

Two Militants Arrested In Asheville Curfew

ASHEVILLE (UP) — Two young Negro militants were arrested in an automobile at a checkpoint Tuesday night in racially troubled Asheville and charged with violating the curfew and possession of a firearm and explosives.

Police Chief J. C. Hall said the two, Preston Eugene Dobbins, 22, of Durham, and Victor Chalk Jr., 26 of Asheville, were accused specifically of possessing a shotgun, six shotgun shells, and five dynamite caps wrapped in tissue paper and stuffed into an eyeglass case.

Mao Again Appears At Celebration

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China's top five leaders stood on the red walls of Peking's Forbidden City today above a half million Chinese shouting: "Long live Chairman Mao!"

Towering over the 20th anniversary celebration of the nation he founded was Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, 75, whose appearance again belied widespread rumors that he was either dying or dead.

Mao smiled, waved and shook the hands of dignitaries as thousands of marchers turned the vast square below him into "a sea of red flags," Peking Radio said. Mao did not address the crowd.

Standing at Mao's side was his officially designated successor, Defense Minister Lin Biao who also has been reported critically ill. Premier Chou En-lai and Politburo members Chen Po-ta and Kang Sheng, Peking Radio said. Anr Kang ranks just below Mao and Lin in Communist China's hierarchy.

Lin, 62, delivered the keynote address, a nine-minute appeal for unity, loyalty to Mao, and continuing struggle against "American imperialism and (the Soviet Union's) social imperialism."

Quoting from Mao's works, Lin said: "If others don't attack us, we will not attack others. If others attack, we shall counter-attack." He made no mention of the two nuclear tests the Atomic Energy Commission says China detonated in the past week.

Moye To Head Gifts Division In Pitt UF

M. Jack Moye Jr. will head the Special Gifts Division of the 1969-70 Pitt County United Fund Campaign, according to a joint announcement today by J. Curtis Hendrix, campaign chairman, and Henry Flake, governor of Greenville Moose Lodge No. 885.

The Special Gifts Division is composed of service type business firms. Moye, Civic Affairs chairman of the local Moose Lodge, will lead members of the lodge in this community project.

A Pitt County native and a former tobacco auctioneer, Moye served as a bomber pilot during World War II, having completed 51 combat missions. He later transferred to the artillery and was stationed in the South Pacific, in Europe and at Thule, Greenland. He was awarded the Air Medal and the Commendation Medal. On July 1, 1968, after more than 23 years of service, he retired from the Army as a lieutenant colonel.

In accepting the appointment, Moye said, "I am pleased to lead this project to support the agencies of the United Fund which are vital to the welfare of so many people in Pitt County."

He expressed a strong belief in the United Way of giving, saying, "I feel that our businessmen and working people generally will be ready and willing to contribute their fair share when our members contact them."

Moye and his wife, the former Virginia Epps, have two sons, Sidney, a student at ECU, and David, a student at Wahl-Coates, and two daughters, Jackie, a sophomore at ECU, and Susan, a student at Rose High School. The Moyes are members of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, where he is a lay leader and president of the choir.

It is the only public high school in the city, and has 500 Negroes and 1,200 white pupils. Under the state of emergency, sale of firearms and alcoholic beverages is forbidden and assemblies and demonstrations are banned.

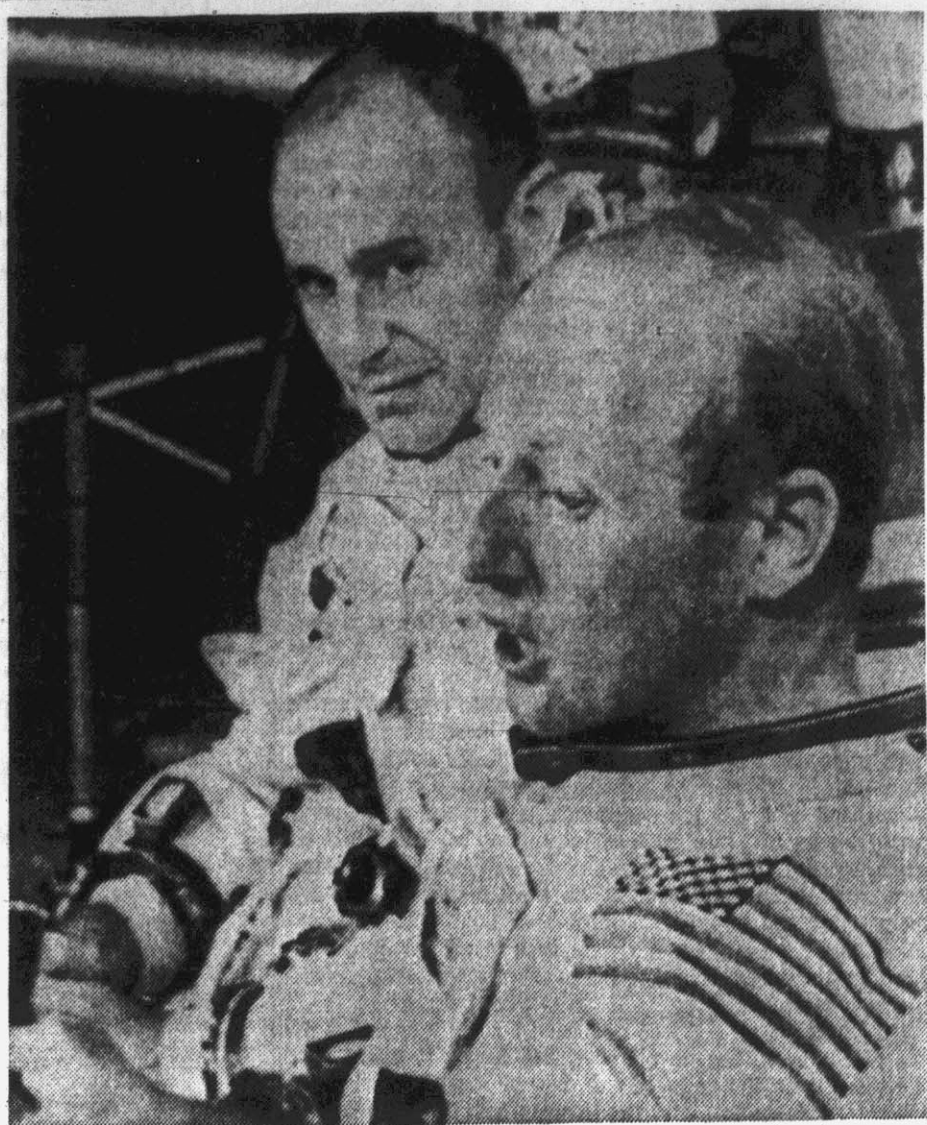

Police said that during Tuesday 11 persons, mostly in their 20s, were arrested as curfew violators, holes were shot in glasses at five business establishments, and a brick was thrown through the windshield of the car of the assistant police chief, Eugene Jarvis, but he was not injured. He was riding to investigate a burning auto tire on an expressway.

Police said a firebomb was thrown at a grocery in a Negro section owned by a white man, but that the bomb did not go off. This grocery was one of the five business places whose windows were shot at.

Of the two militants arrested, one, Dobbins, was identified by an assistant director of the Black Student Movement in Durham, Green, who is stationed in Raleigh and is one of the 25 troopers sent to assist Asheville police, said Dobbins was active in a cafeteria workers strike last spring at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

Asheville City Manager Phinn Horton identified Chalk the man arrested with Dobbins, as "an adult adviser to militant students in this area."

Police Capt. C. E. Durham of Chapel Hill says a Preston Dobbins was arrested in the university town last March 13 on a disorderly conduct charge in the troubles at the Lenoir Hall student cafeteria on the University of North Carolina campus. Durham said that Preston Dobbins, a UNC senior at the time, was fined $150 and costs and given a 30-day sentence, suspended on the conditions he not attempt to disrupt the operations of any educational institution and not violate any laws for three years.

Apollo 12 Astronauts To Do More Moon-Strolling

By JIM STROTSMAN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 12 astronauts may stroll more than half a mile from their moon landing craft next month.

Also, they plan to collect rocks with far greater scientific finesse than Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., were able to employ on mankind's first lunar scavenger hunt.

Apollo 12 Commander Charles Conrad rates chances as "50-50" that he will be able to land close enough to an unmanned Surveyor or spacecraft now on the moon's Ocean of Storms so that he and astronaut Alan L. Bean can bring pieces of it back to earth.

All this was revealed in an impromptu press briefing by Navy Cmdr. Conrad and Lt. Cmdr. Bean Tuesday following a dress rehearsal of their moon walk.

Meanwhile, the third Apollo 12 astronaut—Navy Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr.—helped crews at the launch pad with a countdown rehearsal test for the scheduled Nov. 14 liftoff.

Gordon will remain in moon orbit in the Apollo 12 command ship while Conrad and Bean spend some 31 hours on the surface, including seven hours outside the lunar module landing craft.

Mission rules will let the two crewmen wander 3,000 feet, or about two thirds of a mile, to visit the Surveyor.

Their emergency oxygen supply, needed if their main backpacks fail, has enough oxygen to keep them alive 15 to 20 minutes.

A color television camera that can beam live coverage of their lunar activities to earth has been built and "if it can be flight qualified in time, will be aboard," Conrad said.

The moonmen plan to make two excursions outside the landing craft, each lasting about 3½ hours and separated by an eight-hour rest period.

First priority has been given to setting up an elaborate set of experiments, Conrad said.

Conrad and Bean will collect samples of moon rocks documented in great detail.

Each rock will be photographed from several angles—with a color scale alongside—before it is picked up, Conrad said, and will be placed in a numbered bag.

Pitt County Fair To Open Gates Monday

According to Norman Y. Chambliss, manager of the Pitt County Fair, everything has been done in preparation for the official opening of the 1969 fair on Monday, Oct. 6, at 4 p. m.

"The fair association this year is offering $3,000 in premiums for general exhibits, livestock and poultry and we urge everybody to exhibit with us," Chambliss said. All exhibit entries, he added, must be made on the 6th.

The current edition of the fair will feature the Buck Page Exposition Shows and Rides. A total of 30 modern rides will be on the midway with the "Skidiver" and "Zipper" highlighting the attractions.

Monday night will be "Ladies night" with all ladies admitted free at the main gate with or without an escort, Chambliss said.

Children's Days will be Tuesday for Greenville Schools, Wednesday and Friday for county schools. All children attending schools and coming to the fair on these days will be admitted free at the gate up until 8 p. m.

Chambliss added that every inch of exhibit building space has been sold and all eating stands have been spoken for. His office at the fairgrounds is open each day for those persons with questions or inquiries concerning exhibits.

$76.79 Day On Farmville Leaf Market

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday averaged $76.79 per hundred pounds for tied and untied tobacco.

The average was based on the 52,812 pounds of tobacco sold for $402,990.23.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market, tied tobacco yesterday averaged $12.22 per pound. A total of 49,404 pounds of tobacco was sold for an average of $122 per hundred pounds. The highest price paid for tied tobacco was $1.67 per pound.

The top price paid for untied tobacco on the Farmville market yesterday was $1.05 per pound.

The volume of sales yesterday consisted mostly of leaf, smoking leaf and cutters, Williams reported. The volume of other grades continued to decline, he said.

The Cooperative Stabilization Corporation yesterday received 12.5 per cent of gross sales.

So far this season, the Farmville market has sold 15,557,107 pounds of tied and untied tobacco for $11,278,212, for a season's average of $72.50.

Denies Knowing If Anyone Killed Agent Unknown-Green Beret Cmdr.

By JOHN EAGAN
Associated Press Writer

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The former Green Beret commander in Vietnam said today he didn't know the alleged Vietnamese double agent he and seven of his men were accused of killing and denied there had been such a slaying.

"That is correct," Col. Robert B. Rheault declared when asked at a news conference if he denied there had been a killing.

"No," he said when asked if he had known the person a newsman described as the "alleged dead man."

Rheault, 43, also was asked if he thought "the Vietnamese killed was a close political ally of President Thieu" and "do you think this might have resulted in the case being brought against you?"

"There was no conclusive evidence that the individual was ever killed and there is certainly no indication anywhere that the alleged victim was connected with President Thieu in any way," the colonel said.

Rheault and six of the seven other Green Berets involved in the case returned to the United States from Vietnam to this California base near San Francisco the day after the Army dropped murder charges against them.

They headed for their homes shortly after the plane set down and an Army spokesman said all would get 30-day leaves.

The colonel said he believed the incident "would better be forgotten . . . so long as people remember that we were exterminated." He acted as spokesman for the others during a seven-minute session with newsmen here after a flight from Vietnam aboard a chartered jetliner that brought 219 persons here.

Rheault said he, the five other officers and two enlisted men did not know Thai Khac Chuyen, their alleged victim. He insisted there was no evidence that the man had been killed.

Rheault said he could not understand why the murder and conspiracy charges were filed against them.

Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor announced Monday the charges against all eight had been dropped after the Central Intelligence Agency, for security reasons, declined to let its agents testify. He said the CIA action precluded a fair trial.

With Rheault, of Vineyard Haven, Mass., were Capt. Robert F. Marasco, 27, Bloomfield, N.J.; Maj. Thomas C. Middleton Jr., 29, Jefferson, S.C.; Maj. David Crew, 33, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Capt. Leland J. Brumley, 27, Duncan, Okla.; Capt. Budge E. Williams, 27, Athens, Ga.;

and CW02 Edward M. Boyle, 26, of New York.

All had been charged with murder and conspiracy. Charges were held in abeyance for Boyle and Sgt. L.C. Alvin L. Smith Jr., 41, of Naples, Fla.

Smith was aboard a separate flight to the United States, after his departure from Vietnam was delayed in processing. Rheault refused to elaborate on his brief statement concerning Thai Khac Chuyen, who the Army charges said was slain June 20 near the Special Forces headquarters at Nha Trang.

As the men stepped from the plane they were greeted by attorney Henry Rothblatt of New York, who represented Crew, Brumley and Boyle. Rothblatt told reporters he feels the men were charged because of a "personal vendetta" by Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

'It's A Sad Day' Says Holshouser On Tax Increase

By TOM BAINES

"It is a sad day for North Carolinians," State Republican Chairman James E. Holshouser said here today. "Today, we start paying an even higher price for a state government which is not meeting the needs of the people of our state."

Speaking in Greenville on the second leg of a whistle stop tour of major North Carolina cities, Holshouser was here to announce the formation of a Republican Legislative Campaign Committee, created for the "sole purpose of taking control of the 1971 General Assembly."

Accompanied by Senate Minority leader Harry Bagnal and House Minority leader Charles Taylor, Holshouser denounced the recent legislative enactment of the gasoline, tobacco and soft drink taxes that were passed over strong Republican opposition.

"Today the second tax shoe falls—adding millions of dollars in unneeded taxes upon the people of North Carolina," he said. "The first shoe fell on July 1, when North Carolina citizens started paying the highest gasoline tax in the nation."

Holshouser stressed the point that the funds derived from the new taxes were not needed and would not be used to meet the needs of the people.

In citing the government surplus that he contends exists, Holshouser said, "Not since 1965 has North Carolina had a surplus of less than $150 million. I am sure that Governor Scott will make a superhuman effort to spend every penny possible during this two-year period, in an effort not have such a huge surplus, but sound fiscal reform is going to be necessary if we are to have efficient state government."

"As we formally open the 1970 legislative campaign, we also make our first campaign promise to the people of this state," the State chairman said. "We believe that the case for the two cent gasoline tax increase has never been made. While it was presented to the Legislature by Scott on the basis of the Highway Study Commission Report, even the Scott Administration abandoned that report an inaccurate before the issue was settled," he continued.

Holshouser promised that Republicans in the 1971 General Assembly will work for the "repeal of at least one cent of the gasoline tax increase." He also promised that Republicans would work for additional tax reductions in the area of the General Fund.

Taylor, in saying that the tax increases should come only at a time when absolutely necessary, added that the Democratic Administration should have started the new fiscal year with nearly $800 million more money than during the past two years in an increase of one-third.

"If priorities had been set and the money spent wisely, this one third increase should have paid for North Carolina's critical needs without a tax increase." Therefore, he said, the tax increases were not necessary.

Although the state's budget had doubled in the last years, Taylor continued, here was a very little done on the part of the new administration to economize.

Taylor added that the money would not be used in critical areas. "Although state teachers were blamed for the tax increase," he said, "they actually fared very badly in proportion to their needs."

The money was spent on something, however, Taylor points out. "Some $210,000 was appropriated to send three of the Governor's friends to (Continued On Page 28)

Hurricane Inga Slows To A Crawl

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Inga slowed to a crawl some 235 miles south of Bermuda today. Forecasters warned the island to keep in close touch with the storm's movements.

The National Hurricane Center said the storm was moving toward the north-northeast at 5 to 10 miles an hour. Top winds were estimated at 80 miles an hour.

"At such slow speeds," forecasters said, "the track may become erratic. All interests in Bermuda are urged to keep in close touch with future advisories as a slight turn to the left of the forecast track would increase the threat to the island."

Early today the hurricane was centered near Latitude 29½ north, Longitude 62.5 west. Inga became a hurricane Tuesday after dawdling in the Atlantic for more than two weeks. It gained, then lost intensity as it moved to the east and then north of Puerto Rico.

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — The French-French supersonic slipped through the sound barrier today for the first time and the plane's commander said it "was much calmer than could be imagined."

INSTANT FASHION

Your greatest self-expressed fashion can be achieved by hair arrangements. Just as some women love to wear different hats to express their mood or to complete their costumes, so do many take advantage of full wigs, and hairpieces such as wiglets, curls and fulls.

Quickie Hair-do

If you are one of those who has not yet acquired one of the above, by all means do a little experimentation which you will find is fun. You will notice how they contribute to your feeling of being in fashion rather than on the outside looking in. Hairpieces are certainly an instant fashion for it takes no longer than a few seconds to pin one in place. No one is too old to wear an appropriate hairpiece and no one — well hardly — too young — to enjoy the effect.

Buy The Best

While hair styles do go in and out of fashion, it is pretty well established that hairpieces are here to stay since they can be combed and shaped to conform to almost any contour of the future, and so your investment in them is well justified and you can consider them as sound an addition to your wardrobe as a sweater or a skirt.

The above sketches are included in our INSTANT FASHION Book — a $1.00 investment that is a true guide to a fashion-conscious YOU and your wardrobe. Just fill out the coupon below and mail so that you can learn in one day or it may fall over the cheeks, how to look tomorrow.

Grandmother Offended By Letter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned that my husband's grandmother was very much offended by the letter I wrote thanking her for our wedding gift. It seems that everyone in the family calls her "Nanna" but not being aware of this, I addressed her as "Mrs. Smith" in the salutation, and twice again in the body of the letter!

Abby, she never asked ME to call her "Nanna." In fact, I don't recall that she ever asked me to call her anything.

Quite frankly, since I have seen her only a few times — I thought the formal "Mrs. Smith" would be more appropriate — and anything more familiar would be a bit presumptuous.

Why can't people read a "thank you" letter and appreciate its sincerity and promptness without trying to find something wrong with it?

CAN'T WIN

DEAR ABBY: Some can. But not Nanna.

DEAR ABBY: Your answers to other people's problems are so wise, maybe you can help me with mine, tho I believe it's hopeless.

My husband and I have been married for 27 years, raised three children, and now we have grandchildren. He traveled for a living and made little effort to hide his cheating. He calmly told me (when I caught him) that it meant "nothing."

I have offered him his freedom a dozen times, but he always refused it, saying he loved only me.

10:00 a.m. — Service League Board meets with Mrs. Reid Hooper

3:00 p.m. — General meeting of Woman's Club at club bldg.

He has never wanted friends. Never knew a neighbor. I have raised the children alone, covering up for him, helping him in his office. We are financially well off, but what good is the money?

I am 5 feet tall and weigh 165 pounds and am told repeatedly that I look like a sister to my daughters. My husband has gained 50 pounds since our wedding and doesn't even think of dieting.

He keeps talking about how crazy he is about blonde hair. (My hair is as dark as yours, Abby. In fact people say we look alike.)

Please don't tell me I've been a doormat. I know that. What else have I been doing wrong?

HAVE BEEN MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: You may not have tried hard enough to improve your miserable lot. No man will give up his cake if he can have it, too. And for 27 years yours has been having a ball in a bakery.

DEAR ABBY: Never in my whole life have I been so confused about a problem as I am now.

A few weeks ago, my roommate came home from the hospital after minor surgery, and was sleeping peacefully after having taken pain pills and a sedative. Her boyfriend of long standing was just about to leave when I got the shock of my life!

He tried to get involved with me in a very private way. Need I say anything more?

Should I tell my sick, but recovering friend? It would hurt her beyond words, yet I think she ought to know what kind of "man" he is.

Maybe ignorance IS bliss, but for me to have such knowledge is a very painful burden. Help!

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: The

Dear Abby

word from here is "Mum." The ER OF FOUR DAUGHTERS: Yes, I tell mothers to teach their daughters how to cook, iron, and keep a neat house. But it's also that there is something even more important in marriage. Girls should know how to cuddle a man, entertain him, listen to him, laugh with him, forgive him, and make home a "happy" place to come home to. I have heard from hundreds of divorced women who whine, "—But I always kept a spotless home, and I was an excellent cook, and the dirty rat left me."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 68700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 68700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Reception Given Dr. T. W. Miller Tuesday Night

East Carolina University President and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins honored Dr. Thomas W. Miller, dean of the School of Music, at a reception Tuesday night.

A massive arrangement of white chrysanthemums and red carnations decorated the hallway in which Dr. and Mrs. Miller and daughter, Terry, received guests. Mrs. Miller and Miss Miller were presented corsages by the hostess.

Members of Sigma Alpha Iota, professional fraternity for women in the field of music, served refreshments to the guests.

Serving were: Margaret Ann Long, Severn; Betty Ann Worral, Asheville; Chris Louder, Hickory; Dottie Mills, Raleigh; Stephani Fouts, Richmond, Va.; and Judith Cliborne, South Hill, Va.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Miss Jo Hervey, Goldsboro, executive director of Girl Scouts of Coastal Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Cox of Grifton and Mr. and Mrs. R.B. Lee of Robersonville.

Dr. Miller, a native of Pottstown, Pa., was recently appointed dean of the School of Music to succeed Earl Beach. Dr. Miller received the BS degree from West Chester State College, the MA degree from ECU and the Doctor of Musical Arts from Boston University. He has been associated with the School of Music at ECU since 1956.

Herbert's Secret: Freshman Driver

NICE, France (WNS)—Herbert Leonard has passed his driving test with flying colors, but his lady secretary will continue to double as his chauffeur for another year anyhow.

In France, freshmen drivers must not drive over 56 m.p.h., and must post a sign to that effect on the rear of their cars. Leonard says that he is in a hurry and does not want "opposing" drivers to know that he is a beginner. "The ladies especially take advantage of your limitation," he explained.

in, and looked forward with even greater satisfaction to how shipshape it would be by the time Mrs. Perez left, while I had a day of leisure.

I spent the morning walking out to the sidewalk and looking in both directions. At noon, I started scrubbing and polishing. It was worse for the maid. She spent hours transferring from one bus to another, I learned later, then wandering around my neighborhood, hunting for my house or for someone who spoke Spanish to direct her. Finally, she went home, losing a day's pay.

Most women who hire household help have similar tales of woe—particularly if they live in the suburbs or an area inaccessible by public transportation.

Two Los Angeles businessmen have found a way to see to it that maids don't lose a day's work when they can't find a house or when the woman they usually work for doesn't need them, that housewives won't be disappointed by a maid who doesn't show up, and at the same time they're providing jobs for persons in minority areas.

Aaron I. Kapp, 36, and Jerry Dobkin, 28, profit too. As owners of rival swimming pool cleaning companies, they were familiar with the problems housewives have getting domestic help.

Buses Make Rounds Now six mornings a week four small buses lettered on the side "Housekeepers Unlimited" begin rounds picking up about 50 maids from their homes. At 6:45 a.m., they rendezvous and the maids change buses, boarding one going to the neighborhood where they will work that day. Depending on their destination, they are delivered to work between 7:30 and 10 a.m., and picked up to go home seven hours later.

Twelve-Year-Old Becomes Bride Of Musician

The employers pay the maid a fee set by Housekeepers Unlimited, and the maid pays the bus fare to the bus company, which is an independent franchise, and an employment agency fee to Kapp and Dobkin.

The buses are equipped with two-way radios so that when a maid isn't home or is unable to work, the bus driver can contact the main office and get the address of a substitute. That way a housewife getting ready for a party knows she'll have help—if her regular maid can't come she'll get a substitute whose references have been checked by the company, with no effort on her part.

Housewives who find at the last minute that they need domestic help can call the firm and put their names on the waiting list. If a housewife cancels at the last minute, or if a maid finds no one at home, she is taken to a house on the wait list.

During the 2½ years they've been in business, Kapp and Dobkin figured they've provided cleaning women for more than 5,000 households.

"Some women only want a maid a couple of months, but they call us whenever they do," Dobkin explained. "Others who have live-in help call us when they lose their help and need somebody new."

Allsbrook Should Look At The Need

No doubt Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, feels he is pursuing a popular course in calling for a special session of the Legislature to repeal new taxes on soft drinks, cigarettes and gasoline. And it is true that none of us want to see more taxes.

However the senator should have gotten down to the southern end of his district before he based his arguments on the building up of "huge and unjustifiable surpluses" in the general and highway funds.

It may be that up in Halifax County the highway needs are pretty well taken care of. However, down here in Pitt County we can point to road projects that are badly needed today. If the senator will come to Greenville, which is a part of the district he represents, we can show him streets on the highway system that need widening and improving right now. By the time the state gets around to doing the job the need will be critical. If the highway funds were to be cut, traffic conditions here would soon be impossible.

Or the senator might pay a visit to the East Carolina University campus. There he will find a library building which is designed for a student body half the size of the present enrollment. Funds for an addition were cut out of the 1969-71 budget; although funds for site improvements were included. Hopefully the millions of dollars needed for this addition will come from any surplus left at the end of the 1969-71 biennium. If this surplus were eliminated there would be no funds for this purpose. This library addition and other capital improvements are badly needed, even if there were to be no increase in ECU's students enrollment beyond present levels.

Like Sen. Allsbrook, we don't like taxes and we don't like tax increases, but we do recognize that needs of a growing state must be met.

If the senator will visit this portion of his district, we feel he can see without much difficulty where some of the additional money can be spent, and spent wisely. The tax increases are a fact now, and we would suggest that Sen. Allsbrook pay more attention to seeing that his district gets its share of the additional funds.

Island 'Might' Have Treasure

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — One story making the rounds, not to be taken seriously of course, is that the fabled Bald Head Island really contains $10 million worth of pirate gold.

There is a legend that the buccaners who infested the century buried at least that much treasure in plate, coins and jewels on the 12,000 acre island at the mouth of the Cape Fear River.

Island which is the outermost of the Smith Island complex. Whatever treasure might be found, if ever, could and probably would be subject to claims by the state. There are state laws on the subject of artifacts, treasure and retrieval from submerged vessels.

Question — The talk of hidden treasure and possible riches to be found on Bald Head Island is almost entirely speculation and conversation. The real treasure on Bald Head probably will be derived either by development of the subtropical isle as a tourist resort and coastal showplace or by preserving its 9,000 acres of marsh as habitat for the state's finfish and shellfish industry, whether commercial or sports.

It is a question which has not been resolved. In either case, the eventual monetary and economic result would far outweigh that of finding chests full of Spanish gold and silver and sparkling gems.

Travel — Is it true that North Carolina had more tourists last year than Florida? According to a recent travel study reported by the Travel and Promotion Division it did.

According to the report, North Carolina had more visitors than any other Southern state except Virginia.

It indicated that approximately 36 million visitors—seven times the population of the state—came through North Carolina last year, and spent an estimated $696 million.

The survey, which was conducted by a national magazine (McCall's) indicated that the typical traveler spent eight nights on the road, traveled by automobile and stayed at motels, with a total vacation cost averaging $345. It said the South is the most traveled area in the nation and had 242,800,000 visitors last year. Most Southerners, the survey said, restrict their traveling to within their own region. Travelers from the North and Central states mostly come South.

Texas Gulf's Move Is Part Of Great Trend

Texas Gulf Sulphur is the latest of the nation's corporations to see the value of locating a headquarters in North Carolina.

The company has announced that marketing offices for worldwide sale of phosphate and potash fertilizer materials will be moved from New York to Raleigh effective Nov. 1. Texas Gulf operates a giant phosphate mining facility in Beaufort County.

Burroughs-Wellcome has recently begun construction of its headquarters in the research triangle and other national firms have headquarters or division offices in North Carolina.

We believe there is a trend here that will be of great benefit to the state. With rapid transportation and communication available today many firms will find it more efficient to have their sales and administrative offices closer to their manufacturing operations.

White House Disavows Book

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Nixon's highly critical answer at Friday's press conference when asked about Kevin Phillips' "The Emerging Republican Majority" was no snap response but had been carefully prepared in advance as part of a concerted White House effort to disavow the book and muzzle the author.

A few days before the President's public rejection of the lily-white strategy implicit in the book, the muzzle was applied. It was made clear from on high in the Administration that Phillips, a 29-year-old special assistant to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell with the rank of special assistant, ought to curtail his public appearances. As a result, he quietly bowed out of a scheduled debate on NBC's Today show last Wednesday morning.

Yet, all this scarcely constitutes the outright repudiation of Phillips and his book that it would seem. In fact, Phillips' formula of writing off Negroes, Jews, establishment liberals, and the entire Northeast and concentrating instead on the South, West, and Midwest was, in essence, the 1968 Nixon strategy of campaign manager Mitchell.

What's more, Mitchell has the same strategy on the drawing boards for 1972. Administration actions directly influenced by Mitchell—slowing down Southern school desegregation, watering down the Voting Rights Act, nominating South Carolina's Judge Clement Haynsworth to the Supreme Court—all conform to Phillips' grand design of winning over enough of George Wallace's 1968 vote to form a national Republican majority.

What has riled up the White House is not what Phillips wrote but the fact that he wrote it. In candidly exploring matters so sensitive as ethnic and racial voting, Phillips has said the unsayable. Moreover, he has committed the cardinal political error of publicly writing off racial, ethnic, and regional groups.

Phillips began highly original research into New York City ethnic and racial voting patterns in 1965 as a Congressional staffer. He had expanded this research nationwide and had his book nearly completed before joining the Nixon campaign as Mitchell's aide.

Overnight, he became a national figure with the publication this summer of the year's most discussed, most provocative political book. Furious that a book by Mitchell's chief political aide had permanently conceded such major states as Michigan and New York to the Democrats, protests from industrial state Republicans poured into the White House and Republican national headquarters.

Furthermore, the same reaction was found among some Republican conservatives—including South Carolinian Harry Dent, protégé of Sen. Strom Thurmond and President Nixon's political aide. Although he closely collaborated with Mitchell in devising the 1968 strategy, Dent regards the Phillips book as a gift of political ammunition for the Democrats.

Consequently, Dent let it be known that he would welcome a rebuttal of the book by one of Mr. Nixon's most liberal young aides: Lee Huebner, an urban affairs staffer and a former member of the left-wing Republican Ripon Society. Accordingly, Huebner and Phillips debated last month over educational television in New York City.

Early in September, a senior White House aide (not Dent) prepared a highly critical memorandum on the book for Mr. Nixon. It recommended that, when asked, the President should say he had not read the book but still indicate clearly that he does not agree with it (advice he followed at Friday's press conference).

Strength For Today

URBAN CIVILIZATION
We hear a great deal today about the plight of our cities. They are seeking survival in the light of man's rush to the suburbs. Urban society finds it difficult to identify itself with the total life of our nation. Problems arise everywhere to make us wonder how the Church can effectively minister to people who are so inaccessible.

Urban churches are seeking to survive under conditions of constantly shifting populations and, as George Buttrick has observed, "it takes so much running just to stand still."

Indifference and a deep lethargy fill the hearts of many city folk, and the Church finds it difficult to present its message of the Saviour's love and man's need of repentance. The prosperity of the city often makes man indifferent to penitence, and we today are not so different from our brothers of ancient times in Chorazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum. More effective ways must be found to minister effectively to city folk in Christ's name.

For our civilization, whether we like it or not, is primarily urban. Cities create problems. By Earl L. Douglass

Must Remain Civilized

WASHINGTON — The Green Beret Case has everyone in Washington baffled. What does the Army have to gain by court-martialing six men for murder after nine years of war? To try to find the answer, I visited a general at the Pentagon.

"General, why are you trying six Green Berets for murder?"

"I can't comment before the trial. Just a minute please." He pushed the intercom button. "Harry, did those B-52s

... Oh, they hit a village by mistake. That's too bad. Tell them to be more careful. ... Well, back to your question. The Army has certain rules and regulations that all its members must abide by. ... A colonel came in. "General, the nerve gas that we're moving out of Okinawa. ... Did you want any of it sent to Vietnam?"

The general replied, "No, but keep it handy in case we need it at a future date. ... Let me see—the Green Berets.

If the Army command feels that a crime has been committed, even in a war zone, then it must bring charges against those responsible." The phone rang and the general picked it up.

"What's that? Well, if Saigon feels the village has Viet Cong, then they'll have to burn the damn place down."

Other Editors Say Those Who Litter

(The Wilson Times)
You read as much about the problems created by litter as any subject we know. Litter, and all it includes, is destroying the beauty of the countryside, the city streets and the front yards.

In fact, litter, auto graveyards and general disregard for order and cleanliness are truning this nation into a land of polluted water, and trash strewn fields and streets.

There are enough laws on the subject to clean up the entire country. There are signs along the highways, saying $50 fine to throw out trash, there are trash deposit cans. And how many cases have you read of people being brought into court because of littering the landscape? We cannot recall a single one. You know at sometime along the nation's highways and streets has been seen the ones who throw out the trash. But so few are arrested the signs have become just so much propaganda.

If some of the litters could be brought into court and fined, as the signs threaten, then there would soon be less littering. But as long as no one is made to pay the price of their disregard for the law and for keeping the landscape beautiful, then there isn't any way to control this menace.

You read of forums on the subject. Now the latest approach is to make people conscious of the damage litter does to the landscape, to motivate an interest in keeping America clean and green. This will not work, until it becomes known that those who break the law will be punished.

Every effort should be made to indict the offenders and fine them according to the signs. If some more drastic measures are not taken this will be ugly America. Yes, catch the litters and bring them into court.

Look, I don't like refugees any more than you do. ... Right. Get back to me when you get a body count. ... He hung up.

"I understand what you're saying, General, but haven't there been a lot of these so-called eliminations of double agents in the past?" I asked.

"Probably so, and I'm not prejudging this one. But if a crime has been committed, and I'm not saying it has—then the military men involved should answer for it."

A captain came in.

"Here are those defoliation reports, Sir."

"Let me have a look. Good. We really destroyed a lot of foliage. After the war we may have to start planting some crops for the peasants. But at the moment, they'll have to get their food somewhere else. Anything on the body counts yet?"

"No, Sir. We're still waiting for them."

Model Cities Slash

By G. C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has slashed $215 million from the Model Cities program—a 42 per cent cut in funds for rehabilitating some of the nation's worst urban slums.

The White House will allow only $300 million instead of the $515 million that had been ticketed in April to move at least 60 Model Cities projects from the planning stage to program grants during the current fiscal year ending next June 30.

Although Congress set up the program in 1966, this is the first year for implementing the plans to attack all causes of poverty within a slum area through one integrated program.

The Model Cities cutback, springing from the President's order of $3.5 billion in government-wide budget reductions to fight inflation, was disclosed by Nathaniel J. Eiseaman, director of the Budget Office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

There are a total of 150 communities in 45 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico participating in the program.

Two HUD programs that provide interest subsidies to low-income homeowners and to builders of low-rent apartments are the next biggest losers after Model Cities. Their combined outlays will cut from $39 million to $20 million.

An additional $20 million will be pared from grants for water, sewer and other neighborhood facilities, budgeted originally at $166 million.

However, increases in other HUD urban renewal assistance will partially offset the reductions for Model Cities and the other programs leaving the department's net share of the $3.5 billion in cutbacks at $162 million, Eiseaman said.

Top HUD officials say the Model Cities cuts were made necessary by a late and slow start for the program. They don't signal a Republican-engineered death for Model Cities, the officials contend.

Model Cities was the keystone of former President Lyndon B. Johnson's urban policies. The idea was to funnel all the renewal that federal-local money could buy into target slum neighborhoods.

President Nixon also pared $75 million from Johnson's request for $750 million in new appropriations for Model Cities. The House has voted $500 million, while the Senate has yet to act on the request.

The $750 million includes money that would be spent in future years and is not comparable to the $300 million in actual outlays now planned for this fiscal year.

The administration still hopes to obligate expenditures about $1 billion by next June 30, but the long term outlook for Model Cities is also clouded.

HUD sources say the Bureau of the Budget is resisting plans for large-scale expansion in the future because the program has yet to prove itself.

"The Budget Bureau finds this one of the easiest places to cut," said one HUD source.

Economy Going In 2 Directions

By ELMER ROESSNER

There will be only a slight resolution of where the economy is heading in October. For the most part, it will move in both directions, as it has been doing for the last six months. But the downward direction will be more sharply resolved.

On the down side will be:

Industrial production. It declined 0.3 per cent in August, for the first dip of the year. September data will probably show another drop, partly checked by the rise in auto production.

Factory sales, which have been declining, will probably drop a little more. Farm equipment sales are down and sliding.

Housing slump. As reported here a few days ago, building permits indicate a further drop in housing starts. Secretary George Romney of Housing and Urban Development now believes housing units may drop to an annual rate of less than one million by year's end. They were 1,547,700 last year.

Retail buying, as recently forecast, will decline in October, but will pick up thereafter.

On the Boom Side

All those factors will be anti-inflationary. But there will be many inflationary pressures at work. These include:

General price rise. Price increases are regular except when distress merchandise occasionally hits the market. Industrial, wholesale and consumer prices for both goods and services have been going up and show every sign of continuing their upward spiral.

Income. Led by salaries and wages, the largest component, personal income has been increasing, though the rate may soon lessen. However, there will always be some increases because of union demands and built-in cost-of-living adjustments.

Employment. While there may be some lags in October and early November, seasonal hiring will bring a rise in late November and December.

Auto sales. These are rising. Fleet and rental purchases are heavy. But two surveys show lower consumer intentions to buy and after bulk purchases are completed, there may be a lag.

Interest. There appears to be no substance to recurring rumors that interest rates are to be cut. There is now a widespread belief that they will rise slightly before the administration is forced to lower them to prevent a bust.

The conviction that there will be some recession of business late this year or early in 1970 is growing.

The flow of speeches of Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, grows more bearish. Last week he said there was "some evidence, that the chronically overheated state of the economy is beginning to cool."

Tilford C. Gaines, vice president and economist of Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York, told security analysts that there is a "strong likelihood" of a recession beginning later this year or early next. He said it would not be deep, however. Gaines is one of the few economists who have predicted that the anti-inflation steps would create more inflation.

Church Sold For Boys Club Home

PERMANENT HOME . . . for the Greenville Boys' Club. The West Greenville Presbyterian Church is being renovated as the club's facility.

The Boys' Club of Greenville has its first permanent home. The West Greenville Presbyterian Church, located on Skinner Street, has been purchased for the Boys' Club.

After sale of the church property was approved by the congregation and board of the church, purchase arrangements were made by William Glidewell and Austin Britt, members of the Boys' Club Board.

Dick Ullom, director of the club, reveals initial plans for renovating the church include addition of two offices on the front of the building, adding a lighted basketball court and a small football field, and dividing the building into a number of activity areas.

Activity areas in the building will include a large arts and crafts room, a kitchen, games room, library, and a multipurpose room for tumbling, weight lifting and indoor games.

"We are putting in new partitions, laying tile floors and painting," Ullom states, "and hope to have the center ready for operation sometime next week."

The self-winding watch was invented by Frenchman Abraham-Louis Breguet in 1791.

Operational hours and complete details for programs will be announced prior to opening of the club facility.

This church is the same property used as a temporary home for the Boys' Club until early June.

Holding Dinner For Contractors

A dinner for electrical and general contractors of Greenville and Pitt County will be held tonight at 6:30 at the Moose Lodge here.

About 60 persons are expected to hear speakers, Ed Clark of Cecil-Heat of Charlotte and Kenneth Knight and Douglas Perry of Olsen Engineering Company of Raleigh.

The theme of the dinner will be using electrical heating and air-conditioning in homes and small and intermediate-sized businesses. A preliminary Gold-Medallion home standard for electrical living will be presented. This is the program the Greenville Utilities Commission hopes to adopt in the future.

Representing the Utilities Commission will be Melchior Green, director, Henry Hoyle, and Bill Wright.

Groppi To Challenge Injunctions And March

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Rev. James E. Groppi invited students and welfare recipients to join him today in challenging a court injunction with another march into the Wisconsin Capitol.

Buchwald . . .

(Continued From Page 4) to me. "You have to understand that, although we're at war, we must at all times remain civilized. Otherwise, we could become just like they are."

The phone rang again. "I don't know why I have to be bothered with that," the general said into the phone. "Don't the flame throwers work? Well, then why don't they just throw dynamite into the tunnels and close them forever? And look, let's get those rice paddies mined. . . I can't help that. They can grow rice somewhere else. . . We can't take that chance. . . This is war." He hung up.

"If I had my way, I'd bomb the hell out of Hanoi and Haiphong," he said to me. "Where were we? Oh, yes, the Green Berets. . . Well, they are suspected of having killed a double agent. Our job is to find out if they did or not. If they did, we, as Americans, would have to take a very dim view of it."

The captain returned. "Here are the body counts, Sir."

"Hmnn. They lost 1,45 'Hmnn. They lost 1,245 this week. That's not bad. With this kind of a loss ratio, Hanoi will have had it by summer."

"General, back to the Green Berets. . ."

"I'm sorry, I can't discuss this any further. I have to get these body counts over to the Joint Chiefs. And don't worry about the Green Berets. They'll get a fair trial."

"I know that, General, but when it comes to a crime, where does the Army draw the line?"

"That's a good question," the general said. "But I'm not at liberty to answer it."

man Catholic priest declared Tuesday night during a rally which capped a second day of Capitol Square protest against the legislature's recent reductions in welfare payments.

Hundreds of University of Wisconsin students have joined Father Groppi's delegation of 35, including a number of mothers, who left Milwaukee Sept. 21 on a 90-mile hike to the capital.

An 11-hour take-over of the Assembly chambers Monday, which a state official estimated caused $26,000 damage, led to a Circuit Court injunction against further disruption in the Capitol.

The injunction was issued Tuesday by Circuit Judge William C. Sachtjen at the request of state Atty. Gen. Robert Warren.

National Guardsmen with bayonets joined police in a ring around the Capitol as demonstrators picketed.

Assemblymen in the damaged chambers came within two votes of adopting a resolution under which FAT Groppi could have been jailed for contempt of the legislature.

"Sometimes we have to pay for what we want," the priest told Tuesday night's rally in announcing he would defy the injunction.

Coeds participating in the Capitol picketing chanted "Power to the mothers!" Small knots of hecklers shouted, "Chow for the shiftless!"

The Republican-controlled legislature returned from its summer recess Monday. The protest activity forced postponement of a review of $33 million in welfare programs, many of them involving antipoverty projects in Milwaukee supported by Father Groppi's marchers.

Dec. 26 Banking Holiday Okayed

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Council of State Tuesday approved Dec. 26 as a banking holiday in the state and took care of several land transactions.

The council, with Gov. Bob Scott presiding, approved a request of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to transfer a small tract of land from the Chapel Hill school board to the state.

UF Meeting

A meeting of all county chairmen of the Pitt County United Fund, Inc., will be held tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the Conference Room of the State Bank Building, according to an announcement made by Ken Whichard, publicity director for the fund.

Ralph Tucker, county chairman, will meet with all area and division chairmen of areas outside Greenville in connection with plans for the drive to raise funds, which begins formally on Monday.

The land will be used for a child development research and demonstration center. The university will develop a pre-school and elementary school facility on the site. The board is to furnish $150,000 and a $2 million federal grant for the project has been approved.

quest of North Carolina Central University to transfer a lot in Durham adjacent to the university president's home to the state for $20,750.

Also approved was the purchase of a lot in Greensboro for $17,000 to be included in the site for a dormitory for UNC at Greensboro.

Cardiff Giant: One Of History's Great Hoaxes

By CLAY F. RICHARDS

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — The "Cardiff Giant," once thought to be the petrified remains of a centuries-old human, celebrates his 100th birthday in October still claiming the distinction of being one of the best hoaxes in history.

The giant has grown into old age in relative obscurity, compared with the hoopla that raged after his discovery Oct. 16, 1869, in a farmer's field near Cardiff, N.Y., south of Syracuse. Today, few have heard of the nationwide controversy that centered around the giant's 10-foot stone body, weighing in at a ton and a half.

Famous men from all walks of life, including Ralph Waldo Emerson and Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, were drawn into the debate as to whether the stone man was the figure of a god carved by Indians centuries ago, or was indeed the petrified remains of a giant who once walked the earth.

Phineas T. Barnum, somewhat of an expert on lumbags, even was inspired to create a fake of the fake and peddle it around the country as the "real" Cardiff Giant.

Later a farmer admitted he had had the giant carved and buried a year before its "discovery."

Even now the giant attracts thousands of visitors to his final resting place, the New York State Historical Association's farmer's museum in the upstate village that is better known as the location of the Baseball Hall of Fame.

George Hull, a Binghamton farmer, didn't realize what he was starting when he laboriously hauled a 12-foot block of gypsum from an Iowa quarry to a stone cutter in Chicago. His only motive was to play a practical joke on a minister with whom he had an argument over the meaning of the biblical passage, "There were giants in the earth in those days."

The carving job was a complex one. Skin pores were created with a metal hammer with leaden needle-like points. Sulphuric acid helped create the look of erosion over the centuries.

When completed, the huge reclining figure appeared contorted, as if the giant had died.

First U.S. Tour By Choral Group

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Choral Society will be introduced to the American public, with a tour of 20 U.S. cities, starting with a concert Oct. 21 in Burlington, Vt.

The chorus consists of 90 mixed voices and 35 accompanying orchestra players.

The Royal Choral Society was founded in 1872. The first concert, a memorial to Prince Albert, was conducted by composer Charles Gounod and was attended by Queen Victoria.

Until his death in 1967, the late Malcolm Sargent trained and directed the chorus for 39 years.

Lead Nation In Communicating

NEW YORK (AP) — There are more transportation, communications and public utility establishments in Pennsylvania than in any other state, according to Dun's Market Identifiers, a marketing service of Dun & Bradstreet. The Keystone State has 5,025 such establishments. New York is second with 4,923 and California third with 4,718.

Blondes Do Have More Hair

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether or not blondes have more fun, they do have more hair than any other people. There are approximately 180,000 hairs in the average blonde head of hair, compared with 120,000 for a brunette and only about 50,000 for a redhead, according to researchers for a hair products company (Clairol).

In agony. He measured 10 feet 4-and-a-half inches long and weighed 2,990 pounds.

Hull shipped the giant to Cardiff and, on a dark fall night, quietly buried it in the field of a relative, William "Stub" Newell.

One year later Newell showed two unsuspecting hired hands, Gideon Emmons and Henry Nichols, where he wanted a well dug down behind the barn.

Three feet below the surface the workmen struck something hard, and soon a foot, then the entire body appeared.

"Jerusalem, Nicholas, it's a big Indian!" Emmons is quoted as saying.

And that was the verdict, too, of many of thousands who flocked to Cardiff to gaze at the discovery. Others, who viewed the giant after paying the Jewells a slight fee to compensate for their trouble, argued over whether they had seen a statue or a petrified creature.

Andrew Dickson White, the first president of Cornell University, was among the early viewers. He said he "came, saw and narrowly escaped being conquered" before joining other experts on fossils and chemistry who later were to cry "Humbug."

Newell and Hull, meanwhile, were taking in thousands of dollars; as many as 3,000 persons viewed the giant on a single day. In a few months a syndicate of local men purchased three-quarter interest in the giant for $37,500, and the huge stone creature, and the controversy, went on the road.

It was in Boston that Oliver Wendell Holmes bored a hole just in back of the giant's left ear. He judiciously limited his comments to the opinion that the giant was a "wonderful anatomical development."

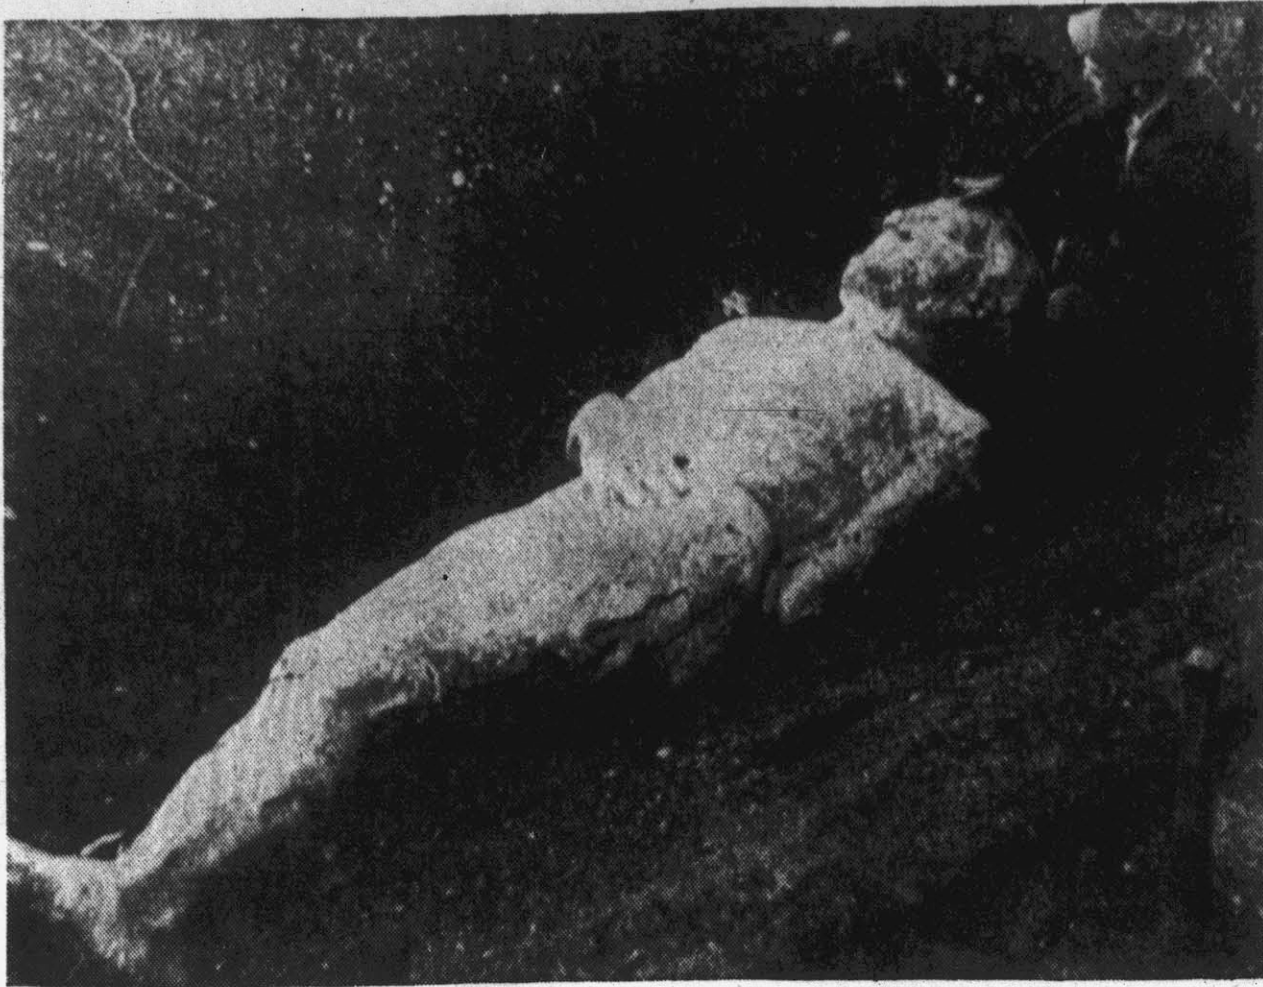

Ralph Waldo Emerson is quoted as saying the giant was "beyond my depth, very wonderful, and undoubtedly ancient."

As public opinion began to turn against Hull's creation, he came out with the complete story of the hoax. The confession, however, only increased the creature's drawing power.

Barnum, after his offer of $60,000 for a three-month lease on the giant was turned down, had a Syracuse stonecutter create a duplicate. For a time, the two giants were displayed less than two blocks from each other in New York City, the promoters for each claiming the other's was a "spurious imitation."

But after a few tours in the early '70s, "giant fever" subsided and the creature was put into storage. He emerged only occasionally for exhibitions, and drew large crowds at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo in 1901.

The historical association acquired the large piece of Americana from its last private owner, publisher Gardner Cowles Jr. On May 19, 1948, 80 years after its creation, the giant reached its final resting place here, an open pit much like his "grave" at Cardiff.

THE "CARDIFF GIANT" still has the distinction of being one of the best hoaxes in history. The 10-foot stone body is shown in this 1948 photo upon its arrival at the Farmers' Museum in Cooperstown, N.Y. (UPI Telephoto)

Decide Review New Air Routes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided to review an examiner's recommendations of a new air service for North Carolina.

The board, in making the announcement Tuesday, gave no reason for its decision.

Examiner James S. Keith has recommended Sept. 23 in an initial decision — one subject to review by the CAB at its discretion — that the board grant new routes serving the Raleigh-Durham, Greensboro - High Point-Winston-Salem, and Charlotte airports.

The routes:

1. Delta Air Lines between New York-Newark and Charlotte, and between Chicago and Raleigh - Durham, Greensboro-High Point-Winston - Salem, Charlotte, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Miami.
2. United Air Lines between New York-Newark and Raleigh-Durham and Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem and Charlotte.
3. Piedmont Aviation between New York - Newark, Raleigh-Durham and Greensboro-High Point.
4. Airlift International for all-cargo service only to Greensboro-High Point-Winston Salem, and Raleigh-Durham, on its route between Miami and New York-Newark.

Hippies Have Their Man In City Hall Office

By DAVID NYHAN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — City Hall's psychologist in residence gets $1,500 and a thousand cards with his name on them for advising the mayor on how to handle hippies.

Dr. Stanley D. Klein, 33, rides his bicycle from the University of Massachusetts downtown campus, where he teaches, to City Hall, where he advises. During the summer of 1968, when he spent part of every day worrying about hippies clashing with police on Boston Common, he was working for nothing.

This summer, he got paid, but worked less. Mayor Kevin H. White named a full-time 'youth liaison' staffer, but Klein still steers meetings concentrating on youth problems.

Klein, a bachelor who sports the widest sideburns of anyone in city government, thinks that good politics solved the worst of the hippie problem. What remains is an unsolved drug problem.

Firm but fair city policy has defused much of the tension between hippies and officialdom that at one point in 1968 threatened to turn into nightly riots, Klein said in an interview.

Nightly contests of will between police and exotically garbed youthful squatters caused mass arrests.

White named Klein, a friend and campaign worker, as a special assistant. Weekly meetings be an under Klein's guidance, bringing together police, hippies, clergymen, the mayor's office, and neighborhood groups such as the Beacon Hill Civic Association, which resented problems that trailed after hippies.

Citizen indignation ran high over runaways, drug users, blatant narcotics peddling and traffic-snarling impromptu protests. Klein separates hippies into three categories: —

"Mature" hippies, who were part of straight society once, but dropped out. One such group lives in communal houses atop Ft. Hill in the Roxbury section, and are "an asset to the community—they live the ethic," in the words of Barney Frank, White's chief aide.

—Tourist types, who come in their bell-bottom trousers to gawk and mix, maybe buy some "pot," but who go home after they've had their fill.

—Youngsters with drug and emotional problems—"who never really dropped in on society in the first place." This group along Charles Street also could be found in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury or the East Village of New York City. Klein calls them "emotionally unstable kids—into drugs in a serious way, and they have all kinds of defenses against what they call the 'sick society.' They get encouragement from some people who should know better."

The perpetual round of meetings begun by Klein and others concerned with hippies improved communication, especially with police. Some policemen actually looked forward to going to a church basement to explain their roles, Klein said.

He called Police Supt. Warren Blair, a familiar figure in mediating street disputes between protesters and police, "a great man... a man of great sensitivity."

"We tried last summer to find some leaders" in various hippie communities, Klein said, but admitted that there is no continuing leadership there.

"The key thing the hippies found out is that the cops are also human," he said of the weekly meetings.

Hunting N.C. History In British Records

Light of History

By Christopher Crittenden
N.C. Dept. of Archives and History

Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Will some of the secrets of North Carolina history be unlocked? Will new light be cast on some of the most questions of our past? Will hidden gems of long ago be unearthed?

These are some of the intriguing questions raised by the forthcoming trip to Britain by a manuscript sleuth. He's being sent over by the Department of Archives and History to search for documents relating to North Carolina colonial and revolutionary history.

The sleuth is Robert J. Cain, a graduate of Wake Forest University and a candidate for the doctorate at Duke. He has taught history at Wake Forest and also at Acadia University in Nova Scotia.

He was born in Wadesboro and grew up in Clinton, N.C.

There's no telling what he will turn up, for no thorough search for this purpose of all British archives and manuscript repositories has ever been made. From time to time, more or less sporadic checks have been made, particularly in the 1880s. Virginia recently conducted a similar investigation. Nine years were required to finish the job.

"The more I look into the matter," says Cain, "the more I realize that there's a tremendous amount of research to be done."

What are some of the possibilities? Here are a few.

In the Scottish National Library is certain little-known Flora Macdonald material. There are her depositions taken during the Scottish rebellion of 1745 and what seems to be a kind of autobiography she dictated much later, after the end of the American Revolution. The Scottish heroine lived in North Carolina from 1744-49. She returned to Scotland and died in 1790.

What may be a treasure trove may be found in two volumes listing some 10,000 names of British indentured servants immigrating to America about 1670-1690.

Never thoroughly worked are records of Scottish emigrants to America in the years just before the Revolution.

There appears to be a large quantity of records of colonial Gov. Arthur Dobbs of North Carolina in Dobbs Castle in Northern Ireland.

A vast body of church records relating to the American colonies has only recently been cataloged.

And so it goes. We just don't know what will turn up.

Cain expects to spend two years or more in Britain. The records will be microfilmed and will be made available for research in the Department of Archives and History in Raleigh. It is hoped that at least the most important documents will be published.

HUNTERS LEASE LAND

SONORA, Tex. (UPI)—Landowners in this southwest Texas county earned more than $1.2 million in 1968 by leasing their land to deer hunters. Revenue from hunting leases in Sutton County has increased more than 200 times since 1947.

Your Trip To Moon May Involve 6 Ships

By BILL STOCKTON
Associated Press Writer

CLOUDCROFT, N.M. (AP) — Planning a trip to the moon?

If Dr. Krafft A. Ehrlicke is right, it's going to involve six space ships and something like seven days of your time.

And don't forget to keep an eye on your baggage during those transfers.

Dr. Ehrlicke, chief scientific adviser for advanced programs at North American Rockwell, outlined his moon travel plan Monday to the International Academy of Astronautics, which is holding an international orbiting laboratory and space conference.

A typical flight to the moon as Ehrlicke envisions it would begin at an earth spaceport such as Cape Kennedy. There, a craft would rocket travelers to a rendezvous with an orbiting space station.

The travelers, and hopefully their luggage, would take a short ride by space taxi to the station.

The station would be a giant craft boosted into space by a nuclear rocket engine and cruising endlessly on a 13-day, egg-shaped orbit, passing behind the moon and then returning to sweep around the earth and back to the moon again.

The lunar travelers would relax in large, comfortable quarters aboard the station for the flight to the vicinity of the moon. There, another tiny taxi would leave a spacecraft orbiting the moon and rendezvous with the main station.

Passengers would transfer to the taxi for a short trip to the moon orbiting craft. From there they would catch a flight on a lunar lander.

The entire trip would take at least a week.

Ehrlicke said his plan would reduce the cost of space travel, because the vehicles could be used again and again.

The space shuttle station would be more than a luxury liner. It would include laboratories and be used to ferry supplies to other shuttles and moon stations. Most of its occupants probably would be scientists.

The shuttle would look like a 400-foot pencil with an oversized eraser and would contain living quarters, laboratories and control rooms.

Along the body of the pencil would be a nuclear power plant, maneuvering rockets, and docking terminals for the space taxis. The "eraser" might rotate slightly to create an artificial gravity.

Baltimore Court Drafted Jurors

BALTIMORE (UPI)—A Baltimore criminal court recently found itself short of 22 jurors, so the judge sent some deputies out into the street to impress passersby into service.

The deputies asked surprised pedestrians three questions: are you under 65? Are you over 25? Are you a Baltimore resident? If the answers were yes to all three questions the citizen was hustled into court for examination by the lawyers.

Barrel Fatal To Curious Dogs

"Every time we get a new dog it gets killed crossing the road to get over there," she said.

New And Modern Face For Old, Staid Boston

Editor's Note: The change is upward and outward for the nation's cities — caught between the needs of a growing populace and the ever spiraling cost of land. From Boston to Los Angeles, from Dallas to Chicago, cities are rebuilding decaying areas and uplifting worn and weathered faces. Here is the second of a series of articles on changing skylines.

By M. KEVIN LEARY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Boston, the traditional home of the bean and the cod, is undergoing a face lifting. The changes may be the most revolutionary for this staid old city since the Redcoats were driven into the Atlantic.

Hale Champion, director of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, says more than $1 billion in construction will be completed within the next six years; and that there's more than $800 million in construction currently under way or planned in commercial and industrial development.

Moreover, the $800 million doesn't include a planned $40 million stadium, a controversial plan for the development of a site for the 1976 world's fair and the creation of a $50 million downtown cultural-business complex, a project still in the theoretical stages.

On a more concrete basis, the John Hancock Insurance Co. has under construction a 60-story office building—the tallest structure in New England; the Boston Company Inc.'s 40-story building is scheduled for completion in November, and will dwarf the nearby Old State House.

A new city hall that looks like a cubist mausoleum, a crescent-shaped Center Plaza Office Building, and a modernistic State Service Center all contribute to the new look of the "New Boston," and believe the city's hidebound reputation.

Hidebound—no, but the city is tradition-minded. Mayor Kevin H. White recently unveiled a plan to spend more than $10 million in public and private investments to restore the historic Faneuil Hall marketplace.

Also linked to the past are current projects to renovate the city's waterfront and to preserve many historic buildings, while at the same time constructing highrise apartment complexes overlooking the harbor.

The waterfront, Boston's "window on the world" during the 18th and 19th centuries, fell on hard times early in this century, and currently the wharves are used mainly for parking and storage.

The waterfront renewal project is designed to turn the now shabby wharves into a housing and recreational area, complete with an aquarium and a shopping arcade.

Not as dramatic as the building of skyscrapers, or as romantic as restoring the city's past, Boston also has a model-cities program that seeks to attack the blight of the Roxbury ghetto section.

Paul Parks, the Negro administrator of the program, says the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has recently granted $7.7 million for the project. But, he adds, a minimum of $150 million is needed over the next five years to improve the plight of the approximately 62,000 Bostonians who would be affected by the program.

During the last six years, Boston's skyline has changed dramatically and it is currently undergoing a metamorphosis. But the question often asked here is whether there will be money available to redevelop the guts of the city—the Roxbury, North Dorchester and Jamaica Plain sections.

The total length of the Gulf of Mexico coastline of the United States is 1,631 miles.

Black Awareness Meeting Series To Begin Sunday

The first in a series of "Black Awareness" meetings will be held Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the Baptist Student Center, 511 East Tenth Street here.

Dr. William Troutman, head of the Political Science Department at East Carolina University will speak on "The Negro in American Politics." Questions and discussion will follow the talk to which students, faculty, and the general public are invited.

The series, sponsored by the ECU campus chaplains in cooperation with interested members of the University faculty, is designed to bring about an understanding of the achievements, culture, and aspirations of the Negro in America. Future meetings are planned to treat the American Negro in literature, history, music, and drama. Other topics will be presented if these are suggested in the course of the present Sunday evening series.

On the illuminated side of Mercury the surface temperature reaches 650 degrees Fahrenheit.

Yearbook Nude Says She Did It For Dear Old Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — "I did it for Rice," says the comely coed whose nude photograph appears in the university's 1969 yearbook.

The publication, called The Campanile, is due out Thursday with a picture of Marilyn Penelope Johnson in the altogether and, for good measure, a smaller one of Dennis Rex Bahler also unclad.

Both 22, they were among 15 seniors chosen as outstanding students by the student body.

Miss Johnson is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Willard Johnson of Quincy, Ill., and Bahler's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Dean R. Bahler of West Lafayette, Ind.

"We tried to capture some sort of their personality," Campanile co-editor Gary Grether said. "Penelope suggested a nude shot of herself, because that is the only time a person is shown as her true self."

Miss Johnson is now a graduate student at State University of New York in Buffalo seeking a doctor's degree in English.

"I did it for Rice and the Rice community," she said. "But I don't want to talk about it because that puts it into a class of a publicity stunt."

Miss Johnson appears sitting against a white background with her arms around her knees, Grether said. The photo is full page.

Bahler's full view catches him clothed, but there is a one inch by a half inch inset showing him nude.

He had no public comment. Co-editor Conrad Boeck said there is "definite artistic value" in the photographs.

Dr. Frank Vandiver, acting university president, said he deeply deplored what the editors were publishing, but defended their right to publish it.

The student senate has editorial control over the yearbook.

DOWNTOWN GREENVILLE — OPEN FRIDAY 'TIL 9

A COMPLETE LINE OF SHOES is available at the new Larry's Shoe Store, now open at its original location on Five Points. Shown above is one section of the extensive shoe selection offered by the store.

Larry's Shoe Store Back On 5 Points

After a year's relocation following the Larry's Shoe Store fire in May of last year, Larry's is again located at its familiar location on Five Points in Greenville. Grand opening of the new store is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The recently completed facility was occupied and opened to the public a week ago, owner Larry Averette said, and work has been going on all week towards readying the store for grand opening days.

Now housed in a spacious store that affords approximately 75 per cent more overall floor space over the previous facility, Larry's has been equipped with the most modern facilities and shopping conveniences, in addition to name brand shoes.

The new store is completely carpeted and well lighted. Music is channeled in. Shopping convenience has been stressed with the addition of a new rear entrance to the store for easy access.

Averette, who opened the original shoe store on Five Points in 1953, has opened five other stores in the state since then. Other Larry's Shoe Stores are located in Washington, New Bern, Goldsboro, Henderson, and Roanoke Rapids.

The Greenville store was moved two blocks down the street following the fire in May. The building was condemned in September of 1968 and torn down soon after for the beginning of construction of the new store.

Employee personnel will remain the same as before the fire, Averette noted. "Our manager at the time of the fire was Wade Trask," he added, "and he will continue to manage the new store." Averette's wife, the former Anna Belle Teel of Greenville, serves as the bookkeeper for the Greenville firm as well as the other five stores.

With the added space of the new store, Averette said, personnel would be better able to serve customers and continue the "quality service and fits" that is stressed in the store motto.

Humble Start By Giant Circus

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—The price of admission was one penny when five of the seven Ringling Brothers opened their first show.

Ninety-seven years later, their heirs sold Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus to Irvin Feld and Judge Roy Hofheinz for more than $10 million.

Loving Their Desert To Death

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "Californians are loving their desert to death," says a new booklet distributed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

The vast area—larger than West Virginia—is attracting new residents by the thousands because of its dry, smog-free air, balmy nights and ever-increasing recreational developments.

The result, says the bureau, is litter and vandalism that are spoiling the area's natural beauty.

Marshal Dillon Hanging Up Guns

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Marshal Dillon is hanging up his badge and guns, and plans to ride into the sunset.

This Marshal Dillon is 70-year-old John, not Matt. He is retiring as marshal for the Eastern Federal District of Wisconsin and plans to take his wife on a cruise to Hawaii.

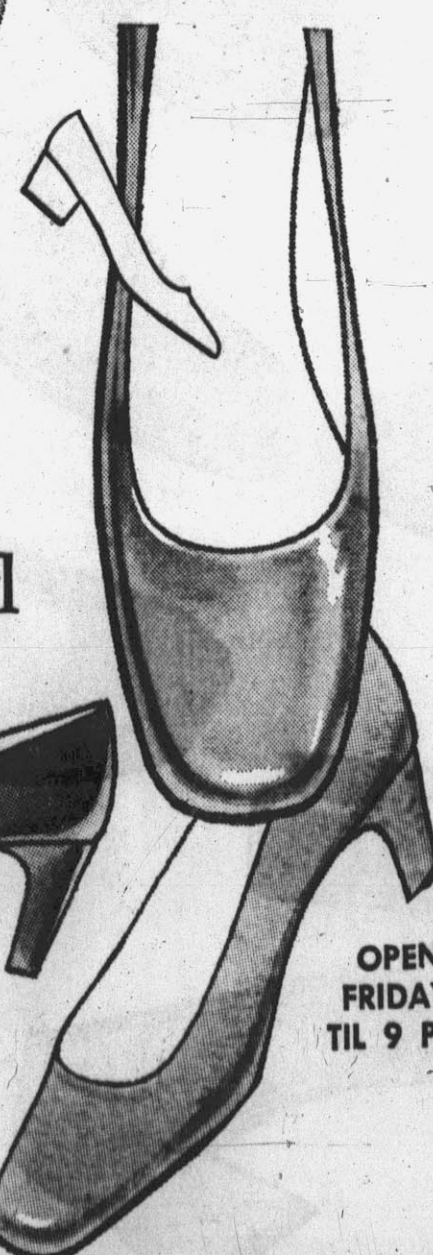

THUGS' OVERSIGHT

EDGEWOOD, Md. (UPI)—Four men held up a countryside restaurant near here and took $185 from two customers and two employees. None of the four looked into the wallet of one customer, Billy Catlett, who was carrying $1,100 in cash.

Perry Wins, But Atlanta Gets Flag

By HAL BOCK

It will be the vagabond Atlanta Braves against the Cinderella New York Mets in the National League's championship playoff series.

The Braves, who previously won National League pennants in Boston and Milwaukee, nailed down the West Division crown Tuesday night, topping Cincinnati 3-2 and dooming San Francisco to a fifth straight second place finish.

The Giants beat San Diego 6-1 and Los Angeles bowed to Houston 6-3 in the only other National League games played Tuesday night.

In the American League, New York rapped Cleveland 8-2, Washington downed Boston 7-2, Detroit shaded Baltimore 4-3, Kansas City downed California 8-5, Minnesota defeated Chicago 4-3 and Oakland beat Seattle 8-4.

The Braves will send Phil Niekro, 23-13, against the Mets' Tom Seaver, 25-7, in the opening game of the best-of-five playoff Saturday in Atlanta. It was Niekro who got credit for Tuesday night's clincher over the Reds although he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Reds were leading 2-1 when Mike Lum opened the seventh with a single. Ralph Garr batted for Niekro and walked. Wayne Granger relieved Gary Nolan for the Reds and Felix Millan, attempting to sacrifice, forced Lum at third.

Then Tony Gonzalez' fourth hit of the night scored Garr with the tying run and after Hank Aaron walked, Rico Carty's sacrifice fly brought home the deciding run.

That left it up to Hoyt Wilhelm and the 46-year-old reliever set the Reds down in order over the last two innings, striking out three. Wilhelm is ineligible for the playoffs because he came to the Braves after the Sept. 1 deadline.

In the clubhouse, the champagne flowed freely. "Man, it's too good," exulted reliever Cecil Upshaw, offering cigars to dressing room visitors. "Oh happy day, oh happy day," shouted Carty.

"Beautiful, beautiful, beautiful," sang Orlando Cepeda, who made it to the World Series with St. Louis in each of the last two seasons before being traded in the spring and now has another shot at the classic.

Tommy Davis tagged his first home run since returning to the National League and helped Houston knock off his old teammates, the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Denny Lemaster pitched a four-hitter and the Astros moved to within one game of the slumping Dodgers for fourth place in the West Division. Norm Miller also homered for the Astros and Andy Kosco connected for the Dodgers.

Gaylord Perry scattered nine hits and struck out 14 San Diego batters pitching the Giants past the Padres. It was Perry's 19th victory of the season.

Braves Had Longest Streak

By ED SHEARER

Associated Press Sports Writer ATLANTA (AP) — It took Atlanta's longest winning streak to do it, but the Braves have won the National League West Division championship.

The Braves, who streaked to 17 victories in their last 10 games including 10 in a row, killed San Francisco's slim chances of tying for the title with a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati Tuesday night.

Atlanta ends its regular season against the Reds Thursday night and opens the best-of-five series with the East Division champion New York Mets here Saturday with the National League pennant at stake.

Rico Carty, who hit .387 during the Braves' surge that began Sept. 9, drove home the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning, capping a two-run rally.

Ace knuckleballer Phil Niekro gained his 23rd victory, relieved over the final two innings by veteran knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm, who retired six Reds in a row, three by strikeouts. It was Niekro's sixth straight victory over the Reds this season.

Wilhelm said after the game that he was "a little nervous" when he began warming up. "In a game like that, you've got to be."

Wilhelm, 46, logged his fourth save—he's won two—since the Braves picked him up on waivers last month.

Pinch hitter Mike Lum opened the seventh with a single to center and Ralph Garr, batting for Niekro, drew a walk, sending Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan to the showers and bringing on Wayne Granger.

Lum was forced at third on Felix Millan's bunt but Tony Gonzalez made it 2-2 with his fourth straight single, scoring Garr.

Hank Aaron walked to load the bases and Carty, who missed the entire 1968 season with tuberculosis, dri ped the fly ball t right that scored Millan with the winning run.

Atlanta, playing before a partisan crowd of 43,974 that cheered constantly, took a 1-0 lead in the third on Niekro's single, Millan's sacrifice bunt, an infield hit by Gonzalez and Aaron's single to left.

Cincinnati got four of its seven hits in the fifth while taking a 2-1 lead. Lee May led off with a double and Woody Woodward, Pete Rose and Tommy Helms had singles before Bob Tolan fanned, ending the inning.

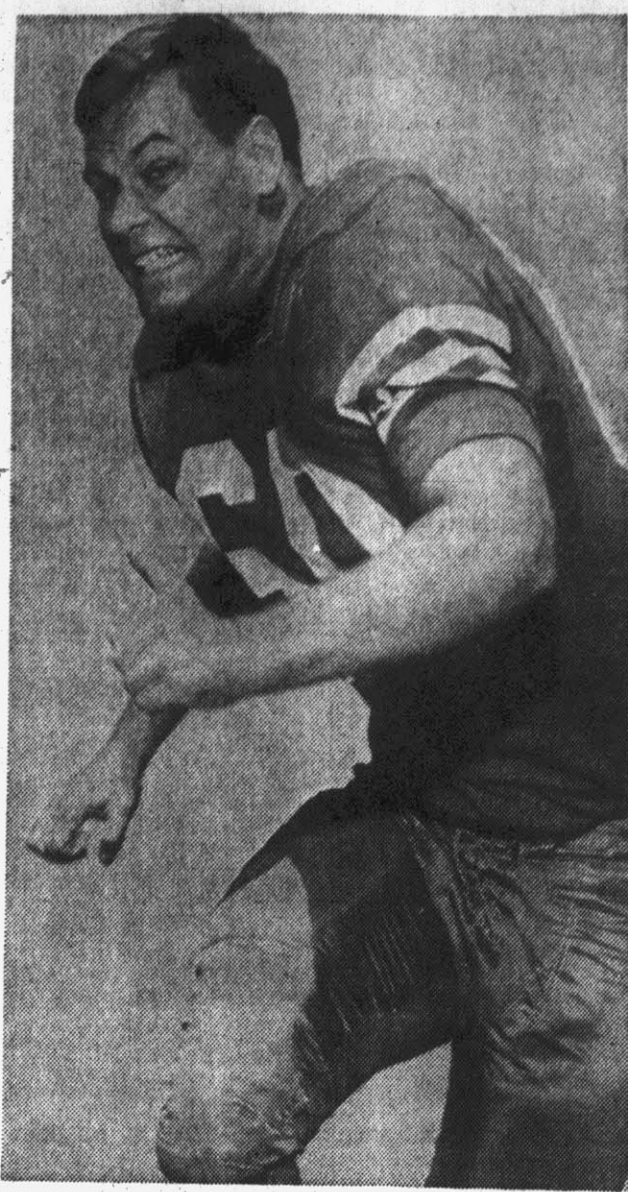

Jim St / art stunned the fans with one out in the ninth when he ripped a Wilhelm knuckler to right, but Aaron pulled it in at the base of the wall.

Woodward, bounced out to Bob Aspromonte for the final out which sent fans flooding onto the field.

Meet The Pirates

William Mitchell, left, and John Rowe are two members of this year's East Carolina University football team. Mitchell, a 5-10, 180-pound sophomore from Fayetteville, is a wingback. He has seen reserve duty at the offensive spot, and is being used in returning punts and kickoffs. Rowe, a 6-0, 196-pound sophomore from Southern Pines is an offensive guard. He was moved up to a starting position after his play in the East Tennessee game. East Carolina opens its Southern Conference schedule Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium, playing host to The Citadel.

John Small Leads The Citadel's Scrappy Defenders Into Ficklen

It's getting to be a habit for the class of the country in college football to show up in Ficklen Stadium.

Last week it was Terry Bradshaw, passer deluxe and an All-America already. This week it's John Small, premier lineman in the Southern Conference and generally conceded to be the best linebacker in the nation.

Small, by no means, fits his name. He is 6-4 and 230 and when it comes to defending the opposition he has an inborn instinct to be at the right place at the right time.

Harold Bullard, who scouted The Citadel for East Carolina last week, was all but awed by Small's nose for where the play will go.

"One time Arkansas State was in a slot-I formation and Small was on the opposite of the field from where the play was going and he ran over his own linebacker to get the ball carrier," Bullard said. "Before the play even started he seemed to know where the ball was going. He's something else."

Small, who prepped at Richmond Academy in August, Ga.,

played less than half of last season at full speed because of injuries, but he was so impressive during the time he did play that even before this season began the pro scouts were saying he would be a first round choice and possibly go as high as No. 1.

Perhaps the strongest recommendation for Small as a professional comes from J.I. Albrecht of the Denver Broncos, who said:

"In this neo-modern era of (Dick) Butkus and (Tommy) Nobis, there now comes John Small, barring injury, No. 1."

In last week's game against Arkansas State, which gave The Citadel its second straight win, Small had 12 individual tackles and eight assists.

"Not only is he big and has a nose for where the play is going, but he is quick," says Bullard.

Along this line, Charlie Waller, former Clemson backfield coach and now with the San Diego Chargers, says:

"His size-speed ratio and ability are among the qualifications that make him an outstanding college linebacker and candidate for the professional ranks."

Gil Brandt, the director of player personnel, says Small will without question be the first linebacker to be drafted in the winter. "He has the size and speed to be an outstanding middle linebacker in professional football," Brandt said.

Last weekend, D.C. (Pea) Walker, who was in Greenville to take a look at Terry Bradshaw for the New York Giants, said of Small: "He is the finest looking linebacker in the Southeast. He has all the qualifications the pro people are looking for."

Small's coach, Jim Parker, says he is the complete football player. "He may be the best one I've ever had the opportunity to coach," Parker says.

The Citadel also has an outstanding offensive team, featuring passer Tony Passander, who has completed 20 of 30 and is within 19 yards of the school's passing record for a career, and running backs Tom Sanchez and Tom Duncan.

East Carolina's defensive unit spent much of its time during a heavy contact session Tuesday, working on plans to stop that attack.

East Gets First Glimpse Of Cougars

For the past nine months, nobody, but nobody, has received the amount of publicity given to the Carolina Cougars. Now, Thursday at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum, Eastern North Carolina will be given the chance to see what the Cougars have.

It will be the second game for the Cougars, who open their pre-season exhibition schedule Wednesday in Winston-Salem against the Los Angeles Stars. These same two teams are then scheduled to meet here Thursday.

The Cougars are North Carolina's first effort into a major professional athletic team. It is hoped that the enthusiasm built up by the Cougars might be parlayed into pro football and even pro baseball. There have already been rumors that the group headed by Cougar owner Jim Gardner has talked with the Boston Patriots about buying their franchise in the American Football League.

The Cougars are a "North Carolina" team in more than just location. With Coach Bones McKinney, who played and coached in the Tar Heel State, at the helm, the team has gone after North Carolina collegiate cagers. And they have been successful in landing them.

Of the tentative pre-season roster put out by the Cougars, 12 players were listed. Half of these had area backgrounds.

There are Randy McHaffey of Clemson, Doug Moe of North Carolina and Bob Verga of Duke among the veterans. And there are Bill Bunting of North Carolina, Gene Littles of High Point and Fred Lind of Duke among the rookies.

Moe has the highest scoring average among the veterans, hitting a 19.0 average last year with the Oakland Oaks. Next comes Verga with an 18.8 mark. Mahaffey averaged 11.8 points per game.

Other veterans include Art Becker (6-9, 13.4 average) of Arizona State, Larry Bunce (7-0) of Utah State, Steve Kramer of Brigham Young, and Hank Whitney of Iowa State.

Other rookies are Gene Ford of Western Michigan and Justus Thigpen of Weber State. Ford averaged 25.8 points per game, while Thigpen hit on 23.2 for their respective colleges during their senior year.

Moe is the super-star of the Cougars. He led the ABA in scoring in 1968 with 1,884 points, making the ABA All-Star team, and finishing second in the Most Valuable Player voting.

Verga came to Houston at midseason last year from the New York Mets. In 33 games, he averaged 24.6 points to prove he is of top caliber among the pros. Mahaffey split last year between the Kentucky Colonels and the Mets, coming to the Cougars in a trade.

The game between the Cougars and Stars is being sponsored by the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Campbell Kicks Pirate Booters

BUIES CREEK — Campbell College downed East Carolina University soccer team, 13-1, in the first outing for the Bucs last night.

The strong Camels gained the lead late in the first period, and then built up a 4-0 lead by half-time.

In the second half, Campbell pulled steadily away to build up the final score.

The Camels took 59 shots at the East Carolina goal, while their tough defense allowed the Bucs but 13 shots.

"They had a real fast line," Coach John Lovstedt said of the Camels, "we pulled up our defense, and caught them off sides a number of times and it stopped them for a while. But then they compensated and their fast break hurt us. They have a real good team."

The Bucs, 0-1, open their Southern Conference play Friday, playing host to The Citadel.

Returning TV Shows Said To Bear Up Well

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With all the new shows in position in the network schedules, there is time to look at the old ones, back for another season. "Mod Squad's" trio of young undercover operatives is still solving crimes and salvaging human wreckage weekly on channel seven. Tuesday night's episode suggests that Michael Cole, Carlence Williams III and Peggy Lipton — unknowns 12 months ago — have grown comfortably into their roles, are more assured and work well as a team.

The story was a bit on the sticky side: The squad took on a bright, homeless Mexican boy, then found he was under suspicion as a burglar. But they pulled off his redemption and led him away from a life of crime.

Red Skelton, in his 19th consecutive season in weekly television, obviously purveys a brand of nonsense that never stales. The format of the CBS show, unchanged over the summer, had some eye-filling dancing and some easy-to-take singing by the Lettermen. But it was the Skelton turns that made the show. Red, as usual, opened the hour with his monologue—a batch of beach jokes on everything from smog to bikinis. In the big sketch, Red and guest star Walter Brennan kidded the classic Western by playing rival sheriffs. It wasn't as funny as screams from the studio audience indicated but it had some-funny moments during a high-stakes poker game.

CBS's "60 Minutes" bimonthly news show started with a painful but thought-provoking report on some of the 250,000 wounded U.S. fighting men from the Vietnam war—amputees in an Army rehabilitation hospital. The segment showed a brutal face of war, yet the gallant attitudes of many of these attired young men demonstrated hope and determination. Several said they were glad to have made the sacrifice; most had plans for busy active lives.

It was followed by an off-beat closeup of some young dropouts who adopted panhandling as a profitable way of life. Concealed cameras showed them begging passersby for dimes and quarters. One estimated he received an average of $8 an hour by asking for bus fare home.

Finally there was a report on a visit to the Soviet Union last summer by 13 students and their language teacher from an Atlanta, Ga. all-Negro high school. The students loved the people, enjoyed the sights, had the food and felt they had benefited by the experience. It was a rewarding hour.

FLYING HIGH

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Local flying fans have formed a company to build the first made-in-Rhodesia aircraft. First the British designed, 17-foot wingspan Taylor Titch planes will be test flown soon. The builders believe they can sell them on a production basis for about 1,600 pounds ($4,480).

Hopeful Sign Hanoi Reviewing Its Policies On Prisoners Of War

By BOB HORTON
WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's willingness to see wives of imprisoned U.S. servicemen is being viewed here as a hopeful sign Hanoi may be re-evaluating its prisoner of war policies.

Pentagon officials also indicate belief the North Vietnamese move in a reaction to a Nixon administration campaign to focus international attention on the handling of American POW's.

This assessment came after North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris said Tuesday that would receive a new group of American women seeking information about husbands missing the war.

Only a few days earlier the North Vietnamese delegation had for the first time met with four other American wives from Dallas, Tex., trying to find out whether their husbands are dead or alive.

While North Vietnam's attitude toward such private meetings may prove to be of no significance, any sign of movement on the POW problem is encouraging, Pentagon officials say.

"They have had an indefensible world position," commented one official involved in day-to-day dealings with POW matters. "It has been not only wrong but also not smart. Now they may be looking for a way to ease themselves out of the fire."

North Vietnam may be holding as many as 900 Americans, most of them fliers shot down during the air war. The number is uncertain because Hanoi steadfastly has refused to provide a name list—an act which violates international agreements.

The Pentagon's official list of captured men totals 413 but there are 919 names on the missing list and many of those are believed imprisoned.

For a time, especially in the months preceding the opening of the Paris negotiations, the United States avoided making any possibly inflammatory public comments about North Vietnam's attitude on the prisoner issue, fearing the captured men might suffer, officials explain.

But with passage of time and no success in Paris, the U.S. changed almost to a "what-have-we-got-to-lose" attitude. With Secretary of Defense

Melvin R. Laird leading the way, American officials have begun castigating the North Vietnamese, focusing on four major demands that:

—The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong identify prisoners they hold.

—Release the seriously sick and injured men.

—Permit impartial inspections of all prisoner of war facilities.

—Permit the free exchange of mail between prisoners and their families.

Pentagon officials say that despite some encouraging pre-Paris comments by Hanoi's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, the North Vietnamese have settled on one hard bargaining position on the prisoner issue: That the question of freeing the POW's hinges on agreements to end the war.

Ask Resignation Of ABC Officer

BEAUFORT, N. C. (AP) — The Lenoir County Board of Alcoholic Beverage Control has asked for the resignation of one of its enforcement officers following his conviction on a charge of reckless driving and driving without a license.

In a special session Tuesday the board decided to ask for the resignation of Clarence M. Bland of Kinston. No effective date was set.

Bland was arrested and charged with drunken driving after a traffic accident Aug. 31 near Morehead City.

He pleaded guilty in District Court in Beaufort to a reduced charge of reckless driving and of no operator's license. He had been suspended from his post with the ABC board pending court action.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 NT Pass 3 NT Dble.
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

When all the natural resources fail, the declarer may be forced to fall back on deception in order to achieve his end. When the bidding in today's hand revealed to South that his assets were not well placed, he resorted to his own native cunning to capitalize on an opponent's lapse.

Altho the double of a three no trump contract by the player not on lead is conventionally employed to request the opening of dummy's first bid suit, West chose to reject hearts in favor of the queen of clubs. When the dummy was spread, South's outlook was quite dim, for it appeared from East's double that every missing honor—except for the club suit—was located on his right. Even if he could pick up the queen of diamonds, his trick total would only come to seven—four diamonds, two clubs, and one heart.

Declarer's only hope to develop additional tricks was to beguile his opposition, and he began his campaign immediately by innocently dropping the eight of clubs under West's queen at trick one. Since he had concealed the three of clubs, he hoped West would interpret his partner's play of the seven as a come-on. His hopes were rewarded when West continued with the five of clubs at trick two.

North's ten of clubs was put up to hold the trick as East discarded the nine of spades. The king of diamonds came next followed by the ten. When East showed up with the queen of diamonds, four tricks were quickly rattled off in that suit. With the eighth trick firmly in his grasp and the minor suit cards removed from East's hand, South could visualize an endplay in the offing. He led a small heart and put in the eight from dummy. East was in with the ten of hearts and was confronted with the dubious choice of either leading from his king-queen of hearts or else playing a spade which would establish dummy's king. In either case, he cannot prevent declarer from winning a ninth trick.

Had West led either a heart or a spade originally, it would have removed most of the pressure from his partner. Even if declarer guesses the diamond situation subsequently, he can come to no more than eight tricks.

Leftovers Of War Pose Hidden Menace In Britain

YEARS AFTER THE AIR RAIDS, unexploded bombs keep coming to light. Here, policeman and crew of bomb disposal experts deactivate a half-incendiary and half-explosive 250-pound bomb unearthed by a tractor on a London building site. (UPI Telephoto)

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—Britons not yet born at the end of World War II are being endangered by the war's perilous "leftovers."

Years after the air raid sirens sounded their last warnings, unexploded bombs keep coming to light. Many are dug up during excavations on building sites. The sands along the coastline conceal a crop of mines planted to repel the Nazi invasion that never came, and beaches have to be swept before each holiday season for the deadly canisters and other still-explosive relics of the war.

The army also has littered acres of land with unexploded shells on its firing ranges because the soldiers need somewhere to practice gunnery. The bomb disposal units operated by the services have their work cut out for years to come.

Miraculously, casualties are few. A disposal expert was killed in 1962. A tractor driver was injured in 1968 when he plowed up a mortar shell.

Some Still Deadly
"Most of the wartime bombs are harmless now but it depends on the type of fuse," an army spokesman said. "Some of them can be as dangerous as the day when they were dropped. The explosive can also deteriorate into a crystalline form and that can be dangerous."

A Royal Navy team of divers this summer had to tackle the most dangerous bomb disposal operation since the war.

When the German freighter Arnold Mask ran aground on the English Channel island of Jersey in 1943 and sank while trying to evade a Royal Air Force attack, she carried a cargo of 1,000-pound bombs.

They lay undiscovered in the sea for 26 years a mile from Jersey's capital and port of St. Helier, until a local skin diver found himself surrounded by them. About 70 were visible. More could have been buried in the sea bed. They were dangerous and had to be removed. The fuse contained picric acid, which can become unstable if seawater seeps in. Rough weather could have set them off.

Home-Made Peril

Another dangerous find this summer was a crate of phosphorus bombs uncovered on a resort beach at Bournemouth on the south coast. These bombs were made by the war-time Home Guard, out of bottles filled with phosphorus, benzene and rubber solution, to throw at tanks if they made a landing on the beaches.

London's building sites regularly produce bombs dropped in the blitz. A trickier proposition was a 550-pound bomb discovered in 1966 in the River Thames during a diver's inspection of one of London's busiest rail bridges, Blackfriars. The bomb would have blown up the bridge if it had gone off. The disposal squad had to feel for the bomb with their fingers because they could not see in the cloud of mud they raised.

The army's Royal Engineers, who deal with most of the bombs found said: "The figures are fairly steady at six a year but you get the odd year when they go up to 10, maybe 20. Last year was a high year with 22."

Their bomb disposal unit spokesman said, "We know where quite a lot are which are too difficult to recover, in marshes and that sort of thing. To get rid of them would be a major engineering feat and there's no point in recovering them anyway. Then there's

Engagement Ring

BROMSGROVE, England (UPI)—Dawn Bosworth, 19, a secretary, pleaded with one of four masked men who had broken into her room to "please leave my engagement ring."

The man picked up the 250 pound ($600) diamond solitaire ring, looked at Miss Bosworth, and said: "This must mean a lot to you." Then he slipped the ring on her finger, whispered "Now try to get some sleep" and left with his companions.

The average annual precipitation for the United States is about 29 inches.

Tons Of Hazardous Materials Are En Route

By DONALD S. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Almost every day of his life, some American somewhere is in danger of being poisoned, gassed, burned, blown up or even melted by shipments of substances designed to give him the good life.

No one knows exactly how much hazardous material is shipped across the nation yearly. But it is easily in excess of 100 million tons—half a ton for every man, woman and child in the country.

The office of hazardous materials of the Department of Transportation estimates that more than 200,000 separate shipments of corrosives, acids, poisons, gasses, gasoline, explosives and other dangerous products are made every day.

The safety records of the railroads, truck lines, barge lines and pipe lines that transport this dangerous material are amazingly good considering the amount shipped. But the danger is growing.

In Crete, Neb., eight persons were killed early this year when deadly anhydrous ammonia fumes from a derailed tank car settled through the town.

In Laurel, Miss., in January, three were killed and 60 homes were destroyed when a minor derailment caused 14 tank cars of propane gas to explode.

N.Y. Harbor Crash
On June 16, 1966, 33 were killed in New York harbor when two ships collided and a cargo of naphtha exploded and burned.

In Warsaw, N.Y., a gasoline truck rolled down a hill out of control and crashed into flames, burning four houses and killing several of the occupants.

Offer Personal Finance Course

A special four-week course on personal finance will be sponsored by the Wesley Foundation at the Methodist Student Center, East Carolina University beginning Thursday, Oct. 9, at 7:30 p. m. Sessions will be held at 501 E. Fifth St.

"Stretching Your Dollar" will be the topic for the Oct. 9 session which will concentrate on personal and family budget development. The second session on Thursday, Oct. 16, will center on "Meeting the Unexpected" with emphasis on banking services such as borrowing, lending and savings.

"What About Tomorrow" on Oct. 23 will deal with insurance, investment and estate planning, while "Escape From Despair" on Oct. 30 will be devoted to correcting past financial mistakes.

Mrs. Harold McGrath of Pitt Technical Institute will lead the sessions with the assistance of Joe Swain of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

The course is provided as a public service by the Wesley Foundation, the United Methodist student organization on the ECU campus. Students, faculty, staff and citizens of the community are welcome to attend the sessions. There is no charge. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Foundation Director Dan T. Earnhardt at 758-1528 or 758-1552.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

The worst hazardous materials accident in the country's history came on April 16, 1947, in Texas City, Tex., when a fire on the French ship Grandcamp reached a cargo of ammonium nitrate, destined as fertilizer for France.

The ensuing explosion and fire on the docks killed 561 persons and injured more than 3,000. A seismograph in Denver recorded the explosion.

Tragedy Still Possible
The disquieting fact is that such a disaster is even more possible today, and it is not limited to ports.

The chemical industry is booming and is shipping more and more chemicals in larger concentrations, especially by rail.

There is no known way to eliminate the hazard entirely because the materials involved have become an indispensable part of our industrial society.

Ammonia, one of the most deadly of chemicals, is used for a multitude of purposes, including agricultural fertilizers. In 1967, the most recent year for which Department of Commerce statistics are available, more than 3.5 million tons of ammonia were shipped.

Shipments of chlorine, used to purify water among other purposes, reached 3.8 million tons in 1967.

Many Cargoes Dangerous
Although the bulk of hazardous materials are easily identified as such, some are deceptive. A carload of hair spray, for example is almost as dangerous as a tank car of propane.

Military and Vietnamese war needs also contribute to the hazard. Last year, more than 5.5 million tons of bombs and munitions moved by rail or truck.

With the peace movement growing more militant, officials show increasing concern over the possibility of sabotage. The FBI has said some groups have plans for railroad sabotage.

The army touched off an uproar in Congress recently when it began shipping deadly World War II phosgene gas out of Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Denver.

What most Americans don't realize is that an average of 20 tons a day of phosgene is shipped commercially in this country, minus the elaborate precautions taken by the army. The commercial phosgene must be shipped in approved containers, but no special permits are needed.

Thousands Of Hazards
These are only a handful of the exotic chemicals shipped around the country every day. The Transportation Department estimates there are more than 800 different classifications of such material, with each classification including hundreds of varieties.

William K. Byrd, deputy operations director for the Office of Hazardous Materials, estimates that 25 new hazardous products come on the market every day. While Byrd feels such hazardous materials are transported safely, he says the potential for disaster is always present.

"I would be more worried about the transportation of insecticides than many of the gases," he said. "But you have to grow crops. In the technical state of some insecticides, one drop on your arm will kill you."

But it is petroleum that worries Byrd most because of the volume shipped—14 billion gallons in 1967—and because of its highly flammable nature.

Railway Dangers Growing
"Spill a little on the highway, and you've got problems," he said. Another major factor in the growing potential for disaster is the popularity of the railroad tank car. Some 40,000 tank cars are used to haul hazardous material, some carrying up to 40,000 gallons.

Although most experts agree railroads are the safest way to transport hazardous materials, many complain that the carriers have allowed their roadway and equipment to deteriorate. Legislation now is pending to allow the Department of Transportation to set railroad safety standards.

With as much as 14 million gallons of hazardous material being shipped in one train, even a minor derailment could mean a major disaster.

William F. Black, chief of the hazardous material branch of the Federal Railroad Administration, says the danger of a major derailment in an urban area is small because of the low speeds trains travel in cities. But he also says the number of serious derailments is increasing every year.

Accident Total Higher
The number of railroad accidents involving hazardous materials jumped from 457 in 1967 to 517 in 1968, and the number promises to be higher this year.

From 1961 to 1968, no one was killed in railroad accidents involving hazardous materials, but 11 persons have been killed so far this year.

And, as Byrd put it, "If so of the things that happened in rural areas had happened in urban areas, you could have had a catastrophe."

The association of American Railroads estimated that 40 million tons of hazardous materials moved by rail last year.

More Trucking Deaths
While the railroads offer the greatest potential for disaster, the truck lines count more deaths from hazardous material accidents. Unlike the railroads, which have private rights of way, trucks are subject to all the hazards of traffic.

The trucking industry does not keep records of such accidents. However, the Federal Highway Administration lists 85 killed in 1968 in 383 accidents "involving fire." Not all of these involved hazardous materials and not all hazardous materials accidents caused fires.

No one in the trucking industry knows exactly how much hazardous material moves by truck. But it is probably close to the railroad's 40 million tons a year mark.

Barges and pipelines also have come in for criticism lately.

Barges Cause Concern
One barge in 10 hauls hazardous cargo, according to the Coast Guard, which concedes it is concerned about "one or two accidents lately" involving barges.

On the Mississippi River barges chug past such population centers as St. Louis and Memphis. With each barge carrying as much as 2,000 tons and with as many as 20 barges in one tow, an accident could endanger large sectors of a city.

The more than one million miles of pipeline criss-crossing the country also holds the potential for disaster.

Seven homes were destroyed and 45 others damaged in Gary, Ind., in June, when a gas company worker opened the wrong valve and filled the homes with gas. In one instance, a spark from a door bell touched off an explosion.

Officials Lack Expertise
Another problem is the lack of expert knowledge by local officials on how to handle such accidents.

Chemicals present special problems. White phosphorus catches fire spontaneously if exposed to air. It must be covered constantly with water or other liquids. But phosphorus oxychloride may explode violently if exposed to water.

If a tank of phosphorus oxychloride ruptured in a fire zone and the local fire department began spraying it with water, many persons could die.

In some chemical fires such as vinyl chloride, it is better to let the fire burn unless the leak can be shut off immediately.

Fires: What To Do
Underscoring the complexity of the problem, the Manufacturing Chemists' Association publishes a handbook on what to do in accidents involving 85 of the most dangerous chemicals. These include only chemicals that could cause death or serious injury on contact.

Safety precautions for hazardous material received little general attention until recently. Industry and government have had some fairly vigorous safety programs underway but they frequently were uncoordinated.

The Department of Transportation now is attempting to correct this and has opened school on hazardous materials at Savannah Army Ammunition

Depot in Joliet, Ill.

The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) has entered the picture by investigating thoroughly the worst accidents involving hazardous materials, especially railroad accidents.

Safety Measures Considered
Among the safety measures being considered is strengthening through the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, has into haul dangerous materials. Experts assert it would be economically impractical to build tanks that would take any kind of material he is carrying and what to do in case of an emergency. With this sort of information, local officials know what action to take.

"You can't go much beyond what you have now without pricing yourself out of business," Black said.

The chemical industry, a 24-hour per day hazardous materials center that would give local officials instant information by long distance phone about what to do in an "chem cards" that tell what emergency.

The Association of American Railroads and the American Trucking Association have active safety programs, especially in the area of explosives.

Both government and industry try to know that the next small mistake could rewrite the instant record book on catastrophes.

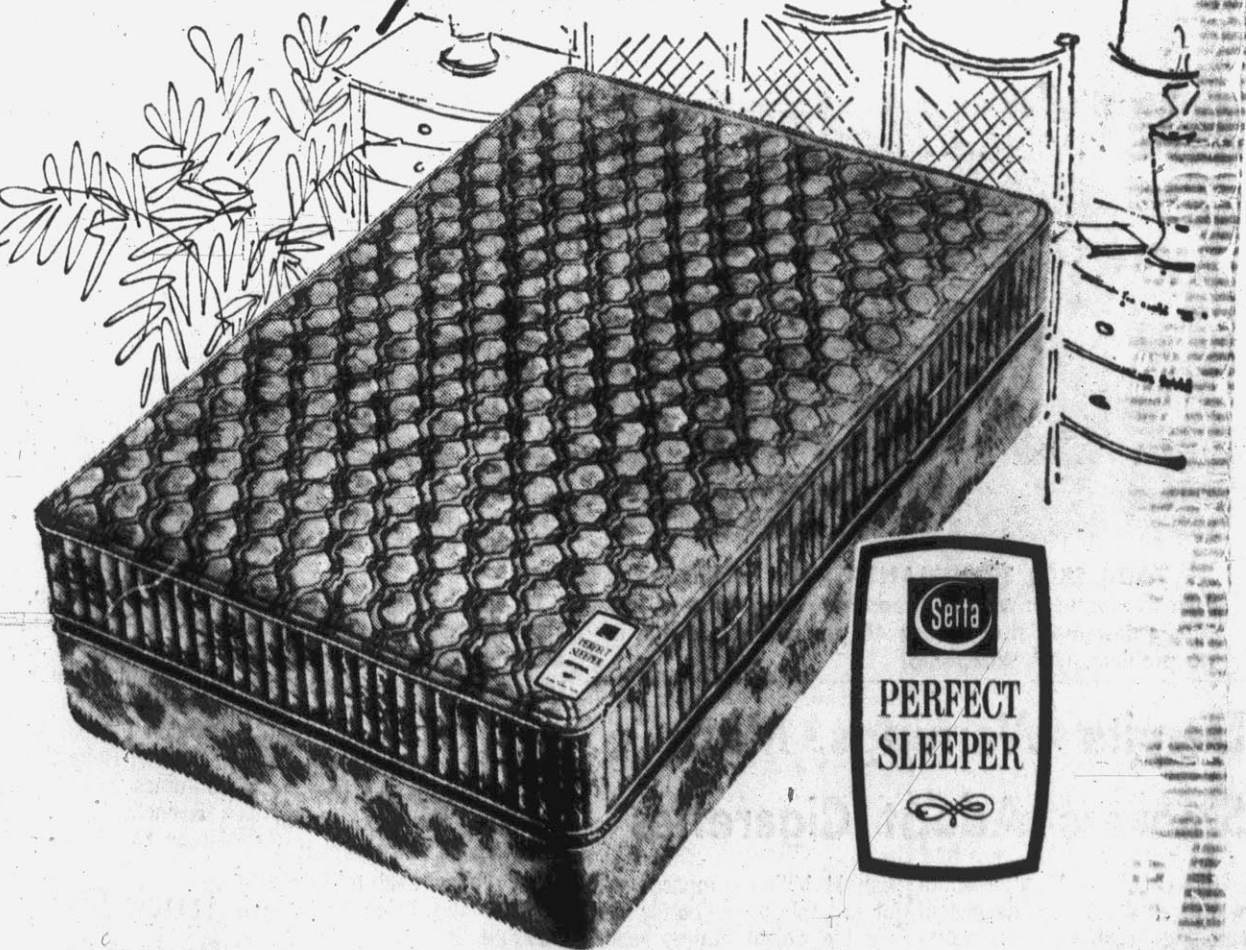

AN INVESTIGATOR IS DRIVEN BACK . . . by strong ammonia fumes which filled the air after a tank car carrying the chemical ruptured following derailment of a freight train in Kelly, Iowa. (UPI Telephoto)

Prices are holding this morning on Pitt County grain buying stations with all buyers reporting slight increases in activity. The major buying time is anticipated for afternoon hours with heavy morning dew delaying farmers in getting into the fields.

Conditions continue to improve daily for harvesting and area buyers report they expect full scale activity to pick up within the next few days. Prices are not expected to continue holding. Following are quotes reported at 11 a.m., all the same as Tuesday prices:

Greenville: yellow corn, $1.17; wheat, $1.12; oats, $1.02; all-holding steady.

than 200 issues.

"Everybody is watching this 800 DJI level to see if the market will hold there again," commented one analyst.

Some profit taking existed in the issues that have been flying high in the past two weeks.

These include: Xerox at 99, off 4; Control Data 140½ off 1½; IBM 343½, off 1½; and Polaroid 129½, off 1½.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was off .7 at 284.4, with industrials off 1.0, rails off .5, and utilities off .1.

Midday trading saw utilities and drugs mostly up, while motors, aircrafts, electronics, metals, chemicals, rails, oils and tobacco were mostly off. Steels, glamors, and rubber issues were mostly mixed.

Of the New York Stock Exchange's 20 most-active issues, 10 were on the decline, 5 were up, and 5 unchanged.

The most active Big Board issue was Benguet, 18½, unchanged on 172,100 shares.

GERMAN PLANT

LUDWIGSHAFEN, West Germany (AP)—A large West German chemical firm has announced plans to construct a $100 million industrial complex near Beaufort, S.C.

Nuclear Test Safety Argued

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Gov. Keith Miller says he is sure the nuclear test scheduled Thursday on Amchitka Island in the earthquake-prone Aleutian chain is free of danger.

"I'm fully convinced it's a safe test, and that it is in the States' security and defense," Miller declared.

But hundreds disagreed, including Canadian students who planned protest demonstrations on the U.S. border today. Many other persons expressed fear that the one-megaton underground blast in the seismically active area would touch off an earthquake and tidal-wave or spew radiation into the air and water.

Japan and Canada have filed protests with the U.S. government.

Congressmen from Alaska, Hawaii and California and non-government scientists appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee argued against the blast, and Chairman

J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said Tuesday he would ask President Nixon to halt the test.

The White House said Nixon agrees with the Atomic Energy Commission's evaluation of the risks and benefits involved.

The State Department, however, has warned world shippers to stay out of the territorial waters of Amchitka.

Dr. Clarence E. Larson, an AEC commissioner, says the test would have a magnitude of 6.5 on the Richter scale and that the possibility of an earthquake of equal magnitude "cannot be entirely eliminated." He said scientists consider that the "likelihood of this happening is small."

British Columbians, mindful of the damage done Canada's West Coast by the Alaska earthquake of 1964, which registered 8.4 on the Richter scale, asked their government to press the United States for a delay in the test.

Canada has said it will bill the United States for any damage.

Highlights Of Presentation At HEW Hearing Held In Washington

Highlights of the presentation made by Greenville's counsel at Monday's federal hearing at the Office of General Counsel in Washington included a report of the increase in integration in recent years and arguments showing practical reasons behind the city's board of education plan for maintaining its concept of neighborhood zoned schools.

In the preliminary statement, prepared by County Attorney W. W. Speight and attorney William Brewer Jr., and presented by attorney Andrew Vanore of the Attorney General's Office in Raleigh, factors given to Federal Hearing Examiner Louis Rubin included:

"Beginning with the 1965-66 school year, the percentage of black students attending integrated schools has increased from one percent . . . to 52.7 percent of the black students presently attending integrated schools. The projected percentage for 1970-71, which takes into considering the total integration of the junior high schools is 80.1 percent of 1,730 black pupils out of 2,154 black pupils."

"We are involved . . . with a community which has residential segregation or an absence of a particular race in certain areas. Basically, the assignment pattern . . . is that children are assigned to the school nearest their home. Solely because of a residential pattern from a race standpoint this may well result in a predominantly Negro School."

"We will prove that the only area of dispute involves the Sadie Sautter Elementary School which is presently being attended by 513 students, all of which are black. However, 50 percent of the faculty . . . is white. It is our position that by operating on the neighborhood school pattern at the elementary level, even though there will remain one school which is attended by an all-black student body, it has gone as far as it can consistent with the health and safety of the children and consistent with education principles to bring about an intermingling of the races."

The Greenville City School

Board plan, submitted last year, was approved in its entirety with one exception.

HEW called for a pairing of Sadie Sautter and Agnes Fulllove Schools, with one school having all students grades 1 through 3, and the other having grades 4 through 6. This recommendation was not accepted by the school board, an action which resulted in the federal hearing Monday.

Plan Services In Student Center

Regular Sunday services for the congregation of the former West Greenville Presbyterian Church, which has been sold to the Boys' Club of Greenville, will be held at the Presbyterian Student Center of East Carolina University.

Rev. Russell Davis, minister of the West Greenville Church, states that beginning Sunday, weekly services will be conducted at "The Den," the name by which the Presbyterian Student Center is known. The center is located on the corner of Ninth and James Streets.

Services scheduled are church school at 10:00 a.m. and morning worship at 11:00 a.m.

Mrs. Lindsay Savage is musical director for the church programs.

Students and members of the general public are invited to attend the Sunday services in the student center.

Washington as liaisons for the next two years. My . . . some $70,000 was spent to build a small fence around the Governor's mansion. Some $250,000 was spent to begin funding a state zoo. . . . These needs, he said, should not be put above the needs in mental health or education.

Bagnal explained the make-up of the Legislative Campaign Committee. It will employ a full-time campaign director and staff and will conduct a separate fund raising effort to assist financially in campaigns in target districts. "Effort will be made to recruit the finest and largest field of legislative candidates in the history of the North Carolina Republican Party," he promised.

Holshouser's brief tour of North Carolina cities will include stops in Raleigh, Wilmington, Asheville, and Winston-Salem.

THE PENNEY STORY

Bring your confidence to Penney's

By ROBERTA NASH

"We strive constantly to see that a customer does better day in and day out by buying Penney merchandise," said one of our vice presidents. "And that doesn't just mean better prices, it all has to start with better merchandise."

Later, I asked a man in Penney's huge New York Testing Center how we are sure what's best. "Often we're not sure," he said, "so we have to find out. That's what all these people and machines are for."

I looked around at the tests in progress and I felt very confident of Penney quality. You would have, too.
