Seven-Hour Hearing On City School Plan In Washington

At yesterday's hearing in the Office of General Counsel in Washington on the HEW rejection of one phase of Greenville's City School Plan for 1969-70 school year, counsel for the schools concluded their argument with a question directed to the federal examiner.

Office in Raleigh, appeared before the Federal Hearing Examiner, Louis Rubin of Detroit in a seven-hour hearing Monday which began at 10:00 a.m.

Seven Freed Green Berets Flying Home Today After Army Abandons Its Charges

Asheville's Schools Idle After Strife

ASHEVILLE (AP) — City schools were closed today in the wake of Monday's clash between police and about 200 black pupils at Asheville's only public high school.

Mayor Wayne Montgomery slapped a 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on the mountain city, forbade the sale of firearms and alcoholic beverages and banned public assemblies or demonstrations.

Gov. Bob Scott ordered 25 highway patrolmen into Asheville at Montgomery's request.

The disturbance flared at Asheville High School after Negro pupils walked out of class and presented principal Clark Pennell with a list of grievances. Pennell ordered them to return to class, and when they refused, he called the police.

About 25 police moved onto the campus, and the pupils pelted them with rocks and bricks from a nearby construction site. They overturned one car and smashed windows.

A curfew from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. also was imposed. Under the state of emergency, sale of firearms and alcoholic beverages is forbidden, and assemblies and demonstrations are banned.

The pupils pelted police with stones and with bricks they gathered from a construction site near Asheville High School. They overturned a teacher's car and smashed windows.

About 25 city policemen had moved onto the campus. Principal Clark Pennell had called them after the youngsters gathered on the front steps, presented him with a list of grievances, and did not heed his order to return to class.

The principal refused to discuss the grievances beyond saying "they didn't amount to much." But pupils not involved in the demonstrations said they included demands for more black teachers and a black history course.

There were no serious injuries. A few policemen were hit, and a photographer for the Asheville Times was cut when a brick smashed his car's windshield.

The school has about 2,000 pupils. It is the former white high school. The white and Negro high schools in the city were consolidated this year.

Tropical Storm Picks Up Speed

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Inga picked up forward speed today and turned to the north-northeast on a track that forecasters said would take it east of Bermuda by early Wednesday.

Top winds were estimated at 60 miles an hour. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said slight intensification was expected today.

At 6 a.m., Inga was at Latitude 27.6 north, Longitude 63.4 west or 340 miles south-southeast of Bermuda. It was moving at 12 m.p.h.

Farmville Leaf Mart Sees Record Day

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday attained its highest average of the season by selling 543,435 pounds of tobacco for $402,196.58 for an average of $74.01.

The increase in quality grade was responsible for the high average, reported Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market.

"Grade for grade prices on the market yesterday were much stronger than the prices for Thursday's sale," Williams said. "Offerings consisted of more quality tobacco than on any previous day of the season."

Offerings consisted of mostly leaf, smoking leaf and cutters. The marketing of lugs showed an increase as compared to Thursday's sale, Williams explained.

So far this season, the Farmville market has sold 15,032,295 pounds of tobacco for $10,875,222, giving an average of $72.35 for the season.

SDS Is Banned By Boston Univ.

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University Monday banned the Students for a Democratic Society from the University campus.

Dean of Students Stanton Curtis said the ban will be effective until further notice.

A university spokesman said the plan is to remove any recognition for the SDS from campus and deny the group the use of university facilities.

The decision was prompted by an SDS meeting at a University auditorium last Friday night at which chairs were smashed and one youth beaten, the spokesman said.

Nixon Says Evidence Of Unity Is Required

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has told key congressional Republicans he needs evidence of American unity during the next 60 days as the United States tests whether the new Hanoi regime will move toward a negotiated settlement in Vietnam.

In relating that message, the two new Senate Republican leaders, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, did not indicate their source.

However, Nixon met Saturday at Camp David, Md., with party leaders of both House and Senate.

Scott, the New Senate GOP leader, said Monday senators should stop suggesting deadlines for U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

He said Hanoi should not be given a signal that it can win by waiting, without negotiating a war settlement.

"Those who really want to help the President might give him a 60-day moratorium or breathing spell in order to present a common front to Hanoi," Scott said.

But it was clear at once there would be no cutoff of Vietnam policy dissent in the Senate.

Sen. Charles E. Goodell, the New Yorker who has introduced a bill calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam by Dec. 1, 1970, said Monday he will go through with his proposal.

"I think those who say my position would undermine the negotiating position presume the negotiations have some hope for producing peace," Goodell said.

Area Men Named To Ports Body

Sydney Worth Dunn Jr. of Greenville and E. G. (Andy) Anderson of Robersonville have been named to the State Ports Authority, it was announced by Gov. Robert Scott yesterday.

Dunn, 43, is president of Dunn Associates, Inc. and Hannah and Dunn, Inc., both of which are brokerage houses representing distilleries and liquor importers in North Carolina, Virginia, and Montgomery County, Md.

He attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, graduated from the United States Naval Academy, and did postgraduate work at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y. He and his wife, Nancy Hannah Dunn, have three sons, Lee Hannah Dunn, 19, S. Worth Dunn III, 16, and Stephen H. Dunn, 14.

Anderson, 70, has served previously on the Authority. He was first appointed in 1951 by Gov. Kerr Scott and was reappointed by Gov. Terry Sanford, but was replaced last October during Gov. Dan Moore's administration.

A former mayor of Robersonville, Anderson is a leaf tobacco dealer and a real estate broker. He is a widower and the father of one daughter, Carolyn.

Currently serving on the nine-man authority is another Greenville man, William B. Glenn, president of Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company.

Anderson and Dunn are completing the unexpired terms of Kirkwood Adams of Roanoke Rapids and W. J. Pharr of McAdenville, both of which have four more years to run.

Hundreds Of U.S. Warships Near 'Senility'

LONDON (AP) — Jane's Fighting Ships, the massive annual which describes the warships of the world, says hundreds of American warships are on the brink of senility and pack the punch of a 97-pound weakling.

And the strongman, the descriptive array indicates, is the Soviet Union.

"Most of the U.S. aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers escorts and minesweepers, refitted or not, are a quarter of a century old," writes Raymond V. R. Blackman, an authority on naval power and editor of the warship annual for the past 21 years.

He says the Soviet Union is ahead in new construction and has built a navy "to be reckoned with."

The Soviet navy is shown as having 1,575 "newish" vessels in its total of 3,240 warships against the United States' 894 "newish" ships in a total of 3,360—hundreds of which Blackman says "are becoming a liability" to the U.S. Navy.

Allsbrook Special Session Appeal Firmly Rejected

RALEIGH (AP) — A senator wants the General Assembly called into special session to repeal the new taxes on soft drinks, cigarettes and gasoline. But Gov. Bob Scott says he has no intention of doing it.

Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, made his request Monday in a letter to the governor. He said state surpluses are so large the taxes are not needed.

Scott said "The legislature itself enacted the set taxes at my request. The money was badly needed to increase salaries of teachers and state government employees."

"Am I now to ask the teachers and other state employees to forget the whole thing and take a salary cut, after the state had already approved such measures?" I ask Mr. Allsbrook is this what I should do? And as I said earlier, I have no intention of doing anything in this regard."

A two-cent tax on cigarettes and a one-cent tax on soft drinks will go into effect Wednesday. A two-cent a gallon gasoline hike went into effect July 1.

Allsbrook said, "It now seems clear that it was extremely unwise" for the legislature to enact these taxes. He added his statement was "based on factual information received from authoritative state revenue sources."

"The General Assembly began with an estimated surplus of $127 million. The assembly adjourned with a forecast that the General Fund surplus would be $141 million. Shortly after they adjourned, I was informed that the general fund surplus would be $153 million. It is important to note that these General Fund surpluses are already $26 million above the estimates and we are just beginning this fiscal year."

"What I am saying is that the surplus will come within $17.2 million of providing the state all the revenue which would be derived from" the cigarette and soft drink tax.

The cutback would be made as "expeditiously as possible, consistent with operation requirements related to the Vietnam conflict."

The United States has approximately 36,000 Air Force personnel, 12,000 Army support troops and 1,000 military advisers in Thailand.

Most of the Air Force attacks against North Vietnam originated in Thailand before these were called off. Lately Thai-based bombers have attacked the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos, and have been involved in operations in South Vietnam.

Arrangements have been made for the "orderly reduction" of U.S. forces in Thailand, the statement said. It stressed that the American troops were stationed in Thailand "in connection with the Vietnam war."

The two governments will "continue to evaluate the level of U.S. armed forces in Thailand in the light of their assessment of developments in the Vietnam conflict."

This will bring to 66,000 the total U.S. withdrawals announced for Southeast Asia. President Nixon has called 60,000 troops back from South Vietnam.

Tipton Annex Open Wednesday

A unique concept in professional real estate counseling, ranging from the initial plans for buying a house up to the financing, building and complete furnishing of the home has been incorporated in the new Tipton Annex on Greenville Blvd. The center is scheduled to open for business on Wednesday morning.

In addition to the home buying facilities, Ed Tipton of Tipton Real Estate and Insurance Agency, has built into a seven suite complex variety of shops that offer the buyer everything from selected gifts to figure shaming.

Tipton, an underwriter for the National Association of Professional Real Estate Brokers, said facilities would be available for helping the buyer, whether he be of moderate or wealthy means, choose what he wishes to buy and at the same time stay within his financial means.

With community convenience in mind, Tipton said that the annex would afford the buyer the opportunity to have everything arranged at the center, including financing, without having to make trips to other points to complete the transaction. Every transaction at the agency, he added, is bonded.

In the first suite, Tippy's Gift Shop is located. This shop will include gifts and merchandise from all over the world designed to give the buyer a choice of items ranging from the extreme to the most subtle.

In suite two Brides Beautiful will offer complete bridal service. Services to include the announcement of the wedding on up to bridal clothing and traveling accommodations for the bridal couple are available here.

Suite three will house the Leroy Cherry Construction Company, the bonded builders for the agency. Blueprints, drafting service and construction of residential, commercial, industrial or renovative facilities will be offered.

A nationally franchised reducing salon will be housed in the fourth section of the complex and suite five will be the home of the state coordinator for the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologist Association, located at Glenda's Beauty Salon. Tipton said the salon will be the center for the official hair-styling committee gatherings and actually the guinea pig for new hairstyling programs.

Suite six will house the Bill Clifton Agency, national insurance underwriters and seven will be the eastern North Carolina center for Humble Oil and Refining Co.

He said that in addition to the floor level agency and shops an upstairs conference room that covers the entire length of the complex is available for meeting with buyers and discussions with them on blueprint selection, interior design or other matters concerning the new home.

Tipton added that the complex was made possible through his association with the Dell Webb Associates of Denver, Colo., which is backing him in the venture. He said that in recognizing the tremendous growth and potential of the Greenville area, Dell Webb felt that this would be an ideal city for locating the center.

Official opening to the public will be held on Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Will Entertain Pre-Schoolers

A special program of entertainment is being planned for the little ones of Greenville, boys and girls in the three to five year old age group.

Mrs. William F. Reid, Children's Librarian, announces that on Wednesday, a "Picture Book Program" will be given for the pre-school children.

Two stories from picture books, an action tale, and a singing game will all be featured in the 30 minute program.

In order to accommodate as many children as possible, Mrs. Reid informs the program is being presented twice. The first time is at 11:00 a.m. and the second at 2:00 p.m.

Parents are urged to bring their small children to this special affair, which besides furnishing entertainment, is created with the idea of making the services of the library familiar to small children.

Want To Force Bargaining Role

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Union leaders demanded today a federal law to force states and cities to bargain with their employees and give them the right to strike—except for policemen.

The alternative is a rising tide of rebellion by public workers from teachers to trolley car conductors, said a report by the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department.

"Bitter strikes will continue until laws are passed which provide for the rights of employees to organize and join unions and bargain collectively, as well as to withhold their services as the last resort," the report said.

It said strikes should be forbidden only when the public health and safety is threatened. The report said harsh laws in many states had not halted the sharp rise in public worker strikes and that they should be repealed.

Some of these laws punish strikers by firing, suspension or demotion in addition to loss of pay, fines and jail terms.

Strikes by teachers, hospital workers, garbage men, bus drivers and other public employees will grow worse unless they win meaningful collective bargaining, the report said.

Housing Project Workers Strike

GREENSBORO (AP)— Maintenance workers at Greensboro public housing projects, seeking representation by a labor union, walked off their jobs today and set up a picket line at city hall.

Richard Lee, deputy director of the Greensboro Housing Authority, said his office had been negotiating with the workers for several weeks over a request that they be represented by a union.

"Our position is that we believe we are a political subdivision of the State of North Carolina and, as such, we would be prohibited by law from signing a contract," Lee said.

The authority employs 38 persons for maintenance of its five projects, Lee said.

Private Postal Firm Is Anxious To 'Help'

CHARLOTTE (UPI) — Officials of a private postal service here don't want to replace the U. S. Post Office, but they would like to give it a helping hand.

The logical area for such assistance, says Manager Harry Page of Continental Postal Service, Inc., is third class mail, and that's what the fledgling firm has concentrated on during the year it's been in existence.

"We've handled a little over a million pieces of mail in the last year," said Page. "And we expect to double that amount during our second year."

The private postal service is currently handling only third class mail not addressed to an individual — a category that includes advertising circulars and promotional material for supermarkets, department stores and similar firms.

Federal postal regulations prohibit private delivery of first and second class mail and also deny the private firms the use of mailboxes. Continental's 10 fulltime and several part-time employees use plastic bags to hang the material on the door-knob of the residence.

Page says the Post Office Department blames third class mail for causing many of its problems and "bogging down" delivery of first and second class mail.

"We hope in the future they will contract all their third class mail with us," he said. Page says the local post office is "happy to see us in this business. They've been very cooperative because we've taken a lot of the third class overload off their hands."

He says Continental can deliver third class mail unaddressed for advertisers at less cost than the post office. The private firm can also deliver in concentrated, selected areas where the customer thinks he will get the most benefit.

The private postal service here is one of three or four in the U.S. that are trying to make inroads into the virtual monopoly the U.S. Post Office has in delivering the mail.

Organized and operated by a North Carolina corporation, the firm hopes to be able to deliver by address in the future.

"That's still a long way off, though," Page says. "We don't want to move too fast."

Since its organization, Continental has delivered orders in most of the towns within a 50-mile radius of Charlotte. The firm hopes to move into the Greensboro, Winston-Salem and High Point areas in the near future.

Stokes Expected Win In Primary

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Carl B. Stokes, first Negro elected mayor of a major U.S. city, was expected to receive the majority of votes today from the light to moderate turnout forecast for the Democratic primary election.

Most political experts thought Stokes would win handily over a political newcomer, Robert J. Kelly, who campaigned on a law and order platform.

If Stokes gets past Kelly, his Nov. 4 general election opponent will be Cuyahoga County Auditor Ralph J. Perk, who is bidding to become Cleveland's first Republican mayor in 28 years.

Kelly, 48, is a former city service director.

Only 150,000 were expected to turn out at the polls although there are 316,340 registered voters in the city. A light turnout was expected to help Stokes, whose supporters have been working hard to get out the vote in the predominantly Negro wards.

Stokes counted on 95 per cent of the vote from the black community, which makes up about one-third of the city's population, but he also was expected to draw a large number of white votes.

Stokes, 42, was elected in 1967. He has had problems with the rank and file of the police force and there was a recent Civil Service Commission scandal involving police promotion examinations. But the mayor says his administration has made advances in housing, jobs and pollution control.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those foolish wives who insisted that my husband wear his wedding ring at all times. My husband is a maintenance mechanic, and this is what happened. Yesterday, I received a call informing me that my husband was at the hospital! While jumping off a construction truck, he caught his ring on a piece of metal and his finger was practically torn off. I was told he was lucky he wasn't killed as he lost his balance and fell under the wheels of the truck. Abby, please put this in your column as a warning to other women who want their husbands to wear their wedding rings to work.

He never said he had a "asking." You may be big, handsome, talented, and popular, but unless you have a heart you're nothing. When you attend a dance or a party, pay attention to at least three girls who are not popular. Find something to compliment them for. Make them feel a little prettier, then watch them "bloom" and actually become prettier before your eyes. Among the quiet, plain-appearing girls are those with special qualities. Modesty, humility, generosity, virtue, and depth. For that is where they usually can be found.

I rented the room as a "single". I have no idea how long she plans to stay with him. Should I charge him double?

LANDLADY IN URBANA
 DEAR LANDLADY—If your "single" is sleeping double, charge him accordingly. It's time these two lovebirds learned that two can't live as cheaply as one.

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those women who had her only child late in life—like 45.

My daughter is 6 years old and every once in a while some clod will ask her if she is spending the day with "GRANNY"—meaning ME!

Can you supply a good squelch-type answer? A remark like this ruins my day. Thank you.

NO "GRANNY"
 DEAR NO: You had better develop a thicker hide. Clods are not for squelching.

Reception Given ECU Deans On Monday Night

East Carolina University President and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins honored Dr. and Mrs. John M. Howell and Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Monroe at a reception Monday night.

Dr. Howell is the dean of graduate studies at ECU and Dr. Monroe is dean of the School of Allied Health Professions.

Arrangements of fall flower composed of chrysanthemums, asters and carnations in shades of lavender provided the focal point in the dining room from which refreshments were served. A lighted candle surrounded by fruit continued the fall theme in the living room.

Mrs. Monroe and Mrs. Howell were presented corsages of white carnations by the hostess.

Among the out-of-town guests present for the occasion were Dr. and Mrs. Lyndon K. Jordan of Smithfield, Dr. and Mrs. Ed Beddingfield of Wilson and Dr. and Mrs. Fleming Fuller of Kinston.

Serving refreshments to the more than 200 guests were members of Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority: Peggy O'Neal, Morehead City; Mary Rucoff, Winston-Salem; Becky White, Greenville; Sandra Pate, Raleigh; Betty Blue Britt, Clinton; and Mollie Painter, Fayetteville.

ELECTRICIAN'S WIDOW

So . . . Dear Wife, if your husband works around machines or electricity, tell him to leave ALL rings at home. If you really love him, that is.

DEAR ABBY: I rented a room to a very nice, young professor who's about 28 years old. He is a perfect gentleman, neat and quiet and he always pays his rent on time, but here is the problem:

For the past month he has had a young lady staying with him. He didn't "sneak" her in. She came in with her suitcase and moved in with him like she is his wife. He didn't introduce her to me. I saw her thru the win-

Serve Stuffed Shrimp As A Main Course, Hors D'oeuvre

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
 Associated Press Food Editor

We came upon our first recipe for Stuffed Shrimp about a dozen years ago. It was contributed by an Illinois restaurant. Since then this good dish has been popping up in restaurants in various parts of the country, and cooks have been interested to make the dish in their own kitchens.

So here's the latest recipe for Stuffed Shrimp that we have tried. We think you'll like it as the main course for a luncheon or for hors d'oeuvre at dinner.

STUFFED SHRIMP

- 2½ pounds raw jumbo shrimp, about 12 to the count per pound
- 3 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 large egg
- 1 can (7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
- 1 cup cooked short-grain rice
- ¼ cup minced parsley
- ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 2 teaspoons liquid gravy seasoning and browning sauce
- Extra melted butter (about 2 tablespoons)

Shell and devein shrimp. With a small sharp knife, on the deveined side, split shrimp, deeply but not quite through. In a small skillet over low heat melt three tablespoons butter and add onion and cook gently, stirring often, until softened.

In a medium mixing bowl beat the egg until yolk and white are combined and add onion-butter mixture, tuna, rice, parsley, salt, pepper and liquid gravy seasoning and browning sauce and mix well.

On wax paper place flattened shrimp cut side up. Put about 2 teaspoons of the tuna mixture on each shrimp. Fold up one side of each shrimp over stuffing.

Grease a shallow broiling pan with some of the extra melted butter. With a spatula, place stuffed shrimp in pan in a single layer. Brush shrimp with remaining melted butter. Place pan under broiler about 4 inches from high heat. Broil, without turning, until cooked through—5 to 6 minutes.

Makes 6 servings as a main course.

Ignored Majority Gets Attention

America's great majority — the man or woman, girl or boy who goes to work every day, or attends school with the sole intention of getting an education; those who pay much of the taxes and absorb much of the inflation which grips the country is being noticed again.

TV Guide reports in this week's issue that the television networks are changing their thinking on how the news will be covered for its daily telecasts.

Newsweek magazine does a survey and finds that of white middle-income Americans 85 percent believe that black militants have been treated too leniently.

The politicians are suddenly paying some attention to this huge but, in recent years, totally ignored group.

TV Guide says the riots and Chicago "stick like giant burrs in the newsmen's minds — symbols of the clash between them and the majority of the public."

It quoted NBC's documentary producer Shad Northfield as saying, "Bias is on everybody's mind. We've claimed we don't have it. And the viewers say, 'Yes, you do.' I was stunned by the public reaction to Chicago. We all were. I was stunned, astonished, hurt. It's the key thing that opened my eyes to the cleavage between newsmen and the majority. We didn't know 56 percent would have thought we were unfair. It raises enormous questions about journalism."

Well we won't get into any arguments about whether any news organization's coverage of any event was biased or not. We have been in the news field long enough to know that often telling the truth creates the most violent reaction.

However, we will have to agree that America's middle class has simply been ignored far too often. It seems that our news shows, newspapers and magazines are filled with reports of what the latest radical is thinking and how he plans to tear this country apart.

Of course, this is true because it is the ordinary that makes the news. We never read a story about the building that didn't burn last night; and we seldom read about the man who goes to work every day or the students who pursue his studies because he wants to learn what wiser men have to offer.

The silent majority has not only been ignored but has also been the recipient of sneers from the radicals. Yet, the silent majority type is not a bad sort. Not only does he pay the bills for many of the things that some radicals dream up, but if it were not for the fact that he has been in sympathy with some of the causes of the past decade, then many of the social changes would never have taken place.

The so-called silent majority is coming to realize that now he is being taken advantage of, and he is speaking out. Perhaps his criticism of news coverage is not always just, but it is certain that this "forgotten man" is now going to be heard.

Scape Goats Fed Up

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — As the housing market cools off, chilled by high interest rates and tight money, the tempers of the nation's builders are heating to the point at which blood boils.

As one home builders' representatives put it: "We're tired of getting wronged out every few years in anti-inflation programs. Builders are angry about being made the scapegoats of financial policy."

They have a point. A rather traditional way to cool an overheated economy is to make money tight or more expensive. And when that happens, the housing market almost invariably is the first to suffer.

High mortgage rates not only discourage buyers, they also create a difficult situation for sellers. If buyers can't get money, sellers can't be sellers.

The result of such inactivity can be disastrous for work crews. Most builders are small and cannot afford to keep carpenters on the payroll if there isn't work for them. The carpenter soon finds his skills are eagerly sought in other industries. He and the builder part forever.

Something of the sort is now happening, and the builders are quick to point out that all society—not just homebuilders—is suffering.

They cite a curious contradiction: While America is running a deficit of hundreds of thousands of housing units, government policy continues to force the housing industry deeper into a recession.

The Housing Act of 1968 recognized the need for 26 million housing units in 10 years, or an average of 2.6 million a year. The present rate, however, is only about one-half that—and headed down.

From all over the country, builders are scheduled to bring their protest to Washington Tuesday under the aegis of the National Association of Home Builders. Congressmen are expected to get an earful.

"Tempers are high," said a spokesman for the association, "But we'll try to keep it on a businesslike basis."

The biggest gripe, it seems, is that "money is going to everything but mortgages," according to the association spokesman. "We contend that we've got to divert $10 billion into housing."

The money might not be going to "everything" else, but for certain a lot of it is going into plant expansion, borrowed by large corporations that manage to pay the high rates that lesser borrow cannot afford.

Some of the builders' suggestions for channeling money their way involve legislation, others involve pressure on private areas of the marketplace.

One sweeping change that some builders want to push: A rollback by commercial banks of recent increase in the prime lending rate, now 8.5 percent.

Banks, being commercial rather than altruistic enterprises, prefer to make loans at the highest rates of interest, and naturally do not like to invest in home mortgages, many of which are held to 7.5 percent by state laws.

Since savings and loan associations provide much of the money for housing, the builders are expected also to seek government support for a plan to exempt from income tax much of the interest earning on S&L deposits.

You retain at least one leftover bad habit that makes you worry about whether you're ruining your health.

Unhappy About Policy Council

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In the closing moments of the recent closed-door session of the Democratic National Committee here, unhappiness over the new Policy Council was candidly aired by an unusual source: National Committeeman Robert Strauss of Texas.

The source was unusual because of the close relationship between Strauss and the two men responsible for the Policy Council: Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Democratic National Chairman. More than any other single Democrat, Strauss was responsible for Humphrey's carrying Texas last November. He strongly supported Harris for National Chairman last January and was named by him to the party's executive committee.

Although still close to Harris, Strauss had been doing a slow burn after learning of the Policy Council's membership. A middle-roader from Dallas with close ties to the state party's conservative powers, Strauss was not pleased that the two Texans named to the council—Rep. Jack Brooks and state Sen. Barbara Jordan (a Negro)—are both liberals. Moreover, Harris incredibly had failed to discuss the choices with him.

Getting the floor at the committee's final session, Strauss complained bitterly. With a touch of acid, he noted that national party leaders had no difficulty reaching him four times in seven days late in the 1968 campaign to ask him to raise some one million dollars for the Humphrey campaign. Moreover, Strauss continued, the Policy Council was not balanced between various factions of the party. Both Texas appointments, he said, represent not only the same ideological factions but the same geographical area on the Gulf Coast.

Strauss's brief remarks won vigorous applause, reflecting the breadth of National Committee discontent over the Policy Council makeup. To make matters worse, liberal National Committeemen feel just the opposite—that Humphrey and Harris tried too hard to balance the council between factions and produced an undistinguished roster.

Responding to Strauss, Harris was conciliatory, conceding that Strauss's criticism had merit. But the choices to the Policy Council, he emphasized, were not just his own. For example he revealed that Brooks was recommended by Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, House majority leader.

Baker's Miscalculation
The narrow defeat of Tennessee's Sen. Howard Baker in the race for Senate minority leader can be laid partly to overoptimism of his hard-driving backers, led by youthful Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon.

The Baker forces were counting on an absolute minimum of 20 votes in the race against Pennsylvania's Hugh Scott. They had strong hopes for two additional votes for the 22 needed to win.

No Sound SST Reasons

President Nixon has blundered, and blundered gravely, in his recommendation to throw good money after bad in Federal subsidies to the super-sonic transport plane. His decision has not a single valid argument in its favor.

This is said with deference to Washington's able Senator Henry Jackson, one of the most intelligent men in the Senate, and with sympathy for good friends in Seattle who glumly predict economic catastrophe if Boeing should have to call off the SST. But the arguments they advance are not convincing. Mr. Nixon is asking for a come-uppance on Capitol Hill. He is almost certain to get it.

The American version of the SST, now under construction at Seattle, would carry 280 passengers at speeds of up to 1,800 miles per hour. This would permit trans-Atlantic crossings, if everything went perfectly, in two and a half hours. The competing Anglo-French Concorde and the Soviet Union's Tu-44 offer roughly these same advantages.

The President's supporting arguments boil down to three main contentions: (1) The U.S. cannot afford to lose its prestigious position as the world's leader in aviation. (2) To surrender the super-sonic field to France, England and the Soviet Union would damage our balance of payments. (3) While the immediate Federal investment is high—at least $1.2 billion by 1972—the investment ultimately will be recouped by royalties on sales.

None of the arguments holds water.

The SST ought to be seen for what it is—a rich man's carriage. This sleek and gleaming beauty would function as a luxury service, at extra-high fares. In flight, it would trail a sonic boom fifty miles wide. It is at least arguable that such an arrogant inconsiderable bauble would not win friends but lose them. Such "prestige" could prove a liability, not an asset.

If Boeing were to sell 300 SST's by 1990, at $40 million each, the revenues theoretically would improve the U.S. balance of payments. But would they in fact? Sales of the SST would reduce sales of Boeing's new jumbo 747. Foreign purchasers, heavily subsidized by their governments, would bid more vigorously for U.S. tourist dollars. The figures, projected 20 to 30 years hence, are pure speculation.

Besides, there is no assurance that such sales actually would materialize. The SST's sole advantage is speed. It cannot fly as far or carry as many passengers as the jumbo. It will cost at least twice as much at the outset, and probably still more. The SST presents serious hazards in untested design and flight characteristics. If it cannot be flown over land routes at super-sonic speeds, because of the sonic boom, even the advantage of speed will be lost. No rush of orders has developed here or abroad. There is no assurance that U.S. taxpayers ever would recover their costly investment.

The SST cannot be compared with space exploration, which grasps for new dimensions in knowledge. Its fall-out value to the Air Force is minimal; the Air Force already is flying (Continued On Page 5)

Other Editors Say Red Terrorism Increases

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Isn't it amazing, the one-sided picture most Americans get of the war in Vietnam?

On every side we are inundated with an outpouring of propaganda from the ultra-left and the pacifists about the barbarism displayed by American forces in Vietnam—the vicious and blind bombings of Communist civilians by American B52 bombers, the cruelty of the Green Beret special forces, the thoughtless "Americanization" of an ancient Asian culture by crude hordes from the United States.

But how many lines of type are entered in the Congressional Record by peacekeeper members of the United States Senate about the terrorist tactics of North Vietnamese troops in Viet Cong forces in South Vietnam? How often do the bleeding-heart commentators on television news programs concentrate on the fearful casualties among civilians there, inflicted by Communist murder teams?

Right now the grim war waged by Viet Cong terrorists continue apace, with the bloody casualty toll increasing daily. These figures come from routine reports in recent days:

—In the week ending last Saturday, enemy terror squads killed 90 people, wounded 238 and kidnaped 38. Men, women and children.

—Last month, 345 civilians were murdered by terrorists, 1,392 were wounded and 141 were kidnaped. Men, women, and children.

—From Jan. 1 to Aug. 20, this year, 5,030 civilians were killed, 12,935 wounded and 5,464 kidnaped.

Such attacks happen on the streets of Saigon, Da Nang and Hue. Hamlet officials and members of the People's Self-Defense Force are particular targets of the communist terrorists.

In the past two weeks two hamlet chiefs were assassinated, a hamlet chief and a village chief were wounded and two other hamlet chiefs kidnaped. The bodies of kidnaped government officials are often found with Viet Cong execution papers pinned on them.

Terrorism and sabotage has stepped up as American troop withdrawals continue. We just think the people ought to be made aware of what's going on and that not all bogeymen wear American military uniforms.

Paper Assets To Replace Gold?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Imagine a poker game where the limit keeps rising until none of the players has enough cash in his wallet to stay in.

The bettors then decide to use chips instead of money. But, because they have no chips, each merely announces how much he is putting in the pot. Off to one side someone sits with pencil and pad keeping track of the bets.

This is a simplified, but valid, analogy of how the International Monetary Fund's Special Drawing Rights, or "paper gold," will work. This week the IMF member nations are "activating" the SDRs and $3.5 billion will come into being just because everyone agrees that it exists. An additional $3 billion is to be activated in 1971 and another $3 billion in 1972.

World trade and the international flow of money has risen so rapidly since World War II that there simply isn't enough reliable, hard money to handle the tides and eddies in trade balances.

Mere $70 Billion

Free World reserve assets have remained relatively unchanged at $70 billion during the last few decades. It includes about $40 billion in gold, $15 billion in U.S. dollars, $6 billion in pounds sterling, and $8 billion of various other convertible liquid assets.

These reserve assets were about 57 per cent of the value of 1958 world imports. By 1967 they were only 36 per cent of imports. The ratio has continued to dwindle and either new reserves must be found or world trade may atrophy.

This shortage of reserves was a prime reason for the pressure to increase the price of gold. If the gold price were hiked, say, 20 per cent it would have automatically added $8 billion to reserves—a great windfall for those with substantial gold holdings but tough on those without.

Instead, IMF members have agreed to invent new reserves, or SDRs, or poker chips, if you will. Each member is being allocated a piece of the $3.5 billion. The U. S. share will be about one-fifth, or approximately $70 million. Tally Sheet

A country with a foreign debt will be able to pay its creditor in paper gold. Since there are no tangible SDRs, or chips, the transaction takes place by informing the IMF, which is sitting on the sidelines with pencil and pad. The IMF deducts the specified number of SDRs from the debtor's account and adds them to the creditor's account.

But if a nation goes too far into debt for too long a time, then it has to settle up just like a poker player with a bad streak of luck must settle up when too far in the hole.

To make the system work, all participating nations have agreed to honor the SDRs and to abide by a complicated set of rules. They must also settle up at a fixed rate. The fixed scheme and it has been set at 0.888 671 gram of fine gold per SDR unit which, interestingly, is exactly the value of the U. S. dollar.

If the highly sophisticated SDR system works it will mean that any reserves shortage in the future can be alleviated merely by declaring new SDRs exist.

Strength For Today

A HUNDRED YEARS BACK

In 1870 a young man was made president of a church-related college in the Midwest. He instituted a number of reforms and, among other things greatly encouraged the courses offered in science.

The bishop whose duty it was to supervise this and other church-related colleges came to make an inspection one day and was greatly annoyed to find the newly added scientific courses. "Don't you understand," he asked the young president, "that church-related colleges exist for the purpose of training ministers? Scientific courses are worldly and materialistic and have no place in the training of a minister. And furthermore," he continued, "can you think of anything which has not already been invented which might still be invented?" (Remember, this was the year 1870).

"Yes," replied the young college president with spirit, "I believe men will some day fly."

"Flying is for the holy angels and for the birds," replied the bishop, "and not for men." Then, looking searchingly at the young college president, he said, "Young man, by harboring such ideas you may be jeopardizing the salvation of your soul."

The bishop's name was Wright, and at that moment he had two little boys at home, one named Wilbur and the other Orville.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Police herded the Rev. James E. Groppi and about 200 welfare demonstrators from the Wisconsin Capitol Monday night, but the militant civil rights leader vowed to return.

$82,000 Grant To Physics Dept.

A grant of $82,400 to the Department of Physics at East Carolina University will fund a co-operative program between the department and several two-year colleges in Eastern North Carolina.

The grant was awarded by the National Science Foundation and covers a three-year period. It will fund a program whereby students take the first two years of study in physics at one of the cooperating community colleges and then transfer to ECU where they complete requirements for the BS and MS in physics.

Another aspect of the program, according to ECU physics chairman Dr. William Byrd, involves inservice training of physics teachers in the cooperative.

Dr. Byrd, director of the grant, said, "A series of topical conferences during the academic year together with workshops during the summer months will allow participants to update their knowledge and competence in physics."

Co-directors with Dr. Byrd are Dr. Carl Adler of the ECU physics faculty and George Hazelton of the science and mathematics department at Chowan College.

The grant is the second awarded to ECU by the National Science Foundation through its College Science Improvement program. The other grant was awarded last year and gave the

The eviction of the priest and his fellow protesters ended an 11-hour takeover of the Ussembly chambers. National Guardsmen called to duty by Gov. Warren P. Knowles surrounded the Capitol to prevent re-entry. There were no arrests.

The legislature was scheduled to try to resume its special session on the Republican governor's $33 million welfare and urban aide package today. The bill would restore a number of cuts in the state welfare program, which the legislature made last month. Its prospects of passage were believed poor.

"We're going to be here as long as the special session is in Madison," Groppi told several hundred cheering followers after their ouster from the Capitol. Groppi, who led a small group of welfare mothers on a 93-mile, week-long march from Milwaukee to Madison, had entered the Capitol about an hour before the special session was to begin at 2 p.m. Monday.

By the time lawmakers started arriving, more than 2,000 protesters—many of them students from the nearby University of Wisconsin—had crowded into the chambers. They jammed the balconies and stood on desks during speeches by Groppi and others.

The Assembly finally adjourned in an uproar after Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, tried unsuccessfully to get the demonstrators to give legislators room to operate.

As uniformed police, and eventually guardsmen, arrived at the Capitol, the number of protesters in the Assembly chambers slowly dwindled.

About 300 National Guardsmen were on the scene when Groppi and his group were evicted. A short time later, the Congressmen also are expected to hear arguments for directing the Federal Reserve Board to buy obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Both these institutions support the home mortgage market, and would be in a position to exert more influence with Fed support.

An argument of priorities arises, and carries great weight. Wouldn't the sum asked by Mr. Nixon be far better spent, if it is to be channeled to aviation, on improvement of chaotic conditions in air traffic control? These problems are critical. Every air traveler knows them. What earthly sense does it make to compound foreseeable risks and delays by introducing another temperamental, high-speed prima donna of the skies?

I put off the philosophical questions to another time, and venture this observation only: Speed, sheer speed, is not necessarily a value worth pursuing under the circumstances that surround the SST.

These two weren't the only ones, moreover, who did not take kindly to the efforts of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and other seasoned Republicans to boost Baker specifically for his youth.

A footnote: Baker might have had the runner-up spot of whip if Sen. John Tower of Texas, eliminated after the first ballot, had quietly thrown the three votes he got to Sen. James Pearson of Kansas, another entry for the whip job.

With those three votes, and a scattering of others from conservatives voting strictly on tactical grounds, enough votes might have been delivered to Pearson on the second ballot to eliminate Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, the eventual winner, from the third and final ballot. A head-to-head battle on that ballot between Pearson and Baker would almost certainly have elected Baker.

After Two Decades; A Wish Is Fulfilled

By CARL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Some people wait a long time for a wish to come true. For Herbert Mehrhoff, a wish made in 1947, came true when he arrived in the United States in the middle of August.

"I have been wanting to come here since the end of World War II," Mehrhoff stated last week in his University Town House Apartment in Greenville. "I applied to come as a student in 1947 but could never arrange it."

His opportunity came when he was accepted for a Fulbright Teacher Exchange by East Carolina University in April of 1969.

He, his wife and two children, Ulrike 14, and Suzanne 9, will live in Greenville for a year while he teaches German at the university.

"We hope to travel next June and July, and see some of the country, especially Florida, and the western states," Mehrhoff stated.

"The friendliness of the people is one of the first things that we noticed," he and his wife both agreed. "We have had very little trouble in settling down and learning our way around."

About their only problem was the lack of cooking utensils and dishes when they arrived. Six boxes containing these items arrived two days after they did. This meant a trip to a local department store so they could have something to eat on.

A new country presents new problems and new experiences. For instance, during the interview, Suzanne sat in front of the television with the sound turned off, just watching the picture.

"We did not have a television in Germany, although they do have stations. It is a good way for to learn the language, she is shy now about using her English," Mehrhoff said.

Air conditioning is also new to the Mehrhoff family. "In Germany very few people have air conditioning, as the temperature usually ranges in the low 80s. We have had a very hot summer this year, with it getting as high as 82 to 85," Mehrhoff stated. He could only recall one friend who had air conditioning in his home. For people who have never been to America, he and his wife speak English very well. So does their oldest daughter, who will attend Aycock Jr. High this year. Suzanne will be in the third grade at the East Elementary School. Mehrhoff received his Ph.D.

in English from Marburg University in 1952, and since then has taught at a grammar school and a teachers' training college for Germans who will teach English.

Their home in Germany is at Hessen, which is located in the central part of the country.

Among their favorite activities are snow skiing, and just enjoying the outdoors.

"We have snow on the ground for at least two months during the year," he said.

As far as anyone at East Carolina can recall, Mehrhoff is the first Fulbright Teacher the university has had, while in the past ten years, there has been only one ECU professor to go to Europe to teach.

The Fulbright program was established in 1952, allowing a foreigner to come to the U.S. with the aid of the government if they could find a position here.

Mehrhoft applied for the exchange in September of '68, and learned that he would come to Greenville in April of '69.

"The only thing I requested in my applications was that I be placed in a relatively small city, and at a fairly small university," he said.

The school he was teaching at in Germany had an attendance of 10,000, while the town it is located in has a population of 210,000.

"One of the first things we noticed about Greenville was how spread out it was," he said. "Also the highways are much easier to travel on, in Germany very few highways have speed limits."

Was the student unrest in America a reason for his wanting a smaller university?

"Yes in a way, however, we are very familiar with these problems in Germany, for we are having them also. The people in Germany are very interested in the United States student problems, for we are facing similar situations."

Pitt Plaza Sidewalk Art Show — A Varied Display In Art Styles

Week-end shoppers and art lovers of Eastern North Carolina formed a steady stream of viewers at the Fall Sidewalk Art Show held Friday and Saturday on the concourse of Pitt Plaza Shopping Center.

Sponsored by the Greenville Art Center, the second sidewalk art show of the year received entries from Morehead City, Ahoskie, Kinston, Washington, and other towns, as well as a large number of works from local and university artists.

Award money of several hundred dollars, in cash and merchandise certificates, was contributed by merchants of Pitt Plaza Shopping Center.

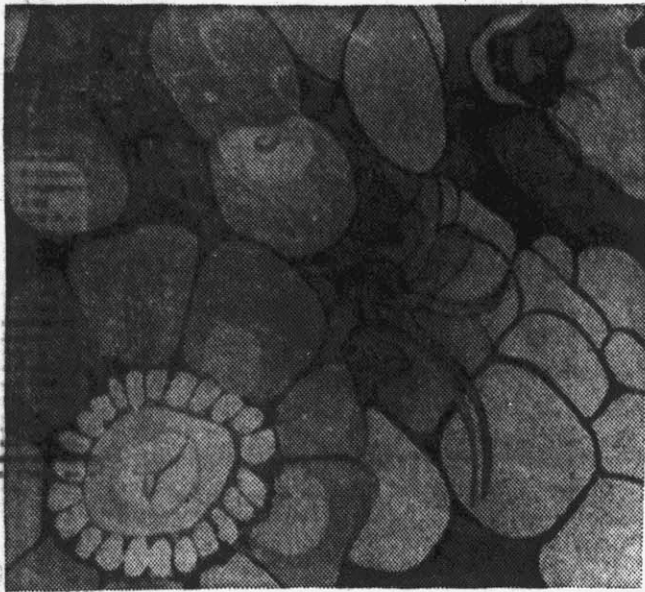

Slim Short (Robert Allen) and Bob Pittman were co-chairmen. They were assisted by a number of volunteers in setting up, manning, and taking down the show.

Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the Greenville Art Center, stated that the response of artists in bringing works for the show was much greater than anticipated, and that everyone involved was delighted with the success of the exhibition.

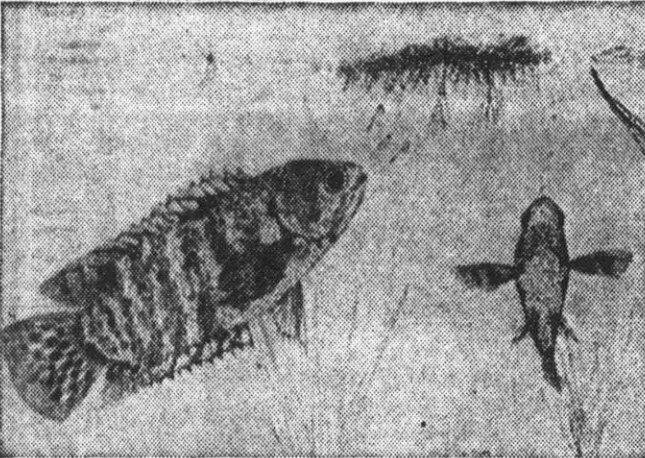

A cross section of current trends, styles and methods of artists — amateur, student and professional — can be seen from the photographs shown on this page.

More Marines Preparing To Leave Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — About 1,000 Marines of the 3rd Division flew from Vietnam to Okinawa today and another 4,900 prepared to depart for the United States in the first big move in the 35,000-man withdrawal ordered by President Nixon.

Other 3rd Division Leathernecks were not so lucky. One was killed and nine wounded when North Vietnamese gunners slammed 10 mortar shells into their positions along the demilitarized zone.

American B52 bombers retaliated by dropping 600 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese staging areas and just south of the DMZ.

By Christmas, about 18,000 Leathernecks will have left Vietnam as part of Nixon's second troop reduction. A cutback of 25,000 U.S. troops was completed in August.

The 3rd and the 4th Marine regiments, the two regiments from the 3rd Division left in Vietnam, have parted the western two-thirds of South Vietnam's northern frontier area just below the 40-mile wide demilitarized zone. The division's other regiment, the 9th was redeployed in the initial cutback.

Marine spokesmen at Da Nang said the first 1,000 Marines to leave were from the 3rd Regiment and from the headquarters and support units of the 3rd Division. All have served less than a year, a normal tour of duty, in Vietnam, the spokesman said.

The brigade's job, guarding the western and northern flanks of Saigon will be turned over to the Vietnamese army.

Another small Army Reserve unit also left Vietnam today with the Marines. The 842nd Quartermaster Company flew from Da Nang, heading for Forbes Army Air Field in Kansas. Spokesmen said the 120-man unit will be deactivated at Ft. Riley, Kan., then reconstituted in the Army Reserve at its home station in Kansas City.

The U.S. Command said the largest ground action during the past 24 hours was a six-hour fight between troops of the 4th Infantry Division and North Vietnamese soldiers in the central highlands 260 miles north-east of Saigon. Two Americans and 25 North Vietnamese troops were reported killed and eight Americans wounded.

Four small clashes were reported farther south along the Cambodian border in Tay Ninh Province. Headquarters said American forces killed 31 enemy without sustaining any casualties.

The U.S. Command reported 10 enemy rocket and mortar attacks besides the one that caused the Marine fatality. The report said the shelling wounded 10 Americans.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that a truck-carrying employees of a rubber plantation ran over a Viet Cong mine 35 miles east of Saigon, killing 11 civilians and wounding six others.

Headquarters also said two terrorists riding on a motorbike fired two pistol shots at a South Vietnamese army captain and his woman companion Monday night while they were sitting in a park on the outskirts of Saigon. The captain was killed, and the woman seriously wounded.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court may be asked to determine whether Rep. Adam Clayton Powell should receive back pay and reinstatement of the seniority he lost when excluded from the 90th Congress.

At a news conference Monday, Powell's lawyer, Herbert Reid, said Powell would ask the court to "enforce its own mandate."

The Supreme Court last June ruled that Powell had been illegally barred from the House, but did not take a position on the New York Democrat's request for $55,000 back pay, seniority and quashing of a House-imposed $40,000 fine.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it's as confused as Libya by the case of an American who reportedly smuggled a Libyan citizen out of the African country and contends "no element of the U.S. government was involved."

Neither country can determine who the fugitive was or why he was smuggled out of Libya in a large box designed for a musical instrument, Press Officer Carl Bartch said Monday.

The American was identified as Daniel de Carlo, superintendent of the American school at Wheelus Air Force Base in Libya, who allegedly arranged for the box containing the man to be flown on an Air Force plane to Malta a week ago.

Now the government can't find either de Carlo or the fugitive. The United States has apologized to Libya for the incident. The African kingdom recently was taken over by its army and proclaimed a republic.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Safeway food stores in Washington's inner city area are experimenting with different ways of unit pricing to help buyers spend more wisely.

The two stores are serving as a laboratory for legislators who have under consideration bills making unit pricing mandatory and for New York retailers who must adopt unit pricing in November under a state law.

At one store, prices for all commodities according to weight are marked on display shelves. One tag, for example, shows fruit cocktail selling for 32 cents a pound in small cans, 25 cents a pound in medium cans and 21 cents a pound in large cans.

The other store utilizes a circular slide rule which customers must use to determine the unit price of a good. Both experiments began Monday.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., who has introduced unit price legislation in the House, said he thinks the method could be "a very useful thing."

"If it works it will save the housewife money," he said.

Sees New Crisis Of 'Confidence'

Expansionists Want To Create Bigger Capitol

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most congressmen agree something must be done about the historic but crumbling sandstone walls on the west front of the United States Capitol, but there is a sharp disagreement over the proper solution.

At stake is survival of the last remaining exterior work by early American artisans who built the Capitol.

The Senate is considering a House-passed measure to provide planning money for a massive extension of the Capitol building—construction that would bury the walls.

Approval of the planning funds would virtually assure extension.

The central west facade would be extended up to 88 feet, creating 4½ acres of new space for restaurants, toilets, visitor centers, meeting rooms and numerous private offices for congressmen.

Sen. Stephen Young, D-Ohio, has accused the expansion proponents, led by House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Capitol Architect J. George Stewart, of trying to "make the Capitol into a king-sized Howard Johnson's."

The original Capitol was designed by Dr. William Thornton, a Virgin Island-born Philadelphia physician who was selected by George Washington.

It was built principally by James Hoban, the Irish emigrant who constructed the first wing and also designed and built the White House; Benjamin Latrobe, who added a second wing and restored the Capitol after the British burned it in 1814, and Charles Bulfinch of Boston, who put up the center section and rotunda.

Much of the historic work has been sacrificed in previous expansions.

When the east front was extended a decade ago, the sculptured panel above the central portico carved by Luigi Persico on a design by President John Quincy Adams was lost to the Capitol. Also carted off were two decayed statues of War and Peace by Persico as well as a number of columns.

Everything else was covered over by the new walls, except for a couple of window casings which were allowed to show through into a new inside corridor.

The old work was carefully copied in more durable marble, and the same will be done on the west side. But critics of the idea ask just how much a replica is worth. Try telling an art collector you will give him a fresh new copy for his wrinkled old Rembrandt, they say.

The original portions of the Capitol were built of sandstone at Washington's insistence because it was cheap and the young republic was hard pressed for cash.

"All the original architects recommended marble," said Mario E. Campioli, Stewart's assistant. "If they had used marble, perhaps we wouldn't be having the trouble we are having today."

Beside the burning by the British, the Capitol suffered another major fire in 1851 and a gas explosion in 1898.

Stewart, in arguing for extension, says he fears some new calamity if the west wall is not stabilized.

"I worry especially during an occasion such as the state funeral services of the late President Eisenhower when the leaders of all branches of government were concentrated in the Capitol and when many thousands of our citizens passed through the building," Stewart said.

"Just think of what would result if during such a period the west section should collapse or even partially collapse."

Also on the side of expansion is the recommendation of past Capitol architects. Both Latrobe and Bulfinch prepared drawings showing a pediment on the west central front, one of the changes planned.

Thomas U. Walter, who built the present House and Senate wings and added the great dome in the 1860s, said the fronts needed to be extended to accommodate the outsized dome.

The extensionists also say the Capitol was never just one building but has grown through the years.

Their biggest argument is that there is no other way to save the building, basing their case on a 1964 study by a consultant engineering firm. But most of the five-volume report is taken up with details on the building's condition.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., complained "there is only one small paragraph which states flatly, without any description or analysis, that restoration is impossible and extension is the only solution."

Opponents, led by the American Institute of Architects, claim the wall can be saved in its present condition.

"Restoration does not provide a permanent solution," counters Campioli. "Whatever the form of restoration or the method it would result in a makeshift job."

Campioli also told Congress that restoration would require evacuation for a long period of time large areas of the Capitol, including offices of congressional leaders.

The opposition contends everything done so far on the official level has been slanted toward building a case for extension.

The movement was initiated by a group, composed of Stewart, McCormack and other top congressional leadership, called the Commission for the Extension of the United States Capitol.

"They just haven't made any study to see if the west front could be saved and how much it would cost," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. "Apparently they're afraid of what it might show."

Opponents claim the extension will cost five times as much per square foot as the new Rayburn House Office Building, which skyrocketed above cost estimates.

Critics also say that eight of the last nine major design contracts awarded for Capitol Hill construction have gone to a small group of architects—now in partnership. The same group has contracts for the west front extension.

U.S. Spends More On Recreation Than War

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Delving into the spending patterns of Americans, a future researcher might conclude that Americans of 1969 were a curious people indeed, a nation of warriors and sportsmen, a people at war and at play simultaneously.

With little effort he would learn that some $20 billion to $25 billion was spent on a war in Vietnam, but that much more than that—perhaps $10 billion more—was spent on recreation.

In one obscure category—"Inflated balls other than football and basketball"—playful Americans this year will spend well over $17 million, an estimate based on past behavior.

Tremendous comment and criticism has accompanied the rise in military spending. But relatively unnoticed, spending on recreation is producing a boom for manufacturers of sporting goods.

A report prepared for the National Sporting Goods Association estimates that on equipment alone Americans will spend more than $4 billion this year.

Pleasure boats are expected to account for about $800 million of the total, winter sports for about $70 million, tennis the same amount, golf about $300 million and firearms $500 million.

Increasingly, Americans are taking to the outdoors and the sporting goods people forecast confidently that the same trend will continue undiminished and perhaps might even accelerate.

The big factor at work is rising income. Preference rather than necessity dictate how it is spent.

A study by Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis notes that families earning at least $10,000 spend more than $500 a year on recreation, including $90 on participant sports.

Spending by families with income of $5,000 or less comes to only $125, however, and only $14 of that goes for participant sports.

Education is factor also. Families headed by college graduates spend significantly more than those in which the parents have only high school diplomas. And the higher the occupational level, the greater is the tendency to spend on sports.

Eagle Badge To Troop 205 Scout Class Agents In DukeFundDrive

Paul Vernon of Boy Scout Troop 205 was presented the Eagle Scout award Sunday during services at the First Presbyterian Church. Vernon is the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. E. Vernon of 420 Longmeadow Rd. The award was presented by Three Greenville men who are Duke University alumni will serve as class agents for Duke's 23rd anniversary Loyalty Fund Drive, according to an announcement from the Duke National Council.

They are Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, Dr. Melvin J. Williams, chairman of East Carolina University department of sociology and anthropology, and Larry R. Norwood.

John A. Forlines, chairman of the national council, said the class agents have the major responsibility for reaching this year's million-dollar goal. "Duke needs this support and more for its annual operating budget if it is to remain a great institution," he said.

This year's class agent kick-off meeting will be held October 11 at Duke's new Alumni House. It will feature a workshop and an address by John Alexander McMahon of Chapel Hill, president of Duke's general alumni association.

Robert Mosley, district scout executive. Vernon is the third scout from Troop 205 to receive the Eagle award this year. Troop 205 is sponsored by the Memorial Baptist Church.

Stars Get First Chance To Prove They Can Challenge Here Thursday

"We should be a definite contender this year." These are the words of Coach Bill Sharman of the Los Angeles Stars of the American Basketball Association. Sharman, a veteran of both cage leagues, will get the opportunity to show how good his team might be when he meets the new Carolina Cougars Thursday night at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

"We played our first season in the ABA with eight rookies on our 11-man roster," Sharman said. "That made us the youngest and most inexperienced team in the league."

He then pointed out that the three veterans really didn't have a lot of experience. Jim Jarvis played one year in the ABA previously. Warren Davis had a year with the Amigos and three in the Eastern League. George Lehmann, former Campbell College star, has a season with the St. Louis Hawks, and several in the Eastern League.

But despite this, Sharman feels that these same rookies and alleged veterans have matured during the off-season. "I believe that our young players will profit from their year's experience under fire. There is a big difference between a 25-game college schedule and the 80 or 85 games you play in pro ball."

Three players on the Star roster made the ABA All-Rookie team last year. Highlighting them is former University of North Carolina star Larry Miller, who paced the team with a 17-point scoring average. He was named to the first team.

George Stone, a fine outside shooter, and Merv "The Magician" Jackson made the second unit. Jackson was the only rookie to play in the ABA All-Star contest.

The Stars also have recruited a fine list of rookies for this year. They include Simmie Hill, West Texas State's All-America, who was picked by the scouts as the second-most likely college player to succeed in the pro ranks. At 6-7, he can play forward or center. He was first round pick for the NBA's Chicago Bulls.

Ted Wierman, a 6-9 forward from Washington State, Michigan's 6-6 guard-forward Dennis Steward, one of the top rebounders in the Big Ten, Mack Calvin, a slick ball-handler from Southern California, and Willie Wise, a do-everything type from Drake, also make up part of the rookie list.

Los Angeles can count on veteran Warren Davis (6-6 with a 12.7 average) and George Stone (6-8, 15.7) at the corners, plus a pair of swing men, Bob Warren (6-5, 11.8) and Miller, who could see action at either forward or guard. Edgar Lacy (6-6) and Elvin Ivory (6-8) didn't see much action last year, but should profit from limited experience.

The center spot may again be the trouble spot for the Stars. Ed Johnson (6-9, 11.7) never fulfilled hopes for him after missing 19 games because of a broken elbow. Dennis Grey, 6-8, was the backup man, but suffered from an injury when he collided with Lew Alcindor in a pick-up game. Sharman is hopeful that Phil Harris, 6-10, will be able to shoulder the load.

At the guards are George Lehmann (18.8), the fourth-leading three-point shooter in the ABA, and Merv Jackson (15.7), considered by many to be a future super-star. "If we can get the expected help from our second-year players, if one of the centers comes through, and our rookies are as impressive as their college credentials, we'll be tough," Sharman summed up.

Indians' Holtz Is Worried About Facing Tough Virginia On Saturday

Lou Holtz gained victory No. 1 as a head football coach when William a Mary edged Temple, 7-6, last Saturday night in Philadelphia, but for a reason familiar to coaches, he has done precious little celebrating.

"It was a very nice thing that happened in Philadelphia, but what's going to happen in Williamsburg this weekend?" Holtz asks. "I'm doing a lot more worrying than gloating. We are not a good football team—yet."

Specifically, it's the University of Virginia football team that has Holtz hot and bothered.

The Cavaliers will furnish the opposition Saturday afternoon at Cary Field in the first UVA-W&M meeting since 1964.

Holtz says W&M scouts came back impressed after watching Virginia lose its opener to Clemson, 21-14—then came home absolutely bug-eyed after seeing the Cavaliers rough up Duke defensively last Saturday in a 10-0 victory.

"Aside from one passing bomb that Clemson threw against them, I haven't seen anyone move the ball on them yet," says the W&M coach. "They have an outstanding team. They don't score much, but they move the ball."

Basically, William and Mary's problem against Virginia will be how to get the ball across the goal line. The Indians, while 1-1 for the season, haven't shown much punch, outside of the fine running of fullback Joe Pilch who has scored all three of their touchdowns to date.

Of some consolation to Holtz is the fact that Virginia has an offensive problem, too. Like W&M, the Cavaliers haven't frightened anyone with their passing. And like the Indians, they have gotten their most offensive wallop from a fullback—Gary Helman, who's scored two of their three TD's.

Pilch has run for 196 yards in two games, Helman for 198. Only mild aerial threats have been mounted by Virginia quarterback Danny Fasio and W&M's alternating quarterback, Jimmie Laycock and Wes Meeteer.

The Virginia-W&M series began in 1908, and Virginia leads 17-3-1. The first 10 times the teams met, W&M was shut out. Holtz doesn't think the Indians will be blanked this weekend, though—"unless we make mistakes."

The Indians began practice for the game Monday by having a look at Virginia's offensive and defensive alignments and working on their kicking game. The second unit players scrimmaged the freshmen.

Richmond's reserves also scrimmaged the frosh as the Spiders began preparing for their rugged encounter with Virginia Tech. The No. 1 units worked only briefly.

Mistakes committed last Saturday were reviewed at the Citadel, where 600-yard wind sprints were in order as the Bulldogs commenced practice for their conference debut—at East Carolina.

Defensive halfback Tommy Bullock was out with a badly bruised shoulder at East Carolina, which used the drills to work on its passing game.

Physical conditioning was emphasized at Davidson—a 77-14 winner at Furman last weekend—and coach Homer Smith said films of the runaway showed "we made numerous mistakes. There's a lot of room for improvement."

VMI's Keydets, who play at unbeaten West Virginia this week, held a light workout, then reviewed movies of last week's loss to Richmond.

Pirates Hold Light Workout

East Carolina University's Pirates went through a light workout yesterday as they started work for Saturday's game with The Citadel. The game will be East Carolina's Collegiate Football Centennial Celebration game.

All of the Pirates are reported in good physical condition except for defensive halfback Tommy Bullock, who was out with a bruised shoulder. He collided with the Louisiana Tech bench when knocked out of bounds on a punt return. He is a uncertain starter for Saturday's game.

Working in light equipment, the varsity worked on improving its pass offense, while the defensive unit looked over Citadel's "veer" offense, patterned after the Houston option play.

George Wooten of 1503 Spruce Street is this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest winner.

Wooten correctly picked the winners in 28 of the 32 contest games for the week.

Second place went to Randy Avery of Box 141, Winterville. He was just one miss back with 27 correct. Two other people also picked the winners in 27 of the games, but were further away on the point total. Avery's pick of 93 points was closest to the 96 scored in the Iowa-Washington State game.

It is noted that ties are counted wrong in scoring the contest.

The third week's contest appears in today's paper.

'Cats' Terry Is Southern Choice

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — A placekicking specialist — Davidson's Ed Terry—today was selected as offensive player of the week in Southern Conference football for his record-setting performance at Furman last Saturday night.

As Davidson made a 77-14 shambles of the game, Terry established a school and conference record by booting 11 consecutive extra points—one after each Wildcat touchdown.

They Mine Gold Again In Calif. Ghost Town

By MIKE DOAN
Associated Press Writer
VANDERBILT, Calif. (AP) — In the 1890s, when this desert town was home to 2,000 lusty miners and Wyatt Earp's brother Virgil ran the Gold Bar Saloon, they scooped more than $1 million in gold from the barren hills.

It was easy pickings getting gold near the surface in the days when Las Vegas, 60 miles north, was just a water hole.

But, when miners reached the underground water level, the digging got tough for crude equipment of the times. With the depression of 1896, Vanderbilt shut down. Since then, except for a futile try in the 1930s, the jagged 4,000-foot hills have not known the chatter of mining tools.

But now, with modern equipment and new processes for extracting gold from chemical compounds, Vanderbilt is alive again.

Where old-timers crushed the ore and recovered pure gold, the new miners use a chemical brine to process sulfides of gold.

Of course, it's not quite the same. Jack Jordan, 38, boss of the operation, travels by auto rather than horse, carries a briefcase and is responsible to a board of directors.

He's backed by 40 California investors, many in the computer and electronic fields, who set up a $2.3-million operation.

"The old-timers weren't dumb," Jordan said. "They knew the gold was there. They just couldn't get it."

Jordan's firm, Heavy Metals Corp., has drilled a 13-foot-diameter shaft to a vein just where old maps said it would be.

The vein, Jordan said is 7 to 12 feet in diameter, 600 feet long, and since it was tapped in early September has been yielding ore assaying $50 a ton.

That is enough to make a profit even though the U.S. price ceiling of $35 an ounce has virtually killed gold mining in the once booming West.

In many of California's gold mine areas, there's still plenty of gold but you can't get it out and make a profit at $35 an ounce. Several old mines have become tourist attractions.

Jordan says his firm hopes to extract $50 million to $100 million worth of gold. The mining operation also will yield copper and silver.

The 12 miners at the digs are unlike the old-timers, family men. They live in house trailers, set amid weird-looking Joshua trees overlooking a barren valley. Nearby are the collapsing remains of the old ghost town. When the processing mill opens this winter, the crew will increase to 30.

About the name, Vanderbilt, Jordan said, "The town was named after Cornelius Vanderbilt, the railroad magnate. He never was here. The people just said they were going to be rich like Vanderbilt."

Area Meeting Oct. 7 For Applicants For Adoption

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc., will hold an area meeting for couples applying for adoption on October 7, at 7:00 p.m., at Oakmont Baptist Church on Red Banks Road.

David F. Herbert, executive director, will lead the discussion, in conjunction with Miss Mary Ruth Divine, supervisor of the Society's Eastern Area Office in Greenville. Discussion will center on state adoption laws and on the Society's services. Anyone who is interested in adoption is invited to attend.

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc., is the state's only licensed private, non-sectarian, voluntarily-supported and statewide adoption agency. Through its services, about 300 babies are annually placed in permanent homes. The Society cooperates with the State Department of Social Services and child-care institutions in finding homes for older children.

Since its founding in 1903, The Children's Home Society has brought to more than 11,000 children the protection of an adoptive home.

Safety Council Meets Thursday

A program on narcotics will highlight the regular meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Thursday at the Greenville Country Club.

Dr. Marvin Kuchar of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Co. plant at Kinston will give the program on drugs and narcotics. Anyone interested in safety of any type is welcomed to attend the Lutch luncheon meetings of the Safety Council and to become members of the county-wide organization.

Found $100, He Is Given Glasses

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)—To 11-year-old Mike Hooper the $100 he found in a receipt bag in the street was a lot of money — "An awful lot."

Mike had broken his glasses and everything beyond 19 inches was blurred and his parents couldn't afford to buy him new ones.

But Mike walked to the Foothill Division of the police department and turned the money over to Detective Ron Barnes.

The officer noticed the boy was squinting and learned about the broken glasses.

"How will you get new ones," Barnes asked.

"My mom and dad can't afford to buy me any, so I've started delivering newspapers, sir," Mike replied. "I'm saving up."

Barnes is president of a Lions Club and he took Mike's story to the members.

"He could have taken part of the lost money," Barnes said, "but he didn't. He turned it in."

At the next club meeting Barnes brought Mike with him. The Lions gave him his new glasses.

"When he put them on, after living in a blurred world for more than a month, his eyes beamed," Barnes said.

Two Tar Heels Die In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two more North Carolina servicemen have died in the Vietnam war, and one is missing.

Killed in action were Pfc. James E. Crosby of Whitsett in Guilford County and Pfc. Robert L. Hager Jr. of Kannapolis.

Missing as a result of hostile action is Pfc. Fred A. Griffin Jr., of Charlotte.

All are Army men.

Sees Cynicism On U.S. Ideals

DAVIDSON, N. C. (AP) — A former university president says black students will probably continue to be rebellious until universities quit being "unwitting partners to a social system that responds sluggishly and only under pressure to the call to justice."

Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, former president of North Carolina A&T University in Greensboro and now professor of education at Rutgers University, made the statement in a speech at Davidson College Monday. He said young blacks are not as fearful of confronting whites as were their fathers, and that they have grown cynical about American ideals.

More Time For Cannon Mills

KANNAPOLIS, N. C. (AP) — Cannon Mills has been granted its fourth extension to reply to a U. S. Justice Department suit charging racial discrimination in employment and in rental of company housing.

Cannon, which was to have replied Monday under terms of the third extension, was given until Nov. 30 by U. S. District Court in Greensboro according to the firm's lawyer, E. T. Bost.

The original suit, filed April 8, was the Justice Department's first of its kind against a major Southern textile company.

U.S. Spaceport To Be 20 Years Old On Wednesday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The nation's spaceport is 20 years old Wednesday, and it's a long time since mosquitoes stopped a countdown.

Fewer than 100 persons were on the payroll when the Joint Long Range Proving Ground, as it was then called, was opened for business on Oct. 1, 1949. Now there are more than 20,000.

The base then encompassed only 15,000 acres. Today it takes in 103,000 acres.

The test range extended 200 miles into the Atlantic compared with the present 10,000 miles, and sending people to the moon was only a dream.

"We only had about 35 people then," recalled Asa B. Gibbs, a now-retired Air Force colonel who became commanding officer of the Cape in 1951. "They have more security guards than that now."

The first missile—a captured German V2 with an Army WAC Corporal second stage—was launched July 24, 1950, from a filmy spiderweb of pipe and scaffolding.

The blockhouse was a wooden structure protected by sandbags.

A Jeep raced back and forth along a sandy road to scare away poisonous snakes.

It was a far cry from today's Apollo project with its cavernous assembly building, 363-foot-tall Saturn 5 rockets, computerized countdown and an elaborate launch control center containing some of the most sophisticated electronic equipment in the world.

"We were using a lot of old field wire for communications lines and often would lose contact with the pad whenever it rained," said Gibbs.

"I once called a hold on a BOMARC missile because of the mosquitoes. They got too bad on the pad where the guys were trying to prepare it."

Since the beginning, there

We dug into our archives for today's contribution which has baffled a great many of bridge's top luminaries since it first came to light in a major championship event a few seasons ago. The problem is to fulfill a small slam contract in spades with the North-South cards, a by no means routine task even when given the benefit of a peek at all four hands.

The bidding, tho' aggressive, is characteristic of modern tournament tactics. North lacked the 19 points usually associated with a 'jump' shift response, but he felt that the readily establishable club suit, his fit in spades and the heart void provided an adequate measure of compensation. South rebid his suit and North, having made his move, was content to offer a simple raise. South now cue bid the ace of diamonds and, when his partner reciprocated in hearts, South proceeded to six spades.

Observe that North's cue bid with a void is looked on as a highly dangerous practice. There is too much risk that a highly aggressive South might expect to find North with the ace and be induced to reach for a final no trump contract.

West opened the king of hearts, and declarer had available a choice of various spades most of which hinged on finding either a two-two division of the adverse spades or the king of diamonds favorably located. Since neither of these possibilities comes to pass, South appears destined to fail.

There is one winning line of play, however, which allows for the unfavorable spade break and requires only a reasonable division in clubs. The heart opening is ruffed in dummy and the two top clubs are cashed as South discards the jack of hearts. A third club is ruffed with the ace of trumps, establishing the dummy's suit.

A spade is led over to the queen, and a fourth club is played on which declarer disposes of his last heart. West ruffs this trick but is powerless to proceed profitably. If he returns a heart, South ruffs in his hand, draws the last trump with North's king of spades and discards his diamond losers on the remaining clubs.

Doubt Draft Lottery Plan Can Get Votes

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some key congressmen have suggested initial House hearings into President Nixon's draft lottery plan is likely all the proposal will get.

"The chairman promised them we would consider the proposal. He didn't promise we'd approve it," said one member of a special House Armed Services subcommittee prepared for today's testimony from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and Selective Service chief Gen. Lewis B. Hersey.

Although ranking members of the Armed Services Committee, chaired by Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., showed little enthusiasm, subcommittee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., a staunch lottery opponent in the past, promised a fair and impartial hearing.

"Paramount to and above any other consideration," Hebert said, "will be the answer to the question: What is best for the defense and security of this country?"

The Draft Act of 1967 prohibits the President from estab-

Attended Forum Held In Raleigh

Peace College students, Jo Anne Jefferson of Fountain and Ann Bass and Janice Thompson of Farmville were among the 30 or more students of Mrs. Elizabeth J. Middleton, instructor in sociology, who attended the eighth annual Fall Forum of the North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations last week in Raleigh.

Meeting notables included the Hon. Brooks Hayes, who spoke on "The Moon Age . . . Dimensions of Hope," Mrs. Elizabeth D. Kooztz, director of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor; Mrs. George Romney, wife of the Secretary of Community and Urban Development; and Dr. Ellen Winston of Raleigh.

The three Pitt County girls are freshmen at the Presbyterian junior college for women and all are graduates of Farmville High School.

lishing a lottery. Nixon has asked Congress to repeal that prohibition.

Nixon announced the week before last he will revise the draft by executive order to put the highest callup risk on 19-year-olds nearing their 20th birthdays if Congress does not approve his lottery plan this year.

But he said this system "will not accomplish the objective as clearly and fairly" as the lottery plan which would let 18-year-olds know months in advance their chances of being called.

Under the lottery system, as explained by Pentagon officials, the 365 days of the following year would be drawn from a hat. Young men whose 19th birthdays fall on the first dates drawn would know they are most likely to be called the following January and could make plans accordingly.

Senate Armed Services Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., left open the possibility—in guarded terms—Monday that the Senate may take up the bill if the House passes it.

"We would examine all the circumstances existing at that time," Stennis said, "to see if this bill with its limited application could be considered as a separate item during this session."

Otherwise, he said, Nixon's draft lottery plan will be considered along with other draft proposals next year.

Market activity continues to pick up on Pitt County grain buying stations with area buyers reporting an increase over yesterday and generally heavy volume of corn coming in.

Peak buying and harvesting still to come with better field conditions expected the rest of the week. Buyers report a hold on prices again this morning and attribute the stalemate to national inactivity as well as local conditions. Following are 11 a. m. per bushel price quotes:

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market, opening on the winning side, stalled in slow trading this afternoon and drifted ed downhill, as declines led advances by nearly 100 issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon slid 2.70 to 815.34. Analysts say that the market may be in for another taste of the 800-810 DJI level as it follows a pattern that now includes "bottoming out" or finding a platform from which to climb.

Once again, they point to lack of much support for a sustained climb.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon dipped to 286.3, off 6, with industrials off 7, rails off 6, and utilities off 2.

WR. Grace, with a block of 140,500 shares, topped the noon list of the New York Stock Exchange's 20 most-active issues at 27¼, off ½.

Steels, electronics, and utilities were mostly up, while rubbers, metals, and airlines were off, with motors, aircrafts, chemicals, rails and oils mixed.

General Motors was off 1 at 73½, among the actives, following a report that auto output and sales were expected to trail last year in the coming months.

Among other active issues: Amerada Hess 41¾, off ¾; American Can 49¾, off ¾; Eastman Kodak 72½, off ½; and Allied Stores 33¼, off ½.

Vote Slated October 30 On Extended Area Service

Sales Tax Boost Means Many Pay 5 Cents More

RALEIGH (AP) — Question: When does a tax of two cents per pack on cigarettes and a penny a bottle on soft drinks mean you'll have to sometimes pay an extra nickel for each? Answer: When you're in North Carolina.

The new cigarette and soft drink taxes go into effect Wednesday.

The increases in most cases will be only the amount of the taxes.

But in many vending machines, the prices will go up a nickel.

The machines aren't equipped to handle pennies, the owners say.

Why'll get the extra money? Why, the vending machine folks, mostly.

In some cases, the extra money may go to the persons who lease the machines.

It depends on contractual arrangements which vary from company to company and establishment to establishment.

But one thing's for sure: None of the extra take will go to the state.

The state's income from the new taxes is expected to total $25 million per year, $10 million of it from cigarettes and $15 million from soft drinks.

The cigarette tax will be added to current prices ranging from about 25 to 35 cents a pack, still leaving tobacco-growing North Carolina with the country's lowest prices.

The price increase for soft drinks won't be so simple, and price fluctuations can be expected for some time, perhaps months.

In some cases — probably rare — there may not be any increase at all.

That's because some soft drink bottling companies, citing increased costs, have raised their prices already.

Industry sources say that some of those companies plan to adjust prices on the various size bottles they sell so that they'll be no increases on some types or sizes.

Canned drinks sold in vending machines, for example, are expected to remain at 15 cents in some areas because of this price adjusting.

The soft drink tax also will apply to powders such as Kool-Aid and Funny Face and fruit juice such as Pineapple Orange Drink and Wonder Orange.

It also applies to syrups used in fountain drinks.

The North Carolina Soft Drink Association fought the tax in the 1969 General Assembly session and is still fighting it.

The association took full page advertisements in newspapers across the state today stating its stand on the tax.

Sam Whitehurst, the association's executive director, says he's confident the tax will be repealed in the next General Assembly.

"The public will demand it," Whitehurst says.

Families Happy Over Decision To Drop Charges

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Families of the accused Green Berets expressed feelings of relief and happiness over the Army's decision to drop murder charges against the men. One mother ran into the street to shout the news to her neighbors. "My son is free!" exclaimed Mrs. Frank Marasco, mother of Capt. Robert F. Marasco who triggered the killing a reported South Vietnamese double agent.

"When I got the phone call I ran into the street and yelled to all my neighbors, 'My son is free,'" Mrs. Marasco said Monday at her Bloomfield, N.J. home.

"I left my office as soon as I got the call and went to church to thank God for answering all our prayers," added her husband.

Mrs. Robert G. Rheault, wife of the former commanding officer of Special Forces in Vietnam, said she was "happy the charges were dropped. I'm happy because it means an end to the agony these men and their families have endured all this time."

Speaking at her Brookline, Mass., apartment, Mrs. Rheault said she believes the affairs "certainly has done damage to the cause of military justice in general."

"It seems to me they have a dual standard of justice—one for the soldier serving his country and one for a member of the CIA," she said.

Mary Smith, wife of Sgt. I.C. Alvin Smith Jr., said she felt mixture of joy and relief at the news. "I think the only people who can understand what I feel are the other wives," she said in Naples, Fla.

In Athens, Ga., Charles Williams, the father of Capt. Budge E. Williams said, "We're surprised and so very, very happy. I'd just finished taking shots. I'd planned to go to South Vietnam next week for the trial."

"If the Army had just spent one of the agonizing nights that I have, they'd never want another one," added Capt. Williams' mother. "Anyone who knows Budge knows he couldn't be a murderer."

The wife of Maj. David Crew, reached by telephone at her home in Glen Burnie, Md., said, "I'm just thrilled. I have so much to be thankful for."

"Are Daddy's troubles over?" piped in the voice of her 5-year-old son.

"They sure are," she said.

CAP MEETING

The Greenville squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will meet tonight at 7:30, room 124, New Austin Bldg., ROTC section, on the campus of East Carolina University.

Says Uprisings Masteminded

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

A campus police chief says student uprisings are being masterminded by off-campus revolutionaries who hope to take over the United States.

"The day of the student disturbance is past, at least at Berkeley," declared Chief William Beall of the police force at the University of California's Berkeley branch.

"The senseless violence at Berkeley during the past year was planned, instigated and financed by a small band of off-campus revolutionaries."

"Police should realize that student idealists and pacifists have been replaced by an older group of migrant street people, narcotics users and what we call 'crazies.'"

Beall said organizers in the San Francisco Bay area boast that they can mobilize 10,000 such persons in a week's time.

Beall addressed a campus disorders workshop Monday at the 76th convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Man Charged In House-Burning

Greenville police yesterday afternoon charged a 31-year-old man with the unlawful burning of a dwelling.

The charge stemmed from an early-morning fire at 404 West Third Street.

Acting Chief of Police T. E. vant, Negro, of 612 South Pitt St. was arrested after he turned himself in at the Police Department about 3:45 p.m.

Detectives, according to the chief, had been investigating the fire which had caused heavy damage to the wood-frame dwelling where his wife lived.

Two had been separated for several months, detectives reported.

Gladson noted that Mrs. Sturdivant was not at home at the time of the 12:20 a.m. fire, but was at work.

Firemen reported the blaze originated in a closet in the dwelling.

A vote will be held Oct. 30 on a proposed Extended Area Service designed to provide toll-free telephone service between Greenville and Bethel.

Approve Area Project Funds

The House Agriculture Committee has given approval to the Swift Creek Water Shed Project, covering parts of Pitt, Beaufort and Craven Counties.

First District Congressman Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., who is a member of the committee said the $2,722,352 project covers 230 miles of drainage and is merged with two other districts. A total of 109,920 acres of land in the tri county area will benefit by the work. Pitt has 92,000 acres, Craven 10,460 and Beaufort 7,460 acres.

Jones said that federal funds totaling $2,164,268 will be used for the work, with the remainder coming from state and local funds.

"Preliminary surveys are slated to begin early in January 1970 on the first stage," Jones stated. He pointed out that several similar projects which were up for approval did not get a favorable nod.

Damage Runs High In Two Traffic Mishaps Monday

Damage estimated at $1,495 was reported by Greenville police in two collisions investigated here yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:48 p. m. collision at the intersection of N. C. 11 and Road 1001 and involved cars driven by Sallie Mercer Weaver, 33-year-old Negro of Route 6, Greenville and Joe Bynum Gay III, 40 of Franklin, Va.

Both drivers were charged with violations, Mrs. Weaver with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety and Gay with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Damage to the Weaver vehicle was set at $210 while damage to the Gay car was estimated to be $800.

Thelma Simmons Arrington, of 817 Fleming St. was charged with having no operators license following investigation of a 6:20 p. m. collision yesterday.

Officers said the Arrington car collided with a parked vehicle owned by Jake Watson of 1108 Railroad St. parked on Pitt Street 75 feet North of the Wyatt Street intersection.

Damage to the Arrington vehicle was set at $400 while damage to the Watson car was placed at $75.

Cub Pack Visits Newspaper Plant

Cub Pack 330 of Greenville visited the Daily Reflector plant yesterday afternoon.

The Cubs are Howard Tucker, John Farley, Craig Cherry, Till Jolly, and Guy Smith. They were accompanied by Mrs. John Farley and Mrs. Guy Smith.

Shot Eight Before Police Killed Him

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A young Negro shot another Negro to death and wounded four white policemen and three women neighbors before encircling police killed him Monday night.

About 300 Negroes gathered at the scene of the gunfight and pop bottles were thrown at police cars. Two firebombs were hurled and a grocery window smashed.

Surgeons tried today to save the sight in the left eye of one of the wounded officers, G.M. Robinson. The other policemen were less seriously injured.

Police said Johnny Lee Thomas, 26, inexplicably fired a shotgun from the porch of his home, killing Frank Henry Buford, 40.

Officers Paul Wimer and Terry Donovan, first to reach the scene, were shot as they stepped from their squad car.

When Robinson arrived, police said, he saw Thomas raising the shotgun and tried to shoot him, but his revolver misfired and he took a shotgun blast in the face.

The fourth wounded officer, Stanley L. Southall, was shot after Thomas had barricaded himself inside the frame residence and police surrounded the house.

Pharmacy Halts Cigarette Sales

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Irving Magaziner has stopped selling cigarettes in his pharmacy. He says the change is costing him $1,500 business a week.

An eight-foot sign that covers the front windows of the Woodcrest Pharmacy states: "Because smoking is hazardous to your health, we are discontinuing the sale of cigarettes."

FILE APPROVED

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal judge's refusal to grant a temporary injunction against the Wilson city board of education's desegregation plan has been appealed to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

pany's Greenville office, the Extended Area Service plan for Greenville and Bethel has been under consideration and discussion for about two years.

A vote by postcard on Oct. 30, Langley said, has been authorized by the North Carolina Utilities Commission. Carolina Telephone customers in Greenville and Bethel will participate in the vote.

According to Langley, there are an average of 133 business calls per day between the two Pitt County towns. In order to provide the service, the utility company spokesman said, rates for service in Greenville and Bethel would be increased.

He said the proposed rate increase as set forth by the Utilities Commission includes 50 cents per month for all business (one, two and four party) lines and 10 cents per month for all one, two and four party residence telephones in the Greenville area.

For Bethel customers, the rate hike would amount to $4.75 per month for all one-party business lines, $3.75 for two party business phones and $3.50 per month for four-party business stations.

Bethel residence phones would increase $1.85 for all one and two party residence installations and $1.35 per month for four-party lines.

Langley said there are about 700 stations in Bethel and about 12,500 telephones in Greenville that would be affected by the Extended Area Service. He emphasized that the telephone company must remain neutral, according to a directive of the Utilities Commission.

The Bethel Rotary Club has scheduled a meeting Tuesday, Langley said, to discuss all the facts involved in the proposed service.

Langley said that the Extended Area Service is being proposed at this time in an attempt to avoid a communications problem before it comes about.

He pointed to the opening of Burroughs-Wellcome and Company between Greenville and Bethel and the opening of the North Pitt High School as contributing to the need for such service.
