Relax In Quarantine Unit

Apollo 12's Crew 'Safe And Sound'

A 16mm camera popped free from its stowage Monday during splashdown and struck him above the right eyebrow, opening a half-inch cut that had to be stitched. And he had an ear inflammation probably caused by the atmosphere in the Yankee Clipper spacecraft.

Utility Bond Revenues Will Help Expand Plant And Extend Mains

By TOM BAINES

(One of a Series)
Part of the revenues from the proposed $4 million utility bond program, if passed on Dec. 2, will be channeled into water and sewer plant expansions as well as reinforcements within the city system and extension of mains to new commercial and residential areas.

city's water supply requirements projected through 1980 led to recommendations that the current water treatment plant capacity be expanded from three to six million gallons of water per day. Two factors were strongly considered in the studies, GUC director Charles Horne said. Daily water consumption and fire protection requirements, not including any prediction for future industrial development, call for the increased daily capacity.

across the river will have to be added, Horne said. In addition, a continuation of the main extended to the new Burroughs-Wellcome plant to tie in with a loop system reaching back to the east side of the city will be needed to furnish the new sites with sufficient water.

eight men about every 30 days when a new supply of chemicals come in for unloading. Use of the liquid type of chemicals will eliminate the need for pulling these men off their regular jobs for unloading and also handling cost will be greatly reduced.

The studies made late in 1968 did not include industrial growth and future water needs due to this growth. Therefore, the water plant capability will have to be expanded to compensate for the future industry requirements.

newly developing commercial and residential areas. Major areas of the sewer bond revenue will involve the expansion of the present waste treatment plant from four to eight million gallons per day and the extension of sewer outfalls to industrial sites into city areas not presently being served by the current system.

tend sewer outfalls beyond the Green Mill run outfall. The current main stops in the area of the Carolina Dairy and extension of the service will enable persons who have been waiting for the sewer service in the areas not previously reached to come under the city system.

explanations of the bond program have been given. Horne and utilities chairman Ed Waldrop have presented the program to various civic groups and all aspects of the program have been brought out. Passage of the bond program on Dec. 2 will not affect, nor increase, the water and sewer rates of the city.

Deer Slowly Starving To Death Once Great Herd Of Everglades

BY STRATTON L. DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
THE EVERGLADES, Fla.
(AP)—Less than 50 miles from the tinsel and glitter of Florida's Gold Coast, the remnants of a once great deer herd are slowly starving to death.

Every day brings more deaths. First to go are the fawn carrying does, and yearlings. The bucks hold out longest.

Finally the graceful creatures—their legs and their distended bellies pushing against their ribs—sink slowly to the dam grounds. Then the buzzards move in and flap noisily over nature's spoils.

For the past three weeks, this gruesome scene has been enacted repeatedly across a desolate, 914-square-mile area south of Lake Okeechobee.

The problem is water—too much water. Whose fault it is is a subject of controversy as is the toll of dead deer.

The area in which the deer are dying is called Conservation Area 3 by the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission. It is used as a water storage area by the Florida Central and South Flood Control District.

As a result of the millions of gallons of water pumped into the area by the district and of exceptionally heavy rainfall during the later half of October, the water level is far above normal.

The marsh areas where the deer live and feed are under as much as two to five feet of water. This forces the deer to congregate on the small tree islands—called hammocks—which dot the trackless sawgrass flat.

The crowded conditions make the deer easy prey to hunters, and promote disease. Competition for food is fierce.

Conditions in the glades were so bad that the hunting season was cut short Nov. 11 on orders of the game commission.

"I recommended that they never even open the season," said P. L. Causey, a Miami hunter who has headed the Air Boat Association of Florida—a hunting club—for years.

"That's nothing but wholesale slaughter out there," said Causey, whose group includes some 250 hunters. "Things are so bad I could get 100 with a stick if I wanted to. It's horrible."

Deer season opened Nov. 1 and Causey estimated between 500 and 1,000 died of starvation or were killed between then and the closing.

But Carlton Chappell, biologist for the game commission, said the figure was much lower without specifying. "The kill helped decrease competition for food," he said.

Chappell acknowledged, however, that deer were dying daily because of parasites and malnutrition.

"We don't take out any food for them. It's just not feasible," he said. "The boats scare the deer and besides they just don't adapt to different types of food."

It makes the parasite problem worse if the deer don't stick to their diets of twigs, leaves and buds, he said.

Chappell said the plight of the deer—a variety of white tail which weighs 125 pounds when mature—is caused by two things: "rain and water pumped in by the Flood Control District."

Asked whether the game commission—responsible for all animal life in the area—had asked the district to quit pumping in water, he replied: "Well, we've asked them in the past. . . . They're more interested in draining farm lands than protecting deer. But then, flood control is their function."

Tom Huser, spokesman for the district, located in West Palm Beach and extremely sensitive to criticism that its pumping is harmful to animals, says he can prove statistically the problem is no fault of the district.

"We began pumping water from Lake Okeechobee into the district Oct. 9 and the game commission's deer gauge—water measuring device located just north of Alligator Alley west of Fort Lauderdale—continued to drop," he said. "Our study showed it was the rainfall . . . something that God does."

Huser said no lake water had been pumped into the area since Oct. 22 and the water level was slowly receding. "It's average depth across the area now is about one foot," he said.

Game commission spokesmen said the water was as much as two feet higher than it should have been Nov. 1.

Chappell, the resident game biologist in the area, said the herd—estimated at between 7,000 and 9,000 head in 1966—had dwindled to about 2,500 before the water began to take its toll.

"If they don't do something pretty soon," he said, "this area will be just like Area 2—fit only for ducks and fish."

Opportunity In Politics Might Induce Shriver

BY STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP)—The most Sargent Shriver will say about his political ambitions is that he would "consider an interesting opportunity."

Right now, Shriver says, "I'm happy where I am, and I think that what I'm doing as ambassador to France is important."

This has not silenced embassy gossip about Shriver's intentions for the future, nor has it prevented the ambassador, from making discreet soundings about his political prospects in Illinois and Maryland.

Though Shriver seems to be devoting as much energy and attention to his diplomatic assignment as he did when he arrived here 18 months ago, the feeling among some embassy officials is that Shriver won't be around much longer.

Just how long, they reason, will depend on whether President Nixon yields to party pressure to replace Shriver, a Democrat who married into the Kennedy family, or on how Shriver evaluates his own chances for "an interesting opportunity" at home. In the meantime, the evidence is that both the State Department and the French Foreign Ministry are satisfied with the job Shriver has done here.

However, such circumstances created the conditions for better relations between France and America, Shriver, as chief of mission in Paris, can take credit for a measure of the improvement.

He brought with him a frank, free-wheeling "New Frontier" approach to diplomacy. This by and large has pleased the French, who customarily insist on formal speech and behavior.

Diplomats from both sides say they appreciate the flow of ideas from the ambassador's second-floor office to rebuild the close ties that bound France and the United States for generations before Charles de Gaulle became president of France.

"He's constantly bombarding us with ideas, suggestions and questions," says an overworked but apparently content embassy staff member. Another observes:

"If he asks for a memo on something, it better be on time and it better be airtight, or he won't consult you any more."

A believer in what one staff member called "person-to-person contact," Shriver has emphasized exchange visits of intellectuals, businessmen, legislators, civil servants and students.

Despite his faltering French he strives to maintain close personal contact with top French officials, and is a regular tennis partner of Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

An indication of how the French view Shriver was provided by an article this year in the authoritative National Defense Review. A ranking Foreign Ministry official, writing under a pseudonym, had this to say:

"An able and likeable ambassador, M. Shriver has worked hard at making the United States better known and more attractive in France. At the time of the monetary crisis of November (1968) one was able to note the unequivocal signs of American support for France, and the satisfaction brought about by that support."

Carter received about $50,000 of the estate. Some $10,000 went to Carleton College and three Carleton daughters. The remainder of the estate was left to the American Red Cross.

Carter claimed his aunt did not know the nature or extent of her property nor the nature of the disposition she was making.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said he is "strongly opposed to legislative sanctions on the journalistic community."

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Agnew's criticism of television news programs was well founded. "The so-called news programs too often fall prey to sensationalism and sometimes, or even usually, present a one-sided viewpoint," he said in a newsletter.

Meanwhile in New York, President Nixon's communications director, Herbert G. Klein, said he did not expect Agnew to continue his attacks on the press.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, asked in Los Angeles about Agnew's remarks on the news media, said Agnew probably feels "and I feel that the activities of the media are subject to discus-

New Senator Found Agnew Appreciated

BY WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Ralph T. Smith, the newest senator, describes Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as "a very popular fellow" with the average American.

"I've found out that in the last several weeks the vice president has become much more popular than he was before," the Illinois senator said in an interview recorded for home state broadcast.

"The American public is giving every indication of liking what he says and how he says it, and certainly I agree with those who suggest that he wouldn't be saying it if the President didn't sort of turn him on or suggest that he might talk in a certain direction," Smith said.

Agnew in speeches during the past month has been sharply critical of war protest leaders and the reporting by television commentators and some newspapers.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the same Constitution which protects the right of dissent and of free press guards Agnew's right to criticize demonstrators, commentators and newspapers.

But at the same time, Mansfield, in a statement in the Congressional Record, counseled a general lowering of voices.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said President Nixon is leading the administration on a "crude campaign to stifle dissent."

"The sinister effects of the administration's campaign against freedom of speech, assembly and press are a far greater threat to liberty in this nation than any result, no matter how unfortunate, of the war in Vietnam," McGovern said Saturday night in Bethany, W.Va.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said he is "strongly opposed to legislative sanctions on the journalistic community."

But Tower wrote constituents that Agnew initiated a significant dialogue which should remind every newsman "of the burden of responsibility he has shouldered as a journalist."

Mail Deadline To Be Dec. 10

December 10 is the deadline for guaranteed delivery of greeting cards to distant states, while December 15 is the deadline for local areas.

According to Postmaster Joe Dudley, the cost for mailing greeting cards first class is six cents per ounce. The cards may be sealed and may contain messages. The cards will be returned to the sender if undeliverable and the return address is on the card, Dudley said.

The cost for mailing Christmas cards third class is six cents for the first two ounces and two cents for each additional ounce. Cards mailed third class cannot be sealed or contain messages and are not returnable.

"It is recommended that all Christmas cards be mailed first class since the rate is the same as third class if the card does not weigh over an ounce," Dudley said. "Persons mailing cards should place their return address in the upper left hand corner so that it can be returned if it is undeliverable."

Persons should always use the street name and house number in addressing mail and should always use the zip code, Dudley noted.

"The airmail rate for Christmas cards and letters is 10 cents per ounce anywhere in the United States," the postmaster explained. "Foreign airmail rates vary to different countries and the rate to any particular country can be obtained at the post office."

All packages, Dudley said, should be well packed in a sturdy box, with heavy paper wrapping and tied securely to prevent possible damage in shipment.

Addresses on packages, as well as cards, should contain the name of the person to whom the package is going, the street address and house number, the town and zip code.

"We are anticipating considerably more mail this year than ever before and we would like to solicit the cooperation of all our patrons to help us move this increased volume of cards and packages," Dudley said.

Cards and letters should be separated into bundles for local and out-of-town delivery.

Packages and cards should be mailed early in the day in order to give postal workers ample time to sort and handle the items for out-going shipment.

The guaranteed delivery deadline for mailing parcel post packages is December 1 to distant states and Dec. 13 for near by states.

Fire Damages; Another Lost

One house was lost, two damaged, an automobile caught fire, and numerous grass fires occurred over the week-end, according to Mike Worthington, Pitt County Fire Marshal.

At 11:10 p.m. Friday night, the Robersonville Fire Department was called to a burning house on the Pitt-Martin Counties line. The house, owned by Bill Little, was a total loss with value estimated at $5,000. Occupants of the house were not home at the time of the fire. Stokes Fire Department went to the assistance of the Robersonville unit, but the house was in total flames when the units arrived.

A house behind the Greenville Airport on the Wild Life Preserve Road was damaged by fire from a burning mattress. Staton House Fire Department answered the 7:55 a.m. Sunday alarm with three trucks.

Damage was held to approximately $400 in the bedroom.

Only $25 damage was sustained when the house occupied by Aulander Barnhill on Rural Road 1517 near Stokes caught fire from the chimney. The Stokes Fire Department, going to the scene at 10:50 a.m. Sunday, extinguished the fire before it had a chance to spread.

Some of the numerous grass fires were: a field fire near VOA below Grimesland; Grimesland Fire Department answered the call at 11:50 a.m. Saturday; at 1:54 p.m. Saturday the Grifton Fire Department responded to a grass fire on North Church Street extension; on Sunday at 1:40 p.m. a grass fire on the Garris Farm near Flakland was put out by the Falkland Fire Department; a grass fire occurred on the VOA Road at Bell Arthur Sunday at 2:05 p. m., with Bell Arthur reporting; and at 2:10 p.m. Staton House and Greenville reported to 407 Moore Street in Meadowbrook to fight a grass fire. At 9:05 p.m. the Staton House Fire Department again in reported to the same address. The fire had rekindled, possibly from a burning stump.

On Sunday night at 8:05, an automobile driven by Mrs. R. H. Frankie backfired and the motor and wiring caught fire. This took place on Road 1126. The Winterville Fire Department extinguished the blaze. Damage was estimated at about $100.

Worthington reminded citizens that "it is necessary to have a burning permit any time a person is going to start a fire within 50 feet of any woods. These can be gotten from the local Forestry Service (telephone 756-0414) or information secured from the Pitt County Fire Control Center 752-5136."

"I'd also remind people to check out flues, chimneys, and the conditions of heaters, stoves and other devices used for heating homes," Worthington commented. "Often, a small repair can save the loss of a home, or even lives."

Metal Fashions Are Unveiled

By ROSLYN BARBAROSH
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) —
Stainless steel and aluminum, the stuff that pots and pans are made of, are moving out of a woman's kitchen and into her fashion wardrobe.

Well, not quite.

The seven metal fashions unveiled at a press briefing here were created for a metals firm by designers Stanley Hagler and Dorothy Melford.

The knights of old had to be bold to spend any length of time in their armor. The Hagler-Melford creations look comfortable, although the most striking creation, an aluminum shirtwaist dress, weighs about 26 pounds.

The aluminum is a type usually found in chemical equipment.
But the girl who attends a party in his rhinestone-bedecked number should have no trouble starting a little chemistry of her own. A curly aluminum wig tops the dazzling dress.

If the cocktail dress works its magic and succeeds in attracting Mr. Right, our gal can start planning her wedding ensemble.
What's more traditional than white—in this case a white velvet wedding gown trimmed in stainless steel? The skirt softly enfolds from a lifted waist to form an inverted calla lily that discreetly exposes the leg and a lining of metal cloth. The modest bride will surely want the plated cartridge brass breast-plate to cover her breast. She can compliment her outfit by carrying a bouquet of five stainless steel calla lilies.

Keeping with the times, Hagler trimmed a red crinkle leather mixicoat with a woven quarter-inch aluminum alloy, usually found in egg beaters and cooking utensils. Underneath the fiery red coat are matching pants and a tiny midriff blouse accented with chiffon lame sleeves. A snooty collar of woven aluminum completed the outfit.

Another eyecatcher was "the Solar Suit," an aluminum mesh jumpsuit with hood. The soft wrinkle free creation, which clings gently to the body, is surprisingly cool to wear.

On the more practical side,
Whiting and Davis, who made the costumes, shortly will have on the market a line of scarves.

They claim that the bright, enameled aluminum scarves, in magenta, chartreuse and aqua, are perfect for travel, since they can't possibly wrinkle.

1½ cups sifted cake flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
5 large eggs, separated
1½ cups sugar
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ teaspoon cream of tartar

On wax paper sift together the cake flour, baking powder and salt. In a large bowl, beat egg yolks until they begin to thicken and are lemon color; gradually beat in sugar—mixture will be

Readers Respond To Abby Letters

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I just read that letter from the 70-year-old widow who married a charming 73-year-old, well-to-do widower. It seems he failed to tell her that he had had surgery 6 years before, and all he could offer her was a lovely home and a gin rummy partner.

Your answer — "Most 70-year-old women marrying a 73-year-old man would be content with a lovely home and a gin rummy partner," showed you to be surprisingly naive.
Speak for yourself, Abigail.

I am a 72-year-old "bride." I buried two husbands and divorced two, and there's plenty of life in this old girl yet!

ANGIE IN MEMPHIS

DEAR ABBY: Where is that charming, well-to-do 73-year-old widower who can offer a woman only a lovely home and a gin rummy partner?

I'm a 55-year-old widow, and people tell me I look much younger. I'd love to meet a man like that. With me, he wouldn't have to apologize for his performance in the bedroom. I'd much rather sit in the kitchen and play gin rummy.

NETTIE IN MIAMI

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe that sex is so important to a 70-year-old woman that she would pass up a charming, well-to-do gentleman of 73 because he couldn't perform.

People that age get married for companionship. Talk about dirty old men. She is a dirty old lady!

JANE

DEAR ABBY: I read about that 70-year-old widow who married a 73-year-old man and wanted to get rid of him because he was no good at lovemaking anymore. She said all he could do was play gin rummy.

Well, she can throw him my way. My old man is 68, and he is no good at lovemaking anymore either, and he doesn't even know how to play gin rummy.

DORIS IN LA.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh over the letter from the 70-year-old widow who expected romance with a 73-year-old husband. I think she was pulling your leg. I don't know of any woman over 50 who is that interested in sex. And it's common knowledge that most men over 50 are also having their troubles in that department even if they won't admit it.

After 40, I think sex is very much overrated. The energy spent on it isn't worth the little you get out of it. I think middle-aged men should get out more and go fishing.

BETTY IN K. C.

DEAR BETTY: A doctor in Kentfield, Cal., has some news for you. His letter:

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with you, but when you say that a 70-year-old woman shouldn't be disappointed to find that her 73-year-old bridegroom was all finished as a lover, you obviously haven't read DR. KINSEY. He says that, at age 73, 60 per cent of the males are still potent.

A KENTFIELD, M. D.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal.
90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Beauty Hints For You
From Clara Garris

Let's talk about cleansing the skin this week. A question I hear frequently is, "I have dry, oily skin, should I use soap on my face?"

Unless informed by a professional, I find that most women can use a good mild soap followed by an application of lubricant for the dry skin or pat on an astringent for the oily skin. A nice astringent can be made from a piece of cotton soaked in water and squeezed out and then dipped into a few drops of fresh lemon juice. It tones the skin and smells nice too.

Breathalyzer Tests Prove Out

Those Tar Heels who doubted the wisdom or effectiveness of the compulsory breathalyzer tests authorized by the 1969 General Assembly should be impressed by the figures compiled since the new law went into effect on September 1.

During the month of October the number of persons charged with driving drunk on North Carolina's highways increased by 34 per cent over the previous October. In more than 70 per cent of those tested in the program since it began, those charged with driving drunk registered 0.16 per cent or more blood alcohol concentrations, considerably above 0.10 per cent concentration that is considered evidence of intoxication.

Of the 2,229 persons charged with driving drunk in October, approximately 10 percent refused to take the test as required under the new law, and in another six per cent of the cases breathalyzers were not available to the officers.

From these figures, there can be little doubt that the new law will have its effect upon those who get behind the wheel of a motor vehicle after having too much to drink. The new law clearly gives law enforcement agencies a better weapon to use against drunken drivers. It provides a greater likelihood that those offenders, once they get to court, will be punished for their violation of the law.

As in all such matters, however, there are sure to be some who come forward to say that the breathalyzer tests are taking "unfair" advantage of motorists. It was said when the state initiated the use of airplanes to apprehend speeders... a move that later was abandoned. It was said when unmarked patrol cars were first brought into widespread use in the state, and it was said when electronic speed timing devices were being considered.

Somehow those who object to providing law enforcement agencies with more effective tools with which to apprehend traffic violators seem to overlook the fact that these procedures make highways safer for all motorists. It is not "unfair" to a motorist to apprehend him when he violates a traffic law. To the contrary, it is unfair not just to that motorist but to all others to allow the careless driver to go his merry way endangering his own life and that of others.

The compulsory breathalyzer law now in effect in North Carolina is another of those meaningful, farsighted traffic safety measures that North Carolinians should applaud rather than condemn.

Foundations In A Shadow-Land

By JOHN S. LANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A loophole in federal law is letting oil and mining companies avoid $100 million yearly in taxes by funneling income through shadow foundations which give little or no money to charity.

The transactions are legal under present law, but the tax reform bill on which the Senate opens debate today would shut the loophole.

Foundations involved in the deals are granted tax exempt status on grounds they are nonprofit charitable corporations. But an Associated Press study shows the main purpose of the foundations is to serve as middlemen in multimillion-dollar deals involving banks and mineral products.

Use of the complex transactions allows oil and mining concerns to stretch benefits of the present 27½ per cent depletion allowance beyond the 50 per cent net income limitation set by Congress, federal officials said.

It also enables the firms to reduce or eliminate federal income tax liability sometimes by creating self-induced paper losses.

Involved in the transactions are sales of carved-out production payments—in essence the right to future profits from mineral deposits.

Banks are leary of buying production payments directly because the courts have held that production payments are interests in land, and the law restricts banks' land dealings.

Therefore, foundations—known in the trade as "straws"—are set up to buy the production payments, generally with money loaned by banks.

The number of foundations involved in such deals is not known, government officials said.

But a check of foundation records for Louisiana and Texas turned up more than 30 foundations whose only assets were production payments. Most had directors linked to banks or oil company law firms.

The foundations handled $118,500,000 in production payments last year and gave $145,635 to charity. This is the equivalent of one-tenth of one per cent.

Donations to charity are small because the foundations earn only the difference between the interest rates charged by banks on loans to foundations and the slightly higher interest equivalent paid by the oil companies on money received from the foundations.

A study by the Treasury Department shows that production payment transactions totaled $750 million in 1967 and $703 million last year. This represents a three-fold increase over the 1965 total.

The practice of selling production payments is older than this century, but use of the deals to avoid taxes is a relatively recent development, resulting from court decisions and government tax rulings.

Treasury officials said one tax dollar is lost for every seven dollars involved in the deals. Therefore, they said, carved-out production sales cost the government over $100 million annually in tax revenues during each of the last two years.

Bank and mineral industry representatives, who are opposing changes in the present tax law, deny that production payments are used primarily to avoid taxes.

Tax returns of mineral companies, which would disclose exactly how much the deals helped specific firms, are confidential under law.

But an example of a bank-foundation-oil company arrangement can be found in New Orleans. There eight foundations list clerks and tellers of Whitney National Bank and members of the bank's law firm as directors.

One of them, the Thirteen-Hundred Foundation, handled production payments in 1967 and 1968 totaling $2,926,353. Its net income during that period was $273 and its sole contribution to charity was $25.

George P. Bywater, vice president of the bank, termed the foundations "just a tool for bookkeeping purposes."

HEW Proves Too It Is Far From Infallible

Like most other operations, government or otherwise, the Department of Health Education and Welfare is far from infallible in spite of the opposite impression its officials like the public to have.

A couple of days ago the HEW announced it had erred in a previous statement that 14 North Carolina school districts were among the list ordered to desegregate fully by December 31. The department, in correcting the error, said that only 11 of 25 districts in the state faced loss of federal funds unless they comply with desegregation orders by year-end. The other 14 face enforcement hearings, but not the cut-off of funds.

While this situation apparently involved an error in mechanics, it makes one wonder again about more far-reaching errors in judgment that also seem to accompany some of the HEW orders that go out to school districts in various states.

Lindsay Keeps The GOP Tag

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An important reason why Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York decided to remain a registered Republican for the time being was a plea from one of the party's power brokers of the recent past: Herbert Brownell.

Brownell, campaign manager for both Thomas E. Dewey and Dwight D. Eisenhower, also was Lindsay's political mentor at the start of his political career in the early 1950s. Thus when Lindsay was besieged with offers to switch over to the Democratic party in the wake of his reelection Nov. 4, Brownell contacted him and urged him not to make any precipitous decisions.

He was not alone. Liberal Republicans both in and out of New York (Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois telephoned from Washington, for example) contacted Lindsay and urged him to stay within the Republican party. Reminders came from some of the big liberal Republican money men in Manhattan who reminded the Mayor they had stayed with him through adversity this year even after he lost the Republican nomination in June.

As a result, Lindsay probably will remain Republican, at least nominally, through 1970 and not consider party switching until 1971. However, he may well oppose the probable bid for a fourth term for Governor by Nelson Rockefeller, Lindsay's old foe within the Republican party, particularly if the Democratic nominee is Arthur Goldberg, whose late endorsement was critical to Lindsay's election as Mayor.

A footnote: Stephen Smith, the Kennedy brother-in-law who has swayed back and forth in thinking about running for Governor, is interested again. He had finally and firmly decided against running last summer and, after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's accident, advised friends he had not changed his mind. More recently, however, Smith's interest has

The Moratorium Fall-Out

It was Sunday the 16th in Washington, and the last of the planned Moratorium programs had wound up the night before. Now a few of the exultant leaders were meeting at the Continental Hotel to talk of the future. Their aim: to form a new political party.

To judge from fragmentary reports in the press, nothing very tangible emerged from the meeting. There was some talk of a party name—the Peace Party, the New Party, the New Radical Party, possibly the New World Party. About all that was agreed was that the political power evidenced in the Moratorium should be put to work in the next presidential election. On that note, the session adjourned.

In this politically sensitive city, one may be certain that seismographs quivered all over town. Up in the Senate Judiciary Committee, where the House proposal for direct elections of Presidents has been languishing for two months, the needle ran off its dial. It is entirely possible that one unexpected consequence of Moratorium Day will be a slow death for electoral reform.

Under the present system of presidential elections, third parties have a hard row to hoe. In most States, merely getting on the ballot is a formidable task.

Yet there is something in the perverse and fractious nature of the American independent that drives him to third parties anyhow. We have not seen the Vegetarians, Greenbackers or Bull Moosers in recent years, but we have seen others: Prohibitionist, Socialist, Socialist Labor, Socialist Worker, Progressive, Communist, Union, States Rights, Farmer-Labor, Workers, Peoples, American, American Independent, Liberty, Liberal, Universal, Christian National, Afro-American, Constitution, and Henry Krajevski's famous New Jersey movement of 1952, the Poor Man's Party.

Of these, only two or three have had any significant effect upon our presidential elections. The pull and haul in 1948 of Progressive Henry Wallace and States Righter Strom Thurmond theoretically affected the electoral votes for Dewey and Truman. And last year, of course, American Independent George Wallace claimed 46 electoral votes and scared the bejebeers out

Other Editors Say A Plug For Scouts

(Wallace Enterprise)

Warren Puckett, a young man from Camden, Tennessee, asked the "Camden Chronicle" if they would reprint an editorial taken from the pages of Communist Russia's official newspaper, "Pravda," which means "truth" in definition only. The lad read the editorial in his copy of "Boys Life," the magazine of the Boy Scouts of America.

Here is the official word from the Communist mouthpiece: "A Pravda survey reveals that an organization called the Boy Scouts is turning American youngsters into hostile, warmongering imperialists. Every boy who is forced to join the Boy Scouts is trained to be a master of all forms of espionage, violence and germ warfare. He quickly becomes a tool of the ruthless United States Government.

"At the age of eight or nine, innocent American boys are forcibly herded into an organization called the Cub Scouts, which prepares them for the future foul deeds.

"The Cub Scout dictators force the youth to worship the wolf, one of the most vicious and uncivilized of predatory animals.

"After three years of servitude in the Cub Scouts, the boys, now howling adolescents, are forced to join the older, more corrupt Boy Scouts. The most deceitful ritual is the shameful 'Court of Honor,' where the young warmongers are decorated with so-called 'merit badges.' It is here that they receive awards in such insidious fields as 'swimming' (underwater demolition and sabotage); 'pathfinding' (counter-espionage); 'pioneering' (exploitation of underdeveloped nations).

"In their efforts to completely control American youth the Scout czars have also set up a sister organization called the 'Girl Scouts of America.' This ill-conceived group turns girls into unpaid door-to-door cookie vendors. The proceeds of these sales, of course, go to the Wall Street masterminds of the entire plot."

Little wonder that some foreign spectators who take "Pravda" literally have a low opinion of America. On the other hand, sophisticated readers know that if "Pravda" attacks something, it must be good. So, thanks for the plug, Ivan. We think the Boy Scouts are great.

Strength For Today

BEING PRACTICAL

Truth is not of much value unless it is applied to something creative. The ivory tower is a symbol of mental and spiritual death. There still remains, of course, the necessity for meditation, reflection, and the examination of truth, both ancient and modern. But the truth of the laboratory must bring forth procedures that in some way lead to human betterment. There may be an academic interest in discovering truth for truth's sake, but truth must be put to some human use if it is to reach its highest fulfillment.

From the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison went forth inventions that have done much to transform the life of the whole world. We may, and should, regard the destruction of cities by atomic bombs with horror, but most scientists are convinced that we stand only at the threshold of discoveries regarding atomic power that will amaze and perhaps transform the whole life of the world. This conclusion is, of course, based on the hope that someone on some fateful day will not press the wrong button and blow us all off the planet.

With the possibility of staggering catastrophes staring us in the face, we must nevertheless press onward to the application of truth as we know it. Abstract truth must press on until it becomes concrete—until the findings of science may emerge in the field of medicine with new cures, in industry with new products, in international relations with renewed endeavors to make the world a better place in which to live.

Prices Rises Even In Recession

By ELMER ROESSNER
Even if the administration's measures to check inflation create a recession in the United States in 1970—and they might—prices will keep on going up.

Of course, if unemployment rises, there will be price drops in two sectors: there will be price cuts on distress merchandise and prices of some foods will decline. If a merchant in an area hit by layoffs has a large stock of, say, refrigerators, he is going to cut prices no matter what the manufacturer says about price maintenance. And if this happens in many areas, and the manufacturer finds unneeded refrigerators stacking up in his warehouse, he too is going to cut prices. Similarly, when there are layoffs, the unemployed buy less expensive food. Despite pockets of poverty and hunger, America, as perhaps no other nation in history, has been eating as high on the hog. Even a mild recession can change that fast, and a softening of demand can lower prices. Food has to be sold quickly because it would be costly to can, smoke or freeze it until the next boom comes along.

ELMER ROESSNER

Built-In Escalation

Nevertheless, if there is an economic set-back, most prices will keep on going up. A major reason is that practically all existing labor contracts provide for increases in 1970 and many call for increases in 1971. With higher wages, things are certain to cost more. After a manufacturer clears his stock of refrigerators, there will still be some demand for them, and even if he has laid off half of his employees those who make new refrigerators will get higher wages and the price of the boxes will have to go up.

Most all of the workers engaged in transportation of goods and people have contracts providing for pay increases in 1970, and this will add to the costs just about everything. The railroads were given Interstate Commerce Commission approval last week for a 6 per cent rise in freight rates. That will cause higher prices next year, if not sooner. It's Happened Before

A Pain In The Neck

By RANDALL COLLIER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Music—the universal language that soothes nerves, brightens lives and fills a home with happiness, can also be a pain in the neck.

But the real culprit may be the machine it's played on. In demand now are those new fangled, extrapowerful stereo sets that according to the ads, "bring Johnny Cash right into your living room."

The ads are tempting and pretty soon you have to go to your neighborhood music store to hear for yourself those powerful woofers and tiny tweeters.

Sure enough, the sound is magnificent as the salesman turns the volume up and the store windows vibrate.

Finally, after hearing 20 different sets and twice that many speakers you decide on one you like and ask the salesman to deliver it. That's the first mistake. "We'll have it in your home in three days," the salesman promises. Three days pass, and then a fourth and at the end of the fifth day you call to inquire.

The salesman tries to butter you up by saying "the set you want is in such a demand that we've run out. But come Monday morning it will be like..." "Yes, yes," you interrupt, "it will be like having Johnny Cash singing in the living room."

Monday finally comes and lucky you, you're off work, so you unpack the different boxes and start attaching wires and screws. When everything is unwrapped, bolted, wire and the speakers are in place you turn it on, waiting to hear sweet music.

Instead, there's nothing. "It doesn't work," you tell the salesman over the phone.

"It's probably just a little thing," he replies. "Have you checked the fuse?"

"Fuse?" you ask. "Does it have a fuse?"

"Of course it has a fuse. Look on the back."

You look on the back and sure enough, it has a fuse. At least it has a hole where a fuse is supposed to be.

"Mine doesn't have a fuse. Where's my fuse?" you demand.

"I don't know. Are you sure you didn't lose it?" he says, trying to put the blame on you.

At last the fuse is found and it's time for music. "First the stereo-FM," you say to yourself, as you twist the dial. All there is static and as you're getting ready to call the salesman again, you wife advises that you've forgotten to get an antenna.

At last, sweet music!

You get your favorite album out. It's a Mexican mariachi record by some guy named Pancho Avitia.

Sure enough, you would think he was in the living room. But there's a catch. The man in the apartment upstairs thinks Pancho's in his living room too and he begins to pound his floor. Soon he's at your door ranting and raving.

By this time you wife is at your side and you think she's going to back you up. "I was playing that record because my wife is a Mexican," you tell the neighbor.

And your wife retorts: "Don't get me mixed up in this fight. I think it's a lousy record too."

Now you're at the end of your rope. You call the salesman back but he says you can't return the stereo. "All sales final," he reminds you.

Furthermore, the high rate of savings will give many consumers funds to draw upon, thereby tending to support prices.

Note that in three of the last four recessions, stock price averages have been higher at the end of the recession than at the beginning.

Furor Mounting Over Alleged Massacre In Vietnam

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)— Army spokesmen say regulations prevent them from clarifying whether 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is accused of pulling the trigger or issuing the orders in the alleged murder of 109 Vietnamese civilians.

But while the Pentagon was being vague on the specifics of its case, a man identified as a former soldier said in a television interview Monday night that he killed 10 to 15 of the Vietnamese under Calley's orders and that the officer also shot a group of villagers. The former Army private's name was given as Paul Meadlo, 22, of Terre Haute, Ind.

And as the furor over the alleged massacre grew, members of Congress began moving toward their own investigation of the incident.

The Army said Monday Calley would be court martialed on charges of premeditated murder in the 1968 raid on the village of My Lai.

The specifications were explicit in saying that Calley did "with premeditation murder ... Oriental human beings ... by means of shooting them with a rifle." The six specifications listed a total of 109 victims including a two-year-old child.

Pressed by newsmen, the Army finally issued a legalistic statement saying:

"Whether Lt. Calley is alleged to be the actual perpetrator of each of the murders charged in the specification, or whether he is charged as an aider and abettor, or as one who counseled, commanded or procured the commission of the offenses would require a rather detailed discussion of the evidence in the case."

Regulations prohibit this, the Army said.

Nevertheless, the Army said that under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Calley would be liable for conviction on charges of premeditated murder "under any of the three theories mentioned above."

If convicted, the Waynesville, N.C., man would be sentenced either to death or life imprisonment since the case is being treated as a capital offense, the Pentagon said.

The court martial, to be held at Ft. Benning, Ga., around the first of the year, may be unprecedented for the Army as far as numbers of alleged civilian murders are concerned.

The South Vietnamese Defense Ministry issued a statement last Saturday saying there had been no massacre in the raid.

In the CBS television interview, Meadlo said he was a member of Calley's company at the time of the My Lai operation.

Moose Rally To Salute New Official

Moose of roughly a dozen lodges in eastern North Carolina assembled here Sunday in a tribute to their new State Director, Nandor Kozma, Jr., formerly secretary of the Swansboro lodge.

The fraternity enrolled 128 new members in a special class gathered for the occasion. They were formally inducted by the Greenville ritualists. Forty-one of the candidates were added to the Greenville lodge.

Kozma welcomed the new members, as did Eastern Vice President Gordon Brunson (Rocky Mount, and former State Director Bill Moon (pfaftown). Four district presidents were in attendance.

Trophies for the best scrapbooks in their respective classes (based on lodge enrollment) were presented to the Greenville and Snow Hill lodges. The judging was performed at the last state convention.

Those added to the roles of the Greenville Lodge, were: Norman R. Anderson, Richard F. Anderson, Henry A. Andrews Jr., David R. Avery, J.C. Bowen, Jesse R. Boyd, Edgar A. Bryan, F. Dudley Bryant, Alton L. Cahoon, George W. Chalfont, Loren E. Clark, Jerry Creech, Jack A. Donnelly, Daniel J. Dunne III, Joseph Gillock, Preston Harrington III, Edwafd Hicks, George S. Hill, Walter E. Hines, Dale Lewis, Lonnie T. Little.

Elwood Goodson, Jr., served as class representative.

Two Senators Call For Inquiry Into 'Massacre'

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)— Two senators have called for a congressional investigation into the alleged massacre of South Vietnamese civilians by U.S. soldiers, and Majority Leader Mike Mansfield says there must be a government inquiry because "there's been so much smoke."

But Mansfield said any Senate investigation should wait until after the court martial ordered by the Army in the case of 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr., accused of premeditated murder of 109 South Vietnamese villagers.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., urged investigations by both the Pentagon and the Senate, while Sen. Stephen Young, F-Ohio, said he has asked for an immediate investigation by the Senate Armed Services Committee. It seemed unlikely the panel would take up the alleged mass killings while a court martial inquiry is in progress.

"You can't have more than one operation at a time," Mansfield said. "I think the Army ought to have the opportunity to conduct its own inquiry."

Mansfield said after that process is complete, the Senate panel should decide whether further investigation is needed.

Calley was the first American soldier formally charged in connection with the reported mass slayings at My Lai village. Another Army man has been accused of assault with intent to murder Vietnamese villagers.

and the Army is investigating 24 other men.

In the House, Chairman L. Mendall Rivers of the Armed Services Committee said Monday he has asked the Army for its files on the incident to see if his panel should investigate. "We'll be sitting as a kind of quasi-grand jury," said the South Carolina Democrat.

In a Senate speech, Young said he already has asked for "an immediate investigation of this sordid affair ..."

He said the case is evidence of "the brutalization of a generation of Americans by our involvement in an immoral, undeclared war," and likened it to the conduct of Nazi storm troopers.

Percy said the Pentagon had sacrificed public confidence "by incredibly hiding the facts" of the alleged massacre at the time it occurred 20 months ago.

The Army announced Monday that Lt. Gen. William R. Peers has been assigned to determine whether the brigade involved in the March 1968, incident had tried to cover it up in an earlier, lower level investigation.

Outing For Girl Scouts

Forty Greenville Junior Girl Scouts and four leaders from Troop 97 and Troop 328 spend Friday and Saturday at the Pitt County Wildlife Club.

Taking advantage of the facilities and grounds of the club, the scouts worked on camping skills, fire building and outdoor cooking.

Following a joint campfire and group singing Friday night, some girls camped outdoors while others camped inside the building.

The two groups participated in a flag ceremony and hiked to the river for a scout's own Saturday morning.

All meals were prepared outdoors by the scouts. Troop 97 was chaperoned by Mrs. James Smith, and Mrs. Stephen White. Troop 328 was chaperoned by Mrs. Donald H. Tucker and Mrs. Robert Leith.

Warn 700-800 May Die In Holiday Traffic

CHICAGO (AP)— The National Safety Council estimates that 700 to 800 persons may die in traffic accidents during the four day Thanksgiving weekend.

The period covered by the estimate extends from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

The figures announced Monday were the first council estimate for a Thanksgiving weekend. Until now, the council had considered Thanksgiving a stay-at-home day of feasting which generated no heavy volume of highway traffic.

The death toll over Thanksgiving in recent years moved the council to alter its position. Traffic accidents took 764 lives during the Thanksgiving weekend last year, the highest in history for any four-day holiday period.

Financial Needs Are Underlined

DETROIT (AP)— More than a third of the Roman Catholic schools in the Detroit archdiocese are in danger of being closed due to financial problems, officials of archdiocese said Friday.

John Cardinal Dearden, archbishop of Detroit, wrote pastors that an immediate study will be made to determine which schools must be closed.

Officials said 132 schools, with total enrollment of 65,000 students, are losing money. There are 350 schools in the eight-county archdiocese.

Lobbyists Spend Over $1 Million

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— California's 480 registered legislative lobbyists spent $33,779 during October, pushing their reported outlay in efforts to influence lawmakers over the $1 million mark this year.

An examination of records kept by the legislature also showed $7,583 in previously unreported expenditures from earlier in the year.

Leading in expenditures for October was Calvin Rossi of the California Teachers Association with $2,870.

Lobbying expenses have exceeded $1 million in recent years.

The Gobbler Is A Nervous Bird

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— The Thanksgiving gobbler is a nervous bird all the time, not just in November.

He has high blood pressure and the slightest provocation will excite him, says Dr. Robert L. Hamlin, associate professor of veterinary physiology at Ohio State University.

Hamlin and OSU researchers are studying turkeys to gain more information and understanding about hypertension—high blood pressure—and a heart disease called dissecting aortic aneurism, common to man and turkeys alike.

Have To Explain Arm In A Cast

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Eleven-year-old Lisa Gerritsen has created a problem of writers of the television series "My World and Welcome To It."

The youngster, who plays daughter Lydia in the series, fell from a horse in nearby Malibu over the weekend and broke an arm.

So now the scriptwriters will have to figure some way of explaining the cast she probably will have to wear for at least six weeks.

Series Of Traffic Collisions Monday

More than $1,000 damage resulted from a series of traffic collisions here yesterday.

Officers said Thomas George Reed, 20, of Route 1, Grimesland was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following a 5:20 p.m. collision on N.C. 43 120 feet south of the Forrest Hill Drive intersection.

The Reed car, police reported, collided with a car driven by Sam Hardy Jr., 23-year-old Negro of Route 3, Greenville and caused an estimated $150 damage to the Reed car and about $100 damage to the Hardy vehicle.

Cars driven by Charles Vestal Wilkerson Jr., 25, of 3003 South Elm St. and Russell Wiggins Meeks, 63, of Route 4, Greenville were involved in a 5:10 p.m. collision at the Charles and 14th Streets intersection.

Damage to the cars was set at $250 to the Wilkerson auto and $300 to the Meeks car.

Meeks was charged with failing to yield the right of way. Oscar Lee Telfair, 25-year-old Negro of Simpson was charged with failing to stop for a signal light after his car collided with a vehicle driven by Otis Earl Cobb 35, of Route 5, Kernersville at the intersection of Fifth and Pitt Streets about 2:10 p.m.

Officers placed damage at 150 to the Cobb vehicle and $200 to the Telfair car.

Investigation is continuing in a 6:20 p.m. collision on Page Street, 200 feet South of the Third Street intersection.

Police reported a car driven by Charlie E. Frank Edwards, 42-year-old Negro of Route 1, Greenville, and another car collided causing an estimated $400 damage to the Edwards vehicle.

Police, who said the driver of the second car involved got out and ran, reported it was owned by Sam Taylor Jr. of Route 1, Bethel.

Schools To See 2-Day Holiday

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the city schools of Greenville, announced that all schools will be closed Thursday and Friday for the Thanksgiving holidays.

There will be no half-holiday on Wednesday as has been the case in some years past, Dr. Cleetwood stated. "We will have a full day school Wednesday before the holidays," he noted.

Opinion . . .

Rose High School while under suspension on Friday, October 24, 1969.

It was further noted that "at the time of the hearing in this Court, none of the five students had formally requested a hearing by the administrative panel."

Judge Larkins took cognizance of the affidavits of the defendants. "On Sunday, November 2, Theodore Gray, a black student who is vice-president of the Rose High Student Body, contacted Dr. Cleetwood on behalf of the suspended and dismissed students and their parents and requested a hearing for them before the Greenville City Board of Education. Dr. Cleetwood and Dr. Aycock agreed to such a meeting and informed Theodore Gray . . . that the Board would listen to the students at 4:00 on Tuesday, November 4 at the central office in the Board Room. . . . None of the suspended or expelled students appeared for the meeting."

After the individual hearing of the five expelled students on November 17, transcripts were furnished Judge Larkins.

Noting "the Court . . . received the transcripts . . . consisting of 262 pages, and the Court having reviewed said transcripts as well as the affidavits . . . and the oral argument of counsel . . . this Court is of the opinion that the decision to expel them for the remainder of the school year was not based solely on the race of the students or their attempts to exercise their legitimate constitutional rights, as alleged in their complaint, but was based on legitimate considerations and concepts of the school administration in the performance of their duties of operating the school in an orderly manner."

This opinion was followed by six pages of highlights of testimony of the conduct of the five students—beginning with incidents in September in the case of one student and culminating in the action of all five on October 24, the day of the major disturbance at Rose.

In the section of the document "Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law" which follows review of the facts submitted by both sides, Judge Larkins' statements, in part are:

"1. The plaintiffs have failed to show that . . . they are being deprived of any substantive or procedural rights under the Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment or any other rights guaranteed them by the U. S. Constitution.

"2. This Court takes judicial notice that a tense racial situation prevailed on or about October 24 at the Rose High School. . . .

"3. In balancing (1) the necessity for avoiding the undermining of the authority of the Greenville City School officials and (2) the rights of the other students in Rose High School and their parents to an orderly administration and operation of the school system and (3) the failure of the plaintiffs . . . to establish that their dismissals were in fact the result of their being black and their being members of the black grievance committee—against the harm being done to these five students by their forced absence from school . . . this Court is of the opinion that the plaintiffs are not entitled to preliminary relief pending, a final determination of their claims on the merits.

"4. The findings of this Court . . . are limited solely to this decision on the Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction . . . These findings in no way constitute a final decision by this Court on the merits of the plaintiffs claims, either as to the allegations made in the present motion or the other allegations of the complaint.

"5. This Court makes no findings and states no opinion . . . on the question of whether the . . . expulsion of the five students for the remainder of the 1969-70 school year or the procedure authorized by North Carolina General Statutes . . . for the suspension and dismissal of students by the principal meet the requisites of due notice and a fair hearing under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment."

PTI Board

December 12th.

Board members were told that the staff at Pitt Tech is doing all that can be reasonably expected to minimize or prevent any conflict that might arise between students, teachers and staff. There have been no problems.

Given full approval by the board was a plan formed to cope with any disruptive activities and "procedures to be used in disciplinary activities involving serious penalties". Student conduct, dismissal policy and hearing procedures are outlined in the student handbook which is given to each student.

Under the policy covering "Disruptive Activities" it is stated, "when the situation warrants, school officials will notify proper authorities to report to the campus and follow guidelines developed by the Governor dealing with such activities."

In other business trustee Joseph M. Taft was sworn in for a new term by chairman Dr. Robert Lee Humber.

Architect George Shoe reported that the original contract on the new classroom and laboratory building is essentially complete and extra work on the third floor where library facilities were added is about 75 per cent complete. Shoe said all work should be completed by the contract date of December 15. Total cost is $683,762.91.

Chairman Humber commented on the "limited acreage available to expand the Pitt Tech campus," and told member they "should think in terms of 250 acres to accommodate growth of the school in the future."

Humber appointed a nominating committee composed of Clinton Everette, Bethel, Chairman; Ed Davenport of Farmville and Corey Stokes of Ayden. The committee will report back at the January board meeting.

Pitt Tech President Dr. W. E. Fulford reported that the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools was pleased with the school's reaction to recommendations made by a special study committee recently and he was hopeful for membership and full accreditation by the Association. The Association will hold its annual meeting in Dallas, Texas in December and an official announcement is expected at that time.

POLICEMAN OF THE YEAR . . . Lt. Clifton Warren of the Greenville Police Department was presented a plaque bearing this inscription by Col. Harry Hagerty on behalf of the local Pilot Club last night. Miss Mildred Mallard looks on.

Warren Is Chosen Policeman Of Year

The Greenville Pilot Club has named Lt. Clifton Warren as local "Policeman of the Year."

Col. Harry Hagerty presented Lt. Warren the award last night. A member of the Greenville Police Department since 1955, Warren has advanced through the ranks to his present position. Police training courses he has attended include the following: bank robbery cases, tear gas training, handling of abnormal persons, lottery and gambling investigation and pursuit driving—all FBI courses; the 1965 Law Enforcement Academy; the 1966 Supervisor's School; a local Government School; a civil disturbance course; and police executives and FBI confidential briefings.

According to his associates, Lt. Warren's philosophy is "fairness to all persons, devotion above and beyond the call of duty, and steadfast loyalty to the Police Department." They said he believes that "respect for the uniform is earned, that it does not come with the uniform, and that it is not demanded," and further, they said, he believes in "being a peace officer" as well as a law enforcement officer.

A Stokes native, Lt. Warren and his wife, Nancy, have a daughter, Debbie, ten, and a son, Cliff, five. He is the son of Mrs. Daisy Cox Warren Cox Warren and the late Elmer E. Warren. A Stokes High School graduate, he is a veteran of two years in the U. S. Army.

According to Miss Mildred Mallard, Pilot Club president, "Pilots in Greenville have said thank you to Lt. Warren for being at his post of duty and for his devotion and loyalty to the responsibilities of his tasks, knowing that his family, too, has shared him with unselfishness to public service to Greenville citizens."

Before the award was made, Utilities director Charles Horne discussed the proposed bond issue to be voted on next week.

Fatal Beating

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C. (AP) — Five youths are being held on charges they beat a 17-year-old boy to death in a park while a crowd of 15 or 20 teen-agers watched.

The Rocky Mount youths are accused of first-degree murder in the death of Jimmy Garland Collie, 17, of nearby Rt. 1, Nashville.

Rocky Mount Police Chief D. C. Hooker said those charged are Michael Melvin 17; Edward A. Dawson, 17; Larry Powell, 17; Larry Donald Pittman, 19; and James Adams, 19.

All are held without bond pending a hearing in District Court.

Hooker said the beating grew from an argument between Collie and Melvin over a girl. The two went to Aycock Park in Rocky Mount to fight Saturday night, he said.

Hooker said all five youths attacked Collie at the park, beating and kicking him while bystanders watched. He was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Hooker said first reports from an autopsy indicated the victim died of a concussion.

Dawson is a pupil at Nash Central High School in Nash County and Melvin and Pittman attend Northern Nash High, he said.

Colson Is Named Player Of The Week

Belvoir Takes Fifth Straight Win, 58-44

BELVOIR — Belvoir-Falkland's Eagles picked up their fifth straight victory last night, downing Bear Grass, 58-44. In the girls contest, Bear Grass took a 30-15 win.

Frances Leggett led Bear Grass with 19 points. In the boys game, Belvoir took an early lead, and moved steadily away, and was never in any trouble after the opening minutes. By halftime, the Eagles had built up a 32-17 lead.

Bethel Gains 55-41 Win Over Oak City

BETHEL — Bethel's Indians broke through the .500 mark last night to take their third victory in five starts, as Oak City fell to them, 55-41. In the girls game, the Squaws rebounded from their first loss of the year to beat Oak City, 43-21.

City, 13-4, to pull away and win easily. Carolyn Whichard led Bethel with 14 points. Bethel shot away to a 16-8 lead in the first period of the boys game, but like the girls, had to struggle to stay ahead in the second frame. Oak City put on a rally, outthitting Bethel, 15-9, but the Indians held onto a 25-23 lead at intermission.

Record-Setting Career Closes

Butch Colson, East Carolina University's stellar fullback, wound up his collegiate career Saturday with one of his most outstanding games, and it brought him one final honor in the Southern Conference.

Texas Takes Over As Leader In AP's Poll

By KEN RAPPOPORT Associated Press Sports Writer Goodbye, Columbus... hello, Austin. Those famed residents of Columbus, Ohio, the Ohio State Buckeyes, went the way of all flesh in Saturday's football action and now Texas sits in the catbird seat as the nation's No. 1 college team.

Associated Press' nationwide panel of sportswriters and sportscasters voted Texas into the top spot Monday. The Longhorns, although idle over the weekend, took over the top ranking with 33 first place votes and 748 points. The Buckeyes, who had 736 points last week, collected 509 and spilled to fourth.

Arkansas's Razorbacks, who moved up a notch to second after a day off Saturday. Arkansas collected 603 points and no first place votes.

S. Edgecombe Downs Stokes

STOKES — South Edgecombe swept a pair of games from Stokes-Pactolus last night, downing the boys 67-48, while the girls fell, 53-7. In the girls game, the powerful South Edgecombe girls had enough at the end of the first period to win it, jumping off to a 10-1 lead. In the second period, South Edgecombe continued to hold complete sway in the game, outscoring Stokes, 16-0, for a 26-1 lead at halftime.

South Edgecombe continued to hold sway in the third period, out-hitting Stokes again, 14-6, to push into a 42-39 lead. The final frame saw the guests outscore Stokes, 25-9 to roll to the easy win. South Edgecombe was led by Dudley Ethridge with 17 points, while Bobby Webb and Phil Webb each had 12.

Hannen Takes Scoring Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Davidson's George Hannen, an all-around handy man who snags passes like he has glue on his fingers and runs like he has wings on his feet, is the 1969 individual scoring champion of Southern Conference football.

Hannen wound up the season with 70 points, getting into the scoring column in each of Davidson's last nine games while claiming the title captured last year by his Wildcat teammate, Mike Kelly.

Richmond end Walker Gillette, who caught a touchdown pass in the Spiders' season-ending victory at William and Mary Saturday to boost his 10-game point bag to 66.

A couple of two-point conversions gave Hannen his slim advantage over Gillette. Each scored 11 touchdowns.

Trailing the top two were The Citadel's Tony Passander, with 56 points; Davidson placekicker

Ed Terry, with 53; and Davidson's Gordon Slade, with 48.

Two conference players — The Citadel's Bob Duncan and East Carolina's Billy Wightman — finished with 42 points apiece. Richmond placekicker Mike Dussault had 40 and Billy Watson of The Citadel 38.

Hannen caught 58 passes during Davidson's regular season, but all his touchdowns didn't come on receptions. The Wildcat end ran with the ball on occasion and was perhaps the SC's most dangerous runner on punt and kickoff returns.

Kelly, although his 70 pass receptions topped the conference, scored only 36 points this year — 30 fewer than the 66 that took the 1968 SC point-making title for the Wildcat star.

The only teams in the league with a regular season game remaining — VMI and Furman — have nobody in sight in the scoring race, which is hardly surprising, since they have won only one game between them.

Upset Makes TV Men Happy

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football Wash: The folks at ABC-TV who televise college football are supposed to be impartial, but it's no secret that they were rooting for Michigan to upset Ohio State Saturday.

Why? The reason is the Dec. 6 nationally televised contest between Texas and Arkansas, now ranked first and second in The Associated Press poll. The winner of that one could become the national champion.

The man responsible for switching the game from its original date of Oct. 18 is Roone Arledge, president of ABC-TV Sports.

"We all thought that Ohio State would get beat sometime," said a spokesman for the network. "Last February we looked over the schedule to see when two nationally ranked teams might meet.

We have Southern Cal and UCLA last Saturday and from the pre-season ratings that left Texas-Arkansas as the best bet.

"We asked the two schools to switch the date and they agreed."

pay raise. The car was a gift from LSU fans across the state.

"I'm really surprised at that," McLendon said. "Gosh knows it's been a great year."

With no bowl game to prepare for, McLendon has his plans for the off-season mapped out.

"I really didn't have time during the season to enjoy the victories because we always had another game to get ready for," he said. "I'm gonna sit back now and watch nine game films and really let 'em soak in."

Just when you think you've seen it all, along comes something new.

For instance, how about Duke's shoelace sleeper play? Tied 7-7 — Duke eventually won 17-13 — quarterback Leo Hart nonchalantly knelt off to the right of the football to tie a lace while the other 10 Blue Devils lined up to the left of the ball.

Split end Marcel Courtillet suddenly bent over and scooped the ball to flanker Wes Chesson, who raced 53 yards for a touchdown before North Carolina knew what happened.

It was a legal play — and Coach Tom Harp warned the off-ball?

John Bateman of Rutgers has a unique reason for Ohio State's defeat.

"Their powers of concentration were gone," he said. "All week before the game Woody Hayes was kept busy answering questions about how good his team was, why they couldn't go to a bowl and also about Ohio State's financial situation.

"Football is a microcosm and you must keep everybody out of it."

For embarrassment, there was the official who threw the penalty flag on an obvious pass interference call in the Boston College-Massachusetts game.

He was right... but the pass had nicked a defender at the line of scrimmage, thus becoming a free ball and making interference impossible.

And didn't the officials goof when Florida State defensive tackle Frank Vohun intercepted a pass, scored the first touchdown of his career... and then refused to surrender the football?

With great fans like Louisiana State's, who needs a bowl bid?

After Saturday night's 27-0 rout of Tulane, which climaxed a 9-1 season, Coach Charlie McLendon sported a lapel button made from a large screw to symbolize the lack of a bowl bid.

He also had the keys to a new car and expectations of a $2,500

The Seminoles were penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct and had to kick a 35-yard extra point instead of a 20-yarder. The penalty should have been enforced on the ensuing kickoff, with the kick coming from the FSU 25 instead of the 40.

Lew Held To Career Low

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cincinnati's rugged defense gave Lew Alcindor another lesson in the hard knocks of pro basketball Monday night.

The Royals, headed by Connie Dierking, held the 7-foot-2 rookie to a career low of 13 points as Cincinnati breezed past the Milwaukee Bucks 129-104.

San Diego beat Seattle 112-105 in the night's only other NBA game.

New Orleans squeezed past Dallas 81-79 in the only action in the American Basketball Association Monday night.

The tight Cincinnati defense was so effective against Alcindor that the former UCLA super-star spent prolonged periods on the bench and didn't score a point in either the second or fourth quarters.

Meanwhile, Tom Van Arsdale pumped in 29 points for Cincinnati and Dierking added 25. Oscar Robertson, celebrating his 31st birthday, contributed 23.

The Royals grabbed a 33-20 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the Bucks managed to whittle the advantage to 50-48 in the second period before the Royals spurted away and out of danger.

Jon McGlocklin and rookie guard John Arthurs scored 13 points each for Milwaukee.

John Block drilled in a pair of free throws with two minutes left to snap a 100-100 tie and then the Rockets pulled away to whip San Diego for their seventh victory in nine games.

The Rockets had an 85-75 lead heading into the final quarter, but the SuperSonics, led by player-coach Len Wilkens, stormed to a 93-93 tie with six minutes left.

The lead then seesawed until Block, who led all scorers with 32 points, put San Diego ahead for good with his charity tosses.

Wilkens topped Seattle's scoring with 23 points, while Bob Rule and Dick Snyder each had 21 and Bob Boozer 20.

No Feud Between Joe And Peggy Fleming

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Peggy Fleming doesn't remember calling Joe Namath a "mess," but if she did, she's sorry now.

"Gee I think he's great — he's wonderful. He seems so relaxed and seems to have so much fun," the pretty Olympic figure skating queen gushed after taping a 30-minute television show Monday with America's controversial football hero.

For a while, it appeared the show might not go on.

One of Namath's associates turned up with a clipping from a Washington, D.C., newspaper in which Miss Fleming, interviewed on the question of today's rebellious youth, took the establishment line.

"I think it's important that the young kids have someone to look up to," Peggy now a star of the Ice Follies, was quoted as saying. "They're in a desperate situation and need to grab on to someone they can admire."

Miss Fleming was further quoted as saying many of the current sports idols don't fit the mold and added: "Look at Joe Namath — he's a mess."

Namath was shown the clipping a few moments before Peggy arrived at a midtown studio for the show. The two had never met.

After Peggy's arrival, there were some shut-door conference between officials of the show, Miss Fleming and her sponsors. Should the two be brought face-to-face before the cameras?

"Sure," said Joe. "I don't care. Let her go on."

Peggy said: "I don't remember saying anything like that. But sometimes after a show everything is so confusing, people asking all sorts of questions and so forth."

Finally, it was decided that the show should be taped but Namath, the host, should steer clear of the controversy. The show, known as the Joe Namath Show, is shown twice weekly over some 66 stations throughout the country.

Namath, who changed from a suede Buffalo Bill Jacket, beads and striped, bell-bottom pants into a blue-striped suit, was the model of decorum.

Peggy, 20, demure in a mini-skirt and dark stockings, was a green-eyed China doll.

All went well.

Peggy acknowledged that, before winning three world crowns and the 1968 Olympic gold medal at Grenoble, France, she was a tomboy who liked to play baseball and climb trees.

"There's no trouble telling that you are a girl now," said the New York Jets quarterback to his guest, admiringly. Peggy was completely charmed.

"I brought two of Joe's books for him to sign," Peggy admitted afterward.

Bristol Chosen As New Seattle Pilot

By PAUL WELLS
SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Bristol was back in the big league baseball managing business again today, this time in Seattle, and there was only one direction for him to move — up.

Bristol, out of the managerial ranks for less than two months after being fired by the Cincinnati Reds at the end of the 1969 season, signed a "multiyear" contract with the tail-end Seattle Pilots Monday at an undisclosed salary.

Best guesses were that the contract was for two years at about $40,000 a year.

Selection of the 36-year-old Bristol as the second manager of the American League expansion club was announced at a news conference Monday by Marvin Milkes, Pilots' general manager.

Milkes picked the former North Carolina schoolteacher over Billy Martin, deposed Minnesota manager who led the Twins to the championship of the American League West this year.

Martin got the word by telephone at his Minneapolis home early Monday and told Milkes:

"Naturally, I'm sorry we couldn't get together. But the Pilots made a great choice... I'll be available to you and Dave if he needs any information on the league and players."

Bristol has had no American League connections during his 19-year baseball career, but he said the switch didn't bother him.

Bristol got the sack at Cincinnati after 3½ years at the helm when the Reds faded from contention in the National League West in the final week of the '69 season, finishing third.

He immediately went to the Montreal Expos as a coach but was given permission to talk with Milkes about the Seattle job when it came open last week with the firing of first-year manager Joe Schultz.

Schultz was let go after a group of Seattle businessmen closed a deal for majority control of the Pilots.

Bristol is taking over a club which finished last in the American League West this year after injuries sent the Pilots into a prolonged losing streak.

He and Milkes pointed to the New York Mets as an example of what an expansion club can do but said they hoped it wouldn't take Seattle nine years to become a pennant contender.

"We'll have to build from within," Bristol said. "You can't trade your way to a pennant."

After meeting, the Seattle news media, Bristol flew home to his wife and three children at Andrews, N. C. He will join Milkes at the end of the week in Florida for the winter baseball meetings.

The two said they had been going over the draft list for the draft list for player help and might try to do some trading, "but we don't intend to give anything away."

Bristol said he hoped to be able to name his coaching staff soon but added, "There is negotiating to be done."

The day I got fired at Cincinnati I started formulating my coaching staff," he said, "because I knew I would be managing again before long."

Bristol spent his entire baseball life in the Cincinnati organization until his ouster, managing in five minor leagues where he had much to do with developing such Redleg stars as Pete Rose, Tony Perez, Lee May and Tommy Helms.

"I put in 19 years with Cincinnati," he grinned. "I hope to be here another 15."

Daughtry Wins Prize

Doyle Daughtry of Box 320, Greenville, is the winner of the final 1969 Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Daughtry correctly picked the winners in 29 of the 32 games. It was his point total, however, that won for him. He picked 78 as the most points that would be scored. Actually 90 points were scored in the 69-21 victory of Missouri over Kansas.

Second place went to John K. Meares of A-31 Glendale Dr., who also had 29 correct. His point total was one further off the total however, at 77.

One other person also picked 29 correct winners, but was further off on the point total.

Actor Gene Barry Dreams Of Politics

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The name of Gene Barry's favorite game is politics, and he may be the next actor to campaign for elective office.

Reagan and George Murphy, are expected to run for governor and senator again. "I would like to run for office, but as to whether I can soon— who knows?" says Barry, who already has perfected the political comment.

On the party level, no. On the people level, there is a great deal of interest. "I think the party might had better start to change. Because if the Democrats are going to win the governorship and the Senate seat next year, they're going to have to out-charisma the Republicans." Barry says he has been a Democrat all his life, but it was during the John F. Kennedy era that he started becoming active in the party. He campaigned for Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, as well as state candidates such as former Gov. Edmund G. Brown. Last year Barry was on the bandwagon for Robert F. Kennedy. He was present at the Hotel Ambassador the night Kennedy was shot.

What looks likely to hold him back in 1970 is his television series, "The Name of the Game." He is committed through the 1969-70 season and longer, provided the show continues to get a good rating. If he did choose to run, there is the problem of equal time: Wouldn't his opponent demand the same exposure on NBC?

Barry is the first Democratic actor to indicate a yen for public office; Reagan and Murphy, as well as unsuccessful congressional candidates Shirley Temple and the late Wendell Corey, came from the Republican side.

Barry analyzes the phenomenon thusly: "Until a few years ago, the Republicans were the underdog party in this state. They widely used the attractiveness of prominent actors to gain attention and achieve election victories. They went for any candidate with Charisma.

"The Democratic party by its nature doesn't nurture that kind of candidate; the leaders don't seem to be interested in doing

He switched his advocacy to Hubert H. Humphrey, and was with the Democratic candidate in Minneapolis on election night. After the defeat, Barry was asked by reporters if he would consider running for office. "Yes, I would," he replied.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Noble H. Clarke, a member of the Drug Abuse Committee of the Jefferson County Academy of Pharmacy, was lecturing a class of 60 University of Louisville students on the dangers of smoking marijuana. He pointed out that a study of 800 high school pupils in Wisconsin showed that of the 11 percent of the pupils who were frequent marijuana users, an "alarming number" also take other, harsher drugs.

Clarke replied, "You can't get a good picture from college students because they lie."

Larry's Laugh-In "THE MIFFEDAIG"

By Larry Whitlow
Of Larry's Carpetland

"Once they was a aig. It were a regular chicken aig but it were miffed. Seems as how the farmer kep his chickens in a coop that had carpet on the floor, wall-to-wall from Larry's Carpetland. But somehow, one of them layin' chickens walked clean outside and laid 'er aig on the ground agin the coop. Well, this aig seen what had happened and he was plumb miffed. Here all them other aigs was, a layin' around on that soft luxurious carpet' whilst he crouched shiverin' on the cold cold ground. Anyways, he went nuts from his miffedery and from then on was a cracked aig and everyone knows a cracked aig ain't no good nohow. So either get your

Indicate Human Heads Smaller

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (AP) — A University of Michigan dentistry professor says human heads are becoming smaller, posing a problem for dentists.

Dr. James Harris, chairman of the university's department of orthodontics, told a St. Joseph meeting that X rays of mummies' skulls in Egypt show the heads of modern men are smaller than those of persons who lived in ancient Egypt.

Careful management of his assets enabled South to salvage a vulnerable slam contract in spades that was periled by some adverse distributional breaks.

When South's one spade response received a direct raise, he tested for bigger things by bidding three clubs. North's club raise reassured South about the weak spot in his armor and he proceeded directly to six spades.

West opened the jack of diamonds which was ducked around to South who ruffed in with the six of spades. Declarer proceeded cautiously by cashing the ace of spades and when West discarded a small heart it became revealed that East held four spades to the jack.

Administration Liberal No 'Stone Face'

CHOW TIME—The estimated 120 Indians occupying Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay cook their food on an open fire outside one of the former prison buildings. In the sign over the door in the background indicates the Indians have claimed the island. Interior Secretary Walter Hickel has offered to meet with the Indians if they leave the island. Food is brought to them in boats manned by friends of the Indians. (AP Wirephoto)

By WILLIAM BARTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "No question about it. I'm the liberal of the Nixon administration," laughed John Newton Mitchell as he leaned back from his desk and puffed on his ever-present pipe.

The former Wall Street lawyer, now U.S. attorney general, joked about such labels tagged on him as "Mr. Tough," "Mr. Law and Order," "Old Stone Face" and "Inquisitor General."

"Actually," Mitchell said, "I'm a softie."

Some of his Justice Department underlings agree. They insist that Mitchell's tough guy image, stemming partly from his role as President Nixon's 1968 campaign manager, is deceiving.

As for the 56-year-old Mitchell, he dismisses all such labels with the caustic remark, "Other than the fact that I don't think they're applicable, I don't give a damn."

Mitchell gives every appearance of the reluctant public servant, called to Washington at the sacrifice of a lucrative law practice and out of loyalty to Nixon whom he met only three years ago.

What Mitchell does for Nixon stretches far beyond the narrow confines of the Justice Department. As the President's lawyer, he gives advice on issues ranging from urban affairs to the Vietnam war.

An enigma to many Washington politicians, Mitchell appears to be a unique figure in the Cabinet—cool, calculating, and without the ambition that characterizes so many top government officials.

He professes to long for the day when he can return to Wall Street where he was an acknowledged expert on municipal bonds. He claims a higher government position, such as the Supreme Court, is the furthest thing from his mind.

Nevertheless, Mitchell has been thrust into the storm center of controversy surrounding Nixon's policies on the war, dissent, crime and, most recently, the nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

On Vietnam, he stands solidly with the President.

Mitchell's approach to crime, unlike that of his predecessor, Ramsey Clark, is strictly from the law enforcement angle. And his legislative proposals—none of which has passed either House—would reinforce police authority.

On civil rights, Mitchell, has moved to change longstanding department policy. He and Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, adopted a policy statement July 3 erasing arbitrary deadlines for achieving desegregation.

Then, just over a month later, the department proposed and obtained a delay in court-ordered desegregation of 30 Mississippi school districts.

This decision prompted a revolt by virtually all of the department's civil rights lawyers. Mitchell took the attitude that the attorneys could carry out his policies or leave.

But all this was muted somewhat earlier this month when the Supreme Court declared that the "all deliberate speed" concept for achieving school desegregation was no longer permissible.

Mitchell, who set forth the administration's hard line on campus disturbances last May, also strongly condemned leaders of the Nov. 15 antiwar demonstration that drew more than 250,000 persons to the capital.

But he said this criticism was made only because he felt the sponsors did not do enough to prevent militant elements from getting out of hand.

"The right to dissent has to exist; we have to protect and preserve it," he said.

Although some other administration officials followed Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lead in attacking television commentators and some newspapers, Mitchell refused to join in the denunciations.

As for Agnew's speeches, Mitchell said, "I've not read any of them. I don't have time to."

Mitchell maintains a firm hand over his department. A shrewd administrator, whose managerial talent met the test of a tough presidential campaign, he stamps his personal okay on every law suit that is filed, every statement that is released.

In between, he sandwiches time for regular White House meetings, accompanies Nixon on virtually all out-of-town retreats to San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

Although he was born in Detroit, Mitchell has spent most of his life in New York where, until this year, he was a senior partner in the law firm of Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie, Alexander & Mitchell.

In Washington, he is known as a hard worker who comes to the office at 8 a.m. and stays until 7 p.m. He usually leaves with two briefcases loaded with papers.

His wife, the former Martha Beall of Pine Bluff, Ark., has become one of the better known Cabinet wives because of her campaign against narcotics and blunt comments on national issues.

Mitchell, while disdaining labels on his philosophy, suggests his approach should be described as just reasonable, neither to the left nor to the right of the political spectrum.

Despite his reputation as a taciturn, scowling administrator, Mitchell often displays a wry sense of humor.

At an interview, during which two photographers were constantly snapping pictures, he quipped: "Now, don't catch me smiling. It'll ruin my image."

Jenkins Urges Stop Quibbling

ROANOKE RAPIDS—The President of East Carolina University Monday urged the people of North Carolina to stop quibbling over minor differences and settle down to the business of providing quality higher education in the state's universities.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, speaking before a gathering of the Roanoke Rapids Rotary Club, said there is more work to be done than the universities can handle as it is. "The question is not which university gets what program, but how many programs can we give to each university," he said.

Carolina ranks fifth from the bottom among the 50 states in the percentage of college age people attending institutions of higher learning, while at the same time, the Tar Heel State ranks first in the percentage of

Black Panthers Plan Establish Free Clinics

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Black Panther party says it is setting up a series of free medical clinics throughout the United States to show what people can do for themselves without government assistance.

Masai Hewitt, minister of education, said the clinics were first established on the East Coast about six months ago.

Hewitt said free clinics are planned for about 30 "underprivileged areas" and will be voluntarily staffed and equipped for "first and second-aid."

He said offers of volunteer medical assistance "are pouring in."

"The progra. is developed on the needs of the people," he said. "All ethnic groups have accepted our offers of help."

Donations, the majority from whites, include medical supplies from pharmacies, he said.

Nixons Hosting Senior Citizens On Thanksgiving

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon will be hosts to 235 senior citizens, including 73-year-old Mamie Eisenhower, at Thanksgiving dinner in the White House.

Mrs. Eisenhower and her uncle, Joel Carlson, 89, of Boone, Iowa, will arrive Wednesday and spend the night.

The Nixon family, including son-in-law David Eisenhower, Mrs. Eisenhower's grandson, and his sister Susan planned to eat with the crowd.

However, a White House spokesman said Nixon might have to have his dinner from a tray in his office if a press of official business developed.

Mrs. Nixon is honorary chairman of a project sponsored by the General Federation of Womens Clubs to invite the elderly and the lonely to private homes for the holidays.

Lindsay Silent As To Support For Rockefeller

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay has declined to say whether he will support Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for re-election in 1970.

Both are Republicans, but party voters rebuffed Lindsay's bid for renomination this year and instead chose state Sen. John Marchi.

Rockefeller gave Marchi nominal support in the election. Lindsay ran as a Liberal and independent and won another term by defeating both Marchi and Mario Procaccino, the Democratic nominee.

Rockefeller said Sunday he would welcome Lindsay's support in the 1970 gubernatorial race. Asked whether he would give it, the mayor told newsmen Monday, "We'll wait and see."

Yule Party Set Dec. 6

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association last week voted unanimously to sponsor Greenville Christmas Party this year instead of the usual Christmas parade.

The party is scheduled to be held in Ficklen Stadium Saturday, Dec. 6, at 10 a.m.

According to Harold Creech, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, the party is being planned to attract thousands of children and parents in the Greenville area.

A number of events suggested as possibilities for the party include: games, bands, clowns, horses, dog acts, puppet show, door prizes, daytime fireworks, Santa in helicopter, Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, talent contest for children, Christmas princess contest, Miss Merry Christmas contest and Slim Short and Mike the Wonder Dog.

James Earl Ray Would 'Mingle' Post Offices To Close Thursday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, serving 99 years for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., wants to be permitted to mingle with the other inmates at the Tennessee State Prison.

In a petition filed in U.S. District Court Monday, Ray said it was cruel and inhuman punishment to keep him isolated in a maximum security cell.

Lake F. Russell, state commissioner of correction, has said Ray was isolated for his own protection. No date was set for hearing the petition.

Arrest Five For Larceny

Five young men ranging in age from 19 to 25 were arrested early today on charges of breaking and entering a coin operated cracker machine and larceny of the unit from a Greenville service station.

Those charged were identified by police officials as Edward Carroll Wainwright, 25 of Route 5, Kinston; Roy Allen Morris, 19 of Kinston; Oneal Hinson, 23 of 1121 South Evans St.; Kenneth Earl Westbrook, 21 of Kinston and W. Phyl Kennedy, 21 of 300 Paris Ave.

Investigators said the group was taken into custody about 1 a.m. in Ayden after members of the Greenville and Ayden police departments and the Pitt County sheriff's Department began a search for the men.

The hunt began when a caller reported to Greenville police that a group of men were tampering with a coin operated machine at the Atlantic Service Station at the intersection of N.C. 11 and U.S. 264 By-pass.

Post Offices To Close Thursday

Postmaster Joseph C. Dudley reminded today the main post office and the East Carolina University station will close Thursday.

On Thursday, said Dudley, there will be no window service and no mail delivered by rural or city carriers.

Special Delivery mail will be delivered within the city and a city-wide collection will be made from street letter boxes beginning at 5:00 p.m. All outgoing mail will be dispatched as usual.
