Mansfield Cheers Up VC

PARIS (UPI)—Viet Cong spokesmen hailed Sen. Mike Mansfield's Vietnam peace plan Saturday as welcome proof of popular opposition to the war in the United States.

Both the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese officials said no free elections could be held until all U.S. troops were withdrawn.

South Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks have already rejected the Montana Democrat's call for a rapid U.S. military withdrawal and decreased U.S. dependence on the policies of the Saigon regime.

But Viet Cong delegation spokesmen said they appreciated it and all expressions of opposition to the war among Americans, which they said seemed to be spreading even among high-ranking elected officials.

Hurricane Inga Plods On

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Inga, the old storm that won't retire, rebuilt 90 mph winds Saturday and plodded northward in the Atlantic, threatening to deal the resort island of Bermuda a glancing blow with gales and squalls.

The eye of the storm was expected to pass within 100 miles southeast of the British playground during the night.

Former tropical storm Jenny, which sloshed across mid-

Florida and then turned back into the mainland Friday, dissipated to a weak depression. At midday it was centered near Ocala, Fla., with highest sustained winds of less than 20 miles an hour.

Hurricane Inga was born nearly three weeks ago in the Atlantic. Twice it has been downgraded to a low-powered tropical storm and three times it has weakened to depression status.

To Continue Criticisms

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Premier-designate Olof Palme said Saturday his government will continue to criticize U.S. involvement in Vietnam, which has led to strained relations between Stockholm and Washington.

In his first major policy speech the newly elected chairman of the ruling Social Democratic party said Sweden desires "good relations on all levels with great powers."

Palme, who will take over the premiership from retiring veteran Tage Erlander, 68, at a cabinet meeting Oct. 14, was picked Wednesday as Erlander's successor.

The 42-year-old party theorist did not go into detail on U.S.-Swedish relations or the fact that President Nixon has not appointed an ambassador to Stockholm.

But he rejected charges that Sweden's criticism of U.S. and Soviet foreign policy is contrary to Sweden's policy of neutrality. "Such criticism must be due to a misunderstanding of the contents of our policy," he said.

Car Slams Into Children

METZ, FRANCE (UPI) — A stolen car driven by an 18-year-old convicted thief slashed into a group of schoolchildren waiting for a bus at the nearby village of Hambach Saturday, killing two of the children and injuring 19.

Seven of the injured children were reported by hospital officials to be in "very critical condition."

Police said the two dead were 12-year-old boys. One of the children reported critically injured in a Sarreguemines Hospital was the brother of one of the dead boys.

Police said they had arrested Jean Marchal, driver of the car, after he fled the scene of the accident when an angry parent attacked him. They said Marchal had been released from a Metz jail Friday after serving a term for stealing a transistor radio. They said he had no driver's license.

SMASHED THROUGH

BOYNE CITY, Mich. (AP) — To keep coho salmon out of shallow waters where they were speared and clubbed by swarms of fisherman last year, state biologists set one-inch iron pipes one inch apart at the mouth of Porter Creek. The salmon, driven by their spawning urge, smashed through anyway.

Local Youth $123,054 Goal As Pitt UF Electrocuted Friday Night Drive Begins

Joseph Flake Steelman, Jr., 16, was accidentally electrocuted Friday night when he touched a guy wire attached to a utility pole in a ball park in New Bern where he had been attending a high school football game. Funeral services will be conducted Monday morning at eleven o'clock at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Richard R. Gammon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Robert L. Holt, Baptist minister of Greenville and burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park. Members of the J. H. Rose High Track Team and the Football Squad will be honorary pallbearers.

JOSEPH STEELMAN JR.
 "Joey", as he was known to his friends, was a native of Chapel Hill and had lived in Greenville most of his life. A member of the Sophomore Class of Rose High School, he was a member of the football squad and the track team, and in the summer of 1969 he received a gold medal as the Junior Olympic Champion of the Southeastern States in the shot put. He resided with his family at 1703 Knollwood Drive and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are his parents: Dr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Steelman, both of whom are members of the Department of History at (Continued On Page 2)

The United Fund drive campaign in Pitt County officially gets underway on Monday, according to J. Curtis Hendrix, campaign chairman.

In a city and county wide drive designed to have each citizen contribute their "fair share" toward meeting the announced goal of $123,054.30, chairmen of divisions in Greenville and within the county have completed work with their campaign committee members.

In addition to county chairmen listed under the photograph above, heads of chapters — or divisions, within Greenville for the 1969-70 drive are: Industrial Division, Henry Morris; Professional Division, Dr. Ray Minges; Advance Gifts Division, Dr. Robert Lee Humber; Special Gifts Division, M. Jack Moye; Leadership Division, Joseph Clark; East Carolina University, Dr. Charles Q. Brown, and Goal Buster Division, James W. Brewer.

This year, the agencies and organizations which are to be recipients of funds raised in the campaign are: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Pitt County 4-H Clubs, Bonners Lane Day Care Center, Pitt County Mental Health Association; Salvation Army, American Red Cross, Florence Crittenton Home, Pitt County Association for the Blind, Pitt County Alcoholic Information Center, Pitt County Association for Retarded Children, Children's Home Society of North Carolina, United Services Organization (USO) National, Pitt County United Fund Services (for planning, collection costs, and distribution of funds to agencies), Local Community Services, and Carolinas United Community Services.

A small contingency reserve fund will be established to cover any uncollectable pledges which may arise.

J. A. Tripp, executive director, states, "The life of every adult in Pitt County has been touched in some way by one or more of these agencies which now need our help. The United Fund campaign is conducted by our friends and neighbors who have volunteered their time and energy so that these agencies which are vital to the health and well being of our community may have the funds to carry on their work."

Individual citizens, merchants, professional people, firms and organizations were urged to participate to the fullest extent possible when volunteers call on them for contributions through the Fair Share Giving Plan.

The Pitt County Agricultural Fair will open tomorrow with agricultural and livestock exhibits and the Buck-Page Shows on the Midway.

Gates officially open at 4 p.m. and Monday night, according to fair manager Norman Y. Chambliss will be "ladies night".

Chambliss said ladies will be admitted free at the main gate tomorrow with or without an escort, until 8 p.m.

Children's day will be Tuesday for Greenville schools, and Wednesday and Friday for Pitt County Schools.

Two Survive Capsizing In Air Pocket

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UPI) — The Coast Guard Saturday turned over a capsized, 100-foot motor vessel to look for two missing men and found they had miraculously survived 35 hours by staying in an air pocket.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the two men—Andrew Rouse, master of the motor vessel Lady Verna, and W.C. Wells—were in mild shock but otherwise appeared all right. A helicopter took them to the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital at Galveston, Tex.

The Lady Verna is a "mud boat," so called because she takes drilling mud, pipes and other supplies to oil drilling rigs in the Gulf of Mexico.

En route to drilling rigs Thursday, the vessel's cargo shifted and she capsized and sank 20 miles south of Sabine Pass. Sabine Pass is on the gulf below Port Arthur.

The Lady Verna did not sink bottom down, but turned turtle. due to the air in her, a patch of her bottom remained out of water.

The Coast Guard pumped air into the Lady Verna to make her turn upright. The Coast Guard spokesman said that when they got the vessel upright, they found Rouse and Wells.

Wheeler Making Vietnam Survey

SAIGON (UPI)—Gen. Earl G. Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, arrived Saturday for a new assessment of the Vietnam War and said the current battle lull was only temporary. He predicted that Communist forces would launch a winter campaign.

Speaking at a plane-side news conference at Tan Son Nhut Airport, Wheeler said the purpose of his four-day mission was to determine the possibility of withdrawing more American troops beyond the 60,000 who will have left the war zone by Dec. 15.

Wheeler said President Nixon has established three criteria for pulling more U.S. fighting men out of the war zone: progress at the Paris peace talks, a decrease in the level of

Principal Hints Disorders Due Outside Forces

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The principal of the all-Negro high school in Greensboro where racial violence flared last May hinted Saturday that outsiders helped trigger the outbreak.

Franklin J. Brown, principal of Dudley High School, told the North Carolina Advisory Committee of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission that a circular calling for the boycott of a student election was circulated among the students prior to the disorders.

"As far as I know," he said, "it is the best of my belief that this circular was not prepared on the Dudley campus."

Brown testified that during the early stages of the disorders, students from nearby North Carolina A&T State University, including A&T student body vice president Nelson Johnson, were on the Dudley campus.

School officials last spring claimed A&T students were partly responsible for the disorders.

The testimony came during the second day of a hearing into the May disorders which erupted after a Dudley pupil, Claude Barnes, claimed his name was illegally removed from the ballot for student council president. A group of pupils staged a walk-out at an assembly and later clashed with police who came to disperse them.

The disturbance spread to A&T, where one student was killed and several were injured. National Guardsmen finally swept over the campus, driving out the militants with gas and gunfire.

Brown, however, challenged the notion that the trouble started over the election. He said there was nothing irregular in the removal of Barnes' name and that issue "was just a pretext" for violence.

Earlier, school officials had said Barnes' name was removed because his grades were too low.

The commission was to hear testimony from Greensboro Police Chief Paul Calhoun and A&T President Dr. Lewis Dowdy later.

During the Friday session, Barnes claimed his name was removed because he "was called subversive by the school administration."

Barnes added that "nothing has been done to resolve the issues" which set off the disorders.

Fall Quarter ECU Enrollment Is Highest In History

By CAROL TYER
 Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University has recorded the highest enrollment in its history this quarter.

The total number of day students enrolled in all undergraduate and graduate programs is 9,689, as compared with 9,400 in fall quarter of 1968 and 9,5538 in the fall of 1967.

There are 4,674 men students, as opposed to 4,560 last year, and 5,013 women, as opposed to 4,712 last year.

This is the largest freshman class the school has had. It has 3,461 members, some 716 more than last year's class. Of these 2,713 are entering the school for the first time and 748 have attended ECU previously; 3,435 are full-time students, 22 part-time students, and four are university visitors. There are 1,576 men and 1,885 women among them.

Of the 2,093 sophomores, 1,001 are men and 1,092 are women. Last year's class of 2,148 sophomores consisted of 1,059 men and 1,089 women.

The junior class, in which there are 1,671 students, is the only class in which the men outnumber the women — 845 to 826. Last year they were equally divided — 948 of each sex.

Some 843 men and some 904 women make up the senior class — a total of 1,747. Last year's senior class, which had 20 more members, was comprised of 876 men and 891 women.

Ten persons are auditing classes this quarter.

Of the 117 non-degree graduate students, 30 are attending classes full-time and another 87 are part-time scholars. Fifty-nine are men and 58 are women.

Some 141 students, 89 of whom are men, and 52 of whom are women, are working toward graduate degrees full-time. Also aiming for degrees are 416 part-time graduate students — 232 men and 184 women.

Twenty men and three women are doing a sixth year of graduate work part-time and one man is pursuing a sixth year full-time.

Enrollment figures according to the degrees students are working toward are as follows: Primary education—two men and 677 women; grammar school education—51 men and 522 women; high school education—1,118 men and

1,682 women; teacher training—1,172 men and 2,881 women; Bachelor of Arts degree—1,250 men and 694 women; Bachelor of Fine Arts—134 men and 234 women; Bachelor of Science in nursing—two men and 246 women; Bachelor of Music—54 men and 63 women; Bachelor of Science in medical technology—14 men and 53 women; pre-vocational—118 men and 44 women; Bachelor of Science in professional fields — 960 men and 102 women; unclassified—970 men and 696 women.

The total number of students involved in non-teaching programs are 3,502 men and 2,132 women.

These figures are the latest released by the office of ECU registrar, Worth Baker, based on computer tallies of enrollment distribution.

According to Dr. David Middleton, director of ECU extension division, 1,014 students are enrolled in undergraduate extension classes and approximately 500 are doing extensive graduate work. Some 110 undergraduates are enrolled in the Undergraduate Evening College on campus, and there are 182 at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, 321 at Cherry Point, and 401 at Camp Lejeune.

Apollo 12 Patch

SHIPPING TO THE MOON — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration released this design which the crew of Apollo XII will wear as a chest patch during their flight to the moon. The clipper ship shows sailing around the moon represents the all Navy crew that will man the mission. The blue lettering is on a gold background which is the colors for the Navy. The crewmen who will wear the design are Cdr. Charles Conrad Jr., Cdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr., and Lt. Cdr. Alan L. Bean. (AP Wirephoto)

He Sees Things Ready For Page-Buck Shows

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
For the past 16 years Frank D. Bland has been the general representative and advance man for the Buck Shows. Thanks to him, when the rides, shows and concessions pull into a community such as Greenville, the essential things that they must have — fuel, bread, milk — have been arranged for.

FRANK D. BLAND

This year, Bland has been working for the Buck-Page Shows—a new name for a relatively new partnership. Until three years ago O.C. Buck owned the shows which bore his name. Then a Wilson man, Roland Page, became a partner. This year the name was changed to the Buck-Page Shows.

Thoughtfully, as if looking into the past to recall many memorable occasions, Bland sipped a cup of coffee and said "the old man will go into semi-retirement next year."

"Page is young . . . has a lot of new ideas . . . innovations . . . he's asked me to stay . . ."

"I've been doing this for so long, I know all of the people," Bland continued. The Akron, Ohio resident said, "When we come here, the people look me up. It's real easy."

"The bread man was at the motel early this morning. The oil company . . . we have already seen them. We do business with them every year. And the same is true of the milk man . . ."

Bland was describing his work as general representative — advance man.

When the first units of the Buck-Page Shows arrive at the Pitt Fair Grounds later today, the advance work will have been done by Bland.

He marked the route from Monroe (where the shows played last week) Tuesday, with some 200 route markers.

Bland arranged for food supplies to be delivered to the show's cook tent . . . so the workers need not leave the lot after they arrive tonight to find food.

Some 300 people travel with the show, the veteran showman said.

"This is one of the largest Eastern shows," Bland explained, "and we have moved our winter quarters from Troy, New York, to Monroe." The new winter quarters in North Carolina, according to Bland, provide "a better winter set-up" because of the milder North State weather.

The shows open in March around Charlotte when rides are set up at shopping centers before going north.

The Buck-Page Shows then play the New England and New York state circuit before returning to North Carolina.

Bland is responsible for what goes before each engagement.

He does the northern booking, publicity—and the "bread, milk and fuel oil" job.

Thursday he got wooden stakes cut "for marking out the lot," then arranged for the wood shavings that will cover the main pedestrian areas along the midway.

Yesterday Bland marked the route through town, then laid out spaces for the trailers at the fairgrounds.

Later today, Bland will place the stakes that will locate the rides and other shows and concessions on the fairground lot. Some may not like their location, but they will set up business where Bland says.

"There are about 40 office-owned semi's (tractor-trailer)," Bland explains. "And we carry our own generators." How do you go about deciding where the rides and shows will go?

"We put the high rides . . . the skydiver . . . Zipper (a new ride this year) . . . facing the road . . . where it will show . . . get mileage from the lights in the air."

Then we put a flat ride, the Ferris wheel and another low ride . . . like that."

"And the kiddie rides," he says are always, "in front," where the small children won't have so far to walk with their parents.

"We will go from here to Roxboro, then to Carthage," Bland says, before returning to Monroe for the winter.

"I'll be back another year," says Bland, "although I'm old enough to collect my SS (Social Security)"

CAP To Operate 2 Parking Lots

Again this year, the Greenville Chapter of the Civil Air Patrol is operating two parking lots at the Pitt County Fair. This is an annual fund raising project for this service organization.

The CAP will be assisted this year by the Arnold Air Society, an AFOTC organization from East Carolina. Together, these organizations will operate both the parking lot directly across from the fairgrounds and the airport parking lot.

Both organizations have been active in many charitable activities in the Pitt County area; two of these include the March of Dimes campaign and the Pitt County-Greenville blood drive.

Relatives Meet North Vietnamese To Ask Info On Prisoners Of War

By JOAN DEPPA
PARIS (UPI)—A group of Americans related to servicemen missing in Vietnam met with North Vietnamese officials in Paris Saturday to seek information on all U.S. prisoners of war and ask for the release of the sick and wounded.

They were the second group to be received in a week by the Communist diplomats attending the Vietnam peace talks and the third in less than a month.

The latest group, composed of five wives and a father-in-law from five different states, sought more details than their predecessors.

When they walked into the tree-surrounded villa of the North Vietnamese in suburban Choisy-le-Roi, they planned to ask not only about their relatives but about all Americans believed held by the Hanoi government. They also meant to urge the Communists to release the sick and wounded.

The two previous groups granted meetings with the North Vietnamese asked only about their relatives. They were told they would receive letters in the near future from Hanoi.

Today's delegation was led by Mrs. Sybil Stockdale of San Diego, Calif., who is coordinator of the National League of Families of American Prisoners in Southeast Asia. She is the wife of Capt. James Bond Stockdale, the highest ranking naval prisoner in North Vietnam.

The six had waited nervously for a week for word the North Vietnamese would receive them. Word came only this morning.

Two Navy wives who describe themselves as "partners in hell" plan to fly to Paris from Virginia to plead with the North Vietnamese to free their husbands and other wounded prisoners in North Vietnam.

The women said their husbands—Cmdr. Edwin Arthur Shuman III, 38, and Lt. Cmdr. Dale Walter Doss, 33, were injured and captured when they ejected from their disabled A6A Intruder jet over North Vietnam.

"The entire reason for our trip has a humanitarian basis. We know the North Vietnamese have talked with other wives, but we are going with a different plea—to try to get all the wounded and sick freed."

President Nixon Said Watching Battle Lull

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)—A White House spokesman said Saturday President Nixon was "very carefully" watching the current battlefield lull in Vietnam, but declined to confirm or deny reports the United States had established new secret contacts with Hanoi.

News Secretary Ronald Ziegler told reporters Nixon met during the day with Henry A. Kissinger, national security affairs advisor, and that it could be assumed the two men discussed Vietnam "very thoroughly," but he would go no further.

Specifically, the news secretary was asked what significance Nixon attached to the lull, the most pronounced the last two years.

"We have always and we will watch very carefully every development in South Vietnam, as we are doing in this case," Ziegler said.

He then was questioned about a published report to the effect that Washington had made secret contacts with Hanoi. The purpose of the contacts, according to the report, was to delicately probe the new regime in an effort to find out if it is more disposed to a negotiated settlement than was the late president, Ho Chi Minh.

"Now in regard to the contacts that are suggested," said Ziegler, "we have made it our position not to discuss one way or the other whether or not there are discussions with the other side outside of the public sessions in Paris."

The President, who arrived here Thursday night for a long weekend of work and relaxation at his Key Biscayne cottage, spent the morning conferring on the phone with aides. He then sat down with Kissinger, according to Ziegler.

Guide Dogs For Fourteen Blind

DETROIT (UPI)—For 14 alert and well-trained dogs, it will be a new life. For their 14 sightless masters, it will mean new hope. For all of them, it will mean a bit of a language problem.

The frisky pups will be loaded on a cargo flight Sunday to be reunited several hours later with their new masters in Denmark, climaxing a four-week training period at the Leader Dog School for the Blind in suburban Rochester.

The dogs are carefully trained to guide blind persons, responding to 10 basic English commands. "But I will praise in Danish," said Karer Lind, 46, sightless for 18 years. "My voice is more cheerful in Danish."

The Danes, all adults, were flown to Rochester in an experimental program sponsored by Diadem, an organization devoted to the exchange of handicapped persons between Denmark and the United States.

Most Children Found To Care

NEW YORK (UPI)—Four out of five school children care about the appearance of their city or town.

This was the finding in a survey of school children reported in The Litter Letter, bi-monthly publication of the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

"This has significant meaning for every community," the Letter said. "If 80 per cent of the young people would prefer to live in clean surroundings, an essential part of any local anti-litter program should emphasize more specifically what they themselves, as individuals and members of groups, can do to help make and keep them clean."

Language Hurdle In The Schools

HONOLULU (AP)—There are more than 1,400 children in public schools here whose native languages are other than English, a survey showed. Half of them speak no English.

Since a liberalized immigration law in 1963, thousands of Japanese, Chinese, Filipino, Samoan and Korean families have settled here.

HOSPITAL COST

NEW YORK (UPI)—The average cost per patient-day in a U.S. general hospital rose to $65 at the start of 1969, the Health Insurance Institute reports. In 1968, the cost averaged $30 per patient-day.

The body will remain at Flanagan Parker Funeral Home until funeral hour.

Record Count On Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Motor vehicles crossed the Golden Gate Bridge, linking San Francisco and Marin County, in record number during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, according to General Manager Dale Luehring.

Total crossings for the period numbered 31,251,968, 3.17 per cent over the previous year.

Luehring said a one-day record for crossings was set Sunday, Aug. 2, when 104,996 vehicles crossed the bridge. This was 1,340 more than the previous high set July 19, 1968.

No Hush Puppy, She's Arrested

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Baltimore police take barking dog complaints seriously. After a number of calls from neighbors about a woman who let her dog bark, police zipped out to her house, arrested her, fingerprinted her and then locked her up for 12 hours. County officials protested the action, but police said the woman had been warned several times about her noisy dog.

Hospital Rate Boost Still Won't Pay The Costs

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt Memorial Hospital room rates went up effective October 1, but according to hospital spokesmen, the higher rates still won't pay the bills.

Last year's hospital budget (for the October 1, 1968-September 30, 1969 fiscal year) amounted to $3.2 million. Of that amount, some 62 per cent was directly related to room costs—nursing care, dietary expense and other direct expenses involved in keeping a patient in a bed.

Hospital administrator C. D. Ward said income from room charges amounted to about 50 per cent of the total income last year, leaving a 12 per cent deficit to be made up in other ways.

Projections for the new fiscal period indicate that a similar percentage of the new $3.7 million budget will be expended for room costs (mainly labor involved in keeping and servicing the patient in the room), while the new rates, from $5 to $7 per bed higher, will bring in only about 50 per cent of the hospital's total income.

According to Ward, expenses for labor during the coming year will take up about 54.5 per cent of the total budget.

In comparing the costs of operation and income from various hospital departments, Ward and assistant administrator Jack Richardson referred to a stack of computer-printed sheets from the Hospital Administration Service.

HAS, Richardson explained, is a service based in Chicago that collects raw data from various hospitals in North Carolina and across the nation, and compares various facets of the hospitals' activities.

Norms are given for hospitals in North Carolina and the Nation, as well as high and low figures, so administrators can compare their local operations with what other hospitals are doing.

Picked at random, Pitt Memorial's June report showed hospital expenses at 62 per cent. Other cost percentages included 5.5 per cent for operating room operations; 1.5 per cent for emergency room service; 12 per cent for operations of the clinical laboratory, seven per cent for radiology (x-ray) and three per cent for laundry and linen.

On the other side of the coin—in the revenue column—income from room charges totaled 49 per cent in June. Income from other hospital services included 6.8 from use of operating room; 14 per cent for laboratory work, seven per cent from radiology; seven per cent from pharmacy income; 3.4 per cent from inhalation therapy and 1.3 per cent from emergency room fees.

Richardson compared the room fee income in 1968-1969 and the projected 1970 figure with the operating costs of those years.

In 1968 the hospital received $1.26 million from room charges and $1.75 in 1969. This year's income is a projected $2.1 million.

Operating costs for the two past years have totaled $2.58 and $3.2 million with a projected $3.6 or $3.7 million for the current fiscal period.

"We come up with a good picture... regionally and nationally," Richardson said in the comparison of figures from the HAS report.

Full-time employees per bed at Pitt Memorial in June was 1.84 while the state norm was 1.97 and the average across the nation 2.17.

The total expense per day per bed showed Pitt Memorial to be low, with a $45.94 figure as compared with the state norm of $50.57 per day.

In-patient costs were shown as $43.84 per day for Pitt while the state norm was $47.04. The national average was much higher at $60.53 per day.

Net revenue per day in June stood at $46.24 per patient day at Pitt, while figures for the state and nation were $53.85 and $70.80 per day respectively.

In comparing nursing service, the HAS report showed nursing service—a direct cost in keeping a patient in the hospital—was $13.01 per patient-day while nationwide the cost was $17.06. The North Carolina norm was $13.94 per patient day.

Pitt Memorial was so low in administrative cost the HAS computer could not compare it and the figure was not figured in the median.

However, on a cost per man hour per bed basis, Pitt's administration figured at $21.05 while the state median was $30.72. Nation-wide administration costs averaged $35.65 per man hour per bed.

Lab tests? They were compared too.

Pitt's medical technologists performed 4.79 tests per man hour while the state average was 4.79.

The HAS compares "the number of meals served per man-hour of work... the number of clinical tests per man hour... so we can see where our costs are out of line and work to improve these areas," Richardson emphasized.

"We have a unique situation in Greenville, and I'm proud of it," Richardson said. In service rendered, he said, "we are comparable to a teaching hospital."

There are 48 active physicians on the medical staff, as well as 17 courtesy staff members and almost 30 dentists.

"We average less than five beds per doctor on the active staff... about 4.2," Ward figured. "And we operated last year at 88 to 90 per cent occupancy."

Pitt County tax payers contribute less than two per cent of the gross operating budget, Ward explained.

During the past fiscal year the hospital received $59,028.27 from the hospital tax levy... on $3.2 million gross business, Ward noted. "The count's contribution does not pay for the loss incurred on indigent patients."

He explained that the State Welfare pays 80 per cent of that cost... attributed to certified welfare patients while "Medicare pays 80 per cent" Medicare certified patients. That leaves, he explained, from 11 to 20 per cent of the bill for the patient to pay.

"Many don't," he emphasized. "They don't have the money."

"And if the patient does not pay $50, the hospital will lose the lab fees, EKG (electrocardiogram) charges... on Medicare patients... that would have been paid by the government," Ward explained.

"The federal government requires the $50 payment (as in $50 deductible insurance) before they will pay the rest."

Explaining that the hospital does not always collect for bad debts, Ward said "We have no control over the people that we treat. We can't check their credit. If they are sick, we take them in."

"Only in the case of elective cases... surgery... can we deny admittance."

The administrator continued: "We have no control over what treatment sick people get. Whatever the doctor orders has to be given."

"If a doctor orders $50 worth of x-rays, we can't say $10 worth is all you can have."

N. C. Demos Told National Party Will Be Again Called On To Serve

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas said Saturday night it requires no great imagination to see that the Democrats shall soon again be called upon to give direction to the national government, to resume the leadership of America.

"Today, we have an administration in Washington which appears to be content to be labeled a Do-As-Little-As-Possible government," Docking said.

"It has offered only rhetoric of resolution, devoid of any solid actions which are the real stuff of leadership."

The Democratic governor's remarks were prepared for the annual Vance-Aycock dinner at the Asheville City Auditorium.

It is a fund-raising event for western North Carolina Democrats.

"The war in Vietnam shows few signs of abatement," the Kansas governor said.

"The cost of living continues to rise. At the same time, governmental spending is not significantly reduced."

"It is not surprising that

Docking said pressing questions today "have produced the thunder; the storm is the fear that our great Republic may lose its claim of being the most stable, the most prosperous nation on earth."

"The Democratic party has answered to these challenges before in our nation's history."

He said the democratic party consistently has stood with the people—the Democratic party is the party of the people.

"As tensions mount in this nation and abroad, the challenges of the moment and of the future must be met.

"At no other time has there been a more urgent need for positive political leadership. I believe the democratic party offers that leadership."

The Kansas governor said the Democratic party can bridge the distance between the blue collar worker and the white collar worker, between the young and the old.

"We cannot expect the support of the people out of remembrance or gratitude for the accomplishments of the Democratic party in the past. The Democratic party will achieve support with a politics governed by the people."

Docking said the democrats should "make crystal clear our determination to make the Democratic party an open party accessible to all groups which accept the ground rules of a free, Democratic political system."

WEST HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The daughter of television personality Art Linkletter was killed today in a fall from a plush apartment building.

The body of Diane Linkletter, 21, was identified by residents of the Shoreham Towers.

Sheriff's deputies said Miss Linkletter fell from the 8th floor of the building. She was pronounced dead on arrival at County-USC Medical Center.

Deputies began an investigation into circumstances of the victim's death.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—The 1.2-megaton hydrogen bomb test on Amchitka Island in the Aleutians caused almost no damage to installations nor harm to animals, the Atomic Energy Commission said Saturday following preliminary surveys.

There had been some fears that the test might cause an earthquake or tidal wave. Slight aftershocks from the test were reported throughout Thursday night, but this was expected.

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The FBI announced Saturday the arrest of four men it claims were involved in an auto theft ring which operated between New York and North Carolina.

Thomas Edward Temple, 53, Thomas Earl Trivette, 38, and Robert Ross Beamer, 35, all of Winston-Salem, and Edwin Fenner Renn, 32, of High Point, were charged with receiving stolen cars.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Duke University has received a $313,261 contract for cancer research from the National Cancer Institute.

At least five persons were killed and 20 are missing and presumed dead in floods caused by rains spawned by Typhoon Flossie that poured up to 40 inches of rain on northern and eastern Formosa in a 36-hour period ending Saturday.

Police sought three men who were seen running from the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps officers at Columbia University Saturday shortly after they were slightly damaged by a firebomb.

No one was injured in the 4:40 a.m. EDT blast. Witnesses said one of the three men carried a pipe which may have been used to break a window in the office through which the firebomb was thrown.

It's Employ The Handicapped Week

October 5th through the 11th has been designated by Mayor Frank W. Wooten Jr. as "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week." This action was taken when Mayor Wooten signed an official proclamation in the presence of Lloyd Nooe, Director of the Greenville office of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission.

In the proclamation, it is noted that "handicapped workers in our community have demonstrated their productive capacity, with their performance records and work skills proven assets to their employers."

Mayor Wooten touched on the need for greater understanding among other employers to insure availability of more jobs to handicapped people not now working.

He also stated "a particular need for granting fair consideration to handicapped workers is forcefully apparent to us as we observe increased number of wounded Vietnam veterans returning to seek their rightful place in the civilian work force."

Public participation has been called for in supporting educational and promotional activities designed to win acceptance of handicapped citizens within society. Such a program now in effect is the Mayor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Mayor Wooten urges public officials, leaders of business, industry, labor, civic, veterans, professional, and other organizations in Greenville to take an active part in observing the National Handicapped Week.

"I urge all employers to view prospective job applicants by evaluating their abilities and not concentrating on their disabilities," Mayor Wooten states in the proclamation.

He particularly asks that the business community do everything possible to ease the path of veterans who are and will be returning to civilian life.

In a final statement, Wooten reminds citizens that in helping handicapped people achieve economic independence, they are at the same time enriching the life of the total community.

SIGNS PROCLAMATION . . . With Lloyd Nooe, manager of the Employment Security Commission looking on, Mayor Frank Wooten signs the proclamation designating National Employ the Physically Handicapped week.

Running Battle Along S. Vietnamese Coast

SAIGON (UPI)—Two Americans were reported killed and three wounded Saturday in a running battle between U.S. paratroopers and a North Vietnamese-Viet Cong force along the South Vietnamese coast. A U.S. helicopter was shot down in the fighting.

The action 315 miles northeast of Saigon near Bong Son involved troops of the U.S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade who reported killing two of the Communists before 12 others, including two wounded soldiers, surrendered.

Elsewhere, in the marshes along the Cambodian border 62 miles west of Saigon, South Vietnamese irregulars led by American Green Berets were reported to have killed 61 Communists in a battle Friday. Allied losses were placed at 10

South Vietnamese killed and 20 wounded. Spokesmen said one Green Beret was wounded.

The general pace of the war, however, remained at a relatively low level, and briefing officers at U.S. headquarters indicated that American operations have been scaled down in response to the absence of major action initiated by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong commanders.

Communiques said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong gunners carried out 12 rocket or mortar attacks during the 24-hour period ended at 8 a.m. Saturday. The U.S. command said two Americans were wounded.

In the air war, headquarters said U.S. Air Force B52 jets flew eight missions over South Vietnam late Friday and early Saturday, dropping more than 700 tons of bombs on Communist troop concentrations.

Large Egyptian Raid Became A Death Trap

By United Press International
Army officers said Israeli forces Friday night hurled back Egypt's biggest amphibious raid across the Suez Canal since the 1967 Mideast War.

At an unusual Sabbath briefing a senior Israeli staff officer told newsmen Israeli troops held their fire to turn the raid into a trap and shot down an estimated 15 fleeing Egyptian soldiers.

He said two Israeli soldiers died in fighting along the canal. An officer was killed in the fighting that followed the attempted raid and a soldier was killed by shelling opposite Ismailia.

The Israeli officer said two wounded captured Egyptians told interrogators they were part of an 80-man force that tried to cross to Israeli positions in nine rubber rafts.

In Cairo, an Egyptian military spokesman said the amphibious force crossed the canal Friday and fought a "fierce battle" with Israeli troops for more than three hours.

The spokesman said the Egyptians destroyed three Israeli armored troop carriers "together with their occupants" and two tanks before returning to base from the first canal boat crossing since July.

The attempted landing opposite Deversoir on the north shore of Great Bitter Lake triggered an artillery and tank duel.

The Israeli officer said Egyptian forces on the west bank of the canal opened a massive artillery barrage about 8 p.m. Friday along a 35-mile stretch of the canal from Deversoir to ElQantara as cover for the landing force.

Two hours later Israeli defenders in strongpoints detected the first Egyptians coming up the beach.

"We let come on—into a trap," the officer said.

He said the raiders walked into an encirclement of Israeli tanks, artillery and troops who held their fire until the trap closed and then blazed away at the raiding force.

Saturday morning Israeli warplanes retaliated with a raid on Egyptian positions near where the crossing originated.

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears Roebuck and Co. announced Saturday that 150 of its 821 retail stores throughout the nation will be open for business on Sundays during November and December.

A spokesman said 19 of 30 Sears stores in the Chicago area will remain open under the new program. Locations of other stores around the country that will operate on Sundays remains to be determined, the spokesman said.

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced Saturday it tested a new type of hydrogen bomb and carried out its first underground nuclear explosion on Sept. 23 and last Monday.

A Chinese-language broadcast from Peking gave the first word of the tests from the Red Chinese. Both had been reported previously in the West.

The broadcast said the tests were carried out in the western region of the Chinese mainland.

At Sundown The 'Irish Problem' Starts All Over Again; Grudges Flare

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — At sundown, the "Hards" gather on street corners and the Irish problem starts all over again.

The "Hards" in Belfast slang are the men at the barricades—throwing fire bombs and stones, jeering troops and police, working out grudges hundreds of years old.

They may be Catholics, Protestants or Unionists. Some may be nationalists, anarchists, hoodlums. These are the men—mostly young, many jobless—who light the fuse of chaos in this green land.

Slogans of reform and pleas for peace seem irrelevant to the logic of attack and counter-attack hammered out in the streets of Londonderry and Belfast.

Passions dormant for years erupted a year ago. The year has cost Northern Ireland a dozen dead, hundreds injured and thousands homeless.

It began in Londonderry when a Catholic civil rights march turned into a bloody battle with police who tried to enforce a ban against demonstrations.

The government resigned in April after the Protestant-dominated Unionist party split over giving jobs, housing and a wider vote to the Catholic minority.

Violence sputtered on into August, when British soldiers cut short the rioting and arson with tear gas and stretched barriers of iron and barbed wire across Northern Ireland's two biggest cities.

By this time, the original dispute over civil rights had turned into the ancient collision between Protestant and Catholic.

Businessmen are still counting the losses. Farming and shipbuilding, the two main industries, are largely unaffected.

But the Tourist Board estimates revenue will be down about 10 per cent from the 1969 target of $72 million. Production of linen, a basic export, is expected to drop well below last year's level because of employe absenteeism during the riots.

Some manufacturers have postponed setting up plants. Unemployment tops seven per cent of the work force, and hundreds of workers are planning to leave. Canadian officials in Belfast received 768 applications to emigrate last month, more than triple the September figure a year ago. The U.S. consulate reported a 15 per cent increase in similar inquiries.

Hundreds of families displaced in the riots face long stays in camps of trailers or converted construction huts until government agencies find them permanent homes.

Scattered nighttime incidents continue. Belligerent crowds form after the pubs close, occasional gasoline bombs are thrown, a few shots are fired.

British commanders have 4,000 troops available for peace-keeping chores in Belfast and Londonderry but a military spokesman commented: "Short of the army getting trigger-happy, can anybody be stopped from throwing a bottle?"

The Public Protection Authority organized last month received in three weeks more than 1,100 complaints of threatened violence against individuals.

The targets of this intimidation are largely people of one religion living in an area of another religion," said director Tom Crome. "The unfortunate result is that more families move out and there is more segregation."

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark, opening Parliament last week, appealed for legislation he said could remove "root causes of fear and suspicion." But many Irish are questioning whether the deliberate process of democratic government—the prime minister hopes to have most of his proposals enacted by Christmas—can any longer control the situation.

A 30-member peace committee including clergy and legislators meets regularly at Chichester-Clark's residence. "But a Methodist minister who has joined efforts to cool off the crowds in his own neighborhood said: "We have trouble reaching these boys. They don't go to church and when we start talking, they just don't want to know."

Part of the problem is the long Irish memory that has made a rallying cry out of "Remember 1690," the year Protestant forces defeated the Catholic King James II in the Battle of the Boyne.

"Other people bury their history. The Irish keep theirs alive," said a shopkeeper whose customers include both Catholics and Protestants. "The Quality And Quantity Keeps Rising

As a news story elsewhere in today's Daily Reflector shows, East Carolina University has resumed its growth in student enrollment with the fall term. Last year there was a slight drop in fall enrollment for the first time in a number of years. There were 9,400 students enrolled for the fall quarter last year, compared with 9,538 the previous year. This year a new record has been set with a fall enrollment of 9,689.

Last year's slight drop in fall enrollment may be attributable in part to the fact that the minimum Scholastic Aptitude Test score was raised from 800 to 850. Thus what East Carolina lost in enrollment in 1968 it made up in quality.

This year with a new fall quarter enrollment record, it can be expected that the entering students are the best trained and most qualified ever. The freshman class this year also set a new record in numbers. It has 3,461 members — 1,576 men and 1,885 women.

It is pleasing to supporters of ECU that new records are being set in enrollment. But it is important to recognize that quality of students is improving. So also is the quality of instruction that they receive, the curriculum and the facilities available for teaching.

There should be no apology for setting enrollment records, since, as a state supported university, East Carolina should strive to find a place for every qualified young man or woman. However, with its growing numbers of students ECU is also growing in quality education and the accompanying prestige, and that is most gratifying of all.

Resignation On Increased Taxes

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Inevitably, as decreed by a reluctant and embattled legislature last summer, the day arrived that North Carolina began collecting a tax on tobacco for the first time in the state's modern history.

And a crown tax on soft drinks, bottles, syrups, colas, ades and mixes too.

There was no cheering, no speechmaking of statements in favor of the new taxes — and very little weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth either. A survey indicated that the public generally accepted the increases.

A typical comment was, "well, everything is going up all the time." Another shopper said, "this will make more of us quit smoking, or at least cut down."

the floor of the House, they recanted and forced a compromise on the cigarette tax issue. The governor, Bob Scott, had proposed a five cent per pack tax on cigarettes and had not mentioned taxing of soft drinks. With Republican backing, anti-tobacco tax people forced him to compromise.

Nicket—Now that the tax on both cigarettes and soft drinks has become effective, the public is realizing how futile this was. The compromise in the political halls meant nothing more than putting more profit in the pockets of the middleman or the coin slots of the vending machines than in the state's treasury.

For example, the state tax on cigarettes is two cents per pack, but the vendors will collect an extra nickel. The state gets two cents. They will get three.

Taxes—The cigarette taxes, estimated to produce about $10 million a year, and the soft drink levy, estimated at about $15 million per year actually are only about half of the total new tax program enacted by the legislature — at Governor Scott's urging.

Liquor taxes were increased by at least $12 to $15 million a year, beer taxes by $7 to $10 million, sales taxes on "luxury" items such as airplanes, boats, automobiles and railroad locomotives went up by $8 to $10 million a year, bank excise taxes $1 million; saving and loan association taxes $1 million. All of this came in a package bill approved by the tax-writing Revenue committee.

Repeat—Already there are calls for repeal of the major parts of the tax package. The most vocal perhaps is that of Sen. Julian Allbrook of Halifax who made an impassioned, 40 minute speech against the tax bill on the day it was enacted. Rep. Sam Johnson of Wake County, House Appropriations chairman, feels that the next legislature, in 1971, should abolish the soft drink tax.

The American party (Wallace) party chairman Walter Green of Burlington, feels the state's Republican leadership a "publicity stunt" against increased taxation and really should join Allbrook in efforts to get a special session of the legislature together to repeal the whole package.

Community Service In The Dollars We Give

As the United Fund drive gets underway tomorrow every citizen of Pitt County should recognize that he has a duty to support the participating agencies. And because of United Fund each citizen can give his support with a single contribution.

The United Fund campaign has a goal of $123,054.30 this year and it is important that the drive be completed as soon as possible.

The dollars that each of us contribute to United Fund will purchase as much in the way of community services as any money we spend.

United Fund has proven to be a successful way of financing the work of the participating agencies. Every citizen should resolve to contribute his fair share so that the drive can be completed as quickly as possible.

A 'Revolution' In Minneapolis

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MINNEAPOLIS — In the mayor's chair only three months, Charles Stenvig, the former police detective assigned to burglary cases, has already produced a minor but still peaceful revolution in what used to be one of the nation's most progressive cities.

shoe shiners, and in the parking lots, and do you know what they say? They don't buy all this militant c—p."

But when a liberal Republican member of the State Assembly, sniffing a good political issue, began to attack Felicetta for his racial philosophy, the attack never got off the ground. He quickly found that Stenvig's newest member of the HRA was expressing the same sentiment that elected Stenvig himself last June by a whopping 61 percent of the vote.

With Stenvig's approval rating in an unpublished poll now registering over 65 percent, it is no wonder that liberals of both parties are not rushing to the attack. Their mood today is deep consternation, edged with a reluctant conviction that Stenvig does indeed reflect the inner emotions of the middle and lower-class whites who gloried in his attacks on student demonstrators, black militants, and the establishment that used to run the city from what he calls the far-out suburban "gold coast."

The mayor operates on the advice of a tiny coterie of insiders, including his chauffeur, a former policeman. A political independent with no party ties who lacks any visible contact with the city's business and commercial pool of potential recruits for city jobs, Stenvig on occasion has recruited old police friends for major city jobs. One of these is proving to be an embarrassment for him.

The city council, with the Republicans holding a 10-3 majority, is now plotting its first serious counterattack—a move to veto Stenvig's nomination of Ward Canfield to the civil service commission. But Canfield, who retired from the police force for disability when he was badly wounded in line of duty, is regarded as a minor hero by many voters. Even if Stenvig is rebuffed, he may well have another issue against the establishment.

The real test will come on Oct. 20, when the Stenvig revolution may emerge for the

So far, that revolution is subtle and gradual, more underground than overt. It can be perceived more in the mayor's bizarre appointments than in his exercise of admittedly weak executive powers.

For example, to replace the militant black head of the city's civil rights department, Lillian Anthony, Stenvig appointed a mild-mannered middle-class Negro named Robert E. Benford. Benford, a newspaper circulation employee who canvassed black areas, says that the question of race is far down on the list of priorities for his new job. The first priority, he said, is to see that all citizens are treated like Americans.

If Benford's appointment has been quietly accepted by the white liberals who had been running this city since Hubert Humphrey's election as mayor in 1945, some other appointments have not, notably Antonio G. (Tony) Felicetta. Stenvig triggered an uproar when he named the affable Felicetta, a non-resident of Minneapolis who is a Teamsters Union official, to the city's human relations commission (HRA), parent agency of the civil rights department. That uproar swelled when Felicetta, in a candid interview with the Minneapolis Tribune, came out flatly against any HRA investigations into repeated charges of police misconduct on the troubled black North Side — the hottest issue facing the HRA.

"With all these people demanding it, I'm against it," he said. "It would hurt their (the policemen's) morale. They're entitled to some courtesies."

Moreover, he said, "I talk with colored people a lot, with the elevator operators, the

Sunday Morning Notes

Two college girls were overheard in a downtown store: "You're kidding," one said. "No I'm not," the other replied. "His hair IS longer than mine."

And two other college girls, not connected, were talking on the street. One said: "I want to give him something for his birthday that's rather nice—so he'll put a lot of money in mine!"

One day last week some junior high school students were waiting for the bus at First and Harding Streets. When the bus arrived the students boarded it. A large brown dog followed right along, 'his tail wagging. Alas, as the dog happily made his way down the aisle, someone intercepted him. He was unceremoniously ejected from the bus.

It's a dog's life.

And our inside man at Pitt Tech tells us that every room door gets a number in the new classroom building—even the rest rooms.

Fortunately students won't have to remember the numbers. The usual "Men" and "Women" signs are also on the doors.

(Jacksonville Daily News) The German Democratic Republic—East Germany—is preparing to celebrate its 20th anniversary on Oct. 9.

In anticipation of the event, the Democratic (sic) Republic (sic) has issued a 53-page, self-congratulatory commemorative brochure which, among other things, informs the citizenry:

"With out Socialist order, we have conquered the exploitation, aggression, inhumanity and oppression that characterize the systems we have known in the past and which still characterize West Germany today. . . . Our constitution incorporates the highest form of democracy. . . . Every day the superiority of Socialist society is more clearly demonstrated. . . ."

Another anniversary, little observed on either side of the Iron Curtain, occurred a few weeks ago—the eighth anniversary of the Berlin Wall, which effectively sealed the major escape route taken by tens upon tens of thousands of East Germans to flee the GDR in the first 12 years of its existence.

Nevertheless, since the Wall went up, another 125,000 East Germans have successfully opted for the "oppression" of West Germany.

Nearly 23,000 of them managed to cross the mined and guarded border between the two Germanys. About 100,000 escaped by using false identity papers or by failing to return after an authorized visit to the West. Some 2,200 were fugitives from the East German armed forces.

Since 1961, 64 East Germans have died trying to scale the Wall; another 73 have been killed in escape attempts elsewhere on the border.

If the East German Communists really believed in the superiority of their socialist order, they would tear down the Wall, roll up the barbed wire and dig up the mines. They dare not, of course.

Where Angels Fear--

By HAL BOYLA

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions: Few men over 40 will read a romantic novel written by a woman. By then they doubt that women really know anything about romance.

On the other hand; six out of 10 women at a racetrack will bet on the only white horse in a race, regardless of his rating, because since childhood they have been secretly waiting for a man on a white horse to gallop into their lives.

It is easier to borrow money from right-handed people than left-handed people. After all, there aren't as many southpaws around.

One of the things about a woman that puzzles men most is how she can do more repair jobs with a hairpin than they can with a wrench and a pair of pliers.

Wouldn't it be nice if sometime, just for a change, all the newspapers in America would come out with their front pages blank except for this announcement: "The world news is so bad today we can't bear to ruin your day by printing it!"

There is a sex difference in the fears that hypochondriacs have. Most men are afraid of a heart attack; women dread cancer more.

After a doctor has treated you for 10 years, he is pretty sure what disease you'll die of; if you succumb to a different ailment he never really quite forgives you.

A guy with real self-confidence is the one who arrives for work half an hour late and strolls into the office whistling. One of the pleasures of wealth that some rich men enjoy most is the fun of changing their last will and testament every time they think of someone else they can disinherit.

The invention most of us would like to see next is a sliding fire plug that could be pushed down the sidewalk a few feet when we're trying to park a car.

The surest way for a preacher to get his sermon across to the congregation is to develop an attack of hiccups in the middle of it.

What are the two commonest woes of civilized man? Hangups and hangovers—and they seem to follow each other.

No man ever thumbs through his canceled checks without sighing over all the things he could have bought if he only had been able to spend the money the way he really wanted to.

One of the problems of going on a honeymoon this time of the year is what to do with the bride when there's a good pro football game on television.

Why Stock Market Is Slipping

By ELMER ROESSNER
A widow in Dubuque asks why the stock market is bogging. "Since I am dependent on my dividends and Social Security, I am naturally very much concerned," Mrs. M.W. Writes.

The basic reason is the pushed-up interest rates. This has had these effects: High-interest rates cut corporate profits. When corporations must pay 8 to 10 percent and more to borrow money for expansion or for current operations, profits shrink. Some shrinkage can be offset by higher prices, but there are limits to price increases, although that may be difficult to believe. And as prices rise, foreign manufacturers are more tempted to rush their products into America, and that tends to limit price rises. Price increases on 1970-model autos would have been much higher, if U.

S. makers were not fearful of increasing the inflow of foreign cars.

That's Your Dividends
When corporations make less profit—and hundreds are making less today than they did last year—they have less money for dividends. And with smaller dividends, the value of their stock is less.

ELMER ROESSNER

Big buyers are sitting out the market. Because the efforts to halt inflation appear to threaten a recession, and because they believe that many stocks have been overpriced, managers of pensions, foundations and mutual funds and banks have been selling stocks and putting their money into Treasury bonds and notes, tax-exempt bonds and other high-yield investments.

Some of these investors dumped stocks on the market while the dumping was good, thereby lowering stock prices.

They will not return to buying until they believe the bottom has been reached.

Banks and federal, state and local governments compete with the stock market for the investors' dollars. Banks paying 5 per cent are offering better returns than many corporation shares, even at current prices. The federal government pays up to 8 per cent on short-term notes. State and local governments offer tax-exempt bonds which may not do much for Iowa widows but are lovely, lovely for investors in high income brackets.

Other Bearish Factors
Costs of carrying stocks on margins are higher because of the high interest rates, even though margins are limited by law. This discourages speculators.

Noted economists, including high government experts, have predicted a slowing down of business.

Market trends propagate themselves. When the market starts to rise or fall, it usually continues until something checks the direction. There has been nothing to check the downward trend.

From now until late December, share holders will be selling to establish losses to offset earlier profits, thereby reducing income tax liabilities. These sales will tend to weaken prices.

The wonder of all this is not that the market has slumped, but that it has not sagged further, Mrs. W.

Strength For Today

THAT ANCIENT FAITH
"And Isaac dugged again the wells of water, which they had digged in the days of Abraham, his father; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham." Is there a message in these words for modern man? Yes, a very great message. Opposed by men who wanted to drive him out of the country, the patriarch Isaac decided to return to the narrow domain in which his father Abraham had lived. The Philistines had long since destroyed Abraham's wells by filling them with sand and rock. Isaac laboriously re-dug them and found that they were full of refreshing water. The wells which our fathers dug have often been ruined by men who either hated the things for which our religion stands or else are indifferent toward them. They destroy the wells from which come our spiritual refreshment by filling them with what they call new and irrefutable scientific facts, by heaping them full of ridicule, by declaring that religion is an outworn superstition. When we find our faith falling or discover to our consternation that our religion has been destroyed, the thing to do is not to begin looking for new truths but to go back and dig again the wells that have been filled up.

We shall find in the faith of our fathers the refreshment our souls need.

Observations From Editorial Columns

STAMPS AND SERVICE

It didn't take very long to dedicate a stamp commemorating man's first landing on the moon. Postmaster Gen. Winton Blount performed the honors recently in Washington by lauding the "spirit of man" and presenting albums of the new air mail stamps to the astronauts and NASA director Tom Paine.

Meanwhile, the Post Office department received the results of a detailed study revealing that it takes an average of about two days to deliver an air mail letter and only a day and a half to deliver the cheaper first class mail.

The problem, it seems, is that putting an air mail stamp on a letter going 250 miles or less will often delay it. But the Post Office people insist they are striving for overnight delivery of mail everywhere in the country.

But don't despair over the present service, although it took the astronauts only slightly longer to reach the moon. You can always appreciate the historic value of the stamps, once the mail arrives. — Atlanta (Ga.) Journal

MOM AND DAD

A husband-wife research team at Iowa State University says the personality of the parents may help to determine the sex of the child. The team found that aggressive, ambitious fathers are likely to produce girls. Social-climbing mothers are likely to produce boys. We'd guess a marriage of these two personality types probably would produce children of both sexes — who'd be turned over to a nanny while dad dashed off to Chicago on business and mom was having lunch at the club. — Knoxville (Tenn.) HIDDEN TAXES TAKE A BIG BITE

A general formula by which you may determine how much you pay in hidden federal taxes has been developed by the Tax Foundation, a private non-profit research group.

It has estimated that for every dollar you pay in federal income tax, you pay another $1.20 in other federal taxes, mostly concealed. If your weekly income tax deduction is $15, for example, you probably fork over another $18 weekly in various other federal taxes, which means Uncle Sam is nicking you for about $33 weekly.

This is merely an average figure, please understand. A particular individual could pay more or less, all depending on personal income and buying habits. Some of these taxes can be seen, of course, including the Social Security deduction and special levies on various commodities and items. But many other taxes are hidden, added somewhere along the line to the manufacturer's prices of a wide variety of things.

But seen or unseen, as Tax Foundation figures, they all add up to about one-fifth or more of your income if it happens to be around the average figure. Obviously, if your income is low or if you have a lot of deductions, your hidden taxes are higher in relation to your income tax.

If taxes go much higher, a worker might have to work like a dog to live like one, and could be better off giving the government the pay check and keeping the taxes. — Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger

SALESMEN CAN MAKE A DAY

Know-how is a rare commodity. One of the most satisfying experiences for the otherwise frustrated consumer, is to make a good purchase. With the size of business dwarfing the timid man and the warnings against advertisements and labels making him doubt his own judgment, he seldom buys with confidence. And the day of personally knowing the salesman has gone with the corner grocer.

But now and then the customer walks into one of the largest businesses, swarming with salesmen, and is greeted by someone who really knows his job — knows how the audience works, notes the differences between models, sells his product with confidence and experience. Then it is a great day for the consumer; he goes away satisfied that he has bought something that he needs, that will work, and that will last even after it has been paid for.

To have bought a summer air conditioner that was as cool and as quiet as the knowledgeable salesman promised — to drive home a new automobile that gets the kind of mileage the dealer quoted: these are experiences which cheer us up when the TV blows, the roof leaks, and the water heater rusts out. Hail to the salesman who knows his product and his customer. — Winston-Salem (N. C.) Twin City Sentinel

TRUTH IN BORROWING

In last week's news was a little item about a Midwest merchant's having received $5 in an anonymous note thanking him for the loan of $2.50 during the Depression. The extra amount would take care of the interest, wrote the borrower. An honest man, proclaimed the lender.

The gratifying story begged exploration, we felt. Jack Reed, Director of the Bureau of Business Research at Old Dominion College, provided it. In terms of the reduced buying power of today's dollar compared with the dollar of 25 years ago, the anonymous borrower returned only $1.82 to his benefactor, Mr. Reed figured. At a rate of 5 per cent interest compounded annually since 1934, he should have returned $8.47.

Finally, considering both a reasonable interest rate and the dollar's decline in borrowing power, the debt of $2.50 had mounted to $23.30. Even honesty is subject to the rising cost of living. — Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot

A Conservative View

Look, Look, Look! Read, Read, Read! Bosh And Bosh

By J. J. KILPATRICK
LOS ANGELES—Dr. James E. Allen, Jr., the U.S. Commissioner of Education, turned up here the other day with a great message in hand. The Nixon administration, he said, had a new goal to proclaim: The right to read. By the end of the 1970s, if all goes well, "no one shall be leaving our schools without the skill and desire to read to the full limits of his capability."

Well, look, look! Jolly, jolly! If I sound cynical, I mean to sound cynical. Dr. Allen's purpose is to improve the teaching of reading. The ironic truth is this: He can reach his goal only by trampling over the dead bodies of most of the teachers of reading. In the whole of our educational system, no failure is greater than theirs.

Dr. Allen said nothing new. The inability of millions of Americans to read, he said, is "shocking." And of course it is. It was shocking 25 years ago. The situation, he said, is "intolerable." Of course it's intolerable. He cited recent evidence of illiteracy: 25 per cent of the nation's students have significant reading deficiencies. In big-city schools, half the students "read below expectation." Sixty-eight per cent of young men surveyed by the Pentagon "fell below grade seven" in reading.

Such evidence abounds. California's sad experiences have been widely reported. In the District of Columbia, reading scores are a scandal. The same picture obtains in New York. The current bulletin of the Council for Basic Education sums it up: "The percentage of poor readers or non-readers steadily increases. Chicago has nearly doubled its school budget in a decade and New York City in six years, but the results of reading tests continue to show a downward trend."

One does not have to examine comparative scores on reading tests. At every college I visit, professors of English tell me the same tale: The freshmen that come to them cannot write, and they cannot write because they cannot read. Personnel managers find young job-seekers puzzling over the simplest application form. Perhaps you are a parent, and perhaps you are lucky: Your children can read this newspaper smoothly, at first glance, with understanding and expression. The more common experience is to find children who stumble on the hard words, and then give up.

Why has this tragedy occurred? The primary cause is not obscure. When the apostles of "look-say" or "word recognition" got their monopolistic hands on the teaching of reading, 30-odd years ago, the decline set in. In their blundering stupidity, they exiled phonics and buried the phonetic approach. They condemned a generation of children to the sterile, tasteless pabulum of basic readers that were contrived—not written, just contrived—from basic word lists. No wonder our children can't read! Who would want to read such bilge?

Dr. Jeanne Chall, Harvard professor of education, made some of these points two years ago in her masterful book, "Learning to Read—The Great Debate." (She is a lady, and made them more gently than I.) Her study proved a runaway best-seller in its high-octane field, with more than 100,000 copies sold. McGraw-Hill still does a brisk trade in the book. But even though Dr. Chall is a certified member of the Establishment, her findings have been muffled. The New York Times never even reviewed the work.

If Dr. Allen is to get anywhere in his new crusade, he must direct his energies—and his grants-in-aid—toward techniques of instruction that work. This means the alphabet. It means phonics and linguistics. It demands that Dick and Jane and their multitude be strangled.

And this won't be easy. The high priests of look-say have been shaken in recent years, not only by Dr. Chall but also by such heretical groups as the Reading Reform Foundation. Yet they have an immense and profitable investment in their theories; and doubtless, despite the miserable record, they still believe they are right.

Dr. Allen made his pitch to members of State Boards of Education. He chose his forum well, for these board members have the power to act—if only they will.

Touchiest, Thorniest Problems Are Talked By Fisheries Board

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

RALEIGH — It happened in North Carolina:

Well, we turned in our badge this week and this correspondent is no longer a member of the state's Commercial and Sports Fisheries Advisory Board.

There is a new board and we wish them well. The job is part-time, non-paying, hopefully non-political and perplexing. It concerns trying to solve some of the touchiest, toughest and thorniest problems with which state officials, particularly the State Board of Conservation and Development (C&D) has to face.

Not exactly an apple, but we fell off the tree in the re-organizing and reconstituting of this 11-member Advisory Board by Gov. Bob Scott and C&D director Roy Sowers. The fact is that we submitted our resignation to the governor last March but agreed to stay on until the new appointments could be made. Other members had also resigned and it was impossible to get a quorum at a meeting until the recent reconstituting was completed.

This is a statutory board, created by an act of the 1965 General Assembly authored and engineered by Rep. Hugh Ragsdale of Onslow, who was the first chairman, and Sen. Ashley B. Futrell of Beaufort.

The act specified equal representation between commercial and sports fishing interests.

In addition, it required an equal number of members of the legislature and at least two marine scientists.

The board, constituted in 1965, held meetings in Raleigh, Morehead City, Goldsboro, Asheville, Greensboro, Manteo and other localities in order to try to get statewide viewpoints on fisheries problems.

It has been a matter of comment, complaint and grumbling that a number of North Carolina organizations choose out-of-state places to hold their conventions.

The North Carolina Bar Association apparently is topping them all—it is going to Spain. The Bar Association convention will be held in Rorremolinas, in the South of Spain, later this month. A number of association officials plan to be in Europe for at least a week or 10 days.

A large, stake-bodied tractor or trailer rig carrying 87 beef cattle weighing between 300 and 700 pounds each went out of control on a mountain road north of Morganton the other day and overturned.

Twelve of the cattle were killed instantly. Two others were injured and had to be destroyed.

The remaining cattle were rounded up and herded into a nearby pasture.

No charges were filed, but the question of "overloading" a livestock truck was raised by safety officials.

Three men confined in the Richmond County jail at Rockingham apparently used hacksaw blades to cut an 11 inch hole in the bars and wriggled to freedom.

Getting through such a small hole may have been the least of their troubles.

They were housed in a second story cellblock. They wriggled into a narrow corridor leading to a back window. Two more steel posts had to be sawed. Then they dropped to the ground in a fenced-in area protected by a guard dog. Then they scaled a high barbed wire fence. One of the fugitives left a shoe hanging on the wire.

North Carolina reputedly has the highest incidence of snakebite of any state in the union. No one knows why. There has been little research on the matter. Most experts believe early Fall is the most dangerous time because the snake is seeking a place of safe hibernation. Others think it is during the soft days of Spring when the reptile emerges from hibernation and has a more powerful venom. Still others think the most dangerous time is when the snake is almost totally blinded by the scale which forms when it is shedding its skin.

Walking in the leafy woods and along creekbanks can be dangerous. State officials advise wearing high-topped shoes, or snakeboots. Most bites are usually around the ankle.

The mayor privately warns he will not let the students cross the river. He also says that running the police department is his "only complete job" as mayor. Accordingly, he will be in a position to carry out that threat with his police department and if he does his still-peaceful revolution will face its first crisis.

AN ACCESSORY!

Brandt Attains 10-Year Goal Of Respectability For Party

An AP News Analysis By PETER REHAK Associated Press Writer

BONN, Germany (AP) — Willy Brandt's capture of the West German chancellorship is the result of a 10-year struggle to make his Social Democratic party respectable in the eyes of the West German public.

It also is the sign of decreasing tensions with Communist East Germany and of increasing prosperity in West Germany.

Brandt, whose election as chancellor was assured Friday night, is closely identified with his party's 1959 reform platform that gained it rising popularity.

The accompanying increase in voter support culminated with Sunday's election results which enabled the party to dominate government for the first time in West Germany's 20-year history.

Brandt, who will be 56 in December, also gave the party the personality it needed to appeal to the voters after stagnation in the early postwar years.

He gained a lot of personal prestige as mayor of West Berlin when it was a Cold War flashpoint in the early 60s, while leading the party in a long uphill struggle to power.

There was a setback in 1965 when he was defeated for the chancellorship by Christian Democrat Ludwig Erhard. Brandt said he would never seek the top government post again.

He retired to Berlin but then brought new respectability to the Social Democrats when he came back in 1966 to serve as foreign minister in the coalition with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's Christian Democrats, who now become the opposition party.

The coalition, which gave the Social Democrats a chance to participate in government for the first time since before World War II, seems to have made the party acceptable to the German voter.

It was the only party to register gains in Sunday's election. It got 42.7 per cent of the votes, 3.4 per cent more than four years ago. It still did not get the most votes, but enough to be able to form a coalition with the tiny Free Democrats.

The turning point came with the 1969 party reform platform. Under pressure from one of its worst defeats in a West German election, old guard party leaders gave in, and reformed the party from a far left advocate of the class struggle to a West German version of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal.

Where it had advocated a planned economy and nationalization of big industry, the party came out in 1959 for "a free market, wherever free competition really exists."

"As much competition as possible—as much planning as necessary," was the slogan. But it was not until 1966, when its economic expert, Prof. Karl Schiller, became economics minister that it got a chance to prove it meant what it said.

In the platform, the party also for the first time sharply assailed communism, saying Communists "have falsified socialist ideas."

Social Security Increase Plan Will Mean Nothing To Many Persons

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The Nixon Administration's cost-of-living increase in social security benefits will mean absolutely nothing to millions of retired and disabled people covered by the program.

Their "share" will take the form of a huge multi-million dollar windfall for major insurance companies.

There is nothing irregular about this, even though it may come as a surprise and disappointment to many who look to increased social security checks to help meet the harsh bit of government-generated inflation.

The situation arises from the fact that many privately purchased pension plans are tied to the level of social security benefits with the idea of giving the retired person a fixed percentage of pre-retirement income—say 25 percent, 50 percent, 75 percent or some other figure.

Under these arrangements, when the social security share of the total pension goes up, the private payment portion is reduced by a similar amount. For example, if a retired person was receiving $300 monthly, half from social security and half from a supplementary private plan, a $15 per month increase in the government payment would simply mean that the check from the insurance company would be reduced by that amount.

Congress is well aware of this situation and has been for years. Each session, scores of bills are introduced to bar what many have come to call the insurance company windfall. But, legally, it is not a simple matter where existing contracts are involved. And, too, the insurance companies maintain a powerful lobby.

No figures are available on just how many retired people have these combination fixed-pension income plans. Estimates, however, place them in the millions. And, of course, such plans are still being written and will affect more and more of those who reach retirement or become disabled each year.

In past social security benefit increases, the fact that many fail to benefit was not of acute concern. In the first place, their level of pension income was above those whose sole reliance was on government checks. And in the second place, the rising cost of living was at an annual rate far below that which erupted several years back when the Kennedy-Johnson Administrations insisted on heaping welfare programs on top of a rising war obligation.

The practice of writing private insurance plans to supplement payments under social security started back in the 1930s shortly after The Roosevelt Administration got the benefits program enacted.

At the beginning, the idea was that social security would be merely a cushion against extreme hardship—and, of course, would be of greatest benefit to those with low incomes and little opportunity to protect themselves against the problems of age.

Subsequent expansions have done little to raise the benefits level above the mere subsistence line. But with social security as a starting point, employers and unions aided by employer contributions have been able to work out supplementary programs, some of them very liberal.

In working out supplemental programs, usually financed by contributions from both employers and employees, companies and unions, too, have gone for the biggest looking package and the cheapest. These, of course, are the arrangements for the private fixed income level. Insurance companies have, in effect, bet on inflation, long range, and their bet is paying off.

As noted before, there is nothing irregular about these pension plans. Congress can't just up and abrogate private contracts which, in themselves, violate no law. But many devices have been proposed in bills introduced in both the House and Senate.

One device which has support would deny social security increases to individuals in instances where they would serve to reduce pension benefits paid by other sources.

This plan would not get the retired or disabled person any more money, however. It would simply leave him out when costs-of-living increases come around, unless the insurance company which wrote program elected to go ahead the supplementary benefit program elected to go ahead and pay at the existing rate.

Those who argue for this change recognize that it might well result in no increase for many who receive social security. But, they argue, it would avoid a situation where higher benefits, based on social security taxes, actually accrue to insurance companies.

Congress, however, might be able to prevent such scale-down contracts from being written in the future.

Over-all, there seems to be little doubt about Congress approving the social security liberalization, with the higher pay-roll taxes it is certain to bring. The tax increase, however, may well be put off to some future date.

Congress has changed the original social security concept a great deal in revisions of the law which have taken place over the past 30-years.

At the start, the program was keyed to the idea that each individual would receive at retirement a pension reflecting just what he and his employer had paid in through the payroll taxes. But "welfare" considerations have changed this substantially.

The program has become heavily weighted in favor of those with low incomes, which is another way of saying that it is steadily becoming less and less of a bargain for others.

Over the next 20 years, social security taxes may well become the most burdensome of all taxes, even the income tax. It hits gross income up to $7800 a year now, with a rate of 9.6 percent, divided between employee and employer. This is a rugged rate.

But with inflation, social and political pressures, this rate may well double over the coming years, with a corresponding increase in the amount of wages and salaries to which it is applied.

ABM Sites May, May Not, Be Boon To Towns

By DOTTI CLUNE
LANGDON, N.D. (UPI)—A great deal has been heard from the proponents and opponents of the ABM missile system but little from the people who are going to have the missiles as next door neighbors.

These are the people of such lonesome places as Cavalier County, N.D., one of the sites to which the Nixon administration last March ordered deployment of the ABM sentinel missiles.

For good or ill, they are stuck with the missiles and as people around Langdon, Cavalier County seat, concede, there was not much they could do about it. But there are still mixed feelings about the ABM in Cavalier County.

There is hope that the coming surge of federal money and workers will revive the shrunken economies of the two hamlets where North Dakota's two ABM installations are likely to be located, Nekoma (pop. 143), and Concrete, which is just one jump ahead of ghost town status.

ABM Pros & Cons

There is also concern that the ABM installations will preempt good farm lands. There are even those who do not like the idea of servicemen sparking farmers' daughters.

Some of the talk around Langdon:

—“If you're looking for militants, you won't find them here. The only ones who've taken a stand against the ABM are a few preachers, professors, priest and students.”

—“What good will it do? It's already been proven that it won't work, so why waste more money?”

—“It's great. It'll be a real shot in the arm for our economy.”

—“It's probably all right. No one even talks about it much any more. There's nothing we could do, anyway.”

The ABM will not be the first contact the largely rural populace of northeastern North Dakota has had with the military. Cavalier County, less than 100 miles from Grand Forks Air Force Base, reportedly has the largest concentration of Minuteman missiles of any county in the nation. There are 33, including four manned control centers.

One of the most enthusiastic boosters of the ABM is State Sen. Richard E. Forkner, a lifelong resident of Langdon. As Forkner sees it, Langdon will experience a “real economic boost” because of its size—largest city in the county—and position—midway between the two proposed sites.

There are many who disagree with Forkner, particularly farmers. They resented the breaking up of farm lands that accompanied construction of the Minuteman sites and, in general, were not happy about the prospect of having a missile site in the middle of a prize durum wheat field.

The coming of the ABM could mean the end of 29 years of farming for Edwin Fauske, who in that time has been cultivating rented land on which the proposed site near Nekoma is located. Fauske said he has doubts about the effectiveness of the ABM, and “anyway, I'm opposed to the whole idea.”

His neighbor, farmer Robert Lebrun, was more vehement. “I don't like it,” he said. “It certainly won't help the farmers. The cost of living will go up and we won't be able to hire help for reasonable wages. Right now we're paying $1.50 an hour but when the ABM comes, we won't be able to get anybody to work for under $3 an hour.”

He added, “I've got four daughters, so you can understand why I'm not happy about having a bunch of Army guys coming in here.”

Minutemen don't work, so why should they spend more money to try to protect them?”

Mrs. Ruth Herzog, postmistress in Concrete, said she thinks most of her friends and neighbors “seem to think the ABMs are okay.” Like many other area residents, she said she doesn't feel she is in a position to make a judgment on the ABM issue.

In the 1920s, Concrete was a booming town with a railroad and a cement mine. Since then, it has shrunk to seven or eight families, the post office and the general stores, both of them operated by Mrs. Herzog.

Concrete and Nekoma may recover a bit of their former prosperity during the ABM construction phase. The number of ABM workers is expected to average about 1,000, peaking to twice that number during some periods. Boeing Co. has estimated that schooling will be needed for about 890 children. Fortunately, a new school is under construction in Langdon.

Some Welcome Project

As Crockett, executive secretary of the Greater North Dakota Association, said, “I have doubts about the effectiveness of the ABM, but if they're going to spend the money, we're just glad it's coming our way.”

“Most people have adopted a wait-and-see attitude,” Dick Beranke, managing editor of the weekly Cavalier County Republican, said. Beranke said there is not even much talk about the ABM among the county's 10,000 residents since the initial excitement at the time of the announcement in March.

“Most people probably are glad that the ABM's are coming, particularly the businessmen, but even they are making no special preparations for the influx of workers,” he said.

Terry Lamb, state coordinator of the North Dakota Citizens Against the ABM, saw it differently. He said door-to-door canvassing in the region indicated sentiment was more or less evenly divided. A newspaper survey conducted by seven weekly newspapers has 49 per cent of the respondents against deployment of the ABM, 42 per cent for it and 9 per cent with no opinion.

Lamb said there were about 300 names on the mailing list of this group, which was formed in March and broke up after the Senate voted in favor of deployment. The organization's ranks include Ed Smith, president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, Robert Vogel, a prominent Mandan, N.D., attorney, and Mary Cornellius, chairman of the Chippewa Indian Tribe at Belcourt, N.D.

Lamb said the abortive campaign convinced him that, although their lives may be changed more than those of people in other parts of the country, the majority of North Dakotans affected still do not understand what the ABM is supposed to do, why it may or may not work, and what it has to do with the arms race.

Meanwhile, highway department crews have completed survey work for the ABM roads. Cavalier County awaits the government's next move.

The Evolution of Pharmacy
By Harold E. Harris and Anne H. Harris R.P.H.

I thought it might be in order for the next few weeks to talk a little about “drug safety.”

Today's modern home has virtually created its own little pharmacy in its medicine cabinet. It is for this reason we'll try to pass on a few do's and don'ts on safety. Here goes:

DO—Keep all medicines out of the reach of children. (Under lock and key preferably)

DO—Read all labels carefully.

DO—Throw out the contents of your old medicine bottles.

DO—Separate your internal and external medicines.

These are just a few suggestions on home safety. Next week we'll pass on a few don'ts.

This week ladies I'd like to mention a well known and very popular hair care product. Breck. As we all know it's one of the finest names in hair care, so why not stop in and select your needs now.

Dick Crockett, a farmer who favors the ABM, said some people tend to forget the basic reason for locating the missiles in the area. “After all, we've got the missile silos that the ABM's are supposed to protect,” he said.

Crockett conceded that the North Dakotans' experience with the Minutemen may have made them more aware of, and possibly more cynical about, the military-industrial complex. An unsuccessful attempt to launch a missile in nearby Michigan, N.D., did nothing to bolster their confidence.

That was what Lauren Ellenbaum, proprietor of a hardware store in Langdon, had in mind when he said, “I'm opposed to the ABMs and I think most of the people here are, too. What good will it do? We've already seen that the

Oklahoman Is One Of Few Violin-Makers

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Ed Cooper sat on his bench, straw hat on his head, cigar in his mouth, and his fingers strumming the strings of a classical guitar.
 He glanced around the small room, strewn with violins and guitars in various stages of assembly and repair, and at one wall, hung with a hand saw and more exotic tools.
 "I guess I'm one of the few authentic violin-makers in the United States," said Cooper, as his fingers continued to wander over the strings of the guitar.
 "There are few people who can make and understand quality instruments."
 "I started by repairing violins and then learned to make them—it takes about a week to make a violin," said the 73-year-old Cooper who was born in the central Oklahoma town of El Reno, and who has spent the last 50 years building and repairing violins and other stringed instruments.
 The materials of his craft are maple and spruce pine woods, varnish, a saw, a hand-made wood gouge, a small power buffer, chisels, sandpaper, a half-round rasp, a perfling tool and lead bending irons to shape the wood.
 "Factories ruin the wood by bending it while it's hot," he declared. "I have my own method for making the sides of a violin."
 "I wet the wood and put it between two lead bending irons. That way it holds the shape without ruining the wood. After it's shaped, I just bake it in a stove oven until it has set."
 The real skill in violin-making, Cooper said, comes in graduating the top and back of the instrument.
 "A hair's difference in thickness will make a difference in

Probation Status Helps Families, State And Selves

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Placing a convicted law offender on probation, when it is feasible, is of benefit to him, his family, and the taxpayers of the state," Miss Ada Jones, women's probation officer for this area, said.

"When a woman is put on probation rather than sent to prison, she can continue caring for her family, working at a public job, going to school, or whatever has occupied her before. Thus, her family is not likely to go on welfare whether she is the sole provider or not. She continues a normal life and does not have the difficult readjustment period that most former prisoners have."

Also, the probation officer will see that she is afforded any community services of which she has need. For instance, it was written into the judgment of a local girl known to be on drugs that she go to the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic. Miss Jones said she uses the services of the North Carolina Vocational Rehabilitation quite often to help probationers learn new job skills when they have been unemployed or are in need of a better-paying and more satisfying job.

She urges probationers who have alcoholic problems to turn to the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, although cases which involve only alcohol offenses are handled by Charles Ross, another probation officer in Pitt County. The Pitt County Alcoholic Information Center is also recommended as a source of help for some.

"The probation system could not function without the help of the community," she said. "Besides these agencies, I often call on individuals for help. One of the rules of probation is that the person be either employed or in school. I encourage the unemployed probationer to find his own job for several reasons. We want him to be that self-reliant; we want him to pick the job he will be content in; and if the employer does not already know he is on probation, we do not want to be the ones to tell him. If, however, he cannot or will not find a job on his own, we will assist him or do it for him. Often this means going to businessmen or people in industry on behalf of the probationer. I have always found businessmen in Greenville very cooperative."

Local organizations often give to Miss Jones for needy probationers. She has received clothes from the Moose Clothing Bank and the Salvation Army and the St. Peter's Altar Society keeps her car trunk filled with good used clothing, she said. She added that the Greenville Service League has never failed to provide a layette for any needy expectant mother for whom she has asked help.

Very important to the state taxpayers is the comparatively low cost of probation, as opposed to imprisonment. According to figures compiled as recently as two weeks ago, the cost of keeping a prisoner for a year is $2075; a parolee, $252; and a probationer, $115. These figures do not take into consideration the costs of court which the probationer saves the taxpayer and the fine money which he pays the county. Also, the taxpayer is saved the cost of welfare benefits which are so often needed by a prisoner's family. Plus, since a parolee is compelled to work, usually he will be paying some income tax.

Miss Jones told a story of a woman who was on probation several years ago. Deaf as a result of an automobile accident she was found guilty of driving without double rear view mirrors, required equipment for all deaf drivers. Once Miss Jones had reviewed her case, she suggested the woman go to a hearing clinic at Duke Hospital and drove her there herself. It was found that with a certain kind of hearing aid, the woman would be able to hear again. Then she had to tackle learning to talk correctly again. This she did with the help of neighbors who drilled her. During this time her personality, which had become withdrawn, blossomed. Within a year, she had landed a job and was on her feet.

Then there are some who need to be on probation to keep out of trouble. Miss Jones said she has one probationer she has been dealing with since 1945. Every time the woman is caught selling whiskey, she is convicted and put on five years' probation. Within less than 60 days after that period is over each time, she is caught again and the process is repeated.

Most probationers, however, are first offenders. Miss Jones said almost all of them are cooperative and appreciative, if for no other reason, because they are so relieved not to have been sent to jail.

If one does violate the rules of probation, she is returned to court and either her probation is revoked and she is sent to jail or probation is continued, according to the discretion of the court. Fortunately, however, over 80 per cent do complete the probation period which can last as long as five years — successfully.

The leading offenses for which women are placed on probation include larceny, forgery, violation of liquor laws, assault, and abandonment—in that order. Any proved crime except a capital offense can result in probation. Simple traffic violations do not call for probation, either.

First In N.C. In Seniority

Miss Jones, who has been a probation officer longer than any other of the 200 in the state, said she finds her work very interesting. "Every individual is different and must be handled differently," she said. "A probation officer must be flexible in order to get the best from each of his charges. He cannot have a set of ideas he expects the probationer to live up to if he wants to see him finish his probation period successfully and improve his situation in doing so. His tactics and his frame of mind may have to change from one minute to the next with the exit of one probationer and the entrance of the next. Also, I think you have to really care about the people you work with. Almost every night I go to bed thinking about one or more of the women I've worked with that day, but I think that's the way it should be."

Miss Jones became a probation officer in 1945. Last February she was promoted to Probation Officer II, a position which makes her supervisor of three other women's probation officers in this district. These have offices in Aulander, Kinston, and Wallace.

When she began work, she had a 39-county area in which to work. Now she is personally in charge of three counties: Pitt, Craven, and Carteret. She works in and around New Bern Mondays and Wednesdays; in Pitt County Tuesdays; and in Carteret County Thursdays. Fridays she devotes to office work.

A GOOD DETECTIVE STORY . . . her dog, looks restless. occupies Miss Jones' attention, but Pokey,

With the Women

8—The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N. C.—Sunday, October 5, 1969

KEEPING FILES AND REVIEWING REPORTS . . . on each probationer is a small but important part of Miss Jones' work.

GERANIUMS FLOURISH . . . on Miss Jones' front porch because of the loving care she gives them.

At present she has a case load of 104. Each probationer must be visited at home at least once a month; a written report by each must be reviewed; and the probation officer must be available to talk to any who come to her office. Of course, records must be kept on each. Also, she is on call 24 hours a day, often having to answer calls and make visits or trips in the middle of the night.

All probation officers attend in-service training courses at the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill each year. Here they study changes in laws and techniques and learn of new ideas for rehabilitation.

Also, probation officers have frequent divisional meetings for the exchange of ideas. Miss Jones said her byword at these meetings is the credo by which she lives and works—do something even if it's wrong.

Before she became a probation officer, Miss Jones taught eighth graders for eight years and also served as clerk of the Greenville Municipal Recorder's Court. A Greenville native, she attended the Greenville City Schools and graduated from Sacred Heart Academy and College in Belmont. She now lives in College Court here.

A member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, she has served on the church council and as president of the Altar Society. Last year she served as senior regent of the Women of the Moose, an organization she said is "a great fraternity which has afforded me many fine friendships all over the state."

No one has to know her long to know she is "crazy about all animals, especially dogs." Her own 12-year-old toy terrier, Pokey, goes everywhere she does. She said all the dogs in her neighborhood meet her when she gets out of the car in the afternoons. She says she keeps a good supply of lollypops and dog biscuits in her car at all times: the former for children on her rounds; the latter for dogs she meets. She is a member of the United States Humane Society and the National Catholic Animal Welfare organization.

She and the friend who shares her home, Miss Evelyn Beasley, enjoy traveling. She went to Europe several years ago and said the two recent trips she has enjoyed most were to Niagara Falls and to Booth Bay Harbor, Me.

An avid Democrat, she belongs to the Pitt County Democratic Women and her office walls are lined with pictures of FDR, JFK, and LBJ.

She reads a great deal and said that, in spite of her work, her favorite reading matter is a suspenseful detective story.

She said, "I look forward to retirement in June, 1972, and hope to be able to travel as much as possible then. There are so many places in America I want to see yet, especially the great Northwest. Also, if I improve my golf game, I hope to spend a lot of time at Brook Valley."

For 'Miss Vicki' And Tiny Tim: Their Romance Was Instant

By NANCY BURDEN

Women's News Service

PHILADELPHIA — Forget that she's Vicki Budinger, 17, just engaged to marry Tiny Tim, and you'd think she was any girl in love.

Honestly.

"We rang the doorbell of the green and white clapboard house on Westmont Avenue in Haddonfield, N. J., and 'Miss Vicki,' the one who has stolen the unusual singer's heart, ran to answer it, breathlessly.

"Miss Vicki" is what her long-haired, high voiced fiancée calls her. And she likes the fact that he uses this formality.

"She was wearing a purple, wool dress, a color that complemented her brown eyes and dark ash-blond hair. And it was a near-mini which suited very nicely her slim, tall-5 ft, 11-inch-figure. (Tiny Tim is over 6 feet tall.)

"I'm not ready for you," she told us—although she looked as though she was. "But come in and I'll be with you as soon as I can."

The phone was ringing, as it has been since the engagement was announced just a few days ago, and Miss Vicki flew upstairs to answer it, appearing five minutes later in a gray dress with leg-of-mutton sleeves and a vest.

She was smiling, happily. Many people had thought that marriage was just never in the cards for the nationally-known, coy, ukulele-strumming Tiny Tim (real name Herbert Kaurhy) who is thought to be 41 years old. But, perhaps no one figured on Miss Vicki.

"It seemed to be love at first sight for both of them. And on top of that it was a whirlwind romance Tiny-Tim style that began at an autographing session at Philadelphia's John Wanamaker's store last June when Miss Vicki came through the line twice to shake his hand.

Miss Vicki described her feelings about that meeting.

"I've met lots of people and thought they were nice," she said. "I liked their looks, but I never thought about them for the future. This time, I knew he was the one. There couldn't be anyone else. He felt the same way."

A 1969 graduate of Lenape Regional High School, Medford, N. J., she had taken the commercial course and had planned to become an executive secretary. "But, of course all of that's changed now," she said. "If I wanted a career, I know he wouldn't mind, but I don't want one."

Miss Vicki said that she calls Tiny Tim "Tiny." When she talks about him, however, it comes out "Tiny Tim."

"It's his legal name, you know," she said. "I guess we'll use that and his other name on the marriage certificate. For the wedding invitations, we decided to use Tiny Tim with Herbert Kaurhy in parentheses."

To Wed On TV

The wedding will be in December. Tiny Tim, accompanied by Miss Vicki, announced on the Johnny Carson show that the date was Dec. 25, and when Carson suggested that it be performed on the TV show, Tiny Tim shouted, "Great!"

"But now it turns out that Mr. Carson will be on vacation then—and he just has to be there!—so we'll either have it on the show near the original date or somewhere else on Christmas."

Miss Vicki, whose full name is Victoria May, wants a traditional wedding and plans to wear a long, white bridal gown. "If I like it, he'll say he does," she said of her wedding plans.

She said she has chosen an older sister, Mrs. Robert Bramlett, 23, of Toms River, N. J., as her matron of honor, and that Tiny Tim's best man will be his manager, "Mr. Joe Kaufman." They won't have any other attendants.

"Oh, and this is something," she said, holding up her hand for emphasis. "I saw a bridal dress in the Bride's Magazine that I thought was really me and I looked down and saw that it was at Wanamaker's—that's where we met. I'll be getting my dress at Wanamaker's."

Mother

As we talked, Miss Vicki's mother, Mrs. Allen H. Budinger, a graying, alert woman who lets her daughter do most of the talking, joined us in the living room.

"She didn't talk much on the Carson show, but she's making up for it now," she said, nodding toward Miss Vicki.

Also sitting in, mostly listening, was 10-year-old Tracy Budinger, the youngest of five Budinger daughters. Tracy thinks Tiny Tim is "great"—as apparently do all the family.

The other Budinger girls are Mrs. Edward Sheets of Lake Pine, N. J., 29, and Alene, 20, a student at Frankford Hospital School of Nursing.

Allen Budinger, who is an artist and sells art supplies, "liked Tiny Tim immediately," said Mrs. Budinger. Vicki said that her father plans to paint a picture of his prospec-ive son-in-law.

He has his eccentricities," Mrs. Budinger said of Tiny Tim, "but we all love him. He is 'more open than others.' He has a lot of dimensions. We feel very light-hearted about it."

What about the falsetto voice (heard most familiarly singing "Tiptoe Through the Tulips")?

"He developed that voice to attract attention," his future mother-in-law said. "He's the first one to tell you that."

"It's the old-style way of singing," said Miss Vicki.

The Budingers met Tiny Tim for the first time last June in his room at the Warwick, in Philadelphia, only a day after their daughter had met him. And they spent "many hours" with him in mid-August during his engagement at the Steel Pier, in Atlantic City. It was during that week that Tiny Tim proposed.

August Proposal

"I was surprised (at the proposal) and I think he was too, really," said Miss Vicki. She forgot the exact date for a moment, but Tracy supplied it for her. It was August 18.

Mrs. Budinger said that her daughter had dated before she met Tiny Tim, but not very frequently. "She's not as outgoing as she looks," she said.

There were just a few mementoes of Tiny Tim around the brightly-decorated Victorian-style interior of the Budinger house: The 1½-carat diamond engagement ring, selected by the couple at Tiffany's (Miss Vicki was flashing it proudly); Tiny Tim's three record albums, and an elaborate trophy. The trophy is inscribed: "To Miss Vicki, the most beautiful girl in the world. Now and forever, from Tiny Tim."

Tiny Tim, whose flowery language flows generously, had composed a lengthy inscription for the inside of the engagement ring, but the Tiffany people said it just wouldn't fit, his fiancée said. "So it will read 'Miss Vicki,' the victor of them all. T.T."

Cool It Courtship

Tiny Tim's words are impassioned, but in keeping with his philosophy, he's maintaining a cool-it courtship.

They hold hands, she said, and dates are long talks in his dressing room or in his hotel room when he sometimes sings some songs.

"We've only kissed twice," she said, "and then, with a perfectly straight face, 'but that's washed away.'"

If anyone can give some insight into the enigmatic, but respected Tiny Tim it certainly should be his fiancée and Miss Vicki does her best to shed some light.

Asked what she liked best about him, she said, "It's everything together. He's a gentleman, and he's unpredictable. I never know what he's going to do next. I like that."

Couple Speaks Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Kathy Diane Sutton became the bride of Kenneth Allen McLawhorn in a candlelight ceremony Saturday evening at 7:30 in the Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Dan Beamon, pastor of the bridegroom, officiated at the ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Tommy Manning, organist, and Wayne Vincent, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with white spiral candelabra holding tall cathedral candles with emerald palms and bridal greenery. The altar was banked with two baskets holding white and pink gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Sutton wore a full length satin peau de soie and chantilly lace gown with chapel train, covered with pearls and iridescent crystals. The bodice featured a scalloped neckline with long wrist length sleeves. The chapel length train, covered with chantilly lace, was attached at the shoulders.

The bride's fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to petals of lace beads and crystals. Her only jewelry was a diamond pendant. She carried a lace-covered prayerbook with miniature carnations, ivy and centered with a white orchid.

Miss Ruth Bateman was maid of honor. She wore a blue floor length gown of worsted silk, accented at the empire waistline with a royal blue ribbon attached to a bow in the back. She carried a colonial bouquet of blue matching flowers. Her headpiece was of blue knit with a bow matching her dress.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jo Ann Sutton, sister of the bride, Mrs. Wilbur Jones, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Patsy Taylor and Miss Martha Bright. They wore gowns identical to the maid of honor in pink worsted silk. They carried colonial bouquets of pink flowers.

William McLawhorn, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Stuart Smith, Samuel Cox, Willie Dalton Cox and Robert Sutton, cousin of the bride, all of Ayden.

Miss Wendy Jones, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. Her gown was identical to the bridesmaids. She carried a white basket of roses and daisies. Barry Sutton, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. He carried a white satin pillow decorated with white lace and

Son's Actions Are Rude, Try To Draw Him In Conversation

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our son (who is an only child) have had Sunday dinner out for many years.

David is now 15, and he's suddenly started something new. He rushes thru his dinner and when we are nowhere near finished he asks his father for the keys to the car so he can go sit in it and listen to the radio. His father doesn't like it any better than I do, but he gives him the keys and we finish without him.

David has done this when we have had others eating with us, too. I think it is rude, but my husband says if the boy prefers to sit in the car and listen to the radio, it's his privilege, but I know my husband is hurt. I'd like your opinion.

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It is rude, but your son is trying to tell you he is bored. Have you tried drawing David into the conversation? Next time, try it. He may stay thru dessert.

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned that our 23-year-old son, now a senior in college, is the father of a child that was given away for adoption last year. Our son did not confide in us, I found this out quite by accident.

Our son and this girl did not want to rush into marriage, so they decided to give up the child, but now that she has returned home they became engaged. (They are not aware that I know about the baby.) I might add she is a very sweet girl and I think the world of her.

My husband and I have always looked forward to our first grandchild and I am sick with grief to think that somewhere in this world I have a grandchild, whom I will never know. I haven't been able to bring myself to tell my husband yet. My question: Do I have the right to keep this from him? It is his grandchild, too.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: No possible good can come from your telling your husband. The "grandchild" is now somebody else's child and grandchild as well. Be kind and silent. And don't dwell on it. The cancer of life is regret.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 49 and I am 46. He is a college graduate and an excellent provider. We have three lovely children and have been married for 20 years. My problem? My husband doesn't like for me to talk to him.

He asks me not to talk to him at mealtime because he is "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving, because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid that I should talk to him while he is reading or watching television!

He doesn't want me to talk when we are out in public with friends either. This is very hard on me as I come from a large family and love to talk. I am not dumb. I read a lot and have a lot of interesting things to say. When we are out, he talks to other people, but he says he HAS to talk to THEM—he doesn't have to talk to ME.

Oh, he does call me from work every day to find out what was in the mail, and then I get to talk. He says as long as he has to pay for the five minutes he doesn't mind my talking. Please put this in your column as it is one of the things my husband always reads, and it will be one way for me to tell him what I think. Thank you.

ribbons.

The bride's mother wore a pastel yellow dress of raw silk with a lace bodice and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a gold knit dress with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white Georgiana orchids.

The bride is a junior at Ayden High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Ayden High School and is employed at DuPont.

After a short wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Ayden.

Immediately following the rehearsal on Friday evening, an after-rehearsal party was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Sutton. The bride's table was decorated with a centerpiece of pink flowers on white linen cloth. Friends, relatives and members of the wedding party were invited.

Hearing Controlled By Their Eyes

PALMA DE MAJORCA, Spain (WNS)—Mariana Castello, who is writing a book about the sudden changes in life for primitive Majorcans now that the island has become a smart vacationland, has discovered that many farm women remove their eyeglasses when they answer the telephone, an object which is a new luxury to them.

"They hear more clearly with their glasses off," explained Mrs. Castello. The same ladies claim that they hear better at lectures and concerts with their spectacles on.

On The Young Side

By JANE JACKSON

With one month of school over in the 1969-70 year, students at Rose High School are settling down into the daily studying and curriculum of school life.

Annual magazine sales began at Rose High on Friday. Students will sell through next Friday. This year, big prizes are in store for students who sell the highest amount of subscriptions. Rose High will compete against Wilson and Goldsboro.

A major prize is a "love bug" Volkswagen. Also students can strive for 100 gallons of gasoline, a trip to Raleigh for a football game, and $75 worth of cosmetics. Next June, six people will be able to spend a weekend at Wrightsville Beach, (chaperoned).

High salesmen for each day will receive a mascot. Students who sell certain magazines will receive a candy bar.

Group Captains
 Group captains for the homerooms at RHS met Tuesday to discuss the oncoming sales. Rose High group captains will compete against Wilson Fike for a party at the end of the sales.

With the many opportunities for good prizes this year, sales should pass the $8,000 mark made last year. "It can only be done by working together and having enough desire," states 1968-69 high salesman, Josie Rawl.

This past week, each class met for an assembly to introduce magazine sales. Sophomores met during homeroom Tuesday; juniors, Friday; and seniors, Thursday.

Homecoming Plans
 Further plans for homecoming, Oct. 17, have been made. Six students will act as the homecoming committee. They are as follows: Elizabeth Price; Nina Price; Joe Hunter; Gail Garcia; Betsy Droegemeyer; and Katrina Jolly.

Homecoming activities were presented by Eric Vernon to newly elected SCA members during a meeting Tuesday.

Float chairmen for respective classes are as follows: Sophomore, Becky Clark; junior, Sheila Teel, Katy Bryant, and Jackie Minges; senior, Delores Barrett and Mary Katherine MacKenzie.

"Anyone who will offer the use of their convertible during homecoming is asked to please contact Horace Robertson, head of the event," states SCA president Eric Vernon.

Spirit of Seventy members will sponsor a homecoming dance Saturday, Oct. 18. Location and time of the dance will be announced later.

Local Distributive Education officers met Thursday in New Bern. The meeting was a workshop for DE officers. Bev Farmer is acting president of the club this year.

Other officers at Rose High are: Vice President, Jackie Thomas; Secretary, Rachael Ross; Treasurer, Mike West; and Parliamentarian, Robert Gibbs.

Miss Eliza Nobles Weds Saturday

WILSON — The First Methodist Church here was the scene of the wedding of Miss Eliza Jane Nobles and Josh Bob Worthington on Saturday 5:00 p. m.

The Rev. Charles Hubbard officiated at the ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Charles Day, organist, and Paul Berry soloist.

The church was decorated with silver urns of white stock glacioli, mums, pom poms and bells of Ireland backed by arrangements of greenery and white burning tapers.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Everett Nobles of Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Cannon Worthington of Kinston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin and re-embroidered alencon lace. The gown was fashioned with an empire waist with the bodice, high sculptured neckline and colonial sleeves, all of lace re-embroidered on English net. The skinner gown featured appliques of lace with a scalloped hemline also of lace. The satin chapel length train featured appliques of lace.

Her fingertip mantilla of imported silk illusion was bordered with wide appliques of re-embroidered lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of miniature carnations, bridal roses centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Charles Lee Cansler Jr. of Wilson was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Susan Nobles Pierce, cousin of the bride, Miss Mary Stuart Page, Miss Ann Tebeau Waldrop and Miss Cynthia Ann Howard all of Greenville, Miss Suzanne Wells Worthington, sister of the groom, Mrs. Herman Earl Harper, Miss Rosabel Rountree Cowper, all of Kinston, Miss Susan Bowyer Warren of Raleigh and Mrs. Allen Rue Hilbert of Morehead City, cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were John Everett Nobles of Wilson, twin brother of the bride, Her- man Earl Harper, Gerald Eugene Rice, Paul Chused, Henry Temple, all of Kinston, Watson Hale of Raleigh, Michael Lowry of Atlanta, Ga., Steven James Jefferson of Charlotte and Donald Parrott of Wilmington.

Charles Lee Cansler III, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. The mother of the bride wore a dress and jacket of celery Starens Alaskine with a matching turban accented in a deeper tone of velvet. The mother of the bridegroom wore a taupe ensemble with a coral beaded neckline. Her turban was of coral velvet with feature trim.

For a wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride changed into a brown knit tunic suit with oyster leather and gold trim. The couple will reside in Kinston. The bride is a graduate of Peace College, Raleigh, and is now attending East Carolina University. She was presented at the 1967 Terpsichorean Debutante Ball in Raleigh.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Duke University where his fraternity was Beta Theta Pi. He is vice president of Hardy-Harvey Inc., Kinston.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Wilson Country Club. Fried potatoes, broiled tomatoes or sauteed bananas are delicious served with eggs and bacon or ham at brunchtime.

A Fall Antiquities Forum in Kinston will be held on Thursday at the Shrine Club Bldg. on Highway 70, East.

Co-sponsors of the event are Lenoir Community College and the Kinston Arts Council.

The forum will feature illustrated lectures by experts in the fields of early southern architecture and antique furniture, study exhibits of needlework and furniture and a bus tour to five selected historic homes in Lenoir County.

Registration, a coffee hour and study exhibits will open at 9 a.m. Homes to be visited include the Henry Loffin Herring house, Cedar Dell, the Bibbons-Hardy house, Monticello and the Herring-Hodges house.

"Finian's Rainbow," the humorous musical fantasy which has delighted theatre-goers for years, will bring its pot of gold, its leprechaun and collection of famous songs to McGinnis Auditorium at East Carolina University.

The production opens the 1969-70 season of the East Carolina Playhouse. The dates are Oct. 22-25.

Other productions on the schedule are "A Flea in Her Ear," "Macbeth," "The Goodwoman of Setzuan" and "Lion in Winter."

Symphony Conductor Is Called 'The Woman Tyrant' By Chinese Newspapers

By SHULLEN SHAW TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese newspapers call her the woman tyrant. She drills the children three hours in the morning and three hours at night, rarely cracks a smile and seldom offers a compliment.

"If you pat them on the head and tell them they are doing a good job, that won't help them at all," said Miss Helen Quach, 29, one of the world's few women conductors of symphony orchestras.

Miss Quach who trained with such musical giants as Leonard Bernstein and Sir John Barbirolli, now is teaching youngsters to play Mozart, Mendelssohn, Vivaldi and Handel.

The children who play in her orchestra range in age from under 10 to their early teens. The average age is 12.

"These children have a great deal of pride in what they are doing and false compliments accomplish nothing," Miss Quach said. "When a boy or girl falls behind, I tell them so. It is a challenge to them to do a better job."

Her fierce countenance when she rehearses the 65 members of her children's orchestra drives some of them to tears.

Cheng Kuan-che, 12, won first prize in a violin contest before he met Miss Quach. But the young conductress told the boy's mother that her son would have to practice harder or be dropped from the orchestra.

stra crossed paths a year or so ago. "I could tell how hard my boy was fighting back the tears," the mothers, Mrs. name is Kuo Mei-chen, was Cheng Hsin-chang, said. "When he got home, he had a good cry and then went back to practicing until he thought he was ready to face Miss Quach the next day. It hurt me. But I know he is proud, so I am proud."

The children's orchestra in Taiwan was founded four years ago. That was before Miss Quach came on the scene.

A group of mothers started the orchestra for their children with only three instruments: piano, violin and cello. They named the orchestra BBB to signify, "Best, Best and Best."

The orchestra is still called the threebs, but it now includes all symphonic instruments. Helen Quach and the orchestra.

History Guards Royal Mystery Of Lady Anne

By PETER J. SHAW
LONDON (UPI)—At age five, she was a child bride and probably England's wealthiest female.

But she died when not quite 9, in 1481, and one of the mysteries in the centuries since then has been whether she was murdered or died naturally of some infectious disease of childhood.

It is not likely, now, that the cause of death of little Lady Anne Mowbray, given as bride to one of the two "little princes" slain in the Tower of London, will ever be known.

A scientific study of her remains, discovered on a London building site in late 1964, has failed to determine how "the tragic duchess" perished.

Almost five years after the discovery, the long-promised analytical report on the contents of her lead coffin is unpublished.

Completed but not yet printed for public scrutiny, the report's contents are known only to the 100 or so London museum experts involved in the study. They are pledged to secrecy—the result of a compromise to amass one bulky report instead of scores of separate ones.

But a source close to the investigation says the experts were unable to pinpoint how Lady Anne died.

The examination of the remains in early 1965 touched off a religious-scientific controversy. The House of Lords fussed and occasionally fumed over whether the coffin should be reburied immediately or probed for scientific clues that might bridge a five-century knowledge gap in child development and affect some disputed history.

The remains were studied for nearly six months, then reburied in Westminster Abbey by candlelight.

"There is nothing really spectacular in the report but some interesting conjectures are made," the source said.

It may offer some support for the often-challenged official contention that bones found in the Tower of London in 1874 were really those of the two "little princes," the source indicated.

Lady Anne, Duchess of York, was born in 1472. She was 8 years and 11 months old when she died at Greenwich on the River Thames.

At age five she was married to Richard, Duke of York, the second son of England's King Edward IV. The bridegroom was half a year younger. He is believed to have been murdered in 1483 in the Tower by King Richard III as he lay asleep with his friend, Edward, the 13-year-old boy king who also was slain.

The child marriage required permission from the Pope because Anne and Richard were blood cousins descended from King Edward III. It took place "in great splendor" at St. Stephens Chapel in Westminster and King Edward IV gave the bride away.

There has been no concerted historical suggestion that Anne was poisoned or died from anything but natural causes, perhaps an infectious childhood disease. Yet history poses potential question marks.

Anne was the fourth daughter of the Duke of Norfolk, known as England's premier duke. He died in 1476, leaving great wealth and vast estates to Anne, his only surviving child.

King Edward IV wanted the inheritance and persuaded Anne's mother to make her the bride of his son Richard.

In deference to the king, historians say he was greatly upset by her death and spent some $700 on her funeral at a time when the normal cost was less than $3.

Her Change In Thimble Design Is The First One In 2000 Years

By AP Newsfeatures
Life is full of petty annoyances. Most of us just put up with them. Some people don't. From such rebels come most inventions.

Stella Brophy, of Pontiac, Mich., is one of those who refused to grin and bear it. When she found that conventional thimbles, though protective, were painful to sensitive fingers, she decided to do something about it. The result was a thimble design open at the "top" side to let the finger "breathe" and protect the nail, and adjustable to fit any size finger comfortably, even on the most sensitive hand.

Today Stella is cashing royalty checks and her Fit-All thimble is on sale nationally. But between the day she rebelled and the day she cashed her first royalty check lay 10 years of disappointment, frustration and hard work.

An experienced dental assistant, she "borrowed" a dental lab to try out her design. Her first thimble, made of denture material, worked fine but wasn't durable; it soon cracked. She then turned to plastics.

When she made her first thimble it was for her own use and comfort. She had no dreams then of becoming a thimble tycoon. However, as Stella explains, "It was so comfortable I forgot to take it off and every one who saw it wanted one."

So she plunged into the thimble business. Her first letters and visits to plastic manufacturers brought only discouragement, but the president of one firm did take time to give her some good advice: He suggested a good patent attorney and a patent. She got both.

Then he advised a survey of notions buyers to see if the thimble would sell. The results (Continued On Page 14)

Nigeria's Bloody Civil War Reaches Stalemate

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
LONDON (UPI)—The Nigerian civil war, bloodiest in black Africa's history, has ground to a stalemate after more than two years and an estimated cost of two million lives.
 As in Vietnam, a clear-cut victory for either the Nigerian Federal Government or breakaway Biafra now appears unlikely.
 Western officials see a political settlement at the peace table as the only alternative to even greater bloodshed, suffering and starvation.
 Biafra recently accepted a federal Nigerian offer to begin new peace talks in still another attempt to end the conflict.
 Yet the prospects are not favorable.
 Three times in the past two years at Kampala, Uganda,

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and Monrovia, Liberia, peace talks have failed.
 Each time the obstacle was obstinacy—the federal government's rigid insistence a peace settlement must include Biafra's return to the federation and Biafra's equally rigid demand for independence.
Overtures Fail
 Pope Paul VI, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and former French President Charles de Gaulle all have tried and failed to end the war.
 Now, barring signs of readiness by both sides to compromise—and there are no such signs yet—Western officials are frankly pessimistic about prospects for an end to the conflict.
 The Nigerian civil war began July 6, 1967, when federal forces invaded the country's eastern region. They did so to quell a revolt by its leaders, who had announced secession from the federation set up when Nigeria was granted independence in 1960 after 80 years of British colonial rule. The eastern leaders proclaimed creation of an independent state known as Biafra.

 The bulk of the eastern region's population are Ibos, one of 12 major peoples—each with its own language and customs—who live in what is black Africa's most populous state.
 The Ibos are widely considered one of the most progressive and skilled African peoples. Tens of thousands had settled in other regions of Nigeria. They were prominent in government, the civil service, industry and trade.
 These very qualities made the Ibos feared and resented by other Nigerians. In the fall of 1966—there were large-scale massacres of Ibos in other parts of the country. They resulted in a mass flight of Ibos back to their eastern homeland.
 These were the sparks that touched off the eastern region secession in the spring of 1967 and led to the civil war.
'Police Action'
 When he launched the invasion, Nigerian federal government chief Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon predicted it would be a zurgical police action."

 The federals, better armed and vastly outnumbering the Ibos, have conquered most of the eastern region and pushed the embattled Ibos back into their own heartland.
 Originally, Biafra covered an area of roughly 40,000 square miles with a population of 15 million, of whom about 10 million were Ibos.
 Now the Biafrans have been squeezed back into a small sausage-shaped area of 5,000 square miles—roughly the size of Connecticut—with an estimated seven million inhabitants.
 Only one city, Owerri, remains in Biafran hands. Present-day Biafra is entirely surrounded by the federals. Its only contact with the outside world is a primitive airstrip at Uli.
 Yet, despite superior weapons bought largely from Britain and the Soviet Union and the fact they have an estimated 100,000 men under arms, the federals have not been able to win the war.
 Large scale fighting has been virtually at a standstill during the rainy season which began in April and ends in October.

 Federal army losses have been estimated at 20,000 killed and wounded. Biafran losses are probably at least as high. But the real tragedy of the war has been the gradual starvation of the Biafran people, cut off from outside food supplies except for a trickle hazardously flown in at night by relief planes.
 Western officials estimate at least two million Biafrans, many of them children, have died of starvation or because they were caught in the fighting.
 There are about 8,600 species of birds and 4,500 species of mammals on earth.

She studied under Nocolai Malko, the Russian conductor, and with Carlo Zecchi and Sir John Arborelli in Italy before becoming an assistant to Bernstein at the New York Philharmonic. She has since conducted in Australia, Japan, the Philippines and South Korea.
 When Miss Quach visited Taipei, parents of the triple Bs pleaded with her to help their children.
 "We knew that our children could play their instruments, but we knew they could do better if they had an expert conductor to train them," Mrs. Kao Tsung-min, a surgeon's wife and one of the orchestra founders, said.
 "We begged and we begged before Miss Quach accepted the job for free."
 The young conductress returned to Taipei in August to prepare the orchestra for its first trip abroad, a booking in the Philippines to play at the September opening of Manila's new cultural center.
 She rehearsed the orchestra seven days a week from 9 a.m. to noon and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.
 "I think this is the best children's symphony orchestra in the world," Miss Quach told United Press International. "It has a number of talented children, and I know of no other children's orchestra which has been subject to such long and vigorous training."

 site, where an abbey once stood.
 Inside her lead coffin was a skull covered with matted hair and a complete but disarrayed skeleton of a child. Light brown silt and some dead insects were also found. There was no wedding ring.
 The remains gave doctors and dentists a unique chance to compare the physical development of a 15th Century child, who was a royal ward had the best of everything, with that of a well-nourished child of the 1960s.
 Anne never tasted sugar. Honey, one of nature's purest foods, was the universal sweetener in medieval times. She ate no potatoes. Sir Walter Raleigh did not introduce them to Britain until a century after her death.
 All the meat she ate was likely drenched in spicy piquant sauces. Even the royal court's meat was so gamey then that today's poorest families would consider it inedible.
 Milk was not a medieval

Thimble . . .
 were positive. One respondent said, "I don't have any time to waste on housewives, but you're an exception. I have to keep 13 sizes of thimbles in stock. If you can give me one size that will fit everybody, I'll buy it."
 The executive's third suggestion was, "Market it yourself. Make a few and see if they sell." That's when the Brophy home became a thimble factory, with her three daughters and husband, Jack, a night planning supervisor at a local rubber company, as her staff. They bought their own tooling and started manufacturing and packaging thimbles.
 The Dritz division of Scovill entered the picture when a company representative noticed the thimble. Arrangements soon were made to market it nationally.
 According to Stella's research, hers is the first major change in thimble styling since 79 A.D., the earliest recorded date when thimbles were used. She believes that, "it was worth spending 10 years to correct something that's been bugging us housewives for 2,000."

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U. S.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Revised and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon fats, sausages and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startling successful diet can be obtained by sending $2 to

The Citadel Rolls By East Carolina, 31-13

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The Citadel's Bulldogs put the bite on East Carolina last night, and gnawed their way to a 31-13 victory over the winless Pirates. It was the fourth straight loss for the Bucs, the third this year.

With quarterback Tony Passander leading the way, the Bulldogs used their "Veer" offense to perfection. Passander hit on 17 of 26 passing attempts for 235 yards and two touchdowns. He hid end Gene Shields on a six-yard loss, and then threw 56 yards to the other end, Billy Watson for the two scores.

The other two touchdowns came on the running of fullback Tommy Sanchez. He scored from two and four yards out. He also picked up 69 yards rushing, while tailback Bob Duncan had 59 yards.

The rest of the points came from specialist Jim Leber, who booted four extra points, and a 32-yard field goal.

East Carolina, which wobbled through the first half with little offense, scored both of its touchdowns in the third period. One was a 13-yard run by Billy Wightman, and the other a one-yard plunge by Butch Colson.

Colson, who needed only 53 yards in rushing to set a new career mark for an East Carolina player, failed to make it, getting only 32 during the night. While East Carolina's offense sputtered, the Citadel's caught fire early. East Carolina found itself unable to get any drives going throughout the half. The Pirates picked up only two first downs, one on a penalty. Throughout the first half, the Bucs got only 40 yards in total offense. The Citadel's "Veer" offense ground out 244 yards in the half. With Passander engineering the drive, The Citadel moved for a touchdown on their second possession. The Bulldogs got the ball at the 31 and drove down the field in ten plays. Sanchez picked up 15 yards on the first play. A 15 yarder against the Pirates pushed it to the Buc 38. Sanchez added nine more, and Passander got another yard to the 28 for a first down. Passander hit Reilly for seven more yards and then found Watson alone at the 13.

Another Passander throw reached Reilly at the two, and Sanchez sprinted wide on the next play for the touchdown. Jim Leber kicked the extra point, and with 6:35 left, the Citadel led 7-0.

The Bucs were unable to move and returned the ball to the Citadel on a punt, which started a series at the Bulldog 48. Passander picked up 12 yards and Sanchez added two to the 38. In three straight runs Passander put the ball on the 23. Sanchez got eight more to the 15, but the Bucs dug in to stop them there. Leber then booted a 32 yard field goal with 1:53 left in the period to make it 10-0.

East Carolina got into Citadel territory three times in the half. But were unable to keep a drive going. Their deepest penetration was to the 23, after Danny Wilmer recovered a Citadel fumble at the 30. Late in the half, The Citadel took over at its own eight, and came within two yards to another touchdown. Duncan picked up 13 and Sanchez added 17. Passander hit Watson at the East Carolina 32, and another pass put the ball on the 25 with six seconds left. Passander again hit Watson but he was shoved out of bounds at the two as the clock ran out.

East Carolina got its first break of the game on the opening kickoff in the third quarter. The boot bounced shy of the deep backs and rebounded back upfield. Mike McGuirk, leading the Pirate defenders down the field, pounced on the ball at the 28, and the Bucs took over there.

It took just three plays for the score. Colson picked up to the 27 on the first play, and Bill Brill broke away from there to the 13. On the next play, Wightman went to his right, cut back inside, then sprinted through a mass of Citadel defenders and cracked into the end zone, putting the Bucs on the board. Steve Davis kicked his first extra point of the year, and the Bucs had cut the margin to 10-7.

But The Citadel came roaring back with their second touchdown. Sanchez fumbled the kickoff and it went into the end zone where he recovered it for a touchback. Sanchez, with the ball on the 20, tossed a pass to Watson at the 46. Passander then hit Watson at the Buc 43. The Bulldog quarterback again went so the air, this time to Reilly at the 33. Another pass to Watson was complete to the 24.

Duncan carried down to the seven, and on the next play, the Bucs were called for pass interference at the six. Passander hit Shields on the next play for the score. Leber's kick made it 17-7 with 10:46 to go. Late in the period, the Bucs

Colson Falls Short

Pirate Back Butch Colson tucks the football under his arm and tries for yardage against the touch Citadel Bulldogs in last night's ECU game. Colson plunged over from the one for the second Pirate score, in the 31-13 defeat. Colson was also trying for a school career record in yards rushing, but fell short, as he needed 53 yards, and only picked up 32. (Reflector photo by Forrest) got the ball back on their own 12 when Wes Rothrock recovered a fumble. After two gains of four yards each by Colson, the Pirate fullback hit Dwight Flanagan for a pass, and the Buc wingback sped down to the 23 before being caught. The pass, which covered 57 yards, was the longest non-scoring aerial by a Pirate, passing the old mark of 54, set against Davidson in 1966 on a Bill Bailey to Bob Withrow aerial.

From there, Wightman gained five, and after Colson added another yard, Wightman carried twice down to the six. The Bucs moved it to the three on a Colson carry, but the Pirates were stopped for no gain on the next play. Wightman got a first down at the one, and on the next play, Colson cracked over, curving the lead to 17-13 with 2:38 to go in the quarter.

The Bucs turned the ball over early in the fourth quarter on a midfield fumble, and The Citadel converted it into their third touchdown.

Sanchez pushed the ball into Pirate territory, and then rolled out to the 30. Passander hit Watson at the 16, and then went to Reilly at the seven. The Bucs dug in and appeared to have stopped the drive when a fourth down play was fumbled. But a penalty gave the 'Dogs a first down at the four. Sanchez rounded end on the next play, going into the end zone to make it 24-13 after Leber's kick.

East Carolina tried to come back, and drove down to the 12 before a fourth down play fell just a yard short, and The Citadel took over.

Then, after an exchange of punts, Bulldog linebacker John Small intercepted a pass at the 30 and returned it to the 'Dog

42. Mark Cassidy picked up two yards, and on the next play, Passander made a perfect fake to Sanchez into the line, then passed to Watson, who was all alone and went the distance for the score. Leber's kick made it 31-13 with just 49 seconds to go, and it was all over.

Oddly enough, the Bucs came up with a better passing attack, with sophomore Pete Woolley throwing from the blocking back position. He connected seven of 15 attempts for 59 yards.

On the ground, The Citadel's defense held the Bucs to just 107 yards.

Tarheels Victor Over Vandy 38-22

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Johnny Swofford threw three touchdown passes as the University of North Carolina defeated Vanderbilt 38-22 Saturday.

It was North Carolina's first football victory of the season against two defeats and Vanderbilt's third straight loss. Swofford threw scoring passes of 12, 20 and 41 yards as the Tar Heels ran up more points than had been scored by any North Carolina team in the past three years.

Denny Painter, a quarterback playing his first varsity game, passed for one Vanderbilt touchdown, set up another and sparked a second half Commodore comeback. But Vanderbilt miscues were its downfall.

The Tar Heels scored twice in the first quarter as the result of Vanderbilt fumbles, with Don McCauley plunging over from the one for a touchdown and Don Hartig kicking a 21-yard field goal.

McCauley's score, which climaxed a drive from the Vanderbilt 48 where Jim Webster covered a fumble by Dan Lipperman, was the Tar Heels' first touchdown of the season.

Hartig, North Carolina's senior kicking specialist, booted his field goal after Richard Stille covered a Vanderbilt fumble on the 24 when a Tar Heel drive ran out of steam on the Vanderbilt 4.

North Carolina ran its margin to 17-0 on a 12-yard pass from Swofford to Tony Blanchard before Vanderbilt was able to score.

The Commodores first marker came on a 49-yard pass play from Painter to Doug Matthews with 1:10 left in the first half.

A 29-yard pass by Painter to Curt Chesley to set up another Vanderbilt touchdown, with Dave Strong going over from the three on a pitchout from Watson Brown, the Commodores' starting quarterback.

Painter completed nine of 20 pass attempts for 127 yards. His touchdown pass came on his third play of the game.

Penalties cost Vanderbilt heavily, including one which called back a touchdown. Matthews ran 35 yards through the middle of the Tar Heel defense for the score, which was nullified by a clipping penalty.

Birds Edge Twins; Mets Take Atlanta

BALTIMORE (AP) — Paul Bgair's squeeze bunt with two out in the 12th inning scored Mark Belanger with Baltimore's winning run and the Orioles nipped Minnesota 4-3 Saturday in the opening game of the American League's East-West playoffs.

The victory gave the Orioles a 1-0 lead in the best-of-5 playoffs which continue Sunday.

Belanger opened the 12th with a single off Harmon Killebrew's glove at third base. Andy Etchebarren sacrificed and then Don Buford bounced to shortstop with Belanger taking third.

Then Blair, hitless in four previous at bats, dumped a bunt along the third base line and Belanger raced home.

The Orioles tied the game in the bottom of the ninth on Boog Powell's 400-foot home run. Then, the Birds almost won it.

Brooks Robinson's third hit of the game knocked out Minnesota starter Jim Perry, with Robinson reaching second when Ted Uhlaender, a ninth-inning defensive replacement, booted the ball.

Ron Perranoski relieved and when second baseman Rod Carew dropped pinch hitter Curt Motton's easy pop fly behind first, the Orioles had runners at first and second with none out. Dave Johnson, attempting to bunt, fouled to the catcher and Belanger, who had homered earlier, forced Motton.

Then, with Merv Rettenmund, another pinch hitter, at bat, Robinson and Belanger tried a delayed double steal. Twins' catcher George Mitterwald faked a throw to second and then caught Robinson off third, ending the rally.

Until the ninth, Perry was working on a four-hitter and leading 3-2 on Tony Oliva's two-run homer in the seventh off Mike Cuellar. Oliva connected after Harmon Killebrew had oaxed a one-out walk from Cuellar, the only base on balls the Cuban left-hander allowed in the eight innings he worked.

The Orioles struck first, with Frank Robinson lashing a line drive home run off the foul pole in left field in the fourth.

The Twins tied it in the fifth when Oliva opened with a double to right and reached third when the ball got by Frank Robinson. He came home on Bob Allison's line-drive sacrifice fly to Buford in left field.

ATLANTA (AP) — The alert New York Mets struck for five runs in the eighth inning Saturday when the Atlanta defense collapsed around Phil Niekro, handing the Mets a 9-5 victory in the first game of a best-of-5 playoff for the National League pennant.

Orlando Cepeda's wild peg to the plate let the Mets take the lead in the sloppy eighth and Tony Gonzalez' fumble of J. C. Martin's pinch single contributed to the downfall of the Braves who had racked up Tom Seaver, the Mets' 25-game-winning ace for eight hits, including two homers and four doubles in seven innings.

The crowd of 50,122 was enjoying a warm, late afternoon with a 5-4 Atlanta lead going into the eighth, made possible by Hank Aaron's tie-breaking homer in the seventh.

Then Wayne Garrett opened the Met eighth with a double down the left field line, and Cleon Jones followed with a single that tied the score. Art Shamsky's third single had Niekro, the knuckleball artist, on the ropes. Jones preceded to third on a delayed steal, beating the relay of catcher Bob Didier to shortstop Gil Garrido to third baseman Cleto Boyer.

With one out and men on first and third, Ed Kranepool rapped to Cepeda at first but the Atlanta first baseman threw the ball into the dirt at the plate, letting Jones score the tie-breaking run.

Manager Lum Harris' strategy called for an intentional walk to Bud Harrelson that loaded the bases. Manager Gil Hodges then made his move sending up Martin to bat for Seaver, who had been hit hard all day long.

Martin ripped a single to center that Gonzalez bobbled while Boswell, Kranepool and Harrelson scored four of the five runs in the bizarre inning were unearned.

Seaver was the winner and Niekro the loser, following the regular-season pattern that saw Seaver beat the Braves three times and Niekro lose to the Mets three times. Seaver wound up the regular season with a 10-game winning streak and has not lost a game since Aug. 5 at Cincinnati.

The Mets, who beat the Braves 8-4 in regular season play and seven of the last nine, took a big edge in the series which will continue Sunday at Atlanta Stadium and then shift to New York's Shea Stadium for the third, fourth and fifth games, if necessary.

Wofflets Down Buc Freshmen

RALEIGH — N. C. State University's freshmen scored late to take a 17-7 victory over the East Carolina University frosh yesterday. It was the second meeting of the two teams, and evened the series at 1-1.

The lone East Carolina score came on a 15-yard pass from Terry Kelly to Brent Isey. Bill Daniels kicked the PAT.

State scored on a field goal in the first half, then added a touchdown in the third period to lead 10-0 before the Pirates cut it to 10-7. The deciding score came late in the game, during the final minute of play.

Blue Devils Lose To Pitt, 14-12

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Pittsburgh scored two touchdowns with a vicious first-half offense and then withstood a late Duke rally to defeat the Blue Devils 14-12 Saturday for its first victory in three games.

Quarterback Jim Friedl threw one touchdown pass and directed a Pitt attack that crushed Duke in the first half.

The Blue Devils, winless in three games, came back to score touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters. Sophomore Ernie Jackson set up one with a pass interception and scored the other on an 82-yard punt return after taking a lateral from Rick Searl.

Pittsburgh, beaten by UCLA and Oklahoma in its opening games, scored touchdowns in the first and second periods and twice drove to the Duke nine and again to the four in the first half.

Duke quarterback Leo Hart was smothered time and again by the big Pitt line as he connected on only 10 of 24 passes for 125 yards.

Tony Esposito and Dave Garnett led the Pittsburgh rushing. The first touchdown came on a five-yard pass from Friedl to Esposito midway in the first period to cap a 43-yard drive. The Panthers scored again in the second quarter on a 30-yard pass from Frank Gustine to George Medich.

Late in the third period Jackson intercepted a Gustine pass on the Pitt 40 and returned it to the 32. Four plays later, Hart fired a six-yard touchdown pass to Wes Chesson.

The Blue Devils scored again in the final quarter when Searl took a punt on his 10, ran it back eight yards and lateraled to Jackson who raced 82 yards for a touchdown. Hart failed on a two-point pass conversion.

Duke was held to minus eight yards rushing and never got into Pittsburgh territory until the third period when Hart connected on a 23-yard pass to Bo Bchow on the Panther 33. However, the drive bogged down.

Rocky Mount Grinds Out 28-20 Win Over Rose

Georgia Rolls By S. Carolina 41-16

By RAY BELL
Associated Press Writer
ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A two yard scoring dive by workhorse fullback Bruce Kemp turned a tight ball game into a parade of touchdowns in the fourth quarter Saturday as the undefeated Georgia Bulldogs rolled to a 41-16 intersectional football victory over South Carolina.

Kemp's tally—in the first 18 seconds of the final period—broke open a 14-10 contest and the Bulldogs quickly followed it with three other scores.

It was the third straight victory for Georgia and marked the first time this season the seventh ranked Bulldogs had been scored upon.

South Carolina, in that slam bang fourth quarter, did manage to put one touchdown on the boards. But by that time—with only 39 seconds left in the game—it was a case of locking the barn door long after all of the horses had escaped.

In addition to Kemp's touchdown, Georgia scored on two six yard runs by second-team fullback Julien Smiley, a three-yard smash by halfback Dennis Hughes, a 13-yard run by halfback Craig Elrod, and a 12-yard pass interception return by defensive linebacker Chip Wisdom.

The South Carolina scores came on a one-yard plunge by fullback Warren Muir, a 46-yard field goal by pint-sized kicker Billy DuPre and a 16 yard pass from quarterback Randy Yoakum to tight end Bill Freeman.

Kemp, who was the game's leading rusher, won his personal duel with South Carolina fullback Warren Muir.

The Georgia fullback gained 142 yards in 31 carries. Muir had 136 yards in 21 rushes.

An expected aerial battle between Georgia quarterback Mike Cavan and South Carolina's Tommy Suggs never materialized. Cavan completed three of 12 passes for 66 yards and Suggs hit only four of 15 for 49 yards.

South Carolina picked off two of Cavan's pitches and Georgia defenders snagged three of Suggs' attempts.

Smith Rolls For Gain

Rose High School's Johnny Smith cuts outside after taking a pass to gain yardage for the Rampanis Friday night in their 28-20 loss to Rocky Mount. Defenses Fail To Halt Gryphons In Fourth Loss

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School's Rampanis forgot something when they left Greenville to go to Rocky Mount Friday night for an Eastern 4-A Division Two Conference battle. It turned out that it was an important item, the defense.

And Rocky Mount's Gryphons took full advantage of it, running through the Rampant line almost like it wasn't there. And when it was all over, Rocky Mount had come away with a 28-20 victory.

It could have been worse. Rocky Mount was stopped only twice. Once, they were stopped when a fumble was lost deep in Rose territory. The second time, they really stopped themselves. In the final two minutes of play, they just didn't try to score, just run out the clock. They came within one play of doing it.

Rose, meanwhile, found its ground game completely lacking as the Rampanis got only 13 yards in 24 tries on the ground. They saw the ball only twice in the first half. Only the passing of Joe West kept them as close as they were.

West hit on 19 of 30 attempts for 213 yards, and tossed three times for touchdowns.

The running game really was killed when fullback Bubba Rawl was hurt last week and lost for the season. That permitted the Rocky Mount defense to key on halfback Johnny Smith, occasionally giving up good ground to Rawl's replacement Gary Singleton, who picked up 36 yards in eight carries. But late in the game, he was ejected after tossing a few fists with a Rocky Mount player, who also was banished, and that finished off any hope of a ground threat.

James Hargrove was the big gun for the Gryphons, scoring three times. He picked up two from a yard away, and then went over from 49 yards out in the score that broke the Rampanis back. Kirby Carrington scored the other touchdown, also a one-yard plunge.

West connected with Mike Harrington twice for scores for Rose. They covered seven and five yards. Greg Williams hauled in the other West aerial, on a nine-yard pass.

Rocky Mount used strictly a ground attack in rolling up the win. If 51 plays, they gained 295 yards, an average of 5.8. Even taking away the 49-yard touchdown scamper, the longest Gryphon run of the night, it still left Rocky Mount with a respectable 4.9 average.

Only once did Rocky Mount attempt a pass, and found two men in the open, but it was dropped.

The Gryphons took the opening kickoff and marched for their first score. With Hargrove and Carrington leading the way, they marched down the field. From the 37, Hargrove picked up 10 yards in two plays, then Carrington added six more to put the ball into Rose territory at the 47. Hargrove added eight yards in two trips, and Carrington carried to the 36. Quarterback Pete Thompson slipped through the middle of the line for 11 yards to the 25, and after two more plays nedded seven yards, Thompson again did it, and after two more plays nedded seven yards, Thompson again did it, getting a first down at the 14. In three plays, Hargrove pushed down to the one, and then pulled over from three with 5:10 left in the period. Not satisfied with carrying four straight times, Hargrove did it again, pushing over the extra points for an 8-0 lead.

Rose came back, and promptly drove into Rocky Mount territory. Singleton picked up five yards, and then West hit Johnny Smith two straight times to put the ball on the 50. The running game then took over and pushed the ball down to the three for a first down. But Rocky Mount's defense rose up and held the Rampanis there, and took over at the three to stall the first Rose attempt.

Rocky Mount appeared driving again, pushing to the 27, with the help of 20 yards in penalties against the Rampanis. But this time, a fumble turned the ball over at the 22, as Steve Williams pulled in a lose ball.

Rose again drove into Rocky Mount territory, and reached the 39 before time ran out on them.

Rocky Mount took its opening possession in the second half, and pushed for another score. Rose was penalized on the kickoff, and that started the Rocky Mount drive on its own 49. Thompson carried down into Rose territory at the 37, and Hargrove picked up down to the 29. After a yard gain, Rose suffered another penalty, putting the ball on the 14. Three plays later, Carrington pushed it to the one, and went over from there on the next play, making it 14-0.

Thompson went off tackle for the extra point, and it was 16-0 with 5:45 to play in the third period.

Rose came roaring back with its first touchdown. Taking over on the 47, West hit Harrington at the Rocky Mount 38. He then passed to Harrington again at the 18. Singleton craced through the line to the seven, and West hit Harrington from there for the score.

Another West pass, this one to Williams, cut the lead to 16-8 with 2:50 to play in the period.

Rocky Mount started its next series at the 36. Hargrove and Thompson picked up 15 yards to the Rose 49 in two plays. Then on the next play, Hargrove burst through the line and into the secondary, and outraced the rest of the Rose defenders to the goal line for the score. That made it 22-8 with 2:30 to go.

Again, Rose came roaring back. Starting on the 39, West engineered another touchdown drive. He hit Harrington for a 48 yard gain to the Gryphon 13, and then Singleton added two more. West hit Smith at the two, but a fumble on the next play put the ball on the five. The next play also lost yardage, and it looked like the Rampanis might have to give up the ball. But West hit Williams for the score, and it proved costly. Williams was injured on the play and had to leave the game.

Rose, trailing 27-8 with 11:05 left, tried the on-side kick, but it went out of bounds. Rocky Mount took over on the 25, and moved for the clincher from there. Hargrove and Carrington advanced it to the Rose 49 in four plays, and then after a short gain, Hargrove broke away to race to the 20 before being pushed back. Short gains, and a couple of penalties against the Rampanis put the ball on the six. Another short gain put it on the four, and Hargrove added three more to the one, cracking over on the next play for the score. That made it 28-14 with 5:30 left.

Rose refused to give up, and West took to the air again. He hit Harrington again for seven to put the ball on the Gryphon 44. Another pass to Harrington carried to the 30, and West hit Russ Smith at the 10 for a first down.

West connected with Johnny Smith at the two, but the next play lost yardage to the five. West then found Harrington loose again for the score, cutting it to 28-20 with 1:50 left.

Rocky Mount elected to try and run out the clock, and punted away with Rose stopping the clock with only one second left. But the Phants were unable to pull off the miracle play, losing their third straight and their fourth of the year.

The Rampanis travel to Wilmington next Friday, to face New Hanover.

Paladin Fight Ends In Tie

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — A last period comeback bid by Furman's football team was nipped in the bud with less than three minutes and the Paladins were forced to settle for a 21-21 deadlock with Carson-Newman Saturday.

Trailing 21-7 after three quarters, Furman scored early in the final quarter and added a two-point conversion. An unsuccessful boot after the final score left the game tied.

Jim Newneyer, who had kicked five straight conversions in the last three games, attempted the extra point which failed.

Carson-Newman scored early in the third period when Ronnie Palmer ran 19 yards and David Pitts' point after gave the Eagles a 14-7 lead.

On the next series, Carson-Newman quickly drove 63 yards in four plays and on third down, Palmer ran 45 yards untouched to the goal line. Pitts kicked to make it 21-7.

In the final quarter, Furman which had been running most of the game and had passed only once during the first half, cranked up the arm of quarterback Cleve Hightower and began moving.

Hightower climaxed a 64-yard march from the one with 8:21 remaining. The two-point conversion came when Hightower drilled a short pass to Vaughn. There was a penalty on the play against the Eagles and Furman took the play.

Minutes later, a shoestring catch by Pat Carroll put the ball on the Eagle 38. Vaughn gained 17 yards before Hightower hit Carroll with a 21-yard pass to tie the score at 21-21.

Mike Fabian's 55-yard punt return generated the Paladins in the first quarter. After six plays, Hightower spotted Byron Trotter for nine yards and a touchdown. Newneyer converted for a 7-0 edge.

A recovered fumble by Buzz Stokes gave the Eagles possession on their 47-yard line. The drive was capped on a 36-yard pass from Butch Genoble to Tommy Jones. Pitts' conversion tied the game at 7-7 at the half.

Yauger Sparks Clemson Past Ga. Tech, 21-10

By BILL BRYANT
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Junior fullback Ray Yauger scored three second-half touchdowns Saturday to give Clemson a 21-10 come-from-behind football victory over favored Georgia Tech.

Yauger took two touchdown passes of 10 and five yards from sophomore quarterback Tommy Kendrick and bowled over from the two after a fumble recovery had put the Tigers in business at the Tech six.

Yauger took two touchdowns passes of 10 and five yards from sophomore quarterback Tommy Kendrick and bowled over from the two after a fumble recovery had put the Tigers in business at the Tech six.

Tech saw a 10-0 halftime lead melt under the assault of Yauger and Kendrick. The Yellow Jackets had scored on a record 54-yard field goal by Johnny Duncan in the first quarter and five-yard pass from Charlie Dudish to Steve Foster with 12 seconds left in the first half.

Duncan's field goal broke a Tech record of 48 yards he set two weeks ago against Southern Methodist.

It took Yauger only two plays to cover 38 yards for Clemson's first touchdown. The big fullback, a punishing runner, bulldozed 28 to the Tech 10 and Kendrick found him clear for a touchdown toss early in the third quarter.

Kendrick marched Clemson 77 yards early in the final quarter with passes to Charlie Waters and Yauger and a 25-yard jaunt by Yauger on a draw play eating up most of the distance. Kendrick hit Yauger from five yards out for the score.

Clemson iced the victory on a gift from Tech. Steve Harkey fumbled at the Tech 18 and Clemson's Bob Craig picked it out of the air and ran it to the six, where Yauger took over and scored in two plays.

Yauger gained 146 yards on 23 carries and Kendrick hit 10 of 21 passes for 41 yards. He had two interceptions.

It was Tech's first loss after two victories and the Yellow Jacket offense obviously was stalled when the top two Tech quarterbacks, Dudish and Jack O'Neill, went down with injuries. O'Neill in the second quarter and Dudish early in the third. O'Neill returned in the final quarter but by then Clemson had the momentum.

Kendrick also went out with an injury in the third quarter but shook it off and returned to guide Clemson to its second victory in three starts. The Tigers lost to Georgia 30-0 a week ago.

Duncan's field goal was set up when Yauger fumbled at his 37 and Yellow Jacket linebacker Buck Shiver recovered at the 42. Seven plays later Duncan drilled it straight through the uprights, the ball barely clearing the bar.

This was Clemson's first victory over Tech since 1945, following 10 straight losses.

Formosan Team Leads World Cup

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Formosan team, paced by Hsieh Yung Yo, ignored the sweltering heat and established a two-stroke lead over the Americans going into the final round of the World Cup Golf Tournament.

Hsieh, who leads the individual phase of the competition, fired a two-under par 69 in the third round Saturday and his partner in the two-man competition, Hsu Chi San had a 70 for a total of 139.

That gave them a three-day total of 416 while the American duo of Lee Trevino and Orville Moody fell one stroke further back with a 140 for 418. The two Texans had trailed by one stroke going into the third round.

Trevino, who complained that a light rain had turned the hilly Bukit course "into a sauna bath," had a third round 69 while Moody, the reigning U.S. Open champion, had a 71.

Sukree Onsham, a Lithuanian who had one of the day's three paced his country to a third round 140 and third place at 419, one stroke back of the United States.

Sukree's eagle came on the par five 15th. He put a four wood shot 12 feet from the pin and holed the putt.

Trevino, a non-stop talker from El Paso, bogeyed the first hole but got the stroke back with a bird on the par five fourth. He had two birds coming home, on the 13th and 16th, for his best round of the tournament.

Moody, whose last competitive start was a winning effort in the World Series of Golf, matched two birds with two bogeys in his par effort. The 14-year Army veteran from Killeen dropped back into third place in the individual competition with a three-day total of 208. Trevino had a 210.

State Falls To Miami By 23-13

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP)—Vince Opalsky is back.

"Old Vince ran the best he ever has at Miami," said Miami's Charlie Tate, a winning coach for the first time in 11 months. "We played old-fashioned winning football in the second half."

The Hurricanes, now 1-1, rallied after halftime to sock North Carolina State 23-13 Friday night in the Orange Bowl. Tate's gang had last tasted victory Nov. 1, 1968—against Pittsburgh 48-0—and had dropped four straight over two seasons.

Opalsky crushed the Wolfpack for 120 yards and Miami, despite ace runner Bobby Best being sidelined with a thigh injury, won it on the ground.

The 207-pound Opalsky, a native of McKeesport, Pa., was a rookie hero in 1967 when he gained 562 yards and averaged 4.8 per carry. "It was different as a junior. Opalsky suffered behind a weak line and picked up only 2.9 a clip in getting 446 yards.

"Opalsky looked like his old self tonight—make that better than his old self," said Tate.

Although the war was won on the ground, Miami found a No. 1 quarterback who could throw the ball and direct the attack.

"Lew Pytel is our boy," Tate said. "David Teal is No. 2, which gives us a great backup man."

The squatty Pytel, a junior from Miami, connected on 11 passes in 22 throws for 87 yards and directed the running troops with style.

"Our blocking was poor and they opened some holes in our defense," said the losing coach, Earle Edwards. "That fullback (Opalsky) ran great. Miami is big and strong. They just wore us down and it wasn't the South Florida heat that did it."

Edwards was pleased in defeat over the passing of junior quarterback Darrell Moody. The Asheville, N.C., rollout specialist had hit only 8-for-16 in three previous games. He managed 12-for-25 to gain 92 yards against the Canes and led State to a 13-10 halftime lead.

Jim Huff, who broke a school record with his 20th and 21st straight extra point kicks, booted three field goals to give Miami all the cushion it needed. Sophomore Mike Charron kicked two for State.

Miami's defense finally bottled up a quick reverse to senior back Leon Mason after the senior hit them often in the opening 30 minutes. Mason wound up with 78 yards in 11 attempts, mostly off the reverse handoffs from Moody.

Sophomore Tom Sullivan backed up Opalsky's running with 48 yards and 240-pound fullback Steve Schaap cracked for 42. Steamy Dave Kalina led the Canes receivers with six for 60 yards.

N.C. State's record is 2-2 and Miami is also square at 1-1.

Qualifying Ended For Wilkes 400

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP)—The final round of qualifying trials was completed Saturday for the Wilkes 400 NASCAR Grand National stock car race, setting up a 30-car field for Sunday's $28,275 event.

John Sears of Ellerbe, N.C., in a 1969 Ford, led the second day qualifiers with a speed of 102.834 miles per hour as time trials filled positions nine through 20.

Neil Castles of Charlotte drove a 1969 Dodge to victory in a 20-lap qualifying race that determined positions 21 through 30.

The favorites won starting positions in Friday's opening trials, with Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., taking the pole position with a speed of 106.032 m.p.h. in a 1969 Dodge.

Isaac will share the front row with Ford driver David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., for the 2 p.m. start of the 400 lap (250 mile) race on the banked five-eighths mile asphalt North Wilkesboro Speedway.

The second row is shared by Richard Petty of Randleman in a Ford and Buddy Baker of Charlotte in a Dodge. Petty has

First $200,000 Purse At Stake

By BLOYS BRITT

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — The first $200,000 purse in road racing history will be at stake Sunday in the 20th running of the U.S. Grand Prix, his country's second most important auto race.

The 108-laps over the 2.3-mile Watkins Glen course gets under way at 2 p.m. EDT and a record crowd in excess of 100,000 probably will jam the countryside north of this Finger Lakes village to see the high-speed chase.

With Scotland's Jackie Stewart having already clinched the world driving championship, a select field of 19 drivers had their sights set on the $50,000 jackpot that goes to the winner.

Martin Takes Win Over Eppes

RALEIGH — Martin Junior High of Raleigh scored twice in the first half Friday to take an 18-6 football victory over the Eppes Junior High.

Sandy Goodwin scampered nine yards for a score in the first period for Martin, and Donald Blake went 12 in the second frame to make it 12-0 at the half.

Earl Wilson went over for Eppes in the third period to cut the lead to six, but an insurance score by Burt Jiles for Martin in the fourth did the trick.

Two other Eppes scores were called back.

Robersonville Rolls To Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Robersonville High School rushed Elm City, 36-10, Friday night, and took over possession of first place in the Tobacco Belt Conference.

The Rams pushed out into a 22-0 lead in the first period, and were never in any difficulty after that, as they picked up their third conference win against no losses.

Johnny Beach put the Rams into the lead, scoring on a 46-yard scamper. Joe Pilgreen ran the extra points over for an 8-0 lead.

Later in the period, Glenn Forbes hauled in a 28-yard pass from Hal Knox for the second touchdown. Beach ran the two-point, and it was 16-0.

As the period closed, William Coppage carried in from four yards out, and the Rams led, 22-0.

Elm City got on the board with its only touchdown in the early part of the second period. John Joyner pushed over from a yard away, and then ran the conversion, making it 22-8.

Robersonville came back with another touchdown, and Tyward Perkins scored from the 12, running the score to 28-8.

The final Robersonville score came in the third period, as Pilgreen plunged over from the two. Beach ran the extra point and it was 36-8.

Late in the game, Elm City picked up a safety, when William Coppage was stopped in the end zone after the Rams had bobbled the ball. Wallace Owens made the two-point stop.

The Rams travel to Belhaven for another conference game next Friday.

Northern Nash Rallies For Win

FARMVILLE — Northern Nash scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter against Farmville Friday night to take a 13-12 Eastern Plains Football victory.

The Red Devils scored in the first and final frame to lead 12-0 when the Knights did their damage scoring their first TD with 8:41 remaining, and their final one with 1:49 on the board.

The Knight's Larry Mondy scored both the Northern TDs, one on a three yard run, and the second on a 30 yard pass from Leroy Davis. The winning extra point was booted by Edwinn Everett on the first score.

The Red Devils went ahead in the first frame with a three yard plumb by Rudolph Davis. Dickie Newton had set up the Devil score, scampering 80 yards on the first play from scrimmage on the Devil's first possession. A five yard penalty pushed it back to the 18, and Davis ran it twice, picking up 15 yards and three for the score.

Quarterback Fred Suals went over for the second tally with a three yard plumb also, The PAT kick failed.

Northern Nash tried an on-side kick after their first score and it worked to set up their winning touchdown.

Farmville took over after the second TD, but any hopes of scoring again were halted when Newton fumbled with less than two minutes to go, and the Knights ran the clock out.

DUDLEY — Southern Wayne High School rolled to a 26-6 victory over Greene Central Friday night, sending the Rams to their first Eastern Plains Conference loss. The win boosted Southern Wayne into a tie with Northern Nash for first place in the loop.

Southern Wayne pushed over 18 points in the first period of play. Charles Martin scored the first Viking touchdown, on a six-yard run.

Then, minutes later, Ted Dail pushed across from the 12-yard line to make it 12-0. Later in the period, Dail scored again,

Bulldogs Score Early To Take 13-12 Victory

By CARL TYER
Reflector Sports Writer

AYDEN — Prior to Friday night, a Grifton High School football team had never scored on Ayden. Friday night, Grifton scored twice, then stopped a two point conversion attempt by the Tornados after their second score to take a slim 13-12 non-conference win.

Grifton's Mike Tyndall scored both the Bulldog touchdowns, plus intercepting a Tornado aerial, returning it into the end zone, only to have it called back due to a clipping penalty against Grifton.

The Bulldogs capitalized on some early Ayden mistakes to take a 13-0 advantage early in the game. They were also aided by some good offensive blocking, and a fired up defensive unit which caught Tornado runners in their own back field consistently.

Ayden only managed 31 yards rushing in the first half.

Ayden took the opening kickoff and started their first drive from their own 27. They ran one play, losing three yards, then set up an unfamiliar offense. The Tornado center snapped the ball and laered it to an Ayden back who was standing off to the side with the remainder of the team. Grifton's Tony Bright intercepted the ball before it reached its destination and returned it to the Ayden one.

Grifton ran one play, and fumbled it as the Bulldog runner was going into the end zone. Danny Oakley pounced on it for Ayden to give the Tornados another try at getting out of their back yard.

However, the slippery fingers disease was still around, as Ken Cleaton dropped the pig skin in his own end zone as he was sweeping to his right, and Mike Tyndall pounced on it for the first Grifton score with 10:10 remaining in the first quarter.

Billy Edwards kicked the point after, which later proved to be the decisive score, and Grifton went ahead, with their first TD ever against Ayden.

Midway in the second quarter, Ayden found themselves trying to get over the mid-field stripe and faced with a tough fourth and two situation.

"I'm going to let em go for it" said Coach Nelson Gravatt as his quarterback walked back to the huddle after a time out.

The Bulldog defense then proved to be tough, as they caught Debro Blount in his own back field to throw the Tornados for a loss and take over on downs.

Grifton took over, and drove into their winning TD, as they were aided by a 15 yard penalty against the Tornados on a fourth and punting situation.

The Bulldogs had punted after running three plays, but a flag put the ball on the Ayden 34 for Grifton and it was all they needed to keep their drive alive.

The penalty gave Grifton a fourth and one foot situation, and quarterback David Whaley picked that up with a sneak up the middle. Two plays later, Tyndall swept to his left, picking up 11 more yards to the Ayden 17.

Richard Parker ran it twice for eight yards, and Tyndall once for five to put it on the four.

Whaley fumbled on the next play but recovered it on his five to set up the TD.

Tyndall did the honors, going around his left end, picking his way through a maze of bodies for the last three yards for the score. The point after kick was wide, and with 5:30 remaining, the Bulldogs were ahead, 13-0.

Ayden finally came to life, taking their next possession in for their first score. Earlier, Gravatt had told Wilson to "start passing more" since his ground game wasn't going well, and the passing game was what paid off.

Wilson picked up 26 yards to Jackets Nip Williamston

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids made use of its only scoring opportunity against the Williamston Green Wave Friday night to take a 9-0 non-conference tilt.

In a well balanced defensive game, Roanoke pushed its only touchdown across in the third quarter when Ray Hawkins went over from the three. Joe High booted the point after.

With 10 seconds remaining in the game, Roanoke caught Williamston's Ray Andrews in his end zone for a two point safety for the final score.

Once again the Green Wave had trouble with their offensive rushing game, as they ended the game with a total of 19 yards rushing to 130 for Roanoke Rapids. Roanoke was hindered by penalties, as they had 105 yards walked off against them.

Sugg Falls, 8-0, For Fourth Loss

FARMVILLE — The H. B. Sugg Lions have yet to win their first football game of the season, as the Henderson Institute downed them Friday night.

The lone visitors score came in the second quarter when De Witt Hill cracked over from the one. The point after run failed to make it 6-0. Later in the second frame, Henderson caught a Sugg runner in his own end zone for a safety and their final two.

Sugg piled up more yardage on the ground and in the air than their visitors but could not put it to the proper use in taking their fourth defeat of the year.

Citadel Kickers Halt Bucs, 6-2

The Citadel took advantage of the relative inexperience of the East Carolina University soccer team and picked up a 6-2 victory over the Bucs Friday afternoon.

"We played a much better game," Coach John Lovstedt said, "but the defense shows the inexperience. We looked better, however, than we did in our first game."

For The Citadel, Sonny Mundhaqi, Rat Ratanavgnich and Dan Boyette each picked up two goals.

The Citadel managed 14 shots at the goal, while East Carolina tried 13 times.

Boats Bring In Good King Catches

By FRANK SWANSON
King mackerel are still at large, but boatmen have been hunting them out with good results in some places. Saturday, Capt. George Purfoy on his Sea Raven, rounded up 8 big kings, and 8 hard-fighting albacore for fishing party Daniel Riddle, Sanford. These kings started fishing fever among the skippers, and Capt. Jack Lewis, on his Dolphin 7, found a good patch of kings on Sunday while trying his luck at the "Thirty minute rock," east of Cape Lookout. His fishing party reeled in 26 kings, plus albacore. The group was headed by Frank Payne, Concord.

Over the week-end, on an offshore trip, Capt. Jim Talton's Dreamo Lu 2, came home loaded with over 1,000 pounds of grouper, silver snappers, red snappers, grunts, black bass, and trigger fish.

Monday, the kings were somewhat scattered about again, but Capt. Wallace Guthrie, skipper on board the Dolphin 6, put aboard 13 kings and 6 albacore for fishing party George Nifond, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Over the week-end, spanish mackerel seemed to be making another good run. Boats that fished for them, including the small outboards, reaped good catches.

Last Wednesday, Joe Stabley, Stacy, N.C. landed a giant, 35 pound king while fishing from the Oceanana Pier. Monday, the speckled trout, and big blues have been taking baits. Sea mullets, and large flounder have also been hitting good from the ocean piers these past several days.

Joe Lambert, Raleigh brought in a good supply of blues, flounders, pompano and sea mullets from the outer banks. From Drum Inlet, Mr. Lewis Chamber, Winston-Salem, boated 25 flounders weighing up to 4 pounds, last Saturday.

Bet and Sandy McClamroch, Chapel Hill, had a good trout day at Cape Lookout, and hit the spanish mackerel at the Beaufort Inlet, on Friday. In Bogue Sound, near the beach bridge, Mr. & Mrs. M. C. Roush, Seamons, Ohio, with Mr. & Mrs. Roe Greene, Wilmington, N. C., scared up 50 grey trout, 10 blues, 12 hog fish and a black drum over the week-end.

South Ayden Sports A Veteran Team This Year

By WOODY PEELE

(One of a series)

AYDEN — South Ayden High School's Eagles have posted only one win in their first three starts, but Coach Johnny Davis admits that the team could easily be 2-1 on the year.

"We lost our opener to New Bern's Barber High School, 14-12," Davis said. "Both of us scored two touchdowns, but we couldn't cash in on the extra points. Then, the game ended with us on their three yard line."

The Eagles are fielding a veteran team this year, with 11 people who had starting experience last year back. "We have to keep everyone healthy," the coach said. "We have experience, but it doesn't go past the 14 or 15th man." There is a roster of 33 on the Eagle list. "If we can stay well, we'll give anybody we play a good game." The Eagles sport a fairly balanced offense, and the defense is about the same since most of the boys go both ways.

Another problem for the Eagles is the lack of good team speed. "This has hurt us in trying to establish an outside game."

Davis feels that the biggest asset of the South Ayden team is the ability to throw the ball well, but rates it hard to choose between the passing and the rushing game. "And our biggest problem is that lack of an outside attack."

On offense, the Eagles start Grimes and King at the ends. "Both are veterans, and are real good receivers. Grimes is a fair blocker, and King is one of the better ones on the team," Davis said.

At the tackles are Walter Gardner and Alton Ellis. "Ellis is a sophomore, but he is coming along good and is going to be all right. Gardner is a veteran."

are the guards, with Williams at middle linebacker. Cox and Brown handle the corners, with Grimes and either Donald Smith or Jesse Woods at safeties.

"If we can keep everyone healthy, and put a little spice into our running attack," Davis said, "it'll be a good year."

Eagles In Brief

Outlook — With a lack of depth, South Ayden must stay healthy. Veterans provide a good chance at a winning season.

Returning Starters — Jesse Moore G, Jesse Woods E, Alvin Wilson C, Walter Gardner T, Lee Ruth E, Charlie Grimes E, Leon Mayo QB, Glenn Williams FB, Alonza Cox HB, Eddie Brown HB, Kelvin King E.

Starters Lost — David Gilbert HB, Curtis Joyner G, Troy Mabery T, Manuel Elmore T.

Offense — Wing T; pro-set. Defense — Six-three, five-four.

Conference — North Carolina High School Athletic Conference. 3-6-1 last year.

Schedule — at Barber (12-14; Morrison (24-0); at Patillo (6-32); Oct. 3, at Scotland Neck Brawley; 10 at Mt. Olive Carver; 17 H. B. Sugg; 25 at Adkins; 31 at Sugg; Nov. 7 at Burlington Jordan-Sellers.

anced offense, with the passing of Leon Mayo and the running of Glenn Williams. "Mayo is one of the best passers in this area," Davis said. "Williams is our chief ball carrier. He's picked up nearly 200 yards in three games."

Center is occupied by Alton Wilson. "He is one of biggest boys on the team (230). He's been playing there three years."

With Mayo at the quarterback position, Davis also had plenty of experience. It's the third year there for him. "He can run when he has to."

Alonza Cox and either Eddie Brown or Mark Smith handle the halfback positions. "Cox and Smith are seniors, and Brown is a junior. Cox is real aggressive."

At the fullback is Williams. "He has it all, speed, power, and the moves."

Defensively, King and Lee Ruth hold down the ends, while Gardner and Wilson are at the tackles. Moore and Richie Allen

Mayo, in those same three games, has put the ball into the air on 53 occasions. He's had 28 completions for 241 yards and five touchdowns. And, also he's had only one pass intercepted.

"Our leading receiver is Charlie Grimes," Davis said. He's caught about 15 passes, including three for touchdowns." Davis rates the other end, Kelvin King as a good receiver also.

"With the exception of last Friday's game (a loss to Tarboro's Patillo High School), we've been pretty well pleased with the defense. We only have averaged sized boys. The offensive line weighs about 180

Rod And Gun: Fishermen Begin To Believe Lies

By ROD AMUNDSON

There is not much difference between a guy who just goes fishing and the guy who goes fishing and writes about it. Both have a strong inclination to stretch the truth, but the latter has a little wider circulation.

I was one of the first to catch one of those big "Hatters" bluefish, back in 1953. For years I have been telling that this fish weighed twelve and one-half pounds, and would have taken oath to that weight. A check of the records, however, showed the fish weighed ten pounds flat. Which proves . . . if you tell a fib often enough you will believe it yourself.

cool, and collected. This latter, of course, applies to immediately after the incident. The patient's metabolism will automatically keep him calm and cool if not collected, a few hours later when he goes into shock.

But some say, make an incision at the point of puncture, draw out a good amount of blood, and apply a tourniquet. Where do you apply the tourniquet if you sit down on a poisonous snake?

Others say don't cut, don't use suction, but apply ice to the area of the venom injection. Is fine, provided the victim is not mortally allergic to horse serum.

A look at the records indicates the one-goose-per-day bag limit is having a slow-dow n effect on reservations for hunting blinds at Lake Mattamuskeet waterfowl refuge. All of the 18 blinds are booked for the first three days of the waterfowl season, but from November 24 on, vacancies range from an average of 11 to all 18 blinds.

Waterfowl hunters should remember, however, that last year duck hunting at Mattamuskeet was the best in ten years, and is expected to be even better this year. Bringing home two geese and the full limit of ducks should make a trip to the Lake worth while.

If you want to reserve a blind at Mattamuskeet, write to: Waterfowl Blind Reservations, Lake Mattamuskeet, New Holland, North Carolina. Reservations will be made on a first-come, first-served basis. Almost none of these blinds have been booked from December 15 on through January 15.

Outboard Race Richest Ever

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI)—From the ditty bag:
The sixth annual Outboard World Championships Nov. 29-30 at Lake Havasu City, Ariz., will be the richest race of its type ever run, with $50,000 in prizes going to the top finishers, $15,000 to the winner. Robert P. McCulloch Jr., race director, says the record purse is attracting drivers from all over. "So far, we have received applications to race from 27 states, including Hawaii, Canada and Europe."

That old rule of thumb that a cruiser costs $1,000 a foot is far from accurate. A better guide is that modern fiberglass boats with gas power installed run about $2 to $2.50 a pound. For example, Christ-Craft's 17-foot Lancer runs about $2.21 a pound while its 47-foot Commander figures out to about $2.40 a pound. That's the basic boat, without accessories. One of the zaniest boating proposals introduced in a state legislature this year was offered in Pennsylvania by four Assemblymen and involved use of outboard motors on the state's Pymatuning Lake. The bill proposed: "Any boat equipped with a motor in excess of 10 horsepower rating may be operated on said lake if such motor is rendered inoperable by removal of the propeller, and such propeller is left ashore. After removal of the propeller, a motor of not more than 10 horsepower rating may be attached to the boat and used for propelling the boat on said lake." Needless to say, the bill didn't pass.

Safety tip—Do not use kapok life preservers as seat cushions. Such action compresses the filler and reduces its efficiency.

Sixtieth Anniversary For ECU Students

LONELINESS . . . can be very real on opening day. This young lady seems to be searching for a familiar face.

DR. ROBERT H. WRIGHT . . . first president of ECU.

CASUAL ATTIRE . . . on campus. The young male student at right, in abbreviated trousers, would have been out of place in the class of 1909.

ORIGINAL CAMPUS . . . with Austin in the center. This is an architect's sketch of what the originally planned campus would look like when completed.

Text By Jerry Raynor
Photographs By Donna Dixon and Tommy Forrest
Early Photographs Rephotographed From Documents

Sixty years ago today, on October 5, 1909, 104 females and 19 males entered the class rooms of East Carolina Teachers Training School. They were the first contingent ever to begin studies in the new institution of higher learning.

The early history of East Carolina University precedes the first classes by a little over two years. On March 8, 1907, the North Carolina legislature passed an act which established East Carolina Teachers Training School.

A cotton field east of the city was the site of groundbreaking for the new school on July 2, 1908. Greenville's most famous citizen of the day, former Governor Thomas J. Jarvis, was on hand to turn the first shovel of Pitt County soil.

The day before classes began, on October 4, citizens of Greenville had turned out in large numbers to welcome the arrival of a new type of Greenville resident — the student. These young men and women had arrived by train from 31 counties in North Carolina and from four states. They traveled through Greenville's boulevards to the campus by carriage.

On their arrival, they discovered four completed buildings—an Administration Building, Old Austin; a girl's dormitory, West Dormitory; one for the boys, East Dormitory; and a dining hall, then called a refectory.

Two other buildings, a central power house—now the present lobby of the cafeteria; and an infirmary, which is today the Alumni Building, were under construction.

For the first classes in 1909, a young educator named Robert H. Wright was their president-elect, to be inaugurated on November 12, 1909. Three men and seven women formed the initial teaching staff — C. W. Wilson, bursar and teacher of pedagogy; Herbert E. Austin, science; and W. H. Ragsdale, school administration. The ladies were: Mrs. Kate R. Beckwith, lady principal; Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, English and literature; Miss Sallie Joyner Davis, history; Miss Maria D. Graham, mathematics; Miss Birdie McKinny, Latin; Miss Fannie Mae Bishop, music; and Miss Kate W. Lewis, drawing.

On that historic occasion six decades ago, it is doubtful if many of the participants or observers of the activity at the new center of learning would have dreamed what a difference the passage of 60 years would make.

So much has been added, so much has changed in the span of two generations.

Some things, however, have not changed greatly. The first student body began their school year with the sound of hammering in the air. This sound is heard by students today, as construction continues in an ever expanding university program.

Another matter which remains essentially the same is the pride and enthusiasm the town people take in the student body. Today, although there is no overt demonstration of welcome on the part of the townspeople, an air of excitement and happy expectation of another successful school year is evident with the influx of new students each September.

In many ways, changes have been dramatic.

Sixty years ago girls swished demurely across the campus in long skirts and high-collared long-sleeved blouses — somewhat different from the college girl's "mod" dress of 1969. Today a bare feminine ankle showing no longer creates a flutter of consternation. Young men's attire is different from that of 60 years ago. Starched or celluloid collars are not now in vogue.

The initial 123 students represented a fairly broad geographical spectrum. Today, representation of home-towns ranges from practically every county in North Carolina, through a large number of states, and embraces a number of students from foreign countries.

In the peaceful days prior to World War I, students came to Greenville by train. In 1969, a majority of students reporting in come by automobile—many accompanied by parents or friends to help them get settled.

The handful of faculty members present on October 5, 1909 would feel lost among the approximately 570 faculty members teaching at ECU today. The administrative and operating staff of today numbers well over 800. Student enrollment is only a little short of 10,000 — at approximately 9,700 students, a tremendous increase over the original 123 member student body.

In October 1909, students had only a few fields of study to choose from. Today, the field is almost unlimited, and grows every year.

As the university begins on the last 40 years of its first century, there is a good possibility that physical growth and expansion in new fields of knowledge will prove to be as spectacular as the first 60 years have been.

A.W.G.F. SOCIETY . . . is the name these happy lassies gave themselves. Members of "Ain't We Got Fun?", they were part of the student body in the early 20s.

A TIME TO REST . . . is fundamental in any age. These students enjoy the cool waters of a fountain.

PATIENCE . . . is a necessary virtue for students entering ECU today. Long lines on opening day have come a tradition in recent years.

AND INSIDE . . . as first day registration progresses, lines of students continue the slow shuffle through teams of interviewers and assignment personnel.

Another Marilyn Monroe? Broader Horizons Beckon Goldie

GOLDIE EYES MOVIE CAREER — Goldie Hawn, the giggly blonde of television, is embarking on a career in the movies after this season. (AP Wirephoto)

By GENE HANDSAKER Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rubbery-faced, giggly Goldie Hawn, the smart blonde who only acts dumb on television's "Laugh-In," leaves the show after this season for a career in movies.

This summer she did one film, "Cactus Flower," with Ingrid Bergman and Walter Matthau, and found it "a very exciting experience."

She's set for a second for producer Mike Frankovich, "There's a Girl in My Soup," and producer Billy Wilder is scheduled to write another for her, as he did for Marilyn Monroe with "Some Like It Hot."

Some observers predict, indeed, that Goldie will become as big a star as the late Marilyn.

One is Goldie's agent-partner, Art Simon, who discovered her dancing in the chorus on an Andy Griffith television special three years ago. He and Miss Hawn have formed a company that will produce two G H Goldie Hawn movies.

Simon says Goldie is leaving "Laugh-In" because "in the framework of the show, I don't think she has had the opportunity to present the talent she really has."

But Goldie is grateful for her three seasons on "Laugh-In," an "enormous thing that really shot off my career."

Around the show's stage, she's known as cooperative and unaffected. Producer Paul W. Keyes says her leaving is "like losing your right arm. She's going to be a big star."

The shapely Goldie, 5 feet 6 and 114 pounds, is 23. She was born in Washington, D.C., where her father, Rutledge Hawn, is a musician in society orchestras. He is also a descendant of Edward Rutledge of South Carolina, youngest signer of the Declaration of Independence.

At 3, Goldie started ballet and at 10 performed with the Ballet Russe. Later she ran a dancing school for 150 youngsters in Washington and still later was a clubs' while living with four other girls in a tiny Manhattan apartment.

NBC Starts Out Front In Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC jumped into first place with ABC right behind it in the first competitive Nielsen ratings for the season, released Friday. CBS, the traditional leader, came in third.

The ratings period for the 70-city survey was Sept. 22-28, premier week for ABC and CBS. NBC introduced its new shows the week before.

The area included in the ratings survey represents 67 per cent of the viewing public. The full national ratings are due Monday.

The No. 1 show was NBC's Bob Hope Special. Altogether, NBC placed nine shows in the top 20 and ABC came in with seven. CBS had four.

The top 10 were: 1. Bob Hope Special, 2. ABC Sunday Night Movie "Nevada Smith," 3. Flip Wilson Special and NBC Saturday Night Movie "Shenandoah," tied, 5. CBS Charlie Brown Special, 6. ABC's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," 7. NBC's "Bill Cosby Show" and CBS Friday Night Movie, tied, 9. NBC's "Laugh-In," and 10. ABC's "Movie of the Week."

TV Notes

Actor George Sanders Quits

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — George Sanders, the suave, virile villain of nearly 100 films, is retiring.

He walks slowly now, his 6-foot 3-inch frame bent slightly over his cane. His hair is almost completely white, but he exudes a youthfulness that belies his 63 years.

George Sanders has had fun making movies and he enjoys talking about them.

Recently, on the last filming day of his long career, Sanders talked of his health, of the parts that have made him famous, and of his final role—that of a homosexual, female impersonator.

"I have no choice," he said of his retirement. "I couldn't pass an insurance physical now."

Turning to what might have been, Sanders said he would have liked to have played a Keystone Kop.

"Any kind of laughter is better than tears. I played in comedies, but never in slapstick; no pie-throwing."

The desire to play comedy seemed out of character for the debonair, British lover type, the handsome villain with the acerbic wit who told the Marilyn Monroe type in "All About Eva" that she was "a graduate of the Copacabana School of Dramatic Arts."

He won an academy award for his role in that 1950 film.

Romantic villain or comic spy, "a part is a part," Sanders says. "You do the best you can. And if there's some dame involved, you do the best you can with the dame."

He recalled his early movie days, soon after he left his native Russia. (He was born in St.

Reviews And Reflections

ALBERT PERTALION

"This decade may go down in history as marking the end of life for the largest animal ever to inhabit this earth. If so, it will be another morbid monument to man's shortsighted exploitation of the world's wildlife bounty." So spoke Stewart Udall, former United States Secretary of the Interior.

This admonition serves as the secondary theme in The Year of the Whale (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, 1969, $6.95) by Victor B. Scheffer. Mr. Scheffer is concerned about man's desecration of natural habitats of animals and especially his befouling of the oceans and waters of the earth.

He writes "With terrible swiftness man has fouled the waters and land and the air above. And far beyond the air he has shot magnetic needles to circulate the earth and confuse astronomers. . . The wildest and cleanest of the oceanic islands—indeed the jewels of the sea—are bulldozed by men trained in violence. Why not? They're uninhabited; they're not in use; they're unimproved," say these men in bewilderment. . . How can the naturalist answer? What can the poet say? What new tongue can speak to the men who know and use only the language of force?"

This secondary theme is developed well. Mr. Scheffer writes convincingly from personal conviction and great experience. But the best writing in The Year of the Whale he employs for the central theme, the actual spatial and chronological movement of sperm whales in general and a newborn sperm whale calf in particular throughout an entire year.

No man can say that he has probed deeply into the natural history of the whale. Only through countless fragments of evidence can the whale biologist reconstruct the life cycle of this grandest of all mammals.

Out of these fragments Victor Scheffer has written an extraordinary journal of "Little Calf's" travels and development. In prose that repeatedly borders on poetry, Mr. Scheffer describes the tenderness which exists between the cow and her calf, the seeming compassion that whales display for a wounded member of their group, and the near human jealousy bull whales show over their cows.

The book is filled with intriguing facts and figures about whales (at birth they weigh a ton, and are fourteen feet long) and these statistics surface gracefully throughout the narration.

Mr. Scheffer speaks almost sadly of the whale's biological cul-de-sac. Indeed, the whale seems to have evolved as far as he will ever go. His greatest asset (as far as a defense against natural enemies are concerned), size, is also his undoing. Mr. Scheffer's feelings here are curious. True, the whale would seem to have great potential, but expecting him to move higher up the chain of being appears to be a singularly human ambition.

Mr. Scheffer's prose is at its lyrical best when he describes actual incidents involving real whales. He very poignantly writes about a female who was struck by the screw of a passing vessel. Soon after her wild, audible cry for help several members of her group tried valiantly for hours to keep her blowhole above the water in an effort to keep her alive. After her inevitable death, there appeared among the whales a noticeable quiet, an aura which humans might interpret as mourning.

Inextricable from the story of Little Calf is the lesson Mr. Scheffer teaches about what man does to the earth he lives on. From The Roots of Heaven Mr. Scheffer quotes "It's absolutely essential that man should manage to preserve something other than what helps to make soles for shoes or sewing machines, that he should leave a margin, a sanctuary, where some of life's beauty can take refuge and where he himself can feel safe from his own cleverness and folly. Only then will it be possible to begin talking of a civilization."

Please read this book. It's a book for personal libraries; a book to pass on to your children, but the Sheppard Memorial Library has a copy if you don't want to purchase it.

N.C. Annual Art Show Announced

Less than 30 days are left before entry deadline in the 32nd North Carolina Artists Annual Exhibition in Raleigh. Artists planning to enter this largest of North Carolina shows must have their work at the North Carolina Museum of Art no later than November 4.

Artists living in North Carolina for 12 months preceding October 1969, or anyone who has lived in the state for a period of five years is eligible.

Paintings in any media, prints, drawings and sculpture may be submitted. Individual artists are limited to two works in any media, and to a total of three works. Works requiring special display devices will not be accepted unless such devices are supplied by the artist. A dimension of 80 inches is the maximum size accepted. Entry fee is $3.00.

Three out of state artists—Harriet Fitzgerald, Ray Pierotti, and Leo Rabkin, will judge the entries on November 13 and 14.

The exhibition will open on December 4, and continue on view at the North Carolina Museum of Art until January 15. It will be shown in Raleigh only. Awards total $2,650. The First Purchase Award is $1,000. Three purchase awards of $500 each will be given, and three honorable mentions will receive $50 each.

Winners of awards will be invited to participate in a group show of their work in the spring of 1970.

In addition to the museum awards, the Harrelson Fund has provided $800 for purchase of a work for the Erdahl-Cloyd Union, North Carolina State University. A scholarship award of $100 will be given to a qualifying art student, and the North Carolina State Art Society will give a $75 purchase award for a print to be added to the traveling exhibition of prints.

Additional information and entry blanks can be secured by writing to Thirty-Second Annual North Carolina Artists Exhibition, North Carolina Museum of Art, 107 East Morgan Street, Raleigh, N. C.

By MARGARET CLARK
 A welcomed collection of short stories appears on this month's fiction list by John O'Hara, one of America's most talented writers. In "The O'Hara Generation" old and new O'Haras are included in this selection of 22 stories from nine different volumes published during a period of over 30 years. They are representative of the full scope of a master storyteller's talents, and of the changing attitudes and mores of the advancing years.

Morris Renek's "Slim Miami" is the story of a girl singer who calls herself Siam Miami (she picked the name because it sounded "slightly exotic and slightly Jewish.") She's comic, tough, touching and lusty. This is the story of how she makes her way from a commodity to a star, of the sharks who manipulate her, the men who use her, and the man who loves her.

Two suspense novels stand out: "The Captors" by John Ferris and "The Last Doorbell" by Joseph Harrington. The first of these is the chilling story of the kidnapping of a beautiful girl, and the reader will find it difficult to put down this highly original spine-tingler. "The Last Doorbell" stars Lt. Frances X. Kerrigan of the District Attorney's office. As with all the Joseph Harrington mysteries the characters are real, the dialogue is convincing, and the police work is all the more interesting because the author writes from firsthand knowledge.

The real women beneath the goddess-figures the world's idoltry has made them is the subject of two fascinating portraits. In Norman Zierold's "Garbo," Greta Garbo, the mysterious, enigmatic, aloof actress who wanted only to be left alone, is seen in a different light in this new profile. When Garbo is not in her dark, contemplative mood, she is warm, humorous, giving, and extremely expressive according to the author. From more than a hundred interviews, she is quoted on a great many subjects—children, love, friendship, God—she is seen frequenting a wide and brilliant circle at home and aboard, a party-goer whom Zierold calls "the gregarious hermit."

Few books in publishing history have created such excitement in advance as has Mary Gallagher's "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy." A small portion of the book appearing in serial form produced a wave of press speculation. The complete book reveals Jacqueline Kennedy as a real person—as a wife, as a mother, as a seeker of perfection in art and life. For the light it sheds on crucial years in American history and on Jacqueline Kennedy, this book is unique.

ECU Instructor Tony Cacalano—Women's Painter Series

BOUFFANT . . . hair style overshadows this portrait. Flesh and costume colors are warm ones against a dark green background.

STRIVING . . . to place poetry on canvas, Tony Cacalano works on the latest of his series of women's portraits.

By JERRY RAYNOR
 Reflector Staff Writer
 Tony Cacalano, instructor in painting at East Carolina University has considerable experience in teaching art.

Before coming to Greenville he instructed at Norfolk State College in Virginia and earlier at Quinnipiac College in Hamden, Connecticut. He also taught summer sessions at the Old Dominion University in Norfolk.

When Cacalano lived in Virginia, he was art critic for the Virginia Pilot newspaper.

Commenting on his current work, a series of portraits of women, ranging from head and shoulders study to full figures, Cacalano says "My initial idea was for something very poetic. I like the poetry of the feminine form, the soft aspect."

Acknowledging that his painting of women have evolved into something other than poetic—in the commonly accepted sense, Cacalano commented, "As the years pass, these paintings have become more brutal. I tend to think these paintings are not so much a concept of women as an expression of my own feelings."

He does not equate the brutality he recognizes in this series to any such feeling about women. Rather, he feels it is a time of searching. "My painting is akin to the Renaissance idea as opposed to the Gothic idea of a specific talk. I'm denying in my paintings the clean, mechanistic aspect of contemporary art."

"I'm perhaps also trying to deny that a painting is an end to itself. To me, a painting goes beyond something hanging on a wall. I'm not concerned with the merely decorative."

A native of New York City, Cacalano holds two bachelor degrees, one in science from William and Mary, and one in fine arts from Yale. He also holds the M.F.A. from Yale.

In addition to his instructorship at ECU, Cacalano is serving as artist in resident at the Greenville Art Center.

Dutch Colonial Is Keyed For Informal Living

THE JUTLAND 10/5/69

THE JUTLAND 10/5/69

THE JUTLAND 10/5/69

DUTCH COLONIAL HAS GROWING ROOM—This Dutch Colonial, the Jutland, designed by the Associated Architects, is a one-and-a-half story with three bedrooms, two and a half baths, an extra room that could be converted into a fourth bedroom or huge playroom, a modern kitchen, formal dining room, living room with log-burning fireplace, foyer and double garage. Since there is no basement, there is provision for laundry facilities, furnace and water heater.

By GERRY BISHOP

The Jutland is a Dutch colonial that will grow on you and with you. This smart one-and-a-half story designed by the Associated Architects is keyed to the kind of informal living that characterizes life in America today. As for future growth, if your family expands, so will the Jutland. There's an extra room on the upper level which can be turned into a fourth bedroom. Or, if the family holds the line, it would make a perfect playroom.

The exterior is eye-catching with its mansard roof, Dutch shutters and L shape which permits a double garage and at the same time uses land efficiently. In other words, the Jutland's design provides a large home on a relatively narrow lot, at least by suburban standards.

The foyer is well positioned to channel traffic to all sections with a minimum of confusion. There's a porch to protect arriving guests. Then one steps into the foyer which opens into a center hall.

A coat closet and powder room are important facilities in this area. And the stairs to the upper story originate there.

FIRST FLOOR MASTER
A long hall connects the garage to the kitchen and divides the main-floor living area into two sections. On one side is the master bedroom suite, which is an exceptionally fine arrangement. It's private, has two large walk-in closets, a dressing room and private bath. The oversized dimensions are another asset; so is the first-floor location. The rest of the main floor is comprised of kitchen, dining room and living room.

The kitchen has a breakfast area and the usual built-in appliances and cabinets found in modern homes. There's a window above the double sink.

Adjacent to the kitchen is the dining room, a cheerful, well lighted chamber with an outside entrance.

Another fine feature is the living room, which is adjacent to the dining room and has a large window overlooking the back yard and a log-burning fireplace.

Because of the center hall, there is a circular traffic pattern through the kitchen, dining room and living room.

SPACIOUS BEDROOMS
The plans do not call for a basement and the furnace and water heater are closeted beside the laundry room which accommodates a washer and dryer and has a storage closet. There's also a storage room off the garage.

In sections of the country where a basement is customary, one could be built without difficulty.

Each of the upstairs bedrooms is spacious and has a walk-in closet. They are just a step away from the main bath.

The extra room would make a super bedroom or play room because of its generous dimensions.

Overall dimensions of the Jutland are approximately 62 feet by 43 feet and the living area totals 2,041 square feet.

Wildlife Motif Attracts Many In Decorating Room

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

We may be approaching the "Roaring '70s" period in decorating with all the emphasis on wildlife motif.

If one doesn't think "big cat" with jungle spears and masks, one might respond to the voice of the turtle or hoot of the owl—these, too, are providing wildlife atmosphere.

Avant-garde decorators are always ready for such inspiration, but the surprise is to find the motif in the homes of confirmed traditionalists. Many people begin with decoys—ducks or geese—and they soon have a man-made jungle.

In some homes, you can almost hear the tom-toms as the animal kingdom is gathered to complete a wildlife look.

For example, one living room style game hunter enjoys a wallcovering confrontation of zebras, tigers and cheetahs. The safari background is emphasized with a big spotted ceramic cat on the floor and an African dance shield propped against the wall. The window is a jungle of plants. Furniture has been played down with tawny neutral-color fabric and an orange and russet shag rug with a quiet backing of latex foam rubber.

The animal look can hide defects in ceilings and walls. It is that distracting. One woman did an all-over ceiling design in a zebra pattern to hide stains and cracks. She put a couple of spears on the wall (they are really whaling harpoons). African masks and a leopard-print upholstered chair and lounge in this room didn't really conjure up a ferocious picture. It looks cozy.

One man chose six large tiger pictures as the sole motif in a room done in black and brown. The striations of zebra and tiger and the spots of leopard and ocelot are among the prettiest designs in nature. The real animal coat is simulated effectively in rugs, upholstery, fabrics, lamps, bed linens, ashtrays, furry pillows.

Slinky reptile designs are becoming more popular in wall coverings, fabrics, carpet and accessories. There are snake-print vinyls covering kitchen cabinets and standing screens. One well-known decorator covered a long Parsons table in a snake-pattern vinyl using it with a burgundy and deep blue color scheme.

The concentration on wildlife motif has brought woodland themes—ferns, mushrooms, wildflowers, trees—into focus. These are simpatico with animal kingdom decorating, and the new trend to foolproof designs of nature.

Mushroom motif is on new wallcoverings, fabrics, china placemats. Its classic old-world form is one of the most captivating of art subjects.

The delicate tracery of ferns provides a tranquil balance to the tropical look. These can be used in planters or on tall tables in the corners of rooms for an effective display.

Planter windows also increase the potential of the woody look. Plants can swing from the window ceiling and be step-staggered to the floor where clay pots can be set in planters.

Nature's designs do not overwhelm, although the zebra is easier to work with than tiger or leopard. Turtles and owls can have great impact as collections and motif in decorating. Dress designer Pauline Trigere has hundreds of turtles in her country home.

Owls are a favorite of actress Sheila MacRae who has several large collections in her city home.

Full Guarantee Could Cut Home Loan Costs

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A new government study suggests that interest rates on FHA and VA home loans could be reduced by one percentage point if the government would provide a full guarantee of repayment.

That would save home buyers a total of $500 million a year. On a $25,000 house, a one percentage point reduction would save the buyer $6,210 over a 30 year mortgage.

The government now guarantees about 95 per cent of each Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and Veterans Administration (VA) home loan, leaving the lender with some risk, although not much.

A study team headed by Prof. Irwin Friend of the University of Pennsylvania said the small "residual" risk assumed by the lender is a costly drag on the housing industry.

The 3,500-page report explained that a 100 per cent federal guarantee would eliminate duplication of risk control procedures and serving costs by the lender.

It would cost the government no more in overhead to insure all of a loan than it does to guarantee 95 per cent of it.

In addition, the report said, a full government guarantee would make home mortgages more attractive on the secondary market, thus sucking new money into housing construction.

Besides, the report said, "Federally underwritten loans would become available to borrowers anywhere in the United States since the dependence of borrowers on local originators would be greatly reduced."

Significant Benefit

That could be a significant benefit to many potential home owners. Recent figures have shown that more than 30 per cent of the FHA's regional offices are unable to make all eligible loans because of a lack of available funds.

If a national mortgage market is developed to replace existing local markets, the regional variations in the supply of funds would be eliminated.

The report recommended a pilot project using full federal underwriting on government programs to help the disadvantaged buy homes. If the plan works well, the report said, it should be extended to all FHA and VA loans.

The report also recommended that the government experiment with "flexible" mortgage repayment plans to supplement present reliance on monthly equal payment loans.

One suggestion was that young families with low current income but expanding prospects be permitted to repay a loan on a scale that would increase monthly payments as income increased.

Town Designed For Automobiles

LITCHFIELD PARK, Ariz. (UPI)—How to keep traffic moving?

Simple—take out the "turbulence," the interruptions and stops in the flow of movement that snowball into snarls, delays, and sometimes accidents.

Litchfield Park, is a new town being built on open farmland near Phoenix. Its traffic engineers have designed a road system that makes it a community deliberately designed to cope with automobiles.

All main roads are fenced and landscaped so through traffic can move quickly. There are no stores, homes, businesses or even filling stations along arterials, so no cars are parked along the roads, and there are no driveways, neon signs, utility poles or other obstructions along the route.

The result: No turbulence. All stores and businesses are off the main roads in shopping centers or industrial parks. Homes are built on side streets that are either cul-de-sacs or long looping curves that return cars to their starting point. So cars don't look for shortcuts through Litchfield Park's residential areas.

As a final touch, a separate network of foot paths winds for 35 miles through the town, open to cyclists or pedestrians. It encourages residents to leave their cars at home and walk. Since all homes are near schools and stores, the pathways eliminate much local traffic.

Patching cracks, gaps and holes in plaster walls is a necessary preparatory step before painting a room.

Fortunately, it is a job that anyone can handle with an almost certain assurance that he will achieve an excellent result provided that he follows certain fundamentals.

One of the most important of these is that the area to be repaired be wet down thoroughly before applying the patching material and again after the new plaster has set. This is to prevent premature drying out and subsequent flaking of the plaster.

In mixing the patching powder with water, it should be worked until it has the consistency of dough, neither too solid nor too watery. The one exception to this is when a hairline crack is being repaired. In that case, a watery mixture is best so that it can be pressed into the opening.

The container of the material will give you an idea of the drying time. If you are in a hurry, the drying time can be hastened by mixing the patching product with some plaster of Paris, which dries much more rapidly.

Apply the mixture with a putty knife or similar tool, being sure that it is very, very slightly above the surrounding surface because there may be a slight shrinkage and also to allow a little room for sanding. Remember to wet the opening before applying the mixture and after the plaster has set.

For large gaps in the wall, undercut the opening—that is, make the edges of the plaster slant inward so that the opening is wider at the bottom than the top. This prevents the new plaster from falling out. Before applying the mixture, be sure all loose pieces of plaster have been brushed away.

When the patch is dry, cover it with a sealer or primer before applying paint.

Remember that, in a new house, plaster cracks may appear because of settling of the foundation. Don't do any patching until you are certain the settling has stopped. To be sure, make tiny chalk marks at the ends of a crack and inspect them periodically. If the cracks have not lengthened, you can be reasonably sure they will get no longer.

SPANISH ACCIDENTS

MADRID (UPI)—There were 77,494 auto accidents in Spain in 1968, according to the Spanish Traffic Center.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Question: Is a portable refreshment bar considered a piece of furniture or part of the equipment in a house? We recently signed a contract on a house. When the real estate broker showed us around, he pointed out that the finished basement was an excellent place for entertaining guests.

Answer: This illustrates how important it is to list everything that goes with the house, including such things as appliances, window shades, rugs, etc. You do not say whether the bar was mentioned in the contract.

Question: We stripped the finish off an old bureau and discovered a beautifully grained wood underneath. We applied a coat of shellac, but are not satisfied with the result. There seems to be a rather uneven surface, which is especially evident when you rub your fingers over it. Do I have to take off the shellac in order to put on varnish?

Answer: No. Using a fine grade of sandpaper, sand down the finish until it is smooth to the touch. Brush off all grit and then go ahead with your varnishing.

Autumn's Fallen Leaves Can Help Through Winter

By EARL ARONSON
N AP Newsfeatures

When the leaves come tumbling down in the autumn, save some of them and use them to help protect your evergreens, young trees and shrubs.

Placing loose leaves, dry grass and brush around the base of shrubs or trees puts a protective blanket to work through the winter.

Most leaves, particularly maple, will pack down and block air from getting to roots, thus forming a prison through which moisture cannot break. So pattern the winter mulch in thin layers with brush between for a total depth of four inches to a foot. The colder it gets where you live, the thicker the blanket should be. Don't apply it until after the first heavy frost.

When roots become locked in frozen soil and cannot replace the moisture lost through the foliage in mild fall and winter days, the American Association of Nurserymen says, they are suffering from "winter burn."

Unless you reside in the severest climate, fall is a good time to set out evergreens, which give you a green view all year, especially when most shrubbery is drab and bare.

For a bright touch, plant evergreens where they will be readily visible from your window or doorway. At our new home, evergreens screen part of the yard, providing privacy as well as attractiveness.

Fall, when many of your garden chores have been completed, is a good time to build for spring beauty with bulbs. As we noted before, except in the coldest areas, autumn also is a good time to plant rose bushes, to plant or transplant perennials, to prune, pot, plant and plan. Give things a chance to put down some strong roots before heavy frost. This means don't wait until fall is almost over.

Fall is a time to move chrysanthemums. Someone has suggested that where moles, field mice or chipmunks are a nuisance, bulbs should be planted in wire cages. In my own case, this would be quite a chore, considering that we have about 400 tulips and other spring bulbs.

Increasing Value Of West German Mark Will Have Its Effect In U.S.

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The West German mark rose in value this past week, making it likely that Americans will have to pay more for goods imported from that country.

Americans, who have been plagued by inflated prices of domestically produced goods, heard Paul W. McCracken, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, and other top-level economists say they saw signs that the overheated U.S. economy was cooling.

The outgoing West German government this past week, in the wake of an indecisive national election, set the mark free in foreign exchange markets.

The intention was to allow the mark to seek its own level in relation to the U.S. dollar in unfettered trading. The mark, under IMF agreement, has been pegged at approximately 4 to $1. West Germany's economic allies have long felt that the mark was undervalued.

The immediate result of the West German government's action was a 3 per cent increase in the mark's value in foreign exchange market dealings.

This, in effect, was an unofficial revaluation of the mark, a move the government had refused to make officially during two world monetary rises in recent years.

Permitting the mark to float freely was intended to stem the flow of foreign capital into West Germany and to head off speculation.

The dollar and the British pound firmed in conjunction with the mark's rise. The United States, Britain and France have hoped for a significant rise in the mark's value. Their reason was that such a development would make German goods less sharply competitive and enhance their prospects of making gains in foreign trade. An upward revaluation of the mark would make Germany's exports more expensive and imports cheaper.

With a new coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats taking over the West German Government, expectations were that a formal revaluation of the mark would be ordered.

Klaus-Dieter Arndt, parliamentary undersecretary in the West German Economics Ministry, said the mark definitely would be revalued at the end of its temporary floating period.

McCracken said the government's restrictive monetary and fiscal policies were "beginning to bite." He expressed the opinion that 1970 would be a year of transition, with the economy shifting into a lower gear.

Willis W. Alexander, president of the American Bankers Association, told the organization's convention in Honolulu that he detected signs the economy was starting to cool off. He predicted that within four to six months interest rates, including the record 8½ per cent prime rate, would begin to decline.

Martin R. Gainsbrugh, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, foresaw a further tapering off in the rate of national economic growth rather than a recession. He said a slowdown to about 6 to 6½ per cent in national output, "coupled with a further rise in the nation's capacity to produce, should bring with it a modest restraining on the rate of price increases."

Henry van B. Cleveland, vice president of First National City Bank of New York, commented: "What seems to lie ahead for the international economy in 1970 is a general slowdown initiated by a slowdown or recession in the United States."

The Commerce Department reported that the rate of construction spending in August slipped 0.5 per cent to an annual rate of $90.9 billion from $91.4 billion in August. The August decline was entirely in private construction while the public sector gained.

New orders for machine tools in August declined by 16 per cent to $107.5 million from $128 million in July, the National Machine Tool Builders Association reported.

Automobile production this past week edged up to an estimated 187,600 passenger cars from 186,732 the previous week but was down from 196,643 a year earlier.

Steel output last week increased 1.6 per cent to 2,730,000 tons from 2,688,000 tons the previous week.

Fires Damaged Two Dwellings

Two dwelling houses in Pitt County were damaged by fire, according to Mike Worthington, Fire Marshal for Pitt County.

In Stokes, a new home, valued at $15,000, owned and occupied by Walter Sumerlin, caught fire from a water heater in the utility room.

Firemen from the Stokes Fire Department put out the blaze, which reached the attic. Damage was confined to approximately $1,000, most of it attributed to smoke damage.

In Ayden, the two-story frame home of Frank Kilpatrick suffered damage estimated at $150.

Local Student At Bryant College

Miss Marsha Ann Blake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Allen Blake of 1308 Railroad St., has enrolled as a member of the freshman class at Bryant College, Providence, R. I.

Miss Blake is a graduate of G. R. Whitfield High School, Grimesland.

Japan Could Be One Of Winners In Opening Northwest Passage

By LEON DANIEL
 TOKYO (UPI)—Japan, already the world's third greatest industrial power, could be one of the big winners in the gamble to open the Northwest Passage.

A commercial sea lane across the top of Alaska and Canada would cut the distance between Tokyo and New York by 3,320 miles and save shippers both time and money.

Japanese officials followed with interest the voyage of the tanker S.S. Manhattan on its mission to test the feasibility of using supertankers to carry Alaskan oil to the U.S. East Coast.

They believe Japanese exports could follow the same route into the important American market.

Thosesameo ficials also are interested in the development of oilfields on Alaska's north slope for the very good reason that Japan imports more oil than any other nation in the world. Japan is now heavily dependent on the Middle East for oil.

The opening of the Northwest Passage also intrigues Japanese shipbuilders, who build more and larger ships than any other nation in the world. They believe they could build the special ships needed to negotiate some of the most hazardous waters in the world.

"The benefits to Japan of opening the Northwest Passage are unfathomable," said an official of Japan's Ministry of Industry and Trade (MITI).

To reach the U.S. East Coast by ship, Japanese exports now must pass through the Panama Canal. The lower costs of using the Northwest Passage would make Japanese goods even more competitive with West European products than they are now in the huge American market.

Miti officials pointed out that the Northwest Passage could also eliminate the high cost of shipping Japanese goods overland from the U.S. West Coast to the American markets in the East.

The passage also would shorten the route of Japanese exports to Europe now that the Suez Canal is closed. A MITI official said Japanese automobiles have sold well in the United States but not in Europe because of the high cost of shipping them there.

Japanese steelmakers, however, have some reservations. They doubt that, using present shipping techniques, finished products could be carried through the rough and ice-laden waters of the Northwest Passage without damage.

Officials for both Yawata and Fuji, Japan's two largest steel manufacturers, said they would not use the Northwest Passage until it is proved their products could be shipped safely.

Yawata and Fuji buy coal from the United States and use it to make finished steel products for sale in America. Both the coal and the steel now go through the Panama Canal.

A spokesman for Ishikawajima-Harima heavy industries, the firm that has built the world's largest supertankers, said his firm does not expect an immediate opening of the Northwest Passage.

"But if someone wanted us to build a ship which would negotiate this route, we could build it," he said.

SWAMP SWEEP — Looking as if they were scudding over grass, save for a telltale ridge of spray, American paratroopers of the 82nd Division ride their flat-bottomed boat through a swampy area about 10 miles northwest of Saigon. The men are looking for enemy soldiers and arms caches. (AP Wirephoto)

Rock Music In Staid Peabody

By DAVID GOELLER
 Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The once staid, musically proper walls of the Peabody Conservatory of Music are about to be assaulted from within by rock music.

The attack will be led by William Russo, a 44-year-old non-conservatory musician who says he identifies more readily with the rock generation than his own.

Bearded and long-haired, Russo is at Peabody this year to provide students with a musical experience far broader than the traditional, classically oriented conservatory curriculum.

It was only during the last decade that a serious, centuries-old instrument—the classical guitar—was approved for conservatory study.

Now, the electrified wailings of the rock guitar will emanate from Peabody, whose director and president, Richard Franko Goldman, is responsible for the move.

"I view jazz and rock as legitimate areas for present and future conservatory studies," Goldman said.

"Both jazz and rock bring back to music the element of improvisation which has been practically lost since the 18th century," he explained. "This in itself makes them important and even necessary."

Goldman, who came to Peabody in 1968 from the Juilliard Conservatory in New York, said the infusion of rock and jazz into the standard doses of classical music is not an experiment.

"It is a perfectly legitimate part of a musical curriculum and goes hand in hand with the general changes in the approach to theory that are not taking place in the conservatory."

Goldman noted that composers such as Mozart and Beethoven wrote dances—part of the popular and folk music of their eras.

Russo is a Chicago native who majored in English in college and developed musically on the job with the Stan Kenton band.

He was solo trombonist and later chief arranger with Kenton in the early 1950s.

After leaving Kenton, Russo studied composition and conducting in Chicago, spent three years in Germany, ran his own band in New York and subsequently worked with the London Jazz Orchestra from 1962 to 1965.

But then, about two years ago, Bill Russo the jazzman began evolving into a rock patriarch whose endeavors are now channeled into what he calls "the free theater."

This is a multimedia form—drama, dance, opera, flashing lights and slide projections—spread over a foundation of rock music.

Russo arrived in Baltimore after 18 months of free theater work at Columbia College in Chicago.

The Peabody Conservatory administration has given him no instructions. "They're saying, just do it. In fact, I don't think they know what I'm going to do."

Having No Fat Is Also Disease

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—To adherents of the slimming diet cult, total lipodystrophy, which is the complete absence of fatty tissue in the body, may sound like a dream come true. Hardly. Such a condition is a disease and, fortunately, it is relatively rare.

Dr. Richard L. Wesenberg, Dr. John L. Gwinn and Dr. George R. Barnes, Jr., radiologists at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, studied four children with the disease and their x-ray findings showed a striking lack of fat, easily discernible on x-ray film; advanced bone age; overdevelopment of sinuses and mastoids in the skull; and sometimes a slightly larger heart and almost always larger kidneys.

FOR PRESIDENT RICHARD M. NIXON

What was your most memorable experience during the eight years you served as Vice President under the late Dwight D. Eisenhower?—Bernard A. Blubaugh, Alliance, Ohio

● There were a number. One, of course, was my meeting with Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in Moscow in 1959. As Vice President, I opened the first U.S. Exhibition ever held in the Soviet Union and held talks on behalf of our Government with the Soviet Premier.

FOR ROGER BROWN, Los Angeles Rams

About how many pounds of padding do you wear in a game?—Billy Johnson, Las Vegas, Nev.

● About 12 pounds. It used to weigh much more, but now there are excellent protective gear made of various compositions which are light, yet strong.

FOR GRACE DAVALL, assistant curator, Bronx Zoo

Who first used carrier pigeons to carry messages?—Conrad Fiorello, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● The carrier pigeon should not be confused with the homing pigeon. The former is a show breed. It does not "home" and is not used to carry messages. Homing pigeons were used by the early Greeks and Romans, often to report sports and games. The present breed was perfected in Belgium, early in the 19th century.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH

Is it true that you are a member of the Mormon Church (Latter Day Saints) and thus refrain from smoking and drinking?—Mrs. A. Chase, Ogden, Utah

● It is true that I do not drink or smoke, but this is not because of religious convictions. It's a matter of personal taste.

FOR WINTON M. BLOUNT, Postmaster General

We are constantly receiving mail requests for donations for many kinds of missions and charities. How can we be sure that the donations we send are being used legitimately?—A. E. Fisher, Morgantown, W. Va.

● Unless a complaint is lodged, the Post Office Department would have no way of knowing a soliciting charity is legitimate.

FOR WALTER J. HICKEL, Secretary of the Interior

● Recent surveys of the buffalo herds in the U.S. and Canada show a continental population of about 22,000.

FOR GOV. DANIEL EVANS, State of Washington

Just what will installation of the emergency "beeping" device do on crashed airplanes?—D. R., Lancaster, Pa.

● Washington State's new law requiring installation of "downed aircraft rescue transmitters" (DART) will add a new measure of public safety to commercial flying. This equipment will improve our air-search effectiveness and enable searchers to locate missing aircraft quickly, thereby saving lives.

FOR WALTER J. McNERNEY, president, Blue Cross Association

What is the biggest health-insurance claim ever paid?—S. F., Panama City, Fla.

● Probably the $85,500 bill recently paid by Blue Cross on behalf of Mrs. Samuel Taylor, 60, of Everett, Mass. She was hospitalized on April 25, 1968, with acute polynuritis, a rare nervous disorder that causes a weakening and paralysis of the muscles. After tests confirmed the diagnosis, she was placed in a special respiratory unit, which costs from $250 to $300 a day per patient. Mrs. Taylor remained in it for eight months.

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director, FBI

What percentage of the 10 Most Wanted men are caught?—Mrs. George Moe, Milwaukee, Wis.

● Since this list was begun on March 14, 1950, 300 fugitives have been listed. More than 90 percent of these have been apprehended.

FOR ELIZABETH POST, etiquette authority

How many times should a door bell be rung if you believe the occupants to be at home?—Lloyd Perion, Grand Junction, Colo.

● Three or four times. If they do not answer by then, they are either not answering deliberately or are asleep and cannot hear the bell.

Newspaperboys, Then and Now

In spite of our age of affluence and automation, the early-morning or after-school job of newspaperboy is still very popular, according to Cyrus Favor, general manager of the International Circulation Managers Assn. It's not the money, it's the manhood gained. Each boy is an independent contractor, buying the papers at wholesale, selling at retail, keeping about 30 percent of the profits. Hours range from 7½ to 15 a week; profits from $7.50 to $25. The years of service used to average five; now, with families on the move and school pressures, it's only one or two. A recent innovation is the use of counseling mothers. Their homes become distribution points for about 10 boys. They help with recruiting, distribution, complaints. What about newspaper-girls? There are a few, but most papers discourage them—too many job hazards.

Exit White Remember the conventional white, button-down-collar shirt? Although once 85 to 90 percent of all men's shirts used to be white, now more than 50 percent are colored or patterned. Today button-downs are not much in demand, according to the Menswear Retailers of America, nor the classic narrow tie worn with it. More popular is the spread and long-point collars, worn with ties four to five inches wide. What's replacing white? This fall the "in" colors are mulberry, green, gold, melon, and blue.

Jack the Knife "No kitchen tool is more time-consuming than a dull knife," says Jack Van Bibber, in his new book, "Fast Feasts, A Cookbook for Hurried Gourmets." He rejects most electric knife sharpeners as "sadly inadequate," and honing steel is great only for keeping an edge, but not sharpening. "My solution is my butcher; he has a professional knife sharpener come in to do his own knives—and mine, too, for a very small fee. Most butchers are friendly fellows and will do the same for you."

Feel-See Phone This fall the first telephones for deaf-blind persons are expected to be manufactured. Called Code Com, the set can be connected to a conventional phone. The vibrations of the finger pad allow the blind to feel prearranged messages; the deaf can see them in coded flashes of light. Code Com requires some cooperation between the owner and special callers. Photo shows the circular vibrating pad at left of girl's hand. Light flashes come from the recessed black rectangle in the center of the raised portion of the set above her fingers, which are on the sending key.

Discover the secrets of gift decorating!

Before you know it, creating a decorative and useful canister like this "just comes naturally!"

Folks may begin bidding for a beautiful one-of-a-kind wall plaque like this even before the paint is dry.

A few dabs of paint and a rusty, weather-beaten mailbox becomes this charming bread box.

A "no-talent" housewife brought these wooden ducks back to "life"—with gift decorating.

Gift decorating turned this old coffee pot into a $50.00 keepsake.

Once a rusty frying pan—gift decorating turned it into a collector's treasure.

You can create beautiful gifts like these even if you've never painted before.

(—and make up to $50 a week selling your gifts, if you choose.)

IMAGINE! Just a little paint... 3 simple brush strokes... and you can turn trash into treasures, junk-pile discards into glamorous gifts—even if you've never held a brush before. In your hands a battered old coffee pot now becomes a work of art... a rusted tea kettle changes into a charming gift planter... a forgotten camel-back trunk becomes a beautiful hand-painted hope chest.

It's easy—no special talent needed

Today the Decorative Arts Institute is helping thousands of men and women create beautiful decorator pieces at home. You, too, will be thrilled to discover you can create lovely treasures—even if you can't draw a straight line. Mrs. Ruth Miner of Lubbock, Texas writes: "I never had a brush in my hand before but after the first 2 lessons I have sold to our largest department store!"

What's the secret? The discovery that with 3 simple brush strokes (the same strokes used to apply lipstick), you can decorate for fun or profit, as you choose. Quickly and easily you'll see exquisite ROSES and FLOWERS, FRUIT... CUPIDS and BOWS... BIRDS and BUTTERFLIES... come alive under your brush as if by magic!

Earn while you learn at home

Even as a beginner you may find friends, decorators, even gift shops eagerly bidding for your unusual one-of-a-kind creations—sometimes offering $10, $15, even $20 for one. Soon after starting, Mrs. Eileen Baer of Hot Springs, Arkansas wrote: "I know my work isn't real great yet, but my things are being grabbed before they're dry!"

Go on antique treasure hunts!

Everywhere you look—attics, basements, barns, sheds, junk-shops, second-hand stores—you'll find "treasures-in-the-rough"—awaiting only a few strokes to turn them into stunning objects of art. Friends may beg you to create lovely hand-painted decorator pieces for their homes, too. "My friends and neighbors," says Mrs. Marilyn Belford of Tulsa, Oklahoma, "have kept me busy painting milk cans and recipe boxes, and I've done two trunks. What a happy whirl I'm in!" And within days from now you, too, can be in a happy whirl enjoying the fun, the excitement, and if you wish, the profits of decorating gifts at home.

The Causes and

psychological

I AM a marriage "doctor," and, as you might guess, I rarely talk professionally to couples who are sexually compatible—just to those who have never been able to adjust to this vital, intimate part of marriage.

The reason I see few, if any, sexually attuned couples is that they have no psychological problems serious enough to prevent them from approaching each other with love. The incompatible couples, on the other hand, have serious "hang-ups." It's my job first to find out what the psychological problem is (it very rarely is a physical one)—and then help the individual cure it.

I've found the problems can pretty well be broken down into five categories. They are things the sexually compatible couple take for granted, but to others they are incapacitating obstacles to marital love—at least, until recognized and attacked.

Here are the reasons I've found most likely to cause sexual incompatibility in a marriage.

Communication, in its truest sense, is not merely an exchange of words. It is the expression of intangibles, a discussion of hopes and fears and, among other verbal intimacies, the enjoyment as well as the frustration that prevails in a marriage relationship.

A young wife who came to me was frightened and unhappy about her marriage. She and her husband no longer were close.

I discovered that this couple had never made any effort to confide to each other their innermost thoughts and feelings. During their first year of marriage, it had been enough that they had each other and their new home. Then, slowly their lives consisted mostly of tv-watching. They watched it during dinner and throughout the evening. Thus, they shut out any opportunity or need to talk to one another.

When I suggested she and her husband seek to share their thoughts and feelings and discuss their marriage relationship, she said, startled: "We wouldn't know how to start. And we'd both be embarrassed to talk about sex."

I recommended they start by admitting all this and try to trace the reasons for it. Likely, I said, they would discover that childhood prejudices or perhaps the shock of some youthful experience was at fault. I assured her just sharing this knowledge could well prove a giant step toward future communications.

It took months for this couple, neither of them especially articulate, to achieve true communication. But she rates their efforts infinitely worth-while. No longer is there an invisible wall between them. And more than once her husband has impatiently switched off the tv because it interfered with what they had to say to each other.

"We're so relaxed these days," she told me, "that neither of us hesitates to ask for a special caress."

Resentment and hostility impede the warm drawing together that should be the essence of a marital embrace. A husband may resent a wife who seems more concerned with her own family than with him. A wife may resent her husband's refusal to become indignant any time his mother is critical of her. A husband may be irritated by what he considers his wife's lackadaisical housekeeping or extravagance.

A patient of mine, in her middle 40s, was resentful because her husband had bought a boat and spent his weekends fishing. "He paid so much for that boat," she said, bitterly, "there's nothing left for a mink stole for me."

She told me that over the 10 years her husband had been with his firm his income had increased sufficiently to buy a house in the country, maintain two cars, belong to a country club, and put two sons through college. Any job conducive to this kind of prosperity has to be attended by severe strain.

I told her: "It could be your husband needs—and knows he needs—the escape from pressure that fishing provides. His boat and his fishing could add years to his life. Men in his position are too often prone to heart attacks."

"My husband's not going to have any heart attack," she insisted. "He's a big healthy guy—as a matter of fact, all he thinks about after fishing all day is making love. And lately has been giving me funny looks. He helped many couples find new joy in life by discovering the "hang-ups" that were destroying their marriage

By REBECCA LISWOOD, M.D.

Founder and Executive Director of the Marriage Counseling Service of Greater New York

as told to Adele Whitely Fletcher knows something's wrong."

I told this wife that if she was punishing her husband by being deliberately unresponsive, she was indulging in a dangerous form of retaliation, and it was important she correct it at once.

I recommended that she tell her husband how she felt, assuring him that, if he had a need for the relaxation which fishing provided, she could only be grateful for his boat and the hours he spent on it.

Because of her resentment, she did not find this easy to do. But she did it—and was glad. Her husband admitted he had been reacting badly to office pressure, had several times lost his temper but that, thanks to his weekends on the water, he was beginning to feel human again. Then, taking her into his arms, he had said: "So that's what's been bothering you! I knew something was wrong."

Here, of course, a lack of communication was the root of all the trouble. Had this husband confided his problem to his wife, she would not have turned resentful and unresponsive to him.

Preoccupation with the children is, in my opinion, one of the most unfortunate problems of marriage. When women transfer their attention disproportionately from husbands to children, they risk estranging their husbands and depriving their children of the most valuable thing in family life—a happy relaxed home and loving parents.

A well-known dress manufacturer, who had made millions, came to me insisting that he no longer loved his wife and wanted a divorce so he could marry a model.

"Don't think I'm taken in by this girl's beauty," he told me. "She's beautiful all right. But most important, I guess, is that she makes me feel 10 feet tall!"

He could not understand why his wife opposed a divorce.

"I've made it clear she'd want for nothing," he said. "And she doesn't give one hoot about me. The kids are her life. She's so wrapped up in them she doesn't want to go anywhere, or do anything."

I reminded this man he also must have wanted children or they would not have had four. I pointed out that the children's well-being was his responsibility as well as his wife's and that it would ill serve them to grow up without a father.

"You and your wife," I reminded him, "once had excellent sexual response. It is possible, of course, that you could again."

He shook his head. "It just doesn't work any more. Who, I ask you, wants a woman who sloshes around with cold cream all over her face and her hair in curlers!"

Nevertheless, he carefully weighed what I said, including my proposal that he take his wife on a luxurious holiday, leaving the children at home.

When his wife came to see me, she was eager for a second chance. "My mother warned me I was making a mistake concentrating on the children," she admitted.

"Should you go on this holiday," I said, "I hope you will be well groomed and dressed as alluringly as good taste allows. Men, remember, are visually stimulated."

In turn, I reminded the husband that, just as men are visually stimulated, women respond to verbal endearments which make them feel desirable and loved.

This couple is now in Hawaii. Whether their marriage can be saved is still a question. But because of their mutual willingness to try to save it, I am optimistic.

Insecurity takes many forms, all detrimental to marital harmony, with physical insecurities especially so.

Men may worry unnecessarily about their masculinity or advancing age. Those who are sterile may fear impotence, although the two conditions are quite separate. And those who heed the tall tales of Don Juan friends may wonder if their lesser need for sex indicates a lack of virility. It is the quality of a couple's love-making not its frequency that is, above all, important.

Women with small bosoms may think they're undersexed. Following a hysterectomy or menopause, a woman may worry that she will be an unsatisfactory lover or find sex less enjoyable. Often, with the fear of pregnancy removed, the contrary is likely to be true.

Women who are frigid may need analysis. Many women, however, are incapable of completely enjoying sex only because they were brought up to think of it as something nice people don't talk about, and its activities as things nice people don't do. They are, as a result, only passive partners, never engaging in the participation that might well dispel any bugaboo of frigidity and add immeasurably to their pleasure and that of their husbands.

Another hindrance to sexual compatibility is the unrealistic descriptions of the marital embrace found in books and magazines. The human body is capable of holding considerable pleasure, but it just isn't up to the Elysian raptures which certain writers—hopeful of making the best-seller list—attribute to it. I've known this fanciful reporting to cause couples to regard each other with dissatisfaction and criticism.

Emotional immaturity might be expected to contribute to sexual harmony, lend itself to an attitude of all-for-love-and-the-world-well-lost. But it doesn't work that way. The immature are likely to want what they do not have. This sense of unrest engenders disharmony. The resulting quarrels of the immature are apt to be fraught with accusations and sneers, even down-grading insults.

Those reluctant or unable to adjust from courtship and honeymoon to the practical, matter-of-factness of married life may seek escape in the romance and excitement of another courtship.

Women enjoy the titillation of flirting, the excitement of clandestine dates, and the flattery of being wooed again. Men seek to prove they haven't lost their old magic, to relish the joy of conquest, and the flattery of such attention that they no longer receive at home.

Kinsey reported 75 percent of married men and 25 percent of married women have had extramarital affairs. Regrettably, I would raise those figures, among women especially. Perhaps the Pill has something to do with this.

Dozens, trapped in extramarital affairs, have told me: "It all began innocently enough. We liked to talk to each other." Or "We enjoyed dancing together."

A person whose imagination is drawn toward someone outside of his marriage is, understandably enough, less drawn to his marriage partner. He may even resent his partner. And often he will blame his partner for what has happened.

A wife, for example, will insist she never would have become involved had her husband not been immersed in his business or taken her for granted. A husband will blame his wife for a lack of interest in his business or antagonism toward his family or for interrupting him.

All are justifiable complaints. But it is most unlikely they would have led to any extramarital embroilment had not the husband or wife, emotionally immature, sought the excitement of a new courtship.

To the couple who feel sexually incompatible, I would say, "Seek the reason and correct the fault." My experience as a marriage counselor indicates that cure is quite possible once you know the psychological fault which deprives you of the joy of marriage. ♦

Girls! A Fabulous Figure The 6 Second Way!

It is almost like a miracle. You can actually lose flab around stomach, thighs, waist, hips, neck, face and not move out of your seat. Unbelievable? New scientific tests show that you get faster and better results from Isometrics, the new method of exercise. Another astounding fact about Isometrics is that you do each exercise only 6 seconds a day. No special equipment is required, or trips to gyms, playing fields, swimming pools or bowling alleys and you can concentrate on any part of the body that you are interested in controlling.

DESIGNED BY EXPERTS

The series of exercises in Isometrics — The Static Way to Physical Fitness were prepared under the supervision of Victor F. Obeck, Professor of Physical Education and Director, Division of Athletics, New York University and Isadore Rossman, M.D., Medical Director, Department of Home Care and Extended Services, Montefiore Hospital, New York.

HOW-TO-PHOTOGRAPHS

Every page is fully illustrated with photographs showing exactly how to perform the Isometrics and how to get the best and fastest results.

A MUST FOR DIETERS

You will still need Isometrics even if you have decided to reduce solely by dieting. Because when the fat is gone there will remain layers and layers of loose, flabby, unattractive skin that had been stretched out by the fat. Miracle Isometrics tightens and restores the firmness to the skin and eliminates the undesired flabbiness. Isometrics does it in only 6 seconds a day. Convince yourself. Mail the coupon and try Isometrics for 10 days. Unless you get the desired results, return the book and you will receive a full refund of the purchase price.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

Five-year-old Darrel had a close brush with death when the car door flew open as his family was driving along a freeway. But the boy held on tight to the open door and rode at least a quarter of a mile while his frantic parents slowed the car and pulled him safely inside.

When he knelt to say his prayers that night, his mother suggested that he thank God for saving his life that day.

"What for?" the boy asked. "I was the one that held on."

A long-time customer received a second notice from the local department store, threatening to attach her property and salary if her overdue bill were not paid up immediately.

Furious, she phoned to protest:

"I've always paid on time in the 20 years I've been a customer. I didn't even get a first bill for these purchases."

"Oh, we're waiting for a re-order on the first forms right now," explained a new clerk. "So I'm using the second notices. They turn out to be much more effective, too."

HUNTING FORECAST: Good Season for Ducks

By ERWIN A. BAUER Author of "The Duck Hunter's Bible"

THIS fall duck hunters will receive an unexpected bonus, both in better hunting and perhaps in a longer shooting season.

The reason is a timely comeback of our wild waterfowl, following several summers of drought in the major waterfowl nesting grounds.

But heavy snows last winter, followed by spring rains, filled the potholes, so nesting was successful. Thus there should be a very good crop of birds around this year.

But duck hunting is a specialized sport, and not all hunters are successful. First, it is more often hunting over water than on land. And wild ducks are more wary than most upland gamebirds. Some hunters credit the birds with the equivalent of 8-power vision, so it is necessary to know something about the targets.

Beginning in the fall, wild ducks and geese begin their annual migrations from northern nesting grounds to southern wintering spots. Some species begin moving in September; others do not reach their destinations until early winter. Most waterfowl pause en route. How long they stay in suitable places depends on the food they find, the weather (freezing drives them away), and also the hunting pressure. Today these migrations are fairly predictable, both as to time and stopovers.

Good duck areas can be located by personal observation, by checking with other waterfowlers, or with local conservation officers. Then, before opening day or before the actual hunting, build a blind which blends as much as possible into its natural surroundings. There are many types of blinds, some roomy enough for two. Others are simply pits dug at the water's edge. Camouflaged boats also are used.

Ducks are gregarious creatures and attracted by other ducks, explaining why hunters use artificial calls and decoys. Calling is an art and can be developed by listening to barnyard or zoo ducks

(or to duck records), then trying to imitate them. Decoys should be as natural-looking as possible. And it's important that they be dark, rough in texture (avoid bright shiny ones), and the more the better. Of course, they should be well anchored.

A boot tough enough to work hard all week, can sure take a little running around on the weekends.

Wolverine Durables are tough. They've got to be because they work hard every day. They've got to shrug off oil, grease and hard knocks. They've got to take cold and heat without cracking up. Or the sole parting company from the uppers. And they can't slip on any job either. But most of all, they've got to be comfortable. Or they just wouldn't be Durables.

It was only a matter of time before outdoor guys found out they're great for hunting or camping too. Especially now we've got so many different styles, including a new insulated boot. Are Durables more of a work-ing boot that's sporty? Or a sport boot that works? You decide.

The best periods to be in the blind are before daybreak or during the last hour of daylight, when ducks are moving from resting to feeding.

Serious duck hunters use such retrieving dogs as Labradors, Chesapeake, or goldens. This is a conservation measure (the dogs retrieve downed birds which might otherwise be lost).

Though the waterfowl picture is brighter this year, the duck population is still lower than a generation ago. So every duck hunter also must make a special effort to be a conservationist.

Before going afield you must buy (at any post office) a Migratory Waterfowl Stamp for $3. Next, observe all shooting regulations. Baiting with grain and shooting over live decoys are illegal. Know the various kinds of waterfowl since the shooting of less-abundant species is illegal. And never shoot at ducks that are beyond the normal 35-yard range of a shotgun. This increases the chance of mistaken identity.

The future of duck hunting depends on each hunter's behavior this fall. Hopefully, it will be a very good year. ♦

What Do You Know About Your Aches and Pains?

1. We're all subject to aches and pains.
2. Most pains are induced by emotional stress.
3. You can feel nonexistent pain.
4. Men can tolerate pain better than women.
5. People who are immune to pain are lucky.
6. If you have a toothache and are anxious and worried about it, the pain will feel worse.
7. You can lessen any pain by tensing your muscles.
8. The severity of an ache or pain depends on what time of the day it occurs.

SCIENCE HAS MADE some fascinating discoveries about aches and pains, and some of these findings reveal ways to lessen them. With this quiz, you can check your knowledge against the results of the studies.

1. False. Studies conducted at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and other research centers have demonstrated that some people never feel an ache or a pain and lead a completely painless existence.

2. True. Studies conducted at the Monroe (Wis.) Clinic, over several years have shown this to be so, particularly with headaches, back-of-the-neck pain, and assorted pains of the stomach and digestive areas. Such pains are often so psychosomatic that they induce you to say, "He gives me a pain," or "I can't stomach much more of that," or "He gives me a headache." The pain results from your emotional reaction to the particular person.

3. True. Not only is it quite possible to feel pain for which there is no physical cause, but many persons have actually felt chronic pain in a finger, arm, or any other body part long after amputation. Such pains may originate in the brain, for an overwrought mind can imagine pain impulses that will seem real. Often, however, they disappear completely when a physician prescribes "medication" in the form of a harmless sugar pill, putting the patient's mind at ease, so that it ceases sending pain messages to a given place in the body.

4. True. In Veterans Administration studies, psychologists tested the pain reactions of 100 men and women of various ages and found that the men had a greater ability to tolerate pain than the women. A university study of both sexes showed similar findings. Laboratory tests indicate that a woman's pain threshold differs from a man's in that she is more sensitive to pain, feels it more, and is less tolerant of it.

5. False. Those people who are incapable of feeling pain are far from lucky. Without pain to sound a warning signal, a person runs the risk of extreme dangers and hazards unless he takes special precautions. For example, he may put his hand on a hot stove and suffer a serious burn before he realizes what is happening. And since he doesn't feel a toothache, he may never see his dentist until it's too late to save a tooth. Medical studies cite numerous instances of this kind, making it evident that pain is as much of a blessing as a curse.

6. True. In a recent study using a dolorimeter to measure the intensity of pain, psychologists tested college students' reactions under various degrees of anxiety ranging from mild to extreme. They found that when anxiety (measured by pulse and blood pressure) increased, sensitivity to pain also skyrocketed.

7. False. Physical or emotional tension causes the brain to over-evaluate pain signals it receives from various parts of the body, causing a given pain to hurt much more than the injury justifies. Thus anticipation of a dental appointment, for example, can build up so much tension that you begin to wince with pain before being touched.

8. True. University studies show that sensitivity to pain does vary markedly with the time of day, degree of contentment, depression, or fatigue, and many other similar factors. Research at Johns Hopkins University showed, for example, that a mild distraction of attention can alter a person's pain-threshold as much as 45 percent.

"I May Never Be Happy"

"I JUST may never be really happy because when I am alone, I want to be with people. And when I am with them, I want to be off by myself. I am very contradictory."

It was Peggy Lipton of tv's "The Mod Squad" who was making such an admission to me through a thin veil of European cigar smoke, while she took hummingbird sips of dry sherry. She was wearing a loose-knit see-through blouse. As though trying to give me a sample of her mercurial personality, she continued with, "Smoking is a disgusting habit. But I think these little cigars are sexy if they're smoked right . . ."

Peggy continued to confuse me by admitting that she craves love, having had a dose of it when she was only 14. At the same time, though, she demands assertion of her individuality and independence. "I had a perfect relationship just once. Words were unnecessary. It lasted just three weeks. That's very good for me!" Peggy paused, then added, "I get so involved with a man that I think only of him and entirely forget myself, which begins to destroy me. So before I get too involved, I pull away."

Her current romance with Lou Adler, though, Peggy insisted, is just the opposite. But it disturbs her so much that she admitted, "I get so much into his feelings that it annoys him and scares him off."

Peggy says that her need for love and affection goes back to her childhood when her family lived in a middle-class Long Island, N.Y., suburban area. To begin with, she was the middle child and felt completely overlooked. "I was socially unacceptable. My teeth stuck out, I stuttered, had a horrible complexion, and couldn't afford the local beach club, even if I'd been asked!"

All of this gave the impression that she was snobbish. Even today, Peggy's reticence to reveal her inner self suggests that she's cool and distant. "I don't mean it to be so," she sighed.

Leaving her ugly adolescence behind, Peggy "turned pretty." But her many hours of introspection and loneliness developed into independence. "I wasn't raised to be independent," she said, "but I found I had to be for my own needs." So at 16, she became a model and hated it. "I was so shy and introverted. I just knew what the other girls were thinking about me! It really bugged me!" Peggy recalled vividly. But her earnings paid for acting lessons, and when she and her family moved to Los Angeles, Peggy got a break.

It was by chance that she met Dick Clayton, who, unknown to Peggy, had been waiting until she turned 18 so he could offer her a contract. Through him came the role of Julie Barnes in "The Mod Squad."

About fulfilling three more years of her present tv contract, she said, "Five years in anything is too much! I have so many other things I want to do, like making a movie."

Peggy's contradictory nature never seems to leave her alone. She longs to travel and sometimes does but turns right around and returns home because she gets so restless. These same mixed emotions tire her easily and often trigger her temper.

Marriage? "It terrifies me," she admitted. "I want it. It sounds so right. But I'm still too immature for it. And I hope I can get show business out of my system so I'll be ready some day."

Sighing deeply, Peggy said, "I'm so contradictory. It's agonizing."

What will bring eventual happiness to Peggy? "A big home, lots of money, and time to be both wife and mother." She smiled, then added, "That's what I say now . . ."

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

Dog Nearly Itches to Death

"I thought we'd have to put Daisy to sleep, she suffered so from large itching sores. I had about given up trying things when I found Sulfodene. The itching stopped, sores soon healed, hair grew back. Bless you for Sulfodene," says Mrs. John Burmester, New Jersey.

SULFODENE liquid medication relieves frenzied itching almost instantly. Quickly promotes healing of fungus itch-sores (often called mange, eczema, hot spots). Used by kennels and veterinarians. For dogs and cats. Get SULFODENE today. At drug stores and pet departments.

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

Focus on Cheese

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ October is Cheese Month. It's a good time to begin getting acquainted with some of those cheeses less familiar to you. Continue to enjoy your favorites, too, and do keep on hand a variety of conveniently packaged sliced cheeses, as well as jars of intriguing cheese spreads. Here, we have used popular cheeses and one cheese food in these recipes.

Egg Noodle Bows with Three Cheeses

Fine dry bread crumbs
4 qts. boiling water
1½ tablespoons salt
12 oz. egg noodle bows (about 6 cups) or 12 oz. medium egg noodles
3 cups Thin White Sauce (see recipe)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese (4 oz.)
1 cup diced Swiss cheese (4 oz.)
1 cup diced Mozzarella cheese (5 oz.)

1. Coat a buttered 3-qt. baking dish with bread crumbs. Set aside.
2. Add salt to boiling water; gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender.
3. Meanwhile, prepare a thin white sauce. Set aside.
4. Drain noodles in a colander; turn into a large mixing bowl. Toss with butter or margarine, then Parmesan cheese. Add Swiss and Mozzarella; toss lightly.
5. Turn half the noodle mixture into the prepared dish; top with half the white sauce. Repeat layers. If desired, sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese or bread crumbs over top.
6. Bake in 350°F. oven 25 min.

Thin White Sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan; blend in 3 tablespoons flour. Heat until mixture bubbles. Remove and, adding gradually, stir in 3 cups milk. Cook rapidly, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens, 2 to 3 min. Mix in a blend of 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg.

3 cups sauce

Cheddar Puffs

¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1¼ cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon cayenne

1. Blend butter or margarine and cheese until smooth.

Rich egg noodles are enveloped in melting Swiss, Mozzarella, and Parmesan cheeses as this mixture heats and flavors mingle.

2. Mix in a blend of the dry ingredients.
3. Shape dough into rolls about 1¼-in. in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill if necessary.
4. Cut into ¼-in. slices. Place about 1 in. apart on lightly greased cookie sheets.
5. Bake at 400°F. about 8 min. Serve as appetizer snacks. About 4 doz. cookies

Seasoned Blue Cheese Spread for Steak

½ cup Blue cheese, crumbled
2 tablespoons cream
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

1. Blend all ingredients until smooth.
2. Spread generously onto steak immediately after broiling (allow about 2 tablespoons per serving). 4 to 6 servings

Hot Cheese 'n' Beef Dip

1½ lbs. beef round steak, ground
2 lbs. pasteurized process American cheese food
2 onions, grated
6 or 7 hot peppers, minced
2 large tomatoes, peeled and finely chopped

1. Cook beef and drain on paper towels.
2. Cut cheese into chunks and put in a double boiler top; set over simmering water, stirring occasionally, until melted.
3. Mix in onion, hot peppers, and tomatoes; then the beef.
4. Serve hot as a dip, or spoon over toasted buttered buns for supper snacks. About 5½ cups dip

Doctor Developes Home Treatment that

RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES

In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple medicated home-treatment that rinses away blackheads and whiteheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three teen-age boys. The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough, muddy complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers, both boys and girls, are now saying "this is one product that really works", for good, clear, clean, healthy skins . . . and why mothers of teen-agers have heartily endorsed its use. The Masque Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for healthy skins, but also for the confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, whiteheads, acne-pimples and rough, unsightly complexions give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Start Now to Improve Your Complexion

Now is the time for action. Don't take a back seat or be a wall-flower because of bad skin. If you want to get your full share of fun and parties . . . clear up your complexion and let Mint Julep Masque "Lead the Way"! You owe it to yourself to try a single fifteen minute home treatment to convince yourself that this new Queen Helene masque-cream can work wonders for you.

Attention! MOTHERS of Teen-Agers

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque is a MUST for you, too! It will help tighten sagging skin on face and throat, relax tired face muscles and stimulate a fresher, cleaner, more youthful complexion. Try a Medicated Mint Julep Masque Treatment YOURSELF. You'll be delighted with the skin-tightening experience and more alive feeling that comes with every home-treatment.

Queen Helene Mint Masque is only $3.00 for the six ounce jar, enough for over 3 months of daily home treatments. Buy it today! Start using it immediately! Prove to yourself at our risk, for one full month. If, at any time during the month, you are not completely satisfied, simply return the unused portion and you will get back every penny of your purchase price.

Stuffed Toys To Sew!

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

NEXT to the security blanket, one of a child's most prized possessions is a cuddly toy. It is the sentry on night watch, delightful companion during waking hours, adorable on display. And the one you create by hand gives that extra ingredient of love.

These, from three patterns, are simple to make: a fashion-plate doll, complete with instructions for a whole wardrobe of clothes; sleepy twins made from a pair of men's socks; and a quartet of captivating baby animals.

A handful of fabric, a bit of wool yarn from your remnant basket will create these beauties—and capture a youngster's heart. You stuff them with any washable synthetic filler, such as foam rubber or old nylons.

THOSE HORRID

FADE THEM OUT

*Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Fade them away with ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses of pigment on the skin, helps make hands look white and young again. Equally effective on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts in the skin—not on it. Fragrant, greaseless base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. If you have these age-revealing brown spots, blotches, or if you want clearer, lighter skin, use ESOTERICA. At your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00.

YEA, SWEENEY!

WHEE! SWEENEY STRETCHED HIM OUT COLD!

"TIGER" JOHNSON, HAW! HAW! "KITTEN" JOHNSON IS MORE LIKE IT!

YOU SURE SURPRISED ME, SWEENEY!

YEAH, THAT WAS SOME PUNCH!

HOW'D YA DO IT, SWEENEY?

TUT, TUT... NOTHING TO IT, BOYS.

GUESS I HAVEN'T LOST THE OLD PUNCH!

GUESS WHAT, BABY SISTER! I WON $25 AT THE FAIR BY KNOCKING OUT TIGER JOHNSON, THEIR BOXING CHAMPION!

WONDERFUL, BROTHER! TELL ME ALL ABOUT IT!

AIN'T MUCH TO TELL, MA'AM.. HE KNOCKED ME COLD WITH THE FIRST PUNCH. GUESS I'M NOT MUCH OF A FIGHTER.

WHAT TH... IT'S TIGER JOHNSON! HOW DID YOU GET HERE?

I WAS HIDING IN THE BACK OF YOUR TRUCK. AFTER YOU KNOCKED ME OUT I GOT FIRED. I HAD NO MONEY AND NO PLACE TO GO, AND I THOUGHT MAYBE YOU'D GIVE ME A JOB.

A JOB? WELL, ER... I DON'T HAVE A JOB, BUT IF YOU NEED A FEW DOLLARS...

WHY, SHAME ON YOU, BROTHER. WHY DON'T YOU HIRE HIM? WE COULD USE SOME HELP AROUND HERE.

WELL, MAYBE I COULD USE YOU FOR A DAY OR TWO, TIGER... AND YOU CAN SLEEP IN THE BARN.

GEE, THANKS!

HE'LL DO NO SUCH THING! I'LL FIX UP THE SPARE ROOM FOR HIM.

AND I EXPECT YOU'RE HUNGRY, TIGER. YOU GO AND WASH UP AND I'LL FIX YOU SOMETHING TO EAT.

GEE, THANKS... THAT SOUNDS GREAT!

NOW, LOOK, BABY SISTER, YOU DON'T HAVE TO KOWTOW TO THAT BUM!

I'M JUST DOING WHAT'S RIGHT, BROTHER. AFTER ALL, IT'S YOUR FAULT HE GOT FIRED!

COME BACK! EVERYTHING IS OKAY! LOOK! I HAVE THE TAPE! DON'T LEAVE ME!

CARL IS UNAWARE THAT, IN HIS STRUGGLE WITH JIMMIE, THE FALLEN KOUMBOLOIA BEADS HAVE LOOPED THEMSELVES AROUND HIS ANKLE.

WITH HIS BROTHER UNCONSCIOUS, TERRY AND NIA OUT OF SIGHT IN THE DARK WATER, CARL HEARS THE TRAWLER'S LAUNCH DEPARTING.

AND NEARBY, IN THE FJORD...

WHU... JIMMIE? SHHH! NO NOISE, NIA. I THINK THE SERGEANT'S JUST OUT COLD, BUT CARL WILL SHOOT AT ANY MOVEMENT!

WHILE, DRAWN BY THE PISTOL SHOTS, INSPECTOR VEGEN'S POLICE DETAIL MOVES IN.

DROP YOUR GUN! YOU ARE UNDER ARREST!

NO! THE BOAT! MY FRIENDS! GOT TO...

HE WENT IN HERE... NO SIGN OF HIM!

THIS ONE IS IN NEED OF MEDICAL HELP. WHERE'S OUR DOCTOR?

OVER THERE! SOMETHING MOVED IN THE LIGHT! DON'T SHOOT! IT'S ME, COLONEL LEE. I HAVE THE GIRL. WE'RE OKAY.

TO AVOID THE POLICE LIGHTS, CARL DIVES DEEP.

AND ON THE BOTTOM, A SUNKEN TREE STUMP SNAGS THE TRAILING KOUMBOLOIA BEADS!

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

Our Story: "LOOK, THE UNICORN!" CRIF, GALAN, "THE MAGICAL BEAST THAT CAN ONLY BE CAUGHT BY A MAIDEN PURE OF HEART. GO GET IT!" BUT THE MAIDEN PURE HAS OTHER IDEAS. "IF I CHASE AFTER IT, IT MIGHT RUN AWAY. LET IT COME TO ME."

AFTER ALL, THE PEASANT GIRL HAD ONLY COME ON THIS HEROIC VENTURE BECAUSE OF THE AMPLE LUNCH IN GALAN'S BAG AND SHE WAS NOT GOING TO LOSE IT. OUR HERO IS SURPRISED AT THE MAID'S KNOWLEDGE OF UNICORNS.

WHEN THE SNOWY WHITE PET OF ANCIENT GODS COMES TO TAKE THE PROFFERED FOOD GALAN LEAPS UPON IT AND THE MAIDEN FINALLY SLIPS THE BRIDLE OVER ITS HEAD.

THE UNICORN, USED TO ROAMING FREE ON THE VILLAGE DUMP, OBJECTS TO ALL THIS PUSHING AND HAULING. GALAN IS AMAZED. ACCORDING TO HIS MOTHER'S STORIES, THE UNICORN SHOULD FOLLOW GENTLY AFTER THE MAIDEN PURE OF HEART!

ALETA TOO IS AMAZED WHEN HER YOUNGEST SON ENTERS AND, WITH A HEROIC GESTURE, PRESENTS HER WITH A UNICORN FOR HER VERY OWN. THE FRAGRANCE OF THE GIFT CASTS A DOUBT ON ITS AUTHENTICITY.

BUT ALL ENDS WELL. THE MAIDEN FAIR IS SENT TO THE KITCHEN WHILE HER FATHER IS BEING SUMMONED.

HAPPILY SHE RETURNS TO THE VILLAGE, HER STOMACH-ACHE A SMALL PRICE TO PAY FOR ALL THAT GLORIOUS FOOD. THE FABULOUS UNICORN ONCE MORE BECOMES A GOAT AND GOES BACK TO THE DUMP.

WHILE ALETA ASSURES HER DISAPPOINTED SON: "ANYONE MIGHT MAKE THE SAME MISTAKE. I THOUGHT IT WAS A UNICORN, TOO, WHEN FIRST I SAW IT."

NEXT WEEK - Home Again

The Orphan Annie

"MAN FORETELLS AFAR THE COURSE OF THE STARS; THE VERY HOUR HE KNOWS WHEN THEY SHALL DARKEN OR GROW BRIGHT; YET BOTH THE ECLIPSE OF SORROW AND OF DEATH COME UNFOREWARNED." -WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

WELL, IT LOOKS LIKE WE GOT GENERAL RUNAMOKA ON THE RUN, YOUR HIGHNESS! BUT I ADMIT... I'M AWFULLY WORRIED ABOUT ANNIE AND PRINCE MACADAMIA!

I, TOO! MY SON WAS NOT ADEPT AT MANEUVERING HIS BALLOON! I HAVE ALERTED MY ENTIRE NATION TO BE ON THE LOOKOUT FOR HIS CRAFT!

WE SHALL NOT BE THE ONLY ONES SEARCHING, SAHIB!

TRUE! GENERAL RUNAMOKA'LL HAVE HER SKY HOOKS OUT FOR THE KIDS!

EMPHASIZE TO KING BOOLA BOOLA, THAT HIS SON'S LIFE IS THE STAKE WE PLAY FOR... AND THE SAME IS TRUE OF WARBUCKS' DAUGHTER, ANNIE!

MY REPUTATION WILL INSURE THAT THEY TAKE THIS WARNING SERIOUSLY!

INFORM THESE GENTLEMEN THAT WE HAVE PLACED A SYMBOLIC NOOSE AROUND THE NECKS OF OUR 'GUESTS'! SHOULD THE KING FALTER... WE TIGHTEN THEM!!

YOU'RE SUPPOSED T'BE A PRINCE, MAC... AND THAT MEANS YOU GOTTA HAVE MORE GUTS THAN US COMMON PEOPLE! SO... KNOCK OFF THE WHIMPERIN'!

I... I'M NOT WHIMPERING! I... I'M JUST THINKING OUT LOUD!

N-NO... DIDN'T YOU??

GIVE ME A LIFT UP, MAC! SOUNDS T'ME LIKE THE VOICE CAME FROM OUTSIDE!

YOU NEED NOT SEEK ME! I WILL FIND YOU!

T-THERE IT COMES AGAIN... AN' THIS TIME... IT'S FROM... FROM INSIDE HERE!!

I SHALL BE WHERE YOU WISH ME TO BE... AND I SHALL BE... WHAT YOU WOULD HAVE ME BE!
