Wholesale Prices Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices of farm products rose 2.3 per cent this month, threatening to bring some higher prices at the supermarket for American consumers.

A rise in retail food prices, the usual followup to a rise in wholesale farm prices, would resume the increase in the cost of food which was halted by a slight drop in October.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the wholesale farm price hike, combined with lesser increases in wholesale prices for industrial raw materials, put the wholesale price index at 114.5—up four-tenths of one per cent.

The October drop in retail farm prices was six-tenths of one per cent. It was most noticeable in meats and vegetables—the very type of products which rose on the wholesale market this month.

Even with the October price drop in fresh fruits, vegetables and beef, over-all grocery prices were 4.9 per cent higher than in October of 1968.

The rise in farm prices, largest since May, is likely to show up quickly as higher supermarket prices.

Under Hog Quarantine

RALEIGH (AP)—Three North Carolina counties, Cumberland, Duplin and Wilson, are under a federal quarantine for hog cholera infection.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced Tuesday an immediate quarantine on all counties infected with the disease after Nov. 19.

The director of the veterinary division of the State Department of Agriculture, Dr. T. F. Zweig-art, said that the quarantine will apply to other counties in the state if new outbreaks occur.

Under the quarantine, no feeder pigs or breeding swine may be shipped outside the state from affected counties. Slaughter hogs may be shipped from these counties direct to slaughter plants outside the state only after a certificate is issued by a veterinarian.

Heavy Raid On Jordan

By MARCUS ELIASON Associated Press Writer

CEASE-FIRE LINE, Israel (AP) — Israeli fighter-bombers today launched their heaviest strike into Jordan in more than a year, blasting artillery positions for four hours without a break.

Wave upon wave of planes streaked over the Jordan River along a three-mile front, pouring tons of high explosives on the emplacements.

They flew into anti-aircraft fire but all returned.

The planes concentrated on artillery in the Gilead Mountain range facing settlements just south of the Sea of Galilee.

The raids sent plumes of smoke skyward and shook buildings 10 miles away.

Israeli farmers said the Jordanian guns lately had been joining in border skirmishes between Israeli troops and Al Fatah guerrillas.

"This is a big one, and it aims to silence the Jordanians for a long time," said one settlement head.

The military command said its pilots reported "accurate strikes" on artillery batteries in the vicinity of Asad village in Jordan.

These batteries had recently been active in shelling Israeli army positions and border settlements, a spokesman said.

Business And Pleasure

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators mixed business with entertainment today in their fourth secret meeting since starting missile-curb talks 10 days ago.

The U.S. delegation, under Ambassador Gerard C. Smith, talked business with Soviet envoys at the Soviet Embassy for 1 1/2 hours, then stayed on for a two-hour lunch.

The diplomats agreed to meet again Friday. But beyond that announcement, the news blackout on the progress of the talks that has prevailed since they began was still followed by both sides.

In addition to the social cordiality from today's lunch and a sumptuous dinner hosted for the negotiators by the city of Helsinki Tuesday night, the atmosphere for the nuclear arms control discussions was sweetened by disarmament developments elsewhere.

Union Thanksgiving Service Thursday

The annual Union Thanksgiving Day Service will be held at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Thursday at 9:30 a. m.

The Rev. Dermont J. Reid, new pastor of St. James United Methodist Church, will deliver the message. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Floyd Cherry, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church. Dr. J. V. Early, host pastor, will preside. The choir of St. James Church will render special music. Mrs. Paul Toll, organist at Jarvis Memorial, will be at the organ console.

The Rev. Reid was assigned as pastor of St. James Church last June, coming to the local church after a four year pastorate of First Methodist Church, Henderson.

A graduate of Duke Divinity School, he joined the North Carolina Conference in 1947 and has served pastorates in Elizabeth City, Burlington and Laurinburg. He is a member of the Conference Board of Evangelism, a trustee of N. C. Wesleyan College at Rocky Mount, and has served as a conference leader in other capacities.

A special bulletin has been prepared for the service Thursday morning, which is interdenominational and interracial. The offering will be used by the Salvation Army in its special Christmas program. The public has an invitation to be present.

CHURCH PURCHASED . . . The remains of the old Sycamore Hill Baptist Church and property on Greene Street has been purchased by the Redevelopment Commission. Demolition of the structure will probably begin after Christmas.

Purchase Of Old Church Was Finalized Tuesday

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The purchase of the old Sycamore Hill Baptist Church property and remains by the Greenville Redevelopment Commission was finalized yesterday morning.

Settlement for the property, located in the Shore Drive project on the corner of First and Greene Streets, amounted to $50,000.

Final negotiations for the church had been pending the completion of moving existing graves at the site to the Brown Hill Cemetery. The City provided help in the project and aided church officials in moving 110 graves from the property.

Attorneys Kenneth Hite, representing the Commission and J. Levon Chamber of Charlotte, representing the church body, closed the negotiations for the property.

Two provisions were included in the settlement. The Commission agreed to salvage the church bell from the structure and give it to the church for use at the West Eighth Street location. In addition, it was agreed that the bricks from the remains would be given to the new church.

According to CBD project manager John Messick, the bids for the demolition of the structure will be opened either Dec. 16 or 17. Actual demolition work will probably not begin until after Christmas, he said.

Following the removal of the burned structure, constructed on the site in 1916, plans call for grading of the hill and the continuation of the First Street widening project to Greene Street. Messick said that efforts to save the trees on the property will be made.

Grading of the property will also involve the removal of the wooden retaining wall on Greene Street.

The original church body was organized in 1860 and a house located somewhere east of the current site on First Street was used for services.

The purchase of the land, Rev. B. B. Felder said, was made in 1865 and the church was chartered as the Colored Baptist Religious Society. Approximately 50 years later, in 1917 or 1918, the frame structure was destroyed by fire.

Rev. Felder said that the present building was constructed in 1916 by the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church delegation. The structure was ravaged by fire in February of 1968. The church membership, that had grown from an original 20 members to nearly 590, had already moved to the present site at 226 West Eighth Street.

In 1968, the church was incorporated as the Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church, Inc. Rev. Felder said that with the purchase of the old church property by the Redevelopment Commission, church officials dissolved the indebtedness for the new property on Eighth Street and now owns the property.

Nickels For Know-How Wins Six More Years

RALEIGH (AP) — The nickels-for-know-how assessment program has been voted in for another six years. It is expected to bring in almost $1 million for agricultural research during that period.

Farm families across North Carolina voted almost 90 per cent in favor of the assessment in a referendum Tuesday.

The program supports agricultural research and education at North Carolina State University through a five-cent per ton assessment on feed and fertilizer. It began in 1951.

With 74 of 100 counties reporting Tuesday night, 26,092 voted to renew the program for a six-year period. Only 3,302 negative votes were reported in partial returns.

HAIL RENUNCIATION UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. delegates today hailed President Nixon's renunciation of germ warfare as a step toward agreement on a treaty banning biochemical warfare.

Draft Lottery Gets Its Chance

By STAN BENJAMIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who managed to coax a small but important change in draft law through Congress, got a chance to launch his lottery plan today by signing the legislation and an executive order.

The executive order is to implement new Selective Service procedures intended to limit each young man's exposure to the draft to about one year.

The bill simply repeals a 1967 section of the draft law which prevented the President from setting up a lottery system keyed to 19-year-olds.

Many members of Congress originally opposed the lottery bill because they said they wanted a complete overhaul of the system, but they were persuaded to let Nixon try his plan with promises of hearings early next year on more comprehensive legislation.

The procedures to start in January eventually will reduce the most draft eligible group from the present range of 19-to-26-year-olds down to the single year a man is 19 to 20.

Under the 1967 law the oldest in the draft pool were the first called to fill induction quotas.

The new system would have no effect on draft deferments and exemptions. Those deferred or exempt would drop back into the draft pool for one year, however, and be subject to the random selection process, if they lost their special status.

Unless draft calls totaled more than one year's pool of eligible men—and even at the height of the Army's expansion for the Vietnam war, they were far less than the available pool—a man would only have to wonder for one year whether he would be drafted.

Furthermore, he would know what year he was most liable and would have a pretty good idea of his chances.

The 1970 draft pool would be unusually large, including all of the men currently classified 1-A. The armed forces have been drafting some 300,000 men a year, while the expected 1970 1-A pool is estimated at six times that number. Thus, a man's chances of being drafted from the large 1970 pool would be about one in six.

Later pools, consisting only of those who turn 19 during that draft year, would be smaller. If recent draft rates continue, the chances are estimated at about 50-50 for those in future one-year pools.

Nixon's plan is to scramble up the 365 days of the year and use them as a randomized order of call, corresponding to birthdays.

Men whose birthdays turn up in the first one-sixth of the 1970 scrambled list, or in the first half of future lists, could probably figure on receiving "Greetings" from Uncle Sam.

The others would probably be bypassed unless draft calls rose unexpectedly.

Some Reflector Offices Closing

Business offices and the advertising department of the Daily Reflector will be closed Thanksgiving Day, according to D.J. Whitchard Sr., chairman of the board.

The Daily Reflector will be published tomorrow as usual, however.

Noisy Response Tooted Horns In

BOSTON (AP) — In the streets, at the State House, and in front of a Boston Edison Co. office Tuesday, air pollution was under attack.

"Honk your horn if you are sick of air pollution," read the sign held by a pretty girl outside the State House.

Dozens of motorists tooted in response.

Lunar Rocks At Lab Scientists Open Treasure Chest

By JIM STROTHMAN AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Scientists open the first treasure chest of Apollo 12 moon rocks today as the quarantined astronauts who collected them head for Hawaii aboard their recovery ship.

Working with gloves that extend into a vacuum chamber, technicians at the Lunar Receiving Laboratory here planned to lift a lid on the first of two rock boxes filled on the moon's Ocean of Storms.

Opening was expected sometime before noon EST.

The two containers were flown to the Manned Spacecraft Center Tuesday from American Samoa where they had been taken from Apollo 12's recovery ship, the USS Hornet.

The first box, with about 28 pounds of lunar material inside, was bathed with acid to wash off any earthly contaminant then moved into the vacuum chamber.

The second box, containing the most carefully selected samples and the core tubes driven into the moon to tell scientists how lunar soil is structured, was to be opened Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, Navy Capt. Charles Conrad Jr., Alan L. Bean and Richard F. Gordon Jr. continued their postsplashdown schedule with a doctor and engineer inside a silver quarantine trailer aboard the Hornet.

Speaking into tape recorders, the astronauts reviewed highlights of their 10-day mission, with some emphasis on their plunge into the Pacific. A technician isolated with them quoted all three as saying "Man, what a landing!"

"I understand it was the hardest landing we've had in Apollo," said the technician, Brock R. "Randy" Stone.

"The nearest thing we can figure is it landed as a swell came by and it landed perfectly flat on the heat shield." The angle at which the module hangs from its parachutes is intended to let an edge of the heat shield hit the water first.

The jolting impact knocked loose a camera and it hit Bean on the head, inflicting a half-inch cut above the eyebrow that later required several stitches.

Otherwise, all three astronauts remained in excellent health, officials said, showing no signs of any illness, either earthly or caused by any organism that might have come from the moon.

Arriving under tight security at the lunar laboratory with the moon rocks Tuesday was another sealed box containing film taken during Apollo 12's flight.

The first six photographs probably showing scenes from one of the moonwalks, will be made public Thanksgiving Day.

Conrad, Gordon and Bean are to arrive at Hawaii late Friday and their quarantine trailer will be taken off the ship and loaded on a cargo aircraft. The plane is to make a nonstop flight to Ellington Air Force Base, near the Manned Spacecraft Center landing before dawn Saturday.

After their trailer is transported into the Lunar Receiving Laboratory, they will be permitted to move into larger quarantine quarters inside the building. Thirteen other persons also are to be isolated with the crew until their quarantine ends, including two doctors, Stone, nine housekeeping staff members and a public affairs officer.

Although the quarantine period was scheduled to end at 3 a.m. on Dec. 11, space officials say the astronauts will be released on the night of Dec. 10.

No Peace On Basis Of 'Take-It-Or-Leave-It'

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The United States warned Hanoi today that a Vietnam peace settlement is impossible on the basis of North Vietnam's take-it-or-leave-it terms.

The retiring U.S. negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, told the North Vietnamese at the 4th session of the Vietnam peace talks.

"If your side continues to insist on our unconditional acceptance of your terms, progress through negotiation is not possible."

"Your entire position at these meetings seems to be based on some notion which entitles you to insist that we do everything while you do nothing to achieve a settlement."

Lodge referred to the refusal of Hanoi and the Viet Cong to negotiate with the Saigon government. Opening today's session, South Vietnam's delegate Pham Dang Lam said no solution to the future of South Vietnam can be reached without the Saigon government's participation.

Lodge, whose resignation as U.S. delegate was announced last week, is expected to attend one more of the weekly meetings.

He told the Hanoi and Viet Cong negotiators that President Nixon is determined to stick to the policy he explained in his Nov. 3 speech.

A dispute between Lodge and Hanoi's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, has enlivened the atmosphere at the talks.

Lodge and Thuy blamed each other in recent interviews and press statements for the suspension of the secret talks which they held until mid-August.

The flurry of statements and denials over the past week reflected the stalemate in the weekly meetings, with each blaming the other for the deadlock.

Lam, the first speaker at the talks today, said the secret talks broke down because of Hanoi's refusal to meet with Saigon representatives.

Lam said, "no one can settle the problem of South Vietnam in the place of the South Vietnamese people. This means that no problem relating to the future of South Vietnam can be settled without the participation of the Republic of Vietnam, the sole legal and legitimate representative of the South Vietnamese people."

No Extradition For Air Pirate

ROME (AP) — Raphael Minichiello, who hijacked an airliner from California to Rome Nov. 1, will not be extradited to the United States to face the death penalty for air piracy, Justice Minister Silvio Gava has ruled.

Milk Decision Due December 9

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission, caught in the squeeze of conflicting testimony, is expected to decide Dec. 9 whether to remove its controversial marketing controls on milk.

The commission heard predictions at a hearing Tuesday that abolishing the controls would send already high prices higher and counter-claims that it would bring them down.

Commission chairman Neil Bolton of Winston-Salem said the commission would not act before its next regularly scheduled meeting, tentatively set for Dec. 9 in Raleigh.

Most Offices Plan Holiday

Pitt Technical Institute students will have a three-day holiday—Thursday, Friday, and Monday. Registration will begin Tuesday morning and classes for the new quarter will begin Wednesday morning. The administrative offices at Pitt Tech will reopen Monday.

Examinations end at East Carolina University today at 3 p.m. Registration for winter quarter begins Monday at 9 a.m. and classes begin Tuesday at 8 a.m. Administrative personnel will work Friday.

Good News Story This 'Bystander' Moved In To Help When Man Attacked

DETROIT (AP) — A score of passengers covered at the rear of the bus when a man attacked the driver.

Not Bernice Kuliszko, she ran to the front to help.

"Blood was streaming down the driver's face," Mrs. Kuliszko related at a ceremony Tuesday where the bus system awarded her a resolution of commendation.

"I couldn't just sit there. I had to help him."

Mrs. Kuliszko tried to push the attacker away from the driver, who had suffered a broken arm.

"He punched me three times," she said. "Twice in the chest and once in the head. He knocked my glasses and hat off, but I grabbed a pole and didn't fall down."

The brave bus rider then moved to a window and screamed for help. That's when the bully, who had become incensed during an argument over a transfer, fled the scene.

"The example of this lady should hearten us all," said the bus line's president, Paul C. Ackerman.

Mrs. Kuliszko accepted the citation with modesty.

Despite the incident Nov. 4, she said, "I've always felt safe on a bus and I still do. I don't like riding in a car. You could be involved in an accident."

Mrs. Kuliszko has been riding buses for a long time. She's 71.

Brazilian Cake Is A Winner

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor.

Brazil has the world's largest river, the Amazon, and some of the world's most interesting dishes. There are several Brazilian cookbooks on my shelves but the one I hail is "Brazilian Cookery, Traditional and Modern" by Margarette de Andrade (Tuttle). It's a big book, beautifully printed. Its American-born author, a graduate home economist and the widow of a Brazilian diplomat, presents not only thorough research but clearly written recipes.

that cornstarch is used, along with flour, in many of Mrs. de Andrade's baking recipes. When we looked into this, we found that the answer is simple: only one country in South America grows wheat and that is Argentina. On the other hand, corn is plentiful and hundreds of small mills all over South America grind it. Cornstarch is readily available; wheat flour is expensive. Fortunately cornstarch, as old-time cooks in the United States knew, adds excellent quality to many cakes and cookies.

most interesting cakes. Its texture is similar to pound cake, but its flavor is entirely different. Among its ingredients are cornstarch and port wine. We've never come upon a recipe quite like it, and we think you'll be as intrigued by it as our tasters were.

MARGARETTE DE ANDRADE'S
BRAZILIAN CAKE

- 2 cups sifted flour
 - 1 cup cornstarch
 - 2 teaspoons baking soda
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/2 pound (2 sticks) butter
 - 2 cups sugar
 - Grated rind of 1 lemon
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1/2 cup port wine
 - 7 egg whites
 - 1 cup guava or red currant jelly or strawberry jam
 - Confectioners' sugar
- Generously grease a 10- by 4-inch bundt pan.
- Sift together flour, cornstarch, baking soda, salt and nutmeg. In a large mixing bowl cream butter, sugar and lemon rind. Gently beat in sifted dry ingredients, alternately with milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients and mixing until smooth after each addition. Gradually add wine, blending until smooth. (Batter will look slightly curdled.)

With clean beater, beat egg whites until stiff straight peaks form when beater is slowly withdrawn. Fold egg whites into mixture. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in preheated 325-degree oven until cake springs back when lightly touched with finger—60 to 70 minutes. Place pan on wire rack to cool cake for 10 minutes. With a small spatula loosen edges. Turn out on wire rack. at once spread with jelly; cool completely. Before serving sprinkle top lightly with confectioners' sugar.

NOTE: Inside cake texture will not be uniform in color; upper portion will be golden-brown, shading to a paler color at bottom.

Christ Didn't Have Long Hair

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that Christ has long hair. Where did you ever get such an idea?

In the New Testament, Corinthians 11:14 it says: "Does not Nature itself teach you that for a man to wear long hair is degrading to him, but if a woman has long hair, it is her pride."

Listen here, Abby, if Christ had had long hair, do you think that Paul would have made such a dirty crack about it in his letter to the Corinthians?

Look it up, and tell me if I am wrong.

A YAK FROM YAKIMA

DEAR YAK: I looked it up, and your quote is correct. I got the idea that Christ had long hair from some of the pictures of Christ I have seen. And in Paul's day, hair to the shoulder was probably considered "short"—hence his remarks.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who is such a wonderful friend she would do anything for me. When an emergency arises she is more than willing to take care of my children. That's my problem.

This lady swears like you wouldn't believe. I am sure she doesn't realize it, but she can't utter two sentences without using half a dozen swear words. After being around this woman for one day, my son came up with one of her choice vulgar words. When I told him that word was "bad," and he shouldn't say it, he said, "Mrs. L. says it all the time, and if she can say it, why can't I?"

Now, Abby, I wouldn't hurt my friend for the world because as I have said she is a good person, but her language is something else! Is there a solution? HER NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: I doubt if you would "hurt" your friend if you asked her to watch her language in the presence of the kiddies. (I also doubt that it would do much good, but it's worth a try.) And cover all the bases by telling your children that there are some "good" people who use "bad" words, and when children are told not to use those words, they shouldn't.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this on behalf of all the fat people who have someone nagging them half to death to take off weight. I pray that you'll print this because a lot of people need to see it.

First of all, I realize that when my mother nags me about being fat, she means well, but she does more harm than good.

All fat people feel guilty because they're fat, but when they're nagged about it they feel worse, so when a person feels sorry for himself what does he do? He "treats" himself to something to make him feel better. And to a fat person, that's food. (And don't tell me to keep carrots and celery on hand because no fat person is satisfied with that. He wants a candy bar!)

A fat person KNOWS he is fat. He puts on his clothes, takes them off, has the seams let out, and is ashamed everytime he goes shopping.

Do you think he wants to be fat? Good Lord, no! He prays to God every night to make him thin.

Right now I'm trying to lose weight, but my mother nags me constantly. When she's watching me, I don't eat much. But as soon as she turns her back, I sneak in the kitchen and stuff myself. Then I'm "proud" because I feel like I've put one over on her. Isn't that terrible?

So, please! Ask mothers and "friends" to quit nagging fat people. You are making us fatter! And don't think I am the exception. We are all the same. FATTY IN PHILLY

CONFIDENTIAL TO "JUST ASKING": For the umpteenth time, NO, you need not sign your letter in order for it to be printed in my column. But if you want a PERSONAL reply, of course you must not only sign your name, but you must include your address (and hopefully, a stamped envelope). Otherwise how could I answer you?

Mission Is A Tribute To All

Apollo 12 was not man's first journey to the moon—that glory had already gone to the crew of Apollo 11, when Neil Armstrong took that first step on the moon's surface which fulfilled an age old dream.

In many ways though the Apollo 12 flight may be more productive in the scientific sense than that of its predecessor. Things went beautifully on the Apollo 12 flight, and there was only the failure of a television camera to mar the trip. The entire mission was a tribute to all the men and women who had devoted countless hours to bringing about its success. And most important it was a tribute to the three man crew which braved the dangers of space. Using their incredible skills, they handled the two crafts which made the landing and take-off possible.

The Apollo 12 crew spent more time on the surface of the moon than did the Apollo 11 men. They explored further from their ship and they were able to more carefully document moon rocks which they brought back. As a part of their mission they located a surveyor craft which the United States had sent to the moon a couple of years ago. So it appears that the Apollo 12 mission was a huge success. At its beginning it seemed that this might not be, for as the big rocket lifted the craft into space an electrical surge knocked out virtually all systems. The astronauts, however, went to work and reset the circuit breakers and the mission went on.

Apollo 11 proved that men could go to the moon and return. Apollo 12 perfected the procedures and began the long exploration processes by which scientists hope to learn about the moon's makeup. In this way we may learn how the earth and universe were formed and perhaps how life, itself evolved.

Apollo 12 will not have the place in history that is to be occupied by Apollo 11. However, the flight took no less skill and its contribution to our knowledge will be immense. Americans can take great satisfaction in the fact that the mission has been completed with such success.

White House Not So Old, But Rooms Lost

Our White House, the presidential residence, is not old as such historical buildings go, but workers are already finding forgotten chambers.

Subterranean rooms were found as workmen were excavating under the White House pool and in them were some pieces of a dinner service dating back to the days of Franklin Pierce. The rooms themselves were believed to have been around in the days of Thomas Jefferson.

White House curator James Ketchum said the china is not valuable except in an historical sense. It is surprising that the subterranean rooms could be lost under a structure so important as the White House. Yet, it happened and now it is turning up items whose existence had been forgotten.

Limitation To 'Mitchellism'

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—As opposition to his confirmation as a Supreme Court Justice inexorably mounted this autumn, Judge Clement Haynsworth twice requested—and was twice denied—premission to withdraw his name from consideration before the Senate.

The decision to deny Haynsworth's request and instead push his nomination to the bitter end was made by President Nixon on the emphatic recommendation of Atty. Gen. John Mitchell. Cabinet strong man and the President's chief political advisor. That decision reflected intense personal pique felt by both Mr. Nixon and his attorney General over the liberal-labor assault against Haynsworth. But more significantly, it reflected John Mitchell's grand political strategy for the Republican party.

Mitchell has privately explained this in conversation with friends. Although he weeks ago realized that Haynsworth might well be rejected by the Senate, Mitchell insisted that fighting to the very end—win or lose—would lead toward his great goal: winning over the George Wallace South in 1972. And even if Haynsworth did lose, Mitchell added, another Southern conservative would be nominated in his place.

But Mitchell was oblivious to the perils inherent in this tactic. He failed to foresee the tension that his strategy would produce between Republican Senators, state party organizations, and the White House. Nor did he understand that nothing would have been lost in the South had Haynsworth been withdrawn a month ago and replaced with a conservative such as Rep. Richard Poff of Virginia. Thus, the Haynsworth affair has exposed the limitations of Mitchellism.

Ironically, despite inbred Southern love for lost causes, Mitchell's tactic have not enchanted the South. Southern Republican leaders feel he should have permitted Haynsworth to withdraw, believing that this would not measurably reduce the President's popularity in Dixie. One such Southern Republican, previously gushing in his admiration for Mitchell, now gives the Attorney General a C-minus in handling the Haynsworth affair.

That means Mitchell purchased very little in the South at the cost of havoc elsewhere in the party by struggling desperately to save Haynsworth the past month.

The havoc resulted from applying brutal political pressure on undecided Republican Senators in a muscular campaign organized by Harry Dent, chief political aide in the White House. Dent and assorted other Republican stalwarts from coast-to-coast to barrage wavering Senators with pleas, advice, and threats.

Occasionally, the campaign went berserk, spoiling a mini-movement to purge Sen. Mark Hatfield in Oregon in 1972 (which evoked telephoned apologies Friday morning from White House counselor Bryce Harlow). In

Rumors Revive About Johnson

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES RALEIGH—They cooled for a while but now there are fresh reports that Jimmy V. Johnson plans to step down as State Democratic chairman within a few weeks.

The reports are unconfirmed. Johnson has refused to confirm or deny similar reports which have made the rounds for several months.

Several sources say, however, they have heard that Johnson agreed to and decided to stay on as chairman at least through a series of hearings being held by a study commission on the question of what is wrong with the Democratic party in North Carolina?

Actually, of course, party leaders put it more positively, what needs to be done to strengthen the Democratic party in this state?

developing of a very hard-fought political campaign among Democrats.

Sanford's campaign manager and later state party chairman was Bert Bennett Jr. of Winston-Salem.

In early September, 1963, Bennett started the state's political observers by counting himself out of speculation for the governorship. And he resigned as state party chairman. Sanford chose a man he hoped would be—and was—impartial and constructive during the coming primary campaigns, and a man who worked very hard to bring the party factions together after the 1964 primaries. That man was former State Sen. W. Lunsford Crew of Halifax.

Bennett moved immediately from the chairmanship into a leading role in the two primary campaigns on behalf of L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro.

Replaced—Preyer led in the first primary but was defeated by a coalition of Dan Moore-Beverly Lake supporters in the second. Dan Moore became governor.

Crew was replaced by Moore's Eastern North Carolina campaign manager, I. T. (Tim) Valentine Jr. Valentine also made clear immediately that his purpose would be to work for greater party unity and strength.

Hearings—Both Valentine and Bennett testified at the Raleigh hearing conducted by the study commission headed by Jim Hunt of Wilson.

Again, Valentine and Bennett appeared to disagree on the overall goals and principles. But it was difficult to identify specific points. Study commission sources said they felt that all points of view were expressed.

Expressed—The speakers generally addressed themselves to the problems of more activity, deeper and more dedicated interest on the part of all who choose to come under the Democratic party umbrella. Certainly, they said, younger voters must be attracted—but for reasons other than a particular political philosophy or in order to hold a racial minority within the fold.

"There is a place for everybody," said Valentine. "The success is due to a broad appeal to all. Democrats are Democrats."

WILLIAM SHIRES

Three hearings have been held so far—in Asheville, Charlotte and Raleigh. The fourth and supposedly final hearing is scheduled next weekend in Greenville.

Johnson—Johnson, a Charlotte soft drink bottling executive and a former state senator from Irdeell County, was Gov. Bob Scott's state campaign manager in 1968.

And he was one of the party leaders who suggested the idea of a soul-searching inquiry by the state's Democrats themselves in order to build a better, stronger base.

Thus it appears natural that he would not want to resign—nor that Scott would want him to—in the midst of the party unity study. It would mean that Scott would have to select a new chairman to fill the vacancy while the party's state executive committee is divided.

Parallel—There was somewhat of a parallel toward the end of Gov. Terry Sanford's administration. Actually Sanford had more than a year to serve but everyone could see in 1963 the Whose Silent Majority?

WASHINGTON—Sometimes my friend Vladimir Kalinsky at the Soviet Embassy can drive me straight up the wall. The other day at lunch we got into an argument over the stupidest thing.

I was talking about President Nixon's great silent majority in the United States and Kalinsky said, "The Soviet Union has a GREATER silent majority than the United States."

I immediately saw red. "How can you say that, Kalinsky? Everyone knows the United States has the greatest silent majority in the world."

Kalinsky knocked over his vodka glass. "The Soviets invented the silent majority," he shouted.

"Maybe so," I said, "but we have refined it. Thanks to American know-how, our silent majority is twice as silent as your silent majority."

"We had a silent majority in Russia before you knew what a silent majority was," Kalinsky said. "Stalin was the father of the silent majority."

"Ah ha, but Stalin is gone and our silent majority is with us," I said. "Do you know that, according to the last Gallup Poll, our silent majority now comprises 79 percent of the American people?"

Kalinsky sneered. "Our silent majority behind the Iron Curtain is 99 percent, if you don't count Czechoslovakia."

"You're lying," I said.

Kalinsky took out a paper. "Here, look at the Harrowitch Poll just taken in Moscow. Ninety-nine percent of all the people interviewed say they support Premier Kosygin's policy, which is to seek an honorable solution in Prague."

Other Editors Say Cooling Off Period

(Wilson Times)

A cooling off period is needed to restore perspective before the President announces his next appointment to the Supreme Court. And the President recognizes this and is withholding the appointment until the next session of Congress which convenes in January.

Judge Haynsworth should follow the President's example and make no hasty decision as resigning from his present position as chief judge on the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Haynsworth considers his usefulness has been impaired by the big defeat he suffered at the hands of the Senate.

From all that has been said and what you have read Judge Haynsworth has made an excellent judge. He was opposed by the labor unions, NAACP and civil rights groups, but the unfair accusations were proven to be attempts at pressure more than judicial decisions. As President Nixon said, "He will continue to press to restore the proper balance to the Supreme Court despite the 55-45 rejection of Judge Haynsworth."

So it will be interesting to see how the next appointee fares if he is of the conservative bent. We predict the Senate will approve the next appointee. The Haynsworth case hung on so long and so much was said which was irrelevant that the perspective was lost.

For the sake of justice and in the interest of fairness, some balance should be restored to the Supreme Court. President Nixon recognizes there is a swing back toward center, and that many people want the Supreme Court to interpret the laws not make them. It is also recognized that no court can please everyone, that is why it is so important to have a fair and impartial court, a court where equal consideration will be given all sides of every question.

Yes, time is needed for a cooling off period. And it is hoped that after due consideration Judge Haynsworth will decide to remain on the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals. His usefulness as a judge has not been impaired. The fight in the Senate evolved into a political affair with the labor unions and civil rights groups calling the plays.

ART BUCHWALD

"Why don't you take the same poll in Siberia?" I asked Kalinsky.

Kalinsky choked on a piece of black bread. "You have no reason to insult me just because I have proof that the Soviet Union has a greater silent majority than the United States."

"Kalinsky, you do not fool me. Your silent majority is afraid to speak out; our silent majority has been heard from. Did you see all those telegrams on President Nixon's desk after his speech?"

"You call that a silent majority? There weren't enough telegrams on his desk to make it a silent majority," Kalinsky roared. "Have you ever seen a demonstration in Red Square? That's a silent majority."

"Our silent majority doesn't have to demonstrate," I said. "President Nixon knows they're out there."

Gold's Price Drop

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold has been plummeting of late. In one day this week it dropped 60 cents an ounce to a price of $35.50, continuing a downtrend from a high of $43 in March of this year.

So what! Only that the price of this rare metal is to some extent a measure of man's greed. It has been so for centuries.

Greed for gold drove the Romans over millions of square miles from Britain to Asia. It motivated many of the great explorers. It provoked some of man's greatest atrocities. It helped to settle America.

Just a few years ago the desire for gold threatened to overthrow the U.S. dollar and, in fact, forced this country to back down some on its promise to redeem every dollar bill in gold if asked to do so.

As recently as last November financial experts, pondering which candidate to vote for read highly involved research papers on "The Gold Position of the Major Candidates."

Just a little more than a year ago a research fellow published a highly regarded paper called "Making Peace with Gold." And in a matter of weeks from now the financial community will receive the annual gold report by the First National City Bank.

There must be something to it. There is. At least two things:

—Gold is the backing for currency used in international trade, primarily because its rarity gives stability to values and its almost total ability to withstand corrosion gives its permanency.

—Gold is a valuable metal used in jewelry, cancer research, earth satellites, dental fillings, complex electronic machinery and—well, you can name hundreds of products and uses.

Two years ago the world's governments had to fight with private users to get control of available supplies. Capitalizing on the demand, and causing the shortage too, speculators bought up as much of the metal as they could.

This was serious to the dollar, because the United States guaranteed to redeem dollars for gold at the rate of $35 an ounce. Figuring that the United States might run short of gold, the speculators hoped to see the metal's price raised to $70 an ounce.

Both individuals and some governments hoarded gold on this prospect, and the price moved up to more than $40 an ounce. Theoretically, it was possible to buy gold from the United States at $35 and sell it at $40 an ounce.

This disparity threatened the stability of the dollar. And since a stable dollar was necessary to world trade, and in fact to the soundness of other currencies, the world's bankers decided to cut off the speculator's market.

They established a two-tier system, meaning they would pay debts between nations in gold, valued at $35 an ounce, but wouldn't sell any more of their dwindling supply to speculators.

What gold they possessed, these nations said, would be circulated among themselves regardless of what the speculators did. The free market price now would be determined by supply and demand—not on the potential crisis in the world's monetary system.

Strength For Today Franchising Keeps On Growing

WHICH?
 There are extroverts and introverts in the world, and most people are born into one classification or the other. The extrovert is gay, cheerful, ready to slap everyone on the back and wish him well. The introvert usually wears a solemn face. He hesitates and ponders. He is likely to get a bit morbid as the result of his introspection, and this, of course, is bad both for him, his family and society in general.

The extrovert has everybody cheering for him, but he does not appear to be successful any more often than does the introvert. In fact, most of the world's geniuses have been introverts. Some have locked themselves up in laboratories. Others have lived in an ivory tower and have written books that were influential and had a great sale. There are plenty of "cuss words" that people can think up and use when circumstances bring them into contact with the introvert. But the introvert works out schemes that sometimes shake the earth.

We are wise if we give both the extrovert and the introvert their due. Life would be dull if we had no extroverts to cheer us up and keep us happy. Life would probably be pretty barren if we had no introverts to lead humanity along new pathways and size up the possibilities of any discoveries.

A man's true greatness is frequently not appreciated by his contemporaries. This was extremely true in the case of Jesus of Nazareth. But it has been true also of millions of others whom the world later spoke of with reverence and praise.

By Earl L. Douglass

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Speaking of franchising—and we have been a bit recently—there is another development in the field: the sudden growth of wholesale and jobbing of franchises.

A number of concerns have sprung up to market franchises for original franchisors. They represent as many franchisors as they can handle, then flush out prospects for franchises and offer him a choice. These jobs can be of great service to prospective buyers. By studying his experience, interest and resources, they can guide him to lines in which he is most likely to be successful. They avoid putting a man or a team in a full-menu restaurant when the buyer may be better qualified to operate a soft-ice cream kiosk.

However there is a tempation to judge a prospect by his amount of investment capital and push him toward the most expensive deal he can afford instead of the one he is equipped for.

ELMER ROESSNER

The Big Dealers
 But these jobs are small compared with some of the wholesalers in franchises. For example, Holiday Inns, which operates only 176 of the 1,060 inns carrying its banner, recently offered to buy back 100 of its franchises from seven of its franchisees, according to the Motel Hotel Newsletter.

American Motor Inns, which controls 32 Holiday Inns and plans to build an additional 26 more, declined to sell. It likes its deal. It and one other Holiday Inn franchisees are listed on the American Stock Exchange.

There are other big operators. The Atlantic Franchise Corp. recently bought 55 Sizzleboard franchises from Mutual Franchise Corp. of Needham, Mass., at $22,500 each, in addition to real estate, construction and other costs.

Mutual also sold the franchise rights to its brake relining services in 11 Southeastern states to Southeastern Franchise Corp. of Clearwater, Fla., for $2.4 dollars, including 149 radio-dispatched trucks for special brake-relining service.

Mutual also offers franchising consulting services to other companies. Clients include Armour, Fanny Farmer, Sea Host and Labatt Breweries.

 Minnie Pearl Deals
 Big franchise deals sometimes have other aspects. John J. Hooker, Jr., after being defeated in a race for governor of Tennessee, launched the Minnie Pearl chicken franchise operation, selling blocks of franchises to Tennessee investors, then selling stock in his corporation to local investors.

When royalties and other returns were slow, Hooker took $8 million he had received from the sale of his own shares in Minnie Pearl, and bought 200 franchises for ice cream parlors his company had launched. This was a heavy dollar injection for the company, now called Performance Systems, Inc., but the price of its stock declined.

Nevertheless, deals in blocks of franchises will continue.

From Leiden To Plymouth

The Pilgrim's Journey For Freedom

LEIDEN . . . where the Pilgrims found a quiet country atmosphere from 1609 on. Governor Bradford later described it as "Leyden, the bewtiful Citie."

THE LEVEL . . . of the reclaimed land, called polder, is so low that drainage canals are everywhere. Here is a one man bridge which may be raised by hand.

ALONG THIS OLD CANAL . . . in Leiden are the stone houses of the weavers and printers. On the right is the University founded in 1547.

Text by Drs. William White and Roy N. Lokken

Photographs by Dr. William White

The Pilgrims celebrated their first Thanksgiving feast in mid-October of 1621. After the awful hardships of the voyage from England and the starvation of the winter of 1620, only 50 of the original 100 people had survived. The courageous 100 had left hundreds more of their company back in Holland. The Dutch Republic was the richest Protestant state in 17th century Europe. After many years of persecution in England the Pilgrims had fled to Amsterdam in 1607 hoping to find, as Governor Bradford later wrote, "freedom of religion for all men." On their arrival they did find religious toleration among the Calvinists of the Netherlands. But to their dismay, in the words of Bradford, "they heard a strange and uncouth language, and beheld the different manners and customs of the people, with their strange fashions and attires; and all so differing from that of their plain country villages, as it seemed they were come into a new world."

The old towns of Holland have changed little and the scenes of Dutch life are still moved by the teachings of Calvin and the necessities of trade in the most heavily populated country of Europe. The Dutch language is a dialect of German but it is harsh to the English ear.

Most of the land of Holland has been recovered from the North Sea by building dikes and then pumping the sea water out to the ocean. The old towns where the Pilgrims lived are criss-crossed by rivers, canals and waterways. The Pilgrims suffered from poverty in the close knit mercantile economic system of the Netherlands. They were not allowed to join the Dutch guilds.

The Pilgrims stiffly and sternly rebuked the fun loving entertainments and musical delights of the Dutch. In the narrow streets and along the shady canals of Amsterdam the melodies of the street organs are often played.

For some time the Pilgrims shared the stark worship services of the Brownists, another group of British separatists who had followed the fanatical Robert "Trouble-Church" Browne. The Pilgrims lived and worked in a little community around the church on Bruinistengange, "Brownists' Alley."

This quarter was in the old section of Amsterdam where the narrow store fronts and stone houses with their steep tiled roofs have stood for four hundred years.

Moved To Leiden
After two years residence in Amsterdam about 100 Pilgrims moved to Leiden further to the south in 1609. This was a smaller country town with one of the oldest and finest Calvinist Universities in Europe.

Leiden is still a college town and the older sections around the ancient university are jammed with booksellers' stalls and tiny sidewalk cafes. Leiden's two great industries in 1609 were textiles and printing.

The Pilgrims learned both trades. A leading Pilgrim, Elder Brewster, began to publish political and religious pamphlets. These were produced in his home in the Stincksteeg, "Stink Alley."

Although the Pilgrims disliked all forms of Dutch frivolity, especially the practice of letting children play on the Sabbath, it was not their distaste of the moral climate which forced them to leave.

It was the persecution by the agents of King James in response to their printing efforts. Thus the freedom of religion and the press were denied them in Europe and they were sent on their errand into the wilderness of Massachusetts.

These are the freedoms for which many Americans may still give thanks on our day of Thanksgiving.

Editors Note: Both Drs. White and Lokken were researching in the Netherlands this past summer. . . . Dr. White in the History of Science and Dr. Lokken in the Colonial Period. Both men are faculty members of the History Department of East Carolina University.

THE PILGRIMS . . . lived in the houses in the "Brownist" section of old Amsterdam from 1607 when they fled from England until 1609, when they moved to Leiden.

THE JOVIAL . . . and music loving Dutch were trial to the dour Pilgrims. In the streets of Amsterdam these street organs are still very popular.

Pesticides Under Fire Ever Since That Book By Rachel Carson

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

The gray-white mist of the pesticides, particularly DDT, is spreading into a nationwide controversy involving scientists, agricultural experts, wildlife officials and lawmakers.

In recent years, especially since the publication of Rachel Carson's book, "Silent Spring", there has been a cry: growing in volume, for a ban on the chemical spray.

Miss Carson's main concern was the rapid decline of bird life in the United States which she blamed primarily on the increasing use of pesticides.

Later, some scientists pointed to the dangers of pesticides to food products, stressing the threat to human life.

Wildlife and game department spokesmen added their voice, and conservationists joined the chorus.

Robert Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, promised Nov. 13 a phase-out of pesticides, except for essential uses. One week later, the President's Environmental Quality Council ordered cancellation of use of DDT against shade tree pests, pests in aquatic areas, house and garden pests and tobacco pests.

DDT seemed destined to the unopened can.

Then came the voice of the supporters—scientists questioning the dangers of pesticides, agricultural experts labeling the attacks as propaganda and economists warning that a ban on DDT could cripple the nation's food production and send food prices spiraling.

At a recent seminar in Florence, S.C., a Rutgers University scientist said, "Exposure of more than one billion human beings to DDT for over 20 years has not revealed one single medically annotated case of injury, sickness, cancer or death to man."

Robert White-Stevens of the Bureau of Conservation and Environmental Science at Rutgers, added, "There is no valid evidence that DDT can cause cancer. Extensive monitoring surveys reveal no accumulation of pesticides in foods, water supply or the bodies of people. The sensational assertions about the dangers of DDT in mother's milk are irresponsible, unscrupulous and ridiculous."

At the same seminar, Dr. Brian D. Blackburne, assistant medical examiner of the Greater Miami, Fla., area, said the careless use of pesticides has been the cause of more than 200 deaths a year.

Although stressing the importance of pesticides to agriculture, Blackburne cautioned they can be lethal when mishandled through carelessness or ignorance.

He warned against the use of powerful agricultural pesticides in and around the home and said farmers could avoid trouble by carefully following instructions issued by the manufacturers of pesticides.

A Clemson University agricultural expert told The Associated Press that claims against DDT "were propaganda and nothing more than scare programs."

L. M. Sparks, assistant director in the Clemson Extension Service's entomology unit, said the pesticides present little, if any, danger to fish, wildlife or human beings.

"I've never seen a dead bird or a dead animal in any field sprayed by DDT," he added. A spot check by the AP of wildlife experts in various states revealed fingers pointing to the pesticides as the reasons behind the loss of some wildlife.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department said, "We are facing the complete loss of the peregrine falcon and the golden and bald eagles. The latter two, particularly, are threatened, in a large part apparently, to pesticides."

The Georgia Game and Fish Commission said eagles, owls and other birds of prey are in danger of becoming extinct because of indiscriminate shooting and the use of pesticides."

From North Carolina came this report:

"Dieldrin and DDT are accused of being the cause for the disappearance of the bald eagle. About 15 years ago, hundreds of ospreys (fish hawks) nested and reared their young along the coastal swamps and marshes. Now, they are rare. Dieldrin and DDT seems to have upset the metabolism of these plus eagles and peregrine falcons, to the point where eggs are formed without calcium shells, and parent birds scramble the eggs trying to hatch them."

The Oregon Game Commission reported, "We are concerned mainly with pollution and pesticides plus the loss of habitat through modern agricultural practices. We believe pesticides are having an effect on our upland game birds."

The Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries said, "Ospreys and eagles are endangered species because they are especially susceptible to pesticide concentrations."

The Maine Wildlife Commission said the use of DDT had cutdown sharply on the number of landlocked salmon in the big Sebago Lake. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources said, "We are quite certain that the decline in bald eagles and ospreys is basically due to the widespread use of pesticides."

News Briefs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A new technique for protecting the kidneys may enable patients with advanced cancer of the abdomen to undergo otherwise hazardous radiation treatment.

Dr. Richard J. Steckel, assistant professor of radiology at the UCLA Medical School, reports extensive studies with experimental animals have demonstrated that infusion of adrenalin into the main kidney artery protects the kidney from radiation.

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — During a recent routine check, State Trooper J.F. Ross found that a motorist's operating license was a little out of date.

It had expired in 1943.

UTRECHT, The Netherlands (UPI) — While there is now one shoemaker available for every 3,000 Dutchmen, there will be only one for every 5,000 before long, trade circles predict. They say the number of skilled shoemakers is steadily decreasing. Moreover, more shoes are being marketed to be thrown away instead of having them repaired when worn.

COLUMBIA, Md. (UPI) — Hospital equipment around the country is in better health today, thanks to a new cure for sick instruments.

Under a plan developed by the Bendix Corporation, cardiographs, blood bell counters, X-ray machines and other diagnostic and therapeutic equipment in need of help can receive instant therapy at hospital service centers set up in major cities for that purpose.

The program, first of its kind in the country, offers preventive maintenance, equipment calibration and emergency repair work seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

End In Jail, But Married

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A young couple who came here for a Reno wedding but wound up in jail have been married anyway—in a ceremony performed behind bars by the city jail chaplain.

The former Spary Dauterman, 23, of Salt Lake City, said she met Duncan Cogo, 22, of Seattle, in a Seattle public market about a month ago, and "it was love at first sight."

Their dream delayed by car trouble on the way to Reno, the couple was arrested Friday outside a pawn shop. Cogo is held on a Seattle burglary warrant, his bride for investigation of being a disorderly person.

Spary carried a single carnation as the couple, in drab jail uniforms, recited their vows Monday while other prisoners watched. The newlyweds went back to their individual cells after the ceremony.

JOEY IS OUT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Joey Bishop, taping tonight's show Tuesday evening, announced he was leaving his late night talk show, saying ratings put him out of the three-way race with Johnny Carson and Merv Griffin.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Temperatures will average below normal through Monday. Cool at beginning of period and turning colder Saturday. Precipitation late Friday and Saturday.

MORTAR VICTIM — Two U.S. artillerymen aid a wounded buddy who had been hit by mortar shrapnel at the Bu Prang Special Forces camp near the Cambodian border in South Vietnam's central Highlands. The camp has been under constant attacks since Oct. 20, and is one of several in the area built to obstruct enemy infiltration. Due to enemy pressure in the sector, the camp is now surrounded. Suspects Turkeys Were Easy Dinner

By LOWELL MCKIRGAN
Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — An expert on the history of the American Indian says the turkey probably became the traditional Thanksgiving centerpiece because it was too stupid to run away and was easy to catch.

Also, said Gertrude Kurath, the Indians, "who worshiped animals in a way, didn't seem to have too much respect for the turkey."

Mrs. Kurath, who has written several books on Indian customs and history, said the Indians probably provided the birds for the first Pilgrim Thanksgiving celebration, a three-day affair which began Dec. 13, 1621.

Dr. Howard Zindel, chairman of poultry science at Michigan State University, said it is probably true that a turkey is not as bright as a chicken.

However, he added, the turkey of Pilgrim days had encountered too few men to have built up a fear of them, and the more experienced modern day wild turkey is quite wary.

Dr. Zindel postulated that the first Thanksgiving turkeys were quite bony and weighed around 10 pounds including the feathers—a far cry from the plump ones which come out of the store deep freezers these days.

He considers that people are unlikely to abandon turkey as their Thanksgiving feast in the foreseeable future, explaining: "They can't afford to. How much per pound did you pay for hot dogs last week?"

IF THERE'S DIRT IN YOUR ELECTRICALLY-HEATED HOUSE, YOU BROUGHT IT IN.

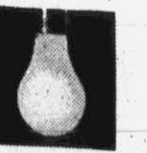

Electric heat never creates any dirt. Or grime. Or soot. Or anything else but gentle, draft free heat.

Your floors, walls, ceilings, draperies and furniture stay clean longer. General housecleaning is easier and can be done less often.

If your old heating system is giving you trouble this winter, call your nearest Vepco Authorized Comfort Conditioning Contractor and let him give you an estimate on converting your house to modern electric heat. (He's in the Yellow Pages under "Heating Contractors.")

Remember, if you decide to convert, it'll take less than four days. And you can leave your old heating system on throughout the conversion.

Modern electric heat. It'll keep your house completely clean. As long as you remember to wipe your feet.

If your home has electricity, you already have the better part of a new heating system.

Chance At Normal Eye

Jordan Voted To End Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N. C., voted Tuesday to end the income tax surcharge at the end of this year, but the proposal was defeated 49-28.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N. C., was not listed as voting.

B.C., he had vision in both eyes, thanks to the skill of a fellow Canadian, Dr. H. MacKenzie Freeman of Alberta, a surgeon at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Lloyd had come through four difficult operations after he was struck in the eye by a hard rubber ball which ripped the retina.

For one operation, Freeman used a tilting operating table in which the force of gravity is enlisted in dropping a detached retina while the surgeon works from underneath.

At another stage Freeman inserted the balloon, on the end of a probe, through the eye, then inflated it, causing the drooping sections of retina to roll back into place.

Then using a scissors thinner than a dime, Freeman pushed through a slit in the eyeball and trimmed away some membrane that was in the way.

'It's Hard To Leave Football,' Stas

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

The End Of An Era

The resignation of Coach Clarence Stasavich yesterday was expected by some, and it surprised others, but it brought an end to an era of American football.

With Stasavich leaving the sidelines of the football field for a full-time desk job as athletic director, the single-wing formation among major college schools, goes with him. East Carolina University was the only school among the majors to use the single wing last season.

And while members of the East Carolina staff will be considered for the job as he replacement, it is expected that they would run some form of the "T" should they get the job.

It's really saddening to see the single wing pass into history. It is a colorful formation, that provides for a lot of action. A lot of football coaches now are all raving about the formation coming to be known as the Houston option, where the quarterback fakes to a back going into the line, then runs wide, either pitching to another back and then providing blocking for him, passing, or keeping the ball and running.

The next time you get a chance, look at a film of East Carolina running the buck-lateral series, and you'll wonder what is so new about the Houston option. Remember the days when Dave Alexander would get the snap from center, hand off to Norm Swindell, who would either keep the ball, or option off to Bill Cline. And remember Cline's ability to 'round the corner or throw a touchdown bomb.

So maybe the single wing wasn't so old-fashioned at all.

Actually, it's a lot like Butch Colson said last week. "You can run any formation if you have the people to play."

This is the key to what has happened to the East Carolina football fortunes. With Stasavich having to give a large part of his time to the rapidly developing athletic program at the university, the football recruiting program was hampered. And many of the players who could have made the single wing click, went elsewhere.

But now it's over. The fans in Ficklen Stadium won't get to be unique any more. Like all the rest, they'll just watch the "T" and hope that it will provide half the excitement.

And meanwhile, the search for a new coach goes on.

Almost immediately, names began to be mentioned for the position. One application was turned in yesterday afternoon. The search will be done as quickly as possible, so as to get the best man for the job in the shortest amount of time. It will be hard to recruit for the school when it is not known what the situation will be here next year.

Many prospective names will be mentioned over the coming weeks, but officially, none will ever be announced, except for the one who eventually gets the job.

Among those most mentioned in the early talking were two members of the staff, Odell Welborn and Henry Vansant, along with Davidson's Homer Smith. Whether any of these are interested is not known. Whether any of them apply will probably never be made known.

One thing is sure. It's going to be an interesting closing for 1969.

"I've been in football since 1935. It's been a way of live for me," Clarence Stasavich said yesterday afternoon as he sat in his office between telephone calls from newsmen and friends. Stasavich had, earlier in the day, resigned as head football coach at East Carolina University, to devote his full time to the duties as athletic director.

"I don't know how it's going to feel next fall, when all the rest are out practicing and I'm not involved. I imagine it'll be hard to stay on the sidelines."

But Stasavich says that he will. There'll be no advice handed out, unless requested.

"It got to the point," he said, "that there was just too much for one man to do and handle both jobs. I want to work in the area where I can do the most good. As far as the athletic program at East Carolina is concerned, I feel I can do this as the director of the program. This isn't anything new to me. I was athletic director at Lenoir Rhyne from 1946 until I came here in 1962."

And after coming to East Carolina, Stasavich was made athletic director in 1964.

"There has been a big change in the program since then," he pointed out. "At that time, there were seven coaches on the entire staff. Now there are 16. The budget has tripled since 1964. And we are participating in nearly twice as many sports as we did then."

Another factor has been the expansion of the program to hire full-time coaches for most sports. "In the past, football coaches handled the spring and winter sports programs for the most part," Stasavich said. "Now the football coaches only coach football, and other people have been hired to take over these other sports."

"The program is too big not to have the proper guidance and attendance that a combination coach and athletic director can give it," Stasavich said.

Stasavich has some ideas for promoting East Carolina athletics and for improving the athletic department at the university. These will be unfolded in the days to come. Much concerns improved scheduling.

But right now, his most immediate task is to find a successor to himself as head coach. He received one application within a few hours of his resignation. More were expected to begin coming in today, with five received in the morning's mail.

No time limit has been set for the selection, but naturally, it will have to be as soon as is possible so "as not to hinder recruiting. "We're going to be looking at a lot of people and talking to a lot of people," Stasavich said.

Several members of Stasavich's staff have expressed interest in the job, and they will be among those considered for the position.

Garrett Lauded As AFL's Offensive Star

By DICK COUCH

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Garrett caught himself napping in the middle of his long-awaited confrontation with O.J. Simpson.

When Garrett got back on his feet, Boston Patriots fans promptly forgot all about Simpson and began beating the drums for their own choice as the American Football League's top rookie.

"O.J. Who?" the Boston crowd chanted last Sunday after Garrett climaxed a sensational all-around performance with a 44-yard touchdown run in the final minute, putting the wraps on the Patriots' 35-21 victory over Buffalo.

"I hadn't felt well at all during the week and was feeling drowsy during the pre-game practice," said Garrett, the Patriots' No. 3 draft choice from little New Mexico Highlands College. "So I took a catnap during halftime, and I think that revived me."

Garrett, held to nine yards rushing in the first half, went on to finish with 96 in 13 carries—compared with 98 in 17 for Simpson, the Bills' heralded rookie flash.

The Patriots' 210-pound running back also returned a kick-off 63 yards, broke loose for 44 on a punt runback to set up a touchdown and caught two passes for 26 yards during another scoring drive.

Today, the versatile, 22-year-old rookie was named AFL Offensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press.

Garrett, who said his goal was "to beat out O.J. Simpson and be the rookie of the year" when he signed with the Patriots last spring, has been true to his intentions since cracking the starting lineup in the fourth game of the season.

Lou Piniella Chosen American League's Rookie Of The Year

By ERIC SHARP

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Lou Piniella was named the American Baseball League's rookie of the year "because he deserved it," according to one "totally unbiased fan"—his wife, Anita. "Oh, I still can't get over it," she said Tuesday shortly after learning of the honor accorded her husband, who plays left field for the Kansas City Royals.

Piniella, 26, said he knew he was in contention for the award, "but I never expected to win."

In fact, Piniella said, he was ready to quit baseball if he hadn't been drafted by a major league club in last spring's league expansion.

Piniella said he had played for three years with Portland, a Pacific Coast League farm club of the Cleveland Indians.

"I had real good years, but every time I reported for spring training with the Indians, they'd send me back to the minors. I was really getting disgruntled," he said.

The Seattle Pilots drafted Piniella in the expansion, but traded him on April 1 to the Royals—another move that Piniella wasn't too happy about, at first.

"I really didn't want to leave Seattle because I'd been playing on the west coast and was pretty well known there. But as soon as I talked to Cedric Tallis (the Royals' general manager), he told me I'd get the opportunity to play and I'd start in left field if I showed I could do the job," he said.

Piniella showed he could do the job well enough to end the season with a .282 batting average, and was happy with Kansas City "because I got to play a lot of baseball."

He and his wife and their 10-month-old son, Lou Jr., live in Tampa in the off-season while Piniella works as a broker trainee with the E. F. Hutton investment firm.

SC Ending Looks Bad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The record of Southern Conference football teams against outside opposition, which went from poor to disaster in the last two Saturdays, figures to get even worse Thursday when the last two members wind up their regular season against non-league foes.

Before a disastrous 0-5 wipe-out on Saturday, Nov. 15, and an 0-4 shutout last Saturday, conference teams were 9-141 against non-conference opponents. Now the record is 9-23-1—and it will be 9-25-1 by Thursday night unless there are a couple of surprises.

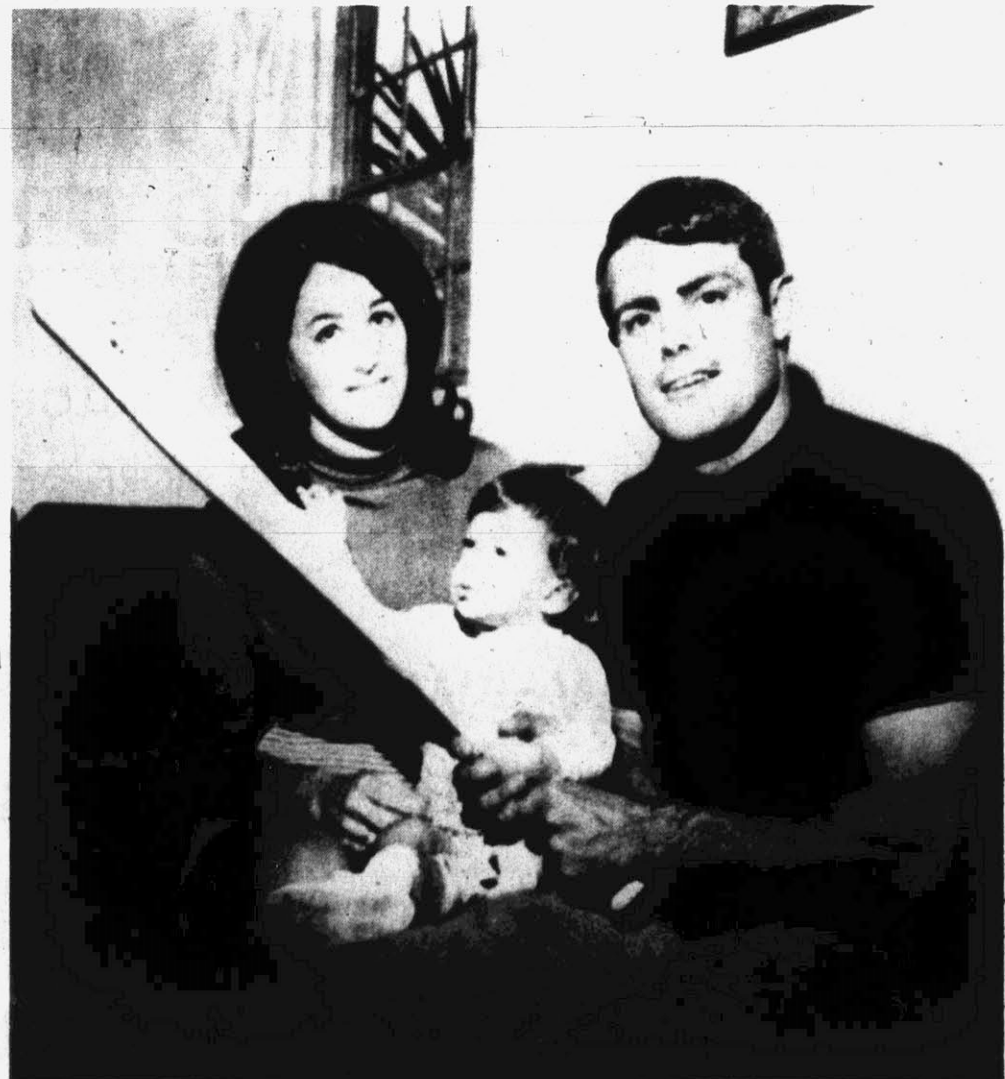

Winding up their campaigns Thursday are the two teams with the worst records over-all—Furman's Paladins at 1-7-1 and Virginia Military Institute's Keydets, winless in nine starts.

The Paladins take on small-college Wofford, which handed them a 49-7 licking in a game earlier this season. The Keydets tackle arch-rival Virginia Tech, now 3-5-1 after losing its first five games.

Only The Citadel's Bulldogs, who finished third in the league with a 4-2 record, have won more outside games than they have lost. The Bulldogs stand 3-1 in nonconference competition.

League champion Davidson is 2-2 after successive losses the last two weeks to Wofford and Vanderbilt. All other teams are in the red—Furman at 1-3-1, Richmond at 1-3, East Carolina at 1-4, William and Mary at 1-5 and VMI at 0-5.

Top Teams Prepare For Turkey Day Dressings

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

While the rest of the country zeroes in on the Dec. 6 college football showdown between top-ranked Texas and No. 2 Arkansas, the two coaches involved have other things on their minds—like traditional Thanksgiving Day dates with Texas A&M and Texas Tech.

Darrel Royal, coach of the Longhorns, has been burned often enough by A&M to know his club will have a tough game on their hands Thursday. And Frank Broyles of Arkansas is running just as scared for the Tech game.

Royal remembers that each of the last three times his club has had to play on A&M's Kyle Field, the Longhorns have had to come from behind in the second half.

The Aggies will need plenty of emotion to overcome the power-packed Longhorns. Texas is 8-0 and has averaged 50 points per game against five South-west Conference opponents.

Broyles, like Royal, has to keep his club from looking ahead to the Dec. 6 game.

"We know from experience that we can't take Tech lightly," says the Arkansas boss. "They spoiled a fine season for us three years ago. The Texas game doesn't mean nearly as much to us if we don't find a way to get past Tech."

Regardless of what happens Thursday and, for that matter, in their showdown game a week later, both Arkansas and Texas are set for post-season bowl games. The winner of the Dec. 6 game goes against Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day while the loser goes to the Sugar Bowl against Mississippi.

Ole Miss will be in action

Thursday in another traditional game with Mississippi State providing the opposition.

There are two other Turkey Day Games scheduled with Louisville taking on Tulsa and Virginia Tech facing Virginia Military.

In Saturday's major games, third-ranked Penn State battles North Carolina State, Tennessee, ranked 10th, meets Vanderbilt, Auburn, No. 12, faces Alabama, Miami, No. 17, takes on Florida, 18th-ranked Houston meets Florida State, and Army battles Navy.

Four Pro Games Set For Thanksgiving Day

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Thanksgiving Day will be a holiday for most pro football teams but not for the Kansas City Chiefs, who have Denver on their menu. They'll be out to carve up the Broncos in order to stay in the thick of the American Football League's Western Division race.

In other Turkey Day games San Diego will be at Houston in the AFL and San Francisco faces Dallas and Minnesota plays Detroit in the National Football League.

The Chiefs, 9-2, will be out to avenge Sunday's 27-24 defeat by division leader Oakland, 9-1 against the Broncos, who have faded to 4-6-1 after a strong start.

With only two games left after Thursday's contest, Kansas City must win to stay within one-half game of Oakland, whom the Chiefs face in a possible showdown for the division title on Dec. 13, the last regular season game for both teams.

San Diego, with rookie Marty Domres at the throttle, will try to stymie the Oilers chance for clinching a playoff spot in the AFL East.

The Lions, who have a tradition of being tough on Thanksgiving, will try to make the NFL Century Division go down to the wire with a victory over the Vikings, who have won nine straight.

The Cowboys, 8-2, can virtually clinch the Capitol Division crown with a victory over the 49ers, who will be without defensive end Stan Hindman, injured in the 49ers 43-38 loss to New Orleans Sunday.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—It's "Steve Owens Day" in Oklahoma, by proclamation of the governor, but the 1969 Heisman Trophy winner is right back on the football field putting in another hard-working afternoon.

Oklahoma's great tailback was awarded the Heisman by a narrow margin Tuesday over Purdue quarterback Mike Phipps. Owens received 1,488 points from the 992 sportswriters and broadcasters who voted. Phipps had 1,334. Owens didn't have long to relax and enjoy being honored as the nation's best college football player. Oklahoma has a game Saturday with Oklahoma State and practice goes on, Heisman Trophy or no Heisman Trophy.

"It's the greatest thing that's ever happened to me," Owens said. "It's something that football player dreams sort of unbelievable."

Owens won the award with a three-season display of amazing consistency and durability. He rushed for 100 or more yards in 17 consecutive games and scored at least one touchdown in 16 straight games.

He holds the NCAA career records for most carries (850), most yards rushing (3,606) and most touchdowns in three years (54).

He's in the running for this year's national rushing and scoring championships, and he needs only 51 yards on the ground against Oklahoma State for an unprecedented third straight Big Eight Conference rushing title.

Owens plans a pro football career after an Army Reserve stint, and he says he doesn't care which team drafts him. "I'll be happy anywhere."

Phipps finishing second was a bitter pill for Purdue backers to swallow. It marked the third time in four years a Boilermaker star had been runner-up in the Heisman Trophy balloting. The others were Bob Griese, to Florida's Steve Spurrier in 1966, and Leroy Keyes, to Southern California's O. J. Simpson last year.

Following Owens and Phipps in the balloting were a pair of quarterbacks, Rex Kern of Ohio State and Archie Manning of Mississippi. Kern earned 856 points, Manning 582. Both are juniors.

Vikings Ready To Stop Lions

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Schmidt has his Detroit Lions all wheed up ready to give the streaking Minnesota Vikings a chilly reception Thanksgiving Day noon in Tiger Stadium, the burial ground of many title hopes.

The Lions have won four in a row since Oct. 26 when they bowed to the Vikings 24-10 and were treated to a cold shower in their locker room. "We'll give an icebath on the field and then roll them into a dressing room for more ice," Schmidt said after that first game.

The holiday calendar calls for four pro games, all to be seen on network television, sandwiched around the turkey dinner. We'll try to pick the winners and take up the Sunday games later in the week.

The National Football League has Minnesota at Detroit and San Francisco at Dallas. The American Football League has Denver at Kansas City and San Diego at Houston.

Here we go again:

NFL
Minnesota 23, Detroit 14—Vikings can clinch a tie in Central Division with a win over hungry Lions, who can narrow the gap to one game with an upset. If Joe Kapp is cold, Gary Cuozzo may be hot or vice versa. Vikings clobbered Greg Landry in first game with six smears and four interceptions. Lions need a healthy fired-up Alex Karras and they say his knee is hurting.

Dallas 27, San Francisco 17—It all depends on how much the Cowboys have left after their grueling workout in Los Angeles. If Craig Morton really can't throw long, Dallas may be in trouble but 49ers lack consistency and are out of the race. Dallas must win as long as Redskins still are alive.

AFL
Kansas City 30, Denver 14—As in all four games, much depends on how clubs react to second start within five days, a tough grind for any team. Denver still hurting with Steve Tensi joining Floyd Little on sidelines. Chiefs should be in angry mood after loss to Oakland and they did handle Denver 26-13 in earlier game.

Houston 20, San Diego 17—A toughie with four Houston regulars on doubtful list but Oilers can wrap up second place in the East and a playoff spot with a victory. Chargers going with Marty Domres, who took them past Denver Sunday.

Nicklaus Is Heritage Pick

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD, S. C. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, lean, trim and on the move, is a heavy favorite for the top prize in the $100,000 Heritage Golf Classic, next to past stop on this year's PGA tour.

Nicklaus, big now only in ability—not size—has his awesome game back in gear, owns a fantastic record on the fall tour and will be playing on a course he, personally, designed.

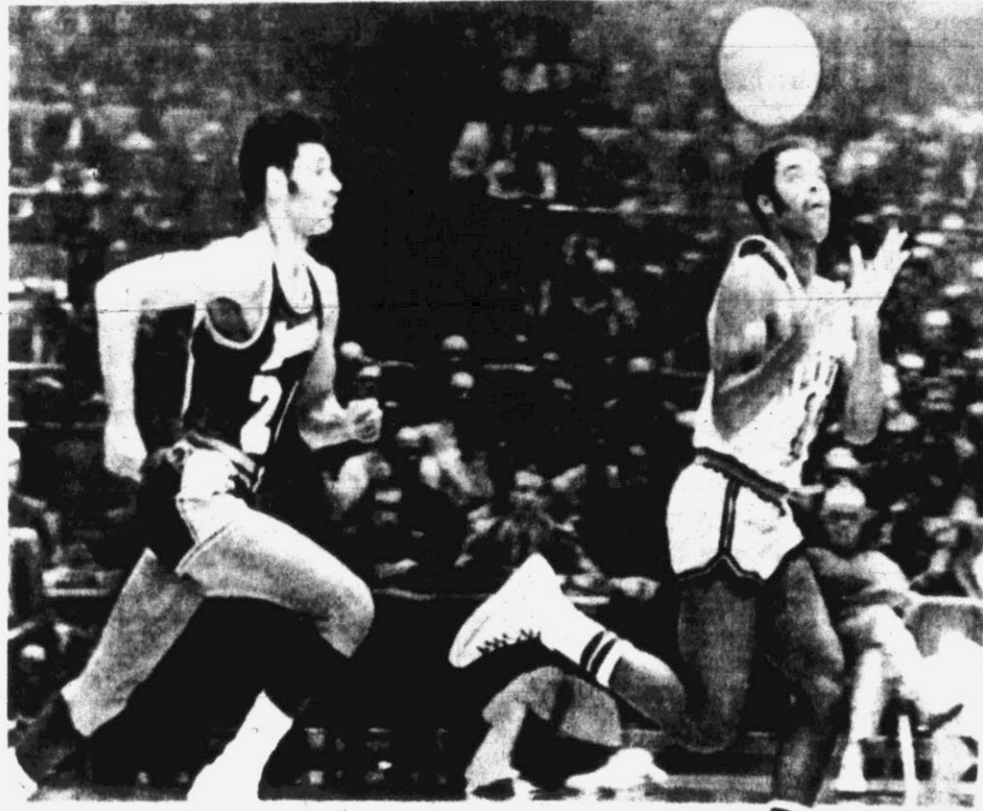

And too, the Big Bear, now a svelt 190 pounds after a two month diet, has the desire—he wants to move up on the money list.

"You always want to be first in as many categories as possible." Nicklaus said after a practice round on the tight, 6,655 yard, par 71 Harbour Town golf links, a flat, seaside layout that ranks as one of the more unusual and demanding courses the pros encounter.

He has an excellent shot at advancing, too. Big Jack is No. 3 on the list at the moment and the two men ahead of him, Frank Beard and Joe Hill, are among the missing in the 144 man field that will begin the 72 hole test Thursday.

Nicklaus has played only three of the four fall tournaments and has won two and finished second in the other, the Hawaiian Open two weeks ago.

A Long Pass

Whipping down court on a fast break, Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks makes a football-style pass over the shoulder. In hot but futile pursuit is Los Angeles Laker Dick

Garrett. Frazier made the layup Tuesday as the Knicks kept up their torrid pace, beating the Lakers, 103-96, while winning their 16th consecutive game. (AP Wirephoto)

Belvoir Takes Sixth In Row

Leggett—Belvoir—Falkland added its sixth straight victory last night, downing West Edgcombe, 57-49. The girls, however, dropped their fourth in six starts, 40-25.

West Edgcombe's girls shot away to a 12-5 lead in the first period, and despite a second period Belvoir rally, West never fell from the lead. In the second frame, Belvoir outscored West Edgcombe, 11-7, but trailed at the half, 19-16.

In the third period, West Edgcombe outhit Belvoir, 11-6, and pushed the lead out to 30-22. They insured the win by outscoring Belvoir, 10-3, in the final period.

Gail Rhodes led the West Edgcombe victory with 20 points.

It was a different story in the boys game, however. Belvoir slipped out into a 14-10 lead in the first period, and was never headed after that. In the second period, Belvoir held a 16-11 edge in scoring and built it lead to 30-21 by intermission.

The Eagles continued to show the way in the third period, outscoring West Edgcombe, 11-9, to hold a 41-30 lead. In the final period, West managed to put on a lim rally, outscoring Belvoir, 19-16, but it barely dented the Eagle lead.

William Shivar led the way for the Eagles with 20 points, while Joey Moore added 17.

Dennis Cockrell led West with 15 points, while Danny Bunn had 11.

Hawks Return 'Home' But Get No Welcome

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Hawks returned to St. Louis and received a miserable welcome from the Milwaukee Bucks, and things don't promise to get any better for the Hawks when they return to Atlanta to-night where the New York Knicks will be waiting.

The Atlanta Hawks, the St. Louis Hawks for 13 years before moving to Atlanta last year, lost to the Bucks 130-115 Tuesday night in a National Basketball Association game played in St. Louis before 11,015 old Hawks fans.

Now, the Hawks return to their new home to face the red-hot Knicks, who rattled off their 16th consecutive victory by holding off the injury-riddled Los Angeles Lakers 103-96 at Madison Square Garden.

The Knicks, with a 21-1 record, will be trying to match the NBA record of 17 straight victories by the 1946 Washington Caps and 1959 Boston Celtics.

In other NBA games, Detroit nipped Chicago 104-103 at Kansas City, Baltimore stopped Phoenix 134-124 and San Francisco turned back Seattle 114-106.

In the American Basketball Association, Washington beat Los Angeles 106-102 in the only game.

Milwaukee, with John McGlocklin scoring eight of his 24 points and Don Smith six of his 16, raced from a 99-97 lead to a 113-97 advantage in the final quarter and breezed. Lew Alcinder led the Bucks with 33 points and 13 rebounds.

Jim Davis had 30 points and 15 rebounds for the Hawks.

The Lakers, playing without injured superstars Wilt Chamberlain and Elgin Baylor, and Keith Erickson and Rick Robertson, battled from a 14-point deficit to a 78-72 lead before the Knicks took command early in the final quarter behind Walt Frazier.

Frazier finished with 26 points, 13 rebounds and nine assists, helping the balanced Knicks offset a 41-point show by Jerry West.

Otto Moore tipped in a basket with 10 seconds left that brought the Pistons from behind a 101-96 deficit with 2:18 left before Chicago missed three shots in the last nine seconds.

Baltimore's victory at the expense of Phoenix was its eighth straight. Earl Monroe and rookie Mike Davis topped the Bullets with 29 points each. Dick Van Arsdale of the Suns was the game's high scorer with 30.

Nate Thurmond and Joe Ellis collected 11 points apiece as San Francisco rallied in the final period and handed Seattle its fifth loss in a row. Thurmond led the Warriors with 29 points and hauled down 29 rebounds. Bob Rule was high for the Sonics with 24 points.

Larry Brown dropped two free throws in the final minute for the last of his 21 points and clinched Washington's ABA triumph, breaking a three-game losing streak.

Bethel Union Falls, 78-70

BATTLEBORO—Phillips High School of Battleboro pushed out into an early lead, then held off a late Bethel Union rally, to take a 78-70 victory last night.

It was only the second loss in six starts for the Bulldogs.

Bethel got away to a slow start, scoring only five points in the first period, while Phillips was sinking 12. In the second period, both teams upped their output, but Phillips still held the edge in the frame, 20-18. That gave Phillips a 32-23 lead at the intermission.

In the third period, Phillips outscored Bethel by seven points, 25-18, to further pad its lead. By the end of the quarter, Phillips held a 57-41 lead. Bethel tried to rally in the final period, outscoring Phillips, 29-21, but it fell short of catching up.

Dancy led Phillips with 25 points, while Pittman had 20, and DeBerry and Davis each had 13.

For Bethel Union, Wayne Brown had 24 and Ernest Maye had 21.

In the junior varsity game, Bethel Union also fell, 33-29, for its second loss in six starts.

Keeping Balance In Immigration

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (AP) — Immigration Minister Cornelius P. Mulder has promised that government-encouraged immigration will not swamp Afrikaner Calvinists in this country. He told a congress of the Afrikaner-dominated ruling Nationalist Party he will ensure the balance in numbers between English and Afrikaans-speaking citizens and see that the existing ratio of Protestants to Catholics is not disturbed.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣.
 West opened the jack of clubs against South's six diamond contract and declarer won the trick with the king. An examination of the combined holdings by South revealed that there were five top tricks available in the side suits. It appeared that seven more tricks might be scored in diamonds via a cross-ruff and declarer proceeded to launch his campaign.
 He cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed the small one with the four of diamonds. The ace of spades was played on which a heart was discarded, followed by a small spade which was trumped with the deuce in the closed hand. Next came the ace, king of hearts and a third round which South ruffed with North's ten of diamonds. East administered a rude awakening, however, by overruffing with the jack. Back came a trump to clear the dummy of diamonds and inasmuch as South was left with a losing heart in his hand, he was eventually obliged to concede a one trick defeat.

 South's basic strategy was in order, however his execution left something to be desired. Once the four and deuce of diamonds go thru, declarer has seven tricks in and only five more are required. The trump holding at this point consists of the queen-ten in dummy and the A-K-9-8 in the closed hand.
 Inasmuch as the jack is the only outstanding trump that can top declarer's intermediates, he can afford to continue the cross-ruff with his top diamonds. Using the A-K-Q of diamonds will serve to bring the trick total to 10 and as the intermediates are used, it will not matter if one gets overruffed, for the remaining two trumps will become established as winners.
 Observe the effect at trick eight when South leads a third round of hearts, if he ruffs with dummy's queen of diamonds. East will of course take a discard. Now declarer comes off dummy with a spade and trumps with the king of diamonds.
 When South leads his remaining heart, North ruffs with the ten of diamonds and the East will overruff with the jack, declarer's remaining trumps, the A-9-8, are all winners and the defense is restricted to one trick—the jack of diamonds.

Vietnam Massacre Witnesses Directed Be Silent

PLENTY OF NOTHING—Secret Service agent Stephen A. Byrnes, in charge of the eastern California district, displays boxes which contain a total of $4.4 million in bogus $20 dollar bills after it was counted in his office in Sacramento. The counterfeit money seized last week by his agents is the largest haul of bogus money ever recovered in U. S. history. Most of the money was picked up in the Porterville area Thursday and Friday. Five men have been arrested and charged. (AP Wirephoto)

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A military judge has ordered potential witnesses in the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. on charges of murdering 109 South Vietnamese civilians to discuss their evidence only with principals in the trial.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and his general counsel, Robert Jordan, said Tuesday they would tell the Senate Armed Services Committee what the Army knows of the alleged massacre of civilians at My Lai, South Vietnam, on March 16, 1968.

Lt. Col. Reid Kennedy, senior trial judge at Ft. Benning, Ga., where Calley will be court-martialed, ordered Tuesday that the prosecution notify all potential witnesses; the restriction on public disclosures.

Kennedy handed Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the prosecutor, an order that said in part: "Each witness will be informed that he is authorized to discuss or disclose information or real evidence to you, Mr. George Latimer, Maj. Kenneth A. Raby

Latimer is Calley's civilian counsel and Maj. Raby the military defense counsel.

Kennedy's order came at a hearing where prosecution and defense counsels asked him to ban news interviews with persons who might testify at the court martial.

Kennedy said he would allow "a reasonable time" for news media to impose self-restraints that would assure an impartial trial.

Calley, 26, was charged with the premeditated murder of 109 civilians, including women and children, after public disclosure of letters and interviews with persons who said they were eyewitnesses to or participants in the My Lai incident.

Some accounts have placed the number of civilians killed in My Lai as high as 567.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "how shocked and sick I was when these allegations first came to my attention." His comments were in a letter made public Tuesday.

Laird said the Nixon administration "is determined to insure absolute compliance with our orders and with the laws of war." He said he first learned of the incident in April and the Army began an investigation soon afterward.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, said high Army officials knew about the My Lai incident in March 1968, right after it occurred, the New York Times said.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., labeled as "garbage" a television interview with former Army Pvt. Paul Meadlo, who said he killed 10 to 15 men, women and babies at Calley's order. Dominick told the Senate the interview might make a fair trial impossible and undermined the judicial process.

Meadlo's father, Tony Meadlo, a coal miner in New Goshen, Ind., said he would have shot the officer who gave the order to kill, then "it wouldn't have happened." Mrs. Meadlo said the Army "made a murderer out of" her son.

"He was forced to do it, because anybody in their right mind couldn't take and kill somebody," she said. "I raised him to be a good boy, then they came along and took him into the service."

Meadlo's father said, in an interview with CBS Radio, "I would have shot the one that demanded me to do it. That's the guy that should have been shot and that would have been over with."

In Saigon, Sen. Tran Van Don, a leading opponent of President Nguyen Van Thieu and the chairman of the South Vietnamese Senate's Defense Committee, said today he may investigate the alleged My Lai massacre. The former general said he had called a special meeting of his committee Thursday to decide.

Thieu's regime has denied that any massacre occurred.

The government version of the incident is that about 20 civilians were killed by air strikes and artillery during an attack on Viet Cong forces.

North Vietnam claimed today that U.S. and allied troops have killed more than 4,300 civilians since President Nixon was inaugurated last January.

"The Song My case is only one of the heinous war crimes of the U.S. aggressors," Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency said in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo. "There have been hundreds and thousands of slayings like the one in Song My."

Song My is the village in which My Lai hamlet is located.

ENGLISH TASTES

LONDON (AP) — Roast beef still is the most popular meat dish in Britain, but steak is gaining fast, according to a recent poll. Thirty per cent of those questioned preferred roast beef and 23 per cent steak. But among the 16 to 24 years old bracket, steak was favored 31 per cent to 22.

"We have proven in the Soviet Union that our silent majority exists. But we have no proof that you even have a silent majority except for Nixon's word."

"That's dangerous thinking, Kalinsky. If we ever unleashed our silent majority against your silent majority, we would wipe you from the face of the earth."

"Do not provoke us too far," Kalinsky said threateningly. "We have silent majorities stockpiled all over our country. You may knock out some of them, but your silent majority will take heavy casualties."

"Let's not argue, Kalinsky," I pleaded. "I admit the Soviet Union has a great silent majority. Will you admit we have a great silent majority, too?"

"I will admit you have a good silent majority, but not a great one—at least nothing comparable to what we've had for the last 50 years."

"You have insulted the President of the United States, Kalinsky," I said, getting up. "And I will not sit here and eat with you any more."

Evans-Novak . . .

(Continued From Page 4) other cases, it exacerbated already abrasive relations between the regular party and a Senator—as in Illinois with Charles H. Percy, who ignored some 400 letters received the morning of the vote and opposed Haynsworth anyway.

Even where the campaign squeezed out a vote for Haynsworth, however, its long-term impact may be negative. Sen. Ralph Smith, appointed to Everett McKinley Dirksen's seat from Illinois and an underdog for election in his own right next year, is the classic example.

Arriving in Washington intent on establishing an independent image, Smith announced his opposition to Haynsworth. He was promptly subjected to a pincer campaign of pressure, from the White House on one hand and Illinois regulars energized by the White House on the other. His consequent flipflop to Haynsworth's side has brought him to political rock-bottom at home.

Moreover, new animosities toward the White House have sprouted in the Senate Republican cloakroom. One liberal GOP Senator, lobbied fiercely by home-state politicians in Haynsworth's behalf, last month announced his opposition. Although lobbying abruptly ceased, the Senator soon learned that the White House ordered Congressional liaison officers in government agencies to give him a minimum of help henceforth.

Mencken Lives On In Baltimore

By ROBIN FRAMES
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — H.

L. Mencken, the late Sage of Baltimore, has been out of the literary limelight for nearly 25 years, but his memory lives on in his old home town.

Carl Bode's new biography, "Mencken," has sparked fresh interest here in the journalist-philosopher, whose vitriolic pen skewered many a sacred cow in the 1920s and 1930s during which he was one of the nation's most famous editors, authors and critics.

"We sold out of the book five or six weeks ago and are waiting for new stock," reports Morris Klein, manager of the Baltimore Doubleday store.

Remington's Book Store, with three locations, has reordered twice and is into its second batch of 100.

Edgecombe Man Getting Reward

PAID BY STATE

RALEIGH (AP) — An Edgecombe County man will receive the first reward paid by the state under antiterroism laws enacted by the 1967 General Assembly.

Gov. Bob Scott and the Council of State Tuesday authorized payment of $3,333.33 to J. V. Jackson through his attorney, Vinson Bridgers of Tarboro.

The laws authorize the governor to offer rewards for information leading to the conviction of perpetrators of serious crimes.

Jackson furnished information which led to the conviction last May of two of three men responsible for three rapes near ROCKY Mount in the fall of 1968.

The payment is two-thirds of the $5,000 reward offered by then Gov. Dan K. Moore.

Holding Driver In Fatal Mishap

SYLVANIA, Ga. (AP) — A New Jersey man is being held on charges of involuntary manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident in the death of a Lenoir, N. C., man Monday night.

Robert Lee Hodges, 33, was killed near Sylvania when he was struck by a car as he walked on U. S. 301 after dark, the state patrol said.

Arrested in the case was Andrew Keller of Paterson, N. J. No bond has been set for Keller pending a preliminary hearing, a deputy sheriff said.

with a selection of a dozen or more books by and about Mencken.

Who buys Mencken books now? "Most of them seem at least a little bit literary," one clerk says, but beyond that there is no way to generalize: a banker eager to complete his Mencken collection, a mother choosing a book for her son in Vietnam, a theater promotion man and even two stevedores fresh from the docks.

"In this city," one Baltimorean declares, "Mencken is a little god."

Gerald Johnson, a retired journalist who knew Mencken well when they worked on the Baltimore Sun, says: "Dr. Bode has effectively placed him in his home town environment, and this creates an extra local interest here."

"I don't know exactly how the younger generation is receiving the new work, but I think it is significant that a thick volume on someone who ceased to be a public figure 23 years ago should cause such widespread interest."

Mencken died in 1956 and was in poor health for a decade before that.

He was born in Baltimore in 1880, studied engineering but became a reporter. Later he turned literary critic and then editor. In 1924 he helped to found the American Mercury magazine.

He directed his invective often at what he considered low standards of taste and culture. One old acquaintance describes his literary crusade as "a revolt against academic writing—the stuffed shirts."

The Sage of Baltimore was never universally liked, even in his home town. "Half the people here boasted about him and the other half apologized for him," Johnson recalls.

Will Represent School Boards

RALEIGH (AP) — A new assistant attorney general will take over the task of representing North Carolina school boards in desegregation proceedings in the state and in Washington.

Andrew A. Vanore Jr., 31, was one of two men promoted to the posts of assistant attorneys general Tuesday by Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan. The other, Sidney S. Eagles Jr., 30, will head a newly created legislative liaison division.

One of Morgan's campaign promises was to stop the practice of his predecessor, Wade Bruton, of hiring Washington attorneys to represent North Carolina school boards in integration cases.

The 4-H County Council

Achievement Night program saw county awards presented to outstanding 4-H members for their achievements during the past year.

Special recognition went to two 4-H members who were selected as the most outstanding junior and senior 4-H'ers for their work during the 1969 club year.

Miss Almissie Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Connor of Grimesland, was selected as the 1969 Most Outstanding Junior 4-H'er. For the project work, Miss Thompson was named county champion or runner up in six projects this year.

Special recognition was given to Mrs. Gladys Avery of Bethel, who was named Outstanding Community Leader for 1969. Mrs. Avery has served as the community leader for two 4-H groups during the past year and encouraged 39 of her 48 members to participate in county events.

Extension Of Surtax Passes Test

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Extension of the income tax surcharge at a 5 per cent rate for the first half of 1970 now seems assured if the big tax reform bill becomes law this year.

The Senate voted Tuesday, 49-28, to retain a provision extending the surtax six months beyond its scheduled Dec. 31 expiration date.

Although the Senate agreed to take no more votes until it returns next Monday from a Thanksgiving holiday, the debate continued today with a controversial oil depletion allowance amendment as the pending business.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., is sponsoring the amendment which would restore the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance which has been in effect more than 40 years. The House voted to cut this benefit to 20 per cent and the Senate Finance Committee set the figure at 23 per cent.

Ellender's amendment will be the first item voted on next week unless it is displaced in some fashion.

Extension of the surtax appeared to be settled by Tuesday's voting because the House also included such a provision in the version of the bill it passed Aug. 7. Thus the issue would not even be a question to be settled in the conference between the two branches to work out the final form of the legislation.

However, if the Senate does not complete action on the bill in the 1969 session the surcharge extension might be reconsidered.

The Senate vote was a victory for President Nixon who strongly supported the extension as part of his anti-inflation fight.

The 10 per cent surtax expired June 30 this year but Congress voted a six-months extension to Dec. 31 at Nixon's urgent request.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., set the stage for one of the biggest floor fights on the bill by introducing Tuesday his amendment to increase the personal exemption to $1,000 from the present $600.

Gore said he would seek a vote on it at the earliest opportunity next week.

In a second vote Tuesday, the Senate tumbled, 74-8, an amendment of Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., to take the revenue produced by the surtax in the first half of 1970 and allocate it to the states for education purposes.

Lt. Governor To Address Meet Here On Dec. 10

The Honorable Hoyt Patrick Taylor, Jr., Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina, will be the guest speaker at the Pitt County Democratic Women meeting at 7:00 p.m. on December 3.

The dinner meeting will be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Dr. Kaye Stokes, publicity chairman for the group, stated "All interested Democrats are invited to attend this important meeting."

Persons interested must make reservations by November 29. For reservations contact: Mrs. J. Con Lanier, 758-1728 or Mrs. Guilford Lewis, 752-6936.

Taylor, the son of the late Hoyt Patrick Taylor, Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina from 1949-53, is a native of Wadesboro. He attended McCallie School in Chattanooga, Tenn. before entering the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he received a B.S. Degree in Commerce and a LL.B. Degree.

The 45 year old lieutenant governor has served in the military forces of the United States on two occasions. He first served in the U.S. Marine Corps in 1945-56 and again in the Korean War as a First Lieutenant.

Beginning in 1955 and continuing through 1966 he served as a member of the North Carolina General Assembly. From 1965 to 1967 he was speaker of the House of Representatives.

Taylor is an active civic leader. Among the numerous positions he holds or has held are those of chairman of the State Board of Mental Health in 1966.

and 1967; a member on the Board of Governors, North Carolina Bar Association; Commission on Educational Television; Board of Trustees of the North Carolina Symphony Society; and co-chairman of the Legislative Research Commission and member of the Courts Commission.

Second Rally Of 'Dissident' GIs

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — A second rally of dissident Negro soldiers has been held at Ft. Bragg to protest what they say is unfair treatment by the Army.

About 70 blacks gathered in a parking lot Tuesday night to discuss "grievances." The meeting was broken up shortly after it began when military police arrived and told the group's leaders the meeting was forbidden without prior consent from the base commander.

The soldiers dispersed in an orderly fashion, an Army spokesman said. No arrests were reported.

A similar rally was held Monday night. Both were peaceful, the spokesman said.

Party Is Given By Ambassador

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Walter H. Annenberg gave a party Tuesday night to celebrate Thanksgiving and the $1 million redecorating job on his residence.

Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon were among the 425 guests for supper and dancing to music by two orchestras under a yellow silk heated marquee erected over a terrace.

"It was very gay and very cheerful," said a guest. The party lasted past 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Scott Urges Give Thanks

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott called on North Carolinians today to "express our gratitude to God for life, for freedom, for health and that we express to him our willingness to help make this world a better place for our children."

In a pre-Thanksgiving talk prepared for delivery to the Burlington Kiwanis Club, Scott said North Carolinians should be thankful for many things.

But, he said, "We are not thankful for the grave hunger that exists in Biafra, or for the extreme poverty that exists in India."

"Nor are we thankful for the crime, or for the malnutrition, or for the substandard houses, or for any of the other ills that plague our nation."

"Yet," he said "we should be thankful, at least, that we are not blind to their existence. Thankfully, we are aware of these problems — both foreign and domestic — and we are working to solve them."

"Regardless of what we do tomorrow," he added, "let us set aside at least a few moments during the day to contemplate our many blessings and to thank God for having provided them."

Would Save Santa Maria

CHICAGO (AP) — Cobert Dickson has been named chairman of the Santa Maria Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to raising funds to raise the Santa Maria, Christopher Columbus's flagship.

The vessel went aground off the coast of Haiti on Christmas Day, 1492.

Dickson's brother, Fred, said he believes he has found the ship and plans to seek plans for restoration.

Fred said he found the ship by reading an abstract of Columbus' log and pinpointed where he thought the Santa Maria might be. Then he rented a plane and flew over the spot.

Atop a reef, a growth of coral under 12 feet of water seemed to show the outline of a sunken ship. Visiting the area as a scuba diver, he dove to the growth, dug a 15-foot hole, and came up with pieces of wood, pottery, silver, brass spikes and other artifacts.

The result, says Jack Hammond who heads the local fishing association, is that the catch this season is less than half what was anticipated.

Hammond said fishermen had killed many octopuses, some with tentacles 20 ft. long. He said sharks normally kept down the number of octopuses, but fishing had greatly reduced the number of sharks.

Sec. Of State Plans Meetings

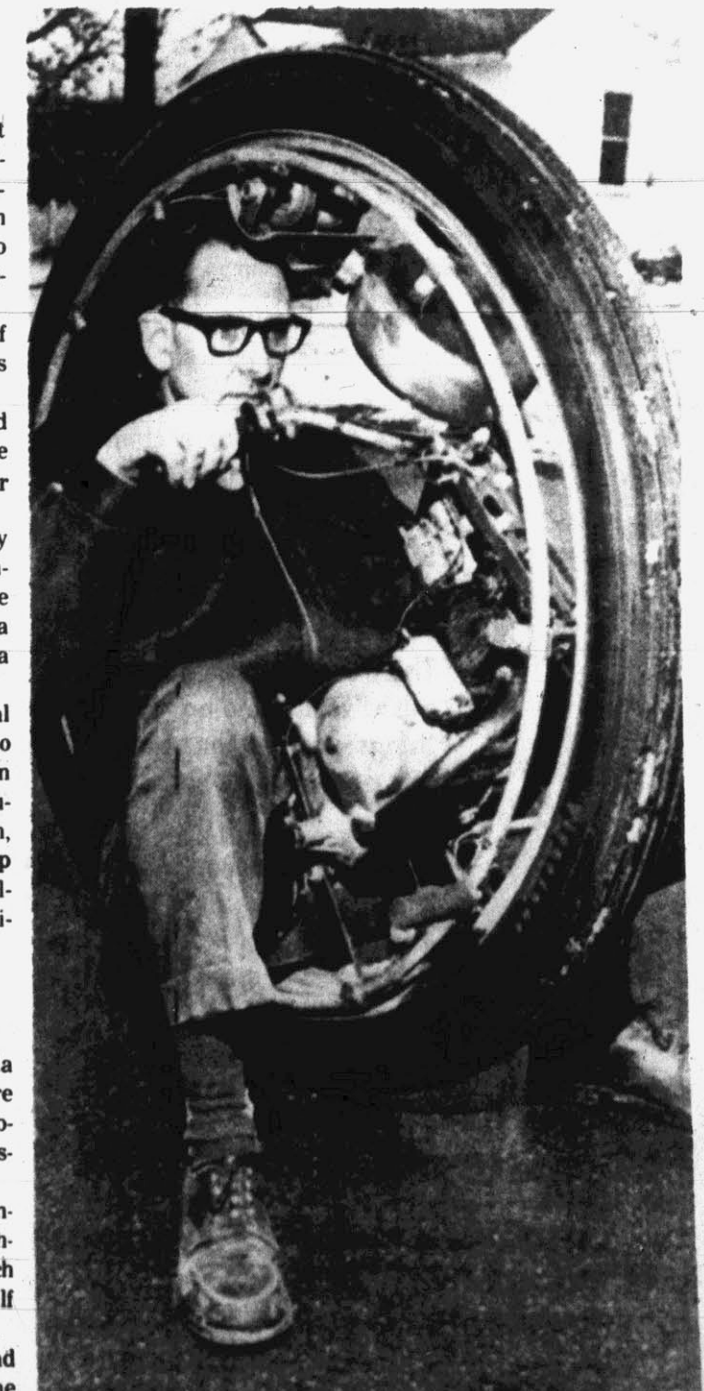

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has announced that Secretary of State William P. Rogers will have talks abroad next month with French President Georges Pompidou and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Rogers will head the U.S. delegation to the NATO ministerial meeting in Brussels Dec. 3 to 5, go to Bonn to meet Brandt Dec. 5 and to Paris Dec. 7 and 8 to see Pompidou.

David Says Navy Duty 'Possible'

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — David Eisenhower has made no "firm decision" on what he'll do after June graduation, but says the Navy is a possibility.

Eisenhower, President Nixon's son-in-law, says he plans to take law school admission tests before making any commitments.

Story Awaiting On Carl Reiner

By HENRIETTA LEITH
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Someday Carl Reiner is surely going to write a movie or a television show about a kid growing up in a near-slum in the Bronx—playing stickball in the streets, being robbed of his milk money, running to tell a lady four flights up she had a telephone call in the candy store, so she'd give him two cents for candy.

In fact, he wrote the script in a few hours the other day, on location. It was a lot of laughs, but it was also a little sad.

The dingy brick tenement at 665 E. 179th St. is still there, and the candy store is still there, though boarded up, and the delicatessen where he ran every Sunday morning with a nickel to buy a hot dog and sauerkraut is still there, and even the man who sold him the hot dog is still there, but little Carl Reiner isn't there any more.

He still loves hot dogs, but he buys them 50 pounds at a time from Nathan's and imports them by air to California.

Reiner went to the Bronx, as he frankly told the drama class at Evander Childs High School, for some publicity shots for "The Comic," which he co-authored, coproduced, directed and acted in, with Dick Van Dyke.

"You're being used," he told the kids, and they loved it.

But a visit to the old neighborhood was a highly personal experience. His mother and father lived out their lives in the neighborhood, moving from East 179th Street when he was 13 to a new place only four blocks away on Arthur Avenue, and he didn't escape the Bronx until he was a tall, stringy youth ready to go to war.

Before he even gets to the neighborhood, Reiner gets nostalgic passing the Bronx Zoo, where his brother was "one of the first guys that could talk to animals."

"I lived there," he says, "We knew every cage. My mother used to pack us lunch, and she'd tell us: 'I'll meet you by the goats.'"

"And there's the street I used to have to walk to junior high school. That's where all the Mafiosos come from. I went to a school where there were very few Jews, mostly Italians, and every day for several years I was robbed. But they would always leave you a nickel to get home."

"There's where I spent most of my time—Oakland Place. There's the dentist's office—he was the only guy who had a car. My best friend Warren Wessel lived there—my only Gentile friend. His mother was the corset lady, and there was something very intriguing about the ladies going into that room and undressing and trying on corsets."

The limousine pulls into 179th Street and it's all there, but smaller and dingier. The marble doorstep is grimy and the paint is peeling off the ceiling and there are no names on the mailboxes but he knows which one it was. It's open, and he looks inside—"No mail."

Across the hall from the old

Reiner apartment is the apartment where he was bar-mitzvahed—"it was vacant and my mother didn't want the mess in our house."

At the high school there's a new principal but Mike Arlen, who taught him health education—which definitely didn't include sex education—is still there. And a boy and a girl who were in his class are now the head of the English Department and Dean of Girls respectively.

He tells the drama class they're lucky.

"For three years I was in this high school and I passed a room that said 'Drama' and I was always secretly interested in drama, but I never told anybody."

It wasn't depressing, he insisted, just sad, and only that because all the memories of the two people who were the most important figures in a small boy's life are there, but they are both gone.

But he probably won't go home again. "I'm lucky I came when I did. Another couple of years it'll all be gone."

Club's Banquet Set On Dec. 10

WINTERVILLE—The Future Homemakers of America Club here voted to have their Mother-Daughter banquet on Dec. 10. The time and place will be announced later.

The group is sponsoring an Operation Santa Claus. Gifts donated by the school will be given to patients in Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro, and Caswell Center, Kinston.

Julie Worthington gave a talk on "What Citizenship Means to You."

Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held Jan. 12.

Early Virginians First To Observe Thanksgiving

The Light of History
By H. G. JONES
N.C. Dept. of Archives and History
Written For The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Virginia settlers started Thanksgiving, but until recently Massachusetts claimed the credit.

This week our neighboring state finally appears to be gaining ground in the propaganda war. At Berkeley Plantation near Richmond an outdoor drama commemorates the first American Thanksgiving, the 340th anniversary of the arrival in 1619 of Captain John Woodlief and 38 Englishmen on the ship "Margaret."

A few days after their arrival they set aside a day for giving thanks. This was a year before the Pilgrims set foot on Massachusetts soil and two years before they had their first Thanksgiving Day.

North Carolina was slow to set aside a special day of Thanksgiving. Although there had been such designations from time to time in the colonial period, it was not until the American Revolution that the idea became firmly fixed. Gov. Richard Caswell proclaimed Nov. 28, 1777, as Thanksgiving in the state. The Continental Congress followed by proclaiming a universal day of Thanksgiving for Dec. 18.

It was not easy to notify the people of such proclamations, however, as is shown by the following entry in the diary of the devout Moravians at Salem: "A man showed us a newspaper in which it is said that today had been designated by the highest authority as a Day of Thanksgiving in this province; We excused ourselves for not observing it on the ground that we had not known of it." The writer might have added that Moravians gave thanks every day.

Thanksgiving was for giving thanks, not for frivolity. The 1777 congressional proclamation urged "that servile labour and such recreation as, though at other times innocent, may be unbecoming the purpose of this appointment, may be omitted on so solemn an occasion." Five years later a proclamation said that it was the duty of the nation to offer "supplications to Almighty God for his gracious assistance in time of distress, but also in a solemn and public manner to give Him praise for His goodness in general."

Following the peace treaty ending the Revolution, the second Thursday in December was set aside by Congress as a day of Thanksgiving. The declaration noted that "The Lord has been pleased to conduct us through all perils and vicissitudes of War . . . and left us in undisputed possession of liberties and independence."

At a time when the nation faces division from within and threats from the outside, it may be well to recall that Thanksgiving originated more from gratitude for personal safety and freedom than for prosperity.

It was not until 1863 that the federal Congress made the fourth Thursday in November the official day of Thanksgiving. When the Southern states returned to the Union, the entire nation began to observe that day. Many decades later President Franklin D. Roosevelt decided there ought to be more shopping time between Thanksgiving and Christmas, and he decided to move Thanksgiving to the third Thursday in November. For several years there was confusion among the various states, and the President's attempt to change the traditional date was finally dropped.

Merchants' associations have figured out another way of doing what Roosevelt couldn't. They simply have scheduled their Christmas parades and encouraged Christmas shopping before Thanksgiving. Some where along the line Thanksgiving has virtually been forgotten in the commercialization of Christmas. Thus both days appear to have succumbed to materialism.

Two Coeds Cleaning Up

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two bright-eyed coeds with sexy mesh stockings will clean a sink, scrub a bathroom and vacuum a rug—all for the love of the great outdoors.

Lisa Mahaffey and her roommate Nancy Sarris wanted to go camping "in lots of snow" over their Christmas break from the University of Florida. So the two tall brunettes opened an apartment cleaning service.

Only men's domiciles qualify.

The girls, both 20, decided on eye-catching attire to promote their service. They hit on a modified version of a Playboy Club's bunny outfit, with a rabbit's fur tail, satin ears and fishnet stockings.

"We thought we would get more customers dressed that way, and boy, were we right," said Miss Mahaffey, who stretches her leotard over a 36-22-36 frame.

"We only clean men's apartments, because that way we increase our social life, and besides, they're more fun to talk to," said Miss Sarris, who measures 55-23-35.

The girls charge $10 for a two bedroom apartment and $6 to scour a one-bedroom apartment. They are pooling the money to take a two-week car trip to Canada because "Nancy has never seen snow and I miss it like crazy," said Miss Mahaffey, originally from the North but now living Key West.

Anthropologists Find 3 Ancient Indian Villages

ELDRED, ILL. (AP) — Archaeological diggings along the Illinois River near the confluence of the Mississippi River have revealed three ancient Indian villages.

Stuart Struever, a Northwestern University anthropologist, said the well-preserved villages date to 3,000 B.C. He said they were occupied by various archaic peoples as late as 1,200 A.D.

The primary source of food for the villagers was animal wildlife, evidenced by an abundance of spearheads and utensils fashioned from animal bones. Fragments of iron ore also were found, from which the red hematite had been scraped away.

"The hematite was the source for red pigment and generally was used to decorate the bodies of the dead," Struever said.

Pre-Tested TV Series On Kids

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of preschool children at day care centers, nurseries and settlement houses have been helping to put together their own educational television series called "Sesame Street."

Each segment of the new daily, hour-long program being produced by the Children's Television Workshop has been pre-tested on 3, 4, and 5-year-olds to make certain that it interested them and got across its educational message.

Father Sealed Lincoln Caskets

BLOOMINGTON, ILL. (AP) — Mrs. Pearl Bunnell, 92, who was born in Springfield, Ill., in 1877, said she remembers her father revealing to her that he "had the honor" of sealing Lincoln's casket.

He was part of the Abraham Lincoln memorial guard. "He was sworn to secrecy, and he never talked about it," she said.

Arab Merchants Still 'Supreme

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
TANGIER, Morocco (AP) —

In this age of supermarkets credit cards and hard and soft television pitches, the Arab merchant still is the supreme technocrat of salesmanship. Madison Avenue couldn't touch him with a 10,000-volt computer.

Come wize me to ze Casbah and see for yourself. "Welcome my shop," a friendly voice calls out from the beguiling confusion of a stall in the crowded bazaar. "Have a look around. Buy nozing. No obligations. Ali ben Nadim bids you a thousand welcomes and the blessings of Allah."

You can't place the name, but the fez is familiar. Smiling, trusting, Avuncular, sitting there amid a sultan's ransom of rich rugs and copper urns, he is hospitality itself.

"Please, sit down. Have a coffee. Have tea. Have a Coke. Buy nozing. Get out of the sun. My shop is my home. You welcome here."

The master of the soft sell has you gently, firmly by the arm. Before you can blurt: "I left my wallet in my other suit," you find yourself enthroned on a genuine, hand tooled, gold threaded camel skin pouf, fingering a gem-studded, platinum handled, genuine Damascus steel dagger that, from testimonials sworn on a stack of Korans, severed the jugulars of many a Rif ruffian.

"My grandfather's kris," the proprietor informs you in reverential tones. Only the price breaks the unbearable poignancy of the moment. "Genuine antique: 100 dirhams ($20). But for you, my friend, a special price: 80 dirhams."

A small boy, known in the trade as an urchin-merchant, has appeared with a tray of weak tea in authentically dirty glasses.

Between the first two sips, the price already has dropped to 75 dirhams.

"You my first customer today: extra special price." The smile is shy and tentative, that of the philanthropist who won't let his left hand know what his right hand is up to.

There is assurance, too, in the mother-of-pearl wall placard spelling out the ethics of the establishment: "Fixed Price . . . No Hagglng . . . Will Not Be Undersold."

You have yet to make an offer, but the monologue already has turned to how you would like it shipped or wrapped or taken to your car.

"Now just a dang-busted, gosh darn minute," you say 8n your best early James Stewart innocent-Americanese and try handing the knife back, but no one is available to accept it. The small boy is busy fanning away the noonday heat; the proprietor is digging deep into his treasures.

"Here, genuine rhinestone hill: 50 dirhams."

You manage to get across that you don't want a dagger but you might be interested in a pouf, one of those puffed up harem pillows that Yvonne De Carlo or Vera Ralston used to sprawl on waiting for the caliphs to come home. One in the stall next door caught your fancy.

"Next door!" Ali ben Nadim is appalled. "Never buy next door. Very unreliable. Only my shop is reliable. Ask any taxi driver. Ask any hotel doorman." That is a bit like putting down Willie Sutton as a bank reference.

"Poufs. I have thousands of poufs," the proprietor assures you, plopping them down everywhere. "Camel hide, goat skin, genuine gazelle. Green. Red. Gold. White . . ."

Bargaining begins at 80 dirhams—$16. You have more like $5 in mind. At 60 dirhams you are his very special, best-friend-price customer. At 40 you walk out and he follows you up the narrow, winding streets. At 25 dirhams, exactly five bucks, you relent and follow him back to the shop.

"All right," he smiles, rubbing his hands. "How many you want? Five? Six?"

When you tell him only one, the price is suddenly back to 60 dirhams. "I thought you were buying many poufs. Can't give special price for just one."

Settling out of court at $6, you get the appeal to the heart: "All right, 30 dirhams. It is less than I paid for it, but I need the money for an operation on my father's heart." He points to a round gentleman sucking on a waterpipe in the curtained shadows of the family alcove.

The urchin-merchant precedes you up the street, the package on his head, distracting your gaze from a shop window pushing a similar pouf for $3.

Scout Earns French Farce Will Eagle Award Open December 10

Chuck French of Boy Scout Troop 205, Greenville, was awarded the Eagle award, the highest achievement in Scouting in services at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church Sunday.

The award was presented by

CHUCK FRENCH

Pitt District Commissioner Heber Adams who said less than two per cent of all boys who enter scouting attain Eagle award.

Scoutmaster Harry Billica and scouts of Troop 205, sponsored by the Memorial Baptist Church, also participated in the recognition ceremony.

French is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. French Sr. and is a junior at Rose High School.

By JIM SLAUGHTER
"One of the funniest plays ever written!" This is the consensus of opinion by most critics concerning George Feydeau's "A Flea in Her Ear," the delightful French farce which opens December 10 for four nights at the East Carolina Playhouse.

The fun is in the plot—a classic formula of mistaken identity and double "entendres."

A young wife has "a flea in her ear" and suspects her blamelessly square husband of infidelity. To catch him she has a friend write him a love letter from an unknown lady, making as assignment with him at the Hotel Pussycat.

Complications abound at the Hotel as identities are reversed, bedrooms are switched, and practically everyone finds themselves in compromising positions.

Thanksgiving Day Service Set

A Thanksgiving Day service, including a period for expressions of gratitude by members of the congregation, will be held at the First Church of Christ Scientist on Thursday.

The hour-long service which starts at 11 a. m. in the church edifice is open to the public. The First Reader, Mrs. Jessie B. Little, conducts the services, and reads passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. Bible selections are read by the Second Reader, Mrs. H. P. Streeper.

"Feydeau's genius," says New York Times critic Clive Barnes, "is that of comic confrontation—unerringly he brings the deliciously wrong people red face to red face at the deliciously wrong time."

Major roles in the cast, which is under the direction of Edgar R. Loessin, include ECU students Ben Cherry, Barbara Simpson, Mark Ramsey, Linda Taylor, Jim Leedom and Sue Weisensale.

Tickets become available Thursday, December 4, at the box office in McGinnis Auditorium. (758-6390)

Man's Ancestors Were Gamblers

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Evidence of man's universal, age-old gambling urge is provided by the ruins of an ancient settlement in Rhodesia's Bindura area. Archaeologists found ceramic discs, evidently made from pieces of broken domestic pottery, which they identified as counters used in a game played by four people. Experts have been unable to establish what people inhabited the settlement, which resembles the famous Zambabwe ruins.

DIFFICULT CHANGE

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP)—The Cabinet has decided to switch this African monarchy's weights and measures from the British imperial to the metric system. The change will take place over a period of four to five years. Britain and South Africa, Swaziland's main markets, will be using the metric system in a few years time.

The Worry Clinic Nothing 'New' In Perversion

Bill's question is a challenge to all Americans who worry about the sexual degradation of modern society. But the Devil's constant battle with God works in cycles of about 1,000 years. So read the most heinous sex crime described in the Bible, as outlined below. It shows that sexual perversions are not new!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D.

CASE L-555: Bill S., 26, is an attorney.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "don't you think obscenity is being carried too far?"

"Under the claim of freedom of speech, vulgarity is publicly parading before youth."

"For example, a hippie artist recently ran a picture in his little news sheet of a judge, sitting naked and masturbating, as the judge was hearing a court case."

"The judge ruled that this was a violation of the local law against obscenity but the hippie and his lawyer argued to the contrary."

"Surely in that case even the argument that the picture was 'art' could not be substantiated, do you think?"

SODOM AND GOMORRAH

What would you readers say to Bill's question?

Dr. Robert B. Pierce, pastor of Chicago's skyscraper Loop church, recently pointed out the fact that God and the Devil started feuding the moment human beings were placed on this earth.

Animals below man may be selfish, greedy and snarl at their own brothers and sisters.

But no animal below man ever goes out of its way to indulge in pornography or sensuality sex for purely mercenary purposes.

So the Devil must have ignored this earth till Adam and Eve were placed in that famous Garden of Eden.

Thereafter, the forces of good vs. evil have maintained continual warfare.

Our modern sexual reversal to barbarism suggests that some of our large cities are following the example of Biblical Sodom and Gomorrah, which were destroyed by fire and brimstone for their sensualism, salaciousness and sodomy.

On the New York City stage, for example, we thus have recently had homosexuality portrayed under the guise of "art."

But the Bible recounts similar sexual degeneracy, for a certain Levite had his wife desert him and go home to her parents.

He went after her, and was entertained lavishly for several days by her father.

Finally, he took his wife and left in mid-afternoon.

As the sun was setting, he entered a village and sat along the street, waiting for the usual hospitality that was supposed to be shown to strangers.

Nobody paid any attention to him till a farmer came into town to his modest home. He invited the Levite and his wife to spend the night under his roof.

But the lewd men of the village pounded on this farmer's door, demanding that he let them take the Levite and have homosexual relations with him.

The farmer protested, but finally, to save their lives, the Levite turned his wife over to the pervers outside the door.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Just like everyone else who borrows money these days, the federal government is finding it must pay higher and higher rates of interest.

In offerings of Treasury bills—short term notes which the government must sell to get money to operate—Monday and Tuesday interest rates set records.

Tuesday's offering of $500 million of nine-month bills and $1 billion of one-year bills was sold at rates of 7.778 per cent and 7.592 per cent, respectively, both up one-half percentage point from last month.

Rates for six-month bills were above 8 per cent of the first-time Monday and three-month bills drew nearly 7.5 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A previously all-white Mississippi golf club has admitted three black members and thus qualified for a $265,000 federal loan to expand its course and clubhouse, the Farmer's Home Administration says.

Preliminary approval of the loan by the FHA last spring drew congressional criticism when the Associated Press reported the club may not have met civil rights requirements that membership be open to anyone.

The FHA held up action on the loan pending an investigation and has since announced it will make no more loans to develop golf courses after clearing up the backlog of applications.

Approval of the loan was announced by the FHA, an agriculture department agency, Monday. It will go to the Natchez Trace Club, located near Tupelo. The club lists 241 members.

Some 500 golf course loans have been made by FHA since the recreational loan program was approved by Congress in 1962.

Under House, A Job For Army

PRINCETON, Ky (AP)—Edon Young looked under his house and decided what he saw was a job for the Army.

Young saw something that looked like a bomb. A crew sent from Fort Campbell said it was a 105-millimeter howitzer flare shell, the kind used in World War II. The shell had been fired apparently but did not go off.
