Apollo 12 Crew Is Heading For Home

By EDWARD K. DELONG
UPI Space Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—A chatty trio of Apollo 12 astronauts flew the "world's fastest lightning rod" back toward earth Saturday, telling scientists one of their biggest problems on the moon was the powdery dust smothering its surface.

L. Bean and Richard F. Gordon set a new space sleeping record as they coasted homeward toward splashdown at 3:59 p.m. Monday about 460 miles south-east of Pago Pago in the South Pacific. After sleeping for 12 hours apiece, Conrad and Bean began a narrative for geologists at the Houston Space Center on the need to improve the tools to probe through the chalky graphite-like powder. Powdery Layer "The moon is covered with this layer and there just ain't no way to figure it out," said Bean. "The amount of information to be gained by present system (the astronauts set up on the moon) will be much greater than that in the past," Anthony Calio, acting chief of science and applications at the Houston Space Center, told a news conference. "We have a geophysical station in operation now on the moon which has no comparable counterpart on the face of the earth. It's an extremely powerful system." And Dr. Conway Snyder, a scientist from the jet propulsion laboratory in California, said: "I'd just like to kind of go out on a limb. This is something you can't quantify very well, but it seems to me the factor is 1,000 (times more knowledge about the moon that will be gained) at least.

Gibson talked about the bolt of electricity that cracked up the side of the Saturn rocket and spaceship moments after launch from Cape Kennedy eight days ago. Gibson said the consensus was that the lightning was not a strike from the sky but a charge that used the Saturn's tail of exhaust gases as a conductor and jumped up from the ground to the moonship and the clouds it was passing through.

The astronauts' geological descriptions during their flight back to earth were apparently prompted by scientists' criticism after Apollo 11 that they were the last to get the word on the flight. Scientists said this time they were delighted. One of the most intriguing results of Apollo 12 was the seismographic recording of shock waves for more than 40 minutes after the astronauts sent their Intrepid landing craft crashing onto the moon's surface. It had been expected the tremors would be measured for only a few minutes such as would have been the case on earth. At the space center, Dr. Maurice Ewing, one of the scientists involved in the seismometer experiment, was asked about speculation that the moon might be hollow. "The thought of a hollow moon hadn't entered my head until this moment," Ewing replied, "and it passed through very quickly." In the Pacific, the carrier USS Hornet went through its next to last dress rehearsal for picking up the Apollo 12 crew. Three sailors took the role of the spacemen and the operation went off flawlessly. A tropical storm in the area had moved away and the forecast for the splashdown day was good.

Conrad and ground communi- cator Ed. G. Gibson talked about the bolt of electricity that cracked up the side of the Saturn rocket and spaceship moments after launch from Cape Kennedy eight days ago. Gibson said the consensus was that the lightning was not a strike from the sky but a charge that used the Saturn's tail of exhaust gases as a conductor and jumped up from the ground to the moonship and the clouds it was passing through.

Lightning Rod "I guess we hold the record now as the world's fastest lightning rod," Conrad said. Gibson said space agency officials had pretty well decided that if similar weather conditions prevailed again they wouldn't do it over again. "These three guys wouldn't," Conrad replied.

Huge Arsenal Is Turned Up In Viet Raid

By BERT W. OKULEY SAIGON (UPI) - American forces invading a Communist stronghold near Da Nang Saturday reported turning up a huge arsenal containing 10 tons of weapons, ammunition and rice. A U.S. general said North Vietnamese troops in the area were desperately short of food. "The worst thing the enemy is up against now is hunger," Marine Gen. Ormand Simpson told UPI correspondent David Lamb. "His problem is in getting enough rice to sustain his troops. It's very apparent the enemy is in bad shape, very bad shape."

The Que Son Valley last August was the scene of some of the haviest fighting of the war when more than 1,100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were reported slain. The fighting then cost the U.S. Army and Marines 74 men killed and 237 wounded. U.S. spokesmen said the confiscated supplies seized in the new Que Son drive were found in dank caves and included more than five tons of rice, 100,000 rounds of ammunition, hundreds of rocket and mortar rounds and five flamethrowers.

Another Tactic Foreseen For Next Court Choice

By ROY MCGHEE WASHINGTON (UPI)—It's a good bet that President Nixon, stung by the Senate's rejection of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., will direct his emissaries to be a bit more restrained in behalf of his next nominee for the Supreme Court.

The President made it quickly clear after Friday's vote that his new candidate, to be named after the 91st Congress opens its second session in January, will be of the same general legal and philosophical persuasion as Haynsworth. In other words, someone to bring "balance" to a bench which tended heavily toward liberalism under Earl Warren.

But Nixon's tactics figure to be somewhat different, for it was the heavy pressure brought to bear on the Senate in Haynsworth's behalf that helped contribute to his defeat. Some Republican regulars were offended by the White House lobbying campaign.

A 600-man U.S. Marine force pushing through the Que Son mountains 18 miles south of Da Nang reported killing at least 250 North Vietnamese in three weeks of fighting that has cost 25 Americans killed.

"This is the most significant weapons and munitions find we've made in more than a year," Simpson, 54, of Corpus Christi, Tex., said. "Some of the supplies were still wrapped in their original shipping containers."

Draft Call For January Is Lower Than Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department announced Saturday a lower-than-expected draft call of 12,500 men for January, to be selected for the first time under President Nixon's new lottery system.

Earlier estimate of 35,000 men, will comprise 10,000 for the Army and 2,500 for the Marines. The total is considerably below the average 27,000-man monthly call for the first 10 months of this year.

Pentagon sources said. The smaller draft quotas also were believed attributable to scheduled reductions in the over-all strength of the Armed services.

Motion Denied By Judge Larkins

TRENTON—A motion for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction filed in federal court by five Negro Rose High School students has been denied by Federal Judge John Larkins. The students were dismissed from Rose following student unrest incidents and disruptions Oct. 24.

being given reasons for such action, or were not told what defenses were against them.

The ruling came a week after Judge Larkins announced in a hearing of the case conducted in his chambers that he "would take the motion for preliminary injunction under advisement."

Some time next month, probably at Selective Service headquarters here, the 365 days of 1970 will be drawn at random from a hat, bag or bowl, and draftees will be called by birth dates in the order drawn in the lottery.

Immediately after the drawing, half or more of the 850,000 men aged 19 through 26 in the eligibility pool will know they won't be drafted in 1970 because their birth dates were low on the priority list. Next year's draft is not expected to exceed 250,000 men, meaning each man in the eligibility pool has a better than three-to-one chance of escaping induction.

$4 Million Utility Bond Program In Hands Of The Voter Dec. 2

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer (First of a series).

The authorization of a proposed $4 million utility bond program, termed essential for keeping pace with the area's industrial, commercial and residential growth and not increasing of affecting utility or tax rates, will be in the hands of the voting public on Dec. 2.

The funds that would be gained through the sale of the general obligation bonds have been deemed necessary in order to cope with immediate as well as certain future needs of expanded utility services.

Greenville Utilities director Charles Horne, in outlining the reasons for and financial planning of the bond program, pointed out that in the past, the city utility program has been able to maintain enough continued revenues to operate.

"The increased burden on our utilities incurred through the rate of growth of the University, vast industrial expansion, services extended to the new Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, as well as definite future needs of expansion, have necessitated the need for the bond program," Horne said.

Horne emphasized that the bonds would be self liquidating (paid for through operation of the utility system) and would not have any effect on the tax or utility rate structure.

"Our reserves have been severely depleted, Horne said, and they are not sufficient to carry the load of expansion that is needed."

He cited an almost immediate need concerning the water plant expansion, Burroughs-Wellcome. "They alone, when in operation sometime next summer, will be requiring nearly a million gallons of water per day," he added.

Much planning and study has gone into the bond question and all channels have been explored as to the feasibility and general market for the bonds.

Outside consultants have studied the four areas affected by the additional revenues; water, sewer, gas and electricity. These studies have been made over several months and plans for future needs of the city and outlying areas have been projected 15 to 20 years in the future.

"Our studies have gone into the gas situation here and have recommended what should be done; the weak and strong points of the electrical system have been studied; and water and sewer requirements have been gone over," Horne said.

In addition, the State Board of Health and the North Carolina Department of Water and Air Resources have been consulted, Horne continued.

"Our studies have shown that the $4 million program, financed through long term general obligation bonds, would be the only logical system of implementing our present and future needs," Horne said.

The controlling agency of all municipal financing, the North Carolina Local Government Commission in Raleigh, has given its approval of the proposed bond sale.

Harlan Boyles, director of the commission, informed Horne that their studies have shown the financial status in relation to proposals, of Greenville to be excellent and credit ratings of A-1 are confirmed concerning the bond sale.

Boyles said that the commission anticipated no difficulty for Greenville in selling the bonds and expected competition bonds to be sold on the market. Horne added that the commission was in agreement with the general obligation bonds over the sale of revenue bonds.

Plans for the program have also been submitted to the bonding attorneys representing the city in New York. Horne said, "Our attorneys have approved our program," he added, "and legally, approval rests with the vote on Dec. 2."

Horne said that an application had been submitted to the Economic Development Administration requesting financial grant assistance. By Greenville's designation as a Growth Center, the city is eligible for funds from EDA in cases where the expansion or improvements will lead to employment for more people.

Up to half the funding of the program could be obtained from EDA if the bond issue is passed. Horne said that no commitment from EDA would be made until the city had been authorized, through vote, to sell the bonds.

Total funding applied for in the EDA grant application includes $278,500 for water treatment plant, $303,133 for water transmissions mains, $602,300 for sewage treatment plant and outfalls, and $157,500 for gas mains. The four projects total $1,341,433 in EDA assistance.

Greenville Utilities share of the total will be $1,414,033, exclusive of electric facility expansion.

A supplemental grant of 10 per cent of the total project cost is under consideration from the newly organized Coastal Plains Regional Commission in Washington, D. C., Horne said. Regional office of the commission is in Raleigh.

Letters have been sent from GUC to Wachovia, Planters National Bank and North Carolina National Bank asking for their intent to bid on the bonds, the director said. Wachovia has replied and has expressed their intent to bid. Similar replies are expected soon, Horne said, from the other two banks.

"The bonds do not have to be sold at one time nor do all of them have to be sold," Horne continued. Once the authorization for sale has been received, in the event of an immediate need for revenue, short term bond anticipation notes can be sold and the general obligation bonds can be held until the market is satisfactory for sale.

In any event, the sale of the bonds will not affect the structure of the utility or tax structure, Horne pointed out. "The general obligation bonds are the only official way that the city can finance major expenses," he said.

Horne said that in the event the bond program is not passed, the possibility of water and electricity rationing could be prevalent due to increased overloading. In that case, he said, money would have to come from some source in order to make the improvements and the chance of tax increases would then be likely.

"This is a sound financial and physical program," Horne said. "There is no reason why the issue shouldn't go through."

All residents north of the Tar River and west of Evans Street may vote at the Main Fire Station. Persons living south of the river and east of Evans will be able to vote at Elm Street Gym.

Jaycees' Program Offers Support To The President

The Greenville Jaycees, in conjunction with a program organized by the Texas Jaycee organization, have initiated a drive in which citizens of the community may express their support of the President in his efforts to obtain peace.

Drive chairman Bill Dansey said that a coupon with a statement of support, directed to the President, would be circulated and collected by the local Jaycees.

The non-political effort, aimed at offering "concerned citizens" a medium for expression, was organized by the Texas organization in cooperation with the United States Jaycees and the United We Stand organization.

Plans for the local chapter call for the printing of an initial 10,000 circulars and more if response is good. Dansey said that the coupons will be made available to the public through countertop placards, a door to door canvas and civic group soliciting.

"This is a nation-wide drive, Dansey added. It is a chance for the masses to be heard." Dansey said the effort was an appeal to the people to unite in support of the President.

The coupon that will be distributed reads in part: "Mr. President: You have my support in your efforts to bring about a just and lasting peace." Dansey pointed out that the coupons will be addressed to the Greenville chapter for the purposes of collection. They will then be sent to Washington to the office of the President from here, he added.

Texas Jaycee president Eddie Dyer said in a letter to the local club: "America is our country and our country is in danger today because the vast majority has remained silent too long..."

"We must act immediately, he continued. The enemies of our country have interpreted the actions and words of the vocal minority as the true mood of the American public. The North Vietnamese will continue their war policies as long as they believe there is a possibility of an internal revolt against the President's policy."

Mayor Frank Wooten was one of the first local citizens to receive and sign the support coupon. Circulation of the coupons will begin immediately, Dansey said.

"We must show our support now, Dansey added. The situation will get worse if these is nothing done. If we don't do something now, then when will we?"

SUPPORT CIRCULAR . . . Mayor Frank Wooten (l) receives coupon from Bill Dansey that will be one of many mailed to the President from Jaycees across the nation in a show of support for his efforts towards peace.

Continuing Asian Policy

TOKYO (AP) — Putting Okinawa back under Tokyo's control will assure the continuation of present U.S.-Japan security arrangements through the 1970s, a high American source said today.

The agreement on Okinawa, announced in Washington Friday by President Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, said U.S. bases on the Pacific island will be under the same restrictions that apply to U.S. bases in Japan.

This means that beginning in 1972, the United States will no longer be able to store nuclear weapons on Okinawa without Japanese consent and will not be able to launch major combat actions from the island without "prior consultation" with the Japanese government.

The American source said that if Nixon and Sato had not agreed on these points, the U.S.-Japan security treaty would not have lasted beyond 1975. Now part of the agreement says the treaty will be renewed indefinitely on a year-to-year basis.

On Okinawa, which has been administered by the United States since it was captured from Japan at the end of World War II, Sato's supporters hailed the agreement. Opposition leaders denounced it for its failure to say explicitly that nuclear weapons will be banned from the island after reversion.

Despite these objections, the American source said Sato's ruling Liberal-Democratic party will be able to take credit for the reversion of Okinawa in a general election expected in late December or January.

There also were predictions that pressure to get the Soviet Union to return four small islands off northern Japan will increase.

The Soviets seized the islands — Habomai, Shikotan, Kunashir and Etorofu — after World War II and Japan has asserted that the islands are part of its territory.

Two Accidents Are Reported

An estimated $250 in damage resulted to a city traffic light in an early morning accident here Saturday.

Investigating officers said a car operated by Robert D. King, 20, 12 Spring St., Windsor, Conn., crashed into a traffic light pole at the corner of Tenth Street and Grande Avenue.

Officers charged King with operating under the influence and leaving the scene of an accident.

Damage to the King car in the 12:35 a.m. accident amounted to $100.

Police are continuing their investigation of a hit and run accident here Friday at 6:50 p.m.

Officers said a car owned by Ruby Evans Gaskins, 105 Alexander Drive, was hit by an unknown vehicle while it was parked unattended on Jarvis St.

No Charges In Traffic Mishap

No charges were placed in an afternoon traffic accident at the corner of 13th and Washington St. here Friday.

Investigating officers said drivers of the two cars involved in the 3:38 p.m. mishap were Lee Gordon Montford, 61, 1105 Van Northwick St. and Parnell Bynum, 55, 1302 Clark St.

Damage for the Montford car was set at $45 and damage to the Bynum car at $90.

To Appoint Conservative

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond says he believes it is likely President Nixon will nominate "another constitutional conservative lawyer from the South" for the Supreme Court now that the Senate has rejected Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Sr.

"I had hoped Judge Haynsworth would have been placed on the Supreme Court and I think the condemnation should be on those who voted against the nomination, including the Republicans," Thurmond said in a speech to a Republican fund raising dinner Friday night.

The senator said he did not expect a "Southern backlash" against Nixon as a result of the Haynsworth decision.

"Maybe we need Spiro Agnew on the Supreme Court," Thurmond said of the vice president. "If he keeps talking like he is and acting like he is, someday I would like to see him president of the United States."

U.S. Deplores Israeli Raid

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States has formally admonished Israel for blowing up a number of Arab houses as a community punishment in occupied territory.

"We deplore violations of this (international agreement prohibiting collective punishment) and therefore sincerely hope that all Israeli actions will be entirely consistent with the principles of the convention," a State Department spokesman said.

On Thursday the United States abstained from a U.N. resolution condemning the bombing of several days ago claiming the resolution did not take into account the overall situation in the Middle East.

Press Meetings To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Nixon's Sept. 26 formal press conference was his only such appearance since early summer he will continue to use that forum, the White House says.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Friday he didn't think there had been a slowdown in news conferences or in presidential communications with the people. He called the President's seven news conferences to date "worthwhile and useful" but gave no indication when the next full scale news conference might take place.

Extension Given Cannon Mills

GREENSBORO (AP) — Cannon Mills of Kannapolis has won its fourth extension — this time to Jan. 30 — to answer government charges that it discriminates against Negroes in employment and housing.

Federal Dist. Court Judge Edwin M. Stanley signed the order Friday.

Men's Fitness Program Slated

Registration is now open for a non-credit physical fitness program for men, sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education at East Carolina University.

The program, scheduled to begin Dec. 8 at ECU's Minges Coliseum, is the third men's fitness program offered by the division.

According to assistant director of continuing education Brayton Anderson, the program is "the most modern adult physical fitness program ever offered in this area."

Anderson says: "It is designed for the business man, doctor, dentist, lawyer, educator and executive who is concerned about a bulging waistline, shortness of breath from minimal exertion, fatigue and other symptoms of poor physical fitness."

The major emphasis of the program, he explains, is on increasing the body's ability to function more effectively and efficiently under everyday stresses.

Physicians will be available throughout the program to give medical advice and service when needed.

Registrations will be accepted through Dec. 7 by the Division of Continuing Education. Fee for the program is $35 and classes meet from 6 to 7 p. m. each Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

A second phase of the program, designed for those who have previously completed the basic program as a continuation of their training, will run concurrently with the basic program. Cost of the phase two program is $25. Both programs will be limited to 45 participants, and those interested are urged to register early.

Obituaries

Cameron

Cronkite Sees Threat To Public

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (UPI)—News commentator Walter Cronkite told a home town audience Friday night that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's criticism of television news not only threatens freedom of speech but the right of the people to be informed.

Cronkite, of the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS), said Agnew's suggestion that newsmen "had 'better do better or else' implies control and that is what is frightening."

The Cronkite appearance was sponsored by the St. Joseph area Chamber of Commerce but was arranged and paid for by CBS and KCMO, its Kansas City outlet.

"We're not just defending the precious right of our own freedom of the press but the right of the people to know," he said. "That is basic to our democracy. When there is a threat to that we must react fast and tough to protect the people's right."

Cronkite said since the vice president's allegations of nonobjective and antiadministration handling of the news, government officials have called several televisions over the nation to ask if they are going to editorialize on Agnew's comments, what the position would be and the political affiliation of some television newsmen.

The only effect of Agnew's speech, he said, would be for news outlets to continue reexamining themselves.

"Newsmen have an obligation to be objective," Cronkite said, "and that means laying all the facts before the people."

"We can't achieve total objectivity because we all have our prejudices, bias and position. But we are professional journalists and we have been taught integrity, truth and honesty and we practice it."

Drunk Test On Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — Breathalyzer tests in suspected drunk driving cases in North Carolina have increased 9 per cent since Sept. 1, when a new law went into effect.

The 1969 General Assembly enacted a law requiring motorists suspected of drunk driving to submit to a breathalyzer test if the arresting officer requests it.

The patrol commander, Col. Edwin Guy, said Friday that 84 per cent of those charged during October took the test.

He explained that in some of the other 16 per cent of the cases breathalyzer units were not available to patrolmen. About 10 per cent of those stopped in October, or 224 persons, refused to submit to the test.

If a motorist refuses, he has three days to request a hearing before his driver's license is taken for 60 days. Guy said that 2,229 persons were charged during October with driving under the influence, an increase of 34 per cent over October 1968.

"Our experience has been," Guy said, "that 70 per cent of those we test show blood alcohol concentrations of 0.16 per cent or more."

This is the equivalent, he said, of seven ounces of 100 proof whisky in the bloodstream of an average man. Under the law, any reading above 0.10 per cent is evidence of intoxication.

"In other words, a lot of them are bombed," Guy said.

U.S. Willing To Open Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it is willing to begin by the middle of next month discussions with Libya's new revolutionary government on U.S. withdrawal from Wheelus Air Force Base.

Spokesman Carl Barthel said Friday it is possible the United States will withdraw from Wheelus by 1971, the year U.S. departure was to have been completed. Libya has asked for an early withdrawal, although no deadline has been set.

The base has been used in connection with NATO operations.

Democrats Hearing Conflicting Advice

Liberal or Broad Appeal?

By NOEL YANCEY, Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A Democratic party study group heard conflicting advice Saturday on whether the party should adopt a liberal stance or should continue to seek to appeal to all factions.

It also heard Negro spokesmen call for black representation on the basis of population. But whites answered that although Negroes were welcome to participate on a basis of equality they did not appear interested. "You've got to go out and beg them" to participate, said Archie Taylor of Lillington, a district solicitor. "The Democratic party should stop attempting to be all things to all people and it should stand for progressive causes in contrast to the backwardness of the opposition," said Al Adams, Wake County Democratic chairman. "I would caution against the idea that there is no room under the umbrella for conservative Democrats," said Alex Brock, executive secretary for the North Carolina Board of Elections.

"The success of the Democratic party in the 20th century comes through its adherence to progressive goals," said George Gardner of Greensboro, representing Guilford County Reform Democrats. But, Tim Valentine of Nashville, former state Democratic chairman, disagreed, saying, "The historical success of the party is due to its broad appeal to white, black, young and old." The study commission was holding the third of four hearings in carrying out its task of recommending changes in the Democratic party structure "to make the party more democratic." It will hold its final hearing at Greenville next Saturday. The previous ones were at Asheville and Charlotte. Valentine saw little need for change in the Democratic party's plan of organization and said, "Our real need as Democrats is to get off our bottoms and go to work." Dr. Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte, who became the state's first Negro candidate for governor this century when he ran in the Democratic primary in 1968, asked Valentine if he feels the Democratic party is representative of all of the people in the state. "Generally it is," answered Valentine, "and the machinery is there to make it more representative. That can certainly be accomplished and the situation is improving." Dr. Jacqueline Jackson of Duke University, state secretary of the Hawkins Committee for More Representative Political Participation, called for a quota system of electing blacks to party posts and political positions. She said Gov. Bob Scott "missed a golden opportunity" last week when he failed to appoint a Negro to fill a vacancy on the state Supreme Court. She warned the Democratic party that if it is "going to continue to get the support of the Negro... it must take steps to assure full and meaningful participation" at all levels. Taylor said that although Negroes "are welcome" to participate in party affairs in Harnett County "apparently they are not interested." He estimated not over 15 Negroes attended precinct meeting in his county last year. Adams said he thought there should be "more black participation" in party affairs. Adams also called for the election of more of the state's national convention delegates at district caucuses with correspondingly fewer delegates chosen by the governor. Bert Bennett of Winston-Salem, another former state Democratic chairman, asked Valentine if he would favor eliminating the second primary. Valentine said he would not because this would to candidates selected by less than a majority of the voters. Other speakers agreed with Valentine when asked the same question. Valentine also cautioned against placing a restriction on the number of terms that party officials can serve. He said this would cut off the services of many capable leaders. "I believe in the one party system," Taylor told the commission. "And I believe that party should be the Democratic party. I think we ought to stive to get more people interested in the Democratic party, white, black, young, old, men, women, labor, capital.

South Vietnam Says Charges False

Army Investigates Viet Murder Charge

By ROBERT KAYLOR
SAIGON (UPI)—The South Vietnamese government Saturday branded as "totally untrue" reports blaming American soldiers for a massacre in the village of Song My. It said

Viet Cong troops bore responsibility for the deaths of about 20 civilians during a U.S. artillery barrage. The announcement took U.S. authorities by surprise, coming less than 12 hours after the investigation would be dropped immediately as a result of the South Vietnamese announcement. The statement issued by South Vietnamese Defense Minister Nguyen Van Vy broke months of silence from the Saigon government on what happened in Song My on March 16, 1968, where survivors had said that from 300 to 600 persons were slain by U.S.

troops who stormed into the village south of Da Nang. The Defense Ministry communique said an "important Communist force" had been based in Song My and that the village was made the target of a mission "aimed at destroying it" by troops of the U.S. American Division in Task Force Barker. "When soldiers of Task Force Barker engaged into the target," the communique said, "they met a strong resistance from the enemy. This hamlet was organized by the Communists into a good combat hamlet with good communication and an underground system. The population of the hamlet was forced by the Communists to stay in their places. The encounter resulted in 125 enemy killed and also there were around 20 civilians killed during the fighting because of the artillery.

Reports 'Untrue' "Therefore, reports of newspapers and of foreign press in the past days which said that there were 567 civilians killed were totally untrue." The Saigon announcement made no mention of the Pentagon statement Friday which acknowledged that Lt. William L. Calley, 26, of Miami, Fla., had been charged with "the premeditated murder of approximately 100 Vietnamese civilians" and is being held at Ft. Benning, Ga. The U.S. announcement also said that S. Sgt. David Mitchell, 29, of St. Francisville, La., has been charged with intent to commit murder in the Song My case. He is now stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex. Agents of the Army's Criminal Investigations Division (CID) are questioning nine other servicemen and 15 ex-GIs about the incident.

In Inflation Fight

Nixon Is Heartened By Signs

By JOHN M. PEARCE, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, heartened by signs near-runaway inflation is beginning to be checked, has appealed to businessmen to help "make America as it was in the beginning, the hope of the whole world." Facing almost 2,000 business leaders, the President pledged that the United States "can and will furnish the leadership that the world needs" despite its problems at home and burdens abroad. Nixon spoke to the men—and a few women—who accepted his invitation to attend a "Briefing for Business" on what they could do to help bring price increases under control. Leaving most of the talk about inflation to Cabinet members, Nixon focused on the nation's proper role in world affairs and its internal problems, concluding that neither is troublesome enough to "pull apart a nation as strong as this."

Several other indicators have shown hopeful signs, although others still register increases. Nixon told the businessmen: "We can look at America today and look down to the end of this century and we can see that we will then be the best clothed, best housed and the best fed people in the world, as we are today," he said. "But the critical question will be, what has happened to the American idea?"

JFK Death Anniversary Recalled By The Public

By MARTHA COLE, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — No special services were planned, but none were needed to draw people to the grave of President John F. Kennedy today. It has been six years since that Nov. 22 in Dallas, Texas, when the president was assassinated.

Since his burial in Arlington National Cemetery, an estimated 25½ million persons have visited the gravesite, according to military authorities charged with supervising the area. More thousands could be expected to continue the procession today.

Across the Potomac River in Washington, a memorial Mass was scheduled for noon at Holy Trinity Church, the parish church Kennedy attended before he became the 35th President of the United States. Kennedy also was being remembered in the prayers of the priests at St. Matthews Cathedral, where world leaders gathered for his funeral in 1963.

Despite the fact that there are hungry people and poor people in the nation, Nixon said, "never in the history of the world has more wealth been more fully shared by more people than in the United States of America, and we should not be defensive or apologetic about that."

Dr. Jenkins Board's Guide On Campus Tour

By CAROL TYER, Reflector Staff Writer
 Dr. Leo Jenkins served as guide for a bus tour of the East Carolina University campus and its environs Friday afternoon for members of the Board of Higher Education, Board staff members, a president of another state higher education institution, and members of the East Carolina Board of Trustees. After a morning of briefings by the ECU administration and a luncheon prepared by home economics students, the tour left the home ec building and proceeded by several new buildings, up college hill by the men's dormitories to the athletic complex where the tourers alighted to view the inside of Minges Coliseum. Inside Minges, they saw the lobby, the gymnasium, and the pool area, which is reputed to be one of the finest in the country. Dr. Jenkins discussed his dream of a "court of the athletes" between Minges and Ficklen Stadium. Once aboard the bus again, the group was shown women's campus, various classroom building and several areas where additions to the campus facilities are planned, including proposed sites for a student union, a new library, a building for the Regional Development Institute and another women's dorm. According to Dr. Jenkins' commentary, ECU will eventually be a pedestrian campus with all parking space on the outskirts. He said the mall in the center will not be built upon. The group ended their tour with a trip through the new science building, concentrated mainly in the physics area, the department to which they have just appropriated $182,000 for implementing a master's program. This was the first of several visits to various colleges and universities throughout the state that have been planned for the Board. Board members present included Paul Lucas of Charlotte, vice-chairman; Jay Huskins of Salisbury, John Stickle of Charlotte, Sammie Chess of High Point, Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, Mrs. Doris Horton of Snaford, Mrs. Elise Wilson of Fayetteville, Watts Hill Jr. of Chapel Hill, and Macio Sloan of Durham. The only college president was Marion D. Thorpe, president of Elizabeth City State.

HEW's Error Is Admitted

RALEIGH (AP) — The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare admitted Friday it had erred in including 14 North Carolina school districts among a list ordered to desegregate fully by Dec. 31. The department said that only 11 of the 25 North Carolina school districts on its list faced loss of federal funds unless they integrate by that date. The 14 districts still must face HEW enforcement hearings, but they were told that for the time being the current enforcement program will be continued as originally planned. They are Burlington, Camden County, Currituck County, Elizabeth City-Pasquotank, Greensboro, Greenville, Kinston, Raleigh, Robeson County, Rocky Mount, Rutherford County, Tarboro, Wilson and Wilson County.

Sirhan Leading A Lonely Life

By RICHARD M. HARNETT, SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — Sirhan B. Sirhan, assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, completes his first six months in death row isolation Sunday—a life as lonely as any on earth. Sirhan has a stark, concrete and steel cell 4½ feet by 7 feet, at the end of the south side condemned unit 1 on the sixth floor. He is in cell 33. The cells on either side of him are empty. A guard—a different one every day—brings Sirhan his two meals and may pause for a few words with him. Another guard passes within speaking range, occasionally. The other 25 condemned men in the same unit with Sirhan can, if they choose, approach Sirhan's cell. But no closer than 15 feet because two mesh steel screens create a no-man's-land around the 25-year-old Jordanian immigrant. Sirhan "Quiet" Associate Warden James Park said Sirhan is quiet and does not seem particularly anxious for the society of the other prisoners. Sirhan averages about one visit a month, from his attorneys, his mother or his brothers. "He is very quiet," said Park. "His routine doesn't change. Lot's of reading very little TV." He listens a lot to Arabic music on a phonograph his family gave him. The reading material is heavy on subjects like theology, psychology and mysticism, according to Park, but Sirhan also gets Playboy magazine in the mail. "He remains interested in the Middle East situation, reading English language pro-Arab journals, but no newspapers," the associate warden said. Two Guard Escort Sirhan leaves his cell only for medical appointments and to meet visitors. When he goes out, the other prisoners are ordered to clear a 30-foot wide path for him to pass with his two guard escorts. Prison officials fear strongly that Kennedy's killer would be in peril of his life if other men, already condemned to death, were allowed access to him. "Our basic obligation is to keep him functioning until the courts decide his case," says Park. That may be a long task, Sirhan's attorneys, George Shibley, Luke McKissick and Abdeen Jabara of Los Angeles, hope to have their appeal from his death sentence ready by next March. If he loses that one, an execution date will be set by the courts.

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Martha sprang up in the southwest Caribbean Saturday, only a week before the official end of the hurricane season, quickly mounted winds of 70 miles an hour, and was expected to reach hurricane intensity by early Sunday. The year's 13th tropical storm was spotted by ships and hurricane hunter planes at 1 p.m. near latitude 10.3 north, longitude 81.0 west, or about 100 miles northwest of Colon in the Panama Canal zone and 160 miles south southwest of San Andres island. CONVICTED, SENTENCED SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — James Lee, director of the foundation for Community Development in Durham, was convicted Friday of inciting to riot and sentenced to six months in jail. Doctor Named To Board WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Henry W. Harvey Jr., 46, of Manteo, N. C., physician, was named Friday to the Water Control Pollution Advisory Board in the Department of the Interior.

United Fund Contributions Top $100,000 Mark
 Contributions to the 1969-70 Pitt County United Fund Campaign have reached a total of $100,429.31, according to Campaign Director J. Curtis Hendrix. This represents approximately 82 per cent of the established goal of $123,054.30. "We appreciate the redoubled efforts of our Division Chairman, who are anxious to complete their part of the drive," Hendrix said. "we thank especially the businessmen and other leaders who have helped in the solicitation of pledges from their employees." Hendrix commended those organizations and agencies whose employees have attained 100 per cent participation in pledging support to the United Fund. Included in this group is a newcomer, the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center under the leadership of Manager Joel Vickers, whose 66 employees took advantage of their first opportunity to contribute to the support of our community project. Employees of Union Carbide have continued their record of 100 per cent employee participation by completing the drive in the local plant.

'Martha' N.C. Ranks High In Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — The Highway Commission says North Carolina ranks sixth among the 50 states in the amount of federal highway funds allocated for this fiscal year. The commission said Friday that North Carolina's highway aid total for 1969-70 is $82.8 million. About $58 million, or approximately 70 per cent of the year's total, has been let to contract. The only Southern state ahead of North Carolina is Louisiana, which has allocated 81 per cent of its federal road funds for this year.

Oil Company Searches For Sunken Drilling Platform

By RICHARD E. MEYER, Associated Press Writer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Sun Oil Co. fished for a 15,000-ton drilling platform today a half-mile from where conservationists were holding a fish-in to protest its installation off their once oil-smeared shores.

The company sent a team of divers down overnight to see if the top of the 230-by-150-foot steel skeleton was damaged when it sank topsy turvy in the Pacific Friday afternoon. Company spokesmen said improper balance caused it to flip when workmen slid it off a barge. Its eight legs were poking from the ocean's surface six miles offshore. "It's top might have been dented if it hit the bottom," a Sun spokesman said. "Or it might have been hung up on the bottom. It's in 195 feet of water." Whether the top was damaged will determine how soon workers can place the platform a half-mile east of a similar rig where an oil well blew out last January, polluting the sea and beaches. Fearing the new platform means increased chances for another blowout, members of a citizens' committee to Get Oil Out (GOO) began the fishing poles over the side with lures on the lines. Only one reported catching anything. The Sun spokesman said his company was "hopeful they (the protesters) will be mature and reasonable and understand that we're working with 15,000 tons of equipment.

Thursday. "We'll hold out," said GOO chairman Al Weingand. Eight to 10 boats have taken turns anchored around the clock on the proposed drilling site in an effort to impede the company when it tows the platform into position. The boatmen held

Updating Our Traffic Signals

One thing of interest in the Kimley-Horn and Associates, Inc. report to the City Council on a street planning study being conducted here was the fact that all of the city's traffic light installations are substandard.

The firm, which is working through the Planning and Research Department of the Highway Commission, reported that there are 49 intersections in the city with traffic control signals. Thirty of these are maintained by the state and 19 by the city. All of the city maintained signals are sub-standard, officials reported.

The Highway Commission has made much progress recently in improving traffic control systems on state maintained streets and thoroughfares. In many cases traffic control systems have been installed which allow for unobstructed turns for left turn lanes. Most of the highway intersections have double red lights for clearer visibility and for protection against a flight burning out.

This has made for a marked contrast with the city-maintained traffic lights, where virtually the same system installed 30 years ago is still used.

Every motorist has noted the potential danger of a burned out stop light upon reaching an intersection where there is no light showing. The city could also benefit from a centrally controlled traffic light system which allows traffic to keep moving along busy streets at certain speeds.

Greenville should plan now to upgrade its traffic control system to place it on par with the system being installed by the Highway Commission. No doubt the information forthcoming in the Highway Commission study will be needed to improve the traffic control system, but there should be as little delay as possible in making these improvements.

Partial Answer In Local Banks

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES, Reflector Raleigh Bureau RALEIGH—Circling the square:

Locally based banks, those with financial stability and local concern, may be part of the answer to the dilemma faced by many North Carolina local governments trying to market municipal bonds.

But knowledgeable sources agree almost unanimously that this would not solve all of the problems facing local governments in view of bond market conditions.

In the first place financial institutions look dimly upon a six per cent legal maximum interest rate on such bond issues and secondly look askance at the credit rating of the municipalities involved. Top-rated bonds may attract bidders at six per cent, but lower-rated issues may not.

important projects to be listed on the Highway Commission's letting in January is seven miles of I-85 in Robeson County.

This project will complete the heavily-traveled interstate route between Lumberton and the South Carolina line. It parallels existing U.S. 301.

Work is progressing on completing another "missing link" in I-95 in Nash and Wilson counties.

Parkway—Wintry blasts already have forced the closing of some parts of the Blue Ridge Parkway this Fall but officials have promised their best efforts to keep the scenic mountaintop highway open as much as possible during winter months.

A requests for this was made by Gov. Bob Scott. The reason, of course, is an increasing amount of tourist and travel businesses in the mountains in winter.

Parkway Supt. Granville Liles agreed with Scott about the importance of the road being kept open. Last year because of a cutback in federal funds for personnel and maintenance approximately 250 miles were closed all winter. He said he does not anticipate this situation this year.

In addition, Liles told Scott that campground areas along the Parkway near Sparta and Little Switzerland will be kept open for winter camping.

Purchases—The governor's new "No. 1" limousine being purchased from a Fayetteville firm has a $9,056.29 price tag. In addition to the new limousine purchased for the governor every two years, the state is buying $43,869 worth of automobiles for use by the Council of State and Department of Conservation and Development.

North Carolina State University is buying a $6,000 research vessel, a used boat, from H. O. Paul of Aurora, N. C.

The Highway Commission has approved a contract for purchase of $5,489 worth of safety award emblems.

Publications—The Department of Conservation and Development (C&D) appears to be going into the publications field more extensively.

It has contracted with Creative Printers, Chapel Hill, for a quarterly publication at a cost of $7,040. And it has contracted with Graphic Press, Raleigh, for a bi-monthly publication at a cost of $6,000.

Resignations Underline There Is But One Way

No one can really blame Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for resigning as the United States delegate to the Paris peace talks.

Lodge and his chief deputy Lawrence E. Wash announced their resignations last week in a move interpreted as a signal to North Vietnam that the talks will be downgraded unless they become more productive.

It was doubtful from the beginning that North Vietnam leaders really was serious about carrying on productive negotiations. Their intention was to enter the talks to obtain an end to the war on their terms, because they felt the time was ripe to do this.

So the peace talks have been long sessions that have produced no concrete results and it has become clear that the United States can withdraw from the war in only one way—that is to turn the fighting over to the South Vietnamese on an orderly basis.

It is likely that little more can be expected from the peace talks except propaganda blasts unless there is some unexpected change in Hanoi's attitude which changes the entire outlook for negotiations.

Israeli Arabs Being Infected

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK JERUSALEM—Growing Arab terrorism and sabotage against Israel now threaten to infect Arab citizens of Israel itself, who until now have been living in relative peace in their Jewish state for 20 years.

This is the trend today. Although it is still minute by comparison with commando activity in the occupied territories of the West Bank, it is alarming thoughtful Israeli officials, particularly those who deal with the occupied territories and have studied commando techniques and organization.

Thus the important element of time seems to be running against Israel in its frenzied efforts to control commando operations, and at least stop them at the border of Israel proper, until a settlement can be found. As one high official told us: "We never thought this could go on for so long."

By "this" he meant the status quo and the failure of anyone—Israel, the Arab states, and the big powers—to break that stalemate with a plan for settling the intractable results of the six-day war. As a result, the mood of quiet desperation is hardening here.

The infection of Arab Israelis (285,000 of them) probably was ordained the instant Israel conquered the West Bank of Jordan in 1967.

But it has been a long time coming, a fact for which the Israeli government justifiably prides itself. That it is now on the rise indicates that Israel's comparatively benign occupation policy cannot compete against the emotional and nationalistic appeal which the commandos have for all Palestinian Arabs, including those who have been peaceful citizens of Israel ever since independence.

Thus the deeper significance of Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's decision to punish innocent Arabs in the occupied territories for failing to report impending guerrilla operations must be seen also as a veiled warning to Israeli Arabs to instantly report suspicious signs or also risk punishment.

This punishment in the occupied territories, including blowing-up of homes, is supposed to turn passive Arabs into informers. Although Dayan's decision to go that route has split the Israeli cabinet, one Israeli official told us: "It is past time that we replaced the velvet glove with the iron fist."

Even this step by Dayan, who is top boss of occupation policy, falls short of the desire of the same hawkish Israelis who have been pressing him for months to put on the iron fist.

Sunday Morning Notes

There was a major discussion underway at a recent meeting of the board of education. "Certain delicacies may not be peculiar to the taste of our modern generation," Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent, told the board.

"Come again with that?" asked board member Louis Gaylor.

Other Editors Say The Governor Disagrees

(Henderson Dispatch) Governor Scott talked in plain language in an address to the N. C. Farm Bureau convention in Durham the other day in charging that leaders of farm organizations are dragging their feet with respect to latter day problems of agriculture. He accused them of catering to leaders of national organizations and criticized those who had fought his two cents tax on cigarettes. He definitely disagreed with top echelon officials in the farm agencies.

How much bootlicking, if that is the proper word, there has been or is of the national organizations we couldn't even guess. But generally speaking, the North Carolina group apparently is more conservative than the chief executive, and that may have gotten his dander up.

We did not gather from what we read of the Governor's address what the specific differences are, other than on the cigarette tax. But the farm leaders were not alone in opposing the tobacco excise. There were many others, both in and out of the Legislature. It was a matter of opinion and there were differences. Governor Scott wanted the money the cigarette levy will produce and the tobacco people opposed the imposition.

As for the farm leaders basking in the better things of life, as Scott charged, that is a condition common to those in public life, including the chief executive. Even members of the Legislature took the bull by the horns and in the face of public opposition, to increase their own pay, even to the point of voting pensions upon retirement from a parttime job. Honorables in Congress act similarly, including junkets abroad at government expense, which many think are unnecessary in most instances.

Whatever else may be said about him, Governor Scott is not lacking in courage in fighting for what he wants. In speaking to the Farm Bureau and charging them with shirking their duty, he was bearding the lion in his den, and went after those who have held jobs he once had. He used the plural personal pronoun in saying "we" have courted national farm organizations, an expression which may have been calculated to soften the blow.

The Governor is a liberal, and his inference was that farm leaders are not. That, of course, is a privilege that is theirs. Maybe they are dragging their feet, as charged, but what the Governor said will hardly attract stronger support from those on the receiving end of his jibes.

And it has been a week to be remembered at The Daily Reflector. Switching over to an entirely new system of producing type and a new offset press to print the newspaper has been trying, indeed.

The expected mass confusion developed and stories and headlines produced on the new photo typesetting equipment had a way of winding up in the oddest places.

Finally a box was placed on a table in the middle of the composing room. In it went all the bits and pieces of type which couldn't be identified. Anyone who was missing anything could look in the box.

Of course, it wasn't long before a label appeared on top of the box. It read: "Lost and found."

Oh, that Spiro. He has truly brought gasps from the Beautiful people set which

Rural Living Status

By MARIS ROSS LONDON (UPI)—An Englishman's home used to be a castle. Now it's a country cottage.

Ideally the cottage is just the way that American tourist picture the English countryside: in a beautiful old world village, built of mellow stone or wooden oceans set between white plaster, thatched roof, surrounded by a sweet-scented garden.

But that sort of cottage is getting harder and harder to buy. In the past few years, a weekend retreat has become a way of life for many a city dweller. The trouble is, Britain also has started to run out of cottages.

Prices have rocketed at what should be a bad time because of the shortage of ready money caused by the government's economic squeeze. Other property—houses and offices—are in a difficult selling patch. The hot competition for cottages is all the more surprising as mortgages are hard to obtain on many of them, due to their age and insurance companies' dislike for risks like thatched roofs.

Until this year, a bargain cottage could still be found for less than $1,000 so long as the buyer was prepared to spend money on modernization. Usually, that entailed installing a bathroom. The closest thing on the market recently was an abandoned church in the remotest Scottish Highlands, overlooking the sea and capable of conversion, priced $1,800.

Gordon Russell, who works for a company (Country Cottages Ltd.) that specializes in finding hideaways for London clients, said: "Up to last Christmas we had cottages on our books for 1,000 to 3,500 pounds ($2,400 to $8,400). Now the price range is 3,000 to 8,000 pounds ($7,200 to $19,200)."

"We do go up to 10,000 pounds ($24,000), for which you should be able to get a thatched cottage with a minimum of three bedrooms and half an acre of land, with slightly more rooms and land as you go westward from London."

This company looks for cottages that are from one and a half to three hours' traveling time from London. They do not deal much in those closer to London because they think the prices are exorbitant.

"Everybody has got different reasons for wanting a country cottage," said Russell. "People want peace and quiet. We get quite a few who asks for a place where they can spend their holidays and weekends, as well as with a view to retiring later. You get young families just coming into their full range of earning power who want to get in on the ground floor. Property is about the only investment that holds its value."

Favorite locations are along the south coast, on rivers that offer fishing, and in the hilly districts that have picturesque landscapes, particularly the Cotswold Hills, a moted beauty area because of the quaint villages built in the local stone.

The shortage of cottages has brought the reclamation of completely derelict buildings—at a good profit. One cottage, derelict for several years and then completely facelifted, is going on the market for a whopping $24,000 dollars although it has hardly any land for a garden.

Strength For Today

Certainly no one today would disagree very strenuously with the statement that we are living in what appears to be an age of lawlessness. The increase in crime is appalling. Race riots are occurring not only in our own country but in practically every country of the world. There are undeclared wars today (called police actions) which in our own country alone have taken the lives of more than sixty thousand young men.

Why all this ferment? In every age there are a lot of unanswered questions and unsolved problems. We seem to be having our full share of these. The policeman is on his guard. Men—and what is most appalling of all, women—have been murdered in unbelievable numbers in the past decade or two. Officers are sent to public schools to protect teachers from their pupils. Young protesters and old gather on principal streets in the big cities and stop all traffic. Crime in the United States is growing more than ten times faster than population, percentage-wise. The home is a different place today than it was fifty years ago. This may be bad or good—certainly it is inevitable.

But the Ten Commandments maintain their place as the foundation of all morality. The passing decades do not alter this fact. But something is making the human race go haywire morally, governmentally, spiritually.

What is it? What is the remedy? When will this lawlessness cease? By EARL L. Douglass

Franchises See Proliferation

By ELMER ROESSNER Franchising probably goes back to the dawn of history when some witch doctor sold territorial rights for the resale of his potions. Much of America's business growth came from franchising. The great auto industry and large parts of the appliance and furniture business has been built on franchising.

Early in the century franchisors advertised they would set a man up in a profitable, independent business with exclusive territory. They sold him a popcorn machine. But never in history has franchising so proliferated, in number of fields if not in total dollar volume, as it has today.

Perhaps the basic reasons are these: As the population expands, more people want to get out of the rat race and be independent. The old means of independence, buying a farm, is fast disappearing.

Private business is hedged with laws, regulations, restrictions, taxes and other controls, but there is no independence there until a promoter offers to supply the know-how. And, for the first time, millions of people have savings and credit with which to embark on a slick, flashy, advertised enterprise. You Pays Your Money

No one is yet offering to franchise a string of bordellos. But that's about the only line not being franchised.

"Profits from Franchising," by Robert M. Rosenberg and Madelon Bedell, (McGraw-Hill, $7.95) one of the most recent books on franchising, lists 64 pages of franchising organizations. There are 14 accounting and tax service franchisors; nine art galleries; six auto services; ten auto rentals, 26 auto wash systems and 48 auto products and services franchisors.

There are 40 employment and temporary help systems and 13 motel systems.

ELMER ROESSNER

There's a total of 192 food and drink franchises available, with some of the darlings names you can think of. There are large numbers of hamburger and chicken systems, but there is an endless variety of other specialties, such as smorgasbord, pizzas, Mexican dishes, Chinese food, and the Vat 19 Corp. restaurants featuring a daily variety of 17 soups. Food Over-Franchised?

General prosperity enables an increasing number of families to eat out, and this underwrites the vast expanion of the quick-meal franchisees. But it has also caused concern over whether there has been over-franchising.

The Wall Street Journal reports that in a three-block stretch of Route 63 just outside of Chicago there are a dozen fast-food eating places. Elsewhere, one prosperous hamburger stand will attract another to locate in the same block.

And the spectacle of our gas stations, all franchised, at the four corners of an intersection is a common American phenomenon.

The variety of other franchise systems is endless. Currently being advertised is a find-a-car service for collectors, two-man theaters, artist management, farm stores, fund-raising, colleges and schools of various sorts, children's shows, shirts-by-the-box, bagel bakeries, wigs, and alarms, with every new franchise a prospect.

Observations From Editorial Columns

ONE FOR THE 'UPPERDOG'

He was the "forgotten American" in President Nixon's campaign last fall. Today, he's the "upperdog" in Gov. Preston Smith's lexicon. But by whatever name he's called, Mr. Average American is drawing a growing share of attention from public officials these days.

Gov. Smith noted recently, "We can have sympathy for the underdog—the misfit, for the ne'er-do-well, for the loser. And sometimes that sympathy is justified. But we cannot allow our sympathy for the underdog to diminish our appreciation and admiration for the 'upperdog'."

The "upperdog," according to the governor's description, does not have to be rich or powerful. "He needs only to be interested, concerned and willing."

The governor could have added that the upperdog is the man who pays his taxes, raises his family, supports his church and, in brief, keeps the wheels of our society turning smoothly. But his lot has fallen on hard times in recent years as our social prophets of doom have glamorized the underdog.

If the staggering problems of the poor, the disadvantaged and the disabled are to be successfully solved, it will be the "upperdog" who does it, not the soothsayers of doom. He merits the increasing attention he's receiving. —Dallas (Tex.) Morning News

COOL MEDIUM?

Television certainly has its hazards. We've already been put on guard as to the possible eye strain, radiation damage and intellectual anaesthesia that may be suffered through prolonged tube exposure. Now comes a warning of an additional danger—spontaneous combustion.

It appears, according to the Presidential Commission on Product Safety, that there have been instances of color sets bursting into flames, even when not in operation. Cause not yet determined, but one possibility would seem to be ruled out right from the start. It can't be red-hot programming that's to blame. —Savannah (Ga.) Evening Press

ARE COMPUTERS STUBBING TOE?

No matter what you hear, all the news isn't bad. You just have to look hard for the good news. For example, there's a rosy bit of intelligence in Fortune magazine for people who never have liked those smart-aleck computers, anyway.

This year American industry will spend $7 billion on computers and related equipment and pay $14 billion to operate them. But, says the article, "after buying or leasing some 60,000 computers during the past 15 years, businessmen are less and less able to state with assurance that it's all worth it."

No more than 10 per cent of corporations are showing expertise in the management of the computer. An expert claims that computers rarely have reduced the cost of operations, even in routine clerical work.

But wait. If the computers aren't saving money for business and industry, who's paying for this expensive foray? Must be that guy at the end of the line who always picks up the check, the consumer. That's you. Ah, well. Back to the search for good news. —Macon (Ga.) Telegraph

IT'S THAT (AH-CHOO) TIME AGAIN

The signs are already out that the season is upon us. The preacher is muffled by his coughing congregation, children are off to school with pockets of forgotten handkerchiefs, and business is brisk at the drug counter and the fruit juice case. Activities are restricted: husbands and wives start showing up separately, apologizing for the one left at home in bed; school attendance goes down, televisions go on all day; and the house is littered from one room to the next with half empty glasses of warm Coke, old movie magazines, broken toys, and last week's fannies.

Ways of curing the cold are plentiful: there are herbs at the Farmer's Market; pills at the pharmacy; cold showers, hot showers; soft drinks and hard liquor; and a witch doctor inside every aging mother, up for the third straight night with an unhappy child. The sound of the vaporizer drones on, moisture drips from the windows, and the scent of medicines hangs over the house.

If you itch, there are allergists; squint, there are ophthalmologists; ache, orthopedists; but alas, if you sneeze, it's no one's speciality. Or everyone's speciality. At least you get consistent treatment; take two aspirins and get plenty of rest. With that in mind you can now settle down to a long winter's nap. —Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal

A Conservative View Agnew Is Right: Private Bias Sure To Emerge

By J. J. KILPATRICK

The unfortunate thing is that Agnew is right. The still more unfortunate thing is that nothing much can be done about it.

The vice president charged, in brief, that television network news is shaped and controlled by a small group of men whose liberal bias dominates their presentation. Who can deny it? The charge is true. It has been true for 20 years.

It is the same charge, in essence, that has been leveled against the Warren Court. Members of the high tribunal are supposed to put their prejudices behind them when they sit down at the bench. They don't. Everyone knows where Thurgood Marshall will stand on a civil rights case. He will stand where TV's famous anchor-men stand. Perhaps an answer to our problems lies in asking the Senate to advise and consent to the nominations of Messrs. Huntley, Brinkley, Cronkite and Reynolds, whose decrees come down every night.

The Constitution is filled with safeguards against the bias of judges. None of the safeguards has worked. The only effective restraint upon a Supreme Court justice is his own sense of self-restraint. The same thing is true of the network people. Much of the time, in my observation, the anchor-men strive for an impeccable neutrality; but Huntley's eyebrows have an independent mind all their own. And Mr. Brinkley, for his part, could not read two columns of a telephone book, deadpan, without hinting at the character of Kunkle, Kunze, Kunzig and Kupetz.

This is an inescapable aspect of the nature of strong men. Of course their biases creep in. Their whole lives play a part in forming their judgment on what constitutes news tonight. And in the particular case of network television, the ordinary problems of editorial judgment are compounded by the nature of the medium.

For TV is not like newspapers. The newspaper you are now reading has been assembled by editors whose lives are ruled by the printed word. If my column bores you at this point, you can switch in a twinkling to someone else's column. You can go to sports, to women's news, to business news, to foreign news, to the comics; you can put the paper aside and read it later. You can read as much or as little as you please, making your own choices. And if you find this newspaper unpalatable, you can—with a little effort—find some other printed medium.

The evening network shows are something else entirely. Cronkite cannot "raise his paper" by a couple of pages to accommodate a big day in the news. He is bound to the inexorable half-hour, or to what remains of a half-hour after the commercials.

In this time span, a Cronkite must not only inform, he must also entertain. He must hold his viewers. His task is to present 15 or 20 items that will claim attention from beginning to end. If your custom is to watch the whole show, you must accept the CBS choice will-nilly—or try another network where the same personal prejudices work in about the same way.

Suppose, to be supposing, that Bill Buckley and I were invited to replace Messrs. Huntley and Brinkley for a week or two. Suppose that we were instructed, just as they are, to be as fair, as objective, as impartial as we could be; and suppose that we tried our best. Our nightly choice of 15 or 20 stories seldom would vary much from the Huntley-Brinkley choice, but inevitably there would be nuances, changes of emphasis, a different ordering of priorities. Before long, the liberal establishment would be howling to high heaven against a tiny and closed fraternity of privileged men, elected by no one, enjoying a monopoly sanctioned and licensed by government. You would not have heard Spiro T. Agnew on Thursday; but you might have heard the same speech from, say, Hubert Humphrey.

The problem is quite serious, for Agnew is right in his assessment of TV's impact. The medium itself, as Marshall McLuhan has said, is the message; and every man who deals in ideas would like a crack at composing a network's evening message. I'll come back to this theme again. Meanwhile, good night, Bill.

ALL THE DRAMA ISN'T ON THE FIELD

First Real Signs Are Seen Of Wintry Cold

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH—It happened in North Carolina:

Winter arrives suddenly and often unexpectedly when bitter cold air spills across the mountains and sweeps across much of the state of North Carolina as it did last week.

Forecasters, either professional or amateur, seldom have much warning.

Some, of course, say they can feel it in their bones or smell it in the air. Some are reliable and some are not. The signs are better.

It was along a familiar highway near Asheville a few days ago, on a typical late autumn afternoon, that the first real signs of approaching change to wintry weather appeared.

These were signs not available to nor relied upon by the professional weathermen at Asheville airport, presided over by meteorologist in charge Earnest A. Rodney.

They collect and weight and consider official scientific data.

They might have known of the slight sprinkles of rain near Hickory and of the approach of a cold front from the west. Certainly they knew of a drop in barometric pressure and a shift in wind direction to north and north-west.

But they did not see the fleecy clouds dropping like a cloak around the peaks along the wall of the Blue Ridge.

The clouds dropped lower and lower, wrapping themselves around the mountains almost as raiment of monolithic gainst.

camera. "Used a hammer on it," one of the astronauts replied.

Back at the busted typesetting equipment, three of its operators had to be restrained.

The mountains, as always, loomed larger and larger and purple in the distance—not too distant as one approached the Blue Ridge escarpment.

There was the ping of a pellet of sleet on the windshield and further warning of possible "falling weather."

Still, even though the Fall color season, brilliant but brief, had faded, it was considered too early for what was to come in mid-November. It came.

Silently, during the night, snow began falling. Mercury in the thermometers took a nosedive. It became bitterly cold. There was a low of four above zero in Canton, just a few miles from metropolitan Asheville. Roads became virtually impassable without chains and extreme care. Some visitors in the area were caught unaware and without winter servicing of their automobiles and spent some anxious hours waiting for a bit of warming. Finally, after waiting, the temperature reached 16 degrees. The snow was powdery but most streets and major highways were clear. Traffic began to move.

It was, according to the Asheville Citizen, "extreme cold" even for weatherwise and weather-conscious Western North Carolina.

It's that time again. Agriculture commissioner Jim Graham has issued invitations to the annual turkey shoot staged for the Raleigh press, radio and television corps. The event always draws a large crowd. And well it should.

The prizes are turkeys—eight of them this year—and two big turkey hams.

And Graham adds, "There will be makings for sandwiches, other goodies and, of course, plenty of hot coffee and soft drinks for your brunch, lunch or smacking. This year wives of newsmen will also be eligible for prizes."

Dayan's earlier resistance to anything more than minimum force in the occupied territories was based on his hope that the Arabs would learn, if not to love, at least to live with their Israeli masters. Thus he has encouraged maximum contact between Jew and Arab, kept open the main bridge over the Jordan River for traffic between the East Bank (Jordan) and the occupied West Bank, and encouraged maximum employment of West Bank Arabs in Israel itself.

Now that Dayan himself is getting tough, other schemes for dealing with the Arabs are getting attention. One of these would "disperse" some of the 350,000 refugees who live in the teeming camps of occupied Gaza and resettle them on the West Bank to work on major construction projects. Although pictured as a humanitarian gesture, this would be a major affront to both Jordan (which used to own the West Bank) and Egypt (which used to own Gaza), designed specifically to ease explosive tensions in Gaza.

It is predictable that not even the harshest repressions will end commando operations in the occupied territories or stop the infiltration from spreading into Israel. From a handful, the number of Israeli Arabs arrested for sabotage has now risen to 90. The perpetrators of the Tel Aviv bombing six months ago have never been turned in. And the protest vote of Israeli Arabs (registered by their vote for the Communist party) was up some 20 percent in the recent election.

No wonder, then, the melancholy mood here. For without an outside settlement with the Arab states, the inside Arab problem can only get worse no matter what the government does.

Public Forum

To The Editor:

After reading the feature article about my work in Viet Nam, I feel sincerely compelled to express myself further. In spite of the personal satisfaction my work brings, a look at the larger reality of what is happening in this country brings me to a despairing halt. My feelings for Viet Nam and America run deep and I must speak to the issues that are confronting us so inescapably. When I came to Viet Nam, I wanted to gain a better understanding of the complexities of the political and military situation, which has caused so much controversy. The myriad of interrelated factors still bewilder me, but I have begun to witness effects of the war that speak to my heart and demand that I speak to you.

Examples of the permeating destructive effects of the war that reach into the fabric of society and touch every Vietnamese's life are never-ending: an innocent, playing child steps on a mine and loses his leg; a young wife, whose husband was killed while a soldier, mourns bitterly the death of her only child, for now she is left with no one; a family is forced to evacuate home and fields of a lifetime, for the futile search and destroy missions must go on; a woman is mercilessly beaten by the local police without trial or jury for she is suspected of being a Viet Cong; a husband is drafted into the army "until peace comes" to find that he must serve far away from his family and earns too little to support them.

The culture and land suffer in many ways, sometimes less obviously, but still potently: the mere ugliness of never-ending military installations and barbed wire and noisy vehicles; the constant inconvenience of waiting for convoys, for they always take priority; the accidental killing of a child that did not get out of the path of a speeding army truck; the frustrated, potential draftee who has no desire to fight on either side but fears both; the interruption of a leisurely Sunday afternoon as a family watches the nearby bombing of a mountain and destruction of one more lovely area of Viet Nam; the majority of young men, who will be leaders of Viet Nam, but are now learning only how to fight and kill; the skyrocketing of prices which Americans can afford with their "hazard pay" wages, but Vietnamese cannot; the American GI who hates being here away from home; does not understand why he is here and feels the hostility of the Vietnamese because of his "foreign presence"; the threatening apathy for those Vietnamese whose war weariness has been spent.

Yes, I know these things; I have seen them and begun to feel them. As a Christian nation which says it is motivated by a sincere desire to help, America must think of the greater good of the Vietnamese people. Christ's commandment for love left no room for killing and destruction.

The foregoing statements represent my personal feelings and are not necessarily characteristic of the sentiments of the organization, with which I am affiliated, as a whole.

Sincerely yours,
Martha Henderson

With Tightening Economy, Credit (Or Its Lack), In The Spotlight

By George Bryant, Jr.
The business news these days is a running account of an economy that is tightening as the forces which have produced the record inflation lose zest.

On prices, however, it is still much the same diet, one sharp increase after another in living costs, with no end in sight, not even a meaningful slackening in the rate of climb.

From Washington there is no indication that the administration is about to ease the budget and credit brakes. Signs are that any significant move will be held back until prices show some indication of coming off their steep inflationary trend.

Corporate profits are starting to feel the crunch of higher costs. Big wage hikes and rises in material costs no longer can be passed on in full to the consumer.

The zoom is going out of the personal income boom, the trend is still up, but the rate of gain is slowing, despite still high settlements of wage contracts.

Retail sales, sluggish since earlier in the year, remain on the soft side, reflecting the income-price pinch on buyers. Forecasts are that post-Christmas sales will see some better than usual bargains, price-wise.

Business inventories are rising, which means that goods are not finding the bullish market of some months back.

Industrial production, which showed some easing in August and September, showed a sharper decline in October, when the Federal Reserve Board's index registered 173.3 percent, based on the 1957-1959 average. The drop was 0.4 percent in physical volume, as distinguished from current dollar valuation.

Unemployment stays up from the lows scored earlier in the year and employment is holding about level. In other words, new jobs no longer are opening up fast enough to absorb additions to the labor force.

There is a feeling in many quarters that layoffs are not far away. With industrial production easing and the cost pressure rising on employers, layoffs seem inevitable. The auto industry and the makers of "big ticket" consumer durable goods, such as TVs and furniture, were among those who registered production declines in October.

"Hours of work" figures show softening. This usually reflects a decline in overtime ahead of any actual layoffs. It's hard to measure its significance at this time, however, since many workers are turning down overtime opportunities. With straight time wage rates so high, some employers report more and more workers prefer extra leisure time to extra pay.

There no longer is much debate about whether the economy is heading for a slow-down—a recession of some sort. Just about every forecast and most of the traditional economic indicators point to a continued tightening, on, into, and maybe even through 1970.

The top question now is how severe the tightening will become and how long it will last and answers rage all over the place.

Washington has stuck by its anti-inflationary spending and credit policies longer than many expected. Those who gambled on a quick return to the pre-Nixon inflationary policies already are counting their losses.

The stock market, obviously miscalculated. When the "turn" was signaled some weeks back, what was hailed as "the" rally quickly turned into a weak and faltering performance.

Expected signs of a credit shift in Washington simply didn't materialize. An easing in the money supply had been counted upon to push depressed bond prices up and these improve the stock market prospects enough to bring an investment shift.

Now there is considerable speculation that credit will become even tighter, with the peak in the all-time high interest rates still to come. Much depends on the courage of Washington to stand by its guns to the point of risking a considerable recession in order to break the back of inflation.

Trend watchers continue to go back to past statements of President Nixon's advisers and to statements of the President himself. These statements said in effect that those who counted on a return to past policy to bail them out of inflationary wage and business decisions (price and credit) were taking a considerable risk. Not too much attention were made to these cautioning words at the time.

But if it does turn out that these statements were something more than just political words, then a lot of businesses and individuals may well be in for a rough time in the months to come.

It may be that the key role in this will be played by credit, or the lack of it. A term which is being used more and more in financial quarters these days is the "liquidity ratio"—the ratio of quickly convertible assets to debt.

The importance of this was suddenly driven home to many businesses and individuals in the past year. They had "call" loans—loans with no fixed date. But subject to repayment at the discretion of the lender. Many of these loans were called for payment. But the calls created no real problem. The lender merely arranged to refinance them, but at interest rates of 8 percent to 10 percent, rather than the 6 percent to 7 percent the borrowers had been paid.

The question being asked now: What will happen if the supply of credit continues to tighten and the interest rate structure takes another upward turn?

The obvious answer is that still more projects of both business and government, especially those planned by municipalities, will have to be postponed or even abandoned.

But this is only part of the picture. The renewal, extension of loans, may well emerge as the real problem. Lending institutions, banks and others, are hard pressed for funds today. Some may find it necessary to insist on a partial curtailment in refinancing and extending loans, as well as a higher interest rate.

And that's where over-extended borrowers, business and individual, will be looking straight into the rollers of the wringer.

Law-And-Order Mayor Keeping Crime Rate Down

By PHILIP G. REED JR.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Mayor Charles S. Stenvig of Minneapolis was swept into office four months ago on a wave of white, working class support by promising to "take the handcuffs off police." He is keeping his word.

"That's what the people of Minneapolis elected me for and that's what they're going to get," he said in an interview with UPI.

In fact, they are already getting it. Top police officials say arrests have shot up sharply since Stenvig took office.

At the same time, the city's crime rate, which had jumped 1 per cent in the first six months of 1969 over the same period in 1968, has dropped 5 per cent since July.

More important, Deputy Chief Eugene Wilson said, is the drop in street crimes:

"The mayor said he would make the streets safer and he has. That kind of crime has gone down more sharply than any other. People are safer on the streets now than they were, both statistically and actually."

Stenvig, a silver-haired, 41-year-old former burglary detective, is the first third-party candidate in more than a quarter century to become mayor of this city of nearly half a million.

With a campaign based on the "law and order" issue and backed by an army of volunteers, Stenvig drew 62 per cent of the vote against a richly funded, professionally managed Republican city councilman last June.

Due Canal Not First On Its Site

CAIRO (UPI)—The Due Canal is 100 years old this year, but it was not the first canal on the site.

Two thousand years before Christ, according to some ancient accounts, the Pharaoh Sesostris first linked the Mediterranean and Red Seas, constructing a canal from a tributary on the Nile Delta to the Gulf of Suez.

The Greek historian Herodotus, however, said the Pharaoh Necho, who reigned seven centuries before Christ, actually was the father of the first canal. More than 120,000 slaves died in constructing the channel "four days journey in length, and wide enough for two armies abreast," Herodotus wrote.

Necho apparently never quite finished the construction, which was left to the early Ptolemies. In following years conquerors and rulers neglected and then restored the waterway. Cleopatra, fleeing after the Battle of Actium, found the canal unusable for her fleet.

The Emperor Trajan revived it. But under the Christians it again fell into disuse. The Arab invaders of the seventh century A.D. again restored the canal, but during the eighth century it was filled in.

Napoleon dreamed of cutting a new canal across the isthmus but it was another Frenchman, Ferdinand de Lesseps, a sophisticated diplomat, who became its modern creator.

Seven years before he was able to begin work in 1859 and 17 years before the canal was opened, de Lesseps admitted "My venture is still in the clouds, and I don't deny that as I alone think it is possible, it may prove to be impossible."

Britain Opposed
Britain, which, ironically, was to become chief beneficiary and stockholder in the canal, was de Lesseps' biggest adversary. Britain feared such a project, feeling Egypt would fall under French control, jeopardizing Britain's overland route from Europe to India.

De Lesseps, however, had the support of the Egyptian viceroy, Said Pasha, whom he exhorted: "The names of those Egyptian sovereigns who built the pyramids, those monuments to human pride, are forgotten. The name of the prince who opens the great maritime canal will be blessed from century to century until the end of time." The huge financial support given to the canal by Said and his successor, Ismail, eventually was to plunge Egypt into bankruptcy and foreign domination.

The Assyrian Empire was established in the 9th Century B.C.

Revision and the Man
The effectiveness of Stenvig's crackdown is due, in part, to a full-scale revision of police procedures ordered by the new mayor. But only in part.

More important, Deputy Police Chief Gordon Johnson said, is the new backing police are getting from department higher-ups and from Stenvig himself as they patrol the streets and back alleys.

"They've begun to feel they can do their job," Johnson said. "If guys figure you're with 'em, they're going to do a better job. And they're doing a fabulous job."

Sitting in his spacious office on the main floor of the fortress-like Minneapolis City Hall, Stenvig agreed.

"I think it's working beautifully," he said.

He is confident, moreover, that his formula can work in other cities.

"It's going to take public officials with backbone instead of weak spines, to let the police do the job they were hired to do and that's enforcing the law for everyone," he said.

Stenvig's victory touched off a wave of apprehension in the city's liberal establishment.

"There were a great many predictions of dire consequences," Dr. Hyman Berman, head of the social science department at the University of Minnesota, said.

But so far, the predictions have not materialized. In Computer Models May Help Trains

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—"Computer models" of passenger railway systems developed by a Stanford University doctoral student in civil engineering could be of substantial help in improving commuter train operations.

The models of Dietrich R. Bermann of Monroe, Mich., contained in his Ph.D. dissertation, give mathematical representations of the physical elements and scheduling involved in running a passenger railroad.

By varying certain items in the computer models, the overall effect on the system's performance can be determined.

power, Stenvig does not act quite like the tough-talking candidate who stumped the wards in a vintage 1940 sound truck and eagerly pressed the flesh on street corners and at factory gates.

"There's been no lessening of his rhetoric," Berman said.

"But I think his bark has proved worse than his bite."

Even some of the city's black leaders agree. "He's really not as bad as some of the things that were said about him," Harry E. Davis, the head of the prestigious Minneapolis Urban Coalition, said.

Strategist at Work

When a band of black militants and white sympathizers seized the university's administration building last winter, Stenvig called for a grand jury investigation.

But when the trial of three black leaders of the takeover began in October, Stenvig did nothing to stop 700 students who massed outside city hall and chanted for officials to drop the charges. In fact, he gave them a permit and police escort. When 10,000 antiwar protesters walked from the campus to the federal building during the Oct. 15 Vietnam Moratorium, Stenvig assigned a special police squad to trap out every detail of the march.

Fluoridation Aids Elderly

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fluoridation is as beneficial to the elderly as it is to the young children whose teeth it strengthens, according to the Nutrition Foundation.

The Foundation says older people who have had enough fluoride in their systems throughout their lives are less likely to suffer from fractured hips and other disabling bone conditions that plague many of the elderly.

"It is becoming evident that their bones are stronger and do not break easily," the Foundation says.

Fluoride is present in trace amounts in practically all soils, water supplies, plants and animals and some of it is in everyone's diet. In areas where there is not enough natural fluoride in the soil where food is grown, or in the water, to supply what authorities consider a necessary amount, it has been added to water supplies — one part per million.

Liberals in both major parties are still skeptical of Stenvig's tough stand on law and order, however.

They are critical of police handling of two nights of racial disturbance in the city's heavily Negro Near North Side in mid-August. They say they are concerned that too heavy a hand by police could provoke, rather than deter, future outbreaks.

Former Democratic Mayor Arthur Naftalin, a noted urbanologist now teaching at Minnesota, said: "In the short run, a policy like that may intimidate people. They may figure, 'Why bother if you're going to get your skull cracked?'"

"But by and by resentment will build up and you'll get an explosion. Where it's been tried elsewhere, that's been the pattern."

At present, Stenvig seems almost a sure bet to win a second term. Organized labor, which put its muscle and money behind Stenvig's Republican challenger in June, already has moved over into the mayor's camp.

Labor leaders, moreover, are determined to recapture the city's Democratic Farmer Labor Party machinery, which fell into the hands of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's youthful supporters in 1968. If they do, Stenvig is virtually certain to win the party's nomination whether he seeks it or not. "I can't say it's been fun," Stenvig said as he put his signature to a stack of mimeographed letters. "One thing I don't like about it is all the paper work. But a guy wouldn't be in his right mind if he didn't think a job like this was interesting and exciting."

Investment Boom By W. Germans

BONN (UPI)—Private investment abroad by West Germans is starting to boom, but most of the increase is going into other European industrial nations instead of to developing areas.

Investment in Europe tripled during 1968, but investment in developing areas remained at about the previous year's level, according to the Institute of German Industry.

Direct private investment abroad by West Germans in 1968 totaled 1,572,000 marks ($393 million), a jump of 59.3 per cent over 1967.

Tough Anti-Pollution Law Possible

By DUSTON HARVEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Californians may get a chance to pass the nation's toughest anti-pollution law next year.

A band of smog fighters operating on a financial shoestring is quietly circulating petitions in 22 counties which would put a proposed constitutional amendment and "clean environment act" on the 1970 ballot.

If they gain the necessary half million valid signatures, the petitions would put before the electorate a law giving industry five years and automakers two years to nearly eliminate air, water and land pollution.

"I think just breathing this filth makes me an expert," said Edwin Koupal, 42, a former car salesman who heads the statewide campaign from a Hollywood office.

"Our smog agencies and our legislature have failed to do the job," said Peter B. Venuto, a San Jose College professor and San Francisco Bay Area Coordinator. "When democracy for the people fails, we have to have democracy by the people."

The anti-pollution forces are using the state's initiative procedure, which allows the voters to bypass the legislature and governor in enacting laws. In recent years, initiatives against open housing and pornography made the ballot but were defeated in the courts and by the voters respectively.

Power to the People People's Lobby, Inc., has until Nov. 26 to collect the signatures of 520,276 registered voters for the constitutional amendment and 325,178 valid signatures for the proposed law. The group can add more names during the following 45 days and still qualify.

"It's going very well," Koupal's wife, Joyce, said. "we're in a beautiful position." But she declined to give exact figures, except to say petitions with "space for one billion signatures had been distributed and 90,000 persons had signed in her area—Los Angeles and Orange Counties. Mrs. Koupal declined to divulge the totals for the other 20 counties, and local petition coordinators referred inquiries to the state office.

The spirit and approach of the anti-pollution forces are set forth in their proposed addition to the California constitution:

"Section 1a. All persons have the inalienable right to live in an environment free of pollution and contamination. Conversely, no one has the right to pollute the air, land and water of this state.

"The people find and declare that the condition of the environment at the time of the enactment of this section is intolerable and deadly.

"The primary responsibility for eliminating environmental pollution rests upon the manufacturers of pollution-producing products and industries which cause pollution in their activities.

"The burden of pollution control shall not be placed upon the individual citizen by exorbitant profiteering, excessive taxes or otherwise."

The proposed law spells out specific standards for industry and automobiles, and sets tough penalties for violators.

Industrial firms would be required to prepare within six months a public statement on all pollutant emitted into water, land or air. They would have one year to reduce them by 50 per cent, two years to cut them 80 per cent, three years by 90, four by 95, and five years by 99 per cent.

Standards Enforced Anyone failing to meet the standards would be guilty of a felony and liable for civil penalties of up to $1,000 for each resident of the polluted county.

The act prohibits the registration, licensing or driving of any new or used petroleum-powered car after Jan. 1, 1972, unless it meets strict exhaust, crankcase and evaporative emission standards. The limits, which become even tighter for the 1974 and 1976 model years, are listed by specific compounds and the law prescribes methods for testing quantities.

Another section forbids the manufacture, sale or purchase after Jan. 1, 1972, of any fuel containing lead additives.

INFLATION GOES ON — Chart shows the Labor Department's consumer price index hitting 129.8 in the figures released Friday, continuing the nation's sharpest inflation in some 20 years. Specialists For The Adolescent

By LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The medical profession has long had one kind of specialist (pediatrician) to care for infants and another (geriatrician) to care for the elderly.

Now it is recognizing the special health needs of a third age group—young people from 12 to 20.

What specialists in adolescent medicine will be called is still an unsettled question. "Juvenician" sounds ridiculous, but it makes as much sense as pediatrician or geriatrician.

Adolescent medicine now has its own professional society (called, appropriately enough, "The Society for Adolescent Medicine") and a weekly professional newsletter, also appropriately entitled "Adolescent Medicine."

Newsletter editor Milton Golin estimates there are 30,000 doctors in the United States "with a special interest in treating teen-agers."

At present, Golin told UPI in an interview, relatively few of them devote full time to an adolescent practice. Most of them are general practitioners or internists who have learned that teen-agers have unique health problems, and that they need "patient, tactful and sympathetic treatment."

Golin said many teen-agers balk at seeing a pediatrician, whom they regard as a baby doctor. They also are leery of the family physician because they fear he'll tell all to their parents.

"The typical teen-ager wants a doctor of his own—one who will treat him as a patient in his own right," Golin said. "That's why he'll frequently turn to a stranger in preference to the family doctor he's known all of his life."

In more than 100 U.S. communities, the teen-ager's desire for a doctor of his own is being met through adolescent clinics. The first such clinic was founded in Boston 18 years ago by Dr. Roswell P. Gallagher, who is generally recognized as the father of adolescent medicine. Similar clinics can now be found in most major metropolitan centers, and many medium sized cities.

The adolescent clinic at Los Angeles Children's Hospital has pioneered a new kind of service which seems to have particular appeal to teen-agers, Golin said. Doctors are available at all hours of the day and night for consultation by telephone. This enables apprehensive teen-agers to obtain reliable professional advice in emergencies while maintaining anonymity. The Los Angeles "hotline" service handled more than 7,000 calls from teen-agers last year.

A survey for the National Center for Health Statistics shows that 30 million adolescents visited doctors last year for treatment of what the medical profession calls "special conditions without sickness." This category includes obesity and pregnancy.

Household Odor Can Be Limited

NEW YORK (UPI)—Your home may have the very latest systems to control heating, cooling, humidification and aircleaning at the push of a button, so that your indoor air is as warm, cool, dry and clean as you want it.

But how does it smell?

Control of household odors is increasingly recognized as an important dimension of total home comfort. When odors linger and accumulate they create a stuffy, oppressive atmosphere.

Consumer surveys indicate a strong interest in devices that will rid the house of cooking, smoking or bathroom odors and substitute a "Fresh and clean" smell. Housewives mention as particularly objectionable the smell of cooking cabbage or shrimp, burnt meat, stale tobacco smoke, chemicals and insecticides, paint, diapers, medicine and perspiration.

Through the years relief has been provided by such innovations as perfume, incense, open windows or kitchen and bathroom ventilators.

VIETNAM

The President of the United States is committed to lead this great Nation out of Vietnam in a manner that will insure a just and lasting peace.

Look at the events in our Nation's history that made us the greatest Nation in the world. They have a common theme—UNITY.

The North Vietnamese are trying to divide us, in an effort to weaken the President's negotiating position.

If we leave the North Vietnamese with the impression that we are divided, it will—

- lengthen the war
- increase American losses
- result in a weak peace that could lead to later, larger wars
- encourage future harassment by other nations

We call on millions of Americans to join us in letting the world know that we stand squarely beside our elected President in his efforts to secure a just and lasting peace.

The Hiltons' Enjoyed Malaysian Stay

By BETTY CASEY

David Everett, three, and his sister Sarah Ann, one and a half, whose parents are the Rev. and Mrs. David L. Hilton, were born in Malaysia but they are Americans now living in Greenville. Their father has been associate minister at St. James United Methodist Church since June.

The year before coming here, he spent a furlough leave for study at Duke Divinity School. For four years previous to that, Hilton was a missionary assigned to Kuantan, Malaysia, on the East Coast of the Malay peninsula.

The family enjoyed their stay in Asia and would seriously consider returning. "David had many jobs in Malaysia," said his tall slender wife, Mary Lois. "I guess you could call him a circuit rider."

Hilton served as pastor and school administrator in Kuantan and as Church District Superintendent over an area of 150 miles. Mrs. Hilton did part-time teaching at a Methodist girls school as well as at co-ed schools in the coastal city of 35,000.

The Hiltons' ranch style brick-covered stucco home in Kuantan had modern plumbing and was quite comfortable but the garden had some out-of-the-ordinary features—some lovely, some dangerous. Beautiful exotic plants, vanda and butterfly orchids and fragrant pure white night blooming cereus and a rubber tree with great seeds that popped on the tile roof grew in their yard, but they had to continually be on the look out for deadly cobras that also like the lush greenery.

"The children," said the mother, "could not stay outside alone. Someone had to be on the lookout continually." She feels more relaxed when they play outside in Greenville.

Change Of Seasons
"I missed the change of seasons while there," Mrs. Hilton admitted, "and we are especially enjoying the riotous colors of autumn leaves here this fall." The climate on the Malay peninsula is marked by year-round high temperatures from 71 degrees to 90 degrees and copious rainfall averaging 100 inches yearly on the plain and 200 inches in the hills.

High humidity creates a continuous battle against mildew and mold but readily available domestic help assists with household tasks. Small harmless lizards called "chee chaks" lived inside the house and performed a service by eating mosquitoes. Other inhabitants, not so accommodating, were centiped.

The Wesley Methodist church for which Hilton was pastor had about 135 adult members of Malay, Chinese and Timil (Indian) backgrounds. "They were," explained the minister, "in an exciting transition period from foreign to local leadership." Parts of the church services were conducted separately in three languages, under a team-ministry set-up with different leaders. One service was in English. Other parts of the service, such as the singing, was done in unison, with each person singing in his own language.

Youth groups in the church numbering about 200 were very active. Their youth fellowship engaged in study and work camps as well as recreation. "Square dancing," Hilton said, "was a favorite pastime along with local folk dances such as the candle dance and Malay and Indian posturing dances." The young people especially enjoyed American favorites "Red River Valley" and "Put-Your-Little-Foot". They also had their own band.

The missionary performed many marriage ceremonies. He had an interesting experience when asked to assist by preaching a sermon for the first wedding ceremony held in a new Indian Tamil Protestant church. The marriage had been arranged by the parents and the church was full, "but," said Hilton, "I had a strange feeling, preaching a sermon at a wedding."

Interesting Custom
The engagement ceremony is another interesting custom. They are usually social gatherings held in the home of the intended bride marked by a little religious ceremony—"sort of a watered-down wedding procedure."

Hilton felt the need for more co-operative ecumenical activities between five percent who were Protestant believers and the predominately Muslim followers among the nine million Malays. Study groups meeting in homes to discuss each others traditions and beliefs, he believes, resulted in better understanding and a beneficial pooling of resources. He feels this could serve as a reconciling force to settle unrest in the society. His insight in this respect was broadened by trips made with an Islamic scholar to mosques in the area.

Hilton's research paper, prepared in connection with work he is doing toward a Master of Theology degree from ECU, is on Christian-Muslim relations in Malaysia.

"There's something exciting," he said, "about a new nation being established." Malaysia has gained its independence within the last 10 years. The minister found a flexibility in the church and an eagerness to adventure and try new things. He liked the Malaysian's serious approach toward education and their appreciation of assistance.

Malaysia, whose capital is Kuala Lumpur, is one of the great rubber producers of the world. It is also known for its coconuts, pineapple, tapioca and tin mines. One of these mines was located near the seacoast city of Kuantan. Local beach tourist attractions were the huge sea turtles which came in July and August to lay up to 200 eggs each. The eggs, ping-pong ball size with a soft shell, were considered a delicacy so were often stolen, threatening the turtles with extinction.

The Hiltons met in 1959 when both were single missionaries in Kuala Lumpur. At the time he was associate minister for youth in the Wesley Methodist church there and she taught music and Bible in the Methodist school for girls. They were married later in the U.S. and when they returned to Malaysia together in 1964 had already acquired a taste for many unusual foods. Among these were durian (a strongly scented fruit), mangoes, rambutan (bright red with black hair on the outside with very sweet meat inside), and mangosteens.

Both handle chop-sticks with ease and enjoy curries, "mee-hoon" dishes (noodles, meat and green vegetables,) birds nest and sharks fin soup, "laksa" (noodle and hot curry sauce with fish, shrimp, pineapple and cucumbers on top) and "nasi-lemak" (rice with tiny dried fish).

Favorite Dinner
A recent Greenville visitor, Miss Suat Lu Toh, who was a neighbor and teacher-friend in Kuantan and is now a biological laboratory research employee in Miami, helped prepare and serve another of the Hiltons' favorite Asian dishes called a "steam boat" dinner. It was served over a charcoal fire in a brass pot with a chimney in the middle.

Boiling chicken broth in the pot was used to cook at the table, thin slices of shrimp, beef, chicken, chicken livers and tiny green onions, cauliflower, swiss chard, and mustard greens, to be fished out with chop-sticks and eaten over rice. It was served with a cucumber and carrot salad and fresh fruit laid out on an attractive "batik" tablecloth made near Kuantan.

"I enjoy some of your Western foods," smiled Miss Toh, "but do not care for your desserts—they are too sweet for my taste." In New York she enjoyed seeing snow, which is unknown in Malaysia and she has "met a lot of friendly people in the United States."

Mrs. Hilton's hospital experiences while in Malaysia were unusual. David Everett was delivered in Kuantan in a large native style government hospital by a British trained, well qualified Indian woman doctor dressed in a sari. The maternity ward was in an old building with a cement floor, open wooden walls, and no ceiling. Birds nested in the rafters over the bed and dogs and cats wandered through the room at will.

There was only a small nursing staff, so the mothers bathed and cared for their own babies who stayed in the room with them during the day.

"It was quite an experience," said Mrs. Hilton. Little David was the only Caucasian baby in the hospital—and the biggest. He weighed eight pounds, 10 ounces as compared to the five and six pound Malaysian babies. "He was also the loudest," admitted the mother. "He got lots of attention and the nurses did all they could for us."

The couple had a hard time deciding whether Mrs. Hilton should stay at the local hospital for the delivery, or go to a Kuala Lumpur hospital or to the modern Seventh Day Adventist hospital in Singapore, on an island just off the tip of the peninsula. Going to either distant hospital would have involved a month long stay before the baby was born, so they decided she should stay in Kuantan for his birth.

Due to an Rh factor problem requiring laboratory facilities not available locally, it was decided that Sarah Ann be welcomed in Singapore. The day before mother and baby were to go home from the hospital, the father had emergency surgery for acute appendicitis and was put in the same room with the mother. "I," she laughed, "ended up nursing him."

"There were times of real loneliness," confessed both of the Hiltons, "while we were in Malaysia."

"I missed sharing the children with their grandparents and other relatives," said Mrs. Hilton. Mr. Hilton, the only western Methodist minister within 150 miles, sometimes felt far removed from colleagues with the same background.

Nevertheless, both feel the experience was rewarding and worthwhile and who knows—they just might be packing their bags to return there some day?

Zsa Zsa Tells Some Secrets

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

This year, Zsa Zsa Gabor is giving away secrets—not each and every one she has, but important ones, she says. In addition to marketing the creams for face and body that she claims account for her youthful, lovely skin, she is writing a book that "tells everything about a man"—how to catch him, keep him and if necessary get rid of him.

"That's what I'm doing now for women," Zsa Zsa, five-times married, said at lunch the other day, where it was established that she eats "mainly chicken and fish." Steak may cause one to age, she confides. "A woman can't be beautiful either, if she smokes or drinks. And if she doesn't know how to relax, she will look frustrated," she says, sipping a tall "spritzer," a drink made of white wine and soda.

Zsa Zsa's creamy, gardenia-like complexion is pale and unlined, a selling point that hasn't escaped her business acumen. Nowadays frequently she can be found behind cosmetics counters in small towns and cities, introducing ladies to her products.

Ladies crowd the counters to be told that cosmetics are important. "But they also must eat well, sleep well, relax and exercise, if they are to be beautiful. . . . and love darling, that counts, too," Zsa Zsa reminds them.

Potential customers fire questions at her and her replies are typically Zsa Zsa. When one woman asked "When should you get married?", she answered without hesitating, "When you are asked, of course."

In six-weeks, the advance six-months supply of the hundred-or-so products in the line has been exhausted. Women have been reordering before the initial distribution is complete, she says, "and what am I going to do darling?"

If she were to put her finger on the real secret ingredient of her formula-Z cream, she confides, it would be the chamomile. The herb long has been used by Europeans as a medicinal tea. Zsa Zsa imports it from Hungary. "Chamomile is one of the most healthful herbs in the world. In Europe, it is used as a tonic for the nerves, and for colds and all sorts of ills," she says.

By ROBERT METCALFE
LONDON (WNS)—She is a public megaphone for a million perplexed British housewives and frustrated householders. And for manufacturers she has an Orwellian message: Big Sister is watching you.

Big Sister is Jennifer Jenkins, a tall, blonde, blue-eyed and youthful looking woman of 47—all elegance and coolness, charm, energy and intelligence—who chairs Britain's 12-year-old Consumers' Association of 400,000 housewife members.

The Association is frequently in dutch with government and industry through its publication Which?, a magazine of the consumer-at-large that publishes candid reports on the Association's watchdog studies and surveys on everything from trying pans to contraceptives. Mrs. Jenkins is also "Downing Street's second lady," living next door to the Wilsons at No. 11, the traditional home of Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer (husband Roy imposed the austerity measures now lifting Britain slowly out of the red).

Busybodies?
But that's incidental — her married-in influence and power make her job no easier: "Government departments," she says, "have not been frightfully cooperative in letting us have information from work they have done in their laboratories." In fact that government tends to think of her group as busybodies. She has been called "general of the busybody army," "the housewife's friend" and "a person obsessed with doing good."

Criticism doesn't bother her. What does bother her shoddy products:

"It has always seemed to me to be pointless to produce something that is not as good as it could be for the price." And she's out to help people shop for the best.

"We enable people to choose, say, a refrigerator from a dozen or so brands. Indirectly, we raise the standards of manufacturers—and that is good for the people of this country and good for our export business."

"A lot of manufacturers don't like it. They feel they know what they are doing and what the heck are we amateurs doing criticizing." The "amateurs" have sometimes been strikingly successful. Recently, after three years of non-stop nagging, the Consumers' Association forced the government to pass regulations against the use of lead paint in toys.

Libel

But more often the Association notices changes and modifications are made later—particularly to cars—without recognition. Proudly independent, the Association is financed by members "Motoring Which?", a quarterly, buys its own test cars and has its own test site). Libel is a constant hazard: two actions have been settled, another is on its way to court.

But the consumer fight for first-rate products goes on—and it's in good hands.

Jennifer Jenkins, a graduate of the Sorbonne in Paris and Cambridge (history) has been a parttime teacher, juvenile court magistrate, personnel officer for an aircraft firm, lecturer, and served on the managing board of two primary schools and on training and employment plans for the Ministry of Labor.

Her father was Sir Parker Morris, a former Westminster Town Clerk. In 1943 she married Roy Jenkins of South Wales, an Oxford first-class honors graduate in philosophy, politics and economics. Being a political wife is "just the same as anything else. Some husbands find a wife who's totally uninterested in politics as an antidote. It's not true in my case—it might be better if it were."

Their elder son, Charles, 19, is at Oxford; Cynthia, 17, and Edward, 14, are in public school.

'Too Much Talking'
Mrs. Jenkins, committed to the Labor Party since she was 18, might have been a politician, but. . . "It seems to me to be too much talking and not enough doing." Her admiring male colleagues say she is "lucid, decisive and cooperative" while she calls herself "a terribly impatient creature—I hate queues."

She says men in shops will "take the first thing put under their nose." Housewives are "to afraid to complain. I can be like that myself — afraid to ask too many questions in a shop, afraid to be thought of as carping too much."

But carp she will. Obsessions at the moment include a campaign for better services and repairs (trains, telephones, plumbing, electrical and mechanical), an international clothes-labeling system, consumer advisory centers throughout the country, more car-safety regulations.

It might take time and nettle a few people, but Jennifer Jenkins' army of housewives will doubtless have their way.

She's Like British Ralph Nader

She Is Becoming Gayest Member Of Royal Family

By MARGARET SAVILLE LONDON (UPI) — Princess Anne, Queen Elizabeth's 19-year-old daughter, is making all the fashionable London entertainment scenes these nights.

She is fast becoming the gayest member of the Royal Family since her aunt, Princess Margaret, first ventured into London's public spots 20 years ago.

But not for her are the strict parental conditions or limited rounds of a few top hotel restaurants and clubs that Princess Margaret had.

Princess Anne goes to the "in" places, jostling in the crowds at Annabel's, a smart Mayfair discotheque, Raffles on Chelsea's King's Road, the Valbonne on the fringes of Soho that has go-go girls dancing beside a swimming pool, and the River Club, with a discotheque done up like a warehouse that overlooks the Thames.

A friend has only to praise some new discotheque and princess Anne promptly wants to go. She's on the go until 2 a.m., dances cheek to cheek when she feels like it, and demands her favorite numbers, currently "Office in a White," Frank Sinatra's "Love Been Good to Me," and Beatle George Harrison's "Something."

Entitled to Fun

Princess Margaret was allowed out only twice a week. Princess Anne goes as often as her official duties permit. The Queen insists only that her daughter get enough sleep. She considers since Princess Anne has done very well since she started tackling public engagements in the spring, she is entitled to her recreations.

Prince Philip, her father, has remarked to a friend, "well, we can't lock her up at night and we certainly don't want to."

Whereas Princess Margaret traveled in a chauffeur-driven limousine from the palace to join parties of six or eight, Princess Anne prefers to drive her own Rover sedan with her escort as passenger. She sometimes makes up a foursome but is more often out just as a twosome.

Princess Margaret made a point of never being seen out after dark with the same young men more than twice running. She thought that would quell any gossip. Today's Princess has a different technique. She likes to go around with the same escort for a time, then move on to another, without any quarrel involved. "That foxes them," she said.

At present the favored partner is Sandy Harper, 21, whose father, Col. Alec Harper, plays polo with Prince Philip. Sandy is also an excellent rider and takes Princess Anne to horse shows as well as night clubs. Princess Anne herself has competed in a series of horse shows this year, doing very well for a novice in the three-phase horse trials that involve dressage, cross-country riding and show jumping.

Previous Date Kiddled

Her previous escort was David Penn, also 21, who has known the Princess all his life and is one of the "boys next door" to her. His father, Lt. Col. Eric Penn, is an extra equestrian to the Queen with an apartment in St. James' Palace, close to Buckingham

BRITAIN'S PRINCESS ANNE . . . shown in an official 1969 portrait, has cast off the traditional royal reserve to break into the London nightclub scene. She is an habitue of all the latest "in" discotheques in London, sometimes buys her clothes off the hook in department stores, and seems to be enjoying the role of a 20th century 19-year-old princess. Palace. The Princess teases David about the black bowler hat, rolled umbrella and dark suit he wears for his job in a stockbroker's office. He has often taken her to the theater, including the musical "Hair."

Princess Anne is not an expensive girl to take out. In two and a half hours at one night club, she had two soft drinks.

Twenty years ago, the correct thing for Princess Margaret to wear on her social outings was long evening dress with jewels. Princess Anne sallies forth in a trouser suit, black or navy blue, with a pale silk shirt and some gilt ornaments, her long blonde hair tied back with a ribbon.

She occasionally goes out night clubbing in a white minidress, cut on severe untrimmed lines. She goes around the department stores buying her clothes off the rack, even for public engagements, rather than using the traditional royal couturiers.

On The Young Side

By JANE JACKSON

With only three more days before Thanksgiving holidays, students at Rose High School anticipate the four day holiday.

Student Government Association claims 98 members from the 1500-member student body. These members, elected earlier this year have drawn up a charter for more student harmony. Senior Charles Adams headed this committee. The charter for Student Committee, now called SGA, amends the old Student Council constitution.

SGA will present student grievances to the Executive Council. Goals of the organization are to unite the student body and work for better race relations, to bridge the student's communication gap, and to better the school in all possible ways.

This charter will become ineffective at the school year's end as the administration feels it will not be needed after this year.

New Committee

The 98 members composing the SGA carry the responsibility of seeing that all homerooms are aware of its activities. President Eric Vernon will preside at all meetings; in his absence Ted Gray, vice-president, will replace him. Senior Charles Adams was appointed by the Executive Council to be parliamentarian and to see that meetings are kept orderly.

Eric has the right to appoint committees to head various projects. Meetings will take place once a week until further notice.

Grievances, bearing several signatures, must be submitted to the president before meetings so that a motion can be voted on by members.

According to the charter, police protection will gradually be phased out.

A rumor committee, headed by Herbert Gardner, is designed for students to approach the committees about rumors they hear to see if they are true.

Inductees for the Tuill and Scroll will be chosen Tuesday. Members will go from class to class and tap the inductees. Six students will be chosen.

Upon the return of the students from Thanksgiving holidays, they will be greeted by the completed new classrooms. Administrative offices, biology, math, and journalism classrooms will be included in the new building.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Saturday Afternoon

RALEIGH — Hayes Barton Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Miss Doris Ellen Newton and Baron Guy Hignite on Saturday fellowship of the church given by the bride's parents. The bride and bridegroom attended East Carolina University. The bride is a student at Craven County Hospital, New Bern, and the bridegroom is employed by WBBS Radio Station, Jacksonville. The couple will reside in Maysville.

at 4:00 p.m. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Franklin Newton of Rt. 6, Raleigh, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Estil Hignite of Greenville.

Dr. T.L. Caswell Jr. officiated at the ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Thomas Greene, organist, and Mrs. Donald Moody, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown designed with a high neckline and long fitted sleeves. The bodice and sleeves were adorned with seed pearls. She wore a bouffant veil attached to a headpiece adorned with seed pearls.

Mrs. Ben Franklin of Greenville was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Beth Ann Hignite of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Daniel Ray, aunt of the bridegroom, and Miss Margaret Sledd, both of Raleigh. Miss Dianne Daniel of Asheboro and Miss Sandra Lyon of Creedmoor, both cousins of the bride.

Ushers were Ronald Hignite, Darrel Hignite and Randy Hignite, brothers of the bridegroom, all of Greenville, Marvin McCombs III of Statesville and Daniel Ray of Raleigh, uncle of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the

MRS. BARON GUY HIGNITE

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My problem is a young neighbor I'll call Mary. She's a very polite and quiet thing, but not too bright. Mary says I remind her of the mother she "never knew" because she was orphaned as a small child. She is expecting a baby, and I feel sorry for her, so I make her welcome and try to be good company for her, but I keep wishing she would go home so I could get my work done.

There are other neighbors all around us, most of whom are nearer to Mary's age, but Mary comes only to me. Is there some nice way I can tell her not to come so often and stay so long?

BUSY HOUSEWIFE
DEAR BUSY: Probably not. Be glad that you are the one who is able to bring comfort to one who so desperately needs it. There are worse things in life than being kept from one's work, you know. Namely, finding yourself neither wanted, needed, or contributing to the happiness of another. Continue to extend your kindness, and make Mary welcome. When her baby comes, she won't have so much free time.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for a little more than a year and a problem came up which has me completely baffled.

Last night my husband told me that I had to make a choice between HIM and my girl friend, Abby. Jenny has been my best friend all thru school. She stood up for me at my wedding, and I stood up for her at hers. We are as close as sisters, and I can't see ending our friendship just because my husband doesn't like her.

He refuses to give me any reasons why he doesn't like her. He just says it's a choice between HIM or Jenny!

Knowing that my husband didn't especially care for Jenny, I've never asked him to socialize with Jenny and her husband in the evenings. I see Jenny only during the day time when my husband is at work.

So what is your advice? Don't tell me to try to talk to him. I have, and he walks out of the room.

BAFFLED
DEAR BAFFLED: I don't know how old your husband is, but he has a lot of growing up to do. Tell him that unless he give you a better reason for insisting that you end your friendship with Jenny, you intend to continue the friendship. And if he would terminate your marriage on such flimsy grounds, either he is looking for an excuse to do so, or something is wrong with him.

DEAR ABBY: RE "BROKE, HEARTBROKEN, AND ALOND." Whose military husband has dumped her?

First, she has free access to the legal office of ANY military installation. Altho these attorneys cannot represent clients in civil court, they can certainly give her sound guidance and

Pussycat League Will Use Femininity In Work

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer
Try to say the word Pussycat without smiling. It's practically impossible.

Smiles, softness and femininity are the methods the Pussycat League, the nation's newest feminist organization, plans to use to gain more equal rights for women.

"We Pussycats believe the lamb chop is mightier than the karat chop," purrs attractive statuesque brunette Jeannie Sakol, Miss Sakol, a writer, humorist and New York advertising agency vice president, describes her brainchild as "a feminine movement as opposed to a militant feminist movement."

"We believe in basically the same causes as the militant feminist organizations such as NOW (National Organization for Women) WITCH (Women's International Conspiracy From Hell) and the Women's Liberation movement," she explains. "What we're opposed to are their methods for achieving such desirable objectives as equal pay for women, day-care centers for working mothers, child guidance centers and abortion reform."

She points out that "the abortion scene in my new novel, 'Gumdrop, Gumdrop, Let Down Your Hair' is as horrible as I could make it so that women will realize that abortion must be legalized generally; that they must have a right to determine what happens to their own bodies."

Upset by the militant feminist movement which she fears is taking its toll on masculinity, Jeannie envisioned an organization "which would use our femininity rather than deny it. We will represent the millions of American women who believe that the way to achieve a better society is by working with men, not against them."

"By being sweet, soft, and smelling good and using our attributes to persuade, not force, men to work for women's rights, we'll wind up with more than equal rights."

To officially set up the Pussycat League, Jeannie enlisted the help of Mrs. Sydney Goldberg (Lucianne), blonde, mother of two infant sons and a former Washington lobbyist, and Joan Elbaum, red-haired practicing attorney and graduate of Harvard Law School.

Jeannie, who has lectured on sex at various colleges and whose humorous essays and articles appear regularly in magazines, claims that the research she did for a story on "What Turns a Man On" helped her formulate some of the League's tactics.

"I'll never forget one man saying that when he looked down at the immaculately combed blonde head of his girl while she was polishing his shoes, he was so taken and so impressed that he'd have granted her anything her heart desired."

That's why in the hospitality suite the League is taking in Albany, N.Y. during the next legislative session's hearings on abortion reform, Pussycats will be on hand to shine shoes for harried legislators, sew on buttons and render other feminine assistance.

"In the relaxing atmosphere of the suite, amidst candle light and my home-made meat loaf, we'll discuss abortion reform with the legislators, without yelling or browbeating," says the crusading feminine feminist. League chapters plan to exchange information on other tactics that produce results on other issues via a quarterly newsletter.

"For too long women have neglected the power of enticement," says curvaceous, 30ish Jeannie. "Who says a woman can't be intelligent, productive in business and still retain her femininity? The militants say that if a woman has a brain, she'll throw away her black satin nightgown. I say she'll buy two."

What do Pussycats think about the militant attempts to integrate male-only hangouts?

Jeannie's smile reaches almost to the "I Am A Pussycat" button on the collar of her dress. "Men should have such male-only sanctuaries. Of course, any man who would rather sit on a hard bar stool in a cigar-smoke laden saloon and slap another man's back—rather than be wined and dined by a sexy female who's only too happy to rub his back—deserves the all-male hangout."

But Jeannie emphasizes that being a Pussycat doesn't mean being subservient or groveling or fitting the Plaxboy bunny concept, which she describes as "the joyless pursuit of a woman based on the idea that women are like paper cups, something to use and then throw away."

Pussycats favor the joyful loving pursuit of men—with one catch. "I'll shine your shoes, but you buy me daisies on the way home from work," says

Jeannie. "What the Pussycat League is really striving for is to educate men to understand that what we women want is mutual affection and respect—social, civic and economic." Why hasn't a woman who possesses such obvious admiration for the male sex ever married? "Perhaps I was too much of a romantic," she muses. "Let's say I was always getting divorced, never married. But now that I've had my first novel published (Her two other books "The Inept Seducer and "What About Teen-Age Marriage?" are nonfiction) I've done what I wanted to in my career. Now I can get married."

Noel Coward Visit Confirms Legends

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI)—"The young today act as though they had invented youth."
"Let them keep their illusions."
"Kenneth Tynan would like to see the ultimate love act performed on the stage."
"Let him keep his dreams."
Do you think sex is more permissive these days?
"No, more verbal."
T.S. Eliot says you should have spent more time in the study of ethics.
"Mr. Eliot should have spent more time in the theater."

Only one man talks as though he were writing the dialogue for a Noel Coward play and that, of course, is Noel Coward himself, briefly in London to help arrange a midnight matinee to celebrate his 70th birthday Dec. 16.
Youth's Youth
An hour with Coward—or with Coward urbanely playing Coward—in a Savoy hotel suite above the Thames confirms all the legends that have had other authors and composers choking in envy and disbelief for more than half a century.

The master really did write some of his best plays, "Private Lives," "Hay Fever," "The Vortex," "Brief Encounter," "Blithe Spirit," in anything from three days to a week and scarcely touched a line of them thereafter.
"Hay Fever" was completed, he said, "In one go." Only two lines of "Blithe Spirit," one of the longest running comedies of all time, were changed in production.
One of his most memorable songs, "I'll See You Again" from his operette "Bitter-Sweet," came to him, start to finish, in a traffic jam. He composed "Mad Dogs and Englishmen," a favorite of Sir Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt, during an automobile trip from Hanoi to Saigon when it was a scenic ride and not a front line.

He changed the course of genteel drama when he was 24 with "The Vortex," such strong theater for its times that the official censor, the Lord Chamberlain, tried to ban it. It dealt with nymphomania, drug addiction and the morbid affection for a son for his mother. "The public are asking for filth," sneered Sir Gerald du Maurier. "A dustbin of a play," sniffed the Daily Express.
By present day standards—not a frontal nude in sight—it was tame, but it was as much a dramatic watershed as John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" 30 years later. Critics, as usual, were divided over which aspect of Coward came through best, or worst.

His infuriating versatility produced, over the years, a number of verbal exchanges with his detractors including one famous riposte.
"You act much better than you write," said drama critic Hannen Swaffer.
Shooting for 80
"How odd," murmured Noel. "I'm always saying the same thing about you."
Coward, who lives in Switzerland and Jamaica, said he was in good health and looking forward "to gently and happily becoming 80." He said he liked pop music partly because it helped inspire a love of music in the young, although bad rhymes in lyrics "set my teeth on edge."

His view is that people come to the theater to be entertained, that reform or enlightenment is not its primary purpose and he had no wish to prove how sad life could be to those who already knew it too well.
"I have a slight reforming urge," he said. "But I've kept it down, cunningly, I think."
Coward skipped back and forth over the decades. He said he wrote "Don't Put Your Daughter on the State Mrs. Worthington" less as a warning against a chronically overcrowded profession than "to give myself a jolly good song for a theatrical garden party."
He had his disasters. He was not only booed but spat at after the premiere of "Sirocco" in 1927.
"It must," he said reminiscently, "have had a great effect to make people act that way."
What would he tell actors today?
"Learn your lines and don't bump into other actors."
Writers?
"Write!"

He has total recall. What memory sprang out?—a chance meeting in Venice with Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart when he was the guest of Cole Porter. They went back to the palace Porter was using and the four immortals of musical comedy sang each other's songs until dawn.
"A Magical Night," he said softly.
Where would the third volume of autobiography take him?
"To the grave," said the master.

Buying A Car Strains Family

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—"Buying a new car may put a strain on the family budget but it puts an even greater strain on family relationships."
Paying for the chaser chariot seems almost a minor problem compared with the complicated process of choosing it. Selection of make, model colors, type of upholstery and optional accessories can cause debates between husband and wife that threaten to outlast the Paris peace talks.
We were off to a promising start the other day when we went to visit our friendly neighborhood automobile dealer. For one thing, we undertook the mission sneakily while our daughter was at school so the arguments would be only two-sided.
Then, since I don't drive, I let the family chauffeur make the big decision on what kind of car to get. But since I do ride, I wanted my say on such matters as color, inside and out, and demanded full veto power over my enthusiastic husband's choice of extras.
Once we got the color scheme picked, we got down to the real problem: What little goodies were we going to order to embellish the basic car?
"Okay," said the salesman, jotting down a deceptively low figure, "here's the price for the standard vehicle. Now, let's get down to the nitty gritty accessories. I assume you want wheels," he added brightly.

Then he went through 17 pages of options designed to make our car a thing of beauty and a debt forever. My gadget-happy husband was in favor of all additions, from a refrigerated glove compartment to a remote control color television set, but I was a bit more realistic.
"That electronic gun to shoot coins into toll baskets," I protested. "Do we really need that? And I think we can get along without the coffee percolator that works off the cigarette lighter."
"How often do we buy a car?" demanded my profligate spouse. "You can never tell when an automatic map-folding machine might come in handy."
After we got it all totalled up, it turned out the options were the main purchase, and the car was the accessory.
But I'm not complaining. This automobile is bigger than our last one and to get it into the garage my husband will have to clean out a massive accumulation of junk—a task I haven't been able to talk him into during 15 years of nagging.

Improved Communication
HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—A $9 million communication program has been recommended for the city of Houston by an engineering firm. The program calls for more computers in the police and fire departments, new ultra high frequency radio channels, a new fire alarm building and expansion of 17 fire stations.

Like a good host Coward finally decided to reveal the secret. He leaned forward, the slightly oriental face crinkling in good humor, surely not 70 but only the older brother of the archetypal debonair Englishman he created as a writer and brought to life as an actor in the long-ago twenties.
"My colleague (Richard Brinsley) Sheridan used to sit down at his desk after long thought and say: The play is finished. Now all I have to do is write it."
You mean you have it all in your mind before you start to write? You don't just whip them right off? he was asked.
"Precisely," said the master, making at least one hearer happy. "I'm doing the third volume of my autobiography, past conditional, and there are times when I stare at the blank paper in the typewriter. And then there are times when I write solidly for my allotted time, from 8 a. m. to lunch and I feel like a genius—till I re-read it in the afternoon."

Which mattress would you rather sleep on?

A lot of people don't bother to find out how a mattress is made before they buy it. Yet they're the same people who won't buy a car without looking under the hood.
The same people who read the label to see what's in every can of food they buy.
The very same people who spend about eight hours a day sleeping on a mattress.
To prove there's a difference between mattresses, we took the cover off the side of a Beautyrest. And the covers off the sides of two ordinary mattresses. To show you what to look for. We know because we make both kinds.
Inside, ordinary mattresses have coils that are all wired together. One coil can't move without the others. So when you lie down, they all sag together. Lie down on a soft mattress, like the first one, and your spine will sag, too.
Then there are ordinary mattresses, so "firm" they won't give an inch. They won't give your back the support it needs, either. Lie down on the second mattress, and you'll be sleeping on your hips and shoulders. And your spine will droop in between.
The third mattress is a Beautyrest. On the inside, it's made of separate, individually pocketed coils. So each one is free to react independently to the weight and movement of each and every part of your body.
That way, your back gets its own firm back support. Your hips and shoulders, hip and shoulder support. And your arms and legs and head the special support they need.
The same thing happens when there are two of you sleeping on a Beautyrest. You won't roll together. Because it works for each of you the same way it works for each part of you.
Beautyrest gives every part of your body a good night's sleep.
After all, you use a mattress with your eyes closed. But that doesn't mean you should buy one that way.

Choctaws Are Sounding Off

By WILLIAM L. VAUGHN
PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (UPI)—They were ordered to Oklahoma and some of the Choctaws refused to budge. Their descendants are living in Mississippi today.

"This terse summary from a standard Mississippi history textbook has served for years to write the concluding paragraph to about all white students learned about Choctaw Indians in their states. Ironically, the same textbook that writes of his existence in a single paragraph also has been all a Choctaw student was taught in Mississippi schools.

Now sounds are rising from the Indian reservation near here that echo recent Negro demands for black study courses. And there is a further parallel: in addition to Indian history and culture courses, the Choctaws are pressing for a greater voice in running their own schools—including some say so in the curriculum selection.

So far, the sounds are nonviolent and peaceful but the voices of the younger Indians have been loud enough to find a sympathetic ear among whites. There is growing support among Indian children, at an early age, to the history of their racial origin and cultural traditions.

Accumulating evidence points up for some educators that a stress on the history of the red man might be good medicine for the plaguing problem of disoriented Indian children.

But so far little of this thought has drifted down to the small government reservation that is the focal point for Mississippi's 3,600-3,800 Choctaw and Indian children continue to learn their Mississippi history in a white man's book, where the chief reference to their race is mention of early struggles against and defeats by Europeans who settled the new land.

The result has been that under the government-controlled educational system put into effect in 1918, only 334 Choctaws have graduated from high school, 11 from college and only two from graduate school. "This is rather disappointing when you consider the amount of money spent," said Calvin Isaac, a young Choctaw who wants some changes made.

Isaac, who will become the first member of the Mississippi Choctaw tribe to receive a doctorate, is convinced the answer to the Indian dropout problem (Mississippi has no compulsory education statutes) lies in giving the tribal groups a bigger say in the operation of their schools, starting with teaching of the native Choctaw language in the lower levels. "Otherwise, someone else sitting in an ivory chair somewhere will decide our destiny," Isaac said.

Testing Giant New Box Car

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Southern Pacific Railroad is experimenting with a new giant box car designed to carry 30 automobiles compared with the present capacity of eight to 15.

The new 89-foot long car, named Vert-A-Pac, carries the autos vertically—standing on end, front bumper down, like books in a bookcase. An advantage is that, unlike auto freight cars now in use, it is entirely enclosed, thus reducing damage from weather, vandalism and pilferage.

Athlete Heads Drive To Teach Morality

By JACK V. FOX
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—If anyone can head a drive to teach morality in the California public schools, what better choice than a six-foot-four All America linebacker?

That is the task undertaken by the Rev. Donn Moomaw, 40, who gave up football for the ministry and is now pastor of the Bel Air Presbyterian Church, with Gov. Ronald Reagan as a member of his congregation.

The Rev. Moomaw heads a committee which has drawn up a draft of proposed guidelines for moral instruction in the public schools to be presented to the state board of education in December. He is also a member of the board of education appointed by Gov. Reagan.

Never on Sunday
He has plunged into the job with the same drive he showed at UCLA. He was a first draft choice of the Los Angeles Rams in 1952 but turned them down because he didn't want to play on Sundays. He did play for a season—on Saturdays—with the Canadian Pro Football League.

The handsome, black-haired minister, father of five, also shows the same realism essential to a linebacker and parent.

"We are going to get it from all sides when we introduce these guidelines," he said in an interview. "I have to admit we couldn't reach agreement on a definition of morality. Whose morals?"

"Morality is an individual thing. Perhaps the Golden Rule comes as close as anything. But when you start interjecting religion as a basis of morality you are on delicate grounds."

His view is that religion should not be taught in the public schools but that there is no reason why students should not be taught about religion.

"A study of the history of the United States cannot be complete without an analysis of the part that religion—all faiths—played," he said.

The project undertaken by his committee goes far beyond that area. It is summarized in one section of the proposed guidelines which reads:

"The public schools do have an awesome duty to instill in each child respect for the dignity of every person, to foster in each a high regard for our American heritage and to encourage in each a devotion to the democratic ideal of a free, yet ordered society."

Job Tougher When Precise Moomaw concedes that is a big mouthful of generalities to chew upon and he is ready to talk in specifics.

"Young people today protest—and rightly so—that formal education is not relevant to actual life," he said. "There is more to education than facts. The man who is all content and no spirit is not an educated man."

Moomaw explained that he would welcome, for example, a teacher encouraging a class discussion of the morality of the Vietnam Moratorium—not one devoted to slogans of "get out now" but a study of all the issues involved.

He suggested that a teacher in current events might get into the subject of Angela Davis, the black philosophy professor who recently was fired because she is an admitted Communist, and then reinstated by court order.

A classroom discussion of racism would certainly be appropriate, Moomaw said. He feels that one of the problems of Negroes and other minority groups is that they do not have the right heroes to look up to.

There are heroes in their groups and they should be part of the study curriculum, he said.

As a Regan appointment to the board of education Moomaw was asked whether his project under such auspices might not be subject to instinctive antagonism from liberal elements in the academic world to whom Reagan may be a household word but not an encouraging word.

"There are a lot of things in this draft that the Governor is not going to like," Moomaw said. "There are a lot of things the left wing is not going to like. We can't please everybody. In fact, we probably can't please anybody. But I do know that teachers and young people do want guidance."

The ultimate responsibility for implementation is, of course, going to come down to the individual teachers, he added.

Many Morality Classes
"They are not going to say, all right students, this is the period for the class in morality. They are going to have to introduce it in all sorts of classes.

"The teacher's kindness, the example he sets as a responsible adult, the use of fair standards for evaluating all students, the administration of calm and even-handed discipline, honesty and objectivity in presenting subject matter, the rejection of cheating, are all more eloquent lessons in morality than oral or written exercises on that theme."

The draft report has steered away from opinions on such controversial subjects as pills and marijuana, pre-marital sex, dress codes and draft evasion.

"Not that they are to be evaded but our job was to suggest guidelines for approach and discussion, not to set standards of behavior, Moomaw said.

Does he feel young people are more or less moralistic than they were a few years ago?

"Well, again, it's a question of what is morality?" he answered.

"If you mean the ability to distinguish between right and wrong and to protest about what is wrong, I think they are more moral. If you are comparing their behavior with what was perhaps something of a Victorian code of conduct a few years ago, they are less moral."

Plan Consumer Protection Bills

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The California attorney general's office covers a wide field in consumer-protection laws it says it plans to recommend to the legislature next year. Some examples:

—Travel agencies would be required to place customer airline fees in trust to make sure clients don't get stranded in foreign countries.

—Stores that advertise Spanish-speaking sales persons would have to print contracts in Spanish.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special)—This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1 1/2 pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pang. Revised and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon fats, sausages and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unaltered fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startling successful diet can be obtained by sending $2 to

L.A. Calif. 90016

Money-back guarantee. If after trying the diet you have not lost 7 pounds in the first seven days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days, and 1 1/2 pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth.

Last Minute Pirate Attack Falls Just Short Of Score

Colson In A Crowd

East Carolina University fullback Butch Colson finds himself in a crowd of Southern Mississippi defenders as he tries for yardage in yesterday's game. The Pirate record-setter ran 41 times for 171 yards in the game. Hitting him is Darrell Landry. Others are Dickey Surace (60), Roger Elliott (82) and Doug Rouse (38). Southern Miss won, 14-7. (Reflector Photos by Tommy Forrest)

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For lack of a nail, the shoe was lost; for lack of the shoe, the horse was lost; for lack of a horse, the battle was lost, or so goes the old saying. And for lack of a pass, another battle was lost yesterday afternoon, as East Carolina closed out its worst season in 12 years, bowing 14-7, to Southern Mississippi.

The Pirates knocked on the door twice and failed to score. Once, they lost the ball on a fumble. The other time, after a pass interference call gave them new life at the Southerner's 11, the inability of the Pirate passing attack, and the lack of another time out, cost the game.

The loss closed out the 1969 season with a dismal 2-7 record. The last time a Buc team did worst was in 1957 when they went 1-9.

It also closed out the career of 12 seniors, among them Butch Colson, Billy Wightman, Stu Garrett, George Wheeler, Mike Boaz, and Tommy Bullock. Colson celebrated the finale by setting another school record. He carried the ball 41 times, four more than the old mark of 37 held by Dave Alexander and Billy Wightman, together. He picked up 171 yards.

Wightman added 41 yards in total offense to push him over 1,000 this year. Garrett intercepted a pass, Wheeler had a banner day on defense.

Southern Mississippi did all of its scoring in the first half. The scores came on an eight yard pass from Gary Rayburn to Lionel Fayard in the first period, and a 32-yard pass from Rayburn to Billy Mikel in the second. John Hale kicked both extra points.

The lone Pirate score came in the third period, when Dwight Flanagan pounced on a Colson fumble in the end zone, on a play that started from the one-yard line. Wheeler kicked the PAT. The game was a heartbreaker to lose, especially since the Bucs came so close to winning.

The Bucs got the first break of the game, but promptly returned the favor. Southern Mississippi was backed up against its own goal line by a fine Wightman punt to the four. On the first play, Frank Johnston coughed up the ball and Wheeler pounced on it at the six, and it looked like the Bucs might move onto the scoreboard first.

But, on the next play, Wightman cracked into the line off tackle, and the ball squirted away from him, and this time, Mike Craft recovered for Southern.

It came time for the Southerners to get a break next, as they fumbled a punt, but an interference call against the Bucs gave them the ball on their own 42. Rayburn passed to Wayne Hatcher on the first play, crossing midfield to the Buc 46. Another pass to Hatcher put the ball on the 39. Rayburn was then forced out of the pocket, but he scrambled to the Pirate 21, before being knocked out of bounds. Another flag on the play moved the ball down to the 11. Ed Soberoski pushed it to the eight, and from there, Rayburn found Fayard alone at the two, and he danced into the end zone from there for the score, making it 7-0 after the conversion with 1:42 left in the quarter.

Early in the second period, Southern Miss got the ball back on the Buc 43 after a 52-yard punt had locked the Bucs inside their own 10. Soberoski picked up two yards, and then Rayburn hit Mikel at the 32 for a first down.

Rayburn then unleashed the bomb to Mikel, who fought the ball away from the Pirate defender, and fell into the end zone for the second and deciding Southerner touchdown. That made it 14-0 with 9:52 left in the half.

The Pirates got their lone score on their second possession of the third period. Bullock helped to set this up with a fine punt return to the Pirate 46, and a 15-yard penalty on top of that pushed the ball down to the SM 39. Colson burst through the middle to the 30, then went rambling again, down to the 23. After Wightman picked up a yard, Colson hit for five to the 17. But there the Bucs looked like they would be stopped as Southern dug in to hold, making it fourth and five. But once again, Colson got the blocking he has lacked for so long, but got all day today, and he moved the ball to the eight, setting up the first down.

Colson picked up four on the first down, and then cracked to the one on the next play. Then, on the payoff play, he fumbled and the ball rolled into the end zone, where Flanagan gathered it in for the score. Wheeler booted the extra point, and it was 14-7 with 6:44 to go in the period.

And that was it as far as the scoreboard was concerned.

But the game wasn't over—not by a long shot. The Pirates still fought back, coming so close.

Before they did, however, Southern almost put the game out of reach with its passing attack. Following the Buc touchdown, Southern drove down to the Pirate 25 before a fumble turned the ball back to the Bucs. Then, in the opening minutes of the final period, after Rayburn had pulled Southern Miss out of a deep hole after an 16-yard loss, the visitors again knocked on the door, this time going to the 37 before Billy Wallace intercepted a pass.

More passing moved the ball back into Buc territory, to the 32 before another interception, this one by Garrett turned the ball over for the last fateful drive.

It started at the 29. Colson picked up three, then Flanagan tossed a pass to Fred Harris at the 45. Colson carried to the 50, and then to the 48, before passing to Dick Corrada at the 44 of Southern Mississippi. Losses threw the ball back to the 50, but Wightman hit Harris at the 31 and gave new life. And there it looked like the drive was halted as a fourth down pass fell incomplete.

But a flag was thrown, and Southern was charged with interference and the Bucs had a first down at the 11 with 33 seconds left.

And it was not to be. With no time-outs left, the Bucs tried three passes, and each went incomplete. A final run also fell far short of the first down at the one, and the ball went over with five seconds left.

Coach Clarence Stasavich had much praise for his defensive line and linebackers, and singled out Wheeler and linebacker Billy Wallace for their play. He also praised Colson for his fine day, and noted that the team played hard, especially in the second half. "I'm proud of them," he said.

Michigan Shocks OSU With 24-12 Upset Win

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Wolverines pulled one of the upsets of the decade, stunning No. 1 ranked Ohio State by taking a 12-point half-time lead and holdings on to beat the Buckeyes 24-12 Saturday and clinch a Rose Bowl trip.

The victory in a game which saw all the scoring coming in the first half, snapped Ohio State's winning streak at 22 games and most likely will drop the Bucs from the top spot.

Michigan, meanwhile, captured a share of the Big Ten title with Ohio State and won the Rose Bowl bid without the necessity of a vote by conference athletic directors.

A crowd of 103,588, largest ever to watch a football game in Michigan, saw the Wolverines take a surprising 7-6 first quarter lead on a three-yard touchdown run by fullback Garvie Craw and an extra point kick by Frank Tias. It was the first time this season the Buckeyes had ever trailed.

An inspired Michigan defense continually held powerful Ohio State, forcing the Bucs to punt. It was a stunning 60-yard punt return by Barry Pierson that set up Michigan's third touchdown and gave the Wolves a little breathing room. Pierson ran Mike Sensibaugh's punt to the OSU two and three plays later quarterback Don Moorhead went over from the two.

Ohio State drew first blood, scoring on a one-yard plunge by fullback Jim Otis at 7:22 of the first quarter.

The Buckeyes came back after Craw's first TD, with quarterback Rex Kern firing a 22-yard touchdown pass to Jan White. Stan White's extra point kick was good but the Bucs elected to take a Michigan penalty and try for a two-point conversion. But the hard rushing Michigan defense tackled Kern before he could get a pass off.

Moorhead mixed his plays well, utilizing the running of sophomore tailback Billy Taylor and the fine pass catching of tight end Jim Mandich to full advantage.

Taylor set up Michigan's second touchdown with a 28-yard burst to the OSU five. Two plays later Craw dove over the goal line from the one.

Tim Killian added a 25-yard field goal in the second quarter. The Wolverine defense took over in the second half, successfully stopping the off tackle bursts of Otis and the option running of Kern. Pierson intercepted three passes and Tom Curtis two after OSU got desperate and found it had to take to the air.

Curtis returned a Kern pass 26 yards late in the second quarter to give him 431 yards in 24 interceptions during his three-year career. That passed the old National Collegiate Athletic Association record of 410-yards set by Michigan State's Lynn Chadnois in the '40s.

Ron Macejowski took over for Kern in the fourth quarter but when the Buckeyes appeared headed for a touchdown with two minutes left roverback Tom Darden intercepted a pass on the Michigan 25 to squelch that threat.

Both teams finished the season with 6-1 conference records. OSU ended up 8-1 over-all, while the Wolverines finished 8-2.

Thousands of fans mobbed the artificially surfaced Michigan Stadium after the game, tearing down one of the bright yellow goal posts to the frantic cheering of supporters.

Choruses of "hail to the victors," Michigan's fabled fight song, filled the joyous stadium, with apparently only the dejected Ohio State fans filing out of the stands.

No Where To Go

Sneaky Shoestring Play Garrots Carolina, 17-13

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke used a sneaky play to score a 53-yard third period touchdown and Dave Pugh kicked a 46-yard field goal to give the Blue Devils a 17-13 upset victory over North Carolina Saturday in the final football game of the season for the Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.

A capacity crowd of 44,000 saw Duke alone for a season of frustration by coming from behind after North Carolina took a 7-0 first period lead.

Pugh's last period field goal was the margin as North Carolina scored a touchdown in the closing minutes on a 20-yard pass from Ricky Lanier to Don McCauley.

It was a typical Duke-North Carolina game, loaded with thrills and surprises, the biggest of which came in the third period with Duke on its 47. Quarterback Leo Hart bent over to tie his shoe. As he did, Marcel Courtillet, playing the role of center, pitched the ball to wide end Wes Chesson, who went 53 yards for a touchdown. As Chesson circled left end, the Duke linemen peeled off and blocked perfectly.

Duke Coach Tom Harp used this play in the first game against West Virginia in 1966 and also against Georgia Tech that year. He had not used it since.

North Carolina, which wound up with a 5-5 record, jumped off to a 7-0 lead late in the first period on a 19-yard touchdown pass from Lanier to Bob Schult. Lanier set up the touchdown with a 59-yard run to the Duke 29.

The Blue Devils, led by Bob Zwirko and Hart, tied the score late in the second period on a 6-yard touchdown pass from Hart to Chesson, climaxing an 80-yard drive.

Duke ended the season with a 3-6 record. Zwirko piled up 143 yards in 24 carries while McCauley led North Carolina with 138 yards in 26 carries.

The crowd witnessed an unscheduled halftime demonstration when a group of UNC students rushed over to the Duke side of the field to rescue their ram, which reportedly was kidnapped Friday night. Several students began swinging fists, but police finally broke up the fracas, with UNC getting possession of its mascot.

Early in the second period, Duke moved to the North Carolina eight after driving from the Blue Devil 29. However, the Tar Heels threw the Blue Devils back to the 14 and Pugh attempted a 22-yard field goal which was wide to the left.

Midway in the second quarter Don Hartig attempted a 43-yard North Carolina field goal, but it

Vandy Crushes Davidson, 63-8

By JOHN VAN MOL
Associated Press Sports Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt, sparked by the passing and running of sophomore quarterback Watson Brown, rolled methodically to a 63-8 college football victory Saturday over outmaned Davidson.

Brown, whoran for three touchdowns and passed for another, put the game away early by pacing the Commodores to four touchdowns the first five times they had the ball.

The Vandy defense, meanwhile, thwarted the passing of Davidson quarterback Gordon Slade, who as the game began led the nation in passing accuracy and was fourth in passing yardage.

The triumph pushed Vandy's record to 45 for the season, while Southern Conference champion and Tangerine Bowl-bound Davidson wound up its regular season slate at 7-3.

Brown, who got running help from Doug Matthews and John Valput, set the tempo for the slaughter when he sprinted 44 yards for Vandy's first touchdown with barely two minutes gone in the contest.

The six-foot-one, 183-pounder hit flanker Dave Strong with a four-yard scoring toss and added touchdowns runs of ten and eleven yards before retiring midway through the third quarter.

Davidson, didn't get on the scoreboard until late in the third quarter when Slade passed 12 yards to Mike Kelly for a touchdown and added a two-point conversion pass to George Hannen.

Hannen had set up the score with a sparkling 69-yard kickoff return. Brown hit on 13 of 19 passes for 177 yards and added 119 yards rushing on 14 attempts to wind up with 296 yards total.

Matthews set a Southeastern Conference season kickoff return record when he carried the opening kickoff back 25 yards. The effort brought his season total to 593 yards in 25 returns with one game remaining against ninth-ranked Tennessee. The old mark of 590 was set last year by David Smith of Mississippi State. The defeat was Davidson's worst since 1921 when Georgia Tech smashed the Wildcats 77-0.

Defense Sparks FSU Past Wolfpack, 33-22

By RICH OPPEL
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Splash-dash defensive heroics—including a 92-yard school record punt return touchdown by Phil Abaira—sealed a 33-22 Florida State University victory over North Carolina State Saturday in a regionally televised football game.

Abaira dropped the punt on the FSU eight, but the 225-pound senior grabbed it on a bounce and dashed to the end zone as blockers cleared three tacklers out of his path. Grant Guthrie's extra point made it 30-10 FSU, with 9:36 left in the third quarter.

A quarter before, Seminole defensive tackle Frank Vohun intercepted a Darrell Moody pass on the Wolfpack 22, lumbered to the goal line, flipped over a tackler and fell into the end zone.

Vohun was so delighted with the first touchdown of his FSU career that he refused to give up the ball until officials penalized FSU 15 yards. Guthrie made the extra point despite the penalty with a 35-yard boot.

Vohun's interception was one of three key ones in the game. NC State defensive back Gary Yount pulled in an FSU pass by Bill Cappelman on the Seminole 24 and ran it in for a touchdown. Mike Charron's kick was good, and it tightened up the game at 13-10 FSU as halftime approached.

Vohun's touchdown came next, then NC State substituted sophomore Paul Sharp at quarterback. He lost yardage on two downs before passing into the hands of FSU's Barry Rice at the NC State 37.

Five plays later Guthrie kicked a 31-yard field goal, making the score 23-10. A second Guthrie field goal, from 25 yards out, came with 8:49 left in the game.

Abaira's third quarter touchdown was matched by a 10-yard TD dash by NC State wingback Butch Altman on a pitchout from Sharp. Charron's kick failed.

Gold Tankers Fall To Purple

East Carolina's swimming team held its annual Purple-Gold meet yesterday evening in Mingos Natatorium, with the Purple taking a slim 57-56 victory.

Winning in the meet were: Jim Grefin in the 200 and 500 freestyle; Paul Trevasin in the 50 and 100 freestyle; Wayne Norris in the 200 individual medley and 200 breaststroke; Gary Frederick in the 1,000 freestyle; Bob Baird in one and three-meter diving; Andy Downey in the 200 backstroke; Greg Hanes in the 200 butterfly.

Richards Leads Spiders Past William & Mary

By ED YOUNG
Associated Press Writer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Charlie Richards, warming up to his task in biting cold after an opening period filled with frustration, passed for three touchdowns and scored a fourth Saturday as the Spiders defeated old enemy William and Mary 28-17 in the football finale for each team.

The victory in this 79th renewal of a rivalry dating back to 1896 gave the Spiders a 6-4 season record and a 5-1 Southern Conference mark that tied Davidson for first place in the conference standings. William and Mary wound up 3-7 in its first season under coach Lou Holtz. Richards hit on 20 of 30 passes for 323 yards and generally played like a one-man gang as Richmond dominated Saturday's game after making William and Mary a virtual gift of a 30 first period advantage with a fumble that led to a 36-yard field goal by Jim Daniel.

The Spider quarterback subsequently got off touchdown passes of 21 and 43 yards to flanker Jim Livesay, hit end Walker Gillette with a 35-yard scoring pass, and got into the scoring column himself on a 16-yard run. Furthermore, passes by Richards had put Richmond in position for all but one of its touchdowns.

The Indians trailed 28-3 before finally capitalizing on the heroics of reserve quarterback Bubba Hooker for both their touchdowns in the last six minutes against Richmond substitutes. Hooker ran nine yards for one of the scores and passed 16 yards to end Jim Cavanaugh for the other, then ran for two extra points to complete the W&M scoring with only 14 seconds left in the game.

The first three times Richmond had possession in the opening quarter, the Spiders lost it on mistakes. The first time it was on a W&M interception at the Indian 20, the next two times on fumbles.

Pirate Swimmers Set To Open Friday

Nino Gets KO Of Rodriguez

ROME (AP) — Nino Benvenuti, bleeding freely from a cut over the bridge of his nose, unleashed a savage left hook and knocked out Luis Rodriguez in the 11th round Saturday night to retain his world middleweight championship.

The hook slammed against the right side of Rodriguez' head and dropped the Cuban-born resident of Miami, Fla., flat on his back. It was evident from the moment Rodriguez hit the canvas that he would not beat the opponent.

Until the lightning hook things were going badly for the Italian despite the scream of encouragement from his countrymen in the sold-out Palazzo Dello Sport.

Rodriguez cut Benvenuti over the left eye in the third round and then open a deep cut above the bridge of his nose with a short right hand punch near the end of the sixth round. The champion's trainer, Al Silvani, said the cut was right to the bone and would require seven or eight stitches.

Benvenuti continued to bleed from the cut over his nose his succeeding rounds as Rodriguez began to land with right hands and take the play away from the champion.

Then at exactly the one minute mark, in the 11th round, the Italian crowd and a nation-wide television audience saw Benvenuti avert disaster with his sizzling knockout punch.

Missouri Rolls To 69-21 Win

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Perry McMillan drilled four touchdown passes and scored twice himself Saturday, pacing Missouri's awesome offense to a record-cracking 69-21 victory over injury-weakened Kansas.

The triumph gave the Tigers a tie for the Big Eight football championship and sent them to the Orange Bowl with a 9-1 season record.

Missouri will meet Penn State New Year's night in Miami.

Both Missouri and Nebraska finished 6-1 in the Big Eight.

McMillan teamed with Mel Gray and Jon Staggers to finish his regular season collegiate career in a brilliant display.

Missouri rolled to its highest point total since a 69-0 victory over Drury in 1913 and also piled up the most points in the 78-game series with Kansas. It was the biggest margin of victory by either side in the series and the most points ever scored against Kansas.

The 90 points scored by the two teams was the most in Big Eight history for one game, wiping out the 86 points scored by Kansas and Iowa State in a 53-33 Jayhawk victory in 1951.

Kansas, which had a fatal blow delivered to its defense when linebacker Emery Hicks was lost with a knee injury, suffered its worst defeat since losing 65-0 to Oklahoma in 1954.

The Jayhawks wound up with a 1-8 record.

McMillan passed 19 and 63 yards to Gray and 4 yards to Staggers as Missouri mounted a 21-0 first quarter lead. He also hit Gray on a 26-yard scoring pass in the second quarter, then tossed 6 yards to Staggers in the third period while scoring himself on runs of 16 and 1 yard.

McMillan, who has thrown 13 touchdown passes in his last four games, broke the Big Eight record for career scoring passes with 18 and broke Paul Christman's school record by hitting four in this game.

Second Half Effort Wins

By WILLIAM MORRISSEY Associated Press Sports Writer SYRACUSE, C.N.Y. (AP) — Peach Bowl-bound West Virginia, after being shackled for more than 2½ quarters by Syracuse's rugged defense, broke loose for two touchdowns within two minutes for a 13-10 football victory Saturday.

The Mountaineers scrambling quarterback Mike Sherwood hit wingback Wayne Porter with a three-yard pass for the first of the two scores. Then, after Syracuse was forced to punt, Sherwood broke a tackle, lateraled to fullback Jim Braxton, who survived a tackle, and went into score on the 65-yard play.

Syracuse opened the scoring when George Jakowenko kicked a 47-yard field goal in the first quarter. West Virginia was penalized 15 yards for hitting Greg Allen who signaled for a fair catch on a punt, but the closest Syracuse got to the goal in the series was the 20-yard line.

Al Newton scored the Orange-men's only TD on a one-yard plungeyard drive in 11 plays.

West Virginia mounted two strong drives late in the first half, but fumbles and penalties stopped both.

Phipps Paces Purdue Parade

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Mike Phipps got Purdue's offense moving with a 71-yard touchdown pass to Stan Brown late in the first period Saturday and added three more touchdown tosses as the Boiler-makers beat Indiana 44-21 to take their third place in the Big Ten.

Indiana led 14-0 when Phipps hit Brown for 6 points in his first completion of the day. The senior quarterback went on to break several single-season conference records in his final game, including most touchdowns—passes—(13)—most yards passing and total offense.

The Boiler-makers, whose slim hopes for a Rose Bowl bid died with Michigan's upset of Ohio State, finished with a 5-2 conference mark and were 8-2 for the season. Indiana, losing its third straight game, ended up 3-4 in the conference and 4-6 over-all after dropping the Old Oaken Bucket battle.

Purdue scored 18 points in the second quarter, but Hoosier quarterback Harry Gonso marched his team 56 yards in the final minute of the half and threw a touchdown pass to Jade Butcher, leaving the Hoosiers down by just 24-21 at halftime.

Princeton Spoils Bid

By HERSCHEL NISSENON Associated Press Sports Writer PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton ruined Dartmouth's unbeaten season with three first-half touchdowns and locked the Ivy League football race in a three-way tie with Yale by cruising to an easy 35-7 victory Saturday over the surprisingly inept Big Green.

Coupled with Yale's 7-0 triumph over Harvard, the Ivy season wound up with Dartmouth, Princeton and Yale at 6-1 in a finish reminiscent of the 1966 triple tie among Dartmouth, Princeton, Harvard,

Over-all Dartmouth ended 8-1 and Princeton 6-3. Hank Bjorklund, a sophomore halfback whose father graduated from Dartmouth, led Princeton with three touchdowns on runs of four, five and five yards as the fired-up Tigers completely out-played the Indians.

Dartmouth's high-powered offense was bottled up in its own territory until the final 1½ minutes of the third period and couldn't get on the scoreboard until Chase sneaked over from a yard out at 1:18 of the fourth quarter.

Tennessee Struggles Past Kentucky, 31-26

By ED SHEARER Associated Press Sports Writer LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Ninth-ranked Tennessee cashed in big defensive plays Saturday and gained a share of the Southeastern Conference football lead with a 31-26 victory over stubborn Kentucky.

The Vols, who face Florida in the Gator Bowl Dec. 27, were unable to do much offensively against a fierce Kentucky defense led by end Dick Palmer and tackle David Roller. Tennessee also had to hold off a brilliant second half passing performance by Kentucky's Bernie Scruggs.

Tennessee, now 8-1 for the year and 4-1 in the SEC, moved into a first place tie for the league lead with Louisiana State, which has completed its SEC slate. The Vols can win their second title in three years by whipping Vanderbilt next Saturday.

Bobby Majors, last of the famous Majors brothers to play for Tennessee, bolted 72 yards to score on a punt return the first time the Vols had the ball. Quarterback Bobby Scott scored on a one-yard plunge and hurlled a five-yard pass to Gary Kreis for another. Linebacker Jack Reynolds scored the final Tennessee touchdown with less than three minutes remaining when he recovered Scruggs' fumble in the end zone. The Tennessee defense thus accounted for two touchdowns and set up another on linebacker Jackie Walker's 54-yard interception return to the Wildcat eight.

Scruggs ignited a furious last-half rally by Kentucky which saw the Wildcats pull within four points, 24-20, with six minutes remaining.

Scruggs, who in one spurt completed 11 straight passes, tossed a 48-yard bomb to Steve Parrish and set up another touchdown, scored by Roger Gann on a one-yard plunge. Steve Tingle connected with Gann on a 53-yard scoring play in the first quarter.

Gamecocks Beat Clemson, 27-13

By DEL BOOTH Associated Press Writer COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Peach Bowl-bound South Carolina embellished its Atlantic Coast Conference football title Saturday against arch-rival Clemson with a 27-13 victory built on the throwing of scrambling Tommy Suggs and the running of Warren Muir.

The champions scored the first three times they had the ball, then held off Clemson after the victors staged a second period two-touchdown surge.

Suggs' throws, most going to end Fred Zeigler, and Muir's quick bursts through the line kept South Carolina on the move throughout the game. The diminutive quarterback chalked up one touchdown toss, a 32-yarder to halfback Rudy Holloman.

Sandwiched in among the touchdowns were two field goals by Billy DuPre and a fake fourth down punt that turned into a pass to keep a South Carolina drive alive. Clemson wasn't able to get a first down until the second period, but then threatened to make a match out of it. In that period, halfback Ray Yauger dashed wide left for a yard and a touchdown, then gathered in a pass from quarterback Tommy Kendrick for another score.

A 29-yard run by Suggs and three first down dashes by Muir provided the bulk of the opening drive of 73 yards, Holloman going over from seven yards out. Suggs passed to Zeigler for 39 yards, the key play in the second scoring march that rolled up 68 yards. Muir scored from three yards out.

Clemson held South Carolina the third time, after yielding nearly 60 yards, forcing the Gamecocks to call in DuPre for a 21-yard field goal. DuPre tried a 29-yarder that was wide, then kicked a 22-yarder after Clemson halted a touchdown threat at its five.

The drive for the second field goal covered 64 yards that included the fake punt play. Clemson drew an offside penalty on Bill Parker's first try at a punt, moving the ball to the Clemson 34, fourth and three to go. Parker faked the kick, drew back his arm and lobbed a soft pass to Zeigler at the Clemson 16.

The victory gave South Carolina a 7-3 season record, its best since 1958, and left it 6-0 in the conference. Clemson finished 4-6 overall and 3-3 in the league.

Toughest Slate For Southern Favorites

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's swimming team enters the 1969-70 season next Friday, competing in the Penn State relays, and Coach Ray Scharf says that this year's schedule is the toughest ever for the Pirates.

"We have some of the top teams in the country on our schedule," he said. These include North Carolina State, Florida State, Villanova, Army, Maryland, North Carolina, Southern Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana State.

"Each of these teams will be very difficult for us to beat," he said. "A couple of years ago, when Layne Jorgensen (son of ECU's Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, and a former ECU swimmer) went to LSU as coach, we whipped them pretty handily. But his program now has 12 scholarships, and is slated to get four more for a total of 16 next year, and his teams are going to be very tough from now on."

Scharf admitted that the team looks forward to the Southern Conference swimming meet this year, but that the Bucs are really pointing for the Eastern Collegiate Championships, to be held at Dartmouth College. "We are hopeful that we'll be able to take from one to four men to the nationals this year," he said.

The Pirates, who have never lost a dual meet to conference foes, are overwhelming favorites again this year in the Southern. They have won the loop's championship all four years they have been in the conference. "Last year, we broke 29 team and conference records, and I hope that we can do as well again this year."

Scharf went on to call this the "best team ever put together at East Carolina."

"I feel that our free-style events will be our strongest," the coach said. "We have a real good man in Jim Griffin, who can compete in the 100-, 200-, and 500-yard events. He in the conference and varsity record holder in each of these events. Gary Frederick, our distance specialists, holds the records in the 1,000- and 1,650-yard freestyles." Scharf said that the two probably would not work together at any time.

"We have four men who could be very tough in the sprints (the 50 and 100). These include our only incoming high school All-America, Paul Trevisan, Mark Wilson, Dave Phillips and Bill Powell."

Scharf rates the individual medley as the next strongest event. "We'll have Bill Lafferty and Wayne Norris in these events." The IM has two races, 200 and 400 yarders. "Ken Hungate could also be very tough in these," Scharf said.

"There is pretty tough competition in the butterfly between Lafferty, Greg Hanes, Kevin Tracy and Mike Dolan, and we don't know now who'll be the top man," the coach said.

In the breaststroke, Steve Weissman and Larry Allman will be the top men in the 100, while Allman and Norris take over in the 200.

"Our weakest event will probably be the breaststroke. We have lost two real good men over the past two years in Mike Tomberlain and John Sultin, and they will be hard to replace. Our best men here are Andy Downey, David Brunson and Hungate."

Scharf feels that the relay teams should be quite strong. "On the medley team we'll have Downey with the backstroke, Weissman or Allman with the breaststroke, Hanes with the fly, and Trevisan with the freestyle. On the freestyle, it'll be Frederick, Trevisan, Norris and Griffin."

Field Goal Sparks Terps

By GORDON BEARD Associated Press Sports Writer COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)

Maryland foiled Virginia's play-for-a-tie plans with a fumble recovery and beat the Cavaliers 17-14 Saturday on a 27-yard field goal by Greg Fries with 20 seconds remaining.

Virginia, blanked four times while losing its previous five games, appeared content to run out the clock after gaining ball control on their nine yard line with 1:27 to play.

But on third down, after Maryland called a time out, Virginia quarterback Danny Fasio fumbled and Maryland linebacker Bill Reilly recovered on the Cavaliers' 11.

After two incomplete passes and a one-yard plunge, Fries booted his second field goal of the season and snapped Maryland's four-game losing streak.

The Terps ended the season with a 3-7 record, one victory more than last year and was 3-3 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Virginia, 1-5 in the ACC and 3-7 over-all, pulled even near the end of the third period on a two-yard run by Dave Wyncoop after Fasio completed five passes for 79 yards on the drive. Fasio's two-point conversion, Virginia's first of the season, made it 14-14.

Maryland scored first on a one-yard plunge by fullback Tom Miller following a 54-yard punt return by Larry Marshall in the first period and Marshall's four-yard TD run gave the Terps a 14-6 lead in the third quarter.

Virginia scored two field goals in the first half by Jim Carrington, from 25 and 37 yards out following a pass interception by Bill Lockwood and a fumble recovery by Andy Selfridge.

A personal foul on the kickoff following Fries' field goal gave Virginia a last chance to pull out the victory. But a long pass from Fasio, intended for Bob Bischoff, was intercepted on the Maryland 7 by Tony Greene, with 8 seconds remaining.

Bischoff caught seven passes for 80 yards, including four on the touchdown drive which tied the score 14-14. Carrington caught another for 36 yards to ignite the Cavaliers on a third-and-39 play.

The diving contingent of the Pirate team should also be stronger this year, with the addition of diving coach John Lovstedt. "We have two pretty good men," Lovstedt said, "in Bob Baird and Doug Emerson. Both are making pretty good progress. So far it's only been physical programs, and they should start coming around mentally very shortly."

"Within two weeks, we should be in good shape."

Lovstedt said that Baird is working toward maximum difficulty dives now and should be a real good competitor. Emerson is getting more consistent and is working toward more difficult dives.

"Walter Culbreth and Ron Tobin will also help our program," he said. "Both Doug and Bob could be really good on either the three or one-meter board, but right now, Baird is a little better on the three than Doug."

All in all, it looks like the Pirate tankers are off to another fine start.

Miami Crushes Wake Forest; Worries About Florida Game

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — "Now we have to get our pass defense ready for Reaves and Alvarez."
Miami Coach Charlie Tate was looking ahead. His unpredictable Hurricanes had just crushed Wake Forest 49-7, but Charlie had next week's Florida game on the brain late Friday night.
"We'll try to mix up our defenses and work on Florida's great offense," Tate said. "It's a challenge, but we'll work our tails off to give 'em a fight."
Miami is 4-5 and rumblings of Tate's job being in jeopardy have simmered during the week. Although the chunky sixth-year boss of the 'Canes would like to think one game can't mean so much, he knows that upsetting Florida would help turn back the tide of dissenters.

"We've got to do something with Reaves and Alvarez."
Tate spoke often of Gator quarterback John Reaves, who has 22 touchdown passes, and ace receiver Carlos Alvarez. A million ways to throw a defensive net over the dynamic duo will slip through Charlie's active mind during the next eight days.
"Reaves and Alvarez are the most productive passing combination in the country," he admitted. "Got to stop 'em, got to..."
A Miami television station reported 24 hours before Friday night's beating of Wake Forest that a group of local businessmen wanted to buy up Tate's contract and get rid of the Hurricane field boss.
Tate said he knew nothing about it.
"Our defense was 100 per cent improved," Tate said, reflecting on the easy win over the Demon Deacons. "After our 42-6 licking at Alabama, I was sick. I feel better tonight."

Luck hasn't been with the Hurricanes often in 1969, but the breaks went their way against the hapless Deacs. Ray Bellamy caught a 66-yard touchdown pass that skipped off the hands of two defenders and teammate Dave Kalina. Punter Pat Barrett bobbled a snap and managed to scamper 70 yards to score after the miscue. Halfback pass of the year and it went for a 38-yard TD to Kalina.
"Our second team finally got some action," Tate said. "We played a lot of people when we had 'em beat."

Cal Stoll, the handsome, graying Wake Forest mentor, had finally wound up a season built on frustration.
"Our kids were emotionally bankrupt," he said. "They've sweated, fought, bled and even cried a little to attempt winning more. It just didn't happen."
Wake Forest wound up its season 3-7.
Miami sophomore Kelly Cochran tied a school record of 10 TD passes in a year, set by George Mira in 1962. He was the main cog in a Hurricane machine that ran over the Deacons for 545 yards in total offense.

Cousy Returns To The Court

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Coach Bob Cousy returned to professional basketball as a player Friday night in a performance he felt was far from the style that brought him fame as one of the game's est- ever backcourt men.
The fans loved him.
Cousy, 41, tallied three points as he made his only field goal attempt and lone free throw. He added two assists and two rebounds during a 10-minute stint in the third period of Cincinnati's 133-119 victory over Chicago.
"I think I'm capable of playing a lot better than that," said Cousy who has not played for six years since he helped Boston Celtics to one of many world championships. "I didn't do too bad defensively."

Cousy received a standing ovation when he got off the bench to enter the game and the crowd continued to roar when he made a good pass or a shot.
Cousy said he played so that the players would gain confidence with him in a game for a few minutes. "But let's face it, all I did was throw the ball away six or seven times."
Cousy was finally activated Tuesday after the Royals gave Boston injured Bill Dinwiddie and rights to a future draft choice. Cousy had been on the Celtics' voluntarily retired list and could not play again without their permission which took nearly four months to get.

Chattanooga Nips Citadel

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP) — Last year Chattanooga blasted The Citadel, 31-9, and coach Red Parker said before Friday night's rematch that his Citadel Bulldogs would have to be at their best to beat the Moccasins.
But Chattanooga played better defensively than The Citadel on a night in which defense meant the football game, and the Moccasins won, 10-5.

Passander hit on only eight of 27 attempts for 108 yards, much below his average. On the other hand, Cardwell hit seven of 10 for 115 yards. In rushing and first downs neither team had an edge. The Citadel lost four fumbles to Chattanooga's two.

The scoring was a field goal and a touchdown for Chattanooga and a field goal and a safety for The Citadel.
The safety came in the closing minutes of the game. Chattanooga, backed up near its own goal, gave away two points when punter John Bonner grounded the ball in his own end zone. Chattanooga's free kick which followed put the Bulldogs too far away to score again.
The first half of the game before the 8,000 chilled fans ended in a 3-3 tie. Chattanooga's Jim Cooper kicked a 37-yard field goal in the first period and The Citadel's Jim Leber came back with a 41-yard boot in the second quarter.
In the third period Chattanooga scored the winning touchdown as quarterback Keith Cardwell ran over from the 2. Cardwell, a sophomore starting his first game, drove the Moccasins 52 yards in 11 plays for the TD.
The Citadel's Tony Passander tried passes to get back in the game but on two occasions his fourth down throws were in-

Belvoir Bops Lucama Five

Lucama—Belvoir-Falkland rolled to its fourth straight victory of the season, Friday night, routing Lucama, 67-38.
Lucama took the initial lead in the first period, inching away to a 14-11 advantage.
But after that, Belvoir took charge and roared into the lead, never to lost it. In the second period, the Eagles outscored Lucama, 17-4, and that put Belvoir into a 28-18 lead at halftime.
In the third period, Lucama tried a small rally, outitting Belvoir 14-10, but that cut the lead to only 38-32. In the final period, Belvoir caught fire again, and puffed on 29 points, while Lucama could manage only six.

Civilian To Be Navy AD

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to renew its football fortunes, the Naval Academy will have a civilian as its athletic director beginning next summer—the first time a non-military man has served in the post.
Capt. J. O. Bo Coppedge, a 1947 academy graduate, will retire after 24 years in the Navy to become the first civilian athletic director, a position he has held since June of last year.
Rear Adm. Jaes Calvert, superintendent of the Naval Academy, said the school made the change in policy because the appointment of a civilian "is absolutely essential if the Naval Academy's program is to catch and overtake those on our schedule in football and 29 other sports."
Navy has a record of one victory and eight losses and plays arch rival Army next Saturday. It won only two games last season.
Coppedge said the primary purpose of having a civilian as athletic director was keep a continuity "because of the complex nature of athletics in college these days."
"There are problems in scheduling and knowing the people you are dealing with," he said. "We are just trying to increase the efficiency of the department with more background in athletic affairs."

Stokes Rolls Past Jasper

STOKES—Stokes - Pactolus High School swept a pair of games from Jasper High School Friday night. The Blue Jays took their game, 54-47, while the girls were taking their first win of the year, 18-11.
In the opener, the Stokes girls got just about enough in the first quarter to wrap it up, shooting out to a 9-4 lead. In the second frame, they outthit Jasper 4-1, running their lead out to 13-5, assuring the victory.

Jasper outscored Stokes, 5-4, in the third period, cutting the lead back to 17-10, but couldn't continue their rally. Both teams managed only a point each in the final period.
In the boys game, Stokes inched out into a 9-7 lead in the first period, then began to pull away. The Blue Jays outthit Jasper, 16-8, in the second frame, and pushed their lead out to 25-15 by the half.
In the third period, the Blue Jays continued to pull away, outthitting Jasper, 15-10, and

Tips On Anchors Are Given To Boatmen

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI)—On anchors and anchoring:

—Experts recommend carrying aboard a lead covered with tallow to check the type of bottom before anchoring. Checking the depth by lead or depth finder is absolutely essential to determine the scope.

—For any anchor, you get normal holding power with a scope of 7 or 8 to 1, only half at a scope of 4 to 1, and about one quarter holding power at 2 to 1. In other words, best bet for safety is an anchor line equal in length to eight times the depth of the water.

—If a heavy surge can be anticipated, anchor with a light anchor out ahead of the main anchor, and with about twice as much scope. This arrangement greatly reduces shock load.

—In letting the anchor go, do not allow the chain or rope to pile on top of the anchor when it strikes bottom. Back down paying out line until a length equal to twice the depth is out, then lightly snub the line to the anchor. When set, pay out the length to the proper scope.

—To weigh anchors, come up on the anchor, taking in the rode as you go. When the rode is vertical, break it loose gradually. If you don't have winch or windlass, go forward or back on the engine. If wave action is present, snub the line quickly when the bow is down, letting the rising bow break out the anchor and repeating the process as necessary. Another method: bring the line around to the side and rock the boat.

—If an anchor is caught behind a rock, it ordinarily can be brought up by circling around to the side at long scope while keeping a strain on the rode. This will catch a fluke sticking up and the anchor may be easily raised.

—Be sure the bitter end of the anchor rode is secured to the boat. It may seem improbable, but it's surprising the number of anchors and line that are tossed overboard and disappear into the murky depths each year because the bitter end hasn't been cleated.

—On smaller boats, with electric winches, the owner should become proficient in handling the anchor without the winch. Electrical systems often fail under wet, overloaded, or emergency conditions.

—Shackles and other fittings should be adequately large, with pins wired to prevent loss. Rodes should be inspected regularly for weaknesses.

—Above all, practice anchoring occasionally. It will pay off when anchoring is necessary to save your boat.

—Incidentally, don't get the idea that all anchors are confined to sea use. A manufacturer reports that a considerable number are sold to auto wreckers who use them to tow cars back on the road.

Cougars Bop Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lowly New York Nets came up with rather a Tart way of slowing Los Angeles' drive to over take New Orleans in the American Basketball Association's Western Division.

Lavern Tart scored 20 of his 21 points in the final half, including 16 in the fourth quarter, to power the Nets to a 94-83 conquest of the Stars Friday night.

That dropped the second-place Stars 1 1/2 games back of idle New Orleans in the tight Western chase.

Pittsburgh knocked off Kentucky 112-108, Carolina coasted past Washington 122-112 and Denver nipped Dallas 103-100 in the night's other games.

In the National Basketball Association, Baltimore trimmed Phoenix 126-116, Cincinnati beat Chicago 133-119, Atlanta turned back Detroit 118-106, New York defeated Philadelphia 98-94, Los Angeles edged San Diego 100-98, Milwaukee slipped past Seattle 117-115 and San Francisco topped Boston 118-115.

Los Angeles rolled to a 41-36 halftime lead, but Tart's shooting helped the Nets to a 63-62 edge heading into the final quarter.

The New Yorkers had only an 84-80 lead with three minutes left, but Tart poured in four points as the Nets outscored Los Angeles 10-3 to put it away.

Kentucky grabbed an 84-79 lead at the start of the final period, but Charlie Johnson scored most of his 25 points in the final session to guide the Pipers from behind to victory.

Carolina rode a 34-point performance by Dave Verga past Washington. The Cougars trailed by four points at the half, but the shooting of Verga and Doug Moe, who had 25 points, shot Carolina into the lead for good in the third quarter.

Ben Warley scored five points in the last 11 seconds to lift Denver from behind and past Dallas. The Chaps had taken a 100-98 lead on John Beasley's two free throws with 26 seconds left.

But, Warley canned a corner jumper with 11 seconds remaining to tie it and put Denver ahead with a pair of free throws with three seconds left. The officials then tagged Dallas Coach Cliff Hagen with two technicals and Warley hit one of two charity tosses for the margin of victory.

Rod And Gun: Trout Run At Topsail Club

ROD AND GUN
By Rod Amundson
I don't know whether to call it a weakfish war or a trout tornado, or what, but Anne Tefft, Secretary of the Topsail Island Fishing Club, says they are still having a terrific run of trout in that area.

"People are fishing for trophy-size trout, and the winner thus far was a six and one-half pounder, and a lot of others are in the six-pound class!"

That is big for weakfish. And trout, like other fish are predictably unpredictable. Usually they take Mirro Lures, spinners, and so on, but Mrs. Tefft says that all of a sudden they have become "highly" selective, narrowing their preference to white Stingray Grubs. Tackle dealers sell these as fast as they can buy them, and the demand is so strong that they have to buy two other cards, red and yellow, to get a card of white ones.

The trout is expected to last well into December. I hope it lasts through Thanksgiving, at least, having plans to have sea trout for Thanksgiving dinner at Topsail's Jolly Roger Motel. But I'd rather eat trout than turkey, and if she out-fishes me again I'll probably have crow to eat for dessert.

Maybe by the time rabbit and quail hunters read this there will be a little more moisture in the woods and fields. Extremely dry weather in much of the state has made hunting difficult. Fallen leaves and twigs snap, crackle, and pop, spooking both birds and bunnies, and making it hard for bird dogs and beagles to scent game.

About three-fourths of the leaves have fallen off trees. This creates a raking problem for homemakers, but makes things easier for squirrel hunters. The bushytails have fewer leaves to hide in.

Speaking of squirrel hunting, one young gentleman learned the hard way that Sunday hunting, except on military reservations, is very much against the law. A patrolling wildlife protector saw a car parked beside a likely copse of oak trees. He stopped and heard rifle shots. Farther out in the woods was a young man with a .22 semi-automatic plinking away at a squirrel that was jumping from limb to limb. As the protector approached, the young man's girl friend whistled a warning.

With admirable composure, the young man said to her, "Watch me knock off that pine cone!"

"Sorry, son," said the protector, "you're a little bit late in switching to pine cones."

A lot of Tar Hell bass fishermen like to use those eel-like plastic worms, but prefer to insert hooks of their own choice. Blanks, however, are hard to come by. If your tackle dealer doesn't have them, tell him they are available from Burke Flexo-Products Company, Traverse City, Michigan. You may wish to write to the Burke Company for their catalog. They make some mighty interesting plastic lures that realistically resemble shrimp, crayfish, crickets, and so on.

Charles M. Frost of Winston-Salem comes up with an interesting bit of outdoor news. He reports a sighting of a Flamingo at Pea Island Refuge on Wednesday, November 12. It was with a flock of snow geese, and was observed at a distance of 200 yards, and has been seen several times since.

This is indeed a rare occurrence. One sighting occurred at Pea Island in 1937. Back in 1815 Audubon reported seeing some on the coast of South Carolina.

Frost also reports the sighting of a swan at Pea Island. The bird had a three-inch wide yellow band on its neck, a smaller yellow band on its right leg and a metal band on the left leg. This is part of a banding project cooperatively among states, Canadian provinces, and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. Will check on the state or province that uses yellow bands.

Philadelphia Calls 'Foul'

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

Associated Press Sports Writer PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The New York Knicks won their 14th straight National Basketball Association game Friday night as the Philadelphia 76ers screamed "foul!"

The game boiled to the final five seconds after the Knicks had lost all but two of a 13-point lead starting the final period.

Philadelphia in - bounded at mid-court and set up a play for Hal Greer, one of the league's top jump shooters. Greer shot from about 16 feet and the ball traveled about 10 feet into the hands of New York's Willis Reed.

Reed was fouled from behind by Philadelphia's Darrall Imhoff and made two insuring a 98-94 Knicks' victory. It boosted New York's Eastern Division leading record to 19-1.

Controversy swirled around what happened on Greer's fluttering duck shot. The Knicks' version given by Bill Bradley, was that Bradley and Dick Barnett double-teamed Greer with Bradley partially deflecting the shot.

Philadelphia coach Jack Ramsay was visibly upset as his team lost its fifth straight and eleventh in the last 13 games; also its seventh in a row at home.

"They (the officials) had to call something on that shot, either a charge or a foul on the shooter," Hal Greer can't miss the basket like that, the shooter he is," Ramsay contended.

Reed led New York with 25 points, while Bradley and Frazier each had 18. Cunningham's 25 were high for Philadelphia. Cunningham got 11 and Greer 10 of his 14 in the final period.

Chicod Rips Bear Grass

BEAR GRASS — Chicod High School continued to roll along, downing Bear Grass, 55-48 Friday night. The Chicod girls, however, fell, 37-31.

In the girls game, both teams managed six points as they palyed to a deadlock in the first period. But in the second quarter, Bear Grass pulled away, outitting Chicod, 13-7. That pushed Bear Grass into a 19-13 lead.

Again in the third period, each equaled the other's output, as each got 13 points. That pushed the score out to 32-26. But any rally by Chicod was also forestalled in the final period, as again, for the third time, the two teams played equal ball, both getting five points.

Cathy Haddock led Chicod with 14 points, while Eva Knox had 17 to pace Bear Grass.

In the boys game, it looked like the trend would continue as Bear Grass and Chicod played to a 12-12 tie in the first period. It was almost the same thing in the second frame, but this time, Chicod managed to get one more point, 13-12, and that gave the Hornets a 25-24 lead at intermission.

Chicod seemed to like the advantage. In the third period, they pulled away, outitting Bear Grass, 15-10, and that made the lead 40-34 as the final period got underway. Chicod again edged Bear Grass in that period, 14-13, to insure the win.

Garland Warren led Chicod with 18 points, while Bobby Edwards had 13 and Eugene Hardee had 11.

For Bear Grass, Allen Ayers had 13 and Paul Mobley had 20.

Duke Schedules Ohio State

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University's football team — which a faculty committee has recommended be withdrawn from the Atlantic Coast Conference—plays Ohio State, the nation's best team this year, in 1970.

Duke announced its football schedule for the next five years Friday, a day after a report suggesting deemphasis of the athletic program. Athletic Director Eddie Cameron said Duke will live up to its contracts for the games.

Other nonconference opponents on the Blue Devils schedule next fall are West Virginia and Georgia Tech. All seven ACC schools will be met.

In the 1971 season Duke will play Tech, West Virginia, Stanford and Navy, plus all ACE schools except Maryland.

In the next three years the schedule includes some of those outside teams plus the University of Washington, Purdue, Florida, Tulane and Army.

Cameron said in a statement accompanying the schedules that Duke athletic officials cooperated with the faculty investigators. He said he has "the highest esteem" for the five members of the faculty committee but added:

"We are going to do our best to give Duke University a program of winning football."

Whitfield Downs Davis

ENGLEHARDT — G. R. Whitfield High School snapped a two-game losing streak Friday night and took a 51-46 victory over Davis High School of Englehardt.

Neither team showed a lot of offense in the first period, but after that, Whitfield warmed up until the final frame. By the end of the first quarter, Davis had slipped into an 8-6 lead.

But in the second period, Whitfield outit Davis, 15-12, and slipped into a 21-20 edge.

Whitfield broke the game open in the third period with a 21-point output, while holding Davis to just 11 points. That pushed the score out to 42-31. Davis tried to rally in the final period, outscoring Whitfield, 15-9, but it was not enough to erase the 11-point deficit.

Bobby Jones led Whitfield with 19 points, while Anthony Rogers had 11, and Harold Jones and Louis Boyd each had 10.

For Davis, Howard and

Shelton each had 12 and Collins had 10.

The Whitfield junior varsity fell to Davis, 29-28, in the preliminary.

The win leaves Whitfield with a 3-2 record for the year.

Lumbee Indian Forms Own Rock Group

CAROL FITAZERALD — Willie's wife, has been singing with the group since its formation a year ago. Her Janis Joplin style and sound, is one of the main drawing attractions of the "Plant and See."

BOBBY ASHE — of Columbia, South Carolina, is the newest member of the "Plant and See". Before playing rock music, he worked with groups playing soul and jazz.

Willie Lowery is a full blooded Lumbee Indian. His education ended in the second grade. But what he lacks in a formal education is made up for in a talent which he has developed over the past six years.

Willie loves music, and has turned this love into a way of life for himself and his wife. He plays the guitar well enough to have formed a rising rock group known as the "Plant and See", which in its years existence has turned out one LP album with hopes of others to follow.

The "Plant and See" is sponsored by a recording company, which has given them a contract and furnishes a van for the group's travel.

With home base Fayetteville, they perform in North Carolina and Virginia, with hopes of extending that, according to their road manager, Rich Cunningham.

The group could be considered a regrouping of old friends. It is basically composed of Willie playing rhythm guitar, Bobby Paul on bass guitar, and Forris L. Fulford Jr. on drums. Carol Fitzgerald, Willie's wife, is the vocalist, singing at times with Willie and Forris.

The "Plant and See's" newest member is Bobby Ashe, who joined them November 3. He will be moved to lead guitar, "as soon as possible," says Willie. Carol will soon leave the group to have a baby. "Replacing her will be very hard," says Bobby Paul. "She brings in the crowds."

The "Plant and See" made their third appearance in Greenville during the first week of November at the "Fiddlers Three". A local night spot noted for its rock groups.

Willie started writing songs a year and a half ago, and has completed 35 since then. Along with writing for the "Plant and See", he has also written for the "Embers" of Raleigh, and Maxine Brown, who also records on the White Whale label.

Their first album, entitled "Plant and See" is composed of original songs by Willie. It has been released in California only, and whether it will make it to North Carolina is not known yet.

The "Plant and See" specializes in a sound that is a combination of hard rock and traditional soul. "Funky Rock" as Paul and Fulford agree. "Some" numbers, such as "Keep it Tonight" have the traditional soul sound coming through clearly. They do not limit themselves to rock, however, and play some jazz in their own style.

"The new group was Willie's idea," says Carol, a 24 year old blonde. She is one of the main attractions of the "Plant and See" because of her Janis Joplin style of singing, that hits the audience hard. Watching her perform, it is easy to see she puts herself in her songs, along with the other members of the group.

Willie sometimes stand in front of his amplifier listening intently to his music, seemingly sinking deeper and deeper into it.

Forris and his drums come through clearly, as he strains to bring out his feelings in a number.

"They all met by accident a year ago," says Carol "and Willie decided to form the group."

Since then they have been to California two weeks, recording three songs, and in New York for two months, doing the remainder of the album.

Willie is the nucleus of the group. He is 25, of medium height, with long black hair, and dark inquisitive eyes. He speaks in a quiet manner, and smiles readily when talking about his music, and the group's performances.

"I got interested in the guitar when I heard a couple of groups play around home," he states. "I started writing songs a year and a half ago." How he does it, "is his own little secret," says Carol with a smile.

"He puts his ideas on tape," says Rich, "and works hard at it."

Carol and Willie met about three years ago, when she was a student at Methodist College in Fayetteville. Through mutual friends of a music group known as "The Corporate Image" in which Willie was playing, they met. Carol's interest in music began after she met Willie, and she has been singing since the "Plant and See" formed.

Through the "Corporate Image," Willie and Bobby Paul met. Paul is from Tilden, Illinois, and at 22 has been playing the guitar for ten years.

His interest stems from a Nashville, Tennessee background in his early life. He switched to bass guitar when that was what most of the groups needed. He has attended East Carolina University off and on for five years.

"I like playing the bass now," he states. "There's a lot of freedom in it. We have all played soul, but like rock better because you have more freedom. It is also harder to play, and is better music."

Drummer Fulford knew Willie six years ago when Fulford was in the Army at Fort Bragg. He also met Bobby Ashe when Ashe was in the Air Force at Bragg's Pope Air Force Base as an aircraft mechanic.

Fulford, 25, is from Brooklyn, New York, and says his interest in music dates back to his high school days when he was in the band. "I can still remember my music teacher's name, it was Mrs. Wineberger. She was a red head," he comments.

While in the Army, Fulford played with an Army division's band. "We had the best drum section on the post," he states. "That infantry life was not for me."

Ashe, 24, from Columbia, South Carolina, says his interest in music stems from high school also. "I used to cut music class and go to the show," he says. "Now look at me, I read anything I can on the subject."

"While at Pope, I would go to the service club, and listen to a couple of fellows who played together there. One night I asked the guitar player to teach me a few things, and I have been learning since," comments Ashe.

Ashe and Willie met through a mutual guitar instructor. "We used to look at each other and wonder what that cat was talking about," Ashe adds with a laugh.

The "Plant and See" is a pleasure to watch while performing. Willie's attire on stage shows his Indian background, while the other members of the group dress casually, wearing whatever appeals to them.

Their numbers are by a variety of other musical groups, when not doing Willie's songs. Songs from such groups such as "Cream", "Creedence Clearwater Revival," and "Sly and the Family Stones," are just a few.

Willie listens to a number by "Blood, Sweat and Tears," and comments, "They are the best musical group playing today, so far as the type of music they can do."

What the future holds for the "Plant and See" is uncertain. But as long as they are playing their music, they seem to be happy. Carol hopes to rejoin the group after the baby is born, however, right now she is looking forward to getting off the road for a while she says.

According to their road manager, "she will be back, we hope."

WILLIE LOWERY — the nucleus of the "Plant and See" has written 35 songs in a year and a half. Their first album is made up of original songs by Willie.

FORRIS L. FULFORD JR. — of Brooklyn, N.y., plays drums for the "Plant and see". Forris says his interest in the drums dates back to his playing in an army band while stationed at Fort Bragg.

Palestine—Bible Land For Twenty Centuries

ON THE GRASSY SLOPE . . . JESUS IS THOUGHT TO HAVE PREACHED THE "Sermon on the Mount." This is a view of the north shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Text And Photos
by Dr. William White

THREE FEET BELOW . . . this stone wall is the original Roman Road, the "Via Dolorosa," (Way of Sorrow) down which Jesus carried the cross to Calvary.

SCENES OF THE BIBLE

Twenty Centuries have rolled over the rock-strewn and thirsty land of Palestine. Twenty Centuries have passed since Jesus taught and his apostles and disciples wrote the New Testament. Yet many of the places mentioned in the Bible have changed little and the town of Bethlehem still nestles among the Judean hills while Christian Arabs pasture their sheep on the sternal slopes.

In northern Israel the waters of Galilee are continually fished. The small towns grow the melons, grain and dates of antiquity. Fisherman beach the small boats they use to work along their nets at places well known throughout the ages. Quiet coves near the blue-green water are still called Tiberias, Capernaum, Magdala and Chorazin. The ruins of Roman roads, farm yard walls and ancient synagogues dot the shore line. The thriving populace of Jesus' time is now reduced, but the solitude and simplicity of Galilee remain.

It is the city of Jerusalem where the great events of the Gospels took place. The final sabbath week of Jesus' life was spent in and around the ancient narrow streets of the walled town built a thousand years earlier by David and Solomon.

It is to the shrines and churches of Jerusalem that pilgrims flock at Christmas and Easter. Some of the churches are museums of the past. Many were built by the Crusaders who sought to conquer the Holy Land in the Middle Ages. Although buses, taxis and motor bikes clog the streets of modern Jerusalem, life is limited to the pedestrian and the beast of burden inside the walls of the Old City. The stations of the cross held sacred by various Catholic churches are some of the most revered sites in the Holy Land. Arab shops line the dark and cluttered streets and alleys. Of all the many famous sites the Via Dolorosa, "Way of Sorrow", over which Jesus carried the cross to Calvary is the best marked. The foundations of the houses certainly go back to Roman times but most of the streets have been repaved and restored in modern times.

The outlying sections of Jerusalem are now built over and packed with modern housing for the Jews in the western suburb and the Arabs in the eastern sector. Houses and apartments are built up on the Mount of Olives and the various roads entering the city. It was over one of them, now unknown, Jesus rode the donkey on Palm Sunday before his trial and crucifixion. Along the Jordan Valley and through the southern

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—ABC is bringing back "The Johnny Cash Show" of the past summer for a second round on the network beginning late in January. The recording and concert singing star again will originate the one-hour series in Nashville, Tenn., the country-folk-western music capital.

"The Great Dollar Robbery: Can We Arrest Inflation?" will be a one-hour Xerox documentary special on ABC at 10 p.m. Dec. 15. The major research was done in the Middle West, focusing mainly on meat, housing and hospitalization.

Lorne Greene, of "Bonanza," will do some singing when he headlines on NBC's presentation of "Highlights of Ice Capades 1970" next Feb. 11. The special will feature the main production numbers of the 1970 edition of this touring ice skating show. Singer Bobby Gentry also will vocalize.

Comedian Pat Paulsen, who has piled up a lot of mileage on various variety shows in recent years, will have his own weekly half-hour on ABC sometime in 1970. "The Pat Paulsen Show" will consist of comedy sketches in which he will work with various guest performers.

The 1970 FIS World Skiing Championships will be broadcast here via satellite by NBC in February. The telecasts will come from Val Gardena, Italy and Vysoké Tatry, Czechoslovakia on Feb. 8, 14, 15 and 22.

Virginia Vestoff, who has the role of Abigail Adams in the Broadway musical hit, "1776," is now doubling into NBC's daytime serial, "The Doctors." She has taken over the role of Dr. Althea Davis, long identified with Elizabeth Hubbard.

Character actor Gene Lyons has signed for a recurring role in Raymond Burr's television series, "Ironside."

Connie Stevens, who has two television series behind her, will star in the pilot film for a new situation comedy at Screen Gems titled, "The Connie Stevens Show." Jack Gaver

Leaving Harlem Still A 'Shock'

By VERNON SCOTT
 UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Lincoln Kilpatrick, who co-stars in "The Leslie Uggams Show," is still recovering from the shock of moving from a three-room Harlem apartment to a spacious California bungalow.

Kilpatrick, who plays B. J. Jordan in the "Sugar Hill" segment of the CBS series, moved to California from Harlem five months ago.

For 10 years he lived in a crowded apartment with his wife, Helena, adding two children, two dogs and a pet snake while appearing in theatrical productions in Manhattan.

That leaves him free on Monday and Tuesday to pursue a newfound hobby—horseback riding.

Inasmuch as bridle trails and saddle horses are somewhat rare in Harlem, Lincoln spends three hours on each of his days off loping around the Griffith Park trails aboard a rented horse.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Kilpatrick was raised in Alaska, where he learned to become an expert skier and ice skater. Now he swims in the pools of neighbors in warm weather.

Because he is a new arrival, Kilpatrick is bent on exploring the west. He intends to buy a camper and drive through California, Arizona, Oregon and Utah with his family during vacations to see the places he has read about.

Kilpatrick has no desire to return to Harlem, although he finds that racial relationships are about the same in New York as they are in Los Angeles.

Kilpatrick is delighted with having three bedrooms. In Harlem there was only a single sleeping chamber shared by the children while the senior Kilpatrick bunked down in the living room.

Actor Kilpatrick is a self-effacing man, but raves about his wife.

Helena just completed a new record and, according to her husband, is the finest cook in the hemisphere.

She bakes a cake every day—usually banana or chocolate—and is unsurpassed at preparing soul food. Lincoln is particularly boastful about her spareribs, collard greens and cornbread. Two Days off.

Five days a week, from Wednesday through Sunday, Kilpatrick drives to CBS to spend three or four hours rehearsing. On Sunday he reports to the studio for taping at 10 a.m. and seldom escapes before 11 p.m.

That leaves him free on Monday and Tuesday to pursue a newfound hobby—horseback riding.

Name Soloists For 'Messiah'

Paul Aliapoulos, assistant dean of the School of Music at East Carolina University and director of the Greenville Community Chorus, which was recently formed, has announced soloists for the forthcoming performance of Handel's "Messiah."

The performance, a joint effort of ECU and the Greenville community, is to be presented on December 21.

Dottie Jo Knight, Dana E. Joyner, and Frances McGhee Cherry, all of Greenville, are soprano soloists. Mrs. Knight is a graduate of ECU and is currently choir director at Hooker Memorial Christian Church. Mrs. Joyner studied voice for three years with Miss Virginia Linn of ECU's vocal department. Mrs. Cherry was a voice student at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Contralto roles will be sung by Cynthia Mendenhall, director of Student Union activities at ECU and Betty Bradley Aldridge, senior vocal performance major studying with Mrs. Gladys White at ECU.

James Powers, a sophomore student of Sandra Watson at ECU and Bruce Hart Frazier, senior theory-composition major studying with Dr. Charles Moore are tenor soloist. Powers is also a singer in the Collegium Musicum. Frazier is music director for Bethel Methodist Church.

Bass-baritone John M. Aldridge, an employee of Union Carbide, will sing the bass solos in the "Messiah."

Wilson Nichols of Farmville, a graduate music student at ECU, will be accompanist for the group. Nichols is director of Music at the Farmville Presbyterian Church.

Radio Concert For Symphony

The East Carolina Symphony Orchestra will conduct a broadcast radio program over WITN-FM today at 7:00 p. m. James L. Rees, director of ECU Radio Services, stated "this is the initial program in a series of complete broadcast concerts to be given by the ECU Symphony Orchestra and other ECU musical groups."

Today's performance will be under the baton of Robert Hause, the regular conductor of the orchestra. It will be a repeat performance of the program which was presented in Wright Auditorium on November 2.

The concert will again feature Paul Kosower, ECU cello soloist, in a cello concerto by Boccherini. The other selections to be played are Mozart's "Symphony No. 29", one of his early youthful symphonies; and Cesar Franck's only symphonic composition, "Symphony in D Minor."

Rees announced that the radio broadcast concerts will be a series broadcast in their entirety and in stereophonic sound. In this way, it is hoped the ECU Symphony Orchestra will reach a wider audience than ever before.

In addition to broadcasts of the symphony concerts, plans are being made to broadcast other major musical events originating at East Carolina University during the year, Rees added.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Patrick Magee will play a Puritan preacher in "Cromwell," which stars Richard Harris in the title role.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Leslie Bricusse will write the screenplay and compose the musical score for the movie "Forever," based on the Mildren Cram novel.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Two Nashville, Tenn., youngsters, Robert Prescott and Margaret Ann Morris, both 13, will play featured roles with Gregory Peck and Estelle Parsons in "An Exile" on location in Tennessee.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Shelly Winters accepted a cameo role as the romantic interest of Anthony Quinn in "Nobody Loves Flapping Eagle."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Chris Mitchum, another of Robert Mitchum's sons, has turned to acting with a small role in "Chisum," with John Wayne.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Hawaiians" completed location shooting in the 50th state and returned to Goldwyn studios for final interior scenes with Charlton Heston and Geraldine Chaplin.

Book News

By LINDA STANCILL

The American political scene is reviewed by Theodore H. White in "The Making Of The President 1968". The third of White's narrative histories of American politics in action, it tells the story of the year in which American politics came unhinged. It was the year in which thousands of Americans died in Vietnam, and the year that closed as it began with America as powerless to make peace as she was to impose victory. It was the year that the enemy on the battlefield seemed less important to Americans than their fellow countrymen. Richard Nixon was elected President to face a crisis equal in magnitude to Lincoln's in 1860 or Roosevelt's in 1932. This report of the 1968 campaign tells what happened to the American people and how Nixon came to be elected President. It captures the excitement of all the important and significant events of 1968.

Among those for whom 1968 held tragedy was Martin Luther King, Jr. Coretta Scott King relives the incredible story in "My Life With Martin Luther King, Jr." It is a story of familial love, faith, and courage under the most trying circumstances. The story had its beginning for Martin Luther King, Jr. under the warm protection of Daddy King, Minister of Atlanta's Ebenezer Baptist Church, and for Coretta in the Alabama backwoods where her father's saw mill was burned and the bus carrying white children to school sped by each morning covering her with dust as she walked. The thread from these beginnings to the assassin's bullet in Memphis are woven in the pages of this book and through each member of the family and interwoven with those famous and unheralded who surrounded them. This account of their life together leaves a challenging and beautiful tapestry of our time, created by masters of the art of human dignity.

Svetlana Alliluyeva tells what it's like to construct a totally new existence in totally new circumstances in "Only One Year." She tells why and how she came to the decision to break completely with the world of communism, to turn her back on her country, her children, her friends and face the unknown world. To make perfectly clear what the free world feels like after the communist world, she describes in moving personal detail her daily life in the U.S.S.R. She tells of Stalin, his yes-men and some of the men now in power. She depicts the steadfast and difficult life of the Moscow intellectuals who make up her own close circle and who are still there without any promise of a better and freer life. Her previous book, "Twenty Letters To A Friend" was written in secrecy for the eyes of a few friends only. "Only One Year" was written in freedom, without fear, after calm reflection, and addressed to a world of readers.

In an exhilarating blend of autobiography and philosophy, Jerry Kramer says good-bye to football and hello to a new life in "Farewell To Football." After eleven years with the Green Bay Packers, he is giving up the fame, and trading in his green-and-gold No. 64 jersey for three-button business suits. The same qualities that made Kramer's "Instant Replay" such a fascinating account of the 1967 season are prevalent in this story of athletic success and physical scars.

A SILVER AND COPPER necklace named "Fishwife" is one of the pieces of jewelry created by Gray. Smaller items are also shown.

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

"Right now I'm influenced mostly by modern attempts at transparent sculpture," says John Gray, East Carolina University senior art student whose work is now on view at the Student Union Building at ECU. "Lately I've worked with glass, especially laboratory tubing glass in constructing a series of sculptures."

Gray, a native of Brunswick, Ga., is married to the former Jacquelyn Ruth Kerr of Greenville. Most of his young life was spent in the town of Pleasant Garden, N.C. He is currently student teaching in several of Greenville's elementary schools. "I'm planning to teach art in public schools after graduating," he noted.

Jewelry making is another field which Gray finds very challenging. "I use a variety of methods in making jewelry," he says. "Some of it is type casting, some the lost wax process, and other pieces I've made with the use of cuttle-bone casting."

The jewelry are handsome small pieces, free forms with designs showing references to organic forms. Pins, ornaments for belt buckles, necklaces and other small pieces are in aluminum alloy, silver and other metals.

"I only cast or make one piece," Gray commented. "I like the idea of doing something in only one copy. Some of the pieces I make are fabricated or a combination of fabrication and casting."

Gray explains he is fascinated by tools and motors and likes working with these and incorporating them into his art. "But this is an expensive process," he remarked, "especially when an artist incorporates motors and movable parts into a work of sculpture."

One of his experiments in motorized sculpture is "Doorbell Number One." Nothing happens when the door bell is first pressed. Soon, however, harsh buzzing, flashing lights, rotating levers and a pulley are all activated. "It's great fun, but not a practical doorbell for the average person," he commented.

Gray says he is still experimenting, "searching for a style, a personal note that will be my own. Whatever that may eventually be," he comments, "I feel there is a genuine need for the arts of today to collaborate with what's going on around us in the world."

Reviews And Reflections

ALBERT PERTALION

By ALBERT PERTALION

There's an old saying which states that the outside of a horse is good for the inside of a man. I agree with that old saying.

Besides the obvious, and soul satisfying configuration, his strength and grace, taking care of a horse is good for a man.

I'm surprised that more doctors don't prescribe horses for some of their patients. Not just to ride, mind you but to feed and water and brush and take total care of.

"Who has time?" you say. "Take time," your doctor could say, "you need the exercise and fresh air."

Listen to your doctor. Even riding a horse is good exercise. Not Tennessee Walking Horses, fine and comfortable and smooth as they are, but a horse which walks, trots, and canters. A horse toward which you have to extend some effort to stay on. You'll be a new man in no time.

There are some, and William Faulkner was one of them, who say that a horse is a stupid animal, not nearly as smart as a pig. Well, perhaps they're right, but they're all measuring these animals against man's intelligence, and besides, William Faulkner rode every day.

A horse is one of the most generous animals God ever created, and man could stand to associate with generous animals. If you treat a horse with tenderness and respect, he'll try to do anything you ask him.

Frank Adams once asked me if I ever cried, and I had to admit that I had, in fact, cried just two months ago. My wife and I had gone to New York to watch the running of the 1967 Woodard Stakes when Buckpasser, Damascus, and Dr. Fager were all running. Buckpasser hadn't lost a race in 12 attempts, but Damascus was the pride of the younger three year olds, and Dr. Fager had lost only once to Damascus. They met for the first time in the mile and a half Woodard. I watched the contest very closely through high-powered binoculars, and it was a great horse race. Damascus won. He won by a length and a half. Buckpasser was second; Dr. Fager was third. Buckpasser tried; God knows he tried. I watched him try and try and never give up. He ran his heart out, but he lost. After the race Buckpasser was examined and found to be suffering from arthritis. The vets said he had probably run the Woodard in great pain. I cried the whole length of the long Woodard homestretch, and even now it makes me sad to remember Buckpasser's olympian effort to finish second. Generous, he was, and courageous.

I once owned a small thoroughbred gelding named Governor Claiborne and just before I sold him, I asked him to jump a six-foot high fence. Post and rails with brush in front of it. I had never asked him to go so high before and probably shouldn't have then. I put him at that hurdle and he sort hung in the approach to it, not really wanting to try that jump, but I asked him again with my knees so he went for it. From someplace he found the strength to get over that jump. He didn't do it gracefully; it was too high and I was too heavy for that, but he cleared it. He, too, in his own way was generous.

Live a little (and longer); throw your leg over a horse this week-end. Beat your doctor to the prescription.

Sculpted 2.5 Ton Toy For Atlanta's Children

By PAUL H. ANDERSON SEATTLE (UPI)—Sculptress Doris Chase recently completed a two-and-a-half ton plaything for Atlanta's children, designed to give them a "feeling of power."

The giant "plaything" is actually a three-piece, 14-foot kinetic (moving) sculpture commissioned for Atlanta's Great Southwest Industrial Park, which officials say is the nation's first commerce and sculpture park, combining industry and art.

The sculpture is called "Changing Forms." It consists of three huge-horseshoe-shaped hollow steel forms mounted on a tripod-shaped base that will be imbedded in the ground. One of the sections of the sculpture rotates in a socket, allowing the form to vary with the wishes of the viewer-designer.

"This piece is meant to be located where people can touch it and move it," said Mrs. Chase, one of America's leading creators of kinetic sculpture. "Sculpture should not be set up just to be looked at. People should be able to touch it, feel it; climb on it or do whatever they feel like with it."

"This is specially meant for kids to climb on and move," Mrs. Chase said. "When they are in control of something like this, it gives them a feeling of power and that is important."

By GERRY BISHOP
The man who has his office in his home is not the rare breed her once was. He can be a manufacturer's representative, a chiropractor or a free-lance writer. Regardless of which, it's often hard to find a house with the proper accommodations.

Although the Associated Architects may not have had this in mind, the Ramapo does fill the bill. It's a contemporary split-level with an office at the front on the ground level. This would be ideal for somebody who does siding is used in the upper levels foot-by-10 foot room could be used as a den. It would make a perfect hideaway for mother and dad.

The Ramapo also has three bedrooms, three baths, living room, dining room, kitchen, family room, foyer and double garage. Since there is no basement, a utility room houses the washer, dryer, furnace and water heater.

The upper levels are of fame construction while brick veneer and brick and concrete construction comprise the lower levels. Tongue-and-groove siding is used on the upper levels and the built-in roof has a 2-12 pitch.

The foyer is large and has a flagstone floor and large coat closet. It opens into the office or den on the left and a storage area adjacent to the garage on the right.

Also on the ground level adjacent to the den is a family

Mod And Modern Wall Covering Is Available To Do-It-Yourselfers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
New-fashioned wall coverings—washable flocks, fabric-backed vinyls, glittering foils and textured fabrics—may be hung with a minimum of trouble by do-it-yourselfers.

The big secret of a smooth job is in the use of inexpensive "liner" papers that are put underneath the wall covering, says Jack Denst of Chicago, artist and sculptor. He is well known for his innovations in silk-screened wall coverings on all types of backgrounds.

"Liner paper is very economical, and its blank white surface is really quite pulpy, permitting it to quickly dry and shrink. This leaves a smooth surface for the top paper or vinyl. The design wallcovering will dry more quickly on this surface, further assuring a good appearance."

If one is employing a paper hanger to do the job—and Denst thinks professional services are a good investment—it shouldn't be beyond one to suggest that the liner be used before the wallcovering. The best interior designers recommend this method for their clients, he points out. It may be installed in horizontal or vertical strips with butt seams.

You can be more daring with the addition of liner paper than you can be with ordinary installations of wall covering. When dried the layer of liner paper stretches to give an absolutely smooth surface, even when it is used over other surfaces.

For example, Denst papered over his own bathroom wall tiles by using the liner which stretched to give a smooth surface, he says.

He also covered a stippled wall with a wallcovering after using a liner, but he did choose a pattern, sandstone, that could be enhanced by the slight irregularities.

Years ago, one encountered difficulties trying to get paper hangers to hang burlap and the new vinyls. They were afraid to experiment because adhesives were a problem and new to them. Today, all adhesives for walls are considered excellent, Denst points out, and they may be used with any of the wide variety of wallpapers and vinyls available.

Wall covering designers weren't stopped in their tracks by the difficulties encountered with workers and adhesives. Denst has continued his pioneering—new coverings include gleaming enamel inks on silver foil. One handsome paper is a black patent leather-like background with pumpkin colored striations. There are needle-point patterns.

Do-it-yourselfers may throw in the sponge when they see the new 12-foot high murals that sweep across 20 feet of wall space. They should. The octopod feat of hanging it is best done by professionals. David Winfield Willson of San Francisco, designer of these new spectaculars, as he calls them, sees them as the answer to large foyers and high ceiling rooms in houses and apartments.

In his own home, he has made a narrow room seem much wider by repeating a 9 ft. wide, 12 ft. high wall mural on the ceiling.

These murals are not something a do-it-yourselfer can get into perspective on a wall, by standing on a kitchen ladder.

A professional can whiz through a job in a few hours, and while the investment in the covering is costly, it should be worth the expense.

If one has doubts about cost, it is a good idea to get an estimate on the entire project before it is ordered. A mural shouldn't be selected unless the budget can stand the cost of proper application.

The introduction of enclosures that slide back on tracks is converting some home backyard swimming pools into year-round family recreational areas.

Permanent housing has often been incorporated into the original design of some of the big commercial and community pools, but the new type of slide-back enclosure can be added over virtually any existing family pool. Clear vinyl walls and roofs are mounted on galvanized steel framing, permitting ultra-violet sun-tanning rays to come through and requiring use of the pool heater only during cold weather, although there are some persons who like to swim in artificially heated water even when the air temperature is high.

Two men are said to be capable of erecting the enclosure in one or two days. The gable sections of the steel frames insert into the side sections. Longitudinal supports between the frames is provided by extendable hinged arms. Bolts fasten the prefabricated sections. The frames fit into grooved foundation tracks, which can be bolted on a redwood sill or on concrete-topped steel friction piers with lag bolts and plate washers.

The vinyl is applied in prefabricated panels, each fitting across the space of a single frame from one side of the structure to the foundation on the other. Each snaps with a bead into a groove in the steel framing. The manufacturer, Cascade Industries, says that the enclosure was tested for several winters in Canada and that the vinyl will take at least as much snow weight as the steel frame.

The enclosure slides back when desired, but when weather conditions dictate that it remain closed, it can be put to such additional uses as a recreation area, the storage of winter plants or for non-pool uses, such as a complete greenhouse or boat storage. Some greenhouse companies erect a fixed type of enclosure, mostly over large, expensive pools. Other types of enclosures include an inflatable bubbletype dome, which serves chiefly for smaller pools.

Romney Prods The 'Affluent'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Housing Secretary George Romney says the federal government has subsidized the home purchases of millions of middle and upper income Americans but has done too little to provide decent houses for the poor.

The secretary hopes to drop up public support for new programs to house the disadvantaged by reminding the affluent of the benefits they have received from government policy.

"The people who have benefited by national housing policy in the main are not even aware that they have had any help from public sources," Romney said. "And thus they tend to resent the idea that public money—their tax money—is being used to help the disadvantaged and the minority groups to meet their housing needs."

The appeal, voiced in a finger-pointing emotional speech at the dedication of a new building for the Federal National Mortgage Association, took on a missionary quality.

Romney said the association, a government-sponsored private corporation that pumps funds into FHA and VA mortgages, was partly responsible for moving the affluent to the suburbs and stranding the poor in core city slums. He said, FHA was even more directly responsible.

"There isn't any question but that the public policy that created FHA—contributed to the building of a great deal of needed housing particularly for middle income families," Romney said.

"But at the same time this took place in a social framework that resulted in this housing being located in the suburban communities...with a result that we now have a heavy concentration of low and moderate income families in our core cities and the middle income and better off, families in the surrounding communities."

The former Michigan governor and auto executive said the suggestion that the affluent are living in subsidized housing comes as a surprise to many of them.

He said he referred to such direct help as FHA and VA mortgage guarantees. But even more of a subsidy, he said, is the income tax deduction permitted for interest payments and property taxes.

Here's How To Do It

Question—I bought a paint roller that is marked "lambskin shearing." Can the roller be used with a water emulsion paint?

Answer—Not if you want good results. That kind of material absorbs water and gets messy. It is intended mainly for oil paint. You can use a synthetic for water emulsion paint. The lesson you should have learned is that you should select the kind of paint first and then buy a roller which works well with it. Most hardware, paint stores and lumberyards carry charts showing you which rollers go with which paints.

Question—We've just had aluminum gutters and downspouts installed. We've decided to paint the downspouts, but leave the gutters as is. Do we have to put anything on the aluminum before the regular paint?

Answer—New aluminum should be washed with turpentine or mineral spirits. When it is dry, roughen up the surface with steel wool. Wipe off the wool particles, apply aluminum primer and then paint.

Question—Some years ago, while visiting a friend in another city, I commented about the flagstones on his rear patio. He said they weren't flagstones, but regular concrete into which cuts had been made. Now I'd like to do something similar. How do I make the cuts in the concrete?

Answer—The flagstone effect you saw is usually made by drawing a bent pipe across the wet concrete, but you can use any object you wish, including a stick. Test it first to see whether it is making the appearance of separation you want to achieve. Be sure to make irregular designs similar to those of flagstones.

Question—I have the instructions for a concrete project I plan, but one term—"bull float"—throws me.

Answer—A bull float is a professional term for a kind of oversized concrete smoother, of-

IN THE MIDST OF MODERN ARCHITECTURE of the London financial district, part of a Roman fortification built over 800 years ago looks somewhat out of time and place. (UPI Telephoto)

Ancient Stone Fort Is Found In London

By MARIS ROSS
 LONDON (UPI)—Wall Street is built on the solid bedrock of New York. London's financial district, "The City," has a more romantic underpinning put there by Julius Caesar and other Romans 2,000 years ago. Archaeologists have unearthed part of the foundations of a stone fort built by the Romans 1,850 years ago. City authorities are preparing it for display to give visitors another glimpse of oldest London between its most modern office blocks. Taxis and trucks now trundle along the roads where Roman legions marched. The Roman fort might have lain lost for all time but for the war-time blitz which destroyed the layer of buildings on top. In 1950 Prof. William F. Grimes, as director of the Roman and Medieval London Excavation Committee, was digging in that area in search of the old wall that Romans built around the fledgling city about 200 A.D. "Odd Feature Discovered" He noticed an odd feature," said Norman Cook, director of the Guildhall Museum. "A certain stretch of the city wall showed its construction was of a double nature, one wall built inside the other. He excavated where the line of the wall goes diving off at an extreme angle and found the evidence which explained the double nature. "In this corner he found the remains of a rectangular turret. This structure always means a military, not civil, use. Immediately he realized he had found a fort which was built before the city was enclosed by a wall. Its north and west walls were later incorporated in the city wall."

Take Course In Courtship Art

By DONAL O'HIGGINS
 DUBLIN (UPI)—Farmers in the west of Ireland have gone back to school to learn the gentle art to courtship. Twice a week in the small Galway town of Glenamaddy they attend classes on how to date a girl. A young lady teacher gives the course and she doesn't spare the blushes of her pupils. "You need a decent wash, a proper shave, the right clothes and good manners," she tells them. Between 20 and 30 young farmers turn up for each session which covers such practical details as the type of clothes to wear on a date, how to escort a girl into town, how to order a meal in a restaurant. It is all part of a drive along the western seaboard to correct a chronic imbalance of the sexes which sees too many single girls in the cities and too

The south and east walls are lost or buried beneath existing buildings, but the fort has been measured as 760 feet by 710 feet. It was built around 120 or 130 A.D., nearly 200 years after Julius Caesar landed in England. "Here you have an extraordinary thing," Cook said. "The fort was built in the Second Century when it could have had little or no defensive purpose because there was nothing to defend. The Roman legions had pushed outwards to the north, practically to Scotland, and there was no reason to have a fort in the southwest. "So it may well have housed ceremonial troops. Some hint of this is given in the fragmentary remains of a building which was almost certainly the officers' quarters. They are of a standard in size and quality rather better than those normally found for fighting troops. "I think one can say the existence of the fort reflected the growing importance of London, or Londinium as they called it, in the economy and administration of the Roman province. Hard to Find Cook wanted to disillusion the public about seeing a splendidly preserved Roman remain. "If they think they are going to see a fort, nicely walled with crossroads, they are not going to. This ground has been in continuous occupation for 1,800 years and of course the wall has suffered greatly." Any visitors who go there right now will have difficulty finding the ruins because half of them are unsignposted and unheralded in the middle of a building site. In between some of the most advanced architectural designs in London, women also are building a lake to landscape a stretch of the roman wall, which is topped by a medieval wall and a big round medieval bastion. This used to be the northwest corner of the fort. One of its gateways is preserved down below in an underground parking lot. From there, the west wall heads down what is now Noble Street. Its foundations and the all important discovery, the rectangular turret, lie at the bottom of a hole, which city authorities plan to landscape.

Plantings In November

By EARL ARONSON
 AP Newsfeatures
 We've never had the courage or ambition to do much November planting here in the Northeast, but we have been told some hardy annuals will withstand winter rigors and give you earlier spring flowers. Planting these seeds or seedlings in the South in fall offers no problem, but for the North you must select varieties that are especially resistant to cold. Some germinate promptly. Others stay inside protective seed coats until spring. A friend at Union Fork and Hoe advises mixing in well an inch or more of organic matter and about 3 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., of a good vegetable, bulb or rose food, raking the surface smooth, scattering seed thinly, and letting the soil settle to cover seeds lightly. To ease danger of seeds blowing or washing away, cover the soil with an erosion net, thin cheesecloth or light coat of chopped straw. Thin out once plants begin to grow. Planting suggestions: Chestnut and yellow calliopsis, snapdragons, cosmos, pink spider plants (cleome), yellow or orange calendulas, balsam. For edging: alyssum, portulaca, California poppy, white nicotiana and blue larkspur, make a combination. Petunias will make it where weather isn't too rough. In the Southwest and Far West, prickly poppy or argemone, clarkia and godetia are recommended. And in the warm South, add marigolds, zinnias.

TO RECEIVE AWARD
Collins and Aikman Corporation announced that Rufus Thomas Ward has been chosen to receive the Farmville plant's second annual zero defects award.

The award goes to the C and A employee who makes the most important suggestion aimed at eliminating errors in the plant. Ward was chosen for his suggestion toward reducing defects in the knitting room. He devised a hoist attachment which allows handling two or three warp beams without bruising or damaging the minute threads which make up the beams.

RECORD SALES AND EARNINGS
Sales and earnings of Eckerd Drugs, Inc., of Charlotte, set all time records for the fiscal 26-week period ending September 27.

Sales of $39,925,484 reflected a gain of 27 per cent, up from $31,371,756 for the similar period for the prior fiscal year. Earnings continued to rise with a record high of $1,095,125 net after provisions for taxes.

During the first 26 weeks of the fiscal year, Eckerd opened 14 additional units with six stores still to be opened between now and the end of the fiscal year.

ATTENDING MEET
J.A. Butler, local staff manager of Southern Life Insurance Company, attended the annual management meeting held at the Hilton Hotel in Greensboro Nov. 20 and 21.

The meeting was devoted to new developments in management practices and a depth exploration of techniques to achieve high levels of productivity. Field management and their wives from the Southern Life 12 state and District of Columbia operating territory participated in the session.

TO OPEN NEW BRANCH
North Carolina National Bank opened a branch in Nassau, the Bahamas, on Nov. 17. It was the first foreign branch for NCNB and the first overseas branch for any bank in the Carolinas.

NCNB president Thomas I. Storrs said the Nassau branch will handle only "wholesale" business, limiting its services to the international needs of corporations, banks and other institutions.

The branch has been approved by the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Bahamian government.

GRADUATES FROM CENTER
Marion T. Joyner of Greenville has received his certificate of graduation from the Breckinridge Job Corps Center in Morganfield, Ky.

Joyner completed 495 hours of academic in the welding school. He also was enrolled in the academic training program and resided in a self-governing form.

J.B. Newman, 309 Meade St., Greenville, recently retired from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service after 35 years, is now a field representative for the Woodmen of the World Life Ins. Soc. Mr. Newman recently received the Fraternal Insurance Conference Award.

SALE INCREASE
A $50,912,557 sales increase was registered by Winn-Dixie supermarkets during the 16 weeks ended October 18 compared with the like period last year.

They totaled $407,688,850 against $356,776,293, a gain of 14.27 percent. An advance also was recorded for the four weeks ended October 18, when sales amounted to $103,031,257 compared with $92,067,375, a rise of $10,963,882 or 11.88 percent.

The company currently operates 796 food stores throughout the South compared with 758 a year ago.

RETIREES FROM DUPONT
Dr. William Earl Roseveare of Greenville, a research fellow in the "Dacron" research lab on the Kinston Du Pont plant site, retired from the company Oct. 31 after more than 28 years of service.

Dr. Roseveare taught physical chemistry at the University of Wisconsin for 12 years and spent a year at Princeton as a Lalor Fellow before joining Du Pont in 1941.

The Roseveares will continue to reside in Greenville, where they are members of the Presbyterian Church.

TELEPHONE BUREAUCRACY
BHOPAL, India (AP) — Seven thousand persons in this south Indian town who have been waiting three years for phone connections were informed that although the system is finished, they would have to wait until Prime Minister Indira Gandhi or a member of her cabinet comes to town to dedicate the system, before it is put into use.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR
Garm E. Idol, a 1964 graduate of East Carolina University, has been appointed director in interior design for the Drexel Furniture Company of Drexel. The announcement was made by David Zagaroli, director of case goods merchandising.

Idol, a native of Charlotte, graduated from ECU with a degree in interior design. He will reside in Hickory with his wife, the former Nicki Bain of Fayetteville.

Lightning Hit Moon Craft Twice

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Tentative analysis shows that Apollo 12 was hit twice by lightning after it lifted off last week in a Cape Kennedy rain storm, space officials say.

The 363-foot tall rocket and spacecraft assembly was struck once 36 seconds after it left the ground and a second time 52 seconds after liftoff, Donald D. Arabian of the Manned Spacecraft Center program office told newsmen Friday.

There has been considerable question over whether lightning actually struck the ship at launch.

Space agency officials said after the launch that reports from aircraft had showed there were no lightning-producing elements in the rain clouds, and this assertion was repeated at the Friday news conference.

But Arabian added that the presence of the ship with its rocketfire apparently changed the potential for electrical discharge, or lightning.

He said the ionized stream of fire from the rocket's exhaust brought the electricity down the vehicle and the flame to the ground from a cloud layer 6,000 feet high.

The second lightning bolt, he said, used the rocket's flaming tail to jump from one cloud to another.

Earlier, Dr. Rocco A. Petrone, Apollo program director, said the lightning may cause a change in spacecraft launch rules, but that "no decision has been made yet."

Officials described the Arabian findings as "a very interim kind of report."

Community Notes

The Christian Club will meet at the True Faith Holiness Church, Bonners Lane, today at 4 o'clock. The Rev. James King will be the host.

A choir festival will be held at Little Creek Disciple Church near Ayden this evening at 6 o'clock.

The Junior Church of Hadcock's Chapel will observe youth services Sunday. Sunday School will begin at 10 a. m. Elder West Shields will be in charge.

Wants Arrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., called Saturday for the arrest of Air Force officials who fired A. Ernest Fitzgerald, the man who blew the whistle on huge cost overruns for the CSA cargo plane.

In a news conference, Proxmire said Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans, Assistant Secretary Spencer J. Schedler and perhaps others should be jailed under a law banning intimidation or punishment of anyone for testifying before a congressional committee.

Apollo 12 Timetable

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 12 schedule for Sunday and Monday (all times EST and subject to change):

Sunday, Nov. 23

3:30 a.m.—Astronauts wake up.

5:44 p.m.—Second chance to correct aim for re-entry; then undertake navigational experiments.

6:37 p.m.—Final television show from the flight. Scheduled for 30 minutes, it will show the earth growing larger and the inside of Apollo 12.

7:30 p.m.—Crew goes to sleep for the last time on the flight.

Monday, Nov. 24

5:30 a.m.—Astronauts wake up and begin preparations for splashdown.

12:44 p.m.—Last chance for Apollo 12 to trim its re-entry course.

3:22 p.m.—Apollo command ship separates from the service module, which contains the main rocket engine. The command ship then strikes the upper fringes of earth's atmosphere over the south Pacific 12 minutes later.

3:58 p.m.—Splashdown about 460 miles southeast of Pago Pago and the start of a moon quarantine that will end Dec. 10 in Houston.

AVALON, Calif. (UPI)—The last manually operated switchboard in Pacific Telephone Co. territory in California is on remote Catalina Island, off the coast opposite Los Angeles.

Last year, South Korea exported about $28 million worth of wigs.

Nixon Watched Game From Dentist's Chair

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon spent much of the day in the dentist's chair Saturday but didn't let it interfere with his fondness for sports.

A special television set was put up in the office of Dr. William Chase, a few blocks from the White House, so the President could watch—or at least listen to—the Ohio State-

Michigan football game while having dental work done.

Then he invited two old friends from his school days in Whittier, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Roger Johnson, to accompany him and Mrs. Nixon to Camp David late Saturday for an overnight stay and more football watching.

The Nixons and the Johnsons landed at snow-covered Camp

David at 5:45 p.m. EST after a half hour helicopter ride from the White House. They were expected to return to Washington Sunday afternoon.

The President spent two hours in Dr. Chase's office Saturday morning and returned Saturday afternoon for more repair work to a permanent dental bridge—"work which he has put off for 10 years," the White House said.

Nixon has a permanent dental bridge due, at least partially, to having had two teeth knocked out in a basketball game during his college days.

Governor Names 16 Appointees

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Bob Scott announced 16 appointments Friday, including 11 members to a commission to study student financial aid and three to an Alcoholic Beverage Control Study Commission.

The governor named John W. Olive of Mount Airy and reappointed J. Bart Hall of Belmont to the North Carolina Real Estate Licensing Board for three-year terms.

The Student Financial Aid Commission will study the advisability of creating a statewide student assistance program. It will report its findings to the 1971 legislature.

Scott designated Jim Mills of High Point as chairman of the commission. The governor also appointed to the commission J. P. Huskins, Statesville newspaper editor; Dr. Dallas Her- ring, Rose Hill; Dr. Leo Jen- kins, president of East Carolina University; Dr. Earl Daniely, president of Elon College; James L. Adams, Durham; Ashley H. Hogwood Jr., Charlotte; Merrill Evans, Ashokie; Mrs. Jane Downing, Fayetteville; Miss Hilda M. Patterson, Winston-Salem; and Addison Reese, Charlotte banker.

House Speaker Phil Godwin recently appointed five House members to the commission. Five additional appointments are to be made by Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, making a total of 21.

Appointed by the governor to the ABC study commission were Rep. Edward Sneed, D-New Hanover; Glenn Brown, Waynesville lawyer, and Jim Stutts, Raleigh, district director of the United States Brewers Association.

In addition to the governor's appointees, three will be made by Speaker Godwin and three by Taylor. The commission was created by the 1969 General Assembly to study and rewrite the general statutes dealing with alcoholic beverage laws. It will make recommendations to the 1971 legislature.

Joint Meeting Held Thursday

A joint meeting of the Coastal Plains Chapter of the North Carolina Association of Certified Public Accountants and Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity of East Carolina University was held Thursday, at the Candewick Inn.

Speaker for the evening was Tom Elam, manager of A. M. Pullen & Co., New Bern. His topic concerned why he chose public accounting and why others should consider it. He encouraged young people to enter the field of public accounting.

Attending from Greenville were Vernon Carawan, Cecil Mizelle, Gene Prescott, Lawrence Speight, Norwood Whitehurst, and James Worsley.

Nell Stallings At Meeting

RALEIGH—Miss Nell Stallings, Professor of Women's Physical Education at East Carolina University, attended a subcommittee meeting of the State Advisory Committee on School Athletics and Activities held Nov. 19 at the State education agency in Raleigh. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips appointed the special committee in May to make an in-depth study of the administration of athletic programs in the public schools of the State.

Areas studied by the subcommittee include spectator behavior at athletic contests, certification of coaches, the feasibility of a Statewide athletic association, and proposed amendments to athletic regulations. Their recommendations will be presented to the Advisory Committee at its next meeting, according to Ray Rhodes, student activities consultant for the Department of Public Instruction.

Queen Crowned At Winterville

WINTERVILLE—Miss Trillis Pollard, president of the Winterville Chapter of Future Business Leaders of America, was crowned queen of the homecoming activities held at Winterville High School on Friday Night. Miss Pollard was sponsored by the science club. Princesses named by the student body to serve with Miss Pollard were Miss Jackie Sutton, senior; Miss Dee Jackson, junior; Miss Kay Galloway, sophomore; and Miss Hilda Jones, freshman.

Queen Trillis was crowned by the 1968 queen, Miss Carrie Carr. The princesses were ribboned by Miss Linda Avery and Miss Bonnie Kinsaul, both of whom were past homecoming queens.

Homecoming is sponsored by the Student Government Association.

Break-In Tries Are Reported

Investigation is continuing of the attempted breaking and entering of two local firms here Tuesday night.

Chief of Police Tommy Gladson said the rear doors to Harris Super Market on W. Fifth Street had been damaged as a result of a prowler attempting to force entrance.

A heavy cross bar on each door had prevented the prowler from entering the building, according to the Chief Gladson.

Entrance doors to the Campus Corner, located at 201 E. Fifth Street, were also damaged as a result of attempted breaking and entering.

Chief Gladson said the lock was broken and the door of the room split, but that the manager reported nothing missing.

$2,000 Grant To Chemistry Dept.

A National Science Foundation grant of $2,000 has been awarded to the Department of Chemistry of East Carolina University.

Dr. Edgar Heckel, assistant professor of chemistry, will be research director for the grant, under the "academic year extension phase" of the NSF program of research participation for college teachers.

The grant, Dr. Heckel says, is intended to support a research project at ECU which is an extension of some research work in radiation chemistry he conducted last summer.

Won't Honor Restrictions

TOKYO (AP)—Any restrictions on Japanese exports of woolen and manmade fibers to the United States which may be negotiated between the U.S. and Japan won't be honored by the Japanese textile industry.

Officials of the industry said Friday that the legality of any agreement to cut back on the exports would be tested.

Under present Japanese laws, mandatory restrictions on textile imports would be difficult to enforce, according to the Ministry of International Trade and Industry.

You won't always be self-employed.

Someday you'll be self-retired.

A tax-deductible retirement plan used to be a benefit reserved for incorporated businesses, leaving the self-employed or professional man to his own resources.

But no more. Now you can put tax-free dollars toward retirement programs for yourself and your full-time employees under the liberalized Keogh Act.

And you have help. Wachovia has a Plan that enables you to take full advantage of this opportunity. The payment schedule is flexible, with unique investment options. And life insurance can be included.

You will be providing a superior plan for yourself with before-tax dollars

Superiority Is Often 'Smeared'

Lon's questions involve a fascinating law of psychology. Anybody who moves ahead of his colleagues by greater diligence or skill, suffers from the same smear campaign that Jesus received in his home town!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D. CASE L-523: Lon G., aged 22, is a seminary student. "Dr. Crane," he asked, "why do so many seminary professors, as well as pulpit clergymen, deride the television pastors?"

"We students thus hear many veiled barbs that are directed against Bishop Sheen and Dr. Peale, as well as Oral Roberts, Billy Graham and other famous church orators. "Yet it seems to me that clergymen should be the greatest rooters for those members of their profession who are such super speakers."

MUD SLINGERS Your worst critics are usually those in your own profession! Jesus explained this same paradox when he said: "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and in his own house."

For when Christ returned to his home town and started expounding his unique ethical ideas, his neighbors said (Matthew 13:54-56): "Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works? "Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary? And his brethren, James, and Joseph, and Simon, and Judas?"

And his sisters, are they not all with us?" This attempt to depreciate Christ's miracles and teachings by stressing his humble origin, is an example of the "ad hominem" fallacy in logic.

That fallacy refers to any mud slinging or smearing of a man's political and scientific superiority by whispering campaigns about his family or the fact he might have been divorced or father of a delinquent child, or of an alien race or religion. By such diversionary attacks, your foes try to arouse emotional hostility and thus by-pass your superb logic and other accomplishments.

And you can easily see why a man's own colleagues resent him if he spends the extra study or long hours to get ahead of the Vietnam War Needy Cause

By KENT DRELL Associated Press Writer WINNSBORO, S. C. (AP) — Sgt. I. C. Webster Anderson says the Vietnam war in which he lost both legs and his right hand is "a needy cause."

Anderson, 36, is one of three Army sergeants who will receive the Medal of Honor from President Nixon Monday for heroism and bravery "above and beyond the call of duty" in Vietnam.

The others who will be honored in a ceremony in the East Room of the White House are S. Sgt. Nicky D. Bacon of Ft. Hood, Tex., and Sgt. Paul R. Lambers of Holland, Mich. In a telephone interview from his Winnsboro home Friday night, Anderson said he has no regrets about serving in Vietnam and no bitterness over his crippling injuries.

"You just can't turn the South Vietnamese over to a bunch of wolves," he declared. He added that his injuries are "nothing to feel bad over." "I've got to get about in civilian life," he commented realistically. It was on Oct. 15, 1967, when Anderson was an artilleryman with the 101st Airborne Division that a North Vietnamese infantry unit attacked his battery and broke through his defensive position.

He climbed an exposed parapet to direct howitzer fire. He continued giving orders after two enemy grenades exploded at his feet and he was unable to stand.

PALESTINE . . . (Continued from page 19) desert the land has changed the least and many Biblical places can be located with ease. It is easy in those areas to imagine the Biblical scenes—Isaac and Rebecca, Moses and his flock and all the other dramatic events of the Old and New Testaments.

However, perhaps the most durable of all the characteristics of the Land of the Bible is the piety seen on every hand. Three great religions are fervently practiced—Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Men carry on rites and rituals as old as human society itself. More than any other nation or people the Land of Palestine is the Land of the Book, the country formed by the Bible.

The one lesson it can teach is that the scenes of the Bible are an everlasting reminder of the reality and humanity of the people and events recorded and preserved down to our Twentieth Century, and that the age of man on the Moon still finds meaning in the ancient Word.

Some Men Will Travel 3,000 Miles Just For Band Practice

RALEIGH (AP) — Ever think of driving 3,000 miles to band practice?

Members of North Carolina's Sudan Temple Shrine Band do it.

Officials of the band, which will make its 13th appearance of the year this Saturday in Raleigh, calculate 3,000 miles is the

Diana Ross Will Go Solo

DETROIT (AP) — Diana Ross will leave the hit vocal group, the Supremes, in January, to start a solo career in show business.

The Supremes—Diana Ross, Mary Wilson and Florence Ballard—came to notice with a string of record hits in 1964 on the Motown label. Ever since they have stayed at or near the top, at times the only female group in a pop music market heavily dominated by male groups, and to a lesser degree, male soloists.

The group has changed before, when Florence Ballard was replaced by Cindy Birdsong. And the billing was changed to Diana Ross and the Supremes. Miss Ross will be replaced by singer Jean Terrell sister of former heavyweight boxer, Ernie Terrell.

A Motown spokesman said that Miss Ross's leaving the group will free her to accept parts in movies and Broadway shows.

Miss Ross's striking out on her own has been rumored for the last couple of years.

total distance traveled by all its members each time it meets for practice.

They do all that driving about 10 times a year.

"For us, it's no burden because it's for a fine cause," says Claude M. Mayo of Rocky Mount the band's director.

This Saturday's appearance is typical of the band's performances, all of them in connection with a charity.

The 50-member band will parade through downtown Raleigh beginning at 11 a.m. to promote that afternoon's football game between North Carolina State and Penn State.

Part of the proceeds of the game will go to the Shrine's Crippled Children's Fund, the Shrine's major charitable effort. The band is only one of several groups comprising the uniformed units of Sudan Temple.

Other units include the Drum and Bugle Corps, the Oriental Band, the Patro, the Provost Guard, the Chanters, the Shrine Clowns, the Legion of Honor, the Dance Band, the Motor Patrol and the Horse Patrol.

But because of its size, the band could have the hardest time in getting its members together for practice.

"Dedication makes it easy, though," says Mayo.

A band member like Dr. O. Woodrow Pittman of Ahoskie drives 240 miles round-trip for a practice session in Raleigh.

Art Bloss of Jacksonville, a retired marine now in the insurance business, travels 260 miles.

Earle F. Burnett of Morehead City, an auditor, travels 316 miles.

Jack Hunter of Greensboro, a locomotive engineer, travels 160 miles.

Other members of the band drive to Raleigh from scattered places such as Goldsboro, Durham, Rocky Mount, Fayetteville, Nashville, Oxford, Cary, Washington, Farmville and Hillsborough.

With the exception of three men, all members of the band are amateurs.

Snare drummer Robert Wentz of Durham is an orthodontist.

Bass horn player William G. Boykin of Garner is a retired electric company employe.

Saxophone player Kelton R. Stone of Nashville is an insurance agent.

Clarinet player Charles M. Peterson of Raleigh is a physical therapist.

Many of the band members have put in long years of service.

Leslie Smith of Raleigh, a retired post office employe who plays bells, has been in the band for 42 years.

Band director Mayo, an insurance and real estate executive, has been in the band for 33 years.

Mayo figures he's traveled about 150,000 miles for band functions and he's missed only four formations since becoming a member.

Another veteran member is Ross H. Reynolds of Raleigh, a retired electric company employe.

At 79, Reynolds serves as the band's treasurer and still marches in parades, although his doctor doesn't allow him to blow his french horn any more.

In some cases, playing in the band has turned into a family tradition.

L. O. Hollingsworth of Goldsboro, a retired salesman, plays the saxophone and his son, Harry Hollingsworth, a Durham newspaperman, plays the baritone horn.

The band has played throughout North Carolina over the years, but its appearances haven't been limited to the state.

The Tar Heel unit has marched in Washington, Los Angeles, Mobile, Ala., and Jacksonville, Fla. Although they're dedicated, the band members do reach their limit at times.

Many of them still chuckle over a time when that limit was reached during a parade in Jacksonville, Fla., several years ago. It was an extremely hot August day and spirits were drooping after a miles-long march left the band with still more miles to go before the parade's end.

Suddenly, the drum major, N. R. (Sleepy) Stell Jr., of Raleigh, realized the band was close to the hotel where band members were lodged.

Stell promptly gave an order: "Column left!" The band turned, marched into the hotel and plopped down for a rest.

ROMAN RUINS

USK, Wales (AP) — Digging at the site of a Roman fort has turned up 13 granaries covering nearly half an acre and dating back to the time of Emperor Nero in the first century AD. Archaeologists said the number of granaries indicates a large-scale Roman campaign in South Wales.

BAD HANDS!

Our Story: AS THE GREAT DRAGONSHIP NEARS THE HARBOR ENTRANCE THE FIERCE FIGUREHEAD IS LOWERED AND A SHIELD HOISTED TO THE MASTHEAD, A SIGN OF PEACE. THEN PRINCE ARN NOTICES THE CREST ON ITS SAIL, THE CRIMSON STALLION!

USUALLY THE VIKINGS TAKE WHAT THEY WANT, BUT THIS TIME THE CAPTAIN OFFERS TO BUY PROVISIONS. THIS VERY UN-VIKING BEHAVIOR CAN ONLY MEAN THEY CARRY SOMEONE OF IMPORTANCE ON A MISSION.

AND ARN IS THE FIRST TO RECOGNIZE GEOFFREY, MAKER OF VERSE AND SONG, HISTORIAN FOR THE ROYAL FAMILY OF THULE. THEIR GREETING IS WARM BUT BRIEF. ARN HAS IMPORTANT NEWS: "ADELE, DAUGHTER OF SEUR DU LACI THE MERCHANT, IS NOW IN CAMELOT. IF YOU WISH TO SEE HER AGAIN YOU MUST HASTEN!"

"SHE TOLD ME OF THE VOWS MADE LONG AGO AND OF HER LONG WAITING TO HEAR FROM YOU. NOW SHE HAS BEEN PROMISED IN MARRIAGE TO YOUSEF AT THE END OF THIS VOYAGE. SHE FEARS YOUSEF, AND SO MUST YOU!"

ON ARN'S URGING, GEOFFREY LEAVES THE SHIP AND, WITH HORSES AND GUIDES SUPPLIED BY KING CUDDOCK, HEADS FOR CAMELOT THAT VERY DAY.

FORGOTTEN ARE THE PLANS FOR HUNTING AND HAWKING, THE MINISTERS ARE ASSEMBLED, AND THE KING'S BUSINESS IS DISPATCHED QUICKLY. FOR ARN IS ANXIOUS TO RETURN TO CAMELOT. GEOFFREY HAS TALENT AND WISDOM, BUT CAN HE COPE WITH THE DARK WAYS OF YOUSEF?

AN EXPERT'S ADVICE
How to Choose the Right Toy for a Child

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DR. MARIE HINRICHS,

American Medical Association

Why do doctors frown on parents-to-be who want to be together during childbirth? It should be their privilege, I think.—Kenneth Moore, Gulfport, Miss.

● The safety of mother and child depends on the continued alertness and efficiency of the obstetrician, his assistant, the anesthesiologist, and a nurse, each having a specific duty to perform. Emergencies may arise, and this team must respond unhampered by the presence of anyone who may become disturbed.

FOR JOHN A. SHAFFER,

Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration

How many American planes have been sky-jacked in the last 10 years? How many from other nations? How many deaths have they caused?—Mrs. Irene Rohr, Devils Lake, N.D.

● To date, of the 133 attempts, 77 have been successful en route to Cuba. This breaks down to 49 U.S. aircraft and 28 foreign. In addition, there have been 29 successful skyjackings to other countries,

The remainder have been unsuccessful. We have not found any skyjack-related deaths.

FOR LIBERACE

Did you have a disease in one of your arms when you were a boy? If so, how did you get rid of it?—Joyce Castle, Tonneton, W. Va.

● I had a serious infection in the right finger of my left hand. Doctors considered amputation, but through proper medical attention, it was saved.

FOR WINTON BLOUNT,

Postmaster General

When and how did the custom of issuing first-day covers originally come about?—George Gagliardi, Trenton, N.J.

● There is no way of tracing them, either as to custom or date, prior to 1920. It was not until the early 1930s that first-day covers became big business to philatelists. Anyone who mailed a letter in New York City on July 1, 1846, the place and date of issuance of the first U.S. postage stamp, received the first American "first-day cover."

FOR GEORGE P. SCHULZ,

Secretary of Labor

Which of our states has had the highest unemployment rate during the past 10 years?—Del Laiceps, Burien, Wash.

● Alaska, but the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico over the past 10 years exceeds it.

FOR CAROL BURNETT

Is Ernie Anderson your husband? If not, why do you always introduce him on your show?—Kathryn Bid-dison, Ordway, Colo.

● He is not my husband (Joe Hamilton, my show's producer, is). When we first introduced Ernie to our studio audience, it was sort of a practical joke. Ernie was such a good sport and took such a grand bow that the introduction became a running gag. We hope to have him on the show sometime this season, as well as in the audience. But since he is now such a celebrity, he may be unavailable.

FOR PETER GRAVES,

"Mission: Impossible"

Do any of the devices work that are used on your show, such as a remote-controlled flying saucer or death-simulating drugs? Are they used in real life?—Robert J. Morwood, Win-ooski, Vt.

● All our devices are possible, and some of the most fantastic are being used in real life. Drugs are based on the real ones, but, of course, we simulate those used on the show.

FOR WOODY HAYES,

Ohio State University football coach

Although Big Ten rules prohibit a team from playing in the Rose Bowl for two consecutive years, can OSU accept the invitation to another bowl game?—Mark Jacobson, Paramus, N.J.

● No Big Ten team is allowed to play in any bowl but the Rose Bowl.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. lion of the growing birds, from egg onward. The computer determined nutritional requirements affected by changing weather and prices. Next step is forecasting to determine how many turkeys Americans will eat next year.

Football, Anyone? It has been 100 years since the first intercollegiate football game between Princeton and Rutgers. Players wore street clothes minus jackets, according to ABC's sports department. In 1874 Harvard added sweaters, and handkerchiefs were tied on the players' heads so spectators could tell who was who without a scorecard. McGill added short, white trousers, striped sweaters, and turbans. Tallow-coated (slippery!) one-piece suits came and went (outlawed!) in the '90s. It wasn't until 1916 that numbers identified the players. Today's jerseys, though, haven't changed much since the turn of the century.

Groovy Responsibility "In your teens you may resent parents' discipline," says Bobby Sherman ("Here Come the Brides," ABC-tv), looking back from the philosophical age of 23. "But later on it's up to you—not them—to make a good relationship. My parents are my friends—

I could even go out on a double date with them. Mom was 15, Dad 17 when they married, and they still look and think young. They've adjusted to me. I got Dad to wear sideburns and, once in a while, medals. Mom wears mini-skirts and looks groovy."

Light Work "When Apollo 12 headed for the moon, it required a thrust equivalent to lighting 5.2 billion lightbulbs for one minute," says Wolfgang Thouret of Hackensack, N.J. Doctor Thouret should know; he's the expert who designed the 20,000-watt xexon bulbs, the world's most powerful. They are used at Cape Kennedy to illuminate the Apollo-Saturn during prelaunch work. That's 50 billion candlepower or the equivalent of 59,000 household bulbs.

But it's still using the horse around Price, Utah, where there are 420 miles of telephone wire strung through some of the continent's most rugged terrain. Make This Your Loveliest Year Ever Every year of a woman's life should bring with it a new phase of beauty, for today the discovery of a remarkable tropical moist oil at last assures her that each passing year can bring added loveliness to her complexion.

Extraordinary scientific achievement is embodied in this unique moist oil with its ability to contribute to the unfolding and blossoming of a radiantly beautiful complexion.

All skins need supplementary ministrations of a particular kind after the age of twenty-five, when the glands gradually become less active and manufacture only a fractional quantity of vital skin fluids. Sometimes this deprivation of the essentials is brought about even more prematurely through unfavourable weather hazards, difficult climatic conditions or any one of a dozen other circumstances exclusive perhaps to the twentieth century that directly or indirectly have a depletory effect on natural dermic fluids.

A lavish application of the scientific moist oil to the face and neck helps sponsor nature's every effort to provide the skin with regenerative, sustaining elements that work to restore balanced functioning.

Optimum benefit is obtained from the natural balance of oil and moisture which this beauty fluid possesses. Cosmetic scientists have aptly described it as a "peeled" beauty oil, by which they mean it does not contain the heavy sealing elements common to normal oils. Its rapid softening and beautifying values are immediately available to the complexion and prove their worth most dramatically when applied to alleviate skin dryness, for the complexion quickly takes on a smoother, dewier, lovelier appearance.

Another great, beneficent property of the tropical moist oil is its readiness to further the skin's natural hygroscopic tendencies, and a healthy bloom is soon established as moisture is constantly attracted from the atmosphere to the complexion.

This moist tropical oil is obtainable in most countries of the world and here in America is available from druggists as oil of Olay. Smoothed over your skin daily and used as an ideal sub-foundation for make-up, it brings your complexion the richest dividends of beauty and heralds the attainment of your loveliest year ever.

Beauty Skin-Care Consultants Recommend

To gain the best benefits of the beautifying properties of this moist oil and to keep your complexion clear of wrinkle dryness always smooth on a film of oil of Olay beneath your make-up to protect and beautify your complexion whilst ensuring your make-up has perfect matt beauty.

Radiance is restored to the complexion when it is cherished with rich cream at night. Before you go to bed, massage gently with the oil of Olay, paying particular attention to the crow's-feet area where ageing lines first appear.

Towards maturity cherish your skin with a little extra care to smooth wrinkle-dryness and help keep facial lines at bay. Before retiring, apply a generous film of oil of Olay, massaging it with the fingertips in circular movements that spiral upwards and outwards.

How to Choose the Right Christmas Toy

President, Toy Manufacturers of America
President, Ideal Toy Corp.

DURING THE WEEKS before Christmas, millions of parents, grandparents, and doting aunts and uncles will be roaming around toy departments asking:

"How can I choose the right toy—one he (or she) will really enjoy?"

Just remember that toys are the tools of play, and play serves a more meaningful function than just to occupy a child's time. A child needs energetic fun as well as activities to whet his curiosity and sharpen his intellect.

You might ask yourself, does it get the child involved? Standing by and watching is not for space-age children. They want to manipulate things—to participate. The enjoyment is in the doing, not in admiring.

And next ask: does it produce action of some sort? The ability to make things happen has a powerful appeal to children.

Now let's move on to some specific "do's and don'ts."

Be sure the toy is appropriate for the child's mental age. For the convenience of consumers, some manufacturers indicate an appropriate age range for each product. Consider this a helpful hint and not an infallible rule. It is more important that the toy be suited to the boy's or girl's own level of mental and social development. Don't eliminate a potential gift for a bright five-year-old because the toy is recommended for the six-to-eight group.

But I don't recommend the practice of some proud grandparents I know who wouldn't think of buying a toy for their grandchild unless it was marked for a child at least two years older than he—whether he was ready for it or not.

Select a toy your child can understand. Any toy that is too complicated will bore the child very quickly. Such a toy will require considerable supervision on your part, which is something to be avoided. Whatever you buy, make certain it is easy to handle.

Buy a toy your child can play with this Christmas. Never mind the item you think he will "grow into by next year." If a child can't enjoy it instantly, chances are he won't spend much time investigating its value later on.

Be sure all electric toys carry the Underwriters' seal of safety. UL—standing for "Underwriters' Laboratories"—should be on every electrical item and cord. Electrical toys should never be used when hands are wet.

Shop for the best price. Several years ago, toy manufacturers abandoned the practice of recommending retail prices. Today toy prices vary from store to store, and it pays to shop around. But product quality and durability are important, so it is advisable to buy brand names even if you pay a little more.

Let your child play with the toy in his own way. Help only when he or she asks for it. Of course, there will be occasions when parental instruction and guidance should be given.

Don't buy a toy with a myriad of small parts for small children. This kind of item will end up all over the house or possibly in the child's stomach.

Don't buy poorly constructed toys. Metal products may appear sturdy and even impress you with the nostalgic appearance of a "good old-fashioned toy." It is wise to be sure the metal edges are rolled or turned in; all corners should be rounded. Be sure the wheels of wooden toys are smooth and splinter-free.

Don't buy too many toys for one child. It is easy to give in to an overgenerous impulse to shower the child with many toys in the hope one will be a big hit. But it's best to use good judgment in selecting a few suitable items.

Don't give the child all his toys at once. If your child is presented with a bevy of toys, including those from splurging relatives, it is wise to put a few away for a later-date "surprise."

Don't be overcautious. Concern for safety should always be first in the minds of parents, but a child who has reached school age should be able to play with an adventuresome toy such as electrical items and tool chests. The basic rule of toy safety is—the right toy for the right child at the right time.

Don't rush to buy toys at the last minute. Give yourself enough time to deliberate on all the elements in the above list before you pick your toys. ♦

The Best of the New—A Toy

Here they are—the dolls who dance ballet, the games that bust your brain (or back), the spacemen who go way out—all waiting to make life fun again for

By TERRY SCHAERTEL

IF YOU WANT to know what toy is going to be popular with children this Christmas season, just look at the world around you. Toys reflect the times.

In World War II and during the Cold War, soldiers and weapons were popular. Now it's spacemen. In the Depression, the favorite game was Monopoly, in which a player could become a "millionaire"—or a bum. Today's popular games are body-contact ones, with plenty of go-go.

"Twister," in which participants twist together almost like pretzels, started the fad three years ago, according to the game manufacturer Milton Bradley, Inc. The company attributes body-contact games to the fact people are more open and friendly today.

This year's body-action game is "Limbo Legs." It features an electric "limbo rod" for jumping, which can be set high or low, fast or slow. (It may also reflect our affluent society, which has the time and money to go to the Caribbean Islands where the limbo dancers entertain.) It costs about $6.

In another area, children no longer want a doll just to cuddle; they want action, too. Two new dolls from Mattel, for example, are "Dancerina," a ballerina who moves arms, legs, and head in the classic positions, and "Swingy," who dances to a rock beat.

Ideal's action doll is named "Beautiful Crissy." Her hair actually grows. It can be washed and styled to fit her wardrobe.

Transportation toys remain popular—provided they do something. Ideal produces Mini-Motorific powered cars and tracks (complementing the larger Motorific line). The Minis can be held in a child's palm but have plenty of racing zip, thanks to small "N"-sized batteries.

Mattel also produces toy cars and has added a "Super-Charger" to last year's popular "Hot Wheels." Battery operated, the die-cast cars come with an assortment of tracks and bridges.

A different line of miniature die-cast cars comes from Corgi. The price range is about $1.50 to $4. The details are said to be so accurate that, "It's like looking at the real thing through the wrong end of a telescope." Among the tiny details are engines, air intake, carburetors, exhausts, spoke wheels, doors that open, and spring suspension.

In the stuffed animals field, Germany's Steiff, which made the first Teddy bear, has come out with a new Teddy and a brand-new "mink" animal for $10. (No, it's not a real rodent, but it's cuddly.)

Also new to the American market is the "Betthupferl Hase," translated as "bed jumping" in German. The tradition is that a child receives a reward like candy for being good all day and promptly "jumping into bed." The goody is hidden under the hollow bottom of this animal doll. In American stores, it's called "Hide-a-Gift" and retails for about $3.75.

In preschool toys, the latest from Fisher-Price includes the four-room "Play Family House" for little sister. It hinges open and locks shut with a handle for carrying it over to a playmate's house. Five play people and 11 pieces of furniture, movable staircase and closet, a doorbell that rings, and garage door that slides—all come packed in a "moving van" carton.

For little brother, the combination "Tool Box Work Bench" can help develop mechanical skills. It features a rugged area for pounding. Giant screws can be turned with the tools that come with the set. The vise has a safety feature, so no matter how hard the youngster turns, it cannot harm a little finger. Among the other play-parts (scaled to 2½-to-6-year-old skills) are screwdriver, claw hammer, wrench, and saw.

"Shuffles," a plastic table-top version of shuffleboard, is this year's entry from Aurora, a company which specializes in taking large games and scaling them down to "apartment size." It retails for about $10.

Another miniaturization is "Flashback," a nonstop, high-speed model-car racing set powered by an air-pressure hand-control. The set includes two cars, six feet of two-lane plastic race tracks, two-speed control, a simulated grandstand, and a pit stop. Suggested retail price, $12.

Aurora also puts out a line of build-it-yourself miniature N-gauge trains called "Postage Stamp Trains." Even the most extensive layouts can be contained on a table top.

Dune buggies are "in" with the sea-and-surf set—and now, in smaller versions, with the kiddie set. A beach jeep by Tonka is shown on our cover.

An elaborate version of the dune buggy is from Kenner, which says it is the first model that can be used outdoors as well as in the house. The child riding it can maneuver it around furniture and drive it in reverse. For safety, a long-lasting sealed alkaline battery and recharger are provided. It is powered by a 6-volt electrical system with an armature-type motor. Retail, about $59, including battery and recharger.

Road racing is growing popular in adult and children's worlds, too. Strombecker, for instance, offers "Can-Am Home Road Racing Sets," inspired by the Canadian-American Challenge Cup Series. It retails for under $40. The 24-foot racing circuit contains two steeply banked Monza-type turns, two-lane changing tracks; highly detailed cars; plug-in controllers with built-in dynamic brakes; starting track with plug-in terminals; nonsnag fence; U.L. approved power pack.

A scale of 1/48 is used for a build-it-yourself Apollo Lunar Spacecraft. The hobby kit from Revell includes cement, paints, paintbrush, and moving and detachable parts. Suggested retail price: $11.

New this year is a battery-operated electronic musical toy from Ohio Arts called "Sketch a Tune." The child follows one of 24 illustrated numbered tune cards—or he can tap out his own songs with a special pencil that activates the musical notes.

One toy which has stood the test of changing times since 1913 is the Erector Set. It and the Raggedy Ann doll vie for honors as the first commercially made toys in America. According to an Erector Set spokesman, "In every generation the kids have found their own designs, so only a few instructions are packed in the kit. In years past, they built bridges and derricks. Today, with the added motors, pulleys, and electrical devices, they build space stations."

Two new offbeat games come from Parker Brothers, Inc. "Soma," retailing for about $2.25, is a brain-taxing game. It consists of seven irregularly shaped plastic pieces, which, when put together, form a perfect cube. The mental challenge is to take the cube apart and try to restore it, using one of the million possibilities devised by the Danish inventor, mathematician Piet Hein.

"Deelie Bobbers," on the other hand, will calm the frazzled brain. It's just plain old doodling—but in the third dimension. The 10 colorful plastic-notched wheels join to create whatever forms you want, representative or abstract. No instructions are needed; just do your own thing.

The "now" game from E. S. Lowe is "Guru." Also a think game, it is a contemporary adaptation of one of the world's oldest games, GO, combining the simplicity of tic-tac-toe with the strategy of chess. The object of Guru is to maneuver 40 colored playing pieces so that five are positioned in a row.

Modern-day magic makes the Kenner "Light 'N Go Puppy" move. When the child focuses the light beam hidden in his "Light 'N Go Bone" (which is actually a flashlight with a switch big enough for small fingers) to a certain spot on the dog's collar, the dog will heel, stop, circle, or scamper away. Most magic of all, if the electrical puppy's switch is left on in the sunlight, he will romp "all by himself." No plug-in, no wires.

The "Betty Crocker Easy Bake

Kenner's Light 'N Go Puppy does his tricks when his bone-light shines.

Oven" also comes from Kenner. It operates on two light bulbs to cook desserts with miniature mixtures for cakes, brownies, and frostings. As a safety measure, the aluminum baking pans slide through a cooling chamber before eager hands can grab the goody hot from the oven.

Remco has a patent on a transistorized control circuit built by AT&T. It works on a principle similar to that which makes a garage door open while a driver is still sitting in his car. This sophisticated mechanism is featured in sound-activated toys for preschoolers called "magic whistle toys."

The "Tricky Busy School Bus," for instance, will close its door and drive off in the direction of the child blowing the "magic whistle," then make a stop and open its door. No wires or other connections. Comes complete with passengers and bus driver; you buy the two "D" batteries.

A Milton Bradley body-action game, Limbo Legs, is new this year.

This year's Hot Wheels from Mattel take curves via a Super-Charger.

"Baby Bunny," an 18-inch Remco doll who sits in a swing, can also be worn as a locket. The whistle makes the swing stop or go or the baby wriggle around "all by herself." She can also be activated by caressing—or simply telling her to swing or stop swinging. Uses three "D" batteries, not included.

And then there is a farm full of Remco whistle toys: Tricky Doodle Duck, Tricky Peter Penguin, Tricky Tommy Turtle. At the command of the whistle, they stop and go, quack, waddle, squeak, roll. They also do it Protest!—Heritage of the Pilgrims?

Snipers hold our police at bay. Sit-ins make authority a farce. Violence shakes cities as the cry "Protest!" becomes a shout. The attitude grows: If you think the law is wrong—break it!

What's your stand? Our country was founded on rebellion—on the right to protest. But can open defiance be defended? Is this a "right"... or a national outrage?

Many dissenters justify their stands on the issue of personal creed. "The Vietnam war is immoral!" is their cry. This dual loyalty to state and convictions has been a dilemma for centuries. But how often are men governed by emotion or human opinion—instead of spiritual facts?

What are these facts? Our booklet "The Christian and His Country" discusses the current ferment from a Christian point of view. It offers yardsticks for measuring unquestioned loyalty—and valid dissent. It reminds citizens in this Thanksgiving season that to keep our freedoms, our very right to protest—they MUST act to create laws within which they can live. Send for it!

at the command of clapping hands.

Not a sound-activated toy, but somewhat magic anyway, is the Remco "Tru-Smoke Diesel Truck." The smoke which puffs from the diesel exhaust stack is harmless (nothing is burning) and long-lasting. There are three battery-powered body styles in the fleet: dump truck, cement mixer, twin-boom wrecker.

New this year is the Remco "Voice Control Astronaut Base." According to a spokesman for the firm, "This is the first year space toys were this popular. It's because of the moon shot. For the first time, every television station covered it, so the kids couldn't find any cartoon program on. If they were to watch television at all, it would have to be the moonshot.

"The old-type military toys, however, seem to be at the end of their present fad because there are few tv combat shows now. It is mainly the affluent, nonmilitaristic-minded societies, incidentally, which even have war toys. Israel, under constant threat from neighboring nations, does not produce any military toys, nor does Russia."

The Astronaut Base includes an electro-phone headset to pick up the actual recordings of simulated launching, in-flight operations, rescue attempts, and for launching a spring-loaded rocket missile. The set also includes rescue helicopter, rocket carrier, security van, detailed operations, and realistic figures.

Mr. Saul Robbins, former president of the Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., and chairman of Remco, says: "Our children have fewer play opportunities than our generation had, so the parent should ask his child's preference. The child will naturally select the right toy for his personality. Today's kids have picked up some of the same problems of their parents and really need a distraction from pressures and tensions." ♦

A lot of watches tell the time (for awhile). But they don't tell the truth.

And the truth is that unless a timepiece is made like a Jules Jürgensen, it's not really made to last.

We've been makers of fine watches and chronometers since 1740. Our Swiss artisans would rather turn in their eyepieces than turn out a movement without jeweled bearings.

Every part is triple-checked before it goes into the case. And double-checked after it's in. We spend a lot of time with our watches. So you can spend a lot of time with them.

That's all we've been thinking about for 240 years. Which, as we time it, comes to seven billion, two hundred and fifty eight million, two hundred and four thousand and eight hundred seconds.

Jules Jürgensen day-date automatic, the Rivoli. 17 jewels, 18 karat gold, alligator strap. About $325. See the Jules Jürgensen collection of men's and ladies' watches from $80 to $10,000 at fine stores everywhere. Write for an illustrated brochure and name of your nearest authorized dealer to: Jules Jürgensen Corp., 352 Park Avenue South, New York.

Europe Was Our Classroom

Two young students tell about their experiences —educational and personal—attending programs sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Study

Editors' Note: Accompanied by teacher-chaperons, 73,000 U.S. high-school students last summer traveled to Europe, Asia, and Africa sight-seeing and working at 40 different schools and universities.

The American Institute for Foreign Study, founded in 1964 to encourage the understanding of foreign countries by young Americans, sponsored the six-week programs. AIFS is staffed by people from many nations and presently reaches into 10 countries.

What the teen-agers enjoyed most and how much they gleaned from their summer venture are reflected here in the recollections of both Anne Gray of Meridian, Miss., and Michael V. Seeley of Lansing, Mich., just two of the many thousands.

By Anne Gray

(Anne, 17, is the daughter of an Episcopal priest in Meridian, Miss.)

My English teacher, Mrs. Anne Sanford, became interested in AIFS three years ago. Our 20-member group last summer was her third.

I never had been abroad before and never expected to be able to go that time. My older brother (I also have a younger one and a younger sister) should have had the first chance, but he was nice about it and said he'd rather go by himself later.

Then there was the problem of money (including extras, the cost would come to about $1,000) and whether I was old enough to get the maximum benefit from such a trip. But my parents decided that this would be a legitimate use for some of the savings they had put aside for our education. And anyhow, I would receive credit in an elective at school.

Since each chaperoned AIFS group had its choice of itinerary or foreign "campus," as it was called, we chose the Contemporary Europe Campus—two weeks each in London, Paris, and Rome, including weekend trips to other places.

With a couple of hundred other students, my group flew to London in July by chartered jet. At our destination, Westfield College, London, we took morning courses and spent the afternoons in such extracurricular activities as field trips, bicycle rides, and discussion groups. We had the evenings to ourselves.

Our lecture topics in London and later in Paris were: comparative government, the modern arts and literature, sociology, economics, and foreign policy. We were divided into groups of about 30 and usually attended four lectures each weekday. After class we had time to ask questions. Our professors were natives of the country; we had guest speakers, most were government officials.

I enjoyed all that, but, of course, the things I remember best were the little individual incidents. One evening, for instance, a friend and I went to service at the church down the street from the college. Not only did the vicar greet us at the door and talk to us, but later from the pulpit, he invited us and everyone else to tea. The whole evening made my stay in London more meaningful because I had made personal contact with some "natives" on my own.

In Paris, a girl friend, Mary, and I made the mistake of being too nice to a couple of boys at a cafe. When they met us later at the Eiffel Tower, one of them asked Mary if she would be No. 6 on his list of foreigners whom he had kissed. Till then he had kissed Italian girls, Portuguese, British, Spanish, and French—but, he complained, no Americans.

He really gave her no choice. After he had gone, an elderly French couple, who had found the situation very amusing, asked Mary in broken English, "Didn't the French kiss good?"

I enjoyed the Italians most of all. They were full of life and happiness.

AIFS students hear lecture on art history and Italian in hilly Perugia, Italy.

Our overnight guide to Naples entertained us with Italian songs. And our bus driver would break into tears whenever our guide sang sentimental songs. When we asked the guide to sing "Sorrento" on our way there, the driver became so carried away that he missed the turn to Sorrento.

I think it was better to see Europe for the first time as a student than as a tourist. This way I got a taste of each country's personality and learned many things about it.

By Michael
V. Seeley

(His father works for the Eaton, Mich., farm bureau. He has two brothers and two sisters.)

Our group was organized by Mrs. Helen Hovis, who teaches art at the Eaton Rapid high school, where I went before going on to Community College in Lansing. There were 14 of us, nine girls and five boys. To collect money for the trip, the other students sold stationery and had cake sales and dances. I paid my way by working as a grocery clerk.

We picked the art history and Italian-language course. This meant that, except for a couple of days in London and Paris, we spent most of our time in hilly Perugia, Italy, where we had morning studies at the University for Strangers.

This used to be a palace, whose Etruscan arch was built in the fifth-century B.C. The girls stayed in a Catholic residence; the boys with private families, all selected by AIFS.

At the University, we met some students from Germany, Sweden, and Greece. I didn't get to know them very well, but it was interesting to find that the habits of teen-agers in Europe are similar to ours.

Meeting students from all over the U.S. was rewarding and a real experience. You learned how they felt about different questions and the way things are done in their cities.

The high point of the trip for me was our visit to Siena for the Palio, a horse race without saddle. It lasts three minutes. Palio is held twice a year in a square in the center of the city. The track is a brick road, covered with packed earth.

Horses, representing 10 of the 17 different organizations in the city, compete. Before the race, members of the organization, dressed in traditional costumes, parade. After the race is over, the winner is blessed at the cathedral. Then a celebration begins, with the winning horse the celebrity.

Some other observations:

People in most of the countries we visited are friendly, except in France, where, I thought, they are very snobbish. All the people of Italy seem to work, no matter what age; some sweep the streets daily with long, tough-bristled brooms.

European drivers are brave—I would never drive the way they do. ♦

Although it's unfair,

QUIPS AND QUOTES

A parrot's beak had grown to the point where its ends overlapped, and it was difficult for the bird to do whatever it is a parrot does with its beak. So the owner took it to a pet shop. "It's simple," said the proprietor. "It's just a matter of filing the beak down."

"But doesn't it hurt?"

"No more than when you file your fingernails, but it just takes a longer time," said the expert.

The next day the pet-shop owner received an irate call from the bird's owner. "What do you mean telling me it wouldn't hurt my parrot?" he demanded angrily. "He screamed all the time I had him in the vise!"

—Dan Bennett

One youngster to another at a wide-screen movie: "Let me know if anything exciting happens on your side."

—Dorothea Kent

A woman happened to walk by the dock just as a fisherman hauled in his big catch of bass.

"Oh," she scolded, "how can you hurt those poor fish?"

The sportsman silenced her with a glance and said coldly, "Remember, lady, if they'd kept their mouths shut, they wouldn't have gotten into trouble."

—Al Roberts

Psychologists who advise parents to spend more time with their children are just trying to drum up future business.

—Lucille J. Goodyear

A man was playing in a chess tournament, and he took his four-year-old son with him to watch the matches. At a crucial point in the final championship match against the expert who had won it the year before, the father reached out to move a knight. His four-year-old tugged urgently at his sleeve and whispered, "Daddy, don't move the horse."

The father then reconsidered his move, having realized that his contemplated move would cost him the match. He reoriented his strategy and finally won the match. On the way home, he gazed proudly at his son and asked: "What made you warn me not to move the horse?"

The child explained simply: "He looked so tired!" —Ben Cassell

NOEL

Miniature Hibiscus

An exotic touch of the West Indies, a slow, easy grower that produces magnificent blossoms. Famous as Hawaii's national flower, the Hibiscus flowers profusely. You have your choice of red or golden.

Miniature Orange Tree

Get your greatest gardening thrill when these sturdy little trees BUD, BLOOM and BEAR fruit (up to 30 luscious pieces at a time) right in your own home! Easier to grow than many common house plants, their glossy green foliage is easily shaped. It's a fine way to have fresh fruit all year 'round.

Miniature Florida Key Lime

Anyone having had the pleasure of tasting Florida's famous "Key Lime Pie" will need no introduction to this wonderful little tree. Those who have not should start a lime grove in the kitchen-window now. Eager and easy to grow indoors, the lush dark-green foliage, fragrant blossoms and subsequent fruit will provide a gardening achievement not soon forgotten.

GROWS TO 3 FT. WITH CLUSTERS OF CHEERFUL BRIGHT-RED BERRIES—only $2.98

These are marvelous true miniature trees, little botanical gems grown and developed for planting INDOORS where they blossom and thrive all year round. The shapely and festive HOLLY TREES will add a bright and cheerful touch to Christmas with their handsome green leaves and clusters of bright-red berries. Just think of the many ways you can use several to decorate your house and table both during and after Christmas YEAR AFTER YEAR... and imagine the thrill of watching these miniatures as they grow from 8 inches when you receive them to 3 feet tall! The flowers (Hibiscus and Gardenia) produce exotic blossoms, while the miniature fruit trees bear up to 30 pieces of fruit at a time, and continue to bear fruit indefinitely. Before you know it, you'll be eating fresh fruit that you'll pluck yourself! Nationally advertised in House & Garden Magazine, all are true trees, not grafts but rooted cuttings of good well-known varieties. Indoor trees are the oldest, yet newest and most exciting gardening thrill. All the miniature trees have glossy, green foliage trimmed and shaped. Beauties to have and give, you'll find they are real conversation pieces!

BEAUTIFUL FOUR-COLOR BOX FOR CHRISTMAS GIVING

Just think what a wonderful and really unusual gift these trees make. Each is in its own pot, individually boxed in an especially nice, bright, colorful package that enhances the tree. Send us your gift cards. All are shipped directly to you from Florida groves. You can have your own little grove if you order now. This year's planting is limited, and all orders are shipped in the order they are received. All sold on 30-day money back guarantee.

Florida Palm Tree

A touch of tropical Florida in your home all year. Versatile, it is America's easiest-to-grow indoors tree. Simple growing instructions will permit you to be the sole judge of the tree size — from 8 inches to 6 feet! Palms love deep shade and thrive where other plants refuse to grow.

Miniature Gardenia

Imagine the thrill of producing these delicate, fragrant, snow-white blossoms right in your own living room! Undoubtedly America's most romantic flower, they are easy to grow, have lustrous dark green foliage, up to 18 magnificent blossoms at a time, and an unforgettable fragrance. You can even make your own corsage for that special occasion.

Miniature Lemon Tree

Countless articles have been written describing the many, many years of pleasure growing lemon trees in your home. Watching these miniature trees bud, bloom and bear fruit as a direct result of your own efforts will be a great "green thumb" thrill.

Denture Invention

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds false teeth—both "uppers" and "lowers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that actually holds dentures to mouth and gum surfaces!

It's FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally. You may even eat and enjoy apples, steak, and corn-on-the-cob again.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last round-the-clock. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

A Casserole with Two Desserts!

MELANIE DE PROFT

Food Editor

The zest of fresh lemon is a refreshing taste surprise of this Gourmet Tuna and Artichoke Casserole.

Gourmet Tuna and Artichoke Casserole

- 2 cans (6½ to 7 oz. each) chunk-style tuna
- Olive oil
- ½ cup chopped green onions
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- ½ cup regular all-purpose flour
- 1 cup cooled chicken broth
- 2 cups light cream
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 cans (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained, rinsed, and sliced
- 8 oz. fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen artichoke hearts, cooked, following pkg. directions
- 1½ cups uncooked rice (cooked according to pkg. directions)
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup snipped parsley

1. Drain and reserve oil from tuna. Measure tuna oil; add olive oil to make ½ cup. Heat in a large skillet.
2. Add onion and celery and cook until crisp-tender. Stir in soy sauce, salt, and flour until blended. Slowly add chicken broth, stirring constantly. Adding slowly, blend in cream. Cook, stirring until mixture begins to thicken. Boil 1 min.
3. Stir in lemon peel and juice. Add water chestnuts, mushrooms, and tuna. Mix gently and transfer to a 1½ qt. casserole; arrange artichoke hearts around edge.
4. Heat in 350°F. oven about 20 min.
5. Blend cooked rice, butter, and parsley, and serve with the hot casserole.

6 to 8 servings

Petite Lemon Souffles

- 4 egg yolks (about ½ cup)
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- Few grains salt
- 1¼ teaspoons grated lemon peel
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 4 egg whites (about ½ cup)
- ¼ cup sugar

1. Put the egg yolks, butter or margarine, ¼ cup sugar, salt, lemon peel, and juice into top of a double boiler; mix well. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly until thickened, 8 to 10 min. Remove double boiler top from water and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally.

2. Beat the egg whites until frothy. ally add ¼ cup sugar, continuing to beat until stiff peaks are formed. Using a wire whisk, gently blend the egg yolk mixture into egg whites.

3. Spoon mixture into six 6-oz. heat-resistant glass custard cups. Set in a shallow baking pan, place on oven rack, and pour hot water into pan to a ½-in. depth.

4. Bake at 350°F. about 25 min., or until tops are lightly browned. Serve immediately.

6 individual soufflés

Maraschino Date-Nut Cake

- 2 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1½ cups drained maraschino cherries, sliced
- 1 cup (about 7 oz.) dates, cut in pieces
- 2 cups coarsely chopped nuts
- ¼ cup regular all-purpose flour
- ¾ cup butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 cups sugar
- 4 eggs (about 1 cup)
- 2 oz. (2 sq.) unsweetened chocolate, grated
- 1 cup unseasoned mashed potatoes, cooled
- ½ cup milk

1. Sift the first five ingredients together; blend well. Set aside.

2. Mix fruits, nuts, and the ¼ cup flour.

3. Cream the butter or margarine and extract. Add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Mix in grated chocolate and cooled mashed potatoes.

5. Beating only until blended after each addition, alternately add dry ingredients in thirds and milk in halves to creamed mixture. Blend in fruit-nut mixture.

6. Turn batter into a greased (bottom only) 13x9x2-in. pan and spread evenly.

7. Bake at 300°F. about 1½ hrs. or until cake tests done. Remove from oven to wire rack and cool completely in pan. Lightly sift vanilla-flavored confectioners' sugar over top of cake, or frost with a caramel icing. Cut into squares to serve.

DON'T PAY A PENNY

TILL THIS COURSE TURNS YOUR MIND INTO A

MENTAL MAGNET

That automatically draws friends, power, love, money far beyond your fondest dreams into your life OVERNIGHT!

Yes! Here is your chance to literally MAGNETIZE THE SCATTERED, DISORGANIZED POWERS OF YOUR MIND—OVERNIGHT! To focus... at a single command—your intellect, your will power and your personality to gain whatever goal you want out of life! And, in so doing, To GAIN TOWERING PERSONAL POWER OVER YOURSELF AND OTHERS—OVERNIGHT!

And do it simply, as logically, as inevitably as this:

PROVEN BEFORE MILLIONS!
IT MUST WORK FOR YOU!

I know of course that it is almost impossible for you to believe, at this moment, that you can develop such dazzling PERSONAL MAGNETISM overnight that you can attract a man or woman to you across a crowded room, by your appearance and bearing alone, before you even begin to speak to them...

that you can develop such invincible WILL POWER that you can simply crush anyone that dares oppose you, as though you were brushing a fly off your forehead... that you can unleash such overwhelming PERSONAL DRIVE AND ENERGY—POWERS OF REASONING AND ANALYSIS—KEEN FINANCIAL JUDGMENT that the men and women in charge of money-making opportunities will actually SEEK YOU OUT to participate in their profits!

I realize that these promises appear incredible to you at first glance—UNTIL YOU UNDERSTAND THESE FACTS:

The creator of this entirely-new, entirely different method of Overnight Personal Power is Harry Lorayne—America's internationally-famous "Master of Mental Magic!"

Perhaps you have seen Harry Lorayne demonstrate his awe-inspiring powers on the Ed Sullivan, or Johnny Carson, or Merv Griffin television shows! Where—by transforming his mind instantly into an incredibly-powerful "Memory Magnet"—Mr. Lorayne astounded studio audiences of 300 and 400 people by remembering every single one of their names and faces after hearing them only once!

Or perhaps you are aware of the fact that Mr. Lorayne is paid as much as $3,000 a week by over one hundred of the country's leading blue-chip corporations—TO SKY ROCKET THE POWER OF THEIR TOP EXECUTIVES' INTELLECT, WILL POWER, PERSONALITY—OVERNIGHT!

TREMENDOUS PERSONAL POWERS LIE SCATTERED—USELESS—WITHIN YOUR MIND RIGHT NOW! HERE AT LAST ARE THE MENTAL MAGNETIZERS THAT FOCUS AND UNLEASH THOSE POWERS—WITH ALL THE FORCE OF AN EXPLODING VOLCANO!

How does he do this? How does this dedicated, almost-hypnotic human being transform lazy, unfocused, easily-fatigued minds into throbbing dynamos of personal power?

The answer is simple: He subjects them to a series of fascinating Mental Exercises— which he calls MENTAL MAGNETIZERS!

Each of these "MENTAL-MAGNETIZER TREATMENTS" takes only a single evening! And each liberates such dazzling mental and personal power—that very instant—that I must warn you that you may not be able to sleep that first night for the flood of excitement that wells up inside you!

Yes, the sheer excitement of realizing that OVERNIGHT your mind is operating with the speed and power and precision of a giant computer...

that OVERNIGHT you have developed the priceless gift of taking command of others—and making them love every moment of it...

that OVERNIGHT you have shattered habits, weaknesses and limitations that had crippled you for years—and replaced them with an irresistible drive and determination that makes enemies flee from your path like ants beneath your feet!

All in a single evening apiece! All without you risking a penny! ALL ACCOMPLISHED FOR YOU simply by glancing through each of these Mental-Magnetizer Exercises in turn! And letting them strengthen ALL ELEVEN NATURAL POWERS OF YOUR MIND AND PERSONALITY—LIKE THIS:

THE FIRST EVENING—YOU TURN YOUR BRAIN INTO A GIANT MEMORY MAGNET!

We make only one demand on you: That you start with the most vital function of your mind first—your memory—and then use the incredible new memory power that you are going to develop—overnight—as a base to take INTELLECTUAL COMMAND of situations and people that would have been uncontrollable for you only a few short days before!

For example—
The very first evening alone, you automatically begin removing HIDDEN MEMORY BLOCKS that have crippled your mind for years! Once they are gone, you find your mind operating AT ITS FULL MENTAL POWER for the first time in your life! You find names, faces, facts, figures STICKING AUTOMATICALLY TO YOUR MEMORY LIKE NAILS TO A MAGNET! You find yourself capable of performing breath-taking feats of memory, OVERNIGHT, like these:
You walk into a room filled with 15 or 20 new people...meet them all...and then, when you say goodnight to them, call every one of them by name, and tell them to send your regards to their wife and children—again calling the wives and children by THEIR correct names!

You can astound your boss at work by feeding back to him like a computer step-by-step directions that he told you as much as six months or a full year before—and repeating them back to him, almost WORD BY WORD!

You can enter a discussion at a party or your club, and automatically open the floodgates of your memory as though everything you had ever heard or read was stored in a huge "filing cabinet" in the back of your brain! All this material is instantly available to you to overwhelm an opponent with facts...to quote from sources most people have never even heard of...to irresistibly press home your point and win dozens of new admirers and friends!

And this is just the beginning! Just the start of the new social, personal, financial power these amazing MENTAL MAGNETIZERS give you!

NOW YOU CAN GO ON TO MELT AWAY SOCIAL INHIBITIONS! TO ATTRACT NEW FRIENDS, NEW RESPECT, NEW LOVE LIKE A GIANT MAGNET!

Now you are shown the automatic secrets—always buried within you, but unavailable to your control before—of instant relaxation...towering self-confidence...personal magnetism...the kind of spontaneous charm that melts even icebergs...the priceless ability to instill respect and trust and even love for yourself in others—and use these emotions to gain the triumphant success and armies of friends that you might not even have DARED to dream possible before!

Think what it will mean to you to suddenly—overnight—develop the ability to DEMAND WHAT YOU WANT from other people. AND HAVE THEM GIVE IT TO YOU WILLINGLY! To get higher pay than any other person in your office for the same job...to make unfriendly neighbors, co-workers, club members suddenly long for your approval...to rekindle your mate's interest in you even if she or he hasn't looked at you in years...to gain the active support and patronage of the wealthiest and most influential men in your community—and skyrocket your career and your financial security OVERNIGHT!

Make no mistake about it—these secrets WORK! Harry Lorayne has used them to flash from an obscure, poverty-stricken childhood to an income today of as much as $3,000 for a single week's work—and you have dozens of devoted supporters, helping to make you rich!

Yes! And here's how to create fortune-building new schemes and ideas that will have others begging you to allow them to invest their money! How to make financial and business problems HALF-SOLVE THEMSELVES BEFORE YOU EVEN TOUCH THEM—so you build a million-dollar reputation as the man who can do "the impossible"! How to build razor-sharp executive judgment, and the kind of TAKE-COMMAND DECISION-MAKING POWERS that make others instinctively turn to YOU for direction, for leadership, for absolute final command!

DESIGNED TO SELL FOR $50—NOW YOURS FOR A SMALL FRACTION OF THAT PRICE!

The Harry Lorayne MENTAL MAGNETISM COURSE was originally designed as a monthly correspondence program—consisting of twelve separate sections. It was designed to sell for $4 for each Section, or $48 plus postage for the entire program.

Since this Mental Magnetism Course is completely unique...and since it allows you to accomplish feats of Mental Power that no other course, or book has ever even dared attempt before...we believe it would be an exceptional bargain at this $48 price.

However, since this original price would bar many people who desperately need this information, we have convinced Mr. Lorayne to remove the correspondence feature from the course...to take all twelve sections, and put them together in one handsome loose-leaf binder...and release the course, not for the original $48, but for only $9.98 complete.

But we do NOT ask you to pay this amount until you have proven its incredible result for yourself! What we suggest instead, is this:

SEND NO MONEY NOW!

Just mail in the enclosed FREE TRIAL coupon today! This wonder-working course will immediately be sent to you without cost, obligation or pre-payment of any kind.

Try it for ten full days, entirely at our risk. At the end of that time, if (as we believe) you are completely delighted, then send us the low cost of only $9.98.

If, on the other hand, you are disappointed in this course in any way—if it does not live up to every one of the claims we have made for it on this page—then simply return it to us, and owe nothing!

Thus you have nothing to lose. But you have incredible mental and personal magnetism—magnetism so powerful it may be hard for you to conceive of it today—to gain. Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon—TODAY.

Why You Fall in Love

A noted psychiatrist analyzes the mystery of one of life's deepest experiences

By DAVID ABRAHAMSEN, M.D.

Author of "The Emotional Care of Your Children" and the forthcoming "Our Violent Society"

YOU FALL in love. It is a wonderful moment in your existence. You don't stop to examine it—no more than you dissect a dazzling wildflower you've unexpectedly come across.

Still, in a moment of objectivity, we all have asked ourselves—how did I fall in love? And why with this certain somebody (who may well be quite contrary to our fantasies)?

There is a pattern in our love. I don't believe this takes the romance out of love. If anything, it enhances it, giving it substance beyond a poet's lovely words. It indicates that our intuitiveness is based on real human needs.

So who do we fall in love with? Usually a person who is the total of our thoughts, ideals, and emotions—technically speaking, the epitome of our conscious or unconscious ideal, someone whose personality complements our own.

This is why falling in love gives us a feeling of being new-born. We are overcome by a power that makes us happy and drives us on to higher aims. We have a sense of fulfillment.

With the sensation of falling in love goes a feeling of familiarity. "I feel as though I have always known him," a girl may say. Or a man may remark of his adored one that she makes him feel so much at home—as though they had grown up together.

This dynamic attraction is based upon deep psychological and biological desires of which the individual is seldom aware. They go far back into childhood memories of someone whom the child idealized.

A man looks at a girl. She looks back. A shock almost like an electrical charge, passes between them. They meet, date, admit they are in love. This is "love at first sight." But truthfully is this not a portrait enshrined in the locket of his mind—a depiction of his mother, a favorite sister, teacher, or friend?

She may confide that she loves him because he is tall, entertaining, and dependable. Chances are, though, she is describing a figure out of her past:

a brother, or her father, who showed her special attention.

In any case, the child identified with some human who had pleasant positive effects on him in an early stage of development. The conscious remnants appear in qualities found attractive in another: physical appearance, scent, touch, intelligence.

These traits are basically sexual in nature because they appeal to the senses. And this is what sets the stage for what we call love.

True love is a mixture of the sexual and ego-preserving instincts and shows itself in a psychic bond between two people. Sexual relations play an important part but by no means a total role.

The preoccupation with the beloved may become complete. Dr. Sigmund Freud described love as a mild psychosis—so much so that a young man or woman may pass by the home of the beloved at night and study the windows of the loved one's room and experience a feeling of ecstasy.

But love can be painful, too. The philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche said, "Love is like having a fever... When a man is in love, he endures more than at other times; he submits to everything."

This reaction may be all right if the beloved is of good character and emotionally normal. But what if the loved one is not?

Should such an attraction occur, the person is suffering from unrealized wishes for self-torture (masochism) and unconsciously seeks out a sadistic type, one who will hurt him.

As an unhappily married brilliant sea captain, who had fallen in love with a mercenary, nonintellectual shrew, once put it: "Make sure your mate will be a sail and not an anchor!"

Psychologically he had married his mother, who was always hoping some rich relative would leave her a fortune. She also looked like her future daughter-in-law. But she was cold-natured, often saying, "What is love? I never loved anyone."

This is an example of love based on ancient memories.

It is fine to marry that someone who rings the bells of our unconscious, if he or she deserves our love.

But linking with an unhappy past may be disastrous.

Why do you fall in love? It is usually a mystery to you. But it happens when you are physically, emotionally, and mentally ready.

Your drive, ambition, personality, secret hopes, and desires will determine whether your life will be filled with joy or unhappiness.

If the romantically involved could establish a bond of friendship, as well as of sex, the prospects for future happiness would be better. Sexual passion may alter with the passing years; a profound friendship endures.

The person who is truly in love should show respect, responsibility, and the desire to see the other person develop. Understanding, affection, compassion must all be part of the package. So having fallen in love and established that there is a basic compatibility of character, taste, emotion, interests, and intellectual level, the couple can hopefully face life together.

Why do some people have romance all through their lives and others do not? Some lack confidence in their charm and desirability. They would like to fall in love, but their emotional natures have been crippled, perhaps by lack of childhood love and/or maternal deprivation. They seem doomed unless aided by psychoanalysis.

Youth is especially susceptible to blind love. They are totally preoccupied with themselves, idealistic, and selfless. They want to reform completely to make themselves more desirable. They want to provide everything the beloved wants, even to the limits of self-sacrifice.

While such extreme feelings connote emotional immaturity, they also may be present in well-adjusted persons, too. The latter, however, will not remain long in this euphoric state.

Regaining their balance, they are able to weigh whether they have idealized their love object because of an immature need; whether they are trying to reform themselves into something they cannot and do not want to be; and whether they are making sacrifices that they are able and willing to make.

They may either dig themselves out of the situation before too much time has passed, or if they find their emotional attachment is sound, will bring the relationship to fulfillment.

I cannot stress too much the importance of being aware of the factors that make up a healthy personality. Let us say that an individual who has a healthy make-up will have plenty to give and still have enough left for himself.

An emotionally healthy person should be concerned neither with fame nor fortune, but with living his life in accordance with his own ideals and ideas.

Why you fall in love is based on the sum total of your life experience up to the time you do fall in love. How you handle the situation should be based on feelings and intelligence. ♦

THOUSANDS SOLD IN ALL 50 STATES
THIS YEAR — AT MUCH HIGHER PRICES!

This past year — right up to a few days ago — thousands of American sportsmen cheerfully paid dollars more for this same binocular! But at this time of year we are forced to sell out all left-over stock without delay. This is absolutely necessary to meet creditors' demands, warehouse rentals, and long unpaid U.S. Government import taxes. That's why we have reduced the price all the way down to 4.94 — complete with a heavy duty carrying case, four lens covers and handy carrying straps. Imagine it . . . this new 1969 improved PANORAMIC can actually be yours for LESS MONEY than if you bought it direct from the European factory itself! But, in order to be fair to every reader, we have placed a strict limit of only ONE to a buyer at this price. NOTICE: This offer to readers of this publication is valid for only 29 business days. Read details below.

MADE BY EUROPEAN CRAFTSMEN

PANORAMIC Binoculars are produced with great care by Old World craftsmen in a famous factory in Western Europe. Costly high-impact materials and precision machined metal parts are used. In fact this 1969 PANORAMIC is now so rugged that it's almost unbreakable! But, thanks to Space Age materials and technology, they weigh under one pound!

EACH AND EVERY ONE TESTED 38 TIMES

Not just spot checks . . . but 38 separate and distinct, scientific tests to guard against bad performance! Each and every one must meet high quality standards before shipment abroad. That's why this quality instrument sells in over 20 countries! Best of all you can own a pair for much less than factory's price to consumers!

PULLS IN 50 MILE VIEWS!

You'll never forget the thrill you get the very first time you look through these binoculars! This is the reason why: The WIDE-VIEW nonprismatic lenses bring in far-away scenes without distortion or fading. The lenses are of genuine optical crystal . . . each and every one carefully ground out, polished and HAND CALIBRATED to over 1000th of an inch! Of course this costs much more to do. But you'll really SEE the BIG difference with ONE look!

BIG SIZE FOR BIG VIEWS

PANORAMIC gives you BIG close-ups of baseball, car and horse racing, football, hunting, far away animals, people. And remember: PANORAMIC NONPRISMATIC Binoculars are terrific for secret detective work because you can observe distant happenings without being seen!

TAKE IT ON FREE TRIAL!

No risk or obligation! Yes . . . use it on FREE TRIAL for sports, theatre, nature viewing, etc. Full price back quick if you are not pleased and satisfied. You don't risk 1¢. But please remember: All mail orders must be postmarked on or BEFORE expiration date shown in coupon. So please act promptly!

TO GET THESE BINOCULARS FOLLOW THESE SPECIAL CONDITIONS:

This limited offer is based on a strict Market Quota System. Readers of this newspaper have exactly 29 business days to benefit from this reduced discount price. All mail orders filled promptly. Enclose 4.94 plus 56 cents shipping cost. IMPORTANT: All orders from readers of this publication must be postmarked on or before 11:59 P.M. of expiration date shown in coupon. No phone or C.O.D. orders. In fairness to all readers, we can make no exception to these conditions. Avoid disappointment. Mail Special Quota Coupon below — today! Orders received too late will be promptly returned to senders.

2 Year Guarantee
Each and every binocular undergoes thorough testing by European factory inspectors before shipment. Should it fail to operate satisfactorily, due to manufacturing defects, it will be repaired or replaced free of charge during the 2 year period of this guarantee. This guarantee expires within two years of the current year, that is: DECEMBER 31, 1971.

HOLIDAY MAGIC VACATION CLUB

Unbelievable but true! Up to 4 wonderful days in the glamorous city you've always wanted to visit . . . and now the cost is only $5.00 for two. No, there are no catches, no land developers to listen to, no meetings to attend, nothing to do but relax and enjoy yourself.

Holiday Magic Vacation Club, along with participating hotels, co-sponsor your vacation to introduce you to their exciting cities, their special climates and their fun-filled facilities. This is your great opportunity to visit one or more of five world famous resort areas and take advantage of up to four days and three nights of luxury living for the small amount you'd spend going to a local movie. Of course, at this price meals and transportation could not be included, but all the privileges and provisions of this remarkable offer are explained in the gift certificate you'll receive when you send in the coupon below. You'll have up to a year to use the certificate, and if for any reason you feel this offer was misrepresented, simply return the certificate within 30 days, and we'll send your money back.

We know many families will want to vacation with their children, so add $2.50 for each child you're taking along with you. Once you're there, and remember that this choice is definitely yours, you may extend your stay at the hotel, subject to availability, and pay no more than the prevailing rates.

Whether you use it as a vacation trip . . . as a gift to someone . . . or part of a business trip or combine both, act now and get in on the vacation fun.

*In Miami Beach or Palm Beach, if you choose to use your vacation certificate during the winter "season" (Dec. 15th through April 15th) there will be a charge of $7.50 per night per person. In Nevada, to avoid the crowds on weekends and holidays your Gift Certificate is exclusively for check-in on Sunday, Monday or Tuesday. During the Nevada "season" (July, August and September) a hotel charge of $3.50 per night per person will be made. In New Orleans there are no extra charges for any seasons.

The holder whose name appears on Certificate must be married and accompanied by spouse and over 24 or under 65. Two unmarried persons in the same age bracket and same sex, occupying same room are eligible. Miami Beach Vacations, Inc., and the certificate distributing agent assume no responsibility for any damage to any person, or property, resulting from the use in any manner whatever of this Holiday Gift Certificate.

This offer is limited to one certificate per family. During Xmas, Easter, July 4 and national holidays, it may be necessary to select alternate dates.

Doctor Developes Home Treatment that
HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES

In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment
Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple medicated home-treatment that rinses away blackheads and whiteheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three teen-age boys. The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough, muddy complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers, both boys and girls, are now saying "this is one product that really works", for good, clear, clean, healthy skins . . . and why mothers of teen-agers have heartily endorsed its use. The Masque Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for healthy skins, but also for the confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

heads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Queen Helene Mint Masque is only $3.00 for the six ounce jar, enough for over 3 months of daily home treatments. Buy it today! Start using it immediately! Prove to yourself at our risk, for one full month. If, at any time during the month, you are not completely satisfied, simply return the unused portion and you will get back every penny of your purchase price.

Start Now to Improve Your Complexion

Now is the time for action. Don't take a back seat or be a wall-flower because of bad skin. If you want to get your full share of fun and parties . . . clear up your complexion and let Mint Julep Masque "Lead the Way"! You owe it to yourself to try a single fifteen minute home treatment to convince yourself that this new Queen Helene masque-cream can work wonders for you.

Attention! MOTHERS of Teen-Agers

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque is a MUST for you, too! It will help tighten sagging skin on face and throat, relax tired face muscles and stimulate a fresher, cleaner, more youthful complexion. Try a Medicated Mint Julep Masque Treatment YOURSELF. You'll be delighted with the skin-tightening experience and more alive feeling that comes with every home-treatment.

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age black-heads, whiteheads, acne-pimples and rough, unsightly complexions give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, black-heads and foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that black-
