Woodridge Won't Testify

The General Lied, Declares Official

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago Police Supt. James Conlisk says former Army Provost Marshal Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner lied when he testified city authorities knowingly gave him 397 confiscated guns for his personal use.

Turner is a central figure in a Senate subcommittee investigation of a probe into charges a ring of enlisted men, including former Army Sgt. Maj. William O. Woodridge, was engaged in a large-scale graft ring.

In his testimony Tuesday, Turner was quizzed only on charges he obtained the confiscated guns under pretense they were for Army use and then sold some of them for his own profit.

He said, however, Conlisk knew he wanted the guns for his own collection, although he signed statements at the time affirming the weapons were for the Army.

Conlisk said in Chicago Tuesday Turner's testimony was "untrue." The superintendent also supported the testimony given by police Lt. Paul T. Duellman, who told the subcommittee Tuesday he showed Turner the guns, but never heard him say they were for his own use.

Under this week the main thrust of the subcommittee probe had been into allegations Woodridge and a band of career sergeants had looted Army recreation clubs, manipulated currency, smuggled liquor and bribed officers.

Woodridge, who is scheduled to testify Friday, told a reporter he will invoke the 5th Amendment and refuse to answer questions.

His attorney said he advised Woodridge to refuse to testify because he did not believe he would be given a fair hearing by senators.

Conlisk said in Chicago he believed Turner—who came to the city last year to represent the Army chief of staff during riotous—wanted the guns for official purposes.

Turner was questioned closely by senators looking for details of his gun deals.

But the general, who is a licensed gun dealer, said he has lost his only record book and does not have the information to answer questions.

Turner, who is now retired, said that on advice of his lawyers he has in the last few days filed amended income tax returns for the last five years. He said the amended returns show $6,800 in gun sales he had not declared previously.

"Either you are incredibly naive," said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., "or you have evaded the payment of income taxes."

He noted Turner had not moved to amend his returns until after the subcommittee subpoenaed his tax and financial records.

Turner said he got 96 guns from the Kansas City police department and 195 weapons from Ft. Bliss, Tex.

When asked how he could estimate the amounts due on his income tax without access to the records he said he lost, Turner replied: "Sir, I went overboard rather than underboard" in making those estimates.

A few minutes later, asked about other financial aspects of his gun dealings, he said "you're asking me questions I couldn't possibly answer" without the missing records.

Senate investigators have said about 500 weapons from the three shipments are unaccounted for.

Ask Bids On 3 Pitt Road Projects

The North Carolina State Highway Commission is calling for bids on three road projects in Pitt County, totaling 4.8 miles of paving.

C. W. Snell, district engineer for the Highway Commission, said the longest project in Pitt includes asphalt surfacing of secondary road 1709 from 1711 northward to 1708. That 2.2 miles of road is southwest of Bells Fork.

Another of the projects, he said, is surfacing road 1130 near Winterville from its intersection with N.C. 11 to rural road 1700 and includes 1.2 miles of paving.

The third project includes surfacing 1.4 miles of road 1143 from U.S. 264 bypass at Farmville to U.S. 264 bypass.

Snell explained that this project is a loop road near the Collins and Aikman plant.

The three Pitt projects are among projects totaling 35.9 miles of work in 17 counties.

Snell noted that the bids will be opened in about three weeks.

Spy Ring Leader Turned Informer

SEOUL (KAP) — A North Korean spy ring operating on South Korea's west coast was smashed after its leader turned informer, national police said today. Two other North Korean agents and seven South Korean collaborators were reported arrested.

Police said Chin Nak-hyon, 50, a top espionage agent, found that what he'd been taught about the South was false and surrendered on Sept. 21 near Chonju; 110 miles south of Seoul. He led police to the others, including North Korean agents Park Jong-yop and Choi Man-chun.

Honored By France

PARIS (AP) — America's Apollo 11 astronauts, tracing the steps of the welcome Parisians gave Charles A. Lindbergh 42 years ago, heard the cheers of thousands of Frenchmen today and received the nation's highest honor — the Legion of Honor.

Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas pinned the red ribbon symbolic of membership in the order founded by Napoleon on the lapels of Neil A. Armstrong, Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Col. Michael Collins. Then he embraced each man and gave the traditional French kiss on each cheek.

Chaban-Delmas had broken away from the weekly French Cabinet meeting to greet the astronauts and their wives at the Hotel Matignon, the premier's office.

"Only 10 days ago I sat with Lindbergh at dinner and he remembered for me that wonderful day," Armstrong said. "I can appreciate now the reason he remembered your warm welcome."

Wallace Retires; New Principal For Chicod School Is Announced

By BLANCHE HARDEE Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday accepted the retirement of Kelley Wallace as principal of Chicod School and named Charles Johnson, vocational agricultural teacher there, as his successor.

Wallace gave health reasons for his retirement which will become effective Oct. 27. He had planned according to Superintendent Arthur S. Alford, to retire Dec. 31. He had been principal at Chicod for 10 years.

A Martin County native, Johnson received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from North Carolina State University at Raleigh. He has taught agriculture at Chicod High School for the past nine years.

He is married to the former Joyce Davenport of Robersonville and they have two children. They reside in Chicod.

The board also appointed members of the local advisory committees. The committees serve as advisory groups, working with school officials on the local level and with the board of education in helping solve various problems.

Heiress Divorces Sam Sheppard

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard's German-born second wife, who says she spent a fortune helping to clear him of a murder conviction, was granted a divorce Tuesday. She charged gross neglect.

Mrs. Sheppard, the former Ariane Tebejohanns, and the osteopath were married in July 1964, two days after a federal court had freed him from the Ohio Penitentiary. He had served nearly 10 years of a life sentence on a conviction of bludgeoning his first wife to death.

The trainable program classes are being conducted at Grifton and Belvoir with a total of 48 students attending classes.

The special program is being financed by a state grant of approximately $28,800 and about $2,300 in county funds and almost $2,000 from Title I, Elementary Secondary Education Act.

Transfer Of 80 Patrol Boats To S. Viets Slated

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Navy will transfer 80 river patrol boats to the Vietnamese Navy Friday in the largest single turnover of naval materiel in the war, South Vietnamese military headquarters announced today.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said the turnover is part of the U.S. program to "Vietnamize" the war so that more American forces can be withdrawn.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the 80 boats would be divided equally among four river patrol groups which will form a task force to be commissioned at ceremonies Friday.

The turnover will bring to 229 the total number of U.S. Navy craft transferred to the Vietnamese since June, 1968, or about 40 per cent of the 550 American boats patrolling South Vietnam's inland waterways.

The other 321 are to be turned over during the next nine months.

The U.S. Command says 33,800 American Navy men now are in Vietnam. President Nixon has announced a 5,000-man cut for the Navy as part of the 35,000-man withdrawal scheduled to be completed by Dec. 18. Meanwhile, Premier Tran Thien Kiem predicted today that there will be no "breakthrough" in the war until a new supreme leader emerges in Hanoi.

Asked about Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott's statement Monday that there might be a breakthrough in the war in the next 60 to 90 days, Kiem replied: "Now there is a collective leadership in North Vietnam, and there must be some time before anyone can make a decision."

Western observers do not expect the power struggle anticipated in the wake of President Ho Chi Minh's death to crystallize for some months. They believe the contest will be between Le Duan, the pro-Moscow first secretary of the North Vietnamese Communist party, and Truong Chinh, another politburo member who is pro-Peking.

Khiem, speaking to newsmen during a hospital dedication in Saigon, said the government is expecting another sharp increase in enemy attacks.

Greenville Leaf Mart To Close On October 16

The Greenville Tobacco Market will end its 1969 selling season after the final sale on Thursday, Oct. 16.

"Greenville has had a wonderful year this year and has drawn tobacco from greater distances than ever before," W. L. Whedbee, supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, said today. "This has offset the terrific hail and storm damages which occurred in this area during the growing season."

Whedbee said prices have been very good for the entire season and everyone has been pleased, both with the volume sold and the prices paid to the farmers.

"It has been a successful year for the Greenville Tobacco Market which shows that you can turn stumbling blocks into stepping stones if you will just work hard enough," Whedbee noted.

So far this season, including yesterday's sale, the Greenville market has sold 42,286,911 pounds of leaf for $30,689,243 for an average of $72.52 per hundred pounds.

The Greenville market averaged $69.36 per hundred pounds yesterday after selling 425,459 pounds of tobacco for $295,083.

The Wilson market sold 1,557,534 pounds of tobacco yesterday for $1,150,914 for an average of $73.89.

The Rocky Mount market was second in the top four markets in the Eastern Belt with an average of $70.77. That market sold 1,185,595 pounds of leaf for $839,036.

The Kinston market yesterday sold 596,253 pounds of tobacco for $406,579 for an average of $67.99.

The Farmville market yesterday averaged $70.73 per hundred pounds by selling 607,878 pounds of tobacco for $430,038.

The Farmville market has sold 17,824,228 pounds of tobacco so far this season for $12,907,113, giving a season average of $72.41.

It was also announced today that the Wallace and Washington tobacco markets will close Oct. 14.

Sales figures on the various markets in the Eastern Belt as compiled by the Federal-State Market News Service includes:

Greenville Eligible For More Grant Funds

The acceptance of the overall Economic Development Commission program by the Department of Commerce, Economic Development Administration including the designation of Greenville as a Growth Center will qualify the city and its environs areas as an eligible candidate for EDA grants and in some cases 50-50 funding assistance.

Charles Horne, Greenville utilities director, said that the Growth Center designation would make the city and outlying areas eligible for grants in cases involving the creation of new jobs, and economic growth.

The Utilities Commission is applying for a grant assistance under the new designation, Horne said. An application for $1,341,433 in EDA aid will be made immediately, he added.

This total grant will include funding for the water treatment plant, extension of water transmission mains, expansion of sewage treatment plant and outfalls and extension of a natural gas main across the Tar River.

The commission share of the proposed projects will be $1,414,033, amounting to a total of $2,755,466 for entire development project.

The main purpose of the water transmission main extension will be to reach and serve Greenville Industries; to include the new Hopkins Farm Industrial Site; reinforcing mains along Memorial Drive across the Tar River; reinforcing the main along Hooker Road; and several extensions on some of the major roads leading out of Greenville to provide for future development.

The funding will also include the extension of sewer outfall lines to serve industrial sites and residential areas annexed in to the city of Greenville.

Horne said that in the case of a relocated industry such as Burroughs Wellcome, EDA Grants would not be applicable. The water, sewage and gas improvements and extensions will not be directly tied in with the new industry but will reach it through tie-ins with the mains extended to the new Hopkins Farm Site.

In areas where the industry is not relocated and will create new employment for the community, the funds or grants will be directly applied for by the commission to EDA, Horne noted. The official Growth Center designation is necessary before grants may be considered. Assistance in some cases may be on a 50-50 basis.

The newly approved program submitted by the Mid-East Commission provides "a development strategy and establishes goals for total development in the six county area" of Pitt, Martin, Washington, Hyde, Bertie and Beaufort.

According to commission chairman Carl Venters, the designation of the Growth Center will include, in addition to Greenville, the cities of Washington and Williamston. Environs areas around these growth centers will be directly affected by the grants as well as the counties in which the center is located, he added.

The grants, when approved, will continue to be available for application in the future, Horne said. Where economic growth is concerned and the creation of new jobs is entailed, the city is in a greater bargaining position to ask for assistance. The Growth Center designation will provide official eligibility for application.

The Sari Story Reveals New Fashionable Twists

By STEPHANIE R. MARKHAM
NEW DELHI (AP) — The world of fashion offers the Western female innumerable choice—choice of hemlines, dresses or trousers, nude-look or Victoria specials.

But in India, where the sari—six immutable yards of fabric—has been the unchallenged national costume for hundreds of years just how much choice is there?

More than there used to be. Walking down a New Delhi street, one still sees Indian women and girls in the traditional saris and kurtah pajama (the North Indian dress of a knee length tunic with tight trousers).

The basic tradition is there, namely the dress. But the colors, the fabrics, the designs, and the lengths manifest a bubbling change in Indian fashion.

Indian women no longer stick to pale pastel colors imported originally by the British, and thought to make a dark skin lighter.

Instead, the peasant women's juxtaposition of color—pink and orange turquoise and chartreuse, red and pink purple and rose—has found its way to the top of Delhi citified fashion.

Why this change in color?

Westerners will say that the hippies have brought color back to India, but young fashion-conscious Delhi girls deny this. Instead they claim that India has given the hippies their wild use of color and also their non-conforming uniform.

In any case, the young have not imbibed their vivid colors from their elders.

"Indira Gandhi has no influence on Indian fashion," says one of Delhi's pioneer boutique owners.

Though considered slightly radical in her politics, India's lady prime minister is fairly conservative in her dress, sticking to traditional designs from India's 17 states.

Mrs. Gandhi, in the best nationalist tradition, is often seen in the handspun cotton known as khadi—that Indian freedom leader Mohandas Gandhi popularized during the anti-British struggle.

But in the 100th year of Gandhi's birth it is the Western women and the hippies who are the most excited about khadi.

Up-to-date urban Indians look more favorably towards mill-made fabrics that last longer and require less care.

"Khadi is for politicians," said one young Delhi "modern," smoothly attired in the newest geometric-patterned nylon sari. Older Indian women, having worn handspun cottons and silks during the freedom struggle and since independence in 1947, nowadays are turning with great gusto and buying power to expensive "French" chiffon saris which are made in India.

The great attraction—and challenge—of chiffon saris is that they cling tenaciously to the well-fed matronly bodies of those who can afford to buy them.

The classical ideal of Indian female beauty was curvaceous corpulence—but that too is changing.

In the main Indian cities, beauty salons, replete with slimming machines and diet hints, are taking weight off that old ideal and bringing it more into line with Twiggy and Veruschka.

One beauty salon patron observed that "previously Indian women never took care of their figures because they could carry them happily in a sari."

Indeed, by Indian standards, some citified innovators are becoming blatantly sexy in their dress—hiking kurtah hemlines many inches above the knee, and reducing sari blouses to the size of a bikini top.

Of course, the sari was originally worn without a blouse. Maybe that is what Indian fashion is returning to.

Will Strong Onions Give Them Hint?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am getting ready for a visit from my brother and his wife, and much as I love them both, I am dreading their visit. Why? Because they both smoke like every puff was their last.

After their last visit, I had to take EVERYTHING out of the bedroom they occupied and air it two days running. Even the draperies, mattress and pillows! A strong odor of stale cigarettes still persisted, so I searched and searched and finally found an ashtray full of cigaret butts in a DESK DRAWER!

I have come up with an idea: The next time we go to visit THEM I will take along several strong onions and I'd carry a slice of raw onion with me to the breakfast table and make them inhale it with their breakfast. I would carry a slice of onion with me into every room of their house, and also into their car. And upon leaving I'd "hide" slices of raw onion all over their house. Then they would know what it's like to try to eliminate an offensive odor which has permeated everything. What do you think?

LOVES FRESH AIR
DEAR LOVES: I think they deserve it. But I'm betting against your ability to be that rude.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a very charming 73-year-old widower in Florida. (I am a 70 year-old widow.) It was a whirlwind romance and we married shortly after. Herbert is very well-to-do, but that is not the reason I married him.

The problem is that Herbert gave me no hint at all that he had had surgery six years ago and all he could offer me was "a lovely home and a gin rummy partner."

Please don't get the idea that I think "sex" is everything in marriage, but I am a very youthful 70, and I was looking forward to a little more than a lovely home and a gin rummy partner.

I don't want to disgrace my children and grandchildren with a divorce. Herbert laughingly said, "If you got yourself a boyfriend, I wouldn't divorce you as long as I didn't find out about it." What should I do?

MISLED
DEAR MISLED: Most women of 70 who marry a man of 73 would be content with a lovely home and a gin rummy partner, but if you are not, don't worry about "disgracing" annulment. You have legitimate grounds.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for myself and a lot of my girl friends.

There is a woman in town who is married and has small children. Her husband works nights, and while he is working this lady runs around with other men. (We know this is true because our parents told us so.)

This lady calls me or my girl friend just about every night, asking us to baby-sit for her. We can use the money, but our parents have told us to turn her down. No matter how many times we turn her down, she calls again.

We think maybe if she can't get a baby-sitter she'll stay home. If you put this in your column she might see it and take the hint.

HOPING
DEAR HOPING: Assuming your parents are right, it will take more than a "hint" from me, and repeated turn-downs from a long list of sitters to make this lady stay home, if she's inclined to run around.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LILA:
Beware of that guy with the "intoxicated kisses." He could be mixing his drinks.

Everybody has a problem. What yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

AFTERNOON REFRESHER
This is nice to serve when it's your turn to have that committee meeting.

Jam Turnovers Tea
JAM TURNOVERS
¼ pound, 1 stick, butter at room temperature
1 package, 4 ounces, or ½ of an 8-ounce package cream cheese, at room temperature
1 cup unsifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup (about) thick jam

With a spoon, in a medium mixing bowl, beat together the butter and cream cheese until almost blended. Gradually work in flour using hands if necessary. Shape into a rectangle and cover tightly with plastic wrap and chill thoroughly. On a well floured pastry cloth with a well floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out dough about ¼-inch thick. Using a pastry wheel, cut into 3-inch squares. Place one teaspoon jam near center each square and fold over in triangle shape. Seal edges by pressing with flat side of pastry wheel.

Place about one inch apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven on tin golden brown—10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 20 turnovers. If stored for a day or so before serving, freshen by reheating in oven.

Miss Delores Mills Weds Sunday

The Immanuel Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Delores Mills and Daniel Lester Whitehurst on Sunday at 2:00 p. m.

The Rev. Irby B. Jackson officiated at the ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Lynn Haglip, organist and Mrs. Doris Leggett, soloist. Mrs. Leggett sang "Whither Thou Goest," "Because" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The church altar was flanked with spiral candelabra accented with greenery and white satin bows. Two baskets of white gladioli, mums and pom poms accented with greenery were placed on either side of the altar. Parents of the couple are Mrs. William R. Denton of Greenville and Mr. Carlton Hubert Mills of Charlotte and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitehurst Sr. of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, William Richard Denton, wore a traditional gown of silk organza over peau de soie. The empire bodice, with an over-layer of re-embroidered alencon lace enriched with pearls, was fashioned with a scallop sabrina neck and sheer Bishop sleeves adorned with over the shoulder scallops of pearled lace. Tiny self-buttons closed the cuff at wrist which was applied with motifs. The A-silhouette, centered with a wide panel of scallop lace and deep border, flowed into a built-in train topped with lace designs extending into a lace bordered full chapel length.

Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was attached to a double back bow of peau de soie which held a cluster of scallop lace medallions encrusted with pearls and crystal stones. She carried a bouquet of white Stephanotis orchid centered on a prayer book surrounded by greenery and white miniature carnations tied with white streamers with miniature carnations. Miss Linda Kaye Haddock of Greenville, aunt of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal satin gown of deep rose covered with matching illusion featuring an A-line skirt and self-sash with a front bow. Her headpiece was of rose illusion featuring a rose velvet bow. She carried a cluster of blended shades of pink and rose chrysanthemums and rosebuds with streamers of deep rose.

Bridesmaids were Terry Smith, Patricia Carrow, Mattie King, Donna Dudley and Debbie Mills, sister of the bride, all of Greenville. They wore deep pink foral empire style gowns with puff sleeves of sheer illusion accented with broad rosette sashes at the bodice. The sashes featured a broad bow tied in back. They wore short veils of pink illusion with pink rosebuds of sheer illusion.

They carried nosegays of blended shades of pink and rose chrysanthemums and rosebuds with deep rose streamers and greenery. Miss Tamelia Denton, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed identical to the maid of honor in a formal satin gown of deep rose covered with matching illusion. She wore a rose illusion headpiece with a deep rose bow.

Bruce Whitehurst, brother of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Wayland Denton, Johnny Speight, Lee Galt, Kenneth Beaman and Tony Whitehurst, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother selected a pastel aqua peau de soie dress with A-line skirt and matching jacket. She wore a hat of aqua illusion-centered with a bow of silk illusion and matching accessories. Her corsage was of white mums with aqua ribbons. The bridegroom's mother wore a pastel blue dress with a matching coat of crepe and lace. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white mums with blue ribbons.

Mrs. Amos Haddock, Mrs. Hubert Mills and Mrs. A. T. Denton, all of Greenville, grandmothers of the bride, wore corsages of white mums with matching ribbons.

Mrs. Lester Scott of Robersonville, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a corsage of white mums with matching ribbons. For a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the bride changed into a royal blue A-line dress with matching long coat and accessories. She wore an orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and will be employed at Carolina Telephone and Telegraph. She will also attend East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and is presently serving in the U. S. Army.

Reception Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

Introducing guests to the receiving line composed of the bridal couple, their parents and attendants were Mr. and Mrs. George T. White Sr., aunt and uncle of the bridegroom.

Mrs. D. J. Spain Jr. of Greenville poured punch and Mrs.

Erwin Buck of Greenville, both aunts of the bride, served wedding cake.

Others assisting were Mrs. J. H. Mills Jr., aunt of the bride, Mrs. Amos Harrell, both of Greenville, Mrs. Wiley Stancill Jr. of Ayden, Mrs. Daniel Manning of Williamston and Mrs. Dennis Hardy of Bethel.

After-Rehearsal Party The Whitehurst-Mills wedding party was honored at an after-rehearsal party Saturday night at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The bride's table was covered with a yellow cloth overlaid with white net. An arrangement of yellow and white snapdragons and greenery with three branched candelabra centered the table.

Mrs. William R. Denton, mother of the bride-elect, served cake and Mrs. Walter Whitehurst Sr., mother of the bridegroom-elect, poured punch.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Lester Scott of Robersonville, grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Chick Hardee of Washington and Mrs. Walter Leggett of Hassell, both aunts of the bridegroom.

The bride was remembered with a white carnation corsage. Good-byes were said to parents of the bridegroom.

Concern Over Narcotics Is Rising

Parents who constantly instruct their children about the dangers of crossing the street without looking both ways, often do not bring up the subject of drugs and narcotics for frank discussion.

Yet the drug problem becomes one of more concern to this nation every day. Not only are the older narcotics, such as heroin still with us, but now we have synthetics "mind expanders" such as LSD.

Perhaps parents feel that the small child is safe from drugs and narcotics, and perhaps they feel that the laws protect their children from these dangers as they grow older.

The sad truth, however, is that almost every young person coming along today stands a good chance of being in a position to experiment with drugs, or marijuana at some point in his life. Controlling this does not rest in stronger laws; in fact there is much to indicate that the laws in many cases may carry too strong penalties now, thus preventing convictions.

Parents and young people alike have only to listen to Art Linkletter whose daughter died in a death plunge, apparently while under the influence of LSD.

From the fifth grade up, Linkletter said, children "should be grounded as thoroughly in the dangers of putting chemicals into their system as they are in walking across a superhighway with their eyes shut."

Linkletter told the story of how his daughter died, even as he grieved for her. "I want the parents, and I want their kids, to read about this and be shocked, be frightened at what can happen."

"If I can save a few lives..." Linkletter said. "Just one would be enough."

Even the most dedicated of parents cannot stop their maturing children from trying LSD, heroin, marijuana or even getting potted on liquor. But every young person should have the facts available to him before he makes a choice. He should know what can result from LSD, or what use of marijuana can lead to; he should also know the dangers of overindulgence in alcohol.

This information should be furnished him by the parents as soon as he is old enough to understand. If this is done, perhaps that one life can be saved; perhaps many lives will be saved in the future.

Concerned Over Enthusiasm Lag

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH—When state chairman Jimmy V. Johnson diagnosed the Democratic party in North Carolina as being "sick" he meant there is a discernible lack of enthusiasm and vitality.

He also thinks this condition can be cured.

party primaries.

Gov. Bob Scott told the Vance-Aycock gathering that he stands behind his friend and 1968 state campaign manager, Johnson. It may be true that Johnson will step down as state chairman, but reports of a deep rift between Johnson and the governor over imposition of a soft drink tax apparently are not. Johnson is a soft drink bottling executive in Charlotte.

It is not yet clear as to the lines the suggested party reorganization would take.

Presumably, however, it would begin in the top echelons and then extend to the district and local levels. It might include a party recruiting drive, more rallies and meetings and a sharper communications effort.

WILLIAM A. SHIRES

In other words, he feels the fire of fighting party spirit for which Tar Heel Democrats long have been known has been dampened. Unless it is refueled and fanned again party bigwigs believe a lot of nominees will be in deep trouble seeking election a year from now.

Naturally this feeling disturbs and concerns the faithful of the party that has been a dominant in this state for 70 years.

Causes—In his pointed remarks at the annual Vance-Aycock dinner last weekend, the outspoken Mr. Johnson simply was voicing what numerous other party leaders have felt—and warned about—for a number of months.

Many reasons have been cited — among them complacency, dissatisfaction with national party leadership, the fact that the 1968 presidential nominee, Hubert Humphrey, was not popular in North Carolina, and others.

It was Johnson's idea to attempt to find out why, and how best to attack the underlying causes.

Reorganize — The party chairman's call was to reorganize. A better word is revitalize, to infuse new blood and pep up the old.

And he said the time to begin is now—not after the intra-

Others — Republicans efforts to strengthen their statewide party organization and present a shining political image have not gone unnoticed.

But it is doubtful that this is what Johnson and other party leaders had in mind in searching for basic causes of Democratic complacency.

There are other possible reasons being considered, some of them also rather vague and indefinite:

—Is it because this is an "off year" politically, with no elections involving personalities and party candidates?

—Was it because of a disappointing performance by the Democratic-controlled legislature which not only gave in to Republican demands in numerous instances but in bitterly among themselves?

—Is it because of the new state tax program asked for by Scott, which finally was enacted in compromise form? Including tobacco and soft drink taxes?

—Is it deterioration because of post-intra-party rivalries and jealousies resulting in a lack of unity?

All of these points are being considered and weighed in analysis of what has happened and what, if anything, is really wrong with the Democratic party.

More Service From A Stately Old Building

Flanagan building was a multi-purpose facility when it was built on the ECTC campus in the late 1930s. For many years it housed all the science programs, home economics, industrial and technical education and provided classroom space for other departments.

Now, however, many of these departments — some of them schools — have their own buildings. Home economics shares a building with the nursing school and this fall the new physics and biology complex was put in use.

So stately old Flanagan is about to begin a new era. A million dollar renovation will make the building usable for the chemistry department, science education and industrial and technical education.

Flanagan building has served well through the years. With this modernization program it should serve for many more years.

Humphrey Eyes Seat In Senate

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MINNEAPOLIS — Former Vice President Hubert Humphrey has quietly commissioned a statewide poll to see how well he would run against the Republicans if he decides to go for the Senate seat to be vacated next year by Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

But even before the poll was ordered by Humphrey, the former Vice President had affirmatively resolved most of the doubts besetting him about whether to go back to the Senate (where he spent 16 years before election as Vice President in 1964) or campaign for another Presidential nomination as titular party leader and citizen-at-large, operating from outside the Senate.

Some Humphrey advisers point to the records of two other defeated Presidential candidates—Adlai Stevenson and Richard M. Nixon—as evidence that if Humphrey wants another crack at the Presidency, he would run for the nomination with a better chance outside the Senate than as a Senator.

Thus, Stevenson, overwhelmed by Gen. Eisenhower in 1952, recaptured the Democratic nomination four years later as a private citizen.

More to the point, President Nixon, after several years in relative political obscurity, made himself the Republican party's spearpoint in the 1968 off-elections. He dramatically predicted a 20-vote Republican gain in the House, campaigned across the nation, and got much of the credit when his party picked up 47 House seats.

That gave him a valuable batch of due bills, which he was not shy about collecting in the pre-convention 1968 skirmishing.

But Humphrey is not overly impressed with these arguments. An incurable political romantic, he is nevertheless realistic enough to know that his chances to get into the White House in 1972, at the age of 61, are slim, indeed. Moreover, if the Vietnam war should no longer be an issue in 1972 and President Nixon looked like a shoo-in for a second-term, Humphrey confides to intimates, he is not panting to be "thrown to the wolves" as Stevenson was against Gen. Eisenhower in 1956.

Thus, Humphrey has to view a Senate race in 1970 not so much as a course to be chosen among several attractive possibilities but as probably his last opportunity to get back into elective office. And even getting elected to the Senate may turn out to be not all that easy, no matter how strong he may look in the poll now being taken.

For example, at the state Democratic convention in St. Paul two weeks ago, there was a low-key attack on Humphrey as the legate of the old politics from youthful Minnesota Democrats who backed McCarthy in the vicious infighting that broke the Democratic party in two last year.

In addition, Humphrey, who holds down a teaching job at both the University of Minnesota and Macalester College here, has had some rough arguments with his students over the war in Vietnam and his part in backing every military escalation by President Johnson.

Finally, far from any signs of reluctance among the Republicans to take on Humphrey, two of the state's most prominent Republicans are already locked in a struggle for the nomination.

Both Rep. Clark MacGregor, from the third district here in Minneapolis, and state Atty. Gen. Douglas Head were deeply worried that the mere threat of Humphrey's running

Strength For Today

THE KEY IS THERE

Legend says that on one occasion General Robert E. Lee came suddenly upon one of his young officers gazing at himself in the mirror with obvious pleasure and admiration. "You must be the happiest man in the world," Lee said.

"Why do you say that, sir?" the officer asked.

"Because you are in love with yourself, and have no rival in your affection," Lee replied.

Whether or not the story is true, it reflects the truth. The surest way to lose the love of others is to devote all our love to ourself. And the more intense our self-affection becomes, the surer we can be that no one else will share it.

But fortunately for humanity, the reverse of this process is equally true. Unselfish affection for others inevitably draws affection in return. The man who can forget himself, in his interest in the welfare of others is safe in forgetting himself, for others will not forget him.

Love for others is the one key to human happiness that is within the reach of all. It does not depend upon riches, nor education, nor power, nor social position. It lies within the grasp of anyone who, in the midst of others, will hold out to them the hand of love and fellowship.

Threat Of Consumerism

WASHINGTON — Is the consumer revolution doing more harm than good? Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans seems to think so. In a recent meeting with trade association officials in Washington, he expressed the fear that the consumer revolution in which consumers demand more protection from the federal government could get out of hand. He said the country should evaluate where it was heading, and ask "...whether we are going to let the wave of consumerism move too far and destroy the freedom of choice of the consumer."

It was the first time any high official of the government had mentioned the danger of "consumerism" which, if allowed to go unchecked, could destroy the free enterprise system.

FBI statistics show that there are more unhappy consumers in this country than Communists, and efforts must be made to eradicate "consumerism" before it spreads throughout the nation.

The best way to do this would be to hold hearings in front of the House Anticonsumerism Committee. Harold Feldkamp, an unfriendly witness, is called to the stand.

"Feldkamp, we understand that on Jan. 20, 1969, you showed up at the Godfather Motor Co. and made a scene in front of the customers. Is this true?"

"Yes, sir. You see, I bought a new car and the first day I drove to work the door fell off it."

"We didn't ask you to make a statement, Feldkamp."

"But I paid $4,500 for the car, and I figured the door shouldn't have fallen off it—at least not the first day."

"You realize, Feldkamp, that this is the kind of thing that breeds consumerism."

"I'm sorry."

"All right, let's proceed. Feldkamp, have you now or have you ever been a member of the Consumer Party?"

"No, I've never been a member of the party."

"But you have flirted with consumerism?"

"Let's say I've been on the fringes. I'm not for the violent overthrow of the National Assn. of Manufacturers. But gee whiz, you'd think you could get a car with a door that would stay on. I'd also like to say I'm not too 'thrilled with tires either.'"

"Feldkamp, I must warn you again that you are not here to make speeches. Now, how many consumers are in your cell?"

Other Editors Say Who's Dragging Feet?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Is the Nixon administration a "no-action administration as the Democrats charge? Or is the Democratic-controlled Congress simply foot-dragging on the President's programs?"

A survey of the legislative record to date shows that more than 40 major proposals sent to Congress by President Nixon are stalled in Congress. Even more ridiculous, with the 1970 fiscal year nearly three months old, Congress has passed only one appropriations bill.

The administration proposals include important programs such as crime control anti-inflation measures, tax reform, education and manpower training.

Although House Republican Leader Gerald Ford said last week that he will withhold judgment on the record of the first session of the 91st Congress "until we are finished," he noted that even former Vice President Humphrey has warned the 91st may be branded the "90-worst" Congress. Ford recounted what Humphrey had told a Senate Democratic group: "I can see Nixon aiming a campaign at the '90-worst' Congress just as Truman went after the '80-worst' Congress and won against all the odds."

The proposals sent to Capitol Hill cover the full range from manpower training and housing to education and airports. On the very important program to strengthen the fight against crime, the administration proposals would revise witness immunity laws focus attention on illegal gambling, obscenity, drugs, and organized crime, provide for reorganization of Washington courts and revamp bail reform procedures.

In manpower training, the Nixon proposal would ultimately place most responsibility in state and local governments and consolidate poverty and Labor Department programs. In unemployment insurance, the Nixon plan would extend coverage to 4.8 million additional workers and require states to permit workers to get employment compensation while in job training programs.

"I don't belong to a cell."

"Don't tell us, Feldkamp, that you operated alone. We all know that consumerism is a world-wide conspiracy."

"I'm not a member of any conspiracy."

"Do you know a Milton Orshesky?"

"Yes, I play poker with him."

"Did you know he was a consumer?"

"No, I didn't."

"Did you know he bought a new washing machine, and when the lint filter on it wouldn't work, he threatened to sue the company that manufactured it?"

"No, I didn't know that."

"Do you know a Frank White?"

"Yes, he was in my car pool until the door fell off my car."

"Did you know his wife went to school with Ralph Nader?"

"No, I didn't. He never talked about his wife."

"Does the name Dmitri Kessel mean anything to you?"

Dreams Retain Youth

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The world honors a man for the goals he has won, but he criticizes himself for the daydreams he has never been able to make come true.

They are what keep him young and wondering and hopeful.

The difference between a goal and a daydream is the difference between common sense and fantasy.

It is common sense for a man to want to hold a good job, have a wife and family, buy a home and an auto, and be able to afford to join a country club. These are fine and honest goals, but they do grind a man down in his prime. They tire him out.

On the other hand, daydreams, being mere fantasies of the mind, do not inflict wear and tear on the body. Why, a fellow can sit in a swivel chair and daydream all day long and still be as fresh as a daisy at nightfall.

Wouldn't it be nice if, instead of slaving away at his routine goals, a man could spend half his life realizing his daydreams?

For example, he might—

Get himself piped aboard a battleship.

Break up a white slave ring.

Tear a noisy telephone out by its tendrils.

Buy his wife a department store if she complained she had nothing to wear.

Face a rifle squad for an undying cause, and be saved in the nick of time by the arrival of the U.S. cavalry.

Head off a band of rustlers by taking a shortcut over the hills to Eagle Pass.

Find a way for middle-aged men to keep their hair other than by putting it in a cigar box.

Break through the front line of the New York Jets and set Joe Namath back on his heels three times in a row.

Hire Mrs. Onassis as a judo instructor.

Carve the history of the Republican party on the head of a pin.

Find a needle in a haystack and a winning presidential candidate for the Democrats.

Discover something women can wear to make them look even more interesting than miniskirts.

Solve the genetic code, so everyone could have the kind of children he wanted.

Put a new ingredient in the dollar bill that would make it worth even more than the paper it's printed on.

Yep, goals age us, daydreams keep us young. If we all spent more time pursuing our daydreams, we might never grow old.

A Farmer Depletion Allowance?

By ELMER ROESSNER

While the oil industry is bringing all the pressure it can muster on Congress and the White House for a continuation of the 2 1/2 percent depletion allowance, it might be worth while to consider a depletion allowance for farmers.

Farmers do get a piddling depletion allowance now. When they sell sand and gravel, the income from the sale may be reduced by a percentage similar to that of the oil and other extractive industries.

But Congress has overlooked the fact that growing crops also extracts minerals and plant nutrients from the soil.

Some of it is replaced with fertilizers and the money spent on fertilizers is fully deductible from income as a cost of doing business.

EXPORTING TOP SOIL"

But it is doubtful that fertilizers fully replace all that farming takes from the soil. In the years immediately after World War II, the outpouring of American farm products to war-torn countries was often denounced as "exporting American topsoil."

There were some who argued that it would be better and cheaper to ship chemical fertilizer to starving countries to allow its farmers to increase their crops instead of exporting the results of that fertilizer, plus the labor of American farmers.

It may also be argued that farmers, as a class, are much more in need of the benefits of a depletion allowance than the oil industry. The oil industry, in part because of the depletion allowance, is prospering nicely. Some oil companies have paid little or no tax on enormous profits because the 2 1/2 percent allowance has reduced taxable earnings to little or nothing.

FARMERS HARD HIT

But farm income, contrary to that of almost every other field of endeavor in America has been declining, despite inflation.

The cost of things farmers need has gone up in price as has everything else. This squeeze is so great that the farm implement and machine makers expect a very poor season. The squeeze will also result in acceleration of the trend to fewer and larger farms, as more individual farmers become eager to sell their farms to farming corporations.

It would seem that there are two logical solutions to the problem: give farmers a depletion allowance similar to that granted other extra-active industries, or to abolish all depletion allowances.

ELMER ROESSNER

Oil companies also get a full deduction for the money spent in exploring and drilling for oil but this, they plead, is not sufficient "incentive" to cause them to spend money to increase the nation's oil reserves.

Construction Begins Monday On New Building In Shore Drive Area

Construction is scheduled to begin Monday on the Smart-Woodall & Associates architectural building on the corner of First and Reade Streets. According to George Smart, the two-story building will be built by the Jack Farrell Contracting firm of Sanford with the completion date set for the first of March. Smart said they hoped to occupy the new building soon after completion. The building will be constructed of gray-brown brick and matching mortar, Smart added.

with bronze windows and doors accenting the exterior. A total of 5,554 square feet of space will be encompassed.

Plans at this time call for the Smart-Woodall firm to occupy the top or second floor and the IBM Corporation to have offices in the first floor. The first floor will be leased by Smart and Woodall, who will privately own the building, to IBM.

Charles Woodall of Greenville will be in charge of the local office. The firm is also scheduled to open offices in Durham by the last of October.

Smart and Woodall have owned the land in the Shore Drive project for nearly a year. Their new building will be one of the first to be constructed in the project, following completion of the new post office and additions to The Daily Reflector building.

Five other buildings in the project area have been designed by the firm, Smart said, but no dates of their construction or who will be involved in the ownership have been announced.

Greene Board Accepts Staff Resignations

SNOW HILL—Greene County Commissioners accepted the resignation of two members of the county's Extension Service staff at their regular meeting here Monday.

Assistant Agricultural Agent Dalton Proctor submitted his resignation to become effective Nov. 1. Proctor, according to county auditor George Mewborn, is resigning to take a position as Community Development Specialist at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

A native of Pitt County, Proctor has been an extension agent in Greene County for the past six years.

Also resigning is assistant home agent Miss Regina Bass, who has been on the Greene County Home Economics Agents staff for about four years. Her resignation is effective Nov. 28.

Mewborn explained that Miss Bass is leaving her position to get married.

In addition to receiving routine reports from the various county agencies, the commissioners received the annual audit report for the past fiscal year, which was approved by the board.

Actor Will Push Pollution War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eddie Albert, veteran of stage, screen and television, says he hopes to enlist acting stars such as Paul Newman and Burt Lancaster in a fight against pollution.

Albert told a news conference Tuesday the idea was to get people into action "who have the opportunities to get on television" and added:

"Science will give us the script, so to speak—give us the facts—and we'll put them into language appropriate for TV."

The reason: first, that Humphrey, who stands high with business and financial interests in Minnesota despite his liberal brand of politics, would have first call on money that normally would go to a Republican; and second, that even anti-Humphrey Republicans would be chary about making large contributions to any Republican against Humphrey on grounds that Humphrey would be a certain winner and the money would be simply wasted.

Near Anarchy During Montreal Police Strike

MONTREAL (AP) — Police and fire protection returned to normal in Montreal today after a one-day strike by more than 6,000 police and firemen seeking pay raises threatened Canada's largest city with chaos.

A provincial policeman was shot to death during a battle between rival groups of drivers. A mob of youths roamed the streets Tuesday night, smashing windows and looting stores.

Ten bank robberies and nearly a score of other thefts were reported.

About 800 provincial police were rushed to the city to aid about 200 senior police officers who stayed at their posts. A skeleton force of firemen also remained on duty. Several hundred army troops were flown into the area but did not enter the city.

The Quebec provincial legislature met in emergency session late Tuesday night and ordered the strikers back to work by 12:01 a.m. today. Union leaders demanded that their men obey the order, and the police and fire departments were reported fully manned and operating normally by 4 a.m.

Members of the 3,700-man police force began quitting their posts at 8 a.m. Tuesday. They were joined shortly afterward by most of the city's 2,400 firemen, who are also involved in a wage dispute with the city.

The policemen, who are not permitted by law to strike, seek a $1,900-a-year increase in salaries now averaging $7,300 a year. They rejected an arbitration board's recommendation of a $1,100 hike.

The firemen have rejected an arbitration award of a $1,050 annual raise, which would bring their pay to $8,000. They seek $9,000.

The chief argument of both is that they make less than police and firemen in Toronto, and the police say their job is much riskier in crime-ridden Montreal.

Sympathizers contend that Mayor Jean Drapeau's administration is too involved in glamor enterprises—such as Expo 67 and the city's National League baseball team—and neglecting its employes and poverty-stricken areas.

Cpl. Robert Dumas of the provincial police was shot in the back and killed during a battle Tuesday night between taxi drivers and employes of a limousine service at a West Side garage.

the limousine company's exclusive license to carry airport passengers, drove more than 100 taxis to the garage and a scuffle broke out when company guards tried to hold them off.

A rock-throwing battle then developed. Fires were set, buses were overturned, and a sniper fired from a darkened upstairs window, killing Dumas and injuring four others.

Several hundred youths went on a rampage along Montreal's main shopping streets during the evening, smashing windows and looting them. Every display window along one street was broken.

Squad cars raced along the streets in the rain, sirens screaming, but the mob began to disperse on its own and no arrests were reported.

The striking police were holding a marathon grievance meeting in a sports arena, and many of them threatened to defy the back-to-work order by taking sick leave. Shouts and boos interrupted Guy Marcil, president of the policeman's brotherhood, as he ordered the men back to work, but the strikers began filing out of the arena.

Quebec provincial police reported the death of one of their men, another unconfirmed death and several wounded in a shooting at a West End garage. The garage was the scene of a battle between taxi drivers, employes of a competitive airport limousine service and passers-by.

Several fires were started, buses were overturned and snipers fired into the battlers.

The violence spread through downtown Montreal. Several hundred youths went on a rampage along St. Catherine and Peel streets, Montreal's chief shopping center, smashing and looting windows.

As 200 senior police officers and about 100 provincial policemen struggled to provide some sort of protection for the city, 120 men of the army's Royal 22nd Regiment were flown from their base at Valcartier to St. Hubert, across the St. Lawrence from Montreal, and were put on standby alert. Another 500 troops were standing by at Valcartier.

An army spokesman said the troops would be sent into the city if they were needed.

Mayor Jean Drapeau interrupted a visit to St. Louis, Mo., flew home Tuesday and hurried into conference with city officials.

The mayor's Golden Vessel restaurant at the Windsor Hotel was one of the first targets of the youths.

Moving along the streets in a light drizzle, the rampaging youths grabbed fur coats, electric razors, skis, transistor radios and anything else that struck their fancy in the shattered windows.

Provincial police cars raced along the slippery streets with sirens wailing but no arrests were observed before the mob began to disperse on its own.

Private Appeals Seen Drawing Hanoi Response

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has informed about 3,000 wives and parents of captured U.S. servicemen that North Vietnam may respond to private appeals for information about POWs, defense officials report.

Spokesmen said the armed services passed the word last week in an effort to keep American families abreast of developments involving prisoners or missing men presumed alive in Vietnam.

North Vietnam about the same time began accusing the United States of trying to whip up emotions among the relatives of POWs as a means of pressuring communist delegates at the Paris peace talks.

Defense officials say this was not their motive. The Pentagon, they say, was merely carrying out its responsibility to the families of POWs or missing men.

An officer acknowledged that the Pentagon was walking a fine line and leaving itself open to propaganda charges.

"But we were just informing people of Hanoi's willingness to answer letters from relatives writing on their own," he said.

As the Pentagon understands it, the North Vietnamese in Paris will accept private inquiries and receive relatives, pass the questions onto Hanoi and later forward any responses to the families.

The Pentagon says it knows of no responses received by any of the several wives who first called upon the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris about three weeks ago.

According to some accounts, North Vietnam has asked wives to provide such information about captured servicemen as name, rank, serial number, the type of aircraft they may have been aboard when lost over North Vietnam, the date and general location.

A spokesman said the Pentagon has not discouraged relatives from providing such information even though the men themselves are obliged under long-standing policy to give only their name, rank and serial number.

The Pentagon has given the relatives of the more than 400 captured and more than 900 missing men two addresses to which they may direct inquiries.

One address, for questions involving men believed to be in North Vietnam, is that of the Hanoi delegation in Paris.

The other address, for questions about those men missing or believed held in South Vietnam, is for the Viet Cong delegation.

Lost Her Wig, Not Her Wig

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police complimented a cocktail waitress today for not losing her head—just her wig—when a gunman accosted her.

They said Joyce Trapp, 22, was driving home from work Tuesday when a man climbed into her car, threatened her with a gun, then told her to gag herself.

Police said Miss Trapp jumped out of the car and ran down an alley. The gunman's shot knocked off her blonde wig, but Miss Trapp was uninjured, police said.

Officers recovered the wig and were seeking Miss Trapp's car.

Promises Return Of Democratic Govm't

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Gen. Emilio Garrastazu Medici, the new president of Brazil, promised Tuesday night to bring democratic government back to South America's largest country with politically moderate guidelines. He said he would not tolerate the violence of the extreme left or the conservatism of the landowner-industrialist oligarchy.

"At the end of my mandate I expect to leave democracy definitively installed," Medici said in a television and radio address a few hours after the military high command chose him to replace ailing President Arthur da Costa e Silva.

One of his first steps, the 63-year-old Medici said, will be to open talks with leaders of all social strata.

He also pledged to limit the government's participation in the economy. But he was expected to continue the tight control the military had maintained since it overthrew President Joao Goulart, Brazil's last popularly elected president, in 1964.

Work, Excitement In White House Reporting

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press
White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Should the President of the United States go to Rome to see the pope?

Six reporters who cover the White House were asked this question in 1967 by Lyndon B. Johnson. The President said he would abide by their advice.

Not every day are White House newsmen consulted on matters of state—but it has happened. In this instance, the reporters advised Johnson to make his own decision, which he did. He saw Pope Paul.

As the case of President and Pontiff illustrates, being a member of the White House press corps can be exciting, glamorous and even a bit romantic. Johnson put his question to the six reporters, for example, aboard air Force One during a flight around the globe.

Circling the earth is a thrilling experience under almost any circumstances. Yet the Johnson journey, however exciting, was extremely demanding of both President and press. Together they circumnavigated the planet in just four and a half days—and spent only a single night in a hotel. Two members of the press corps collapsed and were left behind along the way, one in Australia and the other in Thailand.

Always On The Go
The rātion of excitement that goes with the job of White House reporter must be balanced against the hard work involved. Running for helicopters and motorcades. Testing your strength against that of a crowd pressing in from all points of the compass. Taking off on short notice, sometimes without baggage, for a distant city, and, in spurts that seem to pile up in clumps, working for abnormal periods of time while retaining an ability to dictate major, fast-breaking news developments instantly an off the cuff.

When President Nixon circled the globe this summer, reporters who accompanied him lived through three working days that approached, and even exceeded, 24 hours from wakeup to lie-down. One of these was capped by a policy-stating news conference on Guam and another by a memorable welcome to communist Romania.

When comparing notes later on their most arduous days on the job, reporters tended to forget the one that began on the same island of guam with a Vietnam summit, in 1967, and ended with a marathon flight back to Washington during which the press corps witnessed two sunsets.

Even Key Biscayne and San Clemente, for all their attractions, can with time have their minus points. Especially with the wife and youngsters back home. After making several dozen trips to the hill country of central Texas, spending a month there, and trying to find challenge and excitement in a sparse, post-operative diet of news, becomes a mind-dulling experience. One reporter found his own prescription for fighting boredom: "Let's go out and watch a few haircuts."

Job follows Pattern
Although Presidents spend much time away from Washington, with the press necessarily tagging along because whatever chief executives do or say is of some interest to someone, most days find them at the White House.

For reporters, the weekday routine there—with periodic and noteworthy exceptions—follows a pattern: they congregate in the reception lobby in the "West Wing" of the White House, where Presidents have their oval office, about 9 a.m., usually an hour or two before Nixon's first announced appointment. The thrill of the working day is dictated by the President's schedule and an announcement from the press office that there's a "Lid"—meaning nothing else is expected. THE "Lid" can come as early as 4:30 p.m. or it may, in a time of crisis, be extended into the following day.

Between starting time and the "Lid," reporters and photographers sometimes are permitted to witness and record at least parts of the Nixon day. If he's making a public appearance, everyone normally is granted "full coverage." But if it's a formal speech, those taking newspaper pictures for newspapers may be shooed away after a few minutes, lest a candid shot embarrass the chief executive. On those occasions, more frequent in the Johnson years than now, television and movie newsreel cameras keep snapping away after the "still" cameras have been banished. If the president is meeting someone in his office or in the rose garden, reporters and photographers may or may not be invited.

Assistants Say Little
Some of the most newsworthy sessions go unrecorded. When Nixon held a Vietnam, policy conference with key advisers in September, for example, the press office said no photographs would be permitted. At the last moment, a limited number of cameramen and reporters were let in for 40 seconds only. No participant in the meeting, despite the enormous attention it had attracted, talked to any reporter at the White House. Those cornered elsewhere were uncommunicative.

Because the white House staff is small and directly under the President's orders, reporters often find that attempting to pry information out of assistants to a chief executive is more frustrating than enlightening. If ever there was an exception to this general rule, it was during the administration of John F. Kennedy, who surrounded himself with talkative, articulate and, in many instances, attention-seeking assistants.

In the main, that has not been the case in the Johnson and Nixon administrations. Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security adviser, ordered members of his staff not to talk to the press during most of 1969, although the busy Kissinger couldn't begin to meet demands of his own time and, to the press at least, was more often than not unavailable.

Because the White House is a "tight little island," many major newsbreaks in this and other administrations have come from knowledgeable people in federal agencies or on capitol hill. Newsmen often find that helpfulness from these sources depends on degrees of distance, geographically and personally or philosophically, from the White House.

Of course, Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, does talk. He usually holds two briefings a day, Monday through Friday to distribute mimeographed press releases, make verbal announcements and ostensibly be available to answer questions. Many questions go without meaningful reply because the subjects involved include those Nixon doesn't want Ziegler to discuss.

As in police department press rooms everywhere, frustration and boredom alternate with challenge and excitement at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue. but the White House press room has a carpet on the floor and the President, naturally, is bigger news than any policeman.

Another Gap Is Confronting Us

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Just when everybody figured that the credibility and generation gaps may be bridged, a business leader warns that there is a new gap facing us.

It's a communications-information gap, said Robert W. Sarnoff, president of RCA, and he added that it could cause a serious problem in the management of public and private enterprise.

Paradoxically, it's not a shortage of information, but the availability, in this computer age, of vastly more information than industry or government ever had before, that causes the problem. It is the problem of "harnessing" the new information technology that sees business now "operating in work-days of nano-seconds rather than eight-hour shifts."

"Today's world communicates globally in sight, sound and signal over thousands of high capacity satellite and cable channels that did not exist five years ago," said Sarnoff in a speech before the Commonwealth Club of California.

"These (computerized) machines have evolved from ingenious, but simple-minded, calculators to enormously versatile information systems. Their operating speeds have advanced from tenths to billionths of a second—to that inconceivable fraction of time called a nano second. To appreciate its meaning, a nanosecond is to a second, as a second in time is to 30 years on the calendar."

No Rock Music In Jazz Festival

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Arnold London, comptroller of the Newport Festivals, says rock music will not be included in next year's traditional jazz and folk festivals.

London, in a briefing for city officials, said problems of revenue and crowd control may mean that next year's jazz festival will be cut to three days and the folk festival to a one-day benefit affair.

Computer Billed Him For $9,000

DETROIT (AP) — "President Nixon called the moon and billed us," Samuel Brezner moaned when he got a $9,000 telephone bill.

The computer-style lettering on his statement said he had been credited with paying all except $9,000—of the $39,011.20 charge for the month of August.

An accompanying note advised, "We periodically ask our customers to compare their records with ours to be sure we are correct."

Brezner, 63, legal advisor to the Wayne County sheriff's office, found he had already paid his phone bill—$11.20.

"I must respectfully dispute owing you $9,000 as you claim," Brezner wrote the company. He suggested the company keep the $11.20 of the $30,011.20 it says he paid, and then send back the $30,000.

"I promise to invest it in your parent company's stock as a symbol of my deep gratitude for your abundant generosity. Whatever your decision, I shall not pay the $9,000," he wrote.

Brezner said he thought his note had straightened out the confusion, but the bill he received this month still had him owing the $9,000.

A spokesman for Michigan Bell Telephone Co. declined immediate comment.

The sun is a cheaper clothes dryer than an electric one.

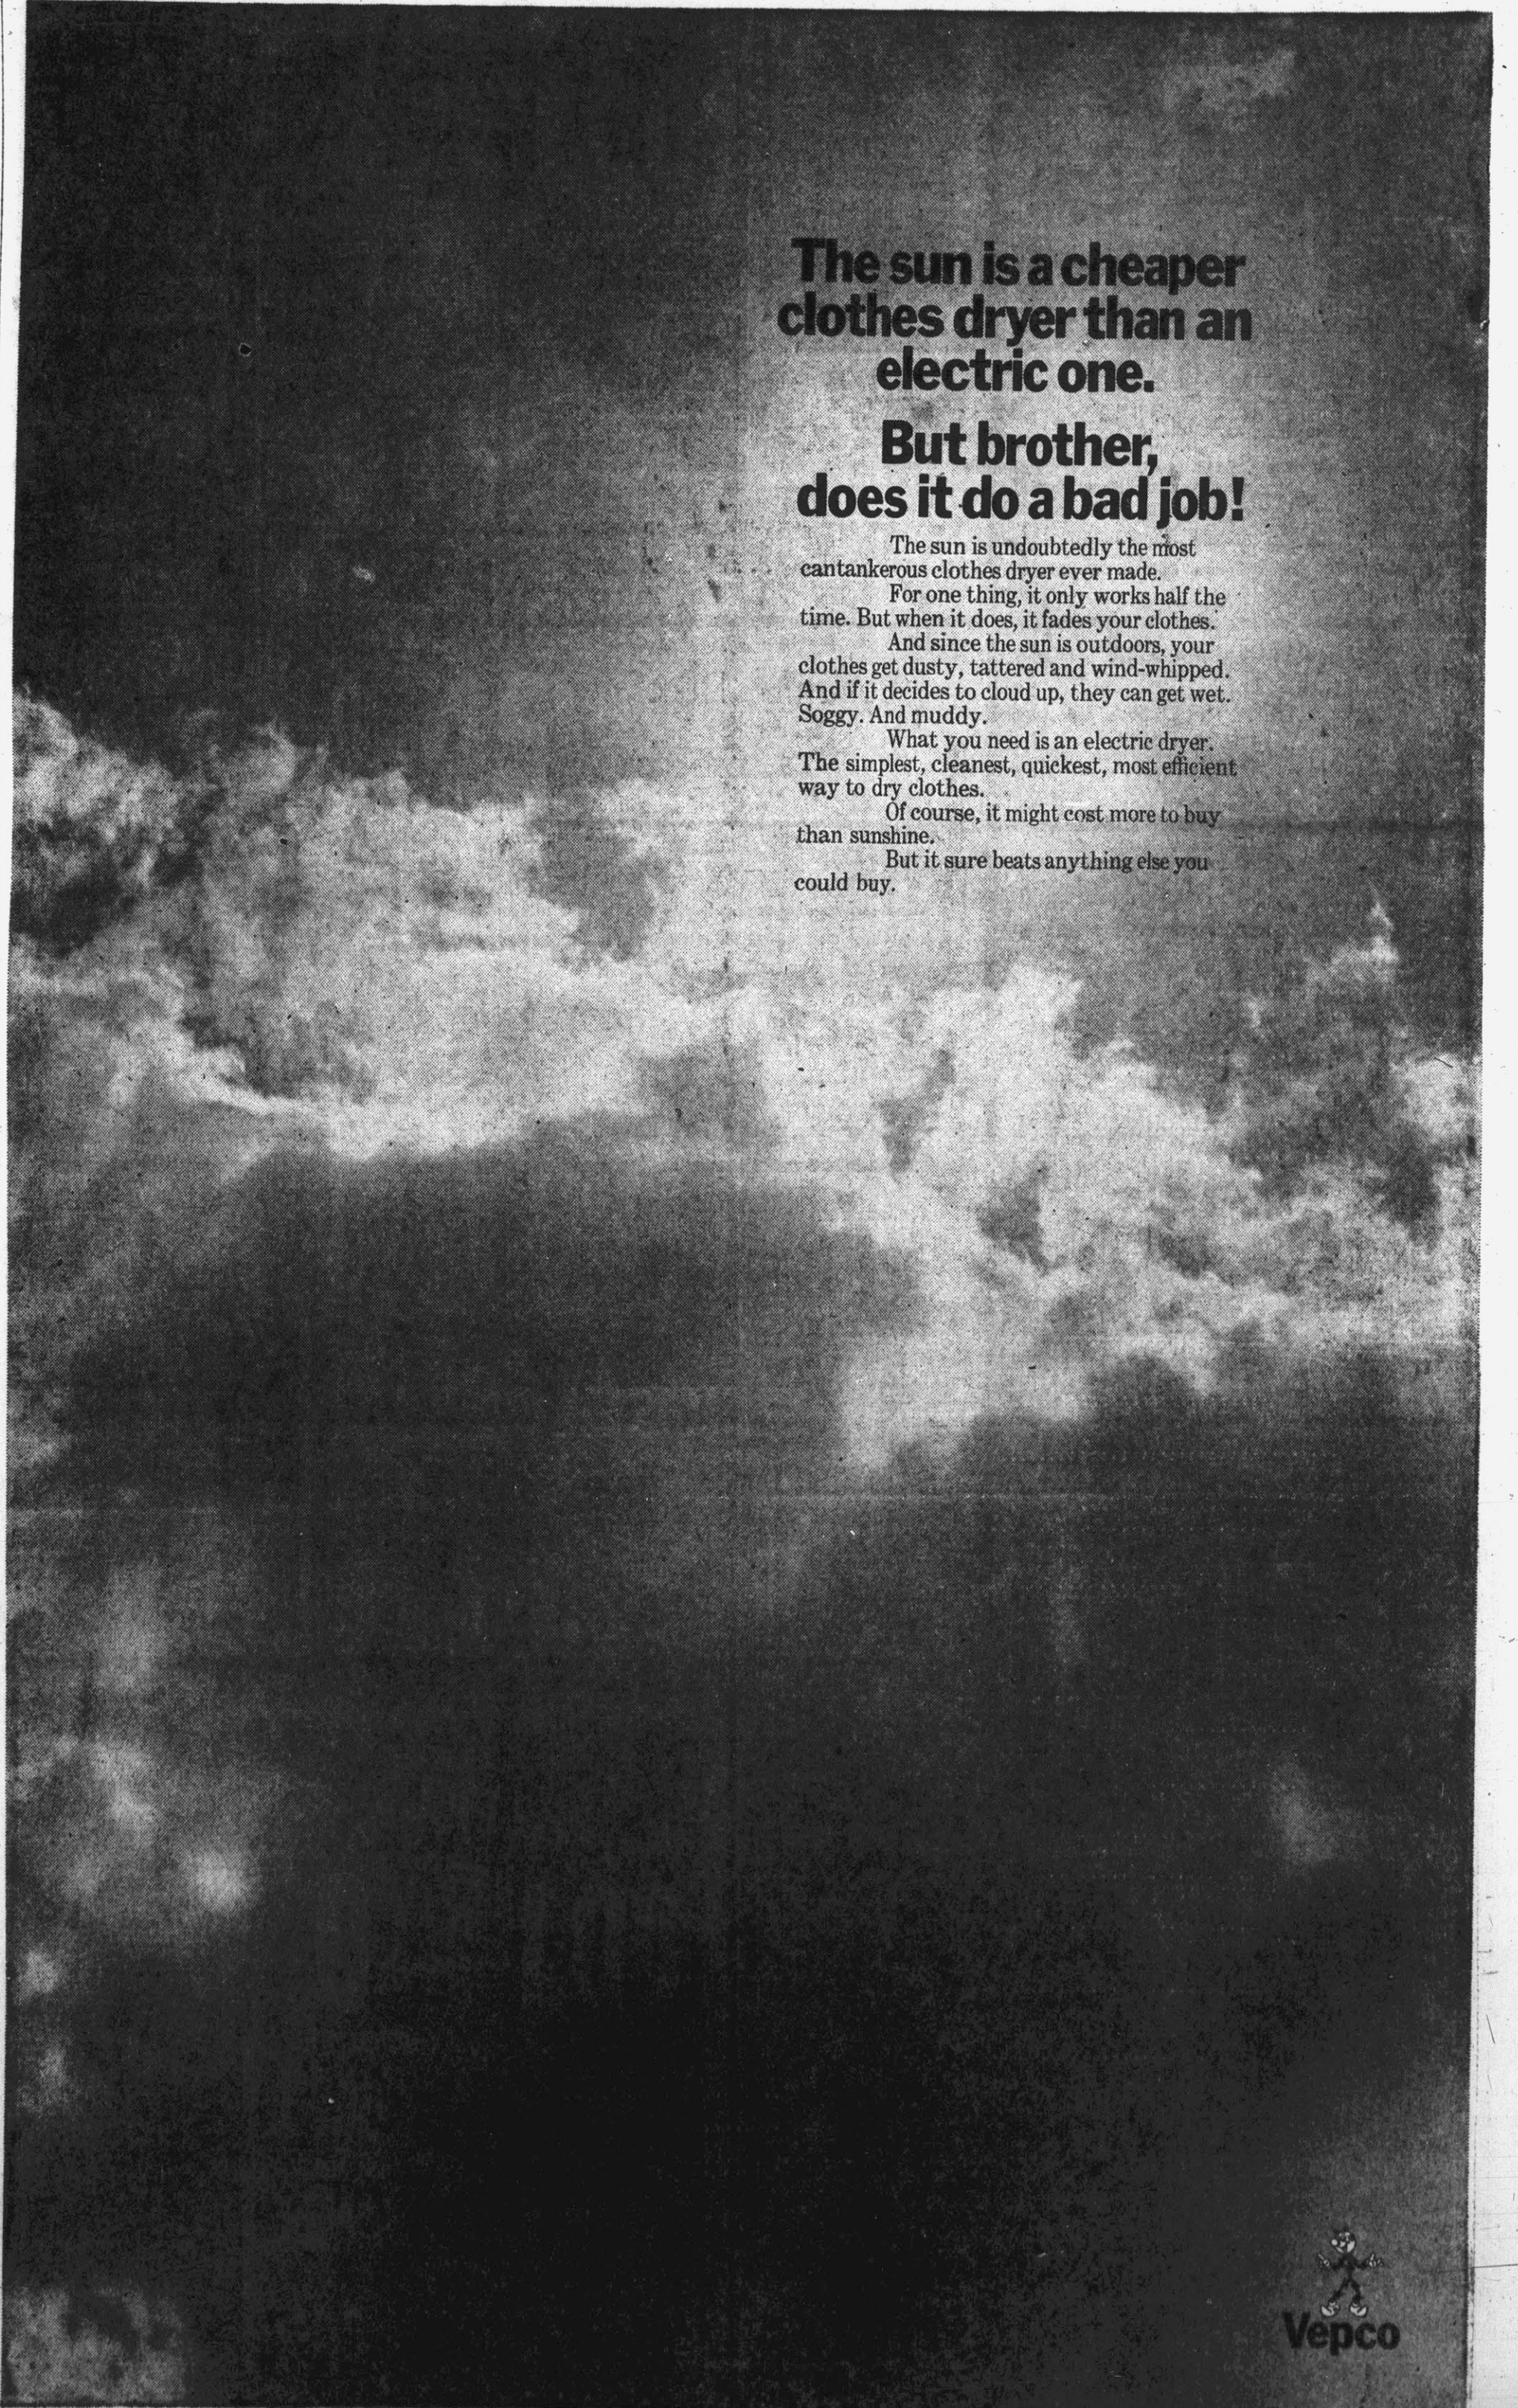

But brother, does it do a bad job!

The sun is undoubtedly the most cantankerous clothes dryer ever made. For one thing, it only works half the time. But when it does, it fades your clothes. And since the sun is outdoors, your clothes get dusty, tattered and wind-whipped. And if it decides to cloud up, they can get wet. Soggy. And muddy.

What you need is an electric dryer. The simplest, cleanest, quickest, most efficient way to dry clothes.

Of course, it might cost more to buy than sunshine.

But it sure beats anything else you could buy.

Moratorium On Dissent Is Handed Another Blow

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican call for a moratorium on war dissent suffered another blow today with the introduction of resolution by two Senate Vietnam critics urging withdrawal of America forces from the battle zone within a "reasonable time."

Unlike two earlier withdrawal proposals, the one submitted by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Mark O. Hatfield R-Ore., does not propose a deadline for an American pullout.

Instead, their resolution critizies the pace of withdrawal set by President Nixon—and asserts that the continued presence of U.S. forces can only postpone "the political accommodations essential to ending the conflict."

The Church-Hatfield measure, and the two other withdrawal proposals, appear to have no chance of Senate approval.

But together, the proposals are the starting point for a new inquiry into war policy planned by Sen. J. W. Fulbright's Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Its hearings, the first on Nixon's conduct of the war, begin Oct. 27.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers has agreed to testify in open session, although no date has yet been set.

The committee also has invited testimony from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Church said the United States has no vital interest in preserving the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu—or even in the preservation of a non-Communist government.

"From the standpoint of our interests, we have been fighting an unnecessary war for five long years, making it possibly the most disastrous mistake in the history of American foreign policy," Church said. "It can never be vindicated, it can only be liquidated."

Democratic Sens. Harold Hughes of Iowa and Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri Tuesday proposed a resolution calling for U.S. withdrawal unless the Saigon government undertakes major reforms within 60 days.

The Church-Hatfield and Hughes-Eagleton proposals would be expressions of Senate opinion with no binding effect on President Nixon.

Introduction of the two resolutions indicate the antiwar forces have no inclination to tone down their criticism as called for by Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott. He urged last week a two-month moratorium on dissent to allow Nixon to test the intentions of the new Hanoi regime.

A third measure, a bill sponsored by Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., imposes a Dec. 1, 1970, deadline on American withdrawal. It would become law if passed by both the Senate and House and signed by Nixon.

Williamston Town Board Favors Sales Tax Boost

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Town Board members, meeting Monday night, were unanimous in approval of a one-cent sales tax due for vote on November 4.

Other items considered by the town board members were:

—A request from a delegation of parents to establish a cross-over for school children on the newly widened highway U.S. 17 in the city limits. The four-lane street, which runs in front of the E.J. Hayes School, is difficult to cross in safety, according to the delegation of parents. Members assured the parents this matter would be taken up with members of the State Highway Commission, which has responsibility for any changes in street patterns of this road.

—Heard a report from mFire Chief Morris Stalls, who discussed numerous complaints of rust in the water supply of the southeast section of town. It has been determined that this condition is the result of old cast iron pipes used in that area. Town Clerk J.B. Godwin and the Water Commission were directed to contact the State Board of Health for assistance in a solution to the rust problem.

—Announced a public hearing in November as the result of a request by W. F. and Mary Coppage to rezone the south side of the 500 block of West Main Street from residential to downtown commercial.

—Deferred until a later date the possibility of hiring a Code Enforcement Officer for the town of Williamston. Mayor N. C. Green read a letter on this subject, and pointed out that an enforcement officer is a requirement in order to get benefits accruable under the Workable Program of federal assistance.

THE BIRTH OF A BLIMP

Three gentle giants of the air — the Goodyear airships — float their friendly greetings above America with less frenzy and a more disarming approach than many another form of public relations.

They are the only "blimps" now operating in any part of the world. But gas-filled dirigibles have been flying for over a hundred years, longer than any winged aircraft. Goodyear has built 298 of these lighter-than-air craft since 1917, 53 for the company and the rest for the Army and Navy, who have now ceased airship operations.

The last-built of the present elephantine trio, the "America," completed in the summer of 1969, is part of an expansion and improvement program for the blimp fleet. The America's ponderously graceful sisters are the Mayflower, launched late last year, and the Columbia, soon to be replaced by a brand-new version. They are all named for winners of the America's Cup yacht race.

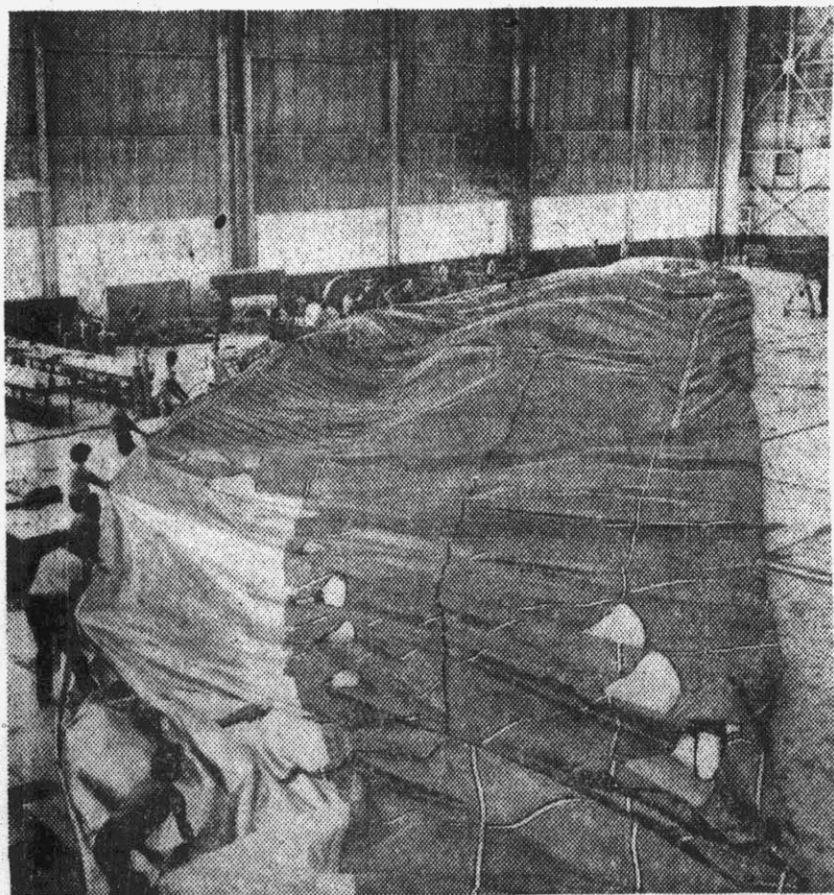

This Picture Show page tells the story of the building of the America — an over-sized sewing and blowing-up job. The new blimp is 192 feet long, 50 feet wide and 59½ feet high. Its envelope is made of neoprene-coated dacron, and is filled with 202,700 cubic feet of nonflammable helium.

The airships tour the United States from May to October (from November to April they are at their winter bases). By day they visit sports events, civic functions, great city parades, village shows, country fairs, company picnics, clambakes. Besides taking passengers up for short joyrides, a lot of flying time is spent in public service, helping government agencies research programs, with survey work, for example.

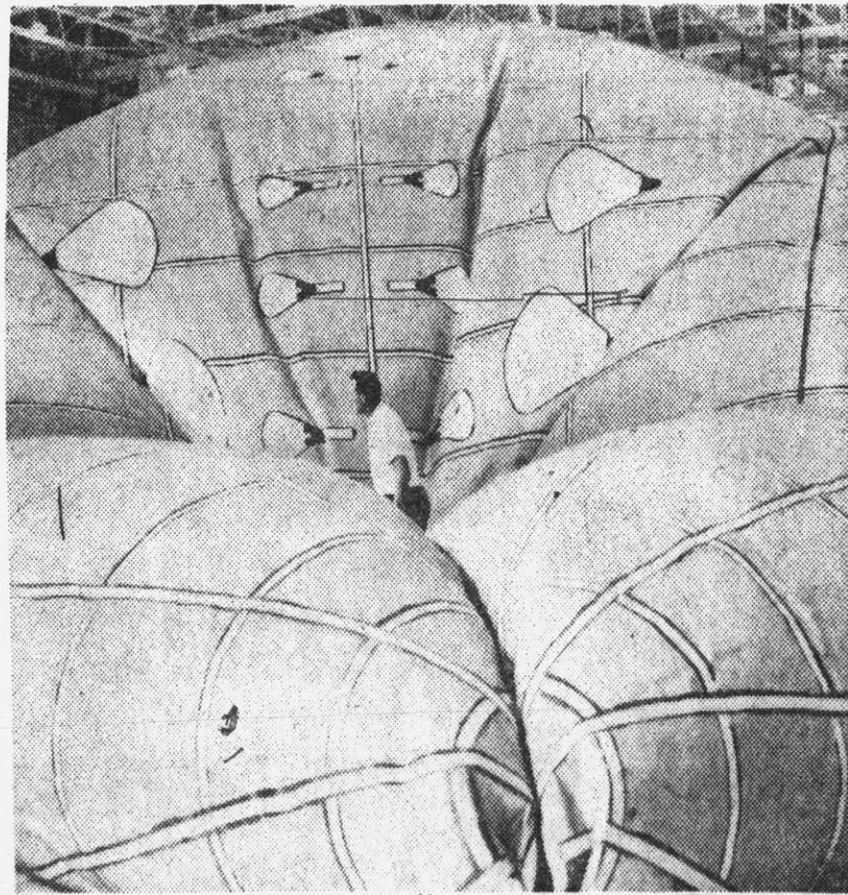

By night, the "Skytacular" panels of lights attached to the airships' ample sides sing in flashing color through the dark skies. The America's animated signs are composed of 7,560 computer-controlled bulbs in colored reflectors, connected by 80 miles of wiring. The night signs are used to support public service programs, such as United Fund drives and Savings Bond campaigns, as well as to present Goodyear messages.

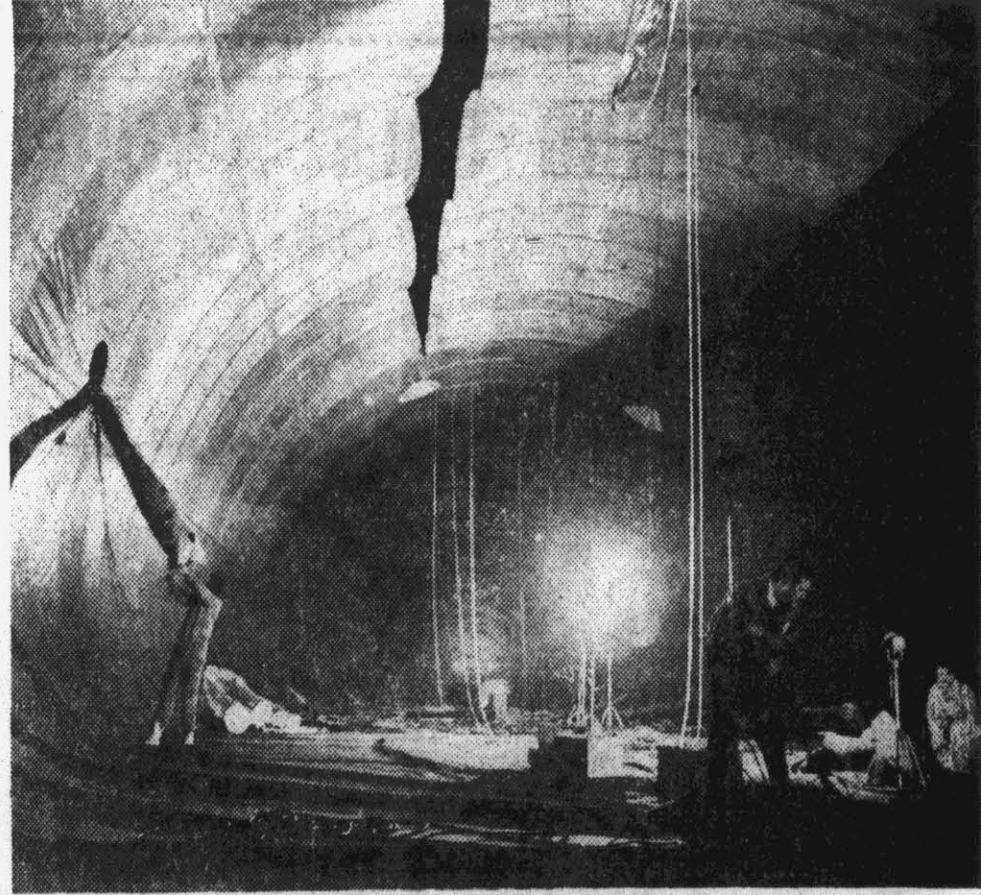

Columbia (left) and Mayflower are soon to welcome to public life a third sister, the new blimp "America."

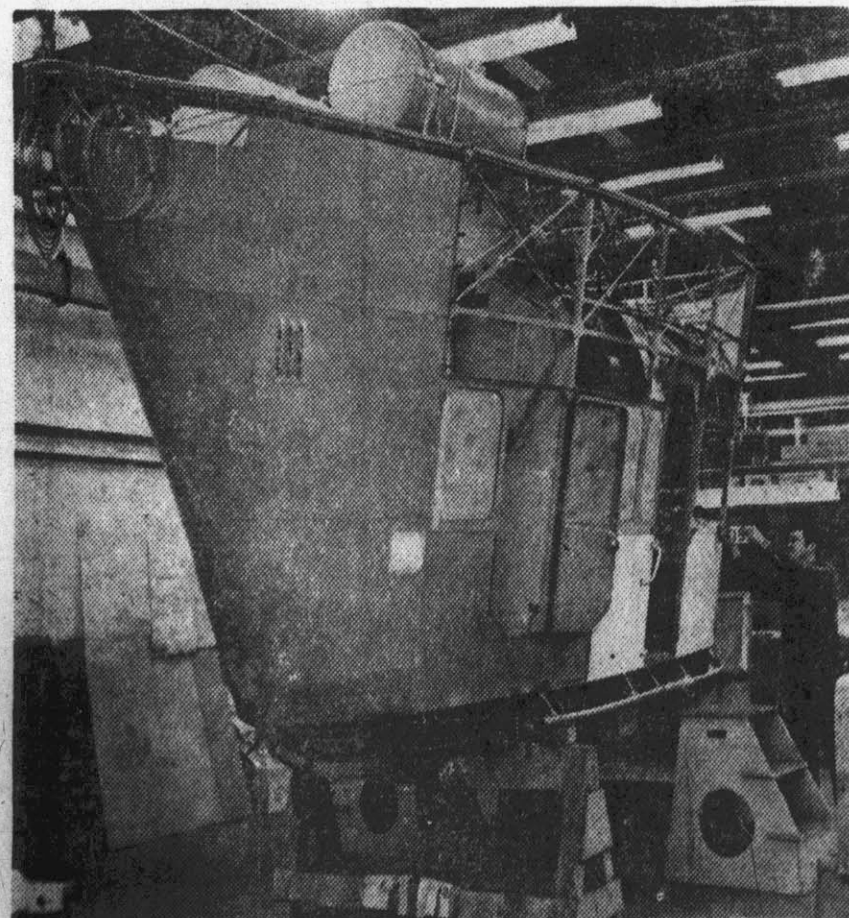

The America's envelope of neoprene-coated Dacron has been cut and stitched and is now ready for inflation.

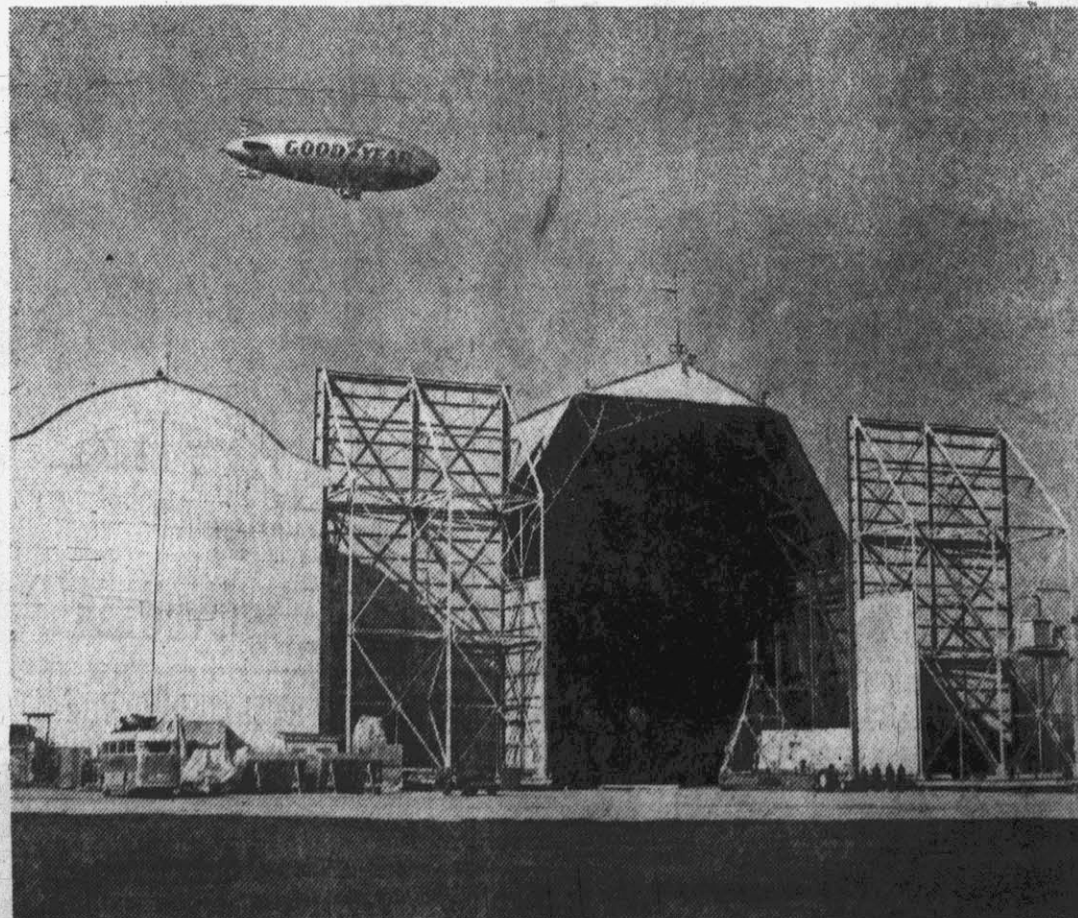

Partially inflated, like a giant pillow, the envelope bears markings showing where rudder and fins will be attached.

In the America's cave-like interior skilled riggers install cables which will secure the gondola to the envelope.

The America's lightweight car, or gondola, will carry six passengers and a pilot, when completed.

The America's maiden flight takes place over the Goodyear Aerospace Corporation facilities at Wingfoot Lake, Ohio.

Joel Chamberlain (left) and John Moran, two of the America's pilots, plan routes for further test flights.

Offer Students Opportunity 'To Change World'

By BARBARA CRANHAM EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Officials at Michigan State University are hoping students dissatisfied with things as they are will march on a tiny office in the student services building this fall.

They will be volunteers to work with underprivileged and retarded children, teach English at a Spanish-American migrant labor camp, be a "big brother" or "big sister" to children without parents, and handle a variety of other assignments to help others.

"The student may be frustrated because he cannot find an outlet for his desire to have a voice in the world around him," John Cauley, director of the volunteer bureau, said. "We can make any type of social activity available that any student wants to participate in."

begin as an experiment because MSU educators feel the now-generation student is not satisfied with a football game weekend brand of social life. This same student is no more content with volunteer work that is menial, Cauley said, adding:

"We try for projects that last an entire term. We don't find one-time shots and we refuse to have anything to do with them. And we won't find volunteers for jobs like clerical work and stuffing envelopes."

"How are you going to convey to a student that stuffing envelopes is meaningful?"

"How are you going to convey to a student that stuffing envelopes is meaningful?"

Ten Thousand Volunteers
In its first year, the bureau fielded requests for volunteer work from 9,000 students. This year, with improved recruited procedures, it hopes to raise that figure to more than 10,000.

Most students apply for occasional work, but from 3,000 to 5,000 are scheduled for at least five hours each week.

One of the programs the department assists calls itself SCOPE. Volunteers help children from 3 to 15 with school work. They get to know them better through recreation.

"Sometimes for recreation we take the children to our apartments and teach them some things to cook. Otherwise, we go to the park, or the pool to swim," Mary Lou Cantrell said. She is the head of SCOPE, a senior in the MSU School of Education, and has helped design programs for children for two years.

Lease Own Playground

With their own money, earned from car washes and similar activities, SCOPE volunteers leased a small building from an East Lansing church and fashioned it into a playroom. Childish paintings are tacked on the walls and, while in operation, every bit of floor space swarms with scrambling 8-year-olds.

The students who volunteer for projects such as SCOPE are asked to give a firm commitment of the time they will donate and are made completely aware of the work expected of them. This cuts the dropout rate, Cauley said.

What type of student is a volunteer and do "protesters" become involved?

"A significant number have done volunteer work in high school," Cauley said. "Many are majoring in social work, sociology and education."

"But the protesters are too busy protesting to do anything constructive. We do have some who list SDS (the militant Students for a Democratic Society) as an activity. They are on the fringe of this organization, though, and like to become involved in inner city projects."

Message-Sender Of The Future

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new communications device that enables vehicles to receive printed messages has been successfully field tested by a firm here. First application of the "TeleScripter" will be in police vehicles, where it will have messages waiting for officers when they return to patrol cars after answering calls for assistance, according to the SCM Corporation.

Three Policy Items Acted On At Meet

WILLIAMSTON—Three policy matters were among issues on which members of the Martin County Board of Education acted at their meeting held last Friday.

Action was taken to adopt a policy of standards for selecting students for free lunches, in order to make the best use of funds available for this program.

Another policy matter, relating to supplemental driver education programs in the summer, was discussed and plans tentatively made for this program.

A third policy matter, hiring of adult drivers for school buses, was approved. At the present, student drivers are utilized. The provision for adult drivers is designed to cover a situation where the need might arise.

Atwood Skinner, an architect from Wilson, discussed preliminary matters—soil testing, site location, and related technicalities—with members of the school board. This was a general discussion in reference to future plans for building a high school in Williamston.

A delegation from the Farm Life and Griffin Township areas requested they be notified in advance of any plans to alter attendance zones for the county schools affecting their areas.

Freeway Ramps Said Hazardous

NEW YORK (UPI)—Many freeway accidents occur at the exit and entrance ramps of the superhighways, traffic safety experts say.

When driving onto the entrance ramp of a freeway or expressway, check the speed and volume of traffic on the main roadway and look for space that would allow you to safely enter the main stream of traffic. Then merge smoothly.

High Speed Air Cushion Cargo Ship Envisioned

By M. GENE MEARNS
NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—In the 1980s the United States maritime industry may be building and using revolutionary air cushion cargo ships, possibly nuclear powered, to cross the Atlantic Ocean in 24 hours.

They will be 100 m.p.h. highly-automated, shallow draft, container ships linked with land transport through terminals that do not necessarily have to be located in traditional deep-water port cities.

A hybrid of a boat and a plane, the Surface Effect Ship (SES) is expected to have as much, or more, impact on ocean commerce in the future as the Supersonic Transport (SST) and the jumbo jets of the 1970s will have on air travel.

The Army and the Navy are using small air cushion boats in Vietnam's Mekong Delta, and they are also in service as ferries on the English Channel and elsewhere.

As the developers envision the, the huge surface effect ship of the 1980s will literally ride on a bubble of air. Lift fans force air down beneath the craft's hull where it is held by catamaran-like side hulls plus bow and stern seals of flexible rubberized material similar to that used by Britain's air-cushion vessel, the Princess Margaret.

Mile-a-Minute
The Princess Margaret, a 130-

foot, mile-a-minute English Channel ferry, carries 254 passengers and 30 cars on her 40-minute crossings between Dover and Boulogne-Sur-Mer. Other versions have been built by British Hovercraft Corporation, Ltd. on the Isle of Wight.

This January the U.S. Joint Surface Effect Ships Program Office (JSESPO) awarded contracts to Textron's Bell Aerosystems Company and to Aerojet General to build 100-ton, 90 m.p.h. SES test craft.

Aerojet is working in California rocket research aircraft, in 1947 and Bell Aerosystems has the first aircraft to fly faster than the speed of sound. He opened an operation in New Orleans.

The Bell SES test craft will be 72 feet long, 33 feet wide and 25 feet high, powered by gas turbine engines designed for marine use. The Aerojet design calls for forward propulsion by water jets, while Bell will use propellers.

The technology learned from three years of development and testing of the 100-ton test craft will be used to complete an 800-ton SES by the mid-1970s. If all goes well, the first generation of 4,000 to 5,000 ton, 90 m.p.h. SES cargo ships will be built in the 1980s. After that, larger and faster civilian and military ships will be built.

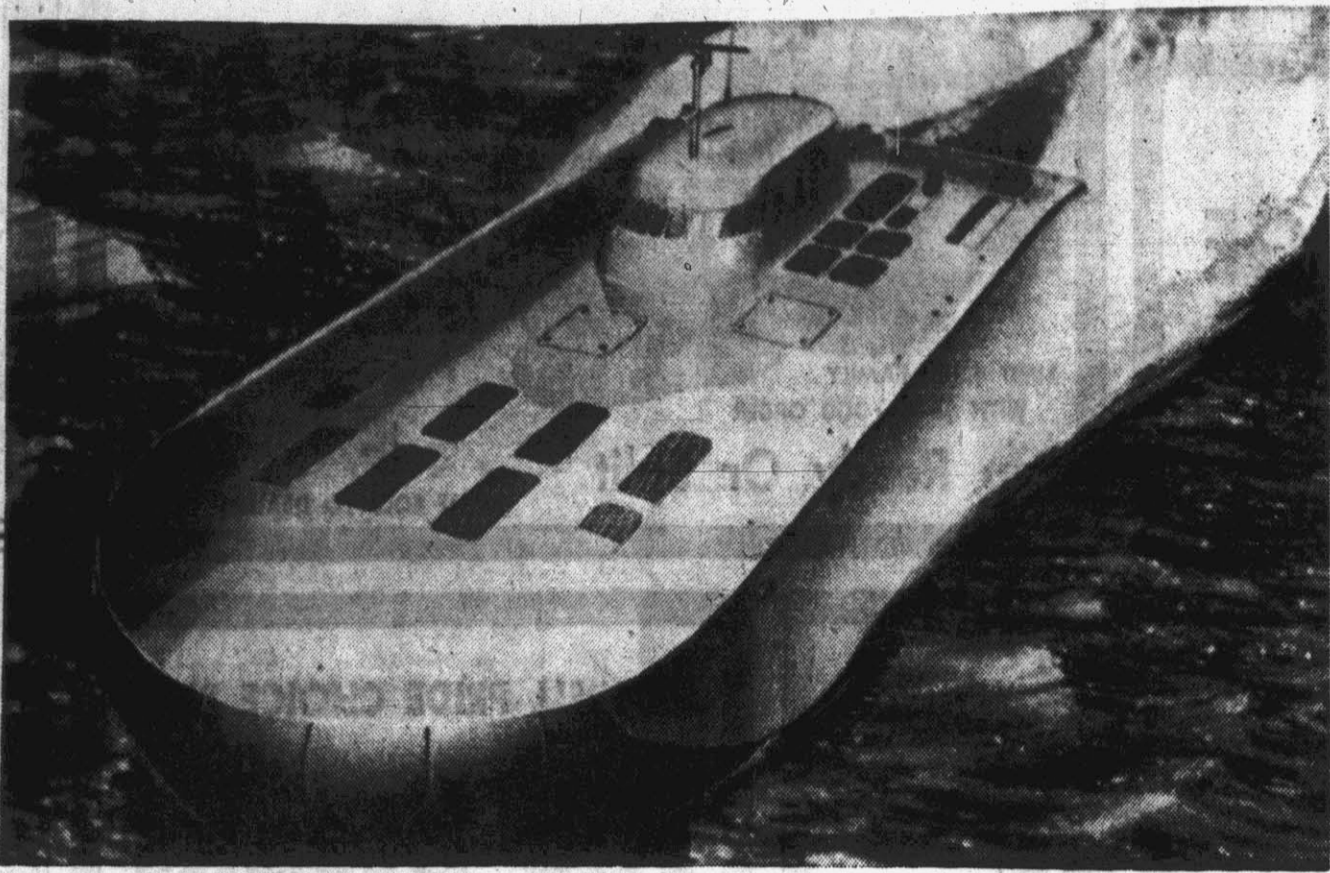

SES Tests
Bell attaches such significance to the SES test project that it assigned former Bell chief scientist William M. Smith as vice-president in charge of its 150-man New Orleans surface effect ship division. Smith was chief and the rockets installation engineer in the development of the Bell X-1 those of an airplane but will be aircraft carrier be built? more than a ship." "Yes," Smith said, "The bigger is there an upper limit to they are, the better. And the SES size and speed? Could an ultimate power source for the SES vessel the size of an SES is nuclear energy."

"The stability and controllability of the SES craft must be tested. It is like the X-1. We didn't know precisely what would happen with the rocket plane until we took it through the sound barrier. We don't know what the SES will do until we take it out in Lake Pontchartrain and the Gulf of Mexico.

"But based on our best knowledge, backed up by model testing, we believed we have a craft that will meet all objectives. Our purpose now is to find out how it really works. As far as we know there are no major unanswered questions."

Marvin Pitkin, program manager of JSESPO, recently was in New Orleans to inspect the design plans of the Bell 100-ton SES test craft. Asked about the cost of building and operating SES vessels, Pitkin stressed the SES is a hybrid of an aircraft and a ship, adding: "The construction and operating costs of the SES will fall below

TEST CRAFT CONFIGURATION, of the 100-ton Surface Effect Ship illustrated here, measures approximately 72 feet in length and 33 feet in width. It is designed for speeds in excess of 80 knots. (UPI Telephoto)

U.S.-Owned Historic Chateau To Be Sold; It's A White Elephant

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA (AP) — Napoleon's wife found shelter in it, 150 years ago; Napoleon's brother used it as a final stop on his escape route to America, and after World War I, it was the exile home of Austria's last emperor.

Today, the Chateau de Prangins is U.S. government surplus property, haunted by rats and threatened by dilapidation.

As yet, there aren't any "for sale" signs at the 18th century castle, beautifully situated on Lake Geneva near here. But the U.S. State Department has let it be known discreetly that the sprawling residence can be bought by the highest bidder.

In 1814, the chateau, originally built by a Swiss banker, became a haven for Marie Louise, the Empress of France and Hapsburg princess. She fled there with her 3-year-old son, the King of Rome, when Paris was captured by Napoleon's enemies.

Joseph Bonaparte, Napoleon's eldest surviving brother who briefly occupied the thrones of Naples and of Spain, bought the chateau in 1815 and lived in it for some time before his pursuers again gave chase. It is said that he escaped from Prangins through a secret tunnel to a waiting boat on the lake and eventually to a new life in New Jersey.

In 1919, Karl I, emperor of Austria, moved to Prangins. He lived there for two years, and there plotted an abortive attempt to reclaim the crown of Hungary. The ill-fated project led to his expulsion from neutral Switzerland.

Six years ago Mrs. Stanley McCormick, heiress of the harvesting machine fortune gave the chateau to the American government. Her husband had bought it in 1929, but neither he nor his wife used it extensively.

In the beginning, the government had ambitious plans for the gift. One plan called for the castle to be made into a temporary White House for future summit meetings in Geneva.

Another plan to make it the U.S. Ambassador's Geneva home, was discarded because the highway from Prangins to the city—14 miles—is too often congested.

The government began to have second thoughts about the castle, in large part because State Department officials felt Congress would not approve an estimated repair cost of $500,000.

The chateau, as an embassy officer put it, had become a "sort of white elephant of epic proportions." So, the government decided to sell it.

As word spread, private proposals were put forward to retain Prangins as a permanent site for conferences and seminars of junior diplomats, possibly also as an American cultural center with exhibitions of paintings and regular concerts.

So far, the proposals have remained without an echo, and no bidder has turned up. But the rats are multiplying and mold is spreading fast behind the closed shutters and the tarnished windows of an unwanted gift.

Babies Getting Instant Bottles

NEW YORK (AP) — A sizable segment of the U.S. baby population is deriving its initial nourishment from a new generation of pre-filled, factory-sterilized glass nursing bottles that need no advance "fixing" and are used only once.

The Glass Container Manufacturers Institute reports that more than half of the nation's 5,000 hospital maternity wards are using "instant" feeding formulas that come, ready to serve, in vacuum-sealed, sterilized, disposable bottles. With this system the nurse or young mother has no formula to mix, no empty bottles to sterilize and fill, and no bottle-warmer to fuss with. At feeding time she just takes the sealed bottle out of its case, removes the cap and attaches a nipple.

Coming soon—from Ross Laboratories, Columbus, Ohio—is a pre-filled, disposable nursing bottle of sterilized glass with its own "built-in" sterilized nipple. When the nurse removes its protective cover, the nipple is already in place. Tiny holes open automatically to let in the air, so the liquid will flow freely during feeding.

Age Is Secret To Her Banker

NEW YORK (AP) — Women between the ages of 21 and 35 are much more comfortable applying for bank loans now that they don't have to disclose their exact age. The ZIP credit application system in effect in banks across the country has eliminated this distasteful bugbear.

The ZIP system is a "rate-yourself" credit application devised by Motivational Systems, Inc., of New York. The company creates and designs self-evaluational credit forms and other marketing and motivational research material used by banks and other institutions.

ZIP presents the necessary data required from the customer in A-B-C category form, giving a multiple 1-2-3-4-5 choice on a short, fold-over brochure type application.

The borrower merely circles the number that applies to her in each category. Other age categories include: 18-20; 21-25; 26-35; 36-45; 46-64 and 65 and over. There are similar categories for marital status, monthly income, years with current employer, etc. The total box score of numbers quickly fixes her loan or credit standing.

Toy Train Leads To Big Trouble

BEDFORD, England (UPI)—It wasn't engineer William Blake's obsession with toy trains that annoyed the General Post Office. It was the 500 pounds ($1,200) worth of post office equipment he stole to build the toy complex. Blake, pleading guilty, said he stole telephones, cables and electrical goods over a five-year period.

New Firm Has Tips For Black Traveler

By DEE WEDEMEYER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In Toronto the place to get soul food is the Underground Railroad. In Paris, try Haines and if you are looking for a bar with Aretha Franklin on the jukebox just follow an American serviceman. He'll get you there every time.

These are some of the tips for the black traveler from Pride, a black travel agency established here two months ago by Mel Johnson.

Johnson, a seven-year veteran in the travel business, said he discovered the special travel problems of members of his race while in Europe as a young serviceman.

"Always the black face was missing," said Johnson. "... It soon dawned on me that the black man and woman was absent because he was protecting himself from the numerous inevitable social and personal indignities that awaited him at every known or unknown center." Some 23 years later Johnson opened Pride to screen tour areas to prevent embarrassment for the black traveler and see that he does not miss points of black interest.

"You take him on a sight-seeing tour and then he asks 'Man where are the brothers?'" said Johnson. "Where's the soul?" You know what he means.

"We are not saying the guards have to be black at Buckingham Palace or we don't see it. But we want to show them where the black people live in London and special things like a black artist who might be exhibiting."

ant Ruth Givens are checking a potential tour site they make sure blacks are not ushered to inferior tables in restaurants, refused a room in a hotel or generally are not received coolly.

But most important, Johnson said, at our with other blacks assures them of having companionship.

"A personal friend of mine went on a tour of Mexico with a white group for 16 days," he recalled. "No one asked her if she wanted to go out. They politely ignored her. It ruined her trip." Most OF Pride's first trips are going to the Caribbean which, Johnson said, now gets about 95 per cent of the black tourist trade. Miss Givens just finished checking out a Las Vegas-Honolulu-San Francisco tour.

And Spain, she believes, is on the threshold of becoming a popular place for black travelers because it is relatively inexpensive.

Johnson said the only place to which he won't arrange a tour is South Africa, where blacks are not allowed to travel, and to the southern American states, because Johnson feels he can't guarantee an embarrassment-free trip. He said he may arrange some trips to New Orleans for the Super Bowl this season.

A very bad trump break complicated what would otherwise be a routine game contract in diamonds in today's hand. A shortage of entries to the dummy made it necessary for the declarer to handle his assets with great resourcefulness, and his successful performance rates the very highest plaudits.

South opened the bidding with one diamond and, when West made a preemptive jump to three spades, he really presented North with a problem. Altho the latter was somewhat tempted to bid four hearts, this appeared overly drastic on so ragged a five card suit, so he finally settled for a competitive raise of partner to four diamonds. South carried on to game.

West opened the queen of spades which was taken in the closed hand. As a preliminary measure, however, South first led a heart to the ace and ruffed a heart in his hand. The reason for this play will become apparent momentarily.

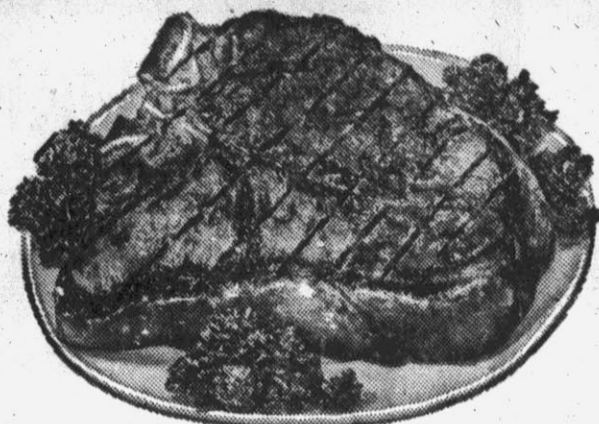

The ace of diamonds was cashed, and when West showed out, East was revealed to possess a trump trick. A diamond to the king put dummy in to ruff another heart—thus stripping East of his major suit holdings.

Declarer cashed the king of spades and then led a third diamond, throwing East into the lead at a time when he had nothing but clubs left. The latter exited with the ace and another club to North's king. A heart was ruffed establishing the long card in that suit, and dummy was reentered via a club ruff to cash the seven of hearts for the game-fulfilling trick.

When South led over to the ace of hearts at trick two, he did not know that the trumps were going to break badly but, at no extra cost, his fine technique laid the groundwork that was essential to cope successfully with the actual distribution.

Ambitious Plan To Rebuild City Changing Miami

The change is upward and outward for the nation's cities — caught between the needs of a growing populace and the ever spiralling cost of land. From Boston to Los Angeles, from Dallas to Chicago, cities are rebuilding decaying areas and uplifting worn and weathered faces. Here is the third of a series of articles on changing skylines.

The 14-story Roberts Building, opened last May, was the first major new structure on Flagler in 20 years.

By BEN FUNK, Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — A Latin revolution, the election of President Richard M. Nixon, a change in the habits of sun-seeking northerners, and a revival of confidence in the dying heart of a city are rapidly altering the image of Greater Miami.

Scores of enterprising refugees fleeing Castro's Communist regime in Cuba have taken over and restored some of Miami's most blighted streets, turning them into lively, colorful commercial avenues.

An ambitious plan to rebuild "from the ghetto to Biscayne Bay" has bolstered confidence in the core of the city. Real estate transactions downtown in the past year exceed the total of the previous 20 years. Modern, glass-fronted buildings are rising skyward.

Nixon's choice of his old hideaway, Key Biscayne, as the site of a vacation White House, has spurred a boom of spectacular proportions in construction of luxury hotels and apartments. The idyllic offshore isle, once inhabited only by a small colony of mainlanders "getting away from it all," will never again be the same.

And Miami Beach changes almost daily, as gleaming high-rise condominiums go up in response to a so far insatiable demand for second homes for winter visitors who once sojourned in the plush oceanside hotels.

Less than five years ago the central part of Miami, once known as "The American Riviera" and later as "The Polluted Paradise," had just about been given up for dead.

Strangled by traffic, bordered on one side by Negro slums and on the other by ugly, tumble-down piers of a decaying waterfront, it had lost all attraction to shoppers. Businesses were moving out. Many buildings were vacant.

Then in 1965, a Downtown Development Authority, with power to raise operating funds through a special taxing district, was set up to consolidate public and commercial interests in a drive to save the city center.

The noted Greek city planner, Constantinos A. Doxiadis, was retained to show the way. He came up with a visionary proposal that would free Biscayne Boulevard of through traffic and deck it with an elevated, palm-lined esplanade; establish a cultural and convention center, parks, marinas and high-rise apartments along the waterfront; turn Flagler Street into a shoppers' mall; beautify the heavily-polluted Miami River, and bring all units of government together in an attractive downtown center.

Whether the Doxiadis plan ever will be completely carried through is problematical. But the revolutionary idea of rebuilding from the ground up brought a big change in attitude in downtown Miami.

A modernistic 30-story office building put up by the Ferre Corp. on Biscayne set the tone for the new city. The First Federal Savings and Loan Association will top Ferre's building with a 32-story skyscraper on Flagler.

"Whole blocks are changing hands," says Lucius Williams, director of the Downtown Development Authority.

A start has been made on the Doxiadis conception. A modernistic marina is nearing completion where rotting docks once stood. A $25 million seaport with an ultra-modern $5 million passenger terminal has gone into operation on Dodge Island in the bay, and is becoming one of the busiest cruise ports in the nation. Ground will be broken in December for a 23-story office building near the port catering to international trade and transportation industries.

Since the Castro revolution, Miami's Latin population has grown to 300,000 and has an annual income of $350 million. First concentrating in "al downtown," they later spread all over the metropolitan area. The Cuban refugees operate 315 business houses.

The Tamiami Trail, or Southwest 8th Street, was "saved" by the Cubans, Williams said. It now is the Main Street of "Little Havana," bustling to the rhythm of cha-cha music and fragrant with the aroma of strong-Cuban coffee.

For many years, Miami Beach meant "hotel." In the decade following World War II, 56 major hotels were built on the beach and it was fashionable to frequent each year's "hotel of the year."

Those Warnings Are Old Stuff

DETROIT (UPI) — Warnings that that cigarette smoking may be harmful to your health aren't anything new.

According to "5000 Facts and Fancies" published by Gale Research Co. of Detroit, King James I of England penned this blast against smoking back in the early 1600s:

"It is a custom loathsome to the eye, hateful to the nose, harmful to the brain, dangerous to the lungs, and in the black... fume thereof, nearest resembling the horrible Stygian smoke of the pit that is bottomless."

There are about 9,000 known species of jellyfish on earth.

Peking Appeared Shaken By Rumors From Russia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
 AP Special Correspondent

It could be that Peking was badly shaken by what many interpreted as inspired rumors in Moscow that the Soviet military brass was weighing the possibility of action against Red China, perhaps even a pre-emptive strike against China's burgeoning nuclear arsenal.

Peking's statement Tuesday on the border situation suggested fright at the idea that there was more to the rumors than Moscow cared to admit. There seemed an agitated "don't you dare" note in the statement.

"Should a handful of war maniacs dare to raid China's strategic sites in defiance of world condemnation, that will be war, that will be aggression, and the 700 million Chinese people will rise up in resistance and use revolutionary war to eliminate the war of aggression," Peking said.

The statement was presented in the form of a letter to the Kremlin agreeing to new talks at the deputy foreign minister level to seek measures to preserve the status quo along the nervous China-Soviet frontiers. The talks are expected to start within the next two weeks.

The statement hastened to assure Moscow and the world that China has no warlike intentions and does not even seek the return of land it has long claimed was taken by unfair treaties in Russia's imperial days.

Moscow has denounced the rumors that a military move was being weighed. But one source of the rumors was Victor Louis, writing as the Moscow correspondent for a British newspaper, and that is certain to make Peking suspicious that the Kremlin planted the rumor.

The 41-year-old Louis, also known as Vitaly Lul, is a Soviet citizen with remarkable access to high places in Moscow. Western sources say he has connections with the KGB, the Soviet intelligence service.

Until Premier Alexei Kosygin visited Premier Chou En-lai on Sept. 11, the Red Chinese were all belligerence. In recent weeks, while they have still been prodding the Russians as "social imperialists," they have lowered their voices noticeably.

China has set off 10 successful nuclear explosions and probably has a fair-sized stock of weapons which could do serious damage to Soviet targets. But China would hardly have a prayer against Soviet power.

It is unlikely that the Russians want to act thus drastically, however annoyed they may be. To move might involve them in years of "people's war" that could make Vietnam look like peanuts. But they could throw a scare into the Peking regime and hope to muffle the noise from China which has become a major problem to international communism.

Dissatisfied, Hints FDA Shakeup Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration's handling of studies on the artificial sweetener cyclamate may lead to reorganization of the agency, says Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch.

"I am not at all satisfied with the present situation there," Finch said in an interview Tuesday. "I think it's just inevitable that we're going to have some rather substantial reorganization of procedures and personnel" in the FDA.

Nearly a year after FDA studies indicated cyclamates can cause genetic breakdowns in rats, FDA Commissioner Herbert L. Ley Jr. announced last week the agency was initiating a hurry-up study of its effects on other animals.

Finch said the FDA had come up with varying assessments of side effects on the estimated 175 million Americans who take the sweetener in products ranging from bacon to diet foods and drinks.

"We have appeared to waffle on it," he said. "Some have been overzealous, saying 'Sure, this may not be final or conclusive... but we still ought to run up the flag and sound the bugle,' and others have gone too far the other way."

Finch referred to a widely publicized experiment conducted by Dr. Jacqueline Verrett, an FDA scientist, in which 15 percent of chicks hatched from eggs injected with cyclamates had birth defects.

Dr. Verrett was quoted as advising pregnant women to use foods containing cyclamates with extreme care unless further studies removed all doubts about their effects.

Ley has emphasized the studies still are tentative and that effects of the sweetener on lower animals might not be the same as its effects on man.

Cyclamates are found in such foods as bacon, chewable vitamins for children, medicinal syrups, gelatin and frozen desserts as well as diet foods and soft drinks. The FDA estimates its consumption will exceed 21 million pounds this year, with sales estimated at nearly $300 million a year.

The order followed a study last December by the nongovernmental National Academy of Science which concluded it had no "serious suspicions" about the sweetener's effect on humans, but recommended maximum intake levels for adults and children.

Protest Student Suspension Step

SANFORD, N. C. (AP) — About 60 Negroes marched toward the downtown area Tuesday night in protest of the suspension of some of their friends from Sanford Central High School, and were routed by tear gas.

"They threw a few bottles and we dispersed them with tear gas," police chief W. F. Thomas said. "That's about all there was to it."

About 30 youngsters had marched in the same area earlier in the day and were driven away by tear gas.

And a policeman had reported that three youngsters fired on his car with a shotgun at 1 a.m. Tuesday.

The protests grew out of the suspension Monday of three Negro pupils who had fought with white students at the school.

About 30 pupils refused to attend classes Tuesday and were suspended. They marched into the downtown area that afternoon shouting, singing and blocking traffic, Thomas said.

No arrests have been made in any of the demonstrations or in the reported shooting at the policeman.

Chiang Starting Third Decade Of Rule On Formosa

By LEONARD PRATT
Associated Press Writer

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek's government begins Friday its third decade on Formosa, proud of economic gains but concerned about its future role in the changing world.

The face of this island has changed greatly since the Nationalists retreated here in 1949 under the onslaught of Mao Tse-tung's Communist legions.

Taipei has grown from a small administrative capital with water buffalo in the streets to a sprawling industrial and commercial center of 1 1/2 million, with broad avenues subject to traffic jams.

American aid has all but stopped, after pouring a billion dollars worth of military and economic aid into the island's economy.

Instead, Formosa now has its own aid missions in 25 African countries, one in Saudi Arabia and three in South America.

The Nationalists are buying their own military equipment now, to the tune of $8 million a year.

But one thing, at least, has not changed.

The government remains under the personal control of 82-year-old President Chiang and his son and heir apparent, Chiang Ching-kuo. They and their advisers in the inner Cabinet of the ruling Kuomintang party make all major government decisions, and their decisions are final.

Strict anticommunism, support of Chiang's government and verbal support of the long-promised return to the mainland are demanded from everyone.

Many who dissent leave the island or wind up in prison.

Within this framework the government has built a growing, liberally run economy with business-wise tax and investment policies.

This economy has propelled the island into a position more independent and more confident than the Nationalists have enjoyed since well before World War II.

Government spokesmen still seek to keep Communist China out of the United Nations, but there is no longer a desperate tone in their voices. They are sure they have the votes to deny Peking a seat for some time to come.

And the island's textile manufacturers, with government support, are resisting U.S. pleas for "voluntary restrictions" on Formosa's clothing exports to the United States.

Despite this confidence, the government knows it faces challenges new and different from those of the last 20 years. One is the problems of prosperity. Though a worker's take-home pay is the third largest in Asia, it is still less than one-third of his Japanese counterpart.

Officials are also concerned about a trend toward Japanese control of Formosa's economy. More than one-fifth of Formosa's exports go to Japan, and officials are worried that any shift in Tokyo's policy toward Peking would deny them a market for a large part of their exports.

Formosa's youth, with more money to spend than ever before, are undergoing some shifts of their own.

Most are studious, wearing uniforms to schools where they study hard for university entrance examinations. Some, with few scholarly ambitions, take to triple-exhaust motorcycles and long hair. About once a month, the Taipei police run a dragnet and provide some of the youths with free haircuts.

Under such strict regulations, many highly educated youths leave the island as soon as they can.

Divorced, Wed And Sentenced

ALICE, Tex. (UPI)—In one day, Hector Estrada was sentenced to prison, granted a divorce, and married—all by the same judge.

Estrada drew a prison term of four years after a previous burglary probation was revoked. Judge C.W. Laughlin then granted a divorce petition that Estrada had filed several months earlier, and married him to his second wife. After the ceremony, Estrada was taken to the county jail to await transfer to the state penitentiary at Huntsville.

N. Carolina Week In Wisconsin

By Christopher Crittende
N.C. Dept. Archives and History
Written for the AP
RALEIGH (AP) — This is a sort of "North Carolina Week" in the capital of Wisconsin. The Society of American Archivists is holding its 33rd annual meeting in Madison, and North Carolinians are the stars.

Gov. Bob Scott was to deliver the opening address at a luncheon today. His talk deals with a matter of much concern to archivists throughout the country — the preservation of the records of state governors as public records. Gov. Warren Knowles of Wisconsin will welcome the Tar Heel chief executive, and Dr. H. G. Jones, director of the North Carolina Department of Archives and History and president of the society, will preside.

Jones' presidential address will be delivered Thursday evening. He is the fourth North Carolinian to head the national group. The others were the late Albert Ray Newsome and R. D. W. Conner and yours truly.

At the presidential banquet another North Carolinian will be honored—Adm. Alex M. Patterson, archives and records administrator, will be made a Fellow of the Society. He will become the fourth living Fellow from the North Carolina Department of Archives and History. The others are Jones and Crittende and Thornton W. Mitchell, assistant records administrator.

Mitchell too will get into the act when he speaks on Thursday on the appraisal of public records. Mitchell is a former member of the council of the society.

C. F. W. Coker, assistant archives administrator, is a member of the society's State and Local Records Committee and will participate in its sessions. Donald R. Lennon, curator of the East Carolina Manuscripts Collection at East Carolina University, and Maurice S. Toler, archivist of North Carolina State University, will be among the other North Carolinians participating in the Madison meetings.

North Carolina has always played an important role in the Society of American Archivists and in the archival profession in general. The state in 1903 established one of the earliest archival agencies in the country. In 1934, R. D. W. Conner the first head of the agency, was appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to the position of first archivist of the United States. In 1948 and 1963, Raleigh served as the site of the national meeting and in 1964, the North Carolina department won the first distinguished service award ever given by the society.

So the North Carolina flavor of the Wisconsin meeting this week is not new.

In Showbiz, But Aim's The Same

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Last year Roger Fisher was a professor of international law at Harvard University. This year he's still at Cambridge. In fact the gentle Charles River and the ivy-laced stone walls of the university stadium are framed in his office picture window.

But this year Fisher's in "showbiz."

He's No. 1 man—with the title of executive editor—of a national, prime time, hour-long, weekly television series called "The Advocates," which premieres from KCET in Los Angeles on Sunday evening (Oct. 5, 10 p.m., EDT).

But the transition really isn't as striking as it sounds.

For one thing, "The Advocates" was originally Fisher's idea. And he has had some familiarity with television as a moderator on several panel and discussion programs over public television's prestigious WGBH here where he now has his offices.

"The Advocates" is funded by the Ford Foundation and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Its prime aim is to discuss the burning public issues of the day in the most entertaining fashion television can devise in order to attract and keep a loyal audience which, Fisher hopes, "The Advocates" will encourage to change from passive viewers into active, concerned citizens. The program will be carried by most of national public television's 180 interconnected stations.

Excited Sailor Is First Ashore

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Seaman I.C. Rudolph Wacht was so excited when the heavy cruiser St. Paul returned Tuesday from Vietnam that he got ashore before the ship did. Wacht somehow wangled his way down the forward gangway before the St. Paul was fully secured to its two-story pier side platform. As he hugged his wife, Alma, the crowd of 1,000 wives, children and parents waited patiently for their loved ones. After the St. Paul's fourth combat tour, the skipper said he couldn't criticize Wacht. The young sailor, said Capt. Hugh G. Nott, showed "unusual ingenuity."
