Girls As Well As Money Demanded By Syndicate In Vietnam, Says Agent

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Mafia-like syndicate of sergeants demanded girls as well as money in kickbacks for booking entertainers, buying food and liquor for the Army night clubs they ran for troops in Vietnam, senators have been told.

A curvaceous Australian dancer who was a show business booking agent told a Senate subcommittee Thursday virtually all custodians of Army club systems in Vietnam demanded a percentage from those selling supplies to the clubs.

In a war where most soldiers count the days until they can go home, these sergeants—confident of making at least $150,000 a year in graft—extended their tours as long as possible, she said.

The witness, June I. Skewes, 34, of Sydney, Australia, her long, ash-blond hair tied back with a tangerine-colored ribbon, told the Senate's rackets subcommittee she was blacklisted and squeezed out of business after word leaked she had complained to military authorities.

The sergeants who ran the clubs, which do hundreds of millions of dollars in business a year, were "for sale to the highest bidder," said Miss Skewes, who is known professionally as June Collins.

She said the bids came in the form of rolls of American money, villas in Saigon, liquor, long and expensive trips, free entertainment and women.

"In my experience in Vietnam, going back to 1967, I do not know of a single (Army) club custodian who does not receive kickbacks," Miss Skewes said.

"It's also as filthy a racket as I've ever heard of," she told a hearing room in which all seats were filled and spectators stood in every vacant space. "The profits come from the pockets of American G.I.s," she said.

custodians are accused of taking kickbacks said: "Those responsible for the deterioration of a proud division should be brought to justice and properly punished."

Miss Skewes said kickbacks averaged $25 a night for a show costing $150 and 10 per cent or more for more expensive entertainment.

She said some custodians were "gentlemanly" about the graft they demanded.

"She described others as 'rude, crude and greedy.' She said many of these men 'demand sexual favors from the businesses they buy from.'"

"I don't know if girls were provided only for the custodians or if sergeants shared in that kind of kickback too. I presume they did. The practice of providing a girl was started to my knowledge, by Miss Chung, a Korean girl.

"Her company was Chung Promotions and it was common knowledge she provided girls for custodians who booked her show."

But, she said, emphasizing her words with both hands raised: "I did not provide girls for custodians or for anyone else."

She said kickback demands came from club custodians in regular Army units. Never, she said, was she asked for a kickback from Marine or Green Beret units.

"I did pay kickbacks," she continued. "I had no choice. It was either pay kickbacks or go out of business."

Life for club custodians was soft, comfortable and lucrative, and usually far from the rigors of war, she said.

White House sources said the administration has made no conclusive assessment as to whether the recent downward trend in casualties is intended by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong as a peace signal.

But they held by their previously stated position that the level of American casualties is a direct reflection of enemy activity.

Purchase Of $85,570 Tower Fire Truck For City Okayed

By JERRY RAYNOR

City councilmen last night approved the purchase of a new 85-foot mobile aerial platform and water tower fire truck for the fire department.

Total cost of the new equipment is $85,570, with an additional amount of approximately $700 to be added for making the equipment an enclosed cab instead of an open-cab one. The Ward La France Truck Corporation, builder of fire trucks, was the successful bidder. Proposals to submit bids were mailed to three companies on August 28. Bids were opened on October 1.

A number of options were dropped. Most of these, a spokesman from La France stated to the councilmen, were items not needed for Greenville or ones which could be procured separately from other suppliers at less cost than that listed by La France. For example, a saving of approximately $3,000 could be made by buying the 1400 feet of hose from a company specializing in fire hoses.

Fire Chief Ray Smith, explaining the need of the new truck, which is more sophisticated than any equipment Greenville now owns, said: "This equipment, with its 35 feet aerial ladder, will permit firemen to get over tops of buildings to fight fires from overhead. For big fires, such as the one at Rose's downtown, and the fire at the old Junior High this equipment would have made a tremendous difference."

Smith and the representative from La France explained in detail the outstanding safety feature of the aerial platform. "If we have a need to rescue someone, it is certainly simpler to position the platform, which is enclosed, under a window and let people step into that. There is no comparison in the speed and safety of letting as many as four or five people down at a fireman helping people down a ladder."

The new equipment will be ready for delivery in 330 days. At that time, down payment on the truck will be made. "We have $25,000 already appropriated for this," City Manager Harry Hagerty noted. "By time of delivery, we will be into a new fiscal year, and will be able to appropriate another $25,000 for payment on the truck." Hagerty commented that purchase will be by a lease-purchase arrangement, and that the city can have a four year period if necessary.

In addition to safety features and allowing greater flexibility in fighting fires—the aerial platform is completely maneuverable, up and down, sideways and backwards, able to reach into basements as well as over buildings—possession of the new truck will have a beneficial effect on fire insurance rates for the citizens of Greenville.

The manufacturer of this equipment is guaranteeing a credit rating for a period of 20 years after delivery to the fire station.

When completion is announced, arrangements will be made for a member, or members, of the local fire department to drive the truck home. This will result in a saving of $650 in not having the manufacturer deliver the item.

"When we receive this new truck, Greenville will have the most efficient, finest piece of fire equipment in eastern North Carolina," Smith stated.

Mayor And Council Members Urge Approval Of Sales Tax Addition

Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr. and Greenville's four City Councilmen unanimously approved a resolution endorsing the one cent sales tax which will be placed before voters on November 4.

This resolution, other resolutions, actions on street improvements, appointments and numerous other matters were considered in an extraordinary long list of items on the agenda for last night's meeting.

"This sales tax will amount to an additional $244,000 to Greenville for the first collection year," stated City Manager Harry Hagerty. "The way it works, Greenville will stand to get a fine return."

Hagerty observed that one cent of the collection stays here. The other cent goes to a central pool in Raleigh which is returned to municipalities on a pro-rata basis of population.

Hold Couple For Abuse Of Children

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A young couple was arrested on child abuse charges today after police said they found three battered children including a 2-year-old boy whose nose was broken and the bone protruding.

North Miami Beach Police Lt. Shirley Withrow said, "This is the same couple who had a 7-month-old baby girl die about a week ago."

He identified the couple as Michael Campbell, 22, and Mary Violet Campbell, 23. Their address was listed as the Midget Mansion Motel.

Withrow said the Campbells were charged with torturing or unlawfully punishing a child. There were no charges in the infant's death. No bond was set.

Two-year-old Travis had both eyes blacked and a broken nose, the officer said. "It was a compound fracture and a piece of the bone was sticking out," he said.

The oldest girl, Chris, 7, had a battered face, he said. "The entire front of her dress was full of blood."

The third child, Ginger, 6, had bruises, said Withrow. "All of them had mosquito bites and some of them were infected," said Withrow. "They said they had gotten repeated beatings with open hand, fist and a belt."

He said the couple's 7-month-old baby, Kalen, died last week from "massive head injuries." He said investigation into the death is continuing.

Withrow said Campbell reported the baby had suffered the injuries in a fall.

and Winston-Salem," he commented.

The only portion of this one cent tax which goes to the state is a small collection fee of two-tenths of one cent. Aside from that, the entire tax comes back to the contributing community.

"Together, Greenville and Pitt County will receive $1,005,000 the first year, with Pitt County getting $761,000," Hagerty said.

Sale of two plots of Shore Drive land was approved by the plot bordered by Pitt, Greene, First Street and Tar River, was approved for sale to W. E. Dansey II at a price of $88,900. A minimum bid of $88,634 had been set for this parcel.

Dansey has plans to build a high-rise motor court at this site, which would include a restaurant on the top floor of the proposed structure.

Councilmen agreed a building, such as planned by Dansey would be an asset to the downtown community. Councilman Percy Cox stipulated in the motion of approval that Dansey not be permitted to use the land for any purpose other than building the proposed motor court. Any changes in the plan of the building other than minor ones, will have to be presented to the City Council for approval.

The second parcel of sale approved for sale was parcel 16-A, to the ABC Board. This was approved for the purpose of enlarging the parking area for employees of the ABC firm. The ABC firm is located at the corner of Cotanche and Second Street. This is a small parcel which squares up the land already owned by the ABC Board. Sale price, on the basis of 72.4 cents per square foot, amounts to $1,702.

Other matters at last night's meeting were:

Consideration of the Planning and Zoning recommendation to the City Council that the Housing Authority be permitted to construct additional dwelling units in Moyewood, provided certain areas be set aside for recreation areas under City Ordinance No. 297. The council is recommending to the Housing Authority that this area be left open for a recreational area.

City Attorney David Reid explained the recent court ruling on the matter of Larry Mazingo's plan to build apartment houses on a land off Memorial Highway and Country Club Drive, located near the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Judge George Fountain of Tarboro ruled that previous action of the City Council in denying a permit to build the apartments was not in accordance with city ordinances at the time.

Hagerty stated that as a result, we will get back some of the tax collected when wives from Greenville do their shopping in big cities like Raleigh and Winston-Salem," he commented.

This will result in a prescribed system of speed limits for different areas in conformity with N.C. General Statutes based on safety and traffic factors. Upon the adoption of this mutual ordinance, the State Highway Commission will accept the responsibility of keeping signs posted and in repair.

Registration Books To Open Here Saturday

Registration books will be opened beginning Saturday for registration of voters for the November 4 special sales tax election.

According to Board of Elections chairman Bruce Koonce, registration books will be opened from 9 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. at all of the county's polling places October 11, October 18 and October 25. November 1 will be challenge day for the November 4 election.

Koonce emphasized that persons who have moved since the past election should take steps to have their voting records transferred to the precinct in which they are now living.

The November 4 election will give county residents the opportunity to vote for or against a one-cent sales tax on sales within the county. County commissioners have said that if the tax is approved they will be able to reduce the ad valorem property tax rate next year by 25 cents per $100 valuation.

Commissioners have been faced in recent years with increased demands for services by county residents and increase in state and federal programs over which they have virtually no control, such as the growing public assistance program of the Department of Social Services (Welfare Department).

In order to meet these demands, commissioners have been forced to raise taxes on both real and personal property.

Funds made available through the proposed sales tax would broaden the tax base thus permitting the county board to lighten the load on ad valorem taxes through a tax reduction.

Nixon Calls Negotiators Home: New Vietnam Review

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered his two chief peace negotiators back from Paris for consultations on the eve of next Wednesday's nationwide anti-Vietnam war demonstrations.

Nixon is embarking on a new review of Vietnam policy with a meeting Monday or Tuesday with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and his deputy in Paris, Phillip Dean.

The President also has scheduled a Saturday talk with Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who returned recently from an inspection tour of the war zone, and the rest of the joint chiefs.

Besides closely coinciding with Wednesday's "Moratorium Day" protests against the war, the latest Nixon moves came as U. S. authorities in Saigon announced American battle deaths last week totaled 64—the lowest in nearly three years.

White House sources said the administration has made no conclusive assessment as to whether the recent downward trend in casualties is intended by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong as a peace signal.

But they held by their previously stated position that the level of American casualties is a direct reflection of enemy activity.

The State Department Wednesday said the battlefield lull presented an "element of uncertainty" concerning enemy intentions.

"We would like some word from Vietnam as to what the reasons for the lull are," State Press Officer Carl Bartsch said.

Some sources said because the latest round of consultations immediately precedes a revival of war protests, there was reluctance inside the administration to publicly draw hopeful signs from the most recent battlefield developments lest they turn sour.

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said Lodge and Habib were ordered home for "consultations and instructions."

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, at a Thursday news conference, said American troops had been given new orders in August to strike the enemy before they were hit, a policy labeled "protective reaction."

Laird was fuzzy on whether this meant U. S. forces now were to avoid contact wherever possible—a stand that, if true, could have as much to do with lower recent casualty rates than activity by the other side.

Laird was cagey about possible significance in the latest battlefield lull, saying for the obvious benefit of Hanoi, "The place to give signals is in Paris."

Attendance At Fair Sees Big Increase

Fair attendance last night at the Pitt County Fair reflected an increase of nearly 25 per cent over last year's crowd, according to manager Norman Y. Chambliss.

Paid attendance was figured to be 3,742, Chambliss noted, and another 1,157 college students attended. He reported that the Buck Page shows on the midway were played with the attendance this week and anticipated record-setting crowds for the last two nights of activity.

Tonight will be children's night with all school children, county and city, admitted free at the gate. "Last year's attendance on Friday was 6,742 and we are expecting to top that figure tonight," Chambliss added.

Building Hydroelectric Dam Not For Men Only, Engineer Proves

By RICHARD M. SUDHALTER

KLADOVO, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Building a multi-million dollar hydroelectric dam, most women will grant, is men's work. Unless, that is, you happen to ask Xenia Neimarevic.

"There is no such distinction," she says. "The only thing that counts is how the job gets done."

Strong words. But as one of the chief engineers—and the only woman—working on the giant new Yugoslav-Romanian Djerdap High Dam, she can talk.

"As the only woman on a staff of 4,000 I get along a good bit better than one man would among 4,000 women," she said. "We get along, my boys and I. And I can assure you nothing has happened to me here that wouldn't happen on a Belgrade trolley or in a department store shopping crowd."

Miss Neimarevic and her 4,000 Yugoslav co-workers are part of the most ambitious hydroelectric power scheme yet undertaken in Europe outside the Soviet Union.

The dam spans the river at the heart of the Iron Gates Gorge, where the 1,800-mile Danube pushes through 74 miles of Carpathian mountain foothills, forming the Yugoslav-Romanian frontier.

It is lonely, wild country. Foaming rapids and whirlpools here have endangered shipping for generations. Even today night navigation at this part of the Danube is strictly forbidden.

On the Romanian side, the greenness of the landscape is dotted with spindly-legged guard towers conspicuously absent on the Yugoslav bank.

When finished in late 1971 the Djerdap High Dam will harness enough electricity to fully serve Yugoslavia and Romania.

Its expected annual output of 11.3 billion kilowatt hours, 2.3 billion more than Egypt's Aswan High Dam, will be exceeded only by the Krasnoyarsk and Bratska dams in the Soviet Union.

For 8,400 Yugoslavs and 14,500 Romanians living along the Danube banks in this region the words "next year" have become a death knell.

The blocked stream will back up into a giant 80 mile artificial lake. Two full towns, 19 villages and a network of priceless archaeological excavation sites will go under as much as 90 feet of water.

Emergency operations are

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Nobel Peace Prize winner Linus Pauling has been ordered to pay a businessman $1,750 to settle a breach of contract suit stemming from the proposed sale of a gas station and home.

Superior Court Judge Robert Harris said Thursday Pauling showed "bad faith" when he backed out of selling the property to Howard M. O'Daniels in 1966.

Her Girls Hate Their Stepfather

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My first husband died, leaving me with two daughters, ages 2 and 6. I stayed single for six years. We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten.

My problem: About a year ago I married a wonderful man who had never been married before. Abby, he couldn't be nicer to me and the girls, but they treat him shamefully. They say, "We don't have to listen to you—you aren't our REAL father." They can be sweet as pie to him when they want something, but after they get it, they go back to their hateful ways.

He has tried so hard to make them like him. I love this man, Abby, and I hate to see him hurt. What can I do?

DEAR NEEDS: First, may

Christmas In October Held By Local WOTM

The local Chapter of the Women of the Moose No. 1308 held their annual "Christmas in October" meeting Thursday night.

Members made their Christmas march of donations of gifts for the residents of Mooseheart, the "Child City" near Chicago, Ill., and for retired members at Moosehaven at Orange Park, Fla.

Chairman Lina Wynne introduced guest speaker, Henry Flake, governor of the local Lodge No. 885, who gave an informative talk on the present-day Mooseheart.

Known as the "Child City," Mooseheart is supported by fraternity members and is a home for children who have lost one or both parents. Residence, recreation, school and church buildings cover the 1,000-acre property which is kept modern through funds earned by Lodges and Chapters by their money-making projects.

Flake further announced that "ever widening benefits now include coverage for children whose parents may be living but who are too disabled to provide complete care for their children."

Senior Regent Georgia McCollum announced the enrollment of the following new members: Edith Williams; Virginia Shaw; Maxine Branton; Pat Williams; Judy Thurman; Estelle Steiner; and Ann Owens.

Reports On Candy Sale Given At Jay-C-Ettes Meet

Candy sale reports were given at the meeting of the Greenville Jay - C - Etties on Wednesday night. Members were reminded of the house to house sale on Oct. 13-15.

The club voted to buy tags for the children at the hospital. Coloring books and crayons will be given to each child admitted to the hospital as a gift from the Jay-C-Ettes. Mrs. Bonnie Dansey and Mrs. Adell Prescott will be chairmen of the project.

Mrs. Daren Turner was appointed chairman of the Telephone Committee. Mrs. Neta Thompson will serve as chairman of Operation Santa Claus. The group will purchase items for underprivileged children.

Clinic volunteers for October are Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Kay Brady. Mrs. Becky McDonald will be in charge of the Crippled Children's Clinic Christmas party.

Mrs. Nancy Higdon and Mrs. Ann Harper were welcomed as new members and Mrs. Shirley Burgess as a guest.

Program Given By Mrs. Smith

Mrs. Norman Smith presented the program at the meeting of the Pactolus Extension Homemakers held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. George Cherry.

Mrs. Sutton, clothing leader, spoke on "Shopping For Bargains at Clothing Sales."

Mrs. Noel Lee gave a report on bulbs and planting.

Mrs. Hilton Vernelson gave the devotional. Mrs. Nathan Smith presided at the meeting. Refreshments were served by the hostess following the program.

I take exception to your statement, "We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten." Why, "naturally"? Many working mothers have instilled respect and discipline in their children, so don't blame your parents.

From what you say, your daughters are out of your control, so I advise professional counseling. Inquire of their school principal. Otherwise, face the alternatives. Your daughters will force you to choose between them and your good husband. Or your husband will find life with you and your daughters intolerable and HE will make a choice, and take a walk. And who could blame him?

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a salesman and he is out of town for a week at a time. He usually calls me twice during the week to find out how things are at home. I appreciate these calls, but I never know when to expect them.

This morning he called me at 7, raving mad. He said he had been trying to reach me since 6 o'clock last night, and was worried half out of his mind.

Last evening my neighbor and I took our children to the circus, after which we had coffee at her house and I stayed to visit for about an hour. Then I came right home and I went to bed. I must have slept so soundly I didn't even hear the phone ring.

Must I stay home every night in anticipation of my husband's calls? That's all we ever fight about.

GREAT FALLS WIFE DEAR WIFE: First you and your husband should agree on a "time" when he is to call you. Then, ask your telephone company to provide you with the loudest bell they have. And it wouldn't be a bad idea to have your hearing checked.

DEAR ABBY: Last Sunday, while driving on a well-traveled freeway on the outskirts of town, I noticed two cars ahead of me. One was a new convertible containing three young girls. The other was a sedan in which five young men were riding. These kids were "racing," and passing each other at a high rate of speed, then slamming on the brakes and stopping abruptly in front of each other.

The girl was a very poor driver. She lost control of the car once, and went off the highway, but got back on again. The kids in both cars were laughing and shouting back and forth to each other.

Abby, a nightmarish accident involving not only these two cars, but others could have occurred easily. I wanted to stop and phone the highway patrol but my wife told me to mind my own business. What would you have done?

STILL SHAKING DEAR STILL: I would have told my wife that the safety of innocent motorists (and even the lives of those foolish kids) were indeed MY business, and I would have stopped and called the police.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen - Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

District Deputies Visit Local Chapter Tuesday

Greenville Chapter No. 149, the Order of the Eastern Star, was honored by a visit Tuesday night of the District Deputies of District Seven of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina, OES at a stated meeting.

Mrs. Ercelle Sanderson Harper, District Deputy Grand Matron, and James E. Smith, District Deputy Grand Patron, were making their official inspection visit at this time. Mrs. Harper is a member of Pleasant Hill Chapter No. 102, Pink Hill, and Smith is a member of the Greenville Chapter.

The meeting was called to order by Bryce W. Tharp, Worthy Patron, and was presided over by Mrs. Jean Tharp, Worthy Matron.

Distinguished guests present were: Mrs. Glenn Garner, Grand Adah of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina; Mrs. Harper, D.D.G.M.; James E. Smith, D.D.G.P.; several Grand Chapter Committee members; three Worthy Matrons, Mrs. Alberta Tyndall, Kinston Chapter No. 53, Mrs. Leah Harper, Pleasant Hill Chapter No. 102, and Mrs. Myrtle Allen, Farmman Grubbs, Worthy Patron, Pleasant Hill Chapter No. 102; and many past matrons and past patrons.

The Chapter Room was decorated with flowers and a central motif representing the District Deputies as astronauts in this space age as they make their official inspections.

After commending the officers for their work, Mrs. Harper, brought words of instruction and inspiration from the Worthy Grand Matron. Smith, spoke briefly about projects to support the Masonic and Eastern Star Home in Greensboro, as he brought greetings from the Worthy Grand Patron.

Recipients of 25 year membership cretificates were honored, and the following were present: Mrs. Eula Mae Cannon; Mrs. Marie Clark, and Mrs. Alma Paramore.

Mrs. Keith Cina, Mrs. Lillian Cherry, Mrs. Queenie Clark, Mrs. Henrietta Johnsen, Mrs. Elba Rowe, and Mrs. Pearle Tripp will receive theirs at a later date.

Gifts were presented to the District Deputies by Mrs. Effie Hathaway and Clifton Perry, and Lonnie Hathaway presented an honorary membership to Mrs. Harper.

Immediately following the meeting, a reception was held in the Sugg-Whichard dining room. The refreshment table was covered with a white organdy cloth and centered with a floral arrangement featuring roses. This was flanked by silver candelabra with white candles.

Economic Timing Is All-Important

Those responsible for the nation's basic economic policies will need timing more delicate than that of a trapeze artist to determine the precise point at which restrictions must be eased to avoid a drastic down-turn in the economy.

A cooling off of the inflationary spiral is the goal of the administration, and the public. And if the spiral of inflation is to be halted, it means that there must be a slow-down in the economic activity across the country. Efforts in recent months have been aimed at that goal and there are now signs that the desired effect is being achieved.

The increase in unemployment in September was the largest the nation has experienced in nine years. The fact that unemployment increased was not as surprising as the fact that it increased more than at any time in almost a decade. But while unemployment jumped, total employment in non-farm jobs continued at a new record high compared with other years.

Although any increase in unemployment may give an uneasy feeling after years of constantly decreasing unemployment, it by no means can be construed as a sign that the nation is moving into a recession. It merely suggests that the policies aimed at slowing down inflation may be having the desired effect. Some of the steam may be going out of the abnormally high growth rate of the economy while the economy continues to move upward.

If the nation is to achieve the goal of reducing the threat of inflation by reducing the rate of inflation, it must be careful not to panic at the first signs that the goal is being realized. That happened a few years ago when the restrictive policies were removed too soon and what was planned as a reduction in the rate of inflation actually served to increase the inflationary pace.

VOA Commission To See World's Finest

It is good that the U. S. Advisory Commission on Information will be visiting the Voice of America facilities here next month.

Some of the nation's outstanding authorities in the communications field are members of this group and their visit to the VOA transmitting facilities here is most welcome.

Voice of America's new director Kenneth R. Giddens in a visit here yesterday described the local installation as "probably the finest on earth."

The VOA facilities are, indeed, one of the marvels of the broadcasting world and we are pleased that the Advisory Commission will visit here to tour the facilities.

What's Wrong In Demo Party

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — A special study committee drawn from every strata and level of the Democratic Party in North Carolina is to be appointed shortly to find out what is wrong under its political flag.

The study committee is being chosen by party officials and by Gov. Bob Scott and his aides and political advisors.

It used to be that the South was considered "solid" in Democratic party circles.

This, of course, has changed and is changing. At one time, North Carolina was one of the most solid. Yet the Republican presidential nominee carried the state a year ago and GOP nominees on local and district tickets scored unprecedented gains.

Security — Kansas Gov. Robert Docking, the principal speaker at the Vance-Aycock dinner in Asheville last week, asked for maximum security.

The reason—racial disorder, rioting and threats of further trouble in Asheville. Apparently this was under control at the time but those attending the political affair noticed the increased amount of police security.

There were large numbers of North Carolina Highway patrolmen, Asheville police, Buncombe County sheriff's deputies and Correction (prison) security guards at almost every place the visiting party faithful went.

Precaution — Gov. Scott told newsmen that increased security is a normal precaution taken in troubled areas when a large number of dignitaries are present.

"Some states do more than we do," he said, "and we do more than some others."

He added that Governor Docking, having heard of the Asheville disorders, not only asked for extra security for his visit there but brought additional security people with him from Kansas.

Grumbling — Scott said the presence of an extraordinary number of police at the entrance to the Western Mansion on Patton Mountain was not entirely for security reasons.

There is no parking space at the mansion and most of the visitors had to park their cars and walk, "puff and pant," up the mountain.

There was some grumbling. Scott said he advised those who complained most bitterly that "we're trying to get the Democrats in better shape."

WILLIAM A. SHIRES

It is supposed to embrace all segments of the party from top to bottom and will be directed to face the overall problem of how to rebuild party strength and prestige.

In this way, Scott told newsmen, "the whole question" of shortcomings and weakness can be brought forward. The committee or study group will try to discover the basic causes of discontent and complacency and propose solutions.

"We want to find out how its (the party's) base can be broadened," Scott said. "We want constructive ideas."

Improvements—The governor said he recognizes certain soft spots and weaknesses in the party structure but feels that they can be remedied.

"I'm not one to be pessimistic," Scott says.

Improvements are needed, he adds, but "improvements can be made and will be made."

On the subject of greater participation in national party policy-making, Scott agrees that "we (the South) want our viewpoints to be heard" to a greater extent. He thinks that progress is being made in this direction, but not to the extent desired.

Nixon Dilemma Like Johnson's

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Leaving the White House after a somber 100-minute talk with President Nixon last week, one Republican Senator turned to another and remarked that Mr. Nixon "is talking about the war just like Johnson used to talk."

What triggered this comparison between Mr. Nixon and former President Johnson, who was driven out of office by the war in Vietnam, was partly President Nixon's apparent confidence that Hanoi would soon have to enter serious negotiations to end the war (a conviction of Mr. Johnson's that was never satisfied).

The other explanation for the Senator's remark comparing the two Presidents was Mr. Nixon's flat assertion during the long session over coffee in the Oval Office that he would never sacrifice the nation's long-range interest by "bugging out" no matter how far said with a wry smile "to 5 percent."

That, too, sounded to the dozen Republican Senators on the evening of Sept. 30 just like the Lyndon Johnson of two years ago, six months before he astonished the nation with his no second term announcement.

Even more interesting to some of those present, however, was something else Mr. Nixon said. Asked by Sen. Edward J. Gurney of Florida why the United States did not apply enough military power "to win the war," Mr. Nixon replied that the military option was still open.

He emphasized that the last thing he wanted to do was to exercise that option, but said the option had to be kept alive until the North Vietnamese entered serious negotiations.

At that, another of the Republicans present asked what the President meant by the "military option"—a renewal of the bombing of the North, including such targets as the docks in Haiphong harbor, or did he mean a military invasion of North Vietnam?

In his response, Mr. Nixon hedged, but acknowledged that the military "option" might include all that.

Whereupon, another of the Republicans said he hoped there wouldn't be any public speculation from the Administration on re-Americanizing the war. The Republicans, he said, were already in a political bind over the war and talk about military re-escalation would only make it worse. Mr. Nixon replied that he understood that point.

Later, two of the Republicans who heard Mr. Nixon that evening told us that they were deeply disturbed. One said flatly: "He scared the hell out of me."

In hard fact, however, it is unlikely that President Nixon would suddenly change the whole direction of his careful strategy to de-Americanize—or Vietnamize—the war. In the first place, it is too early to know how fast that process, which has been national policy for only six months, can move—how fast U.S. troops can be withdrawn and replaced by Saigon's troops.

But more important, the President knows that any switch to military escalation by the U.S. would cripple his Administration before the end of its first year and wreck his own party.

Accordingly, the Johnson-style talk from Mr. Nixon last week seems to have been mainly a psychological ploy directed both at Hanoi and at restive Republicans in Congress now publicly breaking away from the Nixon leadership on the war.

Mr. Nixon has been around long enough to know that no conversation with as many as a dozen or more Senators can stay private for long, particularly when its important aspect is a revelation of the Presidential mood and not any hard, classified information.

Thus, to Hanoi, by this reasoning, Mr. Nixon was conveying a calculated message of his growing impatience in a way that would carry more conviction than a public statement, and that would not expose him to the political criticism of a public statement. (Continued On Page 6)

Strength For Today

The Searching Question
A leading churchman in the United States visited Russia recently and made it a point to attend as many church services as possible. He found an interesting situation, for a large number of devout people still worship in a land officially atheistic.

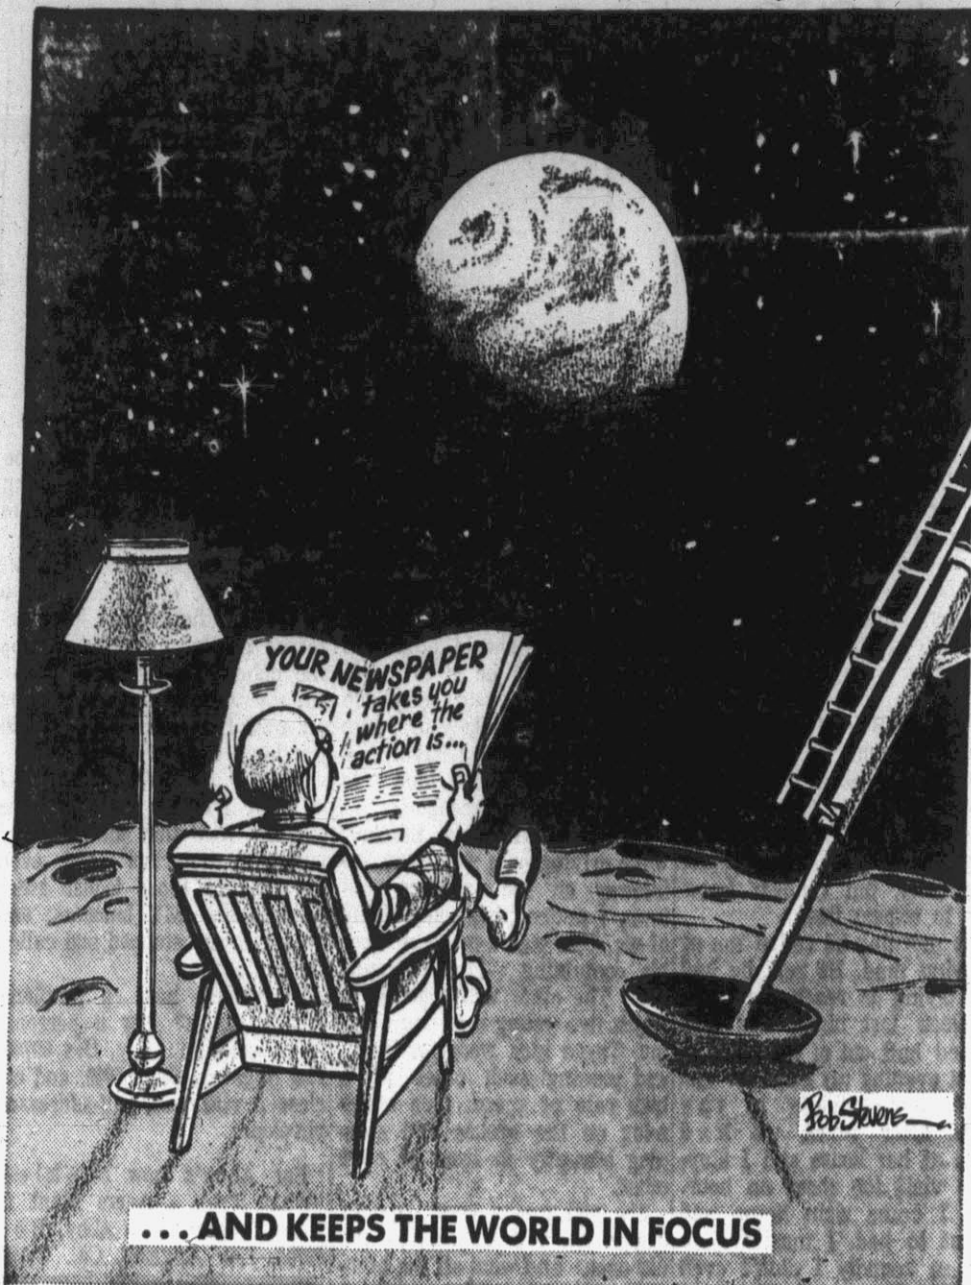

The visitor was frequently surrounded by questioners. One day a girl of communistic belief asked the churchman to describe the church situation in the United States. The visitor did so eagerly. Then the girl quietly asked him, "What difference does it make?"

We may well ask ourselves what difference religion is making in or individual lives and in the life of our nation. We are proud of our churches.

On the whole the people who attend church are sincere, earnest and aspiring. Our clergy are well educated and are genuinely committed to their task.

But think of the room for improvement! Think how much better our churches might be! They are frequently crowded to the doors, yet statistics show that we are experiencing a profound moral decline. If we were suddenly asked the question: "What difference does your religion make in your life?" We might find it rather difficult to answer.

But we are sure religion does make a difference. We are sure also that it could make a greater difference if we allowed it to do so. We ourselves apart and start asking a few searching questions.

Demise Of State Dept.

WASHINGTON — The decision to do away with the State Department by 1972, recommended in the now famous Dawk Report, was not a sudden one. It had been under study for several months by the President's Commission on Obsolete Government Organizations. The chairman of the committee, Donald Dawk, told me in an exclusive interview in his office:

"We concluded after many hearings that the State Department no longer fulfilled a function, and the money saved by abolishing the State Department could well be spent building up our naval nuclear forces."

"How did you come to this conclusion?" I asked.

"We found out during our investigation that the State Department, under our present form of government, no longer has much to do with foreign policy. Most foreign policy is decided by either the Defense Department, the CIA or Henry Kissinger. Since it was only duplicating the work, it seemed to us the State Department was a luxury that this country could do without."

"But what about the diplomatic relations with other countries?"

"Our report indicated that since military juntas are becoming more fashionable in the Free World, the Defense Department was in a much better position to deal with them than State. Several generals have already made treaties with foreign governments, with far more dispatch than our State Department diplomats."

"There is something to be said for that," I interpolated.

"A second reason for turning over diplomacy to the Defense Department is that Defense is in a position, financially, to give military aid to those nations who co-operate with the United States and withhold it from countries who don't. The State Department has no such leverage.

"We found in our studies that every head of state that has come to Washington in the last few years has asked to visit the Pentagon, while none has asked to visit the State Department building, which is much more centrally located.

"Also, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird is on television every night explaining some part of our foreign policy, while Secretary of State William Rogers hasn't been heard from since he was sworn in."

"This is so, but the State Department is a losing proposition. The public never gets to see what it's getting for its money. As one witness put it, 'You never get a bang for your buck in State, whereas with Defense, for every buck you spend, you know there's going to be a bang somewhere.'"

"What will you do with the State Department building in Washington?"

"We'll keep the main floor for issuing passports and we'll try to keep as many ambassadors on as we can, processing visas and working in the cafeteria. But the rest of the building will probably be used as a Marine Corps annex."

"Overseas, the American embassies will be taken over by Defense. This incidentally

Change Of The Guard

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It is always a wistful moment when power changes hands in a great corporation.

So the two of them were having a private champagne party of their own before they opened the door to the board room and told the board what it was to do.

What the board was to do was to kick the older of the two up to the chairmanship and turn the presidency, the real take-over position, to the younger one.

"Well, M.J., I never really thought this day would dawn," said the older of the two, taking a deep sip of the bubbly.

"I didn't really foresee it either, P.J.," said the younger.

They looked at each other thoughtfully then, silently measuring the differences between them—differences involving years and sex.

P.J. was short and heavy-set and balding and would never see 65 again. M.J. was slender and attractive, but a few threads of early gray in her hair indicated she would hardly be able to claim she was 30 more than another year or two.

"P.J., tell me the truth, do you really mind turning the job over to me?" asked M.J.

"Well, in a way I do, M.J., and in a way I don't," said P.J., staring moodily out the window.

"At my time of life my two big concerns are my golf game and the good of the corporation. My golf game has been slipping lately, and I'm the only one who can really give it the extra attention it needs.

"On the other hand, the corporation is in good shape, and I don't think it needs me particularly. As a matter of fact, it really doesn't need me at all.

"A fresh hand at the tiller will probably make it sail even better. Things are changing rapidly in the world, more rapidly than I want them to, but you've got a real feeling for change and can adjust to it easily. Frankly, that's a big reason why I hand-picked you for the top job."

"Thank you, P.J.," said M.J., "but I know that in your heart you wish you had a son of your own you could turn it over to. Actually, you don't really relish the idea of handing the corporation over to a woman.

"Oh, don't fret about that, M.J.," said P.J., reaching out and patting her cheek with a rough hand of embarrassed affection.

"The world isn't made to fit any man's desires. In a way I almost feel you were a son to me.

"Of course, you know I really feel a woman's place is still in the home, and I'll never get over that idea.

"I'll admit I was prejudiced against you at the start. If anybody had told me 20 years ago that I'd step aside for a woman, any woman, I'd have told him he was crazy."

They looked at each other through a long moment of silence then, and M.J. broke the tension by nervously tugging at her skirt.

Other Editors Say Peace Corps Shrinks

(Des Moines Register)

The House of Representatives beat back an attempt Sept. 8 to cut the money authorized for the Peace Corps from $101.1 million to $90 million for the current fiscal year. But the Peace Corps is being cut back. The high year in appropriations was 1966. The high year for the combined number of volunteers in service plus trainees was 1966. The high year for volunteers in service was 1967. Since then the Peace Corps has been shrinking slowly.

Some of the high hopes for the Peace Corps in its early years have not been realized. In size it remains dwarfed by American servicemen overseas. It has never succeeded in attracting very many people with vocational skills that are in demand in underdeveloped countries though it is making another try now. It has not proved acceptable except in countries whose governments are already reasonably friendly to the United States, and a small shift in the host government's attitude has sometimes led to expulsion or tapering off of the Peace Corps.

Yet in many ways the experiment must still be judged a success. The effect of thousands of these idealistic youngsters spending a year in unselfish service in a poor and far-off land has been far beyond their numbers. The returned volunteers are a valuable leaven of knowledge and sympathy in the United States.

Congress does well to keep the Peace Corps going and defend it against jargon slashes.

Soul-Searching With Railroads?

By ELMER ROESSNER
Railroad passenger service is in a mess. Railroads insist they are losing money on it and want to discontinue more trains; yet many riders and Congressmen want to save intercity passenger service and it might come in handy in event of a major war.

Three government agencies and a spate of Congressmen are involved. Ten bills are pending in Congress to save the railroads.

The usual cures for all crises have been proposed:

• An investigation.

• A corporation to take over.

• Federal subsidies.

Who's In Charge Here

The three government agencies involved are the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Department of Transportation and the Federal Railroad Administration. The latter two are making the investigation and think nothing should be done until the investigation is complete, a matter of months. Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., has introduced a bill to provide for a six-month study by the DOT.

Other pending legislation would create a "Railpax" copation with authority to discontinue or reinstate trains, but new rolling stock, and deal with states and cities for subsidies on trains losing money. Railpax would be owned half by the railroads, half by the public, and railroads and government would support it.

Other bills would provide various subsidies to provide a continuance of passenger traffic. Several bills would give the ICC explicit authority to insist on certain standards of passenger service. These have been prompted by reports that railroads are deliberately worsening service to discourage passengers so there will be less opposition to train discontinuance.

ICC Chairman Virginia Mae

Brown told the Senate Commerce subcommittee on surface transportation that while the ICC has power to prevent cancellation of trains, it did not have power to insist on standards of service. However, roads have lost passengers to planes, buses and private cars, many passengers declare that the railroads are discouraging intercity traffic with dirty, rundown and unrepaired cars and slow service. The railroads, on the other hand, protest that it is the decline in passenger revenue that denies them enough revenue to keep trains cleaned and in repair.

Railroad buffs point out that Japan's New Tokaido Line, that runs at speeds up to 125 miles an hour and so smoothly that one can balance a coin on edge on a window sill, made a profit of $96 million last year.

The Association of American Railroads counters with evidence that the rest of Japan's railroads brought an aggregate loss of $261 million in fiscal 1968; that the British deficit in that year was $367 million; that France lost $250 million in the same period and West Germany lost —$375 million.

While it is obvious that rail-

Battle Over Haynsworth Shifts To Cloakroom

RECEIVES MEDAL — Col. John D. Duffus (left) new chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Aerospace Studies (AF-ROTC), receives the Air Force Meritorious Service Medal from Col. Owen T. Reeves, aerospace studies professor at N. C. State University. Col. Reeves said the new Air Force medal was presented to Col. Duffus for outstanding service during his last duty assignment at Richards-Gebaur AFB, Missouri. He was cited for "outstanding managerial abilities and leadership which greatly improved the performance and productivity of his squadron."

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battle over Clement F. Haynsworth's nomination to the Supreme Court shifted today from committee chambers to the Senate cloakroom where the outcome appeared to rest with some two dozen wavering senators.

In the aftermath of Judiciary Committee approval of the nomination Thursday opponents appeared to have the edge on the floor.

A survey by the Associated Press, combined with positions obtained from Senate sources, showed at least 46 votes against the nomination, 33 for it and 21 undecided.

It was clear, however, the situation could change dramatically for a number of reasons before the nomination comes to the floor, probably not for two weeks.

For one, the American Bar Association leadership decided Thursday to meet sometime in the next few days to review its position on Haynsworth, for the past 12 years a member of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

The ABA endorsed the nomination last month during Senate hearings. A change in position could have significant impact.

Floor debate also cannot begin until the Judiciary Committee files majority and minority reports. Some senators said they would wait for these before making up their minds.

An example of the fluid nature of the situation was Maryland Republican Charles McC. Mathias.

A member of the Judiciary Committee, Mathias abstained Thursday when the committee climaxed a two-hour closed meeting by voting 10 to 6 to report the nomination to the floor.

Then in late afternoon he sent a letter to Judiciary Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Mass., saying he wanted to be recorded against committee approval of the nomination.

"There are grave doubts remaining on the record," Mathias said.

Saying the ABA meeting underlines this uncertainty, Mathias said while the doubts "remain in a question of this kind, they must be resolved in favor of the public."

A Mathias aide said later, however, the senator's committee vote did not mean Mathias would definitely vote against confirmation.

Among other head counts, one reportedly done for the Democratic leadership put the vote at a "rock bottom" 54 against Haynsworth with another nine leaning that way.

Another reportedly done for Philip A. Hart of Michigan, the ranking Democratic opponent of Haynsworth on the Judiciary Committee, had 45 "hard" votes against, 35 for, 10 leaning against, five leaning for and five undecided.

One midwestern senator, who nobody even bothered contacting because they assumed he was backing the administration, told the Associated Press he was so angry over the nomination he was about ready to speak out and would definitely vote against. This same senator said still another influential Republican who has been saying he was still uncommitted also was about ready to come out against Haynsworth.

The judge himself was described Thursday by one of his strongest and most vocal supporters as "disillusioned ... frustrated."

South Carolina Democrat Ernest Hollings said he would be surprised if Haynsworth withdrew from the fight now but that he was no longer flatly ruling out the possibility.

In a free-wheeling news conference defense of Haynsworth, Hollings also underscored one of the most bizarre aspects of the controversy.

Hollings criticized the administration for putting him, a Democrat, in the position of being a prime mover for a nomination made by a Republican President. This shows a lack of any strong leadership of its own in the Senate, Hollings indicated.

Hollings cited the defection earlier this week of Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin and said that circumstances have changed so much in recent days that confirmation by as little as one vote "would be quite a victory."

Hollings, in still another somewhat bizarre development, challenged Sen. Birch Bayh to a televised debate on the nomination.

One network even jumped right in offering time for what would have been an unprecedented performance.

The Indiana Democrat, a leading Haynsworth opponent, turned Hollings down for the time being, saying that "In light of the serious nature of our responsibility to advise and consent to the nomination of a justice ... we should do our best to debate this matter in a deliberate and dispassionate manner on the floor of the Senate."

Community Hallowe'en Party Slated October 12

All Greenville-area children of school age have been invited to a community Halloween party October 13 at 1515 Broad St., sponsored by the Adult Camp, Individuals and the Modern Woodmen of America, a legal reserve fraternal life insurance society.

Larry R. Stox Sr. is acting as chairman for the Halloween activity, assisted by Mrs. Jesse Baker.

According to Mrs. Baker, "we hope for a good turnout, and we have the prizes, souvenirs and refreshments for a crowd."

Games and activities will be provided for all age groups and costumes will be judged.

Stox said last year's Halloween party was attended by a large number of children and said hopes are that this year's party will be even larger.

Modern Woodmen of America is sponsoring similar costume parties "in hundreds of communities in the U.S." Stox said as part of its continuing effort to further the general welfare of the youth of the nation and to contribute to community progress.

FOR THE RECORD BOOKS: Born in Little Rock, Arkansas, 32 years ago, Brooks Robinson has been playing for one of baseball's winningest teams, the Baltimore Orioles, since 1955. In the most recent complete season, 1968, he set an American League record by leading third basemen in assists for the sixth year. In twelve straight All-Star games, Brooks fielded flawlessly. In five 162-game seasons, he missed just one game. He is the Orioles' player representative. Married in 1960, he and his wife Connie have three sons and a daughter.

"In sports or anything else—it's teamwork that pays off."

"I learned to be a team player as a youngster delivering newspapers. It taught me responsibility and gave me confidence. I wouldn't trade that experience for anything in the world."

NEWSPAPERBOYS DELIVER!

All of us respond to challenge. Meeting the challenge can mean handling a hot grounder or a tough pitch—or delivering newspapers in all kinds of weather. Brooks Robinson, former newspaperboy, might have become a top star without that early experience, but he learned from it that organized effort makes the difference between winners and losers.

As America's newspaperboys enjoy their annual day in the spotlight—on International Newspaperboy Day—the Treasury's U.S. Savings Bonds Division once again salutes them. Newspaperboys have helped sell many a Bond in community campaigns through the years. Many of them are Bond-buyers themselves. And they'll grow to man's estate with a thrift habit that brightens their futures and strengthens their country.

Influence Of The Church Reportedly In Decline

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The churches are falling behind. American church attendance has slipped. Other signs of declining church influence have appeared, not only in this country but also abroad.

The "era of Christendom is over," says the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, general secretary of the World Council of Churches. "We are in a secularizing age, and the idea of the church dominating culture or dominating government has gone. This is complete." However, a new image of a "servant church"—that works simply for the causes of men's good rather than exerting power over their institutions—is emerging among many Christian thinkers as the vision of the church in times ahead. In their view, it may be a "church in diaspora"—a scattered minority in society. The description initially was used by German Catholic theologian Karl Rahner, and has since been echoed by many others. "The plain fact is this—Christians today are being outpaced, outdistanced, outbred," wrote the Rev. Canon Howard A. Johnson, an Episcopal theologian, after a world tour studying the status of Christianity.

"Unless counterforces are set in motion, it may be that proportionally, Christianity is doomed to shrink more and more and become a minority movement with diminishing capacity for influencing culture and history."

That Christians constituted a third of the world's population at the start of the century, but now are only 25 per cent, and continuation of that same downward trend would reduce this to 22 per cent by the century's end.

Bishop Odd Hagen, of Stockholm, Sweden, a leader in the World Methodist Council, has said a projection of the most recent figures indicate that "only 9 per cent of the world's population, by the year 2000, will call itself Christian."

Over-all, the most recent statistics show that 63.2 per cent of the U.S. population now are church members, compared with 64.4 per cent the year before, near where it had hovered for three years, ending a long, steady climb.

Two years ago, the Rev. Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, a Presbyterian and professor of religion at Stanford University, predicted churches would lose "tremendous numbers" as they became involved in trying to relieve social problems.

Now, it has started down. Nearly all major denominations, Protestant and Roman Catholics, last year slowed to their lowest gains in decades.

Four-Year-Old Girl Is Tiny Medical Celebrity

STONINGTON, Me. (UPI)—The high point of four-year-old Debra Hutchinson's day comes each afternoon when she tosses leftovers from her dad's lunchbox to the seagulls swooping around his lobster boat moored off Stonington.

They compared notes and discovered that Debra had the same symptoms of the earlier Hutchinson baby who died. "If something isn't done quickly," Dr. Lambdin said, "this baby will die, too. It sounds like adrenogenital syndrome."

Because her progress has been so remarkably normal in spite of a potentially fatal birth defect, medical experts from all over are interested in the case history of the little Maine coast girl.

Debra's bubbling good health obscures the fact that she was born with a rare, inherited birth defect that nearly killed here before it was diagnosed.

Debra's body chemistry defect Ellsworth hospital the next day. By then she had lost nearly a pound and a half of her birth weight, despite normal food intake. Her skin was gray and dry, her eyes sunken and she was desperately weak.

While the facts of her case appealed to their intellects the courage and personality of this adorable little girl in the blue dress embroidered with "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" had truly won their hearts. As one scientist put it:

WHAT A COMPUTER CAN'T DO

We'd be lost, wouldn't we, if suddenly computers were withdrawn from our daily life? We have become dependent on them to schedule airplane flights, point out scholastic aptitudes and aid the Internal Revenue Service in checking income tax returns.

But there are things a computer can't do. It can't make a home a better home or a man a better man. A computer can't heal sorrows and disappointments. It can swallow up a lot of statistics and clank out a lot of conclusions, but it can't direct a man to God's love.

As today's world is run more and more by automation, we need the help of the Church to guide us in the spiritual realm of life. We need to experience God's great love for all men. In our mechanical world, only the Church can help us find God's love.

Archeologists Finding Treasures In Lebanon

By GERRY LOUGHRAN

BEIRUT (UPI) — European and Arab archeologists have started a widespread series of excavations to tap the treasure trove of Lebanese history. In a country whose snow-laden cedars are mentioned in the Bible and whose past goes back to the Phoenicians, the prizes are considerable. Wars and invasions have criss-crossed the long history of this tiny country (150 miles long, 50 wide). Names like Tyre and Sidon, the temples of Baalbeck, crusader churches and castles and Islamic minarets represent a unique blend of cultures and peoples.

The age of Byblos (from which the word "Bible" is derived) measured in thousands of years. The names of Ramses, Nebuchadnezzar, Marcus Aurelius and Caracalla have all left their imprint. Among "digs" now being investigated is a cave containing prehistoric flints, the remains of a pre-Christian village and the town where the prophet Elias hid from the wrath of Queen Jezebel.

Ancient Bricklayers
Archeologists under the direction of the Lebanese department of antiquities are excavating an impressive hippodrome at the southern port city of Tyre. One of the biggest in the world, the arena is unusual in that it is brick, not the more common stone.

Many details which have disappeared from similar constructions around the Mediterranean are still intact at Tyre, including the Spina, a central construction around which the horses trotted, and an obelisk. Work also is continuing on the large Acropolis where workers have now reached the Phoenician level dating back to the 4th and 6th Centuries B.C. Fragments of statues and pottery, Assyrian inscriptions, scarabs and a dedicatory stone have rewarded the diggers' search.

The stone, placed by the governor of Syria and Phoenicia to the Egyptian King Philopater (at the time Tyre was part of the Ptolemy Kingdom) suggests the searchers are nearing an exciting new find—a temple perhaps or a town center.

Temple of Eshmun

Thirty miles north of Tyre, its "twin," Port Sidon, is being eagerly combed for traces of the past. At the Temple of Eshmun, the Phoenician god of health, statues in iron and marble have been found along with some bearing Persian characteristics. These clearly indicate the persistence of Persian influence in the arts even after Tyre escaped Persia's sphere.

Among the more important inscriptions deciphered was one revealing names of four of the kings of Phoenicia.

Excavations began earlier this year at Sarafand, a coastal town midway between Tyre and Sidon, biblical site of the town Sarepta where the prophet Elias, seeking refuge from an outraged Queen Jezebel, cured a widow's son. To date, archeologists have recovered Byzantine and Roman objects from the city.

Other new excavations at Fedar, between the Adonis River and Byblos north of Beirut, have turned up fragments and bones in a hillside cave dating from the Paleolithic period.

A German team is working at Kamed-al-Loz in the fertile Bekaa Valley near the Syrian border investigating the remains of a pre-Christian village of undetermined origin.

PROPOSED LUNAR SURFACE FLYER — This drawing shows an artist's concept of a Flying Lunar Excursion Experimental Platform that North American Rockwell's Space Division has announced plans to design under a contract with the National Aviation and Space Agency's Langley Research Center. The one-man flyer will be tested in simulation facility at Langley to evaluate designs for lunar surface flyers. (AP Wirephoto)

Less Competitive Trend By U.S. Is Suggested

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the United States becoming less competitive in world business?

You can't prove it right now, but signs do abound that indicate Americans no longer dominate in technological, management and marketing skills as they did during the two decades following World War II.

The trend, if it is that, may be more of a compliment to the vigor of other industrial nations than a suggestion that Americans are losing their zest and skills.

The United States continues to advance in most areas of business. But the growing number of foreign products available in American markets demonstrates clearly the growing degree of foreign competition.

The automotive market is a clear example. Against the vaunted power of some of the world's large corporations, the Detroit automotive companies, foreign carmakers now sell a million units a year in the United States.

Despite the continued pre-eminence of America in some technologies, there is growing evidence that American goods are not snapped up as eagerly by foreigners as they were a decade ago.

Reflecting this, the U.S. foreign payments condition remains in deficit, meaning that Americans continue to spend more abroad than is earned from foreigners. In the most recent six-month period, in fact, the deficit deepened.

Although official figures won't be available until next month, indications are that in the six months to Sept. 30 the total outflow will be close to $6 billion.

Some of this outflow, such as military spending, has little to do with trade. Some of the loss results from foreigners selling their stock in American corporations. But the trade figures, too, are poor.

As recently as 1964 the United States exported $6.6 billion more goods than it imported. Last year exports outpaced imports by only $626 million. And in the first six months of this year a $132 million deficit was run up.

A breakdown of the figures reveals that exports of manufactured products declined to 23 per cent of the world total from 28 per cent during the past decade. Machinery exports fell to 28 per cent from 34 per cent in the same period.

The reasons are varied. Artificial restraints such as import restrictions, especially on American agricultural products, have contributed to some loss of trade.

Inflation very likely has done its part, for it puts a higher price tag on American goods. But other nations also have inflation, some of them to a greater degree than in the United States.

A more likely explanation is that the United States no longer has a near monopoly on modern technology and management, not because it has lost its abilities but because others have acquired them.

Lots Of Joneses, And More Coming

HENDERSON, Tenn. (AP) — Keeping up with the Jones is quite a job on the campus of Freed-Hardeman College here. There are five of them—and they're brothers.

And more are on the way. Wade Jones, 19, says a brother, Don, 25, will join the five at Freed-Hardeman in January. The father, James A. Jones, plans to enroll next fall to study for the ministry.

The Jones boys—ranging in age from 19 to 30—are from Greenville, S.C. Four of the five are studying for the ministry; Jim, 30, is taking engineering. Wade and Jim are sophomores; Ward is a junior and Joe and Phil are freshmen.

How did they all happen to be enrolled at the small, Church of Christ-operated college? "It just happened that way," Jim said.

Opening lead: Ace of ♦
A hand which produced a substantial swing in a recent team-of-four match is presented today. North and South at the first table quickly discovered that their opponents did not intend to make matters easy for them. East opened the bidding with three clubs which presented South with quite a problem. His distribution was not attractive for a take-out double, and, while the risk in making a vulnerable overcall at the three level was considerable, he was reluctant to be shut out of the opportunity to score offensively. He therefore bid three hearts.
West bid four diamonds and North raised partner to four hearts. When the bidding reverted to West, he decided to sacrifice at five diamonds. Had he been permitted to play this contract, his opponents would have been able to take one trick in each side suit for a 100 point penalty. North was reluctant to settle for a paltry profit, however, and he persisted to five hearts.

West led the ace of diamonds and shifted to his singleton club. South put up the dummy's king and immediately led a spade to the ace in his hand. He was paving the way for an end play in spades and he did not wish to give the opposition any inducement to unblock in the suit. Trumps were now drawn in two rounds followed by a diamond ruff in dummy. A club was led to the ace and the last club was trumped out.

A spade was played and the defense was helpless. If East put up the king of spades, it would drop his partner's queen and establish declarer's jack. If West were allowed to win the trick, however, the forced return would allow South to ruff in dummy while he discarded the losing spade from his hand.

South made five hearts for a score of 650 on the deal, while in the other room his teammates were permitted to play a contract of five diamonds doubled with the East-West cards. They were defeated one trick for a deficit of a mere 100 points. The net profit for the team on this hand was therefore 550 points.

HEALTH AND CHIROPRACTIC

By
Dr. W. C. Chapel,
Former President
Lincoln Chiropractic College

Q. I am bothered with dizziness and nausea. What could be wrong with me?

A. Many conditions cause vertigo (dizziness). Some of the more common are blood pressure changes, inner ear conditions, digestive disorders, and deranged nerve supply from the upper neck.

Q. How would I find out the cause of my dizziness?

A. You can call your D. C. (Doctor of Chiropractic) for an appointment for examination and advice.

Q. Will my D. C. treat me for the vertigo?

A. That depends on what his examination reveals. He may advise treatment in his office or he may suggest that you see a specialist in another field. During the past seventy-three years thousands of Americans have found relief from vertigo, nausea and many other ailments at the hands of their doctor of chiropractic. Only your chiropractor can tell you whether or not yours is a chiropractic case.

Aycock Rolls To Third Win, 28-0

ROCKY MOUNT — Alphonso Hunter scored two touchdowns in leading Aycock Junior High School to a 28-0 romp over Rocky Mount's Wilson Junior High yesterday.

It was the third straight victory for the Phantoms this year.

Hunter started the action off in the first period, carrying the ball over from 68 yards out. Calvin Moore ran over the extra point for a 8-0 lead.

Later in the period, Moore picked up a touchdown, crossing over from the four. That boosted the lead to 14-0.

In the second period, Hunter scored his second touchdown. This one was a 78-yard scamper, and shot the score to 20-0.

The final score was a 35-yard pass from Robbie Pinner to Ronnie Purvis. Moore again ran the extra point for the final 28-0 margin.

Yarborough Sets New Mark In Qualifying

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — "I think the time has come when speeds will level off in auto racing," says husky Cale Yarborough. "We are getting to the point where driving is a game of science and tactics."

Yarborough, 29, made the comment Thursday after setting a new world's closed course record for a mile and one-half speedway of 162.162 miles per hour at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The effort gave the blond, 5-foot-7 Mercury driver the inside front row position for Sunday's $116,000 National 500 stock car race. Nineteen other drivers qualified for the 44-car field.

With Yarborough setting the pace, seven of Thursday's first 10 qualifiers bettered the speedway's old lap record, and the average speed of the 10 also topped the old mark—159.296 m.p.h. set by Donnie Allison in 1968.

"I think we're approaching a speed that will call for a four-wheel drift through the turns on banked tracks," Yarborough said. "This is a situation where you actually don't steer the car, and naturally you don't have as much control of the vehicle."

"Five years ago I'd have bet my last dollar that no driver would ever reach 162 m.p.h. on a one and one-half mile race track. But drivers, cars and tires have improved to the point that we've about reached the peak speed here."

Yarborough said his Wood Brothers pit crew had clocked him at 163-plus during morning practice. "That's sort of in the scary range," he quipped.

Others qualifying at speeds above the old lap record were, in order, Ford's Richard Petty, Donnie Allison and LeeRoy Yarborough, and Dodge's Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison and Charlie Glotzbach. Ford's David Pearson and Bobby Isaac and Dave Marcis, both in Dodges, were just under the old record.

A. J. Foyt, five-time U. S. driving champion, qualified a Ford in 12th position. The three-time Indianapolis winner, making a rare appearance in big speedway stock car events, made his timed run after only five laps of practice.

Ten more spots in the field were at stake today, with the final 14 to come Saturday from the remainder of an entry list that had reached 60 cars by late Thursday.

Hoak Dies After Bucs Name Murtaugh Manager

By D. BYRON YAKE
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Don Hoak was an ex-Marine who enjoyed a good fight on or off the field. Managing or playing baseball, he was "The Tiger" as his friends called him.

The 41-year-old Hoak died Thursday evening, just three hours after the Pittsburgh Pirates named Danny Murtaugh to the managing post Hoak admitted he wanted badly.

In 10 major league seasons as a third baseman, Hoak played on two pennant winners. In 1960 he was the sparkplug of the World Champion Pirates.

Hoak was just a substitute with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1955 but in the World Series seventh game Hoak was a third base, substituting for the injured Jackie Robinson.

"Hoak won't scare out," Dodger Manager Walter Alton said at that time.

Hoak was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car after chasing his brother-in-law's car which was allegedly stolen. But a physician saw him pull over to the side of the road and collapse. He was dead of a heart attack on arrival at a Pittsburgh hospital.

Just Wednesday night Hoak said on a television broadcast he was the man for the Pirate job.

"I'm the man for the job. I don't know if he (General Manager Joe L. Brown) has picked the man yet, but I'm the man."

Thursday morning Hoak said he was sure he wouldn't get the job and indicated he might not manage the Columbus team next season. His Jets came in second in the International League this year.

But Brown, att he news conference announcing Murtaugh's appointment, said "The man who managed Columbus last year can have the job this year if he wants it, rumors to the contrary."

After he retired as a player, Hoak tried broadcasting for the Pirates a couple years, then joined the Philadelphia Phillies as a coach for a year.

He took over the Pirates' Salem, Va., farm club and won the Carolina League pennant, then was promoted to Columbus.

In his major league career, Hoak hit for a .263 average. His best season came in 1961 as a Pirate when he hit .298.

Hoak, a former amateur boxer, also had a few fights on the baseball field. He won some and lost some.

Funeral arrangements for Hoak, who married signer Jill Corey in 1961, were not complete.

The '69 Classic singles title gave Nelson Burton Jr. two, one more ABC title than his father.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

It wasn't the worst, but then again, it wasn't the best either.

Last week's prediction started out badly, and for a while, looked like they were going to get even worse. You get these feelings sometimes. It probably, is similar to the feeling folks got in San Francisco a little over 60 years ago, or, in Johnstown, Pa., during the rainy season, or, on the Atlantic Ocean, some years back when a ship called the Titanic . . .

Oh, well, better luck this week. From that 12-7 week, let's see if we can't stumble into a few more winners this week.

Rose High School's Rampants, shocked by their loss to Rocky Mount last week, don't get any brooding time. They have to play New Hanover of Wilmington this week, realizing ha Wilmington first of two wins came over Rocky Mount.

The Rampants apparently have the offense to move the ball well on just about anybody. Unfortunately, they haven't been able to come up with a defense to stop anybody.

The same holds true for this week's game. New Handover will be the victor.

Hit me.

Sooner or later, somewhere, sometime, some nice little old lady is going to tap bumpers with you in a parking lot.

Be prepared.

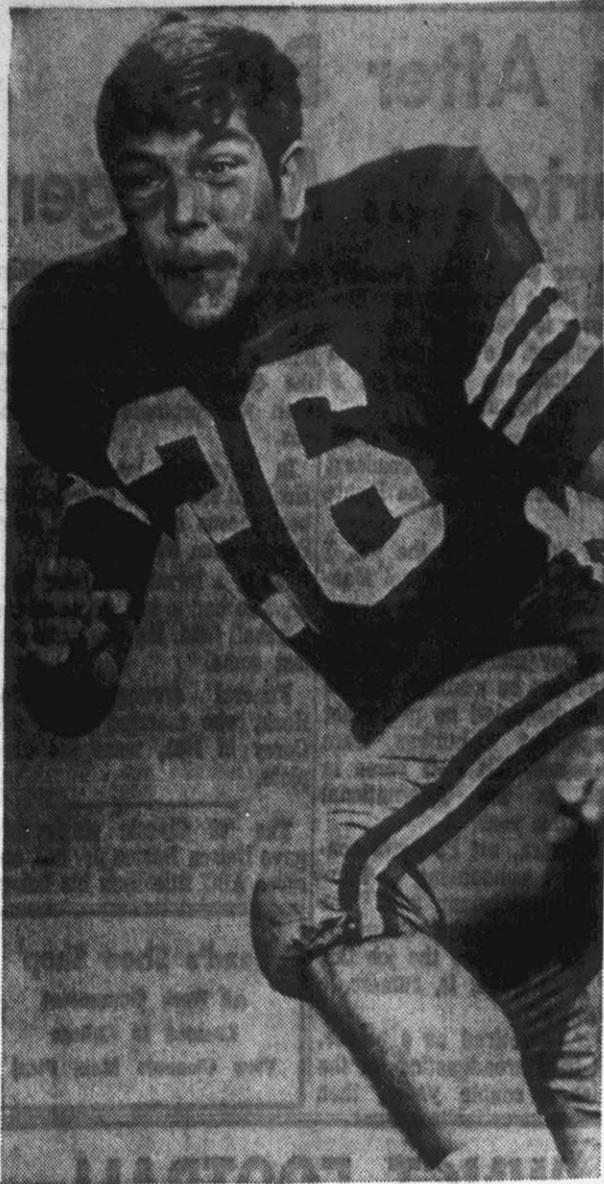

If you're buying a new car, make sure you get one with a color-coordinated rubber bumper (that's why you didn't notice it). Union Carbide research scientists sat down and puzzled out a good way to make a molded urethane rubber bumper. A bumper that won't chip, crack, rust. A bumper that's wrinkle-free. And quiet as can be.

Bumpers aren't our only automotive business. We make everything from plastics for padding and interiors, to chemicals for carpeting and tires, to solvents for paints, to hydraulic fluid for brakes, to PRESTONE antifreeze and summer coolant.

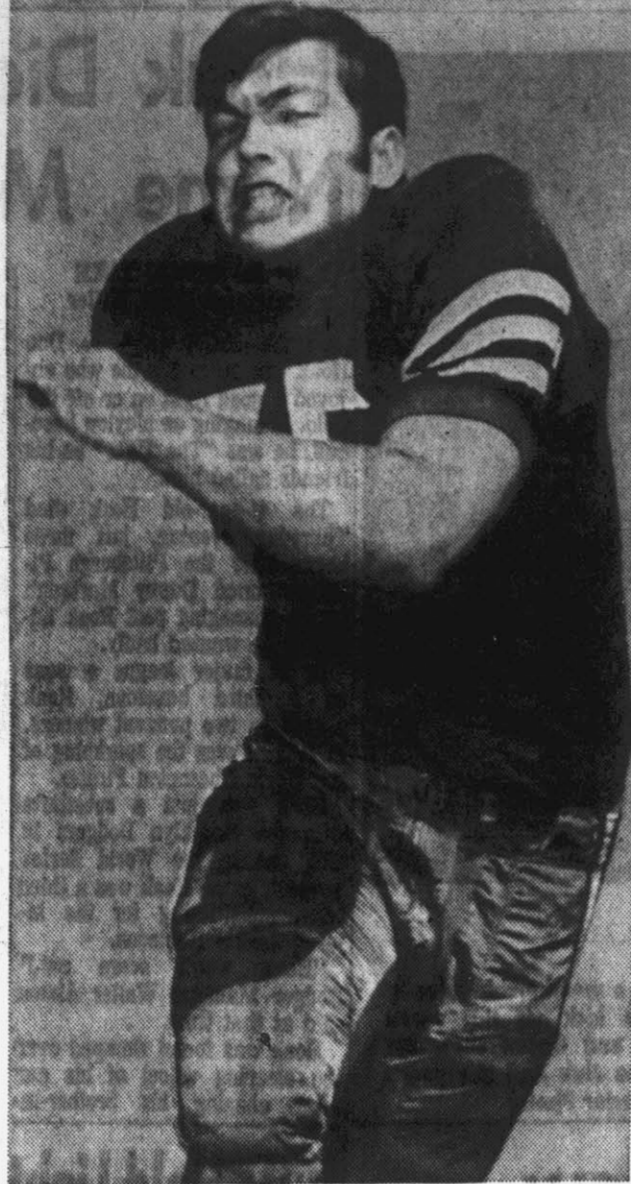

Back to bumpers. Drive carefully. Watch out for the other guy. And get a car with a bumper bumper to save your bumper bumps.

Meet The Pirates

Mike Boaz, left, and Tim Tyler are two members of this year's East Carolina University football team. Boaz, a 5-10, 176-pound senior from Fairmont, is a defensive halfback. He has started in that position for three years now, Tyler, a 6-2, 240-pound junior from Alexandria, Va., is a defensive tackle. He has seen action as a reserve. The Pirates, off this weekend, return to action next week in Richmond against the Spiders.

Ramblin's . . .

Farmville plays host to Ayden in the "big" traditional game in Pitt County tonight. The Red Devils are smarting from their first loss last week, and Ayden is smarting from their first loss ever to Grifton. Both teams are usually up for this one, but Farmville should pick up its second in a row over the Tornadoes.

Southern Nash is the guest of Greene Central's Rams. Southern Nash has never won a football game in its two-year history. The Rams have already won more than they did last year, and would like to improve on that. They should; Greene Central to win.

Williamston's ailing Green Wave plays host to Perquimans this Friday. The Green Wave has dropped three straight and injuries have played havoc with the team. They should be able to snap back in this one, however.

Robersonville goes to Belhaven in an important Tobacco Belt game. The Rams are on top of the standings, and a win would put them in good standing for a second straight title. Belhaven must win to stay in the race. I'll pick Robersonville in this one.

Elm City goes to Grifton. The Bulldogs are coming off their win over Ayden, and could suffer a letdown in this one. However, Elm City is probably a good place for a let down, and the Bulldogs will win it.

There are two important games in the Southern Conference this weekend, Richmond at Davidson, and William & Mary at The Citadel.

The Bulldogs are coming off their big win over East Carolina, while the Indians nearly pulled off an upset of Virginia last week. It's tough to stop the Veer of The Citadel, and they should win it.

Richmond's Spiders are defending their crown, and Davidson is in a darkhorse position. Both teams have good records, and Davidson is undefeated. It should be a corker of a game, but I'll stick with the Spiders.

Elsewhere in the loop, it'll be Wofford over Furman, and Virginia over VMI.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, the choices go to Auburn over Clemson, Wake Forest over Duke, Syracuse over Maryland, the Air Force over North Carolina, and South Carolina over N. C. State.

Orioles, Mets Set To Open World Series Play

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Write

BALTIMORE (AP) — The New York Mets have arrived in Baltimore, carrying with them the Tom Seaver-Jerry Koosman pitching payroll that will have to stop the Orioles' booming bats when the World Series opens at Memorial Stadium Saturday.

It'll be Seaver, the Mets' 25-game winner, against Mike Cuellar, the Orioles' 23-game winner, in the opener of the best-of-seven series which carries with it the biggest prize in World Series history—$15,000 to each member of the winning team.

The battle for that prize at the end of baseball's 100th anniversary season commences at 1 p.m. EDT, before an anticipated sellout crowd of 53,000 and a national television audience that will watch the proceedings via NBC.

The proceedings, in the eyes of Koosman, likely will be different than they were in the National League playoffs against Atlanta when neither of the two Met aces were able to finish what they started.

"I see no reason why we should have the same trouble," said Koosman. "We'll probably both go out and throw shut-outs."

That, it would seem, would be a difficult task against a line-up that includes the Robinson boys—Frank and Brooks—and big Boog Powell, but the Mets may have a secret weapon in Manager Gil Hodges.

"Gil knows that team—he managed in that league," Seaver pointed out, noting Hodges' years at Washington. "He knows the hitters and their strengths and we'll rely on his judgement at least until we feel we have enough knowledge to do anything different."

Some of his knowledge was imparted by Hodges today after the Mets' first workout at Memorial Stadium. The Mets flew in Thursday night, then got their first look at the field after the Orioles had concluded their morning workout.

The Orioles, who whipped Minnesota in three straight to move through the American League playoffs and into the Series, will go with the same line-up they used against the Twins. But the Mets are changing to their right-handed hitting line-up with Cuellar pitching.

That batting order puts Ron Swoboda in right field in place of Art Shamsky, who hit .538 against the Braves; sends Al Weis to second base to replace Ken Boswell, who hit two homers in the playoffs; substitute veteran Ed Charles for rookie Wayne Garrett at third base, and puts Donn Clendenon on first instead of Ed Kranepool.

Hodges said he might leave Boswell in against the Orioles' scheduled second starter, Dave McNally. Baltimore's third game pitcher against Gary Gentry likely will be Jim Palmer when the team's shift to New York and resume action Tuesday.

Monday will be an off day for travel. All games will start at 1 p.m., EDT, except for Sunday's second game at Baltimore, which has a 2 p.m. start.

While the Mets are undoubtedly the sentimental favorites throughout most of the country because of their sudden rise after so many years of ineptitude, the Orioles have been installed as the favorites for their first World Series since 1966.

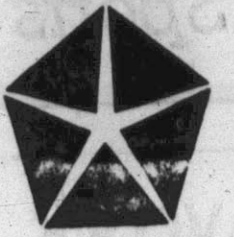

In that one, the Orioles were the underdogs, but went on to whip the Los Angeles Dodgers in four straight with many of the same stars who this season helped produce 109 victories as Baltimore raced to the American League East title.

The biggest guns are mounted by Frank Robinson and Boog Powell. Robinson hit .308 during the regular season with 32 homers and 100 runs batted in. Powell lashed 37 homers and drove in 121 runs while hitting .304.

Over-all, the Orioles hit .265 as a team compared to .24 for the Mets and out-homered them, 175-109. At the same time, the Orioles' pitching staff, which has not received publicity equal to the Mets', put together a 2.83 earned run average by comparison with New York's 2.99.

Robinson has noted those figures and says, "I think it will be a good Series." Then he adds pointedly, "But no more than five or six games."

Jim Chestney received a record $4,650 for winning the 1969 ABC Masters.

'Malcolm X University' Setting Uncharted Course

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM (AP) — Black militants are setting out on a largely uncharted course with plans to establish in Durham a center to train Negro Americans as leaders of an independent nation in Africa.

How successful they are may have considerable bearing on the black activist movement.

The plans for operation of the center, to be called Malcolm X Liberation University, were announced Thursday by Howard Fuller, a veteran of the black activist movement in North Carolina.

Fuller said classes will start Oct. 7 in a renovated warehouse for 30 or 40 students ranging in age from 15 to 40. A dozen instructors, not all of them with college degrees, will make up the teaching staff.

"The basic concept of the university is geared toward nation-building," Fuller said. "In order to fulfill the needs of a nation, the university will produce food scientists, tailors, architects, engineers, organizers, teachers, black expressionists, artists, medics, communications technicians, physical development specialists and linguists."

Fuller made clear that the nation he is talking about would be in Africa, not one within the United States as another organization is working toward.

That organization is headed by Robert Williams of Monroe, N.C., who is president of the Republic of New Africa. It seeks to carve a separate Negro nation from five Southern states. Williams recently returned from eight years of self-exile in Cuba, and Red China, and Tanzania.

The university opened on a part-time basis last spring after a clash between students and police on the Duke campus at the end of a day during which Negro students had seized the Duke Administration Building.

The Negro students sought establishment of a black studies program. Duke is offered its first courses in that field this term.

The Malcolm X concept is not without precedent.

Fuller — tall, lean and bearded — said the Center for Black Education in Washington, D.C., is similar and that "several other institutions of this sort are being established."

But, he said, there is little communication between the institutions and each is molding its own pattern to fit local situations.

The unorthodoxy of the Malcolm X concept is readily noticeable in the title used by Fuller as the university's chief administrative officer.

The title is HNHC.

"That stands for 'Head Nigger in charge,'" Fuller said. "That's a good black term. We don't believe in fooling around with titles like 'chancellor' and all that."

Fuller said the first year of the university's two-year course will concentrate on ideology and the second on technical training. A two-month trip to Africa is planned for students between the first and second years.

Fuller refused to disclose the source of the university's funds.

He said tuition would be $300 a year and financial aid would be given when needed. The university got a planning grant a few months ago from the Foundation for Community Development, a Durham-based anti-poverty organization.

Fuller said the concept of a new black nation in Africa is a long-range goal that will take "30 or 40 or 50 years."

Meanwhile, he said, the university will put its students and graduates to work preparing others for the goal.

During the second year of their formal training, for example, they will spend "extended periods of field work in the Negro community," he said. He said that will be "to develop proficiency as well as to provide for needs of the community."

Among immediate needs of the community around the university building, in an industrial section at the edge of the Durham business district, are a breakfast program for school children and a day care center for children of working mothers, Fuller said.

"We view Malcolm X Liberation University as an integral part of the black community," Fuller said. "Therefore, we will be involved in any activity affecting the black community."

In reply to a question, Fuller said that wouldn't include involvement in politics.

Neither, he said, will there be "guns or drugs of any kind in the university building."

Fuller himself brought up that point, and he said he wanted to "state it very clearly" because police had broken into "several black operations . . . throughout the country under the guise of searching for guns.

Once inside, he said, "the so-called law enforcement officers have destroyed the contents of the building."

"We will not take any invasion of (the Malcolm X building) lightly," Fuller said. "We will consider any invasion as an act of aggression against the black community that this university is set up to serve, and we will respond accordingly."

Fuller said a series of activities is scheduled to begin Oct. 25 to mark the university's opening, including a speech by Mrs. Betty Shabazz, the widow of slain Negro leader Malcolm X.

Supreme Court Hints Ruling On School Doctrine

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court may be ready to scrap the "all deliberate speed" doctrine and order the prompt desegregation of public schools everywhere in the South.

This is the clear import of the court's announcement Thursday that it will hear arguments Oct. 23 on an appeal by the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund in a Mississippi school case.

The fund is challenging a delay granted 222 schools by the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans last August. The Nixon administration had counseled delay and opposed the fund's request for an early Supreme Court decision.

The call for argument is the first major action by the high court under Warren E. Burger, the new chief justice, and must be viewed as a rebuff to the administration.

The court may end up with a ruling limited to the school situation in Mississippi. But it is more likely to follow the advice of Justice Hugo L. Black and determine whether the time has run out on compliance with the 1954 ruling that racially separate public schools are unconstitutional.

If the court insists on immediate desegregation throughout the South the ruling will rival in importance any of the last several years.

Burger's predecessor, Chief Justice Earl Warren, enunciated the "all deliberate speed" doctrine in 1955. The somewhat elastic phrase recognized that southern school districts needed time to overcome administrative difficulties but ordered them to move ahead with desegregation.

Since then, the court has regularly disapproved various approaches of southern school districts that appeared to accomplish only token desegregation.

The administration, through Sol. Gen. Erwin N. Griswold, took the position in the Mississippi case that what the court had said in these interim decisions had the effect of burying the "all deliberate speed" concept.

But the court evidently disagreed. The justices underscored the urgent view they seem to take of the situation by not waiting until Monday, the first rulings day of the new term, to make their announcement.

The administration had advised the appeals court to reconsider an earlier move to have the Mississippi schools desegregated by the start of the current school year because time was too short in view of "administrative and logistical difficulties."

The appeals court then postponed the deadline for workable desegregation plans until Dec. 1 and the fund appealed to the Supreme Court.

Need Permit For Trick-Or-Treat

SOUTH VIENNA, Ohio (AP) — Kids who go trick or treating here Oct. 30, will have more than Halloween witches and goblins to worry about.

South Vienna officials warned that local children who go trick or treating must obtain free permits at the village hall.

The action was taken to meet complaints from residents who said that in the past kids had flocked into this small community from other areas.

Nonresidents caught begging will be ushered out of town.

There are about 18,000 species of algae on earth.

The 'Piropo' Is Subtle Form Of Flattering Girl

(BUENOS AIRES UPI)—The young man waited at the corner until the blonde was only a few feet away. He removed the cigarette from his lips, looked her up and down slowly and gave a long soft whistle.

Just as she passed he let forth a hum of approval, and saying—"Hey, precious. If you were the moon I'd become an astronaut."

The girl stared straight ahead, trying hard to appear as though she hadn't heard a word. However, the moment she was out of his sight a big grin crossed her face.

That was an example of a "piropo"—a sometimes subtle, sometimes not so subtle, compliment paid to girls in Latin countries.

The piropo has been just as much a way of life in Argentina as the tango and the gaucho (local cowboy). However, the girls of Buenos Aires are now expressing concern that times are changing.

"The piropo is dying and I don't think it'll exist by the year 2,000," says Andrea Ramos, 17, a college coed.

She says Argentine men have lost the art of making up really creative piropos.

"At times women hear truly appalling things. The guys mumble them almost out of our hearing and then hurry off quickly," she said.

"I don't think there are any good piropos anymore and I guess there's less likely to be any in the future," says Maria del Carmen Rossi, 24.

She complained that the subtle, carefully conceived piropos have been replaced by whistles, shouts, exclamations and unintelligible murmurs.

Maria Espindola, 18, says three-quarters of the piropos she gets are vulgar. Asked how she responds, she said: "I answer them and sometimes I'm even more gross."

Despite the deteriorating state of the art, Argentine girls are nearly unanimous in feeling piropos are an important part of life in this South American nation of 23 million.

Maria Gonzalez, a 24-year-old student, defends them as "a way of breaking the ice." "If I were a man," Maria said, "I'd feel the need to express myself that way."

"For me they're an indispensable vitamin," said Angel Mafalda Fusco, 23. "If they stopped, I'd miss them a lot, a very very lot."

But the comments of Carmen Diaz, a 21-year-old model, best sums up the attitude of Argentine girls.

"The day I don't hear a piropo I'm going to get awfully worried and run to the nearest mirror," she said.

Viet Resolutions Smothering Bid For Unity Front

By JOHN B. LENGEL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's call for a united front behind the war effort is becoming a lonesome moan in a blizzard of Vietnam-inspired resolutions in Congress.

There were enough resolutions around by today to move Rep. Lawrence G. Williams, R-Pa., to suggest a resolution "to end, at least for the moment, the flow of resolutions on 'what to do about Vietnam'."

Nixon had urged the united front in order to impress the new Hanoi regime with the nation's determination to achieve an honorable end to the conflict.

But instead of tailing off, the resolutions and dissent increased, fueled by such things as Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott's suggestion that everyone backing the President turn on his car lights Oct. 15, the day of nationwide rallies, demonstrations and doorbell-ringing against the war.

Also for the eve of the "moratorium" two House members, Reps. Benjamin Rosenthal, New York and Andrews Jacobs, Indiana, both Democrats, are trying for extended war debate in their chamber throughout the night.

Here is a glance at a disunited front:

—Fourteen representatives and three senators introduced a joint resolution Thursday calling for an immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam.

—Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House GOP Conference has ordered a three-man committee to draw a resolution supporting Nixon early and have it ready by Oct. 15.

—Jacobs has joined Allard Lowenstein D-N.Y., Don Edwards, D-Calif., and Lester Wolf, D-N.Y., in a resolution that would create a Joint Committee on Oversight in Vietnam.

—Nothing came of a proposed GOP conference resolution to disassociate House Republicans from three of their number who joined 45 Democratic representatives and 17 senators in a letter of support to the Oct. 15 steering committee Thursday.

—Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., has 106 cosponsors for his resolution to support the President on his conduct of the war and peace effort to date.

—Reps. Donald W. Reigle of Michigan and Paul N. McCloskey of California, both Republicans, have in the hopper a resolution which would terminate the Tonkin Gulf Resolution on Dec. 30, 1970.

—A resolution by Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., and Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, called the "shape up or we ship out resolution," calls for U.S. withdrawal in 60 days if the Vietnamese government does not introduce reforms and broadly based representation in government.

—Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., have their resolution which urges a speedup of U.S. withdrawal, but on no timetable.

—A pioneer in the field is Sen. Charles E. Goodell who does not have a resolution, but has introduced an amendment to a foreign assistance bill which calls for U.S. withdrawal or disengagement by Dec. 1, 1970.

Non-Real Estate Farm Debts Noted By Ass'n

Non-real estate farm debts owed by farmers, growers and ranchers served by the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association totaled $4,686,780 on Jan. 1, according to J.R. Boswell, general manager of the association.

Boswell said the figure represented 56.2 per cent of the total non-real estate farm debt held by institutional lenders in its operational territory of Pitt and Greene counties. The debt is credited to 597 borrowers in the two counties, he said.

The national figure of $24.9 billion on Jan. 1 reflected a record high of non-real estate debts, Boswell added. Total debts owed by farmers amounted to $52.1 billion, an increase of $3.1 billion over a year ago.

The general manager said that the non-real estate farm debt is held by institutional lenders (PCA's, commercial banks and Farmers Home Administration) and by merchants, dealers and individuals.

Production Credit Associations in the Third Farm Credit District which is composed of the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida held 54.6 per cent of the total non-real estate farm debt held by institutional lenders on Jan. 1, he pointed out.

The 60 PCA's in the Third Farm Credit District are currently serving over 43,000 farmers, growers and ranchers with over $500 million of operating and capital investment credit on an intermediate-term basis, Boswell said.

Would Stress The Good Things

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Perry J. Ludy the 18-year-old Negro named by President Nixon as this year's Boy of the Year, says the news media should tell more about the good things youth are doing.

"When you have riots and disturbances," Ludy told a news conference Thursday, "the newsmen are there. But when you have discussions by youth groups at church or at conferences, there is no one there."

"Someone should bring out the positive," the Northwestern University student from Port Hueneeme said.
