Russians Complete Flying Drills, Welding In Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union returned the last of its manned space ships Saturday and announced completion of a program that included "group flying" drills and remote-control space welding.

Soyuz 7 landed in the Karaganda area Friday with three men and Soyuz 6 with two men touched down Thursday. Each spent five days in space. The ships did not execute docking maneuvers as had been expected, but Soviet space sources said that the mission would be the most important scientific information.

The "group flying" aspect of the mission was one of the most important, sources said. They said further serious space flights would be impossible without experiments in this area.

List Eight Tasks

A Tass announcement listed eight general tasks that were fulfilled during the mission. The welding assignment which Tass said was done automatically and remotely controlled on board was also a task. The two cosmonauts and two drivers are ruled out of the building of space platforms because of the difficulty of controlling them in a condition of weightlessness.

Other tasks executed by the cosmonauts included testing of manual control systems, photography of the earth and the stars and medical tests to help determine the effects of space flight on man.

Areas of the Soviet Union were studied to discover if spacemen could determine such things as the level of mineral reserves and the extent of snow and ice coverage over wide areas of the country.

Russian Ship Is Shelled Off Coast Of Vietnam Pres. Van Thieu Reports

SAIGON (UPI)—President Nguyen Van Thieu said Saturday an intruding vessel hit by South Vietnamese navy gunners near Da Nang was a Russian ship. He said the shelling blasted "maybe one or two holes" in the vessel before it fled into international waters.

Thieu, speaking with newsmen during a tour of the countryside, tried to stifle speculation the shelling might blow up into a major confrontation. Military sources in Saigon said the Russian vessel was a spyship disguised as a fishing trawler.

"I don't believe it will create any diplomatic incident," Thieu said. There was no official Moscow reaction to the shelling, a fact which tended to bear out Thieu's prediction.

In the war, U.S. communiques Saturday reported another round of light battle action as a lull in significant fighting entered into a second month. At least 145 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were reported killed in widely scattered contacts. Spokesmen said three Americans were wounded, all in shelling attacks.

The South Vietnamese government announced that 14,393 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong deserted in the past four months and came over to the South Vietnamese side.

Newsmen pressed Thieu for details on the naval incident as he visited the village of Phu Tan in the Mekong Delta 80 miles southwest of Saigon.

There had been some confusion resulting from a statement by an official South Vietnamese government spokesman earlier Saturday that no shots were fired and a report by the government-run news agency that said shells fired at an "unidentified fishing boat" started a fire on it.

Thieu said the vessel had entered South Vietnamese waters. "The first reaction of our navy was to chase away from our territorial waters any foreign boat that violates the territorial waters of Vietnam," Thieu said. He said it was well known that Soviet fishing boats with electronic equipment operate near Guam to warn the Viet Cong of U.S. B52 flights taking off for raids over Vietnam.

"I don't believe that before we chased them away our navy knew whether it was a Russian or not," Thieu said. Asked if the ship was definitely identified as Russian, he replied, "Afterwards."

The U.S. Command, in a special statement Saturday, stressed that no American forces were involved in the incident.

Soviet Delegation Goes To Peking For Talks

MOSCOW (UPI)—Vasil V. Kuznetsov, the Kremlin's top diplomatic troubleshooter, led an eight-man delegation to Peking Saturday for the first Sino-Soviet border talks in five years.

Kuznetsov, first deputy foreign minister, and the other members of the team boarded a Soviet jetliner for the long flight to the Communist Chinese capital. The delegation included Maj. Gen. Vadim A. Matrosov, chief of staff of the Red Army's frontier forces.

Radio Peking, in a broadcast Saturday night, announced that the talks would begin Monday and said the Communist Chinese delegation would be headed by Chiao Kuan-Hua, a deputy foreign minister with considerable experience in international negotiations.

Chiao, a veteran of 20 years in the Foreign Ministry, was an adviser to a delegation Peking sent to the United Nations Security Council debate during the Korean war.

Arranged By Kosygin

The talks were arranged at the suggestion of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin when he made his surprising and dramatic flight to Peking Sept. 11 to resume the Sino-Soviet dialogue.

During that critical visit the Soviet premier made a number of proposals to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai which included:

- The resumption of normal trade and diplomatic relations.
- A moratorium on, if not the cessation of, the insulting polemics exchanged between the two Communist giants since 1960.

—The regulation of the somewhat undefined 4,347-mile border which has seen bitter armed clashes this year, including many killed and wounded on both sides.

The Chinese agreed to discuss the border problems but made several reservations, some of which are unacceptable to the Russians and may result in complicating the border talks.

Chinese Demands Listed

The Chinese demands included:

- An admission that the Russians are holding about 600,000 square miles wrested by the czars from the weak Chinese emperors by means of "unequal treaties."
- The Russians give up about 600 out of 700 small islands in the Amur and Ussuri Rivers allegedly taken from the Chinese in the past few years.
- The talks are expected to fail if the Chinese insist on discussing historic territorial claims which were once facetiously described by former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev as "based on the bones of ancestors and the Old Testament."

Park Does Well In Korean Vote

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee Park is everything a politician is not: he can't speak well, won't flatter and doesn't campaign. But referendum results prove he can have about anything he wants in South Korea.

The people said so by better than a 2-1 margin at the polls Friday that they want him to run for a third term in 1971. Close to 10 million voters, or 76.5 per cent of the eligible total, participated in one of the most orderly balloting in the country's history.

The referendum was to approve a constitutional amendment that would permit a president to seek a third consecutive term. Park said he would quit if it didn't pass. His victory doesn't assure him a third term, but he is regarded as an easy winner in elections two years from now when he finishes his second term.

Park, 52, who started as a rural school teacher and became an army general, said he wants a third term to strengthen the army so that it could stand alone, if it has to, against North Korea. He said he also wants to finish the economic program he launched in 1961 when he came into power.

Park has never made a demagogic effort to win over his fellow-citizens. He speaks without gestures or flourishes, seldom smiles, and has none of the oratorical skills which come naturally to most Koreans.

His pretty wife, whom he married in 1950 carries the social burden; she is an active social worker and enjoys flower arranging. They have two daughters and a son.

After victory in a 1961 bloodless coup which ousted the well-intentioned but hapless government of John M. Chang, Park first ruled as top general of a military junta, then was elected president as a civilian Oct. 17, 1963.

North Koreans Ambush Four Americans

SEOUL (AP) —Four American soldiers were ambushed and killed by "an unprovoked attack" of North Korean Communists today near the southern boundary of the demilitarized zone, a U.S. spokesman said.

The spokesman said the men were returning in a 1½-ton truck to their units after performing equipment maintenance at a guard post when they were attacked by hand grenade and small arms fire.

Patrols began an immediate sweep of the area. The bodies were recovered from the truck.

Names of the dead were withheld until their relatives are notified.

Since January, one American has been killed and six wounded in a total of 60 incidents along the 18-mile-long American sector of the DMZ.

It was the first incident since July 1, breaking a relatively long lull in North Korean provocations. A group of North Koreans attacked an American guard post at that time but was repelled.

Some said the shooting incident might have been a North Korean reaction to the victory President Chung Hee Park scored in gaining approval of a referendum allowing him to run for a third term. The DMZ was reported unusually quiet during the voting Friday.

Wreckage Of Plane Is Found In Polk

ANDREWS (AP) —Members of the family of Highway Commissioner J. Boyd Crisp have identified the numbers found Saturday on a plane wreckage in Polk County as those of the missing commissioner's aircraft.

The numbers were discovered Saturday afternoon on the wreckage of a single-engine Cessna. Members of the Henderson County Sheriff's Department radioed the numbers of Civil Air Patrol authorities in Andrews, who notified the family.

Crisp and Mrs. Tony Ayers of Graham County had been missing since Wednesday on a flight from the Murphy-Andrews Airport to Raleigh.

The wreckage was found in a remote section of mountainous Polk County. One of the searchers said the plane had cut a 500 yard swath through a wooded area.

Debris was scattered over an area of several hundred yards, searchers reported. The wreckage contained two bodies, burned beyond recognition.

Coed Had Role In Dedication

RALEIGH — Miss Gay Haigwood, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Haigwood of 953 Shady Lane, Greenville, was among Peace College students participating in dedication ceremonies of the Lucy Cooper Finch Library here Friday.

Library assistants served as guides in the new two-story brick members assisted at a reception in the library following the dedication.

Miss Haigwood is a member of the Peace College Choir.

Bolivia Seizes Gulf Oil Because Not Receiving Enough Return

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia says his military government seized the Gulf Oil Corp. holdings in Bolivia because his country wasn't getting enough of the profits.

In a speech Friday night, Ovando said he was not satisfied with "the large profits" (Gulf) made compared to the modest fiscal share received by the government.

Ovando presided over the secret cabinet meeting that issued an official decree announcing the seizure and nationalization Friday. The decree said a commission will be set up to determine compensation.

Pipeline operations between Santa Cruz and the Chilean port of Arica, which move 33,000 barrels of crude oil daily for shipment to U.S. ports, were not affected.

The takeover came a year and eight days after the military government in neighboring Peru nationalized International Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

The official decree also announced nationalization of a gas pipeline being built between Bolivia and neighboring Argentina. The $45 million project, scheduled for completion next year, was a joint venture of the Bolivian government's oil agency, Gulf and Argentina.

In Washington, the U.S. State Department confirmed that Gulf Oil facilities in Bolivia had been taken over. An official said the office of Parker Drilling Co. of Tulsa, Okla., in Santa Cruz, was also occupied.

However, Press Officer John King said, "We have no information that there has been a decree, nor a notification or other official indication from the Bolivian government as to its purposes and intentions."

Under the Hickenlooper Amendment, the United States must shut off economic aid to any country that appropriates U.S.-owned property without compensation.

Gulf reportedly has invested $140 million in its Bolivian operations since 1955, but also involved in the controversy are rights to natural gas. In its oil operations, Gulf has discovered substantial natural gas reserves.

Gen. Ovando led the coup that toppled civilian President Luis Adolfo Siles last month. One of his first actions was to suspend the laws under which Gulf has been operating.

Local Team Places Fourth

CLEVELAND, Ohio — A Greenville Rescue Squad team placed fourth in international rescue competition at the annual International Rescue and First Aid Association conference here.

The contest was held Friday night and the winners were announced last night at the banquet concluding the three-day meeting.

The 8-man Greenville team was one of 14 teams participating in the heavy-duty rescue contest won by a team from Roch, N. J.

Pitt Commissioners Promise Tax Cut If Sales Tax Passes Vote Here

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners, in a statement indicating their support for a proposed one per cent sales tax for Pitt, say they will reduce ad-valorem taxes if the sales tax vote is favorable in the county.

Voters across the state will have the opportunity November 4, to indicate their feelings for or against a one per cent sales tax on a county-by-county basis. County and municipal governments in the counties approving the tax will reap the benefits from the funds collected.

Pitt County, it is estimated, would receive $1,064,834 from the tax next year if all counties in the state would vote in favor of the tax. Of the $1,064 million, $710,328 would go to the county government (County Commissioners) while the remaining portion would be distributed to the various municipal governments in the county (e.g. $244,292 to the City of Greenville).

One-half of the funds would be distributed to the various local governments, including the county government on a collection basis while the other half of the taxes would be distributed on a per capita basis.

In adopting a resolution endorsing the sales tax, the commissioners "urge all Pitt County citizens to vote for the tax," board chairman a Bruce Strickland said.

Speaking for all of the members of the county board, Strickland said the sales tax "will not be an additional tax, but will constitute a replacement of a like amount of ad-valorem tax (tax on personal and real property).

"If the one per cent sales tax had been in effect for the current tax year," Strickland explained, "the tax rate would have been lowered by 25-cents on the $100 valuation.

"In other words, the tax rate would have been $1.27 instead of $1.52," the county official noted.

"It is the opinion of the board," Strickland said, "that the increase demand for service—some of them mandatory as in the case of welfare—would over burden Pitt County tax payers as the ad-valorem tax has already reached a dangerous level."

Commissioners, in setting up a county budget, have little or no control over such programs as the public assistance program of the Department of Social Services (Welfare Department). They must, according to law, provide the funds needed, but have no voice in how they are spent.

According to Strickland, the cities, towns, and the Pitt County government will receive from the tax "more than is collected in Pitt County if all of the counties vote for the one per cent sales tax."

He explained, "all of the local special school districts, including the Greenville School District, would receive a substantial portion of the Sales Tax returned to Pitt County."

If approved, the tax would, in effect, broaden the tax base "so all segments of society will bear some of the burden," according to Strickland.

The Sales Tax, Strickland said, "will permit people to participate in providing services they receive."

What would a 25-cent reduction in the tax rate mean to "Mr. Average Citizen"?

County auditor Reginald Gray supplied these figures from county tax records.

A man paying taxes this year on assessed valuation amounting to $10,371 (including $7,107 for house and lot, $1,200 for furniture and other personal property, and $2,000 for two cars) was assessed $204.31. Had the tax rate been lower . . . by the 5 cents per $100 valuation a one per cent sales tax would have caused this year . . . the man's ad-valorem tax bill would have been $25.93 less.

Another man paid $286.45 in taxes on property valued at $14,388 (including $11,590 for house and lot, $1,375 for personal property and $1,423 for one car and trailer). Had the tax rate been 25-cents lower, his tax bill would have been reduced by $35.90.

If the same man owned a 124 acre farm (half-cleared and half-woods) the actual value of property would have been double the amount quoted in all of the above value figures), he would have saved an additional $32.03 — the amount a 25-cent reduction in the tax rate would have cut his $231.89 tax bill for the farm.

"We will reduce ad-valorem taxes for the 1970 tax year," Strickland emphasized, "if the one per cent sales tax vote is favorable."

Summer Theater Fund Raising Event 'Winter Gala' Is Scheduled For November 7

The Winter Gala to raise funds for the East Carolina based Annual Summer Theater will be held this year on November 7, at the Candlewick Inn, near Greenville.

To make plans for the gala, a number of Greenville ladies met recently at the home of Mrs. James Ficklen Jr. to map plans for the theater party.

Miss Carolyn Everett, who appeared with the Summer Theater in three musicals, "My Fair Lady," "Camelot," and "Brigadoon," will headline the entertainment. Other entertainers will also take part in the program.

Tickets are $25 per couple. Further information may be obtained by calling 758-6390. Reservations will be accepted until the limited number of tickets is sold.

Edgar R. Loessin, chairman of the Department of Drama and Speech at ECU and director of the Annual Summer Theater, says the winter gala held last year was successful, both in terms of funds raised and in enjoyment by those who attended.

Death Of Patient Surprise To Staff

PARIS (AP) — The death of Father Charles Boulogne, the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient, took his doctors by complete surprise, a transplant team member said Saturday.

The doctor, who asked not to be identified, said the 53-year-old Roman Catholic priest "was in perfect shape as usual, and no warning sign of this sudden crisis was detectable" just before he died Friday night. Father Boulogne received his new heart more than 17 months ago. The cause of death was not listed in the hospital announcement.

Bloodmobile Schedule Listed

The Pitt County Bloodmobile schedule for the remainder of the 1969-70 blood collection drive has been announced by Douglas Morgan, chairman of the program.

A total of 12 collection drives were slated for the year with a quota of 1920 units, or pints, for the county. To date, two drives have been held, both at the Moose Lodge, on July 10 and September 24.

Dates, times, and locations of the ten future collections between now and June 30, 1970, when the program ends, are: —October 29 — 11:00 — 5:00, East Carolina University. —October 30 — 10:00 — 4:00, East Carolina University. —November 12 — 10:30 — 4:30, First Christian Church, Farmville.

—November 13 — 9:00 — 3:00 Dupont Plant, Grifton. —January 28 — 10:30 — 4:30, Moose Lodge, Greenville. —January 29 — 10:00 — 4:00, Moose Lodge, Greenville. —March 18 — 11:30 — 5:30, Community Building, Ayden. —March 19 — 10:30 — 4:30, Moose Lodge, Greenville. —April 29 — 10:30 — 4:30, East Carolina University, Greenville. —May 21 — 11:00 — 5:00, Moose Lodge, Greenville.

The quota for the two drives in October at East Carolina are 165 units for each of the visits.

Morgan noted that in the past, ECU has been a solid contributor, meeting or exceeding their quota in the collections there.

"Greenville and Pitt County were far ahead of other eastern North Carolina communities in the past year," he noted, "and we hope the record will be even better this year."

Winterville School Menu

The lunchroom menu for the week of October 20 through the 24th is as follows:

Monday — Hot dogs in bun with chili, buttered potatoes, grapefruit sections and milk.

Tuesday — Beef vegetable soup, bologna sandwich, cake squares and milk.

Wednesday — Ham, steamed cabbage, sweet potato fluff, corn bread and milk.

Thursday — Sloppy Joe, French Fries, carrot strips, apple sauce cake, ice cream and milk.

BOYS MISEBEHAVE

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP) — Seven members of Selborne College rugby team were "asked to leave" school after they were seen drinking beer in a bar in nearby Port Elizabeth. School authorities claimed the boys, two of whom are to write their final examinations this year, were not expelled. Angry parents agreed the boys should be punished but said forcing them to leave the school was not justified.

REV. CHARLES BOULOGNE

The man who gave Father Boulogne his new heart May 17, 1968, Dr. Charles Dubost, was lecturing at a university in Mexico and could not be reached for comment.

The longest surviving recipient now living is Louis B. Russell Jr. of Indianapolis, Ind., who was operated on Aug. 24, 1963.

Texas Gulf Ordered To Pay Stockholders Who Sold Stock

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. has been ordered to reimburse some stockholders who sold out after the firm had issued a press release minimizing a Canadian mineral find.

U.S. District Judge Willis W. Ritter said in his memorandum decision that the release was "inaccurate, misleading and deceptive," and that several days elapsed before the company put the record straight.

Attorneys for Texas Gulf Sulphur said Ritter's decision could affect hundreds of suits in other states, principally New York, because it was the first awarding of damages.

Ritter awarded a total of $18-

012 in three suits heard at the same time. He rejected a fourth suit on ground the plaintiffs had sold their stock well before the press release was issued.

The case involved a Texas Gulf Sulphur test of a copper deposit near Timmins, Ont., which began in late 1963.

On April 9, 1964, the Toronto Globe and Mail published a story saying that "rumors that one of the biggest copper deposits in North America has been discovered near Timmins have Bar Street agog."

Two days later, the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune carried similar articles. And one the next day, the corporation issued the release.

"These reports exaggerate the scale of operations and mention plans and statistics of size and grade of ore that are without factual basis," the release said.

Judge Ritter said "The authors of the release knew from visual and chemical analyses that the first core disclosed the presence of copper and zinc mineralization of ore-grade."

Named as defendants were Texas Gulf Sulphur and its executive vice president in 1964, Charles F. Fogarty of Rye, N.Y.

The plaintiffs to whom Ritter awarded damages were George G. Reynolds of Salt Lake City; Walter A. Mitchell of Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Stout of Salt Lake City.

Ritter said the misleading press release may have resulted from an attempt "to hold the big news until just before, or the day of the stockholders annual meeting" April 23.

But he noted that Texas Gulf Sulphur, four days after the release, publicly acknowledged that it had made a substantial mineral discovery. On that day, April 16, its stock advanced nearly $7 to a high of $37.

In the next two trading days the stock went to $44, the judge noted.

Ritter recommended that his decision be appealed "all the way upstairs."

"Everybody in the financial world may find something to disagree about but now is the time and here is the place to make a decision," he said

European Allies Told They Must Pay Costs Of Peace To Avoid War

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS (AP) — Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, allied commander in Europe, told legislators of the North Atlantic Alliance today they must pay the costs of peace if they want to avoid the costs of war.

"It is perhaps obvious," he said, "but always timely to recall that we of the military commands can only provide the alliance with that degree of defense that your constituents are willing to pay for."

Goodpaster said he didn't want to present a shopping list, but he did list some of the things he said the alliance needs:

—Levels of both active and reserve units need to be corrected.

—Military stores need to be rebuilt up.

—Conscription periods and consequent refresher training time should be extended.

Goodpaster spoke to the North Atlantic assembly, composed of 220 parliamentary members from 14 of the 15 nations in the alliance. Among them are more than 20 U.S. senators and congressmen. Only the military dictatorship of Greece was not represented.

It was Goodpaster's first major policy address since taking over command last July from Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

Quoting a Soviet professor who wrote that NATO could not defend Europe in a war with the Soviet Union, Goodpaster replied that the Soviets have nevertheless avoided war. The reason, he suggested, is that behind existing Western forces are both reserves and "weapons of tremendous destructive power ready to be employed if required."

"It is this rank upon rank of forces and weapons," he added "that will enable us to make aggressive attack costly and unsuccessful to its initiator, whatever its form and scale."

Goodpaster did not name any particular nation in the alliance, but his emphasis on costs noted the campaign being pressed by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., to get European members to take more of the financial burden.

Percy is trying to get an international "clearing house" established so that the U.S. international balance of payments does not suffer because of American defense spending abroad. Officials experienced in alliance affairs do not see him making much progress, despite support from President Nixon.

Stalin's Daughter Broadcasts To Russia

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Svetlana Alliluyeva, in her first broadcast to the Soviet Union, told the Russian people Saturday that her life in America was "easy, free, gay and full of bright colors."

Svetlana, daughter of the late Soviet dictator Josef Stalin, said since she defected to the United States while on a trip to India in 1967, she has been "completely cheerful."

U.S. officials explained that they were interested in informing the Soviet people of Svetlana's impressions of America because these details were generally unknown throughout the Soviet Union.

But the officials were uncertain of the reception because the Kremlin resumed jamming of Russian-language broadcasts after the Soviet bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 21, 1968.

The Voice of America plans to broadcast the interview worldwide in Spanish, Chinese, Japanese, Korean and Vietnamese.

skin, with my whole being, I feel the difference. And all this difference is in favor of America and this is what I am talking about and will continue to talk about.

"I think that it is true and I want it known."

Svetlana agreed to the interview in connection with her newly-published book, "Only One Year." But her remarks, in Russian, quickly departed from the book and centered on her new life.

Armed Forces May Be Cut

By DARRELL GARWOOD
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A cutback of nearly a million men in the size of the U.S. armed forces apparently will be staged over the next three or four years if progress toward ending the Vietnam war continues.

The military services, it was learned Saturday, have been told to budget for a total reduction of 500,000 by June 30, 1971. This would bring strength down to 2,900,000 men, with a further slash to about 2,500,000 expected.

Instructions from Defense Department planners to the Army, Navy and Air Force were necessary at this time because the services already were drafting their proposed budgets for the 1971 fiscal year.

These money requests must be presented to the next session of Congress, and must be argued, approved and worked out in detail in time to go the printer by Dec. 15.

Since reductions totaling 220,000 by next June 30 have been scheduled, the budget target may mean a shrinkage of 280,000 men in the size of the armed forces during the second complete fiscal year of the Nixon administration.

Pentagon experts estimate that for every soldier returned to civilian life, the government can chalk up a saving of $10,000 a year if he was stationed in a peaceful area, or $25,000 a year if the reduction is in Vietnam.

On this basis, the anticipated 500,000-man cutback, including a reduction to a small residual force in Vietnam, should reduce the defense spending budget from $77 billion for the current fiscal year to $65 billion or less.

In announcing plans to maintain the residual force earlier this week, however, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said the spending budget would remain above $70 billion.

The defense secretary also said that plans have been made for withdrawal of all U.S. combat forces from Vietnam in a "reasonable time"—a year or two. Of the 509,000 American troops still there, just over 300,000 are combat.

ABC Leading In Nielsen Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC grabbed first place in the Nielsen 70-city television ratings today and took the first 3 spots in the top 10.

ABC knocked NBC into third place and CBS came in second.

The ratings battle this season has been the tightest in many years. NBC won the first two weeks and ABC and CBS saw-sawed for second place.

The ratings period is Oct. 6-12 and the survey represents only the urban areas of the country. In the full national survey due Monday, CBS possibly could move into first because of its strength in the rural areas.

The highest rated show was the ABC Movie of the Week, "The Over The Hill Gang."

Here are the top 10:

1. ABC Movie of the Week. 2. ABC Sunday Movie. 3. "Marcus Welby, M.D." ABC. 4. "Laugh-In." NBC. 5. "Jackie Gleason." CBS. 6. CBS Friday movie. 7. "Room 222." AC. 8. "Mod Squad." ABC. 9. "FBI." ABC. 10. Bill Cosby, NBC.

Tests Are Set To Continue

By BILL MEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, armed with a report to blunt congressional criticism, has decided to resume testing chemical warfare agents at two posts after a three-month suspension.

Secretary Stanley R. Resor authorized resumption of open air testing of chemical agents at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., and use of such gases in defensive training at Ft. McClellan, Ala., after a civilian report endorsed safety procedures at both bases.

Resor had ordered the suspension in mid-July when it was first disclosed that the Army was conducting open air tests of chemical warfare agents.

That disclosure touched off a flurry of criticism in Congress, where some members already were highly concerned about chemical and biological warfare research.

Resor countered by naming a committee of civilian scientific experts to review safety procedure in the testing at Edgewood and training at McClellan.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., who in July had called for suspension of testing of chemical warfare agents, said Friday night he had requested—but had not received—a copy of the scientists' report.

The civilian committee described as "impeccable" the safety record at McClellan. There, special troops learn how to detect, decontaminate and dispose of chemical agents.

Medical records for the past five years showed that none of the more than 10,000 persons instructed at the chemical center required treatment for poisonous effects of a chemical agent, the group reported.

The committee said in the 20-year history of the Edgewood testing program "there has never been an instance of exposure of personnel to an extent that requires specific treatment."

Resor said the Army will follow the recommended restrictions in the report—such as intensive use of monitors, limitation of "munition dissemination" to heights below 75 feet, installation of additional fencing around the test site, and periodic ecological surveys for the area.

Must Restore Confidence In Catholic Church

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Cardinal Primate John Carmel Heenan of Britain said Saturday the current Synod of Bishops must restore confidence in the authority of the Roman Catholic Church.

"If the synod were to fall, the apostles of anarchy would be the victors," he told a news conference.

"The church is part of the world," he said. "It shares the experience of the world. From San Francisco to Tokyo, authority is questioned. The other day there was practically a nationwide revolt in the United States against the war in Vietnam."

The cardinal said revolts against church authority have had "very violent repercussions." "People no longer have respect for their priests, and hardly any for their bishops," he said.

The synod, which has been in session a week, is discussing the question of collegiality—how Pope Paul VI can share authority with bishops. The synod broke up into small working groups Saturday to "permit a more free expression of opinion," the Vatican said.

The full synod will not meet again until Tuesday.

Heenan said there were excellent Catholics who say, "No, we will not listen to the Pope." On the subject of birth control, he said, "Many people are infallibly certain that the Pope is wrong" in his ruling against contraception last year.

"When you have a situation like this, you need the church to get together, as we are doing now, to decide the question of authority and how it may be administered," he said.

Heenan said laymen and priests should also be brought into the debate.

Johns Hopkins Going Coed

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Johns Hopkins University appears on the verge of admitting female students.

A report favoring coeducation was accepted this week by the policy-making Academic Council and although the mechanics have yet to be examined, a Hopkins official said "the council's decision sets us on the road to making coeducation a reality."

Dr. Carl P. Swanson, associate dean of arts and sciences and dean of undergraduate students, said the faculty and student body "overwhelmingly support coeducation."

His report, drawn up last May by a committee including four professors and two undergraduates, did not concern itself with the economics of admitting women.

Female undergraduates would present problems in the fields of housing and curriculum, he said, but the school already allows women to enroll in its graduate programs, night course and medical school.

Fire Is Due To Wire Short

WASHINGTON (AP) — A short circuit is blamed for a document-copying machine fire in the White House basement.

No smoke from the fire Friday reached President Nixon's office because of an independent air-conditioning system. But an aide said some odor reached the presidential sanctum.

The blaze, which came shortly before the President addressed the nation via radio on the inflation problem, was quickly brought under control by two firefighters who responded with two hook and ladder trucks and an aerial ladder.

There was some smoke and water damage.

Police Hunt Train Robber

MELBOURNE (AP) — In one of their biggest manhunts ever, Australian police today are looking for Ronald Arthur Biggs, the only participant in Britain's $7 million Great Train Robbery who is still at large.

Biggs, 39, narrowly avoided capture Friday night in a police raid on his fashionable home in Blackburn, a Melbourne suburb, where the police found his wife Charmaine, 30, and sons Nicholas, 9, Christopher, 3, and Fairley, 2.

Police said they learned that Biggs, who escaped from London's Wandsworth jail in July 1965 after starting a 30-year sentence for his part in the 1963 robbery, fled the house only nine hours before the raid.

Police said Biggs apparently became anxious after his fellow workers at a jetport construction site near Melbourne pointed out how much he resembled a photograph of Biggs that Australian newspapers printed this week after reports he was in the country.

Biggs and his family had been living in the Blackburn suburb for several months under the name of Terry Cooke. Authorities said he also was known as Terry Lamb at his construction job.

For the past three days, there have been rumors that police were closing in on Biggs, who also has been hunted in Europe and Canada. He made his daring 1965 break from the London jail with another prisoner, Eric Flowers. They scaled a wall with rope ladders thrown by accomplices and jumped into an awaiting furniture van.

Flowers had been serving a 12-year sentence for a crime not connected with the train robbery. He also is still at large.

A few hours before the police announcement of the raid, a former radio announcer, Max Phillips, told a news conference that he was the man who informed police about Biggs' presence in Australia.

Phillips said he identified Biggs from a magazine picture when Biggs returned to Adelaide, last Christmas to visit friends and inform police.

Fifteen members of the Great Train Robbery gang are serving three to 30-year sentences in British prisons. Less than $1 million of the money has been recovered.

WIFE OF GREAT TRAIN ROBBER . . . Mrs. Ronald Arthur Biggs, wife of the only man still being sought in connection with Britain's $7 million Great Train Robbery, is escorted into court in Melbourne Saturday by Australian detectives. Picked up after police raided her home, she was charged with entering the country illegally. # Foods, Drinks Containing Cyclamate Ordered Removed From Grocery Shelves By February 1

By G. C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch ordered Sat. that all foods and drinks containing the artificial sweetener cyclamate be removed from grocery shelves by Feb. 1 because of new evidence the substance causes cancer in animals.

Finch emphasized, however, "we have no evidence at this point that cyclamates have indeed caused cancer in humans."

He said he would not recommend that families who now have cyclamate-containing foods and drinks in their homes throw them away or stop using them at the present time.

Cyclamates, which Finch estimated are a $1-billion annual industry, are found mainly in diet drinks and foods. They also are contained in a wide range of nondiet foods from bacon-canned fruits and children's vitamins.

Finch said he acted after two different laboratories presented evidence this week that cyclamates in very high doses produced bladder cancer in rats and mice.

The evidence was reviewed by government scientists and a panel of the National Academy of Science, which recommended the strong restrictions on cyclamates.

Finch said beginning immediately, no more cyclamates will be allowed in the production of general purpose foods and beverages.

He said beverages which contain the highest-level of cyclam-ates must be removed from grocery shelves by Jan. 1. Other artificially sweetened foods, which he said contained lower levels of cyclamate and pose a "very minimal risk," must be removed by Feb. 1.

Finch said cyclamate-containing foods and beverages will still be available to persons who require them for medical reasons on a prescription-type basis. These persons would include those with diabetes or obesity.

"My decision to remove cyclamates from the list of approved substances in no sense should be interpreted as a life-saving or emergency measure," Finch said at a news conference. "I have acted under the provisions of law because it is imperative to follow a prudent course in all matters concerning public health."

He said the law requires that "any food additive must be removed from the market if it has been shown to cause cancer when fed to humans or animals."

Finch said he will hold consultations today with representatives of the affected industries and consumer groups to determine the best way of offering cyclamate compounds on a restricted basis and on development of "new and safe formulations without cyclamates."

Several government scientists reinforced Finch's statement that at the present time there is no reason to believe cyclamates cause cancer in man.

Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, a deputy assistant secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, noted that the level of cyclamates that cause tumors in rats "is fifty times the maximum amount previously proposed for adult human consumption or ingestion."

He also said the technique used to demonstrate cyclamate-caused cancers in mice "is controversial and the significance of positive findings unknown."

Commissioner Herbert L. Ley Jr., of the Food and Drug Administration said his agency would undertake intensified new investigations of other food additives to determine whether they may be harmful to man.

Cyclamate is one of two calorie-free chemical compounds that have the sweetening power of sugar. The other is saccharine. Generally one part saccharine is mixed with 10 parts cyclamate to sweeten food and drinks.

A wide range of foods and beverages contain cyclamates. They include such carbonated drinks as Tab, Diet Pepsi, Diet Cola, Fresca, Like, Wink and Hire's Root Beer.

Cyclamates are also found in powdered drinks such as Kool Aid, Funny Face, Nectar Orange, and Drink Aid Cherry.

Fruit juices that contain cyclamates include Low Cal Orange, Sun Burst Orange, Cranberry Cocktail, Hawaiian Punch, and Welchde Grape.

Weight control foods containing cyclamates include Metre-cal, Segal, and Chef's dressing.

Cyclamate is the major component of such food sweeteners as Mott's Figure Control, Calorie Free, No-Cal, and Sweet'n It.

Getting Down To Practicalities

The Recreation Commission is taking an important step in recommending to the City Council that specific tracts of land be purchased for recreational use.

Commissioners Monday asked the council to consider making an offer for tracts at the corner of West Third and Tyson and at Colonial and Tyson.

The commission also named a committee to begin negotiations for a tract of land on Hooker Road to be used for recreational purposes.

We cannot think of any more pressing need in Greenville than that of additional recreation and park areas. And often the need is most critical in areas where all of the desirable land is fast disappearing. Thus it is imperative that the city obtain land in strategic areas now to provide playgrounds and park areas for future generations.

As with all city projects these days, it is going to be difficult to come up with the funds to purchase needed recreational land, but it is something that needs to be done to preserve open areas in sections that are now building up.

As was pointed out at the Recreation Commission meeting, there is the possibility of obtaining federal grants for open lands in the future and this should certainly be pursued. However, if necessary, the city should allocate a reasonable amount each year for the purchase of land in areas where it is needed most.

For too many years we have talked about the need for additional parks and playgrounds. Now the Recreation Commission is getting down to practicalities by finding locations and making concrete recommendations to the council. Some progress is being made.

Archivist Left Much To State

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Dr. Christopher Crittenden is gone from the state capital scene which he loved and was beloved. He left several remarkable monuments. He will not soon be forgotten.

For 33 years the tall, spare and scholarly Dr. Crittenden directed the state's Department of Archives and History and organized an award-winning, nationally recognized program. It was written in his obituary the other day that he retired in September, 1968. Really he did not.

He came to the Capitol area almost every day last winter and last Spring to watch and inspect completion of the splendid new Archives and History Building which had been his dream and goal for many years.

fications—in the new building.

Halls — In addition to the archives and laborious business of finding, preserving and filing important records and documents, Dr. Crittenden developed the famous Hall of History which is visited annually by many thousands of school children and tourists.

At first it was set up in a wing of the Education Building on Capitol Square, then was expanded. Space was at a premium.

Dr. Crittenden fretted because his department which at the time had nearly 100 employees had so little space. Stuffed into dark and damp nooks and crannies of the basement of the building were literally tons of precious and irreplaceable records. Dr. Crittenden succeeded in getting funds to control the humidity and to protect the papers against the possibility of damage by fire.

At the same time, however, the papers and records were very near the building's heating pipes. And there was a shortage of shelving and storage space.

Upstairs, desks and tables and desks crowded the hallways. Dr. Crittenden himself probably had the smallest personal office of any department head in Raleigh. But he was more concerned about space for those documents and the old letters and files downstairs than about a personal comfort.

Pleaded — Dr. Crittenden, soft-spoken but persistent, began pleading with the Advisory Budget Commission and the legislature to authorize and build an Archives Building.

This personal campaign began about the same time that the legislature decided to build itself a $6.5 million building. Dr. Crittenden did not give up. In 1963, when the legislative Building was completed, the Advisory Budget Commission agreed to start planning an Archives Building. Land was a problem, money an even bigger problem. It was decided to construct a building to house both Archives and History and the almost equally overcrowded State Library. The Library had been in a building on the square which was shared by the Utilities Commission and is now the home of both the

New Post Office Has Already Proven Worth

Greenville's new $400,000 post office on Greene Street between First and Second will be dedicated in ceremonies beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Highlighted by a talk by Congressman Walter B. Jones, the ceremonies will officially inaugurate the facility.

The new post office building has already proven its worth to Greenville, however. It provides additional vending machines in the lobby; a scale for weighing parcel post packages after the windows are closed and increased numbers of boxes. There is also adequate parking for customers and plenty of room for postal vehicles to load and unload.

The new facilities are a welcome addition to the city and we believe they will be of great benefit to postal patrons.

Missed Chance To Kill A Rumor

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The Nixon administration not only has missed a golden opportunity to squelch persisting rumors of Negro concentration camps planted by black militant agitators but is on the verge of unwittingly nurturing them.

The Justice Department under Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has so far refused to say a word about proposed legislation to repeal existing statutory authority — unused since passage 19 years ago—for detention camps. But a tentative decision has been made to oppose repeal if and when Congressional hearings are held—thereby invigorating the great concentration camp scare through the country's black ghettos.

None of this means, of course, that the government has the slightest intention of herding unruly Negroes into detention camps. But the Administration's reluctance to repeal the legal authority for such a step underscores the insensitivity of John Mitchell, strong man and political pace-setter of the Nixon cabinet, to Negro alienation.

The great concentration camp scare began in early 1966 with wild rumors spreading through the ghettos. They picked up steam in the early spring of 1968, particularly after the Easter riots. Repeated denials by Federal officials did not fully reassure the ghettos.

One reason was a recommendation by the House Un-American Activities Committee in May, 1968, of detention camps for black nationalists and Communists under terms of the Internal Security Act. Title II of that act authorizes the Attorney General (in times of emergency declared by the President) to hold in detention centers persons who he believes "probably will engage in... acts of espionage or sabotage." The authority has never been used, and detention centers set up after passage of the McCarran Act have since been closed.

When concentration camp rumors were revived by black militants again this spring, several Democratic members of Congress—led by Sen. Daniel Inouye and Rep. Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii and Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois—introduced bills to repeal Title II.

Instead, the rumors grew in May because of an article in the Atlantic Monthly by Elizabeth B. Drew quoting Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst as saying: "If people demonstrated in a manner to interfere with others, they should be rounded up and put in a detention camp." Contradicting the Justice Department's lame denial, Mrs. Drew has verbatim notes to verify Kleindienst's injudicious statement.

Alarmed, Rep. Mikva started lobbying the Justice Department to push for Title II repeal to take the poisonous edge off the Kleindienst quote.

Mikva, repeatedly refused in efforts to see Kleindienst, finally was visited at his office by Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Walter Yeagly, a Johnson administration holdover in charge of the Justice Department's internal security division, and John Dean III, an assistant to Kleindienst. While declining to take a position, the two officials promised to bring the question to Kleindienst for a decision.

HEAVEN RIGHT NOW

The Chinese use the word "heaven" much more than we do. In fact, the Chinese speak of a day as, "a heaven." A day is a heaven; two days are two heavens.

There is a great deal of wisdom in this ancient concept. Every day is an opportunity God has given us. Every day is our day of grace. Every day ought to be a "heaven" for us, and would be were it not for the fact that we are often selfish, avicious, lustful, ill-tempered and dishonest. Some of these vices, in some form or other slither at times into the lives of every one of us. They are like the serpent which glided into the Garden of Eden and destroyed its heavenly-peace. All was love and obedience in the Garden of Eden until sin entered. It was a heaven on earth in which God walked with man in the Garden in the cool of the evening. Then came sin, and the heaven became a hell.

Here is something to keep in mind as we face each day. Each day is supposed to be a heaven. Each day is an opportunity given us by God. Each day is a period in which we can commune with God and serve our fellows.

A day? Ah yes, say the Chinese, a day is a heaven. Here is a bit of ancient wisdom upon which we may well reflect.

Sunday Morning Notes

Photos of some of Greenville's more famous citizens are appearing in the window of Willard and Webb Insurance Agency on E. Fifth Street these days.

Let you think this is just another array of slick portraits of businessmen in dark suits, it might be worthwhile to drop by for a look.

These particular photos of prominent men were taken many years ago, when most of them were small children. There are all kinds of styles, incidentally, including long hair which would make any self respecting hippy of today envious. There are even dresses on some of the younger ones.

Want to know who they are? It shouldn't be too hard to figure out. There is a list of names in the window to choose from. Be warned, though, that some of the young-faces will fool you.

Utilities commissioners last week were discussing a commitment to furnish water to an area east of the city where houses are already under construction. Since the water would be necessary by the time the dwellings are occupied a definite decision was needed.

To the Editor:

According to the Notice of Sale of Land that was published in the Daily Reflector on Monday, October 13, the northern boundary of Parcel 2 of the Shore Drive Redevelopment Project which the Redevelopment Commission is considering selling to W.E. Dansey Co., Inc. is the "water's edge" of the Tar River. I am writing to Mr. Laughtinghouse, Chairman of the Commission to suggest that the Commission look into the possibility of reserving for the people of Greenville littoral rights to this parcel of land.

Within the past few months articles in the Daily Reflector have dealt with two problems, one the flooding caused by over-development of the Fomes Run Watershed, and the other the need for more recreation areas in the city. I think that the proposed sale should be considered in relation to both of these problems.

At a time when the City is attempting to get from individual property owners enough footage to institute flood control measures, releasing land over which it now has potential control would certainly show lack of foresight. The south bank of the Tar River is steep in this area, and if all the vegetation is cleared from it indiscriminately, severe washing will occur. (Anyone who walks from First Street down to the Promenade will see what I mean.)

Further, a visit to the area of the Promenade on any sunny Sunday afternoon in the spring or fall, should convince anyone of the extent to which an area of this sort is enjoyed by the people of Greenville. If one or two hundred feet of the northern part of Parcel 2 could be obtained by the City, it could serve as an extension of the Promenade area park. It might be turned over to the development as a picnic area; perhaps one of the local garden clubs would be interested in landscaping it.

From a long-term view, I think that the City should be alert to ways of acquiring footage along the river and both Fomes Run and Green Mill Run for public use. (No doubt I am especially aware of this need because Mr. Dansey has just cut off my walks to the east with his new swimming pool at the north end of Elm Street.)

Sincerely yours,

A motion was slow in coming, as the commissioners pondered their finances.

Finally City Manager Harry Hagerty spoke out: "I make a motion we get water out there—if only in a bucket—by the time the houses are complete."

That's the way the motion passed, so don't be surprised if the commissioners form a bucket brigade in that area in a few months.

One of the things which the commission purchased last week was a pneumatic gopher. Director Charles Horne explained the device tunnels under streets and highways; so that pipes and conduits can be installed without cutting the pavement.

An Old Issue Flares

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two powerful but sometimes clashing ideals run through Baptist history—firm adherence to doctrine and also freedom of thought. It's a combustible combination.

And it flares recurrently in America's biggest Protestant body, the 11-million-member Southern Baptist Convention, whose strict theological views, particularly of the Bible, have stirred rising tensions.

New furor was touched off by a speech in which the convention's president, Dr. W.A. Criswell of Dallas, Tex., suggested that those who don't accept the convention's doctrinal standards are not real Baptists and should join some other church.

He said the convention should apply its articles of faith, adopted in 1925 and revised in 1963, to make clear that "this is what it is, being a Baptist. If you don't believe that, you are not a Baptist."

He told the denomination's executive committee in Nashville, Tenn.: "If we have men who do not believe in our articles of faith, why don't these people leave us and join denominations where they would be happy?"

The comments unleashed a wave of reaction among Baptists, with their historically declared aversion to any imposed "creed," and their emphasis on rights of individual interpretation of Scripture.

The Rev. Reuben E. Alley of Richmond, Va., editor of the state's Baptist paper, the Religious Herald, called Dr. Criswell's statement "contrary to the Baptist concept of freedom."

He said that basic concept "is the vital factor in the bond of fellowship that has held Baptists together for centuries, and it will be the Christian tie for the future as long as men agree to differ in a spirit of love."

At the same time, the reactions reflected the long-standing tension between the Baptist tradition of personal liberty in responding to the Bible and the general Southern Baptist emphasis on doctrinal orthodoxy.

"We share Dr. Criswell's concern for doctrinal integrity," wrote editor Jack Harwell of the Georgia Baptist paper, the Christian Index, in Atlanta. But he added that requirements should not go beyond the statement of faith, which is "broad enough to include many shades of Baptist belief and limited enough to insure acceptance of the Lordship of Jesus Christ."

Although most Christians consider the Bible a decisive authority, conflicts over it have been particularly acute among Southern Baptists, because they disavow creedal interpretations, yet stress understandings expressed in historic creeds.

Critical analysis of Biblical origins also is a touchy point among Southern Baptists. Their articles of faith say the Bible is free of error.

An End To Inspired Invention?

By ELMER ROESSNER

The day of the inspired invention is largely over. The man who twisted a bit of wire so that it would clip papers together has long retired. The man who thought up the use of erasers on the end of pencils is no longer inventing. Even pencils are disappearing from commerce.

Today, 99.44 per cent of new inventions come from research and development, called R&D in business. The need for a new device or technique is determined and a covey of physicists, engineers and chemists are turned loose on the problem. Thus we convert radioactivity into electricity, send capsules to the moon.

But once in a while a Prince of Serendip survives and, like his storybook ancestors, discovers a thing of value while searching for something else.

A Modern Prince

Meet Prince Gordon of Mayo, known in the marts as Gordon Mayo, 33, a high school drop-out of Santa Ana, Calif.

ELMER ROESSNER

In his senior year at high school Mayo was offered three college scholarships, but turned them down for marriage. He became a door-to-door salesman, selling stainless steel ovenware, and at 19 had 72 trainees under him. Then he became a foreman over six Arizona cowboys handling 10,000 head of cattle. With his savings he bought a service station and fussed around with chemicals to keep his lube bay clean.

He was experimenting with chemicals one day when he spilled some liquid on a coffee table. He was about to wipe it up when Dr. Lemoyne Michaels, an Arizona State University professor, stopped him. The solution was leveling off on the table and showing marble patterns. It hardened quickly.

Neither Mayo or the professor realized the possibilities. But Mayo tried it out on friends' and associates' floors in homes and offices and found his compound provided a tough, hard covering. He called it "Desert Marble."

Sells And Buys Back

Mayo sold the idea to a company failed to make sales he expected, he bought it back and started his own promotion. With the steam he had used to sell life insurance, Mayo sold flooring for the weightless room at North American Rockwell for Apollo 11 tests;

300,000 square feet poured at the largest shopping center in Mexico at Guadaluajara; stages for the Steve Allen, King family, Della Reese and other shows; and kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms and carports in countless homes.

Mayo, who looks five or six years younger than his true age, is now establishing offices across the United States and in foreign countries.

"I hope to retire at 38 so I can spend more time with my seven children," he said. "I want to play more golf, although I never knew of a business deal closed on a golf course."

And while he is a drop-out and thinks the new generation is still the most promising crop of youngsters we ever had, he favors older, experienced men when hiring.

He has invented a compact automatic auto jack which Steve McQueen's company will market.

OH, REALLY?

According to a study of 2,000 college seniors by a Tulane sociologist the students are a "private generation" with a predominant mood of "withdrawal into self" which takes the form of "a rejection of authority." All of which adds up, in the sociologist's view, to a "don't-tread-on-me righteousness."

And what dramatic sayings by the students prompted these bleak conclusions? Why, 79 per cent of the young folks said that "universities should not try to control student life outside the classroom" and 82 per cent vowed that "my private life will not be sacrificed even if it means making less money."

It seems to us that the sociologist is the one who belongs to some "private generation" based on a "withdrawal into self." The students sound like generations of Americans before them who proclaimed loudly: "It's a free country, ain't it?" — Charlotte (N. C.) News

DOUBLE STANDARDS

It was a terse little announcement tucked away in some forlorn corner of the newspaper and it said the U.S. Justice Department probably would not prosecute candidates and campaign committees which failed last year to comply with federal law on reporting financial statements.

Delinquents included 107 congressional candidates and 20 fund-raising groups for Nixon-Agnew. And though the law is clear and has been on the books for ages, it is not going to be enforced. It is one more symptom of our times, an era in which rich and poor, big and little, figure they can select the laws they want to obey and ignore the laws they don't like. If it's a punk statute, Congress should repeal the disclosure act. If it's not going to be repealed it ought to be enforced with all the fervor the Justice Department can muster. You can bet your last buck that any citizen who missed the IRS deadline last April 15 has already heard from Uncle Sam. Why should double standards exist for the politicians? — Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

FREEDOM CAN'T BE HIDDEN

The managing editor of The New York Times, Clifton Daniel, in a speech to the Missouri Bankers Assn. placed in the proper perspective, we think, the concept of "freedom of the press," as it is proclaimed in the First Amendment to the Constitution. To begin with, freedom of the press doesn't apply just to the press. Applicable to all citizens, the First Amendment protects anyone's right to dissent or to criticize or to complain.

Daniel said that no one has "to submit tamely to the outrages, inaccuracies, omissions and fabrications that sometimes appear in the press. It is part of your responsibility to chastise, correct and inform the press. Don't be shy about offering information. Don't hesitate to complain. It is just as much a part of your job to keep the press free and make it responsible as it is a part of our job to keep the press free and make it responsible as it is a part of our job to keep the banking system sound, honest and responsible to public needs."

Too often, we fear, many Americans take the view that the American press espouses freedom of the press simply for selfish motives. And no doubt in some instances such is the case. But freedom of the press involves a much more universal and important ideal than the right of the press to print what it wants. Indeed, if an American citizen's right to free speech is circumscribed, then so too is the right of the press.

Any right granted the press is a right that perforce is granted the citizen. Thus, when the press urges government to conduct its affairs out in the open and not behind closed doors, it is acting not simply on its own behalf but on behalf of the whole society. It should be obvious that by definition the free society cannot conduct its business in secret. — Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette-Mail

DON'T BRAG ON COFFEE — TOO RISKY

Maxwell House, which makes you-know-what, has completed a survey that shows coffee makes the difference between an idle, irritable day and a hard-working one to many housewives. It's hard to see how the poll could have come out different.

At the same time, we feel impelled to warn Maxwell House about flaunting its survey findings. If these claims get any substantial attention the Surgeon General is likely to turn up a report that caffeine, which is present in most coffees, contributes to abdominal cancer, Bright's disease, and ingrown nails. — Asheville (N. ## THE FINAL PROOF

Now it's bogus moon rock for sale. In Decatur, Ala., police arrested two men who were trying to sell a rock which they claimed came from the moon. When the con men get into the act, final proof is at hand that the space age has indeed arrived.

Though times have changed drastically, basic human nature has not. We have no doubt that the grandchildren of the same people who once bought the Brooklyn Bridge would have bought the "moon rock" had the men been allowed to continue their sales pitch. — Dallas (Tex.) Times Herald

Congress Makes Travesty Of Legislative Process

By J.J. KILPATRICK

A couple of months ago, the record of the 91st Congress might have been described simply as poor. Now, in mid-October, that record has become a travesty upon the legislative process.

Since they came to Washington in January, members of Congress have acted decisively on one measure only: They promptly raised their own pay. They are now getting $42,500 a year, plus several thousand more in polite little perquisites. What have they done to earn it?

The answer, alas, is just about nothing at all.

The 1970 fiscal year began on July 1. Not a single appropriations bill had been passed at that time. At this writing, only the Treasury-Post Office bill has gone to the White House. Every other spending bill has bogged down. Federal agencies are living on "continuing resolutions" and borrowed time. An agricultural appropriations bill cleared both houses in July; it hasn't been heard from since. A bill to finance the Interior Department is in conference, but the Congress haven't met.

The House completed action on a massive tax reform bill on August 7. Granted, tax reform is fearfully complex; a bill of this magnitude takes time. But the Senate Finance Committee now is dismantling the tax structure the House so carefully built. The prospective differences between the two chambers are so great that tax reform probably is out of the question this year.

The President asked five months ago for revisions of the Selective Service Act. His purpose was to remove some of the inequities that now exist, and to permit a lottery system to go into effect. But Congress has dragged its feet. Draft reform bills still languish in committee.

It was early spring in Washington, and the leaves just coming out, when the President sent up his program on foreign aid. This was a modest program, sensible, not extreme, altogether desirable. Now the leaves are falling, and the program lies in limbo.

The House passed a school lunch bill in March and a cigarette advertising bill in June; the Senate has failed to act. Meanwhile, the Senate passed a food stamp plan; the House has failed to act.

A pressing concern is postal reform. With the Post Office Department running up a deficit of $1.2 billion a year, it ought to be a pressing concern. But the House is taking its own sweet time on a bill that offers little reform at all.

Everywhere the picture is the same. So far as final action is concerned—the actual enactment of public laws—the scorecard shows a string of goose eggs: truck load limits, drug controls, voting rights, pollution control. A House Judiciary sub-committee is just now getting around to a raft of anti-obscenity bills. The President's important recommendations for Federal revenue-sharing with the states are stuck in the glue of a Senate committee.

Some of the fault plainly lies, as the President conceded a few days ago, with his own Republican administration. Executive agencies have been slow to translate Nixon's lofty designs into the titles, sections, and sub-sections of tangible bills in print. The President's proposed reform of the welfare system—one of his major programs—made its appearance barely ten days ago.

Most of the fault, in my chairmen, like feudal barons, own view, lies with the Congress. Speaker John McCormack, as king of the House, is a fine gentleman but a feeble monarch; Committee remain masters of their fiefdoms. On the Senate side, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield is loved and respected; but he is not temperamentally equipped, as an impresario, to handle 99 prima donnas all singing at once.

The consequences multiply. Draft-age men are kept in suspense, awaiting draft reform. The municipal bond market is demoralized, awaiting tax reform. State and local governments—foreign governments also—cannot make plans that depend on Federal aid. In brief, a miserable record; and there is no sign on the Hill of improvement any time soon.

A Don't Tax Tobacco Sign Still On Doors

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

RALEIGH—It happened in North Carolina: Some folks never give up. There is a big orange and black sign on the door of some divisions in the Department of Agriculture which reads, resignedly, "don't tax tobacco."

Gov. Bob Scott seldom passes up a chance to participate in an Agriculture Department function. He was on hand bright and early the other day for swearing-in ceremonies for three new commissioners.

He made a talk, introduced the new commissioners and looked on proudly while Justice Carlisle Higgins of the Supreme Court administered the oaths.

Afterward, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham suggested that the governor might want to leave because of a busy schedule. Scott had some more to say, and even later was on hand for presentation of a carved walnut plaque commemorating former members of the Agriculture Board.

Finally Scott took his leave. He said he felt very closely associated with the Agriculture Department but had to move along "from agriculture to culture." He was scheduled to make a statement on behalf of the North Carolina Symphony.

Someone in the audience remarked aloud, for everyone to hear, that "if it weren't for agriculture we wouldn't have any culture."

Scott — and everyone else — laughed heartily.

Kara, the reluctant hurricane, came as close to North Carolina's Shores as has any tropical storm in several years. But it backed away.

What many probably overlooked was that Kara approached North Carolina shores on the 15th anniversary of hurricane Hazel, Oct. 15, 1954.

Hazel was the most destructive storm in the history of North Carolina.

For those who do not remember, records indicate 19 to 23 deaths—possibly more—most occurring at or near the beaches. Property damage to the beach areas was nearly $40 million and inland crop and property damage close to $100 million.

The day before Hazel struck inland along the Brunswick County coast had been a bluebird day.

There was a blue October sky with a few high white clouds. Everything was pleasant. But the weather bureau was issuing ominous warnings. The coastal fishing fleets were told to get to port and tie up. The Coast Guard flew to the offshore vessels and dropped messages of warning.

On an almost drowsy October afternoon, newspaper reporters were dispatched to the coast to be ready to cover the story in case the hurricane did hit.

It was a very quiet, calm evening. But shortly after midnight the breeze began to rise and there was a pattering of rain. It struck the window panes and aroused residents all along the coast. Police kept busy all night asking beach dwellers to leave and go to places of safety. Most went, but a few refused.

The hurricane came in swiftly, powerfully—surprisingly mighty in its fury. For most of that day it raged across the Eastern third of the state, its winds whipping as far inland as Burlington, Greensboro and High Point. In Raleigh, an average of two or three trees went down on every block. Power lines were down for days. The old forests of the coastal plain show evidence of Hazel's fury to this day, with rotting trunks of uprooted trees still on the ground.

The weather bureau later confirmed that along with the hurricane's winds and rains there had been small-scale tornadoic action in many areas. Near Goldsboro, every tree in the young pine forests had been twisted off 10 to 20 feet above the ground.

Hazel died only when the storm reached the cold air of Canada's Hudson Bay area.

The weather bureau later confirmed that along with the hurricane's winds and rains there had been small-scale tornadoic action in many areas.

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank the God-fearing, church-going people of Greenville and their duly elected officials for preventing the scheduled candlelight march and memorial service on the banks of the Tar.

Had it not been for their posting of the property on Moratorium Day and threatened arrest of any marchers, that long-haired, wild-eyed, raving group of radicals would have taken their quest for peace right down the main street of our fair town.

As it was those despicable peaceniks snuck through the cordons of police and SBI agents and held their obscene rally on the grounds of the U.S. Post Office. Among the degenerate slogans shouted at that meeting was an obviously Hanoi-inspired chant called the "Lord's Prayer". Those unwitting Commie-dupes also sang "American" and "We Shall Overcome".

Thank God not all our youth is of that persuasion. As the hippies returned to the campus, several of our clean-cut young men came staggering, drunk, out of the Id.

That meeting, five months ago, was the last word for Mikva from the Justice Department. In response to repeated telephone calls, he has been told the repeal bill is "under study." No reports on the bills have been filed by the department. In response to our queries this week, spokesmen said Justice has no official position.

Unofficially, however, it does. A draft of testimony, not finally approved, has been prepared for Yeagley to deliver if and when Congressional hearing dates are set. It flatly opposes repeal. In the event of invasion, the draft says, the President needs authority to detain subversives so he will avoid legal problems encountered by President Roosevelt in 1942 when he penned up Japanese-Americans. A statement so politically insensitive would materially assist agitators driving a wedge between ghetto Negroes and their government.

A curious footnote to this bizarre story is that repeal of Title II is being supported, for very special reasons, by the most conservative members of the Senate Judiciary Committee—Chairman James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Sen. John L. McClellan of Arkansas, and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

They have inserted Title II repeal as a sweetener for liberals in a proposed internal security act of 1969 intended mainly to roll back 15 years of Supreme Court decisions undermining security statutes. This play, at least, might force Mitchell and his associates at the Justice Department to take the stand against a useless though provocative statute that they should have taken on their own long ago.

Historic—Also in 1963, the legislature gave Dr. Crittenden's department the authority to preserve the former legislative halls in the Capitol as historic sites and shrines and to limit public usage of these old chambers.

He took that assignment seriously. Requests for public meetings in those halls were almost invariably denied. In 1965, the legislature amended the law to permit use of the old legislative halls for "governmental and educational" purposes. This allowed meetings of such groups as the University of North Carolina trustees. But Dr. Crittenden frowned on this, and decided that meetings of such "educational groups" as student legislatures should not be allowed.

Administration Efforts To 'Cool' Inflation Nears First Major Test

By GEORGE BRYAN JR.

The Nixon Administration's determination to "cool" the economy and bring inflation under control is nearing its first test.

The question is whether the Republican White House can hang on to its policy of gradual restraints in the face of rising unemployment, which is a part of the price that will have to be paid for the disastrous rise in living costs to be checked.

The politics of the situation is against President Nixon and his economic policy makers. The irony of this is that they had nothing to do with creating inflation. Like Vietnam, it is a hangover from the Johnson years—one of the bad judgements which required Johnson from politics.

Of course, it is still too early to say that the long business upswing—nearly nine years, and a record—is peacking out.

But signs that the long-expected leveling out with, perhaps, an actual down-turn in the making, are multiplying. Real economic growth, measured with allowance for price inflation, has lost considerable of its upward zest in recent months.

This is merely evidence that the Nixon policies of restraint—continued high taxes, a down-hold on federal spending and tight credit—are taking hold. Given time, they will put a brake on the rate at which prices are rising. But it would take a real depression to actually turn prices down. There is no expectation of any real price drop. The hope is for some stability.

There have been warnings a plenty that bringing inflation to heel would not be painless: profits would be pinched, spending plans of government, business and individuals would have to be postponed and even abandoned, jobs would be harder to find and keep and the upward sweep of wages would slow.

This is the price every nation pays, sooner or later, when free wheeling governments pend loosely for defense, social welfare programs and their "readjustment." The historical result has been uncontrolled price inflation called "austerity" abroad.

Unemployment, of course, is the most sensitive spot in any economic readjustment. As it rises, the political clamor to relax anti-inflation policies sets in, even when easing up would merely pump new steam into inflation forces.

This is what the Nixon Administration is up against today.

The September rise in unemployment, from 3.5 percent to 4 percent, was something of a jolt. The rise of one-half percentage point was larger than had been expected and high-cost public works ed. The figure may well drop under 4 percent when figures for this month are in. Still, the sharp rise is significant.

In recent months there has been a rising feeling that employers have been "hoarding" labor, expecting that any bubble in the economy would be brief and followed by a new spurt in inflation. Evidence to support this view was found in the fact that labor productivity was easing off, meaning that workers were not being used efficiently.

If this has actually been the case, then an easing off in the rate of the economy would bring sudden and substantial lay-offs as industry trims manpower to actual production needs.

When the September unemployment figures were announced, there was an immediate chorus from the Democratic ranks, led by the party's titular leader, defeated presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey, that this was to be expected from Republicans. The spectre of the Hoover years was raised.

Business news for the fall and winter months will lose some of the boom tone which has become so common place while the inflation was building up. By and large, though, the reports will feature failure of this or that segment of the economy to score gains at recent rates, rather than accounts of actual turn-downs in operations, compared with last year.

The construction industry probably will be in the forefront of the "bad" news. Through government spending, at all levels, and business spending, construction has ranked near the top in the inflation race. Labor has been able to write its own ticket on wage demands, with little or no resistance from government or industry to soaring price tags.

Housing already has taken a sharp tumble. The high prices, plus tight money and high interest, has frosted the bloom on that rose.

Industrial and commercial construction will be the next. Builders of office buildings, for example, are worried over who will pay the rents for the high cost of the structures, plus the record interest rates at which many have been financed.

The rise seems likely to go out of public construction. The Nixon Administration has put a brake on new federal starts and has advised state and local governments to do the same.

In the case of local government spending projects, the taxpayers have been signaling, when they have had the chance, that they want relief. Bond issues coming up for approval by the voters have been turned down in record numbers and, apparently, with considerable glee. Its the only way local taxpayers have of curbing their big-spending local officials.

November voting will offer further evidence of how taxpayers feel on new borrowing authority for their local power "establishments." County Court Houses, State Houses and Washington, too will pay more than the usual attention to what the "grass roots" are saying this time.

For Washington, the sixty-four dollar question will be when and how to relax the anti-inflation restraints. In the past, the government has piled up a pretty bad record on economy managing. It has set the brakes too late, after inflation has got out of hand, and then tried to speed things up too late to avoid recessions.

It remains to be seen whether the Nixon planners can turn in a better record. But whatever is done about relaxing restraints will be decided in an atmosphere of political criticism and pressure.

Economist John Kenneth Galbraith, who had some say in Johnson's inflation-making policies, told a recent dinner meeting in New York:

"The present Administration is about to come up with something new—a combination of an intolerable level of unemployment with an intolerable level of inflation."

The Washington Post reported the comment as a wisecrack. But it could well be that that is just what Nixon is up against.

Family Room Given Stellar Role In Spacious Ranch—'The Leighton'

By GERRY BISHOP

They say there's nothing new under the sun and this is probably true of the family room concept.

It's likely the caveman had a favorite passage in his cave where the stalactites and stalagmites glistened a little brighter. No doubt this is where the family gathered to discuss the events of the day.

While the family room idea is not new, modern builders have added their own touch to make it an overriding feature of contemporary homes. The Associated Architects have given the family room special treatment in the Leighton, a one-story with exceptionally clean lines and several assets that give it rare appeal in today's housing market.

First, there's the location. As the center of family activity the family room is—where else?—in the center of the house.

ATMOSPHERE AND MOOD Its sloped ceiling with overhead beams are rustic. They're just right to build atmosphere and mood into those long winter evenings in front of the log fire. Nor are the built-in bookshelves lost on anyone who appreciates a truly fine room.

In mild weather sliding glass doors open the family room into the recessed patio area, adding depth to the Leighton's fun section.

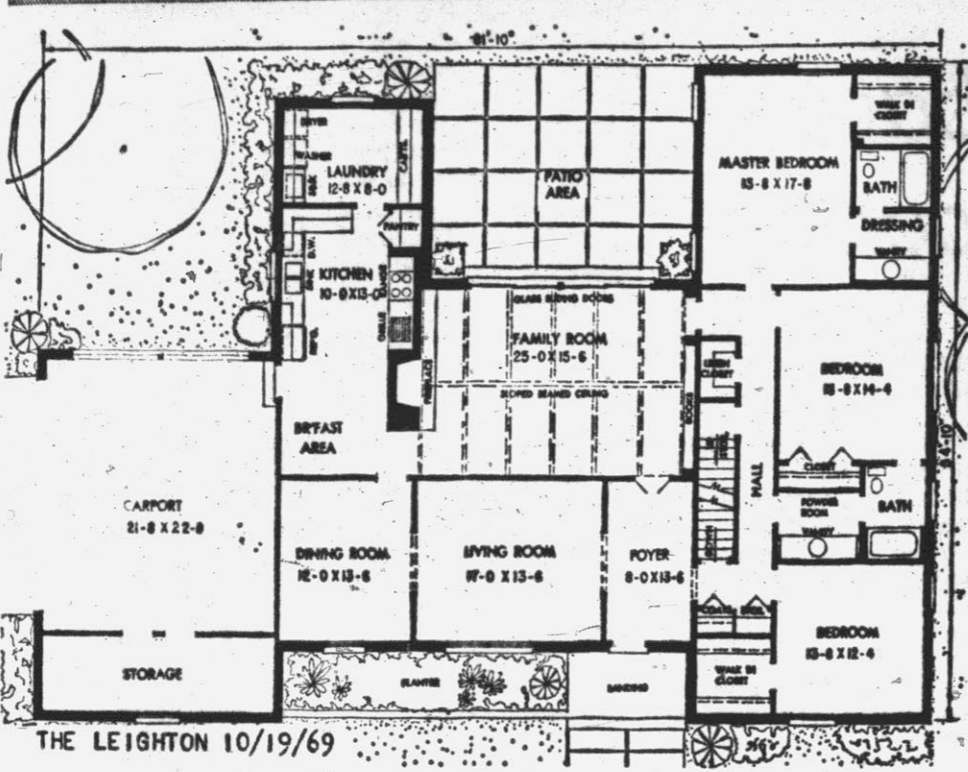

Something should be said about the foyer, which is larger than usual and serves as an effective reception area for incoming guests. It provides access to the living room on the left and the sleeping quarters on the right.

The living room has all the characteristics of the formal parlor. It enjoys isolation from everyday traffic, has adequate dimensions of approximately 17 feet by 13 feet and would lend itself to elegant furnishings.

As they should be, the dining room and living room are connected. This would be an advantage for entertaining, especially small dinner parties. For more grandiose occasions, the family room could be brought into play.

Measuring approximately 12 feet by 13 feet, the dining room also could be furnished formally.

AMPLE MASTER A lot of thought has gone into the kitchen area which is an exceptionally fine work area. Besides the built-in refrigerator, dishwasher and double sink under a window, there are a grill and pantry adjacent to the range. Cabinets provide plenty of storage space. Other conveniences are a breakfast area at one end and a laundry room at the other containing a washer, dryer, cabinets and a sink. The master bedroom has a walk-in closet and compartmented bath with built-in vanity. The other two bedrooms are connected by a long hall and separated by the main bath which has a vanity and doubles as a powder room. All the bedrooms are large and one has a walk-in closet. Plans call for a double carport but this easily could be changed to a garage. There also is a partial basement designed for future expansion of finished living areas when needed. The overall dimensions are approximately 82 feet by 55 feet and there are 2,618 square feet of living area.

Hope To Rehabilitate 2 Million City Houses

By NORMAN KEMPSTER WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government hopes to rehabilitate 2 million run-down city core houses in the next 10 years in a major change of direction for urban renewal.

"This will not be a dress up, paint up, tidy up campaign; this will be a major effort to recapture deteriorated properties," said Lester P. Condon, assistant secretary of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Previous urban renewal programs often involved bulldozing slums off the city map, frequently replacing them with offices or high-rent apartments. Sometimes, the land stayed vacant for years.

Neighborhood Action Such projects often resulted in bitter resentment in the neighborhood because residents were displaced without having any choice in the matter or any suitable place to go. "Not enough emphasis was given to the most important part of urban renewal, relocation of the people," Condon told UPI in an interview.

He said future rehabilitation projects should give former residents the first opportunity to move back into the rebuilt homes. Condon said he envisions projects that would get rid of the rats, modernize the plumbing and repair the dry rot without losing the advantages of a well-established, close-in area.

"The trees will be kept, the churches will stay, transportation routes will remain," he said.

The nation's housing goals call for construction of 26 million units in the next 10 years, of which 6 million are to be publicly-assisted. Condon said HUD envisions 4 million new public units and 2 million rehabilitated homes.

"The present residents should be given the option of moving back into the neighborhood," Condon said, "that wouldn't deny them the option of moving someplace else."

Such finishing touches as storm windows, screens, trim, paint, moldings may be left for a while. If there is a do-it-yourselfer on hand, it may be that the job can be completed by him.

An Addition Is Easier Course

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

Architects and builders are advising homeowners, who've been squashed in their efforts to build or buy a new house, to put additions on their houses.

In this tight money market, this idea makes a lot of sense. Why sell a house with a six per cent mortgage to buy one that will require almost twice that interest, unless it is an absolute necessity.

If a new house is desired because the old one is bursting at the seams, the addition to the existing house may solve the problem.

Some banks happily continue to lend money for home improvements, but others are uptight and lend it only to their own depositors. Home improvement interest rates have risen, but the smaller investment entails less risk, if the house addition is given considerable thought.

For example, you must be sure that you can get your money out of the house if you add a room or more. If you are living in a development area where houses carry identical price tags, you must decide whether the addition will out-price your house for that particular area.

If the houses range in value from moderate to high, you can more safely invest a good sum and anticipate appreciation of your investment.

The next step is to consider what is needed space-wise at this time. Some people get carried away by the idea when they plan with an architect or builder, and the original plan may sprout Topsy-like from a tiny nursery to a three-room apartment.

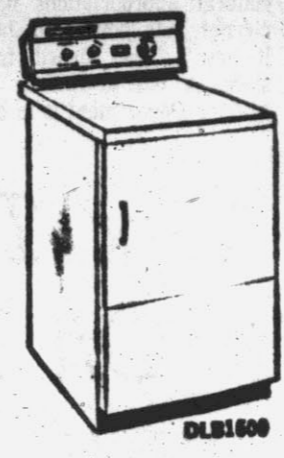

It is far better now to plan a simple addition with a view to future expansion than to take on a large debt to have more space than you really need at the moment, even though an "well, as long as we are doing it..."

Symposium On Religion Scheduled

A "Symposium on Religion and Social Awareness in Latin America" will be held at East Carolina University on October 21 and 22.

The two-day affair, sponsored by the Latin American Area Studies Program, will bring to ECU outstanding speakers on religion and social conditions in Latin America.

The first session opens with the topic "The Current Crisis in Latin American Protestantism" with Richard L. Millett, of the faculty of Southern Illinois University, speaking.

This is followed by a lecture presented by Michael Lenaghan, Assistant Director of the Latin American Bureau, U. S. Catholic Conference in Washington, D. C. who will speak on "Change or Fulfillment: The Catholic Church in Brazil."

Discussions for this session will be Roland H. Ebel, Associate Professor of Political Science, Newcomb College, Tulane University.

For the second session, which begins on October 22, the first topic of the day will be "The Third Position of Latin American Christian Democracy." Byung Koo Pak, Assistant Professor of Political Science at ECU will present this topic.

Also in the second session, Mathias C. Kielem, O.F.M., Director, Academy of American Franciscan History, Washington, D. C., will speak on "The Catholic Church and The Social Question Through the Centuries in Latin America."

In the third and final session, Frederico G. Gil, Director of Institute of Latin American Studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, will talk about "The Christian Democratic Party in Chile."

The program is being coordinated by Dr. Wilkins B. Winn, Chairman, Latin American Areas Studies Program, and Dr. Norma L. Richardson, co-chairman of the program, both of ECU.

Registration will be open from 7:00 p.m. and continue until 9:00 p.m., respectively. The second and third sessions will be held on Wednesday in Room 130 of Rawl Building from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. and at 7:00 p.m. and continue until 9:00 p.m., respectively. All discussions will take place on Tuesday. The first session will begin at 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday. The first session will begin at 7:00 p.m. and continue until 9:00 p.m., respectively. All discussions will take place on Wednesday in Room 130 of Rawl Building from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. and at 7:00 p.m. and continue until 9:00 p.m., respectively. All discussions will take place on the ECU campus.

The symposium, which is free, is open to interested members of the public. Registration is not a requirement for the public attending these sessions, but is being requested in order to give data for future planning of similar sessions.

Library Plans New Children's Program

A new series of children's program are to begin at Shepard Memorial Library on Tuesday. Mrs. William (Margaret) Reid, children's librarian, says plans are to have a special International Day program each month, featuring a different country. This is in addition to special events for children which will be held in commemoration of holidays and historic occasions.

The first program will highlight Germany. Mrs. Inge MacMillan, a member of the library staff and a native of Anklam, Germany, will be in charge. She will tell a favorite German folk tale and teach the children a German song.

United Nations week will be spotlighted with a display featuring the United Nations. The program Tuesday is to be held at 4:00 p.m. and is for children in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

On Wednesday, October 29, a Halloween story time for elementary school children will be held at 4:00 p.m.

The following day, Thursday, another Halloween program is planned. This will consist of a Halloween picture book presentation and is designed for preschoolers, ages 3 to 5. Two times are scheduled, one at 11:00 a.m. and a second one at 2:00 p.m.

Parents are encouraged to bring their children to these events. Other programs will be announced in the near future.

Moose Clothing Bank Drive To Begin Monday

Civic Affairs Chairman J.M. Moye Sr. reminded today the Moose Clothing Bank collections will begin Monday evening.

Teams of men, accompanied by Boy Scouts, will fan out over Greenville shortly after 7:00 p.m., he said.

Residents with clothing to contribute were urged to leave their front lights on as their signal to collectors.

"Used, but still usable, clothing will make a lot of difference in the winter ahead," said Moye.

Curtis Jones, leading this year's drive, added that "if we miss anyone with clothing ready for us, they may call the business office of the Moose lodge and arrangements will be made to pick up the articles. And, should a household be unprepared on Monday night, but expects to be able to give something at a later date, their call at the office will be welcomed."

Each fall season the Moose clothing bank starts off with empty shelves. Leftover items are contributed to the Salvation Army with the end of cold weather.

As in other years, Moose officers expect a heavy demand for children's wear.

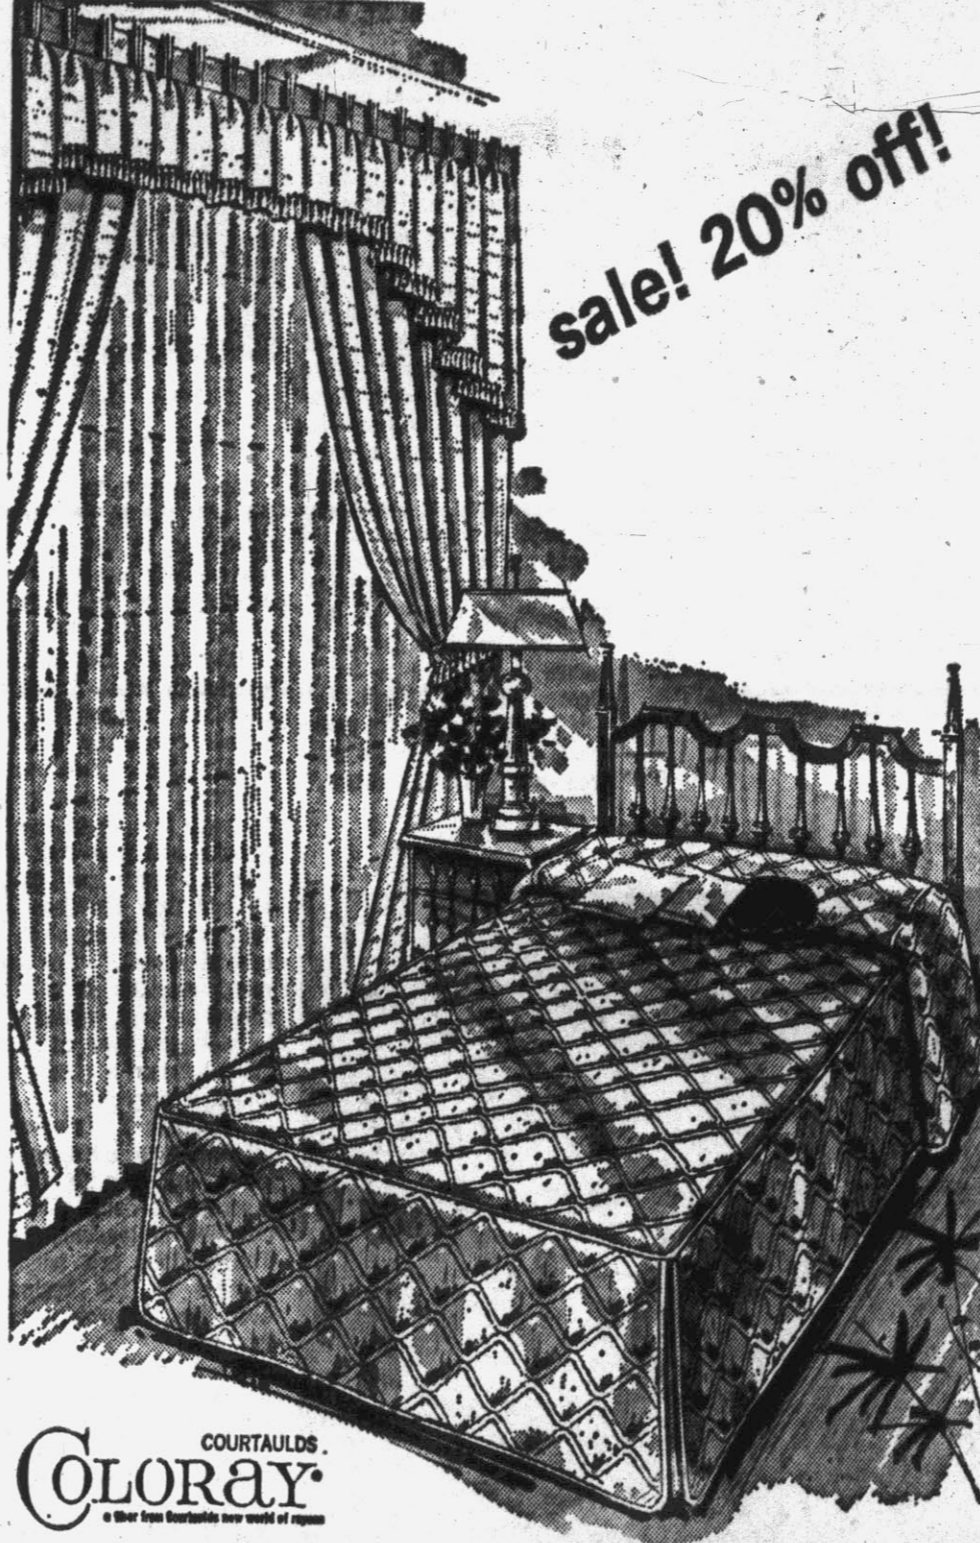

Clothing is distributed by Women of the Moose to families cleared by the Welfare Department, the Salvation Army, or by school principals.

Schools Apply Impressive Array Of Teaching Aids

TEACHER'S WORK . . . is never done even when the children have stacked their chairs and have gone home.

By BETTY CASEY

Anyone who attended the "little red schoolhouse" with his book and slate under his arm would be astonished to walk into the third grade classroom of Mrs. Vivian Mills at Agnes Fullilove School on Chestnut Street.

He probably would be overwhelmed by the impressive array of teaching aids—tapes, film strips, tachomatic reading machines, overhead projectors, and phono-visual consonant and vowel charts and games of all sorts. Mrs. Mills uses all these along with conventional books and blackboard.

The visitor no doubt would be at a loss to operate these aids because most of them have been invented since his day. Perhaps the changed attitudes of the teacher toward performing her job would surprise him even more, however.

"We are using the ungraded system more and more," Mrs. Mills explained. "that means each student progresses on different levels of work at his own pace. Placement is determined by his ability to achieve."

No more "dunce caps" and banishment to the stool in the corner for those who do not catch onto the lesson. "I make every effort," the neatly dressed, firm-voiced teacher declared, "to see that a child does not meet failure. Adults do not succeed at everything they try; therefore, a child should not be expected to succeed equally in all subjects. For instance, I can't sew, but I do not consider myself a failure because of it—for I succeed at other things."

"I try," she said, "to make school enjoyable for the children—not dull drill and rote."

A RAISED FINGER . . . signals that the student has heard the phonics lesson begin on the tape recorder.

She seems to have succeeded with the 24 bright-eyed youngsters in the class who waved their hands enthusiastically to be called on for answers to her questions.

Every child showed sincere patriotism while facing the flag and demonstrating the proper way to say the Pledge of Allegiance. They eagerly clamored to put on earphones to listen to a taped lesson in phonics and gave rapt attention to a lesson about machines and their functions being taught with the aid of an "overhead screen." This equipment projects on a wide screen sky-high written words or pictures drawn as if by a giant hand on a plastic sheet under a projector.

Children TV-Oriented

"Television has oriented today's children to watching a screen, so visual aids prove effective in teaching them." The children are taught to operate all the equipment, even the slide projectors. And why not?

The lessons they were studying about machines included terms such as lever, resistance, force, and fulcrum. When told that machines make work easier and faster, one freckled lad said, "I guess that means they have muscle-power."

Visual aids also help build much-needed background for the children. After one mopey question, "How could a staircase move?" the concept of an escalator came alive when a movie on the subject was shown.

"There is so much more children must learn about these days," Mrs. Mills said. "It is challenging to figure a way to present it all. How could I explain what New York City is like without a film-strip to make it clear?" she asked.

Materials change so fast that

With the Women

8—The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N. C.—Sunday, October 19, 1969

the teacher herself must work doubly hard to be prepared for the challenges of today's classroom as compared to earlier practices. Mrs. Mills, a native of Pitt County with a B.S. and an M.A. degree from East Carolina University has been a dedicated teacher for years, having taught in Chicod and Grimesland as well as Greenville. She does not say just when her career began but admitted to a 21-year-old woman, "I taught your mother."

When I started out," she said, "we didn't even always have enough books." She supplemented the supply out of her own pocket.

Greenville city schools offer up-to-date methods and equipment for the use of a well-trained staff of professionals who serve its 5,967 students. There are 178 elementary and 93 secondary teachers and ten staff personnel not assigned to a particular school.

City School Superior

Graduate certificates are held by 75 classroom teachers, placing Greenville third in rank in the state in this category. There are 183 teachers holding "A" certificates. A high percentage of Greenville High School students graduate and 69.5 percent, enter college, putting the school in first place in this category in the state.

The Greenville unit of the Classroom Teacher's Association will observe American Education Week, November 9-15 by distributing to local restaurants place mats that outline the qualities and objectives a progressive educational system must have, and by putting up an outdoor "Thank You for Our Schools" sign. They plan also to circulate copies of an article explaining the philosophy, organization, and personnel of Greenville schools to all businesses in Pitt County.

Greenville teachers receive fine help from the city system which supports them in educating its students. The mammoth task is not easy.

The teacher's school day sometimes starts before eight o'clock with bus duty. It is crammed with classroom duties, playground supervision during recess, lunchroom duty and the final check to see that each child has his desk in order, his chair on his desk to aid the janitor, and has on his proper wraps for the prevailing weather. But that is not all. Afternoons and evenings are often filled with grading papers, parent conferences, teacher seminars, PTA meetings, and lesson preparations for the next day.

Mrs. Mills is also very active outside of the schoolroom. She and her husband, James J. Mills, live on a farm and have one married son. At the Hollywood Presbyterian Church she is choir director, Circle Bible teacher, and Sunday School teacher for a young adult class. Her hobbies include fishing, camping, crewel embroidery, and collecting souvenir pitchers. The collection of about 100 pitchers of all sizes includes one made of olive wood brought by a friend from the Holy Land and one antique given to her by a great aunt.

Mrs. Mills holds membership in several professional organizations. These include the N.C. Educational Association, the National Education Association, the classroom Teachers Association and the American Childhood Education Association. She is a past president of the local chapters of the last two. She is also active in the Alpha Iota chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority, an international organization.

"Every day is a full day," Mrs. Mills admitted "but each is exciting. I often wonder how I will get everything done but am able somehow to get through all the details and start the next day with a smile."

"There are so many satisfactions to teaching," she declared, "that it is worth it." She feels that if she has met the particular needs of a child that her mission is accomplished, she said.

"It makes my day," she said smiling, "when at the end of the day the children protest, 'Oh no, it's not time to go home already, is it?'"

A SMALL GROUP . . . gathers around Mrs. Mills to proceed at their own speed level in today's lesson.

What Is Child Afraid Of? Not Disease Or Crime It's Snakes

By Norma Sue Woodstone

Copyright, 1969

Women's News Service

BERKELEY, Calif. — In an age of wars, traffic slaughter, crime on the streets, and divorce, the things that your child probably fears most are snakes, lions, tigers and bears.

Adah Maurer, school psychologist with the Contra Costa County Schools, recently asked 112 five- to 14-year-olds, "What are things to be afraid of?"

The results? Sixty-four percent of the 112 children and 50 per cent of their 467 answers named a single category: animals.

Children do not fear the atom bomb or things they have been taught to be careful about, like street-traffic and germs, Mrs. Maurer found. "The strange truth is that they fear an unrealistic source of danger in our urban civilization. Almost all five- and six-year olds and more than one-half of seven- to 12-year-olds claim that the things to be afraid of are snakes, lions, and tigers."

A 12-year-old boy she questioned replied, typically, "Wild animals, fierce dogs and cats, and snakes."

A six-year-old with a 144 IQ, the highest tested, suggested, "Lion, tiger, rat, buffalo, and bull."

A five-year-old answered, "Dogs!" Asked "And what else?" he made a face and said, "Dog, dog, two dogs!" Mrs. Maurer kept prompting until the boy reached "Ten dogs!"

The most unpopular animal, however, was not one or even 10 dogs. It was snakes and 23 boys and 10 girls mentioned them. Next in order came lions, named 28 times; tigers, 14; and bears, 9.

Other unpopular animals ran all the way from alligator to wolf alphabetically and included apes, bats, bears, bees, black widow spiders, centipedes, dinosaurs, lions, pinbugs, rats, and spiders.

In her study for The Journal of Genetic Psychology, Mrs. Maurer talked with middle or lower-middle-class, suburban, elementary school students. She also found —The fear of animals decreases with age. Eighty per cent of the five and six-year-olds feared animals; 60 per cent of the seven- to 12-year-olds; but only 23 per cent of the 13- and 14-year-olds.

—Fear of the dark disappears at age seven; and of imaginary bogeymen, at age 10.

—Probably as the result of experience, realistic fears balloon from almost none at ages five and six to as high as 46 per cent in early adolescence.

'European Universities, Social Life Differs From U.S.,' Coeds Agree

By Susan West

DURHAM — Today's space age students face unprecedented opportunities for foreign study. And, according to Mrs. Virginia Bryan, assistant dean of undergraduate instruction of the Duke University Woman's College, more and more every year are accepting the challenge to educate themselves as citizens of a rapidly shrinking world.

Last year, 25 students from the Woman's College studied abroad. They attended classes in France, England, Spain, Italy, Switzerland, and Germany. They lived alone, in dormitories, or with families. They studied sociology, economics, art, and literature, often in the native language of their host countries.

Students returning this fall from a semester or year abroad were eager to try on their new, travel-brightened perspectives. They recalled the first few weeks in their adopted homes as periods of adjustment to a whole new tempo of life. Marsha Smith of Westfield, N.J., who spent a year studying at the Sorbonne in Paris and living with a French family, explained, "I had to learn to slow down. Frenchmen do not have the American compulsion to stay on the go all the time. I had to learn to enjoy spending two hours at dinner, or with a book, or taking time off from study to go to a play."

Carol Westberg, of Shenandoah, Iowa, also at the Sorbonne last year on a Sweet Briar College program, felt busier than ever before, "because I wanted to move and see everything."

But Sue Ann "Sam" Monger of Matteson, Ill., agreed with Marsha's analysis, "I think maybe we all had to learn to do different things; our lives seemed slower because of the leisurely kinds of things Europeans enjoy doing."

Academic Freedom

For Mary Murton of Pittsburgh, Pa. and Pat Dell-Ross, of Miami, Fla., both students in England last year, the important adjustment was to the academic freedom of the British university. "We did not have the constant appraisal via examinations that we have in the States," explains Mary. "There you spend most of your time on what you are interested in, and, naturally, that's the area in which you'll do your best work on your final examination, which comes at the end of the term."

Pat agrees, "You're given a list of all the books available on your subject. At first I went on the assumption that I had to read everything. But that's not right. You read what you're interested in studying. It's like independent study here."

The girls in France were somewhat frustrated by the lack of organization they found in the French university system. Carol recalls, "I had to go all around the first few days and hunt courses and books. I visited different courses to find what I wanted."

In Spain, too, according to Sam the universities are poorly organized and the attitude of Spanish students to their work is discouraging. She explains, "The students there follow a fairly rigid program each year, and most of them do not care if it takes them 10 years to pass their final examinations."

Carter Wisely, of Staunton, Va., a participant last year in a study program at the University of Madrid, felt one basic problem was that "the students have no say at all in how the university is run or what courses are offered."

Carol, Marsha, and Judy Webster of High Point, who studied at the University of Lyons, found the same true in French universities. According to Marsha, "French universities are in bad shape because there is so little contact between professors and students. The facilities in labs and elsewhere are poor, the classes are too large."

Carol feels, however, that "the students are making progress. Last year small study groups were beginning to form. That's at least a step in the right direction."

Social Privileges

Although academic freedom was extensive, the girls who lived in families in Spain and France found social privileges somewhat curtailed. Girls in Carter's study groups, "were expected to act like Spanish girls and were a lot more restricted than we are accustomed to being. I could go out until 2 a. m. twice a week, but I had to be in by 10 p. m. the rest of the time. Most dates were from 6 to 10 because dinner was served at 10 and then you went to bed. My Spanish sisters were never allowed out after dinner."

Club Observing National Business Women's Week Most Gracious 'Thank You' Note Is Written Individually

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club will pay tribute to its working women today through Saturday as part of the nationwide observance of National Business Women's Week.

The week calls attention to the contributions of America's 29 million working women who now make up 37 percent of the total labor force and furnish many of its executives and super visors.

Mayor Frank Wooten has issued a proclamation setting aside National Woman's Week and commending members of the Greenville Club for their participation in the affairs of Greenville's Citizens Advisory Committee, Merchants Association, Chamber of Commerce, Pitt County Register of Deeds, Pitt County Safety Council, and East Carolina University.

Initiated by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in 1928, this week spotlights the achievements of career women and their contributions to the national economy and social structure.

Throughout the nation, more than 3,800 BPW clubs and their 180,000 members represent the interest of all working women. The National Federation, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, has a history of developing leadership and supporting legislation to insure the opportunity and recognition for working women.

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club, by attending a special church service and fellowship hour, tonight at 7:30 at The St. James Methodist Church.

GREENVILLE MAYOR . . . Frank Wooten signs National Business Women's Week proclamation as Mrs. Polly Dail looks on.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I was always under the impression that the bride was supposed to acknowledge the wedding gifts with a personal note, mentioning the gift, etc.

Some time ago my niece was married and since I received an invitation to her wedding I sent what I considered a most generous gift—a month of my social security income.

There was no acknowledgment for nearly four months. Then came a printed card bearing a snapshot of the bridal couple with a commercially printed message, "WITH SINCERE APPRECIATION FOR YOUR THOUGHTFULNESS AND GOOD WISHES."

Has this age become so automated that a bride sends printed "appreciation" for her wedding gifts? If so, I would like to be informed, then I shall know what to do with future wedding invitations. Sign me . . .

QUO VADIS

DEAR QUO: The printed "thank you" barely covers the obligation, but is better than no acknowledgment at all. The most gracious "thank you" is written individually. The only exceptions are acknowledgments which number in the many hundreds or thousands. But Eleanor Roosevelt, the greatest lady of them all, somehow managed to acknowledge every gift with a personal note.

DEAR ABBY: Something in your column sure stirred up a hornet's nest in our family, and I'll bet it did the same in hundreds of others across the country. It was the letter from the married woman who said she had a strong "physical attraction" for her husband's brother, and if she didn't get him alone just once she would lose her mind.

Well, last evening my husband's brother and his wife came over for a friendly visit. The first thing the wife said was, "Did you read Dear Abby today?" I said, "Yes, wasn't it a gas?" She said, "Yeah, it sure was." Naturally the men had to see it, too, so they dragged out the paper, and here was this "confession" from a married woman who had the "hots" for her brother-in-law, who was also married. By the time they left, my sister-in-law was barely speaking to me, and if looks could kill, her husband would be dead now.

That night when we went to bed my husband acted mad, but he didn't say anything.

Will you be kind enough to write and say which town, or at least which state she's from so the rest of the world can sleep in peace. Heaven help me if you say "Illinois."

NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT GUILTY: You'll not need Heaven's help on this one. Illinois it wasn't.

DEAR ABBY: We are about to marry off our fourth daughter and we are certainly in a bind. We have skimmed and saved for the last 15 years to be able to pay the bills for the weddings of our three older daughters. We have deprived ourselves of vacations and other luxuries, and now we find that the only way we can give our fourth daughter the same kind of wedding her older sisters had is to mortgage our home. Prices for weddings today are fantastic! Not one of the grooms' parents ever offered to pay a dime toward the expense of the wedding. We think this is unfair. It should be a 50-50 deal.

Please put this in your column. Maybe it will soak in where it's needed.

MOTHER OF DAUGHTERS

DEAR MOTHER: Don't count on it. But you have only yourselves to blame if you go broke putting on a wedding that is beyond your means.

Birthday Party Given Keith Stocks

Keith Stocks was honored on his fifth birthday at a party held at the Mount Pleasant Community Building. Miss Charlotte Clifton greeted guests and gave them a party hat and name tag.

Miss Teresa Harrell led the group in several games which included several clown games to carry out the circus theme.

The refreshment table featured a birthday cake which was centered with a clown surrounded by animals. Circus motifs were used throughout the building.

After refreshments were served, Miss Amy Clifton assisted the honoree in opening gifts.

As good-byes were said to the guests, Miss Clifton gave each one a candied apple and favor.

Malicious Look For Flying Ladies

ORLEANS, France (WNS)—Christine Michael, 18, who is one of five Frenchwomen competing with 49 male pilots in the air race around France, took up aviation because her mother decided that it was too dangerous for her to pedal her bicycle on the auto-jammed roads. Marie Cecile Saturnini, 22, says that the difficulties of flying give a lady "the malicious look and courageous spirit necessary to convince men that they are not the superior sex."

By Harold E. Harris, and Anne H. Harris R.P.H.

Still another area of danger in our homes is in our kitchens.

Under every kitchen sink there are any number of potentially dangerous household products in the form of cleaning liquids, detergents etc. We should all take extra precaution in this area especially when there are children in the home. Just as we should keep our drugs and other prescription items under lock and key, we should protect our little people from the prefix but deadly items found in our kitchens.

We have walkers, wheelchairs, canes & crutches etc. Just about everything in the form of convalescent aids. Either for sale or rent depending on your needs. For prompt compounding of prescriptions with the emphasis on accuracy its . . .

Politician's Daughter Recalls Campaign Trail

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Pat Bellmon Lewis liked being the daughter of a governor. But now she has traced the gamut of level politics for married and this is the life for me. The daughter of Senator and former Governor—Henry Bellmon recounted her memories in a story written for the Tulsa Tribune, where she worked this summer as a reporter. This fall she returned to her senior year at Oklahoma State University where she is majoring in journalism.

"Being a politician's daughter is a strange life," she wrote.

Some days you wonder why your family has to go through this. You did it by choice and you can get out whenever you want.

Ann—to a residential street where they got out.

"We were armed with campaign literature and our plea from door-to-door was 'Please vote for my Daddy. He's a good man,'" Pat wrote.

"Daddy kept us happy by treating us to ice cream bars and fruit along the way," she said. "We kept each other happy by telling the funny things people said to us, singing and sleeping between towns."

When Bellmon won the election, Pat had a choice to make. "As drum major of the Billings High School band I had the opportunity to lead the band in the inaugural parade. Or I could sit with the rest of my family on the reviewing stand."

Loyalty to the band won and she marched. "But it was worth the cold march because when I passed the reviewing stand and saluted my family, I was warm inside."

Life in the governor's mansion in Oklahoma City meant attending a new high school her freshman year. Of her time at Classen High School, she wrote: "My first day there was memorable because it was the day I met my husband-to-be, Larry Lewis. However, neither of us were interested in each other, let alone marriage, that day. He thought I looked homely and I thought he was too frank."

Through her mother's efforts the Bellmon home life was as normal as possible.

Garment Industry Backward' Says Vice President

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not unusual to expect that a son entering his father's business will want to see some changes made.

But John L. MacDougall Jr., who married the daughter of the president of one of the New York garment districts' oldest concerns, Davidow Suits, Inc., won't be satisfied if he succeeds only in changing the image of his father-in-law's company. He wants to change the entire garment industry.

MacDougall, a graduate of Harvard College and a former junior executive at Montgomery Ward and the J. C. Penney Co. describes the garment industry as "one of the most backward, most unenlightened, most unsophisticated businesses" in the nation.

"It's only recently that Seventh Avenue began making concessions to the 20th century," he says. MacDougall isn't talking about the haute couture houses—the names that as he puts it "receive 90 percent of the industry publicity. He's describing the smaller, often family-run dress, coat and sportswear houses that dress three-quarters of the nation's women.

"By and large Seventh Avenue is an industry for older vice president," says the 32-year-old vice president. "Aside from fashion designers and production analysts, there's no solicitation to get college people to enter the business." And, as he explains, "there's so much opportunity for expansion and update technology. Right now we're beginning to use computerized systems to cut and grade fabrics but there's so much more than can be done."

MacDougall places a great deal of the blame for Seventh Avenue's backwardness on the fact that the majority of the smaller houses are basically family businesses. Many, he says, have run for years basically on the family name—sticking with the staples and the concept that quality is more important than fashion. For instance, he notes that until recently Davidow, which has been run as a family business for over 80 years, appealed to the woman with money who wanted fine clothing but didn't want to make waves.

When baking apple pie, grate several tablespoons of sharp cheddar cheese into the pie dough before rolling it out. The cheese helps to make a crisp and delicious crust, and complements the flavor of apples.

On The Local Scene by Rosalie Trotman

Two doctors, Carole Wilkerson and Paul Samuelson, will exchange wedding vows on Jan. 10 in Greenville.

Carole received her medical degree from the Medical School of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Her fiancé received his medical degree from the School of Medicine of the University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y.

They met when they both began their internship at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, where they are now resident doctors, she in pediatrics and he in internal medicine.

Brenda Thigpen and Steve Redd met in study hall while they were attending Rose High School. She was a freshman and Steve, a senior. They have been dating since that time.

The bride-elect received her B.S. degree from East Carolina University and is teaching first grade in the New Bern city schools.

Her fiancé received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from East Carolina University. He is presently employed as dean of Occupational Education for the Craven County Technical Institute.

A color scheme of Christmas red and white will be used for their Dec. 21 wedding in St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Also planning a December wedding are Judith Williams and William Kuykendall, on Dec. 28.

The couple met while students attending East Carolina University.

A nursing major at ECU, Judith graduated in June. She was president of the Tau Pi Upsilon, honorary nursing sorority.

Her fiancé is teaching at Washington High School.

Joe Betts Barrett of Greenville was recently pledged into the Alpha Sigma Chapter of Delta Delta Delta at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Jo Betts is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Barrett of 517 Longmeadow Rd.

Duke Coeds ... Bridge Winners Are Announced

Sam also disliked the lack of privacy, "You had to meet your date on the street. And there was a very definite lack of places to go to be alone with him."

Marsha was allowed to stay out until any hour, "probably because I was dating an American boy. But it bothered me that there was no place to go to be alone. I could never have invited him up to my room."

Pat and Mary agreed that "English girls have very few social restrictions and Judy explained that even French girls, if they live in dormitories, enjoy unlimited social privileges. "The dormitory in Lyons where I stayed for one month was never locked, and boys wandered the halls as late as 3 or 4 a.m."

In spite of occasional inconvenient restrictions all the girls enjoyed the relaxed atmosphere of dating in Europe and Britain. Sam compared going out in Spain with the dating system in the United States.

"Two things about social relations here really bother me in light of what I experienced in Spain," she said. "One is the big Saturday night drinking date and the other is its opposite, this phony discussions of issues, with a Capital 'I'. Relations on a dating basis here are so unnatural. In Europe you enjoy just getting together with people whose company you appreciate."

Carol feels that American students need some place to go just to talk and drink coffee or wine. "I really miss the French cafes," she says. Pat and Mary agree that pubs in England serve the purpose of giving people a place to go for relaxation and discussion.

One thing Pat feels keeps the social atmosphere of Europe on a more personal level than in the United States is the lack of organized social clubs. "You spend a lot of time with a small nucleus of friends, but there are no organized groups like those the Greek system creates here," she believes. In France, too, students still live at home, they are not really university-oriented. Carol noticed that "there is no real group spirit among the students at a French university."

Sam and Carter agree that "the university in Spain is a place for classes and that's all."

Although their experiences varied, all the Duke students agree that last year's study abroad was probably the most valuable phase of their college education. "I learned so many things," says Carol. "My whole world seemed to open up; and I began to see and understand other people, not in national categories, but as individual human beings who have as many things in common with me as they do different cultural backgrounds."

Have YOU Ever Looked At A Deed Book?

Do you know what kinds of information they contain?

Deed Books exist to record transfers of property. But they record much more!

- They record names of children, parents, sisters, brothers, aunts, uncles, grandparents, and grandchildren.
- They record names of neighbors.
- They record names of other persons who have owned the property.
- They record marriage contracts, separation and divorce agreements, too.
- They record mortgages, foreclosures, sheriffs' sales.

IT IS POSSIBLE TO LEARN A GREAT DEAL ABOUT ONE'S FAMILY OR OTHERS BY READING DEED BOOKS. IN PITT COUNTY, THESE BOOKS GO BACK TO THE TIME OF YOUR GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER!

There's just one difficulty. Sometimes they are very hard to read, because the language, handwriting, and spelling are not easy to interpret unless you're familiar with this sort of research. And since there were often NO indexes, and there were NEVER complete indexes, you can't learn all there is to learn about your family by going to the Courthouse and looking at Deed Books.

PEOPLE ALL OVER THE UNITED STATES ARE READING ABOUT YOUR FAMILY AND OTHERS IN PITT, though. They have bought the three volumes published so far of INDEX AND ABSTRACTS OF DEEDS OF RECORD, PITT CO., N.C. These volumes containing all the transactions in 17 deed books — 7,930 pages — have been indexed for you at less than 1c a page! We have included the names of everyone mentioned — even witnesses and next-door neighbors!

YOU CAN FIND THE ANSWERS TO THESE QUESTIONS, FOR INSTANCE, IN THESE THREE VOLUMES:

1. Who were the parents of Philip Whichard? Who was his grandfather?
2. When did Thomas Garrett purchase land in Pitt County?
3. What was the maiden name of Mary Hart, wife of walking Hart?
4. How was David Hines related to Crissey D'no 22?
5. What relation was Josiah Little to John Little?
6. Can you name the eight sons of Henry Elliot?
7. To what state did Simon Sugg, William Sugg, and Joel Sugg move?
8. Who was the father of William and Simon Keel?
9. How was Jesse Proctor Mooring of Anson related to Richard Proctor of Pitt?
10. Can you name the brother, sisters, and father of Col. Howell Cobb?
11. Floyd Hodges had two relatives named Edmund Hodges who were they?
12. Which Cherry did Nancy Mooring, daughter of John Mooring, marry?
13. How was Kinchen Davis related to Joshua Barnes?
14. Who was the father of Seth Tison and Sherrod Tison?
15. Who was James Sheppard's father-in-law?

Richmond Spiders Run Over Pirates 24-7

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
RICHMOND — Charlie Richards engineered the Richmond Spiders to a 24-7 victory over East Carolina University in a Southern Conference football game last night.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the Pirates and their fourth this year.

Richards passed and ran the Pirates ragged in the game. He broke away for rushing gains of 74 yards in eight carries, including a 39 yard run that set up the final Spider touchdown. In the air he hit on 14 of 26 passes for 2-8 yards.

About the only bright spot for the Pirates was Butch Colson's setting of a new East Carolina career record for rushing. He surpassed Dave Alexander's 1934-65 total of 2,002 yards. Colson now has 2,044 with five games still to play. He already holds the career mark for times rushed.

Richmond took the lead on a 35 yard field goal by Mike Dussault then came back with a 49 yard bomb from Richards to All-America end candidate Walker Gillette. Richards also passed five yards to Gerry Mauro for another touchdown, while Mauro cracked over on a three yard off tackle play for another Spider play.

East Carolina's only score came on a one yard run by Colson late in the first quarter.

Two field goal attempts by the Bucs from long distances failed.

Richmond scored quickly on its first possession, as the field goal put them on the scoreboard.

They received the ball on a punt on their 30. Buddy Woodie gained 12 on a sweep and then Pat Morris added seven more. Richards then kept the ball and streaked to the Pirate 23 for a 28 yard gain. Woodie swept to the 19, and Frank Olsjack picked up nine more to the ten. A pitch out was spotted by a crashing Mike Boaz who had a tremendous defensive night, and the result was a loss to the 18. After two passes failed, Dussault kicked a field goal from the 26, and Richmond led 3-0 with just under 10 minutes left in the quarter.

The Pirates were unable to move the ball and Richmond got it back on its own 39. They moved the ball to the Pirate 49 in three plays, but the Pirates dug in, and appeared to have them stopped. On third down however, Richards tossed his bomb to Gillette who went straight down the sideline for the extra point and Richmond led 10-0.

The Pirates came streaking back for their only score of the game. Taking over on the 29, Colson shot through the middle for 15, then broke away down to the Richmond 26. Billy Wightman went through the line for 14 more to the 12, and then took a pitch out from Colson down to the five. Pete Wooley picked up a yard and Colson added three to the one. He cracked over from there, and Early Clary's kick made it 10-7.

Minutes later the Bucs threatened again, driving into Richmond territory at the 27, but the drive cooled off and a field goal attempt was short.

Richmond controlled the ball the rest of the half, and continually threatened to score again.

A screen pass to Morris put-the ball on the 40, but two plays later, Stu Garrett intercepted to stop that drive. Richmond later got the ball on the Pirate 43 after a short punt, and a Richards to Gillette pass and another screen to Morris moved it to the 12. But Boaz picked off a Richmond fumble there stopping that drive.

Boaz wasn't through with his show for the half however, he came back with an intercepted pass to stop the next Spider drive.

East Carolina had a brief try at one more score in the half but time ran out on them at the 25.

Richmond came back on its first series of the second half, and in two plays had its second touchdown. Woodie got nine yards in two plays, and then he and Mauro and Richards pushed it to the 48. Olsjack hurled a 37 yard pass to Jim Livesay at the Pirate 15.

Woodie swept to the nine, and a Pirate penalty put the ball at the five. Richards hit Mauro on a swing pass on the next play for the score.

PAT for a 17-7 lead. Dussault added his second

East Carolina then had its only drive of the half, going down to the 28, before a field goal fell short. With Colson and Wightman getting the yardage, the Bucs crossed mid-field. Colson passed to Fred Harris for a first down at the 30, but could go no further. A second field goal attempt fell short.

Richmond moved in from there from the 20 for their final score. Getting great third down plays along the way.

From third and nine on the 21, Richards hit Herman Perry at the 33, Richards found himself in a third and 16 situation. He scrambled looking for receivers but found none and took off downfield.

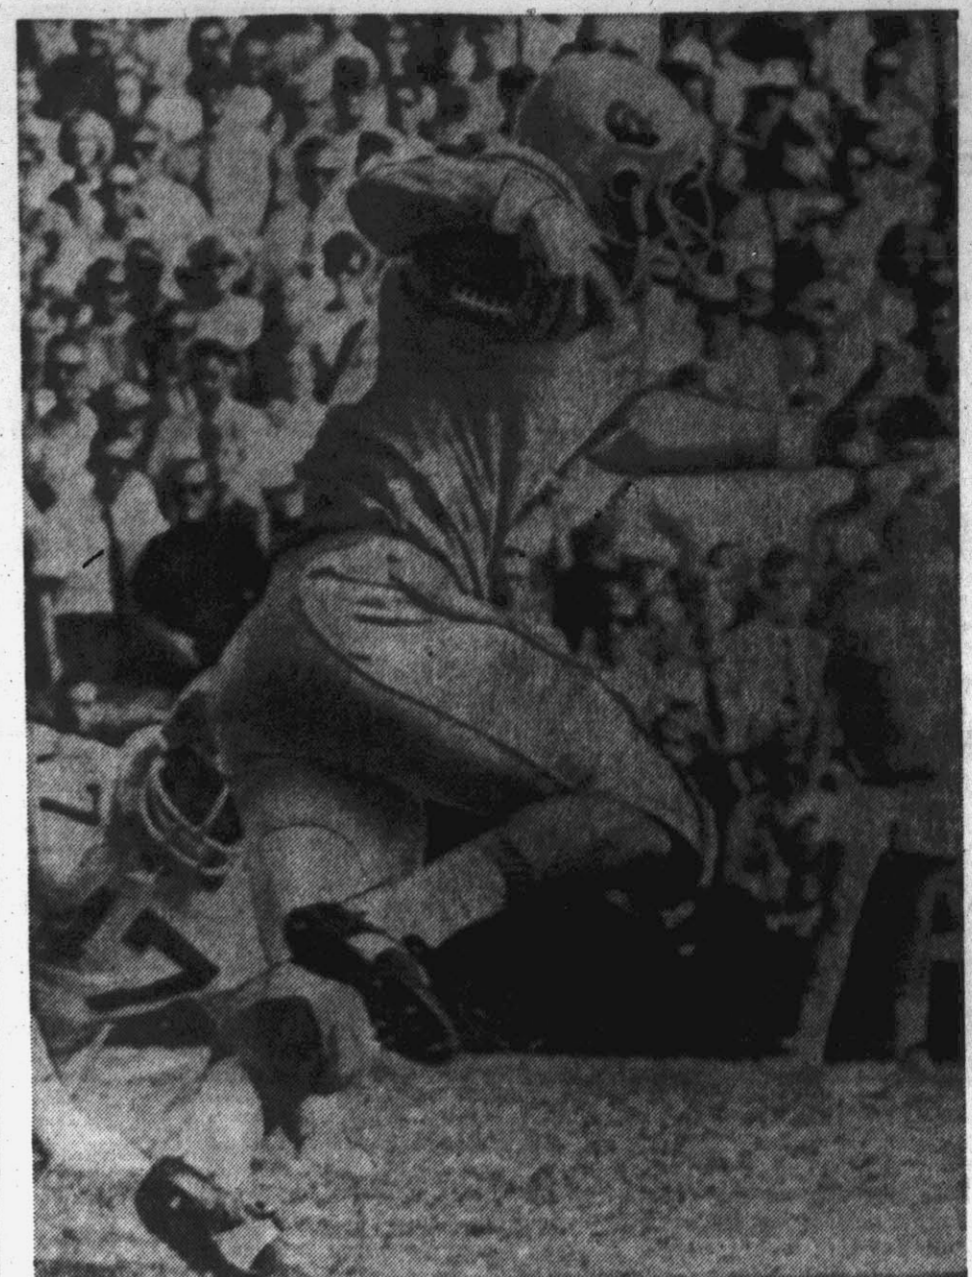

He was finally run down on the Buc 34. Richards passed to Livesay on the 14, but the Spiders were pushed back to the 18 getting third and long yardage again.

Richards again found no one open and ran the ball to the three. Mauro cracked over from there for the final score.

East Carolina was completely handcuffed during the second half. Getting only five first downs, 17 yards rushing and 50 yards passing.

Colson led the Buc passing, hitting five of eight for 60 yards and was also the rushing leader with 65.

The Bucs stay on the road next week traveling to Southern Illinois still looking for their first victory of the season.

State Rolls Past Va. 31-0

By ED YOUNG
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — N.C. State's Wolfpack shattered Virginia's hitherto reputable defense on the passing and running of quarterback Darrell Moody and routed the Cavaliers 31-0 Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

It was the 11th consecutive conquest of Virginia by the Wolfpack since 1948, and few of the previous victories could have been more decisive. Not only did the Wolfpack overpower the Cavaliers on offense, but four times during the game they held downs inside their 20.

Moody, a scrambling junior, ran 14 times for 65 yards, completed eight of 13 passes for 84 yards, and scored one of the N.C. State touchdowns on a two-yard end sweep.

The agile quarterback also was largely responsible for most of the other points State put on the scoreboard as the Wolfpack broke Virginia's three-game winning streak and evened its season record at 3-3.

Wingback Leon Mason was Moody's principal isekick in mowing down the Cavaliers, running for 81 yards in 11 carries and scoring once on a seven-yard run.

A 27-yard field goal by Mike Sharron, which got the Wolfpack on route to victory midway through the opening quarter; a one-yard plunge by halfback Charlie Bowers, climaxing a 51-yard advance; and a 30-yard pass from third string quarterback Dennis Britt to wingback Butch Altman with eight seconds remaining accounted for the other Wolfpack scores.

Virginia in actuality was never in the game as the Cavaliers saw their season record drop to 3-2 and their ACC mark to 1-2 before a crowd of 26,000 — the season's largest here. Virginia netted only 107 yards rushing and never put together a cohesive passing attack. Nonetheless, the Cavaliers made a number of swipes at the Wolfpack goal only to be thwarted by the rugged State defense. Tackles Ron Carpenter and Art Hudson and linebacker Pete Bailey.

Virginia advanced to the State 13 in the second period, but the drive ended with an interception. In the third quarter, the Cavaliers reached the Wolfpack two, but were held for downs. And in the fourth period they drove in consecutive series to the State 10 and the State 20 only to be held again.

Gators Score Early To Romp Over Tar Heels

By F. T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Sports Writer
GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — John Reeves threw four touchdown passes as tenth-ranked Florida roared to a 52-2 victory over North Carolina Saturday before the second largest home crowd of all time, 62,945.

Reeves' favorite receiver, Carlos Alvarez, took a 76-yard scoring pass on the third scrimmage play. It was a personal distance record for the exciting pair that has ignited an unparalleled Florida team to five straight triumphs.

It almost duplicated the 70-yard toss with which they broke into college football just a month ago.

With the help of two North Carolina fumbles and a short punt, Reeves and company had Florida in front 28-0 in the first eight minutes.

Tommy Durrance, another sophomore star and leading scorer in the Southeastern Conference, ran his point total to 62 with an 18-yard touchdown pass reception and a three-yard smash.

Sophomore split end Andy Cheney, starting in place of the injured Paul Maliska, caught a 20-yard scoring pass, senior split end Guy McTheny took a seven-yard scoring aerial, sophomore fullback Mike Rich smashed one yard and junior Jerry Vinesett went three yards for another touchdown.

North Carolina recovered from its early mistakes to muster three penetrations near the Florida goal but they were stopped by a stiffened Gator defense, five, one and four yards short.

After quarterback Johnny Swofford injured his hip, Paul Miller took over for the Tar Heels but had no more success. North Carolina also lost linebacker Paul Webster with a broken leg.

The only points Carolina

South Carolina Downs Va. Tech

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Billy DuPre kicked a 47-yard field goal with nine seconds left Saturday to give South Carolina a 17-6 football victory over winless and fumble-plagued Virginia Tech.

The field goal capped a frantic drive by the Gamecocks after Tech had gone ahead 16-14 with 1:13 left on a 60-yard drive capped by third string quarterback Gil Schwabe's 26-yard pass to wingback Jimmy Quinn.

But the extra point attempt by Jack Simscak was a few feet wide to the right. It was only the second extra point missed in two years by Simscak, who has kicked 27 out of 29.

South Carolina quarterback Tommy Suggs, carefully protecting the clock, used up eight plays passing and running his team to the Tech 29, where the Gobler line stiffened. Then DuPre came in on fourth down for the winning kick.

Terps Go By Duke, 20-7

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Quarterback Dennis O'Hara's only two pass completions went for touchdowns as Maryland downed Duke 20-7 Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

A 37-yard scoring toss to wingback Paul Fitzpatrick snapped a 7-7 tie in the second quarter, and O'Hara's 26-yard aerial to split end Bill Gillespie in the final period insured the victory.

With a 2-3 record under new coach Roy Lester, including a 2-0 mark in the ACC, the Terps already have equalled their victory total for the past two seasons.

Duke, now 1-4 in over-all competition and 1-3 in league play, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter and then muffed two scoring chances after Maryland had gone ahead.

Quarterback Leo Hart, who sat out several series of plays after being shaken up in the second half, scored for Duke in the first quarter. He went over from the one after launching the 50-yard scoring drive with a 24-yard pass to tailback John Cappellano.

Maryland came right back to force a 7-7 tie. Tailback Al Thomas, who gained 170 yards on 22 carries, went around right end to score from the five. On the 61-yard drive, he also made first downs on runs of 17 and 13 yards.

After failing to capitalize on Duke punts of 18 and 14 yards in rolled up 368 yards. The 170 yards gained by Thomas was a career high, and fullback Tom Miller added another 101 on 27 carries. Fitzpatrick gained 51, and O'Hara picked up 41 on his option calls.

Hart gained 123 yards for Duke with nine pass completions in 27 attempts. He was also the Blue Devils' leading ground gainer with a net of 40 yards on 16 carries.

After Hart was shaken up on the second play of the third quarter, Dennis Satyshur drove Duke to the Maryland one, where the Blue Devils' were stopped on fourth down.

Satyshur dropped the snap from center, and then ran for his life to escape tacklers before the second quarter, Maryland drove 71 yards to break the tie. O'Hara's 37-yard bomb to Fitzpatrick followed a 15-yard penalty against the Terps for having an ineligible receiver downfield.

The failure by Duke to down a missed Maryland field goal attempt in the end zone set up the final Terp scoring chance.

The ball was down by Maryland after it had gone into the end zone and then came back out to the one. The Blue Devils punted on fourth down, and Maryland began a drive from its own 48. The TD pass to Gillespie came on a third-and-four situation.

pass to Gillespie came on a third-and-four situation.

Maryland, which completed only one pass in its only other victory this season over Wake Forest, was two-for-eight in the air Saturday. O'Hara tried only two passes other than his touchdown tosses and was credited for Maryland's 63 yards gained in the air.

But on the ground, the Terps being stopped at the 17, where he also was charged with intentionally grounding the ball on a pass which sailed through the end zone.

Duke also missed two field goal attempts on the final two plays of the first half after driving from its own 29 to the Maryland 11 as time ran out.

Linebacker Hank Gareis threw

Hart for a nine-yard loss to the 20 and then teamed with defensive end Jim Hamley to hit Hart and cause an incompleton.

Dave Pugh then attempted a field goal from the 27, which was deflected by linebacker Bill Reilly, but Tony Greene fumbled the ball and Jim Dearth recovered for Duke. Given another chance, Pugh's second effort was wise to the right.

Yauger Aids In Clemson Victory

By DEL BOOTH
Associated Press Writer
CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Halfback Ray Yauger plunged over for the winning touchdown from a yard out with 2:39 to play as Clemson trimmed Wake Forest 28-14 Saturday to bring its Atlantic Coast Conference football record to 3-2.

The chunky junior broke a 14-all tie that had prevailed since halftime and Clemson added another score in the closing seconds.

Yauger rushed 36 times for 202 yards as Clemson won its third game in five starts and dropped Wake Forest to 1-3 in the ACC and 2-4 for all games.

The teams exchanged first end second quarter touchdowns. Tracy Lounsbury tried a 41-yard field goal that was short and a fourth down Clemson pass was incomplete in the end zone before the half ended.

Clemson threatened in the third quarter but Larry Pons intercepted a pass in the end zone to stop the march. Clemson halted a fourth period threat with a pass interception at its 17 by Sonny Cassidy.

The Tigers' winning drive started from their 16 with Yauger ripping off 20 yards to get it going. Tommy Kendrick passed for 18 to Jim Sursavage at the Wake 14 on fourth down to keep the threat alive.

The victors added a touchdown with 20 seconds left in the contest on a six-yard reverse to flanker Charlie Waters. Waters had moved to the six on a 20-yard reverse one play earlier.

Wake Forest opened the game with a surprise on-side kick that failed and gave Clemson the ball at the Wake 49. With Yauger doing most of the carrying, including a 19-yard burst, Clemson had a touchdown in seven plays, Yauger churning out the final four.

Wake evened it up a few minutes later. Ed Bradley fell on a Clemson fumble at the Clemson 42 and Larry Russell passed for 27 yards to Joel Bowden. A few plays later Buz Leavitt rushed over from four yards out.

The teams exchanged second quarter touchdowns. Ed Tolley sliced off right tackle for 12 yards and the Clemson score. Russell raced across the Clemson goal, also from 12 yards away.

Clemson stuck to the ground in the 74 yards it moved for its second touchdown. Jack Dolbin returned the kickoff 31 yards to get Wake moving to its second score from near midfield.

Kinston Aerials Bomb Rose Homecoming, 44-22

Edwards On The Move

Rose High School's third fullback of the year, Cliff Edwards, rambles for yardage as Kinston tacklers lose in during Friday night's games. Edwards picked up 99 yards during the game, and scored one touchdown and

Four Long Passes By Bryant Kill Rampant Hopes For Any Upset Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Kinston's Reggie Bryant made like a B-52 in Ficklen Stadium Friday night, and his four bomb runs brought the Red Devils away from the gridiron ways with Rose with a 44-22 victory.

Bryant tossed four long passes among a 380-yard night, scoring two touchdowns and setting up two others. Two more shorter passes also scored touchdowns.

Bryant hit end Ronnie Wainright for 67 yards and then three 63 yards to Lew Paylor for touchdowns. A shorter pass of 18 yards to Paylor scored another, while a pass to Nate Vause from the 12 was fumbled into the end zone where Wainright recovered for another score.

The remaining two touchdowns came on runs of one and 17 yards by Don Lightfoot, the Kinston tailback.

Rose got on the board with a one-yard run by Clifton Edwards, the third Rampant fullback of the year. Two other scores came late in the game on Joe West passes. One, to Josh Weeks, covered 57 yards, while the other, hauled in by Mike Harrington was for 14 yards.

Bryant was the real show of the night, however. He put the ball into the air 21 times, hitting on 13, with one interception, by Charlie Speight, just brought up from the junior varsity this week.

Another surprise was the running of Edwards for Rose. Twice this season, the Rampants have had fullbacks injured on them, and Edwards was the third to step into the position. In his first start, he picked up 99 yards in 21 carries.

West, the Rampant quarterback, had one of his poorer nights, despite hitting on 16 of 28, and gaining 188 yards. That pushed him over the 1,000-yard mark for the year. He now has hit on 101 of 175 passes for 1,116 yards. He has had only three intercepted, and two of those were first touched by Rose receivers.

The Rampants started the game as if they were going to push Kinston around the field. They moved to the Kinston 30 before their first drive failed, then halted Kinston in its own territory.

Penalties halted the second Rose drive, and it appeared that they were about to stop Kinston again when Bryant dropped his first bomb of the evening.

Sitting on his own 33 with a third and nine situation, Bryant found Wainright loose, and the two teamed up for a 67-yard explosion with 1:03 left in the period, and the results shook the Rampants.

Mike Winsette ran over the extra point, and Kinston led, 8-0.

But the Rampants came streaking back to tie the score. The drive started at the Rampant 31. Donald Taylor picked up three yards, then West hit Harrington for a first down at the 42. Edwards broke loose to the 21. Edwards pushed the ball to the three, and after a busted play put the ball at the one, Edwards cracked over for the score with 6:57 left in the half.

West hit Harrington for the two-pointer, tying it at 8-8. Kinston proceeded to come right back and regain the lead. From its own 40, Kinston drove down the field for the score. After losing to the 39, Bryant hit Brame at the Rose 44 for a first down. Another Bryant pass to Paylor put the ball on the 29. Bryant ran to the 20, and then to the 16.

Lightfoot then broke through the middle of the line from there, going in for the second

Kinston touchdown. Bryant passed to Brame for the extra points, and the Red Devils held a 16-8 lead with 4:27 left.

But it wasn't over for the half yet. Rose almost got its chance when Kinston was caught rousing the kicker, but an offsetting penalty forced another punt, and Kinston took over on the 31. On the first play, Bryant found Brame open, and he darted down the sidelines to the four before being stopped by Edwards and Russ Smith. Lightfoot carried to the one, and then went over on the next play, making with 22-8 with 1:23 left.

Kinston received the second half kickoff and promptly marched again. From its own 35, the Red Devils moved across the line on a 12 yard run by Brame, and a 23 yard scarp by Lightfoot to the Rose 27.

From the 23, Lightfoot broke away to go into the end zone, but Kinston was caught for being off sides, and the play was nullified. It didn't stop the Red Devils, however. Bryant and Paylor combined to put the ball on the 18, and runs by Winsette and Lightfoot pushed the ball to the five. A penalty pushed it back to the 18, but Bryant hit Paylor for the score from there. Lightfoot carried over on the conversion, making it 30-8.

Kinston got the ball back late in the period on its own 21. After gaining to the 38 in two plays Bryant hit Paylor again, and he was finally run down by Edwards at the Rose seven, after a 55-yard gain. That set up the next Kinston score.

The Red Devils drew another penalty back to the 24, and on the next play, Bryant was pushed back from the 24 to the 41. However, Rose was charged with facemasking, and then came confusion on the part of the officials.

Rather than marking off the penalty from the spot of infraction, the 41, the ball was brought back to the line of scrimmage. It was then realized that the penalty should be marked off from the 41 and the official started back up field. The marker had already been removed, however, and the referee marked the penalty off from the 34, putting the ball on the 19.

Lightfoot hit for seven after that, and then Bryant tossed to Nate Vause at the three, but he fumbled and the ball rolled into the end zone. Wainright came up with it for the touchdown, and it was 36-8 with 10:59 to go in the game.

Rose was unable to move the ball, and Kinston got it back on its own 37. In seven plays, including a penalty, the Red Devils found themselves right back where they had started from, the 37. So Bryant went bombing again. He tossed a 63-yard touchdown pass to Paylor, and then Bryant ran over the extra points for a 44-8 lead with 6:52 to go.

Rose then came up with two more scores to make it 100-8. West hit Harrington at the 43 from the 36, then found Weeks wide open along the sidelines for a 57-yard bomb of his own. That cut the lead to 44-14 with 5:53 to go.

Rose got the ball back late in the game, on the Kinston 48 on Speight's interception. West was thrown back to the 45, then he hit a screen to Russ Smith to the Kinston 14. The next play was another pass, to Harrington, and the 14-yarder was good for the score. Edwards ran over the extra point for the final 44-22 score.

The Rampants, now 0-3 in the division, and 1-6 overall, play host to Raleigh's Enloe next Friday night.

The Citadel Sets New Offense Record In Win

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—The Citadel, behind the passing of quarterback Tony Passander and the running of tailback Bob Duncan, rolled to an easy 28-2 Southern Conference football victory Saturday over hapless Virginia Military Institute.

Passander threw three touchdown passes, all to tight end Mike Davitt, and Duncan accounted for the other six-pointer as he rambled for 113 yards on 11 carries.

The Bulldogs, now 2-1 in the conference and 4-1 over-all, were in command from the start as they piled up a school record 497 yards of offense compared to only 130 for VMI. Before the game, The Citadel's best effort was 483 yards against Presbyterian College in 1942.

Devastating VMI with its pitchouts around both ends, The Citadel took less than three minutes to bag its first touchdown as Duncan reeled off consecutive gains of 8, 19 and 15 yards. After that, the Bulldogs capitalized on two pood VMI punts to pull away from the Keydets.

VMI, now 0-5, escaped being shut out for the fourth time this season by scoring a safety with 4:03 left in the game. A 61-yard punt backed The Citadel to its four-yard line and on its first play VMI linebackers Denny Sullivan and Jimmy Westbrook swarmed through to tackle Steve Bracken in the end zone.

The Keydets, whose leading runner — Tom Sowers — had to leave with an injury in the first quarter, never made a serious bid for a TD. They got only as far as The Citadel 29 in the first half, and their drive after intermission stalled the Bulldog 28.

Passander's first TD pass to Davitt was a 13-yarder that followed Duncan's trio of big gains. Duncan scored The Citadel's second TD on the first play from scrimmage after the Bulldogs put a bad punt in play at the VMI 25.

Davidson took the opening kickoff and drove to the William and Mary 15, when the drive stalled and the Wildcats settled for a 32-yard field goal by Ed Terry.

Late in the first quarter, W&M started a drive from its own 32-yard line and moved 68 yards in 14 plays, entirely on the self in four straight carries.

The touchdown put William and Mary ahead 7-3 with less than three minutes gone in the second period.

Davidson came right back, ground. Meeteer carried seven times during the drive for 36 yards, making the final 12 him-driving 66 yards in 12 plays, almost entirely on Slade's passing. He completed seven of nine passes for 61 yards. The final one, 10 yarder to end George Hannen, put Davidson back into the lead.

The Indians were driving again when time ran out in the first half with W&M on the Davidson 26.

Slade's passing again was instrumental in Davidson's third-quarter TD, a 77-yard drive. He completed three of five for 67 yards, with a 25-yard toss to Hannen setting up the touchdown at the three-yard line. Two plays later, halfback Glenn Praay took a pitchout and ran around left end for the score.

In the drive that consumed about half of the last quarter, W&M went 85 yards in 17 plays. Meeteer, on a fourth-down play, passed to wingback John Hibbs for the score. Meeteer then ran over the two-point conversion.

Junior quarterback Wes Meeteer set a W&M record, carrying the ball 37 times for 161 yards. Senior quarterback Gordon Slade led the Davidson attack, completing 14 of 25 passes for 162 yards.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Unbeaten Davidson survived a fourth-quarter scare by William and Mary Saturday and edged the Indians 17-15 to retain its lead in the Southern Conference football race.

Trailing 17-7 going into the final period, the Indians drove 85 yards for one score and threatened again before losing the ball on a fumble on the Davidson 20 with 33 seconds remaining.

Ohio State Wins 18th Over Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The No. 1 ranked Ohio State Buckeyes, feasting on every opportunity for their 18th straight victory, beat back their stiffest challenge Saturday and trimmed the Minnesota Gophers 34-7 in Big Ten football.

The Buckeyes, recovering five fumbles and intercepting a pass, stopped the inspired Gophers five times inside the State 20-yard line to stretch their 1969 record to 4-0. Minnesota is 0-4-1.

Fullback Jim Otis gave the Bucks the only points they needed in the first period on runs of eight and two yards, each capping short drives set up by wobbly Minnesota punts deep in Gopher territory.

The Gophers, behind Jim Carter's running and Phil Hagen's passing, drove to the Ohio State one in the second period. But Hagen threw wildly on a pitchout and Dave Whitfield recovered on the Ohio 13.

Rutgers Wins Over Navy

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—Larry Robertson, a sophomore starting his first game, scored three touchdowns, and a stingy Rutgers defense stifled Navy's attack as the Scarlet Knights downed the Midshipmen 20-6 Saturday.

Rutgers completely dominated the game from the first play of the second period, when Rich Polcastro threw 15 yards to Robertson for the first score.

It was Navy fifth defeat without a victory this season. Rutgers has now four of its games. The main Scarlet weapon was the defense, anchored by linebackers Drew Forgash and Lee Schneider, which allowed Navy no farther than midfield in the first three quarters and held middle quarterback Mike McNallen without a completion in his first 18 pass attempts.

Robertson, meanwhile, was Pitt Downed By Green Wave

PITTSBURGH (AP)—End Maxie LeBlanc scored on a 32-yard touchdown pass with 43 seconds remaining in the game to give Tulane a come from behind 26-22 victory over the Pitt Panthers Saturday.

The Panthers led 22-8 at halftime but Tulane came back with three touchdowns in the second half, two in the last five minutes of the game.

Tulane started the winning touchdown drive from their own 30-yard line with less than a minute to play.

Quarterback Rusty Lachaussee set up the winning touchdown with a 33-yard pass to halfback Steve Barrios. On the next play he fired a pass to Leblanc over centered for the final score.

Cornell Wins First Over Harvard

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Ed Marinaro, the nation's fourth leading rusher, smashed the Harvard line for 281 yards and scored five touchdowns Saturday as Cornell upset the Crimson, 41-24, for its first victory of the season.

Marinaro, who carried the ball 40 times, raised his season ground-gaining total to 834 yards as he tallied two six-pointers on runs of 41 and 12 yards, one from two yards out and a pair on one-yard bursts.

The Big Red struck quickly after intercepting a Harvard pass and putting the ball in play on its own 39. It took five plays to move to Harvard's 41, from where Marinaro swept to his left, picked up four blockers at the 15 and sailed into the end zone.

Robinson Aims To Be Manager

BALTIMORE (AP)—Frank Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, who wants to be a major league manager, was given a glowing recommendation for the job today by Baltimore Coach Charlie Lau.

"Frank is probably the best qualified person I've ever seen to be a major league manager," Lau said, "and that includes members of the traveling group who get fired every year and then get hired elsewhere."

Lau, who reportedly will leave the Orioles to become a coach with the Oakland Athletics next season, said Robinson was "the most astute student of baseball" he had ever met.

Robinson, a Negro, was named manager of the year in the Puerto Rican Winter League last year after guiding Santurce to a pennant, and he will be the skipper again when the new season opens next week.

"I think color is the main reason I've never had an offer,"

Robinson said, "although, of course, that's never mentioned. I used to hear comments that I wasn't qualified. Now, after I've had some experience, reports get back to me that some owners give the excuse that I could play five or six more years yet."

"But there's no doubt in my mind," Robinson said, "that I'd stop playing right now if I could become a manager. If they wanted me to do both, I'd do that, too."

Robinson, 34, batted .308 with Baltimore's American League champions, hit 32 homers and drove in 100 runs.

Robinson, in the $100,000 salary bracket, says he'd be willing to take a pay cut to become a manager. At the same time, he insists that may not be necessary.

Robinson contended that managing in the Puerto Rican Winter League was more worthwhile than managing in the minor leagues.

Williamston Upsets Gates

GATESVILLE — Williams-ton's Green Wave battled though previously unbeaten Gates County Friday night and took a 31-28 victory.

Extra points, along with a safety took a key role in the game, as each team matched the other in touchdown production.

Williamston scored first to take the initial lead in the first period. Driving their opening possession, the Wave went over on a one-yard run by Ken Haislip. Don O'Neal then pulled in a pass from Ray Andrews to make it 8-0.

Gates came back early in the second period to tie it up. Lee Askew took a 20-yard pass from Pitt Godwin for the score. Mike Moore then took a Godwin toss for the extra points to make it 8-8.

Williamston then barged back into the lead with its second touchdown. Haislip again did the honors, this time from two yards out. Andrews ran over the extra points, and it was 16-8.

In the third period, Gates County scored again, pulling back into the action. On the first play of the half, Joe Eure pulled in a pass from Godwin and went all the way. The play covered 70 yards. But the extra point attempt failed, and Williamston led, 16-14.

Williamston came right back and pulled away again. Sammy Roberson scored from the two, and Doug Warren kicked the extra point, giving the Wave a 23-14 edge.

Gates refused to give in, however, and came back for another score. This time, Godwin sneaked over from the one, and that cut the lead to 23-20.

Williamston chalked up a safety early in the fourth period. Gates was forced to punt late in the game, and Greg Goddard broke through to block the kick. The ball rolled out the back of the end zone for the safety, and upped the Williamston lead to 25-20.

Gates then came up with the go-ahead touchdown, taking the lead for the first time. Brad Lilly did the honors on a two-yard plunge. Moore pulled in a Godwin pass for the extra points, giving Gates a 28-25 lead.

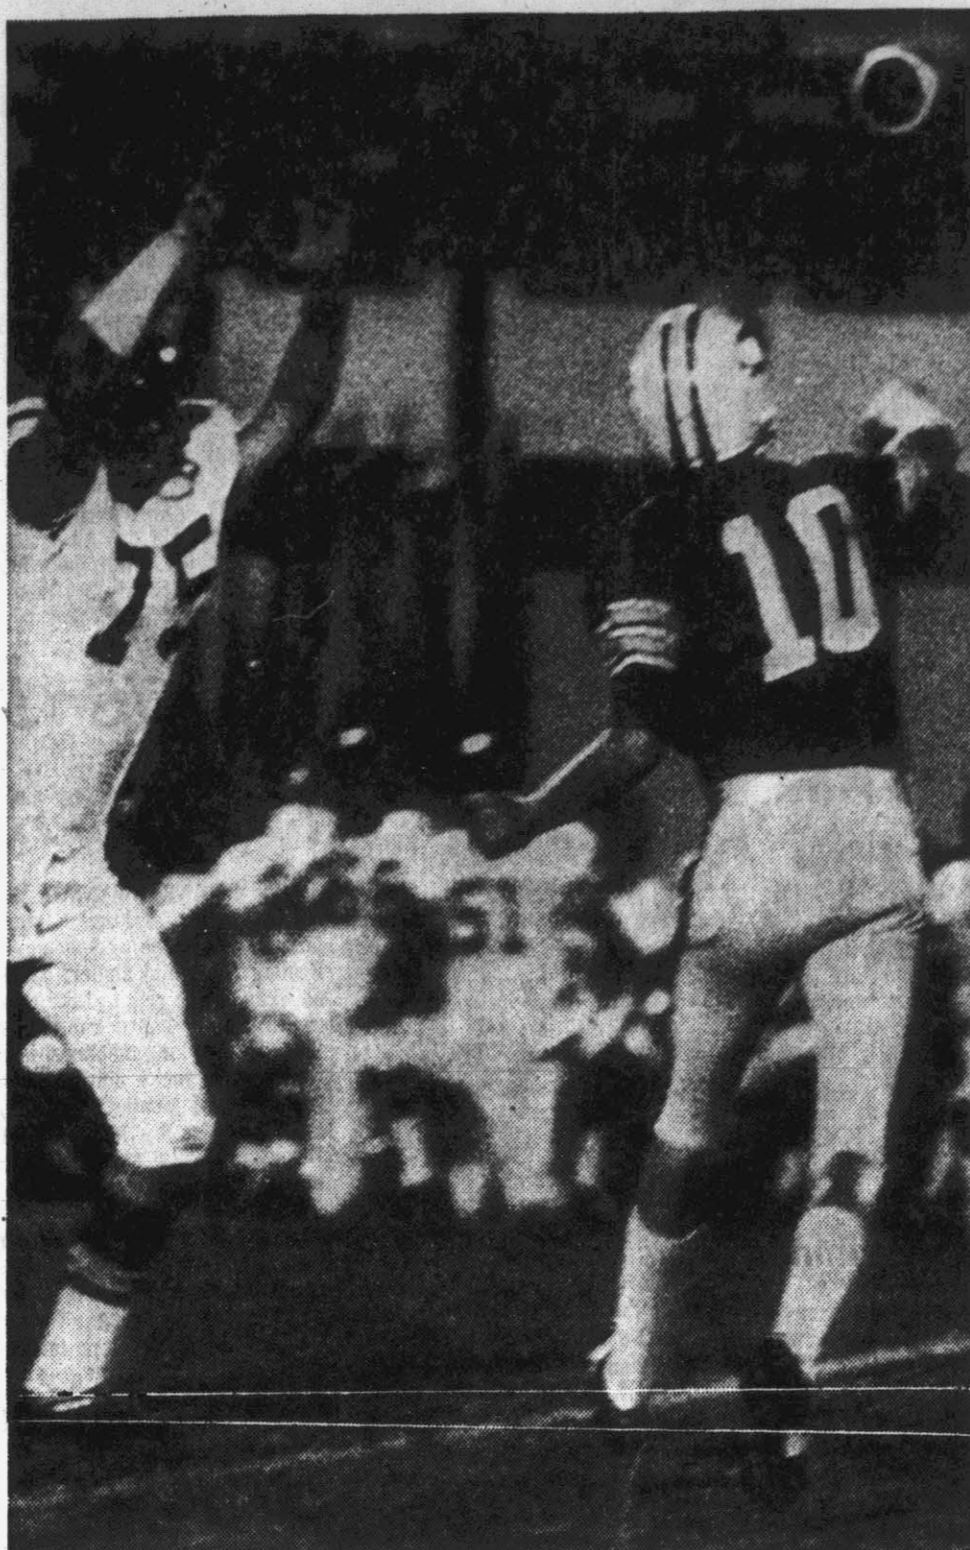

But again, it didn't last. Williamston regained the lead and held off after O'Neal sprinted 66 yards for the clincher, making it 31-28, the final score.

Gates now holds a 6-1 record, while Williamston is 4-3 overall, and 3-1 in Albemarle Conference play.

Williamston plays host to Northampton next Friday.

Beach, Pilgreen Get Two Each To Lead Way

By CARL TYER

ROBERSONVILLE — First place in the Tobacco Belt conference is once again in the possession of the Robersonville Rams after Friday night's rampage by the Rams over Grifton, 28-0. It was undoubtedly the Rams, finest hour this year, as they put together an impressive ground game that ground out 268 yards, and 15 first downs.

Offense was not all that was going well for the Rams as the defense held Grifton to 61 yards rushing, with a minus 18 in the second half.

The Rams came onto the field fired up, and never came down until the final whistle sounded, with Johnny Beach and Joe Pilgreen leading the way. Beach ended the game with 191 yards on the ground, while Pilgreen had 89. They combined to score two TDs apiece for the Rams, Beach's on a seven yard plunge, and a 94 yard scamper on the first play of the second half. Pilgreen put his together with a three yard dive, and a 33 yard pass interception. Pilgreen also added the only two point after that were made on runs.

Grifton had their troubles all night, as they lost three fumbles, and had made it to the mid-field stripe for the first time when the first quarter ended, that drive being aided by a 15 yard penalty against the Rams. The drive ended on the Rams 37, for their first deep penetration.

The Bulldogs managed to get one more drive going before the first half ended, going to the Rams eight before being thrown back by a penalty, and eventually losing the ball on downs. Their only other deep penetration was to the Rams 25 in the fourth quarter, but the Bulldog quarterback was thrown for two consecutive losses for a total of 32 yards to halt their drive.

Robersonville took over after Grifton fumbled their second play of the opening half and drove to the Bulldog 15 before being halted. Pilgreen and Beach bulld the Rams to four first downs in nine plays to keep the offense alive.

Grifton took over on downs, lost ten yards, and gamed those back in two plays, then lost eight more when Whaley was thrown for another eight yard loss by the fired-up Rams.

Robersonville took over after a quick punt by Grifton and drove in for their first touchdown. Hal Knox completed a pass to Glenn Forbes for 21 yards to spark the scoring drive, with Pilgreen and Beach making up the remaining yards on runs.

Beach did the honors with a scamper of seven yards around his right end. The point after kick failed and it was 6-0 Rams.

Once again the Bulldogs had their troubles as they ran two plays and fumbled again with Tyward Perkins picking the ball up for Robersonville, which led to their second score.

A piling on penalty against Grifton aided the Rams drive, as it moved the ball from the Bulldog 25 to the 10. Pilgreen added four yards and Beach three to put it on the three when Pilgreen finally went over from the three for the Rams second score. The point after run failed and the second quarter ended with it 12-0, and the Rams coach Nolan Respass pacing the sidelines, not believing the way his boys were performing.

The second quarter ended with the score the same, but with the Bulldogs threatening to score, as they drove to the Rams eight before being stopped.

Robersonville took the second half opening kick - off and immediately drew a clipping penalty to move the ball back to the Grifton six.

Beach took the snap on the next play and picked his way into daylight to go 94 yards for the third Rams score. Pilgreen added the extra point and it was 20-0 early in the second half.

Penalties hurt the Rams tremendously in the second half, and thwarted at least one scoring drive, as they lost 35 yards in penalties early in the second frame.

The final Rams score came in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter, when Pilgreen picked off a David Whaley pass that began on the Bulldog 21. Pilgreen also added the point after on a run.

The Rams face Saratoga next week in a road game, while Grifton travels to Belhaven on Saturday night in another Conference game.

Farmville Crushes North Lenoir, 35-13

WHEAT SWAMP— Farmville spoiled North Lenoir High School's Homecoming Friday night with a 35-13 romp over their hosts.

After spotting North Lenoir a 7-0 lead, the Red Devils came back to score an easy victory.

North Lenoir took the lead on a 12-yard pass from David Phillips to Gary Davis. Phillips kicked the extra point, and it was 7-0.

Farmville came back to cut into the lead in the second quarter, as Fred Sauls tossed a 16-yard touchdown pass to Cloyce Wilson. Then, nearly halftime, Dickie Newton hauled in a 19-yard Sauls pass, and Farmville pushed into the lead, at 12-7.

Sauls did the honors himself on the next score, in the third period, going over from the one. Then, Newton scored again, crossing over on a 40-yard scamper. Wilson added the PAT kick for a 26-7 lead.

Finally, before the period was over, Farmville picked up two more points on a safety. North Lenoir's Bobby White was hit in the end zone by Harry Smith for the points.

Farmville finished things off in the final period, as Newton scored his third touchdown of the evening, on a 10-yard run. Wilson again kicked, and it was 35-7.

Late in the game, Cliff Cashwell pulled in an eight-yard pass from Phillips for the final North Lenoir touchdown.

Hodges Choice As Top Manager

By ED SCHUYLER JR. Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Gil Hodges the command pilot of the New York Mets' incredible flight from baseball futility to victory in the World Series, is the Associated Press' Manager of the Year in the National League.

Hodges, who worked wonders with the Washington Senators before working a miracle with the Mets, was the runaway winner of a nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters released Friday.

The 45-year-old former star first baseman of the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers who fought back from a heart attack that almost put him out of the sport, received 267 votes to 10 for Luman Harris of the Atlanta Braves. Following Harris were Clyde King of San Francisco and Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs, three each, and Harry Walker of Houston, one.

The balloting took place before the Mets climaxed their storied rise from ninth place in 1968 to their five-game World Series conquest of the Baltimore Orioles.

Hodges was not available to comment on the award.

But on many occasions, the manager, who instilled confidence and the will to win in his players, made it clear that the entire club was responsible for the glorious season.

After the final Series game, he said, "I'm so proud of them all. The Dodgers went into every World Series as a class team. This one never was thought of like that."

Hodges, a Brooklyn resident who rose to stardom with the Brooklyn Dodgers and played in a total seven World Series with them and Los Angeles, compiled a .273 average with 370 homers in 17 National League seasons before retiring as a Met player in 1963.

He joined Washington that same season and took them from 10th place that year to sixth in 1967.

The Mets then called in 1968, and Hodges responded by guiding the club to 73 victories, at the time their best record. Before 1968, the Mets had finished last five times and ninth once.

Before this season, Hodges set aim for 85 victories, a goal far short of the 100 regular-season triumphs, three-game sweep of the National League playoff and five-game World Series victory accomplished by the most surprising team in baseball history.

Hodges almost missed this season. He was stricken by a heart attack Sept. 24, 1968, during a series in Atlanta and was hospitalized there until Oct. 20. He spent the entire winter recovering before he was given a clean bill of health to manage again.

Away In Time

Rose High School quarterback Joe West tosses a sideline pass just before being hit by Kinston defensive tackle, Floyd Jones, in Friday night's Homecoming game. West hit on 16 of 28 for 188 yards and two touchdowns, but was overshadowed by the Kinston passing attack, which beat Rose, 44-22. (Reflector Photo)

Weldon Slips Past Ayden In 22-20 Win

WELDON — Top-ranked Weldon barely made it past old nemesis Ayden Friday night.

The not-nearly so-powerful Tornados churned like in days of old, but couldn't quite cope with the two-point play and fell 22-20.

It was an extra point that did the Tornados in. Both teams scored three touchdowns but Weldon clicked on two attempts, while the Tornados could make good on only one.

Weldon pushed over its first score in the first period. Bobby Johnson did the honors, pulling in a 19-yard pass from Mike Edwards. The try for the points - after failed, and Weldon led, 6-0.

In the second period, Weldon struck again, this time with Johnson and Edwards teaming up for 13 yards. On the conversion, Edwards hit Craig Williams, and sent Weldon into a 14-0 lead.

Following halftime, the Tornados put on a rally. Ken Cleaton and Alan Wilson began their own aerial show for Ayden, and it almost did the trick. Cleaton hauled in a 31-yard pass from Wilson, but the conversion attempt failed and Ayden trailed, 14-6.

Then, early in the fourth quarter,

Ayden scored again. This time Cleaton pulled in another Wilson pass for an 83-yard touchdown ramble. Again, however, the two-point try was stopped, and Ayden trailed, 14-12. It proved decisive.

Weldon came back with another score. Alan Mitchell pulled in a 19-yard pass from Edwards for the score. Then, Johnson caught an Edwards toss for the second Weldon two-point conversion, making it 22-12.

Ayden fought back and Cleaton scored on a 12-yard Wilson pass. Steve Reynolds caught another Wilson toss for the two-point play, but it still left Ayden two points down, and they couldn't struggle back again.

Ayden actually outperformed Weldon, rolling up 223 yards in total offense, as compared to 144 for Weldon.

The Tornados travel to Louisville next week.

South Lenoir Bops Greene Central

SNOW HILL—South Lenoir handed Greene Central their worst licking of the season Friday night, 46-0, in a non-conference game. The loss was the Rams third of the season.

Greene Central had two scoring threats, with both halted by interceptions. In the second quarter, they drove to the Lenoir 28, and in the fourth to the 23.

After going scoreless in the first quarter, South Lenoir broke it open with 28 points in the second. B. Barnett went over for three touchdowns for Lenoir in the second quarter on a five yard plunge, and 30 and 60 yard scampers. Shelton Rhodes went over for the first Lenoir score as he plunged over from the one. Frankie Voss kicked two of the point after, and completed a pass to Billy Smith for another.

In the third quarter, Smith took a two yard pass from Voss for a score and in the fourth, Johnny Humphrey went in from the five, and Keith Taylor from the two. Both point after kicks failed.

Greene Central was playing without the use of their starting quarterback, who was injured in practice Tuesday. As if that was not enough, they lost a full-back and halfback to injuries as the game progressed.

Greene Central travels to Farmville next week for an Eastern Plains game.

	South Lenoir	Greene Central
First Downs	17	4

South Ayden Edges By Sugg

AYDEN—South Ayden handed H.B. Sugg a 24-20 defeat Friday night in a district game. Sugg tried to come back in the fourth quarter scoring 14 points, but South Ayden had pushed over 12 in the third, and added six more in the fourth.

Sugg took the first lead with a 64 yard run by Carnell Barnes. The point after run failed. South Ayden came back to tie it up when Glenn Williams went in from the six. Williams had a total of 134 yards rushing in the game on 15 carries.

Williams put South Ayden in the lead in the third quarter, going over for two more touchdowns on 15 and 40 yard runs.

In the fourth quarter, the Eagles went in for their final touchdown to make it 24-6 as Calvin King took a 40 yard pass from Leon Mayo. Sugg then tried to comeback as they added 14 more. Barnes went in from the three, and completed a 40 yard pass to Earl Moore for the final Sugg score.

	H.B. Sugg	S. Ayden
First Downs	8	7
Rushing yardage	213	193
Passing yardage	80	88
Passes	3-2-1	9-5-1
Punts	2-35	3-25
Fumbles lost	1	1
Yards penalized	80	40
S. Ayden	0	6
H.B. Sugg	0	4

Scoring: S-Barnes 64 run (run failed); S.A.-Williams 6 run (run failed); Williams 15 run (run failed); S.A. - Williams 40 run (run failed); S.A. - King 40 pass from Mayo (run failed); S-Barnes 3 run (Edwards run); S-Moore 40 pass from Barnes (run failed).

Dual Role Set For New Yacht

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI)—From the ditty bag:

The 12-meter yacht Heritage, now being built at St. Petersburg, Fla., has been designed to play a dual role. She will be a contender for the role of America's Cup defender in 1970. Then, after success or failure, she will be converted to an ocean racing yawl, according to designer-builder Charley Morgan Jr. Installation of an engine, re-engineering and conversion of her rig from sloop to yawl, and addition of accommodations for offshore racing will set Heritage up for her ocean racing role.

inboard boats, 8 per cent; outboard motors, 15 per cent, and boat trailers, 10 per cent.

As boat builders master the use of fiberglass, startling effects are achieved. For example, Chris-Craft Corp. molds fiberglass to resemble teak deck planking, completed with simulated black seam compound, on several of its sailboat models. Appearance is so close to that of real teak that many people touch it before they believe it.

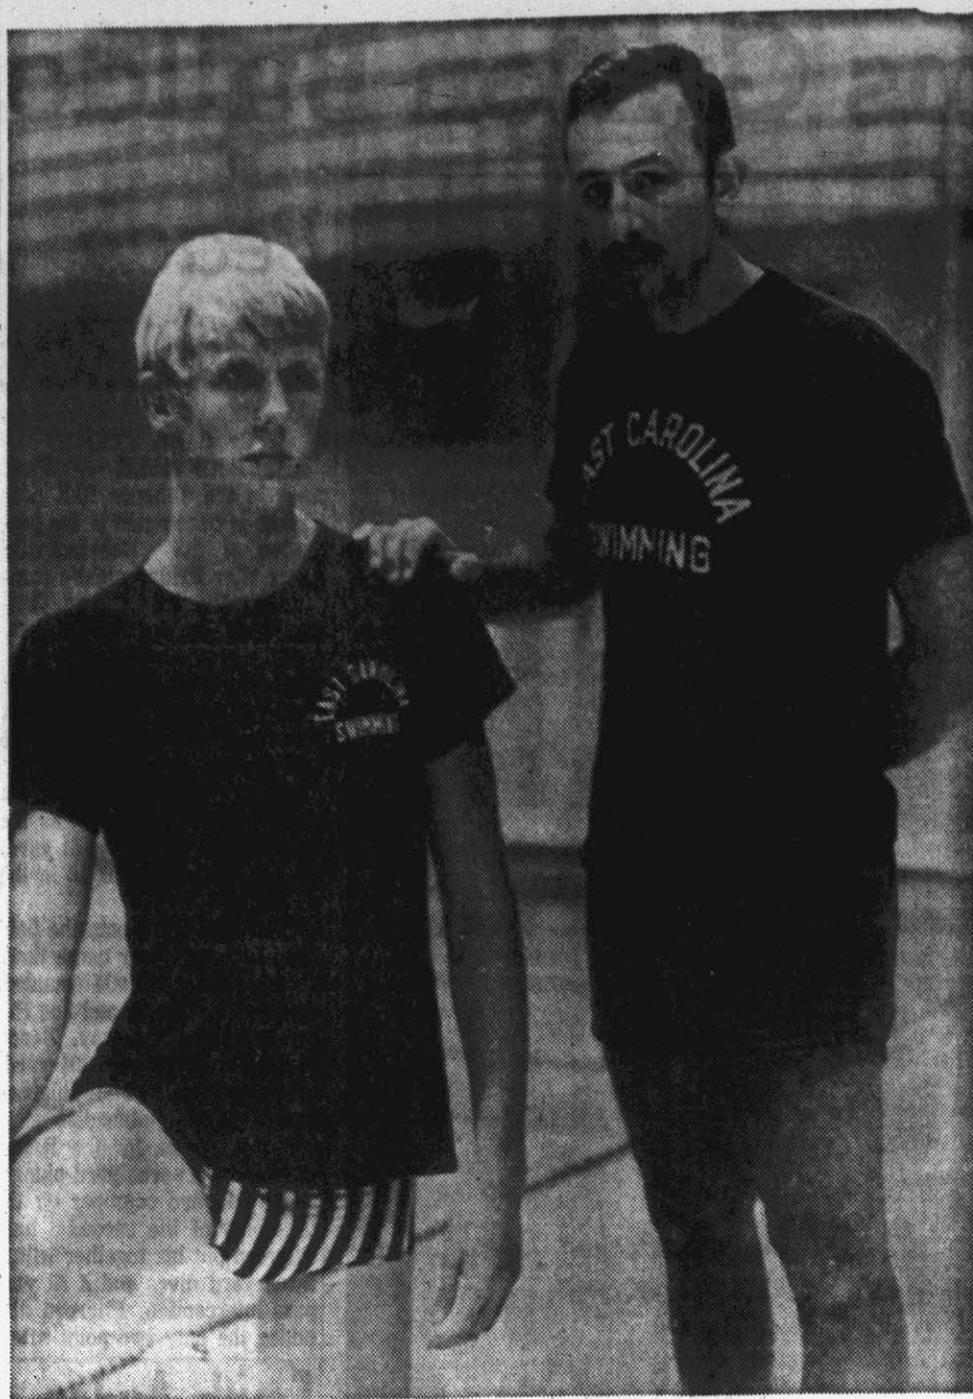

Don't save that outboard motor fuel left over from this year's boating season. By next spring it will become hard, and sometimes impossible to ignite. Gas evaporates faster than oil, and this oil-rich mixture will cause excessive smoking and foul plugs faster, even if it does start next spring.

Bill Berity, who recently completed a 115-day crossing of the Atlantic in a 20-foot sailing craft, says the most perilous moment of the voyage was when he encountered a lightning storm. The log of the 43-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., sailor reads: "It is a very bad night. Never have I seen such lightning. Lightning bolt after lightning bolt striking the water. All hell has broken loose."

SAFETY TIP: One hand for yourself and one for the ship. When moving around in a boat it is good practice always to hold on to some part of the boat structure.

The Mississippi River Marathon Association will sponsor an outboard motor race more than 1,000 miles up the Mississippi River next summer to commemorate the centennial of the famous race between the steamboats Robert E. Lee and Natchez. The race, July 3-4, will cover much the same route as that taken by the paddle-wheelers, starting at New Orleans and concluding upstream at St. Louis.

Fred B. Lifton of the Boating Industry Association reports that the recreational boating industry has just concluded the biggest model year in its history with the volume of new products shipped up 14 per cent over 1968. He cited these dollar volume increases: houseboats, 51 per cent; pontoon boats, 25 per cent; outboard boats, 14 per cent; stern drive boats, 14 per cent; sailboats, 11 per cent; point man for the Pirates last year and was the Most Valuable Swimmer in the Southern Conference. The Pirates, under Coach Ray Sharf, right, have opened their practice sessions for this year's season. The Bucs will be shooting for their fifth straight Southern Conference title.

Rod And Gun: Farmers Don't Like Hunt Litter

They say "you can't take it with you," but actually, you CAN take it with you—litter, that is. One of the most often heard complaints from farmers is the litter hunters leave around the fields and often in the woods.

National surveys rate hunters and fishermen low on the list of people who throw trash around the countryside. Trash thrown along the roadsides has to be picked up by paid highway maintenance personnel, and the total bill for this nationally is staggering. But cans, bottles, cartons, and wrappers strewn around a farm have to be picked up by the farmer. He doesn't get paid for doing this, and he ing access areas seem to be favorite littering spots, but it is doubtful that fishermen do a large part of this. The areas are usually in fairly remote spots removed from main highways, and a lot of people use them for parking and sparring. Some actually bring household garbage to these places and simply dump it off—for someone else, usually Wildlife Commission personnel, to pick up.

Worst complaint about these access areas is brought about by vandals who like to use signs and posters on the area for shotgun and pistol targets. It is a safe bet that the Wildlife Commission will give serious thought to passing a regulation making it unlawful to possess a loaded gun on one of these areas. If such a regulation is passed, it will be rigidly enforced. The Wildlife Commission is making an effort to get grass started on the parking areas of the recently-completed access area at Poplar Branch. Right after a recent rain when the grass was just beginning to become established, some "comedian" in a pickup truck drove around in part of the parking area, completely ruining the new sod. Some of the boaters who use that area would like very much to have caught this meathead in the act.

No report from the Southport—Shalotte area thus far, but marsh hen hunters should have had a field day during the tides brought up by Hurricane Kara. Tides were from four to six feet above normal, and this amount of water should have inundated enough marsh area to make flushing the birds a relatively simple matter. The rail and gallinule season runs until sunset November 8.

Dove hunting, by the way, ended October 11, but will begin again on December 18 and run through January 15. Birds will be much harder to find during the second segment of the split season, and limit bags of 18 birds will be exceptional.

Worried about water pollution? The Federal Water Pollution Control Administration reports that in 1968 15,236,000 fish were killed outright by pollution, a 31 per cent increase over 1967 when 11,591,000 fish were killed. It is impossible to estimate how many fish are simply nonexistent because of pollution.

Biggest kill occurred on the Allegheny River near Bruin, Pennsylvania, when a petroleum refinery's lagoon overflowed into another pond, the walls broke, and chemicals were released into the river, creating a layer of suds six feet deep and killing 4,029,000 fish.

According to the Agency report, North Carolina had only 200 fish killed last year by pollution. This happened near Ramseur. We have, of course, had bigger kills in years past.

He's All A Hunt Guide Should Be

By JOEL ARRINGTON
G. F. Burchfield is everything a boar hunting guide should be. He knows the Smoky Mountains, is patient with greenhorns and rolls his own cigarettes.

Burchfield works for the Blue Boar Lodge in Robbinsville, North Carolina, one of three facilities in the state which offer organized hunts for wild Russian boar. The others are Thunderbird Mountain Resort which will cater to hunters for the first time this year, and Phillips Motel in Robbinsville.

Just before the season's end last year, Burchfield took the lodge guests to Patrick Meadows in Swain County for the start of a hunt. It was a cold day, with rain at the bottom of the mountain and mixed sleet and snow at the top.

The hounds he released were a mix-blooded lot, hardy, and well-scarred from battle with boar and hog. The hunters were stationed at intervals along a ridge near Hoffman Creek. Two others accompanied Burchfield and the pack.

A poor mast year in 1968 forced the boar to range widely for food. Although the dogs found sign which the guide estimated to be three days old, they did not strike a boar. The following day they hunted near Tapoco in Swain County and chased a hog into Tennessee, which adjoins the county, but could not follow, lacking proper licenses. The dogs returned, one by one, and Burchfield loaded them into his truck.

two three-day hunts a week during the season. For one price you get a room and meals and guide service. Energetic hunters may accompany the guide, who must be close behind the pack to kill the hog when it bays. Otherwise, the hog may kill the dogs. Most hunters take stands, however, and hope a boar passes within range. Following the melodious chase by ear, hunters sometimes may move in position to intersect the boar.

North Carolina's Russian boar are not merely feral hogs, although they all, most probably, have some domestic blood. The boar are fast, powerful animals capable of running through dense rhododendron thickets and up steep ridges while covering miles of mountain countryside. Most of them are armed with tusks capable of ripping open a dog—or a man. Males may weigh over 300 pounds.

Tar Heel tuskers originated from a game preserve built by George Gordon Moore on Hooper Bald in 1912. Moore, a wealthy Chicago businessman, imported 14 boar from the Ural Mountains of Russia, as well as buffalo, elk, mule deer and bear from Canada and other parts of Russia.

The animals soon escaped their pens and fled into the mountain wilderness. In ensuing years, most of the game died off or was killed, but the boar were capable of eluding hunters and establishing themselves on the wooded slopes surrounding 5,429-foot Hooper Bald in the Unicoi Mountains.

Audubon Society Sets State Membership Drive

RALEIGH, N. C.—A State-wide membership campaign of the National Audubon Society has been launched which is expected to add over three thousand new members to the rolls of the Conservation organization. Governor Scott, in a directive proclaiming November North Carolina Audubon Month, appealed to people from all segments of business and professional life to participate in the drive.

As an added incentive for joining the Society during the campaign, every new member may choose one of a pair of signed lithographs by two of America's leading wildlife artists: "Cardinals," our State bird, painted by the famous ornithologist-artist Guy Coheleach; and "Flowering Dogwood," our State flower, by Ann Ophelia Dowden, outstanding botanical artist. The prints are furnished by the Frame House Gallery of Wildlife Art, Louisville, Kentucky, under whose auspices the artists' works are reproduced.

Membership in the Society is $12.50. Application forms and samples of the bonus prints are available at all offices of the North Carolina National Bank. Mail applications may be made to P.O. Box 65054, Charlotte, N.C. 28201. With his remittance the new member should state his choice of free print. Checks payable to National Audubon Society.

The activities of the Audubon Society go far beyond "bird watching." It is a powerful voice of conservation in America. Its purposes and programs are not merely protection for the birds, but for all of our natural resources and, ultimately, for people themselves. The bi-monthly Audubon magazine—one of the country's leading conservation magazines—and participation in the programs of the Society are included in membership.

To stimulate local interest in the Membership Campaign, a free exhibit of 35 original paintings by America's leading wildlife artists will tour the principal cities of the State during the month. In the exhibit are paintings by Ray Harm, Guy Coheleach, Don Richard Eckel-berry, Charles Harper, and Anne Ophelia Dowden. The schedule includes: Asheville (Bell's Gate House) November 1-2-3-4; Charlotte (Nature Museum) November 6-7-8; Winston-Salem (Convention Center) November 11-12-13; Chapel Hill (Intimate Book Shop) November 15-16-17; Raleigh (The Little Gallery) November 19-20-21; Greensboro (Colonial Furniture House) November 23-24-25. Audubon memberships will be accepted at all of the exhibits.

Lt. Commander James Murphy Gloucester, N.C. snagged a big rarely caught species in our waters now, red fin croaker.

er. The giant croaker was hooked in the Straits off Gloucester, and tipped the scales at 34½ pounds. A new discovery was made over the weekend! A new fishing rock, (now known as "Blane's Rock" in honor of Capt. Blane, who marked the spot a few days ago and went back this weekend to try his luck) was found to be full of Point, N.C. hooked into a 27 pound king from Sportsman Pier. Already at this writing, a couple of kings had been landed on Tuesday morning. Other catches from the piers include pompano, fairsize spots, some flounders and a few black drum, along with some blues. The baits used on the big kings was either live blue fish, or live shad. The fast shad really give the kings a run for their money!

Monday fishing was better for kings with large fish being landed. Kings were captured that weighed 20 to 25 pounds, which are larger than the average for the past several weeks. Capt. Herman Gibson's Dolphin 2, boated 21 kings Monday, with Mr. George Nifong, Winsto Salem, N.C.

Greenville's Miss Martha Henderson

A Christian Mission Nurse In Vietnam

THE HOSPITAL AND CLINIC . . . This is a more permanent building than many of the smaller hospitals in Viet Nam. Tall palm trees surround the building.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I wouldn't give anything for this experience and look forward to the remainder of my two years here. I feel very grateful that God has blessed me with this opportunity. I hope I can meet the responsibilities." These words were expressed by Martha Henderson in a written interview.

Since July, Martha, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Henderson of Greenville, has been living in Vietnam, where she will spend two years in a dual role of nursing and teaching Vietnamese girls to become nurses.

Following completion of a two month orientation course in Saigon, Martha has been assigned to a hospital in the coastal town of Nha Trang. This hospital is supported by the Tin Lanh, or Protestant Church.

"I had hoped eventually that I could teach, but I never dreamed I would begin immediately."

Here, Martha is settling down to a routine which will form a major pattern in her life for the next couple of years.

"We have a clinic where we see one to two hundred outpatients a day. There are about 45 children in our hospital and 60 beds in the two T.B. wards. There is also a small one-year nursing school.

"Co (Miss) Cuc is the director of the school and hospital and the person I work with closely. She and I share teaching and supervising responsibilities. Co Cuc is a delightful, competent nurse and working with her is a particular joy.

"Conditions are naturally far different from those in an American hospital. For example, the participation of family members in a patient's care, cooking and washing, and helping take care of the patient, is part of their culture of close-knit families. This practice is helpful to the nursing staff. For our hospital to have set visiting hours, as in America, would not only be impossible to enforce, but undesirable.

"I am learning to adjust to a very different hospital setting and to cultural attitudes about illness and hospitalization and Vietnamese concepts of nursing care. I strive to be sensitive to the culture in which I'm a guest - knowing when I must compromise and when it's appropriate that I suggest new ways be tried.

"Our work here deals with more common medical problems and fewer war-related traumatic cases. Eye problems, skin diseases, communicable diseases such as T. B. and respiratory problems are our most common maladies."

At times, drama enters her work at Nha Trang. "I saw a little boy who lost a leg as he walked to the river for a swim. It's very difficult to see this happen to an innocent young lad. I only wish there was some solution to this tragic war, without so many people being hurt and killed."

In teaching, as in nursing, Martha finds deep satisfaction and a realization that here is perhaps where she can contribute most in the long run. "It's good to have the opportunity to teach others in a field I enjoy so much. As a beginning teacher, I must use care in how hard to push the students. They must be challenged and learn to make good judgments, but not be overwhelmed. I must continue to remind myself that their educational background is limited. They amaze me, though, with how well they perform and the initiative they take."

When the students complete the nursing course they get a certificate from the government as a nursing assistant. "Several of last year's graduates now help staff our hospital. This year's class, which is the second one at this school, has completed about half their course."

Despite her personal satisfaction in her work, Martha expresses a sense of sadness about conditions which are prevalent in this war-torn nation. "I have seen a discouraging insufficiency in the number of Vietnamese trained and available to help with social and health problems. Of course most of the young men are in the Army, with a small percentage in universities. Other hindrances to recruitment of young people is that educational facilities are far too few and salaries are so low."

Low Salaries

She noted that the average salary paid a professional nurse is about $55.00 monthly. This, she states, is not competitive with salaries paid to Vietnamese girls hired by the U.S. forces as secretaries. "Naturally, most of the competent girls must work where they will earn more money. The low government wages cannot begin to adequately provide for the people who are in the service professions."

Although Martha's focus of concern centers on her work, she finds time to learn and enjoy the native customs and to do some sightseeing in this semi-tropical country.

"I enjoy the food tremendously. I especially like the noodle and vegetable dishes, the soups, and the various crisp pastry rolls filled with meats and vegetables which are dipped in nuoc mam (a pungent fish sauce). I want to learn how to cook some of these, although it may be difficult to get the materials when I return to America.

"One of the really impressive things I am finding in my stay here is the beauty of the country. It cannot be overestimated. My quarters here in Nha Trang are located about 150 yards from the beach. There is a bay in front, bordered on one side by lovely mountains and on the other by interesting rock formations, which are delightful to climb with friend and children."

Mentioning a trip to Dalat, a noted resort town not far from Nha Trang, she wrote: "Dalat is a lovely mountainous area with many fine crops and beautiful flowers. It has an enchanting, almost European atmosphere."

"The group I'm serving with is Vietnam Christian Service (VNCS)," Martha relates. "It's composed of members of three major organizations - the Mennonite Central Committee; the Lutheran World Relief; and the Church World Service. The Church World Service is the world mission part of the National Council of Churches. As an individual, I was sent here by the United Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief."

Although Martha is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church in Greenville, sponsorship was by the Methodist Church, as the Baptist Church is not a participating body in this particular mission.

Martha's decision to choose this work was not a sudden one. She has spent several years in training which would make it possible to get this assignment. "I did not have any particular place in mind, but when I began investigating definite possibilities last year, VNCS eventually turned out to be exactly the kind of group, and the kind of work, I was looking for.

"It was a Christian organization with primarily a service-oriented mission. It was working in an area of special problems and needs at this time - Vietnam."

"I am grateful that VNCS accepted me for I felt and am now convinced that this is the work I wanted."

She explained that VNCS is composed of people from different countries, various denominations and with different skills. This organization functions autonomously, apart from any connection with military forces, American or Vietnamese.

Even for a person with a dedicated desire to serve in Christian mission work, getting an assignment is not an easy matter. The requirements are stringent. Screening of applicants in preliminary stages eliminates some applicants. Health, technical qualifications and other criteria must of necessity be strict, as the work is demanding and arduous, with long hours and primitive conditions often involved in assignments. Further, for those who qualify, there must be a vacancy to fit the person's qualifications.

"Martha would have been heartbroken if she had not been approved for this assignment," her mother commented. "Her father and I were not surprised when she told us her plans. Since she was a little girl she has dreamed of being a nurse. In later years she has become more and more interested in Christian mission work in connection with nursing. Martha loves travel, and loves people, so her decision was something we expected."

After Martha received notification that her request for service in Viet Nam had been approved, her life became a constant round of preparations.

The first step was an impressive dedication ceremony conducted at her home church, Immanuel Baptist, in Greenville, in early June.

Immediately afterwards, she reported to the Missionary Orientation Center in Stony Point, New York. "This was a three week linguistic introduction course which included area studies of Viet Nam, such as the culture, religious, military and political history of the country in brief form," she relates.

"After a brief visit home and in San Francisco, I was on my way with two other VNCS volunteers. We left on July 1, and were met in Saigon by members of the VNCS administration."

From that date, events have moved a rapid pace. "Our language study and orientation lasted for two months in Saigon. We studied the course designed by the Foreign Service Institute. For seven hours a day, we studied with tapes and a Vietnamese instructor. I was encouraged to be bold and to try to use what I had learned."

The two months in Saigon provided her with a number of vivid impressions of what is perhaps the most hectic city in the world today. "Saigon is a fascinating city with its chaotic traffic, its incessant noise and military traffic; endless pho (noodle) shops; huge market places, where everything may be bought from black market Tide detergent to delicate hand-embroidered handkerchiefs; the never-ending array of barbed wire, bunkers and soldiers; and the pretty, petite Vietnamese girl in their feminine native dresses."

Met Family

One of the first contacts she made in Saigon was with the family of a Vietnamese boy who has lived in Greenville for the past couple of years. "They were overjoyed to talk to someone who had been in contact with their son," she stated, "and they took me under their wing, introducing me to Vietnamese food, and helped me get acquainted with Saigon."

"It was a pleasure to begin to meet the Vietnamese people," she remarked. "It's a great challenge to attempt to speak their language. They all insist I must practice. Sometimes it's quite an adventure, trying to get something across."

Martha commented that she is not easily discouraged if success is not instantaneous. "It's amazing the different ways one can communicate. One's creativity in putting a limited number of words together, plus gestures and facial expressions, are often put to a real test."

In her opinion, the rewards are worth the efforts. "It's encouraging when a face lights up and I know they've understood. The people are so pleased if one tries to speak their language and they do everything possible to help. I feel they understand our desire to identify with them as we struggle to master their language."

Struggle is an apt work to apply to efforts to learn Vietnamese. The language is based on tone sounds, five of them. Thus, each word has five tonal variations, and each one is a completely different word, depending on the tone. This can bring on some amusing incidents," Martha noted.

One incident in communicating occurred on a bus ride. "I sat beside a Vietnamese university student. He spoke a little English. I spoke a little Vietnamese. He knew French fluently. I knew how to read some French. With a combination, at times hilarious, of the three languages, we managed to converse about subjects from philosophy to the war to our families."

In her training and in her work, Martha comes in contact with a cross section of volunteer service personnel from many backgrounds and countries of the world, as well as with the Vietnamese.

"I've enjoyed the warmth and spirit of fellowship which I have found, and which I have increasingly grown to appreciate. I've met people from UNICEF (the United Nations International Children's agency), American Friends Society, from the International Voluntary Agency and from the foreign mission boards. We have had stimulating discussions and the fellowship of all these people has enriched my viewpoint as I strive to grow and learn and be of service here."

Martha admitted that the question of danger inherent in a war zone exists, but that she doesn't have time to dwell on this. "Of course it's a possibility, but I must say that as far as feeling personally in danger or afraid of being a victim of the war, I don't, at all."

Before leaving Greenville for the trip to Vietnam, in discussing the hopes she entertained for this work, she said: "I don't know what to expect, but I know that things will work out well. I believe that what a person needs in fostering respect, love and understanding of each other is simply a respect for others as human beings, and being willing to do what one can to help in a quiet, inconspicuous way. This is my concept of love."

Rose High Graduate

A 1963 graduate of Rose High School, Martha loves music, travel and reading, and water sports. "She has always been a dedicated reader," her mother noted.

At Rose High, in her local church, at college and in her work she has taken part in musical groups, sings in the glee club, church choir, with the San Francisco Civic Chorus, and with the Vietnamese Chorus Society in Saigon.

She was also a cheerleader, a member of the band and glee club at Rose High. "Martha especially loves playing the flute, and when time permits plays the piano and organ," Mrs. Henderson commented.

Martha visited relatives in France, worked at a gift shop in Nantucket, Massachusetts, and worked for a summer in Bar Harbor, Maine in order to get some traveling accomplished.

Following graduation from Rose, Martha entered Meredith College to study music. Later, realizing that nursing was her abiding interest, she transferred to Duke University where she received the nursing degree in 1968. In high school and college she was a National Honor Society student, and attended college on scholarships. At Duke she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority and other organizations.

The assignment in Vietnam is not her first experience in volunteer work. While at Duke she volunteered to live and work in Edgemont Community, a poorer district in Durham. In San Francisco, where she worked at the San Francisco General Hospital to get experience as a staff nurse, she was a member of the Medical Clinic in the Haight-Ashbury area there.

Since the time she was a young teen-ager, Martha has taken active part in church work - in the Baptist Training Union, United Church Council activities, and other church group work.

She has a sister, Camilla (Mrs. Joe Taft, Jr.) who lives in Greenville. A brother, Thomas, Jr. and his wife lives in Endicott, New York.

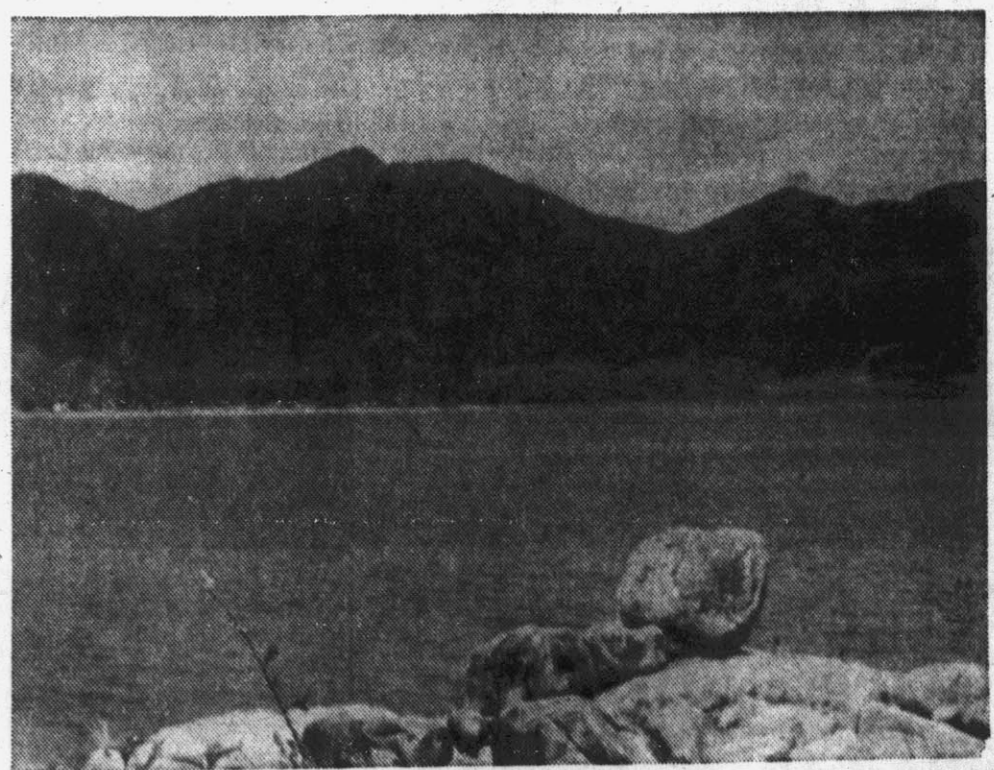

"I must admit my husband and I had some misgivings about Martha's decision to go so far from home with conditions as they are in Vietnam now," Mrs. Henderson remarked. "However, knowing that she is happy in her work makes us happy. We are proud of her."

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) —Gorgeous Mary Tyler Moore, Dick Van Dyke's television wife in his series for five seasons, has been signed by CBS to star in her own situation comedy series for the 1970-71 season. Miss Moore has been busy with motion pictures since the Van Dyke show ended.

Humorist-writer Dick Cavett has completed his summer fill-in assignment for ABC, but the network is expected to have him back on the air at mid-season. If he returns, it probably will be in something resembling the talk-entertainment format in which he shows to such advantage.

Movie star Gregory Peck is going to make his first television appearance as a performer in an entertainment special on Jack Benny's one-hour show Dec. 3. He will engage in a comedy with Benny and do a dance routine with Benny and George Burns. Others on the special will be Nancy Sinatra, Gary Puckett, the Union Gap musical group and Eddie ("Rochester") Anderson.

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS NEW YORK (UPI)—Phyllis Diller is a fraud. Offstage, comedy's most famous raucous, incompetent housewife is a soft-spoken, attractive middle-aged woman who is, she admits, "rather elegant." And, to add to the cracking Diller myth, her husband, singer Ward Donovan, brags she is a "marvelous" housekeeper and a "superb" cook.

"I have convinced the public through the tube that I'm a monster," Miss Diller said in an interview. "They don't believe I'm elegant until they see me in person. Then their first reaction is, 'My God, she's pretty.'"

And as for housekeeping—"I'm persnickety — precise — about the way my house is run," Miss Diller said, adding that because her house is a 22-room mansion she has a staff of eight to help run it.

Donovan, whom Miss Diller insists is not the Fang of her comedy routines—"Fang is fictional"—claimed that his wife is a "superb gourmet cook."

"I'm great with eggs," Donovan said, "So I cook breakfast and serve it to Phyllis in bed. But after that, it's her show."

"She loves to cook so she crowds everybody out of the kitchen. They become choppers and slaves," he added.

"But Ward's a great chopper," Miss Diller interrupted. "We stand there for hours cooking together."

Miss Diller and Donovan were married four years ago, the second marriage for each.

The Donovan household includes seven children, three living at home, as well as one harpsichord, seven pianos, three pump organs, three sets of drums, a xylophone, three saxophones and a melodion. "We're rather musical," Miss Diller, who once studied to be a serious singer, noted wryly.

Miss Diller had swept into the interview in a white Maribou bathrobe and bare feet. "Excuse me while I get up together—my Americana Hotel late show doesn't let me get to bed til 3 a.m. I'm still asleep," she apologized, disappearing to change outfits.

Returning in a pink quilted robe with matching shoes, she flashed an enormous cocktail ring and noted with a straight face that the main purpose of the compartmentalized jewel was as "a receptacle for storing my front tooth caps in during meals. If I put 'em on the table the waiters sweep them away," she explained, demonstrating the storge pro-

Ballad Favorite At 33, he has become one of the country's favorite guitar strumming balladeers—in sharp contrast to the electronic, acid rock singing types who appear to be in need of baths and barbers—Campbell's blond hair is neatly combed and his clothes conventional. He and his wife, Billie, were married 11 years ago in Las Vegas, Nev., and for the past four years have lived in a modern hillside home tucked away in the Laurel Canyon area. Billie and Glen are the parents of daughter Kelli, 7, and two sons, Travis, 3, and Kane, born last February. The Campbells own a hand-Travis' room is all boy and crowded with toys. Baby Kane look over one of the two rooms Campbell had added to the house and looks like a nursery from a magazine ad. Because their property is surrounded by canyons, there is little back yard at the Campbell home. But there is enough space for a swimming pool with a stout fence to prevent the children from tumbling into the water when they play in the garden. The Campbells are very private people. Because Glen is so busy they value their time alone together. Billie does the cooking, and, like most wives, wants to know precisely what time her husband will be home for dinner. Weekends together are rare. More often than not Glen flies to other cities for lucrative concerts. Recently Billie found seven acres of exclusive mountain-top property on which the family will build a dream house with larger rooms, privacy and an unobstructed view of the Los Angeles basin from City Hall to Santa Monica. It had better be spacious—Glen Campbell is becoming a bigger star every day. Some selection of shotguns which they kept chained in a cabinet in their den. During hunting season they enjoy shooting game birds in the Southern California area. To keep the pressures down and his spirits up, Glen plays golf at Lakeside Country Club several times a week. The press of work, however, has driven his handicap up from a 6 to a 9.

BOOK NEWS

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

In a novel entitled "In This House of Brede," Rumer Godden weaves her special magic that immerses the reader wholly and unforgettably. In this story of the life in an enclosed house of nuns, the novel unfolds chiefly through Philippa Talbot, a successful London career woman turned forty when she felt the call of religious life. Woven with her personal story is a much larger one—the story of the House, its history, and the present inmates who have vowed to live and die within its walls. The book gives us on the outside a picture of how everyday religious life is lived, and part of the novel's attraction is its clear and abundant showing of the meaning of that life to those who live it.

"The Promise" by Chiam Potok, a sequel to "The Chosen" and best-selling novel about two Jewish boys in Brooklyn, continues the story of Reuven and Danny, now young men. Reuven is studying to become a rabbi and finds that his fate is in the hands of a rigidly orthodox examiner. Danny, the psychiatrist, must stand or fall, and with him one of his patients, on the validity of a new treatment he sponsors. Both men face a supreme challenge of their beliefs.

Gabriel Verardi's "Spies of Good Intent" is a well-written novel of espionage, sizzling with suspense, resonant with the absolute ring of truth. The story begins when two French gendarmes are murdered while investigating an apparent traffic accident. Because one of their killers talked German the French political police becomes interested and soon Dr. Francis Verne, a young Anglo-French physician, is sent to the United States to investigate the suspected manufacture of a deadly chemical.

"Hatshepsut" by Evelyn Wells is a biography of Egypt's Queen-King who ruled for seventeen years ascending the throne about 1490 B.C., and said to be exceedingly beautiful. Today few, except professional historians, know her as anything but a figure of mystery. Based on painstaking research, which includes many recent archaeological discoveries, this book penetrates that mystery. The result is a fascinating portrait of an era and the woman and queen who dominated it.

Can one foresee the future? Within the pages of "They Forsaw the Future," Justice Glass, a distinguished English authority on the occult, introduces you to such people—the clairvoyants with the gift of precognition and divination. Six thousand years of prophecy and clairvoyance are presented in this new book with a scope from ancient Egypt to the present day. There are profiles of world-renowned prophets of all time including notables of our day such as Jeanne Dixon, Edgar Cayce, Maurice Woodruff, and others. And Miss Glass reveals in detail the latest findings of scientific research throughout the world in the fields of the unconscious, precognition and ESP.

Reviews And Reflections

ALBERT PERTALION

East Carolina University, or rather some students at East Carolina University, took part in the National Moratorium on the Vietnam war Wednesday and there were several good results of the day's activities.

First of all, there was complete order, almost serenity, throughout the day. The students on the mall applauded speakers and some music was played, but there was a pervasive atmosphere of quietude, reminiscent of outdoor church services. Ministers from Greenville and campus churches led prayers every hour, and a young girl passed out chrysanthemums for the listeners to wear.

Another plus for East Carolina University's Moratorium Day was the willingness of the students to hear both points of view on the Vietnam war. Throughout the day as the size of the crowd on the mall ebbed and flowed, there were always dissenters protesting the dissenters. The speakers were constantly bombarded with anti-Moratorium Day questions. The students against the Vietnam war made up a great majority and could have easily shouted down any opposing question, but they listened politely and seriously considered the other's position. This open-mindedness was mentioned in formal debate Wednesday night by Dr. John East who argued against withdrawing from the Vietnam war. Dr. East thanked the moratorium committee for allowing him to be part of the activities. He pointed out that such diverse public statements would never be possible behind the iron curtain. Dr. East's remarks were applauded by hawks and doves alike.

Though some students might disagree with me, I counted faculty participation in Moratorium day as a plus sign. Several members of the ECU faculty were asked to address the students on the mall. Dr. Phillip Adler hinted to the near revolution which has occurred since his (and mine) generation was faced with the Korean war. He feels today's youth come closer to the American ideal by demanding truth from political leaders.

There were a lot of rumors surrounding M-Day, and talk about revolution and overthrowing the government; but most, if not all, the rumors were upgrounded. At no time did I ever get the impression that students were talking against their country. They seemed concerned in the best way possible: they wanted the country's ills corrected.

Time and again persons asked me about M-Day and the possibility of violence. At every chance I assured them there would be none. All along I felt the students to be too close to the spirit of Woodstock to let violence erupt on October 15. A lot of the young (not all, certainly, but a great many) feel that violence belongs in the realm of the adult. The students' proximity to peace and non-violence was underlined by the Woodstock Music Festival in New York, and the lesson that Woodstock taught adults is still precious the America's youth.

PEOPLE NO LONGER FEAR PSYCHIATRISTS

In the past psychiatric help was considered only as a last resort. People avoided going to or taking relatives to a psychiatrist, even when it was evident that treatment was needed. They would even disregard the suggestions of their family physicians. There was a feeling of shame.

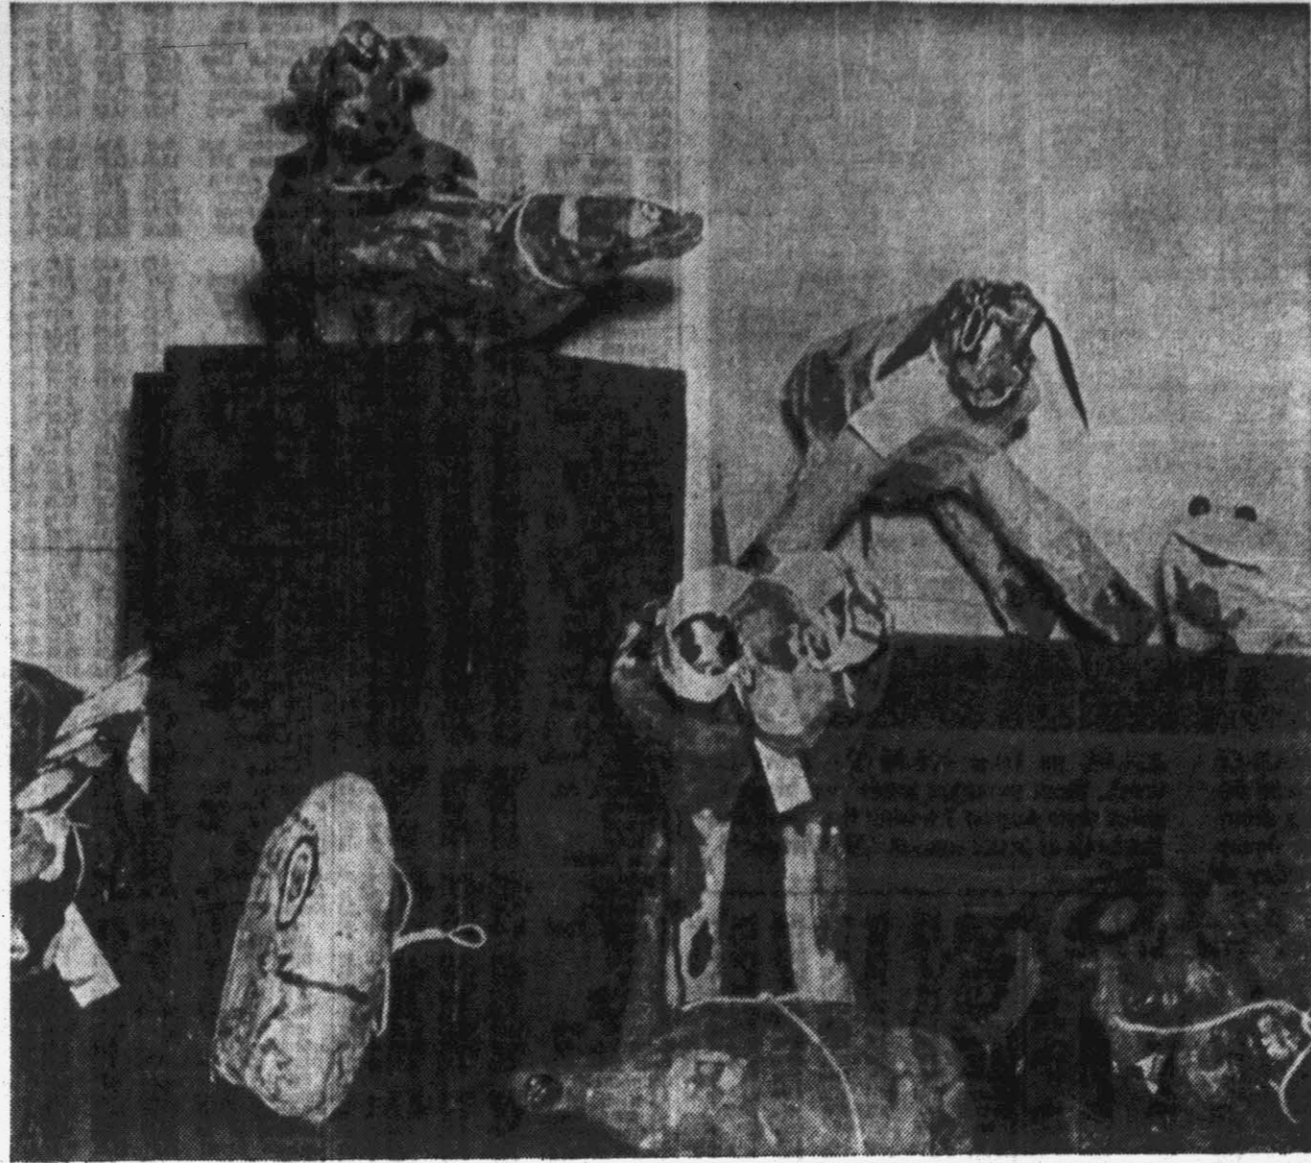

This has all changed. Today, with public awareness of the problems of mental health and with the spectacular development of new medicines to treat mental disorders, people are no longer afraid to consult a physician. They realize that there is hope. We stock these new medicines as soon as they are available for prescription use.

Children's Art Honors United Nations

ANIMALS OF THE WORLD . . . flags of many nations, colorful drawings of scenes and peoples, East and West, are all in the school children's United Nations Art Show.

Young artists in the area are having another chance to show their creative efforts to the public. On Sunday afternoon, from 3:00 to 5:00 p. m., a reception will be held honoring elementary students of Pitt County and Greenville schools at the Greenville Art Center on Evans Street.

This show, which is part of the activities being conducted in Greenville to commemorate United Nations week, October 20 through 25, will feature finger paintings, watercolors, crayon and pencil drawings by the young children.

It is being exhibited in the north gallery of the center. A group show by faculty members of ECU is currently on view in the south gallery. of musicians from East Carolina University specializing in Renaissance music, will be on hand to play for this event. They will also make a second appearance during the week with a full scale concert at the Recreation Center at Elm Street.

Children's exhibitions have become colorful and exciting events at the Greenville Art Center and have drawn large crowds in the past. The public is invited to attend this show, which will be on view until about the end of October.

A few East Carolina University students from foreign countries are expected to be on hand as special guests at the children's exhibition opening.

Fall Show Set For Farmville

The Farmville Art Society, Inc. will hold its seventh annual fall art show on October 25 and 26 at the Farmville Art Center.

On October 25, the Center will be open from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. and again from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. On October 26, hours will be from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded in six categories of entry. These are for portraits, landscapes, seascapes, still life, reproductions, and the most popular painting as determined by votes cast by persons attending.

Mrs. Nancy Ann Collins, docent at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, will serve as judge for the exhibition.

Greek Goddess Acquired By N. C. Museum of Art

RALEIGH—A Hellenistic statue of Aphrodite, dating to about 80 B.C., has been purchased by the N.C. State Art Society. It will be on display indefinitely.

The Greek statue, of white

Parian marble on a black marble base, is about 33 inches high. It is a torso, from which the head, arms, and lower legs and feet have disappeared over the long span of centuries since it was first created.

"It is a sparkling example of Greek ethos as embodied in the goddess of love and beauty . . . this splendid work of the late Hellenistic period incorporates all that is exciting in the classical, visual and literary tradition," Dr. Cornelius Vermeule, curator of classical art at the Boston Museum stated.

Ben F. Williams, general curator at the N.C. Museum of Art, says "This torso of Aphrodite speaks for itself. It is the embodiment of beauty."

The statue was paid for by the Art Society with funds from the Robert F. Phifer bequest.

it's our business to see that you succeed!

We need ranchers who can deliver quality pelts. Because they're in short supply. And we need them in our manufacturing operation.

Successful ranchers are important to us. In many ways we share their success. So we work hard to help our ranchers succeed. We help arrange bank financing to get them started. We exchange animals at no charge to improve blood lines. We hold seminars every ninety days for the first year and contact every rancher at least once a month by phone. We publish a monthly newsletter with tips and advice for the rancher. And, of course, we're available at any time to answer questions or give advice. Just give us a call. Our staff totals more than 50 years of combined experience with chinchillas. We want to share it with our ranchers.

Chinchilla ranching is a business. It offers substantial profits. For more information, just mail the coupon. You'll receive the information by mail—no cost or obligation, of course.

Is Nixon's Anti-Inflation Policy Working?

By DON BATTLE
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Nixon Administration, from the President on down, swamped the nation this past week with assurances that its anti-inflation policy is working, but one group of Democratic congressmen had other opinions.

The President said Friday that while business will be experiencing "slowing pains" as the Administration gently brakes an inflationary economy, the nation "is on the road to recovery from the disease of runaway prices."

Moreover, he said he would send a letter appealing for voluntary wage-price restraints to a cross section of business and labor leaders during this week-end.

President Nixon also said Friday that he will nominate White House aide Arthur F. Burns to succeed William McChesney Martin Jr. in January as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Burns, like Martin, is considered an economic conservative in monetary circles.

Earlier in the day, Treasury Secretary David Kennedy and Martin, as if prefacing the President's remarks, said the nation cannot relax its anti-inflation efforts and that present policies are working.

However, a group of Democratic congressmen, implying that the Administration's anti-inflationary policies are not working, urged the President to mount a "genuine war on inflation."

In their letter to the President, 44 Democratic representatives listed proposals that suggest an even more hard-line approach toward slowing inflation than presently in effect.

The Democrats urged the President and the Federal Reserve

Board to issue a joint request to banks not to increase their business lending over the currently outstanding level.

Among their other recommendations were that the administration withdraw its opposition to proposals for establishing effective wage-price guideposts, after consultation with management and labor by the President, and that the administration seek legislative authority, on a standby basis, to impose consumer credit controls.

In reply, administration officials predicted that the government's current anti-inflation policy would lead to a downward trend in interest rates and a lessening of pressure toward higher living costs by the start of the new year.

Among the indications of a cooling economy this past week was a sharp cut in the rate of increase of personal income.

The Department of Commerce said that last month's $2.25 billion annual rate of increase—the smallest since the $2.1 billion gain in April 1968—brought personal income to a total of $759.8 billion.

The sharp drop was expected in view of the unemployment rate increasing from 3.5 per cent in August to 4 per cent in September, and also because of the corresponding slowdown in wage and salary payments. Such payments rose by a rate of only $1.2 billion in September, compared with a $5.1 billion increase in August.

Home-buying plans have remained constant for the last six months with no downward trends noted.

This finding seemed to coincide with a Commerce Department report last week that new private housing begun during September registered the first monthly increase since February.

It marked the first monthly upturn since a year-long decline caused some homebuilders and economists to worry that anti-inflation measures were taking an unwarranted toll from the housing industry.

Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders, however, discounted the importance of the increase in housing starts. He said the seasonal adjustment factor for September distorts the figures—a point of disagreement between him and the Census Bureau.

In addition, he said the Federal National Mortgage Association has been pouring large amounts of money into the government home mortgage programs—much more than during the last housing slowdown in

The Commerce Department rise. The GNP measured at an July also reported this past week annual rate, rose $17.5 billion to that the gross national product: $942.3 billion.

U.S. automakers this past week estimated that 188,889 cars were built in domestic plants, goods and services—climbed at 9.9 per cent from 187,252 last a slightly faster pace in the measured against a 1957-58 base week but down 7.3 per cent from third quarter than in the second of 100, declined to 173.8 from 203,773 a year ago.

quarter as prices continued to 174.3 in August and 174.6 in July.

Nixon Sending Personal Fight-Inflation Appeals

BY FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is sending personal fight-inflation appeals to 2,200 leaders of business and labor—his first concerted effort to solicit wage-price restraint.

The White House said letters from the President will be mailed Monday as a followup to his nationwide radio address in which he asked all citizens to "bear the burden of restraint in their personal credit and purchasing decisions, so as to reduce the pressures that help drive prices out of sight."

In his address, Nixon called on labor "to base their wage demands on the new prospect of a return toward price stability," he urged businessmen "to base their investment and price decisions on that new economic plan."

But the message was beamed mainly at housewives, and they showed mixed reaction.

"I'm afraid the speech sounded too much like sweet talk," said a skeptical Mrs. Judith Pagan in Dover, N.J.

"I think he knows what he is doing," said Mrs. Lee Lane, a

Nixon supporter in Atlanta, Ga. "His proposals will cut down on the amount of money you have to spend."

The President spoke a few hours after announcing a major personnel change in the economic-financial area.

Arthur F. Burns, an Austrian-born economist who has been counsellor to the President since January, is to become chairman of the powerful Federal Reserve Board Jan. 31 when William McChesney Martin retires. The board is an independent agency responsible for setting policies that determine how much money will be available for loans.

Martin, chairman of the board for the past 18 years, was barred by law from serving another term. Burns, 65, will be nominated for a 14-year tenure.

In his radio address, Nixon said his administration has supported the Federal Reserve Board "in its policy of keeping money hard to borrow." When too much is borrowed, he said, "this money is simply used to bid prices up higher."

Talking to newsmen at the White House earlier, Burns said he anticipated that tight money policies would continue "for the present."

Nixon, claiming notable progress in the battle against inflation, said:

"You can make your plans on the basis that price rises are going to be slowed down."

He did not forecast a price decline, at least immediately, but rather a slower rate of price increases.

Moreover, he said, the programs to cool off the economy will adversely affect some industries and individuals.

"As we gently, but firmly, apply the brakes," he said, "we are going to experience some 'slowing pains.' Just like growing pains, these are a healthy development, but painful, nevertheless."

He promised to keep a close watch on the unemployment rate, saying he disagreed with those who claim a high rate of unemployment is inevitable because the government is fighting inflation by putting a lid on federal spending while seeking an extension of higher taxes.

Major Goal Is To Bring Negro Colleges Up To Higher Level

RALEIGH (AP) — A major goal of higher education in North Carolina during the next two years will be to bring the state's five public Negro colleges up to the level of comparable white institutions.

Dr. Cameron West, director of the Board of Higher Education, made the announcement Friday.

He said a serious look is being taken at college admission standards which exclude many Negroes.

He told the board that public universities in the state will be asked to present plans to increase Negro enrollment. Community colleges also should prepare such plans, he said.

He said the board has already urged North Carolina's public and private colleges and universities to provide compensatory education for some underprivileged youth.

Catch-up funds for the public Negro institutions were allocated by the 1967 and 1969 legislatures. Studies have shown it takes five schools fall below the level of comparable white schools in college entrance scores and professional salaries.

West said other items to be dealt with during the next two years include:

—A study of North Carolina's 42 private colleges, some of which reported enrollment declines of as much as 15 percent this fall.

—Making salaries in higher education competitive with those nationally.

—A study to determine what can be done about the increasing fees and other costs which are creating "financial barriers to higher education" for many youths.

—Establishing a central library pool among the state's public universities.

—Development of "reliable knowledge of the cost of various educational activities and degree programs."

—To assist communication between "public universities and private colleges, students and state government, Negro universities and state government."

—Development of a comprehensive informational system in higher education to enable further long range planning.

West was instructed by the board to set up priorities for these goals by January.

Watts Hill Jr. of Chapel Hill, a board member, said "I believe you will find that we can't possibly do all this work... and we will have to seek private funding for some of it."

Proof Country Can Change

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Kofi A. Busia, the new prime minister of Ghana, says he is living proof that a country can change from military to civilian rule by democratic means.

Kwame Nkruma was ousted as Ghana's ruler by a military coup in 1966. Early this fall, Busia's political party won 104 of 140 seats in Ghana's parliament and on Oct. 1 the military government handed Busia a new constitution as the symbol of the transfer of power from the military to civilian authorities.

A 56-year-old university professor, Busia told the U.N. General Assembly Friday he was "thankful that I should be alive and privileged to tell the world of that unique achievement."

America at HOME fall 1969

Now, you can create tasteful, decorator-styled interiors for your home with the new furnishings arriving at your local stores. Top professional interior designers have worked with leading manufacturers to offer you practical, imaginative solutions to your home planning problems. The model room ideas illustrated on the following pages can be adapted to your home at modest cost. Your merchants made selections to meet your tastes at the Home Furnishings Style Centers Throughout The Country.

ABOVE — It's a woman's world in this pink and red room created by Karl Steinhauser AID/NSID for Restonic Corp. for the "America at Home" program in the American Furniture Mart. Starting with a regal king size bed and an elegant red tufted headboard, the designer has papered the wall in back with "Heather" red washable wallpaper and framed the entire bed area under a half circle of plywood hung from the ceiling papered in petals of the same red. A golden curtain rod behind the bed is added for accent and holds a swag of sheeting that matches the colors of the bed linens. The opposite wall is done in "Sandringham" paisley washable wallpaper. The "Atavio" furniture is in antique off-white. An Azalea lush carpet with areas of "Chateau" white vinyl tile with inserts of pink, red and Azalea tones adds foot interest . . . to bring out the female in every woman.

COLORS: Red and pink.

Furniture, Stanley; flooring, Amtico division of American Bitrite Rubber Co.; sheets, towels, bedspread, Springmaid and Morgan-Jones; bedding, Restonic; drapery hardware, Kirsch Co.; wallpapers, Imperial Wallpaper Mills; lamps, Phil-Mar; chandelier, Moe Lighting; women's fashions, Eloise Curtis for Happinistance.

ABOVE — It's traditional — the tufted sofa and matching chair combined with two companion chairs. A special style note — the elegant little bows on the skirts of the sofa and chair. The grouping is manufactured by Gaines Manufacturing Company, and the setting created by C. E. Driver. The printed chairs are done in gold, white, brown, and green cotton to compliment the coin gold sofa and chair. The setting was shown at the "America at Home" — exhibit in the American Furniture Mart.

COLORS: Coin gold . . . gold, white, brown and green print. Furniture, Gaines Manufacturing Company.

LEFT — Eating will be more pleasurable in a room setting like this one done in Spanish style by Tom Oakley for B. Brody Seating. The maroon rug and grasscloth wallpaper with black accents set off the dinette grouping, giving an over-all look of royalty and informality in the same breath. The chairs and table feature scroll bases. This "America at Home" room can be seen in the American Furniture Mart.

COLORS: Maroon and black, wood tones. Furniture, B. Brody Seating.

'Romantic Mood' Available Now In Furnishings

Ole! . . . It's Spanish that is tops in the season's fushings designs, closely followed by Early American and modern styles. And, reports from the International Home Furnishings Market indicate that homemakers looking for designs with a French or Italian flair will also find them at their favorite retailer.

The Spanish has selections that range from the very ornate, rococo and baroque treatments to relatively simple lines. And, there are many elements of romance design from Mexico, Central American and from Peru in particular. The manufacturers have increased the use of carvings, moldings and detailings of historic origin. These features are very, very wood-like in appearance but in some cases are of man-made materials.

Homemakers turning attention to modern will find that the space age has definitely arrived . . . the concepts, forms, lines and shapes as well as the materials are all of the next century. They are being applied today for our fast paced living and include glass, plastic, vinyl and the synthetic fabrics.

Chick is the appearance of 1969's modern . . . which may have some of its design elements taken from the 1930's and 1940's . . . culturally speaking, but that's all. The big, heavy, overstuffed and "marshmallow" look is gone. Modern has been scaled and refined to fit into today's homes and with today's philosophy of jet living.

Modern, because of its crisp, fresh look, has a decorating appeal hard to pass up along with its comfort, warmth and flexibility of uses—made possible by the design and styling innovations.

Also exciting to the eye are the applications of Plexiglas . . . which seems to be able to do or be most anything: a chair, table, lamp shade, lamp base, shelving or storage unit, as well as chair or sofa frame. And many new colors, as well as smoked and clear versions of Plexiglas will be shown in the stores.

Walking hand-in-hand, there also is chrome, steel, brushed aluminum and glass.

It is important to note that the wood finishes, as well as the laminate and plastic surfaces lacquered and painted surfaces, will also be found in this season's fresh modern.

When you look at upholstered modern you'll find silhouettes that are trim and slim—dicked out in an endless selection of patterns, prints and fibers, both synthetic and natural.

Early American for 1969 will have a bigger variety of fabric and finish selection than ever before. Plus, it will have refined, scaled styling offering colonial and country selections that are smart and sophisticated, fitting right in with today's sonic pace.

Careful inspection of the Early American will show that the manufacturers have applied many of the fine, classical style elements. In addition, some have borrowed from the country styles of France, England and the Mediterranean countries as well.

Early American will have a greater number of pieces and items in the collections and groupings than in the past. There will be the unusually shaped tables that you can use in a limitless number of settings.

there will be desks of all sizes, storage units and casegood pieces—all with refined scaling.

The fabric selection for Early American will be limitless, making suitable furnishings choice for country, suburban or high-rise city living. And, looking at finishes, you'll see that the distressed finish continues along with a growing popularity of the dark and almost black finishes. But, if your choices are in the French and Italian, you will find selections to meet your needs. They will also be scaled and refined to meet today's modern building and smaller room sizes. And, you'll find them with upholsteries that are rich and luxurious in appearance and touch. You'll be pleased with the many, many decorative carvings and detailings on the chair backs, table bases and legs.

Now, looking at lamps and accessories you'll see the manufacturers have made definite relationships with the furnishings styles. There will be a vast selection of interpretations of Spanish, Italian, English, Early American plus smart looking modern.

When you look at the offerings in juvenile, you'll find that there is a gay selection of colors and patterns on beds, chests, chairs, dressers and storage units. And, like the adult furniture, they are Spanish Mediterranean, Early American and provincial in styles. The colors range mostly in the pastels, of course, which are used extensively on the wood and metal pieces. It is to be noted that the plastics and synthetics have also caused many innovations in the juvenile offerings.

The bedding highlight is on luxury and comfort . . . you'll be pleased at the lovely and elegant range of brocade and quilted tickings . . . almost too pretty to cover up! The size and construction selections are varied to fit any homemaking need or budget.

And, to fit into today's pattern of multipurpose needs, there are furnishings to match any room use or uses. There are sofas and love seats that open into full-sized beds, chairs that recline, play and give heat treatments . . . or there are serving carts that open into tables and tables that selection . . . at your local retailer's.

Multi-Purpose Room Is Part Of Today's Scene

Multi-purpose, 'round the clock, or whatever term is used much of today's furnishings is designed for several uses in rooms that serve many functions . . . as evidenced in the new displays at the American Furniture Mart.

Bedrooms, basic to every home, need not go unused during the day or be furnished only with bed, dresser and chest. Beds can be sleeper sofas, or disguised with bolsters and pillows, for daytime use. A trundle bed in a child's room can add hidden storage—without added furnishings—or hide a spare bed for unexpected visitors.

A family room, den or recreation room can also have a second life. A sleeper sofa, or bed behind cupboard doors, can turn this room into a spare bedroom. The addition of a cozy recliner, music system, television, games or mothers' sewing equipment makes this room beneficial to all family members and keep activities centralized so that other family members can relax quietly in their rooms or in other parts of the home.

The wide range of new bunched or stacking tables and chairs allows for ample seating and serving space, yet require a minimum of space. With the addition of removal of a cushion, many new items serve a double life as tables or seating pieces.

Patio furniture, once made strictly for outdoor use, is equally "at home" today in the kitchen, lower level dining areas or in the family and recreation room during the winter months. In summer, these casual furnishings can again be moved outdoors for use in the yard.

The variety is endless—limited only by a family's needs . . . and imagination.

The personality of your family should be reflected in the furnishings and accessories you select for your home . . . that is the advice of major interior decorators who have designed model room settings for the American Furniture Mart's "America at Home" program.

Hobbies, special interests, travel mementos . . . all make interesting focal points in a room and can add that personal touch to accessorizing.

A family's interest in music, books or art may be used to create a miniature library, instrument showcase or "art collection" center with paintings grouped on a wall for focal interest or to accent large furnishings, such as sofas or commodes.

A child's interest in toy soldiers, dolls, trains, flowers, ect. might be used as a decorating guide in selecting wallpaper, spreads, or even the style of major pieces of furniture.

Unusual travel souvenirs can be used as art objects, in curio cabinets, or grouped on tables. Furniture should be selected to offer complementary or contrasting design.

Colors, too, should reflect the family's tastes and interests. Each room should tell a visitor about the family occupying it—even before he meets its members.

Decorating Tips

For a coordinated look, try covering window shades with fabric to match curtains and/or slip-covers.

Add Old World elegance to picture arrangements by replacing simple wood frames with ornate gilt ones and the use of velvet overlays.

Some Hints On Furniture Care

Proper care of furniture is important to keep it looking fresh and new, even after years of use. Always keep the instructions you receive when you buy new furniture and read them well when cleaning or attempting minor repairs. If you are in doubt about caring for a piece of furniture, always consult a professional refinisher, your local retailer or write directly to the manufacturer.

The following hints on furniture care are taken from the American Furniture Mart's "Home Decorating Guide Book."

Pre-test new polishes and cleaning materials on an inconspicuous part of the furniture before applying to more exposed surfaces.

Never use nail polish remover on furniture. It will soften the finish.

When dusting, waxing or making minor repairs, always work with the grain of the wood. Dust with a lint-free adsorbent cloth.

Dust leather, never wax it for that will seal the surface and make it hard.

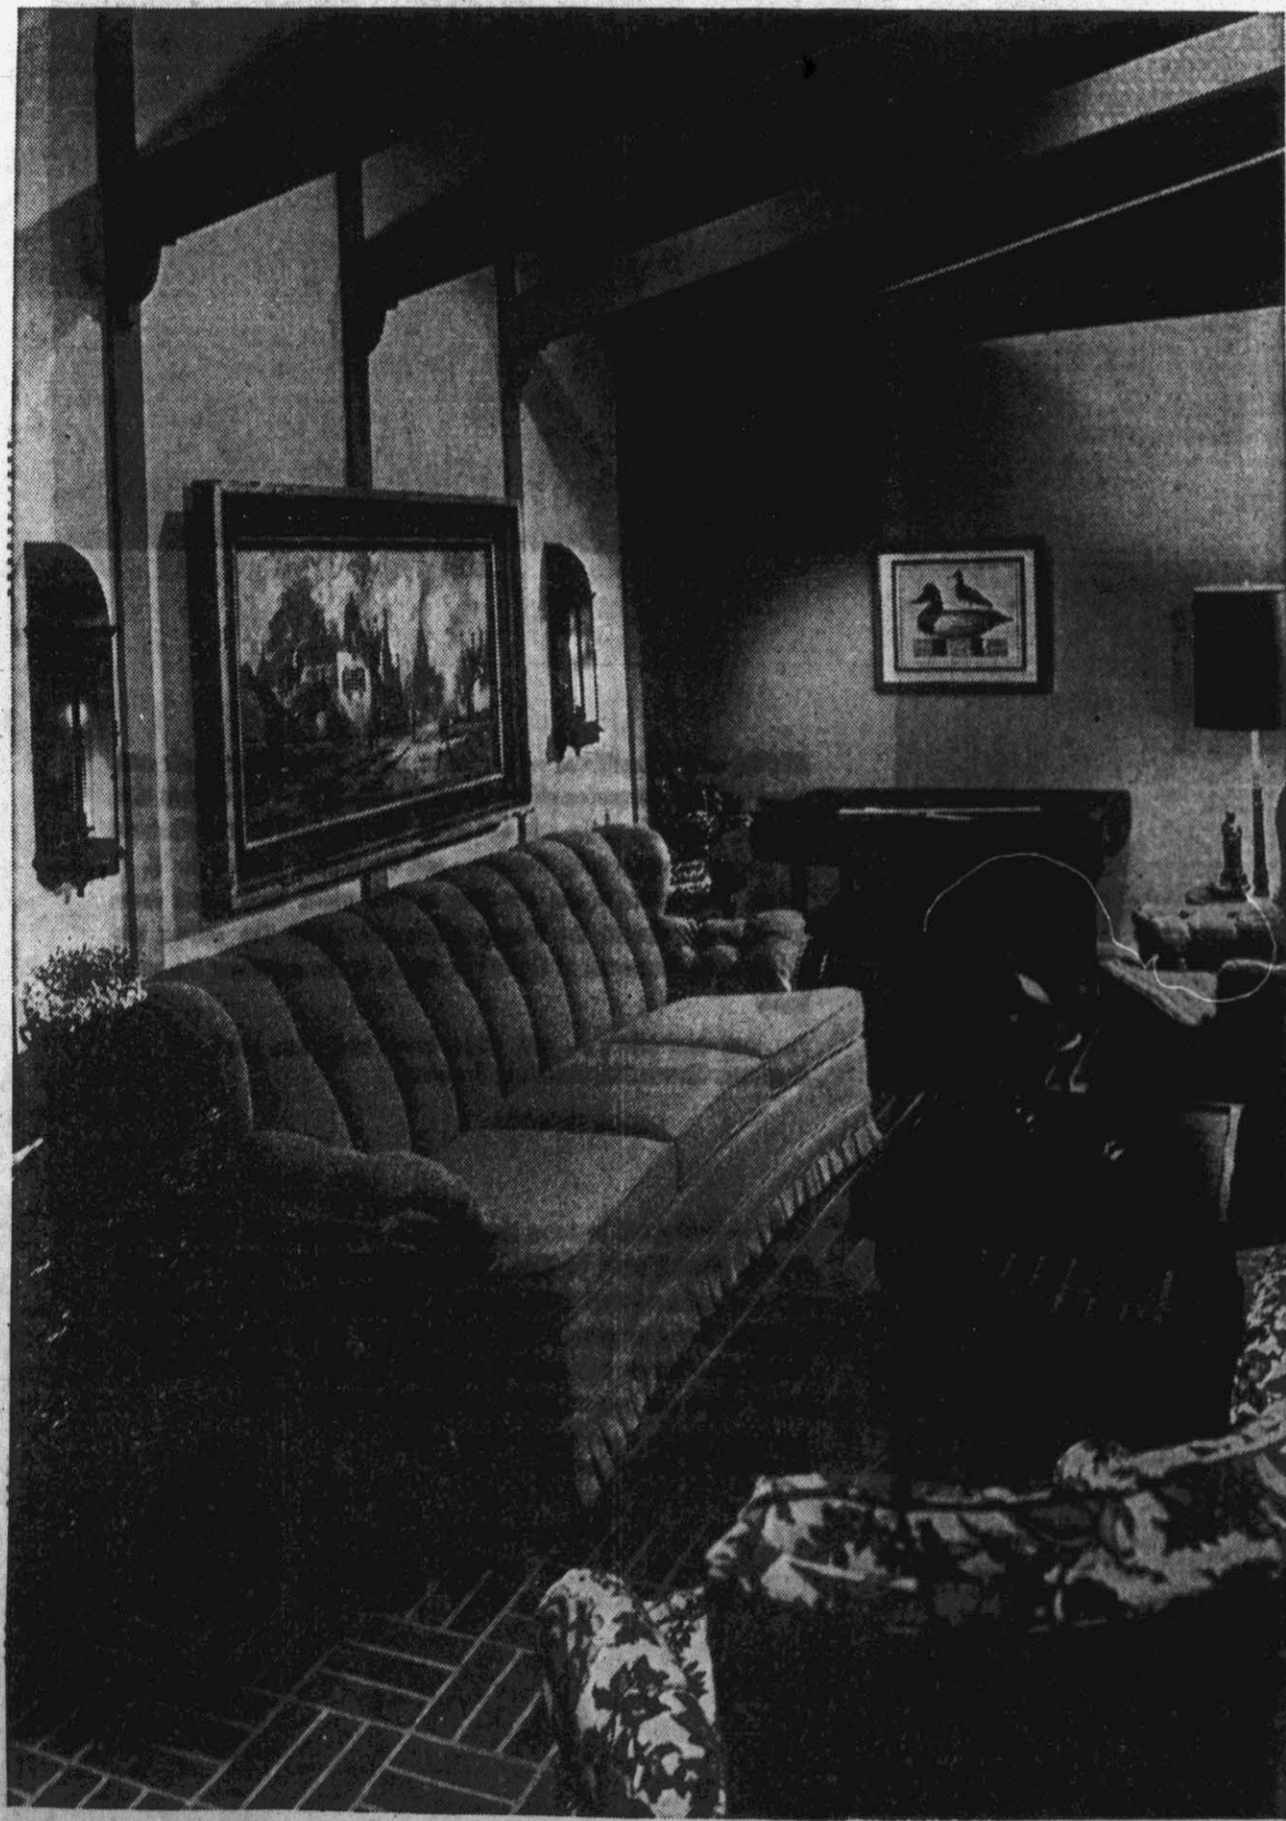

Plastics should never be cleaned with a solvent. Use warm water and a mild detergent. Rinse and wipe dry.

Give marble the same care as wood furniture. Use coasters under glasses and wipe up spills immediately. Marble may be washed with lukewarm water.

For food and other stains on fabrics, follow the rules you use in doing your laundry.

AMERICAN ORIENTALS by Karastan have the same glowing colors as the originals. The same purity of design. The same perfectly proportioned patterns. The same attention to minute details. The same rich skein-dyed imported worsted wool, washed with a lustre. But a much more attractive price because they're power-loomed here in America.

A COLONIAL ROOM for relaxation is done in light olive by George Branson, NSID, for Flexsteel Industries. Burnt maple tables accentuate the wing sofa and attractive Mr. and Mrs.

chairs. Seating units are protected by Zepel from DuPont for easy care and worry free enjoyment. Brick flooring adds to the rustic mood.

Many Items To Be Considered In A First Home

Many June brides are in the process of furnishing their first homes. Whether it's a small, rented apartment or a "home of your own," certain decorating knowledge is necessary to transform hollow, impersonal space into that dream house that meets the needs of daily living for two.

Rooms Should Be Planned For Use And The Users

Have you noticed that when you visit some homes or offices, that they are always comfortable and pleasant even when there is much activity? What's the answer... what's the secret? The room has been planned for its use and users.

The same should be true in your home. Think of the uses your rooms will have. Who will use them and when? The following is a checklist of hints to help you in your planning:

Discuss with your family what each room will be used for and how you wish it to look.

Prepare a model and a plan... either on paper or with cut out circles and squares (to represent the furnishings).

Next establish what designers call the center of interest.

For each room, it is important that furnishings relate to the center of interest.

Place the location of the large pieces. Then establish locations for smaller pieces and lamps.

Be sure that when you place the furnishings to keep a balance. This is done by distributing the weight of the various elements around the room. Don't have all the big, heavy furnishings on one wall or around the center of interest.

Be sure you have provided space for movement and traffic. Don't have any room cluttered.

Be sure that your lighting is good. Review the locations of lamps and their uses. Be sure that study and close work areas have good lighting. Keep the soft and subdued lighting for the visiting sections of your living room or den.

Be sure that your furnishings will be arranged in such a way that the pieces complement one another. The scale of the various pieces should be relative. And the furniture should be in scale to the size of the room. Don't place large pieces in a small narrow room, for example.

Remember comfort, especially in chairs.

Look to the future. Will your children be entertaining in a few years? Or will you have many overnight and out-of-town guests? If so, think of furnishings for those needs as well as for the immediate situations. And, don't forget that you can't ever have enough storage space.

It is wise to choose upholstered furnishings with stain-resistant finishes; tables and chests with glass or high-pressure tops, carpeting with a pattern or tweed effect, rather than a solid. Even if a family is not in your immediate plans, you'll appreciate the ease in housekeeping.

If you are living in two rooms now, choose living room furnishings that can go into a room or family room after you move into a larger home.

Before you make any large purchases, make sure you shop thoroughly. It's a good idea to visit one of the larger stores in your area even if you do not intend to purchase anything in this specific store. This will still afford you the opportunity to examine a wide variety of styles, lines and manufacturer names.

If you are planning on filling in pieces of a certain manufacturer's collection or group at a later date, be sure and write directly to the manufacturer to find out how long the line has been in existence and how long it is planned to continue.

Before purchasing any oversized pieces—such as king-sized springs and mattresses, over-long sofas, portable bars, etc.—make sure you can get them into your apartment. Measure doorways and window openings. Check stairway turns—especially if you live in a third floor walkup.

A good method in determining what kind of furnishings will fit into your rooms is by making a floor plan. Draw your rooms to scale using graph paper, allowing 1/4 inch per foot. Be sure to indicate all the architectural features such as doors, windows, radiators or heat registers, electrical outlets, etc.

Next, draw a scale pattern, called a template, of each piece of furniture you already have or plan to purchase. By arranging and re-arranging the templates on your floor plan, you can determine just how each piece will fit and look in your room. In this manner, you can also easily see which items you need immediately and which can wait for the future.

Color, as well as room and furniture size, is another important consideration. If you are living in a decorated apartment, choose colors and wood tones that will complement your existing rooms yet blend with the color schemes you have in mind for your own home in the future.

Although your first purchases, by necessity, will be basics such as a bed, comfortable sofa, dining table and chairs and storage chests, don't forget the importance of accessories and accent pieces. These are the selections that can best express your personality and turn a rented dwelling into a home.

Its Up And Away With Recently Found Urethane

The world of tomorrow becomes more exciting every day with trips to the moon, to outer space, and travel around the world a simple day's journey. Homemakers already are using and living with furnishings that have a space-age flair. Much of the news in furnishings this season concerns the use of man-made materials and plastics.

One such plastic is urethane. It is a very versatile plastic capable of taking on many shapes, forms and colors. It is strong and can withstand much punishment... and yet it is flexible so as to be molded in the free-flowing shapes of today's chairs and sofas.

Urethane will also make possible walls and ceilings for houses that will revolutionize home building. Urethans walls for example will be available as stacking units to be placed as organized in a variety of shapes. These walls will be strong and capable of bearing the load of heavy "work walls" such as in a kitchen, a bathroom or laundry.

Block floors, with radiant heating units, will be popular. They'll be cushioned so that they are soft, but with a hard, long-wearing surface.

The use of the plastics for ceilings will allow for many carvings, reproductions of art or design, as desired. The days of the flat, dull ceilings overhead will soon be gone. Ceilings will also have cushionings for sound conditioning.

Looking at furniture, we find today that many of the big furniture items, such as sofas and chairs, are easier to move and have free-flowing lines. This is because they have frames of plastic which is light, but strong.

Even the heavy armoires, sideboards, bookcases, and buffets of the future will be made with these man-made materials. Again, they will have many decorative and ornate features—just like the carefully sculptured wood—but they will be lighter in weight, making cleaning and moving less of a chore.

Manufacturers will also be able to mold a chair to fit your body. Imagine, your size might be fed into a computer which in turn would set up the ingredients and machinery for molding your very own, personal chair!

Terminology Of Style Is Helpful

Selecting the right style furniture for your home and your family can be made easier if you are familiar with style terminology.

Today, the words "style and period" are used interchangeably in the furniture world. However, the word style actually refers to the use of certain design characteristics; whereas period designates a measure of time when these characteristics were popularized.

Design characteristics help identify furniture of the various periods. These characteristics are copied or adapted by designers and manufacturers to create today's styles.

Each furniture manufacturer identifies his lines with descriptive names than can often be confusing to the consumer. Some basics hold true, however, and an understanding of these can be helpful when purchasing furniture.

Most styles will fit within three broad areas: traditional, provincial and contemporary.

Traditional includes those styles with design characteristics typical of masted craftsmen of past generations. Much of the traditional furniture was first designed for royal courts and nobility. Through the years it has been associated with elegance and formality.

The court styles of each country (which make up traditional styling) were copied in simplified versions for the masses. This furniture is referred to as provincial (or country or rural). The French and Italian Provincial and Early American styles are typical examples. True provincial styling always denotes simplicity and comfort designed for informal living.

Contemporary (or modern) includes a broad group of designs that are adapted for modern methods of production and today's living needs. Contemporary is inspired by traditional styles, yet makes use of modern materials and methods of manufacture. Most contemporary furnishings are light in scale and appearance, versatile in use and easy to care for.

Decor Ideas

Try beads for decorative window treatment when you want to screen, but not shut out, a window view.

Hang baubles from a bead track. (Mount at ceiling height to visually enlarge a window.) Beads are available in walnut or natural wood—paint them to suit your taste—or crystal-line plastic in a rainbow of shades.

Brighten a dark stairway with carpet remnants or small throw rugs in a variety of colors. Cut all sections to fit and use tacks to hold securely in place.

A safety note—the varied colored steps are easier to see, hence, safer to use.

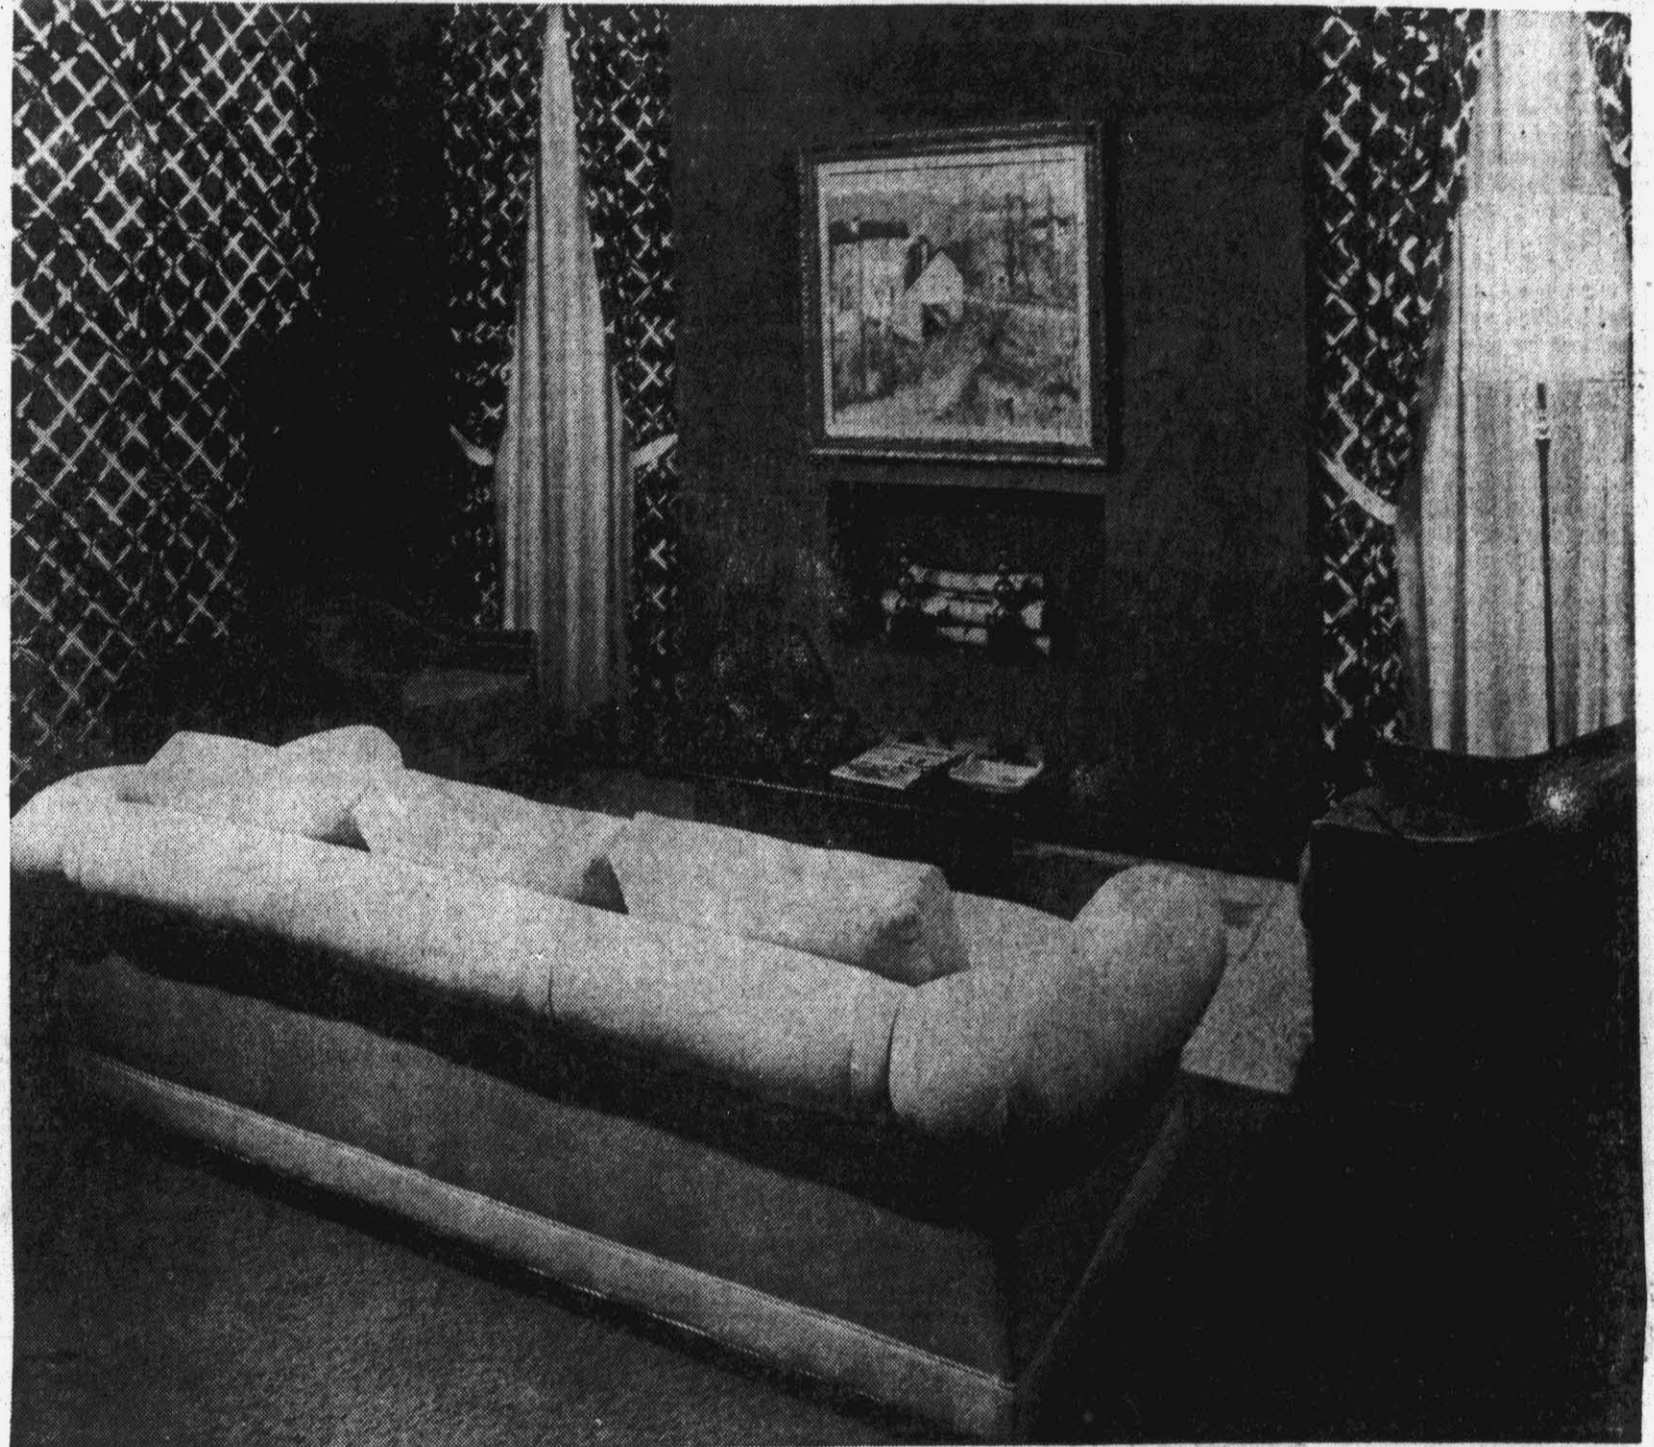

Make yourself a handsome and original headboard for your bed with stock picture frames.

Select frames with cove molding to measure the width of your bed (the height is up to you. Insert fabric in frame—a quilted cloth is especially plush—to match bedspread or accent room decor.

Using screws from back side, secure all frames to plywood.

Create your own "stained window." First, make your design on window with crayon or felt-tipped marker. Fill in design with glass stain. Cover lines with black masking or vinyl tape on both sides of window.

Add glass wall shelves to the bathroom in a variety of lengths to attractively and conveniently display colognes and beauty aids.

Mod Vies With Med In Furnishings Popularity

Simple lines, comfortable shapes and attractive new contemporary furnishings as popular as Mediterranean-Spanish stylings.

The appeal of the contemporary styles is not only to the young. Modern styling captures the imagination of homemakers with children and adults seeking comfort and informality for today's living.

Mediterranean with a strong influence from Portugal will continue to maintain its foremost position and appeal to the widest segment of furniture buyers. The Portuguese influence will be seen in the use of the shell motif, the high baroque arch or hood shape and the scaled tassel or brush foot, similar to the Spanish scroll foot.

The Spanish - Mediterranean influence, popular for the past several seasons, will retain its impact. Mexican, Peruvian and other Latin American adaptations will add a festive and rustic note that is an added appeal in the Mediterranean mix. Upholstery fabrics will be bold and have a primitive hand-painted look.

The traditional and Early American styles are in abundant display. . . But with a difference. Many manufacturers are showing these styles with contemporary upholstery for a "go anywhere" look that fits the new design trend—mix, not match. These new furnishings can be set amid contemporary designs for an unusual and effective accent.

The Early American designs will be more sophisticated and tend toward the Colonial and Federal periods. Painted furniture, so popular during the founding of this nation, is again making its appearance. Chairs have straight, clean leg lines with tables featuring trestles. Many dinette sets are being shown with benches as well as a variety of chair styles.

Bedroom sets, too, are more sophisticated with a smoother finish and less hand-made look. These items also feature less hardware and are shown in smaller scale.

In the upholstered area, furniture is being featured with French seams and no welting to create the free flowing look that will be "in" this season. Upholstered furniture will have accents of exposed wood or wood trim to highlight the color and pattern of the fabric selections.

Major new colors for upholstery at the American Furniture Mart will match the fashion look this year—the black-brown-gray combinations—that offer a comfortable, relaxed form of living. Other fashion tones will be softer or pastel monochromatic combinations in lemon, lime, pink, baby blue and a wide range of greens and yellows. Manufacturers are veering away from the hot tones and non-colors popular last season toward less vivid more liveable colors.

Bold, imaginative prints, stripes and stylized florals and plaids will be offered this year for contemporary pieces. These meet the needs of today's leisurely and informal living in apartments and homes, while adding new zest and color to the unadorned lines of contemporary. In traditional furnishings, velvets will continue to dominate the scene—adding formality and elegance to chairs, sofas and love seats. The continued excitement in the velvet line is being created by the cut and printed varieties of this fabric. Velvets are especially popular for the Spanish and Mediterranean pieces—blending with and accentuating the handcrafted detailing and massive designs of this style mix.

A major "new" look is the reemergence of tapestry and needlepoint, especially for Early American seating products. However, one firm is showing this fabric to cover a parsons table for an unusual and attractive decorating accent.

Woods, too, are going to be making news. Native American woods, new African varieties, new uses for traditional woods and painted finishes are adding a new spicet o furniture. Wood tones add warmth and focus to a room's decor. They can be used to accent or as the major focus within the room. Wood tones, too, blend with the fashion colors this year, highlighting the new fabric tones and emphasizing the bold patterns and prints being introduced to create a contemporary feeling to all styles and periods of home furnishings.

A major, new addition to furniture design will be the use of campaign chests patterned on those used by European residents in the Philippines, India and other parts of the British Empire during the 19th century. These offer a unique facade for storage facilities for bedroom or dining room yet are simple in line to blend well with contemporary or traditional.

Ease of maintenance will be a feature of most fabrics and furnishings. New chemical fibers and simulated wood parts or new finishes create the illusion of actual fabrics and woods, or are transparent, with the added feature of not scratching, scaring, burning or soiling. These make furniture more useable and allow the family to select furnishings that members really like—not merely items that they feel will survive the youngsters. Thus, the family need not worry about the colors—being too light or the furniture too fragile for family use.

Juvenile furnishings will continue to feature the "adult look" and new colors introduced several seasons ago. Children's furniture, in its wide range of styling, can be selected to blend with the rest of the house or apartment and in colors that rival the rainbow. These furnishings can also be selected for long use with furnishings that grow with the child.

Today's dinettes are leaving the kitchen. New styling and construction makes them attractive and durable as well as stylish enough to fit any setting—from the dining table (desk) in a one-room apartment to the breakfast nook or patio set in a large house or high-rise apartment. Contemporary in metal or plastic, Early American, Spanish or traditional in wood or plastic—the dinette set can be selected to fit any mood or style desired.

The consumer's desires and ideas are being taken into consideration by many manufacturers. They are showing furnishings that are available in a number of arm and back treatments and which can be interchanged to create the furniture item most pleasing to the customer.

Furniture is also being designed to serve several functions. Tables double as desks for study and work; sofas turn into beds for guests or personal use in small apartments—and these blend into any room's decor.

All furniture this year has a refined look with decreased scale that emphasizes comfort and good looks in smaller sized furnishings.

'Anything Goes' If It Suits You

Today's homemaker has more opportunity than ever before to express her own personality and that of her family's in decorating the home. In today's decorating schemes, "anything goes"—as long as it reflects the owner's likes, needs, wants and dreams.

Gone are the days of matched living room suites and twin entablatures boasting duplicate lamps. Gone, too, are all the old decor rules and decorating taboos of Mother's day. Indeed, if there is any rule for home decor in 1969, it is "Mix"—not "match."

The smart homemaker today chooses her furnishings for both function and esthetic charm, with the result reflecting her likes and whims—rather than the duplication of a department store window display.

Manufacturers have recognized this growing awareness and sophistication of the modern homemaker and have reflected this attitude in their new lines for 1969. More and more manufacturers are showing collections that co-ordinate, rather than match. Leading case goods manufacturers are offering painted finishes as well as wood finishes in their new showings, enabling the consumer to blend her furnishings to suit her desire, while still retaining a certain continuity.

In today's rooms, homemakers are blending periods and styles; fabrics, finishes and woods, and accessories and accent pieces to create their own individual looks. However, careful consideration to selection of furnishings is still important to result in the "mixed" look—not a "mish-mash" look. The rule is to choose pieces to compliment, not compete.

A safe start in adding personality to an existing room setting is with the addition of an "accent" piece. Some of the most successful mixers that coordinate well with existing furniture may be decorator mirrors, consoles, Parsons tables in an assortment of wood and painted finishes, the new all-plastic pieces, see-through furnishings or occasional pieces framed in bamboo, interesting grill work or polished chrome—very big this year.

The new upholstery fabrics offer still more opportunity to achieve the "mixed" look. The most popular choices for '69 are velvets, especially the crushed and cut versions; linen, smooth and sleek in stripes, checks and herringbone; and the new simulated suedes, particularly in the "no color" choices such as black, brown, nutmeg, off-white, oatmeal, etc.

Pattern is important in today's rooms and the room with just one patterned fabric is dated. Wall coverings, rugs and upholstered pieces are bright with pattern in surprising harmony—though it takes a certain amount of talent to get the right combinations. Stripes—big and bold—hold the line and are seen co-ordinated with florals, matched with checks and plaids.

BOLD RED WALLS accent the attractive King's Arrow dining room collection set into this room for Sprague and Carlton by Erv Hackert for the American Furniture Mart. A trestle table and chairs is set for dinner. The hutch and buffet and dry sink are all in Old Thyme finish for a deep, rich look.

It's Space Age Seating Today

Today's newest seating pieces are truly designed for Space-Age living. Modern designs are original, experimental and completely products of "today"—with little or no link with the past.

A product of today's new ideas, 1969 modern seating pieces utilize new applications and new materials—plastics, chrome, Plexiglas, fibreglas, molded steels, and revolutionary fabrics such as man-made suede, sprayed-on materials and stretch knits.

Foam rubber and polyfoam are the most prevalent upholstery materials. The materials are layered thickly—sometimes combined with down, to create furnishings that are flexible, self-shaping and self-cushioning.

Much of the new seating pieces are mobile—on casters, swivels or made to recline. Even the shapes seem to move with undulating curves and fabrics with patterns that swirl and gyrate.

Frames for the new sofas, chairs and loveseats are of see-through Plexiglas, chrome, molded tubing, metal-structured hoops or the severest and purest wood designs.

Right Floor Covering Can Add The Final Touch

The foundation of any good decorating scheme is just that—its foundation, or its floor. Choice of the right floor covering can add the final decor touch to a room, as well as tying together the entire design theme.

The type of floor covering you select should be determined by the room's function, amount of traffic, insulation and sound-proofing needs, type of cleaning equipment available and, most importantly, your personal preference.

Thanks to today's miracle fibers, wall-to-wall carpeting can be as practical in the bath or kitchen as in other rooms.

Floor coverings can be divided into several basic types: wall-to-wall carpeting, area rugs, room-size rugs, natural wood (in long boards or parquet), and tile squares or sheeting in linoleum, vinyl, cork, rubber or asphalt.

Wall-to-wall carpeting will visually enlarge the size of a room since it offers an unbroken sweep of color. It is easy to care for with frequent vacuuming and shampooing once or twice a year.

Today, carpeting comes in wools, cotton, synthetic and blends of natural and man-made fibers in a variety of colors, patterns and textures. Dyes are true and clear and keep their beauty for the life of the rug.

Wall-to-wall carpeting can be had in any price range to fit your budget. Whatever your choice of fiber, however, do not economize on the cushioning. Top quality cushioning extends the life of the carpeting, protects fibers against shock of repeated traffic, and fills in uneven spaces of floor that could cause worn spots.

New carpets come in tweed and textural effects, shags, vivid floral and contemporary designs, formal traditional patterns, wild geometrics, plush deep piles and even a flat linen look.

Indoor-outdoor carpeting is bigger than ever, and with proper cushioning is being used in the family room, kitchen, and bath, as well as patios, terraces and poolside. This carpeting is also available in the form of tiles, allowing attractive arrangement in checker-board or other patterns as well as easy replacement in heavy traffic areas.

"Room-size" is the name given to the standard six, nine, 12 and 15-foot width rugs. These are usually purchased, cut and bound and ready to lay. Just as with wall-to-wall carpeting, room-size rugs come in every color, pattern and texture to fit every decorating need. And, just as with wall-to-wall carpeting, cushioning is all-important for guaranteeing a long life for your rug. The pad for a room-size rug should measure no less than 1/4 inch smaller than the rug on all sides.

An advantage of room-size rugs is that they may be sent out of the home for professional cleaning periodically. Also, room-size rugs may be turned every few months to equally distribute traffic.

Area rugs—in square, oval, round, oblong or free-form shapes—can prove real decorating accents. They may be used over wall-to-wall carpeting, as well as over natural wood or other hard surfaced flooring to define and set aside one living area from another or to accent certain areas or pieces of furniture.

Color pattern and fiber choices in area rugs are unlimited and can be found to compliment or contrast with any decorating scheme or furniture style. Many are available with fringe or braid edge to add an extra style note.

Smaller area rugs are usually washable or can be cleaned in do-it-yourself cleaning establishments. Their many advantages, however, is that they may easily be changed or rearranged to accent different furnishings.

One word of warning—be sure that area rugs are large enough, when used to set off a furniture grouping, that at least part of each piece of furniture sits on the rug. Otherwise, the group may look skimpy.

Natural wood is the most popular of hard-surface floorings. When combined with area rugs, natural wood flooring can be a most distinctive decorating accent.

Never wash wood flooring with soap and water or detergents. This will destroy the seal. Wood floors should be dry mopped regularly and cleaned with special wax-based cleaners made for wood floors, periodically. Waxing (one to four times a year, depending on traffic) and regular buffing will keep wood floors looking their best.

Never varnish over wax or existing varnish. If floors are in good shape, cleaning with steel wool (preferably by a professional) is all that is needed before varnishings. If floors are especially worn, sanding (again by a professional) will be needed before revarnishing. Tile squares or hard-surface sheeting is especially popular in heavy-traffic area—or in

Accessories Add To Room Theme

Accessories will bring the excitement and personality to your rooms. They will make your rooms come alive and will complete your decorating theme or mood.

The items that you select for accessories should be a reflection of your interests and those of your family.

Paintings, pieces of sculpture and objects of art, should, for example, be of situations and scenes which are known and enjoyed by those persons using the room. If your husband loves sports, why not have a painting showing his favorite sport? For a hunter—a scene or quail, for a fisherman—a quiet lake, for the skier—a crisp winter setting.

Should you enjoy plants and flowers, you may wish to turn a room divider into a miniature greenhouse. It will be a perfect separation for a living-dining room, as well.

Remember, too that small chests or commodes, usually thought of as accessory pieces, can be very functional when used in lieu of an end table, or for bedside or hall tables.

Lamps should also be selected for appearance as well as for lighting. Just as costume jewelry, they add drama. Today's selections feature beauty as well as function.

Be sure to remember to use

You Can Restore Tired Carpeting

You can easily restore worn-looking carpeting with your iron.

When carpet pile is crushed down because of furniture pressure or walking, ironing over the surface lightly will bring back the original texture.

Use a hot iron over a damp cloth or a steam iron. Be sure not to press down on the iron or you may scorch the carpeting.

rooms where spillage is at a maximum, such as kitchen, bathroom, rec room or nursery. These tiles or sheetings come in a variety of decorative colors and patterns and are easy to care for.

Wonders With Walls Possible

Walls need no longer be the "wall flowers" of the home. Scenic wallpaper, panels, contrasting paints, wood strips for architectural accent, a large painting or a group of paintings can all add dimension and interest to an otherwise plain room and increase attention to the walls.

An interesting decorative idea is to combine wood beams hung vertically with the same fabric as the sofa placed between the beams—serving as a backdrop for the sofa. Or, for accent, use a contrasting fabric to highlight the furnishing.

Another idea is to paint one wall in a pale room in a bold color as a highlight. Add an arrangement of pictures and/or art "treasures" to create a focal point.

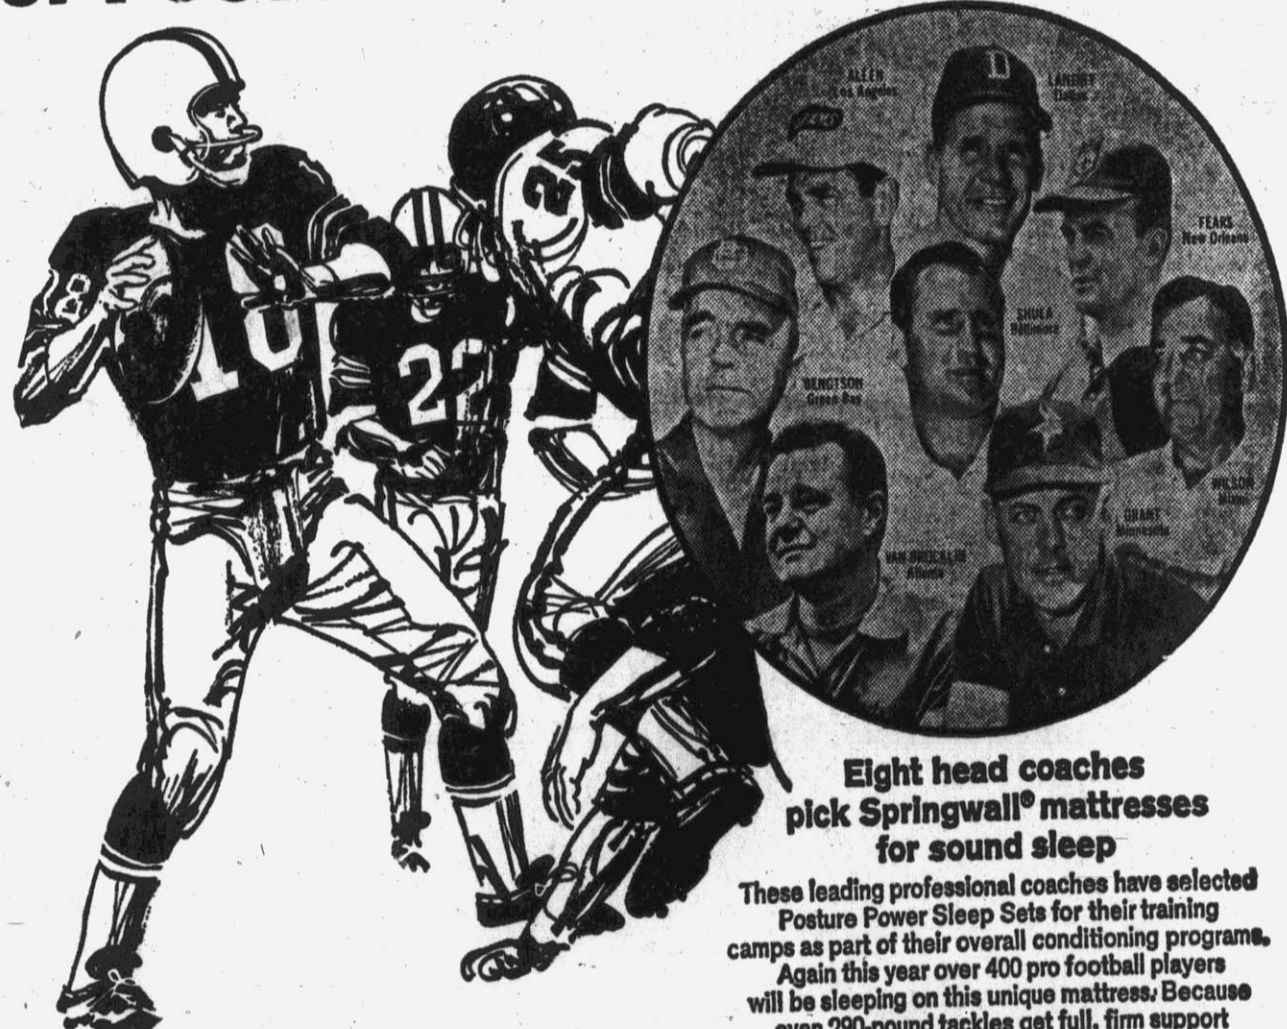

A small room can be made larger and "opened up" with the use of a scenic mural. Textured or wood-like wall coverings gives a rustic setting to a den or game room. Foli or flocked paper add a touch of elegance to a foyer or hallway.

ANY YOUNG GIRL would love to have this Swiss-style room which captures everything that's beautiful outdoors into a neat, lovely package. Dubbed "Eldelweiss," this furniture grouping is one of the model rooms created for Stanley Furniture by Frankie Harrington. The room affords a girl the privacy she seeks for entertaining friends, a place to study and attractive sleeping facilities.

More Than Light Added With Attractive Lamps

Attractively styled lamps to mix and match with today's furniture styles were introduced in the new American Furniture Mart.

Lamps today are used for more than just light. Elegant lamps or informal styles help set the tone for a room and accent the furnishings. Shades can be selected to match the basic color scheme of the room or in an accent color that complements or contrasts.

White shades are always popular. The new selections are trimmed with braid and fringe to match the base—and come in a variety of fabrics and shapes. They are used to top bases of all designs—wood and cork Mediterranean; wood Early American; non-breakable ceramics for all designs, and steel and aluminum modern bases.

Colorful, decorative shades will be popular this Market also. Embroidered shades can be used for elegance as well as to accessorize a child's room. Textured shades, nubby tweeds and velvets, will also be shown for Fall.

One important trend in lamps this Market is the use of the unbreakable material for the bases. New manufacturing processes and materials now make it possible to have lamps that can withstand most domestic mishaps... and that look good, as well.

The new materials duplicate wood, ceramic or metal. Many have the look of hand-crafted wood or metal with fine detailing and elegant styling.

Style-wise, many manufacturers will be showing coordinated collections with matching pole lamps and swags or hanging lamps.

In the modern lines, metal, Lucite, Plexiglas, chrome, as well as the naked bulb, will be seen. Simple lines and geometric shapes will be the rule. Yet, in keeping with the eclectic trend... many modern lamps will be shown softly shaped and boldly colored.

Pillows Today Are Not Only For Sleeping

Once used primarily for sleeping, today's homemakers are using pillows for unusual and unique decorating accents. Leading designers at the American Furniture Mart have added bold, bright pillows to enhance their room settings... combining contrasting colors, mod and zany prints, wallpaper patterns and scenic views.

Inflatable pillows—which can be used on the patio or in the backyard, as well as the indoors—serve double duty as footstools or informal seating pieces.

Large pillows go Japanese—use them instead of ottomans, or to seat guests who drop in. You can even combine several for a chaise lounge arrangement,

Bedroom Should Receive Decorative Attention

Let's talk about bedrooms! The room in your home in which you spend the most time and the same room which is the most often overlooked. In many homes, bedrooms take up half or more of the total living space. Yet, until just recently, bedrooms have received the smallest share of the home-maker's decorating attention, as well as the furniture dealer's merchandising efforts.

But, with the advent of super-sized bedding, increased popularity of dual-purpose furniture (sleeper-sofas) and the accent on co-ordinated bed linens, blankets and draperies, this has all changed. In the past decade, there has been a revolution in the bedroom!

Today's homemakers are finding more daytime use of bedrooms with the addition of furnishings to make the room into a study, sitting room or just a quiet spot to relax in solitude.

The master bedroom in many new homes now features a dining area as well as a private bath. But no matter how old or new your home, or how large or small the rooms, there are some basics to remember when decorating or redecorating the bedroom.

The bed (or beds), of course, is the most important element of the room. The bed is made of four components—mattress (foam latex, open coil inner-spring or pocketed coil inner-spring), spring, headboard and frames. Whether you chose twin, double, queen or king sized beds, your choice should be determined by quality of construction and comfort as well as asthetic appeal.

Since it is the largest unit in the room, placement of the bed is all-important and will determine the rest of your furniture arrangement. A good arrangement for twin beds is a right angles or, in a long, narrow room, foot to foot with a table dividing them.

Remember, when placing the bed, to keep sleeping comfort in mind. Make sure your bed is located in a spot away from daytime glare or nighttime street lighting. Ideally, there should be room for walking around three sides for ease in making the bed. An ideal arrangement is to confine one end of the bedroom for sleeping, the other for dressing and lounging space.

We're all aware of how important color is in influencing human moods. We've long been taught that restful colors—soft tints and cool hues—are the best choices for bedrooms. However, today the eclectic look is in and decorators are advocating bedrooms done in color schemes the inhabitants like, whether they run to brilliant or soft shades. And don't overlook patterns and (or) prints for the bedroom. Just as in other rooms of the home, a vivid stripe or a colorful floral can add life and warmth to the bedroom.

Since walls are the largest masses to be decorated, they should carry the dominant color of the room. If the bedroom is small, a light pastel shade will add the illusion of space. In most bedrooms, the ceiling should carry the lightest color tone.

Don't, however, overlook the many decorating possibilities when covering the walls. A landscape paper or large mural on the wall facing the bed would be a cheerful note to wake up to. A wood panelled wall, behind the bed, combined with papered or painted walls can add a note of elegance. A wall of mirrors—smoked, marbled or clear—can add a lush look, as well as the look of spaciousness. Draperies can be used to frame the bed or run the length of a wall, ceiling to floor, to create a formal tone. The ideas are limitless.

Floor coverings are another important consideration in the bedroom. They absorb sound, act as insulators and are the foundation for the entire decorative scheme. You may choose area rugs, wall-to-wall carpeting, linoleum or plastic sheet flooring or floor tiles in a variety of materials, depending on your taste and your decorating scheme. And, since the traffic is usually lighter than in public areas of the house, you may indulge in more frivolous colors in the bedroom than in other rooms.

Decorating bedroom windows takes time and thought. Selection of draperies, curtains and shades are important decorating accents throughout the home, in the bedroom they must also be chosen to control light and insure privacy.

Bedroom window treatment also offers an easy way to acquire a "decorator" touch to your room. Wooden window valences can be covered with wallpaper to match wall coverings to give the room a coordinated look. Another idea is to "quilt" the valence with foam and then cover with material to match bedspread and (or) draperies—or padded headboard.

Curtains or draperies can be selected to blend with walls or match bedding. Wood or plastic shutters can add style interest as well as act as a good means of controlling light.

New Decorative Life In Stored Furniture

Discarded—but still useful—furniture can be resurrected from attic or basement and unusual decorative life.

In keeping with today's eclectic look in home decor, an old chair, chest or table can easily be repainted or recovered to accentuate a room.

Scraps of material can be used to cover chests to compliment existing furnishings. (Sand drawers before covering to insure an easy glide.)

An old, discarded chair can be painted with a bright enamel to create an accent piece.

Occasional tables, which have been stored away, can be brought back to life with a little paint—or by covering with a fabric to match walls, seating pieces or draperies.

Old lamps find new uses by simply adding new shades. Or, spruce up existing shades with a little braid or bric-a-brac trim.

Out-grown nursery items can find many new uses. Baby's old chest of drawers can become the perfect storage unit for a spare room by repainting in two colors. Add mod decals to brighten the look.

A trip to the attic or basement, combined with a little imagination, can add new decorating magic to your home.

Arrange Your Furniture Right

Proper furniture arrangement is important in displaying your furnishings to the best advantage and also in getting the most use out of a room.

Here are some points to remember:

- Keep traffic lanes open.
- Place major conversational groupings so that they are not disturbed by traffic. It is also possible to redirect traffic by re-arranging furnishings.
- Place large pieces close to, and parallel to, the wall in order to use the least amount of wall space and conform to the lines of the room.
- Arrange furnishings so that each room has a center of interest or focal point.
- Group together the pieces that are used together, e.i. comfortable chairs and sofa for a conversation group; desk or table and chair to form work or hobby center.
- Determine the function of a piece by its arrangement. For instance, a bookcase or cabinet finished on both sides can become a room divider by its placement.

Make Room Size Fit Your Needs

There is little you can do to change the actual size of your rooms without knocking down walls or installing partitions. But there is much you can do to visually enlarge or decrease the size of a room.

If the room is too small, select draperies that match the walls. Stick with light colors, using the same color on ceiling as walls, but with a lighter tone on ceiling.

Select scaled-down furniture and accessories. Carpet the floors wall-to-wall, or use light-colored resilient flooring with small scatter rugs.

If the room is too large, select bigger, bolder patterns for draperies, upholstery and wallpaper. Choose warm colors in darker shades.

A CAREFREE GARDEN ROOM for indoor living has been created by Donald H. Opper for Kroehler Mfg. and Uniroyal. The sofa from Kroehler's Continental collection is upholstered in bluebell, naugahyde trimmed in white. The accent chairs are white chame trimmed in blue. White draperies and blue lattice-work and valance are vinyl from Uniroyal and match the tufted sofa and channel back, barrel swivel chairs.

Wallpapers Can Bring New Charm Into Home

Trying to find a new way to bring some warmth and charm into your home? Many times you can find the answer with wallpapers, with their many designs, patterns, prints and murals. In addition to bringing the design excitement you are looking for, wallpapers can be used to set off your furnishings.

The coming season's selection of wallpapers and coverings is larger and better than ever before. The attractive patterns range from traditional and prints to modern motifs and an assortment of contemporary art. You'll find stripes, geometric designs, scenes, florals, polka dots, checks, squares and also soft and elegant damasks.

Looking at the flocked and embossed papers, you'll see patterns, paisley and small prints in brilliant colors. And the combination of the vinyl coatings and non-fade color pigments make care an easy matter.

Then, for the do-it-yourself decorator, there is an equally large selection of the easy-to-handle prepasted papers. This category has a number of the scenic and panel patterns, many of which need only be dipped in water before hanging. And, the designs vary from floral and tree effects to nature scenes, to city street scenes, contemporary figures or characters from well known fiction and novels.

Use Imagination In Child's Room

Personalize and brighten a child's room with a few imaginative decorator touches.

If the room has a wood floor, add a colorful fantasy print area rug for color and warmth.

If the floor is covered with a solid carpet, a unique touch can be achieved by applying cut-outs of contrasting carpeting in patterns cut out from the existing floor covering. Sell-out carpet pieces can be obtained inexpensively for this purpose.

Plain white window shades can take on new interest by decorating with fabric scraps in patterns, animal or nursery decals, or painting to create a gay day-night scene.

Banana prints floral patterns or wild geometric prints can give life to pillows or covers for bed or chair. Two large bandana print handkerchiefs sewn together make a perfect cover for a small throw pillow.

The addition of wall shelves or a hutch on an existing chest of drawers offers an ideal spot to display collections or neatly house dolls, games and toys.

Decorating Tips

Dress up simple bed and mattress combination with a "custom" headboard made from wallpaper panels or strips of fabric and glued to wall.

COMPILING RECORD

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—The National Archives is interviewing Rhodesian pioneers to compile a record of the country's early days, Prime Minister Ian Smith announced, although explorers and missionaries visited Rhodesia from the 1850s onwards, white settlements did not begin until 1890.

Cites Impact Of Low Crime Rate

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Rhodesia's low crime rate "gives the lie to the incredible accusation that his country is a threat to world peace," said Justice, Law and Order Minister Desmond Lardner-Burke. Claiming Rhodesia was the only country where the crime rate was dropping, he said the number of prisoners decreased from more than 11,000 in 1964 to 9,000 at the beginning of May.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR GOV. RONALD REAGAN of California

Is it true that in order to stay in college, you washed dishes and posed for art classes?

—Doris Limieux, New

Hartford, N.Y.

● Yes, I washed dishes, but I did not pose for art classes.

FOR DR. THOMAS O. PAINE, NASA

Have any of the astronauts ever sighted satellites while in orbit?

—Dan Imfeld, Middletown, Ohio

● Yes. As recently as on Apollo 9, the crew sighted the unmanned LM upper stage after separation. LM was in a highly egg-shaped orbit while Apollo 9 was flying in a circular orbit.

FOR DORIS DAY

Is "Que Será, Será" your favorite song? If so, why?—Paul Hampton, Milligan College, Tenn.

● Yes, because of what it says—"Whatever will be, will be."

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director, FBI

Why can't women who fit the requirements become FBI agents?

—Jane Schuls, West Long Branch, N.J.

● Only male applicants are considered because of the hazardous nature of the work. Our agents must be qualified to handle all phases of work, including, for example, the use of firearms, participation in raids, dangerous assignments, or defensive tactics.

FOR MARK DUNCAN, NFL Director of Officials

Do interior offensive linemen in the National Football League wear certain numbers on their jerseys so the officials can tell more quickly if an ineligible man is down-field on a pass play?—Chet Juggert, Cheyenne, Wyo.

● Yes, interior linemen wear numbers in the 50s, 60s, and 70s to assist in officiating. If a player wearing a number in this series is to line up in a formation that would make him eligible to move down-field, he is required to notify the official prior to the play.

FOR TINA COLE of "My Three Sons"

Aren't you one of the King cousins? Which of the King sisters is your mother?—R. V. Liles, Raleigh, N.C.

● Yes, I am. Yvonne is my mother.

FOR F. J. MULLINS, Vice President, Marketing, American Airlines

Who plans the airline menus? From whom are supplies bought?

—Mrs. Art Rohr, Devils Lake, N.D.

● Menus are planned by two groups—our food experts in passenger services and, more important, our passengers.

Travelers are quick to tell us what they like and dislike, and they are the people we must please. Quality products are bought from suppliers throughout the country. Our purchasing specialists contract for meats, staples, and frozen items. Airline catering services such as our subsidiary, Sky Chefs, buy fresh vegetables, fruits, and baked goods.

FOR STANLEY R. RESOR, Secretary of the Army

Is it true that the Army once had a camel corps?—Conrad Fiorello, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● Yes, at one time before the War Between the States. The champion of the "camel cause" was Jefferson Davis. He felt they should be tried out in the deserts of the Southwest. After four controversial years, Congress approved a bill for the purchase of camels. Then the Army imported and used 75 camels to carry supplies and equipment between posts and to make short scouting trips. The project was short-lived.

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

On the "Tonight Show" you have made reference to Ralph Williams. Who is he?—Pender Franklin, Jr., Durham, N.C.

● He is a well-known automobile dealer in Los Angeles.

What in the World!

Executive Mom Peggy Pentaleri, 32, was the only woman in Syracuse University's class of '59 to receive a Bachelor of Industrial Engineering degree. Today she's vice president of Levin-Townsend Computer Corp., the third largest in the leasing field. When home at Parsippany, N.J., she's "just a housewife and mother of two boys. I don't expect much help from my husband," she told Family Weekly. "I work only because I want to." Peggy had her own modest computer business when her first son was born. "I worked that night until 3 a.m., then left for the hospital at 9." Is there anything she can't do? "I can't manage a household budget. I tried that once, and I was a failure."

Mailman's Best Friend Although most dog owners train their pets in good behavior, some 7,000 mailmen are bitten each year by exuberant dogs, according to former Postmaster General J. Edward Day. Also on record is one letter carrier attacked by a goose and one hospitalized by a vicious bantam rooster. No wonder the mail is late.

Empty Evening Alan Sues (Big Al on NBC-tv's "Laugh-In") will never forget his first day in his new apartment. "I locked myself out that night," he said. "The landlord was an old man, but he got a ladder for me to climb in the window. Now I was locked in! I called to him, but he walked away with the ladder, saying, 'I can't get anyone to fix the door until tomorrow morning.' I didn't have all my furniture in yet, no books, tv, or radio. The telephone wasn't connected. I had nothing to amuse myself with except $5 worth of food." Did you gorge yourself? "No, I was on a diet. So I took it all and watched it slowly go down the sink grinder—very slowly."

Countdown to Slenderness There are 12 million overweight boys and girls eight to 18 in the U.S., according to Gussie Mason, who runs a camp for overweight children. She gives parents practical advice in her book, "Help Your Child Lose Weight," and also lists some off-beat directives for the kids: if you want a bite of pie but are afraid you will wind up finishing it, heavily salt all but a tiny area. When you feel like a snack, phone a friend and talk instead. Keep counting as you walk away from temptation. Next time you're tempted to go off your diet, recall how high you counted before you forgot about it entirely—then start counting again.

Delicate "Strawberry Banke" Tea Cloth & Place Mat Sets

Our crisp, delicate strawberry tea cloth and place mats were inspired by a historic restoration now going on in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. When the early settlers arrived in this charming port, they found the riverbank covered with wild strawberries, hence its original name "Strawberry Banke." The design is stamped on heavy, cream white 100 percent linen. Both the 48-inch-square cloth and mats are already bound with a moss green "beauty edge," an embroidered finish that insures a flat edge. Completely finished 100 percent linen napkins are included in the kit and come in the same soft moss green.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order the Strawberry Tea Cloth and Place Mat kits now, while the supply lasts. You will be delighted by the color and beauty and fun they will add to your home. This is your only chance to order. Be sure to fill out coupon and mail it today. This offer will not be repeated in Family Weekly this season.

NATALIE WOOD— From Pampered Star to Doting Wife and Mother

As a child actress, she knew nothing but work; now she has family responsibilities—and loves them

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

NATALIE WOOD: contentedly married and mothering three lovey children!

It was a totally new concept for the doe-eyed beauty I'd known so long. Seventeen years before she'd given me her first interview. Before that, I'd watched her advent upon the Hollywood scene as a child. I speculated on the changes I could anticipate in Natalie, as I waited in her split-level Bel Air home.

And I recalled her mother telling me, "I raised my daughter to be a movie star. I completely subordinated my life, that of my husband, and our other two daughters to help Natalie get ahead."

In spite of her father's objections to show-business involvement for his daughter, Natalie's mother remained true to her obsession. Natalie had whatever was necessary to steadily build her career.

And while she left Natalie's dramatic training to the directors, Mom took over the care of her daughter's personal life so that Natalie grew up fully concentrating on acting, while her mother answered fan letters, did her shopping, and performed every chore around the house.

Natalie never had to dry a dish, make a bed, put her clothes away, or keep track of a checking account. This lack of training later backfired unhappily on Natalie, when, in 1961, her four-year marriage to actor Robert Wagner failed. "I may have spoiled her too much," worried her mother at the time of the wedding.

While Natalie's teen life appeared care-free, privately she struggled through a miserable existence. "It was the worst time of my life," she confessed. "Not only was it hard to find the right roles, but I was awkward and self-conscious."

By the time she was 16, her role opposite James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause" won her an Academy Award nomination. Still working hard at her trade, Natalie played Maria in "West Side Story" and chalked up another Oscar nomination in 1964 for "Love with the Proper Stranger."

But Natalie's personal life deteriorated.

Heartbroken when her close friend James Dean met his tragic death, Natalie bottled up her thoughts and, except to her anonymous psychiatrist, refused to discuss what went wrong.

When people insisted that one need only see how totally consumed Natalie was with her career to pinpoint the trouble, I couldn't help remembering Natalie's sincerity when, before her marriage to Bob, she told me, "I can't believe that a career can ever become all-important to a woman. It's completely unnatural!"

In trying to sort out her personal life once more, Natalie confessed, "Most people spend the better part of their lives trying to find out what they want. Happiness is so elusive. I honestly can't visualize what I'll be 10 years from now . . ."

Now, eight years later, Natalie's voice outside the door sounded deeper than I remembered, more mature. As it should be, I reasoned, now that she is a 31-year-old woman with a family. But her voice, and my imagination, misled me. The petite Natalie Wood who bounded barefoot into the room, dressed in a fetching doll-sized romper outfit, looked more like one of the youngsters she was supposed to mother than the woman I'd mentally constructed!

"I am sorry I'm late," she apologized. "I was taking my French lesson, and there was so much to do. The children—Sarah, who is 10, and Charlotte, 9, and Hugo, 7, a miniature of my husband, are coming over from England next week. We're so happy."

Natalie's new life began almost three years ago when publicist Rupert Allen invited her to dinner to meet Richard Gregson, who was visiting from England. Gregson was getting a divorce, so Allen decided to play cupid, seating the two side by side. Allen knew that Natalie was unattached, although she had been romantically linked with actor Warren Beatty. "It was really strange," recalled Natalie. "I sat down, and he sat down, and we turned to look at one another—and that was it!" She promised to visit Gregson in England.

Gregson proposed as soon as Natalie arrived. There was one hitch, however. In England it is difficult to obtain a divorce. Natalie and Richard waited two years for his freedom. During all that time, Natalie refused to accept a film role for fear she couldn't be with him. For Natalie, the waiting period was a good thing. "It gave the children and me time to get to know one another."

At first, Natalie was not sure that they should have a church wedding after waiting so long. "But then I decided I wanted something I could remember." She smiled as she showed me pictures of the ceremony.

I commented on her wedding bouquet of wild blossoms and strands of golden wheat. Natalie smiled and said, "That's an old Russian fertility symbol. My parents were Russian." As my eyebrows raised, she continued, "Oh, yes, I'd like two or three children of my own!"

Natalie continued to surprise me. Unable to even boil water, she had somehow learned gourmet cooking and had become a licensed decorator as well. She decorated her husband's office before he decided to return to writing (he coauthored "The Angry Silence," for which he received an Academy Award nomination).

Her one extravagance, she admits, is clothes. One day the children saw a picture of her in a magazine, and when they asked their father about it, he explained that she was in films and was a famous lady. And then Sarah said knowingly, "That explains why she is so clever and has so many pretty clothes."

Natalie was enticed back into movies this year with the role of Alice in a film about modern marriage and morality called "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice." "I was looking for something unique," she explained, "and I feel this picture is."

Does Richard object to her career? "No, as long as it doesn't interfere with our lives." If it should, could she give it up? Natalie looked at me as if I were simple-minded. "Why, I did—for two years—and it was easy!"

As I rose to leave, I couldn't resist the query, "Natalie, what took you so long to discover how to be really happy?"

"I guess just finding the right man," she admitted. ♦

Now you have a second chance.

If you missed the chance to enjoy making music the first time around, the Wurlitzer organ and Hobby Lesson Course give you a second chance to get in on the fun.

To express the music that's in you, and to share it with others . . . that's one of life's biggest pleasures. And it's a pleasure you don't have to miss anymore, even if you never played a note before. Share an African adventure in a palace studded with jewels and guarded by lions; meet
An American Couple Visits the

By JHAN AND JUNE ROBBINS

RECENTLY, during a visit to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, we kept hearing colorful descriptions of Haile Selassie, the country's 77-year-old monarch, one of the world's last autocrats, a man both feared and beloved by his subjects.

That night at dinner an English journalist exclaimed, "The titles that man possesses—Emperor of Ethiopia, Elect of God, King of Kings, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, King of Zion—and that isn't all! But on him they all look so good!"

Our host, an Italian businessman who has lived many years in Ethiopia, said, "When the natives see Selassie's automobile passing by, they throw flowers, kneel, and burst into tears! Mussolini should have taken that into account before he ordered the invasion!"

We were intrigued by all these comments and felt that the Emperor would be an exciting person to meet.

When we requested an interview, a court spokesman said, "HIM (Selassie is rarely referred to as anything else, and HIM means His Imperial Majesty) is very, very busy, but I'll make special mention of your desire."

The following day, as we watched the Emperor's Rolls-Royce slowly pass by on Churchill Street, Addis Ababa's main thoroughfare, one excited man ripped off his shirt and waved it furiously. A woman kept bowing and moving her right hand counter-clockwise as she twirled a Coptic Cross, the double-barred cross of Charlemagne with the six-pointed star of David.

Our comments attracted the attention of a young man. He bowed and said, "Please do not think me forward, but I speak your language as I am a student at the University. If those people do not act that way, it could be very difficult for them. HIM expects such adoration, and it is not uncommon for the police to arrange such demonstrations of affection!" The Ethiopian did not seem to be afraid of being overheard because he added, "My poor country has much poverty and despair. However, we are making some progress!"

A professor at Haile Selassie University told me, "Ethiopians are leaping forward, but they still have much leaping to do. Many people in this country are still living in the 16th and 17th centuries. When Selassie dies—after all, he has been ruling for 38 years—there will be a shooting match, but there is little Communist movement here, so it doesn't seem to matter to Ethiopians who wins!" Selassie's son is now under virtual house arrest after being involved in an unsuccessful coup to overthrow his father in 1964.

Our request for an interview was finally granted. The only rule that we would have to observe was not to quote Selassie directly. We also learned that he often gives extravagant presents to people he likes.

a ruler who has survived invasion and coup as

Emperor of Ethiopia

The palace grounds are surrounded by a fence higher than that which surrounds Buckingham Palace or the White House. Visitors walking up from the parking lot are greeted by an enormous, free-roaming lion named Tojo and the ominous roars of several others that are caged. We clutched each other tightly at one ferocious roar.

The staff tiptoes and talks in whispers as they shuffle up and down the steps of the mud-colored stucco palace that has precious stones—emeralds, opals, amethysts, diamonds, and sapphires—set into the exterior walls.

The reception room is lavishly furnished. The bookshelves hold a collection of and about Winston Churchill. The only incongruity is an embroidered Victorian sampler that reads, "God bless our home." We were told that it was a present from a lady in Rhode Island.

Although the Emperor is slightly more than five feet tall, his impact is enormous. When we met him, he was wearing a light tan uniform with 13 military decorations. He received us in a large, sunlit room, but the day was chilly and a fire crackled on the hearth. His two papillon—something like a Chihuahua—also a gift from the United States, snuggled on a polar-bear rug. The Emperor sat in a silver-gilt chair that bore a royal crest. He already had sent word that he would speak only in Amharic, his country's tongue. But he is fluent in English, so as we spoke, he often bypassed the interpreter. The Emperor made a great point of saying that Ethiopia was the only country that has held together since Biblical times and that his people do not give up easily. He then told us that Ethiopia slumbered historically for a very long time partly because it was and remains a Christian country surrounded by Islamic nations. Haile Selassie recalled the classic story of how the Biblical Queen of Sheba, then Empress of Ethiopia, heard of the wisdom of King Solomon and traveled with 1,100 retainers and 2,000 horses and camels to Israel to hear the great King's lectures.

We were reminded that in The Song of Solomon it is recorded that King Solomon, entranced by the Queen of Sheba's beauty, pointed out that she was in his power. She replied that Ethiopia was no power to be trifled with. Solomon offered an agreement—he would not approach her unless or until she took something during the course of her visit that belonged to him. She answered calmly that she therefore could not be more safe, as Ethiopians are not thieves.

Solomon, in his wisdom, arranged however to have Sheba served a very spicy and salty dinner without either wine or water. Sheba went serenely to sleep but woke up several hours later parched with thirst. Solomon had left a crystal jug of water in her room. She drank from it. Solomon promptly appeared from behind a curtain, claimed default, and the line of Judean-Ethiopian rulers was that night established. Hundreds of centuries later, Haile Selassie is the result.

Selassie waved both hands as he told us that he is determined to move his country forward peacefully. In order to do so, he believes African nations must avoid major wars among themselves and walk an amenable and opportunistic tightrope among the great powers.

When we asked him what he regarded as his greatest achievement, he said in English that he feels that a country can only be strong if its people are educated. The Emperor has turned his former palace into a university which bears his name. Of the examples of student unrest we had seen, he merely said that there also was a great deal of student unrest in the U.S., but it didn't mean that education or the country was doomed.

In 1935 Mussolini's Italian army occupied Ethiopia, and Selassie despite a very eloquent plea for help before the League of Nations, was forced into exile. Selassie believed that he was destined to go back to Ethiopia after the end of the five year Italian occupation to help his people.

He told us that on Jan. 20, 1941, he crossed back into his country. It was shortly before noon when his plane landed in a field that had been hacked out of the jungle. He marched the 500 yards to the border and ran up an Ethiopian green, yellow, and red standard on a flagpole.

We said that we had been married on a Jan. 20. He smiled and remarked that it was indeed a lucky day. We had visited Selassie's private stable that morning and mentioned how impressed we were with his magnificent Arabian-Ethiopian ponies. When we told him that we owned horses, the conversation turned to horse breeding, of which he knew a great deal. The Emperor said that riding was the best way for a man to get away from his cares. Then, sighing, he remarked that although it was a lovely day to mount his favorite steed, he had to work.

We took this as a sign to depart. As we were about to leave, he said that one of his mares would shortly foal and that although we raised fine horses in the U.S., no stable was complete without an Ethiopian pony. We agreed.

Recalling that he gives expensive gifts, we wonder whether the mail soon will bring news that a foal from HIM is en route.

Emperor's residence, whose walls are studded with precious jewels.

plant now during the winter & grow full-size Gardenias—indoors & at home

MINIATURE GARDENIA TREES!

Imagine the thrill of producing these delicate, fragrant snow white blossoms in your own living room!

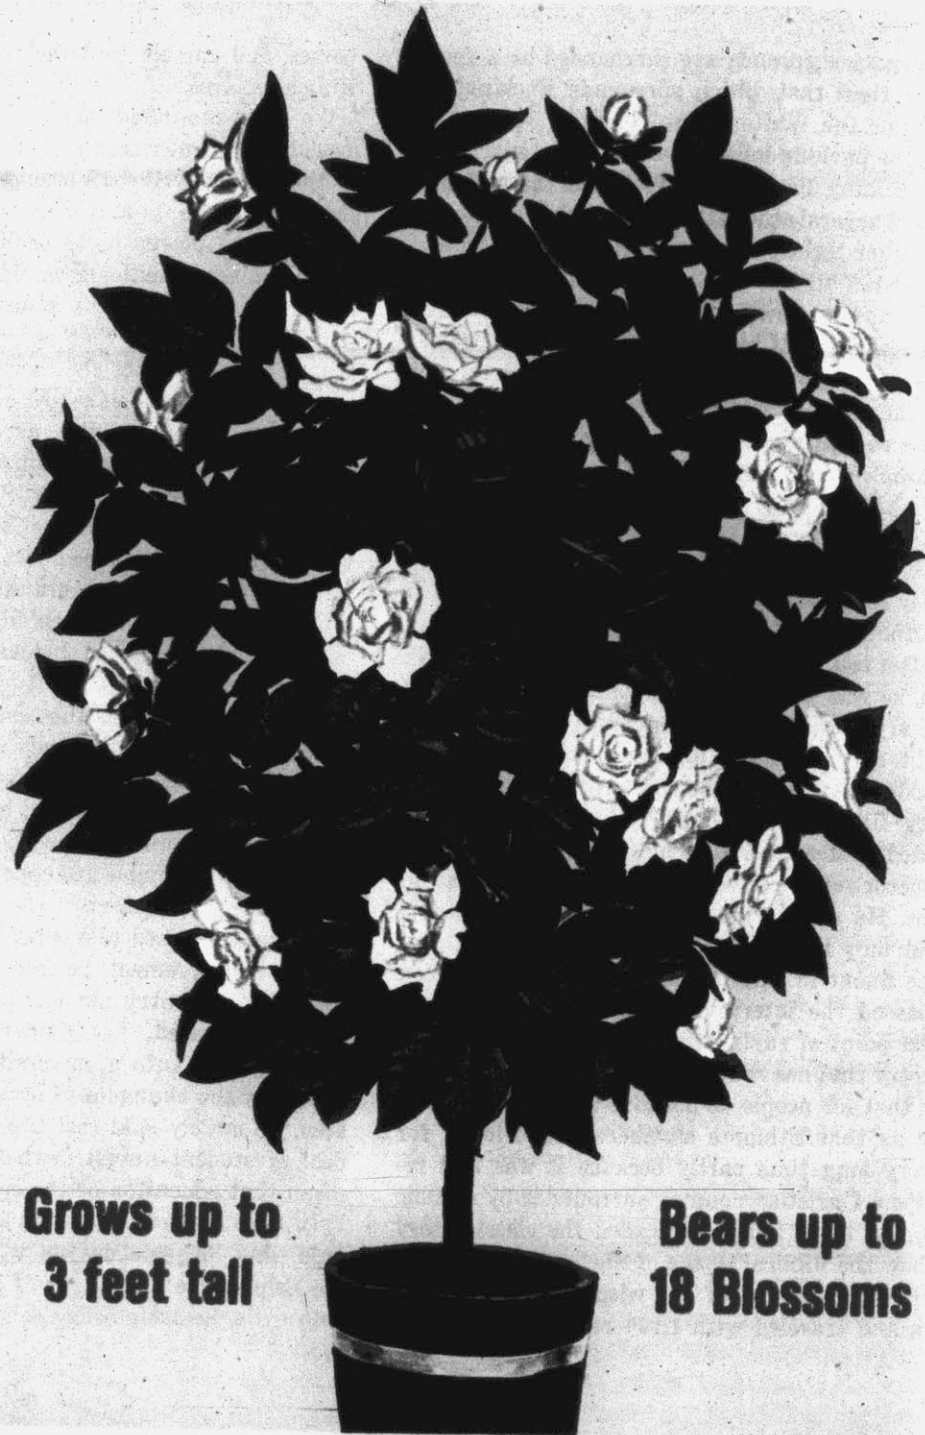

These are marvelous true miniature trees, little botanical gems grown and developed for planting INDOORS where they blossom and thrive all year 'round. All are true trees, not grafts, but rooted cuttings of good well-known varieties, and they grow exotic full-size flowers (and fruit) indoors, right in your own home! A horticulturally amazing adaptation of Bonsai, the Japanese art of growing miniature trees that dates back to 1868, they are the oldest yet newest and most exciting gardening thrill. Developed in the propagating house of a Florida tree-growing plantation, each cutting is taken from certified stock trees that never touch the ground, placed on wire frames, and roots are bound to make the trees smaller just as Oriental women used to bind their feet. It is an astonishing accomplishment! Just imagine—when the Gardenia buds, then bursts into beautiful fragrant blossoms, its unforgettable fragrance and dark green foliage will thrill you, your family and your friends—and you'll even be able to make your own corsage! They enhance and decorate your house and table all through the year, year after year. Nationally advertised in House & Garden Magazine, all these miniature trees have glossy foliage easily trimmed and shaped, all grow from 8 inches when you receive them to 3 feet tall! Beautiful to have and give, they are real conversation pieces.

SHIPPED FROM FLORIDA GROVES IN BEAUTIFUL COLOR GIFT-BOX

Just think what a wonderful and really unusual gift these trees make. Each is in its own pot, individually boxed in an especially nice, bright, colorful package that enhances the tree. All are shipped directly to you from Florida groves. You can have your own little grove if you order now!

ORDER NOW—THIS YEAR'S PLANTING LIMITED

Grows up to 3 feet tall

Bears up to 18 Blossoms

Also Available: Miniature Coffee, Hibiscus & Palm Trees

Miniature Coffee Tree

Now you can produce plump, tasty clusters of prime coffee beans nestled among snowy white blossoms, and when the Central American coffee tree buds, then bursts into beautiful fragrant blossoms (with an unforgettable scent of jasmine) then grows heavy, aromatic clusters of beans, you even will be able to make your own coffee, fresh every day!

Florida Palm Tree

Miniature Hibiscus

An exotic touch of the West Indies, a slow easy grower that produces really magnificent blossoms. Famous as Hawaii's national flower, the Hibiscus flowers profusely. There is always a formation of buds behind each bloom that blooms itself shortly thereafter. You have your choice of red or golden.

MINIATURE INDOOR FRUIT-BEARING TREES!

ORANGE

Get your greatest gardening thrill when these sturdy little trees BUD, BLOOM and BEAR fruit right in your own home! Easier to grow than many common house plants, their glossy green foliage is easily shaped. It's a fine way to have fresh fruit all year 'round, and before you know it you'll be eating oranges that you'll pluck yourself sitting at the breakfast table. Bears up to 30 fruit!

LEMON

Countless articles have been written describing the many, many years of pleasure growing lemon trees in your home. Watching these miniature trees bud, bloom and bear fruit as a direct result of your own efforts will be a great "green thumb" thrill. You'll have fresh, full-size lemons year after year in addition to a handsome and unique tree whose foliage you can trim and shape as you wish.

LIME

Anyone having had the pleasure of tasting Florida's famous "Key Lime Pie" will need no introduction to this wonderful little tree. Those who have not should start a lime grove in the kitchen window now. Eager and easy to grow indoors, the lush dark-green foliage, fragrant blossoms and subsequent fruit will provide a gardening achievement not soon forgotten.

How We Can Solve the Trash Crisis

Only revolutionary ideas may help us stem the overwhelming tide of refuse

By ANDY SUGAR

DISPOSABLE pop bottles, abandoned automobiles, obsolete refrigerators—just plain garbage. They all add up to a monumental headache for many communities across the country. How can we get rid of all the waste affluent America constantly produces?

Each year this nation produces solid wastes weighing 250 billion pounds. That would make a mountain a city-block wide—and 50 miles high. Each one of us throws out 5.3 pounds of solid waste a day or 2,000 pounds a year. What's more, that amount will triple in 10 years.

Compounding the problem is a shortage of laborers willing to work garbage routes, reduced land-fill areas for dumping, and our awareness of the hazards of pollution.

Obviously such a crisis needs a solution, and some of the proposed solutions are revolutionary.

For instance, the U.S. Public Health Service has awarded several grants to study the transportation of refuse and other solid wastes by rail from cities to abandoned strip mines.

The PHS is also looking into the possibilities of pumping liquefied garbage through a pipeline from Chicago "to make marginal Illinois lands productive for agriculture without hazard to human health."

There are machines which can compress raw garbage into small solid blocks 1/15th the original size. Industrial designers like Jerome Gould are working to create a glass bottle that melts when broken. Other scientists are exploring the possibilities of formulating paper cartons that will dissolve in water.

But probably the most bizarre research is in finding ways to refine garbage and extract its nutrients.

The seemingly exotic, comic-strip solutions to trash disposal have become imperative now. Cities such as Philadelphia have already signed contracts to have solid wastes railroaded to distant empty mines.

The SFM Corporation of New Jersey has machinery that pulverizes all kinds of garbage including glass, metal cans, plastic, and wood into tiny bits and then compresses the remains into solid cubes, two-by-two inches. The volume of the solid wastes is reduced to 1/15th of what it was and, though this process doesn't kill germs, it does squeeze out oxygen and liquids that cause putrefaction, so the little squares of garbage don't smell.

A Japanese scientist, Dr. Kunitoshi Tezuka, has invented a compacting and coating machine to overcome the bacterial problem. After he compresses the garbage into cubes, they are dipped in asphalt or concrete, making them completely immune to decomposition.

Other techniques being proposed are burning the garbage at sea in a specially designed incinerator ship and dumping the residue overboard; grinding up food wastes and biologically reducing the organic wastes to a low-grade fertilizer; and shredding the garbage apart by the use of ultrasonic waves.

Nonreturnable bottles and plastics are the biggest headaches of the sanitary engineers. "Plastics," said a study by the Karman Center of Aero Jet-General Corporation in California, "are completely immune to biological decomposition. If we bury them, they remain almost indefinitely in their original state. If we burn them, they contribute hydrocarbons and oxides of nitrogen (dangerous air pollutants) to our atmosphere."

So plastics have been formulated that will decay within two or three years in sunlight or will be "refinable," meaning the materials could be sent back to the manufacturer to be melted down and used again.

Research in the "evaporating" glass bottles is accelerating. Dr. Samuel F. Hulbert of Clemson University in South Carolina says he has a bottle that will behave just like glass—until it is broken. Then it will become soft and greasy and eventually melt away. Dr. Hulbert is also experimenting with a packaging material that will dissolve in water.

What about refuse being useful again? Dr. Byron Miller of Colorado University is researching the biological conversion of animal wastes into nutrients. Another study was done by Dr. Seymour S. Block "to investigate the production of composts from municipal and industrial wastes capable of yielding mushrooms for human consumption and producing the protein and vitamin-rich fungus mycelium for animal food."

Other grants have been awarded by the Government to find methods of extracting such nutrients as citric acid and pectin enzymes.

Dr. W. Dexter Bellamy of General Electric Research and Development has proposed using one-celled microbes (a trillion could be held in a tablespoon) to digest most trash. In doing so, the trash would be converted into microbial protein which could be fed to livestock. The livestock, in turn, would convert the former trash into protein usable by man.

Science is also struggling with the problem of reclaiming base metals from old autos, tv sets, refrigerators, and other massive nonfood trash. One expert, Dr. Arthelstan Spilhaus of the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia has recommended that we "bank" our potentially valuable junk until we can economically extract the various important ingredients to be used over again.

But whatever solution is found, whether it be bizarre or even banal, something must be done soon. Former President Johnson emphasized the urgency of the critical situation when he said, "Rachel Carson once wrote, 'In biological history, no organism has survived long if its environment became in some way unfit for it, but no organism before man has deliberately polluted its own environment.'"

How would YOU answer these 3 Bible Questions?

► To whom is the Bible addressed? Everyone?

► Who speaks in the Bible? God or man, or both?

► What is the primary message of the Bible?

A clear understanding of these 3 Bible questions is essential to benefit fully from God's message and promises to man.

These questions are answered in a booklet "Understanding the Bible" written by a Bible scholar to help people benefit more from their Bible study.

This booklet, which has helped thousands gain a clearer understanding of God's message to man, is available at no charge.

Tricks and Tasty Treats

MELANIE DE PROFT - Food Editor

■ Homemade candies and cookies are just right for handouts to the "trick-and-treat" group. Adults, too, will enjoy these special treats. Using large squares of aluminum foil, bag an assortment of packaged peanuts, marshmallows, commercial candies such as candy bars, corn, orange slices, caramels, and multi-colored candy-coated milk-chocolate candies. Tie each foil pouch with an orange ribbon. Put one in each extended hand when "trick and treaters" come to call.

Butterscotchies

- ½ cup undiluted evaporated milk
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 6 oz. (1 cup) butterscotch-flavored pieces
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup flaked coconut
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 2 to 2½ cups crisp ready-to-eat cereal

1. Put evaporated milk, sugar, salt, and butter or margarine into a heavy 2-qt. saucepan. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly, and boil 2 min.
2. Remove from heat. Add butterscotch pieces and extract; stir until smooth. Add coconut, nuts, and cereal; toss lightly until well coated.
3. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto a cookie sheet which has been lined with waxed paper or aluminum foil. Allow to stand until set. About 1½ lbs.

Fruit Jewels

- 1 cup sifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- ½ cup undiluted evaporated milk
- 2 cups chopped mixed candied fruit
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 6 oz. (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
- 1 cup seedless raisins

1. Sift the flour, baking powder, salt, and spices together; set aside.
2. Cream butter or margarine; gradually add brown sugar, creaming well. Mix in orange peel.
3. Alternately add dry ingredients in thirds and evaporated milk in halves, mixing until blended after each addition. Stir in remaining ingredients.
4. Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls onto lightly greased cookie sheets.
5. Bake at 375°F. about 12 min.
6. Cool cookies on wire rack.

7. If desired, coat the bottoms of cooled cookies with Chocolate Decorating Dip (see recipe). 6 to 7 doz. cookies

Double Flavor Fudge

- 1 cup undiluted evaporated milk
- 2¼ cups sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 16 large marshmallows or 1 cup marshmallow cream
- 6 oz. (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- 6 oz. (1 cup) butterscotch-flavored pieces

1. For chocolate layer, put evaporated milk, sugar, salt, butter or margarine, and marshmallows or marshmallow cream into a heavy 3-qt. saucepan. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly, and boil 5 min. Remove from heat. Add the chocolate pieces and extract; stir until smooth. Mix in nuts.
2. Line bottoms of two 8-in. square pans with waxed paper or aluminum foil, allowing ends to extend over two opposite sides of each pan. Divide mixture equally in pans. Set aside.
3. For butterscotch layer, use ingredients and follow procedure (step 1) as in chocolate layer, substituting butterscotch pieces for chocolate pieces. Divide mixture in half and turn each half onto a chocolate layer. Cool; chill until firm.
4. Loosen fudge from pan, lift out or invert onto a board, peel off paper or foil, and cut fudge into squares. If desired, top with walnut halves. About 4 lbs.

Chocolate Decorating Dip for Cookies

- 12 oz. (2 cups) semisweet chocolate pieces
- 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
- ½ cup undiluted evaporated milk

1. Melt chocolate in the top of a double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Add confectioners' sugar and evaporated milk; beat until smooth. Keep on the heat over hot water while dipping; stir occasionally.
2. Dip cooled cookies (prepared from a cookie mix) in chocolate, put on waxed paper-lined cookie sheet, and allow to stand until set. 2¼ cups

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS 1 OUT OF 3 DOES

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it. To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist. Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... special sizes for children and adults.

Dog Nearly Itches to Death

"I thought we'd have to put Daisy to sleep, she suffered so from large itching sores. I had about given up trying things when I found Sulfodene. The itching stopped, sores soon healed, hair grew back. Bless you for Sulfodene," says Mrs. John Burmester, New Jersey.

SULFODENE liquid medication relieves frenzied itching almost instantly. Quickly promotes healing of fungus itch-sores (often called mange, eczema, hot spots). Used by kennels and veterinarians. For dogs and cats. Get SULFODENE today. At drug stores and pet departments.

New Ways to Help Your Pre-Schooler Learn

A noted educator is proving that the child who isn't learning simply isn't being taught

LITTLE JOHNNY can't understand how to tell time. So his mother follows him around with a clock. She keeps telling him the time and asking him the time.

Then she buys him a toy watch, and she is determined that he will learn even if she must smother him with lessons.

Little Mary can't understand how to tell time. Her father says she's a bright child and that she is just being obstinate. "You could do it if you wanted to," he rages. "You're a naughty girl! No more dessert until you learn this one simple thing!" Father is determined that she'll learn even if he has to punish her.

"The two most common faults of parents trying to prepare their child for learning is smothering and punishing," according to Siegfried Engelmann, an iconoclastic educator at the Institute for Research on Exceptional Children at the University of Illinois. "But any parent can instill in a child a love of learning, as long as they themselves understand the teaching principles," he adds. These include:

1. All children can be taught. If a child does not learn, it is because he isn't taught.
2. Start early. Half of all growth in human intelligence takes place between birth and age four.
3. Teaching should be made pleasant.
4. Don't be surprised if you can't teach some basic thing in a moment or a day.
5. Always end the lesson on a note of accomplishment.
6. Let him know you are on his side.
7. Use praise and give him the reward of showing off his new knowledge.
8. If you have set standards too high, he will fail.

When should you apply these principles?

As young as 18 months, according to Engelmann, the baby is ready to learn "what he is, where he is, and who loves him." His self-image and his approach to later life, cautious or daring, is in the process of being formed. A parent can teach his infant the basic assumptions of language even before he knows how to talk. Engelmann also says that when baby naps, the household should not tiptoe and whisper; if he is to learn to concentrate, he must be able to shut out noises himself.

A baby can soon start building toward a useful vocabulary, if his parents name parts of his body while pointing them out. Always speak in complete sentences, too, not nouns and verbs only. "This is your..." is as important in the learning process as "hand" is.

After about a year, have him try to point to his hands and toes. Although he will make mistakes, he is getting the idea that language is not just sounds, but something to be transformed into actions.

Little children cannot recognize a familiar person in a photograph because the person is only two-dimensional. They can identify that person only as a three-dimensional object. So Engelmann suggests teaching your child to identify animals from well-illustrated books first.

At two years, you may teach several lessons weekly with the following steps:

- 1) Isolate the object. 2) Name it. 3) Ask him to repeat. 4) Relate the book object, name it, and then relate it to the real object. Caution: you must realize that the baby can't see much difference between a tiger and a giraffe, so point it out.

Don't be afraid to admit that you don't know. Have reference books on hand. He will follow your example.

Don't inadvertently give your child a downgrading self-image with such remarks as, "You'll never learn." It frequently takes a trained person to undo this unfair handicap to learning. "If he's been hitting too many snags lately," Engelmann adds, "it's all right to rig it so he will have the satisfaction of doing the next thing right."

Engelmann's concepts have been incorporated in teachers' manuals, records, and children's workbooks published by Instructional Media of America, Inc., New York City.

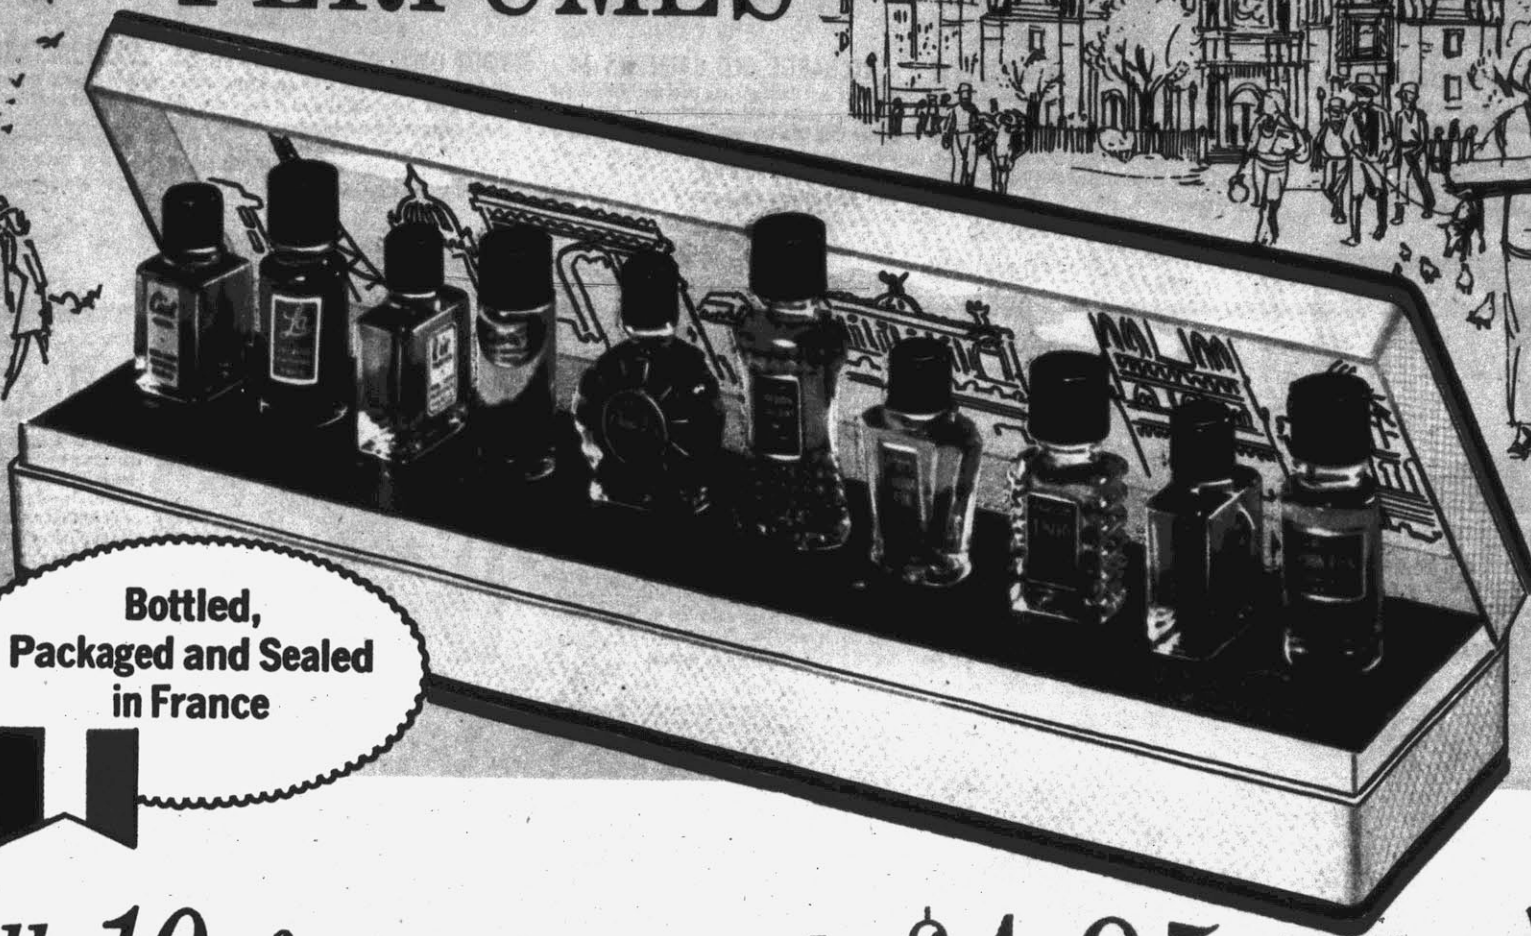

According to its president, Norman Franzen, the first special pre-school program was held at the University of Illinois. It took children with an average I.Q. of 95 and sent them to first grade with an average I.Q. of 121 (the top 5 percent of the nation).

But the most important factor in helping your child love to learn is you, the parent—your patience, understanding, and thoroughness.

SELF-HELP QUIZ:

What Do You Know About Your Intuition?

SCIENTISTS are as curious about the phenomenon of intuition as the layman. In their studies they've learned some interesting facts about this elusive characteristic. Try this true-and-false quiz to learn about intuition—and how much of it you have.

1. Intuition is something that only women have.
2. Intuitive thinking is not infallible and sometimes comes up with the wrong answer.
3. Intuitive thinking can solve problems which logical or analytical thinking cannot.
4. It's difficult for a person to tell when his intuitive faculties are functioning and when they are temporarily "turned off."
5. Intuitive people have different personalities than the non-intuitive ones.
6. Intuitive people enjoy taking chances.
7. Your intuitive faculties function best when you're tense.
8. A well-developed intuitive sense makes a person "lucky."

ANSWERS

1. False. Intuition is no more confined to one sex than thinking is. As a matter of fact, it is a form of thinking. But as Harvard University studies have demonstrated, it differs markedly from ordinary analytical thinking which proceeds logically, one step at a time. Intuitive thinking, on the contrary, is described as a mental short cut, a perceptive leap, bringing the intuitive thinker an answer which arrives so quickly that he is scarcely aware of the process.
2. True. But, as Harvard scientist Dr. Jerome S. Bruner points out, all of our faculties are fallible, and logical thinking can result in wrong answers, too.
3. True. The same study showed that intuition can often provide answers to problems in science, as well as in everyday life, which would be extremely difficult—if not impossible—to achieve with logical thinking only.

4. False. The noted psychiatrist, Dr. Eric Berne, made a study on intuition and the way it works. He finds that the intuitive person can almost always sense when this sense is operative and when it isn't. It is, he notes in summing up his findings, a special feeling, which comes and goes.
5. True. Psychological studies at Vassar showed that persons who made high scores on solving test problems intuitively (without being given clues necessary for analysis) differed from the others in the following ways: they were much more self-confident, had quicker reflexes, were more creative-minded, and able to express their thoughts and feelings with greater clarity. They also tended to be markedly individualistic persons.
6. True. Intuitive people tended to be much more fearless in every way than the nonintuitive and much less afraid of being criticized by others.
7. False. Studies show that mental states which produce tension, tend to paralyze intuitive perception. On the other hand, serenity and self-confidence help the delicately sensitive "sixth" sense to function at peak efficiency.
8. True. In a crucial situation, intuitiveness enables the person to sense tangible and intangible factors more swiftly and accurately than with the slower processes of reasoning and deduction. This permits quick judgments which makes it easier to take instant advantage of opportunities.

The Fun Begins When The Lights Go Off!

Christmas Ornaments Glow in the Dark, Cost Five Cents! Won't Shatter, Wear Out, or Burn Out! Guaranteed!

(HOLLYWOOD) Now, for the first time you can decorate your Christmas tree with the amazing new and improved Magi-Glo ornaments that "come to life" when the lights go off!

Glow and Float in Space!

These unique gold, silver, red, green and white ornaments add a festive spirit to the most elegant tree, under ordinary lighting conditions. But listen to the delighted gasps of surprise when you turn the lights out!

Then, in total darkness, your Magi-Glo ornaments continue to glitter, gleam, and glow and give the illusion of gently floating in space!

Won't Wear Out or Burn Out!

Magi-Glo ornaments will brighten your Christmas, year after year after year! That's because your Magi-Glo ornaments can't wear out or burn out! Magi-Glo's microscopic energy units can be charged and recharged indefinitely! And they require no batteries or electrical connections!

Wonderful, Magical Figures!

Designed by American artists, produced by American craftsmen, Magi-Glo designs embrace all the traditional, wonderful, magical figures of Christmas: Cuddly Santa Clauses! Darling Christmas angels! Sparkling stars! Delectable candy canes! Shimmering Christmas trees! Gleaming candles! Caroling bells! And many more!

Discovery is "Accidental"

A TV and motion picture producer accidentally discovered the secret process that makes this spectacular effect possible, while investigating special effects for a science-fiction movie.

Researching phosphorescent materials, he found the only known methods of application (hand painting and silk screening) were often unsatisfactory and always costly. However (because he didn't know that it "couldn't be done") he developed a new method using high speed lithography and injection moulding.

Then, inspiration! He realized that his secret process would make it possible to produce stunning Christmas ornaments. They'd glow in the dark, yet cost less than ordinary ornaments!

Shatterproof Ornaments!

Next, he ruled out breakable materials, so even the youngest member of the family could share the thrill of trimming the Christmas tree. The final choices included specially treated shatterproof materials (durable enough for outdoor display!) as well as metallic laminates on heavy stock.

Excited by the enthusiastic comments of his normally blasé movietown friends, he arranged for exclusive distribution by a reputable mail order firm.

Set of 72 Only $3.50!

The successful result is the availability of Magi-Glo ornaments that glow in the dark with radiant, luminescent color! And they are priced so low that you can decorate your tree lavishly, use them as stocking stuffers, table decorations, and party favors—or even trim Christmas packages you want to "outshine" the rest!

A deluxe assortment of more than 72 individual Magi-Glo ornaments, (averaging over 3 inches in height!), is bargained priced at only $3.50. That's less than five cents apiece! And quantity discounts make Magi-Glo ornaments ideal for Christmas gifts. You save $1 on each additional set!

Magi-Glo ornaments are the perfect gift for the people who deserve "something more" than just a card!

Magi-Glo's Guarantee

You must be completely and unconditionally satisfied with your Magi-Glo ornaments—or you may return them within 10 days for a prompt and unquestioned refund of the purchase price!

Offer is Limited!

THIS OFFER MAY BE MADE ONLY ONCE! Magi-Glo ornaments are available ONLY by mail!

NOW-THERE IS NO REASON FOR YOU OR YOUR LOVED ONES TO EVER BE ROBBED OR MOLESTED

how to avoid burglary & housebreaking and other crimes!

by Ulrich Kaufmann - Retired Federal Agent in Charge and Security Expert

Would you like to sleep sound—and live safe—for the rest of your life—regardless of headlines of spurring, violent crime?

Would you like to relax your worries about the safety of your wife, your daughter, your younger children?

Then accept my help. I'll give you the simple cautions and safe counter steps I've used to protect VIP's the world over. It need cost you virtually nothing. It takes little time. It's as easy as brushing your teeth.

Easy to Be Safe!

Why risk daily, unnecessarily, all you have and love?

You may now be running risks which you don't realize—the easiest, simplest steps could safeguard you simply by knowing about them.

Bad Guys steal and rob as a business. Training is life long. Prison is a tutoring school. They're tough. They've been taught exactly what to do to invade your home—take your possessions—even your life—successfully, with least risk to them.

You can be their easy mark victim. They know exactly the easiest, safest, fastest way to steal your car—your valuables and your cash unless you know how to prevent these dangers.

But here's how—and to easily avoid most of these risks.

What Discourages Intruders

I know—and I can help you and your family avoid danger from intruders?

Because my job has been to do exactly that for VIP's. Because all my professional life I've studied how criminals think—"spot" a victim—look over a "job"—plan strategy—commit their crimes—and what discourages them from doing so.

Would you prefer an intruder to pass you up—for an easier mark? Follow my simple do's and don'ts—and overwhelmingly they will pass you up. Yet you take no drastic steps nor change your way of life. Because intruders look for the fastest, easiest ways to steal the most—and avoid harder ways.

I've put all I know into book form to help average families keep safe. I simply tell you the glaring weaknesses which trained criminals can recognize in your home right now—and exactly how to correct them. I give you the simple security tips, secrets, and cautions that cause intruders to go on to another easier "job"

Should an intruder ever follow you or approach you or your home, knowing exactly what to do can save your life. So please read for the next 60 seconds carefully.

How to Play Safe!

Intruders try to get into your car as you stop on a deserted street for a red light. You break down at night in a strange area—or return to your parked car there. But I show you now what to do to avoid danger then.

You hear a strange noise in the basement. It is an intruder. But I show you now the simple protective steps to take then—before he gets to your bedroom.

You're away on a trip. Intruders approach your empty house. But I've already shown you exactly what to do before you left—and the intruder passes your house by.

You think you're being followed or overheard. You're not sure. But I've already shown you what to do to protect yourself—even how to use the police to frighten them off—without them or the police realizing what you're up to.

A stranger comes to the door with a "legitimate" reason to come inside. I show you exactly how to check his "credentials" before it's too late and exactly what to do as soon as you have any doubts.

You return home. It's burglarized—But I've already shown you exactly how to increase greatly your chance of getting back personal possessions.

You're walking home on a dark night through a strange neighborhood. Or you get home late and suspect intruders have already entered. I tell you now exactly what to do to play safe then. I warn of ways thieves take advantage of your habits, plans, even parties—and tell how to forestall them. And of the dangers of being mugged and robbed even in a high class hotel elevator—and how to keep this from happening to you.

Protection for 25¢

Here's what single women should do about name plate holders. How to get extra police protection, extra security from your landlord, extra help protecting valuables from your insurance company. How to be safest travelling, even abroad, at home, in your car, on foot, wherever.

The lock to your room in any hotel or motel can be a TRAP for you. Dozens of people you don't know all have the key for your room—perhaps including fired employees or their criminal friends. Anybody else can simply knock—then, when you open, burst in. I show you how to be entirely safe and sleep calmly without danger regardless.

Here's a protective service for 25¢—how to protect business secrets and advice on the best kind of peephole "spy" interviewer. I reveal where criminals hope you keep your dog and advise where to keep your dog to protect you best—especially at night.

I show you how to outwit completely the intruder who sticks his hand through a broken back door window even if you're not home. I warn how intruders may easily open any spring latch or bolt in your house—and show you the simple way to prevent this.

Your present lock may not be engaging the lock strike firmly—and have lost most of its holding power. I show you how to restore that power completely—for a fraction of a cent.

I reveal what else often makes most ordinary locks ineffective against any trained intruder—and what you can do to correct this completely—for pennies.

Suddenly Feel Secure!

Here's how to know for certain whether someone entered your apartment while you were gone—for a fraction of a cent. I report on a simple and light and portable device to keep a door closed while you are in the room. And on a small, light, very effective device that inserted in any keyhole makes it impossible for an intruder to "pick" the lock. And how to prevent your door handle from turning. Even how to use your present TV, radio or stereo to protect you.

I show best ways to secure your car—how men—and women—can best hide money on their person—and exactly what to do about servants, and children, who seem to be making minor thefts. Is your present outside lighting hurting your chances of spotting intruders? I'll show you how to find the perfect light protection for you—in minutes.

Here's how to avoid criminals you might otherwise accidentally encounter—and what precautions to take before leaving your apartment. Security experts report most window locks cannot even withstand a slight push—or become too loose to lock adequately. I show you exactly how to secure these openings firmly.

How Best to Defend Yourself

Suppose an intruder does get in your house—or a criminal attacks you in the street, in your car or wherever.

I show you now how to defend yourself then. I'll show you simple weapons to use against dangerous people—strike a sharp blow, apply wicked pressure—even shock. I'll give you effective ways to use an umbrella and newspaper to defend yourself—a special way to repel an intruder—and spray mark him for future identification—with a water pistol—and indelible laundry ink.

Here's how to use pennies a simple way to quintuple your punching power—what never to do with firearms against any intruder—that you see on TV everyday. How to master the Karate chop—until you can break a wooden board in half with your open hand. I show "dirty ways" to fight with your elbows—how to use your voice in a fight with 3-Way results. I show how to use devastating "foot punches"—even better with high heels—and reveal vulnerable spots on attackers, heads and below.

I give you judo blows delivered with the open hand—how to concentrate the full force of your entire fist in one knuckle—exactly what to do to nerve centers to make an attacker squirm—how to give sudden sharp blows to send him crawling away. I warn you of self-defense gadgets that may be illegal in your area—or too dangerous to be near others. I pass on to you eminent legal opinions on your exact legal rights in resisting—even killing an intruder.

Fantastic Security Devices!

STEP INTO A NEW WORLD OF SECURITY SCIENCE to protect you—security gadgetry to stagger the imagination and often surprisingly inexpensive to use or share with others.

Amazing keyless locks you dial or operate by pushbutton. Special alarms that cause outlandish remote controlled lenses to take instant pictures or movies for future identification of intruders. Inexpensive electronic sensors that guard all windows, doors and grounds—report to an alarm above your headboard any intruder entering your drive or your property or breaking in. Special electronic units that give alarm when something is touched—or are activated by anyone coming within so many feet.

Amazing auto security devices to secure hood, prevent crossing ignition wires, secure hub cap, gas cap and gears, and on alarms and noisemakers that go off if doors, hood or trunk are opened while car is unattended.

Astonishing robot home electronic units that phone messages to police, report on entry, phone fire department and report fire, even phone utility and report appliance trouble—or phone your summer home or trusted friend when trouble strikes—actually distinguish between emergencies and give proper report to parties concerned. Amazing robot nurses that report heart attacks or other sudden danger health conditions.

I report on amazing protection available from simple, low cost security items—like astonishing chain locks you lock from outside—and an incredibly simple gadget that makes it harder and harder to budge a partially open window—the harder an intruder attempts to open it—and pillow switches for outside lights to use the moment you hear a noise.

I warn of pitfalls to avoid in buying security equipment. I show how to use relatively inexpensive equipment in place of impressive costly equipment—and get more security—and how to be safe without scientific electronic equipment or a friendly doorman.

I report on TV cameras or 2-way voice boxes that escort you from your lobby into your elevator, upstairs and step by step to your apartment—and screening downstairs TV camera that flash visitors face—and credentials blown up—on your present TV screen.

The Full Story

Here's the full story of latest sophisticated "bugging" devices that spy on you electronically—exactly what to do to protect yourself, and business secrets, from them or if your hotel or motel room or even if your own house is bugged. I show how to eliminate chances of being overheard—even by tiny transmitters placed in your pocket or briefcase.

I reveal three "secret" devices that cost you nothing—are found in every hotel or motel room—and have enabled me to sleep soundly in hundreds of strange rooms throughout the world.

I show you how to protect locks against any master key—block any door knob from within—make a noisy clattering burglar alarm at no cost or trouble.

Act Now!

Don't buy a fire extinguisher after your home burns down—or snow shovel after you're snowed in—or this book after you're a crime statistic. Accept it now. You must feel more secure than ever in your life before—or no cost.

Could anything be fairer? My book is in short supply. Each edition printed so far has quickly sold out. It's first come, first served. Act now. The sooner you get it the sooner you get my Security Help, and peace of mind!

Science Finds Way To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop burning itch and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement was reported by doctors who conducted the tests. Pain and itching were promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so. And it was all done without narcotics or stinging astringents of any kind.

The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like it! Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. Preparation H comes in ointment or suppository form. No prescription is needed.

New Kind of Nail Toughener Takes Only 3 Days . . . Then You Can EVEN PULL TACKS

...Without Breaking a Fingernail!

Not that you'd ever want to pull tacks with your fingernails . . . but isn't it consoling to know that now no matter what . . . you'll have all your nails, no matter what. Important, it's nice to know you can wear your nails extra long like a sultan's favorite wife wears hers (just to prove she's special) and that your long, long nails can still tire out an unooled typewriter. Most important . . . always your nails look long and beautiful. The inventors of "PRECIOUS DEW Nail Strengthener" guarantee that you'll have no more cracked or broken nails! Your nails may bend a little under stress but they'll be too tough to break. And there's no formaldehyde in "PRECIOUS DEW"; not a drop! # THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

HATLO'S HISTORY

ROBERT PEARY BRINGS BACK 80 LBS. OF ARCTIC ICE FROM THE NORTH POLE TO BOSTON .... 1909

I CAN SEE THE MARQUEES NOW! "HARRINGTON HOTCHKISS PRESENTS 'THE FIELD GREY GHOST,' STARRING CORA AND CLIVE CLYDE"!... THE CRITICS WILL THROW UP!

HARRY, I KNOW YOUR PICTURES MAKE MONEY—AND, THANKS TO CORA'S LIFE-STYLE, I NEED A LOT, BUT DID IT HAVE TO BE A FLYING HORSE OPERA?

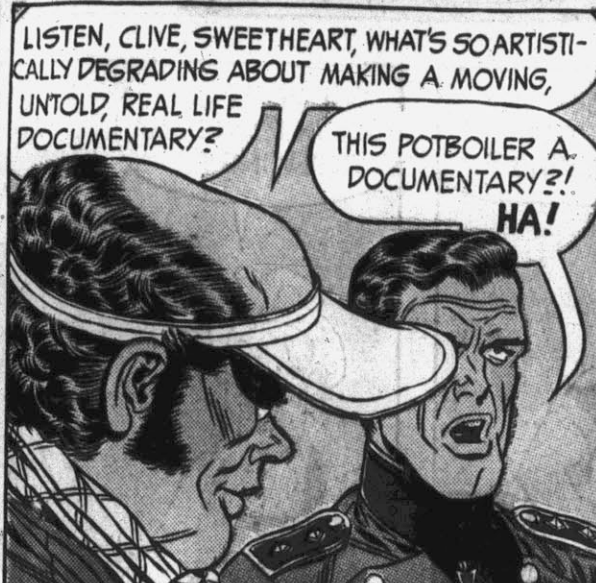

A FAMOUS THEATRICAL COUPLE IS UNHAPPY ABOUT THE PICTURE, STARRING THEM, ABOUT TO BE SHOT AT AN UNUSED AIRSTRIP IN SPAIN.

I EVEN HATE FLYING! TRAVELING IN AN AIRLINER TURNS ME GREEN. EVEN SITTING IN ONE OF YOUR HIRED ANTIQUES ON THE GROUND BRINGS ON UNCONTROLLABLE SHUDDERS!

AND SNEER ALL YOU WANT, YOU POWER-MAD FINK, BUT THE CLYDES ARE STYLE! THEATER CLASS! CAN YOU SEE OUR AUDIENCES BEING EMOTIONALLY MOVED BY ME PLAYING A GUNSLINGER WITH GOGGLES?

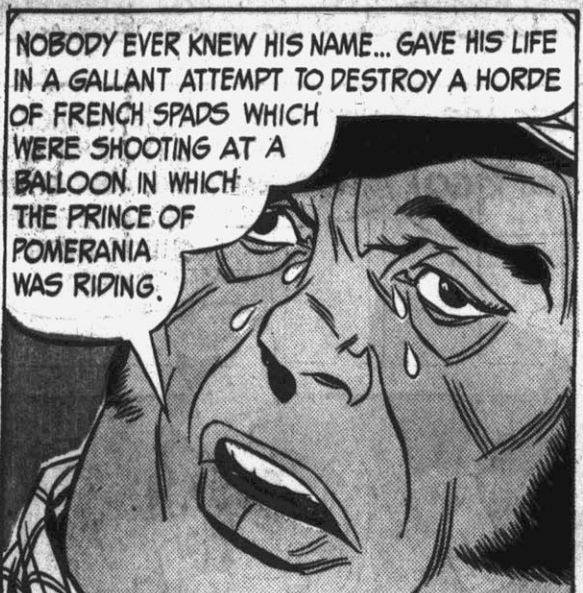

LISTEN, CLIVE, SWEETHEART, WHAT'S SO ARTISTICALLY DEGRADING ABOUT MAKING A MOVING, UNTOLD, REAL LIFE DOCUMENTARY?

THIS POTBOILER A DOCUMENTARY?! HA!

"I KID YOU NOT, BABY, 'THE FIELD GREY GHOST' WAS A REAL WORLD WAR I GERMAN ACE. KIND OF SHY FELLA. ALWAYS FLEW ALONE. CAME OUT OF A CLOUD, ZAPPED AN ENEMY CLOWN AND, PFFFT, DISAPPEARED!"

NOBODY EVER KNEW HIS NAME... GAVE HIS LIFE IN A GALLANT ATTEMPT TO DESTROY A HORDE OF FRENCH SPADS WHICH WERE SHOOTING AT A BALLOON IN WHICH THE PRINCE OF POMERANIA WAS RIDING.

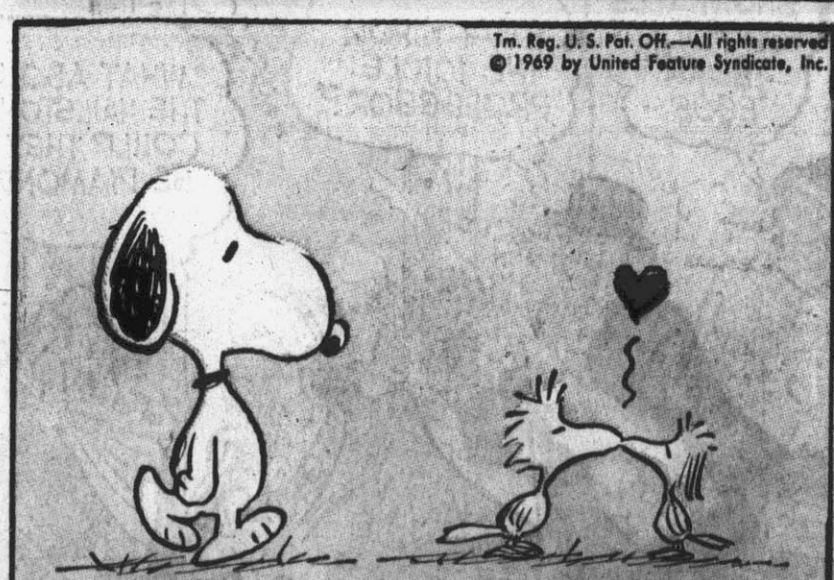

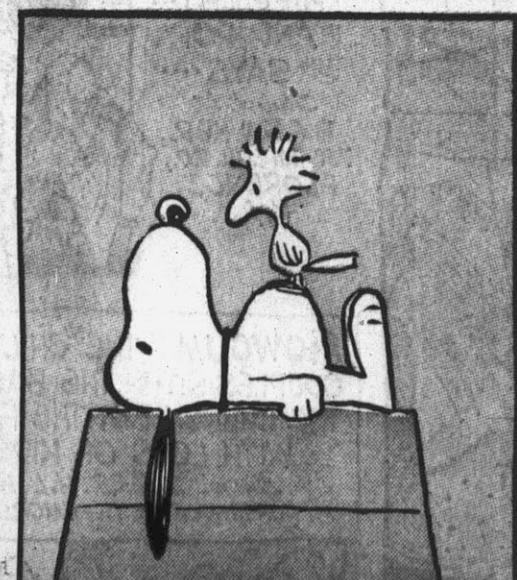

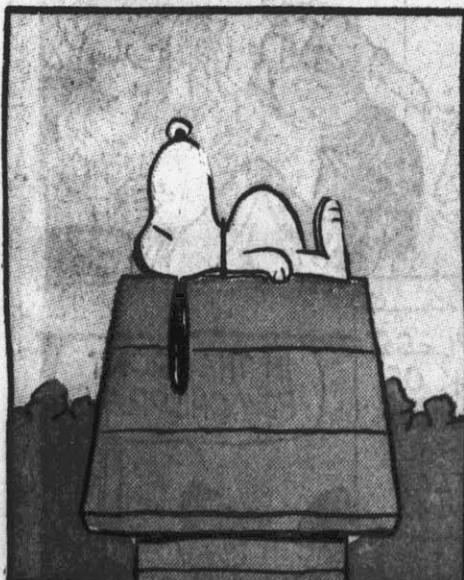

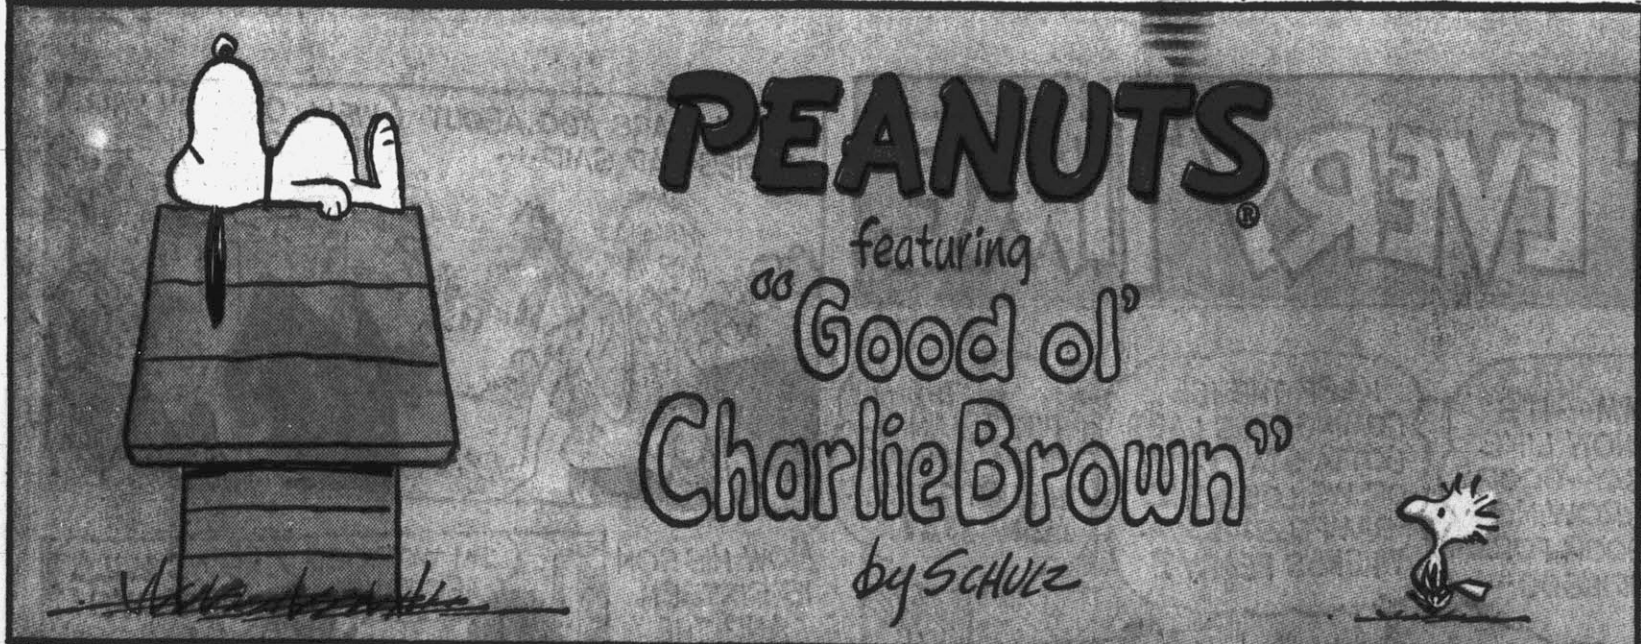

I ASK YOU, DOLLS, WAS THAT CHIVALRY? TALK ABOUT STYLE, CLASS, EMOTIONAL DRAMA!... OF COURSE THERE WAS A LOVE AFFAIR WITH THIS COUNTESS... YOU'LL BE JUST GREAT IN THE PART, CORA.

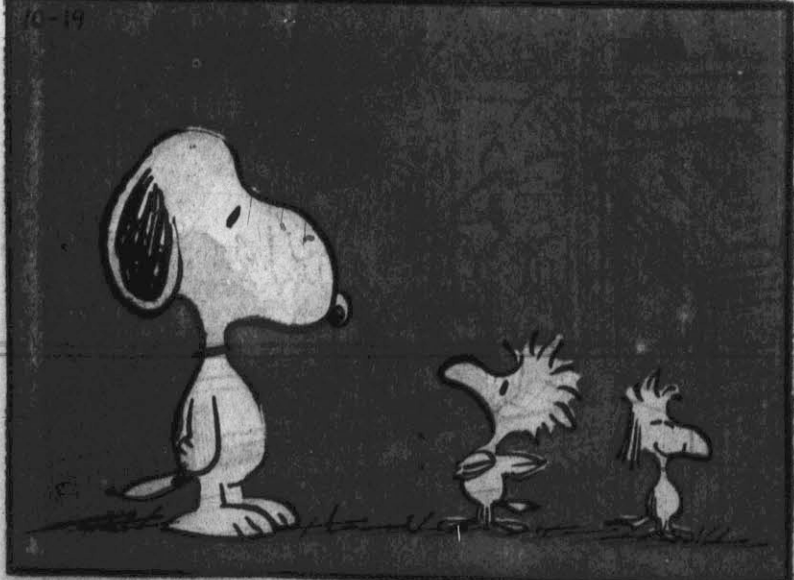

JUST A PASSING THOUGHT, VULTURE. IF THIS FIELD GREY GHOST BOY WAS SO PRIME, WHY DIDN'T HE GET EQUAL BILLING WITH THAT RED BARON CAT, WHATZISNAME, VON RICHTHOFFEN?

CLIVE, YOU KNOW HOW IT IS IN THIS CRUEL WORLD. THE OTHER CAT MUST'VE HAD A BETTER PRESS AGENT!

Tr. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.—All rights reserved © 1969 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

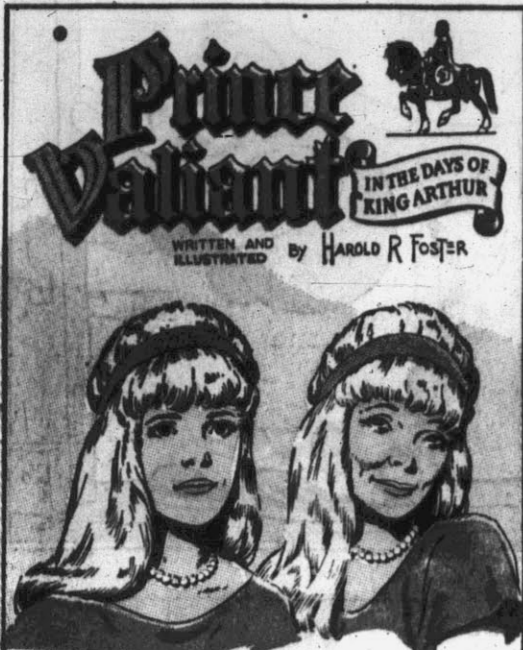

I TOLD THEM THAT I THOUGHT THEY WERE TOO YOUNG, AND THAT RUNNING AWAY NEVER SOLVES ANYTHING..

I THINK THEY'LL BOTH BE GLAD THAT HE CAME TO ME FOR ADVICE...

BOOT!

Our Story: THE TWINS ARE NOT ALIKE—KAREN IS FORTHRIGHT, BELLIGERENT AND INCLINED TO BE A BIT DOMINEERING, WHILE VALETA IS ALL SMILES AND DIMPLES, FLUTTERING EYELASHES AND RIPPLING LAUGHTER. ALL WELL PRACTICED.

AFTER A CAREFUL SURVEY OF POTENTIAL VICTIMS VALETA PICKS A LAD PRACTICING AT ARCHERY. SHE USES A BIT OF FLATTERY, A TOUCH OF HAUGHTINESS, WIDE-EYED ADMIRATION AND SOME SHYNESS.

YOUNG ARWYN IS NOT USED TO GIRLS, AND THIS ONE HAS FOUND HIM WITHOUT ANY DEFENSES. SHE HAS USED ENOUGH CHARM FOR THREE CONQUESTS.

VALETA ALMOST WIGGLES WITH ECSTASY. SHE HAS THE BOY SO BEMUSED HE WILL DO ANYTHING SHE ASKS. "OH, GET ME AN APPLE, THAT NICE RED ONE." WITHOUT HESITATION, ARWYN VAULTS TO THE PARAPET, GRASPING A LIMB FOR SUPPORT.....

... AND THE LIMB BREAKS. WITH A CRY OF FRIGHT THE BOY PLUNGES DOWN ONTO THE FLOWER BEDS.

"ARE YOU HURT?" CRIES VALETA, BUT SHE IS ANSWERED ONLY BY A MOAN OF PAIN. KAREN, WHO HAS BEEN WATCHING DISDAINFULLY, RUNS UP.....

10-19 © King Features Syndicate, Inc. 1706

... CLIMBS THE PARAPET, GRASPS A LIMB AND GOES OUT HAND OVER HAND, AND THE BRANCH, BENDING UNDER HER WEIGHT, LOWERS HER TO THE GROUND.

"I AM INJURED. OH, THE PAIN!" CRIES ARWYN. "SHUT UP, YOU ARE NOT HURT. IT'S ONLY A BROKEN LEG," SHE COMMANDS AS SHE STRAIGHTENS IT OUT.
