'Missing' Vessels Haifa-Bound?

Israel Seemingly Is Five Boats Ahead

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN

PARIS (UPI)—Five gunboats built in France for the Israeli navy in a deal later scrapped by a French arms embargo were reported steaming toward Israel Saturday under circumstances with all the elements of a classic case of international intrigue.

The French Defense Ministry said the five $1 million warships had been sold to a Norwegian firm for oil research in the North Sea. The Norwegian government said it knew nothing about that transaction and warned the vessels would be seized if they ventured into Norwegian water.

Destination Haifa?

An Israeli naval officer, who declined to be named, said in Cherbourg where the gunboats were built: "I believe their only destination is Haifa." Haifa is Israel's main port on the Mediterranean Sea and the site of its largest naval base.

The boats have not been seen or heard from since they sailed from Cherbourg Christmas morning, manned by Israeli crews and flying Norwegian colors.

A statement from the French Defense Ministry said the boats were sold to the Starboat and Weill S.A. Oil and Shipping Services firm in Oslo. Questions were asked when a check turned up no license for purchasing the boats in Norway and a search of telephone directories revealed no firm named Starboat and Weill.

Norwegian Statement

Then the Norwegian Foreign Ministry issued its statement saying the firm was apparently fictitious and that the vessels would be confiscated if they entered Norwegian waters.

Government sources said late Saturday night that France was now making inquiry into the affair in view of the Norwegian denial that the firm existed.

Israel ordered five of the 250-ton boats built five years ago to carry Israeli-made Gabriel missiles, a weapon with a 12-mile range. Seven were delivered but the five others were held under terms of the arms embargo imposed on Israel by France after the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

The last of the boats, for which Israel was reimbursed was launched Dec. 27.

Four Children Perish In Fire

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—Four children perished when fire flashed through a clapboard house Saturday afternoon in the Crumbley Hollow area about three miles south of Gastonia.

Firemen found the children's partially charred bodies in a back bedroom where they apparently had attempted to flee the flames.

"Fear had driven them all there as far back as they could go, and that was it," said Chief Randy Calhoun of the South Gaston Volunteer Fire Department.

The dead children—all members of the Willie Setzer family—were identified by firemen as: Betty, 12; Robert Earl, 3; Roxanne, 8; and Jonathan, 18 months. Two other Setzer children at home at the time escaped the blaze. They were Albert, 9, and Leonard, 5.

The bodies of Robert Earl, Roxanne and Jonathan were found huddled under a bed. Betty's body was found lying on top of the same bed, Calhoun said.

The mother, 34-year-old Mrs. Lucinda Setzer, was away shopping when the fire broke out, firemen said. She returned home to find four of her six children dead and her home gutted.

Gaston County Fire Marshal Albert McGinnis aid Mrs. Setzer, who is pregnant, was treated at Gaston County Memorial Hospital after she was overcome by the tragedy.

The father, Willie Setzer, 42, was said by firemen to have been away with a friend butchering a hog when the blaze struck his home, on Crowders Creek Road near U.S. 321.

The frame of the six - room house was still standing when firemen extinguished the flames. But the interior had been ravaged beyond recovery by the fast-traveling fire, the firemen said.

McGinnis said the fire started when Albert threw kerosene on a coal-burning stove in a room off the kitchen. The stove exploded and flames whooshed up the wall to begin the blaze, he said.

Albert and Leonard escaped when they dashed out the kitchen door, he said, but the other four children were trapped when they ran into the back bedroom.

Nightclerk Shot, Knifed By Pair

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two robbers escaped with between $150 and $200 from the Travelodge early Saturday after shooting and stabbing the nightclerk.

The clerk, R. W. House, was wounded in the side and cut on a leg. He was reported in satisfactory condition in a hospital.

The manager of the downtown motel, Wallace R. Best, noted that The Charlotte Innkeepers Association has posted a $500 reward for information leading to conviction in such robberies.

Police said they were investigating whether there was connection between this robbery and one the previous Saturday at a Holiday Inn in Charlotte.

No Trace Of Ship's Crew

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (UPI)—Searchers Saturday reported no trace of 25 missing American seamen, last seen clinging to liferafts in 20-foot waves after abandoning the stricken ammunition ship Badger State.

"It's not encouraging," a Navy spokesman said.

The men jumped into the sea 1,500 miles from Honolulu Friday an hour before an explosion in the Badger State's Vietnam-bound cargo of rockets and bombs tore a hole in the starboard stern.

Fourteen other crewmen were rescued.

When the sun went down Friday, some of the missing men were seen clinging to liferafts in mountainous waves. Three ships and a circling rescue plane stood by during the night.

But when dawn broke under leaden skies, with rain squalls reducing visibility at times to less than a mile, there was no sign of the missing men.

The Navy indicated there was a chance the 459-foot vessel, still afloat with smoke pouring from her stern, could be towed to port.

Multiple Transplants 'Progress'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The first emphysema victim to receive both heart and lungs in a transplant operation was reported continuing "to progress satisfactorily" Saturday, two days after the surgery.

Edward Falk, 43, of Newton, N.J., near death from the lung disease and heart failure, was given the heart and lungs of a 50-year-old woman Christmas Day at the New York Hospital.

The kidneys and corneas of the woman, who died of a brain hemorrhage, also were removed for transplantation and one of the kidneys was given to a patient at Mount Sinai Hospital.

The operation on Falk was only the second time surgeons had attempted to transplant both heart and lungs in one patient.

The first recipient, a 2-month-old Texas girl suffering from fluid in the lungs and massive heart defects, died the day after her transplants Sept. 15, 1968, in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital in Houston, Tex.

The New York Hospital has performed nine previous heart transplants. None of the recipients are now living.

One Of Quints Is Taken Home

LONDON (UPI)—One of the Hanson quintuplets enjoyed the holidays at home Saturday with her parents. Six-week-old Sarah, the first of the five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanson to leave Hammersmith Hospital where they were born prematurely, was brought home Christmas Day. She now weighs 5 pounds 1½ ounces.

Weakening Winter Storm Is Still Belaboring Northeast

By United Press International

A weakening winter storm flailed away at northern New England and upstate New York Saturday while another storm built up power in the southern Rockies and spread across the high plains.

The northeaster that swept up the north Atlantic seaboard on the day after Christmas dumped two feet of snow at Augusta, Maine, and one to one and one-half foot depths across a broad belt of the northeast.

Six Die

Six persons died in New England from apparent heart attacks blamed on over-exertion in the snow. A Connecticut man was killed when he was struck by a car while operating a snowblower.

Snow continued to fall Saturday from the Great Lakes to the north Atlantic coast and central Appalachians, and travelers warnings remained posted for most of New England.

Snow was 39 inches deep on the ground at Montpelier, Vt. There was 34 inches of snow at Glen Falls, N.Y., and an on-the-ground total of 29 inches at Albany, N.Y.

Fresh snow hit New York City. The snow and falling temperatures crusted city streets and sidewalks with ice. Air and rail traffic was snarled and driving and walking were dangerous.

Clear Streets

The New York Sanitation Department put a crew of nearly 5,000 men on overtime spreading salt and sand and clearing drifts left by Friday's storm.

LaGuardia airport was closed most of Friday and again Saturday morning. Holiday travelers encountered long delays at Kennedy International Airport. Both the Long Island and Penn Central Railroads reported commuter train delays.

The storm swept across southern Quebec. Many motorists were stranded along snow-choked roads and would-be travelers were asked to stay home.

Warnings of severe winter weather were up in portions of 10 states from the Rockies through the plains into the Midwest. The storm which has been building up power in the southern Rockies pointed eastward toward the lower Ohio River Valley. Six to 18 inches of snow fell in the Colorado Rockies.

Virulent Virus Racks Britain

LONDON (UPI)—The Ministry of Health announced Saturday only emergency cases would be admitted to hospitals in southeastern England to leave enough beds for victims of an influenza epidemic which already has taken 294 lives.

The Health Department statement also urged persons not to call their family doctor until pressures on the epidemic eased.

"The flu outbreak began unusually early this winter," the satement said. "It appears to have reached its peak during Christmas week, especially in southern England.

"For the 24 hours ending at midnight last night, 247 cases were admitted to hospitals," said a spokesman for the emergency bed service.

"Not all were flu sufferers—142 were chest cases," he said.

The epidemic took two married couples among the 294 deaths attributed to the flu and complications by the Health Department.

Roy Howland, 40, found his wife Phyllis, 49, dead in bed Christmas morning. He died the following day. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Foulkes, both 26, died within an hour of each other at their home Christmas Eve. All four were being treated for the flu.

"This is a particular virulent virus, much worse than our own British flu," a London doctor said.

"One complication arising from it can be pneumonia. Others are bronchitis and coughing," he added.

"It is a kind of asian flu and can kill, more normally the elderly or very young, but anyone can develop pneumonia," he said.

Czechs Defect In Sweden Tour

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Babela Jiey paid nearly three months salary and left his wife and children knowing he would probably never see them again to join a "Christmas in Stockholm" tour.

Jiey spoke Saturday of why he left his native Czechoslovakia and the almost hopeless struggle ahead to get permission for his family to join him.

Jiey, from Prague, is one of 75 Czech tourists in a group of 96 who decided not to return to their native country when their Christmas visit in Sweden came to an end.

The trip, arranged by the state-owned travel agency Cedok in Prague, was the first to be permitted since the government restricted travel permits last fall.

Each participant in "Christmas in Stockholm" paid about $200 for the fare. The average pay for a worker in Czechoslovakia is $60 a month.

It had been uncertain whether the trip would get authorization from the authorities but on Dec. 18th a cable came to all the participants which said simply: "Pack your trunks. We're leaving on the 20th."

"We were all strangers and no one dared to tell the other about defection plans," Babela Jiey said. "I found out that I was not alone in my decision to stay in Sweden when I met the others at the police station in Stockholm.

"The life we have led since the invasion has not been a real life, just working and sleeping. People cannot speak to each other in Czechoslovakia any more. You can just think."

Most of the defectors left relatives behind, relatives they have little hope of seeing again.

SIGN ACCORD

MOSCOW (UPI)—Japan and the Soviet Union signed an agreement Saturday that will put the first non-Soviet airliners on the Siberian route to Tokyo on March 28, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

New Comet To Be Seen

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—A new comet, which now can be seen south of the Equator, will become visible in the night skies of the Northern Hemisphere Jan. 6.

Japanese astronomers first sighted the comet which was named Tago-Sato-Kosaka-1969-G after its discoverers.

"By January 3 it will be at its most southerly point, then it will begin to move north rather rapidly," said Richard Norton, curator of the University of Nevada's Atmospherium-Planetarium.

The fiery body will become visible in the southern part of the United States Jan. 10, and in the northern states the best time to view the astronomical phenomenon will be about Jan. 15.

"It will be seen about two hours after the sun sets, and will continue to set later and later, so that by the end of January, it will be visible about four hours after sunset," Norton said.

'I Told You So'

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, in a statement made public Saturday, said previous American strategists should have built up the South Vietnamese army instead of sending large U.S. troop contingents to the war zone.

"American military policy was wrong in the past when the United States wanted to pour in troops to win the guerrilla war," Ky said in a speech to Vietnamese army officers at Da Nang last Wednesday night.

Ky said he had told U.S. authorities at the time that they should "help with more weapons and money" in modernizing the South Vietnamese army and make it more effective.

Now, Ky said, American officials, including Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, agree with him.

South's Higher Education Enrollment Soared During Decade

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Life on the college campus in the South has undergone more change during the decade just ending than in the previous half century, the Southern Regional Education Board reports.

The agency, established in 1949 to assist 15 Southern states improve the quality of higher education, cites in its year-end report increased enrollment as the most significant change of the decade.

Dr. Jack K. Williams, vice president for academic affairs at the University of Tennessee, said in commenting on the change: "No longer is the Southern college system the happy boola-boola land for 4 to 6 per cent of our college-age youth. It is now the glass and brick arena where 35 to 40 per cent of our post-high school youth are competing."

Since 1960, the total student enrollment in the 15-state region increased 112 per cent, as compared with the national increase of 109 per cent.

Degree enrollment in the region increased 122 per cent, as compared with the national increase of 121 per cent, SREB said.

The percentage of the region's college-age population pursuing degrees increased 38 per cent during the 1960s, from 29 per cent of the college-age population attending college in 1960. Today, 52 per cent of the college-age population is in college.

Rising costs figured prominantly in the report.

State support for higher education increased from $391.28 million in 1960 to $1.66 billion in 1968—an increase of 325 per cent regionally. The national increase was 337 per cent, however.

But there was also a 59 per cent increase in tuition and fees for resident students and a 58 per cent cost hike for nonresident students.

The dollar increase was greater for nonresident students because their base for tuition and fees is higher than it is for resident students.

At private institutions, tuition and fees rose from $443 in 1960 to $849 in 1969.

"The sharp rise in costs is one of the most significant changes in the '60s," said Dr. Judson Ward Jr., vice president and dean of faculties at Emory University at Atlanta.

"Hardest hit of all have been our private colleges and universities," he said. "Unless there is a change in the basic concept of public support for private institutions, we may expect many of our private colleges to close their doors or turn themselves over totally to the public sector."

Dr. David W. Mullins, president of the University of Arkansas, cited changes in the structure of higher education as being important during the 1960s.

"Change of greatest interest has been the rapid expansion of junior or community colleges and the increasing attention on professional and technical education," he said.

The report noted that at the beginning of the decade, there seemed to be only one model for higher education to pursue with the blessings of the public—the research-oriented graduate level university.

It noted, however, that near the end of the decade this model was changed by the development of the two-year or community college, the vocational-technical training institute and the regional state university.

"Development of the community college and of the technical institute resulted in the greater democratization of higher education in the region," said William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina.

The beginning of the elimination of the dual system of higher education in the south also came in the decade.

SREB said merit scholarship records indicate that many highly talented black students preferred to leave the South for their higher education during the early 1960s. But by the end of the decade, many blacks were enrolling in higher education institutions in zhe South.

Enrollment of black students increased 60 per cent in the South from 1963 to 1967. In 1967, 90 per cent of black enrollment in black colleges was in the South, while 28 per cent of the black enrollment in white institutions was in the South.

Nab Ex-Con In Three Slayings

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (UPI) —An ex-convict with a record of sex offenses was jailed Saturday under around-the-clock guard on charges of strangling his wife and her recent bridesmaid on Christmas Eve and a 14-year-old girl a month earlier.

Kenneth Paul Rogers, 29, an artist and assistant manager of a Carbondale, Ill., bookstore, was picked up late Friday without resistance while walking along a highway near Mason, Tenn., some 200 miles south of Carbondale.

He was returned here early Saturday.

Suicide Attempt

Rogers' left wrist had been slashed when he was apprehended, and Tennessee authorities said the wound apparently was self-inflicted.

Authorities said Rogers also apparently had made abortive attempts to hang himself in a church and to asphyxiate himself.

Rogers is charged with the slayings of his wife, Wilma, 22, and Barbara Case, 24, of suburban Carbondale, at the Rogers' rented house trailer home at a Carterville trailer court. Both were strangled with electric appliance cords.

Recent Wedding

Miss Case, a Southern Illinois University student and motel waitress, had been bridesmaid at the Rogers' Sept. 27 wedding here.

Mrs. Rogers, operator of a cosmetics studio in Carbondale, had met Rogers only about two months before their wedding. An acquaintance said she had exhibited some of Rogers' paintings in her cosmetics shop and wanted to help him. Rogers had learned painting while in Menard, Ill., State Prison.

Rogers also is charged with murder in the death last month of Lisa Levering, a Carbondale High School freshman. She disappeared Nov. 25 after leaving the Carbondale Teen Center.

Her body was found just off a country road southwest of Carbondale Dec. 1. She had been strangled with her blue jeans and had been raped.

North Viets Gunned Down Near Cambodia

By BERT W. OKULEY

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. tank troops supported by artillery and jets reported killing 72 North Vietnamese infantrymen Saturday in a battle near the Cambodian border that broke out six hours after the end of the Viet Cong's Christmas cease-fire.

No U.S. casualties were reported in the fighting about 83 miles north of Saigon but South Vietnamese joining the fight lost more than 60 men killed or wounded, field reports said.

Heavy Action

The combat, two miles from the Cambodian border, was one of the heaviest single actions in recent weeks and shattered the general lull which had settled over most fronts in the first hours after Christmas.

Spokesmen said the fighting started when U.S. helicopter gunship crews spotted a North Vietnamese force of about 270 men and opened up with rocket and machine gun fire.

Elements of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry riding tanks and armored personnel carriers moved in, blazing away at the jungles with help from artillery batteries in nearby fire support bases and low-level strafing runs by Air Force F100 Supersabre jets.

The bullets, shells and bombs ripped apart 40 bunkers, spokesmen said.

Two Die

Two Americans were reported killed and 11 wounded in a fight Friday morning about 367 miles northeast of Saigon on the upper coast. Two Communists were known killed in the action which erupted 13 hours after the 24-hour Allied cease-fire ended.

Spokesmen for the South Vietnamese army said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops committed 69 violations against government forces during the 72-hour Viet Cong cease-fire which expired at 1 a.m. Saturday.

South Vietnamese casualties during the 72-hour period were placed at 17 killed and 29 wounded.

POW Gifts To Go To Moscow

Vientiane, Laos (UPI)—H. Ross Perot, a Dallas, Tex., millionaire, abandoned his plan for flying Christmas gifts to American war prisoners in Hanoi and set course for Moscow where he hoped to put the cargo into the regular mail pipeline to North Vietnam.

Hanoi has agreed to the Moscow plan, and Perot called on the Soviet Embassy in Vientiane Saturday to request permission for his chartered jetliner to land in the Russian capital.

Perot had hoped to fly directly into Hanoi and personally deliver his $600,000 cargo of food, clothing and medical supplies to the roughly 1,400 Americans in North Vietnamese prison camps. Hanoi refused permission for this Friday without stating a reason but Perot said he ran into a "wall of suspicion" in his talks in Vientiane with North Vietnamese officials.

Before leaving Vientiane Saturday, Perot visited the headquarters of the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos and talked for about 90 minutes with Col. Sote Petrasy, a ranking official of the guerrilla organization. Perot showed Petrasy a list of 172 names of Americans missing in Laos.

Sergeant Testifies On My Lai Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — S.Sgt. David Mitchell, protesting "I'm not guilty," testified for one hour and 45 minutes Saturday before the special Army board investigating reports of a U.S. massacre of South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai hamlet in Vietnam last year.

Mitchell, a St. Francisville, La., native now stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex., was a squad leader with the infantry company that swept My Lai on March 16, 1968. He has been charged by the Army with assault with intent to murder 30 villagers.

He has not been ordered court-martialed on the charges, as has the only other person charged in the incident, Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who now is at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Mitchell arrived at the Pentagon with his lawyer, Ossie Brown of Baton Rouge, La. The GI told newsmen they could take photographs but that he would not answer questions. Then he added: "But I'm not guilty."

The board was headed Saturday by Bland West, assistant general counsel to the Army and a deputy to Gen. William R. Peers, chief of the inquiry who left Washington Friday night for South Vietnam for an on-scene inspection.

Peers told newsmen before his departure that the board had reached no conclusions, not even tentative, after hearing 39 witnesses. His 10-day trip to Vietnam will include a visit to the area in Quang Nai province where My Lai hamlet once existed.

March Against 'Injustices'

A group of Negroes, ranging in number at times from about 25 to 45, marched through predominately Negro sections of West Greenville Friday protesting "injustices" and the death sentence handed to Marie Hill of Rocky Mount.

The line of march began on Albemarkle Avenue. The demonstrators visited Moyewood housing project and stopped at Sadie Saulter school on Fleming Street for a brief open-air meeting before returning to Albemarle Avenue.

A permit was issued by the police department for Friday's march.

The permit has also been issued to the group for a parade from Albemarle Avenue to Kearney Park housing project this afternoon.

Mecca Railroad Needs Money

LONDON (AP) — the Hedjaz Railroad, once the Moslem pilgrim's way to Mecca, needs more money if rebuilding begun in the early 1960s is to be completed.

Alderton Construction Co. of London says $7.2 million is required.

The original contract for rebuilding, given to Martin Cowley Construction Co. of Jordan in partnership with Alderton, was for $20.1 million.

Alderton says the number of bridges and culverts to be rebuilt was treble the original estimate and earthworks 25 per cent more than bargained for.

Before the 1967 Middle East war brought work to a halt for 18 months, some 2,000 bridges and culverts had been rebuilt and 2½ million cubic meters of earth shifted.

Rock Festival Is Sputtering

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI)—A rock music festival plagued by cold weather and slim attendance sputtered to a second start Saturday with police keeping a close watch for drugs.

Three rock bands played until about 2 a.m., but then the show stopped instead of going all night as planned. Promoters said they would get the festival into high gear after a second start at noon.

Evangelist Billy Graham is scheduled to address the festival Sunday morning. The show will run through Monday.

Maryland's Atty. Gen. Moves Against Koscot

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—An order to stop Koscot Interplanetary, Inc., of Orlando, Fla., from selling distributorships has been issued by the Maryland Attorney General's office, Att. Gen. Francis B. Burch said today.

Burch said the cease and desist order from the Securities Division of his office enjoined the firm from continued sales of distributorships in the form of "Directors," "Supervisors" and "Ko-ordinators."

The order said the firm and its affiliated or wholly owned subsidiaries sold the distributorships in an alleged multi-level referral sales operation.

Koscot and its subsidiaries did not comply with Section 15 of the Maryland Securities Act, Article 32A, because the securities were not sold by registered salesmen or dealers, the order said.

Sales of such distributorships "constitutes a certificate of interest or participation in an profit-sharing agreement," the order said

Maryland law requires registration of such securities.

The order said the sales halt in Maryland was "necessary and appropriate in the public interest and for the protection of investors. . ."

The securities divisions of Florida, Hawaii and Texas already have taken action against companies operating in a similar manner, Burch said in a statement.

Burch said the order also applied to all Maryland residents who bought distributorships and who are trying to solicit other investors.

"The order does not in any manner affect the sale of the product itself in Maryland," Burch said.

Vandals Smash Decoration

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI)—Students at Vocational High School and city officials worked together to decorate Claski Memorial Park with a Christmas display considered among the most beautiful in the state. But the park will be dark for the rest of the holiday season because vandals smashed Christmas lights and broke sculptures early Saturday, causing an estimated $10,000 damage.

Agnew Flies To Guam

By WEBSTER K. NOLAN

HONOLULU (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew left for Guam Saturday on his 10-nation far eastern tour to test reaction to the "Nixon doctrine" of self-reliance for America's Asian allies.

Agnew's blue and white Air Force Two took off from Hickam Air Force Base after a night and a day in Hawaii surrounded by unusual security precautions.

Guards with rifles and binoculars were posted on nearby hangar rooftops when Agnew's plane arrived from Washington Friday.

The vice president spent the night at a guest house at the residence of Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander in chief of all U.S. Pacific forces.

Agnew and McCain conferred Saturday before the vice president enplaned on the second leg of his 37,000-mile journey.

Agnew has to visit such diverse countries as Afghanistan and the exotic island of Bali during the trip. It was considered a possibility that he would make an unannounced visit to the Vietnam war zone to visit U.S. troops.

There was no fanfare or public exposure when the vice president arrived Friday.

The children's youth group of Timothy Christian Church would like to express their appreciation to the following for their donations toward the party at Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Home on December 20:

Good Era, And Exciting One

The last days of 1969 are fading away and with it goes the decade of the '60s.

So far as Greenville and Pitt County and North Carolina are concerned perhaps the end of 1969 is a good time to look at what has happened, because the 1960s have been eventful years for our section.

For Greenville the 1960s began with the visit of a handsome young man who was seeking the votes of our area in the race for president. John F. Kennedy was the Democratic candidate in 1960 and he chose to come to Greenville in his quest for votes. Kennedy won, as we all know, but before his four years were completed he was to die in Dallas.

The decade began with another bright young man winning the race for governor. As a new breed of politician Terry Sanford surprised all by supporting John F. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination. But then Sanford was a surprising governor. He pushed through a food tax to support his education program. The decade ended with Sanford offering still another surprise. He turned away from politics at least temporarily to become president of Duke University.

For Pitt County 1960 was a year of the Old South. Despite the 1954 Supreme Court decision on school segregation there were still white and Negro school systems. Negroes did not go to white restaurants nor to white theatres.

The decade ended with school segregation almost at an end and now Negroes go to any public restaurant or theatre they choose.

East Carolina College had made progress during the 1950s under President John D. Messick. But the 1960s were to see a new president, the dynamic and controversial Dr. Leo Jenkins. By decade's end new facilities stood all over the campus and enrollment was to near the 10,000 mark. The institution had a new name—East Carolina University—and new purposes. As the 1960s drew to a close East Carolina University was busy planning to educate physicians, and its future seemed bright, indeed.

As the 60s began industry was generally something that went somewhere else, so far as Greenville was concerned. But as the decade drew to a close Burroughs-Wellcome was completing its huge pharmaceutical plant north of Greenville, in what was considered the prize industrial catch of the year for the state. Fieldcrest was expanding and Becton-Dickinson, another outstanding firm in the health field, was planning a new plant for construction in 1970.

In agriculture tobacco was the undisputed king when the 1960s opened for Pitt County. Paradoxically the decade closed with record prices being paid for the county's tobacco crop. But in the intervening years, tobacco had been branded as a killer and farmers and the industry were greatly worried about its future. The best guess seemed to be that the crop would stay for some time, but with its production being concentrated with fewer and fewer growers.

If the experts are right, however, all available land will be needed for food production in the 1970s to serve a world population that is growing at an unprecedented rate.

It would be safe to say that no decade since the area was first settled has changed Greenville and Pitt County so much as the 1960s. It was an era when the city went to work in its slums, when segregated living came to an end, when East Carolina University became a dominant institution, when the stage was set for great changes in agriculture and when industrialization became a real factor in our way of living.

It has been a good era and an exciting one. Our people have met challenges and delth with community stresses. As the decade ends, we feel the people of our area have grown with the challenges and we have come through it all with the best possible outlook.

A Grand Old Lady In Gray

By H. G. JONES

RALEIGH (AP) — When Gov. Bob Scott last week told an audience of bankers and businessmen that the grand old State Capitol "is dying from age and neglect," he caught many North Carolinians by surprise.

For more than a century Tar Heels held the historic structure in such high esteem that they fought every effort to enlarge or alter it. It was this reverence for the Capitol that led the General Assembly in 1959 to provide an entirely new building for the legislative branch.

As the oratory rang throughout the old chambers, the advocates of the new building assured their colleagues that the Capitol itself would remain in their affection and that it would be cared for. And so the gleaming new State Legislative Building was dedicated in 1963.

But what about the Grand Old Lady in Gray — the beautiful Capitol completed in 1840, in which was housed all of state government for nearly a half century, in which all of our laws were adopted for 121 years, and which even today remains the headquarters of our chief executive officers?

The promises of 1959 have not been kept. The building's interior is indeed "dying" from neglect.

A few examples:

—The roof leaks with the result that decay has already started in the superstructure, plaster is falling, and some of the finest architectural detail is deteriorating.

—The third-floor offices which once housed the Supreme Court and the State Library have been abandoned, furnishings stripped out, and ornate details defaced.

—A century of debris litters the areas above the two legislative chambers where tubs and buckets fail to catch all the drips.

—Broken lighting devices and bare bulbs hang throughout the building as if to call attention to the neglect.

—The old House and Senate chambers, designated by law as historic shrines, have lost their elegance. The rotting carpet had to be stapled together this month when a public ceremony was held in the House Chamber for the presentation of the portrait of a former governor.

And so it goes in the building which has been described as one of the finest examples in America of Greek Revival architecture.

But judging from the tone of Gov. Scott's voice, it isn't going to be that way long. "I believe it must be saved for North Carolina and its people," he said. The public — and particularly the legislature—will hear more about the need for restoration of the Capitol.

The first step appears to be an exhaustive research project to determine the exact nature of the deterioration and the extent of alterations during the past 129 years. The exterior of the building has remained virtually unchanged, and there have been relatively few major alterations inside. However, periodic redecorations have ob, scured much of the original elegance; some of the upper offices have been butchered; electric and telephone wires have been strung all over the place, and improper lighting fixtures have given the building an illegitimate appearance.

Discrimination Is His Target

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the highest ranking Negroes in the Nixon administration says the nation is in danger of being torn up by racial strife unless the government makes the conquest of discrimination a national commitment like the conquest of space.

Samuel J. Simmons, assistant secretary for equal opportunity in the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), said the nation cannot let the prejudices of the "silent majority" dictate its race relations.

"The silent majority did not make the decision to go to the moon," Simmons told UPI in an interview. "The leaders made the decision to go to the moon and went out and educated the people.

"We have a responsibility to provide that silent majority with leadership that is necessary to get them to understand why we have to solve the problems of our cities and the economic and social problems of our country," he said.

"The thing that I never can understand is that when it comes to getting a man to the moon or controlling some kind of disease, we set a goal, we set a target, we set a timetable and we come up with the resources. We have never done this in the history of the problems affecting America's racial and ethnic minorities or poor people."

What Commitment

It was said with what seemed a trace of bitterness. The 42-year-old Simmons, who has been active in the civil rights movement for 15 years, would not speculate on chances the Nixon administration would make the kind of commitment he considers necessary.

Asked if he feels comfortable in the Nixon administration, Simmons replied:

"I do in terms of those things we are concerned with here at HUD and that's what I know the most about. I feel that we are making progress in terms of providing open housing opportunities. I feel that we are making progress in terms of providing greater job opportunities on HUD-assisted projects.

"There is a lot more progress that we can make, but I feel that we have been given an opportunity to move ahead to do what we think is necessary to resolve those problems that we have control over," he added. "Now there may be some other areas in which if I were the sole judge I would do things differently than they have been done."

Simmons has headed HUD's equal opportunity programs since February. He previously worked for five years as director of field services for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission and before that was an administrative assistant in the Detroit branch of the NAACP.

He covered a wide range of topics during the interview in his spacious office on the fifth floor of the new HUD building. The office was decorated for the holiday season with a modernistic paper mache Santa Claus with a black face.

He made these points:

—The government should conduct a thorough investigation of recent police raids on Black Panther Party headquarters in Chicago and Los Angeles either to refute ghetto rumors of police violence or discover and punish illegal acts by the police.

—Projects to rebuild housing in inner city slums must provide jobs for residents of the mostly black neighborhoods because efforts to do the job with predominately white workers "are doomed to failure."

—The three most important civil rights issues are housing, jobs and education. If equality can be guaranteed in those areas, many of the underlying racial problems "will fade away."

—HUD has received "excellent cooperation" from the Justice Department in enforcing equal housing opportunities and he is confident the department will move "quickly and effectively" to combat illegal blockbusting real estate activities. He firmly declined to comment on other aspects of the department's civil rights activities under At-

Fiscal Front's Wild Runaway

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the bold front of President Nixon's threatened vetoes of appropriations bills lies a doleful, year-end sinking sensation in top reaches of the Administration that the fiscal battle has been lost.

What that assures is continuation of a tight money policy for the foreseeable future as the only weapon against rampant inflation. Contrary to stock market expectations last week, the incoming chairman of the Federal Reserve Board—Dr. Arthur Burns—intends to keep the screws on the money supply.

The reason is the fiscal runaway: a probable budget deficit for the current fiscal year (ending next June 30) and a much larger one certain for the next fiscal year. Thus, the President almost certainly will be forced to sign a tax bill by no means to his liking merely to preserve the revenue from the 5 percent surtax for the next six months and repealing of the costly investment credit.

This means that the Administration's economic team, which entered office supremely confident that inflation could be stopped, ends its first year demoralized and uncertain. With labor unions certain to push for huge wage increases in 1970, there is now private agreement inside the Administration that Mr. Nixon confronts the two-headed monster of continuing inflation and a probable business slowdown.

The official Administration line is that the inflationary psychology now embedded in the business community is about to turn around. In private, however, economic policy-makers here conceded that the President's credibility as an inflation fighter may well be undermined by his expected approval of the tax bill and those two looming budget deficits.

Although the threats of a tax veto was intended to force Congress to moderate its tax reductions, it did have some hard substance. With the tax cuts extending through 1973, top officials were featful they would use up enough revenue to do major damage to Mr. Nixon's campaign schemes of tax sharing with the states and tax incentives for social purposes. Partly for that reason, but mainly because of the immediate fiscal impact of a 15 percent Social Security boost, a White House speechwriter last week was actually ordered to write a veto message.

But, as we reported earlier, canny Congressional leaders felt Mr. Nixon would be forced to sign the tax bill so long as they delayed the effective date of a rise in the personal exemptions. That delay meant that a veto—which would continue the investment credit and kill the surtax—would hurt more than it would help in the short run.

The upshot was that when Treasury officials attending the Senate-House conference on the tax bill proposed keeping the tax exemption at $600, nobody present — including Republicans—took them seriously. And now, with Congress apparently haveing called his bluff, the President's determination to fight inflation is subject to doubt in financial circles.

Even more damaging to Mr. Nixon's credibility is the bad news in the battle of the budget.

Sunday Morning Notes

In the holiday rush a lady pulled into a private parking area downtown. The owner rushed across the street and said. "You can't park there lady."

The Christmas spirit prevailed, however.

"Can't I just run in there (a nearby store) and leave a package," she pleaded.

The owner relented.

City building inspector J.W. Wilson is not only sporting the green blazer with the city's emblem, but before Christmas he also had a white hankerchief tucked into the pocket.

Embroidered across it was "Merry Christmas."

"That will be out of date after Thursday," someone told the building inspector when he visited the Daily Reflector office Monday.

"Oh no," Wilson replied. "I'll just turn it over."

On the other side was embroidered "Happy New Year."

And I'm told that in a recent Pitt Tech art class a house fly lit in a container of water used for cleaning brushes.

The fly staggered out of the container and fell on a sheet of paper being used by one of the student artists. The student let the fly alone and the little pest staggered about on the paper leaving a trail behind him. His work finally completed, the fly crawled over to the side and died.

The vaporizer instructions read, "Under no circumstances mix vaporizer liquid with water."

George swears, however, that the instructions on the vaporizer liquid read, "Under no circumstances use this liquid without mixing with water."

A local father took his boys hunting last weekend and they stayed at a lodge in Currituck County. The food was great.

"You know," one of the boys commented. "We ought to bring mother down here and let this lady teach her how to cook."

If Mom heard about that, it was switches for the boy this Christmas.

The Judge's Case

(Raleigh Times)

There may be more than meets the eye in newspaper accounts of the arrest of New Orleans Criminal District Judge Ward Haggerty who recently was charged on four counts during a vice raid on a motel room stag party.

There are those who sympathize with the predicament of the now well-known judge who first earned fame by presiding over the Clay L. Shaw trial for conspiracy in the assassination of President Kennedy. And doubtless there are those who savor the taste of equal justice for all — including the judge — as it is meted out in raids by the New Orleans Police Department.

The judge's defense, as it comes through his attorney, is that he was merely a guest at a stag party being given for a bachelor. The nature of the party may be questionable since the judge and others were arrested for conspiring to commit obscenity, soliciting for prostitution, simple battery on police and resisting arrest. Bachelor parties, according to the attorney, are traditional in New Orleans.

The judge's defense may lie in that attitude of the police department. Police Supt. Joseph Giarruso said the incident was "regrettable," and "unfortunate," and that when the report came up that some "officials" might be at the motel, he instructed the officers to make the raid no matter who was attending.

The case points up the dilemma of some officers and some police departments where there may be a habit of enforcing laws some of the time for some people and none of the time for others.

Matters of guilt and punishment in this case will be decided by the court. Judge Haggerty is still on the bench. And after the official verdict is in, the public will then judge him for the company he keeps, the kind of parties he attends.

The incident which would have been lost in the police files except for this personality it involved may raise the question of whether or not the judge should preside in future cases of similar nature. Right now it emphasizes the adage that the judge, like Caesar's wife, must be above reproach.

Strength For Today

FEAR

Fear is sometimes looked upon as a weakness to be avoided or overcome at all costs. As a matter of fact, there are circumstances under which we need to put our fears to work and keep these fears in operation. If we have certain weaknesses that need to be watched, we are foolish indeed if we do not keep a watchful eye on them at all times.

Some people are compulsive gamblers. They start in gambling with a few pennies and end up putting everything they have at stake. There are others who know that every year marks an increase in the amount of liquor they need to consume. Others find petty cheating a constant temptation. Still others can't be brought anywhere near to the temptations of sexual immorality without jeopardizing home life and reputation. People who are aware of the fact that they have certain moral weaknesses had better pay attention to them.

It is when fears become morbid and turn in on themselves that they need to be handled by the person so afflicted or by the psychiatrist, or perhaps by both. There are some people who never stop worrying, and if they are asked what they are worrying about they can't ell you. Some of them worry because they like to worry. Others know that it will bring family and friends fluttering about them trying in some way to be helpful.

Fear is a protective device when we confront real danger. Fear is an affliction when it turns in on itself and becomes morbid.

Inflation vs. Credit Control

By ELMER ROESSNER

The White House has made it plain that it has no more intention of restricting consumer credit than it has of freezing wages and prices. However, Congress insists on giving President Nixon the power to clamp down on instalment purchases and charges.

ELMER ROESSNER

Yet limitations on consumer credit may be the most powerful, fastest-acting medicine for inflation left to be tried. While it won't cure inflation—perhaps nothing but a return to the gold standard will—it will surely serve as a remedy.

At the onset of World War II, the Roosevelt administration used credit restraint, rationing, and wage and price freexes to check inflation. It did not boost the Federal Reserve discount rate. In fact, it never exceeded 1 per cent during the war, and it has been pushed up to 6 per cent now in the effort to curb inflation.

It Worked Then

The situation was somewhat different then. Interest rates were kept low to provide easy financing for new plants to make and ammunition for our military forces.

Yet despite that cheap money policy, inflation was kept partly in check. There was, of course, quite a bit, but it was vastly less than it has been in the last few years.

One fact government planners have swept under the rug is that consumer credit is directly inflationary. It directly increases the effective money supply.

With the last splurge of spending this holiday month, the total outxtanding consumer credit will be close to $133 billion.

That is $133 billion added to the huge amount of personal income, now pouring in at a rate of $770 billion a year, and the lush profits that coroprations have been making, despite the surtax and high interest rate.

Pressure On Demand

Disposable consumer income was running at a rate of $639 billion a year in the third quarter. Some of that had to be disposed of by instalment payments and other debts. But the total spending power of consumers was increased by the billions consumers had in credit buying power.

Thus the total potential demand was increased by perhaps $100 billion, tending to bid up the price of goods. That's inflationary.

In addition to the consumer credit total reported by the government, there is much that escaped official records: the $10,000 Uncle Joe lends Nephew John to start him in business, that tab Dennis Murray runs up at the bar, the $5 I borrow from the office boy.

If the administration uses its new power and limits credit by requiring, say a 50 percent down payment on most articles and a pay-up of the balance in 18 months, it would not only stop further price rises of most consumer goods but would actually lower some, a thing that's impossible today.

Observations From Editorial Columns

SO THE SPECIES MAY LIVE

A bill to protect endangered wildlife has been passed by the Senate and returned to the House for agreement on minor changes, and so this Congress is close to a final decision that man has no right to extinguish other species.

In effect, the measure is in two parts. One prevents the importation of endangered species, and prohibits interstate shipment of those protected by any federal, state or foreign law. This means the alligator, too often poached for purses and shoes, and this means the cheetah and snow leopard, killed for coats. In addition, the Secretary of the Interior has been authorized to spend a million dollars a year for five years to buy conservation lands to help wildlife facing extinction. That means the whooping crane, the grizzly bear and so on.

This legislation is little enough consideration for living things that have managed to share this world with man, but just barely. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch

'MOD' MAN AND HIS JOB

The old order—in personal appearance—changeth. But not perhaps as fast as it should. In their day, Generals Grant and Custer, with their beards or long hair, could get a job. But in these "mod" times, overabundance of hirsuteness is apparently a deterrent to getting hired.

At least, so discovers the American Society for Personnel Administration and the Bureau of National Affairs in a survey of 150 companies. Nearly 80 percent of the concerns regarded a male applicant's beard as a reason not to hire him or "at least a negative factor in the hiring decision." And about three-fifths of the firms thought a miniskirt to be a negative factor with a woman applicant.

Strangely enough, appearance standards are a bit relaxed when the person already has the job. Some 45 percent of the companies then would okay a miniskirt. Still, about 90 percent of the firms still objected to long hair and "mod" attire on males. But sideburns can be long, and "Afro" hair styles are okay for black applicants.

Is this stuffed shirtism? We take no position on such delicate matters, except to note that, ever since the days when stiff "Arrow collars" were recommended to young men seeking jobs, neatness and cleanliness in personal appearance has been a plus factor with hiring officials. —Christian Science Monitor

THE UNSAFE MAXI

Feminine fashions being as fleeting as the dollars it takes to keep up with them, it was inevitable that the designers would tire of the miniskirt after having reduced it to a degree that defied further minimization.

Thus was ushered in the adjunctive era of the maxi, a coat of generous length that takes the country back a couple of generations. The girls, tired of cold legs and ever eager for something different, took to them right away. Men, tired of looking at knobby knees, welcomed them, too - or so they say.

Now the Greater New York Safety Council is playing the role of wet blanket. The maxis, says the council, are a safety hazard.

The girls can easily trip over the hem if they don't get it caught in excapators, elevators or doors. The problem, says the council, is that the girls "don't know how to lift the long skirt or coat for graceful stepping and for safety."

The solution, obviously, is for the girls to recover a skill their grandmothers took for granted and which, properly executed, insured that grandfather's interest never flagged. —Shreveport (La.) Journal

ANTI-POLICE DOG DOG?

A guard accompanied by a trained police dog cornered a prowler in Denver one night last week. Just as the guard was preparing to move in and make an arrest, another dog suddenly appeared and began fighting with the police dog. With the guard's attention diverted, the prowler escaped.

It was not make clear where the otherdog camefrom, even if the guard knew. Possibly the guard brought him along for his own protection. In view of the canny ways of the modern criminal, it wouldn't be too surprising if it turned out that some burglars are taking their own trained dogs along as stake outs against police dogs. —Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean

BUCKLE UP AND SURVIVE

The news services this week distributed one of those seasonally "cute" pictures showing a little girl fitted with wings and halo to play the part of an angel in a Christmas pageant. She had a black eye, a broken tooth and a cast on her broken right arm. The caption explained she had been in a car accident a week earlier.

The picture was intended to be funny, and it was, if you go for that kind of humor. We couldn't help thinking that if some adult in the car had been using his head, the little girl would have been buckled into her seat with a seat belt and probably wouldn't have been hurt.

About 5,000 people every year are transported abruptly out of this earthly realm who might have been around to enjoy Christmas and the holidays if they had taken this simple precaution, according to figures of the National Safety Council. It's worth remembering, unless you'd rather be an angel. —Asheville (N. C.) Citizen-Times

If Christmas Can Come To Ebenezer Scrooge

By MORRIE RYSKIND

The world is not at peace—but we have just completed the hallowed Christmas—Chanuka season and the skies are still aglow with the promise that shines from both the Star of Bethlehem and the Star of David.

It is also, fittingly, the time for my annual two weeks' furlough from battling the Liberal Establishment. What better season to leave the trenches for a fortnight of peace and goodwill, to be spent with beloved kinsfolk and friends of auld lang syne?

So I hereby declare, unilaterally, a Tet Truce which I trust the Establishment will not violate by crossing the demilitarized zone that separates honest journalism from "interpretive reporting."

I realize that in so doing I take a calculated risk. For the foe has been intransigent as ever at the conference table, asserting he has never crossed the line that separates news from editorials. This despite abundant evidence — bolstered by his own admission — that he has often massacred the truth in his effort to create a liberal hegemony over the communication media.

But of late he has lost considerable face in the court of public opinion, and the realization may yet bring him to the conference table in a less arrogant mood. Further, I hope — perhaps fatuously — that the Yuletide spirit may mellow him. If Christmas can come to Ebenezer Scrooge, can Walter Cronkite be far behind?

Indeed, there are signs that a breakthrough is near. The CBS report by Charles Collingwood praised the Vietnam Air Force we had trained, indicated our pacification program was working well and that Saigon's morale was high, and even opined that the Viet Cong would lose a free election by 4 to 1. And Mrs. Nixon's most recent message to the public was treated most fairly by TV commentators.

So far, so good. Let me, however, make it clear that, should the Establishment revert to its old tricks during my absence, I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with it.

Indeed, I am prepared to bomb the lines of communication which until recently fed SDS and Pravda with misleading propaganda for use against us. I may even, if necessary, sic Spiro Agnew on the offenders again.

As everyone knows, every time the Veep opens his mouth he puts his foot into the Establishment's backside; and the ensuant yelping is proof that it hurts.

But enough of such militant talk. Let me rather dwell on some topics more appropriate to this period of peace and good-will.

I learn from some Catholic readers that I erred in bemoaning what proved an erroneous report, that my old friend, St. Christopher, had been stripped of his halo. It seems that, for some technical reason, his name was dropped from a papal roster, but his sainthood remains unquestioned. I am now doubly glad that I kept the Christopher medal a friend gave me to use while traveling. All in all, I find this news as welcome as the vindication — long overdue — of Otto Otepka.

I'm especially grateful that the holidays will bring a visit from my son and my cherished daughter-in-law. And with them come not only their daughter, Mary Rebecca, now 2½ years old, but her new brother, Samuel, aged just 2½ months. And that's one of the many reasons I hope no Establishment flack interrupts the festivities. Please, boys, this is Beverly Hills, not Chicago.

Let me add my thanks to the many readers who send me their Christmas greetings as well as encouraging notes throughout the year. And bless them for understanding that this one-man operation can not answer them individually.

And I'd even add my appreciation to those readers who keep flailing away at me. After all, better read than dead.

The compliments of the season to one and all.

Superpowers May Get Along A Little Better In 70's, But Suspicious

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union may get along a little better in the 1970s but the two superpowers will continue to confront each other uneasily and at times, perhaps, dangerously.

That outlook comes from a series of interviews with diplomats and others here who have long experience in appraising the course of Washington - Moscow relations.

The 1960s saw a diminishing of the abusive polemics which the two countries were wont to hurl back and forth in earlier years. But there were serious conflicts. The most dangerous was the crisis in October, 1962, over Soviet missiles in Cuba. There also was a new Soviet squeeze on Berlin and, of course, the continuing conflict over the war in Vietnam.

In the 1970s, two factors appear to have important implications for Soviet-American relations and for the rest of the world. They are: The course of the spiraling arms race and the emergence of Communist China as a major nuclear-missile nation.

Influential Factors

As the decade of the 1960s ends, two sets of international negotiations involving the Russians may influence these factors in unforeseeable and unpredictable ways. These are the Soviet-American preliminary disarmament talks which opened in Helsinki, Finland, on Nov. 17 and the Sino-Soviet border talks which opened in Peking Oct. 20.

The United States and the Soviet Union, since the end of World War II, have poured billions of dollars into developing sophisticated arsenals of rocket-nuclear weapons. According to a survey by the independent and authoritative Institute of Strategic Studies in London, the two sides have reached a rough "parity" in strategic weaponry. Both have upwards of 1,050 intercontinental ballistic missiles targeted at each other. Both sides keenly realize they now face possible annihilation through miscalculation or mistake.

One of their greatest challenges in the 1970s, to recall the words of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, is to keep "the nuclear beast in its cage."

Arms Race Talks

To this end, Gerard C. Smith, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, met with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semenov in Helsinki to explore the scope of negotiations to curb the arms race. How much can be accomplished, how much national interests and security considerations may interfere with arms control agreements, are questions no diplomats or scholars can yet resolve.

Meanwhile in Peking the veteran Soviet troubleshooter Vasily v. Kuznetsov, First Deputy Foreign Minister, opened talks with Chinese Vice Minister Chi'iao Kuan-hua. Early indications were that these talks began slowly and with some difficulty.

Imponderables remain. Will the two communist giants resolve the disputes along their 4,000-mile border which became dramatic and bloody in 1969? Will Moscow and Peking settle their broader territorial issues? Will they normalize their state-to-state relations? Will their rivalry in the Communist world diminish, particularly after the death of Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung? Can communism ever again by the monolith which confronted the United States and the Western world in the 1940s? What effect would an improvement of U.S. relations with Peking have on U.S. relations with Moscow?

Rift Will Remain

An educated guess would be that Sino-Soviet relations may well improve with time, but that deep national interests as much as ideological differences will maintain a rift between Moscow and Peking.

In any event, it seems certain that serious ideological differences will divide Moscow and Washington. In the Middle East, for example, the United States is firmly devoted to the survival of Israel. The Soviet Union is anxious to spread its influence with the Arab nations which represent an important geographical bloc on its southern flank. In Europe, the status of Berlin has not been resolved to the satisfaction of either the United States or the Soviet Union. Germany remains divided. The Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia has left an unpleasant aftermath. Although the European situation recently has been calm, the protagonists have been unable to agree on the time, place or participation in a conference on European security. Nor have NATO and its Communist equivalent, the Warsaw Pact, been able to agree on any reduction of forces.

Closer Cooperation

Since the success of the U.S. Apollo moon landings, there have been indications that the Soviet Union may be interested in a far closer cooperation with the United States in space exploration than ever before. U.S. astronaut Frank Borman has toured Russia; Soviet cosmonauts Konstantin P. Feokistov and Maj. Gen. Georgi T. Beregovoi made a tour of America. The President of the Soviet Academy of Sciences Mystylsav Keldysh, an important Soviet science administrator, has hinted at mixed SovietAmerican space crews. Aerospace administrators here believe space cooperation may get a new boost in the next few years.

Probably, in the 1970s, the United States and the Soviet Union will get to know each other better, to communicate better, to understand each other's motives better and thus reduce the danger of miscalculation.

THE SHABBY CHARADE!

Evans-Novak . . .

The fiscal 1970 budget, in deficit to the tune of $5 billion under the old-style bookkeeping system, now will probably turn from black to red under the new system with the passage of the 15 percent Social Security boost.

The 1971 budget situation is hopesless despite Mr. Nixon's personal efforts to meat-axe spending requests. Even if the White House manages to slice another $4 billion from the defense budget, the government will go heavily into deficit under both old and new systems with the expiration of the surtax nest June 30. Consequently, the President will soon have the unpleasant task of announcing a deficit in his new budget message at a time of continuing inflation.

Nobody is more aware of these harsh realities than Arthur Burns. Although no doctrinaire tight money man, he has confidentially advised the Administration that a monetary easing would be extremely difficult unless the fiscal runaway is halted. His recent estimonyto the Senate Banking Committee was badly misread by the stock market. It was not a pledge of looser money.

Thus, the Administration is now reluctantly waiting for the other shoe to drop when Wall Street realizes that a fiscal deficti looms and money will stay tight.

The only economic optimism in Washington today is the realization that the economy has been so unpredictable nobody can be certain what will happen next. But that cannot conceal the thick layer of underlying pessimism. The 1970 prescription is nothing less than rising prices, wages, and probably interest rates; a business slowdown; and unemployment severe enough to be called a recession.

Panthers Viewed

Discussing police raids on Black Panther Party headquarters, Simmons said: "I think the the government has a responsibility to really investigate and make the facts public. If it doesn't, there isn't any question that this is just going to increase the tension.

"There isn't any question that in the minds of blacks, in terms of their relationship with the police in the past, that a large number of them believe that this was white retaliation against a militant sector of the black community," he said.

Simmons said some whites have overreacted to the Panthers' flamboyant and violent rhetoric.

"What is so tragic is that there is more concern with an individual's rhetoric than there is with the basic problems (of poverty and discrimination), he said. "Remove the cause of the problem and the inflammatory rhetoric is unimportant."

Simmons also said mid-city slums "are not going to be rebuilt unless the people who live in the central cities have a part in the rebuilding.

"Minority group individuals have known for a long time that they don't get a fair share of the economic fruits of this society," he said. "But most of the time, they can't see the job opportunities and the economic opportunities. When they see a block being torn down, they can see the guys who are tearing it down. They can see the guys who are rebuilding. It is very visible.

"Many individuals in these central cities see what is happening on their turf," he said. "They are not getting any money. As a matter of sheer survival they are going to see that they get a piece of the action for rebuilding that turf.

"Anybody who says that all we need is housing and forget about the jobs, is doomed to failure," he added.

Some Are Playing Politics With Public's Economic Welfare

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

There's nothing new in the playing of politics with the nation's economic welfare. But results are not always predictable.

The late President Hoover got a taste of it during the last two years of his Administration. The House was in Democratic hands, manipulated by Speaker John Nance Garner, later to become Vice President.

The Garner approach to the problems of these early depression years, 1930-32, was to do nothing, on the theory that things would get worse and the Democrats would sweep to a White House victory in 1932. Hoover's programs were ignored and Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected.

The Republicans tried the game after the 1946 elections cast them in the dominant role in Congress. They looked upon President Harry Truman as merely the White House caretaker until another Presidential election was held. So, Truman's programs were ignored.

This was a time of post-World War II shortages and sharply rising prices. Politically, Truman looked like a sitting duck.

But the Republican strategy of just letting things go until their party could take over backfired. Truman blamed Congress for all the ills of the nation. He not only won the Presidential race, but dumped House and Senate Republicans all across the land in the process.

What's taking place in Washington today is no exact parallel with the past, of course. But there are enough similarities, with the stakes for the average man tremendously high, to conclude that a historic conflict between the White House and Congress is in the making.

Congress is saying that the nation should prolong the spending - deficit binge and hope that, some way, the hangover will be bearable.

Nixon is saying that the national interest at this time requires a balanced budget and that this can be achieved only by retaining painfully high tax rates and foregoing all but the most necessary increases in government spending.

This is the path which Nixon seems convinced is the only way to bring price inflation under control and avoid a disastrous depression at some future time. But it has some obvious prolitical drawbacks, especially to members of Congress who come up for reelection next year.

Senator Albert Gore, Democrat from Tennessee, is typical. Gore was in the forefront of the Senate fight to cut taxes on the "little people," via the higher personal exemption route. And he was also loud in the clamor for sharp social security boost, without taxes to finance it, and other benefits which now are lumped under welfare.

What does Gore's tax relief amount to? It amounts to about $20, at most, of benefit for each $100 of exemption increase in the lowest income levels. And that's not much help to anyone. But the inflation which such Gore-type moves help feed, including an even more open handed spending in the whole welfare, goes far beyond this peanut size benefit.

This year, inflation has added about 6 percent to the cost of living—the cost of all types of goods and services. And for most families, this increase applies to just about every dollar earned, not just to a few hundred dollars.

Thus, the family which earns, say, $5000, would be relieved of as much as $60 or $80 of taxes by Gore, but with continuing inflation would pay an extra $300 or more in the market place.

The Gores of politics and they include some Republicans, never stop to explain the mathematics of what they scream for. What they want is something on the record which they can point to and say "look how I have helped the little people." The resulting inflation, they feel, can be blamed on the "bungling" of things by others.

The Democratic tactics have put Nixon on a spot. The President, himself, agrees that the burden of taxes, federal, state and local, is unreasonable. He has also accepted the idea that welfare programs need both reform and expansion. His position is that now, when inflation is still spiraling, is not the time for tax cuts and big spending increases.

The Nixon program of austerity is hard to sell, especially when it is contrary to the positions taken by such big voting blocs as the professional liberals, the union and black spokesmen and large segments of business, such as construction.

But there is one thing in Nixon's favor. The average voter has become much more sophisticated when it comes to relating acts of government to results.

This is a fact which bothers the Gores. It was demonstrated in the Senate this week. At first, the chamber backed a ban on the so-called Philidelphia plan for requiring more racial balance on construction projects financed by federal funds. Liberals suddenly found themselves in an awkward position of favoring unions bosses at the expense of blacks. They backed down.

Nixon has demonstrated once, on Vietnam, that he can take his case to the public and win. The "silent majority" backed him on his program to disengage U.S. fighting men.

Nixon may take his economic "cause" to these same people. He has never tried to exploit the Democratic miscalculations of the Johnson Administration which set the stage of inflation.

Congressional Democrats must be concerned over the prospect that the President will make some fireside chats on just why the prospect is that prices will go on up and up.

Experiences Delight Exchange Student

EXCHANGE STUDENT . . . at Rose High, Rebeca Najman of Guatamala, models a pancho she brought from home. The abstract bird in the design is a quetzal, the national bird of Guatamala. This bird, found mostly in the mountains, is rare, Rebeca said, and it is against the law to kill or cage one.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Miss Rebeca Najman of Guatamala City, Guatamala, said she is delighted with all her new experiences as an exchange student at Rose High School here.

"I love this experience," she said. "I like the people I've met, the family I live with, my subjects, the climate, the holiday celebrations—everything."

"My primary reason for coming here was to learn English," Rebeca said. "I have studied your language for four years, as all Guatamalan students are required to do, but I really read it and understand it better than I am able to express myself. I think I have improved my speaking ability somewhat already, though.

The 16-year-old Rebeca is living with Dr. and Mrs. Earl Trevathan and their family. Sue Trevathan, also 16, is Rebeca's closest friend here, of course. According to the rules of International Fellowship, Inc., the exchange program sponsoring Rebeca's visit here, Sue will not be allowed to live with Rebeca's family and may not even go to Rebeca's home country, although, since she is studying Spanish, she propably will go to some Latin American country.

Rebeca said she finds the cold weather here exhilarating, although it is quite different from the year-round springlike climate of her native land. "Just now—the end of December—is the only time it is even a little cold there," she said. "The seasons there are the rainy time and the dry time."

In addition to English, which she calls her most difficult subject, she is taking physical education and a full load of business subjects—typing, record-keeping, clerical practice, and basic business. Her ambition is to be a bilingual secretary, probably as an employee of some commercial firm.

Her father is a manufacturer of men's and women's apparel. He has a factory and two stores, Rebeca said.

Mr. and Mrs. Najman immigrated to Guatamala from Poland near the beginning of World War II to escape persecution because of their Jewish faith Although her parents speak Yiddish, Rebeca said that she and her brothers and sister do not. "I understand some, but I can't speak it," she said.

Her brothers are Bill, 23 and Moises, 20. Her 13-year-old sister is named Frida. The family home is in Guatamala City, the capital of Guatamala. They live "about 15 minutes from downtown" in a residential section near the Catholic University there. She said her "hometown" is a beautiful place, but that it is extremely busy. "It seems almost silent here in comparison," she said.

At home, Rebeca goes to a girls' school which is smaller than Rose High and wears a school uniform each day. She was enthused about being able to wear whatever she wishes here.

Asked where she got her beautiful winter wardrobe for her stay here, she said that her mother picked most of it out on a vacation trip she and her father took to New Orleans and Miami in September.

Vacation Time at Home

Rebeca's schoolmates at home are vacationing while she is here. School vacation time there runs from the middle of October to the middle of January. Although there are only 11 years of public school there, she plans to go an extra year for secretarial training.

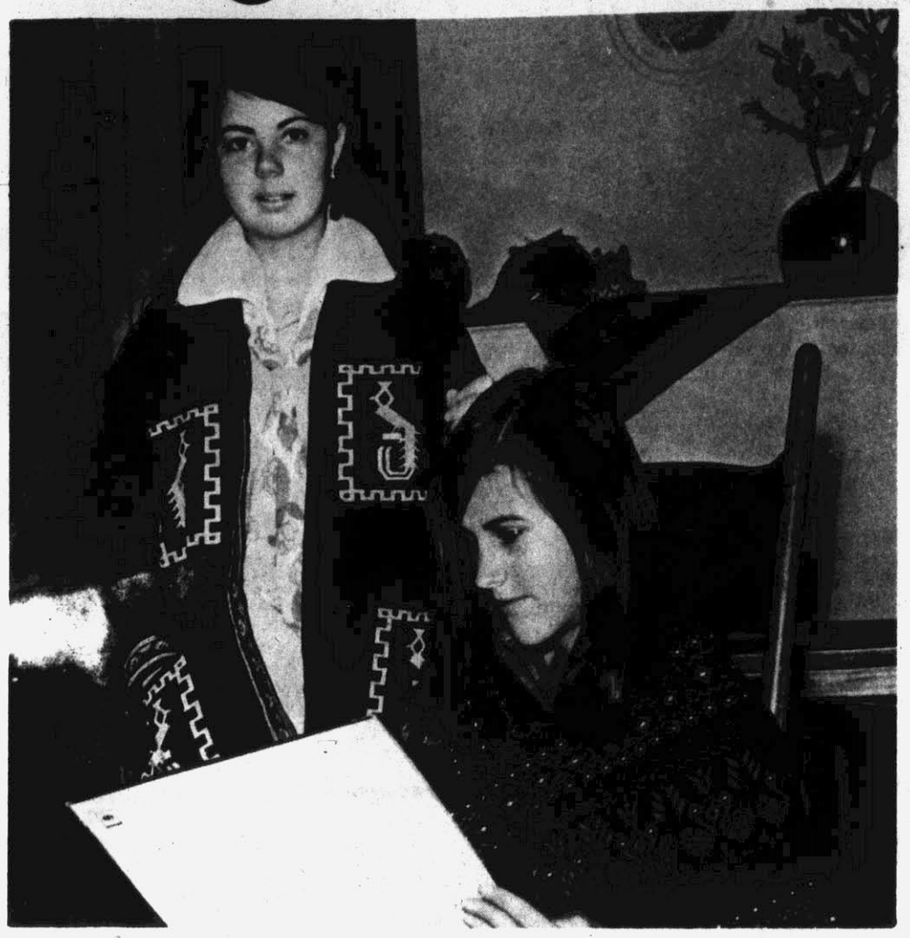
In Guatamala no one is licensed to drive until age 18, Rebeca said, but she still thinks driving here is safer. She commented on the number of new cars she has seen here. There, one sees more old American cars, although there are many smaller European ones, also, she said.

"We have a good leader, President Mario Mendez," she said. "He has been in office since 1963 and has carried out the principles of the democratic republic which exists there," Rebeca opined. Guatamala in recent years has seen neither the constant turnover of leaders that some Latin American countries have experienced nor the extended tenure of one leader who often is in fact, if not in name, a dictator.

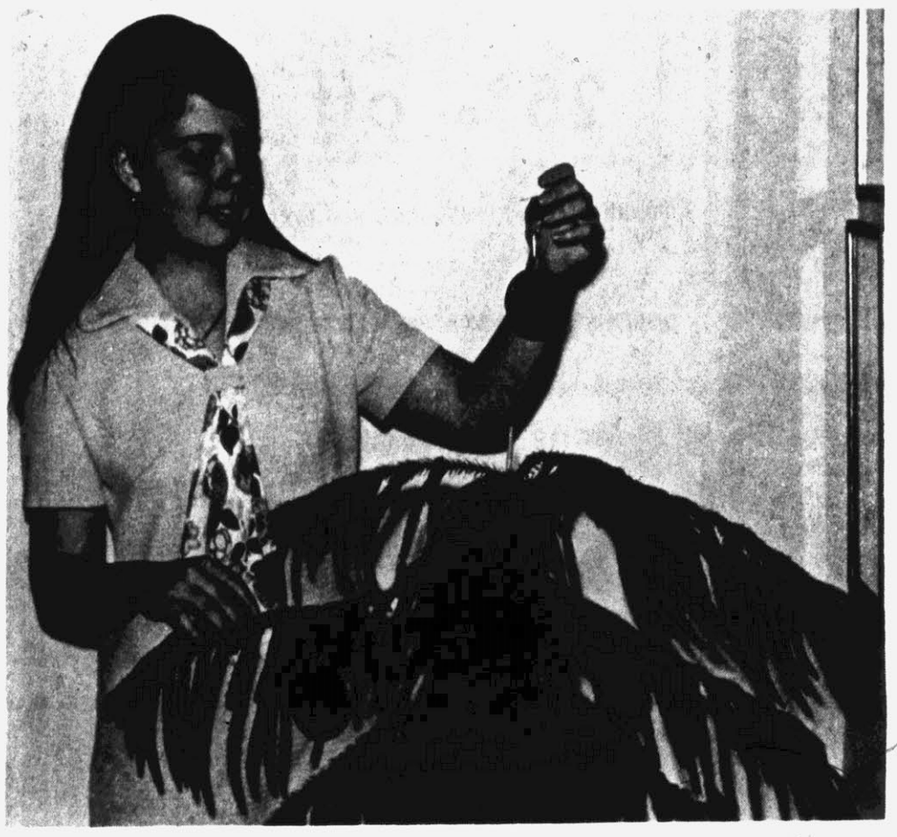
Part of every exchange student's itinerary here is a tour of New York and Washington, D.C. Rebeca will join other Guatamalan students for this trip later during her stay here.

One weekend late in November, the Trevathans took her to visit her aunt and uncle in Durham. (According to International Fellowship rules, she must never travel without program-appointed chaperone or a member of the Trevathan family.) During Christmas vacation she will spend some time with this aunt and uncle and some cousins in Durham and Greensboro.

She said she has enjoyed attending the Presbyterian Church with the Trevathans and observing their religious holidays with them. Interviewed before Christmas, she said she was looking forward to the day itself since she had enjoyed the preparations so much. She was very appreciative of the Thanksgiving observance, also.



SUE TREVATHAN . . . poses with Rebeca, her houseguest. The jacket and pancho Rebeca and Sue are wearing were brought as gifts to the Trevathan family by Rebeca.



CHRISTMAS DECORATING . . . was something new to Rebeca, as was everything about the Yule season, since she comes from a Jewish home.

With The Women

A Talent For Living, She's Surrounded By Thousands Of Plates

By DONALD MADDEN

VAN NUYS, Calif. (WNS)—"When I moved out here sixteen years ago, I wanted to furnish this house with Early American, and people would ask, 'What's that?'" says Rose Marie, late of The Dick Van Dyke Show and currently playing Myrna Gibbons on The Doris Day Show (CBS-TV).

"But I'd seen Early American furniture back East, that's what I wanted, and that's what I got. What I counldn't find, I had made to order.

"And then, friends began to realize what a nut I was about it, they started to find and give me things, too."

Now, every last inch of Rose Marie's home is exactly what she set out to create 16 years ago. So much that she could never even consider moving.

Daughter

"Although," she says, "if my daughter keeps winning horse-show prizes at her current rate, the whole place will turn into a trophy house." Georgiana, 22, is the daughter of Rose Marie and her late husband, Bobby Guy, who was first trumpeter for the NBC orchestra.

"I don't do so bad in the collecting department myself. I'm just crazy about plates! I've got them from all over Denmark, Italy, France, Bavaria. Two sets of ironstone dishes—one English, and one American.

"And I have special plates for just about every occasion you can think of. We have special service for Thanksgiving, Christmas, bridge, pizza, Valentine's Day, Happy Birthday, and you name it!

CABBAGE PLATES

"I've got all kinds of serving dishes, too, that stimulate what is served in them, like cauliflower, fish, poultry, cabbage, and all the rest.

"And for a gal who doesn't touch a drop, I've got the biggest barroom in town. Actually, it's the relaxed kind of room that all houses have, where everyone seems to congregate all the time.

"Everyone, that is, except Sylvester. He's our cat, whom you can never find because he's always hiding. The only way we can get him out of hidding is by playing Chopsticks on the piano.

"But when you start to think about it, what kind of a cat would you expect to find a house that has eight television sets, with a mistress who is currently 'hung up' on soft pretzels."

Women Shared 1969 Spotlight

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer

In the world of women, 1969 can be described as the "year of the fall"—the fall of several previously male-only bastions and the fall of coat lengths.

The ankle-length maxicoats didn't slow women's strides as they marched en masse for moratoriums and against marriage bureaus. Garbed in pantssuits, which gained acceptance in a limited sense even in the business world, and decorated with chain belts, vests, and breastplates, women invaded such male sanctuaries as Yale and Princeton, the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list, and the continent of Antarctica. The turf of the racetrack fell, as did the presidency of the National Council of Churches. Women in government received more than cursory recognition, both abroad and at home. And, of course, there were outstanding contributions by women in the literary, art, and theatrical world.

Women's liberation movements grew in numbers and in militancy. Housewives, professionals, students, the single, married and divorced joined forces to end discrimination in hiring, promotion and salaries, repeal the abortion laws, established more child-care centers and place women in policy-making positions. Newly organized groups set more radical goals: the Feminists picketed marriage license bureaus to point out their rejection of marriage as a social organization whose sole function is to keep women enslaved; the Boston Liberation movement sponsored classes in Korean karate. Groups on both coasts banded together to sponsor "Ban the Bra" days, while their sisters attempted to gain entrance to male-only saloons. To counter these militant groups, the Pussycat League was formed. Pussycats, too, favor women's rights but they believe success can best be gained by working with men rather than against them—or, as their motto says, "The lamb chop is mightier than the karate chop."

Meanwhile, circumstances forced other women to fulfill the more traditional feminine role of waiting. The astronauts' wives waited and watched their men on the moon and wives of men in Vietnam anxiously awaited their return.

Still other women made news because they were the wives of men in prominent positions or the widows of well known figures. And, as women have done since time immemorial, still other women made news when they married, gave birth—in or out of wedlock—or died.

Here are the specifics:

CRIME

The first woman to break a previously male-only stronghold didn't even wait until the new year to achieve her mark. The last week of December, 1968, the FBI placed Ruth Eisemann-Schier on their list of Ten Most Wanted, for her role in the kidnapping of Miami heiress Barbara Jane Mackle. Arrested several months later in Norman, Okla., Miss Eisemann-Schier ultimately pleaded guilty and was sentenced to seven years in prison.

RACING

Several young women competed to prove themselves in racing. Penny Ann Early, 25, a Chicago divorcee, failed in her attempt to be the first woman jockey to ride at a major U.S. track, but her cause was taken up by Barbara Jo Rubin, 19. Miss Rubin took her petition for a jockey's license to court, was granted the right to apply for a license and subsequently won over the stewards at Florida's Tropical Park in mid-January, 1969. Frustrated, however, by an illegal boycott by the male jockeys, Barbara Jo went off to ride in the Bahamas, leaving the female breaking of the U.S. turf to Diane Crump, who on Feb. 7 at Hialeah became the first woman to race at any recognized track in the country. Since then more than a score of women have donned the racing silks.

ANTARCTIC EXPLORATION

Antarctica, the largest male sanctuary remaining on this planet, also succumbed to the softer sex. After six years of resistance, the National Science Foundation finally agreed to let six women work out of American bases in the Antarctic during the season of exploration now under way. Eileen R. McSaveney, Terry Lee Tickhill, Kay Lindsay and Dr. Lois M. Jones, a team of scientists from the Institute of Polar Studies at Ohio State University, Mrs. Muller-Schwartze, wife and assistant to the Utah State geologist and Jean Pearson, president of the National Association of Science Writers, were the pioneers.

RELIGION

FOREIGN

In the political arena, especially in foreign governments, women made their presence known. Pledging to carry on the programs of the late Levi Eshkol, 71-year-old Golda Meir was sworn in as Israel's fourth premier in March. Faced with continued Arab-Israeli conflict, the one-time Milwaukee schoolteacher and her ruling Labor party were returned to power in the October general elections.

Indira Gandhi—until Mrs. Meir the only woman prime minister in the world—continued to try to solve her country's many problems, at the same time battling efforts to oust her from power. At year's end, although she had lost her absolute majority in Parliament, there appeared no doubt she would remain in control.

In Northern Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, a miniskirted young woman who has to stand on tiptoe to reach 5 feet, achieved a reputation as a modern-day Joan of Arc. The youngest woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons—she was elected independent Unity MP for Mid-Ulster a few days before her 22nd birthday—Miss Devlin wasted no time in reaffirming her position as leader of Northern Ireland's turbulent civil rights movement. Her maiden speech in which she spoke out against "the 50 years of misery inflicted on my people," the poor Catholics of Northern Ireland, was clearly an indication of the fireworks to follow. During the religious riots that engulfed her country last summer, Miss Devlin was constantly on the scene urging her people on. To raise money for her cause, she toured the United States and Canada. At year's end, she pleaded innocent to 13 charges stemming from the August riots.

On a more peaceful stage—at least ostensibly—a woman also ruled. Angie Brooks, outspoken, 41-year-old assistant secretary of state of Liberia, was elected president of the United Nations General Assembly.

AT HOME

On the domestic front, Shirley Chisholm, 45, took her seat when the January Congress convened. Mrs. Chisholm, a 99-pound Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y., is the first Negro woman ever to be elected to Congress.

Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star and now 41-year-old socialite wife of a California industrialist, was appointed by President Nixon a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

Other presidential appointments on the distaff side included: Virginia Knauer, special consultant on consumer affairs; Nancy Hanks, 41, new chairman of the National Council on the Arts; Helen Bentley, outspoken maritime editor of the Baltimore Sun, President Nixon's choice as chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission; Constance Cornell Stuart, 31, director of Mrs. Nixon's staff.

In New York Bess Myerson, Miss America of 1945 who still boasts her Miss America measurements of 35-25-35, took a $25,000-a-year job as the city commissioner of consumer affairs, a new post to which she was appointed by Mayor John Lindsay.

FIRST FAMILY

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon settled down in her new role as First Lady. She accompanied her husband on his world tour, made a tour of the President's pet projects on her own and entertained at assorted teas and receptions. Daughters Julie, now Mrs. David Eisenhower, and Patricia (Tricia) also made their share of goodwill appearances, the most noteworthy being Tricia's attendance at the investiture of Prince Charles in Wales.

BOOKS, ARTS, THEATER, MUSIC

In the world of books, arts and the theater, last year's women newsmakers made it even bigger. Jacqueline Susann, 42, of "Valley of the Dolls" fame, sold her new best-seller, "The Love Machine," to Hollywood for $1.5 million, said to be the highest price ever paid for movie rights to a book. A new addition to a growing list of "I worked with President Kennedy" authors was Mary Barelli Gallagher. Mrs. Gallagher, who worked in President Kennedy's office when he was a senator and later for Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, Mrs. Kennedy's mother, created quite a stir by disclosing Jackie's budget problems in "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy."

Oscars for best actress were shared by Katharine Hepburn, 59, for "The Lion in Winter" and Barbra Streisand, 26, for "Funny Girl."

Beverly Sills, who little more than two years ago was unknown outside the New York City Opera Company, made her debut at Milan's La Scala, the acme of the opera world.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Ceremony Saturday

Miss Helen Rae Elks became the bride of Clyde Leroy Green on Saturday at four o'clock in the afternoon in the Memorial Baptist Church.

The Rev. Lawrence A. Green, father of the bridegroom, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Percy B. Upchurch.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lee Elks of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Green of Elizabeth City.

The wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bill Taylor, organist, and Mrs. J. D. Wilson Jr. as vocalist.

The background of the church was decorated with traditional green and white decorations. A fifteen semi-circle candelabra centered the church flanked with spiral candelabra and tall woodwardia ferns. Bouquets of white mums were designed in nine branched candelabra.

At the altar was a prie-dieu where the bride and bridegroom took their vows, exchanged rings and knelt for the wedding prayer and benediction. Pews were marked with bridal satin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight peau, featuring a scalloped lace yoke and train re-embroidered with pearls and sequins.

Her veil of illusion was attached to petals re-embroidered with pearls and sequins. The bride carried a cascade feature of white carnations and white orchids with holly tied with bridal satin.

MRS. CLYDE LEROY GREEN

The maid of honor, Miss Martha Elks, sister of the bride, wore a floor length gown of green velvet and crepe, fashioned with an empire waist and back panel edged in lace. The headpiece was of matching green veil and petals. She carried a white muff with bouquets of red carnations and sprays of holly tied with narrow red velvet.

Bridesmaids were Miss Terry Nunes of Elizabeth City, cousin of the bridegroom, Miss Zelle Gurganus of Greenville, and Mrs. Edgar Hardy of Raleigh. They wore gowns identical to the honor attendant.

Larry Green of Blackstone, Va., served his brother as best man. Ushers were Tommy Ezzell of Rocky Mount, Gilmer Bowman of Walnut Cove, Terry Peed, Melvin Aycock, Denford Eubank, and Larry Meadows, all of Pollocksville.

The bride's mother wore an A-line dress of aqua bonded crepe with sequin trim and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress and coat of Samaron rose serge and matching accessories. Both mothers wore white cattelya orchids.

Following the reception, held in the church parlor, the couple left for a trip to the mountains. Following their return, they will reside in Greenville.

For traveling, the bride chose a white butte knitt dress and coat trimmed in grey fur with matching fur hat and black accessories. She wore an orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of ECU and is now teaching in the Greenville school system. The bridegroom is a senior at ECU.

Following the rehearsal Friday night, the Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Green entertained the bridal party and out-of-town guests with a dinner at the Candlewick Inn.

Miss Helen Elks entertained her bridesmaids at a luncheon held at the Silo Restaurant on Friday. The mothers of the bride and bridegroom were special guests. The bride-elect remembered her attendants with gifts.

Sing Out In Praise Of Sausage

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

Historians call it one of the oldest forms of processed food, and poets have sung its praises in link and loaf. Both would doubtless agree that sausage is just about the most popular and versatile item on any menu.

In the United States alone, more than two billion pounds of sausage are consumed annually at hot dog stands, barbecues, beer festivals and gourmet restaurants.

In the 9th century B.C., Homer in his Odyssey described the impatience of Odysseus "as when a man near a great glowing fire turns to and fro a sausage ... anxious to have it quickly roast."

From the days of the Caesars, Romans gorged themselves on spicy sausage made from fresh pork, white pinenuts and spices. it became a favorite dish at the Lupercalian and Florian festivals.

Sausage-making became a thriving business in the Middle Ages, and many types popular today derive their names from the cities in which they were conceived. Thus we have Frankfurters from Frankfurt, Bolognia from the Italian city of the same name and many others. Britain contributed Black Pudding made from hog's blood, dried oatmeal and suet. France, not to be outdone, concocted a White Pudding from chicken flesh, egg yolks, bread crumbs and spices.

Today Italy is generally considered to be the top producer of dried and smoked sausage, but France reigns supreme in the field of fresh sausage. French sausage has a pork base, but such seasonings as onions, sweet peppers, chestnuts, spinach, sage and parsley make it a delectable gourmet item.

Our forefathers brought the lore of sausage-making to America and soon developed a tradition of their own. Philadelphia scrapple, devised a couple of centuries ago by settlers in Chester, Pa., became a national favorite.

But country sausage is probably the best known both in link and loose meat. Some country butchers, ours for one, still make up country sausage meat in bulk from their own secret recipe. Anyone who has ever sampled these pungent little patties with pancakes and maple syrup or scrambled eggs will recall their distinctive flavor.

As the years passed, country sausage graduated from a breakfast food to a star role at many dinners. Dishes like Gayettes aux Epinards, pork and Swiss chard dumplings seasoned with brandy and spices, became gourmet attractions.

Sausages cooked in beer or ale have become popular in America, and we have developed a fondness for the following version enlivened with curry powder.

CURRIED SAUSAGE IN BEER

1 pound loose country sausage meat
1 pint beer or ale
2 tablespoons curry powder
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 ounces raisins
2 cooking apples

Simmer sausage meat in a cup of water in an 8-10 inch skillet until meat is done and water evaporates. Strain off liquid and set aside.

In a saucepan blend four ounces of beer with the curry and cornstarch and cook the roux over very low heat for about three minutes.

Gradually add remainder of the beer and heat to boiling point; let mixture of curry, cornstarch and beer simmer for about 20 minutes, stirring frequently.

Add sausage meat to sauce. Fold in raisins and apples cut into bite-size chunks and simmer until apples are fairlysoft and mixture is well blended.

Happy Homecoming For Mynah Bird

SHERINGHAM, England (WNS)—Violet Rees was heartbroken when her pet mynah bird Mc Ginty escaped from his cage and flew away. Her school - teacher - daughter, Gabrielle Rees, knew that the bird's favorite tune is "Colonel Bogey" and asked her pupils to whistle it around town. The trick worked. Mc Ginty pounced on 12-year-old John Knowles as he whistled while he played. The bird is happy to be home: he had caught cold out of doors.

Doing Their Thing On Anniversary

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS)—Marta Stukenberg burst into tears when waiters held back her husband Gunther after he had poured soup in her lap, thrown catsup in her face and showered champagne over her head. "You have no right to spoil our 20th wedding anniversary," she told the maitre d'hotel, slapped him and walked out without letting her husband pay the bill.

Prepare Date-Nut Bread For Holidays

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Here's a delicious Date-Nut Bread baked in soup cans. It makes six small rolls—some to keep, some to give as gifts.

This recipe was tested in a friend's kitchen and in my own. My friend's teen-age son, who belongs to a church youth group, has extracted a promise from his mother to bake these date-nut rolls for his group's Cake Sale. The rolls cost about 25 cents apiece and can be sold for 50 cents—a good profit!

Be sure to taste these rolls as soon as they have cooled, because then they have a delectably soft texture. They're still delicious after storing but the texture becomes firmer than when they are fresh from the oven. You can store this Date-Nut Bread in a tightly covered tin box for about a week. For longer storage—a month or so—wrap the bread appropriately and store in the freezer.

DATE-NUT BREAD

1½ cups cut-up fresh dates
2 cups boiling water
¼ pound (½ stick) butter
1-3rd cup firmly packed light-brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 cups unsifted flour
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped (medium-fine) walnuts

With clarified butter or solid white shortening, grease bottoms and sides of six 10½-ounce empty soup cans.

Into a medium mixing bowl turn the dates. Add boiling water; set aside.

In large bowl of electric mixer, cream butter, brown sugar and salt. Thoroughly beat in eggs one at a time.

Stir baking soda and vanilla into date-water mixture.

To creamed mixture add flour (in about four additions) alternately with date-water mixture, stirring after each addition just enough to moisten flour. Stir in raisins and walnuts.

Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a deep brown color—60 to 70 minutes.

Place cans on wire racks and let stand 10 minutes. Run a long thin sharp knife around inside and to bottom of cans and shake slightly; turn out on wire rack; cool completely.

Makes six small loaves.

Note: To cut the dates, use a kitchen scissors—blades floured if necessary—and snip each date into 8 strips.

With Grandmother, There's No Privacy

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We have a very awkward situation in our home and seem unable to do anything about it, mainly because none of us has the nerve to tell Grandma the facts.

Last year, Grandma came to live with us because she decided she was unable to live alone.

We fixed up our guest bedroom for her. It is big and bright. We even bought new curtains, bedspread, and a comfortable chair. Also a lamp, radio, and television. But Grandma is in her room to sleep. She spends all her time sitting in the living room, reading, crocheting or watching TV there.

We used to have friends drop in for an evening, but this has stopped because Grandma is always right there. We have two teen-agers who liked to have "the gang" in for an evening of record-playing or just to "goof around," but that has stopped, too, because with Grandma there, there's not much privacy.

It's been months since we've had a family evening. We find ourselves taking refuge in the kitchen or in one of our bedrooms.

Can't Grandma realize that we'd like to be together once in a while without her listening to every word? She had HER life with her family, and we think we are entitled to ours before the children are gone from home.

Grandma is 78, but she is in good health. I hope you will print this. I'm not sure whether Grandma reads your column, but maybe this message will get across to other "Grandmas" [or Grandpas]. Thank you.

PLEASE WITHHOLD MY NAME AND TOWN

DEAR PLEASE: I'll publish your letter, but not to "get the message across" to a Grandma [or Grandpa] who must spend twilight years in the home of a relative. Everyone likes to be "where the action is." And elderly folks are no different. But most senior citizens are sensitive to the feelings of others and earnestly try to keep out of the way.

Instead of whining behind Grandma's back about the lack of privacy in your home, why not come right out in the open and good humoredly say, "The kids are coming in for another one of those noisy parties tonight, so be kind to your eardrums, Grandma, and stay in your room tonight. We're going to!"

There are lots of ways to skin a cat, and the direct, "honest" approach is always the best. Try it. If I'm wrong, you haven't lost anything.

DEAR ABBY: Our baby girl is just two months old and here is my problem: My husband does such cruel things to her. For instance, he will force her little cheeks together until her mouth is all pinched together. The baby reacts by jerking her arms and legs and thrashing about. My husband says he enjoys seeing her do this.

Also, when the baby is sound asleep, he goes into her room and yells and screams right in her little face. Naturally she becomes frightened, awakens, and cries. [My husband says he gets a kick out of this.] I have even seen him slap her on the bottoms of her feet [very hard] for no reason at all.

Abby, the baby has become very nervous and she jumps in her sleep a lot. I have told him that he should stop being so mean to the baby, but he says it won't hurt her any. I told him I was going to write to you and he said, "Go ahead, and in the meantime I'll keep it up." Have you any advice?

NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your husband is either so cruel as to be dangerous, or he is sick. [He could be both.] Tell your doctor what you've told me. And for goodness' sake, do it now! Your husband shows symptoms which should not be ignored another day.

Women In '69

val, was the rock-blues gal superstar. Joni Mitchell and Laura Nyro also shared the pop music spotlight.

FINANCIAL

Another daring activist, this time in the financial field, was blonde Muriel Siebert, only woman on the New York Stock Exchange. In the face of a nervous stock market, she bucked the trend and incorporated her business, opening a big new office on Park Avenue.

AND THESE ...

Some women made news simply by being:

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis: caught by newspaper photographers attending a sexy Swedish movie. The former First Lady celebrated her 40th birthday and also the first anniversary of her marriage to shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

Mary Jo Kopechne: the passenger in a car driven by Sen. Edward Kennedy. The 28-year-old Washington secretary drowned when the senator's car plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island, Mass. Miss Kopechne's death was ruled accidental, but court fights to have the body exhumed made headlines for months after the incident.

Elizabeth Taylor: the recipient of a 69.42 carat diamond, a gift from her husband, Richard Burton.

THE FINAL CURTAIN

Death catapulted other women into the news. Mamie Eisenhower bore up bravely at the funeral ceremonies for her late husband, Dwight David Eisenhower, 34th President of the United States. Coretta King continued to carry on the work of her late husband, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Don't forget that candy canes add traditional touches to the yule tree and also help pad out a shortage of ornaments.

DeBose-Duncan Vows Said On Saturday Afternoon

DUNN — Miss Sandra Elaine Duncan became the bride of Arthur Wayne DeBose on Saturday at 3:00 p.m. in the Westfield Baptist Church here.

Parents of the couple are Mr.and Mrs. Royce Arthur Duncan of Dunn and the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hugh DeBose.

The Rev. Norman Wheeler officiated at the ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Paulette Bryant, organist, and Mrs. Norman Wheeler, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Victorian gown featuring empire lines with a modifield A-line skirt. Reembroidered alencon lace encrusted with crystals and pearl beading accented the bodice and bishop sleeves. Holiday Curtain Raisers

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

From the beginning of time, man has turned to soup for courage, comfort and sustenance.

Husky chowders and bisques warm his bones in winter, delicate, jellied consomme and creamy vichyssoise turn him on in summer.

The French often make an entire meal of these curtain raisers. Robust cabbage soup does the trick in the farmlands. Along the Riviera rich, garlic-laden bouillabaisse, a cornucopia of Mediterranean fish and crustaceans, rings the bell.

Tripe soup sobers the Turks up after a night on the town. Southern Europeans wind up a convivial evening with "gratinee," a tangy cheese and onion soup, laced with egg yolks and brandy.

Scandinavia has made a specialty of a hearty pea soup, so thick it almost passes for custard. So have the Dutch who give their version an added fillip with smoked farm sausage.

Travelers who have visited the countries of West Africa recount the charms of peanut soup. A lively mix ignited with hot peppers.

Germany is famed for a lot of dishes—especially its lentil soup with sliced frankfurters and cubed potatoes.

Such formidable concoctions as minestrone with grated cheese and pasta le fagioli, a heady brew of red beans and macaroni so thick the spoon almost stands by itself, are synonymous with Italian cuisine.

America has become famous for its Yankee and Navy bean soups. Spawned in the lumber camps of Maine and the chuck wagons of the West, these bean delights now are featured in some of the nation's finest restaurants.

Chowder is a byword in the eastern part of the United States. It has long been a subject of controversy between the New Englander who will eat only the creamed variety and the "outlanders" from New York who put tomatoes, green peppers and carrots into a clear broth, along with the chopped clams.

New Orleans has its tangy crawfish bisque and Philadelphia its pepperpot soup with honeycombed tripe. Both have become favorites overseas.

Half a world away on Formosa, the Nationalist Chinese serve soup as a backdrop for a multi-course meal. Chinese dinners may lead off with a shark's fin or bird's nest soup. In between courses clear soups are served as palate cleansers.

South of the border, soup making has been developed into a fine art. In Mexico, they make a delicious blend, the main ingredient of which is avocado. In Peru, the heavier soups are eaten in two installments. The liquid is served in cups or small saucers, and the solids are brought in on plates and blanketed in a rich sauce that often takes longer to prepare than the soup itself.

One soup, which combines heartiness with glamor, is creamed chestnut, popular in both Latin America and Europe. With the onset of cold weather, this is a perfect holiday scene-setter. The following recipe combines the influences of France and Brazil:

CREAMED CHESTNUT SOUP

1 pound chestnuts
2 carrots, chopped
2 leeks, chopped
2 celery stalks, chopped
1 onion, chopped
1 tablespoon butter
6 cups chicken stock
8 sprigs parsley
1 pound potatoes, diced
¼ pound ham diced finely
2 ounces heavy cream
1 ounce brandy

Boil chestnuts until they shell easily, about half an hour.

In a large saucepan, brown carrots, leeks, celery and onion in the butter for five minutes. Add chicken stock, chestnuts, parsley and potatoes, and simmer at least one hour, or until vegetables and nuts are very soft. Put soup through fine sieve or puree in a blender.

Return puree to the pan and add cream and brandy. Adjust the seasoning to taste and heat to boiling point. Garnish with chopped ham and serve. (Serves six).

Tampa Tops Bucs In Tourney Finals

TAMPA, Fla.—Tampa University held East Carolina University in check for about 10 minutes in the second half last night, and ground out a 89-78 victory to claim the Sunshine Classic championship.

The game ended with four of the Pirate starters on the bench and Coach Tom Quinn in the dressing room. The four Bucs were out on fouls, and the fifth, Jim Fairley, finished the game with four. Quinn was ejected from the contest with 3:30 to play after disputing the calls of the officials.

The key to the win was a 22-6 spurt by the Spartans through the middle part of the second half. It took Tampa from a 55-54 deficit to a 76-61 lead, one which the Pirates could not overcome.

The wounds of the Pirates were somewhat balmed, however, when Tom Miller, who scored 22 points in the loss, was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player. He was also named to the All-Tournament team.

The Pirates, after building up as much as a six-point lead in the first half, saw it disappear late in the half, and then the Bucs fell back in the second half, and never recovered.

Chip Nelson hit a jumper, and John Napier followed with a tap-in for a 4-0 lead before Jim Modlin hit a pair of charity tosses to put the Bucs on the board. Nelson followed with another basket, and Pat Biver got one to make it 8-2.

The Bucs slowly cut away at the lead, and finally tied it up on a goal by Jim Kiernan and another by Lyn Green at 17-17. Lester Henly put Tampa back out on a three-point play, but two quick goals by Tom Miller put the Bucs on top for the first time, 21-20.

For the next few minutes, the two teams swapped the lead, with neither getting any advantage. East Carolina finally got a two-point edge at 26-24 as Kiernan added a free throw after a Modlin basket. Nelson tied it up, but Kiernan hit twice again at the line for a 28-26 margin.

Nelson picked up two quick baskets to put Tampa back into a 30-28 lead. Miller tied it up, and after Biver hit at the line, Kiernan's jumper put the Bucs back up again, 32-31. Kiernan followed with two more at the line for a three-point lead.

Minutes later, Fairley hit on a drive to push the lead out to four and Gregory followed that up with a shot from underneath to make it 41-35, the Bucs' biggest lead of the half.

Tampa came roaring back, however. Frank Robinson hit at the line on three shots and after a couple of others there, Nelson struck for two more to put Tampa back out 42-41. But Miller connected with 12 seconds left with a pair of free throws and the Bucs took a 43-42 lead into intermission.

Henley put Tampa back on top following intermission, and again, the two teams swapped shots until the Bucs pushed out into a 55-54 lead on a foul shot by Miller.

But then disaster struck. The Bucs went into a cold period, and the Spartans got hot. Henley was given a basket on a goal-tending call and that put Tampa back on top, 56-55, and they never trailed after that. Nelson stole the ball for another basket and Biver connected on a pair of free throws.

Nelson fouled out at that point, and it looked like the Bucs might have a comeback in mind, but after Biver hit another field goal, Gregory drew his fifth personal, and the odds were evened again. Robinson hit a pair of free throws and Napier followed with a jumper to make it 66-55.

The Bucs finally got back into the action with a basket by Joe Harvey, but Robinson hit two more charity shots and connected from the floor twice to run the lead out to 72-59. Modlin got two free throws to go with an earlier basket by Miller, but baskets by Biver and Robinson made it 76-61 to complete the outburst.

From that point on, the two teams played rather even ball. The Bucs managed a small rally, cutting the score back to 80-72, but could come no closer than eight.

Then with 3:30 to play, Quinn was ejected from the game after words with an official, and Modlin, Miller and Kiernan followed close behind him

Knapp Sparks Viking Rally Past Rams

Late Score, Safety Keys To NFL's Western Championship

By ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Passing hero Joe Kapp ran for the winning touchdown and rugged Carl Eller samshed Roman Gabriel into the end zone for an insurance safety in a fourth-period comeback Saturday and a 23-20 victory for the Minnesota Vikings over the Los Angeles Rams.

The triumph gave the Vikings the championship of the National Football League's Western Conference and a berth in the League title game on the same chilled Minnesota gridiron Jan. 4 against the winner of Sunday's Dallas-Cleveland game.

The Vikings, who had the best won-lost record in the NFL in the regular season, 12-2, proved their championship class in the second half Saturday, before a sellout home crowd of 47,900.

Restrict Rams

Trailing 17-7 at the intermission, Minnesota responded to Kapp's improved passing performance to put 16 points on the scoreboard, and the defense came to life to restrict the Rams, who had an 11-3 season mark, to only three points.

It was a turnabout contest as the Rams scored three of the four times they had the ball in the first half, on a three-yard pass from Gabriel to Bob Klein, a two-yard pass from Gabriel to Billy Traux and a 20-yard field goal by Bruce Gossett. But in the second half Gossett's 27-yard field goal furnished the Rams' only points.

Kapp sparkled throughout the game. Though he failed to pass for a touchdown, his passes set up every Viking score. Dave Osborn got the first two touchdowns on one-yard plunges. But on the first touchdown, Kapp completed four straight passes for 61 yards, three of them to Gene Washington for 49 yards, to put the ball on the Rams' six.

Then in the second half, Kapp connected with Washington on a 41-yard toss to put the ball on the Rams' 12, while on the eventual winning score, Kapp completed three straight tosses for 40 yards to the Rams' 19 before running over for the score himself.

Cox Converted

Placekicker Fred Cox converted after every Minnesota touchdown, including the eventual winning point to make the score 21-20 for the Vikings with 8:24 left to play.

Eller's impressive rush against Gabriel was the clincher and it put the crowd on its feet with the realization that Los Angeles needed a touchdown to win.

Eller, an all-league defensive end, went to the outside around Rams tackle Bob Brown, and Gabriel, fading back to pass from his 12, was caught at the two. Eller's driving tackle forced him into the end zone and that was it.

The Rams had to give up the ball on a free kick and though they got possession again, they reached only the Vikings' 45 before Allan Page intercepted a Gabriel pass and returned 29 yards to the Rams 26 to ensure the victory.

Backing In For A Score

Minnesota Vikings' running back Dave Osborn (41) goes over a pile of players on his back as he scores in the first quarter against the Los Angeles Rams in the NFL Western Conference playoff yesterday. The touchdown tied the game at 7-7 with the point after. Defenders are linebacker Doug Woodlief (57) and Coy Bacon (79). The Rams regained the lead, but a late touchdown and a safety gave Minnesota a 23-20 victory. (AP Wirephoto)

Something To Yell About

With his team ahead 23-20 over the Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota Vikings' quarterback Joe Kapp shouts encouragement to the defensive unit from the sidelines. Missouri Still Slim Favorite

By FRANK EDIGE

MIAMI (UPI)—Penn State has three All-Americans on a defensive squad that scored 20 more points than the Nittany Lions' opponents, but Missouri remained a slight two-point favorite Saturday to win the Orange Bowl football classic New Year's night.

The oddsmakers figure the nation's longest active winning streak is about to end because Cocah Dan Devine's Missouri Tigers appear to have it all on offense. Quarterback Terry McMillan found a passing talent this year to erase many of Paul Christman's 30-year-old Mizzou records. And tailback Joe Moore emerged the No. 3 runner in the nation, averageing 130 yards a game.

A lean and fast defensive alignment nearly shut off the running of Missouri's opponents. Ask Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens, Oklahoma's running back who was limited to four years rushing against Missouri.

All of this from a defensive unit that has no national standout. Missouri's supposed weakness is pass defense but it didn't matter much because McMillan out-scored all the passers in the Big Eight conference. He completed 105 of 233 passes for 1,963 yards and 18 touchdowns.

The drama for a packed stadium of nearly 78,000 and a prime time television (NBC) audience after the 8 p.m. kickoff will revolve around the heroeis of a youth playing in a hometown where he never made good and a team which felt its pride injured when President Nixon chose Texas as the Nation's No. 1 team. Penn State finished the season ranked second while Missouri was sixth.

The hometown boy is McMillan, who failed to impress anyone as a second string quarterback at Coral Gables High School.

If Notre Dame upsets Texas in the Cotton Bowl New Year's afternoon, Penn State could be immeasurably rougher in the Orange Bowl. Coach Joe Paterno's Lions won the Lambert Trophy as the East's best team and have gone 29 games without defeat, with 21 victories in a row.

Penn State also would like to erase any lingering thoughts that its 15-14 victory over Kansas in last January's Orange Bowl was a fluke. A penalty against Kansas for having 12 men on the field in the closing seconds of the game gave Penn State a second chance at a game-winning two-point conversion.

Leading the Nittany Lions defenders are All-Americans Mike Reid at tackle, who won the Outland Trophy as the nation's best lineman, Denny Onkotz at linebacker and Neal Smith, the nation's top safetyman. Together with their defensive teammates, they scored 107 of Penn State's 312 points with 24 pass interceptions, nine fumble recoveries and three blocked punts.

Quarterback Chuck Burkhart seldom passes and he's in the minus column on running, but "he's the guy who beats you" by making the Penn State multiple set attack go. Through high school and college the unsung senior has never lost a game he's quarterbacked.

As the Lions hammer the opposition from every direction, Charlie Pittman is the man to watch. Although he missed two games, the 195-pound senior erased four of Lenny Moore's running records, averaging 4.7 yards a carry and collecting 11 touchdowns rushing this year. He also caught a pass for a 12th score.

North-South In 6-6 Tie

By REX THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—College All-Stars from the North and South battled to a 6-6 deadlock Saturday in a Blue-Gray football game highlighted by a record four pass interceptions by David Berrong of Memphis State.

It was the first tie in the 32-year history of the intersectional game.

Berrong, a 185-pound safety from Memphis State, prevented two almost certain North touchdowns. He picked off one pass on the Gray one and another on the four.

His performance won him most valuable player honors.

The 21,500 fans who watched the contest in sunshiny 50-degree weather saw only one touchdown. It came in the first period on an 18-yard pass from Blue quarterback Mike Cilek of Iowa to Charles Longnecker of the Air Force.

Field goals of 36 and 30 yards, both by The Grays' Jerry Don Sanders of Texas Tech, accounted for the South's six points. Both kicks came in the second quarter.

Berrong went into the game already rated as one of the nation's leading pass interceptors. He had 10 during the regular season.

The South had a chance to go ahead on a field goal late in the game but gambled on a touchdown and failed. With fourth down and three to go on the Blue five, quarterback Robert Pearce of Stephen F. Austin College, lost five yards, and the North took over.

West Gains 15-0 Victory

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A highly touted West team offense, held scoreless for three quarters, struck in the final period Saturday and beat the East 15-0 in the 43rd annual East-West Shrine Classic at Stanford Stadium.

San Diego State quarterback Dennis Shaw, named the outstanding offensive player of the game, led the West to both touchdowns as Colorado's All-American running back Bob Anderson scored from one yard and UCLA's Greg Jones took a three-yard scoring pass from Shaw.

West Virginia, South Carolina Tangle In Peach Bowl Tuesday

ATLANTA (AP)—Jim Carlen and Paul Dietzel are both tough taskmasters on the football field and demand a lot from their players.

But after four years at their respective schools, their formulas have paid off in winning seasons and an invitation to the second annual Peach Bowl here Dec. 30.

Carlen's West Virginia Mountaineers racked up a 9-1 record, losing only to second-ranked Penn State, and are ranked 19th in the nation. Dietzel's South Carolina Gamecocks came up with a 7-3 chart and the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

Dietzel, of course, got a head start on Carlen in the head coaching circles, building a national championship team at Louisiana State and then taking over the reins at Army before coming to South Carolina at the start of the 1966 season.

Carlen was an assistant at Georgia Tech when he accepted the West Virginia job.

Both figured it would take about four years to build a winning team.

"When I first took this job," Carlen said, "I made the statement that if anybody was going to beat us bad, they'd better do it in the next four years."

No one including Penn State has embarrassed West Virginia in the last two years. "But we really started coming around in the middle of last season," Carlen said. The Mountineers have won 12 of their last 13 games.

"It's just logical to have a good team youth fourth year or you're not on the right track," Dietzel said. "It's hard to win your second year because its hard to win with sophomores; in fact, it's almost impossible.

"So, the first chance you have actually is your fourth year because the first boys we could actually recruit are now juniors," he added.

Dietzel's trademark at South Carolina is an electric white megaphone he used on the practice field.

"I know you shouldn't yell, but I do on the practice field," Dietzel said. "I used to yell so much that after practice every day I had such a terrible headache, I thought my head was coming off."

So he got the megaphone while he was coaching at West Point. "I found out that in that wind up there you could yell all you wanted to and nobody could hear you until I got this megaphone," he said.

Carlen's trademark is his insistance on abiding by the rules his rules.

"Basically, we have three rules at West Virginia, and my coaches and I discuss them thoroughly with the boys and their parents before we ever sign them," Carlen said.

"Rule No. 1—Get to church every Sunday, the church of your choice. Rule No. 2 — No smoking and drinking, and this is a 12-months-a-year rule. Rule No. 3 No class cuts. None at all."

Although Carlen said his rules have made it impossible for his coaching staff to recruit certain players for West Virginia, he looks at it this way:

"It hasn't really cost us anything. The only thing it has done is eliminate a lot of headaches for us. The boys we get are willing to abide by the rules and do the things we want them to do and it's paying off."

"You can't really argue with either Carlen's rules or Dietzel's megaphone, because their 1969 records speak for themselves."

Florida Holds Off Vols For Gator Win

By DAVID MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) The Florida Gators scored the winning touchdown on a pass to all-America Carlos Alvarez midway through the third period Saturday, then turned in a dramatic goal line stand six minutes later to upset the Tennessee Vols 14-13 in the Gator Bowl.

The Gators, trailing 10-7, struck swiftly on a 62-yard drive with sophomore quarterback John Reaves, the nation's leading passer, throwing nine yards to sophomore Alvarez with 6:49 gone in the third period.

The Vols came storming right back with a 77-yard march of their own. But, although they had a second down at the Florida 3-yard line, they were unable to punch across through the tightened-up Gator defense.

Florida scored its other touchdown with 4:37 left in the first period when safetyman Steve Tannen blocked a Herman Weaver punt and middle linebacker Mike Kelley scooped it up at the Tennessee eight-yard line and dashed across the goal.

Richard Franco kicked both Florida conversions, the second one turning out to be the winning point.

Tennessee scored its first points in the opening minutes of the second period on a 20-yard field goal by George Hunt and then jumped into the lead less than seven minutes later when quarterback Bobby Scott threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to flanker Lester McClain.

Hunt added the conversion and a wasted 26-yard field goal early in the final period, but missed a 32-yard field goal attempt with seven seconds left to play in the first half.

The game drew the largest crowd in its 25-year history, 72,248, and the close battle in what most had figured would be an easy Tennessee win, kept them all in their seats until the final gun—which came with Florida on the Vols' one-yard line.

The Gator Bowl game attracted more than usual attention this year because of reports that Tennessee Coach Doug Dickey may succeed Florida Coach Ray Graves within the next few weeks. It has been reported for some time that Graves will give up coaching but continue as athletic director at Florida.

The game's most valuable player award went to Florida's Kelley who also intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble in addition to scoring with the blocked punt.

Tennessee's most valuable player was sophomore fullback Curt Watson, who rushed for 131 yards in 25 carries.

Reaves, who completed 222 passes for 2,896 yards and 25 touchdowns during Florida's 8-1-1 season, was able to generate only one scoring drive Saturday, but that turned out to be enough. He completed passes of 20 and 31 yards in the drive in addition to the one that Alvarez caught deep in the end zone.

Pirates Roll Past Rattlers, 71-57

Bucs Played Without Gregory

Tampa, Fla.—East Carolina University's Buccaneers, playing what Coach Tom Quinn called "the worst game of the year," surprisingly came out on top of the contest, 71-57, against Florida A&M Friday night. The win vaulted the Pirates into last night's finals in the Sunshine Classic against hosting Tampa, which downed West Chester, 92-73, in the second game.

The Bucs went into the game with one handicap. Jim Gregory, their second leading starter and rebounder, was home in West Virginia. His flight out of the mountain state had been cancelled due to heavy snows, and further attempts through Friday night to get out of the state had been unsuccessful. It was hoped by the Bucs that he would be able to make his way to Florida,s contrasting 80-degree weather in time for Saturday's game.

Then, just when the Bucs looked like they might be ready to slam the door in the face of Florida A&M's Rattlers, Jim Modlin drew his fifth foul and left the game with 8:59 to go. Modlin had picked up his first foul with 16 seconds left in the first half, then collected the final four almost mechanically over a four-minute period.

But the Bucs were also helped out by poor A&M shooting, and the fact that all five Rattler starters also fouled out of the game. One preceeded Modlin by a few seconds, while the other four went out between 7:30 and 1:30.

East Carolina also gave up a height advantage for the first time with Gregory out of the lineup, but still managed to clear the boards for a 56-47 advantage in the game. Jim Fairley and Tom Miller led the way with 10 each, while Modlin had eight. Dave Wright, A&M's spark-plug also had 10 for the Rattlers, while Ernest Jones had nine.

It was Miller's keen outside shooting and playmaking that led the Bucs to the win, and held off the Rattlers when they threatened to make a comeback after Modlin left the game. The Pirates also got fine play from several reserves, including Julius Prince, Joe Harvey and Lyn Green.

Harvey finished the game with 10 points, while Green dropped in nine and Prince got eight. Between the three they also accounted for 15 rebounds.

East Carolina fell behind in the opening minutes of the game, and trailed by as much as six points before coming back to grap the lead on a 10-0 outburst. A&M got things started with a basket when Jones hit from underneath. Purcell Hall hit a jumper to make it 4-0 before Miller hit from the corner. Wright dropped in a pair of free throws, and Miller hit from the line. Wright got another charity toss and then hit on a hook shot to make it 9-3 with about 17 minutes to play.

Modlin then connected for the Bucs, and Harvey hit at the line. Modlin and Miller each hit jumpers, and then pushed the Bucs into a 10-9 lead. Harvey made good on another free throw, and Fairly connected to finish a fast break, making it 13-9 with 13:53 to play.

After an A&M basket, the Bucs pushed in five more to run their lead out to nine. Miller hit on a jumper, and Jim Kiernan made good on a three-point play. Harvey scored and the Bucs led 20-11.

The Rattlers refused to get rattled, however, and started a comeback. With Wright pacing them, they slowly got back into the game. Two baskets and a free throw cut the lead to four, but the Bucs hit to pull away again, 26-19. Bob Francis hit a jumper, however, and Wright stole the ball for another goal. Tony Brooks pushed a rebound back in and Milt Campbell hit a jumper with just over five minutes left to put A&M back on top, 27-26.

Modlin hit two free throws to return the lead to the Bucs, but Wright scored on a steal to put A&M back ahead. Miller's jumper reversed it again, but Jones tied it up, 30-30 at the line.

Lyn Green then hit from underneath to put the Bucs back up, 32-30, and then never were caught again. Green added two more at the line, and then hit on a jumper for six straight points. Prince added a pair at the line, and the Bucs led, 38-30 with a minute left. Wright scored two quickly to cut the lead to 38-34 at halftime.

In the second half, the Bucs got three straight charity shots with Prince hitting two and Modlin one, and put them with another Miller jumper to push out into a nine-point edge, 43-34.

After Jones hit a free throw, Miller hit again, and the lead climbed to 10. Then, a few minutes later, Fairley connected on a hook, and the Bucs held a 50-39 edge, an 11-point spread.

Over the next minutes, the lead varied slightly, until Modlin fouled out with the Bucs in a 59-50 lead. It seemed then that the Rattlers might made a comeback. John Andrews hit a free throw and Jones hit on a turnaround jumper. Wright stole the ball for his only points of the second half, and that cut the lead to 59-55 with 5:30 to go. But a three-point play by Harvey, a basket by Green and a technical foul by Miller upped the lead to 10 again, 65-55.

The technical came when two subs cam in for A&M with 4:07 to go, and only one player left the floor. It was several seconds before the officials noted that there were six Rattlers on the court, drawing the technical foul.

After that, A&M was broken, scoring only once more as Hall hit on a long shot. Fairley canned three foul shots, and Harvey scored a basket and a free throw to push the Bucs out to the final margin and a berth in the championship finals.

Miller led the Bucs with 17 points, while Modlin had 13 and Harvey had 10.

Wright paced A&M with 18 points, while Hal had 11.

Huskies Rally To Defeat Southern Cal

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Washington Huskies are on the prowl again in college basketball.

More or less a doormat for the last decade the Huskies are unbeaten so far this season under the rebuilding program of Tex Winter, former Kansas State coach.

The Huskies demonstrated Friday night they are a definite threat to UCLA's reign as national champions by whipping Southern California 90-86 in the first round of the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Huskies, ranked 10th in the Associated Press Poll. George Irvine, a senior, and Steve Hawes, a sophomore, combined for 63 points as the Huskies came from behind in the second half.

Irvine, at 6-foot-5½, scored a career high of 41 points. The 6-9 Hawes, characterized by Winter as the "key to the team" tallied 22 points.

Washington's victory was one of the highlights of a busy night, along with Oklahoma State's first defeat, as numerous major Christmas holiday tournaments opened.

The nine-game winning streak of Hank Iba's Oklahoma State Aggies was snapped by Kansas State 51-49 in the Big Eight Tourney at Kansas City. Jerry Venable scored five points in the last two minutes to pull K-State from behind at 47-46.

After K-State's defeat, Oklahoma wiped out an 11-point deficit in the last five minutes and upset 16th ranked Kansas 68-64 in overtime.

Fifth-ranked Ohio University made it seven straight in an unbeaten season so far by whipping Fresno State 92-80 in a non-tournament game. New Mexico State, No. 7, downed Idaho State 88-80 in the Roadrunner Tourney at Las Cruces, N.M.

Jacksonville, No. 13, and the only other team in the AP Top Twenty to see action, routed Arizona 104-72 in the Evansville Invitational behind 32 points by 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore.

Barry Moran's layup with nine seconds left gave Northwestern a 78-77 victory over Rutgers and N.C. State stayed unbeaten by overcoming Alabama 75-71 in the Lafayette Classic at Fayetteville, N.C.

The St. John's Redmen of New York shaded Iowa 57-55 in the first game of the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu on Jim Smyth's basket at the buzzer. Yale topped Hawaii, 88-77, in the second game.

Oregon State whacked Temple 65-44 in the Far West Classic while in the Milwaukee Classic, Wisconsin took Utah State 81-74 and Marquette whipped Delaware 99-71.

In the Queen City at Buffalo, Canisius downed Fairfield 83-70 and St. Peter's humbled Tulane 90-75. Memphis State took Arizona State 67-62 and Oklahoma City beat Idaho 80-61 in the All-College at Oklahoma City. Minnesota edged Bowling Green 70-68 and Detroit walloped Pitt 86-60 in the Motor City at Detroit.

Evansville tripped Fordham 78-69, and Creighton defeated San Jose State 83-70.

Fuss Over Who Was Best Sparked Year

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

College football celebrated its centennial year in 1969 with record scoring, its longest season in history and a dissenting voice from one of the two major unbeaten and untied teams.

Coming into the final Saturday of the regular season, sports writers ranked Texas No. 1 and Arkansas No. 2 in The Associated Press poll. Both teams were unbeaten and untied.

Nothing could be more appropriate than to have these two powers meet, not only for the Southwest Conference title but for No. 1 ranking and a strong claim to the mythical national title. Even President Nixon, guided by special consultant Bud Wilkinson, felt that way and decided to attend the Texas-Arkansas game and present the winner with a No. 1 plaque. And on national TV, too.

But No. 3 Penn State, the Eastern champion led by Coach Joe Paterno and unbeaten in a string of 29 games, flooded the White House with telegrams. To appease Nittany Lion fans, the President announced that Penn State would also get a plaque, this one for having the longest unbeaten streak.

After Texas overcame a 14-0 halftime deficit and beat Arkansas 15-14, the wires from Pennsylvania continued to buzz. It was pointed out that Texas opponents, until the Arkansas game, had combined records of 39-60; Arkansas 35-64, and that Penn State had played rivals with a combined 47-50-2 record.

Two nights following the game in Fayetteville, Ark., President Nixon, concluding his national TV press conference, admitted that picking the No. 1 football team was not the best way to reach the young people of America, especially those in Pennsylvania.

The next day the concluding AP poll ranked Texas No. 1 and Penn State No. 2 with Arkansas dropping to third.

On Dec. 9, when the President accepted the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Gold Medal, he said:

"I was going to recommend a Super Bowl game after Jan. 1 but I was in deep enough already. Penn State is another team that should be considered for No. 1. I didn't even carry Texas."

NOTE BOWL GAMES

Penn State had a slight chance to meet the Texas-Arkansas winner in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas on New Year's Day, but the Nittany Lions had a firmer offer from the Orange Bowl in Miami. In that game on New Year's night, Penn State plays No. 6 ranked Missouri, once-beaten Big Eight co-champions with Nebraska. Texas faces No. 9 Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl, while Arkansas takes on Mississippi (7-3) in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

The hassle over No. 1 took some of the edge off the Rose Bowl where unbeaten but tied No. 5 Southern California plays host to Big Ten co-champion Michigan, ranked No. 7.

Michigan registered the year's biggest upset by trimming Ohio State 24-12 and snapping a Buckeye winning streak of 22 games. The setback dropped OS from No. 1 to No. 4. Southern Cal, tied by Notre Dame, gained its fourth straight Rose Bowl trip by handing unbeaten UCLA a 14-12 defeat in the last 90 seconds to win the Pacific-8 crown.

Mississippi turned in a major upset, trouncing unbeaten Tennessee 38-0 and Princeton surprised by trimming unbeaten Dartmouth 35-7. The result caused a three-way Ivy League tie with Princeton, Dartmouth and Yale with 6-1 league records.

Steve Owens, Oklahoma's workhorse fullback, was voted the Heisman Trophy winner over Purdue's Mike Phipps before the Sooners had completed their season. But in the final game Owens proved worthy of the award by carrying the football 55 times for 261 yards in a 28-27 victory over Oklahoma State. For Oklahoma, a four-time loser, Owens gained 1,523 yards to lead the nation. He also led in scoring with 23 TDs for 138 points, beating Mack Herron of Kansas State by 12 points. In three years Owens gained 3,867 yards and scored 56 TDs.

Dennis Shaw led San Diego State to an unbeaten season while pacing the nation in total offense with 3,197 yards. The 6-foot-3 quarterback passed for 39 TDs, a national record, and scored six others via the ground.

Toledo won all 10 games in taking the Mid-American title. Other champions were Massachusetts in the Yankee Conference, Arizona State in the Western AC, Memphis State in the Missouri Valley, Tennessee in the Southeast, South Carolina in the Atlantic Coast, Davidson in the Southern, East Tennessee State in the Ohio Valley and Montana in the Big Sky.

Driving In

Boxing During 1969 Was One Thing—Dull

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Boxing in 1969 can best be described in one word—dull.

With Cassius Clay on the sidelines since 1967, the hassle as to the rightful owner of the heavyweight title continued. Jimmy Ellis of Louisville was recognized as World Boxing Association champion but unbeaten Joe Frazier of Philadelphia, a champion in six nonmember WBA states, had the more imposing credentials.

Ellis was inactive while Frazier took only 96 seconds to dispose of Dave Zyglewicz in Houston in April and knocked out Jerry Quarry in seven rounds in Madison Square Garden in June. It was Frazier's 24th straight victory, 21 by knockouts.

Near year end, a Clay-Frazier bout was in the works for early 1970.

Light heavyweight champion Bob Foster was impressive, running his victories to 14 straight with a first-round knockout over Frankie DePaula in January and a fourth-round kayo of Andy Kendell in May.

Nino Benvenuti of Italy was the only other fighter to retain undisputed possession of a title. After being upset by veteran Dick Tiger in a nontitle bout, Nino won over Fraser Scott on a seventh-round foul in October and knocked out Cuban-born Luis Rodriguez of Miami with one 11th-round punch in Rome in November.

Jose Napoles, a Cuban living in Mexico, stopped Curtis Cokes in 13 rounds for the welterweight crown in April. In a June return, Napoles stopped Cokes in 11 rounds in Mexico City. In October, Napoles beat former champion Emile Griffith in 15 rounds in Los Angeles.

Mando Ramos of Long Beach, Calif., won the lightweight title by stopping Theo Cruz in 11 rounds in February. In October, Ramos knocked out Yoshi Numata in six rounds. In November, Ramos was charged with the possession of marijuana.

Sho Saijyo of Japan (WBA) and Johnny Famechon of Australia shared the disputed featherweight title.

After Lionel Rose beat Alan Rudkin in the third defense of his bantamweight title, Ruben Olivares of Mexico relieved Rose of the crown on a fifth-round knockout in August.

Bernabo Villacampo of the Philippines and Efren Torres of Mexico shared the flyweight crown. Villacampo beat Hiroyuke Ebihara for the WBA version in Osaka in October while earlier Torres knocked out Chartchai Chionoi in eight rounds.

Final Holdout Is Weakening

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bah, humbug, says Pittsburgh goalie Les Binkley to the suggestion that he wear a mask.

Binkley, one of the National Hockey League's holdouts when it comes to face protectors, kicked out 26 shots Friday night and led the Penguins to a 3-2 victory over New York, ending a 14-game unbeaten string against the West for the Rangers.

It was his first start after sustaining a 16-stitch cut at the side of his right eye in practice. At the time, he was, of course, wearing a mask. Most goalies—even the holdouts like Binkley—wear face coverings in practice. But the Penguins' goalie isn't sure he'll continue that routine.

"After that 16-stitch job," he said. "I'm not sure I can afford to."

In other NHL action Friday, Montreal tied Detroit 3-3 and St. Louis tripped Toronto 3-1.

Binkley, who wears contact lenses on the ice, said they were undisturbed by the shot that cut him. He couldn't say the same about himself.

"They tell you a mask," he said, "and look what happens."

That was nothing compared to what happened to the Rangers. Ron Schock, who had managed just 2 goals all season, scored twice for the Penguins following a long talk with coach Red Kelly.

"Yes," admitted Kelly, "we talked. He hadn't been playing well. Then he lost the opening faceoff of the game because he wasn't ready and that really fired him up. He was great after that."

The victory over New York ended a five-game losing streak for Pittsburgh. It was also only the Rangers' fourth regular season loss at home in 37 games at Madison Square Garden during 1969.

Terry Harper intercepted a pass by Detroit's Gordie Howe with less than three minutes to play and scored Montreal's tying goal against the Red Wings.

Second period goals by Wayne Connolly and Bruce MacGregor had broken a 1-1 tie for the Red Wings. Then Dick Duff drew Montreal to within one goal again scoring his first of the season with 57 seconds left in the second period.

That set the stage for Harper, a hard-hitting defenseman, who cruised in alone after taking the puck away from Howe. Claude Provost of the Canadiens and MacGregor had swapped first period goals.

Phil Goyette bagged his 16th goal of the season in helping St. Louis overcome Toronto. Barclay Plager gave the Blues a 1-0 first period lead and Goyette and Tim Ecclestone tallied in the second period before the Leafs' George Armstrong scored against goalie Ernie Wakeley later in the second period.

Toledo Storms Past Davidson

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Davidson didn't do badly for a team that was never in the game. The Wildcats rolled up 33 points, gained 406 yards and made 24 first downs.

But it was never really close.

Undefeated Toledo socked Davidson in a 56-33 point spree Friday night in the Tangerine Bowl. The 89-point outburst is nothing new to Orlando fans. They watched Richmond whip Ohio University 49-42 here a year ago.

Sophomore Chuck Ealey put the Rockets out of reach in the first half, but Davidson managed to save face on the brilliant right arm of Gordon Slade.

Ealey passed for three touchdowns and ran 52 yards for another as Toledo ran up a fat 42-7 lead at half time.

"Our kids refused to quit," said Davidson coach Homer Smith. "They could have folded their tent, but they battled their hearts out. I am very proud."

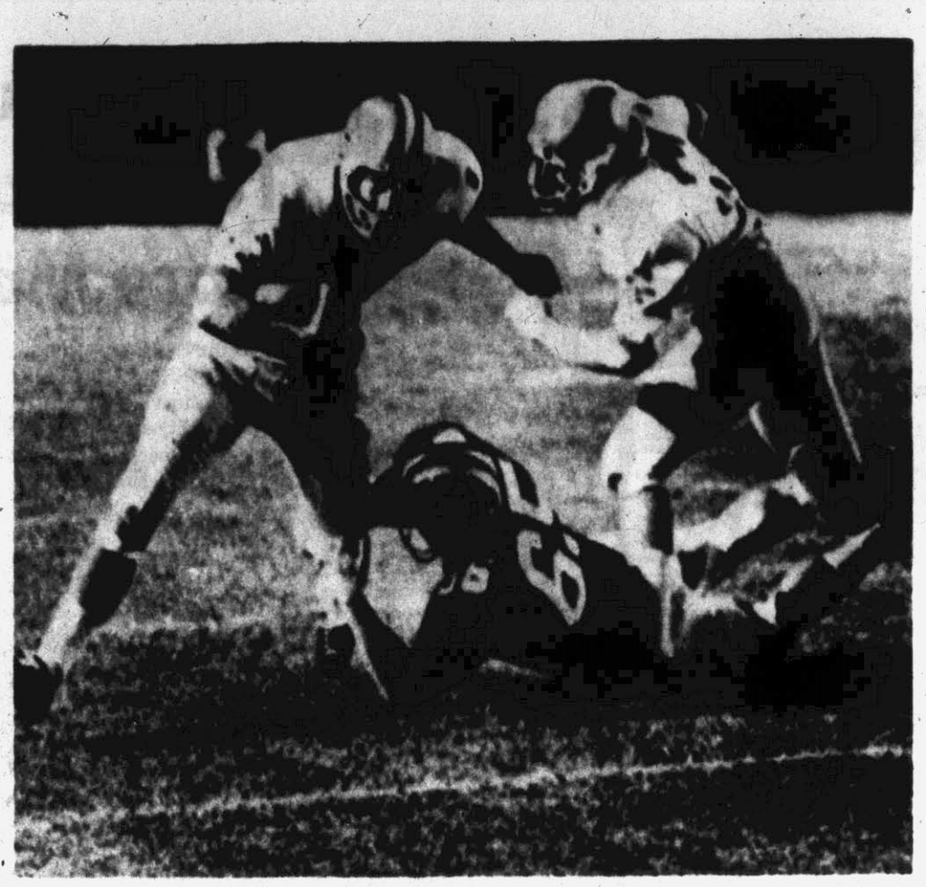
Slade bagged three touchdown passes in the final 30 minutes to keep the 45-degree night interesting. He was 22 for 38 in the air for 305 yards for the Southern Conference champions.

Ealey added little to his first-half accomplishments and finished with 10 completions in 13 throws for 147 yards. The first-year player from Portsmouth, Ohio also ran for 83 yards in 9 carries.

Orlando has an eye on big-time football, perhaps even a pro franchise and city fathers have indicated plans to enlarge the Tangerine Bowl to 52,000 seats by 1971. The 16,331 fans Friday night nearly filled the present structure.

Toledo topped off its first unbeaten season in 53 years with its 11th victory. The Mid-American Conference champions received punch on the ground from 225-pound fullback Charles Cole, who scored three times and gained 152 yards in 22 tries. Cole would have scored a fourth touchdown, but fumbled into the end zone where teammate Lynn Achilman covered it.

George Hannen was Slade's favorite target with two touchdown catches and a total of 114 yards on nine receptions. Don Fair caught four for 78 yards for the winning Rockets.



Stopped At The Goal Line

Baylor's Pep Talk Aids Laker Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A blistering second half by Jerry West, a pep talk from Elgin Baylor and the wisdom of Coach Joe Mullaney helped the Los Angeles Lakers turn the game around Saturday night and beat the New York Knicks 114-106 in the National Basketball Association.

"I talked to the team at halftime and I told them the Knicks can't shoot 56 per cent from the field for the entire game and I told them to keep plugging," said the injured Baylor, who watched the game from the sidelines. "We were only 13 points down then."

Mullaney said he told his guards—West, Dick Garrett and Johnny Egan—to stay far apart on the court to keep the Knicks' Walt Frazier from double teaming and stealing the ball.

The Lakers did all this and more as they dealt the Knicks only their second loss on the road in 15 outings. It was the first Los Angeles victory over New York after three defeats.

Baylor is suffering from pulled muscles in the groin and abdomen and did not suit up for the game. A Lakers spokesman said he'll be out at least a week.

In other NBA games, Philadelphia defeated San Francisco 141-121 as the 76ers' Hal Greer reached the 18,000 point mark and Bill Cunningham became the first in the league to pass the 1,000 point mark this season; Milwaukee whipped Detroit 114-101 for its seventh straight victory, Boston defeated Seattle 122-112, and Cincinnati rolled past Atlanta 130-110.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky routed Carolina 117-105, Denver crushed Miami 141-122 and Washington beat the New York Nets 124-113.

West scored 29 of his 40 points for Los Angeles in the second half. The Knicks seemed to lose their momentum after shooting 56 per cent in the first half.

Frazier paced the Knicks with 26 points. The loss shrank the Knicks Eastern Division lead over idle Baltimore to six games.

Greer is only the sixth player in NBA history to reach the 18,000 point mark. He hit his goal with 4:28 left in the game.

Cunningham finished with 20 points to lead the 76ers and Wally Jones added 18. Adrian Smith, just acquired by the Warriors from Cincinnati, led all scorers with 23 points. The Warriors' Nate Thurmond was sidelined with an injured ankle.

Milwaukee roared to a 21-point lead in the first half and then withstood a Detroit comeback to move within 6½ games of the Knicks in the East, and just a half game back of Baltimore.

The Pistons, paced by Jimmy Walker and Erwin Mueller, brought Detroit to within seven points early in the fourth period but John McGlocklin and Flynn Robinson, who each scored 10 points in the final quarter, wrapped it up for the Bucks.

Walker and Walt Bellamy of the Pistons and Robinson led all scorers with 26 points. Lew Alcindor collected 22 for the Bucks.

John Havlicek scored 42 points for the Celtics, one point shy of his career best. Bob Rule had 41 points for Seattle, 23 in the first half. The Sonics led most of the game and were down by only two points in the beginning of the final period when their shooting turned cold.

Substitute Bill Turner scored 26 points for Cincinnati. The loss by Atlanta coupled with the loss by San Francisco, kept the Hawks 4½ games in front of the Warriors in the West.

Turner replaced Fred Foster who had been filling in for injured Tom Van Arsdale. Foster was out with a sprained ankle, as the Royals were reduced to eight players.

Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson was the game's high scorer with 28 points.

Garden To Host Frazier-Ellis

NEW YORK (AP) — It looks like Madison Square Garden, which had been trying to arrange a heavyweight title bout between Joe Frazier and Jimmy Ellis for almost a year, has finally arranged it. The Garden is expected to announce details of the 15-rounder scheduled for Feb. 16 at a Monday morning news conference.

The news conference was announced Friday. Earlier this week, Harry Markson, director of boxing for the Garden, said he was confident the match would be finalized providing the settlement of "a few hitches" in the television setup.

Both fighters reportedly have been guaranteed $150,000 apiece against 30 per cent of the gate plus closed circuit television revenue. Frazier, a Philadelphian, is recognized as champion in seven states, including New York. Ellis, of Louisville, Ky., is the World Boxing Association titleholder.

The percentage take is expected to exceed the $150,000 figure, and a plan for deferred payments to the fighters apparently has locked up agreement by all parties. The fight will be televised throughout North America and, via satellite, to many parts of the world.

Cassius Clay, or Muhammad Ali, as he prefers to be called, still is recognized as the champion in some parts of the world.

Clay was stripped of his world title two years ago for refusing to obey the military draft. He was close to a match with Frazier, which would have earned him $300,000, but plans for the world-wide television bout fell through recently.

Dallas Won't Make Same Mistake Again

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cleveland Coach Blanton Collier believes the Dallas Cowboys won't make the same mistake Sunday in the National Football League Eastern Conference championship they've made in the last two outings against the Browns.

"I feel Dallas didn't take us too seriously and were looking ahead last year," Collier says. "In the regular season game earlier this year, I feel it was a little bit the same.

"Right now Dallas couldn't be in a better emotional position."

Dallas lost 31-20 to Cleveland in the Eastern Conference playoff in 1968 and fell 42-10 earlier this year.

But the oddsmakers have made Dallas a 6½ point favorite for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff in the Cotton Bowl before a sellout crowd of 71,000 and a national television (CBS) audience.

"That's a little unusual to be favorites over a team we've lost to this year, but I guess somebody knows something," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "I do know we were very confident last year, but you've also got to be scared or you are going to get a bump on your head.'

Cleveland is injury free while Dallas has only nagging hurts. Running back Calvin Hill still has a sore toe, offensive tackle Ralph Neely has a sore leg, and quarterback Craig Morton still has a sore shoulder. All will start.

Both coaches promised a few new "wrinkles" for the game although they basically will stick with what's been good to them in leading the Browns to the Century Division title and Dallas to the Capitol Division crown.

The Cowboys are fast drawing the reputation of the neighborhood bully who does okay against the weaker guys but failed the gut check when another team of equal ability toes the line.

They've lost NFL championship games to Green Bay in the last minutes and were involved in the debacle at Cleveland last year.

Landry says, "Nobody will love us until we win the Super Bowl."

Collier says the hometown advantage will help the Cowboys, who have beaten Cleveland three consecutive times here.

Collier says his squad is "the youngest team in Cleveland history." For this reason, he believes turnovers will be a big factor in the game.

"You figure a team in an average game has the ball 12 times a game, three times a quarter," he says. "So you see you can't afford many mistakes."

Both teams scheduled brief workouts Saturday and were to be dismissed in time to watch the Minnesota-Los Angeles game on television.

Record Fouls Burn The Nets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Nets set an American Basketball Association record they would just as soon forget. The Nets were tagged for 46 personal fouls, a league record for a single game, in their 124-113 losing effort to Washington Friday night.

Washington also set a record —a team mark of 70 free throw attempts for a single game. The Caps sank 53 from the line. The Caps' Larry Brown was the game's high scorer with 34 points, including 14 of 17 free throws. Lavern Tart paced the Nets with 30.

In other ABA games, Kentucky rolled past Carolina 117-105, and Denver walloped Miami 141-122, despite the absence of Spencer Haywood most of the game.

In the National Basketball Association, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the New York Knicks 114-106, Cincinnati defeated Atlanta 130-110, Milwaukee whipped Detroit 114-101, Philadelphia outshot San Francisco 141-121, and Boston beat Seattle 122-112.

Kentucky recovered from a 13-point deficit in the first quarter to beat Carolina and move within 4½ games of Indiana, frontrunners in the East.

Carolina played without starting guards Larry Miller and Bob Verga, both snowbound in the East. Kentucky led by as many as 24 points in the third period and coasted in from there. Kentucky's Louie Dampier led all scorers with 31 points. Doug Moe paced Carolina with 26.

After Haywood was ejected late in the first period for fighting, Denver teammates Larry Jones, Byron Beck and Lonnie Wright picked up the slack, pushing Denver to a 70-52 halftime lead and kept the Floridians at bay the rest of the way.

Jones led all scoring with 34 points while Beck had 27 and Wright, 23. Don Sidle led Miami with 24.

Vote For Top Golfer

DURHAM (AP) — Members of the Carolinas Golf Writers Association are voting currently for their choice as 1969 Golfer of the Year in the Carolinas. Executive Secretary Jack Horner of Durham will accept ballots through next weekend.

The award has been given annually for 12 years. Last year's winner was Jack Lewis Jr. of Florence, S. C. Walker Cup player and now a rookie professional.

The association plans a tribute to the late O. F. Stafford, host to the annual award dinner at Greensboro's Pilot Club. A plaque in his memory will be placed in a trophy case at the club during the April 2 association dinner, held in conjunction with the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

State Gains Tourney Finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State met Northwestern last night for the championship of the Lafayette Classic basketball tournament after easily downing Alabama, 75-51, Friday night in the tournament's opening round.

Northwestern won the right to play in the championship bout by beating Rutgers, 78-77, in the other preliminary game.

The only other ACC team in action tonight is Wake Forest, who meet Columbia in the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia. The Deacons went into the game against the unbeaten Ivy League team with two losses and four wins.

N. C. State's Wolfpack coasted over the Crimson Tide, paced by the scoring of Vann Williford. The 6-foot-6 forward put in 25 points, 14 in the first half.

Williford was playing before 3,800 fans in his hometown of Fayetteville, N. C. in the first Lafayette Classic.

Seconding Williford's scoring performance was Paul Coder, who got 20 points.

The win gave the undefeated Wolfpack their seventh straight victory of the season. A big chunk of credit goes to the rebounding efforts by the Raleigh team under the basket.

Game statistics gave the Wolfpack 58 rebounds to 43 for Alabama.

For Alabama, the loss was the fifth out of seven tries including a 104-95 beating by Clemson.

Both South Carolina and North Carolina will join the tournament season Monday. The Gamecocks play in the Sugar Bowl Classic at New Orleans, and North Carolina goes to Greensboro for the Carolina Classic.

Also playing Monday is Maryland, who take out Delaware in search of their fourth victory of the season.

Clemson Sets Staff Changes

CLEMSON, S. C. (AP) — Clemson football coach Cecil (Hootie) Ingram has done his first staff juggling since arriving as the university's new football coach.

Dr. Robert C. Edwards, university president, said Friday three veteran football coaches will be shifted from their football duties to other positions with Clemson.

Jones, 61, has spent 40 years with the athletic department at Clemson — longer even than Frank Howard. Howard remains as athletic director after stepping aside for Ingram after 30 years as head football coach.

McFadden has been on the athletic staff for 26 years and Smith for 20 years.

"These coaches have given many tireless hours to Clemson," said Howard. "They all played a big part in making Clemson athletics what it is today."

Good Living Goes On-The-Line

By GERRY BISHOP

Wide and handsome. That's the way it is with the Yvonne.

Designed by the Associated Architects, the one-story puts good living on a line.

It stretches across nearly 105 feet of frontage but is only about 32 feet in depth. With these dimensions, this French-styled residence would be perfect for a wide, shallow lot.

Dignity and taste are created by the exterior lines. The roof is the dominating feature. It generates warmth and security.

Convenience Parmount

The interior layout is designed for convenience. It is tied into an informal indoor-outdoor area in the back.

The front section is for formal living. This area is isolated from other rooms better suited for the day-to-day routine.

The Yvonne is a three-bedroom, two-bath ranch with foyer, living room, dining room, family room, kitchen with breakfast area, laundry room, double garage and basement.

The main entrance is centrally located and opens into the foyer which has a coat closet and is large enough to make a good reception area.

Measuring approximately 17 feet by 13 feet, the master bedroom enjoys the isolation fo the rear corner of the Yvonne. In addition to generous dimensions, it has such amenities as a private bath with shower and a walk-in closet.

Ample Closets

The other two bedrooms are large and have double-size closets. Each is just a step away from the main bath which doubles as a powder room. By putting the baths back to back there is a saving in plumbing costs.

The family room is a charmer. It has rustic exposed beams and a massive fireplace with a raised hearth and a log-storage recess. Sliding glass doors open onto the rear porch, turning this into a large recreation area in good weather.

Putting the kitchen next to the family room is another good idea. It would be a definite asset for entertaining.

The kitchen is divided into breakfast area and workshop. The dining space is large, approximately 10 feet by 14 feet, while the work area has step-saving compactness. The usual built-ins are arranged in a U shape for maximum convenience.

More Convenience

Adjacent to the kitchen is the laundry room which has space for a washer and dryer. Nearby is a broom closet and pantry.

Meanwhile, privately situated at the front is the living room, a sweeping 20 feet by approximately 15 feet. It also has a log-burning fireplace.

Next to the living room is the dining room, approximately 14 feet by 15 feet. It is directly across from the kitchen.

The garage is nearly 21 feet square and provides access to a storage closet.

You Could Find Answer To Vacation Home In More Modern Techniques

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Looking for a vacation home?

You could find the answer in some of the many new designs and building techniques such as geodesic domes and modular construction. Then again, you might go the renovation route; transform an old barn or other existing structure into a functional, comfortable retreat.

Some of the new techniques, materials and tools developed in recent years have made practical renovation of many an off-beat structure, A World War II submarine spotting tower, for instance.

On Top O' the World

An unlikely bet, you might think, but far from it when approached with the ingenuity of Lawrence Racies, New York television news cameraman.

Racies has transformed his spotting tower, a four-story 40-foot high cylindrical structure, into a one-of-a-kind high-rise bachelor's retreat overlooking the Atlantic Ocean in the resort community of North Wildwood, N.J.

Bought in July, 1968, and worked on by Racies "almost every weekend since then," the tower now has a complete living room, kitchen and bath on the ground floor; a bedroom and sink on the second level; bedroom and bath on the third; another bedroom with sink on the fourth, topped off by a finished sundeck —the highest in the area, "providing an uninterrupted vista over miles of ocean."

Racies paid $15,000 for the tower and estimates he has spent $10,000 to date for materials and labor for the renovation. However, he's recouped part of his investment by renting the high-rise unit during peak vacation periods for $300 a week. He's also built a guest house on the site which he occupies when the tower is rented.

Problems Overcome

Because of the tower's high-density, foot-thick concrete walls imbedded with steel rods, alterations presented serious problems. The renovation was further complicated by the narrow 2 x 3 foot stairwells.

To brighten the structure, improve the view, and facilitate the installation of essential fixtures and furnishings, Racies replaced the tower's tiny, louvered slots with two wide vertical picture windows on the ground floor and another on the third floor. To take fuller advantage of the view, he also removed a mid-way horizontal barrier from the semi-circular top deck scanning window and installed a continuous pane of plexiglas overlooking the ocean. Penetration of the heavy, circular wall was made possible by use of a special German power saw designed specifically for cutting through thick layers of concrete.

To improve livability, a bedroom level bath was a necessity. Conventional fixtures would have been impractical and prohibitively expensive. A new modular bathroom, the Crane Unette, however, was hoisted by rope and pulley through the six foot high third floor picture window and assembled into position.

Because of the thickness and curvature of the walls, even the simplest furnishings posed serious installation problems. In order to hang pictures, for example, Racies first had to use a Ram-Set, a power-actuated fastener, to penetrate the walls. Dissatisfied with the appearance of conventional-shaped mirrors, he found a curved Danish mirror which fit nicely with his sloping bedroom walls. Other curved fixtures were made to order.

To circumvent the problem of moving a large piece of furniture through the narrow stairwell, Racies installed an inflatable plastic sofa which he blew up to proper size once it had been maneuvered through the winding passageway.

The problem of floors in a round building? Solved with indoor-outdoor carpeting to simplify maintenance.

Steep stairs were treacherous to navigate with any sort of speed, so Racies installed an electronic door-opening device on each floor to avoid accidents which might be caused by rapid descents. He also installed an electronic winch for moving heavy objects through 40-inch circular trapdoors cut into each of the upper three floors.

Longevity In Brandy Area

COGNAC, France (UPI)—There are more people 100 years of age or older living in this famed brandy district than any place else in France. The number totaled 28 at the end of 1969.

Parties and family reunions mark each birthday; great grandchildren and long time friends gather in homes to toast the oldsters, sometimes with the local "water of life," cognac, and sometimes with champagne.

The oldest among the centenarians is Made Bertha Proux, who was born Sept. 1, 1862. "One doesn't expect to live so long," she told an interviewer. "You know, I didn't do it on purpose."

Caroline Campistron, 102, said: "I feel as young as I did at 70. Each month I get a permanent wave and every year I go camping with my grandchildren."

Jules Michaud, also 102, reads newspapers without glasses, and ambles to a nearby bistro every afternoon to argue politics with a few younger cronies.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question—We have baseboard heating in our house. The metal covers along the baseboard badly need painting. Can they be repainted with ordinary interior paint or must we use a special kind of paint because of the heat factor?

Answer—Regular interior paint will do. This type of cover is removable. It would be best to take them off, repaint them and, when the paint is thoroughly dry, put them back in place.

Question—We want to put spotlights under the eaves at the rear of our house. Can the wires be run from the light on the rear patio to the spotlights, so that they will go on when the patio light is turned on?

Answer—It would be preferable to have a separate exterior outlet. You can make the hook-up as you suggest, provided that you explicitly obey the instructions that come with the spotlights about the size and kind of wire to be used and anything else that pertains to outdoor lighting safety. You haven't furnished enough information for us to determine whether the arrangement will be protected from rain, as it should be.

Question—My wife spilled a bottle of nail polish on an asphalt tile floor. Before it could be wiped up, it had badly damaged two of the tile squares. Can they be repaired?

Answer—Not without the damaged area standing out rather conspicuously. Your only recourse is to replace the two tiles. Do you have any leftover tiles from the original installation? If not, you may be able to take up two tiles from some part of the floor that normally isn't seen—such as under a bed or sofa—and put them in place of the marred tiles. Before cementing down the replacement tiles, be sure to scrape the old cement from them and from the floor where the old tiles were.

Question—I put linseed oil on a piece of unfinished furniture I bought recently. The surface is still tacky. What caused this and what can I do about it?

Answer—There are two things that must be done after the application of linseed oil: (1) all excess should be wiped off after a minute and (2) vigorous rubbing is necessary to work the oil into the wood. Did you neglect either or both of these steps? To correct the condition, rub the surface thoroughly with turpentine until the tackiness is gone. Apply a new coat of linseed oil (the boiled type), mixing two parts of it with one of turpentine. Wipe off excess, rub for about 15 minutes, wait 24 hours, then rub well again.

Streets Follow An Old Road

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Some Louisville streets still show portions of the route of the old Wilderness Road of Kentucky's pioneer days.

A jog in one north-south street is there because the first road followed a buffalo trail at the northern terminus of the Wilderness Road.

Buffalo and other animals made a well-defined trail through the area en route to the salt outcroppings, or "licks," to the south of what is now Louisville.

Washington In Barbados

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (UPI) — George Washington spent two months on the island of Barbados in the West Indies in 1751. It was his only trip outside of what is now the United States. Washington came to Barbados with his half-brother, Lawrence. During his stay, Washington contracted smallpox, but his condition did not become serious.

EDUCATIONAL TELEVISION

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Four of every five persons are now within viewing range of educational television, the U.S. Office of Education reported.

Since federal funds became available to support ETV in 1963, the potential audience has grown from 103 million to 165 million. According to the Ooffice of Education, only three states —Alaska, Montana and Wyoming —now are without educational television.

Okay, it's that time of the year.

Hectic, hectic, hectic.

But no matter how busy we are, there are moments for reflection. And as we meditate, we inevitably come to the conclusion that there are certain things we will or will not do in the year ahead. No practical reason why such decisions can't be made in May or July or September. It's just that it seems more logical to plan our course of action with the start of a new year.

With no expectation that all—or any—of the following resolutions will be kept, they are nevertheless presented as a set of guidelines for the do-it-yourselfer in 1970:

1—I will read and follow the directions that come with the products I purchase, realizing that the manufacturers want me to get the best possible results so that I will be a repeat customer.

2—In using power tools, I will observe all safety precautions, including those that call for proper grounding to avoid electrical shocks in the event of short circuits.

3—I will stop wasting money by using part of the contents of a container and permitting the rest of it to spoil through failing to retighten the cover or replace the cap securely.

4—When I finish a painting job, I will thoroughly clean the brush or roller so that the next time I start to use it, I won't find it as stiff as a board.

5—I will use the proper thinner for the finishing material I am using, remembering that it is turpentine or mineral spirits for oil paint, water for latex paint, denatured alcohol for shellac, turpentine for varnish, lacquer thinner for lacquer, and whatever the manufacturer specifies for a particular synthetic.

6—I will use a screwdriver for driving or removing screws and not for loosening stuck windows, puncturing holes or anything else that will mar the tip.

7—I will not try to be an acrobat while on a ladder, knowing that it is safer to move the ladder a few extra times than to try to reach too far.

8—When I am in my workshop tackling a project, I will immediately stop what I am doing when someone comes in to talk to me. Many accidents occur because of inattention to the job at hand.

9—I will not replace a fuse or perform any task involving electricity while standing on a damp floor.

10—I will not engage in any do-it-yourself work until I have sufficient time to devote to it, knowing that poor results and accidents are the consequences of haste.

Seeking The Answers—Children Discover Nature

Photographs By

Jerry Raynor

A child is an inquisitive creature. Alone, with a companion, or in a group, he is full of questions. Questions about his body, his surroundings, everything he encounters in each waking hour.

With the first impulse to form words, a child begins to ask about his little world—what is? Why is? How is? These are his basic means of satisfying an instinctive desire for more knowledge; his simple working tools; his way of getting the attention of all the bigger humans around him.

A little later, when young bodies have developed and a child becomes more sure-footed, a walk into nature becomes an intriguing adventure. To him, a tree, a flower, a blade of grass, or a mud puddle are not merely part of nature's manifold faces.

Each is an individual challenge, something to be accounted for—to ask more questions about. How big does it get? What makes it green in the summer? Who gives it food? Does it need water? Why do leaves fall? Where does the wind come from? Does God make the clouds?

To a child, everything has enchantment. Watching a child explore the world around him is to again witness the innocence we knew as children.

A dead limb, the discarded shell of an insect, bleached bones of a dead animal—these are objects to be picked up, examined, pondered. Once satisfied, he will throw it down again—or if it strikes his fancy, it then becomes a treasure to be patiently lugged home.

It is only later, when a child is influenced by the sophisticated ideas of grown-ups that he puts aside part of his inquisitiveness about nature. A few never lose this love of seeking—these are the ones who spend a life-time devoted to the ever changing face of nature. They become botanist, ornithologist, scientist. Like children, they never cease asking questions about nature in our universe.

Greenville and Pitt County's farmlands and forested areas are rich exploring grounds in the winter months. The twisted beauty of old tree trunks, the trimness of younger trees, and the lacy silver pattern of branches can be seen with best effect when leaves lay on the ground like a mottled brown and gray carpet.

Tobacco barns are cold and silent, with tied bundles of tobacco sticks piled up neatly under shelters. Tool sheds and barns are full of summer's tools stored against next summer's needs.

Old trails, once rutted in the winter when farmers used them to haul out cuttings of house and barn fire wood, are now smooth paths opening into avenues of bare winter.

Neglected fences and stands of barbed wire sink more deeply into the reclaming earth, becoming each year more a part of nature, less recognizable as man-made objects.

Cardinals in pairs flash by, a bright note against gray trees and skies. Flocks of brown sparrows shuttle nervously from tree to tree, full of restless chirpings. In the fields, thousands of blackbirds soar and light with a rushing sound of wind. A startled rabbit darts in a zig-zag pattern through the underbrush.

At the year end, holidays, children enjoy an opportunity to bundle up against the cold, rambling over fields and woods at a time when snakes, mosquitoes or ticks do not have to be reckoned with.

John Saxon Is Intense Off-Screen

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD UPI — John Saxon, the dark, intense Dr. Ted Stuart in "The Bold Ones," also is dark and intense off-screen.

Of Italian extraction, Sacon was raised in Brooklyn by immigrant parents, but he has been in Hollywood for more than a decade working in movies and television shows and losing almost all trace of his Brooklyn-Italian vocal overtones.

He is an introspective man who has an overwhelming compulsion to act.

John and his wife, Mary Ann, live in an extremely modern home with the contemporary look of glass and wooden beams overlooking the San Fernando valley.

Their house is not overwhelmingly large—two bedrooms and two baths—but it is located in an isolated glade at the end of a secluded road. There is a swimming pool and a den filled with a variety of mementoes, some of which are minor awards which amuse the actor.

The den is principally a work area for Saxon who is writing a screenplay with a role for himself. Mary Ann and some friends are currently putting together a low-budget horror film.

Saxon must work on his screenplay when he can. He is only five minutes from work down a twisting road to Universal studios where he is in residence from 7:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. or later.

They're Going Too Far For Virginia

VIRGINIA MAYO, glamor queen of the '40s and '50s says "they've gone too far". (AP Wirephoto)

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associatee Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A still beautiful doll who was a glamor queen of the '40s and '50s—and did her share of cheesecake posing—thinks things have gone too far.

Virginia Mayo says nudity and sex are being presented on the screen today by a "a lot of idiots who are not really grown up yet. They're fooling around like kids who write dirty words on a barn."

She's no prude. "In a lot of my films we'd have scenes where I was supposed to be taking a bath. But you didn't see me naked. I'd have things on."

Miss Mayo, born Virginia Jones in St. Louis—and trained there in her aunt's dramatic school—had several years of touring in vaudeville and plays before producer Sam Goldwyn saw her in a Broadway show and brought her to Hollywood in 1943.

In 16 years for Goldwyn and later Warner Bros. she appeared in about 40 movies, bit, budget Westerns, musicals and costume dramas that still stand up well, she is proud to say, on television.

"Only two or three were stinkers." Her latest movie as a free lance was a 1967 Western, "Fort Utah."

In recent years Miss Mayo has returned to her first love, the theater: "That Certain Girl" in Las Vegas, on the road with "Barefoot in the Park," etc. Mayo fans who saw her in an eight-week run of "Under the Yum Yum Tree" at the Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas, completed last week, noted that the blue-eyed blonde is as shapely as ever.

From the show she returned to her home in Thousand Oaks, Calif., where she lives with her husband, Michael O'Shea of the 1954-57 television series, "It's a Great Life," and their daughter Mary Catherine, 16.

As a veteran of more restrained representations of romance on the screen, what does she think of today's explicitness?

"Those silly sex subjects are very immature. The guys doing them don't know how to write. Lack of talent is what makes them do these dirty and, they think, shocking things."

But doesn't patronage prove these things are what the public wants?

"Oh, come on. There's been no choice. 'Gone With the Wind' has been packing them in too, right? I don't think anybody's going to go see "Bob and Alice and Joe and Ethel,' whatever it is, in 20 years."

WITN-TV Reveals Plans For Improved Studio Facilities

A capital investment of over $200,000 will be used by WITN-TV in a program of major facility improvements that will include a conversion of all news programming to color presentation and various other studio and equipment improvements.

Plans for the future improvements, announced and approved at the December meeting of North Carolina Television Inc., also call for additional studio lighting with color balanced quartz light illumination, custom built video switcher to accommodate updated production techniques, and new solid state monitors for various video outputs.

WITN-TV president W.R. Roberson Jr. said the color equipment conversion will include installation of two new color film cameras with the latest film and slide projectors. Color film processing and other equipment related to the conversion will be added, he said.

Other improvements included in the package involve redesigning the master control room to accommodate a complete new audio console and new techincal equipment that will be installed.

In addition to the facility improvement plan for the main studio, major additions at the station's transmitter site in Grifton will also be accomplished, Roberson said.

"With our added equipment we will be better able to serve the needs of our advertisers and their increased demands for varied production techniques," Roberson.

Following the completions in the near future, the station, now in its 14th year of operation, will be the first in the area with full color news programming.

'To Rome With Love' Starlet Is Truly Tiny

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Joyce Menges, who plays the eldest daughter in "To Rome, With Love," may frolic around Italy in the new television series but she has lived in the same San Fernando Valley house all her life.

Joyce has brown hair, hazel eyes and is a tiny 5-feet, 1-inch tall. She weighs only 98 pounds

But Joyce is 19 years old and in love with acting. This is her first role aside from about 20 commercials she has done for a variety of sponsors in the past three years.

The diminutive actress lives at home with her parents, Rowland and Marjorie Menges. Her father is in the grocery business.

Own Bedroom

Until her elder sister Mary was married recently, Joyce shared a bedroom. Now she has one all to herself, as does her younger brother, Donald, 13.

Before turning actress Joyce studied at UCLA for a year. She has a Yorkshire terrier named Jantzen who manages to get along with Donald's tortoise and white mice.

The Menges family's favorite gathering spot is the den, where a television set of stereo equipment is usually going full blast. Joyce's father is an accomplished amateur carpenter and has built shelves, cabinets and desks for almost every room in the house.

Joyce is as unlike an actress as any youngster in television. She was chosen from almost 500 hopefuls for the part and is still astonished that she was chosen to play John Forsythe's daughter in the CBS-TV series.

Boy Friends

She has a steady beau. At least the beau thinks he's going steady, while Joyce occasionally dates another fellow.

She drives her own small imported car to work at Studio Center, five minutes from home, arriving at 7 a. m. and working until 5 or 6 in the evening.

The fact that Joyce has become a television performer has not impressed her family. She helps her mother with the housecleaning—they have no outside help—and the cooking.

Mother and daughter are happiest when Menges barbecues in the patio.

Book News

By MARGARET CLARK
Sheppard Memorial Library

Outstanding books on this month's list include three novels by great contemporary storytellers which will take the reader into other eras, and two exciting biographies of famous personalities.

THE FRENCH LIEUTENANT'S WOMAN by John Fowles is set in a village on the southwest coast of England during the 1860's. This combination of romance and illusion is also an examination of the politics, religion, science, social customs, sexual mores and moral attitudes of the Victorian Era. The deceivingly simple plot involves Charles Smithson, a gentleman of independent means interested in science, who breaks his engagement to a pretty heiress when he falls in love with a mysterious woman recently deserted by a French naval officer. What makes the situation unusual is an existential awareness of life and Fowles' commentaries from the vantage point of 1967.

In FIRE FROM HEAVEN, Mary Renault tells the story of the life of Alexander the Great from childhood to the age of twenty when he succeeded his murdered father. It is not a pretty picture of the times. Alexander was brought up to put power above everything else. Men were violent and ambitious, and the women were often more violent and ambitious than the men. But above all, the novel portrays in its shining central character the boyhood and early years of a man—intensely complex, at once human and godlike—who will inevitably one day conquer the world.

With PAWN IN FRANCENSE, Dorothy Dunnett, author of THE GAME OF KINGS AND QUEEN'S PLAY and other novels, continues the swashbuckling adventures of Francis Crawford of Lymond. Lymond's search for his illegitimate infant son, held captive by his enemy Gabriel, plunges him into the deadly cross-currents of the Moslem-Christian strife of the 16th centruy, and the action shifts from France to North Africa to Constantinople. Here, once again, are some of the heroic and villainous characters of the previous books, as well as a host of new ones, each playing an ordained role in shaping Lymond's ultimate destiny.

"Noel Coward is simple a phenomenon," Terrence Rattigan once said, "and one that is unlikely to occur ever again in theater history." In A TALENT TO AMUSE, Sheridan Morley gives the reader a lively portrait of Noel Coward as entertainer and man. Researched in depth and based on over 100 interviews, this biography deals more on Coward's theatrical accomplishments and was authorized by Mr. Coward as an addition to his own engaging account of his life. Publishers Weekly calls the book: "indispensable Cowardiana."

Of all the glittering personalities of the 1920's, none was more dazzling than its greatest poet, Edna St. Vincent Millay. In Jean Gould's searching biography THE POET AND HER BOOK, Edna Millay seems more current and vital in today's context. Here is a pioneer in poetic expression, a pioneer in free love, a pioneer in social protest. As one of America's greatest poets, the dramatic events of her bohemian life have been recorded here. There is also new material and new interpretation that sheds intriguing light on the formerly, shadowy, hidden love of Edna's life.

Art Masterpieces On World's Stamps

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Famous works of art, from long centuries before Christ to the latest Pop art, are being reproduced on postage stamps from many countries.

Twenty years ago it was a rare occasion for a country to issue a stamp showing an art object. French and British colonies used folk-art as minor details in stamps, but these were ornamental and usually hidden in frames or corners. Spain, Italy and Saar were three of the first countries to print stamps in which an art work was the major subject.

The real boom began in the early 1960's, when France released a set of four oversize stamps featuring modern art of Braque, Matisse, Cezanne, and de la Fresnaye. Engraved in full color, this set immediately became a success.

Since then, most major countries and many smaller ones have made available full color stamps of art treasures of their country. Greece, Egypt, Italy, Spain, Turkey, Algeria, Persia, China and Japan have turned to a ready source of ancient arts and crafts for subject matter. Germany, France, the U.S., Scandianvian countries, Switzerland and a host of others have selected master works of the past few centuries and modern times for their art stamps.

Some small countries which have little art of their own have resorted to printing stamps showing masterpieces in world-famous museums—the Louvre, the Prado and the Vatican Museum.

Today it is possible to form a vast pictorial representation of paintings, drawings, sculpture, folk-art, wood carvings, cave paintings—even outstanding items of traditional toys, buttons, and old musical instruments are being given the philatelic treatment.

The U.S. issued its first annual art stamp in 1961. On this occasion, Frederic Remington, noted painter of western Americana, was honored with a reproduction of "The Smoke Signals." In succeeding years a famous American artist has been featured on U.S. stamps each year.

Five Million Bottle Caps

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Five million bottles caps are heaped in Oakland elementary school's basement, the result of a contest between fifth and sixth grade math classes.

The student's gained national attention recently with their requests for bottle caps. The project was the brainchild of math teacher Peter Fine. He thought gathering one million of something would be a unique way of dramatizing the reality of the "million" figure.

Caps and letters were received from as far as California and Nevada. Principal Julie Sajo said the cans, boxes, and bags of caps had to be moved to the basement to protect the floors from collapse.

"I don't know what we are going to do with them," Fine said. "I'll wait until vacation is over before we do any more."

Heroin was involved in 93.6 per cent of new cases of drug addiction reported in 1967.

Sheppard Library Adds Rare History Of N.C.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Sheppard Memorial Library has a new addition for it's collection in the North Carolina Room this year.

A rare two volume HISTORY OF NORTH CAROLINA, FROM THE EARLIEST DISCOVERIES TO THE PRESENT TIME, published in 1880, has been acquired as the result of a gift this past summer from Greenville attorney Sam Underwood.

The gift was a memorial one in honor of his mother, Mrs. S.B. Underwood, Sr., and Lewis Cooper, a Greenville attorney.

"Mr. Underwood has had a life-time love affair with the library," stated Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian. "This is but one of many significant contributions he has made in the last 40 years."

In addition to the memorial gift making the purchase of the rare two volume history possible, Underwood recently contributed funds to purchase books for young people.

Pointing to a sizeable stack of books on her desk, Miss Copeland said: "These are the children's books we selected and purchased. They are being catalogued and will be on the shelves in a few days.

The history volumes are bound in half morocco. They are in excellent condition. John W. Moore's early definitive history of North Carolina was published in 1880 by Williams and Company of Raleigh.

Miss Copeland noted she had been scouting around for some time for this set. "When I received word it was available in Chapel Hill I was in a position to use Mr. Underwood's gift to purchase them."

Commenting on past memories and associations with libraries in Greenville, Underwood stated: "One of the greatest joys in my life is reading and studying. The public library here has always meant so much to me."

He recalled a time when circumstances were far different from what they are now in Greenville. "I can remember going to the library when it was on the second floor of a building on Evans Street. I was just a boy.

"From that time I've always had the feeling that a library should have as many different books on as many different subjects as possible."

Medieval Art Will Be Taken On Tour

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — From the world of stained glass, chalices, tapestries and reliquaries —the world of Romanesque and Gothic treasures—two important exhibitions will give Americans a rare opportunity this winter and spring to see medieval art at its best.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art, for the first time, is sending out on loan some of the major works from its medieval branch, the Cloisters.

This exhibit, "The Middle Ages—Treasures from the Cloisters and the Metropolitan Museum of Art," will be shown at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art from Jan. 13 through March 8.

From April 8 through June 8 it will be at the Art Institute of Chicago.

In approximately the same period, Feb. 12 through May 10, the Metropolitan will be showing in its own galleries a special exhibit of works borrowed from church, state and private collections in 16 countries. Titled "The Year 1200," it will contain more than 300 items.

The "Middle Ages" exhibit is a survey from the early Christian era to the 16th century, and includes sculpture, tapestries, ivories, illuminated manuscripts, enamels and metalwork, from Western Europe and the eastern Mediterranean.

One of the prize items is the famous Antioch Chalice, a eucharist cup of the 5th centruy, which was found in Syria. The Cloisters acquired it in 1950.

Another major work is the 13th century polychromed statue of the Virgin from Strasbourg Cathedral.

There is an important example of late Gothic metalwork, the brass "Eagle Lectern" from Louvain, dating from about 1500. It was acquired little more than a year ago.

Will Bolster Suez Front

CAIRO (UPI)—Libya and the Sudan have agreed to send more troops and tanks to bolster Arab forces along the Suez Canal frontlines, Arab diplomatic sources said Saturday.

The Sudan, which already has one reinforced battalion in the area, will send an additional infantry batalion to the Arab western front, the officials said.

In addition, the new Libyan revolutionary regime will send an armored battalion into Egypt, the sources said.

They said the agreement to reinforce the Suez line was reached during talks in Trkpoli, Libya, that ended Saturday with leaders of egypt, Libya and the Sudan taking part.

Conferring in the talks, aimed at strengthening relations between the three countries in the wake of the abortive Rabat summit conference, were Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, Libyan President Col. Hoammer el Kadhafi and the president of the Sudan, Gaafar el Numeiri.

A spokesman said that the vault's timing device failed to operate on time to open it Friday. He said the timing apparently was not properly sequenced for the holiday period.

Identical Cards To Their Sister

Japan Still Pro-America

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese voters sent the pro-American Liberal Democratic party (LDP) back to power for four more years Saturday in a nationwide election that gave a ringing endorsement to Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's policy of "Pacific partnership" with the United States.

Vote counting after Saturday's election to fill the 486-seat lower house of the Diet, or parliament, showed Sato's Liberal Democrats surged early to an unbeatable lead after the lightest turnout of Japanese voters since World War II.

With races for 343 of the 486 seats decided at 3 a.m. Sunday, nine hours after the polls closed, Sato's Liberal Democrats had captured 228. They needed 244 for a majority.

Disastrous Loss

The Japan Socialist party, a longtime critic of American policy in Asia, had won only 70 seats and faced a disastrous loss of its strength in the Diet while the Buddhist-oriented Komeito (clean government) party grabbed 18 and appeared well on the way to its goal of becoming the No. 3 party in the lower house.

The moderate Democratic Socialists took 11 seats and the Communists had three. Independent candidates, many of whom will vote with the LDP, held 13 seats.

With 15,275,669 votes counted, LDP candidates had won 55.07 per cent to 22.02 for the Socialists. Komeito had 7.72 per cent of the vote, Democratic Socialists 4.91 per cent and the Communists 3.79 per cent. Independents garnered 6.48 per cent.

Light Turnout

The government's election headquarters estimated that 67.8 per cent of Japan's 69,925,000 registered voters cast ballots. At the last general election in January, 1967, the turnout was 73.99 per cent.

The poor showing was blamed partly on a blizzard that hit northern Japan Saturday. However many Japanese criticized the government for holding the election the week before Japan's traditional New Years' Day holiday.

Sato dissolved the lower house of the Diet Dec. 2 after he returned from a visit to Washington with a promise from President Nixon that Japan would get Okinawa back.

Fatally Shot At Break-In Scene

RALEIGH (AP) — A Raleigh man was shot to death early Saturday morning in an alley beside a theater by a private detective who was investigating a break-in, police reported.

Police identified the dead man as Floyd Owen Howell, 42.

Police said Howell was seen entering a downtown beauty salon about 5:30 a.m. by a man who notified David Shaffer, a private detective on duty at the Sir Walter Hotel nearby.

Shaffer told police he arrived at the alley as Howell was backing out of the beauty parlor window. He said he ordered Howell to come out with his hands up but Howell had a gun in his hand as he came out.

Police said Shaffer fired twice, hitting Howell in the heart. Howell was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Police said Howell's gun was loaded. An inquest has been set for 3 p.m. Monday.

Newborn Baby A Drug Addict

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Doctors say an infant showed the classic signs of heroin withdrawal less than a day after he was born: restlessness, running nose, tiny legs drawn up to abdomen in response to severe stomach cramps.

The infant, a heroin addict at birth, was born earlier this month at the Tucson Medical Center, hospital officials revealed Friday.

The infant's mother and father, both Yaqui Indians in their late 20s, became addicts after their fourth child was born about three years ago.

Dr. Milton Semoff, a pediatrician, said the mother told him of her and her husband's addiction. After 15 days of treatment, the baby seemed to have recovered. He said the baby should be able to live a normal life.

"She told me if she didn't have a fix for two or three days during pregnancy, the baby would start kicking violently," the doctor said.

The infant left the hospital three days before Christmas to live with his grandmother in Tucson, Semoff says. In return for releasing the baby, hospital authorities made the couple agree to undergo treatment for their addiction at another Tucson Hospital.

"I think if the baby we had at the clinic is not put into a situation where the usage of drugs is a common thing, he will have no more chance of becoming a narcotic addict than any other human being. But if you return him to an environment conducive to drugs, chances are he will return to that," Semoff said.

He said, however, some other physicians believed the effects of such addiction are lasting.

'Forced' To Name POWs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The State Department is being "forced" to release the names of all American servicemen believed held captive by North Vietnam, says a leader of the Women's Strike for Peace.

Cora Weiss, recently returned from a two-week trip to North Vietnam, said Friday the department had no choice "because we brought so much reliable data back with us.," including letters to be mailed to 131 American families.

She accused the U.S. government of playing a "cruel political game" in its policy of releasing only the number of men believed held captive and not their names.

This is done, she maintained, to make it appear the North Vietnamese are withholding the names and thus "create an atmosphere of hate and misunderstanding" and to take the spotlight off what she said are the real issues of the war — a rapid withdrawal of American troops and the acceptance of a coalition Saigon government.

The State Department said Saturday it and the Defense Department maintain a list of men missing and believed held captive. But a spokesman said, "I have no information at this time about any planned announcement."

Driver Charged In Mishap Here

Jesse E. Adams, 42, of Newark, N.J. was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident and leaving the scene of an accident following investigation by police of an 11:40 p.m. traffic mishap at the corner of Fifth and Elizabeth Streets here Thursday.

Officers said the Adams car collided with one drive by Milton Earl Corey, 19, 1101 Colonial Ave.

Charge Driver In Collision

An estimated $350 in personal and property damages resulted here Friday in an 11:59 p.m. traffic accident on Brownlea Drive.

Charged with passing on the right in connection with the mishap was Julius Brown Kachmer, 16, 1044 Rockspring Drive.

Investigating officers said the Kachmer car collided with one driven by Harry Mills Wilson, 18, 1212 Charles St.

Damage set for the Kachmer car was $200 and that for the Wilson car was $150.

Bonn Urged Renounce

BERLIN (AP) — The East German Communist party organ, Neues Deutschland, called on Bonn today to renounce the 1954 Paris treaties that gave West Germany sovereignty.

The newspaper, in an editorial signed by assistant editor-in-chief Guenter Kertzscher, said the treaties discriminated against East Germany and represented a violation of the Potsdam agreement on Germany's Future worked out by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in 1945.

The editorial specifically assailed the articles of the Paris treaties whereby the United States, Britain and France reserved responsibility on questions concerning Germany as a whole. This has been cited in Bonn as a bar to West German recognition of East Germany.

BEGGAR FREEZES

RAPALLO, Italy (UPI)— Beggar Silvia Bruno, 75, froze to death while sleeping on a bench in the Rapallo public park on Christmas Eve, police said Saturday. They reported she clutched a handbag containing food and more than $3,840 in cash, stocks and a bankbook.

N.C. Highway Toll Continues To Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The traffic death toll in North Carolina was approaching the predicted number of 30 late Saturday as the long Christmas holiday period continued.

With three-fourths of the 102-hour period gone, the State Highway Patrol had counted at least 20 traffic deaths. The North Carolina Motor Club predicted that 30 persons would die in holiday traffic accidents.

The state toll for the year stands at 1,765, a drop of 87 from the same period last year.

The snow and ice storm which swept across North Carolina Christmas was blamed for at least two fatalities. John Bailey Snyder, 75, and his wife, Joyce Adam McNeil Snyder, 64, of North Wilkesboro were fatally injured when their car was struck head-on by another vehicle on ice-covered U.S. 421 near North Wilkesboro, the patrol said.

Robert Louis Speed, 45, of Rt. 1, Oxford, was killed in Granville County when another vehicle struck the car in which he was riding. The accident occurred on a rural paved road 12 miles north of Oxford.

Other fatalities include:

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison G. Martin of Rt. 1, Thomasville; John Hickerson, 47, of Atlanta, Ga.; Marcus Lee Taylor, 39, of Charlotte; Warren Parson of Camp Lejeune; John M. Harrison, 47, of Belhaven; Bertha T. Brannon, 46, of Virginia Beach, Va.; Ervin Eugene Bland, 24, of Rt. 3, Winterville.

Also, Shirley Wobbleton, 22, of Williamston; James Thomas Powell, 27, of Rt. 1, Wake Forest; Paul Simmons, 41, of Mount Olive; James Edward Gainey, 31, of Rt. 1, Hartsville, S.C.; Charles Jack Snelling, 39, of Rt. 1, Raleigh; James W. Stocks, 27, of Winterville; Jesse Willard Whitley, 27, of Rt. 2, Wendell; Teresa Lynn Walls, 5, of Rt. 1, Vilas, and Fred A. Becton, 17, of Kinston.

Gas Tank Coins Go Long Way

JOHNSTON, S. C. (AP) — Millworker Parks Whisenant started saving for a new car two years ago by dumping his spare coins in the gas tank of his old car.

He emptied the novel bank the other day, and it contained $895.

Quarantine Is Eased By Radio

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Successful clearance of ocean vessels through quarantine by radio at the Port of San Francisco during a six-month period has led the National Communicable Disease Center to extend the procedure to all U.S. ports.

Known as "Radio Pratique," the system permits inbound ships to meet quarantine requirements while at sea and to proceed directly to their berths to start cargo operations.

Formal public health inspection is performed at the berth, and in many cases crew members and passengers are not examined. A total of 1,100 vessels were cleared by radio at San Francisco during the six-month experimental period.

Traditional gifts for the 10th wedding anniversary are made of tin or aluminum.

◀ ANDY WILLIAMS
Will Being a TV Boss Change An Easygoing Star?

Ask Them Yourself

FOR HENRY GELLER,

General Counsel, Federal Communications Commission

Don't you think it ridiculous to ban the advertising of cigarettes on tv and ignore the advertising of alcoholic beverages, which many believe a greater menace to society?—Mrs. W. L. Allen, High Point, N.C.

● Broadcast stations have generally abstained, on a voluntary basis, from advertising hard liquor, and the radio and television advertising codes of the National Association of Broadcasters bar such advertising.

FOR RONALD ZIEGLER,

presidential press secretary

What happens to the old presidential limousine when you get a new one?—Greg Mescher, Marion, Ill.

● The automobiles used as presidential limousines are leased by the Secret Service from various automobile manufacturers. When the leases have expired, the limousines are returned to the manufacturer and in most instances are placed in a museum of some sort.

FOR JUDY ANN PRINCE,

Cigar Institute of America

How many women cigar smokers are there in the U.S.A.? Men smokers?—David Stone, Chicago, Ill.

● Our estimates are 100,000 for women and 15 million for men.

FOR DR. S. I. HAYAKAWA,

President, San Francisco State College

Are you related to Sessue Hayakawa, the movie star of the silent movie era?—Joseph R. Masters, Grand Island, N.Y.

● I am not related to Sessue Hayakawa.

FOR DAVID BURPEE,

President, Burpee Seed Co.

Why is it so important to develop a 2½-inch pure white marigold?—Mr. Edward Zeal, Indianola, Okla.

● Originally marigolds were of a gold color. We are trying to get other colors into marigolds and, therefore, offered anyone $10,000 for just a few seeds that will grow the first pure white marigold 2½ inches across. Of 4,500 gardeners who've sent us seeds, 24 have received $100 because theirs were so near white. I believe we will have a pure white marigold soon.

FOR DON SHULA,

coach, Baltimore Colts

Why don't pro-football players wear mouthpieces?—Michael Davenport, Slayden, Tenn.

● Many players do wear mouthpieces. It's up to the individual.

FOR RODNEY DANGERFIELD,

I have seen you on a lot of tv shows. Do you have a favorite show that you like to perform on?—D. R., Waco, Texas

● The Ed Sullivan Show because it's live, and the laughs aren't piped in.

FOR ANN LANDERS, columnist

Is it difficult to distinguish the real lovelorn letters from "phonies?"—The Fogersons, Sacramento, Calif.

● I'm sure I was fooled at first—but not any more. I have learned to recognize phony letters. People in real trouble won't bother to compose a masterpiece. The real letters have a tone of humility and urgency that is almost impossible to fake.

FOR EDDIE ALBERT

Do you really have a basic interest in farming? Have you ever been a farmer?—John Meyer, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● I "farm" the back yard of my home at Pacific Palisades—a 35-by-40 foot truck garden where I grow my own produce. I use no chemical fertilizers, and I must say my corn turns out better than it does on "Green Acres."

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. Send question, preferably on a post card, to Ask Them Yourself, Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We cannot acknowledge questions, but $5 will be paid for each one used.

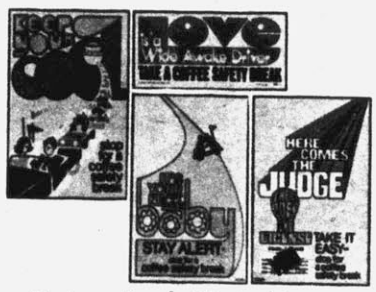
What in the World!

The Teacher Flunked One of the first big magazines to notice actor Robert Forster (now in "Medium Cool") was Family Weekly. He was substitute teaching then in Rochester, N.Y., and we photographed him with his lesson written on a blackboard. Alas, Robert had misspelled "rehersal" (sic). "I never saw so many letters," he laments. "Some were scathing—'No wonder our children are ill-educated; look at the teachers!' Luckily my acting career surged upward just then." Can't he spell? "Sure," he replies. "I was just nervous having my picture taken for Family Weekly."

Robert Forster

Color Us Bowling The Brunswick people surveyed bowlers on the preferences in color for bowling balls. Chicago men stuck with manly black. Their women opted for blue or avocado. In another survey, though, both men and women chose avocado bowling balls. Where? Where else but avocado land—California! (Sacramento, to be precise.) Now let's see those orange balls, Florida!

Pop Art Safety Psychedelic posters and juvenile jargon are being used to preach safety to a whole new generation of drivers. The tuned-in safety campaign is being conducted largely by the National Coffee Safety Stop Program which advocates drivers of any age to stop for a cup of hot java in order to "keep your cool." Brightly designed posters and bumper stickers are available in various high schools, churches, and youth organizations in an effort to reach out to the nation's young drivers and cut down on auto accidents.



Posters aimed at teen drivers

The Creative Child "Your child's growth in the use of creative materials is sure to progress through three stages," says Bernard Ryan, Jr., in his book, "Your Child and the First Year of School." The first, manipulative or experimental, has already begun in infancy and may continue into first grade. Symbolic may continue until age eight or nine; purely manipulative creations begin to symbolize a feeling or an idea. Sometimes during the first year of school, your child probably also will pass to the third stage—realistic. However, there is nothing wrong if he waits until nine. He will be concerned with proportion, perspective, and true color—that is, reality.

Garage A-Go-Go Here's one garage that goes with the car. It's a polyester fold-up cover which is toted atop the car.

Garage goes with car

In just a few minutes the auto wraparound is unfolded and snapped in place to give the car protection from rain, dirt, and thefts. Manufactured in Germany, the portable garage weighs 20 pounds and is only 1½ inches thick when folded. This new creation might solve the problem some people have in driving their car into the garage without fender-denting.

What Dinner

AT THE JOHNSONS, the dinner table is frequently a battleground.

The kids bicker and elbow each other, Dad bawls out Billy for not using his napkin, and the boy stalks away to watch tv. Jane screams that she's being teased about her new hair-do, Mother yells louder, and the stormy meal ends in a cloud of anger and gloom.

In contrast, dinnertime at their neighbors, the Wallaces, is a pleasurable occasion that everyone looks forward to. On a typical evening, Johnny relates a funny incident that happened on the way home from school, and laughter warms the room. Mr. Wallace asks them what they think about his new idea for their upcoming vacation. Mrs. Wallace serves leisurely while they all in turn voice their views in the open forum. The family repast here is relaxed, intimate, most cheerful, and often stimulating.

Dinnertime dynamics, the interaction among members of the household at mealtime, has lately come under scrutiny by psychologists and social scientists as providing important insights into a family's cohesiveness and emotional health.

"Everything that happens in the family is mirrored at the dinner table," says Dr. Kitty LaPerriere of the Family Institute, which uses the total family approach to psychotherapy. "It's a kind of rehearsal within the home of behavior in the outside world—of tolerance, attitudes, and mental outlook. Many parents hang on to the dinner as a symbol of family unity and as a time and place to express some kind of control."

In the American way of life, dinner is usually the one time in the day when the entire family sits down together. Against its background of emotional currents and cross-currents, psychiatrists contend, a child's personality develops.

In a recent study of dinnertime dynamics, Robert R. Douglas, executive director of the Tucson (Ariz.) Child Guidance Clinic, pointed out that dinner, rather than existing as an isolated event, tends to reflect general patterns of behavior.

"Conflict at dinner," he reported, "often can be related to struggles in other areas of family activity, so that the meal offers a microscopic portrait of interaction."

Thus, if Junior rebels against his bossy sister, squabbles, dawdles, or has a temper tantrum at dinner, it may be the only time he can ventilate his hang-ups to both parents. In a floundering marriage, the father may use the occasion to enforce his authority harshly, making dinner an arena for argument. A mother's fatigue or frustration with social activities may come out as an irritable explosion when a child asks for a larger piece of cake. On the other hand, when a family is untroubled, there's an easy give-and-take in the dinner talk and behavior.

In observing family patterns, sociologists have proposed that a parent be asked to "describe as much as you can what happens at a typical evening meal." What happens hinges largely on the dinner "style" or rituals practiced at home.

Variations in style and rituals are infinite, Robert Douglas found in his study. Depending on how and where they were brought up, parents have different ideas of "proper table manners," what is "a good meal," the seating arrangement, and the right time to eat.

In many homes, dinner is highly ritualized, starting at a specific time with the saying of grace; no one sits down until Mother is seated, and carving and serving are ceremonies. There's a sense of rightness that makes for family pride. At the other end of the spectrum are families that "eat and run" or take their plates to sit glued before the tv screen.

Among illustrative case histories described by Douglas is the family with the teen-age son who generally complains about the food, gulps it down, and rushes out to see his friends. ("He strongly resents his parents because they are over-controlling," Douglas comments.)

There's the upper-bracket family in which the children are served in the kitchen at seven while the parents have cocktails on the patio, then dine alone at nine. ("The children say the father is 'cold' and two of them have emotional and behavioral problems.")

In another type of home, the parents constantly nag the children about manners and observing the rule that "you must eat what you take." Their eight-year-old daughter, a slow eater, has "stomach trouble." At times, the mother gets "fed up" with the battling and takes her dinner to the living room.

Of all the styles, one of the worst is the "silent" dinner, according to Dr. Leslie Cowne, research associate at the National Association for Mental Health. In such homes, the father (or mother) dictates that no one should talk at the main meal.

"It's painful and punishing," says Doctor Cowne. "Children never get a response, can't fight back, can't get approval. The silent treatment belittles and ridicules them."

No one looks forward to such a tense meal and everyone tries to leave the table as soon as possible. However, Doctor LaPerriere points out that an occasional silent dinner may be a good thing when tensions have been fermenting, and parents want to prevent turmoil. But if dinner conversation is suppressed often enough, outbursts of bottled-up dissension may be inevitable.

Devastating, too, is the dinner table that's used as a courtroom for complaints and meting out of punishment. Has Danny neglected to clean up his room? Did Betty pass up studying for her math exam and fail it? Charges are presented, parents are the jury, and Judge Pop decides the penalties—which are contested heatedly, and someone is apt to be banished from the table, thus adding to the problem.

"These youngsters," observes Doctor LaPerriere, "develop eating problems, and adults are apt to give themselves ulcers. Obviously, any meal filled with rancor affects the digestive system."

The subtle or overt harm inflicted by negative practices tends to weaken family ties, researchers agree. When members of a family eat separately, they are isolating each other, drifting apart. In effect, each is saying to the others, "I don't care for your company." When done repeatedly, family life holds little meaning. If a child is always nagged or ridiculed at the table, he keeps away from the house and avoids bringing friends home, where he'd be embarrassed by criticism.

Think about your own family dinner. You may be unaware of one or more of these faults and fallacies:

● Are the children allowed to monopolize the meal? "Over-permissiveness," says Doctor Cowne, "by parents who don't know what limits to set is the line of least resistance, an abdication of responsibility. It's a poor pattern for growing up. A child accustomed to be the focus of attention at home expects to be a kingpin with his friends at school and later at work. When he's not accorded the central role elsewhere, he may turn disruptive."

● Do you often have to wait for a child who is chronically late to dinner? Mrs. Lillian Opatoshu, program director at the Child Study Association of America, advises: "Don't wait. Talk to the child, explain why you all have dinner together on schedule, that everyone else has rights. He, too, must have a sense of responsibility and be fair to Mother."

● Are table manners overemphasized and rigid control maintained? This incites discord, rebellion, and competitiveness.

● Have you allowed dinner to become a battlefield, the children bickering until someone is sent away? One cure is to plan for neutral, stimulating conversation that will involve them and keep them out of mischief.

"To break the pattern," suggests Mrs. Opatoshu, "call a moratorium. Have the children eat by themselves until you figure out why the whole family can't eat in peace. Cues to the dissension should come from the children. Before dinner, ask each child privately what's wrong, what can be done to improve the situation. Gradually create an atmosphere in which squabbling does not happen. Then a full family dinner becomes a gala event."

● Is a child sharply reprimanded when he drops a fork or breaks a dish? Many parents, forgetting that a youngster can be clumsy, take the accident as a sign of misbehavior and make more of an issue than it deserves.

● Are you impatient and annoyed with a dawdling child? He may be a naturally slow eater, dislike the food, or want to create a fuss. If you believe he is deliberately lagging, either quietly take the plate away after a reasonable time or have everyone leave the table and let him finish alone. A child who likes company will learn to eat at your pace. But once you become upset, he is likely to slow down even more to hold attention.

"If the child is very slow," says Mrs. Opatoshu, "perhaps he should not be eating with the family. But if you're convinced he is using this tactic as a weapon, disarm him. As soon as others are finished with the main dish, bring on the dessert."

Making dinnertime a really pleasant experience is an art. To achieve it, here are some guidelines for parents offered by the psychologists and family counselors consulted by FAMILY WEEKLY:

1. Approach dinner in a good frame of mind. Adults may first have a loosening-up drink, giving them a chance to unwind. Perhaps Mother can put her feet up and glance at the evening paper. Children can play with toys or put on a record for a few minutes to release tensions. Everyone should have ample warning that dinner is ready, not be jerked away from what they're doing and arrive in a bad mood.

2. Bear in mind that dinner is mainly for nutritional purposes and that digestion will be better in a harmonious atmosphere.

3. Mother should prepare her meal so that she is not traipsing back and forth from the kitchen. There should be uninterrupted periods when the entire family is around the table. When Mother spends most of her time in the kitchen, the family may see her as a drudge.

4. The physical set-up at dinner should indicate it's an important happening. No milk cartons or cans on the table. Place settings add grace.

5. In the conversation, everyone who wishes should have his turn. No one person or topic should dominate.

6. "Encourage the ritual," says Doctor Cowne, "of saying 'thank you' to Mother or 'it was a wonderful meal.' She will feel appreciated."

7. To avoid a courtroom type of dinner, handle gripes before or after the meal. Deal with them early, before they burgeon into big grievances at the table.

8. Relegate serious arguments to a time and place other than at dinner. To take the pressure off the family meal, advises Doctor LaPerriere, set aside an evening in the week to discuss complaints.

9. Dinner can be enhanced if it's made an opportunity for shared enjoyment—the announcement of good news, such as Dad's promotion or Debby's election to the honor society.

10. Eating out, choose a restaurant where small youngsters are not expected to have perfect adult table manners.

The ideal family dinner, in Mrs. Opatoshu's opinion, is one in which everybody is ready and in the mood, enjoys the food, and sees the gathering of the clan as a forum for togetherness to discuss the day's events. It should be a meaningful and nurturing experience.

But dinnertime can be flexible. When a suburban husband, for example, arrives home exhausted, he may be in no mood to share the meal with his exuberant offspring. After he has unbent, he can communicate with his children at bedtime. So parents should not feel guilty if they occasionally skip a family-gathered meal and dine alone.

Flexibility is also shown at the back-yard barbecue or at holiday meals, as at Christmas. Here, everyone is generally more relaxed and discipline can slacken.

Essentially, a good dinner is a time to reaffirm family unity and foster consideration for others. When enjoyed by everyone, it reveals that parents and children like and love each other, tightly cementing the family's bonds. ♦

A Beauty Fluid That Keeps Your Skin Youthfully Beautiful

That lovely moist bloom you've noticed on a baby's complexion is strictly by courtesy of Mother Nature; the exquisite, smooth bloom you see today on a beautiful woman's complexion is more than probably by virtue of a remarkable tropical moist oil discovered through scientific research.

Never before have women been more fortunate in their ability to help preserve the precious, youthful qualities of the complexion. The existence of this unique beauty fluid now makes it possible to cherish and moisturize the skin so that it begins to blossom almost at once with a superb petal-smooth splendor and a soft, dewy freshness. In America the moist oil discovery is of particular importance in establishing a healthy balance when the complexion tends to be affected by climatic extremes.

The extremely lovely complexion of childhood is sustained through the early years by a consummate supply of natural oil and moisture. Inevitably, in the fullness of time, the skin matures and the body processes slow down — and this is where the remarkable advances made by modern skin researchers can step in to open new vistas of complexion beauty. Through the aid of the tropical moist oil, the perfect conditions under which your childhood skin once thrived can virtually be re-created to maintain a wonderfully supple, efflorescent complexion.

As water is to a flower, so this beautifying fluid is to your skin, reviving and helping to keep it flawless, fresh, constantly flourishing. Endowed with hygroscopic elements that attract and draw moisture from the atmosphere, the moist oil discourages dehydration of the epidermal (top) layer and assists in the retention of a delicate bloom on the skin all through the day.

Because it is isotonically pressurized to balance successfully with the skin's own fluids the moist oil contributes to the stabilization of the cell replacement rate so that youth and resilience are easier to maintain. Being a perfect blend of oil and moisture that is homologous to the skin's own fluids, this beautifying combination amalgamates spontaneously with dwindling natural moist oil supplies and effectively aids in keeping dryness and wrinkles at bay.

Women of all ages smooth this remarkable beauty fluid over their complexions each night and use it as an incomparable base for make-up by day. In tropical countries it is known as oil of Ulan, and in Britain and other parts of the world as oil of Ulay. In America it is available from druggists as oil of Olay, a beauty fluid with a wonderful, unprecedented penchant for keeping skin baby-like and beautiful.

ANDY WILLIAMS:

He Calls Himself the Boss—But Gently

"I'M THE BOSS, YES," says Andy Williams of his new tv show. "That's what it says in the contract—somebody has to make decisions. It might as well be me!"

But "boss" is a tough word to describe easygoing, millionaire singer-tv producer Andy Williams. Andy is an easygoing, jocular sort of guy who has a way of getting exactly what he wants—without "bossing." For instance, if someone on the show's production staff disagrees with the way Andy is handling a song or act, there's no stubborn self-assertiveness.

Andy and wife Claudine Longet.

Andy remains cool and does what the staff member wants. Usually he does it badly with the explanation, "I don't feel comfortable doing it that way. Did you notice that?" There's no argument: it's obvious the boss is right.

Andy has come a long way from Wall Lake, Iowa—and in the same easy, calculated manner. His father and three older brothers made up the entire choir at the family church. The Williams' singing reputation grew, and the boys (Bob, Don, Dick, and Andy) began accepting offers to sing on radio shows. When the family moved to Chicago, they continued their radio careers and became well known.

In 1946 the boys got together a nightclub act along with comedienne Kay Thompson, and they were on their way. The act broke up when two of the older brothers were drafted into the Army, leaving Andy to shift for himself in show business. From that point on, he has built himself up to become one of the top singing stars, his own producer, a basketball team investor, and a millionaire.

The embarrassing part of success, in Andy's eyes, is his regular awards for his humanitarian efforts, which others insist on making public. He'd be the last to tell you he gave the proceeds of four of his albums to charity—a gesture costing more than half a million dollars!

"Love, Andy," for example, went to the Asthmatic Research Institute and Hospital, a research organization close to Andy's heart since his dad is an asthmatic and was so ill when they moved to California that he retired. He now handles Andy's real-estate investments.

Andy would like to keep his personal life to himself. He's a devoted father to his remarkably attractive youngsters, Noelle Christine, 6, Christian Jay, 4, and the new baby, Robert Andrew (named for Robert Kennedy).

He tries to get up each morning to have breakfast with the two older children since he is at his office around 8 o'clock and doesn't get to see them sometimes until the next breakfast meeting.

What spare time he has is devoted to golf, which he shoots in the mid 70s. He also plays a lot of tennis, usually before going to work, and swims whenever he can. Andy drives the first Rolls-Royce he bought back in 1965, and his wife, singer Claudine Longet, has a Mercedes. "The kids and the dog have the Buick station wagon," he adds.

But in spite of his easygoing appearance, Andy is a worrier. "Sometimes I start thinking at night and can't sleep. Then I take a tranquilizer—never a sleeping pill. Or I read."

Fortunately for Andy, his wife not only understands him, she understands the life he has chosen. The two met when Claudine came to this country from France to dance in Las Vegas. Her car had a flat tire, and Andy stopped to help. They were married Dec. 15, 1961.

In spite of the fact that she has become a very successful recording artist in her own right, there is no competition between them. "I did tell her not to use my songs, however," Andy says, grinning.

When they were first married, Andy used to tease her about her difficulty in comprehending English and often stopped in the middle of a conversation to prod his wife into an error. "What kind of car do we have, dear?" he'd ask. "A two-ton comfortable," the bride would answer.

Andy has mentioned more than once that he'd like nothing better than to tackle a dramatic role. But if he failed, what would that do to his prestige?

"Each person has to feel his way toward his own goal," he answered. "I simply feel that in making your way, you should give your fellow man respect. In return, you will get respect."

Today any family can get into debt and suddenly be at a creditor's mercy. A collection lawyer knows his exact legal rights—and yours. But you don't:

SIDNEY SHERWIN
Counsellor at Law, New York

Why Haven't People In Debt Been Told These Facts?

If you're in debt and want to get out, there are 71 ingenious (but perfectly legal) ways to do it. A top debt authority tells how — and how to reduce loan payments, get more credit (even if you're in bad shape) — freeze indebtedness indefinitely. AND MUCH MORE:

Where you live, how old you are and other conditions may actually determine whether a creditor in many situations can collect one cent from you.

Even the fact that your creditor has received a money judgment against you does not necessarily mean that he will receive any money from you.

Did you know that some debts need not be paid – but that you must know what to do about them and when:

But if you're in debt and don't know exactly what to do you can get into tragic trouble fast:

THIS COULD HAPPEN TO YOU:

Unknowingly and innocently through no intended fault of your own you find yourself in debt. You simply temporarily cannot pay up. Yet suddenly the whole world seems on your creditor's side against you.

For years a distinguished debt authority, Sidney Sherwin, has been investigating just such situations. He reports that many gas and electric companies often reveal your Bank when given as a reference.

He states that the Motor Vehicle Bureau in many states cooperate with creditors acting against you. He tells how creditors find out the name of your automobile finance company, and then find still other of your assets. He tells how some private detectives specializing in repossessing vehicles work closely with a Marshall to seize your car.

Suddenly your salary is garnisheed, your bank account is seized. How can you work – or even go on?

INSTANT POWERFUL HELP – IF YOU KNOW ABOUT IT

In a great many cases your situation will instantly and suddenly change for the better when you simply know your rights.

Sidney Sherwin marshalls in your behalf all the key facts about your rights learned in a lifetime of debt law study.

Do you know when a creditor can automatically get a judgment against you? In his brand new book "How To Get Out of Debt Painlessly" Sidney Sherwin shows how you can easily stop this cold.

Do you know when a seller despite proved dishonest claims can still legally collect? Sidney Sherwin shows how you can possibly collect from the seller three times the product's cost.

Do you know when a Sheriff can arrest you if you're in debt – and forcibly bring you into court. Sidney Sherwin shows you how to prevent this ever.

Sidney Sherwin tells you exactly your legal rights if you are ever in debt.

HOW TO GET THE GOVERNMENT ON YOUR SIDE:

Do you realize that courts will generally bend over backwards to keep the judgment debtor from the clutches of the grasping creditor? Sidney Sherwin tells you how to take advantage of this.

Sidney Sherwin tells you how the U.S. Government protects average debtors 7 ways from creditors. He tells how the government agencies help protect from creditors, debtors, whose principal income is derived from wages – and tells them how to avoid any necessity to go bankrupt. He describes a simple way to get the U.S. Government to keep creditors from getting your tax refunds. He tells how the U.S. Government can stop creditors from taking legal action against you, get your employer to cooperate and help you pay them off a little at a time to each.

Sidney Sherwin tells how you can take advantage of the protection the U.S. Government now guarantees purchasers on the installment plan. Also how you may be able to avoid paying one cent of even state. He explains which situations the U.S. Government will soon allow you to sue a creditor for twice the amount of finance charge plus court costs.

He reports the 9 government branches that can answer whether the installment seller told you the truth about the payments. He reveals how your bank or library can help you avoid over-paying interest and when government agencies allow you to cancel a time payment contract.

PROTECTION YOURS TO ACCEPT!

Sidney Sherwin tells you what a creditor must prove before any court will allow any legal action against you. He specifies what of your property is legally exempt or "untouchable" by a creditor depending on the state in which you live protected for you by definite laws and statutes of.

He tells you when a Marshall or Sheriff must give up and cannot collect a judgment – making you "judgment proof." He tells what many do legally – even after being served by Attorney, Marshall or Sheriff with legal paper after paper – to leave the creditor with an empty judgment.

He tells when it is impossible for any creditor to put any debtor in jail. He states the remedies against a creditor who is malicious, slanderous or threatens you with legal action.

He tells when an agreement for you to pay for something may be unenforceable in your state and when in certain states it can be an actual crime by the seller. He describes when it can be shown that a creditor took advantage of a debtor and be legally stopped from collecting a single penny in any state. He gives three kinds of situations in which a creditor with a perfectly legal claim can never take legal steps against you. He tells when your promise to pay money to someone else is not sufficient reason for you to be legally responsible to pay that debt.

A TREASURE HOUSE OF HELP

Here's the protection you are entitled to against default judgment, any law suit or legal proceeding against you, or any foreclosure of chattels and mortgages against you or against eviction . . . if you're in the Armed Forces, Coast Guard or public health service – or even in the family of someone in one of these categories – or even if you endorsed or guaranteed any note of anyone in these categories. Here's how and when creditors are actually punishable who try to take advantage illegally of anyone in these categories.

Here are the kinds of debts that cannot be legally collected in almost any state. Here's when legally collectable debts can no longer be legally collected in different states.

Sidney Sherwin reports to you the extra protection you legally can get against creditors (if you live in the country). He reports extra protection you get if you're divorced. He tells how to take advantage of these protections.

Here's how to make a settlement for part payment of your debts with full release of the balance and do so out of court, without court costs and fees. Here's actual wording of suggested letters to creditors concerning it.

Here's how to put property beyond the reach of any individual creditor and protect the interest of all. Here are the states in which a debtor can prefer one creditor over another or even deprive a creditor that displeases him from a share of the assets.

Sidney Sherwin tells when you can sue a creditor for libel or slander or assault – for violations of postal regulations, for extortion, even in some areas for evasion of your rights of privacy. He tells what you can now legally do against creditors who have given credit information about you to various credit bureaus. He tells what a creditor might do which if you act properly might result in his being fired or even imprisoned.

Sidney Sherwin gives you your rights against creditors if you are under 21 how to take advantage of them. He tells when simply moving to another state can make you safe from the clutches of your attacking creditors.

IT'S ALL HERE

What you can do personally and when to consult an attorney. When to rely on a salesman. What to make him do when he promises anything. What to do if you don't understand any word or words in the contract.

Here's what to do if you become ill or an accident keeps you from paying your debts. Here's exactly what to do when you receive a summons. And what 99% of debtors do to avoid giving away facts a creditor seeks to find out.

You're told the kind of creditor that probably will never sue and what to avoid that could cause him to. And when your wife is completely protected from seizure of your insurance benefits and when not. Or when verbal contracts are enforceable and when not. And many things you should know about bankruptcy and the best statutes in certain states a corporate debtor can act under with no stigma of an assignment, no court controls or delay causing court orders.

Here's what to do when if a bank or finance company notifies you they are collecting for the seller. Here's the kind of insurance policy and benefits that creditors cannot touch. The kind of U.S. Government payments creditors cannot touch. The kind of investment income creditors cannot get at. The kind of retirement benefits creditors cannot attack. Here's when garnishee of your wages is not permitted – if you know your rights. And the states that protect you from creditors most. Even how to protect a prospective inheritance from creditors.

Sidney Sherwin Protects Innocent People—And Is Death on Deadbeats:

Lawyers seek his counsel on behalf of clients who cannot in any other way collect honest obligations. Countless times he has sternly collected from hardened and "hopeless" written off debt evaders and skippers.

For years Sidney Sherwin's private hobby has been protecting innocent people in debt through neither intent nor fault. Nothing arouses Sidney Sherwin's indignation more than the occasional unscrupulous creditor. Such a creditor knows what the debtor does not know about the law. He can bluff or threaten without contradiction. And all too tragically often he can take advantage of the weak, the uneducated and the disadvantaged person in debt.

But Sidney Sherwin knows the law on debt, the full rights of debtors as well as creditors perhaps better than any man you'll ever meet. And Sidney Sherwin has taken the fruits of a lifetime of study of your rights as a debtor and made it available to anyone in need of it. Consult your lawyer he advises. But know your rights and don't be taken advantage of by anyone. It's all yours without a penny's risk as stated below.

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN?

It means blessed instant relief from worries and headaches that otherwise can drive you wild, keep you from working and wreck your family life.

It means you might easily avoid completely the debtor mistakes you'd otherwise make. It means you're going to relax and feel new life and a new chance.

There's never been anything like it. If you're in debt and want to get out this book was written for you.

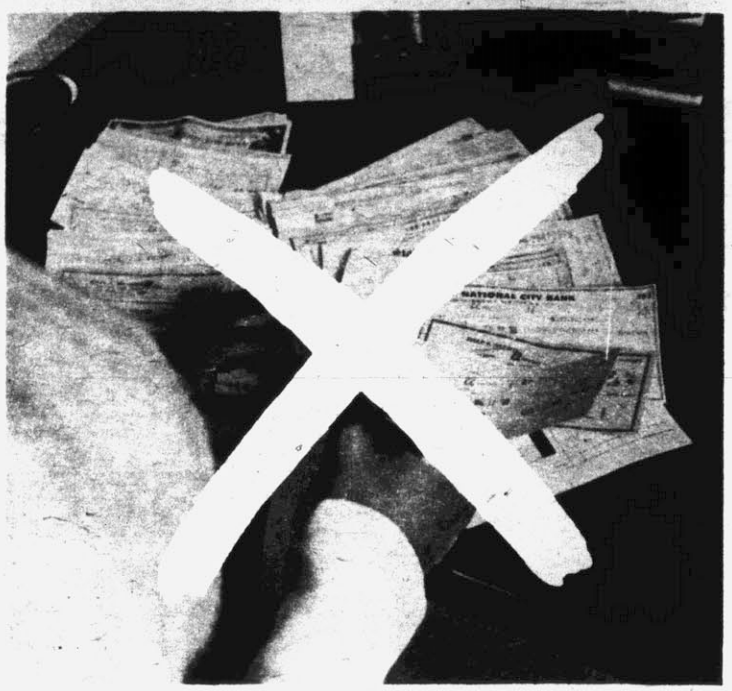
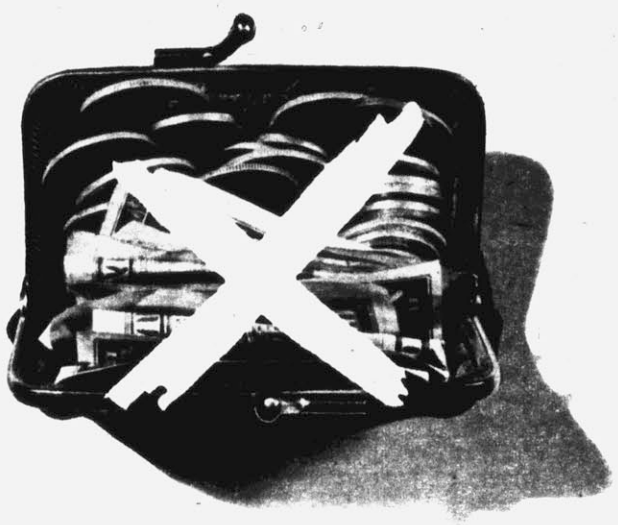
Are We Headed for a Moneyless Society?





A computer card will someday replace currency and checks; not everyone may welcome the change— especially bank robbers

By JOE McCARTHY

EVER WISH you didn't have to worry about money—whether it is in cash or in a checkbook? Well, the day when cash and checks will become as scarce as silver dollars is not far away, many bankers now feel.

Why? Because the fast-increasing avalanche of paper used every day in routine money transactions is getting to be too big to handle.

We're being choked by paper, one bank official says. "The American people are now cashing nearly 20 billion checks a year. And that's just checks alone—not counting paper currency, deposit slips, withdrawal slips, and I don't know how many other pieces of paper.

"Aside from the tremendous cost of handling so much paper—a check sometimes passes through 20 hands before it ends up back in the depositor's monthly statement envelope—the physical job of sorting and transporting it will soon paralyze us. We've got to find a way of handling the finances of buyers and sellers without using so much paper, whether we want to or not."

The only solution seems to be to switch to paperless "electronic money" or the use of bank accounts in which deposits and withdrawals will be made by electronic computer signals instead of checks and cash.

Every home and place of business would have an electronic computer terminal which sends financial information to and from a nationwide computer banking system. And instead of carrying cash or a checkbook, every wage-earning husband and shopping housewife will have an electronic identification device, similar to a credit card, which can be presented to a restaurant cashier or to a department-store clerk.

By inserting the credit-card device in its computer terminal and punching a few keys, the restaurant or the store will instantaneously transfer the price of the lunch or the cost of the purchased merchandise from the customer's account to its own bank.

Some money in small amounts—mostly change and $1 bills—will still be used, of course, for buying newspapers, chewing gum, or a cup of coffee. Coins and small bills used for such pocket money will be obtained by inserting your credit card in a vending machine at a public place, which will give you a little cash and deduct it from your account.

Under the computerized paperless banking system, the customer will make very few visits to the bank in person—because his deposits and withdrawals will be made for him electronically—and he will pay few bills personally. His employer will credit the amount of his salary to his bank account instead of handing him a check and, by prearrangement, the bank will deduct from his account monthly payments for his rent, insurance premiums, and similar bills.

And at any hour of the day or night, if the depositor wants to know how much money he has left in his account after the bills are paid, he can simply go to the computer system's terminal in his own home, insert his identifying credit card or use some other sort of prearranged identifying signal—as a privacy safeguard—and punch a few code numbers on its keyboard.

The terminal's tv-screen will flash a picture of the present up-to-the-minute status of his checking account—as well as the balance in his savings account and the unpaid balance on, say, his 20-year mortgage loan.

How soon could such a money system be put into operation? Most of the technological knowledge needed for it is already available, but there are a few engineering bugs yet to be worked out—for example, the system would have to be completely fraudproof.

Unlike the familiar credit cards, which are merely charge-account symbols, an identification device used to withdraw money immediately from someone's bank account would have to be absolutely safeguarded. In the hands of a thief or any unauthorized person, it could cause financial ruin long before a stop-payment warning could be posted on the account. A marking on the card which could be read by an electronic machine would detect forgery but would not tell whether the card had been recently lost or stolen from its legal owner.

An RCA scientist, Dr. Donald S. McCoy, feels that it may be possible to positively identify a cardholder through a speech-recognition device that would check his inflection of a certain code-worded phrase against a previously recorded voice signature. But the electronic banking system also would require an identity check that did not need to travel over thousands of miles of wire to a computer's memory bank every time someone bought some item or other.

Besides the identification problem, the establishment of a nationwide electronic banking-computer network would need complete co-operation of all the various big city and small town banking institutions. In the opinion of many bankers themselves, that need for teamwork will hold up the advent of cashless and checkless money transactions, even after all of the technical bugs are ironed out.

There are human obstacles, too. About 35 percent of the population still refuses to use checks and probably would resist computer billing. Others—including businessmen—write checks to cover purchases, even though they know they do not have sufficient funds. The check-writer usually covers the "floater" check before it bounces. That form of "short-term credit" would be impossible under the computer system. On the other hand, the biggest losers would be bank robbers and burglars—no cash, no robberies.

So a moneyless society may not be right around the corner—but, according to most bankers, it's not too far down the street. ◆

(confessions of a big man's wife)

Have you any idea what it means— ...to fall in love with a King-Size man?

IT MEANS kingsize beds. It means aisle seats at the movies. It means running when he's walking. It means holding my breath while he tries on his new jacket.

For the clothes he wore never seemed to fit him correctly. I'd almost cry to see my handsome man in skimpy shirts or slacks, or a jacket that looked two sizes too small. Nothing he wore was designed or proportioned right for a man his size.

I thought that by shopping for him myself I could change all that. In our town there are many good men's stores. I shopped in each of them. But any shirt or slacks or jacket I chose, it was always the same answer, "Sorry, M'am, we don't have it in that size!"

Then one day a friend showed me the new KING-SIZE Catalog. It was a revelation! I could see these people were BIG MEN Specialists. They understood. For here were 128 pages crammed with smart, stylish clothing and shoes .... sweaters, slacks, and jackets . . . all specially designed for TALL and BIG men! Necks to 22" . . . sleeves to 38" . . . inseams up to 42" . . . sizes to XXXL! And the finest brands — McGregor, Arrow, Manhattan, Jantzen, Weldon. 200 shoe styles in sizes from 10 to 16, widths AAA to EEE . . . including DuPont Corfam, Hush Puppies, Bates Floaters and others.

Best of all, this beautiful KING-SIZE Catalog doesn't cost a penny. And every item carries the famous KING-SIZE Money-Back Guarantee, "You must be completely satisfied both BEFORE and AFTER wearing, or you get an immediate refund or exchange." Could anything be fairer?

If your husband (son, brother, boyfriend) has the same kind of King-Size problem, you can solve it the same way I did. Just sit down and write for the FREE KING-SIZE Catalog. When it comes, you and your TALL and BIG man will discover how much FUN buying the right clothes for your KING-SIZE man can be.

The KING SIZE Co., 6229 King-Size Bldg., Brockton, Mass. 02402

Gentlemen:

I'm tired of dashing from store to store unable to find clothes for my big man. Please rush me your FREE Full-Color, 128 page Catalog of Apparel and Footwear exclusively for Tall and Big men.

You'll never need to buy another pair of socks again– for the rest of your life! (unless your laundry loses them)

6 pair ONLY $7.98

When our new merchandise man was offered an exclusive on these indestructible nylon socks, he called the manufacturer a liar.

"Can't be done!" he said. "If the socks are as strong and durable as you claim, they've got to be so stiff underfoot, they'll be unwearable!"

"Always come out like new," barked the manufacturer. "Permanent colors, lasting texture and shape."

"Unconditional!" snapped the manufacturer.

"No catch, no secret!" said the manufacturer happily. "8-ply DuPont nylon — instead of the usual 4. Woven so closely, they make ordinary socks look like they're three-quarters air, by comparison! Styled by one of the world's great sock designers—for perfect proportion and fit. Guaranteed to wear forever, in normal use. That 'normal use' simply means don't burn holes in them deliberately, or try to cut them with scissors or razor."

We still had to be shown. So we got samples. And we wore them. And wore them. And machine washed them. And Laundromatted them. And tortured them. Like wearing one pair for a week straight—till we thought they'd drown in sweat.

Then we washed them — with no sweat! They looked and felt like new. The socks didn't surrender. We did. They're for real—and forever!

So here they are. The forever socks. In a 6-pair assortment of smart solid colors to complement any wardrobe, 2 pair black, 2 charcoal, 1 navy, 1 loden. Ankle length, with elastic tops for snug fit. Fit any size 10½ to 13.

6 pair only $7.98

If you've got a slow laundry (or grown-up kids), take us up on our discount dozen offer . . . 12 pair — only $14.98. Same assortment (only doubled) . . . same forever guarantee!

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY GUARANTEED

ONLY $6 WORTH OF MOTALOY RECONDITIONS YOUR ENGINE LIKE A $100 RING AND VALVE JOB!

JUST DROP 4 Motaloy tabs into your gas tank . . . and you've started your engine rebuilding job! Each tab is a scientifically compounded alloy of 9 metals and elements. As you drive, tiny Motaloy particles are released into the fuel. These Motaloy molecules are carried through the fuel line into the combustion chamber . . . where the intense heat of ignition activates them to soften, then remove carbon deposits. Then, Motaloy starts metal-plating pitted and worn surfaces of cylinder walls, piston rings, valve seats, and stems.

A SINGLE MOTALOY TREATMENT DOES ALL THIS FOR YOUR ENGINE!

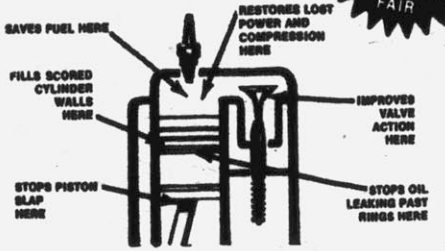
The more you drive, the more protection Motaloy deposits in the form of a fine, anti-friction metal plating that rebuilds, smooths, and protects vital surfaces! As Motaloy continues to plate and re-plate, engine compression is increased in what amounts to a ring and valve job! Gas mileage improves, your engine eats less oil! And over fifteen years of use by over a million motorists — some of them with cars that have clocked over 100,000 miles after a single Motaloy treatment — prove that Motaloy can keep your engine running younger and peppier . . . for years longer!

PROTECTS NEW ENGINES . . . REJUVENATES OLD ONES!

Getting a new car? Start it off with a Motaloy treatment — 6 dollars of protection that can mean thousands of dollars' worth of extra engine life for your car. Can actually insure full factory compression for the life of your car . . . so you'll get better performance for years longer . . . and a better trade-in or resale price whenever you decide to sell! And Motaloy's track record on cars that have rolled up 50,000 . . . 70,000 . . . even 90,000 miles shows fantastic results in improved compression, lower gas and oil consumption, better pickup, smoother running — just as if the engine were years younger! Give your car's engine a new . . . and longer . . . lease on life with amazing Motaloy! Remember — a single Motaloy treatment lasts for the life of your car! And Motaloy cannot harm even the finest engine in any way!

HERE'S HOW MOTALOY WORKS!

Here's all you do and you do it only once! Just drop 4 Motaloy Tabs into your gas tank and this single treatment does all this . . .



WINNER OF THE GOLD MEDAL* OF THE INTERNATIONAL INVENTORS FAIR

USED AND ENDORSED BY OVER 1 MILLION MOTORISTS!

USERS REPORT OVER 100,000 MILES OF BETTER ENGINE PERFORMANCE!

"About 1960 I put some Motaloy tabs in my gas tank, and I have driven this Mercedes-Benz 135,000 miles since!"
L.A.M., Sioux City, Iowa

"About 5 years ago I put Motaloy tablets in my Cadillac. I drove this car 125,000 miles and it never used any oil between changes — 1,500 - 2,000.
V.V.G., Cincinnati, Ohio

"Since adding Motaloy I have driven more than 1,500 miles, and I must say that I am amazed about the wonderful results. My gas consumption improved 40%, and my oil consumption is practically nil."
W.G.K., Fort Atkinson, Wash.

"Motaloy raised the compression in my Chevrolet from 65 to 100 pounds, plus giving me five more miles per gallon."
W.A.C., Granite City, Ill.

"As instructor of the Automotive Shop I have been running a series of tests on your product "Motaloy" and I wish to take this opportunity to report to you our findings. I put Motaloy in some 35 vehicles and have obtained marvelous results. In a majority of cases (all except 2 cars with burned valves beyond repair and/or broken oil and compression rings) the compression was brought up to factory specifications, oil consumption greatly reduced and gas mileage increased."
B.L.H., Instructor Automobile Shop, San Antonio, Texas

(On file with Federal Trade Commission)

Radioactive Isotope Tracer Tests Confirm Motaloy's Plating-Action!

. . . The activation of the Motaloy and the subsequent tracing operations of the activated Motaloy was conducted by an independent research laboratory especially licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to supervise the industrial application of radioactive isotopes.

Approximate Amounts of Activated Motaloy Deposited on the Surfaces (after approx. 60 hours of operation)

Piston Rings	Light
Piston	Light
Cylinder Walls	Light
Intake Valve Face	Very Heavy
Exhaust Valve Face	Heavy
Intake Valve Seat	Heavy
Exhaust Valve Seat	Medium

The above tracing of the radioactive Motaloy is positive proof of the actual transfer of the Motaloy particles from the gasoline tank on to the surfaces of the above surveyed parts of the engine.

TRY MOTALOY AT OUR RISK!

A complete Motaloy package (4 tabs) is only $6.00. Try Motaloy in your car for 30 days, to give its plating action a fair chance. If at the end of that time your car's engine isn't running smoother . . . if you aren't using less oil . . . if your gas mileage hasn't started to improve (as it will continue to do until you've reached full factory compression) . . . if you don't agree that Motaloy has given your engine a new lease on life — just return the empty Motaloy package, and we'll send you back every penny of your purchase price! If you do find Motaloy does give your car the equivalent of a ring and valve job for $6.00, tell your friends about it. They'll thank you for spreading the good word!

Complete Motaloy Package (4 Tabs) Only $6.00
(2 car families: 2 packages — $11.50)

FOR LONGER ENGINE LIFE AND BETTER PERFORMANCE

Double your chances for family success

Mail these coupons to find out how either or both of you can make up for lost education. How you can get the specialized training you need. How you can double, even triple, family income. How you can give yourselves and your children the things you both dream of—a better home in a better neighborhood, money for college, respect, security.

The opportunity is there. Good-pay jobs. Rapid advancement. In hundreds of fields. For both men and women. There's also the chance to finish high school, or to move on to college-level courses. Or to strike out for yourselves, to start your own business together, to develop skills and talents for a real partnership.

The secret is training

But not the usual classroom kind. The secret is specialized training geared to the needs of modern, busy couples. A way to master almost any subject at home, in your spare time, at your own pace, and at minimum cost.

This is the success-proved method of world-famous International Correspondence Schools. And almost 8 million men and women have taken advantage of it over the past 75 years.

Same high standards

Both I. C. S. and its Women's Division offer the same high-quality standards of instruction. Lessons cover basic theory and modern practice, are written by experts in each field and organized into job-related, easy-to-understand units.

Both give you personal guidance and correction service with every assignment you mail back. And when you complete your course, you receive the coveted I. C. S. diploma. There is no more satisfying, more rewarding symbol of achievement.

First step is easy

You simply mail one or both of the coupons. By return mail you get complete information. Valuable suggestions on how to get ahead faster. Full descriptions of the courses you check.

Your only obligation is the one you owe to yourself and your family to succeed.

Thanks to volunteer ham radio operators, GIs overseas and anxious families at home are inexpensively linked with the crackling call:

"Hello, This Is Vietnam Calling!"

By LESLIE LIEBER

AT 2 O'CLOCK on a recent Saturday afternoon—6 a.m. Sunday, Vietnam time—a retired civil engineer named George Criteser switched on a shortwave radio transmitter in a shack behind his home in Carson City, Nev., adjusted the headset over his sparse white hair, and began twiddling dials.

"Alpha Charlie, this is Zulu Tango," he repeated several times as the static crackled and then subsided. "Hey! Aren't any of you fellows awake over there?"

Moments later, a GI operator near DaNang, 12,000 miles away, answered loud and clear—and soldiers and Marines who'd been standing in line in the rain stepped forward one by one to talk into the microphone, with Criteser relaying their voices and season's greetings to loved ones via a long-distance telephone operator in Reno. By the time he signed off eight hours later, he had helped his 11,000th serviceman in Vietnam hold a precious five-minute reunion with home.

Criteser, a 66-year-old Carson City councilman and retired highway engineer, is one of more than a score of civilian shortwave hams across the country who are working around the clock with the Military Affiliate Radio Service (MARS). So far they have enabled more than 430,000 of our fighting men in Southeast Asia to call home from overseas—a touch of humanity unparalleled in the history of soldiering.

MARS maintains 19 military broadcasting stations for homesick GIs in Vietnam, Thailand, and Taiwan. All men overseas are entitled to use them. The trans-Pacific segment of the call—which would ordinarily come to a discouraging $25 (and be impossible because the Army wouldn't allow it)—is free. Stateside ham operators use a special "phone patch" to feed the messages directly into telephone lines as collect calls, charges based on the distance between the recipient and the ham station. This usually comes to around $5—for what amounts to a 12,000-mile-or-more phone call!

The MARS operation is completely voluntary, and people like George Criteser receive no payment, even for their expenses. Paul Wilson, a tv engineer, for example, spent $6,000 of his own money installing a special radio tower alongside his rig in Memphis, Tenn.

"When I began phone-patching GIs in 1967," Criteser said, "I had no tower and could pick up messages only at certain times a day. But our local chapter of the Nevada Society of Professional Engineers discovered that Uncle Sam was dismantling a Mercury test site on a nearby mountain that had a 65-foot radio tower. It weighed 50 tons. The Government earmarked it for us, and we carried it down the mountain.

"Thirty of my friends from the society carried the tower down the mountainside piece by piece on their backs. We put it back together at my house, thanks to a crane loaned to us by a construction company down the block."

"George spends ten hours a day, seven days a week monitoring these calls," says George's wife Lee ("YL" or "young lady" in ham argot).

"We seldom go anywhere, and I eat many meals alone. But I'm very proud of my husband." She has reason to be. Letters from battlefield colonels and generals, and a framed citation from the 5th Special Forces naming him an honorary Green Beret line the walls of his shack.

MARS stateside operators have been privy to just about every type of conversation imaginable. They've heard long-distance marriage proposals, a pep-talk from a wounded Marine in a field hospital to his wife who was about to undergo an emergency appendectomy in a Milwaukee operating room, and several heartbreaking "Dear John" calls.

Sen. Barry Goldwater—whose modern station AFA7UGA in Phoenix is manned 24 hours a day by volunteers and has handled more than 15,000 calls from the jungles of Vietnam, ships, and planes at sea—has had many experiences which illustrate quite clearly both the devotion and often the frustrations of a MARS volunteer.

"I've already presided over two 'Dear John' phone patches and, God, they were awful," says Senator Goldwater. "It made me want to break in and say something—ask them to wait and work things out when the guy returns—but I just sat there and threw switches.

"Aside from calls like that, I love doing this," he says. "But I get a special charge out of the fact that the Reds have now started to jam our phone patches. Several times we've picked up Radio Havana calling Moscow on our channels, trying to interfere. And sometimes we get all sorts of scrambling, man-made noises. So you can bet we're having some kind of effect on the Communists—a mighty nice fringe benefit.

"We never identify ourselves, but sometimes people do find out, and it doesn't necessarily boost our ego. Not long ago I overheard the military operator in Vietnam talking to a soldier placing a call home.

" 'Do you know who we've got on the other end of this line? Barry Goldwater, that's who!'

" 'Barry Goldwater? Who's he?' replied the soldier."

Stateside phone patchers consider themselves amply rewarded for their work by the thousands of thank-you letters they receive.

Some are radiantly happy, like the note Criteser received from Mrs. Nancy Michaels of Pittsburgh, whose husband's call was put through to a hospital delivery room moments after she had given birth to their first child:

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart. Al was able to learn, two minutes after the event, that everything was fine, and he was the father of a son."

And then there are some postscripts, like the one from Mrs. R. Edward Bova, Wayne, Mich., that are sad and deeply touching:

"On Sept. 29, 1967, you relayed a call from our son Edward from Vietnam. I wrote to thank you and you graciously answered us. As you can see from the enclosed clipping our son is dead. We are so grateful to you, Mr. Criteser, for having given us that precious last chance to hear our son's voice. Please keep up the marvelous work." ◆

QUIPS AND QUOTES

Grandfather was really upset. He thought the ferment on campus he had been reading about meant the students were making homebrew. —Gertrude Pierson

Our family was sitting down to dinner when Jean turned to her father and asked: "Why can't we say grace once a week? Why do you have to ask for daily bread every day?"

Looking up at her in disgust, her younger brother Jimmy said: "Do you think we want stale bread?"
—Lucille S. Harper

Any time a fellow feels neglected, he should think of Whistler's father. —Dorothea Kent

A doting father was quite upset because his wife had given permission for their eighth-grade daughter to have a date for a school party. He fumed and foamed all evening, uttering dire warnings to his wife about what he'd do "if anything happens."

Finally on the dot of 9:30 p.m.—when the young Cinderella had been told to be home—there was a phone call. Both mother and father ran to answer it, but Dad won.

"Daddy," the daughter cried, "the positively worst thing has happened."

"What did he do?" the father shouted into the phone.

"You'll have to come and get me," she sobbed. "His mother came and picked him up at 9 o'clock."
—Herm Albright

Careful grooming may take 20 years off your age, but it won't fool a long flight of stairs. —Lucille J. Goodyear

Let's at Least Take Turns

Dear Lord, forgive my small complaint,
But, if I had my druthers,
I'd help those who help themselves
If you'd help all the others.

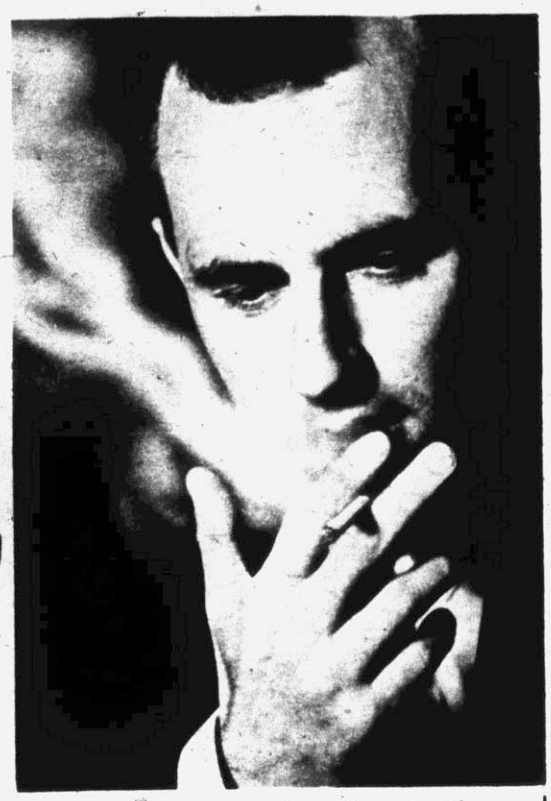
STOP SMOKING FOREVER



There is one chance in 4 that a heavy smoker may be stricken one day by lung cancer.

Over and over again we hear that tobacco is the cause of 98% of all lung cancer cases. Recent studies show that one out of every four smokers is a potential victim of this dread disease. Yes, tobacco is the most deadly poison developed by our civilization. Aside from lung cancer, cigarettes are the cause of other extremely serious diseases.

Tobacco smoke is composed of 84 substances, 5 of which are carcinogenic (cancer causing) and 30 are toxic (poisonous). Every time you draw on a cigarette, cigar or pipe, you are exposed to at least 44 different chemicals and poisons. 23 among the most deadly are: lutidin, rubidin, carbolic acid, formaldehyde, methalymine, acreilin, collidine, viridin, arsenic, formic acid, nicotine, hydrogene, sulphide, pyrrol, furfuroi, benzpyrene, methyl alcohol, prussic acid, corodin, ammonia, methane, carbon monoxide, pyridin. Quite a lungful of deadly poison for just one puff of smoke!

In a recent survey conducted by a leading American Doctor the incidence of coronary diseases (infarction, angina pectorus, etc.) has been found to be 68% higher in smokers than in non-smokers.

So, if you want to stay healthy, you've got to stop smoking. But, be careful! Don't stop smoking all at once. That could be dangerous.

Now, where's this advice coming from? Some cigarette or pipe tobacco advertiser trying to make the best of a bad situation? Of course not!

A VICE THAT CAN KILL

In order to compensate, he begins to eat and eat and eat. This is why so many former smokers put on excess weight and become fat. Stopping smoking all at once has been the cause of many severe cases of obesity.

So, giving up smoking, by yourself, is not the real solution, as it might endanger your health.

Then, how should you stop smoking?

Well, this is what the Anti-Tobacco Center of America is going to teach you.

Just clip and mail the coupon below to receive full information on a program which will help to rid you of your need to smoke. You'll be amazed to learn that you can stop smoking without any danger and without straining your will power; after only a few days the desire to smoke will vanish.

This is the experience of an ex-smoker we all know: MAURICE CHEVALIER "I was sunk in a vice which had left life no meaning at all. I was chronically dominated by a mountain of cigarettes, which like a growing invasion of grasshoppers succeeded in ruining my nerves. I stopped smoking twelve years ago. (Chevalier wrote this in 1960) And it is since this fortunate decision that my mental activities, my intelligence, my memory developed so much, that I – who had lost all interest in life – could escape that growing scepticism and rediscover interest in what happened around me. I was able again to read and . . . to remember what I had read!"

Among the 28,683 former smokers helped by the Anti-Tobacco Center, we give you the testimony of some doctors. We have chosen this profession intentionally, because doctors know the harm that tobacco causes. They are able to appreciate the results of our program.

OBESITY LURKS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Well, our experience has shown that a "confirmed" or "heavy" smoker should not stop smoking all at once, as this will seriously endanger his health and well being.

For years your body has been accustomed to its regular daily intake of toxic substances such as nicotine, tars, etc., and by now it is adjusted to that situation. Cutting tobacco out overnight will result in a shock to your physiological system accompanied nearly always by psychic disturbances. Which results in an imbalance of the sympathetic nervous system.

The digestive system becomes disturbed; the central nervous system becomes up-set; you become "bad-tempered", you can't be bothered by friends, spouse, children, etc., as the least little irritation will make you fly off the handle.

Life becomes hell for you and everybody around you.

But, that's not all; it has been effectively proven that anyone who attempts to stop smoking by sheer will power alone, will suffer terrible feelings of frustration.

IF YOU STOP SMOKING YOU WILL:

- Digest your food better
- Sleep better
- Combat fatigue
- Diminish the chance of cancer
- Be in good humor
- Keep your good eyesight
- Remain calm
- Have a good memory
- Get back your muscle tone
- Drink less alcohol
- Have clean breath
- Grow old less quickly
- Find a revival of your virility
- Save money

WHAT DOCTORS SAY!

Dr. A. C. "The efficacy of your product surprised everybody. I stopped smoking in ten days exactly. Thank you sincerely."

Dr. J. T. "I have used a supply of your product . . . I was informed of its composition by a friend, Dr. C., who was, truthfully speaking, rather sceptical. But after having used it, I do not smoke any longer and have no desire whatsoever to start again. The result is absolutely clear, without a shadow of a doubt, and I feel it my duty to tell you so."

Dr. E. C. "Since January 23, 1962, I no longer smoke. I have already given the "tip" to several of my friends and patients."

Dr. P. C. "I am happy that I do not smoke any more, this of course being due to the use of your product. All my thanks."

Dr. L. D. "The result was rapid. I think that anybody who wishes to stop smoking can do so."

If you're without a dress form—just trying this one (at our risk) can change your life.

This form guarantees a custom fit expensive look to each dress you alter or make—or no cost. Yet it saves you money so fast it often pays for itself the first or second time used.

This custom fit form saves hours adjusting patterns and fitting cloths—up to 50% of sewing time. It saves struggling, twisting, turning—trying to get the right fit. It saves ripping out seams for a simple alteration, or just because your skirt didn't hang properly the first time.

It's perfect for beginners. Here is why all of this is so.

THE SECRET OF CUSTOM FIT

While you smile—inside—at the money and time you've saved—at the end of embarrassment of poor fit "home made" clothes—or the success of your first dress making attempt.

The secret is custom adjusting of standard patterns to your differences (there's only one you). When you pin the pattern to an exact duplicate of you this adjusting is simple and easy.

And this custom fit life size dress form becomes—exactly YOU—with YOUR waist—YOUR shoulders—YOUR neck—YOUR bust line—YOUR hips.

This is because in each body area an ingenious size computer "dials" your measurements. A Tab (like a tape measure) slides through a slot under the area answer window. When your measurements appear in each window just clip lock in position. Automatically the DUPONT NEOPRENE processed body material has already adjusted—in each body area—to become YOU! Custom adjusting of patterns to you has become as easy as before it was difficult.

A LIFE SAVER FOR BEGINNERS

Because the hardest part of home sewing is making adjustments—exactly what ADJUST-O-MATIC makes so simple.

With it beginners easily make hems—adjust hemlines—make alterations so perfectly store bought clothes fit like made to order. You save the $3 to $5 paid before to fix a shoulder line—shorten a hem—take in a waist line. You're more satisfied with the way your clothes fit.

Fitting in this form is so easy you quickly form old dresses into new. Too tight or too loose—too large or too small dresses fit again. You easily alter, redesign, remodel your own dresses, coats, skirts, blouses. You begin to make your own simple dresses then more complicated ones. Later, you even design your own styles, and all on this form.

DOES MORE THAN ANY OTHER FORM

It's unlike any other form. To adjust there's no maze of wire and bolts to struggle with. Simply slide adjust and clip lock. It's pinnable—throughout. No gaps down front or side or around neck give difficulty.

Scientifically placed guide lines let you know when your dress is perfectly centered on the form.

The light steel stand is so adjustable, raises or lowers precisely to any point 4′ 2″ to 5′ 6″ (add length of your head from neck up to measurements of any form). It's handsome rubber tipped gives steady support. It assembles, takes apart easily.

LUIGI CELLA DRESS FORMS Hold U.S. Patents #2922555, #3140021, #314022, #3140022.

Work with this form anywhere. Lap, table, chair. Want to work on shoulders—back—underarm seam—front—waist—hips? Presto! One hand lifts form off stand. Without ever getting up from your chair you can take ADJUST-O-MATIC apart and work in sections.

Every adjustment—each contour line—the height range—the angle of the darts—posture angle of the form—all have been checked and rechecked by fashion fit leaders, home dress making authorities and fashion editors.

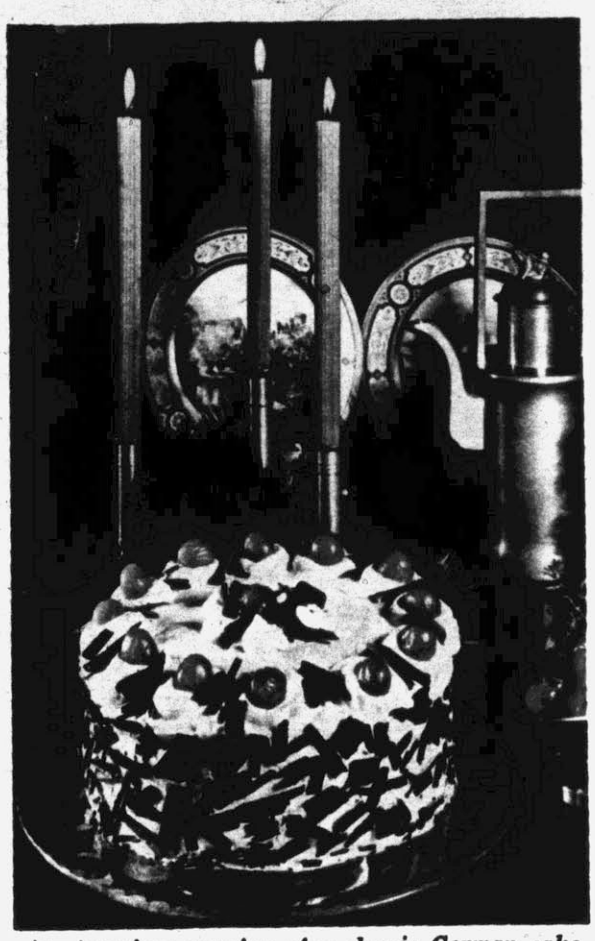
MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

As the old year draws to a close, invite neighbors and friends—old and new—to a get-together at your house. Plan food which can be prepared well ahead of the occasion. The suggested menu—a festive, filbert-rich cake and cheese log or pasties—may be partially or completely made in advance. Bake the cake when convenient and add the filling and frosting shortly before serving. Mix and chill the cheese log any time and serve with assorted crackers. Or, if you would prefer the warm pasties, mix and chill the dough ahead of time and then several hours before needed, shape the pasties and refrigerate them until baking time. The day of the party mix your favorite punch—and Happy New Year!



An American version of a classic German cake, Cherry Chocolate Torte will enhance your holiday.

Cherry Chocolate Torte

- 1½ cups toasted filberts, grated*
- ¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 4 sq. (4 oz.) semisweet chocolate, melted and cooled
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 6 egg yolks
- 6 tablespoons kirsch
- 6 egg whites
- Cherry Filling (see recipe)
- 3 cups chilled heavy cream
- ⅓ cup confectioners' sugar
- Chocolate curls

1. Grease and lightly flour an 8-in. springform pan. Set aside.

2. Blend grated filberts and ¼ cup flour; set aside.

3. Cream butter or margarine until softened. Beat in the sugar gradually until mixture is light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Blend in the chocolate and 2 tablespoons of the kirsch. Stir in nut-flour mixture until blended.

5. Beat egg whites until stiff, not dry, peaks are formed. Fold into batter and turn into the pan.

6. Bake at 375°F. about 1 hr. or until cake tests done (a cake tester inserted in center of cake comes out clean). Top of cake may have a slight crack.

7. Cool 10 min. in pan on a wire rack; remove from pan and cool.

8. Using a long sharp knife, carefully cut cake into 3 layers. Place top layer inverted on a cake plate; spread with Cherry Filling.

9. Whip cream (1½ cups at a time) until soft peaks are formed, gradually adding half of the confectioners' sugar and 2 tablespoons of the kirsch to each portion. Generously spread some of the whipped cream over the cherry filling. Cover with second cake layer and remaining cherry filling. Spread generously with more whipped cream and top with third cake layer. Frost entire cake with remaining whipped cream.

10. Decorate cake with reserved cherries and chocolate curls (see photo). One 8-in. torte

* To grate nuts, use a rotary-type grater with hand-operated crank.

Cherry Filling

- 1 jar (1 lb.) red maraschino cherries, drained; reserve ½ cup syrup
- 4 tablespoons kirsch
- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. Reserving 13 cherries for decoration, slice remainder; set aside.

2. Combine cherry syrup and kirsch. In a saucepan gradually blend syrup mixture into cornstarch; mix in lemon juice.

3. Stir over medium heat until mixture boils ½ minute. Mix in sliced cherries and cool. 1⅓ cups filling

Nut-Coated Cheese Log

- 8 oz. cream cheese, softened
- 4 oz. Roquefort cheese
- 1 jar (5 oz.) pasteurized process sharp Cheddar cheese spread
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Finely snipped parsley
- Finely chopped nuts

1. Thoroughly blend all the ingredients except the parsley and nuts. Chill thoroughly.

2. Shape cheese mixture into a log or mound on a piece of aluminum foil and coat evenly with desired amounts of parsley and nuts. Wrap. Chill until ready to serve.

3. Serve with crisp well-seasoned crackers. About 2 cups

Ham Pâté Pasties

- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon dill weed
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 3 oz. sharp Cheddar cheese, cut in small pieces (about ¼ cup)
- 1 can (3 oz.) deviled luncheon meat spread
- 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
- 2 teaspoons chopped onion

1. Measure flour into a bowl; blend in the dill weed. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut the butter or margarine and cheese into flour mixture as for pastry.

2. Shape dough into a ball, wrap, and chill at least 6 hrs.

3. Remove pastry about 15 min. before it is to be used, then roll out on lightly floured surface to ⅛-in. thickness. Cut into 2¼-in. rounds.

4. Stir green pepper and onion into luncheon meat spread and spoon about ¾ teaspoon of the mixture onto center of each round. Fold one half of round over other half and press edges gently to seal. Put 1 in. apart on ungreased baking sheet.

5. Bake at 450°F. 8 to 10 min. or until pasties are golden brown. Serve warm. 2 to 2½ doz. appetizers

Note: The appetizers may be prepared ahead of time, wrapped in aluminum foil, frozen and then baked until golden brown.

LOOK AT THAT BEAUTIFUL HERD OF COWS, BROTHER. I WONDER HOW MANY THERE ARE.

EXACTLY 128.

MY GOODNESS, HOW DID YOU COUNT THEM SO FAST?

IT WAS EASY.

I SIMPLY COUNTED THE LEGS AND DIVIDED BY 4!

THERE'S GUS HOLCOMB'S PLACE, BROTHER. I WONDER HOW MANY COWS AND CHICKENS HE'S GOT.

SEE IF YOU CAN FIGURE IT OUT. I COUNTED 78 LEGS AND 35 HEADS.

BUT, BROTHER, THE COWS AND CHICKENS WERE ALL MIXED UP!

SURE-BUT IF YOU USE A PENCIL AND PAPER YOU CAN SOLVE THE PROBLEM.

I THINK I'VE GOT IT! GUS HAS 4 COWS AND 31 CHICKENS!

THAT'S RIGHT! LET'S SEE IF I CAN MAKE THE PROBLEM A LITTLE HARDER.

SUPPOSE BY MISTAKE I COUNTED THE LEGS ON ONE OR MORE OF HIS 3-LEGGED MILKING STOOLS. THEN HOW MANY COWS AND CHICKENS WOULD HE HAVE?

OH, BROTHER! THAT SOUNDS IMPOSSIBLE TO FIGURE!

I'M HUNGRY. WHEN ARE WE GOING TO HAVE DINNER?

MAKE YOURSELF A SANDWICH, BROTHER. I'M BUSY WITH THIS PROBLEM.

3 A.M. WAKE UP! I'VE GOT IT, BROTHER! 1 COW, 2 STOOLS, AND 34 CHICKENS!

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story: THE LONG NIGHT ENDS AND DAWN COMES, OH! SO SLOWLY, TO THE CHILLED AND WEARY YOUSEF. NOW HIS BLOODSHOT EYES ARE FIXED ON ADELE'S WINDOW.

ADELE AWAKENS GLOWING WITH HAPPINESS, FOR IT SEEMS THAT NOTHING STANDS IN THE WAY OF HER MARRIAGE TO GEOFFREY.

.....AND STARES INTO THE MAD EYES OF YOUSEF!

SHE SLAMS THE SHUTTERS AND PULLS THE BAR INTO PLACE. FROM WITHOUT COME SCREAMS OF RAGE... THEN SILENCE.

FOR A LONG MOMENT YOUSEF CLINGS TO THE LEDGE WITH ONE HAND WHILE REACHING FOR THE IVY WITH THE OTHER..... THEN THE END COMES.

"NO ENDEAVOR IS IN VAIN; ITS REWARD IS IN THE DOING, AND THE RAPTURE OF PURSUING IS THE PRIZE THE VANQUISHED GAIN"
—LONGFELLOW

FELLOW ONCE WROTE A SONG THAT WENT SOMETHING LIKE THIS, ANNIE....

..."BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE, THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME...." WELL, HE HAD A POINT THERE! THE FACT IS, ANNIE... THE WORLD ISN'T GETTING SMALLER....

...IT JUST TAKES LESS TIME TO GET WHERE YOU'RE GOING! WE FIND SOMEBODY WE CALL A "FOREIGNER"! WELL, IT NEVER OCCURS TO US THAT WE'RE "FOREIGNERS" TO HIM!

© 1969 by News Syndicate Co. Inc. World Rights Reserved

YES, OM NI, OUR FAMILY IS HOME!

AND WHEREVER THEY WERE, THEY LEAVE IT A BETTER PLACE THAN WHEN THEY ARRIVED!

BUT UNDERNEATH IT ALL, "DADDY," AREN'T PEOPLE PRETTY MUCH THE SAME? I MEAN A BAD GUY IS A BAD GUY NO MATTER WHERE HE HANGS HIS HAT?

TRUE, ANNIE! AND EVEN THOUGH WE WERE FOREIGNERS IN KING BOOLA BOOLA'S COUNTRY, WE GOT ALONG JUST FINE!

SURE! PRINCE MACADAMIA WOULDA BEEN A BRAT IN ANY NEIGHBORHOOD HE LIVED! BUT UNDERNEATH ALL THAT BRATTINESS WAS A PRETTY NICE KID... IF YA HAD THE PATIENCE T' WAIT FOR IT T' SURFACE!

AND THE COMPASSION OF BALD EGO IS A UNIVERSAL QUALITY THAT DISTINGUISHES NOBILITY FROM CRASSNESS!

I'M HOPIN' AN' PRAYIN' THAT GEN. RUNAMOKA REALIZES THAT HAVIN' A FATHER LIKE HIM IS WORTH ALL THE LOOT IN THE WORLD!

I THINK I SEE THE ASP AN' OM NI WAITIN' AND WAVIN', "DADDY"!

AN' YOU SHOULDA SEEN THIS BALD EGO DISAPPEAR AN' THEN SHOW UP AGAIN!! IT WAS REAL WEIRD! AN' HE SHOWED ME HOW T' DO IT... ONLY WHEN I TRIED IT A LITTLE WHILE AGO, IT DIDN'T WORK!
