How To Pick Convention Delegates

Thorny Issue For Demos

NASA CUTBACKS ANNOUNCED — Thomas O. Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announces it plans to lay off about 50,000 employees, cut back Saturn rocket production and stretch out moon mission schedules. (AP Wirephoto)

By RICHARD DAW Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Buoyed by initial success, a study commission revamping North Carolina's Democratic party structure took aim today at what may be a thornier question — how to pick delegates to presidential nominating conventions.

all party members, and especially Negroes and young persons. The lone rejection was on a key proposal to limit precinct officers to two consecutive terms. Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, charged that the limitation would "cripple the party," and it was defeated by a 9-vote margin out of 130 votes cast.

It was needed. "It will be taken up later," Hunt told the executive committee. The issue boiled up into an open fight at the last national Democratic convention when Dr. Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte, a Negro, challenged the North Carolina delegation's right to represent the state.

mons of Tarboro was elected chairman to succeed James V. Johnson of Charlotte and dates were announced for party meetings from the precinct to the state level. All precinct meetings will be June 6, all county conventions June 20 and all district conventions June 27. The state convention will be July 14 in Raleigh.

cent of the registered Democrats. Another change requires that precinct committees and other party bodies "reasonably reflect" the makeup of registered Democrats with regard to sex, age, race and geographical residence. A third change allows persons between the ages of 18 and 21 to participate in party affairs if they declare their intention to register as Democrats on becoming of age.

Pursestrings Tightened On Space Role; Layoffs Set; Missions Shrunk

WASHINGTON (AP) — After enjoying lavish funds in the '60s for its exotic forays into space, NASA is beginning the '70s with a cutback in money and projects. It won the '60s race with the Russians; it is losing out to the national needs of the '70s. Its already shrunken work force is being cut by 50,000 people. Other curtailments may signal an indefinite delay in sending men to Mars and a slowdown by at least a year in the next big space moves—building a space shuttle and advanced earth stations.

No 'Go' Sign For Biafra Relief

By MORT ROSENBLUM Associated Press Writer
LAGOS (AP) — A squabble between Nigerian organizations over directing aid for Biafra appeared today to have been settled, but there was no green light yet for foreign governments waiting to send massive shipments of food, medicine and supplies to the war zone.

few mercy shipments to Biafra during the civil war. The relief program was reported stymied by a dispute over its control between the government-affiliated National Commission for Rehabilitation and the Nigerian Red Cross. But the head of the rehabilitation commission, Timothy Omobare, said today that the commission "is in charge of determining priority of emergency relief operations, while the Red Cross is in charge of emergency operations." "We don't trouble them at all," he added. "The decree sharing our responsibility is very clear. All we need ... now is to get to the field and meet the needy masses and not sit down in Lagos quarreling." A defense department spokesman said the government had not cleared a relief airlift from Britain because the government had no official information.

$10 million is available for relief work in Biafra. The Canadian House of Commons unanimously asked its government to urge the Nigerian government to get church relief goods moving immediately to Biafra.

there and was seeking asylum in the Ivory Coast, a former French colony 400 miles west of Nigeria. Six thousand Biafran troops were reported to have surrendered to commanders of federal forces. Maj. Gen. Philip Efi-fiong, who took command of the Biafrans when Ojukwu fled and who announced their capitulation, asked federal leaders to halt their troops, saying the advance was causing panic among the civilian population.

Miss America Of 1962 To Serve Local Pageant

Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville, Miss America of 1962, will be mistress of ceremonies for this year's annual "Miss Greenville Pageant, 1970", scheduled for next Tuesday night at Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus.

MARIA BEALE FLETCHER
current Miss North Carolina, Patricia Elaine Johnson and Miss Greenville for 1969, Patricia Stimmel. The Miss America of 1962, now Mrs. Jim Growdon, Maria won the title of "Miss Asheville" at the age of 18. Following a tenure with the famous "Rockettes" at Radio City Music Hall in New York, she entered and won the "Miss North Carolina Pageant." In 1962, she entered the "Miss America Pageant" and became the first North Carolina beauty to win the coveted title. She has presided over 50 pageants since 1962 including the "Miss California, Miss Alaska and other state pageants. Currently Mrs. Growdon serves as co-host on a daily hour television show out of Nashville, Tenn., and is on radio three times daily. She has been asked to sing and dance in the 1970 "Miss America Pageant."

Aftermath: Warrants For Four Students

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer
Three Rose High Negro students have been arrested as the result of warrants signed by school administrative and faculty members. Tuesday afternoon, Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the City Schools signed a warrant charging William Earl Barrett, a 17 year old Negro student, with disorderly conduct. Two warrants were signed by a white teacher, Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, against two Negro girls — Mattie Ann Carr, 17 and Lizzie Gilbert, 16. Both were charged with assault and disorderly conduct.

investigating an incident which occurred at Rose early today. "One driver, after unloading his passengers on schedule, pulled off in an aggressive manner across the crosswalk," Dr. Cleetwood explained. "The driver has been removed pending assessment of his action, and it is possible legal action will be taken against him." Police Chief Tommy Gladson commented on a meeting he had with Jesse Lee Daniels and representatives of Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). "They came to talk to me last night after a meeting they held on Albermarle Street," Gladson said. "Daniels told me they were very much concerned, afraid the safety of the Negro students might be at stake."

Other Nigerian officials said the government has all the food it needs, but the problem is getting it to those needing it. They said all efforts must be channeled through agencies approved by the government. Persons returning from the war zone said Biafran troops were surrendering without difficulty and refugees were pouring out. They said there were 2,000 prisoners of war at Ikot, Ekpen and Port Harcourt, and that they saw no signs of mistreatment of Biafran troops or civilians.

Grant Awarded ECU For Solar Eclipse Session

East Carolina University's unique role as the center of totality for a forthcoming total solar eclipse has been emphasized by a grant of $15,405 from the National Science Foundation. The grant, awarded to professor of physics Dr. R. N. Helms, will fund a two-day conference of some 100 college astronomy teachers, and will host several nationally known scientists.

Flight Center in Maryland; and Dr. Sarah Lee Lippincott, also from the Sproul Observatory. The eclipse, scheduled by nature to occur just after noon on March 7, will draw a host of scientists, educators, students and the just plain curious to the ECU campus. ECU is the only major institution in the state so well situated. It is at the center of the most favorable vantage point in the nation, and will thus be the center of scientific activity. The conference begins on the day of the eclipse. According to Dr. Helms, total eclipses are so rare over any given locale that they occur on an average of once every 360 years. In North Carolina, there will have been two in 70 years. The first was on May 28, 1900.

Utilities Approve Short Term Financing

Utilities commissioners last night approved issuing $700,000 in bond anticipation notes to begin electric and sewer projects under the recently approved bond program. Director Charles Horne explained that the funds brought in through the temporary financing will be used for electric and gas projects immediately needed. The short term financing will be paid off when regular bonds, authorized in a city wide vote, are sold in late summer or early fall. The commissioners approved in financing of $190,700 in electric projects through bond funds. Included are: Winterville substation, $20,000; relocators at Northside, Eastside and southside stations, $13,500; ECU substation, $47,000; ECU substation transmission, $10,000; main station transformers, $67,200 and main station regulators, $33,000. Previously approved for bond financing were: Hollywood substation, $80,000; Memorial Drive transmission, $36,400; Eastern Pines feeder, $29,300. In the gas department the commission approved including the gas main north of the river in bond funds. It cost $90,000. Commissioners approved $43,200 in distribution line work from the Hollywood substation and $48,000 in distribution from the Northside substation. Also approved was $27,700 in plant substation distribution and $5,600 in Southside substation distribution improvements. The distribution projects are to be carried out from the Utilities regular capital improvements budget. Horne reported that gas demand during recent cold weather jumped ahead of the contract agreement with North Carolina Natural Gas. Electric output, approached the summer peak, he said. There were some problems with controls on water tanks freezing but this did not interfere with water delivery, Horne reported. Horne also reported that the minimum number of municipalities necessary had signed up to participate in the EPIC program, and this will allow planning to proceed. EPIC is the group which is considering construction of power generating facilities to serve municipally owned electric systems and coops in this area. On Horne's recommendation the commissioners dropped their membership in the Yankee-Dixie power project. This group was studying constructing generating facilities at coal mining sites. Horne reported that the commission's request for federal funds for sewer and water projects is still being processed by EDA. The director said bids for the Hollywood electric substation on N.C. 43 are expected to be ready for commission consideration next week. Chairman J. Ed Waldrop appointed E. Hoover Taft, Dr. Howard Gradis and City Manager Harry Hagerty as a committee to review the commission's policy on underground electric wiring.

Trio Bound Over For Trial On Several Robbery Counts

Three men who have been charged with numerous counts of breaking and entering, larceny and safe robbery following recent incidents in the Ayden and Winterville areas were bound over to Superior Court yesterday following a hearing on the various charges. The three, Eugene Bell of Virginia Beach, Va., Ernest Bell of Wallace (brothers), and Bobby Gene Brown of Rt. 1, Winterville, were bound over to Superior Court without privilege of bond for trial on Jan. 26. Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that two of the men, Ernest Bell and Brown, have also been charged with three additional counts of breaking and entering and larceny following investigation of three incidents that occurred late in 1969. Two of the break-ins were reported at the Oakley Oil and LP Gas Company in Farmville, Tyson said, and the third report came from Wickes Lumber and Building Supplies Center, also in Farmville. The first break-in at the Oakley firm has been under investigation since Sept. 21.

Approximately $230 was reported stolen from the business on the first occasion and nothing was missing following a break-in on Nov. 13 at the same firm. The Wickes incident was reported on Nov. 12 and over $250 was taken on that date. In all cases, forcible entry was involved, the sheriff added. Eugene Bell is still facing AWOL charges at the Cherry Point Marine Base where he had been reported missing prior to his arrest in December. Tyson said all three are currently being held in Pitt County jail.

Severely Burned By High Voltage

Roy Colter, 53, of Rural Hall, an employee of Colter and Chapel Electric Co. of Winston-Salem, was severely burned yesterday when he came into contact with high voltage current in a transformer vault at the 14th Street power station on the East Carolina University campus. Colter and Chapel Electric Co. is under contract to do electrical wiring at ECU. Colter was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital following the 2:15 p.m. incident then transferred to Forsyth Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem. While working at ECU, Colter was living with a fellow employee at West End Trailer Park here.

Parade Permit Issued SCLC

The Greenville Police Department has issued a permit to the Pitt Unit of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference for a parade Thursday afternoon. The permit application said the march is to honor the birthday of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. The marchers are scheduled to leave the Mt. Calvary church on Hudson Street and walk to the Pitt County Court House where a memorial service is scheduled. Time of the parade is set for 3 p.m.

Doesn't Want Daughter Chasing

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I could always figure out my own problems, but since we seem to be living in a different world from our children, I have come to the point where I can use some help.

My daughter is 22. She has a boyfriend who is going to college in another town. It's his last year, and he lives close enough so he could drive home on week-ends if he wanted to. He used to, but lately he hasn't, so my daughter thinks it is all right for her to drive down to visit him every week-end.

Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I don't think this is right. She talks about getting married next year, and they aren't even engaged. I don't like to see her running after him. I think she is cheapening herself. I love my daughter, and I trust her, but this difference of opinion is driving us apart. What do you think?

LOVING MOM

DEAR MOM: There are two schools of thought. "Absence makes the heart grow fonder." [Yours.] And, "Out of sight, out of mind." [Hers.] Knowing nothing about the relationship between your daughter and the young man, I hesitate to recommend one school over the other, but I'd be inclined to tell her to idle down her engine, and let HIM burn up the highways for a change.

DEAR ABBY: I have a mother who listens in on the other telephone when my sister is talking to her boyfriend. I don't go by the downstairs phone to catch her at it, but I have walked by where the phone is, and there sits Mom listening in for all she is worth.

I don't think this is a very nice thing for my mother to do, but then you don't go telling your mother what to do especially when you are a 12-year-old boy and she is a 42-year-old lady. So hurry your advice. I was thinking maybe I should tell my sister.

A BOY IN NEWARK

DEAR BOY: That would be a very brotherly thing to do.

DEAR ABBY: When my sister, Leona, was married, my parents gave her and her husband, Ross, many lovely pieces of furniture as a wedding gift. Leona died quite suddenly, one year after her marriage and Ross put the furniture in storage and moved into a smaller apartment. That was two years ago.

Now my brother is getting married, and my parents have told me that they intend to ask Ross for the furniture so they can give it to my brother and his fiancée as they feel it should be kept in "our" family. Ross is also considering marriage in the near future.

Abby, I wasn't "asked" for my opinion. My parents simply told me of their intentions. I personally feel that my parents are out of line to ask Ross for the furniture. I believe that Leona would have wanted Ross to keep whatever they shared. I also believe that my brother and his wife would feel uncomfortable accepting the furniture. Should I speak my mind? Or should I keep my mouth shut?

STILL WATER

DEAR STILL WATER: Speak your mind. I agree with you.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

CHINESE TOUCH ... Julian Kuo, Chinese-born official of the United Nations Secretariat, specializes in traditional American dishes dressed up by a mixture of Chinese ingredients.

Oriental Flair Adds Spice To Western Dishes

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
Chinese cooking is no novelty, but Western dishes made with a Chinese touch can really send you.

By doing just that for the past 20 years, Julian Kuo, Chinese-born official with the United Nations Secretariat, has been delighting New Yorkers lucky enough to be invited to sup at his midtown apartment.

Kuo, a personable, youthful-looking man who speaks English with hardly a trace of an accent, has the imaginative touch of the true gourmet.

He likes to take a traditional American dish like beefsteak and dress it up with a mixture of Chinese ingredients, like prickly ash seeds, (available in Chinese foodstores), soy sauce and ginger.

In his travels throughout the United States and Canada, Kuo often obtains the recipe of some dish that has caught his fancy. Then he tries it out in his kitchen, adding a little Oriental seasoning and a few ingredients to transform it into something quite different from the original.

"It's a great thing to be able to pick up an ordinary piece of meat, add a pinch of this and a dash of that and turn out a succulent dish which makes every gourmet green with envy," Kuo said as we sat chatting in the Delegates' Lounge.

"Let other people struggle with their paint brushes, hammers and chisels," he said. "I'll keep my cuisine."

For years, Kuo created his culinary delights without giving much thought to posterity. Then, five years ago, his British secretary brought a female friend over to his place for dinner. They were so charmed with the meal that the friend asked for the recipe.

"I play by ear when I cook," said Kuo. "In other words, I improvise. So I couldn't give her the recipe. I had to ask them to come back another evening and watch me make the dish."

When the friend returned for other meals, she wrote down these recipes also until finally she compiled a formidable list. The result was a book called "Chinese Cuisine—Only in America." It has not yet been published.

"As the title indicates," Kuo said, "I can cook only in America where most ingredients are standardized—where a piece of 'U.S. Choice' porterhouse is a lump of good meat, whether you buy it in Chicago or Buffalo."

One of Kuo's favorite offerings which has been a big hit with his guests, is breast of chicken with a champagne sauce.

"This is one of my most successful, and at the same time, most simple dishes," he said. "The best thing about it is that you do the hard work before your guest arrives."

"With everything in the oven, you can go and charm your chest."

CHICKEN PRIMA DONNA "SIZE 40"

- 4 halves chicken breasts
- 3 to 4 tablespoons cognac
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups vegetable oil
- 6 prickly ash seeds
- 2 slices ginger
- 1 green scallion stalk (thinly sliced)

- 1/2 cup light cream
 - 3 tablespoons cooking sherry.
 - 1 large onion sliced
 - 1/2 cup sliced almonds
 - Pepper and salt to taste
- Wash chicken breasts, dry with paper towels and rub with cognac. Dredge chicken with flour, seasoned with salt and pepper; set aside.
- Heat oil in a skillet; when hot, drop in prickly ash seeds, ginger and scallion. When scallion turns greenish-brown, take all three ingredients out of oil and set aside.
- Fry chicken in oil until brown, about three to five minutes on each side. Place chicken in casserole and set aside.
- Heat celery soup, light cream and sherry in saucepan. Pour over chicken. Spread onion and sliced almonds over chicken. Cover tightly and bake for 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove lid of casserole and bake another 10-15 minutes, or until almonds are brown and crisp.
- Lift out chicken and place in serving dish. Add about four tablespoons of champagne to celery soup. Stir gently and serve over the chicken.
- Needless to say, you drink the remainder of the champagne with your dinner!

Continuous Planning Needed

The fact that Pitt Memorial Hospital is faced with a shortage of beds even as the county ponders what to do about additional hospital space illustrates the fact that continuing planning is needed by the county.

Daily Reflector staff writer Stuart Savage's article Sunday brought out the fact that the hospital's 200 beds are being used at 95 percent capacity.

The county in April, 1968 was told by a consultant that 100 private rooms should be added, along with the enlargement of supporting services.

Now the county is considering a number of plans for improving hospital facilities. One is the addition of 100 beds at a cost of $7 million. Another is to build an entirely new hospital of 300 beds at an estimated cost of $10.7.

Adoption of either one of these plans would mean that considerable time would elapse before the additional facilities could be completed and placed in service.

There have also been proposals by several firms to purchase the hospital and operate it as a private venture, with the purchasing firm to build additional facilities or an entirely new facility. This, too, would take considerable time.

The most recent proposal was for using relatively low cost module units to furnish 100 additional rooms. This would allow additional time for planning the future course. However there would still be the need for additional supporting facilities.

The county may as well realize there is going to be considerable growth ahead for Greenville and Pitt County. There is going to be more need than ever for continuous planning by the county government. This will have to be done so that new hospital facilities will be available when they are needed; and other services offered by the county will be up to date.

Jumbo Jets Mean New Air Age Is At Hand

A new air age is nearing for the world as the jumbo jets come nearer to reality.

A Pan-American Airways Boeing 747 touched down at London from New York Monday in a dress rehearsal for regular flight.

It carried 380 persons and made the trip in six hours and 30 minutes.

There were some delays in handling baggage but it is clear that the jumbo jets will soon be in service.

There are many problems still to be solved, not the least of which is airports adequate to handle the air giants, and the safety problem. However, in the future there will be more people carried on transatlantic flights and the traveling time will be shorter. It means a new era of air travel.

Still Unaware Of Credit Age?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the fact that the law now requires interest rates on consumer loans to be stated as clearly as possible, the suspicion exists that many buyers still are unaware of the implications of the credit age.

Clearly, credit as a way of life is not only firmly established but growing relentlessly, both in total amount and as a percentage of disposable income. Close to $120 billion is outstanding, not including home mortgages.

A proper understanding of credit may not be developing simultaneously, however, and the failing seems to be shared by both borrower and lender.

A survey by the Federal Reserve Board in July 1969 showed considerable confusion among heads of households about the interest rates they paid on automobile loans, department store credit and even home mortgages.

Since then the Truth-In-Lending Law has gone into effect, requiring that lenders state the dollar amount of finance charges and the interest as a percentage. But can anyone easily understand the charges on installment credit?

Compounding the confusion is the sometimes incredible state of credit bookkeeping. Holders of some credit cards find it almost impossible to get errors corrected. And in some stores the situation is as poor.

Consider, for example, the problem involved in a payment made but not recorded promptly by the creditor. The creditor includes the amount on the next bill, along with an interest charge.

One month later the creditor does make note of the payment and deducts it from the balance. But does the interest charge also come off? Not always, and not many borrowers are likely to spot the error either.

Some users of credit suspect that the much-touted efficiencies of credit are not so real as advertised. They prefer instead to pay cash, seek a discount and keep their own records.

In Montebello, Calif., the editor of "Western Milk & Ice Cream," a Mr. Henry Adam Morse, complains.

"Establishments accept credit cards willingly, waiting 30 days for their money less part of their profit, but when one offers cash and asks for a discount it produces a financial crisis that requires calling the manager."

Several years ago Morse printed up some "Discount-For-Cash" cards and sent them to friends. Soon he was getting orders from all over the country for cards at three for $1, although they cost him only one cent to print.

So heavy were the orders, he says, that "for awhile I thought I had discovered perpetual motion." What he had discovered were individuals of similar sympathies.

Another problem of the credit age is the matter of controls on the proliferation of bank credit cards that seem to appear in the mails as regularly as "centsoff" coupons. Although almost casually offered, these cards are an A-1 claim on the lendable funds of the dispensing bank.

A customer might apply to a bank for $600 in credit to purchase furniture and be turned down because of tight money. If he has the bank's credit card, however, he can buy that furniture without a question being asked.

Strength For Today

BE PATIENT
What are the factors which keep the life of a sincere Christian in line with God's purposes?

The first, of course, is sincerity. Without sincerity no one can even get started on the living of a Christian life. He must be sincere in what he believes and in the way he tries to put his beliefs into practice.

The second factor which must stabilize the life of every true Christian is patience. As we look back over the years, we are amazed, and probably discouraged, to realize that we have so often failed to do what the dictates of our conscience assured us was right. It requires considerable faith for anyone to go through life realizing that no matter how much he wanted always to do the right thing he has frequently failed.

The third factor of stability is belief. We have to get our feet firmly set on certain solid truths. For the Christian this means that we have to believe that God sincerely wants to improve our lives and bring us to what the Bible calls "salvation." The saved person is the person made safe, and this safety comes to us and remains with us only if we can be patient with ourselves and patiently await what appears to be the fulfilling of God's plan for our lives.

A great military leader said some years ago that in warfare there is no substitute for victory. This is particularly true in the patient living day by day of a Christian life.

God is patient with us if we can be patient with ourselves.

The Leftover Notes

WASHINGTON — Every year I find in my basket column-notes I never get around to discussing. So I shall use them up and start the new decade with a clean

"in-basket." A suggestion has been made as to how we could finance our space program without increasing the burden on the taxpayer.

Other Editors Say Preserving The System

(Rocky Mount Telegram) A new attempt will be made after Congress reconvenes Jan. 19 to throw all restraints off the nation's electoral processes by providing for the election of the President by direct, popular vote. All the machinery and restraints so widely set up by our Founding Fathers would be destroyed if the liberals have their way in the Senate where Sen. Birch Bayh, Democrat of Indiana, is sponsoring a constitutional amendment providing for popular vote.

are not averse to taking a step backward. The American political system is a federal union, or federative republic. It is a representative system of government. Its design is not one of participatory politics to use the favorite phrase of the New Left. The system works well, as the endurance of the Republic for almost 200 years makes very clear.

But when the House voted for direct, popular election it voted to discard a key part of the plan devised for the operation of the Republic. It would break with the wisdom of the Founding Fathers, and Heaven knows there is very little wisdom being displayed in Washington these days.

Fortunately, the Constitution continues to provide safeguards against intellectual confusion. For the direct election bill to become the law of the land, two-thirds of the Senate and three-fourths of the states will have to give their assent.

There is no doubt that the idea of direct elections has a superficial appeal to persons who haven't examined the machinery of presidential elections and considered the theory behind it. The chief damage of direct elections, of course, would be to downgrade the role of the states. But this is the ultimate goal of those liberals who prefer a strong, all-powerful central government, isn't it?

Rather than tax American citizens for furthering space exploration, we would ask for voluntary contributions from individuals, foundations and corporations. In exchange for making a donation, the President of the United States would be given the authority to name a part of the universe after the giver.

For example, if a company or individual gave $1 billion, a galaxy would be named after the company or person.

For $100 million, the giver would have a constellation named after him; for $10 million, a solar system; for $100,000 a star; $50,000 would entitle the donor to a planet in his name; $25,000 to a moon, $10,000 to an ocean or continent on another planet, and a $100 contribution would guarantee the giver's name on a rock that an astronaut brought back.

The larger contributors, such as those who bought a galaxy, would be given a dinner by President Nixon at the White House at which time the President would officially change the name of the galaxy and give the donor an autographed map of the universe.

It took months of effort, but someone has finally broken the code of the high U.S. government executive when he is communicating with someone else. While I may be violating security by revealing it, I still think the public has a right to know what their public servants really mean when they use the following words and phrases:

—"to expedite"—to confound confusion with commotion.
—"co-ordinator"—a guy who has a desk between two expeditors.

Nixon's F-111 Pledge

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The F111's persistent technical problems apparently will test President Nixon's 1968 campaign pledge to make the plane "into one of the foundations of our national security."

The then-candidate's comment was recalled over the weekend when Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird raised the possibility that future F111 production may be canceled.

Fifteen F111's have crashed, the latest in December, from reasons ranging from construction flaws to pilot error.

The Air Force said Monday the December accident that killed two crewmen resulted from faulty steel, which caused a wing to break off near the fuselage.

It was Nov. 1, 1968, the eve of the presidential election, when Nixon publicly endorsed the F111 program while campaigning in Texas where the General Dynamics Company builds the plane.

The new plane was a continuing problem for the Democrats facing accusations that former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara overrode the military by awarding the multi-billion-dollar contract to General Dynamics rather than Boeing of Seattle, Wash.

Mechanical bugs have continued to plague the F111 since Nixon's campaign statement, prompting Laird to note Sunday in a televised interview that it is becoming a Republican problem.

"Since I have been Secretary of Defense, I have not had to face up to this issue," Laird said. "But I am having to face up to it in 1971 because then is the time for decision as to whether we will go forward with a fourth wing or whether we will cancel the program after the fourth wing or before the fourth wing."

The Air Force would like to buy more than 600 F111's but has been given the money in recent years to pay for 491.

This includes funds for 56 of 90 planes required for the fourth wing Laird referred to. Only 238 have actually been built, with 223 in the inventory after the 15 crashes.

Aides say Laird is likely to depend solely on the Air Force's recommendation on whether to continue future F111 production.

The Air Force reported it does not know yet whether the steel defect which caused the December accident is an isolated problem or affects the entire fleet. All operational F111's have been grounded pending inspection.

Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., long a critic of the F111 program, has served notice to Laird he plans to resume his congressional investigation of the plane.

McClellan said last week that if the latest problem affects all F111's then the Pentagon should cancel the program instead of making further heavy expenditures for repairs.

The Air Force says that at this point it has no estimate on how much it might cost to remedy the steel flaw should the defect be found in other F111's.

The Air Force last year had to modify the aircraft after another serious structural problem turned up during fatigue and stress tests of a wing rig on the ground.

That problem involved a crack in the vital internal wing box around which the F111's unique variable-sweep wings pivot. Strengthening of F111 sling boxes cost $80 million.

Little People Want Piece

By ELMER ROESSNER
That the little people want a piece of the action has been dramatically demonstrated by the offer of the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co. of Philadelphia to sell its own 7½ per cent notes in multiples of $100.

ELMER ROESSNER

This is the first opportunity small savers have had to get more than 5½ per cent on their money. And thousands of people from all over the country have been rushing their money to Philadelphia to get the 7½ per cent. The notes aren't deposits; they are simply the bank's promise to repay the amounts in 30 months, plus 7½ per cent a year interest. The buyers can get their money back within five days of purchase. After that they must wait 30 months. If the money is needed before that, the notes may be used as security for loans at other banks.

Cracking The $1,000 Barrier Banks, under the Federal Reserve's Regulation Q, are prohibited from paying more than 5½ per cent on savings deposits. Higher interest rates have been reserved for the moderately wealthy and the rich.

Corporate bonds, which pay up to 9 per cent interest, are sold only in multiples of $1,000 or $5,000. Ohio Bell, offering bonds rated Aaaa last week, had to pay 8.70 per cent; corporations whose credit is rated lower must pay more.

Smaller businesses must pay even more, up to 10 or 12 per cent at banks if they rate, more if they go to private sources. In a case in the courts in New Jersey, it was alleged that loan sharks charged a speculator 1½ per cent interest a week.

Other banks have offered certificates of deposit, which are term notes, not savings deposits, paying up to 6 per cent. These are offered in large denominations, although a few have been offered in $500 bits.

Not For Little Guys

State and municipal bonds pay around 6 per cent, but their tax-free interest, which can be worth 12 per cent to be a gentleman in the 50 per cent tax bracket, are sold mostly in $5,000 units, with a few in $1,000. There are a few mutual funds investing in tax-exempt, which sell shares in smaller amounts.

Treasury bills another security for the rich, pay almost 8 per cent. Treasury savings bonds, for the little fellows, pay 5 per cent.

Banks pay 8 per cent and more for Eurodollars, but these are purchased only from banks and branches abroad.

First Pennsylvania's offer caused tremors throughout the banking industry. While some banks said they were not interested in similar offers because of the high cost of handling small accounts, several admitted they were studying the problem.

Some pointed out that the offer could drain deposits from savings accounts in banks and savings and loan associations and might dry up sources for home loans.

Some bankers predicted that the Federal Reserve might interdict the sale of 7½ per cent notes, or put a lower interest on them. In fact, the Fed may act before this column is printed.

Guardians Of City's Morals Win And Lose

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guardians of the city's morals have scored 50 per cent in their drive to protect citizens from allegedly salacious entertainment.

They helped put "Oh Calcutta" out of business, but they have failed to prevent "I Am Curious (Yellow)" from public exhibition.

Last week producer Lou Shaw announced he was closing "Oh Calcutta!" after five troubled weeks at the Fairfax Theatre, a made-over movie house. The New York revue, in which the entire cast appeared nude and sex acts were simulated, had twice been raided by police.

On Dec. 29, vice squad officers seized prints of the Swedish film "I Am Curious (Yellow)" at five Los Angeles theaters. An additional theater canceled showings of the movie, in which sexual intercourse is portrayed, after being notified of the raid. All the theaters had been warned that the seizure would take place.

Backers of the film won a temporary restraining order against further seizures and it is being shown in seven Los Angeles theaters.

The actions against the play and film appear to be part of an uphill struggle by law enforcement agencies to clamp down on entertainment that deals blatantly with sex. The struggle is uphill they say, because the U.S. Supreme Court in recent years has ruled out most of the traditional pornography laws and has set down strict guidelines on when the law can interfere in the areas of artistic expression.

George Francell, a lawyer in the Los Angeles city attorney's office, said thousands of complaints about "I Am Curious (Yellow)" had been received during the months it was shown prior to the seizure.

"We did nothing because we did not have the expert testimony with which to substantiate our case," he said.

Francell said an investigator was sent throughout California for interviews to determine what are the contemporary community standards—a main legal point raised in obscenity cases—in hopes of using his testimony in court.

Attorney Stanley Fleishman, who represents Grove Press, distributor of the film, declared the city's method of proving its case "ridiculous."

"What they did was to send a cop around the state to ask those who hadn't seen the film if they thought it was obscene, he said. How would they know if they hadn't seen it? Six hundred thousand adults in California have seen the picture. That indicates that it has been accepted."

Both sides declare they will continue the fight. Grove Press can well afford it. Last year "I Am Curious (Yellow)" collected more than $7.5 million in theater receipts in major cities, according to Variety. This despite raids in Kansas City, Boston, Denver, Phoenix, San Jose and Fullerton, Calif., and other cities.

The closing of "Oh! Calcutta!" is a more complex matter. It had been raided twice, and Producer Shaw and the eight cast members were arrested on misdemeanor counts for investigation of lewd and obscene conduct.

Aside from police problems, the management was shaken by internal feuding. Producer Shaw claimed he had been misled about production costs by Hillard Elkins, the New York producer who licensed the local version. Elkins, in turn, sued claiming he wasn't paid royalties. Nonetheless, the play was still surpassing the break-even point by as much as $10,000 a week.

People's Park Party Remains 'Premature'

AUBURN, N.Y. ((AP)) — One man's interpretation of his rights in People's Park met a court test, after the man used a cocktail table for beer, and was arrested for public intoxication.

Edward Hickey, 39, told the local magistrate: "They put a cocktail table in People's Park so I went to the park and put a bottle of beer on the table."

The magistrate dismissed the charge, ruling that Hickey did not endanger himself or anyone else, and said: "Party-going in People's Park is a little premature because of the newly planted grass."

The park is an area of the city's urban renewal project; and awaits construction of a condominium. A citizens' group set up benches, planted grass, and placed a table in the area, located in the center of Auburn's business district.

Interviewing Area Girls Varied Program For Reynolds Scholarship By Vienna Choir

Three local high school students will be among the 278 nominees being interviewed this month for the Katharine Smith Reynolds Scholarships at the awarded to each freshman class. The awards, covering room and board, tuition, fees, books and miscellaneous expenses, are valued at $1,600 and are renewable for four years of study.

The selection of Reynolds finalists was delegated to the Alumni Association of UNC-G by the Reynolds Foundation when the program was initiated in 1962. District committees were appointed to serve this function.

The Reynolds Scholarships were established by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation in memory of Mrs. Katharine Smith Reynolds, a Woman's College (now UNC-G) alumna, wife of the founder of Reynolds Tobacco Company, and mother of the late R.J. Reynolds Jr.

The Vienna Choir Boys, young musical ambassadors from Austria, displayed their youthful talents before a packed audience in Wright Auditorium at East Carolina University last night.

In a three-fold program, the 22 boys presented a wide range of music — sacred, operatic, folk-song — from a 16th century Italian composer to a contemporary composer's setting for a psalm.

Jacques Offenbach's comic one act opera "Herr Und Madame Denis" served the lads well as a freewheeling vehicle for juvenile clowning with English used for the spoken lines. Some of these lines are unforgettable — i.e., "I wish you a very good night," with an immediate response of "get lost." The quartet in this brief opera was beautifully sung by four older singers in the principal roles. The younger lads had a gay time tumbling about in the drunk scene.

Franz Schubert's flowing, melodic "Pastorale"; and the lovely "Happiness," with the chorus answering the solo melody, ideally suited the particular warm quality of choir boys voices. These two selections from one of Schubert's song cycles were perhaps the highlight of the evening.

Music of lesser known composers such as Ludovico da Vittoria's "Duo Seraphim," a slow, simple melody of clear golden tones; and Johann Ritter Von Herbeck's "Pueri Conciniet" proved to be delightful listening, as was the duet from Handel's "Occasional Oratorio."

Albert Anglberger, the youthful musical director of the touring section of the Vienna Choir Boys, contributed one of the two modern selections. His contemporary choral setting for the "One Hundred and Thirty-First Psalm" is in a style similar to that used by the American composer Ulysses Kay in musical settings for psalms.

Anglberger's piano accompaniments were at all times appropriate and effective, especially in the Strauss waltz and for the Offenbach opera.

One minor disappointment was the absence of more Austrian or Vavarian folk songs. They used only three very short folk-songs. The inclusion of some familiar favorites such as "The Bird's Return" would have been most welcome.

In keeping with a long, established tradition, credits were not given for the soloists or for the boys singing lead roles in the opera. The program closed with a superbly phrased singing of one of Strauss' waltzes. After a standing ovation, the boys offered Foster's "Oh, Susanna" as their encore. — JERRY RAYNOR

Would Forbid Cancellation Of Auto Insurance

RALEIGH (AP) — A representative of insurance agents says insurance companies should be forbidden to cancel automobile liability insurance policies except for failure to pay premiums and revocation of the insured's driving license.

Jack Rose, an official of the Carolinas Association of Mutual Insurance Agents, made this one of a series of recommendations to a commission studying liability insurance in North Carolina. The commission, authorized by the 1969 General Assembly, will report to the 1971 legislature.

Rose said, "If we could reduce auto accidents in the state by 20 or 30 per cent, then we wouldn't have any significant auto liability insurance problems."

But that, he said, seems unlikely. Ireland is the 20th largest island in the world.

2 Mishaps

An estimated $950 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 12:09 mishap at the intersection of Pitt and Howell Streets and involved cars driven by Evelyn Beasley, 2414 Umstead Ave. and John Lacy Pearson, 34, of 410 Wyatt St.

Damage to the Beasley auto was set at $250 while damage to the Pearson car was set at $350.

Miss Beasley was charged with failing to yield the right of way.

No charges were made in a 10:33 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Truman Street.

Police reported a car driven by Kenneth Darrell Simonowich, 19, of 301 Elizabeth St. collided with a utility pole causing an estimated $300 damage to his car and about $50 damage to the pole.

Greenville Building Pace Lags

The trend in building within Greenville continues at a slow pace. This is revealed in the monthly report issued for December by J.W. Wilson, Housing Inspector.

During December, only 24 building permits were issued. Because of one permit for the construction of apartment building complex containing 100 units at $725,000.00 the total value of new planned construction amounting to $883,880.00.

Aside from the permit for the apartment complex, three permits for individual residences valued at $49,500.00 were issued; also three for residence additions at $12,500.00; six for residence alterations, $10,100.00; and seven for signs at $5,400.00.

Business construction accounted for four permits, with one business permit amounting to $73,800; two business additions at $17,680.00 and one business alteration at $8,000.00.

This brings the total construction permits issued since July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year, to 136. Total fees for permits in December were $1,169.00 — and the fees since July 1 are $5,309.00.

Beginning in December, the Building Inspector has begun submitting a report of inspections performed monthly.

In December, 137 units were inspected. Of these 37 structures were found to be in violation of the minimum enforcement requirements; and 46 dwelling units were in violation.

Open Invitation To Big Jenkins Dinner

Dr. Joe Pou, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, has issued an open invitation to everyone in North Carolina to attend the "Leo W. Jenkins Appreciation Dinner" on Jan. 27.

"I want to make it clear to everyone that a formal invitation is not needed to attend this dinner," Pou said. "We sent invitations to a number of people hoping to get their support in inviting others to the dinner."

Pou said the dinner is being held to pay tribute to Dr. Jenkins for his leadership during the past ten years as president of East Carolina University and his involvement in helping to develop Eastern North Carolina.

"The leadership that Dr. Jenkins has provided in building the university and in helping to bring a new era of development and progress to our state has been of benefit to everyone. Therefore, everyone is invited to participate in this appreciation dinner," Pou added.

Chamber heads say a large crowd is expected for the dinner, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Fourteen-Year-Old Drummer Plays With A Philharmonic

By ROY MALONE
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Every once in a while the kettle drummer in the St. Louis Philharmonic lets go with a passage not in the score.

The other musicians in the 95-member orchestra just take it in stride.

After all, the kettle drummer is only 14 and most of the time he treats the score just as seriously as they do.

"Rock is okay," says the young percussionist, Alan Schilling, "but I like symphonies better."

Alan, who as been drumming since he was 4, was only 12 when he made it to the Philharmonic.

"The boy is great," said Max Risch, the Philharmonic's personnel manager. "A first class musician. His talent ranks with the upper core of the orchestra. He's got a good attitude and is very disciplined."

But Alan says he likes to "let go" occasionally in practice and "If they don't say anything, or just kind of laugh, then I know it's okay to play it in a performance."

Alan has been taking drum lessons from the best St. Louis professionals for about seven years and also plays and studies piano.

The main thing, he says, is to "give it more—make it sound better."

Alan still remembers what someone told him when he first wanted to play a musical instrument as a tyke. "You're too little to play a piano. Go home and eat a few loaves of bread and

Cold Weather Sees Record Electric Use

RALEIGH (AP) — A record amount of electricity was used by Carolina Power & Light Co. customers during last week's severe cold weather.

From 6 to 7 p.m. Thursday, customers used 3,151,000 kilowatt hours, breaking the previous one-hour record of 3,055,000 kilowatt hours set on July 18 last year.

On Friday, they used a record 64,406,000 kilowatt hours or 32 per cent more than on the same Friday last year. For the week ending Jan. 10, some 17 per cent more electricity was used in the CP&L system than for the corresponding week of 1969.

CP&L serves about 550,000 customers in a 30,000-square mile area of North Carolina and South Carolina.

get a little bigger."

In the third grade he joined the St. Peter's Cathedral Grade School Band.

"The others didn't like me because even though I was little I could play as well as they could," he said. "But eventually we made friends."

Alan is urged on by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Schilling, of Belleville, Ill., both non-musical.

Mrs. Schilling was proudest, she says, when, on a spring morning three years ago, the Cathedral Band marched down a Belleville street to a cadence Alan composed.

Alan played for a time with the Belleville Junior Philharmonic and when an opening came up in the St. Louis Philharmonic he was recommended by his teacher.

He now talks hopefully of starting a large dance band reminiscent of bygone days "with six trumpets." Or maybe he'll settle for playing with a bigger orchestra, "like the Boston Symphony."

"THE NEW PROFESSIONALS" farm TV special presented by Monsanto

Are you one of the new professionals—the businessman-scientist-farmer all rolled into one? Are you sure you're getting the most from your seeds and chemicals? Do you know how much each additional bushel will cost? Or whether a herbicide has to be incorporated to work well? Do you know what kind of tests new herbicides are subjected to? Now for the first time on television, Monsanto brings you the answer to these and other questions in a special one-hour farm seminar. A panel discussion on local weed control problems and cultural practices by leading authorities and growers will highlight the show.

The Fall Of Fort Fisher

By H. G. JONES
Dept. of Archives and History
Written for the AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Tomorrow will be the 104th anniversary of the surrender of Ft. Fisher to Union forces. The fall of the "Gibraltar of America," which had kept open the chief Confederate port at Wilmington, sealed the fate of Gen. Robert E. Lee's army by exposing to the enemy the innards of North Carolina.

The capture of Ft. Fisher involved a mammoth attack by Union land and naval forces. An audacious attempt to overwhelm the fort three weeks earlier by blowing up a powder-laden ship near the beach failed. The story of the bold but ill-fated scheme is told in the winter issue of the North Carolina Historical Review by two Southern historians—Dr. Charles L. Price of East Carolina University, and Dr. Claude C. Sturgill of the University of Florida.

In their article, "Shock and Assault in the First Battle of Fort Fisher," Price and Sturgill trace the powder-boat scheme to Gen. Benjamin F. Butler who had read press reports of an explosion at Erith, England, in which two barges crammed with gunpowder exploded and, according to reports, wrecked a wide area, blew fingers off men, knocked birds senseless, and caused paintings to fall in the Crystal Palace 15 miles away.

These much exaggerated reports led Butler to believe that the explosion of a ship loaded with 150 to 300 tons of gunpowder would poison the air, cause "sympathetic" explosions in the fort's magazines, and leave the earthen bastion helpless before Union landing forces.

Butler's plan, which he thought would revolutionize naval warfare, was endorsed enthusiastically by Adm. David D. Porter, the fleet commander, who wrote, "I think that houses in Wilmington and Smithville (now Southport) will tumble to the ground and much demoralize the people, and I think if the rebels fight after the explosion they have more in them than I gave them credit for." Gen. Ulysses S. Grant approved the plan and sent thousands of troops for the expedition.

Chosen for this heroic experiment was the Louisiana, and old flatbottom steamer. More than 200 tons of powder was loaded below deck. A delicate time fuse system was developed, and, as a precaution, a series of candles was cut to burn a predetermined time.

The fleet arrived off Ft. Fisher on Dec. 18 and awaited a favorable night. On the night of Dec. 23 the Louisiana was sent on her way to her death. Cmdr. Alexander C. Rhind, after setting the fuses and lighting the candles, transferred his men to the wilderness and sped to a distance of twelve miles to await the anticipated "fearful concussion."

Twenty minutes behind schedule, three blasts were heard and flames were seen just before 2 a. m. That the explosion had not been as violent as expected was suggested by the fact that the shock upon the Union ships was only moderate. Nevertheless, exaggerated rumors circulated among the crew. One officer wrote his parents that he understood the explosion had so paralyzed the Confederates at the fort that they were anxious for the Federals to land so that they might surrender and get aid.

It was not until many days later when the Federals assaulted the fort on foot that the truth came out. The scheme had done very little damage and some of the officers had not even been awakened, although some men near the beach were tossed up "like popcorn in a popper."

Price and Sturgill conclude, "The results of the explosion, then, were quite insignificant, and about the only effect on the Confederates, as a later historian wrote, was to excite envy of any enemy who could afford to waste 215 tons of precious powder."

The editor of the Wilmington Journal noted that the farce would have been complete if they had deployed 200 or 300 Chinese gongs "to fright the souls of timorous adversaries."

New Bern Blue Laws Ruled Out

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP) — The Sunday Blue Laws of the city of New Bern have been declared unconstitutional.

Tuesday Craven County District Court Judge Robert E. Wheeler approved a motion to dismiss charges against three retail food merchants.

Defense attorneys argued that the ordinance amounted to class distinction and private prosecution, since it had been drafted by the city's merchants association.

The defendants were charged with selling goods on the Sunday before Christmas.

Robert Bowers, a private prosecutor, said the decision will be appealed.

Davidson Surge Gets Past Bucs, 91-76

SLAP!

Davidson's Brian Adrian slaps the wrist of Jim Gregory of East Carolina and is charged with a foul during last night's game between the Southern Conference schools.

Davidson broke open a close game at the start of the second half, and took a 91-76 victory over the Bucs. (AP Wirephoto)

DAVIDSON — The nationally-ranked Davidson College Wildcats pushed away from East Carolina University at the half, and battled their way to a 91-76 victory over the Bucs last night.

Davidson held a slim two-point edge at halftime, 43-41, but outhit the Bucs, 14-3 in the opening four minutes of the second half to take a 13-point edge.

That, combined with the fact that the Bucs sent the Wildcats to the foul line 48 times, was the story of the game. Fouls plagued the Bucs throughout the evening, and kept sophomore star Jim Fairley from even getting his feet wet in the contest.

Fairley found himself on the bench early in the first period with three personals. And he drew his fourth and fifth in the first two and a half minutes of play in the second half, leaving with 17:27 to go. He did not score a point in the game, and was a great loss to the Pirates in their hopes of stopping Davidson's long home win streak, now out to 52 on their home court. Davidson also extended its Southern Conference streak to 26 with the win.

Fouls also knocked the Bucs out of Jim Gregory's help midway through the second half, and Jim Kierman followed him shortly. Both Jim Modlin and Tom Miller fouled out late in the game to see all five Buc starters on the bench when time finally ran out.

But before the fouls started to take their toll, the Bucs had made a game of it, leading by as much as three in the first half, after rallying from seven down.

For Tom Miller, it was somewhat of a personal triumph. He scored his season's high of 29 points, and was the game's leading scorer.

The Bucs fell behind in the opening minutes of the game, but fought back and eventually got the lead. Sophomore Brian Adrian, this week's Southern Conference Player of the Week, put the Wildcats out with three points on a foul shot and a bucket. Miller hit first for East Carolina, but Doug Cook added a Davidson basket and the Wildcats held a 5-2 lead. Adrian scored to make it 7-2, and the 'Cats held a five-point edge.

East Carolina pulled back to within two, but four points by Cook ran the lead out to six, at 11-5.

Again, the Bucs rallied, but Fox DeMoisey and Adrian hit from the floor and Mike Maloy struck from the line to give the 'Cats a 16-9 edge, their biggest lead of the half.

East Carolina then began to struggle back. Finally a bucket by Miller and a goal tending call against Maloy cut the lead back to one at 24-23. Julius Prince then scored on a layup and the Bucs held the lead for the first time, 25-24.

Maloy tied it up at the line, but Gregory hit a jumper with 7:35 left to return the Bucs to the lead, 27-25. Jerry Kroll scored for the Wildcats to tie it again, and then Kroll made two free throws with 6:43 to go to put the 'Cats back ahead.

Gregory's jumper tied it up and Jim Modlin's layup made it 31-29 for the Bucs. Kroll again got Davidson back, this time with a three-pointer for the lead, but Miller and Modlin hit back to back shots and the Bucs held a 35-32 lead with 4:05 to go.

Maloy and Eric Minkin both scored and put Davidson out again. Prince hit another layup and Gregory stole the ball for two more, and the Bucs were out, 39-36. But Adrian and Maloy, both got buckets for the Wildcats for a 40-39 edge.

East Carolina tried one last time, taking a 41-40 lead on Gregory's basket, but Minkin tied it up at the line and Maloy hit just before the end of the half for a 43-41 edge.

Then came the disaster. Adrian hit on the tap and was fouled by Gregory. He completed the three-point play. Cook hit on a hook and Maloy scored at the line before the Bucs could get on the scoreboard and it was 49-41. Gregory got a bucket for the Bucs, but the 'Cats were off again.

Maloy hit again, and Cook scored from underneath. He made good on a foul shot before Harvey got a free throw for the Bucs. Maloy made good on three on a row at the line and it was 57-44, a lead the Bucs could not overcome.

East Carolina managed to cut the lead back to seven and Miller and Gregory both hit, but Gregory's last basket came with a charge that put him out of the game with 10:58 to go. Davidson got two at the line and was back out 65-56, and it was merely a question of setting the margin after that.

Besides Miller's 29, Modlin had 17 and Gregory had 15.

Sonny Randle Added To Pirate Grid Staff

Sonny Randle, an 11-year veteran of the National Football League has been named as an assistant football coach at East Carolina University.

Head football coach Mike McGee made the announcement that the former All-Pro receiver would become the fourth member of his new staff at the Southern Conference school.

"I feel very fortunate to add Sonny to our staff. He brings an exceptional professional ability and dedication to football with him," McGee said. "Not only is he an outstanding coach, but a man of highest quality and character."

McGee said that Randle will coach the receivers and work closely with the total passing game. He will recruit mainly in the Virginia areas.

The Washington, D. C., native became an outstanding receiver in the NFL following his graduation from the University of Virginia in 1959. He made the switch from collegiate wingback to professional end and was twice named to the All-Pro team. Four times he was selected for the Pro Bowl. He spent nine years with the St. Louis Cardinals, and a year each with the San Francisco 49ers and the Dallas Cowboys.

During his professional career, he caught 67 touchdowns among 385 receptions which covered some 5,000 yards.

Randle, at his Fork Union, Va., home said that he was "so elated" he hardly knew how to express himself. "I look forward to being a part of the East Carolina staff with a close friend of mine. Mike McGee is going to have a fine program there and I am glad to be getting in on the ground floor at the start," Randle said.

"Mike and I have had a close friendship for years, while playing together in the ACC, and while on the Cardinals. I have great respect for him both as a person and a coach, and I know he is building an outstanding program at East Carolina."

During the off seasons, Randle worked with football camps, in radio and television, and for two years was a running instructor for the St. Louis baseball Cardinals. He is an affiliate of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Married to the former Judy Bransford, he is the father of four children, David, 9, Sandra, 8, Bethany 6, and Evan 4.

"The addition of Sonny Randle to our staff is an important step for the future as East Carolina football moves into a new era," McGee said.

Dedmon Help For Heels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Last season when big center Rusty Clark was injured, North Carolina basketball fans held their breaths, clutched lucky charms and shuddered for fear their Tar Heels would crumble on the boards.

But their fears were allayed when a lanky reserve from Baltimore, Md., named Lee Dedmon stepped in and proved more than adequate.

This year, with Clark in medical school, Dedmon has developed into one of the top inside players in the Atlantic Coast Conference, a league rich with talent.

Dedmon held Duke's Randy Denton to 14 points and allowed him only five of 12 from the field, meanwhile, firing in 18 points in the Tar Heels' 86-78 victory.

In North Carolina's 78-69 victory over previously unbeaten North Carolina State, Dedmon held Paul Coder to five of 15 field goal tries and blocked numerous shots. Even in defeat, Dedmon has displayed considerable ability. He outscored his opposite on the South Carolina team, Tom Owens, 14 to 11 despite North Carolina's loss.

"I thought Lee was a sensational player in the wins over State and Duke," said Tar-Heel Coach Dean Smith. "We wouldn't have won either game without his fine performances."

Before the season began, Smith said: "If we are fortunate enough to win a fourth straight Atlantic Coast Conference championship, then Lee Dedmon will be the best center in the league."

Dedmon's performance, along with that of teammate Charlie Scott, is partly responsible for seventh-ranked North Carolina leading the conference in team scoring.

The Tar Heels shot an average of 88.9 points per game for the first six weeks of the season. North Carolina State was

Crowell's Clothing Comments

By the time the 18th century began, the American colonists had developed several interesting styles of their own. The gentlemen wore a double-breasted greatcoat or riding coat of serge, or coarse woolen-ribbed cloth called kersey. He wore a triple caped light waistcoat, lace cravat, black leather top boots, uncocked felt hat and natural hair. Another style of the period consisted of a collared, circular cape in bright colors, scarlet being the favorite. It was made of silk or velvet. On his head was a cocked felt hat and powdered natural hair or a wig. From the waist down, he wore tight breeches, silk stockings and buckled leather shoes. Still another style consisted of a single-breasted riding coat with a small cape. With these he wore tight velvet breeches, leather puttees (spatterdashes) and a beaver hat. Smoke-Belching Factory To Be Thing Of The Past

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — All factory smokestacks belching black smoke, long a symbol of industrial progress, soon will be a thing of the past in North Carolina.

Regulations to curb air pollution which are scheduled to take effect July 1 will outlaw such smoke.

Those who violate the new regulations will be required to submit a timetable to the state's Board of Water and Air Resources for compliance.

It will be up to the board to decide whether the proposed timetable is reasonable.

How much will compliance cost?

Plenty.

William E. Knight, chief of the air pollution control division of the state Department of Water and Air Resources, said in the past 18 months his office has approved approximately 30 voluntary air pollution abatement projects which will cost approximately $25 million.

Facilities to solve the state's air pollution problems would undoubtedly cost many times $25 million.

To distinguish black smoke, which the air pollution regulations will outlaw, a chart has been devised to spot it from acceptable gray smoke. The chart is marked off with patches in increasing shades of gray, ranging from 10 per cent density—almost white—to 100 per cent—pure black.

Under the new regulation, Knight said, any smoke blacker than 49 per cent will be illegal.

Knight noted most public schools that burn coal in their furnaces will find themselves in violation of the new regulations.

"In many cases this problem can be solved by installing proper firing procedures," he said.

"In some cases, it will be necessary to redesign facilities.

"The thing that gets me about black smoke," Knight pointed out, "is the waste involved. Black smoke is a result of improper combustion and a company that's dumping out black smoke is really sending good, burnable fuel into the air."

What's needed to eliminate black smoke, he said, is combustion control.

"You need two things to burn a fuel completely — the right temperature and the right flow of air over and under the fire. If you have both factors, you can burn smoke free."

The new regulations will affect industries which produced large amounts of waste wood and wood shavings, like the furniture industry, and which get rid of their waste by burning.

Some produce great quantities of black smoke.

"In many cases the problem of smoke emission could be solved by insulating proper firing procedure," Knight reiterated.

More than 300 municipalities that burn all or part of their waste in open dumps will find themselves in violation of the new regulations and will have to find new ways — such as landfills — to dispose of their wastes, Knight noted.

He pointed out that a properly designed incinerator would comply with the new regulations, but most municipalities probably would find them too expensive.

Ayden Adopts 2 All-Electric Rate Schedules

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board Monday night adopted two all-electric rate schedules for the Town, one for residential service and the other for commercial and small industrial service.

The rates, to become effective Feb. 1, will provide electrical service to all-electric homes and businesses at a more economical price, according to Town Clerk Don Russell.

The board also adopted a resolution establishing budget billing for the totally electric residential and commercial customers.

The customer must be placed on the budget billing at the beginning of the budget billing year, scheduled to begin with the month of August and end with the month of July.

"The customer may place an application with the town of Ayden for budget billing including the necessary information for the town to properly estimate the amount of electricity which will be used by the customer," Russell said.

The town and customer will sign an agreement in which the customer agrees to pay the amount stipulated by the town, to be paid on a monthly basis. The amount will not include water, sewer, garbage or other utility fees charged by the town.

"The all-electric customers will be subject to the town's late payment penalties, cut-off dates, bank drafts and other regulations," Russell explained.

In other business, the board unanimously adopted the recommendation by the Ayden Planning Board for one-mile zoning for the town.

Dillon Watson was appointed to the Planning Board to fill an unexpired term for John Clark Noble who submitted his resignation.

Mrs. Kattie Summey was named to replace Mrs. Joyce McLawhorn on the Recreation Commission.

The board authorized Town Manager Peter Vandenberg to file an application with the North Carolina Department of Social Services for financial assistance in planning and constructing the police and jail portions of the proposed Ayden Town Hall.

The General Assembly has appropriated funds to be dispensed by the Department of Social Services for the purpose of providing State matching funds to cities for improvements in local confinement facilities, Russell said.

Tax Collection Rate Said Good

Tax collections continue at an outstanding rate in Greenville, according to City Manager Harry Hagerty.

Reporting to the mayor and city councilmen in the January meeting, Hagerty said, "Current taxes are now 67 percent collected. This compares with the magic figure of a 50 percent expectation for the end of December."

Of current taxes totaling $1,048,971.95 budgeted for 1969-70, $146,372.95 was collected during December, bringing the amount collected to date to $710,866.71—leaving $338,105.24 due to be collected.

Prior year taxes continue to be received. In December $3,897.52 was collected in this category, bringing to $23,450.90 prior taxes collected through December.

Other noteworthy collections were those of $19,113.91 from N.C. franchise taxes and $32,964.68 from the Greenville Utilities Commission. The December collection from the Utilities Commission marks the 50 percent contribution level for the $395,596.17 budgeted by the commission for the city of Greenville.

An amount of $125,000 from the Powell Bill was budgeted for Greenville for the 1969-70 fiscal year. This was collected in December—at $126,770.61, giving a credit balance of $1,770.61 for this item.

Monthly contributions from the Pitt County ABC Board and from parking meters were $4,460.07 and $3,338.55, respectively. Parking meter fines accounted for $853.50 for December.

For December, revenues collected from all sources were $329,242.23. This brings the fiscal collections to date to $1,408,376.66, against a total budget of $2,027,272.25.

Post Office Is Recover Bodies Entered, Robbed Of 33 Victims

MOUNT MOURNE, N. C. (AP)—The Post Office at Mount Mourne in Iredell County was robbed Sunday night, but officers said Tuesday no arrests have been made.

Postal officials in Atlanta, Ga., said the thieves cut a hole in the roof and took about $1,000 in stamps and money orders.

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP)—Fishermen have recovered the bodies of all 33 persons who perished when a twin-engine airliner crashed into a shallow lagoon Tuesday.

Authorities said the DC3, only aircraft operated by Polynesian Airlines, crashed and burned seconds after it took off from Faleolo Airport, in the independent island country of Western Samoa.

The dead, all Western Samoans or New Zealanders, included 30 passengers, the pilot, copilot and stewardess.

Officials said the plane took off in a heavy rain on an 80-mile flight to Pago Pago and nosed into the sea only 400 yards from the end of the runway.

FEW BILLS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Only 190 public bills and 75 private relief bills were enacted into law by the lengthy first session of the 91st Congress which ended Dec. 23. There were 2,553 bills and resolutions introduced.

Community Ambassadors To Be Chosen

Preliminary selection of five candidates from a field of ten applicants for Greenville area 1970 Community Ambassador will be made soon.

Miss Susie Stocks, last year's Community Ambassador and now a senior at Rose High School, says "The selection committee of seven persons will choose five applications to submit to the Experiment in International Living headquarters in Putney, Vermont."

The Vermont headquarters is where the final choice of the one successful candidate within an

Pot Belly Club Begins Catch On

The Pot Belly Club, which has sagged for the past few months and was the butt of many jokes in Greenville, has begun to catch the fancy of some of Greenville's male citizens — with the result that this feature program in climbing in the popularity charts of activities conducted by the Greenville Recreation Commission.

Ranking at the very bottom of the list for the past two or three months, the Pot Belly Club has pulled itself up to the ninth most popular activity — with an average attendance of 15 members at each session. In its climb, it passes bridge, ladies exercise, and newcomers, and almost ties with volleyball as the eighth place favorite.

After a one month lead by Elm Street in the number of persons participating in scheduled activities, South Greenville again surged ahead to take its traditional standing as the busier of the two recreation centers.

For December, South Greenville registered a total attendance of 5,352, which included 507 attending Lelan Allbrook's special classes. The gym activities accounted for a majority of the activity, with 1,567 attending day activities at the gym and 1,972 for night activities. The Teen Age Club registered an attendance of 450; with center activities at 501.

At Elmhurst, total attendance in December was 4,500. This figure includes reservations for several parties which accounted for 1,010 in attendance. The most popular activity at Elm Street, like South Greenville, was gym, with 1,760 day participants and 796 at night gym activities.

Hard-Sell For Bible-Reading And Application

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — A hard-sell campaign is on to spur Britons to read the Bible in installments and then relate its content to their lives.

The campaign is expected to start in the United States later this year.

Marshal Cavendish, Ltd., a London firm, is publishing the Bible in 112 highly colored installments at two-week intervals. It allotted $360,000 to pushing sales in Britain and claims to have sold more than 100,000 copies of part one, which deals with the Creation.

Similar advertising will cost $200,000 in Canada and more than a million dollars in the United States, marketing manager Peter Godfrey says.

Davidson, Pearce, Berry and Tuck, the advertising consultants, ran a series of full-page newspaper ads.

"Who do you think Christ was?" one ad asked. "An old-fashioned Billy Graham? The first true Socialist? or the Son of God?"

Next day the text "You shall have no other Gods except Me" appeared over the picture of a long-haired, bare-chested pop idol. The commandment "You shall not utter the name of your God to misuse it" appeared by a man who had just hit his thumb with a hammer. "You shall not covet" showed a woman trying on a new mink coat before a minkless friend. "Does this include keeping up with the Joneses?" the caption asked.

The aim was obviously to attract the younger generation without offending their elders. It involved some delicate tight-rope walking.

"I don't feel we've anything to apologize for," said Norman Berry, a partner in the advertising firm. "We've taken an enormous amount of care not to offend people and we're in tune with the times."

Because Britain's commercial television network won't take religious advertising, the public did not hear Orson Welles intoning the words of God, but Americans certainly will.

A slightly softened campaign appeared in the weekly religious press, edited for each denomination. "Bible Today makes you think again" was the key slogan.

Britain's leading Catholic paper, The Universe, was so impressed that it mailed copies to all Roman Catholic priests in the country.

The Rev. Peter Johnston, Church of England vicar of Islington, welcomed the new series at a North London evangelical conference.

An officer at the Salvation Army's international headquarters said:

"Officially there's no comment. But there's been a lot of talk in the canteen. Some people thought this was a very strange way of presenting the Bible."

Revolutionary Plan For Levy

By ROBERT STRAND
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — As a county assessor, Dr. Irene Hickman has set the local establishment on its ear a couple of times.

Now she proposes to do the same for the whole State of California with a revolutionary sounding plan to levy property tax on the land and nothing else.

Actually, the idea of abolishing taxes on all homes, business buildings and personal property and heavily taxing the land itself has been around for 90 years. But Mrs. Hickman, now Sacramento County assessor, proposes to write it into the law of California.

Slash for Homeowners
An immediate result of any change like this would be a slash of 25 to 40 per cent in property taxes now paid by most homeowners—and large increases for others.

The purpose of Mrs. Hickman's proposal is to eliminate slums, increase employment and end speculation. She and her White Hat Committee for Tax Reform have the difficult task of obtaining 520,000 signatures, at a cost of $260,000, by June to qualify their initiative for the November ballot.

Mrs. Hickman first upset the political status quo in 1966 when she defeated an incumbent assessor who she said under-taxed the wealthy.

In 1968, by denouncing land speculators, she polled 60 per cent of the vote in turning back a recall effort backed by both daily newspapers.

This popular support came in spite of some eccentricities, for a politician, which she never conceals. She is an osteopath who believes in extrasensory perception and reincarnation and who once tried LSD.

The theory of the land tax is that wealthy speculators now withhold land from proper use. It pays for investors to own slums because their land value is skyrocketing while their taxes remain low.

Reasoning
For similar reasons, suburban properties became "slubrs" because owners let their land go to junkyards while getting rich.

And with current taxes on improvements, the government creates a needless obstacle to replacement of decaying and obsolete structures.

But with a heavy land tax, the slum owner is forced either to erect new buildings or sell to somebody who will. Investors could no longer hold off the market vast acreages of potential residential areas.

And homeowners, farmers and businessmen would not be "penalized" by taxes for improving their properties with new construction.

"There has been such a tremendous price boom that people can't use the land," Mrs. Hickman says. She believes the boom may trigger a depression which "will make the last one look little."

"I have known for 28 years that poverty can be eliminated from the earth," she says. "This pursues me like the addition of the most hardened addict."

Mrs. Hickman's ideas derive from Henry George, author of the 1879 economic "classic," "Progress and Poverty." George, a San Francisco newspaper editor and later a strong mayoral contender in New York, advocated taxes only on land, a "single tax."

He said "taxation of what man produces is immoral and destroys his incentive."

Scholarship For Vocal Student

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kosciuszko Foundation announces an additional scholarship of $1,000 for an American vocal student, age 19 to 25, aiming at a concert and opera career.

It is the Genia Zielinska Memorial Scholarship, given by the sister of the coloratura soprano who was born in Kansas City of Polish parents.

One of the purposes of the foundation is to encourage young Americans to acquaint themselves with Polish music. Contestants sing arias and one or more songs by Polish composers.

Phosphate is responsible for tooth, bone and body growth in animals and humans.

The Worry Clinic Tell A Doctor All The Truth

Lola merely has gone on a "surgical binge" whereas many other dissatisfied wives take to alcohol, drugs and chain smoking. When you see a woman who is a heavy cigarette addict, you can feel pretty sure she is sexually jittery and disturbed. So send for the booklet below and learn the true medical facts.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE L-586: Lola D., aged 29, is the worried wife who has submitted to 4 pelvic operations with no marked improvement. "Dr. Crane," she wailed, "I wonder if I am really just a 'Worry Wart' about my internal organs."

"For my last doctor urged me to see a psychiatrist. "Am I losing my mind?" But I reassured Lola by telling her she was just like millions of other wives.

So I asked her about her marital relations and then she blurted out the truth.

"Oh, Dr. Crane," she blushed, "I have never been able to obtain as much excitement out of sex as my husband does.

"So I decided maybe something was wrong with me, organically.

"But I hesitated to speak about such things to the young physician to whom my husband took me.

"So I mentioned vague pain in the pelvis, hoping that when he performed a physical examination, he'd be sure to see if there was anything abnormal about me.

"But he decided I should have my appendix out, so that was the first of my 4 operations.

"My husband has spent $7,000 on my medical bills and still I am not able to obtain the pleasure out of marital relations that my husband does.

"Dr. Crane, what else can I do or is my case hopeless?"

Women are just naturally frigid creatures as measured by the typical masculine standard, so they must face that fact and thus not develop sexual inferiority complexes.

"But, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "I know many wives who claim they are far more erotic than their mates!"

"And what about prostitutes, 'call' girls and nymphomaniacs?"

Well, the prostitutes, 'call' girls and nymphomaniacs simply feign an exaggerated interest in sex, either to please their patrons and thus rate a bigger cash tip.

Or the nymphomaniacs act passionate to compensate for an inner inferiority complex, due to their sterility or hysterectomy, burns, scars, amputations, etc., which make them feel that "I

Wild Mink Can Be Dangerous

BUCKFASTLEIGH, England (AP)—Children in this Devon town have been warned not to hunt for wild mink which are breeding in a local river.

"They might go for a child," said one mink expert.

The wild mink, descendants of animals which escaped from a nearby mink farm, have been blamed for the deaths of chickens, cats and a lamb.

Experts say the mink no longer have any commercial value as their coats have become course through living in the wild.

Glass Windows A Death Trap

WINCHESTER, England (AP)—The big glass picture windows at a computer company's new research laboratory here were a death trap for wild birds. Unable to see the transparent sheets, an average of 12 birds a day broke their necks flying headlong into the windows. Finally a staff member suggested painting black plastic silhouettes of eagles on the windows. Now fewer than one bird a week meets death against the glass.

Retailers Face Growing Trend To Sunday Business

By WHAYNE EISENMAN
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's Sunday and the cash registers are ringing in Larry Voet's supermarket, but to him they don't have the same musical chime as on weekdays.

"I don't think anybody likes working on Sundays," Voet said watching a woman squeeze a head of lettuce then toss it back on the pile.

Eike it or not, Voet, manager of an Albers supermarket in Cincinnati, and other retailers across the nation are faced with a growing trend to remain open on Sundays.

"Our store stays open only because others are open ... it's a chain reaction," he said.

Even old-line department stores—pressed by competition and an apparent demand by shoppers for a place to buy on weekends—are staying open on the traditional day of rest.

"Our stores will remain open only in areas where our major competitors ... keep their stores open ...," said a J. C. Penney spokesman.

Penney, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck experimented with Sunday sales in some stores for the first time late last year and say they intend to continue the practice.

Sunday has a marked advantage to some shoppers.

Husbands who commute between suburb and city can accompany their wives to help make decisions on major purchases, and excursions through rambling department stores take the form of Sunday outings for the whole family.

One-car families and working wives like Sunday shopping, reports a Food Fair market manager in Los Angeles. Business is especially heavy Friday nights and continues through the weekend, when the car is available, he said.

But opening either large or small stores on Sunday is not as simple as it might seem.

The extra work day is expensive and can cut into the profits from increased sales—if they do, in fact, increase.

And many states have "blue laws." These are so called because the severe moral dictates of 18th Century Connecticut Puritans were bound in a blue book. The blue laws restrict sales of many items on the Sabbath.

Blue laws have been modified over the years and frequently have been the center of legislative controversy.

In Kentucky, for example, it is legal to buy a glass of milk on Sunday, but not a full bottle. You can buy a cooked hamburger but not a frozen one.

In Massachusetts food may be sold only by farmers or stores which during the week employ not more than three persons, including the owner.

In spite of blue laws, some merchants have been determined to open on Sundays, with varying results.

In Hopkinsville, Ky., for example, the S. H. Kress Co. was recently fined $50 for violating the state's Sunday closing law. A similar charge against Big K, a discount store, was dropped.

Sunday sales of general merchandise in Ohio are prohibited, but they continue.

"Nobody enforces the law. I guess because it's an unpopular one," said John C. Young, city attorney for Columbus. "They tried to enforce it ... about five or six years ago ... went through 200 to 300 cases ... but there was so much pressure from the business community, they finally stopped enforcing it."

Al Materi, of Bismark, N.D., challenged the city's Sunday closing ordinance and his grocery store—which has six employees—was closed down.

"I did 25 per cent of my weekly volume on Sunday," Materi said.

However, the ordinance modeled after North Dakota state law allows groceries operated by not more than three employees to remain open on Sundays.

Retailing officials worry, too, about the effect of Sunday work on the attitude of employees.

"Being open on Sundays makes the retail business unattractive to current and prospective employees," said a Harrisburg store manager privately.

Some shoppers, however, are almost vehement about doing away with laws that prohibit the sales.

"It's ridiculous when you aren't allowed to make an honest living on Sunday or any day. Our flag is on the moon but we still have laws which keep mothers from buying milk on Sunday," said Mrs. Mildred Peck of Louisville.

Strong sermons were preached against Sunday openings recently in Alabama when it appeared Sears Stores might test the constitutionality of the state law permitting sale only of "essential" items.

The Southern Baptist Convention in that state passed a resolution that called upon its members to patronize stores that "Observe the Lord's Day." Rev. Oley C. Kidd of the 103,000 member Birmingham Baptist Assn. said the resolution "by inference" called upon Baptists not to trade with stores that might attempt Sunday openings.

Orthodox Jewish groups in particular have pressed for change in the blue laws. The Jewish Sabbath is Saturday.

Blue laws in some states, like Pennsylvania and Texas, provide that members of faiths which observe the Sabbath on a day other than Sunday can open as long as they close one other day in the week.

December reports to the city manager from the Fire and Police Departments show an average level of activity for a one month period.

In December the fire and rescue calls totaled 136, with 76 of this number being rescue calls.

Residential fire calls led the list in fire alarms at a total of 21 for the month. Others were trash or grass fires, 14 calls; auto or trucks, nine; mercantile, service and false alarms at four each; three for non-residential; 49; embezzlement and fraud, 15; forgery and other assaults, each 12; narcotic drug laws, three; driving while intoxicated, 18; vandalism and offenses against the family and children, four each; illegal possession of weapons, six; liquor law violations, five; and disorderly conduct, three. All other offenses numbered 73.

A breakdown of the arrests reveals that 176 white males and 145 Negro males were arrested in December; 42 white females and 25 Negro females being arrested.

Within Greenville, the high costs of accidents is evident from the $51,048.00 estimated for accident property damage. A total of 102 accidents were investigated. Accidents resulted in 38 persons being injured; six hit and run incidents; and 65 persons arrested for traffic violations.

Parking violations provided the city with $853.50 in revenues collected from fines. Overtime parking (at 50 cents per violation) furnished $466.50; seven violations of parked left to curb at $1.00 each added $7.00; and $380 was collected from all other violations with 380 cases each assessed $1.00.

Police And Fire Plan Month Of Activity 'Average' Drug Education

A month of special emphasis on drug education will begin February 2 with the performance here of an off-Broadway play called "The Concept" by its New York cast.

"The Concept" will be presented Monday, February 2, at 8 p.m. in Christenbury Gymnasium on the East Carolina campus. According to Dr. Malene Irons, president of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, the play is about Daytop, a halfway house for narcotics addicts in Staten Island, N.Y., which employs encounterer group therapy as a primary tool in preparing former addicts to accept themselves and others.

"This first performance of "The Concept" in North Carolina should have a strong message for all who see it because it portrays the importance of personal involvement for anyone interested in the drug education problem," Dr. Irons said. "It should also be a powerful entertainment experience, both because of its subject and its able cast."

Dates and locations for the sale of play tickets will be announced soon.

The three following Sunday night, panel discussions on the drug problem will be held at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, a joint project of the PCMHA and the United Christian Youth Movement. Each of the panels will consist of persons who deal daily with drugs and the consequences of its use, including Dr. Walter Savage, Judge J. W. H. Roberts, John Taylor, Dr. Alfred Yongue, Dr. Andrew Best, Thomas Denton, and others. Pertinent films will be shown, also.

Quick Thinking For TV Crisis

LONDON (AP) — The producers of a TV medical program were in a near panic recently when, seconds before they were scheduled to tape a segment about chest complaints, a bronchitis sufferer due to demonstrate symptoms underwent a sudden "cure" under the hot arc lights. Thinking quickly, the subject, 52-year old Frank Parkinson, suggested a sprint might bring back his complaint. After a short run around the studio he came back before the camera, puffing and wheezing.

Carter is a System Operator. His office is a nerve center where maps, charts, and sensitive instruments provide the information he needs to link our customers' power requirements to our giant generating plants. Throughout Vepco's entire area. As economically as possible.

It's a critical job and a big responsibility. But Carter Glenn and the hundreds of other people at Vepco wouldn't have it any other way.

Russia Adding A Crematorium
MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Russia is catching up with the British way of death. So far, the U.S.S.R. has only one crematorium in Moscow, but state funeral authorities recently ordered $396,000 worth of equipment from a British company to equip a new installation in Moscow, and the British company hopes the order will lead to a contract to supply similar equipment throughout Russia.

'Struck Oil' In Testing Soil
CHARLOTTE (AP)— Executives at Charlotte broadcasting station WBT-WBTW were agast recently when engineers boring for a soil test struck oil next to the studios.

However, it was discovered that the oil came from deteriorated storage tanks at Camp Greene, an abandoned World War I Army camp a few hundred yards from the property.

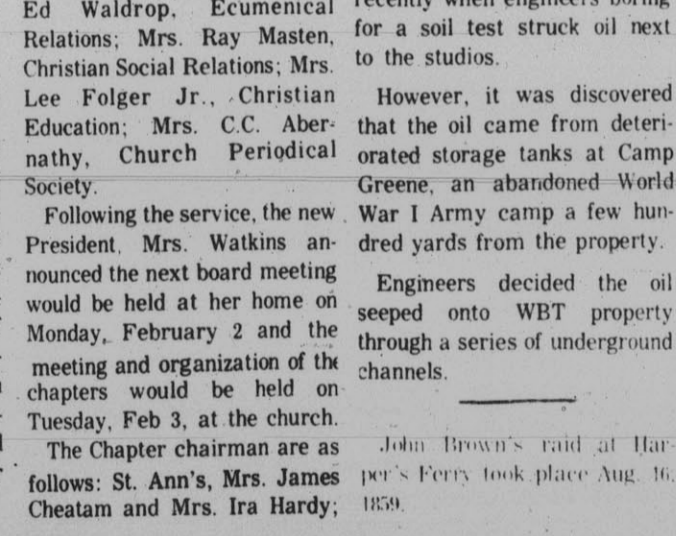

Engineers decided the oil seeped onto WBT property through a series of underground channels.

Perennial Argument Over Foreign Aid Flares

By ROBERT A. HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the first fights facing Congress when it goes back to work next week centers around foreign aid, a controversial program which has been gradually sliding downhill in votes and money.

The battle will be joined over a proposed $54.5 million for a squadron of jet fighters for Nationalist China.

Just before the first session of the 91st Congress ended last month, the House approved a compromise $1.8 billion foreign aid appropriations bill that included money for the jets. But the Senate rejected the bill thus delaying final action until the second session which begins Monday.

House-Senate conferees will have only about two weeks to work out a bill acceptable to both branches before expiration of a separate resolution continuing appropriations for the global aid program, although Congress could extend that resolution if the issue isn't resolved.

While the issue turns on jets for Nationalist China this year, a study of the foreign aid program's history shows it has met increasing opposition even as Congress has whittled away at the appropriations to finance it.

The program, which had its beginnings in the Marshall Plan after World War II, has been described alternatively as an important arm of U.S. foreign policy and as a handout, giveaway venture.

It has undergone a series of name and direction changes, none of which has stifled the opposition. Some contend its problems stem from the fact that the program has no basic constituency in Congress and thus poses an easy mark for any member who wants to vote for budgetary reductions.

In any event, foreign aid has steadily lost favor with the members. When the House in 1957 voted to authorize $3.3 billion for foreign aid—then called Mutual Security—the margin was 100 votes. Ten years later the authorization bill passed by only eight votes. In 1969, when the spending ceiling was down to the $1.9 billion, the vote margin had slipped to just 13 on final passage.

Authorization bills traditionally run the congressional gauntlet first. These set spending ceilings for the program. Then come the actual appropriations bills to provide the money. There normally are fights on both fronts.

But the first session of this Congress found the authorization and appropriation measures floating around the legislative halls at the same time, compounding both the arguments and the confusion.

The 1969 fight quickly centered around the jet fighters for Taiwan. The Nixon administration didn't ask for the jets, but the House acted on its own and added the provision to its version of the authorization bill.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee wasted no time in knocking the authority out of the bill, along with a special $50 million in military aid for South Korea.

The Senate followed its committee's lead and so did House-Senate conferees. The Taiwan jets and extra South Korean aid went by the boards, but not for long.

Led by Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, the House promptly passed an appropriations bill that included both provisions despite the fact that neither had authorization. The Senate, with Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, leading the way, just as promptly cut the money out of the bill, as it had done with the authorization. But this time, the House-Senate conferees accepted the House version. The House then passed the compromise bill, but the Senate voted it down, and returned it to the conferees, who will go back to work on it next week.

Passman and other proponents of the jets for Nationalist China argue that the appropriation, rather than the authorization, bill should take precedence. Opponents say that would amount to the appropriations committees running Congress.

"If this is allowed to stand," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., "We might as well abolish the substantive committees, and leave everything to the appropriations committees, especially the House Appropriations Committee."

President Nixon isn't likely to be pleased with the final bill, with or without the additional money for Nationalist China and South Korea.

In signing the authorization bill, he expressed regret that Congress had cut his $2.6 billion request—"the lowest aid request in history"—to $1.9 billion. "Further large cuts in the appropriations bill would have serious consequences for U. S. foreign policy," said Nixon.

Nonetheless, Passman's subcommittee cut the appropriations bill to $1.6 billion, and the figure emerged from the House-Senate conference at $1.8 billion, still short of the authorization.

Passman, who took over the House subcommittee in 1955 and has played a leading role in cutting foreign aid, feels the program represents only one small element of global assistance.

To him there are 22 "spigots" from which the United States dispenses aid to foreign nations. Passman figures the Nixon administration asked Congress to provide $10.5 billion for the whole package in the current fiscal year.

Some of the major components, in addition to the foreign aid bill, which Passman includes in his broad definition are the Export-Import Bank, Inter-American Development Bank, International Development Association, Asian Development Bank, Peace Corps, an agricultural commodity distribution program, foreign military credit sales and help for the Ryukyu Islands.

Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee who has supported the program, disagrees. He suggested that some facets considered foreign aid by Passman, such as the Peace Corps, never have been part of the program. What has caused the declining vote margins and annual appropriations in Broomfield's view is that "foreign aid just doesn't have many constituents in the United States added to some misdirections and waste over the years which have put it in disfavor." Broomfield said he is looking forward to the pending review of the program.

"When things are tight," Broomfield added, "it is just open season on foreign aid."

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, one of the most outspoken foreign aid critics, said in the early days there was more defense money in the program than there is now which has been shifted to another source.

"We've been slapped in the face by nation after nation that we have helped," Gross said, adding that the declining levels have been brought on by "the sheer impossibility of being able to justify expenditures for this purpose."

Big City Noise Reportedly At Danger Level

NEW YORK (AP) — Noise in New York City has reached a level "intense, continuous and persistent enough to threaten basic community life," a 55-page report from Mayor John V. Lindsay's Task Force on Noise Control says.

The report, called "Toward a Quieter City," said noise in New York regularly went above 85 decibels, a threshold beyond which injury begins. The report was presented Monday at City Hall to Deputy Mayor Timothy W. Costello. The mayor was in Albany.

The 17-member task force after a three-year study called on the city to establish rules to eliminate "disturbing" noises, including a regulation to cut down on excessive truck noise.

Thief Put Up 'Deposit' Box

GRIMSBY, England (AP) — The notice on the bank wall said: "The night safe is temporarily out of order. Customers are invited to use the temporary box provided."

They did, and the enterprising thief came along later and emptied the box he had screwed to the wall just above the night deposit slot.

Police said they had no idea how much money was stolen but probably was several hundred pounds in cash.
