Some Offenders Dismissed, Suspended Schools Open Wednesday

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville's City School Board, after meeting for more than two hours Monday afternoon, confirmed an earlier tentative decision to re-open all of Greenville's schools on Wednesday morning.

Board members took this action following assurances that measures to insure safety of students and property, and an environment permitting a return to normal operations existed.

Principal Edward Warren of Rose High School, which was the scene of disturbances Friday leading to the closing of the school, will take action Tuesday to have a number of dismissal and suspension notices delivered to approximately 22 students.

Dr. Cleetwood noted that investigation has disclosed seven students who have been categorized as primary offenders, and about 15 to 17 are listed as offenders to a lesser degree.

Students who will not be permitted to return to school on Wednesday include both white and black, Dr. Cleetwood noted.

Notices of dismissal will be delivered to the seven, and notices of suspension delivered to the others. Dismissal means a student will not be permitted to return to school for the remainder of the school year.

Attorney William Brewer, meeting with the board members, stated, "Under the laws of the state, the principal has this prerogative to dismiss or suspend disorderly students."

Brewer commented, "These are the ones that teachers could testify in court that their conduct has been abusive, disorderly and not in keeping with regulations. If the board was so inclined, action could be taken into criminal court."

Dr. Cleetwood noted, "We have not reached a cut-off point in our investigation. We plan to work more on this tomorrow. Others may be uncovered in the process of investigation who will be placed on the list to consider for suspension action."

Several board members asked that any notice of dismissal or suspension served to a student include details applicable to the student's particular case.

Brewer commented to this suggestion by stating "dismissal notices should inform the student of the nature of the infraction for which he is charged; also a notice that an opportunity for hearing within due time will be afforded, and that prior to the hearing they will be afforded time to get defense."

"Suspension notices should state the reason for the suspension," he added. When classes reconvene at Rose High on Wednesday morning, each student will report to his homeroom at 8:45 a.m. for an orientation period in which each student will be issued a statement of the rules of conduct previously promulgated by the Board of Education, supplemented by an additional list of specific rules of conduct.

Warren told the board that he has asked for police personnel to be on hand to cover what he considers 28 strategic positions within the school. "This will entail about 40 people. The mayor (Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr.) has assured me that we will have whatever is needed to maintain order and discipline."

Earlier, Warren indicated that the presence of policemen would be a temporary safety measure designed for a phase-out just as soon as it was felt conditions permitted their withdrawal.

Board members again urged, as they had on the previous meeting Sunday, that the public be fully informed of the incident concerning a broken promise to a black majorette which has been said to be the spark which touched off the unrest Friday.

John Bizzell, a Negro member of the board, had brought this matter to the board during the Sunday meeting, stating, "This is something people want to know about. They have been asking me time and again what really took place."

It again was the subject of discussion at Monday's board meeting. Louis Gaylord Jr. commented, "I don't see how you could make a promise and then go back on it."

Dr. Cleetwood noted that both James Rogers, band director, and Johnny Wooten, an assistant band director, had indicated their willingness to make a formal statement giving full details of the actions and decisions involved in this matter, and that he would ask both men to have a statement ready for the students when school opened on Wednesday.

Board members questioned Dr. Cleetwood and Warren closely on arrangements made for the operation of the Rose High School when it reopens Wednesday.

"We need these details," Harding Sugg. "The safety of the children falls on the board."

Dr. Cleetwood and Warren explained arrangements being worked out for handling the students during the lunch hour. They noted the administrative staff is still working on complete details, and these would be presented to the board on Tuesday.

"It is not our wish to suggest or direct anything which will interfere with education," Sugg stated, "but at the same time we are deeply concerned in preventing another incident."

Cleetwood also told board members he would have complete details available Tuesday covering such matters as bus transportation, supplemental rules and regulations and measures to control students congregating within the school.

Parents And Students Speak Out At Forum On Points Of Conflict

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

"There is no need to blame the black students and the white students for all the things that are happening," Michael William Garrett, Chairman of Student Grievances Committee told a packed gathering at the City Hall last night.

"These students, black and white, have brought their attitudes from their homes. This situation needs rectifying." Working with Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr. in moderating the informal forum Monday night at City Hall, parents and students were given an opportunity to express their grievances - and their appreciation - of matters touching their lives in school and in the community.

Some of the grievances expressed during the meeting were:

-Brenda Bell (student): "Many problems exist. Let's not waste time to decide who and what causes are responsible. Our parents are concerned about our problems, and demand consideration."

-Lois Barrett (student): Many Negroes are unfortunately unable to get cars. Buses are overcrowded. Sometimes we get to school at 9 or 9:30. This is one of the reasons we get low grades, for being late. It's not fair we are penalized for something we can't help."

-Sheryl King (Student): "We want a course in Black History. Why not give us an opportunity to learn about our own culture. The only way we can learn is to be taught. . . now, not next year."

-Lois Barrett (student, cheerleader) "I'm the only black cheerleader in high school.

I had to learn things a different way at Rose. I know all eyes are on me. I'm the only black one on the field. If I had a black sister with me, I'd feel better. I'm one little black and all alone. Nobody wants to be alone. Do something now, not next year."

-Delores Barrett (student): "We are not here for trouble. We are here because we think we are right. We went to the principal, to the superintendent, to the board. We went many times. We may not wait too much longer."

-Brenda Bell (student): "There is no peace without justice, no school without students, no contentment when many black students feel wrongs not rectified. We refuse to let the issue be evaded. We don't intend to go back to school until our conditions are met."

After a few students had stated their grievances, a list of demands were presented: These include:

-That all racist teachers and administrators be dismissed from Rose High School;

-That a course in Black History with a black teacher be added.

-That the school administration be receptive to black students.

-That black students be included in social activities involving the school.

-That fair and equal representation of black students be given in selecting cheerleaders.

-That all segregated student organizations be disbanded.

-That no action be taken against students participating in uprisings due to discrimination; that suspended students be reinstated; that a black youth be elected to investigate suspension of black students; and that suspended students be readmitted with full pardon if suspended because of discriminating practices.

Earlier, at a meeting held Friday morning in Rose High when Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the city schools, met with the black student body, a list of grievances was presented. This group of grievances, and the response to them by Dr. Cleetwood included:

-They included: Majorette uniforms: Uniforms will reflect blue, green and white as agreed at the earliest possible moment.

-Majorettes transportation to practice: It would appear that arrangements could be made for majorettes having a travel problem since this accommodation has been made in part thus far. The athletic fund can barely

Bloodmobile To Visit ECU Next; Two Days

The Pitt County Bloodmobile drive will have a two-day collection session on Wednesday and Thursday this week at East Carolina University, according to Douglas Morgan, director of the Pitt County Bloodmobile Unit.

On October 29, the bloodmobile will be at East Cafeteria from 11:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. and on October 30, it will again be at the same place from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

"This two day drive is being sponsored by the Air Force ROTC unit," Morgan stated. "Cadet Melvin K. Kelly Jr. is in charge of the drive."

John D. Duffus and members of the Angel Flight, the feminine counterpart of the ROTC unit, will assist the cadets in the drive.

In addition, members of the Greenville Service League will be on hand to serve refreshments and to help with other matters.

Morgan praised the ECU drive of last year. "In the two day drive last year, the university people had a truly outstanding record. They donated 399 units against a quota of 306 units, giving a record 90 units in excess of their quota," he stated.

"Their quota this year is 339 units," Morgan noted. "We are now behind in our 69.70 quota, but I feel certain the fine turnout of past years by ECU students and faculty will do much to help alleviate this shortage."

Lebanon Sees New Attacks During Night

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - The Lebanese government reported new attacks by Arab guerrillas on Lebanese villages and army posts during the night. The attacks dimmed hopes for negotiations to settle the week-long crisis.

The attackers used rockets and heavy mortars in their strikes on the town of Rachaya and the village of Mashta Hassan. An army post at Aihia also was raided, the government said.

One Lebanese soldier was reported killed and four wounded. Three guerrillas died, three were wounded and four were taken prisoner, the government said. It also reported that in the rocket attack on Rachaya, 30 miles southeast of Beirut, a woman was killed when her house received a direct hit.

Intermittent fighting continued this morning at the Aihia army post, five miles from the Syrian border.

Guerrillas occupying the village of Yanta brought in reinforcements Monday night to consolidate their hold, the government said. Yanta was overrun Friday night.

The presence of guerrillas at Rachaya and Mashta Hassan brings to 32 the number of localities where they have been reported. Since the present crisis began, the guerrillas have occupied four villages in eastern and southern Lebanon.

Earlier in the night, bazookas hit an American oil tank, and shooting and bombs erupted in Beirut as Lebanese officials prepared for peace talks with the leaders of the guerrillas.

20th Safest City In N.C. Traffic

CHARLOTTE-Greenville was North Carolina's 20th safest city for motorists and pedestrians last year, the North Carolina State Motor Club's traffic safety ratings for 1968 reveal.

Kinston was North Carolina's safest city. The state's 37 cities and towns over 10,000 population included five cities with no traffic deaths in the club's annual ratings, but top place went to Kinston because it had the largest motor vehicle registration-20,526. The rankings are based on the registration death rate-the number of traffic deaths per 10,000 registration.

Greenville had three traffic deaths in 1968. It had a motor vehicle registration of 18,044. The registration death rate was reported at 1.7 per cent and the population death rate is 13.1 per cent.

The four other cities with no fatalities were Lenoir, Sanford, Reidsville and Chapel Hill. Also making the top ten were: Concord, with a registration death rate of 0.5; Jacksonville, safest city for 1966, 0.5; Wilson, safest city for 1967, 0.5; Hickory, 0.6; and Elizabeth City, 0.9.

The motor club and its affiliate, the National Automobile Association, will present Kinston city officials with a plaque citing its traffic safety achievement, Thomas B. Watkins, club president, said.

At the bottom of the rankings was Gastonia, with a registration death rate of 3.9, computed on 14 traffic deaths and a registration of 35,692. Fayetteville had the highest population death rate of 46.7, based on the number of fatalities per 100,000 population.

Officially Launch Convention Tonight

The 102nd annual convention of the General Baptist State Convention will be officially opened tonight at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church here with a welcome program.

Mayor Frank Wooten and Dr. Joy E. Early, president of the Greenville Ministerial Association and pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will greet the delegates.

The meetings which will last until Thursday will be on support for Shaw University, the Central Orphanage, and state and foreign missions.

Shaw University is largely supported by funds from the General Baptists. The Central Orphanage, located in Oxford, is run by them. Working through the Lott Cary Convention, which has headquarters in Washington, D. C., they help support some 120 missionaries in Africa, Haiti, and parts of India, Sberill said.

Grant To Malcolm X Univ. Upsets Episcopalians

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina's Episcopalians are divided in their reaction to the national church's $45,000 grant to Malcolm X Liberation University in Durham, but many are decidedly against it.

Others, a survey of leading Episcopalians shows, don't feel they have been adequately informed about the Negro school and many fear the grant is having an adverse effect on the current canvass for funds.

The Rev. Howard M. Hickey, rector of the Holy Trinity Church in Greensboro, perhaps best summed up the attitudes of white parishioners in North Carolina when he said the average Episcopalian is "rather upset. We don't know too much about Malcolm X (University), but on the surface it doesn't sound too good."

Afternoon newspapers in North Carolina which are members of The Associated Press asked these questions of local Episcopal ministers, senior wardens and laymen: How do you feel personally about the grant, how members of their congregation felt, and whether the grant will affect the canvass.

Not all reaction was critical. William Gorman, senior warden of St. Christopher's Church in High Point, said, "Here's a ready-made chance to apply the idea . . . that you don't get rewards without risks, whether you're on Wall Street or a voting delegate at a national Episcopal convention."

The Rev. Arthur J. Calloway, rector of St. Ambrose Church in Raleigh, said that although members of his congregation "have questions about the Malcolm X school, I don't expect any will withhold pledges because of it. My congregation is black—and is a little bit more sympathetic with the school."

The Rev. John W. Tuton, rector of Trinity Church in Asheville, said, "Perplexity . . . describes my feelings. I do not really understand it all because there must be some things which I am not aware."

Trinity's senior warden, William Morris, said, "I am shocked and hurt that my church would subscribe to the principles of this so-called educational program."

Howard Fuller, a black militant who organized the Malcolm X school, has said there would be studies in nation-building, and one goal will be establishment of a separatist nation in Africa by American Negroes.

Bishop Thomas A. Frazer of Raleigh said the decision to award the grant was made after a study by the North Carolina Diocese's Urban Crisis Advisory Committee. The grant is part of the national church's $9 million program "to help the poor and disenfranchised gain social, political and economic power in order to have an effective voice in decisions which affect their own lives," the bishop said.

Bishop Frazer, whose diocese serves 39 central counties, said "an apparent division" among Episcopalian was noted after the grant was announced this month.

He scheduled a special meeting of the diocese's governing body to discuss the grant in Raleigh Oct. 31. He said no consideration will be given to withdrawing the money, but the grant will be explained at the meeting. Support and opposition will also be heard.

Many Episcopalian queried about the grant said they lacked information.

"I only know what the press has presented as far as use of these monies is concerned," said the Rev. Frederick Reese, rector of Trinity Church in Lumberton, "and I no longer put much faith and confidence in the reporting ability of the press as far as these matters are concerned."

The Rev. Charles Penick, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Rocky Mount, said, "I do not feel that a broad advertisement in regard to this matter will be beneficial to the church as it searches for the answers to this situation, which has already gained a great deal of publicity through the press."

L. E. Davis, senior warden at Durham's St. Titus Church, a Negro congregation, said he thinks the main objections have been caused by Fuller's image as a militant and the fact that the school bypassed the local church to appeal to the national organization.

The pastor at St. Titus, the Rev. Ellis N. Porter, said, "I think many black people, the types representative of my congregation, feel frustrated and a lot of them would welcome any sort of further drive to attain those goals that other leaders have failed to obtain in the past."

At Durham's St. Joseph's

Church, the Rev. Paul C. Morrison said, "The grant may have some effect on the canvass for funds, but I feel that people after considering it will realize that 'nothing will be accomplished by withholding funds from the local parish.'"

In Hickory, the Rev. Richard Turkelson said "60 to 70 per cent" of his congregation at Church of the Ascension oppose the grant, "largely because we do not know too much about the university."

The Rev. T. A. Gregg of St. Paul's in the Pines, Fayetteville, said, "It is entirely possible that Howard Fuller may be an excellent leader at this particular time."

Burlington's Church of the Holy Comforter vestry drafted a letter of protest to Bishop Frazer. "Among other things," the letter said, "we are unable to see how this particular grant falls within the guidelines established by the General Convention. We cannot overstate the intensity of this protest."

D. H. Barlow, senior warden of All Saints Church in Hamlet, said, "The blacks do not know how to handle money and most of this $45,000 will go for salaries and office supplies and it will be a mess. I am sure it will affect canvass and hold it back."

"I violently object to the grant," the Rev. George Hale of Raleigh's St. Timothy's Church said. His church and another in Raleigh are allowing members of their congregations to designate their annual pledges for local church use only.

One layman in Winston-Salem said there would have been less furor about the grant if the school had been named St. Agatha's University for the Betterment of Negroes. But in that case, he said, young Negroes and liberal whites would not have supported the school.

The vestry of St. Mary's Church in High Point voted unanimously in opposition to the grant. Both the rector, the Rev. William P. Price, and the senior warden, George Freeman, said they believe the grant was unwise and will make their church's canvass difficult.

Safety Proposals For School Buses Studied

RALEIGH (AP) — A Knightdale woman who appealed to Gov. Bob Scott to keep fire extinguishers and first aid equipment in useable condition on school buses will be happy to know her campaign is paying off.

Weldon Denny, special assistant to Gov. Scott, sent a letter to Mrs. Henry J. Tilton Monday informing her the state is studying five suggestions of ways to insure adequate safety equipment on the state's 9,350 buses.

Mrs. Tilton recently presented the governor a petition bearing 300 signatures protesting the lack of working fire extinguishers and adequate first aid kits on buses.

Mrs. Tilton and her 16-year-old son, who drives a Wake County school bus, had conducted a personal survey to determine the condition of the equipment in locally operated vehicles.

The suggestions being studied include:

- Provide locks for all bus doors.
- Provide drivers with a lock on the safety equipment.
- Install electric locking devices controlled by a switch accessible only to the driver.
- Provide first aid training for all drivers.
- Provide a kit which the driver could remove from the bus when it is not in use.

Fortas To Be At Appalachian U.

BOONE, N. C. (AP) — Abe Fortas, former associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, will talk on "Dissent and Disorder on the American Campus" tonight at Appalachian State University.

Fortas' address will be the last of three lectures on the Boone campus about campus unrest. He will appear at 8 p.m. in the Broome-Kirk Gymnasium. Aides said he would be unavailable to newsmen.

Agnew Reminds Leaves Falling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told a meeting of the American Bakers Association he regretted the brevity of his remarks Monday, but said he had his reasons.

"The President needs me at the White House," Agnew explained. "It's autumn, you know, and the leaves need raking."

New Member Of Paroles Board

RALEIGH (AP)—Foil Essick of Raleigh will become a member of the North Carolina Paroles Board Nov. 1 succeeding Howard Hepler, who resigned recently due to declining health.

His appointment to a four-year term was announced Monday by Gov. Bob Scott.

Essick, 65, a career employee with 34 years service, is a native of Davidson County and a graduate of Catawba College.

Essick has been administrative assistant to the board since May 1960.

Arrest Suspect Shortly After Break-In Here

Greenville police last night arrested a 25-year-old Negro, Johnnie Lee Long in connection with a 10:58 p.m. break-in at Hollowell's Drug Store Number 2 at the intersection of Sixth and Memorial Drive.

According to acting Chief of Police T. E. Gladson, Long was taken into custody shortly after the break-in was reported. He was charged with breaking and entering and resisting arrest.

Long, officers said, allegedly removed a section of glass measuring about 2½ by 5½ feet, in order to gain entrance to the building.

Nothing was reported missing, the police official noted.

Long's address was listed as 301 Paige Dr.

Driver Charged In Local Mishap

Mrs. Barbara Barghen Williams, 25, of 1408 West Fourth St. was charged with failing to yield the right of way in a 7:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive yesterday.

Police reported the Williams vehicle collided with a car driven by Ronnie Lee Nett, 21 of 2517 South Memorial Dr.

Damage was set at $400 to the Nett car and $500 to the Williams vehicle.

ECU Prof Concludes A Lecture Series In India

Dr. Lokenath Debnath of the Mathematics Department of East Carolina University, has recently concluded a series of lectures in his home country, India.

He appeared as a guest lecturer at the University of Calcutta, Jadavpur University, University of Burdwan, Indian Institute of Technology at Kharagpur and at Bombay, Belur Ramkrishnamission Vidya-Mandir, and West Bengal.

Dr. Debnath's lectures were based on popular topics in mathematics and electronic computer and on the theory of transient wave motions in fluids.

He developed his theory on wave motions during his four-year stay in England and the United States.

Titles of his lectures included ones on "Asymptotic Treatment of Axisymmetric Waves in Fluids," "Effect of Surface Tension on Transient Wave Motions in Inviscid Flows," and five other topics dealing with wave motions.

Dr. Debnath holds the B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Pure Mathematics from Calcutta University; and the D.I.C. and Ph.D. degrees in Applied Mathematics from the Imperial College of Science and Technology and the University of London.

He has published numerous original research papers in journals in England, the U.S.A., Italy, India and Switzerland and two advanced books on higher mathematics for graduate students and research scholars.

He is currently coaching a group of selected students majoring in mathematics at ECU, who will for the first time take part in the William Lowell Putnam Mathematical Society.

Dr. Debnath will hold the post of full Professor of Mathematics at ECU effective November 1, 1969.

Supplementary Sum Is Club's Gift To Remedial Education

The Developmental Evaluation Clinic of East Carolina University has established a Remedial Education Program to aid in specific program formulation for children who need further counseling following initial physical and psychological examinations at the clinic.

To supplement funds needed for supplies used in the program, funds which were not received in the federal program grant, the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc., made a contribution on Friday to the new program.

for the child, the parents will be involved in a "Parent Education" seminar in which they will become acquainted with the effects of their child's handicap. Enrollment in the new program will be handled through the clinic, Creekmore added.

The first seminar for parents was held last week, he said, and response to the program was very good.

Will Speak At Kick-Off Dinner

The associate administrator of the North Carolina Sanatorium at McCain, Joe S. Lennon, will address the 1969 Christmas Seal Campaign kick-off dinner for the Eastern Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association in Williamston on Oct. 30.

A native of Delco, Lennon will tell representatives attending from the 22 member counties what the state's four sanatoriums are doing in the areas of treatment and diagnosis of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases.

Lennon has a wide background in hospital administration and public relations, having served as administrator at the Stanley County Hospital in Albemarle, the Richmond County Memorial Hospital in Rockingham and Gravelly Sanatorium in Chapel Hill.

In addition to Lennon's remarks, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, will speak to the group about this year's Christmas Seal Campaign. Jenkins is serving as the 1969 chairman of the campaign for the 22-county association.

Ed Davenport, president of the association, will also attend the meeting, to be held at the Town and Country Restaurant in Williamston.

Presley Signed To Appear Again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Elvis Presley, who broke attendance records in Las Vegas in August, has been signed to appear again Jan. 26 to Feb. 22 at the International Hotel.

Presley drew 101,500 persons in four weeks at the hotel in August while making his first public appearance in nine years.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

No Tipping, But Customer Stuck

and patriotism.

Students of the senior class select three girls possessing the above qualifications and the final selection is made by the high school faculty.

In the Farmville High School, Miss Turnage served as an SCA representative in her freshman and senior year, senior science club secretary, a marshal in her sophomore year and co-chief marshal in the 11th grade, representative at Girls' State in her junior year.

A member of the Keyette Club in the 11th grade, she is treasurer during this year. In addition, she is associate editor of the school annual, Archway.

Well, at 6:30 ONE man came with a vacuum cleaner and a shampoo attachment. He talked to me for two solid hours trying to sell me the vacuum cleaner. I told him I couldn't afford to buy anything, and meanwhile he didn't make one move to clean my carpet. I was home alone, and kept telling him I wasn't in the market to BUY anything, but he kept right on talking and trying to sell this thing. Abby, I finally got rid of him at ELEVEN o'clock, and I didn't get my carpet cleaned.

I was so nervous and angry by the time he left I could have screamed. Have you any suggestion besides a seven-foot watchdog and an unlisted telephone number to prevent such practices?

DEAR ABBY: I love my husband and always will. He is an outstandingly handsome and charming man—the kind who could never belong to only one woman. I knew this when I married him 20 years ago.

Here is my problem: My neighbor tells me that my husband steps out. (I already knew that.) I have always considered myself an intelligent woman, but this neighbor says I am crazy—that my husband is making a "damned fool" out of me. Well, I know that he really loves me and he is not "in love" with any of these women whom he uses occasionally, so he is making "damned fools" out of THEM—not ME.

He has never asked me for a divorce, and he's never neglected me. He is an excellent provider, a wonderful father and I get as much loving from him as I want, so my question is, "WHO, in your opinion, is the "damned fool?"

Area Workshop Held By Pilot Clubs On Sunday

District Six of Pilot Clubs International held an area workshop on the East Carolina University campus Sunday.

Mrs. Addie Jenkins, district treasurer, reported to the almost 100 members from 17 towns that the N.C. State Pilot budget amounted to $95,671.11, which is used mostly for charity.

Pilot Governor Blanche Neal of Greensboro presented awards to clubs making a significant contribution to CARE packages. The Greenville club received one of the awards as did Goldsboro, New Bern, Rocky Mount and Wilson.

The meeting, hosted by the local club, was one of two sessions held to assist members of the 33 Pilot Clubs in the state to improve their programs and productivity.

Members from other clubs previously attended the first session held in Winston-Salem. Clubs presented at the Sunday meeting included: Archdale Trinity; Asheville; Burlington; Charlotte; Goldsboro; Greenville; Hendersonville; Kinston; Laurinburg; Lincolnton; Morgan; New Bern; Raleigh; Rocky Mount; Thomasville; Wilson and Trinity.

District Pilot Secretary, Miss Maxine Drake took notes for the meeting called to order by Pilot Club Governor. A pledge of allegiance to the Stars and Stripes was led by Mrs. Kara Lynn Fennell of Greenville, and the chaplain of the local club, Mrs. Susan McHargue gave a devotional. Welcome was extended by Greenville Club president, Miss Mildred Mallard.

A code of ethics was given by Second Lt. Gov. Shirley McGinnis of Lincolnton and district committee chairmen gave their reports and suggestions.

These were: Membership, Mrs. Mary S. Collins; Patriotic Emblems, Mrs. Edna Harris; Safety, Mrs. Helen H. Piver; Anchor and Compass, Miss Virginia Lane; Public Relations, Mrs. Elna S. Brock; Extension, Miss Frances Ryder; Community Service, Mrs. Dorothy Elliott; Education and International Relations, Mrs. Mabel A. Hess; Finance, Mrs. Margaret Threath. The Coordinating Chairman was Mrs. Rena Ellis.

The invocation before lunch was given by Lt. Gov. Margaret Cronan and afternoon workshop sessions followed.

A report from the Greenville Club that six members had willed their eyes to the Eye Bank was followed by the announcement that unusual foods, toys and gifts would be available at the Greenville Pilot Club at Harvest Festival Benefit to be held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Phelps Chevrolet Showroom on Nov. 14.

Hope For Thoroughfare Problems

If the road projects which will be recommended to the State Highway Commission next month are carried out promptly, then many of Greenville's most pressing thoroughfare problems should be alleviated.

Priority is to go to completion of the Greenville Boulevard dual lane thoroughfare and to construction of a four lane bridge across the river in east Greenville. The bypass would be continued via the bridge to N. C. 11-U. S. 13 at the Burroughs Wellcome plant.

Since this stretch of highway is needed now and will be needed even more when Burroughs Wellcome, Becton Dickinson and Fieldcrest begin operating north of Greenville we feel this priority status is proper.

Two other long needed projects were also included in the recommendations and are expected to be approved by the Highway Commission. One is the improvement of Tenth Street from Charles to Greenville Boulevard north to Tenth Street.

Outside the city dual laning of either U.S. 264 to Chocowinity or N.C. 30-33 to Washington is recommended.

We believe the projects are well chosen. The completion of the bypass will mean a thoroughfare beltline entirely around the city with most of it dual laned. Too, Greenville will be tied to two of its neighboring cities by four lane highways. Work is already underway on dual laning the highway from Greenville to Kinston and the work on either U. S. 264 or N. C. 30-33 will join Greenville and Washington by multi-lane highway.

There are other needed projects, of course — a Pitt Street bridge would be most helpful. However, the projects which will be submitted to the Highway Commission will alleviate the most pressing traffic problems.

We hope they will be approved and the work will get underway without delay.

More Responsibility On Our Young People

Tomorrow Greenville City Schools reopen after being closed Monday and Tuesday because of the disruption at Rose High Friday.

Hopefully it will be a peaceful reopening and Greenville's young people can resume their education without further incident.

This generation of young people has had a responsibility placed upon it that we who are beyond our school years never knew. And that is to bring about a peaceful integration of the schools without harming the quality of education and with a spirit of friendliness and brotherhood.

Our faith in the young is such that we believe any problems that might exist will be solved.

Humphrey Left Himself Open

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The reasoning behind Hubert H. Humphrey's Oct. 10 visit to President Nixon, which proved so politically self-destructive, can be fully explained only by a private meeting between Humphrey and some of the Democratic party's wise men two weeks earlier.

Humphrey's trip to the White House, far from being either an impulsive gesture by Humphrey or a ploy engineered by the President, had its genesis at that meeting. What's more, Humphrey spelled out his purpose with vast precision there than he did with the press after seeing Mr. Nixon: to pass on to the President his own dread concern with the consequences of Vietnam and to urge him to quickly liquidate the war.

There is, then, irony in Humphrey's first visit since the 1968 election to see the man who defeated him. An effort to speed Vietnamese peace has unwittingly further deteriorated Humphrey's relationships with the Democratic left wing and with many partisan Democrats who felt Humphrey had ratified Mr. Nixon's war policy.

Humphrey's meeting with his advisers took place at his southwest Washington apartment on Sunday evening, Sept. 28, as a planning session for the new Democratic Policy Council which is headed by Humphrey.

Those present included party officials and former Johnson administration officials working with the Policy Council: Paul Warnke, former Assistant Secretary of Defense; Joseph Califano and Harry House aides; Morris Abram, president of Brandeis University; Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Democratic National Chairman; and several staff-level workers.

The regular business of the meeting had been completed and Sen. Harris had already departed when Humphrey began a half-hour monologue about Vietnam, revealing his increasing concern over the war's effect on this country.

For the first time, he said, he now appreciates the war's full impact among a generation of young Americans, instilling in them with cynicism and doubt. Now that he is teaching college students in Minnesota and can talk to people as a private citizen rather than as Vice President, Humphrey continued, he has become convinced of the need for haste in withdrawing from Vietnam.

He then expressed fear that Mr. Nixon might be immobilized between doves demanding an immediate pull-out and hawks resisting any withdrawal. In fact, Humphrey went on, the hawks are mobilizing against any pull-out. Consequently, he proposed the Democrats make clear to the President that they will stand with him in efforts to disengage from Vietnam and that they will refrain from political recrimination over the possible loss of Vietnam.

It was then that Humphrey suggested a visit by him to the President to impress on him the necessity for getting out of the war and to promise that Democrats will not attack him for the consequences of that withdrawal.

The reaction in Humphrey's apartment was mixed. One adviser, exhibiting ingrained Democratic suspicion of Richard Nixon, felt the President would turn Humphrey's gesture to his own ends. But others agreed that Humphrey might help relieve what one adviser called an American tragedy never seen before by this country.

In the cold light of Monday morning and removed from Humphrey's persuasive exuberance, however, enthusiasm waned. Two advisers who had applauded Humphrey's idea Sunday night decided over the telephone to each other the next day that this would be an exceedingly tricky operation which might well backfire against Humphrey. That proposition

Strength For Today

VENTURESOME SPIRIT

"Nothing ventured, nothing gained." True or false? A bit of both, with the odds being on the side of the venturesome spirit. The Western Hemisphere would never have been discovered and opened to settlement had it not been that certain people had a venturesome spirit. The scientist in the laboratory today works over problems where he sometimes cannot see an inch before his eyes. Many of the greatest discoveries have been due to the fact that the people who made them were willing to take a chance, as it were, to venture, to reach out into the unknown.

Even a decade ago people would have said that the frontiers of discovery had about closed. Now we have had men walking on the moon and some are so venturesome that they are looking across outer space to the planet Mars, wondering how they can get there and speculating on what they will find.

Should they try to go on? Most of us would say Yes. As long as there is anything to be discovered let us keep on trying with the venturesome spirit. The word generally used is "ad-venture." Venture to achieve some end, to gain some new knowledge, to push out further into the unknown.

But think of the cost. There is hunger in the world, and ignorance. Some are all for spending charitable donations and taxes on the alleviation of human suffering. But we can do both. The more we give to relieve human need, the more seems to come our way for whatever good project we have in mind.

Bogus Case Is Built Up

The question is, or will be within the next two weeks: Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth to become an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States?

It is pity that Forty-odd members of the Senate already have indicated their intention to vote against confirmation. Once a Senator has taken a position, publicly, he hates publicly to change his mind. Yet the case against Haynsworth is so flimsy, so specious, so lacking in real substance, that many of these forty-odd Senators might be prompted by a close study of the record to reconsider their opposition.

What we are witnessing, in the trumped-up "case against Haynsworth," is a triumph of the propagandist's craft. Into a smoking pot, the judge's opponents have flung a shrewd mixture of truth, half-truth, whole lies, base insinuations, and old-fashioned politics. By heating up this farrago, they have created great clouds of unfounded doubt; and they have succeeded in making this phony doubt the very basis of their opposition.

It is cruelly unfair to Haynsworth. The South Carolinian is not the most brilliant nominee that Nixon might have found. He lacks color; he lacks style; and these can be important on the Court. Yet other qualities also are important on the Court: self-restraint, precision, a sense of strict construction. These Haynsworth has; and if he is not a Holmes or Hughes or Brandeis, he is a cut above the average nominee of this century.

On one point I am absolutely satisfied: I am satisfied of Haynsworth's integrity. When the record is seen clearly, and not through a smokescreen, the record discloses not even the appearance of impropriety.

The trouble is that the smokescreen is so thick that busy men—and Senators are busy men—cannot conveniently take the time to penetrate the fog. It may be instructive to see how such a smokescreen is contrived.

In his statement of October 8, Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh charged that in at least five cases, Judge Haynsworth "held a financial interest in one of the litigants substantial enough to require disqualification under 28 USC 455 and to constitute impropriety under the canons of judicial ethics." It is a serious charge; if proved, it would justify Haynsworth's rejection.

But it is not true. One of the five cases listed by the Senator was Merck v. Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation. Judge Haynsworth never held stock in either corporation. Bayh's staff was in error. Another of the listed cases was Darter v. Greenville Community Hospital. Haynsworth (Continued On Page 5)

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that teen-agers get tired of hearing:

"When I was your age, I—"
"Frankly, I'm not worried about closing the generation gap—I'd just as soon widen it."

"I'll treat you like a grown-up, Susie Jane, when you start acting like a grown-up."

"No daughter of mine is going to school in a miniskirt that short. Why, you couldn't get by with that outfit in a night club chorus line."

"Aren't you really a bit ashamed, Christopher, to hit me up for $6 to buy a basketball ticket? Why, when I was in high school that's more than I spent on entertainment in a whole month."

"If you teen-agers are so set on being different, why is it that you all dress and act so much alike it's hard to tell you apart?"

"When I was your age, I—"
"I'm tired of hearing you two argue whose turn it is to take out the garbage. Both of you take it out."

"Why, no, Christopher I don't see any objection to your having a car of your own on your 17th birthday. What are your plans for earning the money to buy one?"

"Don't ask me—ask your father."

"Don't ask me—ask your mother."

"Don't do as I do. Do as I tell you."

"When I was your age, I—"
"That's enough lip out of you, young lady. If you think you're too big to spank, you're greatly mistaken."

"Just tell me one thing, Christopher. How can you possibly study your English lesson lying upside down in a chair with your feet in the air and the light shining on the back of the book instead of on the pages?"

"You know the rules as well as I do—no television on school nights. I know there's a good movie on, Susie Jane, but I'll watch it while you go do your homework, and I'll tell you tomorrow how it came out."

"No, this one is my daughter, Susie Jane. That one over there with the long hair is my son, Christopher."

"Why do you even want to be out after midnight? What happens after midnight that is so interesting?"

"When I was your age, I—"

A Paradox In War On Inflation

By ELMER TOESSNER

In another paradox of the strange war on inflation, the United States may see demands for higher wages, strikes that bring them about, and at the same time, a rise in unemployment.

A taste of what is to come may be had in the General Electric situation, where labor contracts expired and where unions have spurned offers of a 7 per cent wages increase.

It seems impossible to end the rising spiral of wages, and without an end there can be no end of inflation. The building trades unions have won increases of up to 15 per cent in recent months and members of other unions are pressuring their leaders for like gains.

The rank and file have a good argument: The rising cost of living and increases in taxes, according to Labor Department figures, have actually cut the purchasing power of higher wages.

No Hope In Sight

While the economy appears to be heading toward a recession of some kind, prices have kept on rising. Taxes, too, are high and probably will go higher. The much-touted tax reform in Congress is being largely emasculated in the Senate and there appear to be little benefits for middle-income taxpayers.

Furthermore, state and local taxes are rising and will go higher next year. These taxing bodies are increasing spending as if God, the ravens and Uncle Sam would provide, but in the end it will be the rank and file of taxpayers who pay.

American Motors, General Motors and Chrysler have already felt the effects of labor unrest. Next year is an "on" year for labor contract negotiations, and major contracts will expire in the auto, rubber, farm equipment, electrical equipment, rubber and several other industries. The GE settlement will probably set a pattern for the electrical equipment industry and have strong influences on other settlements.

Still Higher Prices
Higher wage rates will have to be reflected in higher prices up to the point that customers balk or that foreign suppliers move in. Foreign manufacturers have already bitten off a piece of American steel, auto, electronic and textile markets and they like the taste.

More imports, of course, would cut employment in the states. Higher prices, as often pointed out here, constitute the export of American jobs.

But there are other factors that may reduce employment. The Defense Department has said that new orders for durable goods have been cut 20 per cent in recent months, and that spending for military hardware has been reduced from $2.1 billion to $1.7 billion a month. That spells layoffs.

In addition, demands for reduction of American forces in Vietnam, other Southeast Asia nations, and in Germany will mean a huge cut in our armed forces, perhaps by half a million men. Some will go to school, but most will be seeking jobs.

At the outset the committee says the proposed rules shall be construed and enforced in such manner as to avoid technical delay, permit just and prompt efficient administration of the courts and the business before them."

Striking—The report goes on to outline 20 specific proposed rules pertaining to court procedure, conduct of practicing attorneys and court administration.

They cover the calendaring of cases, continuances, motions, form of pleading, pre-trial procedure and the like—again all of which may mean very little to the lay public. Probably the most striking insofar as the news media is concerned courtroom and courthouse publicity.

Photos—The proposed rule would ban both the taking of photographs and the T.V. or radio transmitting and recording of judicial proceedings not only in the courtroom itself but also in adjacent corridors.

The ban would not apply to "ceremonies" such as the administering of oaths of office, presentation or portraits and similar occasions which may be conducted in the courtroom.

But even these would be "under the supervision of the court."

Triangle—North Carolina's Research Triangle is coming in for additional national and international acclaim.

Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., described the Triangle and its Research Triangle Institute recently as "an outstanding example of the constructive partnership between science and society." Galifianakis spoke at a conference on technology and society on the island of Crete.

Further, Galifianakis described the Triangle and its concept as a "unique asset," a "magnificent aspiration," and "socially useful."

The Fourth District representative was born in North Carolina but is of Greek ancestry. Crete is a Greek island.

Bank—Then the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond devoted its most recent monthly review issue to "Research in a Triangle" in two parts.

The articles point out the wide variety of pure and applied research programs.

"The 18 institutions in the park paint a vivid picture of the diversity and productivity of research in the 20th century," the review says.

"This community of thought and investigation, linked with the three universities, has created a research complex unique in both function and substance." It points to federal government research in health sciences, air pollution and health statistics, textile-oriented research, computer research and biological and pharmaceutical safety and control programs.

The Worry Clinic Intelligent Action Is Really More Abnormal

Sally's boy friend is using high pressure sexual salesmanship on her. He thinks he can intimidate her by his upper classman status. And he figures she will submit to his illicit sexual demands if he uses that social club, namely, that "everybody else is doing it." He even claims she is "abnormal."

By - GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE L-531: Sally M., aged 18, is a college freshman.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "am I abnormal?"

"For an upper classman has been dating me the past 6 weeks."

"But he tries to take sexual liberties that I believe are wrong."

"So he claims all the other coeds have sexual affairs with their boy friends."

"And he tells me that something must be wrong with me. He accuses me of being abnormal! Why does he make such statements?"

Sally's boy friend is merely trying to use high pressure sexual salesmanship on her.

Because he is an upper classman and she is only a freshman, he thinks he can also intimidate her by claiming all the other coeds submit to their boy friends.

That's definitely NOT true, even in this age where freedom of sexual discussion and open dormitories exist.

Alas, many college girls are intimidated by such pressures as Sally's boy friend employs.

But stupidity is normal, whereas intelligent action is abnormal!

In general, whatever 51 per cent or more of people do, is called "normal."

The 49 per cent or less are thus classified as "abnormal."

But the abnormal people are the leaders of society and the churches, for leaders are always in the minority.

Honor students are thus abnormal, by that percentage definition.

In a flock of sheep, it is normal to meekly follow the leader, but it is abnormal to be that bellwether at the head of the flock.

People who are in the glee club or school band, or who teach Sunday School class or are Eagle Scouts and newspaper carriers are abnormal, for they are definitely in the minority.

When little David dared to face the giant Goliath, David was very abnormal, for the entire Hebrew army was chicken and thus normal.

If you let television ads and social pressures stampede you into being a 2-legged sheep, who adopts bizarre clothes, smokes cigarettes and boasts of "drinking till you were tight last night," then you are normal.

If you are a teen-ager who tries to impress girls by his fast driving and boasting of his sexual conquests, then you are afraid and thus are vainly striving to acquire those supposedly social symbols of the rugged he-

man. Remember, it's the abnormal people who rate the top jobs in life and win the prizes, whether in athletics, literature, music or the professions.

So decide early whether you are going to join the courageous minority who are statistically abnormal, or stamped with the human sheep who comprise the normal majority of our population.

Here are the basic signs of precocious youth, who are far more mature than their age group:

(1) They earn their own money, as by carrying a newspaper route or performing chores for which they are paid on a piecework basis.

(2) They average "B" or higher in school marks.

(3) They are members of such school groups as the band, glee club, athletic teams, debate teams, science clubs, etc.

(4) They plan to go on to college so they don't indulge in juvenile torrid romances or try to elope while in the teens.

So send for my booklet "Sex Problems of Young People," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

UNC Trustees Endorse Policy On 'Disruptions'

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The University of North Carolina's board of trustees has endorsed a policy adopted a few months ago by the executive committee for dealing with campus disruptions.

The board took its action Monday despite last minute efforts to change the policy. There was no discussion.

Student and faculty leaders had recommended alterations in the policy. The recommendations were presented to the board's executive committee at a special meeting Sunday by Alan Albright of Gastonia, student body president at Chapel Hill campus, and faculty representatives from the consolidated universities units at Chapel Hill, Raleigh, Charlotte and Greensboro.

Archie K. Davis of Winston-Salem, head of a trustees committee which drafted the policy, said his committee's policy had already been put into effect and would not be changed.

He said the goals of his committee and Albright's group appeared to be the same—to avoid campus disruptions.

The policy provides for the suspension, expulsion, discharge of dismissal of any student, staff or faculty member who willfully disrupts normal campus operations.

The policy sets up a board of inquiry and a hearing committee to handle the cases of alleged disrupters. The chancellor appoints the members of the two boards and he may or may not convene them to hear a case and pass judgment.

Albright's group proposed that not only the chancellor, but also the chairman of the faculty and the student body president have authority to convene the committees.

Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham, and former state Sen. Roy Rowe of Burgaw were elected to the board's 15-member executive committee.

Former Sen. Tom White of Kinston, a member of the executive committee, asked the trustees to determine if: (1) There was "any value" in permitting student publications to use obscene or vulgar language, and (2) the university can require students to pay fees toward the support of these publications.

University president William Friday announced that Jay Jenkins, editorial page editor of the Winston-Salem Journal, had been named to replace Rudolph Pat as assistant to the president. Jenkins will begin his duties Nov. 1.

Si Hamza Boubaker, rector of the Moslem Institute in Paris, performed the religious rites at the groom's home on the Ile de la Cite, close to Notre Dame Cathedral.

The bride, born in India of English parents, wore a white and silver sari of Benares silk. The bridegroom, a direct descendant of the prophet Mohammed, by way of the late Ayl Khan and an English mother, wore a white shawl with a black and gold pattern, and a tall astrakhan hat.

ed a prophetic judgment.

Humphrey had no such misgivings. Without further consultation, he secretly visited the White House to see foreign policy aide Henry Kissinger and made the Oct. 10 appointment with the President.

On Oct. 10, Humphrey pushed Mr. Nixon strongly though unsuccessfully for a ceasefire and recommended that he speak over television to the nation about the war. To the President, Humphrey said: you may think you know how this war is tearing up the country. I thought I knew. But now I realize it is much worse than I thought.

The meeting went smoothly enough. What went wrong came later when, to the surprise of Nixon aides and to the dismay of Democrats, Humphrey made statements to the press that seemed to give Mr. Nixon's war policy a blank check from the Democratic party's titular leader. Hubert Humphrey, who in his apartment two weeks earlier had decided upon the White House visit out of motives of purest altruism, had been unfairly stigmatized once again as the man who swoons in the presence of whoever happens to be President.

Haysworth held no stock in Grace Lines. He did hold 300 shares in W.R. Grace and Co., which owned Grace Lines along with 52 other subsidiaries. The Farrow case involved a $50 judgment.

Still another of Senator Bayh's charges was that Judge Haysworth violated ethical canons by not disqualifying himself in Kent Mfg. Corp. v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue. But it turned out, after the Senator's charge had been added to the stew, that Bayh had the wrong Kent Manufacturing Corporation. Sorry, "but that."

Pres. Nixon Removed His Gloves

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon is demonstrating he hasn't forgotten the arts that once made him a bare-knuckle champion among American politicians.

The President took off the gloves last week and indications are he may keep swinging—at least through next Monday when he delivers his promised Vietnam war message.

Nixon, taking the offensive nine months to the day after taking office, called in newsmen one week ago to defend his choice of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., his nominee to the Supreme Court. Haynsworth, the President said, was a victim of "vicious character assassination."

Although he spoke softly and smiled often, Nixon's words had a sharper edge than any he had used in public since becoming President.

This came at a time when many Republicans as well as Democrats had concluded Nixon would remain a rather placid and passive chief executive.

Just a week earlier the muted Nixon approach of the first nine months was evident in a special message he sent Congress. Wrote Nixon: "Neither the Democratic Congress nor the Republican administration is without fault for the delay of vital legislation."

On Inauguration Day, Nixon had urged that all citizens lower their voices and discuss national issues in a quiet, rational manner. For nine months, the lowered voice was a hallmark of the Nixon presidency—to the point where more than one fellow Republican wished Nixon would not only speak softly but in the tradition of Theodore Roosevelt, carry a big stick.

The stick surfaced last week.

Only time will tell whether the week marked a turning point in Nixon's fortunes, which have been at their lowest ebb since January. Of itself, the surprise counterattack against critics of Haynsworth did not appear to be a decisive event in history. But it came in a week that saw Nixon gain unexpected latitude for maneuver on a far more important issue, the Vietnam war.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, a persistent critic of Vietnam policy, told newsmen Nixon had significantly altered past policy and, in effect, had ordered a standstill cease-fire.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee announced that "as a matter of courtesy" he was postponing public hearings on the war until after a Nov. 3 Nixon address to the nation on the subject.

After weeks of cumulative reverses, the Nixon White House could only feel grateful for such courtesies and hope they presaged brighter days to come.

Since Labor Day, the march of events has not been especially kind to the President. Moreover, Indian summer saw its share of fumbling on the part of the administration. It became fashionable to observe that Nixon was in deep trouble.

This week, however, a top presidential assistant insisted, "There's no autumn of discontent around here."

Of course, Nixon is well aware of the criticism he's been getting. One aide said of the President:

"He expects criticism. He understands criticism. But he doesn't permit it to throw him off balance."

Others in the White House, and Nixon shares their view to some extent, react to criticism by reacting against the news media.

Signs of public disaffection with the new administration became measurable by autumn's first chill and marked, in part, a reaction to summer's pleasant lull. No major cities burned. After four years of steady escalation, the flow of troops through the Vietnam pipeline was reversed. Save for natural disasters along the Gulf coast and in Virginia, August was particularly restful. Congress took a long vacation, and so did Nixon.

But September brought renewed awareness not a single national problem had vanished during the pleasant summer. Students returned to campuses as rebellious as ever, crimes of violence did not abate, living costs rose ever higher, and in Paris peace talks remained in a stalemate.

Attempting to operate as a low-key, low-profile chief execuive, Nixon abruptly discovered his mini-silhouette still offered a target.

Civil rights forces were among the first to be heard from. The Civil Rights Commission accused the administration of making a major retreat on school desegregation in the South. A group of Justice Department staff attorneys rebelled publicly against the civil rights policies. Then Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. predicted trouble if the administration did not alter its approach to Negro problems.

In September, too, the Haynsworth nomination blew sky high. Having sought a nominee who would not arouse controversy, Nixon came up with one who found himself wrestling with conflict of interest charges before the Senate Judiciary Committee. Several Senate Republicans urged Nixon to withdraw the nomination. The President gave his answer last Monday:

"If he now asks that his name be withdrawn I would not do so. . . I have examined the charges. I find that Judge Haynsworth is an honest man."

The Haynsworth nomination was not Nixon's only source of difficulty with the Democratic-controlled Congress. The legislators outpaced the administration repeatedly, on repeal of the 7 per cent investment credit and tax reform, on spending authorizations that Nixon did not want, on voting rights and expansion of the food stamp program, on suggestions for winding down the Vietnam war.

In mid-September, a Republican senator, Charles E. Goodell of New York introduced legislation putting a time limit on involvement of U.S. troops in Vietnam.

Nixon responded: ". . . if the administration were to impose an arbitrary cutoff time, say the end of 1970, or the middle of 1971, for the complete withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam, that inevitably leads to perpetuating and continuing the war until that time and destroys any chance to reach the objective that I am trying to achieve of ending the war before the end of 1970 or before the middle of 1971."

Nixon at this point continued to enjoy the general approval of most Americans, according to the pollsters, but he had a negative popularity rating on Vietnam.

Having withdrawn 25,000 troops from the war zone during the summer, Nixon had expressed hope of pulling out 100,000 or more by the end of the year. But in September he announced a second-stage withdrawal of 35,000 men, well shy of earlier expectations. The President aimed his next move directly at disaffected youth: November and December draft calls were canceled. And a few weeks later, just ahead of the Oct. 15 Vietnam Moratorium, he disclosed he would relieve Gen. Lewis B. Hershey as director of Selective Service.

The Oct. 15 demonstrations reflected autumn's frustrations and owed at least some of its steam to hapless administration handling of Vietnam policy in the wake of Ho Chi Minh's death.

Ho's passing in early September had inspired new outcries from home front dissidents that now was the time for peace. But Washington and Saigon had difficulty meshing signals on a Communist-promoted temporary truce to mark the death. And the administration subsequently bungled so badly in explaining a 36-hour pause in B52 bombing missions over South Vietnam that the intended diplomatic signal to Hanoi became a minus instead of a plus.

Moratorium planners also got a significant lift from a Nixon statement at his September news conference that seemed to reflect intransigence: "Under no circumstances will I be affected whatever by it." Trying later to rationalize his position in a letter to a Georgetown University sophomore, Nixon suffered the further embarrassment of discovering he had written to a monarchist.

On Moratorium Day, while pickets marched outside the White House, Nixon studiously ignored the demonstrators.

But on other fronts, Nixon was taking notice. In a radio talk aimed at housewives, he claimed the administration was winning gradual victory in the battle against rising living costs. In a letter to business and labor leaders, he urged wage-price restraint. Then came his assault against critics of the Haynsworth nomination.

This week will bring further Nixon initiatives. For the first time since 1968, the President will go campaigning—on behalf of Republican candidates for governor in Virginia and New Jersey. Halloween will produce Nixon's first policy statement on Latin America.

But the big test—and he knows it—will come next Monday with his Vietnam address.

What he says then will have much to do with determining whether the Nixon presidency gains upward momentum after its Indian summer slump.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal study group has concluded "ample and timely warnings based on adequate forecasts" were given persons in the path of Hurricane Camille, but the information weather planes provided was less than perfect.

To correct that, the group recommended spending $78.55 million to upgrade instruments on such airplanes operated by the Air Force and Environmental Science Services Administration.

The group reported Monday to Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans that flight safety limits on Navy planes, deficiencies in instruments—especially in Air Force weather radar—and insufficient post-flight liaison between aircrews and ground weathermen caused some problems.

It said, however, that "there was no significant effect on the issuance of warnings and forecasts as a result of the failure of aerial weather reconnaissance aircraft to provide certain data in this particular case. However, there was a delay in obtaining information on the intensity of the storm."

Most of the group's conclusions had been disclosed before by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who toured the hurricane-stricken area ten days after Camille killed more than a hundred people and did damage the study group estimated at approaching a billion dollars.

The report said procedures are being changed "as necessary to insure that critical information is provided," and that the Navy will begin replacing its present reconnaissance aircraft. The change is set for fiscal 1972, which begins July 1, 1971.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has written into the House-passed tax reform bill a provision limiting the lifespan of tax-exempt private foundations to 40 years. Under present law foundations retain their tax-exempt status for so long as they exist. The Senate panel did give the foundations a break, cutting by half new taxes imposed under the House version.

The Finance Committee actions would apply to such foundations as the Ford, Rockefeller and Carnegie.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget was $2.47 billion in the red for the first three months of the fiscal year—July, August and September—the Treasury Department says.

But despite the lack of balance early in the fiscal year, the Budget Bureau predicted Monday tax revenues will increase enough in the next nine months to attain the goal of a $5.9 billion budget surplus.

LBJ Still Aiming At Teaching Job

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson says he still wants to become a university teacher, but first he has commitments to finish a book and take part in a special program for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Johnson, who had expressed an interest in teaching at the University of Texas, was quoted by the student newspaper Daily Texan as saying: "Currently I'm working on a book about my five years as president. The proceeds from the book will go for health, education and conservation."

The University of Texas is opening next fall a public affairs institute named after the former president.

Johnson said he also had teaching commitments at Rice University, North Carolina and Yale.

Cowboys Round Up Win Over Giants

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A dejected Fran Tarkenton sat on a bench in the New York Giants dressing room and talked like a man who had been with Custer at his last stand.

"They just kept coming," said the Giants' quarterback of the Dallas Cowboy defense, which dumped him 10 times for losses totaling 70 yards in a 25-3 National Football League victory Monday night.

"The understatement of the year would be that Dallas just has a pretty good defense," said Tarkenton. "It's the best defense I've ever seen them play." Tarkenton suffered the indignity of being tackled in his own end zone for a safety by George Andrie. He also fumbled once, threw an interception and was even tagged with a 15-yard penalty for intentionally grounding the ball.

New York could manage but eight first downs and couldn't cross midfield in the second half, when the lethargic Cowboys erupted for 19 points in the final quarter of their nationally televised game in the Cotton Bowl.

Mike Clark kicked field goals of 47, 35, and 15 yards before the stumbling Dallas offense found itself. Blessed with excellent field position every time it looked up, the offense woke up on quarterback Craig Morton's 16-yard touchdown pass to Lance Rentzel and halfback Calvin Hill's 40-yard scoring shot to Bob Hayes.

The victory gave the undefeated Cowboys a 6-0 record in the Capitol Division and sank the scrappy Giants to a 3-3 mark in the Century Division.

Alex Webster, Giants coach, said, "We knew they had a machine, but not like that. I'm damn proud of my team. You can't take anything away from the Giants. You don't find defensive clubs like the Cowboys. They don't come any better."

Giants defensive back Willie Williams said, "Our defense played 75 or 80 per cent of the time within our own 50. Considering Dallas is the top offensive team in the league, I'd say our defense did an outstanding job."

New York's defense did handle Morton, the Dallas signal caller who went into the game rated the No. 1 passer in the NFL with a 70 per cent completion mark and no interceptions.

Morton could hit but 11 of 26 for 127 yards and saw two tosses intercepted.

Morton said, "They were the best defensive club we've faced so far this season."

But Andrie, Larry Cole, Jethro Pugh and Bob Lilly, the flint-hard front four of the Cowboy doomsday defense couldn't be controlled.

"Tarkenton is somewhat short, so he has to move out of the pocket in order to spot his receivers," Cole said. "We just kept going in with our hands up and he couldn't see over us. It was a lot of fun getting to him when we did."

And Dallas coach Tom Landry admitted he wasn't overly concerned even though the score was tied 3-3 at halftime.

Landry said, "As long as we were playing good defense I felt we would break it open sooner or later."

Meet The Rampants

Harold Lloyd, left, and Walter Gould are two members of this year's Rose High School football team. Lloyd, a 6-3, 180-pound junior, is the son of Mrs. Johnnie Lloyd. He is a starting defensive end. Gould, a 5-9, 160-pound senior, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Gould Sr. A defensive halfback, he has been sidelined with an injury. The Rampants are scheduled to travel to New Bern Friday to meet the Bears in a Division Two contest. (Reflector Photos)

Irby Takes Golf Invitational Win

Scott Irby of Washington fired a 68 to capture first place in the annual Greenville Invitational Golf Tournament held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Irby finished the two-day tournament with a total of 139, five strokes ahead of Robert Sullivan of Virginia Beach. Sullivan had led the first day's action with a two-under par 70. Irby was a stroke back with a 71.

Then, in Sunday's round, Irby burned the course for his four-under-par round. He knocked in four birdies on each side, coupled with a pair of bogeys and a double bogey on five. That came when he hit out of bounds.

Third place in the championship flight went to Jimmy Gurdins of Washington, who finished with a 145.

In the first flight, Marshall

Uttersen and Mike Schleuter members of the East Carolina University golf team, tied for first with 151's. Third went to Mike Marshall with a 152.

Bob Zulch captured the second flight with a 154, while Vance Wicker had a 158 and Reynolds May had a 159.

In the third flight, John Dumbroski and Boyce Barwick tied for first with 162's. Third went to Rod Lancaster with a 166.

Fourth flight winner was Bob Cato with a 161, followed by Don Carrico with 163 and Phil Williams with a 166.

B. W. Jernigan captured the fifth flight with a 165, while Ray Pearce was second at 167, and Sparkie McCaskill was third at 174.

Dr. Joe Ward, with a 181, won the sixth flight, while Ray Worthington and W. E. Stewart tied for second with 182 scores.

Tennessee Has Tough One Up

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's little reason to suspect that powerful Ohio State will have a tough time with the Wildcats this Saturday but Tennessee is likely to have its hands full with the Bulldogs.

The top-ranked Buckeyes, while rolling up a 5-0 record, have scored 232 points and given up 42. Their opponents, the Northwestern Wildcats, have scored 73 points and yielded 177 in posting a 2-4 mark.

The match between third-ranked Tennessee and Georgia's Bulldogs, No. 11, seems to be the most attractive on this weekend's schedule. The Vols are 5-0 and have piled up 198 scoring points to 57 for the opposition. Georgia, 5-1, has scored 193 points with 49 against.

Second-ranked Texas takes on Southern Methodist, Arkansas, No. 4, plays Texas A&M and Penn State, No. 5, meets Boston College.

Penn State and Florida gained the most ground among the Top Ten teams in the latest Associated Press major college football poll. Both zoomed three places, the Nittany Lions to fifth and Florida to seventh.

Ohio State held its solid lead by drawing 35 first-place votes and 772 points in the balloting by a national panel of 39 sports writers and broadcasters. The next three teams, Texas, Tennessee and Arkansas, maintained the same order as last week.

Southern California advanced from seventh to sixth while Louisiana State also moved up one place, from ninth to eighth. UCLA, held to a tie by Stanford, tumbled three places to ninth. Notre Dame, a 37-0 winner over Tulane, is the only new team in the first 10. The Irish climbed from the No. 12 position. Missouri, fifth a week ago, tumbled to 14th after losing to Colorado.

Colorado and Michigan advanced to the Second Ten, replacing Oklahoma and Mississippi. Colorado took over 18 place and the Wolverines, 20th after defeating Minnesota for the Little Brown Jug. Oklahoma was beaten by Kansas State and Mississippi lost to Houston.

The remainder of this Saturday's schedule involving Top Ten teams: Southern California, Florida-Auburn, LSU-Mississippi, UCLA-Washington and Notre Dame-Navy.

1. Ohio State (35)	772
2. Texas (2)	692
3. Tennessee (1)	570
4. Arkansas	547
5. Penn State (1)	453
6. Southern California	396
7. Florida	353
8. Louisiana State	344
9. UCLA	292
10. Notre Dame	174
11. Georgia	164
12. Kansas State	146
13. Purdue	104
14. Missouri	91
15. Auburn	67
16. Stanford	60
17. Auburn	37
18. Colorado	17

Ragazzo Feels Keydets Have Chance To Pull Upset Of Davidson Eleven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vito Ragazzo's VMI Keydets haven't won a football game all year, but with a youthful squad whose bravery matches its frequent ineptness, Ragazzo isn't yet convinced that all is lost.

"We're not dead yet," warns the Keydet coach as he drills his six-times-beaten club for Saturday's game at Davidson, which pits VMI against a once-beaten team that is tied for the Southern Conference lead.

And although Davidson will be prohibitively favored, for all the customary reasons plus some others not so customary, Ragazzo's muted optimism appears firmly grounded in fact. Mainly, the fact of courage. "They have a lot of guts," said William and Mary coach Lou Holtz after his Indians, leading 25-8, had to stand off a VMI comeback before beating the Keydets 25-17 last weekend. "They never quit."

"Never quit" also was the phrase used by The Citadel coach Red Parker the week previous, following the Bulldogs' 28-2 rout of the Keydets. Said Parker: "We beat the heck out of them, but their kids never gave up. They were hitting as hard in the last quarter as they were at the start."

Because of the extreme youth of the VMI team, many Keydet players never have known how it feels to win. Counting two defeats at the end of last season, the Keydets now have lost eight games in succession.

"I know we are improving. That much is obvious," said Ragazzo. "But we had so far to go, so much to learn — the hard way."

A glance at the statistics shows just how bumpy VMI's road has been. The Keydets' six opponents have scored a grand total of 188 points — to 29 for VMI — and have stacked up 2,680 yards — 1,862 ground, 818 by air.

About the only thing favoring the Keydets this weekend, in fact, is history. They haven't lost to Davidson since 1955 — and last year, in a 1-9 season, their lone victory was at the expense of the Wildcats.

But this, of course, isn't last year. And not only are the Wildcats much better, but Saturday will find them playing before a homecoming crowd, eager to wipe out the memory of last Saturday's last-gasp, 34-28 loss to The Citadel — a loss that cost them sole ownership of the SC lead.

Barring some unbelievable disasters to the other contenders, Davidson must beat not only VMI but must conquer improving East Carolina next week just to preserve a share of the conference crown, and a chance at the SC champion's reward — a berth in the Tangerine Bowl on Dec. 26.

Both VMI and Davidson reviewed scouting reports Monday while opening practice for their Saturday collision. Work was especially light at VMI, where the Keydets drilled in sweat clothes.

End Tom Sanchez, center Mike Davitt and defensive halfback Billy Watson missed practice because of injuries at The Citadel as the Bulldogs began work for their big game at Richmond. In the Spider camp, no one was absent. The worst ailments were bumps and bruises.

East Carolina, which faces Furman in an SC test this week, had blocking back Tom Ilderton, center Cary Edmondson, offensive guard Worth Springs, end Fred Harris, lineman Jim Guder and defensive backs Stu Garrett and Tony Bullock on the hospital list. Furman began drills with only one player missing with injuries — fullback George Vaughn.

William and Mary labored on punting and kicker protection at the start of practice for rugged Virginia Tech, then scrimmaged 45 minutes.

Doug Burgess Wins Contest

Doug Burgess of 105-A South Rotary Drive is this week's Daily Reflector football contest winner.

Burgess correctly picked the winners in 25 of the 31 games this week. The Rose-Enloe game was not considered in judging the contest. He actually won the contest on the point total, with a guess of 75. That was closest to the correct total of 67 scored in West Virginia's 49-18 win over Pittsburgh.

Second place was a tie between Joseph Vinson of 2110 Southview Dr., and Jeff Barwick of 204 Pine St. Both also picked 25 winners, but their guess of 80 points was further off the correct total. They will divide second place prize money.

Two other people also picked 25 winners correctly, but were further off on the total.

This week's contest appears on the following pages.

Passander SC's Offensive Star

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—The Citadel's Bulldogs today became the first team in three years to claim both the offensive and defensive players of the week in Southern Conference football.

Without serious competition, Bulldog quarterback Tony Passander was named offensive player of the week for his smash performance in leading his team to a 34-28 victory over previously unbeaten Davidson.

Earlier, defensive end Jimmy Lee had been chosen the league's defensive player of the week for his great play against the Wildcats.

Passander ran for The Citadel's first four touchdowns on jaunts of 1, 4, 3 and 1 yard and, after Davidson had tied the score 28-28, passed 8 yards for the game deciding TD with 36 seconds left in the game.

For the afternoon, the 185-pound senior from Derby Conn., hit on 16 of 25 passes for 216 yards and ran 24 times for an additional 52 yards. All told, the Bulldogs gained 418 yards behind his all-the-way leadership.

"Passander is effective as both a runner and a passer," said coach Red Parker, "but his greatest attribute is his leadership."

Ironically, Davidson produced the runner-up to Passander for offensive player of the week — Wildcat end George Hannen, who speared 12 passes for 123 yards and a touchdown as his team bowed for the first time and fell into a tie with The Citadel of the SC lead.

The player-of-the-week honors are awarded by the Southern Conference News Bureau.

When Michigan State linebacker Don Law of Brownsville, Pa., intercepted a Washington pass and ran 70 yards for a touchdown, it was the fifth longest interception return in Spartan history.

Kansas State Has New Look

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash: Kansas State played its first game of football back in 1887 and the school paper reported it this way.

"Some 30 students indulged in a game of football on Friday afternoon. It is to be hoped that our students have the good sense to play even football without violence."

The wish came true. Kansas State's non-violent teams posted only 22 winning seasons, the last in 1954. But things have changed.

Vince Gibson arrived as head coach in 1967 and the Wildcats promptly beat Colorado State in their opener but then slipped to a 1-9 season. Last year the record was 4-6 and it's now 5-1 following Saturday's 59-21 rout of Oklahoma. K-State even is in the nation's Top Twenty teams.

"To say that there was a losing attitude when I arrived here is an understatement," said Gibson. "That attitude isn't completely wiped out, but it's gotten better."

One of the reasons is what Gibson calls "purple pride." Purple is Kansas State's color; pride is Gibson's color. A record crowd of 38,500 turned out for the Oklahoma game—K-State hadn't beaten the Sooners since 1934—and Gibson describes it as "a sea of purple."

Gibson, you see, is a pusher... a purple pusher. He's got a purple telephone, a Purple Pride television show, wears purple underwear and purple shirts and is constantly being flooded with gimmicks from his fans—all purple, naturally.

"On Saturday, a lady gave me two purple coat hangers," he said. "But the wildest was a little radio in the form of a purple toilet."

The list of major teams with perfect records dropped to 10 Saturday when UCLA played a tie and Davidson, Miami of Ohio and Missouri lost. Unbeaten, untied teams are Arkansas, Dartmouth, Florida, Louisiana State, Ohio State, Penn State, Texas, Toledo and Wyoming. Southern California is unbeaten but tied.

The only winless teams are Baylor, Columbia, Illinois, Marshall, Minnesota, VMI, Washington and Xavier of Ohio. East Carolina, Navy, Tulsa and Virginia Tech joined the ranks of winners last weekend.

It didn't get much notice, but two members of the Air Force coaching staff were killed Saturday night when their jet trainer overshot the runway at the Academy and crashed.

They were Capt. Marty Bezyack, a graduate of Utah and head junior varsity coach, and Maj. Don Usry, who was the tight end at Army when Bill Carpenter was the heralded Lonely End. Usry was on the faculty at the Air Force Academy and helped coach the freshmen. He'll be buried Thursday at West Point. Where the Air Force plays on Saturday.

Pass rush, translated these days, means Kings Point. The Mariners of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy have nailed the opposing quarterback for losses an amazing 56 times in six games, with defensive end Harvey Adams accounting for 22 of them.

There's head linesman working games in the East named Richard Nixon. His worst moment came just after last November's Presidential election when he called a motel in Orono, Maine, to make a reservation.

"Name?" "Richard." Silence. Nixon had to give a credit card number before he got his reservation.

And they saved his game introduction for last, but his name drew an ovation.

"I was stunned," said Nixon. "To get an ovation like that in Muskie country..."

Quickie quote from John Bate-man of Rutgers, answering critics who thought his team would have beaten winless Columbia by more than 21-14:

"Wins and woman are the same—I've never known a bad one, but some are better than others."

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 20.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed in Sperry moderately active trading early this afternoon. Popular market barometers showed losses, but advances outnumbered declines by a 615 to 551 margin among individual issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 2.31 at 887.97.

Many brokers and analysts agreed a consolidation move would help the market build a strong base for a later advance, but not all agreed on the day's probable course of prices. Some predicted declines, others advances, and some a mixed performance characterized by investors watching and waiting for new developments.

Trading in blocks of 10,000 shares or more included 135,000 shares of Alcoa, off 1 1/2 at 75; 130,000 shares Allis-Chalmers, up 1/2 at 24 1/2; 49,600 shares of Getty Oil at 56, off 1/2, and 121,000 shares of Kaiser Industries at 21 1/2, up 1/4.

Among the 20 most-active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, 10 advanced, 8 declined, and 2 were unchanged.

Price changes among the most actively traded issues on the New York Exchange included Allis-Chalmers up 1/2 at 25 1/2, Alcoa off 1 1/2 at 75, Admiral off 1/2 at 20 1/2, and Glen Alden up 1/4 at 11 1/4.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange included Kaiser Industries up 1/4 at 20 1/2, National Health up 1/4 at 12 1/2, Castleton Industries up 1/4 at 9, and North Canadian Oils up 1/2 at 9 1/2.

(Continued From Page 1) support out-of-town travel to and from games; the precedent of providing transportation to practice in basketball would not be possible nor advisable.

—Negro history: when plans are made for next year's curriculum if sufficient students are interested, a course in Negro History can be offered.

—Rumors reflecting unfavorably on blacks: A school must admit the truth but is often helpless to prevent distortions of fact . . . our greatest ally is the whole of the black and white students at Rose. The greatest way to set the record straight is for you to be a living example of black honor and integrity.

—Hands off rule: Teachers touching students — the most judicious policy is for teachers to observe a hands off policy in regard to students. At the same time the law of North Carolina specifically authorizes principals, teachers and student teachers . . . to use reasonable force in the exercise of lawful authority — to maintain order . . . it is his right and obligation to physically restrain students when it is necessary.

—Mutual respect between teachers and pupils: Students must address teachers in a proper and respectful manner and teachers will reciprocate.

—Awarding academic grades: The grade awarded is a personal and professional right of the teacher and a private judgment which cannot be invaded unless the general policy is being violated.

—Honor roll and Honor Society: Plans had already been made to discontinue the publication of honor rolls and principal's lists. This decision was based on the fact that these lists were more traditional than valuable and tended to be a false reward.

Several students cited a few teachers whom they stated have shown unfairness in their treatment of black students, and particularly in the matter of giving grades.

Others indicated their being at Rose this year was not a matter of their own choosing, that they would have preferred being at Eppes.

Bennie Roundtree was the first adult to make a statement at the forum: "I want to remind parents, the mayor and other officials . . . that the problem is not in students . . . we are treating them as guinea pigs, not human beings. . . I say to white and black parents, do a little home work around your house . . . we want to continue to live in Greenville as good citizens and we have good citizens, black and white."

Other parents commented: —Jesse Mack Bunting: (white parent): "I'm a concerned taxpayer and citizen. When I went to school, if I misbehaved, I got a 12 to 18 inch board across my bottom at school, and again when I went home. I believe much of the trouble in school today is discipline. Teachers and fathers do not take action."

Mrs. Margie Perkins: "It seems parents are reluctant to speak. This is the place and
