Schools Arthur S. Alford, explained, "The attendance law requires every parent, guardian or other person having charge or control of a child shall cause such child to attend school continuously for a period equal to the time which the public school to which the child is assigned shall be in session."

Central America Awaits Blow From Francelia

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Francelia raked the coral islands of Bahia with gale winds today as it churned across the Gulf of Honduras toward the coast of Central America.

Residents in coastal areas of Honduras, Guatemala and British Honduras were warned to prepare for 100-mile-an-hour winds and surging storm tides.

Francelia was expected to go ashore about noon. Forecasters said the storm's eye probably would pass near Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, the country's main Atlantic port.

Storm warnings extended from the British Honduras capital of Belize, 120 miles southward to La Ceiba, Honduras. Puerto Barrios is located about midway between the two cities, at the head of the Gulf of Honduras.
