Debate Promised On One Recommendation

N.C. Demo Leaders Gather Today

By RICHARD DAW Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's Democratic leaders gathered in an atmosphere of expectation today to name a new state chairman and consider sweeping changes in the party's structure.

But debate was promised on at least one point in a series of proposed changes aimed at assuring more Democrats — especially Negroes and young people — of a greater voice in party affairs.

Approval of W. Eugene Simmons, of Tarboro, as Gov. Bob Scott's choice for the party chairmanship was expected to come without opposition.

The point expected to draw fire from some quarters, particularly Western Democrats, would limit party officers at all levels to two consecutive terms.

The changes were proposed in a report to the 218-member Democratic Executive Committee by a study commission which held hearings throughout North Carolina.

With the backing of Gov. Scott, the recommendations were expected to overcome handily any opposition.

In addition to limiting the tenure of party officers, the recommendations would provide for three vice chairmen at various party levels, one of whom would be a woman, one a person under 30 years old and one a Negro, if Negroes make up at least 20 per cent of the registered Democrats.

The recommendations also would require the precinct committees and other party bodies "reasonably reflect" the makeup of registered Democrats with regard to sex, age, race and geography.

A Negro faction led by Dr. Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte had sought a quota system under which Negroes would be guaranteed a set percentage of positions.

The commission's recommendation does not specify what would be considered to "reasonably reflect" the party's racial makeup.

Despite that, Hawkins said he was pleased with the recommendation.

"We have gotten the wording we wanted," said Hawkins, who ran third in a three-man field in the 1968 Democratic gubernatorial primary. "Our concern now is implementation."

Other major recommendations included:

—A proposal to hold all precinct, county and district conventions on the same date and at the same time throughout the state.

—A proposal to hold district conventions in each congressional district rather than in Raleigh. —A proposal to elect county and district officers at the county and district conventions.

—A proposal to allow persons between the ages of 18 and 21 to participate in party affairs if they declare their intention to register as Democrats on becoming of age.

—A proposal to extend to all levels the practice of weighted voting — that is, determining the relative value of an official's vote on the basis of how many Democratic votes were cast in the area he represents.

—A proposal to hold biennial party meetings after the second party primary.

—A proposal to establish a state legislative policy committee to coordinate work between the governor, the General Assembly and the party.

Amnesty Promised For Biafrans; Talks Planned

By MORT ROSENBLUM Associated Press Writer LAGOS (AP) — Nigeria's chief of state, Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, accepted Biafra's surrender at midnight Monday, promised a general amnesty and called for talks to work out terms.

Effiong, 45, took over Sunday night after the Biafran Chief of state, Gen. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, left the country on one of the last flights out. A Red Cross worker said Ojukwu flew to Libreville, Gabon.

Ojukwu was expected to arrive today in Lusaka, the capital of Zambia, and the Zambian government said it would grant him asylum. But it added that it preferred that he fly "as soon as possible" to Europe for security reasons. Zambia is one of the four African countries that recognized Biafra.

Despite radio broadcasts and victory editions of newspapers, there was little jubilation in Lagos at the war's end. Clusters of soldiers at the usual roadblocks and sentry points appeared almost indifferent.

"If we had been fighting another country, perhaps it would be different," said one Nigerian. "There is no rejoicing in this."

Federal rehabilitation commission officials ordered hundreds of tons of supplies to points near the front to supplement stocks assembled to feed about 500,000 refugees.

A civilian state government for the area that has been Biafra already exists with headquarters at Enugu. It is one of the states in the federal structure Biafra resisted for 2½ years.

Egyptian Base Raided

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets today attacked an Egyptian air base 13 miles northeast of Cairo and another base reported to be Egypt's largest military installation, as well as military positions at both ends of the Suez Canal, the Israeli military command announced.

The announcement said all planes returned safely.

The planes hit the big administrative base at Tel el Kabir, about 30 miles west of Ismailia and the Suez Canal, and the air force base at Khanka, in the Nile Delta 13 miles northeast of the Egyptian capital.

It was the second strike in a week at bases deep inside Egypt.

A military spokesman said the Israeli planes encountered anti-aircraft fire but were not attacked by Egyptian aircraft, that took off during the raid.

In political developments, Lebanon's premier renewed his government's commitment to its agreement with the Palestinian guerrillas Monday night and announced plans to strengthen defenses along the Israeli border.

County School Buildings Are Being Studied

By BLANCHE HARDEE Reflector Staff Writer

Two teams from the North Carolina Division of School Planning will visit the county to study the structural soundness of the county's school buildings, and the type programs the buildings are best suited for.

Superintendent Arthur S. Alford said the studies are needed to help the Pitt County Board of Education members decide which buildings might best be used from a structural standpoint, and what programs could best be housed in the facilities.

The first team, according to Alford, began today to study and analyze the various school plants from a structural and mechanical point of view.

This team, headed by Consulting Engineer Ralph Self, will include other engineers and architects, all members of the division of school planning.

Alford pointed to the age of several schools now in use.

"At the moment, we are using Bethel Elementary, built in 1916, Winterville Elementary, constructed in 1917, and Farmville High School, erected in 1921," Alford said. Alford noted, too, that some portions of the W.H. Robinson, South Ayden and Bethel Union schools were also constructed in the early 1920's.

Using information supplied by the team, the superintendent indicated, the school board can best determine those buildings which should be discontinued and those which could be renovated with anticipation of a good many years of service.

The second study group, Alford explained, will begin Jan. 20 to study each building in terms of the particular program or organization which might best be suited to the particular building.

"For instance, a building originally serving grades 1-12 may now be used for primary grades or for the middle grades. Likewise, some of the plants will serve only the sixth, seventh, eighth and possibly the ninth grades," the school superintendent said.

Members of this study team are all school planning educational consultants. The group is headed by Lacy Presnell Jr.

"The county needs to make the best possible use of each building in order to provide for the best education possible for the students," Alford emphasized. "When we first started planning for new construction in 1965, we hoped to build for elementary schools along with the four consolidated high schools," he noted.

"The rising costs prevented building any elementary facilities, and we will be short approximately 11 classrooms at the North Pitt School, five at D.H. Conley and 10 classrooms at Farmville," Alford stated.

Alford continued, "The board decided it would be best to retain some of the desirable features such as terrazzo floors, new lunchroom, home economics, library and science furnishings in the new building, and use mobile units already on hand to take care of any classroom shortage at the new schools.

The membership of the Ayden-Grifton School will be approximately 300 students less than the other three (Continued On Page 10)

McCormack Silent On Indictments

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted the administrative assistant of House Speaker John W. McCormack and a New York lobbyist on charges of using the Speaker's office for conspiracy, perjury and defrauding government agencies.

U.S. Atty. Robert M. Morgenthau announced Monday the indictments of Martin Sweig, 46, who was suspended Oct. 16 from his $36,000 a year job as McCormack's top aide, and Nathan M. Voloshen, 72, a friend of McCormack for more than 20 years.

The indictment said the pair peddled their influence using "the telephone, secretarial staff and good will of the speaker of the House."

McCormack said in Washington after the indictment, "I have no comment to make ... A man is presumed innocent until found guilty." He had previously indicated Sweig would retain the post, although suspended, until the charges were settled legally.

Morgenthau said of the 78-year-old Democratic leader, "Speaker McCormack was not a subject of this investigation." McCormack was questioned under oath in Washington last week by three assistant U.S. attorneys.

Police Return To Halls Chain Reaction In Rose High Scuffle

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Rose High School opened this morning on schedule after a suspension of school activities yesterday at 1:45 p.m. Police were on hand at the school today to keep check on the situation.

What began as an argument between two un-named school girls yesterday afternoon during the lunch period developed into what Police Chief Tommy Gladson termed a "pushing and shoving affair involving about 100 students."

Principal Glenn Cox commented: "Eric Vernon (president of the Student Government Association) came to my office during the third lunch period and informed me that trouble had developed between two girls.

"By the time I got there, it had erupted into a matter of students taking sides, pushing, shoving and yelling at one another," Cox commented.

Cox and a half dozen teachers in the area of the melee tried to restore calm. When they were not successful, Cox called Chief Gladson, who reported to the scene.

When order was restored, Cox decided to dismiss all students for the remainder of the day. This occurred at about 1:45 p.m.

"I asked the students to leave quickly and orderly," Cox said. Cox stated, "To the best of my knowledge no students were injured, although I'm sure some will be sore and bruised."

Chief Gladson would not comment on the number of police stationed at Rose today, but said "we have enough there to keep peace and are keeping a close tab on the situation."

One warrant has been taken out in connection with yesterday's disturbance. Mrs. Olga M. Dawkins, a Negro teacher at Rose, signed a warrant through a magistrate's office charging a 16 year old Negro female student, Carla Dianne Worthington with "assault and disorderly conduct."

Two white students have reported to police incidents of assault by Negro students, but have not made formal charges. The students reportedly want the school authorities to handle their complaints.

Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, commenting on Monday's disturbances, said: "There seems to be an absence of any real racial animosities. It seems to me to be a matter of personal animosities getting out of hand."

He also noted: "Again, it's a case of problems started by girl students. Ninety-five percent of the trouble in the schools across the nation has been the result of girls getting into arguments and other students then joining in a chain reaction aspect."

School officials expressed their belief that this disturbance is not as serious as the one which occurred on October 24, resulting in the closing of schools in Greenville for three days.

Cox met for about two hours with the faculty of Rose High yesterday afternoon. "We talked about things which needed to be implemented, and are putting these ideas into written form," he stated. He also indicated that firmness in students abiding by the rules for student conduct would be stressed.

This line of thinking was underlined by Dr. Cleetwood, who prepared a statement for distribution today to all students at Rose. The statement emphatically reminds students "that punishment for violations... shall be summary suspension from school with probable dismissal pending a formal hearing." Dr. Cleetwood also reminded students "these are statutory violations subject to legal action," and "any student under suspension or dismissal or any person asked to leave the grounds and who does not... shall be guilty of trespassing."

Attendance today is somewhat below normal. A total of 229 students were out of school today, compared to the average daily absence of about 115 to 125 for the past week.

With a total enrollment of 1421 students, this results in an absentee rate today of approximately 16 percent.

To Concentrate On Shore Drive Erosion Problem

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

Redevelopment Commissioners last night voted to concentrate their immediate efforts in the Shore Drive area towards correction of the serious erosion problem at the east end of the project rather than employing architects now for drawing up landscaping plans.

CBD project manager John Messick told commissioners that the services of three architects had been studied relative to drawing up plans for landscaping of the 16-acre project. In each case, Messick said, the initial cost of the architectural services would not include working drawings or detailed development plans.

Prices quoted by the three out-of-town firms ranged from $3,500 to $8,750, Messick added. Consideration of the hiring of architects had been suggested as a means of developing long range plans for the land located north of First Street as a park area.

Plans now call for the Commission to give the land to the city for use as a park.

M.E. Cavendish, presiding in the absence of chairman Billy Laughinghouse, pointed out that the problem of erosion on the banks of Town Creek that runs through the East sector of the project is an immediate problem and in need of work.

City manager Harry Hagerty told commissioners that some of the dirt being removed from the Sycamore Hill Church site was being hauled to the erosion area and would help some in curtailing the problem.

Commissioner Jack Whichard recommended that the immediate task of solving the erosion problem be undertaken and further correspondence with the city be made towards having a master plan for the landscaping of the project drawn up. It was agreed that the future possibility of a new city hall going up on the site would necessitate further landscaping considerations before spending a great deal of money.

In other business on the agenda, Messick reviewed a development plan submitted by East Carolina University concerning the three parcels of land located east and along Rlade and north of Fifth Streets.

The three tracts, known as parcels 26, 33 and 38, are (Continued On Page 10)

Commission Talks Beautification Measures For Greenville

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Ralph Steele, member of the Recreation Commission, last night introduced to the commission, a "concept of the entire City of Greenville being a park."

Stating that "Greenville is growing so fast, we may not realize what we may be working into," Steele explained that he believes it necessary to begin now to do something concrete about the beautification of Greenville. "Beauty is only part of the reason for such a program," he stated. "There are many practical aspects. Greenery absorbs impurities in the air and helps keep temperatures down in the summer." "If the Recreation Commission does not go on record for such a program, who will?" Steele asked.

City Manager Harry Hagerty told the commission members that "such an idea fits in with long range plans for developing Shore Drive into a towns common." Noting that at the Redevelopment Commission meeting the idea had been discussed, Hagerty stated "I would like to see the Recreation Commission come up with an overall plan to be adopted. You can get the Garden Clubs and other groups interested in such a project."

Hagerty touched on some of the problems inherent in efforts to promote the idea of a city where beauty is part of the overall town planning. "Its difficult to tell the people what to do with their property. The merchants must get together and do some solid planning. Many of them are even reluctant to abide by the city ordinance on sign requirements. We've had quite a hassle with a number of businesses, some of whom want to put their signs right out in the street."

Hagerty noted that official agencies are sometimes not very helpful in such matters. "The State Highway Department recently concreted a big section of right of way instead of putting sod down."

The commission unanimously approved the idea of taking the suggestion for working on plans to beautify Greenville to the City Council. Dr. Steele was asked to represent the commission and to appear before the City Council at its February meeting.

Chairman John Taylor presented to the commission information on a swimming pool recently completed by joint action of the Martin County Community Action and the town of Williamston.

"These people have worked together to build a 20 by 44 foot pool which meets all safety and health standards for a total of $8,000," Taylor commented.

"This was done by a local contractor. The pool has stainless steel sides and a concrete bottom."

Taylor pointed out the $8,000 included the cost of building and installing the pool, building the bath houses and erecting a chain link fence around it.

Mrs. Clay Burnette, chairman of the Facilities Committee, will visit the Williamston pool to get additional information for the commission here to study.

Director Boyd Lee reported to the commission members plans to shift capital improvement budget funds in order to permit additional work to be accomplished before summer.

Citing a budget of $8,000 which had been earmarked for extensive improvements in the shower facilities at South Greenville and Elm Street, as well as a fence at South Greenville, Lee said: "Original plans called for expensive tiling of shower walls and ceilings. We've found out that by using epoxy paint we can do a good job and save money to use in other places."

In lieu of the original plans call for $800 to fix the gym bathrooms at Elm Street and South Greenville gyms; $800 for a concrete apron for the Port-A-Pool at South Greenville; and $3,600 to install 100 new light fixtures at Guy Smith Stadium.

"We must improve the location and facilities for the Port-A-Pool to meet health standards," Lee commented. "The only property we own where the placement of this pool would be feasible is at South Greenville. We will make doors from the dressing rooms to open onto a concrete slab to be poured and put a fence around the pool." In this manner, Lee explained that "we can regulate control of the number in the pool and use the pool for classes, which we could not do last year."

"The $3,600 for the lights at Guy Smith represent a direct factory purchase," Lee commented. "The lowest estimates we received from regular contract suppliers was $50 per fixture. By purchasing direct, we can afford to install the needed new lights to bring the field up to standard lighting requirements." Cost of labor has not been determined, but Lee pointed out that the total cost of painting the bathroom facilities at the two gyms, fixing the Port-A-Pool area, and replacing the lights at Guy Smith Stadium will amount to $5,200, which will (Continued On Page 10)

FDA Gives No Clean Bill Of Health To 'The Pill'

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Amid increasing controversy, U.S. Senate hearings are scheduled to begin Wednesday on whether American women are being adequately informed about hazards of The Pill.

The oral contraceptives have been in use for nearly a decade now and in recent months, spurred largely by reports from British scientists, worrisome questions have been getting wide attention.

In previously announcing the hearings on pill safety Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Monopoly Subcommittee, said: "It appears evident that a substantial number of users are not advised of any of the health hazards or side effects."

Here, in question-and-answer form, is a status report on The Pill.

Q How many women are taking the pill?

A. It is estimated that 8.5 million American women are on the pill, and 18.5 million worldwide. About one million American women, of a worldwide total of six million, use the IUD—the intrauterine device, a coil or loop that can prevent pregnancy for reasons that are unclear.

Q What is the official U.S. government position on the pill?

A. A Food and Drug Administration advisory panel said last September that oral contraceptives appear to meet federal safety requirements because their benefits outweigh their risks. The panel said women who use oral contraceptives are 4.4 times more likely to suffer blood clots than women who do not. British studies reported up to that time found a 7 to 10 times greater clot risk for pill users.

The U.S. panel said it is still unclear whether there is any link between the pill and cancer.

The panel said clotting from the pill resulted in three deaths in every 100,000 women of child-bearing age per year. A comparison often is made to the number of deaths in pregnancy from all causes, not just clotting—25 deaths per 100,000 births. But this comparison assumes that everyone going off the pill would get pregnant and is not valid.

A. Did any of the panel members go beyond those statements?

A. Yes, Dr. Louis M. Hellman of the State University of New York, told a news conference: "I would say the light is still yellow" caution.

Since then, Dr. Hellman has said that while the panel held that benefits of the pill outweighed risks, "That doesn't mean that they're absolutely safe." And he adds: "The FDA report was certainly not a clean bill of health."

Women with a history of blood clotting, he says, would be "silly" to use the pill and women with a history of breast or uterine cancer in their immediate families probably would be "ill-advised" to use it.

But, he continues, the risk of clotting is small and there is no evidence that oral contraceptives cause cancer in humans, although there is a suspicion that they can.

As for fears that the pill might cause cancer, Dr. Hellman noted that it takes about 10 years for a cancer to develop after exposure to some cancer-causing agent. Since the pill has been in wide use only since the mid-1960s, it would take until the mid-70s before information is available.

Q Perhaps the pill is too risky to take at all?

Q. No, argues Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, president of Planned Parenthood-World Population, a pill advocate who says he runs the largest pill practice in the world. There are 350,000 women going to his organization's clinics and 76 per cent of them are on the pill.

"I keep abreast of the subject," Dr. Guttmacher notes, saying he thinks the FDA has treated the problem in "adult fashion." The admitted inherent dangers, he says, show up "relatively infrequently." Use of the pill, he says, is justified by its "psycho-sexual" advantages. His judgment: "It is a highly acceptable method of contraception."

The IUD might be an acceptable alternative for some, except that American women know it is not as effective as the pill, Dr. Guttmacher says, and there are some medical problems, such as bleeding and cramps in some.

Also, doctors are not well versed in its use, Dr. Guttmacher says: "We have to tune them in to the advantages of the IUD." There have been a few serious pelvic infections from the IUD, however, and perhaps four deaths, he says, that can be attributed to pelvic infections.

Q What stirred up all this recent concern over the pill?

A. Reports from British scientists linking use of the pill with blood clotting. And in October, the main editorial in The Lancet, a British medical journal, said the pill may cause biochemical changes in all body tissues. More than 50 metabolic (body chemistry) changes have been reported, the journal said.

"The clinical significance of these findings is unknown," it said, "but clearly they cannot be ignored, since they raise the possibility of irreversible structural changes, such as atherosclerosis, (clogging of arteries) after 10 or 20 years on oral contraceptives ..."

"In view of these doubts, the wisdom of administering such compounds to healthy women for many years must be seriously questioned."

But a report in the December Lancet has clouded the matter somewhat. In preliminary findings of a large clotting study, researchers found that young women who use the pill are far more likely to smoke cigarettes, and to be heavy smokers. Thus the question is whether the smoking influenced the blood clotting, rather than the pill.

The most recent British studies indicated a correlation between pills containing high levels of a synthetic form of the female sex hormone estrogen and high clotting rates. U.S. health officials have asked the British for their figures and if they are judged valid, new standards might be established here.

Q Why is estrogen in the pill?

A. Estrogen and another synthetic female hormone, progesterone, prevent ovulation. The ordinary pill, taken for three of each four weeks, contains both in combination. The so-called sequential pill regimens calls for estrogen-only tablets for most of the period, followed by a estrogen-progesterone tablet for the remaining time. The British reported a link between the incidence of blood clotting and the use of pills containing more than 50 micrograms of estrogen and urged users to switch to brands containing not more than 50 micrograms. According to one report, perhaps half of the 8.5 million American women taking the pill use products containing more than 50 micrograms. About 25 million micrograms equal one ounce.

Q Just what are the pregnancy figures?

A. The IUD results in 27 pregnancies per 1,000 women per year, according to Guttmacher, whereas the ordinary pill allows seven pregnancies per 1,000 per year. The figure of seven, moreover, could be reduced to one if the pill is taken correctly, Dr. Guttmacher says. With the so-called sequential pill, the figure is 14 pregnancies per 1,000 per year.

Anti-War Protestors 'Greet' Agnew On Visiting Australia

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
CANNBERRA, Australia (AP)— About 100 antiwar demonstrators heckled U.S. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as he laid a wreath today at Australia's war memorial, and protest groups planned a larger demonstration Wednesday.

Five of the hecklers—four young men and a woman—were arrested.

The protesters carried 10 North Vietnamese flags and about 15 signs saying "Agnew is a Dirty Fascist Pig," "Beware of Gift Bearing Greeks," "Were You at My Lai?" and "Moon Rocks and Murder."

As Agnew and his wife emerged from the memorial, they waved to the crowd of 300 to 400, and the crowd responded with an evenly divided mixture of applause and boos.

Later, when Agnew left his hotel for dinner with Prime Minister John Gorton, about two dozen protesters flanked by as many policemen shouted at him and waved North Vietnamese flags.

At the prime minister's, a counter demonstration was under way. Two dozen persons carried signs saying "Croats of Canberra Welcome You," "Prevent Communist Aggression" and "We Support American Australian Friendship." As Agnew's motorcade pulled up, the small group applauded.

Antiwar protest groups were reported bringing in busloads of demonstrators from Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide to demonstrate Wednesday at Parliament House while Agnew attends a Cabinet luncheon there.

Prime Minister John Gorton greeted the vice president and his wife today on their arrival from Bali for the next to last stop of their 11-nation Asian tour. They go to New Zealand Thursday.

Agnew told newsmen during the flight from the Indonesian holiday island that U.S. understanding of Asia is hampered by the fact that some Asian leaders criticize the American presence in the area "for their local domestic political consumption" but seek it in private discussions.

He named no countries. Reviewing his talks with leaders of Singapore and Indonesia, Agnew said Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore "was very concerned about the effect of our becoming too specific in announcing troop withdrawals either as to level or as to date."

"I simply indicated," he continued, "that we were concerned" about the danger of a North Vietnamese attack "which while it may not be preemptive or disastrous in a military sense might very well be a public relations coup for the North Vietnamese and possibly trigger a wave of public sentiment in the United States disproportionate to its military value."

Agnew rejected a suggestion that there is deliberate vagueness in the balance between Asian self-help and U.S. maintenance of commitments in the Nixon Doctrine but he said: "You cannot ever get specific about acts you can't even foresee that may occur in the future. I don't know how specific any doctrine can be," and he added that formulae depend on the insertion of factors that are unknown until they occur.

In a statement on his arrival in Canberra, the vice president said American policy is "neither one of gradual withdrawal from Asia nor of unwarranted intervention in Asian affairs. As a Pacific power we will remain in the Pacific."

Agnew sought to sweeten his arrival with the announcement that the U.S. government has reached "agreement in principle" with Australia, New Zealand and other major meat producers on schedule of voluntary quotas that will increase U.S. meat imports 4.4 per cent.

Informed sources said Australian exports would increase from 505 million pounds in 1969 to 527.2 million pounds this year, while New Zealand's would increase from 218 million pounds to about 227.6 million.

Agnew said the agreement would be announced later today by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin.

Both Australian Trade Minister John McEwen and the chairman of the New Zealand Meat Board, Sir John Ormond, expressed disappointment that the United States considered it necessary to continue restricting meat imports.

Bike Thefts Charged Four

Four area youths, all under 16 years of age, have been released in the custody of their parents following their apprehension this weekend on charges of larceny of bicycles in the Greenville area.

Pitt sheriff Ralph Tyson said the youths were taken into custody after investigation led to the recovery of several bicycles and numerous frames and parts this weekend.

Three of the bicycles recovered belonged to C.J. Barnes of Rt. 1, Greenville, Tyson said, but identity of the other vehicles has not been established.

According to investigation reports, the bicycles and parts were found in a barn near one of the youth's residence on Rt. 1, Greenville. Tyson said a "truckload of frames and parts" were confiscated and the youths taken into custody.

Following trial in juvenile court, the four were released in the custody of their parents, the sheriff said. Names of the four were withheld due to their ages.

Trial Date Set For Jim Brown

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)— A Feb. 2 Superior Court trial has been set for actor Jim Brown, 33-year-old former Cleveland Browns fullback charged with a felonious assault.

Brown, now a movie actor, is accused of driving his car into Arthur Charles Brush, 52, and throwing Brush to the ground after a minor traffic accident. Brush said Brown jumped on the hood of his car and refused to exchange drivers' licenses.

The actor also faces charges of misdemeanor battery and leaving the scene of an accident stemming from the same Aug. 1 incident.

Mood Measurement Has Assumed Economic Role

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)— Since the mental and emotional disposition precedes the act, whether in sports, crime, business or any other human endeavor, literally thousands of individuals are engaged every day in mood measurement.

Most of these researchers have little to do with mental health clinics; their interest in moods is not psychiatric but financial, for it has been found that the human mood can effect the economy more strongly than a presidential act.

It is because of these mood surveys, in fact, that some economic forecasters feel confident economic expansion will slow in the first half of 1970 to a relative crawl when compared with much of the 1960s.

Among the measurements they use in arriving at this conclusion are these: —The Index of Consumer Sentiment, maintained by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, is now near the low point reached just prior to the 1957-1958 recession.

In the fourth quarter of 1969 it dropped to 79.7 from 95.1 in February. The base, or 100, is pegged to February 1966.

Marathon Bridge Game Is Ended

LONDON (AP)— Movie star Omar Sharif, who also is a bridge player internationally recognized as an expert, has finished a marathon session at the card tables with his team nearly $18,000 ahead.

The 80-rubber session began last Tuesday and ended just before dawn today. Playing a team of British experts for one pound—$2.40—a point, Sharif and his partners finished 5,470 points ahead and raked in another 2,000 pounds—$4,800—in side bets.

The game was filmed by television cameras for later serial showing in the United States.

Past studies have shown, quite understandably, that when the consumer is in a cautious or depressed mood he doesn't spend his money. A lot of merchants discovered this during Christmas week. A lot may yet learn the bad news.

The ICS shows that it isn't only the possession of money that leads to consumer spending. Equally important is the consumer's attitude toward a wide range of economic, social and personal events.

—The Sales Optimism Index, maintained by Dun and Bradstreet, is especially gloomy. This index measures the percent of businessmen expecting sales gains, minus those expecting decreases. It's near a seven year low of 49.

For the first three months of this year, the 1,492 executives polled by D&B foresee a distinctly unfavorable business climate. Money will be tight, they fear, and consumer and industrial spending likely will be down.

—The Help Wanted Advertising Index, a production of the National Industrial Conference Board, took a sharp drop in the latest measurement, made in November. It fell five points to 222, based on 1957-1959 equaling 100.

This index is a measurement of how active employers are in seeking workers, and has an accurate record. Although the unemployment rate remains at 3.4 per cent, it could very well begin to rise soon if the HWA is still a valid measure.

—Purchasing agent polls.

These are conducted by the National Association of Purchasing Management, Inc. and they, too, point downward. If industry is slowing its rate of purchase, as the pools show, economic sluggishness will follow.

—Investor Confidence Index, conducted by Sindinger & Co., is still quite low although tending to point upward in recent weeks. The index, which tends to precede stock price movements by a week or more, now reads about 820.

The ICI relates to the Dow Jones Industrial Average which, if the ICI is accurate, should rise somewhat in the next few weeks, or at least not fall sharply.

The measure is produced from surveys of confidence among those people considered to be active individual stock market investors: male managers of businesses, proprietors and officers.

Separate Bedrooms Don't Ruin Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have never gone to anyone for advice before, but you seem to be the easiest one for me to turn to. About three years ago my husband thought he would get a better night's sleep if he had a room of his own. I was opposed to the idea and said so, but he got his way. [He is very selfish.]

We have a wonderful family, and I really want to try to save our marriage more for their sake than for my own.

Well, our relationship has deteriorated ever since, but it really became obvious on our last anniversary when he took me out for dinner, gave me a corsage, was very agreeable, but when we came home, he went right to his bedroom and I didn't even get a kiss!

That's all the thanks I get for giving him four beautiful children and raising them almost single-handed.

Please, Abby, try to make him see how rejected I feel.

UNHAPPY IN PORTLAND

DEAR UNHAPPY: I doubt that the separate bedrooms was responsible for the deterioration of your marriage. [It probably started long before that.] Without seeming to be unkind, there is something of the "martyr" in your attitude which suggests that you feel your husband "owes" you love because you gave him four beautiful children. No man ever loved a woman because she gave him children. He may feel some "obligation" to her, but that is not love. You should see a counselor and find out what the real barrier between you is.

DEAR ABBY: After having a fight with her mother one night, my 18-year-old niece came to my house all upset and asked if she could come and live with me. As she had nowhere else to go, I consented. It's been six months now, and she's too much for me to handle.

I don't like the looks of some of the company she keeps, and she doesn't always tell things straight. [She doesn't exactly lie, but she doesn't tell the whole truth, either.] She is very cagey. Anyway, this girl is wearing me out.

Her father sends her support money which barely covers her expenses. I have a vacation coming up, but I hesitate to go and leave this girl to entertain her kooky friends in my home.

Should I tell her to get her own apartment?

MUDDLED IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR MUDDLED: Since the girl is "too much for you to handle," advise her parents, and let them take over.

DEAR ABBY: May I give some advice to the girl who was still "untouched" four days after her marriage:

Pack quickly and walk fast. Twelve years ago I met a nice young man who never got fresh with me, which was a relief, as I was determined to be pure as Mary when I married.

We were wed, and four months later I was STILL "pure as Mary." One night, while under the influence of liquor, he confessed that he had always had a problem with girls. They made him sick!

He said he had seen a doctor who told him that all he needed was more exposure to girls, and he'd get over it.

Well, my husband was able to function quite well as a man when he put his mind to it, but he'd always end up being sick to his stomach. Nevertheless I stuck with him and we had three children.

When I caught him playing around with his barber I knew I was fighting a losing battle, so I quietly took my children and left.

I have never told anyone the real story, and I never will.

I am now married to a real man, Abby, I realize that most gay guys would rather be normal, but please tell any man who prefers men, to quit fighting it, and to leave women alone.

'Build, Plan And Work' Is Club Program Topic

The program sponsored on Thursday night by the Business and Professional Women's Club Personal Development Committee was entitled, "Build, Plan, and Work Toward Advancing Careers."

Mrs. Ruth Garner, chairman, introduced the program and presented members who participated. They were Mrs. Irma Worthington and Mrs. Naomi Edwards.

Mrs. Worthington used as her topic, "Forces in Personality." She defined personality as behavior stimulated by another person. She said that it is biosocial or motivated by social being.

She said "Each person is a personality, even though he is quite different from people in his environment." "No two people ever behave in exactly the same manner, thus 'Forces in Personality' is behavioral patterns. Learning to play central role in developing personality is essential in living with people."

Mrs. Edwards explored "Supervision, and How to use it Well." She said that general attitudes are most important for a supervisor in dealing with those who work under her. A supervisor should request rather than order with a friendly smile.

She cited attributes most important in dealing with people as, development of honesty, loyalty, cooperation, tact, patience, discretion, and poise. She said that a supervisor must recognize feelings of other people and always remember that people are humans and should be treated as such.

Mrs. Polly Dail, president, presided over the meeting which was held at the Woman's Club. Mrs. Dail announced that Feb. 21-22 is annual Spotlight on Women - sponsored by the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., in-cooperation with the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Mrs. Anna Tyson, mother of Mrs. Eviiva Allred, was a guest at the meeting.

The club's next meeting will be the birthday of the club, Feb. 12. Each member must make reservations for this meeting.

Workshop Series Is Announced

A series of workshop on "Be A Better Shopper" is being planned to help homemakers. The workshops will begin on Wednesday, Jan. 28.

The workshops will also be held on Feb. 4 and Feb. 11 at the Agricultural Extension Office, 203 W. Third St., Greenville, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The size of the workshop will be limited to a maximum of 30 individuals. Interested persons should telephone 758-1196 or write Miss Addie R. Gore, home economics extension agent, P. O. Box 1427. The last day for registering is Jan. 23.

The workshops will help homemakers develop and improve their shopping skills, stretch supermarket dollars and recognize the values and rewards of planned spending.

Church Women Committee To Meet

The executive committee of Church Women United of Greenville will meet at the home of its president, Mrs. C. L. Lupton, at 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

The committee will plan the year's agenda.

Beauty Hints For You

From Clara Garriss

A few years ago women with dry or overtinted hair would make an egg shampoo by beating the yolks of four or five eggs and then adding them to the separately beaten whites. Now that there are many good egg shampoos on the market this is no longer necessary. An egg shampoo is practically indispensable for dry brittle hair. Likewise, a beer rinse for fine hair. The beer must be stale and after being applied not rinsed out, as this gives the body to fine hair. Despite what you might think, no odor is left

World Concern For Biafrans

Americans were never really clear on who was right in the Biafran secessionist war, but their sympathies went with the rebel tribesmen when pictures began coming from tiny Biafra of starving and emaciated children.

Nevertheless the 32-month old secessionist republic has now fallen to the onslaught of Nigerian troops. Its leader Gen. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu has flown off with his family and his white Mercedes staff car and it appears that Biafra will be no more.

The important thing now for world powers is to use all their influence to see that a blood bath does not follow the collapse of the little republic. There are fears, expressed by Pope Paul VI, that the fall of Biafra could lead to massacres and genocide.

Already the nations of the world are indicating they will furnish relief to the area and seeking to head off any more inhumanity there.

The White House announced that it was ready to expand its civilian relief operations in Nigeria and call for strengthening of international observer teams. Portugal announced it will accept Biafran refugees in any of its territories. London said it would be wrong to assume that genocide would follow the Nigerian victory. France has outlined humanitarian measures that it is taking to help in the situation.

Humanitarian treatment of the Biafrans will depend on the official attitude of the Nigerian government, however. Many nations and organizations stand ready to provide food and medicine to the stricken area if the Nigerians will allow it.

Africa is rapidly moving out of its primitive society status and it often appears its leaders are now aware of the import of world opinion. Nigeria has the opportunity to show that it has matured as a nation by dealing compassionately with the Biafrans.

Persistent In Effort To Help Captive Men

No one can say that H. Ross Perot, described variously as a Texas millionaire or billionaire, is not persistent in his effort to aid American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

And since his mission is noble we wish him success in his efforts.

Perot's latest move has been to offer to buy the release of U.S. prisoners held in Vietnam. He said he would go as high as $100 million.

We don't hold much hope that North Vietnam will talk seriously about prisoner release until the war is resolved, however. For America it is one of the greatest tragedies. Some of these men have been held for years and there still seems to be no chance of their release in the near future.

Best Hope Lies In Excise Tax

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The excise tax, long condemned by tax theoreticians and partially abandoned by Congress five years ago, has suddenly been resurrected as President Nixon's best hope of escaping a ghastly fiscal predicament.

At this writing, final decisions on Mr. Nixon's first budget (for the fiscal year beginning July 1) are still open for last-minute change. But in late December following the adjournment of Congress, Mr. Nixon all but finally determined to put that budget in balance by proposing excise tax increases.

That step alone scarcely insures a balanced budget in fact as well as on paper, much less a victory over runaway inflation. But it is at least a step away from the economic abyss skirted by Mr. Nixon in 1969.

While the President was preoccupied with Vietnam, his economic lieutenants grossly underestimated the inflation's staying power. The result was the calamitous decision to halve the 10 percent income tax surcharge on Jan. 1 and eliminate it entirely on July 1, thereby further stimulating an inflationary economy. Still more stimulation will come from the 15 percent increase in Social Security benefits added by Congress to the tax reform bill over the President's protest.

Thus, when Congress adjourned shortly before Christmas, the Nixon economic team faced a grim situation. The end of the surtax and the big Social Security boost threatened a substantial budget deficit for the fiscal year starting July 1. Even with unrealistically low spending estimates and unrealistically high new user charges which show up as expenditure cuts in the budget (such as a postal rate boost), spending could not be kept below $200 billion.

Nor could the budget be balanced by overestimating revenue. That would have to assume a bloated gross national product—a confession of the Administration's failure to control inflation.

But sending Congress an unbalanced budget would be even more injurious to the Administration's credibility. More important, Dr. Arthur Burns, the new chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is insisting on a balanced budget as a sign of enough fiscal restraint to ease up on dangerously tight money policy.

The only answer: higher taxes. But both the President and Congress have just ruled out any increase in income tax rates. Consequently, some high Administration officials flirted with disaster by thinking about a wholly new "value-added" tax, (in effect, a national sales tax) long advocated by conservative tax theoreticians as a substitute for the graduated income tax.

Early this year, the Treasury began its own research on the value-added

Tom White, A Maybe Entry

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES RALEIGH — Circling the square:

Considering the strongest possibilities, question arises as to whether former State Sen. Thomas J. White of Kinston might be persuaded to become a candidate for governor in 1971-72.

The idea, according to some hard-line, hard-nosed Democrats, is not far-fetched. They do not discount the possibility. A final decision, of course, would be up to White.

"Tom White would be one of the strongest candidates the party could find," says a veteran party official. "If he would run I would consider it an honor to support him all the way."

Another says, "few people in North Carolina have devoted more time and done more for their state than Tom White. If he chooses, he would be an excellent candidate."

WILLIAM SHIRES

White — Certainly it is true that Tom White knows as much and more about state government and its complexities of budget-making and operation as anyone. He has served as a representative and state senator, as chairman of the Advisory Budget Commission for four consecutive terms. He was chairman of the State Legislative Building Commission and has held more important offices concerned with state governmental functions than can be listed briefly.

Last year he was recalled from his law practice in Kinston to serve as legislative liaison officer for Gov. Bob Scott, and as might have been expected performed effectively.

Views — White is both a colorful and unique personality in public life. Friends gave him a testimonial dinner upon his retirement from the Senate nearly two years ago but no one really felt that it was the end of his career of public service.

White himself has told friends that he feels the Democratic party in North Carolina must put forth a candidate who will be aggressive and also conservative. That description fits Tom White.

Several sources say that a ticket of Tom White and Marshall Rauch of Gastonia for lieutenant governor would carry the state for the Democrats. Rauch, also a state senator, is known to be interested in seeking the lieutenant governorship next time.

Bowles — Withdrawal of former Gov. Terry Sanford from the picture leaves the field open to a great deal of speculation.

Many sources believe that Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles of Greensboro will run for the Democratic party nomination. Bowles told the Greensboro Record, "Yes, I am considering it. But it's too soon to be making up my mind on it. I'd need to move about North Carolina real well and on a person to person basis to see what possibilities I have."

Bowles adds, "There's no sense running for governor just for the sport of it. If you don't think you're going to win you shouldn't run."

Immediate — More immediately, as January progresses, there are developments in the state legislative political spectrum.

Several well-known legislative veterans have chosen not to seek re-election this year. One is Rep. William R. (Billy) Britt of Johnston County who has served four consecutive terms.

Numerous others are making announcements locally as to whether they will or won't run this year.

Airports — State Conservation and Development director Roy G. Sowers Jr. handed over a $60,000 check to the Oxford-Henderson Airport Authority last week in a ceremony which he said held special significance.

It was the largest single grant to a local airport group since inception of a state airport assistance program in 1967. Also, Sower said, it represented a "pleasant chapter of happy cooperation" between local, state and federal agencies in advancing the cause of local airport improvements.

Sowers said $341,253 has been allocated by the state on a matching fund basis to assist airport improvements in 16 North Carolina communities.

"Aviation is rapidly growing in our state," he said. And he predicted that the number of privately owned aircraft will double to more than 5,400 during the decade and the number of licensed pilots will triple, to almost 30,000 by 1980.

At present the state of North Carolina has 182 airports or airstrips. Only 15 are served by regularly scheduled airlines, and only a few meet the standards required for today's commercial air travel. Sower said, "much needs to be done."

TOO OFTEN A TRAGIC TOGETHERNESS!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

A Revolution At Home

Margaret Mead, dowager queen of the anthropologists, turned up in Saturday review the other day with an article excerpted from her forthcoming book, "Culture and Commitment."

If the article is a fair sample of the work as a whole, the book promises to rank among the most famous titles of the year.

Mrs. Mead's general thesis, if I understood her correctly, is the brilliance of the young, and the ignorance of the old. She finds today's generation gap fundamentally different from all other generation gaps. Oldsters no longer have anything to teach their children that is really worth teaching. She says:

"Today nowhere in the world are the elders who know what the children know, no matter how remote and simple the societies are in which the children live. In the past there were always some elders who knew more than any children in terms of their experience of having grown up within a cultural system.

Today there are none. It is not only that parents are no longer guides, but that there are no guides . . ."

In Mrs. Mead's view, a new age for all humanity began with the atom bomb. Hiroshima fused a world community, united by shared knowledge and danger. Satellites and jet planes have contributed to this single community, and television has created for young people a world "in which events are presented to them in all their comple immediacy." Watching their clumsy parents grope with such complexities, young revolutionaries are impatient:

"These young dissidents realize the critical need for immediate world action on problems that affect the whole world. What they want is, in some way, to begin all over again. They are ready to make way for something new by a kind of social bulldozing—like the bulldozing in which every tree and feature of the landscape is destroyed to make way for a new community."

Well, there is some meaty stuff here, but it is the kind of meat that gets ground up in intellect and comes out bologna. Granted, the post-war generation comes to maturity in a world far different from the world we knew—a world of TV, computers, and data retrieval systems; a world of organ transplants, genetic breakthroughs, and the Pill; a world of satellites, space ships, and supersonic planes. Granted, they inherit new evils of pollution, the problems of population, the threat of nuclear war.

But to propound the notion that these dramatic developments nullify the inherited wisdom of mankind is to propound nonsense. And to suggest that "no guides" remain is to suggest that all values went up in the mushroom cloud. Bosh!

Whatever has changed since 1945, the nature of man has not changed. He is as noble or as ignoble, as generous or as selfish, as broad or as narrow as he was before. True wisdom—the wisdom that counts—is not much concerned with transistors and laser rays. Wisdom compounds its interest upon observations of how men are, as individuals and as nations; wisdom concerns itself with love, hate, envy, pride, ambition, honor, patience, kindness, power; with the relation of man and the state, and, if you please, with the puniness of man in the immensity of God.

These characteristics endure in any cultural system. "Wonders are many," mused Creon long ago, "and more wonderful than man." Mrs. Mead attributes too much to today's knowing youths. Most of what children know is baubles, trifles, laboratory tricks. The children know this much of the heart: They know how to transplant it. But the heart of man is no study for surgeons alone.

The revolt that so appeals to Mrs. Mead contains an arrogance that repels. So these youngsters would

Baked Beer Is Secret

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN

Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — James Joseph O'Connell and a couple of his bachelor friends had rented a cottage on Cape Cod for the summer and were enjoying the hectic social life at Hyannis.

The fly in the ointment was a guy named Wimpy. Wimpy was fat, obnoxious and—above all else—greedy. Though not a resident of the cottage, Wimpy seemed to spend more time there than its legitimate occupants.

While there, he ate their food and consumed vast quantities of their beer.

The three roommates held a small gathering one Friday night. It was to be the trio, their dates and few selected guests—Wimpy not included. But you didn't have to invite Wimpy—he could smell free beer a mile away. He arrived early, waddled directly to the icebox and grabbed a beer.

That night Wimpy was in good form—two six-packs himself. This forced James Joseph into an unplanned trip to the local grocery for supplies.

Unfortunately, the grocer had only one case of an obscure Midwestern beer left and it was warm. James Joseph squeezed the whole case into the freezer compartment.

Luckily, they didn't have to wait for it to cool. A friend arrived with another case already chilled, and James Joseph promptly forgot about the beer in the freezer.

He remembered it when supplies, thanks to Wimpy, began to get low again. The case was frozen solid. A man of ingenuity, James Joseph shoved the beer into the oven and turned it on.

Fortunately, still another friend showed up with a cold case—enough to see the party to its end.

When James Joseph returned from taking his date home, he was greeted with a series of explosions from the kitchen. He had forgotten to remove the beer from the oven. Only about three cans had exploded. He placed the good cans in the icebox.

The next afternoon, James Joseph got the urge for a cold beer. He opened one of the baked cans, now just the right temperature.

One taste was enough. It tasted like low-grade bilge water. Too bad, thought James Joseph, a whole case wasted. Then he got an idea.

He raced to the grocery, purchased another case of that obscure Midwestern beer and stashed it in the icebox.

Wimpy arrived in the late afternoon. "Got any cold beer?" he asked.

"Yup," said James Joseph. "I'll get it."

James Joseph went to the icebox, grabbed one of the baked cans and three of the good cans. He gave the baked beer to Wimpy and distributed two to his roommates who had been cued. The roommates drained theirs as fast as they could and put in an order for another round.

"How about you, Wimpy—another?" James Joseph asked.

"Er, no thanks. Still got some left," Wimpy said.

Wimpy nursed that one beer for four hours, while the other jovially quaffed dozens of cans.

In ensuing weeks, that case of beer became a prized possession. James Joseph and his roommates did have to switch to that obscure Midwestern beer, but it was worth it just to be able to say on one of Wim-

Strength For Today

GOOD HEALTH

Good health is hard to define. In general, it would appear to be a sense of physical fitness which permeates our lives, enables us to get over the physical setbacks that characterize our daily living. Good physical health is not something one can put his finger upon and say, "This is the thing that makes and keeps me healthy." We are all a bit on the sick side now and again, but the life of a normally healthy person seems to be pervaded by a sense of well-being that makes life day by day, decade by decade, pleasant and satisfactory.

This is true not only as regards the physical side of one's life but also the mental and spiritual side. There are some people that keep themselves sick with worry.

Something may happen to the children. Business projects are full of uncertainty and likely to take us and what we have over the precipice. And that pain we have which fills us at times with dismay. What's going to happen to me?

Health of mind and body is characterized by a sense of well-being that permeates one's life and makes it abundantly worthwhile.

This sense of well-being is especially noticeable in the spiritual aspects of our lives. Every religious person who is honest with himself realizes that life is a long string of spiritual achievement. Nowhere do we feel the ups and downs of life any more poignantly than in the realm of what we call the spirit.

Religious faith is sound and true only if it permeates the whole of our living.

Other Editors Say That Diary Business

(Goldsboro News-Argus) Now, then, Bob Scott better be dog-gone careful what he puts in that diary of his.

We have been off on hunting and fishing trips with him before and since he became governor.

He's looking out for his own hide by specifying that the diary will not be made public until after his and his wife's deaths.

That might be OK for him and Jessie Ray. But what about some of us who might, by some act of fate, still be dragging around on earth when the great revelation comes!

We happen to know a fellow who was on a deer hunting trip with Bob one time and somebody dropped a lighted cigarette in the fellow's pants pocket.

Unknown to the culprit, that pocket was full of buckshot shells.

When it started smouldering, the poor fellow jumped slam out of his pants and boots and everything and was a pure embarrassed spectacle hopping around the lounge of Senator Monk Harrington's hunting camp.

A lot of fellows on that and subsequent trips missed some terrible easy shots and had themselves deshirttailed from navel to goozle.

And along late of some evenings, fellows might have loosened up and told a whole lot of things they hadn't ought to of told.

Now then if they'd known Bob Scott might be subject to put everything he knows and hears and sees in a confounded diary and—worse still—somebody might let everybody read it, they'd have made like a lock-jaw convention.

Maybe it would be better if the governor amended that restriction and let it read that the diary won't be made public until EVERYBODY is dead.

Sunday Openings Roil Stores

By ELMER ROESSNER Looking ahead in business: Retailing in large cities will be churned up further over the question of Sunday opening of department stores. Last year, as never before in recent years, hundreds of department stores stayed opened on Sundays in the Christmas shopping season.

ELMER ROESSNER

Results were mixed. Some stores reported substantial gains in sales. Others found profits did not justify costs. And still others stayed closed because Sunday closing laws were enforced in their cities.

However, enough of them made so much profit that they plan to continue Sunday openings all year, perhaps with the exception of summer. Sears, for instance, whose Sunday opening in 176 of its 821 stores touched off the explosive rush to Sunday openings last season, is keeping about 100 stores open that day.

Reasons Why Reasons for this surge of Sunday openings are:

1. Stores want to shore up sales in-fear that consumer buying intentions will weaken. 2. They enable department stores to compete with discount houses. In many cities discount houses have long opened Sunday. Where Sunday closing laws here have been rigidly enforced, discounters have simply opened branches outside the city limits. This is causing many stores to consider keeping suburban branches open.

3. Pre-Christmas experience has shown that Sundays can be a family shopping day, when all members of a family can join in excursions to department stores, which tends to increase sales. Conversely, specialty stores catering to young people did not do so well.

Sunday openings will revive fights over Sunday closing laws. Many religious groups will demand enforcement of city and state laws against Sunday sales or, where such laws do not exist, their enactment. They will have open or convert support of those merchants opposed to Sunday selling. That will include many small stores, which would have trouble in staffing stores seven days a week. That will also be bothersome to some large stores, especially where unions demand premium pay for Sunday work.

In some cities now stores open Sundays despite closing laws. When a store is served a summons, it simply pays the fine, considering it an inexpensive license. One store rotates the title of manager from one executive to another so that no one will be caught as a second offender.

Private School Officials Eye Donor Tax Status

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Private school officials say denial of income tax benefits to their donors would be a blow—but not a fatal one—to the hundreds of such institutions mushrooming across the South to avoid integration.

But most said the bulk of their support came from tuition, not wealthy donors, and none felt their schools would be closed down by such tax action.

Private academies have been flourishing, principally in the South, since the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Finch estimates 400 were formed to escape public school integration.

Under present tax laws, contributions to nonprofit educational institutions are deductible from federal income taxes.

In the case of wealthy donors this can mean a saving of 30 to 70 cents on every dollar contributed, the comptroller of one private school said.

The Rev. Melvin Plauche, a Baptist minister and president of the new Evangeline Academy, which just moved into a $100,000 building at Ville Platte, La., said:

"That's why we're a profit-making organization. If you want something, you have to pay for it. We do and we're paying dearly. We're very leery of anything that will let the government in."

The Treasury Department held in August 1967 that private schools, even those designed to maintain segregation, were entitled to exempt status as long as they were not direct instruments of state policy.

Finch said he will recommend that the Treasury Department revise its ruling. He concedes, however, that it would be difficult to penalize schools whose primary purpose is to avoid integration without damaging other private schools as well.

Although none of the officials of the new private schools felt they would be closed down by the shutting off of tax exempt contributions, an official of a long-established private school declared: "They'll be far more crippled by a tax action than they know. Some would have to close down."

Gov. John Bell Williams has said about 100 private schools were being formed in 30 Mississippi school districts.

Chancellor At Berkeley Opines 'Combat Fatigue' Among Campus Militants

By PAUL H. FINCH
Associated Press Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Chancellor Roger W. Heyns of the University of California's Berkeley complex, who has had his share of campus confrontations, says the student militants across the land seem to be running out of steam.

Heyns added that the radical left student movement was weakened by splits in its ranks. "I think students are growing more sophisticated and that the university administration is more sensitive to students," he said.

"through all of the disruptions during the past five years we have gone on with achievements in the continuance of instructions." He added: "The Berkeley campus had to turn away 2,700 students this quarter and a nice irony was that I received telephone calls from legislators asking help in entering their nieces, nephews and children. These are the same legislators who said they would never send their children to Berkeley."

A long series of disorders at Berkeley reached a climax last May in a row over the use of university land as a "People's Park." It left one dead, one blinded and hundreds injured, tear-gassed or in jail.

Heyns denied that he plans to resign, a persistent rumor since he left on a recent three-month leave. Heyns, 52, took his present post four years ago after serving as vice president at the University of Michigan.

Heyns said university presidencies across the nation are vacant because of growing pressures from both the conservatives and radicals.

Symphony Date Is Rescheduled

The Greenville Concert of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, first announced for January 15, has been rescheduled to April 5, according to Walter Faulkner, Greenville chairman of the N.C. Symphony.

letters of renewal invitation to people who contributed last year, as well as letters to many people and businesses in Greenville, Pitt County and adjoining Eastern North Carolina areas.

"This change has been made in order to give the membership committee more time to plan an effective membership drive," Faulkner stated. "Mrs. Frank Layne and Mrs. Ed Warren are co-chairing the drive this year," Faulkner stated.

The Greenville Jayettes are assisting in the membership drive, by volunteering to make personal contacts with a number of people. "I sincerely hope citizens of Eastern North Carolina will support the symphony orchestra," Mrs. Layne remarked. "it is something we need. I'd like to see the Greenville chapter become a much larger and more active one."

Recruiting Limits Urged At NCAA Meet

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has been urged to take steps to eliminate high-pressure recruiting practices by limiting the number of expense-paid visits a high school student can make to a college campus and by restricting the contact with him in his hometown.

Clifford Fagen, executive director of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, also suggested that the colleges not begin recruiting young athletes until they have become high school seniors and put a limit on the total number of visits they can make to college campuses.

Fagen, whose organization represents state associations containing 21,500 high schools, added that colleges put too much pressure on high school athletes when they talk to them prior to or while they are preparing for an event such as a track meet or basketball game. He suggested coaches be prohibited from contacting them on the site of an athletic event.

Fagen made his remarks Monday at a roundtable discussion during the 64th annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association which will take up four proposals concerning recruiting practices on Wednesday.

If passed, the NCAA would limit to two the number of expense-paid visits a high school student could make to a campus, restrict to two the number of visits a coach or his representative could make to the athlete's home town and prohibit the contacting of an athlete at the site of competition in which he is a participant.

Football coach Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse, another member of the discussion group, said coaches would favor the NCAA spelling out the rules on recruiting.

"Recruiting is the lifeline of a football coach," he said. "Since a coach is hired and fired on his success, recruiting is very important, perhaps the most important."

Fagen said current recruiting practices are a waste of time and money because most high school athletes "know at the beginning of their senior year what schools they're interested in."

He also said many of the high school athletes, knowing the competition between colleges for outstanding players, exploit the practice of visiting as many campuses as possible.

Fagen said colleges could save lots of money by limiting the number of visits a youngster can make to a campus and the types of entertainment he can be provided. "Some youngsters visit a college campus and never see the school," he said.

One of the highlights of the Tuesday session of the convention, which runs through Wednesday, is the presentation of the NCAA's annual Theodore Roosevelt Award to Frederick L. Hovde, president of Purdue University, at the honors luncheon.

The "Teddy Award," the NCAA's highest honor, goes each year to a prominent American "for young competitive athletics in college and attention to physical well-being thereafter have been important factors in a distinguished career of national significance and achievement."

Debbie Meyer Top Athlete

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Debbie Meyer, the lithe teen-ager who added new dimensions in 1969 to her stature as the world's reigning swim queen, was selected Female Athlete of the Year today in the Associated Press' 39th annual poll.

Miss Meyer, barely beaten out for the 1968 award by Olympic figure skating champion Peggy Fleming, was the landslide choice of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters this time around.

The 17-year-old schoolgirl from Sacramento, Calif., a triple gold medal winner in the 1968 Olympic Games, lowered one of her own four world freestyle records in 1969 and made a triumphant splash as a novice medley swimmer. She received 210 votes, to 96 for runnerup Kathy Whitworth, the gifted lady golfer who won the Athlete of the Year award in 1965 and 1966.

A year ago, Miss Fleming edged Debbie in the closest race since the inception of the award in 1931. Swimmer Helene Madison was the winner in that first ballot, and five other mermaids have been honored—the last one Australia's Dawn Fraser in 1962.

Miss Fraser still holds the world mark for the 100-meter freestyle, but Miss Meyer, a statuesque blonde, has cornered the market on the remaining freestyle standards.

Debbie, who set records at 200, 400, 800 and 1,500 meters in 1968 pre-Olympic competition, churned the 1,500 in 17 minutes, 19.9 seconds last August in the National AAU Championships at Louisville, Ky., trimming 11.3 seconds off her world mark at that demanding distance.

Miss Meyer, virtually unbeatable in the freestyle events in recent years, turned to the individual medley as a diversion—and wound up taking 100-meter indoor and outdoor titles in the AAU championships. The individual medley is a versatility test, combining breaststroke, butterfly, backstroke and freestyle strokes.

Miss Whitworth, named LPGA Player of the Year, claimed runnerup honors

Gamecocks Get Past Virginia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
South Carolina's Gamecocks tightened their hold on first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference by surviving Virginia's slow-down offense for a 63-42 basketball victory Monday night.

The victory was the fifth straight in the ACC for South Carolina, which became the only conference team with a perfect league record after Clemson fell at home to Maryland 75-68. The loss left Clemson with a 1-1 ACC record.

The Gamecocks saw an increasingly familiar offense as the Cavaliers attempted to slow the game down. The Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina used a ball control scheme last week against South Carolina, as did East Carolina University early in the season.

A quick look at the 11-1 Gamecock worksheet shows each time the slower offense has been used against the Gamecocks, it has failed.

Virginia's star shooter, Chip Case, was forced to sit out the game. Due to injuries last season, Case holds a hardship deferment and can play this year in all conference games except those with the two league opponents — one of them South Carolina — against whom he played last year.

Tom Owens hit 18 points for South Carolina and Bill Gerry 14.

Maryland used a balanced scoring attack and deadly shooting from the charity line to defeat Clemson in a conference game.

Five Maryland players hit in double figures while Butch Zetalo was the only Clemson player to go over nine points; he tallied 24.

The Tigers took an early lead and held a 30-29 halftime edge.

There is no action tonight in the ACC. Wednesday night Navy visits Maryland and South Carolina travels to Furman in non-league play.

Quiet Return For Vikings

By MARTHA MALAN
ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "It wouldn't have been like this if they'd won."

The remark, by a Twin Cities International Airport policeman, seemed to be what everyone was thinking as some 400 persons welcomed the Minnesota Vikings home Monday.

The team, minus quarterback Joe Kapp and seven others, received a warm, but subdued, welcome on their return from New Orleans where the Kansas City Chiefs beat them 23-7 in the Super Bowl.

Kapp, who suffered torn muscles and ligaments in his left shoulder in the Super Bowl, flew to Los Angeles with his seven teammates who will play in Sunday's Pro Bowl. Kapp will not play in the game. He has been replaced by former teammate Bob Berry, now with the Atlanta Falcons. Minneapolis Mayor Charles Stenvig greeted each player as they stepped into the terminal, saying "You're still No. 1 with us." He carried a newspaper advertisement which said "We still love you in January as we did in September."

Each player was greeted by applause as he walked past the crowd, but smiles were few and weak.

Head coach Bud Grant was the last person off the plane. He accepted a distinguished service plaque from Stenvig and then walked stonefaced through the crowd as they gave him their most enthusiastic applause.

The coach said he did not think Kapp's injury was serious, adding, "It'd take more than that to keep Joe out."

"The draft is our biggest item of business now," he said.

Bucs Try To Break String Of 51 Wins

East Carolina University's Pirates take their quest for better basketball to the source tonight, at least as far as the Southern Conference is concerned. They'll be meeting Davidson's Wildcats in Johnston Gym on the campus of the Presbyterian College.

And whipping the Wildcats there is about like an armless man winning a game of handball against the national champion. It's next to impossible. The Wildcats have posted 51 straight victories in their cosy den, but the Bucs will be out to try and stop that string.

It will be a different team from the one the Bucs faced last year in the finals of the Southern Conference Tour-namment in Charlotte. "They have improved offensively," Coach Tom Quinn said. "They've picked up a 20-point-plus scorer in (Bryan) Adrian, and he's made their attack more potent, especially against a zone. They are also bigger than they were last year."

The Wildcats differ in the fact that they have two new guards this year. Big Mike Malloy, the Southern's Player of the Year last season, is back at center, while Jerry Kroll and Doug Cook are back at the forwards. Adrian, who was named Player of the Week in the Southern today, occupies one of the guard spots, while a couple of players have alternated at the other spot in backcourt.

But the big thing working for the Wildcats in their Southern Conference games is Johnston Gym. They play all of their conference contests there, and none at their other "home" court, the Charlotte Coliseum.

"I'd feel a lot better if we were playing them anywhere else," Quinn said. "We haven't played there, but their string of wins is impressive. (The only time an East Carolina team has met Davidson in Davidson was back in 1966, prior to Quinn's taking over as basketball coach for the Bucs.)

"I'd rather play at Charlotte. We'd probably be their biggest draw in the conference. From what I've heard, their gym is the worst place to play in the conference. It's really a shame that a team of their caliber plays there."

Turning to the game itself, Quinn said he hoped that the Bucs will play better than they did against Davidson in the tournament finals in 1969. "I feel we will play better, but again, that gym won't help us."

"I think we looked as good as we have this year in the VMI game. For once, we had the killer instinct, and didn't let our leads trail away. It's not that they are so weak," he said of VMI. "We just got to them early. They'll win some conference games before it's over."

The Bucs expect to field their usual five starters. Jim Kiernan, one of the backcourt men, may miss however. He suffered an ankle injury in the VMI game, but was reported ready for action tonight.

"The team has a good mental outlook for the game," Quinn said. "Davidson can be beaten. It will take a fine effort to do it, but it can be done."

Oddly enough, a victory for the Bucs wouldn't push them into first place in the conference. Davidson is currently 5-0 in the league, while the Bucs are 3-1. They would still be in second place in the conference with a win, but by playing faultless ball the rest of the way could finish a half-game ahead of the Wildcats and take top seeding in the tournament.

ECU Swimmers Plaster VPI

BLACKSBURG, Va. — East Carolina University's swimming team mowed down their second straight opponent yesterday as Virginia Tech fell before them, 65-39.

For the most part, the Bucs swam in their second best events to try and improve on their overall team effort. But the end result was still a Buc victory, along with three new VPI pool records.

East Carolina swimmers surpassed marks in the 400 medley relay with Ken Hungate, Steve Weissman, Bill Lafferty and Jim Griffin finishing in 3:52.5, while Wayne Norris set a new mark of 11:01.1 in the 1,000-yard freestyle, and Griffin established a new record of 5:15.0 in the 500-yard freestyle.

The Bucs next face Virginia Military Institute on January 24 in Greenville.

Rose Matmen Stomp Gryphons

Rose High School swept to their second conference wrestling victory last night and their fourth in six starts as they rolled by Rocky Mount, 51-3.

It was the second outstanding defeat of Rocky Mount by the Rampants. Earlier, they beat the Gryphons, 58-0.

Rose won every event by one in this match, losing only in the unlimited category. Four of the victories came on forfeits, while five were by pins.

The Rampants play host to Wilmington New Hanover here Thursday at 7 p.m.

Summary:

The Worry Clinic Many Needless Medical Costs

Lola's case is duplicated all over the world, for sexual neuroses account for millions of dollars spent on needless surgical operations! Scrapbook this case or mail it to some friend who is a chronic "Worry Wart" about her abdomen and pelvis. Nagging wives are also often in the same boat!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.
CASE L-585: Lola D., aged 29, has a sexual complex.
"Dr. Crane," her worried husband began, "Lola has submitted to 4 pelvic operations, yet still she complains. 'We have spent $7,000 on hospitals and surgeons' fees. 'Now the last doctor has recommended that her problem must be psychological so he has urged me to send her to a psychiatrist. 'But she refuses to go, saying people will think she is crazy if she consults a psychiatrist! 'So what else can I do? Is she a hypochondriac?'"

Millions of dollars worth of pelvic surgery have been performed at the insistence of jittery wives who complain of vague symptoms. Because they keep pestering gynecologists or general surgeons, the doctors figure maybe it would be wise to straighten their womb. Or circumcize their clitoris. And don't think I am exaggerating, for Dr. Walter Alvarez studied 385 patients who had undergone appendectomies. Yet 225 of these (58 per cent) had not suffered from any attack of acute appendicitis!

And only 2 of those 225 were cured of their abdominal pain by surgical operation. (Go to your library and consult Chapter 21 in my college textbook, "Psychology Applied"). Dr. James C. Doyle, of the University of California, also surveyed 6,248 partial or complete hysterectomies (womb removal). And in 40 per cent of all those cases the surgery was unwarranted and unnecessary as per the hospital pathologists' reports.

Remember, too, that this was before Medicare, which has precipitated an avalanche of additional unnecessary medical care at the taxpayer's expense. Why do so many patients (especially women) deluge the office of physicians with vague abdominal symptoms? Well, a sexual inferiority complex is often the disguised reason!

A sterile wife thus keeps hoping that some sort of surgery will permit her to have a baby. And women like Lola also think something organically must be wrong with them because they don't enjoy marital relations as wildly as do their husbands.

Often these wives have heard exaggerated tales by nymphomaniacs as the potential delights in sex that a wife should receive. Such tales are malarky! For all women are relatively frigid as measured by the typical male standard of eroticism.

But when Lola and millions of other wives firmly believe they should get as much thrill as their mates, yet they definitely know they do not, then such women

'Realistic' Prices Set

The Pitt County Farm Bureau Cucumber Marketing Committee Monday recommended that the price for spring pickle cucumbers be a minimum of $10 for No. 1; $6 for No. 2; and $3 for No. 3.

Hugh Mills, chairman of the committee, said the group feels these prices are realistic in relation to ever increasing cost of production and when compared with prices paid in other cucumber producing states. The local Farm Bureau Marketing Committee is working closely with a statewide marketing committee that is urging growers to work for better cucumber prices, Mills said.

Members of the Pitt County Farm Bureau Marketing Committee, appointed by President J.C. Galloway and the Board of Directors, are: Hugh Mills, chairman; T.C. Elks; Ralph Davenport; J.D. Dixon; and Ralph Worthington.

South's opening two ♠ trump bid is a bit off center with 5-4-2-2 distribution, but it must be conceded that there is no satisfactory call available. The hand is not quite strong enough for a demand bid, and a mere one diamond call runs the risk of being passed out. North's raise to three no trump was routine for, with only six high card points, he had no desire to try for anything more ambitious than a nine trick contract.

West opened the four of spades and declarer overtook dummy's jack with the king. North had put a potentially establishable six card club suit upon the table, but unfortunately dummy had no card of entry once the suit

East chose to return a diamond which declarer ducked to West's king. On the diamond return, East covered dummy's nine with the queen and declarer's jack and ace cleared up the rest of the suit. South now played the hearts himself, conceding tricks to the queen and king, after which he claimed the balance.

In all, the defenders were limited to two hearts, one diamond, and one club. Had East shifted to a heart instead of a diamond when he was in, the outcome would have been exactly the same. South loses one heart, one club, and two diamonds.

Study Finds News Media Contributes To Violence

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A study prepared for the National Violence Commission contends the news media contributes to violence in America by failing to report thoroughly on the social problems that lead to confrontations.

"Too many news organizations fear social ideas and social action," the commission's task force on mass media and violence concluded in a study paper.

"As a result, they stimulate, dissatisfy, and arouse anxiety only to fall silent or limit themselves to irrelevant clichés when thoughtful solutions are required."

The task force report is a 613-page book prepared under the direction of a former Justice Department attorney, Robert K.

Baker, and a Seattle sociologist, Dr. Sandra J. Ball. The study report does not carry the endorsement of the full commission.

The 13-member commission itself, headed by Milton S. Eisenhower, disbanded Dec. 10 after 18 months of investigating and reporting on violence in the United States.

The task force report describes the news media as over-sensitive to outside criticism. "Never before have the American news media been so defensive while being so successful," the report said.

But the task force went on. "The media have contributed to the widespread use of confrontation as an instrument of social change by their failure to report adequately the conditions underlying current protest, by the proposals for solution of pressing social problems, and by their action-oriented coverage of conflict...."

While the news media could do more toward lessening the tensions that breed violence, the task force said, the press is sometimes overly blamed for the violence itself.

"It is undoubtedly true," the report said, "that some groups have learned to use violence and the press to exploit their goals. They have learned that the media generally can be counted on to give violent behavior a prominent role in the day's news."

"The result is that when they seek publicity for their grievances, conflict and possibly violence may be one of the techniques used in the fairly certain knowledge that the press will make sure 'the whole world is watching.'"

"Although there is truth in this charge, it is probably a good deal less than seems to be popularly believed. First, violence is not necessary to gain media attention. In the case of television particularly, any kind of physical action or dramatization of conflict will usually suffice.

"Second, groups who engage in violence are apt to have their message lost because of the media tendency to focus on the violence to the exclusion of the message.

Third, the use of violence, as is usually the case in university confrontations, is a political instrument used to provoke the police and thereby radicalize large numbers of students who are sympathetic to new left goals, but ordinarily reject new left tactics.

"Today, the press is less dependent upon violent content—upon titillation in general—than it may ever have been. The hard fact is that violence is not primarily what the news media have to offer today. For those who suppose that it is, that may be because it is what they have come to expect—or choose—to see and read."

The task force recommendations, largely ignored by the full commission in its final report last month, included more self-examination by the press, more interpretive reporting on social ills, tighter guidelines for the coverage of disorders, and better relations between the press and minority groups.

"It should become habitual editorial policy to display fairly and clearly the opinions, analyses, and solutions offered by a wide variety of people—expert and nonexpert—covering the spectrum, regardless of the proprietor's personal position....

"The last generation of reporters concentrated on reporting objective physical happenings—telling the reader what he saw with his own eyes and heard with his own ears. The next generation must concentrate on describing what somebody else thinks."

The government, the report said, should give closer scrutiny to mergers and transactions tending toward greater concentration in the media.

The Federal Communications Commission should dispel the ambiguities of its fairness doctrine, which governs the broadcasting of controversial topics, and should measure the expenditures of broadcasters for news-public affairs programming when evaluating license renewal bids, the task force said.

Mansfield Says Election Year Time For Honey

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says this election year for his party may be "the time for honey rather than vinegar."

"He's done a pretty good job, I think, in the first year, all things considered. At least he's got us going the other way in Vietnam, with troops coming out, not fast enough, but coming out."

Mansfield said he hopes the Democratic Congress can cooperate with the Republican administration in the session ahead.

"There are ways and ways to operate in an election year," said the tanned Montana senator, just back from a vacation at a Florida retreat. "Maybe this is the time for honey rather than vinegar."

Mansfield's comments come, however, as Senate Democrats prepare to battle President Nixon on a matter they see as a possible major issue in the 1970 elections—the question of priorities.

The majority leader said the first action of the new session will deal with the $19.7 billion appropriations bill which Nixon has promised to veto because it contains $1.26 billion more than the administration wants for education and health programs.

Some Democrats, Mansfield said, believe a Nixon veto would be helpful politically to them during the coming campaign, because of the issue involved.

Thirty-five senators, 25 of them Democrats, have terms expiring with the current Congress. Mansfield is one of them.

Meanwhile, Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, the Republican national chairman, said Monday the Democrats are dropping Vietnam policy as a 1970 issue because they know "an overwhelming number of Americans support President Nixon in his search for peace."

He said the Democrats therefore are turning to the problem of crime and of inflation at campaign items. But Morton claimed those issues for the Republicans.

"To put it bluntly—we got there first," said Morton. "The American public can see that the Nixon administration recognizes both areas as serious problems and is doing everything within its power to combat them."

Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, the Democratic national chairman, has announced plans for a party-sponsored conference early this year, seeking attention to deal with crime.

Crime legislation is near the top of the agenda for the new Senate session. Mansfield said bills dealing with organized crime and narcotics control are among the first due for action.

Potential Disaster From Electric Power Sources

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been given a chilling account of potential disaster from air and water pollution if conventional methods are used to satisfy the nation's growing hunger for electrical power.

The testimony, compiled by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, is expected to bolster the committee's position that nuclear power, despite drawbacks, is the nation's best bet for the least pollution in meeting future energy needs.

Witness after witness told the committee:

—America's atmosphere already is fouled by choking clouds of sulphur spewed into the air by coal- and oil-fired generating plants.

—Rivers, lakes, even the sea—none are immune from the life-killing effects of thermal pollution resulting from discharge of heated liquids into the water by steam and nuclear generators.

—Even the power dams once believed to be the cleanest of all instruments for producing electricity now are believed to damage the water that spills over them by raising its nitrogen content to levels incompatible with aquatic life.

The testimony was presented at hearings late last year and released by the committee today. A second series of hearings is scheduled later this month.

The testimony came as scientists and conservationists raise more and more objections to side effects of electrical generation. Government and private experts predict U.S. demands for electricity will nearly treble by 1990, and double once again by the year 2000.

"Attacks are being made on all types of electric generating plants by environmentalists," acknowledged Rep. Chet Holifield, chairman of the committee, when the hearings opened.

But the California Democrat stated bluntly he takes little stock in objections to nuclear power plants. The business of his committee, Holifield said, "is to encourage development of nuclear electric generating plants."

And witnesses, from Presidential Science Advisor Dr. Lee A. DuBridge and Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg on down, did not disappoint him.

Both acknowledged nuclear generation has drawbacks, but contended man has the technological know-how to overcome them.

Thermal pollution, common to conventional as well as nuclear generating facilities, can be reduced, according to the testimony, by cooling waste water in ponds or towers before returning it to the river, lake or ocean from which it was taken.

Another solution is use of a dry cooling tower, which circulates water through a reactor much in the manner of an automobile radiator.

Sniper Sot Into Rifle

SAIGON (AP) — The sniper's shot wound up in the barrel of the GI's M16 rifle. Result: no damage.

Cpl. Ralph C. Blumenhagen of Willimantic, Conn., was scouting for a company of 25th Infantry Division troops earlier this week during the battle at Black Virgin Mountain, 55 miles northwest of Saigon. Blumenhagen's unit was pinned down by sniper fire on the mountain's western slope.

"I told the point man to throw a hand grenade at the sniper's position which was about 30 feet from us, and I would cover for him," Blumenhagen reported. "As he prepared to throw, I carefully leaned around the edge of a rock and tried to zero in on the sniper.

"Just then my rifle seemed to recoil as if I had fired it, although I didn't think I had. When I looked at the muzzle of the weapon, I found that I hadn't fired but the sniper had fired at me. An AK47 round was lodged tightly in the end of my rifle's barrel."

Tom Broughton, assistant administrator of the commerce and industry division with C&D, said, "the time has come (for) the people in the communities themselves must become involved in the work of bringing in new industry."

The new programs would have local persons on a committee to talk to prospective industry representatives, and awards are to help communities become better prepared for industrial development.

Local Teams For Development Are Announced

SYLVA, N. C. (AP) — Local development teams to attract quality industry and a governor's award program were announced Monday by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development.

The announcements were made at the first of many meetings across the state by C&D, which are aimed at generating new industrial development.

Tom Broughton, assistant administrator of the commerce and industry division with C&D, said, "the time has come (for) the people in the communities themselves must become involved in the work of bringing in new industry."

The new programs would have local persons on a committee to talk to prospective industry representatives, and awards are to help communities become better prepared for industrial development.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association has proposed a federal regulation prohibiting any person from flying an airplane within eight hours after consuming alcoholic beverages or drugs which would impair his faculties.

In a letter Monday to the Federal Aviation Administration, association president Joseph B. Hartranft Jr., said such a specific time limit would provide the FAA with "a regulation easier to enforce than the present requirement of not flying while under the influence of alcohol."

There is no federal regulation currently as to the time lapse between the last drink and take-off for airplane crew members, but the FAA prohibits crews from operating under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

The president of the 150,000-member association said the great majority of pilots are sober and responsible, but the regulation is needed to deter "the small number of airmen who may not respond to the educational approach."

Set Employment Survey For Area

The Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment and unemployment in this area during the week of January 18, according to Joseph R. Norwood, director of the Bureau's regional office in Charlotte.

Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Route 1, Grimesland, will visit the sample households to be interviewed here as part of a scientifically designed sample of the U. S. population. The survey statistics are collected for the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor to furnish a basic measure of the nation's economic health. Club To Assist Firetruck Fund

STOKES — The Stokes Ruritan Club has announced its intention to give all of its this year's funds above expenses to the community effort to purchase a truck for the local volunteer fire department.

James T. Abrams, vocational agriculture teacher at South Edgecombe High School, addressed the group on "Responsibility and Service."

The club will visit Texas Gulf Sulphur Company for its February meeting.

BETHEL—Pitt County ABC officers yesterday arrested Beulah Jones, 33-year-old Negro of Route 1, Bethel on charges of illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Mrs. Jones was recognized to appear in District Court January 20 to answer the charge.

leave $2,800 to apply to the installation charges for the 100 lights.

The commission went on record to approve the plans to shift use of the $8,000 allocated funds for the purposes outlined by Lee.

Commission member Sidney Carraway stated "I want to be sure that in the future, any one, college or high school or any other group, using the Guy Smith Stadium, pays enough for the use of the field to at least cover the electric bill."

The present policy is to charge a flat $25 fee for the use of the field. "This does not always meet the cost of electricity," Lee admitted.

The commission approved a pay scale chart for summer pay for part time workers. Based on a 30 hour week, rates have been increased as follows: High school without experience, $35.00 to $45.00; high school with experience, $40.00 to $50.00; college without experience, $40.00 to $50.00; college with experience, $45.00 to $55.00; and college graduate, $50.00 to $60.00. This will cover an estimated 20 to 25 part time workers with the Recreation Commission in the summer months.

Reds Bolstering Laos Defenses

SAIGON (AP)— Official sources reported today that the North Vietnamese are strengthening their antiaircraft defenses in Laos to protect infiltration routes and continuing a rapid buildup in the Mekong Delta of South Vietnam.

In the war, the U.S. Command announced that three light observation helicopters were shot down Monday in scattered parts of the country. One crewman was wounded.

Headquarters reported 55 enemy troops killed in two battles in rolling foothills below Da Nang and in rice paddies south of Saigon. American losses were put at two killed and 17 wounded.

Sources said North Vietnamese antiaircraft fire ranging from 37mm to 100mm had increased by about 30 per cent during 1969 against American bombers pounding the enemy supply network in eastern Laos. Earlier this week, the presence of North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles in Laos was disclosed.

schools and will not require mobile units, Alford said.

"It is anticipated that within the next five years, the board will be able to add the additional classroom space at the consolidated school sites. Plans for the rooms have already been drawn.

"This means, too, that where we had hoped to use some mobile units in place of certain less desirable facilities, we may now have to use these facilities for a period of time," he explained.

Alford expressed hope that the reports of the study teams will help to determine the direction in which the board should move.

Three county schools have been closed during the past three years by court order. They are Haddocks, Simpson and Nichols Schools. The Grifton Elementary School was closed in the fall of 1968.

"The board will possibly be in the position to close some other facilities by combining some schools, thus reducing operating expenses and maintenance costs where possible," Alford noted.

Alford said the North Pitt School should be ready by September, while construction on the D.H. Conley facility, scheduled to be completed by Sept. 1, is now behind schedule. The Farmville and Ayden-Grifton plants should be ready during the fall of 1970, but probably will not be completed until January, 1971.

"The court order strongly recognized the value of the four new schools being ready before complete desegregation takes place," Alford stated.

"It would be just devastating if we should have to completely reorganize and desegregate before each of the new schools is ready," he added.

Alford continued, "This could possibly mean total disruption twice within a nine month period of time and I don't believe students, parents and school personnel should be expected to absorb these traumatic experiences along with all of the other adjusting which will have to be made."

It would be better to make on change during the school year than to make two within a short space of time, Alford said.

"It has been shown that more problems arise on the high school level in desegregation when you have to use either a formerly all white or all black facility. Those students who have to change schools do not ever feel entirely at home."

"This makes it doubly important that we go into new buildings before complete high school desegregation is brought about," Alford said.

He added, "It will be up to the courts to decide this, but we hope we can show the courts that total desegregation will be best tied in with the completion of the four consolidated high schools."

Messick said that the study submitted by the Georgia firm was not detailed enough to help the commission at this time. He added that the firm had informed him they would send representatives back this week to work on the study.

LOW POINT

RALEIGH (AP)— Industrial unemployment in North Carolina in December was the lowest for that month since 1947, the Employment Security Commission reported today.

immediately how many antiaircraft batteries U.S. intelligence estimates there are in Laos or whether there has been an increase in the number of American bombers shot down.

Sources said North Vietnamese truck traffic moving through Laos toward South Vietnam had increased by 10 times since last October when the monsoons ended. Between 12,000 and 15,000 truck sightings were reported along the Ho Chi Minh Trail last month, they said.

They said there are indications the Communist Command is preparing to give itself the option "to do something. How big and when, we don't know."

One source said there had been no appreciable movement toward population centers detected yet. If the enemy does launch an offensive, the source said, it is expected he will rely mostly on rocket, mortar and sapper attacks to minimize his own casualties.

The source said that in the delta region of South Vietnam, the wealthiest and most populous area in the country, "the enemy threat has increased significantly since last May because of the influx of organized North Vietnamese units."

He said that last May, a few months before the withdrawal of American infantrymen from the Delta, five per cent of the total enemy force in the region was North Vietnamese, the rest Viet Cong.

He said the number of North Vietnamese troops in the delta had increased by six times since then and now makes up 30 per cent of the total enemy force.

RALEIGH (AP)— The promise by the North Carolina Soft Drink Association to cut back soda pop prices if and when the state removes its crown tax brought praise from two sources Monday.

The association's pledge came in response to a statement by Gov. Bob Scott that he would not be opposed to repeal of the soft drink levy if the industry would roll back its prices to the pre-tax level afterward.

Scott told a news conference Monday, "I have seen a copy of their statement. I think it is a good statement and a positive approach."

Miss Barnhill is a freshman at Meredith.

TAKES SELF OUT

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco Monday announced he had decided against running for governor this year, leaving Jesse M. Unruh as the only major Democratic challenger to Gov. Reagan.

Will Act When Tax Is Lifted

The governor added that he and the association are "a little far apart on figures" but "we may be on the same track" by the time the 1971 General Assembly convenes.

Scott's comment referred to the fact that he was talking in terms of a nickel reduction in soft drink prices, while the association referred to only a one-cent reduction if the tax were repealed.

The other reaction to the soft drink association's pledge came from the directors of the North Carolina Restaurant Association.

The executive vice president of the restaurant group, T. Jerry Williams, said the organization's board commends the soft drink association for its pledge. Williams added that the exact amount of the special soft drink tax is favored for the wholesale cutback.

Although the association has no control over prices charged by its members, Williams said, he felt they "and the North Carolina food service industry in general will follow suit and lend support in reducing prices of soft drinks to the consumer in order to reflect lower wholesale prices."
