President Announces Third Viet Cutback

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is pulling out another 50,000 troops from South Vietnam but over a longer period than he allowed for previous withdrawals, evidently because of the growing possibility of a major new enemy offensive.

50,000. For his two previous withdrawals he had allowed about three months each. The President coupled his announcement with a renewed warning to North Vietnam that he will take "strong and effective measures" if he finds that "increased enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam."

lary leaders in Vietnam. He quoted from a report made to him by one observer, Sir Robert Thompson, a British veteran of anti-Communist warfare in Southeast Asia, who was, Nixon said, earlier pessimistic about the conduct of the war. "A winning position in the sense of obtaining a just peace (whether negotiated or not) and of maintaining an independent, non-Communist South Vietnam has been achieved but we are not yet through," Nixon quoted

Thompson as saying. Nixon did not say he agrees that a "winning position" has been achieved. But White House officials did not quarrel with the assessment. Nixon said, however, "there is one disturbing new element in the situation: "Enemy infiltration has increased substantially. It has not yet reached the point where our military leaders believe the enemy has developed the capability to mount a major offensive, but we are watching the situation closely to see whether it could develop to that extent." His choice of an April 15 target date to complete the new troop withdrawal, officials said, gives him more flexibility to assess—and if necessary adjust to—a Communist offensive and still meet his withdrawal deadline. His advisers believe that if North Vietnam launches an offensive it will come in the January-March period. "There are some who believe," Nixon said, "that to continue our withdrawals at a time when enemy infiltration is increasing is a risk we should not take. However, I have consistently said that we must take risks for peace. "And in that connection," he continued, "let me remind the leaders in Hanoi that if infiltration and the level of enemy activity increase while we are reducing our forces, they also will be running a risk." Last June, Nixon started the troop withdrawal program with announcement of the removal of 25,000 men by the end of August. In September he said another 35,000 would come out by Dec. 15. Both rounds have been completed. By April 15 the third round should bring the total of removals to 110,000. The actual troop level when Nixon made his first announcement was 542,500 men, which will be reduced to 432,500 by April 15. In his broadcast Monday night Nixon used a slightly different set of figures based on maximum authorized strength. That is normally somewhat higher than actual strength. White House officials said. The ceiling figure when he took office was 549,500. He said with his new order that ceiling "has now been reduced by 115,500 men," indicating the cuts in authorized strength total about 5,500 more men than withdrawals based on real strength. Nixon called the new reduction in force "another orderly step in our plan for peace in Vietnam."

Glenn Cox Appointed Principal At Rose High

By JERRY RAYNOR

Glenn Cox, Associate Superintendent of the Greenville City School, was named principal of Rose High School at the meeting of the Board of Education last night. The appointment, an interim one, is to be effective through June 30, 1970.

teachers serving 1200 students. Cox is married, the father of two school age children, and is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church, where he serves as a deacon and as superintendent of an adult Sunday School department. He is currently president of the Greenville Civitan Club.

something of a tight-rope situation." The board agreed to consider approaches to the idea of a joint type Citizens' Advisory Council which would include a wide-range representation of citizens appointed to be an advisory body to the school board. "This has been tried by a number of schools, and has its advantages," Dr. Cleetwood remarked. Board members will be ready in January to offer recommendations and concrete approvals on the possibility of forming such a council in Greenville.

Dr. James Bearden, a board member, gave each board member a copy of a two page letter dated December 15. Addressed to Dr. E.B. Aycock, chairman of the board, the letter takes note of the current situation in Greenville. "With this in mind, I would like to recommend that the chairman of this Board appoint a committee from this Board to meet with a like committee from the Greenville City Council along with the attorneys of each group to explore the feasibility of moving toward the establishment of a Board of Education elected by the citizens of Greenville."

Dr. Bearden stated he will make a motion on this suggestion in the January meeting. "Such an idea of strengthening education by linking schools intimately to a system of political accountability is not a new approach. It is being practiced throughout this State and Nation. Whether the results of this study will be the recommendation of such a change or not is unknown. No matter what the recommendation, it should demonstrate to the public that the Board is anxious that its actions clearly represent the will of the all the alternatives for making decisions for the junior high situation for the 1970 school year." He also asked the board if they had any objections to having a planning group from the Raleigh come down soon to study the entire school situation in order to make recommendations for a possible course of action. Board (Continued On Page 8)

Cox will replace Edward Warren, present principal, who last month tendered his resignation to be effective at the end of December. Members of the board approved the appointment. Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood stated that continued efforts were being made to seek a full time principal for Rose High for the next school year. The Personnel Committee of the Board of Education asked Cox to consider accepting the principalship after efforts to locate suitable outside replacement or Warren failed to yield a candidate of the qualifications desired for this post. Cox, a native of Elizabeth City, is a graduate of East Carolina University. He received his masters degree in school administration at the University of North Carolina. In May 1967 he qualified for the advanced administrator's certificate and was the first administrator to receive the "Sixth Year Certificate in Professional Education" from ECU. For four years Cox taught science and mathematics in High Point. From 1960-1966 he was principal of the East Southern Pines School in Southern Pines, a school of 55

Commenting on the appointment, member Harding Sugg stated: "I want to say now that the citizens of Greenville and this board owe Glenn Cox a great deal for accepting this job in a time of crisis in the education system at Rose High." Dr. Cleetwood reported to the board on the result of the Superintendent's Winter Conference he attended in Durham earlier this month. He touched on three topics which he stated "were foremost at the conference," — student unrest; teacher activism; and involvement of citizens in school

Adopt Amendments

The Greenville City Council last night, in a special session, approved amendments to a lease agreement for the Moyewood Community Center. The Community Center at the Moyewood public housing project, which includes a large building formerly the Pitt County School Bus garage and three acres of land, will be leased by the city from the Housing Authority and will be used as a community center and recreation facility. East Carolina University plans to establish a day care center there while the city Recreation Department will maintain a recreation program there. Pitt Technical Institute and other agencies are expected to conduct adult education programs at the center, also. Under the terms of the amendments approved last night, the property will revert to the Housing Authority which can cancel the lease agreement if the city fails to operate a community program there, or fails to provide their portion of funds for remodeling and equipping the facility. The agreement calls for the city to provide some $20,000 to help offset the cost of renovating and equipping the community center. The Housing Authority and federal government will provide some $60,000 to finance the estimated $80,000 project.

Alcoholic At 10; Drug Addict At 11 And Dead, At 12

By ELIZABETH BASSETT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Vandermeer was an alcoholic at 10, a heroin addict at 11, and dead at 12, the youngest drug death in the city's history. "He's just a child, a real kid," Dr. Michael Baden, assistant medical examiner for the city, said Monday. One of 10 children, Walter was expelled from school two years ago. He was supposed to go to a school for troubled youngsters but didn't. Baden said the boy claimed he sold newspapers in Harlem and delivered groceries for the $85 or so he earned each week. After he performed an autopsy, Baden said the boy apparently died about 1 or 2 a.m. Sunday while "shooting up" in the common bathroom of a four-story tenement on Harlem's West 117th Street. He was discovered 14 hours later, Baden said, surrounded by a "set of works"—needle, bottle top and two empty heroin packets. He was wearing a Snoopy sweatshirt. "Watch out for me. I want to bite someone to release my tension," was written across its back. Walter lived with his mother and sister a block away from where his body was found. Baden said that in investigating the death he had talked with several of Walter's 10- and 11-year-old friends, all of whom "knew he was taking heroin." "They were pretty unper-

Missing 5-Year-Old Found Safe

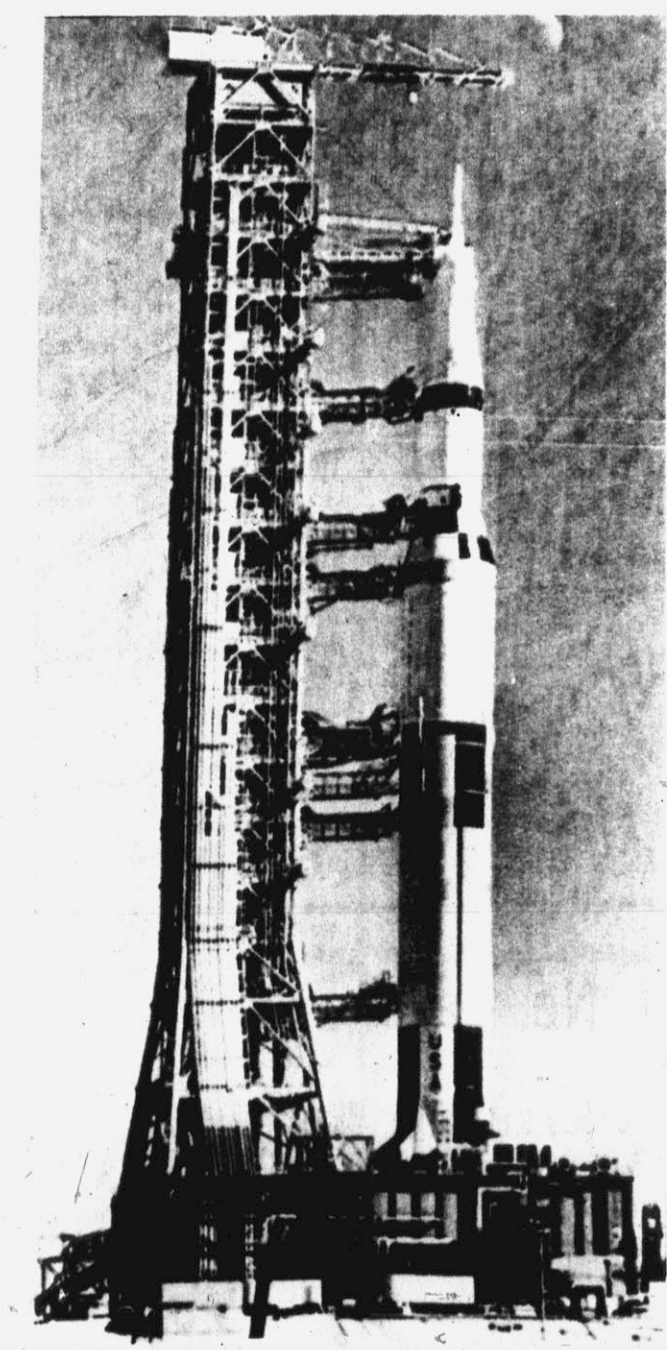

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Smiling, bouncy little red-haired Kristie Lyn Slater, 5, is back home in Chattanooga after being found in an Atlanta department store two days after she disappeared here. Kristie was returned by FBI agents to her parents arms after was abandoned by a man in the toy department of the Atlanta store who told her mother would pick her up there. The little girl disappeared from the toy department of a Chattanooga store Saturday night while she and her mother were shopping. Patrolman R. E. Jackson of the Atlanta crime prevention bureau said Kristie told him a man in a car "bigger than my daddy's" brought her the 120 miles to Atlanta. Neither the police nor the FBI gave any information on where Kristie had been in the intervening 48 hours. But a relieved father, Randall Slater, said, "Now I can sleep tonight!" as he carried the little girl from the car in Chattanooga. Hundreds of police, rescue squad members and volunteers had searched the area around the Chattanooga shopping center Sunday and Monday for any trace of the tot and a helicopter was brought into action Monday in a 2 1/2-hour survey of the residential section. Officers said a woman told them she saw a blond-haired man carrying a little girl through the parking lot Saturday night and the girl was saying, "let me go; I want my mother." Atlanta officers also said a man and Kristie were believed seen in Atlanta earlier Monday. Kristie was the third young Tennessee girl to disappear in recent weeks. The others, Kathy Jones, 12, of Nashville and Glenda Sirman, 13, of Knoxville, were both found murdered.

Tobacco Disease Control Talked At Annual Session

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
"Tobacco disease control practices for 1970" was the main topic for discussion last night at the annual tobacco meeting as area farmers heard extension specialists, Dr. W. K. Collins and F. A. Todd, give the outlook for the up-coming leaf season. Todd, extension plant pathology specialist from North Carolina State University, told farmers that tobacco diseases cost flu-cured growers over $20 million in 1969 and reduced the value of the crop over four per cent. Compared with the 1968 crop, he continued, percentage losses were less but leaf growers lost more dollars because of the increased value of the crop. "We need more than one dollar worth of control for each dollar spent," he reasoned. Pitt County farmers suffered from almost every tobacco disease, this year, Todd said, in addition to the tremendous hail damage. Overall, losses to root-knot, blank shank, Granville wilt, Fusarium wilt and various other leaf diseases were reduced this year as compared with previous crops, he said. At the same time, losses to mosaic and other virus diseases tended to increase slightly. For Pitt County, as well as in numerous other counties across the state, brown spot caused more damage to tobacco than any other disease and cost farmers $5,600,000 in loss, Todd pointed out. Todd revealed an eight step program formulated by extension specialist that is designed to control diseases and increase net profits. Basically, the plan involves a recommendation to: 1) plan a rotation system; 2) select the disease resistant variety with care; 3) control plant bed diseases and prevent spread of mosaic (leaf infection); 4) use suggested nematicide if needed; 5) consider the use of multi-purpose disease control treatments; 6) use proper methods of application of chemical soil treatments; 7) control brown spot; and 8) disk in stalks after harvest and repeat step two weeks later. Todd termed the rotation system the "backbone of a good disease control program." A discussion of new products that will be available on the 1970 market and a general information session on sucker control and harvesting was lead by Collins. Test have shown that the tobacco can make near its normal yield and value with a fairly high degree of leaf damage, he said, especially if the damage occurs early in the growing season. In those test, tobacco was damaged by breaking stalks and leaves, tearing leaves and punching holes, simulating hail damage in the field. In the very near future, Collins added, insurance adjustments will be better in line with the actual damage in the fields. In addition to a great deal of graphic information last night, both specialist brought along slides showing actual fields of tobacco and a variety of diseases that are being studied. Many of the slides were taken here in Pitt County on farms that are conducting tests with North Carolina State University experts. Pitt County agricultural extension agent, Sam Weeks, presided last night. On hand were approximately 75 farmers and others connected with the flu-cured tobacco program. New management practices, proven through state testing and extension research, were revealed last night as well as rotation combinations that are designed to increase crop value and control disease at the same time. Collins advised farmers that tobacco should not be cut off following a hail storm unless the damage is very severe. The severity, he added, should be 75 per cent or more before cutting off the stalks. Burns Are Fatal In Trailer Home Fire

YIPPEE! ONLY 7 MORE SHOPPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS! AND THEN GIFTS, GIFTS, GIFTS!

Officials Visit White Shrine Chapter Wednesday

On Wednesday evening Greenville Shrine No. 7 was host Shrine at a buffet dinner served in the Masonic Temple honoring Deputy Supreme Worthy High Priestess Marguerite Dutsch of Tulsa, Okla.

A decorated Christmas tree along with other decorations were in keeping with the Yuletide season.

Lt. Paul Jewett was master of ceremonies, T.L. Moore gave the invocation, after which guests were introduced. These included, in addition to Marguerite Dutsch, Supreme Second Hand Maid, Ann Swortzel and her husband, David Swortzel, who is Supreme Assistant Guard, from Charlottesville, Va.; Sarah Meeks, president of N.C. — Virginia State Club, of Fayetteville;

Ruth Meissner, Worthy High Priestess of Cape Fear Shrine, Fayetteville; Sue Gardner, first vice president of N.C. — Virginia State Club, of Raleigh; Florence Whitney, Worthy High Priestess, and her husband, Ray Whitney, who is Watchman of Shepherds of Dogwood Shrine, Arlington, Va.; Susan Bridgman, district deputy of N.C. District V, and her husband, Meredith Bridgman, of Newport; Oscar Sermons, Supreme Committee member, and his wife from Havelock;

The other three Worthy High Priestesses and two Watchman of Shepherds in this district: Marie Dawson of Coastal Shrine in New Bern; Janice and Meredith Craun of Fort Macon Shrine, Newport; Christine Kissam and John Grant of Onslow Shrine in Jacksonville. Worthy High Priestess Annie Turner welcomed the group. Marie Dawson, Worthy High Priestess of Coastal Shrine, New Bern, gave the response.

With Sue Gardner of Raleigh at the piano, John Grant of Jacksonville, led the group in singing Christmas carols. Joseph Reilly of Morehead City gave the benediction.

Mrs. Dutsch spoke on the charitable phase of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, which is carried on by the Material Objective Fund.

Each member in the Shrines of the United States and Canada contributes one cent a week, or 52 cents a year to this fund. Through this the organization helps to rehabilitate any needy person found needy, regardless of race, creed or color. Also, "life memberships" and "in memoriam" are included in this work.

Mrs. Dutsch was presented an honorary membership from Greenville Shrine by Nell Moore, Past Worthy High Priestess.

Following the program, Greenville Shrine had its regular meeting. Serving with them were the other three Shrine in District V: Coastal Shrine of New Bern; Fort Macon Shrine of Newport; and Onslow Shrine of Jacksonville.

Annie Turner, Worthy High Priestess of Greenville Shrine, opened the meeting and presided over the business session. Janice Craun, Worthy High Priestess of Fort Macon Shrine in Newport was in charge of the escort and Marie Dawson, Worthy High Priestess of Coastal Shrine in New Bern, had charge of the closing.

Guests were recognized and on behalf of District V, Marie Dawson presented gifts to Deputy Supreme Worthy High Priestess Marguerite Dutsch and Supreme Second Hand Maid Ann Swortzel.

Marguerite Dutsch was complimentary of the work being done by each of the four Shrines in N.C. District V. She praised the past officers for their leadership, and she paid tribute to Hilda Laughinghouse for her gift to the Material Objective Board in memory of Blanche Jackson's father, T.B. Weldon. She emphasized that the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem is threefold—spiritual, social and charitable.

At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served in the dining room by Nell Moore and her committee.

Rev. Dermont Reid, minister of St. James, was guest of honor at the dinner and annual election meeting. He recognized the new slate of officers and stressed the importance of their willingness to serve. As part of the program, reports were made by various groups. The Wesleyan Service Guild reported a good year of achievement. Mrs. Janice White gave the Spiritual Life Program.

Special membership pins were presented to Mrs. Martha Snowden, Mrs. Sallie Britt, and Mrs. Betsy Ewell for outstanding participation in the past year.

International Officer Visits WOTM Chapter

The women of the Moose met Thursday night for a combination business and chapter night meeting. Senior Regent Georgia McCollom introduced Mrs. Edna Conniffe, international president of the College of Regents, as special guest.

Mrs. Conniffe gave a talk and offered a prayer for two of the College Members and their sick parents.

Mrs. Mertie White, Social Service chairman, introduced Miss Dorothy Bolton as her guest speaker. Miss Bolton gave a talk on the Welfare Food Program in Pitt County.

New members enrolled into the defending circle were Mary Warren, Ruth Ann Felton, Jean Grubbs, Teresa Winslow, Barbara P. Stancil, Mary E. Culbreath, Gerry Overman, Linda Fleming, Angeline Venters, Linda Sawyer, Lillian E. Harrison, Polly Peaden, Arleen Glisson, Margie Tucker, Betty Andrews, and Thelma Whitehurst.

Mrs. White, assisted by Mrs. Hollie Simonovich and Mrs. Mae Carr served refreshments following the meeting.

Members were invited to attend the Christmas party on Dec. 20.

Engagement Announced

Dr. and Mrs. Niels Henry Sonne of New York City and West Harpswell, Me., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Boyden, to William James Hadden III, son of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hadden Jr. of Greenville. The wedding will take place Dec. 27.

Officials Discovered Her Real Birth Date

BRUSSELS, Belgium (WNS)—Josephine Brueghel was all set to celebrate her 96th birthday on December 1 when officials checked her history and discovered that she is 98 years old and was born on October 28. Widow Brueghel insists that she never cut her age on purpose and has decided to wait until she is 100 years old before having another party.

Society Opens Doors With Help Of Little Red Stocking Fund

"Would you like to see the baby now?" asks the caseworker. The young couple nod silently. As they enter the small room, the caseworker leaves them in the privacy of this special moment.

Before them, bathed in the soft sunlight of late afternoon, is a bassinet in the corner. There lays the baby, only six weeks old, stretching her small arms and yawning, as she looks at the two faces hovering above.

The young woman lifts the baby tenderly, her eager hands fumbling briefly at the blankets. Suddenly she clasps the infant to her, tears streaming down her cheeks. Her husband swallows nervously as he places his arm about her shoulders.

"Do you think you want to keep her?" he asks in a half-hearted attempt at a joke.

Her radiant smile makes words unnecessary.

The scene is non-fiction. It is life, unrehearsed. The husband describes it as one of the truly dramatic moments in the lives of three persons: the couple who are realizing parenthood otherwise denied them, and the young infant finding in these arms the permanent refuge of being loved and needed.

Today, that six-week-old baby who smiled up from the bassinet over four years ago is a beautiful, brown-eyed girl with long chestnut hair. Only last week she broke some unexpected news to her father.

"Daddy," she confided as they rode to the market together, "it makes me sad to say this, but I may grow up and marry some day."

"Well, that will be fine, darling. I hope you'll marry someone very nice and someone you love a lot."

"Daddy," said the bride-to-be, with tears glistening in the big brown eyes, "no matter what, you'll always be my daddy."

The life-changing experience in the nursery was similarly repeated in 1969 each of the 300 times The Children's Home

ABOUT 300 TIMES EACH YEAR... the first meeting of a baby and its adoptive parents takes place in the nursery of The Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc.

Society of North Carolina, Inc., brought together a child and adoptive family. Each time it was uniquely special, and ever-new, for the staff of the Society, as well as for the adoptive couple. Since its founding in 1903, The Children's Home Society has been dedicated to the highly sensitive, responsible mission of fulfilling the right of children to permanent, secure homes.

The services of the Society, available through its seven offices across the state, are voluntarily-supported through United Funds and direct gifts. Traditionally, its Little Red Stocking appeal during the Christmas season provides a major portion of the contributions, which made possible the continuing, growing miracle of its work. Believing that the child-parent relationship begins with love, the Society feels that the Red Stocking appeal is, in essence, a means to keep the door open to that special room in its nursery. Through the opening of this one door, the Society opens doors into children's hearts which, were it not for adoption, might remain closed forever.

Parties For Office Aren't Mandatory!

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: With another Christmas season coming on, the same old problem to many of us wives is "the Christmas office party."

After quite a few years, I realize now, it's not the MEN, it's the WOMEN who promote these affairs. I honestly believe that most of the men don't care for these office parties, but the women engineer everything. They get the men to sign up for the catered lunch which now begins at 11:30 A. M. and goes on forever. They get them to agree to exchanging 50c gifts. Anything, just to get them to commit themselves.

These men are afraid NOT to go because the other men will say they are henpecked.

I'd like to know your opinion of this, Abby.

HOME ALONE

DEAR HOME: More and more large companies are making Christmas parties a "family affair." Married employees are free to bring their spouses, and single ones may bring a "date." In offices where mates and dates are not welcome, you can be sure a vote was taken, and the majority ruled. No one is forced to go to an office party. And that "henpecked" excuse is a good excuse for a chicken.

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and he can make his own schedule, so I know that he could arrange to be home with me for Christmas and New Years if he really wanted to, but now he is giving me this story about how he has to go away "on business" over the holidays. Should I believe that he really HAS to be gone then?

BARBARA

DEAR BARBARA: Yes, if his name is Santa Claus.

DEAR ABBY: Here is the situation. The father is a professional man who is not always able to have dinner with his family. So when he comes home around 8 p.m. or 9 p.m., should his 15-year-old daughter call "Hello" from her bedroom? Or to show respect, should she come down and say hello to him face to face? And if she doesn't come out of her room for the next half hour or so, would you say she was not showing proper respect?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: Don't confuse "respect" with obedience. Children can be "trained" to obey an order, which may give the illusion of "respect," but the only respect that means anything is that which is earned. Since Papa is obviously annoyed because Daughter doesn't give him a more affectionate welcome home, somebody [like Mama] should wise her up without making a big deal out of it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANYONE WHO NEEDS A HOLIDAY GIFT SUGGESTION FOR A YOUNG MAN BETWEEN THE AGES OF NINE AND NINETEEN: There's a great little book by Marjabelle Young and Ann Buchwald, titled "STAND UP, SHAKE HANDS, SAY HOW DO YOU DO." It's tops on tips for ordering in a restaurant, introducing people properly, table manners, dating etiquette, grooming, and the whole bit on how to be a gentleman without being a sissy. I recommend it highly.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Beauty Hints For You

From Clara Garris

Let's talk about hair care for the next few weeks. Lovely, lustrous hair begins with cleanliness and a good hair brush. There are many shampoos on the market, be sure to buy a good mild one and use it regularly, when you can't come to us...

Most women can shampoo once a week, but in cases of extreme oiliness, twice a week is recommended, heating the shampoo a little to "cut" the grease...

Time is getting short with this weeks edition, so if you haven't already made your Christmas appointment do call us right away so we may accommodate your holiday beauty requirements...

'Trial' Usually Is Permanent

It will be regrettable if Seaboard Coast Line is allowed to institute mobile agency service for 21 northeastern North Carolina communities, even on a trial basis.

Seaboard Coastline is proposing such service for Tarboro, Battlesboro, Whitakers, Enfield, Pender, Halifax, Tillery, Spring Hill, Scotland Neck, Hobgood, Oak City, Hassell, Robersonville, Parmale, Bethel, Palmyra, Speed, Whitehurst, Conetoe, Midred, Kingsboro and later Scotland Neck.

In hearings before a state Utilities Commission examiner in Tarboro, mayors of some of the affected towns have protested that the proposed service would not be satisfactory.

"Once a station is closed, it is never reopened," Mayor Ferd L. Harrison of Scotland Neck said.

It is very likely that the affected communities are not fighting a trial period for the mobile service; they are fighting against what will almost surely become a permanent arrangement if the trial period is allowed.

Abroad area is covered by the plan which SCL has proposed. For this area the hope of future growth and prosperity is in industrial development. Without adequate freight service these communities will be at a disadvantage in seeking industrial development, or even changing what is produced on the farms.

It is difficult for us to see how a mobile agency serving the entire area can be as effective as agents at each of the stations involved. We doubt, too, that an industrial prospect would see the mobile service as an asset if he wished to place a plant in one of the communities.

We would encourage all of the affected communities to continue the fight to keep their agents.

Jumbo Docked Beside England

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — One of those Jumbo Supertankers docked alongside England the other day, and the assignment editor asked us to hurry along and have a look.

There was no trouble finding the Aristotle Saki Toomey, as her conglomerate of Greek, Japanese and Scottish owners had christened her. She hove into view a half-hour before the train down from London got to Southampton.

A tender took us out into the channel and deposited us at a Jacob's ladder dangling from somewhere amidships of the dark brooding hull. From there it was a pleasant journey by monorail to the captain's sea cabin.

Capt. Hiroshima Tojo Asahi was busy monitoring the cargo operations on a closed-circuit television set. He bowed graciously in his raw silk kimono with "ESSO" embroidered across the back.

"Velly big ship," he said, rattling several steel balls in his hand, a nervous release from mispronouncing "Is" and "Es." "What you Americans call a big mother."

At the moment, the Aristotle Saki Toomey was taking on crude in Rotterdam and having its winches wiped in Dakar. Or was it the other way around?

Besides himself, Capt. Hiroshima informed us, the crew consisted of two able-bodied seamen, 26 computers and a Moroccan named Hasmid, who presently served pink gin and raw fish. "Sun arways over yard-arm someprace on this ship," the captain observed decently, downing a grog ration that would have seen Nelson through the worst days at Trafalgar.

One of the seamen was up on the bow on iceberg watch; the other was off duty somewhere on the stern, catching some sun off the Canary Islands.

Taking us on a tour of the tanks and pumping facilities, Hiroshima said the Aristotle Saki Toomey had been sent down the ways three months before in Tokyo Bay, immediately causing a tidal wave on Formosa.

She was built too large for the Panama Canal, the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Indian Ocean.

"Navigate by Telstar, velly com-pricated," the captain continued. "Engine loom sometimes in different time zone from blidge."

The off-duty seaman dropped by to pick up a new towel on his way to the sauna, nine decks below. The captain shot him a warm smile but did not engage him in idle banter.

"Ship world velly small," he explained. "No pay to get too familiar."

The captain led the way down to the engine room, which turned out to be the size of a washing machine, and even looked like one with its round window. Behind the window blazed the nuclear innards of this maritime colossus, a jelly bean-sized bit of cobalt.

"Good for 10 years," he announced proudly. "Ship no have to go velly far to get anywhere."

We left him there, idly fondling his abacus, under a bit of cruelwork that read, nostalgically, "Oh, God, my boat is so small and your ocean is so big."

Use The Easier Way In Serving Warrants

Law enforcement officers in Mecklenburg recently used again an unusual system of serving warrants on persons charged with liquor violations.

The ABC officers called 68 persons on the telephone and told them to report to the Charlotte police department for booking on charges of illegally selling liquor.

Amazingly all but five of those turned themselves in. The five who did not show up will be arrested when they are located, it was reported.

If this trend continues officers won't have to leave the station in order to serve warrants. Perhaps, though, it is a tribute to the ABC officers. Those who were faced with being served with warrants may know that the ABC officers, like the Canadian mounties, always get their man.

White House Not Neutral

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The degree to which President Nixon has undercut his own anti-poverty chief, Donald Rumsfeld, was revealed last Thursday in a remarkable conversation between a senior Republican Congressman and a top White House aide.

The Congressman was complaining about Rumsfeld's quiet quest for a Presidential letter to House leaders of both parties forthrightly opposing an amendment which turns control of the poverty program over to state Governors. The Congressman was informed by the White House aide that not only would no such letter be written but that Rumsfeld had been instructed to stop such lobbying efforts immediately. That removed Rumsfeld's last slim hope of defeating the amendment in the House.

Thus, Mr. Nixon's attitude toward Rumsfeld in the House poverty fight was not hostile neutrality, so apparent on the surface, but outright hostility. That reflects not only the idiosyncratic manner in which the Nixon White House handles Congressional relations but also symbolizes deepening ideological polarization in the Republican party.

At one pole on this issue are Rumsfeld and a few progressive Republican Congressmen, who still believe their party can expand its base among the poor and the black. At the other pole is the House Republican leadership, dedicated to capturing the 1968 Wallace vote. On this as other issues, Mr. Nixon hesitated between the two poles, then allowed himself to be drawn, irresistibly, to the conservative pole along with most Republicans.

Actually, during the interregnum a year ago President-elect Nixon all but decided to eliminate the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the LBJ-created poverty agency. That was welcome news to Republican Congressmen who had spent four years crusading against OEO.

Once in the White House, however, Mr. Nixon had second thoughts. Prominent advisors — particularly, Robert Finch, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare — persuaded him to preserve OEO under a top-flight director with Cabinet status. Rumsfeld, one of the most promising younger Republicans in Congress, was talked into surrendering his safe House seat from Illinois. Nevertheless, Mr. Nixon's commitment to the poverty program remained doubtful.

The President's attitude became vitally significant because Rumsfeld at OEO quickly embarked on a collision course with the House Republican leadership. Reversing his old Congressional position, he fought against a takeover of OEO functions by Governors (who, in major industrial states, are Republicans answerable to suburban and rural constituencies). Rumsfeld warned that that would destroy the program, but most Republican House members (and their Southern Democratic allies) couldn't care less.

An added complication was Rumsfeld's sour relations with many old colleagues. Conservative Republicans had not forgotten the night "when Rumsfeld and other young Congressmen (dubbed Rumsfeld's Raiders) kept the House in session attempting to force Congressional reform. Moreover, Rumsfeld's privately expressed low opinion of Congressional ability had filtered into the Republican cloakroom.

The point of no return for accommodation between Rumsfeld and the House old guard came late in November when he asked Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, Republican caucus chairman and the most liberal of the party's House leaders, for a telephone whip check of Republican sentiment about OEO. Rep. Les Arends of Illinois, the 75-year-old whip, was enraged at what he regarded as an encroachment on his domain. Storming about the House floor, Arends snapped that he was making whip checks when Anderson and Rumsfeld were in "in diapers."

By early December, only White House intervention could save Rumsfeld from his own party. But when Rumsfeld met with key House Republicans Nov. 29 on Capitol Hill, he got no help from White House aides present. Rather, in urging Rumsfeld to bend, they clearly sided with the House Republicans. The story was identical at a second meeting a few days later in the White House.

Accordingly, nobody expected Mr. Nixon to come to his beleaguered poverty czar's assistance.

The Roots Of Violence

The week of the Black Panther shoot-outs happened also to be the week in which the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence wound up its work. In the midst of a season of peace on earth, good will towards men, we are asked to ponder once again the why of violence in American life.

The problem is real; and the problem is growing. Last year saw 588,000 violent crimes reported to police across the country. Authorities believe at least that many more were never reported at all. The commission's "fair guess" is that perhaps 2,400,000 offenders were involved in these crimes. It is a guess that numbs the mind.

No such conditions obtain elsewhere. Our homicide rate, as the commission noted, is more than twice that of second-ranking Finland, and from four to twelve times higher than the rates in a dozen other advanced countries including Japan, Canada, England, and Norway. We lead the civilized world in rape, robbery, and assault. The past decade has seen a 200 per cent increase in arrest rates of boys, 10 to 14, on robbery charges.

What has produced this appalling picture of America today? The commission's principal answer lies in its study of race and poverty in the central cities. Violent crime is largely an urban phenomenon; and within the major cities it is largely the work of young black males. What drives them to robbery, assault, murder, rape? What virus infects the Panther group?

If I read the commission correctly, a combination of environmental factors is responsible. In the span of a couple of generations, at least five stabilizing influences have disintegrated: home, family, neighborhood, school and employment. The typical child of the black slums is reared with little loving attention from his parents. The father is "sometimes or frequently absent, intoxicated; or replaced by another man." He is often unemployed, unfair in his discipline, or treated without respect by others. No wonder, the commission remarks, that a slum child grows up

Other Editors Say A Victory Of Sorts

(Richmond Times Dispatch)

The National Council of Churches has done something that should give a little bit of encouragement to the millions of moderate and conservative American church members whose views largely have been overlooked by the Council. It rejected the bid by a strongly militant social activist to become president of the organization and, instead, chose a more moderate social activist for the job.

The presidential bid turned down was that of the Rev. Albert B. Cleage Jr. of Detroit, who called the Council a "white racist institution" and who termed as "asinine dribble" the statement of a fellow black clergyman who had expressed vocative words and actions of black radicals such as James Forman.

Mr. Cleage also is the author of a book which asserts that Jesus was "a Black Messiah born to a black woman."

But despite the defeat of the Rev. Mr. Cleage at the Detroit meeting of the Council last week, one could only describe as ludicrous the charges made by extreme liberals as cited in yesterday's news story headlined: Council of Churches Hit as Being Conservative.

The new president, Mrs. Cynthia Clark Wedel, a 61-year-old Episcopalian of Alexandria, is no conservative.

She was a leader of a women's march on Washington last year protesting the war in Vietnam, and neither her background of activities nor her acceptance speech as president of the Council gave any indication that she is a conservative.

And at its meeting last week, the Council: —Voiced disagreement with the U.S. government's explanation of the Vietnam war as a struggle to defend freedom from Communist aggression.

—Expressed support for organized dissent against the war and called on church members to participate in anti-war demonstrations.

—Urged member churches to provide pastoral, financial and other assistance to American draft evaders seeking refuge in Canada.

If this is conservatism, may heaven save us from liberalism!

Many Effects In New Fares

By ELMER ROESSNER

New international price-fixing by the international air cartel, plus the introduction of new giant planes, will have many effects on the travel and resort business and beyond.

ELMER ROESSNER

These effects may be: A boom in transatlantic travel for business and vacations.

A fresh expansion of the already expanding hotel chains in Europe. While American interests are planning new luxury hotels, several European groups are working on plans for chains offering moderately priced accommodations. The Caribbean and Latin American tourist business may be hit as low prices may draw away many prospective tourists.

The rise of European tourism may increase the drain on America's gold supply.

13 Airlines Agree Earlier this year, Alitalia threw a skyhook into the transatlantic fare structure when it cut New York-to-Rome fares to $299. Other transatlantic airlines offered cuts, which, still in effect, provide a bargain-hunter's picnic.

The International Air Transportation Association convened at Caracas, Venezuela, 30 days ago to tackle the situation. The IATA is the association of almost all international airlines and, while it hurts members' feelings to be called a cartel, it is just that. One line that has consistently refused to join is Icelandic, which cuts prices and that, too, hurts members' feelings.

At the Caracas meeting, representatives of 43 airlines agreed on an off-season New York-London rate for groups of 80 or more spending 29 to 45 days abroad would be $250, a cut of $50 from previously fixed rates.

This is the basic transatlantic rate and all fares are calculated from that. The New York-Rome rate, for example, would be $300, one dollar more than Alitalia's cut rate. The cartel—which is quite legal because it does not come under U.S. law—also agreed upon an intermediate season, in which the New York-London basic group fare will be $255. For the summer season, the rate will be $295. The new rates are

Cigars For The Ladies

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The cigar people think they're on to something in teaching women to smoke. Already there are an estimated 100,000 women cigar smokers in America, and that leaves millions more to cultivate as customers.

Don't for a minute underestimate the seriousness of their intentions. With cigarettes under attack as hazards to health, the cigar people feel that their chances of luring women to the bigger weed are greatly improved.

They have redesigned their product to make it slimmer, more graceful in appearance and less obtrusive. They have mentholated it, flavored it with Burgundy, rum, cherry and other fruits and have put plastic tips on the end.

In order to better promote the product, they have named a former beauty queen, Judy Lynn Prince, as assistant director of the Cigar Institute of America, a job that requires her to tour the country, talking and puffing.

And just so the ladies won't ruin the act before it really catches on, the institute officials have issued rules of etiquette for female smokers.

Among the bits of advice: —Remove the cigar from the mouth between puffs.

—Never permit the cigar to dangle from your lips.

—Wait until everyone is finished eating before lighting up.

—Remove the discarded stub from the ashtray promptly.

—Never smoke a cigar on the streets.

A few women have always dared to be seen smoking publicly. George Sand, the French romantic novelist of the 1800s, and Amy Lowell, the American poet who died in 1925, were among them. But they were known to break other conventions as well.

Greta Garbo, Mrs. Abe Fortas, Elizabeth Taylor, Lauren Bacall and Marlene Dietrich are identified now as inclined to take a puff. And, it is claimed, some men will give their wives cigars for this Christmas.

This receptiveness of women to cigars is not fully understood, but perhaps it is part of the new freedom for women. Cigar smokers, some behavioral psychologists claim, are inclined to be achievers.

If cigar smoking is suggestive of aggressive, achieving, dominating personalities, therefore, the men should take a hint from the way in which women have taken to the pastime.

Otherwise it might not be long before he is denigrated by some poetess who, in mimicry of Rudyard Kipling, will write:

"A man is only a man, but a good cigar is a smoke."

Opinions In Brief

"Determine that the thing can and shall be done, and then we shall find the way." —Abraham Lincoln.

"Wisdom, thoroughly learned, will never be forgotten." —Pythagoras.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WE MAY BE WRONG

A minister was asked by his ten-year-old son recently: "How come, Dad, you never ask me what I'm going to be when I grow up?" "Well," replied the parent, "what are you going to be?" The boy's eyes sparkled as he said: "I'm going to be an auto racer." "Why that," said the boy's father, "is dangerous." And the reply of the youngster was: "What isn't dangerous except being a minister?"

Several factors of real significance had escaped the boy. In the first place, ministers have often found themselves in situations of great danger. To be a courageous and testifying minister in the days of The Inquisition was about as dangerous as any employment human beings have ever encountered. The minister who really preaches the gospel has to speak out against many things his parishioners approve of and are doing every day. Multitudes of people both within and without the church are continually trying to get away with something. The something they are trying to get away with may not seem important, but it may grow into something vastly important. To be a bad example before youth is an evil that should make anyone tremble. Young people are quick to note changes of opinion on the part of their elders, and they go all out in their criticism when they do observe this.

The young people to day are not a Yes, Yes group. This is to their glory. But young people can be wrong, just as often as their elders are wrong, and they should be encouraged to face this truth whether they like it or not.

Christmas Poetry Reading Is Planned For Thursday Night

A program of poetry reading by poets of Greenville and East Carolina University, reading their own works is scheduled as a special Christmas season event at Greenville's Art Center on Evans Street, Thursday night at 8:00 p.m.

Vernon Ward, director of ECU's Poetry Forum, says: "Our aim is to present a wide range of poets and different styles. The poets range from a high school student to a mother and grandmother, and includes two ECU students, three faculty members and an officer of the Social Security Office."

Ward further noted that "we welcome all types of contributors to poetry in the community, whether it is old fashioned, sentimental, avant-garde, or whatever the particular style may be."

The poets and poetesses scheduled to read Thursday night are: Claire Pittman of ECU's History Department; Maxim Tabory, a Hungarian student at ECU who writes in both English and Hungarian; Anita Brehm, director of the Wahl-Coates kindergarten; Fred Sorensen of ECU's English Department; Edna-Fisher, who prefers to be known as a mother and grandmother; Ann Marie Capps, a high school student in Greenville; Richard Capps, executive officer of the Greenville office of the Social Security Office; Woody Thurman, ECU student; Lynn Colcord, wife of an ECU faculty member; and Ward.

The Poetry Forum of ECU sponsors and periodically produces issues of "Tar River Poets." To date, several of these (some now out of print) have been published. "We send copies to a large number of poetry publishers," Ward commented. "Many of the poets have had letters praising the poetry included in this series."

"One leading publisher has asked Woody Thurman to submit manuscripts of his work," Ward added.

Many of the poets have had poetry published in "Tar River Poets". All have been published in this series, in other publications or both.

Ward, the author of three volumes, including "Of Stars and Dust," says the Poetry Forum meets every other Wednesday night at ECU. "We always welcome participation by anyone interested, no matter what their interest is," he commented.

Edith Walker, director of the Art Center, states "I hope a large number of people will be able to attend this special reading. I understand that Dr. Erwin Hester, chairman of the English Department, will be on hand to comment on the poetry," she remarked.

The Thursday night poetry reading is free of charge. Everyone is invited to attend.

CATCHY PHRASE

with resentment of such authority figures as police officers and teachers.

The chaos of a slum household might be relieved by tranquility in the schools or by stable employment opportunities. It seldom happens. Good teachers rarely remain long in the ghettos; fearful for their personal safety, or discouraged by the intellectual poverty around them, they tend to depart.

The swift efficiencies of automation eliminate jobs for unskilled labor. Some slum children escape by luck, industry, and exceptional character. Others find themselves on an escalator down. And they turn to crime.

In times past, as the commission acknowledges, other racial and ethnic groups have encountered inner-city poverty and risen above their environment—the Irish, Chinese, Jews, Europeans. Both their upward movement came in a simpler day, when cities were smaller and religion loomed larger. They were victims of discrimination, true, but not the enduring, pervasive discrimination that has affected the American Negro.

Other causes play a part. The U.S. has "the highest gun-to-population ration in the world." Television, motion pictures, the mass media, tend to glorify violent themes. Our prison system, starting with juvenile detention homes, fails to exert a 'rehabilitative' influence; in any given year, half of all offenders are repeaters. Clogged courts grind out their verdicts slowly. Over-burdened police cannot keep pace with demands upon them.

Add to all this the erosion of law that results from massive civil disobedience. Consider the influence of pornography, eating away at the social and moral fabric. Give account to the temptations that stem from affluence. Perhaps we should marvel, the commission remarks, that the situation is not worse.

The situation is intolerable. "Order is indispensable to society," the commission observes, and "law is indispensable to order." No greater responsibility lies upon government at every level, and upon the people in every community, than the responsibility of attacking the causes of violence and reversing the dark tides that swirl across our cities.

VIET CONG IN MY LAI AREA? — This photo, said to show heavily armed Viet Cong in the My Lai area of South Vietnam, was published in Dec. 16 edition of the Columbus, Ga. Inquirer. The paper said it obtained the picture from an Army intelligence source at Fort Benning, Ga., which it declined to identify. The source said the picture was taken from undeveloped film captured during a patrol near My Lai in early March, 1968, about two weeks before the alleged massacre. (AP Wirephoto)

Hunt Says Demo Party Cannot Be 'All Things'

BUIES CREEK, N. C. (AP) — The chairman of the North Carolina Democratic party study commission says the party "can't be all things to all people, but as a political party it can be the best thing to most of the people."

Jim Hunt of Wilson told the Campbell College Young Democrats Monday night the study commission "is not for the purpose of excluding anyone from the Democratic party, especially the Wallace Democrats."

Hunt said in an interview he singled out "Wallace Democrats" because "a lot of people got the impression from what was said at commission hearings that they were being read out of the party."

"Obviously most Democrats are not going to agree with everything George Wallace says," Hunt added, "but that doesn't mean there's no place in the party for people who do agree with some of the things he says."

He suggested the party "should fight hard in the future on many of the issues that George Wallace stressed in 1968." He cited these issues as

Seized $10,000 In Illegal Drugs

BEAUFORT, N. C. (AP) — Authorities said they confiscated more than $10,000 worth of LSD and hashish Monday night when they arrested three persons on drug charges at Beaufort.

Arrested were Jeff Adkins, 19, of Jacksonville, and two Marines from the Cherry Point Marine Air Station, John Tredway and David Hartwig.

Forty Conduct Anti-War Rally

ASHEVILLE (AP) — About 40 anti-war protesters turned out in chilly weather Monday at Asheville and staged a two-hour memorial service and public rally.

The meeting was sponsored by a group called The Organization and included a meeting in a downtown church and a march on the town's square.

The church service was conducted by four ministers who stressed the service was a period of mourning for youths killed in Vietnam. The ministers said they were neither pro nor con on United States involvement in the war.

No Return Of Kuriles

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union made clear today it will not return the Kurile Islands to Japan and said it regards Japanese claims to them as "a dangerous aggravation of tension in the Far East."

An editorial in the soviet communist party newspaper Pravda denounced the U.S.-Japanese agreement on the return of Okinawa as "a new military-political alliance ... which is openly aggressive in nature."

"Territorial claims by the Japanese ruling circles to the Soviet Union are an attempt at revision of the terms of Japan's unconditional capitulation in world War II," the editorial said.

The Kurile Islands north of Japan were taken over by the Soviets after World War II while the southern Ryukyu Islands, including Okinawa, came under U.S. administration.

After the United States agreed to return the Ryukyus to Japanese rule by 1972, Japan began pressing the Kremlin for the return of the Kuriles.

Consumer Protection Role Is Seeing Results, Says Morgan

By CARL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
North Carolina Attorney General Robert B. Morgan, attacked so-called "Fly by night operators" that try to deceive the consumer, in talking last night before the Greenville Rotary Club.

Morgan explained a new division of the Attorney General's office, known as the Consumer Protection Division, which tries to do away with fraudulent and deceptive practices by legitimate and illegitimate companies which cost North Carolinians thousands of dollars each year. "If feel there is no other office which is more concerned with the public interest than the Attorney General's office," Morgan said.

Through the establishment of the Consumer Protection Division, he added, "We hope to help the man on the street, and protect the legitimate businessman that works and lives in his community."

"I feel this new division had to be established because the consumer has lost a great deal of bargaining power. We are not against the free enterprise system, but the free enterprise system does not give the merchant the right to over charge, or run government regulated monopolies as a private domain."

Morgan explained, the Consumer Protection Division, through its six lawyers and four investigators, go through "charges against individuals and companies which they feel are trying to present a fraud, or commit a deceptive act against the consumer.

"There are three areas which we are particularly interested in, he said, "Anti-trust, unfair and deceptive trade practices, and regulated industries."

He went on to present examples of actions, which have occurred in North Carolina, ranging from individuals who were taken in by businessmen that said they could provide significant loans for those who wanted to either build new buildings such as apartment houses, or expand or begin a new venture, to non-existent retail stores.

"Some of these businessmen were taken in to the tune of at least $270,000," the Attorney General added. "However, through the Consumer Protection Division, we hope to bring these practices out, thereby protecting future individuals that might be taken in by such practices."

Still other examples, were those of a well known tire manufacturer which sold defective tires stamped "farm use only" to a used car dealer, who placed them on automobiles.

"Over 700 of these tires were bought, and I am happy to say tonight, that of my last report, all but 20 of the tires have been recovered. "If we do nothing else but this, I feel we have earned out money."

Morgan stated, "There has been some opposition to this new division, however, so long as we think we are doing the right thing, we will not be deterred. "We feel it is a good service not just for the consumer, but for the businessman."

"The last General Assembly past an Unfair and Deceptive Trade Act which was recognized by the Federal Trade Commission, as a step in the right direction to protect the consumer," Morgan added.

Scott Praises Onslow Senator

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Albert Ellis, an Onslow County Democrat who died Sunday, was praised by Gov. Bob Scott Monday as "a dedicated member of the state Senate."

Ellis was buried today in Onslow Memorial Park in Jacksonville.

Scott said in a statement, "North Carolina is indebted to Sen. Ellis for his invaluable service, particularly for his work in court reform and airport development and on the Legislative Research Commission and state Constitution Study Commission."

Woman Killed In Freak Mishap

LENOIR, N. C. (AP) — A 23-year-old Lenoir woman was killed Monday in a freak traffic accident near her home town.

Officials said Mrs. Juanita Spears was fatally injured when her car hit a 30-foot telephone pole that was being hauled on the back of a pickup truck. The pole passed through the victim's car.

AYDEN — Mr. John Timothy Starkey of 1107 Shine St., Kinston, died Sunday morning in Lenoir Memorial Hospital in Kinston after a lingering illness. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Duo Will Appeal Their Conviction

Margaret M. Marshall and Daisy L. Albritton were found guilty yesterday in District Court here of illegally posting handbills in violation of a Greenville city ordinance. Judge Herbert O. Phillips suspended judgment for the pair on payment of costs. The two gave notice of appeal of the cases to the Superior Court.

Miss Marshall, 20 and 22-year-old Negro Miss Albritton, both of 1113 South Evans St., were charged December 4 with violating a city ordinance making it unlawful to post advertisements on utility poles or trees.

Their arrest sparked a demonstration in downtown Greenville later that day which resulted in the arrest of 27 persons on charges of parading without a permit.

Thief Tried Pin Rap On Santa

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — A thief who stole a string of Christmas lights over the weekend tried to pin the rap on Santa Claus.

The person could not have been all bad, however, because the lights were returned with a note of apology.

Police said Monday the lights were stolen from the tree at Augusta Street United Methodist Church on Friday and returned Sunday with this note attached: "Thank you for the string of lights. I am sorry we borrowed them."

It was signed Santa Claus. Police Chief J. M. Boyers said Santa obviously was "framed" and no legal action would be taken against him.

School Board

members agreed it would be a useful step to take.

A report on the transportation study was made, showing that there has been improvement in busses arriving on time; that the addition of one extra bus has made possible the elimination of standing and overcrowded conditions; and that it is not possible to hire adult drivers, as they are not available.

"This improvement has dealt effectively with one of the major grievances put forth by the grievance committee," Dr. Cleetwood said.

Mrs. Robert Kittrell, chairman of the School Facilities Committee, praised the December 7th dedication and open house ceremonies marking the dedication of Aycock Junior High, Eastern Elementary and the addition to Rose High. "We were very pleased with the overwhelming response received from the citizens of the community, and with the hard work on the part of teachers, students and board members which made the success possible. It was truly an exceptional occasion from every standpoint."

Last night's meeting was presided over by vice-chairman John Bizzell in the absence of chairman Dr. E.B. Aycock.

Industrial Output Sags

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production, a key measure of the nation's economic health, is continuing a steady decline from the peak it reached in July. Federal Reserve Board figures show.

The "Fed" reported Monday that manufactured products and utilities were produced in November at 171.1 per cent of the 1957-1959 base, down two full points from 173.1 in October. The July figure was 174.6.

The indicator's fourth straight monthly decline gave new hope to government inflation-fighters, who contend they are succeeding.

The index pointed in the opposite direction from the most recent employment figures, which showed the jobless rate in November had decreased one-half of 1 per cent, rather than increasing as it should in a time of declining production and profit squeezes.

RESUME TALKS

NEW YORK (AP) — General Electric and striking union negotiators resumed talks Monday for the first time since last week.

Milan Bombing Suspect Dies

MILAN (AP) — An anarchist reported under "strong suspicion" of the terrorist bombing in Milan last Friday died in a hospital early today after leaping out of a fourth floor window of the police station during interrogation, police said.

The suspect was Giuseppe Pinelli, 41, a railroad employe and the chief of a local anarchist organization.

Blue Devils Roll Over Pirates, 80-65

Scramblin' For It

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

DURHAM—The Duke Blue Devils sent East Carolina University reeling to its third straight defeat here last night, rolling over the Bucs 80-65.

The score was not indicative of the game. Duke could easily have scored a lot more, but Coach Bucky Waters, who last faced the Pirates when he was at West Virginia, pulled his starters midway through the second period, after Duke had built up a 32-point lead.

The Pirates were plagued by turnovers, and the inability to hit from the floor. Only Duke's poor free throw shooting enabled the Bucs to stay as close as they did during the first half.

The Bucs were guilty of 23 turnovers in the game, 12 coming in the first half when they counted so much against the Pirates.

And in the first half, the Bucs hit on only six of 20 shots from the floor, for a poor .300 accuracy. The Bucs only slightly improved that in the second half, when they hit on 17 of 40 for 42.5 per cent.

As Waters began to substitute, the Bucs began to pull back and make it look favorable, Jim Gregory, who had suffered through two and a half bad games, began to rebound late in the game, and poured in 26 points in the game, all but two coming in the second half, and all but eight coming in the final 10 minutes. Gregory was also the leading rebounder for the game, with 15, while teammate Jim Fairley had 11. No other player on either team could pull down more than 10.

Foul trouble was again a problem for the Pirates, as two, Fairley and Jim Modlin, fouled out. Modlin, who has been the high scorer for the Bucs, collected his fifth foul halfway through the second half, and finished with 11 points. Fairley, going out late in the game, had 14 points.

While Duke drew away to a comfortable 17-point spread at halftime, it could have been much worse had the Blue Devils been hitting at the line. They made only three of 10 in the first half, for a poor 30 per cent. East Carolina didn't do a whole lot better, making 10 of 20.

East Carolina never led in the game, and aside from a 6-6 tie, was never really in the contest. Rick Katherman put Duke into a 2-0 lead with a jump shot, and East Carolina got on the board with a foul shot by Jim Gregory. Randy Denton, hit from underneath for the Blue Devils, and Jim Modlin connected for the Pirates.

After Brad Evans and Jim Kiernan swapped baskets, Modlin hit on a free throw with 16:51 left in the half to tie it 6-6. But the Bucs went stale after that, and Duke quickly ran out to an eight-point lead.

With 15:42 to play, Dan Blackman hit on a tap, putting Duke back up, 8-6. Larry Saunders followed that up with a shot from underneath, and Randy Denton scored on a drive and Dick DeVenzio hit from the corner, making it 14-6 with 13:23 to go.

East Carolina finally got back on the board with a free throw by Tom Miller, and another by Modlin. Duke pushed back out to an eight-point spread, and then to nine as Denton was credited for a basket after a goal-tending call, making it 18-9.

The Bucs continued, however, to have trouble hitting from the floor, and finally made good after Fairley connected from the line, when Miller hit a jumper with 9:38 to go. The Bucs had gone over seven minutes without a goal at the time. It cut the lead back to 18-12, but Duke pulled away again. A free throw by Denton, and a pair more by Saunders, the only ones made by Duke in the half, and a bucket by Saunders pushed Duke out by 11 at 23:12, and after the Bucs twice cut it back to nine, Duke shot away again. DeVenzio, John Posen and Katherman each hit from the floor to run the lead out to 15 at 31:16, and the Bucs were virtually out of it after that.

East Carolina managed to cut the margin back to 13 late in the half, but a pair of baskets by Posen and Katherman made it 39-22 at intermission.

In the second half, things got even worse for the Pirates. Duke pushed the lead past 20 as Brad Evans drove into the basket

Gamecocks Demolish Maryland's Terrapins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Gamecocks of South Carolina used superior height and an early scoring charge to down hapless Maryland, 101-68, in the only Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game between two league members Monday night.

Tom Owens led the fifth-ranked Gamecocks with 29 points, five more than the combined total of Maryland's starting five players. John Roche pumped in 22 points in the first half and added five more to trail Owens in the South Carolina lineup.

Roche was also credited with 13 assists which ties a school record.

Owens, a junior center and Tom Riker each nabbed 17 rebounds, only two short of the Terps' total.

The Gamecocks' height stymied Maryland on the inside, blocking shots and beating them on the backboards.

The rest of the game was settled on the foul lines as South Carolina made 27 of 37 free throw attempts and committed only 10 fouls.

Maryland cashed in on only four foul shots.

In other action involving ACC teams Duke continued to roll as it defeated East Carolina, 80-65, in an intraconference game.

The Blue Devils jumped to an early lead and dominated play as cold-shooting East Carolina hit only six of 20 shots from the floor in the first half.

The Blue Devils relied on their strong inside game with Randy Denton and Larry Saunders bottling up play under the basket to stop the Pirates.

Duke is now 5-0 for the season.

Jim Gregory was the game's high scorer with 26 points for the losing Pirates. Rich Katherman led Duke with 19 points, his season high.

The city of Fayetteville paid tribute to native son Vann Williford Monday night and he responded by leading North Carolina State over the American Athletes in Action, 96-71.

The Athletes are a national group of former college standouts who play a 28-dame schedule each year against top college teams.

The Wolfpack - Athletes game topped "Vann Williford Day" in the city. He scored 21 points on seven of 17 shots from the floor and pulled down nine rebounds before leaving the game with about nine minutes left in the game.

Bob Hodge led the Athletes with 19 points. Guard Ed Leftwich had 17 points for N. C. State and grabbed 10 rebounds. Dan Wells had 16 points and Paul Coder had 13 for the Wolfpack.

Only one game is scheduled tonight in the ACC: North Carolina will visit Virginia.

Club Football Growing Trend

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Club football is a growing campus trend which asks nothing of its college administrations but a blessing.

Some 50 schools which have been forced to drop varsity intercollegiate football over the years because of financial binds now had student-activated club teams.

They include such schools as Marquette, Fordham, St. Louis, Detroit and Georgetown. Loyola of Chicago is the latest to join the club football ranks after dropping the sport in 1930.

At Loyola, it was a bloodless, democratic coup with students voting an overwhelming 3,632 to 242 to tax themselves $2 per semester. The money will finance a team operating independently from the administration or athletic department.

Upwards of 40 hopefuls, whether they have ever played or not, are expected to make up the squad next fall which will schedule other club, freshmen and junior varsity teams in the area. Nominal admission charges will be made.

Eastern colleges this season drew as many as 8,000 fans for club games at a $2-3 ticket range.

"This is Loyola's Centennial anniversary and this helped stir interest," said Bill Grams, 22, a law student who ignited the movement.

Grams, who helped get club football at St. Louis University two years ago, said that Loyola's base will be $22,000 to provide for equipment, player insurance, field rental and the hiring of a coach for about $3,000.

"Club football gets students involved in an area where they should be involved," said Grams. "The real appeal is that it's run and financed by the students. The students really wanted it."

"When you have football at a school, you take it for granted. When you don't you fight for it."

Duke's Blue Imps Roll By Baby Bucs

DURHAM — The Duke Blue Imps tormented the East Carolina Baby Bucs last night, handing them a 118-83 setback in a preliminary to a varsity game between the two schools.

It could have been worse, but the Blue Devils emptied their bench in the second half, after pushing out into a 40-point lead early in the second half.

Gary Melchioni put Duke on top, 2-0, but East Carolina tied it on Ernie Pope's jumper. Richie O'Conner put Duke back up 4-0, and a free throw by Jim Fitzsimmons made it 5-2 with 17:43 to go. The Bucs remained close until the score reached 7-6.

But from there, Duke caught fire, and the Bucs fell apart. In the next few minutes, the Blue Imps outscored the Bucs, 14-2, and built up a 21-8 lead.

Fitzsimmons, O'Conner, Jeff Dawson and Melchioni paced the way in the first half. Fitzsimmons poured in 17 points, while O'Conner had 17 also, and Dawson had 11 and Melchioni had nine.

By the end of the half, the Dukes held a 64-37 lead.

No Guarantees From Joe This Season

By MIKE RATIET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "No," says Joe Namath. "No guarantees."

And that, more than anything else, is the tip-off to any analysis of the Jets' chances of successfully defending their American Football League championship and returning to the Super Bowl—the scene of their ascendancy last Jan. 12 to the No. 1 spot in pro football.

For Namath tells it like it is and whenever he's been asked recently whether he will guarantee the Jets' return to the Super Bowl as he guaranteed their victory over Baltimore last season he shakes his head, declines the offer and issues the staccato disclaimer.

Why?
There are several reasons why the Jets may not be the team they were last year—1, the new AFL playoff system; 2, injuries and personnel changes; 3, conservatism in approach; 4, Namath himself.

Possibly foremost is the new AFL playoff system, which this weekend pits the champions of the East against the runner up in the West and vice versa in semifinal clashes leading to the championship game and the Super Bowl.

The Jets took one look at AFL East before the season started, realized they were virtual shoos for a playoff berth, and consequently lost the incentive factor. Many of the Jets, Namath included, have flatly said as much.

That has been reflected in an inability to "get up" mentally, a hang-up which the Jets might not be able to shake for the playoffs.

The playoff set-up also has mitigated against the Jets' chances of repeating because the system itself throws an added roadblock in their path. The Jets must whip Kansas City in the playoff game at Shea Stadium this Saturday before taking on the Houston-Oakland winner Jan. 4.

The Jets have been able to handle the Oilers this season, but were unable to defeat either Kansas City or Oakland during the regular season.

Injuries have been a factor in the instability of the Jet defensive backfield, which lost a key component when safety Jim Hudson was injured, and may have lost another key—a much-needed cheerleader—when Johnny Sample retired. Rookie starting comeback John Cochery also will be missing for at least the Kansas City game with a shoulder separation.

The Jets also head into the playoffs uncertain about two All-AFL performers—wide receiver Don Maynard, recovering from a broken bone in his right foot, and defensive end Gerry Philbin, recovering from a dislocated left shoulder.

Conservatism in approach has been cited by at least one coach, Buffalo's John Rauch, as a major reason why the Jets do not appear to be the team they were last season. There has been, in general, more reliance on sustained drives than scoring on a Namath bomb.

While Namath's arm can get the quick score on any one pass, sustained drives depend on efficient and steady execution, coupled with a defense that limits the point-scoring output of the opposition. The Jets have been deficient in both areas.

Namath, meanwhile, has been a factor himself.
There is no way to assess whether his preseason battle with commissioner Pete Rozelle had any effect on the club. But it should be considered. Various stories indicating he might retire after the season also should be taken into account.

But perhaps the factor that should be considered most is Namath's growing outside business interests, drawing his attention more and more to a point where he admits that he has been distracted—at times from pro football.

Every coach in the playoffs fully realizes that, even with Philbin, Maynard, Matt Snell and other proven performers, the best guarantee the Jets have for returning to the Super Bowl is the shaggy-haired quarterback with No. 12 on his back.

But, let's be reminded, the best guarantee the Jets have isn't guaranteeing anything.

Rupp: It's Nice To Be Back On The Top

By KEN RAPPAPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Say, Adolph Rupp, how does it feel to be No. 1 again?

"It sure is nice to be on top—it's gratifying after all those years of frustration during the Lew Alcindor era," says Rupp, ultra-successful coach of Kentucky's basketball team.

The Wildcats, voted into the top spot Monday for the second straight week by the Associated Press' nationwide panel of sports casters and sports writers, are reviving dreams of glory for the winningest basketball coach.

"I've never seen a bunch of boys like 'em," Rupp said. "After a tough practice session Monday, I dismissed them and they kept running around the gymnasium because they didn't feel like they had enough practice."

"And that's the reason we're No. 1 in the nation."

Kentucky collected 616 points, including 22 first place votes, to reclaim the top spot over UCLA. The Bruins, who dominated the polls with Alcindor showing the way the past three years, had 576 points and seven first place ballots.

New Mexico State remained No. 3 with 423 points and Davidson stayed No. 4 with 385, but most of the remaining teams did the Rankings Shuffle.

Ohio U. did the biggest jump and Duquesne took the longest spill. Ohio U. leaped from 19th to 10th after beating Ohio State for its third victory over a Big Ten team and Duquesne dropped from seventh completely out of the Top Twenty after losing to Nebraska and Iowa.

South Carolina went from eighth to fifth; Notre Dame from 10th to sixth; North Carolina, beaten by Kentucky last week, dropped from fifth to seventh; Tennessee stepped up a notch to eighth and Villanova moved from 12th to ninth among the Top Ten teams.

Kentucky has whipped four opponents this year, including tough North Carolina. How do the 1969 Wildcats stack up against past teams, which have won 810 games for Rupp over 40 brilliant seasons?

"This club reminds me of the '66 team," said Rupp, whose club compiled a 32-1 mark that year before losing to Texas

Western (now Texas-El Paso) in the NCAA finals.

Rupp said the No. 1 ranking is especially gratifying because of the loss of star guard Mike Casey, who was hurt in an auto accident before the season started. It's one position in which the Wildcats lack depth.

Rupp also said he thought Kentucky played one of the toughest schedules in the nation. "Every team could give us trouble—but I think we surmounted a tremendous obstacle when we beat North Carolina," he added.

Buc Swimmers Fall To Army

WEST POINT, N. Y.—East Carolina University put forth one of its best efforts in a losing effort to the United States Military Academy here yesterday. The Army downed the Bucs, 73-40, despite the fact that many of the Bucs posted their best times.

"We did a good job," Coach Ray Scharf said, "But depth proved to be the big difference."

East Carolina won only four events against Army, taking the 1,000-yard freestyle, won by Gary Frederick; the 200-yard freestyle, won by Jim Griffin in a school record of 1:49; the one-meter diving, won by Bob Baird; and the 400-yard freestyle relay, taken by the team of Paul Trevisan, Wayne Norris, Frederick and Griffin.

The Bucs now lay off for the Christmas period, returning to action on January 9 against South Carolina.

Summary:
400 medley relay: Army (Noll, Harrison, Ferguson, Fligg), 3:45.4.
1,000 freestyle: Frederick (EC), Lough (A), Rentz (A), 10:53.2.
200 freestyle: Griffin (EC), Frink (A), Berrey (A), 1:49.0.
50 freestyle: Smith (A), Weissman (EC), Trevisan (EC), :22.6.
200 individual medley:

Ferguson (A), Noll (A), Norris (EC), 2:07.2.

One-meter diving: Baird (EC), Henebry (A), Emerson (EC), 2:22.55 points.

200 butterfly: Frink (A), Hanes (EC), Prince (A), 2:08.1.

100 freestyle: Smith (A), Griffin (EC), Jackson (A), :49.3.

200 backstroke: Noll (A), Ferguson (A), Downey (EC), 2:09.5.

500 freestyle: Rentz (A), Frederick (EC), Lough (A), 5:17.4.

200 breaststroke: Williams (A), Harrison (A), Allman (EC), 2:24.3.

Three-meter diving: Henebry (A), Stevens (A), Emerson (EC), 2:08.55 points.

400 freestyle relay: East Carolina (Trevisan, Norris, Frederick, Griffin), 3:23.5.

Kansas Upsets Notre Dame

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The luck of the Irish was missing and the talent wasn't evident either as Kansas upset sixth-ranked Notre Dame 75-63 in college basketball Monday night.

The Jayhawks' zone defense forced the Irish into several errors and Dave Robisch's 28 points for Kansas increased the pressure as Notre Dame suffered its first defeat in six games.

The Irish never led and were down 37-23 at the half. They could get no closer than five points to unranked Kansas in the second half.

In the only other games involving the Top 20 teams, fifth-ranked South Carolina, 5-1, pounded Maryland 101-68 and 10th-ranked Ohio University, 4-0, whipped Indiana 89-83.

In other games, St. John's of New York beat Georgetown 71-64, Duquesne defeated Western Kentucky 87-65, Northern Illinois topped Creighton 60-55, St. Bonaventure crushed Detroit 97-68, Kansas State romped past Vanderbilt 91-78, Old Dominion overcame Xavier of Ohio 89-76 and Nebraska downed Northern Michigan 92-68.

Notre Dame missed center John Pleick, who was sidelined with a sprained ankle. Kansas, 4-1, shot 50 per cent from the field while the Irish could hit only 38 per cent. Notre Dame captain Austin Carr scored 25 points, nine below his average, to pace the Irish.

South Carolina didn't miss a shot in the first five minutes, used their superior height to contain Maryland's attack and rolled to a 50-25 halftime lead. John Roche and Tom Owens accounted for 56 of the Gamecocks' 101 points.

Roche's 13 assists tied a school record. Owens, a junior center, led all scoring with 29 points as the outclassed Terps absorbed their worst loss to the Gamecocks in 46 meetings. The defeat left Maryland's record at 2-3.

Ohio University knocked off its fourth straight Big Ten opponent after rallying from a 49-45 halftime deficit against Indiana. Ken Kowall scored 21 points for the Bobcats but Joe Cooke of the Hoosiers led all scorers with 25. Ohio's earlier victims were 12th-ranked Purdue, Northwestern and Ohio State.

St. John's withstood a late Georgetown rally and dealt the Hoyas their first loss in six games.

Duquesne was dropped from the national basketball rankings earlier Monday but the Dukes oared back to defeat previously unbeaten Western Kentucky.

Joy of Christmas

Christmas is a host of things
It's tinsel, trees and lights
It's candleglow and mistletoe
And many dazzling sights
It's the laughter and the spirit
Of the hustling, happy throng
It's the chiming of the church bells
And the voices raised in song
But Christmas time is most of all

Federal Gun Control Law Has Missed Main Target

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 5,000 red and white lights on the national Christmas tree will be illuminated today when President Nixon presses a button.

The ceremony on the Ellipse, located south of the White House, marks the opening of the 1969 Christmas Pageant of Peace.

The pageant, sponsored by the National Park Service, the Pageant of Peace Committee and the District of Columbia Recreation Department, runs daily through Jan. 1.

The 65-foot-high Norway spruce came from New York state.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal registrations of 15 "anti-bug shelfpaper products have been canceled by the Agriculture Department because they are impregnated with long-lasting pesticides.

The products are impregnated with chlordane or lindane, the Agriculture Department said.

Letters cancelling registrations were sent to manufacturers Nov. 18. The ban will become official 30 days after receipt, or about Dec. 21 or Dec. 22. Products already in the retail market will not be recalled.

Officials said tests showed the pesticides were capable of contaminating some unwrapped foods.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Presidential commission is inviting nominations of bright young men in business and government to participate in an exchange of personnel between the two sectors.

The idea is to give junior executives and civil servants experience in both fields.

David J. Mahoney, chairman of the President's Commission on Personnel Interchange, conceded that an exchange could speed up the "brain-drain" from government into private industry, where salaries tend to be higher.

But, he said, "We think we can take the steps to prevent it."

The first exchange is scheduled to take place next summer. The commission has worked out a system for screening candidates and placing them under restrictions to prevent participants from using inside knowledge for personal or corporate advantage.

By FRANK MURRAY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal gun control law has missed one of its main targets—curbing the traffic in cheap handguns—because of a loophole unrecognized by Congress but exploited by importers-turned-manufacturers.

When the law went into effect one year ago today, importers quit bringing into the country the small caliber, $10 to $20 pistols and revolvers which police call "Saturday night specials." Instead, an Associated Press study shows, some firms began importing most of the parts needed to manufacture the guns. Then they assembled the guns in domestic plants. Other firms stepped up production of cheap handguns from parts made exclusively in the United States.

The net result: About the same number of cheap handguns are going onto the market today as before the law's enactment.

"It didn't occur to me" until recently that the law contained the loophole, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, the legislation's chief congressional sponsor, said in an interview.

"I didn't know the importers were that greedy," the Connecticut Democrat said. "We shut off the importation of this dreadful type of gun only to wake up and find out Americans are doing this. It's outrageous."

As the law's first anniversary neared, Dodd introduced a one-sentence bill that would amend the act and ban the sale or delivery in the United States of any snub-nosed gun or small automatic pistol, as well as the "junk guns" which the National Commission on Violence says are used in 50 per cent of all crimes involving guns.

"The United States still does not have an effective national firearms policy," the commission said last week. Among its recommendations: extension of the 1968 act to ban domestic production and sale of "junk guns."

Except for the continued problem with cheap handguns, officials say other sections of the law—such as the ban on mail orders and interstate shipments—appear to be working.

In California, for example, the sale of guns in the year ending last June 30 dropped to 146,468 from the 202,920 sold the previous 12 months.

The Internal Revenue Service, which polices the federal act, recommended 896 prosecutions from July through October, compared with 197 cases for the same period in 1968. Most of the violations are for failing to disclose criminal records or for using fictitious names when purchasing a gun.

But IRS Commissioner Randolph W. Thrower told a Senate subcommittee it is difficult to statistically evaluate whether the law is preventing felons, juveniles, the mentally ill or drug users from buying firearms.

Latest FBI statistics disclosed that guns were used to commit 65 per cent of all murders and 23 per cent of all aggravated assaults from January through September—precisely the same percentages as in the similar period last year.

Before the law was passed, almost all cheap handguns came from abroad. In 1967, according to government figures, 747,013 handguns of all types—cheap and expensive—were imported. In 1968, the total for all handgun imports jumped to 1,155,368. This included 317,703 handguns with an average value of $13 ordered in a two-week period of Senate hearings following the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

This year, imports of handguns—all of them the more expensive type—are down to 325,373. But the Treasury Department said companies toolled up and made 380,000 of the cheap pistols and revolvers entirely with U.S.-produced parts. In addition, parts for 408,000 weapons were imported for assembly here.

Therein lies the main loophole: A gun is not a gun until the parts are assembled. Except for the frame, all the parts can be imported. Even two-inch barrels can be imported by the thousands, although a single assembled gun with a two-inch barrel can not.

Dodd's bill would change that, applying the government's import standards to all guns sold or delivered in the United States regardless of where they are made. Small automatics and snub-nosed pistols would be banned, as would larger weapons that are unsafe, too light or so shabby they lack the accuracy for sport purposes.

The senator said he hoped to get the bill through by early 1970, predicting, "The gun lobby will buck it."

An example of the opposition was voiced by William Ethier, general manager of Firearms Import and Export Corp., Miami, one of the major gun importers. Ethier said his firm's imports are down by half since last year, and claimed the legislative moves are discriminatory.

"I think a lot of Sen. Dodd's support comes from the gun manufacturers of Connecticut," Ethier said. "If American manufacturers can restrict the import of equal quality weapons because they are made in a country with cheaper labor, they've done themselves a service by taking a large segment of their competition out of business."

Dodd responded: "Discrimination is an empty word when you're talking about stopping murder and assaults. It took several tragedies to get the Gun Control Act of 1968. We may have to have more crimes to get rid of this dreadful weapon. I hope not."

Four of America's major gun manufacturers—Colt, Winchester, Remington and High-Standard—are based in Dodd's home state of Connecticut.

A Treasury Department spokesman said Dodd's amendment would apply to some weapons now manufactured in the United States by such companies as Colt, which already has halted imports of a tiny semiautomatic pistol.

When the 1968 act went into effect, the large domestic companies merely dropped prohibited items from their line instead of importing parts and shifting assembly to their home plants.

Of the parts for 408,000 guns brought in since the law, the bulk were sent for assembly to a complex of buildings in Miami, Fla., including an old church surrounded by a barbed wire fence.

Florida state corporation files list the firm at the former church as RG Industries Inc., with the principals recorded as Heinrich, Peter, and Guenter Roehm. Those same individuals are owners of Roehm Gesellschaft of Southheim Brenz, Germany, which cranks out by the thousands the RG line of revolvers.

However, Treasury Department and Dade County records show the licensed operator of the church-gun factory is the wholesale firm next door, Eig Cutlery Inc., headed by Saul Eig.

Eig Cutlery formerly was the principal U.S. importer of Roehm guns.

Unlike Eig, other major importers, such as Gemini Investment Corp. in Los Angeles and Firearms Import and Export Corp. in Miami, shifted gears when the gun control law went into effect and began importing only "sporting" weapons, manufacturing nothing.

For instance, Firearms Import is the chief handler of the 140,000 Brazilian Arminius revolvers brought into the country in the first nine months of this year. This revolver qualifies as a "sporting" weapon and thus is exempt from the import ban.

Another Florida firm, Valor Import Corp. of Hialeah, is listed in Treasury Department records as the manufacturer of guns from foreign parts imported under permits obtained by Mitchell Mogal Inc., New York City. The department said "substantial quantities of firearms and firearm parts" are involved, but gave no figures.

Among companies making weapons which officials say are comparable to the cheap imports, but fabricated entirely of U.S. parts, is CDM Products Inc. of New York. It holds a manufacturer-importer license issued Nov. 12, 1968, but records show CDM imported no guns or parts.

Arms Corporation of America, Nashville, Tenn., made 10,000 revolvers of the cheap .22-caliber variety in 1968 and officials said they planned to make 35,000 to 50,000 this year although they imported no parts.

In Miami, the Cuban refugees who earn $1.90 an hour or more assembling guns behind the bricked-up windows of the former church say they never discuss the ultimate users of the weapons.

One group which ends up with many of them are the gun experts of America's police departments.

In Chicago this year, 1,066 of the 10,000 guns seized through Dec. 1 were cheap .22s.

Of the last 850 guns brought into the Boston ballistics laboratory, 122 were of the Eig-Roehm variety. One was the revolver police say was used to kill two people last July 18 during an attempted robbery at Boston's Playboy Club.

And in Washington, IRS firearms specialist Paul Westenberg picked an Eig-imported .22 caliber revolver from the vault that holds 215 varieties of handguns.

"This," he said, "is the gun that's killed more people in this country than any other single brand."

Scranton Woman Better Next Day... Pain Of Piles Relieved

Treatment Promptly Relieves Pain, Itching In Most Cases

Scranton, Pa. Mrs. J. Straniere, Jr. of this city writes: "When I had our son, I got hemorrhoids and how painful. My husband bought Preparation H for me. The next day, I was much better—just after using it once."

(Note: Doctors have proved in most cases—Preparation H actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer first notices prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced. There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.)

Tar Heels Told To Think Ahead

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor says the state should think about changing to a unicameral legislature and electing fulltime legislators.

Taylor told the Raleigh Rotary Club Monday that North Carolinians must begin to think about changing some traditional forms of government because "change is coming so fast now we've got to start working immediately."

He said the urban sprawl of the Northeastern United States and the problems that go along with it "are headed right for North Carolina."

Unless the government becomes more modern and efficient, he said, "the result may be worse than what General Sherman did to us 100 years ago."

He specifically proposed merging the state House of Representatives and Senate into one house.

"I would also suggest that the current number of 170 legislators be reduced to a smaller, more workable number, that they take on this work as a full-time job and that they be equipped with competent staff and research personnel," he said.

Student College Costs Increase

RALEIGH (AP)—Tuition and fees are costing college students in North Carolina at least 8 per cent and in some cases as much as 25 per cent more this year.

The North Carolina Board of Higher Education said in a report released Monday costs for residents of the state "increased significantly" and that those for non-residents "underwent a greater escalation."

The charges for residents rose 8 per cent at public senior institutions, 8.3 per cent at public community colleges, 10.9 per cent at private senior institutions and 11.8 per cent at private junior colleges.

For non-residents, charges at public senior colleges rose 25 per cent, at public community colleges 13.3 per cent, at private senior institutions 11.9 per cent and at private junior colleges 12.6 per cent.

Comparative figures for increases in costs in other years were not available.

Because of the increases, the board said, the average cost of tuition and fees at public senior institutions has risen to $365 for North Carolina residents; at public community colleges $144; at private senior institutions $1,312; and at private junior colleges $846.

Room charges range from $130 to $607 and board from $300 to $720 the board said.

The highest increases in the state were at Atlantic Christian which raised its tuition and fees for Tar Heels 46.9 per cent and for non-residents 49.6 per cent. Both groups are now charged $875.

'Turned On' By Uncle Scrooge

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay acted as the narrator Monday in the opening of a four-day series of presentations of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" for slum children.

Those among the 2,000 small guests who talked to newsmen later said they thought the mayor did a good job, but the one who really turned them on was actor Orson Bean as Ebenezer Scrooge.

"I like Uncle Scrooge, because he was so mean," said one little critic.

Plan Christmas Service Monday

The Bethlehem Commandery No. 29, Knights Templar will observe its Christmas services Monday night at 7:30 in the Masonic Temple.

All Knights Templar are requested to attend with their wives. The religious services will be conducted by the Rev.

A.E. Brown. A declaration of the grand commander will be read. After the religious services here will be a social meeting in the dining room.

Chairman T.I. Moore reminded that every Knights Templar is obligated to attend the nearest services if he is within a distance of 40 miles.

In 1968, more than half of all reported turnpike accidents involved only one vehicle.

ALL TERRAIN RACE FUN

The all-terrain vehicle—the squat, fast-moving, maneuverable machine—is coming into its own. Now a popular racing vehicle (these pictures were taken at the birthplace of all-terrain vehicle racing, an abandoned strip mine course near New Bethlehem, Pa.), it can give the drivers and spectators some thrilling action moments.

The race course consists of one half-mile of rugged obstacles. Drivers must be skillful as they bounce over the craggy hills, bump around the hair-pin turns and splash through the large, muddy waterholes. The race, under the supervision of the National All-Terrain Vehicle Association (NATVA), was sponsored by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce to raise funds for a hospital. Surprisingly enough, none of the drivers needed hospitalization after the race.

The typical all-terrain vehicle, such as the Attex machine shown here, weighs 450 pounds, carries a payload of some 800 pounds and travels at a top speed of 35 to 40 mph. It is amphibious, at 4 mph in water, with power and direction controlled by its low-pressure, ribbed tires. It has a two-cycled, air-cooled 20 hp engine that can take abuse and is easily accessible by lifting up the two-seater housing on top. The driver steers, gears and brakes the machine by operating the two stick levers, directly in front of him. Arms forward, with hand on gas, the vehicle jumps into action. Arms back and the disc brakes are applied. To turn, pull back left or right lever and it turns on a dime if necessary. It is capable of climbing a 45-degree hill.

Racing helps test the endurance and capabilities of the machine and the results help build better, safer types. Manufacturers of all-terrain vehicles are currently striving to popularize their product with more outdoor sportsmen for hunting and fishing. And it is making inroads into the general leisure family fun market. Folks around New Bethlehem, Pa., are especially aware of the new world of excitement in all-terrain vehicles as these tiny, six-wheeled terrors whiz up, down and over their race course.

THE START... and the drivers slam the controls forward with right hand heavy on the gas.

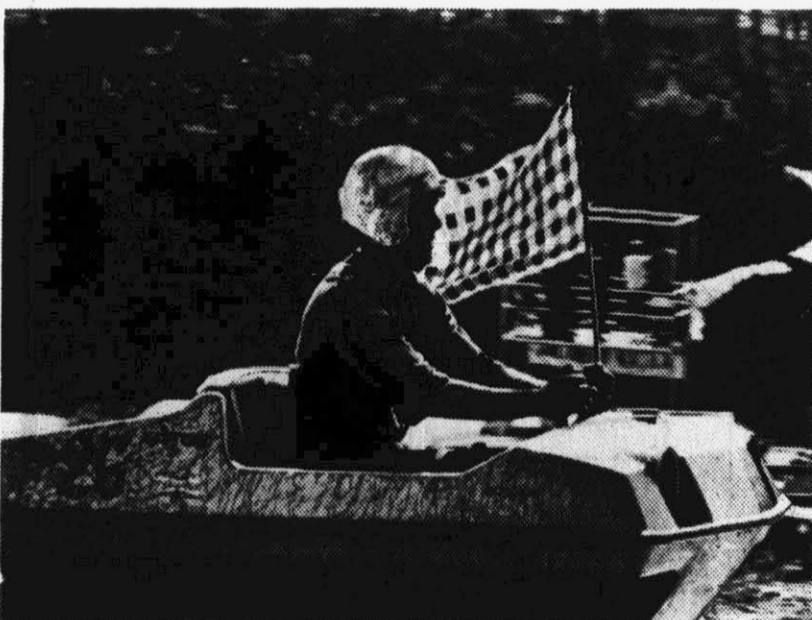

ROLL BARS are protection should the vehicle turn over on the rough race course.

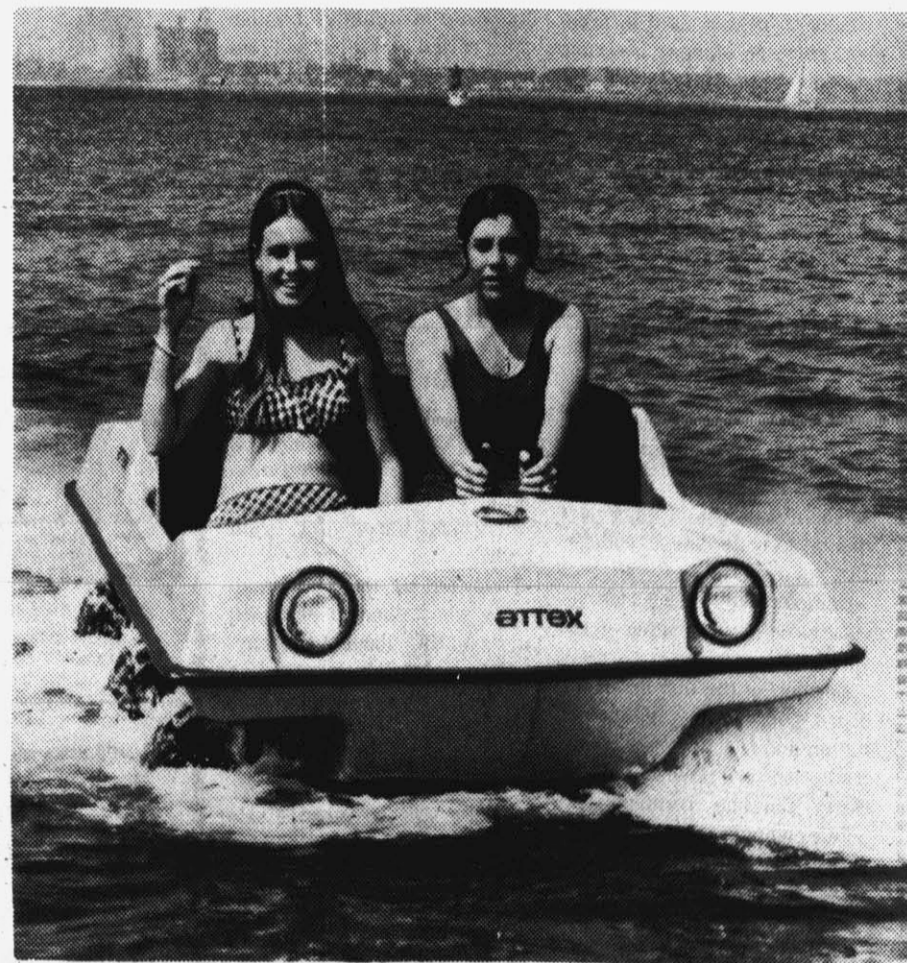

STEEP 45-DEGREE HILLS are easily climbed... with full power. The ribbed tires add traction.

HOMESTRETCH... and the dust flies. Normal speed is 35-40 mph. These special racers are sometimes souped up for extra speed.

FINISH LINE—the drivers and their vehicles are proof that it was an all-terrain race, including water.

FAMILY FUN—these vehicles are amphibious, using their ribbed, low-pressure tires for maneuverability at 4 mph.

 East 1 Pass
 South 2 Pass
 West 2 Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠. Altho West's trump holding does not look very impressive, he managed nevertheless to score the setting tricks against South's two heart contract with the seven and four of hearts.

North opened the bidding with one diamond and East overcalled with one spade. The next two hands passed and North, who was unwilling to sell out so cheaply, re-opened the auction with one no trump. Altho his holding was not completely balanced, he had honors in all suits plus a stopper in spades. South chose to show his five card suit by bidding two hearts and the bidding subsided at this point.

West opened the seven of spades, North played the nine and East won the trick with the queen. He cashed the

Art Offered By Gallery

A number of items are still available for the art lover at the Special Christmas Gallery Sales Shop of the Greenville Art Center on Evans Street.

Among the artists offering works are Sara Blakesley Speight, watercolors; Claude Howell, water colors, pen and ink drawings, and copies of "Exploring the Seacoast of North Carolina,"; hand-made Christmas tree ornaments by Salley Cooley; book-markers and small watercolors, Wanda Harris; small watercolors, Rose Brooks; macrame and enameling by Gwen Jones; and drawings and miniature wall sculpture reliefs by Wes Crawley.

The Art Center will remain open until Wednesday, December 24. Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the center, states that profits from sales will go to the operating fund of the art center. Daily hours are from 9:30 a.m. to noon, and from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Seeking Funds For Chapel At School

Friends of Dobbs School for Girls, a state correctional school located in Kinston, are soliciting contributions toward building a campus chapel there.

Pitt County co-chairmen of the drive are Mrs. Lillian D. Bradley, a supervisor in the Pitt County Schools, and Mrs. Josephine Reaves, a retired teacher of Ayden.

Mrs. Bradley said, "This school has served and is serving in the rehabilitation of many girls from Pitt County. With the mental and physical guidance provided them at Dobbs, many of these girls have learned to constructively channel their energies and have become useful citizens in the com-

Hawaii Testing Christmas Trees

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii is giving two home-grown Christmas trees a trial run to find out whether they can stand the climate in Washington, D.C.

If so, the National Christmas Tree Committee may let Hawaii supply in 1974 the tree put in place each year in front of the White House.

The Hawaii Christmas tree is known as the Norfolk Island pine, introduced to these balmy surroundings from its native island off Australia 80 years ago.

David Fullaway of the Hawaii Division of Forestry said the committee wanted to be sure a Norfolk Island pine could do the job in Washington's weather.

So two 10-foot specimens have been flown to Washington for testing under the eyes of Tom Schubert, a Honolulu forester.

Execution Of Marie Hill 'Weakness' In Role Seen is Indefinitely Postponed

Raleigh (AP)—The execution of 18-year-old Marie Hill will be postponed indefinitely so her case can be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Chief Justice William H. Bobbitt of the North Carolina Supreme Court Monday signed a stay of Miss Hill's scheduled Dec. 26 execution.

The stay was requested by attorneys for the Negro girl after the state's Supreme Court last week upheld Miss Hill's sentence.

The girl, the youngest female ever sentenced to death in North Carolina, was found guilty in Edgecombe Superior Court last December of the slaying of W. E. Strum, a Rocky Mount grocery store owner, on Oct. 7, 1968.

Eight Arrested In Drugs Probe

Raleigh (AP)—Eight Shaw University and St. Augustine's College students have been charged, with transportation, possession and sale of heroin and marijuana.

—Carter McCray Jr., 18, Raleigh, St. Augustine's student—possession of 46 doses of heroin.

—Lesley Wilkerson, 22, Summit, N. J., Shaw student—transportation and possession of three-fourths pound of marijuana and 15 $5 bags of marijuana.

The eight were arrested Monday after several weeks of investigation by the Raleigh Police Department, the State Bureau of Investigation and Wake County ABC officers. Hearings are scheduled for the students Jan. 20.

—Fred Brown, 19, New York City, Shaw student—possession and sale of 30 doses of heroin.

—Leonard Matthew Butler, 22, Newark, N. J., Shaw student—illegal possession of methadone, which police said is a synthetic narcotic.

Those arrested and charges against them are:

—Ernest Russell Van Dyke, 22, Orange, N. J., Shaw student—illegal possession and sale of 30 doses of heroin.

—Norman Evans Long, 20, of Bronx, N. Y., Shaw student—possession of 57 doses of heroin.

—Thomas Bernard Hart Jr., 19, of New York City, Shaw student—possession of 46 doses of heroin.

Officers also seized four automobiles for possible confiscation by the courts.

That provision was changed by the 1969 General Assembly. The Supreme Court's majority opinion last week, written by Associate Justice Carlisle Higgins, said the evidence against Miss Hill "is overwhelming." It said her attorneys in their appeal "do not discuss guilt or innocence."

Instead, it said, "the plea is based on the defendant's tender age, her lack of opportunity and (her) tragic family life."

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Board of Health files its occupational health program, particularly its study of brown lung disease among textile workers, is weakened by its lack of clear authority to enter industrial plants.

The board has asked the state attorney general's office for a ruling on whether health officials have the statutory "right to enter and conduct a study wherever we feel there may be an occupational hazard."

Dr. Martin P. Hines, director of the occupational health section, said in the past the board has gone "hand in hand to the industries begging them to let us in." He said this method has limited the board's effectiveness, particularly in its attempts to test for byssinosis, a respiratory disease of textile workers.

Currently, only Burlington Industries is voluntarily cooperating with the board in this study.

Hines said this could result in an underestimation of the problem since Burlington, the industry giant, has more modern equipment than the smaller plants in North Carolina.

Establish Two Scholarships

Raleigh (AP)—Two scholarship programs valued at approximately $125,000 will be established at North Carolina State University in the fields of mechanical engineering and horticulture.

The scholarships were announced Monday. They are being provided by Mrs. James A. Powell of Reading, Pa., in memory of James A. Powell and Henry Steinmetz, both of Raleigh.

CHRISTMAS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WORLD . . . 12,500 miles from Pitt County, in Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, Suzie, a 15 month old Vietnamese orphan who is a patient at the 12th USAF Hospital, entertains Farmville native Airman I-C Edward L. Jones (left), Red Cross Hospital worker Martha Granderson of Kingsland, Arkansas, and Sgt. Harry Di Giovanni of Sanford, Florida. Suzie is typical of the many Vietnamese homeless children receiving care by American military and civilian personnel in Vietnam.

Red Ink Dominates Movie Activities During Decade

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The 1960s brought a revolution to the American movie industry that still is going on.

As the decade ends the old structure of the film business is crumbling and new patterns are emerging. The need for change was demonstrated last month when four major film companies reported losses of $110,066,000.

Can new managements reverse the downward trend? That will be determined in the 1970s.

The story of the film industry in the 1960s is one of turmoil, doubt and mismanagement. The decade began with strikes by actors and writers, whose action expressed the concern of all Hollywood workers over the future of the business. The strikes, which were resolved by compromise, brought further distress to the faltering industry.

The big studio era was over. No longer could the companies afford vast stables of actors, directors and writers to create large programs of pictures. The major companies released 184 films in 1960, compared to 320 in 1951. And a third of the 1960 films were made abroad, while only a small percentage were filmed outside Hollywood a decade earlier.

By 1961 Hollywood labor had coined what it considered a dirty phrase: runaway production.

That was the term applied to the financing by American companies of filming abroad. The advantages were obvious: exotic locales; cheaper labor; tax advantages for nonresident stars; subsidies by European governments.

The year 1962 brought the first of the many corporate changes that were to change the structure of the industry. MCA dissolved its giant talent agency and bought Universal Studio and Decca Records. Together with its own television film enterprise, MCA created a corporation that embraced a wide area of the entertainment business.

The same year saw the return of Darryl F. Zanuck to 20th Century-Fox. During his absence as an independent film maker in Europe, the company he helped found had taken an alarming tumble. The principal reason was the fiasco of "Cleopatra," which cost an estimated $40 million and almost wrecked 20th Century-Fox.

Zanuck shut down the studio, revitalized the company and brought it back to prosperity.

By middecade Wall Street had become enamored with leisure-time investments, and giant corporations cast their eyes at the movies. In 1966 the new conglomerate, Gulf and Western, bought Paramount, and a financing corporation, Transamerica, merged with United Artists. Warner Bros. sold out to Seven Arts. Attempts to take over MGM were beaten off.

Movies were being presented in network prime time seven nights a week, and the broadcasters began to worry about future supplies of films.

That was one of the reasons ABC and CBS entered the feature-film business in 1967. The established companies screamed that this was unfair competition, but their protests went unheeded.

The film companies themselves were using television to maintain their economic stability. They sold their backlogs to the networks, and the price per film rose from $200,000 to $800,000. Most of the companies were also producing filmed series for television, and that helped absorb some of the crushing overhead at the studios.

A new development was the two-hour movie made especially for television. Universal pioneered this field with the World Premiere movies, which proved as popular as those which had already been released in theaters.

More mergers came at the end of the decade. Warner Bros. Seven Arts was taken over by Kinney National Service. Joseph Levine's Embassy was absorbed by Avco. Universal tried to merge with both Westinghouse and Firestone, but neither marriage worked.

This year the Last Vegas operator Kirk Kerkorian bought control of MGM and appointed Jim Aubrey, former CBS program chief, as president.

As the decade ended in waves of red ink, all of the film companies were struggling to adjust to the new market.

The final death knell of the big studio was sounded when Paramount announced it was moving its headquarters out of the studio. The historic Paramount lot was up for sale. At least part of the MGM studio was expected to be sold, and the departure of 20th Century-Fox (renamed 21st Century-Fox Corp.) seemed inevitable.

It appeared that most of the companies would adopt the system of United Artists, which owned no studio but rented space when needed.

The major task facing the new film bosses was adjusting their production to a new film market. In explaining this year's nine-month loss of $21,978,000, Fox's Darryl Zanuck commented:

"Without in any way making excuses for the disappointing performance of some of our pictures, it should be observed that there has been a revolution in public taste that has resulted in the rapid obsolescence of films and story properties that, when originally initiated, represented sound business risks."

His statement expressed the quandary of all film bosses over how to satisfy the new film tastes. The overproduced spectacles and musicals hold little appeal to today's audience, which is preponderately between 16 and 25. It is this "now" generation that has made enormous hits out of such modest films as "Easy Rider," "Midnight Cowboy," "Goodbye, Columbus" and "Alice's Restaurant."

The film companies are now going through the agonies of canceling big budget projects, cutting studio costs to a minimum and trying to find inexpensive films that will appeal to the young generation.

Apprenticeship Running Opera

NEW YORK (AP) — Christopher Keene, 22, has won the first Julius Rudel Award. The award was set up by Laurence E. Deutch and Lloyd Rigler of Los Angeles. The winner will join the New York City Opera for the company's 16-performance season in Los Angeles in November and then return to New York with the company to begin apprenticeship.

Keene, who is from Palo Alto, Calif., is a conductor who is meant to learn from Rudel "artistic and administrative knowledge required in the running of an opera company."

New Employment Directory Now At Library

Sheppard Memorial Library has received a copy of the 1970 "Summer Employment Directory of the United States." High school seniors, college students and teachers who want summer jobs can get the latest information from the new 1970 edition.

Employers throughout the United States and Canada list their 80,000 summer job openings at resorts, summer camps, national parks, summer theatres, ranches and restaurants.

Detailed information on specific job openings and where to apply is contained in the book. The 1970 edition can be purchased at $4.95 through any book store or from National Directory Service, P.O. Box 65, Cincinnati, Ohio, 45232.

New Bird On Sesame St.

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Bird, the newest and biggest (literally) folk hero among America's 12-million preschoolers has come up with a small friend to help him in the hit public television series, Sesame Street.

On December 17, Big Bird's bright yellow featured frame will be contrasted throughout the country with one that's barely a foot tall and named, what else, Little Bird. In his usual roundabout way, Big Bird, who helps the youngsters with their logic and reasoning among other things, introduces his new friend ultimately as a dog, cat and a horse, before he discovers that Little Bird is actually a bird.

Big Bird, a creation of muppet master Jim Henson, is joined daily by a cast of 10 muppet puppets plus Gordon, Susan, Bob and Mr. Hooper and a number of cartoon characters who are helping to prepare the nation's preschoolers for school.

Sesame Street is seen for at least one hour each day on more than 190 TV stations from coast to coast.

There were 42,951 locomotives in use in the American railway system in 1950, and only 30,124 in 1966.

Area Students Now Teaching

GREENSBORO — Two students from the Greenville area are among 214 undergraduates at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro currently engaged in practice teaching.

They are Jewel Perkins of Stokes and Petrice Brown of 905 E. Sixth St., Greenville.

For the students, their eight weeks of full-time student teaching is the climax of their undergraduate training at UNC-G.

Deseret is the early Mormon name for Utah.
