3-Day Trip Begins This Afternoon Conrad, Gordon And Bean Prepare For Home

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 12's moon voyagers head for home today after photographing future astronaut landing sites in the rugged lunar highlands.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean awoke shortly after midnight EST to conduct several hours of lunar surface photography from the orbiting command ship Yankee Clipper.

At 3:49 p.m. they plan to trigger Clipper's big engine to blast themselves out of moon orbit to start the three-day quarter-million-mile trip back to their home planet. They splash down in the Pacific at 3:57 p.m. Monday, ending man's second expedition to the lunar surface.

Conrad and Bean were tired after a long day that started with a four-hour, one-mile scientific expedition on the Ocean of Storms and ended with the deliberate crash of their lunar ferry Intrepid on the moon. In between, they blasted off the moon, executed a flawless 3 1/2-hour rendezvous to linkup with Gordon in the Yankee Clipper command ship. Then transferred themselves and the treasure gathered on the moon to the command ship.

Before Apollo 12's launching last Friday, Gordon told newsmen "the strip photography is one of the most important things we're going on this flight for future missions."
Six cameras are used, four of them placed side-by-side on a common mount, each fitted with a different type of film and filter. Another camera is fitted with a 500 millimeter lens, and the sixth has an 18 millimeter lens.

Gordon said the four mounted cameras will be triggered every 20 seconds "to give us complete strip photography across the illuminated surface of the moon from one minute after sunrise to one minute prior to sunset."

The other cameras are concentrated on three sites considered highly desirable for future Apollo landings because of their scientific interest.
These are the shallow craters Fra Mauro, Descartes and Lalande, all in mountainous areas south of the lunar equator.
Fra Mauro is the target for the Apollo 13 crew, which will be commanded by astronaut James A. Lovell Jr., when it takes off on man's third journey to the moon next March.
Only one problem was reported as Yankee Clipper continued its orbital patrol. It involved poor communication relay through a high-gain antenna. Two other smaller antennas carried the load, but the problem could prevent a television transmission planned for after the astronauts fire out of lunar orbit today.

Haynsworth 'Showdown' Is At Hand

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A closely divided Senate moved toward a vote today on the Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., and the Republican leader said confirmation by a narrow margin could raise later difficulties with public opinion.
That assessment came from Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, still uncommitted in the struggle over President Nixon's nominee for the court.

"The closer the vote the greater the difficulty would be with public opinion in the event future decisions of the court turned out 5 to 4," Scott said at the start of the showdown Senate session.
Scott also said he hopes Haynsworth would not quit his current post as a circuit court judge if rejected for the high court.
Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said "It seems awfully close."

Asked about reports of pressures being exerted on some senators, Mansfield said, "I think it's abominable."
"Senators are sent here to exercise their own best judgment," he added. Mansfield said his mail has been running "against Haynsworth—not too much" but said "I read the mail but I have to make up my own mind."
When the Senate met, two hours in advance of the vote, the public galleries were only about half filled.

Seated in a section reserved for family members and friends was Andrew J. Biemiller, chief lobbyist for the AFL-CIO and director of legislative affairs for the labor federation.
The AFL-CIO has opposed Haynsworth.
In another section was Clarence Mitchell, who has been lobbying against Haynsworth's confirmation for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Leadership conference on Civil Rights.

Honorable mention in the class went to the Lois Rountree community and Middlesex in Nash County.

Guest speaker last night was The Honorable L.H. Fountain, House Representative from the Second District. Fountain was introduced by W. Eugene Simmonds, reading clerk for the North Carolina Senate.

Fountain termed the large turnout last night "a genuine grassroots vindication of our American system of government, an impressive illustration of what can be accomplished by an enlightened body of citizens who are concerned enough for their communities and for their country to act for the common good."

"The purpose of the association is particularly in tune with the development mood of our nation today, Fountain said. This very month has seen the formation in Washington of a Cabinet-level Rural Affairs Council, reflecting official national recognition of the great need to develop the economic and social opportunities of our countryside and of our smaller towns and cities.

Fountain said he was impressed by the "remarkable record of achievement shared by each of the Association's six operating divisions."
The Agriculture, Home

community of Edgecombe County captured first place. The Williams community of Martin County received second place and Bonnett community of Beaufort County was awarded third honors.

HIGHER BOARD MEMBERS... greetings with Dr. Leo Jenkins, host Paul Lucas, vice-chairman, and for the Board's visit to the East Cameron West, director, exchange Carolina campus.

Newspapers ECU Hosting Under Fire N.C. Education From Agnew Board Members

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, saying he does "not seek to intimidate the press," has extended his criticism of the nation's news media to some daily newspapers.

Finding particular fault with the New York Times and the Washington Post, Agnew Thursday night charged there is a "growing monopolization of the voices of public opinion on which we all depend—for our knowledge and for the basis of our views."

The vice president's attack in a speech to the Alabama Chamber of Commerce came exactly one week after he leveled sharp criticism against the nation's television networks for their handling of news.

In answer to critics who asserted he was attempting to muzzle newsmen, the vice president told his audience:

"I am opposed to censorship of television or the press in any form. I don't care whether the censorship is imposed by government or whether it results from management in the choice and the presentation of the news by a little fraternity having similar social and political views. I am against, repeat am against, censorship in all forms."

However, Agnew said, this does not mean the news media should be free of criticism.

"When they go beyond fair comment and criticism they will be called upon to defend their statements and their positions just as we must defend ours," he said.

In his speech, which ran slightly over half an hour and was interrupted 17 times by applause, Agnew said "... the American people should be made aware of the trend toward the monopolization of the great public information vehicles and the concentration of more and more power over public opinion in fewer and fewer hands."

"It was a great, great political tragedy for the people of New York," he said, when four daily newspapers died in that city in the last decade.

"The New York Times was a better newspaper when they were alive than it is now that they are gone."

The East Carolina University administration, faculty, and students were host today to members of the Board of Higher Education who arrived on campus this morning at 10 o'clock.

The group gathered in the living room of the Home Economics Building for an informal coffee hour before briefings by Dr. Leo Jenkins, president, and other administrative persons began.

'Agreement' On Okinawa

By SPENCER DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States formally agreed today to turn back Okinawa to Japan's rule during 1972. The United States will retain such military bases as it requires for the security of both countries.

The announcement was made in a joint communique issued at the end of three days of negotiations between President Nixon and Japan's Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.
The announcement said that Nixon assured the prime minister that the reversion of Okinawa would be carried out in a manner consistent with the Japanese government's policy of opposing the use of all nuclear weapons.

In somewhat vague language, the communique said that this would be without prejudice to the prior consultation system under the mutual security treaty between the two countries.

British To Orbit Own Satellite

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Britain's first military communication satellite aims into orbit tonight to link defense outposts as far apart as England and Singapore.

The drum-shaped satellite, to be placed on a permanent station 22,300 miles above the Indian Ocean, is to blast off from Cape Kennedy at 7:37 p.m. EST atop a U.S. Delta rocket.

Paul Lucas, vice-chairman, greeted the members and conveyed the regrets of Gov. Robert Scott, who serves as the Board's chairman.

Most of the day will be occupied with visits to various facilities on the campus and question and answer session between individual Board members and individual members of the administration and faculty.

Luncheon was served in the Home Economics dining room. Preliminary to the administrative briefings, Dr. Jenkins spoke about East Carolina and its aspirations generally. He spoke of a well-traveled two way street between the University and the region it serves and cited the advantages of use of available resources, flexibility in planning, and competition among the schools and departments, as well as with wother institutions. Some other administrators who addressed the Board were Dr. Robert Williams, who discussed academics in general; Dr. John Howell, who discussed the school graduate program; Dr. James Tucker, who spoke on student affairs; and Dr. David Middleton, who told about the University's continuing education program. Dr. Jenkins discussed the Allied Health Program because of the absence of Dr. Edwin Monroe, director of that program.

However, Americans got a break at the grocery store in October when food prices declined six-tenths of one per cent, notably for meat and vegetables.

the over-all rise in living costs brought the Labor Department's consumer price index to 129.8. This means it cost $12.98 last month for every $10 worth of food, housing, clothing, transportation and medical care in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

At the same time, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that average pay of some 45 million rank and file workers declined 86 cents a week to $116.94 because of a substantial cut in the work week. After the deduction for taxes and the rise in living costs, the purchasing power of the average pay check was down one per cent for the month and eight-tenths of one per cent below a year earlier.

Woman Charged With Assault

Carrie Elizabeth Harris, 45, of 802 Douglas Ave. was charged with assault with a deadly weapon yesterday after allegedly firing a black pistol in the face of a loan company employee here.

Denny Grimsley told police that a woman identified as Mrs. Harris entered the Atlantic Credit Co. office at 412 South Evans St. about 12:30 p.m., took a blank pistol out of her handbag and fired it directly into his face. No reason for the incident was given.

Living Cost Index Shows New Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher prices for cars and houses were major factors in a four-tenths of one per cent rise in living costs last month that continued the nation's sharpest inflation in some 20 years, the government said today.

However, Americans got a break at the grocery store in October when food prices declined six-tenths of one per cent, notably for meat and vegetables.

Name Officers, Present Awards At CPDA Meet

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Mrs. Ruth Cherry of Rt. 2, Rocky Mount took the reins as president of the Coastal Plain Development Association last night as outgoing head Jim Hackner of Washington turned over the symbolic gavel.

Two local citizens were named to the new slate of officers. Charles Waller was named second vice president and Mrs. J.T. Manning, secretary, succeeding Irvin Fitch of Bailey and Mrs. Virginia Credle of Washington, respectively.

Highlight of the seventh annual meeting and awards banquet was the presentation of community awards to recipients chosen from the six county area served by the association. Those counties are Pitt, Beaufort, Edgecombe, Martin, Nash, and Wilson.

First place award for community improvement in the village and town class went to Grifton of Pitt County. In addition to a plaque signifying the outstanding achievement of the community, a check for $150 was presented to the delegation.

Second place in this category went to Elm City, representing Wilson County.

Simpson won honorable mention and a $50 award in the 60-families or over class with first place going to the Drake Community in Nash County. Second place was awarded to the Speed Community in Edgecombe County and third place went to the Daniel Chapel community of Wilson County.

Council Refuses Parade In Dec.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A parade request submitted by the Viet Nam Moratorium Committee, with headquarters at 319 East 10th Street, for permission to conduct a march on Saturday, December 13, has been denied by the City Council.

The council made this decision at a special call meeting held Monday night, November 17. The request for a permit to parade was signed by Wayne Eads asking for the time period of 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. for the march.

On the application, the route outlined is from the East Carolina University campus, down Fifth Street to Evans, then north on Evans to the Shore Drive area and return by the same route.

The stated purpose of the parade is "to dramatize the people of Greenville the beliefs of the moratorium committee members and to publicize these beliefs in an effort to gain the support of the community."
An estimated 500 people would be expected to participate in the march. No vehicles would be used.

The action to deny the request followed testimony by City Manager Harry Hagerty and others, giving reasons they felt the parade would not be practical at the time requested.

These facts include: "A march on Saturday afternoon, particularly during the Christmas shopping season, would constitute an unreasonable disruption of the normal traffic and pedestrian activity in the Central Business District (CBD) of Greenville."
"The parade would block a total of 13 intersections in the CBD area."
"It would require the services of 16 police officers for a period of 3 hours to insure safety of marchers and others at the intersections only, without considering additional officers who might be needed for the safety of the marchers and the marchers and the public at any other point.

"A group of 500 persons would involve a time element of 15 minutes to clear any one intersection.

"The purpose of the march is identical to one held in November by the Vietnam Moratorium Committee. A second, parade by the same group for a same purpose is a one-month period is considered an unreasonable, unjustified interruption of the activity of the citizens of Greenville."

Based on this testimony, Councilman Percy Cox made a motion that the request be denied. The motion was approved by the council.

Hagerty also revealed that the Merchants' Association of Greenville has announced that because of the factor of interruption of shopping activities in the CBD, they have withdrawn their request for the annual Christmas parade in downtown Greenville. Thus, there will not be a Christmas parade downtown this year.

Arrest Pupils In Sale Of Heroin

NEW YORK (AP) — Police-men posing as pupils arrested eight pupils at George Washington High School Thursday and charged them with selling heroin to classmates.

The eight ranged in age from 15 to 18.

Police recovered 41 bags of heroin from air vents, toilet bowls and radiators in the four-story high school in upper Manhattan. The bags retail for up to $5 each.

The arresting officers, all Negroes and Puerto Ricans, had been posing as pupils for three weeks without telling school officials. Police said the investigation would continue.

Count His Brains, Not Height

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I do have a problem, and right now it's getting the best of me.
 I am about 6 inches taller than my husband, Bernie and I have been married for nearly 10 years and have two beautiful children. A woman couldn't ask for a better husband, father, or provider, and I'm really ashamed of myself for feeling this way, but, Abby, I can't help it. I seem to have developed an attraction to men who are taller than I am. When I dance with a taller man I feel so feminine and secure, and then when I dance with Bernie again, I feel "cheated."

 My husband doesn't know how I feel, and I wouldn't hurt him for the world, but this bothers me. I know it's wrong, and I've talked to myself until I'm blue in the face, but it doesn't help me.
 I can't send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, as Bernie sometimes gets the mail before I do, but if you could squeeze this into your column, with some advice, I'd certainly appreciate it.

Mrs. Sue May Gives Program

Mrs. Sue May presented the program at the meeting of the Simpson Extension Homemakers held Tuesday at the community building.

"What's New" was the program topic for the meeting. Mrs. May told of new furniture, appliances, upholstery materials and clothing materials.

Mrs. S.D. Tucker conducted the business session. Mrs. Jimmie Edwards gave the devotional on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Gentry Porter, family life leader, gave a report on crafts.

Mrs. H.W. Smith assisted by Mrs. J.R. Godly and Mrs. Lyman Edwards served refreshments.

Dinner Party Held On Tuesday

Members of the Bonae Artes Book Club entertained their husbands at a dinner party Tuesday night.

A social hour was held at the home of Mrs. Lee West followed by dinner served at the home of Mrs. Ralph Brimley.

A brief business meeting was held and books exchanged.

TROUBLED
DEAR TROUBLED: No man has everything. Some short men are long on brains, charm and integrity, and some tall men are short at the bank. So count your blessings, lady, and quit counting inches.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please print this desperate plea to the shoe manufacturers:

Help! I am almost barefoot, but I am determined not to wear those ugly, clumpy, cloddy shoes! They don't flatter women's feet or legs, and a woman is a fool to wear something that is unbecoming to her—even if it IS in style.

Those of us who can sew, have an alternative when it comes to dress styles, but we can't make our own shoes. At least give us a choice!

Sans Souci Club Met On Monday

WINTERVILLE—Don Watson presented the program at the meeting of the Sans Souci Book Club held Monday night at the home of Mrs. L.H. Ellis.

Watson spoke on the work of the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. He stated that after patients leave the center, it is important that there is a follow-up program in their community.

Mrs. Ronald Carroll, president, conducted a business session. Club librarian, Mrs. Abbott, distributed the books. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee Manning of Rt. 6, Greenville, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday. They were honored at a family reunion held at their home.

Their children include Willis, Jarvis, Frank and Paul Manning, Mrs. Lillian Forlines and Mrs. Virginia Gowman. They have 22 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Williford of Farmville announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Jean, to Johnny L. Hester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Hester of Greenville. The wedding will take place Nov. 27.

Bridge-Luncheon Given Members

BETHEL — Mrs. W.R. Hunnicutt entertained at a bridge-luncheon on Tuesday honoring members of her bridge club.

Mrs. J.C. Wynne and Mrs. E.E. Dennis were awarded score prizes.

Guests included Mrs. Joe Hunnicutt, Mrs. E.E. Dennis and Mrs. W.T. Ward.

DEAR HOLDOUT: The shoe industry has heard plenty from me over the years. I wore out my typewriter protesting the pointed-toed, spiked-heel cripplers. NOW we have "clumpy, cloddy" shoes, which look like marine combat boots or orthopedic footwear. The old cripplers were better looking, but they ruined our feet. The new ones offer comfort, but they are ugly! We can't win.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "NEEDS TO KNOW" — the woman with three children who fights constantly with her husband.

Since the husband does nothing to remedy the situation, and it takes two to correct such a situation, I say, leave him. For if you don't, things will go from bad to worse. Our neighbor and her husband fought all the time. They had a lovely home and two wonderful daughters — apparently everything to make their lives worthwhile. But their fights grew more vicious, and neighbors even heard their threats to kill each other. To make a long and very sad story short, the wife shot and killed her husband with his revolver. (He was a police officer.) He's in the graveyard, and she is in the woman's prison. And their children are being raised by relatives a thousand miles away. Don't think it can't happen in your neighborhood. It can.

Club Members Hear Speaker

Doug Wilson, trust officer of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., gave the program at the meeting of the Tea and Topics Book Club Tuesday night.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest McLawhon. Wilson told how and why each person should have a will. A will should be kept current at all times, since laws and circumstances change from time to time.

Both husband and wife should know something about the financial condition so this would not be such a problem at death, he said. He talked briefly about federal, state and inheritance taxes and various changes which could be made while the person is living to reduce these taxes at the time of death.

Guests were Mrs. Jack Cox, Mrs. Carl Abee and Mrs. Edward Holland.

Plans were made for the Christmas party and books were exchanged. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

Mrs. J.S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr. were first place winners in the regular Wednesday Afternoon Duplicate Bridge Club game played at Planters Bank.

Others who placed were: Dr. and Mrs. George Martin Jr., second; Mrs. Eli Bloom and Mrs. M.H. Bynum, third; Mrs. Cora Powell and Mrs. S.M. Woolfolk, fourth.

Winners in the Wednesday morning game were: Mrs. T.R. Cole and Mrs. Van Jones, first; Mrs. W.J. Shaw and Mrs. Charles Brown, second; Mrs. E.J. Edminister and Mrs. A.W. Harman, third; Mrs. Lindsay Savage and Mrs. W.S. Stafford, fourth.

If macaroni-and-cheese casserole is one of your specialties, try adding these seasonings: chopped pimiento, parsley, chives, green pepper, olives or bacon bits.

BARGAIN?

...only a professional knows

Today, all diamonds have determinable value. If a stone has any worthy quality to it, a jeweler can obtain the standard price for it and doesn't need to sell it to you "wholesale." Many so-called "bargain" diamonds have first been marked up in order to be "slashed down." It costs no more to buy your diamond from a reputable firm with qualified personnel to properly evaluate the stone you select. As members of the American Gem Society, you may be assured of both our reliability and proven knowledge.

He Became 'Involved' In Life

No doubt May 12, 1968 started as just another day for young David Nobles Jr. of Stokes and if he had taken the attitude most people do these days, it could have ended that way—except he might have witnessed a tragedy.

But when David saw a man in trouble due to the strong undertow that day at Atlantic Beach, he could not stand by. He swam out, using a surf board, to save the life of Dr. J. W. Lynn, a resident physician at Wake Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Lynn did not know who saved him that day but he made inquiries and wrote to Stokes where he located the young man who saved his life.

There is not the slightest doubt that David had no thoughts of glory as he undertook the difficult task. He saw a job to do and he did it. Appropriately, though, David was nominated for a certificate of heroism through the Boy Scouts. Tuesday night at the annual scouting recognition banquet the special award was presented to David, who is now a sophomore at N. C. State University.

We could say nothing that would mean more than this coveted award which David received through the Boy Scouts. We can only say that this is the type of young citizen in whom we can all take pride. It is young men of this caliber who will furnish the courage and leadership which the United States and the world will need in the years of change that lie ahead.

Lottery Draft System Has Redeeming Feature

The lottery system of drafting young men into the armed services may have some drawbacks, but its redeeming feature is that it removes the element of doubt that now hangs over potential draftees.

The bill establishing the lottery system was approved by the Senate Wednesday and since it was proposed by the administration, it is expected to be signed into law shortly.

Under the new law slips containing each day of the year will be placed in a container. They will be withdrawn one at a time and a registrant whose birthday is drawn first will be the first to be drafted.

At first the names of all eligible men will be included, but officials believe that within a year the system will be working so that only 19 years olds will be included. Thus a young man will know within the year whether or not the draft will interrupt his education and his chosen career.

There is, of course, much that is not entirely fair about the new system. Purely by chance one youth may never serve, while another, also by chance, must don a uniform. However, it will be of great advantage to young Americans to either serve their time in the armed services at 19, or to know that they can plan for careers or marriage.

The new draft system will not be without faults, but it will be an improvement over the system we have now.

Contribution To Knowledge

By Jim Strothman
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—With a bull's-eye landing, treasure chests full of carefully selected moonstones, pieces of Surveyor 3 and an array of sophisticated experiments deployed on the lunar surface, Apollo 12 is sure to contribute more to science than any previous space flight.

Only one major objective remains-taking close-up pictures of three possible landing sites for future missions-before astronauts "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean can head home knowing they did all they set out to do. They'll do that today.

Apollo 12's landing just 20 feet from the edge of a crater in which Surveyor 3 is located clears the way for future missions to more rugged terrain, where smaller safe landing zones exist but where scientists say the most knowledge can be gained.

The theory is that volcanoes or meteor impacts have tossed material from deep inside the lunar crust onto the surface in these areas. If so, rocks collected from these rugged sites could harbor numerous secrets about the moon's interior and thus possibly provide more information about the origin of the moon, the earth and the solar system.

During two excursions outside the Intrepid lander craft, Conrad and Bean collected an estimated 80 to 100 pounds of rocks far more carefully selected than those picked up on Apollo 11—including some that may have been tested to the site when the huge crater Copernicus was created 200 miles to the north.

Knowledge to come from this treasure chest of rocks will only be learned after long months of studying the specimens, "but we're sure we'll learn something. I can tell you that," one scientist predicted.

Pieces of Surveyor 3 snipped off by Conrad will give engineers valuable information about how well man-made materials wear in the lunar environment. This type of data can prove useful in designing future spacecraft or permanent habitats to house scientists on the lunar surface.

Five scientific experiments deployed on the surface by Conrad and Bean have already begun to unravel secrets of the moon. Sources said one of them, designed to measure any gas particles above the surface, has shown the moon may have an atmosphere one-millionth that of the earth.

Data was recorded on a seismometer experiment when Conrad rolled a rock down a nearby crater, proving the device should be able to do what it is designed to do determine the structure of the moon's interior by listening for moonquakes or sonic signals produced by falling meteors.

Other experiments in the package will analyze particles in radiation storms streaming from the sun, helping scientists understand potential hazards to space travelers, and detect whether or not the moon has magnetic fields.

More On TV Coverage

WASHINGTON Today I would like to discuss with you the dangers of television sports casting and how a small group of men decide what 20 million people will see during a football game.

Last Saturday, Ohio State played Purdue in one of the most important football games of the year. While viewers had tried to see this great contest pitting two of the finest teams in the country, two or three commentators who had made up their minds in advance on the outcome had subjected the game to instant analysis and querulous criticism.

It was obvious to those of us watching that these self-appointed analysts expressed their hostility toward one team or the other before the television audience had a chance to digest what had happened.

Two of the commentators, Chris Schenkel and Bud Wilkinson, by the tone of their voices and the expressions on their faces, indicated sharp disapproval of Purdue's defense and couldn't hide their admiration for the way Ohio State had managed to score at will.

They offered gratuitous advice, challenging the policies of the Purdue quarterback and coach, and the networks seemed happy to offer the commentators all the time they wanted.

Now everyone has a right to say what he wants about the Ohio State-Purdue football game, but the American people also have a right to make up their own minds as to what they have seen.

How was this football game telecast? A small elite group of men, no more than a dozen, decided what you would or would not see Saturday. They chose the plays and the players that you would follow. You had no choice in this matter.

They also, at their own discretion, decided what instant replay would be shown and when. This great power in the hands of a few men is too frightening to imagine. Who is to say how much Chris Schenkel's inflections or Bud Wilkinson's raised eyebrows contributed to Purdue's defeat?

We know that Schenkel lives in New York and Wilkinson lives in Washington, the most unrepresentative communities in the United States.

Both men read the same newspapers and draw their views from the same sources. Worse, they talk constantly to one another, thereby providing artificial reinforcements of their shared viewpoints.

Is it not fair and relevant to question the concentration of power when it comes to college football games in the hands of a tiny enclosed fraternity of privileged men, elected by no one and enjoying a monopoly sanctioned and licensed by the government?

Other Editors Say New Prayer Approach

(Rocky Mount Telegram) When the U.S. Supreme Court made its infamous decision prohibiting prayer and Bible reading in the public schools of this country, it didn't reckon with the resourcefulness of public servants like Rep. Richard L. Roudebush of Indiana.

When Rep. Roudebush heard that school officials in Netcong, N.J. permitted students to read from the congressional Record the chaplain's prayer used to open sessions of Congress, he decided to try and be helpful.

He asked the Library of Congress to supply him with appropriate prayers which he could then insert into the Record each week for similar use.

Roudebush then invited school jurisdictions around the country to use these prayers in voluntary, non-sectarian devotion at the start of each school day.

"Even the Supreme Court, which has said 'no' to God and 'yes' to pornography and Communism, has not had the courage to tell Congress, our nation's highest governing body, that it cannot start its daily work with a prayer," said Rep. Roudebush.

"And, if Congress can have a prayer, I believe any other public function in America can do so too," he said.

Those people in Roudebush's congressional district in Indiana should be extremely proud of this man who isn't afraid to stand up for his principles despite the destructive decisions handed down by a liberal Supreme Court over the past two decades.

If there were enough men like Roudebush in the two houses of Congress perhaps the nation would witness an improvement in the climate that prevades Washington.

Permissiveness, timidity by Congress toward an aggressive Supreme Court and the desire to satisfy the whims of belligerent minorities have snapped the strength and character of our national government.

Long Prospect For Court Seat

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH—The governor's office was deluged with telegrams and calls about Gov. Bob Scott's choice of an appointee to the State Supreme Court bench.

The staff had to sort it and put it on Scott's desk. He was the man who had to make the final decision which was reached late Monday or early Tuesday.

Announcement might have been made as early as Tuesday but it was decided to wait for a more formal disclosure and fuller coverage by all media. Protocol also called for other members of the Supreme Court and certain other high-ranking officials to be notified first. Thus a delay appeared to be in order. Scott said all right.

ENDORSED — According to sources the message to Scott about this appointment were more than two to one in favor of former Gov. Dan K. Moore.

Moore appeared to be the most popular choice by far, and for many reasons. But Scott thought about and considered very carefully all facets of the situation, and other possible appointees.

There was consideration of State Rep. Henry Frye of Greensboro, who would have become the first Negro to serve on the Supreme Court, and others. Quite a few others.

POLITICAL — Politically, most sources felt that Moore was the wisest choice and the most deserving.

Wise because Dan Moore is a moderate—a "middle of the road" man—because he was a popular governor, a firm advocate of "law and order," and a man who would bring further distinction to the Supreme Court.

There appeared more reasons in Moore's favor, political and otherwise.

If there was any question in Scott's mind, there was none in that of former Gov. Terry Sanford.

Asked about his preference if he were governor, Sanford answered without hesitation: "I would appoint Judge Moore," Sanford said.

APPOINT—Dan Moore, now 63, has no idea that appointment to the Supreme Court would be a demotion in political ranks after his four years as governor. Not in the least.

It is doubted that Moore has any further ambition to be governor again, nor to go to the hurly-burly of the Washington scene as a U.S. Senator. Almost certainly not.

WILLIAM SHIRES

His penchant is toward the judiciary. This is what he studied for and trained himself for. Every keen observer would recognize that his actions and decisions as governor of North Carolina were based on clam, judicial appraisals and the facts.

PREDICTED—It was predicted in this column more than five months ago that eventually Dan Moore would be named to the Supreme Court of North Carolina.

There was no pre-arranged agreement as such, nor were there any political deals. It was a simple understanding. Part of this involved Moore's personal ambition and part of it his potential and capability. If a Democrat was in the governor's office and a vacancy occurred, it was understood that Moore would be considered as a top choice for appointment to the post.

The understanding stopped a bit short of a flat commitment that if he wanted it he could have it. It was not that final.

But it was very clearly understood that he would be considered. And when the time came he would be the leading candidate.

To The Editor,
Too many of us have not the courage of repentance. We have not the will to change for the best.

This is why man had to apply law, order and justice through governments. For those who got caught and proved guilty beyond the shadow of a doubt, we need a death penalty law, which reaches further than capital crimes.

Any responsible person who steals or conspires to steal or embezzles or misappropriates public funds in trust, including armed services, charitable, school, medicare, and the like; and who steals government funds or economy intended for the eradication of ignorance, poverty and disease, clearly comes under the death penalty during these evil times.

Provided: Panels of 3 judges sit in these cases without jury, rendering verdicts of guilty only by unanimous decision.

In the meantime let us hope the ecumenical movement, including the Roman Catholic Church, will sensibly discard the infallibility philosophy and sanction legal sterilization and birth control, all for the prevention of population explosion.

Big Names Help Franchise Sale

By ELMER ROESSNER
The booming franchise business is now going through its big-name phase. Big names in various kinds of deals are being brought into franchising ventures.

And just as Americans accept actors as political authorities, and singers as experts on international affairs, it is accepting baseball players as authorities on good food and television stars as geniuses in equipment rental.

Among the big names lent to food enterprises are Rocky Graziano, now an authority on pizza parlors (well, he's Italian, isn't he?), Tony Bennett on spaghetti restaurants (they pay better than cable cars), Johnny Carson, restaurants, Trini Lopez, Mexican restaurants and Mickey Mantle, Mahalia Jackson, Willie Mays, Fats Domino, Al Hirt, Roy Rogers, Joe Namath, Mimmie Pearl, and Rowan and Martin, all famous cooking authorities, on eateries. Well, at least they know what they like.

ELMER ROESSNER

Brisish Tradition

And Arthur Treacher, whose franchised household cleaning service has run into trouble, is big-naming fish 'n' chips shops. He's British, you know, born in Brighton.

There are some other strange applications of talent and experience. Phyllis Diller is lending her name, not to a chain of beauty shops, but to an exotic-plant franchise business. Football hero Lance Alworth has a nice, clean proposition: franchised cleaning shops.

Others are sponsoring ventures in their own fields. Alice Brock is promoting Alice's Restaurants, with a publicity assist from the movie. Golf Pros Billy Maxwell and Doug Sanders are in golfing franchise operations, Jerry Lewis is connected with one of the several franchisors offering two-person movie houses, Eva Gabor is linked with wig boutique franchises.

Some long-gone names have been revived for franchise operations: Laurel and Hardy, Frank-N-Stein for hot dogs and beer, and the Katzenjammer Kids. Multiply Opportunities.

The proliferation has not only provided fees and options for big names in sports and the theater, but it has spawned many other en-

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The comeback of Indonesia from the chaos into which it had been dumped by President Sukarno in 1965 must be considered one of the major economic stories of the '60s.

The fight against inflation, for example, is almost unmatched. In 1966 the rate in that Pacific island republic was 635 per cent, meaning that a product that cost a dime in January might have cost 65 cents by December.

Government spending had produced the incredible situation. Military costs for a conflict with Malaysia were partially responsible, but wasteful expenditures on domestic projects meant to impress foreigners contributed also.

The economy was in chaos when Sukarno was ousted in 1965. Despite Sukarno's boasts, despite his dreams of joining with Communist China to rule the area, the hard reality was that plants were producing at 20 per cent of capacity.

By 1967, however, the new government of President Suharto had reduced the inflation to 120 per cent a year and then to 85 per cent last year. This year the rate is down to 20 per cent and headed lower.

The budget is now balanced, and a five-year economic expansion program is under way. By 1973 rice production is expected to increase 40 per cent, factory output 90 per cent and fertilizer production many times over.

Over-all, the country is expected to grow at a rate of 4.7 per cent a year through 1973, a rate that almost any industrialized nation would be happy to achieve.

Indonesia, of course, is far less developed than some other nations in Asia, Europe and the Americas. But its potential, based on vast mineral riches, is greater than that of many already prosperous nations.

The catalyst needed for this development is capital, and Indonesia is carefully courting foreign investments. A bit wary at first, American and Japanese businessmen in increasing number are investing in the nation.

Although businessmen don't always think first of such things as the balance of power, that factor is an important one in the rebuilding of Indonesia.

When the nation began its campaign to attract foreign investments several years ago, the minister of foreign affairs, Adam Malik, reminded businessmen that their investments would bring not only a financial return but a political one also.

"The stability of the whole region may very well depend upon the growth and stability of Indonesia," he said. "A stable and prosperous Southeast Asia could well preserve the balance of power in East Asia in a way conducive to a stable peace in that part of the world."

Such words, have more than passing importance for American businessmen who find their nation involved in seeking a solution, military or otherwise, to problems that affect other Southeast Asian areas.

When a partnership uncovers a fit in two suits, a problem frequently arises in deciding which one should be trump. To many players it becomes a question of merely selecting the longest and strongest suit. The obvious choice is not always the best one, however, as there are apt to be other considerations involved which may take precedence. Today's hand, taken from a recent tournament, presents an interesting case in point.

The first round of bidding was more or less normal. When South made a free bid of one spade, North's thoughts naturally turned to slam, and he flashed the signal by cue bidding the opponent's suit. His two-heart call is unconditionally forcing to game, and permits him to indulge in a relaxed investigation without fear that partner will drop him somewhere along the way. When South revealed the diamond fit, many Norths were satisfied to play the contract in that suit, and it became merely a question of the level to be reached. Some were content to settle for a small slam which they were able to claim shortly after the opening lead was made. Others went all the way to seven diamonds and suffered disappointment when they learned that there was no way to get rid of declarer's losing club.

Only one North-South pair reached the maximum contract of seven spades, and this was the result of further exploration. When South bid three diamonds, North contented himself with a simple raise to three spades of his partner's original take-out. When South merely returned to four diamonds, North was still not certain how far he should go, and he made a cue bid of five clubs to elicit additional information.

South's bid of five spades was most revealing. It cleared up in North's mind any lingering doubt as to the solidity of the spades. The only remaining hole was North's small club. If South had five spades, a discard becomes available on the long card in that suit. If South has only four spades, however, it would be essential to utilize the diamond suit for discards. In the interest of safety, therefore, North bid the grand slam in spades.

There was nothing to the play of the hand. South ruffed one heart in dummy, drew trumps, and routinely took 13 tricks for a top score on the deal.

Maps Further Limiting Of Persistent Pesticides

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, after moving to eliminate all but emergency uses of DDT by the end of 1970, is planning steps to restrict the widespread application of other persistent pesticides.

In accelerating efforts to halt the use of DDT, Hardin said Thursday he intends to: —Cancel in 30 days the registration of DDT for use against pests in homes, gardens, shade trees, tobacco fields and aquatic areas.

—Outlaw by Dec. 30, 1970, all uses of DDT except for emergency control of diseases and massive crop pest infestations.

What is the end profit of watching such a game? Why, for example, did the network in question choose to show the violence of the Purdue-Ohio State football game, rather than the peaceful scenes on the sidelines? Why were their cameras constantly aimed at confrontation between the two teams instead of showing us what was going on outside the stadium in the parking lot, where all was calm and serene?

At halftime we saw demonstrations on the field, cheerleaders screaming and urging their respective teams to violence. In the search for excitement and controversy we were treated to a small minority of people, numbering no more than 85,000, shouting and yelling their heads off. Was this representative of all the people in the United States? I do not have the solutions to the questions I have raised today. I believe it is up to the sports-casting media, to re-examine and improve the objectivity of their football reporting. I don't say that government should get into it at this time, but if we can't have a football game without violence on the field and prejudice on the part of the commentators, then I can't see any other alternative than for the FCC to step in.

The secretary said he would begin taking action in March against other persistent pesticides "using the same criteria and procedures being applied to DDT."

Hardin's plan to review uses of other hard pesticides apparently is an effort to encourage the use of substitute chemicals or alternative methods of treatment for DDT instead of relying on one of its long-lived cousins. The plan to cancel the registration of DDT for use around the home and in tobacco fields would prohibit interstate shipment or sale of some 14 million pounds of the long-lived insecticide—about 35 per cent of the total DDT used in this country. Hardin's action would not prohibit a person from using stocks of DDT presently in his possession.

Almost 1,000 different species of fish have been identified in Africa's Congo River.

RALEIGH (AP) 8 (ncda)—The North Carolina hog markets today were steady. Top prices of 25.50-26.00 at Siler City and Denton; 25.50-25.75 at Wilson; 25.25-25.75 at Rocky Mount; 24.25-25.50 at Tarboro; 24.25-25.25 at Bethel; 26.25 at Mount Olive; 25.75 at Greensboro; 25.50 at Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was mostly unchanged. The price of live poultry at the farm 12 to 13 cents per pound, mostly 13. Supplies adequate and demand generally good. Heavies at farm, 19 to 20 cents. Light type at farm, 9.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued its slide early this afternoon, but the trading pace slowed from Thursday's rate. Analysts said the market again was feeling investors' dejection over Nixon administration indications that the tight-money policy would remain in force longer than had been expected and over fading hopes or progress in Vietnam peace talks. Tax selling also exerted pressure on the market.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had fallen 3.43 to 827.75 after having been off 4.56 half an hour earlier.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon had lost 1.5 to 286.7, with industrials off 1.8, rails off 1.2, and utilities off .8. Again the loss was broad, with declines topping advances by a margin of 2 to 1 among individual issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

The decline covered steels, rubber issues, farm implements, aircrafts electronics, nonferrous metals, chemicals, Economics, Community Development, Industrial Development, Travel and Recreation and Youth and Education divisions, all taken together, encompass the whole life of the community, he said.

The Representative commended the work of the youth scholarship program of the Association as giving "vital help to deserving students throughout the six counties."

"The Housing Fair and the television program sponsored by the ladies of the Home Economics division, are matched by the Trade Fairs for our tobacco growers and the agriculture bus tour, he said. These are vivid ways to familiarize our people with new and constantly changing agricultural techniques.

"It goes without saying, he continued, that the greatest asset any area has is its people. Without people there would be no hope of achieving progress and development. In fact, without people there would be no real incentive to development."

Treasured Flag Is Now Replaced

TREASURED AMERICAN FLAG . . . is held by second grader Todd Weeden. This family flag has been used at Eastern Elementary School pending arrival of a flag given by the Pilot Club.

A dual flag ceremony was held Thursday afternoon at Greenville's new Eastern Elementary School. The ceremony marked the acceptance of a new American flag presented by the Pilot Club of Greenville and a special acknowledgement to a pupil for the use of a treasured family flag for the past few days.

The program, carried out by the fifth year students, was planned and supervised by three fifth level teachers, Mrs. V. M. Austin, Mrs. Essie Mills, and Mrs. Richard Spear.

Mrs. Margaret White, principal of Eastern, told the gathering of boys, girls, faculty members and visitors the story of the flag used recently by the school before the arrival of the flag given by the Pilot Club.

Referring to Todd Weeden, the second grade boy who gave the school his flag to use, she stated: "This flag was the one presented to his grandfather's family when the grandfather died. It was the one used for his casket at the time of his death. His grandfather had been a veteran of World War I."

the association with helping to renew our common faith in America "at a time of doubt, fear, and bitterness." He congratulated members and friends and "all who have shared in your work, the Extension Service of North Carolina State University, and every concerned citizen in the six county area."

"You have shown once again that free men acting together to meet their problems and needs, constructive change and development, for progress and renewal, cannot be denied."

Ass'n Told Seek Growth

Gerald F. Goodwin, district manager of the Kinston office of Life of Virginia Insurance Company, was the guest speaker yesterday at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Association of Life Underwriters.

Gerald F. Goodwin

Goodwin coordinated his address with singing and guitar selections and presented a number of songs he has written. Several of the songs deal with the insurance profession, and membership association member J.D. Wilson said.

Goodwin, who will serve as co-chairman for the coming year of the North Carolina Association of Life Underwriters, challenged the local association to go out and solicit new membership in the organization.

As an incentive, he said that the association that goes over the membership quota and has the most members will receive a check from the state organization for $175.

Wilson said that Goodwin added that he was seeking a membership of 3,000 in the state.

Present yesterday at the Silo Restaurant were 16 members of the Pitt County association. Total membership has reached 51 members.

National quality awards were presented to Glade Linton; James O. Perry Jr.; Edwin C. Newton, Max R. Joyner, John H. Gurganus, Clarke Stokes, J.D. Wilson and W.M. Scales Jr.

The Worry Clinic An 'Only Child' Is A Handicap

Hal shows why "only" children zoom the divorce rate. Oh, they may "show off" beautifully in public and demonstrate all the rules of social etiquette but after marriage they often gripe and grumble or even show jealousy of their own kiddies. So try to have a family of at least 3 children! Then they'll all be safer marriage risks in later life!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE L-522: Hal B., aged 27, is a young father.

"But, Dr. Crane," his devoted wife began, "Hal gets irritated by our two youngsters."

"And he actually seems jealous of the attention which I give them."

"Although they are only 3 and 4 years old, Hal thinks they should remain silent at the dinner table and keep their playroom as neat as his office."

"Dr. Crane, you have often said that 'only' children are a hazard in marriage and I can now see why, for Hal was an 'only' child of wealthy parents who let a governess rear him."

Marriage Hazards

When a boy (or girl) is an "only" child and thus reaches adulthood as the absolute monarch of the domestic scene, he becomes habituated to 100 percent of the attention from Mamma and Daddy.

By contrast, Hal's wife was one of 5 brothers and sisters, so she obtained only about 20 percent of the spotlight as she grew up.

When they married, now notice what happened.

Assuming marriage is a 50-50 situation, who loses and who gains in the limelight of the new marital union?

Hal, who formerly monopolized all 100 percent of the parental attention, now drops to 50 percent, so he vaguely grows disgruntled.

His wife, however, rises from her childhood 20 percent and now is supposed to rate 50 percent, so she gains and is thrilled at the rise in her division of the spotlight.

But after their 2 babies arrived, she now diverts a large share of Hal's 50 percent to the kiddies.

So Hal, already disgruntled at the drop from 100 percent to a mere 50 percent, chafes irritably at maybe obtaining barely 25 percent.

And when an adult is deflated in ego, he may then look for faults so he can whittle down the ego of his wife or children to a smaller size.

Besides, Hal had a governess and other household maids to pick up after him while he was a child, so his bedroom and playroom were relatively neat and orderly.

But when you have 2 youngsters, fairly close together in age, friction, quarrels and actual fights are routine daily occurrences.

Wives, don't get unduly upset when your husbands pick flaws with your housekeeping and say you do a messy job.

Calmly remind them that a messy home is more likely to be a HAPPY household, if there are several children therein.

If you try to stifle a child's fun and make his homelife a strait jacket, you may engender serious resentment.

If your kiddies thus are forced to bottle up this ire while in grammar school, they may strike back at you in college by becoming hippies, drunkards or iconoclasts in general.

You mothers, however, should train your kiddies to do their own chores and earn their own spending money.

So send for my "Behavior Tests for Teen-Agers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

They are applicable, however, to any child of reading age, so use them with early grammar schoolers. Let them rate themselves thereon.

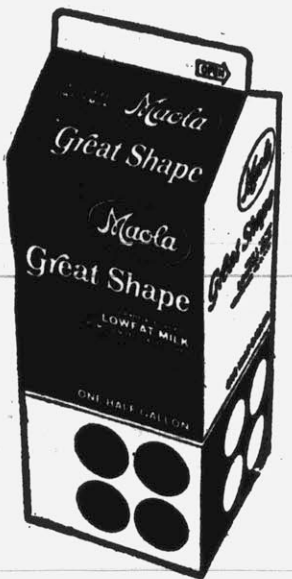

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Guidelines Set Court Precedent

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—The Wyoming Rules of Criminal Procedure provide guidelines for all state courts in high misdemeanor and felony cases. The rules, promulgated by the Wyoming Supreme Court, are the first such codification of criminal procedures in the state's history.

Southern Miss Is Final Pirate Foe

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

Last week proved to be pretty good except for two cases where I let my judgement get away from me.

In the East Carolina-Marshall game, I thought the Bucs might pull it out, despite the growlings of my inner nature. And in the Davidson-Wofford game, I came that close . . .

Oh, well. Let's try again.

As far as East Carolina fans are concerned, this Saturday is the end of football season. The Pirates are closing out their worst season since 1957, when the Bucs won only one game. This year, the prospects are little better.

Southern Mississippi comes to town after beating two of the teams who bopped the Bucs, Richmond and Louisiana Tech. The Bulldogs are tough, and apparently, the Bucs aren't.

It'll be Southern Mississippi winning this one.

(Oh, by the way, have not noticed that three East Carolina opponents, East Tennessee, Louisiana Tech, and Davidson, are all bowl bound. Davidson, of course, in the Tangerine, while Tech and East Tennessee meet in the Grantland Rice Bowl, the small college Mid-East championship.)

In other games, it'll be The Citadel over Chattanooga, Davidson over Vanderbilt, Mississippi College over Furman, Richmond over William & Mary while VMI is open.

Over in the ACC, look for South Carolina to beat Clemson, North Carolina to take Duke, Florida State to beat North Carolina State, Virginia to snap its streak against Maryland, and Miami to stop Wake Forest.

Elsewhere across the country, picks include Utah over Brigham Young, Villanova over Buffalo, Washington State over Washington, West Virginia over Syracuse, Yale over Harvard, Arizona State over Colorado State, Brown over Columbia, Rutgers over Colgate, Penn over Cornell, and Dartmouth over Princeton.

Season's record, 137 right, 56 wrong, 71.0 percent.

Michigan Chases Rose Bowl Bid

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Michigan can cinch a Rose Bowl bid with a victory or strong showing against top-ranked Ohio State in the college football bone-buster of the year Saturday.

Purdue, a less likely choice to represent the Big Ten in the New Year's Day classic at Pasadena, Calif., still has an outside shot at the Granddaddy bowl if:

—The 12th ranked Wolverines get blown out of Michigan Stadium by the big, bad Buckeyes.

—And Purdue clouts Indiana Saturday and throws the Big Ten race into a flat-footed tie with both teams having 5-2 conference marks.

Then, Big Ten athletic directors would have to vote on which team represents the conference.

Ohio State could win the Big Ten championship and wind up No. 1 nationally, but not go to the Rose Bowl since the Buckeyes are ineligible after playing last year in the post-season game.

Meanwhile, back on the West Coast, Southern California, the nation's No. 5-ranked team, plays sixth-ranked UCLA to determine the Pacific-8 Conference's representative in the Rose Bowl.

Elsewhere on the college football scene, second-ranked Texas and third-ranked Arkansas have the day off, but play Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 27, against opponents which should give them little trouble. Texas takes on Texas A&M and Arkansas, Texas Tech.

Fourth-ranked Penn State plays at Pitt Saturday; seventh-ranked Missouri plays at Kansas; No. 8 Notre Dame hosts Air Force; No. 9 Tennessee plays at Kentucky and No. 10 Louisiana State plays at home against Tulane.

In the second Ten, No. 11 Auburn and No. 13 Mississippi have the day off; No. 14 Stanford hosts California; 15th ranked Florida has the day off; No. 16 Nebraska plays at Oklahoma; No. 17 Purdue plays at Indiana; No. 18 West Virginia visits Syracuse; No. 19 Houston hosts Wyoming and 20th-ranked Toledo travels to Xavier.

The weekend's activities start tonight in the Orange Bowl, where Miami takes on Wake Forest.

According to a Detroit sportscaster, Michigan already has nailed down a Rose Bowl bid. Bob Reynolds, sports director of Radio Station WJR, said the action "was taken the first of the week."

Big Ten athletic officials vigorously denied the Reynolds' statement.

Ohio State, winner of 22 straight games, is a two-touchdown favorite over Michigan, but it doesn't bother Wolverine Coach Bo Schembechler.

"We're going into this game like we can win it," says Schembechler, "it's for all the marbles."

Southern Cal will have its hands full with UCLA quarterback Dennis Dummit, a magician on a football field.

Carolina, Duke Battle In Oldest Rivalry

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina and Duke renew Saturday the oldest football rivalry in the South. It dates back to 1888 when Trinity College, as Duke was then known, beat North Carolina 16-0 on Thanksgiving Day in the first game played below the Mason-Dixon line.

The North Carolina Tar Heels have won their last four games and could tie for second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference, or capture it outright, by winning on Duke's home ground in Durham, N.C.

North Carolina is 3-2 in the league, the same as Clemson. The Tar Heels are 5-4 in all games.

Duke, after losing to Virginia Tech 48-12 last week, is 2-3-1 in the league and 2-6-1 over-all.

The game will feature two of the ACC's offensive stars. Duke's Leo Hart and North Carolina's Don McCauley. Hart leads the league in total offense, with 1,536 yards in 356 plays for 12 touchdowns.

He also wears the laurels for passing offense, with 1,545 yards on 132 completions out of 244 attempts. The Blue Devils lead the conference in passing.

McCauley is the top ACC rusher, with 954 yards on 178 carries. Sparked by his running, the Tar Heels lead the league in total offense, rushing and rushing defense.

Swim Team Shows Off

East Carolina University's swimming team will hold its annual Purple-Gold meet Saturday immediately following the East Carolina Southern Mississippi football game.

The meet will be held in Minges Natatorium, located at the rear of the coliseum. No admission will be charged.

The Buccaneers have captured the Southern Conference crown for the past four years, and have never lost to Southern competition.

League champion South Carolina will be fighting for nothing but prestige Saturday in its game with Clemson. The Gamecocks have already sewed up the ACC crown and have won an invitation to the Peach Bowl game against West Virginia at Atlanta next month.

South Carolina is 5-0 in ACC action, but 6-3 for the season. Clemson is 3-2 in the league and 4-5 over-all. The Tigers will be fighting for the second-place slot coveted by North Carolina.

The Virginia at Maryland game will see two teams soundly beaten trying to come back.

Maryland lost 48-0 to fourth-ranked Penn State. The Virginia Cavaliers were smashed 31-0 by Tulane. Virginia is 3-6 for the season and Maryland 2-7.

Wake Forest travels out of conference to meet Miami in the Orange Bowl. The Friday night contest will be the first time the teams have met since 1944, when Wake Forest carried the honors 27-0.

North Carolina State meets Florida State Saturday night in Tallahassee. The game will be televised across the Southeast as ABC-TV's regional game of the week. The Wolfpack, which went down 34-13 to Houston last weekend, will be on television again Nov. 29 in a nationally televised game against Penn State.

North Carolina State holds a 3-4-1 season record, compared to Florida State's 5-2-1. Seminole quarterback Bill Cappelman is one of the country's leading passers.

Unitas Denies He's Quitting

BALTIMORE (AP) — Quarterback John Unitas, admitting he doesn't like to sit on the Baltimore Colts' bench, has denied reports he said he might retire or seek the undisputed No. 1 job with another club.

"I don't know where you guys get these things," the 36-year-old National Football League veteran said when asked to comment on a story Thursday by Dean Eagle, sports editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I have no idea of retiring or for going to another team," Unitas said in Baltimore late Thursday.

Unitas was benched in the second half of last Sunday's 20-17 loss to the San Francisco 49ers, and Baltimore coach Don Shula has tabbed Earl Morrall as his starting quarterback this Sunday against the Bears in Chicago.

The Louisville article quoted Unitas as being unhappy with the benching and with Shula's announced plans to operate his quarterbacks in tandem the rest of this NFL season.

"I won't play under the circumstances," Unitas was quoted in the story. "This is the last year of my playing contract. I might consider playing for another club."

Twelve Seniors Close Out Collegiate Career

East Carolina University's Pirates take the field for the last time in 1969 Saturday at 2 p. m. in Ficklen Stadium. It will be the finish of a year of frustration for the Pirates, who have won only two of eight starts going into the game.

And prospects of victory are still none too bright. The Bucs will be playing host to Southern Mississippi, who last year stung the Bucs worst than they have been hurt before, 65-0. The Bucs failed to even get a first down in the game, and ended up with a net rushing yardage of zero.

The Pirates, however, can't be counted out, because since that game, Southern Mississippi has been steadily going downhill. This year, they have won three of eight starts. However, two of the teams they beat were Richmond and Louisiana Tech. Both of them beat East Carolina by handy scores earlier in the year. The loss by Tech, bound for the Grantland Rice Bowl against another Pirate foe, East Tennessee, was the only one for that team.

The game will be the final one for 12 Pirate seniors, including Butch Colson and Billy Wightman, who have shots at 1,000 yard seasons. Colson, who already holds the Southern Conference's season rushing record of 1,135 yards, and a number of school marks, has 817 yards in total offense, while Wightman, who set a new single game Conference mark against Davidson two weeks ago, has 962 yards in total offense.

Other seniors finishing play include Tommy Bullock, a defensive halfback; Mike Boaz, defensive rover; Paul Weathersbee, linebacker; Worth Springs, offensive tackle; Roger Bost, defensive end; George Wheeler, defensive tackle; Danny Wilmer, linebacker; Stu Garrett, safety; Mike McGuirk, defensive end; and Phil Bilodeau, offensive tackle.

For the most part, the Bucs are free of injury. Several players, however, are listed on the probable list. They include Wilmer, Springs and tackle John Hollingsworth, and end Tom Pulley.

"It's very unusual for them to lose so much," Coach Clarence Stasavich said. "They lost four in a row after winning their first one, and lost their last game, to Memphis State. They have had a week off to recover from injuries and to get ready, however."

Stasavich pointed out that in the past, Southern Mississippi has always been known for its defenses. "But this year, they've given up 291 points, although Mississippi and Alabama got a lot of those. Still their overall defense isn't what it used to be."

"At the same time, they've increased their scoring."

"The Bulldog attack is led by sophomore quarterback Rich Donegan, who has completed 70 of 140 passes. His top receiver has been Billy Mikel, who has 33.

Also throwing the ball a lot is number two quarterback Danny Palmer, who has thrown 93 times, completing 53. "They are passing more than they ever have," Stasavich said. "And they don't depend on the rush as much."

Chief rushers are Larry Moulton (3.7 yards per carry), and Frank Johnston, 2.6.

There are veteran players on the squad, however. They are only two sophomores on the offensive unit, and six members of the defensive team are returned from last year.

The Bulldogs have been vulnerable to the pass this year.

"Richmond passed for three touchdowns in the final period of play," Stasavich said. "And Louisiana Tech led most of the way passing." So, aptly, the Bucs hope to take to the air a little more this week. At the same time, they also hope to improve their sagging pass defenses to boost the chance of pulling off an upset.

Southern Mississippi has had 23 passes picked off by the opposition this year, and this gives the Pirates hopes of getting some of their aeriels.

"I feel we'll play better than we did last week," Stasavich said. "But one thing that has hurt us is exams. We really should finish up our season before exams start. It's hard for the players to get their mind on the game when they have exams to think about."

The probable starting lineup for the Pirates on offense has Fred Harris and Dick Corrada at ends, John Rowe and Garland Ballard at tackles, Butch Britton and Earl Burton at guards, Terry Edmondson at center, Colson at fullback, Wightman at tailback, Tim Ilderton at blocking back and William Mitchell at wingback.

On defense, the Bucs are starting Earl Hileman and Bost at ends, Walter Adams and Wheeler at tackles, Jim Gudger at middle guard, Weathersbee and Billy Wallace at linebackers, Boaz at rover, Rusty Scales and George Whitley at halfbacks and Garrett at safety.

Many Reasons For Irish Choice

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex (AP) — The Orange Bowl offers sunshine and Miami Beach. The Sugar Bowl offers the New Orleans French Quarter. The Cotton Bowl sometimes offers bleak weather and always offers limited nightlife. On New Year's Day, the Cotton Bowl will also offer Notre Dame in its first post-season football appearance in 45 years.

figure that makes the Cotton Bowl the glamor attraction of the bowl games, with the Fighting Irish playing either Texas or Arkansas.

It was widely known in football circles as early as Wednesday, Nov. 12, that Notre Dame would accept a bowl bid. There was much speculation by Friday that the Orange Bowl had Notre Dame and Penn State sewed up.

On Saturday night, Notre Dame Athletic Director Moose Krause told a newsman who called him from Miami that his personal preference was the Orange Bowl.

All the time, Field Scovell of Dallas, a big Texan with slow and easy drawl, was working in the belief that the Orange and Sugar Bowls had mounted high-pressure campaigns. What could he do?

"We didn't crowd those people and it paid off," he told The Associated Press.

Scovell began his cool maneuvers on Nov. 12. "Some local Notre Dame folks told us Notre Dame might be interested," he said. "We told them we had been down that path before and that we felt like Notre Dame would continue its policy of not participating in post-season activity."

At this point, unbeaten Penn State was still the No. 1 choice of the Cotton Bowl. Penn State seemed torn between the Cotton and Orange Bowls.

Scovell and Administrative Assistant Wilbur Evans left Friday for Penn State to watch the Nittany Lions play Maryland on Saturday.

"We had to land at Cleveland because of snow in Pittsburgh and drove 270 miles through snow and ice to Penn State," said the leather-tough Scovell, an insurance executive who played football at Texas A&M.

"I can tell you right now I ain't no great snow driver."

A telephone call was waiting for Scovell and Evans when they arrived.

"It was my Notre Dame partners telling me that the Irish were for real," Scovell said.

For real?

Meanwhile, sure enough, there had been discussions in Miami of Notre Dame for the Orange Bowl. Members of the Orange Bowl committee say now they were guided by two thoughts:

1. They've had a long, happy association with the Big Eight and they didn't want to damage it by passing up Missouri.

2. The Orange Bowl was just about sold out and if a surprise team, Notre Dame, were introduced it would simply cause a mass scramble and antagonism among Notre Dame fans.

A source at Notre Dame says the school was informed unofficially on Saturday that it was not being considered for the Orange Bowl.

Scovell and Evans didn't know that. They decided to pursue the soft-sell approach—and decided against rushing down to Atlanta to watch Notre Dame play Georgia Tech. But they were uneasy.

"We were beginning to get the feeling on Saturday," Scovell said, "that if we stayed right down to the wire with Penn State they might go to Miami and leave us holding the bag."

At 6 P.M. Sunday, Scovell and Evans set out for South Bend—first by car, 160 miles, over the snow and ice from State College to Pittsburgh, then by plane to Chicago.

Meanwhile, on Sunday night, the Notre Dame players were called together and told they probably would get an invitation from the Cotton Bowl. They were also told it was the only offer they could count on. They voted and the result, said Coach Ara Parseghian, "was almost unanimous."

At 7 a.m. Monday, Scovell and Evans caught a Chicago flight bound for South Bend.

Scovell's talks were with Krause, Parseghian and the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of the university and chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics.

"They are real nice people and that Father Joyce is a sharp businessman," Scovell said. "I'd hate for him to want to sell me something I didn't want."

"Of course," Scovell said, "more than passing interest was the $350,000 they will get in the guest spot. You wouldn't get that passing the plate down the front row the first time."

Father Joyce announced, then, that for the first time since 1925, when Knute Rockne's Four Horsemen whipped Ernie Nevers and Stanford 27-10 in the Rose Bowl, Notre Dame had accepted a bowl bid.

If Scovell and Evans had only known, one telephone call would have worked just as well as their hours on the phone and in travel through snow and storm. But they couldn't have known.

Anyway, their diligence might be applauded by such as Edwin Pope, sports editor of the Miami Herald, who wrote that in dropping Notre Dame the Orange Bowl pulled a "colossal boo boo ... You may be sure the eye and ear of the nation will be firmly fixed on Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Citadel's Bulldogs wrote "finis" to a successful football season tonight in a home-field skirmish with a Chattanooga team that poses a king-sized defensive headache for Bulldog coach Red Parker.

Parker's problem is whether to guard primarily against a ground attack, which the Moccasins have used most of the time this fall, or a passing attack that Parker, with good reason, knows can be devastating.

The Bulldog coach is acutely aware of the effectiveness of Chattanooga's passing because a year ago Moccasin quarterback Richard Manning pitched for more than 200 yards in a 31-9 Chattanooga victory.

"Our scouts tell me they've been running about 65 per cent of the time," says Parker, "but after last year, maybe they'll change their ways in this game. We're completely mixed up as to what to look for."

The Citadel will carry a 7-2 season record into this clash and has the chance to become the first Bulldog team to win eight games since 1960. Chattanooga is 3-6, but the record is scarcely indicative of the Moccasins' strength. Two of the defeats were inflicted by Tennessee and Mississippi.

Past history certainly is no comfort to Parker. In six meetings with Chattanooga, The Citadel has yet to win, although one game was a tie.

The Bulldog-Moccasin square-off at 8 p.m. launches a five-game weekend schedule for Southern Conference teams, four of which will be ending their seasons. All the other games are Saturday.

Richmond, 5-4 over-all, and its traditional foe, William and Mary, 3-6, tangle at Williamsburg Saturday afternoon in the final match of 1969 between conference rivals.

Tangerine Bowl-bound Davidson, 7-2, closes out what could be its finest-ever season in a confrontation with Vanderbilt at Nashville, Tenn. Whatever happens, the Wildcats are the SC champions.

East Carolina, 2-6 and its hopes gon3 for a winning or even a break-even season, is at home to Southern Mississippi in the other afternoon game. Southern Miss won the 1968 meeting 65-0.

Furman, 1-6-1, has a night meeting on its home field with Mississippi College. The Paladins will be trying to snap a five-game losing streak against a team that beat them 21-12 a year ago.

Rams Picked Despite Gabriel's Hurt Knee

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Gabriel's bruised knee and the news that Earl Morrall will start for Baltimore instead of John Unitas add a new dimension to the tough job of trying to pick this week's pro football winners.

The big names of the day are Dallas at Los Angeles in the National Football League, possibly a preview of the Jan. 4 title game, and Oakland at Kansas City for the lead in the Western Division of the American Football League.

We look for wins by the favored Rams and Chiefs and for upsets by the Chicago Bears and Detroit Lions. Last week's score was a poor 6-6-1 so it's 80-31-6 for the year and let's try again. All are Sunday games.

NFL

Los Angeles 27, Dallas 20—Gabriel is due to start despite the bruised knee as Rams aim for 10th straight. Eddie Mearns saved the day last week in Philadelphia where Eagles gave Rams fits before losing 23-17. It's tough to run on the Cowboys but Gabriel should find holes in pass coverage. Rams will pressure Craig Morton more than Cowboys will bother Gabriel.

Minnesota 31, Pittsburgh 10—Only problem for Vikings is a temptation to look ahead to Thursday's date with Detroit. Steelers must be seething after losing eight in a row but they don't have the guns to shoot down the flying Vikings, unless they beat themselves.

Cleveland 41, New York 28—First of two between these old rivals with Browns winning eight of the last nine. Leroy Kelly should ramble through Giant line despite new get tough line by Coach Alex Webster. Look for both Fran Tarkenton and Bill Nelsen to get hot.

Detroit 13, Green Bay 10—Good spot for an upset with Lions still hoping Vikings will stumble. Packers, three back with five to go, were all but eliminated last week. A bitter blood bath with Packers favored on strength of 28-17 win Oct. 12 in which Bill Munson suffered fractured right wrist. Defe se should do it for Detroit.

Washington 24, Atlanta 21—A real toughie. Will Redskins be down after defeat by Dallas?

Falcons coming off 48-point game against Bears just might be able to outscore Sonny Jurgensen by running that Washington line. We're staying with Sonny.

Chicago 17, Baltimore 14—Sticking our chin out here. Counting on Bears' rugged defense to turn off Colts and Gale Sayers to score enough for tight win in low point game.

San Francisco 28, New Orleans 23—Two of last week's winners who made it in the closing minutes. If John Brodie can be consistent for another week he should take 49ers in for enough to offset Tom Dempsey's field goals.

St. Louis 31, Philadelphia 24—Won't be surprised at anything in this one. Cards were shut out by Lions after scoring 83 points in two previous starts. Eagle gave Rams a tough rumble. Figure St. Louis offense to outscore Eagles in a wild, no-defense thriller.

AFL

Kansas City 24, Oakland 21—Can't shake the memory of that 41-6 win by Raiders in 1968 championship game after they split at home. This first of two (second game Dec. 13) and home field edge goes to Kansas City in one of the better games of the season. Lenny Dawson has Otis Taylor back to help and those pony backs may be able to run on Raiders. Daryle Lamoni-ca will get the big rush.

New York 27, Cincinnati 21—Jets were embarrassed by Chiefs and anxious to take it out on somebody. Wrong day for Greg Cook and his playmates to visit Shea.

Houston 20, Miami 14—Houston, second in East, still has a long shot chance of catching Jets or at least getting in playoffs. Dolphins in tough shape without Bob Griese. Roy Gerala kicked five field goals in Sept. 28 game, won by Oilers 22-10.

San Diego 17, Denver 14—And what difference does it make? Both clubs eliminated from chance at first and Floyd Little still only a possible for Broncos. Chargers were in there all the way with Oakland last week so rate the call at home.

Boston 21, Buffalo 20—Flip a coin or take a blind stab. Pats being at home helps but Bills won first game 23-16. After losing first seven, Pats have won two of three. Bills broke four-game losing streak by bombing Miami last week.

Report Urges Duke Leave ACC

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke University's Academic Council will consider Dec. 18 a report which recommends that the school withdraw from the Atlantic Coast Conference.

A five-member faculty committee also recommended Thursday that if the withdrawal is carried out Duke stop giving athletic scholarships where there is no financial need.

The recommendations were contained in a 50-page report released by the Committee on Duke Athletics of the Academic Council. The committee said, "The academic standards and programs of Duke University differ significantly from those of a majority of conference members."

The differences, the committee said, restrict Duke's ability to recruit outstanding athletes, and also affect Duke's ability to compete successfully with ACC members and certain outside opponents.

This lack of success, the committee said, causes a loss of revenue from athletic contests which "necessitates substantial subsidization of the whole intercollegiate program."

The council voted to receive the committee's report "as a document for further study" but not to consider it until Dec. 18. The committee recommended that the financing and administration of the university's athletic program be fully integrat-

Pinson Traded In Early Deal

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vada Pinson was traded to the Cleveland Indians by the St. Louis Cardinals for Jose Cardenal today in the first deal of the major league inter-league trading season.

The sound of the clock striking midnight had barely faded away when Bing Devine, general manager of the Cardinals, announced the trade of the two outfielders.

Devine said the 26-year-old Cardenal, who hit .257 for Cleveland, will play center field for the Cards. The 31-year-old Pinson, who had traded to St. Louis by Cincinnati after the 1968 season, hit .255 for the Cards, who slumped badly the past season after winning the National League flag two consecutive years.

From now until Midnight Dec.

First NAIA Team Named

KANSAS CITY (AP)—New Mexico Highlands, first-ranked team in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics small college football poll, has been selected for the NAIA Championship Bowl semifinals.

Three other teams, including Highlands' opponent, and the sites of the games will be announced later this week.

Highlands, coached by John Levra, has won eight straight games this season after a 16-16 tie in its first game with the University of Hawaii.

CARSON CITY, Nev. (SP)—The old man looked at the high granite walls of Nevada State Prison and shook his head. Then he glanced briefly westward as the sun disappeared over the Sierra Nevada mountain range. "I guess it was just about time I came back. I guess I always knew I'd be back here," 77-year-old Leonard T. Fristoe said Thursday.

Represents N.C. In Mich. Case

RALEIGH (AP) — A representative from the attorney general's office will be in Detroit next Wednesday for a hearing on black militant Robert Williams' motion for an injunction barring his extradition to North Carolina.

Mrs. Christine Denson, an extradition specialist, says Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan has requested that she represent North Carolina.

Williams is wanted in Union County on a charge of kidnaping a white couple during a 1961 racial disturbance at Monroe.

In that 46 years, using the name Claude Willis, he had married, had a son, and found both financial success and failure in travels that took him from coast to coast and into Mexico and Canada.

"An awful lot of man—that old man," Claude R. Willis Jr., 38, said of his father. "He came on strong all his life."

Fristoe's identity came to light Saturday when he impulsively blurted out his story to a Compton, Calif., police officer who had responded to a disturbing the peace call.

Fristoe, a widower who was receiving Social Security and had suffered a stroke 18 months ago was living with his son, daughter-in-law Christine and 2-year-old granddaughter Teresa in a house trailer.

Police said Fristoe had quarreled with his daughter-in-law. Willis said his father had been "difficult to handle" after the stroke and found life in the trailer

Education Grant For Martin Girl

FAYETTEVILLE — One Martin County girl was among four young women who received educational grants from the North Carolina Federation of Negro Women's Clubs.

Thressa Smallwood of Williamston, a student at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, has been named a scholarship recipient.

er confining. Willis, a heavy-equipment operator for a railroad, said his father had made a fortune in Maine during World War II.

"He had 22 buses hauling workers to the South Portland Shipyard, owned a 65-room summer hotel at Old Orchard Beach and farmed 600 acres with 163 head of cattle and 18 acres in potatoes," he said.

"Later we went into partnership and leased 4,000 acres in South Dakota. We made it good... always drove Packards. Then we bought about 4,000 acres in Wyoming and ran cattle. But in 1952 we went $44,000 in debt when the prices broke on herefords."

He said the family since has reduced that debt to $2,097.50 and continues to pay on it.

Warden Carl Hocker said Fristoe would sleep in the prison hospital. "I'm not going to put him in a cell," he said. "It's not necessary."

He said Fristoe normally would have to spend seven years in prison before being eligible for parole. He added that it will be up to the district attorney whether Fristoe is prosecuted for escape. Conviction would carry a sentence of 1 to 10 years.

Fristoe said he might have surrendered years ago, but was worried that he might be placed in "the hole"—an isolation cell carved into the ground. Hocker said these had been abandoned years ago.

The warden assigned Fristoe his old number, 2191, and said he would be permitted to continue wearing his cherished cowboy boots.

Public Does Get Return On Space Costs: Von Braun

EDITOR'S NOTE—Dr. Werner von Braun has been in the forefront of the U.S. space program since it was only a vague dream. In the following article, written especially for The Associated Press, the director of the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center tells what directions the space program may take in the future, what it means for the man in the street and what benefits it holds for mankind.

By Dr. Werner von Braun
Written for The Associated Press

The purpose of the space program, how it will benefit man, and where the program is headed in the future are three often-asked questions now that Americans have landed on the moon. Despite monumental efforts, many persons still do not know the answers to these questions, answers which, as taxpayers, all Americans rightly deserve. The space program does cost money and this raises concern among some Americans who feel that the money spent on space could be better utilized at present on problems here on earth. In this regard I think we must realize two things, first, the space program is not an isolated program which is separate from the rest of America, and second, the space program is not expensive in terms of potential benefit.

We want to be able to conduct shuttle flights to an orbit as easily as airplane flights cross the ocean to another continent. Since the shuttle will return to earth in a runway-type landing, there will no longer be a requirement for the large sea recovery forces currently necessary for manned flights.

With the space shuttle, we will be able to ferry cargo and passengers to and from permanent space stations in earth orbit. We can fly to a rendezvous with an unmanned satellite, repair it, or bring it back to earth for repair. The shuttle can carry a satellite into earth orbit and place it in precisely the orbit required for its mission.

The shuttle is the next logical step, now that we have learned the essentials of how to fly, exist, and work in the new environment of space.

The Saturn vehicles, which carried our astronauts to the moon, will still be used to carry the really heavy loads into earth orbit, cargoes beyond the 50,000 pound capacity of the shuttle. The Saturn vehicles work superbly but they are simply too large for every day use. Therefore, the shuttle is vital.

SPACE SHUTTLE — One of the most important steps the nation's space program should take is the development of a space shuttle, shown in artist's conception above, says Dr. Werner Von Braun. (AP Wirephoto)

In fact, during the brief period of time that the space program has been in existence we have already shown significant immediate returns. The money spent on space has contributed both directly and indirectly to improving the conditions of life here on earth. The money is, in fact, spent on earth and has resulted in jobs and "spin-offs" in almost every area. These "spin-offs" range from a wide spectrum of weather forecasting, communications and tv broadcasting, to specific applications in intensive care cardiac units, sight switches for paralytics, and integrated circuits to name some of the areas where man has already benefited tremendously. These are direct and immediate technological benefits.

As important as these physical benefits are, I think that the space program has taught us something more. Something which is applicable to every major challenge we will face, whether it be poverty, congestion, pollution or defense. It has taught us how to harness our resources and capabilities, how to attack a problem. The new and innovative management techniques developed to effectively undertake and implement an incredibly large and complex apollo program have universal applicability.

The space program has enormous potential for improving advancing technology to give us better means for combatting our social and economic problems and by developing the management systems and techniques necessary to implement the desired solutions.

We see then that the real purpose of the space program is to enhance the general well-being of the people who are paying the bill, and, through them, all mankind.

We plan to accomplish our future goals in space by concurrent exploitation of five major areas that offer the public the most promise both in terms of immediate benefits and long-term achievements. These five areas are (1) the development of space transportation systems, (2) the establishment of permanent manned space stations, (3) the further refinement of nuclear propulsion systems, (4) expanded lunar exploration, and (5) planetary exploration.

One of the most important immediate objectives for our space program should be the creation of a space transportation shuttle system that operates from the surface of the earth to earth orbit and back. By back, I mean fully recoverable and reusable.

We plan on reusing the same shuttle as many as 100 times.

Warren Lauded In Faculty Statement

A vast majority of teachers and staff members of Rose High School have voluntarily endorsed a statement of support of principal Edward Warren, following an earlier announcement that he was resigning effective December 31.

Of the 67 teachers and several staff members of the school, 66 signed the statement Thursday. The statement, enumerating the policies and achievement of Warren as their principal, state in part:

"Principal Warren was interested in students. Because he wanted to know the boys and girls, he personally kept a rotating file of names and pictures of the student body. As one teacher put it, 'he was pupil conscious.'"

"During his administration the curriculum was constantly being expanded to meet the diversified interests and needs of students."

"During racial tension, he tried to be a firm but fair disciplinarian."

"His office has always been open to students and faculty members for consultation regardless of the nature of the problem."

"Always concerned about teacher morale, Mr. Warren has commended teachers for work done well. He has shown respect for his teachers as a faculty group and as individuals."

"When under dire stress and pressure Mr. Warren always conducted himself as a gentleman."

"The principal has won the respect of his faculty. One teacher expressed her feelings: 'I just hope the community understands how deeply we feel this loss.'"

The endorsement of Warren by the faculty members contained additional statements outlining what they consider are outstanding examples of his qualities, both personal and professional.

The faculty concluded by stating: "In light of the difficult days now facing us, we wonder where we shall find another man of this caliber."

The 'Instant Replay' Used

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Instant replay is great for home television audiences but it also plays a valuable role in science when used to diagnose serious cardiac diseases.

At UCLA's Marlon Davies Children's Clinic, a specially designed unit, the only one of its kind in the world, provides multiple-angle closed-circuit television of the beating heart with instant replay and permanent video tapes or motion pictures.

The new system provides more accurate diagnosis of surgically correctable congenital heart disease with a higher degree of safety than existing techniques, says Dr. Donald T. Desilets, chief of the division of pediatric radiology.

To make such motion pictures, a contract media must be injected so that it circulates through the heart.

In the new unit two X-ray television cameras view the heart from different angles. Both images are projected live simultaneously so that heart action is seen in three dimensions, making one-the-spot diagnosis possible.

Research is underway to devise a system of processing the films automatically with a computer recorder-scanner. Other data, such as blood pressure and electrocardiograms, recorded at the same time as the film, can be fed into the computer.

Such analysis may furnish a complete assessment of heart function without exploratory surgery.

Larry's Laugh-In "THE PHLIKPLANK PLANT, ITS CARE AND FEEDING"

By Larry Whitlow
 Of Larry's Carpetland

The Phlikplank Plant

The phlikplank plant, like other plants indigenous to Phlitt Plains in Platt County, requires special care and nurturing during its formative stages. Plant foods desirable for sustaining phlikplank are carpet sweepings from Larry's Carpetland, and the ooohs and aahs of delighted shoppers as they browse and buy.

Phlikplanks must be shielded from the bright sunlight or they will immediately grow into flesh-eating monsters. (It is wise to grow phlikplanks during the rainy season.) Therefore, cellars, bomb shelters, deep primeval forestation and the south side of the Washington Monument are excellent places to grow phlikplank.

The characteristics of the night-blooming phlikplank are as follows:

1. The phlikplank is reddish white at night and deep black in the day time. If you ever see phlikplank turning reddish white in the day time, you know a monster is forming and you must leave the scene with all possible haste.

2. As the phlikplank blooms, the sound of the petals unfolding sounds much like "get wall-to-wall carpet from Larry's Carpetland." This is eerie at 3:00 a.m. issuing forth from stygian blackness.

3. The phlikplank is red-dish white at night and deep black in the day time. If you ever see phlikplank turning reddish white in the day time, you know a monster is forming and you must leave the scene with all possible haste.

4. Do not touch phlikplank or... oops, I touched one! Grr! Oweeee! Snarl!

Next week, if you are up to it, "THE MAFFED AIG."

Hospitality Can Kill One

NEW YORK (UPI)—To save a life or spare an injury, clip this item and put it with your party planning things.

At holiday time and every other party time you are, of course, interested in making certain it ends safely for those who come by car. That's what this is all about.

It began four years ago when the American Automobile Association's Foundation for Traffic Safety asked the Safety Research Project at Teachers College, Columbia University, to find a way to reduce after-party driving accidents caused by immoderate sampling of the cup that cheers.

Convinced that hosts traditionally tend to press drinks on guests, the professors set out to prove to party-givers that true concern for guests should rule out thoughtless hospitality in dispensing alcoholic beverages.

Since its inception, the program has been promoted by AAA clubs in various areas throughout the country under the campaign slogan, "First A Friend... Then A Host."

Of course, the role of host includes the hostess. After all, whose hand is it that really oversees and guides the successful party?

And, who, except she is smart enough to encourage moderation without being a party-pooper?

The AAA key to the safe-home party is food, plenty of it, temptingly displayed, and generously served from the very beginning of the party. Don't put out only drinks first and food later.

Set up your buffet, plan a pretty table, and make it convenient to all. Remember your aim is to get lots of good hearty food that moderates.

Here are more ideas for the party geared to the expressway age:

—After serving the first drink, let the guests determine when they want a refill. Don't force additional drinks, nor spend the evening "freshening up" the drinks in guests' hands.

—Have a good selection of non-alcoholic beverages available.

—Bring on coffee, and plenty of it, at least an hour or more before your guests will be leaving. Coffee is not a cure for over-indulgence, but when drinking coffee, guests are not taking on more alcohol.

If somehow, one of the guests does get under the weather, you should see that he is driven home by a non-imbibing. It is good planning to make arrangements for such a car pool in advance.

Or—there's always the local taxi company. The cost is modest compared with even a dented fender, to say nothing of a more serious accident.

By GEORGE ESPER
 Associated Press Writer
 SAIGON (AP) — Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard said today that President Nixon's plan for peace in Vietnam is working and is not being jeopardized at this point by increasing enemy activity.

Winding up a six-day assessment of the war situation—and his first visit to Vietnam—Packard said he does not claim that "peace and tranquility stand within immediate reach on some certain, predictable, pre-planned schedule."
 "There has never been any progress in Paris, and a determined enemy still faces us here," he told an airport news conference before flying on to other points in Southeast Asia. But the secretary said as the Saigon government's forces grow "inexorably stronger, it will be possible for President Nixon to maintain the momentum of U.S. troop replacements based on his three determining criteria of progress in Paris, the level of enemy activity and growing South Vietnamese armed forces strength.

Lap Special Forces camps, a 25-mile corridor in the southern part of the central highlands where Nixon's plans to turn the war over to the South Vietnamese are being tested by heavy enemy pressure. Fighting also was reported farther north in the highlands above Pleiku. South Vietnamese headquarters reported that government forces and supporting U.S. planes and artillery killed 73 North Vietnamese soldiers, including five men disguised as South Vietnamese soldiers who got into a government base camp. North Vietnamese artillerymen, possibly firing from inside Cambodia, made at least half a dozen shelling attacks on Bu Prang, Duc Lap and the Dak Pek Special Forces camps. Five South Vietnamese were reported killed in the fighting and shelling, and 13 were wounded. One American adviser was wounded.

enemy soldiers in several clashes ranging from the Mekong Delta to the coastal plain south of Da Nang, the U.S. Command said. U.S. losses were put at seven men killed and 17 wounded; another two Americans were killed and 12 wounded in enemy rocket and mortar attacks.

Viet Cong terrorists blew up eight houses in the central highlands resort city of Dalat early today, killing five children and wounding 15 other civilians, the national police reported. They said one of the homes belonged to an officer of the national police.

Two Killed As Train Hits Car

CARY, N.C. (AP)—Two young persons were killed and one jumped to safety when a train collided with their car Thursday night.
 William Lloyd Hunt, 22, of Raleigh and Frances Lucille Atkinson, 18, of Rt. 1, Cary near Raleigh, were killed. Francis Wood, 17, of near Cary, was uninjured.
 The patrol said the car stalled on the tracks at a crossing just east of Cary.

Church Plans Weekend Services With Music

THE PANTANA QUARTET . . . will appear at the Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Special services of "music and message" will be held Saturday night and Sunday at the Grace Free Will Baptist Church by the Pantana quartet.
 The emphasis will be upon the youth during the meeting.
 The quartet includes Dave, baritone, Phil, bass, John, lead, and Regina, tenor. Their parents are the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Pantana of Elida, Ohio. The quartet has made a recording entitled "The Pantana Quartet." After the service Saturday night, there will be an informal gathering for the young people. The pastor of Grace Church, the Rev. Chester Phillips, states that "We are pleased to have such fine Christian young people to sing and speak for us."

Tabernacle's Dedication Slated Sunday

EVANGELISTIC TABERNALE . . . Dedicated services for the new Evangelistic Tabernacle will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Dedication services for the Evangelistic Tabernacle will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the church. The Rev. Herbert Carter of Dunn will deliver the dedicatory message and the Rev. T.L. Byrd, pastor, will give the dedicatory prayer. The church, organized Oct. 20, 1968, with four members, now has a membership of 52 and is a full gospel non-denominational church. Located on a two-and-one-half acre tract on the U.S. 264 bypass west, the church contains 6,000 square feet and has a seating capacity of 300.

Also being constructed on the site is a church parsonage, scheduled to be completed in about four weeks. Special singing will be presented by various groups.

Neighbors Can't Believe Charges

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Lt. William L. Calley Jr., 26, of Miami, Fla., and Waynesville, charged by the Army with murdering 109 South Vietnamese civilians, is remembered here as a "fun loving but quiet" boy.
 Neighbors who knew the Calley family during the 10 years they spent summers in Waynesville say they can't believe "Rusty," as he was known here would commit the atrocities he stands accused of.
 "I know all this thing about Rusty is just not so," said a woman who lives on the street where the Calleys used to live. "They were a lovely family and Rusty was a very fine boy."
 "I just can't see this thing," said the father of Calley's best summertime friend.
