By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets swung into action on three Arab fronts today, downing three Syrian planes, striking at Egyptian military targets and pounding guerrilla bases in Lebanon, the Israeli military command said.

The Syrian planes, Soviet-made MIG21s, were intercepted as they tried to attack Israeli positions in the occupied Golan Heights. A spokesman said the dogfight took place at altitudes ranging from "very low" up to 20,000 feet.

Israeli now claims to have shot down 17 Syrian planes since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, including three MIGs during an Israeli bombing mission into Syria last month.

Other Israeli aircraft roved over the southern and central Suez Canal, hammering Egyptian war objectives in two raids lasting a total of almost two hours, the Israelis said.

Planes also swept into southern Lebanon to bomb and strafe Arab guerrilla camps on the western slopes of Mt. Hermon, the military reported. It was the second raid on Mt. Hermon in three days.

Israel said its planes returned safely from all missions.

Hanoi Warned Vietnamization Is Set Policy

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib told the first 1970 session of the Vietnam peace talks today the United States plans to turn the fighting over to South Vietnam on an orderly timetable even if the other side rejects meaningful negotiations.

The session was held at the lowest diplomatic level since the plenary meetings began nearly a year ago. The Viet Cong sent its No. 3 man, North and South Vietnam had their deputies present and Habib is the U.S. acting chief envoy since the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge.

Habib said the talks in 1970 could follow one of two paths.

First, he said, there is the path of negotiation. The United States and the Republic of Vietnam have made a number of specific proposals for negotiation.

"We recognize of course," Habib added, "that your side may continue to reject meaningful negotiations... if you persist in the latter course, ruling out real negotiations and thus blocking progress in these talks, the United States and the Republic of Vietnam will continue moving down the second path."

"Under this plan there will be a complete withdrawal of U.S. forces and their replacement by South Vietnamese forces on an orderly timetable."

This is the policy of "Vietnamization" announced as an alternative to reliance on the Paris peace talks as the only way to seek an end to the war.

It was announced in these terms by President Nixon on Nov. 3.

Habib called the U.S. position flexible and said the American delegation had received no encouragement from the other side.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy was still boycotting the talks because of what Hanoi presumes to be a U.S. effort to downgrade the importance of the discussions. The Viet Cong's Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh has followed suit. South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam was home on a vacation.

Thuy's deputy, Col. Ha Van Lau, opened the session with a sharp attack on the Nixon administration's policy, calling it "unreasonable, arrogant, obdurate and impudent."

Nixon's Vietnamization program, Lau declared, is a "dark scheme" aimed at achieving a "position of strength... a strategy of prolonging the war."

Thieu Repeats Offers

By DAVID MASON
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu reiterated to night that South Vietnam is prepared to discuss a cease-fire with the enemy and to accept Viet Cong participation in elections to settle the war.

But in a lengthy televised report to the nation Thieu charged that the enemy is intent on "savage ambitions" and insists on imposing a coalition government on South Vietnam.

Thieu said there have been "no results" from 48 sessions of the Paris peace talks and said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong agreed to them only because they wanted bombing of North Vietnam halted.

Citing a long list of optimistic sounding figures on progress of the war in 1969, Thieu still held little hope for peace.

He said: "We are standing before two real facts. They are: 'The war of aggression is still continuing from the North and from North Vietnam's henchmen in the South.'

"The Paris peace talks, after 12 months and 48 sessions, have still not shown one bit of results."

Thieu asked: "So where can we find peace and how is the war going to end?"

He suggested two possible solutions—"either the Communist aggressors must mend their ways and end their aggression, or the Communists must become sincere and talk seriously with us so that we can have genuine results and peace is restored."

Threats For 2 Close Yablonski Allies

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

CLARKSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Investigators say two close allies of the late Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski have received threatening telephone calls since the slayings of the United Mine Workers Union reformer, his wife and daughter.

State police said Wednesday the first report came from Marion Pellegrini, an official of UMW District 5 from nearby Canonsburg.

Later, Elmer Brown, a Delbarton, W. Va., coal miner who was Yablonski's vice presidential running mate in the union's recent presidential election, said he had reported a threat to the FBI.

Pellegrini, who was questioned by four FBI agents, said his wife received a call from a man at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday. The caller simply said, "Warning, You're next," and hung up, he said.

"We don't know whether this is a crank call or not but we're keeping patrols in the area," said Capt. Joseph Snyder, the trooper in charge of the investigation.

Pellegrini said he was sure the caller meant the threat.

"I take this seriously," he said. "No job is worth a person's life, especially if it is a threat to a person's family."

Brown said he received a telephone call a few days ago "telling me to mind my own business." He described it as "more or less a warning," saying he didn't take it too seriously. In his report to the FBI Brown asked that top officials of the UMW be given lie detector tests to clear themselves of the slayings, which were discovered Monday.

The request, similar to one made Tuesday night in West Virginia by Dr. Hawey Wells, a crusader for coal mine safety, was the latest in a series of inferences that the slayings were connected to the hotly contested December election which Yablonski lost to incumbent W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

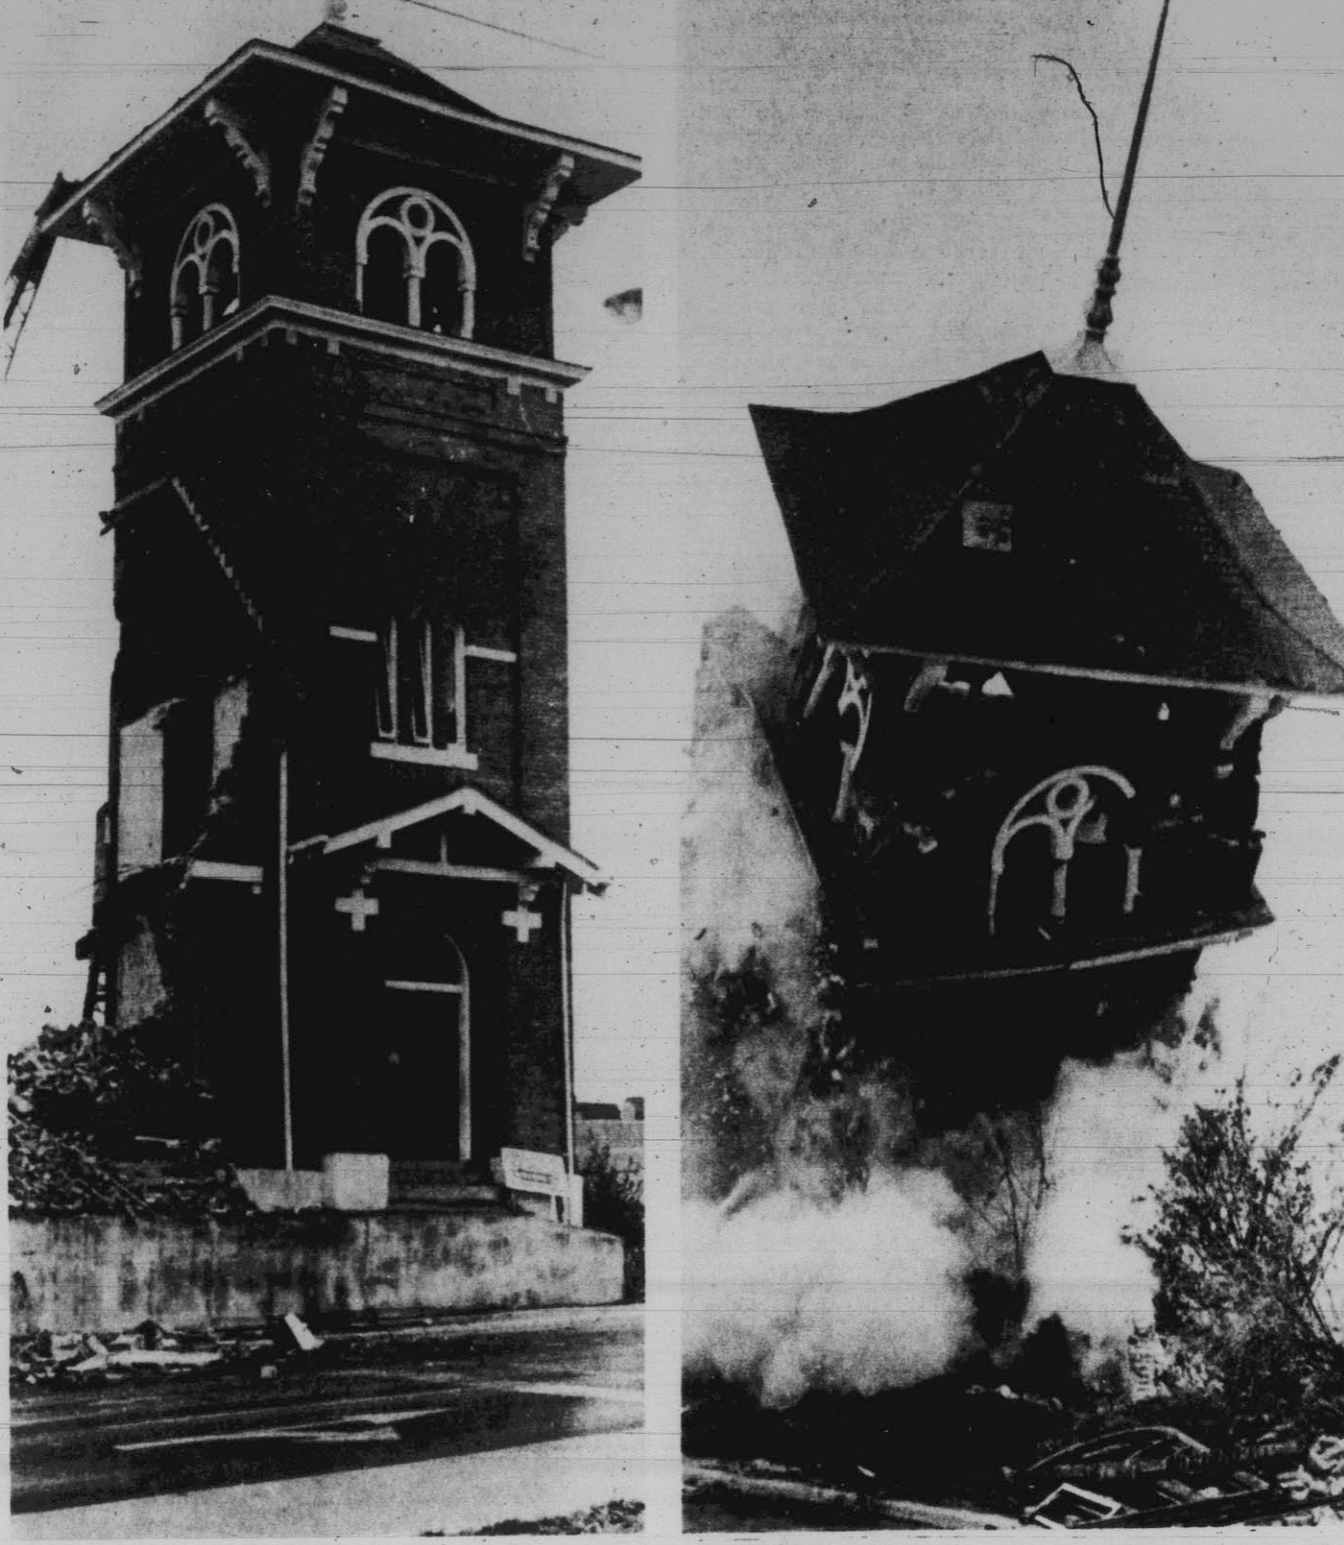

Snyder called the request "unrealistic."

"Our investigations would have to point to someone before such tests would be valid," he said.

The initial claim that the slayings and the election were linked was made by Yablonski's two attorney sons, Kenneth and Joseph "Chip" Yablonski, now under FBI guard.

In a radio interview in Washington earlier in the day, Boyle discounted the sons' claims.

"They are obviously emotionally upset," Boyle said. "I can well understand why they would be."

Old Sycamore Hill Church Bell Tower Stubborn, Took Pounding

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

It took almost total removal of two of the four brick walls from the old Sycamore Hill Baptist Church bell tower before it toppled from its lofty perch but a steady pounding from the heavy steel ball finally took its toll.

With the falling of the tower structure, long a residence for pigeons and relatives of that species, the last significant portion of the burned-out church on the corner of First and Greene Streets was removed.

Work on the demolition of the church, ravaged by fire in February of 1968, began Monday afternoon as workmen from the D.H. Griffin Wrecking Company of Greensboro started to knock down the east wall of the remains.

Wednesday morning, the bell tower was removed and taken to the present site of the Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church on West Eighth Street.

Demolition work on the structure involved mainly the use of a crane towering approximately 70 feet and a heavy steel ball swinging from the end.

Lawrence Holt, real estate director for the Greenville Housing Authority, said the contract with the Griffin firm called for the demolition to be completed within 30 calendar days.

The contract, agreed upon following the submission of the low bid by the Greensboro based company, also stipulates that the lot will be raked clean of all debris following the total wrecking job.

Workmen on the job this morning estimated another week of work remains before the job is completed. Much of the work now involves the hauling of bricks from the structure to a lot on Eighth Street where church members will use the bricks for future work of the church.

Holt said that no official date for the beginning of the work on First Street to complete the four lane widening had been revealed by the city but said the work would probably begin soon.

Plans now call for grading of the church lot, now owned by the Redevelopment Commission, and tying in of the lot with the rest of the Shore Drive project.

Holt added that the Griffin crew would also remove the wooden retaining wall on the Greene Street side of the lot.

Efforts have been made and will continue to be made to save the existing trees that stand on the lot, he said. Some of the trees were damaged in the grave removing process and will probably have to come down but the others will be left if possible, he said.

Traffic yesterday was rerouted to Pitt Street and other outlets during the tower demolition. Quite a crowd was on hand for the final stand of the tower and the dust and debris that resulted when the structure fell was a dramatic climax to the afternoon-long efforts to undermine the steady walls.

Hog Cholera Quarantine Lifted In Most Of Pitt

Federal and state veterinarians have announced that a major portion of Pitt County has been released from the hog cholera quarantine which was imposed on Dec. 16.

According to Edwin L. Yancey, chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, this means that for most of the county hogs can be moved to slaughter markets in the normal manner without inspection, and that feeder and breeder animals can be sold under the inspection program which had been in effect before the quarantine.

The portion of Pitt County that is still under quarantine is included within the following boundaries:

At a point beginning at the intersection of Highway 64 and 13 in Bethel proceeding south along U. S. 13 to its intersection with N. C. 33, then southeast along Highway 33 to its intersection with Highway 903 at Stokes; along Highway 903 southwesterly until it intersects with U. S. 13, then south along U. S. 13 to the Tar River at Greenville; westerly along the Tar River to its intersection with County Road 1400, then north along County Road 1400 to U. S. 64 to the starting point at its intersection with U. S. 13.

Hog producers within this area must have all slaughter swine inspected on the farm prior to movement, and still may not sell feeder pigs or breeder animals, Yancey reported.

The veterinarians expressed hope that the cholera outbreak would be contained so that within a short period of time the entire county would be released from the quarantine.

Farmers are again reminded, Yancey said, that Vocational Agricultural teachers are carrying out inspection of hogs to be marketed and are encouraged to contact these people well in advance of any expected movement of the animals.

Carolina's Record Cold Claims Life

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temperatures plummeted to record lows in many sections of North Carolina today as the coldest weather of the winter took at least one life.

Mrs. Maude Jackson, 70, was found dead of exposure in a field outside her Cherryville home early today. The temperature in the area was five below zero, eight degrees lower than the previous record, set Jan. 30, 1966.

From the mountains to the coast, no section of the state escaped the bitter cold and the weather bureau predicted lows tonight of zero to 10 above in the mountains, ranging to mostly in the teens near the coast.

Record lows for the date were set at Raleigh-Durham, where it was 7 degrees, and Charlotte, where it was 9. Greensboro tied the mark with a reading of 7.

Elsewhere among major cities in the state, readings included: zero at Asheville; 6 at Winston-Salem; 7 at Hickory; 17 at Rocky Mount; 18 at Goldsboro and Fayetteville; 21 at New Bern; 23 at Wilmington; 24 at Elizabeth City.

The spine-chillers came from the west. It was 24 below at Mount Mitchell, 22 below at Clingman's Peak; 13 below in the East Fork section of Transylvania County; 12 below at Cedar Mountain; 11 below at West Jefferson; 8 below at Brevard; 5 below at Canton and Black Mountain; 4 below at Laurel Springs; 2 below at Fletcher and 1 below at Hendersonville.

Generally fair skies, with some snow flurries in the mountains was the prediction through Friday.

Temperatures In Greenville Hit 15 Degrees

Temperatures in the Greenville area dropped to a bone-chilling low of 15 degrees late yesterday and last night, but officials and others questioned said no problems were caused by the weather.

The Greenville Utilities Commission weather station reported the low temperature for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today was 15 degrees. The high for the period was 37 degrees. The high and low temperature for the 24-hour period ending Wednesday at 8 a.m. was 37 and 34 degrees.

Precipitation for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today was reported at .01 of an inch, and included mostly rain, although some light snow flurries occurred Wednesday afternoon and night. Since 8 a.m. Tuesday, a total of .62 of an inch of rain has been recorded by the weather station.

Greenville Utilities officials said they had had no increase in trouble calls due to the freezing weather. Local plumbers reported only a few calls had been received this morning from residents with frozen water pipes.

City and county school officials said the cold weather had not affected their operations and indicated that attendance was normal today.

Agenda Announced For Council Meet

The agenda for the first 1970 meeting of the City Council, tonight at 8:00 p.m., is a rather lengthy one, with 13 items of business scheduled for consideration. The agenda is:

OLD BUSINESS — 1. Appointments to Boards and Commissions; 2. Public hearing on street assessment rolls for Roosevelt, Douglas, McKinley, Sheppard, Vance, Ford, Cherry, Contentnea, Davis and Sixth Streets; 3. Abandonment of McClellan Street from Howell to Wyatt Street; 4. Request by Greenville Fire Fighters (union); 5. Cases in several courts resulting from implementation of Parade Ordinance No. 330; 6. Status of Redevelopment Project for the rehabilitation of the Central Business District of the City of Greenville (N. C. R-66).

NEW BUSINESS — 1. Proposals to supply the City of Greenville with one new police car; 2. Request for dine and dance permit (for Elbow Room); 3. Installation of safety islands on Reade Street between First Street and Fifth Street; 4.

Most Pollution Due Vehicles

GREENSBORO (AP) — A professor who is studying the effects of air pollution on textile materials says living in polluted air is like "smoking an extra pack of cigarettes a day."

Dr. Victor Salvin, professor of home economics at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, blamed about 65 per cent of air pollution on automobile exhausts.

Salvin made his remarks Wednesday at the second annual Chancellors Conference at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Nixons Again Registered As Voters In California 'Home'

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon resumes the status of a registered California voter today, some seven years after he left for New York following an election defeat for governor.

The President, Mrs. Nixon and daughter Tricia planned to register during the afternoon, then fly back to Washington to end a nine-day stay in the chief executive's native state. The formalities apparently were to take place in Santa Ana, seat of Orange County.

Nixon, who will observe his 57th birthday Friday, moved his family to New York after losing a 1962 gubernatorial race against then-incumbent Democrat Edmund G. Brown. He took up a lucrative law practice in Manhattan, where he became a registered voter.

The President last voted, by absentee ballot in New York, in the 1968 election that put him in the White House. Tricia voted then for the first time.

All the Nixons have been ineligible to vote since selling their Fifth Avenue apartment early last year. They have now established a voting residence at their $350,000 seaside estate here.

The chief executive had a choice between registering in California or Florida, where he owns two homes at Key Biscayne.

With his Key Biscayne neighbor and friend, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, at the wheel, Nixon took a three-hour, 135-mile drive Wednesday along the coast south of San Clemente, visiting Oceanside, La Jolla, Escondido and Solano Beach. Nixon got out of the car twice at La Jolla Cove to admire the scenery. He exchanged greetings with a handful of people who recognized him.

Students Who Work Score Highest Grades

By BERRY YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS) — Should you encourage the college student in your family to work his (or her) way through? With tuition and other college costs constantly going up, this is a question facing just about every American family with one or more college students in its ranks — including some of the very wealthy families.

The issue was joined recently when a Harvard Business School spokesman was quoted as saying: "The course is very intensive, and students have no time to hold a job and do justice to the course too."

This of course is the standard argument against working, but there's lots of evidence on the other side. Placement officials often maintain that working students get as many A's and B's as students without jobs. And to those who counter that the top-graded students might do still better in grades if they did not work, some officials go so far as to hold that working helps the student with his grades since he transfers to his studies the skills in budgeting his time that he develops on the job.

Motivated
One college president in the Southwest, when asked why those students with outside jobs were capturing more top grades year after year than non-workers, answered this way: "The unanimous answer of college officials everywhere is, 'The working student is invariably the motivated student. He also learns one of life's most important lessons early—how to budget his time."

It's quite apparent that the student who does not master this lesson of budgeting his time faces the danger of expulsion for poor grades if he allows classes, his job, glee club practice, and the usual bull sessions to leave him without time needed for study.

Pratt Institute, in an issue of its newsletter, "Campus Briefs," has even denied that the working student misses out on student life, saying this student is apt to assume leadership in extra-curricular activities as well as in class work.

The director of student aid at an Ivy League college notes that this element of motivation is often lacking in the student who finds difficulty in class work, adding: "A strong challenge and a full daily schedule will act as a stimulus which will bring the student to do his best in course work, extra-curricular activities, and term-time employment."

There seems general agreement that 20 hours of work a week is about the maximum that any student should try, with 12 hours considered a better load. One survey that asked a number of college officials what they considered an advisable undergraduate work load learned that 16 hours a week was the average maximum recommended for bright students. Some universities set a top limit, generally around 20 hours.

Travel Can Be Painless For Both Man Animal

Now there's a new wrinkle in packing for a trip. After you have tucked away your clothes and—remember—your toothbrush, it's time to think about packing your pet.

Pet travel, especially by air, is on the upswing, according to experts.

"More and more people are finding out that virtually all domestic airlines permit pets to fly in the cabins with their owners—so long as they are in secure cases that fit under the seat," says Alan Ernst, vice president of a pet carrier manufacturing company. His firm has introduced new models with wire mesh or plastic windows and new colors like "go-go pink" and "skyflower blue." Pet carriers now complement flight luggage.

Pet packing is easy, says Ernst, who offers the following tips:

Familiarize your pet with the carrier, perhaps by using it as a bed. Six hours before flight time, feed the animal a light meal. Exercise the pet just before you leave. Place a few of your pet's favorite toys into the carrier, but don't pack blankets, towels or other absorbent materials. Also keep water out of the carrier while the pet is traveling, since it is almost certain to spill.

Place your pet in the carrier personally. For traveling, use a lightweight flat collar rather than a choke-chain type.

Label the inside or outside with the pet's name and your own name and address. It is a good idea for the animal to wear a tag with the same information.

When you make your airline reservation, simply indicate that you intend to carry your pet with you so the airline can make the necessary arrangement and advise you of any special regulations.

If you are flying overseas, check with your travel agent or airline—well in advance of departure—on any special requirements of the countries you plan to visit. Their policies sometimes vary from those in the U.S.

It's a good idea to have a health certificate and rabies-inoculation certificate, both available from your vet. A few states require them.

For Rush Wedding, Send Cards Airmail COOKING IS FUN!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old daughter who attends a college in another state rang us up this morning to tell us that she and her boyfriend got married last night. They had planned to get married when they both finished college, but I guess they couldn't wait that long.

I want to send our relatives and friends formal announcements of their marriage, but something just occurred to me. What if they "had to" get married in a hurry?

COLORADO MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: In that case, send them airmail.

DEAR ABBY: After being married for 28 years to a dear, sweet, lovely little woman, several months ago she was hit with something called "change of life."

I found myself living with a complete stranger who only wanted to pick a row with me and go into a tantrum over the most trivial matters.

She refused to go on a holiday with me this year for the first time, so I went alone, and I must confess I had the best holiday of my life. When I came home after 12 days she was not the least bit glad to see me.

We hardly speak now, and are in separate bedrooms for the first time. I consulted our family doctor and he said my wife would not improve unless she visited him for treatments, which she absolutely refuses to do. Do you recommend a permanent separation? I am seriously considering it.
BELFAST, IRELAND

DEAR BELFAST: You took this woman "in sickness and health." This is sickness. Are you sure the memory of your holiday without her isn't influencing your decision? Talk to your doctor again and ask for some suggestions on how to get this once dear, sweet, lovely woman to go for the treatment she so desperately needs. Don't desert her in her hour of need. Her condition may be temporary.

DEAR ABBY: Our ex-daughter-in-law has refused us the privilege of seeing our grandchildren. She claims that she has spoken to a psychiatrist, the school authorities, and even to her clergyman and they all agree that it would be in the best interests of the children if they were not to see us anymore.

The children are 8, 10, and 11. Our ex-daughter-in-law recently remarried, and our son agreed to let her new husband legally adopt the boys. We love these children, Abby, and this is breaking our hearts. It's true, our son was not the best husband and father in the world, but why should we be punished for his misdeeds?

Tell me, Abby, do you think it is in the best interests of the children to deny them seeing us?
GRANDPARENTS

DEAR GRANDPARENTS: Knowing nothing of how your visits affect the children, I cannot say. Obviously the girl is punishing you along with your son, which seems unfair. But there are no "rights" for grandparents, and your former daughter-in-law is now holding all the trumps.

DEAR ABBY: I was amused at the letters you published from some of those women who remarked on the impotency of men of advanced age. They brought to mind a neighbor of mine who at age 90 announced that he had married! When talking to his son, I asked, "Why did your dad want to get married again at his age?" The son replied, "He didn't WANT to. He HAD to."

Yours truly, INDIANAPOLIS NEIGHBOR

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Her Philosophy Led To Receiving The National Award

By MARGARET A. KILGORE WASHINGTON (UPI) — "When you work with anyone who is mentally retarded, one step is a long way."

This is the philosophy which had led Mrs. Mack Bright, of Blackfoot, Idaho, to receive the nation's highest mental health award from the National Association for Mental Health. Essentially, it is the type of volunteerism which Mrs. Bright, a slight, cheerful widow, has done which is being encouraged by the nation's first lady, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon. Helping those who are retarded became "respectable" during the administration of the late President Kennedy when it was revealed that his sister, Rosemary, was born with that handicap.

During a visit to Washington, Mrs. Bright talked of how she became interested in the problem by working with her own retarded nephew, Tommy.

She spent hours helping the child from the time he was three-years-old until he was 14.

"As many of them do, Tommy deteriorated then and it was necessary to put him in the state hospital south at Blackfoot for better treatment," she explained. She started visiting him there, but offering her services to other patients whenever she felt a need.

When the Bonneville County (Idaho) Mental Health Association recommended her for the national award, their nominating letter stated in part:

"In the hospital—when he joined in January, 1963 — Maxine was quick to see what could be done to make life happier and open a new world to chronic patients living in a slump of despondency.

"She organized volunteers in good grooming projects for women patients and planted petunias and marigolds around all the hospital buildings and before the days of activity therapists at our state hospital, she organized outside games such as volley ball. A most worthwhile project of hers was organizing a group of patients to do volunteer work at the hospital."

Nominations for the coveted award given to Mrs. Bright came from 18 states. Only close relatives of patients who are or have been hospitalized with mental illness are eligible for the award, the association says.

Mrs. Bright joined the paid hospital staff a few months ago after the death of her husband. Her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Lewis, lives in Voluntown, Conn.

"It takes a certain kind of person to work with these people," Mrs. Bright said. "It requires so much patience. But the recognition you expect to get in helping the mentally retarded is through their progress, no matter how small. Because when you work with anyone who is mentally retarded, one step is a long way."

BURY ST. EDMONDS, England (WNS)—David Howlett and Mark Johnson both fell in love with Suzanne Allington at first sight. They duelled with each other for the right to be her dancing partner by captaining soccer teams that opposed each other on the football field. David, Mark and Suzanne are each ten years old. The Johnson team won by a score of 10-7, and Suzanne rewarded each suitor with a kiss. "I'm not interested in soccer, so I shall take turns going to dancing school with each of them on alternate weeks," she announced.

Judge Remembered Old Pledge

Judge William J. Bundy created interest around the state last weekend when he announced that he was keeping a promise he made more than 15 years ago.

In 1954 when Judge Bundy was running for the office of Superior Court judge he publicly stated that he would retire at the end of the term in which he was serving when he became eligible for retirement.

Most of us has long since forgotten that pledge, but not Judge Bundy.

"At the end of my present term, Dec. 31, 1970, I will have served 15½ years, and will be eligible for such retirement," he said in making the announcement.

Bundy was actually appointed to the judgeship by Gov. Hodges in 1955 and he was elected in 1956 and 1962 without opposition. However he remembered his pledge of 1954 and now he is honoring it. "The duties as a judge of the Superior Court are heavy, more than most people realize," he said in his announcement "and they sometimes become onerous, but over all the work is very rewarding, when one feels that he has judged in righteousness."

Judge Bundy has had a distinguished career as a Pitt County attorney and jurist. He is a graduate of Farmville High School and Duke. He studied law at Cumberland University and Wake Forest. He is a former major of Bethel and served as solicitor of Pitt County court and the fifth solicitorial district,

'Shocks' Said In Scott Diary

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
RALEIGH—So Gov. Bob Scott, in the interest of history, keeps a personal, day by day diary in his own handwriting and plans to continue this during the remaining years of his administration.

And he is turning these personal diaries over to the Department of Archives and History for safekeeping and later study. He is the first governor of North Carolina to do this—to record each day his personal impression of his activities, his conferences, his private conversations, even his correspondence.

Diaries—Scott has done this for one full year. Last Tuesday was the anniversary of this first full week in office. He called newspapermen in Raleigh to come to the Capitol on a cold, rainy and sleety day to have coffee and made the disclosure of the diaries.

Scott began by explaining his own very keen interest in history. He said this was inspired by the late Dr. Christopher Crittenden, the present director of Archives and History, H. G. Jones, and others. He said grandfather's papers and correspondence—"all that we could find"—have been deposited in the archives.

He called Dr. Jones to the conference to verify the fact of the diaries and told the assembled reporters that "I felt very strongly that this should be done."

Jones said that to his knowledge Scott is the first governor of North Carolina to keep such a personal record and deliver it to Archives and History for future reference. He added:

"Too much history is written from hindsight."

Effect—It might have been evident immediately that one effect of Scott's diary disclosure would be to put a damper on many, many interesting political developments—things that are said behind closed doors.

If Scott is keeping a diary, there will be a great deal more caution.

One newsman remarked, "there's no telling what he is writing down."

Another asked the governor if he had made any reference to newsmen his diaries. Scott chuckled and left everyone guessing.

One thing was certain. Scott's purpose in keeping his daily diaries may be in the interest of history—political and state governmental history—but the disclosure that he is keeping them will also serve to relieve certain irritating pressures and annoyances.

There is no reason to believe that in his diaries Scott won't tell it like it is.

WILLIAM SHIRES

Scott disclosed that he has been putting all this in a diary and already has given the first six months record to Archives and History. That for the second six months of his first year in office is complete.

Shocking—The fact of a daily diary, Scott said, "is going to shock some people." And it was evident immediately that such a diary will be best-seller reading page by page.

There is a restriction. Scott's diaries and other papers will be kept under seal and will not be open to inspection "as long as I and my wife are alive," Scott explained.

Later, the public "will know why," Scott said. He said he was "quite frank" in what he has written thus far in the two leather bond volumes.

"I wrote about people. If I felt he was a son-of-a-gun, I wrote it down." He said he wrote not only what happened but also what he thought. "I recorded my impressions, my thoughts and my feelings." He wrote these in the book each night before going to bed.

prior to becoming a Superior Court judge.

Judge Bundy has served well as a Superior Court judge and he has kept his promise to retire when he was eligible. Of course, as with all retired Superior Court judges, Bundy will continue to serve as an emergency judge, so his service to the area and the state are not at an end. We are glad that Judge Bundy will continue to preside from time-to-time over Superior Court sessions.

They Mean Business About Improving Jails

The North Carolina Department of Social Services is letting it be known that it means business so far as improvement of county jails are concerned.

The department has ordered Avery, Davie and Burke Counties to close down their half-century old jail in the next two weeks.

This brings to four the number of counties whose jails have been found to be inadequate.

Last year Columbus County was ordered to close its jail. The order was taken to court but a state Superior Court judge upheld the state's decision.

All jails in the state should conform to standards, and if they don't the state should take appropriate action. The Department of Social Services is doing a job that should be done. There is no excuse for locking people up in substandard jails.

'Jungle' Life In Classrooms

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — While the black ghettos and college campuses have been relatively quiet, the nation's public high schools are suddenly developing into the most violence-prone and divisive battleground of American society.

No single high school disturbance has the magnitude of a Berkeley rebellion or a Watts riot to stir national attention. But the beginning of the school year last Labor Day brought with it an epidemic of small-scale violence in high schools in every section of the country—racially connected in nearly every instance and frequently starting with Negro students assaulting white students.

Federal officials here are deeply aware of the grave problem but can pinpoint neither cause nor cure. Although the Black Panther Party and Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) are actively agitating at the high school level, their efforts can be traced to only a tiny fraction of the violence.

Rather, high school turmoil seems a spontaneous reflection of national racial tensions and black militancy which, in turn, may well breed deeper white hatred and still greater tension.

Since high schools reopened in September, no day has passed without an incident somewhere in the country. As of Nov. 18, with the school year less than one-third completed, over 225 disorders and disruptions had been reported. Throughout the entire previous school year, there were only 320 such disruptions. More significant, racial battling was minimal five years ago and almost unknown just a decade ago.

Up to Nov. 18, there had been nearly 900 arrests on charges including murder, assault on police, and conspiracy to commit arson. The casualty list includes over 200 persons injured, including 20 policemen and 12 teachers.

Damage to schools from habitual window-breaking and occasional arson is anybody's guess.

This sampling of high school incidents during November alone reveals a national blackboard jungle dominated by racial hatred:

Nov. 3, Charleston, W. Va.—After three or four Negro students beat a white student at Stonewall Jackson High School, students of both races brought chains and rocks to school. The result, racial fighting and an unsuccessful attempt at arson.

Nov. 11, Chapel Hill, N. C.—After unsuccessfully demanding that a teacher be dismissed immediately, 100 Negro students at Chapel Hill Senior High School rampaged through the halls, breaking school windows and pulling unwilling blacks out of class (calling them "Uncle Toms"). Three white students (two of them girls) and a white teacher were assaulted. Damage: an estimated $1,411.38.

Nov. 18, San Bernardino, Cal.—With white students complaining that school authorities had not disciplined Negroes who started fights at football games, mass battling broke out between 200 Negro and 200 white students.

Nov. 20, Milwaukee, Wis.—Following black student demands for Negro courses and Negro teachers at Washington High School, 50 black students entered the cafeteria and assaulted white students. The casualties: 12 injured, 2 hospitalized. With white students vowing to retaliate, racial fighting erupted at the school on Nov. 21.

Nov. 21, Atlantic City, N. J.—Negro students in the balcony of the Atlantic City High School auditorium threw trash on the heads of white students, triggering racial fighting with about 20 to a side.

Nov. 24, Las Vegas, Nev.—A white girl who had been dating a Negro student

Already Feeling Guilty?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—A lot of people already have bad consciences, although 1970 is only a week old.

They feel guilty, are shame-faced, and can hardly look their fellow man in the eye.

This is because they have already broken a raft of good resolutions they made just a week ago. Seeking to perfect themselves all at once, in a burst of rash enthusiasm they pledged themselves to high resolves that even a cautious angel in heaven would rear to vow.

HAL BOYLE

If all your good resolutions are negative, they may be more harmful than helpful. You must balance them with positive resolutions. A negative resolution is one in which you declare you'll quit doing something that is wrong or bad for you. A positive resolution is one by which you pledge to do something that is good for you.

In any case, the resolution, negative or positive, must be one which is humanly possible for you to keep.

Here, for example, are some constructive negative resolutions you might start with:

To cease accepting free $1 cigars from total strangers.

To quit volunteering to act as cosigner on loans for office gamblers.

To give up the eating of pomegranates after midnight.

To refrain from using any toothbrush at home unless you are particularly sure it is your very own.

To stop ruining your wife's health as the result of taking her out on the town four or five nights a week.

To cease trying personally to reform members of the Mafia who you think may have gone a step too far.

To abstain from chewing ice cubes in church during Lent.

Now really, even though these good resolutions are negative, they aren't too hard to keep, are they? And the mere fact you haven't broken them could make you feel warm all over, couldn't it?

The same holds true for making good resolutions that are positive—ones by which you pledge yourselves to do something that will improve your life.

For example, you might vow to—
Praise your boss to his face instead of just circulating kind words about him behind his back.

Help your firm get out of the red by using just one paper towel, instead of seven, when drying your face in the office washroom.

Agree to lick the stamps for your wife's Christmas cards if she'll agree to go on carrying out the garbage throughout the year.

Get the idea? Any good resolution you make and keep, no matter how small, can't help but make you feel you're a better man when 1971 dawns.

Everybody Gets In Act

President Nixon went out of his way a few days ago, signing the National Environmental Policy Act, to plump hard for conservation. It is "now or never," he said, for Americans to take steps toward clearing up the mess they have made of their country. From across the land, in one editorial voice, came the sound of a great Amen.

Forgive me if I maintain,

Other Editors Say Political Pot Heating

(Henderson Dispatch)

Now that 1970, a campaign year, is here, there are the first faint indications that the political pot is heating up. It will continue to warm until the boiling point is reached a few months hence. The State will nominate and elect all eleven congressmen and scores of members of the Legislature, as well as countless local officials. Neither U. S. senator is up in 1970, nor will a governor be chosen.

Rep. L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro, of the sixth congressional district, has stated he will seek reelection this year. He will probably win nomination without a challenge, and stands a good chance then of being elected in November.

In the eighth district, Cliff Blue of Aberdeen, long time legislator and former speaker of the House, is considering running against Rep. Ruth of Salisbury, a Republican who was elected in 1968. The rumor factory has it that Rep. Alton Lennon in the seventh district, may be opposed in the Democratic primary, and likewise Rep. Walter Jones of the first district.

Rep. Jonas, of Lincolnton, senior Republican in the House from North Carolina, has announced he would seek another term—his tenth and his 19th and 20th years in the House if he wins, as is expected. He had no opposition in his own party in 1968, and the Democrats gave up all hope of derailing him and did not even offer opposition in the general election. What a tribute to a man of high integrity and fitness for high office!

There is also talk of the race for governor two years hence. For a time it was thought that former Governor Terry Sanford would seek another term in 1972, but when he was recently elected president of Duke University, he apparently removed himself from consideration.

But the office is not going to any one by default. There are Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, Attorney General Robert Morgan, Senator "Skipper" Bowles of Greensboro, and even Chairman Lauch Faircloth of the State Highway Commission. It is not likely that all will fight for the nomination in the May primary, but it is just possible that the next State chief executive may be one from this group.

With Christmas and the New Year holidays behind, the politically minded citizenry will be thinking and talking more and more about who seeks what office. This year 1970 is a political year, and the public will not be allowed to forget that. The pot is heating up and will reach the boiling point as voting time draws nearer and nearer.

for a while, a discreet and skeptical silence. The act just signed by Mr. Nixon may indeed be landmark legislation. It surely is a monument to one of the Senate's most able men, Henry M. Jackson of Washington. It is entirely possible that the new three-member Council of Environmental Quality Advisers will add fresh clout to the anti-pollution cause.

But an uneasy feeling is beginning to grow that what is needed is not fresh clout, but better coordination. Everyone's getting into the act. Preservation of a livable environment has become the hottest cause on Capitol Hill since Civil Rights and Appalachia. It is hotter than hunger, poverty, food stamps and housing. There was a time, and not so long ago, when half the House would have been stumped by talk of "ecology." Now there's an ecologist in every cloakroom, and the end if not in sight.

In many ways, of course, this intense interest is wonderfully welcome. Those of us who were born after 1900, or even after 1920, inherited a land that was generally pleasant, livable, and lovely to look at. To be sure, there were slums and tenements and soft coal soot, and quite a lot of mud mixed with the horse manure, but the quality of life, as measured in clean air, clean water, and verdant hills, was something to remember with wonder—and with dismay.

For the generations of this century have squandered that inheritance. Never was so great a trust so grossly violated. We turned our valleys into dust bowls and our rivers into sewers, killed the lakes, fouled the air, choked the cities. With the brute efficiency of systematic vandals, we combined

Strength For Today

ACROSS THE CENTURES

Centuries ago a great religious leader said: "We conclude, therefore, that a Christian man lives not in himself, but in Christ and in his neighbor. Otherwise he is not a Christian. He lives in Christ through faith, in his neighbor through love; by faith he is caught up beyond himself into God, by love he sinks down beneath himself into his neighbor; yet he always remains in God and in His love."

Pretty good sentiment whether expressed a thousand years ago or today. The opening sentence, namely that Christian man lives not in himself but in Christ and his neighbor, may be said to constitute practically everything that sound religious faith stands for. The folly of human endeavor is apparent every time we open the newspaper or listen to news broadcasts, and yet who would want to go back a thousand years and live in a much less complicated world order than the one in which we now live?

The greatest of all Teachers once declared that ultimate truth consisted in loving God and loving one's neighbor. Certainly God's almighty power and love is chiefly manifested when men show mercy and pity for one another. We are coming to see that unless a spirit of comradeship exists among nations there can be no peace or contentment in a world that is rich and growing richer all the time, a wise world that is trying to apply its wisdom to the solution of basic problems.

Let us pray God for human betterment as if everything depended upon Him. Then let us get to our feet and work as if everything depended on us.
By Earl L. Douglass

Mergers Not Vital To Growth

By ELMER ROESSNER

The urge to merge has been strong in American business in the last decade. There have been so many mergers that the Justice Department, the rapidly changing pattern of American business, it is necessary to have feet in many fields in order to stand up against the buffeting, especially with the threat of a recession ahead.

In one of the extremes, Sayre and Fisher Co., one of the nation's oldest brick manufacturers, is getting out of the brick business and arranging a merger with metals and merchandising companies and planning a land development of its own. Diversifying Without Take-Overs

However, there is one corporation that has diversified into 25 different fields almost entirely by its own growth. It's C.H. Stuart and Co., Inc., with headquarters in Newark, N.Y. (not N.J.), near Rochester, N.Y. (not Minn.).

The company was started by C.W. Stuart, a nursery man, who began to expand by taking plant stock by horse and wagon to isolated farms in the area. He added a line of flavoring extracts.

Over the years, it expanded into seven direct-selling companies, a furniture company, a fiberglass boat company, wholesale and retail nursery company, a landscape division, a fuel efficiency subsidiary, three jewelry manufacturing companies, a printing business and a computer service.

It's most recent expansion is the development of a cluster of operations to serve other business in developing and introducing new products. It will manufacture, package, distribute and market-test new products for other companies and then turn over the going operation to the client, or continue all or any part of the services.

Growth From Within

Of all these many subsidiaries, only two were acquired by merger. Since World War II, the boat company was purchased and once before the war it may have bought another company, although available records are not clear on that point.

Current plans are for expanding its Sarah Coventry direct-sales jewelry company, one of its best known subsidiaries, through Europe. It already has subsidiaries in Canada, France and Britain.

The president of the company is C.W. Stuart, great-grandson of the founder. All the stock is closely held. The company has never offered stock to the public and it is not listed on any stock exchange. Sales in 1970 are estimated at $65 million.

ELMER ROESSNER

Federal Trade Commission and Congress have been concerned and legal action has been taken to block a number of them.

The necessity to diversify has been the major reason advanced by conglomerates in their arguments with the government and stockholders. With the

Whedbee Whets Speculation

The announcement yesterday by Robert Rouse Jr. of Farmville that he will be a candidate for the Superior Court Judgeship in the Third Judicial District has opened the doors to speculation that at least one other Pitt man may lose his hat in the ring.

Political observers feel that District Judge Charles H. Whedbee of Greenville will seek the Superior Court seat also — a post once held by his late father.

Asked about that possibility, Whedbee said "I will have an announcement later..." as to whether or not he will be a candidate. "That is all I can say at this time. I think any announcement now is premature."

Rouse, a Farmville attorney and former District Solicitor said yesterday he would be a candidate for the post held now by Judge William J. Bundy. Judge Bundy announced Saturday that he would not seek reelection to the post he has held since 1955. His term expires in December 1970.

The Third Judicial District includes the counties of Pitt, Craven, Cartaret and Pamlico.

At present, Judge Whedbee is one of four District Court judges serving the four counties.

Whedbee served for years as Greenville Recorder's Court judge before reorganization of the court system just over a year ago. He was elected to the district bench post and has served since the District Court came into effect in December 1968.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The food stamp program has been extended to 211 areas in 30 states, including 31 counties which previously had no type of government food aid for needy families.

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin Wednesday designated the new areas for food stamp distribution. Most of them, including New York City, will change from the commodity distribution program.

As many as 900,000 persons eventually may be involved in the new food stamp areas. The department says about 3.6 million persons are now enrolled or in line for food stamps and another 3.4 million are served by commodity programs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The loyalty oath on federal job applications has had no legal effect for months and an applicant is under no requirement to sign it, the Civil Service Commission says.

The law requiring the loyalty oath was voided here last June 4 by U.S. District Court and the Justice Department decided against an appeal.

The oath is still being signed by thousands of applicants, the commission said. It added that membership in a subversive organization is still grounds for refusing federal employment.

The oath remains on civil service forms, primarily because of a pending challenge to another section of the form. The commission says it intends to revise the form when the other question is settled.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is overcommitting money for a huge new type of assault ship, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., says.

He made the charge Wednesday after the Navy confirmed it is reimbursing Litton Industries for the first 40 months cost for building the ship, capable of launching simultaneous air, land and sea assaults.

The state of Mississippi basically is financing the new shipyard where it is being built, the Navy said.

Litton was awarded a $1.3 billion Navy contract this year to build nine of the new ships.

Scott Trusts No New Cigarette Tax In Offing

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he is hoping President Nixon will not request and Congress will not enact an increase in federal tobacco taxes.

"Federal taxation of tobacco products is already at a very high level," Scott said Wednesday. "I feel such action would further jeter the states, including North Carolina, from obtaining revenue from this source."

Reports from Washington indicated the administration is considering asking for increased federal excise taxes, including a possible steep hike in the cigarette tax.

The federal excise tax on cigarettes has been eight cents a pack since 1951, when one cent was added to help finance the Korean war.

The metropolitan population of Ankara, capital of Turkey, is about one million.

Name New Director Of Alumni Affairs

Donald Yates Leggett of Windsor has been named director of alumni affairs at East Carolina University.

Leggett comes to ECU from Raleigh, where he was assistant principal of Needham Broughton High School.

ECU President Leo W. Jenkins, who announced Leggett's appointment this week, said: "We have found in Don Leggett a young man who has the energy and ability necessary to continue the fine work of our alumni affairs office and to expand its services to meet the ever-increasing needs of our growing university. Mr. Leggett, himself an ECU alumnus, has already begun the demanding tasks of his office."

Leggett, 34, graduated from ECU in 1958 with the BS degree in physical education and social studies. He earned the MA degree in secondary education in 1962.

DONALD LEGGETT

The new director taught physical education and coached baseball and basketball in Harnett County; was assistant principal, guidance counselor and coach at Buies Creek High School; and joined the faculty of Needham Broughton in 1964. He became assistant principal in 1966.

Leggett is married to the former LaBette Dorman of Buies Creek. The couple will make their home in Greenville.

stupidity and greed. Now we measure the quality of our life by the tons of litter we leave behind. The hallmark of our society is stamped on ten million roadside bottles: No deposit, no return.

All this has been said repeatedly. Teddy Roosevelt said it at the top of his lusty lungs. Editors of a thousand newspapers appealed for conservation of vanishing resources. Garden clubs, sportsmen's organizations, such as Governors as Pinchot of Pennsylvania, pleaded and warned and remonstrated. Nothing slowed the rapacious tide. Red-eyed, coughing, half-deafened, we staggered into the Sixties.

And behold: If there is one good thing that can be said for the decade just ended, it is that perhaps—perhaps—it marked the beginning of a new awareness, and a new determination, in terms of a livable world. Now congressmen are leaping to the cause like so many spawning salmon.

As a result, we may wind up with too much of a muchness. The old-line agencies—the National Park Service, Forest Service, Soil Conservation Service—suddenly have acquired a flock of young friends. In a torrent of reorganization and creation, recent years have brought a Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, a Federal Water Pollution Control Administration, a National Air Pollution Control Administration, an Environmental Health Service, an Environmental Control Administration, an Assistant Secretary for Model Cities, a Water Resources Council, and a small army of State and regional commissions.

The Jackson Act will create a Council of Environmental Quality Advisers. The Council soon will be joined by an entirely new Office of Environmental Quality, to be created under a bill sponsored by Senator Muskie of Maine. The Congress has got religion, all right; it could now use a firm ecumenical movement.

Paris Cards Piling Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 125,000 Christmas cards coupling season's greetings and a plea for the release of American prisoners of war, are piled in the Post Office, awaiting delivery to North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

The mail, addressed to Xuan Thuy and produced by the appeal of the U.S. Jaycees and Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., is a gesture of public support for efforts to get the names of prisoners, secure humane treatment, and win release soon.

Piled in mail bags, the cards are at the central Post Office in Washington while the Jaycees work out arrangements for delivery to Xuan Thuy.

Griffin said he has no evidence what they do to any particular North Vietnamese attitudes, but added Hanoi is not insensitive to American and world public opinion.

"It's just difficult to appreciate what they do to any particular thing we do," he said.

Griffin launched the appeal, cleared by the State Department, with a Senate speech Dec. 10. The Jaycees handled promotion and arrangements.

Dog Theft Ring Probed

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP) — A Vance County deputy, Henry W. Shearin, is investigating what he described as a "dog theft ring."

Shearin said Wednesday he is investigating thefts of hunting dogs and pet dogs valued at from $10,000 to $15,000. He said some of the dogs are being sold to a Baltimore laboratory at $15 each.

Noting that his investigation has taken him into Bertie, Northampton, Warren and Halifax counties, Shearin estimated that 100,000 dogs have been stolen in Vance and a dozen surrounding counties in the past four years.

"We have evidence that they are being taken to other parts of Eastern North Carolina and later taken into Virginia," the deputy added.

"Dogs that prove good for hunting are sold as hunting dogs. The others are being sold to the Baltimore laboratory for $15 each."

"There are all indications this is a dog theft ring we're after," he added. "They're not only raiding dog pens, but are driving along in trucks on rural roads and luring tired dogs."

Declare Nixon 'Most Admired'

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A Gallup Poll report says President Nixon was the most admired man in the nation in 1969.

Following the President in the returns reported Wednesday were Evangelist Billy Graham, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Lyndon Johnson, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, Harry Truman, George C. Wallace, Pope Paul VI and Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Challenge Color TV Ruling On Welfare Checks

GREENSBORO (AP) — Three Forsyth County residents have challenged the authority of the North Carolina Department of Social Services to cancel welfare payments for owners of color television sets.

The plaintiffs said in a suit in federal court that they received letters from the Forsyth Department of Social Services informing them that their old age assistance payments had been canceled because they owned color sets.

Two of the plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. James Merritt of Rural Hall, said they won their set in a grocery store contest. Mrs. Leticia Sams said her brother left the set to her at his death.

The plaintiffs are also seeking a temporary restraining order to prevent the department from canceling the old age assistance.

Actor's Son To Be Arraigned

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Louis Henry Jourdan, 18, son of actor Louis Jourdan, will be arraigned Jan. 21 in Municipal Court on a charge of possessing marijuana.

The youth was arrested Dec. 29 when deputies stopped his car for a routine check and said they saw him drop a plastic bag containing marijuana.

Young Jourdan has been free on $1,250 bail.

Colorado, the eighth largest state, has an area of 104,247 square miles.

No Rights For Monkeys

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal judge ruled monkeys don't have constitutional rights as he threw out the suit of six prisoners who sought to enjoin the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from shooting any more monkeys into space.

U. S. District Judge Algernon Butler said as he dismissed the suit that it was "wholly without merit and entirely frivolous."

The convicts said in their suit they could understand how a monkey feels being confined to a spacecraft, and they asserted that Bonny, the NASA monkey which became sick on a space trip and subsequently died, had been subjected to "cruel and unusual punishment."

In dismissing the case, Judge Butler said the suit was "an attempt at abuse of process. We (the court) are not aware of any court, state or federal, that has included monkeys in the category of homo sapiens whose rights are guaranteed by the constitution and bill of rights."

Might Replace Old Lightship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco lightship—the mariner's beacon anchored 11 miles offshore—may be traded in for an automated device.

The U.S. Coast Guard began conducting a survey among seamen Tuesday asking their views on abandonment of the 72-year-old, red-hulled vessel. The ship stands guard at the approaches to San Francisco's Golden Gate, warning sailors during dense fog or darkness.

The Coast Guard is considering replacement of the ship with a 7,500-candlepower buoy, similar to an automatic warning system at Sandy Hook, N.J.

Maintenance of the San Francisco lightship has been about $110,000 a year.

Reports Of Natural Gas Find Result In Warning

RALEIGH (AP) — Two top state officials have thrown cold water on reports that natural gas has been found in Dare County.

Secretary of State Thad Eure urged citizens to exercise "extreme caution" in evaluating the report.

Director Roy G. Sowers of the state's Department of Conservation and Development said in a statement that as yet "there is no sign that gas and oil does exist in profitable quantities."

Sowers also pointed out that much drilling in that area of North Carolina "has never produced profitable quantities of natural gas and oil."

Eure said reports of similar discoveries in the past "resulted in financial losses to many investors." And he said none of the gas and drilling companies mentioned in connection with the reported discovery were registered to do business in North Carolina.

Reports of an oil discovery originated earlier this week with G. L. Sholar, who said he represented the North Carolina Natural Gas and Oil Co. of Wilmington.

Sholar reported that the Rapp Oil Co. of California had discovered natural gas in a well near the village of Stumpy Point on Pamlico Sound.

Sowers said the Rapp firm had recently plugged and abandoned an exploratory well in Currituck County and one in Dare County but is still testing the well at Stumpy Point.

Since he has not received complete information from Rapp, Sowers said, "We cannot officially confirm the presence, or absence, of natural gas or petroleum in this well."

Sowers said the Rapp firm is expected to supply full information when it completes its tests.

"In the event natural gas, or petroleum, is discovered to be present in large quantities in the Twiford No. 1 (Stumpy Point) well ... this fact will be called to the attention of the governor and Council of State with the recommendation that Part II of the Oil and Gas Conservation Act be declared in force and effect," Sowers added.

He said this act gives his department "broad authority to regulate and control the production of oil and gas in North Carolina."

Because presence of oil or gas in "commercial quantities" is the key to invoking the act, he said, "We are asking the attorney general of North Carolina for a legal interpretation of that term to give us legal criteria which we would need to act."

Sholar said it is not known whether enough gas is present to make the well profitable.

In a prepared statement Eure cautioned against buying securities from unregistered firms, although Sholar made no mention of any securities being sold. Eure said he has no information that securities are being sold, but issued the warning, "because we don't want anyone to get taken by anybody, anytime."

Cowboy Artist An Ideal TV Subject

By CYNTHIA LOWRY, AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Russell, the great cowboy artist of the Old West, was an ideal subject for the "Project 20" treatment given him Wednesday night.

Available for the NBC documentary were the many paintings by the artist which formed a sort of diary of his long experience first as hunter and cowboy and, after his marriage in 1895, as a professional artist observing men, animals and mountain in his beloved Montana.

The paintings were laced with old photographs—many of them of Russell at various stages of his career—and highlighted with recent film shot on the Montana plains.

The subject, a St. Louis boy who went west on a stage coach when he was 16, sketched and painted for his own diversion for years. His first exhibits were in saloons for he sometimes traded painting for food or drink. When he died in 1926 he was famous, his paintings—of buffalos, Indians, cowboys and horses—were widely reproduced as calendar art. Recently a painting of his sold for $15,000.

The mood of the program, with a sensitive narration by Milburn Stone, was as nostalgic as Russell's own feeling that he was documenting a dying era of American history. It was an excellent program, perhaps a little long-winded, but the sort of thing television doesn't do very much any more.

There is a strong probability that Merv Griffin and company will soon move his late-evening CBS program to Hollywood.

CBS executives—not exactly ecstatic over Griffin's ratings, about half those of Johnny Carson—are concerned over the scramble for guests in New York now that Dick Cavett is also in the field. Hollywood, whatever it may lack in non-theatrical personalities, has an endless supply of film and TV stars.

Joey Bishop was Hollywood-based, and the stream of stars didn't save his show.

It would be a big wrench for Griffin, who has a successful production company operating in New York—NBC's "Jeopardy" is a Griffin production—assorted financial interests and a farm in New Jersey. Arthur Treacher has an important piece of a new restaurant which has been given his nickname, "Pip's Pub," in New York plus other business interest. CBS has the old Cort Theatre, expensively remodeled to suit the needs of the show.

NBC is doing some in-fighting that may interfere with ABC's Second Season premieres. On Wednesday, Jan. 21, when ABC's comedy series "Nanny and the Professor" bows, Joan Crawford will be guest-starring in "The Virginian." Later that night, when "the Johnny Cash Show" has its debut, NBC will broadcast a "Friars' roast" of Jack Benny with a big lineup of stars.

On Friday, Jan. 23, when ABC's "Love, American Style" starts in a new and, it is hoped, happier time period, the competition will be an NBC original drama "Married Alive," with Robert Culp and Diana Rigg, once of "The Avengers."

No. 1 For Early Bird

RALEIGH (AP) — Two state officials promised Wednesday to take action to insure that the first person in line each year for a state auto license tag gets No. 1.

Director of Administration W. L. Turner and Motor Vehicle Commissioner Joe Garrett took the action as result of a ruckus on the first day of tag sales in Raleigh this year.

Robert Barham, a perennial buyer of the first tag sold here, said he went to the Motor Vehicles Building the afternoon before they went on sale to be sure he would be first in line.

However, when Barham and others in line got in the building, they found a state employee who works in the building, John H. Rorie, was already at the sales window. Rorie bought the first tag.

Turner and Garrett promised no unauthorized persons will be allowed to enter the Motor Vehicles Building prior to the specified time for license tag sale to go on sale.

"In addition," they said, "a system will be initiated in which the first persons who arrives for the purpose of purchasing a low-numbered license tag will be assured of their position in line."

SAFETY FIRST

NEW YORK (AP) — What do women look for when they buy kitchen counter tops? A survey conducted by the Mica Corp. shows that of 100 women surveyed, 62 per cent were most concerned with safety factors—fire resistance. Twenty-four worried about how easy it would be to keep clean; 10 per cent were most concerned with durability. Less than 5 per cent put aesthetic beauty at the top of the list.

Course In Gymnastics

The Department of Health and Education of East Carolina University, in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education, is offering a girls gymnastics class designed for girls in the sixth through the ninth grades.

The course, beginning January 13, will feature instruction in trampoline, tumbling, balance beam, uneven parallel bars, vaulting, floor exercises, and the mini-trampoline.

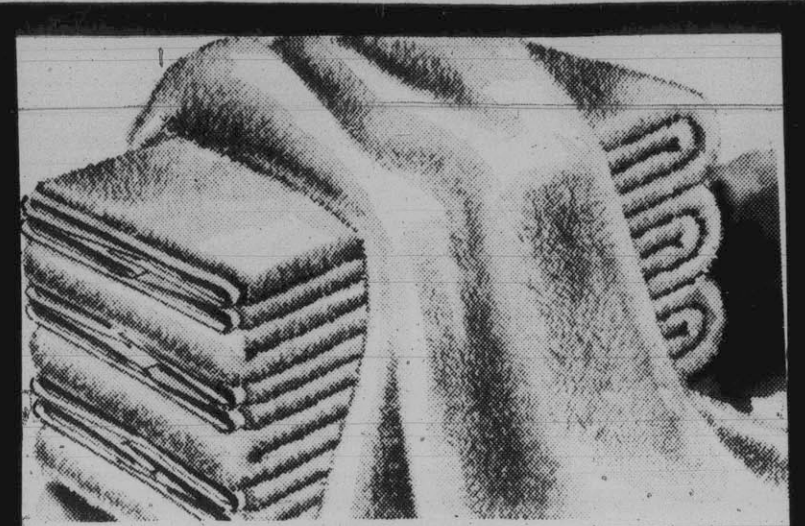

Classes will be held twice weekly, from 4:15 to 5:45 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday, continuing through March 19. Tuition fee is $25.00 per person. Enrollment is to be limited to 20 girls on a first come basis.

All sessions will be conducted in the gymnastics areas of Minges Coliseum. Uniform for the classes will be leotards or similar attire and tumbling shoes.

For further information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, P.O. Box 2727, Greenville or by phone 758-6321.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady Wednesday. Supplies adequate, demand good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:

Grade A large whites: 65 to 66; medium, whites: 60 to 61; small, whites: 51.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina hog markets today were mostly 50 higher with instances of 75 higher. Tops of 26.25-27.25 at Rocky Mount; 26.75-27 at Wilson; 26.25-26.75 at Siler City and Denton; 25.25-26.25 at Bethel, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Newton Grove, Albertain and Lumberton; 27.50 at Mt. Olive; 27 at Salisbury; and 26.25 at Greensboro.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina poultry market today was steady for the most part. Price of live poultry at the farms was 14 cents a pound.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slowly in moderate trading early today.

At 11 a.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead by 2.24 to 804.05.

Advances stretched their lead over declines to about 175 among individual issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said investors apparently were encouraged by the firming trend that developed late in Wednesday's session.

Otherwise, there was little in the way of news developments to propel the market.

On a delayed opening Kerr-McGee advanced 4 3/4 to 98.

Extremely cold weather this morning has completely stopped all activity on Pitt County grain buying stations and all prices continue to hold. One or two markets anticipate that the prices will not change during the rest of the winter, barring a change on the national market. Following are per bushel price quotes reported at 11 a.m.

Greenville: yellow corn, $1.25; wheat, $1.20; oats, $.65; soybeans, $2.40—all steady.

Ayden: yellow corn, shell, $1.32; ear corn, $1.20—steady.

Winterville: yellow corn, shell, $1.27; ear corn, $1.17—steady.

Bethel: yellow corn, shell, $1.30; ear corn, $1.15; soybeans, $2.35—all steady.

Students Given Research Grants

Two undergraduate chemistry majors at East Carolina University have been awarded research grants from the North Carolina Academy of Science. The grants, awarded annually on a competitive basis to outstanding science majors, provide funds for the purchase of equipment or supplies for a research problem in the student's discipline.

Kristen Eileen Zimmer, a junior from Cincinnati, Ohio and Robert J. Barrow, a sophomore from Goldsboro, will conduct their projects under the direction of members of the chemistry faculty.

No Charges In Auto Collision

No charges were reported in a 9:45 p.m. mishap here yesterday at the intersection of Fifth and Holly Streets that resulted in an estimated $350 damage.

Officers identified the drivers involved as Dornie Lee Harris, 23 of Route 5, Greenville and Sherman Allen Fields, 32 of Newport News, Va.

Damage was set at $225 to the Harris car and $125 to the Fields vehicle.

House And Contents Are Lost To Fire

A fire Wednesday night damaged the house and contents of the home on the Atlas Wooten farm, one mile east of Bruce on N.C. Highway 43.

County Fire Marshal Mike Worthington stated "the fire apparently started from wiring behind the refrigerator. The electrical cord was held to the wall by nails which caused a shortage."

Falkland Fire Department answered the alarm at 8:04 p.m. and at 8:30 called the Belvoir Fire Department who responded with a water truck.

Damage to the house and contents, together valued at about $6,000, amounted to approximately $1,000, according to Worthington.

The party's over.

Now it's time to get down to business. The business of making 1970 a better year than its predecessor. Better for you. Better for your family.

One way you can make it a better year is by making better use of your money.

And the way to do that is to open a savings account.

Then you can save for things you need rather than charging them.

And earn interest rather than pay interest.

So if you haven't made a new year's resolution to save money, make one now.

It could make your whole year.

Uneasiness In Super Bowl Town

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An edgy uneasiness hangs over the Super Bowl although both the pro football commissioner and the government insisted today there is no evidence linking any player with a broad probe of sports gambling.

Len Dawson, veteran Kansas City quarterback who leads his team against the Minnesota Vikings Sunday for the pro championship, admitted that his concentration had been affected by reports naming him among six football personalities to be questioned.

"I haven't slept too well the last month," he said. "The season's been that way."

In Miami, Joe Namath, quarterback of the New York Jets, greeted news that he also might be summoned for questioning with the terse remark:

"Hell, a subpoena, that's nothing. That just means they want to talk to you."

Meanwhile, odds on the game jumped from 11 points in favor of the Vikings to 13 or 14, depending on the bookmaker.

Pete Rozelle, the pro commissioner, arrived in New Orleans Wednesday evening and called a press conference to announce that U.S. Atty. James Brickley in Detroit had assured him that no evidence had been uncovered linking a pro football player with gambling activities.

"The same is true of our own investigation," Rozelle said. Pro football has a 29-man security staff.

In Detroit, Brickley said he doubted there would be many more arrests—"maybe one or two"—before a grand jury is asked for indictments. A grand jury convenes Jan. 20.

So far, 14 persons from four states—Michigan, Nevada, New York and Mississippi—have been arrested on charges of violating federal wagering laws. More than $600,000 has been seized in cash and checks.

Asked whether pro football had been scarred by the developments, Rozelle said:

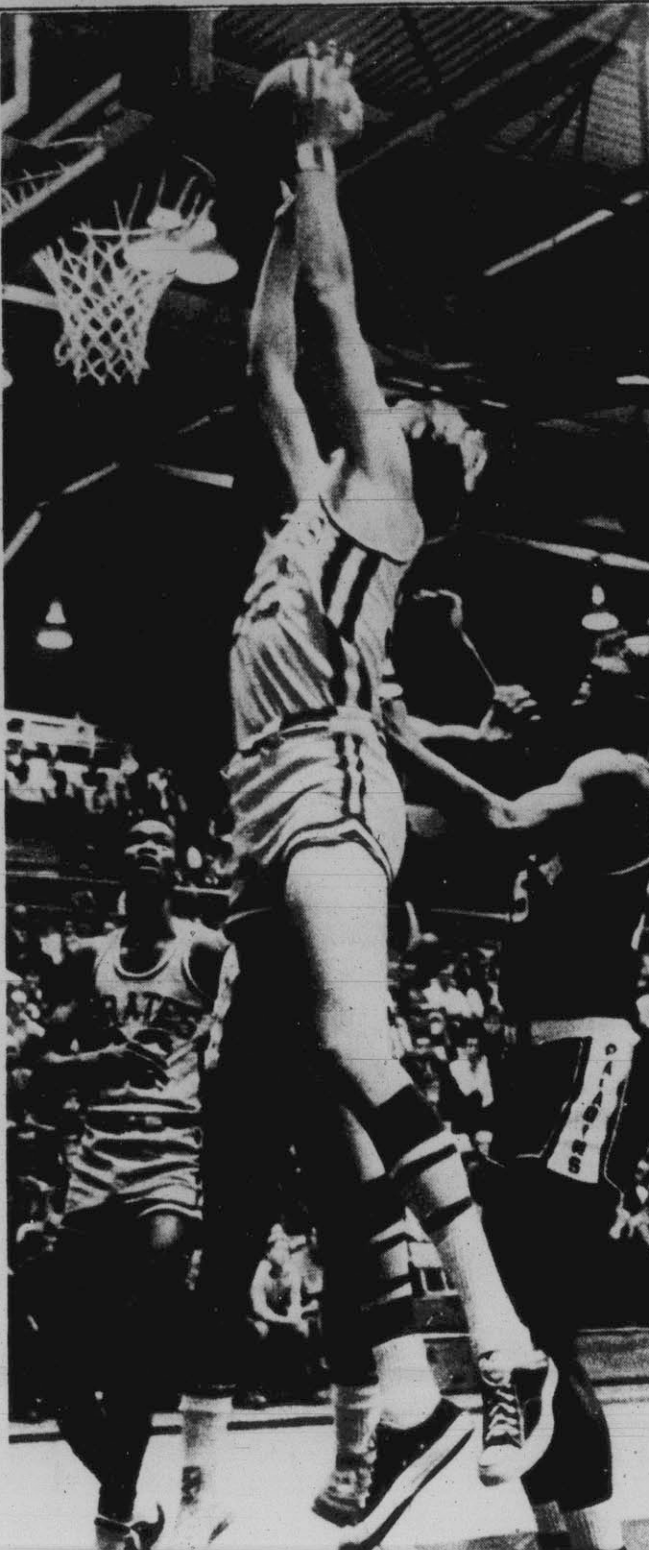

"Well, it isn't healthy."

The National Broadcasting Company reported Tuesday that it had received information from an unnamed official that six prominent football personalities would be questioned.

James Ritchie, head of the Justice Department task force handling the probe in Detroit, said Justice Department policy prohibits calling as a witness anyone who might be indicted.

Besides Dawson and Namath, those named by NBC were Bill Munson, quarterback of the Detroit Lions; Karl Sweetan, reserve quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams; Pete Lammons, end of the New York Jets; and Bob Devaney, coach of the University of Nebraska.

Devaney issued a statement, saying: "I have never been involved in any activities that bring discredit to intercollegiate athletics."

Second Half Effort By Scott Paces Carolina Past Wolfpack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charlie Scott may have lost the Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year award last season, but Wednesday night there was no doubt that he was player of the night in the North Carolina - North Carolina State basketball game.

The lanky senior sank four straight outside shots in the second half to push his team in front on the way to a 78-69 victory over the previously unbeaten Wolfpack at Raleigh.

Scott hit only two of 10 shots in the first half, but his second period spree accounted for 18 points and allowed the fourth-ranked Tar Heels to whip the nation's No. 10 team.

North Carolina had trailed for most of the game and was down five points at the half. After Scott's burst, it went into its famous four corners offense, which spreads out the players and concentrates on "wasting time and holding the lead."

It was a crucial victory for the Tar Heels, who lost to third-ranked South Carolina Tuesday night and needed a victory to remain in contention for their fourth straight regular season conference title.

Vann Williford led N. C. State with 20 points.

In Wednesday's only other game between league foes, Duke overcame scrappy Wake Forest 78-72 in overtime in Durham, N. C.

John Posen bucketed four straight charity shots to break Wake Forest's comeback.

Duke outshot and outrebounded Wake Forest throughout the game, but thanks to careful ball control and the shooting of Charlie Davis, the Deacons remained up with their hosts.

Wake Forest committed only four turnovers in the game and held a one-point lead at break on a 30-foot jumper by Davis at the buzzer.

The score was tied nine times in the second half and regulation play ended with a 66-66 deadlock.

Duke's overtime victory came without Randy Denton, who fouled out midway the bonus period with 23 points and 16 rebounds.

Rick Kalherman led Duke with 24 points, but Davis topped all scorers with 25.

Davis also fouled out in the final seconds of the game.

Two other ACC teams won over nonconference opponents Wednesday night, while a third was defeated.

Virginia's Chip Case fired a career high 31 points to lead the Cavaliers to an 81-71 victory over Virginia Tech.

Bibby's Dream Coming True

LOS ANGELES (AP)—UCLA guard Henry Bibby's dream was the same as ever kid who's shot baskets at a homemade hoop and wished to be a big star someday.

That someday is today for Bibby, who is the star starting guard for the nation's number one ranked college basketball team. It's a long way, he says, from the hand-me-down hoop on the side of the shed back home.

As a boy he worked 12 hours a day, with his parents and brothers, on a tiny tobacco farm at Franklinton, N.C., a town of 6,000. He practiced his basketball at night.

For two hours or more each night, as a single light bulb glowed balefully on the outside of the house, the lad would dribble and shoot around the backyard court.

He was the star in high school and although it was small and all-black and had a basketball coach who really specialized in baseball, he was noticed in his senior year.

"A black woman came up to me and asked me how I'd like to go to UCLA," he recalls. "I said I might. She said, 'How are your grades?' and I said good. That started it."

Bibby's principal, who was also his coach, wrote to UCLA basketball coach John Wooden.

"We don't usually do something like this," Wooden says, "but we needed a guard badly so we sent Jay Carty, who was then our assistant coach, down to Franklinton to see Henry play."

The result landed him at UCLA, where as a sophomore he's shot to a 17.1 point average, third best on the team. He's rated an exceptional outside shooter.

But he doesn't really give the credit to the backyard hoop.

"We never had any luxuries when I was growing up. Everything I have I worked for — nothing was given to me. But my parents did all they could do. My mother is the reason I'm here today. I know that and I feel I owe her something."

The Cavaliers built up a quick lead in the first half, only to see the Gobblers dissolve it with a second period burst. Frank DeWitt's layup with six minutes left touched off an eight-point scoring spree which put Virginia ahead for good.

Virginia Tech's Lloyd King got 20 points of the Gobblers total.

Surprising Maryland romped over West Virginia, 83-76, in College Park, Md., as all five starters scored in double figures.

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell kept his starters in for the entire game. His Terps played disciplined basketball, committing only eight fouls and hitting 52 per cent from the floor.

Rod Horst of Maryland and Will Robinson of West Virginia shared scoring honors with 26 points.

Clemson lost to Georgia Tech in Atlanta, the Tigers' fifth loss in six games.

Yellow Jacket forward Bill Mayer sank 25 points while Clemson's Butch Zatezalo hit 26. Georgia Tech took the lead midway the first half and never trailed.

All league teams are idle tonight and Friday. Play resumes Saturday with Virginia at Clemson, Duke at North Carolina, Maryland at South Carolina and N. C. State at Wake Forest.

Phillies Wait For Curt Flood

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — General Manager John Quinn of the Philadelphia Phillies still expects to have Curt Flood in his outfield this season despite Flood's threat to sue baseball over the controversial reserve clause.

Quinn said he met with Flood in New York before Flood disclosed he would contest the legality of the reserve clause. They had dinner together, Quinn said, and Flood identified himself to a young lady as an outfielder for the Phillies and introduced Quinn as general manager and vice president of his (Flood's) club.

Quinn said he would send Flood a contract Jan. 15, along with other members of the Phillies. He said Flood would earn at least as much as he was paid by the St. Louis Cardinals, a reported $90,000. Flood was traded by the Cardinals to the Phillies several months ago. At first, Flood said he would retire, then decided to contest the reserve clause which binds a player to his club.

Flood's request to be made a free agent was denied by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, prompting Flood's threat to take the case to court. Kuhn said Wednesday here that it is his impression that baseball does not feel it can give ground on the reserve clause.

Kuhn said the owners and baseball's Players Association were negotiating on the reserve clause and had been the association's advisor, he would have suggested staying at the bargaining table rather than going to court.

The commissioner said any comment on the reserve clause negotiations should come from the owners' or players' committees discussing the issue. "I have not taken any position on the bargaining issue. I have not participated in the strategy discussions, nor do I think it's appropriate that I should."

Modlin For A Pair

Jim Modlin of East Carolina goes up for two points in Tuesday night's game against Furman University. Modlin canned 31 points after a slow start to lead the Bucs to an 81-66 victory over the Paladins. At left is East Carolina's Jim Fairley, while Joe Brunson of Furman is behind Modlin. The Bucs, 2-1 in the Southern, play host to VMI on Saturday night. (Reflector Photo)

Knicks Continue Road Winning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Knicks, often seem unaware that there is supposed to be a home court advantage, but they continue to be kings of the road.

New York edged San Francisco 99-94 Wednesday night for their second straight road victory and 18th in 20 attempts away from home this season. They are 17-7 at home.

The victory kept the Knicks 6½ games ahead of the second-place Milwaukee Bucks in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division. The Bucks belted Cincinnati 138-119 for their 12th victory in 19 games.

The commissioner said any comment on the reserve clause negotiations should come from the owners' or players' committees discussing the issue. "I have not taken any position on the bargaining issue. I have not participated in the strategy discussions, nor do I think it's appropriate that I should."

Dallas Draws Near To Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some high-spirited Chaps are hungrily eyeing the top spot in the American Basketball Association's Western Division — but some record-setting Rockets have their own idea about who will win the title.

The Dallas Chaparrals nipped the Los Angeles Stars 114-112 in an ABA doubleheader Wednesday night to gallop within 3½ games of first-place New Orleans in the tightly packed division.

In the opener of the twin bill played before only 1,409 fans in the Los Angeles Sports Arena, Denver's Rockets ran away from Washington in the final quarter to drub the Caps 129-118 for their ninth consecutive victory, a team record, and 10th in 12 games since Joe Belmont took over as coach.

In Wednesday night's only other ABA game, New York took advantage of 24 Pittsburgh turnovers in the first half and the Nets breezed to a 133-124 victory over the visiting Pipers.

In National Basketball Association play, New York topped San Francisco 99-94, Milwaukee crushed Cincinnati 138-119, Baltimore trimmed Detroit 121-116 and Atlanta downed Boston 112-106.

The Miami Floridians visit New Orleans and Kentucky's Colonels host Indiana in tonight's only ABA action.

Dallas handed Los Angeles its fifth straight defeat. The lead changed hands 36 times during the game. Glen Combs led the Chaps with 30 points. Mack Calvin scored 25 for Los Angeles.

Scoring honors for the night went to Washington's Warren Armstrong who slammed in 46 points, a career high for the 6-foot-2 guard. But he couldn't counteract the balanced Denver attack, led by Larry Jones with 39 and Spencer Haywood with 28.

New York's victory was its 10th of the season. The Nets managed to win only 17 in the entire 1968-69 season. Pittsburgh's John Brisker led all scorers in the game with 30 but Sonny Dove hit for 27 and Ed Johnson added 22 as the Nets built up a 20-point half-time lead.

Tankmen Host S.C.

East Carolina University will play host to South Carolina Friday at 7:30 p. m. in a swimming meet in Minges Natatorium.

The East Carolina - South Carolina match has been listed as one of the annual highlights of the year for the Pirates. Each year, this one seems to generate more enthusiasm than any other according to Coach Ray Scharf.

"They beat Georgia and lost to North Carolina in a pair of close matches," Scharf said. "They are at least as good as they were last year, and it should be a very close meet."

South Carolina captured the meeting between the two schools last year by winning the diving events, and diving could be a key event again this time. "They have some good individual swimmers," the coach said. "but they lack depth."

"We will be going all out to beat them. The team is up for the meet. We expect good competition from Jim Griffin and Jim Frederick and Wayne Norris. Most of the races should be very close."

City League

Coca-Cola, the Jaycees and the Book Exchange picked up victories last night in the City Recreation Basketball League.

Coca-Cola moved past Watson Electric, 65-42, while the Jaycees whipped Campus Corner, 81-47. The Book Exchange crushed ROTC, 108-51.

Senior Bowl Set Saturday

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — North and South squads wind up two-day practices today in the same chill weather which sent the Yankees hustling through workouts Wednesday to prepare for Saturday's Senior Bowl all-star game.

The Yankees reacted with vigor to the cold snap and moved briskly through drills under the watchful eye of Coach Lou Saban of the Denver Broncos.

Saban again had quarterbacks Dennis Shaw of San Diego State and Chuck Burkhardt of Penn State working on passing despite the strong winds.

Coach Don Shula of the Baltimore Colts also devoted considerable time to the South's passing.

A major portion of the drills was spent on short passes by Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech and Bill Cappleman of Florida State, although both occasionally cut loose with a long one.

Elder Sets Up Three Goals

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) Lee Elder, who could be the next major Negro star on the pro golf tour, has three major goals for 1970, his third full year on the PGA circuit.

"I want to win, play in the Masters and finish in the top 60 (money winners)," the soft-spoken Elder said prior to the opening round today of the 44th Los Angeles Open, first stop on the 1970 tour.

Two of those goals—winning and an appearance in the Masters—have eluded the 35-year-old Elder, who plays out of Washington, D.C. But he cracked the top 60 easily in 1969.

Lee made $53,678 for 38th place, by far the best of the nine Negroes now on the tour.

"But I want to win so bad," he said "that has to be something to think about."

"And the Masters, well, that's a real goal. That would be a first, a real first, something to work for. I've got to play hard for that one. But I may have a chance."

No Negro has ever played in the prestigious tournament in Augusta, Ga., an invitational event, Charlie Sifford, the first Negro on the tour and winner of two tournaments, including this event last year, has come close in the ratings by which the Masters makes its invitations but hasn't made it.

A certain group of players are invited regardless of their standings. For the others, a point system is used.

"I'm No. 6 on the list right now," Elder said. "Last year they took six off the list. I guess they'll do the same thing this year."

"And two of those guys ahead of me—Bob Lunn and Grier Jones—are going to get invited. Lunn played so good and won a tournament and Grier was Rookie of the Year. They'll be invited."

"So that moves me up to fourth. That's good, but not good enough. If I won one, that would just about do it. That ought to clinch it. But we'll see."

Purdue Coach Is Retiring

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue football Coach Jack Mollenkopf, deciding against asking a waiver of the retirement age rule, is leaving coaching after 23 years here.

Mollenkopf, who will be 65 July 1, told his staff of the decision Wednesday in a conference call from Honolulu where he is a coach for the Hula Bowl.

In 14 years as Purdue head coach Mollenkopf has 84 victories, 39 losses and nine ties. His last five teams had records of 8-2 or better.

Bob DeMoss, Mollenkopf's senior assistant, was rated a prime candidate to succeed him. Athletic Director Guy (Red) Mackey called a news conference for today and there was speculation the new coach would be named.

Mollenkopf could have asked trustees for a retirement waiver but said he decided against it "after much thought and deliberation with my wife and a few friends."

Mollenkopf, whose 1966 Boilermakers defeated Southern California 14-13 in the Rose Bowl, produced 14 All-Americans since 1960. Purdue had 16 in all the previous years.

Dawson Goes About Preparing For Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — What's it like to be in Lenny Dawson's shoes at this very moment, preparing for the Super Bowl game while trying to forget about having your name associated with a nationwide gambling investigation?

that realization throughout the remainder of the week as he prepares for the Super Bowl Sunday that sends his American Football League championship club against the National Football League champion Minnesota Vikings—because his name has been mentioned.

It was mentioned by NBC as one of those that will be called before a grand jury in the nationwide gambling probe and Dawson himself added to developments by acknowledging a casual relationship to a Birmingham, Mich., restaurateur arrested recently in connection with the investigation.

Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle said he has been assured by the government that there is no evidence linking any player with the gambling probe.

Undoubtedly, however, there is weight on Dawson's shoulders, but Flores feels he can handle it.

"If he's emotional about it, it wouldn't be that evident," said Flores. "Lenny's a meditating type quarterback who controls his emotions very well. That's how he got the nickname Lenny The Cool."

"But a situation like this would add a little more pressure to any quarterback but as a quarterback you're used to pressure and you react accordingly. The better the quarterback the better you handle pressure. And Lenny's the No. 1 quarterback in history."

West Leading Western Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry West, the Los Angeles Lakers' dead-eye shooter, will head up the starting lineup for the Western Division team that faces the East in the National Basketball Association All-Star game Jan. 20 in Philadelphia.

Also named as West starters Wednesday were forwards Connie Hawkins of Phoenix and Elgin Baylor of the Lakers, center Nate Thurmond of San Francisco and guard Lou Hudson of Atlanta.

Forward Chet Walker of Chicago, center Elvin Hayes of San Diego and guard Jeff Mullins of San Francisco were named as reserves.

West, the NBA's leading scorer, was the top vote-getter in the balloting by broadcasters and sportscasters and sports writers in the 14 NBA cities, drawing 13,750 points out of a possible 14.

The starting East team, announced earlier, will be Forwards Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia and John Havlicek of Boston, center-Willis Reeds Reed of New York and guards Walt Frazier of New York and Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati. Also chosen were forward Gus Johnson of Baltimore, center Lew Alcindor of Milwaukee and guard Hal Greer of Philadelphia.

The 14 NBA coaches will complete the selection of the 12-man squads later this week.

Only Lenny Dawson knows for sure and, as is his nature, he is keeping it within.

But Tom Flores, Dawson's teammate with the Kansas City Chiefs and himself a veteran quarterback, is qualified to step into Dawson's shoes and takes a guess. And he did today.

"I'm sure all this week the thing will be on his mind," said Flores. "because no one will let him forget about it—the press, the fans."

"If I was innocent I'd be a little disturbed because of the implications. It would upset me a little. But I wouldn't worry about it because I'd feel clean. If I was guilty it would probably upset me more. But I'm sure Lenny isn't guilty."

"The thing that disturbs me is how open athletes are to this type thing because we are so much in the public eye. If you even get your name mentioned in the same paragraph with a gambler or relative to gambling, there are a lot of people who will be biased against you from then on."

Dawson will have to carry

Esposito Blanks Detroit Icemen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The explosive Chicago attack has misfired several times this season, but the Black Hawks love those blanks rookie goalie Phil Esposito has been firing at National Hockey League opposition.

Esposito posted his eighth shutout, tops in the NHL, Wednesday night as the Hawks blanked Detroit 7-0 to end a three-game losing streak.

In other action, New York topped Pittsburgh 5-3, Boston routed Oakland 6-1, Minnesota and Toronto tied 3-3 and Philadelphia tied St. Louis 2-2.

Eric Nesterenko got Esposito the only goal he needed by connecting in the second period. Dennis Hull and Stan Mikita hit for two goals each and Cliff Koroll and Bobby Hull got one each for Chicago.

New York, first in the East Division, went ahead of Pittsburgh to stay, 4-3, when Walt Tkaczuk assisted Dave Balon in the second period. Tkaczuk also scored two power-play goals, the second one tying the game at 3-3. Juha Widing and Jean Ratelle also scored for the Rangers, Ratelle's coming into an empty net late in the game, while Ken Schinkel connected twice and Nick Haraburak once for Pittsburgh.

Johnny Bucyk and Phil Esposito—Tony's older brother—powered Boston with two goals each against Oakland. Bucyk's goals were the 299th and 300th of his NHL career. Bobby Orr, the league's leading scorer, assisted on both of Esposito's goals.

Bill Hicke tallied Oakland's lone goal in the second period to spoil Ed Johnston's shutout.

The victory enabled the Bruins to remain undefeated against West Division foes.

Philadelphia gained its tie, which ended an 11-game winning streak by St. Louis against West Division teams on home ice this season, when Reg Fleming scored in the third period.

Bob Clarke also scored for Philadelphia, ending a shutout streak of 213 minutes by goalie Jacques Plante against the Flyers over the past two seasons. Gary Sabourin and Bill McCreary scored for the West Division-leading Blues.

Minnesota built up a 3-0 lead, but Toronto came back to tie on third-period goals by Murray Oliver, Tim Horton and Bob Pulford. Claude Larose, Darryl Sly and Dan Lawson scored for Minnesota.

A&T Holds To Eighth In Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Unbeaten Howard Payne leaped all the way from sixth to third place, while Kentucky Wesleyan and Stephen F. Austin remained neck-and-neck for the top spot in this week's Associated Press small college basketball poll.

Kentucky Wesleyan, 8-1, held on to the No. 1 spot, drawing 10 first-place votes and 240 points in the nationwide balloting by sports writers and broadcasters. But Stephen F. Austin, 7-0, was a close second with three top votes and 211 points.

Howard Payne advanced after a pair of victories last week that boosted its victory string to 14.

Youngstown, 9-0, remained No. 5, while Ashland, 9-1, fell from third to fourth despite three straight victories last week.

The Top Twenty Small College teams, with first-place votes and total points. Points awarded on a basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-etc.:

1. Kentucky Wesleyan (10) 240

Osborn Is Not Fancy Runner For Vikings

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dave Osborn is one of those rare birds; a runner who made it all the way back from knee surgery to become the heavy duty ground threat of a National Football League champion.

"I'm not one of those fancy guys," said Osborn before a Minnesota Vikings workout for Sunday's Super Bowl game with the American Football League champs from Kansas City. "I don't have those fancy moves. I just hit into a guy, hoping to slide or roll off him and spin."

For those who missed the Vikings' playoff victories over Los Angeles and Cleveland, Ozzie is the fellow who dived in for two scores against the Rams and romped 20 yards, shedding tacklers, for a clincher against the Browns.

The former North Dakota University star from Cando, N.D.—population 1,700—led the Vikings with 643 yards on 186 carries for seven touchdowns and also caught 22 passes for 236 yards and one score in the regular season.

In the training campaign of 1968, following his brilliant 972-yard season in 1967 when he was second to Leroy Kelly for the rushing title, it appeared it might be all over for Osborn.

Attempting to catch a pass for a two-point conversion against Denver, when they were experimenting with the two-point rule, he damaged his left knee. Ozzie caught the pass and also ran a sweep on another conversion before he realized the extent of the injury. Even then, they thought it was minor and the operation was not performed until four weeks later—just before the season started. He was back in action in the last three games and two playoffs.

"It's a mental thing at first," he said. "You wonder what will happen when you get hit. In practice you make the full cut and wonder if your leg will buckle. You don't have time to worry in a game."

"I have no problem with it. I still lift weights with the left leg four or five times a week. I think it actually is stronger now than the other knee."

'Cats Seeking Fifth Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Davidson's eight-ranked Wildcats reach the halfway mark tonight in their bid for the top seeded position in the Southern Conference's championship basketball tournament at the end of the regular season.

The Wildcats shoot for their fifth consecutive league victory at home against Virginia Military Institute's Keydets, a team that nearly always gives them a battle but hasn't beaten them in the last 11 meetings between the two schools.

Davidson is 4-0 in conference play and 8-1 over-all going into the encounter on the Wildcats' home floor, where they've won their last 50 in a row. The Keydets are 0-1 in the league and 2-7 over-all.

Rounding out tonight's schedule are a pair of nonleague scraps. Furman, 5-4 over-all, goes to Wofford and George Washington, 4-7, is at Washington rival Georgetown.

All conference teams were idle Wednesday night.

Norman Rockwell-

Norman Rockwell is America's best-known and most loved American artist. The warmth, humor and humanity of his pictures contain a universal appeal that hurdles generations (and generation gaps) with the greatest of ease. He is a sort of pictorial Mark Twain whose paintings have probably been seen and enjoyed by more people than those of any other American artist who ever lived.

Norman Rockwell was born in a New York City apartment in 1894. He completed one year of high school before deciding to waste no more time on formal education. Instead, with money he had saved doing odd jobs, he entered art school—actually, two art schools. He attended the National Academy of Design in the mornings, and the Art Students' League in the afternoons. Before long, he was illustrating books, and drawing pictures for such magazines as Boys' Life. Then, on May 20, 1916, when he was 22, his first cover appeared on the Saturday Evening Post.

It was a relationship that was to encompass some forty years and 350 covers, and was to make him the country's—and perhaps the world's—most famous illustrator. In recent years he has contributed paintings to many other magazines. During World War II he interpreted the Four Freedoms in a series of paintings which found their way into more American homes than any other works in the history of American art.

A hale, hearty and energetic 75, Rockwell lives and paints in a studio in his home at Stockbridge, Mass. He is also an active member of the Guiding Faculty of Famous Artists School of Westport. The demand for his work continues unabated, and he is booked up for commissions a full year ahead. Honors continue to accrue to Rockwell. A recent one-man show of his paintings in a New York gallery brought a rave review from the New York Times, and he was the subject—and guest star—of a one-hour special on national television called "Norman Rockwell's America."

BETTER
AT 75!

"I look like a Fine Art master" said Norman Rockwell, and offered "a less pompous photo."

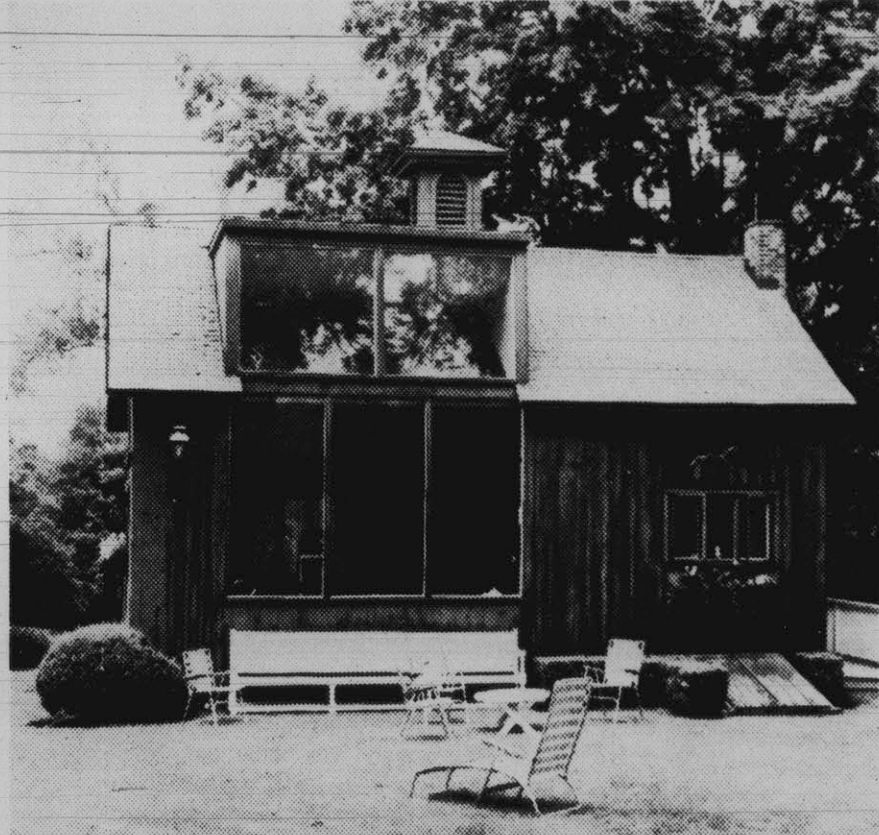

"I painted all seven Presidential hopefuls in 1968..." This one of Nixon was painted after the election.

In an Indian costume used to paint a picture for the movie, "Stage Coach."

"Just me and a model and critic."

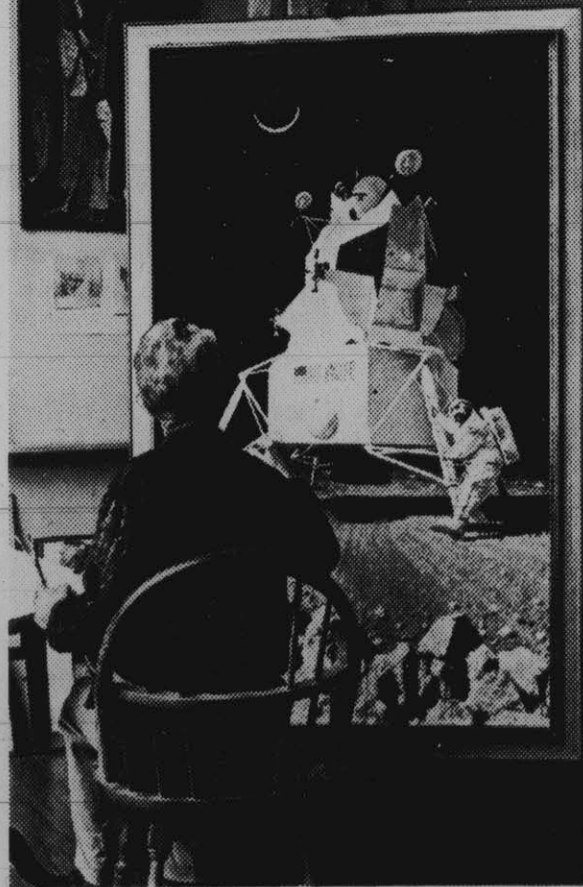

"My studio. I'm afraid I don't spend much time in the foreground chairs."

"My wife, Molly, and I ride every day—unless it's raining we ride about five miles."

"Here I am painting Lincoln—he was 6 foot 4 inches high and my client wanted his figure lifesize."

"I have painted four pictures of the moon shot for publication. The originals are all hanging at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington."

Camp Kilmer Marks Turning Point In Many Lives

By MARCIA CHAMBERS
Perth Amboy News Tribune
EDISON, N.J. (AP) — In days past they were soldiers from Seattle destined for the beaches of Normandy. Then came the Freedom Fighters from Budapest. In the 1960s came the teen-agers from the street corners of Detroit. They came to Camp Kilmer, a sprawling 1.573-acre base; they came to a turning point in their lives.

Lyndon Baines Johnson was president, and it was called the "war on poverty" when, in March 1966, the Kilmer Job Corps Center was formally dedicated. It became the second largest such center in the nation, with 1,700 trainees from disadvantaged backgrounds.

Last June when President Nixon phased out 60 of 113 Job Corps centers across the country, he called for them to be replaced by smaller centers, which would be closer to the trainees' homes, near a major city, funded by the U.S. Department of Labor, and operated either by state education departments or by private corporations.

Kilmer was the first of these, the first of 17 Residual Manpower Centers the government plans to open by next June.

By year's end, 74 trainees were living at Kilmer, which has a potential enrollment of 350 men from around the state.

John Lee of Matawan, tall and husky, and Michael Kelly of Elizabeth, small and slight, were among the first to arrive. Like thousands before them, they came with suitcases in hand, mildly homesick, and both apprehensive and eager as they embarked upon this new phase of their lives.

John Lee came from the home he shared with his mother, three brothers and a sister. Two older brothers are in the Marines Corps. John dropped out of high school at the end of his sophomore year. His family has received welfare assistance and their income is under $4,000 a year. His father does not live at home.

"If I weren't here I'd probably be working as a stock boy in a hardware store," John said.

Michael Kelly is 16. He was asked to leave high school at the end of his freshman year. He had a history of truancy. He has six brothers and sisters. His father is dead. He learned about the manpower center from his probation officer.

Like John's, Michael's family meets the Office of Economic Opportunity guidelines for admission to the program. With six youngsters in Michael's family, their income is $4,000 a year. A family of eight, for example, would have to earn less than $5,400 to be eligible for the program.

"I don't know where I'd be if I were not here," said Michael at the center.

Wearing a dark green uniform and Army type jacket, Michael said "at 16, it's hard to find a job. I'd probably be standing on a street corner looking for something to do."

After a few days at Kilmer, both youths said they missed home, but had been kept too busy to really mind.

"You can't miss home that much 'cause you know you'll be there on the weekends," Michael said, and John, seated alongside him, nodded in agreement.

Sending the trainees home on weekends is an innovation, designed to overcome the homesickness problem of Job Corps days, when trainees often did not see their families for a year or more.

Like the Job Corps Center, the manpower center has a two-pronged attack to overcome the poverty, restlessness, lack of education and skills that characterize many disadvantaged youths.

Many are illiterate. Others have only elementary school reading levels.

Both Michael and John want to obtain their high school equivalency diploma. Michael will study 3 1/2 hours each day to pass the examination. For another 3 1/2 hours, he will study his chosen trade—printing.

John will have to participate for the same number of hours in an intensified reading course before he can enroll in the high school equivalency course. The remainder of John's time will be spent behind the wheel of a truck at the Truck and Transportation School.

He wants to learn to drive a tractor trailer. Always has, he says. For John, the return to a training center is a natural evolution. He had spent one year previously at the Job Corps Center at Ojivway, Mich.

"I went to the Job Corps because I thought it was a shorter way to finish high school," he said.

"But they didn't have a tractor trailer course there," he explains. "So I had to study carpentry and fish management. I didn't like it. I always wanted to be a truck driver, and I was supposed to be transferred to Kilmer last June, but then it closed."

One of the best truck schools is at Kilmer; in fact that school and the police cadet schools were carried over from the Job Corps curriculum to the manpower curriculum, and throughout the summer, 50 young men continued their training at these schools.

Along with the 13 new recruits, all the men are living in renovated classroom buildings, two in a room, each separated by a wooden divider. In each room are two new Army beds, a desk, a lamp, a locker.

Tat John is able to enroll at the manpower center, living as he does only a few miles away, is a new feature of the program.

Before, in the Job Corps, the thinking was that a young man or woman should leave his hometown to escape the stimuli of his environment.

Now, the philosophy is that because the trainee is close to home, the staff, working with only a few hundred instead of a few thousands, will be able to meet frequently with the trainee's family.

Unlike the Job Corps, where young men studied one vocation without being able to sample other available choices, the young men at the manpower center will be able to enter any of the 12 vocational offerings for a period of from one day to six weeks before they make a final decision.

And unlike the Job Corps, where young men often spent almost two years to complete a course of study, Michael and John expect to be finished with in the scheduled six-month period.

The Worry Clinic Psychology In Pulpits Help

Rev. Fugit is an astute Applied Psychologist but he developed much of his keen knowledge of human nature by such episodes as that involving Old Ben. Notice, too, how Old Ben tested Rev. Fugit with that big whiskey bottle. And why Rev. Fugit refused Ben's offer of free lots on which to build the new church.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE L-590: Rev. Larry Fugit is the talented pastor of the Reel Avenue Christian Church in Vincennes, Indiana.

After my Sunday address in his pulpit on the topic, "Jesus—the World's Greatest Psychologist," Rev. Fugit invited Mrs. Crane and me to his home for dinner.

His wife, Dorothy, had prepared a superb meal and as so I felt sure he had put it there just to start an argument.

"Meanwhile, our church building program advanced, but we still hadn't received any contribution from Ben. So I wondered about the wisdom of our having declined those lots he had offered for the church site.

"Then, one morning Ben's wife entered my office and told me when she had cleared the breakfast dishes off the table, she had found a slip of paper folded and under Ben's plate.

"She handed it to me with a smile and I saw it was a check for 80,000.

"So I then realized the wisdom of that old-timer who had warned me not to accept Ben's original offer of a few lots.

"In those earlier days, the cattle ranchers trusted each other and kept their records in a dog-eared little book which they carried in their pants pocket.

"If a rancher wanted to buy 500 or 1,000 head of cattle from a neighbor, the neighbor would just tell him to go ahead and cut out the number he wanted.

"He didn't even need to check upon the buyer, for they were honest and dealt fairly with each other.

"A man's word was then regarded as good as his bond."

Well, Mrs. Crane and I were loathe to leave, for Rev. Fugit has enough interesting experiences and anecdotes to fill a book.

And I urged him to put them into print, for they describe a special period in American history that is as fascinating as Mark Twain's era.

Our older clergymen are usually astute Applied Psychologists, having learned human nature out on the real firing line of life.

we chatted afterwards, Rev. Fugit reminisced about some of his pastoral experiences while in Texas.

For he had helped 5 big churches during his tenure in the Lone Star State.

"An old rancher who had struck it rich via oil," Rev. Fugit began, "said he would donate several lots on his ranch as the site of our new church.

"That seemed generous to me, for the city was spreading out toward Old Ben's ranch.

"But another rancher who was a crony of Ben's, urged me not to accept Ben's offer.

"When I expressed some surprise, this second rancher said if we took Ben's lots, then Ben would consider he had done enough by the church and wouldn't contribute any cash.

"So he recommended that we purchase the lots from Ben, which we did.

"Ben and I were both from Kentucky, so we often reminisced about the Blue Grass country.

"And many times I would drop in at his office. He always had a big bottle of whiskey on his desk, right in plain sight.

"Maybe he was 'baiting me' to give him a lecture on temperance, but I ignored this rather obvious trap.

"As the months passed, we grew more friendly and one day I noticed that Ben had omitted the big whiskey bottle.

"It never reappeared, either,

West opened the five of diamonds, the four was played from dummy and East put up the jack which South took with the ace. A small heart was led at trick two. When West ducked, the queen was played from the North hand, and when it held-declarer quickly ran for cover with nine tricks,

Salvage All But Smells

NEW YORK (AP) — Tomorrow's garbage man will be a magician.

He will turn the millions of tons of trash and garbage now produced in American homes into useful products, reports John H. Abrahams Jr., manager of environmental pollution control programs for the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

"The time is close at hand when we will be able to salvage everything but the smell in the garbage can," he said.

He explained that studies are currently in progress to separate out and reuse such components of household trash as glass bottles and jars, paper, metal, wood, rags and food

Food Stamp Violation

ATLANTA—Rogers' Grocery Store in Williamston has been disqualified from the federal food stamp program for a period of six months for violations of program regulations.

The disqualification, announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service, followed an investigation of charges of selling ineligible items for USDA food coupons, including paper products, cleaning supplies, tobacco products, snuff and cigarettes, and beer.

The store, owned by Mrs. Willie Alice Rogers, will be eligible for application for reinstatement in the food stamp program at or after the end of the disqualification period.

The food coupons, by law, can be used only to buy food. Until the store is reinstated in the program, the acceptance of food coupons will not be authorized.

To Be In Step Sign With 'X'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Raymond Stech's 11-year-old son showed up with a report card that wasn't of top drawer quality.

"Just make an X mark on it, dad," the youngster urged. "I don't want my teacher to know you're smart enough to write."

Church In The Market Place Is Rising Pattern

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A new kind of church-in-the market place is developing across the country. And some religious planners think it eventually may replace the neighborhood parishes to some extent.

"It's a growing pattern, taking form in a variety of ways," says the Rev. Dr. Harvey Everett, of Valley Forge, Pa., parish development secretary of the American Baptist Convention.

Generally, the new operations are known as "shopping center ministries."

An estimated 150 to 250 of them have been started up in the last few years in the mushrooming suburban retail trade marts ringing American communities. "Shopping center ministries are mere to stay," says Dr. Everett, who presided over the first national consultation on the trend, held last fall in Radnor, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb.

As some church leaders see it, the shopping-area "churches" may bring sort of shift back toward the old-time arrangement in which the town church stood at the center of commercial activity, rather than among outlying residences.

"There's some resemblance between these shopping center ministries and the 'church on the square' in the old New England town," Dr. Everett said. "But they're geared to people in a new age."

He said most of the market place ministries have been shaped independently of one another, experimenting with different methods, and reflect at least 20 different styles of operation.

These range from traditional-type center congregations, to "servant-style" ministries, working with employers and employees. Other programs are directed toward patrons, and in some cases, work from the start with architects and builders to develop the centers to enhance human values.

"It's usually more helpful when the ministries move in early and help shape the development's whole environment, in the interest of people who will be gathered there," Dr. Everett said.

"Too often, the church has just been a follower and reactor, rather than getting in on the ground floor with positive suggestions on the developmental aspects."

Until now, he said, the new ministries have had to work out operations largely on their own, with little exchange of information. He added there was a need for clarifying and setting general strategies.

That was a goal affirmed by the recent consultation, which included 50 Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders, most of them either involved in the new ministries, interested in starting them, or denominational specialists on experimental church work.

Dr. Everett heads a planning committee to call another conference later this year to begin working out specific guidelines, and coordinating experiences, information and advice on the trend.

Aliens Are To Report

January is the month for completing the 1970 Alien Address Report required of all categories of aliens residing in the United States.

Form 1-53, U.S. Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service, is available at the Greenville Post Office.

This is the annual registration which must be completed prior to the end of January to meet Department of Justice immigration requirements. It is necessary to complete this form each year in addition to any other forms filled out due to change of status, change of address or for other reasons.

The completed form is to be returned in person and handed to a postal employee. It is not to be mailed in.

Everybody Had Excuse In Drunken Driving Court

By JOHN VINOCUR, Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP)—After slaloming across the highway, a hospital worker opened the door of his car at the request of a policeman.

The driver, in the words of the court record, found himself unable to exercise control over his lower limbs. He fell flat on his face, drunk, the testimony said. "So you can't deny you had too much when you got in your car?" the judge asked.

"No, I can't, your honor, but I must tell you that because of an operation to remove my stomach I have little tolerance for alcohol and therefore virtually never drink. However, on this occasion, my first granddaughter had just been born and there were special circumstances. I had three beers."

In the next case a warehouse worker also claimed mitigating circumstances. He hadn't been able to eat a proper lunch to go with the alcohol whipping through his bloodstream and that, "as everybody knows, doesn't help things," he said.

A professional man defended himself by asking how he could have been drunk. He said the policemen who stopped his car required him to drive them to the local precinct because they were from another area and didn't know the way.

Everybody had an excuse in Part Ten of the Paris District Court—the drunken driving section on Wednesday mornings. The three judges who look down from a high bench lit by green-shaded lamps found all the excuses a little hard to believe.

"Everybody's an exceptional case in this country, with very unusual extenuating circumstances," one of the judges said after a lawyer explained that his client, an Algerian Moslem, only drank lemonade and grapefruit soda as a rule and faltered just this once.

The judges found him guilty, as they did the hospital worker who was drunk on beers, an off-duty truck driver who plowed his car into another because he was new to drinking whisky, and a male nurse who said he had too much to drink because his wife had just gone on vacation.

Nearly all the defendants received suspended jail sentences ranging up to eight months, fines according to their financial status and suspension of their drivers' licenses.

But in many cases, the periods of suspension were limited when lawyers, presenting letters of previous good conduct, convinced the judges that their clients needed to drive to work. Only 29 licenses were lifted during the first fortnight of December in Paris.

Judges consider their job a logical reflection of the anarchy on French roads. In terms of miles traveled, three times as many people die every year as in the United States.

To some people outside the court system, the anarchy also seems to have infected the administration of traffic justice. There are few speed limits outside the big cities and hence a few speed violators.

The courts have no standard rule on what level of blood-alcohol content constitutes clear-cut drunkenness. Judges determine guilt or innocence on the basis of their drinking preferences.

"What did you have?" one of the judges in Part Ten asked an Algerian worker.

"A little beer and a little anisette."

"A bad combination," the judge proclaimed. "It can give you some head. You must have been really cooked."

The verdict was guilty. Actually, blood-alcohol levels may raise doubts in France because the general consumption of alcohol three times that of the United States and four times that in Sweden and Denmark.

The judges listened intently when a lawyer showed evidence from a physician that although he found two grams of alcohol per liter in the defendant's blood at the time of his arrest—drunkenness normally begins at 0.5 to 0.8 grams—the man was not clinically drunk because he spoke clearly and reacted normally.

"It shouldn't be excessive," the lawyer said, "to have three to four glasses of whisky with friends if you don't show any signs of being inebriated."

Then he surprised the judges. "What will happen," he asked, "if the Assembly bill goes through that rules a driver drunk if he has only 0.8 grams per liter in his blood? That means that with a bottle of wine at lunch you'll be legally a drunken driver. Why, that will affect businessmen, engineers and goodness knows, messieurs, even magistrates. Why a man won't be able to have a decent lunch in this country anymore."

The judges looked very grave for a moment. It was something to consider.

Making The Chores Easy

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Household drudgery may be on the way out.

A pair of scientists have developed an electronic component, a remote controlled unit that is expected to make life in the 1970s much easier. About the size of a pack of cigarettes, the remote control can be used to provide an infinite variety of functions—with any electric-powered home appliance.

According to the RCA research laboratories, a flick of the switch can dim hallway lights, defrost the refrigerator, remotely turn on the oven or turn it off when dinner is done. It's a sophisticated version of the remote control units now used on television sets.

Moreover, the device can "remember" its last setting indefinitely, even if its power source is completely shut off. This means, that if the unit is incorporated into the standard electrical circuits in a home, a housewife could control many electrical appliances remotely and without wires.

Beauticians Can Barber The Male

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—In tune with the times, the state attorney general's office says nothing in Kentucky law prevents beauticians from having male customers.

Neither can barbers be kept from cutting hair of women, although state legislation apparently assumed beauticians would be for women and barbers for men, the office said in response to a query from the head of the state Board of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists.

A halibut can weigh as much as 600 pounds.

Sex Choice Plan Talked

LONDON (AP)—Selecting the sex of an unborn child has intrigued mankind—or perhaps womankind—for centuries.

In England there is talk of a new method of establishing the sex of a child before birth, according to the December issue of Atlas, the magazine digest of the world's press.

Developed by Dr. Asger Lindberg, a Danish veterinary surgeon, and said to be "95 per cent infallible," the method calls for a couple, desiring a boy, to abstain from relations for five days before the wife's ovulation. To have a girl, the couple abstains for three weeks and then has relations once.

Though lab tests should be run, all a mother must basically do, says Dr. Lindberg, is establish her exact date of ovulation by a series of temperature tests.

The doctor's method has worked successfully with 145 out of 149 test couples, Atlas reports, as well as in Dr. Lindberg's family of eight "request babies" which he has had with three wives.

Only Few Yards From His Goal

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP)—A young village man anxious to begin training as a police officer cadet has ended up in jail, instead.

Recently, the police department sent a letter to a man in a village near Wewak, in the Sepik District 500 miles northwest of Port Moresby. In due course, a man presented the letter to Wewak police and asked to be flown as soon as possible to the Police Training College at near-by Bomana. Police were suspicious—the man with the departmental letter was only 5-feet tall, considerably shorter than the minimum recruiting height.

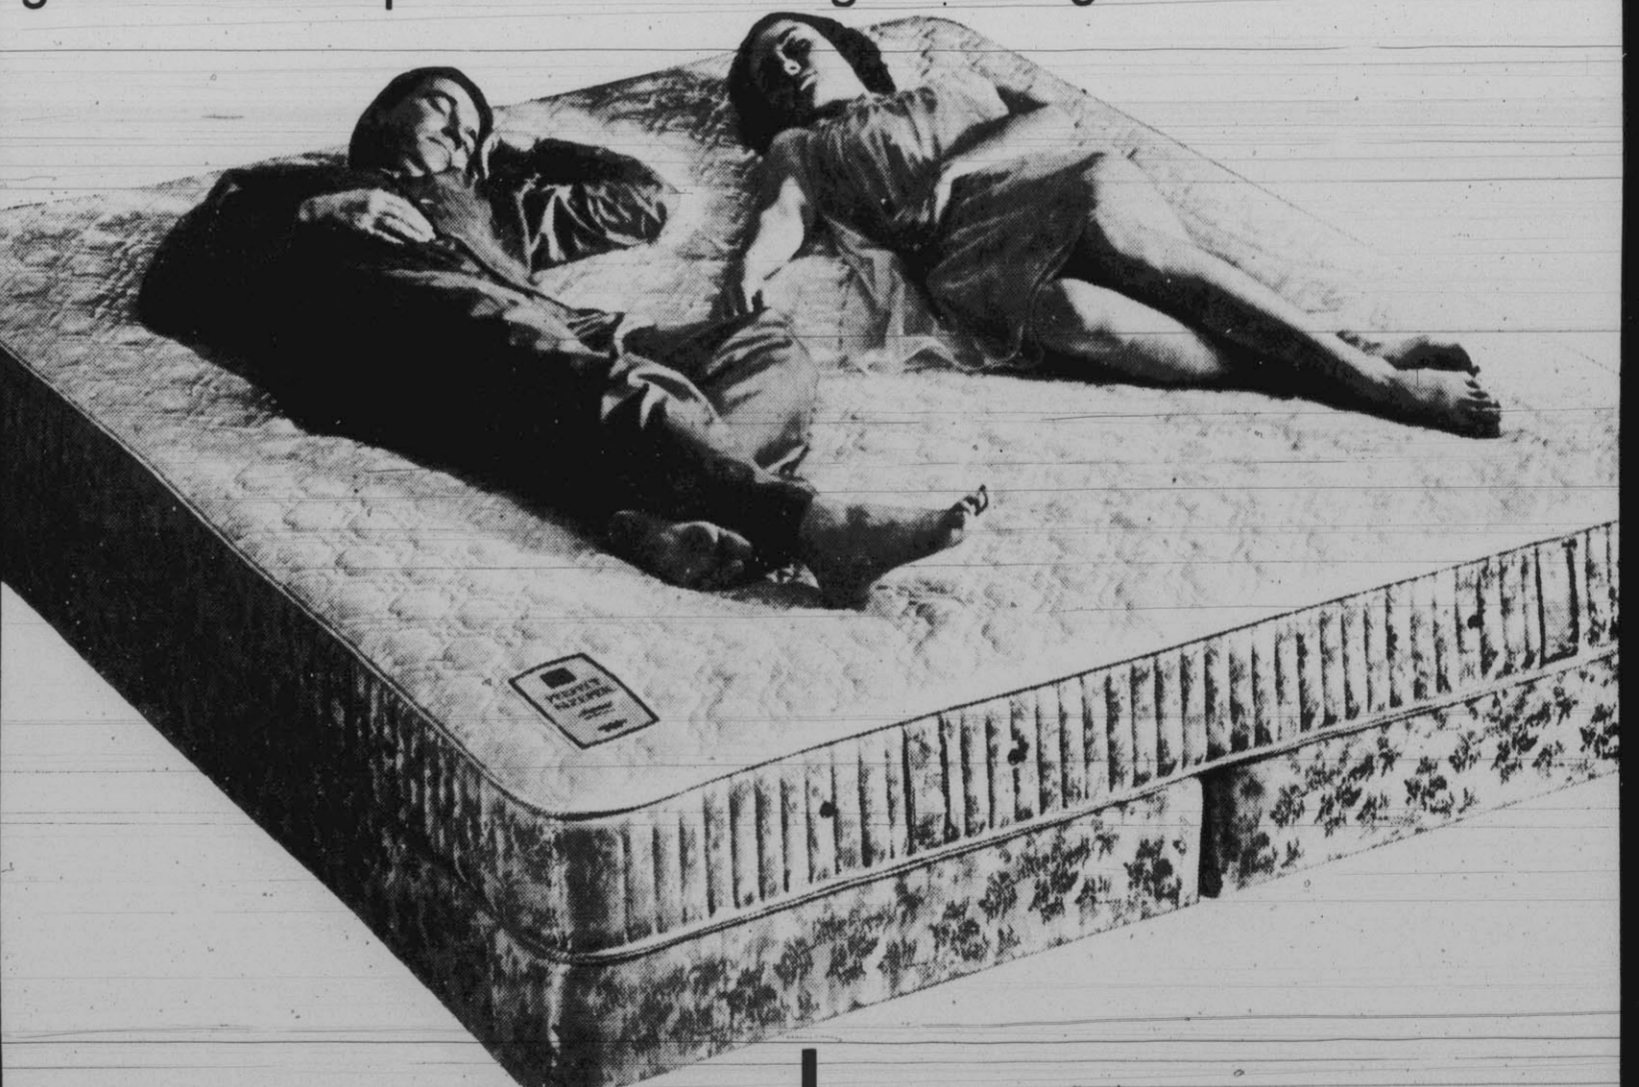

Instead of sending him to college, they had him convicted of stealing mail. He's now serving his three-month term at Bomana jail only a few hundred yards from the Police College.
