Hospital Rates To Go Up October 1

Due to what hospital officials attribute to "increased costs of service," room rates at Pitt Memorial Hospital will increase from $5 to $7 per bed effective October 1.

White House To Reverse Stand On Oil Depletion

By JOHN M. PEARCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of President Nixon's key political lieutenants has told a Republican stalwart in the heart-of-Texas oil country the White House will reverse its field and support the 27 1/2 per cent oil depletion allowance.

ing Nixon to stand fast for 27 1/2 per cent, said specifically the President "has asked me to respond in his behalf."

per day will range in price from $35 to $37 per day. The range in private and semi-private room charges is based on whether the room has no toilet, a connecting toilet or a full bath.

The testimony before the Senate Finance Committee is to be corrected very soon by the secretary of the Treasury.

The initial acceptance as the allowance cut bore the unmistakable imprimatur of the President. It was hashed out in many conferences involving much of Nixon's staff and culminated with most of the Treasury's leaders going to the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., for personal conferences with the President and his staff.

Ward explained other increased costs: "During the past year, one new X-ray room was added and new equipment has been purchased for a second X-ray room.

Diver Finds Service Life And Sports Competition Make Good Combination

By LINDA KRAMER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sitting with her long legs neatly crossed beneath a short white skirt, wearing a stylish blouse and jacket to match, Micki King seemed quite comfortable and at home, even though she was out of uniform. She spends most of her time in military dress or in a bathing suit.

The 25-year-old blonde, a first lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force, is the chief of Education Services at the Los Angeles Air Force station. She also holds six National Amateur Athletic Union diving championships.

After receiving her B.S. in physical education from the University of Michigan, Miss King decided to join the Air Force. One reason was that it would provide her with the opportunity and facilities to continue diving.

"The Air Force has been extremely cooperative with regard to my athletic endeavors. It sponsors me in each meet and allows me the necessary time to prepare for major competitions," she explains.

There were, however, other reasons for joining the Air Force.

"I wanted to represent and be a part of our country," she says with a wide grin. "It might sound corny to someone else, but not to me. I don't like to take what we have here for granted. When you travel you appreciate more what we have. I wear the uniform of the United States every day and I'm proud to do it."

While in the Air Force, Miss King was able to participate in CISM—Conseil International du Sports Militaire—or the World Military Games in Italy. The first woman ever to do so, she was also a novelty, because few European countries have women in their armed services. But she encountered no difficulties.

"The men were really great," Miss King laughed. "It was a very ego boosting trip."

As a world-famous athlete (she also participated in the 1968 Olympics) and as a member of the military, Miss King gets dual exposure to men. "I meet military men and athletes. Training can interfere with dating, but I can't complain about my social life."

In New York on a visit, she described her arduous hours of training in pursuit of the perfection which she says motivates all divers. She's found that the desire for perfection has spread to all phases of her life and is another reason that a military career appeals to her. "Perfection and discipline go hand-in-hand and you can't avoid having it carry over," says the lieutenant, gesturing with her well-tanned arms.

The discipline and strenuous physical exercise which mark her life help explain why the 5-foot-7 Miss King weighs only 138 pounds and looks so trim and fit. She realizes that many women are afraid to exercise too much—they don't want to get too muscular. Miss King disagrees, pointing out that most women swimmers and divers have healthy and shapely bodies. Whether a woman is going to appear masculine or not, she believes, is determined by her general attitude and the way she handles herself.

"I believe that not enough people realize the importance of physical fitness for themselves. They talk about it but it doesn't get past the breakfast table," Miss King says emphatically. "People don't know how good it feels to be tired and deserve to be tired. You don't have to be a national competitor to get a lot out of sports. Do it on your own level."

Miss King likes to practice what she preaches. In addition to her diving, she loves all water sports and is an ardent flyer. After she finishes her tour in the Air Force, she is considering returning to school, getting her master's degree in physical education and then coaching diving for girls on the college level. Or she may continue her career in the Air Force.

"You have to want something out of the ordinary to join the Air Force," she says. "The Air Force is like a big business and the job you do is not that different from a civilian's. But there's the uniform and rank, and you are in a man's world. This makes it a unique and attractive job."

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Everett and son, Steve, from Lynchburg, Va., were the weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Everett.

Stewart Edmondson, Jarrett Barnhill, Ricky Knox, Mike Ward, Don Hardison, Alexander White and Bill Everett have entered the University of N.C., Chapel Hill, to continue their studies.

It's Sometimes Necessary To Abruptly 'Change Subject'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Isn't it bad manners to say abruptly, "Let's change the subject?" A friend of mine is always doing this. I know you can't keep discussing the same subject all the time, but isn't there a more tactful way of steering the conversation to some other subject?

For one thing, after a point-blank order like that it's awfully hard to say something that sounds natural.

DEAR ABIGAIL: Yes, it is rude to abruptly say, "Let's

Faculty Wives Honored At Reception

Crimson was the predominant color in decor complementing the reception hall of President Leo Jenkins' home at the opening meeting of the East Carolina University Faculty Wives' Club Tuesday from 8 to 10 p.m.

Held traditionally in the ECU president's home with the first lady of the university acting as official hostess, Mrs. Leo Jenkins and Mrs. Harold McGrath, the organization's recently installed president, received members at the door.

Both Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. McGrath wore purple-throated orchids presented them by club members. Guests and new bouquets of summer flowers in various hues.

An arrangement of crimson roses flanked by burning tapers in silver candelabra centered the table where guests were served. Mrs. F.D. Duncan and Mrs. Robert Williams assisted at the punch bowl with Mrs. Ralph Brimley in charge of floral appointments in the dining room. Green candles in silver further carried out the late summer and autumn motif, and strawberries glaze and pale pink petit fours on silver trays continued to scheme in refreshments.

Throughout the rooms of the lower floor were flower arrangements placed by the chairman of the floral committee, Mrs. Tom Halgwood. An arrangement of magnolia leaves, designed by Mrs. Douglas Jones, was placed on the grand piano. Mrs. Wellington B. Gray was chairman of the hostess committee for the event.

Dilettante Book Club Met Monday

The first full meeting of the Dilettante Book Club was held Monday night at the home of Mrs. Henry Ferrell.

Mrs. Barbara Brown, new program chairman, gave a preview of the programs for the year.

Mrs. Christine Gant served as auctioneer for the sale of club books.

Mrs. Ferrell, new president, conducted a business meeting. Mrs. Mary Cullop was a guest for the meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

change the subject." But it sometimes is necessary in order to let the other party know that you have nothing more to say about a particular subject, and do not care to discuss it further.

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, when I was 42 and Max (not his name) was 53, we both married for a second time. I had been a divorcee for 15 years and he had been recently shed by a wife driven him to outside company-ship; her uncontested charge was adultery. He wooed me fervently, saying I was everything he had ever wanted in a wife. Our six years were blissful in all ways, and I thought myself the luckiest woman alive. We are both professional people. I work from 9 to 5. He from one in the afternoon until nine of night.

A month ago Max was rushed to the hospital for emergency surgery. When I went into his drawers for things to take to the hospital, I found diaries he had kept the entire six years of our marriage. They were shockingly explicit.

After I had left for work, he had entertained women, which he rated according to the degree of thrill each gave him. A girl named Genevieve rated two stars. Mary got four stars every time. (I, whose matings with him he always pronounced "exquisite," rated only one star!) Whether the sex was also "plain" or "fancy" was outlined in detail.

I went to visit his ex-wife and learned even more. He is 64 years old, not 58. She said that his demands were insatiable, altho she had not denied him any more than I had. "Other women" were the only thing they ever fought about. And he had many.

Abby, when you advise women whose husbands are unfaithful, you imply that the wife is lacking something. I just wanted you to know that there are men like my husband, for whom no one woman is enough. My whole world has crashed around my ears.

HEARTBROKEN IN PHILADELPHIA

That there are men like your husband is not news to me. There are also WOMEN of whom no one MAN is enough. These unfortunate people should not enter into marriage with "normal" people, vowing to forsake all others. They should marry each other.

DEAR ABBY: What do you

FREEZE WINTER SQUASH

"All pumpkins are squash, but all squash are not pumpkins." is a way to remember the squash family.

Another way to remember this good, colorful and vitamin A rich vegetable is to eat it often. Winter squashes are harvested in late summer and fall. Their shells or skins harden when they mature. In old days, these squashes were stored in a dry place for winter use. Now, it's the thing to do to cook and freeze them so that when reheated, they are table-ready.

Scrub squash well (sometimes you need to use a pot scrubber on a rough-skinned pumpkin). Peel either before or after cooking. If you peel before cooking, cut the vegetable into slices or fairly small pieces and peel by the pieces — this makes the job easier.

All squash lend themselves to several different cooking methods — baking, boiling or steaming. Acorn squash is usually served in halves so it is usually baked, though the halves may be steamed in a pressure cooker, or otherwise, until almost done and finished in the oven.

Any of the cooked winter squashes freeze well. These, for the most part, are old vegetables and some of the old-fashioned preparation methods lend themselves to modern freezing. Take pumpkin: Cook one gallon pumpkin to a thick paste. Add 8 cups sugar, juice and pulp of 6 oranges with the grated peel of 2 oranges and juice of 3 lemons. Cook back to the original thick paste consistency. Cool package and freeze.

Or package and freeze the plain sweetened pumpkin and add the fruit juices and peel when you thaw it. Cook back to the consistency you want. This makes beautiful, delicious sandwich fillings.

Pack chilled, cooked squash in any good frozen food container with a tight fitting lid or in a polyethylene bag. If the squash is for a "special dieter" (squash is easily digested and is used in some special diets), it is well to pack the cooked seasoned squash in boilable bags to be heated in the bag.

Leave a small amount of space between the squash and the top of the container to allow the squash to expand, he less moist the squash is the less it will expand.

If you want to serve frozen acorn squash in halves as you do fresh squash, bake these almost done, chill and wrap in aluminum foil. You can stack these or fill the cavities with cooked sausage (or what ever you like), put the halves together and wrap in foil. It is well to put two pieces of waxed paper between the two halves.

SST Work Will Add To Knowledge

Although President Nixon's decision to move forward with the controversial supersonic transport is certain to draw sharp criticism from many sources, it is our judgment that the President has made a wise decision.

The huge, high-speed transport has been a controversial item since it was merely an idea of engineers. It has been the subject of official inquiry and the object of vigorous attacks. In the final analysis, its cost to the American taxpayers will probably be measured in terms of billions rather than millions of dollars.

All of these factors would appear to justify a presidential decision to halt the project where it is without further investment of public funds into an experimental aircraft whose ultimate value many people question.

On the other hand, the President put it concisely and clearly when he asserted the nation must move forward with the plane "to maintain its leadership" in the world aircraft industry. Aviation will continue to develop beyond its present limits whether or not the United States continues to participate in that development. This nation's leadership in this important field will depend upon its willingness to put the necessary time, talent and money into it.

Time may prove critics of this new super-sonic plane correct. It may be too noisy, too expensive and impractical. But from its development will come vast knowledge that will advance aviation another important step. It may be the step that is needed to enable the United States and indeed the world, to meet its transportation needs of future years.

Great Service To N.C. Demos

By ROBERT L. THOMPSON (Substituting for William A. Shires)

RALEIGH—Whether or not State Democratic Chairman James V. (Jimmy) Johnson of Charlotte resigns his party post in the near future, as is generally expected—

And whether or not Johnson, a bottler and (or) canner of soft drinks was justified in remaining Democratic chairman during the last of the 1969 session of the legislature while he openly opposed the compromise combination of cigarette and soft drink tax to which Gov. Bob Scott had agreed—

And, in fact, whether or not he did a good job as the Democrats' titular chief during the 1968 campaign when the Republicans carried the State for President, won a fourth Congressional seat and added to their strength in the General Assembly—

Chairman Johnson is doing his party a great service in spreading the warning that his party is in bad shape in North Carolina today; and that things probably will get worse before they get better, what with the new cigarette taxes becoming effective on October 1, and a lot of local sales tax and bond issue elections probably being beaten some five weeks later.

Facts—Until Chairman Johnson started looking at the facts which are today right in front of his party's face and, also, talking about them openly; and until Governor Scott promised to name a committee to study the party's woes and make recommendations for some drastic changes; it seemed to an outsider the strategy of both the party and the administration was to shut their eyes and hope that the big, bad boogymen would go away.

(We wonder whether Johnson first stirred up Scott of the governor needed the chairman.) Either way it took them long enough. Though it's the "off-year" variety the fact remains that the Democratic party will be embroiled in another general election in just a little over 13 months. That's not much time, considering what needs to be done from the Democratic point of view.

Habit—It's become the habit of many, oldtime Democratic stalwarts to dismiss the 1968 in North Carolina because of the local unpopularity of the Democratic candidate for President—Hubert Humphrey. And of course that hurt all Democratic candidates in varying degrees. But it should be remembered that Humphrey didn't run second in this State. He ran third, with Wallace second. But that is not the main point the Democrats should remember. The outstanding feature of the election results was that if it had not been for the Negro vote—as most conservatively estimated—Republican Jim Gardner rather than Bob Scott would be governor today, though Gardner and his cohorts conducted a most inept campaign. He jumped around like a chicken on a hot tin roof—from being for a cigarette tax to being against it; from being for Nixon for the GOP nomination to being for Reagan; and from talking one way in the West to another in the Piedmont to still another the East. How he came so close to Scott, who conducted a careful and cautious campaign, is difficult to ascertain. But he did. However, while the Republicans did lose the seat in Congress which Gardner had held, they gained two others and enough new members of both the State Senate and the State House of Representatives to give them real power when the decisions were even reasonably close.

Solution? State Democratic Chairman Johnson was quite correct when he said "the State can no longer be taken for granted. We are about as dead center of a crossroads as a political party was we can be." So much for the problem. As to its solution, he was less definite. For which he cannot be blamed. He opposed "shutting out" from the party the "voices of dissent" and getting rid of the "people, practices and policies that are stifling the party's growth." Nice words but what do they mean? Somehow, we take it, he hopes to retain the Negro vote and the Eastern North Carolina rural or small town white vote—the vote that save the party last year but how much longer can that vote be

Defense Cutbacks Can Serve A Good Purpose

While we don't advocate seriously weakening the nation's defenses in this heavily armed world, the recently ordered cut backs in military spending should serve a good purpose.

This is true because the military planners will have to assign priorities to spending. If they do their jobs properly the least needed expenditures will be eliminated first. In anything so vast as the nation's military spending program, the least needed expenditures are probably not needed at all.

We doubt if the cut in military spending announced by the Pentagon Monday is going to affect very much the fighting capability of the services. However, coupled with previous cuts, the savings is supposed to amount to $1.25 billion annually and this will go a long way in slowing the inflation that has gripped this country.

Mitchellism In 'Inner Sanctum'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The long arm of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, strong man of President Nixon's Cabinet, reached into an inner sanctum of the U. S. Senate last week to block a liberal Republican—Sen. Charles Goodell of New York—from being named to the Judiciary Committee.

Working secretly behind the scenes, Mitchell persuaded Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan to assert his seniority over Goodell and claim the Judiciary Committee seat himself. This saved the Nixon administration the embarrassment of a Republican vote on the Haynsworth, the conservative South Carolinian named to the Supreme Court by President Nixon.

This intrusion by the steely Attorney General into the Senate's most intimate internal affairs—without recent precedent—shows again the pervasiveness of his influence in Mr. Nixon's Washington. It is of a piece with his secret effort this summer persuading House Republican leaders not to oppose a Southern-sponsored anti-school integration amendment. The common denominator of these interventions is Mitchellism, a political grand strategy to combine the 1968 Nixon and Wallace votes. A Republican Senator on the Judiciary Committee publicly opposing Haynsworth would scarcely conform to Mitchellism.

The chain of events that brought the Attorney General into Senate politics began with the death of Everett McKinley Dirksen. A week later, on the afternoon of Sept. 15, the Senate Republican Committee on Committees met to fill Dirksen's seats on two prestigious committees, Finance and Judiciary. That's normally a routine task with the choices strictly determined by seniority. The Committee on Committees discovered that the highest seniority bidders for the vacancies were Griffin for Finance and Sen. Edward Gurney of Florida for Judiciary. Gurney, the most conservative of the new Republicans elected in 1968, would be a solid Haynsworth vote.

But just as the Committee on Committees was about to approve Griffin and Gurney, one of its members—Sen. Jacob Javits of New York—suggested that his junior colleague, Goodell, might like the Judiciary seat. Appointed to the Robert F. Kennedy seat in the autumn of 1968, Goodell had a few month's seniority on Gurney. After a telephone call, Javits confirmed that Goodell would indeed like to serve on Judiciary.

That brought Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina close to apoplexy. Goodell, who has moved abruptly to the left since entering the Senate, looked like an anti-Haynsworth vote to him. Moreover, Goodell's role on the Judiciary Committee as a civil rights activist would conflict head-on with Thurmond's role as prophet of Republicanism Down South.

Stalling for time, Thurmond proposed that Sen. Paul Fannin of Arizona, a conservative with seniority over Goodell, might like the Judiciary seat. Reminded that Fannin is not a lawyer and that the Judiciary Committee is traditionally restricted to lawyers, Thurmond was unmoved. He placed a telephone call to Fannin.

Fannin's return call moments later was taken by Sen. Wallace Bennett of Utah, who listened intently and reported that Fannin had no interest in the Judiciary Committee. But Thurmond refused to accept that, protesting that he personally wanted to talk to Fannin. A second call was placed to Fannin; again Fannin

Coach Plays The Game

WASHINGTON — "Coach Nixon, now that the professional football season has started, could you give me some idea of how your team looks?"

"I'd like to make one thing perfectly clear. I believe I've got a good team, a hard-working team and a team that could win another championship in 1972."

"You've got some tough opposition. How do you think you'll do against the Inflation Rockets?"

"No problem. It's just a question of everyone holding the line. If we tackle hard we can lick them."

"What will your overall strategy be when you take on Inflation?"

"I don't believe it's the coach's job to get into things like strategy. Obviously, I don't want inflation to run away with the game, but I don't think I should call the signals from the bench. I prefer to give David Kennedy the ball and let him run with it."

"What about your game with the Segregation Boosters?"

Sometimes a curious twist occurs in which the insecure president participates in his own demise. In his effort to please he sometimes usurps authority—even if he can't effectively use that authority.

Having taken on more than he can handle, he begins delegating, and eventually he delegates a job to what Jennings calls the president's "intimate enemy," a man having no love for the president and perhaps even envious of him.

The intimate enemy does just enough to escape scrutiny, but not enough to be effective. He is a presidential saboteur, but he has power. He has support from other executives. And power, which is won, defeats authority, which is assigned.

Realizing that things aren't going well, the president loses his cool and orders the intimate enemy: "Do things as I say or get out." The powerful intimate enemy refuses. The matter goes to the chairman.

Other Editors Say Anti-Industry In State?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Is it true that there are some businessmen in North Carolina who are actively disfavoring in North Carolina?

Strangely enough, that's what a report says. Stranger still if it turns out to be true. Director of Conservation and Development Roy Sowers has revealed the formation of a special committee to investigate reports of such activities.

Sowers acknowledged he is aware of several incidents in which businessmen tried to locate in their towns. The reason? New industries sometimes pay higher wages than local businessmen and some of these fear they will have to increase wages or lose employees.

are in love with the status quo—it suits them just fine.

Sowers noted that the unfortunate fact is that those areas that fight efforts to improve the economy are more often than not those areas where wages are the lowest and economic development the weakest. The attitude that prefers to keep competition out borders on exploitation of the people and should not be tolerated.

Usually, when complaints are made of a given nature, the first (and often the only) step is to form a study group. That's about as far as action goes in too many cases. But Sowers promises a different attitude on this matter. "I envision a relatively brief look at the situation," he said, "and then some action."

Strength For Today

Mixed-Up World

It is amazing how indifferent people sometimes become toward the welfare of their fellows. Napoleon tossed over his shoulder the loss of a quarter of a million men in his ill-fated Russian campaign. Two hundred and fifty thousand deaths? What was that?

But we find this same Napoleon saying at the end of his life "Behold destiny is now at hand for me. What an abyss between my great misery and the eternal reign of Christ. I am hated by millions throughout the world; but this Carpenter of Nazareth is proclaimed, loved and adored, and his kingdom is extending over all the earth."

Remember those pictures of that old Greek statue showing three men struggling in the grip of two sea serpents? That was Laocoon, a Greek priest, and his two sons being punished by Athena for having warned the Trojans against the wooden horse.

That may be how modern civilization will end, with everybody trapped in the coils of a computer.

With an estimated 240 million credit cards extant, computers are busy, busy. It may be computers never make mistakes, but some of the humans who feed data into them do err. Once they do, they can tangle a victim up like those fellows in the statue.

Firings 'Crude' Today

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP)—You see the statements in the newspapers from time to time: The corporation president suddenly announces his resignation "to pursue personal interests." Is it true? Maybe. But it could mean he was fired.

Outright firings are always nasty affairs, especially when they involve high executives and are attended by heated emotions, charges and countercharges and even law suits. Firings are considered crude today.

Elaborate plans therefore are made to hide the true facts from the kibitzers—that growing population of stockholders, financial analysts, mutual funds and big stockholders. But the techniques are apparent.

After having spent two decades psychoanalyzing the corporation, Dr. Eugene Jennings, a university professor and professional kibitzer—he gets paid handsome fees for advising corporations—has detailed some techniques for firing the president.

None of the techniques refers to any specific individual or firing, but you can bet that in many instances something of the sort was hidden in the background.

The first technique is mushrooming. The chairman gives the president lots of challenging jobs. This technique is especially useful if the executive is hungry, meaning very eager to please. A hungry executive is insecure.

Eventually the jobs accumulate until he is incapable of handling them all. He makes a serious error. No matter that he handled 98 per cent of the jobs well; he failed on 2 per cent, and that's enough to nail him.

Sometimes a curious twist occurs in which the insecure president participates in his own demise. In his effort to please he sometimes usurps authority—even if he can't effectively use that authority.

Ruth Buchbinder of New York reported that her name was assigned to two different accounts with the Literary Guild, and thereafter got two sets of announcements, two books and two bills. The Guild straightened it out in only 13 months.

Newsweek related that a Pittsburgh truck driver, dunned by a local appliance store for a bill already paid, sent a check for $00.00. The computer sent him a thank-you note. His bank is still puzzled by the $00.00 check.

N.C. Milk Commission Plans Hold Hearing On Extending Its Order

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission plans to hold a hearing Oct. 21 on whether its fair trade practice order regulating milk should be extended.

The commission announced this Tuesday when it voted to proceed with an investigation to determine whether dairy firms operating in North Carolina have violated its order on volume discounts and rebates.

The fair trade practice order will expire Nov. 2, unless renewed by the commission.

J. V. Whitaker, the commission's executive secretary, said the fair trade practice investigation already under way will not be limited to a few firms.

He said he was considering the "voluntary approach" to get officials from various companies to provide information concerning their compliance with fair trade practices.

Meanwhile, Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey dissolved a temporary order restraining the commission from requiring officials of several dairy companies to appear at a closed hearing on fair trade practices.

Earlier, Bailey upheld the commission's authority to investigate and to issue subpoenas but he required that certain subpoenas already issued be amended to narrow their scope.

In effect since May 11, permits dairy firms to grant rebates to volume purchasers who sell at retail. This runs from 2 per cent for small volume to 13.3 per cent for a volume of $5,200 or more.

Neil Bolton of Winston-Salem, the new chairman of the commission who was elected a few weeks ago, told the commission its purpose is to stabilize the milk industry in North Carolina, but said, "We can't ignore or resist change."

He said regulation of the industry in regard to fair trade practices should be "in the consumer interest."

The commission adopted minimum prices to be paid North Carolina producers for Class I or fluid milk processed in the state and sold elsewhere.

North Carolina producers will receive a minimum of $7.07½ a hundred for Class I milk shipped to South Carolina; $7.20 on shipments to Virginia through Aug. 31 and $7.36 since that date; and $7.23½ a hundred on shipments to a federal marketing order area in northern Virginia.

North Carolina's Tax Office Will Be Ready

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's new cigarette and soft drink taxes go into effect Oct. 1 and the state Department of Revenue is ready to begin collecting the revenue.

"This has been one of the most difficult things we've ever done," revenue commissioner I. L. Clayton said Tuesday.

"Preparations for the cigarette tax," added, "have been time-consuming but not difficult like the soft drink tax. With soft drinks, we had no guidelines to speak of. But we'll be ready."

A two-cent levy will go into effect on each package of cigarettes and one cent per bottle of soft drink. It is the state's first tax on a tobacco product.

The taxes, enacted by the 1969 General Assembly, are expected to produce $25 million per year — $15 million from soft drinks and $10 million from cigarettes.

Retail merchants were notified Tuesday to take inventory and, based on their stock as of Sept. 30, pay two cents on each pack of cigarettes on hand and one cent on every bottle of soft drink in stock.

From then on, cigarettes will carry a little red stamp, and the soft drink tax will be paid monthly by the bottlers.

Generally, soft drinks will not be marked with the tax. Only out-of-state bottlers sending merchandise into North Carolina will be required to stamp the crowns or lids.

Both the cigarette and soft drink distributors will be permitted a discount for collecting the tax. On the first 2,160,000 bottles sold by a bottler, the tax will not be $21,600 but half of that amount, $10,800.

The cigarette distributor will get a discount of $1.75 per case of cigarettes for handling the stamps or imprints.

held together. He meant retaining a large part of both the liberal-labor vote as well as the help moneyed men who have been financing the Democratic party in North Carolina even though money voted Republican nationally. That's no easy job, either. What he seemed to mean was should patch up and glue together the representatives of various conflicting schools of thought which have made up the Democratic party for better than two-thirds of a century; and tack to it the growing Negro vote which until recently was small in most sections or for sale in others —without losing too many of the conservatives whites

. . . Maybe Governor Scott's appointees to the committee can figure out the solution. But as Chairman Johnson made clear, it's going to be one whole of a job unless the Nixon administration falls on its face nationally. There may be many difficulties facing Johnson as a leader in the soft drink industry but it is very doubtful that they amount to much compared with the job facing the North Carolina Democratic Chairman of 1970.

the bond is money and the natural wellbeing of the citizenry. Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mas., took similar stands Monday in opposing extension of the Capitol to provide added space for restaurants, offices and toilets.

They also took aim at the SST, revived Monday by President Nixon who urged spending $662 million over five years to develop it.

nin said no. But it was now past 6 p. m., and Thurmond succeeded in adjourning the Committee on Committees until the following afternoon.

During the overnight recess, conservative Republican searched frantically for a lawyer-Republican with fairly conservative credentials and a willingness to serve on Judiciary. They finally settled on the widely-respected Griffin, whose 30 percent 1969 liberal voting record as measured by the ADA is far more respectable than Goodell's 30 percent. Besides, just that preceding weekend, Griffin had announced his reluctant support of Haynsworth.

Contrary to rumors now circulating in the Republican cloakroom, Thurmond did not talk to Griffin. The overture came from another conservative stalwart, Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska. But what really caused Griffin to switch his request from Finance to Judiciary was not Hruska but the secret overture from the Attorney General Altered by Thurmond, Mitchell quickly contacted Griffin and pressed him to claim the Judiciary seat.

create sound pollution with a vengeance. "Each SST would lay down a carpet of sonic booms 60 to 70 miles wide. Fleets of SST's criss-crossing the country would create unprecedented pandemonium."

Speaking of the Capitol, Kennedy said: "As a society we are so impatient, so confident of our technological skills, that we all too often pay scant heed to our priceless national heritage . . ."

"If the planned extension is carried out (workmen will brick up the last remaining original section of the United States Capitol, forever shrouding this priceless and unique national treasure," Kennedy said.

Earlier Capitol Architect George Stewart—seeking $2 million to proceed with plans for the west wall—raised the spectre of an earthquake toppling the Capitol dome. But a spokesman for the National Earthquake Information Center here said occurrence of a serious tremor in Washington is "not probable."

Both Kennedy and Proxmire assailed the cost of the proposed extension but zeroed in on an estimate that restoration might range in price from $10 million to $50 million.

Proxmire put it this way: "We've heard some pretty fantastic spreads on contracts for military weapons systems, but never one that is this wide open."

He and Kennedy urged a professional survey of the feasibility of restoring the Capitol rather than extending it.

Later, Proxmire again used the need to combat rampant inflation to argue against the SST.

"In the places where really substantial savings could be made, such as in the military budget and the SST, its go for broke," he said.

"Estimates of what the total might be for SST range all the way up to $2 billion," Proxmire said.

"No, it isn't. Spiro had no experience when he came on the team, and he's just learning the plays. I'm very pleased with his progress. And it's a great comfort for me to know he's suited up and sitting on the bench."

"Now, about the big game with the Hanoi Tigers. You said at the beginning of the season that you knew how to win this one. Some sports writers are beginning to doubt it."

"I didn't say I could win it. I said I'd be willing to settle for a tie. At this stage I'd even be willing to call the game off. But Hanoi wants to beat us. They play dirty and I have no choice but to use what I've got. We still have a better aerial game than they have, and their injuries are 10 to our one, yet they insist on breaking through our line."

"Some of the writers say that your two halfbacks, Thieu and Ky, are playing their own game, and refuse to be coached. Does this bother you?"

"I feel that Thieu and Ky are first-rate players. I inherited them from the former coach, and while there have been differences in the locker room, we still get along on the field. Besides, it's too late to drop them, even if I wanted to."

"Coach, one last thing. I notice you've done away with the cheer leaders."

"Yes. I've asked the crowds to lower their voices."

TV Makes The Phony Violence Look Better

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It may not be long before, some television viewers hunger for the old-fashioned phony violence of Wild West shoot-outs and the faked fights of private eyes. This year, TV violence and tragedy hits closer to home, with sickness, physical handicaps, plane crashes as the base of dramatic conflict.

The TV doctors are making their initial housecalls. "Marcus Welby, M.D." dropped by, via ABC, Tuesday night with a story about a pretty young school teacher dying of brain cancer.

Dr. Welby—Robert Young—is a kindly, wise general practitioner. He has a young, intense assistant—James Brolin—who makes house calls on a motorcycle. They discussed symptoms a bit in the first show but mostly the young doctor was getting myself emotionally involved with the feacher. The touchy question of whether to tell a patient he is dying was handled as if it were not a debatable point—the girl was told as she was coming out of the anesthetic of her operation.

The first program of another doctors' series, "Medical Center," will be broadcast by CBS tonight. It is the story of a determined doctor trying to persuade an ailing athlete to submit to the surgery he needs.

The CBS series premiere, seen in a preview, is hospital-oriented and Chad Everett, as the young surgeon, is as dedicated as Ben Casey. The story centers on the university's football star refusing medical attention because it might interfere with his rich future in pro ball.

Dr. Gannon suspects—more outlining of symptoms—a tumor but only manages to get his man on the operating table in the nick of time.

A pleasant surprise is the engaging performance by football star O.J. Simpson.

It will be interesting to see if, in weeks to come, the public finds these dramatic excursion into human misery gripping entertainment. Both shows were well produced and sympathetically acted.

Plane crashes promise to be handy dramatic devices. "The New People" started Monday night with one, and a crack-up was the foundation of the plot Tuesday of the first show in ABC's new "Movie of the Week" series. "Seven in Darkness" had a group of blind persons surviving the crash and most of the 90 minutes showed their stumbling, peril-filled trek to safety.

The program was contrived, often melodramatic and too long. It was probably not a very happy choice for a first show since it was often painful and tedious in spite of the work of an excellent cast including Milton Berle, Barry Nelson and Dina Merrill.

Recommended tonight: "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," premiere, ABC, 8-8:30 EDT, situation comedy with Bill Bixby as a young widower with a matchmaking son.

Several Negro students at Rose High School, convinced that an effort should be made to do something constructive to bring about better understanding among students and parents, have decided on a public program.

The planned program, based on the theme "A Challenge to Youth—Acceptance," is to be held 6:00 p.m. Sunday at the York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church in Greenville.

The students active in these plans are members of the Crusade Choir, a local Youth Interdenominational Gospel Ensemble which is now completing its first year of singing.

Miss Vonzella Smith, a senior at Rose, is president of The Crusade Choir and is the general coordinator for all the Crusaders joining in on the program.

When the students conceived the idea, they approached Johnny Wooten, a musician and music teacher on the staff of both Eppes Junior High and Rose High School. Wooten agreed to help and guide them in their plans and to assist them in lining up people to appear on the program. He is also the director of The Crusade Choir.

In outlining the purposes behind this pilot program, the students have enumerated what they hope eventually to achieve in Greenville:

—To open lines of communication between the black and white students and parents through educational and Christian ties.

—To present a challenge of acceptance of each other through faith in one's fellowman.

—To erase feelings of insecurity that exist among parents which have brought discomfort due to previous events.

—To encourage citizens of Greenville to attend and to accept the challenge.

As their counselor, Wooten emphasizes, "This program will not be plagued by grievances or incidents, but will strongly emphasize acceptance of each other through Christian faith."

Although students active in formulating the program are all attending Rose High School, Wooten says "The Crusaders are not affiliated with Rose High insofar as sponsorship of the program is concerned." He noted, however, that school officials and administrators approve any activity, by students which will help create an atmosphere of mutual acceptance.

Wooten feels the cooperation of churches and other community organizations is a critical element. "We are trying to reach the community through local churches and organizations, especially ministers. Ministers will need to share the responsibility of encouraging attendance through their congregations and ministerial activities."

In a further effort to encourage participation, Wooten, working with Miss Smith, has prepared letters to be sent to merchants, individuals, civic groups and other organizations in Greenville. "We are hoping for as much support as possible to get word to the public that this program is being held and its purpose," he remarked.

"To date—and other features may be added at the first moment—two musical groups and two speakers have been lined up. In addition to The Crusade Choir, music will also be furnished by the Wells Temple Radio Choir of Greensboro.

Bishop Wyoming Wells, state and national bishop of the Church of God in Christ, will be the principal guest speaker. Dr. Andrew Best, of the North Carolina Joint Council on Health and Citizenship, will also speak.

"We have great hopes for the success of this program," states Miss Smith, "and hope that a lot of people in Greenville will take time to join us so they will know what we are trying to do."

Predicts Women May Go To Mars

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Some of the crew members of a landing on Mars in the 1980's may be women, according to Julian Scheer, assistant administrator for public affairs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Speaking to the Joint Power Generation Conference in Charlotte Tuesday, Scheer predicted a manned landing on Mars in 1985, provided scientists can develop a reusable nuclear power system for the space craft.

Scheer said, "The Mars expedition will probably consist of two, six-man space craft."

Before the Mars expedition, NASA plans to launch several space stations, Scheer said, and by the late 1970's hopes to establish a long-term base on the moon.

He said, "Anyone without technical training could expect to visit these stations with relative ease," on shuttle flights. The shuttle flights would operate like conventional jets and be able to land on conventional airports, he NASA official said.

Earlier Tuesday Scheer told the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association in Pinehurst that the Apollo 11 space craft and samples of the moon rocks would travel to each state capital later this year, courtesy of the tracking industry.

Engineers from throughout the United States attended the power conference, the first one held in the Southeast.

In his speech to the Motor Carriers, Scheer said, "It's not a question of whether we'll explore the solar system, but when."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apparently North Carolina soon will have five new air routes, provided by Airlift International Inc., Delta Air Lines Inc., Piedmont Airlines Inc., and United Airlines Inc.

This initial decision, handed down Tuesday by Civil Aeronautics Board Examiner James S. Keith, becomes final in 30 days unless a petition for review is filed within 25 days or the board decides to review the order.

The new routes include an all-cargo service to the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport and to the Raleigh-Durham Airport by Airlift International Inc. on its Route 120 between New York-Newark and Miami, and a new route segment between New York-Newark and Charlotte on Delta Airlines Inc. Route 24.

NCNB Merger To Be Voted On

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Stockholders of the Marion Bank & Trust Co. will vote Oct. 21 on a proposal to merge with the North Carolina National Bank.

Addison H. Reese, chairman of the board of NCNB, and W. R. Chambers, president of the Marion bank, said the merger has already been approved by the boards of directors of the two banks.

Revival Series Begins Monday

AYDEN — A revival series will begin at Timothy Christian Church, Rt. 2, at Gardenersville, on Monday at 7:45 p.m.

The Rev. William E. Roberts, a former minister at Timothy Church, will be the evangelist.

Services will continue through Oct. 4. Homecoming day services will be observed on Sunday, Oct. 5, with lunch to be served on the grounds.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Gun Positions And Camps Inside DMZ Are Pounded

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. cruiser Boston and American B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese gun positions and base camps inside and just to the south of the demilitarized zone Tuesday night and today, the U.S. Command announced.

U.S. headquarters also reported 8,437 "indications of enemy presence or activity" inside the buffer zone since the bombing of North Vietnam ended 11 months ago.

The Boston turned her five-inch guns on North Vietnamese mortar positions in the southern half of the DMZ Tuesday night after enemy mortarmen there slammed 40 rounds into South Vietnamese positions just south of the zone.

The U.S. Command said there were no South Vietnamese casualties.

The cruiser silenced the enemy mortars, but North Vietnamese losses were not known, U.S. spokesmen said.

Fifteen B52s bombed base camps, bunkers, supply and staging areas six miles northeast of the U.S. Marine outpost called the Rockpile, the command said.

In the past four days, up to 6 of the big bombers have attacked enemy buildup areas just below the DMZ, a sector that is being vacated by the 3rd Marine Division and turned over to the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division.

The stepup in B52 raids indicates that the U.S. Command will use the big bombers in an attempt to fill the gap that the departure of the Marines is expected to leave. The 3rd Division Marines are going to Okinawa and the United States as part of the 35,000-man withdrawal ordered by President Nixon for the next three months.

U.S. officials claim that North Vietnam agreed to keep the DMZ free of military activity in return for the bombing halt. Hanoi has denied this, saying the bombing cessation was unconditional.

Of the 8,437 "enemy indications," the U.S. Command said only 207 were "significant incidents of enemy-initiated action."

The other incidents, the Command said, were minor, such as trail activity, moving lights at night, and new bunkers.

U.S. forces in response to the indications of enemy presence or activity, have attacked positions inside the zone 4,325 times since last Nov. 1. U.S. artillery, fighter-bombers and 7th Fleet warships all have participated in the attacks.

Elsewhere U.S. Navy river boats ambushed enemy soldiers attempting to cross the Saigon River 35 miles northwest of Saigon for the third time in the past two nights. Headquarters said 14 Viet Cong were killed in the latest ambush, raising the total enemy killed in the three attacks to 56. There have been no U.S. casualties.

In the same general area, 10 enemy were killed in a ground probe early today against the night bivouac of an allied armored column. Three Americans and some South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded.

The U.S. Command said there were 19 enemy rocket and mortar attacks between 8 a.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. today. Two Americans were killed and 22 wounded.

Doubt Judge Will Meet Pickets

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—A spokesman for U. S. District Judge Algernon Butler says it is "extremely doubtful" the judge will meet with white parents who picketed the federal building where Butler was holding court Tuesday.

The parents, whose children attend two predominantly Negro schools in New Hanover County, carried signs asking the judge to meet with them.

It was under Butler's orders that the New Hanover County Board of Education drew up its current desegregation plan.

Discuss Possible Exchange Of Land

RALEIGH (AP) — Discussions on a possible land exchange have been reopened by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development and the Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority.

The plan would enable the airport to expand its facilities.

The talks resumed Tuesday and centered around a proposal calling for the C&D Department to exchange 231 acres of its land in William B. Umstead State Park for 378 acres of adjacent land held by the airport.

A spokesman for the C&D department said no decision has been reached.

Still Time To Prepare For Plaza Art Show

There's still time enough left for Greenville and area artists to prepare entries for the Pitt Plaza Autumn Sidewalk Art Show to be held on Friday and Saturday, September 26 and 27.

Robert Pittman, who with Slim Short (Robert Allen) is co-chairman for the affair, today announces that a juror has been selected for the show.

Russell Arnold, chairman of the Art Department at East Carolina University, has accepted the invitation to judge the show. Arnold, a native of Plymouth, has had considerable experience as a painter and instructor.

Arnold has exhibited at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D.C., the Hunter Gallery in Chattanooga, at the Southeastern Annual Show in Atlanta, the Poindexter Gallery in New York, and in "Drawings USA 1963." His work is in collections at Atlantic Christian College, Louisburg College, the Wilson public schools, the First Union Bank of Wilson, and in a number of private collections.

In 1957 his work "Painting No. 7" won the purchase award in the North Carolina Artists' Annual Show in Raleigh. Currently, he edits and provides illustrations for AC's magazine.

Beginning about 5:00 p.m. today, Pittman will start moving the portable frames from the Art Center to Pitt Plaza. These are the frames donated by various merchants for the spring sidewalk show.

"I can use some able-bodied volunteers to help in this," Pittman noted.

On Friday morning, volunteers, particularly ladies, can be useful in assisting at Pitt Plaza by accepting entries and helping artists with entry forms.

Prizes and ribbons, ranging from $100 for best in show, through $25 for best in each media to ribbons for runner ups, will be awarded those works selected by Arnold as the best in each particular category.

Entry fee is 25 cents per entry, with each artist allowed up to eight entries. Complete information and entry blanks are available from Mrs. Edith Walker, director, at the Art Center, 802 S. Evans Street.

In proclaiming the week of Sept. 21-27 as Highway Week in North Carolina, Governor Robert Scott pointed out that the state "is engaged in an extensive program to upgrade its highway system to meet the future needs of its people and of a growing economy, a program to assure safer, more convenient travel for all motorists . . ."

Part of that program of highway construction and improvements is currently being undertaken in the Greenville area. These projects which cost a total of $11,800,000 are being carried out in the Second Division of the State Highway Commission.

Responsibilities for maintenance and construction supervision in this eight-county district is in the hands of Division Engineer C. W. Snell Jr. and his staff.

One phase of the Greenville construction slated for completion and opening to traffic on or about Oct. 3, is along Greene Street from the Tar River Bridge north 1.5 miles to the intersection of the Belvoir Road. The project is projected to cost approximately $242,000.

Another construction project underway is the NC 11 Winterville and Ayden Bypass, dual lane construction, which is estimated to cost $3,300,000 and be completed by Dec. 1, 1970.

The NC 11 Grifton Bypass, dual lane construction, extending from a point just south of Grifton north to a point just south of Ayden, is scheduled to be completed early in 1970. This project is 6.8 miles long and is established to cost $2,900,000.

The surfacing and resurfacing of several sections of primary and secondary roads throughout the area are now underway and will be completed by December of this year.

Serving with Snell as Second

Division personnel is Assistant Division Engineer Roy D. Franks. C. L. Haislip of Washington, J. H. Burruss of Kinston and C. Y. Griffin of New Bern are District Maintenance Engineers.

The activities of maintenance engineers encompass the eight county territory of Pitt, Beaufort, Greene, Lenoir, Jones, Craven, Pamlico and Carteret. G. A. Taylor Jr. of Greenville, E. B. Latham of New Bern, R. A. Merritt of Kinston and R. A. Pollock of New Bern are the resident engineers and supervise the contract construction projects over the Division.

Okay Planting Marijuana Patch

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — The Treasury Department has authorized Purdue University to plant a patch of marijuana in order to try out its photo-computer technique for studying crops from the air.

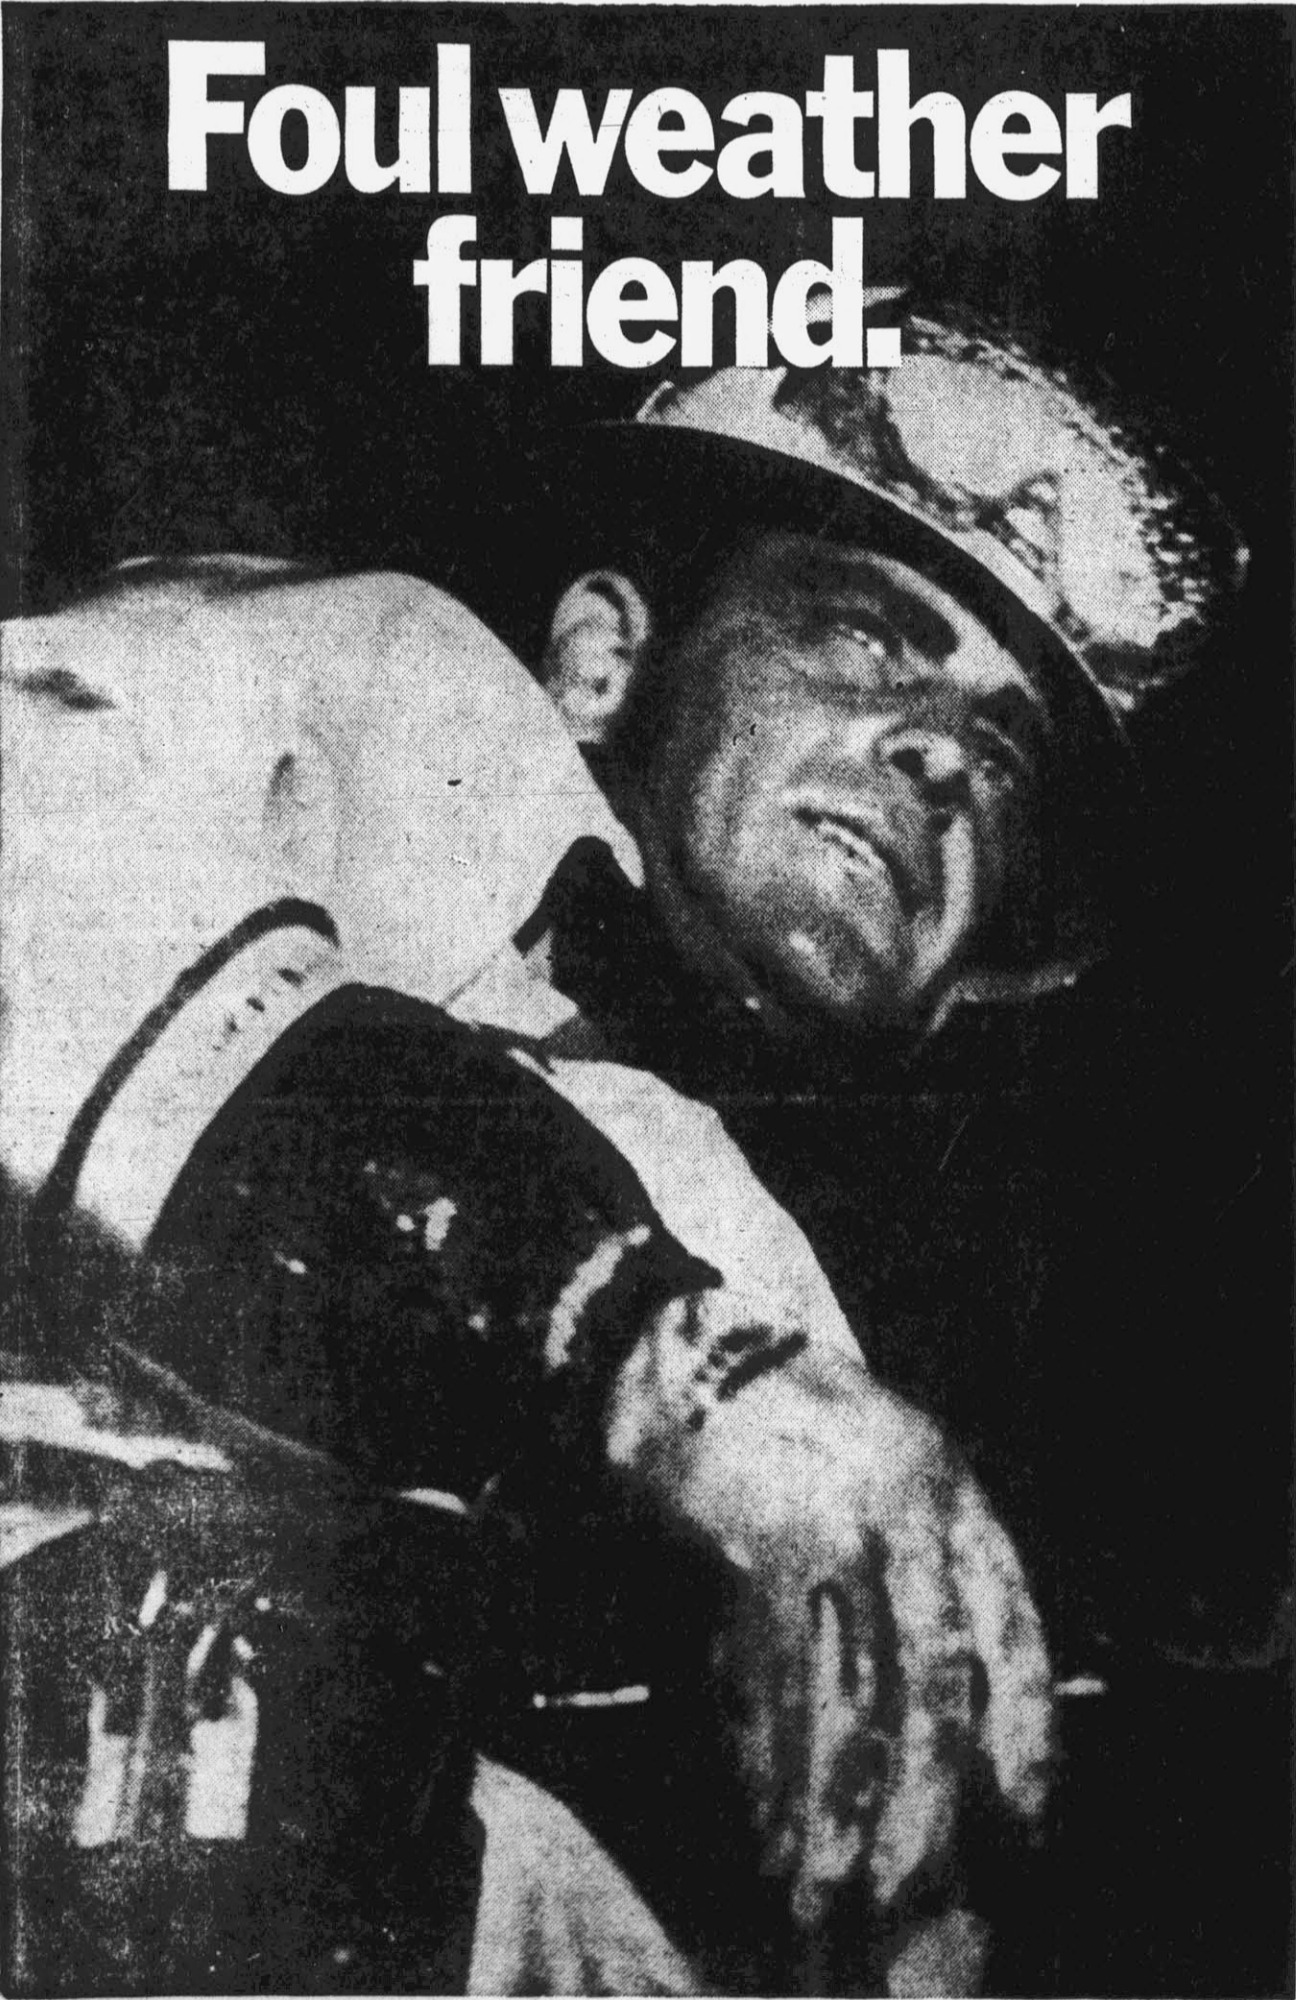

Purdue's laboratory for agriculture remote sensing is able to identify many crops from the air through distinctive colors, but researchers say so far they have not found a method of detecting marijuana from other weeds while on high.

Foul weather friend.

Building, inspecting and maintaining power lines is a man-sized task even on the fairest day.

But when the weather gets rough, the Vepco lineman's task gets rougher. And we've had some pretty weird weather lately: violent storms, devastating floods, blustering winds, lightning-struck trees that downed lines and disrupted service.

And when the weather goes on the rampage, the lineman goes on the job. Anytime. Day or night. He climbs poles, repairs torn lines, works out in the elements until the lights go on again.

It's exhausting work. Hard. Hazardous. But it's vital work and the lineman does it with pride and satisfaction. That's his job: helping Vepco help people.

Russians Display Interest In U.S.

By PHILLIP REED
ALMA ATA, U.S.S.R. (UPI)—Anna is a pretty 23-year-old girl who likes the Beatles and the Rolling Stones and speculates on the presidential chances of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Not surprising? Anna lives in Alma Ata, an Asian city deep within the Soviet Union and less than 150 miles from the Red Chinese border.

Anna is also a dedicated Communist, and her home town, 2,000 miles southeast of Moscow and capital of Russia's Kazakhstan Republic, is one of the most modern of the U.S.S.R.'s provincial cities.

Sitting with Anna at an outdoor restaurant recently was a small group of American tourists from Minneapolis, themselves a crowd-puller in Alma Ata, where American sightseers are a rarity.

Many of the young people in Alma Ata speak English, because students must spend seven years studying English, French or German, as well as Russian and their native Kazakh tongue.

Most choose English, which even here is regarded as the "international language."

Anna, with her modestly short skirt—not as "mini" as in London or New York, but certainly as brief as those worn in Moscow—is typical of her generation in both her fascination with the United States and things Western, and her loyalty to the Russian Communist party and its principles.

Curious About U.S.A.
She asks the group from Minneapolis what Americans think of President Nixon and U.S. involvement in Vietnam, and Sen. Kennedy's political future.

"It was a tragic accident," she said of the recent events on Martha's Vineyard. "That is all. It could happen to anybody. I still think he is one of your best qualified, how do you say, political figures."

She defends the year-old Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia but the subject clearly makes her uneasy. "Let's talk about something else," she suggests.

Anna works in a carpet factory caring for the children of working mothers. After work she studies Russian history at the University of Kazakhstan. She also is a busy member of the komsomol, the National Soviet Youth League that is a stepping stone to full-fledged Communist party membership. She plans to join the party next year, and says:

"I think the Communist party is the best for our country, not because it is the only party, but because it is the best for our people and it is what the people want."

The young girl's modernity is a reflection of the modernness of her city. Her interest in foreigners is matched by the city's desire to attract foreign tourists.

segregation, although Kazakhs are encouraged not to intermarry in an attempt to preserve their distinct appearance. "But it is a losing battle," a Soviet foreign tourist guide, herself a Kazakh, admitted.

The standard of living is now the highest of any of Russia's Asian cities, though local officials say residents are not as well off as Moscovites.

Average Russian City
The ancient "silk road" cuts through the middle of the city on its way across Asia, connecting Europe and China, now bustling with taxis, crowded trolleys and buses. As in most Russian cities, family cars are rare. Along tree-lined streets, modern stores (by Russian standards) with big picture windows display the latest Soviet fashions.

Part of the reason for Alma Ata's new prosperity is an ever growing number of tourists, both Russian and foreign, drawn here by the grandeur of the Tien Shan mountains, whose jagged snowcapped peaks rise more than 18,000 feet into the clouds from the edge of the city.

Tourist guides call them the "second Alps." A small ski village is being built and a network of ski lifts planned. One already in operation takes skiers 9,000 feet into the mountains, higher than most slopes in Europe or the United States.

Another tourist attraction is provided by the apple orchards which surround the city and give it its name, which means Zlful of apples."

Among the foreigners who have visited Alma Ata recently were members of the University of Minnesota band who toured the Soviet Union last spring. Students crowded into the city concert hall to listen.

"That was a great moment in our lives," Anna said. "I think that is the best way for men to get along—by traveling to each others' countries and making friends."

Talked Self Out Of A Wedding

ESTCOURT, South Africa (AP) — Telephone operator Bennie Echutter, 19, talked him self out of a wedding when he put a long-distance call through to his out-of-town brother to relieve the boredom of office routine. He lost track of the time as he carried on the conversation in between connecting other telephone calls. At the end of the month, he discovered the one call cost him Rands 45 ($63). His next telephone call was to his fiancée to explain that he couldn't afford to get married that month. The wedding was postponed.

PRISON AMENITIES

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)—Police Chief Francisco Alberto Lopez has ordered that families visiting prisoners on cold days be served coffee or mate, a green tea popular in Argentina, Paraguay and Uruguay. It is drunk through a metal tube like a straw.

Natural gas was discovered in Texas in the 1860s. There is no sign of racial

THE HERALD'S VISIT

Armorial bearings of the town of St. George, Bermuda.

It had never happened before and never would again.

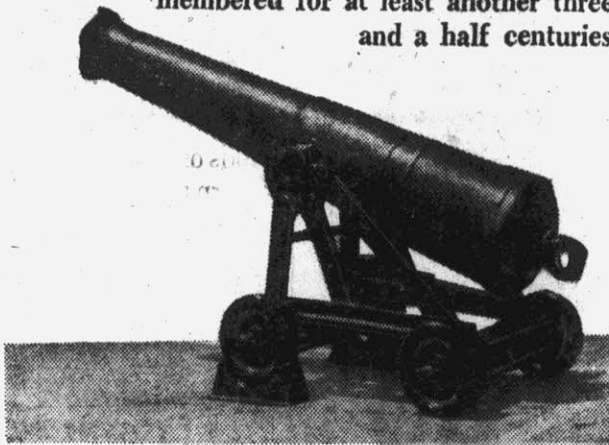

Heraldic history has been made in the town of St. George, Bermuda. St. George is the oldest British town in the western hemisphere and has been capital of Bermuda for over three and a half centuries, but it had never had a coat of arms.

Now for the first time a herald of England's College of Arms left the United Kingdom to deliver Letters Patent—the exquisite, hand-scrolled document drawn up by the College of Arms—granting armorial bearings to the mayor and corporation of St. George.

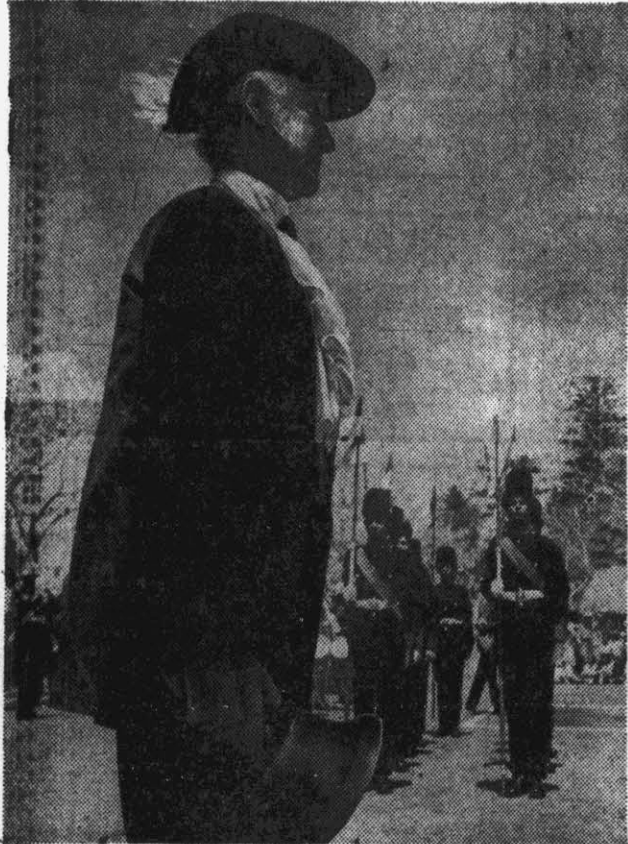

In full regalia, as never before outside the British Isles, Dr. Conrad Swan, Her Majesty's York Herald of Arms-in-Ordinary, came to Bermuda to take part in the ceremony specially organized for the occasion. While in Bermuda, the York Herald also presented armorial bearings to the Bank of Bermuda, on the occasion of the dedication of its new building in Hamilton—the highest building in Bermuda.

St. George put on a jolly good show for this memorable day in its history. In return for the herald's unique visit, it accorded him a unique gesture of appreciation: he was made an honorary freeman of the town. This was the highest honor which could have been given to him and there is no known record of it ever having been given before.

The town turned out in full strength and high spirits for the colorful ceremonies, from the governor in his plumed finery down to the smallest schoolchild free of classes for the day. Uniforms, pomp, bands and parades all contributed to the glory. It was a proud day, and will surely be remembered for at least another three and a half centuries.

One Day In The Life Of Two Separate Worlds

Editor's Note: This is the story of one day in the life of two separate worlds, the world of the peace talks in Paris and the war in Vietnam. What follows are the hour-to-hour events that happened in the lives of people inhabiting these two separate worlds, seven hours apart.

By PETER ARNETT and HUGH MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writers
PARIS 9 a.m.

The day is drizzly, chilled by the first touch of early autumn. In the charming suburb of Verrière le Buison, La Van Sau, a member of the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government as it is now called, abandons his morning yoga exercises, gulps a cup of weak tea in a conference room decorated with pictures of American youths burning their draft cards, and climbs into a four-door black Peugeot with five other delegates. His boss, Dinh Ba Thi, the deputy chief of the delegation, rides alone in the back seat of a larger black Citroën.

An identical convoy rolls out from behind the tall blue fence at the compound of the North Vietnamese delegation in the less charming suburb of Choisy le Roi. In the lead Citroën, flying Hanoi's red flag with a gold star, sits Col. Ha Van Lau, acting chief of the delegation. Although Choisy le Roi votes Communist in most general elections, the people in the streets and at the outdoor cafes neither mile nor wave as the motorcade sweeps by with a wail of sirens.

The day is also beginning for the Allied side. Wearing a light gray business suit and carrying a black metal attache case, Pham Dang Lam, chief delegate for South Vietnam, kisses his five children goodby as they head off to the American School and walks briskly from his apartment in the Avenue de Villiers. His waiting Citroën flies the flag of the Republic of Vietnam, yellow with three red stripes.

In the lobby of the Hotel Crillon, at the Place de la Concorde, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, tall and debonair, strides down the main staircase; he never takes the elevator. This Thursday, he is earlier than usual, and his plainclothesman hasn't arrived. Alone, Lodge crosses the Rue Boissy d'Anglas into the garden of the U.S. Embassy, nods at the Marine guard on duty, and almost at a lunge disappears into the annex building for a last minute staff conference.

In Vietnam, it is now 4 p.m. A soft rain drips through the gnarled rubber trees as Pfc. James A. Reed of Odessa, Mo., pads along a fresh trail, his eyes searching ahead into the deepening gloom. He is point man for a platoon from A Company, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Regiment of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade, which operates north-east of Saigon along the edges of War Zone D and in the rubber plantations of Long Khanh Province. Its mission is to prevent the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese from launching coordinated attacks, to develop pacification, and to help upgrade the 18th South Vietnamese Infantry Division.

Reed, 21, is a draftee. He has been in Vietnam three months. Suddenly, gliding around a bend in the trail ahead of him, is the first North Vietnamese he has ever seen, dead or alive. The young American drops to his knee and instinctively brings his 12-gauge shotgun to his shoulder. The Vietnamese swings up his AK47 rifle, but the American is quicker.

At 4:15 p.m., a Huey helicopter spins into Cam Tam hamlet to pick up Pfc. John Miller, a 19-year-old infantryman from Tiffin, Ohio, who has spent 188 days in the field and is being rewarded for good soldiering by being named the "old guard of the day."

The honor entitles him to change places with the battalion commander, Maj. Bernard Loeffke, of Malibu Beach, Calif. Pfc. Miller gets to sleep in his commander's comfortable bed back in base camp, drink his boss's beer, use his writing table and have breakfast in bed. The bronzed Loeffke will stay in the field.

In the tangled jungles of War Zone D, staccato bursts of fire shred the uneasy quiet. The point platoon for B Company, 4th Battalion, 12th Regiment of the 199th Brigade already has killed two North Vietnamese soldiers with a small group heading south. Pfc. Richard King of Pinellas Park, Fla., has lugged his cumbersome 90mm recoilless cannon to a well used path and is setting it up when bullets crack around him.

King, who is 22, falls on the ground before he can man his gun. An AK47 bullet is in his left thigh. He limps painfully to an opening in the jungle to wait for a helicopter.

Paris 10 a.m.
In the Avenue Kleber, near the Arc de Triomphe, workmen are digging up the street in front of the weathered old Hotel Majestic, now the Centre de Conférences Internationale and for the past 16 months scene of the Paris peace talks. The cops of the Gardiens de la Paix, resplendent with red fourragères at their left shoulders, have donned their white gloves and shooed the traffic into one lane. Nearly 50 police officers are on duty outside the hotel, but only a dozen spectators, American tourists mostly, and about as many reporters are on hand as the delegates drive up. With all four delegations tucked safely behind the yellow satin draperies of the ground-floor conference room, the press retires en masse to L'Etoile Venitienne, a cafe across the street. At outdoor tables under umbrellas advertising Dubonnet they commence the weekly vigil of waiting for the session to end.

In Vietnam, it is now 5 p.m. As the rain settles into a steady downpour, Lt. Col. Nguyen Cong Vinh, an impassive, thin-faced Vietnamese officer, sourly contemplates the water rising inside the old brick house that is his forward regimental command post. Vinh, once a sergeant in the French army, has seen war sweep across his land for three quarters of his 43 years. He and his fellow officers, watching the United States disengage its troops from Vietnam, are realizing that the full burden of the war might soon fall on them. Vinh has seen his casualties double in the past few months, while American casualties diminish.

Paris 10:35 a.m.
Ambassador Lam selects a microphone and begins to read his prepared statement in Vietnamese.

"In order to find a solution to the Vietnamese problem," he says, "the sine-qua-non condition is that all parties involved must be motivated by the same desire to end the war by way of negotiation instead of violence..."

A Vietnamese interpreter translates his remarks into French, and an American interpreter carries them into English. Across the 26-foot round table with its baize cover the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegations sit impassively.

Thirty-two delegates rim the table, eight to a delegation, like an enormous poker game. Behind them sit the "second team," lawyers, recorders, clerks. By agreement, only 60 people can be in the conference room at a time, 30 from each side.

In Vietnam, it is 5:30 p.m.
A Vietnamese man in a Panama hat and white shirt threads his way through the barbed wire and approaches Maj. Loeffke. The major listens to the man for a few moments and breaks into a wide grin. Loeffke, a former Special Forces officer who speaks French fluent, has recruited his own string of agents to seek out Viet Cong sympathizers among the people of Cam Tam who work the Long Que rubber plantation. This agent has informed him of the whereabouts of two Viet Cong agents.

"It's like knocking your head against a brick wall finding something to work on," says Loeffke. The rubber workers communicate with the Viet Cong in subtle ways: a stick in the ground wearing a Vietnamese conical hat meaning to stay away; the hat next to the stick meaning it is safe to approach.

Paris 10:45 a.m.
In the Avenue Kleber, a double-decked sightseeing bus goes by the seven-story whitish-gray building. The tourists are from Holland, and the guide tells them in Dutch that this is where the peace talks on Vietnam are being held.

"Perhaps today, the war will be over," he tells them playfully. They laugh and grind away with their movie cameras.

In Vietnam, at 6 p.m., a bedraggled Vietnamese girl self-consciously stands outside a hamlet militia post near Xuan Loc, the provincial capital. She is 17 years old. Her name is Nguyen Thi Nhon. She has been with the Viet Cong 13 months and she is surrendering.

"When we wash her, she will be good looking," comments a U.S. district adviser.

Thi Nhon says she was conscripted in August 1968 and worked in a labor force. Later she became a nurse. She surrendered, she said, because she heard a taped broadcast by one of her friends who had surrendered two weeks earlier.

No, she said, she had never heard of the peace talks in Paris.

Not far away, a "slapstick" road mine is detonated by a Vietnamese army truck. The 20-pound blast wrecks the truck and wounds two Vietnamese soldiers.

Paris 11:30 a.m.
Lam, after speaking 56 minutes, sits down. There is no comment, no discussion, no applause.
Ambassador Lodge speaks next, for 12 minutes. After two introductory paragraphs, his statement is a repeat of President Nixon's statement Sept. 18 on the withdrawal of 35,000 more American troops.
In Vietnam, it is 6:30 p.m.
Pfc. King lies on the operating table at the 93rd Evacuation Hospital at Long Binh. Dr. Hooshang Kodivar of Huntington, W. Va., probes King's thigh wound and removes the small AK47 bullet. King is wheeled away and another wounded soldier takes his place.
Taking advantage of the last flickering light of day, two sleek AV-8S THE U.S. Air Forces' 3rd Fighter WING BOM A tiny clearing in War Zone C. The 1st Air Cavalry Division is landing a company of infantry there before dark, and the jets are preparing the way.

Paris—11:43 a.m.
Lodge concludes, and a member of the South Vietnamese delegation proposes a 20-minute recess. The delegates troop out their separate doors to their separate working rooms, beyond the coffee bars, where lunch is waiting.

"The toilet," says Steve Ledogar, press spokesman for the American delegation, "is the only truly democratic room in the building. It is shared by all delegations."

In Vietnam, at 6:30 p.m., a wet, forbidding night is settling across the land.

Maj. Loeffke's ambush patrols are whispering in their final positions, "25, 25, 25, this is 26, over," says the hushed, hoarse radio voice as a platoon leader seeks to establish communication with his squad.

In Cam Tam village, the kids who were begging C-ration cigarettes from the American GIs scamper to their hatched homes. The babies stop crying.

Paris 12 noon
The Americans are always meaning to speak to the French Foreign Office about the sameness of the menu at the Hotel Majestic. Both sets of Vietnamese are always meaning to suggest that more Oriental dishes be added, but even in an area of agreement there is no initiative. Today, as always, there is a cold meat platter with ham and chicken, potato salad, french bread, beer, cola and tiny tarts garnished with a single strawberry.

In Vietnam, barely 15 minutes after dark, 10 rounds of mortar fire slap into the jungled bivouac of a 1st Air Cavalry unit 58 miles northwest of Saigon. Enemy troops slide up to the barbed wire. The night roars with claymore mines, tracers, rockets that continue for an hour. The North Vietnamese are driven away as helicopter gunships and artillery shred the jungle. Eight Americans are wounded. Enemy losses: unknown.

Paris 12:23 p.m.
Leading off for his side, Dinh Ba Thi scores President Nixon's troop withdrawal as a "perfidious maneuver," a "noisy clamor" and "arithmetical aerobatic feats which add to the general confusion." The United States prolongs the war, he charges, "to gain time to strengthen the puppet army and patch up the puppet administration..."

In Vietnam, it is 7:25 p.m.
A silver C141 Air Force Starlifter speeds along the wet tarmac of Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase and heads for San Francisco; its cargo, 10 aluminum caskets containing the bodies of American GIs. Such planes have flown home 15,642 of America's dead sons since the peace talks began May 13, 1968.

Paris 1:50 p.m.
The sun has come out over the gray mansard roof of the Hotel Majestic, but a cloud crosses the normally stolid features of Col. Lau. He looks sadly up at the ceiling and concludes his remarks with a quote from his late leader Ho Chi Minh: "The Vietnamese people firmly demand the withdrawal of all U.S. and satellite troops..."

Meet The Pirates

Steve Davis, left, and Gerald Wrenn are two members of this year's East Carolina University football team. Davis, a 6-2, 223-pound junior from Raleigh, is a defensive guard. He was slated for a starting job this year at middle guard. Wrenn, a 6-0, 178-pound junior from Danville, Va., is a defensive halfback. He is currently sidelined with an injury.

Pirates Work On Pass Defense As Nation's Top Hurler Plans A Visit

East Carolina University's defense worked on two prime units of its game yesterday, rushing the passer and protecting against the pass.

There is good reason for the work. For the next three games, the Pirates expect to find the air filled with footballs, and it is likely that they won't be doing much of the hurling.

Two top quarterbacks are coming into Ficklen Stadium during the period, while the Pirates visit the home of another. The trip will carry them to Richmond, where they'll meet the Spiders' newest threat, Charlie Richards, who passed for a new Southern Conference record in last Saturday's loss to Mississippi State.

Just prior to that, they'll entertain The Citadel's Tony Passander, who hit on 15 of 20 passes for over 230 yards against Lehigh last Saturday.

But probably the biggest threat comes this Saturday night, when the Bucs open their home season in Ficklen Stadium. Their guest that night will be the Bulldogs of Louisiana Tech. They will be bringing with them a fellow known as the Blonde Bomber, the Rifleman, or Terrific Terry. You can find him in the program under Number 12—Terry Bradshaw—quarterback—6-3—210—Senior.

What the program probably won't say is that Bradshaw is rated as the top quarterback in the country, bar none. Last year he led the nation in total offense, picking up 2,987 yards, mostly through the air. This season promises to be even greater.

The results of the Louisiana Tech season, and 8-2 mark, plus a victory over Akron in the Grantland Rice Bowl, the symbolic Mideast College Division NCAA Championship, brought Bradshaw honors as a first-team All-America. He is likely to retain that honor this season.

touchdowns himself, running his responsibility to 27 touchdowns for the season.

He has been stopped. Last year defenders picked off 15 interceptions. But that was only about one every 22.6 attempts, not a very bright prospect for the defense.

So Coach Clarence Stasavich had a good reason for his workout yesterday. The line worked on getting to the passer, while the backs concentrated on covering the receivers.

The Bucs also held a long kick coverage session despite the fact that they held East Tennessee to minus two yards in two returns last week.

"Louisiana Tech returns kicks on us for something like 200 yards last year, and ran one punt back for a touchdown," the coach said. "For this reason we feel like we need to work on kick coverage."

Fortunately, Tech has lost its top returner, Butch Daniels. His 68-yard runback against the Bucs last year was his longest. He averaged better than 10 yards per return for 47 last year.

Also gone is Bradshaw's top receiver, flanker Ken Liberto, who caught 51 passes for 1,000 yards. Both ends, Tommy Spinks and Larry Brewer return, however. Spinks caught 54 passes for 885 yards, while Brewer pulled in 44 for 434 yards.

One thing is for sure. The ball is going to be in the air a lot over the coming weeks, and future opponents are going to know what East Carolina's secondary is capable of.

Rutgers Choice In 100th Game

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Since this corner correctly forecast that Rutgers would beat Princeton in the first college football game back on Nov. 6, 1869, it seems appropriate that this week's guessing game should lead off with those two teams in the sport's centennial game.

The 100th anniversary meeting takes place Saturday in New Brunswick, N.J., and about the only sure thing is that the score won't be 6-4 like the original.

Nor will the contest end in a tie. None of the previous 99 meetings has—Princeton holds a 50-9 bulge—and Rutgers, with 154 games, and Princeton, at 129, have the second and third longest no-tie streaks in the country, behind Villanova's 157.

Choosing a winner boils down to which team can put more points on the board in a high-scoring game. Rutgers appears to have some advantages—home field, a game (44-22 over Lafayette) under its belt, spring practice. Princeton, meanwhile, is breaking in a new coach—

Jake McCandless—who switched from the traditional single wing to a multiple offense despite Princeton's shortest pre-season camp in two decades.

The pick accordingly is—Rutgers.

Hopefully, that will turn out better than last week's special, which had Virginia Tech upsetting Alabama, only to see the Crimson Tide pull out a 17-13 squeaker.

This time, the No. 1 team in the country is in action. Ohio State's Bickeyes, defending national champions and Rose Bowl winners over Southern California, swing into action against Texas Christian at Columbus, Ohio.

"It will be a high-scoring game," predicts Coach Woody Hayes, who has 18 of 22 starters back in harness. "I think we can go into the game with everybody ready to go."

Ohio State it is.
PENN STATE over COLORADO—Colorado Coach Eddie Crowder says his quarterback, Bob Anderson, is the Big Eight's top contender for the Heisman Trophy. Even Mr. Heisman himself wouldn't help against second-ranked Penn State.

ARKANSAS over TULSA—More bad news for Tulsa's new coach Vince Carillot.

TEXAS over TEXAS TECH—Tech usually upsets one Southwest Conference power each year. Texas isn't it.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA over NORTHWESTERN—Who needs O. J.—Simpson—When you've got J.J.—Jimmy Jones.

OKLAHOMA over PITT—More bad news for Pitt's new coach Carl De Pasqua.

GEORGIA over CLEMSON—Mike Cavan passes, Bruce Kemp runs.

Former Giant Knocks San Francisco Out Of First Place; Atlanta There

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
The San Francisco Giants left Ollie Brown off their protected list, for last year's National League expansion draft and the San Diego Padres promptly picked him No. 1. It took almost all season, but Brown has finally made the Giants No. 2.

It all came about in the ninth inning of Tuesday night's game in San Diego. Roberto Pena singled with one out and pinch runner Ron Slocum raced to second on reliever Frank Linzy's wild pitch. Up stepped Brown and singled to center, driving in Slocum and giving the Padres a 5-4 victory that knocked the Giants West.

The Giants fell one-half game and three percentage points behind Atlanta, which trounced Houston 10-2, eliminating the Astros from the race. Cincinnati remained in contention three games out by sweeping a doubleheader from Los Angeles 6-3 and 5-2, dropping the Dodgers 5½ games off the pace and virtually ending their flag hopes.

The amazing New York Mets clinched a tie for the title in the NL East, edging Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 11 innings. That put them six games ahead of the Chicago Cubs, who lost to Montreal 7-3. Both teams have six games remaining. Philadelphia nipped Pittsburgh 4-3 in the other NL game.

In the American League, Cleveland topped Baltimore 3-1, Boston drubbed the New York Yankees 8-3, Minnesota took Kansas City 6-2, Oakland swept the Chicago White Sox 4-3, 5-3 and California shaded Seattle 6-4. Washington and Detroit were rained out.

The game-winning hit was sweet revenge for Brown, touted as a coming star when he played with the Giants in 1966 and 1967.

A year ago, Brown had a good spring but would sit on the bench while Jesus Alou roamed the San Francisco outfield.

"I thought off my showing in 1967 (13 homers, 53 RBI and a .267 average) that I'd get a good shot to start with the Giants, but it didn't work out that way.

"Being drafted was a whole new start for me. I'm glad to be with San Diego where I have a chance to play every day.

"I went to the Giants' camp in 1968 and led the club in hitting and was second in home runs and RBIs, playing regularly throughout the spring exhibition game. The newspapermen were writing I'd be in the starting line-up. I didn't start. It was disappointing."

Rookie Clay Kirby, staked to a 4-0 lead in the first inning, checked the Giants on one run and two hits into the seventh. But the Giants picked up two runs in the seventh on three walks, a hit batsman and a sacrifice fly and tied it in the eighth on Dave Marshall's forceout with the bases loaded.

They had the potential lead run thrown out at the plate in the ninth. With two out, Tito Fuentes singled and Ron Hunt doubled, but a nifty relay from left fielder Ivan Murrell to shortstop Francisco Libran to catcher Chris Cannizzaro nailed Fuentes at the plate.

The Braves, meanwhile, snapped a 2-2 tie with four runs in the sixth, added four more in the ninth and cruised past the Astros. It was their fifth consecutive triumph and 12th in 15 games.

The Braves pounded relievers Jim Bouton and Jack Billingham for five hits in the sixth, featuring Rico Carty's two-run angle and run-scoring hits by Hank Aargn and Bob Didier. Aaron double home one of the runs in the ninth and George Stone coasted to his 13th win.

Johnny Bench and Pete Rose keyed early Cincinnati rallies in the Reds' opening game victory over the Dodgers, then Rose slammed a two-run homer in the nightcap and singled in a third run.

Wayne Granger, who saved the second game for Gerry Arrigo's first triumph since July 31, set a National League record with his 85th appearance. Ted Abernathy of the Cubs had 84 in 1965.

The Mets, reducing their magic number to one, scored the winning run with one out in the 11th on consecutive singles by Ron Swoboda, Jerry Grote and Bud Harrelson. Swoboda made a game-saving catch in the eighth, a diving stab of Gibson's liner with the bases loaded, two out and the score tied 2-2.

The Mets can wrap up the title today by beating St. Louis or if Chicago loses to Montreal.

Home runs by Rusty Staub and Ron Fairly helped the Expos to a 7-0 lead and Bill Stoneman went the route to beat the beleaguered Cubs Tuesday. Bob Bailey's triple gave the Expos a run in the first and they added three in the second.

Richie Allen drove in two runs with a double and sacrifice fly to lead the Phillies past the Pirates. St. Louis and Pittsburgh remained in an exact tie for third.

Williams' Firing Draws Criticism As Fans See Return To Boston's 'Old Days'

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
 BOSTON (AP) — The firing of Dick Williams has stirred controversy galore in this town where just two years ago he was being idolized for leading Boston's 100-1 longshots to their Impossible Dream pennant.
 Fan reaction reported on newspapers and on radio and television was mostly critical of the Red Sox after the club announced the ouster of the controversial field boss with a year left to go on his $50,000-a-year contract.

 Speculation also was rife that the action represented a coup for dissident players in a throw-back to the old "country club" days for which the team was famous before William came on the scene.
 General Manager Dick O'Connell told a news conference the firing was "a culmination of number of things," climaxed by "a falling down of communications between the managerial staff and the players."

 Williams acknowledged this as the reason given by the club, but also alluded to a "personality conflict" between himself and owner Yawkey.
 Meanwhile most of the players weren't talking for publication—but in some cases they didn't really have to.
 "I don't have anything to say," commented George Scott, who was at odds with the manager almost the entire 1968 season. "I think it's obvious how I feel. It's gotta be."
 Tony Conigliaro, who made no secret of his unhappiness with a couple of Williams' comments in 1968; also declined to get involved.
 Carl Yastrzemski, considered by many to be the other principal in a star-manager feud which cost the manager his job, denied any such involvement. "We had a few problems, and we had them right out in the open man to man. There was never any lingering problems."

 O'Connell in his news conference conceded that there were cliques on the club, but said he didn't know of any cases of players going to Yawkey behind Williams' back to voice complaints about the manager, as has been rumored.
 He said the disappointing showing of the club this season was one factor in the decision to dismiss Williams and added that the "falling down of communications" was not just a reason thrown at the manager out of the blue when he was fired.
 "We talked to Dick about some things during the year—things we thought should be changed," he said.
 Williams said at his home in Peabody that he was disappointed but not completely surprised.

"There has been too much in the papers," he said. "I was even making other plans for next year."
 The manager said he thought his biggest mistake was becoming "more lenient." He said he did so because he felt the team had matured during the pennant race, but that "I was going back to the 1967 regime next season."
 As for the future, Williams said: "I'd definitely like another managerial job. I think I've been a success in the major leagues with three winning seasons and one pennant. Anyway my minor league record is two governor's cups in two years. I have a full year to go on my contract. We'll see what happens."
 In making their announcement Tuesday, the Red Sox said coach Eddie Popowski, a 30-year veteran of the organization, will serve as interim manager for the waning days of this season and will return as a coach next year.
 The club said it would name a new manager between the end of the regular season and the World Series, and was considering three or four men.

Parker Worried About Citadel Pass Defense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 The Citadel's Bulldogs open their home football schedule Saturday night against an Arkansas State team whose potent air attack has Bulldog coach Red Parker all up in the air.
 Parker admits he was buoyed by last weekend's 41-16 opening-game victory at Lehigh, in which the Bulldogs got an eye-popping performance from quarterback Tony Passander.
 "But we made a whole multitude of mistakes," says the coach, "and we'd have to play much better than we did last week to stay on the same field with Arkansas State."
 The Indians, 7-3-1 last season and defending Southland Conference champions, demolished Eastern New Mexico 53-20 last Saturday behind quarterback James Hamilton.
 "Hamilton's the man we have to stop," says Parker. "He's perhaps one of the top two or three passing quarterbacks in the country. And they have a fast, high-jumping split end who scares us to death."
 The end is Joe Waleszonia and Parker's view is that he'll be harder to stop than his name is to pronounce. He may, Parker thinks, "be the best receiver we'll see this season."
 Timing errors, four lost fumbles and three interceptions plagued—but couldn't stop—the Bulldogs at Lehigh. These were "typical first-game mistakes," says Parker, "and we'd anticipate playing better this week."
 "But we had better not make those mistakes again. We simply can't stand anything in the way of mistakes against Arkansas State."
 Running back John Beck, who injured his ankle in last Saturday night's game at Cincinnati, was put on the doubtful list Tuesday at William and Mary for this weekend's clash at Temple.
 Richmond coaches praised their job last Saturday at Mississippi State but warned the Spiders against the passing this weekend of VMI quarterback Murphy Sprinkle.
 The compliment was returned at VMI, where the defense worked overtime preparing for an anticipated Richmond aerial assault.

Top Race Drivers Are Meeting Today

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Members of the top echelon of the stock car racing fraternity were scheduled to meet in Charlotte today.

A spokesman for the recently formed Professional Drivers Association said persons expected to attend the meeting included PDA members, promoters, track owners and representatives of accessory firms that serve stock car racing.

Richard Petty, president of the drivers association, said the meeting was designed primarily to enable the wdpa to explain its purpose and to clear away some of the misunderstandings that have arisen since the drivers' decision to pull out of the opening race at the new $6 million speedway at Talladega, Ala.

Bill France, president of NASCAR and owner of the speedways at Talladega, Ala., and Daytona Beach, Fla., was expected to attend the meeting. Previously, he had not met formally with the PDA.

Also scheduled to attend was Lawrence Fleisher of New York, general counsel for the driver group.

The stock car drivers must sign a "good faith to the public" pledge prior to future NAS-

CAR races following the top pilot boycott of the first race at Alabama International Raceway in Talladega.

Entry blanks that included the new clause were mailed Tuesday from NASCAR headquarters in Daytona Beach.

"In signing, both driver and car owner recognize their obligations to the public," said Lin Kuchler, NASCAR vice president. "They agree to compete if humanly possible unless the event is postponed or cancelled or their car fails to qualify."

The name stars of the fast-growing sport dropped out at Talladega, claiming the 2.6-mile track was too dangerous when speeds approached 200 miles per hour. Among those departing were Richard Petty, LeeRoy Yarborough, Cale Yarborough and David Pearson who are the business' top drawing cards.

A comparative unknown, Richard Brickson, won the event.

"In order to protect the fee-paying public from a situation such as the late-hour boycott at Talladega, the good faith pledge will be in all future entry forms," said Kuchler.

"If a driver does not want to sign or if there is any doubt in his mind whether or not he'll run, the man shouldn't enter."

Maryland Sees State Running

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Maryland head football coach Roy Lester says he expects a ball-control, running game from North Carolina State Saturday in the Terrapins' home opener.

"N. C. State emphasizes ball control and will just run over you," Lester said Tuesday. Lester said the Wolfpack is not so explosive as West Virginia, the Terps opponent last Saturday, but, "State is extremely defensively," he said.

To bolster his defenses for Saturday's game, Lester has added seniors Charles Hoffman and Bob Colbert to the defensive unit. Hoffman is a 6-foot-4, 260-pound tackle and Colbert is a 6-foot-1, 220-pound back.

Lester said he expects State defensive tackle Ron Capenter to be one of the toughest players the Terps will face. Another player the Terps will have to worry about is Wolfpack sophomore middle guard George Smith.

"Smith was the best player on the field against UNC, and the films proved it," said State defensive line coach Carey Brewbaker. Brewbaker said Smith, a 5-11, 209-pounder, "graded out higher than any other player in that game." State defeated UNC 10-3.

Even though Maryland lost by a wide margin (31-7) to West Virginia last week, N. C. State still has plenty of respect for the Terps.

"Maryland is a big, strong team," said State assistant coach Jack Stanton, who scouted last Saturday's game with West Virginia. "The Terps executed well. They seemed to be well-disciplined and well-conditioned," he said.

South Carolina coach Paul Dietzel says "We're going to have our hands full," when the Gamecocks play the University of North Carolina this Saturday in Columbia.

"They haven't forgotten that we trailed them, 3-27, going into the final quarter last year, then won, 32-27."

Tar Heel Coach Bill Dooley says he has a young team that is going to get better every week. "We're not down and out. One game does not make a football season," he said, referring to UNC's loss to N. C. State last week.

Dooley said, "Our defense will get a supreme test at South Carolina. The South Carolina offense is a lot more diversified than the State offense."

Wake Forest coach Cal Stoll is preparing his squad to face another powerhouse, Virginia Tech, which lost a close one to Alabama last week, 17-13. The Deacons lost 57-0 to Auburn.

Wake Forest Assistant Coach Norman Parker says of Tech, "You simply can't run against them." Parker, who scouted Tech last week, said the Gobblers "outplayed the winners and should have won the game."

Elsewhere in the ACC, Virginia coaches cited linebacker Boyd Page for his outstanding defensive play against Clemson after grading films of last Saturday's game, which the Cavaliers lost 21-14. Clemson quarterback Tommy Kendrick was named by his coaches as the Tigers' back of the week, after he threw three touchdown passes against the Cavaliers.

Birthday Of Prominent North Carolina Figure

Light of History,
By Christopher Crittenden
N.C. Department of Archives and History
Written for the AP

RALEIGH (AP) — This is the birthday of William Nathan Harrell Smith. You are a rare exception today if you are familiar with his name. Yet, he was one of the lead North Carolinians of the 19th Century.

Chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court for 13 years, U.S. Congressman, member of the Confederate congress, member at times of both houses of the North Carolina legislature, distinguished lawyer, Smith was a leading figure of his generation. But today he is nearly forgotten.

Smith was born at Murfreesboro during the War of 1812, the son of a Yale graduate and physician who had moved to North Carolina a few years earlier. The son also attended Yale, graduating in 1834 and studying law there. He then returned to North Carolina and was admitted to the bar. He soon moved to Texas but after six months came back to the Tar Heel State. He married Mary Olivia Wise of Murfreesboro, by whom he had three children.

In the campaign of 1840 he was elected as a Whig to the House of Commons and later to the State Senate. He served in Congress, 1859-61, and actually received a majority vote for speaker of the House, though that vote was later changed so that Smith was not elected.

He was against secession, but he went along with the South when President Lincoln called for troops to suppress the "rebellion." He was one of the rare individuals to serve in all three Confederate congresses, where he was a hard-working conservative member, usually supporting the administration of Jefferson Davis.

After the Civil War he again served in the State House of Commons and was a leader in organizing the Conservative party to oppose radical reconstruction. Conversely, however, he served as one of Gov. Holden's counsel in the famous (or infamous) impeachment trial of the governor.

In 1878 he became North Carolina chief justice and served until his death 13 years later. He was a "prodigious worker and as executive of the court highly successful... Personally he was a courteous, retiring gentleman... He was an able and fluent speaker, a learned lawyer in the best sense of the term."

Dr. J. S. Clark To Be Speaker

AHOSKIE—Dr. Joseph S. Clark, a former U.S. Senator from Pennsylvania, and now president of the United World Federalists in Washington, D.C., will appear as guest speaker at a United Nations Workshop in Ahoskie on September 29.

Dr. Clark will be luncheon speaker for the program, which begins at 9:30 a. m. and continues to 2:30 p. m. at the First Baptist Church in Ahoskie. This is the first of four speaking engagements in North Carolina in connection with United Nations Workshops. The others will be at Duke University on September 30; in High Point on October 1; and Asheville on October 2.

For 12 years Dr. Clark served in the U.S. Senate.

At one time Dr. Clark was mayor of the city of Philadelphia.

A graduate of Harvard, Dr. Clark is also the holder of honorary degrees from nine institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, who is noted for his pioneer work in the United World Federalists movement will attend the workshop as a special guest.

Dr. Clark's appearances in North Carolina are under the auspices of the North Carolina Division of the United Nations Association, of which Mrs. Roy Anderson of Raleigh is the president. Mrs. Julian Porter of Severn is chairman of District I, which includes a number of Eastern North Carolina counties. Mrs. J. B. Brown of Ahoskie is local chairman.

Interested citizens wishing to participate in the workshop are invited to attend. Registration fee is 50 cents. In addition to discussions and Dr. Clark's speech, a film "Peacekeeping: U. N. Business" will be shown.

Ground School Being Planned

Pitt Technical Institute and the Greenville Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will sponsor a 40-hour ground school course.

A certificate of completion will be awarded upon satisfactory completion of the course.

Interested persons should call either Joe Downing, PTI, 756-3130, or JOE Mallardi, 752-6797 tonight after 7:30 for registration.

The class meeting nights and registration.

Editor's Note: Mental nightmares haunt many of the million elderly Americans in nursing homes, yet few receive any hint of psychiatric care. Instead, nursing homes turn to drugs and restraining straps. This is the third of five articles.

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The priest was saying Mass in the dingy Detroit nursing home when an old man with white stubble on his chin raised his grizzled face and blurted out a childhood prayer:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
"I pray the Lord my soul to keep.

"If I should die before I wake,
"—WHO THE HELL WOULD CARE?"

George Lewis, who is 78, is one of almost a million Americans living their last days in nursing homes financed largely by the federal government.

For many of these patients, it is a lonely, desolate, empty end. "It is a living death," said a Los Angeles clergyman. "They sit and stare and wait—and watch each other die."

A Cleveland researcher, Dr. Margaret Blenkner, added, "Don't kid yourself. Just walk into a nursing home and tell me how many happy, laughing faces you see."

This hidden million are old and alone, confused and forgotten.

Half are past 77. Most are widowed. For many of them, the mind is ebbing, or eroded—and this, not ill health, is the main reason many are in a nursing home.

The grim sight of rows of patients who sit and stare at nothing is not a fault of the nursing home, but a flaw of a nation that has no real plan for taking care of the mental nightmares that haunt the aging.

A study by Dr. Alvin I. Goldfarb, former head of the American Psychiatry Association's committee on aging, has listed 86 per cent of the patients in nursing homes as suffering mental disorders that range from senility to insanity.

Yet a reporter who visited more than a score of nursing homes across the country failed to find any sign of psychiatric care. And, in interviews, several psychiatrists and psychologists agreed that such specialized care is almost nonexistent.

Drugs are used to keep patients subdued. The worst cases are kept in restraining straps. And state officials compound the crisis by dumping the elderly out of mental hospitals into private nursing homes.

The most common problem is senility, better defined in medical terms as "chronic brain syndrome." It comes with hardening of the arteries, starving the brain for blood, or with the sudden blockage of a stroke. It leaves the mind fuzzy, confused, blank. Patients forget how to dress themselves, how to go to the bathroom.

George-Lewis says he has been in a nursing home five weeks. Records show it has been five years.

For another Detroit nursing home patient, Miss Viola Cook, the records read almost 50 years—in a mental institution.

Miss Cook was a young woman in 1920 when committed to a Michigan state hospital because of confusion, delusions and what the doctors listed as "bizarre behavior." Her medical records reported no significant progress. Yet she was released this spring to be sent to a nursing home.

Now Miss Cook, 72, is kept tied with a cloth strap in her chair ward, unaware of the world around her, muttering as her hands nmit with nothing in them.

Under Michigan's release program, she is considered in "convalescent status."

Moving patients out of the overcrowded state mental hospitals into nursing homes—where the federal government helps pay the bill—is routine across the nation.

Georgia has discharged approximately 2,600 mental patients into nursing homes over the past five years. North Carolina has shifted about 1,700. An Ohio official flatly denied the

DISEASES DECLINE

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The number of infectious diseases in Kentucky has declined 16 per cent while the state's population has risen 88 per cent.

practice, yet public testimony disclosed the recent transfer of 300 out of a single state hospital. Dr. Goldfarb criticized such transfers and said most are unjustified. He added, "There is a danger that nursing homes, because they lack medical tradition and psychiatric supervision, will degenerate into snake pits."

As a substitute for psychiatrists, nursing homes turn to drugs and restraining straps.

In the back ward of a rural southern Indiana nursing home, more than a dozen patients sit strapped into chairs. The administrator complains she has no choice—the state hospitals won't take the patients, and there is no place else for them to go.

Doctor's orders are generally required by state regulations for physical restraint. But checks of medical records showed this is loosely enforced.

The trappings of restraint can range from modern, dignified chair devices to a bed sheet for cloth in Detroit, an automatic dosage of tranquilizing drugs for everyone in a Los Angeles home.

In these situations—when the mentally ill are mingled among other patients, with callous government indifference to the problem, when restraint is used as the cornerstone of care—a nursing home can turn into a house of horror.

A woman in a Minneapolis suburb remembers with vivid pain what happened when she took her mother, who had suffered a stroke, to a nursing home and returned the next morning to find her tied, without clothes, in bed in the midst of her own wastes.

"I will never forget that sight," the woman wrote. "It's seared into my memory, seeing her struggling to free herself, crying out for some to help her. 'She clung to me and cried like a child over and over again. 'Thank God you've come, thank God you've come.'"

Deficiency in doctors' care.

INTO THE NIGHT — Two members of a hunt-killer team move out from their base camp at dusk to spend a wet, uncomfortable night in the jungle, laying in ambush for the enemy. The GIs are members of Charlie Company, 2nd Battalion 199th Infantry Brigade, based at Xuan Loc, 45 miles northeast of Saigon. (AP Wirephoto)

Fine Arts Committee Making Plans For The Coming Year

In mid-September, 1968, a group of East Carolina University students met informally to exchange vague ideas about ways to stimulate interest in the fine arts.

Nobody knew just what should be done, but it was generally agreed that some plan of action was overdue. They were convinced that their new coalition, based on mutual agreement on one vital issue, would produce. It did.

When the group broke up from that first meeting, each member left with a solid feeling of identification with what was now the Fine Arts Committee. They elected officers, laid some groundwork and began plugging. The idea took off and has gathered steam like a locomotive.

This year's first meeting, held on campus last week, resulted in the election of Mike Gaston, a sophomore art major from Portville, N.Y., as president.

Beyond that, and most important to Gaston, a lot of plans were made which coordinate the efforts of students in ECU's Department of Drama and Schools of Art and Music.

First, there is a film festival in the works. A showing next spring will present films produced by students, and the best of them will be awarded cash prizes.

Also scheduled in the spring is an art contest and show, limited to participation by ECU students. An outdoor showing will be followed by presentations of cash awards for excellence.

More immediately, sometime this fall, the committee will sponsor a "chealkin." For the uninitiated, a chalk-in will allow any student who purchases chalk to freely express his pent-up artistic bents on any sidewalk on campus.

Gaston is pushing for more membership and more ideas. "We would welcome any new members who want to join us, and are especially interested in encouraging freshmen students—or any other students, for that matter—who are interested in furthering the fine arts at ECU.

The main thing is for people to participate with their ideas and their help as well as their

One Injured In Accident

One person was reported injured in an 11 p.m. mishap yesterday at the intersection of Fourth and Elm Streets.

Police identified the drivers involved in the mishap as Louise Proctor Tadlock of 1509 East Fourth St. and Norman Edgar Wynne, 20 of Route 2, Robersonville.

Wynne was reported injured and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Damage was set at $150 to the Tadlock vehicle and $400 to the Wynne car.

Promoter Wound Up Being Fined

NEWARK, England (UPI)—Promoter Joe Webb tried to stage a wrestling match between a man and a crocodile and wound up paying $79.44 in fines and court costs—for cruelty to the crocodile. Officials charged Webb hired the croc's jaws together.

It wasn't much of a show, anyway. The performance lasted only four minutes and Harold, the croc, hardly moved. "Harold just doesn't like fighting," Webb said.

Finland Installs Millionth Phone

HELSINKI (UPI)—The 1 millionth telephone was installed in Finland this year. According to the Union of Telephone Companies, the number of telephones in the country has doubled every 11 years since World War II.

"Thank You Mrs. Dixon, for Always"

Paying Me On My First Call"

* HE MAY not say so very often, but your friendly newspaper carrier deeply appreciates the fact that most of his route customers always pay him the very first time he calls to collect.

HE'S GRATEFUL for their cooperation because prompt collections mean so much to him as a young businessman. They give him full profits from his efforts, enable him to pay his route bill when due, and minimize call-backs — thus leaving him more time free for school work, sports, and other activities in a busy boy's life.

ALSO, they enable him to keep the other half of his bargain with you — provide on time delivery of your newspaper every day! You see how many ways it pays to have the change ready for him on collection days!

No one else delivers so much for so little, as does your newspaper boy!

Mexico Full Of Supersalesmen

By JANICE POWER

MEXICO (AP) — Fall in love and you can have a love letter composed for you in elegant Spanish and typed on an ancient typewriter.

Stroll in a town square and a group of "mariachis" in ornate braided uniforms and huge sombreros will beg to be allowed to play a tune for you—for pesos (80 cents).

Get on a bus and a boy who looks as though he should just have started school will stand up and sing a throbbing, passionate song of love and murder, or a bawdy ballad. After taking up a collection he'll jump off and wait for the next bus.

Park your car and a boy will leap forward with an offer to clean it; leave it on a dark street and a brown-uniformed "vigilante" will look after it for one peso (8 cents); draw up at a petrol pump and a man will come up to the window with a huge basket of chocolate bars, chewing gum and sweets.

Go to the cemetery and boys will sell you buckets of water so that you can wash down your relative's grave.

Mexico is a nation of supersalesmen. They'll try to sell anything—and their ingenuity makes the more sophisticated salesmen of other countries—armed with psychology studies and memorized sales pitches—look like amateurs.

For many a Mexican salesman the prime market is the automobile with its captive customers. At every traffic light there's a cluster of salesmen for whom the red light means "Go."

As each car stops someone approaches, offering the latest newspaper, a bunch of roses, a map of the city, a metal clip to stop the windows rattling, a driver's seat cover or a ticket for the national lottery.

The vendors waste no time. They know from experience when a driver really means "no," and they won't waste time on cajolery. It's on to the next car before the light changes.

Less agile vendors prefer sales sites where they can lead a more sedentary life.

When a peasant woman brings produce from the farm to the city, she chooses a busy spot, spreads her blanket on the sidewalk and on it arranges her wares. There she'll sit patiently all day, surrounded by carefully-balanced triangular piles of oranges and tomatoes; or bundles of manzanilla tea plants; or heaps of raw peanuts.

Nearby, are several of her young children, and often a baby wrapped in her shawl.

Not all the "blanket vendors" are farmers' wives. Many a city folk will visit factories to buy goods, ranging from toothpaste to children's clothes. They set up their blankets and wait for customers—a convenient way to avoid paying the rent of a shop.

The Mexican government has tried to bring some order to the vendors' ranks. In the cities they have replaced the colorful—but inconvenient—old open markets with large, new concrete ones.

The new markets are clean and neat, and are equipped with refrigerators and running water. The rows of permanent stalls, separated by roomy walkways, encourage many vendors to pay the nominal rental.

But there too, squatting on the clean concrete floor, their goods arranged on the blanket, are often seen the peasant vendors. Recently, government market inspectors have been driving them off Mexico City's congested downtown streets. The result: they have drifted out to the suburbs.

Mexico's most interesting markets are the unofficial ones which suddenly sprout in squares or city streets—the same vendors regularly appear "same time, same place." usually on a Sunday.

To the Mexican, any place where people gather has automatic sales potential. Sit in a bar and you will almost certainly be approached by a shoeshine boy.

Hard on his heels will be the chiclet seller, sometimes a mere toddler, with dirty face, huge brown eyes and box of packaged "chiclets," the local chewing gum.

Then comes an old man who shuffles from table to table with a precariously balanced pile of felt "sombros" which his wife has made by hand; and next, a housewife on her way home from shopping who takes the opportunity of popping in to sell the inevitable lottery tickets.

There's no escape even in the lavatory. There, a thoughtful gentleman is selling glasses of fizzing hangover deterrent.

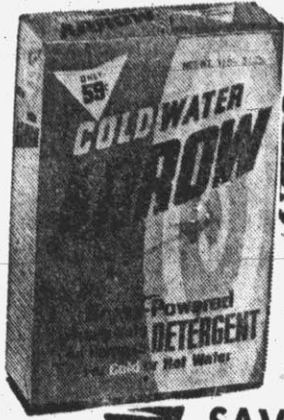

The Mexican housewife is continually being alerted by a cry or piercing whistle to the daily passing of a procession of vendors. Just by opening the door she can buy ice, bottles of pure water, newspapers, milk, balloons and, periodically, such things as brooms and kitchen utensils.

And the housewife is often a formidable vendor in her own right. Many supplement the family income by setting a metal plate over a fire in the doorway of her home, which fronts directly onto the street. There she sells fiery, chili-sprinkled "tacos"—tidbits of meat, onion and watercress wrapped in flat maize "tortillas."

And if her husband indulges in the local equivalent of home-brewing—making the potent "pulque" from the fermented juice of the "maguey" cactus—she'll invite her customers in for a jug or two.

Skyline Of Dallas Sees Big Changes

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Whenever people talk about the Dallas skyline, someone is likely to ask: "The Dallas skyline when?"

For, in some way or other, the silhouette seems to change week by week. And much of the changes, current and future, is brought about by private builders clearing decaying sections of the city.

Dallas was founded in 1881 as an Indian trading post. Its business section began to spring up near the Trinity River, and continued to grow eastward until well past World War II. Slowly the older parts of the city fell prey to decay. Then about 10 years ago new, tall buildings began again to rise in part of the original business area—which, by the 1960s, had become a motley collection of third-rate hotels, flophouses, cheap cafes and run-down stores.

Within the last two years two vast new projects have begun to replace large sections of this decrepit area. The first project is Main Place, a 10-acre site and the second, announced only a few weeks ago, is Griffin Square, which will occupy 32 acres.

Number One Main Place, a 34-story building costing $41 million, is already in use. Work has begun on Two Main Place, which will rise 45 stories and cost $80 million. Three Main Place will be a luxury hotel and a store.

The Main Place project has turned out to be a boon for this city—which, in the Southwest, ranks first in manufacturing, employment, wholesale sales, volume of banking and insurance, hotel facilities and number of million dollar companies. Main Place has encouraged other builders to submit plans for structures totaling $175 million on its periphery.

And around Main Place some buildings are being renovated. The Dallas Times-Herald has virtually rebuilt its home and has built a new one for KRLD-TV-AM-FM.

On the other side of the older, now resurrected business district, the Dallas Morning News has remodeled its relatively new, post-World War II building and has built a new home for its WFAA-TV-AM-FM.

A high-rise hotel and theater has been completed across the street from Main Place. And Ling-Temco Vought plans to build a 50-story structure between the Times-Herald and Main Place. Nearby, the county recently completed a new courthouse. The old one will be kept partly for historical reasons.

Griffin Square Ltd., plans to build a 913 foot tall circular building. The Tower, about three blocks from Main Place. The developers boast that the Tower's 900-foot high observation deck will be one foot higher than Paris' Eiffel Tower.

The Tower, which will cost $30 million, is part of a projected $200 million development.

Both the Main Street and Griffin Square projects will use only a fraction of land for buildings, and will devote the rest to landscaping, malls, fountains and pools.

Swiss Open New 'Shortcut' Pass

The new Nufenenpass, which is the highest—7,320 feet—pass open to traffic in Switzerland, is now the most direct link between the Valais and the Ticino. Drivers will eliminate approximately 19 miles and save up to two hours by taking the Nufenenpass, which can be reached at Ulrichen at its eastern end, or Airolo at its westernmost point. The new 22-mile shortcut also eliminates the need to negotiate two additional northern passes to reach Airolo before the Nufenenpass was built. The steep, narrow road offers unrivaled scenery, but is not recommended to motorists who are not familiar with mountain driving.

Originally, this was a mule trail used as early as the 14th century.

Swaziland Finds Grass Hut Mart

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) Swaziland's latest export commodity is grass huts. The traditional beehive-shaped huts have caught on with tourists from neighboring white-ruled South Africa. Turned out by a team of 25 African hut-makers here at Rands 180 ($252) a throw, the huts are considered just the thing for swimming pool change rooms or garden shelters in Johannesburg's upper-class suburbs.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

The Worry Clinic
Nudity Not Healthful,
Nor Very Stimulating

Laura's classmates debated the subject of Nudism. Its advocates argued that Nudism is healthful and also less likely to produce sexual attacks or immorality. How do you vote on those two issues? Make up your mind before you read the medical and psychological data below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE K-552: Laura P., aged 19, is a college coed.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "in our psychology class we had a discussion last week about Nudism.

"Two major points were brought out.

"First of all, some of my classmates argued that it is much more healthful to go without clothing.

"And the second idea was that Nudism is not an incentive to more sexuality or immorality.

"What are the medical and psychological facts?"

Briefly the answers to Laura's two points are an emphatic "No" and "Yes," respectively.

All creatures but mankind were equipped with "clothes," called fur, feathers or scales.

But to offer man more adaptability to changing weather, God planted us our clothes in our heads, via the capacity to utilize cotton, wool and nylon products to cover our bare skin.

For it is medically healthful to expose your bare skin to bright sunshine!

For big doses of the latter not only cause painful sunburn. But also produce cancer of the skin!

In fact, the eyes of cattle also grow cancerous in the southwestern plains where sunlight glances off the sandy wastes in big doses.

Clothing is likewise desirable to ward off insect bites, plus scratches that may become infected.

Chickens "molt" some of their feathers in spring and furry animals shed some of their hair.

But they lack the quick adaptability of us human beings. For we can go from a bikini to a heavy overcoat or vice versa in a matter of 5 minutes.

And our marvelous brain also gives us a variety of footwear to protect our feet from sharp stones, as well as cold.

Even the poor horse found his hoofs bleeding and lacerated till mankind fashioned iron shoes for him.

So Nudism is definitely NOT healthful, from the medical angle.

But it actually is conducive to less immorality!

This may seem like a paradox at first, for burlesque shows and the modern mini-skirt craze seem to prove that fewer clothes provoke more lustful glances from men.

But there is a vast psychological difference between "few clothes" and "no clothes."

The partially clothed female figure is thus far more salacious than the naked body. Why?

Well, it is the suspense at the burlesque show that whets the sensual appetite of the pagans.

The male spectators get more thrill from seeing the "Queens" disrobe than from viewing their entirely naked bodies!

This is based on the old psychological axiom that it is the "chase" more than the "conquest" that intrigues the usual erotic male.

Thus, a girl who keeps a man at arm's length may retain his ardent interest for week or months, whereas after the conquest, he may drop her within 24 hours!

But a lot of you plump wives, after the age of 40, might well visit the burlesque shows and learn the technique of disrobing which the "queens" have proved will excite males most!

Much Impressed
By Tribal Life

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP)—British historian Sir Arthur Bryant is impressed by tribal life in the Transkei, this country's first government-created semi-autonomous "homeland" for Africans.

"If a man from Mars could see the people in the Transkei and the people in London, I wonder which he would think the more civilized," he said after a visit to the coastal territory.

"The happiness and dignity of the Transkei people would seem at first sight much more civilized than the worried rush of London."

Meat Boycott Promoter
Says Movement Growing

By WHAYNE EISENMAN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Housewives who conducted local supermarket meat boycotts last month say their campaigns were only a partial success—local prices dropped temporarily—but their movement is far from over and is spreading nationally.

"The movement is spreading faster than I can keep up with it," said Mrs. Mickey DiLorenzo who in August led a two-week meat boycott at supermarkets in the Levittown, Long Island area of New York.

"We started with seven people in Levittown and now we have 400-500 people I can call on to actively participate," said Mrs. DiLorenzo, the wife of an electrician.

There are nine groups on Long Island alone. They consist of some 1,500 persons that "are already formed or forming" to help drive down the retail price of meats through boycotts, she said.

Mrs. DiLorenzo said the national drop in beef prices—the first in eight months—announced Monday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics was "encouraging."

Porterhouse steak dipped to $1.63 a pound at retail in August from $1.66 in July. Sirloin to $1.38 from $1.42 and chuck roast to 74 cents from 75 cents, the bureau reported.

The beef price drop was offset by increases in other meat prices, and egg prices rose 20 per cent reflecting a shift from higher priced red meats to eggs, the bureau said.

Groups bearing the name of Mrs. DiLorenzo's organization

—FLP, For Lower Prices—are operating in Melbourne Beach, Fla., Fort Collins, Colo., Arlington, Va., and another is forming in Shelter Rock, Conn., with 50 women preparing for a membership drive, she said.

"Fifty women over a telephone can create a tremendous stir," Mrs. DiLorenzo added.

In Melbourne Beach, the wife of a college vice president, Mrs. Jan Stophlet, who engineered the boycott around the Cape Kennedy Space Center, said women are no longer checking grocery carts to assess meat sales as they did in August, but "We still urge women to just have one beef meal a week and not to buy the expensive cuts, just the low price cuts or the sale cuts."

"Live weight prices have gone down since the high in July, but we have not seen this decrease at the retail level," Mrs. Stophlet said.

A decrease in wholesale beef prices was seen last week in Chicago where they fell to six month lows. Choice beef on the wholesale market was down as much as 10 cents a pound from June at 44½ to 45½ cents. The June price was a 17-year high.

In Chicago, meat industry sources indicated privately that the boycotting housewives may be on the right track to lower meat prices.

"It's still a matter of economics as known for centuries," one source said. "When demand is high, prices are high."

Highways See
Heavy Traffic

RALEIGH (AP) — The Winston-Salem Expressway, a portion of I-40 in Winston-Salem, is the heaviest traveled road in North Carolina, the State Highway Commission reported Tuesday.

With 52,000 cars passing over it daily, the expressway leads Downtown Boulevard in Raleigh by 1,000 vehicles.

The traffic counts were made by the highway commission's planning and research department and show figures for 1968.

Here are the 10 highways with the heaviest traffic counts and their daily totals:

- 1. Winston-Salem Expressway, 52,000
- 2. Downtown Boulevard, Raleigh, 51,000
- 3. Independence Boulevard, Charlotte, 42,500.
- 4. West Asheville Bridge on U.S. 19, 42,500.
- 5. Interstate 85, Greensboro, 38,100
- 6. North-South Boulevard, Winston-Salem, 38,000
- 7. Bragg Boulevard, Fayetteville, 37,200
- 8. U.S. 29-601, north of Concord, 37,200.
- 9. Camp Lejeune Boulevard, 31,000.
- 10. Interstate 85, east of U.S. 21, Charlotte, 30,500.

Opening lead: King of ♣.
In browsing thru our bridge archives the other day, we came across this strikingly unusual example of a dummy reversal play. In the hand presented above, South was able to take six trump tricks by making every one of his spades count separately.

North's decision to raise South's three spade bid with two small trumps is perhaps a shade unorthodox, but it turned out to be a fortunate choice, for declarer cannot fulfill a three no trump contract unless he guesses to take a first round finesse in spades.

West opened the king of clubs and declarer ruffed in his hand. He saw that with a favorable trump break, he would win five spade tricks which along with the dummy's two ace-king combinations increased the total to nine. The 10th would have to come from a favorable break in the red suits. This all seemed like too much to expect, and declarer finally chose a line of play which hinged more or less on finding no worse than a four-two division in both red suits.

A heart was led to the king and declarer ruffed a second club with the jack of spades. The dummy was reentered three times more with the ace of hearts and the ace-king of diamonds to successively trump the remaining clubs. Declarer now had a nine tricks in with North's holding, consisting of the 9-8 of spades, still intact. By force, one of these trumps must stand up for the game fulfilling trick.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady Tuesday. Supplies barely adequate for short, demand fair to good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:
Grade A large whites: 56 to 56½; medium, whites 48½ to 49½; small whites: 34½ to 35½.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina hog market was mostly 25 cents higher today. Tops of 25.25-25.75 at Rocky Mount; 24.50-25.75 at Tarboro; 24.50-25.50 at Bethel; and 25.75 at Greensboro and Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market was weak today. Prices at farms mostly 14 cents for live broilers and fryers.

Activity increased slightly this morning on Pitt County grain buying stations but overall farmers are still unable to resume full scale harvesting with danger of having their equipment stuck in the wet fields. Area buyers anticipate more rain in the next few days and little improvement on field conditions unless rains do not come.

Prices show very little fluctuation over Monday and Tuesday quotes with changes reflecting increases or decreases of no more than one cent per bushel on any area markets. Quotes reported at 11 a. m. follow:

Greenville: yellow corn, $1.15—down slightly; wheat, $1.12; oats, $1.62—steady.
Ayden: yellow corn, $1.16—up slightly
Winterville: yellow corn, $1.15—down slightly
Farmville: yellow corn, $1.17—steady
Bethel: yellow corn, $1.15—down slightly.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks edged into the losing column in active trading this afternoon, as declines overcame advances by 103 issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 0.53 at 824.88, after having opened more than a point up. Analysts said that mutual funds were still trying to dress up their portfolios before the close of the third quarter Tuesday and were "kicking out the losers and buying into others." Profit taking still existed among the glamor issues which have enjoyed such healthy performances last week and Monday.

Among the glamors, Control Data was off ¼ at 138½; IBM 356, off 1¼; Polaroid 134, off 2½; and Xerox 101½, off ½.

Of the 20 most-active issues, 10 declined, 9 advanced, and 1 was unchanged, giving the market a losing complexion after it had opened with a winning face. Kayser-Roth Corp., a leader in the apparel industry, topped the 20 most active issues list, at 8¾, off ½, on 130,000 shares.

Motors, and metals were mostly up, while steels, electronics, airlines, tobacco and drugs were mostly off. Oils, air-crafts, utilities, and rails were mixed.

Among the oils, Natomas was the big loser, down 5¼ at 86½. The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was unchanged at 291.7, with industrials up .3, rails up .1 and utilities off .4.

International Stretch Products headed the American Stock Exchange's 20 most-active issues at 8¾, off ½, on 124,200 shares. Declines led advances on the Amex active list by 12 to 7 with one issue unchanged.

Would Improve Juvenile Justice

GREENSBORO (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he will ask state agencies involved to make a study and report to him recommendations on "how best to go about improving the juvenile justice system in North Carolina."

The present juvenile justice system, he said, "is fragmented" and "is operated on the basis of what facilities are available instead on what facility is likely to provide the best rehabilitation training for the juvenile."

"We need a statewide administrative program to offer uniform coordinate services in the juvenile justice system," Scott added in a talk Tuesday to the North Carolina Council of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Scott said youth councils could step in with suggestions for setting up a new system of juvenile justice "a system that hopefully will mean the difference between true rehabilitation and merely a period of confinement for youngsters caught up in it."

Winterville Buys New Water Pipe

WINTERVILLE — A total of 2,000 feet of eight-inch water pipe has been purchased by the town of Winterville as part of a continuing plan by the town to improve its water supply system.

According to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, the new pipe will replace the two-inch lines on North Church Street and North Street.

Fire hydrants will also be installed in addition to the new pipe, Nobles said. The project will cost the town approximately $4,000.

The town plans to install eight-inch pipe in various sections of the town each year until the lines are located all over town.

He Went To Bed, Thieves Show Up

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Rev. James E. Hunter decided to play detective this week after thieves on two occasions stole a typewriter and six air conditioners from Pleasant Union Presbyterian church.

He bought a junk air conditioner, installed it in a church window and watched all one night and part of the next for the thieves to strike.

Finally he went to bed—and that's when the thieves showed up and got the air conditioner.

Opine City Has Role In 'Fraud'

NEW YORK (AP) — Five young women have charged the city with perpetuating the fraud of marriage by making women "sex slaves in the unholy state of matrimony."

The women, members of the Feminists, complained Tuesday to City Clerk Herman Katz that, by issuing marriage licenses, the city supported a system of "conspiracy to exert force on the women of this city to enter the unholy bonds of matrimony which, for women, includes rape, unpaid labor and imprisonment."

One woman slipped a copy of the complaint to Mayor John V. Lindsay, married and the father of four. He did not respond.

Salvage was abolished July 4, 1827 in New York State.

Indira Gandhi Stands Her Ground At Riotous Rally

CALCUTTA (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi canceled all her engagements in Imphal today following rioting at a rally she was addressing that left three persons dead.

The demonstrators demanded local government for their border state of Manipur, which is controlled by the central government. Imphal is the capital of the state on the Burmese border.

The rioting went on into the night, and 34 persons were reported injured. The dead were two students and a policeman.

Mrs. Gandhi stood her ground at the rally and scolded the stone-throwing demonstrators:

Radio Facsimile

TOKYO (AP) — The Newspaper Asahi Shimbun announced today it has been licensed to transmit a facsimile newspaper into homes by radio for an experimental period of a year.

At the same time Asahi unveiled a new facsimile receiving set which it said could be supplied under mass production for $50 to $100. It was developed in cooperation with Toshiba Electric Co., and produces in five minutes a newspaper page 12½ by 18 inches on electrostatic recording paper.

Golda Meir On Way To U.S.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir flew to the United States today for talks with President Nixon and a sentimental journey to her old hometown, Milwaukee.

"I am going on a mission of pleasure and hope," the 71-year-old premier told newsmen. She declined to say what she would ask of Nixon, commenting, "I'll tell you all about it when I get back." And she said it would be "exciting" to visit the Milwaukee school where, a Goldie Mabovitz, she taught the fourth grade in 1918.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania was elected today leader of the Senate Republican minority.

Goodwin Honored By Adjusters Ass'n

William C. Goodwin of Southeastern Adjustment Company in Greenville was honored last week as the state "Adjuster of the Year" at the North Carolina Adjusters Association meeting in Raleigh.

Goodwin, who has been in the adjusting business for 30 years, received a plaque in recognition of the honor which credited "his outstanding leadership and service to the Insurance Adjusting Profession."

The chairman of the committee that selected the honoree, Dr. Robert Younts of Hickory, presented the plaque to Goodwin.

A native of Lynchburg, Va., Goodwin received his primary adjustment training at the General Motors School of Technology in Flint, Mich. In addition, he has completed a number of IIA courses for insurance adjusters.

Ready To Obtain Auto Insurance

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — On Aug. 14, a motorist backed into Donald Almeida's car—twice.

When Almeida got his car back from the shop 14 days later he said, "It vanished."

Almeida bought another car and drove to Massachusetts where he heard from Fort Lauderdale police that the stolen car had been recovered—wrecked.

The car was repaired at a cost of $150, plus $46 for storage before someone broke into the paint shop and Almeida's car was stolen again.

Police telephoned Almeida Monday to inform him his car had been found—wrecked again. Still possessing the second car, Almeida parked it near a steak house, taking pains, he said, to lock all doors as well as Almeida said he was considering buying insurance.

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday averaged $72.71 per hundred pounds, according to Sales Supervisor Louis Williams, who reported 496,208 pounds of tobacco were sold for $360,779.30.

Williams said the volume of sales yesterday was heavy, with offerings consisting of more cutters than on any previous sales day this season.

Lugs and primings, he said, accounted for only a small percentage of the volume of yesterday's sale, while nonsect grades showed an increase compared with Monday's sale.

For the season, including yesterday's sale, the Farmville market has sold 13,513,746 pounds of leaf for $9,772,619, giving a season average to date, of $72.32 per hundred pounds.
