Hanoi Delegation Avers U.S. 'Intensifying' War

PARIS (AP) — Hanoi said today that "the Nixon administration has not only turned its back on its peace promises to the American people ... but has even intensified the war of aggression in Vietnam."

North Vietnamese Ambassador Ha Van Lau told the 37th session of the Paris peace talks that President Nixon's administration is "continuing to follow in the rut of the Johnson administration's failure in Vietnam."

The Viet Cong delegate had said earlier the Vietnam war "has now become really Mr. Nixon's war."

The attack on the Nixon administration came as the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegations repeated their demands for the total and unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. and foreign troops in Vietnam and insisted that the United States "give up" the Saigon regime of President Nguyen

Van Thieu. Saigon's chief delegate, Pham Dang Lam, submitted to the conference President Thieu's call Monday "to discuss with the other side any matter whatsoever, including the question of a cease-fire, provided they wish to end the war through serious negotiations."

Lam said: "A genuine peace can be restored only when the Communist side abandons its goal of putting South Vietnam under Communist domination and sincerely agrees to allow the South Vietnamese people to choose freely their way of life without outside pressure or coercion."

Lam said South Vietnam "does not demand that the Communist side accept its position in its entirety and also does not totally reject the proposals put forward by the Communist side."

Next Will Air Kickback Claims

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate probe that has caused a general and a sergeant to be stripped of top medals is focusing on charges entertainers were forced to pay kickbacks in order to appear at service clubs in Vietnam.

June Collins, booking agent who packages shows for the Army's club system in Vietnam, was called today to tell the Senate's investigators subcommittee about charges that extra fees were charged entertainers by sergeants who managed the facilities.

The allegation that kickbacks were the admission fee to the huge club system was made last month by Ruben Noel, a singer and comedian who has played the Vietnam troop circuit.

Noel had said performers had to kickback $50 or 10 per cent of their fees.

He quoted one sergeant as telling him: "You're going to face some miserable club custodians who are going to ask you for kickbacks on shows. I know this is going on and there's not a damn thing I can do about it."

In Wednesday's testimony, senators were led through a maze of financial transactions by the MareDEM Corp., a firm a committee investigator said was formed by sergeants from illicit profits made in Germany. MareDEM was also the vehicle for squeezing more money from clubs the sergeants then were running in Vietnam, the investigator charged.

In a separate development, the Army said Wednesday it had revoked its award of the Distinguished Service Medal to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner. The former provost marshal is accused of using his post for personal profit and to protect the alleged leader of a "little Mafia" of top enlisted men—Sgt. Maj. William O. Woodriddle.

Last month the Army yanked the Distinguished Service Medal it had bestowed on Woodriddle, the first soldier ever appointed sergeant major of the Army, that service's highest and most sensitive enlisted post.

In terse announcements after both actions the Army said it had information the men did not merit the high decorations.

The Army's action against Turner, who now is retired, came shortly after Chicago police superintendent James Conlisk said the general lied when he testified Chicago police gave him 396 confiscated weapons for his own use.

Conlisk said Turner told him he wanted the guns for Army training and museum display and had signed receipts stating they would be destroyed when no longer of use to the Army.

Turner had admitted he sold "the cream of the crop" of the small arsenal to a gun dealer, kept the money and did not mention it in his regular 1968 income tax return.

Wednesday, Carmine Bellino, an accountant, said Woodriddle owned 14.1 per cent of the MareDEM Corp. He said the other principal owners were sergeants and former sergeants, all of whom had run club systems in Augsburg, Germany; Ft. Benning, Ga.; and Vietnam.

The firm was founded in 1967 and did 87 per cent of its $1.2 million first-year business with three club systems in Vietnam run by three of the firm's own founders, Bellino said.

He said other business firms selling goods to the clubs were put on notice they would receive no orders at all if they did not deal through MareDEM.

"Here we find a company formed by four master sergeants who have been transferred from Augsburg to Benning to Vietnam—wherever the action was," said Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Cuba Balks Over UN Agreement On Skyjackers

By TOM HOGE UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly's policy debate ended on a strident note Wednesday night with Cuba warning that it would ignore any U.N. resolution against aerial hijacking.

Cuban Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon Quesada told the 126th session assembly that Cuba might return hijackers under bilateral agreements but never under a multilateral agreement.

He accused the United Nations of remaining "deaf" to Cuban complaints over the past 10 years while the United States and "lackers" in Latin America had inspired the abduction of Cuban planes and ships.

Why should Cuba pay any attention to steps the United Nations might take on hijacking now, Alarcon asked, when the world forum had done nothing for Cuba in the past?

"What self-respecting government could accept these measures which really are exclusively within its domestic jurisdiction?" he added.

Alarcon spoke on a day in which an airliner from Argentina and one from Brazil were hijacked to Cuba. A total of 45 planes have been seized and flown to Cuba this year.

A mass exodus of foreign ministers to their homelands began today after the biggest general debate in U.N. history.

A total of 112 governments spelled out their views in the 16-day debate, one more than the previous record of 111 speakers set last year.

In addition, the assembly heard speeches by President Nixon and the chiefs of state of Botswana and Cameroon.

In marked contrast to recent assemblies, delegates generally avoided such controversial subjects as Vietnam and Czechoslovakia, but the Middle East received a good deal of attention.

Representatives spent much time on the problems of their own areas, both political and economic, and called for measures to increase the security of Europe and Asia.

Typical of the general reaction to the debate was the comment of Dutch Foreign Minister J. M. A. H. Luns who said he thought that private talks held over the past three weeks were more important than what was said on the assembly floor.

Luns said he had talked to 34 foreign ministers since he came to New York in September. The record, however, was set by Secretary of State William P. Rogers. He talked to 77 delegates, including Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko who met with him three times.

There was general disappointment over the policy speeches by the two superpowers. Delegates for the small nations complained that neither Nixon nor Gromyko offered anything encouraging on Vietnam or the Middle East.

Tobacco Sales Volume Down As End In Sight

The Greenville Tobacco Market yesterday averaged $67.57 by selling 398,25 pounds of leaf for $269,118.

The Wilson tobacco market continued to lead the markets in the Eastern Belt with an average of $75.77. That market sold 1,497,711 pounds of tobacco for $1,134,854.

The Rocky Mount and Kinston markets averaged $70.14 and $66.52 respectively.

The Farmville market yesterday sold a total of 531,260 pounds of leaf for $370,430.74 for an average of $69.73.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville market, offerings yesterday consisted of an unusually large amount of damaged tobacco and nondescript grades.

The top price paid per pound on the Farmville market yesterday was 95 cents.

So far this season, the Farmville Hobacco Market has sold 18,355,488 pounds of leaf for $13,277,543, giving an average of $72.34 per hundred pounds.

A tabulation of the individual markets in the Eastern Belt as compiled by the Federal-State Market News Service includes:

Table with 4 columns: MARKET, POUNDS, DOLLARS, AVG. Lists various markets like Ahsoskie, Clinton, Dunn, Farmville, Goldsboro, Greenville, Kinston, Robersonville, Rocky Mt., Smithfield, Tarboro, Wallace, Washington, Wendell, Williamston, Wilson, Windsor, and Season Totals.

Haynsworth Approved By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

Approval came on a vote of 10 to 6. Maryland Republican Charles McC. Mathias abstained.

A Judiciary Committee spokesman said Mathias wanted still more time to look into Haynsworth's record as a federal judge and into the financial dealings that have sparked major criticism of him.

Mathias took that position although Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said most of today's two-hour committee meeting was spent discussing Haynsworth's financial holdings, particularly his interest in a vending machine company.

Eastland said there was no discussion about when the nomination would come up on the Senate floor. Before the nomination can be officially reported to the Senate, minority and majority reports must be compiled within the committee and this could take several days.

The nomination still faces an uncertain future in the Senate. President Nixon, in the face of defections by two Republican Senate leaders, is continuing to stand by his nomination of Haynsworth.

School Will Ask Barring 'Outsiders'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Sanford city school officials plan to seek a court injunction to forbid all persons not connected with the schools from interfering with their operation. Sanford Central High has been the scene of three days of racial unrest.

Sanford School Supt. Kenneth Brinson said today an injunction request is being handled by the school board's attorney, W. W. Staton. He said all was quiet at the school today after classes were suspended early Wednesday.

Thirty-nine persons have been expelled or suspended from Central High this week, Brinson said. Three were expelled Monday for disorderly actions and 36 Tuesday for refusing to attend classes when told to do so, he said. The suspensions were for five days.

No incidents were reported today at either Rocky Mount or Asheville, where schools were the scenes of racial disturbances this week.

Advisory Commission Is Scheduled To Visit Area VOA Installations

By STUART SAVAGE The U.S. Advisory Commission on Information is scheduled to visit the three Voice of America sites here next month.

The Voice of America's director Kenneth R. Giddens made the announcement today as he and other Washington officials of the Voice and its parent agency the U.S. Information Agency, toured the VOA facilities here.

With Giddens today was Henry Loomis, former director of VOA who is now deputy director of the USIA, and Edgar T. Martin, engineering manager of VOA. It was Giddens' first visit to the giant transmitter complex here since becoming VOA's director September 5.

"It's quite an amazing installation," he commented. "It's probably the finest on earth . . ."

The local Voice facilities include, among other things, 18 transmitters ranging in power from 50,000 watts to 500,000 watts.

Giddens said the Commission on Information has never seen the Greenville facilities, officially named the Edward R. Murrow Transmitting Station, and their visit November 2, will give them this opportunity, he noted.

The commission, Giddens explained, acts as advisor to the President and to the Congress. "They have never been to this installation and want to see it."

The Advisory Commission, the VOA official noted, is composed of five members; among them its chairman, Dr. Frank Staunton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc.; columnist William Buckley; Thomas VanHuesen Vail, publisher of the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer; Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of The Denver (Colo.) Post; and M.S. Novik, radio and television consultant to the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO).

Appointed by the President and confirmed by the senate for three-year terms, the members of the commission meet monthly. Their recommendations are made to the director of the USIA as well as to the President and to Congress.

Louis Olom, executive director of the advisory group, said this morning that the Greenville visit is being held as part of the Commission's monthly meeting. The commission, he said, "wanted to be briefed on the VOA plant . . . look at the size and layout . . . the operation, and how it is managed . . ."

He said the group will fly to Greenville by private jet. Giddens, a Pineapple, Ala. native, spent several years as an architect and contractor in Alabama and as a real estate developer built Mobile's first completely air-conditioned shopping mall in 1967.

Until he assumed his VOA duties, he was president of WKRG-TV, which operates AM, FM and TV stations in Mobile.

Loomis, who has visited the Greenville operation before, is from New York. He served as director of VOA from 1958 until 1965, and was appointed deputy director of USIA in April 1969 after being executive director of Nixon Task Forces from October 1968.

Martin, VOA's engineering head, is a Princeton, W.Va. native and a Virginia Polytechnic Institute graduate.

He served on the staff of the Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force in Europe, as Deputy Chief of Security and Radio Countermeasures. Martin was appointed chief engineer with VOA in 1954 and was named engineering manager in 1958.

As engineering manager, he is responsible for research, planning, design, construction, operation and management of VOA's world-wide international broadcasting and communications facilities.

AF Cutback

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that five Air Force units in Vietnam are being demobilized and that the transfer of two others to Vietnam is being called off.

The headquarters said this would reduce the 7th Air Force's manpower authorization in Vietnam by 2,541 men, but an Air Force spokesman said about half of these represent the two F4 Phantom fighter-bomber squadrons that aren't coming.

The Air Force said that as with other units being pulled out of Vietnam under President Nixon's withdrawal programs, only those men who have completed their normal year's tour in Vietnam will be sent home. The rest will be transferred to other units in the country.

Medal Of Honor To Four Soldiers

Jacobs, Brooklyn; Sgt. Robert Patterson, Durham, N.C.; and Capt. James Sprayberry of La Grange, Ga. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subdued President Nixon presented Medals of Honor today to four Vietnam heroes. He said it was an opportunity "to rededicate ourselves anew to bringing the peace we all want."

The appearance was Nixon's first as a medals presentation in four months and came just six days before scheduled national wide protests against the war.

The President, speaking with unusual brevity, took no note of the mounting criticism he is facing for his handling of the Vietnam problem. But he did take a bow in the direction of the young people who are in the forefront of planning next week's demonstrations.

Nixon said that just as danger in war brought out greatness in the four Army men he honored, he said he was confident the challenge of peace—when it comes—will uncover greatness in the young people of America.

The Future Is Here, Now, Today

Would you believe a rapidly rotating film strip that can project letters and symbols on photographic paper? Or that computers can determine the length of lines of type, determine the proper spacing so that left and right margins come out evenly.

Or how about electronic unscrambling devices so that a number of teletype services may be transmitted over one telephone line at one time? Or direct facsimile transmission of reporters' typewritten copy to central computer centers where it will be converted by computers to punched tape suitable for use on electronic typesetting equipment?

If all this sounds like something from the future for producing the newspaper, it is time to take another look at what is happening in the publishing industry. Newspapers are going electronic in their production methods, and all of these things and more are currently being installed in The Daily Reflector's plant or by news services which furnish national and international news to us.

There are also electronic devices which determine the proper exposure in printing a picture and electronic equipment for developing page size negatives from which off set printing plates will be produced. Electronics will soon be used in controlling the new Goss offset press which is to print the newspaper.

The Associated Press and United Press International are now installing equipment which brings all their various teletype service signals in on one wire. Electronics unscrambles the signals so that each of the teletypes can receive the particular service for which it was intended. Soon reporters in state bureaus will transmit their copy by facsimile to an Atlanta computer center where it will be converted into punched tape and re-transmitted to the wire services customers.

Electronics is our thing in newspaper production now. Electronics is revolutionizing our field and The Daily Reflector is seeking to take full advantage of these new production methods to produce a better newspaper. It is fitting that during American Newspaper Week our new Goss printing press, Compugraphic computerized typesetting equipment and other specialized equipment are being installed so that in a few weeks we will be converted to these new production methods.

A Limitation To 'Open Door'

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH—Gov. Bob Scott has changed his mind on the entirely "open door" policy in state government which he promised, as a political candidate, to implement.

Now, as governor since last January, he feels that executive sessions—meetings of certain boards and commissions behind closed doors—are necessary in order to be effective.

Executive sessions, closed meetings, are repugnant to the press which regularly criticizes and castigates the practice.

lunch, then light a cigar and answer any range of questions. Dan Moore enjoyed the company of newspapermen on all occasions.

In fairness, so does Bob Scott. If he has been more secluded and "unavailable" it may be because of his aides rather than Scott himself. They have guarded him and, on occasion, shut him off from newsmen and certain lines of questioning arbitrarily.

The governor's press office in the Capitol has been a relatively idle and infrequently visited place because it produces little if anything of news value.

UNUSUAL—This situation is not really typical of Bob Scott.

As lieutenant governor—and prior to his election—Scott was extremely friendly to the news corps. His doors were open. He would grant spot interviews. He would invite newsmen to accompany him on trips. He would get a group together for lunch at a favorite oyster bar. The rapport was good.

From this close association Scott learned that the chief concern of the newspapermen covering state government was limited, arbitrary access to sources of information and the practice of holding "executive sessions."

Changed—What has changed? First, perhaps, Scott does not realize the attitude assumed by his top aides and staff members toward the press.

There have been reports of sharp differences of opinion, dispute and jealousy among those who surround the governor's office. Some of these feel that they have no real authority to answer or to relay questions and if so they are mere figureheads. Others feel they must screen all questions.

Others have decided that the governor usually is too busy to see reporters.

Some of these aides arrange the governor's schedule and have managed to include a press conference on an average of less than one a month since last January.

Planning Talks Will Avoid Any Confusion

The informal joint meeting which was held between the Redevelopment Commission, City Council and Utilities Commission Tuesday night was a good way to coordinate the work and planning of the three municipal agencies.

The boards got together primarily to discuss their roles in carrying out and financing the city's urban renewal projects. Even though this was not a meeting where formal action was taken, it was an open meeting.

It is well that city officials are willing to get together with the various boards from time-to-time to discuss various projects which are underway. If this is done on a regular basis, confusion and misunderstanding can be avoided.

Did They Err In Arithmetic?

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Did Uncle Sam goof?

As everyone learned in the second grade, it's quite easy to err in adding a column of figures. And that's just what some observers think the government did in compiling the unemployment statistics for September.

If there are no serious errors, then the figures are loaded with significance.

The Labor Department announced that joblessness for the calendar month rose to 4 per cent of the labor force, a sudden and very large jump from 3.5 per cent a month earlier.

Making the jump even more surprising is the fact that for the past year the figure had remained around 3.5 per cent, showing no real trend, and that in August it had even dropped a bit.

The September percentage could be correct, but some economists can't easily forget that in the past the government has changed some figures after totaling them up a second time.

There are other surprises: —Unemployment for white workers rose more swiftly than for blacks. The rate for whites went to 3.6 per cent from 3.2; that for blacks rose 6.8 per cent from 6.5 per cent.

—The average work week in manufacturing rose to 40.7 hours from 40.6 hours in August.

Both of these findings seem to contradict some generally accepted notions about the employment scene and are bound to occupy economists and analysts for many hours in search of explanations.

First, black workers generally hold the least skilled jobs and therefore have the weakest grip on employment. In the past, such workers generally were among the first to be laid off in slack periods.

The rise in the average work week poses a problem because logically it should have gone the other way. If employers are slowing down their activities, why should they be increasing the work week?

There could be explanations, but it will be some time before they are revealed. Meanwhile, considerable doubt will remain about the validity of the statistics.

If accepted as valid, the unemployment statistics could mean:

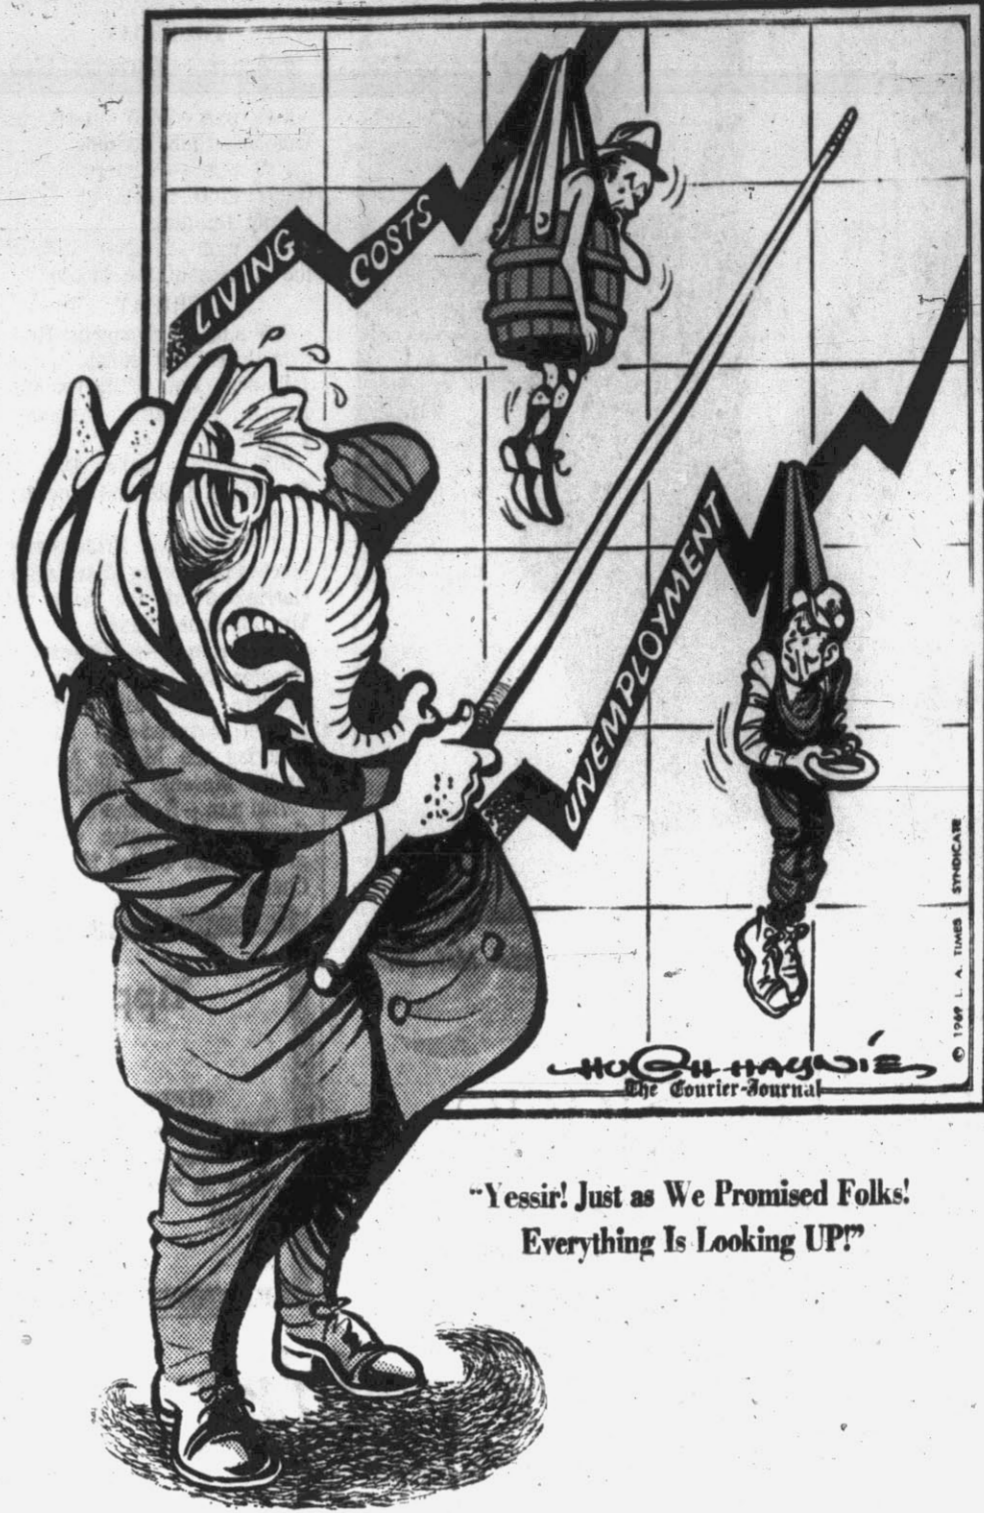

—Efforts of the Nixon administration to slow the economy are having an effect. Some of the other so-called economic indicators have shown little direction. The jobless figures point conclusively toward a slowdown.

—Employers may be making conscious efforts to keep black workers on the payroll, thus slowing the rise in black unemployment.

—The relatively slower rate of increase in black joblessness also could mean that job training and other efforts to upgrade the skills of blacks have had noticeable results.

Regional centers are only delaying the mails. For example, a letter postmarked in Franklinton the other day to an address in Henderson arrived at destination on the third day. ## Those Bygone Days

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Man can make machines that remember, but no machine gets the joy out of remembering that man does himself.

It is his memories, indeed, that largely make a man. They are food to his mind, fuel to his spirit. They resurrect his past and are his chief sanctuary from muffling oblivion.

For no yesterday is dead so long as it is remembered.

Your own album of memories is pretty extensive if you can look back and remember when

A boy could buy enough candy with a nickel to make himself sick.

Auto horns had rubber bulbs you squeezed by hand.

Grant's Tomb and the Woolworth Building, the world's tallest skyscraper, were Manhattan's chief tourist sights.

Everybody was sure there was an opium den behind every beaded curtain in Chinatown.

No matter what ailed a woman her first step toward a cure was to climb into bed with a hot water bottle.

A man was suspected of secret drinking if he habitually chewed Sen Sen, a breath improver.

It was a landmark in any child's education when he finally learned the multiplication table up to 12 by heart. Of course, in every class there was one smart aleck who could multiply 13 by 13 in his head and tell you right off that the answer was 169.

The honeymoon was over when a bride, in a burst of mistaken zeal, washed her husband's stinky pipes with soap and hot water.

For every mustache there was a mustache cup.

Kids yelled "beaver" whenever they saw a white horse or a man with a beard.

People thought twice before they bought anything that cost more than a dollar.

If you searched all the mattresses in a small town you'd find more money than was on deposit in the local bank.

Anybody who kept his front door locked was regarded as downright unfriendly.

Before going out for the evening, a man could read a long article in the Saturday Evening Post in the time it took for his wife to lace up her corset.

A juvenile delinquent was a boy who furtively dipped the long curls of the girl in front of him into the inkwell on his schoolroom desk.

People spent less of their lives hurrying to get to places they didn't want to go in order to do something they really didn't enjoy.

Those were the days! Remember?

Report That Rings Bells

WASHINGTON — In a town that lives on surveys, reports, and investigations—and usually buries them—it takes a phenomenally good report to rise above the crowd. Such a report came down three weeks ago from a special committee of the American Bar Association, assigned to take a look at the Federal Trade Commission.

The committee's caustic observations and constructive recommendations have been widely reported. In brief, the committee found that the FTC should be abolished altogether.

The bar committee's report, simply as a report, merits high praise on at least four counts. And because government agencies are forever being studied, from here to Caracas, these achievements call for a few hosannas.

First: The report was on time. President Nixon asked for the FTC study by September 15. He got it.

Second: The report was a brief. I was not superficial; it was simply to the point.

Third: The report was readable. It was not couched in the syntactical rubber cement that passes for written English in most such endeavors.

Finally, the report manifestly was the work of the committee members themselves, and not of some faceless "staff." Right down to a brilliant supplementary essay by Richard Posner, a former FTC lawyer who now teaches law at the University of Chicago, the report carried the bell-like ring of its authors' convictions. Miles W. Kirkpatrick of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee, did a superlative job.

What emerged from the committee's labors is a fascinating lesson in the anatomy of bureaucracy. The Federal Trade Commission came into existence in 1914. Today it employs 1,200 persons and operates on a $17 million annual budget. Its responsibilities for consumer protection are sweeping. John D. French, another former FTC lawyer who now practices in Minneapolis, remarks in a concurring statement that the FTC ought to be "the most exciting agency in Washington." It is the dullest and most contemptible instead.

Every fault know to bureaucracy turns up in the committee's dissection. One such fault is bureaucracy's obsession with trivia. Within the FTC, the only division that has functioned energetically is the Bureau of Textiles and Furs. In one instance, the bureau hurled the massive powers of law enforcement against a wretch of a coatmaker who had lapsed on paying of political debts.

Whatever may be said for or against a corporation, politics should be removed from the department as it is and then get away from the traditional pork barrel arm of politicians. The operation ought not to be a thing for office holders to toy with to their own benefit. Service to the public probably would improve if that consideration were removed as a vehicle for paying of political debts.

public still further. An independent corporation to handle the mails is largely theoretical in practical application. No one knows for a certainty just how it would work out. But this habit of increasing postage rates every year or two is ridiculous, especially when it actually affords no real relief or improvement. If and when postal deficits occur, they should be covered in the overall Federal budget, as all other expenses of government are met. The postal service was never intended to be a moneymaker, but just what the title implies, namely, service to patrons.

Strength For Today

COULD IT HAPPEN?

When the headlines were indicating that nuclear war was not only a possibility but a probability, a woman was heard to remark that she intended to buy bulbs and plant them with the confident expectation that they would sprout up in beautiful color the next spring.

We need certainly to take every precaution we can to protect ourselves from aggression. We would be tragically foolish if we allowed ourselves to disarm just because we know the horrors of war and regard it as diametrically opposed to everything for which the good God stands. We must be realistic. While there is evil in the world, we must be prepared to oppose it.

But all this we can do in a spirit of love and hope. Because we love peace we must take every means at our disposal to pursue it. We must protect ourselves, and our loved ones, and our ideals from the tyranny and oppression of those who would destroy human liberty. But we must do this not in a spirit of hatred but in a spirit of love and understanding. Life is primarily a matter of spirit and not primarily a matter of the flesh. We are human beings, but within these bodies of ours are souls placed there by the hand of God Himself.

Our spiritual natures must be preserved and cultivated. We must put this cultivation first. We must accept God's gift and above all the gifts of Himself and the sustaining power of his presence in our lives every day.

They Dropped Safety Features

By ELMER ROESSNER

While all this talk is going on about air bubbles to protect motorists in collisions, the Ralph Naders and the others who are trying to make cars safer are overlooking two safety devices that have largely been removed from American autos.

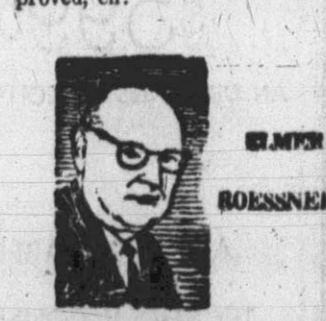

The first is the windshield that slants back from the top.

Many years ago tests showed that such windshields were both safer and more comfortable than straight up or slant-forward windshields, especially if they had cowling on top. Such windshields are easier to see through because less dirt collects on them and, what is more important, what dirt there is creates less glare.

You can prove this for yourself. Take any piece of glass out into the sun and hold it bottom slanted forward.

Every speck of dirt and grime catches the sun's rays and bends them back to you, reducing visibility.

Now hold a piece of wood over the top of the glass and slant the bottom edge back. Your visibility is greatly improved, eh?

And The Other Fellow—

Furthermore, windshields with the bottom slanted forward often reflect the sun into oncoming drivers' eyes. But, with the bottom slanted back, windshields catch less sun, especially if there is a cowling, and what is caught is reflected downward. Only rarely will it blind another driver.

But auto manufacturers have sold the public on lines, perhaps, but the saving on gas may be less than a dollar a year.

Another safety device is the old manually operated gear shift, whether it be the stick-shift on the floor or the gear lever on the steering post.

When an engine dies in traffic, it is possible to put the gear in first or second and pull out on the battery. But when a car with an automatic shift conks out, sometimes the best thing to do is to get out, get to the safety of the side of the road and wait until some other car slams into it.

Other Safety Hints
I have no figures on the comparative number of accidents per mile of autos and motorcycles, but my guess is that motorcycles are twice as hazardous.

For safety, the only thing short of outlawing motorcycles except for police and the armed services would be to require all motorcycles to have two pairs of wheels.

Wunderbar von Garfinkel, the old promoter, has proposed that auto makers bring back running boards, not necessarily for safety.

"What greater thrill was there ever than to have a policeman draw a gun, jump on your running board and shout, 'Follow that car!'" he said.

That never happened to me, but running boards were handy for cops to rest their feet on while they used their knee as a desk when writing a parking ticket.

Wife Should Make Own Friends

By ABIGAIL VAN DUREN

DEAR ABBY: "SAM'S WIFE" asked what happened to husbands who worked night and day after having accumulated a fortune. You replied, "They usually leave rich widows."

Not necessarily. Her Sam may stay healthy "married" to his work, but SHE may not be so healthy if she doesn't learn how to cope with that kind of husband.

I've been married to a man like Sam for 37 years, and for 35 of those years, aside from raising five children all by myself, I've been nothing but a housekeeper with bedroom privileges on Wednesdays, and I mean that literally!

My husband has been a good provider, period. We have never gone on a vacation together, even tho his net worth is now up to six figures. We have a nice home, nice clothes and our children (now married) are amazingly well-adjusted in spite of the fact that their father was always a stranger to them. (He still is.) He attended our children's lovely weddings under protest, and then sneaked away from the receptions early-to work.

He has no personal friends—only business friends. I gave up inviting people to the house because my husband always brought home a briefcase full of "paper work" to do.

So, tell wives with husbands who are "married" to their work to do what I did. Make your own friends on your own time, and good luck.

TOD'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: For two years now "Mr. X" has been living in our house. Some friends think he is my stepfather. Some don't even know he exists. Most of my friends know that my mom is a widow, but what can I say when someone takes me home and asks whose car that is in our garage?

ASHAME

DEAR ASHAMED: Don't lie, and don't feel that you must account for your mother's conduct. If someone asks about the car say, "It belongs to a friend of my mother." It does and he is.

DEAR ABBY: After sleeping with this 289-pound walrus every night for EIGHT YEARS—and that is 2,920 nights—count'em, I am ready to call it quits.

From the day we were married my husband has insisted on A DOUBLE BED. Don't get the idea that he is some kind of sex maniac because he isn't. He's just afraid to sleep alone!

I mentioned getting twin beds once and he had to bite his lip to keep back the tears.

His side of the bed is swayed back just like a hammock. My side is all right, but all night long he reaches for me and pulls me over to his side. I have such a backache some days I can't stand it and I know it's from that broken-down mattress. Don't say get a new one. It would be just the old one in no time.

Please tell me how I can get my husband to let me have twin beds. We can afford it.

ACHING BACK

DEAR ACHING:—Where have you been? SINGLE "TWIN" MATTRESSES with a common headboard (both king-sized and queen-sized) are available. Run, do not walk, to your nearest furniture dealer and let them show you their selection. They'll reply write to Abby, Box 69700, thank you and you'll thank me. Los Angeles, Cal. 90089, and everybody has a problem. Close a stamped, self-addressed envelope. What's yours? For a personal envelope.

Eight Men Charged Montreal's Violence

MONTREAL (AP) — Eight men were charged Wednesday in connection with the violence during Montreal's police strike, and insurance companies began to deal with damage claims arising from the five hours of burning, vandalism and looting.

Kilpatrick . . .

(Continued From Page 4) beled his fur, "S. W. Africa," instead of spelling it out: Southwest Africa. In another case, the bureau marched in full panoply against a blanket maker who advertised "90 per cent wool" in a blanket that contained—zounds! —93.7 per cent wool.

Another failing of bureaucracy is delay. In a typical case, the FTC began an investigation of Geritol in 1959, issued a complaint in 1962, issued an order in 1965, received a report of compliance in 1968, and lamely concluded, in March of 1969, that certain of Geritol's commercials still were in violation. Another case ran on for eight years of investigation preceding an order; then an appellate Federal court remanded the case for further evidence, on the grounds that the original evidence was out of date.

Still another failing is the incompetence of bureau chiefs, resulting from the stodgy practice of promotion by tenure alone. A familiar charge—vividly evident at the FTC—is that bureaucratic commissions often serve as prosecutor, chief witness, judge, and jury. Bureaucracy is marked by buck-passing, by internal dissensions, by professional jealousies, by spastic policy-making. The ABA committee found all these ailments in its diagnosis of the FTC.

If the report itself had a fault, it was summed up by Professor Posner: The committee did not examine the basic question: What is the need, if any, for a government agency charged with protecting consumers from deception or ignorance? But this is a large question of philosophy and policy, and probably was beyond the scope of the committee's assignment. In every other respect, the report of the Kirkpatrick committee is a knock-out.

School's Staff Now Deputized

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
All teachers and principals in the high school and junior high school in Asheville have been deputized.

Sheriff Harry P. Clay said they were sworn to the post Tuesday so they would be able to sign affidavits if they witness a violation of a Superior Court injunction forbidding the interference of the operation of the Asheville schools.

Clay said the move was recommended by the city attorney and the attorney for the Board of Education. He said both white and Negro teachers are taking part in the plan in the wake of a curfew and state of emergency that were in effect following racial unrest at the schools last week.

Meanwhile, in Sanford, all schools closed at noon Wednesday in an effort to calm the

Cleaver Book To Be Reviewed

A review and discussion of Eldridge Cleaver's book, "Soul on Ice" will be held at the Methodist Student Center, 501 E. Fifth Street, Sunday evening, at 6:30.

The review will be presented by Dr. Norman Rosenfeld, associate professor of English at East Carolina University, and member of a committee trying to implement Black studies at the university.

This forum is sponsored by the campus chaplains and is part of a series of "Black Awareness Conferences" intended to bring an appreciation of the aspirations and achievements of the Negro community. Competent people will be invited to lead future discussions on music, history, community action and other areas of Negro culture. The public is invited to attend.

occurred during the 16-hour walk-out Tuesday by police and firemen. The strike ended after the Quebec provincial assembly passed legislation ordering the men back on duty.

Cpl. Robert Dumas, 32, father of four and a 12-year veteran of the provincial police, was killed in a battle between cab drivers and employees of a limousine company. The other man was a burglar. A doctor surprised the man in his home, far from the downtown violence, and shot him in the chest and stomach.

Provincial police, who took over law enforcement during the strike, remained in charge despite the return to duty of the 3,700-man police force and most of the 2,400-man fire department.

Quebec Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand said the provincial police would stay until he was sure the city police were able and willing to maintain order.

Bertrand also said negotiations with the policemen's and firemen's unions were resuming in an attempt to settle the wage dispute that started the strike.

The provincial police arrested 96 persons Tuesday night. Most were released later, but eight were arraigned Wednesday and 31 others were to be charged today.

A spokesman for the city's largest plate-glass sales firm, Canadian Pittsburgh Industries, Ltd., estimated that more than $2 million worth of plate glass was smashed by the mob of several hundred youths who roamed the city's main shopping streets, breaking windows and looting the shops.

racial tension in its third straight day at Sanford Central High School.

Sanford city police stood guard during the day on the campus of the school.

Disturbances began Monday when police were called in to stop pushing shoving between whites and Negroes. About 75 Negro students left the school and staged a downtown protest. The group was dispersed with tear gas.

Three pupils were expelled from the school Tuesday. At Rocky Mount, police arrested eight Negro pupils at the racially tense Rocky Mount High School Wednesday. Most of them were charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Police patrolled the campus all day Wednesday, bringing calm to the school after two days of racial incidents.

The board of directors of a Rocky Mount community action organization voted to fire its top professional staff member, reportedly because of her activities in connection with racial unrest at the city's newly integrated high school.

The board of the Consolidated Councils for Improvement voted Tuesday night to dismiss Thelma Miller, 23, the group's chief organizer.

The CCI receives most of its financing from the Durham-based Foundation for Community Development.

A spokesman for the FCD said that its executive director, Nathan Garrett, was in Rocky Mount Wednesday to "look into the situation which got her dismissed and to check on the school situation, since this is probably concerned with it."

Actor Is Allowed Time With Child

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Veteran actor Cary Grant and his only child, 3-year-old Jennifer, will be able to spend more time together under a new ruling in Superior Court.

Grant's fourth wife, the youngster's mother, agreed to the revisions Wednesday. She is actress Dyan Cannon, 31. Henceforth, the 65-year-old actor will have custody of Jennifer on alternate weekends; one month each summer; half of every Christmas vacation and every Father's Day. He may visit her for three hours each Monday. Additionally, she will spend, beginning in 1970, alternate birthdays and Easter vacations with her father. Grant and Miss Cannon were divorced last year. Previously, the actor's visitation rights were limited to 60 days a year.

Decline In Cotton Crop Could End 'Tinkering'

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest estimate for 1969 cotton production showing a decline of 1.3 million bales since August was expected to put further pressure on congress to refrain from any tinkering with government programs which might cut into farmer incomes.

Agriculture Department officials predicted Wednesday this year's cotton crop at 10.5 million bales, compared with more than 11 million indicated the previous month and 11.8 million estimated in August.

Department officials had encouraged farmers to plant their full acreage allotments this year with the intention of rebuilding the country's reduced stockpile.

Now it seems that because of poor growing conditions the 1969 crop will provide less than the 11.5 million to 12 million bales recently predicted as needed to meet domestic and export demands during the 1969-70 marketing year.

Consequently, the nation's cotton carryover estimated at 6.5 million bales on Aug. 1—the smallest reserve since 1953—may be diminished further a year from now.

As part of the plan to boost production this year, the department provided no payments to farmers for taking land from the crop. In the past, these payments have been made regardless of crop failures and could be counted on to help defray farm expenses.

But now, despite price support loan guarantees and supplemental payments on part of their allotted output, cotton growers are feeling the pinch caused by the sharply reduced 1969 crop.

Thus, it appears likely that farm belt members of Congress—particularly key figures from cotton areas—will be highly skeptical of innovations proposed in farm programs which they consider the slightest threat to farm income.

The estimate made Wednesday by the Crop Reporting Board indicated an average cotton yield per acre of 450 pounds. This would be only three less than the average for the 1967 crop which totaled 7.5 million bales, the smallest in this century.

Production costs have continued to rise in cotton as well as in other segments of farming. And when average yields are cut sharply, farmers feel the pinch regardless of government programs.

The department announced next year's cotton acreage allotment on Oct. 1 at 16 million acres, the same as for the previous seven years.

However, the actual price support levels, payment rates and whether idled acres will be required have not been announced. A spokesman said these details may be ready in a few weeks.

Meantime, Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin continues to work with congressional farm leaders in an effort to design a new farm program acceptable on as many fronts as possible.

The present Food and Agriculture Act, which includes programs for cotton and other commodities, is scheduled to expire at the end of next year.

One of the major hurdles in designing new programs is growing congressional support for limiting government payments to individual farmers. Cotton payments have been the major target of the payment ceiling advocates.

China Appears Renouncing Large Territorial Claims

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China appeared today to renounce its claim to a vast area of former Chinese territory annexed by Czarist Russia.

Spelling out its approach to the talks that are to open in Peking "soon" to discuss border issues, Peking said in a 4,500-word document: "China does not demand the return to Chinese territory which Czarist Russia annexed by means of these treaties."

The areas involved are the Soviet far east maritime provinces, in which the port of Vladivostok is located, and a region north of Sinkiang.

In earlier assertions on the border situation, the Chinese had hinted they might raise the entire question of the legality of the annexations, which were carried out under the Chinese-Russian treaties in the second half of the 19th century.

Today, the Chinese asked only that the Russians concede that these treaties were unequal, and suggested that the treaties could help determine the entire alignment of the boundary line.

The document called for a new equal China-Soviet treaty to replace the old ones and a boundary survey to erect boundary markers.

Pending an over-all settlement, it continued, the status quo should be maintained by mutual withdrawals in the disputed areas. This proposal had been made earlier in official letters to Moscow after the Sept. 11 meeting in Peking between

Plush London Men's Clubs Lost Aura Of Power

By PETER J. SHAW
LONDON (UPI)—The atmosphere of power has all but vanished from London's venerable men's clubs where the elite pushed the British empire to its heights from deep leather chairs.

The vintage port and uninspired food remain legendary staples of the 50 or so major men's clubs still surviving in an era of dwindling membership, soaring operating costs and the evening lure of suburban hearths.

Women now walk and chatter in rooms of all but a handful of the palatial stone or superb Regency buildings in which whole governments have risen or fallen and reputations faltered or flourished.

Only two clubs, White's and Pratt's, have waiting lists of up to eight years. The rest have more modest waits or none at all. With an average member age of 60, many clubs have begun recruiting young members by waiving entrance fees and reducing annual subscriptions.

In the process, traditions have been bent but not entirely broken. The clubs are all but empty in the evenings though busy at lunchtime. It is a far cry from the days when a gentleman felt amiss if he failed to spend several leisurely evening hours in his clubrooms.

"The great chair of a full and pleasant club is, perhaps, the throne of human felicity," wrote Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Most clubs still pride themselves on retaining, or trying to retain, the classic London club image of "a refuge from the bustle and vulgarity of the outside world, a reassuring fixed point, the echo of a more civilized way of living, a place where people still prefer a silver salt shaker which doesn't pour to a plastic one which does."

Most new club members are commuters more accustomed to quick lunches and hurried business deals than witty conversation over a three-hour meal and gossip in the library. Nobody seems to avail themselves much of club libraries. The Carlton's secretary said "(former Prime Minister Harold) MacMillan was the only member who ever used ours. When the books were removed to turn it into a ladies' annex, we found the skeleton of a dead mouse on the shelves."

The point of a London club is still not who it lets in, but who it keeps out. Two ancient British ideas, the segregation of classes and the segregation of the sexes, dominate London clubmanship, but with decreasing impact.

The expense account boom has injected some new life into clubs willing to relax their interest in one's social credentials at the sight of cold cash. Businessmen, lawyers, advertising men and salesmen have found clubs an ideal field for operations. Membership has proved an invaluable status symbol for many and some clubs have eased strict rules against transacting business in the club confines. Stories about London clubs are without end.

It is said—a member of the Athenaeum, traditional retreat of bishops and distinguished men of the arts, sciences and public service, once summoned a waiter and said, pointing to a figure deep in the next armchair: "Take this member away. He's been dead for three days."

At Boodle's, an 18th century duke took pleasure in watching the damned people get wet through the club's large bow window.

Brooks's, founded in 1764, was the scene of reckless gambling by Whig aristocrats in Regency times. George Bank gambled there just once.

He lost well over $50,000 to Beau Brummel and had to resign from the bank.

Savage's for years was beleaguered by a member who defied both rules and got away it. He was E. J. Odell, an out of work actor with a white beard.

Odell, always clad in shabby black cloak and black sombrero, mooched Irish whiskey and cigars, ran up large unpaid bills. Finally expelled, he was members who displayed daring tolerance.

Despite such kindness, Odell never mellowed. One night, when almost 100, he found his accustomed chair occupied by the Duke of York, later to become King George VI, an honored dinner guest.

"Out of my chair, sir!" yelled Odell. "Get out! at once!"

The duke apologized and went off to the bar.

Odell died four months later. To cap their tolerance, members had a brass plate mounted on his chair, inscribed: "Here Odell sat."

Beefsteak members delighted in a pre-World War I tale spurred by the location of their elite club at the top of a dingy staircase in a seedy street off Leicester Square.

Police, seeing old men emerge from the club in high spirits each evening, began watching it and one night made a raid.

The first three said they were the Lord Chancellor, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Governor of the Bank of England. They were indeed.

"And I suppose you're the prime minister?" scoffed a policeman to the fourth man. "As a matter of fact—I am," replied Prime Minister Arthur Balfour.

Liquid Helium Poses Electrical Revolution

NEW YORK (UPI)—Helium, the gas that inflates blimps and balloons, can revolutionize production and transmission of electricity, scientists say.

They claim a 20-inch pipe filled with liquid helium will be able to carry more electric power than is consumed today by the entire city of New York, doing the work of more than 2,000 conventional cables. By 1990—when demand will be triple that of today—two such cables could supply New York's electrical energy, according to the Cambridge Energy Review.

These pipes would be placed underground, eliminating overhead high voltage cables. Since cost per mile is cheaper than today's cable costs, the helium lines would also lower power costs.

The Linde Division of Union Carbide Corporation thinks so much of the helium power line, it has begun a 12-year, $8 million development program. Helium also promises to play a role in developing new generators. One is the MHD generator, a unit that develops electricity with ionized gases and a magnetic field. Another is a helium turbine. The American Society of Mechanical Engineers says a nuclear reactor-helium turbine is being built in West Germany and will be operating by 1972.

Advantages of these new generators include lower production cost, high efficiency and dramatic reduction of environmental pollution, according to scientists.

Despite these new technological developments, the United States is conserving only about half the recoverable helium supply each year. The rest is lost into the air when natural gas, which contains helium, is burned as a fuel.

First Meeting Of Astronomers

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The world's first conference of astronomers was held in the year 503 A.D. by Mayan Indian savants at Copan, on the Yucatan Peninsula, according to Mexican historians.

Sixteen Mayan astronomers attended the conference, which was recorded in stone carvings on an altar. The Mayans, for whom astronomy had important religious and agricultural significance, knew more about the stars than the Europeans of their time.

Injured Rampants Seek To Snap Loss String

Rose High School's Rampants, coasting on a four-game losing streak, not only have to worry about another touch contest, but injuries pose added problems.

Coach Bud Phillips said that a number of Rose players have missed activities this week in practice due to injuries received earlier in the year, or in last week's loss to Rocky Mount.

This week's contest sends the Rampants on their longest trip of the year, to Wilmington, to meet New Hanover's Wildcats. Thus far, Wilmington has posted a 2-3 record. They beat Rocky Mount for their first win of the year, and later beat cross-town neighbor Hoggard. They have been beaten by Goldsboro, Kinston and Jacksonville.

"Their quarterback, Clifton Herring, runs the option some," Phillips said, "and they will pass some too. But we look for them to run the power play a lot, since Rocky Mount beat us on that." The Wildcats run their backfield out of a wing-I. "They'll probably throw enough to keep us honest, 10 or 12 times."

The running is divided about equally between two players, tailback Largo Weaver (5-10, 165) and fullback Tim Naifong (5-10, 180). "Both did a lot of running against Hoggard. Howie Edgerton, also a tailback, carried the ball a lot in that game too," the coach said.

New Hanover seems to lack a speedster in the backfield, and Phillips rates their speed as about average.

The Wildcats have a good-sized line, however. "Bubba Smith (6-4, 220), a tackle, is probably their biggest man," Phillips said. "On defense, Smith and Rick Barefoot (210), another tackle, lead the way." Wilmington operates its defenses from a 4-3-4 set, and Rose can expect to see the same type configuration. "It gives them the chance to cover against the pass, as well as against the run."

How good that defense will be against the pass is questionable, however, since Kinston was able to move the ball through the air against them.

Meanwhile, the Rampants worry over their injuries. Middle linebacker Lewis Gidley is hobbled with a leg injury, and may not be ready to go. Guard Ronald Cherry has a sprained ankle, but Phillips hopes that he'll be ready. Tommy Worsley has returned to work, but only in light equipment. Walter Gould is still out with a leg injury, and Greg Williams, hurt in the Rocky Mount game, may see limited action.

"We have worked all week on charging," Phillips said. Last week, the Rampants failed to get off a good defensive game, and it cost them a victory. "Our problem has been getting them to stay down. They want to stand up with the snap. We work them on the sled and they look fine, but when we put them head-to-head, they start standing up again. It's going to be tough enough to defense them because of their running and passing. Last week, we only had to worry about running." Phillips said that he believes that the Rampants can pick up their rushing game. "We stopped ourselves at the goal line last week with faulty blocks," he said. "We were moving the ball okay before that."

The Rampants know they can move the ball through the air, with Joe West completing over 56% of his throws. He has hit on 70 of 125 passes for 792 yards and eight touchdowns. Only two have been intercepted.

His favorite targets have been end Mike Harrington and halfback Johnny Smith. Smith has caught 15 passes for 187 yards, while Harrington has 18 for 326 yards.

The probable starting lineup on offense for the Rampants has Harrington and Josh Weeks at ends, Jay Hagans and Tim Leigh at tackles, Cherry and Steve Williams at guards, Tommy Bland at center, West at quarterback, Smith and Ronald Taylor at halfbacks, and Gary Singleton at fullback.

Defensively, the Rampants will start Tom Hodgins and Harold Lloyd at ends, Williams and Hagans at tackles, Willie Barnhill and George Harris at guards, either Gidley or Tommy Diggs at linebacker, Greg Williams, David Bullock or John Conway at rover, Weeks and Cliff Edwards at halfbacks, and Russ Smith at rover.

Pacers Slip By Cougars, 98-95

LEXINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Roger Brown's 27 points led the Indiana Pacers to a 98-95 American Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Carolina Cougars Wednesday night.

For the Cougars, whose exhibition record is 3-2, Bob Varga scored 22 points, Bill Bunting 20 and Randy Mahaffey 18. The Cougars were without Doug More, who pulled a muscle in a game the night before.

A three-point field goal by Varga with the score tied 93-93 and 2:23 remaining was not allowed when another Cougar fouled a Pacer.

Farmville, Ayden In Annual Clash

What could be the oldest football rivalry in Pitt County will move to life tomorrow night as the Farmville Red Devils play host to Ayden. Exactly how long Farmville and Ayden have been going at it on the gridiron is not known, but Sam D. Bundy, principal of the Sam D. Bundy Elementary School in Farmville and past principal of the Farmville High School, says the rivalry was there when he came to Farmville in 1947. Football fans will remember the Red Devil-Tornado clashes as highlights of past seasons. This year's could prove to be different.

In other area games this week, winless Southern Nash is at Greene Central for an Eastern Plains game, Perquimans is at Williamston, Robersonville is at Belhaven, Elm City is at Grifton, South Ayden travels to Carver, and H.B. Sugg host Patillo of Tarboro.

Farmville-Ayden

Ironically, Farmville and Ayden both lost last week by the same score, 13-12. The Red Devils fell to a tough Northern Nash team in an important Eastern Plains game, that might knock Farmville out of any title hopes this year. Ayden fell to Grifton for the first time in the school's history. Grifton scored their first touchdown ever against a young Ayden team. The Bulldogs scored both their touchdowns before Ayden scored, and Farmville scored both of theirs before the Knights tailed. Ayden came back to within one point, losing because they could not make a point after, Northern Nash made their extra point on a boot after the first TD to take their win. Both teams should be up for this one.

Grifton

The Bulldogs will go against Elm City, who fell to Robersonville 36-10 last week. Grifton's ground game really came through last week, and Elm City will have a tough game on its hands, as the Tobacco Belt is beginning to tighten up going down the stretch for this season.

Robersonville

The Rams' ground game came through last week. The Rams broke a cycle theory with their win, as they were 2-2 when they beat Elm City. Having lost their first, won their second, lost the third, and won the fourth. They will be traveling to Belhaven this week, with top position in the conference on their side.

Williamston

Robersonville's past ground game trouble must have traveled down highway 64 to neighboring Williamston, as the Green Wave has dropped their past three games, with ailing rushing games. Last week they fell to Roanoke Rapids 9-0, ending the game with a total of 19

A PRODUCTIVE RIDE

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — John Giovanni hopes he's headed for one of his most productive years in racing following his first victory in a $100,000 race. He led juvenile John, a 4-year-old brown colt, to an upset triumph in the John B. Campbell Handicap at Bowie on March 1.

The Maryland-bred son of Assemblyman earned $74,815 for his owner, John Hershberger of Barnesville, Md. Ten per cent of the purse went to Giovanni for his ride during a snowstorm. The winner returned $30.80.

Meet The Rampants

Sidney Hardee, left, and Hubert Arthur are two members of this year's Rose High School football team. Hardee, a 6-0, 195-pound junior is the son of Worth B. Hardee. He has seen action as a tackle in reserve.

Arthur, a 6-2, 185-pound senior, has seen action at the defensive end spot. The Rampants travel to Wilmington on Friday to meet New Hanover's Wildcats. (Reflector Photos)

Any Eastern Plains title hopes the Rams might have had were dimmed last week when they fell to Southern Wayne 26-6. Greene Central went into the game with a 2-0 conference mark, tied for first, and came out in third. Southern Nash will visit the Rams. To say things have not been going well for Southern Nash would be an understatement. They have not won a football game since the opening of the school. Their loss to Hobbton last week, 13-6, was their 15th in a row. The possibility of their 16th in a row is very good this week.

H.B. Sugg

Speaking of losing streaks, the Lions are 0-5 this year, dropping their last one to the Henderson Institute 8-0. They will host Patillo of Tarboro in a district game. Sugg had four scoring opportunities in their game against Henderson, and saw all four snuffed out due to penalties.

South Ayden

The Eagles will travel to Carver this week, coming off a win over Brawley 20-0 last Saturday. The Eagles had to postpone their Friday night game when the football field lights went out.

Many Similarities Seen In Met Hopes, Jet Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Just 80 feet down the tunnel from the Mets' noisy dressing room under Shea Stadium, George Sauer sat in the Jets' quiet clubhouse and pointed to one of the major similarities between New York's two championship teams:

"We both have pitching staffs."

The reference, of course, was to the Mets' pitching corps, led by Tom Seaver and Jerry Koosman, and to the Jets' quarterback, Joe Namath, whose passes to Sauer set up the Jets' victory over Baltimore in the Super Bowl last January.

The made the Jets the toast of the town, but suddenly they have found themselves orphaned and forgotten, a victim of the Mets' success—forced to workout at a prison while Shea Stadium is maintained for baseball and almost totally forgotten by those who adored them most just months ago.

But despite the fact that they have surrendered the spotlight and lost their No. 1 position in the eyes of New York fans they have become somewhat of a point of reference for those hoping the Mets can upset the odds and beat Baltimore in the World Series.

The pitching staffs cited by Sauer are just one of the many similarities that keep arising in discussions comparing the Mets and the Jets.

They both surprised by winning their respective league titles, they both went into the championships—the Super Bowl in the Jets' case and the World Series in the Mets' case—as underdogs and both faced Bal-more teams.

The Jets' won, and that end result is not lost on those who note the similarities.

"Just like us they've won their league title," said Sauer, joining in the similarity discussion, "and now they want to prove they're the best. They certainly don't want to come out second best at this point, which is the way we felt."

As for the sudden development of the Mets as compared with the Jets, Sauer said he felt the baseball team had put it all together in a shorter time.

"We had more potential for a championship before we won than they did," he explained. "In 1966 and 1967 we had close to championship caliber teams—and we didn't win. The Mets seem to have pulled all their potential together in one season and gotten the most out of it."

"They've been able to utilize their talent more fully than we were."

Sauer also expressed the opinion that while both are underdogs, the situations are not the same, although admitting each could claim a psychological weapon.

"In our case we had all the advantages in getting up for a game because it was ludicrous for us to be that much of an underdog," said Sauer. "Then there was the great competition between the leagues—the feeling expressed that the AFL was nothing and the NFL great."

"In the Mets' situation the odds are closer and it's accepted that both leagues are playing the same caliber ball. But the Mets have so much going for them even without that—their own spirit and their history of being the worst and now possibly the best."

Despite the fact he sat in a virtually deserted dressing room while the Mets' clubhouse was jammed with newsmen, Sauer obviously did not mind the attention being expended on New York's latest heroes, even if it was the Jets who were the temporary losers.

A 296 and 720 by Homer Lockwood of Cedar Falls, Iowa were tops in regular team scoring in the 1969 ABC.

When he's not out selling a couple of billion dollars worth of insurance, W. M. "Booger" Scales has his ears glued to the radio, listening to the San Francisco Giants, and in particular, to the games in which Gaylord Perry pitches. Scales acknowledges himself as the "World's Number One Giant-Perry Fan."

When you ask about Perry, Scales can tell you about anything. Sometimes you don't even have to ask, he'll tell you anyway. And this season, Booger had a lot to brag about.

Despite the fact that Perry missed winning 20 games this year, finishing with 19 wins, this was his best year in the majors, according to Scales.

"By pitching 326 innings, Gaylord led the entire major league in innings pitched. In fact, our closest competition in that department came from Denny McLain of Detroit, who pitched one-third less innings. We finished 26 games, which was second in the majors only to teammate Juan Marichal, who completed 28," Booger said.

"And when you consider that the entire Cincinnati staff completed less games than Gaylord, then you realize how important this statistic becomes. In fact, the entire pitching staff of three major league clubs did not complete as many games as we did."

Perry's 233 strikeouts were fifth in the National League, and his 2.48 earned run average was eighth. The strikeout total moved Perry into fourth position on the All-Time Giant list in fanning batters.

"The only three ahead of him in strikeouts are three pretty fair country throwers," Booger expounded. "Christy Mathewson, Carl Hubbell and Juan Marichal."

Comparing this year to Perry's 1966 mark, when he won 21 games, there is quite a difference. He completed 13 games that year, pitching 256 innings. He struck out 201 and had an ERA of 2.99. "In the final game this year, we struck out 14 batters, just one short of the Giant record, which we also hold," Booger added. That was set back in July, 1966.

Perry also ranks as a hard-luck pitcher. In at least eight games this year, if the Giants could have scored one or two more runs, Perry could have been a 25-game winner. Phil Niekro, who won 23 for Atlanta, had a higher ERA than Perry. In six games, Niekro was taken out for a pinch hitter while trailing, and in that inning, the Braves came back to give him the win, even though he wasn't still in the game. "In the last three years," Scales said, "the Giants have done that only once for us."

Scales expects Perry to get a substantial raise next year, and is hoping for a two-year no-out contract, on the basis of his performance this year. "Mr. Stoneham has always been mighty fair to us," Booger said. Stoneham is Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants.

Booger went on to say that Perry has gone far and above the call of duty in entertaining Greenville fans who have attended games on the East Coast this year. Perry has personally entertained over 35 men and children from Greenville this year. "You can ask any of these people about what a fine gentleman Perry is and they'll tell you he is the greatest."

Noting that Booger continually referred to Perry as "we," I decided to find out just how far that loyalty went. Didn't Perry give up a lot of home runs this year? I asked him.

"Yeah, HE sure did," Booger was quick to respond.

Allen Goes To Cardinals In Trade; Or Does He?

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Controversial Rich Allen was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday, or was he?

The Philadelphia Phillies announced the trade of Allen to the Cardinals for catcher Tim McCarver, outfielder Curt Flood, relief pitcher Joe Hoerner and outfielder Byron Browne. Infielder Cookie Rojas and pitcher Jerry Johnson went along with Allen.

Flood, however, heard of the trade and immediately announced he had retired from baseball.

The Cardinals said Flood's decision didn't change a thing. "Once the trade is made, it goes," said a St. Louis spokesman.

Phillies general manager John Quinn said only, "I have no statement until I have had a chance to talk with Flood."

The deal, according to the Cardinals' spokesman, could wind up in the office of the commissioner of baseball.

Allen, the slugging first baseman, was overjoyed at the news of the trade. "Six years in this town (Philadelphia) is enough for anybody. I'm glad to be away from Quinn and all of them. They treat you like cattle."

Flood said in a statement released by a public relations agent: "If I were younger I certainly would enjoy playing for Philadelphia. But under the circumstances, I have decided to retire from organized baseball effective today (Wednesday) ..."

The 32-year-old Flood and the 27-year-old McCarver were the key figures in the deal for Philadelphia. Flood is one of the best defensive outfielders in baseball and hit 285 with 87 RBI this past season. McCarver hit 250 and had 81 RBI as the Cardinals favored to win the National League pennant for the third straight year, finished a disappointing fourth in their division.

Allen batted 288 with 32 home runs and 69 RBI in 118 games with the Phillies in 1969. In his six seasons in the National League he has become one of the most feared sluggers in the game. He has hit 177 home runs and driven in 544 runs, averaging .300 at bat.

Allen's parting with the Phillies was a foregone conclusion. The only guessing was to what club and for what players.

The 27-year-old Allen has been involved in one controversy after another with the Phillies' management. Two managers, Gene Mauch and Bob Skinner left the club after problems with Allen. Mauch was fired. Skinner quit, blasting Carpenter and Quinn for protecting Allen.

Allen's problems with the Phillies began July 3, 1965, when he had a fight during batting practice with teammate Frank Thomas. Thomas was released and after that Allen was the victim of intense booing from the home fans. Then, there were missed airplanes, missed games, latenesses for batting practice, a bar fight, and an almost crippling injury highlighting his stormy career.

This past summer he was fined $1,000 for missing a flight to St. Louis. Later, June 24, he failed to show up for a doubleheader at Shea Stadium in New York. Skinner suspended him indefinitely. He missed 26 days and 29 games, losing in excess of $10,000 in salary.

When he finally came back, after a meeting with club owner Bob Carpenter, he vowed this was his last season in Philadelphia.

St. Louis has gambled that manager Red Schoendienst can accomplish what Mauch and Skinner couldn't — get Allen to conform to rules. Schoendienst, asked if he felt he could handle Allen, said: "I do not know Allen. I've never spoken to him. I know his reputation, of course, but I don't know any of the background of what went on in Philadelphia."

Don McCune and Jim Stefanich teamed to win 1969 ABC Classic doubles with a 1385.

Keydets Need 1st Touchdown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The last thing Virginia Military Institute's Keydets need to see at the moment is a strong defensive team, but that may be just what they're running into in the person of Virginia's Cavaliers in Saturday's Tobacco Festival football game in Richmond.

It's bad enough that the Southern Conference Keydets have begun the season by losing their first three starts. What makes it worse is that they haven't yet gotten on the scoreboard.

The Keydets "may be pressing a bit too much when a scoring opportunity arises," says coach Vito Ragazzo.

"They've come so close that it's almost gotten to the point of frustration," Ragazzo says, "so we're trying to work on a more relaxed pace with our offense."

VMI has made only 5 first downs in three games and punter Jim Bailey has had to kick 33 times. Added to three missed five intercepted passes, the Keydets have handed over the ball 4 times—twice as much as the opposition.

The Keydets may have suffered a blow Wednesday when it was disclosed star runner Tom Sowers is nursing a latent leg injury from last Saturday's West Virginia game. He was held out of contact work. Virginia, meanwhile, put the accent on its passing game.

William and Mary continued work for its conference opener, again concentrating on methods of neutralizing the Bulldogs' "veer" offense. Fullback Tom Sanchez missed drills at the Citadel with a bruised muscle and quarterback Tony Passander nursed a sore finger.

Rain failed to stop Richmond's Spiders as they continued drills for Saturday's clash at unbeaten Davidson.

Furman has a nonleague date Saturday night at Wofford in this weekend's only other action for conference teams. East Carolina is idle.

Young Radicals Rampage In Chicago North Side

CHICAGO (AP) — Young radicals rampaged through the Near North Side late Wednesday, clashing with police, and two persons were found shot near the scene of the disturbances. Police estimated about 500 people were involved.

The gunshot victims were identified as Marshall Berzon, 22, of Connecticut and Elizabeth Gardner, 26, of Seattle. Both were listed in satisfactory condition in a hospital.

Police said a passerby found the two at a North Side intersection where there were smashed windows and about two blocks from the scene of the nearest police-demonstrators fight.

Nine other persons suffered minor injuries and police arrested 46 men and 19 women, mostly on charges of disorderly conduct.

The fighting came at the opening of a planned four-day national action called by the militant "Weathermen" faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Some 100 demonstrators fought with dozens of police at Lake Shore Drive and Michigan Avenue near the Drake Hotel. Many were arrested.

The hotel is the home of Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who is presiding in the U.S. District Court trial of eight men on charges of conspiracy to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

At State and Division streets, five blocks away, police, using clubs and an antiriot gas, dispersed about 100 demonstrators who had marched down Clark Street smashing windshields and store windows.

The demonstrators pounded on two squad cars with bricks, shattering the windshields and denting the bodies.

As police waded into make arrests most of the protesters fled into a crowd of onlookers or fled into side streets.

In a clash in the nearby Old Town district west of Lincoln Park, four men and a woman were placed in a police van after a brief skirmish with police.

Many demonstrators wore helmets and carried clubs. Some carried chains. Some wore hippie regalia but many wore blue denim jackets with Viet Cong flags sewn on the backs.

Police said Berzon was wounded in the chest, arm and neck. They said Miss Gardner was wounded in a thigh. Officials said they were not certain that the shootings were related to the clashes between police and radicals.

Shortly after midnight police reported that the groups of demonstrators had been scattered. The area of the disorders appeared peaceful.

The "Weathermen" faction emerged from the SDS convention in Chicago in June with control over the national office. "Weathermen" say their national demonstrations here will be the "most militant in the history of the New Left."

Earlier Wednesday, spokesmen for the minority Revolutionary Youth Movement II faction of the SDS disavowed any part in the national action. They were joined by a spokesman for the Black Panther party.

Before the violence Wednesday night, some 500 SDS members gathered in Lincoln Park, site of convention week clashes, for a "Revolutionary Heroes Night." Among those honored was Ernesto "Che" Guevara, the Cuban guerrilla killed Oct. 8, 1967, in Bolivia.

Previously the SDS had said its demonstrations would not be nonviolent and would bring 5,000 to 15,000 radicals to Chicago.

Nixon Stands By Justice Nominee

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) President Nixon, in the face of possibly crucial defections by two Republican Senate leaders, is continuing to stand by his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

The latest reaffirmation that Haynsworth was still the President's man came Wednesday as the Senate Judiciary Committee — for the second time in a week — delayed meeting to act on the appointment, postponing its session until today.

Wednesday's announcement by GOP Whip Robert P. Griffin and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference, that they would vote against the nomination sent shock waves through the Senate.

Some opponents, a few of whom were claiming as many as 52 votes against the appointment, predicted Haynsworth would now bow out on his own initiative.

"It's the administration's only way out," said a Republican critic of the nomination.

But Haynsworth, through his Greenville, S.C., office, said he still did not intend to withdraw.

And Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., a major Haynsworth supporter, said Wednesday there definitely would be no request to the President for withdrawal.

"We've got the votes—barely—to get him confirmed and that's all that counts," Hollings said through a spokesman.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen Griffin's action did not dampen President Nixon's conviction Haynsworth would be confirmed.

Ziegler said Nixon was basing his faith in Haynsworth on the judge's integrity and his background as a lawyer and member since 1957 of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals—not on Senate headcounts.

Despite the claims of more than 50 votes against Haynsworth, the total of announced opponents by Wednesday night stood at 21, six of them Republican. Eleven senators had come out openly for Haynsworth, nine Republican.

Many senators, when asked how they stood, continued to say they were waiting until all the facts had been presented and all the arguments were completed.

Sen. Birch Bayh, the Indiana Democrat who has spearheaded opposition to Haynsworth, continued to level new charges of conflicts of interest.

"If the nomination is not withdrawn we'll have a real fight on our hands. We didn't go to all this trouble for nothing," Bayh told a news conference called Wednesday to release a "bill of particulars" on Haynsworth's financial dealings.

Bayh said Haynsworth participated in decisions in 12 cases in which he had a financial interest in one of the parties, including six that involved customers of a firm he helped to found and of which he was listed as an executive.

One Of Two Hijacked Planes Lands In Miami

VOLKSWAGEN FOR 1970 . . . retains the same look as in previous years but features a slightly larger engine for greater response and more rapid acceleration.

MIAMI (AP) — One of two South American jetliners hijacked to Cuba Wednesday landed in Miami today. The captain of the Aerolineas Argentinas Boeing 707 said an Argentine chemistry student carrying a pistol and a bouquet of roses hijacked his plane.

Earlier conflicting reports indicated there were five hijackers armed with submachine guns aboard the plane, but Capt. Aibal Aguirre said after landing today, "There was only one, and he carried only a pistol."

U.S. Customs agents said the Aerolineas Argentinas plane, with 55 passengers and a crew of 12, left one passenger in Havana.

The Mexican news agency Amex said the Swiss Embassy, which handles Brazilian interests in Cuba, was negotiating for release of a Brazilian Cruzeiro de Sul Caravelle. The agency said it also probably would be allowed to leave Cuba today.

The Brazilian airliner was hijacked while on a domestic flight from Belem to Manaus. Airport officials at Manaus said the plane carried 42 passengers and a crew of 7, but sources at Georgetown, Guyana, where it landed to refuel, said 50 persons were aboard.

The Argentine plane was commandeered several hours later just as it landed for an intermediate stop at Santiago, Chile, on a flight from Buenos Aires to Miami.

The planes, the 44th and 45th diverted to the Communist island this year, were hijacked on the second anniversary of the death of the Argentine-born hero of the Cuban revolution, Ernesto "Che" Guevara.

The hijacker of the Argentine plane did not mention Guevara's name throughout the flight, Aguirre said. "I think the hijacking and the anniversary were coincidental," the captain said.

The plane spent 43 minutes at Santiago. The hijacker kept curtains drawn over the windows and allowed no one to get on or off the plane, but he permitted the pilot to drop a passenger list to the ground.

Aguirre said he did not radio there were five hijackers as reported earlier.

The hijacker appeared to be about 25 years old, the captain said.

"He said he was studying for a master's degree in chemistry, and said he wanted to follow Fidel Castro's ideas," Aguirre said.

He said the sky pirate handed Cuban police the bouquet of roses when they boarded the Aerolineas Flight 360 after it landed at Havana's Jose Marti Airport Wednesday night.

Six young men entered the cockpit of the Brazilian airliner after takeoff and forced the pilot to fly to Havana via Georgetown and San Juan, P.R. They were reported armed with at least three revolvers, a submachine gun, a bottle labeled nitroglycerine and sticks that looked like dynamite.

While the plane was at Georgetown, the hijackers threatened to blow it up if the airport did not provide fuel and food. They held a gun on the pilot, but they allowed the copilot and a passenger to get off to make arrangements. A woman

 With the aid of a slight defensive lapse, declarer's skillful exhibition of dummy play permitted him to land a game contract against an adverse break.

When West overcalled South's opening one club bid with one diamond, North made a penalty double. His hand rated to take a minimum of four tricks, and he was justified in counting on partner for three. If it should prove that South had sufficient assets to produce a game then the penalty might prove to be quite substantial.

South felt that his holding was much too distributional to prove effective defensively and he escaped to one heart. When North showed the trump fit by raising hearts, South proceeded directly to game. Against such robust bidding, East refrained from doubling, for he was not inclined to provide his opponent with any clues that might prove helpful in the play.

West led the king of diamonds and North's ace won the trick. South decided to make a club play. East put up the ace of clubs and returned a diamond. South ruffed in his hand and led the king of hearts. When West showed out, it was apparent that East could not be prevented from winning two trump tricks.

Since it was not convenient to make another play from dummy at this point, declarer led the king of clubs from his hand. Fortunately this dropped East's queen. The jack of clubs was continued and a spade thrown from dummy. East ruffed and returned a spade, but South went up with the ace and returned another high club on which North's last spade was discarded. East trumped once more, but now he was down to declarer's size in hearts and when South regained the lead, he drew the remaining trumps and claimed the balance.

East's mistake came at trick three. When he is in with the ace of clubs, if he returns a spade it will establish the setting trick for his side before declarer can marshal his forces.

From South's failure to stand for the double it should be apparent that he has but one diamond. It cannot hurt to make a spade play in case West has a high card in that suit, and there will be time to play a forcing game later if such procedure seems indicated.

U.S. Combat Deaths Reach New Low Point

SAIGON (AP) — The total of American battlefield deaths in Vietnam dropped last week to 64, the lowest weekly toll since December 1966, the U.S. Command announced today.

The reduction in American casualties continued a generally downward trend that began three months ago. Official sources said if this trend continues, it could prompt President Nixon to speed up American troop withdrawals.

However, the sources cautioned that although significant enemy activity is at its lowest level for this year, captured enemy documents and prisoner reports indicate a winter campaign beginning in November. Therefore, American forces have not curtailed their offensive operations to keep the enemy from getting set in position.

Casualty totals for South Vietnamese government forces and for the enemy also were down considerably last week, and the government's military headquarters said in a communique: "The level of enemy activities during last week was the lowest since the beginning of the year and it decreased six per cent compared to that of the previous week."

The U.S. Command reported 900 Americans wounded in action last week, the lowest total since 599 were wounded during the first week of the year, Dec. 29-Jan. 4.

The weekly report raised to 38,887 the total number of American troops reported killed in action in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961. The total number of American battlefield wounded reported rose to 254,274.

The U.S. Command said enemy battlefield deaths now total 558,552 since the beginning of 1961.

U.S. headquarters also reported two American aircraft shot down Wednesday. An Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bomber was downed 10 miles southeast of Da Nang, but the two crewmen escaped unhurt.

ANYBODY SEEN THE RED BARON? — Flying around on an autumn afternoon is a breezy pleasure for Lawrence B. Palmer-Ball Jr., as he banks his 1942 Stearman biplane over Clarksville, Ind. ## Prominent Woman In Liberia Not Unusual MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Election of Angie Brooks, a Liberian diplomat, as president of the U.N. General Assembly didn't cause much of a stir in her native land.

The feeling was: She's a clever girl and well versed in diplomacy, but what's the fuss? After all, four women were graduated from Liberia College in 1905. Women have had public prominence here ever since Matilda Newport crept up on a loose cannon and dropped embers from her pipe into the ignition hole, scattering a horde of

Offer Hospital Savings Incentive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hospitals that save money in treating Medicare patients will receive incentive rewards under a test program backed by the federal government.

Arthur E. Hess, deputy commissioner of the Social Security Administration, said 26 hospitals under contract to Blue Cross Association of Southern California will be given back part of what they save in better use of staff and equipment.

The Social Security Administration oversees the federal Medicare program.

tribesmen about to unsettle Liberia's pioneers in the last century.

There are women cabdrivers, dentists, policemen, lawyers, government leaders (including a senator and four congresswomen), educators, business owners, as well as Miss Brooks.

History can even produce a Susannah Lewis whose team of seamstresses sewed up the horizontal red and white stripes and blue field of the Liberian flag as Betsy Ross did for a remarkably similar banner.

What's amazing, says the collegiate-looking dean of the William V. S. Tubman Institute of Teacher Training, is that women make their mark almost invariably while running a home.

"It is very, very important to be married," Dean Mary Antoinette Brown said. "I doubt if you can find a professional woman that has not been married. Maybe she'll be divorced or widowed, but she will have been married."

When Mrs. Brown's husband died in 1962 she took her three children to New York so she could add a Cornell University doctorate to her Radcliffe master's.

It has only been in the last 10 or 15 years that American women have found the balance between a career and housewifery, Mrs. Brown says, but Liberian women have always done it.

A system of large families, combined with less expensive servants if necessary, makes it possible.

Most African societies rely heavily on women for work. One marketwoman in Nigeria who cannot write her name has three girls carry her money to the bank. She can draw a $200,000 letter of credit. But tradition has defined women's limits and the "bride-price" system often has made them too valuable a chattel to waste in school.

In Liberia, independent since 1847, women have had a chance to develop. The original elite came from America as settlers without tribal ties. They set the tone for the rest.

Old Wilderness Road Was Busy

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky's most famous pioneer highway, the Wilderness Road, was originally a rough and narrow path marked only by blazed trees.

Even so, at the height of the pioneer influence at least 20,000 settlers used the road in a year's time.

Presenting Fall Fashion Revue On October 26

The tickets, $1 each, may be purchased from the following alumni: D. D. Garrett, James Boone, Dudley Flood, Inez Ellison, Barbara Boone, Barbara Flood, Viola Vines, Betty C. Streeter, Erma Carr and Permelia Casey, all of Greenville, Rosa Barrett and Pearl Payton of Winterville, and Barbara Rupert and Bessie Redden of Farmville.

Popular fashions of the 1969-70 fall and winter season will be modeled by local residents of Greenville and Pitt County.

Center Closing For Renovations

The Greenville Art Center will be closed Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 9, 10 and 11 for completion of renovations.

Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the center, states this closure is necessary in order to permit workers to finish the painting and hanging of monks-cloth on the walls.

The center will reopen on Sunday at 3:00 p.m. for the reception of five ECU faculty members in a group show.

Movie-Makers Question Effect OF Violence On American Scene

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The controversy over violence in entertainment mediums continues, and movie screen contribute to a more violent America? No one

Teens Also Ask Why So Much Money Needed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Failing to win voters, the public school system here has turned to high school newspaper editors, in an effort to help sell a pared bond issue.

Voters rejected a $90 million school bond question last May and the board of education subsequently lowered it to $65 million over school administrators' objections.

With November balloting nearing and municipal bonds an issue again, school officials are concerned about building renovation and construction programs to house Philadelphia's 290,000 public school pupils. A panel, which included Dr. Mark Shedd, superintendent of schools, summoned 50 teen-age editors to a special news conference to stress the urgency of the money issue.

But the teen-agers—like their parents—wanted to know why so much and what for.

seems to know. Recently the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, appointed last year by President Lyndon B. Johnson in the wake of assassinations, declared violence on television encourages emulation in actual life.

Taking an opposite view is director George Roy Hill. Previously identified with a comedy "The World of Henry Orient," epic "Hawaii" and musical "Thoroughly Modern Millie," Hill is currently represented on the screen with a Western, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." But not just another Western. It is highly stylized, even whimsical, yet with a high degree of violence.

"Cassidy-Sundance" doesn't quite match the blood-letting of "The Wild Bunch." But the gunfire and falling bodies, particularly in the final scenes, set new standards in shock. Some critics have called the new film "the Bonnie and Clyde" of Westerns.

George Roy Hill is a thoughtful man and father of three, and he declares, "I don't like violence, but there are times when it is required dramatically. At the end of the picture, when Butch and Cassidy are ambushed by the Bolivian army, that had to be a scene that would simply tear the audience up."

Yet, although carnage is portrayed, the deaths of the two outlaws are not underscored. Paul Newman and Robert Redford are caught in stop-action at the moment they are fatally shot. This contrasts with "Bonnie and Clyde," in which Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway were seemingly riddled for minutes.

"But I didn't object to that from an esthetic point of view," commented Hill. "Bonnie and Clyde had become the objects of extreme anger on the part of other people, and their actions inspired a violent response. Butch and Sundance were merely being executed."

"Cassidy-Sundance" was being prepared at the time of the Robert Kennedy assassination, which caused much searching among film makers over the question of violence. Hill said that the industry's censors asked for only one cut in grounds of violence. That was not for gunfire, but a scene in which Newman aims a kick at the groin of hulking Ted Cassidy, onetime monster of "The Adams Family" on television.

"Couldn't Newman just punch him in the stomach real hard?" the censor asked.

"You know how big Paul is," argued Hill. "The other guy is seven feet tall with shoulders like a Mack truck. How else could Paul stop him?" The censor relented, and the kick remained. It never fails to evoke a gasp from audiences.

A Hard Life, But Loves Midway

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"It grows on you," Roland Page said as he sat looking at the people walking down the midway at the Pitt County Fair.

"I'm crazy about it. It's a hard life but I love it."

Thinking back over the years, Page said, "You meet a lot of people... do a lot of traveling... make a lot of friends in all walks of life... all nationalities..."

Page is president and part owner of the Buck-Page Expositions Inc. whose rides and shows are on the midway at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair this week.

The showman grew up and graduated from high school in Wilson, then attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill as a political science major.

But before he entered show business with his father in the Page Combined Shows in 1950, Roland spent a hitch in the U.S. Navy, serving in the Pacific Theater during the Second World War.

His father, Page said, "drifted away from Wilson and joined Billy Clark's Broadway Shows... a railroad show... in 1942," a year before his son graduated from high school. Prior to his show days, Page explained, his father was a farmer.

The company owns 25 rides and three shows, with a number of other rides and concessions following along and paying royalties to "the office."

"We are generally trying to up-grade the program," Page explains, "by adding new equipment... trucks, rides. We will have several new trucks and rides next season."

In selecting rides, the showman said, "We try to keep a good variety... and don't want duplication in motion."

"There is quite a bit of work going into the development of new rides. They are very expensive."

"A single riding device can cost more now than a good carnival... the whole thing... used to cost. Some now sell for $200,000 for a portable ride."

Page now lives in Tampa, Fla. with his wife and four children. Mrs. Page, he noted, is from South Carolina.

"She is strictly a housewife," Page explains. "But she travels with me in the summer when the children are out of school."

And the children travel along too. According to Page, "they love it."

The family maintains a house trailer and "I live on the grounds at all times," Page noted.

Saying he has many close friends in the Greenville area, Page paused.

"I hope to retire some day. I expect to come back to Eastern North Carolina. It's the best, and has the best climate in the world."

One of the biggest headaches in the business?

"Labor," Page replies. "The shortage of experienced men in our business..." is bad, he says.

And the overhead is high due to breakage. "We spend $15,000 a year on lightbulbs alone," the exposition's president noted.

Fair Attendance Not Hurt Much By Shower

Unfavorable weather failed to hinder attendance at the Pitt County Fair last night, fair manager Norman Y. Chambliss said this morning.

Compared to last year, attendance was down only about five per cent, he noted. "Considering the rain," Chambliss noted, "the attendance is holding up fine."

Chambliss reported a total of 3,406 paid attendance for Wednesday, the third night of the fair activities. He estimated "somewhere in the neighborhood of seven thousand children attended last night," designated as county school night.

The fair manager reminded East Carolina University students that today will be their day at the fair with students showing University I-D cards admitted for half price at the gate. In addition, he said, students of Pitt Technical Institute will also be admitted on a half-price ticket.

Tomorrow will be the second County School Day at the fair. Chambliss added that "if attendance continues to run at the present rate, figures for this year could set a record for paid attendance."

Snow Hill Board Told Town Has Received Grant

SNOW HILL—Members of the Snow Hill Town Board were told Tuesday night the town had received a grant of $131,200 for a project to extend the town's water and sewer system to an industrial site and to a lower income area.

Mayor Melvin Oliver told board members Second District Congressman L.H. Fountain announced the town would receive the grant.

The total project will cost $164,000, with the town paying $32,800 as its share.

One basis for the grant was the combined effort of the Greene County Development Corporation and the town to construct an industrial building in an effort to bring other industry into the county.

The water and sewer service in the low income area will improve the sanitation conditions of that section of the county.

Mayor Oliver told board members the Zoning and Planning Board met and organized Oct. 6.

Mayor Oliver said the new board discussed the possibility of zoning the Lakeview subdivision, located near the West Greene Elementary School.

The mayor reported several sites are under observation for the new town well, but no action has been taken in the matter.

Report Three Collisions In City Traffic Yesterday

More than $1,400 in property damage was reported by police in three collisions here yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 7:09 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Lawrence Streets which involved cars driven by Mitchell Erwin White III, 18, of 1744 Beaumont Dr. and Larry Warren Newberry, 21, of Tarboro.

Police, who listed no charges, set damage to the White car at $475 and placed damage to the Newberry vehicle at $350. They also reported $10 damage was done to a street barricade.

Jimmy Lee, 23, of Route 2, Pink Hill was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 6:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Tenth Streets.

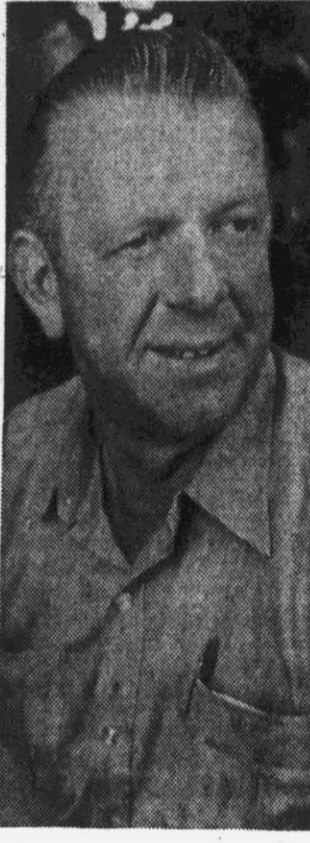

The Lee car, officers said, collided with a car driven by Mrs. Hannah Pope Howard of 1001 East Fifth St.

Damage was set at $100 to the Howard car and $300 to the Lee auto.

In a 5:29 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Reade Streets, Jackson Carlo Williams Jr., 22, of Hickory was charged with having improper brakes.

The Williams vehicle collided with a car operated by Sandra Delayne Taylor, 20, of Route 1, Grimesland, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Taylor vehicle and $10 damage to the Williams car, police reported.

No injuries were listed.

Went To Hawaii Fleeing Violence

HONOLULU (AP) - The irony in his son's death, says Russell H. Marks, was that "part of the reason we came here was to get away from any violence."

Edward R. Marks, 19, was stabbed to death Tuesday in a fight with five youths who stole his surfboard. The youths, described as local boys, were not identified by police.

Marks said the family moved from San Bernardino, Calif., out of fear that "growing racial tensions" might someday result in bloodshed.
